Senate Debates Slashing Financial Support Of UN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is debating proposals to cut U.S. financial support of United Nations activities while Nixon administration forces consider a move to sidetrack the entire $3.2 billion foreign aid bill to block its restrictive provisions.

The Senate acts today on amendments stemming from Monday night's U.N. vote to admit Communist China and expel Taiwan from the world organization.

Sens. James L. Buckley, ConR-N.Y., and Peter Dominick, R-Colo., are pressing the amendments with what appears to be the tacit support of the Nixon administration.

Buckley would eliminate $100 million in the aid bill for the U.N. development program and $1.5 million for a world food program. Asked if he had administration backing, the New York Conservative told a reporter, "Certainly the administration hasn't tried to dissuade me."

Dominick seeks to cut the 31 per cent U.S. share of U.N. costs to 25 per cent.

First, the Senate will consider an amendment by Sens. Buckley and William E. Brock III, R-Tenn., to strip a provision repealing the 1955 resolution authorizing presidential action to defend Formosa and the neighboring Pescadores Islands from a possible Communist Chinese attack.

The Senate accepted by voice vote Wednesday a revised amendment by Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, delaying the effective date of repeal to next April 15.

Meanwhile, a group of Republican senators was summoned to a White House breakfast session with presidential aide Henry Kissinger today to plan moves that will seek to undo the bill's limits on U.S. activities in Southeast Asia.

If these efforts fail, a GOP Senate aide said, the administration is likely to throw its support behind an effort likely Friday to kill the entire aid measure.

The plan would be to scuttle the foreign aid authorization bill completely and seek later to extend the aid program by a continuing resolution that would skirt the Foreign Relations Committee where most of the restrictive provisions were added.

But an initial test vote Wednesday, a move by Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., to ease a $100 million limit on U.S. military aid and arms sales to Latin-America, saw administration forces beaten on a 48-38 vote that could presage defeats on later efforts.

Prime administration targets are the amendments by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, to cut off funds for U.S. operations in Indochina except for withdrawal efforts, and a provision by Sens. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., limiting U.S. aid to Cambodia to $250 million and also imposing a personnel ceiling.

In related developments: —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew called for reassessment of U.S. financial support of the United Nations, saying: "I don't see why we should pay such a predominant amount of the tab."

Over $100,000

The Pitt County United Fund Drive has passed the $100,000 mark, Ed N. Warren, drive chairman, told division chairmen gathered for a report breakfast this morning.

Reaching this rung means we have almost doubled the amount collected by this stage of the campaign last year — $51,951," Warren said. He praised the workers for a wonderful job so far and urged them to try to reach their individual goals within the next two weeks.

The percentages of the goals collected so far are as follows: industry — 94; East Carolina University — 95.4; Special gifts — 70.7; advance gifts — 60; leadership — 46; goal buster — 47; professional — 39.5; and county — 35.5. Four firms reported 100 per cent fair share giving.

The breakfast was sponsored by Home Savings and Loan Association.

Victories Scored By Restructuring Bill

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — An administration-backed bill to restructure higher education in North Carolina was expected to move nearer enactment today in the General Assembly after scoring major victories.

The measure would create a 32-member board with strong powers over budgets, programs and planning at state-supported universities.

Gov. Bob Scott, who says the restructuring is needed to get the present system "out of the political thicket," scored a victory Wednesday when the measure was given tentative approval without major change by the House, 74-39. The measure was held for final House action today.

Later, the governor scored again when the Senate rejected an amendment 27-21 calling for the initial governing board to have 226 members, including the 100-member board of trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, plus board members from regional universities.

The Senate, which adjourned Wednesday before all its amendments were acted upon, was to consider a proposal today by Sen. Lamar Gudger, D-Buncombe, that the 32-member board be elected by the General Assembly. Under the bill, eight members would be appointed by the governor and 24 by the legislature.

Sen. Gordon Allen, D-Person, offered the 15-page amendment to enlarge the governing board. Its defeat came after more than two and one-half hours debate and was a big blow for supporters of the Consolidated University.

Troops Alerted

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command today ordered American troops in Vietnam on an increased alert for the weekend in anticipation of enemy attacks during the inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The alert is also intended to keep the 202,000 American troops away from any hostile demonstrations by anti-Thieu forces who blame the United States for his unopposed reelection.

"Intelligence indicates possible increased enemy activity during the period, such as terror, sapper and rocket and mortar attacks," said a spokesman for the U.S. Command, Maj. Richard Gardner.

He said the alert would begin at 5 p.m. Saigon time Friday and would remain in effect at least through 5 p.m. Monday.

Under the alert, called "gray condition," U.S. troops can enter cities or towns only on essential official business, and vehicle movement outside U.S. installations is limited to essential travel.

Similar alerts were declared during the National Assembly election last Aug. 29 and the presidential election Oct. 3.

There have been 39 firebombings of U.S. vehicles in Saigon since early September, all of them believed to be the work of militant students opposing Thieu and the U.S. support of his government.

Opponents argued in the Senate that the amendment was aimed at killing the bill. Allen's amendment proposed that the 226-member board be decreased gradually to 108 over a six-year period.

The decisive House vote came after lengthy debate during which several minor amendments were approved and others rejected.

Both the House and Senate struck from the measure a provision setting up a nominating committee to propose nominees for the legislature to consider in choosing the governing board. The House approved an amendment by Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville, calling for the General Assembly to meet in joint session and choose the board from nominations made from the floor.

The Senate also approved a similar amendment by Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland.

Sen. L. P. McLendon, D-Guilford, told the Senate that if the Allen amendment passed, "it guarantees this bill will die. It will never be accepted by the House."

Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, supported the amendment, saying "we're going to play hell" if it doesn't pass.

Sen. John Wood, D-Camden, and Norris Reed, D-Craven, contended the amendment was offered to kill the measure. Allen denied this, saying he offered it "in good faith" and that if turned down, he would vote for the bill.

The House rejected a proposal by Rep. John Ingram, D-Randolph, to take from the governor the power to appoint eight of the 32 members of the board of governors.

The House also turned down an amendment by Rep. Foyle Hightower, D-Anson, that would have kept the board of governors from discontinuing the new medical school at East Carolina University.

Rep. Sneed High, Cumberland, spoke against a provision in the bill which calls for an interim board of governors to get the new university system started. This 33-member board would include 15 selected by the trustees of the University of North Carolina from its membership, 15 selected by regional universities from among their members, and two members chosen by the Board of Higher Education from among its members, plus the governor.

High said that by the time the 1973 legislature meets all the decisions will have been made and "everything will be locked into a system by people we do not know who will constitute the interim board."

The provision was defended by Rep. J. P. Huskins, D-Iredell. He said "it meets all the tests" and "will have the balance in it that will preserve the balance of the individual institutions."

The House rejected an amendment by Rep. Henry Frye, D-Guilford, one of the House's two black members, to increase from four to six the number of Negroes who would have to be placed on the board of governors.

Watkins told the House the General Assembly was handing the board "a blank check and absolute power" in giving it budgetary authority.

Rep. Herschel Harkins, D-Buncombe, said the restructuring issue should be submitted to a study group which would come back to the 1973 General Assembly with recommendations.

Other items on the agenda are: approval of positions applied for under the Emergency Employment Act; bids for the purchase of two new police cars and a progress report on work being done on Pitt Street by the Norfolk Southern Railroad.

Utility Fuel Cost Signals Rate Boosts

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The full impact of coal price increases in the past two years has not yet been felt, the Executive Director of the Tennessee Valley Public Power Association told a congressional subcommittee here today.

In testimony prepared for the House Subcommittee on Small Business Problems, J. Wiley Bowers of Chattanooga said the spectacular rise in coal prices in the past two years is largely to blame for an increase in electric power rates.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, held the first of its two-day hearings today in Nashville. A similar hearing is scheduled Friday in Oak Ridge.

The subcommittee is investigating a possible monopoly of the coal industry by large oil companies and the effect of concentration of ownership in the energy field upon electric power rates in the Tennessee Valley.

Rep. Joe L. Evins, D-Tenn., chairman of the parent House Small Business Committee, said, "There is a growing concern that oil company and monopoly control of coal reserves and mining capacity has contributed to substantial increases in coal prices in the Tennessee Valley. There is evidence that concentration in the energy field market may have a grave effect upon the availability and price of fuel necessary for the generation of electric power."

Bowers, pegging the cost of electricity generated by the Tennessee Valley Authority directly to the cost of coal, agreed.

"In discussing electric utility fuels in the TVA area we are talking primarily about coal," Bowers said.

"Despite the list of factors which are often cited as justification for the very large coal price increases which have occurred during the past two years, no combination of those factors is sufficient to explain the magnitude of the price increases."

Bowers said that the additional costs to coal producers to comply with the new federal Mine Safety Act and site restoration regulations for strip mines "do not begin to account for the coal price increases of more than $3.00 per ton which occurred during 1969-1970."

Subcommittee chairman Smith said shortages of coal suitable for use in generating electric power in the past 18 months were responsible for price increases of up to 100 per cent in some areas.

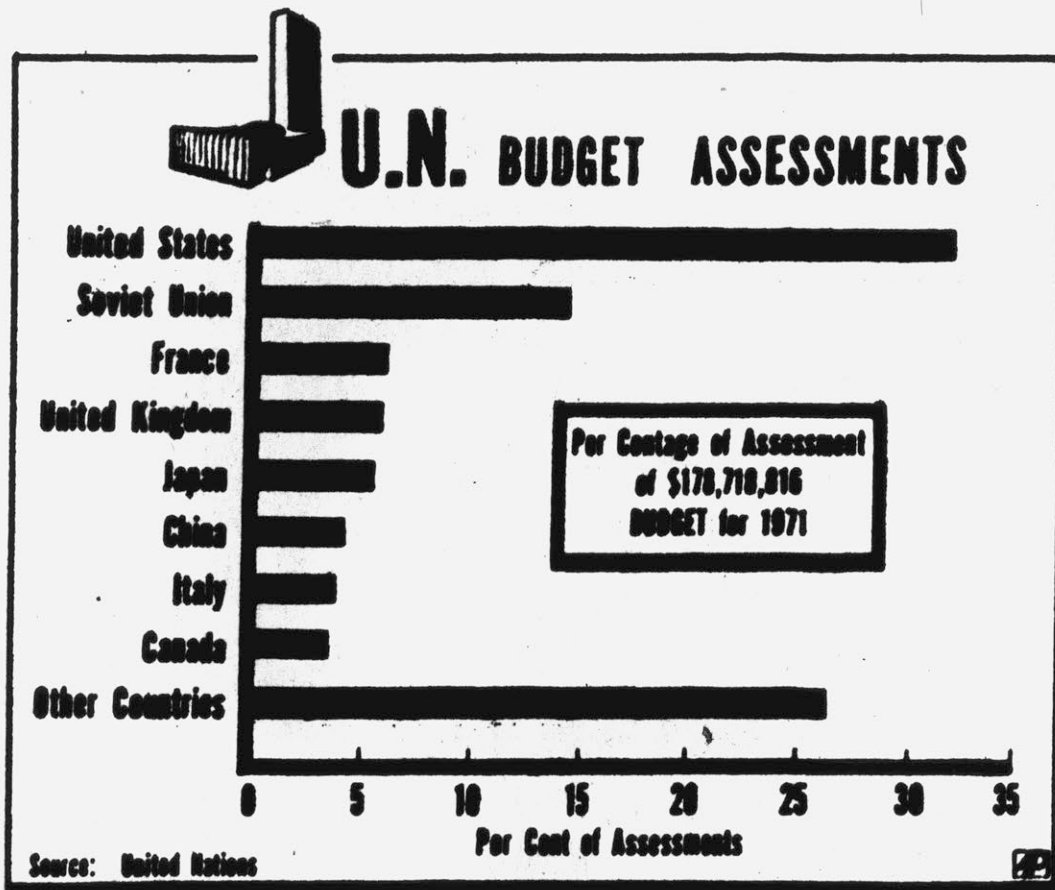

"With over a 1,000-year supply of coal available for electric power generation ..., it seems incredible that a coal shortage could occur," Smith said. "The recent flurry of oil company acquisitions of coal companies may have contributed to the lack of available coal supplies and the sharp increase in coal prices. We hope to determine what has caused the increase in coal prices in the Tennessee Valley and what measures could be taken to remedy this serious situation."

Health Director

Dr. Robert D. May has been retained as director of the Pitt County Health Department, it was announced today by Vernon Cox, chairman of both the County Commissioners and the Pitt County Board of Health.

Dr. May comes here from Ocean City, Md. where he was director of the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health for the Prince George County Health Department. He entered public health work after having a private pediatrics practice for 17 years. Reared in Jacksonville, Fla., he was educated at Emory University, the University of Georgia, Temple University, the University of Pennsylvania, and the University of North Carolina.

"We feel very fortunate to have a man of Dr. May's caliber and experience to lead us in meeting the health needs of Pitt County at this challenging time," Cox said. "He has already shown us in the less than three weeks he has been here that he is a man who gets things done. We're glad to have him aboard."

U.S. Pays The Lion's Share

U.N. ASSESSMENTS — The U.S., as indicated by this chart, is assessed for 31.52 per cent of the United Nations' 1971 budget of $178,718,816. The $56,332,170 assessment is more than twice that of the next highest assessment, the Soviet Union's. The White House said Wednesday that American support for the UN and some foreign aid allocations could be affected by the UN General Assembly's defeat of the administration's two-China policy. (AP Wirephoto)

Green Mill Run Project To Again Be Discussed On November 11

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A further meeting with members of the Corps of Engineers from Wilmington, to be staged at 8:00 p.m. on November 11 in city hall with members of the City Council, will be devoted to discussion of the Green Mill Run Project.

City Engineer C. A. Holliday disclosed the planned meeting at the Wednesday night meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

At the last City Council meeting, Mayor S. Eugene West had asked Holliday to arrange for an additional meeting, as several members of the new City Council had not been in on earlier public discussions held more than a year ago.

Holliday noted that from an engineering point of view, one of the main concerns was the Deck Street area, which sometimes gets flooded.

A second non-scheduled item, a review of the thoroughfare plan, a new version from Raleigh of the old plan, resulted in Clarence Tugwell's motion that the Planning and Zoning Board recommend to the City Council "corrections of the most glaring errors" on the new map and plan sent from the State Highway Commission.

Tugwell's motion, approved unanimously by a full board, would show the following proposed changes or corrections:

1. Eliminate a bridge across Tar River at Washington Street and add back the bridge at Pitt Street.

2. Eliminate two way pairing of Fourth and Fifth Streets that would have Fourth Street a one way artery through the proposed mall.

3. Eliminate the bridge put in for Elm Street on the new plan.

4. Put back on the new plan the continuation of Red Bank Road to Memorial Drive.

5. Eliminate an added loop south of Pitt Plaza that would run to Bell Fork as not needed.

6. Realignment of that portion of Arlington Boulevard from Greenville Boulevard south to where Arlington Boulevard would intersect the proposed extension of Red Banks Road.

At this stage all plans and maps relating to the thoroughfare plan are in a preliminary stage, subject to further revisions, cuts and additions. Before the thoroughfare plan becomes official, it will require approval by both the City Council and the N.C. State Highway Commission.

In their regular business, members approved the subdivision of parcels of land in two instances. The first is a four lot parcel at the northeast corner of Pitt and Brown Streets, owned by Harris-Evans Lumber Company. The second is the northwest corner of Farmville Boulevard and Tyson Street, owned by Greenville Realty Company.

Holliday pointed out in both instances subdivision was a matter of adjusting lot sizes so that each lot in each area met required minimum standards. No storm drainage, curbing, gutter or paving is applicable, as these already exist at both sites.

Consideration of a final plat of Section III of Oakdale Subdivision was tabled until the November meeting as no one was on hand to represent the planners.

Mayor West and several members of the City Council — Cox, Mrs. Mildred McGrath and Bill Dansey were present for the Planning and Zoning meeting.

The November meeting of the Planning and Zoning has been set for November 17 since the regular date, November 24, is on Thanksgiving eve.

A report on City Manager Harry Hagerty's condition was given by Holliday, who noted the city manager is apparently making good progress in recovery. He said doctors now allowed Hagerty to take a walk each day for a short distance. Hagerty was released from the hospital about ten days ago.

Her Family Had To Take Turns

BOHERNABREE, Ireland (WNS) — Betty Finn, 22, could barely find room at the wedding reception for her 21 brothers and sisters. By lining up and taking turns, they all got in, except one-week-old Gertrude, who was still in the maternity hospital. "I'd love to have a family even bigger," enthused the bride. Crowded into a corner, bridegroom Dermot Healy, 27, muttered, "It's a bit early to start making such rash statements."

Bake These Party Biscuits The Easy Way

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Even a novice at cooking can turn out a beautiful batch of biscuits. We're talking about miniature drop biscuits, not the rolled variety, because the former are foolproof to make.

There biscuits are prepared with cake flour instead of regular flour, heavy cream instead of shortening and they are so rich they they almost shatter as you butter them or spread them with jam. We like to serve them to company because they always get raves.

They have extra-good flavor because wheat germ is added to the dough. Wheat germ, made from the heart of wheat, contributes protein of good quality, many mineral elements particularly iron and a host of vitamins, including the B family — more than 30 essential nutrients in all.

PARTY CREAM BISCUITS
2 cups sifted cake flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ cup wheat germ
1 container 8 ounces heavy cream
2 tablespoons undiluted evaporated milk

Into a medium mixing bowl sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Stir in wheat germ.

Open fully the container of cream and stir the undiluted evaporated milk into it; with a fork, stir gradually into flour mixture. Mixture will be stiff.

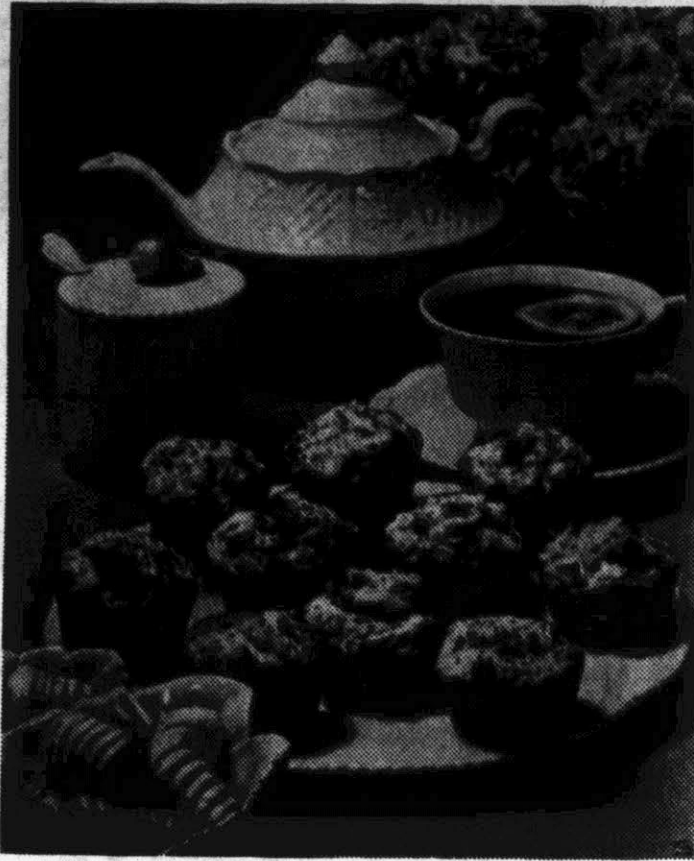

Using a tablespoon and a small metal spatula drop dough into small buttered muffin-pan cups each 2 inches across top and 1 inch deep. Dough will about fill cups. Smooth tops with the small metal spatula.

Bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until golden brown — 12 to 15 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 24.

(Flying instructor Peter Forbes was also in the plane to handle the take-off and landing.)

Segregation On Their Honeymoon

LLORET DE MAR, Spain (WNS) — Pauline Hutchinson dreamed of a castle in Spain when her bridegroom John Hutchinson brought her to the Costa Brava on honeymoon. Instead, tour directors gave them separate hotel rooms that changed each night for a week. "We couldn't even go home because all flights were booked solid," wept Mrs. Hutchinson, 24. "I suppose this will all sound amusing to our grandchildren, but it's not fun now."

DANERS AND DOUGH NEW YORK (UPI) — A woman's age appears to be a factor in how she tries to stretch money, according to a report from Foote, Cone & Belding, an advertising agency. Women under 45 are more likely to be shopping at discount stores, to do comparison shopping, and buying food in quantity to freeze it for later on. Older women have not made changes to stretch the budget. The agency said this was to be expected since older women are more likely to have smaller families.

Restaurant Has A Breton Flair

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer
"In the old days the wealthy made up most of the clientele of the better restaurants around New York," said Andrew Le Moal, as he greeted me in the restaurant his family has run for 35 years.

"But today," he went on, "it's an expense account society; young executives with a down to earth approach. They want food that is simple but good."

And since 1936, the restaurant which bears the Le Moal family name, has been serving just that kind of food, after the style of old Brittany. Run by Madame Rosine and her sons, Andrew and Robert, Le Moal is as warm as it is unpretentious. And I found the food not only inexpensive by today's standards, but very tasty.

Le Moal has two dining rooms—the main one on the ground floor and the attractive Breton Room upstairs. The decor consists of Breton wood carvings and heavy painted china.

Chef Oscar Caucci turns out Breton specialties that are both imaginative and authentic. There is a wide variety of French provincial dishes from mussels mariniere to scallops a la Le Moal and a tripe a la mode de Caen which won a prize in a national chef contest. "Today the accent seems to be on fish for lunch, possibly because most diners are watching their waistlines," said Andrew. "There are not as many fancy entrees as there were in the old days."

But there still are a few, such as Le Moal's Poulet Archiduc, or chicken sauteed, then blazed with Cognac and simmered in cream. But don't forget that the restaurant serves dinner as well and that's when patrons expand a little.

Here is the restaurant's recipe for scallops as they cook them in Nantes.

SCALLOPS A LA "LE MOAL"
1½ pounds bay scallops
2 chopped onions
pinch of thyme
pinch of tarragon
2 tablespoons fresh chopped parsley

1 clove garlic slivered
2 cups dry white wine
1 cup bread crumbs
1½ cups butter
salt and pepper to taste
Saute onions in half the butter. Add spices and garlic and simmer 15 minutes. Poach scallops in the wine for 5 minutes and add to onions. Cook 10 minutes more. Remove from fire, add breadcrumbs, butter and parsley. Place mix in a casserole and brown in a 450-degree oven about 5 minutes. Serves 6 persons. Good with a chilled white Graves.

Phone Calls No Laughing Matter

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My son, 16, makes obscene telephone calls. I heard him make one of those calls the other day and confronted him immediately. He told me he had done it several times and thinks it's "funny."

I received an obscene phone call many years ago, and I know it's no laughing matter. I have tried to impress this upon my son without success.

I can't prevent him from using the phone, and there is no way I can check on him. I am hoping he'll outgrow it, but he seems to take a perverse pleasure in this hobby of his. I hate to see him upset anyone, and of course, I hope he doesn't run into any difficulties with the police. Have you any suggestions?

MRS. M. C.

DEAR MRS. M. C.: Your son's "hobby" is not as innocuous as you seem to think. It is an indication that he could have serious emotional problems. I urge you to somehow manage to have your son examined psychiatrically. At 16, he's no longer a "boy"; he's a young man who desperately needs help.

DEAR ABBY: The other evening, around midnight, I was awakened by a police car's lights and the police radio next door to my home. Knowing the boy of 15 and his sister, 13, were home alone because their parents had gone to a party, I went outside and offered my help. The two officers said, "Thank you, but it's a false alarm." The parents arrived home half an hour later so I knew all was well. The next day the neighbor children told my youngster that when their parents are at parties, they always call the police and report a "prowler" around their home just to see how quickly the police will respond.

I was tempted to inform the police about this little scheme but decided against it. How many times can a person cry "wolf"?
ANOTHER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Not many more after the police get wise. And they will, if this stunt is pulled very often.

DEAR ABBY: I have one master's and two doctorates, but that doesn't mean I know all the answers.

My question: How can I discourage the friendship of a couple who call constantly, inviting my husband and me over?

We are in education and so are they, but they are the world's biggest bores! If we never had to see this couple again socially we would be delightfully liberated. I have run out of excuses.
CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Phony excuses and insincere regrets convey false hope. In the future, simply say, "Thank you for the invitation, but we can't make it."

DEAR ABBY: For three years I've been working as a volunteer in a home for the aged. One of my jobs is reading letters for folks who can't read.

I simply cannot understand why so many of these letters contain nothing but a detailed report of the writer's aches and pains. Or their husband's job problems, or their children's problems, or financial problems. And they invariably end with, "... and how are you?"

These elderly folks need to be cheered up—not depressed. Will you please print this letter and remind those who write to the sick and elderly to please soft-pedal the bad news and to try to brighten their day?

And by the way, Abby, almost every town has homes for the elderly which could use some volunteers. Maybe you can help them recruit a few. Thank you.

Police Wives Club Names New Officers

New officers were elected at the first meeting of the Greenville Police Wives Club held Monday night at the home of Mrs. Faye Tripp.

Officers are Mrs. Tripp, president, Mrs. Harriet James, vice president, Mrs. Mary Loy Cleary, secretary, and Mrs. Claudette Fonseca, treasurer.

Several projects for this year were discussed. Members decided to collect used dolls giving them a new hairdo and new clothes. Cloth dolls will be made to add to the Christmas project.

All the dolls will be given to the Salvation Army to be distributed at Christmas to needy children. This is the first year the club has participated in this project.

The club has been reorganized because of an expressed interest by many of the members. The wives of new policemen and reserve policemen are encouraged to attend. Meetings will be held the third Monday nights of each month.

Probably Assured Own Defeat

The United Nations General Assembly has voted to admit Communist China and expel Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China in what has been termed a major defeat for the United States.

The assembly Monday adopted an Albanian resolution recognizing Red China and expelling Nationalist China's representatives. The vote was 76 to 35 with 17 abstentions.

Safe Driving Said Teachable

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Safe driving is a teachable skill.

Most accidents happen to a normally good driver, unprepared to cope with unexpected hazards. Two good drivers, caught in an over-loaded situation and each intent on his own vehicle, can make the errors in judgment which mean disaster.

Defensive driving is the technique for motorists to master. Simply put, that's the life-saving tactic of watching out for the other fellow.

North Carolina leads the nation in defensive driver training of civilians, reported Charles S. Waters, adult driver education coordinator for the state Motor Vehicles Department.

Through last August, Tar Heel graduates of defensive driving courses numbered 254,471 over the program's 4½-year existence, according to the National Safety Council in Chicago. Only California and Florida reached more drivers, and their totals included a greater proportion of military personnel.

No Tuition Charge

The courses don't cost students a dime. They cover eight hours of instruction, two-hour classes held one evening a week for four weeks. They are available, upon request of civic clubs or other groups, at nearly 40 locations across the state. Instructors come from the 58-member field force of the driver education and accident records division.

"All we ask," said Waters, "is a place to meet and enough warm bodies for a class, at least a dozen or so."

Defensive driving practices, important every month, take on extra significance this time of year. Traffic volume rises. Weather becomes more hazardous. The big holidays — Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's — create an atmosphere in which caution can take a backseat.

Going into the perilous final two months of 1971, the state's highway death toll is running nearly 40 ahead of last year. Already, more than 1,440 persons have been killed in traffic accidents this year.

Driving with allowance for error on the part of other motorists can be the best kind of protection, Waters reminded.

An Approach With Promise
Research indicates that programs such as the defensive driving courses may be the most promising angle of attack for highway safety.

The violation-prone motorists is a small part of the overall problem, deserving intensive attention, said Dr. B. J. Campbell, director of the Highway Safety Research Center at Chapel Hill.

Yet, he added, the great bulk of the problem lies with essentially 'normal' drivers and they must be the target if substantial improvement is achieved.

He cited a study of the driving records of North Carolina's 2½ million licensed drivers over a four-year period. It showed most accidents involved drivers who had no violations in the previous two years.

In fact, the study indicated that if all drivers with three or more violations in two years were kept off the highway for the next two years, the state still would experience 96 per cent of the accidents.

A small minority causes all the accidents each year, Dr. Campbell noted. But, he said, "it's not the same minority each year. Each year, a substantially different group of drivers are involved in accidents."

Improving the human element in the accident equation calls for driver education programs including training in emergency accident avoidance maneuvers, he said.

Target For The '70s

"We should continue our programs for dealing with the small portion of accidents caused by the abnormal drivers, but for our assignment in the '70s, we should move toward programs (and I am afraid they will be expensive ones) to increase the level of driver skills by teaching him to cope with, maneuver out of and otherwise minimize these rare emergency situations he will surely face," Dr. Campbell said.

The defensive driving course curriculum is standardized by the National Safety Council, and used throughout the nation. North Carolina is a pioneer in the program, Waters said.

The motor vehicles department, through the driver education and accident records division, is one of 13 agencies in North Carolina authorized to conduct the course. Trucking firms, industries, and military installations are among the others.

The course is more advanced than the driver training program in high schools, Waters said, and is designed for experienced drivers. It also differs from driver improvement clinics, conducted by the division for motorists who have accumulated "points" for traffic violations. Persons are assigned to attend the clinics; the defensive driving courses are strictly voluntary.

The United States had worked for dual representation of the two Chinas and went down to defeat. The U.S. was deserted by many of its long time allies including Britain, Canada, Denmark, France, Norway and Pakistan.

Our country has been a long time friend and supporter of Chiang Kai-shek's government dating back to the years before World War II. There is no doubt that our support of Nationalist China was as strong as it could be and U.S. Ambassador George Bush was sincere when he said, "The U.N. has crossed a dangerous bridge, the bridge of expulsion . . . I hope the U.N. will not relive this moment of infamy."

Yet there is reason to believe that the United States itself sealed the fate of Nationalist China in the U.N. The wheels perhaps started turning when President Nixon announced his impending visit to the Chinese mainland, in effect recognizing the Reds as the real rulers there, which is, of course, correct.

From that moment, it was not practical to keep up the illusion that Red China did not exist insofar as the UN was concerned. The release from this fantasy was apparently enough to swing many nations over to the belief that Red China was the true claimant to the seat in the UN. There are, after all, few who really believe that the Nationalists will ever reclaim the Chinese mainland.

The battle of who will represent China in the UN is over now, and the big problem for the United States could be how to continue protecting the Nationalist stronghold of Taiwan from take-over by Red China if the giant should decide to move.

Our guess is that this will not be an immediate problem with the thaw in relations now underway between the U.S. and China. It could be of future concern, however, for Red China can now claim that the United Nations recognizes it as the regime for all Chinese territory.

State Money For Athletics?

By JOHN KILGO
It is quite conceivable that the North Carolina legislature will soon be asked to give state financial aid to the high school athletic programs.

The recent death of Charlotte high school football player Phil Hughston has brought the matter to the front page — but the truth is, the Medical Association of North Carolina has been looking into the safety of high school football for months.

The president of the association is Dr. Charles W. Styron of Raleigh. He admits that some things are being discussed concerning high school athletics.

"I have to be careful what I say," Dr. Styron said, "because it involves other people. But there are some facts about high school athletics that need to be brought to the public's attention and we intend to do that."

A committee of the medical association is studying the sports picture and they hope what they find will be a stimulus for these things:

- Improve the equipment worn by high school teams.
- Possibly change some training programs.
- Improve playing fields and practice fields.

At the present time, the state does not underwrite athletic programs in North Carolina's schools. They are financed by gate receipts and in some areas of the state, gate receipts are down and athletic programs have little money on which to operate.

One source in the medical community, who did not want his name used, told me: "A great many doctors feel the state should pay for athletic equipment. Some high schools in the state, because they don't have money, are using equipment that is old and in some instances, is unsafe."

Dr. Styron says: "The matter of the state taking over part of the financing in the field of athletics is something that needs to be discussed. Some people feel very strongly that the state should not underwrite football, others believe the state should. Personally, I think football is here to stay."

The Medical Association has a committee on sports and it has been meeting to discuss what could be done to make high school football safer for the 16,000 North Carolinians who participate. They have already found out that money is a problem with many schools. High school football is costly. It costs about $30 to $36 to insure each player. And it costs about $150 to equip each football player. There seems little question that the legislature will soon be asked to face up to this matter, especially in areas that aren't drawing crowds large enough to foot the bills.

Simon Terrell is executive secretary of the N.C. High School Athletic Association. He knows the medical community is looking into the area of athletics and he's happy it is.

"If the state could help the schools with equipment and facilities," Terrell says, "I believe gate receipts could take care of the rest. We don't get any help from the state for athletics at this time."

Terrell says some areas of the state — like some high schools in Western North Carolina — are doing better than they ever have at the gate. But others are drawing small crowds and the money isn't coming in.

Terrell also says high school coaches might have to review some of their teaching techniques.

"We teach that the first thing you block with is your forehead," Terrell said. "Some of these young high school boys don't have enough neck muscle to do that. We might have to get back to putting the shoulder as the main weapon in blocking and get the head out of it as much as is possible."

It is fact that many doctors in the state feel the State should help finance high school athletic programs.

Celler Wouldn't Do It

The President announced his two nominations for the Supreme Court a little before 8 o'clock Thursday evening, and the wire services began calling around Capitol Hill looking for reaction. The nominees were Lewis F. Powell of Virginia and William Rehnquist of Arizona. How did they strike Emanuel Celler?

The old New York liberal, dean of the House and chairman of its Judiciary Committee, allowed himself a small sign. "On the whole, good." But Powell had been described to him as an arch-conservative, and "I would not have appointed him."

Celler has been misinformed as to Powell — the Virginian is a man of law, not of ideology — but his brief comment invites renewed appreciation of the genius of our constitutional system. "I would not have appointed him." Of course not. But Mr. Celler is not President of the United States. More to the point, neither is Hubert Humphrey; and Mr. Humphrey would not have appointed him either. But Richard Nixon is; and Richard Nixon did.

This is of the essence. On the domestic side, a President's power to nominate members of the Supreme Court is by far his most important power. If he chooses wisely — wisely, that is to say, by his own lights — and if he can get his nominees confirmed, a President can leave his own lengthened shadow on the law. "We live under a Constitution," said Hughes in the famous line, "but the Constitution is what the judges say it is." Precisely. And how do we get our judges? We get them by presidential nomination.

It is curious that so many persons in public life appear to be discovering this truth so belatedly. Two factors may account for the sudden buzz of liberal alarm and conservative delight. The first is Mr. Nixon's candor — one might wish, in this instance, that the President had not been quite so candid. The second is recent history. Mr. Nixon's immediate predecessors — Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson — had the same power, but they seemed never to know what to do with it. None of them was a lawyer. It makes a difference.

Truman thought of honoring his pals. Heaven alone knows what Eisenhower thought. Kennedy and Johnson had two chances each, and they used them alike: Each tapped an old friend, and each paid a political debt — White and Goldberg, Fortas and Marshall. Nixon is thus the first President since Roosevelt to exercise his appointive power fully, knowingly, and deliberately, in the acknowledged hope of achieving particular ends at law.

If such a power were absolute, our system would fail. The judicial branch gradually would fill up with rubber stamps and obedient hacks. But the power is not absolute. It is checked first by the Senate's power to withhold its consent, and

If You Look Back—

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the great magic lantern show.

The brain is its compact theater, and against the vast backdrop of the mind it endlessly portrays the unfolding past. The numbing horrors of before, the enchanting happinesses, live again.

Your own magic lantern show has a lot of scenes in it if you can look back and remember when—

It was the height of young American male wit to holler at a passing pretty girl, "Hi there, dreamboat!"—and then, when she turned around, to tell her, "Not you, shipwreck!"

A fellow felt something was missing all day if he didn't have biscuits for breakfast. Homemade? What other kind was there?

If you needed something fixed around the house, all you had to do was tell one of the kids to run and fetch the hired man. Every neighborhood seemed to have one of these jacks-of-all-trades handy, and you could always get him in an emergency.

Only the town banker's time was so important that he made an appointment to get his hair cut. Everybody else just sat around the barber shop gossiping until it was his turn to climb into the chair.

After a boy got so he could whistle and spit between his teeth, he felt he had life pretty well made.

Although most housewives were reasonably honest in other ways, you could bet that any woman who was admired for a cooking specialty would leave out one of the key flavoring ingredients when asked for the dish's recipe.

Many towns had curfews for children, and they had to be off the streets by 9 o'clock at night.

Governor Gardner will be heard in an address on "Unemployment" in a sound news picture to be exhibited at the State Theatre Thursday and Friday nights. The governor will tell of the movement now on foot throughout the state to bring relief for the hundreds of people suffering from lack of jobs. This report was announced today by T. Y. Walker, theatre manager.

Thad Moore's store at House Station was completely destroyed by fire last night about 12 o'clock. The Greenville fire department responded to the alarm sent in by telephone and when firemen arrived they confined their attention to saving the nearby buildings.

No Cure For Missing Luggage

By ELMER ROESSNER

As somebody has probably said, we can fly a man to the moon but we can't fly a man across the Atlantic and be sure his baggage arrives at the same time. Or, for that matter, from Newark, N.J., to Oakland, Calif.

Barbara Lewis, the writer, recently flew from Newark to Oakland and on arrival found her baggage had gone on to San Francisco. So she took a helicopter to San Francisco and discovered that her baggage had been flown back to Oakland. And a raincoat from which she became separated finally caught up with her on her return to Newark.

I was one of a party of 90 that flew from New York to Seville and bussed to Jerez, Spain, in September. The baggage for three of us did not arrive when we did. An American who has lived 10 years in Spain and who knows his way around volunteered to round up the missing bags. He did and wound up with three bags that didn't belong to us losers.

And baggage keeps going astray. It strays so often that most airlines maintain special departments to find lost baggage. TWA and others have a computer that it uses to find lost luggage, although I am unable to understand how a computer locates a lost suitcase unless it remembers that the last time a suitcase of the same color was lost it was found in Paris and directs the search to Paris.

Most bags are lost and few are stolen. That is proved by the high rate of recovery.

Passengers are probably the main reason for baggage strays. They fail to remove all destination tags, they fail to put name, address and phone number on bags, they leave bags standing in hotel lobbies and at check-in counters, they check it in on wrong flights, and they forget the color of the luggage they bring on the trip.

But airline employees put bags on wrong planes, put bags for a first stop underneath bags for a second. Hang tags get torn off in handling and the help-self system of reuniting luggage and passengers can lead to errors.

On international flights, airline liability is strictly limited. Most travelers don't know it, but when they buy an airline ticket they come under control of the Geneva convention: the airline one, not the war one.

This provides that an airline is liable for only $16.50 a kilo, 2.205 pounds, if baggage is lost, stolen or destroyed.

That's about $450 for 60 pounds of luggage. Additional insurance can be purchased from the airline for 15 cents per $100 value, a low rate that confirms the high rate of recovery of missing luggage. The maximum is $25,000.

Travel agents also sell luggage and flight insurance. And, with the insurance commission and the commissions on selling tickets, a travel agent may make more money on a flight to anywhere than the airline.

Trouble Elsewhere
Missing baggage is not confined to airlines. I have been in the lost and found room in Grand Central Station in New York and seen suitcases, umbrellas, boxes, dolls and other unclaimed articles stacked to the ceiling.

Good rules for all travelers: Buy sturdy luggage to prevent damage to contents. Remove all old destination tags. Make sure name, address and phone number is firmly attached to bag. Insure if value of contents exceeds the airline's liability. Insurance may be a good idea anyway; airlines are not responsible for losses or damage to bags in taxis, buses, hotels, etc.

Wm. Friday Presumed Head Of Multi-Universities

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — No matter what new structure the General Assembly comes up with for higher education, all parties involved in the controversy are assuming that William Friday will head it.

Friday, president of the six-campus University of North Carolina, is considered to be the only man in the state with enough experience to run a multi-campus system.

Also, he has the support of Gov. Bob Scott and UNC trustees, who together will wield controlling power on the initial governing board.

Friday stressed Wednesday that he has not received "formal offers" for any positions in the new system and has not made any "private agreements" to accept a position.

But sources close to both Scott and Friday say Scott has let it be known he wants Friday in the top post and Cameron West, director of the Board of Higher Education, as the second man, or "senior vice president."

Under a restructuring bill favored by Scott and endorsed by both the Senate and House Higher Education Committees, the president would be selected by a 32-member interim committee which would be organized in January. The committee would be composed of 15 members of the UNC board, 15 trustees from the nine regional universities, two members of the Board of Higher Education and Scott as chairman.

UNC forces are backing an amendment that would drop the interim board and create a 200-plus member governing board starting next July 1. It would be composed of all 100 UNC trustees, the 12-member boards from all the regional universities and the Board of Higher Education.

Scott is director of the budget and now appoints members of the regional university boards. He would have greater power over the smaller board. But even with a larger governing board, the combination of UNC and Scott support would give Friday an easy victory.

Legislators and educators questioned about the top post say they have not given the matter much thought and haven't heard anyone but Friday mentioned for the spot.

Toll Roads Said 'Wise Decision'

legislative study of Kentucky's toll roads indicates the decision to build the network of turnpikes in the past decade may have been "one of the wisest decisions ever made."

It cited statistics showing that economic benefits to formerly isolated areas are greater than those accruing to cities along interstate highways.

"I haven't gotten to that bridge," said Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson. Kirby, a chief Scott lieutenant in the restructuring battle, is chairman of the Senate Higher Education Committee.

"It's not my decision anyway," Kirby said, "and I don't think anybody is making his decision on the bill based on who will run the system."

"Everybody seems to think Bill Friday will run it with Cam West as second in command," Kirby said.

West, Friday and Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East

Carolina University, are leaders of the three strongest forces in higher education in the state.

However, West's experience has been mainly in the area of research and planning, not administration. And Jenkins is considered too political and controversial to head a system which is intended to end the infighting, empire-building and jockeying for favors that goes on among the state's universities.

Most observers feel that a man brought in from outside the system or the state wouldn't know enough of the "folklores, traditions, fears and feuds" among the campuses to get the new system off to a steady start.

The first president of the new system will have to be a diplomat and top administrator. Although the board will have strong budgetary and program authority, too much ax wielding in the initial stages of reorganization would send the universities back to the legislature to pressure for more changes.

Friday has been UNC president for 15 years.

He graduated from North Carolina State in textiles, received a law degree from UNC Law School, served as assistant dean of students at North Carolina State and UNC-Chapel Hill, became assistant to UNC President Gordon Gray in 1950 and then secretary of the Consolidated University. Last April he became chairman of the Association of American Universities.

The nationally recognized educator is noted for his low-profile approach to problems, coolness, judgment, intellectual attainment, humor and organizational abilities.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—The United States Air Force Academy 10 miles north of here attracts more than 1.5 million visitors annually and has become Colorado's top tourist destination, reports Continental Airlines.

Visitors can take a bus for a narrated tour of the grounds and the major buildings or drive their own cars around the ultramodern campus.

Antonia Dalapas Recital Sunday

Miss Antonia Dalapas, new faculty member teaching voice in the School of Music at East Carolina University, will be the featured attraction in the annual autumn recital to be given Sunday afternoon at 3:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium on campus.

Backed by the ECU Symphony Orchestra, Miss Dalapas will sing Richard Strauss' "Four Last Songs."

The daughter of Greek born parents, Miss Dalapas was born in Maine. She received both the BM and MM degrees in voice and opera at the New England Conservatory in Boston, where she studied with Boris Goldovsky, Sarah Caldwell and Thomas Phillips.

In Boston she was a regular performer in concerts held in the Isabelle Gardner Museum. She also created the leading role in the American premiere production of Mozart's "La Finta Semplice" in a television production of opera scenes with Boris Boldovsky.

In her career of singing and teaching, Miss Dalapas has performed regularly as a soloist in opera, oratorio and recital concerts. Prior to coming to East Carolina University, she was on the faculty of Eastern Washington College.

The orchestra on Sunday will also perform two selections — a suite from Handel's "Water Music," and Dvorak's "Symphony No. 8 in G Major."

Admission to the symphony concert is free and the public is invited to attend.

College football players had to pay their own tuition, just like everyone else.

Found Props In Goodwill Shop

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A local theater group, faced with recreating a Georgia home circa 1945 for the production of "The Member of the Wedding," found almost everything it wanted at a local Goodwill shop.

second by the device of life tenure. The power is checked also by public opinion and by political pressure.

When all the checks and balances work perfectly, we get to the point we have reached just now. Powell and Rehnquist are superlatively qualified for service on the Court. I have known Powell for 30 years as a great lawyer and good citizen; he is the best Virginia has to offer, and by the repeated professional judgment of his colleagues, perhaps the best the bar has to offer. Rehnquist is possessed of a formidable intellect; he is as profound a student of the Constitution as any Sam Ervin or Abe Fortas, and he is only 47. He will grow.

Nixon's own judgment is that his two nominees share his judicial philosophy. "I would imagine that it may be charged that they are conservatives." But surely it is Mr. Nixon's right deliberately to choose conservatives, just as it was Roosevelt's right deliberately to name liberals. This is the way the system is supposed to work. Mr. Humphrey would not have named Powell and Rehnquist — or Burger or Blackmun either. But Mr. Humphrey didn't win. Wait till next time.

The President has acted responsibly in every sense of the word. One devoutly hopes the Senate will respond in kind.

Some others feel football should be discontinued completely. That is a minority view. Nevertheless, the subject of financing — at least to some extent — high school athletic programs, is something that will be thrown at the legislature in the very near future.

Rehnquist Recalls Law Clerks Slanted To The Left

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court law clerks, as a group, are exuberant, lean to the "left" and unconsciously slant the material they prepare for the justices. This was the recollection in 1957 of nominee William H. Rehnquist, who had worked for the late justice Robert H. Jackson for 18 months.

"Some of the tenets of the 'liberal' point of view which commanded the sympathy of a majority of the clerks I knew," Rehnquist said then in a U.S. News & World Report article, "were: extreme solicitude for the claims of Communists and other criminal defendants, expansion of federal power at the expense of state power, great sympathy toward any government regulation of business...."

Then 33, Rehnquist was working as a lawyer in Phoenix. He had been a law clerk to Jackson from January 1952 through July 1953. Now an assistant attorney general, he and attorney Lewis F. Powell Jr. of Richmond, Va., have been nominated by President Nixon to fill two court vacancies.

While a Justice Department press officer said Rehnquist would not discuss his current views, three of his contemporaries were willing to speak of theirs, and they conflicted with Rehnquist's impressions.

Newton Minow, the former Federal Communications Commission chairman, was a clerk to the late Chief Justice Fred Vinson; Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., clerked for the late Justice Sherman Minton, and Prof. Alexander M. Bickel of Yale worked for the late Justice Felix Frankfurter.

Had they found the clerks, generally, to be exuberant, leftward leaning and unconsciously slanting material?

"Certainly not," said Minow in a telephone interview from Chicago, where he is a lawyer. "I have a very high regard for Bill Rehnquist's intellect and think he is a very competent lawyer, but I don't share that view of what the law clerks thought."

Minow added: "Moreover, I think the whole question of whether law clerks influence justices is greatly exaggerated. We never had that much influence with the chief justice (Vinson). He'd listen to what we said but he'd decide it himself."

Mikva said: "I hope we were exuberant. I certainly don't know of any clerk that slanted the material."

Bickel, who countered Rehnquist's theory in print at the time, said: "I thought it was wrong, an alarmist view, chiefly because I couldn't see how the justices were influenced by their clerks. He didn't have any experience turning the Justice's (Jackson) head and I certainly did not have that experience with Frankfurter, and they both were conservative justices."

Rehnquist wrote: "The specter of the law clerk as a legal Rasputin, exerting an important influence on the cases actually decided by the Court, may be discarded at once. No published biographical materials dealing with any of the Justices suggest any such influence. I certainly learned of none during the time I spent as a clerk."

However, Rehnquist contended, clerks have considerable "unconscious" influence on the justices in the way they prepare summaries of the thousands of petitions for hearings that come to the court.

"I do not believe," he wrote, "it can be denied that the possibility for influence by the clerks exists in this realm of the court's activity." Describing the clerks, Rehnquist said: "Some in their youthful exuberance permit their notions to engender a cynical disrespect for the capabilities of anyone, including justices, who may disagree with them."

Assessing clerks generally, he said he found their political cast to be to the "left" of either the nation or the court.

"I cannot speak for any clerk other than myself in stating as a fact that unconscious bias did creep into his work," Rehnquist wrote. "Looking back, I must admit that I was not guiltless on this score, and I greatly doubt if many of my fellow clerks were much less guiltless than I. And where such bias did have any effect, because of the political outlook of the group of clerks that I knew, its direction would be to the political 'left'."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Another Disneyland-type amusement park is scheduled to be built on a 2,900-acre site just south of Charlotte, N.C., on the North Carolina-South Carolina border, the American Automobile Association (AAA) reports. Called "Carowinds," the recreational complex is scheduled to open June 1, 1972.

Bethel Gets Share Of Demonstrating, Arrests

BETHEL — Demonstrations similar to marches staged in Ayden and in Farmville over the past two months protesting the August 6 shooting of a black man by a Highway Patrolman, were organized here for the first time yesterday and resulted in 63 arrests.

Two marches were staged here as protest leaders moved into this Northern Pitt County town of 1,900.

First of the protest marches began between 12 Noon and 12:30 when about 90 blacks marched from the old Bethel Union School campus — now used as a municipal recreation facility — to the town hall. There they met briefly with town officials — including James Dupree who has been mayor only three days — and were told to disband. The marchers continued their protest and 43 were arrested on charges of parading without a permit.

The second of the demonstrations came about 5:10 p.m. It too, originated at the formerly all-black school, and 20 arrests were made.

Golden Frinks, field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was in Bethel for both marches but did not take part in the demonstrations. He has served as an organizer for protests in the county over the past two months and has been arrested during several marches in Ayden.

Frinks termed yesterday's protests a "jail crowd-out". Earlier marches, he said, were "jail-ins" but added that since so many demonstrators have been arrested, with many charges over the past week still in jail, yesterday's demonstrations were crowd-outs.

More than 500 arrests have been made in connection with the protests over the past two months. Most of the arrests have taken place in Ayden.

Frinks said more arrests could be expected today as efforts are made to intensify the protest movement. He indicated the protests would continue until the highway patrolman involved in the shooting is dismissed from the Patrol.

Abernathy Aide Speaks

AYDEN — Bernard Lee, executive assistant to Ralph David Abernathy, national president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference spoke to a rally here last night.

Lee said this morning that he would confer with Abernathy later today and will recommend at least two national SCLC staff members be sent to Pitt County. He also said that Abernathy himself will definitely return to the county within the next two weeks.

Abernathy, who spoke in Ayden last week, promised to return to head a movement begun two months ago after a Negro farm worker was shot by a Highway Patrolman during a struggle for the officers pistol.

According to Lee, Abernathy will return "hopefully next Tuesday or Wednesday", and indicated his president's arrival would not be for a one-day visit but said the SCLC leader would direct the protest movement here.

Farmville Mart Volume Drops

FARMVILLE — Volume sales on the Farmville tobacco market was much lighter yesterday than Tuesday, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Quality declined and caused the average sale price to drop slightly, he said. Increased volume of less desirable grades and damaged tobacco was responsible for most declines. Top quality grades of leaf continued to be in strong demand by all export buyers. Stabilization receipts were lighter due to the marketing of fewer cutters and lugs.

Some 552,499 pounds were sold for $427,725.17 for an average of $77.42 per hundred pounds. The seasonal total so far is 19,368,315 pounds for $15,377,887, averaging $79.40, Williams said.

Michigan Sees Tourist Boom

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Michigan's travel and tourist business is booming this year if patronage at the state's nine highway travel information centers is any indication, the Michigan Highway Department reports.

During the first seven months of this year, 544,000 visitors stopped at the information centers, topping the previous seven-month record of 455,000 in 1969.

Close Vote For Common Mart

By ARTHUR GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Political insiders predict House of Commons approval tonight of Britain's entry into the Common Market by less than 50 votes. Such a small margin would mean months of trouble ahead for the necessary enabling legislation, and possibly defeat of some of it.

The House of Lords was to vote first, followed by the vote in Commons, where six days of debate have underlined the splits in both the ruling Conservative party and the opposition Laborites.

Ask Help In Wage Boost

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Chairman Charles F. Myers Jr. says Burlington Industries, largest textile firm in the United States, has asked the newly formed Pay Board to approve a wage increase for its 75,000 employees.

Myers declined Wednesday to go into exact figures on the proposed increase. He said they would vary with the type of job. He said the company expected a ruling in 30 to 60 days, and the newness of the board and its procedures would not make any pay increase practical before Jan. 1.

Burlington was the first large textile firm to increase wages last year, initiating the industry's eighth annual round of pay boosts. Myers said he did not know whether Burlington's proposed new increases would start another round.

Textile industry wage increases in the past have averaged between 5 percent and 6 percent. Wages for production workers in Southern textile plants average between $2.50 and $2.60 an hour. The Textile Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, says this is about $1 less than the national level for manufacturing workers. Most Southern textile plants are not unionized.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After nearly seven years of failure, Pentagon officials are under new top-level pressure to recruit more blacks into the National Guard and reserves.

But they say they face a selling job to overcome black indifference.

Dr. T.C. Marrs, the Pentagon's reserve Chief, promised more aggressive recruiting of blacks and other minorities. But he said a "degree of receptivity" is needed from blacks.

Others have put it more bluntly.

Maj. Gen. Francis S. Greenleaf, head of the Pentagon's National Guard Bureau, complained recently that "we just plain can't motivate minority groups, especially blacks, to want to join us."

"We have been struggling to achieve a white man's objective and it is unlikely we will ever achieve this goal until it becomes a black man's goal," Greenleaf said.

The new push was signalled by an order from Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard requiring reserve authorities "to actively recruit qualified individuals of all races, creeds and ethnic groups," so that "all units shall generally reflect the character of the population in the unit's recruiting area."

which represent a bad bargain for Britain.

Party manager resorted to furious political arm-twisting trying to get recalcitrant members to toe the party line.

"This place is like a torture chamber," one veteran commented.

Heath had hoped for a victory margin of 100 votes in the 630-member House of Commons, and anything less than 50 could turn out to be too frail for his comfort at home or his credibility abroad.

In the year ahead, if the initial vote is favorable, a stack of enabling laws must be passed, and Heath cannot be sure of continuing support from the rebel Laborites.

Under the Parliamentary system, a government is expected to quit if it loses an important Commons vote, and a defeat on one of the major Common Market votes in the next year could bring Heath down.

The leaders of both Conservative and Labor parties are committed to lead Britain into the Common Market, believing that this is the only way the nation can play a decisive role in Europe again. But Harold Wilson, leader of the Labor party, contends that the terms the Conservatives have negotiated are not good enough.

The Common Market bands together France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg in a customs union in which the main barriers to the free flow of internal trade have been dismantled.

Three successive British governments have tried to join. Twice President Charles de Gaulle vetoed them, suspecting the British wanted to come in as agents of the Americans. When he was succeeded by President Georges Pompidou, the French veto disappeared. Last spring Heath came to an understanding with him that at last opened the gates.

Shakeup Of Cunard Line Is Paying Off

By JOHN HENRY
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. operations of Britain's famed Cunard ship line are being run these days by a former advertising executive who says selling ships is like selling soap.

The comparison reflects a pragmatic, unsentimental approach which seems to hold sway now at Cunard, whose roots in transatlantic passenger shipping date 130 years.

The approach is personified by the line's American-born president in this country and Canada, Richard B. Patton, a 41-year-old Harvard Business School graduate who has held important marketing posts with H.J. Heinz and Trans World Airlines and served time in between with New York's Ogilvy and Mather advertising agency.

"The only difference between package goods like soap and a service industry," Patton says, "is that package goods come off the assembly line and nothing usually can go wrong between the factory and consumer."

"But in a service industry like ours, one frown can spell the difference between success and failure. Other than that there's not much difference."

Patton, who became president a year ago, hired two marketing men from Procter & Gamble, the nation's largest soapmaker.

For Cunard it has been a case of change or die, in the opinion of many industry observers. As jets siphoned off large hunks of the line's transatlantic trade, profits vanished. And Cunard Line lost money every year between 1961 and 1970 except one.

In 1965, a new management team assumed control of the line's parent, the Cunard Steam-Ship Co. Ltd., and proceeded to make sweeping changes in passenger ship operations.

The new team pared the line's passenger fleet from seven ships to three and in the process retired the illustrious Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth.

Cunard cut the number of passenger offices in North America from 29 to a lone set of offices in New York City.

The line also departed from tradition by naming Patton, an American, to the presidency of its North American operations. The job had previously been filled by a British executive in Southampton, England, where Cunard is based.

"Under the old setup it must have been hard for the company to keep tabs on its U.S. operations," Patton says. "I sometimes have trouble keeping tabs in New York on what's going on in Chicago."

Despite all the radical surgery, Cunard was unable to get solidly into the black. And last August, Trafalgar House Investments, a British construction and real estate firm, took over.

Patton flatly predicts the line will turn a profit next year. Bookings for the Queen Elizabeth 2's winter cruise season are running 3½ times ahead of last year, he says, and strong hopes are being pinned to the new 15,000-ton Cunard Adventurer, which will go into service late this year.

FIFTH SUNDAY SING

Trick-Or-Treat Crowd Advised Observe Basic Safety Rules

Young Goblins and Gremlins and Ghosts, as well as Witches, are cautioned by Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon to observe some basic safety rules while trick-or-treating for Halloween this weekend.

Chief Cannon said today that the suggestions are designed to make for a safer and more enjoyable Halloween, for everyone.

According to the chief, children should begin their trick-or-treat outings early and be finished before total darkness.

He noted that children should stay in their own neighborhoods where they are known and where they know the residents.

Home-owners are encouraged, Chief Cannon said, to leave their porch or yard lights on. He said the lights would make it safer for children walking, and in addition, might help prevent vandalism.

Children should walk only on sidewalks and not run or walk across yards or in the street. According to the police officials, trick-or-treaters running across yards may fall and be hurt on obstructions such as small bushes or other items in the yards.

Light colored clothing or costumes should be worn, Cannon emphasized. He said, although children should be cautious and not venture into the street, light colored costumes and clothing will make the variety of Halloween monsters more visible to passing motorists. Flashlights could also be carried for safety.

The chief also cautioned against children wearing face masks that restrict vision as part of Halloween costumes. Anything that restricts a youngster's vision is potentially dangerous, the chief explained, and can lead to an accident.

Chief Cannon emphasized that children should visit only homes of people in their own neighborhood and said youngsters should not accept gifts of candy or other treats from persons they do not know. He also said children should remain outside homes and not enter houses of persons they do not know well while waiting for trick-or-treat gifts.

Parents are encouraged to go on trick-or-treat outings with younger children, the chief offered.

He also suggested that children not go out alone, but that Halloween monsters travel in at least groups of two, for safety's sake.

Chief Cannon added that

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Thursday, October 28, 1971—9
children should not carry lighted lanterns. He explained that place of candles thus preventing candles . . . even in Jack-O- small flash-lights can be used in the danger of fire.

Agnew Defends Greek Politics

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging that Greece has become "a favorite whipping boy" of some Americans, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has challenged critics of the Athens dictatorship to demand democracy in nations like Communist China, too.

But Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, countered that the United States is not supplying military assistance to Peking, so the situation is not parallel.

The Senate is considering legislation to cut off U.S. military aid to Greece as a rebuke to the authoritarian government there, unless President Nixon rules continued assistance to be in the overriding interest of U.S. security. The State Department has expressed disappointment at the slow pace of steps toward representative rule in Greece.

Agnew said in Athens he found a spirit of patriotism and unity in Greece, the nation of his forebears, during the visit that ended Oct. 23. He complimented the government for progress in health, education, welfare and development in rural Greece. He gave no public indication of dissatisfaction with the Athens government or its undisclosed timetable for representative rule.

"Certainly, we've all indicated the hope that Greece will move back toward a democratic form of government," Agnew said in his office across the street from the White House. He said Prime Minister George Papadopoulos has declared that to be his objective.

Fulbright, interviewed at the Capitol, said the vice president's statements about Greece "don't seem to me to be consistent with what I understand to be the policy of the government, with regard to pressure for democratic government."

Agnew said it seems unusual that "here we are focusing in on the details of the internal workings of another government, one of our most important allies in NATO ... and yet we hear none of these exploratory urgings being directed to anybody else...."

Agnew said: "It just seems to me that Greece is a favorite whipping boy of certain opinion in this country."

Jackson To Make Entry In November

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential hopeful Sen. Henry M. Jackson, hopes to gain substantial ground on his opponents late next month with his formal entry into the White House race and a nationwide television address.

The veteran Washington State lawmaker is planning to announce his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination during the third week of November, probably the 17th or 18th, sources close to the campaign say. He then hopes to go on television that night with a coast-to-coast broadcast, they added.

Jackson's formal declaration will make him the fourth Democrat officially in the race to oppose President Nixon in his almost-certain bid for re-election next year.

Sens. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., and Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., have already announced they are going for nomination.

But Jackson, considered more conservative than all three, is more concerned about the more centrist and much better known contenders, Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, Maine, and Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn.

"Jackson's a hot property and can do better against Nixon than any other Democrat, if we can just make him known to enough voters," to do well in next spring's primary elections, one Jackson strategist said.

Lin Piao Makes Magazine Cover

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese Communist party Vice Chairman Lin Piao, rumored throughout most of the world in recent weeks as having lost power or been down-graded, appears with Chairman Mao Tse-tung on the cover of a magazine just received from China.

They appear in a full-color photo and the caption refers to Lin Piao as Mao's "close comrade in arms and vice chairman."

Although the magazine probably was printed some weeks ago, top Western government China experts say its export from China and being placed on sale here Thursday by official Communist outlets strongly indicates that Lin Piao still holds power as heir designate.

the airport.

Nixon visited Charlotte briefly Oct. 15 to participate in an appreciation day for evangelist Billy Graham, a native of Charlotte and a friend of the President.

Scott also was quoted as saying it was "overdone ... ridiculous," when the Secret Service detained him at Charlotte's coliseum following Nixon's speech there despite Scott's protests that he was supposed to join Nixon in a return motorcade to the airport.

Scott also said the Secret Service prevented him from flying a state flag on the governor's car in a motorcade from the airport following Nixon's arrival in Charlotte, a city of about 275,000 near the South Carolina line.

"We thought we would use the state flag on my car for the parade..." Scott said, "but the Secret Service said we couldn't do that. I said, 'Look, the President is in North Carolina. That's our flag, not one of a foreign government, and what's wrong with flying it?'"

"They said there would be no flags in the parade except on the President's car—protocol, you know. So it wasn't flown."

The governor also was reportedly critical of the Federal Aviation Administration, which he said had told him that the Scott plane would have to arrive at least an hour before Nixon's plane at the Charlotte airport.

"I said, 'Look, I'm the governor of North Carolina. Are you telling me that I can't land in my own state?'" I said, "Now I'm up here (in his plane returning from a meeting in Atlanta) and I intend to get down and I don't have a parachute, so we're going to land when we get there."

"He (an unnamed FAA employee) told me that if we landed after the specified time they would take the pilot's license."

And I said, 'Go ahead and take it. I'll give him another job.'

"I also told him that I was the governor of the state the President was coming to, and that if necessary I could order highway crews to get construction under way on every street leading into the airport. Anyway, I intended to land in Charlotte with the usual safety clearance."

Scott said his plane landed 50 minutes before the arrival of the presidential plane.

Scott described his treatment at the airport this way:

"I was waiting near the ramp with Dr. and Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Nixon to say goodbye and shake hands with the President. He had come over to speak to the National Guardsmen and then Mrs. Nixon wandered off a bit to speak to someone else. As the President started back toward his plane I moved over to get close to him and the Secret Service agents pushed me aside twice."

Bound Over

Ten defendants charged with a series of bombings in the Ayden area were bound over for trial at the next sitting of Superior Court following their preliminary hearings Wednesday in District Court.
District Judge Charles H. Whedbee ruled that probably cause for trial had been shown in the hearings and ordered the cases to be heard before a jury in Superior Court.

Judge Whedbee, who made his ruling in closed session after testimony was concluded in the preliminary hearings, ordered bonds for the ten defendants continued in the amounts previously set.

Indictment Hits Standard Oil

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted Standard Oil Co. of California on charges of polluting San Francisco Bay with an oil spill last January which blackened beaches and killed thousands of birds.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. said Wednesday the indictment charges violation of the 1899 Refuse Act, which has a maximum penalty for corporations of $500 to $2,500 in fines.
Browning reported the indictment also names a subsidiary of the firm, Chevron Shipping Co., operator of two tankers which collided near the Golden Gate Bridge in a dense fog Jan. 18, spewing 840,000 gallons of heavy fuel oil into the water.

The oil slick trapped wildlife and fouled bay tidelands and Pacific beaches over a 50-mile area. An estimated 6,000 water fowl trapped by the bunker oil died.

Standard paid the cost of cleaning up the spill, a job involving company employees and hundreds of volunteers.

The company said it has not decided how to plead to the federal charge.

Adjusters Study Peanut Crop Damage

A group of adjusters from the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation is meeting in Pitt County to determine the extent of damage done to the peanut crops by recent heavy rainfall.

Julian E. Mann, director of the Raleigh Contract Center of FCIC and his associate, R. T. (Bud) Forrest of Greene County, have been meeting here with adjusters from all over the state to estimate the damage done to the local peanut crops.

Mann said the local peanut crops were about three-fourths dug when Hurricane Ginger hit Pitt County and surrounding areas. Since that time, record-breaking rainfall has caused extensive damage.

"Those who have gotten their peanuts out since the hurricane may still receive some insurance payment because they will not receive full production cost," Mann explained. "The rain last weekend seemed to seal the failure."

"The peanuts in the field now that have been dug and in wind row and those that have not been dug are almost a total loss," Mann added.

FCIC has the responsibility of deciding on claims that are paid to policyholders. Contracts are signed with the growers, particularly tobacco, peanut, corn and soybean growers in this area, guaranteeing them returns on all or part of production cost if they fail to make it because of any kind of weather — drought, wind, freeze or excessive rain.

Mann explained that FCIC will probably pay peanut growers in North Carolina and Virginia more than $1 million in insurance claims to help make up for the loss.

"The peanut farmers in Pitt County have more than $1 million insurance coverage while Martin County peanut growers have more than $700,000 coverage," explained Mann.

"We will have to see what the farmers receive for the peanuts already marketed before we can pay them for their loss," Mann noted. "We will put money in the hands of farmers to help pay their debts for the crops."

Mann added, "I feel the peanut damage will hurt our economy, it is a big economic thing for peanuts."

"Pitt County has the largest FCIC office here in Greenville, because most of the growers in Pitt have their tobacco insured. Pitt's tobacco average is the largest of any flue-cured area in the world," Mann added.

"Clayton Warren of near Robersonville had harvested part of his peanuts when the hurricane came. The remaining peanuts cannot be harvested because of water damage. There are many farmers in the area in the same situation," continued Mann. Warren had FCIC insurance.

Mann added, "Unfortunately we could not convince the corn and soybean producers they needed FCIC insurance. We do not have as many producers insured in these crops as we would like. They didn't have the foresight to obtain our insurance."

The extent of damage in the Pitt County area cannot be determined until the study has been completed and crops have been examined carefully.

Regional Plant Plans Discussed

AYDEN — Representatives from local, state and federal government agencies met here Wednesday night to review progress and discuss future courses of action toward implementing a regional waste treatment plant that would serve the towns of Winterville, Ayden and Grifton.

In addition to serving the sewage disposal needs of the three towns, the system would be designed to handle anticipated industrial, commercial and residential growth in the area stretching from Pitt Technical Institute to the Lenoir County line.

It was pointed out Wednesday night that apparently the entire project hinges on the outcome of next May's statewide referendum authorizing $150 million in water and sewer bonds.

The three communities, however, were urged to begin laying the groundwork now for such a system so that they would be among the first in line for funds should the referendum pass.

According to representatives of the North Carolina Local Government Commission, some 80 per cent of the financing for such a system could be made available through federal and state grants, assuming the water and sewer bond issues passes in May.

It was decided that each of the three communities involved would appoint representatives to serve on a committee to draw up a presentation for the purpose of informing the Board of County Commissioners on the plan. The committee will request a meeting with the board within the next week or ten days, it was announced.

Rose, Bears Tangle In Last Road Game

Rose High School's Rampants play their second game of the week Friday night, and their last road game of the year.

The Rampants travel to New Bern to take on the victory-hungry Bears, who hold a 2-6 record, the same as the Rampants.

The two teams have played five common foes, but little could be predicted from the outcomes. At times, the Bears have done better than the Rampants, and at times, worse.

About the only thing that can be said for sure is that a tough battle is expected. Rose, by winning, could insure itself of a fourth place finish in the league, while a loss would tie them with New Bern for the spot.

The five common opponents include Rocky Mount, Washington, Jacksonville, Wilson and New Hanover. Both Rose and New Bern lost to all of these except Washington, over which both posted wins.

Rose whipped the Pam Pack, 19-0, early in the year, while New Bern took a 13-6 win two weeks later.

Against Rocky Mount, New

Bern fell, 26-12, while the Rampants bowed only in the final seconds, 12-9. Jacksonville blitzed Rose, 41-0, but New Bern fell by only 45-26. Wilson ripped the Bears, 40-0, while Rose battled in a 28-7 loss. New Hanover, last week, popped New Bern, 32-0, while Rose fell to the Wildcats three weeks ago, 23-12, in a game that wasn't over until the closing seconds.

New Bern's only other win came over Hoggard in the opening game, 6-0. They have also lost to West Carteret, 14-6 and Goldsboro, 14-0.

Rose comes into the game after Monday night's poor performance against Raleigh's Enloe High School. The Eagles soared past Rose, 22-8, but the story wasn't in the score.

Enloe picked up over 400 yards in the game, but managed only three scores. Rose was held to just over 100 yards by the Enloe defense, and moved the ball only once, in their touchdown drive that opened the second half.

It was really the second half that was so devastating to the Rampants. After their touchdown drive, they kicked off to Enloe, and saw the ball only briefly after that. They ran just six plays in the remaining minutes of the game, which included most of the third and all of the fourth period.

"Lee Cherry played a fine game for us," Coach Dave Bumgarner said. "Our linebackers got cut off, however, and this is what killed us."

Bumgarner had much praise for the two running backs of Enloe, Jim Bass and Julius Branch, who accounted for over 360 yards in the contest alone. "They did a tremendous job," Bumgarner added, however, that he thought the Rose defense did dig in and play a fine game when they got inside the 20. "When you look at the statistics and see that they scored only three times, you can see that we did do a good job when it counted," he said.

He noted that Cherry was being double-teamed most of the evening and still managed to make a number of tackles. "But they were isolating everyone else, and it is hard to bring down those two runners with just one man. Enloe blocked real well all night. They didn't pass up people to go for someone else."

Bumgarner praised Enloe as being one of the best drilled teams the Rampants have faced this year. "They had only one major penalty against them, along with several procedure ones," he pointed out.

But he also noted that the Rampants didn't have a penalty call against them all night long.

The Rampants came out of the game with several injuries, but Bumgarner expects most of the players to be ready to go on Friday night. "There are one or two we don't know the status of yet," he said.

Bumgarner named Cherry as the Athlete of the Week for his play against Enloe.

Turning to the New Bern contest, Bumgarner feels that the team will have to be at its best to come up with a victory.

The Bears run from the Texas Wishbone offense, and run the veer quite well. "Joe Edwards, their fullback, is one of the leading scorers in the league," Bumgarner said. "He didn't play when we scouted them, however, and we wonder if he might have been injured."

Quarterback Gene Austin is a good thrower, who uses the veer offense to good advantage, throwing on the run. The Bears also have a good punting game, averaging over 40 yards per kick.

"The team feels it can win," Bumgarner said. "It should be a real tough game."

Following Friday night's game with New Bern, which has kickoff time set for 8 p.m., the Rampants have one more game remaining.

That comes next Thursday night at 7:30 in Ficklen Stadium, when the Rampants entertain Goldsboro.

Goldsboro, meanwhile, is involved in a key game this weekend, playing host to unbeaten Wilson Fike. The contest will decide the Division II championship.

Goldsboro lost its first game of the year last Friday night, as E. E. Smith of Fayetteville took a 20-0 victory over them. Wilson meanwhile, was beating Durham Hillsdale, 23-8.

Rocky Mount lost to Durham, 32-17, while Kinston claimed its second victory, 7-0 over Washington.

Besides the Rose-New Bern and Goldsboro-Wilson contests, Kinston is at Rocky Mount to round out the slate.

Terps, Keydets Battle For Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia Military Institute's football team might be getting back into the "misery loves company" class Saturday when the Keydets invade Maryland for a scrap with a team no better off than they are.

The Keydets have lost five straight since opening the season with a 27-3 Southern Conference victory over Davidson, while Maryland has won just once in seven starts.

Both teams are coming off games last Saturday they had a good chance to win.

The Keydets led Southern Conference champion William and Mary 7-6 after three quarters but finally went down 12-7 as a result of a bad kick that set up the Indians' winning touchdown. The Terps were in front of Florida 23-20 after three quarters but lost 27-23.

Maryland has scored more points already this season than it did all last year, but the Terps have been prone to mistakes. VMI so far has intercepted seven enemy passes and recovered 17 fumbles.

In Wednesday's practices, defensive back Jeff Varnadoe, end Allen Melton and linebacker Jeff Martin received "Mad Dog" awards from Citadel coach Red Parker.

The awards were for outstanding play in last week's 52-35 victory over Chattanooga.

Varnadoe's performance in the game earned him Southern Conference defensive player of the week honors.

The Furman Paladins went through a two-hour workout in preparation for Saturday night's encounter with the East Carolina Pirates at Greenville, N.C.

Furman coach Bob Knight described the Pirates as a big, strong, physical team with a good ground attack. He said many people have underestimated the ECU passing game.

Fullback Mike Teubner and quarterback Walt Chalkley were selected Wednesday as Virginia Military's captains for the Keydets game at Maryland Saturday.

Richmond's football Spiders worked on kicking, blocking assignments and their pass rush Wednesday in preparation for Saturday night's game at Southern Mississippi.

Sixtieth Place Is Important One

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — There's a quietly desperate battle going on deep in the ranks of golf's touring pros.

It involves positions on the official money list—not the well-publicized fight for No. 1 between Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer—but the struggle for 60th place, the cutoff spot for determining exemptions for next year's tour.

The ones who don't make it and aren't otherwise qualified have to join the ranks of the Monday qualifiers, the scores and scores of players who must fight for a handful of spots on the Mondays preceding the start of each regular PGA event.

"That's probably the toughest thing we have to do out here, those Mondays," said Jimmy Jamieson, who made it last year and is in danger of losing his spot this season. Jamieson made his comment before teeing off today in the first round of the $135,000 Sahara Invitational Open Golf Tournament.

"Getting away from Mondays sure smooths out your putting stroke," said Bill Garrett, an exempt player this season but almost certain to drop back into the rabbit ranks next year. "You can go into a tournament with an entirely different frame of mind."

The make-up of the 144-man field for this event, one of the last five on the schedule this season and thus one of the last five chances the players have of securing their exemptions, is indicative.

Only five of the top 10 money winners are on hand, with the rest taking a break or competing abroad.

But of the 25 players grouped between Nos. 50 and 75 on the list, generally speaking the ones in the fight for the exemptions, all but one are playing. The only absentee from that list is No. 67, Jon Lotz. He tried to make it but failed to qualify.

A major turnover is certain. At least 18 of the top 60 from a year ago are in jeopardy.

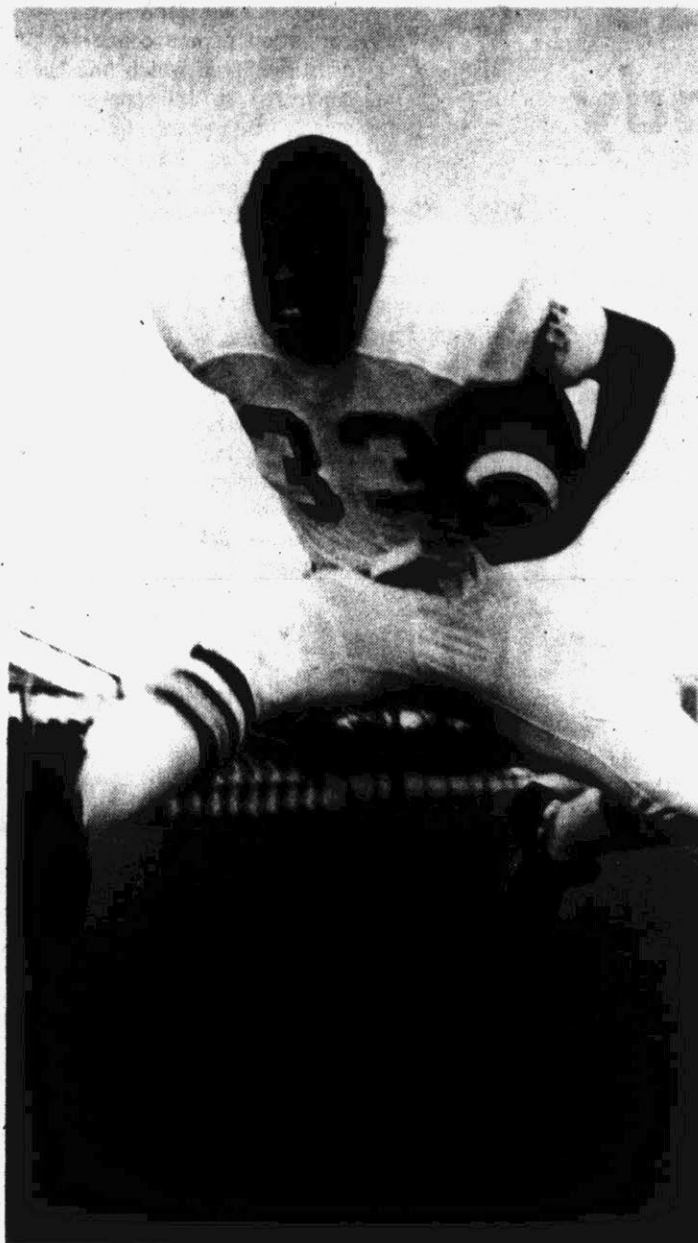

Jim Colbert is the man in the hot seat, holding down the 60th position. He has $33,045 and it appears that it will take a minimum of $37,000 to make it.

Among some of the veterans who are in great danger, who would almost have to win a tournament to make it, are dapper Doug Sanders, former Masters champ Bob Golby, former Western Open titlist Hugh Royer and Howie Johnson.

Tony Jacklin, Orville Moody and Al Geiberger also are almost certain to miss, but all former U.S. Open and PGA National champions hold lifetime exemptions.

Duke Defenders To Miss Contest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Mike McGee says it is doubtful that Duke defensive starters John Ricca and Paul Johnstone, who were injured in the 15-14 loss to Navy last week, will play against Georgia Tech Saturday.

However, the coach added that another player on the defensive unit, Lanny Murdock, also injured against Navy, probably would start although he has been limited in drills.

Elsewhere around Atlantic Coast Conference football camps Wednesday:

Injured running back Jimmy Lacey is Virginia's only doubtful starter for the game at North Carolina State. The Virginia Cavaliers have lost 12 games in a row to the Wolfpack.

But N.C. State coach Al Michaels told his weekly news conference that what happened in year's past doesn't mean a thing to either team. He said if his team thinks too much about "we've beat them 12 straight," it could lose this time.

Michaels said the Wolfpack was not letting down despite its 1-6 record this season, the same as Virginia's.

He said his players want to win, but they are "making mistakes and paying the price for it."

At North Carolina, linebacker Jim Webster, who suffered a neck injury in preseason practice, was running in full gear. "Jim looked like his old self," said coach Billy Dooley.

Clemson coach Hootie Ingram said, "It was a good mid-week practice" after his Tigers polished the game plan for the home game against Wake Forest. Offensive and defensive units rehearsed goal-line work.

Sickle Cells Ellis Problem?

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dock Ellis, the hottest pitcher in the National League during the first half of the season, says his second half collapse could have been caused by sickle cell anemia.

The Pittsburgh Pirate star told a Senate subcommittee Wednesday he has suffered from the genetic disease since he was 8 years old.

Sickle cell anemia, which occurs predominantly among blacks, causes fatigue, weakness and recurrent episodes in pain, according to Dr. Roland B. Scott of Howard University.

"It's pointed out that I have a chronic arm problem," said Ellis. "I don't know if it can be caused by sickle cell anemia."

Ellis and John Henry Johnson, former running back of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League, were among those testifying before the subcommittee on public health.

The subcommittee is holding a hearing on a bill introduced by Sen. John V. Tunney D-Calif., which would authorize a pilot diagnostic program in the District of Columbia for prevention and treatment of sickle cell anemia.

"At the age of eight, I found blood in my urine," Ellis told the subcommittee. "When I was in junior high school, I was always tired and sleeping in class. However, I didn't say anything about it because I had never heard of the disease."

"At the age of 17, I went to the doctor and he told me I had sickle cell anemia. Then, when I signed a professional baseball contract in 1966, the team ran tests that showed I had sickle cell trait, not anemia," he said.

Dr. Scott said the disease "occurs essentially in two general forms. The trait (carrier) represents a single dose or inheritance from one parent. The anemic form represents a double dose or inheritance from both parents."

Although the disease occurs predominantly in the black race, "it is also found in some members of the white race whose ancestors came from the Mediterranean area" and "other population groups in India, South America and the Middle East," Dr. Scott said.

The daughter of Willie Stargell, slugging outfielder for the Pirates, suffers from the disease, the subcommittee was told. Stargell, Ellis, Johnson and Horace Davis of Pittsburgh, who also testified, are members of the Black Athletes Foundation.

"The Black Athletes Foundation, we believe, can play a major role in the educational part of a program" to eradicate sickle cell anemia, Davis said.

"If Americans will listen to well-known athletes give advice on buying commercial products, they may also listen to sports personalities who urge them to have a blood test."

The BAF has an office in Pittsburgh, he said, and plans to open others. In charge of the other offices will be Roy Campanella, Ernie Banks, Bob Gibson, Willie Davis, Jim Wynn and Walter Johnson, Davis said.

Tunney, subcommittee chairman, said sickle cell anemia "is a painful deadly disease which kills over half its victims before the age of 20 and cripples most long before death."

He said an estimated 54,000 blacks in the District of Columbia have sickle cell trait and 1,000 are affected with sickle cell anemia.

By ROBERT MOORE
KANSAS CITY (AP) — The University of California at Los Angeles and North Carolina Central University are under probation today, each for one year, for athletic recruiting irregularities.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association announced the probations Wednesday through its Council, meeting here in its fall sessions.

Both universities were reprimanded and censured but the probations, which will end Oct. 26, 1972, were without penalty.

UCLA will defend its national championship in basketball. The action against UCLA involved James McAlister, a track and football star; Kermit Johnson and Eugene Jones, football players now competing for the Bruins, all from Pasadena, Calif.

As a result of the action, McAlister, a sophomore, is ineligible for athletic competition this year and thus will miss a year of varsity participation in football and track.

North Carolina Central, located at Durham, N. C., was placed on probation for the manner in which it went about recruiting Charles Foster of Gaffney, S. C., a track star.

Warren S. Brown, the NCAA's enforcement officer, said Foster would not lose any eligibility "because he was merely doing what was arranged for him."

Brown said the recruiting violations involving UCLA occurred in May and June of 1970 and that McAlister, Johnson and Jones took an ACT examination "from a special test administration" arranged by UCLA's former assistant athletic director instead of on a nationally administered test date.

Brown would not disclose the name of the athletic assistant but said he is not currently employed by the university.

Brown said McAlister's examination papers contained 63 erasures, 49 of which had been converted to the correct answers. The papers of the other two athletes also contained many erasures.

It was not determined during the NCAA investigations who made alterations on the examinations, Brown said.

McAlister was permitted to practice and compete in intercollegiate athletics during his freshman year in 1970-71 and received financial assistance from UCLA, Brown said, "while ineligible under NCAA legislation."

Also, Brown said, a university representative arranged for a co-signer on a note for quarterback to prove scouts wrong.

"I think I can play quarterback in the pros. Some scouts in the United States feel I'm too short and mention me as a defensive back," he said.

"If they prove me wrong, then I'd be a defensive back."

McAlister was permitted to practice and compete in intercollegiate athletics during his freshman year in 1970-71 and received financial assistance from UCLA, Brown said, "while ineligible under NCAA legislation."

Also, Brown said, a university representative arranged for a co-signer on a note for its primary financial effort from the Olympic Committee and direct it to the World University Games" following the 1972 Olympic Games.

"This does not mean we are withdrawing from the Olympic Committee," said Neinas. "We can be more effective in the World University Games and still help the Olympic Committee. We suffer now from lack of exposure in the World University Games."

Neinas also said the council voted to introduce a resolution to the NCAA convention Jan. 6-8 in Hollywood, Fla., calling for a special convention prior to July 1 to consider financial aid based on need and a limitation on the number of grants-in-aid.

Northern Kentucky State College of Covington, Ky., and the Gulf South Conference with headquarters in Hammond, La., were accepted into NCAA membership.

The NCAA official said the track coach, Leroy T. Walker, also paid for Foster's air transportation from the university back to his home on May 2 and that "NCAA rules prohibit transportation of prospective athletes for entertainment except between the athlete's home and the campus."

Charles Neinas, assistant NCAA executive director, said the NCAA's 10-member Olympic Committee had recommended that the NCAA "withdraw MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Rep. Dan Kuykendall, R-Tenn., reported Wednesday that Memphis and Phoenix, Ariz., may team up in an effort to secure National Football League franchises for the two cities.

The NFL is expected to add four teams during the next three years, and Memphis has had a campaign under way to obtain one of them. Seattle, Wash., and Tampa, Fla., also are reportedly under consideration for teams.

Kuykendall, who served as the initial go-between for the Memphis and Phoenix groups, said he has been in touch with former Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall, now a Washington lawyer, who contacted interests in Arizona.

Kuykendall said it was felt there would be an advantage in Memphis and Phoenix joining forces to sell the NFL on twin cities for franchises. The franchises are expected to be awarded in pairs.

Ealey Wins Because He's Mentally Ready

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Chuck Ealey, a quarterback who never has played on a loser in 60 high school and college varsity football games, says he wins because "I prepare myself mentally."

Largely because of Ealey's running and passing, the University of Toledo carries the nation's longest major winning streak of 30 games to Miami of Ohio Saturday.

"I try to picture myself being successful in every game," says the 6-foot, 185-pound senior from Portsmouth, Ohio. I don't know whether I'm going to throw three touchdowns or what. I just prepare myself mentally."

Ealey, whose 392 total yards against Western Michigan is the best in the nation this year, has the answers for the 15 Mid-American Conference records he already owns or shares.

"I'm more likely to sprint out or roll out. It's an asset for a quarterback if he can run. It puts pressure on the defense two ways."

Ealey has passed and run opponents dizzy for 2½ seasons, piling up 5,523 yards including two Tangerine Bowl appearances. He's twice been Mid-American player of the year and fired the Rockets to a pair of league titles.

Ealey, a transportation major with a 2.5 scholastic average, shakes off the pressure.

"The only pressure from the streak is applied by the teams we meet each week," he said. "They are mentally up and playing at their best."

Jack Murphy, who succeeded Frank Lauterbur as Toledo coach this year, praises Ealey's poise on and off the field.

"He has total confidence in his ability. He calls a number of audibles at the scrimmage line and does an excellent job of it. The players admire and respect him," said Murphy.

"I'm amazed at the way he handles all of the press and pressure like a real veteran. Nothing bothers him," added the Toledo mentor.

Ealey led Portsmouth, Ohio, Notre Dame High School to 30 straight victories and a state championship, yet was lightly recruited. "It was a small high school and I didn't throw that much. I got only three solid offers—from Toledo, Dayton and Miami of Ohio. I picked Toledo because they came right out and said I could play quarterback," said Ealey.

Angels To Try Oriole Formula

ANAHEIM (AP) — Harry Dalton, given much of the credit for building Baltimore's American League dynasty, has accepted the task of lifting the California Angels out of the rubble of a disastrous season.

Dalton, 43, the Orioles' vice president in charge of player personnel since 1966, was given a five-year contract at undisclosed salary Wednesday to become the Angels' general manager and executive vice president.

The announcement was made by Bob Reynolds, Angels president and Gene Autry, board chairman. They reportedly began negotiating with Dalton at least a month before Dick Walsh was fired as the American League club's general manager a week ago.

Reynolds said Dalton is "used to winning" and hailed him as "one of the architects of the Orioles' success."

Dalton said in Baltimore he was "unhappy to leave the Orioles" but added, "I sincerely believe that we have a chance to make this (the Angels) one of the strongest franchises in the American League."

He is joining a team that started the 1971 season with high hopes and ended up a distant fourth in the AL West, torn by dissension and playing to sparse crowds. Manager Harold "Lefty" Phillips was fired two weeks before Walsh.

Dalton said it may be "three or four weeks" before he is ready to decide on Phillips' successor.

Leading candidates are believed to be Del Rice, who managed the Angels' Salt Lake City farm club to the Pacific Coast League championship this year, and Baltimore coach Billy Hunter.

"I am very high on Billy Hunter's ability," Dalton said, "but any stories suggesting that he will be the manager are premature."

The name of Orioles Manager Earl Weaver also has been mentioned. Dalton said he considers Weaver "the best manager in the league," but added, "He's under contract to the Orioles and I would not think of trying to take him away."

SIMMONS BABY SITS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Catcher Ted Simmons of the St. Louis Cardinals plans to do a lot of baby sitting this winter while his wife, Maryanne, finishes graduate work at the University of Michigan.

Mrs. Simmons is majoring in fine arts. Their son John MacArthur Simmons was born last March.

Simmons hit .303 in his first full season with the Cardinals this year.

Squires Knock Colonels Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
What Willie Sojourner calls his "shot" has put the Virginia Squires on top in the East Division of the American Basketball Association.

The 6-foot-9, 235-pound rookie from Weber State gets off the shot in a high arc. It was particularly effective against another rookie, 7-2 Artis Gilmore from Jacksonville, as the Squires beat Kentucky 110-107 Wednesday night and ousted the Colonels from the top rung in the East.

"The shot just came through for me," said Sojourner modestly. He scored 25 points, high for the Squires, including 12 in a five minute burst in the fourth period as Virginia erased and 86-82 deficit to take a 10-point lead at 101-91.

Pittsburgh whipped Carolina 131-121 and Utah defeated Memphis 104-98 in other ABA games.

"The team made me look good," commented Sojourner. Neil Johnson was second high for the Squires with 24 points and rookie Julius Erving chipped in with 21. Dan Issel of Kentucky was high for the game with 36.

Glen Combs, with 31 points, led the Stars over Memphis for their third straight victory. He and Willie Wise combined to score Utah's last 19 points after an 83-83 tie. Wendell Ladner led Memphis with 21.

George Thompson, with 31 points, sparked a third quarter surge that gave the Condors their victory over Carolina. Jim McDaniels was high for the Cougars with 30.

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Veteran wide receiver Ron Sellers and starting safety Clarence Scott will be lost to the New England Patriots for at least the next two National Football League games.

Believed Great Spirit In Spring

MANITOU SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—The Ute Indians, who once used this area as a place to rest and heal their sick, called it Manitou, "Great Spirit," because they believed He resided in the bubbling mineral springs.

The Utes pledged never to make warfare until they were a long distance away from the sacred waters, and early settlers found thousands of beaded trinkets in the waters, tossed there by the Indians as offerings to Manitou.

Brass studs on dog collars are relics of the time when pets wore spike collars as protection against wolves.

Environmentalists Still Trying Block Nuclear Test

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmental groups pinned their hopes today on a new court appeal after President Nixon gave a go-ahead Wednesday to a huge underground nuclear blast at a North Pacific island.

A three-judge panel heard an appeal from environmental groups about two hours after the Atomic Energy Commission announced the administration decision. The U.S. Appeals Court indicated it would decide quickly whether it should grant a stay to allow time for consideration of a permanent injunction against the test.

Meanwhile, Canada's foreign minister contacted Secretary of State William P. Rogers to express his country's "disquiet" over Nixon's decision.

Both Canada and Japan have opposed the plan to explode a five-megaton atomic warhead, designed for the Spartan antiballistic missile, some 6,000 feet beneath Amchitka Island, in the Aleutian Islands chain of Alaska.

Both nations said they fear such a blast might cause environmental damage, including leaks of radiation that could spread in ocean waters across international boundaries.

Seven environment groups headed by the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, also fearing environmental hazards, had sought a court injunction to bar the test.

Last Sept. 22, Congress voted to bar the Amchitka test code-named "Cannikin", until at least mid-1972, unless the President personally authorized it.

On Wednesday, Nixon did just that, and AEC chairman James R. Schlesinger announced, "We have now received the requisite authority to go ahead including detonation."

The AEC did not announce a date for the test, but Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said Wednesday it was scheduled for Nov. 4; Schlesinger said only that the preparations were to be completed before then.

In Wednesday's news conference, Schlesinger said there was a "virtual zero likelihood of any damage" from the Cannikin test. He said its shock would not even be felt in the nearest large community, Anchorage, Alaska, some 1,400 miles away.

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission has been given the green light for its underground nuclear test on remote Amchitka Island, but many angry officials of this earthquake conscious state are seeing red.

Atty. Gen. John Havelock called the proposed five-megaton test a form of "Russian roulette." Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, termed it "nuclear roulette."

Despite the fears of many state officials that the blast might touch off an earthquake or tidal wave, the AEC reported Wednesday it had received a presidential go-ahead for the test.

"Scientists have been unable to give us assurances that a cataclysmic disaster won't result from the test," Havelock told newsmen following the announcement. "No matter how many chambers there are in the AEC's revolver, we're still bothered by the idea of the AEC playing Russian roulette with the welfare of Alaskans."

No date for the test has been announced officially, but Gravel said it would be next Thursday.

The state's other senator, Republican Ted Stevens, also expressed concern about the blast which is designed to test a warhead for the Spartan antiballistic missile.

Gov. William A. Egan said the federal government "must assume full responsibility for the safety of people who would suffer the consequences if an accident occurs."

Egan said he had asked Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird to station "a number of vessels with rescue capability up and down the Aleutian chain" in case the blast caused a tidal wave of serious earthquake.

In Vancouver, B.C., a Canadian group opposing the test said a protest ship would sail today for Amchitka and anchor just outside the three-mile limit in hopes of convincing Washington not to go through with the blast.

Berk Thorsen of the Vancouver-based Don't Make A Wave Committee said Wednesday that the Greenpeace Two would likely arrive in plenty of time for the test.

PRE-FAB MODULES TO BUILD MOTEL — A 162-unit motel which was started on its foundation pillars Tuesday at this site west of Chicago's O'Hare Airport, will only require six to 10 days to complete according to its builders. Three modules at right were placed in position Tuesday and the first of Wednesday's is shown being swung into position at left. Each is a complete unit, ready to move into, down to beds being made and soap in the wash bowls. (AP Wirephoto)

Special Use For Satellite

MOFFETT FIELD, Calif. (AP) — American scientists are preparing an observation satellite that will track icebergs in the North Atlantic, check on crops in India and alert Californians of snow-fed flooding dangers.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration will launch the first Earth Resources Technology Satellite in 1972, NASA's director for the program, John M. DeNoyer, announced Wednesday.

The satellite will be equipped to gather the sort of high altitude photographs that have enabled scientists to tackle questions such as the potential for expanded crops and water development in Arizona and the spread of corn blight in the Midwest, DeNoyer said.

From an orbit 565 miles high, the satellite will transmit 300,000 pictures a week to earth. All photographic data will be made available to anyone in the world, DeNoyer said, and there will be no secret uses of the satellite.

Scientists abroad will use it to study land use in Guatemala, farming in India, locust breeding sites in Saudi Arabia, snowpacks in Norway and snow cover in Japan.

Candidate Is Dropping Out

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — The youngest person ever to qualify here as a mayoral candidate says he's dropping out of the race "because I've run into a lot of trouble lately with school and other things."

Craig S. Brown, 20, a sophomore at the University of Rhode Island, was the only one of four aspirants to get enough signatures to qualify as a candidate to oppose Mayor Robert F. Burns.

Brown said Wednesday he didn't realize that the campaign would require his making public appearances. A Pawtucket fraternal organization official had criticized him for not speaking before groups.

Brown can not remove his name from ballots which already have been printed for Tuesday's election. Absentee and shut-in ballots have already been distributed.

SCHOOL BOAT — The oyster boat "Island Star" takes high school students from Smith Island in Chesapeake Bay to the mainland where they attend school. The students stay on the mainland during the week and then make the 11-mile return trip home Fridays.

Student Taken To High School On Oyster Boat

SMITH ISLAND, Md. (AP) — School busing problems may be new to some sections of the country, but they're strictly old hat to the 645 residents of this tiny island off Maryland's Eastern Shore.

For years, Smith Island teenagers who attend high school have had to be "bused" the 11 miles to the mainland each week by boat.

Not only that, they have to find room and board on the mainland during the week, because the boat trip can take as long as four hours in bad weather.

Since 1959, Maryland has provided what officially is known as "School Bus Route No. 53" between the island and Crisfield, on the mainland across Tangier Sound.

Before then, Smith Island scholars had to shift for themselves.

State officials have considered the possibilities of helicopter, hydrofoil boat or some speedier mode of transportation other than the oyster boat "Island Star" that has been pressed into service for the run. But alternatives always seem impossibly expensive.

Not only that, the students themselves are not anxious to commute each day, saying they'd miss the after school activities that are a normal part of any high school — the football and basketball games, parties, club meetings and dances.

"Some of the Crisfield students tease us," one of the island girls said.

"They think there isn't anything to do on our island. They don't know, but there's more to do there than in Crisfield."

"All they have that we don't have is movies, and further to drive in cars," she said.

Smith Island has no local government, no police force and no jail.

The men all work on the water, harvesting crabs and oysters from Chesapeake Bay and seldom leave the island.

Nixon To Peking After First Of Year

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will make his historic trip to mainland China sometime after the first of January with the exact date to be announced next month.

Setting the trip in 1972 does not mean delay in Nixon's schedule, according to Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser.

He told newsmen Wednesday "We are exactly on the schedule we set ourselves. It has not been delayed." He pointed out Nixon had said from the start the only limit on timing was May 1972.

Kissinger, who returned Tuesday from a six-day visit to Peking laying the ground work for Nixon, said "we have the time narrowed down to a certain number of weeks. We will formalize it and announce it" soon.

Kissinger said his advance work accomplished what he set out to do, "to make concrete arrangements for the President's visit." But, he added, another preparatory team will be sent before Nixon leaves.

Kissinger said he would not go with that advance party because the remaining work is technical and he would be of no real help.

This last advance team will be implementing agreements Kissinger reached in principle with Chinese Prime Minister Chou en Lai, the presidential adviser said.

These, he explained, include communications, possible places of interest Nixon will see and facilities needed by the American party.

The only limitations will be those imposed by Chinese technical facilities, Kissinger said, adding that Peking officials appear to want Nixon's trip to be comfortable as possible.

Besides technical discussions, Kissinger said he talked with Chou on a more substantive level, and it was agreed nothing transpired since the America's earlier visit that would adversely affect the President's trip.

On other matters Kissinger made these points:

—He did not see Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, but Nixon will. Kissinger added he had no idea of an internal disruption on the mainland and "wouldn't presume to speculate."

—Nixon's talks with the Chinese leaders will not involve other nations.

—The Vietnam war will be ended either through negotiations or by Vietnamization, not by talks with Peking.

—The matter of Chinese membership in the United Nations was not discussed and the expulsion of the Nationalist regime on Taiwan was not affected by Kissinger's presence in Peking at the time of the vote.

Jumbo Jet Home Again Passengers On Hijacked

By HAROLD J. LIDIN
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN (AP) — The passengers and most of the crew of the hijacked American Airlines 747 jumbo jet arrived in San Juan Wednesday night, and one of them who witnessed the hijacking said at no time did he see any action from the three sky marshals or the off-duty FBI man who were aboard.

Marvin W. Schwartz, a freelance photographer from New York, said the first he knew that any such protection was aboard was after the landing at Havana. He said a voice called over the loudspeaker for the federal agents to come forward, but "no one made a move."

Two American jetliners sent to Havana Wednesday afternoon brought 230 passengers and seven crew members to San Juan. They appeared in good health and lively spirits after their two-day detour through Cuba.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the jumbo jet was expected to arrive in San Juan later today.

Schwartz said the hijack took place about 40 minutes after the plane took off from New York Monday night for Puerto Rico. He said the hijacker was about 25 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall and wore dungarees with a Puerto Rican flag sewn on one leg.

The photographer said he tried to speak to the man in English and Spanish, but got only the clipped reply: "I don't want to say anything." Enrique Burgos, a San Juan lawyer aboard the flight, said the hijacker was "a Puerto Rican who couldn't find work in New York."

Schwartz said he was about four feet from the stewardess who was taken hostage. He said the hijacker held a fountain pen under a blanket and told the girl he wanted to go to Havana.

An FAA spokesman in Washington had said Monday night that three sky marshals and an off-duty FBI agent were aboard the plane. Another passenger, Robert Callaghan, a former Navy officer, said Cuban officials handed over a revolver believed to be the hijack weapon and six bullets to "an FBI officer" a few moments before they left Havana for San Juan. The FBI office in San Juan refused to comment.

Tito Begins Visit Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslavia officially begins his six-day visit to the United States today with a full ceremonial greeting by President Nixon on the White House lawn.

Tito, the head of the maverick Communist country, landed Wednesday at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington and spent the night at Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland.

After the official arrival, Tito will huddle privately with Nixon on his first meeting. The Middle East crisis is expected to rank high on their topics of discussion.

Tito was greeted at the airport by U.S. Protocol Chief Emil Mosbacher, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Richard Davies and Malcolm Toon, new U.S. ambassador to Belgrade.

The head of the Belgrade government also plans to meet with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell before attending a White House black tie dinner.

Connally Avers Honor Pupils At 'Still Democrat' Stokes-Pactolus Are Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally was appearing before a House committee when Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., asked if he still was a Democrat. Connally confirmed that he was.

In return, Annunzio then told Connally, the only Democrat in President Nixon's Cabinet:

"There are so many members of the other body (the Senate) who are seeking the presidency. I wanted to show there are others in the party, not members of the other body, who are fully capable of handling the responsibilities of the presidency."

Connally paused, then said with a smile:

"My failure to respond is neither agreement nor assent."

The Phoenicians were the greatest traders of the ancient world.

STOKES — The honor roll and principal's list for the first marking period at Stokes-Pactolus Grammar School has been released by Principal Leroy Morris.

Students making the honor roll were: Laura Harrison, Loretta Hudson and Bernice Tripp, all sixth graders.

The following students were placed on the principal's list:

Sixth grade — James Bunch, Jenny Haddock, John Hunt, Mark McKinley, Crystal Singleton, Jimmy Singleton, Tom Sumerlin and Penny Whitehurst;

Seventh grade — Ashley Tripp;

Eighth grade — Nora Lee Crawford, Florida Marie Daniels, Phyllis Gilbert, Thomas Glisson, James Dwight Vernelson and Deborah Wyne.

New Red Cross Board Members Are Introduced Low Priority On Draft-Eligibles

Eight new members were introduced at the quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross Wednesday night.

The new members are: Mrs. W. B. Bond, Dr. Dick Douglas, Mrs. Lucille Quinn, Clarence Gray, Bernard Haselrig, Dr. Ed Hooks, Jack Richardson and Bob Wheelers.

Special guests for this orientation meeting were James E. Wood, Mrs. Mary Mathis and Leon Jacobs from the Regional Office in Charlotte, and Bob Vesperille of the Tidewater Blood Center, Norfolk, Va.

A program on four different aspects of Red Cross work was presented, which included discussions on service to military families, disaster service, youth activities and the blood program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft-eligible 19-year-olds will be given the lowest enlistment priority in the National Guard and Reserves, the Pentagon has announced.

Under the new plan, qualified men 20 years and older, women and youths aged 17 and 18 will be enlisted without regard to Guard or Reserve waiting lists, Dr. Theodore C. Marrs, deputy assistant secretary of defense, told a news conference Wednesday.

During the height of the Vietnam war, the backlog of men waiting to enlist in the Guard and escape the draft totaled more than 100,000 men. Most of the men signed up on waiting lists, Marrs said, were young whites.

The lowering of priority of draft-eligible 19-year-olds is to help the reserves recruit blacks and other minority-group members, Marrs said.

'Vatican Gunman' Plays Villain In Movie Roles

By PIERO DE GARAROLLI
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — They call him "the Vatican gunman."

"Nothing sinister about that," explains Carlo Gaddi, a six-footer who has a black belt in judo. "It fits me perfectly."

Gaddi is a papal chair bearer, one of the select group of 12 men who carry the Pope on their shoulders in his portable throne during audiences and ceremonies.

He is also a movie actor who always plays the villain in Italian thrillers and westerns.

"It's not my fault if I have the face of a bad guy," says Gaddi. "My three kids have yet to see one of my movies here I don't get shot."

Gaddi was born in the tiny papal city-state 35 years ago. His father was dean of the private household for Popes Pius X and Benedict XV.

Gaddi became an Italian citizen when he was 21 and for 11 years was a securities trader on the Rome stock exchange.

"I got into the movies by chance," he recalls. "A friend offered me a small part as a gangster. I was on the screen a few minutes, just time to draw my guns and get shot. Critics said my death was very realistic, so here I am, the man who never lived to the end of a motion picture."

Gaddi has acted in about 20 movies, with such stars as Sophia Loren, Horst Buchholz and Sylvia Koscina.

"I don't mind always being the villain," he said, "but I would like to play a decent man just once."

Gaddi serves at the Vatican without pay.

"Ours is strictly an honorary job," he says, "one of the few not taken away when the pontiff dies."

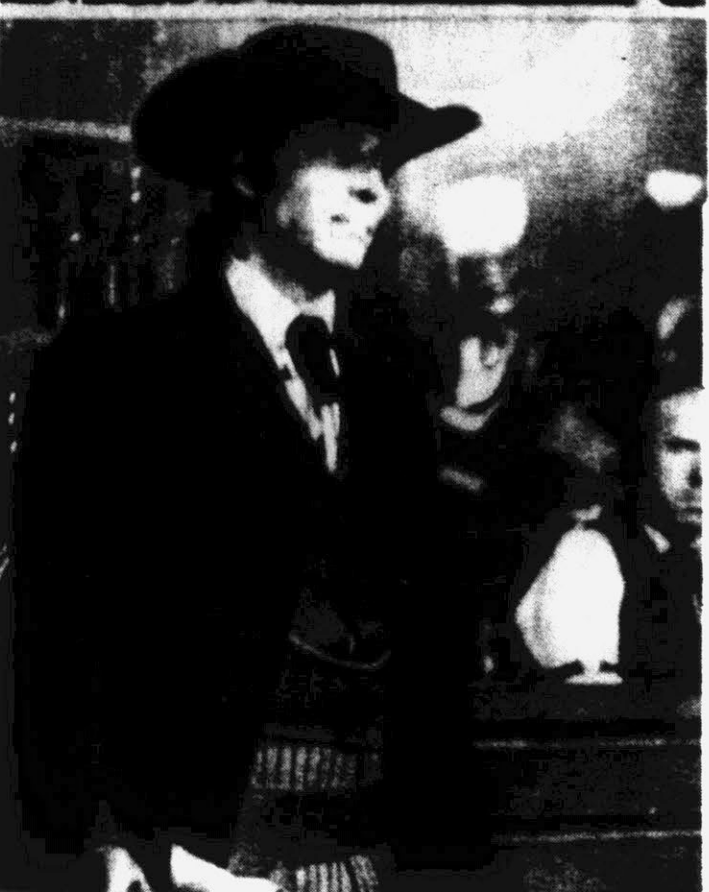

"Each bearer carries a weight of about 50 pounds, walking six or four on each side. The trick is to keep the throne perfectly level with the ground."

Pope John XXIII shunned the portable throne whenever he could.

"He simply did not like it," said Gaddi. "I have the impression he was afraid of falling down. He would grasp the arm rests and not let go until it was all over."

"Once we carried him up the steps of the Basilica of St. Mary Major. We did it perfectly without tilting the chair. When we were ready to take him back down, Pope John said: 'You did a great job, thank you, but I will walk.'"

Pope Paul VI "sits in the throne with no reservations at all," Gaddi continued. "He has a great sense of equilibrium."

Politics 'Popular' In Louisiana

By CHARLES LAYTON
BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The Lord must love candidates for governor. He certainly made a lot of them this year in Louisiana — 17 in the Democratic primary alone.

Louisianians going to the polls Nov. 6 can choose from a list including two Negroes, two Cajuns, two U.S. congressmen, one member of the Ku Klux Klan, one gospel singer, a wide assortment of unclassifiables — and two distant cousins of the late Huey Long.

Two Republicans and one American Party candidate for running, too.

Faced with such a variety, about half the state's voters are listed as "undecided" in polls. The explanation also could be that Louisianians have grown skeptical of all politicians. In recent years hardly a month has passed without some new government scandal. Here are a few of the latest:

Officials In Trouble
—New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison arrested and charged with accepting payoffs from gamblers.

—State Attorney General Jack Gremlion convicted of lying to a grand jury about his connection with a loan company that went bankrupt under suspicious circumstances.

—A state senator convicted of public payroll fraud.

—A former public works commissioner convicted of stealing $86,000 from the city of Shreveport.

Louisiana's government is well designed for easy pickings. For decades state leaders expanded payrolls and enlarge the executive structure to create more political patronage for themselves, until now Louisiana has what probably is the most sprawling, unmanageable state government in the nation.

Easy to Pad Pockets
Louisiana has 267 separate state agencies, far more than any other state. And 225 of those agencies have their own purchasing agents, who handle state money with little supervision. Money flows in and out of 1,113 separate bank accounts.

It is relatively easy to pad the pocket from such a bureaucracy without getting caught, and even when irregularities are found they are seldom prosecuted.

As gubernatorial candidate John Schwegmann explains it: "Stealing is legal in the state of Louisiana!"

Another candidate, Congressman Edwin Edwards, wants to change the state constitution to consolidate the various agencies into a cabinet structure, governed by perhaps 30 department heads. He says such a structure would be more efficient and easier to police.

Against this background, most of the major candidates are casting themselves as reformers, divorcing themselves as much as they can from past administrations and taking corruption as their main campaign issue.

An exception is Jimmie Davis. A two-time former governor, he is running on his opposition to busing school children. And he is also promising not to raise taxes.

Campaigns With Band

Davis, 70, made his first reputation as a country singer and author of the song "You Are My Sunshine." He campaigns with a country band and a gospel singing group in rural areas, and has refused to grant interviews to reporters or appear in public discussions with other candidates. His friends say Davis has always felt uneasy around reporters. His opponents say he doesn't want to face questions about his acceptance of $90,000 from a voting machine company shortly after he left the governor's office in 1964.

Whatever the truth may be, he commands a loyal following and is expected to run well in the first primary.

The spirit of Huey Long, the Kingfish assassinated in 1935, still thrives in Louisiana. So do his relatives, and two of them are running for governor.

Millionaire Candidate
They stand at opposite ends of the state's political spectrum. Gillis Long is popular with blacks and in academic circles. His cousin, Congressman Speedy O. Long, campaigns against busing and stops just short of advocating physical resistance by parents against court desegregation orders.

One of many accusations flying in this campaign is that Speedy has been inserted in the race by Gillis' enemies to drain away some of the automatic vote that still accrues to any candidate named Long.

Another top contender, according to the polls, is John Schwegmann, a state senator and millionaire owner of a grocery chain, who argues he will stay honest in office because he is too rich to be bought off.

"I don't want to be governor for the money," he says. "I'm not looking for the salary. I'm a statesman, not a politician."

Schwegmann offers another argument for his own trustworthiness, one the other candidates can't match. He says he will have to be a good governor. Otherwise, people will stop trading at his stores.

Wouldn't Heed Warning Voice

VRENA, Sweden (AP) — Thieves burgling a church here usually are terrified when a heavenly voice booms down from the rafters: "Remember, thou shalt not steal."

But two would be burglars, unimpressed by Vicar Lars Ekrellius' tape recorder device, are now wishing they'd taken the hint.

The Vicar's second line of defense, a three-bell burglar alarm, clanged out a warning that resulted in their arrest only seconds after the thieves fled the building.

Kentucky Wants A Hiking Trail

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky may have a new state park 17 miles long and 30 feet wide.

It is the right-of-way between Frankfort and Georgetown in the Bluegrass area, belonging to the Frankfort & Cincinnati Railroad, but not used for years.

Finance Commissioner Albert Christen says the state wants to purchase the land and use it as a scenic hiking trail for Boy Scouts and others.

Report Alcohol Ruining Natives

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (AP) — A commission of inquiry on drinking in New Guinea was told that too much alcohol is ruining hundreds of native families.

New Guinea's 2,312,000 villagers were allowed to drink officially in September, 1963, following a visit by a United Nations Mission.

Now an upsurge in crime and general lawlessness has prompted some native leaders to call for prohibition.

Cattle Business Growing In The Thailand Jungle

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
PAKCHONG, Thailand (AP) — Using American purebred cattle, Texas know-how and the Chinese business savvy that has made him a multi-millionaire at the age of 34, Chockchai Bulakul is carving a cattle industry out of the jungles of northeastern Thailand.

He is confident he can prove beef cattle can be a bonanza for Thai exports. Visitors to his 12,000 acre spread, two hours drive from Bangkok are treated to the eye-popping spectacle of sleek, fat cattle grazing in lush pasture land with Thai cowboys, booted and spurred, mounted on Texas-bred quarter horses, roping and branding as if to the manner born.

Except for the waving coconut palms, red roofed Thai temples and jungle covered mountains in the background it could be Texas.

Chockchai, a Cornell graduate and former part-time California ranch hand, has turned his ranch into an Eastern version of a set from a television Western. He has a six bedroom log cabin for guests that could have been taken from one of the Hollywood cowboy movies he admits to having loved as a boy. His own ranch house is fenced in like a Western fort, complete with sentry tower. A replica of an Indian totem pole he carved himself stands outside the stockade.

The ranch also boasts a zoo, in which the main attraction is a lion that eats rice. He also has a pigmy elephant, and seven hog deer which he claims may be the last in Thailand. Then there's a monkey, a bear, and a bulldog.

Any of his 60 cowboys who give him trouble get sent to the nearby Buddhist temple to have their heads shaved and spend two weeks contemplating the error of their ways. His cowboys earn 50 cents a day and he reckons them to be as good as any he saw in the United States where they earn $2 an hour.

"I have trouble keeping the young ones," he said. "You teach them to ride and three days later they want to go to Bangkok and become a jockey."

Chockchai's project to transform the impoverished Korat Plateau into rich cattle pasture has important political and economic implications for northeast Thailand, which comprises one third of the country's population and land area.

He has so far succeeded in winning support from the Thai and U.S. Governments, and the World Bank.

"This area has always been regarded as the Siberia of Thailand," said Chockchai.

Dry and dusty six months of the year, the North East has been neglected by the Thai Government, but not the communists, who have infiltrated and subverted large areas along the Mekong river and now boast an armed strength of about 2,000 men.

There are terrorists bands barely 30 kilometers from Chockchai's property. But so far they have proved less of a menace than rustlers and tigers who prey on the cattle.

"Cattle are the way to keep out communists," he said. "At the moment a farmer around here gets $12 an acre from growing corn, after ploughing, planting, harvesting, buying fertilizer and insecticides.

"His corn is sold to Japan for cattle feed. Thailand then imports Kobe beef at $10 a kilo (2.2 lbs). That's crazy! Why don't we feed the corn to our own cattle? This area is perfect for cattle. We can turn the jungle into pasture and graze millions of head. A farmer can get $85 an acre if he changes to cattle."

The son of a merchant who was known as the King of Rice, Chockchai wants to be known as the "Cattle King of Thailand."

He worked on several ranches in California while he attended San Antonio College before returning to Thailand with the aim of becoming a rancher. His father gave him 100 acres of jungle land but he didn't have the money to develop it.

"My father wanted me to go into the rice business but I wanted to be a rancher. I asked him for $5,000 as a grubstake but he only gave me $1,000. So I stole two trucks and 3,000 bags of rice from one of his rice mills and sold it to get capital.

"That was 14 years ago. We hacked the jungle back with machetes and sold charcoal to make ends meet. That's the lowest form of livelihood in Thailand. But I went broke anyway."

Opening lead: King of ♥
While the double of an opening bid at the lower levels is primarily for take out, when the initial call is a preempt, circumstances change. Even at the three level, however, the partner of the doubler is expected to take some action no matter how weak his holding might be.

When the opening bid is at the game level, conditions are altered, and partner is expected to pass unless his holding is primarily distributional. South, in today's hand, held a balanced hand and had he passed, West would have suffered a 500 point deficit on the deal. With overpowering strength in the major suits, and realizing that his opponent might be expected to possess the missing values in hearts, it was not unreasonable to play North for the outstanding strength in clubs and diamonds. On this basis, a slam contract did not appear to be unreasonable and South was unwilling to settle for any smaller compensation on the deal. He accordingly jumped to six spades, which call closed the auction.

West opened the king of hearts and South won with the ace. An examination of the combined holdings revealed that declarer might be expected to win 10 tricks in the deal—five spades, one heart, two diamonds and two clubs—to which additional tricks might accrue if the club finesse succeeded. In light of West's preempt, however, the missing cards in the minors were more apt to be located in the East hand.

South proceeded to draw three rounds of trumps on which West followed suit while East showed out. Declarer now drew the conclusion that West probably started with eight hearts and three spades, altho East's original play of the ten of hearts might have been from a doubleton. South tried the ace of clubs next on which West followed with the ten. The ace of diamonds was led, on which West played the jack.

In the hope that West was now stripped of his side cards, South chose to exit with the heart. West was in, and inasmuch as he had only hearts left, the return of that suit permitted declarer to ruff in dummy while he discarded a club from his hand.

The closed hand was reentered with the king of diamonds and two more rounds of trumps were led. This was the position at trick 11:

South led his spade, discarding the ten of diamonds from dummy. East was obliged to discard the queen of diamonds in order to protect his club holding. South then produced the eight of diamonds for the fulfilling trick.
