

Await Union Verdict On 'Phase Two'

By VERNON A. GUIDRY JR.

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A nation with its paychecks and prices frozen against inflation waited with the administration today for a crucial verdict from top labor leaders on President Nixon's second round of economic controls.

The Executive Council of the 13-million-member AFL-CIO was called to a special meeting here, and the heads of the two largest independent unions, the Teamsters and United Auto Workers, were on the guest list. Republican leaders have indirectly certified that the decision whether to participate by the labor leaders can make or break Nixon's Phase 2.

That participation is "critically necessary," said Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., in appealing to top labor figures. And Hugh Scott, Senate Republican leader from Pennsylvania, said a failure by labor "to give the President a chance" would "irreparably injure the nation's efforts to revitalize the American economy."

Meanwhile, a spokesman said AFL-CIO President George Meany had not heard from any fence-mending emissaries from the administration proper.

Meany has been largely silent on Nixon's proposals for a Pay Board and a Price Commission to slow inflation when the freeze expires Nov. 13, except to say that he has found conflicts in private and public statements on how they will work.

Reportedly, labor's objections center on whether the existing Cost of Living Council headed-by Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally will have veto power over wage decisions by the Pay Board composed of business, labor and representatives of the public.

The White House has said the Cost of Living Council would not review individual decisions, but would keep watch on trends "for consistency with the anti-inflation goal." The council could step in if wage-price decisions deviated from those goals.

If other GOP figures were speaking in soothing tones, House Republican Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan could not suppress his amazement that Meany "has nipped, sharp-shooted at the program."

Ford told a New Orleans audience that not only is the Nixon economic program working, but it would bring unemployment below the 5-per-cent level by the middle of next year.

No Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court declined 5 to 2 today to rule on the legality of U.S. military action in Vietnam.

The court made no comment in refusing to hear an appeal brought for two soldiers by the American Civil Liberties Union and the New York Civil Liberties Union.

One of the soldiers, Salvatore Orlando, is on duty in Vietnam. The other, Douglas Kaplan, is at Ft. Dix, N.J., under orders for Vietnam but seeking a hardship discharge. They challenged the government's right to send them to war.

The high court has never agreed to hear a case that questions the constitutionality of American military action in Southeast Asia without an explicit declaration of war by Congress.

School Girl Hit As Gun Fight Flares Near Her Bus Stop

JACKSON, S. C. (AP) — A young Jackson, S. C. school girl was recovering today from bullet wound she received when a gun battle erupted near her elementary school as she was boarding a school bus.

A spokesman at the Aiken County Hospital said 12-year-old Carolyn Murphy was in satisfactory condition. A bullet had grazed her skull.

Aiken County Chief Deputy A. M. Hutto said she was struck by a bullet apparently intended for Jackson Police Chief J. Carroll Bently, who was directing traffic in front of the school about 3:05 p. m. Monday.

Classes were over for the day at Jackson Elementary School and young Carolyn was standing at the front of the bus waiting to be seated when a bullet came through the windshield and glanced across the back of her head.

Chief Bently returned the fire and, with a single shot, killed 45-year-old Shiffley R. Owens of Jackson. Hutto said it was Owens' shot that injured the girl "because Bently only fired once and it was accurate."

Bently was charged with murder in the death of Owens. Hutto said such procedure was routine in this type of homicide case. "A coroner's inquest may clear this thing up quickly," Hutto said.

An inquest was scheduled for this afternoon, but Hutto said it might be delayed.

About 20 to 25 other school children were aboard the bus when the shooting started, according to Principal C. S. Stripling.

"I was called by one of the teachers and told a student had been shot in the neck," Stripling explained. "When I got to the bus at the front of the school, I was told Chief Bently had taken the student to the town hall and he had called for medical help."

Stripling said other pupils on the bus did not panic. "They waited on the bus for about an hour until we got them off," he said. He said Carolyn's younger brother, also a pupil at the school, was crying when he got to the bus.

Chester Conklin's Goal: To Make People Laugh

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — His father wanted him to be a minister. But after getting applause at a comic recital, 11-year-old Chester Conklin ran away from home with one goal: "To make people laugh."

Conklin, who died Monday at 85, did just that—as the silent movies' Keystone Kop with the twitching, walrus mustache.

The comedian died of emphysema and a heart ailment at the Motion Picture and Television Country House and Hospital, where he had lived intermittently for 10 years.

Small and goggle-eyed, Conklin joined producer Mack Sennett in 1912 at $3 a week but worked up to $3,500 a week playing a frantic, dour-faced cop.

With helmet, billy club, brass-buttoned uniform and big police star, Conklin did pratfalls, raced trains and took cream-filled pies in the face.

"When I look back now," he once recalled, "the things I did then scare me. We drove the police car off the end of the Venice (Calif.) pier. We dangled at the end of piano wire 50 feet in the air.

"But I was only hurt once, and that was while I was doing a Red Cross show during the first World War." He hurt his knee during a benefit baseball game.

A native of Oskaloosa, Iowa, Conklin performed as a vaudeville monologist and boxed a trained kangaroo in a circus before he was hired by Mack Sennett's Keystone Studio.

Besides the Kops comedies, Conklin worked in such silentscreen classics as "Tillie's Punctured Romance," in 1915, and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in 1917.

He leaves his fourth wife, the former June Gunther; two daughters, Sherry Konkell and Barbar Pontecorvo, and seven grandchildren.

His widow said that by his wishes his body will be cremated and the ashes scattered over the ocean. There will be no funeral.

Seventy-Five Charges Against Trio Dropped

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

District Court Judge J. W. H. Roberts yesterday ordered 75 cases against three black protest leaders not pressed.

The warrants — 25 each charging Golden Frinks, George Kirby and Willie Fleming with contributing to the delinquency of minors — were disposed of by the court because persons named in the warrants as juveniles were 16 years old or over.

Assistant solicitor Bill Barker said the district's chief prosecutor Eli Bloom directed him to have the charges dismissed.

Frinks, Fleming and Kirby were arrested October 5 on 44 warrants each. They were charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors who allegedly participated in an October 4 protest march in Farmville.

Attorney Jerry Paul, at a hearing Thursday afternoon before Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse moved to have the $8,800 bonds for each of the three men reduced. At that time he told the court that many of the warrants were improper because the alleged juveniles named in them were 16 years old or older.

Rouse ordered bonds for Frinks and Fleming reduced to $2,200 but failed to reduce Kirby's bond because of a prior criminal record. Frinks was released shortly thereafter. Kirby, who was bonded out yesterday, was the last of the three to be released.

Trial of the 19 cases remaining against each of the three defendants is scheduled for October 21.

Barker said Monday he plans to seek a restraining order from

Duke Power Co. Facing 'Crisis'

RALEIGH (AP) — The president of Duke Power Co. told the North Carolina Utilities Commission today his firm faces a financial crisis and, if it is denied the 11.75 per cent rate boost it is seeking, effects "would be quite grave."

Carl Horn Jr. told the commission that for Duke the alternatives to a rate increase would be "default on current payments coming due on the construction program, which is unthinkable, or ... cancel existing orders for generation and transmission equipment scheduled for delivery in future years and lay off a portion of the work force."

"If Duke is forced to this alternative," Horn said, "its customers' short-range interest in low electric bills will have been served, but at the complete sacrifice of their long-range interest in adequate and reliable service."

Horn was the lead witness as the utilities commission began a hearing on the rate boost requested to supplement an emergency, interim increase of 4.2 per cent granted several months ago.

Local Officials To Be Responsible For Protecting Coast

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today local officials must assume responsibility for protecting the North Carolina coast against "indiscriminate and unwise development."

Scott said that in the near future he proposes to call together all county and municipal officials of the coastal counties along with appropriate state officials to explore solutions to existing and potential coastal problems.

The governor made his remarks in a prepared address at the Raleigh-Durham Airport during the beginning of an environmental tour of North Carolina.

Former astronaut John Glenn and former Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall planned to accompany Scott on a whistle-stop tour to five major North Carolina cities—Raleigh, Wilmington, Charlotte, Asheville and Greensboro.

A statewide environmental rally is scheduled tonight in the Greensboro Coliseum.

"Careless building procedures and indiscriminate destruction of the protective sand dunes along our beaches," Scott said, "will ultimately lead to much more devastation to our coastal areas than any single hurricane."

He said he was calling on "all county officials in our coastal counties to declare a moratorium on all permits to destroy coastal dunes for development. This destruction should be halted until the study, authorized by the North Carolina General Assembly to develop a proposed coastal zone use plan, is completed."

Scott went on to say beach cottages, motels and restaurants can be built along the coast "without taking the bulldozer and leveling every sand dune in sight."

The governor said North Carolina has made a good beginning to protect the environment, "but the threat is here. The potential for environmental damage in North Carolina is enormous with our two million acres of delicate estuarine waters, our 134 lakes, our 933 islands, our 320 miles of ocean beaches, and our vast expanses of forests, mountains and plains."

The big task, Scott said, is to prevent damage to the environment itself.

Old Church On Second St. To Be Demolished

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

Court proceedings on the purchase of the Catholic Church property on Second Street in Shore Drive by the Redevelopment Commission have been concluded, it was reported Monday night.

Shore Drive project manager Bryan McClure told commissioners that a settlement was reached on Sept. 22 on the church lawsuit. McClure said that the structure will now be advertised for demolition bids.

A preliminary hearing on the commission's right to take land in connection with the church lawsuit was held in September and brought a favorable ruling at that time. The case had been scheduled to come up again in February for a price hearing on the property.

T. I. Wagner, deputy director and Newtown project manager, reported that four more parcels were acquired in the Newtown area during September, leaving six to be acquired.

On the property already purchased, there are 33 structures and 13 occupants remaining, he said, and four of the occupants will be moving soon.

It was pointed out that the commission is helping families find other homes outside the project area but, as in the case of several large families, public housing facilities of adequate size have not been vacant.

Commission real estate officer Kirby Boyd said that bids were opened on Oct. 4 for the removal of four houses in the Newtown area. In addition, he noted, bids were opened for the demolition of five parcels in the CBD begins tonight

The Nicky Cruz Evangelistic Crusade begins tonight at 7:30 p. m. and continues through tomorrow and Thursday nights.

The services will be held at Ficklen Stadium here and in case of rain will be moved to Minges Coliseum.

Cruz, a nationally known evangelist, was converted to Christianity while he was leader of a New York City ghetto gang. Now he preaches for Christ and also has begun establishing Outreach for Youth Centers to help children in trouble with drugs, the law, etc.

Crowds from all over Eastern North Carolina are expected to attend the crusade.

project area and a bid was submitted for the demolition of all five structures. Boyd said that the staff is waiting for HUD's approval concerning the acceptance of the package bid.

The real estate officer added that three parcels in CBD are ready to be assigned to the commission attorney for condemnation. On one of the parcels, appraisals will be updated and another offer made before condemnation proceedings are begun, he said.

According to a status report on activity in CBD, by project manager Lawrence Holt, 15 parcels have been acquired in the area to date and two options for acquisition are now held.

Appearing before the commission last night, Louis Clark, representing the firm of Wheelless & Moore, presented renderings of an office building proposed by the firm in Shore Drive.

Clark reported that his clients propose to construct half of the first stage of the building now or some 4,800 square feet. He added that 37 parking spaces, enough to take care of the entire first stage, will be built now.

Commissioners questioned the construction of half of the stage on grounds that they approved preliminary developments plans for the building contingent upon the construction of 10,000 square feet now. A check of the minutes of an earlier presentation concerning the building was to be made before further action.

Executive director, Col. A. E. Dubber said two representatives of the new Greensboro area office of HUD visited the commission on Sept. 22. He noted that he, Boyd, and chairman Billy Laughinghouse made a trip to the area office on Sept. 20 to meet officials there.

Commissioners approved an amendment to the travel policy to include authorized travel to the new area office.

The naming of the proposed loop road was also discussed and it was pointed out that suggestions could be made by the commission to the city, which has final authority on the matter.

Recreation Commission Agrees To Drama Classes For Children

By JERRY RAYNOR

Reflector Staff Writer

Community theater in Greenville, a subject touched on by individuals and groups from time to time, received yet another small boost at the monthly meeting of the Greenville Recreation Commission Monday night.

Dr. Herbert Hadley's motion to approve drama classes under the auspices of the Recreation Department was unanimously approved by a full slate of commission members.

His motion followed a presentation by Stuart Aronson, who outlined his plan for drama lessons for children as part of the city's recreation offering.

Aronson, a new faculty member with East Carolina University, assigned to the Division of Continuing Education, was one of the regulars on stage with the Summer Theater at ECU this summer, appearing in "Mame" and other productions.

Nothing he was a newcomer to Greenville, the teacher-actor said "I'd like to see as many things as possible come to Greenville."

Aronson explained that space requirements for teaching drama classes would be simple. As a starter it would be possible to handle only a couple of classes of possibly 15 to 20 students each in the age groups of 8 to 14. He noted he was not interested in creating professional actors or actresses, but wanted an opportunity to give interested young people training in voice, diction and other matters essential to basic training for the stage.

Aronson stressed that such classes would have a practical application in Greenville due to the presence at the university of the Summer

Theater and the Playhouse for the winter season which continually has a need for children in stage productions.

Hadley's motion included a stipulation that funding arrangements be worked out between Director Boyd Lee and Aronson, since budget funds could not be used for direct support of drama classes.

This arrangement would necessitate the charging of minimum fees for participants to cover necessary expenses. Several board members, in endorsing the idea, mentioned the possibility of civic or other groups supporting the classes.

In a second item, commission members approved unanimously the motion offered by Mrs. Louis Gaylord. Following a discussion on a request by the Sportsman Club to use the South Greenville Recreation facilities on Sundays for sports activities of the club, Mrs. Gaylord offered a motion that the group be permitted to use the South Greenville facility on Sunday.

The club would be required to pay the actual cost of a member of the Recreation Department who would be on hand to supervise the activity, but the normal fee of $50 for private use of the facility would be waived.

Commission members also concurred in a policy that would allow the commission to consider similar requests from any other group for the use of a facility on Sunday. They further agreed that the approval of the Sunday use by the Sportsman Club would be subject to review and possible further policy consideration at a later date.

Oklahoma Prison Inmates Like Playing Cowboy For The Rodeo

An AP News-Picture Package
By EDDIE ADAMS
McALESTER, Okla. (AP)

This is Cleo Hill Jr. of Okmulgee, Oklahoma, riding one of the meanest, toughest broncs in the Southwest, coming out of chute No. 7, the public address announcer said.

For the first time since he entered prison, No. 79472 had a name.

The place: Oklahoma State Penitentiary.

The event: The prison's famed rodeo.

One section of the stands is filled with convicts, watched over by guards sitting among them and atop the prison's huge white walls. The rest of the seats are filled by the paying public.

"You walk out in the arena and see all of those people looking at you and you start to get nervous ... You start to get on the horse and you are nervous ... Then the announcer says, 'This is Cleo Hill in chute No. 7' and you get more nervous."

"Then the chute opens and it's a whole new world. You don't feel nothing ... You don't think about anything ... until you start walking back ... Then you say to yourself, 'Next year I'll have me a trophy.'"

That's how No. 79472, serving 10 years for burglary, summed up the rodeo experience.

Ural Lee Brown, 39, serving 50 to 100 years for burglary, is the star of the rodeo.

Ural Lee towers above the other 100 convicts in what is billed as the main event—called "Money the Hard Way."

In this event, a small sack of dirt is tied between the horns of a brahma bull. The bull is turned loose on the grounds. The object: Relieve the bull of the sack of dirt.

If a convict does, he can exchange for an amount ranging from $50 to $250.

Brown, the crowd favorite, has "stolen" $2,800 from the bulls during the past 11 years. It cost Brown 17 stitches around his lip last year for $250. "It was worth it," he said. "I've sent all of the money home to my three children."

Eighty-five convicts take part in the bull and bronc riding events. They get $5 for riding and $3 more if they stay aboard the bull or bronc for eight seconds.

But the trophy is the big magnet.

One inmate remarked, "most of us don't have anything to be proud of. We can't be proud of our families and we sure as hell can't be proud of our past. But, if we can capture a trophy here, that's really something to be proud of."

Inmate Clarence V. Carnes, better known as "Joe," editor of the prison newspaper "Eye-Opener," said, "The rodeo is a great thing for morale."

The rodeo is traditional at the prison dating to 1939 when only inmates participated and only inmates watched. Professional cowboys take part now.

"Every year, about 400 of the 3,200 inmates try out to be a cowboy for a day. Only 85 make it. We couldn't have much control over them if we increased the number," said rodeo manager Roy Rodgers. "We have to give the public something different every year, so, I think next time I might get the women inmates to ride bulls."

New Consumer Bill Heads For House Floor Debate

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After a decade of planning and months of fighting over how to put it together, a bill to build a new governmental loudspeaker for the consumer's voice is headed for its toughest test on the House floor.

Following stage-setting debate today, decisions are due Wednesday on the consumer-protection proposal that has generated intense and often bitter personal friction between Ralph Nader, the nation's best-known consumer advocate, and Chairman Chet Holifield, D-Calif., of the Government Operations Committee.

Nader accuses Holifield of going along with an alliance of most committee Republicans and a minority of Democrats in creating what Nader calls "a consumer fraud" by gutting stronger original legislation. Holifield insists his committee produced a good bill full of legal strength.

A key amendment is being recommended by 15 of the 23 Democrats and two of the 16 Republicans on the committee. They seek to broaden the proposed consumer-protection agency's authority to represent consumers in proceedings of other federal agencies. Other proposed amendments would limit the consumer agency's powers.

"The art of legislation," says Holifield in defense of his committee's work, "is the art of obtaining the possible I think this is a good bill, a strong bill in many ways." But Nader, saying he has the support of Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., is urging the House to strengthen the measure and create "a bill for the vast number of millions of unrepresented American consumers who need representation before federal regulatory agencies."

In an eleventh-hour appeal for support for "a single strengthening amendment" backed by the 17 committee members, Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., told colleagues:

"Despite all the rhetoric that the committee-reported bill is adequate, the fact remains that the lading experts on administrative law have concluded that the CPA, under the language of the committee bill, will be excluded from most agency matters of importance to consumers."

Their amendment would let the new agency intervene in more so-called adjudicatory proceedings—the agency process for formulating orders—and conduct reviews of informal proceedings. The committee-approved bill's major feature would be creation of a consumer-protection agency.

Again Trying Huey Newton

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Huey P. Newton's attorney has expressed confidence that the Black Panther cofounder will be acquitted if his third trial has a jury composed of a cross-section of "his own peer group." The trial opens today.

The attorney, Charles Garry, says he will press to have 18-to-21-year-olds sit on the jury which will try Newton on voluntary manslaughter charges stemming from the 1967 shooting death of an Oakland policeman.

"Huey is confident if he gets a cross-section of people on the jury from his own peer group he will be acquitted," Garry said.

"If he is tried by old, middle class racists, we've got problems."

At present only persons 21 or older can serve on juries.

Meanwhile, stringent courtroom security measures were ordered by Superior Court Judge Lyle E. Cook.

All persons entering the third-floor courtroom will be searched and no loitering will be allowed in the corridor.

Retroactive Grants Sought

DURHAM (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott announced Monday he will ask the Advisory Budget Commission to make sewage treatment grants from a proposed $140 million state bond issue retroactive to July 1, 1971. The action, contingent on passage of the bond issue next year, is intended to encourage earlier construction of sewage treatment facilities in North Carolina.

The announcement was made on the governor's behalf by Earle G. Hubbard, assistant director of the State Department of Water and Air Resources at a clean water bond rally in Durham.

Big Bond Issue At Stake Today

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh voters are deciding today on bond issues of $43.3 million in the biggest bond referendum in the city's history.

On the ballot are proposed bond sales to provide $24.4 million for sewer improvements, $12.4 million for water improvement, $5 million for streets and $2.5 million for parks.

Some 47,222 persons are eligible to vote. Polls close at 7:30 p.m.

Rabbi Added To Jesuit School

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Jesuit-run John Carroll University has made a lot of changes this year.

A rabbi was added to the theology faculty, a new policy permitted guests of the opposite sex to visit in dormitories, and beer was served in a student-run rathskeller.

Eastland Raps Ecology Fights

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James O. Eastland says a new and closer look should be taken at environmental protection laws because, he claims, ecology crusaders are stymieing important public-works projects.

"Special-interest groups, invoking the ecology theme, are holding up badly needed governmental projects," the Mississippi Democrat said. His ire was raised by a court decision delaying construction of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway—a ruling Eastland described as "judicial tyranny."

That action temporarily blocked construction of a 235-mile, commerce-producing waterway between the Tombigbee and Tennessee rivers.

A preliminary injunction was issued against the project, holding the Environmental Defense Fund made a substantial showing that the Army Corps of Engineers failed to comply with the environmental act.

Eastland, chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, also cited court action against the Calvert Cliffs, Md., atomic power plant in which a District of Columbia Court of Appeals said the Atomic Energy Commission made a mockery of the environmental act.

Although the court did not halt the project, it ordered the AEC to revise its rules on atomic power plant construction because, the court said, the agency had been slow in implementing EPA rules and had misinterpreted provisions of the act.

The Environmental Protection Act of 1969 requires that an environmental impact statement accompany major federal projects through the decision-making process.

"Everybody is in favor of protecting the environment," Eastland said, "but this business of yelling 'ecology' every-time we get ready for a new project has got to stop."

"Many of these (court) suits are in the vital field of public power. Any delay along these lines could mean serious consequences for our already over-worked power system."

"I would urge Congress to review the operation of these laws in an effort to determine how they are working—and if they are operating in the interest of the nation as a whole," Eastland said.

Still Fighting Old Extradition Effort

DETROIT (AP) — Black militant Robert Williams was called today before the Michigan Circuit Court, which intended to initiate proceedings for extraditing him to North Carolina to face a 10-year-old charge of kidnapping.

However, his lawyer, Roger Craig, said, "We will attack every aspect of the warrant" from North Carolina, presaging a new round of court battles in the old case.

Gov. William A. Milliken of Michigan signed an order in 1969 to extradite Williams. Last week, the Michigan Supreme Court upheld lower courts which had refused to declare the order illegal.

Craig said Williams' new line of attack will be that his arrest in Monroe, N.C., was illegal.

Williams is charged with kidnapping a white couple during racial turmoil in Monroe in 1961. The couple was released unharmed.

Williams fled the United States and lived in Cuba and Red China for eight years before returning and settling in Michigan in 1969. He has become an adviser on Chinese affairs to the University of Michigan.

Craig said that Judge Joseph A. Sullivan, presiding Judge of the Michigan Circuit Court, presumably would set bond today.

Craig added that immediately after bond is set he would file a writ of habeas corpus alleging illegal arrest.

Demonstrators Await President

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An antiwar group that calls itself the Red Hornet Mayday Tribe says it will stage a "Theater of Life" demonstration outside the Charlotte Coliseum Friday night while President Nixon is there helping honor evangelist Billy Graham.

"We have absolutely no intention of disrupting the event," Brick Miller, a member of the group, said Monday.

Another member of the group said it wants to show that a majority of the American people oppose the war in south-east Asia.

Install Harvard's New President

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Derek C. Bok has been installed as Harvard University's 25th president.

Bok, 48, was dean of Harvard Law School when he was elected president last January to succeed Nathan A. Pusey as head of the nation's oldest university.

In a brief address at Monday's inaugural ceremonies, Bok said that universities must avoid "ventures of dubious merit" which "endanger the equality of their teaching and research."

Photographic Portraits Reflect Personal Interests And Tastes

AP Newsfeatures
Photographic portraits shouldn't be stashed away in mothballs. Fall decorating may provide the ideal opportunity to incorporate portraits of the family into the decorative scheme, members of the Professional Photographers of America suggest.

In addition, James Hewlett, interior design expert notes that the trend is to homes designed to reflect personal tastes and interests. Family portraits fall into this category and when well-arranged can be an important decorating asset. In his opinion, the family portraits can reflect the personalities and commemorate important activities of those who share the home.

"There are a number of interesting ways—creative ways—to use portraits to decorate your home," says Kermit L. Buntrock, Portrait Division Chairman of the photographers group, the world's oldest and largest association of professional photographers.

For example, you might borrow from the Japanese and decorate a hero's corner, dedicated to the father of the family and featuring a large portrait of him.

Photographer Virginia Friesen of Buhler, Kansas impresses her fellow professionals with her use of antique wood boards and native rock—to provide a masculine effect to men's pictures.

Dad's business accomplishments might be newsworthy enough to feature clips, plaques, service honors, scrolls or awards, observes Buntrock. These might be arranged around a space reserved for his business portrait.

And business likenesses no longer are stiff images, points out Paul Gittings, Jr., a business portrait photographer of Houston, Tex. The new relaxed look of the business man photograph makes the portrait suitable for home display.

Another decorative idea suggested by the photographers is a history wall, sort of a living sampler with a collection of photographs of ancestors and current family members. It might even be done like a family tree. The preparation can be lots of fun and the project can give the children a sense of family identity.

Old pictures can be copied and restored easily using modern techniques. A photographer may recommend finishing an old photograph in a browntone in keeping with its old look or updating it with color, an art that was practiced by many old-time portrait photographers.

Founder's Day Observed At Meet Thursday

The district vice president, Mrs. Margaret Cogdell, was a special guest at the meeting of the Alpha Nu Chapter of the Alpha Delta Kappa held Thursday night at Parker's Restaurant.

Special guests for the meeting were members of the Alpha Iota Chapter. Mrs. Cogdell complimented both chapters for their spirit of fellowship and devotion.

Mrs. Cleve Wallace, president of Alpha Nu, gave a welcome to the guests and Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, president of Alpha Iota, responded.

Mrs. Savage, Mrs. Evelyn Blue, Mrs. Lois Haddock and Mrs. Jeanette Clapp spoke briefly on the ideals of vision, service, friendship and loyalty in honor and memory of the founders of Alpha Delta Kappa.

Miss Alya Ray Taylor concluded the Founder's Day ceremony with a prayer. The background of the ceremony consisted of ADK letters, a cornucopia filled with green and purple grapes and lighted gold candles.

Alpha Delta Kappa was founded on Aug. 14, 1947, when the state of Missouri issued a charter, incorporating it as an honorary society.

The society not only gives recognition to outstanding individual teachers, but also helps to gain better recognition to the teaching profession.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Thelma Switzer, who emphasized the need for and importance of listening.

State President Speaks At District Meet Friday

WILLIAMSTON — District 15 of the N.C. Federation of Women's Clubs met at the Town and Country here on Friday.

Mrs. Paul Keller, state president, spoke on "Old Objectives and New Horizons."

She told of four girls now receiving Sallie Southall Cotten Scholarships amounting to $100,000. Mrs. Keller discussed the State Federation's recommendation to President Nixon that a woman and a well-qualified judge, Judge Susie Sharp, be named to the Supreme Court.

"Old objectives have not been changed, but new horizons have been added," said Mrs. Keller. Mrs. Keller added that Women's Clubs must assist in local affairs and support state goals. These have wide appeal because of local common interest — that of recycling products, waging war against litterbugging, against destroying nature, creation of a Zoological Garden on a thousand acre site near Asheville.

The governor has set a bond referendum in May, 1972, and club women should help on the bond issue in her community.

Mrs. Keller recommended identifying signs on the back of slow moving vehicles. Most of our fatal wrecks are to the under 25 inexperienced drivers. For this, she recommended Defensive Driving Courses.

Mrs. George Clapp and Mrs. W. E. Roseveare represented the Greenville Woman's Club.

Hospital, Church Fight Drug Abuse

NEW YORK (AP) — She talks to me. She tells me what's bugging her now. "He got a haircut."

"She eats dinner with the family now. For three years she wouldn't sit down at the table with us."

"He's doing better in school."

"I think he's getting to like us."

These comments were taken verbatim from a once-a-week meeting of parents whose children are in a program that resulted when a hospital and a church joined hands to help fight drug abuse.

"Drug abuse," says Frank Robertson, of the Long Island Jewish Medical Center's Day Center for soft drug users in Manhasset, N.Y., "is a symptom of deep-rooted personal problems—problems most teenagers experience in the growing-up years. The only difference is that some kids turn to drugs. Others express their distress in other ways."

The center has 34 young people enrolled at its headquarters at Christ Episcopal Church. Some come for a daily 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. program, and others for 6:30 to 8:30 sessions each evening.

The days are strictly structured at the center, with time for work tasks, recreation, school instruction, counseling and talk sessions. "During the 'rap' sessions we force the kids to look at themselves honestly," Robertson says. "We make it possible for them to verbalize their problems. We teach them to deal with the 'tough' situations instead of hiding from them. We show them how getting high on drugs is only a cop-out."

He adds that the parents are involved all the way. "Every family comes to weekly talk sessions," he points out. "The parents also drive the kids here and pick them up every day, so we're in close contact with them. Unless we had this kind of cooperation and understanding, our work here with the kids would be negated at home."

It's a new kind of life for the kids, some of whom are having to submit to a kind of discipline they never knew before. The first and primary requisite is that they be "Clean" (free of drugs). Drug use of any kind means automatic expulsion from the program.

For kids who might have gotten lost in the shuffle at school, or had more problems than most in coping with loneliness, Robertson says the program offers a group to fall back on. When there's a situation the kids can't solve, the staff says, "Let's kick it around. You don't have to solve it by yourself. You're not alone anymore."

Mother Won't Hide From Children

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a mother should undress in front of her three boys, ages 1, 3 and 5? I never used to because my husband drilled it into me that it was "wrong."

Whenever I was to undress, I or my husband would send the boys out, or have them turn around, or I would hide myself so they wouldn't see what the female body looked like. The two older boys got so curious they used to hang around constantly while I was undressing just to get a look at what Mommy was hiding from them.

Well, I recently changed my views, and I haven't made any effort to hide myself while undressing. I do not parade around naked, I just don't hide anymore. Now, the boys have quit gawking, and sometimes they run off to play and don't even bother to look.

My husband found out last night that I've let the boys see me in various stages of undress, and he had a fit. He thinks I am terrible.

Abby, I have seen 6 and 7 year old boys peek under little girls' dresses to see something they've never seen before and I don't want that happening to my boys. Please tell me if I am wrong or is my husband? I will abide by your decision.

DEAR "J": I vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband likes to look at girls in mini-skirts and hot pants, but he doesn't want me to wear them. What's wrong with him?

CAROLINE

DEAR CAROLINE: He's like the man who wants to enjoy his neighbor's scenery, but he builds a high fence around his own.

DEAR ABBY: My father in law [a widower] married a childless widow about six months ago. Recently on a visit to their home I noticed that my husband's picture was missing from his father's bedroom bureau where it has stood for 20 years, and in it's place was a STUFFED DOG!

My husband was very hurt but said nothing. He's an only child and has always had a very good relationship with his father—until this marriage.

Dad and his new wife come over about once a week and when they leave she says, "Come around sometime," but she never says when.

Since it was my husband's mother who gave us the money for this house, I feel Dad's new wife should not be welcomed in it after hurting my husband that way. Would I be out of line to have a talk with my father in law? And please don't say, "Let your husband do it." He hasn't got the guts.

NO NAME, NO TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: The new wife could use a few lessons in diplomacy and manners, but unless your husband wants to write his father and stepmother off for good [which I doubt], don't say anything.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ROZZIE: Your boy friend seems to have "bone" trouble. Too much in the head, and not enough in the spine. If you "love" him enough to want to support him, go ahead and marry him.

Will The Changes Hurt ECU?

—Now that we are getting some idea of what might be shaping up for administration of higher education in North Carolina, it is not too soon to wonder how the changes will affect East Carolina University.

The General Assembly is to reconvene on Oct. 26 and there is much reason to believe that Gov. Scott has won his battle for a strong central governing board over all 16 four year campuses in the state.

This will mean probably the end of the Consolidated University of six campuses as it is presently constituted. It seems likely now that all campuses will have boards of their own to handle internal matters and they will be answerable to a state board of governors. Most observers believe that the state board ultimately will be smaller than the present Consolidated University board, but it will have control over all programs at all campuses. The odds, also, are that the central board will have control of the budget and that it will present one lump sum budget request to the Legislature for its approval. This is a central point in the whole plan, although there are many legislators who feel that is giving away too much of their own authority to make appropriations.

If the system is developed this way through Legislative action later this month, how will ECU fare in the future?

Well, much better than it would have if such a system had been instituted ten years ago.

East Carolina University is, in fact, organized as a university now, something that the new governing board is not likely to change. Despite some of the jabs taken at the institution from around the state, the fact is that most of its schools and departments are recognized as having developed programs of real quality.

The ECU Medical School is already a reality and, recognizing the need for it, it is impossible to believe that a new governing board would attempt to close it down. Since the initial one-year program is a cooperative matter between ECU and Chapel Hill it is likely that this will proceed more smoothly with both institutions under one board.

It is difficult to say what would happen to the doctorate programs now being developed on the campus. However, any board looking over the entire higher education system would have to recognize that ECU is far ahead of most other campuses in development of its graduate programs. Thus, after Chapel Hill, N. C. State and perhaps Greensboro, ECU would have to be the next logical place for doctorate programs.

The ECU forces, with Dr. Leo Jenkins leading the way, have long been strong politically. It is logical to assume that competition will continue between institutions, except under the central board the efforts would focus there, instead of in the Legislature.

There is no reason to feel that East Carolina University which has come so far in recent years, cannot continue to progress under the proposed central governing board.

Seek Help For Law Enforcers

By BRYAN HANSLIP
RALEIGH Who do you know who goes to work with death in pursuit of duty a daily possibility?

Every law enforcement officer does. He stands between an ordered society and the chaos of crime, his life on the line.

Yet he receives inadequate training for his job, a low level of pay, and little public respect.

Improving criminal justice in North Carolina demands a reversal of those conditions.

A view from inside the system, looking to more effective crime prevention and administration of criminal justice, was given by SBI Agent D. J. Beal in a paper prepared for a foreign study fellowship competition. His ideas, selected by a judging panel from those submitted by more than a dozen SBI agents, won for him a trip to England to observe law enforcement there.

Beal and his wife left last weekend for a six-week stay in London. Sidney Eagles, a state assistant attorney general, also made the trip on a similar fellowship. Foundations made available funds for the study project, initiated by Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan after a tour convinced him North Carolina could learn from European systems.

Ideas For Improvement
Morgan said the papers prepared by SBI agents and staff attorneys will be a source of ideas for his department in the search for better law enforcement and criminal justice.

The basic starting point for consideration of criminal justice and crime prevention, said Beal, is that "no one in North Carolina is satisfied with our present system of criminal justice or our efforts in crime prevention."

The movement to an improved system must involve all components — court officials, law enforcement, and the general public. "Only through the concern, dedication and willingness to accept change on the part of all North Carolinians can we reach a criminal justice system in which we can place our trust," he asserted.

Beal charted out these recommendations:

- Four-Point Proposal
1. An approach to juvenile justice aimed at intercepting youthful offenders before they become adult criminals, including a statewide Juvenile Service Program to give assistance to local officials in dealing with delinquency problems.

2. Upgraded enforcement at the local level, replacing sheriffs' departments with county police forces, professionally trained and equipped to modern standards.

3. Revisions in the courts to make the office of magistrate effective in handling minor offenses and to enhance efficiency in the superior courts through legal aides or clerks for each judge.

4. A study of probation, correction and parole procedures in order to make them work as tools for rehabilitation.

Man On The Line
The average Tar Heel law enforcement officer is a high school graduate, 25-35 years old, physically and morally sound, without a criminal record.

"The duties and responsibilities are massive, the local support low, the respect in the performance of a job minimum, and the pay and fringe benefits at the low part of the scale. Generally he is taken for granted, and the general public rarely gives it a thought that these men are the only force that stands between a state of law and order, and one of complete criminal chaos," Beal said. "Yet the fact remains that North Carolina has been able to draw from a crop of men who went into law enforcement because they loved it—and who overlooked the questions of salary and public respect."

Beal chose law enforcement after graduation from Wake Forest University, including a law degree. Now 29, he has about three years' SBI service as well as 15 months as Mt. Airy police chief. He is a native of Lenoir, son of a Superior Court judge, and now is stationed in Mt. Airy.

"Nothing would go further in the prevention of crime in North Carolina than professional, trained, and competent law enforcement on all levels," he declared. That requires, he added, a serious resolve to replace antiquated forms of law enforcement in favor of modern and more effective methods.

Finally, said Beal, responsibility rests on the people of North Carolina. They must believe, as those in law enforcement do, he said, "that we live in a system that must be governed by laws, and not by men."

The Hated Ally Of Cambodians

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
SVAYRIENG VILLE.

Cambodia—Here at the edge of the Parrot's Beak, the erstwhile Communist sanctuary jutting into South Vietnam, is hard evidence of an immensely improved military situation but also of a dilemma with dangerous future implications.

When we visited here in April 1970 after the fall of Prince Norodom Sihanouk's government, the end seemed near. The provincial capital of Svayrieng Ville had been evacuated. Most of Svay Rieng province was in Communist hands and the ragamuffin Cambodian arms was waiting to be annihilated. Now remarkably improved Cambodian troops control the province, keeping Highway One open all the way to the border. Certainly this is no longer a Communist sanctuary.

The menace for the future stems from the role of South Vietnamese troops in this improved situation. More than U. S. policy-makers appreciate, the ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) soldier is profoundly hated by Cambodian leaders and peasants alike, particularly in Svay Rieng province. Since the ARVN is needed in Cambodia (with presently 10,000 soldiers in border provinces) this animosity is ominous, considering Cambodia's strategic importance to the Indochina war.

Through the 1960s, Cambodian border provinces such as Svay Rieng provided invaluable base camps for North Vietnamese attacking the populous southern sector of South Vietnam. When pro-Western generals deposed Sihanouk on March 18, 1970, and ordered Communist troops out of the country, hand-wringers in Washington and Saigon wrote Cambodia off as dead.

Even after the successful May 1970 U. S. — South Vietnamese incursion relieved Communist pressure on Cambodian troops, U. S. military observers gave this country only a 25 per cent chance to escape Communist conquest. The basic reason it did escape was Hanoi's decision not to waste precious manpower and supplies against Cambodia's green but growing army.

That is, the four divisions of North Vietnamese regulars in Cambodia (over 40,000 men) are here not to conquer the country, which they could do, but to revive the lagging attack on South Vietnam's Mekong delta and the provinces west of Saigon. However, the 180,000-man Cambodian army (still ill-trained and ill-armed) has improved sufficiently to engage the attention of some 10,000 of these North Vietnamese.

Further, as more Cambodian officers are trained in South Vietnam and more Cambodian soldiers receive automatic M-16 rifles to replace World War II carbines, a greater proportion of the 40,000 North Vietnamese will keep busy here and have to neglect South Vietnam.

Strength For Today

THOSE BETTER DAYS

The Bible contains few definitions. However, it does define the meaning of the word "faith." "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Hebrews 11:1).

An even better translation would be that faith is the giving of substance to things hoped for, "the evidence of things not seen."

Here is the way faith would appear to work. We see something in the world that should be done or some evil that should be obliterated. Now faith is a quality in our natures which enables us — along with God's help — to give substance to something that is hoped for. We hope we may achieve a certain matter. Faith is the motive power by which we achieve it. It is not the only motive power, for energy, intelligence, persistence have their place in all achievement. But without faith there is no real achievement.

The great missionary, Frank Laubach, worked out a plan whereby illiterate people may be taught to read and write. Although he knew only a few languages himself, Laubach was able to teach millions how to read and write the language they handled every day, and teach this discipline to others.

We stand in the midst of the most brilliant century humanity has known. We are frightened and trembling as we look at some possibilities of violence. On the whole, however, we look for a better earth and a more happy population.

Certainly many things now regarded as necessary will have to be destroyed — but we are on our way to better days.

SO MUCH DEPENDS ON THE LINE BACKER!

Out Of The Real World

FORT WORTH — The old prop job, flapping down from Oklahoma City flops into Love Field like a crow on a clothes line. Suddenly it is Tuesday so it must be Fort Worth. It is the start of the fall lecture season: Tonight, Texas Christian, tomorrow Texas Wesleyan, next week Sewanee. Students await, and a zest for combat returns. Nothing more surely sharpens a man's wits than to hone his arguments on the sophomore mind.

Tonight's main event features a debate with Karl Hess, the Old Guardsman who became a New Leftist. Ten years ago he ranked high in the invisible ranks of Republican intelligentsia. He was a key figure in drafting the GOP platform for the 1964 campaign; he served at Barry Goldwater's side in that brave debacle. His subsequent book, "In a Cause that will Triumph" provided an eloquent restatement of distilled conservative doctrine. Hess in those days was as coated and tied and clean-shaven as the Senator himself, a man of impeccable propriety. But he had a secret vice: He thought.

He thought himself into an intellectual change of life. In an act of monastic rejection of conventional values, Hess cast off the old ways, and moved his few possessions — bags, baggage, dreams and visions — onto a houseboat tied to a Washington wharf. Come, fill the cup, and in the fire of Spring your Winter garment of repentance fling! Intellectually, at least, Hess has become a wholly happy man.

He is bearded now, in the Castro fashion. He comes on stage in a khaki cap, guerrilla style; desert boots; denim pants blue work shirt, open-necked, the shirt-tail flying like a flag. A shoulder knapsack, fashioned from a cartridge case, contains his worldly goods. This sacramental showbiz, the outward and visible signs of inner grace.

The debate proceeds, and a small prayer creeps into my notes: The Lord bless visionaries, for the world would be poorer without them; but the Lord have mercy on them, too. In the jungles of the New Left, Hess is a milk-white unicorn, pure and undefiled. He is illumined by inner lamps of goodness.

Thus he gazes with a blue-eyed innocence upon the Black Panthers. They are "a very attractive group of people." He denies that the New Left seeks power in any form: "We want freedom." He is appalled by the insidious manipulations of big government and big industry: "The people must again take hold of their own lives." He dreams of an economic democracy in which the workers would own the factories. Each neighborhood, each community, would manage its own police, its own schools. Everything would be decentralized and brought close to the people. His one abiding purpose, just as in the Goldwater days, is to see individual liberty restored.

Debating Hess is like debating a Mother Superior. Nothing much is gained by recalling the report of a House committee in August: the committee's moderate

Postal Service Gypping Users?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Perhaps the Federal Trade Commission, the Better Business Bureau or Ralph Nader should investigate the Postal Service. If Cupid's Diaper Service did things the Postal Service does, they would raise hell.

ITEM: The Mail Order Merchants Association checked 100 post offices in small towns and large cities and found that 86 overcharge the public by using faulty scales.

The association prepared 100 parcels each weighing exactly one pound, 15 ounces, and each addressed to an address in the eighth zone. Under postal regulations, the parcel should go at the two-pound rate, $1.05. The rate for a parcel from two to three pounds is $1.35.

Of the 100 post offices, 86 charged the three-pound rate. "When a complaint was raised that the parcel was under two pounds and should be charged for at the two-pound rate, the patron was told to take it elsewhere as the scales showed the weight to be over two pounds," said Claude J. Martin, executive director of the association. Varied Explanations

In 92 of the post offices, the clerk could see the reading on the scales, but the patron could not. (In most states and cities, laws require that retailers have accurate scales with readings clearly visible to patrons.)

ELMER ROESSNER

"In each post office that overcharged, the postmaster was informed that the scales were not accurate," Martin said. Replies, he added, ranged from "Postal scales are not accurate within three ounces," to the frank admission, "Postal scales are designed to overweigh to get more postage."

"Some postal clerks stated they were told by postal officials to charge an extra pound if the scales showed weight near the line," Martin said.

ITEM: Pitney Bowes, the large maker of metered mail devices, issued a report that use of metered mail saves the Postal Service $256 million a year. It found that metered mail saves an estimated $149 million by eliminating culling, facing and cancelling 33 billion pieces of mail, and $107 million by eliminating the need to print, distribute, sell and account for 41 billion adhesive stamps.

The report added that half of all mailed items are metered, that the 500,000 meters in use printed $3 billion in postage last year, and that it saved users money too.

If users of metered mail are saving the government $256 million a year, wouldn't it be fair to give them a lower rate despite their savings, largely in the prevention of stamp thefts, shouldn't they, in fairness, be allowed to recoup their expenses for meter rental and having meters reset?

Another Gyp

ITEM: As has been often pointed out, the Postal Service delivers a large part of its special delivery letters in the regular mail. In business districts where there are more than one, but rarely more than two, mail deliveries a day, special delivery letters are delivered with the regular mail. The unaware sucker who has paid 60 cents for a special delivery is simply cheated.

Many post offices and mail boxes carry signs urging the use of special delivery. A more nearly honest sign would urge patrons not to use that service.

And despite all this chicanery, the Postal Service is planning to increase rates again next year, with one-ounce surface letters going up to 9 cents.

Most-Decorated Marine Dies After Lengthy Illness

LT. GEN. LEWIS B. PULLER

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — The fighting spirit that made Lt. Gen. Lewis B. "Chesty" Puller the most decorated man in Marine Corps history was best demonstrated in Korea when, with his troops surrounded by Chinese Communists, he told subordinates: "Those poor bastards. They've got us just where we want them. We can shoot in every direction now."

When Puller died of pneumonia Monday night at the age of 73 and after a lengthy illness, he left behind a string of medals and honors as long as his military record.

Puller's fighting spirit was demonstrated even in his later years. In 1965, when at the age of 67 Puller requested, and was denied, reactivation for service in Vietnam, he said it was "in the knowledge that I am physically fit, young enough in years and qualified by experience for further service to the U.S. Marine Corps and my country."

But a series of strokes which began when he retired from the Marines in 1955—with 56 decorations from three wars and the only man ever to win five Navy Crosses—sapped his strength.

His fourth and last gold star, in lieu of his fifth Navy Cross, came in 1952 for action in Korea. He was cited for driving off "repeated attacks upon his regimental defense sector and supply points" in subzero weather against a "vastly outnumbering hostile force."

Among his other decorations were the Army Distinguished Service Cross, the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart and the Presidential Unit Citation with two Bronze Stars. While leading one attack against the Japanese on Guadalcanal, he was wounded seven times but kept fighting.

At one point in his career while serving in Australia, a car broke loose from a ferry on which he was riding and dropped into the water. Puller jumped in and rescued the two occupants.

The Australians awarded him their Life Saving Medal—not realizing he couldn't swim a stroke.

Agnew Assures Turkey Of Continued U.S. Aid

By WALTER MEARS
Associated Press Writer
ANKARA (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has assured Turkey's leaders that the United States is committed to aid their nation and to maintain the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He dismissed suggestions of unilateral U.S. troops withdrawals from Europe as "very careless talk."

Agnew, midway through two days of talks in the Turkish capital, said he hopes U.S. negotiations with the Soviet Union will lead to balanced reductions in the Communist and Western forces in Europe. But without agreement for such reciprocal reductions, he said, there can be no American cutback.

Agnew was conferring today with President Cevdet Sunay and, for the second time, with Premier Nihat Erim.

The vice president spent 90 minutes with Erim and other government officials Monday and reportedly told them that U.S. negotiations with the Soviet Union on strategic arms and manpower are a product of diplomatic realism. But a Foreign Ministry spokesman said Agnew also assured Erim that the United States is committed to the support of Turkey through military aid and alliance.

For his part Erim said Turkey believes close ties to the West and the support of NATO are essential to the interests of his nation and the cause of peace in Europe.

Agnew arrived in Ankara Monday from Washington and goes to Iran Wednesday for the celebration at Persepolis of the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian monarchy. On Oct. 16 he will begin a six-day visit to Greece, his father's native land.

Discussing his mission, Agnew said he would not be talking with foreign leaders about any upgrading of American military commitments because President Nixon's policy is to reduce them when that is compatible with U.S. security interests. "We're engaged in balanced force reduction conversations with the Soviets," he said, "and as soon as they prove fruitful—which I hope they will—I think we would be in a position to further reduce our military presence in the Mediterranean."

"But one thing is certain, until we can be certain that the forces of NATO that stand ready against the Warsaw Pact nations are able to meet that threat, we cannot move affirmatively in that area."

"And all the talk in the Congress that relates to unilateral force reductions is, in my judgment, very careless talk because it is important that we maintain that readiness."

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield has said he will again propose his amendment to reduce U.S. troops stationed in Western Europe by half, to 150,000. The Senate rejected the measure earlier this year after a massive administration lobbying campaign.

Chandler Plans Cheap Campaign

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Former Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler doesn't figure he needs to spend much on his campaign.

The Kentucky Registry of Election Finance reported Monday that the 73-year-old independent gubernatorial candidate had received $115 in contributions through Oct. 4 and had spent $161.

Chandler said his only expenses have been for food and gasoline.

"I don't need a lot of advertising because the people all know me, don't you see?" he explained.

Jane Would Go To S. Vietnam

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jane Fonda says she wants to take her antiwar theater group to South Vietnam this Christmas but she doesn't think President Nixon will let her.

The actress told a news conference Monday that Bob Hope is permitted to entertain United States troops in Vietnam "because he is prowar, promilitary" and "apparently makes a lot of money off the war."

A spokesman for Hope said the veteran actor loses money on his Christmas tour of U.S. military bases and "never has been prowar."

Miss Fonda said she would leave Nov. 28 to entertain troops with what she called "political vaudeville" on or off base in Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan and Okinawa.

HUD Jobs To Be Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, has ordered a 7.5 per cent reduction in HUD employment by June 30. The Washington Post reported today.

The HUD roster of 16,000 would be reduced by 1,200, and a feasibility study would be made to cut up to 50 per cent in some other areas, the newspaper said.

Quoting HUD sources, the Post said Romney is acting largely because of White House pressure for economy.

Romney would try to absorb the cuts in Washington with its 4,200 employees and 10 regional offices with 2,500 and keep intact a 9,200-member staff at 77 local area and FHA insuring offices.

If Romney's maximum projected job cuts for 1972 were implemented, the report said, over-all HUD employment could drop by 18 per cent to about 13,000.

HUD employment rose from 14,661 in fiscal 1970 to 16,030 last year, with a 15,709 level proposed to Congress during the period ending next June 30.

Backs Press In Adversary Role

BOSTON (AP) — Walter J. Hickel, former secretary of the interior, says the press must be an adversary against special interest groups which might exploit the nation's resources for their own purposes.

Hickel, in an interview appearing in today's edition of the Christian Science Monitor, said the press must not shy away from its adversary role.

"Now is no time for the press to get gun shy because of high level criticism," he said. "That's the worst thing that could happen."

MORE REFUGEES
NEW YORK (AP) — In the last six years, the total number of refugees in the world has more than doubled, climbing from 7,900,309 in 1964 to 17,318,320 in 1970, Church World Service reports.

Standards Met By Brookhaven School

Evans, Novak

And if Hanoi did order the conquest of Cambodia in the coming dry season, the cost to the Communists now would be unacceptably high.

That was demonstrated in one recent major engagement here between Cambodians and the battle-seasoned 9th Vietnamese Division on the Touch River east of Phnom Penh. Cambodian battalion commanders committed every possible mistake deploying troops and sustained heavy casualties, but in contrast to gun-shy ARVN officers, they kept sending fresh soldiers against the North Vietnamese and refused to fall back.

In sum, time would seem to be running against the Communists in Cambodia were it not for the conduct of South Vietnamese troops whose brigandage here has been extraordinary even in the context of Indochina's bloody history.

Cot. Kas Chhuon, military governor of Svay Rieng, has sent two outraged reports, thus far unpublished, to the high command, protesting the ARVN's conduct. "This barbarous army committed criminal acts against the villagers, including torture and murder," he reported on Sept. 8. "As for women of all ages, they were raped in the most cruel and barbarous manner ever known."

Indeed, as Chhuon told us, he now regards the ARVN as a greater enemy than the Communist invaders, a view echoed by every officer and soldier we interviewed. "The South Vietnamese came here to oppress us, not protect us," said the 426th Battalion adjutant.

Several officers complained to us that American weapons are sold for profit by ARVN soldiers, often winding up in Communist hands.

The Phnom Penh government worries the peasants will blame it for ARVN depredations, particularly when compared with Communist troops who by and large do not bother Cambodian villagers. That could lead to what the government most fears, a viable Communist underground in the countryside.

Despite this and despite the ARVN's mediocre combat performance in Cambodia lately, U.S. officials believe South Vietnamese troops are needed at least through 1972. The obvious solution is to speed arming and training Cambodian troops to replace them, but how a penny-pinching U.S. program hog-tied by Congressional restrictions prevents this will be the subject of a future report from Cambodia.

Sec. Rogers Back To N.Y. To Press Policy Goals

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For the third time in less than a month Secretary of State William P. Rogers is going to New York and a luxurious suite in one of America's most prestigious hotels.

But instead of a three-day vacation spent lounging in the Waldorf-Astoria Towers, Rogers will see officials of at least 20 nations as he reaches out for two of the Nixon administration's most cherished diplomatic goals—continued United Nations membership for Nationalist China and an interim Middle East settlement.

Important as these goals may be to Rogers, there is no firm evidence he is close to either, although State Department officials are constantly maintaining a positive tone.

His goal for the Middle East is reopening the Suez Canal as a temporary agreement between Egypt and Israel that could serve as a first step toward a permanent settlement.

Rogers' next Mideast move comes Thursday when he sees Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban for the second time since the secretary opened his bilateral talks just over three weeks ago.

The Eban meeting assumed increased importance after Rogers met Thursday with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad. Spokesmen for both leaders said the two had settled previous disagreements and narrowed differences, but there was no detailing of what differences.

sources, such tactics could easily have a counter-productive result and thus may mean the United States has reached a near-desperate state.

Whatever Rogers' state of mind, his energy appears boundless. When he finishes his last meeting Thursday, he will have seen officials from at least 90 nations since opening his talks last month, a U.N. record.

Meanwhile, it's expected Dr. Henry A. Kissinger will be in Peking by the weekend, making concrete arrangements for President Nixon's forthcoming mainland visit.

It could also be expected Kissinger may learn something about what is going on in China. There have been recent hints that Defense Minister Lin Piao might be ill or dead, but no hard evidence one way or the other.

Mercury Level Fear Attacked

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Recent concern over mercury levels in fish and lakes may be unwarranted because mercury levels in human tissues have declined, researchers say.

Reporting findings of their study to the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association, the researchers Tuesday blamed part of the mercury scare on "emotionalism and ignorance."

Their study was done at Saratoga General Hospital in Detroit, Mich., and involved analysis of tissues taken from human organs at autopsy between 1913 and 1970 and preserved at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

The tissue was taken from the bodies of 59 Michigan residents who had died of causes unrelated to mercury.

The authors said that concern over mercury contamination "had profound social reverberations in the form of mass anxiety leading to action—often with little or no scientific basis—resulting in chaos, fear, and the economic pain of damaged or killed sectors of industry and commerce."

While research has been conducted on mercury levels in fish, little has been done on mercury content of human tissues, they said. It is presumed that high mercury levels result in damage to the central nervous system of human beings.

At the news conference, Dr. Jack Kevorkian, one of the researchers, criticized the Food and Drug Administration for setting a standard of .5 parts per million of mercury in fish as the maximum permissible level.

There are no data to support such a standard, he said, and added that it is based on "emotionalism and ignorance."

Sweden permits a level twice as high, he noted.

The study found that the level of mercury in human tissue, which ranged upward to 34 parts per million, does not remain constant but reaches peaks in early childhood and again in middle age, indicating that it does not accumulate in the body. Tissues were studied from persons ranging in age from the newborn to 81 years.

The researchers also found that there was "an extraordinary degree in mercury content in almost all organs studied, sharper in the early decades of this century, leveling off recently."

"The facts indicate a gratifying cleansing of the environment, or the absolute reverse of recent 'scare' pronouncements which led to such inexcusable panic actions on the part of authorities who had no factual knowledge for truly sound judgment," the authors stated.

They speculated that one reason for the mercury decline was the drastic reduction in use of coal for fuel. Coal smoke has been found to contain mercury.

Perhaps most significant was an apparent negative Israeli attitude.

The night before the Rogers-Riad meeting, Israeli Premier Golda Meir criticized Rogers' Oct. 4 speech to the General Assembly.

Mrs. Meir said the six so-called ideas put forth by Rogers as containing the germ of an interim settlement had encouraged Egypt to maintain an intransigent position.

And as late as last Sunday, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said as he left to visit Moscow that the latest U.S. effort was "giving Israel all she wants."

Through all the vague statements, Rogers has maintained both sides still want the United States to continue its role.

Also continuing for the secretary will be his drive to keep the Nationalist Chinese in the U.N., while supporting membership for the Communist mainland.

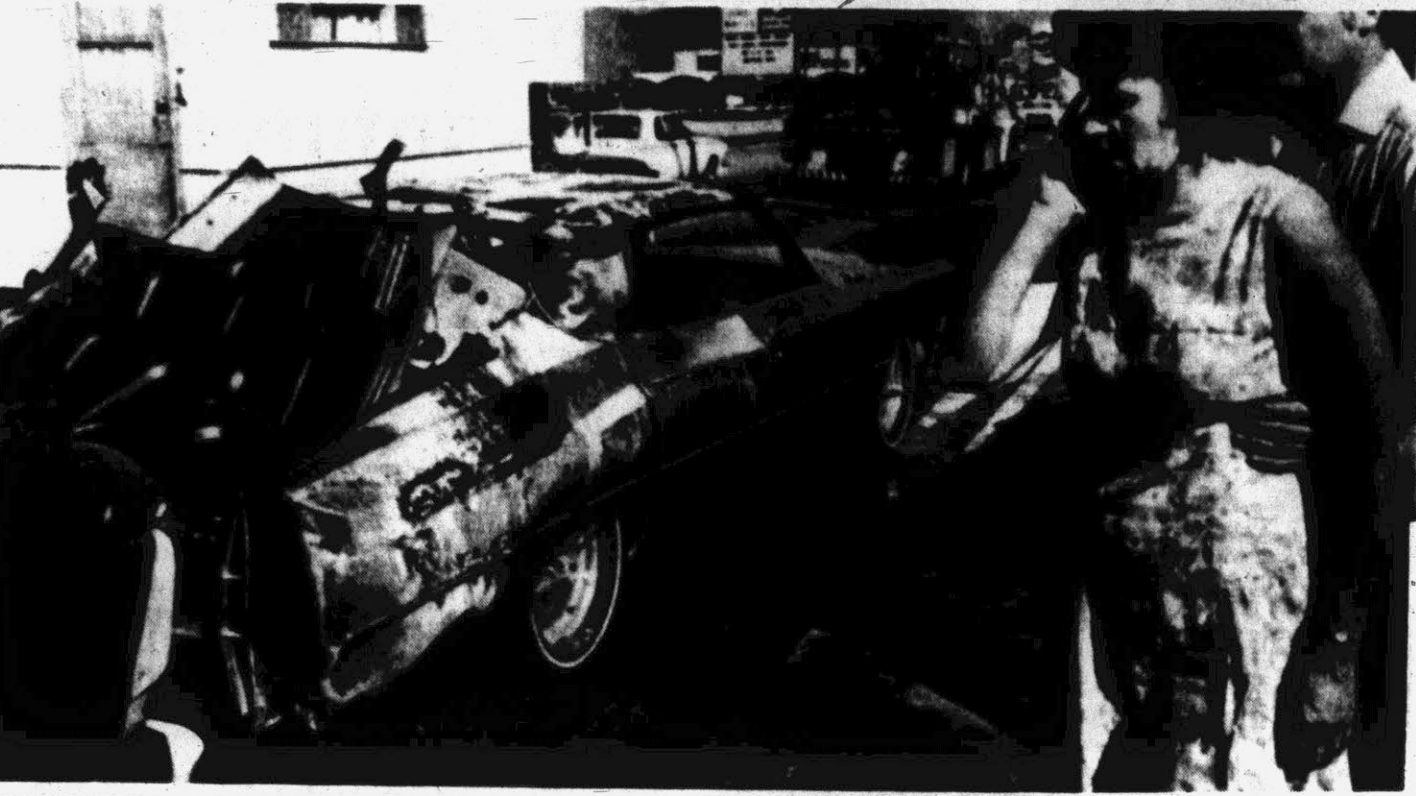

The China question will dominate Rogers' conversations this week as it did his earlier New York visits.

The key to the American effort is a resolution maintaining expulsion of a member requires a two-thirds margin, not a simple majority.

According to U.S. officials, the vote on the "important question" move will be very close, but they say there is a great deal of reason to hope for success.

However, several foreign diplomats say U.S. officials on numerous occasions have raised the possibility the United States will seriously reduce its financial support of the U.N. if Taiwan is expelled. Rogers has declined to address these reports directly.

According to these diplomatic

UNC Trustees Continue Fight

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The powerful trustees' executive committee of the University of North Carolina continued its fight Monday to preserve the consolidated university system by endorsing a plan proposed by UNC President William C. Friday.

Without discussion, the executive committee approved the Friday plan. It calls for absorbing nine regional universities into the consolidated UNC system.

Gov. Reagan In Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan of California arrived in Singapore today for a one-day visit after assuring Nationalist Chinese leaders of America's determination to keep Chiang Kai-shek's regime in the United Nations.

Before leaving Taipei, he told an airport news conference that most Americans "would certainly want a great deal of thought given" to whether the United States should withdraw from the United Nations or cut off funds to the world body if Nationalist China is expelled.

"Most Americans are determined that the Republic of China has a place ... in all international councils including the United Nations," said Reagan. President Nixon's personal representative on an Asian tour.

Reagan met for an hour Monday with President Chiang and said his talks "ended, I think, on a very solid note of optimism."

Reagan's schedule in Singapore included a call on Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew and lunch with President B. H. Sheares.

tem. Under the plan, the UNC Board of Trustees would continue, but members of the regional university trustees would be added to its membership.

The proposal will be presented to the full UNC Board of Trustees when it meets in Chapel Hill next Monday.

Friday presented his plan last week to the joint higher education subcommittee. It received a cool response from the committee, which is working on a plan that would create a new board to govern all 15 state universities.

The General Assembly will reconvene Oct. 26 to deal with the issue of restructuring higher education.

Meanwhile, State Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, told newsmen Monday he would continue his fight to have the restructuring issue postponed until 1973.

Burney, a member of the higher education committee, said restructuring proposals now before the group would create a hodge-podge higher education system.

A final draft of the higher education restructuring bill is being prepared by a six-man subcommittee. The full committee has scheduled meetings Thursday and Friday for final action.

Sadat And Top Russian Leaders Confer Today

By ROGER LEDDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's top leaders and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt opened talks today on the new U.S. proposal for an interim Middle East settlement.

Sadat is also believed to be seeking more military hardware from the Soviets to counter the possibility that the United States may resume arms shipments to Israel.

The Egyptian president arrived in Moscow Monday for intensive discussion with the Kremlin leadership but delayed the talks until today.

Egypt's official Middle East news agency said Sadat postponed his first session with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to discuss the U.S. plan with his foreign minister, Mahmoud Riad. Riad, who conferred last week with U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, arrived in Moscow from New York late Monday afternoon.

The six-point proposal put forward by Rogers last week is aimed at spurring an agreement to reopen the Suez Canal, but Rogers emphasized that he considers it a step toward an over-all settlement between Israel and the Arabs.

Riad has strong reservations about an interim agreement, fearing such a temporary solution might turn into a permanent situation that would leave the basic Arab-Israeli conflict unresolved.

Pravda, Izvestia and Tass all published the same article expressing hope that Sadat's visit will "strengthen further the friendship and all-around cooperation between the two nations in the interests of joint struggle against imperialism, for freedom, independence and social progress."

In another development, reliable military sources in Tel Aviv reported that two MIG23s, the Soviet Union's most advanced warplanes, made their operational debut in the Middle East theater on Sunday with a brief flight near the southwest Israeli coast.

The sources said Israeli aircraft attempted to intercept the planes "and came close enough to make positive identification."

A military spokesman said "this was not, repeat not, a hostile act," and there was no word of any shots exchanged.

The MIG23 reportedly has speed and altitude superiority over any operational warplane in the Western arsenal. Its maximum speed is estimated by Western military experts as 3.2 times the speed of sound and its top altitude between 90,000 and 100,000 feet.

Balky Soldiers Are Replaced; No Action Set

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The five U.S. soldiers who balked at going on a night ambush patrol last weekend were withdrawn today from Fire Base Pace along with the rest of their 100-man company.

Maj. Gen. Jack J. Wagstaff, commander of U.S. forces in the 3rd Military Region, said he had replaced the company at the artillery base on the Cambodian border "because of all this goddam flak, the possible harm it could do to company morale and in line with normal rotation policy."

Wagstaff said no disciplinary action would be taken against the five reluctant GIs because "nothing was violated."

"There was never any confrontation, never any refusal," the general said. "There was never an opportunity. The only refusal, if you want to call it that, is that they told a newsman they weren't going to go."

The five men were members of Bravo Company, 1st Battalion, 12th Cavalry, 3rd Brigade, 1st Cavalry Division.

Wagstaff said that shortly after the order was given for the night ambush patrol Saturday, the five men were preparing their equipment for the mission when an unidentified reporter came into their bunker.

"In the course of this conversation the men said they were scheduled for a patrol but that they were not going," Wagstaff continued.

"That evening, as the platoon was about to form up for the patrol, the liaison officer from an adjacent South Vietnamese unit came to Fire Support Base Pace to coordinate operations

Searching For Boat Operators

MOREHEAD CITY (AP) — The Coast Guard was searching Monday for operators of two small boats found during the weekend drifting empty along the coast.

An empty 16-foot skiff was found Sunday afternoon in Bogue Sound. It was identified as belonging to Lewis E. Taylor, 39, of Rt. 1, Newport, who had left Salterpath to check fishing nets.

Dale Hastings, 33, also was sought. His 10-foot boat was found near the North Carolina-Virginia line after he left a fishing camp.

for the evening.

"It was discovered at that time that a South Vietnamese operation was scheduled for about the same area as the Bravo Company ambush patrol and was already in position."

Wagstaff said the base commander decided then to cancel the U.S. ambush. But when the commander of Bravo Company heard about the incident, he became angry and formed up a larger patrol which included the five reluctant men for an operation in the same area the next day.

"The five men went," Wagstaff said. "There was no refusal and no discussion."

Two newsmen who were at the base when the incident occurred expressed surprise at the furor.

"It wasn't a mutiny," one said. "A lot of those guys were bitching. It's the sort of thing that goes on all the time."

Egg-Dropping Is The Final Test

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) — Sixth grade teacher Rita Kinney hopped on the local fire department's snorkel ladder, rode five stories high and dropped 29 eggs.

Only 13 broke. Mrs. Kinney was teaching problem solving and she had instructed 29 12-year-olds to devise ways to keep the eggs from breaking. The Cupertino Fire Department agreed to help.

Some children wrapped their eggs in pillows. One girl wrapped an egg in styrofoam and attached a parachute and a boy suspended his in jello. These worked.

One girl soaked her egg in vinegar 100 hours. This didn't work.

Mrs. Kinney said at a class discussion afterwards the children decided that money and time were not necessarily guarantees of success.

Naval Talks Are Launched

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union began negotiations today to prevent dangerous harassment and accidents between their naval forces.

The discussions were first proposed by the United States in 1968 and accepted by the Russians earlier this year.

High-ranking defense and naval officials from both sides are to work out "some form of informal understanding" to preclude coldwar-type incidents on the high seas, knowledgeable sources said.

The U.S. delegation is headed by Undersecretary of the Navy John W. Warner. The Soviets have designated as their chief negotiator their No. 2 naval commander, Fleet Adm. Vladimir A. Kastanov.

The understanding, the sources said, would relate only to registered naval ships and would be worked out within the framework of existing international regulations. They said the conduct of spy ships sailing as non-military vessels would not be discussed. Although the talks are bilateral, the United States consulted its NATO allies before meeting with the Russians and will inform them of the results, the sources said.

The talks are expected to last about 10 days, the sources added.

Roosters Once Resolved Suits

By HARI SUBRAMANIAM
Associated Press Writer

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—The white rooster was held on a block of wood. With a single swing, A. Appukuttan lopped off its head with a butcher's knife. The fowl thrashed for a little while and then lay still.

Appukuttan, an Indian rubber tapper of 41, shook hands with a Chinese, 59. Their dispute over a loan was settled.

The ceremony was held at a Chinese temple in Malacca, after a five-minute prayer by a priest. It was witnessed by two lawyers and two court interpreters.

The loan of about $300 was the subject of a civil suit. In a magistrate's court both parties agreed to settle the dispute with the chopping off of a rooster's head.

Hundreds of court cases have been settled in Malaysia by this method. Malaysians, especially those of Chinese origin, believe evil will befall the one who has lied in a challenge of this sort.

In Appukuttan's case, he cleared his name by accepting the challenge. Since he whacked the rooster, he was assumed innocent. If he was actually guilty, it was believed, the rooster's curse would be apparent.

The Chinese merchant also was cleared since he would not have offered the challenge unless innocent.

Sometimes, just to strengthen the verdict, each party must dispatch a rooster. It doesn't establish much proof, but it settles arguments.

Chopping the rooster's head is a Chinese form of oath. Some experts believe it dates to the Chou Dynasty around 1100 B.C.

Some Chinese secret societies apparently use this method of admitting members. The thought is that if any member betrayed his brethren, evil would befall him and he would meet a fate similar to the rooster.

Many stories are told in Malaysia of people who tried to cheat by chopping the rooster's head and have suffered as a result.

A former municipal commissioner tells of one housewife who claimed $1,000 from a man to whom she had given only $300. During the chopping ceremony, the story goes, blood from the rooster splashed into her eyes and she became blind.

Lee Siow Mong, manager of the government-run Employees Provident Fund, says a white rooster is chosen because the color signifies purity and Chinese believe that in the feathered world only the white rooster possesses a soul. Lee dismisses the whole idea as superstition. He thinks it is better for the two parties just to take oath at a temple. Chinese priest favor this too.

However, legal officials say that if two parties want their dispute settled by the rooster method, the courts will accede to the request.

the U.S. Eastern District Court against the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Frinks is a field secretary for the group which is one of the organizations supporting protests in the county. The protests began several weeks ago after a black was shot by a Highway Patrolman.

The solicitor said he has talked with a number of black leaders "and they have informed me they have not asked for Golden Frinks and his associates to come into the county. They tell me that they wish the SCLC would leave."

More than 300 arrests have been made in Ayden and 69 in Farmville as the result of protests over the August 6 shooting.

Arrests have also been made in connection with a series of bombings in the Ayden area which are thought to have stemmed from the protests.

Paul, commenting on Barkers' plan to seek an injunction said "we challenge him to do so."

According to Paul, "If he thinks there are black leaders in the county who want the SCLC out and can get a Federal injunction, we challenge him to try it."

"But," he emphasized, "we don't believe he can get one." Paul continued, "In fact, after giving him time to see whether or not he is going to get one, we intend ourselves to go to the Federal Court to apply for an injunction against those who are harrasing SCLC members."

The Greenville attorney who has represented the protestors over the past weeks, said "Also, we intend to attempt to place the Farmville Police Department into receivership and have a master appointed for the purpose of rehabilitating the Farmville Police Department . . . and require psychological testing of the members."

Paul indicated that protestors also plan to file suit against the Town of Farmville and some 20 defendants for "false arrest," and other incidents.

According to Paul, who Friday released a letter from Sen. Hubert Humphrey to the U. S. Attorney General for a Justice Department investigation of conditions in the Greenville area, a sub-committee of the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights has scheduled a meeting here Thursday. The closed session, according to Paul, has been set from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the administration building at East Carolina University.

Appeal Court SaidPlanned

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times reports that President Nixon will ask Congress to create a Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals to hear cases involving wage and price controls in Phase 2 of the administration's economic policy.

The newspaper said in today's editions that the tribunal would be set up to provide speed and uniformity in handling legal action arising from decisions of the Pay Board and Price Commission, the two agencies that will administer the controls after the current 90-day freeze expires Nov. 13.

Meanwhile, the Times said it had learned that Virgil B. Day, vice president for business environment of the General Electric Co., had accepted appointment as one of the five business representatives on the Pay Board.

Reached at his home in Chappaqua, N.Y., Day declined to comment on the report.

The Times said authorization for the court would probably be part of the legislation the White House is scheduled to send to the House Banking and Currency Committee on Wednesday.

Holy Taxes!

BURLINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Robin, Batman's youthful crime fighter in Gotham City, almost ran afoul of the law in Burlington (N. C.) today.

Actor Bert Ward, clad in his Robin costume, was selling autographed pictures in a local shopping center when it was discovered that someone overlooked a city ordinance requiring a license to make such sales.

"Holy taxes," shopping center officials cried, "Is this a prank of the Penguin or the work of the Joker?"

After the routine procedure of acquiring a permit, the caped crusader resumed signing autographs and selling pictures.

PANTS POINTERS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wearing pants to the office? Okay, then, don't get into boyish poses, says Jack Winter, president of the firm that bears his name and manufacturers pants for women.

The poses to avoid: Straddling chairs, putting feet up on desk. Walk, stand and sit gracefully.

About A Dozen Are Considered

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon has about a dozen individuals under "active consideration" for nomination to the Supreme Court, including Sen. Robert C. Byrd, a conservative West Virginia Democrat, White House sources said today.

The Nixon aides, who asked not to be identified, appeared to be moving to discount published reports that Byrd is unlikely to be named to one of the vacancies created by the retirements of Justices Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan.

One official said reports that Byrd is fading from consideration are "off base." But another official said Byrd, while among the "10 or 12 names under active consideration" is not at the "top of the list."

In fact, this official indicated no leading contenders have emerged from the list of several hundred names submitted for Nixon's consideration. He would not disclose any of the names, nor would he offer any indication when the nominations might be announced.

Earlier, Sen. Henry Jackson said he would vote to confirm Byrd if he is nominated to the court.

Miss Speir Named One Of Program's Finalists

A North Pitt High School senior, Miss Christie Speir, has been named as one of 20 North Carolina finalists for the 1971-72 William Randolph Hearst United States Senate Youth Program.

Miss Speir will now compete with the 19 other finalists, on the basis of a personal interview, to fill one of the two positions as North Carolina's representatives and receive a $1000 scholarship.

The Hearst Foundation's U. S. Senate Youth Program will be conducted from January 29 to February 5, 1972, in Washington, D.C.

As required of all finalists, Miss Speir is an elected student body officer, has completed a course in United States History and has scored high on a special history and current-events test.

Prior to receiving this honor, Miss Speir has been a member of the Governor's Youth Advisory Council for two years and is currently serving as its Vice-Chairman, was a member of the Student Task Force for the Department of Public Instruction, was a delegate to the White House Conference on Children and was recently North Carolina's delegate to the National Conference on Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency.

As a student at North Pitt High School, Miss Speir has served as Vice President of the Student Government, is currently serving as President, is a member of the Pitt County Honor Society, has worked as Copy Editor of the yearbook and is a member of the Student Involvement Committee.

"The Senate Youth Program was created in recognition of the fact that the continued vitality of our Republic depends, in large part, on the intelligent understanding of our political processes and the functioning of our National Government by the Citizens of the United States," according to Robert E. Strother, assistant superintendent for human relations and student affairs.

Orioles Chase Third Straight Today

Kiernan Second Pirate In Row Named Southern Defensive Star

For the second straight week, a member of the East Carolina University defensive unit has been named as the Southern Conference Player of the Week. Last week, it was Robin Hogue. This week, it's Monty Kiernan.

Kiernan, a 6-2, 200-pound senior from Irvington-On-Hudson, N.Y., is a veteran at his linebacking position, having been playing the position for three years as a starter. And his savvy of the game has made him one of the premier defenders in the Southern Conference, and maybe even throughout the entire Southeast.

Coach Sonny Randle pointed out two weeks ago that most good linebackers made from 10 to 15 tackles a game. Kiernan at the time was averaging close to 20.

But against Richmond on Saturday night, despite playing in a losing cause, he was credited with 21 primary tackles, and four assisted ones, a total of 25, an almost amazing total.

"He certainly is as fine an all-around linebacker as I've seen in this part of the country," Randle said. "He never lacks for effort."

Randle pointed out that Kiernan is usually one of the things that opposing coaches talk about when they refer to the Pirate defense. "They sometimes don't know his name, but they always remark that Number 35 was all over the field. His performance has been remarkable."

To Randle, Kiernan is a certain bet for All-Conference honors. Along with making 98 tackles in five games, he's also got one interception to his credit, with a 27 yard return on it, the longest for the Bucs this year.

Kiernan and his fellow defenders have their work cut out for this week, however, as they take on the tough University of West Virginia.

Dallas Fumbles Way To Victory

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys got back on the Super Bowl track Monday night with a relief quarterback and the return of Duane Thomas, but you can bet somebody is at work taping a handle on the game ball.

It was fumble, fumble, who got the fumble in a sloppy nationally televised National Football League contest that saw 11 turnovers with Dallas finally prevailing 20-13 over the New York Giants.

"There were so many fumbles it got to where you started looking around on every play wondering who was going to come up with the next one," said Dallas linebacker Leroy Jordan.

The Cowboys fumbled seven times and the Giants recovered five. The Giants fumbled five times and the Cowboys collected all five. New York also intercepted one Cowboy pass.

New York fumbled on its own 34, 24, 39 and the Dallas nine and 28 yard lines. Dallas reciprocated by losing the ball on the New York five, 26, one and Dallas 31 and 48 yard lines.

"There were so many fumbles I lost track on who was getting hurt the most," said

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. Giants Coach Alex Webster said "We kind of goofed. We made too many errors. I believe it was hard-hitting more than anything."

Dallas is now 3-1 and trails the unbeaten Washington Redskins by a full game in the National Football Conference's Eastern Division. The Giants are 2-2.

Dallas took a 13-6 halftime lead on Roger Staubach's four-yard touchdown pass to tight end Billy Truax with 17 seconds left but Landry cleaned house in the dressing room.

He inserted Thomas, who called Landry "a plastic man ... no man at all" in a July press conference, into the full-back slot and benched Walt Garrison. He yanked Roger Staubach for Morton.

Morton hit Bullet Bob Hayes with a 48-yard touchdown pass in the third period to give Dallas a 20-6 lead and it withstood a late Giant surge which had Frank Tarkenton, whipping a 24-yard touchdown pass to Clifton McNeil to make the final margin respectable.

Mike Clark kicked field goals of 42 and 41 yards for Dallas and Pete Gogolak hit field goals of 35 and 20 yards for the Giants—all in the first half.

NBA Opening Season Tonight

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Pistol Pete Maravich, whose presence on the Atlanta squad caused many problems at the start of the 1970-71 National Basketball Association season, will not be in the Hawks' starting lineup tonight as the league begins its 26th campaign.

Maravich, the highest scorer in major college basketball history, is suffering from infectious mononucleosis. He missed the last week of the exhibition season and has been placed on the injured list, meaning he will miss at least five games.

Last season, Maravich's first in the NBA after a brilliant career at Louisiana State University, the Hawks, favorites to win the Central Division title, got off poorly, winning only 17 of their first 41 games.

Then, after they adjusted to Maravich—and vice versa—the Hawks won 17 of their final 26 games and made the playoffs for the seventh consecutive season under Coach Richie Guerin. Maravich, despite some erratic shooting, finished with an average of 23.2 points a game, second best on the Hawks.

Replacing him in the backcourt tonight against the Royals at Cincinnati will be Herm Gilliam, obtained along with forward Don May in an off-season trade with Buffalo for guard Walt Hazzard and forward Jerry Chambers.

Hazzard and 7-foot-1 Elmore Smith, Buffalo's top draft choice who led Kentucky State to the NAIA title last season, are expected to help the Braves improve on their 22-60 first-year record of last season.

Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — There is an ever-increasing feeling about the 1971 World Series that the Baltimore Orioles have traveled this road before—as recently as last October.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, their pitching staff worn and torn, returned home for today's third game of the best-of-7 Series hoping to stall what seems to be a determined Oriole march to a second straight world championship.

Steve Blass got the starting assignment today after the Orioles had battered six Pirate pitchers for 14 singles and an 11-3 victory Monday for a 2-0 lead.

Brooks Robinson and Frank Robinson each collected three hits in the romp that had the Pittsburgh bullpen relief cart operating like a shuttle bus.

The damage absorbed by the Pirate staff was reminiscent of the 1970 series, when Cincinnati's pitching fell apart and the Orioles won in five games.

But there is another parallel: The Birds took 14-game winning streaks into the World Series both last year and this—11 straight at the end of the regular season followed by three-game playoff sweeps.

The streak reached 17 games before the Orioles lost in the fourth game of the 1970 Series and was at 16 today. But the current string doesn't dominate Baltimore's thinking.

"We concentrate on what's next," said Frank Robinson. "Next for us is the third game of the Series. After that, we'll think of the fourth and a sweep."

Frank, who has had five hits in Baltimore's two victories, said that the Orioles approached this Series with a quiet confidence that stamps them as a mature ball club.

"We were sure about ourselves before the playoffs and before the Series," said Robinson. "But we're not overconfident. We're happy to have won two games but we know we need two more."

"We're a mature ball club."

We're professionals. When we get going like this, we're tough to stop."

The Pirates found that out Monday when a blitz of base hits—eight of them in the fourth and fifth innings when Baltimore sent 19 men to the plate and scored nine runs—put the game out of reach early.

It was a distinct contrast to Saturday's opener when the Orioles used home runs by Merv Rettenmund, Don Buford and Frank Robinson for a 5-3 victory.

"In the playoffs, my finger stuck on the long ball button; today I pushed the singles button and I couldn't get it off," kidded Manager Earl Weaver, often called a push-button pilot. Weaver revealed that the Orioles started the winning streak after a meeting following three tough losses in Detroit.

"I called the coaches together Sept. 18 and we went out for steamer and frog's legs," said Weaver.

"We decided," he continued, preparing to let the world in on the secret of the club's success, "to let (coach George) Staller take the line-up card up to the plate. We also decided to have faith in the team because they can play baseball."

The Orioles proved it Monday. They got a gritty pitching job by Jim Palmer, who worked eight innings and left 13 Pirates stranded on base. Richie Hebner's three-run homer in the eighth accounted for the only Pirate runs and that was much too little, much too late.

By the time Hebner connected, the Orioles had singled Pittsburgh into submission. In the second, hits by the Robinsons sandwiched around a walk to Ellie Hendricks made it 1-0.

In the fourth, Frank Robinson singled and a walk and hit batsman loaded the bases. Dave Johnson singled for two runs, finishing Pirate starter Bob Johnson.

Bruce Kison relieved and walked two batters, forcing in another run before Bob Moose came on to get the Pirates out of the inning.

Moose didn't make it through the fifth as the Birds bunched six more singles—two by Rettenmund, tying a single-inning Series record—two walks and an error for six more runs.

Brooks Robinson, who had three runs batted in, added two walks to his three singles and tied a Series record shared by Babe Ruth and Lou Brock by reaching base five times in a nine-inning game.

And to cap the performance, Brooks made a sensational stop to throw out Manny Sanguillen in the eighth inning. Again it was reminiscent of the 1970 Series when the Reds couldn't get anything past Robinson at third base.

It was enough to discourage the most optimistic manager and Pittsburgh's Danny Murtagh was understandably reserved.

"We're going back and regroup," he said. "We've been in these situations before."

The problem for the Pirates is that Baltimore has been in the same situation as it was in today. Like last year, for instance.

Ella Carmon Wins Contest

Ella Carmon, General Delivery, Winterville, is the winner of this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

She correctly picked the winners in 25 of the 32 games listed this past week.

Vernon Jewett of 109 Graham Street, Greenville, took second place by correctly naming 24 of the winners. One other person also had 24 correct but was further off the total of 85 points scored in the Virginia Tech-Tulsa game. Jewett had a guess of 80 points.

The Oklahoma State-Texas Christian game, which was played to a 14-14 tie, was counted wrong on all ballots, since a tie could have been picked.

This week's contest appears on the following pages.

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1925 by Dick Dunkel.

HOME SWEET Factory Built HOME

Second floor module drops into place at George Air Force Base, Calif.

Prototype housing factory at Apple Valley, Calif.

The modules are made up from bulk items such as gypsum, plywood, hardware.

As much finishing as possible is done in the factory on the assembly line.

THE days when you just took your ax, chopped your timber and built your own log cabin are definitely gone. A new housing project blooming out of the desert at George Air Force Base, Victorville, Calif., is a pioneer venture, however, although of a different kind. Eventually the project will consist of some 200 factory-built homes for enlisted personnel. And each home will have been constructed of modules mass-produced and finished in a factory 15 miles away, brought to the site by road, hoisted into place and put together—like a giant game of building toy houses from blocks.

The project demonstrates the practicality of providing economical and attractive housing using streamlined industrial techniques. It's a venture the Air Force is undertaking with a $5,400,000 contract to General Electric Company and the Del. E. Webb Corporation.

The method may seem to reverse traditional house-building procedure. But, as the pictures on this page show, it gets attractive results. And families already living in factory-built homes feel—very much at home.

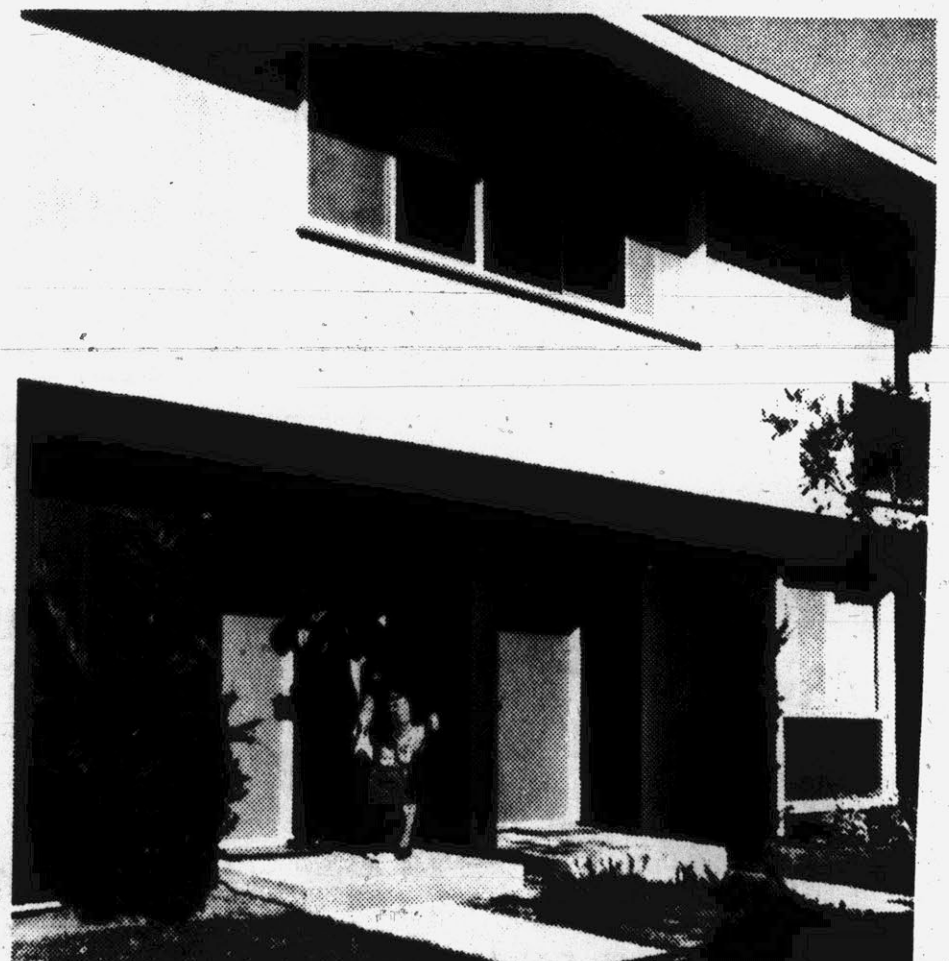

This Week's PICTURE SHOW—AP Newsfeatures.

Modules are quickly put together on the site . . .

...and an Air Force family is ready to move in!

The Worry Clinic Enuresis Can Be Remedied

Tony's nuisance habit makes him (and millions of others) miserable. Indeed many grown men are washed out of military service due to enuresis (bed-wetting). And we encounter it occasionally among college students! For it is a first cousin to the similar act of ignoring your alarm clock. Stop it by the device below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case R-585: Tony G., aged 12, is disconsolate.

"Dr. Crane," his worried mother began, "Tony is still an occasional victim of bedwetting."

"So he is terrified about going to Boy Scout Camp or of visiting his cousins."

"Oh, he may spend the day with them but when they urge him to stay overnight, Tony tries to concoct various excuses why he must get home."

"So he is becoming somewhat of a recluse."

"Dr. Crane, I have read that emotional problems of the parents will cause a child to wet."

The bidding:
South West North East

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

Altho North's abrupt leap to six spades may appear to be slightly aggressive, his partner must be charged with the prime responsibility for the deficit incurred on the deal. In retrospect, it might be observed, that South was guilty of color blindness for suffering a loss.

The opening bid of two no trump was taken from the book, inasmuch as South holds the required 22 points. North's three club response is the conventional response, requesting the opening bidder to show a four card major. When South obliged by bidding three spades, North might have better advised to merely invite a slam by jumping beyond game to five spades. His hand is worth 10 points in support. As it turned out, partner held appropriate values and a better perspective as declarer would have uncovered a successful result.

West opened the jack of clubs, the queen was played from dummy, East covered with the king and declarer won the trick with the ace. The queen of spades was led and when West followed with the seven, South played the deuce from dummy. East was in with the king and hastened to return a club to West's nine for the setting trick.

It appears that declarer was unlucky in finding both black kings unfavorably placed. Perhaps he was, but the fate of the contract did not actually hinge on the location of either of these cards. The slam, in fact depends merely on finding East with the king of diamonds.

When West follows suit with the seven of spades at trick two, it is suggested that South refuse the finesse. Suppose that he goes up with the ace from dummy and then puts thru the jack of diamonds. Whether or not East covers, declarer can cash three fast tricks in that suit. On the third round, the deuce of clubs is discarded from dummy. Declarer's small club can be ruffed, subsequently, in dummy and all he loses on the deal, is the king of spades.

It may be observed, in passing, that even had the spade finesse succeeded, South would still have had to fall back on another finesse in diamonds. If West turns up with the king of that suit, he may be expected to cash a high club to defeat the slam. South simply had his eyes on the wrong suit.

Boar Qualified As Meat Sire

Suggests Housing Owner 'Assembles'

By EDWARD DOOLEY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Pennsylvania official suggests that one way of meeting rising housing costs could be houses so simply designed that a family willing to exert "elbow grease" could put most of the house together itself.

William N. Wilcox, secretary of community affairs for Pennsylvania, told the House subcommittee on housing recently that "do-it-yourself" housing could be produced by American factories after only "a modest investment in research and development."

Housing construction costs for low and moderate income families have risen 78 per cent in the past five years while family income increased only 46 per cent, Wilcox said.

"I believe costs for both rural and urban housing, for those families able to follow simple assembly instructions written in basic English and willing to contribute a certain amount of elbow grease, could be substantially reduced."

Wilcox told the subcommittee, headed by Rep. William A. Barrett, D-Pa., that Pennsylvania was willing to become a demonstration state for the low-cost housing and other innovative housing and urban development proposals.

According to Wilcox, the plumbing, heating and electrical systems for do-it-yourself houses could be mass-produced and brought to each housing site.

A contractor would sink concrete pilings and bolt on prefabricated basement walls. The purchaser would complete the house, using lightweight construction materials.

Wilcox also endorsed proposals of Barrett's subcommittee developed as a substitute for the Nixon administration's proposed housing and urban development legislation.

U.S. Convoy Involved In 'Incident'

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A U.S. Army convoy forced a minibus full of disabled Vietnamese veterans off a road south of here today, injuring eight, authorities reported.

A crowd of Vietnamese held the whole six-truck convoy for more than eight hours and demanded reparations.

The veterans had been returning southward from the funeral here of Nguyen Ngoc Tan, leader of an antigovernment faction of disabled veterans who was killed by a gunman during demonstrations Sunday.

Authorities said the convoy, part of the Americal Division's 23rd Supply and Support Battalion, was traveling northward on Highway 1 seven miles south of Da Nang when the three-wheeled minibus was forced off the road.

Other vehicles with veterans returning from the funeral were in the area and reportedly took over the trucks, releasing the 14 Americans in the convoy.

Americal division helicopters lifted out the injured for medical treatment.

A crowd of about 100 veterans and civilians surrounded the vehicles with concertina wire and demanded that U.S. authorities pay nearly $10,000 in damages.

Later, negotiators including U.S. military officers, military police and the local province chief were reported to have worked the sum down to about $700. In Saigon, a U.S. Command spokesman said the money paid was an expression of sorrow and not compensation. He said any payment of claims from the incident would take some time and would be made after investigation and processing.

Mid-East chairman William H. Page said that the notice of designation, allowing for county-wide benefits, should aid both Beaufort and Martin toward economic recovery. He added that the designation as redevelopment areas serves to provide a ten per cent bonus to any eligible EDA project grant.

Worth Chesson, acting Mid-East director, said that areas and towns of the two counties which have previously been ineligible for EDA benefits should begin to inventory their assistance needs and direct inquiries to the Commission.

A Lot Of Questions To Realities Of Phase 2

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — What

are windfall profits? How long is indefinite? Can an aggressive labor movement now participate in holding down wages? How long will business agree to limits on profits?

These are some of the questions before the American people and their government. They hardly could be more fundamental, and yet they are merely a sampling. A tough reality lies ahead.

Forthcoming days are going to require an examination of the charters and constitutions and theories under which many of our institutions operate. Criteria will be established rather than found in historical references.

A windfall profit, for example, has always been dreamed about if not actively sought by industry, and when it came it has always been considered a perfectly acceptable gift from above, although sometimes attributed to skill.

Opinions may be more definite on the matter of indefiniteness. Government control of the economy is to be continued for an indefinite period, it is understood, and it is agreed that the period will be extensive rather than brief.

It is difficult, in fact, to imagine that the government will ever withdraw completely the powers that it is assuming in the marketplace. Previous involvements persist, although in changing form.

The introduction of Social Security, for example, was accompanied by heated opposition, but it is here to stay. Public health insurance was battled as vigorously, but it is almost assured of acceptance in some form. High performance standards for business have always been resisted, but once accepted their use becomes almost routine.

The decisions to be made by labor will require an examination of the basic precepts of the movement, which for decades has assumed that it must fight to achieve its fair share of the rewards of production.

This viewpoint often permitted labor to fix its eye on a single goal of higher wages and benefits, sometimes at the price of weakening an industry or disrupting public affairs.

Now it is being asked to consider a multiplicity of goals that include the control of inflation and the rectifying of the balance of payments deficit.

The issue was brought to the court by the Justice Department and the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund in cases involving schools in Scotland Neck and Halifax County, N.C., and Emporia, Va.

The justices will hold a hearing this winter with a decision expected by June.

Scotland Neck, with a population of about 3,000, is part of the predominantly black Halifax County school system. Within the town itself about 57 per cent of the public school children are white.

In 1969, the North Carolina legislature enacted a local law that gave Scotland Neck its own school district. The county and city also agreed to a transfer plan allowing students outside Scotland Neck to transfer into the system for a fee. As a result, Scotland Neck's system would be 74 per cent white and the Halifax County system 82 per cent black.

Ruling on a Justice Department suit, U.S. District Court Judge John D. Larkins Jr. of Raleigh blocked the separation of Scotland Neck schools in August 1969. He said the effect would have been to create a refuge for white students and to promote segregated schools in Halifax County.

The state animal of Colorado is the Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep.

matters that aren't easily related to wages.

While labor leaders pride themselves on their history of cooperation when the common good was endangered, there is some question of whether they will enthusiastically accept seats on the new wage board.

The problem appears to be that while labor is as intent on helping as any other group, it is confronted by a basic question concerning its freedom. Will the Cost of Living Council be able to veto its efforts? That's the question.

Industry is faced with essentially the same decision. How much of its autonomy is it willing to relinquish? How much freedom of decision must it give up to government in matters of pricing?

The questions are difficult. And when they are answered, the impact of each one will be equivalent to a Supreme Court decision.

General Statutes of North Carolina, notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Greenville, North Carolina will hold a public hearing in the Council Room of the Municipal Building, in the City of Greenville, North Carolina, on Thursday, October 28, 1971, at 8:00 P.M. to consider the annexation of the following described territory to the City:

Police Chief Wounded In Main Street Ambush

ST. CHARLES, Va. (AP) — Curt Hendricks, 58, police chief of this Southwest Virginia community the last seven years, has been wounded critically by a gunman who shot him from ambush as he crossed the town's main street.

Lee County Sheriff Creed Chadwell and Hendricks, scheduled to go on trial later this month on a murder charge, was struck in the neck by one of five shots fired from a nearby wooded area Monday morning.

Hendricks was reported in critical condition at a hospital in Kingsport, Tenn., after initial treatment in Pennington Gap. The bullet was reported to have ranged down his left side and to have left him paralyzed in his left arm.

It was the second time Hendricks had been shot at, Chadwell said. An assailant fired several shots from almost the same spot about a week ago but missed, the sheriff reported. Several school children were walking down the street Monday at the time of the shooting but escaped injury as the bullets struck a nearby building. Chadwell said the shots came from "what appeared to be a 22-caliber rifle."

"It happened right in town," said the sheriff. He said Hendricks had been talking to a man sitting in a parked truck and was crossing the street when the volley of shots was fired.

"He was hit when he turned to see where they were coming from," said Chadwell, who added he didn't think Hendricks fired back.

The sheriff reported a "good number" of shells found at the shooting scene but said some probably were used in the earlier incident.

Hendricks had been scheduled to go on trial in Lee County Circuit Court on a charge of murder in the shooting death of Arvil Lee Webb.

At the time, Hendricks said he had arrested a cousin of Webb's and Webb was trying to take the prisoner from him when he was killed.

Conley High To Participate In Poetry Program

The D. H. Conley High School has been chosen as a participant school in the upcoming "Poetry in the Schools" project. Only 20 school systems in the state have such a representative.

Sponsored by the Cultural Arts Division of North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, the project is designed to stimulate interest in the fields of poetry and literature.

D. H. Conley will have as its guest for one week a selected poet who will read his own works and that of others in the classroom. He will also be available for teacher conferences and inservice training and will encourage students to write their own poetry.

Among the poets selected for the project are: Julia Fields, Scotland Neck; Ronald Bayes, Laurinburg; Ned O'Gorman, New York and Tom Walters, Raleigh.

Advisory Boards Are Under Fire

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It's virtual White House routine: Mr. Brown or Mrs. Smith is appointed by the President to serve on such and such an advisory council.

But Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., would like to change all that, or at least alter the ground rules under which the councils operate.

At present, Metcalf says, they are nothing more than special interest groups with direct access to the White House.

For example, he says, the National Industrial Pollution Control Board, created last year to advise the government on environmental programs affecting industry, "consists of 63 top executives of major polluting companies. . . . There is no comparable organization through which nonindustry persons who are concerned with the environment have entry to the presidential family."

He said the council refused to let representatives of 10 conservation groups attend its last meeting and met at the State Department, where security regulations are tight and the public is denied routine entry.

The Civil Aeronautics Board Advisory Committee on Finance held its first meeting last year at New York's Chase Manhattan Bank, creditor for five carriers, Metcalf said.

"There was no transcript of the meeting except a terse summary that the committee would make recommendations to the CAB on the procedural and philosophical conduct of the board's business."

There are an estimated 2,000 such advisory boards recommending everything from a new vase for the Smithsonian Institution to the best approach to the nation's energy crisis.

The cost to the taxpayer has been estimated at some $75 million a year, mostly for transportation expenses and the salary of a federal employee acting as liaison with the White House.

Metcalf has introduced legislation to require public representation on the advisory boards, open meetings, and a verbatim transcript of what was said, to be made available to the public.

Lift Gun Ban In Wilmington

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A proclamation forbidding the carrying of firearms was lifted at Wilmington Monday as tensions eased in the racially tense community.

Police chief H. E. Williamson said the firearms ban, which was imposed Tuesday, was lifted after the third successive night of calm in the community.

'GarbageAnalyst' On The Prowl

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — "Let's go on a garbage hunt tonight—at David Rockefeller's. Maybe we'll find some used money," suggested Alan J. Webberman, 26-year-old self-styled garbage analyst.

"You can tell a lot about a

$250,000 To Pay For New Jobs

RALEIGH (AP) — Approval of $250,000 in Emergency Employment Act funds to finance 33 new jobs in the State Department of Correction was announced Monday.

"These jobs are over and above what the state has authorized," said J. D. Foust, state-federal relations specialist in the Department of Administration.

"The federal aid will provide startup money for the first year, and the jobs will be funded by the state in the second year of the biennium."

The new jobs will include 11 correctional program assistants, 14 stenographers, 3 program supervisors, 3 clerks, 2 accounting clerks, a correctional program director, a typist, and an administrative assistant. Eleven of the jobs must go to Vietnam war veterans.

Recruit probably will be concentrated in Winston-Salem, Raleigh, Durham and Robeson and Wayne counties, officials said.

person from their garbage—their politics, their standard of living," says Webberman. A Yipie with a Groucho Marx sense of humor, he is best known for his study and criticism of poet-singer Bob Dylan.

Webberman prepares for the garbage raid with the dignity of a surgeon, as he paces around his immaculate Bowery apartment. He puts on a clean white shirt. He pulls his halo of red curls back into the semblance of a Paul Revere pony tail and adjusts his gold-rimmed glasses. He folds a fresh plastic garbage bag and pockets a scribbled address and $50 in cash for emergencies.

Uptown, the street is dark and deserted. It is 1 a.m. Webberman calmly approaches the home of David Rockefeller, president of the Chase Manhattan Bank and brother of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. No lights are on. He looks around for a policeman.

"Keep watch," he says, slipping past the iron fence and lifting the lid of the garbage bin. He extracts a small brown paper bag, spotted with grease, and holds it up, grinning.

Once away from the scene, he paws through the remains, spread on the plastic sheet.

But the Rockefeller take is disappointing—a few gnawed chicken bones and a half-finished jar of pickled beets.

"Garbage hunting is an unobtrusive method of sociological research. People have done worse things for science," he says.

Webberman does it for curiosity—and money. He says he received $900 for a recent magazine story about garbage.

His interest in garbage sprung from his obsession with Bob Dylan. Calling himself a Dylanologist, he spent several years organizing a two-volume companion book to Dylan's poetry and collecting rare Dylan tapes.

"Still hungry for more scraps of information, Webberman strolled past the Dylan house last fall.

"I reached in the garbage can and pulled out a half-finished letter to Johnny Cash. I said, 'This is no garbage can, it's a gold mine!'"

"After two weeks, Dylan got wise. He began to censor his garbage."

Webberman has worked his way into the garbage pails—if not always the hearts—of boxer Muhammad Ali, playwright Neil Simon and Yipie leader Abbie Hoffman.

Now, Webberman is gunning for powerful, establishment types.

He plans a book called "You Are What You Throw Away," describing garbage contents belonging to famous people.

Among those on the 10 most wanted garbage list are Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former jockey Eddie Arcaro—"to see if he has small garbage"—, feminist Kate Millett and Tricia Nixon Cox, daughter of the President.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins last week attended a White House briefing on the problems of drug abuse, grantsmanship and the administration's Phase II program for the economy.

Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, represented North Carolina at the briefing as chairman of the N.C. Association of State-Supported Colleges and Universities. Following the briefing he conferred with President Nixon.

"I found the President very cordial and extremely interested in the problems facing higher education ranging from drugs, adequate financing and the national economy," Jenkins said.

The briefings were conducted by White House experts. Many agencies receive and process applications for federal assistance in the form of grants for various programs. "We were told that preparation of requests for grants is of utmost importance, especially in the matter of furnishing information and plans for developing the type of program a particular agency wants," Jenkins said.

In the matter of drug abuse, he said, federal officials and scientists "want to know why."

The question is why use of drugs has become so widespread. "They want to know why drugs?"

Emperor Hirohito On Rhine Riverboat

BONN, Germany (AP) — Emperor Hirohito of Japan relaxed on a Rhine riverboat today, the 17th and final full day of his journey through Europe.

The emperor and Empress Nagako boarded the sleek white yacht Loreley at Bingen, 62 miles south of Bonn, for the sight-seeing cruise down the misty waterway.

Two West German patrol boats with heavy machine guns escorted the Loreley through the thick barge traffic of the Rhine. Hirohito seemed rested and more relaxed than during his arrival in West Germany Monday.

Helmut Kohl, minister-president of the state of Rhineland-Palatinate, accompanied the emperor and empress.

Police in Cologne Monday detained a young woman accused of helping daub on the facade of the new Japanese Cultural Institute a wreath-and-swastika design with the inscription "Japan-West Germany-USA — war in Asia."

Some boos were heard in the mostly friendly crowd that watched the emperor and empress visit the Bonn market square Monday. Leftist leaflets circulated in the crowd denounced the emperor as "a close ally and accomplice of Adolf Hitler."

The emperor touched lightly on the defeat of the Tokyo-Berlin axis in World War II Monday night. He said in a dinner toast that Japan and Germany have shared a common fate, not only in industrial modernization but also "in the bitter experiences that we jointly had to suffer during and after the last war."
