Supreme Court To Hear Flood Case; Rule On Immunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to hear Curt Flood's suit against professional baseball and to rule on the sport's immunity from antitrust laws.

The former all-star centerfielder, now living somewhere in Europe, has claimed ever since the St. Louis Cardinals traded him in 1969 to the Philadelphia Phillies that baseball's contract violates both state and federal antitrust laws and is a form of slavery. His chief lawyer is former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg.

The court simply announced there was no comment on any of the issues. The case will be heard sometime later this term.

The target of Flood's attack is the so-called "reserve system," which binds ballplayers to the team that holds their contract.

Baseball has never lost a case in the high court. In 1922, an opinion delivered by Oliver Wendell Holmes, the sport was granted exemption from antitrust regulation. In 1953 the court said any change in this status would be up to Congress. Meanwhile football and all other professional sports were made subject to federal antitrust laws.

Two lower federal courts have ruled against Flood. A decision by the high court is expected by June.

Civil, Criminal Penalties Submit Post-Freeze Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sent to Congress today legislation for the post-freeze anti-inflation efforts, calling for civil as well as criminal penalties, authority to control interest and dividends if needed and setting up a temporary emergency court of appeals to handle wage-price cases.

The President asked for a one-year extension to April 30, 1973 of the Economic Stabilization Act, which provides the power to act to regulate inflationary forces.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Charles Walker said the one-year time limit in no way indicates the length of time that the price-wage controls will remain in effect.

He said the controls will remain for as long as "it takes to break the back of inflationary expectations and to make meaningful progress to bring down the cost of living."

The proposed legislation calls for the same $5,000 criminal fines now contained in the law and adds a civil penalty of $2,500 for violations, adding what officials said were more teeth to enforce the effort.

The measure Nixon sent to the Capitol actually involved a "substantial rewriting" of the 1970 Economic Stabilization Act to clarify the presidential authority as well as to add the standby controls over interest and dividends at "levels consonant with orderly economic growth."

It also provides the power to regulate certain sectors of the economy where there are severest economic pressures.

Walker said it was not contemplated that the interest-dividend curbs will have to be used. He said "by severely puncturing inflationary expectations" the anti-inflationary efforts "will cause interest rates to decline." He said there already had been a "dramatic decline" in these rates.

Meanwhile a new government report showed the nation's economy entering the last months of 1971 still suffering with substantial slack.

The Federal Reserve Board said Monday that industrial production advanced by .5 per cent in September after dropping sharply in the two previous months.

At the same time, the pace of home building, one of the economy's strongest sectors, slackened after a strong August showing, the Commerce Department said.

Neither report excited administration economists. Although they welcomed a rise in industrial output, they said the strong production upsurge they

Emotional Homecoming For Agnew Welcomed By His Ancestral Town

GARGALIANOI, Greece (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew came to the village of his ancestors today in an emotional homecoming that filled the narrow streets with welcoming townspeople.

He said he had learned that a man can go home again, "even to a home he has only heard of but never seen before."

The emotion of the moment could be read in Agnew's face as he stood before the people of Gargalianoi in the town's soccer stadium and paid tribute to his late father.

"If any individual is entitled to these honors I receive it is he," the vice president said.

"He was one of you and he left these shores many years ago ...

"It was on his knee that I learned of this town and of the principles of the early Hellenes ...

... And I only wish that he could have returned with me today," Agnew said, his voice breaking for just an instant, "and yet I sense his presence here."

Agnew does not speak Greek. His remarks were translated sentence by sentence and the crowd applauded almost every line.

"I could see him breaking up near the end," Mrs. Agnew said later.

The vice president walked through a welcoming archway and drove to the village cemetery to place a flag-draped wreath at a family gravesite. He visited a white-walled orphanage that was a convent founded by his great aunt. Agnew gave bracelets to two young girls who lived there, and he patted them on their cheeks.

He went to the ancestral home of his family where a cousin, Andreas Anagnostopoulos, still lives and dedicated there a plaque "in commemoration of my origins here and in honor of the Greek inheritance which so many other Americans proudly share."

At State Fair

NIGHT LIFE AT THE FAIR ... The night life at the 104th North Carolina State Fair can be exciting, for the young and old. Even though there was a slight decrease in attendance this year at the opening of the fair, last night's crowd at the fair was enthusiastic with children hugging stuffed animals and taking in the loud music of the amusements. Entertainment that is scheduled is Paul Revere and the Raiders, Sandi and Salli, George Hamilton IV, Ray Price and Jody Miller. On the closing night Des O'Conner and Margaret Whiting will be present. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forest)

McGovern Coming

Presidential hopeful Senator George McGovern will be in Greenville on November 18 to deliver a speech at East Carolina University.

ECU President Dr. Leo Jenkins confirmed reports that the South Dakota Democratic Senator is scheduled to appear here on that date. Dr. Jenkins said a reception for the senator is being planned.

In his speech before the ECU student body, to be held in Wright Auditorium at 10:00 a.m. that date, the senator will speak on the status of America's rural economy.

This will be the first visit McGovern has announced for North Carolina since his announcement that he will seek the presidential nomination.

A special report on maintenance of buildings and grounds of the Greenville City School system, made to the City School Board by Associate Superintendent Glenn Cox at the board's meeting Monday night, reiterates that public schooling is big business in Greenville.

Cox, outlining the physical spread of the school system, reported that the city schools own 147 acres of school land on which buildings valued at $8,600,000 covers a total of ten and one half acres of instructional space.

To clean, upkeep and maintain the buildings, the school system employs 30 full time maids and janitors. Maintenance men number seven full time and one part time employee. Of these, Cox said three were skilled workers, and the others semi-skilled or unskilled.

For the total upkeep of all the facilities, $84,000 is budgeted annually — a little more than one percent of the over $8 million facility value. The associate superintendent noted that the State works on a flat three percent in their budgeting percentage.

Maintenance men, according to Cox, have a wide range of responsibilities — painting; care and repair of small motors, of which there are something like 2,000 within the school system of one sort or another; building shelves, cabinets and other carpentry work; plastering; and many other functions now including responsibility for delivery, storing and accounting for bulk storage items in connection with the new food program of bulk buying.

A report on audits for the school year ending June 30, made by Superintendent Dr. C. C. Cleetwood, shows that State funds expended on the Greenville City schools for the nine month school period amounted to a total of $2,282,982.42. Of this, the greater portion was for instructional services, or salaries for teachers and principals, which accounted for $1,823,908.95.

Other items in the state funds were: general control funds, $40,323; instructional supplies and clerical assistance $54,743; operation of plant, $88,925.75; fixed charges — basically for employer's retirement cost and Social Security, $264,137.39; auxiliary agencies — transportation, libraries and child health program, $10,851.33.

Other fiscal reports showed that under capital funds summary and analysis there is currently an unencumbered capital balance of $48,921.95, from available funds amounting to $201,757.18. Of available funds, $76,979.23 is earmarked as a reserve fund for a new middle-junior high school and $75,856.00 is for the obligation due on the Rose High Economics complex.

Dr. Cleetwood reminded board members it was not too early to begin thinking in concrete terms for the new middle-junior high school. He indicated that at this stage a site was not the important thing, but that various levels of planning and programming would require a period of up to four or five years.

In a meeting emphasizing reports, it was also disclosed that 5,948 students are currently enrolled in the Greenville City Schools. This is a slight drop from the figure of 6,157 from last year. Dr. Cleetwood further reported a total of 390 students in the four private schools, an increase of 40 over 350 in these schools last year.

On the status of air conditioning at Aycock, Dr. Cleetwood reported that work still remained to be done, as parts of some units mounted on the roof were missing and had to be re-ordered.

Wahl-Coates Elementary School construction is nearing completion. The superintendent said that conceivably the change over to the new building could possibly take place by Thanksgiving, but that Christmas was the more likely date.

The school board turned down a request to distribute discount coupon tickets for a series of children's movies. Consensus of the members was that the theater operator could provide this benefit to the children of the community without using the school facilities.

School board members concurred that it would not be suitable for them to take a public stand on a request from C. W. Everett Jr. relative to a proposed construction of a multi-family apartment complex of about 240 units directly across Red Banks Road from Aycock Junior High.

In another East Carolina University request to utilize pupils in the public schools for a research study, no action was taken. However, the board approved a motion by Dr. James Bearden that Dr. Cleetwood and the school staff appoint a review board to study each individual research study request, to make a decision on the request, and in turn to offer the school's recommendation to the school board on individual requests as they are received.

Dr. Cleetwood confirmed the date of October 30 as the one established for public auction sale of surplus school property. He also informed board members that the week of October 23-29 would be observed by city schools both as National Education Week and United Nations week.

Find Weapons Sent From U.S.

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Customs officials found guns and ammunition in trunks landed today from the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 after a voyage from New York. They said the weapons possibly were destined for the Irish Republican Army in Northern Ireland.

Submachine guns and hand grenades were found at Cobh Harbor in County Cork, on the south coast of the Irish Republic, after customs agents were tipped off.

The trunks were believed to have been consigned to a man who accompanied them from New York, customs officials reported.

Irish army experts and local police raced to the customs shed where the arms were discovered and an armed guard was thrown around the building.

The man believed to have accompanied the trunks landed from the liner, making its first stop en route to Southampton, England, from the United States, but his whereabouts was not immediately known. He was not identified.

In Britain, security officers carried out searches of coffins and other cargo from airliners at London and Manchester. Following the weekend capture of more than three tons of Czechoslovak weapons aboard a plane at Amsterdam airport, Scotland Yard police said that on flights through Britain to Ireland "every item of cargo is being checked—coffins too."

Police noted that at least once in the past, coffins loaded with guns and ammunition were found at a mock funeral procession crossing the border from the Irish Republic into Northern Ireland.

One of Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic civil rights leaders and the youngest members of Parliament, Bernadette Devlin, wrapped in an orange blanket, squatted on the sidewalk outside Prime Minister Edward Heath's 10 Downing Street residence.

Miss Devlin, 24, was keeping a round-the-clock vigil to demand a full answer from Heath on newspaper allegations that suspected members of the Irish Republican Army under arrest in Ulster were being tortured. Her demand for a debate on the issue in Parliament Monday was rejected.

Deported

MONTREAL (AP) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the militant Jewish Defense League in the United States, was deported from Canada today. He and six other persons had come here to protest the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union during the visit of Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Rabbi Kahane and his group were detained Monday night after landing at Montreal's airport.

An official of the Canadian immigration department said Kahane left aboard an Air Canada flight for New York at 7 a.m.

UNC Trustees Oppose Joint Committee's Restructuring Measure

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Trustees of the University of North Carolina agreed to go along Monday with the idea of placing all state-supported universities under a strong central board.

But they expressed strong opposition to a higher education restructuring bill approved last week by the General Assembly's joint Higher Education Committee.

The UNC board instead backed a restructuring plan proposed by William C. Friday, the UNC president. His plan would bring the state's regional universities under the consolidated UNC system.

After the meeting, Gov. Bob Scott, who is chairman of the UNC board, told reporters he was pleased with "the direction the trustees have taken. He said that UNC is now "in a bargaining position" for a legislative session that convenes next Tuesday to deal with restructuring higher education.

Scott added that UNC insistence that the consolidated university be the new governing system may "raise some additional ire from regional universities."

Both UNC and the regional universities are fighting for changes in the bill approved by the committee. The bill would create a powerful 32-member board July 1, 1972, to govern all state-supported universities.

The regional universities want the legislation changed to allow the local university boards more powers while UNC is seeking a dominant position in the new setup.

The UNC trustees, who waged a statewide campaign against Scott's restructuring proposals last spring, again called on "all alumni and friends of the university" to rally to their new cause. They set up a five-member committee to represent the consolidated university when the General Assembly reconvenes.

Scott admonished the trustees not to take "a negative position" on the resolution which stated the trustee position. It warned of dangers in the committee bill.

The resolution opposed a proposed interim board which would govern the university system the first year. It said it would subject higher education to "disruption and discontinuity." It warned that the small 32-member board would throw out the accumulated experience of present trustees.

The resolution also objected to losing the "broad representative structure" of the 100-member board, and it said that giving the governor power to appoint one-third of the new board would "abandon the long and sound tradition of having all trustees of the consolidated university elected by the General Assembly."

Harassments And Attack Unlikely Deter Kosygin

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
OTTAWA (AP) — As Premier Alexei N. Kosygin embarked today on another round of diplomatic tourism, the prospect was that heckling and harassment would follow him across Canada and would rub much of the sheen from whatever Soviet policy had hoped to achieve from his trip. Nobody was injured and nobody was more than momentarily upset by the attack Monday on the Soviet premier's person by an angry young Hungarian and by the demonstrations by minority groups which feel oppressed by the Russians. However, the attack on Kosygin and the denunciations of him by demonstrating Ukrainians and Jews managed to swing the spotlight away from Kosygin's phrases about peace in the world and concentrate it instead on Soviet domination of ethnic minorities in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. More demonstrations are promised on Kosygin's route across Canada.

Kosygin's obvious mission is to spread the word that the Soviet Union yearns for peace in the world and is seeking to achieve this through such devices as a European security conference and mutual American and Soviet reduction of forces in foreign countries.

Kosygin's trip just as obviously is part of a larger pattern of Soviet diplomacy. It has taken the Soviet premier to North Africa just in advance of the Canada trip. It has taken other top Soviet leaders to eastern Europe and Southeast Asia. It is a determined offensive with readily discernible goals. It took only a few angry persons to divert the attention of the world away from what the Soviet leaders wanted it to see. A young Hungarian jumped on the man who represents the power that subjugated his country's brief anti-Communist revolt 15 years ago this month. Jews protest that the Russians are persecuting their brethren. Ukrainian exiles demonstrate violently against Moscow's domination of their homeland. Czechoslovak exiles remind the world of the 1968 suppression of their reform movement.

As a result, the message the Soviet premier is trying to impart is buried under an avalanche of newspaper and television accounts of the more dramatic events, the sort of events both the Canadians and Soviet governments wanted to avoid.

Kosygin's message comes through clearly. He wants to impress upon the Canadians that the great Soviet superpower wants above all the convocation of a European security conference to deal with tensions in that continent, presumably including the tensions aroused by the presence of U.S. military forces in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Kosygin's schedule today included another round of talks with Trudeau and other Canadian leaders, a luncheon at the posh capitalist Rideau Club, given by Kosygin for Trudeau, a visit to a paper plant, a tourist's view of the Catineau Hills and a concert at the National Arts Center.

Jewish groups planned a big demonstration in the afternoon to protest the Kremlin's refusal to permit unrestricted emigration of Jews to Israel. East European emigres and pro-Chinese groups planned a demonstration outside the Arts Center.

Canadian security officials ordered tighter cordons around the visiting premier after a young Hungarian refugee grabbed Kosygin by his coat and nearly threw him to the ground as he walked with Trudeau on Parliament Hill.

Trudeau told the House of Commons later that Kosygin was less upset by the incident than Trudeau was ashamed.

Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the militant Jewish Defense League, was one of the casualties of the security crackdown. Air Canada reported that he was stopped at Montreal when he arrived from New York. He had said earlier that he was going to Ottawa to try to disrupt Kosygin's visit.

Mansfield Has 2nd Thoughts On Haynsworth

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has had some second thoughts about his vote against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. for the Supreme Court.

"As I look back, I may have cast the wrong vote," he said when asked about a report that he had come to regret voting against confirmation of the South Carolina jurist.

President Nixon's nomination of Haynsworth was rejected by the Senate by a 55-45 vote on Nov. 21, 1969. Nixon's nomination of a second Southern judge, G. Harrold Carswell of Florida, was rejected by a 51-45 vote the following April.

Mansfield did not elaborate on why he feels he may have made a mistake voting against Haynsworth, who is chief judge of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

He recently told newsmen, however, that "the idea there is any vendetta in the Senate against the South is 100 per cent false."

Nixon had accused the Senate of prejudice against court nominees from the South.

Now, there are southerners among those Nixon is considering for two new court vacancies.

Of six possible nominees the American Bar Association's committee on the federal judiciary has been asked to investigate, a Little Rock, Ark., attorney, Herschel H. Friday, has been described by informed sources as a leading prospect.

The ABA panel is scheduled to meet in New York Wednesday to make its findings.

Legal circles report no additional names submitted for investigation, although administration officials have said others are under consideration by the President.

Nixon's announced timetable calls for submission to the Senate before the end of the week of his nominations to fill court seats vacated last month by the retirement of Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., who was among 17 GOP senators who voted against Haynsworth's confirmation, said the Greenville, S.C., judge may be superior to any of those reported under consideration for appointment now. But he said he does not regret his vote.

Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., Monday accused Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., of attacking those under consideration without waiting for hearing on their qualifications.

Kennedy has termed the list of six "one of the greatest insults to the Supreme Court in its history."

"This prejudging and character assassination by Sens. Kennedy and Bayh is totally unwarranted and wholly unbecoming a U.S. Senator," Gurney said in a statement.

He said this was especially so in the case of members of the Senate Judiciary Committee "which must sit in judgment after the nominations are made."

Both Kennedy and Bayh are members of the committee, as is Gurney.

New Career For Medina

MENOMINEE, Mich. (AP) — Former Army Capt. Ernest L. Medina, acquitted by a military court last month in the My Lai massacre in Vietnam in 1968, walked into a small office Monday and began his new career with a firm that manufactures helicopters.

Medina, 35, spent part of the day house hunting with his wife Barbara.

Medina, who described himself as not a public figure, said he was rather a victim "of this unfortunate incident that forced me to enter the public eye."

He said that he hoped to get in his final two years of college, majoring in business, through extension courses at the University of Wisconsin which maintains a branch in Marinette, Wis., just across the Menominee River.

Medina's new job is assistant to the chairman of Enstrom Helicopter Co.

Lawyer F. Lee Bailey, Medina's defense attorney at the court martial, is the company's chairman.

Paul Schultz, Enstrom vice president-engineering, said of Medina's new job, "He's going to learn the helicopter business. He's going to learn to fly 'em and he's going to learn to build them."

Seeks Political Tool For Reform

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert says he hopes to seek political ways to "clean up the Army from the outside."

Herbert, who accused two superior officers of covering up alleged atrocities committed by American soldiers in Vietnam, said in an interview Monday he probably will retire from the Army in February.

He said that since the war crimes charges he filed were "swept under the rug," he would "lay everything before the American people and let them decide for themselves."

Herbert said he might work "through Congress, through the vote, even talk at universities" in an effort to bring about military reform.

WELL FIRE SPRAYED — Water was being sprayed on Amoco's 215B production platform burning out of control Monday. Fire erupted Saturday on the platform which is located in the Gulf of Mexico about 75 miles south of Franklin.

La. Amoco officials said they hope to drill relief wells to intercept the flow of oil and gas feeding the blaze. Three men on the platform Saturday escaped uninjured. (AP Wirephoto)

She Wants To Be Next Mayor

By DIANE CURTIS
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What, the boys in the smoke-filled rooms may be asking themselves, is a nice girl like Dianne Feinstein doing here?

Mrs. Feinstein has the answer: She wants to become the first woman mayor of a major American city, namely, San Francisco.

That may be a formidable task for the slim, 38-year-old president of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, wife of a neurosurgeon and mother of a teen-age daughter.

Incumbent Mayor Joseph Alioto, despite monumental legal difficulties over the next four months, is favored to win re-election in November against Mrs. Feinstein and 11 other candidates.

Mrs. Feinstein has beaten the odds before. Two years ago she led a field of 17 candidates for the Board of Supervisors, San Francisco's city council, and was elected president, a post which traditionally goes to the leading vote-getter. She was the first woman to hold that position.

Mrs. Feinstein, is no strident crusader. Quiet and self-spoken, she has surrounded herself with young professionals and reformers who have put on a generally low-key campaign.

A member of her staff describes her as "very much of a woman," and Mrs. Feinstein herself says that while she agrees with many of the goals of Women's Liberation, such as economic and political equality, she feels "no identification with the bra burners."

Mary Pepps, her 25-year-old administrative assistant, says that one of Mrs. Feinstein's strengths is that men don't feel defensive with her. "She's very subtle, very gracious, yet she has a strong viewpoint and can get her point across well."

Mrs. Feinstein is married to Dr. Bertram Feinstein, director of the Neurological Institute at Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco. There is no conflict in her marriage because of her political career, she said in an interview.

"My husband is a very secure man," Mrs. Feinstein, clad informally in slacks and sweater, explained in the study of her English-style home — a study with a view of City Hall. "I am not a threat to him," she said. "I have worked all through our marriage and he still brings me breakfast in bed every Sunday morning."

Speaking of both her husband and her daughter by a former marriage, Mrs. Feinstein said, "I have a family that believes and understands in me."

Mrs. Feinstein was a Stanford University graduate in history and political science, and government has always been her interest. "I love to go into a situation, work it out, and come to some resolution," she said.

She was student body vice president at Stanford, was assistant to the California Welfare Commission, and served on the California Women's Board of Terms and Parole, appointed to the board by then Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Days for the energetic board president are long and full now. Mornings are spent at appointments with constituents, department heads, business or labor leaders — anyone with information or concerns about matters she is involved in.

Afternoons are kept free for the many committee and board meetings she must attend. And many nights are spent answering correspondence she couldn't get to during the day.

Mayor Alioto was instrumental in getting Mrs. Feinstein into San Francisco politics. He appointed her to his Mayor's Committee on Crime and backed her in her bid for supervisor in 1969. The mayor is involved in several court trials over the next four months, including both a civil and a criminal suit over a fee-splitting case dating from his days as antitrust attorney and a retrial of his $12.5 million libel suits against the now defunct Look Magazine for an article linking him with the Mafia.

Mrs. Feinstein has avoided discussing any of these issues but concentrates on local matters. Among other things she charges the mayor with a lack of civic responsibility in opposing San Francisco's court-ordered school busing.

"I think the mayor acted irresponsibly," Mrs. Feinstein said. "We had a situation of potential violence. In those cities where the public official has taken a stand against busing or in private ways fanned it, violence has come. The mayor came out against it and there was a big uproar. I don't think this is leadership."

"I think that busing does strike at the neighborhood school, but integration is the law of the land and the schools should be integrated."

DIANNE FEINSTEIN . . . wife of a neurosurgeon, wants to be the next mayor of San Francisco. Simple as that. She's already upset the odds-makers once by leading all candidates to become the first female president of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors (the city council) two years ago. But whether her low-key campaign will unseat incumbent Mayor Joseph Alioto will have to be seen at the polls in November. She is seen here Sept. 28, at the city hall with the civic center in the rear. (AP Wirephoto)

WOTM Program By Ed Baldree

Ed Baldree was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Women of the Moose No. 1308 Thursday night.

Baldree showed slides of Mooseheart in Chicago, Ill. The slides included buildings and various activities of the students at Mooseheart.

Mrs. Joyce Castner, Mooseheart chairman, introduced the speaker.

Theme for the chapter night was "Christmas in October." Each co-worker brought gifts for the members of Mooseheart and placed them under the Christmas tree.

The adult Halloween party and dance will be held Saturday, Oct. 30. Music will be presented by The Clubmen.

The children's Halloween party has been scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 31.

After the meeting was adjourned, a covered dish supper was held by the WOTM and their husbands were invited guests. The next meeting will be held Oct. 28.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were very much in love when we married 12 years ago. She was brought up in one religion and I in another, so in order to be "fair," we were married by a Justice of the Peace.

After our first baby came, she wanted it baptized [in her former faith] so I said, "Fine." Then she decided she wanted to attend her former church again. I said, "All right. Just don't start nagging me to go with you." She promised she wouldn't, and she didn't.

Another baby. Another baptism. Pretty soon she started getting a ride to church and back with the man across the street who had the same kind of mixed marriage we had. [His wife didn't attend any church.]

Are you ahead of my story? You guessed it. My wife and this neighbor announced that they are "in love" and want to be free to marry each other.

If you can see the moral to this real-life soap opera, please put it in your column in capital letters! STUPID

DEAR STUPID: I see the moral. It's "DON'T SELL RELIGION SHORT. IT ISN'T DEAD. IT'S ONLY SLEEPING."

DEAR ABBY: Some years ago I used to stop at the bar in my office building every evening after work and have a couple of drinks with the fellows before coming home. The drinks were a dollar each.

About four years ago my wife made this proposition to me: She would buy the whiskey by the case, and SELL it to me by the drink for 85 cents if I came straight home.

This worked out fine, and she bought many nice things with the profit.

Now, starting September 1st, she has upped the price to $1 a shot because of higher costs.

The problem. With the 90-day freeze announced by President Nixon, isn't she liable to a $5,000 fine? W. I. F.

DEAR W. I. F.: No. She's not a licensed retailer. [P. S. If your wife demands a tip, too, she's not any cheaper than the bar, which could defeat her original scheme.]

DEAR ABBY: This is not a request for advice. It's a plea for understanding.

I am a widow of 63. The gentleman is a widower of 66. I've been widowed for three years. He lost his wife five years ago. We've known each other for many years and were friends when our mates were alive.

We love each other and want to marry, but here is our situation: The gentleman's income is a small Social Security check. Mine is both Social Security and Veterans Administration from my deceased husband. If we were to marry, I'd lose both pensions and we would have to live on the gentleman's small income, which would be practically impossible. So we are doing what some of the college kids are doing: We are "shacking up."

We both own homes, so I moved into his and am renting mine out for the income.

Of course, you know what happened. Our families have disowned us and our neighbors no longer speak to us. We are social outcasts.

Our financial ties to this small town preclude our moving away. Besides, we both have members of our families in the little cemetery on the hill, so we remain here.

Motorists are not the only ones using the streets and highways. There also are jaywalking pedestrians, cyclists, running children and wandering animals. Keep alert to these hazards.

Why does a society that has become more understanding toward young folks who are in love, condemn two old people who want to end their days together in love and companionship?
OLD LOVERS

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old unmarried woman. I am not a virgin, but I have never been promiscuous. I recently became acquainted with a very attractive eligible man, and was thrilled when he asked me out. This man had "class." He was good-looking, charming, well-mannered, intelligent and financially secure.

On our very first date he said, "I don't like to play games. If we like each other, I'll expect you to play house with me, so don't waste a lot of time with that hard-to-get routine."

I told him I thought he was crude. He said he was just being "honest" and I should appreciate being told from the start what he expected.

I told him I thought he was "too honest" for me. Needless to say I never heard from him again.

I think I could have really cared for this man if he hadn't been so blunt. Was I wrong to have sent him on his way?

DEAR HAVE: No. And don't be surprised if you hear from him again. No man with "class" likes a pushover.

A Second Summit Is Logical

Pres. Nixon's plans to visit Moscow came as a surprise; however it is a logical move following the proposed Peking trip.

As one diplomat was quoted as saying, "It is a logical extension of the growing improvement in American-Russian dealings since Nixon took office.

The only surprise is that so few people were talking about the possibility."

The president in announcing the trip said, "The leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union in their exchanges during the past year, have agreed that a meeting between them would be desirable once sufficient progress had been made in negotiations at lower levels.

"In light of the recent advances in bilateral and multilateral negotiations involving the two countries, it has been agreed that such a meeting will take place in Moscow in the latter part of May, 1972."

It has been indicated that the talks will include arms control, Mideast problems, a European security conference and a balanced, mutual troop cut in Central Europe.

The president emphasized that the visit to Peking had no bearing on the Moscow trip. "The two are independent trips.

"We are going to Peking for the purpose of discussing matters of bilateral concern there. And I will be going to the Soviet Union for the purpose of discussing matters that involve the United States and the Soviet Union."

We saw hope for world peace in the president's announced plans to visit Peking. We can also take hope from this planned trip to Moscow.

If world problems are to be solved, it is going to take talks at the highest levels between the nations of the world. Certainly President Nixon is taking the initiative in the cause of peace by agreeing to both the Peking and the Moscow visits.

Political Eyes On The Future

By BRYAN HAISLIP

EDEN — Politics in the future tense overshadowed tributes to the past when 500 or so Democrats gathered here last week to honor six governors produced by Rockingham County.

Shades of former leaders took a backseat to the presence in the flesh of

Two state senators, Tom Strickland of Wayne and Hector McGeachy of Cumberland, and a former senator, Elton Edwards of Greensboro, were present and talking confidently of the attorney general contest.

Six Governors Honored
Allen H. Gwyn, Jr., Rockingham Democratic chairman, presided for the dinner held at the John Motley Morehead High School. It bears the name of the governor (1841-45), one of the six honored.

Others, in addition to Hodges (1954-60), include Alexander Martin (1782-84, 1789-92), David Settle Reid (1851-54), Alfred M. Scales (1885-89), and Robert B. Glenn (1905-09).

Hollings struck the chord of Southern resurgence in his address, and lauded Tar Heel leadership in the region's forward movement.

He recalled his service as South Carolina lieutenant governor and governor while Hodges held the offices in this state, and gave fulsome praise to his colleague. But for the accident of birth in the South, Hollings asserted, Hodges would have been president.

Now, he declared, the day has arrived when a Southerner could be a viable candidate for the nation's highest office.

Prayer For High Court?

Taking note of U. S. Supreme Court vacancies, Hollings suggested that President Nixon consider Richardson Preyer, Sixth District Congressman and a former federal judge. "If the President is sincere in looking for judicial talent, he need look no further than right here to Judge Preyer," said Hollings, who led the unsuccessful fight to seat Judge Clement Haynesworth of South Carolina on the high court.

Turning from personal compliments to political considerations, Hollings said the country is getting confusion and frustration out of the White House instead of positive direction.

He accused the Republican administration of trying to practice "ad hoc leadership," decisions made in secret without consultations, policy reversals without explanation, and "dealing with the politics of problems instead of the problems themselves."

Hollings, selected by fellow Democratic Senators as chairman of the Senate Campaign committee, spoke caution for his party as well as castigation for the Republicans.

"Let's be blunt," he advised. "On the basis of recent performance neither party has a claim on the White House."

"Political limbo" is the present state of mind in the nation, he said. The majority of voters is still in search of candidates, he added, and waiting to judge on the basis of actions between now and next year's general election.

Points Of Historical Interest Recognized

The second historical marker to be erected here recently was unveiled Sunday.

A service was held at Memorial Baptist Church on Greene Street where a marker commemorates the founding of the Baptist Convention of North Carolina.

Another marker has recently been erected on E. Fifth Street commemorating the founding of East Carolina University.

It is indeed appropriate that these two points of historical interest have been recognized.

Brooke Adds Nixon Votes

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. — Quite apart from the adverse political impact of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's controversial ban on a black Vice Presidential running-mate, the front-running Democratic Presidential contender was on very solid ground when he said that a Muskie ticket with a Negro on it was "unelectable."

In fact, the results of a polling survey that we conducted here in middle and low-income suburbs of Westchester County on Oct. 11 and 12 offer overwhelming evidence that Muskie would be swamped if he ran with a black Democrat in any way identified with civil rights. However, our interviews with 366 individual voters, 12 per cent of them black, contained this ironic aspect: while either of two prominent black Democrats would almost certainly cost Muskie the election, President Nixon would run stronger with Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, the only Negro in the Senate, than with either Vice President Spiro Agnew or Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally.

To arrive at these conclusions, we used a sophisticated technique that the professional pollsters call "matched samples." With the help of pollster Oliver Quayle's two top political analysts, Frank Goldsmith and William Conway, plus

To The Editor:

Our young people do good. Last week was Nicky Cruz week in Greenville. So many of these readers did not think the messages would be important to them or did not apply to them. My fellow citizens, this thinking was your loss.

I want to publicly comment the 54 young men, mostly from East Carolina University, who freely gave of their time to usher at all or some of the three nights of the Nicky Cruz Crusade. Particularly, I want to commend the fellows of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity whom I was privileged to be closely associated with these three nights. These young men carried out instructions and took it on themselves and made it personal and individual responsibility to help all persons they came in contact with to benefit from the nights of inspiration.

Strength For Today

WE ARE NOT DESERTED

When we can definitely trace some discomfort or loss in our lives to our own folly or blundering, the situation is not easy to take. When, however, one has to suffer unjustly, the burden may appear greater than one can bear. But this is never so.

The Apostle Paul and his companion Silas were on a missionary tour which resulted in the founding of the first Christian church on the continent of Europe. Paul and Silas were cast into prison because they had healed a certain young woman of an affliction. The result was that Paul and Silas were scourged and imprisoned. To our amazement, we read that "at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and sang praises unto God; and the prisoners heard them" (Acts 16:25).

To be able to meet the misfortunes of life with a song on one's lips is a genuine triumph. Most people who are in any kind of trouble weep over the fact — and we can readily understand why. The long hours of the night are for many people a period of distress and sorrow. But there are a few choice souls who when they find themselves in trouble can pray and sing praises to God.

Anyone with that spirit is to be envied and admired. Troubles of all sorts and the attendant sorrows are realities everyone has to bear. To bear them with wailing, with curses on one's lips — this only makes trouble the harder to bear. When one in the midst of trouble can pray and sing praises to God he can be sure that the day of miracles is not past. The Creator is constantly in his created world and on Him our ultimate reliance must rest.

Hazy Look Into Future

Seventy-five of the most distinguished scientists and thinkers of the Western world turned up in Washington this past Saturday afternoon, as guests of the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation. Their purpose was to think aloud for a few hours on some of the gravest questions ever raised. They were not concerned with science fiction; they were concerned with science reality instead. Very few persons, outside the scientific community, have given much thought to these questions. We have more immediate things to worry about, after all, then "Who Should be Born?" It is fearfully hard work to grapple with such a topic as "The Ethics of New Technologies in Beginning Life." Few persons are equipped to comprehend today's biology. Given the word "gene" in a word association test, most of us would respond, "McCarthy."

The time is at hand when a great many Americans, at every level of public and private life, must begin to interest themselves in the frontiers of science that are now being actively explored. Yet the scientific questions are perhaps the least complex. Embryologists already know, in general, how to make a "test-tube baby." It is only the technology that remains to be solved. The moral and ethical questions are infinitely more profound: Who decides that such a baby should be made?

Or consider, if you will, a less shocking prospect. It is only a matter of a few years before the mystery will be solved of sex determination as an aspect of child-bearing. Eventually — certainly by 2000 — parents will be able to choose "boy" or "girl" as precisely as they fix a time for dinner. Should this determination be left solely to parents? Or does society as a whole, through some agency of government, have a right to exercise control?

War, it is said, is too serious to be left to generals. By the same token, is parenthood too serious to be left to parents? Within the next few years — certainly by 2000 — new techniques of contraception will be universally available. These will be simple, foolproof, and for all practical purposes, free. The moral implications to one side, what of the social and economic implications? Who is to say how many children should be conceived? Should the number be left simply to chance?

Thomas Alva Edison robbed nature of many secrets for the happiness of man, but he never found the one secret he sought — proof of the immortality of the soul. Edison, the electrical wizard, died at the age of 84 Sunday. President Hoover plans to attend the funeral Wednesday both as a personal friend and as head of a sorrowing nation. Meanwhile Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone, the inventor's "old cronies," hastened to his West Orange, New Jersey home. Today, among the books and test tubes that were so much his life, Edison's body lay in state in the Edison Library, the scene of his many triumphs in invention. The funeral Wednesday will be on the fifty-second anniversary of Mr. Edison's perfection of the incandescent light.

Avoiding Trade Show Squeeze

By ELMER ROESSNER

Because a trade show, an exhibition or a world's fair is a one-time thing, contractors and unions hit it for all they can. Many an exhibitor is astounded by the costs of getting his exhibit in place and flabbergasted by the costs of getting it out.

Sometimes the installation of an exhibit involves payments to a dozen different trades. Twenty minutes of electrical work on a Sunday before opening may cost an exhibitor two full days pay for two men.

At one world's fair, a local union demanded that all prevailing in exhibits be torn out and replaced by members of the local. At another fair, the fair management itself imposed a fat charge for trucking exhibits out the gates after it was over.

Well-managed shows do all they can to eliminate excessive charges by unions and contractors. They try to eliminate jurisdictional disputes between unions well in advance to avoid a common squeeze, the paying of two crews from rival unions for doing the same job. They check trucking companies, installers and other contractors and recommend to exhibitors only those who are modest in their overloads.

An Example
In line with protecting exhibitors, Clapp & Poliak, a New York management firm which produces several of the largest industrial shows in the country, has just issued a 16-page brochure on "Reducing Exhibiting Costs

— a New Approach."

It cites many pitfalls. For example, it notes that the charge for moving a machine from a loading platform to a display is on a tonnage basis, but unless arrangements are made in advance, the machinery is deposited any place in the area. Then the exhibitor has to pay "spotters" on an hourly basis for moving it into the position desired.

The booklet suggests arrangements be made with the draymen to position the machinery. If pads, mounts, leveling devices and attachments to the floor are needed, the exhibitor must make sure they are on the spot.

The "Golden Rule"
It offers this "golden rule" to exhibitors: "As far as possible, assemble all components and structures and do all possible wiring at the plant, not at the show. This goes for all products that require assembly, wiring or connecting of any sort."

It adds that, not only is such work done at the show very expensive, but that an exhibitor's own employees know a great deal more about the products than any show workman is likely to.

Copies of the booklet are available from Clapp & Poliak, 245 Park Ave., New York 10017.

FTC To Open Stem-To-Stern Probe Of Advertising
Starting Wednesday, the Federal Trade Commission will open a series of hearings on advertising practices. Hearings will run through November 15. They will explore every phase of advertising, ending with a session on children and advertising, with testimony of psychologists and psychiatrists.

Digging through more than 21 feet of refuse accumulated over the centuries, the team has unearthed the original center of Cairo and opened new vistas in the study of Islamic social and cultural development.

The site, financed primarily by the Smithsonian Institution, lies on the outskirts of Cairo, within sight of the city's skyline.

Findings, according to team leader George Scanlon, a Philadelphian who teaches at England's Oxford University between digs, confirms that Cairo flourished as a great world trading center while Europe still floundered in the ignorance of the Dark Ages.

"Seven hundred years before Queen Elizabeth the First of England admitted in the 15th century that she took a bath every month whether she needed it or not," Scanlon said, "Fustat women were bathing weekly."

He said the houses of Fustat—the name given Cairo between the 7th and 12th centuries—were interlocked with what appeared to have been a running water system and an elaborate sewage complex employing covered drains regularly scoured with water and sand.

"The cisterns themselves," Scanlon said, "have turned up some of our most valuable finds. They are a goldmine of discarded antiquities."

All that remains today of Fustat are the broken foundations of multi-storied houses, the broken brick and other debris of what once were courtyards, streets and bustling markets. They have been hidden for five centuries by accumulated dust, trash and garbage.

The site lies off a modern highway in a desolate plain that for years has been little more than an attraction for stray dogs and wandering donkeys.

Nearby a fertilizer plant spews out pungent black smoke that Scanlon conceded makes for "pretty smelly" work at times.

But despite its smells, Scanlon views the site as a promised land of archeological exploration and hopes to collect enough fresh American financial backing to extend the diggings. Encroaching low-cost apartment housing makes time a factor.

One of Scanlon's most important finds at the site, he said, was a glazed goblet which proved that glazing was first developed and reached its peak in Egypt and not in Persia as previously believed. After finding the goblet he later unearthed what he said were the remains of the glass factory that made ingots used in the glazing process.

Tobacco Diseases Building Up

By FURNEY A. TODD

Six of the tobacco growers most destructive enemies build up on old tobacco stalks and roots and prepare themselves for an "all-out" attack on future crops. This group includes three diseases—brown spot, mosaic and root knot, and three insect pests—hornworms, budworms, and flea beetles. Old stalks provide food supply and home for these pests.

Hornworms, budworms and flea beetles build up on old tobacco stalks and prepare themselves for the winter months—ready to attack the new crop. These pests can move from farm to farm, and therefore, a few fields with stalks standing would provide a source for many fields.

Brown spot is caused by a fungus that carries over from one crop to the next on old tobacco stalks. Tiny spores or seed-like bodies produced by the brown spot fungus blow around in the wind, and this means that one or two fields left with stalks standing in a community could provide a source of this serious disease for many, many acres of tobacco in 1972.

Root knot nematodes multiply even faster than flies and will continue until late November if the old stubble is allowed to remain undisturbed. On the other hand, if the stubble is destroyed this process does away with the food supply, kills the nematodes that are trapped in the root system, and many in the exposed soil that's turned up by plowing, and what's most important of all this rapid multiplication is stopped. Furthermore, results from fundamental research studies indicate that nematode eggs deposited late in the season are more resistant to the low temperatures of the winter months, and therefore, a high percentage will survive to attack future crops.

Mosaic is caused by a highly contagious virus that spreads by mere contact. This disease is not soil borne, but rather is carried over from one crop to the next in undecayed tobacco crop refuse. Cutting stalks and plowing under the old crop refuse so as to encourage the rotting and decaying process greatly reduces carry over.

Tobacco growers will have an opportunity to switch over to the new system plan of disease control. This new program offers control in prescription form and should provide better protection at lower control cost, and therefore, result in higher net profits. Operation R-6-P is the first step of all systems.

These are the reasons why it's important that stalks are cut in every tobacco field. R-6-P is the title of a campaign that you have been hearing about over and over again during the past two months. The idea of R-6-P is to "Reduce Six Pest," including three diseases—root knot, mosaic, and nematodes, and three insect pests—hornworms, budworms and flea beetles by destroying the old crop immediately following harvest.

Most growers responded to the call and carried out R-6-P immediately following harvest, and disked fields a second time (and this is most important). But there are a few scattered fields with stalks standing. These fields are a hazard to all growers since these stalks can build up on these old stalks and most can move freely to other fields or farms.

Plans are to present the R-6-P award to all counties receiving 99 percent participation in the 1971 R-6-P Campaign by October 22. We would like to encourage you to help us reach this very important goal. If you have carried out R-6-P on your farm, then you become a member of the team, and we'd like to ask you to persuade your neighbors that have not carried out this practice to do so immediately. If you are a landowner and there are fields on your farm (leased acreage, rented acreage) where stalks are standing—please make every effort to carry out R-6-P immediately. There are quite a few custom operators that will be delighted to get the business if you don't have the equipment or time available to do the job yourself.

Remember, R-6-P is a winning proposition. If stalks are cut and roots plowed out, the reduction in loss to future crops will far exceed the cost, but in addition, you will be helping yourself and your neighbor and the total industry by reducing populations of six important pests, and thereby improving the quality of our product—the Golden Leaf.

We are anxious to reach our goal of 100 percent participation—not one field left with stalks standing. This is a difficult goal to reach, but it can be done if we'll all work together in the next week to ten days.

come when geneticists will be able to concoct a fertilized egg of certain pre-selected properties. The arts of gene insertion, of gene deletion, even of gene surgery, are still primitive and experimental. Yet now and again, the fog seems to lift. A beautiful, terrifying vista can be dimly seen. Hereditary defects may be ended; hereditary assets may be enhanced. But who is to define a hereditary asset?

Let your mind wander in another field: mood control. Here the chemistry is far advanced. We already have drugs—they are marketed by the billions—intended to tranquilize or to stimulate. It is but a step (the step can be taken if we choose) to the development of drugs more precisely intended to suppress or to enhance our capacity for aggression.

Should boxers, or football players, or soldiers be given "aggression pills" to improve their performance? Would the Attica uprising have occurred if violent prisoners were treated methodically, as a condition of their sentences, with non-aggression drugs? The possibility of putting tranquilizers in water supplies has been discussed at scientific meetings. It could be done. Crime, presumably, would drop. Should it be done?

The most absorbing questions, perhaps, go to the limitations that should be imposed, if any, upon the process of discovery itself. Is there some point at which the door should be slammed? Are their frontiers that ought never to be crossed? Some eminent scientists believe that even now they may have gone too far in playing God. Is it their responsibility to create life, or vastly to prolong life? Yet who can extinguish Promethean fire?

The scientists who met on Saturday out at the Shoreham put in a skull-cracking afternoon. Most of the rest of us were watching college football on the boob-tube. For their thoughtful labors, some grateful thanks are due.

interviewers headed by Quayle's field superintendent, Eleanor Seaman, we offered our 366 voters varying combinations of tickets, each ticket headed either by President Nixon or Muskie. Thirty-two per cent of our sample was by telephoning, 68 per cent by face-to-face interviews.

The results for Muskie were breathtaking. Paired with Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, the Muskie-Hughes ticket buried Nixon-Agnew 56 per cent to 39 per cent, with Gov. George Wallace of Alabama getting 5 per cent (a sharp decline for Mr. Nixon in an area he carried in 1968 with 50 per cent of the vote against Hubert Humphrey's 44 per cent and Wallace's 6 per cent).

But with Mayor Carl Stokes of Cleveland paired with Muskie, that 17 point Muskie-Hughes lead became a 15-point Nixon-Agnew lead. In short, Stokes's cost to Muskie was a phenomenal 32 percentage points. When Stokes was replaced by Roy Wilkins, senior statesman of the civil rights movement and far less militant than Stokes, the Muskie-Wilkins ticket lost to Nixon-Agnew by an only slightly reduced 12 percentage points. In short, even moderate Wilkins chased voters away from Muskie in unacceptable numbers.

Now consider what the addition of Brooke would mean for Mr. Nixon. Paired against Muskie-Hughes, a Nixon-Brooke ticket loses by a scant 7 percentage points: 50 per cent to 43 per cent (with Wallace getting 7 per cent.) Brooke's presence on the Nixon ticket adds a full 10 per cent to the Nixon-Agnew total and 3 per cent to the Nixon total with Connally on his ticket.

Brooke's strength contrasted to the Wilkins-Stokes weakness in our survey tells much about some of the subconscious aspects of white racism and warns against over-generalization. Many of the white voters we talked to recognized Wilkins and Stokes as spokesmen and leaders of the black revolution, but not so Brooke. All three were clearly labeled in our matched samples as Negro, but Brooke was perceived as a Republican Senator from Massachusetts, not as a symbol of the black revolution.

In short, many voters, both Democrat and Republican, seemed willing if not eager to support a black Vice Presidential nominee if he were already part of the recognized political establishment. As a Republican Senator, Brooke represents no threat. But Wilkins and Stokes are perceived as leaders of the black establishment.

Even many of the white Democrats who stick with Muskie when paired with Stokes or Wilkins showed unhappiness. An attractive Jewish school teacher said: "I'd stick with Muskie but only because I can't stand Nixon."

More typical was a 27-year-old white antique dealer in White Plains. "I'm a Democrat but I ain't voting for no jigs, aces, suedes or jungle bunnies. I'll tell you why. I'm too damn prejudiced."

Said Target Of Blackmail

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A broadcast industry spokesman says broadcasters are subjected to blackmail from minority groups seeking to have their license rescinded.

"I am not asking for broadcasters to be relieved one whit of responsibility for keeping in touch with and reflecting the desires and needs of the communities in which they operate," Richard Chapin, chairman of the joint board of the National Association of Broadcasters said Monday.

"This is part of every good broadcaster's operation anyway, and would take place even if there were no government rules," he told the annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters.

But Chapin, of Lincoln, Neb., criticized the Federal Communications Commission for what he called its failure to protect broadcast licensees against indiscriminate challenges. He called for a "clear and permanent national policy on license renewals."

"I believe the commission is delinquent in sitting by and allowing these excesses to take place with little or no restraint," he said. Chapin said this puts the "broadcaster in the position of feeling he must take this sort of abuse... or the commission will judge him as intransigent and uncooperative."

Seek Death For Murders

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — The prosecution says it will seek the death penalty for John Linley Frazier as jury selection begins in the execution-style slayings of three adults and two children a year ago.

"If you find Mr. Frazier guilty of first-degree murder and if you find him sane, it is our intention during the penalty trial to ask you to return a death verdict," Santa Cruz County Dist. Atty. Peter Chang told prospective jurors in the trial's opening day Monday.

Frazier, a 25-year-old former mechanic, is accused of murdering wealthy eye surgeon Victor Ohta, 45; his wife Virginia, 43; their sons, Derrick, 12, and Taggart, 11, and the doctor's secretary, Dorothy Cadwallader, 38.

Frazier has pleaded innocent and "innocent by reason of insanity." The victims bodies were found in a swimming pool beside the burning $250,000 Ohta mansion.

Invite Test Of Beer Sale Law

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Craven County commissioners have questioned the constitutionality of a law passed by the 1971 General Assembly regulating sale of beer and invited the state to bring a court test of the law.

The commissioners also voted Monday not to comply with the new law which permits beer taverns to remain open later at night and which allows places with brown bagging permits to sell beer on Sunday.

The commissioners decided to stick with a 1943 ordinance which forbids the sale of beer until 11:30 p.m. Saturday night until 7 a.m. Monday morning.

reimbursement to the states for every lunch served to a child deemed eligible by the state.

The USDA policy change, the third since mid-August, tracked closely the aims of the House measure. In August the department announced that the school lunch reimbursements would be set at 35 cents per serving, down from the previous year's 46 cents.

Congress returned from recess expressing outrage at the action, and USDA on Oct. 6 announced it was moving the lunch reimbursement up to 46 cents.

At the same time the department restricted eligibility to its own standard: children of parents earning less than $3,940.

The action eliminated an estimated million to 1.5 million children who had gotten free or reduced-priced lunches last year after Congress and the White House ordered schools to feed every needy child.

The department yielded Monday on a major point, allowing the states to set eligibility, as well as increasing the reimbursement per lunch to 46 cents. Some states' maximum income level for participation far exceeds that favored by USDA.

But what happens next is in doubt.

The Senate on Oct. 1 passed a bill that would not as broad as the House version.

The Senate version says nothing about eligibility and declares that 46 cents shall be the minimum reimbursement.

The USDA says the 46-cent reimbursement is an average,

Candidates Will Address N.C. Teacher Rally

RALEIGH (AP) — More than 3,000 teachers are expected to attend a rally, here Saturday at which six men expected to run for governor will speak.

Dr. Jerry Paschal, chairman of the Political Action Committee for Education (Pace), said the candidates who have accepted invitations are:

State Sen. Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles of Greensboro, Charlotte dentist Dr. Reginald Hawkins, State Republican Chairman Jim Holshouser, Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, Wilmington businessman Hugh Morton and Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor.

Holshouser is expected to seek the Republican nomination for governor while the others are expected to run for the Democratic nomination.

not a minimum, figure. Sen. Allen Ellender, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he's all for adding another $135 million to the USDA school lunch program to expand it to those he defined as the really needy. "But the Senate's liable to pass anything dealing with the school-lunch program," Ellender said. "They're gone crazy. It's a politically hot program these days and they'll go along with anything."

No Delaying On New Bumpers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Auto makers have been given an extra year before they have to install stronger bumpers on some small cars, but they were told again Monday there will be no postponement for most autos.

The Transportation Department moved the deadline to Sept. 1, 1974, for installation of sturdier bumpers on some passenger cars with a wheel base of 115 inches or less.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe said all other vehicles must comply with the original deadline, Sept. 1, 1973.

Visit By Queen Halts Feuding

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Queen Elizabeth's visit to Turkey seems to have brought a temporary halt to political feuding among the country's leaders.

Premier Nihat Erim told newsmen after the British queen arrived Monday that feuding factions had "frozen" the political crisis until she leaves Oct. 25.

After the royal party leaves, he said, "either we will reach a compromise or I will resign."

Erim and his army-backed government and conservative politicians have been involved in a running dispute over the premier's proposed radical social and economic reforms.

He said he has denied manufacturers' requests for delays for other models.

The postponement applies only to convertibles, vehicles with no back seat and hard-tops (vehicles which have no "B" pillar above the bottom of window openings).

Volpe said there are special problems in adapting stronger bumpers to those models.

The department estimated that of more than 7.1 million American-made passenger cars last year, 845,000 were models to be exempted. An estimated 194,000 small foreign cars to be imported next year would fit the classification. Imports last year topped 1.2 million.

Models qualified for the exemption included General Motors' Camaro, Corvette and Pontiac GTO; Ford's Mustang and Cougar, and Chrysler's Dodge Dart and Plymouth Barracuda.

Foreign cars exempted include Toyota's Crown and Corona, Opel's GT and Cuple and British Leyland's Jaguar.

On Sept. 1, 1972, the department is requiring all new cars to have front bumpers that can sustain a five-mile-an-hour crash into a fixed barrier and rear bumpers that can withstand a crash to two and one-half miles an hour. There was no change in that deadline.

The 1973 deadline requires the rear bumper to absorb a five-mile-an-hour impact.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard Nixon has confirmed that she will be going with the President on his trips to the Soviet Union and China.

"Oh, sure," she replied emphatically when asked if she plans to make the trip to Moscow in May. She accompanied her husband on his historic trip to the Soviet Union when he was vice president in 1959.

And she said she will join the President when he visits mainland China. The China trip is to be made before May.

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Democratic primary is nearly seven months off, but the rush is on for the party's nomination for governor.

After weeks of individual campaigning and surveying, four major contenders — two announced candidates and two others still publicly in the thinking stage — shared a handshake line and the state of the Northern Nash High School Monday night. Low key it was, the occasion was indicative of a long campaign leading to the primary vote on May 2.

Li. Gov. Pat Taylor and State Sen. Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, the announced candidates, and Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan and resort developer Hugh Morton, the potentials, were star attractions at a $5-a-plate barbecue dinner and fund-raising rally sponsored by Nash County Democrats.

Morgan and Bowles admitted it was still very, very early to hit hard. Taylor treated the entire subject of politics and the primary in a light vein. And Morton said, "Amen, me too" to all that the other three said.

Taylor was the first in the handshake line and the first to speak to the audience of about 700. He said:

"Bobby Morgan is a good attorney general, and Skip is a good state senator. Hugh is a good developer... so why in goodness don't they stay where they are?"

Morgan mentioned his pre-campaign planning that led to a successful attorney general's race three years ago, and added, "You can be assured I'll do the same" in a gubernatorial campaign. He said he would announce his decision "about the first of the year."

The attorney general, a hard campaigner whose preparations have been made for months, has been worried about making a premature formal announcement. Declarations from Taylor and Bowles have done little to soothe his worries.

Reasserting his intention to offer a "positive program," Bowles described as "miserable" North Carolina's educational program for high school graduates who pass up college. Bowles, more sedate than the others in the brief talks, said emphasis must be placed on "occupational education" to provide marketable skills for "the 80 per cent who do not go to college."

Although he emphasized his interest in young people, Bowles was the only hopeful to pass up a youth forum preceding the dinner. An aide said the senator had a schedule conflict.

Bowles, who has called for legislative action at the session next week to implement no-fault auto insurance, may not have lost face by his absence from the youth forum. His opponents made their strongest point in support of no-fault insurance. Taylor, president of the State Senate, said no-fault would come "within two years," but not next week. Morgan said basic changes must be made in state law before such a system could work.

And Morton thought "We've got to come to some form of that right now."

The immediate future for Taylor, Bowles, Morgan and Morton depends on their activities in the next few months. North Carolina also has its first presidential primary on May, 2 and they could be forced into a political backseat when the White House hopefuls arrive.

Aftermath Of Wild Disorder

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — The big World Series victory demonstration was a "jubilant celebration that got a little out of hand," the city's top cop says. The mayor calls it "an overexuberant celebration."

The 10-hour celebration in the downtown area that attracted an estimated 100,000 people left these results:

—Hospital treatment for 128 persons.

—Arrests of 98 persons.

—Vandalizing of downtown shops.

—Cars heavily damaged, many with caved in roofs.

—A fire engine stripped for equipment.

—A hotel forced to temporarily close.

—Tons of debris left in the streets.

Police Supt. Robert E. Colville called a news conference Monday to "set the record straight" about what happened. Mayor Peter Flaherty said "the national news media" blew things out of proportion.

Colville said stories about rapes and criminal assaults on downtown streets were fabricated by reporters. During the celebration Sunday night a police desk sergeant reported a dozen rapes.

Colville said the demonstration which erupted after the Pittsburgh Pirates' 2-1 seventh-game World Series baseball clincher over the Orioles at Baltimore was just a "jubilant celebration that got a little out of hand."

"But that happens whenever such a large crowd gathers," he added.

Hospital spokesmen confirmed Monday treating 128 minor injury cases and at least one case involving injury requiring hospitalization. All of the cases were related to the downtown celebration the spokesmen added.

Police also confirmed 98 arrests made as a wildly cheering, singing, dancing and sometimes violent crowd roams through the streets.

Field Marshal Skips Reunion

LONDON (AP) — Field Marshal Montgomery figures he is needed more at his garden than at El Alamein.

Montgomery, 83, has decided not to attend the annual El Alamein reunion on Friday, according to a spokesman. The nonsmoking, nondrinking Montgomery led the forces that turned the tide against the Nazis in North Africa during World War II and he would have been the kingpin had he attended the reunion.

When he is not indoors, Montgomery is tinkering around his gardens at his pleasant little estate in Hampshire.

Russian Defector Now Said Staying In U.S.

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Russian defector said to have disclosed existence of a Soviet spy ring in Belgium is now in the United States after being granted political asylum, according to the State Department.

A brief statement issued

Monday afternoon said Anatoly Tchegotarev, a member of the Soviet trade mission in Belgium, recently asked the U.S. Embassy in Brussels to be allowed to enter the United States. His request was granted, the department said.

Tchegotarev has been missing since early this month, but U.S.

officials declined to say when he asked for asylum, when he entered the United States or where he is staying.

Neither would they say why he sought asylum in the United States rather than Belgium, but an official said it is not unusual for such defectors to be brought to America.

There was virtually no personal information available about Tchegotarev beyond his connection with the Soviet trade mission, except for reports he was a friend of Oleg Lyalin, another Russian defector who recently informed on a Soviet spy ring in Great Britain.

According to the Belgian foreign ministry, Tchegotarev had told the American embassy in Brussels of the spy ring in that country and the information was then turned over to the Belgian government.

Although the Brussels government called an extraordinary cabinet meeting for Wednesday to deal with the situation, Belgian officials indicated there won't be any action matching the British expulsion of 105 Russians that followed Lyalin's disclosures.

"Tchegotarev's statements had not revealed really new elements that would lead the Belgian government to take spectacular action as regards a large number of Soviet citizens," the foreign ministry said.

The Brussels officials went on to indicate they were not caught by surprise by the Russian's information, although it added, "These statements will without doubt enable a certain number of investigations presently being held to be concluded."

Each Denies Three Collisions In Greenville Monday

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Testimony ended Monday in the Criminal Court trial of three men charged with disrupting a Billy Graham Crusade here last year.

The defendants, charged with disrupting a religious service at which President Nixon spoke, each denied that he shouted obscene chants during the President's speech.

On trial are Dr. Charles H. Reynolds, an associate professor of religious studies at UT, and former students Quenton Tippet and William Bible, both of Knoxville.

Reynolds testified that he led a protest aimed at Nixon during the May 28, 1970, service at Neyland Stadium. But he said he intended for it to be a peaceful demonstration.

He said that when the protest became noisy, he tried to calm it down.

Reynolds also said he considered the President's speech more political than religious and pointed out that Republican Sen. William Brock, then a candidate in the U.S. Senate race against incumbent Democrat Albert Gore, had been invited to the event while Gore had not received an invitation.

Of 43 persons arrested and charged with disrupting the service, a misdemeanor, 31 have been cleared by grand jury action, charges against three have been dropped and six have been found guilty.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Partly cloudy and mild Thursday through Saturday. Lows at night expected to average in the 50s.

More than $1,000 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 3:47 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Jarvis Streets involving cars driven by Robert Carroll Webb, 25, of Morehead City and Annice Deane Parker, 19, of Washington, N.C.

Officers, who charged Miss Parker with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $240 to the Webb auto and $190 to the Parker car.

Mark Walter Button, 19, of Falls Church, Va., was charged with having improper brakes following investigation of a 6:15 p.m. collision on Cotanche Street, 320 feet North of the Seventh Street intersection.

The Button car, police reported, collided with a car driven by Sylvia Claire Zelkin, 20, of New Dorm, and resulted in an estimated $110 damage to the Zelkin car and $220 damage to the Button auto.

A 3:30 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets involved cars driven by Georgia Allen Williams, 114 Avon Lane and John Wayne Wiley, 20, of Grifton, police reported.

Damage was placed at $125 to the Williams auto and $150 to the Wiley car.

Wiley was charged with failing to stop for a red light.

Film Too Late For Its Premier

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The only thing missing at the world premier of the Sidney Poitier film "Buck and the Preacher" Saturday night will be the film "Buck and the Preacher."

Poitier, coproducer of the movie, had thought it would be ready in time for the benefit premier at Virginia Union University, of which he is a trustee.

It wasn't. So, instead, he will bring along a film entitled "The Organization"—a sequel to the 1967 Academy Award-winning Poitier film, "In the Heat of the Night."

The premier is to help raise funds for restoration of the Virginia Union chapel, which burned.

Since 1955, Byrd has been associated with the field of public health in various capacities. Prior to his appointment to the ECU faculty in 1970, he was assistant professor of health education at East Tennessee State University.

The population of Baltimore, Md., is about 47 per cent Negro.

See Rise In Teen Smoking Figures

By MARTHA COLE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reports a significant increase in teen-age cigarette smokers at a time when the number of adults with the habit decreased sharply.

Compiling the latest figures, it estimates the number of smokers between 12 and 18 years of age at four million in January, 1970, up one million in two years when the population increase for the group was less than a million.

The report makes no effort to explain the increase but analyzes the characteristics of teen-agers who have and have not become regular smokers and says:

"While there are many factors in the environment of a child that influence his taking up, or not taking up the smoking habit, the one that has by far the most influence is the smoking behavior of those around him."

Officers Named By Broadcasters

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Jack Brown, general manager of radio station WLON in Lincolnton has been chosen president-elect of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters.

He will succeed Robert Harper of WCPS, Tarboro, next year.

Also chosen at the annual meeting Monday were Doyle Thompson, WFMY-TV, Greensboro, vice president for television, and Bob Mendelson, general manager of WJNC, Jacksonville, vice president for radio.

Named directors were Dick Paul, WITN-TV, Washington; Joe Warner, WCED, Rocky Mount; Bob Smith, WNDS, High Point, and Allen Askins, WHCC, Waynesville.

Killed By U.S. Error

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — An American fighter-bomber accidentally bombed a South Vietnamese position near the Cambodian border and killed 18 South Vietnamese troops, the U.S. Command announced today.

The command said seven South Vietnamese paratroopers were seriously wounded, and "additional soldiers received lesser wounds" in the bombing raid Monday 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

The command said a U.S. Air Force A37 jet, flying in support of South Vietnamese troops, dropped two 500-pound bombs on an "assigned target" near the government paratroop base at Thien Ngon, on Route 22 in Tay Ninh Province.

A U.S. spokesman said a preliminary investigation indicated the target had been marked by an American forward air controller and cleared by the South Vietnamese ground commander in the area.

It was the worst bombing mistake since March 5, when a napalm strike by U.S. aircraft killed 36 South Vietnamese troops participating in the invasion of Laos.

No major battles were reported along the Cambodian border, but North Vietnamese gunners continued to shell South Vietnamese outposts and U.S. Fire Base Pace. Spokesman said none of these attacks caused any casualties.

South of Saigon, in the Mekong Delta, the South Vietnamese command claimed, 34 enemy were killed in a five-hour engagement between a 500-man battalion of government infantrymen and a force of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese. A spokesman said three South Vietnamese troops were killed and six wounded in the battle on the edge of the U Minh forest.

Weigh Dubious Chance Of War Deadline Vote

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House rejection of the Senate's six-month deadline on the Indochina war was so uncertain today that leaders were weighing the risk of even putting it to a vote.

Ambassador Jamil M. Baroody of Saudi Arabia introduced the new proposal in the 131-nation General Assembly on Monday in the form of amendments to the Albanian resolution, which would replace the Nationalists with the Communists in the world body.

Baroody said he would submit similar amendments to the rival U.S. resolution, which would seat both Chinas in the assembly and the Communists on the Security Council without reference to their conflicting claims to represent both the mainland and Taiwan.

Baroody said he hoped to persuade the cosponsors of both resolutions—22 for the Albanian and 19 for the American—"to see how we may be able to devise a solution not only by dint of common sense but by fairness and justice to all the parties concerned." He said his formula was based on the right of self-determination.

Baroody's action was the only surprise Monday in the first day of the Assembly's 1971 China debate—the first in 22 years in which the United States is backing a two-Chinas formula.

Foreign Minister Nesti Nase of Albania introduced his government's resolution and reported that the People's Republic of China would have nothing to do with the United Nations unless the "Chiang Kai-shek clique" was expelled.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush introduced his government's plan and argued that nobody knew how Peking would react if it was adopted.

He also introduced a resolution that would make any move to expel Nationalist China an "important question," requiring a two-thirds vote rather than a simple majority for passage. He said the expulsion of seek has yet to take place.

President Nixon and his economic advisers have predicted the economy will put on a strong showing in the last three months of the year, leading the way to a "very good year," in 1972.

Industrial production rebounded in September primarily because of a recovery of output in the steel industry, the board said. But it added the steel industry is still slack ridden, with production of raw steel showing a decline in the first part of October.

Although the key industrial production index increased, it was still 6 per cent below the high recorded in the middle of 1969. The index however, was 2 per cent higher than last November's low point, when the 1970 recession was at its deepest level.

The administration is hoping Nixon's new economic moves, including restoration of the investment tax credit, will spur output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities.

The board said production of consumer goods and business equipment increased in September while defense output declined. Auto production remained at previous levels.

The Commerce Department said housing starts in September reached an annual rate of 1.958 million units, seasonally adjusted, down from the August rate of 2.235 million units.

The administration said one reason for the drop was that housing starts may have been artificially high in August, reaching a level that was hard to maintain throughout the remainder of 1971.

But Dr. Harold Passer, assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs, said 1971 "will be the best housing year in history," reaching, he said, the administration's goal of two million housing starts this year.

In the three months from July through September, housing starts were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.1 million units, the highest quarterly rate on record, he said.

Thalman Doesn't Want Repeat Of Last Season's Tumbling End

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Virginia Military Institute's Keydets opened their football season last year by winning a Southern Conference game and didn't win another one all season against anybody.

New Coach Bob Thalman insists history isn't going to repeat, even though the Keydets this season haven't won since they romped over Davidson 27-3 in their opener. The Keydets took a 21-6 licking last Saturday night from Richmond's Spiders in a game in which they trailed 21-0 at halftime, and Thalman says he told the players afterward, "I was proud of the way they came back in the second half. They showed a lot of determination..."

"We can't get down on ourelves," says Thalman. "We have still got a few games to go." The next one Saturday is against a team that might very well be down on itself at the moment, defending conference champion William and Mary, which has lost its last two starts after winning its first four.

It's the way the Indians lost them—blowing a 21-7 lead after three quarters and bowing to West Virginia 28-23 and battling back from a 21-0 deficit to take a 30-28 lead and then fumble twice, and allow Virginia Tech to make off with a 41-30 decision. But the Indians aren't likely to be that far down, for a victory is a "must" to boost their league record to 4-0 and keep them ahead of the winner of Saturday's Furman-Richmond encounter, which will be 3-0. Furman has won its last three, Richmond its last two going into that one.

"Tough is the way I would sum up Richmond," the Paladins were told Monday by Assistant Coach Fred Haley. "They are big, strong and aggressive with some fine backs and some good personnel on defense."

Richmond worked on its defense Monday in preparation for the game with linebacker Pat Kelly, tackle Terry Hogan and middle guard Keith Dooley earning praise for their work against VMI.

The Citadel, which plays Tennessee-Chattanooga this week, took it easy on running drills because of an injury in last Saturday night's game to fullback Bill Paine and knee surgery Monday for his replacement, Gordon Lunford. The Bulldogs worked without pads on their game plan.

Coach Sonny Randle said the injury situation had a lot to do with East Carolina's 44-21 defeat at West Virginia. Fourteen of the 22 regular starters either are out with injuries or playing with them, and the Pirates have a date Saturday night at N.C. State.

Squad members who played against Duke last week did not put on pads. Michaels reported the Wolfpack suffered no new injuries in the 41-13 loss to Duke. "But I can't say the same for our pride."

North Carolina's star half-back Ike Oglesby, who missed the last two games because of leg cramps, is expected to play in the regionally televised game against Wake Forest. Like the other squads, the Tar Heels heard a scouting report on their opponent, and worked out briefly in light equipment.

At Wake Forest, defender Ed Bradley and John Hardin won the "hit of the week" award. They blitzed Tulsa quarterback Todd Starks so hard he was able to play for only part of the game. Wake Forest won 51-21.

North Carolina State Coach Al Michaels indicated that sophomore quarterback Bruce Shaw had won the starting assignment against East Carolina, which will be met at home Saturday night.

North Carolina's star half-back Ike Oglesby, who missed the last two games because of leg cramps, is expected to play in the regionally televised game against Wake Forest.

Sooners Close Gap On Nebraska; Blue Devils Regain Spot On Poll

There was no change among the first five teams in this week's Associated Press college football poll, but the explosive Oklahoma Sooners made a huge run at Nebraska's defending national champions.

The Cornhuskers received 35 first-place votes and 1,046 points—down five votes and 10 points from last week—from a panel of 55 sports writers and broadcasters across the country following their sixth consecutive triumph, a 55-0 sandbagging of Kansas.

Oklahoma, which received eight top votes and 888 points a week ago, pased Colorado 45-17 and was rewarded with 18 first-place ballots and 1,008 points. Michigan remained in third place with one No. 1 vote and 837 points by trouncing Illinois 35-6 but the Wolverines' point total fell from 880. Fourth-ranked Alabama whipped Tennessee 32-15 and went from 668 points to 765. Auburn, rated fifth, turned back stubborn Georgia Tech 31-14 but lost ground from 620 points to 585.

Colorado's loss to Oklahoma dropped the Buffaloes from sixth to 11th and Notre Dame, which beat North Carolina 16-0 for its second consecutive shut-out, climbed from seventh to sixth. Penn State's impressive 31-0 jolting of Syracuse lifted the Nittany Lions from ninth to seventh while Georgia, a 24-0 winner over Vanderbilt, stayed in eighth place.

Texas, a 31-7 loser to Arkansas, also dropped out of the Top Ten, with the Razorbacks and Stanford, which beat Southern California 33-18, moving back in.

Behind No. 11 Colorado in the Second Ten came Ohio State, Louisiana State, a 14th-place tie between Arizona State and Toledo, Texas, Purdue, Tennessee, Duke and Air Force. Last week's Second Ten consisted, in order, of Arizona State, LSU, Ohio State, Tennessee, Stanford, Arkansas, Toledo, Washington, Florida State and Purdue.

Washington's 23-21 loss to Oregon and Florida State's 17-15 upset by Florida cost the losers their positions among the Top Twenty. Duke and Air Force took over.

The Top Twenty teams, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on a basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10 etc.

Duke Hopeful Jones To Be Back For Navy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Duke, back in the national football rankings, hopes that workhorse fullback Steve Jones will be able to return for Saturday's game against the Navy in Annapolis, Md.

Jones has been out since he was injured in an automobile accident four weeks ago. Coach Mike McGee says a report on his status will be issued Thursday.

The Blue Devils are rated No. 19 in the Associated Press college football poll issued today. They trounced North Carolina State 41-13 last week. The week before they had been upset 3-0 by Clemson, their first loss after four victories, and had fallen out of the top 20 after being 14th.

Elsewhere around Monday's practice sessions at ACC camps:

Clemson started work without pads for undefeated and fifth-ranked Auburn. Coach Hootie Ingram said the Tigers had more than the usual number of bruises following the 32-15 victory over Virginia, but that everyone should be back at full speed by midweek.

The game in Auburn, Ala., will be Auburn's homecoming.

Virginia learned that quarterback Larry Albert, who was hurt against Clemson, is expected to be well enough to start against Army. And Fullback Gary Helman, who missed the Clemson game with a strained ankle, also is expected to be available.

North Carolina's star halfback Ike Oglesby, who missed the last two games because of leg cramps, is expected to play in the regionally televised game against Wake Forest.

Like the other squads, the Tar Heels heard a scouting report on their opponent, and worked out briefly in light equipment.

At Wake Forest, defender Ed Bradley and John Hardin won the "hit of the week" award. They blitzed Tulsa quarterback Todd Starks so hard he was able to play for only part of the game. Wake Forest won 51-21.

Williams Is AL's Manager

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
RIVIERA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dick Williams wasn't exactly the Boston Strangler, but he used everything short of the guillotine to goad the Red Sox into winning the 1967 pennant.

"I had to be tough," Williams said. "My job was to break up Boston's baseball-country club. You don't do that by being nice."

Two years later, Williams himself died by the sword. The Red Sox fired him before the American League championship flag had time to fade atop the Fenway Park flagpole.

Boston finished fourth in 1968 and third in 1969.

"Montreal hired me as a coach," he said, "but I was waiting and hoping for another shot as a big league manager. When Oakland took me, I worried that my Boston reputation might proceed me to the A's training camp."

It didn't. Dick and the Oakland hit it off splendidly. The A's hustled to a 101-61 record to run away with the AL's Western Division crown. For that performance, Williams was named Monday American League manager of the year in an Associated Press poll.

"I knew the voting went in before the playoffs," Williams said at his home here, "so I thought I had a chance. I won the honor at Boston in 1967. I'm quite pleased."

Oakland was routed by Baltimore in the playoffs, but Oriole skipper Earl Weaver ran a distant third in the balloting. Despite many successes, Weaver has never won the award. Williams polled 107 votes, Kansas City's Bob Lemon was the runnerup with 66 and Weaver received only 59.

"I know Earl has to be upset," said the 1971 honoree. "He deserves recognition with three pennants and two World Series victories. I feel sorry for him, but happy for myself."

Weaver learned of the honor for Williams as he packed following the Orioles' loss to Pittsburgh in the seventh game of the World Series.

"Dick Williams did a tremendous job," said Weaver. "He deserves it."

Despite stout performances by Vida Blue and Jim "Catfish" Hunter, Williams said he hopes to improve A's pitching next season in a bid for loftier accomplishments.

Touchdown Pass Turns Into Steeler Mistake

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A funny thing happened to young Dave Smith on his way into the end zone Monday night.

Smith, a sophomore receiver for the Pittsburgh Steelers, had taken a pass from Terry Bradshaw on a 50-yard play. He was all alone.

As he neared the goal, he suddenly exploded jubilantly and heaved the ball into the air like football players do in celebration of success.

The trouble was Smith hadn't reached the final stride. The ball squirted through the end zone.

It was only a touchback. The score at the time was 31-9 in favor of the Kansas City Chiefs, who had wiped out a 9-0 lead with Len Dawson's spectacular passing to Otis Taylor and a couple of assists from the defense during a four-touchdown avalanche in the second quarter.

The Chiefs went on to a 38-16 victory over the Steelers in their nationally televised game and climbed into a first-place with Oakland, 4-1, in the West Division. Pittsburgh, 2-3, fell two games behind Cleveland, 4-1, in the Central Division.

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll said at first he had no comment on Smith's blunder, then reluctantly added:

Clark Is Traded

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Bullets hope to have guard Archie Clark, a veteran of six years in the National Basketball Association, in their line-up tonight in Boston.

In what coach Gene Shue termed a move to improve their consistency, the Bullets acquired Clark, a second-round draft choice in 1973 and a "small amount of cash" Monday night from Philadelphia for veteran guards Kevin Loughery and Fred Carter.

"I've seen it happen to veterans. He threw the ball before he was across. The college goal posts are 10 yards back. Maybe he was thinking..." Noll's voice faded away.

Noll thought two plays proved the big difference. Both were passes from Dawson, who complained all week of having a sore arm, to Taylor and covered 82 and 51 yards.

Neither of the bombs scored touchdowns but both set the Chiefs in motion deep in Pittsburgh territory. Dawson flipped the 51-yarder to Taylor at the 27. On the next play, Dawson threw a strike to Taylor in the end zone, erasing the last of Pittsburgh's 9-0 lead rolled up on field goals of 32, 40 and 35 yards by Roy Gerela.

Dawson threw two other touchdown passes, both for five yards, one to Taylor and the other to rookie Elmo Wright, whose touchdown came on the second play following Dawson's 82-yard heave to Taylor.

The Chiefs' crack defense had a big hand in two touchdowns, the first and the fourth, and scored the last one when Emmitt Thomas romped 32 yards with one of Bradshaw's passes.

Kansas City broke into the scoring on the five-yard Dawson-to-Taylor pitch after taking possession at the Steeler five when Curley Culp jarred the ball out of John Fuqua's arms and Jim Lynch recovered for the Chiefs.

Defensive tackle Buck Buchanan intercepted Bradshaw's blocked pass on the Pittsburgh 14 and returned it to the six. Ed Podolak went five and then one for the TD.

Greenville Is Semi-Pro Champ

Greenville's semi-pro baseball team swept a doubleheader with Spring Hope on Sunday and captured the Eastern County Semi-Pro Baseball title.

The two teams went into the doubleheader tied in the best-of-five series, but Greenville took the first game, 5-1, then came back to win the second, 3-2, and take the series.

In the first, game, Greenville broke it open with four runs in the fourth inning. Charles Meeks singled and Lee Galt doubled to score him. Ronald Vincent singled, but Galt was cut down trying to score. Randy Phillips doubled to score Vincent, and Charles Vincent walked. Kenny Beaman singled to score Phillips, and a walk to Al Gurganus loaded the bases. Grant Janman then walked, forcing in Charles Vincent with the fourth run.

Greenville picked up another in the sixth, while Spring Hope got its lone run in the fifth. Galt, in hurling the win, allowed only four hits.

In the second game, Greenville pushed over two in the first to take the lead. Beaman walked and Gurganus singled. A walk to Jarman loaded the bases, and Galt reached on an error, scoring both Beaman and Gurganus.

The winning run came in the fifth. Gurganus singled and moved up on a hit by Jarman. Meeks then singled to right to score him.

Spring Hope got a run in the third on a homer by A. Greene, and then came up with another in the seventh, but the rally just fell short.

Pistons' Bing Has Eye Surgery

By LARRY PALADINOK
Associated Press Sports Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Dave Bing's afternoons are relaxed now as he heals from eye surgery performed to prevent him from going blind in his right eye.

There are numerous soap operas on the television in his room at the University of Michigan Hospital but that's not the kind of activity an All-Pro National Basketball Association guard is interested in.

The Detroit Pistons' star was in a light mood Monday considering that Friday an operation was needed to repair a detached retina, an injury suffered Oct. 5 in an exhibition game.

"It may be months before we know what Mr. Bing's residual vision will be in the eye," said Dr. Morton S. Cox, University of Michigan eye surgeon. "Even though the reattachment was successful, some irreversible tissue damage occurs on injury."

But doctors said the reattached retina is "intact and stabilized."

His right eye was partially closed and very red.

Bing played in Detroit's opener Oct. 12, a victory against New York, and scored 24 points on seven field goals and 10 of 13 extra points.

"I couldn't see the rim from outside an 18-foot radius and that's why I tried to drive a lot," he said. "That's why I had trouble with my free throws, too."

When the eye continued to bother him he saw a specialist in Detroit, who advised him to have surgery.

"Physically, I feel fine," the 6-foot-3, 180-pounder said. "It is the psychological condition which is the biggest thing I have to overcome."

The 27-year-old former Syracuse University star said fellow guard Jimmy Walker will have to take up the scoring slack in his absence and center Bob Lanier should be fed the ball more.

"Personally, I'd say I'd like to get back in a month," Bing declared. "But doctors said it would be six to eight weeks before I could do anything strenuous again."

"There's no reason for me not to be optimistic and say I can come all the way back," he added, although he also said his doctor asked Bing not to ask about his future in basketball.

Both Bing's eyes were tightly covered with patches Friday and he said when they were taken off following the operation, "I could see light and it really hurt."

He is expected to leave the hospital Thursday and may be on hand at Cobo Arena Oct. 26 to watch the Pistons' next home game.

Caldwell To Miss 2 Weeks

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association say they have been told by an orthopedic consultant that it will be at least three or four weeks before their star forward Joe Caldwell can give his knee a real test.

Caldwell had surgery at Duke University Hospital after last season for torn lateral ligaments in his right knee.

After he said the knee has not responded so far, the club decided to ask for an opinion from Dr. Stanley London of St. Louis.

Carl Scheer, president and general manager of the Cougars, said Monday that Dr. London reported the operation was a success, additional surgery would not be helpful, and that even with special exercises it will be three or four weeks before Caldwell can really test the knee. Since it will take him longer than that before he will be able to play, he seems almost certain to miss the Cougars' first 15 games and possibly as much as a quarter of the season.

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring points combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

SOUL CLINIC BIBLE SCHOOL

Jonathan, 22-year-old leader of the community, walks with his wife and child in rolling countryside near Thurber, Tex.

Amos, a member of the community, and his son sit in peaceful contemplation. All the young people have adopted scriptural names.

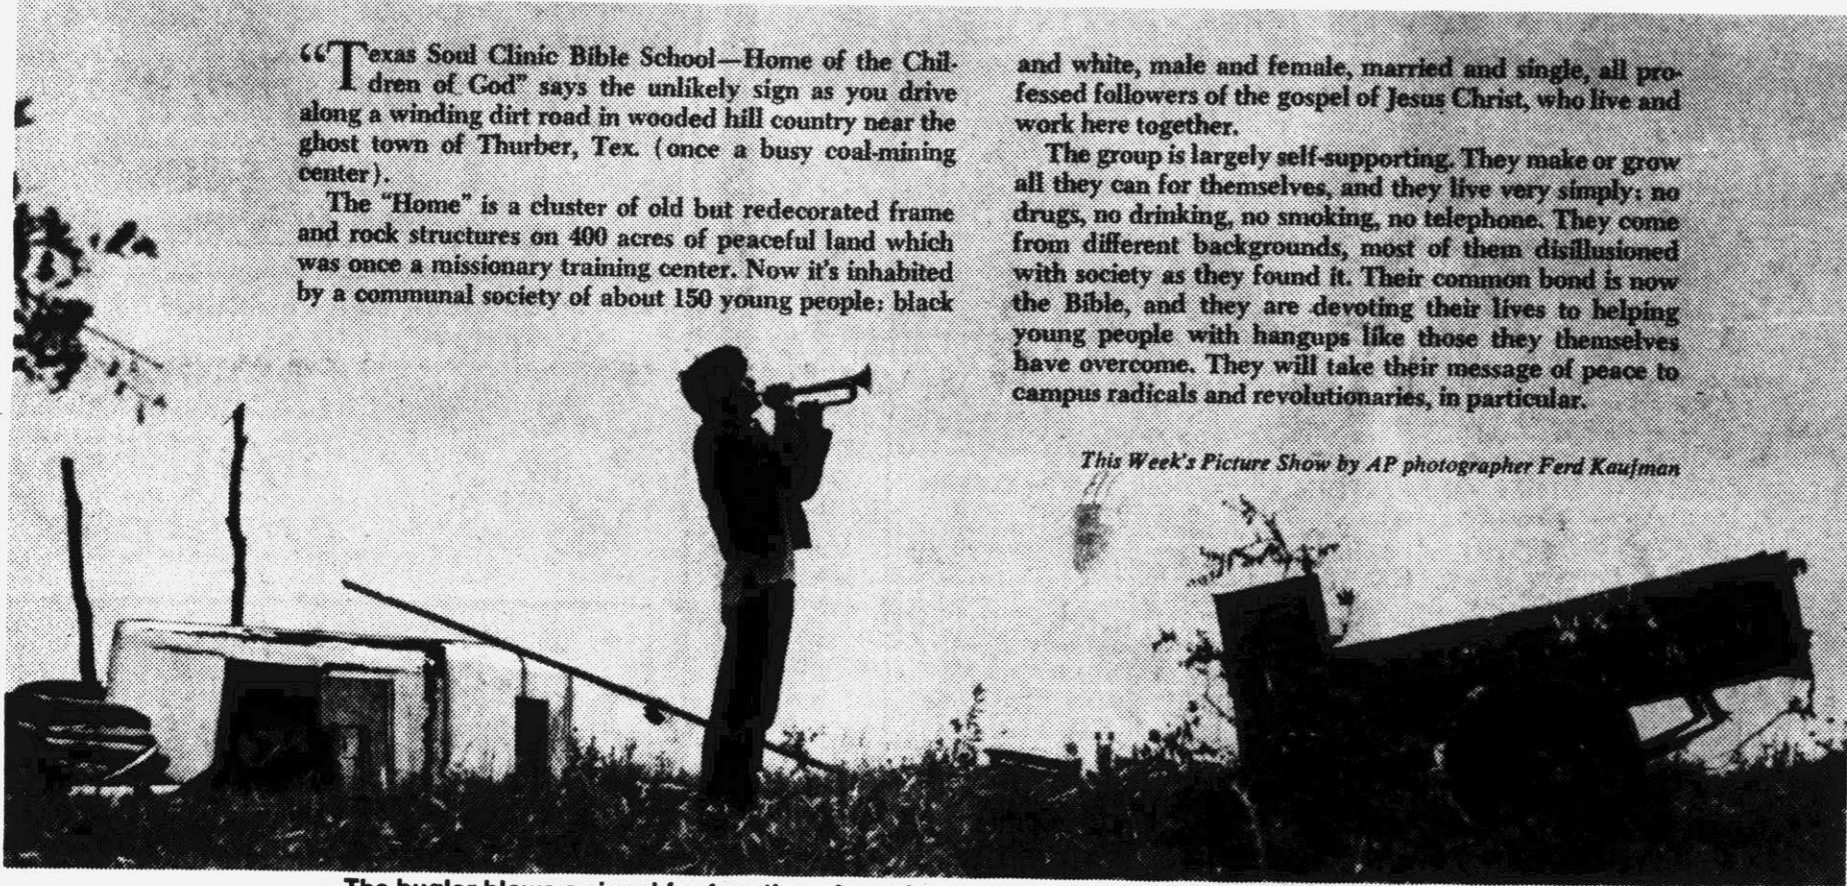

“Texas Soul Clinic Bible School—Home of the Children of God” says the unlikely sign as you drive along a winding dirt road in wooded hill country near the ghost town of Thurber, Tex. (once a busy coal-mining center).

The “Home” is a cluster of old but redecorated frame and rock structures on 400 acres of peaceful land which was once a missionary training center. Now it’s inhabited by a communal society of about 150 young people: black and white, male and female, married and single, all professed followers of the gospel of Jesus Christ, who live and work here together.

The group is largely self-supporting. They make or grow all they can for themselves, and they live very simply: no drugs, no drinking, no smoking, no telephone. They come from different backgrounds, most of them disillusioned with society as they found it. Their common bond is now the Bible, and they are devoting their lives to helping young people with hangups like those they themselves have overcome. They will take their message of peace to campus radicals and revolutionaries, in particular.

This Week's Picture Show by AP photographer Ferd Kaufman

The bugler blows a signal for free time. Apart from running the commune, the young people spend hours studying for missionary work—often to college campuses.

Passers-by stop car at the entrance to the Soul Clinic, founded three years ago when the wandering group decided to settle down.

Commune workers come home at the end of a day of toil in the fields.

Sharing daily life, the women prepare a meal in the communal mess hall.

The Worry Clinic Finicky Eaters Can Be Taught

Dolly was born with a liking for just one type of food! All the other food delights must be learned. If the strategy outlined below is then employed, you can even make some kiddies relish unpleasant natural tastes, such as bitter beer or hot peppers, horse radish, etc. But keep the table atmosphere "sweet."

Sugar offers us a "positive" appeal.

Spinach, carrots, meats and most of the other table viands are "neutral" taste qualities. But there are even a few actual "negative" foods, such as red peppers, alcohol and bitter items.

So the only way we ever learn to relish the neutral and even the negative food items is by a process, called transference.

Since sugar is the original positive taste quality, our other fondnesses must derive from it. Many a mother feels elated when her baby will coo and smile as she approaches the crib. Why?

Because Mamma has become linked with sweet milk!

So Mamma is now an animated lump of sugar!

Thus, the baby's natural delight in sweets has carried over till its mother now belongs in that positive category.

Daddy may soon become catalogued in a similar positive manner because he stands beside Mamma when the baby is nursing, or drinking its sweetened milk from the bottle.

Remember, we must add sugar to the baby's formula, for the milk of human mothers is much sweeter than that of cows.

Ultimately, the baby transfers its fondness from sugar to Mamma; thence to Daddy; plus its older brothers and sisters.

Suppose we now introduced it to a neutral food like spinach or codliver oil or carrots or meat.

If the baby puckers its mouth and spews out the strange food or spits it all over Daddy's clean shirt, he may grow so angry that he holds the baby and shoves the next spoonful into baby's mouth.

But the act of restricting an infant's freedom of movement produces anger, so ire and distaste will thus begin to "color the neutral food."

As a result, it will become catalogued as a negative food quality, and the child may dislike that food all its life.

So introduce the baby to a new food by surrounding him figuratively with many large lumps of sugar, namely, his smiling parents and laughing, happy siblings.

Praise the baby and get him into a "sweet" mood.

Then casually slip him the spoonful of the new menu item. Don't push your luck too far or too fast, but wait for another day to repeat this performance.

Ultimately, therefore, the baby will begin to relish a wide variety of new foods.

Children thus prefer hot dogs to T-bone steaks, Why?

Because when they bite into the wiener, they are resurrecting happy emotions linked with picnics, hiking trips, camping and romping in the woods!

Opening lead: Five of ♠
Altho South voluntarily reduced his trump holding to the vanishing point in today's four spade contract, it proved to be the only road to success on the deal.

East made a takeout double after North opened the bidding with one club, South had the distributional values for a redouble, but he was reluctant to take aggressive action with only six high card points. He accordingly took an alternate course by making a jump shift response of two spades. (A jump in a new suit is forcing for one round on the opening bidder.)

When North made the somewhat negative rebid of two no trump, South retreated to three clubs to show his fit with the original suit. North might have passed at this point, for in light of East's takeout double, the king of hearts no longer seemed an impressive value. North instead chose to show his mild spade fit and South carried on to game.

Had West somehow put his hand on the ten of hearts, there would have been no story to tell for after the defense cashes out their book in that suit—there is no way to prevent East from scoring the setting trick subsequently with the queen of spades. There is no criticism to be levied against West however for making the more normal lead of the five of diamonds. East put up the ace and South ruffed with the three of spades.

Declarer could count five spade tricks—provided that suit divided favorably—and four clubs. The normal procedure for scoring a 10th trick would be to lead toward the king of hearts to the hope that West held the ace. In light of East's takeout double, declarer considered it unlikely that a heart play would succeed and he looked for an alternative.

If all of the dummy's diamonds were ruffed out, it might be possible to eliminate East's side cards and eventually force the latter to lead hearts. At trick two, South led over to the king of spades to trump a second diamond with the seven of spades. The ace of trumps was cashed and when both opponents followed suit, only the queen remained outstanding.

A club to the king put North in for another diamond ruff and the ace of clubs was employed to trump a fourth diamond with the ten of spades. Altho South was now out of trumps, he had achieved his objective, for East was down to the queen of spades and the A-Q-J-2 of hearts. The queen of clubs was led and East had a choice of unpleasant alternatives. If he ruffed in, he would have to lead hearts and dummy would score the fulfilling trick with the king of hearts. If East took discards on the remaining clubs, South would also have 10 tricks—four clubs, four diamond ruffs and the ace, king of spades.

East chose the latter course and South cheerfully conceded the last three tricks.

Killer Is Given New Sentence

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Robert L. Roseboro, one of 39 persons whose death sentences were overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court, has been sentenced to life imprisonment in the fatal bludgeoning of the woman operator of a store in his hometown of Shelby in 1968. After Superior Court Judge J. W. Jackson handed down the new sentence Monday, Roseboro's lawyer, Julius Chambers, filed notice of appeal to the state Supreme Court.

A Review Traditional Tribal Dances Are Treat

The East Carolina University Artist Series opened last night in Wright Auditorium with an exuberant performance of African dances by the Sierra Leone National Dance Troupe.

Troupe Director John Bunting-Graden introduced the dances selected for the Greenville audience from a program listing 24 dances and three sketches. Most of the dances of the troupe's repertoire were performed in this colorful program.

The audience was also treated to two sketches—"The Suitors" and "The Blind Lover," which provided an interesting insight into the humor of the West African country as well as a sample of the sound of their language.

Physical stamina and coordination, muscular control and rhythmic sensitivity of an almost unbelievable complexity best describes the troupe's remarkable dance talents. This statement is applicable not only to the dancers, but to the musicians, who displayed an equal measure of endurance and stamina in furnishing the accompaniment.

Played against a backdrop depicting the mountainous country side and thatched roofed houses of a Sierra Leone village, the ensemble of instrumentalists and singers themselves became an active tableau of background movement for the dancers. Three basic musical instruments were used—drums, gourds and xylophones.

Costumes of elaborate Western and native origin visually emphasized native ideas, customs and traditions. The Baboon dancers, for example, used pieces of baboon fur; the Witch Bird wore a large stylized ornately decorated bird costume which included multicolored mirrors; and traditional and tribal devils employed native costumes and masks. In effect, costuming constituted in itself an exhibit of current native costume art of the country.

Perhaps unique for the Wright Auditorium stage were two of the dances in which three of the mature female dancers were topless. As the director of the troupe discreetly pointed out—"Americans expose legs; we expose breasts."

One very human and revealing sidelight. The troupe director told his audience of the troupe's delight in being able to get for supper one of the native dishes they had all been yearning for in America—a big bowl of rice. He expressed his gratitude for this treat by dedicating one of the dances to the Greenville man who cooked the rice.

If last night's exciting performance is indicative of the caliber of programs scheduled for the 1971-72 Artist Series at East Carolina, the selection committee has done an excellent job of fitting performers to its audience.

The audience showed its genuine pleasure and overwhelming reception of the talented troupe with a standing ovation. The director acknowledged the audience's pleasure by personally introducing each featured dancer following the ovation.

Last night's performance was the highlight event of a week long series of varied attractions at ECU this week marking the Black Arts Festival.

Named To Head VD Section

RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. Martin P. Hines, director of the epidemiology division in the state Board of Health, announced Monday the appointment of Joe Wray Martin as chief of the venereal disease control section.

Martin is a native of Gastonia. He will succeed Dr. Roy V. Berry who has been serving as chief of both the tuberculosis and venereal disease control sections. Dr. Berry will continue to head the tuberculosis section.

TREND TO BIOLOGICAL CONTROL — Dr. Robert Van Den Bosch, chairman of the division of biological control at the University of California at Berkeley, works in lab with insect specimens. He is one of the researchers striving to end dependence on dangerous pesticides.

"There's a definite trend now to biological control and we're beginning to see an evolution to a better system. We'll see significant changes in about 10 years," says Van Den Bosch. (AP Wirephoto)

Connally Tapped To Be Nixon's Representative

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's new foreign-affairs assignment for Treasury Secretary John B. Connally has added another feather to the tall Texan's hat and spurred fresh speculation that Nixon is grooming him as a 1972 running mate.

White House officials disclosed Monday that Nixon has tapped his sole Democratic Cabinet member as his official representative at the Oct. 31 inauguration of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The officials said, without giving details, that Connally also will visit other countries on his Asian journey. Another source said his itinerary includes a stop in Tokyo for talks with Japanese officials being buffeted by protests over an agreement signed last week cutting Japanese textile shipments to the United States.

But it is the Vietnam visit—a seemingly unusual assignment for a man best known as the chief spokesman for the new Nixon economics—that started the tongues wagging anew about the possibility he might supplant Spiro T. Agnew as Nixon's vice presidential choice.

The intrigue was heightened when it was recalled that Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird plans to be in Brussels Oct. 26-28 for a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization officials, then plans to go to Vietnam the first week in November.

Laird presumably could have been picked to go to Saigon from Brussels to represent the United States when Thieu is sworn in for his second term Oct. 31. But instead, he is returning to the United States for a brief stay before heading to Vietnam.

"There's no interplay," a Nixon aide said when asked about the Laird and Connally trips. This official characterized the Saigon visit as simply one stop in a multi-nation Asian tour being mapped for Connally.

Nixon has refused to discuss his 1972 political plans, and Connally usually brushes aside with a smile any suggestion he is vice presidential timber—a possibility that has even been mentioned by some top Republicans.

"I'm not going to make a comment along those lines at all," says the 54-year-old threatening Texas governor and graduate of the Lyndon B. Johnson school of politics.

Commend Youth Ass'n For Work

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Youth Association for Retarded Children was commended Thursday night for their work on behalf of the Farmville Child Development Center.

All 21 members of the group recently participated in painting the outside woodwork at the Center and in giving the building a thorough cleaning. Miss Elaine Murphy, the teacher-director, told the Center's Board of Directors. Eight Youth ARC members a week are also giving an hour to serve as student helpers while the day care center is in session, she said.

The Center is now filled to capacity — 12 moderately to severely retarded children are attending five days a week. Miss Murphy said observers from the Wilson County Department of Social Service recently visited the Center to get ideas for a similar day care program that will open in Wilson soon.

A tentative budget for the coming year was presented and will be acted upon at the next meeting.

The Center's staff — Miss Murphy, Miss Grace Hamm, and Mrs. Barbara Cochran will begin participating in in-service training sessions in conjunction with the staff of the East Carolina Remedial Education Activities Program. The first meeting will be held in Farmville Nov. 18.

The children will have a group picture taken next week. Besides going to parents, these pictures will be used as gifts to persons in the community who have contributed to this retarded children's day care project, Miss Murphy reported.

Schedule Hearing On Greenville Work

RALEIGH — The North Carolina State Highway Commission has announced plans to conduct a public hearing on a proposed improvement to a major thoroughfare in Greenville.

According to Highway engineers, the recommended mile-long project will begin at US 264 By-pass and follow the existing alignment of Charles Street north to 12th Street where a connector will be constructed joining Charles with Cotanche Street. The improvement will then continue along a one-block section of Cotanche Street to its terminus at 10th Street. Plans for the improvement include widening of the existing two-lane facilities to 68-feet with curb and gutter.

The public hearing will be held on October 21 at 2:00 p.m. in the auditorium of the Municipal Building in Greenville. Highway engineers will be present to explain the project and receive any questions or comments. A final decision by Highway officials will not be made on the project until after the hearing.

Local Observance Begun Of United Nations Week

Observances in Greenville for United Nations Week, which begins this year on Sunday, October 24, United Nations Day, are being planned in Greenville.

The first of several events was the annual United Nations dinner sponsored by the Association of American University Women (AAUW), Monday night at the Woman's Club of Greenville. For this dinner, Dr. John Howell, Dean of the Graduate School of East Carolina University, spoke on "Problems for the United Nations in 1971-72." Dean Howell is the author of several articles in the general area of United Nations work.

In the Greenville City Schools, attention will be called to the subject of the United Nations in programs planned in conjunction with National Education Week, which this year falls on the same week. Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, said staff members and teachers have been working on plans to focus attention on United Nations and American Education Week.

On Saturday morning October 23, representatives of the Pitt County 4-H Club will raise the United Nations flag on a flag pole at the Pitt County Courthouse. This part of the UN observances is sponsored by the Pitt County Home Economics Extension Service. Mrs. Dan Wooten is coordinating this activity. "Carolina Today," the WNCT-TV morning show, will feature two East Carolina University students on their show for Friday, October 22. Allen Chan and Ahman (Ricky) Woo, both of Hong Kong, will be guests on the TV's annual United Nations show.

The Junior Woman's Club is again this year sponsoring the sale of United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) Christmas cards in the Greenville area. Mrs. Richard Rintama is heading this activity this year. Sheppard Memorial Library will feature displays during United Nations Week calling attention to United Nations themes.

Coal Strike Effect Said To Be Rising

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The impact of the nationwide coal strike mounted Monday with reports of miners seeking federal food stamps, more layoffs pending in related industries and a projection of serious power shortages by winter.

United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle said Monday the nation will face power shortages unless the coal industry begins bargaining in good faith for a new contract to end the coal miners' strike, now in its 19th day.

Boyle in a statement, charged that the Bituminous Coal Operators Association has not yet made any serious offer on wage hikes welfare contributions, sick-leave pay and other union demands.

The UMW chief said coal stocks are fast being depleted by power companies and "the result could well be brownouts during the depths of winter."

However, utility companies have said most stockpiles of coal are large enough to last through the next two months.

Meanwhile, more than 300 miners in Logan County applied for federal food stamps Monday at welfare offices.

And about 75 disabled miners and widows said they would appear today at UMW headquarters in Washington to demand that pension and medical benefits for them be included in the contract now being negotiated.

In addition, Miners for Democracy — a dissident union faction — has scheduled a Friday demonstration in Washington to demand that the union begin paying strike benefits to members.

Railroads which depend on coal production in the Appalachian region have announced additional layoffs because of the coal strike. And pickets have been reported at some non-union mines in Virginia.

The Norfolk & Western Railway said Monday in Roanoke, Va., that employe layoffs by Friday would total nearly 4,700, or about 16 per cent of the total N&W work force of 28,300.

Coal loadings on the N&W strike to 4,059 cars, officials said, compared with 32,350 cars for the same week a year ago.

Roving pickets appeared at some non-union mines in West Virginia Monday and picketing of non-union coal mines was reported in Lee, Wise, Scott and Dickenson counties in Virginia.

Report By Tass

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass today gave the first Soviet report of the Hungarian refugee's attack on Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin more than 12 hours before.

The Soviet news agency in a dispatch datelined Ottawa said a "provocation was committed against the chairman of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers." "When Alexei Kosygin and the Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau came out of the building of Parliament at the end of the first day of Soviet-Canadian talks, a man from the crowd near the building managed to break through the guards and tried to commit an act of hooliganism. The police are conducting investigations," the report continued.

"Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada expressed profound regrets over the happening."

Pravda in its edition today made no direct reference to the attack.

French Club To Present Film

The East Carolina University French Club will present an NBC Television film "The Louvre" at 6:45 p.m. in Room 101 of the Nursing Building Wednesday.

Arrest 3 For Store Break-ins

The investigation of break-ins at Woodrow Grays Store on Rt. 2, Greenville and at Dail's Convent Store on Highway 43 has led to the arrest of three men by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, deputies arrested Bobby Burney, 32, of Rt. 1, Grimesland, Steven Troy Cox, 17, of Box 231, Simpson, and Johnny Ray Quinerly, 19, of Rt. 1, Grimesland.

Sheriff Tyson said that all three are charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with a break-in at Grays that was reported at 6 o'clock Monday morning.

The owner reported assorted merchandise and a sum of money stolen from the store. Total value, including $60 in cash, was set at $183.50, the Sheriff said. In addition, damage to the store, which was entered through a side door, was estimated at $25. Part of the merchandise was recovered, it was reported.

Sheriff Tyson said that Burney and Cox are also charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with a break-in around 5 a.m. Sunday at Dail's, located about a mile from Grays store.

The Sheriff pointed out that a pool table, piccolo and cash register in the store were damaged in the break-in, with damages estimated at $100. Approximately $10 to $12 in money was taken from the pool table, he added, and also a box of hand tools was stolen.

Sheriff Tyson reported that Burney and Cox are being held under $500 bond and Quinerly under $500.

Investigation of the two incidents is continuing, he said.

Offering Aid For Program

Assistance is now available to area singers planning to participate in the festive all-African church program scheduled for Sunday, October 31 at York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church.

Johnny Wooten, director of the special program, said that Miss Addie Gore will conduct two advisory sessions at the Home Economics Extension Service Center on West Third Street, the first on Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 7:00 p.m. and the second at the same hour on Friday.

Miss Gore will have patterns, materials and drawings of typical representative costumes of various areas of Africa available for those making their own African costumes to be used in the Sunday program.

Interested persons are encouraged to bring their own material so that they can learn if it would be suitable for making the colorful costumes which will be used in the special church service.

Family Now Separated 21 Years

By JAMES KIN
SEOUL (UPI)—On each New Year's Day, Han Pil-sung and his five children face North and bow several times, praying "may God help you."

The greeting and prayers are made for Han's parents living in North Korea. Han's children have never met them.

Han, 38, came to the south in December, 1950, at the height of the Korean War. He was 17. With two friends, he joined a massive group of refugees who fled south when United Nations forces were withdrawing from North Korea.

"At first we thought it would be a one-week trip," Hans says. "But I have now lived 21 years apart from my parents, brothers and sisters."

Han has done well, and now runs a successful radio-TV repair shop in Seoul.

He had not heard from his family, all through the years, until Feb. 17 this year when he had a tearful telephone conversation with his youngest sister, Han Pil-hwa, who called him from Tokyo.

Pil-hwa was in Tokyo after taking part in the pre-Olympic winter games in Hokkaido, Japan, as a speed skater with the North Korean team. Following the telephone contact, Han flew to Tokyo hoping to see Pil-hwa, but missed her.

Though Han failed to meet his sister, he learned from her that his parents, a brother and four other sisters are all alive in North Korea.

"So I told my children that if I fail to go home to the north in my lifetime because of the division of the land, they should go and visit the old home," Han says. "They know the names of the grandparents and the exact location of the home."

There are many others in Korea who share Han's tragedy. According to an official estimate, there are in South Korea 2.14 million people separated from near relatives in the north.

Some became separated when Korea was divided into two parts in August, 1945, with the United States occupying south of the 38th parallel and Soviet Russia controlling north of the line.

Hinsdale County Defies Logic: It Works

By DORMAN CORDELL
Associated Press Writer
LAKE CITY, Colo. (AP) — It would seem self-evident that there's no way Hinsdale County can work. But it does.

In an area roughly the size of Rhode Island, the population is only 202. Only Loving County, Tex., has fewer people.

The county has no factories, grows no crops except pasture, has no jail, no banks, no hospital and no high school.

More than 95 per cent of the land is owned by the federal government, thus removing it from the tax rolls.

The Continental Divide crossed the county twice, cutting it into three distinct sections, each pretty much isolated from the other. There isn't even a direct connecting road between Lake City, the county seat, and the southern part of the county, where about 30 persons live.

So how does Hinsdale County survive? Very well, thank you, say the residents.

Nobody is on welfare. There is almost no public debt and little crime. The high school students ride to Gunnison, a 110-mile round trip, each school day. There have been only two fatal car wrecks in the county's history, both occurring since the first paved road was built into the county about five years ago.

The county survives on sheep and cattle ranches and on tourists. Summer residents, most of them from Texas — "They used to call this place Little Oklahoma, but now it's mostly Texans for some reason," said a resident — swell the population of Lake City to many times its official 86.

About three-fourths of the county's population lives within five miles of Lake City. In or around Lake City, there are nine full-fledged resorts or dude ranches and eight motels or lodges where the tourists can stay to hunt, fish, look at the rugged scenery or tour ghost towns.

There was a time when miners and prospectors flocked to the area, after Enos Hotchkiss discovered the rich Ute-Ulay mine near the lower end of Lake San Cristobal in 1874. Hinsdale County was founded the same year, and Lake City was chartered a year later.

But by the turn of the century, the mining was playing out and so were the towns. Lake City, whose population once reached perhaps 3,000 or more, began to shrink.

The economy of the county probably is sounder now than it was during the boom times.

"The county doesn't owe one penny," said Nancy Burke, county treasurer since 1954. Technically that's true, although tax money does go toward paying off bond issues on a separate school district and a separate water district. "We do need a courthouse, though. This one is just too small." It was built in 1877.

The county collected $122,710 in property taxes last year for all uses, including operating county offices, educating school children and paying the two bond issues. It also got about $100,000 from the federal highway users' fund.

The assessed valuation of taxable property was $2,323,120 in 1970.

The largest portion of the taxes goes to education. There is an elementary school in Lake City which has 21 pupils and two teachers last year.

Now high schoolers, 12 of them last year, make the daily trip to Gunnison, 55 miles away. "That's not really so bad," said Mary Jacobs, the chairman of the county school board. "Kids who live in the city ride the bus that long — an hour each way — to get to school."

There is a small ski area, mostly for local use, built by the citizens. They raised the money privately and did most of their own work.

Plans were afoot a couple of years ago for a major ski area, but the financing fell through.

About the only winter activity is a jamboree for snow-mobilers. Other than that, Lake City more or less withdraws from the world during the winter.

"We don't have a severe winter," said Ryan. "But there aren't many people here, and almost everything closes down."

The county's most famous tourist did visit in the winter, however. He was Alferd E. Packer, who with five companions came searching for gold in the winter of 1873-74, when Hinsdale County was nothing but wilderness.

When the group ran out of provisions, Packer killed his companions and ate parts of their bodies to stay alive. He was arrested and convicted of murder. Judge M. B. Gerry, in an eloquent statement, sentenced him to hang. Gerry's true eloquence was almost overlooked, however, because of the widely circulated — and completely untrue — version related by a bartender named Dolan.

Dolan came rushing out of the courthouse after attending the sentencing and, in his Irish brogue, claimed that Gerry had said, "You voracious man-eating s.o.b., they was seven Dimmicrats in Hinsdale County and you've et five of 'em. I sentence you to be hanged by the neck until you're dead, dead, dead."

Unprecedented Search For Gas

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—The A.C. Nielsen Co. said 25 of the world's largest land drilling rigs were operating across a 175-mile stretch of West Texas in the Delaware and Val Verde Basins.

Wells are being drilled to 20,000 feet in an unprecedented play for what is believed to be a gas-rich reserve. The world's deepest production is located in that area and, until recently, the world's deepest well.

dead, as a warning against reducing the Dimmicratic population of the state."

Packer never was hanged, but got a second trial in which he was sentenced to live imprisonment. Many years later he was paroled.

BIG APPROPRIATIONS
MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine National Economic Council has approved a total capital outlay of 1.5 billion pesos (about $250 million) for public works projects and 188 million pesos ($31 million) for other expenses.

The appropriation is part of the four-year development plan covering the period 1971-1974, which forecasts a real per capita income growth of about 2 per cent a year.

What you need is a little money.

But maybe what you could use first is some helpful advice about the best way to borrow it. How to get the best rate, the best terms, when to borrow, how much you can afford to borrow. That sort of thing.

Talk to someone who can give it to you straight. A financial advisor at Planters National Bank.

Your PNB financial advisor can give you sound advice about borrowing money based on your particular financial situation. If you're interested in a loan, he'll recommend a plan that best fits your reason for borrowing. He'll suggest terms that make sense for your budget and ability to repay. And, of course, he can assure you of a low bank rate with a PNB loan.

Looking ahead, your PNB financial advisor can help you set up a complete financial program to get you where you want to be next year, or in several years. So he can help you now, and he can continue to help you as your needs change later.

If you're looking for a loan, maybe now is the time to borrow from a bank that gives you more than money. Come by and see a PNB financial advisor for some helpful advice to go along with it.
