Consumer Bill Adopted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's consumer aide, pointing to the House seal of approval, is recommending that the Senate buy a consumer-protection plan containing what promoters promise will be a triple treat for the public.

But consumer advocate Ralph Nader's hard-core House loyalists, failing Thursday in their widely advertised attempt to expand the scope of a proposed new consumer-protection product.

The House's 344-44 passage of the bill essentially in the same form offered by the Government Operations Committee was applauded by Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's special assistant for consumer affairs, as "an important victory for all consumers. "This landmark legislation ... will provide the consumer effective representation on matters that affect his health, his safety and his pocketbook. The wide margin of support reflects the judgment of the House that the committee bill is a strong measure and refutes the contrary claims of the few remaining critics," Mrs. Knauer said.

But Nader said the House action means no strong bill will be passed by Congress this year. Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., leader of the Nader forces, called the legislation a skillfully designed deception. "Mediocrity and compromise won out over excellence and courage," Rosenthal said. "It was a victory for the Nixon administration and anticonsumer special interests."

Textile Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has concluded agreements to restrain the flow of noncotton textiles exported by Japan, Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong to the United States, U.S. officials announced today.

It marks the end of a three-year effort by the Nixon administration to curb the flow of synthetic and woolen textiles to the United States.

Intensive efforts have been underway to reach the restraint agreement by today—the deadline set by President Nixon for imposition of quotas on imports if no agreement had been reached.

'Civilianizing' Step Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense sources predict newly re-elected South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu will try to ease military men out of the government in a bid for broader support.

They said Thieu, who originally came to political power as an Army general, would have to move cautiously and slowly in "civilianizing" his regime lest he run the risk of a coup. Some Pentagon sources said about a dozen South Vietnamese generals hold the key.

Overall, Thieu is said to want to minimize the military role in civil affairs. This could mean a change in the present system under which Army officers serve as province and district chiefs.

Five Arrested For Possession Of Homemade Deadly Weapons

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Three men were arrested in Wilmington and two in Rocky Mount Thursday on charges of possessing weapons "of mass death and destruction." Officers said they confiscated 24 homemade devices for firing shotgun shells.

Special Investigator Charlie Favre of the federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms office in Rocky Mount said the arrests were part of a massive undercover investigation in the Wilmington and Rocky Mount areas.

Local, state and federal law enforcement officers took part in the investigation and arrests, he said.

Officers in Wilmington, which has been the scene of recent racial violence, declined to link any of those arrested with the Rights of White People organization, but Favre said both men arrested in Rocky Mount were ROWP members. Another ATF spokesman, Glenn Fleming, said the Jacksonville home of ROWP president Leroy Gibson was searched Thursday but nothing was found.

The weapons were described as stainless steel tubes fitted with a sliding outer tube. A shotgun shell could be fired by sliding the tubes together. A spokesman said the tubes were in 14- and 16-gauge.

Favre said officers believed the tubes were being made in Wilmington.

Arrested in the Wilmington area, the agents said, were Donald Glenn Langley, 42, and Jerry Harding Smith, both of Wilmington, and Kenneth Everett Henry, 40, who was taken into custody at a motel outside the city.

The ROWP members arrested in Rocky Mount were identified by Favre as Romus O. Parker, 43, and William Edward Harts, 43, both of Rocky Mount.

Favre said three weapons were found in Rocky Mount and the rest in Wilmington.

Hear More Than 50 Persons At Inquiry

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
A subcommittee of the North Carolina Advisory Committee to the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights heard more than 50 witnesses at a closed session here yesterday.

The advisory committee group was in Greenville to gather facts on recent unrest in the county which stemmed from the August 6 shooting of a black by a Highway Patrolman on a rural road South of Ayden.

The Rev. W. W. Finlator, chairman of the committee, said the advisory group would gather facts, would interpret the testimony, and share the information with the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

He added that a public statement on the hearing might be made later.

First witnesses heard yesterday were Highway Patrol Commander E. C. Guy, Troop A commanding officer Capt. R. F. Williamson and assistant commissioner of motor vehicles John Lockamy.

In addition to these and a number of civil rights workers — including Golden Frinks, field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference — a delegation from Ayden, and Farmville officials appeared.

Civil rights workers, many of whom have participated in demonstrations in the county, said their testimony dealt with unfair and harrasing treatment they have allegedly been subjected to.

Although members of the press, as well as others, were barred from the hearing while testimony was being heard, representatives from Farmville gave newsmen a copy of the statement presented to the committee, by mayor pro-tem J. I. Morgan.

Morgan said the committee was welcome "...in carrying out your purposes of finding out the truth as to the responsibility for the general unrest and distress now existing in Pitt County."

Noting that "good relations...existed prior to the 25th day of September," the official said "neither the town officials nor any representative of the citizens has registered any complaint of discrimination or denial of civil rights prior..." to that date.

He said on September 25, "George Winston Kirby of Wilmington appeared..." met with city officials and "stated that he was a representative of the SCLC and desired a permit to picket and parade..."

The reasons for the request, Morgan said, were "to picket the merchants...to bring pressure on them so that they would bring pressure on Governor Scott to do something about Billy Day, who killed a black man near Ayden; to sell papers and solicit money...and to help blacks and poor white people."

Morgan said Kirby "cited discriminatory practices in chain stores in areas outside Pitt County," and "stated that they intended to march and parade whether a permit was granted or not; that they intended to break the law as this was part of their movement."

A permit was granted, he told the committee, and picketing was held, "however representatives of the SCLC appeared outside stores and accosted black citizens, shoving them, threatening them, and demanding that they purchase no goods from white owned or operated stores."

Other incidents occurred inside stores Morgan said, that caused disruptions, and one black was charged with "phoning in a bomb threat to the Farmville Central High School."

Additional incidents have also occurred, including the stopping of school buses to distribute literature, and attempts to disrupt Farmville schools, Morgan pointed out.

"The citizens of the town of Farmville have acted with restraint, patience and good will," Morgan said, even though "tension, fear and anxiety have racked the community" since the coming of the SCLC.

"The administration of the Town of Farmville respectfully requests the North Carolina Advisory Committee to the United States Commission on Civil Rights to take every action available to it to restrain the agitators who have so maliciously disrupted the good progress being made by the black and white citizens of Farmville," Morgan's statement concluded.

Lee's Tobacco Warehouse Burned To The Ground Late Last Night

FARMVILLE—Lee's Tobacco Warehouse here burned to the ground last night.

Investigation as to whether the fire which began in the rear of the filled warehouse was set is underway.

Farmville Fire Chief H. P. Norman said his department was assisted by Departments from Fountain, Bell Arthur, Ayden, Black Jack, and Winterville. The blaze began at 10:30 p.m. and was not extinguished until 2:45 a.m.

Norman said there was never any danger of the blaze's spreading because wind conditions were favorable. There were a few explosions during the fire, probably caused by ignition of the gasoline tanks of vehicles in the warehouse, he said.

Estimated damage was $1½ million. The building has eight local owners, Monks, Holmes, and Bobbitt heirs, and was leased by Gordon E. Lee. The entire warehouse, its contents including tobacco to be sold, and four trucks and one fork lift were destroyed, according to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner.

A meeting of local warehousemen was held this morning to try to make space available in other warehouses for Lee to continue operation of his business this season.

Are You Raising A Super-Child?

How To Tell If Your Child Is Brilliant

(Editor's Note: Following is the last of three articles on the super-strong, super-healthy, super-smart children of the coming generation)

By JUDITH REGAN

LONDON (WNS) — How can you tell if your child is destined for a brilliant future? Is he one of the estimated 20 per cent of youngsters whose exceptional abilities have not yet been recognized?

Never before have children been as potentially bright as those we are bringing up today. Yet education experts are convinced that many of them don't achieve what they should, simply because both parents and teachers don't give them the help they need.

So how do you recognize a "superchild"? First, if your image of the classroom genius is a bespectacled games-shy bookworm, forget it!

Today's clever child, if latest research is correct, is physically as well as mentally advanced, enjoys sports and games and wants to be good at them.

On the other-hand, the gifted child is also interested in things his contemporaries might regard as pretty outlandish. "They are things which no ordinary person will notice," says Dr. Margaret Lowenfeld, director of the London Institute of Child Psychology.

"And they seem to be fascinated by things that don't exist any more — like dinosaurs and fossils."

But it's never too early to detect extraordinary intelligence in a child.

They often focus their eyes earlier than other children. You can tell by the way they follow your finger when you move it across their vision.

And they tend to be remarkably alert — the sort of babies who never lie quietly in their carriages but are always looking around."

Many potential super-children won't bother to crawl — they'll walk straight away instead! Others will speak whole sentences when they are only nine months old.

Keen To Learn
But often even the experts find it difficult to identify exceptional children — IQ tests are notorious for failing to spot them.

Often it seems that the child does his best to disguise the fact that he's above average intelligence.

Indeed, Professor N. R. Tempest of Liverpool University said recently that the gifted child could seem careless or even stupid at school, when in fact he was rushing his work because he was so keen to learn more.

There had been cases, he said, of gifted children finishing at the bottom of their class through deliberately curbing their ability, fearing that classmates would object if they appeared to be too bright.

Other bright children were chided for being slow, when in fact they were over-anxious about making mistakes in their work.

But there are, in fact, a few general rules which parents can use as a rough guide to their children's potential at around the five-to-seven age-group.

Reading, for instance is often a good indication of outstanding intelligence — not the amount read, but how much is understood and remembered.

The ability to learn from experience is another valuable pointer coupled with an easy ability to generalize about life and its problems.

A talent for invention and improvisation, backed up by a natural far-ranging curiosity and an almost obsessive urge to ask: "Why?"

The superchild rarely gives up. He will persevere against all odds, confident that he can succeed. On the other hand, he is usually self-critical, and will often scold himself for doing something wrong.

A Threat
He wants to be accepted by the adult world as a responsible member of society, and this will often show itself in precocious behavior, and ordering other children around.

Psychologist Dr. Kelmer Pringle, who has surveyed the cases of over 100 highly intelligent children, explains that sometimes children and even adults resent this behavior.

Poor teachers, she says, can even find a brilliant child a threat to their own security. She cites the case of a 13-year-old boy who constantly drew his young teacher's attention to mistakes she had made in blackboard calculations.

What can we do to prevent our brilliant children becoming misfits? Dr. Pringle asks parents to recognize four basic needs in their superchildren:

- Love and security
- Responsibility and independence
- Achievement and recognition
- New experience

Don't hold back, or push forward, a bright child's emotional development — allow it to grow naturally by sharing his interests and pleasures.

Says a child psychologist specializing in the problems of the ultra-bright child: "Strangely, in today's world, more attention is given to the dull child than the bright one."

Patient Circle Members Hear Harold Creech

Harold Creech, director of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, gave the program at the meeting of the Patient Circle of the King's Daughters and Sons, at the meeting held Tuesday.

He depicted the growth and progress of Greenville through the years.

Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, president, presided over the business meeting.

Plans were made for the state convention to be held in Greenville on Oct. 29-30.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Ed Rawls, Mrs. C. B. Rowlette Mrs. J. G. Lautares and Mrs. E. L. Baker. The meeting was held at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Dr. Hoots Is Guest Speaker

Dr. William Hoots Jr. was guest speaker at the meeting of the Brookgreen Garden Club held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. Howard Moye.

Dr. Hoots, who is a professor in the department of industrial technical education at East Carolina University, spoke on the raising of rhododendrons.

Mrs. John East introduced the speaker. A business meeting followed the program.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

"Too many bright-children are virtually ignored in a class while the teacher struggles to help the less bright children catch up. Is it any wonder that many children decide there's no point in showing how well they can do?"

In many cases, according to education experts, many superchildren are lost in the mass of their run-of-the-mill contemporaries.

A noted educationalist, Professor Boris Ford of Sussex University, cites the case of a brilliant child of four who was yearning to go to school but couldn't do so, due to the age-limit of five.

Intellectually he was more than equal to school work and was bored and lonely at home. Eventually he did go to school but only after his mother had made a vigorous protest.

So when your child becomes obsessed with fossils or fish or butterflies, who drives you mad with his questions, and orders his friends about, it doesn't necessarily mean you've got a superchild on your hands, but it's certainly worth finding out!

It might also turn out, of course, that you don't have a genius at all — just a bossy little show-off who litters the house with fossils.

Candy Sale Aids Crippled And Handicapped

The topic of the monthly meeting of the Jay-C-ettes was their annual candy sale. The candy sale is held each fall with the proceeds going to the crippled and the handicapped people of Pitt County. This is the ninth year of the sale.

Bags of candy (125 pieces) are being sold for a dollar per bag.

This past year saw money going towards many causes. Some of the big items included $500 for the Pediatrics Ward at Pitt Memorial, $500 to the Cerebral Palsy Foundation, $100 to Operation Sunshine, and along with the Coffee Day proceeds, $200 was added to the March of Dimes.

Bills have been paid for ambulances, hospital bills, toys for long convalescence, and medicines for various people. The Toy Box on the Pediatrics Ward is kept replenished and Jay-C-ettes attend each Crippled Children's Clinic to serve milk and cookies to the children.

The days of Oct. 18, 19, and 20 have been established as House-to-House-Sales by the Jay-C-ettes.

Workers for the Crippled Children's Clinic this month are Joyce Steinbeck and Beverly Browder. Guests this month were Mira Pinner, Carol Manual, and Bonnie Ennis.

Is Pay Raise The Solution?

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: You told Willie, who had been giving his female bookkeeper "a few kisses" because he couldn't afford to give her a pay raise, that the cheapest solution would be to give her a raise. [Willie's wife had already caught wise.]

You are probably on sound ground, marriage-wise. But are you on sound economic ground?

Because of the wage freeze, Willie cannot give his bookkeeper a money raise until at least Nov. 13.

Isn't Willie, therefore, morally obligated to keep kissing his bookkeeper until he can grant her a pay raise?

DEAR R. L. L.: Willie has it made. He can't give her a pay raise or Nixon will nail him. And if his wife catches him kissing his bookkeeper, he'll get it in the assets.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a widow of 67, but I don't look it. A widower of 52 has been after me to marry him. All my family is married, and so is his. I am a good-looking woman, I'm told.

Do you think I'm too old for this man? OUT EAST

DEAR OUT: No woman is too old for a man she is young enough to get.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to a 2 p. m. wedding. We arrived a few minutes late, so we tiptoed in and found two seats in the back pew.

Not 10 seconds after we had sat down, a gentleman tapped my husband on the shoulder and motioned for us to follow him outside. He then told us we were not permitted to stay because we had arrived late. He said he was acting on instruction from the bride's parents. The ceremony had not begun.

We stood outside the church, terribly disappointed, and met another couple who had also been turned away. They were relatives of the groom and had driven 300 miles.

I know people should be on time for weddings, Abby, but what do you think of treating guests like this?

GOOD INTENTIONS

DEAR GOOD: I can understand why late-comers would not be allowed to trail in during the wedding ceremony, but to have asked you to leave once you had entered quietly and sat down was ridiculous.

DEAR ABBY: Well I've heard it all—the pastor of a church in Indian Orchard, Mass., gives the wedding couple a $25 cleaning bill to be paid in advance in case rice is thrown at the bride and groom as they leave the church. I'll bet that same pastor sends out balance-due notices to greet the honeymooners on their return if they neglected what he felt was enough of that green stuff crammed into the pastor's envelope for services he rendered. Blessings, yet?

If it takes more than a half hour to clean up the rice before a funeral that is to follow, then I suggest more time be allowed between.

I hope at my funeral someone will leave behind a bit of the happiness of a wedding that just took place, and someone in that funeral sees it and smiles at the joy it must have brought.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: You're beautiful.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

The Late, Great Dean Acheson

Although he devoted many years to capably serving his government, Dean Acheson really made his mark as Secretary of State.

Few who remember that period will forget the Acheson innovations and policy-mapping that marked perhaps the last great Secretary of State of our generation.

His successor, John Foster Dulles, added little to the office; largely following the broad patterns laid down by Acheson, but sometimes erring in his over-zealous interpretations.

Since those years the State Department's foreign policy role has shrunk, with much of the burden being carried by presidential advisors whose combined expertise is equated to the Acheson genius.

Some people marvel at the rare understanding achieved by the hard-bitten political pro Harry Truman and the urbane, sophisticated man he tapped for his Secretary of State. It was really not a mismatch. Both were pragmatists, both were hard as nails, both were bound by loyalties, and they shared a great love for country.

Dean Acheson's concept of duty did not terminate with his departure from the State Department, but continued alive and well into recent years. His advice was never lightly asked, never lightly given and never lightly accepted.

He was recognized by friend and foe as a true authority in governmental affairs, and his passing is an unhappy milestone of our times.

Assembly Can Be Swamped

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Pressures are rising for the North Carolina legislature to take up other subjects when it meets Oct. 26 on higher education restructuring.

With the adjourned session only 10 days away, at least three specific issues have been brought to the attention of presiding officers with a substantial changes made in present laws.

Several other matters have been discussed informally among legislators and would surface promptly if the opportunity arose.

The adjourned session was set after a stalemate developed on Gov. Bob Scott's proposal to bring higher education functions under a new structure embracing all 16 state-supported campuses. Committees have met in the interim to thrash out the issue.

The immediate outlook, said Speaker Godwin, is that opposing forces have reached general agreement on principles which will permit the drafting and enactment of a bill within four or five days.

He suggested a caucus in advance of convening to reach a gentleman's agreement on an agenda to guard against a wide-open session.

Urgency Should Be Guide
"I am in favor of handling those matters of urgency in which the best interest of the state requires immediate action," Godwin said. "I do not believe we should get into policy questions simply because there is dissatisfaction with what was done or not done earlier in the session."

It seems definite the bond question will be resolved. It involves no controversy and merely clarifies the intent of what the legislature already has done. It would be an item of old business, not new business, Godwin noted.

The Speaker said he shares Atty. Gen. Morgan's concern on the law requiring written waiver of counsel for indigent defendants. "If we do anything in addition to higher education, it might well be in that area," he said. "If it places an undue burden on law enforcement, we should look at it."

Politics will be thick at the adjourned session, and could determine what issues are taken up. That's particularly true for the primary absentee ballot proposal. A clamor for it has been raised on behalf of newly enfranchised 18-21-year olds.

Virtually every lawmaker is a prospective candidate, either for his present seat or higher office. That includes Godwin, who will announce for lieutenant governor at the close of the session.

Barbee, advocating the primary absentee ballot, already has announced for the lieutenant governorship.

Godwin said a strict definition of urgency should be followed in deciding issues other than higher education to be considered.

"It's nothing new to want to go back and change things," he said. "That's the case at the end of every session. If we start doing that, there's no telling how long we'd be in Raleigh."

Pity The Solicitors; They Do Suffer, Too

Solicitors have a number of tools at their disposal in coping with their legal problems, and the use of words is not the least of these.

It should be no surprise to be told by the North Carolina Supreme Court that faulty grammar adds to the judicial burden.

One instance, cited by Justice Susie Sharp, involved a misplaced comma . . . resulting in a new trial.

Our sympathies are with the solicitors. We in the newspaper world make horrendous grammatical mistakes, too. But in the world of legal language we are left agape and agog.

Read, if you will, the daily run of legal notices carried by the press; and you, too, will marvel at the niceties of language which have been preserved for eons in the name of tradition.

Of the professions, religion, medicine and the law hew to tradition in a manner which sets them in a world (and language) apart.

The language of the press has changed; but, unhappily, only to breed a new virus of errors. There is comfort in knowing we do not stand alone.

Nixon Heeded Wilbur Mills

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — On last Saturday afternoon when organized labor was threatening to boycott President Nixon's economic control program, budget chief George Shultz sent an emissary to ask advice from a powerful Democratic source: Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Mills sent back word that Mr. Nixon would be well advised to go as far as possible in satisfying AFL-CIO president George Meany's demands for "total autonomy" for the new Pay Board to control wages under Phase Two of the President's economic control program. Otherwise, said Mills, the program would be doomed from the start by threats of labor sabotage.

That advice fitted almost perfectly with the recommendations inside the White House by Shultz, big labor's best friend there. It also conflicted substantially with the position by Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, the President's commander-in-chief in the economic battle, that Mr. Nixon maintain a major reviewing power over the Pay Board decisions.

Thus, Tuesday's decision by Mr. Nixon to grant virtual autonomy to the Pay Board, coming as a last-minute surprise to the labor chiefs, was a recognition of the warnings by Shultz and Mills that lack of labor cooperation would doom the program. Moreover, despite Administration denials, it represented a backing away from the original Administration program spelled out just last week.

This represents a fateful decision by the President in a program that may well decide the nation's economic fate far into the future. Some economic advisers to the President had gone well beyond Connally in urging a strong Presidential role, feeling that even the original format laid down last week provided too much autonomy for the tripartite Pay Board (consisting of representatives of labor, management and the general public).

According to this view, the inflationary pressures inherent in the economy — particularly the huge Federal budget deficit — will put irresistible pressure on the Pay Board to grant wage boosts unless the President or his agents have firm veto power. The wage boost, in turn, will pressure the Price Commission to follow up with some increases, and the Nixon program will be dead.

But it might be dead otherwise, Shultz had argued, if Meany succeeded in taking the AFL-CIO into a stubborn non-cooperation. That is precisely what Meany had in mind late last week after Herbert Stein, a member of the President's council of economic advisers, told a briefing session on the new program that the Cost of Living Council (COLC)

CRITICISM

None of us particularly like criticism, but we have to admit that it has its place in life. Some people are critical of almost everything in life. They do not like the way their home is run. Their neighborhood and their nation are following after strange leaders and being influenced by strange ideas. Administrations in national government come and go. When a nation is free in every sense of the term there is plenty of criticism tossed back and forth.

The home without criticism is a boring and unprofitable place. When businessmen cannot gather about a table and discuss policies — sometimes in heated terms — we can be sure that certain financial affairs are not getting along as they should. There is probably no factor in life more helpful than criticism if we can take it in the right spirit. Likewise, if we get to the place where we have nothing to say of a critical nature concerning life about us, then we are in a state of mental stagnation — and probably spiritual stagnation.

A snarling, bitter home is an unpleasant place to live, and the snarling and bitterness are likely to lead us to separation, divorce and certainly to unhappiness.

Some people have the gift of criticism. They can guide and influence those round about them in a way that constitutes real criticism and the improving of life in general. Criticism can be a curse, but it can also be a blessing. It would be better for all of us if we listened to just criticism and tried to profit thereby.

President Strikes Back

WASHINGTON — The one thing you have to admire about the United States Senate is the spirit of brotherhood and loyalty the members have for each other. When Sen. Robert Byrd's name came up as a possible Supreme Court nominee, even a liberal such as Sen. George McGovern found it an outstanding suggestion.

The fact that Byrd never even passed his bar exams or ever practiced law has not bothered too many senators. The Senate is a gentlemen's club and a gentleman never questions the qualifications of another gentleman.

One only has to walk through the halls of the Capitol to see how proud the senators are that one of their own has been suggested to sit on the highest court in the land.

"A stroke of genius," is what one senator called the Byrd trial balloon. "Since Byrd has no experience he will be able to judge cases on their merits instead of some stupid legal consideration. Besides, if he goes to the court I may get his office."

Another senator said, "Nobility deserves the seat more than Bob. There should always be one place on the court for former members of the Ku Klux Klan."

A third senator denied that the issue of mediocrity would be raised if Byrd was truly Nixon's appointee. "It's one thing to call an appointee outside the Senate 'mediocre,' but we would never do that to one of our own. If we started that sort of thing, the public might get the idea that there are a lot of mediocre men in this body, and we wouldn't want people to think that so near the elections."

"Do you really think Byrd would be the best man for court?" I asked.

"It depends on what you mean by best. If you mean best in the sense that he would be the wisest, then the answer is obviously no — but if you mean best in the sense that no one would dare raise his qualifications as an issue, then the answer is yes. President Nixon is sick and tired of the American Bar Assn. and Congress and the law schools questioning his appointments. Naming Byrd

Ed Had Happy Years

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — What is life to you in one word, Ed Sullivan?

"Life is wonderful," replied Ed, television's personality of the century.

Indeed it has been wonderful to Edward Vincent Sullivan, Harlem-born son of an Irish stableman.

Ed can't dance. Ed can't sing. Ed can't do magic tricks. Ed can't even play a musical saw or imitate the mating call of a rose-breasted grosbeak.

"I have no special talent," he remarks, in genial agreement with most of his fans.

But he does have. He has the special talent of being able to present gifted performers to an audience and then get out of their way while they go through their act.

This seemingly self-effacing skill has enabled Sullivan to rise from a $10 a week cub reporter to a multimillionaire star of the video industry.

Over a 35-year stint in show business Ed has introduced more than 25,000 performers, but retains an instinctive liking for people.

"No, I never get tired of meeting people," he said. "I'm only afraid that they'll get tired of me."

Not long before his 69th birthday, Ed ended his weekly television entertainment show after 23 years, a record for that type of program.

"If anybody breaks that record, I'll break his neck," Ed vowed, smiling.

Ed's career will reach a personal crest this Sunday night, Oct. 17, when he presents "The Sullivan Years," the first of eight 90-minute specials he will put on for the CBS-TV network this year. It will present highlights of his 23-year show and some of the best work of 100 performers.

The Untackled Discrimination

By ELMER ROESSNER

Congress and many states have enacted laws against discrimination against persons because of race, religion or sex, and to a limited extent, because of age. But there is a large area in which discrimination runs unchecked: appearance.

The good-looking people have it all over others. This is especially true among women.

Wander through almost any office building and look at the receptionists. Most of them have obviously been chosen for the looks, although some appear to have been chosen by the boss's wife.

In retailing, this discrimination is not as bad. Retailers want to sell to ugly customers as well as the beautiful, and a store staffed with beauties would make some of their richest customers feel uncomfortable.

And look at any musical, live, in movies or on television. The prejudice in favor of the good lookers is obvious.

For Example—
The head of a large corporation had a staff of four secretaries and each one was five feet ten and a dazzling beauty. He addressed each one as "Darling." Those of us who knew him well knew he was a faithful husband to a charming wife, but he sure impressed those with whom he did business!

But this was certainly prejudicial against five-foot-towers who had led their classes at secretarial school! Similar discrimination exists among waitresses.

Good waitresses are usually hard to find, so a flabby dame with a pickle face may find a job, but she'll probably be perpetually assigned to tables in the dark back of the room.

It also applies to overweight persons, notably women. Some of the most able and efficient workers I know are heavyweights, yet they are often passed over by employers.

Men Also Discriminated Against

The prejudice against poor lookers includes men. Every once in a while, you may have seen an item reporting that the president of a corporation was retired or made chairman of the board. The accompanying photograph shows that he looks like a president: portly, masterful, dynamic. That may have been just the trouble. He got the job because he looked like a president but, it developed, he really wasn't.

There is also an effective discrimination against job applicants with excessive hair. One reason may be that employers fear that it is too easy for an embezzler to change his appearance instantly with scissors and razor. But the main reason is more likely that there are strong prejudices against the hairy people.

This discrimination is so widespread that an unhandsome man can never be elected president of the United States. Remember, Pat Paulsen didn't win a single electoral vote.

Thirty-Year Mining Permit Is 'Considered' For Texas Gulf

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Water and Air Resources has taken under consideration a request by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. for formal approval of its phosphate mining operation in Beaufort County.

Texas Gulf requested a 30-year mining permit Thursday after the board received a report which company officials said cleared away "all restrictions, all reservations" about the effect of the operation on the area's ground water supply.

"The report gives convincing evidence that ground water supplies for all and any users in the area will not be impaired by planned phosphate mining for over 100 years," said H. V. W. Donohoo of Raleigh, the firm's vice president for agricultural operations.

State officials who worked on the report declined to comment or draw conclusions from it. The report was prepared by representatives of the state, Texas Gulf and North Carolina Phosphate Corp. over the past 14 months. It was based on technical studies of the quality and movement of water in the Castle Hayne aquifer system along the Pamlico and Pungo rivers east of Washington.

Texas Gulf's $100 million plant pumps to 55 million gallons of water a day out of the ground to keep its mine dry. North Carolina Phosphate has indicated it may seek permission to begin operations in the same general area, and it would also have to pump large amounts of water.

The chief of the state's ground water division, Harry Peek, who was director of the survey team, told newsmen he found no significant change in the chloride content of water in the Castle Hyde reservoir system except within one-half mile of the mine.

The report said the greatest chloride increase was found in a well "about 3,000 feet northeast of the mine." It said the chloride content had increased from about 250 parts per million, the minimum standard for drinking water, in 1967 to about 500 in 1970.

Peek told board members he would "prefer for the board to draw its own conclusions," and he twice declined to discuss the meaning of the report.

The board then turned it over to its technical advisory council for analysis and recommendations.

Donohoo made it clear he considered the report a verification of the company's position that it is doing no harm to the ground water supply. Texas Gulf has been operating without a permit pending completion of the study.

The firm employs 630 persons with an annual payroll of $6 million.

Board To Meet In New Facility

The new Home Economic Building at Rose High School, in a room yet unspecified, will be the site of the meeting of the Greenville City School Board on Monday, October 18, at 8:00 p.m.

The regular monthly meeting will follow an open house of the new facility at Rose between 7:00 and 8:00 p.m.

The agenda will include reports on special projects; a presentation on school facilities with emphasis on maintenance of buildings and grounds; review of the 1971-72 budget through September; 1970-71 audit reports; and pupil enrollment.

"But isn't that a little tough on the country?"

"No, it's a good joke. Everyone says that President Nixon doesn't have a sense of humor. Well, the idea that he's even considering Byrd proves that he does."

"I thought the President was looking for a strict constructionist. How can Byrd be one if he has never practiced law?"

"The President's definition of a strict constructionist is anyone that he wants to appoint to the court."

It was hard to find anyone in the Senate who would take issue with the thought of Byrd on the court.

"Some people may say Bob Byrd doesn't know much about the Constitution. Other people may say Bob Byrd doesn't have a sharp enough mind. Still others may say he has little sympathy for the underdog. But it should be remembered that there is nothing in the Constitution that says you have to know anything to be on the Supreme Court."

headed by Connally would have "veto" power over the Pay Board.

The amended version of the plan seems to leave Mr. Nixon only the alternative of firing his Pay Board if it breaches the generally anti-inflationary strategy of the Administration. But such a firing would be the equivalent of a serious defeat for the program — perhaps its death knell.

What this involves can be seen most clearly in the first big test for the Pay Board: handling the deferred pay increases for labor unions now coming up under contracts already negotiated and signed. If all such wage boosts were approved by the pay board, the resulting 7.5 per cent average hourly increase for 25 million workers would make a mockery of the whole anti-inflation battle.

But Mr. Nixon's program gives him no power to override the Pay Board on a case by case basis. Nor does it seem he would be acting in terms of his new agreement with labor if he even publicly criticized an individual case decision. He could dismiss the entire pay board only after two or three months of such decisions had elapsed and the damage was done.

Warning of such a danger, Connally had argued for less autonomy than was actually granted. He had collected nationwide polling data showing that American voters want inflation stopped and that big labor's refusal to cooperate would have made Mr. Nixon an overnight hero and George Meany an overnight villain.

Unveil Historical Marker Sunday

A special dedication service for the unveiling of a historical marker in Greenville will take place Sunday at noon in the immediate vicinity of the Memorial Baptist Church on Greene Street.

Rev. C. Norman Bennett, pastor of the church, said the historical marker is "to commemorate the founding of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina."

"It was founded in 1830 in Greenville, at a site near the present Memorial Baptist Church," Bennett said. "The original site was approximately across the street, although the actual site is in dispute."

Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, vice president of the Historical Society, North Carolina Conference, will preside over ceremonies unveiling the marker. Presentation of the historical marker will be made by Dr. Herbert Paschal, member of the North Carolina Historical Marker Advisory Committee. Both Dr. Rives and Dr. Paschal are East Carolina University faculty members.

The oldest member of Memorial Baptist Church, Mrs. J. S. Barr, who is now 90, and original site with long years of membership — D. J. Whitchard, Sr. and Mrs. L. A. Stroud, who have been members for 64 and 58 years respectively — will join in the unveiling of the marker.

Rev. Bennett noted that two other members, Mrs. S. L. Bridgers and Mrs. E. W. Hellen, each have been members for 64 years but that the two ladies are unable to be present for the Sunday dedication ceremony.

Benediction will be given by Rev. Bennett.

The ceremony area will be blocked off to traffic during the dedication. Persons wishing to view the ceremony are asked to park in some nearby area and to walk to the site.

Tenth Pollution Suit For State

RALEIGH (AP) — U.S. Attorney Warren Coolidge has filed his 10th pollution suit since May, the latest one against a dredge and fill operation at a Topsail Sound development site.

The suit was filed in New Bern Thursday against Blue Bay Farms Inc., and its owners, Dr. Hunter Heath of Jacksonville and Dover C. Lanier of Rt. 1, Holly Ridge.

The suit accuses the firm of excavating and filling navigable waters of Rogers Bay in Topsail Sound without a federal permit. It asks the court to assess $75,000 in alleged punitive and $25,000 actual damages.

The action coincided with the mailing of questionnaires to 2, 008 businesses in 44 eastern North Carolina counties. Coolidge said the survey is intended to determine the amount and type of wastes being discharged into waterways and whether the discharge is being done with a permit.

He said he mailed the letters as legal counsel for the Army Corps of Engineers, which issues dredge-and-fill permits.

Coolidge said the corps notified the same firms in May that they would be required to have waste discharges approved.

"The response was disappointing," Coolidge said. He said replies to the current questionnaire would be referred to the corps for evaluation.

Pro-And-Con Reactions To New Views Of Jesus

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway and the rock artists have found a new hit in Jesus.

Besides the wave of pop songs about him, he's now the center of two current theatrical attractions, the crowd-pulling musical comedy, "Godspell," and the newly opened rock opera, "Jesus Christ Superstar."

In both cases, the presentations offer vivid glimpses of the man, and his magnetism, but not much of the mystery. In the end of both, he's dead, with only orchestrated intimations of anything beyond that.

Both have caught on strongly, on record, with young people—both in the churches and outside them—with their elders variously puzzled and impressed.

Religious leaders, while applauding the new interest in Jesus reflected in the youth culture's art and phrases, have had both pro-and-con reactions to the one-dimensional portrayals of Jesus.

It's a new—and perhaps healthy—"paganism," said the Rev. Gilbert Meilaender Jr. of St. Louis, a Lutheran clergyman, noting that Greek and Roman pagan gods were active in the world, sharing human faults and weaknesses.

"The God of the Hebrews and Christians was transcendent, but the gods of the pagans were only men immensely multiplied," he wrote in an evangelical weekly, Christianity Today.

He said this is the rock opera's view of Jesus, adding: "It cannot affirm that in this man God is acting, because it finds in him only a man—a man writ large, a man like the gods, a superstar, but only a man."

A Roman Catholic Bible scholar, the Rev. John L. McKenzie of Chicago, strongly commends the rock opera, after listening to a recording of it.

It is "reverent in the sense that it took Jesus seriously," he said in the monthly journal, the Critic. It "showed a surprisingly sympathetic understanding of the historical Jesus, an understanding which many believers do not have ..."

The musical comedy, "Godspell," also has some theological punch, along with its laughs and lively music. Many of the young performers in it say they have found a new respect for the realism of the Biblical account.

"It has really brought me back to Christianity," said Andrew Rohrer, 21, who plays Jesus in the production based on Matthew's gospel. "I was soured on religion in the organized church, but this has put me back on it."

The Rev. Mr. Meilaender said the productions seem to be part of a "new interest in integrating religious belief into the fabric of life, of finding in the Christian faith something with which men of our time can identify."

And if this "leads man from secularism to paganism," he adds, it's a step toward faith.

Suggests School Board Purges

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Gov. Jimmy Carter says school board members who are more loyal to private schools have "almost destroyed the public education system in several counties."

Such officials, he said Thursday, should be removed from school boards.

"We cannot have people serving on public education boards who have the objective of driving white children from public school systems," Carter told about 1,000 persons attending the Governor's Conference on Goals for Education and Intellectual Enrichment.

Dentist's Office New Approach

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A Kansas dentist says the dental practice in which the patient is lying and the dentist is seated is growing in popularity.

Dr. Glenn A. Thomas of Wichita told the American Dental Association convention that the new approach frees the dentist from the awkward position leaning over the patient and makes it easier for him to work. He said it also allows the dental assistant to perform some chores previously done by the dentist.

Abortion Count Soaring In N.Y.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A total of 181,821 women—most of them white, under the age of 25 and residents of another state—obtained abortions in New York during the first year of the state's liberalized abortion law.

Three out of four of these abortions were performed during the woman's first three months of pregnancy.

And it appeared that more unmarried than married women had abortions, although complete data could not be provided, the state Health Department reported Thursday in its "tentative conclusions" about induced abortions between July 1, 1970, and June 30, 1971.

The department said 98,084 of the abortions were performed on women who live outside the state. They came from all the contiguous 48 states except Utah and New Mexico.

I get plenty of teasing from the fellows at the plant about my cove. They call it "Crockett's Cove—all for Tired Executives." And they're right.

Drifting alone on the still water, tiny under the full sky, things fall into perspective. A bird calls, upriver a fish arches, a passing breeze brings blossom scent. Somehow, no matter how thorny my problem, the harmony of God's nature takes the kinks out of me.

Things weren't always this way. A few years back a tree was just a tree to me—a lake, a lake. Now, wherever I look, I see God's goodness.

It all started one evening when, worried and depressed, I wandered into a church. I can't remember now what was sung or read, but I will never forget the sense of God's presence. Since then, God's Church and teachings have been my strength.

Your church offers inspiration and a fresh viewpoint. Take advantage of it.

ECU Science Award Announced

Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, today announced establishment of the Bisplinghoff Science Award to be made annually to a member of one of the science disciplines for publication of the best journal article of the year.

"I am especially pleased to announce this award made possible by a very distinguished man of science," Jenkins said. "It will provide both a challenge and incentive, and perhaps lively competition."

The founder of the award is Raymond Lewis Bisplinghoff, Deputy Director of the National Science Foundation (NSF). Dr. Bisplinghoff has been director of the office of advanced research and technology for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and was responsible for planning and directing research of all NASA concepts. He is a director of the Allied Research Association, Concord, Mass., and for 16 years was a faculty member in the field of aeronautics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. During 1968-70, he was Dean of the School of Engineering at MIT.

Dr. Bisplinghoff has been recognized for his scientific contributions in many different ways including being the recipient of the Federal Aviation Extraordinary Service Award, the 1969 NASA Apollo Achievement Award, and the NASA Distinguished Achievement Award.

He was the speaker at the 1971 Commencement exercises at East Carolina University last Spring.

Departments of the ECU College of Arts and Sciences in the scientific discipline and the Schools of Allied Health and Medicine will be invited to submit one paper each in the annual competition. The one entry will be chosen on the basis of judgment of colleagues on another campus, and final judging of published journal articles will be done by an impartial-off-campus committee. The first recipient of the Award, including a $200 prize will be announced at the Spring Banquet of the East Carolina Sigma Xi Club, an organization dedicated to the advancement of scientific research. Departments involved will include Biology, Chemistry, Geology, Mathematics, Physics, Psychology and Sociology and Anthropology, and the Schools of Allied Health and Medicine.

Art Exhibit To Be Presented On Two Levels

The art exhibit in connection with the Black Arts Festival in the lobby of Student Union at East Carolina University, to be on view from October 18 to 23, will be presented on two levels.

Dr. Emily Farnham of the ECU School of Art notes that one level will be that of Afro-American art works created by students from the School of Art. The second level are actual African art objects on loan from university faculty members.

Batik wall hangings, and three pieces of African sculpture are among the objects from Africa to be on display.

The public is invited to view this exhibit any day between about 9:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m. during the week.

Food Inspectors 'Bend' The Rules In Practice

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A carton of eggs with four sub-standard eggs is still a Grade AA carton. A package of bologna with 31 per cent fat is cleared for sale. So is a chicken containing 13 per cent water.

The handbooks of federal food inspectors and graders don't read that way, but the guidelines they follow mean that consumer protection laws tend to bend here and there in practice.

The bending, in official parlance, is called tolerances.

In consumer terms, it's an expensive practice. For example, the General Accounting Office has estimated that a 1 per cent increase in the water content of poultry costs consumers $32 million a year.

While federal laws forbid interstate sales of any food, drug or cosmetic that is adulterated or misbranded, government regulators follow a guiding principle that can't be found in a law book.

Here's how the principle works: Regulators look at, say, the spice processor they regard as the nation's most efficient, and determine that the best he can do is keep the number of whole dead insects in each lot at four. Therefore, four or less is tolerable; more than four is illegal.

The regulatory process involves "recognizing that although you strive for perfection, you don't get it," said Thomas Brown, head of compliance in the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Foods.

The FDA acknowledged that it has a set of secret administrative guidelines for food. Brown provided specific examples of the tolerances but refused to provide a complete copy.

In the other bastion of federal food inspection, the Agriculture Department, the tolerances and guidelines tend to be public.

The department's regulations on water in poultry originally specified that no bird could absorb more than 12 per cent water while being dipped in ice water to cool the carcass. But in drawing up the guidelines, the department permitted a fifth of the birds to absorb as much as 13 per cent and still pass inspection.

Regulations forbid sale of bologna, hot dogs and other cooked sausage products containing more than 10 per cent water. But the guidelines which interpret the regulations require automatic detention only of products containing more than 13 per cent water.

The system for regulating fat content in hot dogs is the same, but the figures are different. They can contain up to 30.6 per cent fat and be cleared routinely, or up to 31.6 per cent fat before inspectors clamp down.

Officials say they're confident the fat guidelines are effective because the department's retail sampling programs have shown that the average fat content of cooked sausage products is about 28 per cent.

Tolerances also crop up in the grading programs administered by the Department of Agriculture for olives, apples, lemons, eggs and virtually everything that grows.

The system for eggs is typical. Eggs are graded AA, A, B or C on the basis of size, shell condition, size and nature of the yolk and white, and location of the air cell.

A carton of AA eggs in a supermarket need contain only eight eggs of top grade. Two are permitted to be of Grade A quality. Two eggs may be of lowest quality, meaning there might be small blood clots, visible germ development in the yolk or a cracked but non-leaking shell.

Asked why the tolerances were kept from the public, FDA's Brown replied:

"The reason we have not made them public is that some people felt if you tell the industry this is the level at which you take action, the industry will take this level and shoot for it.

"Now comes the era of consumerism. I think the public has a right to know the level at which we'll take action.

"It's going to be a hell of a job explaining to the consumer. But it's better than having to explain every time why we don't release them."

Medina Ends Army Career Says Partners' Behavior Vital To Happiness

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — The 16-year Army career of Capt. Ernest Medina, cleared of murder charges in connection with the My Lai massacre, will end today with an honorable discharge.

An Army spokesman said Thursday Medina's resignation had been accepted.

The 35-year-old Montrose, Colo., native had said before his acquittal that he would resign no matter what the verdict was.

Medina was found innocent of murder and involuntary manslaughter charges brought against him as commander of Charlie Company in the 1968 attack on the village of My Lai.

F. Lee Bailey of Boston, who was the civilian defense attorney at the trial, has said Medina will go to work for the R.J. Enstrom Corp. of Menominee, Mich. Bailey owns a controlling interest in the firm, which manufactures helicopters.

Greenville firemen returned to the Garris-Evans Lumber Co. here about 9:20 p.m. yesterday when sparks from an earlier fire apparently ignited sawdust in the firm's sawdust shed. Firemen were called to the lumber firm at 12:12 p.m. when a fire erupted in the boiler room.

Officers, who reported heavy damage resulted to the boiler room from the early-afternoon fire said no damage resulted from the 9:20 p.m. blaze. Firemen said the boiler room fire may have started from the furnace in the boiler room.

The drivers of two vehicles involved in a 1:15 p.m. mishap five miles North of Greenville on N.C. 11 yesterday were injured, but according to investigating Highway Patrolman, they possibly escaped serious or even fatal injuries because they had their seat belts fastened.

Trooper W. L. Thames said Johnnie Herbert Dail, 41, of Falkland and Charles Franklin Wynne, 18, of Route 1, Stokes were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of their injuries. Damage was set at $3,000 to the Wynne car and to the truck driven by Dail, the officer noted.

Ptl. Thames, who said investigation of the collision is continuing, reported the Dail truck apparently skidded on wet pavement and ran into the path of the Wynne car.

NEWSPAPERS-GROWING WITH AMERICA

It's His Day!

We in this country enjoy many things. Some are big, like freedom of the press, and some are small, like having the newspaper delivered every day to our home. The newspaperboy supplies one of those services we all enjoy without noticing. But he's there, delivering our newspaper to our door ... on time ... where we want it (well, almost), every single day — all year long.

That's quite a service — and quite a boy who performs it too. He's a merchant, in business for himself, just like that man with a corner store or chain of supermarkets. He buys his product from the newspaper, and retails it to his customers. He collects, keeps records, does a bit of selling and learns to get along with people.

October 16 is International Newspaperboy's Day. The Daily Reflector salutes its 75 carrier boys and the more than 1 million others throughout the country. Newspaperboys serve as a vital link in preserving a free press. We invite you to join us in saluting these young men.

Pirates Take On Tough Mountaineers

East Carolina's Pirates, after their surprisingly poor performance against the Richmond Spiders last Saturday night, will have to come up with a super effort this weekend if they are to get a victory.

The Pirates take to the road this weekend against once-beaten West Virginia Mountaineers, and the game will bring several firsts for the Bucs. It's the first time they've ever played in Morgantown, W. Va., where the Mountaineers seldom lose. And it's the first time they'll play on Astroturf, the synthetic sod used by West Virginia on its playing field.

"We don't have a man on the team who's ever played on it before," Coach Sonny Randle said. "So it's a completely unique experience for us."

Randle's big job this week is convincing his Pirates that they have a shot at the Mountaineers. The West Virginia team has lost only to California, 20-10. They beat Boston College, 45-14, in their opener, then downed Richmond 16-3, Pitt, 20-9, and William & Mary, 28-23 in that order.

They had a rough time with both Richmond and William & Mary, the only two common opponents that East Carolina has played. The Pirates lost to William & Mary, 28-10, and then fell to Richmond, 14-7.

In both of those games, the Pirates, while not being favorites were given a good chance of winning. Against William & Mary, they had the momentum going their way when injuries sidelined Carlester Crumpler and Rich Peeler. That seemed to swing the momentum back to the Indians, who came on to win. Then, against Richmond last week, the Pirates never got going. They seemed to lack spark and just didn't play the same type game they put together in their only victory, the 31-25 victory over The Citadel.

"We were flat as a pancake," Randle said after the game.

About the only bright spot in the Richmond contest was the defensive play of Monty Kiernan, who was named the Southern Conference Defensive Player of the Week for his work in the game.

But Kiernan and several other members of the defensive unit are hobbled by injuries, and this doesn't make the prospects seem very much brighter.

"West Virginia is big and strong and physical," Randle said. "They are as physical as any team we'll meet this year. Add to that the fact that they'll have 30,000 fans there, along with the Astroturf, and we've got a lot going against us."

"All we can do," Randle said, "is hope for a letdown by them, and a great effort by us."

Randle said that injuries have torn apart the Pirate defense, which never has been a world-beater, ranking seventh among the eighth teams of the conference. Rich Peeler, captain of the Bucs, and the glue of the defense, still is doubtful for the game, recovering from an elbow injury. "There are not five healthy people on the whole defensive squad," Randle said.

"I just hope we can keep it respectable. If we play as well as possible and they make a few mistakes, we might beat them," Randle said. "But it's going to take our greatest effort of the year."

Randle again is making a few changes in the lineup, two because of the lack of success in previous starters, and one because of injury. In the latter, Kirk Doll will start at a defensive end position in place of Ricky Eason, who won't make the trip because of hurts received in the Richmond game.

The other changes send Carl Gordon to the split end position, and Pete Wooley to flanker. They have shown the best hands so far in catching the ball. "Gordon could be a great receiver," Randle said. "He's just decided that he wanted to play."

The Pirate passing attack has been the biggest upset of the year for Randle, a former All-Pro receiver. "Either our quarterbacks don't get the ball to them, or they just drop it," he said. Usually it's the latter case. John Casazza, the senior, still has the starting quarterback job, but Randle says that if things don't get off to a good start against the Mountaineers, Carl Summerell may soon get another test at the spot.

The Pirate rushing game, which had looked good most of the year, didn't get cranked up much against the Spiders, but here again, most of the time, it was a breakdown of the blocking assignments.

"We have some real good football players," Randle said. "And we have some who are not so good. But they are not playing as well as they are capable of doing right now. They must if we are to do anything the rest of the way."

West Virginia puts up three offensive whizzes to go against the Pirates, two running backs and their quarterback.

Pete Wood, one of the outstanding backs in the country, leads the rushing with 504 yards in five games, with a 5.4 yard per carry average. Kerry Marbury, a sophomore, is right behind him with 430 yards and a 4.8 mark. Quarterback Bernie Galiffa, who sat out most of the William & Mary game with an injury, is expected to be ready to go full strength this week. He came off the bench in the fourth quarter with the Mountaineers trailing, 21-7, and engineered the victory for West Virginia.

Galiffa has hit 55 of 102 passes for 482 yards. He's had just two interceptions. Three of his passes have been for touchdowns.

His chief receivers have been Harry Blake ((19 for 160 yards, 1 TD), Nate Stephens, 13-217-1, and Marybury, 11-32-0.

The Mountaineers defense is no slouch either, picking off 10 interceptions so far and recovering nine fumbles.

"We're just going to have to go up there and put forth our best effort," Randle said, "and try to beat them. We played them a good game here last year, but it's going to be like night and day playing up there."

Can't Keep His Mind On Game

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent PITTSBURGH (AP) — Baseball's bridegroom-to-be is jumpy as a grasshopper, and who could blame him? "I'd like to concentrate on the World Series, but people won't let me," says Bruce Kison, 21-year-old rookie pitcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "They keep bugging me about my wedding."

Young Kison, whose outstanding pitching performance in his World debut Wednesday night led to a 4-3 Pirate victory over Baltimore, will be married here Sunday to Anna Marie Orlando, a pretty, dark-haired plumber's daughter from Pittsburgh. They met at a swimming pool during the All-Star break this summer.

But the cool sidearm right-hander from Pasco, Wash., realizes he faces a conflict. The Pirates, leading the series 3-2, are moving into Baltimore for the climatic games Saturday and possibly Sunday. "If we win Saturday, most of my troubles will be over," Kison explained. "If we go over to Sunday, then we may have to stretch the time a bit."

"We are getting married at 7:30 (p.m. EDT) at the Church-ill Country Club—a quiet, private wedding—but it may be delayed a couple of hours. I'm catching the first plane out of Baltimore for Pittsburgh Sunday night."

Kison allowed only one hit in 6 1-3 innings of the fourth World Series game Wednesday night, baffling Baltimore bats with his side-arm sliders and crackling fast ball, and he was disturbed when most sports writers afterward were more interested in pursuing his romance.

He described his fiancée as "Italian, short, dark-haired and brown-eyed."

"Is she pretty?" a reporter asked.

"What kind of a question is that?" Kison shot back tartly. "Do you expect me to say she's a hag?"

Aycock Ekes 15-14 Win

Wilson Junior High failed on a two-point conversion attempt in the fourth quarter here Thursday afternoon as E. B. Aycock held on to win a 15-14 squeaker.

Aycock scored on a one-yard run by Tommy Joe Payne and Paul Farmer booted the extra point. The Panthers picked up the deciding score in the third quarter when Michael Baker scooped up a fumble and went 80 yards for the touchdown. Linberg Morris went over from the three for the two-point conversion.

Wilson also got a one-yard run in the first quarter for a score with Ricky Letchworth doing the honors. Letchworth then added the two point conversion to give them a brief lead. In the fourth quarter, Letchworth scored again on a two-yard scamper but the two-point try was short.

Aycock picked up 147 yards on the ground and Wilson totaled 174. In the passing department, the Panthers were four for five for a total of 17 yards. Wilson passed five times and completed only one for 41 yards.

The locals are now 2-2 for the season.

Fellows Hanging Their Heads In Shame—Riddick's Picks Best

Around the Daily Reflector office this week, there have been five male heads bowed in shame.

Our feminine member of the "Peerless Prognosticators" had done it to us. Lauren Riddick came smashing through with an 8-4 week that wiped out everybody else.

"And if you all hadn't kidded me so much about picking State before now, I would have done better," she chided us.

Well, there are still a few more weeks left, and there are some good ones to pick this week.

Tom Baines continues to lead the pack with a percentage of .694, hitting on 6 of 12 last week and 25 of 36 overall. John Trotman takes over second with a 7-5 week and a 24-12 overall record. I've dropped to third with a 5-7 week and a 23-13 overall record. Lauren and co-publisher Jack Whichard are tied at 22-14. Whichard was 7-5 for the week. George Holland, 6-6 and 21-15, brings up the rear of the closely bunched pack.

And this week promises more excitement around the office.

First, however, let us take a look at the high school action. Ayden-Grifton is traveling to Snow Hill to meet Greene Central. The Chargers got a big win last week, as did Greene Central. Both are battling to stay in the running for the title, and we'll go with A-G to take this one.

Farmville Central goes to North Lenoir for another key game. Both need the win to stay alive. Farmville lost a heartbreaker to Southern Wayne last week, and North Lenoir suffered its first league loss. We'll stick with Farmville.

Conley goes to Eastern Wayne looking for its second straight upset. It could be, but again we must go with the odds and pick Eastern Wayne.

Robersonville plays host to South Lenoir in a non-conference contest. This could be a tough game for the Rams, who haven't lost since meeting Williamston in the season opener. We'll have to stick with the winner and pick Robersonville.

Williamston entertains Murfreesboro in an Albemarle Conference game. The Tigers lost a tough one to Gates County last week, and it could cost them the title, but they want to stay close just in case. Williamston should win.

North Pitt will play its first home game as it entertains Aycock this week. The Panthers may get their first score this week in front of the home crowd, but a win? No, Aycock to win.

Rose High plays host to Kinston in Homecoming, and the field is really divided. Only two of the six, myself and Whichard have faith in the Rampants. The consensus, 4-2, says Kinston will win.

The Pirates of East Carolina after a poor showing last week, take on West Virginia in the mountains this weekend. The Bucs are due for a good game, but they've got some tough competition. The consensus here is solid. All six pick West Virginia.

Third Setback For Rose JVs

KINSTON — Rose High School's Junior Varsity suffered its third setback of the season here Thursday afternoon, dropping a 12-6 game to the Kinston Baby Vikings.

Kinston picked up both of its scores in the first quarter and led 12-0 before the Rose eleven got on the scoreboard in the second quarter.

Coach Bud Phillips cited Ronnie Raspberry, Keith Joyner and Mike Wallace for outstanding play in the game.

The junior varsity, now 0-3, travels to Rocky Mount next Thursday night for a 7:30 game with the Baby Gryphons.

Senior Bill Eiter suffered torn knee ligaments at Miami and Brown, in his first real test, drove the Irish 66 and 68 yards for touchdowns in the second half.

Parseghian said, "Our defense continues to do an excellent job, especially while playing in the heat and humidity the past two weeks. Offensively, we are becoming more consistent."

Kickoff is at 1:30 p.m. (EST).

Throttle Plate Fuss Excuse For The Losers

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

There's been too much emphasis put on the controversy over the throttle plate opening fuss, race driver Buddy Baker declares.

Baker, along with Bennie Parsons, another driver, and several members of the North Carolina Motor Speedway staff were in Chocowinity earlier this week to promote the October 24th running of the American 500 at the Rockingham raceway.

"All of that is pretty well settled now, although some people are still complaining about it. Really, the average fan couldn't care less. I really don't know why it became an issue," Baker said.

"Racing is just as good as ever, the competition among the cars is great, but all of this has hurt spectator interest. All it is just a crutch for the competition who doesn't come in first," he added.

Parsons agreed. "They've got to have some excuse for getting outrun."

Baker says that he feels no pressure while on the track. "It's fun for me. When it gets to the point where it isn't, I'll quit."

"When I first started, it was a lot different. It was more or less a hobby with the drivers. They had other jobs the rest of the week."

But after 13 years in the business, it's a hobby no longer, but really a business. "Six or seven families can depend on a car nowadays," Baker said. "It's a good sport where a good driver can make a lot of money."

Baker insists that race cars are a lot safer now than they were 13 years ago. "Back then, I had just a seat belt and a roll-bar. Now, I've got a harness, contour seat, and I'm practically sitting in a cage."

Both drivers admit that the cost of racing is high and getting higher. Parsons, an independent, finds it tough to make it through. "The cost factors are as high as ever. They put this carburetor rule in to try and bring the factory jobs down to the level of the independents, but the mechanics are really too smart. They just used it to their advantage."

What does it take to keep Parsons running. "If you work your fingers to the bone, you could get by with a sponsor giving you $75,000. But to really be competitive with Buddy and the Pettys and Allison's, you'd need $150 to $200,000."

Parsons may have more trouble next year. "Ford will not be back on the tracks," he said. He drives a Ford.

Baker would like to stay with the Dodge he drives, which is engineered by the Pettys. "If I don't, I'll have to find a sponsor, and this is an art in itself."

Both feels that it is healthier for the sport when all of the factories compete in the business. "This gives us (the independent) a chance to reach that pot of gold. Not having those factory trucks to bum a spare part from means a lot of difference to the independent driver. You either got them free or a whole lot cheaper than you get them otherwise."

But both agreed that racing is in its prime now, despite the controversies, and the charges against NASCAR Czar Bill France that he rules the tracks with too much of an iron hand.

Some drivers are looking for other fields to conquer. The Allison's and Lee Roy Yarborough and Cale Yarborough have all tried their hands in the Indianapolis 500. Baker admits that he'd like to try the Big Brickyard, too, but Parsons had no illusions of leaving the NASCAR circuit, even for that one race.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said. "If I can conquer the stock car field, I've reached my goal in life."

And just to prove that racing is bigger than ever, Baker pointed out that the youth of today know a lot about what goes on under the hood of the big cars. "I was at a car show recently, and a kid comes up to me and asks, 'What's the squelch area of the combustion chamber of your car?'"

"All I could say was 'Huh?'"

Frank Robinson Offers 'Burn The Bats' Advice

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles, unable to explain what happened to their once potent attack in Pittsburgh, try to regain their batting eyes at a workout in friendly Memorial Stadium today.

"I don't know what's going on," outfielder Frank Robinson said, "but I think we ought to burn the bats we used in Pittsburgh."

After cracking three home runs among their 10 hits in the opening game of the World Series and 14 singles in the second game, both Baltimore victories, the Orioles suddenly went cold in Pittsburgh.

While losing three straight to the Pirates, the Orioles made just nine hits—just three in the last 18 innings after the first three batters singled to open game No. 4.

A Robinson home run averted a shutout as Steve Blass pitched a four-hitter in the third game. Two of the three first-inning singles in game No. 4 never left the infield, and the other safety was a bloop double.

"They haven't knocked the bats out of our hands, although they have pitched good games," third baseman Brooks Robinson said. "We've just stopped hitting."

Frank Robinson, while giving special credit to the performance of Blass, blamed Baltimore batters for most of the futility at the plate.

"We've been hitting the pitcher's pitch instead of waiting for ours," he said. "We've got to be more determined at the plate, and know what we want to do."

"I wish I knew what to do," Manager Earl Weaver said. "Maybe the day off will help."

The Orioles have had more trouble than merely a lack of hitting. Their usually tight defense has been charged with nine errors and the pitchers—including the four 20-game winners who have started every game—have been in almost constant trouble.

"When's the last time we had a 1-2-3 inning in the field?" Frank said. "Maybe we can't hit because we're all tired from standing out there."

"We've been bad in everything," he said, "defense, offense and pitching. It hasn't been one thing, but a whole combination of things. The thinking hasn't been too good, either."

Despite their troubles in Pittsburgh, the Orioles were welcomed home by a noisy throng at Friendship International Airport Thursday night.

Several thousands fans, carrying homemade signs and chanting, "We're No. 1," cheered their heroes.

The reception brought tears to the eyes of several players' wives, and Agnes Etchebarren, wife of catcher Andy Etchebarren, said: "This was so nice of them. This might make the difference."

Weaver said although the home team has won all five games to date, he saw no advantage of resuming the Series in Baltimore.

He named Jim Palmer, the second-game winner, to start Saturday and said he was "90 per cent sure" that Mike Cuellar would pitch should a seventh game be necessary.

The Orioles, who tied a record held by just two other clubs while winning 100 or more games for three consecutive years, can set a World Series mark by winning the next two games.

Brownie Tripp has been reelected for another two-year term as president of the Greenville Men's Bowling Association.

The election was held at the September meeting of the Association. Also reelected were directors Lawrence Nethercutt, Rene Steiner, Ed Harris and George Watson. Jim Lewis and Johnny Owens were elected as new directors.

Jerry Singleton was named as secretary-treasurer. Also reelected were J. P. Jones, vice-president, and Cecil Butler and Ray Daughtridge, directors.

The annual City Tournament was tentatively set for January, 1972.

Pittsburgh Hopes For Knockout

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, poised on the threshold of World Series History, have returned to Baltimore, hoping to deliver the knockout blow to the suddenly staggering Orioles as quickly as possible.

The Pirates took command of the series by sweeping three straight games on the artificial tartan turf of Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium. They were set to go for the title in Saturday's sixth game with Bob Moose, another member of the rather non-descript pitching staff that has suddenly stilled the Baltimore bats.

It was Nelson Briles' turn in Thursday's crucial fifth game and the veteran right-hander responded with a brilliant two-hitter that gave the Pirates a 4-0 victory and left them one game away from their first title since 1960.

Suddenly, the Series that seemed a mismatch when Baltimore won the first two games, has turned around and the world champion Orioles are the team in trouble.

If the Pirates beat the Birds Saturday, they will become the first team in Series history to win four straight after dropping the first two games.

Four other teams have won the title in seven games after dropping the first two. But no team has come back from that deficit to win the classic in six.

"We'll see what kind of club this is on Saturday," said Frank Robinson in the somber Baltimore dressing room. "We can still win if we want to win."

Briles called his dramatic fifth-game victory, "the culmination of everything I've worked for in the last two years. They've been two hard years with a lot of work and not too much success."

Briles was a mainstay of the St. Louis pitching staff with 48 victories in three seasons before slumping to a 6-7 record last year. The Cards swapped him to Pittsburgh in a four-player trade last winter.

"We figured on him as a spot starter and long man out of the bullpen," said Danny Murtaugh, manager of the Pirates. Used both ways, Briles was 8-4 with a 3.04 earned run average. He managed just four complete games.

But Murtaugh planned to start him in the third game of the National League playoffs against San Francisco.

Then, a few minutes before gametime, he came up with a pulled groin muscle and the start went to Bob Johnson instead. The Pirates won the game but Briles felt lost.

"It was a low point in my career," he said.

But Murtaugh didn't quit on the veteran right-hander and gave him the start in the pivotal fifth World Series game. This time, Briles was ready.

He needed just 99 pitches to dispose of the Orioles and faced just 29 batters—two over the minimum.

He was in command from the start and got the only run he needed when Bob Robertson rocked Dave McNally's first pitch for a leadoff homer in the second inning.

Briles drove in a second run with a timely single and then the Pirates added two more—one without a hit when they capitalized on Gene Clines' triple and Roberto Clemente's single in the fifth.

When Briles came to bat in the eighth inning, the capacity crowd of 51,377 gave him a standing ovation. It was an obviously emotional moment for the pitcher.

"At that moment, all the people who've been so good to me through the years and encouraged me when I've been down, flashed through my mind," Briles said. "In all honesty ... I cried."

Briles finished the Orioles off easily in the ninth despite a momentary lapse when he walked Don Buford with two out. When he got the final batter on a force play grounder, he was mobbed by his teammates.

"Today meant more to me than any game I ever pitched," Briles said.

Baltimore Manager Earl

Weaver, meanwhile, tried desperately to figure out a way to restore some punch to the Oriole line-up. The Birds collected 16 runs and 24 hits in the first two games of the Series but just nine hits in the three games at Pittsburgh.

"I wish I knew what I could do," said Weaver.

Footballer Dies Of Game Injury

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A football player who served 22 months in Vietnam, then began his career at Virginia Union University this year as a 23-year-old freshman, is dead of neck injuries suffered against Elizabeth City, N.C., State last Saturday.

Elias Stukes, a starting cornerback, died Thursday morning.

"His death is, of course, a great shock to me, the team and everybody associated with Elias," said head coach Willard Bailey. "We'll pay our respects to him and then go out and play our football game Saturday (at St. Paul's)."

Virginia Union students scheduled a memorial service today for Stukes, and Elizabeth City said it would send two players and a coach to attend.

Stukes entered the Army after graduation from Richmond's Maggie Walker High in 1967.

thing," said Frank Robinson. "Defense, offense and pitching it hasn't been one thing, but a whole combination of things."

Their sudden slide at Pittsburgh left the Orioles on the brink of elimination. "No we'll see what we're made of," Frank concluded.

Asked if he was bringing champagne along with him for the trip to Baltimore, Murtaugh grinned.

"I'm taking a quart skimmed milk," he said.

'Billy Graham Day' In Charlotte

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — President Nixon, an old friend of Billy Graham, will ride with the evangelist in the presidential limousine today and then speak at a ceremony honoring the world-famous preacher in his native Charlotte.

During the late-afternoon speech in the Charlotte Coliseum the President will unveil a plaque which will be placed at Graham's birthplace — a former dairy farm now the site of a busy residential and office area.

Graham will be 53 on Nov. 7. At a reception Thursday night a member of his original evangelist team from Minneapolis, Minn., recalled that in the 1940s he was known as Billy Graham—Boy Evangelist, instead of The Billy Graham.

Graham has conducted crusades in major cities in the United States, Europe and the Orient.

The Billy Graham organization estimates that 43 million people have heard his sermons in person and that 1.2 million have come forward in answer to his appeals to repent and to accept Christ. Millions more have seen him on television and heard his radio broadcasts. The presidential blue and white jet plane, Air Force One, was to arrive at Douglas Municipal Airport at 2:20 p.m. The President will be accompanied by his wife, Secretary of the Treasury John Connally and his wife, and most of the North Carolina congressional delegation.

Among those meeting the plane will be Graham and his wife, and North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott and Mrs. Scott.

A motorcade will proceed from the airport to the coliseum, about 10 miles away.

The President and Graham are to ride at the front of the motorcade. When the presidential limousine passes through downtown Charlotte the top is to be slid back, weather permitting.

Schoolchildren in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County have been given the day off. Tickets to the 12,000 seats in the Coliseum have been distributed free, and all were gone early in the week.

The tribute was arranged by the Chamber of Commerce. The date was left to the President's discretion. Costs are being met through donations by businesses and individuals.

The presidential party is to arrive at the coliseum at 3 p.m. The Third Army band, and singers Norma Zimmer and Ethel Waters, who have appeared at many Graham crusades, will entertain the crowd. The drums will roll and the band will play "Hail to the Chief" as the President steps on the stage.

The coliseum ceremony is to end at 3:35 p.m.

MUTUAL RESPECT — Evangelist Billy Graham shakes the hand of Ed Burnside of Charlotte during a reception in Graham's honor Thursday night at Charlotte. Today is Billy Graham Day in Charlotte with President Nixon scheduled to participate in the ceremonies.

Combined Efforts Go In Black Arts Festival

The week-long Black Arts Festival getting underway Sunday at East Carolina University is a good case in point of combined efforts on the part of university departments and individuals working toward the realization of a common goal.

Dr. Kaye Stokes, publicity chairman of the ECU African Studies Committee, said that in preparations for the festival, "the departments of Sociology, History, Drama, Political Science, and the Schools of Art and Music all took part in planning and preparation." The work of the African Studies Committee, she pointed out, is in conjunction with other departments and agencies, such as the Student Government Association, in shaping up a full program for the week-long festival.

Under the direction of Dr. Blanche Watrous, a professor of Anthropology, who is coordinator of the African Studies Committee, the planning is being carried out by Dr. Mary Jo Bratton, program chairman from the Department of History. The committee, with assistance from all departments, is sponsoring several of the events scheduled for the Black Arts Festival.

These include the three films in the African Films Festival; the ECU Playhouse production of "Black Voices II," and the art exhibit to be on view at the Student Union.

Also, one of the two principal speakers during the festival, Dr. Kermit King, is also being sponsored by the African Studies Committee.

Dr. King, who lectures at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday, October 19, was in past years a Chief Educational Officer with AID (the Agency for International Development) in Africa, Asia and South America. He is also former president of the University of Liberia where he received the Honorary Doctor of Laws degree. He holds his American doctorate from the University of California at Los Angeles where he was at one time a faculty member. A former All American football player at the University of Kansas, Dr. King will speak on the "Role of Education in Contemporary Africa."

All of the activities under the auspices of the ECU African Studies Committee are open to the public without charge, except for the Playhouse production of "Black Voices II."

Three Cars In Accident

An estimated $2,300 property damage resulted from a three car collision here yesterday and one person was reported in another mishap.

The three-vehicle mishap occurred about 7:20 p.m., officers said, on Charles Street 40 feet South of Sanford Drive and involved vehicles driven by Roy Cleveland Tyndall, 45, of Greenville, Joseph Franklin Futrell, 44, of Tarboro, and Keven Paul Duffus, 17, of 110 Lord Ashley Dr.

Damage was set at $300 to the Tyndall car, $1,200 to the Futrell auto and $800 to the Duffus car.

Duffus was charged with following too closely.

Lois Dunn Worthington of Winterville, was reported injured when the car she was driving collided with a vehicle driven by Joyce Coggins Paramore, of Route 3 Greenville.

The mishap occurred about 5:50 p.m. on Fifth Street, 200 feet West of the Jarvis Street intersection.

"Pepsi-Cola's Value-Pak brings the nickel serving back?"

"How?"

Every serving that you pour costs a nickel... not a penny more.

Pepsi-Cola taste. Pepsi-Cola quality. At a price you thought went out with the big-band sound. The reason for the value is simple. First, you're buying in quantity. Eight 16-ounce returnable bottles—an actual gallon of Pepsi. Enough so that you don't have to worry about running out when the gang runs in. Second, you're not buying the bottles. You merely leave a deposit. A deposit that's refunded when you return the bottles. And returning the bottles helps keep our country clean. So get Pepsi-Cola in the 16-ounce Value-Pak—and get a serving of at least five ounces for only a nickel. At participating stores.

Pepsi's got a lot to give.

The Worry Clinic

Siblings Can Differ Greatly

Contrast Dick with his younger brother, Jim. Both have the same high intelligence. But their home background has been radically different from the psychological angle. Yet most parents never recognize this fact. So they credit such different personalities to heredity!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

Case R-588: Dick V., aged 25, is a lawyer.

"Dr. Crane," his mother began, "Dick has a brother 2 years younger, whose name is Jim."

"Both boys were equally bright."

"But Jim was always more easy going."

"He seldom finished his chores unless I constantly prodded him and even then he'd want to argue about the matter."

"So I figured Jim would become a lawyer, since he liked to talk and mingled more easily with strangers."

"Both decided to study law."

"But Dick was more inclined to stick to any task till he completed it. "He always had more determination."

"So Jim quit college after 2 years and became a salesman."

"Dick even earned much of his expenses while in Law School."

"Dr. Crane, is it heredity that caused this difference in my sons?"

Sibling Sequence

No; it is more likely due to the sequence in the family.

Often I have mentioned that the oldest child tends to be more of the executive type who assumes responsibilities and is a "finisher."

For that is inherent in being the firstborn.

The oldest child is thus unwittingly taught to be this way for when he and his younger sibling leave the house, Mamma tells that older child to "Look after your little brother."

By being held to account for that younger child, the elder thus knows he must bring the younger one home on schedule and unhurt.

So he learns to follow through or be a "finisher," since his job involves watching the clock and meeting deadlines.

Executives are thus often started on this lifelong career of looking out for others, even before they enter kindergarten!

There are some exceptions to this rule, but if you wish to pick out "finishers" and faced 1,000 oldest sons (or daughters) plus another 1,000 who were of the same sex but a year or two younger, which group would furnish you more potential executives?

By contrast, which would probably offer more with the salesman's affability and easy way of making friends or starting conversations with strangers?

Failure by the defense to capitalize on their opening advantage enabled South to take charge of the proceedings and rescue his four spade contract from defeat.

West opened the deuce of hearts, the four was played from dummy and East put in the queen to win the trick. He cashed the ace next on which his partner showed out, discarding a small diamond. A third heart was led to kill declarer's sluff, however South was now in position to assume the initiative. He ruffed in with the ten of spades, drew three rounds of trumps and then led the ace and ten of diamonds.

West put up the king of diamonds, but North's queen

When we psychologists hypnotize patients, we use the method called "working with gravity."

Thus we don't have the partially hypnotized patient lift his arms and then tell him he can't drop them.

For gravity is then working AGAINST the hypnotist. Instead, we tell him he cannot lift his arms, for then gravity is working WITH the hypnotist.

So I usually tell Personnel Conventions that they can also profit by working with gravity, as it were.

Thus, they might as well capitalize on the 25-year previous subconscious tutelage that oldest children have already received in learning the viewpoint of management.

Why try to make a manager out of a good salesman when his meticulous older brother has already had maybe 25 years of previous training in executive duties?

Conversely, why try to convert an introvert into an extrovert star salesman when his younger brother has also had maybe 20 years of previous training in meeting strangers gracefully?

was now established for a club discard and the ace of clubs provided access to the dummy for that purpose. South's losses on the deal consisted of two hearts and one diamond.

If East had shifted to a club at trick three, after cashing out his hearts, declarer would have been unable to develop the diamond discard because dummy's entry would have been dislodged prematurely. Since trumps have not yet been drawn, it does South no good to take an immediate club discard on the king of hearts because West can ruff in, exit with the king of clubs and sit back to score the setting trick subsequently with the king of diamonds.

West should have simplified the defense for his partner by making a more positive discard on the ace of hearts. It should be clear to him that a third round of hearts will not promote anything for him in the trump suit. It should not be difficult for him to place the declarer with the ace of diamonds, and once he does, the urgency of an immediate club shift by his partner should make itself known. In order to get the message across, West must discard the jack of clubs on the ace of hearts. If he does, East has no other choice but to make the club shift which assures eventual defeat for the declarer.

Higher Education Governing Board Plan Taken Up

RALEIGH (AP) — The legislature's Joint Higher Education Committee planned to consider today a subcommittee bill which would put all of North Carolina's state-supported universities under a strong central governing board.

The bill finally approved by the joint committee will be submitted to the special session of the General Assembly which convenes Oct. 26.

The subcommittee put the finishing touches on the proposed bill Thursday when it voted 10-6 to give the local boards of trustees of the 16 institutions virtually no powers except those which are conferred on them by the board of governors.

GAINS ON EXPORTS
LONDON (AP) — Exports of British-made farm machinery for the first six months of 1971 totaled a record $312 million at official parity, the Agricultural Engineers Association reported. That was $19.2 million more than for the same period of 1970.

The motion to strengthen the central board at the expense of local boards came from Sen. L. P. McLendon, D-Guilford. In accepting it, the group, in effect, rejected a recommendation by Rep. J. P. Huskins, D-Iredell, which would have given the local boards extensive statutory powers.

Eel Exports Up In New Zealand

WELLINGTON (AP) — New Zealand's unpolluted rivers pay dividends in exports, say government officials.

They believe that the clean, fresh flavor of New Zealand eels increases overseas demand. The value of eel exports rose from $90,000 in 1967 to $500,000 last year.

Destinations included West Germany, Netherlands, Japan, United States, South Africa, Italy, Sweden and Australia.

Regional university forces have been pushing for retention of powers by local boards while University of North Carolina forces favor a strong central board.

Committee chairmen Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, and Rep. Perry Martin, D-Northampton, along with Huskins warned that the bill would have less chance of passage if the McLendon motion passed. Even McLendon said it was doubtful the legislature would accept the action.

Also Thursday, the subcommittee agreed that the 32-member board of governors will include four women, two Republicans and four minority race members.

Rep. Jim Holshouser, R-Watauga, state Republican chairman, made the motion to require that the board have two GOP members. This was first rejected 8-7, but the vote was reconsidered on the motion of Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, and Holshouser's suggestion was approved.

The subcommittee also approved with little discussion a provision setting forth the budgetary powers of the governing board. Under the proposal, the governors would prepare and present a single budget for senior higher education in the state.

Funds for the continued operation of the 16 institutions would be appropriated directly to the institutions. Funds for salary increases for faculty and top administrative personnel would be appropriated to the board in a lump sum for allocation to the campuses.

Named To Post At Wisc. Univ.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Mrs. Binnie Tate, formerly of Greenville, N.C., has been named associate professor of library science at the University of Wisconsin here.

Mrs. Tate is a graduate of Eppes High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Streeter of Greenville, N.C.

The board would also receive in a lump sum funds for such things as program expansion, enrollment increases and capital improvements.

Under the subcommittee bill, the initial membership of the board would include 15 persons chosen by the present UNC Board of Trustees from among its members; two persons each chosen by the boards of the five larger regional universities from their members; one member each from the boards of the four smaller regional universities and the N.C. School of the Arts; two persons from the at-large membership of the Board of Higher Education; and the governor.

After July 1, 1973, the board of governors would consist of 32 persons, 24 of them to be elected by the legislature and eight appointed by the governor.

By an 8-7 vote the subcommittee defeated a proposal by Holshouser that "in order to provide continuity and balance in the composition of the board of governors," at least half of the 24 members initially elected by the legislature would be from the membership of the initial board, and at least six of these would come from the trustees of UNC and at least six from the trustees of regional universities.

The vote on the proposal was 7-7 and Martin broke the tie to defeat it.
