

Underground Lines Face Cost Barrier

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Cost seems to be the main barrier to putting utilities lines along Tenth Street underground as new street construction proceeds there.

Assistant Superintendent Malcolm Green told utilities commissioners Tuesday night that the cost of going underground as opposed to overhead lines is five to ten times more.

He said that it was determined on the Tenth Street project that the cost of moving the poles back and maintaining overhead lines is an estimated $17,000. To put the lines underground for the entire length of the project the cost was estimated at $750,000. Green said this figure amounts to 110 per cent of the electrical improvement budget for the entire year.

However, Green pointed out that cost of underground lines for residential areas is coming down. Six years ago residential underground lines cost about four times as much as overhead. Now the cost is about twice as much.

On Tenth Street, Green told the commissioners, the Utilities is installing underground ducts at intersections, recognizing that the lines will have to go underground at some future time. In most cases, services lines crossing the new multi-lane street will go down a pole, beneath the street and then come up on the other side to serve the customer.

A City Council committee was appointed last week to discuss the matter of underground lines with the Utilities Commission. Serving on the committee are Mrs. Mildred McGrath, Bill Dansey and John Taylor.

None were present at the Tuesday night utilities meeting.

Utilities Director Charles Horne pointed out that the Tenth Street improvement project is 2.5 miles long. "We didn't see that it was practical to go into a better than half million dollar project," he said. "The alternative would be to draw in all our funds and I doubt if that would be enough to do it all."

"It all boils down to money," he emphasized. A city ordinance, adopted some years ago, provided for underground utilities lines where new construction was involved. However, provision was made for exceptions to be made by the city.

Green told the commission that Greenville is far ahead of other North Carolina cities in underground construction. He said there are 2,500 residential lots now served by underground lines.

The entire downtown area and the Pitt Plaza area are underground and the lines in the Newtown area will be underground.

Commissioner Ray Minges reported on the project to furnish sanitary sewer service to Sunnyside Eggs. He recommended that the service be furnished by Winterville which has an application pending for EDA assistance with the project.

Commissioner Howard Gradis reported on trips to study data processing operations at Kinston, Wilson and Washington.

Contracts were awarded to Layne Atlantic Company for drilling the utilities' sixth water well. The bid was $21,396. Other bids were Hartsfield Water Co., $24,835; Magette Well and Pump Co., $36,861.

Horne was authorized to continue negotiations for a loan from REA at 2 percent interest over 35 years maximum for improvements to rural lines.

Street and end at Shore Drive on First Street.

Citizens of Greenville are invited to line the route and see the parade. Kick-off for the homecoming game is at 7:30 p.m. at Ficklen Stadium. The motto for this year is "It's all a matter of pride."

Mike Van Dyke, president of Rose High's Student Government Association, urges "every citizen in Greenville to attend the game." Tickets will be sold at the stadium ticket office before the game.

Following the game, a dance will be held for all Rose High students and their invited guests.

DEAN ACHESON

Dean Acheson Dies; Designer Of U.S. Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson died Tuesday night, 18 years after leaving the post he used to establish policies that still serve as the foundation for much of America's diplomatic strategy.

Acheson, 78, was found slumped over his desk about 6 p.m. at the Sandy Spring, Md., farm he used as a refuge from the pressures of a public career encompassing some of the nation's most monumental crises.

The family doctor said the death, apparently resulted from a heart attack.

Although he served as an important U.S. negotiator in the monetary reforms conference of the early 1930s, it was as secretary of state during the last four years of the Harry S. Truman administration that Acheson made his mark on American destiny.

During the period from 1949 to 1953, Acheson was the major factor in formulating the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, signing the peace treaty with Japan, outlining the political strategy of the Korean war, determining U.S. attitudes toward the Communist government of China and resisting the domestic onslaught of the so-called McCarthy era.

While attitudes toward China and Moscow are now relaxing, many of these policies remain in effect today under the administration of a Republican President who was one of Acheson's major critics during the Truman years—Richard Nixon.

And it was Nixon who led the tributes to Acheson after his death.

"He was a man not only of great achievement," the President said in a statement, "but also of rare intellect, of rigorous conscience and of profound devotion to his country."

Former President Truman, described by Acheson as one of the greatest Americans, did not have an immediate comment but Mrs. Truman said "I know he'll be very disturbed."

It was another part of President Nixon's statement that the importance of Acheson to today's world was underlined.

"Of those who stand for a time in places of power many are quickly forgotten," Nixon said. "It is a measure of Dean Acheson's stature as man and statesman that almost 20 years after his service as secretary of state he continued to be recognized as one of the towering figures of his time."

In a time when presidents make most of their own foreign policy, it is instructive to look back on the Acheson years when President Truman gave his secretary of state a near free hand in diplomatic affairs.

It was with this freedom that Acheson, a Connecticut-born aristocrat with a sharp tongue and haughty manner, established the basic U.S. Cold War strategy.

Starting with the premise that the Soviet Union was a major threat to world security, Acheson implemented a series of alliances designed to surround Russia with enough military and economic might to deter any thought of aggression.

At the same time, Acheson pushed hard for the Marshall Plan aimed at rebuilding war-torn Western Europe.

He also promoted a flexible foreign policy that could encompass the maverick Communist Yugoslavian government as well as the start of West German self-government and rearmament.

At the same time, Acheson had to deal with the takeover of China by the Mao Tse-tung-led Communist regime. Although he was doubtful of the viability of the rival Nationalists, Acheson nonetheless promoted a policy of not accepting the Mao government.

Acheson policies regarding the Soviet Union, China and international Communism generally came under attack during his years as secretary of state and the criticism continued to his death, but from opposing sides of political ideology.

Nixon Moscow Trip Seen Logical Result

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's announcement that he will attend a summit conference in Moscow next May should have come as no surprise, say U.S. officials and foreign diplomats.

"It is a logical extension of the growing improvement in American-Russian dealings since Nixon took office," one diplomat said. "The only surprise is that so few people were talking about the possibility."

One of those who did talk in advance about such a trip was Soviet Communist party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev, who U.S. sources say had been discussing a Nixon visit with several people for several weeks.

But whether it should have been a surprise, the fact is that

Nixon did catch many people off balance when he appeared unexpectedly at the routine Tuesday morning news briefing and said:

"The leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union in their exchanges during the past year, have agreed that a meeting between them would be desirable once sufficient progress had been made in negotiations at lower levels."

"In light of the recent advances in bilateral and multilateral negotiations involving the two countries, it has been agreed that such a meeting will take place in Moscow in the latter part of May 1972."

Following reading of that announcement, released at the same time in Moscow, the President told questioning newsmen he had agreed to the

Moscow summit because of "a possibility of making significant progress."

Although he declined to detail what areas will be discussed with the Soviet leaders, Nixon indicated the talks will cover arms control, the Mideast, a European security conference and a balanced, mutual troop cut in Central Europe.

Nixon was specific in outlining the areas of progress he said led to the summit talk agreement.

"We have had a treaty with regard to the seabeds. We have had one with regard to biological weapons. We have had an agreement coming out of the SALT talks (strategic arms limitation talks) with regard to the hotline and accidental war and, of course, most important of all—and I think this is the item that, for both us and for them, led us to conclude that now was the time for a summit meeting—we have had an agreement on Berlin."

What made no difference in settling on a Moscow summit in May, the President declared emphatically, was his plan to visit mainland China before that month.

"The two," he said, "are independent trips. We are going to Peking for the purpose of discussing matters of bilateral concern there. And I will be going to the Soviet Union for the purpose of discussing matters that involve the United States and the Soviet Union ..."

"Any speculation to the effect that one has been planned for the purpose of affecting the other would be entirely inaccurate."

President Seeks Recruit Members Of Key Boards

WASHINGTON (AP) — After winning organized labor's cooperation in his post-freeze economic controls, President Nixon turned today to lining up members for two key boards that will vote on future wage-price increases.

With the 90-day wage-price freeze due to expire Nov. 13, time is becoming crucial on the appointments. The boards must be operating with wage and price guidelines developed by that time.

The White House said membership on the 15-member Pay Board and the 7-member Price Commission will be announced soon. Some potential members contacted "are not particularly interested," said one official.

As the search for members went on, the administration readied legislation that may spell out details of Nixon's Phase 2 program.

Not only would the bill provide standby authority to control interest and dividends, one official said, but it would create a panel of judges to hear wage-price cases and would empower the Pay Board and the Price Commission to issue subpoenas.

The threat of a labor boycott of post-freeze controls collapsed Tuesday when the nation's three most powerful union leaders agreed to help Nixon's Pay Board try to control inflation.

But the labor leaders, AFL-CIO President George Meany, Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons and United Auto Workers' President Leonard Woodcock, acted only after Nixon gave assurances the tripartite board's decisions would not be subject to a veto by the Cost of Living Council.

The President did so in a memorandum sent to the labor leaders personally initiated with his "OK."

"We will serve on the Pay Board," said the union leaders, who represent some 17 million workers. Nixon responded by saying "the country won" by the decision.

But the agreement between labor leaders and the administration is still fuzzy. It still is not clear how the post-freeze mechanisms will operate.

Labor had withheld its support of Phase 2 because the administration held out the possibility the Cost of Living Council could exercise veto power over general wage criteria developed by the Pay Board.

The memorandum initiated by Nixon carried this key paragraph:

"The COLC will not approve, disapprove or serve as an appeal level for case decisions made by the Pay Board and the Price Commission and it will not approve, revise, veto or revoke specific standards or criteria developed by the Pay Board and Price Commission."

KILLED BY TRAIN
SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Louis Eugene Cline, 20, of Salisbury, was killed Tuesday when his car was hit by a freight train traveling at about 60 miles per hour.

Closed Hearing

A sub-committee of the N. C. Advisory Committee to the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights will hold a closed hearing here tomorrow to probe reports of alleged infringements of civil rights.

The session, which will hear public officials and protestors, is scheduled from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. at the Administration Building at East Carolina University.

The Rev. W. W. Finlator of Raleigh is chairman of the N. C. Advisory Committee.

Tobacco Prices Continue High

The Greenville Tobacco Market Tuesday averaged $79.06 per hundred pounds when 1,747,823 pounds of leaf went for $1,381,834.

The highest average in the Eastern Belt was recorded at Goldsboro when 417,055 pounds of tobacco was sold for $338,189, giving an average of $81.09 per hundred pounds.

The Wilson market Tuesday averaged $80.48 per hundred pounds while the Kinston and Rocky Mount markets averaged $79.16 and $79.23 per hundred pounds, respectively.

An average of $79.75 was received on the Farmville market yesterday. That market sold 743,044 pounds of tobacco for $592,556.

A tabulation of sales on the individual markets in the Eastern Belt as reported by the Federal-State Market News Service, includes:

Judge Orders Hearing Delay In Bomb Cases

A preliminary hearing for ten Negroes charged in connection with a series of bombings in the Ayden area in August and September was continued in District Court here yesterday.

Judge J. W. H. Roberts ordered the hearing postponed until October 26, after defense attorneys requested a transcript of the proceedings be furnished and requested a list of possible states witnesses, written statements and any favorable evidence in possession of the state.

Attorneys representing the defendants yesterday included Charles Becton of Charlotte, Frank Ballance of Warrington, and Jerry Paul of Greenville.

Are You Raising A Super-Child?

Today's Kids Are Bigger, Stronger, Healthier

(Editor's Note: Never before have children started life with so many aids and inducements to long and healthy lives. They are fed vitamin-enriched food, they clamber about in playgrounds designed to stretch and tone every muscle, their brains are stimulated from the time they get up to the time they sleep by TV, teachers, and eager parents. Following is the first of three articles on the new and improved breed.)

By JUDITH REGAN
LONDON (WNS) — Will your child grow up to be bigger, stronger, and healthier than you can ever hope to be?

If present trends continue, it would seem highly likely that by the time a boy, born today, reaches the age of 25, he will be about ten pounds heavier — but not fatter — than his father was at that age.

He will also be stronger, an inch taller, eventually live about two years longer, and be less susceptible to serious illness.

A girl born today will grow to be at least two inches taller than her 1920 counterpart. She will be healthier, stronger, but probably slightly less plump. She will cry far less — and you'll hardly ever see her blush!

In other words, your children are busily evolving into what could eventually become a race of near super-humans, utilizing far more of the physical potential that we have all had since primeval days but not bothered to develop.

Narrowing Gap

By the end of the century the pace of life will be nearly 100 per cent faster than it was in 1900. So your children will need to be tough to survive.

Apparently it's the boys you need to worry about! Girls, on the other hand, are already proving that they are likely to be much more able to cope with the worry, stress and strain that space-age living will impose.

When today's girl toddler is in her physical prime — in the 1990s — she will, if the latest statistical predictions are correct, be up to five per cent stronger than her mother was.

She will also be three times less vulnerable to high blood pressure than her husband, and outlive him by five to six years.

With every successive generation the physical gap between the sexes is narrowing, and by the time today's small children are adult, it may in some cases have actually ceased to exist.

Catching Up

Dr. Edmund Dyer, a leading specialist in social medicine who has made a five-year study of physical development, observes that 70 years ago when women first took part in competitive athletics, their race times were far slower than those of men.

"Yet today the world's best male athletes are little more than ten per cent faster than the top female runners — and many women are running far faster than the leading male athletes of 60 or 70 years ago."

"In another 30 or 40 years, if the present development continues, women may be surpassing men in some sports."

What is turning our youngsters into "super-children"?

A leading nutrition expert, Dr. George Parkin, explained it recently as: "a 20-year preoccupation with health, diet and social medicine which is only just beginning to show any spectacular effects."

More Freedom

The trend for bigger, healthier babies which turn into bigger healthier children, will go on, he thinks, until we again suffer some major war or similar catastrophe.

Other authorities believe that today's children, and girls particularly, are flourishing both physically and mentally as a result of greater freedom.

Once the stay-at-home sex, girls now grow up participating in sports and outdoor activities which once were considered highly unfeminine.

It certainly seems to be doing them the world of good. Thirty years ago it was estimated that the weight of the average girl of ten contained 54 per cent muscle and bone. The rest was fat and other bulk.

But in a recent series of tests revealed that the weight of today's ten-year-old girls was an average of 59 per cent muscle and bone, and in some cases as much as 65 per cent.

Overfed

The trouble is that in many industrialized countries, children are becoming almost too well-fed. Recently, for instance, Britain's Royal Society of Health was told that too many children were too fat for their own good.

Indeed many babies are now so fat through overeating that they need to start slimming when only a few months old.

A survey involving 178 children showed that nearly one in ten of those who gained weight rapidly in the crib were later found to be obese by the time they had reached six or eight.

But these, happily, are exceptions. Today, the average child, certainly between the ages of three and eight, has never been so active.

A study commissioned by Britain's Child Research Trust involving over 500 youngsters showed that their energy put adults to shame.

On The Move

One eight-year-old whose activities were charted meticulously during a week of his holidays was running up to three miles during a day that involved about nine hours of activity, and about one hour of rest — when reading, eating, or watching television.

In fact, it was estimated that if the average industrial worker put into his day the amount of energy a youngster put into his, output would rise by well over 100 per cent!

For instance, it has been calculated that today's toddler scrambling up a "jungle gym" is sapping about 250 calories of energy — that's equal to the effort a man puts into an hour's bricklaying or an hour's heavy farmwork.

And a woodman hacking down an oak uses less energy (400 calories an hour) than a four-year-old spends roistering with his friends in the playground.

Never have parents had to cope with a generation of such apparently tireless children.

One family doctor remarks that never in 30 years practice has he known parents to find their offspring such a handful: "I am regularly supplying 'pep-pills' to mothers who are run off their feet, and tranquilizers to others who have reached screaming-pitch."

"The emerge of today's children says a lot for their physique, metabolism — and the food they eat."

Indeed everything about today's child seems a little larger than life — even the amount of noise he makes.

For instance, a six-month-old baby recently tested with a Noise Abatement Society measuring device, was found to have a cry exceeding 90 decibels.

That's louder than a drill sergeant on parade and only slightly quieter than an express train going through a tunnel.

American Flag Presented To School By Club

A large American Flag was presented to Sadie Sauter School Monday afternoon by the Pilot Club of Greenville, N.C. Inc. Students assembled in the cafeteria for the presentation by Mrs. Robert Starling, president of the club. She spoke briefly on the privileges and responsibilities of being an American.

A framed picture entitled, "American Way of Life" which lists many of the rights and freedoms of the American people was also given to the school.

The Pilot Club is a classified service club for business and professional women. Service and friendship is their motto. This was one of their public service projects planned for each year.

Other pilot club members present at the Sadie Sauter ceremony were Mrs. P. L. Fields and Mrs. John McCarthy.

Thanks—But She Won't Run For President's Office

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I urge you to run for the office of President of the United States.

You have everything a good President needs. Intelligence, common sense, courage, and a real understanding of people's problems. Furthermore, you're uncorrupted and fair minded.

I feel certain that with Abigail Van Buren as our President, we would have peace and friendly relations with our foreign neighbors.

If you would become a candidate, I can promise you the support of millions. And campaign funds would be the least of your worries. How about it?

"ABBY FOR PRESIDENT"

DEAR "ABBY FOR": Thanks, but no thanks. Not that I'm reluctant to serve my country. But I'm not so sure how my husband would feel about being "First Lady."

DEAR ABBY: I am 46 years old. I was a widow for 5 years before I married this man who had been divorced for two years. This man is a perfect husband in every way — except one.

He has two children by his first wife, 6 and 11, and they live with their mother, but they spend weekends with us very often and I love having them. Now my problem:

My husband refuses to tell his wife and children that he is married to me. This hurts me deeply. They think I am just the lady he lives with. This makes me feel so cheap.

When his children come to spend weekends with us they like it so much they hate to go home.

Abby, why does my husband want to keep our marriage a secret from his children? I just can't look those kids in the face anymore.

MARRIED BUT HIDDEN

DEAR MARRIED: Something doesn't add up here. Tell your husband to quit playing games—that you are not going to permit him to make a less than honest woman of you. Insist that he introduce you as his wife. And make it retroactive!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have arranged to adopt a child which will be born in three months. The natural mother is young and unwed and she lives in another city. I have never met her and I do not ever want to meet her. She is distantly related to my husband, but he's never met her either. This will be a private adoption—not thru an agency.

My husband and I were invited to a family wedding in the city where this unwed mother-to-be lives, and we were told that she will be at the wedding. Abby, I can't explain why, but I simply do not want to ever meet or know this girl. After declining the invitation [I gave no reason], I received a telephone call from my husband's cousin, begging us to come.

My husband says he'll do whatever I wish, but he can't understand my reasoning. Can you? I'll do whatever you say.

BETTER STRANGERS

DEAR BETTER: I can understand your reasoning. Feeling as you do, stay home.

Town Turns To Romance Business

VELLBERG, West Germany, (WNS) — Women in this small medieval town in Wurttemberg decided that the world needs more romance. As a result, they are turning Vellberg into a royal honeymoon capital. For visitors, the civil wedding now takes place in the castle, and the church wedding in the castle chapel. The wedding banquet is held in the castle dining room, and the honeymoon suite is in the old watchtower, complete with immense four-poster bed. "We even provide two double rooms for friends of the bride and groom," added honeymoon specialist Marlene Ruetten.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler

The reason a woman chooses a cleaning product is unique to that particular woman. Just as women have different needs and preferences in clothing, furniture, houses, etc., so will women have different preferences in cleaning products. Generally, the job to be done, economy, convenience, and the end result will be the factors that the homemaker uses as the basis for her choice.

When considering the cost of a cleaning product one should think about its true value. Cost should be figured on a performance basis and not merely on a cost-per-ounce basis. One brand may cost more per ounce than another, but it may have two or three times more cleaning power and therefore, less would be needed. The more expensive product will actually cost less per use.

As an example, let's consider a specific cleaning task (as washing a wall). If a bottle of cleaning product cost 39 cents, but can be used 6 times, it would cost 6.5 cents per use.

Another bottle may cost 48 cents, but it can be used 12 times, it costs only 4 cents per use. Therefore, as with other things, you must learn to judge a cleaning product on its quality and not on product price alone.

Even the very best product can't do its work without help from you. These are some important elements of cleaning that you control. For example, the label on a cleaning product will tell you how much product to use, where it may or may not be used, and how to use it. If you read it, the label will guide you toward the best cleaning results with the least effort — and may help you avoid a costly mess.

Enough product must be used to do the job at hand. If too little is used, the surface will not be thoroughly cleaned and your efforts and energy will be partially wasted. Read the label to learn how much to use.

Hot water does help remove dirt and grime. However, since the cleaning solution cools rather rapidly, be kind to your hands and use warm water — not too hot, never cold. Gloves are a must!

The cleaning solution must be on the surface long enough to act on the soil, but not long enough to harm the surface being cleaned. When using a good cleaning product, a short-time for mopping, wiping, or scrubbing is usually adequate.

It would be nice if no work were involved in cleaning but, unfortunately, you have to use some elbow grease to loosen surface soil.

Dirty water simply cannot do a good cleaning job. At best, the dirty water will simply dissolve and spread around the dirt which is on the surface you are attempting to clean. Be sure to change cleaning solution when the water becomes moderately dirty. Your cleaning solution will last longer if you pre-rinse your sponge, brush or mop in a container of clear water each time before putting it in the cleaning solution. Depending on the cleaner used, rinsing is often very necessary. This particularly true when using full strength liquid cleaners. Cleansers must also be thoroughly rinsed to remove the abrasives.

If you have a special cleaning problem, call our office (758-1197). We'll be glad to try and help you.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

AP Food Editor SUPPER FOR FOUR PHYLLIS' VEAL PATTIES WITH GREEN PEAS

A delicious dish that's suitable for diet-watchers.

- 1 egg
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 teaspoons instant onion
- 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs, packed

- 1 pound ground veal
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 chicken bouillon cube dissolved in 1/2 cup boiling water
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen green peas, cooked and drained.

In a medium mixing bowl beat egg slightly with 1/4 cup water; add salt, pepper, onion and crumbs and mix well; add veal and mix thoroughly. Shape into 12 small meat patties—mixture will be soft. Roll patties in flour. In a 10-inch skillet heat oil; add patties and cook over moderate heat until golden brown on both sides. Add bouillon and cover; simmer until veal is cooked through and most of the bouillon has evaporated. Remove patties to hot serving platter; keep warm. Add sherry to skillet and stir over low heat with wooden spoon to get up drippings. Add peas and reheat; pour over patties. Makes 4 servings.

GOOD DINNER Baked Beef Brisket Potatoes Snap Beans Salad Bowl Cheesecake Beverage

BAKED BEEF BRISKET

A make-ahead dish.

- 2 1/2 pounds (about) straight-cut boneless beef brisket
- 1/2 cup catchup
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 1/2 teaspoons instant minced onion
- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons bottled white horseradish
- 1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Place the beef, fat side up, in a heavy casserole. Mix together the remaining ingredients and pour over beef. Cover tightly and bake in a 300-degree oven, until very tender—about 3 1/2 hours. Refrigerate beef and gravy separately overnight. Slice beef thin; arrange in an oblong glass 2-quart baking dish (11 1/2 by 7 1/2 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil. Remove hardened fat from gravy and pour over beef. Cover tightly with foil and reheat in a preheated 350-degree oven until bubbling hot—about 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

SUNDAY DINNER Roast Turkey Yams Creole Green Beans Salad Bowl Vanilla Ice Cream

With Lemon Sherbet
YAMS CREOLE
Looks inviting and tastes good.

- 6 medium yams, peeled (about 3 pounds)
 - 3 cups water
 - 2 cups sugar
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 container (8 ounces) heavy cream
 - Lemon wedges
- Cut yams into 1/2 by 1/2 by 1 1/2-inch strips. Bring water sugar and salt to a boil in large heavy saucepan or Dutch oven; add yams. Boil for 15 to 20 minutes, stirring often, or until yams are tender. With a slotted spoon remove yams to warm serving dish; keep warm. Stir cream into syrup; boil, stirring often, for 7 to 10 minutes or until mixture is reduced by about half and is thickened. (Mixture will be foamy until removed from heat.) Pour over yams. Garnish each portion with a lemon wedge to be squeezed over yams. Makes 10 servings.

CHILDREN'S PARTY Assorted Sandwiches Milk Ice Cream Chocolate Caramels

CHOCOLATE CARAMELS
Soft and not overly sweet.
1 can (14 to 15 ounces) sweetened condensed milk
1 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 squares (each 1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate
1 teaspoon vanilla
Grease 8 by 8 by 2 inch cake pan. In a heavy 2-quart saucepan mix together 1-3rd cup of the condensed milk, corn syrup, sugar, butter and salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, to 235 degrees on a candy thermometer or until syrup, when dropped into very cold water, forms a soft ball that flattens on removal from water. Stir in remaining condensed milk slowly enough to keep mixture boiling. Stir in chocolate, 1 square at a time. Continue boiling mixture until temperature again reaches 235 degrees. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla. Pour into prepared pan. Cool. Turn out. Cut into 1-inch squares with a sharp knife. Wrap each piece in plastic wrap. Makes 64.

Feminine Is The Preferred Sex

COPENHAGEN (WNS) — Coeds who polled fellow students, professors and business executives here discovered that feminine is the sex of the future. Their question: "If you were born today, would you prefer to be male or female?" According to spokeswomen Margrethe Vikner, three out of every five men predicted that women will have the more exciting, vital lives, but "only 54.6 per cent of the men would want to change sexes. I got the impression that they are looking forward to a life of fewer male responsibilities."

Best-Qualified For The Jobs

Appointment of Dr. Lenox Baker to head North Carolina's new Department of Human Resources brings to the top echelon of state government another outstanding citizen well qualified for the responsibilities he will assume.

Dr. Baker, chief orthopedic surgeon at Duke University Hospital and professor of orthopedics at its medical school, will head the new department which includes the State Board of Health, Department of Mental Health and Department of Social Services.

His selection by Gov. Scott to be Secretary of this new department in the reorganized state government structure is another example of Gov. Scott's determination to seek the best qualified people in North Carolina to head up the new departments.

Dr. Baker's acceptance of the new post reflects positive response of a dedicated leader who is willing to assume new responsibilities in the interest of providing the best possible services to the people of North Carolina through better state government. We have no doubt that Dr. Baker, as Secretary of the Department of Human Resources will, as he says, "get the job done efficiently and economically."

And as Gov. Scott declared, North Carolina is "fortunate to be able to obtain his services." With such calibre of new leadership being brought into state government, citizens of North Carolina cannot help but reap tremendous benefits from the reorganization program.

A New Kind Of 1972 Politics

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — A gubernatorial sweepstakes under a new kind of politics is taking shape for '72 in North Carolina.

The name of the game is the same, but how it's played will be changed by the lowered voting age, the trend to voter independence, and the first running of a presidential preferential Vocational education emphasis to put dollars in the average man's pocket was the theme for Bowles' announcement.

Hugh Morton, Wilmington and Linville businessman, has reported regularly for the past couple of weeks on organization of Morton for Governor committees. Morton continues to describe himself as "a likely candidate."

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan keeps the posture of a candidate while staying away from the status of an official entrant. Morgan said it would be foolish for him to announce so far ahead of the primary.

Dr. Reginald Hawkins of Charlotte, the black dentist who ran in '68, is reported ready to go again in '72. His presence in the field could draw together black votes as a bargaining point in the event of a second primary.

An opportunity for Democrats to size up the budding campaigns, and perhaps make some commitments, will come the weekend of Oct. 22-23 at the Vance-Aycock Dinner in Asheville. Partisans of the various candidates can be expected to make a great display of strength in order to woo support among the faithful.

Issues Less Than Charisma

Looking ahead, the best assessment is that the campaign will be geared less to sharp issues than to individual charisma and personal appeal.

With the exception of Dr. Hawkins, differences in political philosophy among the candidates appear to be a matter of shadings rather than contrasts. All are in the moderate mold that has appealed to Tar Heels in recent years.

As of the moment, the bitter factionalism that has marked some Democratic primaries is not apparent on the surface. Support for the candidates crosses lines of previous loyalties. Of course, a heated primary could itself create new factions within the party — and cause problems in the general election.

A key imponderable for campaign strategists is the youth vote. Some 300,000 in the 18-21 age bracket will be eligible to vote for the first time. Whether they will split in the pattern of the adult population, or strike out in new directions, is a question yet unanswered.

How the presidential primary will affect the state contest, if at all, is another worry. It may draw off funds and workers. It could create pressure for "coat-tailing" — tying campaigns together. At the very least, it will make it just that much more difficult to get the attention of the men and women who will vote.

Long Campaign Shapes Up For Governorship

It appears that Tar Heels are going to be in for a long gubernatorial campaign.

Hargroves Bowles of Greensboro and Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor have already announced their candidacies for the Democratic nomination. Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan and Hugh Morton are all but announced and Dr. Reginald Hawkins of Charlotte appears likely to be a candidate.

Once they announce, the words of a candidate have to be looked on as those of a politician on the campaign trail and between now and next May there are going to be quite a few words spoken.

On the Republican side Jim Holhouser seems almost certain to be a candidate and it should not be surprising if he has opposition. Following the primaries, of course, the Democratic and Republican nominees must face each other in a campaign leading up to the election in November.

There will be plenty of politics between now and next November.

Taylor Wants Warren's Help

By JOHN KILGO
WADESBORO — Pat Taylor, trying to strengthen himself in an area of the state where Robert Morgan is a power, hopes to persuade Goldsboro attorney Lindsey Warren Jr. to manage his gubernatorial campaign.

Warren, like Morgan, has a magic name in some parts of Eastern North Carolina. He served four distinguished terms in the State Senate and was considered one of that chamber's most influential members. Warren just recently headed the commission that recommended controversial, sweeping changes in the structure of higher education in North Carolina.

Many politicians have held the notion that Warren would emerge as the dark-horse candidate for Governor next year, but Warren repeatedly said he wasn't interested.

It is reported to us that Warren does not know if he will be able to find the time necessary to manage a gubernatorial campaign. The campaign manager of the winning candidate for Governor usually becomes head of the State Democratic Party and it's hard to believe that Warren would want that post.

Anyhow, Taylor, who announced for Governor on Monday, knows that Warren is highly thought of in many parts of the state. Warren is expected to make a decision any day now.

It's interesting to watch the way the gubernatorial candidates go about making their formal announcements. Make no mistake. This part of the game is strictly show biz.

Skipper Bowles made his announcement from Raleigh and then got in an airplane the next day and held news conferences all over the state.

Taylor chose his hometown of Wadesboro to make his announcement and the natives did it up right. Monday was proclaimed Pat Taylor Appreciation Day in the small Anson County town and even the opposition would have to admit it was a beautiful day to announce for Governor.

They closed down Green Street which fronts the Anson County Courthouse. They built a platform in the court yard and draped it with flags and a big sign provided the backdrop for all the television boys: "Pat Taylor for Governor."

Young children carried signs, urging Taylor's election. Campaign buttons were given out, the high school band played well, the sky was cloudless and there was a bite in the air, perfect for barbecue. And that's what they served the crowd when the talking was over. Barbecue and slaw and potato chips.

One man remarked: "Pat's running for Governor was no surprise but this barbecue sure is good."

Taylor, who hopes to come across as the moderate candidate in the campaign, was dressed fitting for the occasion. A gray suit, white shirt, gold and brown tie, a red rose in his lapel.

He read his speech, which said he would try to talk

Situation In The U.S.

WASHINGTON — TOP SECRET MEMORANDUM: FROM: Wang Po — anti-imperialist Secret Agent 655 (code name Egg Roll), Washington, D.C.

TO: Chu Ping Pi, Political Bureau, Peking

SUBJECT: Situation in the United States at present time vis-a-vis Nixon's trip

1 — There is great confusion here in Washington concerning who is in charge of the American government. President Nixon has been photographed in public and, to prove he was in good health, the capitlist newspapers showed him greeting Emperor Hirohito in Alaska.

2 — The big mystery is what has happened to Vice President Spiro Agnew. He has not been photographed with President Nixon for six months. The man who has seemed to replace Agnew in power is the secretary of the treasury, John Connally, who always seems to be at Nixon's side.

3 — Another mystery which has most U. S.-watchers confused is that the Supreme Court is now down to seven members. Nixon has promised to appoint two more members but so far he has been unable to find anyone with the same ideological philosophy. This had led many observers to believe that there is a power struggle going on in the Department of Justice between the moderates and Martha Mitchell. Martha Mitchell still seems to wield great influence in the government and some believe she is the real power behind the attorney general.

4 — Walter Hickel, the former secretary of the interior, is no longer under house arrest in Alaska.

Nixon met with him recently, indicating a softening of a hard-line stand he took six-months ago. In a speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars the President said, "Let a thousand flowers bloom," which indicated the Nixon government would welcome advice. But two days later the party line changed again, when Spiro Agnew told a Republican fund-raising dinner in Texas that if there was any criticism of the President he would personally purge the dissidents.

5 — One of the reasons for the confusion in Washington is that the United States is in a serious economic condition and a wage-price freeze has been in effect, which has caused a great deal of bitterness among the workers. The campaign to produce more for Richard Nixon has not succeeded, and few people now are waving their Little Red Books with the "Thoughts of Nixon" at chamber of commerce rallies.

6 — Postmaster General Blount has called for an economic boycott against France because France won't help the United States solve its drug problem. The U.S. government said it didn't agree with the postmaster general so there is a power struggle going on there. No one can predict the outcome but Walter Hickel has invited the postmaster general to live with him in Alaska.

7 — The opposition party is still in disarray although the Democrats are hoping for a Cultural Revolution in 1972.

8 — If you are confused in Peking as to what is going on in Washington, so are most of the American people. The Washington Senators have been exiled to Texas. This has caused great speculation in diplomatic circles as to who will be the next to go.

9 — As for Henry Kissinger's visit to Peking next week, my advice is to

Safer If You Say No

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody likes a yes man, but everybody likes to be agreeable and go along with the other fellow as far as he can.

And that's where he is likely to get in trouble. It is hard to draw the line, and he goes along too far for his own good.

Sometimes in life a fellow has to show a little backbone by refusing to accede to the wishes or suggestions of others. The backbone he saves may be his own. He has to learn when to say no.

Here, for example, are a few invitations which, if accepted, probably will lead only to disaster, dismay, sorrow, regret or — at the least — a black eye: "Have some more of this wine. I know it's good, because I made it myself."

"So this is your first grandson. What do I think of him? Well, he has a pretty blank expression. Are you sure you're holding the picture right side up?"

"I haven't been on horseback for years, but if you want me to I guess I wouldn't mind riding a few miles with you."

"Help you with your homework, Sis? Well, I think it would be better discipline for you to do it all by yourself. But hand me your arithmetic book and I'll show you how we used to solve problems in the old days when math was really math."

"The fellows asked me to make a few witty remarks at your expense at our annual dinner, boss. As I knew you wouldn't mind a little ribbing, I said okay. By the way, boss, who was that lady wearing green garters I saw you with last night?"

"Sure, why not. What kind of a pal is he who wouldn't consign a $1,500 auto loan for an old friend?"

"Well, if the rest of the gang wants to play no-limit poker, I ain't the kind of guy to be a spoil sport."

"So, you'd like to settle it outside, Mac? Just show me which way is outside, and outside we go. You can bring both your buddies along, too, to pick you up an dust you off."

"Of course I can pick up the

Strength For Today

CHEER UP

The Scriptures consist of revelations given directly from God to the Jews first and afterwards to the Gentiles. Christians, of course, believe that Christianity is the full revelation of God's nature and purpose. The Almighty put forth portions of his message through certain groups of people — some Jews and others Gentiles — but not the whole of his truth. We Christians believe that Jesus of Nazareth was the incarnate Son of God and that through him God made a revelation which is sufficient to guide individuals and nations.

Suppose we did not have Scripture of any kind. We might arrive at a few general conclusions. A created world presupposes a Creator. On the whole, humanity appears to be moving to better things.

Progress is a reality. It is true that we probably go forward twelve inches and fall back eleven, but there is still some progress being made. With all the problems we confront, this present world is better than the world was one thousand or two thousand years ago. The bravery of good men, their increase in knowledge and above all the revelation God made of his nature and his purpose through Jesus Christ, has given us a better and more hopeful world.

This is not time for us to be downcast and hopeless. The present age is full of danger, but we are learning how to handle many dangers. God does not solve our problems for us — what He does is to give us an opportunity to solve our own problems. And we can be on our way — that is certain.

Naming Models For Animals

By ELMER ROESSNER
Their 1972 models show that the auto manufacturers are still on their animal kick. They are still naming models after the animals, mostly wild, and birds, mostly wild, one imaginary.

Coupled with the trend is another curious one, that of giving models names of aggressive animals and forces, associated with death and destruction. Model names include Fury; Barracuda, an often dangerous fish; Tornado; Charger; Spitfire; Javelin; Cobra; Tempest; Cougar and Wildcat. Possession of the added power of an automobile seems to make some persons, even the mildest ones, savagely aggressive and this aggressiveness has been held responsible for many accidents, perhaps second to alcohol. It may be that that is why manufacturers prefer these names, thinking they may appeal to people with an inferiority complex. Perhaps Dr. Joyce Brothers could explain the entire matter.

In naming models for animals, birds and fish, the manufacturers always choose the common name. Auto buyers are not sufficiently educated or sophisticated to comprehend the scientific name.

Names In Science
For those who want to rename their cars by more sophisticated names, here are some:

Cougar: Felis concolor, from the Tupi language.
Cobra: Naja or Naja Hannah.
Jaguar: Felis onca.
Falcon: Falco Falconinae.
Maverick, Mustang, Charger: Equus caballus.
Impala: Aepyceros malampus; from the Zulu language.
Wildcat: Felis sylvestris.
Barracuda: Sphyræus barracuda.
Skylark: Alauda arvensis. (It also means to frolic boisterously.)
Roadrunner: Geococcyx californianus.
Marlin: Makaira.
Mythical Storm-Brewer
There is no scientific name for the Thunderbird, it being a mythical bird the Western Indians believe brought thunderstorms.

The Brougham was named for Lord Brougham, who devised a horse-drawn vehicle that gained that name.

The Firebird has no scientific name, or rather a lot of them. It is a generic term for many small, red birds, ranging from the Baltimore oriole to the scarlet tanager.

The wild animal ideas is not new. Some of us can remember the Bearcat, another mythical creature, and the Apperson Jackrabbit: Lepus Oryctolagus cuniculus.

And of course through the years there has always been the fruit of the tree Cirrus limonia, commonly called "the lemon."

Dean Acheson Left Imprint On U.S. Foreign Policy

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Acheson left his imprint on U.S. postwar foreign policy as few men have ever marked history. But he might never have had the opportunity if he hadn't met the right train at Washington's Union Station.

The story came from John E.

Peurifoy, later Ambassador to Paris, immediately after it occurred a quarter-century ago. I always thought of it as the act that boosted Acheson to diplomatic stardom and gave him a chance to help shape the mid-20th Century world.

His influence, founded on and nourished by a goodwill that flowed from his trip to Union Station that day in 1946, was eventually felt in development of the Marshall Plan for European recovery, the North Atlantic Alliance, the peace settlement with Japan, the Korean war, the dismissal by President Truman of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as U.S. commander, and the administration's fight with Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Acheson died Tuesday on his Maryland farm. Before he became secretary of state, Acheson served twice as assistant secretary. Then, under James F. Burns, for whom he entertained a mixture of respect and dislike, he became under secretary of state.

It was in that position and as acting secretary at a time when Burns was away that Acheson made his apparently routine but nonetheless fateful visit to Washington's Union Station to meet returning President Harry S. Truman.

It was a dismal time for Mr. Truman. He had fought the congressional elections of 1946 and felt defeated and humiliated.

Peurifoy, serving as Acheson's confidential assistant and general handyman, suggested that regardless of what the rest of official Washington did, Acheson should meet the train carrying Truman back from Missouri. Acheson did—and, proved to be the highest ranking member of the President's official family on hand.

When Truman was elected in his own right in 1948 and was faced with the resignation of Gen. George C. Marshall as secretary of state, he chose Acheson to succeed to control of U.S. foreign policy.

The last time I talked with Acheson at length was shortly after the 1968 Vietnam Tet offensive in which Communist forces scored a political victory which overshadowed their military defeat.

Acheson was, at the time, one of President Johnson's several advisers. I asked him to have lunch and explain to me what was going about and why.

In a brilliant, totally clear analysis which ran 20 to 30 minutes he described the dilemma in which the United States had found itself, and he said in substance:

"The war has become too costly for the United States to continue. What is needed is for the President to make a decision to bring it to an end so far as the United States is concerned. It doesn't matter what was true in the past, once the decision is made, ways will be found to bring it about."

One of the remarks for which Acheson undoubtedly became more famous than he wished concerned Alger Hiss, a former State Department official then under charges of perjury for denying Communist connections.

"I do not intend to turn my back on Alger Hiss," Acheson told a January 1950 news conference.

Though Acheson was a natural target for the Communist witchhunting—as its critics came to call it—of Sen. Joseph McCarthy 20 years ago, his remark about Hiss certainly increased his vulnerability. It was a remarkable fact of the relationship between Truman, the short, grass-roots, midwestern politician with a strong sense of history, and Acheson, the Ivy League-educated lawyer with an international sophistication, that they shared the same kind of belligerent determination to stand on their principles without apology.

Acheson once told me he had disagreed seriously with Truman on only one issue. He disliked the way the President ran U.S. policy toward Israel.

In his recent book "Present at the Creation," Acheson wrote that he "never forgot who was president and the president most punctiliously remembered who was secretary of state."

Acheson and his successor in the Eisenhower administration, the late John Foster Dulles, worked closely together on many occasions.

But there was always an element of tension and quick sensitivity between them.

But it was Acheson in 1950 who asked Dulles to negotiate the Japanese peace treaty, which led to one of Dulles' most triumphant diplomatic performances.

Apart from the Korean war and the Japanese peace treaty, the main problems of Acheson's years as secretary of state were European, and the conflict with Russia.

Acheson negotiated occasionally with the Russians and there is probably no better way to wind up a reminiscence about him than to recall what he once told a Soviet foreign minister after listening to a long propagandistic harangue. Acheson said he had heard propaganda in a speech compared to the fleas on a dog. But the speech which the Soviet foreign minister had just concluded, Acheson said, was the first example he had ever encountered that was all fleas and no dog.

CRISIS IN KOREA — A grim President Harry Truman (left) is met by Sec. of State Dean Acheson to confer on the crisis created by invasion of South Korea by Communist North. (AP Wirephoto)

Buchwald . . .

(Continued from page A-4) meet with him and try to have him explain what the political situation is in the United States. If he can't come up with satisfactory answers, I would suggest that Chou En-lai call off the meeting with Nixon. It would be a mistake to talk to Nixon while there is so much chaos in the United States.

10—I will need some more money. You can't believe the prices since Nixon started his War on Inflation.

Boyle . . .

(Continued from page A-4) tickets and let you pay me later, anything to oblige. No blasse oblige, as we say in Missouri. "You want me to tell you what I really thin of the custom of both the bride and bridegroom exchanging wedding rings? Well, frankly, I think it's just a bride's way of advertising to the world that she has finally hooked a husband."

"Well, darling, I never lit a cigarette before for a big handsome hippie while he was driving a car in a strong wind, but hand me your lighter. I'll try not to set fire to your beard."

Kilgo . . .

"Don't worry," he said, looking at the crowd. "I don't have but one page to go on this thing."

U.S. Moves Toward Tripower Understanding Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The following are moves toward understanding and existing important differences in U.S. relations with mainland China and the Soviet Union:

The Soviet Union Actions toward understanding:

—The four-power agreement on Berlin is the most important accomplishment in relations with the Soviet Union, representing the first written acceptance of Soviet responsibility for unimpeded access to the city.

—Although the SALT talks are still going on, the U.S. administration is satisfied they will yield results before the end of the year both in defensive and offensive nuclear weapons.

Meanwhile there were some agreements on minor, related disarmament issues, such as the ban on placing nuclear weapons on the ocean floor and modernization of the Washington-Moscow hotline.

of 1967 and neither wants the outbreak of a new war in the area.

—The Soviets would like to get most-favored-nation treatment for their exports and commercial credits.

—The United States is concerned over the increasing naval presence of the Soviet Union in the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean.

China:

Moves toward understanding have primarily been made by the United States. They were:

—In July 1969 the United States relaxed restrictions on travel and on imports of tourists bringing home mainland China goods with a value ceiling of $100.

—Mainland China maintains Taiwan is a province and therefore U.S. military presence on the island and in the Taiwan Strait represents aggression. The United States says its military role in Taiwan is based on a defense treaty with a sovereign country.

—China wants all foreign troops withdrawn from foreign bases wherever they are. The Nixon doctrine foresees reduction of U.S. military role in the defense of these countries but within the framework of existing multi-and bilateral defense pacts.

—Mainland China is concerned over what it describes as increasing Japanese militarism. The United States believes that Japan should play a greater role in the Pacific area.

Special N.C. Week Begins November 30

The Light of History" By H. G. JONES, Director N.C. Dept. of Archives

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's annual "Culture Week" begins Nov. 30 in Raleigh and runs through Dec. 4.

"Culture Week" is the gathering of the state's 13 cultural and historical organizations. It has been held every year since 1913 — with the exception of 1918, the year of the great influenza epidemic.

The week-long session of activities, which is unique to North Carolina, grew up around the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association, the oldest of the participating organizations, and is traditionally held during the first week in December.

Chief purpose of the association, which was founded in 1900, is "to foster the interest of our people in the literature and history of North Carolina." Among other things, it sponsored legislation responsible for the creation of the state Department of Archives and History.

The effort to coordinate the activities of cultural and historical groups around the state by persuading them to meet annually at the same time and place (while retaining their individual identity) was begun in 1908 and was implemented in 1913 when the North Carolina Folklore Society became the first organization to accept the invitation. The State Art Society in 1926 was the second to accept, and over the years ten other organizations have joined.

Prominent among "Culture Week" activities, in addition to the business meetings of the various organizations and the presentation of speeches of interest to the members, is the recognition of outstanding North Carolinians for literary, artistic, historical, and musical excellence.

Awards include the Mayflower Society Cup for nonfiction, the Sir Walter Raleigh Award for fiction, the American Association of University Women Award for juvenile literature, the Roanoke-Chowan Cup for poetry, the R. D. W. Connor Award for an outstanding article published in the North Carolina Historical Review, the Ruth Coltrane Cannon Cup for distinction in historical preservation, restoration, and research, and the Christopher Crittenden Memorial Award in recognition of "significant contribution to the stimulation of interest in and knowledge of North Carolina history."

Among this year's speakers will be Dr. Lyman H. Butterfield, editor of the Adams Papers; Mrs. S. Henry Edmunds, director of the Historic Charleston Foundation; and Dr. Don Higginbotham, editor of the James Iredell Papers to be published by the Department of Archives and History.

Truck Rams A Nursery

GREENSBORO (AP) — Concrete blocks fell on a cot that had been occupied by a preschool boy moments before when a pickup truck rammed through two walls into a day-care nursery Tuesday.

A few of the 12 youths in the room were slightly hurt by flying debris, and the truck driver received cuts and bruises.

But no serious injuries occurred in the afternoon accident.

Police said John A. Dempsey, 49, drove out of the driveway of the company he works for, went across the street and hit the wall of the nursery. Officers said the vehicle rammed through the brick and block wall, across the kitchen and smashed into the interior wall.

Mrs. Dempsey said her husband told her he "passed out" while driving.

Officers had not charged Dempsey by late Tuesday.

About 150 youths attended the nursery, but the school manager said most were in other rooms or outside when the wreck occurred.

WATSON CONVICTED — Charles "Tex" Watson is led back to jail from a courtroom in Los Angeles Tuesday after he was convicted of seven counts of first-degree murder and one of conspiracy to commit murder in the Tate-

LaBianca slayings. Watson, a former member of the Charles Manson "family" was the last of five defendants to be convicted in the slayings. (AP Wirephoto)

Some 163 Attend Ducks Unlimited Dinner Here

Some 163 local and area members of Ducks Unlimited were on hand Tuesday night at the Moose Lodge for the annual Greenville area DU dinner-meeting.

The meeting and others held throughout the state and nation are aimed at raising funds to be channeled into the national DU fund for work involving the immediate and long range welfare of the waterfowl population. The annual session also serves to acquaint members with the work of Ducks Unlimited and keep them informed of progress and problems.

reported. The acreage, he said, is leased on a no-cost agreement whereby DU exchanges "economic benefits to the farmer" or other landowner for the right to raise ducks on his land.

At the same time, it was pointed out, the organization helps to maintain and control water levels on the leased acreage, providing control against flooding.

DU hopes to lease an additional 4.5 million acres for breeding and nesting land, the coordinator added.

Last night's meeting drew guest members from area towns of Kinston, Robersonville, Washington, Wilson, Belhaven, Ayden and Winterville, among others, and also brought new members from the Greenville area into the non-profit membership organization.

According to Greenville area chairman Roger Collins III, last year's meeting raised over $5,000 for the work of Ducks Unlimited. All profits from the meetings are channeled into the national organization, he pointed out.

A new approach for the local chapter in raising funds, the auction of several items including a locally-made decoy and a painting by a Greenville artist, as well as several other waterfowl prints, was held and funds from the auction will go into the same DU pot. John Griffin of Greenville handled the auctioneering.

On display last night for viewing prior to the dinner were an assortment of guns furnished by one of the major manufacturers of sporting goods.

Guest speaker for the meeting, Dr. David Wesley, who is the newly appointed Southeastern regional coordinator for Ducks Unlimited, pointed out that the main objective of the organization is to control, preserve or maintain wetland areas in Canada.

He noted that some 80 cents of each dollar channeled into the organization finds its way to Canada where over 100 projects are underway or have been completed this year by DU.

Currently there are approximately 2,000,000 acres of land in the northern provinces under lease, Dr. Wesley

Rose High Senior One Of Program's Finalists

Robert Carraway, a senior at Rose High School has been named one of the 20 finalists for the William Randolph Hearst United States Senate Youth Program for 1970-71.

Carraway will go to Raleigh Oct. 27-28 for a 30-minute interview by a special committee at the State Department of Public Instruction.

The committee will select two winners from North Carolina following the interviews. The results will be announced in December.

The two North Carolina winners will join other winners from throughout the nation for a week-long visit to Washington, D.C., in January. They will have an opportunity to observe the workings of the U.S. Senate and to visit with the Senators from North Carolina.

The winners will also receive a $1,000 scholarship.

The 20 finalists for the William Randolph Hearst Youth Program were selected by the results of a standard test, given to 304 students nominated by the superintendents of each of the state's school districts.

Close To 8,000 Attend

Attendance was "good" — close to 8,000 — and about 500 persons made professions of faith in Christ at the Nicky Cruz Evangelistic Crusade at Ficklen Stadium here last night, according to John Montgomery, a local businessman who has helped promote the Crusade.

"Nicky said he was pleased with the crowd last night, but hopes and believes it will be much larger tonight and tomorrow night," Montgomery said. "Dr. Robert Holt gave a convincing welcome and music provided by persons from choirs throughout the area was beautiful."

"We were surprised to find that perhaps half of those attending came from outside Pitt County," he added.

Services tonight and tomorrow night will begin at 7:30 p.m. The evangelist is nationally known Nicky Cruz, a former New York City ghetto gang leader who now ministers by preaching and through his Outreach for Youth Centers.

New Recreation Activities Set

The Greenville Recreation Department today announced a new activity available for children in Greenville between the ages of 8 and 14.

Classes in drama, voice and diction for youngsters will be offered. Stuart Aronson, a member of ECU faculty and of the ECU Summer Theater will teach classes. Registration will be taken for the remainder of this week at the Greenville Recreation office on Elm Street. A small fee will be charged. For further information telephone 752-2355.

The Battle Now: Catch Southern Wayne

Southern Wayne High School, by virtue of its defeat of Farmville Central, 21-12, last weekend, has grabbed the top spot in the Eastern Carolina Conference, and they may not be able to be dislodged from it.

The Saints have four league games remaining, against Southern Nash, North Lenoir, Eastern Wayne and North Pitt. They will be the favorite in all of those.

North Lenoir, which had led the league most of the way, fell from the top when D. H. Conley sprang a 6-2 upset of them Friday. Ayden-Grifton and Greene Central stayed close with a 14-0 win over C. B. Aycock and a 34-0 blasting of North Pitt, respectively.

Eastern Wayne downed Southern Nash, 15-14, in the other game.

Farmville Central's hopes in the game, as well as their unbeaten status, went down the drain Wednesday when veteran quarterback Mark Oglesby suffered a dislocated shoulder in practice. That put sophomore Chip Venters, inexperienced, under center, and although he did a good job, it was still not the same for the Jaguars, who needed a super effort in the game, anyway.

"Not having Oglesby created problems," Gene Brewer, coach of the Jaguars said. "In a big game like this, experience is really a big factor. Venters made some mistakes, but all in all he did a pretty good job." Oglesby is expected to be out some four weeks, which may mean the rest of the year.

But even so, Brewer feels Farmville still has a chance. "Eastern Wayne and Southern Nash may give Southern Wayne a good game, and could beat them. They'd have to lose two for us to win it."

This week, besides having Oglesby out, Chuck Finklea, who played with an injury, may miss, along with Joe Pietron, who was injured in a wreck last week.

Brewer praised Charles Sutton, Cloyce Wilson and Lee Johnson for their defensive play in the game.

This week, Farmville travels to meet North Lenoir. Both teams must win to stay in the race, and Farmville looks for a tough game. "They have a good team, with a fine runner, Wilbur Pope. They don't do anything fancy, just run right at you," Brewer said. "They, like most others, are bigger than we are. They play good defense."

The team that handed North Lenoir its first league loss, Conley, sets its sights on another upset this week, against Eastern Wayne. "It's a great experience," George Wheeler said of his team's win over the Hawks.

Wheeler said that the game was pretty even between the two teams. "We dropped a couple of passes that could have broken it up, and then in the second half, we had to stop them defensively. It was a real hard-hitting game. We had to stop Pope, and we did."

The coach praised the team for its fine effort, and singled out Norm Marable for his leadership, along with Stacey Evans, Roger Cates, Calvin Clemons, Willie Hawkins, Charlie Speight and Bobby Bryan.

"Eastern Wayne is a good team," Wheeler said. "They run from several formations, and they have an excellent passer. We'll have to put a good rush on him to stop him. The team is big and well-coached, and I think they're one of the stronger in the league despite their record. It'll take a super effort from us, and we can't rest on our laurels."

Ayden-Grifton's Chargers played one of their worst games of the year, according to Coach Nelson Gravatt, but escaped with a victory. "When our line blocked, our backs didn't run, and when the backs did run, the line didn't block," Gravatt lamented.

"Fortunately," he added, "The defense played well enough for us to win."

Ayden-Grifton was another school operating with a new quarterback this week, Chuck Babbington, but he came into the game with right much experience. The injured Ken Cleaton, the usual quarterback, has returned to practice, and may be ready to go this week, but Gravatt said that he probably would not play.

"We knew Babbington could do the job," Gravatt said. "He's smart, and although he's not as fast or as good a runner as Cleaton, he's a good leader."

Gravatt noted that the Chargers will make a few changes in their game this week. "We've thrown out some of our offense; we had too much, and we may make some personnel changes, too."

Gravatt singled out Wayne Byrd for his play at offensive guard, and Anthony Dail, Carlton McCarter and Dee Edwards for their defensive play.

The Chargers meet Greene Central this week, and this is another key league battle. "They play good defense. They're not big, but they are very quick and aggressive," Gravatt said. "They run the option and off tackle real well. It'll take a good effort to beat them."

North Pitt Coach Danny Wilmer is hoping that playing at home might make a difference for the Panthers... if they get to play at home.

This week's game with Charles B. Aycock is scheduled to be played on the new Panther field, but the lights haven't been installed and it is questionable whether they'll be able to get them ready in time. If not, there are four options. To play either Thursday or Saturday night at Robersonville; to play Friday night at Aycock or to play Thursday or Saturday, and I don't want to go down there," Wilmer said. "I just don't know what we'll do."

The Panthers are still looking for their first touchdown of the year, along with their first win.

"Greene Central jumped on us quick last week," Wilmer said. "They scored 21 points in the first couple of minutes and we just couldn't do anything right after that." Greene Central took the first play from scrimmage in for a touchdown in the game, then recovered two quick fumbles by North Pitt and turned them into touchdowns. "They were shooting for a school record in scoring," he said, "and they got it."

Wilmer notes that the lack of success is causing a number of problems among the team, namely the loss of players through loss of interest. "Our center was the latest one to drop off the team," he said.

Wilmer singled out Ronnie Briley for his outstanding play on defense, along with Andrew Daniels and John Moody.

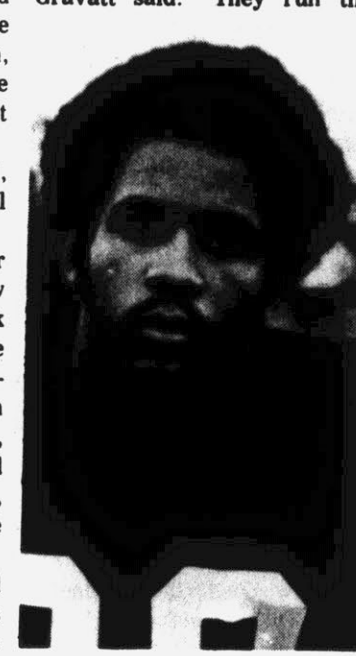

This week, besides the four games already mentioned, Southern Wayne goes to Southern Nash.

Pirates Bounce Back, Seek To Even Series In 1st Night Game

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer PITTSBURGH (AP) — Left-hander Luke Walker, who has spent much of the season in Manager Danny Murtaugh's doghouse, had the job of keeping Pittsburgh rebounding against Baltimore tonight in the first World Series game ever played at night.

The Pirates, stung for two straight losses in Baltimore, bounced back with a 5-1 victory Tuesday. It came on the three-hit pitching of Steve Blass—who left his personal scouting report 250 miles away—and a three-run homer by Bob Robertson, who missed a bunt sign and swung away.

Now if Walker can make a couple of mistakes like that, Pittsburgh will really be back in business.

Walker has a deceptive record. He was 10-8 during the regular season but won four of those decisions in the final month.

Murtaugh however, suspected that he was working with a sore arm—a cardinal sin in the Pirate Manager's mind. So Walker was passed over in the playoff series against San Francisco and in the first two Series games at Baltimore, when the Orioles belted the Pirate pitching staff.

"Sure, I've wondered a lot about why I haven't been used," said Walker. "But I just keep my mouth shut. Number 40 (Murtaugh) has the answers."

Meanwhile, Murtaugh hoped Walker was the answer for the Pirates against Pat Dobson, the fourth 20-game winner the Orioles have thrown at the Pirates.

Pittsburgh finally caught up with one of the Birds' aces in the third game when Robertson rifled his homer against Mike Cuellar to put the icing on Blass's strong pitching job. The funny part of the homer was that it was supposed to be a bunt.

Roberto Clemente opened the seventh inning by reaching first on an error by Cuellar. Then Willie Stargell walked for the third time in the game. That brought up Robertson and Murtaugh flashed a swing sign on the second pitch. Robertson fouled the ball off, and in the dugout, Murtaugh decided to switch signals.

"We saw that Brooks Robinson was playing him deep at third," said Murtaugh, "so we decided to bunt."

Third base coach Frank Ocek dutifully passed the bunt sign along and both runners saw it. But Robertson didn't. He swung away and the ball soared over the 385-foot sign in right center for a three-run homer.

When the red-haired slugger crossed home plate, Stargell greeted him with a grin and said: "That's the way to bunt."

That's when Robertson realized he had missed a sign.

"It's the first time I've missed one all year," he said. "If I had seen it, I would have bunted. But a bunt was the farthest thing from my mind. I wanted to swing the bat."

When Robertson got to the dugout he went over to Murtaugh.

"I guess I fouled up," the slugger told the manager.

"Possibly," replied the laconic skipper, just a hint of a smile curling his lip.

The three-run cushion was plenty for Blass, who had been in a 2-1 pressure cooker until Robertson connected.

"I was so excited about being in a World Series game, that I didn't sleep all night," Blass said. "I kept lying awake, thinking about lots of things. How things were at home ... the weather ... Frank Robinson ... Brooks Robinson ... Boog Powell ... Willie McCovey ... Hank Aaron ..."

Asked if he had prepared for the Orioles in any special way, Blass said he had watched the first two games of the Series on a monitor television in the dressing room at Baltimore.

"I made some notes. And to show you how much they helped me, I forgot them and left them in Baltimore."

So, with nothing more than the regular Pirate scouting report to work from, Blass went about the job of dealing with the Orioles, who had slugged 24 hits and 16 runs in the first two games of the Series.

"I was totally confused about what to do after they hit all those homers in the first game and all those singles in the next one," said Blass.

Manager Murtaugh talked the problem over with Blass before the game.

"Danny told me to pitch my own game," Blass said. "If I got beat, I wanted it to be against my best stuff."

"He put everything in the right spot," said Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles.

Now the Pirates hope Walker can do the same thing.

Sooner Back Receives Honor

By RON JENKINS

Associated Press Sports Writer NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Greg "Corvette" Pruitt, Oklahoma's comet halfback, is an unusual guy who does unusual things both on and off the football field.

Pruitt gets his nickname from the sports car he owns although he says he prefers to ride a bicycle to his classes at the University of Oklahoma—and from his uncanny speed on the gridiron.

That speed was evident last Saturday when the 5-foot-9, 176-pound scatback scored three touchdowns and ripped off 219 yards rushing as the Sooners toppled previously unbeaten Texas, 48-27.

Pruitt earned a rare honor—he was named Wednesday as The Associated Press national college Back of the Week for the second straight week.

Pruitt, a junior from Houston, is known as a complex individual—a confident sort whose exuberance might be mistaken for cockiness at times. To his teammates, he's a "good guy," team player who not only runs but blocks like crazy.

Pruitt showed his exuberance in the dressing room two weeks ago after the Sooners had crushed Southern California, 33-20. Pruitt dashed for 205 yards and scored three TDs in that game to win designation as back of the week for the first time. He said, "Texas is going to catch a lot of hell down there next week."

Pruitt also received a little award from his offensive coach, Barry Switzer.

The Ayden Golf and Country Club is going to hold a "Superball" Golf Tournament this Sunday at the club. Registration is now underway in the pro shop.

Brook Valley

A handicap tournament for women will be held at Brook Valley Country Club next Monday. Signups, now underway, end Thursday.

The club is also preparing for the annual Brook Valley Ladies Invitational, which closes entries on October 26.

Farmville

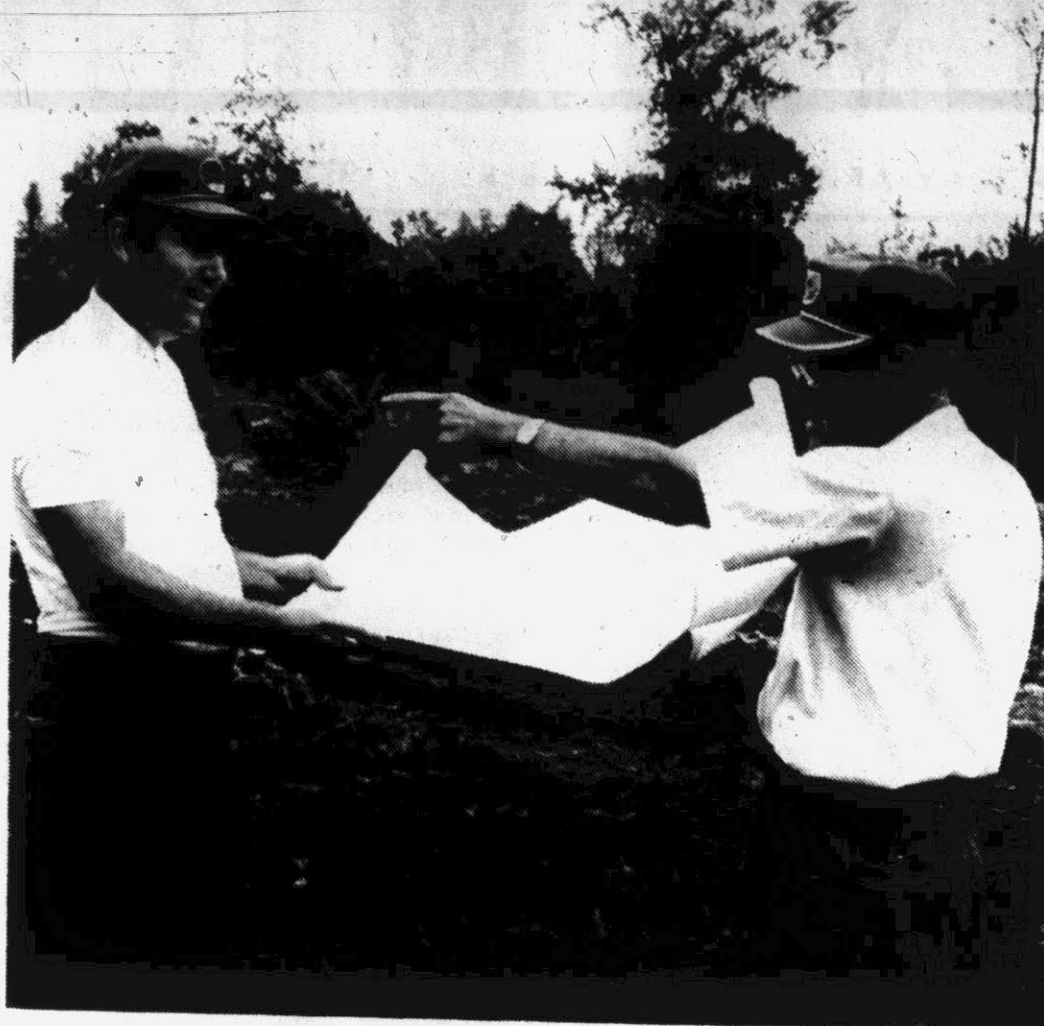

The Farmville Golf and Country Club is now in the process of adding nine new holes to the course. The fairways have almost been cleared of trees and the seeding of the ground is set for next spring. Play is scheduled to begin in September of 1972.

Pro Graham Anderson is especially proud of the 10th hole, designed to be a real challenge. It is a 535-yard par five with a sharp dogleg over a creek to an elevated green. He notes that narrow tree-lined fairways and large greens will be the keynote of the back side.

Also under construction is a new club house.

Greenville

The annual Greenville Invitational, held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, has been cancelled for this year. Pro Boyd Huff said storm damage on the course from Hurricane Ginger, and the fire in the club house, brought about the cancellation. He added that there was a possibility of the tournament being played in the spring.

Oklahoma Picked In Duel With Colorado

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — And now it's Colorado's turn to try and slow down the yardage-hungry Oklahoma Sooners.

"The home field might give Oklahoma a slight edge," says Nebraska's Bob Devaney of Saturday's battle of Big Eight unbeaten, the nationally second-ranked Sooners and the sixth-ranked Buffaloes.

"An absolutely awesome offense," said Darrell Royal after Oklahoma trimmed his Texas team 48-27 Saturday, rushing for 435 yards.

"The most dynamic offense in college football," says Colorado's Eddie Crowder, mentioning the entire backfield of quarterback Jack Mildren, halfbacks Greg Pruitt and Joe Wylie, fullback Leon Crosswhite and Roy Bell, who subbed for the injured Wylie (ankle sprain) against Texas.

"Those are the guys," said Crowder. "I'm not afraid of the other 62,000 who'll be there. Pruitt looks to me like the best back in the conference since Gale Sayers and he's doing it more consistently."

Consistently enough to gain 205 yards against Southern Cal and 216 against Texas and be named national Back of the Week twice running by The Associated Press.

"There's going to be a lot of electricity down here," says Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks. That being the case, we'll go with Franklin's team (split end Willie, that is). OKLAHOMA.

Kansas at Nebraska—"If the ball bounced right for us, we have a chance to win the game," says Don Fambrough of Kansas. "But we're not fooling ourselves. We have to play a great game. I can't see a weakness in their team."

Blass Admits He Is Still Kid At Heart

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Forget the common image of baseball heroes—unflappable types exuding strength and confidence.

Meet Steve Blass of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I get very nervous before a big game," said the soft-spoken right-hander after pitching a clutch 5-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday in the third game of the World Series.

Being nervous is only part of the Blass life-style. He professed to childish exuberance after his three-hitter against the slugging Orioles, claiming he's still a kid at heart.

"Being in a World Series—wow! It's been the greatest thing that's ever happened to me," said Blass, his eyes glittering with unabashed pleasure. "And this World Series has been everything I ever thought it would be."

Another slice of the Blass makeup is his intellectual approach to life. He reads a lot, which he says is good. But he also thinks too much, which he says is bad.

"I can't sleep when I think about what I have to do in a World Series," he said. "Before I pitched Tuesday, I tried to go to sleep for three hours—and it was eight o'clock before I knew it, and time to get up and get ready for the ballgame."

Blass wasn't counting sheep, he said. "I was counting people ... Frank Robinson, Brooks Robinson, Boog Powell ..."

He also blew a $3.60 breakfast.

"I couldn't eat," he said. "I just couldn't get the food down."

What did he have? "A slice of toast, medium rare and a few pulmonary wheezes," he quipped.

But despite the butterflies and mental torment, Blass managed to put most of the Orioles to sleep Tuesday. He gave up only a home run and single to Frank Robinson and a single to Brooks.

Was it the best-pitched game of the season for the trim right-hander? "How about (the best game) of my life?" he shot back to a room jammed with reporters.

Blass, a 15-game winner, set down Baltimore with a crackling fast ball which he threw "80 per cent of the time." It prompted this awed response from Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver: "It was a great fast ball. I hope he can't come back with that kind of stuff with three days' rest—just in case."

Blass was just what the doctor ordered for the Pirates' failing hopes in this classic. They had lost the first two games and needed a lift.

"You've got to give Steve all the credit for this win," said Pittsburgh first baseman Bob Robertson. "You've got to have a stopper to win a Series. I haven't seen Steve throw the ball harder all year. We haven't had any pitching in this series—until today."

Lehmann Is Back

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) —

Guard George Lehmann has made amends with the Carolina Cougars and has been reinstated—after paying a $3,150 fine—to the American Basketball Association team.

Lehmann was suspended and fined for every day of missed practice after he failed to show up for an exhibition game Sept. 26. He said then he wanted to be traded because he didn't think he was getting to play enough.

He was the ABA's leading three-point shooter last year, his second with Carolina and his fourth as a pro.

Team officials said Lehmann has apologized to the team. Coach Tom Meschery said he and Lehmann have settled their differences and are ready to start the regular season.

Carolina opens with Virginia at Greensboro Friday.

Dooley Says Heels Can Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Bill Dooley says his North Carolina football team can beat sixth-ranked Notre Dame if the Tar Heels play up to their capabilities.

They meet Saturday afternoon in South Bend, Ind., where the Irish have not lost since 1968.

North Carolina won its first four games, but then lost 37-29 last week to Tulane.

The Tar Heels played without their leading scorer and ground gainer, Ike Oglesby, who had not sufficiently recovered from a leg injury sustained the week before against North Carolina State. He is expected to be ready for Notre Dame. The loss knocked the Tar Heels out of the top 20 after they had been 18th.

Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian called Oglesby "a tremendous running back." Parseghian spoke on a telephone hookup at Dooley's weekly news conference Tuesday.

Dooley said he was happy his squad has expressed confidence in the coaching staff and the UNC football program.

Old Yanks Insist They Were Baseball's Best

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Old Casey Stengel snapped, Earl Weaver cracked and ex-Yankee Phil Rizzuto popped today in a World Series feud over baseball dynasties.

Up for debate: How does the current Baltimore team, winner of more than 100 games for the third year in a row and playing in its third consecutive World Series, compare with the great Yankee machines of the past?

Weaver, manager of the Orioles, lit the fuse when he said—with understandable pride—that his present team is the best baseball team he ever saw.

Under further prodding, he added, "Phil Rizzuto couldn't make this team."

This jabbed the sensitive nerves of the former Yankee shortstop, as well as Stengel, the grizzled old man from Oakland who led the Yankees to seven world championships in the 1940s and 1950s.

"What does that man know about it?" the snow-haired octogenarian barked. "He never played in the major leagues."

Defending the 1960 team, the last of his 10 American League winners, who lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates on a seventh-game home run by Bill Mazeroski, Stengel said: "The Pirates were in their prime then, (Roberto) Clemente was a young man. Now he's 11 years older. This is not the same Pittsburgh team."

"Besides we would have won the World Series in 1960 if I had pitched Whitey Ford in the first game instead of Art Ditmar. Ford beat 'em twice and would have beaten 'em three times if it hadn't been for my stupidity."

Rizzuto, who played shortstop on Stengel's earlier teams, also was stung by Weaver's remarks and was quoted as responding: "What could Weaver have known about me? I played in 1941. Weaver was 6 years old at that time."

"That show's you what a smart guy Rizzuto is," Weaver quipped.

"I wasn't 6. I was 11. I was born in 1930. Subtract 1930 from 1941 and you get 11. Any schoolboy could tell you that. But not Rizzuto."

"I was sincere when I said that I think this Baltimore team is the best I ever saw. And I honestly think Mark Belanger is a better shortstop than Rizzuto was."

"Rizzuto has been on my back for the last four years. I don't know why. He second-guesses every move I make."

"When I make a move, he'll say, 'What is this man doing? He'll never stay in the major leagues with moves like that.' But here I am."

Rizzuto is now a broadcaster of New York Yankee games. Stengel is an Oakland banker and financier.

"If Weaver's team is so good, why didn't they beat the Mets two years ago?" Stengel added.

Carson Holds Scoring Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bob Carson of The Citadel turned in a 14-point performance last Saturday as the Bulldogs edged Virginia Military's Keydets 25-24 — and that's exactly the margin by which he now leads the Southern Conference football race.

His 27-yard run and two-point conversion with 3:14 left rallied the Bulldogs from a 24-17 deficit and, with an earlier touchdown, boosted his total for five games to 50 points.

In second place is a teammate of Carson's, split end Brian Baima of The Citadel, who has six touchdowns and 36 points. Baima caught one scoring aerial in the victory over the Keydets.

There's a three-way tie for third with five touchdowns and 30 points each among Clayton Deskins of Appalachian State and Phil Mosser and Dennis Cambal of William and Mary.

Cambal scored twice and Mosser once in the Indians' 28-23 defeat by West Virginia, while Deskins scored once as Appalachian State posted a 14-0 victory over Lenoir Rhyne.

There's another three-way deadlock for sixth place with 24 points among Carlester Crumpler of East Carolina, Mac Bowman of VMI and Mike Dodds of William and Mary. Crumpler Bowman have four touchdowns and Dodds has 18 extra point kicks and two field goals.

The Citadel kicker Ruff Simpson has 21 points on 12 extra points and three field goals, while John Ribet of Davidson, Mike Cole of VMI and Bill Gardner of William and Mary have 18 points each.

Although Carson and Baima are leading the pack, coach Red Parker was complaining about The Citadel's attack after practice Tuesday.

Grumbled Parker: "We would have had a hard time outscoring Sister St. Mary's girls' school." He promised changes in the interior line for Saturday's tilt with Presbyterian.

Elsewhere around the circuit, Furman held a 20-minute kicking drill and showed off senior running back Steve Crisp in offensive contact work. He leads Furman's ground department with 434 yards in 79 carries. The Paladins host Davidson in a homecoming game.

The University of Richmond toiled on its rushing game, too, with fullback Barty Smith leading the way. He rambled for 118 yards on 31 efforts against East Carolina last week. The Spiders face Virginia Military Saturday night in Richmond.

In Greenville, N.C., East Carolina mentor Sonny Randle vowed his charges would be mentally prepared to go up against a tough West Virginia squad.

We were not ready to play football last Saturday (a 14-7 loss to Richmond), but I don't expect to see a rerun this week," Randle said.

Lanier Breaks Toe As Pistons Win Opener

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Muscular Bob Lanier, the hulking center who helped the Detroit Pistons get off on the right foot in the 1971-72 National Basketball Association season, will undergo X-rays today for a possible fracture of his small left toe.

The 6-foot-11 Lanier, now a trim but still powerful 263 pounds, was told Tuesday night that his toe was broken after he had led the Pistons to a 91-84 victory over the New York Knicks in the season opener for both clubs.

In other openers, Seattle overwhelmed Buffalo 123-90, Cincinnati trimmed Atlanta 127-113, and Philadelphia beat Chicago 114-100.

Lanier, the former All-American from St. Bonaventure who lost 22 pounds in a summer exercising program, said he bruised his toe Monday in an accident at home. "It was all right against the Knicks," he continued, "until somebody—either Willis Reed or Dave DeBusschere—jumped on it with five or six minutes left in the game."

Lanier finished the game, playing a total of 46 minutes, and wound up the game's high scorer with 29 points. He also grabbed 17 rebounds, tying the Knicks' Jerry Lucas for top honors. Afterward, the physician at New York's Madison Square Garden made the diagnosis of the broken toe. "I hope I won't have to miss any games," said Lanier after outmuscling Reed.

After the game, the Pistons flew to Detroit, where Lanier will undergo X-rays of his ailing toe today.

Last season, his first in the NBA, Lanier was slowed by a right knee which had undergone surgery. Still, he averaged 15.6 points a game and was second on the Pistons in rebounding with 665.

The big pivotman also revealed that the Pistons had held a team meeting earlier Tuesday in an effort to smooth out some internal problems.

"Some of the guys were bickering at each other," he explained. "We have an abundance of forwards and some of them were unhappy about not playing enough."

"Also, in the pre-season games, we weren't looking out for each other on the court, and we wanted to establish more consistency. You've got to be self-sacrificing on the court and be consistent to make the playoffs. We weren't that way last season," when the Pistons won their first nine games but failed to make the playoffs.

Actually, they finished with a 45-37 record, their best since 1957, but had the misfortune of playing in the Midwest Division, where all four clubs played over .550 ball. They wound up in last place.

Dave Bing, the Pistons' scoring leader in each of his five seasons on the club, contributed 24 points against the Knicks, including 16 in the second half.

Reed, who underwent knee surgery after last season, paced the Knicks with 20 points, but snared only nine rebounds. Lucas, in his first regular-season game as a Knick, hit on only one of 12 field goal attempts. Over-all, the Knicks sank 36 of 94 field attempts for 38 per cent, compared to Detroit's 35-77 for 45 1/2 per cent.

"It was a combination of their defense and our not adjusting, keeping our poise and getting the good shot," said a disappointed Red Holzman, Knicks' coach.

Spencer Haywood, the former Olympic star playing his first full season in the NBA, collected 29 points and 14 rebounds in leading Seattle's romp over Buffalo. Haywood made 11-of-14 field goal attempts as the SuperSonics hit 54 per cent from the field.

Dick Snyder added 24 points for Seattle, while Jerry Chambers and Walt Hazzard, both acquired from Atlanta in an off-season trade, shared scoring honors for the Braves with 14 points apiece.

Cincinnati, sparked by Tom Van Arsdale, also was hot from the field, shooting 51 per cent. Van Arsdale netted 34 points, including 22 in the second half when the Royals pulled away.

Birds Want New Streak

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — "The streak is over, but we're not going to hang our heads," Frank Robinson said. "We'll just have to start over and win two in a row."

That's how the Baltimore outfielder analyzed the significance of the 5-1 loss in Tuesday's third game of the World Series that ended a 16-game winning streak for the Orioles.

"Sure, we would have liked to keep winning until the Series was over," Robinson said. "But we weren't thinking ahead like that."

"When you go into a World Series, you don't expect to win four straight ... and we didn't think that, even after winning the first two. If we had won the third game, then we would have been going for four in a row."

Robinson, who made two of Baltimore's three hits off Steve Blass—including a home run—had said after Baltimore took a 2-0 lead in games that playing in Pittsburgh might give the Pirates a boost.

"But it wasn't the crowd or the field that beat us," Robinson said after Tuesday's game. "It was Steve Blass, plus the fact that we gave the Pirates some chances again—and this time they capitalized on them."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver described it even more succinctly: "Blass was the total effect, and Bob Robertson applied the crusher."

Robertson, a right-handed slugger, hit a low screwball from Mike Cuellar over the right center field fence for a three-run homer in the seventh inning.

"It wasn't a bad pitch," Weaver said. "I guess he (Robertson) was looking for it."

Weaver visited the mound when the count reached 3-0 on Willie Stargell, the previous hitter, after Cuellar's throwing error had allowed Roberto Clemente to reach base.

"I wasn't thinking about taking him out," Weaver said. "I just told Mike he couldn't afford to walk Stargell with Robertson coming up. I told him to keep us in the game, and we'd win it."

Cuellar walked Stargell, however, on the next pitch.

Weaver contended Cuellar had pitched well prior to the homer, and noted that until then, "he had handled Robertson pretty good all day."

Weaver said the Orioles will use Pat Dobson, their fourth 20-game winner, as the starter tonight.

When someone asked if Robertson's homer indicated the Pirates were about ready to explode at the plate, Weaver snapped, "My pitchers can do the job. I'm confident of that."

Sports Briefs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Defending champion Rex Baxter and veteran Sam Snead head a field of 253 entries for the $100,000 National PGA club Professional Golf Tournament which opens Thursday.

The four-day tournament is limited to professionals who have not played more than 12 tour events this year. It marks the first time Snead has been eligible for the tournament. The 59-year-old slammer has won 84 PGA sanctioned events.

Other entries include veterans Tommy Bolt, Mike Souchak, Jerry Barber, Denny Shute, Tom Nieporte and Dick Hart.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Six World Series ticket scalpers were rounded up by a police posse outside Three Rivers Stadium Tuesday.

Ticket scalping violates a city ordinance and the maximum fine is $100.

It costs $25 to enter the U.S. Open golf championship.

Right Of Student Vote In School Community Held Important Goal

The chairman of the student voter registration campaign for Pitt County says that the objective of the effort is to register as many young people as possible within the county and see that college students here are able to vote in the primary this spring.

Rob Luisana, a student at East Carolina University, said at a news conference Tuesday, "We are hopeful of being able to register high school students by either moving the registration books into the high school, or by business high school students to the county courthouse."

Luisana said that the cooperation of county schools superintendent Arthur Alford had been received in the matter.

He pointed out that the ECU Student Government Association had worked with the League of Women Voters in registering young people who are not attending school. A form letter on voter registration has been sent to all 1971 high school graduates, the chairman stated, and the SGA will follow up the letters with personal phone calls.

Luisana noted that the most important goal "is to insure that college students not be denied the right to vote in the communities where they attend school."

He cited several reasons "why we believe students have both a legal and economic basis for being allowed to vote in their respective college towns."

The primary election does not allow for absentee ballots for students, he pointed out. Also, students within the county "add immensely to the revenue collected from the sales tax," Luisana continued. He asserted that students who rent homes in the area pay property taxes indirectly through their rent.

He added that the argument that voting students could indebted a town for large sums of money in bond elections is not valid because there is a limit set by the state on the amount a town may indebted itself.

Noting that students often find themselves involved in legal cases before juries here, Luisana said that by not being able to register, students are not able to serve and therefore, juries are unrepresentative of the community.

"Students have been included in the census figures for this community," he said. "From this census, representation in the state legislature is drawn. In other words, if students are not allowed to vote in this district then the community is over represented by 10,000 people."

Luisana said that to "disenfranchise people" on the basis of their student occupations is "just as unfair as disenfranchising people on the basis of their race."

Another Delay Given Williams

DETROIT (AP) — A 30-day postponement was granted Tuesday in the scheduled arraignment of black militant Robert Williams in a 1961 kidnap charge in North Carolina.

Williams' attorneys asked for the delay in order to prepare a writ of habeas corpus, a new tack in their fight to keep him from being extradited to Monroe, N.C. Michigan Gov. William Milliken has ordered the extradition and the Michigan Supreme Court has upheld the order.

Williams fled the United States after the incident and remained abroad, visiting Red China, Cuba and Tanzania among other countries, until 1969.

The charge against him is that he kidnaped a white couple during racial protests. Williams says he was only protecting them.

Long Hair Peril Around Machines

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—If men with long hair want to hang onto their locks, the Michigan Department of Labor suggests they begin wearing tight-fitting caps around machinery.

"On jobs around machinery, a tight-fitting cap or hat should be worn to keep long hair from becoming entangled in machines and literally scalping the worker," the department warned.

"Long hair, which was once a safety problem for only female employees, is now a hazard for the man on the job as well."

LAND SALES SOAR
HONG KONG (UPI)—The government's revenue from land sales increased to $20 million (U.S.) in fiscal 1969, a jump of more than 300 per cent compared with fiscal 1968.

MOVING DAY — Dr. Ake Sjöberg (right) of the University of Pennsylvania Museum in Philadelphia and Mrs. Ann K. Guinan, a student, prepare to move one of the more than 300 trays of clay tablets comprising the world's oldest library to new wing of museum. Tablets excavated by archeologists in the past century came from the city-state of Nippur in ancient Mesopotamia known as Iraq. Sjöberg, 47, has spent his scholarly career deciphering the cuneiform writings on the tablets. (AP Wirephoto)

New School Disputes Head Supreme Court Cases

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — New school desegregation disputes head a list of 21 cases granted review by the Supreme Court. Despite two vacancies, the court handed down more than 400 orders Tuesday, the first round of decisions of the 1971-72 term.

Swept aside were appeals challenging the constitutionality of U.S. military action in Southeast Asia and the government's "Philadelphia plan" for giving minority groups construction jobs.

The war test, brought by civil liberties lawyers, was rejected, 5 to 2. The court has consistently spurned suits that contend soldiers cannot be sent to Vietnam without a congressional declaration of war.

The Philadelphia plan, devised by the Labor Department in 1969, requires contractors in big, federally aided projects to hire a specified percentage of blacks and other minorities. Similar plans are in effect in the District of Columbia, San Francisco, St. Louis and Atlanta, and the idea is likely to spread.

The court unanimously turned down a group of contractors in the Chester County, Pa., area, who had claimed the plan violated the 1964 civil rights law by requiring hiring on the basis of race.

The new school cases to be taken up this winter involve the splitting off of parts of Southern School districts to limit Negro concentrations in some schools. The cases are from Halifax County, N.C., and Greenville County, Va. The Justice Department and the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund united in pressing the court to block the arrangement.

Without holding a hearing, meanwhile, the court ruled out strikes by the 2.6 million federal workers and acted to curb strikes by another 10.4 million state and municipal workers. The ban on federal strikes was contested by a postal workers' union, which said the government should be required to prove a compelling need in order to outlaw a particular strike.

A union of New York City municipal workers had challenged the no-strike provision of the New York State Taylor Law. Under it, unions are not allowed to represent public employees unless they affirm they will not advocate strikes.

In another action, the court set the stage for a ruling on the way the federal government cuts off disability benefits. The issue to be decided is whether the recipient must be given a hearing.

The case concerns Radie Wright, a District of Columbia man whose payments were cut off last year after government authorities discovered he had earned more than $4,000 working parttime in 1969. A federal court ruled neither Wright nor any other recipient could be dropped from the rolls without having a chance to examine the government's evidence and to give their side of the story.

A major labor case accepted for review Tuesday could define the circumstances under which a new employer must follow a union contract negotiated by the former owner. The dispute arose in 1967 when the Burns security firm took over from the Wackenhut Corp. a contract to guard a plant at a California airport.

Another labor dispute taken on by the court concerns the discharge of four workers by a Springfield, Mo., firm after they gave statements to a government agent investigating unfair-labor charges. The federal appeals court in St. Louis said workers who testified at hearings are protected but not those who simply provide statements. The National Labor Relations Board, in appealing, said the decision could hamper government investigations if allowed to stand.

The court took no action, meanwhile, on an appeal by former baseball star Curt Flood, challenging the contract used by all major league teams as a violation of federal anti-trust laws. No explanation was given for the delay.

PAINTING SHADES
NEW YORK (UPI)—It isn't difficult to paint window shades free-hand, to stencil or to spray paint on simple graphics with oil, acrylic or vinyl paints. Whatever the method, one should always work on a surface large enough to support shade until paint is dry.

BEAR WARNING
WEST VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—Residents of the Vancouver north shore have been warned not to get too familiar with visiting black bears. Two bears have been killed recently in residential sections of West Vancouver and a game official said more bears could be expected to appear in the area.

MAKE MINE VANILLA
NEW YORK (UPI)—Vanilla comes from the fruit or bean of a tropical orchid which thrives in the Madagascar area's hot, humid climate. It is a temperamental plant whose blossoms last only a day and must be pollinated by hand if they are to bear fruit. So say the Vanilla Growers of Madagascar. Reunion and the Comores.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE—Several children were hurt, but none seriously when this out-of-control pickup truck crashed through the walls of a day nursery in Greensboro where children were taking naps. Child who had been resting on cot at right center piled with blocks had just left for washroom when the truck hit. (AP Wirephoto)

Canada Has 'Built' U.S. In Economy

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — There is a "certain confusion in the public thinking" of Canadians in their criticism of the U.S. surcharge on imports, according to a high U.S. Commerce Department official.

Harold B. Scott, assistant secretary of commerce, made the statement during an interview as he attempted to counter statements by Canadian officials that an exception to the surcharge should be made for Canada.

Canada, it has been argued, has a special relationship with the United States and had already demonstrated its willingness to help the American dollar by floating her currency.

"True," said Scott, "but given the market forces at work, it is a question of whether they could have held their dollar. They were motivated partly by the desire to help, partly by market forces."

Canadians, he said, "have cause to claim a special relationship with the United States, and they have been successful in giving credence to this by being exempt from interest equalization taxes and other measures."

On the other hand, he continued, "Canada has developed an intense self-absorption, a preoccupation with the Canadian image as independent and distinct."

Scott carefully laid down Commerce Department thinking in regard to special exemptions for any nation from the surcharge, which the U.S. government claims is a temporary device to force permanent corrections in what it feels is an unfair trade relationship.

"If we are not going to point the finger at anyone," he said, "we had to apply the surcharge to all with recognition that it would be unfair to some and more unfair to some than to others."

"Too many countries have been building the U.S. market into their own economy," he said. "We have too many houseguests."

"Canada has been building an economy dependent on the U.S. market. They are sharing in our market. It is a conscious decision," Scott said.

To support his contention, Scott said that while U.S. exports to Canada make up 25 per cent of all U.S. exports, they constitute only one per cent of the nation's GNP. Canada's $11 billion of exports to the United States, by contrast, amount to 15 per cent of her GNP.

Scott also claimed, "It is just not true that, as Canadians say, the United States is indifferent to Canada. I will publicly say the facts belie this."

How can the United States be indifferent, he asked, to its biggest trading partner, its biggest foreign outlet for investment funds, and "presently and in the future most secure source of raw materials?"

While a common market with Canada is not being sought, he said, the two countries certainly can plan for mutual development of resources and industries.

Aviation Study In High Schools

NEW YORK (UPI) Nearly 1,100 U.S. high schools now offer courses in aviation as a formal part of their credit curriculum, according to a report from Cessna Aircraft Co. The courses are particularly popular in California, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Illinois, Minnesota, Ohio, Nebraska, New York and Washington State, in that order.

Malcontents In Moslem Society

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—Karachi's students have formed a group called "Malcontents" whose sole aim is to eliminate what they call outdated traditions and taboos in their Moslem society.

The first target, says the local press, is a ban against mixing of the sexes at the Karachi University campus. The group of 30 boys and 30 girls said it had a "progressive" outlook but its activities would be nonpolitical.

LAW-ABIDING MAJORITY

'Philadelphia Plan' Wins Battles But Fails Goals

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

The Philadelphia Plan, a federal program designed to get more blacks into skilled construction, appears to have failed so far.

It has won all its legal battles—the latest in the Supreme Court—but it has lost most tests where it really counts: on the building sites. The high court turned down on Tuesday an appeal by a group of contractors contesting the plan's legality. Some observers believe the decision was a shot in the arm for the program.

The plan originated here five years ago and was aimed at finding work in construction trades that had discriminated against blacks. It requires contractors in federally aided projects exceeding $500,000 to hire a specified percentage of blacks and other minorities. Last year the plan spread into other big minority markets such as Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Detroit. But it hasn't made much of an impact.

The plan here—where a third of the population is black—was designed to bring the ranks of six trade unions to 20 per cent minority members by 1974. With official figures unavailable, estimates put the number of blacks at less than 5 per cent of the total employed as iron workers, plumbers and pipefitters, steamfitters, sheet metal workers, electrical workers and elevator constructors.

"It has been a failure," said Andrew Freeman, executive director of the Philadelphia Urban League. A year ago he reported "only a handful of men have gotten jobs."

Robert Robinson, director of training for the Negro Trade Union Leadership Council, said he didn't know anyone "who has been put to work directly because of the Philadelphia Plan." A Department of Labor spokesman disagreed. He said in Washington that the administration was "quite pleased by the court's action" and promised figures on hiring soon, hopefully by the end of the week.

"We have just completed a survey of employment activity under the plan that indicates minority goals are being met," the spokesman said.

To date, 71 contracts totaling $248 million have been let under the plan in the five-county Philadelphia area. The total probably is more than $1 billion across the nation.

"The plan is still a flop," said Andrew Antonucci, executive secretary of the Construction Association of Eastern Pennsylvania, "because there just aren't that many minority people available who are trained, so we can't fill the slots the government says we should."

It was Antonucci's group that filed the Supreme Court suit. Contractors blame unions for not supplying qualified minority workers.

Robinson ridiculed this, insisting that contractors could put blacks on the job if they really wanted to.

"Some of the large contractors can dictate policy to the unions," Robinson said. "They don't have to follow the union's orders. If the unions can't supply the contractors with the men they want, they can always go out and hire the men they want, then ask the union to give them membership."

Freeman said contractors won't cooperate voluntarily "and we will have to keep the pressure on if we are to make it work now."

Charles Howser, executive director of the Philadelphia Urban Coalition, acknowledged that while results may be meager now the compulsory aspects will start turning things around. Both he and Freeman said there were indications the government now would deal more harshly with rebellious contractors and slow-acting unions.

$1 Million Loss To N.C. Crops

RALEIGH (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says Hurricane Ginger left about $10 million in crop damage as she swept across eastern North Carolina with 90-mile-an-hour winds and heavy rain.

Graham also said Tuesday that Ginger cut heavily into the state's predicted agricultural production for 1971.

The heaviest loss, he said, was to corn, soybeans, peanuts and cotton. The damage to these crops was put at $8 million.

Graham said revised crop forecasts issued by his department Tuesday dropped production outlooks for all crops. These included a decrease of three million bushels in the predicted corn harvest and a cut of one million bushels in soybean forecasts.

He said he had contacted the Farmers Home Administration and was "assured they will do everything they can to help these people with damage. Money is available for loan to farmers with heavy damage."

Graham said the loans would be made at 5 1/2 per cent interest and would be available regardless of a formal declaration that a county is a disaster area.

A county must have at least 25 farms with major damage to qualify for the designation, he said. Graham said five to seven counties would be declared disaster areas, but he did not name them.

He also said that salt water intrusion in the coastal areas has produced salinity problems.

"That's one reason why it is so difficult to make an accurate appraisal of the damage because you can't really determine this early how extensive the salinity problem is," he said.

Graham added that gypsum can be spread over fields to offset the salinity.

Ginger swept inland across Morehead City Sept. 29. She caused relatively minor wind damage, but heavy rain throughout eastern North Carolina produced major flooding in some areas, drowning crops and submerging communities in low-lying coastal counties.

Four Collisions In Greenville Tuesday

Three persons were reported injured and an estimated $5,450 property damage caused in a series of four traffic collisions here yesterday.

Police reported heaviest damage resulted from an 11:55 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Chestnut Street and Pennsylvania Avenue that involved vehicles driven by Stephen Gregory Layton, 16, of Route 3, Jacksonville and Dorothy Lucas Tripp of Route 5, Greenville.

Damage to the Layton car was set at $500 while damage to the Tripp auto was set at $2,500. Mrs. Tripp and one passenger in her car, as well as a passenger in the Layton auto were reported injured.

Layton was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign and speeding. Leroy Jackson Lloyd, 34, of 1112 Fairfax Ave. was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 12:15 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fourth and Pitt Streets.

Police identified the driver of the second car involved as Harold Sanford Heuston, 25, of Fayetteville.

Damage was estimated at $1,000 to the Lloyd vehicle and $600 to the Heuston car.

A 10:25 a.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Memorial Drive involved vehicles driven by William Carroll Davis, 35, of Davis and Edward Gray Dunn, 41, of 1119 South Washington St. Damage was placed at $300 to the Davis car and $200 to the Dunn vehicle.

No charges were made.

Lee Melvin Moore Jr., 27, of 1230 Battle St. was charged with having improper brakes when his vehicle collided with a utility pole on 11th Street, 30 feet East of the Pitt Street intersection about 10:50 p.m.

Damage to the car was reported at $350.

Seeks Rates On Forecast

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. President Carl Horn Jr. says electric utilities should be allowed to base their proposed rate hikes on predicted future costs instead of on past financial experience.

Horn's statement came Tuesday as the North Carolina Utilities Commission began a hearing on a proposed 11.75 per cent rate increase for Duke Power.

The rate request includes continuation of a 7.1 per cent interim emergency rate hike granted to Duke effective July 1, plus an additional 4.65 per cent increase.

Horn told the commission that basing rates on anticipated costs could eliminate the necessity for such interim rate hikes in the future.

He said he would advocate this type of rate computation "when Duke Power Co. files its next rate case, which must inevitably come in 1972."

Horn said if the firm does not receive the 11.75 per cent increase, the effects "would be quite grave."

Without the rate increase, he said, Duke's alternatives would be to "default on current payments coming due on the construction program, which is unthinkable, or...cancel existing orders for generation and transmission equipment scheduled for delivery in future years and lay off a portion of the work force."

Horn was cross-examined for more than two hours by Edward Hipp, commission staff attorney, and Deputy Atty. Gen. Jean Benoy, who intervened on behalf of the public.

The hearings were to continue for several days.

Peak Mountain Colors Coming

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The weekend of Oct. 23-24 is expected to be the peak weekend in the North Carolina mountains for fall color.

A spokesman for the Blue Ridge Parkway Association said some color is beginning to show already around Mount Pisgah, Soco Gap and Craggy Gardens. Leaf-watchers say the changing colors should be well under way by the end of this week but not at their peak until the following weekend.

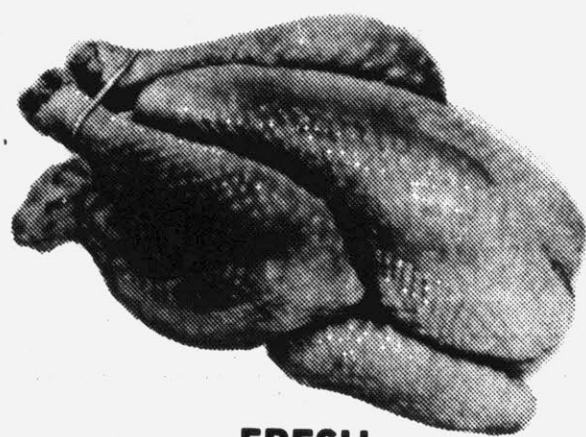

PIANO PLEA

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Donald Moore, a show promoter, says he has good reason to appeal to the authorities to repair an old concert piano at the Victoria Theater. Apart from complaints from "all the great pianists, the piano produces a series of plinks and more or less identical plunks," he said.

Negative View Is For Failure

Sandra is unpopular because of her negative outlook. Imitate my coed student and start comparing yourself with the less fortunate around you! Failures in life often have all the assets of the very successful folks — except perspective! So heed Christ's advice to the unsuccessful fishermen!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case R-586: Sandra F., aged 20, is a negative thinker. "Dr. Crane," she began, "is something wrong with me?" "For I don't enjoy life the way my girl friends do."

"Every day I get irritated by this or that until I feel unhappy. "It started this morning with my alarm clock.

"Just in the middle of a pleasant dream, it began clanging like a fire engine and woke me up."

"So that alarm clock is a good symbol of the many things I encounter that make me caustic and critical of my co-workers. "Our Personnel Director at the office says I am very unpopular so he urges me to change my outlook."

"But how?"

Imitate Scrooge

Focus on pleasant, happy ideas and soon you will be happy.

Act the way you'd like to be and soon you'll be the way you act!

Those are surefire axioms of Applied Psychology. If Sandra will thus realize that each morning here in America 1,000 people can't waken to the ringing of their alarm because they have died in their sleep, her perspective will widen!

She'll begin to feel happy that she still has health, plus good hearing!

One of my coed Northwestern University students was irate at her daddy and soured on life, because he refused to give her $25 for a new pair of shoes to wear to the Prom.

Later that week, she visited a hospital where she saw a teenage girl about her own age who had just lost both feet in an auto crash.

"Dr. Crane," she volunteered in class next day, "I suddenly woke up to what a selfish, negative outlook I had held."

"For here was a lovely girl who didn't have any feet at all, yet I had been angry at Daddy because he didn't buy me a new pair of shoes!"

So the answer to unpopular, critical people who gripe and complain is merely "Positive Perspective."

Jesus came down to the lake

one morning to find that his Apostles had fished all night without catching anything.

Did Christ chew out those fishermen for their old, antiquated boat?

Did He ridicule their patched nets?

Or sneeringly suggest they go back to college for a "refresher course" in piscatorial science!

Not on your life!

He merely told them to shift their outlook 90 degrees and throw their nets on the other side of the boat.

Then they landed an avalanche of fish!

Failures in life are often just as handsome and healthy and well educated as the successful folks.

But they have figuratively been "fishing out of the wrong side of the boat," so they need to follow Christ's positive advice and gain a new viewpoint.

You can win friends galore merely by realizing that all people have this motto tattooed across their chests:

"I WANT TO FEEL IMPORTANT."

Pav them an honest compliment and you thus make a view you in a more friendly v-

South fell prey to a brilliant, yet unorthodox thrust at the opening gun in today's hand. Altho West's inspiration led to the upset of his opponent's three no trump contract—we are not inclined to heap blame on the latter even tho his partner's post mortem analysis revealed a superior line of play.

West pondered at length before making his opening lead. With only three high card points in his own hand, it was at once obvious that his partner would have to produce the bulk of the defensive tricks to set the contract. This reasoning led West to the conclusion that he must capitalize on the advantage of the opening lead to hit East's suit in order to have any chance at all.

Over North's opening bid of one diamond, it would have been easy for East to have overcalled in a major, if he had a biddable suit. On the other hand, a vulnerable bid of two clubs, is not as attractive, even if East holds a five card suit. [Observe that had East actually bid two clubs, a double by South would have harvested an 800 point profit on the deal by doubling.]

West chose to lead the ten of clubs and this proved to be a lethal thrust. East covered with the jack and South won the trick with the queen.

The latter could count eight top tricks—three spades, three hearts, one diamond and one club. The best hope for a ninth appeared to lay in the diamond suit. If either the king or queen of diamonds is located in the West hand, South can develop a second diamond trick by taking repeated finesesses.

So reasoning, declarer led the jack of diamonds at trick two. When West followed suit with the deuce, the seven was played from dummy. East was in with the king of diamonds and he proceeded to cash four clubs and score a 100 point profit on the deal.

North promptly noted that his partner could have made the hand by merely splitting out the spades, for dummy's long card in that suit provides a ninth trick.

South countered by observing that it took a five-one club division to defeat him, which appeared highly unlikely from the opening lead.

North said, in reply, "All you had to do to find out, was to return a club at trick two. If the clubs are four-two, you have time to test diamonds—as you chose to do. If clubs are five-one, as actually proves to be the case, then you must fall back on an even division in spades after they take four club tricks."

"Your timing was a bit faulty."

Order Equal Pay For Equal Work

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Michigan has a new law requiring employers to pay equal pay for equal work regardless of the sex of the employee—a measure designed to eliminate wage discrimination based solely on sex.

In signing the bill, Gov. William G. Milliken said it "is a significant step forward in guaranteeing to the women of this state the same opportunities for choosing their own life style that men now possess."

Country Music Rewarded Vito

By BILL RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If Vito Pelletieri had known he needed glasses, he said, "I might have been a lawyer and died of ulcers and boredom 20 years ago."

But Vito, nearing 83, was born a musician, you might say and for 37 years, he has been making some sort of order out of the organized chaos backstage at the Grand Ole Opry.

For 37 years now, his efforts have been rewarded with autographed pictures, smiles, letters and thanks from a procession of Grand Ole Opry stars — past and present.

And Tuesday night, those efforts were rewarded at the annual awards dinner of Broadcast Music Inc. Pelletieri received a special commendation of excellence as the "man who made it his personal responsibility to see that the Grand Ole Opry performer was presented in his proper light."

Mrs. Frances Preston, BMI vice president, in presenting the award said, "he is loved by all his fellow workers... made up of generations of people who have and still do love him."

With a name like Pelletieri, Vito sounds about as country as Chicago or Jersey City. But he was born in Nashville, the son of a bandleader named Charlie Pelletieri and the nephew of another bandleader named Emile Pellittieri.

When he was 10, he joined Uncle Emile's band — against the wishes of Papa Charlie, who wanted him to become a concert violinist. And a musician he stayed until 1934, when the depression hit.

That was when George Hay, the "Solemn Old Judge" who was first emcee of the Opry, put Vito to work helping him put together the Saturday night Opry.

Of the country musicians who appeared that first night, Pelletieri recalls: "A bunch of them would come up in their overalls and straw hats, holding their instruments, and I'd ask them what they called themselves and they'd say they didn't call themselves anything."

"So I'd have to holler over at the judge and say, 'What do you want to call this bunch, Mr. Hay?' And he'd say, 'Aw, let's call them the Gully Jumpers or the Fruit Jar Drinkers... or something.' That's the way the Fruit Jar Drinkers got named."

"The Opry is as simple as sunshine," Pelletieri recalls Hays telling him. But that first Saturday night was too simple to suit Vito — and he persuaded WSM, which still owns the show, to produce it in 15-minute segments, a format followed ever since.

That got rid of some of Vito's headaches, but he still had others, "and I'd go to the doctor about them and he'd say, 'Aw, hell, you're probably just drinking too much.'"

"But do you know what was causing those headaches?" he asked. He took off his thick glasses, turning them over in his hand.

"These. If I'd known I needed glasses, I might have been a lawyer and died of ulcers and boredom 20 years ago."

Gradually, Pelletieri managed to get a little order out of the Grand Ole Opry. But reducing the Saturday night winging, to 15-minute segments, he at least could tell various groups when they would appear.

He also suggested that WSM might sell sponsors on buying those 15-minute segments — a suggestion, he said, that was greeted initially thus: "Aw, nobody wants to buy hillbilly music."

There were 80 country music songwriters and 56 country music publishers aboard for the BMI awards ceremony at which Pelletieri was honored Tuesday night who are glad somebody does.

White will head a new effort to raise funds for enlargement of the school's scholarship program and other activities.

Making the announcement, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECU President, said White has been a "consistent supporter" of the School of Music. He said he was especially pleased that White has consented to lead the fund drive.

The development drive will be coordinated through Dr. Everett Pittman, Dean of the ECU School of Music.

Chopping boards are great helps in food preparation. But they need thorough cleaning to prevent any chance of bacteria spread. Scrub well after cutting fish, meat or poultry and always wash the board before using it for something else.

TO INSTITUTE Dr. Keith C. Hudson of East Carolina University will attend a regional institute sponsored by the University Council for Educational Administration (UCEA) Oct. 20-21 in Chapel Hill.

Both players have won one game apiece and there have been two draws. A win counts one point and a draw a half point, with a total of 6½ points needed to win the tournament.

For Fischer, the draw was a minor victory, having completely equalized the game with the black pieces. This was the first time in the match that a relatively simple game developed so quickly.

After an English opening, the game turned into the Maroczy variation of the Sicilian defense by a transposition of moves. White has an advantage in space in this variation, but the opening has been thoroughly analyzed and chances for both sides are considered equal.

As played, the queens were exchanged early and a few moves later the rooks and knights also disappeared. Based on Fischer's past record of playing every game to a finish if there is any chance of victory, the American was expected to continue. But he offered a draw and petrosian immediately accepted.

Nixon Was Largely Ignored By Kremlin On His Previous Visit

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When Richard Nixon last went to Moscow, the Kremlin ignored him. And then there was the time that he and Nikita Khrushchev stood toe-to-toe in the kitchen debate, one of the landmark exchanges in Cold War annals.

The President announced Tuesday he will attend a Moscow summit next May after his visit to China, marking his first return to the Soviet capital since March of 1967.

On that occasion, while eyeing the Republican presidential nomination the following year, Nixon said the trip was needed "to give me a feeling of what's going on in the whole world."

But upon his arrival, he was denied permission to meet with Soviet leaders, treated instead as just another tourist. Said Nixon: "A government without an opposition is apparently not willing to recognize the opposition party in another country."

He went on, however, to visit several other Russian cities, including Alma Ata near the Chinese border, and said he came away "tremendously impressed" by "the friendliness of the Soviet people."

Nixon also made a "private" visit to Moscow in 1965. But by far his most remembered journey to the Kremlin was the one he made as vice president in July of 1959.

Ostensibly, the purpose of that trip was to open an American exhibit at a Moscow fair. But there were overtones aplenty, such as expectations that Khrushchev might be invited to the United States, and—on the cooler side—the simultaneous proclamation by Congress and President Eisenhower of "Capitve Nations Week," a deliberate, anti-Communist slam.

As Khrushchev and Nixon toured the exhibit—the most noted stop was at a model U.S. kitchen—a polite-enough discussion over washing machines exploded into a debate over the world's dirty linen.

In a recurring theme during the two-hour exchange, each accused the other of making threatening statements. At times Khrushchev grew red-faced and wagged a finger under Nixon's nose. Nixon, after fumbling occasionally in a slow start, remained in better humor, frequently smiling.

Khrushchev's hottest point of attack was the U.S. foreign bases circling the Soviet Union. "The one that is for putting an end to bases on foreign lands is for peace. The one who is against this is for war," he said.

Nixon replied: "I don't believe the cause of peace is helped by your reiterating... that you have more strength than we have, because that is a threat, too."

In the end, both apologized. Nixon for being "a poor host" at the U.S. exhibit and Khrushchev for speaking so frankly. At that point Nixon recalled some of his political campaigns and told Khrushchev's interpreter: "Tell him I've been insulted by experts."

Forecast Large N.C. Corn Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Agriculture says North Carolina corn production will average 64 bushels per acre this season and will total 95½ million bushels.

The department's forecast also said the state's soybean yield will average 26 bushels an acre for a total of 24½ million bushels, while its peanut yield will be 2,450 pounds per acre and will total 409 million pounds.

RECEIVES SERVICE AWARD — Roy R. Beck, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, was presented a 30-year length-of-service award at the SCS annual awards ceremony in Raleigh Friday. Presenting the award is Jesse L. Hicks, state conservationist. Beck was one of nine employees who were recognized for 30 or more years of service with the U. S. Department of Agriculture in North Carolina.

Total Tobacco Production Forecast Sees Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department Tuesday forecast total tobacco production this year at 1,799 million pounds, 15 million pounds more than the forecast a month ago.

The forecast compares with total leaf production of 1,906 million pounds in 1970 and 1,804 millions pounds in 1969.

The department's crop reporting board said yield prospects for all tobacco are 2,114 pounds per acre, up 17 pounds from Sept. 1, but eight pounds below the 2,122 pounds of last year.

The Oct. 1 estimate for flue-cured tobacco was 1,098 million pounds, an increase of 10 million pounds from the previous month. Increased production in types 11, 12 and 13 more than offset a decline in type 14. The indicated yield per acre for flue-cured was 2,048 pounds compared to last year's yield of 2,042 pounds.

Early production was forecast at 545 million pounds, two million pounds more than last month, but 15 million below last year.

Increased production estimated for Tennessee accounted for this increase. The outlook in Kentucky remained good. The early yield was estimated at 2,513 pounds per acre, 77 pounds less than the 2,590 pound average of last year.

Southern Maryland type 32 production was forecast as 27.5 million pounds, which is unchanged from a month ago but slightly below the 27.6 million pounds produced in 1970.

Production of fire-cured, types 21-23, was forecast at 41.6 million pounds, up two per cent from a month ago. Yield prospects at 1,779 pounds per acre were 38 pounds above last month. Production of dark air-cured tobacco types 35-37, was placed at 17.1 million pounds, about the same as last month. A yield of 1,863 pounds per acre is expected, which compares with 1,780 pounds a year ago.

All cigar-type tobacco production was estimated at 68.6 million pounds, up about two million pounds from a month ago, but well below the 71.6 million pounds produced in 1970. An average yield of 1,810 pounds per acre was forecast, up 39 pounds from a month ago and eight pounds more than last year's yield of 1,802 pounds.

The estimates for the various types of tobacco by states, along with last year's production follow:

Type 31, ear.y:

Soliciting, But Has No Permit

RALEIGH (AP) — A North Carolina official says a Texas minister is soliciting money from Tar Heels through the mail without a license, but the state has no way to enforce the law which forbids this. The minister was identified as the Rev. Eugene Ewing, who operates out of the Cathedral of Compassion in Dallas, Tex.

Ed Edgerton, chief of the solicitation licensing division of the state Department of Social Services, said Tuesday that Ewing recently mailed an offer to thousands of persons in the state for "God's Gold Book Plans" for $4 a month.

Ewing purchased a list of 620,000 Tar Heel names from the Department of Motor Vehicles for $4,249.38. Laeron Roberts, head of the department's data processing division, said the minister ordered the names and addresses of owners of 1955 to 1964 motor vehicles.

Edgerton said his department informed Ewing last December he was in violation of the law, but Ewing did not reply.

"We have heard nothing else about the man until just recently when he promoted a massive statewide mailing," Edgerton said. "We plan to again send him a letter" along with forms for a license.

The Social Services Department has the authority to request an accounting of the organization before issuing a license.

"However, if he should refuse to provide an accounting, we can only put out a press notice informing the public of what is happening," Edgerton said. "We just don't have that strong a law that we can do much to stop this type of activity."

Doug Kearns, an investigative agent in the attorney general's consumer protection division, said the office had received about 40 inquiries about Ewing in one week.

"This isn't the normal way a religious organization gets money," Kearns said. "Since this organization is operating out of Dallas, Tex., there is nothing we can do to compel it to stop the mailings. Activities in Texas are out of our jurisdiction."

Name Scott A Member

DURHAM (AP) — The North Carolina League of Municipalities has recognized Gov. Bob Scott's actions in the field of municipal affairs by naming him an honorary member of the organization.

It was the first time a Tar Heel governor had received the honor. Only eight other persons have been named honorary members in the league's 62-year history.

The action came during the final session of the group's three-day annual convention Tuesday.

Also, the league elected Greensboro Mayor Pro Tem Jack Elam to succeed Scotland Neck Mayor Ferd Harrison as president. Burlington Mayor William Beamon was named first vice president; Wilmington city councilman Luther Cromartie, second vice president; and Morganton Mayor Paul Cash, third vice president.

Scott, who was not at the convention, is expected to receive his honorary membership at the league's convention in Greensboro next year.

The league cited four of Scott's accomplishments which affect municipalities: his creation of the Department of Local Affairs; his recommendation that the cities' share of the gas tax be doubled, which was enacted by the 1971 General Assembly; his recommendation of state matching grants for municipal sewerage facilities; the first such state grants ever made to local governments; and his "leading role as a spokesman on behalf of revenue-sharing."

Annual NAACP Session Slated

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The 28th annual convention of the North Carolina conference of the NAACP begins Thursday in Winston-Salem.

The three-day meeting's theme is "The Political Action Role of the NAACP in the 1970s."

The chairman of the NAACP's national board of directors, Bishop Stephen Gill Spottswood, will speak at the first session at First Baptist Church. Gloster B. Current, national director of branches and field administration of the organization in New York City, will give the keynote address Friday night.

Seventy per cent of the people in the United States live in two per cent of the total land area of the country.

During training, Harden learned the techniques of fire and tactics of a rifle squad, patrolling, individual combat operations, landmine warfare, land navigation, communications, and the firing of the M-16 Rifle and M-60 Machine Gun.

Carlton E. Joyner, son of Mrs. Margaret O. Joyner of Greenville, was promoted to specialist

Pvt. Ralph M. Brackett Jr., whose wife, Nancy, lives in Greenville, has completed eight weeks of advanced individual training at the Army Armor Center, Ft. Knox, Ky. During the training, Brackett learned the duties of a tank crewman, including the firing of the tank's armament and small weapons. He also received instruction in field radio operation, map reading and tank maintenance and repair. The private entered the Army in May and completed basic training at Ft. Knox.

Students Dread

Parental Scorn

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Parents of college freshmen can help the students by letting them know they can stumble—change career plans or get a bad grade—without losing face, advises Arthur S. Goldberg, associate dean of the University of Rochester's College of Arts and Sciences.

"Fears of parental anger and disappointment are very real," according to Goldberg. "Students perceive the college experience as a test of their worth as human beings, and fear that any stumbling or sign of indecision suggests they are not worth very much."

Buying Home Keyed To Individual Circumstances

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
NEW YORK (UPI)—The critical factor in buying or selling a home, as in so many other things, is timing.

But, says Edward L. Blau, president of Blau Mortgage Co., Newark, N.J., a family's decision, concerning housing should be based primarily on human considerations rather than on any attempt to guess what the housing market and mortgage lending rate will be in a couple of years.

"While prospects for profit are, of course, the main consideration in managing a real estate investment portfolio, this does not hold true in the case of family housing," Blau said. "The important thing for the home seeker to remember is that housing needs vary with the individual family, and housing needs change as a family grows and changes."

In his view, Blau said, financial considerations such as the mortgage interest rate or the price of a home, although important, should not take priority when a family comes to choose the type of housing best suited to its personal needs.

For most families, Blau said, home ownership is emotionally satisfying, aside from any economic considerations. For some, home ownership is not the answer and for them, too, personal choice, not economic consideration, should be the answer.

As long as a family can afford the housing it desires, he believes, the important thing is what will make for a satisfying life, rather than what is the best move from a financial standpoint. Obviously, compromises often are necessary.

A couple with a large family of children and moderate income, in this day of small apartments and high rentals, might have to settle for a house no matter how they'd enjoy a city apartment. Another couple, just starting out in life, with limited income, might have to make do with a rented efficiency apartment no matter how they longed for a big house in the country.

Within the obvious limitations, however, even the question of what a particular family can afford for housing is a matter of individual choice. One family with ample discretionary income might choose to live as simply as possible in order to indulge a taste for travel, or expensive hobbies. Another with limited income might stretch the budget for a house seemingly beyond their means, gladly making up for it by economies elsewhere.

The choice should be a personal one. As an extreme example, Blau suggested, one childless couple, both wrapped up in careers, who enjoy the pleasures of the city, eating out, extensive travel, might find a house a possession which would weigh heavily rather than give enjoyment, regardless of any economic benefits that might be involved. For them, life in an apartment hotel might be expensively in a small apartment.

What to consider when making a house decision? Blau has some suggestions:

First, decide whether you, at this point in your life, prefer an apartment or single family house; whether you want to rent or own. There are options for any combination of choices.

Then consider realistically the limitations of the budget. Can you do what you want to on your present income? If not, how can you work toward your goal?

A young couple, still finishing school, living on an allowance from family or Veterans Administration, supplemented perhaps by part time jobs, might have to make do with a furnished room, no matter what.

The same couple, out of school, just getting started in the business world, with limited income and not yet sure of where, much less how, they want to live, might choose an unfurnished efficiency or one bedroom apartment.

The same young couple, getting established, still on a small income but with a growing nest egg, looking forward to a family, might try for a larger apartment, or might look into a co-op or condominium, perhaps a mobile home or small house.

With a youngster getting ready for school, perhaps another on the way, most young families will be ready to buy their first home. At this point, Blau suggests, if you find your tastes tend to champagne, your budget to beer, compromise. Settle for a less expensive home now, rather than wait for interest rates or prices to come down, or your income to go up. You can always improve or trade up.

For the established family, already in a home of their own, the question may be one of a move—to a bigger and better house, or to a different community. Sometimes, of course, the move is dictated by circumstances. If it is not, Blau suggests, some questions should be asked.

Does the family want to leave its present neighborhood, even for a larger, more expensive home, or do ties of school and friendship mean more? Would it be possible and sensible to upgrade the present house?

Would a move mean longer travel, more difficult shopping, added chores that might become onerous? Or would a move offer new opportunities to the family, better schools, recreational facilities, social life?

For the older couple, family grown and gone, the decision is not always cut and dried either. For some, the answer is a condominium or co-op.

FISHING FOR SAVINGS

Fish is nearly always an economical main dish. It is easy to prepare and there's little waste. There are many varieties to choose from with good buys all year long.

Fish is an excellent alternate for meat — high in protein, vitamins and minerals; low in calories. Here are some common descriptions:
Whole are just as they come from the water. Head, tail and fins often intact.

Steaks are about 1-inch thick cross-sections from large dressed fish. A cross-section of backbone is usually the only bone. Ready-to-cook.

Filletts are boneless sides of the fish, cut lengthwise away from the backbone. May or may not be skinless. Ready-to-cook.

Portions are uniform pieces cut from frozen fillets into portions weighing about 1-1/2 ounces. Available frozen raw or breaded and fried.

Sticks are made the same as portions except cut into 3-inch sticks weighing about 1 ounce. Available frozen, breaded, ready to heat.

Frozen fish dinners and complete entrees also save money and time.

Each Night A Prayer For Man Who Died For Him

By NICHOLAS LILLITOS
Associated Press Writer
BRZEG, Poland (AP) — Every night Franciszek Gajowniczek prays for the soul of a man who died for him in Auschwitz, the Nazi concentration camp where four million persons perished in World War II.

And next Sunday, in Rome, Gajowniczek will watch as Pope Paul VI lists that man among the blessed, a step toward sainthood in the Roman Catholic Church.

Thousands will attend the ceremony. But for Gajowniczek it will be a very personal moment as his mind races back 30 years to that grim day when a Nazi official decreed he die an agonizing death with nine others.

Seconds before guards were about to take him away, a Polish Franciscan monk voluntarily asked the Nazi officer to let him die in Gajowniczek's place.

The priest's request was granted and for his martyrdom Pope Paul will pronounce his beatification. His name was Maksymilian Kolbe.

"Being so close to death I was shocked when Father Kolbe stepped out and offered his life for me," recalls 70-year-old Gajowniczek at his village home in Brzeg. "One side of me was happy that I wasn't going to be killed but it was heartbreaking knowing that someone else would die."

"I was astounded that the vice commandant, a Col. Fritsch, agreed to let me go. Fritsch was so hard that for him to kill a man was like killing a fly."

NEW YORK (UPI)—What influences aging? "Only genetic factors and assaults by the environment," says Kathleen J. Halberg, recreation consultant for Indiana State Board of Health. "Aging starts the day you're born and retirement days are just one stage in the continuum."

The human body reaches its maximum degree of efficiency during the early 20s. After this, there is a gradual loss of speed, strength, endurance and coordination.

him to kill a man was like killing a fly."

Aging Begins On Day You're Born

NEW YORK (UPI)—What influences aging? "Only genetic factors and assaults by the environment," says Kathleen J. Halberg, recreation consultant for Indiana State Board of Health. "Aging starts the day you're born and retirement days are just one stage in the continuum."

The human body reaches its maximum degree of efficiency during the early 20s. After this, there is a gradual loss of speed, strength, endurance and coordination.

"There was an escape from our block house, which contained about 2,000 prisoners. The Germans had a rule that 10 prisoners would die a hunger death if escapers weren't caught."

Gajowniczek paused to sip a glass of water. His prison number, tattooed on his left arm, is still clearly visible—5659.

"We were told the escaper had not been caught and 10 would be selected for the hunger death. Fritsch then walked slowly past our ranks pointing at a prisoner ever so often, saying 'this one ... this one.'"

"When he stood facing me I knew that was the end. I was about the fifth to be pointed at."

Father Kolbe "broke file, smiled and stood before the commandant with his cap off as prescribed by camp rules," he recalls.

Fritsch angrily asked: "What does this Polish swine want?" Kolbe: "I am a Catholic priest, rather elderly. I want to go instead of that chosen prisoner. He has a wife and children and is needed by his family."

Gajowniczek remembers "I never even had a chance to thank him. You weren't allowed to utter a word—I tried to thank him with my eyes. Father Kolbe was completely calm."

From various reports put together it appears Father Kolbe and the nine other condemned men were placed inside a cell without windows or furniture. No food or water was given them. Father Kolbe inspired them to sing hymns and consoled them whenever he could.

Two weeks later, only four men, including Father Kolbe, were alive. By this time the Nazis needed the hut so they sent in a medical orderly who gave the four poisonous injections. Father Kolbe, the last to die, was 47.

The present capitol in Oklahoma City went into service in 1918.

Dirty Picture Contest Begun

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—Two reputable public organizations have announced a dirty picture contest open to everyone in a five-county area.

It is sponsored jointly by the local TB association and the pollution control agency for the five counties. They're seeking photos of the dirtiest air pollution conditions in the area.
