Honor Youngest Mayor

NEWCOMERSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan and some 1,700 other well-wishers have turned out to celebrate the election of 19-year-old Ronald Hooker as the nation's youngest mayor.

The Ashland College economics junior said he was "determined to justify the faith of those who have entrusted me with public office."

He defeated four other candidates Nov. 2 to become mayor of this village of 4,600 in eastern Ohio.

"Those who advocated a change in legislation to allow 18, 19 and 20 years olds to vote did so not to hold out some special favor to youth, but because they felt the government would be better, stronger and more reflective of the total society if the young people of the country were admitted to full citizenship," Gilligan told Hooker at the celebration Monday night.

Teachers' Objective

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — A spokesman for North Carolina school teachers says longer employment — not salaries — will be the big issue for teachers in next year's election.

Dr. Jerry Paschal, head of Political Action Committee for Education (PACE), told newsmen on WUNC-TV Monday night that 10 months employment for teachers and 12 months for principals will likely be PACE's number one objective.

PACE has announced plans to raise $250,000 to back a gubernatorial candidate pledge to education next year.

He said PACE has been meeting with all the gubernatorial candidates and it is still too early to predict which one it will support.

Private Schools Plan

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A nine-point plan of action has been adopted by members of the Southern Independent School Association, which held its fourth annual meeting here Monday.

The association represents 396 member private schools with an enrollment of an estimated 176,000 pupils in seven states — Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and Georgia.

Included in the plan of action is the formation of committees to deal with communications between member schools and state associations; to provide legal assistance for schools involved in court action; to set up guidelines for the selection of textbooks; and to maintain accreditation of schools and testing of pupils.

Well-Treated By VC

SAIGON (AP) — A West German social worker released by the Viet Cong after nearly three months' captivity said today he was treated "very well."

Peter Schrader-Rottmers, 31, of Schuettdorf was freed Monday near Quang Ngai City on South Vietnam's northern coast. He walked into a South Vietnamese outpost, and an American medical helicopter took him to Quang Ngai. After spending the night aboard the German hospital ship Helgoland, he arrived in Saigon today.

Schrader-Rottmers looked pale but generally healthy. The West German Embassy said a news conference would be arranged in the next two or three days.

The man led a seven-man German team working in Quang Ngai Province. He was visiting a refugee hamlet last Aug. 14 when he was captured.

Park Role To Be Underscored If Name Is Changed

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A change of name from Greenville Recreation Department to Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission has been recommended for consideration by the City Council.

Members of the Recreation Department unanimously approved the recommendation Monday night.

"I think Greenville has reached the stage in acquisition of recreation and park property where it must be maintained properly," Dr. Herbert Hadley, who made the motion, commented. "In the past we've used part-time, off-season help from the City Street Department. If we don't make a move to establish a Park and Recreation Commission we're going to be in trouble maintenance wise."

Dr. Hadley and other commission members acknowledged that although City Street Department personnel have been doing an admirable job, they felt there needed to be a specific authority designed to deal with all aspects of city parks.

If the City Council approves the change in name, the charter for the Recreation Department will need to be revised to reflect a parallel change in responsibilities applicable to the department.

Recreation Director Boyd Lee noted, "Dr. Hadley has been talking about, hoping for this for a long time. I feel it's time we take action along this line."

Commission members also approved a request by Lee to submit to the City Council a change in a budget item. The request is to transfer $2,000 in the budget now earmarked for black-topping some basketball practice areas in various playgrounds to a project that would provide the Recreation Department with urgently needed additional office and storage space. Lee explained that $2,000 would provide funds for partitioning an area in the Elm Street gym to make a new office space and relieve the pressure of lack of space in the present office arrangement.

A change in the monthly meeting night was approved. The new meeting time will now be the second Wednesday night, at 7:30 p.m., with meetings scheduled in the Elm Street gym in the television room.

As a matter of information, Lee informed commission members that Mayor S. Eugene West, with the approval of the City Council, has made application for additional city employees under President Nixon's Emergency Employment Act. Lee said that in the event an extra person is eventually authorized for the Recreation Department, it would be someone to head Special Activities and serve as Youth Coordinator. Under the Emergency Employment Act, any personnel employed is paid

Organized Labor Protesting New Ceiling On Wage Hikes

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's Pay Board has imposed on American workers a 5.5-per-cent general ceiling on yearly wage increases, bringing angry protests from organized labor.

The Pay Board rejected by a 10-5 vote Monday labor's demand for retroactive payment of negotiated pay boosts which were caught in the wage-price freeze, except in a handful of cases.

"They have abrogated our contracts," said President George Meany of the AFL-CIO. However, a federation spokesman said the AFL-CIO convention, starting in Miami Nov. 18, will decide whether the federation will cooperate.

The board in fact bowed to labor's other key demand, approval in full of deferred pay increases scheduled under union contracts already in effect. But it ruled that these raises are subject to challenge and possible rollback if found to be "unreasonably inconsistent" with the 5.5-per-cent general standard.

Asked whether the five labor members of the 15-man, labor industry-public board would quit, Chairman George Boldt replied promptly: "I am confident they will not."

He got that impression, he added, from conversations with the labor members. But an aggrieved union could take the Pay Board into court, and it seemed equally probable that the AFL-CIO leaders would ask Congress for relief. They already have a toehold at the Capitol; the House Banking Committee last week approved Phase 2 guidelines which, among other concessions, would grant labor its demand for retroactivity.

President Paul Jennings of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers said he would formally recommend to the AFL-CIO convention that the federation and its unions "use every resource at their command to undo the injustice that has been perpetrated by the Pay Board majority at the clear instigation of the Nixon administration."

Walter W. Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, said the guideline "makes a lot of sense ... It is about the best we could have hoped for." He added:

"It does provide a basis for achieving President Nixon's objectives of getting down to about 3 per cent inflation by the end of next year."

The Pay Board's guideline policy was drafted by the five public members headed by Boldt. It was supported by the five industry members. At the decisive, late-afternoon meeting of the Pay Board, the industry five had offered a proposed guideline that was similar to the public members' in many respects; it was rejected.

Then the public members offered their version. Business supported it, and labor voted no. The five industry members later issued a statement endorsing the standard and asking "the voluntary cooperation of all Americans" in its support.

"It is equitable and fair to all, requiring almost every American to make some sacrifice, as any control program must do," the statement said.

Nixon's other major Phase 2 panel, the Price Commission, is expected to issue price-increase guidelines within the next several days.

The Pay Board faces more hard work; it must draft regulations to implement the new rules in time for their promulgation before the President's 90-day wage-price freeze ends on Saturday at midnight.

This requires publication in the Federal Register, the official journal of the government. If the deadline is missed, the existing freeze rules will remain in force until the regulations take effect.

The guidelines leave the door ajar for settlements above the 5.5-per-cent standard. In reviewing new contracts, the board said, it will consider "ongoing collective bargaining and pay practices and the equitable position of the employees involved, including the impact of recent changes in the cost of living upon the employees' compensation."

This seemed to authorize above-standard wage boosts to correct inequities between comparable groups of workers, as well as catchup increases for those whose pay has lagged far behind living costs.

Red China Delegation To UN Leaves Peking Today

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Red China's official delegation to the United Nations left Peking for New York today to the cheers and chants of thousands.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from the Chinese capital that several thousand persons shouted slogans, sang and danced as Chiao Kuan-hua and his staff of about 50 boarded a Chinese airliner for Shanghai where they will pick up a foreign commercial plane for the trip to the United States. They are due here Wednesday. An advance group arrived on Monday.

The U.N. envoys were personally seen off by Premier Chou En-lai and other members of the Politburo of the Chinese Communist party, Tanjug reported.

Chou was reported by a newspaper in Hong Kong to have gained new power in the Peking leadership.

When the Chinese U.N. envoys finally settle in a U.N. headquarters it is likely they will be under the same travel restrictions that the Russians are but they will be better off than the Cubans, a U.S. source said.

The source said he anticipates that the Chinese will be allowed to move freely within 25 miles of Columbus Circle, roughly the midpoint of Manhattan. Except for specific areas that are off limits, however, they could travel anywhere outside that radius by giving 48 hours' notice.

Up to now, such regulations have been applied to diplomats of the Soviet Union and its Byelorussian and Ukrainian republics because U.S. diplomats in the Soviet Union are similarly restricted in their movements.

Stricter regulations apply to the U.N. delegations from Albania, Cuba and Mongolia because the United States has no diplomatic relations with their governments. Diplomats from those countries must ask permission to travel beyond the 25-mile limit, and it is seldom granted.

Even though the United States and Peking do not have diplomatic relations, the source said there is no thought of applying such regulations to the Red Chinese. He did not explain why.

Rains Delaying N. Viet Push

SAIGON (AP) — Torrential rains, by some accounts the heaviest in 100 years, appear to have delayed North Vietnam's annual dry season push of war materials southward.

Informed sources said today that the main supply network, the Ho Chi Minh trail running through eastern Laos, is now beginning to dry up and truck traffic has increased slightly.

"But there is no big push yet," said one source. "Typhoon Hester seems to have delayed any significant enemy activity. It was anticipated the push would begin the last half of October and things would be well under way by now."

Typhoon Hester caused catastrophic damage in the northern quarter of South Vietnam two weeks ago and dissipated over eastern Laos. Rains spawned by the storm caused landslides and interrupted road construction along the 300-mile trail network.

B52 heavy bombers and smaller tactical fighter-bombers kept up attacks along the supply route in efforts to further stall construction and knock out what little truck traffic there is.

The B52s also launched strikes in the northern quarter of South Vietnam, hitting North Vietnamese storage areas and bunker complexes seven miles south of the northernmost provincial capital of Quang Tri.

The U.S. Command disclosed the loss of two helicopters in South Vietnam to enemy ground fire. An AH1 Cobra gunship was shot down Monday north of the A Shau valley, a transshipment point off the Ho Chi Minh trail. There were no casualties reported.

Communities Working To Form New Fire Dept.

Five small villages and cross roads areas in the southwest corner of Pitt County have come together to work for the establishment of a fire department.

Gardenville, Clayroot, Honolulu, Coxville and Stokestown areas on Monday received an incorporation authority to establish a rural fire department from North Carolina Secretary of State Thad Eure.

Bobby Joyner, Pitt County Fire Marshal, said the incorporation charter is today being recorded in the Pitt County Register of Deeds office.

After receiving the charter yesterday, interested citizens of the five communities immediately called a meeting last night and elected officers.

Robert Halstead was elected president; Wesley Brook, vice-president; Robert Halstead, Jr., secretary; and Allen Stokes, treasurer.

Twenty-six persons were present at the meeting. Another meeting is scheduled November 22, to be held at Timothy Methodist Church Community Building. Persons supporting the formation of a fire department to serve the area will be canvassing the neighborhood to solicit funds for the purchase of a fire truck.

Joyner said that at the same time plans were being formulated for a site to be chosen for the department. He said it is his understanding the new fire department will be called the Gardenville Fire Department.

Once established, this will be the 18th rural fire department in Pitt County. Joyner said the area of the five communities was the only area in Pitt County that does not now have fire protection in the immediate area.

Trainee Grants Are Announced

Two grants totaling $46,962 have been awarded the East Carolina University School of Home Economics and the ECU Division of Continuing Education for programs to train Head Start and Follow Through personnel.

The awards, given to ECU by Supplementary Training Associates, an agency funded by HEW, will be used to provide funds for allowing full-time employees of Head Start and Follow Through programs to continue their education.

According to Allen Churchill, project director at ECU, a number of persons will earn bachelor's degrees in early childhood education or related fields.

Trainees will be chosen from applicants whose income level is under the Career Development Committee economic standard.

Under similar awards last year, ECU enrolled 80 Head Start trainees this fall, said Churchill. By the end of September, 44 Follow Through trainees had completed a total of 861 quarter hours at ECU.

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Servicemen used a military weather wire in Vietnam to raise more than $5,000 for a kidney transplant for a 22-year-old Vietnam war widow, and the money still is coming in.

Air Force Sgt. Enos Waldroop of Canton, N.C., who engineered the fund drive in Vietnam, was in Waynesville last week and gave a $5,400 check to the widow, Mrs. Christine Hooper Rogers.

Mrs. Rogers, being kept alive by twice-weekly treatments with an artificial-kidney machine, has been offered a kidney by a disabled World War II Navy veteran, Lawrence W. Haywood, 62, of McKeesport, Pa.

Mrs. Rogers' doctor, R. Stuart Roberson, says tests must be conducted on Haywood to determine whether or not the kidney would be rejected.

Waldroop, who is home on leave after finishing his tour of duty in Vietnam Oct. 29, said the $5,400 was raised after he put a message on a weather wire at Tan Son Nhut Air Force Base. He was stationed with the 1st Weather Group there.

He said weather communications outfits in other parts of Vietnam passed the story along to combat units, military policemen outfits and other groups.

Waldroop said one GI, Darrell Scott, stationed at Phan Rang, collected $1,700 by himself by knocking on doors. Another GI, he said, is giving $100 a month for the remaining six months of his tour in Vietnam, and yet another has pledged a large part of his re-enlistment bonus.

"I couldn't even get on the plane (coming home) without people handing me cash," Waldroop said. "And I know its not over yet."

Waldroop brushes off compliments of his efforts by saying, "Oh, it was just an idea. It caught on because it was a way of passing the time in Vietnam. Everybody there wants to make their time go faster, and it was a lot better than shooting books."

Waldroop said he first learned of Mrs. Rogers' plight at Norfolk Navy Base in Virginia, where one of Mrs. Rogers' brothers was stationed.

The $5,400 check presented by Waldroop to Mrs. Rogers at her parents' home near Waynesville is not the only financial help coming in. The Waynesville Optimist Club has raised $4,000.

The transplant is expected to cost the family $14,000, 25 per cent of the total cost. The rest will be paid by GI insurance.

Mrs. Rogers has lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hooper, since her husband, an Army man, was killed in a firefight at Pleiku, South Vietnam, Dec. 1, 1968.

They had been married one year.

Mrs. Rogers' father said Monday that his daughter has had kidney trouble about 12 years, but that only in April did it begin threatening her life.

She was at Mission Memorial Hospital in Asheville on Monday when word arrived at the family home about the World War II veteran offering to donate a kidney.

"She's pretty sick right now and I don't think she's able to come to the phone," Hooper said Monday night. "She just got back from one of her treatments."

The treatments with the artificial-kidney machine, which take six to eight hours each, cleanse body poisons from Mrs. Rogers' blood, a task the kidneys ordinarily perform.

In offering the kidney, Haywood said, "I'm not in perfect health, but I think my kidneys are perfect." He called the Waynesville Mountaineer newspaper Monday after reading a story about Mrs. Rogers in a McKeesport newspaper, he said.

He said he was a retired crane operator who had to quit work about 12 years ago because of a back injury suffered in World War II.

"I talked it over with my wife," he said, "and she said it was okay with here if I thought it was the thing to do."

Jobs For Vets Fair Planning Is Shaping Up

Plans continue to shape up for efforts to make the forthcoming Jobs for Veterans Fair an event that will reach as many returning veterans as possible.

At a committee meeting held early Monday afternoon, Bill Bruner, vice chairman of the Jobs for Veterans Fair, heard reports from several committee chairmen on the status of preliminary plans made to date. The fair is scheduled to be held at the National Guard Armory early in December.

Originally programmed for Greenville and Pitt County, there is a possibility the planning will be extended to include several surrounding counties, with invitations to be extended to major firms and industries to participate.

Basically, firms or businesses taking part will agree to have one or more representatives on hand to explain to interested veterans any job possibility, including the nature and scope of employment.

Letters seeking active participation are being drafted to go to the major firms encouraging their active participation and asking for a response so that planners can make provision for assigning space to participants at the fair.

A series of personal appearances by members of the Mayor's Committee on Jobs for Veterans have been designed to acquaint the public with the purpose of the task force. To date A. B. Whitley, Dr. J. W. Pou and Walter Tucker have been guests on "Carolina Today" television show.

Lloyd Nooe and K. F. Taylor were guests on the show today to discuss the role of the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina in relation to unemployment and job opportunities.

Others scheduled for future appearances on "Carolina Today" include Dr. William E. Fulford, on training opportunities open to veterans, on November 16; the interview of a veteran on November 23; and Mayor S. Eugene West and C. W. Snell in a special invitation and encouragement to veterans to attend the Job Fair. This latter program will be on November 30.

Nixon Praised As Peacemaker

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Presidential advisor Harry Dent told a Queens College symposium in Charlotte Monday that President Nixon is the "greatest peacemaker ever known."

Dent, a native of St. Matthews, S.C., and former aide to Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said he later told a closed meeting with about 150 local Republicans that prospects are bright for Nixon to carry all 11 southern states next year in the presidential election.

"The image of President Nixon as a man of peace is catching on among college students," Dent said. He added that Republicans will work hard on college campuses during the upcoming campaign.

Life Sentence To Be Appealed

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for Marie Hill, a 20-year-old Rocky Mount girl whose death sentence was overturned by the Supreme Court, have filed notice of appeal to a life term she was given Monday.

Miss Hill was given the new sentence by Superior Court Judge Albert Cooper. She had been convicted of the robbery and shooting of a Rocky Mount storekeeper.

Her original sentence was ruled invalid by the high court because persons with conscientious objections to the death penalty were excluded from the jury.

Miss Hill is represented by attorney Julius Chambers of Charlotte.

Public School Prayer May Be An Issue In Coming Elections

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional fight for specific constitutional approval of prayer in public schools has been lost for this year but may become an issue in the 1972 elections.

The battle to offset a 1962 Supreme Court decision that the 1st Amendment bars states from composing prayers for use in schools was lost in the House Monday.

It got a majority, 240 to 162, of the total votes cast but needed two-thirds for approval.

Musicians Tour Japan

James Houlick, Assistant Professor of Saxophone at the School of Music, East Carolina University, and Dr. Charles Stevens, Chairman of ECU's piano department, are touring Japan during November.

The tour for the two faculty musicians has been made possible through the support of the Yamaha International Corporation and a grant from the Research Council of ECU.

On the tour, Houlick, currently the International Coordinator of the World Saxophone Congress, will be giving recitals and clinics at Japanese universities and music centers. He will also do research work regarding saxophone instruction and performance in Japan.

Stevens, who performed with Houlick throughout the United States in concert performances for the past five years, will be accompanist for Houlick for the

JAMES HOULICK performances in Japan. The Japanese tour marks Houlick's first performance outside the U.S.

Retired Soldier Is Police Chief

SPRING LAKE, N.C. (AP) — Spring Lake aldermen Monday night named a black policeman, Billy H. Manning, 49, as the town's police chief.

Manning, a retired Army sergeant who had been acting chief for a month and who has been on the Spring Lake force since ending his service career 18 months ago, is the only black on the seven-man force. He replaces James Farrington, who resigned.

Manning spent 24 years in the Army before coming to Spring Lake, a small community adjacent to Ft. Bragg in Cumberland County.

HELPING THE LAW COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — A dozen students at the University of Maryland have formed a fraternity designed to enhance the image of law enforcement officers.

Members of the new chapter, a branch of Lambda Alpha Epsilon, are students majoring in criminology, sociology and law enforcement.

House showdown after the Judiciary Committee bottled up the resolution, said absenteeism hurt his cause. But he predicted that public demand would revive the amendment and the result would be different the next time.

A national organization called Citizens for Public Prayer predicted the prayer issue would be raised "repeatedly and insistently" in the 1972 elections.

The resolution fell 28 votes short of the two-thirds needed. Supporting it were 102 Democrats and 138 Republicans. Against it were 136 Democrats and 26 Republicans.

A last-minute shift in strategy may have cost the resolution some support. It originally would have allowed "nondenominational" prayers in schools but was amended to clear the way for "voluntary prayer and meditation."

Both versions were assailed as vague by the resolution's opponents, who said the change indicated that sponsors were not sure of the effect of what they proposed.

Some opponents argued that the House should not try to change in one afternoon the language it took several weeks for writers of the Constitution to frame.

Supporters cited public-opinion polls to back their claim that most people want nondenominational prayers in school despite objections of religious leaders. They said many pupils believe prayer is wrong because of the court ruling.

H. Clifton Blue 'Resting Well'

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The former speaker of the North Carolina House, H. Clifton Blue, was reported "resting comfortably" Monday night at Moore Memorial Hospital in Pinehurst following a heart attack last Friday.

A hospital spokesman declined to say what Blue's condition was, but said he was still in intensive care.

Blue, about 60, is publisher of the weekly Sandhill Citizen in Aberdeen. He was working at his desk Friday when he complained of not feeling well and was taken to the hospital.

How 12-Month School Year Would Save Money

By BETTY YARMON
NEW YORK (WNS) — The controversial proposal to keep elementary and high schools open throughout the year as a way to stretch educational dollars, and thus answer the problem of rising expenses, may seem remote and theoretical to you. Actually, though, according to the arguments advanced by its enthusiastic supporters, it can have profound and substantial — albeit subtle — bearing on the family's finances:

1. — The more ambitious youngsters are able to complete a 12-year program in 11, thus allowing them to start a working career a year earlier if that be their wish, or to go on to college a year ahead of time — in either case freeing the family from a financial burden that much sooner. Some youngsters spend the saved year earning money that can help finance their college education.

2. — Other youngsters, content to remain at school for the entire 12 years under options given them, find that the year-round school allows them to take lighter course loads, thus letting them work at jobs throughout the year. This gives them a work experience earlier in their lives, an experience that in the long run can substantially help their careers.

3. — Proponents of the plan say it has such decided educational benefits as reductions in failures and dropouts, more money for teachers, cuts in overcrowding, and curricular revisions that provide a broader and more flexible range of study. All of these could mean a better education for the youngsters, which in turn could be translated into better jobs that usually mean better salaries.

4. — The proposal encourages the family to take its vacations at other times than during the summer months. Industry pushes for year-round vacation periods, of course. But the family benefits too. Since the vacation dollar buys the least during the busy summer period, this means the family can get more for its money at other times of the year.

5. — If the plan actually does fulfill its stated goal of getting more use of existing school facilities for less money, then all taxpayers will be gaining.

According to recent estimates, more than 600 school districts in all parts of the U.S. are considering the plan, called E.S.Y. for Extended School Year. Under this plan, elementary and high schools are operated on a 12-month basis, with full programs under way at all times, in place of the current nine-month schedules with limited sessions during the summer.

Atlanta has been the recent pioneer of the plan, which actually has been tried at various times in our history, only to be abandoned each time. An updated version of the idea has been in effect in the high schools of the Georgia metropolis since 1969, and some elementary schools are about to join the four-quarter plan. At least two dozen cities in other states are following suit, and the educational world is eagerly watching to evaluate the results.

Proponents, incidentally, offer arguments that are non-financial as well. They say that schools in the U.S. were organized originally to accommodate a farm society that needed the summertime help of youngsters for harvesting. Today, though, when we are no longer basically agricultural, the nine-month schedule seems to them an anachronism. One expert says that the U.S. school system is the only institution in the country that functions fully only half of the 365 days in the year, and that the United States is far behind other countries in this regard, with Soviet Russia showing an average school year of between 228 and 234 days.

Her Selfishness Is Showing

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband is in the service and we are stationed in Texas.

Yesterday we received a letter from my mother in law saying that her daughter, Terry, who has been engaged for some time has decided on a December wedding.

She also said that Terry had tried on MY wedding dress, which my mother in law had been keeping for me. The dress fit Terry perfectly, and she would like to wear it!

Abby, in the first place, what right did Terry have to try on my dress? Besides, I always thought a wedding dress should be kept for a daughter when she gets older, if she wants to wear it.

I've been married only one year and the same people who came to my wedding will be coming to Terry's.

I don't want any hurt feelings, but I am against it. What do you think?

DEAR MARRIED: A wedding dress can be worn many times. So what if those attending Terry's wedding do recognize it as yours?

I think you don't care much for Terry, and, therefore, don't want her to wear your dress, which is your right. But I also think your selfishness is showing.

DEAR ABBY: My sister is attractive, intelligent, has a good teaching job, but she's tired of the single life. She would like to find a good guy, get married and raise a family.

She's dated a lot since college, but still believes that sex is for married couples, and she's fed up with guys who expect her to hop in the hay after the second date. And she's also fed up with people asking her, "How come a nice girl like you isn't married?"

She loved one guy, but finally gave up because after three years, he couldn't decide whether he was ready for marriage or not.

Now there's someone else, but he's also playing it real cool. I've told my sister that if a guy really loves her it shouldn't take him a year and a half to know it, and she should tell him to either "shape up or ship out, as time's a'wastin'."

Do you agree, Abby?

BUCKEYE BROTHER

DEAR BROTHER: Not necessarily. If you want to help your sister, quit second-guessing the men in her life, and introduce her to some new prospects.

DEAR ABBY: When my daughter was married recently, I remembered your words of wisdom about Saturday afternoon weddings in churches where janitors were not able to clean up the rice and confetti before Sunday morning services. So, per your suggestion, I provided the guests with large packages of birdseed to throw at the newlyweds as they left the church.

My daughter and her husband drove to Canada for their honeymoon. They entered the country without incident. However, when they were coming back thru customs, the officer on duty noticed the birdseed on the floor of their car, and thinking it was marijuana, he made them remove everything from the car, and he searched them and their luggage thoroughly. Meanwhile, the honeymooners were delayed until the birdseed could be positively identified as birdseed.

Needless to say, the bride and groom were scared to death, detained and inconvenienced. Something to tell their grandchildren, maybe, but a harrowing experience at the time.

So, perhaps rice is better than birdseed if international boundaries are involved.

T. E. IN WENATCHEE

DEAR T. E.: Thanks for the tip. And a 21-gun salute for the officer on duty for taking no chances.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Her Replying Yes Had Bite

LIEGE, Belgium (WNS)—Girl bites boy: Louis de Groot, 21, proposed to Cecile Lelong, 20, while he was driving her home from Sunday church. Next thing he knew, he was in the hospital having his ear stitched up by the surgeons. "I leaned over to whisper yes in his ear, but we went over a bump and I almost bit it off," explained Cecile.

ROAST DUCK — Canned chestnuts, apple and sausage are the mainstay of the stuffing.

Roast Duck Is Gourmet Fare

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A friend of ours, a good bachelor cook, uses canned chestnuts from France along with apples and sausage for the mainstay of a stuffing for roast duck. Recently we followed suit with delicious results. The stuffing recipe makes a lot; if you have any leftover just heat it in a double boiler or wrapped in foil in the oven and serve at another meal.

The recipe suggests that you use a slow oven for roasting the duck and that you turn the bird midway. But if you have a favorite method for roasting duck at a higher temperature, don't hesitate to use it.

ROAST DUCK WITH FRENCH CHESTNUT STUFFING

1/2 pound bulk pork sausage

4 (about 1 1/2 pounds) yellow Delicious apples (pared, cored and cut into 8ths)
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon thyme
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 cup port
1 can (1 pound, 5 ounces) whole chestnuts packed in water and salt, drained (marrons entiers au naturel)
5 to 6-pound duckling

In a 10-inch skillet over moderately low heat, mashing with a fork, cook sausage until it is light brown in color and fat is emitted. With a large slotted spoon remove sausage to a large mixing bowl.

In the sausage fat cook apples, covered and stirring often, until almost tender and slightly transparent looking; they should hold their shape. With a large slotted spoon remove apples and add to sausage.

Stir together the salt, thyme, cinnamon, sugar and port and add to sausage and apples; mix gently. Add chestnuts and mix gently again.

Stuff mixture into body and neck cavities of duck, skewering closed. Roast breast-side down on a rack in a shallow roasting pan in a preheated 325-degree oven, turning midway, until skin is brown and crisp—about 2 1/2 hours.

Makes 6 servings.

Christmas Plans Discussed At Chapter Meeting

Members of the Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa met at the Holiday Inn Thursday evening to make plans for their annual Christmas program including a seasonal auction sale.

Yearbooks, which were made by Mrs. Evelyn Hodges, were distributed. Special attention was called to the theme of the year — "Strive to Learn, Work to Achieve."

Mrs. La Rue Brunson gave a report on the chapter's altruistic projects and Mrs. Barbara Tyson presented a proposed budget to the group.

Two new members, Mrs. Brenda Little and Mrs. Faye Dempsey, were presented their Alpha Delta Kappa pins.

It was announced that the North Carolina District Conference would be held in Goldsboro on Nov. 13.

Mrs. Cleve Wallace conducted a business session and Mrs. Jeanette Clapp gave the invocation.

An Opportunity To Build Anew

It is more probable than possible that the Senate stoppage of foreign aid is a good thing. To be sure, the vote was a shocker; we've lived with foreign aid for a long time. But such programs instituted by the federal government have a way of being amended, added to, and otherwise complicated to a point where the original thrust is lost in a maze of many goals and aspirations.

The end result is a disorganized hodge-podge

$10 Million Or More In 1972

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Politics will pour $10 million or more into the North Carolina economy before the votes are cast in the primary next May 6.

That campaign spending will soar to new highs is freely predicted by astute observers of the political scene.

One of those is Secretary of State Thad Eure, whose campaign watching spans half a century.

"Unquestionably," he said, "more money will be spent in the '72 campaign than any other in the state's history." Inflation is only a minor reason. Factors which will run expenditures to new records, Eure noted, are: an unusually large and eager field of candidates; an earlier rev-up of activity, thus a longer spending period; and the presidential preferential primary, a whole new area for political funding.

Six months ahead of the voting, the money flow already has started and not just a trickle. Headquarters are open and staffed. Candidates are on the go, by airplane, helicopter and highway. Some billboards are up, and a first flush of television and radio advertising has gone out.

Never Before So Early
"I can't recall when such spending has been obvious this far ahead of a primary," Eure observed.

North Carolina's corrupt practices act sets no limits on what candidates may legally spend in running for office. It did at one time, but disregard for the ceiling led to its removal and the substitution of a requirement for full reporting of contributions and expenses.

The theory was that public disclosure would be an effective bar against the excessive spending.

The practice has been that reports filed in the Secretary of State's office reveal only the iceberg-tip of campaign finances.

Getting the full picture may be impossible. The campaign machinery gathers money from many sources and spends it for many purposes. The candidate himself may be unaware of all that is collected and spent for his candidacy. To safeguard his conscience, he may arrange it so he cannot know.

Whether anyone ever "bought" high office in North Carolina through heavy campaign spending would be hard to demonstrate. Certainly, the one who spends the most does not always win.

Cost Is Deterrent
On the other hand, the high cost of running does keep some who are qualified, capable and ambitious out of the race.

Sen. Tom Strickland of Wayne aborted his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for attorney general recently because raising the $200,000 for a decent campaign looked like an insurmountable problem. Strickland already had spent some money, printing cards to hand out to voters, and hitting the circuit of party rallies.

Raymond M. Taylor, marshal of the State Supreme Court, wanted to run for the same office but also bowed out. He said campaign costs amount to putting offices up for highest bidder. "The truth is," Taylor told the Wilson Kiwanis Club last month, "that the high bidder might have to pay more than $1 million to get the governor's mansion next year, and it might cost a quarter of a million dollars to be elected to any other statewide office next year."

$10 Million A Minimum
Figures like that make a $10 million total for the '72 campaign a minimum, taking into account the races at stake and the developing field of candidates.

Estimating $750,000 for a respectable gubernatorial effort and counting at least four running gives $3 million. The U.S. Senate contest will easily take $500,000, and three or four entrants would rack up $1½ million. At least four serious candidates are expected for lieutenant governor, making it a $2 million sweepstakes. A vigorous presidential primary could cost $1½ million if it draws a good field. Allocating a mere $2 million for all other races adds to $10 million.

Some of the money comes from the candidate's pocket, giving an edge to the wealthy with political ambitions. A modest share is raised in small contributions from friends and well-wishers. By far the bulk is provided by denizens of business and industry.

The wise businessman knows well there's no such thing as a free lunch. He gives to political candidates for good government — the kind that's good for business.

The first report on campaign contributions and expenses is due 10 days before the primary, and a final accounting is required no later than 20 days after.

The law specifies "calendar year" financial transactions. Thus, none of the receipts and expenditures logged in 1971 need ever see the light of day.

that helps everybody but the United States. Foreign aid, per se, has been tampered with to the point that the left hand wasn't even sure there was a right hand... much less what it was doing. Congress now has an opportunity to build anew; but we have reservations, too, in that direction. That august body has so many cooks trying to make a broth that the appropriate adage leaves us only with forebodings.

Increased Efficiency Is Welcome Any Day

Like most local citizens we raised eyebrows when we saw Christmas street decorations going up almost before Halloween was gone.

However, if it means the most efficient use of personnel by the Utilities Commission then we cannot criticize. As Director Charles Horne explains it, the decorations are being installed early because crews were available who could not continue underground work because of wet weather.

While the decorations will be up, the lights will not be turned on until the normal time.

In this time of rising power cost, we would have to agree with anything that increases efficiency of the Utilities operation. If that means having the Christmas decorations a few days early, we will accept it.

The Idological Edge Of Nixon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The surprisingly lopsided vote by which the Senate refused to ban military aid to the Greek dictatorship last week was the clearest confirmation yet seen of President Nixon's boast that the 1970 election gave him an "ideological majority" in the Senate.

That claim was used to minimize the President's disappointment last November when the Republicans gained a mere two seats in the Senate election, leaving them far short of their hoped-for majority. But no single vote this year has gone so far to confirm Mr. Nixon's "ideological majority" boast.

Unaware of the changed complexion of the Senate, the State Department assumed the House-passed ban on military aid to Greece would be routinely approved by the Senate, heretofore always more liberal than the House on such issues. But when the votes were counted, a mere 31 Senators voted to impose the ban, while 49 voted against any ban at all.

Last year, in dealing with a somewhat similar aid ban, 42 Senators voted for it. Even if the full 100-member Senate had been present and voting last week, the maximum vote against the aid ban could not have exceeded 40 votes, and the reason lies in the defeat of four liberal Democrats and one liberal Republican (New York's Charles Goodell) in last November's election.

In addition, five Senators who favored Greek military aid last year switched against it last week, but they were exactly offset by five who switched the other way.

The significance of the unexpected amendment in the Senate to strip the House-passed ban from the foreign aid bill got lost in the stunning defeat of the whole aid bill. Proposed by Alabama's conservative Democrat Sen. James Allen, the amendment passed despite the fact that Administration lobbyists had long since reconciled themselves to living with it.

The result showed for the first time that on a strictly ideological foreign-policy issue — U.S. aid to a dictatorship which refuses to end martial law or hold parliamentary elections — the House now leans more liberal than the Senate.

A footnote: Senate liberals will probably not try to restore the aid ban in the new foreign aid bill now being cooked up in the Foreign Relations Committee. Instead, they will try to preserve the House ban (which gives Mr. Nixon a legal loophole to continue Greek aid) when the bill goes to conference with the House.

Muskie's White Ticket
Recent surveys commissioned by Republican politicians in the widely separated states of California and North Carolina showed that Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine scored dramatic gains among rank-and-file Democratic voters following his much-assailed statement of Sept. 7 that he could not be elected President with a black running-mate.

The results tend to confirm a growing gap between Democratic leadership and Democratic voters. Whereas party leaders privately lament Muskie's statement as an inexcusable blunder in his drive for the Democratic Presidential nomination, it seems to have won him grassroots party support.

Muskie's backing from California Democratic voters, among the most liberal in the nation, jumped sharply following the Negro Vice President statement, according to a private Republican statewide poll. As a result, Muskie led President Nixon in a survey of all California voters.

His gains were even more startling in North Carolina, one of the most progressive Southern states regarding racial attitudes.

A mid-September poll commissioned by North Carolina Republicans and restricted to Democratic voters showed Gov. George Wallace of Alabama with 34 per cent, Mr. Nixon 29 per cent, Muskie 27 per cent, and undecided 10 per cent. But one month later, following Muskie's statement that a salt-and-pepper ticket is not electable, the poll of North Carolina Democrats showed Muskie catapulting into the lead with 36 per cent to Mr. Nixon's 27 per cent, Wallace's 27 per cent.

Strength For Today

FASCINATIONS
It is an amazing thing the way fascinations of different kinds appear to take hold of us. Boy falls in love with girl and everybody who knows anything about their situations can tell you at the beginning that marriage of that pair would end up in the divorce court (or perhaps the police court) before many months had passed.

Here's a guy or a girl (a man or a woman) who just seems to feel that if they can't be married to each other all satisfaction will depart from life forthwith. And the house that college friend of mine lives in. Where did he get all his money? See that fellow over there? He thinks he ought to go to Congress. If he makes fifty dollars a week he's doing well.

Boy! Wouldn't you like to hold the social position Mr. and Mrs. Upstart occupy? If I could just go traveling wherever I want to I would be happy. You don't know my boss and if you did you would be wondering as I do how an empty-headed nobody like him could hold the job he does.

Fascinations. Fascinations. Fascinations. Why do you suppose I'm unhappy most of the time? Just because nobody appreciates me or is willing to give me my due.

All right. All right. You had your say. Now get going and see if you can do better than I do the things that I do best. Fascinations, fascinations — what a power.

The Rhenquist Record

Nine of the last 12 nominees to the U. S. Supreme Court were sitting judges when their names went to the Senate. It was not much of a problem to read their reported opinions and to get a line on their cast of judicial thought.

A more difficult task is presented in getting a line on Lewis F. Powell, Jr., and William H. Rehnquist, the President's nominees for the vacant Black and Harlan seats. They are active lawyers, one in private practice, the other as government counsel; they think, speak and act as advocates, not as judges. Their high calling has made them players, not umpires, and this role needs to be kept in mind. It needs especially to be kept in mind in the matter of

Mr. Rehnquist. He is coming under heavy fire just now from a number of civil libertarians who are offended by things he has done or said as Assistant Attorney General. He has, for example, been "tough on demonstrators." He has "supported preventive detention." He has "defended a President's unrestrained power to eavesdrop on private citizens." The impression is being cultivated that Rehnquist is somewhat to the right of Torquemada and just to the left of Genghis Khan.

A very different impression may be formed from a careful reading of Rehnquist's speeches and prepared statements over the past three years. These make a stack of papers four inches high. To study them is to gain a picture of advocacy at its best — of argument compelling in its force, but founded in reason. One also sees Rehnquist as the quintessential lawyer, living by the commandment of Canon 6 that his obligation is to represent one's clients "with undivided fidelity." His clients, of course, have been the Attorney General and the President.

Yes, he is tough. He speaks to the Newark Kiwanis Club on Law Day of "the new barbarians" and he is cool to cold: "I do offer the suggestion in the area of public law that disobedience cannot be tolerated, whether it be violent or nonviolent disobedience. I offer the further suggestion that if force or the threat of force is required in order to enforce the law, we must not shrink from its employment."

He is wholly a man of the law: "The minority, no matter how disaffected or disenfranchised, owes an unqualified obligation to obey a duly enacted law. Government is the law of the land." (Continued on page 5)

The Gold Supply Is Too Short

By ELMER ROESSNER

Gold may never come back as a medium of exchange in our lifetime. In the international negotiations over the fate of the dollar, world leaders appear to be phasing out gold a little further.

The argument has been over the last 40 years that the supply of gold increases very slowly to meet the requirements of constantly expanding business.

So almost every nation of the world has found a substitute: paper.

The trouble with paper is that, while the supply of gold increases very slowly, the supply of paper rises endlessly. Pushing a button on a printing press increases the supply of paper currency, bonds, checks and other promissories.

The result, of course, is inflation. Time was when paper money could be readily exchanged for gold. Some American currency was printed in gold-colored ink on one side to stress the point that there was a gold piece of equal value in the Treasury. Other paper money at that time was green and black, as it is today, but it could also be exchanged for gold.

Gold Is Frozen
Then, you may remember, the United States recalled gold coins and the gold-copper paper. But other paper money increased endlessly. President Franklin D. Roosevelt believed that if there was lots more money, the country would emerge from the Depression. That didn't do the trick, but World War II did, but that's another story.

Practically all countries of the world have since devalued their currencies, scaling down the amount of gold given for paper.

Now, neither in the United States nor elsewhere, will gold be fully restored to its original value and more countries will make their currencies inexchangeable for gold.

Gold is still a medium of exchange between countries. That is why the U.S. government's holding of more than $20 billion has declined to pennies more than $10 billion today. We have bought and

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: In olden times a "bigwig" was literally a man who wore a big wig. Custom restricted the wearing of full-length wigs to judges and members of nobility. Ordinary persons wore little wigs. So, in time, person-

Fish and chips, probably the most famed British food delicacy, have been banned from the menu at two U.S. air bases in Britain. The reason: the grease-fried chunks of cod and French-fried potato chips were making the airmen so fat they had trouble racing to man their outposts during base alerts.

Speaking of fat, if you are that way it may be because your mother put you on solid food too early as a baby. A study at the University of Washington found that children who put on solid food at the age of six weeks to two months tended to become more obese than those who remained on a fluid diet until the third or fourth month.

Flowers are regarded as fragile, but some of them exert great strength in growing. For example, the Soldanella of Switzerland is called the ice flower because it forces its way up through solid ice to blossom in the sun.

Quotable notables: "Half the world is composed of people who have something to say and can't, and the other half who have nothing to say and keep on saying it."—Robert Frost.

What is the origin of the gold ring? One theory is that it was invented by the Egyptians who used the rings as money. The fingers of a man's hand were his safest and most convenient bank. He could wear his money on his finger.

Take-Home Pay To Slip Despite Tax Cuts; Due New Withholding Plan

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of individual taxpayers will find their take-home pay dropping in January despite income tax cuts if a $16-billion tax-reduction bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee becomes law.

In many cases a new withholding plan adopted by the panel will take away more than the tax cuts will yield, even though everyone will get some tax reduction.

The withholding plan, recommended by the Treasury Department, is designed to eliminate underwithholding for ment as we know it could not survive for a day if it permitted any group to choose the laws which it would obey, and those which it would not obey."

In another Law Day address, this one in Houston, he defends the government's position in the matter of violent demonstrators. He has no apologies for sweeping them up: "I suggest to you that, quite contrary to the views expressed by the defenders of the radicals, these actions of State and Federal governments are only the most minimal sort of responses to very intense and serious provocation, and that these actions on the part of the government are not only thoroughly defensible but absolutely necessary. They are absolutely necessary not only for the preservation of order, but for the preservation of liberty itself. . . . We must not equate dissent with disloyalty. . . . But I would like to pose the corollary that neither should we equate destruction with dissent."

Time after time, one finds Rehnquist defending "the balancing approach," and "the reasonable approach." In a speech at Tempe, Ariz., in December of 1970, he provided a superb defense — agree or disagree — of the case for "preventive detention." He is constantly remarking that "all or nothing" solutions cannot be accepted. He is contemptuous of the excesses in Federal surveillance activities. These at one point "rather clearly got out of hand."

Rehnquist is not the most felicitous writer one might encounter. He splits infinitives. He mangles verbs. He falls into the "may or may not" constructions that smack of redundancy. He has not mastered the distinction between "less than" and "fewer than." The syntax is not so important. Rehnquist, on his advocate's record, offers a brilliant intellect and a scholar's patience. On the court, he may disappoint Nixon and he will disappoint me, but he promises to make a tremendous judge.

The surprise election of Democrat Ivan Lebamoff in the Ft. Wayne, Ind., mayoral election last Tuesday is largely credited to New York Mayor John Lindsay's whirlwind campaign there on Oct. 15 and 16.

State and county Democratic leaders give Lindsay credit for galvanizing what had been a stiff uphill battle, including raising between $18,000 and $20,000 for Lebamoff's closing campaign.

Late last Tuesday night, after Lebamoff's victory was assured, he got a congratulatory call from Lindsay. Lindsay, said the mayor-elect, supplied the thin margin of victory.

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — Robert Troxell thought he killed a cow when his pickup truck struck a large animal that leaped onto U.S. 15.

Later, state police identified the dead animal as a South American tapir. Officers said the rare beast had escaped a week earlier from its owner in Natural Bridge, Va.

Poor grades of leaf and non-descript grades were a little more in demand than on last Thursday. Grade for grade, prices were a little higher than on the last sale day. Better grades of leaf remained steady. Stabilization receipts were higher than on the last sale day. Lugs and cutters accounted for most of receipts.

Police Officer Is Disciplined

Disciplinary action was taken today against a Greenville police officer for firing a shot into the air while trying to effect an arrest on Cotanche Street late Saturday night.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, Ptl. Wade H. Nottingham, while attempting to arrest a man for drinking in public in violation of a city ordinance, allegedly fired a shot into the air in an effort to stop the violator when he broke and ran from the police officer.

The chief, explaining that the officer's action violated department regulations, said disciplinary action taken against the officer included withdrawing two scheduled days off.

Emergency Farm Loans Announced For County

Emergency loans are now being made in Pitt County, according to William R. Dean Jr., Farmers Home Administration county supervisor.

Dean said that farmers who need farm credit as a result of losses suffered from the recent heavy rains should make their needs known to the FHA office here.

The supervisor reported that the U.S. Department of Agriculture recently designated 45 counties in North Carolina as areas where the administration may make emergency loans to eligible farmers. This area, he said, included the county of Pitt served by the local office.

Following the heavy rains and winds of Hurricane Ginger on Sept. 30 that caused damage to peanuts, corn, soybeans, and other crops, and subsequent rains in the area that inflicted further damage, FHA state director James T. Johnson authorized FHA to begin making loans.

The local office reported that

Brother Died At Brother's Side

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Frank and Stephen Huskey came home from Vietnam Monday.

Frank, 22, walked off the plane, but his brother, younger by two years, came to the hills of East Tennessee in a military issue casket.

Frank joined the Army when he was 16 and served three tours in Vietnam. Stephen, 20, joined when he was 18 and after serving in Germany asked to be sent to Southeast Asia to be with Frank.

They had been in Vietnam together three months when they went out to face the enemy Oct. 31.

Stephen was killed as he fought at Frank's side.

the heavy rains have caused crops to continue to deteriorate and losses, especially in peanuts and corn, are mounting daily.

Emergency loans, it was pointed out, are made to repair or replace damaged dwellings or farm buildings or to aid in crop production. Loans are made to enable the farmer to restore his normal farming operations.

Emergency loans are not made to refinance debts, it was noted, but they may include funds for payment of interest on certain debts and for interest and depreciation on farm machinery and equipment under lien to other creditors.

Group Attended Raleigh Session

Nine representatives of the Pitt County School system have recently returned from the Exceptional Children Conference in Raleigh.

Sponsored by the State Department of Public Instruction, the various sessions within the conference dealt with exceptionally talented secondary school students.

According to Mrs. Kathryn Lewis, Director of Pupil Personnel Services, the representatives heard an address by Mrs. Dorothy Sisk of the University of Florida. This was followed by a question and answer session with personnel and students of the North Carolina Governor's School.

Lee reported that the old plane in playground area of Elm Street Park had been removed by a salvage company. He said continued vandalism had made the plane unsafe as a play object, and that a salvage firm had agreed to remove it at no cost in exchange for the aluminum in the plane.

In another report, Lee pointed out the excessive wet weather of the past few weeks had seriously delayed construction at the new recreation park on Hooker Road. Deadline for completion of the area is January 1, and Lee said working crews would be hard pressed to meet the deadline unless good weather holds. Plans call for hard topping the tennis courts beginning Wednesday. Other immediate plans are for construction of the concession stand and rest rooms.

The monthly reports show that the karate classes under Bill McDonald and McDonald's students are very popular, with an average of 77 students for each of the two weekly classes.

The drama class, conducted by Stuart Aronson twice weekly in the afternoons at Agnes Fullilove auditorium, is making excellent progress with a full class of 20 enrolled for each of the two sessions. The drama class is endorsed by the Recreation Department.

Interest rates on loans may vary by months but may not exceed six per cent, the office announced. For November, the rate has been set for five per cent.

Applications for farmers living in Pitt County should be made at the FHA office located in the Federal Building on the corner of Evans and Third Streets.

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton told the head of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration today he is running "a fake program" as long as the states must come up with cash to match federal crime fighting grants.

"Somebody in Washington has got to learn that the states can't be mugged this way," said the Republican governor, after Jerris Leonard, head of the administration, spoke to a morning session of the 37th annual Southern Governors Conference.

"We cannot raise the money for new programs — we have all we can do," said Holton, pointing a finger at Leonard.

Holton said he was unsure where blame should be placed but was under the impression that Leonard was not responsible for the matching cash requirement.

Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn immediately endorsed Holton's remarks.

Leonard, whose agency administers funds granted under the 1968 Crime Control and Safe Streets Act, said he could provide no answer but would take the complaints of the governors back to Washington.

Holton acknowledged that the program run by Leonard's agency has in the past, "been effective and has done a good job. But now it is a fake program as far as Virginia is concerned."

The governor said that $35 million in federal crime fighting money was available for Virginia but the state was unable to come up with the full $8.7 million required in matching state money.

The best the state could do, he said, was to budget about $4.7 million.

Leonard said afterward that Holton was objecting to a change in funding procedure which no longer allows the states to provide matching grants in the form of salaries, services and office space.

"They have to put the money in the bank before the federal funds flow," said Leonard in an interview. He said the requirement takes effect July 1, 1972.

A conference committee met earlier to consider a surprisingly mild antibusing resolution authored by Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Nebraska Improves Lead In Poll; Joe Frazier Wants To Set Up Oklahoma Slips, But Holds To 2nd Boxing Program In Ohio Prison

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Oklahoma Coach Chuck Fairbanks would rather worry about winning than piling up points.

"I don't want us to get to the point where we're dissatisfied with not winning by a big enough score," said Fairbanks, whose second-ranked Sooners lost ground to top-rated Nebraska in this week's Associated Press college football poll announced Monday.

Oklahoma, hard-pressed last Saturday in beating Missouri 20-3, wound up with six first-place votes and 968 points Monday, compared to 17 and 1,010 the week before.

Nebraska, which led by a mere 24 points last week boosted its lead with 41 first-place votes and a total of 1,060 points after smashing Iowa State 37-0. The victory over Missouri, in which Oklahoma was held to its lowest point production of the season, prompted this remark from Fairbanks:

"I'm not at all disappointed with our team's play. We could have won it 1-0 and that would have been good enough for me. I don't want to apologize for the score."

The only change in the top eight teams in the poll from a nationwide panel of 55 sports writers and broadcasters occurred as Penn State, a 63-27 victor over Maryland, moved ahead of Auburn into fifth place. The Nittany Lions had one first-place vote and 618 points overall.

Michigan remained third, garnering six top votes and 876 points after walloping Iowa 63-7; Alabama trimmed Louisiana State 14-7 and held onto fourth place with 738 points and Auburn, with one first-place vote and 601 points, was sixth after beating Mississippi State 30-21.

Georgia, Notre Dame, Arizona State and Stanford, which clinched a second straight Pacific-8 crown and Rose Bowl berth by defeating UCLA 20-9, round out the Top Ten.

Colts Slip By Rams By 24-17

By GORDON BEARD

Associated Press Sports Writer BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Curtis will have two metal pins removed from a mending broom thumb today, and he hopes the operation will give him more football mobility.

But the bulky cast worn by Baltimore's middle linebacker may have restricted his play just enough Monday night to produce a 24-17 victory for the Colts over the Los Angeles Rams.

With his right thumb in a rigid position and unable to grasp properly, Curtis used his arm as sort of a club to jar the ball loose from Larry Smith of the Rams in the fourth quarter.

Fellow linebacker Ted Hendricks snared the ball in full stride and romped 31 yards into the end zone for a touchdown which snapped a 10-10 tie with 9:03 to play.

Scores by Baltimore's Tom Matte and Matt Maslowski of the Rams were added in the closing two minutes, but it was the fumble popped free by Curtis which turned the tide in the nationally televised game.

"Without the cast, I probably would have tried to grab him," Curtis said. "But with the cast, all I tried to do was close him around the chest. I happened to get in front of him and knock the ball out of his left hand."

Hendricks first saw the ball about seven feet in the air, and grabbed it about a foot off the ground. He wasn't sure whether it hit the turf or not.

"It was a freak thing, and I just happened to be there," Hendricks said. "My only thought was to make sure I recovered the ball and didn't fumble."

Just 82 seconds before Hendricks' score, a 32-yard field goal by Baltimore's Jim O'Brien

Swim Team On Display

East Carolina University's swimming team will go on display tonight in the Third Annual Purple-Gold swimming Meet.

The meet will be held in Minges Natatorium beginning at 7:30 p.m. The Bucs, defending champions in the Southern Conference, will show off their talents in the meet. The first competition for the Pirates is scheduled for November 25 through 27, when they compete in the Atlantic Coast Holiday Swim Festival, to be held at N. C. State University.

When Allen took over as head coach of the Redskins, he immediately obtained Kilmer in a trade with the New Orleans Saints. But, Jurgensen, who holds nearly all of the Skins' passing records, was No. 1.

Then, nine weeks ago, a Jurgensen pass was intercepted and he tried to make the tackle. The veteran signal-caller wound up with a broken shoulder and six weeks of enforced idleness.

"Kilmer's our quarterback," Allen said. "He's brought us to where we are now. He's done a great job."

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Joe Frazier, self made with his explosive fists, wants to help convicts set up a boxing program in Ohio Penitentiary.

The popular heavyweight champion chatted with more than 200 inmates Monday on a talk program, Avco Broadcasting Corp.'s Phil Donahue Show, live from the prison's Catholic chapel.

"That would be a good idea," Frazier responded to a convict's suggestion he help establish boxing in the 134-year-old maximum security prison.

"I'd like to come back, get up a little boxing team and work out with you guys if I can," the champion said.

Another convict wanted Muhammad Ali along. Ali lost a 15-round decision to Frazier March 9 in New York and the two are scheduled for a rematch.

"Fine, I'd like to have Ali with me. I'd be glad if he comes, too. Right on, men," said the champion, raising a clenched fist in the air.

Frazier related very well with the convicts in the opening show on a five-part series being telecast live by Avco this week into 44 cities.

His background, of course, probably helped the 28-year-old champion, who has scored 23 knockouts in 27 fights as an unbeaten professional.

"These guys asked a little different questions than you newspaper fellas. But I could handle them all," said Frazier, a dropout in the ninth grade who has worked in cotton fields in the South, a New York auto repair shop and a Philadelphia slaughterhouse.

From those varied jobs, Frazier has climbed into the big money of heavyweight boxing. His last fight with Ali grossed him $2.5 million, for example.

Frazier, who hasn't fought since the Ali match, said he would like to meet his prime challenger next year. But he doesn't expect the rematch until 1973 or 1974 because of legal and contract problems.

The champ predicted another victory. "No matter what it is, it'll be an instant replay," he said.

Frazier bristled at one convict's suggestion he was the Great White Hope.

"Clay's the original Uncle Tom. I don't feel like I'm the Great White Hope. The white people never had a champ as good as the blacks," he answered.

Frazier also says he has a reason for calling Ali by his former name, Cassius Clay.

"I'm just a little more clever than him, I call him Clay to make him mad. He says he's gonna whup you when you call him that," said Frazier.

"When he sees the tube and hears this, he'll get angry," the champion predicted.

Only Three Coaches Have Won More Games

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out the college football wash:

Only three coaches have ever won more games than Alabama's Bear Bryant, who notched No. 208 in Saturday night's 14-7 thriller over Louisiana State. They are Amos Alonzo Stagg with 314, Pop Warner with 313 and Warren Woodson with 239.

Trailing Bryant are Jess Neely, 207; Jake Gaither, 203, and Eddie Anderson and Eddie Robinson, 201. Only Bryant and Robinson are still active head coaches.

Next to join the 200 club probably will be Ohio State's Woody Hayes ... but he only has 173 and can't make it before 1974.

But for a record any coach would envy, meet Clary Anderson of Montclair, N.J., State. Since coming to Montclair State in 1969, Anderson has compiled a 23-5 mark, but even that pales by comparison to his achievements in the scholastic ranks at Blair Academy and Montclair High.

In 27 years at the scholastic level, Anderson's teams won 209 games, lost 23 and tied six. In 26 seasons as a baseball coach, his record was 464-154. He also coached hockey for nine years (148-41-9), his basketball for eight (102-42) and swimming for four (34-16-7). In two years as Montclair State's baseball coach, Anderson shows a 36-12 slate.

His all-sport coaching record is 1,015-293-22. His only losing season as a head coach came with Montclair High's baseball team in 1967. In his own athletic career at Montclair high, Cook Academy and Colgate University, Anderson never played on a losing team.

Cougars Look For New Faces

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Carl Scheer, president and general manager of the Carolina Cougars, who are 3-9 in the American Basketball Association, says "We've got to get rid of some of these people. I'm tired of watching them loaf."

He did not mention any players by name in an interview Monday.

"I over estimated their ability and paid too much money for these guys," he added.

He said he had contacted other clubs Monday but couldn't come up with a deal. Scheer said the prime needs are "a solid forward who can provide leadership and a scoring, penetrating guard."

The problem in making a deal, he said, is that the Cougars "don't have a great deal terback any more of a target than he would be anyway?"

"There are two schools of thought on that," says Dom Anile of C.W. Post, whose own white-shod quarterback, Gary Wichard, has been the College Division total offense leader much of the season.

"Sometimes you want to get the other team keyed up for one kid, it's to your advantage. I think an offense could turn that kind of emotion by a defense to their advantage. When we played Maine, their whole team just stood around before the game watching Gary."

Frank Howard, Clemson's athletic director and former coach, had his consecutive game streak broken recently when he missed the Clemson-Duke game. Howard had seen the Tigers play 312 consecutive football games dating back to the final games of the 1939 campaign.

Howard was in Tennessee that weekend for a speaking engagement ... so he took in the Tennessee-Georgia Tech game.

East is east and west is west and Oklahoma doesn't care for that set-up. The Sooners traditionally have occupied the west sideline at Owen Stadium, but a Big Eight rule decrees that the home team must sit on the side where the students sit ... and Oklahoma students occupy the east stands.

Coach Chuck Fairbanks says he is opposed to the rule as a matter of principle. "I think the business of managing the football games is the responsibility of the school and not the Big Eight Conference," he says.

But, he adds, "I want to emphasize that this is the opinion of Chuck Fairbanks and I'm not speaking for the university. We're not going to break any rules."

of basic talent to trade. We are not prepared to deal off our three top rookies — Jim McDaniels, Randy Denton and Ted McClain. We'd be reluctant to part with them."

After watching the Cougars lose 97-92 to Dallas in Charlotte Saturday night, Scheer said: "I've been patient long enough with this team. Ted Munchak (board chairman) has paid out millions of dollars for these players. The cougars are getting three times the salary of the Dallas players."

Joe Caldwell, 30-year-old forward who underwent knee surgery last spring, has been slow to heal, and his loss has been felt keenly. He is back in the lineup but Scheer feels it will be a few weeks, at least, before he is his old self.

Oklahoma was the only school voting against the rule when the Big Eight put it in. And you thought Fairbanks was worried about Nebraska?

More and more teams are going to the Wishbone offense, but Louisiana State's defense did a job on Alabama's Wishbone Saturday night.

"The Tigers stuck the Wishbone," said Coach Charlie McClendon. "I don't want LSU to ever be intimidated by any one offense and the Tigers stuck that Wishbone tonight. I said our offense was better than Alabama's, and we showed it. We had more yardage, more first downs—but also more mistakes."

"Our kids paid the price to play this week. They worked hard and the only thing Alabama did better than us was to get more points."

Kilmer Is 'Skins QB

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen is back on the job with the Washington Redskins, but his job is on the bench as back-up signal-caller to Billy Kilmer.

"Sonny will be brought along slowly," Skins' Coach George Allen said Monday, squashing all speculation that Jurgensen will regain his starting job with the National Football League club.

"He is not ready to play football yet," Allen said.

"I'm not going to let anybody dictate to me what we're going to do about our quarterback," the coach said. "Both quarterbacks want to win, and we're a team."

"We have never had a quarterback problem. In Los Angeles when I took over as coach I said, 'Roman Gabriel is the quarterback.' Some people said, 'but Bill Munson has been our No. 1 quarterback.'"

"I said, 'Well, now he is our back-up quarterback.' Munson became unhappy in that role and eventually we had to trade him."

"Kilmer's our quarterback," Allen said. "He's brought us to where we are now. He's done a great job."

When Allen took over as head coach of the Redskins, he immediately obtained Kilmer in a trade with the New Orleans Saints. But, Jurgensen, who holds nearly all of the Skins' passing records, was No. 1.

Lynch Decided Dogs Would Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harry Lynch has graduated from an obscure linebacker on last year's freshman football team to starting quarterback as a sophomore at The Citadel, and probably nobody is less surprised than Bulldog coach Red Parker.

Before the season even started, Parker observed that "if I had enough guts to start a sophomore quarterback, we might be better off later on" during the campaign.

It took Parker some time to find "enough guts" — long enough, in fact, for the Bulldogs to be out of contention in the Southern Conference race before they ever got into it.

Now, however, with Lynch at the controls, the Bulldogs are 2-2 in league play, 6-3 over-all, have won their last three starts and four of their last five.

Lynch accounted for 169 yards rushing and passing Saturday night, eight yards below his per-game average for the season, but he ran for one touchdown and passed for the other two in a 21-11 victory over Richmond.

Part of his desire to do well against Richmond stemmed from a 31-14 shellacking the Spiders pinned on the Bulldogs last year. The Bulldog varsity took it out on the freshmen in practice the following week.

"They humiliated us," says Lynch. "After that, I decided it'd never happen again."

The Citadel plays host to Furman's Paladins in one of two conference games Saturday, and the winner can tie East Carolina's Pirates for third place in the league race at 3-2.

There could be a three-way tie for second instead if Davidson's last-place Wildcats upset Richmond, now 3-1 behind defending champion William and Mary at 4-0. Davidson has beaten the Spiders in upsets the last two years and will be the underdog again this season.

If Richmond wins as expected, the title will be decided when the Spiders go to William and Mary for the season finale Nov. 20.

North Pitt Adds Game

North Pitt High School has added a 10th game to its 1971 football schedule.

The Panthers will play host to Enfield High School on Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the North Pitt field.

The Panthers will be seeking their first varsity victory in football in the game, having started their football program this season with a varsity team.

Hayek Wins Grid Picks

Charles Hayek of 114 Lee Street, Greenville, is the winner of this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Hayek correctly picked the winners in 25 of the 32 games of last week.

Sid Ashby of 204 Churchill Dr., Greenville, finished in second place with 25 correctly picked, also. Ashby, however, was further off in the point total guess.

Hayek has a guess of 85 points, while Ashby had a guess of 83. The correct total was 96, scored in New Mexico's 57-39 victory over Utah.

Six other people also had 25 picks right, but were further off in the point total.

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Usually Wiser To Tell Child

Olive has an adopted little boy, aged 3. She wonders if it is wise to inform such a child of that fact. If so, when? And how? These are delicate psychological problems, so heed my advice to the doctor below. But don't unnecessarily keep telling everybody of your child's adoption!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-514: Olive G., aged 28, is worried.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "we were married for 4 years and never had any children.

"So we finally located a little boy for adoption and now are wonderfully happy.

"But he is only 3, so what is the most tactful way to tell him when he grows a little older and asks where he came from?"

Adopted children
It is usually wiser to tell the truth and thus inform your adopted youngster of the fact when he asks.

But don't "jump the gun" or unnecessarily publicize this information at every social gathering!

For adoption is comparable to a marriage ceremony.

You adults thus "adopt" your mate when you join hands at the wedding.

Yet you are not of the same blood kinship!

But you literally feel closer akin thereafter than to your own blood brothers and sisters with whom you grew up as a child.

So don't make an abnormal fetish of blood kinship!

Being of the same eugenic ancestry doesn't produce love and respect, for these must be developed.

Cain was the blood brother of Abel, but he murdered Abel!

King David's handsome son Absalom, also conspired to slay David and usurp the throne.

So it obviously isn't "blood" but "love" that is the essential bond in true kinship.

Remind your adopted kiddies of the fact that Daddy thus "adopted" Mamma via a legal ceremony.

Likewise, when such a couple fall in love with a little girl or boy and want them in their home as children, a legal ceremony also takes place.

Previously I told you of my advice to a medical colleague who had a 12-year-old adopted daughter who had never yet been told.

He and his wife had procrastinated about informing her of that fact, for these delicate situations require precise language.

So I urged him to draw Mary down on his lap after dinner that night and tell her:

"Mary, about 15 years ago I saw the most wonderful woman I had ever met — popular, beautiful, kind and good.

"So I fell in love with her at first sight!

"Luckily, she also fell in love with me, so I adopted her as my wife and she adopted me as her husband by means of our wedding.

"And we have felt closer to each other than to our own brothers and sisters with whom we grew up as children.

"But we wanted a little girl, so one day I saw you at the hospital and fell in love with you, just as I had with Mother.

"But we are held together by the strongest bond God ever made, namely, love and voluntary affection."

Send for my booklet "How to Inform an Adopted Child," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Sees Testing Of Milk Law

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The attorney for the North Carolina Milk Commission says he believes the new milk law enacted by the 1971 General Assembly will be tested in the courts soon.

W. C. Harris of Raleigh told the reorganized commission Monday a court test is expected, particularly on the section of the act which prohibits a store from using milk as a loss leader.

The legislature rewrote the law to change commission membership and to redefine its powers. The previous commission had nine members while the new commission has seven, five representing the consumers and two representing the milk industry.

F. Rockwell Poisson, a Charlotte banker, was elected commission chairman. Mrs. B. Cameron Langston of Grifton was elected vice chairman even though she said she would prefer not to have the post.

"I would rather one of you gentlemen would do it," said Mrs. Langston.

Harris explained that under the new law the commission may investigate all producers, processors or distributors of milk and may regulate the processing, transportation, storage, delivery and sale of milk.

The commission also has the power, he said, to set prices at producer, wholesale or retail levels.

Spinning Plant Will Open Mill

HIGH SHOALS, N.C. (AP) — McNeill Spinning Co., the new owner of the Carolinian plant of Burlington Mills, plans to have 250 people working there by mid-1972, according to McNeill president Allen McNeill.

The plant has been closed since March 1. It formerly employed about 400. McNeill said the plant will be employing 400 persons by mid-1973.

McNeill said his company will spend $2.5 million on new equipment for the plant.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠
A combination of a stiff upper lip and an accurate appraisal of his opponents' distribution enabled South, the declarer at four spades to overcome an extremely adverse trump break in today's hand.

West opened the jack of hearts which East overlooked with the queen to continue the suit. Everyone followed to the second lead, but on the third round, West discarded a diamond as North ruffed with the six of spades.

Declarer began to draw trump by leading the king of spades. When East discarded a diamond, it gave South a severe jolt. He had already lost two tricks and it now appeared that West must score two more in the trump suit inasmuch as he held the J-10-5-4 behind the A-Q-8. Declarer sought some way to compensate for the adversity of nature.

He began by cashing the king and ace of clubs and then ruffing a third round in dummy with the seven of spades. Next came the ace and king of diamonds, on which he discarded his remaining heart as West followed suit. This was the picture at trick 10 with the lead in dummy:

WEST EAST
♠ J 10 5 4 ♠ Void

A diamond was led and South ruffed in his hand with the queen of spades. West was obliged to undertrump with the four. Now the eight of clubs was led. West trumped with the ten of spades to prevent the dummy from scoring with the nine. The consequence, however, was that at trick 12, he was obliged to lead away from the jack-five into South's ace-eight. Declarer's losses on the deal were two hearts and only one trump trick.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A 3-inch horned toad from Texas arrived as a belated birthday present for a 9-year-old boy whose father is missing in Laos.

The reptile, named Sam, was flown from a Navy base at Corpus Christi, Tex., Saturday to Mike Hoff, whose father, Lt. Cmdr. Michael Hoff, was shot down in January 1970.

Mike had said all summer he wanted a horned toad for his birthday, which was Oct. 5.

GIVES MONEY — Kenneth Rushlow says he's donated nearly $4,000 to the Peace Corps because he felt guilty receiving government checks. Rushlow received a medical discharge from the Navy in 1947 because he had tuberculosis. Later it was discovered the TB was inactive but the disability checks continued. Not wanting to keep the money, Rushlow started donating it to the Peace Corps.

Scout Earns Eagle Badge

MORGANTON — Edward Spencer Jones Jr., 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jones of 304 Granville Dr., Greenville, has been awarded the Eagle Scout badge.

Presentation of the award, earned by Jones last year, was made Friday in the chapel at the North Carolina School for the Deaf as part of homecoming activities here.

Jones, a student at the N.C. School for the Deaf since he was five years old, has been a Boy Scout for the past seven years, and has attended the Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico.

During vacations the past two years, Jones has worked as a summer employee with the City of Greenville and with a Greenville grocery firm.

Winners In Competition

Winners of East Carolina University's Final Concerto Auditions, held Saturday, Nov. 4, have been announced at the School of Music.

Winners, the category in which they performed, and the composition chosen for their audition are: Andy Kraus, piano, the first movement of Mozart's "Concerto in D, K. 466;" Cheryl Berry, voice major, Lia's Recitative and Aria from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue;" Ruth Rockefeller, French horn, the rondo from Mozart's "Concerto No. 4 in E;" June Laine, voice major, Indian Bell Song from Delibes' "Lakme;" and John Floyd, percussionist (marimba), the third movement of Paul Creston's "Concertino for Marimba and Orchestra, Opus 21."

As winners in the Final Concerto Auditions, the student musicians will appear as honor soloists in programs presented during the academic year by the ECU Symphonic Band or the ECU Symphony Orchestra.

Says Issue Needs Clarification

MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham said Monday that "the time has come for the Supreme Court to clarify the issue" of prayer in schools.

Graham said the defeat of an amendment by the House Monday to restore prayer in schools was contrary to what Americans want.

The Supreme Court held in 1962 that the First Amendment prohibits states from composing prayers that had been used widely in public schools. Graham noted that the Supreme Court and Congress are opened with prayer and that religious services are held in the White House.

Witnesses Begin Testifying On Powell, Rehnquist

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Witnesses for and against President Nixon's Supreme Court nominees begin testifying today before the Senate Judiciary Committee whose members so far have voiced few objections to their confirmation.

Barring disclosure of new information, Lewis F. Powell Jr., a Richmond, Va., lawyer, and William H. Rehnquist, an assistant attorney general, seem headed for Senate confirmation. Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the committee chairman, said he didn't know how much of a fight would be made against them, but he told newsmen: "I think the Senate will speedily confirm both of them."

He said he plans to call a committee meeting later this week to act on the nominations, but noted that under its rules any member could delay a vote for seven days.

Twenty-nine witnesses who have requested an opportunity to testify were notified to be on hand for today's session.

Powell was questioned by the committee for about 4½ hours Monday, less than half the time devoted to Rehnquist last week.

Neither is expected to be recalled, but Eastland said he didn't know what charges outside witnesses might level against them.

Liberals and conservatives on the committee joined in plaudits for Powell, whose nomination to succeed the late Hugo L. Black marked Nixon's third attempt to place a Southern conservative on the court.

The Senate rejected the nominations of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S.C., and Judge G. Harrold Carswell of Florida for a previous vacancy on the court.

As Powell finished his testimony, Eastland told him he had made "a very fine witness." And Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., said Powell had shown himself to be a man of "brilliance, compassion and integrity."

But some of the committee's liberals, as in the case of Rehnquist's nomination, found themselves in what Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., called a sort of dilemma.

Hart said he believes the court under former Chief Justice Earl Warren "was good medicine for the country." While Powell had "all the marks of excellence," Hart added, Nixon had indicated he was selecting nominees who share his belief that the Warren court had moved in directions he would like to see reversed.

Under these circumstances, Hart asked Powell, "should I vote against you?" Without answering directly, Powell said some decisions of the Warren court disturbed him, but he testified there were "many others that I thought were long overdue."

Hart asked him if he would agree that "many decisions of the Warren court were a constitutionally sound effort to remove some of the disabilities that attach to an American simply because he is poor or unpopular."

"I would agree with that," replied Powell.

The 64-year-old lawyer, a former president of the American Bar Association, was asked many of the questions previously put to Rehnquist about civil liberties and civil rights.

Like Rehnquist, he testified he is against "indiscriminate" wiretapping by law enforcement agents but he defended its use against organized crime under court orders, as authorized by the 1968 Crime Control Act.

He also testified he had inherited from his parents a deep conviction that "all people are equal" and told of his efforts to provide legal aid and other services for the poor. "For the most part," he said, "they were our black brothers."

Powell also upheld the right of dissent and peaceful mass demonstrations, but he testified he is opposed to attempts to change the democratic system by force.

Some of the committee members said they felt Powell had been more "forthcoming" in his testimony than Rehnquist, who took the position he was precluded from answering some questions by his lawyer-client relationship with Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Nixon.

Mitchell, in a letter to Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Monday, declined on behalf of himself and the President to waive the lawyer-client privilege with respect to Rehnquist's testimony before the committee.

Powell testified at the outset of the hearing that, if confirmed, he would promptly dispose of as much as possible of his stock holdings, worth over $1 million, and would disqualify himself from sitting in any case involving a company in which he had any interest.

Speaking at a news conference in Hollywood, Fla., Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said he would carefully look at Rehnquist's credentials because of what Humphrey said was his "callous disregard for civil liberties and civil rights."

He said he would vote for Powell, "who seems very qualified."

In New York, Sidney Zion, who first identified Daniel Ellsberg as the man who leaked the Pentagon papers, said Rehnquist was a member of the John Birch Society in the early 1960s. Rehnquist was not immediately available for comment.

Zion made the statement on WMCA Radio, where he had first disclosed the Ellsberg story. Zion, a former New York Times reporter and magazine publisher, would not disclose the source of his information on Rehnquist.

Work-Study Program Initiated In Chemistry

A co-operative educational program which allows a student to combine actual practice with classroom instruction has been initiated by the chemistry department at East Carolina University.

Chemistry major Charles Jackson of 200 Weston Rd., Garner, is the first student to be enrolled in such a co-operative program.

In addition to chemistry studies on the ECU campus, Jackson is an apprentice chemical analyst for the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. at Aurora. Jackson's co-operative studies in chemistry involve alternate quarters of on-campus instruction and actual work in applied research for Texas Gulf.

"Co-operative education places an individual in a position enabling him to adapt," Brooks Whitehurst, the company's technical services supervisor said.

"The industrial community needs young minds and the students need to apply their knowledge on a day-to-day basis."

Completion of the co-operative program takes a year longer than the average undergraduate program.

Jackson will receive the BA degree in applied chemistry after five years of course work at ECU and periods of employment at Texas Gulf Sulphur. And he is assured by the Selective Service that his enrollment will continue uninterrupted for the five-year period.

Texas Gulf Sulphur, the world's largest phosphate operation, mines huge reserves of phosphates from open pits as much as 100 feet deep, near the Pamlico River.

Mining is accomplished with a dragline unit which consumes a volume of electrical current equal to that consumed by the nearby city of Washington, N. C.

Besides the mining operation, the plant has facilities for treating the phosphates to produce chemical fertilizers. Its fertilizer complex occupies 700 acres.

While not of the same scale, the chemist's role at Texas Gulf Sulphur is equally essential to the whole operation. Teams of chemists, including a number of ECU graduates, run laboratory tests on super-phosphates based on established precepts concerning the chemical structure of materials.

Dr. Donald Clemens, chairman of the ECU Department of Chemistry, says plans are underway to expand the co-operative program in the future, to include more students and more industries in the area.

He cited Union Carbide and DuPont as suitable industries, whose chemical laboratories might provide ECU students with excellent learning facilities.

The fact that the program offers the student a number of advantages is a considerable factor in ECU's desire to expand.

Students enrolled in co-operative programs of this type can be more confident of employment upon graduation, and they gain valuable experience, not only in applied chemistry, but in the various policies and practices which characterize a large industrial operation.

Reduce Further Losses To That Soybean Crop

Hurricane Ginger, combined with heavy rains and high temperatures, has resulted in considerable damage (mold, sprout and rot) to the Pitt County soybean crop.

According to Leroy James, agricultural extension agent, a recent survey by the agents and specialists of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, has shown that individual fields of soybeans may be damaged as much as 82 percent. While this average consists primarily of Dare and York fields, according to James, damage would extend also to the medium and late maturing varieties.

To minimize further losses, the following recommendations are offered:

- determine extent of damage and decide if harvesting is profitable. It will pay to harvest if the returns from the beans are more than the cost of combining.
- harvest as soon as you can get into the field.
- dry damaged beans to 12-13 percent, if possible, before taking them to market.

- do not blend damaged beans with good beans.

- if harvesting sprouted beans, set combine so that you can knock off the sprouts. Splits carry less discount than damage.

- consider storing dried damaged beans under ASCS farm loan program and selling the good beans if storage is limited. The commercial discount schedule for damaged beans is much higher than the ASCS discount schedule.

- do not attempt to store wet, damaged beans. Beans should be dried to 11-12 percent moisture for long-term storage, and should be checked each day until cold weather arrives. Afterwards, they should be checked weekly to determine keeping quality. Damaged beans have unstable keeping qualities and are more difficult to store than sound, mature beans.

For information, farmers may contact the local agricultural extension service office at 758-1196, or P.O. Box 1427, Greenville.
