

Guerrilla Centers In North Ireland Raided By British

BELFAST (AP) — More than 1,400 British troops stormed Roman Catholic strongholds in Belfast and Londonderry today and rounded up 51 guerrilla suspects after a fierce gun battle here.

The troops also captured an arsenal of weapons, including submachine guns, pistols, rifles, ammunition and bombmaking materials in Belfast.

It was the biggest army operation in the feuding British province since scores of suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army were rounded up under the controversial internment-without trial regulations in August. Belfast and Londonderry are Northern Ireland's major cities.

Troops combed the Roman Catholic Lower Falls and Anderstown districts of Belfast and the Bogside, Creggan and Shantallow areas of Londonderry.

Youths stoned some troopers in the Andersonstown district, but no shots were fired. Today's raids began at dawn, soon after soldiers fought a series of gunfights with guerrilla snipers around a group of apartments.

One man was killed and another wounded, pushing the two-year death toll in Northern Ireland's battling between Protestants and Catholics to 149.

Labor Members Of Pay Board Reported Seething

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor members of the Pay Board reacted strongly against tough guidelines introduced Wednesday by public and industry members of the panel, the Washington Post reported today.

"This is an insult," United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock was quoted as telling the members before the three-hour closed meeting broke up.

The newspaper said the five public members and five industry members drew up plans which would bar payment of wage increases retroactive to any date during the wage-price freeze. Both would set a 5 per cent standard for future increases in wages and fringe benefits.

Also in the public member draft plan, the newspaper said, is an extension of the absolute freeze to mid-January. It was understood to contain a complex formula for renegotiating future pay increases written into contracts negotiated before the freeze.

Renegotiation would be required if the affected worker had received pay increases totaling more than 12 per cent over the past 23 months—or roughly 6 per cent a year, the newspaper quoted one source as saying.

The report said no decisions were reached at Wednesday's session but that AFL-CIO President George Meany has hinted labor leaders will walk out unless deferred increases in existing contracts are honored.

In addition to Meany and Woodcock, labor is represented by Presidents Frank E. Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters, I. W. Abel of the United Steelworkers and Floyd E. Smith of the International Association of Machinists.

Meany would not join the President's Phase 2 program until he was assured that the board's guidelines would not be overturned by the administration.

The Post said union officials have been silent on whether the labor members are ready to walk out unless their demand for honoring deferred increases is met.

It quoted one as saying, however, that "there's nothing here that the trade union movement could ever negotiate on."

The 5 per cent pay increase guidelines suggested by both sides compared with a 5 to 6 per cent range some economists have proposed to meet the President's goal of reducing inflation to an annual rate of 2 to 3 per cent by the end of the next year.

On Tuesday, the Committee on Interest and Dividends requested that corporations limit any increase in total dividends per share paid in 1972 to an amount not greater than 4 per cent as a Phase 2 anti-inflation guideline.

Added Student Rights Carry Responsibility, Reminds Dr. Jenkins

DURHAM — Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU president, today called for recognition of the responsibilities which go along with recently won student rights.

Dr. Jenkins was speaking to the N. C. Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.

"I believe we have reached the point where students must become more aware that the recent removal of restraints and the extension of participating opportunities carry with them corresponding responsibilities not only to help shape the university's mission and program but to carry them out," Jenkins stated.

"It is one thing to be a reformer; quite another to be a constructive, persistent, and faithful implementer of those reforms. The student now bears for the first time a heavy long-term responsibility."

The president said the courts which have championed student demands, "will need to take a closer look at the student responsibility side of the equation."

Jenkins also said he was convinced that students should not share equally or exert actual control in the government of the university.

"I do not mean thereby to express or imply contempt for youthful opinion. I am saying that it is a fundamental mistake to assume that student membership in the academic community carries with it equality or superiority in judgment to that of an older more experienced, highly trained and even distinguished faculty.

"I believe that it is an unassailable proposition and on it a firm stand must be taken."

"Note that I am not suggesting any arbitrary or capricious abridgement or suspension of the rights of students as they have been defined by the courts. Rather I contend that in the governance of the university the balance of power must lie clearly with the governing boards, administration and faculty."

Recovery Prospects Brighten N.C. Economy Up In September

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's economy marched upward on a broad base in September.

"Prospects appear much better for a faster economic recovery than North Carolinians have been anticipating in recent months," reported economists of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

Wachovia said its North Carolina Business Index rose from 114.6 in August to a preliminary figure of 115.3 in September. This placed the level of business activity 2.6 above the year-ago figure.

Non-agricultural employment in the state showed a substantial increase and reached the highest level since May, rising at an annual rate of 8.4 per cent with increases felt in most major sectors of employment.

Meanwhile the rate of unemployment in the state dropped from 4.4 per cent in August to 3.8 per cent in September.

In manufacturing, employment in the durable goods sector was up 1.5 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis while employment in non-durable goods was up slightly.

Chemical goods employment was at its highest level since January, furniture employment was the highest since January of 1970 and lumber employment increases were registered in services and government sectors but trade employment continued weak.

Total spending by individuals and businesses as measured by bank debits was down slightly from August but remained relatively strong.

Wachovia reported, however, that after accounting for the smaller number of trading days in September and a slowing in the rate of inflation, its index of bank debits showed a slightly higher daily spending average.

Wachovia reported that on a cumulative year-to-year basis, retail sales are running 10 per cent ahead of last year and "it appears that 1972 will be a record year for Tar Heel retail sales with gains even exceeding those of 1971."

Building permits in 16 North Carolina cities rose by nearly 20 per cent in September and reached the highest level since February.

"Next year is being forecast to be an even better year than 1971 (in building), especially from a residential standpoint," Wachovia said.

New car sales apparently received a boost from President Nixon's economic package. They soared upward 27 per cent in September and were 44 per cent ahead of September of last year.

Local Planning Talks Underway

A conference on local planning is being held today at East Carolina University.

Over 200 members of county planning boards and other persons concerned with the development of Eastern North Carolina are attending the all-day meetings. Sponsors are the Agricultural Extension Service, the Coastal Plains Development Association, and the ECU Regional Development Institute.

Dr. J. W. Pou opened the meeting at 10 a.m. and John Morrissey, executive secretary of the County Commissioners Association, gave the keynote address. Philip P. Green Jr., assistant director of the Institute of Government, UNC Chapel Hill, defined "The True Role and Responsibility of Local Planning Boards," John Scott, senior regional planner of the Research Triangle Regional Planning Commission spoke on "The Planning Process," outlining basic principles, decision, planning and controlling measures. Lunch was presided over by Mrs. Mayo Cherry.

Charles Coss, executive director of the Coastal Plains Regional Commission, was to speak on "Funds for Local Development," after which there would be a panel discussion on "Areas for Development" presided over by T. W. Willis, director of the Regional Development Institute. The points of view to be illuminated and their spokesmen were industry by William P. Johnson, executive vice president of the Goshen Rubber Company in Wilson; recreation by Jim Stevens, administrator of the recreation division of the N. C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources; health by Dr. Lee Holder, director of Health Planning and Evaluation for the N. C. Regional Medical Program; and solid waste by Sidney H. Usry, chief of the Solid Waste and Vector Control Section of the State Board of Health.

Representatives from Beaufort, Bertie, Edgecombe, Halifax, Hertford, Martin, Nash, Northampton, Pitt and Wilson Counties were invited.

Prime Rate Cut By Major Banks

NEW YORK (AP) — Four major commercial banks, led by Chase Manhattan Bank, cut their prime lending rate to 5½ per cent from 5¾ per cent today.

The prime rate is the interest rate commercial banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate customers.

Announcing prime rate reductions with Chase, the nation's third largest bank, were Manufacturers Hanover Trust, the fourth largest; Morgan Guaranty Trust, the fifth largest; and Chemical Bank of New York, the seventh largest.

State And Federal Approval Given To Merger Of Ass'ns

State and federal approval has been obtained for the merger of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Greenville and Security Savings and Loan Association of Farmville, it was announced today.

The proposed merger, announced jointly by Clarence B. Tugwell, president of First Federal and T. S. Ryan, president of Security Savings and Loan, is subject to the further vote and approval of the stockholders of Security Savings in a meeting scheduled for early December.

Pointing out that the primary reason for the merger is service, the presidents asserted that residents of Pitt County can be better served by consolidating the institutions into a single countywide association serving all of Pitt through the combined four offices in Ayden, Farmville, Grifton and Greenville.

In addition, they said, a new branch will be opened here on Greenville Blvd. in the spring of 1972 to offer depositors and home buyers another location for conducting business.

Following approval of the merger by the stockholders, the combined assets will exceed $32 million, handling approximately 2,500 current home loans with over 9,000 total depositors.

It is contemplated, according to the announcement, that the new association, at a later date, will be named First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Pitt County.

The marriage of the two associations, it was pointed out, is the largest merger in North Carolina in terms of combination of assets.

Driver Pinned In Truck After Vehicle Wrecked

A Manteo resident was jailed here Wednesday afternoon on a charge of driving under the influence following a one-vehicle wreck west of Greenville on the Belvoir Highway.

According to Highway Patrolman G. L. Swanson, 35-year old Desmond Alexander Rogers Jr. of Box 481, Manteo, was injured when the truck he was driving left the road in a curve approximately 1.3 miles from Greenville and struck a utility pole.

Pt. Swanson said that Rogers was pinned in the vehicle and the Greenville Rescue Squad was called to cut him out. Rogers was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released, the patrolman reported.

The accident occurred at 4:26

p.m., it was reported, and traffic on the road was held up until utility crews could replace the downed pole and clear the highway of electrical wires.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said this morning that his department had preferred a charge of assault on a female against Rogers and total bond has been set at $450. A hearing has been scheduled in District Court for Dec. 9.

Young Theft Suspect Is Found In A Storm Sewer

A hunt for a 15-year-old Greenville youth ended about 8:30 last night when Greenville police officers and Pitt County Sheriff's Deputies helped the boy from a storm sewer behind Flanagan Building on the East Carolina University campus.

The boy had entered the storm drain more than a block away in an attempt to elude officers who wanted him in connection with the larceny of a motorcycle from a Route 9, Greenville home, and with a break-in.

Tuesday night, officers chased the youth — reportedly armed with a .22 caliber pistol and 100 to 150 rounds of ammunition — into a wooded area bounded by Tenth Street, West Rock Springs Road, 14th Street and Anderson and Lawrence Streets, but he eluded capture.

Last night, he was sighted in the same area but as officers converged, into the woods behind the Post Office substation, he ran and disappeared. However police recovered the allegedly stolen motorcycle.

Later, someone reported seeing the boy enter a large storm drain at the edge of Greene Mill Run near the railroad crossing on Tenth Street.

Sheriff's officers, wearing protective armor vests entered the drain and found the boy stuck in a smaller pipe 600 to 800 feet from the mouth of the drain.

Officers said the motorcycle the boy was alleged to have stolen was taken Nov. 1 from a storage building at the home of James Hudson on Rt. 9, Greenville.

RUSHING THE SKI SEASON — Anxious for the ski season to start, Matterhorn Sports Club members and friends got in the mood recently with a "Ski Flight", by chartering a 747 to fly them over favorite ski trails in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. Along the way they were treated to a fashion show and demonstrations of pre-ski conditioning exercises.

Southern Specialty: Recipe For Pecan Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There are various kinds of pecan pie. All the authentic versions call for dark corn syrup but after that the ingredients vary. Some versions use granulated sugar, some brown sugar. Some recipes call for flour or cornstarch, others use no such thickening. Most often pecan halves are put in, but occasionally the nuts are chopped. Eggs, like corn syrup, are always used but their number varies. Sometimes butter goes in, sometimes it doesn't.

Most pecan-pie fans like this dessert best when it is ravishingly rich. So when recently we tasted a pie that fits into that category we asked for the recipe to pass along to you. In spite of its richness, it doesn't call for butter.

CRUNCHY PECAN PIE
9-inch unbaked pie shell, see below

1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
4 large eggs
2 cups dark corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped pecans

12 pecan halves for garnish
Prepare pastry shell and refrigerate.

In a small mixing bowl stir together the sugar and cornstarch.

In a medium mixing bowl beat eggs just enough to combine yolks and whites. Stir in sugar-cornstarch mixture, corn syrup, vanilla and salt, blending thoroughly.

Sprinkle chopped pecans over bottom of pie shell. Pour syrup mixture over pecans. Arrange pecan halves on top around edge of filling.

Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven 10 minutes; reduce temperature to 325 degrees and bake until filling is firm and top is cracked and puffy—40 minutes. Cool.

Serve with unsweetened whipped cream garnished with very thin slices of preserved ginger. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

PIE SHELL

11-3rd cups sifted flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup (quarter-pound stick) margarine

2 tablespoons cold water
In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour and salt.

With a pastry blender cut in margarine until particles are tiny. Sprinkle water over mixture while tossing with a fork so mixture is well blended. Press dough firmly into ball with hands. (If mixture seems crumbly, work with hands until it will hold together.) Flatten dough slightly and roll out to 12-inch circle on floured pastry

Her Purses Became A Jet Set Status Symbol

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL
VENICE (UPI) — Roberta di Camerino's rise to head of a multi-million dollar accessories business started with purses that have since become status symbols among those in the jet set.

Mrs. di Camerino has been at it now nearly a quarter of a century. When she decided after World War II to emphasize purses instead of hats as the main accessory, Mrs. di Camerino was ahead of her time.

"Hats used to give tone to a woman's outfit," she said. "I thought the purse could become the main accessory. I made them colorful instead of utilitarian. I had luck instantly."

A story in an Italian magazine brought her a contract from Neiman-Marcus, the giant Texas department store. That launched Mrs. di Camerino internationally.

Now she has stores in five Italian cities, franchises in Switzerland, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Sweden, and sells in boutique cloth, using floured stockinet-covered rolling pin. Fit loosely into 9-inch pie plate. Trim 1/2-inch beyond rim of pie plate if necessary. Flute edge. Fill and bake shell according to directions in recipe for Crusty Pecan Pie.

departments in many American cities, and in Japan, Turkey, Canada, Australia and South Africa.

Her son, Ugo, 28, is an architect working on plans for the restoration of Venice. He designed her new Rome store. Her daughter, Roberta, 22, has joined the firm, which now makes umbrellas, luggage and clothing, in addition to purses. A perfume was added recently.

Short Honeymoon Of Ten Minutes

PARIS (WNS) — Yolande Daude, 35, is in tears because she had the shortest honeymoon in the world. Ten minutes after Rolande Daude, 49, married her, he tried to shoot her, missed, and is now in prison. "I married him after we had lived together for ten years because he was so jealous of other men who talked to me," cried the bride. "Once he got me home to our apartment on the Rue des Belles Feuilles, he said he had the legal right to shoot me. I'm glad that he's a bad shot."

Couple Exchanges Vows In High Noon Ceremony On Friday

FOUNTAIN — Miss Lillian Carlett Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gardner of Fountain, became the bride of Thomas Preston Purvis, son of Mr. and Mrs. James William Purvis of Fountain, in a high noon ceremony Friday.

The Rev. William Marshall Tredway IV officiated at the ceremony performed in the Fountain Presbyterian Church.

The bride wore an heirloom gown of ivory peau de soie and alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls and crystals. Her mantilla was of illusion and alencon lace. She carried a cascade of Tiarra roses centered with a white orchid.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. James Talmadge Bowman Jr., of Greensboro. The bridegroom's father was best man.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. William Mercer, church organist.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was given by the bride's parents in the Crown Room of The Heart of Wilson.

Mrs. Purvis was educated in the Fountain and Farmville Public schools, the Southwood Preparatory School and Pitt Technical Institute.

Mrs. Purvis was educated in Greenville and Farmville public schools and East Carolina University.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Bailey of Greenville were recent visitors at Florida's Silver Springs.

University. The couple are now enroute to Homestead, Fla., where they will reside while he completes his present duty with the United States Air Force.

After-Rehearsal Party

An after-rehearsal party was given the Purvis-Gardner wedding party Thursday night by Mrs. George Jefferson Jr. and Mrs. Cedric Woodall, aunts of the bridegroom, at the Jefferson home in Fountain.

The house was decorated with arrangements of white and pink sasanquas and chrysanthemums.

The bride's table was covered with a white Maderia cloth and centered with an epergnette and candelabra filled with white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Morris Leggett of Hobgood, aunt of the bride, served the three tiered wedding cake and Mrs. William Bundy of Norfolk, Va., aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch.

The bride-elect was presented a corsage of white chrysanthemums by the hostesses.

Who Should Pay Toll Charge On Telephone Calls?

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend called me up last night and it turned out to be a rather lengthy conversation as I was in a rather talkative mood. Well, since the calls between us are toll calls, he said, "Let's hang up, and you call me back so you'll pay for the rest of the call."

After I thought it over I became very angry because I thought he was being cheap. Isn't the expense of toll calls part of the cost of courting? Besides, I've ironed and mended his clothes on occasion, and have had him over for meals, so I think I've reciprocated. I told him that a gentleman should not even mention the cost of phone calls to a lady.

Anyway, that incident has come between us. I said I had never heard of such a thing. He said it's being done by other people. What do you think of a boy asking a girl to call him back to save on the toll charge? JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: It depends upon how much money each party has, and the relationship between them.

DEAR ABBY: I am a secretary and one of my duties is to open my boss's mail. The past few months he has been getting some pornographic advertisements. I didn't examine this material very closely, I just destroyed it. On a few occasions he has asked me if that was "all" the mail there was, and I have said yes.

I'm wondering if I should continue to destroy this disgusting material, or should I get my courage up and give it to him?

You may want to use this in your column since other secretaries must run into the same problem, but if you do, please sign me "WONDERING IF" without disclosing my name or town because if my boss sees this, I won't have to wonder anymore. "WONDERING IF"

DEAR WONDERING: ALL mail addressed to your boss should be handed over to him. For you to act as a self-appointed censor is both presumptuous and illegal. And if he's been anticipating some of the mail you destroyed, and finds out that you intercepted it, you could be in trouble and OUT of a job.

DEAR ABBY: I am a lonely widow. Several years ago, when I was teaching school in another city, I met a handsome, retired military officer. He was a wonderful dancer, good company, and always a perfect gentleman.

On our third date I said, "I make a good salary as a teacher. How much do you get in the way of retirement pay?"

He never asked me for another date. What did I do wrong? ETHEL IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR ETHEL: You asked him a question with a "ring" in it, for which he was not ready.

DEAR ABBY: My husband lies so much he actually believes his own lies! It is so embarrassing to me and the children.

I told him he needed to see a head doctor, but he thinks everyone should see one but him. Is there any hope for him? He's only 49. Maybe you can reach him. I've given up. LIAR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: One who confuses facts with fantasies is out of touch with reality, which is a condition, not a moral deficiency.

There is indeed hope for your "49'er" if he admits he needs help and is willing to seek it.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Limbs In Limbo In Washington

WASHINGTON (WNS) — Julie Eisenhower started a trend when she broke her toe, now nicely mended, thank you.

A half dozen Washington V.I.P.'s are hobbling around with a limb in limbo. Muriel Humphrey, for example, who broke her foot; Benetta Washington, wife of the capital's mayor, who is in a wheelchair; and Mouza Zumwalt, Russian-born wife of the Navy's Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Elmo "Bue" Zumwalt. Both Assistant Chief of Protocol Marion Smoak and Counselor to the President Donald Rumsfeld got their foot injuries on the tennis court.

Meanwhile, Linda Bird Robb, still wearing a neck brace after a tumble in her own back yard, has recovered enough to head an anti-pollution project with the Law Wives group of which she is a member as the wife of University of Virginia law student Chuck Robb.

When Robb worked at the Judge Advocate General's office in Washington this summer, Lynda Bird boned up on environmental matters at the offices of Concern, Inc. so she could start some do-it-yourself projects with the Law Wives this fall.

Rated 'X' At Versailles Palace

VERSAILLES, France (WNS)

— Guardians at the famous Versailles Palace have complained that, despite the 1960 law demanding that visitors be "properly dressed," young female tourists enter the chateau in swimsuits, see-through blouses and barefoot. "One American girl thus dressed sat down at Marie Antoinette's harpsichord and started to play," reported a guard. "When I told her it's forbidden, she replied, 'But I paid to get in.' " Matters are even worse outside in the palace garden. As one "surveillant militaire" put it, "Young couples used to be content to make love discreetly in Marie Antoinette's arbor. Now they seem to need a public. I have to tear them apart in the main alleys. Even the Sun King would blush at what goes on."

wheelchair for the past 13 years, paralyzed from the waist down because of a hospital mishap that destroyed the nerve centers in her spine.

After several years recuperating and regaining her strength, going through the strenuous rehabilitation training and making living adjustments, she began looking for a school to obtain an education.

The Foothill campus was a compromise because her first choice could not be negotiated in a wheelchair "without having a severe heart attack."

Part of the five-year school period was required because of health problems connected with her disability, but she also delayed deciding what she wanted to do with her life. She had always been an active woman before the accident and found a life of confinement hard to accept.

On a trip to the Veterans Hospital in Long Beach, Sharon became acquainted with the California Wheelchair Association's track meet, where the handicapped take part in competition in a variety of events.

She became involved in javelin, discus and shotput, winning the state record in several levels.

Her experience in wheelchair athletics led her to want to work with returning veterans.

"They always seem to get such a kick seeing someone like themselves taking part in more active sports," she said.

Emphasis On Health Programs

Dr. Edwin Monroe has proven himself eminently qualified for the position of vice president for health affairs at East Carolina University. The physician was named to the position by the university's executive committee Monday.

Dr. Monroe was a practicing internist in Greenville when he was called upon to join the ECU staff as dean of Allied Health and Social Professions program which was under development. Although some of the allied health programs were underway, the most important task lay ahead. That was development of a medical school at East Carolina University.

Since then the medical school has been organized and the first year of medical education has been approved and funded by the state legislature. Applications are being processed and the first class of approximately 20 students will begin its work next fall.

At the same time other health programs are rapidly developing and the new allied health building is nearing completion on Charles Street.

We have no doubt that there will be great growth ahead for the health programs at East Carolina University. Medicine, nursing, allied health programs and social professions will increase in size and scope as time goes by. As it grows the ECU health affairs program will involve itself more and more in regional developments in health care. Considering the need here in the east and throughout the state, development of these ECU programs will be one of the most important undertakings for North Carolina in the 1970s.

The creation of the vice presidency for health affairs is a desirable move at ECU and Dr. Monroe is well qualified for the position.

Finlator Cites Political Role

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — The preacher in politics isn't meddling, but tending to his proper business.

"The church always has been in politics in this country," said the Rev. William W. Finlator of Raleigh. "The status quo, Jesus gave a simple formula for true religion, Finlator continued, when He told His disciples that as they fed the hungry and visited those in prison, they did the same for Him. "This is how we serve Jesus: by ministering to the basic needs of even the least of men," he said.

If the political structure keeps people in poverty or captive to submerged social and economic status, he argued, the practical ministry must be to change the structure.

That route lies through thickets of controversy. His Tar Heel brethren are accustomed to Finlator as the initiator of nettlesome issues.

He'll be ready with two resolutions likely to provoke debate when the Baptist State Convention meets later this month in Charlotte.

One will call on Baptists to urge President Nixon, as a gesture of reconciliation, to grant amnesty to all who have evaded the draft and military service because of the Viet Nam war.

The other will oppose the "prayer in schools" amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The resolutions may fail, Finlator agreed, though he thinks the second will find some favor. In any event, he added, they raise questions which should be debated.

Undisturbed By Disagreement

Disagreement does not unduly perturb him. "There is room for dissent within the fellowship," he said. While Baptists often have disagreed with him, he observed, they never have excluded him from fellowship.

He preaches with candor, interpreting the Biblical word to today's society. Often his sermons cut across the grain of opinion among his hearers bringing in intense reaction.

"I do not speak for the congregation, but to the congregation," he said. "They are autonomous individuals, but they are together in their insistence that the pulpit be free."

Pullen Memorial is as unusual as its minister. Adjacent to the N.C. State University campus, its membership includes about 30 Ph.D.'s, and more than two dozen ordained ministers. It is one of a handful of churches in the state dually aligned with the Southern Baptist Convention and the American (Northern) Baptist Convention.

The church is a conserving force that assures continuity with change, Finlator said. It will survive, he said.

The task for church members, he added, is not to reverse the structure but to renew the institution for service to man and the world. That means a ministry in the spheres of work and politics as well as worship within the church walls.

Significant Choice In Speaker For Graduates

U. S. Rep. Edith Greene (D-Oregon) has been announced as speaker for the 63rd annual commencement at East Carolina University, and she should have something to say to this university community.

Mrs. Greene was author of the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963 and she has a strong interest in higher education. The fact that she is a woman seems to be unusual among college commencement speakers, and this should make her visit here even more significant.

Dr. Leo Jenkins extended the invitation to Mrs. Greene at a recently White House Conference on Higher Education. Her visit here will be a welcome one.

Show Signs Of Battle Fatigue

By JOHN KILGO

CHARLOTTE — Mecklenburg voters, showing signs of battle fatigue and weary from barrages of facts and counter-facts, troop to the polls Friday to vote on questions that have something to do with liquor.

You can't blame the voters for not being sure what the question is, because election officials themselves aren't sure they can explain it.

The North Carolina legislature, you will recall, gave Moore and Mecklenburg counties the right to vote on liquor-by-the-drink on a local option basis. It was a pilot project, so to speak.

To understate the case, Charlotte voters, lawyers, civic leaders, election officials and politicians are confused.

The questions on the ballot Friday will be simple enough. For or against liquor-by-the-drink under the comprehensive plan; and for or against brown-bagging should liquor-by-the-drink be approved.

From there on, the matter becomes unbelievably complicated. Superior Court Judge W. K. McLean has ruled that parts of the law that gave Mecklenburg the right to vote on liquor-by-the-drink are unconstitutional. He rules that only government-owned buildings would be able to sell liquor-by-the-drink under this law.

The McLean ruling has been appealed — but the liquor forces are still in a semi state of panic. What if the McLean ruling holds up and voters approve liquor-by-the-drink but vote out brown-bagging?

It would mean that Charlotte-Mecklenburg would end up about as dry as the First Baptist Church. Brown-bagging would be out and you could buy liquor-by-the-drink only at buildings like the Charlotte Coliseum.

Not exactly what the wet forces had in mind.

The Mecklenburg legislative tried to ride to the rescue last week while the legislature was in special session. They got the General Assembly to adopt an amendment to the Mecklenburg act, which said if parts of the local act are ruled unconstitutional, then the entire election would be void and Mecklenburg would go back to drinking liquor the way it does today.

But one able lawyer in the Mecklenburg delegation told me: "There is no doubt in my mind that the amendment itself is unconstitutional and would be so found in a court of law."

What about the questions voters will decide Friday, what do they mean?

Attorney Allen Bailey, who heads the dries, says: "In view of Judge McLean's ruling, the voters will be voting yes or no for liquor-by-the-drink in government-owned buildings only."

Insurance executive Raymond King heads the wets. He disagrees with Bailey and believes voters will be deciding on liquor-by-the-drink for Class A

Strength For Today

GET GOING FAST

Once in a while as we drive contentedly along the highway we encounter a sign which informs us that a certain point we can cross the highway and start going in another direction.

This is usually a welcome sign. Maybe we forget something and have to go back to the house and get it. Maybe we've had enough driving. Maybe we are so crowded by traffic and irritated by folks blowing their horns that we want to call it a day and get back home as soon as possible.

There are a lot of people in this world who ought to be making a turn and starting back in the opposite direction. Theology refers to such a turn with the word "conversion." Every one of us if he or she looks far enough into the inner life, will have to confess that we ought to start going in the opposite direction — and fast. It's pathetic to see a person becoming a problem drinker and later an alcoholic. It's scandalous the way gossip begins with a few words whispered in a huddle and then goes on to ruin a reputation. The habit forming drug situation is by all odds the most dreadful thing humanity has faced in recent generations. Don't let us fool ourselves for a moment that we can take a mild habit-forming drug and be satisfied. The first taste of the stuff and we look longingly at the next step which people say has real kick in it. A real addict is in a bad way — so bad, in fact, that his or her life could be ruined almost overnight.

When anything begins getting us we had better watch for the sign that will enable us to turn about and start going in the opposite direction.

Fox-And-Hound Accord

SCRABBLE, Va. — This is fox-hunting country, here on the slopes of the Blue Ridge Mountains, but beyond the borders of Rappahannock County the pasture is rarely brought up. A man learns to be cautious. Speak of fox hunting in certain precincts, and some dame from Women's Lib is sure to start yelling brutality.

Whatever the steeplechasing sport may be in less enlightened districts, it is positively not brutality here. It may do no harm to correct some wrong impressions. On the face of it, there may seem something a little one-sided in the thought of one 40-pound fox being pursued by 20 hounds, the huntsman, two masters, and a field of 50 horses possessed at the outset, before the first jump, of 50 riders, especially when the putative object is not to eat the fox, but simply to kill the little critter.

The appearances are misleading. Mark Twain once remarked that the safest place in France is halfway between the pistols of two Frenchmen engaged in a duel. By the same token, the safest place for a fox in these hills is about 100 yards in front of the Rappahannock hounds.

This is not to disparage the hounds. They are beautiful animals, white and lemon-spotted, superbly disciplined — at least when a hunt is getting under way; they are great actors, and they have a fine sense of humor. What has eliminated brutality, or so it is said, is the union contract — the contract, plus our subterranean housing supply. It takes a little explaining. Fox hunting in these hills, one is unreliably informed, is strictly governed by an agreement entered into many years ago between the foxes and the hounds. The contract expires on September 30 of each year, but it has been annually renewed with only a single strike — an 11-day misunderstanding in 1963 — to mar an otherwise perfect record of labor relations.

Under the terms of this admirable compact, the foxes agree to be hunted on Wednesdays and Saturdays from October to April, not earlier than 10 o'clock nor later than 2, with three 10-minute rest breaks at the huntsman's discretion. The hounds, for their part, agree to hunt "with diligence, but without lethal intention" — that is how the contract reads. In the event of snow, everything is put off to Tuesday.

Grievances are taken to arbitration before the tripartite Society for the Preservation of Our Foxes, but grievances have been few and sessions of SPOOF are rarely convened. Indeed, the last such meeting occurred eight years ago, when two headstrong members of the hunt by sheer inadvertence cornered a young fox in what appeared to be a shallow

Other Editors Say Eliminating Ills

(Jacksonville Daily News)

In light of much recent bad publicity over various aspects of blood donation and transfusion, the American Association of Blood Banks has embarked upon a nationwide public education campaign.

The program aims to recruit more volunteer blood donors and thus eliminate the high risks of hepatitis and other infectious diseases associated with bad blood donation practices.

The AABB is especially upset about clinics that pay blood "donors" to "contribute."

"We must convince people that only they can eradicate bad practices and paid donors through volunteering to give blood. We want to eradicate the paid donor as quickly as possible," Dr. William G. Battaile, AABB president says.

Battaile explains that paying for blood not only increases the likelihood of transmitting hepatitis through transfusions — by attracting a certain lower class of donors — but it discourages voluntary donations as well.

He notes that blood transfusions were actually the first human tissue transplants since blood is actually a living tissue.

"If we continue to allow for the payment for blood eventually we will have to put price tags on hearts, kidneys and lungs, and permit human bodies to be bartered to the highest bidder."

The AABB estimates that currently only about three percent of the 100 million medically fit adults in this country give blood each year voluntarily.

Are you one of the three percent? If not, remember that the nation's blood needs are rising about 12 percent each year. This year blood banks need seven million pints of human blood. One of your own relatives or friends may be among those in need.

The United States made sales agreements for $284 million worth of agricultural products to hungry nations from May through September under Title I of Public Law 480, the Foreign Agriculture Service reports.

Under this law, the U.S. accepts payment in local currencies and the payments are earmarked for beneficial spending in the country concerned. For example, $88.7 million worth of cotton, wheat, soybean and cottonseed oil, tobacco, nonfat dry milk, feed grains and sweetened condensed milk were sold to Saigon. Payment will be in piastres, 80 percent of which will be earmarked for defense.

These bargain sales, by getting rid of surpluses, also help maintain U.S. farm prices.

It was announced today that the curb market has discontinued services on Thursdays during the winter months but will be open as usual on Tuesdays and Saturdays. The usual splendid supply of products of Pitt County farms will be found on sale during the two-day winter schedule and the three-day schedule will become effective again next year when increased offering make it necessary.

The city standpipe, main water supply tank, is receiving its first new coat of paint in six years changing the drab black color to aluminum. Painters started their hazardous task yesterday and it will take several days to finish the job. The supply tank is located on the court house square and because of its height, the painters can be seen at their work for quite a distance.

It was announced today by T. Y. Walker, theatre manager, that children bringing groceries for the poor will be admitted free to a series of matinees at the State Theatre during the winter months.

COMMENT: The next step should be to give persons between 24 and 64 student rates.

Model Changes Proved Costly

About a million autos and trucks have been recalled by manufacturers for safety changes in the past 12 months. The latest recall is for 340,761 Capris and Cortinas made in Europe by Ford for sale in U.S. and other countries for steering adjustment.

COMMENT: While the seldom-changed Volkswagen has also figured in recalls, it would seem that there would be fewer recalls if there were fewer model changes. If a part proved faultless one year, it would appear to be risky to change it. And fewer model changes might keep new car prices down, as they have done on the Beetle.

Low Casualty Count In Vietnam During Week

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command's weekly casualty summary today said only two Americans were reported killed in action last week in Vietnam, the lowest total since March 1965.

But a spokesman for the command acknowledged that restaurants, as the local act was written. At the same time, King is urging voters to also approve brown-bagging.

Judge McLean appears to agree with Bailey's interpretation of the ruling.

William Culp, executive secretary of the Mecklenburg Elections Board, doesn't know what to believe. His lawyer is saying one thing, Bailey something else, and the attorney general's office something else.

In an unguarded moment of candor, Culp says: "I don't know what it is we're voting on."

Voters who call the Elections Board office for information on what the vote means get a no comment. Culp has ordered registrars not to interpret the questions for anyone.

"I don't know what we're voting on," Culp says, "so I doubt that the registrars do."

In this backdrop of legal rulings, interpretations, appeals, amendments and emotion, more than 50,000 Charlotte-Mecklenburg voters are expected at the polls Friday.

They are helped along by television commercials from both sides. The wets have produced one that shows a gangster-looking figure rubbing his hands saying: "If Mecklenburg votes no Friday, we'll be in business there just like during prohibition."

The dries have a production of a small boy playing with a football as a drunk staggers to his car. The boy chases his football into the street as the drunk driver slams into him, the camera stopping and the words coming from the announcer: "Vote positive. Vote no."

The battle won't be concluded Friday. There remains the matter of appealing Judge McLean's ruling to the State Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, the legislature wanted a pilot project on liquor-by-the-drink, and no one can say they didn't get one.

there were four more combat deaths last Saturday. He said apparently they were not included in the summary because of a delay in the military reporting system.

The spokesman, Maj. Richard Gardner, pointed out that the four deaths—three in a helicopter that was shot down and one in a ground action—took place on the last day of the week. Presumably they "didn't get into the reporting system" in time, he said.

Gardner indicated they would be added on to this week's casualties, which will be announced next Thursday.

U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird had announced on his arrival in Saigon Wednesday night that the total of American battlefield deaths last week was the lowest since the United States assumed a combat role in Vietnam in March 1965. Apparently no one warned him about the vagaries of the reporting system.

The U.S. Command also announced that 63 Americans were wounded in action last week, 21 fewer than the week before. Another 19 died from accidents or illness, the Command said, 13 less than the total of deaths from nonhostile causes in the previous week.

Fewer South Vietnamese and enemy casualties also were reported last week.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 269 government troops were killed and 562 were wounded, compared with 394 killed and 700 wounded a week earlier.

The two allied commands claimed 1,058 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed last week, compared with 1,284 the week before.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war: American—45,586 killed in action, 302,167 wounded, 9,879 dead from nonhostile causes.

South Vietnamese—135,279 killed, 293,177 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—780,632 killed.

In time the legend spread that women were dainty defenseless flowers to be guarded against all possible dangers and treated with a host of foolish and unnecessary courtesies. The legend also grew up that women were romantic-hearted and too flighty to deal with money matters.

What a fraud, palmed off on a bumbling man by women themselves!

The average woman, as every other woman knows, has the heart of a tigress and the mind of a steel trap.

But now, for a reason known only to themselves, women want to dress, act, and work like men and to be treated as their equals. They want to step off their protected pedestals and go into the marketplace.

One wonders what the advantage to them is unless they wish to work themselves to death at an earlier age—just like men.

But what a lucky break it is for a sensible young man. As his bride strives more and more to be like him, he can warily become more and more like she used to be—and perhaps in time climb up on the pedestal she deserted.

groundhog hole.

The devil was in them. They dispatched a groom for picks, shoves and four six-packs of beer and spent a hot afternoon trying to dig the fox but. They began with a hole big enough to bury a Volkswagen, but by five o'clock they had run out of zeal and malt liquor alike. They threw 24 beer cans down the hole and went home. The foxes' union complained bitterly that young McTavish had suffered unspeakable trauma and the strike followed. The hunters apologized; eventually tempers cooled.

Since that regrettable day, only two foxes have died during hunting hours. One was struck by a truck on Route 522, four miles east of Sperryville. The other died of a heart attack on Little Mason Mountain. This remarkable record is not to be attributed wholly to altruism. The fact is that our county has a population of 5,199 persons and four million groundhogs, and the groundhogs have left abandoned apartments everywhere. A fox is seldom more than 50 yards from a sign saying "vacancy" or "to let." As a result, the field ordinarily spends 30 minutes pursuing the fox and three hours pursuing the hounds. We had our first hunt of the season on Saturday. It was a great success. The incumbent president of the foxes' union gave the hounds a nice workout before retiring at noon to his den. All the horses behaved like gentlemen. The only casualties were to be found among occasional riders and inexperienced guests, who later were observed to be eating their breakfast standing up. It hurt too much to sit down.

Name-Change Heralds Greater Service

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Health Department became the Pitt County Community Health Department Oct. 27.

The name change, approved by the County Board of Health, and the announcement of the retention of Dr. Robert D. May as health officer are heralds of improvement and expansion of public health services in this county.

"Members of the County Commissioners, the County Board of Health, and other Pitt Countians I've talked to so far have expressed a desire to develop a public health program of the high caliber of Pitt Memorial Hospital and the private physicians here. That's a whale of a big challenge and it's going to take the concerted effort of all out citizens," Dr. May said.

Dr. May recently completed his residency in public health and preventive medicine in Prince George County, Md. The Florida native practiced general medicine and pediatrics for 17 years in Pennsylvania before he decided to attend the University of North Carolina to get his Master's degree in public health and preventive medicine. He and his 18-year-old son, Robert L. May, are moving here.

The Board of Health has instigated a study of the health needs of Pitt Countians. It is divided into five parts according to ages. These and their respective chairmen are as follows: 0-5 years — Arthur S.

Alford; 5-15 years — Dr. O. R. Pearce Jr.; 15-25 years — Sammy Carson; 25-65 years — Vernon Cox and Reginald Gray; and 65 years plus — Dr. Charles Fitzgerald and S. M. Edwards.

The groups will study mortality (death) and morbidity (illness) statistics for each age range. Migration will also be dealt with, as will such influences on health as diet, housing, and the like. All available sources of facts, including many studies that have already been done by East Carolina University, Pitt Technical Institute, the Home

Extension Service, and other agencies. "We don't want to draw this thing out," Dr. May said, "because we want to get on with planning programs to alleviate the adverse conditions we find. Six months would be the longest I'd want the study period to last.

"We want to emphasize that this is a community project and we want the help and ideas of any citizen who will participate. We will welcome calls from any person who wishes to serve on any of these five groups or to otherwise contribute suggestions."

Dr. May would not talk about specific programs that he believes need to be implemented here. "Our study will spotlight these needs and set our priorities," he said.

He did say that prevention, much of which is simply public education, is the prime function of the Community Health Department. "Every field, whether it's family planning, nutrition, environmental improvement, or whatever requires information disseminated to and digested by those who need it," Dr. May said.

The Department has been divided into three divisions: Personal Health headed by Mrs. Violet Jones, Environmental Health headed by Linwood Kilpatrick, and Administration headed by Mrs. Eunice Pearce.

"I really am impressed with the many resources available here and I know we can put all of them to use. We want to start using mental health associates from the Pitt Tech program right away, and if a sanitarian's assistant curriculum is developed, we could participate in their training, also. Of course, we hope to work closely with the ECU Medical, Allied Health Professions, and Social Work and other programs and projects and to provide practicum for students in these fields. The need to work with the hospital and the private physicians who have done such an excellent job of carrying the public health load while the county was without a health officer is a known fact. Cooperative projects with facilities like the Coastal Plains Mental Health Clinic, the Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, the Sheltered Workshop, the planned Vocational Rehabilitation medical facility, and state offices like the V. R. and Commission for the Blind here can also be expanded and developed. educational and other programs with neighboring counties. Disease doesn't respect county boundaries, you know," Dr. May said.

Barton's QT is lighter and milder than any whiskey you've ever tasted.

Because it's distilled at a higher proof than most traditional whiskey.

And it's stored in selected, seasoned barrels. (Traditionally, most whiskey has been stored in new barrels.)

And Barton's QT is filtered in a special way—to make it lighter and smoother.

Next year, we expect that many other distillers will also be selling whiskey distilled at a higher proof than traditional American whiskey and stored in seasoned barrels.

But there won't be another whiskey as light and smooth as Barton's QT for a long, long time.

For an illustrated booklet detailing the whole exciting QT story, just send a card to Barton's QT, P.O. Box 3376, Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Begin Strip Structures

The first of what will be a "strip" series of structures is now under construction in the shopping area north of Greenville Boulevard along the new portion of Arlington Boulevard.

To be called "Fashion Fabrics", the 4,500 square foot building now in early stages of construction is expected to be ready for occupancy about mid-February.

Skip Collier is to be general manager of the store, which is estimated to cost a total of approximately $95,000.

The first building on the block containing "Fashion Fabrics" will be a free standing building — the new ABC Package Store. Other buildings on the block will be attached to "Fashion Fabrics" to form what is referred to as a "strip of buildings" that will extend to the end of the block.

Additional Cancer Education Needed, Says ACS President

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The president of the American Cancer Society said today that some medical organizations should devote more of their energy to educating American doctors about cancer.

The sharp and unusual attack at the American Cancer Society's annual meeting came from Dr. H. Marvin Pollard, who criticized opponents of President Nixon's plan to set up a separate cancer agency.

Pollard, in a speech prepared for the meeting, said that the average doctor has a low level of suspicion of cancer in his patients and this hampers early diagnosis.

"Also, my own feeling is that if some of our major educational organizations, including the American Association of Medical Colleges, through its spokesmen, would concentrate their efforts on the field of cancer education, rather than attempting to maintain the status quo of the National Institutes of Health, far more would result," Pollard said.

Although the administration's "conquest of cancer" plan is strongly supported by the cancer society, it has evoked equally strong opposition from a broad segment of the medical and scientific community.

The program includes moving the National Cancer Institute from under the wing of the National Institutes of Health and having it report directly to the President.

The National Institutes of Health has supported major medical research programs for years and other institutes under its wing are concerned with such problems as heart, lungs, legic and neurologic diseases. Critics of the President's plan argue the move could lead to the destruction of the parent organization.

Pollard also indicated what the cancer society can do in educational areas and what direction it will go now that the Federal government is stepping up its research effort.

"The answer lies, I believe, within the potential of the American Cancer Society to assume the leadership—yes, and the responsibility—for fulfilling this major educational need," said Pollard, a professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan medical school.

"To do this will require tremendous organizational skill, and, of course, a considerable amount of money. The American Cancer Society has a respectable source of both."

Little Opposition Heard To High Court Nominees

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court nominee William H. Rehnquist faces more questioning by the Senate Judiciary Committee after liberal Democrats expressed concern about his conservative philosophy.

But no challenge was raised at a 6½-hour hearing Wednesday to the legal competence, integrity or judicial temperament of the 47-year-old Justice Department lawyer—a top aide to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the committee chairman, said Richmond, Va., attorney Lewis F. Powell Jr. would take the witness chair later today after questioning of Rehnquist is completed.

Rehnquist and Powell were named by President Nixon to fill the two vacancies on the high tribunal left by retirement of Justices John M. Harlan and the late Hugo L. Black.

Although Powell, 64, also is a conservative, little opposition has surfaced in and out of Congress to his nomination.

Such organizations as Americans for Democratic Action and the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights are opposed to Rehnquist's nomination, but they have announced they do not intend to fight Senate confirmation of Powell.

The American Bar Association's 12-member committee on the Federal judiciary notified the Senate panel Wednesday of its unanimous opinion that both Rehnquist and Powell are qualified to serve on the Supreme Court.

Such liberal Democrats as Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Birch Bayh of Indiana and John V. Tunney of California did most of the questioning at Wednesday's hearing.

Most of the Republicans, in the minority on the committee, Fine And Prison For 'Big Bookie'

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Louyn E. Summerford of Charlotte was fined $25,000 Wednesday for violating federal gambling laws. An FBI agent testified that during a wiretap Summerford was heard to describe himself as the "biggest bookie" in North Carolina.

Summerford had pleaded guilty two weeks ago to running a high stakes bookmaking operation from his home.

Judge Wilson Warlick of U.S. District Court also sentenced him to five years in prison, suspended upon good behavior for that length of time.

Two others who pleaded guilty in the case were fined $2,500 each and given three-year suspended prison terms. They were Jerry S. Norkett of Charlotte and Lee Pressley Snider of Las Vegas, Nev.

Bank Robbers Made Getaway

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Three bandits escaped with an estimated $5,000 to $7,000 from a branch of the First Union National Bank Wednesday in North Carolina's 31st bank robbery of the year.

A hidden camera took their pictures, but the robbers wore masks. Two of them had pistols.

They abandoned one getaway car—later found to have been stolen the day before from a car dealership—and were seen by witnesses getting into two other cars several blocks from the bank.

still were waiting for their turn when an overnight recess was called.

Here are some of the highlights of the testimony Rehnquist gave in a calm, deliberate manner in answer to questions put to him:

He said that government wiretapping is "not an appealing thing to do and is justified only by exigent circumstances." Such forms of surveillance, he said, are legitimate only "to solve a crime or prevent the commission of a crime."

A Case is now before the Supreme Court challenging Mitchell's contention that court orders are not required for use of wiretaps on groups or individuals he concludes constitute a national security threat.

Rehnquist strongly indicated that, if confirmed, he would disqualify himself from sitting in such cases since he said he had assisted in preparing the government's brief in the arguments now before the court.

He testified that the purpose of the Bill of Rights is "to put restraints on the government." He said just the fact that a court decision may restrict the police is no argument against the ruling.

The assistant attorney general, appointed to his Justice Department post in 1969 after practicing law in Phoenix, said he felt Ohio national guardsmen, in firing on Kent State student demonstrators, had made "misguided and unwarranted use of force."

But in answer to a question by Kennedy, he said he had not urged a federal grand jury investigation. He testified this was out of his bailiwick.

Rehnquist said he played only a minor role in the government's attempt to prevent publication of the top-secret Pentagon Papers by several newspapers.

Rehnquist said he believes in the "concept of neighborhood schools" and "has some reservations about transporting students great distances" to accomplish desegregation.

Rehnquist defended the mass arrests by Washington police of antiwar demonstrators who tried in May to shut down the government.

Questioned about antiwar amendments offered in Congress, Rehnquist said he has reservations about the constitutional power of Congress to pass legislation limiting a President's authority "to preserve or save the lives of men already legally in the field of battle."

But he said Congress' power to shut off funds to finance a war is so clear that he does not regard it as a debatable constitutional issue.

Panthers Have Job Of Stopping Saints

To North Pitt's Panthers, winless this year, goes the toughest job of all this week, stopping Southern Wayne's steamroller toward the Eastern Carolina Conference championship.

Actually, it is toward a share of the title, should both the Saints and Farmville Central win this weekend. They are currently tied for the top, but Southern Wayne handed Farmville Central its only loss, and by doing so would clinch the 3-A playoff berth for the league should they finish in a tie.

Greene Central is also waiting breathlessly in the wings. A victory by the Rams combined with the unlikely losses by both Southern and Farmville would propel the Rams into the title.

And for North Pitt, it doesn't seem like a job that is within reach.

The Panthers did pass a milestone in varsity football last weekend, however. They scored their first touchdown of the season, getting it late in the game against Ayden-Grifton.

It didn't help much, however, as the Chargers rolled to a 36-8 victory.

Elsewhere in the league last week, Greene Central stopped North Lenoir, 18-6, Southern Wayne got by Eastern Wayne, a much tougher game from Conley than they had bargained for. "We didn't play too well in the first half, but we did better in the second. A few penalties hurt us at times, and they were a lot better than we had expected. Conley has got a good ball club, and we were certainly impressed with them."

Robert Tripp drew praise from Brewer for both his offensive and defensive play. William Ebron and Jimmy Langley also were singled out everyone."

Wheeler added that Carmon would probably miss the game with an injury.

While North Pitt Coach Danny Wilmer realized that the odds are against the Panthers, he feels that they could provide some excitement in that big game with Southern Wayne.

"It's a question of attitude," he said. Noting that North Pitt hasn't had the experience of football before this year, he pointed out that this has had an effect on the spirit of the team. "They just haven't realized that you can get beaten badly one week then come back and get up and beat a much better team the next week," he said.

Wilmer praised Ayden-Grifton, his opponent of last week as the best North Pitt has faced this year. "The problems they've had down there have hurt the team, I'm sure," he said. "This is probably the only thing that has kept them from winning the title. We were beaten before the game started. Our kids had already given up."

Wilmer did single out Ronnie Briley, Lionel Carney and Charles Jenkins for their play against the Chargers. Jenkins scored the first touchdown of the season for the Panthers in the game.

The coach realizes that Southern Wayne must have the victory over North Pitt to claim the 3-A playoff berth for the conference, and he would like to do something about it. "If we could just convince our players that they CAN win," he said, "we just might be able to get up and do something."

Actually, four teams could still in theory win the title. Farmville and Southern Wayne are tied now, but if both got beat and Greene Central comes out a winner, the Rams could take it. And if Greene Central were to fall also, Ayden-Grifton would pull into a three-way tie with Southern and Farmville, bringing about a vote of the coaches to decide the title.

22-7, Southern Nash thrashed Charles B. Aycock, 42-6, and Farmville edged past Conley, 14-2.

This week, the battle comes to an end as all of the teams wind up the regular season. Greene Central hosts Eastern Wayne, Southern Wayne is at North Pitt, Farmville travels to Aycock, Southern Nash is at Conley and Ayden-Grifton plays host to North Lenoir.

A-G Coach Nelson Gravatt was pleased with the play of his team against North Pitt last week. "We did a real fine job," he said. "We stuck mostly to our ground game, and we got to play a lot of people who haven't played much this year."

Gravatt singled out Mike Griffin for his running in the game, as he picked up around 125 yards. Terry Harper, Ricky Allen and Kent Loftin also drew praise for their blocking.

This week against North Lenoir, the Chargers hope to sew up a victory to close the year. "North Lenoir has a real fine running back, and we'll have to stop him," Gravatt said.

"They have been making a lot of mistakes and this has hurt them," he added. "They have a good defensive team, but have been beaten badly the last few weeks. They're hurt and will be wanting to make a good comeback for the finish."

Gravatt said the game would close out the career for 19 seniors. It is also Homecoming at Ayden-Grifton.

Farmville Central's Gene Brewer said that the Jaguars got for their play in the game.

"They'll be ready for us," Brewer said of Aycock. "They have a pretty good club, and they are better than their record indicates. They've had quite a few injuries, but they should have most of these players back for us."

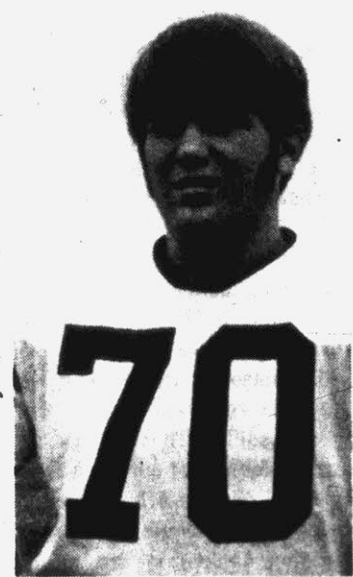

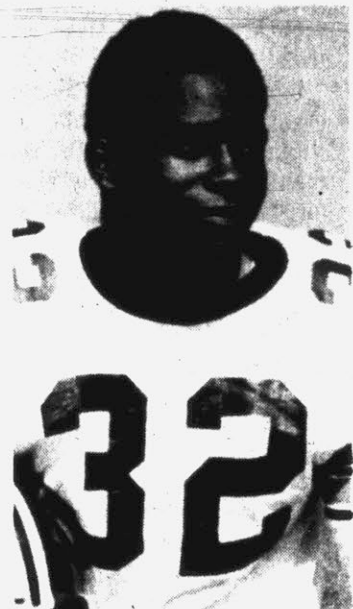

Brewer's opponent from the previous week, Conley's George Wheeler, also felt that his team played a pretty good game. "It was mostly a defensive battle. We got a safety on them in the first half, and they didn't score until late in the third quarter, so we thought we did pretty good."

Wheeler noted that Conley drove toward scores on three occasions, but that mistakes cost them each time. "They are the best team we've played, and they hit harder than anybody we've met," Wheeler said of the Jaguars.

Wheeler gave special praise to the entire defensive unit of the Vikings, and also singled out Ted Carmon, Stencil Hines and Alton Nicholson. "We respect Farmville more than any other team we've seen this year. They were well-coached," he added.

This week, Conley closes its first varsity season against rapidly improving Southern Nash. The Firebirds surprised Southern Wayne, 24-22, to hand the Saints their only league loss of the year four weeks ago. They lost a close one to Ayden-Grifton, 14-0, the next week, then slaughtered Aycock, 42-6, last week.

"They have been pretty tough," Wheeler said. "They've come a long ways, and we are definitely ready to play them. We feel like we'll have to have a top performance from

Two Wins In The Hand Worth More Than Bush

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If your boss came in one day and said, cut off your mustache, that's an order, would it improve your work?

Coach Ed Khayat of the Philadelphia Eagles gave the order to his team two weeks ago. There was grumbling, but off came the mustaches.

The Eagles had lost their first five games of the National Football League season, two under Khayat, who succeeded Jerry Williams as boss after the third game. Minus the hair on their lips the Eagles won the next two games.

Did the mass mustache shaving—22 Eagles had to run for the razors—make the difference?

Ed Khayat laughed at the question. A former player on the champion Eagles of 1960, he knew his players didn't run, pass, block or tackle with their lips.

He made no bones about the reason for the victories—seven recovered fumbles, three pass interceptions, a blocked kick that became a touchdown, guards who pulled out and knocked down a few people.

The coach explained his thinking behind the shave-off edict.

"Good grooming is one of the many facets of discipline," he said, repeating what he said at the time of the order.

Khayat said he disliked shaving but did it every day.

The players were unhappy with the loss of their mustaches. Tim Rossovich, the middle linebacker, was the most vociferous objector. He's not yet ready to forgive and forget. He says he feels like he's in the Army. All he wants is for the coach to tell him how to win.

Quarterback Pete Liske takes a realistic approach to the two-game winning streak.

"I think our winning comes down to playing the caliber of teams we're playing now," Liske said. "We were successful in preseason playing the caliber of teams we should beat, and we've been successful against that caliber of team again." The Eagles posted a 4-2 pre-season record, defeating the New York Giants, New Orleans Saints, Buffalo Bills and Oakland Raiders, while losing to Houston and Detroit. Oakland was the only team of strength defeated and that was an opening exhibition game in which the Raiders experimented. In regular season it was Oakland 31-10.

The two victories since the mustaches came off were against the Giants and Denver Broncos, not exactly the elite of the NFL. The theory that Khayat made his players angry by the mustache ploy, and that psychologically they became a better team gets an acid test Sunday against the tough Washington Redskins (6-1). If the Eagles upset the Skins that would be a hairy one.

Trevino Shows Why He's Popular

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Lee Trevino had addressed the ball and was ready to start his backswing when the click of a camera—which wasn't supposed to be there—disturbed his concentration.

He backed off, walked around muttering to himself and again addressed the ball.

"Click," went the camera again.

Again Trevino backed off, obviously angry.

"Lady," he said to the women with the camera, "I'll pose for you all you like when I get through, but please don't do that when I'm playing."

And he walked around muttering some more, then got off the shot.

He went immediately to the highly embarrassed woman, grabbed her program to autograph it, bussed her on the cheek, posed for a picture and then headed down the fairway. Behind him he left a fan for life.

It was a small action, a tiny incident, but just part of the way Trevino has quickly established himself as one of the most popular players pro golf has ever known.

Trevino, the top-heavy favorite for the title when he set out in the first round of the Mexican National Open today, presents a grinning face, non-stop chatter and a happy-go-lucky attitude to the world. But he has a dead serious approach to the game and his responsibilities to it.

The 31-year-old came from a poverty background to become the game's greatest single-season money-winner, a pinnacle he passed last week when he pushed his earnings for the year to $227,243.

"I want to put something back in it, to use some of the help it has given me to help other people."

So saying, he promised to donate any prize money he wins in this tournament "to the Mexican National Orphanage. I don't know the father's name or just where the orphanage is, but I promised him I'd donate anything I win to the orphanage."

He has a history of such charitable gifts.

Blackman Does Job At Illinois

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — For a while it looked as if Bob Blackman's parachute wouldn't open when he leaped from the Ivy League Tower comforts as Dartmouth's winningest football coach to the University of Illinois.

His Illini lost their first six games this season, being blanked in the first three after Blackman had avoided shutouts at Dartmouth for 90 consecutive games.

Then the 52-year-old coach pulled the rip cord and the Illini upset Purdue and Northwestern the last two Saturdays. They will be favored to defeat Indiana this weekend.

"That losing streak was one of the most frustrating times in my life," Blackman told the Associated Press. "But when I started at Dartmouth in 1955, we lost our first five—then got going. And that's what we're doing now."

Blackman's aim at Illinois was rebuilding statewide enthusiasm for the university which was shaken first by a slush fund scandal then by a record of only five Big Ten victories in four years under Coach Jim Valek.

Fanfare for the 1971 campaign was unprecedented at Illinois with the publicity department drumming out a theme of "It's a Whole New Ball Game." Blackman was victimized by the over-sell.

After six straight losses, he said, he received crank letters suggesting he return to the Ivy setting and even anonymous

He donated 2,000 pounds to an English orphanage after winning the British Open this summer. Earlier in the year he gave $5,000 to St. Jude's Hospital when he won the Memphis Open.

He gave away his entire purse to set up a caddy scholarship fund a couple of years ago when he took individual honors in the World Cup at Singapore.

In 1968 he won the Hawaiian Open, and immediately set aside $10,000 to set up an education fund for the children of Ted Makalena, a Hawaiian pro who had died in a surfing accident just a few months earlier.

phone calls at his home.

"We had to gather enthusiasm," said Blackman, who toured the state selling Illinois football like an oldtime medicine man. "But I knew during spring practices that were extremely thin in spots and had many deficiencies. We had a young team, and, in some respects, some slow learners of a new system we wanted to install. And we had a team that didn't think like a winner."

Blackman revealed that there was a star status disciplinary factor that had to be overcome.

"We had to establish the fact that rules are made for everybody," he said. "And when some players learned that we wouldn't look the other way if they didn't abide by the rules, then new respect was given us. Because of rule violations, we left a fine linebacker home when we opened the season at Michigan State and left a top defensive back behind when we went to Southern California."

"After Ohio State scored twice in the first five minutes because of our mistakes and then we held them to a 24-10 victory in our fifth games of the season, I thought we were at last ready to play," Blackman said. "Then injury took three-fourths of our backfield."

"So, besides a back-breaking opening schedule against six teams ranked in the nation's top 20, we had a combination of things to overcome. Before the Purdue game I really had a strong feeling that we were going to put it all together and win. And we did."

Blackman said there is not much difference in coaching in the Ivy League and the Big Ten.

"Everything is relative," he said. "The alumni wants to win just as much there as here."

"Nowadays, coaches attend clinics all over the country and study movies of many teams. There is nothing really new. There is no such thing as sectional type football. The only

Fourth Period Has Been Bad For Teams

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
It would come as no great surprise if Southern Conference football coaches, with William and Mary's Lou Holtz and Davidson's Dave Fagg in the lead, conduct a drive to eliminate or shorten the fourth quarters of all games with nonleague opposition.

They'd probably get some support from Richmond's Frank Jones and Appalachian State's Kim Brakefield—but The Citadel's Red Parker would greet such a move with mixed emotions.

Only furman's Bob King, East Carolina's Sonny Randle and Virginia Military's Bob Thalmann might take a neutral stance, for they're the only three conference coaches who haven't seen victory turn into defeat in the last 15 minutes or less where outside opponents are concerned.

Conference teams have taken on nonleague opposition in 32 games, winning 12 and losing 20. If the fourth period, or a part thereof, had been wiped out, exactly one-fourth of the games would have gone the other way and the conference would be 20-12 against the outsiders.

League champion William and Mary, for example, would be 8-0 over-all and 4-0 against non-league foes instead of 5-3 and 1-3. Davidson would be 3-1 instead of 1-3 outside the circuit, Richmond would be 1-3 instead of 0-4 and Appalachian would be 5-1 instead of 4-2.

Holtz's Indians led West Virginia 21-7 after three periods, led Virginia Tech 30-28 with 10 minutes left and were in front of North Carolina 35-28 with six minutes remaining. But West

Virginia won 28-23, Tech won 41-30 and North Carolina won 36-35.

Davidson led Wake Forest 7-0 after three quarters but lost 27-7 and was in front of Wofford 22-14 at the three-quarter mark before losing 24-23. Wofford also trailed Appalachian 16-8 after three periods but rallied to win 26-16.

Jones' Spiders led Southern Mississippi 24-17 in the final period before falling 31-24, and The Citadel had a 21-14 lead over Presbyterian after three periods but was edged 24-23.

But Parker might not be willing to change on the basis of that result, for his Bulldogs came from behind 35-24 to beat Bucknell 38-35 and 29-23 to whip Boston University 44-37.

By contrast, the fourth quarter has been decisive in just three of 13 conference games so far.

Rate Hike Pleas In Conflict With Phase II Curbs

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Despite President Nixon's Phase II economic controls, North Carolina's auto insurance, electric and telephone companies are saying they will have to have substantial rate hikes to maintain a sound financial status.

High Schoolers Will Vote, Too

PIKEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Dr. James Bearden of East Carolina University estimates that 152,000 high school pupils in North Carolina could become eligible to vote next year under the age-18 provisions.

auto liability and one collision insurance rate hike requests. In five of the cases he has made his decisions but has locked them in his desk drawer until the freeze ends.

Harry T. Westcott, chairman of the state Utilities Commission, said the agency has not had to hold up any decisions because of the freeze. But it has four major and several lesser rate requests in various stages of hearings which will have to be decided during Phase II of the economic controls.

"When the time comes to decide these cases we will abide by whatever economic controls are in effect," Westcott said. Lanier said depending upon what the Price Commission policies are, he may well have to change some of the rulings in the cases which he has completed but not released.

"I'm not automatically going to release something just because Nov. 14 arrives," he said. "I've been giving a lot of thought to it. I don't know anything to do but just to hold anything until we get definite guidelines. I hope the commission comes out with something very definite."

The requests now lying in La-niar's drawer are a 20.5 per cent average increase in general fire insurance rates; a 10.6 per cent increase in auto liability insurance rates filed in July, 1970; a 4.6 per cent hike in garage liability insurance; a 21.3 per cent hike in commercial car liability insurance; and a 12.5 per cent hike in workmen's compensation rates due to legislative changes which increased benefits.

Lanier is involved in hearings on a request for a 23.5 per cent increase in automobile physical damage insurance and a July, 1971 request for a 21.4 per cent hike in auto liability insurance.

The Utilities Commission docket includes requests by Southern Bell Telephone Co. for a 16.8 per cent rate hike; an increase totaling $139,115 for Lee Telephone; an increase of $3,110,457 for Central Telephone; an 11.75 per cent rate increase for Duke Power Co.; a 19.63 per cent hike for Carolina Power and Light Co.; and a hike of $1.4 million for Virginia Electric and Power Co.

Southern Bell, which was granted a $13.3 million rate hike Aug. 2, just before the freeze, filed its new rate request Oct. 15. It is also appealing the August ruling to the courts since the commission gave it little more than half of what it asked for.

In its October request the firm said inflation has taken an "irreparable toll" and is the main factor that renders the present rates "unjustly and unreasonably low."

Southern Bell Vice President John J. Ryan said at the time that the firm did not want the hike put into effect until the freeze ends Nov. 12.

Sudden Death For N.C. Writer

GREENSBORO (AP) — Mrs. Janet Elizabeth Cox Speas, 45, assistant professor of English at Guilford College and author of several novels, died in Olympia, Wash., Tuesday. She was visiting her brother, who is seriously ill, and apparently she had a heart attack in the hospital where he is a patient.

Among her novels are "Bride of MacRugb," "My Lord Manleigh," "My Love, My Enemy," and "The Crying Season." She also had short stories published in national magazines.

But he said he hoped Mr. Nixon's Price Commission "will recognize the unique position of utilities in respect to lagging rates and that the company has every intention of abiding by the standards that are established."

The general manager of the North Carolina Automobile Rate Administrative Office, Paul Mize, said, "we think the rate level situation for auto insurance is self-evident — they're very inadequate."

Mize said he doesn't know how Phase II will affect insurance rates, but he said rate requests are based on past experience and the industry doesn't feel the rates were at a fair level before the freeze.

The auto liability rates requested in the July, 1970 filing were held up pending completion of a court case on the 1969 filing.

Shearon Harris, president of CP&L, said, "One of the announced objectives of President Nixon's economic plans is to stimulate business expansion and thereby create additional jobs."

"Expansion by businesses in our service area will place additional demands on us for electricity, making it even more imperative that CP&L's construction program proceed as scheduled.

"It is also imperative that our earnings be restored so that we will be able to attract capital in the financial markets to pay for this construction program," he said.

Salinger Blasts Political Costs

EXETER, N.H. (AP) — Former presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger says "a major area of scandal in American politics" is the estimated $200 million he says the major political parties will spend next year in their presidential campaigns.

Salinger told about 75 persons Wednesday night at Phillips Exeter Academy that federal legislation is needed to control this outlay of money, most of which goes to television advertising.

Salinger, who was press secretary to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, was stumping in New Hampshire for Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., who seeks his party's presidential nomination next year.

Harris noted that despite any possible effect the freeze may have had on revenues and expenses, "It certainly will not serve to reduce our incurred higher costs as reflected for the year ending June 30 (1971)." The 19.63 per cent request is based on the year which ended June 30. The Utilities Commission is now holding hearings on the request.

CP&L got an 11.86 per cent hike last February and an interim 5.63 per cent hike in June.

The commission recently completed hearings on Duke Power's request for an 11.75 per cent hike, which includes a 7.1 per cent interim hike granted July 1. Duke got a 10.38 per cent hike March 1.

$25,000 Sought For ECU Foundation

WILLIAMSTON — A large group of leading citizens of Martin County have organized a drive to pledge a minimum of $25,000 to support the East Carolina University Foundation. Pledges were obtained at a promotional meeting at the Roanoke Country Club here this week arranged by Martin County supporters of East Carolina University headed by Mayor N. C. Green of Williamston. The dinner meeting was attended by a number of ECU officials including Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU president, Gen. John A. Lang Jr., vice president for external affairs, Reynolds May, director of the ECU Foundation, and others. Addressing the meeting, Dr. Jenkins said the time has come "to paint a new picture" of Eastern North Carolina. "The agency best able to do this is East Carolina University," he said. Dr. Jenkins said, "There must be a massive coordinating effort involving as many people as possible" in building a favorable image of the Eastern North Carolina region and to improve the standard of living. The promotional meeting here was the first of a series of meetings planned to help East Carolina University raise $200,000 in order to meet a challenge gift of $100,000. Dr. Jenkins disclosed that ECU is moving toward a planetarium and "other things that we need that we cannot get from tax money." He mentioned a 35,000 seat athletic stadium which will be used not only for athletic events involving major opponents but also for "great evangelical crusades and great out door concerts." He called for a Continuing Education Center for institutes, seminars, short courses and workshops as "another tool to help us serve our region." East Carolina University, he said, "must become a great university."

Hunt Attacker Of Two Women

A Greenville woman was allegedly raped and an out-of-state woman assaulted in separate incidents after their cars were stopped at different times in an area north of Greenville, over the past five nights.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said his department has been concentrating its efforts toward apprehending the attacker.

The latest of the incidents occurred Monday night and involved a woman identified by the sheriff as Mrs. Blanche Gulino, 48, of Westbrook, Conn.

Her car was stopped by a white man on N.C. 11-U.S. 13 about four miles north of Greenville about 8:15 p.m. She told officers the man, dressed in civilian clothes, asked to see her drivers license, then opened the door of the car, pushed her down in the front seat and began to pull at her clothing.

Mrs. Gulino told officers that she began to scream and to blow the car horn and her attacker was apparently frightened away.

The first of the attacks occurred Saturday night, according to the sheriff.

He explained a 35-year-old Greenville woman was attacked after her car was stopped by a white man on a rural road off the Belvoir Highway about 9:15 p.m. The sheriff said the woman was on her way to a Halloween party and had made a wrong turn, when she was stopped.

She told officers the man, in civilian clothes, asked to see her drivers license, then forced her down on the front seat of the car and assaulted her.

Sheriff Tyson declined to identify the Saturday night victim.

Five Injured In Accident

Five persons were reported injured in a 1:04 p.m. mishap here yesterday on U.S. 264, 100 feet East of the Bismark Street intersection.

Police identified drivers involved in the crash as Frances Smith Dreps, 26 of Raleigh and Elta Hardison Davis, 24 of Route 6, Greenville.

Officers reported Mrs. Davis and two passengers in her car were injured while two passengers in the Dreps vehicle were reported injured.

Damage was set at $400 to the Dreps auto and $500 to the Davis car.

Mrs. Davis was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Opening lead: Four of ♠

Altho North and South bid their hands to the hilt, proper technique by the latter could have redeemed the ambitious bidding.

The first round of the auction was routine. North's jump to three clubs was a slight stretch. His suit is broken and the jack of spades is a questionable value. South temporized with three hearts and when this was raised to four, he was warranted in proceeding to slam. It might have been better strategy to cue bid the ace of spades and await partner's reaction.

His ultimate decision to go

all the way after the aces were accounted for was based on the expectation of finding either a solid or readily establishable club suit in dummy.

West opened the four of spades. East covered dummy's eight with the ten and declarer won the trick with the ace. There seemed to be little more to the hand than developing North's club suit and there were apparently plenty of entries available to accomplish this purpose.

So reasoning, South led over to the jack of hearts and continued with the queen—drawing trumps when the suit divided two-two. The ace of clubs came next, on which West dropped the queen. A small club was ruffed with the seven of hearts—however, when West showed out, a serious complication had set in for declarer. With the clubs dividing five-one, the North hand no longer had enough entries to profitably develop the club suit.

Dummy was reentered with the king of diamonds to put the jack of clubs thru. East covered with the king and declarer ruffed with the eight of hearts. The ace of diamonds, North's last entry, enabled South to cash the ten of clubs—on which he discarded the nine of diamonds. When the eight of clubs was led, East covered with the nine and declarer was obliged to trump in his hand.

At trick 13, South conceded the ten of diamonds to West's jack for the setting trick.

The extremely adverse division in the club suit was admittedly an unlucky break for declarer, however, he could have taken measures to protect himself. When a heart is led to the jack at trick two and both opponents follow suit, South is assured of no worse than a three-one trump break. He should therefore temporarily shift his attentions to the development of clubs by cashing the ace and then ruffing a small club with the king of hearts, on which West shows out.

A second heart is led to the queen and when the remaining hearts fall, South is well on his way. The jack of clubs is put thru to ruff out East's king and North retains two entries in diamonds: one to cash the ten of clubs and ruff out East's nine and the other to lead the now established eight of clubs for the discard of declarer's ten of diamonds.

If West turns up with three hearts headed by the ten and only one club, the suggested line of play will not succeed. But in that instance, the grand slam cannot be made, no matter what course declarer takes.

Cash Flow Plan Advised For Families

By LINDA RUBEY
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — First National City Bank suggests families who have trouble making ends meet use the "cash flow" accounting procedure practiced by America's biggest corporations.

Basically, the cash flow technique matches cash outgo against income, indicating how much money the family needs and how much spending it must postpone to keep expenditures under control and achieve long-term financial goals.

"The secret of cash flow is that it doesn't try just to match the cash you have today with the expenses you have today," the New York bank explains. "Rather it tries to anticipate your expenses for the whole year and compare them with the money you'll have coming in for the whole year." The bank suggests the use of five different work sheets.

The first is a list of the types of income a family has coming in. The second records a family's fixed expenses, over a year, which the bank suggests can be obtained by going through past checkbook stubs, receipts, income tax returns and other records that might help the family remember what its unavoidable expenses were last year.

The third sheet tells the family how much discretionary income they have for variable expenses or what they have left after they have subtracted fixed expenses from income.

On the fourth worksheet the bank suggests families record how they want to spend this discretionary income for things such as vacations, clothing, entertainment and medical expenses. On the fifth worksheet, variable expenses are subtracted from discretionary income.

Obviously, the bank points out, if the discretionary income is greater the family has no budgetary problems. But if variable expenses are greater, cuts are needed.

The system allows families to make sure money is available to cover unexpected emergencies and some of the extras of life, the bank says.

"And more importantly by analyzing your cash flow, you can uncover areas of expense that might be cut to help you make ends meet today and increase your savings for the future," it continues.

Boston, Mass. was incorporated as a city in 1630.

The Worry Clinic Cheaper Books Are Discarded

Prof. Jason's observation is correct. But many "quickie" paperback textbooks are produced and then discarded by the students at the end of the course. For colleges now "pressure" faculties to produce journal articles and paperback texts, for prestige purposes and salary increases.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-510: Prof. Jason is using my college textbook.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "the students certainly enjoy the book."

"In fact, they even hold on to it at the end of the semester, for our campus bookstore seldom has any used copies to sell.

"But wouldn't it be well to put out a paperback edition at a cheaper price?"

"Many other textbooks are now available in that form, so why not yours, too?"

Book Psychology

Prof. Jason is correct in saying there has been a marked trend toward, cheap paperback books.

And their lower price is often a vital factor.

A textbook that really stabilizes a student in his thinking and offers him practical techniques for lifelong success, is far more likely to be retained for his personal library.

My "Psychology Applied" thus covers the 21 basic fields where you can earn a good salary by using practical psychology.

Thus, its 21 chapters have one each on Advertising Psychology, Salesmanship, Writing, Music, Politics, Medical Psychology, Religion, Public Speaking, Marriage, Child Rearing, etc. It is geared to the everyday social and business problems faced by students even while on the campus and also when they later seek a job or marry.

Professors routinely comment on the fact the students take my textbook home after the course is finished.

Even their parents often pore over the book for practical hints.

Now I don't wish to belittle the cheaper mimeographed books and paperbacks, for they serve a purpose.

But, alas, they often do not prompt the student to want to keep his textbook for his home library.

Yet students should be more familiar with their college textbooks than with any other texts they will ever read.

So they usually wish to retain those that they know will be of lasting benefit.

For they often may wish to consult those former textbooks to double check on certain points of vital current interest.

And I find that a hardbound volume that looks attractive on your bookcase shelves, will more likely be kept for lifelong reference!

In the professional schools of medicine, dentistry, law and engineering, the students seldom get paperback textbooks.

For they expect to retain their college texts for prolonged future reference.

My college textbook falls in that same category of professional volumes with lifetime value.

Which is why it has already had 1,207 college classroom adoptions.

For the basic laws of practical psychology do not change.

They are as universal and eternal as Euclid's mathematics! Incidentally, his math text was used in colleges for 2,000 years!

Fads occur in textbooks and colleges now "pressure" their faculties to turn out reams of writing, as in technical journals and paperback textbooks.

But this "forced" writing is usually verbose and trite, with but little permanent value to mankind.

However, it produces faculty promotions and thus is essential for salary increases!
