

Nixon Lifts Mystery On 'Phase 2' Plan Tonight

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon unveils to the nation tonight his post-freeze economic package, a complex program of wage-price restraints likely to be based on productivity.

When Nixon goes before nationwide television and radio at 7:30 p.m. EDT, he will strip away the mystery that has surrounded the program, popularly known as Phase 2, since he imposed the 90-day wage-price freeze Aug. 15.

This much is known: The White House has virtually ruled out any controls on profits, and has left the door open only slightly to ceilings on interest rates. Some sort of controls on medical costs is expected.

The biggest question is how much wages and prices will be allowed to rise after the freeze expires Nov. 13. The White House has been super secret on this point, although economists are guessing wages would be allowed to go up 5 per cent.

Productivity—Worker output per man-hour, a gauge of the efficiency of the U.S. economy—is likely to be the key to the Phase 2 plan. Productivity has been rising at about 3 per cent a year.

But there is also a question of whether the wage guidelines should include a cost-of-living allowance to take into account price increases.

How the program will be enforced is just as big a mystery as the wage-price restraints.

Government sources said the Cost of Living Council, set up by Nixon to administer the freeze, likely will continue as the chief policymaking agency in Phase 2.

But beyond that, the alternatives range widely. Organized labor has called for a wage-price review board including members of labor, management and the public, with a voluntary Phase 2 program.

But Nixon says the program "will have teeth," will cover the entire economy, yet focus on major industries. In other economic developments:

—Federal judges, on request of the Justice Department, moved to temporarily halt a lingering West Coast dock strike and a month-old shipping tieup in Chicago.

—The Senate Finance Committee planned to start work today on a bill to cut business and individual taxes $15.4 billion over the next three years. The bill, as passed by the House Wednesday, is a basic part of Nixon's Phase 1 program.

—The Senate attacked another portion of Nixon's inflation-fighting program, voting to allow federal workers a scheduled Jan. 1 pay raise, but no more than allowed private-sector employees under Phase 2. Nixon seeks to delay the federal raises to July 1.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., introduced a bill to repeal the law under which Nixon imposed the freeze. Proxmire, chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee, said the law should be stricken to prevent

Nixon from "becoming an economic dictator."

Sources said the Phase 2 program will amount to a blending of government compulsion to hold down wage-and-price increases, and voluntary cooperation, backed up by government pressure and exhortation.

"The freeze is a mixture," one source said, noting that while wages and prices are frozen, the government moved quickly when some companies raised dividends, which are not covered by the freeze.

That same sort of mixture of controls and pressure will be included in Phase 2, he indicated.

Phase 2 will stop short of all-out permanent wage-and-price controls, a system of combating inflation that Nixon has long decried because of the massive bureaucracy it implies.

But some sort of bureaucracy will be required to administer the Phase 2 plan—and it may be bigger than the 6,000 employees now involved in the freeze.

Sources said the administration does not plan to issue an executive order for Phase 2, indicating the post-freeze program will be imposed only after the 90-day freeze expires.

The plan will not carry a termination date, although the administration says it wants to return to a "free economy" as soon as possible.

The reasons for this are mainly strategic. Announcing a termination date beforehand would merely postpone wage-price decisions, administration spokesmen say, and lead to an explosion of inflation on the termination date.

Evicted By Israel

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel today deported 18 self-styled "black Israelites" from the United States who had demanded "to live in the country of our forefathers."

Airport police used force to herd the blacks—3 men, 5 women and 10 children—onto a KLM jet en route to New York, the state radio said.

They arrived Wednesday and were held at Lod International Airport overnight following an Interior Ministry decision to refuse them entry.

A ministry spokesman said the blacks were turned away "because they are not bona fide tourists ... they have no money and would be a burden on the state."

"Our policy from now on is to turn away any tourists who have no visible means of support ... not only blacks, but others as well." The spokesman noted that several persons from England and West Germany had also been barred recently.

Shooting Probed

The Pitt Sheriff's Department is investigating the shooting Wednesday night of a 16-year-old Bethel youth at the Pitt County Fair.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that the youth, Calvin Carmack was shot in the right leg near the groin around 9:55 p.m. as he stood in a crowd on the fairgrounds. The sheriff said that Carmack was allegedly shot by another male. No arrests had been made this morning, he pointed out.

Sheriff Tyson added that the fair was not closed early following the incident but one of the ages was shut down in order to allow officials to have more control of pedestrian traffic.

A spokesman at Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning said that Carmack was not admitted last night.

Homes Are Lost To Brush Fire

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A wild brush fire cracked through the hills above this picturesque town today, destroying at least seven expensive homes, damaging others and routing hundreds of residents.

Out-of-control flames raced over 2,200 acres by early today, in suburban Montecito and Summerland, and 700 firefighters drawn from throughout the state worked to cut lines around the blazes as planes dropped chemical retardants.

Seven persons were reported injured. The only one suffering serious injuries was a 74-year-old man with third-degree burns suffered in trying to put out flames that menaced his home.

Urges Bowing To Peace Terms

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam claimed today that the presidential election "farce" in South Vietnam and the recent U.S. bombing of the North illustrate the failure of Vietnamization.

Then Nguyen Minh Vy, deputy chief of the Hanoi delegation to the Paris peace talks, called on the United States to accept the Communists' seven-point peace proposal as "the only logical way out of the war."

Vy spoke with newsmen at the 131st session of the deadlocked talks began. Neither of the two Communist delegations was headed by chief negotiators.

Coordinator Is Added To Staff

The Pitt County Board of Education has approved the appointment of Brian R. Vandercook to the newly-created position of Coordinator of School Information Services.

Vandercook, a 1971 graduate of East Carolina University, is the newest addition to the board of education staff.

Vandercook's degree in psychology, combined with a minor in broadcasting and journalism, will aid him in providing for communications within the school system, and establishing a link between the schools and the people of Pitt County.

While enrolled at East Carolina University, Vandercook served as chairman of the Publications Board, was elected to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," was president of his fraternity, and was active in the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the Student Government Association.

ECU President Dr. Leo Jenkins recommended Vandercook as having "a unique ability to relate to and understand the problems of all Fla., had brought his show to Greenville for 21 years as a part of the Pitt County Fair. He had operated his own show since 1913. He was a member of St. Cecilia's Catholic Church, Tampa, Fla.

Buck owned most of the shows and rides that make up the fair. The concessions were owned by others who rented space on the midway from Buck.

Of special interest to Buck was the merry-go-round for which he and his father carved 30 horses, including the King, that thrill the children who ride.

The merry-go-round is 36 feet in diameter and travels at about six and one-half revolutions per minute. It is powered by a 7.5 horsepower electric motor.

Buck's father was a merry-go-round builder and Buck took up the trade.

Buck was a native of Troy, N.Y.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Carole Jordan Buck of Tampa, Fla.; one son, Oscar C. Buck Jr. of Tampa, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. Emma Crenan and Mrs. Mary Turner, both of Long Island, N.Y.; one brother, Howard Buck of Long Island, N.Y.

Court Dismisses Suit Against City

The North Carolina Supreme Court has dismissed the case of former Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr. and others against the City of Greenville.

City Attorney David Reid was this morning advised by Adrian J. Newton, Clerk of the Supreme Court of North Carolina that dismissal action was taken on Tuesday, October 5.

In Newton's statement, it was pointed out "the City has been advised by legal counsel that this terminates the challenge to the Central Business District Project and the Central Business District Project will continue forward as scheduled."

Mayor S. Eugene West, commenting on the Supreme Court's action, said "In the Frank M. Wooten case against the City of Greenville, I have been confident all of the time that the decision of the Supreme Court would be favorable to the City of Greenville."

"I regret very much," Mayor West added, "that the City had to spend the amount of money, give the time and effort necessary to oppose this case which has turned out to be a waste of the taxpayer's funds.

"However," he concluded, "I am pleased that we can now proceed with our programs in an orderly manner."

Funeral Saturday For George C. Elks

Mr. George Clinton Elks, 65, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 6:50 Thursday morning. Funeral services will be conducted at two o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. B. B. Cutrell, pastor of the Grimesland Methodist Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. Masonic rites will be accorded at the grave by the Grimesland Masonic Lodge. Honorary pall bearers will be members of the A.B.C. Board, the A.B.C. Law Enforcement officers, and employees of the Pitt County A.B.C. Stores.

Mr. Elks spent most of his life in Grimesland and attended King's Business College in Raleigh. He was supervisor of the Pitt County A. B. C. Stores. He was a member of the Grimesland United Methodist Church, a member and past Master of the Grimesland Masonic Lodge No. 475, and served as Secretary of the Lodge for 29 years. He was a Scottish Rite Mason, a York Rite Mason, and a Shriner. A past Great Sachem of the Order of Red Men of North Carolina, he was a member of the Grimesland Order of Red Men and the Loyal Order of the Moose.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Margaret Spain Elks; a daughter, Miss Margaret Clinton Elks of the home; five brothers: Tom Elks of Goldsboro, Elbert Elks of High Point, Hugh Elks of Plymouth, and Ernest and Russell Elks, both of Grimesland; and four sisters, Mrs. Theodore Dixon of Grimesland, Mrs. Clifton Toler of Washington, Mrs. Thelma Currier of Danville, Calif., and Mrs. Lillian Harrell of Norfolk, Va.

Twenty-Three Items On Agenda Of City Council

The City Council's meeting for October, to be held tonight at the City Hall at 8 p.m., calls for 12 items of old business and 11 of new business.

To be considered under old business are: appointments to boards and commissions; public hearings on street assessment rolls for portions of May Street, Norris Street, Griffin Street, First Street, and Thirteenth Street, public hearing on the annexation of properties in the Greenfield Terrace Subdivision;

Also public hearing on the rezoning of the Harris property; presentation of the annexation report for approval by the City Council; public hearing on amendments to Housing Ordinance No. 207; requests for mobile home permits in the cases of William F. Bullock, Sr., George P. James, and Willie Lee Brannon; a report by the Green Mill Run Study Committee; supplemental municipal agreement on Tenth Street; and an ordinance granting a franchise to operate a transportation service for students and the staff of East Carolina University to the Raleigh City Coach Lines, Inc.

New business to be considered includes: the rezoning of the Greenfield Terrace Subdivision; a petition for the withdrawal from dedication of a portion of 11th Street, and portions of Eighth Street, Charles Street, E. Seventh Street, and a 20-ft. alley; a petition for the installation of curb, gutter and paving on a portion of Church Street; a petition for street improvements on a portion of Allen Street; a request for a mobile home permit; a request for a refund; a resolution regarding the Regional Lead Agency; an ordinance adopting a container policy for Greenville; overtime pay for policemen for off-duty hours spent in court; and a discussion concerning container trucks and a front end loader.

Trade Schools, Not College, Offer Success Route To Many

By BETTY YARMON
NEW YORK (WNS) — If you're a concerned parent troubled that your youngster shows little interest in going to college, don't fret, for the country's booming field of vocational education may be just right for him or her.

At a time when Ph.D.'s are collecting unemployment insurance and more than 50,000 engineers are out of work, blue collar salaries have been rising and many jobs can't find the skilled people to fill them.

Possibly more important, the trend seems to be in favor of the blue-collar worker, to the point where the American dream of a college education for all may be coming to an end. While many of those enduring college as well as drop-outs complain they find college meaningless, shortages are building up in such fields as health, pollution control, computers. And the statisticians tell us that 50 per cent of the jobs that open up in the 1970s will call for some training beyond high school but below the four-year college degree level.

To meet these expected needs, our educators are giving great attention to vocational education for the first time in many years. Here are some of the places in which they are working, and where opportunities already exist for those youngsters — and adults too — who want to take advantage of tomorrow's opportunities:

1.—Industry-run proprietary schools. While some companies still restrict their educational work to current employees eager to advance on the job, more and more are offering pre-employment training where skills they use are taught. Among such companies: LTV Aerospace Corp., CBS, Grumman, Bell and Howell, Control Data Corp., Dictaphone, and ITT. Such schools have the obvious attraction of giving emphasis to job placement. Dictaphone's schools, for example, have a lifetime placement service.

2.—Trade associations. Thus real estate courses are offered by local real estate boards, members of the national association, while the Massachusetts Restaurant Association runs ten-week courses for cooks and waitresses. Dentists participate in extension study courses to train dental assistants, in a program developed by the Committee on Education of the American Dental Assistants Association.

3.—Unions. Sometimes unions run courses jointly with employers' associations — an example is sewing-machine operation in the Philadelphia area — and in other instances by themselves.

4.—Apprenticeship programs. Government-sponsored programs are now conducted in hundreds of skilled occupations, combining work experience with instruction. Contact the department of labor or industrial commissioner in your state for details.

5.—Public trade and high schools. Thousands of such schools across the country offer vocational education to their regular students — and courses for adults as well, at little or no cost. The range varies from school to school, and depends in part on the job situation in the particular area. If you are in a section of the country with textile plants, for example, it is more likely that work on textile machinery will be taught than in agricultural areas.

6.—Private business, trade, and technical schools. Most such schools offer short-term intensive, practical courses, in both day and evening sessions. Some states set standards that schools must meet, and it's wise to check a school's reputation before signing up.

7.—Correspondence schools. These are of two kinds: private correspondence schools and university correspondence programs. In general the private schools are more practical and immediate in their training.

8.—Junior and community colleges. Vocational courses are offered in most such colleges — actually, they were established for that purpose — many of them at convenient evening hours as well as during the daytime. If you want a degree or certificate, you may be forced to take specific courses. But if you are enrolling simply for the training, you probably will be able to take only those courses of direct help to you. Such colleges are both publicly and privately operated, and so tuition rates vary widely.

9.—Community agencies. The variation from town to town is great. Many "Y's" offer courses in useful trades, while city and state agencies, particularly when responsible for public welfare, have developed programs to help not only those on their relief rolls but others as well.

In the past seven years, vocational enrollment has increased ten-fold, from 200,000 students to two million, and the end is nowhere in sight. Your child may find that joining their ranks will provide the lead-in to a useful and productive life.

Reception Honors Couple On Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ray Hart, of Rt. 2, Farmville, were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception given by their children, Mrs. James Blanchard, of Rt. 1, Hookerton, and Mrs. J. F. Moye of Greenville, and other members of the family on Sunday at the Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church Educational Building.

The hall was decorated with floor baskets of mixed greenery and golden wedding bells. An arrangement of yellow mums and gladioli with golden candles were placed on the gift table. Roses and golden decorations in the wedding motif were used on the piano and throughout the hall.

The serving table was overlaid with a formal cloth of white lace tied at the corners with bows of gold satin and greenery. An arrangement of gold mums and pom poms in a six branch gold candelabra with gold candles centered the table.

Mrs. Jesse Smith, of Farmville, served the four tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Larry Worthington, of Rt. 2 Greenville, poured punch. Others assisting were Mrs. Jimmy Farmer, Mrs. Lawrence Tripp, Mrs. Toby Tripp, Mrs. Clifton Worthington and Mrs. Wilbur Hart.

Presiding at the gift table were Mrs. Thomas Forrest, Mrs. Mills Hatfield, Miss Nancy Smith and Miss Irene Hart.

The guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moye of Greenville. Miss Andree Blanchard and James Thomas Blanchard, of Rt. 1, Hookerton, presided at the register. William Ray Moye and Miss Lou Wilkerson of Greenville said the good-byes, all grandchildren of the honored couple.

Mrs. Hart wore a pale blue knit ensemble with matching accessories and a gold throated white orchid.

The receiving line was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Moye and Mr. and Mrs. James Blanchard.

Approximately 200 guests called during the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Hart were married Oct. 5, 1921, in Ayden.

Lawyer Should Advise You Of Children's Rights

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Here's my story: I was a young divorcee with three children, ages 4, 6 and 7. I married a widower with two children, then 7 and 8 years old.

Now, seven years later, my husband tells me he has drawn up his will, leaving everything to me and HIS children. When I asked him what would happen to MY children if I were to die first, he replied, "I've done enough for YOUR children already."

Abby, I feel that I have done enough for HIS children already, too. I have also done enough for him because when I married him he had nothing and now he has a big business.

My ex-husband has never contributed anything to the support of my children, and he never will.

This has been bothering me to the point of where I am afraid to travel for fear something will happen to me, and my children will be left unprovided for.

I would sure like help on this matter, but I can't go to any lawyer in this town as my husband is very well-known. I don't want to embarrass him, and I don't want the whole town to know my business.

PLAIN WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You need to be advised of your children's rights, if indeed they have any. And if they don't, you'd better find out now. Go to a lawyer and tell him your problem. Lawyers respect confidences, so don't worry about "embarrassing" your husband or being talked about.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl with a problem I hope you won't think is too minor to bother with. I'm fairly good-looking, have lots of friends, and don't have any trouble attracting a guy's attention and getting him to like me. My problem is that as soon as I get a guy to really like me, I don't want him anymore. By that time he's already asked me to go steady, and I've said okay because I just hate to hurt his feelings. But I end up hurting his feelings anyway because I have to break up with him.

If I do go after a guy and don't get him, it just kills me to see him with another girl, even tho I know if I did get him I'd end up hating him, too.

What is the matter with me?

NEVER SATISFIED

DEAR NEVER: Face it. You enjoy the chase more than the prize. Some people never outgrow it, but I hope you do, because there is little happiness for those who want only the unattainable.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE FRUSTRATED WIFE OF MR. FIVE BY FIVE": From your letter, I would say that you have done everything a loving wife can possibly do. And don't worry about his ruining the furniture. You'll be able to buy new furniture from the money you'll collect from his life insurance.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Let's Bake Applesauce Cake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor
Applesauce cake started appearing in comprehensive cook books in the 1920s and this dessert has been a family favorite ever since. When it was first made, a cook prepared her own applesauce because the unsweetened variety was called for. But gradually recipes changed because cooks discovered they could use readily available canned sweetened applesauce to good advantage in the cake.

There are many variations of this cake, but the most popular version is one in which spices are added. The following recipe follows suit, but for a subtle flavor change, it also adds peanut butter.

APPLESAUCE CAKE

- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 3/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon cloves
- 1/2 cup (1/4-pound stick) butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup creamy-style peanut butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 large eggs
- 1 cup canned applesauce

FAMILY FAVORITE — Applesauce cake made with spices and peanut butter may be served plain or frosted.

Line the bottom of a cake pan (8 by 8 by 2 inches) with wax paper; grease paper.

On another piece of wax paper sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves.

In a large mixing bowl cream together the butter, peanut butter and sugar. Beat in eggs one at a time. Stir in flour mixture in 4 additions, alternately with applesauce, just until smooth each time; begin and end with dry ingredients. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—45 to 50 minutes.

Let cake in pan stand on a wire rack for several minutes; turn out on rack; remove paper; with another rack turn right side up. Cool.

Sift confectioners' sugar over top or, if you prefer, frost top and sides.

When purchasing a pearl necklace, remember that the length of the strand should be in correct proportion with one's physical size. A tight choker is not for a short-necked woman. A small woman should choose a princess or matinee length, while taller women can wear the long opera length.

United Nations Dinner Set For Mid-October

Plans for the United Nations Dinner were announced at the meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club held Friday afternoon at the club building.

Mrs. R. P. Rogers, publicity chairman, said that the club would jointly sponsor the dinner with the AAUW on Oct. 18 at 7 p.m. at the Woman's Club building.

Mrs. J. R. Carrington and Mrs. Paul Davenport will be in charge of decorations. Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. H. R. Phillips, 752-4851, or Mrs. Robbie Barrett, 758-1282. The deadline for obtaining tickets is Oct. 15.

Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, vice president, conducted the meeting and announced that the District 15 meeting will be held on Oct. 8 in Williamston.

Mrs. George Snyder, Fine Arts chairman, stated that Gay Mabe was the recipient of the Woman's Club Music Scholarship.

It was also announced that members will tour the N.C. Museum of Art on Oct. 12. The Home Life Department will meet with Mrs. Frank Brown on Oct. 19. Miss Nettie Brogdon announced final plans for the food booth at the Pitt County Fair.

Mrs. Roseveare reviewed the history of the Greenville Art Society. She introduced the guest speaker, Edward Reep, an artist in residence at ECU, who spoke on art.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. C. M. Respass, Mrs. Marie Clark, Mrs. J. A. Piver, Mrs. T. W. Rouse, Mrs. H. H. Settle, Mrs. W. J. Bundy, Mrs. Thomas Cole, Mrs. C. A. Roberson, Mrs. K. R. Rowe and Helen Snyder.

Mrs. Ruffin Is Hostess

Mrs. A. C. Ruffin was hostess to the first meeting of the year of the Chatham Book Club held Tuesday.

The program, given by the hostess, was an account of her visit to the Healy Jewel Museum. She said that the museum is most unusual and unique because the bibelots were created by the owner, George Healy.

The museum is the only one of its kind in the world and is located in the blue grass region about 10 miles from Lexington, Ky., she added.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Herbert Rebarker, of St. Petersburg, Fla., a former resident of Greenville, and Mrs. Herbert Acton of Danville, Ky.

Mrs. R. H. Evans, vice president, conducted a short business session and new books were distributed.

IN DOWNTOWN GREENVILLE

Some Are Expecting Too Much

The holier-than-thou attitude so frequently expressed these days in governmental and non-governmental circles regarding the South Vietnam elections is becoming a shade nauseous. Realism should be the order of the day. Let's look again at the scenario: We know in this country about candidates for office who sidestep the showdown when they know they can't win. That happened in South Vietnam, and how the righteous did sound off all over the world!

Sanford Hopes For Difference

BY BRYAN HAINSLIP
DURHAM — Will the young vote make a difference in politics? "I sure hope so," said Terry Sanford.

The way to find out is to bring the young promptly and fully into the process through the use of the absentee ballot in next spring's primaries, he added.

Sanford is acquainted both with politics and young people, as a former North Carolina governor and now president of Duke University.

His conversation today, six years away from the governorship and two years into the Duke presidency, conveys an edge of disillusion with the creaky political machinery of government and an underlying optimism for new ideas and productive partnership between the academic and governmental spheres.

Such a venture is the Southern Growth Policies Board, a concept initiated by Sanford and launched last weekend by a conference on the Duke campus. Govs. Bob Scott of North Carolina, Jimmy Carter of Georgia, and Arch A. Moore of West Virginia headed participants in the gathering of representatives from 13 states. The aim of the program is to draw together the planning goals of 17 states to promote regional objectives.

Sanford talked about the regional program and implications of the youth vote on North Carolina News Conference, a WUNC-TV broadcast.

Innovative Currents
The entry of 18-20 year-olds into the electorate can be a fresh current for innovative action by government. "Sure, it can make a difference," said President Sanford. "Some young people follow the voting pattern of their parents," he acknowledged, "but a good segment of them do not."

The vote for 18-20 year-olds can't be fully implemented until they have open access to the ballot, now impeded because many in the age group will be away from home for study or work at the time of the primaries next May 2, Sanford explained.

He suggested that the adjourned session of the legislature, meeting Oct. 26 on higher education restructuring, add to its agenda the amendment of the absentee ballot law to make it available in the primary just as in the general election.

Now Is The Time
The extra business might complicate or lengthen the session, he agreed. "But there is justification for doing it now. I think it would be worth the effort to do so," he added.

Sanford's position gave support to the case made by youth spokesmen who have asked that the absentee ballot issue be met at the adjourned session in order to facilitate their participation in the primary.

Government's track record in solving society's problems has not been good. Sanford observed in discussing the new regional agency.

"Anyone who looks at government in the United States would have to take a pessimistic view," he said. "Programs to do something about housing, employment, health care and other problems all have fallen short in spite of our best intentions."

The trouble hasn't been that priorities weren't right or that the effort was not made, he said, but that "the mechanism of government just didn't get down to causes."

Optimism For New Ideas
Past shortcomings call for new ideas, not despair. There can be optimism, Sanford argued, in the design of approaches to come to grips with problems rather than simply coping with the crisis they produce.

What the regional board would do, he said, is serve as "a broker between knowledge and action" to channel the resources of the academic world into the governmental apparatus.

"The board's objective would be to make available information and practical thought on the widest range of problems the region's leadership can perceive; not to be so much as a brain bank as a sleeves-up participant in the search for answers to the hardest problems, and a preventive agent for trauma before it happens."

One of the first items for the agency, once funded and implemented by the participating states, will be the location for headquarters staff. Sanford is an advocate for the Research Triangle, in the Durham-Chapel Hill-Raleigh area. Factors in its favor, he noted, are existing institutions and accessibility to the region.

An urbanizing South can keep its peculiar character and avoid the errors of the North through conscious planning, Sanford said. Getting into the mainstream doesn't mean becoming like every other state or region, but moving with purpose and without bitterness to meet the future.

We know in this country all about bossism and favoritism and nepotism and ballot-stuffing and flagrant dishonesty at the polls.... those charges are heard to one degree or another in just about every election.

We know in this country about how office-holders savor the taste of power, and how they'll go to extremes to keep it.

We know in this country about bribes, vote-buying and you-name-it in the election process.

And with all these bitter experiences Americans still can hold their heads high over the remarkably high caliber of honesty we have experienced and witnessed in our near two centuries of self-rule.

To expect half as much from a people who have yet to learn about democracy is too much.

Of course President Nguyen Van Thieu was re-elected.... he was the only candidate;

Of course his enemies revile him and charge wholesale fraud.... they were his enemies before the election, and they haven't changed. And there was probably a lot of fraud going on wherever the perpetrators could perpetrate. But the fact remains that if Thieu received 1,000 votes, it was 1,000 more than all his opponents put together.

Of course it was disappointing to the United States government; the dream of a firmly established democratic process in South Vietnam just could not be realized in so short a time.

It has been said that voters get the kind of government they elect. That's what happened in South Vietnam.

Nobody worries about elections in North Vietnam.... and incidentally, just when did they last hold an open election (with opposition candidates) over there?

Bowles Has An Uphill Climb

By JOHN KILGO
Now that State Senator Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles has spoken and laid to rest rumors that he would get cold feet and back out of the Governor's race, what will he have to do to win?

Make no mistake about it. If the Democrats gubernatorial primary were held today, Lt. Governor Pat Taylor and Attorney General Robert Morgan would be the front-runners, and not necessarily in that order.

Bowles would probably be third. But the race isn't today and the millionaire Greensboro businessman feels he can make up the difference. A national pollster has just completed a state-wide reading for Bowles. About that Bowles says: "I was agreeably surprised."

But one remark from the pollster summarizes the upcoming gubernatorial campaign rather succinctly: "It's anybody's ballgame."

That means, if you care to believe it, that the voters have not decided which man they will nominate for the Democratic candidacy for Governor. The race will be decided in the campaign and glory to the man who can win the masses who go down today in the "undecided" category.

Now that Bowles is officially in the race, don't look for him to wear out his welcome in your newspaper, TV and radio. He will campaign like a man with a mission this week but then will pretty much cool it until the first of the year.

He wants his campaign to peak in May not January. After all, he's trying to win the Governor's race, not the Super Bowl.

Bowles will center his campaign around the theme of vocational education. He contends that North Carolina's per capita income must be improved before the State can do the many things it needs to do. During Bowles' campaign you will often hear that plumbers and bricklayers are needed as badly as doctors and lawyers. Vocational education is the answer or as Bowles puts it: "I have developed a campaign aimed at putting more money where it really belongs — in the average man's pocket."

Bowles also has a problem and because of that you have his earlier-than-usual announced candidacy. Two of his opponents, Taylor and Morgan, hold state-wide offices and their names have been before the public many, many times. The pollsters call this the identification factor. Bowles has to catch up there without boring people and without peaking out. He hopes this week's work will help him considerably.

The Senator also faces gubernatorial opposition from long-time friend Hugh Morton, a successful business man with a flair for the unusual. A black candidate — probably Reginald Hawkins of Charlotte — will also be on the ballot in May.

When will these people announce? Soon, I can assure you.

Taylor will come with his official proclamation next Monday. Morton has been waiting for someone else to announce, because he didn't want to be the first. Now that Bowles is in and Taylor's sitting on go, Morton will come forth before the month is out.

Morgan has not been in any hurry to say officially that he would run for Governor. The word is already out, even though some politicians still insist that he will head for the U. S. Senate. That's like a hound dog baying at the full moon. Morgan's running for Governor, okay. He had hoped to wait until the first of the year to formally announce — but he won't be able to do that now.

He can't leave the headlines to the others and he won't. Morgan will announce before November 1.

The cards are falling into place and all those men who have been testing the waters, giving it careful consideration, talking it over with advisers, are now stepping forward. They are likely to be exposed like a jaybird, their warts as well as their glamor.

Like Bowles' pollster said: Baby, it's anybody's ballgame.

Strength For Today

THAT BETTER LIFE
What are the true marks for a Christian?

First of all, righteous living. Second, we can expect of a Christian that he will have faith, hope, and love. The third mark is the disposition of a Christian to think more of others and their welfare than he does of himself and the projects of his life.

Christianity is a set of rules and principles that presume to contradict many of the policies which mankind through the centuries has assumed to be correct and sound. If what we call Christianity does not make a difference in what we believe, say and do, then Christianity is nothing more than churchiness. The Church is not full of hypocrites but of aspiring people who make plenty of mistakes but keep pressing on to the living of a better life. There is nothing long-faced about the Christian religion. When people are truly Christian at heart they have a peace which passeth all understanding. Have you ever heard this statement: "Of course I'm a Christian. I belong to church and pay my dues. I attend church regularly and believe the Bible. Doesn't that make me a Christian?"

The answer is No. These things are all factors of the Christian life but they are not the Christian life itself. Christianity is the Golden Rule—plus.

Brazil's Success Story

RIO DE JANEIRO — A great deal has been written in recent years on what might be termed the "bad side" of Brazil — military coups, rule by junta, ruinous inflation, censorship of the press, the torture of captured terrorists. Brazil has not, as they say, had a good image.

The story has another side; and without minimizing the darker aspects, it may be useful to have a look at some remarkable achievements. Charlie Brown, the luckless hero of "Peanuts," once philosophized that "there's no heavier burden than a great potential." Brazil knows the feeling. For nearly a hundred years, since her independence in 1889, Brazil has been acclaimed for her brilliant future. In a number of encouraging ways, she is creeping up on it now.

This week the Congress at Brasilia will receive from the Ministry of Planning a new set of social and economic goals for the next three years.

All the goals are ambitious; some of them, one is told, are probably unrealistic. It seems unlikely, for example, that even the most prodigious labors will reduce illiteracy and contain inflation to the extent the planners project.

Yet the record of recent years reflects amazing progress. In 1964, when the disastrous Goulart regime was overthrown, Brazil's inflation was running at 93 per cent per year. It was chaos. Today, as a result of skillful management, the rate has dropped to roughly 19 per cent. The goal is to hit 10 per cent by 1974.

Illiteracy continues to impose a crushing weight. Some 37 per cent of the people can neither read nor write. But a crash program, known as "MOBRAL," is achieving dramatic results. Through an ingenious system of tax incentives, industries are finding it doubly to their advantage to assist in the education of young workers. By 1974, if everything goes well, illiteracy within the 15-35 age bracket will have been cut to 2 per cent.

Other reforms are proceeding apace. Tax collection, in the days of Goulart, was a farce; only 675,000 Brazilians bothered to file tax returns. Now a vigilant government is gathering income taxes from more than six million persons. Throughout its history, Brazil's vast interior has seemed almost as remote as the moon; the Amazon provided the only highway. Now construction is well advanced on roads that will provide new access to the country's prodigious riches.

Brazil's gross national product is soaring at 9 per cent a year. Exports passed $2.7 billion last year, almost double the figure for 1964. Industrial output is rising steadily, and in such areas as (Continued on page 5)

Some Can See A Happier 1972

By ELMER ROESSNER
The National Association of Business Economists bubbled over with optimism at its annual meeting in Pittsburgh a few days ago. Predictions were made that the unemployment rate will drop from the mid-August rate of 6.1 per cent of the labor force to 5.1 per cent by the end of 1972; that consumer prices will rise 3.2 per cent, compared with 4.3 per cent this year; that the gross national product will rise to $1,143 trillion, up $95 billion, and that stock prices will rise, the Dow Jones average, at long last, breaking through the 1,000 mark.

George Katona, head of the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, told the assembly that more than three out of four heads of families believe the wage-price freeze is a good thing.

COMMENT: The forecasts are encouraging because most of the speakers are close to the thrones of big business, which usually hires only the best in economic brains.

However, there are some minor points of bias. At least two of the speakers are members of the Nixon administration. Big business usually speaks optimistically, even when laying off employees. And some of the economists may have been unconsciously influenced by wishful thinking; since if business does not improve, many may be forced to join the many corporate executives into retirement.

Sees End of Freeze In '72
Another University of Michigan economist, Ross J. Wilhelm, speaking at Ann Arbor, predicted that wage and price controls would not be effective beyond 1972. He said controls are historically effective only for short periods in peace time and that the expected pick-up in the last half of next year would end the sense of urgency and controls would lose public support.

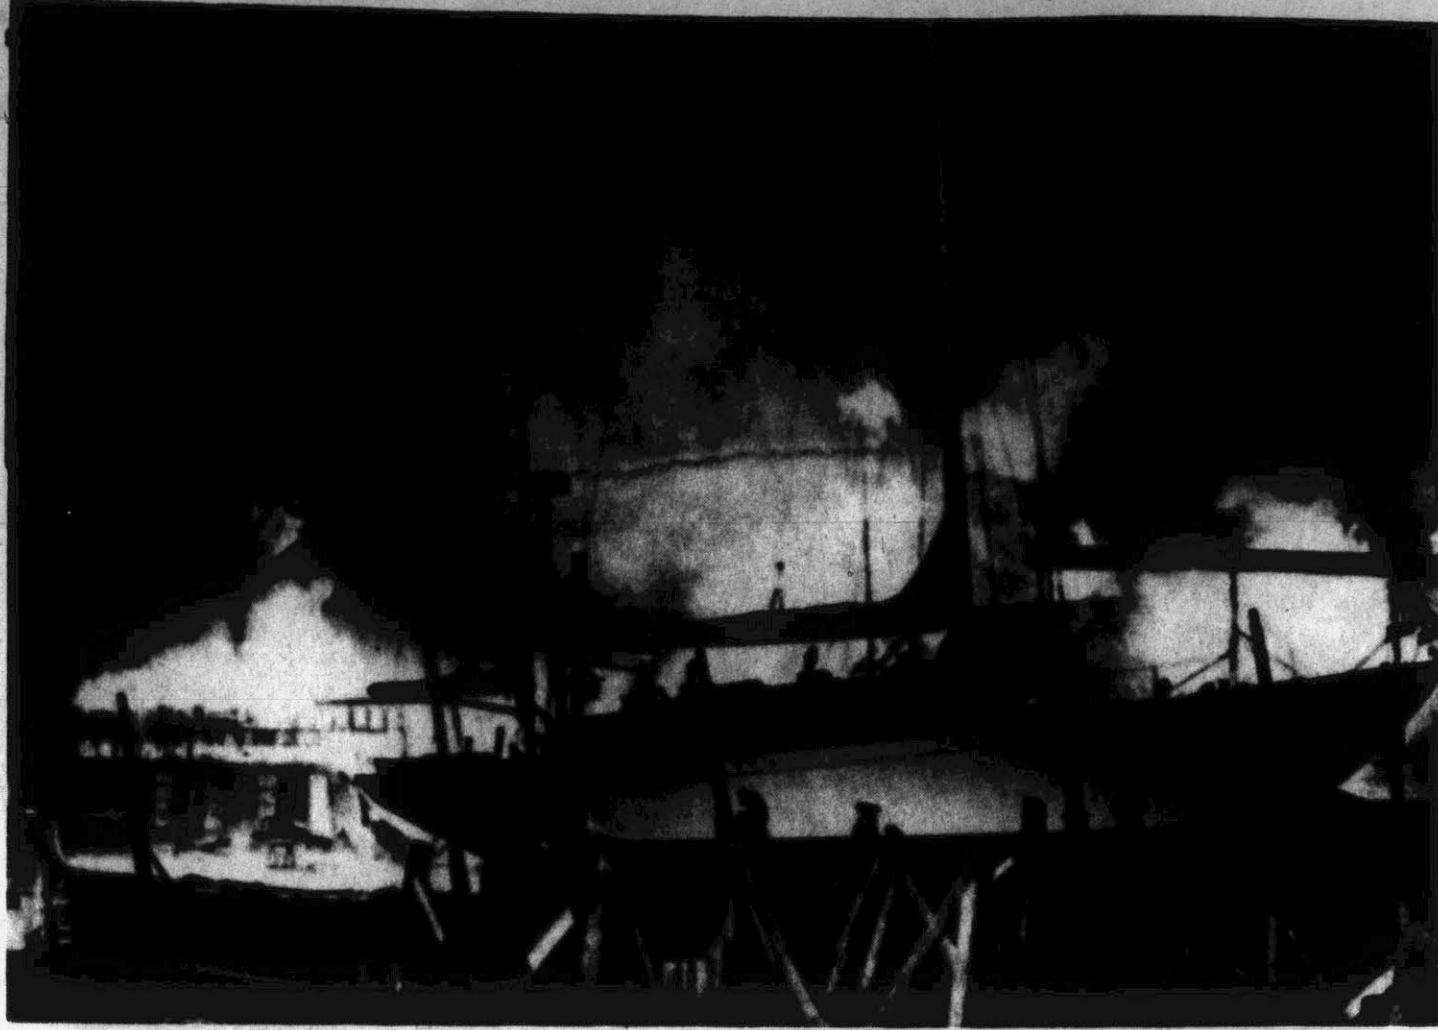

COMMENT: The professor is right, of course. Long-term controls can be effective only with laws with teeth in them, enforced by a huge bureaucracy, as was learned in World War II. Even then, wages and prices continued to creep up.

Purchasing Agents Optimistic, Too

The National Association of Purchasing Management, after a poll of members, reports that 59 per cent feel optimistic about the next 12 months and 41 per cent said they were "concerned or worried."

The poll also showed that 71 per cent approve of the NEP so far, 28 per cent have taken a wait-and-see attitude and only 1 per cent disapproves.

COMMENT: Purchasing executives by trade are among the most realistic business groups in the country. While economist are dealing in theories, they are dealing in dollars and cents. Their attitude on NEP is, of course, influenced by their compulsion to buy cannily, but their optimism over the coming 12 months can be based only on facts.

shipbuilding and automotive assembly, output is rising spectacularly. Over the past seven years, an energetic housing industry has produced 629,000 units; the figure compares with 120,000 in the preceding quarter-century.

Countless problems remain. Yellow fever, small pox, and malaria have been eradicated, but parasitic diseases still claim a heavy toll. Here in Rio, the stench of raw sewage lingers (but there are times, a visitor reflects, when the Potomac doesn't smell so hot either). This beautiful city is shabby, the famed mosaic promenades in ill repair. Old gulfs still yawn between the very rich and the very poor.

But one is told repeatedly of a great hope and an abiding concern. The hope lies in Brazil's people, who suddenly have developed a pride in country; it is curious what a world soccer title can mean to national morale. The concern lies in political uncertainties. Democracy, as such, is almost unknown.

Brazil is ruled by its military, and the government doesn't pussy-foot around. "When we're told not to print a story," says a leading editor, "there's no argument. We don't print it." Yet the military invisibly is checked by powerful pressures from industry, from the church, and from world opinion.

Relations with the United States are fair. Brazilians are almost as sore as the White House at Wilbur Mills, as the result of a coffee snafu, and they are thoroughly irritated at our vacillations in the sale of arms. Mostly, one is told, they are much too busy to worry about foreign affairs. They see their great potential; they are getting a handle on their future; and they look confidently to peace and prosperity. Not many nations in this hemisphere can say the same.

Emission Training Workshops Set Up

RALEIGH (AP) — About 1,500 law enforcement officers, truck drivers and other persons will attend workshops in Raleigh during November to learn to detect violations of North Carolina's new automobile emission standards.

Everett Knight, chief of the Air Quality Division of the Department of Water and Air Resources, announced Wednesday that classes are set Nov. 4 for Highway Patrolmen, Nov. 8 for Department of Motor Vehicles personnel and Nov. 22-23 for members of the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association.

The announcement came during a League of Women Voters Air Quality Workshop.

The Clear Air Act of 1971 requires that no vehicle with a gasoline engine emit any visible emission for longer than five consecutive seconds and that no diesel powered vehicle emit smoke of a certain density for more than five seconds.

A motorist would be given 30 days to modify or repair a vehicle found in violation of the standards, and if the repairs were not made, he would be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Candidates At DemoFundRally

NASHVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Four Democratic gubernatorial hopefuls, plus candidates for other top posts in North Carolina's state government, are to attend a fund-raising rally in Nash County Oct. 18.

Local Democratic officials said Wednesday that Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, developer Hugh Morton and Sen. Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles have confirmed they will attend.

Bowles is the only one of the four who has formally announced he is running for governor.

The rally — called an "Intention Convention" — will be at Northern Nash Senior High School and will feature speeches, question and answer sessions, a reception and a dinner.

Phosphate Detergents Put Housewife On Spot

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Nixon administration's decision that it's all right after all, to use phosphates in laundry detergents leaves the housewife in the middle—caught between concern for the environment and protecting her family's health.

"What are you supposed to do?" asked a young Los Angeles mother.

"They've been telling us phosphates are bad for the environment and I don't want to contribute to water pollution. But my family's health comes first."

Her dilemma stems from advice issued Sept. 15 in Washington by William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, and Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld. They said the housewife should return to use of water-polluting phosphate detergents because some substitutes might harm health.

The main phosphate substitute is sodium carbonate, a caustic substance. Rub some detergent containing it on a wet arm or hand and it might cause a burn. Rub it in the eyes and it could cause serious damage. If swallowed, it can bring death.

A 15-month old girl died Aug. 15 in Putnam, Conn., when she ate a handful of nonphosphate detergent, according to Arthur F. Blank, director of the Poison Control Center in Hartford, Conn.

Phosphate detergents, however, are considered nontoxic. And phosphate eliminates mineral impurities or "hardness" in water so that soap can do a better cleaning job.

But the phosphates end up in lakes and rivers from sewage plant effluent and can spur excessive growth of tiny green plants called algae that rob other aquatic life of oxygen. The process, eutrophication, can turn a lake into a stagnant pool of green slime.

"I don't blame the housewife for being confused. This is a sophisticated problem and there's no simple answer for every housewife," Charles Elkins, special assistant to Ruckelshaus, said in a telephone interview.

Elkins said the first consideration should be safety of the family, especially if small children are present.

"But we're not reversing ourselves. What we're saying to the housewife is you've got to assess your individual situation. You've got to see phosphate in your sewage is contributing to eutrophication. If it is, use a substitute, unless you have small children. Then you might want to use a phosphate.

But, he stressed, using a non-phosphate detergent if there are preschool children about "isn't worth the risk for what one would do for the environment."

Next, the housewife must consider the amount of cleaning power she needs. Phosphates are popular because they do a good job lifting dirt out of heavily soiled clothes.

Nonphosphate detergents' cleaning power can be boosted with "soft" water that has been purified by an ion exchange device homeowners can purchase. But adding a "water conditioner" to wash water isn't advised because it's composed largely of phosphate compounds.

One manufacturer who sells both phosphates and sodium carbonate to detergent makers concluded from tests that the substitute detergents don't clean as well.

But the magazine Consumer Reports said in its October issue that four non-phosphate detergents it tested "did the wash every bit as well as the best-selling high-phosphate detergent."

Estimates are that only 15 per cent of the nation's population lives near water where eutrophication is a serious problem. But all of these areas haven't been pinpointed, so the EPA plans a study to locate them.

Several state and local governments have enacted or have under study tough laws regulating phosphate content in detergents. The administration suggested they reconsider such regulations.

Spokesmen for the nation's three largest detergent manufacturers, Procter & Gamble, Lever Bros. and Colgate-Palmolive, said they plan no changes in their products as a result of the administration announcement.

How do you tell which detergents have phosphates? Most major manufacturers have begun voluntarily listing phosphate content on each box. Most nonphosphate detergents are advertised as such.

Estimates are that only about one-fourth of the phosphates reaching waterways comes from detergents. The rest comes from agricultural fertilizer runoff, other wastes in sewage, soil erosion and other sources.

Elkins and the detergent manufacturers stressed that the search for a safe, efficient synthetic substitute has high priority.

One synthetic substitute, nitrilotriacetic acid—NTA—was found that did a good job washing clothes. But it was banned last December when tests showed it, too, could endanger health.

Elkins said the housewife who lives along a coast probably isn't contributing to eutrophication by using a phosphate detergent. If she lives on the Great Lakes, she might be. If her sewage treatment plant's effluent is discharged into salt water or a moving stream, eutrophication probably isn't a problem.

Some of the confusion over detergents may be cleared up later this month when the conservation subcommittee of the House of Representatives holds hearing on the subject in Washington.

Sue To Block Vote On Drinks

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Antiquor forces are suing to block the scheduled Nov. 5 referendum on whether mixed drinks should be legalized in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County.

They claim in a Superior Court suit filed Wednesday that the legislature's special act authorizing the referendum on liquor by the drink violates the state constitution on five points.

Judge William K. McLean ordered the defendants to show cause at a hearing next Wednesday why the referendum should not be delayed pending trial.

Defendants are the state and county Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) boards, the county elections board and the state attorney general.

The plaintiffs include country music star Arthur Smith.

The legislature has authorized a similar referendum for Moore County, which also has set its voting for Nov. 5. Moore includes the resorts of Pinehurst and Southern Pines.

The Mecklenburg antiquor forces had been talking for months about a suit. It finally was filed by Charlotte lawyer Allen A. Bailey, chairman of the antiquor Residents for Meaningful Alcohol Control. He was joined by his law partner, Gary A. Davis.

They asserted the special enabling act was unconstitutional because:

1. It is a local, private and special act regulating trade while the constitution requires such regulations to be statewide.
2. It grants exclusive privileges to citizens, Grade A restaurants, social establishments, auditoriums and convention centers.
3. It allows and creates a monopoly.
4. It makes an unreasonable and discriminatory classification of persons and of certain business and social establishments.
5. It directly conflicts with and supersedes general law governing alcoholic beverages.

Mecklenburg now has state-controlled liquor stores and allows brown-bagging, a practice under which patrons bring their own liquor to establishments and are served setups. If mixed drinks are defeated in a referendum, brown-bagging would remain.

Twelve Named To Prepare Platform

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Republican Chairman Jim Holshouser has named a 12-member committee to draw up a proposed platform to be considered at the state party convention in Charlotte Nov. 19-20.

The committee includes a black and three women. One of the women was named to represent young voters.

State Sen. Harry Bagnal of Winston-Salem and Rep. Charles Taylor of Brevard will head the committee.

Urges Church Consolidation

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Bishop Raymond L. Jones, head of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, called Wednesday for consolidation of three predominantly black denominations.

Bishop Jones, of Salisbury, N.C., told the Tennessee Conference of the AME Zion Church in Chattanooga, "any local church or denomination choosing to stand alone and rest on past laurels is on the way out, either by death or by being swallowed up."

Bishop Jones, head of 300 churches in Tennessee and North Carolina, said the Zion churches, the AME congregations and the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church should be merged.

Other members are Mayor Tom Gibson of Goldsboro, Frank Everett of Robersonville, Robert Shaw of Guilford College, Jack Hawke of Raleigh, James Martin of Mecklenburg County and Dr. Walter W. "Dub" Dickson of Gastonia.

SPANKINGS PERMITTED
BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — Spanking will be reinstituted as punishment for troublemakers in Harford County schools and senior high school students will be allowed to smoke at certain playground areas, the county board of education has ruled.

Bottling Spring Water Can Be A Risky Enterprise

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — "Every few days," says John Scott, president of the American Bottled Water Association, "I get letters from people who say they've got a spring on their place and they're thinking of bottling it."

They can hardly be blamed for trying to cash in on what they feel is a simple, profitable business. If nature delivers the water to their backyard, they figure, it didn't intend them to let it pour down the sewer. Scott invariably discourages them. Chances are high that the spring is shallow and therefore the flow inconstant. The ingredients, and so the taste, may vary too much for customer loyalty to develop.

Moreover, huge amounts of money must be invested in bottles, machinery and marketing.

Mammoth corporations are making competition increasingly tougher.

And, contrary to some reports of growing demand, the industry's output grows at a percentage no greater than that for soft drinks.

Sales for the entire bottled water industry total somewhere between $100 million and $110 million a year, Scott estimates. For soft drinks, the yearly increase alone equals that figure.

Says Scott, also president of the Mountain Valley Water Co., Hot Springs, Ark., "People are rushing to bottle it more than they are rushing to drink it."

And what they are bottling is hardly the same product.

Some water currently on store shelves came out of the tap and was distilled or reconstituted according to a formula. Some came from artesian wells. Some came from natural springs which bubble to the surface.

So great are the varieties of waters in bottles that the term itself is hardly more descriptive than, for example, "soft drink."

Spring waters, which many people incorrectly assume is what all bottled waters are, reach the surface under their own pressure, usually from great depths or great distances. And they are uniform.

Scott maintains that the Mountain Valley spring never changes temperature, mineral content or rate of flow and probably hasn't in the hundreds of years since it pushed its way up through 450 million-year-old marble.

But whether from springs, wells or taps, the waters are united in the claims of purity by their producers, although this also could become their common problem.

The association, which recently concluded its annual meeting, hopes to develop standards of purification, enforced through plant visits and inspections of product, equipment and personnel.

"We may have to tell some companies they should not be in the bottled water business," says Scott.

Sentence 3 For Holdups

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Judge John Larkins has sentenced three men to prison terms in two bank robbery cases.

Larry D. Willis and Thomas Earl Best were sentenced to 20 years in prison each Wednesday after they changed their pleas to guilty in the armed robbery of $8,180 from the Kingston branch of the Bank of North Carolina last March 22.

Additional charges of assault with a deadly weapon were dropped.

In the other case, Chamberlain Able, 25, was sentenced to 25 years in prison after he pleaded guilty to bank robbery and carrying a weapon in the May 3 robbery of a Camp Lejeune bank.

A kidnapping charge against Able was dropped after he pleaded guilty to the other charges.

Able and another man, Ernest Jones Jr., 35, both escapees from a Sampson County prison unit, were charged with taking $38,044 from a branch of First Citizens Bank and Trust Co.

Employed An Illegal Alien

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Times reported today that an illegal Mexican alien, using forged identification papers, worked for two days as a gardener at the Western White House before his identity was discovered.

The newspaper published the story in connection with a report Tuesday by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service of a raid at the Mexican food products firm of the treasurer-designate of the United States, Romana Banuelos, in which the government said 36 illegal Mexican aliens were apprehended.

The Times gave this account: Francisco Martinez-Llamas, 32, was hired last July as a landscaper at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif. He used falsified papers to enter the country.

Martinez-Llamas passed a Secret Service check and worked two days before being apprehended by the FBI. He voluntarily left the country.

The White House had no immediate comment on whether security regulations were violated.

On Wednesday, the White House had said President Nixon wasn't considering withdrawing his nomination of Mrs. Banuelos as U.S. treasurer after the federal raid on her food products firm in suburban Gardena.

Pupils Sue Over Newspaper Ban

DURHAM (AP) — Three pupils at Durham High School have filed a suit charging their constitutional rights were violated because they were not allowed to distribute the off-campus newspaper "The Up-rising" at the school.

The suit was filed Wednesday in U.S. Middle District Court in Greensboro Wednesday in their behalf by an adult as "next friend." It names city and county school officials as defendants. It says the Durham County Board of Education has a regulation which forbids the distribution of any printed material on school grounds without the approval of the principal, and that their principal has refused them permission.

UNEARTH DINOSAUR
LONDON (AP) — The fossilized remains of a dinosaur, believed to be more than 170 million years old, have been found beneath the sands of a beach at the northern town of Port Mulgrave. The discovery was made by biology student Paul Davenport. Museum authorities are trying to salvage the prehistoric beast.

Suspicious Of Soviet Pushing Security Talks

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS (AP) — U.S. diplomats believe the Soviet push for a European security conference may be a propaganda move aimed at strengthening Moscow's position in Eastern Europe.

The Soviets have agreed to talk troop cuts with America and its allies and proposed a security conference as the forum. But the diplomats believe the Kremlin may have an ulterior motive: gaining international recognition for the Communist government of East Germany and maintaining the division between East and West.

Their argument runs like this:

The Soviets have been pushing for a European security conference since 1967. They have suggested two subjects for discussion—renunciation of the use of force and better economic cooperation.

U.S. diplomats see little importance in either topic as a way of keeping the peace in Europe.

All members of the United Nations have renounced the use of force by signing its charter. West Germany, which is not a member, has done the same in its pending treaty with the Soviet Union.

Economic cooperation between East and West is going ahead about as fast as it can. It is limited primarily by the lack of anything much in the Soviet Union or Eastern Europe that the West wants to buy.

But just convening a conference would strengthen the Soviet position in Eastern Europe, since all the Communist governments there would have to be invited.

An invitation to East Germany, a government not officially recognized by any of the Western allies, would represent a kind of recognition, much coveted by the East German regime. This is what the United States wants to avoid. Recognition would deprive West German Chancellor Willy Brandt of an important negotiating tool in his effort to improve chances for the East Germans to cross the Berlin Wall—at least for occasional visits. Western allies have pledged not to join a security conference until there is agreement on Berlin.

But the United States and its allies are eager to negotiate troop cuts with Moscow. It has taken the Soviets three years to say they are willing to—but only as part of a general conference.

The allies Wednesday named Manlio Brosio, former Italian defense minister, to go to Moscow and explore the question. They could not give him detailed instructions because some of the allies, especially Britain and Italy, also want troop reductions linked to a general conference.

Boy Struck By Car Wednesday

No charges were made by officers following investigation of a mishap involving a pedestrian that occurred about 4:45 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of River and Airport Roads.

Police identified the driver of the car involved as Johnnie Mills Ayers, 23 of Route 5, Greenville. The pedestrian, who was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries he received, was listed as Johnny Ivey Johnson, 11 of Route 6, Greenville.

Proxmire Urges Repeal Of Stabilization Act

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., says Congress should repeal President Nixon's power to freeze wages and prices to prevent him "from becoming an economic dictator."

Proxmire, chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, prepared for introduction today a bill to rescind the Economic Stabilization Act, under which Nixon imposed the current 90-day wage-price freeze. The new measure would set up a system built around a five-member wage-and-price review board.

Nixon is to announce tonight the next phase of his new economic program, to supplant the freeze after it expires Nov. 13.

Presumably, Nixon's Phase 2 program will involve measures to be taken under authority of the law Proxmire wants repealed.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott has said Nixon may recommend extension of the act beyond April 30, 1972, as the basis for followup economic restraints.

Inmates Fail Sway Court

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled there is insufficient evidence to compel court intervention to protect prisoners' rights at Attica state prison.

Judge John T. Curtin acknowledged Wednesday the testimony of six inmates who testified in U.S. District Court here about beatings, harassment and destruction of personal property they claimed they suffered at the hands of police and prison guards.

"The truth of the witnesses' testimony is assumed," he said, but "almost all of the alleged acts complained of occurred on Sept. 13 or shortly thereafter."

Sept. 13 was the day hundreds of state troopers stormed the prison and put down a four-day inmate insurrection.

Curtin ruled the inmates' lawyers had failed to show that prisoners' rights were still being violated. On that basis he dismissed the request for an injunction against the alleged abuses.

Herman Schwartz, one of the lawyers who sought the injunction, said Curtin's decision would be appealed to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York City. Another petition alleging the inmates' constitutional rights are being violated is already before that court.

Blacks Pressing Vatican For Bigger Church Roles

By PATRICK O'KEEFE
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — The head of a group here to urge greater control by black Americans over their church life says the response from U.S. prelates attending the World Bishops Synod has been "open and profitable."

Joseph Davis, a Marianist lay brother and executive director of the National Office of Black Catholics, and five other American black Roman Catholics are here primarily to insist upon the appointment of a black archbishop for Washington, D.C., to replace Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle. Cardinal O'Boyle, 75, is known to have tendered his resignation, but Pope Paul VI has not yet accepted it.

The group also wants to talk to Vatican officials about setting up a black rite in the United States to meet the needs of the 800,000 black Catholics there.

Others in the group include: the Rev. Lawrence E. Lucas of New York, president of the National Black Catholic Clergy Caucus and one of 10 candidates proposed by a black Catholic convention in Detroit last August to succeed Cardinal O'Boyle; Sister Martin Desportes Grey of Pittsburgh, president of the National Black Sisters' Conference; and Joseph Dulin of Detroit, president of the National Black Lay Caucus.

Brother Davis said in an interview that he has spoken with all the American bishops at the synod and that "the talks so far have been open and profitable."

But Father Lucas commented: "I don't know what's meant by profitable. In terms of people not throwing you out the door, fine. People have sat down and listened. But in terms of people really dealing with the situation I haven't seen that yet."

Gov. Reagan On Asia Tour

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan will carry personal goodwill messages from President Nixon to Japanese Emperor Hirohito, Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and heads of four other nations when he leaves Friday on a two-week Asian tour.

Reagan, his wife Nancy and their 13-year-old son, Skipper, also will visit Taiwan, Singapore, Thailand and South Korea.

"I am very pleased that we are able to undertake this mission for the President," Reagan said in a statement. "In addition to reaffirming the close relations between the Pacific nations and the United States, this trip will enable us to cement trade relations between California and those countries."

The Reagans' first stop in an Air Force jet transport provided by Nixon—other than refueling in Japan—will be in Taipei, Taiwan, where Reagan will represent Nixon at National Day ceremonies Sunday.

Ronald Roy Percise, 39, of Wilson was injured early today when the car he was driving ran off Cedar Lane 1 1/2 miles South of the Golden Road intersection.

Officers, who charged Percise with driving under the influence and speeding, set damage to his vehicle at $450.

He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries he received in the 1:45 a.m. mishap.

RALEIGH — (NCDA) — (AP) — North Carolina hog markets today are steady. Tops of 19.75-20.25 at Rocky Mount; 18.75-19.75 at Tarboro; 19.25-19.50 at Wilson; 18.75-19.25 at Bethel; 20.00 at Mt. Olive; 19.00 at Greensboro and Salisbury.

RALEIGH — (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry markets today are unchanged. Supplies of both types are adequate for a fair demand. Too few sources reporting to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices pulled back from sharp early gains but continued slightly higher today in heavy trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead 1.61 at 902.16.

Gainers led losers by 3 to 1 among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said profit-taking was cutting into the sharp market gains registered late in Wednesday's session and in the first hour of trading today.

The advances ran throughout the list.

A large number of block trades swelled volume, and brokers said the appearance of so many big blocks indicated that institutions were active.

One of the largest blocks was 108,800 shares of Planning Research at 16, down 1/2.

A Review Disney Provides A Stunning Spectacle

A pair of Walt Disney's finest, "The Living Desert" and "The Vanishing Prairie", now showing at the Plaza Cinema, make a stunning two hour full-vista spectacle of color and excitement of the miracle of the world around man.

The two nature films, with few exceptions, are filmed in a straightforward manner, with the color registering sharp and natural.

The one basic argument this reviewer has with these two films, and with many otherwise splendid documentaries, is that the temptation is not avoided to embroider documentary footage in film with artificial trimmings. In this case, it is the music that

Quality Of Leaf Continues High

FARMVILLE — The general quality of marketings yesterday on the Farmville Tobacco Market was the same as Monday and Tuesday of this week.

"Offerings of leaf and smoking grades remained steady," said Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade. "Nondescript and cutter grades showed an increase in volume."

Grade for grade prices remained comparatively steady yesterday.

The market sold 566,669 pounds of leaf for $456,682, giving an average of $80.59 per hundred pounds.

To date, the Farmville market has sold 12,935,279 pounds of tobacco for $10,307,142, yielding an average of $79.68 per hundred pounds.

Metropolitan Detroit has a population of 4,199,931, an 11 per cent increase over 1960.

She was widow of Heber B. McClohon.

Companions Robbed Him

An Army man stationed at Ft. Bragg was allegedly beaten and robbed by three companions near Grifton early this morning, according to the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the victim, Spec. 4 Wayne D. Waller reported that he fell asleep while traveling with three other Army men from Ft. Bragg and awoke as he was being shoved from the car.

Waller, the Sheriff noted, reported that some $400 in cash was taken from him and also approximately $300 in clothing stolen.

Sheriff Tyson said that the three men had not reported back to Ft. Bragg this morning. Waller he added, indicated that the three were planning to go to Canada.

Waller was not injured and was sent back to Ft. Bragg, Sheriff Tyson said. Investigation of the incident is continuing.

Subcommittees Meeting Today

RALEIGH (AP) — Joint legislative subcommittees on higher education were scheduled to meet in the Legislative Building today to draft legislation to restructure higher education in North Carolina as requested by Gov. Bob Scott.

The subcommittees were expected to draft a bill placing all of the 16 state-supported universities under a central board. This legislation will be submitted to the General Assembly when it reconvenes October 26.

intrudes and at times overrides the raw drama of nature. At such times the whole effect becomes a Circus of Nature rather than a wholehearted concentration on the subject matter that is so vastly rich in itself. How one longs for silence in the magnificent scene where wild male rams battle in a courtship ritual in the snow, instead of being bombarded with "The Anvil Chorus."

In all fairness, there are occasional moments when the marriage of music and the antics of wild life constitute a stroke of genius, i.e., the dance of two scorpions to square dance calls.

It is evident that a tremendous amount of time, talent and patience was expended to amass footage for a documentary of this nature. It would be enlightening if the public could be taken briefly behind the scenes and shown some of the mechanics employed by the skilled photographers. Surely many of the spectacular studies of wild life must have entailed long hours spent waiting for the right moment.

The awe-inspiring range and diversity of wild life in America, from tiny insects to noble buffalo is given full play in this pair of films. The familiar and the unfamiliar forms of life are captured in moments of birth, of growing up, of courtship, and often, in the agonizing instant of sudden death.

Rituals of courtship form a major ingredient in both the films, and with good reason. By contrast, the social patterns of man's long period of complex wooing seem to miss the point.

Of all the grandeur and beauty of nature depicted in scores of documentaries in recent years, nothing quite matches the final portion of "The Living Desert," dealing with the nocturnal life of animals and flowers. In this section, the real becomes unreal, as scene after scene unfolds in which the natural wonders become a world of unbelievable magic.

Anyone who missed "The Vanishing Prairie" and "The Living Desert" when it first made the rounds owes it to himself to make a special effort to take them in now. There's beauty and the drama of life in every scene.

Rampants Seek Win Over New Hanover

Rose High School's Rampants play their second game in five days Friday when they travel to Wilmington to face New Hanover High School.

The game will be played at 3:30 p.m. in the racially-troubled port city. Site of the game is Legion Field.

The Rampants come into the game on the heels of a last-minute loss to Rocky Mount in a Division II Conference game Monday night. The game had been postponed from Friday because of Hurricane Ginger's large amount of rain dumped on the Gryphon field.

"I thought we were the better ball club," Rose Coach Dave Bumgarner said after his team's 13-9 loss in the game. "We were outweighed some 25 pounds per man on the line, and anytime you can handle a team of that size like we did you must be doing something right."

Bumgarner pointed out that the team was up well for the game. "We seem to be able to get up for our league games a whole lot better than we do for non-conference ones," he said.

"We still didn't tackle like we are capable of doing. We're still grabbing at them instead of hitting them with our shoulder pads. And our passing left something to be desired. We missed a lot of receivers when they were open, or else they dropped the ball."

The Rose defense dominated the game against Rocky Mount, holding the team to an 0-0 deadlock in the first half, scoring first, and then taking a 9-6 lead on a 30-yard field goal by Phil Ragazzo in the last five minutes of the game.

But fate took a hand after that.

Rose attempted an on-sides kick, but failed to recover it, giving Rocky Mount good field position. Then a pass interference call gave Rocky Mount a first down after Rose had pushed them into a third and 27 to go hole.

The play that finally won the game, however, was a pass that carried down to the one-yard line, from where Rocky Mount pushed over. Bumgarner would not comment on it, but films of the game showed that two members of the Rocky Mount interior line were some 10 yards down the field when the pass was thrown.

The coaching staff named Al Hunter as the Player of the Week for his hard running in the contest. Hunter scored the only Rose touchdown of the game on a 52 yard run to open the second half. He finished with 17 carries for 111 yards, intercepted a pass and returned it 43 yards, and caught two passes for 12 yards.

Two members of the Rampant team will miss the game. Bill

Cox is still recovering from a freak burn injury, while John Calhoun, injured against Rocky Mount, is sidelined.

John Conway, knocked out of action in the first quarter of the Farmville Central game, is back in action this week, and is expected to see plenty of action. "We look for a real tough game from New Hanover," Bumgarner said. The Wildcats have played three members of Division II in their non-league games, while meeting

Jacksonville and Hoggard in their loop contests. They've come away with only two wins in those five games.

They have been beaten by Goldsboro, 19-13, Rocky Mount, 7-3, and Jacksonville. Their victories have come over Hoggard, in their last game, and over Kinston, 27-0.

"They don't do anything Rocky Mount doesn't do," Bumgarner said. "They are almost the same type of team, including size. They run their power at you. They have a good quarterback, but they don't throw a lot. They just try to blow you out of the park with their hard running."

"It's going to be a tough game for us, but we feel we can win it."

The probable starting lineup on offense will have Lonnie Payton and Derek Dunn at ends, Sidney Shearin and Lee Cherry at tackles, Maurice Sheppard and David Mathias at guards, Phil Ragazzo at center, Bob Barrett at quarterback, Al Hunter and Calvin Moore at running backs, and Robbie Cox at flanker.

Defensively, it will be Todd Pair and Steve Worthington at ends, Cherry and Mathias at tackles, George Price, Ragazzo, Mike Harris and Kim Hodges at linebackers, and Cox, Moore and Hunter in the secondary.

With two-fifths of the season out of the way, the race for the Division II title has boiled down to the same three teams that fought it out last year, Goldsboro, Wilson and Rocky Mount. All three are currently unbeaten in league play.

Last week, besides Rocky Mount's 13-9 win over Rose, Wilson rolled to a 40-0 victory over Kinston, while Goldsboro nipped New Bern, 14-0. The Wilson victory marked the fourth time in five games that the Titans have scored 40 or more points. The Rampants were the only team to hold them under that total, losing 28-7.

This week, everyone goes outside the loop before returning to start whittling down those at the top. Besides the Rose-New Hanover encounter, Rocky Mount travels to meet Durham Hillside, Wilson entertains Raleigh Broughton, Goldsboro goes to Raleigh Enloe, Hoggard visits Kinston, and New Bern is at Jacksonville.

Foyt, Robbins Try For Spots

By BLOYS BRITT

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A. J. Foyt and Marty Robbins could have played a script at Charlotte Motor Speedway today that went something like this:

Robbins strums his guitar and sings "The Eyes of Texas are Upon You," followed by "The Yellow Rose of Texas" while Foyt swings his new Chevrolet around the track in a qualifying run for Sunday's National 500 stock car race.

Then, Texas rancher Foyt gives Robbins a quick driving lesson and dances a Texas jig in the garage area while the singer makes his qualifying run in a Dodge.

That, of course, wasn't the way the script was played on this second day of time trials for the $107,000 late fall classic.

But Foyt, the all-time money and events winner in auto racing, was scheduled to run for a spot in the 40-car lineup. And country and western singer Robbins, who tried Wednesday and failed, was due back for another attempt.

Foyt, whose $87,430 in winnings from races earlier this year ranks fourth on NASCAR's Grand National money list, is entered in a car built by ex-racer Banjo Mathews. The machine didn't arrive at the speedway until noon Wednesday and Foyt missed early practice.

Charlie Glotzbach of Edwardsville, Ind., won the first round qualifying, sticking his Junior Johnson-prepared Chevrolet on the pole at a lap speed of 157.885 miles per hour. Buddy Baker, a tick of the watch slower at 156.944, got the other front row spot in a Dodge.

In all, 12 drivers earned starting positions Wednesday. Thus, the best Foyt could do today was 13th in the lineup.

Robbins should get one of the other 11 spots available today but will have stiff competition from some of the 25 drivers who failed Wednesday. His qualifying speed of 145.721 was only the 19th fastest of the day.

The Allison brothers, Bobby and Donnie, nailed the second row spots in a pair of Mercu-

Kids Nite At Ficklen

This Saturday will be Kid's Night in Ficklen Stadium as the East Carolina Pirates play host to the Richmond Spiders. All children twelve and under will be admitted to the game free if accompanied by a parent. In addition, each youngster will be given a souvenir East Carolina football at the gate.

The halftime ceremonies will include a fireworks exhibition by E. E. Rawl, whose talents have been admired by thousands of adults and children all over Eastern North Carolina.

Other guests of ECU will include some 120 high school football squads from the area. Kickoff time for Saturday's game is 7:30 p.m. Make your plans now to attend, and be sure to bring the kids.

Baby Bucs Open Home

The East Carolina University freshman football team will entertain the William and Mary freshmen this Friday night at 7:30 in Ficklen Stadium.

The Baby Bucs dropped a 17-15 thriller to North Carolina State two weeks ago and showed promise of having an excellent season.

Admission for the freshman game is $1.50 for adults and .75 for youngsters of high school age and under.

Jones Is Still Doubtful Starter

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dave Wright, place kicker for Duke's 14th-ranked Blue Devils, sprained an ankle in Wednesday's practice. But coach Mike McGee indicated he probably would be available for Saturday's Atlantic Coast Conference football game against the Clemson Tigers in the Oyster Bowl in Norfolk, Va.

Workhorse fullback Steve Jones, injured in an automobile accident last week and unable to play in the 9-3 upset of Stanford, is still doubtful for the Clemson game. But Melvin Parker, who has been out three weeks with a bad ankle, is listed to start at one of the defensive end positions.

Coach Hootie Ingram was pleased as Clemson ended the third day of heavy scrimmages.

He said the Wednesday drills were the first good ones of the week. He added that flanker Don Kelly and tackle Jim Dorn would captain the offense for the Duke game, and end Charlie Mayer and back Dale Henry would lead the defense.

Coach Bill Dooley, of North Carolina, which is ranked No. 18, said, "We have great respect for Tulane passer Mike Walker. We ought to have respect for him because he beat us with his passing at New Orleans last season."

The game Saturday will be at North Carolina's Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill. Dooley said all 17 Tar Heel seniors will serve as captains for the rest of the season.

Randle Wants Big Explosion

The East Carolina Pirates take on the Richmond Spiders Saturday night in Greenville in an annual Kid's Night Game. A big attraction for the kiddies will be a spectacular half-time fireworks exhibition, but Coach Sonny Randle and his Pirates have some fireworks of their own planned.

The big bang for the Bucs is expected to be sophomore running back Carlester Crumpler, who lit his fuse last Saturday and exploded for 93 yards and three touchdowns, all in the second half of play. "The Crump" will be joined by running mates Billy Wallace who averaged 4.3 yards per carry last week, Les Strayhorn who averaged 6.5, and Rusty Scales whose average was 6.0.

Randle calls his four horses "the finest set of four running backs in the Southland. Several teams may have one like them, very few have two, but no other coach that I know enjoys the luxury of four."

Leading the Pirate attack is senior quarterback John Casazza, who shattered all ECU passing records in 1970. Last week, in his first starting role of 1971, Casazza called what Randle labeled as "a brilliant game. John read the Citadel defense extremely well and kept them off balance all night."

Defensively, East Carolina also has some powerful potential. Linebackers Monty Kiernan and Ralph Betesh have been shell shocking opposing runners all year. Kiernan averages some 18 tackles per game and Betesh is usually good for a dozen. Sophomore Robin Hogue started his first varsity game last week. The 200 pound linebacker found himself at defensive end for the first time in his life, but seemed to like the scenery. His performance at his new slot earned him Southern Conference Defensive Player of the Week honors.

If explosions are to be the order of the day, one must expect the Buc defensive fuse to be rekindled with the return of Captain Rich Peeler to the lineup. The All-Conference tackle has been out of action for two weeks and is smoldering for contact.

The place is Ficklen Stadium in Greenville, N.C. The time is 7:30 p.m. The date is October 9, not July 4, but if you like fireworks, do not miss this opportunity. It's not all for the kids.

Ellis To Get Call Against Baltimore

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dock Ellis stops talking Saturday and tries the other thing that keeps his name in the headlines—pitching.

The 26-year-old Ellis is Manager Danny Murtaugh's choice to start for the Pirates in the first World Series against American League champion Baltimore Saturday.

"Ellis will pitch the first game of the Series if he's physically able," Murtaugh announced before the champagne had stopped flowing in the Pittsburgh dressing room after the Pirates had smashed the San Francisco Giants 9-5 Wednesday to win their first National League Pennant since 1960.

Pittsburgh won the best-of-five playoff in four games with the help of super relief pitching by babyface Bruce Kison and our Dave Giusti, and three-run homers off the bats of Rich Hebner and Al Oliver.

The only doubt in Murtaugh's mind about Ellis starting Saturday against one of Baltimore's four 20-game winners—probably Dave McNally—was the condition of the young right-hander's tender elbow.

Ellis has had trouble with the elbow all season, and it stiffened again after he went five innings Sunday in the second game of the playoffs at San Francisco.

"It's not tight today," Ellis said. And he wasn't surprised that he had the choice opening assignment.

"Danny told me in San Francisco that is we won I would start Saturday," Ellis disclosed. "I'll make it. I've dreamed of being in the World Series ever since I was a little boy."

Ellis keeps the Pirates' management hopping.

This week he described the front office as Cheapskates because he had to pay $50 out of his pocket to get a larger bed in a San Francisco Hotel.

Murtaugh was asked to describe the character of his championship club.

"Every club has a definite character of it's own and our strength is hitting and a strong bench," Murtaugh replied.

San Francisco ripped starter Steve Blass for five runs in the first two innings, but had nothing to show for it but a 5-5 tie.

After Roberto Clemente singled home two runs in the first, Hebner smashed a three-run homer in the second off Giants' starter Gaylord Perry. At the start of the third, Murtaugh brought in the 21-year-old Kison to relieve Blass.

Kison, who last year pitched the Eastern League championship clincher at Waterbury, Conn., pitched 4 2-3 innings of shutout ball, allowing two hits.

"Earlier in the year he did a fine job against San Francisco and I wanted someone in there who could give me four or five shutout innings. He did that," Murtaugh said.

The tie lasted until the sixth when Clemente singled in his third run of the game to give the Pirates a 6-5 lead. The Giants then intentionally walked Willie Stargell, who was 0-for-14, to get to Al Oliver.

"I got a lot of pride and confidence," said Oliver, after he had slammed a 2-1 pitch from reliever Jerry Johnson over the right field wall for three game-winning runs.

The Giants had walked Stargell intentionally in the fourth and Oliver popped out.

"I said to myself 'don't get anxious like you did against Perry the first time swinging at a high ball. Wait on the pitch you can handle and really air it out."

Giusti relieved with two outs in the seventh, fanned Dick Dietz and then retired the Giants in the final two innings.

"I threw the ball where I wanted it," said Giusti, who got three saves in the four game series.

Jones Says Too Early To Give W&M The Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Richmond's spiders stand 0-3 for the season and have yet to score anything more than a field goal, but coach Frank Jones thinks its a bit too early to be giving anybody the Southern Conference football championship.

The Spiders labored on their passing attack Wednesday, with flanker Jerry Haynes looking good in the workout. Starting tailback Billy Myers, who has been hobbling with an arch injury since the Spiders' opening game, was said to be ready for duty.

East Carolina went through a heavy workout that emphasized quick hitting line plays and goal line defense. The Pirates also got in some work on their kicking game with Bob Kilbourne hitting from beyond the 35-yard mark in field goal practice.

blocking drills.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Shelton, who understudies starter John DeLeo, had a fine session throwing during a 10-minute offensive passing drill, hitting his receives consistently.

Buc Runners Defeat 'Pack

RALEIGH — East Carolina University's cross-country team put together one of their finest efforts in the history of the sport at the school and came up with a 25-33 victory over N.C. State.

Low score wins in cross-country.

The Bucs, although giving up the first two places to the Wolfpack, came up with the next six positions to insure the victory. All six of the Pirates crossed the finish line within 23 seconds of each other, and that did the trick in capturing the victory.

The times in the meet were not outstanding, but the race was run over a wet and slippery course.

Jimmy Wilkins of State finished first in a time of 26:44, while Neal Ackley of State was second in the same recorded time.

East Carolina began its barrage with Ed Rigsby finishing third in 27:13. He was followed over the line by teammates Bob Pope, 27:17; Jerry Klas, 27:21; Jimmy Kidd, 27:25; Lannie Davis, 27:36; and Rusty Carraway, 27:36.

Three more State runners then crossed. Bland, Allen and Ritchie.

East Carolina also had Ron Hochmuth finishing 12 in 28:30; followed by Jerry Hilliard in 28:33, and Kenny Filmanski, who was 17 in 29:58.

The Pirates are now 3-2 on the year, after losing to Virginia Tech and William & Mary over the weekend.

East Carolina will entertain Appalachian on Saturday.

Parker said quarterback Terry Widell looked good in the drills which began tapering off Wednesday, spending two hours on the practice field. Much of the time was devoted to offensive

Podgorny Is Hanoi Guest

HONG KONG (AP) — Radio Hanoi said today that Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny inspected the key North Vietnamese port of Haiphong on Wednesday, and the anti-aircraft and Russian-built missile sites protecting it. The official Vietnam News Agency said he then was presented with a fragment of a U.S. plane shot down over the port. In a ceremony on the docks, Premier Pham Van Dong thanked Podgorny for the "great and valuable" military supplies which Russia has given North Vietnam, Radio Hanoi said. The Vietnam News Agency said Tran Kien, a Communist party official in Haiphong, presented Podgorny with a fragment of a U.S. plane shot down over the port. Hanoi claims 263 U.S. planes have been downed over Haiphong.

Gun Battle Waged Along Irish Border

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops and guerrillas fought a gun battle across the frontier between Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic early today, army headquarters reported.

The clash followed a surge of shooting, bombing and rioting in Belfast. In one period 10 explosions in 10 minutes occurred in the capital of the British province.

The border battle flared when a British infantry patrol spotted two men placing a package—later discovered to be gelignite—behind a customs post at Middletown, County Armagh. When challenged, the men ran toward the republic.

"The soldiers pursued them and were fired on by automatic weapons from across the border," the army said. The troops returned the fire.

The spokesman added it was "a very rare occurrence" for British troops to shoot into the republic. There were no army

Note Dwindling Ground Fighting

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B-52 bombers launched heavy strikes in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos today, while ground fighting dwindled to small patrol clashes and shelling attacks.

Some 30 of the Stratofortresses dropped 900 tons of explosives on suspected North Vietnamese troop positions, storage depots and supply routes in the three countries.

About half of the strikes were along the South Vietnam-Cambodia frontier where North Vietnamese troops were reported casualties in the incident.

A detective sergeant and civilian were shot and seriously wounded by two guerrilla gunmen who attacked them from the rear in a Belfast street early today, police reported. The assailants escaped.

One of 10 explosions in the city Wednesday night damaged buildings at Belfast's port terminal where ferries ply between Northern Ireland and England.

ed pulling back after a 10-day offensive of mostly rocket and mortar attacks against South Vietnamese bases on both sides of border.

Field reports said there were only a few light shelling in the region 60 to 90 miles northwest of Saigon today, including a seven-round mortar barrage against U.S. Fire Base Pace on the Cambodian border. No U.S.

casualties or damage was reported.

Typhoon Elaine curtailed allied operations in the northern quarter of South Vietnam with a backlash of heavy rains and strong winds.

In other developments, the U.S. Command announced the completion of the deactivation of the Americal Division's 1st Infantry. Phaseout of the battalion reduces U.S. strength in Vietnam by about 900 men.

In Saigon, a government pickup truck was firebombed during disturbances near the Van Hanh Buddhist University. Its driver escaped unhurt. Students had gathered to protest military training and the re-election of President Nguyen Van Thieu last Sunday.

Inaugurate New MIT President

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Dr. Jerome B. Wiesner, who served as science adviser to President John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, becomes the 13th president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology in inauguration ceremonies today.

Wiesner, 56, became dean of MIT's school of science in 1964 and was named provost in 1966, a position he held until his election as president earlier this year.

He succeeds Howard W. Johnson, now chairman of the MIT Corporation.

Thailand Honors Gen. Stillwell

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government of Thailand has awarded that country's highest decoration for a foreigner, the Most Noble Order of the Crown of Thailand, Knight of the Grand Cross, First Class, to Lt. Gen. Richard G. Stillwell.

Stillwell, son of the World War II military leader, Gen. Joseph "Vinegar Joe" Stillwell, received the decoration Wednesday from Ambassador Sunthorn Hongladarom.

Seeking Degree At Seminary

ATLANTA, Ga. — Mrs. Murphy Davis Sutherland, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas M. Davis of Greenville, N.C., is enrolled at Columbia Theological Seminary for the fall term.

Mrs. Sutherland is a candidate for the master of divinity degree, a three-year program of study in preparation for Christian service. She received a B.A. degree in religion and philosophy from Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, Va., in 1970. Her husband, James Sutherland, is an intern at Grady Hospital, Atlanta.

Unusual Haven For Albatross

DUNEDIN, New Zealand (AP) — A rocky spur at the end of the Otago Peninsula is the only part of a mainland in the world where the royal albatross nests regularly. Elsewhere it's on tiny lonely islands.

A public observatory is now being built near the South Island nesting place so naturalists will be able to observe the big sea birds more closely than anywhere else.

St. Augustine, Fla., dating to 1565, is the oldest Spanish settlement in the United States.

More Males In Sultanate

Brunei (UPI)—Men outnumber women in this oil-rich sultanate, says a recent census report.

In a total population of 135,665, there are 72,383 males and only 63,282 females.

Officials say the imbalance is created by immigration, which swells the population by one and a half per cent annually. Most immigrants are men.

The area around the capital, the Brunei-Muara district, has the biggest concentration of people with a population of 72,481. Many live in still houses in Kampong Ayer (Water Village) on the Brunei River.

In this district, 37,872 are males and 34,609 are females.

The oil district of Seria-Kuala Belait has the next highest concentration of population with 42,155, out of which 23,542 are men and 18,613 are women.

The imbalance in the number of men and women is the greatest in the oil district because of the greater number of immigrants engaged in the oil industry.

The remote jungle-clad Temburong district has only 5,232 people.

Brunei's total area is 2,226 square miles.

Williamston School Plans To Raleigh For Board Okay

WILLIAMSTON The preliminary architectural plans for a new high school, the Eastern School to be located in Williamston, are being taken by the architect and Martin County Superintendent Eugene Rogers to Raleigh today for review by the State Department School Planning Board.

This latest stage in development of plans for new schools in Martin County was revealed at the school board meeting held Monday.

Superintendent Rogers also revealed that a grant of $98,218.00 had been received for county work under Emergency School Assistance Project (ESAP) funds. This was approximately one half the amount that had been requested. Action has been taken to officially reflect the receipt of these funds in the county school budget.

Three new teachers were confirmed — Mrs. Thera Lanier for the E. H. Hayes School in Williamston; and Mrs. Vallis Miller and Mrs. Ruby Modlin, both for the Jamesville Township School.

A delegation of parents appeared requesting action to curtail problems on school buses, and the board attorney was also asked to check on the probability of liability that could arise from children using school grounds to ride mini-bikes.

Dan Bowen, supervisor of the school's lunch programs, gave a report on federal assistance in

John Costa Earns PhD

John Costa, assistant professor in the East Carolina University Department of Romance Languages, has received the PhD. degree in French literature from the University of Montréal.

Costa's dissertation was concerned with the moral conflict in the fictional works of Jean-Pierre Camus, a 17th century novelist.

Focusing primarily on the theme of the strong individual versus society and other powerful outside forces, the dissertation is among the first scholarly treatments of Camus.

Costa, a native of Messina, Italy, received his undergraduate degree at Catania and holds the MA from Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J.

He is the author of four published critical essays on French literature.

the school program. Bowen reported that uncertainty existed at the time over amounts to be reimbursed under the federal program, saying the 35 cents rate for free lunches and six cents for paid lunches was less than the state average cost of forty-six cents per meal.

Charles Edwards Fills New Post

Charles S. Edwards, a former Farmville mayor, has joined the North Carolina Department of Natural and Economic Resources as coordinator of a new program for regional water and sewer projects.

The new state job reportedly pays $18,000 a year. Edwards gained knowledge of the water and sewer field when he was state director of the federal Economic Development Administration, a post later filled after his resignation by a Republican appointee.

Dr. Dennis M. Roberts, East Carolina University assistant professor of psychology, has completed a summer term at the University of Toronto where he was guest lecturer in a special course for professional teachers.

Help Wife Of A Marine

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Marine and his wife, heading for the Cherry Point Marine Air Station, ran out of gas Wednesday on N.C. 43 between Greenville and New Bern.

A spokesman for the Pitt County Sheriff's Department said the Marine, identified as Thomas Robert Allen, apparently without funds, hitchhiked to Cherry Point to get help. He left his 18-year-old wife, Ellen Sue Allen, in the car beside the road.

About 12 hours later, when the Marine got back to the scene, he could find neither his car nor his wife. He and a buddy went on to Greenville to seek police help.

Greenville police turned them over to the sheriff's department and deputy James Gurganus led them in a search down N.C. 43.

A radio message to the Vanceboro police brought help from that end and finally, Allen's car was found, parked in the yard of a roadside house.

Good Samaritans had taken Mrs. Allen and the car home to await her husband's return. The reunion was about 13 hours after it all started.

State Delegate To Convention

STOKES — Postmaster Robert E. Peele of Stokes is a state delegate to the 67th annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters, being held this year at Anaheim, Calif.

The featured speaker this year is Postmaster General Winton M. Blount.

Nearly 4,000 postmasters from every state, and Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and possessions which are part of the U. S. Postal Service, will attend the meeting. Mrs. Peele will accompany her husband to the convention.

Shakespeare Is Sure In Stratford-Upon-Avon

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer
STRATFORD-UPON-AVON, England (AP) — Shakespeare is so sure. There's the rub.

Proudly, the management of the great festival theater at the Bard's birthplace can boast 104 per cent attendance with 88 standees at every performance. The artistic attainment of this longest-ever season is far less awesome.

Such contradiction evokes deft conversational parries by official guardians of the bonanza shrine.

"Some of the spectators come because we do the best Shakespearean productions in the world," a management spokesman unblushingly asserts. Then he adds less loudly, "We are, of course, a tourist place."

For David Brierley, business boss of the Royal Shakespeare Company since 1968, "there are many different audiences who come and none are wrong or right or than any other."

During the 39-week exhibit which runs into December, seven works by the great poet and one by an Elizabethan colleague, John Webster, rotate in the repertory. For a critical aficionado on a cram visit—four plays in three days—the abiding fault is not in the stars but in the ensemble accomplishment. There are, in fact, no stars.

Some years ago, the RSC abandoned the stellar concept. The tourist can go to Chichester Festival for that or perhaps catch Lord Olivier up in London with the National.

With Shakespeare, however, noble democratic intention runs into some trouble.

"You can't get away from the fact that he did write leading roles," admits Kenneth Thomson, the press officer. But when Shylock, Henry V, or the tribulations of the Dutchess of Malfi are entrusted to just good but unremarkable talents, the theatrical experience diminishes.

Not that any unblushing pilgrim who hastens this way need feel cheated, only that the experience is less than meets the ideal. In settings and costumes, each show is colorfully distinctive, except for a "Richard II" which has a good central performer in Richard Pasco but is otherwise monotonous.

Plan Discuss Nietzsche, Kant

The German philosophers Immanuel Kant and Friedrich Nietzsche will be discussed by two members of the East Carolina University Department of Philosophy at a joint meeting of two honorary fraternities on campus Oct. 12.

Interested persons are invited to attend the lectures, sponsored by Phi Sigma Tau philosophy fraternity and Delta Phi Alpha German fraternity, and scheduled for 130 Rawl Building at 7 p.m.

Dr. John Kozy, chairman of philosophy, will lecture on Kant, and Dr. Ernest Marshall, assistant professor of philosophy, will lecture on Nietzsche.

Sound And Light Show In Forum

By WILBORN HAMPTON

ROME (UPI) — Across the top of the Temple of Caesar a thick black cable hangs among ivy and purple flowers. Into the side of the altar where great Caesar lay, workmen have bored a two-inch hole to carry another cable to a huge spotlight.

Outside, by the Sacra Via, an electric outlet box is filled with plugs and by it an electric meter totes up the kilowatt hours used to tell a dubious history of the Roman Forum with sound and light.

The reopening of the nightly sound and light show in the ancient ruins of the Roman Forum has touched off a lively protest which has caught up even the tourists who go for a casual stroll or arrive with tour groups and guides.

A small but unyielding group of Roman students, led by Prof. Massimo Pallottino, contend the show is causing irreparable damage to the ruins with its scores of floodlights, thundering stereo tapes and the crush of about 1,000 tourists who nightly mount the Basilica Julia to watch the spectacle.

Hunting Tips For Alaska

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI) — Persons venturing into the Alaskan wilds for the first time would do well to study several pamphlets and booklets prepared for outdoorsmen by the University of Alaska's Cooperative Extension Service.

Most of the publications are free. Some have a nominal cost.

Of particular interest to hunters is a 19-page booklet entitled "The Hunter Returns After the Kill." It begins: "If you want meat that tastes like beef, buy beef."

But it goes on to extol wild game meat and tells how to gut out game in the field and handle it to maintain quality, including how to prepare it for freezer storage, how to smoke it and how to make sausage and mince meat.

There are recipes for moose, caribou, reindeer, rabbit, beaver, muskrat, waterfowl and upland game birds.

Another publication is entitled, "Wild, Edible and Poisonous Plants of Alaska." Still another is named, "Know Alaska's Mushrooms."

Hunters who fail to bag game and feel they have to come home with something might bring back a gallon or two of blueberries. How to prepare them is explained in "Wild Berry Recipes."

Other publications tell how to tan hides and how to salt fish.

Iceland Prisons Have A Long Waiting List

REYKJAVIK (UPI) — Some people wait four or five years to get into prison in Iceland.

There are just two prisons in the country, one in Reykjavik, the capital, and one in Akureyri in the north. Each holds 40 persons.

Usually they are full so there is a waiting list of people out on bail or free in their own recognizance.

The low crime rate makes it unnecessary to build new accommodations. However Reykjavik's main prison was found to be too big and was turned into the prime minister's office.

Most prisoners are inside because they were drunk and disorderly. Petty robbery is the second main reason. Murder is rare and occurs on the average once in two years. There is no capital punishment.

"The Roman Forum belongs to the world," the signs proclaim in English, French, German, Spanish and Italian. "Help us stop the sound and light show which is damaging it."

Will Petition Ministry
Pallottino, who is a member of the Council of Antiquities and Art, said the students will fill up the books of petition with signatures, then present them to the Ministry of Public Education. It is the ministry which signed a contract with a private theatrical firm to stage the Sound and Light show in the Forum.

Whether the Sound and Light show is threatening the Forum is a matter only qualified archaeologists can say. But the production has certainly changed the physical appearance of the Forum.

An overhead cable stretches like a clothesline from the huge portico of the Temple of Antoninus and Faustina across the House of the Vestal Virgins up to the Palatine. Down by the Rostra, where Mark Antony came to bury Caesar and not to praise him, half a dozen spotlights are clustered.

At one end of the Forum proper a small shanty has been built out from a section of original Roman wall to house the sound booth and control center for the show.

Spotlights, floodlights and loudspeakers perch on top of ruins and cables run everywhere with little effort to conceal any of them. It is almost impossible to take any kind of snapshot without some 20th century electronics device getting in the picture.

In the Basilica Julia, begun by Julius Caesar during a sort of public works campaign and finished by Augustus, some 500 metal chairs have been crowded in classroom fashion to hold the audiences for the twice nightly spectacles.

Resent show's Content

Even apart from the damage

allegedly caused to the ruins, the students also object to the content of the show which presents some Roman mythology as though it were historical fact.

For instance, the story of the mythological Roman gods Castor and Pollux, who galloped to the Forum to bring news of Roman victory, is told in one vignette. And, in another, the sound of Nero fiddling fills the Forum while red lights dance on the ruins to show Rome burning. The students, despite their small numbers, have had notable success so far in their campaign. Italian newspapers have followed the protest with interest and generally side with the students.

Even the tour guides are having to take note of the students' drive. As one English language guide began his tour of the Forum: "And on your right is a student protest."

Grant For New Clemson Student

Bruce E. Cockerill, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cockerill of Greenville, has been granted an award by the Bekins Scholarship Foundation to enroll in Clemson University.

Cockerill has recently graduated from Wade Hampton High School. He was a member of the National Honor Society.

Award winners are chosen on the basis of financial need, academic achievement, willingness to assist in payment of the education and extra-curricular activities and offices held while in school.

Placement Director Says Freeze Affecting Grads

Nearly every citizen is affected more or less by the nation's depressed economic situation, but college graduates who are seeking jobs are probably feeling the pinch most of all.

This is indicated by figures released by the East Carolina University Placement Service.

Last fall, 43 businesses, industries and government agencies and 17 educational institutions sent representatives to the ECU campus to interview seniors for employment.

This fall, only 27 business firms and government agencies and seven educational institutions have requested interviews.

Placement Service Director Furney James blames the current economic situation — the wage-price freeze, specifically — for this drop in job recruitment.

"Most employers are sitting tight for the second phase of the President's plan to salvage the economy," he said. "Right now, they are being cautious about hiring new personnel."

He noted that the dubious outcome of certain economic measures affecting the business world, now under consideration by Congressional committees, is also a factor in the decline in hiring activity.

By Spring, he believes, the prospects will be better, and 1972 graduates may not, after all, remain unemployed.

"Even with the job shortage of previous months, most of our recent graduates have found employment," James said. "In most cases accepting employment means locating where the job is, even if the location is not the preferred one."

"And unfortunately, being hired these days often means being 'underemployed,' that is, being employed in a capacity which is not up to the graduate's qualifications and education."

Out of 1,500 ECU students who registered with the Placement Service for job interviews last year, only 68 are still unemployed. But a considerable percentage of those who were hired are "under-employed and still looking elsewhere," said James.

The ECU Placement Service acts as a liaison between large employers and graduating seniors who seek employment.

The Service refers the names and credentials of students to companies who request such information, and schedules periodic interviews on campus between company recruiters and job-seeking students.

In the past, the Placement Service has arranged for thousands of ECU graduates to have jobs waiting for them immediately upon graduation.

During October, said James, two large school systems, the Greensboro City Schools and the Quantico (Va.) Dependents'

Schools, will visit ECU to interview potential teachers, and the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service and the Department of Social Services will come to survey prospective high-level state employees.

By far the largest group of employee recruiters includes private businesses and industries.

Among those interviewing at

Books 'Bugged' To Foil Thieves

LONDON (AP) — Bugged books are cutting losses at Britain's college libraries.

Books are fitted with a magnetized strip. The strip sets off an alarm if the book is carried between two pillars at the library exit. In lending libraries, the strip can be desensitized when the book is borrowed legitimately and resensitized on return.

ECU this month are Proctor and Gamble, A. M. Pullen, Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, F. W. Woolworth and Co., W. T. Grant Co., Arthur Anderson, First

Union National Bank, Burlington Industries and Arthur Young and Co. While most of these firms have severely curtailed their hiring activities, the fact that they are still interested in new personnel is a hopeful sign to the anxious ECU senior.

In the spring, the employment outlook may be much improved. At least this is the anticipation of approximately 2,000 ECU students who will receive their degrees next June.

SIERRA SNOW SCENE — Christmas card-like setting was captured by Reno Gazette photographer Harry Upson in the Sierra near Truckee, Calif., after a storm from the Gulf of Alaska swept down and dumped as much as 13 inches of snow on the Nevada-California border area. Chains were required for a time in the mountain passes between the two states. (AP Wirephoto)

The Worry Clinic Lawmakers In Great 'Family'

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Senator Leo Sullivan is a remarkable legislator. For his personal courage in the face of what looked like sure death, merits a salute. So does his dedication to youth. Thus, I gladly accepted his invitation to address the Prayer Breakfast of the Indiana Legislature.

Case R-582: Senator Leo Sullivan is a tall, handsome member of the Indiana legislature.

About 25 years ago, just after his marriage to a beautiful girl named Jean, he was stricken with polio.

For 2 years he lay on his back at Warm Springs, Georgia, in an iron lung, unable to breathe under his own power.

By sheer willpower, he has fought his way back until now he is able to walk with aluminum braces and ably serve his Indiana senatorial district.

"Dr. Crane," he telephoned me last Spring, "we are having Legislative Prayer Breakfast next week.

"Could you and Mrs. Crane join us?

"And we'd like for you to give us an inspirational 20-minute talk."

Salute To Courage

So I gladly accepted, partly as a salute to Senator Sullivan's courage.

Besides, I have long admired the splendid work with youth that Leo and Jean have demonstrated.

For example, on several occasions they had brought bus loads of Hoosier teenagers to Chicago on Sunday where they attended the Bible Class that I taught for 35 years in the Chicago skyscraper Temple.

And twice he had invited me to Peru, Indiana, for evening addresses, one of which was before a vast March of Dimes audience, for Leo was the head of the state organization that year.

But to keep me figuratively "warmed up for the main bout at night" he had scheduled me to address all 5 high school convocations in Miami County, of which Peru is the County Seat.

Leo and Jean alternated in driving me around the entire county for these 5 addresses.

When I meet such a dedicated couple, I naturally am glad to cooperate.

After the Prayer Breakfast session, I was also invited to address the State Senate in the

And then I was whisked over to the House for a similar brief speech to its members.

My theme in both talks was the fact that topnotch leaders have sat in similar legislative bodies ever since the beginning of mankind.

Even before recorded history, the primitive tribes had groups of chieftains or princes who tried to steer the successful future course of history for their peoples.

So our elected legislators belong to an "Eternal Fraternity" which includes Nicodemus and Dr. Gamaliel of Bible fame, as well as Seneca, Cato and Julius Caesar in Rome.

Today's hand produced a substantial swing against the United States Team when it was dealt in a World Championship Match against France. The Americans were in position to score a profit at both tables but, unfortunately, did not take advantage of their opportunities.

The bidding shown in the diagram occurred at the table where the United States held the North-South cards. West made a shaded opening bid in third seat of one diamond. North made a take-out double and East freely bid one heart. Altho South had the bulk of his strength in diamonds, he chose to show his four card spade suit in preference to bidding one no trump. Observe that his partner's informative double requests him to show a major suit and if this is not done immediately a later opportunity may not present itself.

West offered a competitive raise to two hearts, however, North proceeded without further ado to four spades

Edmund Burke, as well as Prime Ministers Gladstone and Disraeli, are also fraternity brothers of our present legislators.

So, too, are Patrick Henry, Henry Clay, Robert A. Taft, Sr., as well as Senator Leo Sullivan!

This "Eternal Fraternity" sometimes has allowed its judgment to be subverted by emotions, or even clandestine bribes!

Thus, many great legislatures of antiquity were dissolved by erosion of the human soul, as shown by ignorant mobs that rioted against law and order.

But one of our greatest hopes for the future of mankind is rational, dedicated legislators who place the good of the whole above any lobbying minority! which closed the auction.

West opened the king of hearts and when this held the first trick he continued with the queen. The shift was to the deuce of clubs. South chose to play the six from dummy and when East won the trick with the queen, the contract was doomed for there was no way to prevent West from scoring the setting trick with the king of diamonds.

If declarer goes up with dummy's king of clubs when West shifts to that suit, he will drop East's queen under the ace on the next lead of that suit. It would appear that if West held the queen of clubs, he might have led a small heart at trick two to put his partner on lead with the ace. There is the further consideration, that South can still make the hand if West started with the queen and two small clubs. After going up with the ace and drawing trumps, he can play the king and another club to straddle West with the lead. A heart shift will permit South to discard his losing diamond from dummy while he ruffs in his hand and a diamond play goes right into the ace-queen.

At the other table, the French pair reached a three no trump contract with the North-South cards. If West leads the king of hearts, the defenders can cash the first five tricks. Unfortunately for the Americans, West chose to open the jack of diamonds from his long suit and South made five no trump—taking five spades, four clubs and two diamonds. The score was 660 points which added to the 50 point set scored at the other table, netted France a total swing of 710 on a deal where the United States could have picked up 720 points.

"I'm very happy with the orders," the 43-year-old Bucher said. "It's really just a routine assignment. I just want to go there and do the job."

Bucher and his 82-man crew were held prisoners and tortured by the North Koreans between Jan. 23 and Dec. 24, 1968, after the Pueblo was seized at sea.

He has been serving with the Naval Reserve Supplement Section of the Commandant's Staff at the 11th Naval District.

More Meetings Set Up For Israel And Egypt

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. officials have set up more meetings with Egyptian and Israeli diplomats to try to determine where the latest statements by Cairo and Jerusalem leave the American effort for an interim Middle East settlement.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers meets Friday with Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad of Egypt to explore the Cairo official's speech Wednesday to the U.N. General Assembly. It will be their second discussion this week.

In a breakfast session today, the State Department's Middle East specialist, Asst. Secretary Joseph Sisco, planned to go over developments with Israeli Ambassador Itzhak Rabin.

There were surprising developments Wednesday from both sides, at least in terms of language.

Riad insisted Egypt would never accept a separate interim agreement on reopening the Suez Canal, but he used much milder language than other

Cairo officials had in the past. And, U.S. officials said, he left open the possibility of an interim settlement if part-and-parcel of an over-all peace agreement. On the other hand, Israeli Premier Golda Meir issued a statement in Jerusalem charging Rogers had encouraged Egypt to hold to a "rigid position," in his speech to the U.N. this week.

Secure In An Elaborate Austrian Bomb Shelter

By PHILIP J. TILL
VIENNA (UPI)—Secure in his bomb shelter 10 feet underground, Martin Baumann hefted a glass of three-year-old mineral water in toast to a guest and talked of the coming apocalypse.

"The neighbors think I'm a bit of a nut," the 60-year-old scrap metal merchant confided, with a glance around the steel-lined "living room" painted in cheery blue and red.

Perhaps some of them do. But Baumann says he has persuaded 46 of them to be ready to join him, his wife and their two daughters in his two-room subterranean bunker the day World War III breaks out.

He has built the shelter to accommodate 50 persons deep below his back yard among the wheatfields and lettuce patches of Vienna's suburban 22nd District.

Now, he says, he is clearing the far end of the yard—for an additional bunker to house 300 children and their pets.

Baumann said he built his bomb shelter with help from family and friends "mostly in the same business as me—although one is a doctor."

Measuring 59 square yards, it took three years to make and, because Haumann is in the metal business, cost him "only" 300,000 schillings ($12,000).

From the outside, even Baumann admits, his bunker "looks like a pile of junk. I've got to store my scrap metal somewhere—so I pile it on top of the bunker."

Inside it became a scene worthy of "The Andromeda Strain"—a complex of switches, knobs, ventilators, trap doors, steel staircases, filing cabinets and closets. One of the two main rooms is for living and eating, the other for sleeping.

"There's not enough room for 50 beds so we sleep in shifts," Baumann said, pouring himself and his guest another glass of water. He called special attention to the bedroom, which has a sink and a "doctor's table" for daily examinations.

The living room is bordered on either side by long tables and benches. The toilet is of modern camping design. Waste goes into a plastic bag which is then thrown into a deep sealed pit under the bunker. Lining the walls of the living room are six steel cupboards stocked with a year's supply of mineral water, wine, canned meat and vegetables. "It's amazing how many dishes you can make from a can of corned beef," Baumann said. The shelter gets its fresh water from a hand pump connected to an underground well. Should electricity fail, Baumann has installed battery-operated lights and laid in supplies of long-life candles.

Predictably, there were problems from the outset—especially in raising funds. "I sent leaflets to Vienna neighborhoods," Baumann said. "But it took a couple of years before I found enough people willing to split the costs."

"As I said, my immediate neighbors sometimes doubt my sanity. But think—what if something happens tomorrow? Peace cannot last forever. Even if Austria is not bombed, the atmosphere will carry the dust and no country will be spared," he said.
