Autumn's Hallmark

Scott Insists Problem Of School Discord Be Solved

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says he intends to find out what needs to be done to erase the tensions, unrest and discord that exist in North Carolina's public schools.

The governor announced Tuesday he was calling a statewide conference of concerned citizens Dec. 6 in Raleigh to tackle the problems and "to pinpoint the causes."

Scott said he wants the conference "to formulate a plan of action to restore and maintain a proper climate of learning in our public schools."

He made his remarks in talk prepared for the Northern Piedmont Area Development Association.

"Something is wrong, my fellow North Carolinians, when fear walks the halls and cooridtors and lurks in the rest rooms of our public schools," the governor told the gathering. "Something is wrong when a youngster has to fear what may lie around the corner, when he has to worry about being badgered, intimidated, subjected to indignities or indencencies, shaken down for his lunch money, or physically manhandled or assaulted."

Scott said, "The presence of such an atmosphere is incredible.

"It cannot be justified," he added. "It cannot be tolerated."

The governor said he will ask the conference participants to serve as a citizens task force on the schools. He pledged that their recommendations "will not gather dust—they will be implemented to the fullest extent possible.

"The problem of unrest and discord has got to cease if we are to educate our children," Scott said.

He told the audience "it would seem safe to say that one of the manifestations of the problem is a breakdown in discipline.

"Oftentimes," the governor said, "teachers are afraid to really enforce discipline, and in some cases this is rooted in the fear that they may be sued in a civil action. Frequently, though, it is a case of the teacher lacking assurance that he will receive the back of his school administration, his board of education and his community at large."

Scott said he wants to "cause a great wave of public concern in North Carolina that will say to all of society that we are determined that our public schools will be operated free from fear, distrust, vandalism and hoodlumism."

The schools, he added, must be "halls of learning rather than jungles of ear."

Morgan Will Not Run For Governor

RALEIGH — Attn'y Gen. Robert Morgan this afternoon announced that he will not be a candidate for governor.

Morgan said instead that he will seek re-election as the state's attorney general.

The announcement came as a surprise at the 1 p.m. press conference since Morgan had at one time been considered a sure candidate for governor. In recent days, however, there had been speculation that he was reconsidering.

A native of Lillington, Morgan graudated from East Carolina University in 1947. He received his law degree from Wake Forest in 1950.

Morgan has practiced law in Lillington and served in the General Assembly from 1955 through 1967. He was president pro tem of the Senate in 1965.

He is now serving his fifth term as chairman of the ECU board of trustees.

Morgan worked for jail reform, mental health programs and higher education during his terms in the N. C. Senate. Now serving his first term as attorney general he has won a reputation as a consumer advocate.

Reports Heard By Hospital Trustees

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Trustees' executive committee reported to the Trustees on a meeting of the committee and the County Commissioners concerning the Vocational Rehabilitation medical facility.

The facility, which would serve 30 Eastern North Carolina counties, is to be built in conjunction with the new Pitt Memorial Hospital and would be a part of the hospital. The Pitt Memorial trustees would direct its operation and from 25 to 30 of the 50 beds would be available for use by patients other than Voc Rehab ones at all times.

The $381,000 county share is to be taken out of the hospital bond issue money. The commissioners say they see this as an investment, since, in effect, it will bring forth $1,140,000 in federal funds and $350,000 in state funds for the building of the facility. Another $600,000 staffing grant is to be received through the Vocational Rehabilitation Department.

Miss Sandra Harrison, chief radiology technologist, reported on the services of the hospital's radiology department. The department is open at all times she said, and some 16,100 x-rays and over 1,000 scans have been made so far this year, she said. The new Special Procedures room has drastically complicated the work of the radiology department, she said. This procedure allows doctors to observe in sequence such things as blood flow. A minimum of 24 pictures are taken for each procedure, she said. She promised that, once the new hospital is built, stretcher patients will no longer have to wait in the hall.

The business office is now working on ways to cut down on duplication in billing and thus save on postage, Jack Richardson administrator, told the Trustees. For instance, a check is now being made to have the computer not send statements to those whose bills are turned over to a collection agency the same month. Collections have greatly improved since the computer is sending out monthly bills, he said. The percentage is 89 per cent.

A plaque to be placed at the entrance of the hospital's hemodialysis unit in memory of Dr. Frederick P. Brooks was shown.

Ed Warren, a trustee who is also Pitt County United Fund chairman, commended the hospital employees for contributing more than $1,000 to this year's drive. The dietary, housekeeping, physical therapy,

Michaels Named County Planner

Phillip Michaels, a former Bethel resident, has been named County Planner, according to an announcement by the Board of County Commissioners and the Pitt County Planning Board.

As county planner, Michaels will coordinate efforts of the county's planning board. The planning board recommends to the Board of County Commissioners various sourses of action in the areas of planning and zoning.

Michaels, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Michaels Jr. of Bethel, was born in Durham but moved to Bethel when he was six years old. He attended Bethel Schools until entering Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va. where he graduated in 1967.

The new planner graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a degree in economics in June. He worked for the A. C. Monk Tobacco Co. in Farmville as a foreman before accepting the position as Pitt County Planner.

Michaels is married to the former Gail Harry of Rosewall, Ga., and lives, now, in Greenville.

During his college career, Michaels was employed by a real estate developer and engaged in planning work. He also had regional and urban planning courses while at UNC.

Michaels, 23, will have his office in the office of the County Manager in the Court House.

Charge Men Tried To Sell 2 Children For $7,000 And Used Car

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An Oklahoma Boy Scout leader and his painting partner have been charged with trying to sell a 2-year-old boy and his 3-year-old sister to a police undercover agent for $7,000 and a used car.

Held without bond in the Duval County Jail were Milford Bennett, 37, also known as William O'Hara, and Robert Westenhaver, 22, both of Oklahoma City.

They were charged Tuesday with attempting to sell the children tentatively identified as Butch and Teresa Cox of Oklahoma City.

Duval County police said they have not yet determined the whereabouts of the children's parents.

Police said Bennett carried cards identifying him as the leader of Boy Scout Troop 185 in Oklahoma City.

Investigator W.E. Beacham said the undercover agent, who was not identified, was casually acquainted with Bennett and mentioned during a conversation a year ago that he was interested in adopting a couple of children.

Bechman said Bennett and Westenhaver both said they were painters.

Last Friday, Beacham said, Bennett called the agent and said he had a 2-year-old-boy for sale and expected to have a 3-year-old girl in two or three weeks.

"The agent contacted us then called back to argue about the price," Beacham said. "Monday Bennett called and said he was on the way with the boy. They got into Jacksonville this morning and called the agent to say they had both children with them."

"After they arrived, they settled on a price of $7,000 and a used car. The reason for the car was because one of them didn't have one.

"Bennett took the kids to the agent's house, got $100 in marked money as a binder on the deal then left them with the agent's wife when the agent took him to dinner. Once we had our hands on the children, we moved in and arrested Bennett at the restaurant and got Westenhaver at a motel."

"While we were making the arrests, the agent's wife took the kids out and bought them some clothes. They only had what was on their backs.

"The kids were in kind of rough shape. The little boy had some cigarette burns on him and the little girl had some bruises."

Three Named

RALEIGH — The East Carolina University board of trustees this morning named three of its members to serve on the 32-man board of governors which will govern the state's system of higher education.

Named to the board were Reginal F. McCoy of Laurinburg; W. W. Taylor of Raleigh and Charles Larkins, Sr. of Kinston. McCoy is vice chairman of the ECU board and also a member of the Board of Higher Education. The Board of Higher Education staff will be phased into the new board of governors staff as the transition is made.

NCNB Is Low Bidder On Pitt County Bonds

North Carolina National Bank was low bidder for the purchase of $750,000 in bond anticipation notes being sold by Pitt County yesterday.

The revenue-producing anticipation notes are designed to provide money for expenses expected to be incurred in connection with planning and construction of a new hospital here until hospital bonds can be sold sometime next year.

North Carolina National Bank entered a net interest rate bid of 2.70 per cent.

Other bidders and their bids included: First Union National Bank, 2.73 per cent; Branch Banking and Trust Co., 2.77 per cent; Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., 2.87 per cent, and Bank of North Carolina, 2.98 per cent.

Reschedule 63 Bethel Cases

Cases against 63 persons arrested in Bethel October 27 for marching without permits were continued in District Court here yesterday.

The cases were re-scheduled for November 29.

Cases against Golden Frinks, Southern Christian Leadership Conference field secretary who has been leading protests in the county since August, and George Kirby, Willie Fleming and Bennie Roundtree were also contined.

Announce New Time For ECU Speech By Sen. McGovern

A time change has been announced for the speech to be delivered by Senator George McGovern at East Carolina University on Thursday.

Originally set for 10:00 a.m., the speech is now scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Thursday in Wright Auditorium.

The South Dakota Democrat, a presidential hopeful for 1972, makes a two day appearance in Greenville. Born in 1922, the son of a Methodist minister, the senator, who holds a Ph.D. in history, was a professor at Dakota Wesleyan before being elected to the House of Representatives in 1957 and again in 1959. He was the first Democrat from South Dakota to make the Washington scene since the 1930s.

First elected to the Senate by a small margin in 1962, McGovern won a landslide reelection in 1968.

McGovern has consistently voiced his stand on U.S. involvement in Vietnam and is against unnecessary military spending.

He is known widely as a champion for reform and reorganization and is chairman of the Democratic Reform Commission.

As a presidential candidate, McGovern's platform is centered on the slogan to "seek and speak the truth."

Sonny McLawhorn, in charge of arrangements for Sen. McGovern's appearance, says the general public is encouraged to attend the McGovern speech being held at Wright Auditorium.

An Ailing Child And Family Find Friends

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Maria Gomez, nine, has beautiful long-lashed deep brown eyes, but they are clouded by the brain tumor that has partially paralyzed and robbed her of her speech and strength within the past two months.

The eyes of her parents, former migrant laborers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gomez, reflect worry and uncertainty.

The Gomez family was working in the cucumber harvest near Creswell in Eastern North Carolina. The crop had been severly affected by heavy rains and they were about ready to start back to Ocala, Fla. when Maria got sick. Treated first by a Plymouth physician, Maria was sent to Pitt Memorial Hospital here about six weeks ago. Dr. Robert L. Timmons, neurosurgeon, told her parents that operating on Maria would be impossible, since hers is a brain stem tumor. Cutting into this area of the brain means death, he said. Good care and cobalt treatments to slow the growth of the tumor are the only therapy.

Some time after Maria was entered at Pitt Memorial, the Gomezes went into the coffee shop at the hospital, where they were observed by Mrs. Robert Dominick, a Service League volunteer worker there. Orginally from Cuba, she recognized their language and addressed them in Spanish. After a short chat, they asked her if she would go up to the pediatrics ward and visit their sick and homesick daughter.

It was only after she started visiting Maria to read to and play games with her that Mrs. Dominick learned how serious the child's condition was and also of the financial plight of the family.

Took Job Here

She and her husband, who is general manager of Sunnyside Eggs near Greenville, made a trip to Creswell to offer Gomez a job. He accepted and the family was moved into a mobile home on the Sunnyside farm last Wednesday.

Gomez has proved to be an industrious worker, Dominick says. And Maria is cheered each day when her mother spends several hours at her bedside. Her brother

The Shopping Jungle: More A Maze Than Ever

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS

NEW YORK (WNS) — The consumer has many champions today, both in and out of Congress and the state legislatures.

But even while many legislative and educational programs to help consumers are being proposed, fought over and sometimes enacted, the consumer's shopping problem actually has become more difficult then ever. The proliferation of merchandise has gotten to the point where it has become a research project to select a suitable value, plus creating a severe expense headache for retailers themselves.

As one of many examples, in 1966 there were some 1,100 tires of different brands and quality on the market. Now in 1971 there are some 1,700 different models, grades and brands, and most of them come in 12 to 15 different sizes.

For another example which you encounter frequently, a modern supermarket now stocks 8,000 to 10,000 different items compared to 1,500 to 2,000 the service stores of the previous generation used to offer. In a typical supermarket you are likely to find, just in cereals, as my researchers did, 151 different types, brands and sizes.

Appliances

Trying to select a suitable appliance has become another king-size problem. Eight years ago one of the leading mail-order chains offered three qualities of automatic washers: basic, medium-price and deluxe. Today this one retailer has eight different models, each with somewhat different features, and it's hard indeed to judge which offers the most usefullness for the money. In sewing machines, because of the proliferation of manual zigzag, semi-zigzag, fully-automatic and very deluxe models, a sewing machine has become the single most-complicated item to buy. We counted up about 200 different models and didn't cover all those on the market by any means.

The proliferation of merchandise and the resultant increase in costs and service problems has caught the attention of consumer spokesmen. However, some of the proposals advanced even by well-meaning advocates have no realistic relation to the consumer's real needs and even serve to divert attention from basic remedies. One proposal pushed by some highly-publicized consumer spokesmen in and out of Congress seeks to have all buying information computerized so that a consumer could "pay a few dollars" and get a compilation of data on various models of all products on the market "from automobiles to zucchini."

TV Sets, Fibers

In an age when there are, for example, some 900 to 1,000 TV models in various sizes and makes, and, in clothing, several thousand fiber blends, weaves and finishes, to try to solve the consumer's buying problem by collecting and computerizing all this data would keep half the country busy amassing shopping facts for the other half. This information would have to be constantly revised as models change.

The real need, of course, is for standards that would assure consumers basic service ability and product safety, no matter what the model, plus information on performance specifications and characteristics labeled right on the product, as is now available for air conditioners and vacuum cleaners. The further need is to encourage manufacturers and stores to curb the many thousands of barely-differentiated models.

Already car manufacturers have begun to cut back on the number of models they produce and on annual model changes in an effort to stem rising production and service costs.

From time to time I'll come back to this problem and offer guidelines for selecting the most suitable model and relatively good values in different types of goods. But meanwhile I want to suggest these general policies:

1. Know your own needs, and buy the simplest model you really need. For example, one retailer reports that most women insist on ranges with automatic timers. But some do not use them while others use them often.

2. If in doubt, stick to the middle price lines. In washing machines, for example, the lowest-price models usually have only one speed but provide two cycles — for regular and "gentle" washes. Medium-price models are likely to have two speeds and a three-cycle timer; thus greater versatility. Deluxe washers, at the highest price, usually have greater variation in temperature, speed and washing cycles, and are fully programmed. They have "memory." You can push bottons and they "remember" how synthetic fibers should be washed, or cotton, and so on. You have to turn a dial for the middle-price washers; otherwise these two-speed models provide sufficient flexibility without being as costly or complicated as the deluxe models.

The same principle holds true in almost anything else you buy. A low-price shirt usually will be made of lower-grade materials and construction. A medium-price shirt will have the same materials as the expensive ones and much the same construction. But it may have only one pocket instead of two, or fewer tucks at the yoke or cuffs.

English sailors adapted macrame as a hobby in the 17th Century to help pass the long hours at sea, but the sailors described their handiwork as square knotting or fancy rope work.

Actress Says Life Is Best Training For Acting

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Italian actress Luciana Paluzzi says her career was "an accident, a stroke of luck and a very boring story." But the beautiful redhead whose latest film is "Cometogether" has a way of making any story sound anything but boring.

Miss Paluzzi, fighting an autumn cold and talking in rapid Italian-accented English, told that story:

"I'm a Gemini," she began, "so I was always interested in two things. In school, I had to choose between a classical or a scientific course, so I chose the scientific, which was supposed to teach me to be a naval engineer. But I also took classical dancing to be a ballerina. As it turned out, I did neither.

"One day, a friend of our family who worked for American films said he was looking for a girl to play in 'Three Coins in a Fountain,' and told my father I should try for it. So I did. I couldn't speak a word of English, but that was it."

The part she landed was that of Rosanno Brazzi's sister, and after that film, Miss Paluzzi says she graduated to 4 lines, then 8, 10 and 12. Her first English starring role was in "Carlton Brown of the Foreign Office," but she's probably best known here for the TV series, "Five Fingers."

"The show didn't last too long," Miss Paluzzi admits, "but it was the first time they ever imported an actress to star in a TV series. And it was one of the first hour shows. It was like a spy thing, but much before its time."

The actress says the best training for acting is life. "The only thing is to think what you're doing is real," she explains. But that was a difficult philosophy for her in "Cometogether," where she plays one of two women who are in love with the same man.

"The relationship in the film doesn't carry responsibility, so it works there," she says. "But such a relationship isn't possible if it becomes serious. The two women would end up being jealous, and being all those things men hate.

"I have always been in love with two men at the same time, though," she declares, carefully adding—"the man and my father or the man and my son."

Miss Paluzzi says she lives in Rome, New York City or wherever she's making a picture, and although she says she couldn't be happy without her career, she admits that mostly, "it's a lot of hard work."

The actress, divorced from her husband, says it is difficult to have a job and a family too—"You really have to forget work when you're with your man. As an actress it's hard because you're flattered all day."

She isn't much on women's lib, except for the issue of equal salary. "Why make such a big point of it," she asks. "They should do it in a more subtle way. Just whisper to your man calmly after you've given him a good meal and you'll get what you want."

'Selfish' Bachelor Has Abby's Support

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am interested in the letter from the bachelor who refused the request of his best friend and the friend's wife who asked him to attempt to impregnate her. It seems to me that the bachelor was inordinately selfish, as is true of most bachelors.

Should the bachelor have agreed, the attempt might have resulted in a conception and birth, making at least three people happy, the husband, the wife, and the offspring.

Respectfully, A LOUISVILLE M. D.

DEAR M. D.: Surely, you jest! The possibilities of multiple regrets in such a bizarre arrangement are endless. Man is not like the May fly, whose only purpose in life is to propagate, and having performed that function once, he drops dead.

DEAR ABBY: I know you don't use names or locations, so I'll be perfectly candid. I am in my late 30's and divorced. No children. I am very well off financially because of my divorce settlement. My husband wanted the divorce, not I. [Another woman.] I loved and trusted him and was disillusioned and hurt when he told me.

A few months ago I renewed my acquaintance with a handsome, charming gentleman. Gary [not his real name] is intelligent, sensitive, kind and warm. He is talented and self-supporting, and I love being with him. We've talked of marriage and I am considering it.

Now the problem: Gary is a homosexual, which I knew all along. He is satisfying in every way, and I am not jealous of his male friends. I was so deeply hurt by my husband, I never want that kind of love again. Give me your honest opinion of marriage between Gary and me.

CONSIDERING IT

DEAR CONSIDERING: I have often said, "All that is necessary for a marriage to succeed is that the two people really need each other."

Be sure you and Gary "need" each other for reasons that will endure. It is possible that you were so deeply hurt by a husband who replaced you with another woman that you'd feel more secure in a marriage which is not likely to be threatened by another woman. Enjoy Gary's company for the time being, but don't marry him unless you are sure of your own motivations.

DEAR ABBY: I recently became engaged. My fiance lives with his widowed mother and wants to continue to after we are married. He says his mother will let me take over the house completely, and that we wouldn't be living with HER—she would be living with US!

Furthermore, he says if we don't live with his mother, she will have to sell her house and live in an apartment because she won't be able to run the house on her check alone. Besides that, he has already bought his mother a washer, dryer, television, etc. and he doesn't want to have to buy these things twice.

Abby, I don't think it is possible for me to live in her home and "take it over" with her living there, too. It would still be HER house, and I can't see starting married life with my husband's mother living with us. [Or us with her, however you want to look at it.] Maybe your readers have had experience with this type of set-up. Does it ever work? What do you think?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: I am sure it has worked for many. But with very few who have the doubts you express. Tell your fiance exactly how you feel.

To stretch the meat dollars in your budget plan more large roasts and use some of the meat for sandwiches. Also: pass up chiecken parts. Cut up a whole bird. If the price pinch is less, use fish more often.

Things To Do To Lessen The Chance Of A Burglary

By BETTY YARMON

NEW YORK (WNS) — If you live in an apartment, are you falling victim to the fear psychosis that grips so many American city-dwellers? If so, here are 10 hints that may help curb that fear — and cut down on your chances of being robbed:

1—Never hire a domestic servant for your particular apartment without a thorough check of references. Similarly, impress upon the building management that the house manager or superintendent should be just as careful in hiring new personnel for the building.

2—If possible, have a special lock-and-screen combination placed between the ground floor and the second floor. This will discourage burglars who manage to gain entry into the building through the basement or roof.

3—Make sure that careful attention is paid to securing basement and roof doors, along with skylight latches, the usual places of entry. Inform the management of your building of your concern about this so they won't get careless.

4—Individuals who claim to be repairmen, plumbers, painters, or delivery boys should never be allowed entry into any apartment without the written or oral permission of the tenant. Again, check this point carefully with the management of your building.

5—Before leaving on a trip, notify the superintendent and elevator operators so they will keep an eye on your apartment. Have them hold mail pending your return, suspend milk deliveries, newspaper deliveries, and the like so that prowling strangers won't be tipped off that yours is an empty apartment.

6—Have heavy screening put on windows and double locks on doors, to make forced entries that much more difficult.

7—Place door hinges on the inside, to prevent a would-be burglar from forcing them with a crowbar.

8—Large amounts of cash, jewelry, and other valuables should be kept in an adequate safe or safe deposit vault. The news that you have such valuables loose around your apartment readily gets around, and makes your home a tempting target for would-be burglars.

9—All locks should be changed when you move into a new apartment or when a key has been lost.

10—Never leave a key under a doormat or over a door ledge for those are the first places that a would-be burglar will check.

If all these pointer fail you, and you still are victimized by burglars, there are at least three positive steps you can take to help the police:

—Notify them immediately, giving as much information as you can.

—Keep records of serial numbers on such items as typewriters and sewing machines, and pass along this information to the police.

—Similarity, precise descriptions and photographs of jewelry will help the police.

While such steps may help, the gloomy reality is that less than 15 per cent of all stolen property is ever recovered. This is the strongest argument that you take out a reasonably amount of burglary insurance — assuming that you can find an insurance company prepared to write such insurance for you. Burglary insurance is included in the coverage under homeowners insurance policies, or it may be purchased separately.

Time was when city dwellers, snug and confortable in their apartments, smiled tolerantly at their country cousins and the robberies that plagued them in their own homes. But that's all changed, and today police records show that city apartments have become the main focus of burglars. You'll have to do some tall thinking and doing to avoid becoming one of their victims.

In Europe: Wheelchair Traveler Became Stronger About The Possibilities For Handicapped

By MILLY WOHLER
Portland Oregonian Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jeanette Emigh went to Europe in a wheelchair.

"I just went—carte blanche stupid. I had a one-way ticket, $900 to last at least six months and no idea what was going to happen."

There were great days and some very bad. And in between, "I became stronger and stronger about all the possibilities there are for handicapped people. I started to know where I was and who I was physically."

Jeanette, 27, has been in a wheelchair since she was nine because of a rare type of muscular atrophy which affects the lower part of all four limbs. It's called the Charcot Marie Tooth syndrome and is non-paralytic.

Last autumn, with intern teaching completed and just "turning in my papers" short of a master's degree in speech at Portland State University, she decided to discover Europe with two friends. On Oct. 4, the three young women, Jeanette, Carolyn Mays and Elaine Mersereau, left on the trip which would take them to England, France and Spain.

Jeanette's brother, Sgt. Lloyd Emigh, an operating room technician in the Air Force, met the trio in London.

"Lloyd's strong. We didn't realize when we met him how much we'd need him. The first thing that hit us was the tube station—and thousands of steep escalator stairs. Lloyd could do it, but the girls could never carry me.

"Then there were five flights of stairs to the apartment. He packed me over his shoulder like a bag of potatoes."

Paris was the next stop and one of the few dismal interludes. "We stayed in a youth hotel that was, well you had to shower with your shoes on. You had to leave by 9 a.m. and couldn't come back until 6. The girls got blisters on their hands from pushing me.

"People had warned us about cultural shock and we got it. It brought me back to all the basics of living. All the conveniences I'd taken for granted were missing.

"In Paris, most places, you climb a flight of stairs to get to the elevator. The elevators were too small to take the chair. There were steps to all museums. I had to stay outside.

WHEELCHAIR TRAVELER — Tourists in wheelchairs are not common in Europe, says Jeanette Emigh who spent seven months there.

"Most of this was because we were budgeting just $5 a day. We had some friends there and the evenings were fantastic, but that wasn't enough. We finally decided we'd have to sit down and define what was happening. Paris was the turning point.

The warmth and low prices of Spain beckoned so the three boarded what they thought was a through train to Barcelona. "We were in a compartment with two French people and a Spanish man. We had to tie my chair up with a scarf at the end of the compartment. We took turns sleeping on the floor.

"Then there was a stop and the girls got off and discovered we were on the wrong train. Our luggage was headed for Marseilles and we were headed for Barcelona and there was less than a minute left.

"I was inside and everyone was yelling and I couldn't make myself understood to tell them I needed the chair. So I got down on the floor and bounced down to the end of the car. Finally I reached the door and a Spanish guy grabbed me and pulled me off the train. I thought at that point—no matter what happens to me I'm going to be able to handle it."

Spain was what the travelers had been looking for. They found a $35 per month ground floor flat by the Mediterranean and used it as headquarters for other brief trips.

"Spaniards were really friendly. They almost went overboard wanting me to go into their homes. The bus drivers would stop the bus and fight over who was going to carry me into the bus. People were totally receptive. I started to relax and became part of Spain." Later Jeanette flew alone to England to stay with friends at Cambridge. Her two friends joined her and they shared a home with another trio about 20 miles from Cambridge.

"I loved England the second time around. We started seeing the countryside. It was there we hitchhiked. So many people would stop for us but we found that we couldn't fit in the little tiny minis.

"When I rode on the train they put me in the baggage car. The first time I was humiliated but then I found I didn't have to pay fare in there and I really had a different perspective on the whole thing."

While in England Jeanette gave speeches on vocational counseling and hiring the handicapped to University of Maryland graduate students studying there.

"I have found that people know very little about teaching the handicapped even though they are involved in doing it. They lump them all together as a social problem. I realized I wanted to talk about that."

Jeanette returned from Europe May 1. She hopes to establish a center, possibly at Portland State University which will help orient handicapped students in preparation for higher education.

She is an employment counselor for Brown and Associates, a professional employment service.

"My boss is Dennis Brown. I asked him why he hired me, because it's only one in every 100 who will even talk to a handicapped person about a job. He answered with what he said was a paraphrase of Shakespeare, 'There's no good or bad but in thinking we make it so.'

"The one thing I hope to achieve is getting more people to the point where Mr. Brown is."

Widows Are Uniting For More, Better Jobs

MENTON, Frnace (WNS) — In annual convention here, the National Association of Widows reported that three million women in a France of 50 million citizens are now widows. Only 400,000 are war widows. Widows now come in young ranges because half of the men who died in automobile accidents during the past four years were under 34 years old. Theme of the convention: how to reintegrate widows into the working society. According to experts, 73 per cent of French widows have no working professions. Mme. Bourrut Lacouture, national president of the association, has called for more jobs for widows, better working conditions, shorter hours, sufficient training, full retirement benefits and help with the children.

Former Boyfriend Is A Sore Loser

AURICH, West Germany (WNS) — Guests at the wedding banquet excused themselves and left hastily because somebody had spiked the goulash soup with caster oil. The groom could not get his car out of the garage to set off on the honeymoon because someone had cemented up the lock. Then a stink bomb went off and an enormous pool of wet tar appeared outside the bride's front door. "It's a case of a jilted lover," explained the father of the bride and asked for anonymity. "My daughter was friendly with a young man two years ago, and he never got over the break-up."

Uncertainties Plague Phase 2

Phase 2 of President Nixon's anti-inflation program has opened, but there seems to be considerable confusion as to how it will be carried out.

Hardly had it got underway before the Cost of Living Council went into session to decide whether to rescind an exemption which would allow car prices to go up without advance notice.

The board previously had ruled against pay raises retroactive to the beginning of the pay freeze period, although it was agreed to consider individual cases on their merits.

Present regulations also require that companies of $100 million or more sales must report proposed price increases to the government in advance. Smaller companies can be ordered to rescind price increases.

Generally wages can be increased by 5.5 per cent.

While it is expected that economy figures may take a spurt following the freeze, there will still be limitations on price and wage increases which government officials hope will keep long range inflation under control.

For most of us the medicine is not pleasant; however the effects of continued rampant inflation could be worse.

Hard-To-Place Child Wanted

RALEIGH — Jimmy is four, and fooling the experts.

One year ago they said premature birth and cerebral palsy had marked him for life with physical handicaps, a retiring personality, and limited intellectual functioning likely to make him always a slow learner.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Adoptive parents gave Jimmy love and understanding. He blossomed under the adoring attention of older brothers and sisters. Today, he is catching up fast, both physically and emotionally, and may not be a slow learner, after all.

Jimmy's story is the bright side of the current trend in adoption, in North Carolina and nationwide. As the supply of infants for adoption has declined, more families have opened their arms to hard-to-place children — the handicapped, the black, the older child without a home.

Not many years ago, Jimmy probably would have been destined to grow up in foster homes or a child-caring institution, said Peggy Patterson, supervisor of adoptions for the state department of social services.

Second Look At Adoption

"Both agencies and families are taking a second look at their concept of the adoptable child," she observed.

During calendar 1970, county departments of social service placed approximately 670 children in adoptive homes, and received 1,517 applications from couples wanting to adopt a child, Miss Patterson reported. Both figures reflected a slight increase over the previous year.

The widening ratio of adoptive applicants to available children means disappointment is in store for some families. For the most part, they are the couples asking for a cute, normal baby and unwilling to settle for anything else.

Cute, normal babies for adoption are simply in short supply. "This decrease in the number of infants seems to be caused by a combination of factors such as legalized abortion, availability of contraceptive devices, and changing attitude toward the out-of-wedlock child," Miss Patterson explained.

The majority of children placed for adoption by agencies are born out of wedlock and released for placement soon after birth, she said. "The typical mother is 19 years of age and has completed high school," she added.

Unwed Mothers Keep Babies

"There are indications that it is the typical unwed mother who is beginning to feel less pressure from society to release her baby for adoption."

Fewer babies for adoption has given agencies the incentive and time to concentrate on the needs of children traditionally regarded as difficult to place. It also has sparked a new degree of cooperation and coordinated effort between public and private agencies.

The Children's Home Society of North Carolina, one of four private adoption services in the state, puts its home-finding capacity to work for children referred by other agencies. Initiated in 1950 under a grant from the Duke Endowment, there has been an annual increase for the past several years in the number of children aided by the program.

During 1970, it resulted in the placement of 38 children who other-wise might still be in temporary care, said Ruth McCracken, director of casework for the Society.

Economic Savings Result

"In terms of each child's emotional security and his opportunity for family life, as well as in substantial economic savings to counties and state, every placement was particularly significant," she added.

Special emphasis has been given by the Society to the recruitment of black adoptive homes. The response has been gratifying, Miss McCracken said.

For instance, she noted, the Society placed 22 black or biracial children in all of 1970; for the first six months of 1971, such placements numbered 28.

Another vehicle for agency cooperation is the North Carolina Adoption Resource Exchange. This service, now about one year old, permits the sharing of information on children available for adoption and families seeking to adopt.

In recent months, Miss Patterson said, there has been a noticeable increase in the number of families who can consider children beyond infancy and in the number of black families.

"The trend that seems to be developing is a very exciting one in that the needs of children for adoptive homes are more readily being met," she said. ". . . we are moving toward the commitment that any child for whom a family available is an adoptable child."

A Long Way To Go In Motor Vehicle Safety

While Greenville might be among the ten North Carolina cities with the least number of traffic fatalities, the steady stream of smashed autos being pulled in by wreckers is indication enough that we still have far to go in vehicle safety.

The N. C. State Motor Club ranked Greenville among the ten safest cities after the city counted only one traffic fatality during 1970.

However, we all know that wrecks in which people are injured and property damage runs high are occurring in our city every day.

We should all be thankful that we had a relative low fatality rate last year. But we should all work to see that the appalling number of wrecks that take place in our city is reduced. This can only be done if every driver resolves to operate his vehicle in a safe manner.

Muskie Tries New Strategy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's plans to meet privately December 17 with law-and-order Mayor-elect Frank Rizzo of Philadelphia reflects a new pragmatism in his Presidential campaign following still another staff reorganization.

Muskie telephoned his congratulations to Rizzo the day after his election and accepted an invitation to visit him in Philadelphia. For Muskie to consort with hard-boiled ex-police commissioner Rizzo anguishes liberal staffers at Muskie headquarters who view the mayor-elect as evil incarnate. But to pro-Muskie Democratic professionals the forthcoming pilgrimage to Rizzo is an essential political exercise. It also marks a departure under Muskie's new chief political strategist: Democratic national committeeman George Mitchell of Maine.

In the latest of many unannounced Muskie staff reorganizations, Mitchell, a tough-minded, 38-year-old trial lawyer from Portland, gains full political control of the Muskie campaign. What makes this so important is that Mitchell, unlike other key Muskie advisers, regards the Senator as a centrist who must reach out to the right as well as the left.

Mitchell's elevation ends an ambiguous interlude during which he shared political control with John F. English, national committeeman from New York.

A highly competent political organizer, English performed splendidly early this year in establishing a nationwide Muskie campaign. But schooled in the leftish sectarian squabbling of New York Democratic politics, English pursued an over-all strategy of appeasing the Democratic party's left. Starting with Muskie's appearance at a bipartisan antiwar rally at Providence, R. I., April 18, Muskie's overtures to the left have caused consternation among Democratic moderates, fearful that Muskie was taking on a leftish image that would defeat him for President in 1972.

Furthermore, Muskie has suffered minor but undeniable damage inside party ranks. Texas regulars who leaned his way last year now say privately it is becoming impossible to support him for the nomination. Organization Democrats in Philadelphia resent his failure to endorse Democratic nominee Rizzo after the primary election. He has generated enmity in the AFL-CIO hierarchy.

Nor have Muskie's overtures to the left gained him much. Despite Muskie's support of the losing campaign of Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa to be convention Credentials Committee chairman, the New Democrat — leading publication of the party's left fringe — was not satisfied. Muskie's effort "can be indicted as either duplicitous or vague," it trumpeted.

The last straw may have been English's appointment of leftish firebrand Donald Peterson, national committeeman from Wisconsin, as "Midwestern coordinator." Muskie himself learned about Peterson's appointment in the newspapers. Shortly thereafter, Mitchell was given full political command.

Mitchell is no conservative. He fully subscribes to the theory that the party's left wing must be partially mollified or the 1972 nominee will suffer Hubert Humphrey's 1968 fate.

But Mitchell is on far better terms than English with the party establishment, including national chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien and national treasurer Robert Strauss. Moreover, Mitchell has no illusions about just how non-liberal rank-and-file Democrats really are. Muskie scored his biggest recent spurt among Democratic voters after he

Strength For Today

ASSURANCE

Assurance is a mighty power in the living of an effective and significant life. If we think we can do a thing we are usually right in our assurance. Some people are defeated before they begin. They shake their heads and shrug their shoulders and raise their arms in a gesture of defeat. And of course under these circumstances they are defeated. But the guy who believes he can usually can. He may stub his toe or fall flat on his face a number of times before he achieves but if he is confident that he can achieve eventually he usually does. Some men have run for office over and over again, defeated, scoffed at, but at last victorious. Pasteur could make certain of his scientific findings work with animals but he was afraid to try them on humans. When he did and they were successful he stepped to the forefront of his generation.

Abraham Lincoln was a sorry figure for many years but later a world leader. George Washington ought to have known he could not win the Revolutionary War — but he didn't know this and he came out victorious. Thomas A. Edison was told over and over again that he was crazy — but he kept on and the world honors him today.

Assurance by itself is not enough. It has to be supported with self-confidence and with the assurance that whatever has to be done can be done.

It is not true that we can do anything we think we can do — if we think hard enough. But there is no victory in any field without assurance.

Where He Denies It All

WASHINGTON — If the American people are suspicious of Sen. Edward Kennedy's political intentions, they certainly cannot be blamed. Every time you pick up the newspaper there is another story about Teddy Kennedy confirming he is not a presidential candidate in 1972. It isn't the denial that has people confused as much as where Sen. Kennedy denies it.

As the campaign heats up we can expect more and more news stories on the subject. They might look like this:

WINDY FALLS, Iowa — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy told a cheering throng of 10,000 persons at the Windy Falls County Fair that he would not accept the presidential nomination under any circumstances in 1972.

The senator from Massachusetts said that the people must defeat Nixon or the country would be faced with inflation, unemployment, drought and financial ruin. He called on the citizens of Iowa to turn out the Republicans in 1972 and elect a Democratic President from the fine list of candidates who were now running, of which he was not one.

After his speech Sen. Kennedy visited an Indian reservation, a Mexican-American migrant labor camp, a United Auto Workers communion breakfast, a chamber of commerce awards banquet and made a short speech during half-time ceremonies at the Iowa State-Nebraska Tech homecoming game, reiterating his determination not to run for the highest office in the land.

NEW YORK — Sen. Edward Kennedy spent 14 hours in New York City yesterday in a whirlwind tour. A Kennedy aide said that the senator from Massachusetts wanted to take his message that he was not a presidential candidate personally to all the five boroughs.

The senator unequivocally denied any higher political ambitions at a rally in Harlem, a Jewish temple in Queens, the Sons of St. Patrick in Staten Island, the Brothers of Italy in Brooklyn and the Save Yankee Stadium Citizens League in the Bronx.

Sen. Kennedy also met with Democratic Party leaders of New York in his brother-in-law Steve Smith's Fifth Avenue apartment, to discuss ways of keeping his name off the ballot.

He then talked for an hour with Mayor John Lindsay in an effort to pursuade Lindsay not to start a grass-roots Kennedy presidential campaign.

Before leaving New York, Kennedy rode up Fifth Avenue in an open convertible with his wife, Joan, hoping to discourage New Yorkers from considering him as a Democratic hopeful.

Other Editors Say Big Price To Pay

(The Wilson Times)

Conditions are getting very serious when the cost of government is so high ethics are discarded in order to pay tax bills. We are talking about the trend toward legalized gambling.

The two largest states, New York and California, according to a special survey, find the people favoring state legalized gambling to reduce the tax bite.

New York already has a state operated lottery and horse betting establishment. Now with an $8 billion state deficit there is the apparent desire for the state to turn even more to gambling rather than taxes.

According to a survey 54 per cent say they favor "opening the state to legalized gambling such as Nevada now has to obtain additional revenue."

In hard-pressed California, 64.8 per cent say yes to the question, "would you be in favor of state supervised lotteries to provide additional funds for the operation of state government to decrease taxes?"

In California only betting at track pari-mutuel windows is legal. "Bookies" are illegal, largely because they divert the action away from the tracks where the state gets a percentage of the betting take.

The claim is made by some that the state's crime rate is due to police facilities being engaged in cracking down on bookies instead of being concerned with violent types of crime. Regardless of the claim it is a sure bet that legalized gambling will increase the crime rate. In fact it will tear down the moral fiber of the people.

There was a time when the independent business people of California, located in the area of the race tracks, raised protests against horse racing on the grounds that people spent their money at the tracks and failed to pay their bills. This has been the claim wherever there is gambling, whether it is turning the wheels of chance at county fairs, or legalized racing of any type.

Now the trend seems to be toward legalized gambling and in California it is said to be due to the huge sums which go from California to Nevada casinos only a short distance away.

When the time comes that it takes more to run government than the people can pay, it is time to cut government, and this can be cut. This nation is coming to a serious pass when it takes the income from legalized gambling to pay the cost of government.

"My, my, Mr. Bilgewater, I do hope we had a pleasant night."

"What are you looking so uneasy about, sir? Surely you've seen a bedpan before."

"I'm the priest at the hospital here. Would you care to make a confession, or just have a little chat?"

"Just between us, Harry, what did they really find wrong with you?"

"Yeah, I've been in this room a month. The last guy in your bed seemed to be coming along just fine when, all of a sudden, he was gone—just like you blow out a candle."

"As your wife, Harry, I hope that you'll take this illness as a warning from heaven to live a more sensible existence than you have for the last 25 years."

"I'm your wife's lawyer, Mr. Bilgewater. Of course, we know everything is going to be okay, but Mrs. Bilgewater thought we ought to bring your will up to date. Purely precautionary, naturally. Just sign here."

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL

Nov. 17, 1931

Highway Patrolman E. L. Bradley received injuries last night when he was fired upon by motorists after his motorcycle had wrecked on the Greenville-Grimesland highway. The officer was returning to Greenville when a car sped by him in a reckless manner and he gave chase. As he drew up behind the speeding car, the driver suddenly put on brakes and the motorcycle crashed into the automobile. The officer was thrown to the pavement and as he lay there occupants of the car fired upon him but did not hit him.

People Can Still Spend Money

By ELMER ROESSNER

With higher postage rates, you might expect fewer mail-order offerings as this year's holiday season approaches. So, like many others, you may be surprised at the volume of offers, catalogs and inducements you are getting through the mails. And the volume will increase for the next three weeks.

There are many reasons for increase in Christmas mail-order promotions:

. Despite the high rate of unemployment and the uncomfortable stock market, people do have spending money. Total personal income is still rising, savings totals are increasing and the spending potential is bettering. A new record in Christmas spending has been predicted here.

. Even fears that things may get worse are a stimulus to Christmas spending. The "last big fling" is a recurring drive in human psychology.

Even Price Freeze Helps

. Many people feel that the price freeze will get out of hand, and that orders now will be cheaper than orders later. This is despite the fact that many articles offered in Christmas mail order catalogs are not frozen in price, catalogs were printed six months ago and price increases were recorded then, long before the freeze. And many gifts, citrus fruits, pears, apples, etc., are exempt from the freeze.

. Many mail-order sellers fear an increase in mail rates next year and so it's best to try to make a profit while they can.

. This is the get-away season for many mail-order operators. There are some specialists who offer glamorous items at attractive prices by mail. When they get a profitable response, they buy the item at wholesale and fill the orders. But if the item is a flop, they just forget about it and return the money only after Postal Inspectors, the Federal Trade Commission and Better Business Bureaus start breathing down their necks.

No Crackdown This Year

The FTC has been looking into these can't-lose operations but, perhaps with Chrisitan charity, it won't crack down until after Christmas. It has called public hearings next Jan. 24 and 25 on a series of regulations, which may be promultated sometime after that, well after the last Christmas dollar has been pulled in.

The FTC proposals are: that if an advertiser cannot ship a product within 21 days after receipt of payment, he must return the money, unless the seller clearly discloses that the shipment will be made at a later date; that the seller must keep records of sales with customers' names and addresses, the dates ordered and the dates shipped; that the seller follow good credit practices; that trading stamps are considered as money, and that magazines or serial deliveries, such as fruit or cheese of the month, are not covered except for the first shipment.

Now, or even after the new rules are promulgated, it will be safest for customers to buy from well-known mail-order houses and those they have done business with before.

Heroin Shipment Find Underlines Role Of France

By BERNARD GAVZER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a "cold hit." The customs inspector aboard the freighter took another, closer look at the Volkswagen camper and soon 96 pounds of pure heroin were discovered.

"We didn't have any information about a specific vehicle, or about that particular vehicle," explained a special agent of the Customs Bureau, "but we were concentrating on vehicles."

The ship had come from Le Havre, where the camper had been put aboard, and arrived in Port Elizabeth, N.J., on April 3.

The smuggling of heroin, whether from Le Havre of Marseille or from Orly Airport, is usually the last step in the French role in the lucrative heroin traffic.

France plays a key role in obtaining the crude product and refining it into heroin. Most of the refining is done in clandestine laboratories in the Marseille area.

"The reason it is Marseille," explains a Bureau of Narcotics agent assigned to the office there, "is that the criminal syndicates are dominated by Corsicans and this is where they have trafficked since World War II."

John T. Cusack, head of the Bureau of Narcotics office in Paris, has said Marseille remained a key processing center because "it is only 800 miles from the source and the traffickers do not want to extend their lines of communication."

Cusack was referring to the hilly region of Turkey where most of the opium poppy is grown. The opium gum is processed into morphine base in Turkey or in such a country as Lebanon. It comes into France as a morphine base, smuggled mainly by ship.

While the United States and France early this year came to a public commitment to put renewed pressure on heroin traffickers, Cusak privately indicated that the French could do a much better job if they had the will. He later said as much in a critical interview in a French magazine.

The "cold hit" in Port Elizabeth resulted in the indictment of a top ranking French intelligence officer. He is Col. Paul Fournier, a supervisory agent in the counterintelligence service.

The federal grand jury described Fournier as the brains behind the smuggling scheme and said he employed a former aide, Roger de Louette, to carry out the smuggling.

De Louette bought a Volkswagen camper for the purpose. It was loaded with heroin, packed in 44 plastic packs of one kilo each, hidden on the camper and then shipped aboard the Atlantic Cognac.

Arriving April 3, the ship put into Port Elizabeth. De Louette came to the dock April 5, after flying to the United States from France the day before, and claimed his camper. The heroin, at that stage, was commanding a wholesale price of $25,000 a kilo. The 44 kilos was enough to supply the average needs of 96,000 heroin addicts for one day.

De Louette was seized after the customs inspector detected the cache. He pleaded guilty Tuesday to conspiring to smuggle the heroin.

The indictment involving Fournier points up the alarm expressed by a number of narcotics agents who suspected, but had no proof, that there might be some high-up leaks or high-up protection involving trafficking.

Also mentioned in the indictment was the existence of an unidentified connection in the French consulate in New York with whom De Louette was to make contact. De Louette reportedly was to receive $50,000 for his role in the smuggling.

Before leaving the city Kennedy visited a children's hospital, the women's house of detention and made a surprise visit backstage to shake hands with the cast of "Jesus Christ Superstar."

WASHINGTON — A spokesman for Sen. Edward Kennedy said today that while the senator was flattered that he was leading Muskie in both the Harris and Gallup polls and was half a point behind President Nixon, he still would not consider under any circumstances the race for President of the United States.

Sen. Kennedy was unavailable for comment as he was en route to Ireland, Italy and Israel where he hoped to explain to those countries' leaders why he would not run in 1972.

blurted out that he could not win with a Negro running-mate.

Mitchell's pragmatism is typified by his non-sectarian acceptance of Rizzo. He was aware from the beginning that Rizzo's defeat in the general election (prayed for by some liberal Muskie staffers) would be a calamity. With a Republican mayor of Philadelphia, Muskie's chances of carrying vital Pennsylvania would decline.

But it is simplistic to suggest that Muskie, pulled leftward by some advisers, will automatically be dragged back to the center by Mitchell. The Senator's own ideological learnings have inclined him to take risks in seeking converts on the left, that he so far has not dared in seeking aid from the right.

The question remains whether Ed Muskie, inherently popular with the white working class voters who elected Rizzo, will say and do just a few things to show he shares their concern about crime, disorder and drugs, even if it offends the party's left wing. With George Mitchell as his chief politician, that may now be easier for him.

"If they find any gallstones, will you have them save one for me? It would be cute to have somebody else's gallstone for a souvenir. I might even have it made into a ring."

Tax-Cut Legislation Faces Series Of Amendments

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate moves today into the sticky questions of adding broad Social Security increases and a far-reaching presidential campaign-financing plan to the $25.6-billion tax-cut bill.

As a result, leaders virtually abandoned plans to finish action on the legislation by tonight.

The Nixon administration suffered further defeats in consideration of the bill Tuesday as three amendments costing about $1.75 billion a year were adopted.

These would:

—Give low-income families additional tax relief this year by making the new $1,300 minimum standard deduction effective immediately, rather than in 1972. Under present law, the 1971 deduction is $1,050. The amendment would add $992 million to the cost of the bill.

—Give a 10-per-cent investment credit to job-creating enterprises in central cities with unemployment of 6 per cent or more. The cost: $500 million a year.

—Allow a 10-per-cent credit on investments that create jobs in rural areas, at an annual cost of $250 million.

In another major vote, the Senate approved 53 to 29 an amendment granting the president power to impose a 15-per-cent surcharge on imports, in place of the present 10-per-cent levy. The measure also allows the president to slap quotas on any products moving into the United States.

A president could activate the quota provisions, which opponents claimed could touch off an international trade war, by declaring an emergency exists in the U.S. balance of payments.

Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., planned to offer to the tax bill today an amendment carrying all the Social Security increases in the welfare-reform bill that passed the House last June.

The include a general 5-per-cent hike in all benefits, a special increase for widows, and a plan to adjust payments in the future to increases in the cost of living.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Finance Committee chairman and floor manager for the bill, said he would try to dispose of the Gurney amendment by a tabling motion which would kill it.

Long said he intends to deal with Social Security and welfare reform in his committee by taking up the House-passed welfare bill once action is completed on the tax legislation.

The Democratic proposal for federal financing of presidential campaigns was unveiled Tuesday night by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I. The amendment is quite similar to one enacted by Congress in 1966 and nullified in 1967.

Republicans are expected to put up a stiff fight against it. The plan could give each major-party presidential nominee $20.4 million in federal funds next year, far more than the $12 million to $13 million available to Democratic candidate Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968.

The amendment would set up a presidential election-campaign fund into which each taxpayer could channel $1 by checking a box on his income tax return.

Each major-party candidate would be entitled to an amount equal to 15 cents for each person 18 and over.

This would make an estimated $20.4 million available to the Republican and Democratic nominees each next year.

The nominee could reject the money and rely on the usual financing methods. An estimated $27 million was spent in the 1968 Nixon campaign; thus the Republican party might well forego the federal plan.

A major-party nominee who accepted the federal funds would have to agree not to spend more than the plan offers him.

A third-party candidate would be entitled to about $6.3 million.

The amendment also would permit a $100 deduction or a $25 credit for contributions to any federal, state or local campaign. The credit would be half of any such gift up to $50.

South Vietnam Air Force Sets Strikes At Ho Chi Minh Trail

By GEORGE ESPER
Associaed Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — For the first time in the Vietnam war, the South Vietnamese air force will soon begin regular strikes against the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in eastern Laos.

Informed sources said today that the South Vietnamese would join the U.S. Air Force and Navy during the next six months in bombing North Vietnamese troops and supplies moving south along the trail network during the dry season.

South Vietnamese participation initially will be token, a few missions flown each day compared to hundreds by American fliers. Informed sources said there is no suggestion that the South Vietnamese can take over the bulk of the air campaign in Laos any time soon, as they have already done in South Vietnam, but it will be a start.

Unless there is a political settlement with the Communists, the United States will have to do most of the bombing in southeastern Laos for many months to come.

This will not delay the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam since most of the planes fly from the five U.S. Air Force bases in Thailand and the aircraft carriers in the Tonkin Gulf.

The United States has built the South Vietnamese air force into the eighth largest in the world, with 39 squadrons, more than 900 aircraft and 46,000 men. But it is being trained and equipped mostly for operations inside South Vietnam, on the assumption that the war will de-escalate in the years to come.

In the war today, U.S. B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese bunkers and storage depots in the southern half of the demilitarized zone on the Laotian border for the fifth successive day.

Only small patrol clashes were reported on the battlefields of South Vietnam, but it was disclosed that government forces launched a search operation three days ago 12 miles northeast of Saigon.

About 300 militiamen backed by heavy air and artillery strikes are looking for a local Viet Cong sapper battalion. No significant contact has been reported.

In Cambodia, military sources said more than 5,000 Cambodian troops were being shifted to the western outskirts of Phnom Penh to oppose two North Vietnamese and Viet Cong regiments thrusting northward and threatening two important highways leading from the Cambodian capital.

The Cambodian command confirmed today that it had lost the village of Tuol Leap, 10 miles west of Phnom Penh, and said enemy attacks were continuing in that region.

Two Pitt Students In Honors Program

GREENSBORO — Two Pitt County students are among the 76 students enrolled in the Honors Program at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro for the fall semester of the 1971-72 year.

They are: Rebecca J. Bosley, sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Bosley, Grifton; and Pamela M. Carter, sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Carter, Greenville.

Miss Bosley and Miss Carter are both participating in the sophomore honors tutorial program.

Honors students take special courses in addition to work related to their degree requirements. The program is supervised by an Honors Council composed of 10 faculty members. Superior academic achievement is a prerequisite for admission to the program.

Sophomore honors students are able to choose either a tutorial, in which a small group of students explore a selected theme with a faculty member, or an interdisciplinary seminar which deals with a theme that cuts across departmental lines.

Forty-seven sophomores, 17 juniors and 12 seniors are involved in the honors program out of an undergraduate enrollment of 5,145. UNC-G also has over 1,800 graduate students. A selected number of freshmen students will be invited to participate in honors program tutorials during the spring semester.

The honors program provides one hour credit each semester for sophomores and three hours credit each semester for juniors and seniors.

Romney To Talk At Conference

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, will speak Thursday at a conference on Regionalism in the '70s.

The conference, one of eight across the country, will be sponsored by HUD and the North Carolina Piedmont Triad Council of Governments.

Other speakers will include Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor and officials from HUD and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

PCA Film Earned Award At Festival

The new Production Credit Association film "Credit, A Capital Idea" has received one of the Nation's highest film awards, according to F. L. Little, Jr., general manager of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association.

The animated film on profitable use of farm credit was bestowed "The Chris" statuette at the 19th Annual Columbus International Film Festival in Columbus, Ohio.

"The Chris" is comparable to the "Oscar" which is given in the motion picture industry.

Of 470 motion pictures entered in the festival in the areas of education and industry only 59 statuettes — the festival's highest award — were presented.

The high award was the first ever received by a motion picture of the Farm Credit System.

The film is available from the local Production Credit Association office or from Farm Credit Bank Services, Post Office Box 1499, Columbia, South Carolina 29202.

Amnesty For Pupils Asked

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Black community leaders have asked that charges against more than 60 Negro pupils arrested in recent school disturbances be dropped while they continue to work with youngsters to ease racial tensions.

But to this request, made Tuesday, the reaction of William E. Poe, chairman of the school board, was that dropping of charges might cause "as much or more of an adverse reaction from the rest of the community" as the arrests have in the black community.

Poe added in an interview that he would "certainly prefer that no student have a criminal record if there is any way to accomplish this and maintain order in the schools.

"But when you get to the question of having had a riot...then it seems to me that society must be allowed to take its normal course and the proper machinery be allowed to take over for the administration of justice."

Trials are scheduled the week of Nov. 29. Charges include riot, assault and disturbing public schools.

The Negro leaders include the Rev. George Leake, a former candidate for mayor, and Dr. Reginald Hawkins, a dentist seeking for the second time the Democratic nomination for governor.

South Korea Builds First Subway Line

SEOUL (AP) — Early in 1974, South Korea will become the second Asian nation, following Japan, to have a subway running.

A near 6 mile line, the first in the nation's 10-year subway construction program, is scheduled to be completed by the end of 1973 at a cost of about $81.4 million.

The first underground train route will connect the Seoul central railroad station near downtown with Chongyang-ni in the eastern part of the capital.

The over-all program calls for construction of two more lines, running 22 miles and 13.3 miles, by the end of 1981.

Construction on the first route began last April with President Park Chung-Hee breaking ground for the work.

The metropolitan government activated a subway construction office in June last year, and South Korea formally asked Japan's help for the program.

Japan promised to assist and sent a technical survey group which determined the project to be economically feasible. Japan then agreed to provide an 80-million loan for the project.

The South Korean government decided on the subway construction idea after it concluded there was no other choice in solving Seoul's traffic problem.

The population of the capital, now 5.5 million, has nearly doubled in the past 10 years and is expected to reach 7.5 million by 1981. The population of the greater metropolitan area by that time would be some 13 million, according to experts.

The Seoul government first hesitated to take on the project because of the enormous cost involved, which would force the rates of the subway system to go higher than the present inter-city bus fares.

Seoul citizens now pay 7 cents for express bus service and 4 cents for local bus fares, but city officials fear the subway fare must be at least about 11 cents to be economically feasible.

Despite this factor, the government had to decide on the project because the streets of Seoul's business districts, designed half a century ago for a population of half a million, could not adequately handle the soaring vehicle traffic.

Toys Sought By Marines

Greenville's collection point for the "Toys for Tots" drive of the Marine Corps Reserve at Cherry Point is a bin at Pitt Plaza Shopping Center.

The Marine Corps drive, a nationwide effort started in 1947, collects new and like-new toys which are distributed to needy children under the guidance of accredited welfare agencies and civic organizations. The Cherry Point installation handles a drive for 14 Eastern North Carolina counties, including Pitt. There is no budget and no overhead. Funds are not solicited. Work is performed by Marine Reservist and other civic-minded citizens in their free time.

A "toyrama" is being televised on Channel 12, New Bern from Saturday at 11:15 p.m. through Sunday at 5 p.m. According to Capt. W. D. Phillips, commanding officer of the Marine Wing Training Squadron 408, the goal is 20,000 toys. Pete Duel, Ann B. Davis, Susan Dey, and Pat Paulsen are four celebrities who will take part. Various local talented groups, including rock, jazz, folk, and gospel ensembles will also perform.

A Misdemeanor

E. A. Coward of Harker's Island in Carteret County is perturbed by the frequency of the occasions he observes Pitt County cemetery monuments and tombstones destroyed or defaced.

Coward has come to Pitt County often recently to trace his family history, much of [illegible] cemeteries on private property are the ones that have suffered most, he says.

He wrote to Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan for advisement on the law concerning such destruction and defacement. N. C. Criminal Law 14-148 states that removing or defacing monuments and tombstones, regardless of material, is a misdemeanor.

we care

It's America's most popular! Why?

We think it's excellence of product.
Years and years ago, when we decided to bake
Jane Parker Fruit Cake, we also decided to bake the best.
That's why Jane Parker Fruit Cake was then and is today over 2/3 fruits and nuts.

Just enough cake to hold together the bounty of imported and domestic cherries, pineapple from the Far East, citron from the Caribbean, sun-drenched raisins from California and meaty pecans from the South.

We think, too, that value has made it popular.
IMAGINE, THE 5-LB. CAKE COSTS ONLY $4.59
That's dollars less than you might expect to pay for such a fine fruit cake.

Now you know why Jane Parker Fruit Cake is America's most popular.
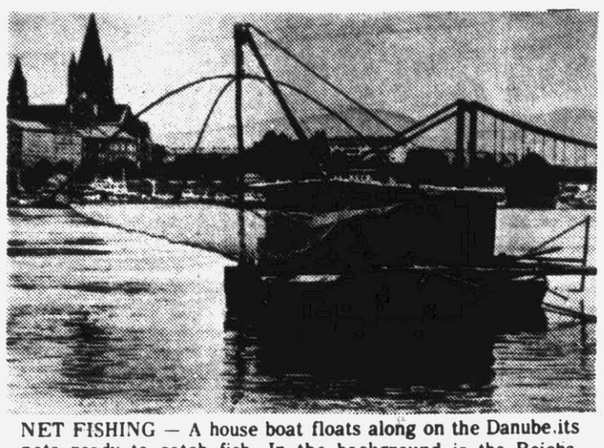
One other thing you should know: You can buy it only at A&P.

P.S. Wouldn't it make a great gift for someone?

Netting Fish On Danube Is Largely Hobby



NET FISHING — A house boat floats along on the Danube.its nets ready to catch fish. In the background is the Reichsbruecke Bridge.

By WERNER VOLLMANN
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA (AP) — They catch fish with nets in the murky waters of the "Blue Danube" at Vienna, dreaming of a better past.

They are some 120 hobby fishermen who have house boats along the northern bank. They are the "Daubelfischers," the Daubel being a squarish net dangling from the boats into the water from a pole.

Their number is dwindling. Younger fishermen use boats and more sophisticated fishing gear instead of the stationary house boats which are anchored to the bank.

The hobby fishers are modest. They like to live close to the river and once in a while catch some fish.

"Fishing is not what it used to be," they say. The fish also are getting scarce in view of the pollution of the Danube.

There is no record when the first Daubel fisherman made his appearance on the Danube.

In the past they were able to catch crabs and even trout, which were carried downriver by floods of the Alpine tributaries. Now the hobby fishermen are happy if they catch some whiting and proud if they land a carp, pike or sheat-fish.

The nets are bigger than the house boats they are attached to.

The house boat is made up of a float and a hut built on top of it. It gives the fishermen a chance to be comfortable in wind and rain as the winch operating the net is usually kept inside. There are some sleeping cots and a small oil stove on which the catch can be prepared.

Although the Danube fishermen need no bait, they still have a trick as to how to catch fish. Some 50 meters upstream from their house boats two logs are anchored in an upright position below the water line.

The logs produce small currents, the boat sits in the middle of the two streams in quiet water. Fish, which on their up-river travel try to get some rest prefer these spots and once in a while land in the fishermen's net.

Convention On Weekend

Meetings of the congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses in Greenville are being canceled this weekend to allow attendance at the group's semi-annual circuit convention at Rocky Mount Senior High School.

In making the announcement, C. L. Corey, local minister, said 17 eastern North Carolina congregations will convene Friday through Sunday from 20 counties and final day attendance may reach 1,000.

The assembly theme will be "Keep On Doing It More Fully" and based on 1 Thess. 4:1, 10. The program was designed by the Watchtower Society to stress ways of increasing Bible knowledge and Christian missionary work.

Highlight of the convention will be Sunday at 2 p.m. when D. J. Thomas, district minister, will deliver the featured lecture, "Can You Live Forever? — Will You?" Emphasizing the lecture's timeliness, Corey said, "We feel young and old should study the Bible as though life depended upon it, because it does."

W. B. Shawver, circuit minister, will deliver the baptismal discourse at 9:15 Saturday morning when new witnesses are ordained.

The courses offered in all sessions are free and the public is invited.

TB IN INDONESIA

DKAJARTA (UPI) —About half of Indonesia's total population of 120 million are carriers of tuberculosis, although only 5 per cent are afflicted seriously enough to be a threat to others, according to a Health Ministry official.

Dr. Kusnadi of the government's tuberculosis eradication program said the largest group of sufferers from the disease are Indonesians between the ages 16 and 45, the most productive age group. The number of persons afflicted is estimated to increase by as much as 180,000 each year, Kusnadi said.

Junaluska Was Gen. Jackson's Cherokee Ally

By H. G. JONES
Director, N.C. Dept. of Archieves and History
Written for the AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Sunday marks the 113th anniversary of the death of Junaluska, the Cherokee Indian chief who fought in alliance with Gen. Andrew Jackson in the Creek War.

The date and place of Junaluska's birth are not documented. One author, writing in 1852, six years before Junaluska's death, states that he was born in what is now Macon County at the head of the Little Tennessee River and that he lived there until he was a young man. It is generally contended that he was born during or before the year 1758, placing his age in excess of 100 years at the time of his death. Some historians, however, believe his birth date to be as late as 1776.

Junaluska later lived near the Haywood County settlement of Qualla Town which consisted of a U.S. Post Office housed in a trading post operated by a Col. William H. Thomas. It is thought that Junaluska spent 20 years or more of his active life in this area.

Chief Junaluska is primarily remembered for his part in the conflict with the Creek Indians. At the outbreak of the Cherokee and Creek war he raised a small army and is said to have boasted that he would exterminate the Creeks. His failure in attaining that goal resulted in his adoption of the name Junaluska. It is a corrupted pronunciation of "Tsunulahunski" which translates to "I tried but failed."

He did distinguish himself fighting under Gen. Andrew Jackson at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend in Alabama and is often said to have saved Jackson's life. Jackson's army numbered about 2,000—of whom about 500 were Cherokee under Junaluska—and was confronted by a much larger Creek army.

One account relates that Junaluska personally swam the Talapoosa river near the battle site and stole the canoes belonging to the Creeks. He is said to have strong them together and paddled to the opposite shore so that a large number of his warriors could then cross the river and join him in attacking the Creeks from the rear while Jackson's force attacked from the front.

When elected to the presidency, despite his former association in Alabama, Andrew Jackson was equally hostile to the Cherokees and the other eastern tribes. Over the protests of the Indians, he pushed the passage of a treaty in 1835 under which they gave up their territory east of the Mississippi and were moved to a reservation in the western part of the country.

Junaluska was among those moved from his native land, but he was not content and soon returned to North Carolina. In recognition of his former services he was permitted to remain, and by a special act of the 1847 General Assembly he was granted citizenship and given 337 acres of land near Robbinsville in Graham County.

Chief Junaluska died on Nov. 20, 1858, and was buried in Graham County. A tablet at his gravesite reads in part, "Here lie the bodies of the Cherokee Chief Junaluska and Micie his wife. Together with his warriors he saved the life of Gen. Jackson at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend, and for his bravery and faithfulness North Carolina made him a citizen and gave him land in Graham County."

Want 'No-Fault' Law On Divorce

BOSTON (AP) — The state Advisory Council on Home and Family wants Massachusetts to turn now to a no-fault divorce law.

In its third annual report, submitted Wednesday to Gov. Francis W. Sargent, the council said:

"For a state which pioneered no-fault auto insurance, it is time to promote the concept that in most unsuccessful marriages, both parties have contributed to the breakdown and no one should be held at fault.

"They should be able to dissolve their marriage."

The report said undue emotional, psychological and financial hardship result from the present judicial process which finds one party at fault.

Arteries Said More Elastic

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Women have fewer heart attacks than men because their arteries are more elastic and assure a more reliable flow of blood, a woman doctor said Wednesday.

Dr. Grace M. Fischer of the University of Pennsylvania told a conference of the American Heart Association's council on arteriosclerosis that the female sex hormones, the estrogens, keep arteries from getting stiff.

Short Haircuts Ruled A 'Must'

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Police Board has approved a regulation requiring state police officers to keep their hair cut.

The regulation says officers' hair must be "neat, clean, trimmed and present a well-groomed appearance." It specifically forbids hair that touches the ears or goes below the shirt collar.

Squeeze On Western Oil Companies In Middle East

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

VIENNA (UPI)—The beginning of the end has arrived of Western oil companies in the Middle East.

The reason is "participation—a euphemistic catchword for the major oil nations' desire to take over the companies' operations.

Although no timetable has been set, most experts expect a piecemeal takeover, with the nations controlling 51 per cent of the operations on their own territories by 1985. Eventually, they say, it will be 100 per cent.

By the end of the century, a complete restructuring of the oil business—the world's biggest and most international industry—is inevitable. Total chaos, born of rampant nationalism and political instability, is possible.

The eye of this growing storm is a quiet office building on Vienna's tree-lined Ringstrasse where the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) has its headquarters. OPEC's 11 members—Iraq, Iran, Qatar, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi, Saudi Arabia, Libya, Algeria, Nigeria, Venezuela and Indonesia—account for 93 per cent of world oil exports. Without their oil, the industry of Japan and Western Europe would collapse.

Indonesia already has nationalized its oil production and Algeria controls 51 per cent of French oil operations on its territory. The rest have, for the most part, signed long-term leases with 23 different oil companies to drill, ship and sell their oil. In return for these leases, the companies pay rent and 55 per cent tax on profits to the nations.

The leases expire between 1983 (Venezuela) and 2026 (Kuwait). The theory behind the OPEC demand for "participation" is that the countries should be able to take over their own oil operation by the expiration date.

An OPEC meeting in Beirut Sept. 22 called for "immediate steps" toward "participation." The first step, it said, would be negotiations by members, "either individually or in groups," with the companies, followed by "concerted action" by OPEC if this fails.

Libya's militant government wants an immediate 51 per cent of the property and profits of the sorely-tried companies operating on its land. Nigeria, OPEC's newest member, has already opened talks aiming toward a 33 per cent share. Venezuela, with its early expiration date, is expected to set its own timetable.

So the focus of drama is likely to be on the six Persian Gulf states, which probably will negotiate for an immediate 20 per cent share as a bloc—just as they did last winter when their demand for a bigger cut of oil firm profits brought the world dangerously near an international oil crisis.

The oil companies backed down then in the face of a boycott threat. OPEC expects them to back down again now, if only to ward off the threat of outright nationalization.

The first step, according to experts here, is to get the companies to accept the principle of "participation." Then the haggling over price begins.

The companies want to be paid for part of the oil reserves—in other words, compensation for loss of future profits. OPEC members will refuse on grounds that, after all, they own the reserves and only rent them to the firms. Instead, they will agree to pay only for a share—20 per cent at the start—of the company's investment, including equipment.

The countries also will insist on a 20 per cent representation in local management and increased hiring of local personnel. Their argument is that they will be running the concessions sooner or later and need the technical know-how that currently is the companies' monopoly.

Publicly, OPEC makes a big thing out of this need for expertise. But oil men outside OPEC admit privately that the main purpose is money.

In fact, they say, when the countries get partial or full control over the operations, they may do no more than extract the oil themselves and then sell it to the companies, who will handle all "downstream" work—refining, shipping and marketing—just as they do now.

Iran, however, already is doing some of its own refining and marketing and other OPEC members may go into "downstream" operations to some degree.

At any rate, "participation" will radically change the companies' roles. Already, many are diversifying in anticipation of the change.

But OPEC says the companies still will be needed—at least for 10 or 20 years.

"The companies' share will be cut from 80 per cent to, say, 50 per cent over the next 20 years," one source said. "But the oil business will grow by 100 per cent over that time, and the companies' total production will be greater then than now."

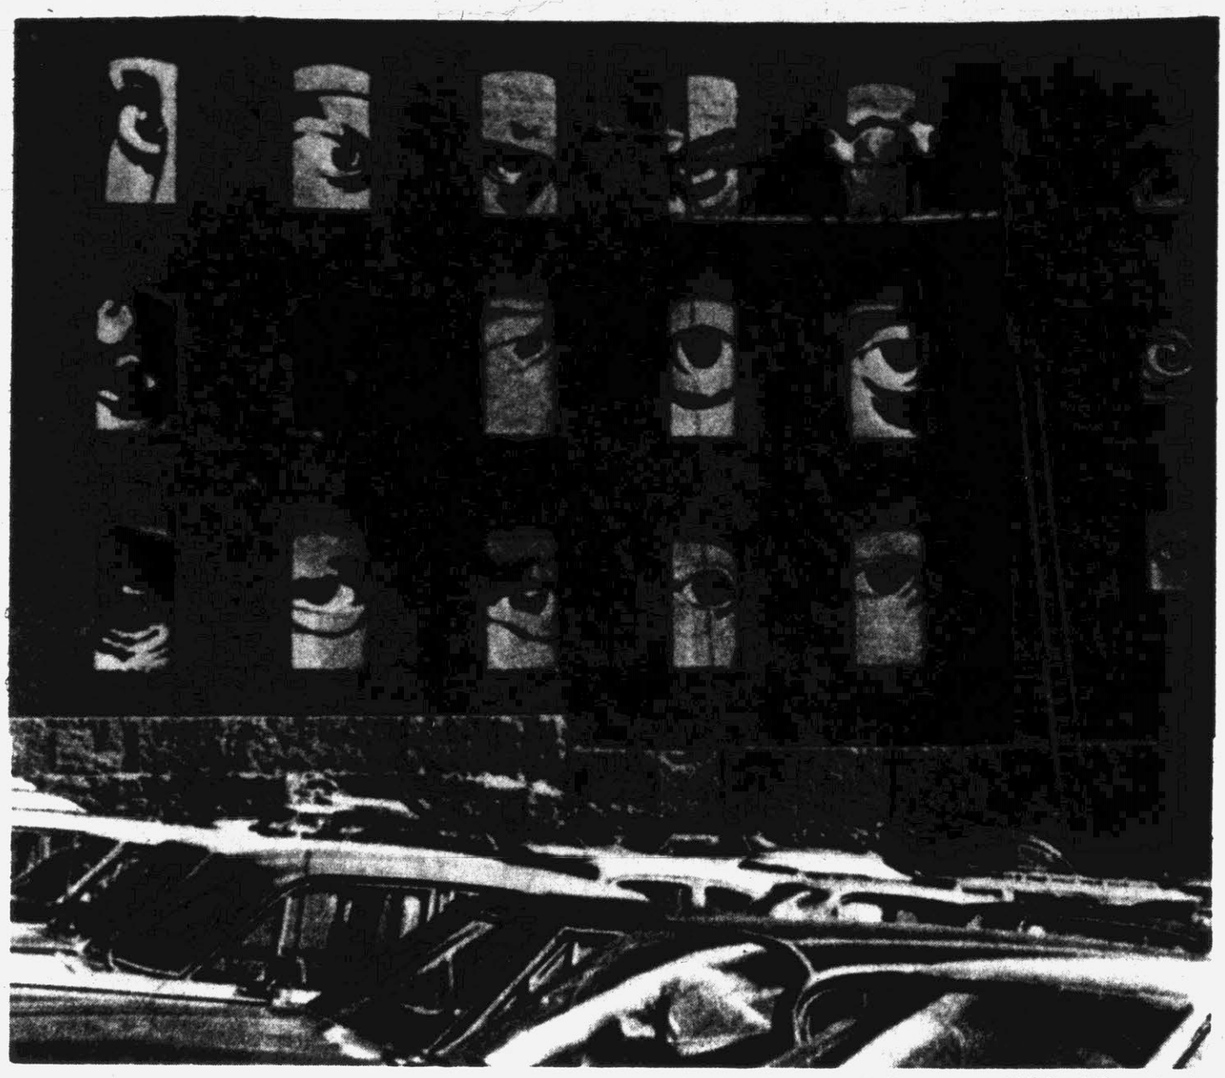
Over the long run—say, 40 years—the companies probably will phase out completely. Until that day, the entry of OPEC members into the market will, in effect, create 11 new major oil firms which could lead to wild price gyrations until OPEC can keep a firm hand on its members and their prices.

Prices are certain to go up, all experts agree. Companies will pass profit losses along. OPEC members themselves admit they will not be as efficient as the companies. The consumer, as usual, will be the one who pays.

But the consumers' problems are dwarfed by the huge stakes involved in this battle for control. Already, OPEC nations account for more than half of the 47 million barrels of oil extracted every day—most of the rest is drilled by America and Russia, which use their own output and export little.

At present average prices, OPEC's oil costs consumers more than $110 billion per year. Prices and production both are rising and, by the time OPEC's members finally control their own oil, the rewards will be beyond the wildest dreams of the richest sheikh.

The average tire rotates more than 30 million times during its lifetime, says Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.



EYEBALLITIS — For more than three years downtown Cincinnati has been undergoing an intensive face-lifting. And to give a new look to decadent brick walls all manner of eerie paint jobs are emerging. Like the rear wall of a garage at Third and Race streets where the cars in a parking lot are under constant "surveillance". In this instance there is no doubt the eyes have it." (AP Wirephoto)

TURKEY TALK — Amy, 4-year-old daughter of Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, sits on the lawn and has a long talk with a 34-pound white "Demple Darling" turkey presented to the Governor for their Thanksgiving Day dinner. After the talk Amy thinks she might want to eat out Thanksgiving Day. (AP Wirephoto)

Demand Names Of Firms Alleged Unsanitary Chicken Processors

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., has demanded from the Agriculture Department names of 68 poultry firms a team of government investigators says are processing birds for consumers under "unacceptable sanitary conditions."

A sternly worded report Tuesday by the General Accounting Office, which did not identify the companies, said the dirty conditions found in a survey this year may be generally widespread.

The report was sought by Ribicoff, chairman of a government operations subcommittee, as a followup to earlier studies of meat and poultry inspection programs operated by the Consumer and Marketing Service in USDA.

"In GAO's opinion, this situation is indicative of a lack of strong, day-to-day enforcement by the agency's plant inspectors and a lack of effective supervisory review," the report said.

"Weaknesses in the agency's enforcement of sanitation standards may be widespread," it added.

Meanwhile, Ribicoff said the GAO report showed families are buying and eating poultry processed in "filth and refuse" allowed by ineffective inspection procedures.

Ribicoff cited an investigator's description of conditions in one plant as resembling "a cheap horror-movie scene" because of cobweb and dust accumulation.

Asst. Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng said in a statement the deficiencies cited in the report were marked by red tape and insufficient supervision throughout the inspection program.

Lyng said a reorganization, started a year ago, is nearing completion and is expected to bring improvements.

The report said 17 of the plants checked had been surveyed earlier. The other 51 were selected on a random basis. Altogether they accounted last year for nearly 20 per cent of all the poultry consumed in the country.

In the 17 plants, the report said, unacceptable sanitary conditions continued much as they had in an earlier review. The 51 new plants showed similar bad marks.

"At many of these plants, the conditions appeared to be of a long-standing nature and were similar in conditions noted in most of the 17 plants," the report said.

Observers found contaminated poultry in 35 of the 68 plants. The contamination was caused by contact with a variety of waste materials, including fecal matter, bile and feathers, the report said.

WCTI Switches To Higher TV Tower

Television station WCTI-TV in New Bern is now transmitting with increased power following a switch to a new tower facility located at Trenton.

According to a station spokesman, the new tower, which is some 21 miles from New Bern, stands 1,004 feet tall, compared with the old tower height of 785 feet.

The spokesman said that WCTI switched to the new tower on Nov. 3. He explained that the station now "shoots" a microwave from the old tower in New Bern to the Trenton facility and transmissions go out from there.

By using the new tower and transmitting system, the station is operating on 316,000 watts effective radiated visual power, he pointed out, and 31,600 watts audio power. The increased power compares with 25,000 watts visual and 2,000 watts aural under the old transmitting system.

The tower project, including Federal Communications Commission clearance, was in the planning stages several years, it was noted, and actual construction, delayed by bad weather, took around five months.

WCTI has added full color news service and the station is now completely color oriented, the spokesman reported. With the new tower and transmitting facilities, he said, the quality of reception has been substantially improved for all of the station's viewing area.

In the United Kingdom, only 2.5 per cent of homes have freezers compared with 30 per cent in the United States, reports the Bureau of International Commerce.

AYDEN — Four doctors from Thailand visited Ayden Monday and Tuesday conferring with Dr. J. Elliott Dixon and Physician's Associate Steve Joyner about their working relationship in medical practice.

The doctors are part of an eight-man group on a fact-finding trip about the Physician's Associate program at the Duke University Medical Center in Durham.

The Thai physicians are traveling under fellowships from the World Health Organization, and while in North Carolina they are exploring the possible application of the physician's associate or physician's assistant concept in their Southeast Asia country.

The PA as the physician's associate has come to be known, is an allied health professional who is trained to take over many of the duties of a physician, freeing the physician to see more patients and spend his time with patients whose treatment requires his special knowledge.

The country's first PA training program began at Duke and has been picked up in various forms at medical centers and hospitals across the country.

Physician associate Joyner has been one of Duke's primary examples of a physician's associate who has joined a physician in his private practice, and his role with Dr. Dixon over the past two years has been noted in several newspaper and magazine articles.

The doctors from Thailand were to meet with various members of the Duke medical faculty today before dividing into two groups for trips to Ayden and Asheville, where another PA serves a doctor in his practice.

They met with Dixon and Joyner Monday and Tuesday before returning to Durham for a final half-day of sessions at Duke.

The physicians who visited in Ayden are:

Dr. Pirote Ningsanonda, director of health training, Div. of Health in Thailand; Dr. Chindabha Sayanha-Vikasit, professor and head of the Department of Maternal and Child Health at Mahidol University; Dr. Choed Donavanik, director-general of the Department of Medical Services, and Dr. Manasvi Unhanand, deputy director-general of the Department of Medical Sciences, Bangkok, Thailand.

Car Drove Into The Post Office

Greenville police made no charges late yesterday afternoon when an auto made a drive-in out of the main Post Office building here at 300 West Second St.

Officers reported a car driven by Nancy Lancaster Brackett, 22 of 405 South Library St. jumped the curb and crashed into the plate-glass front of the Post Office.

Damage to the building was set at $450, damage to the Brackett car was estimated at $250.

Cars Collided At Intersection

An estimated $2,500 damage resulted to two cars involved in a 6:12 p.m. mishap here yesterday at the intersection of N.C.11-U.S.13 and the Airport Road.

Greenville police identified the drivers involved in the collision as Kenneth Ray Moore, 20, of Route 2, Chocowinity and Edward Reid Joyner, 47, of 108 Fairlane Rd.

Damage to the Moore vehicle was set at $1,500 while damage to the Joyner car was estimated at $1,00. An estimated $10 damage resulted to a stop sign at the intersection.

Moore was charged by officers with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Vote Unseating Of Nationalists

GENEVA (AP) — The International Labor Organization has voted to seat the Chinese Communists and expel the Nationalists, and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade has deprived the Nationalists of their official observer status.

The actions Tuesday were in line with the U.N. General Assembly decision to seat the Communists and expel the Nationalists.

The vote of the ILO governing body was 36 to 3 with eight abstentions. The only opposing votes were two from the United States—representing business and labor—and one from South Vietnam. However, U.S. employer delegate Edward Neilan supported Taiwan's expulsion. He gave no explanation.

The United States also opposed the GATT action, as did Brazil, South Africa, Greece, Spain and four African nations.

Courtroom Rules Made

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) — Rules have been outlined by Judge Thomas H. Barland for courtroom conduct when cartoonist Al Capp appears Monday for a preliminary hearing on morals charges.

The Eau Claire County Court judge Tuesday denied Capp's motion for a closed-door hearing, rejecting defense lawyers' arguments that publicity could deprive their client of an impartial trial.

The creator of "Li'l Abner" was arrested in April after a political speech at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire.

He is free on $1,000 bond on charges of sodomy, indecent exposure and attempted adultery. He was named in a complaint by a married coed.

In a list of 10 rules for "a dignified public hearing," Barland ordered lawyers, witnesses and court personnel to avoid making public statements, and said courthouse corridors would be kept clear of spectators unable to find seats.

A courtroom sector will be set aside for newsmen. But cameras, sketches, tape recorders and other electronic equipment will be prohibited, Barland said.

An employee personnel handbook compiled by assistant administrator M. E. Gilstrap was distributed to the Board members. They were asked to make any observations at next month's meeting, after which the booklets will be given to the employees and to new ones as they join the staff. The handbook spells out such things as conditions and standards of employment, salary, administration, employee benefits, and the like.

Ayden Store Again Target

AYDEN — Windows in the Ayden Sport Shop, the victim of two bomb explosions in the past several months, were knocked out Monday night when bottle and rock throwing erupted along South Lee Street.

Damage to the store was estimated at about $350.

The Sport Ship is owned by Rex Smith, a member of the town board. The shop was damaged twice before when dynamite bombs were set off at the front of the store as blacks protested the shooting of a Negro by a Highway Patrolman on a rural road South of here in August.

Ayden officers and rescue men were subjected to abuse from a crowd of blacks earlier the same night after answering a call to the same area.

Chief of Police James Ross said the victim got up off the rescue squad stretcher and ran away. As rescue and police vehicles left the area, some objects were thrown, the chief explained.

and sisters, Janie, 12, Susie, seven, and Robert Jr., two, spend a few minutes with her some days when she gets back from her daily trips to Kinston.

Every day Maria goes by ambulance to the Kinston Clinic for cobalt treatments. The transportation charges are $20 each way. Mrs. Dominick said she and some other friends tried carrying her by station wagon a few days to save the charges, but choking spells and other sypmtoms made them afraid to continue.

Though she can no longer speak, Maria still understands Spanish and English very well. And she hates to be alone. For this reason, many volunteers, including members of Immanuel Baptist Church, the Greenville Service League, and the East Carolina University ROTC Angel Flight, have sat with her to keep her company and attend to her needs when her mother cannot be there.

A Maria Gomez Fund has been set up to help with medical expenses. Contributions will be accepted by the Salvation Army, Box 113 or by Fund chairmen, Mrs. A. M. Mumford and Mrs. Charles Pope.

Mrs. Dominick has worked closely with the family. She is one of the few people who can talk directly to Mrs. Gomez, who speaks only Spanish. She takes her to and from the hospital each day and planned today to enter Janie and Susie in public school. She says she will gladly accept any gifts of clothing, food, or household items for the family.

"We're really hoping the Gomez family will stay here," Mrs. Dominick said. "They are fine people and the children really need to settle down and catch up in school. We're hoping the kindness of the people here will influence them to make Pitt County their home."

REV. G. FRANK DEMPSEY of Greenville, S.C., will be the guest evangelist for revival services at the Church of God, located on the corner of Skinner and Spruce Streets, tonight. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Dooley Has Praise For Duke's Players

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina football coach Bill Dooley spooned out praise for his players and for those of Saturday's opponent, Duke, at a news luncheon.

He said Tuesday that Duke's Ernie Jackson, Rich Searl, Steve Jones and Ed Newman could play for any team in the country.

If North Carolina, undefeated in its five games in the conference, beats its traditional rival, it will win the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and be in line for a bowl bid with a 9-2 mark.

But Dooley said that Duke has a well-balanced offense with the running of Jones and the passing of quarterbacks Searl and Dennis Satyshur. He also praised the Duke defense, whic has given up fewer points than any team in the ACC.

In 10 games Duke has yielded 111 points, an average of 11 a game. Its record is 2-2 in the league and 6-4 in all games.

In reviewing North Carolina's 32-20 victory over Virginia last Saturday, Dooley praised the play of his tailback Lewis Jolley and quarterback Paul Miller.

"There is not a better all-around back in the conference than Jolley," he said. "He can do it all. And Miller again showed that he is the best quarterback in our conference."

Duke had some limited contact work and spent most of Tuesday's practice time reviewing the game plan. Coach Mike McGee reported that punter and flankerman Chuck Monday, who was lost for the season several weeks ago with a back ailment, underwent successful surgery this week and probably would be able to practice in the spring.

At Virginia, coach Don Lawrence said he expects the Cavaliers will have to establish a passing game against Maryland, because running against the large Terp defensemen will be difficult. He announced that sophomore quarterback Harrison Davis will start on the basis of is passing against North Carolina, 14 of 30 for 261 yards.

North Carolina State quarterback Bruce Shaw, who received a gash on the forehead against Penn State, was back in action as the Wolfpack spent extra time on its passing game. Shaw did most of the throwing, mainly to end Steve Lester and wingback Mike Stultz.

Clemson, which will be home to N.C. State, had one-on-one drills and some full speed work. Coach Hootie Ingram said his Tigers were still a little rusty on the game plan.

At South Carolina, scouts said that Saturday night's home opponent, Wake Forest, is impressive on offense with its veer attack, and on defense is sound against the rush but has been hurt by passing.

Glenn Morris, South Carolina's No. 1 passer, will be ready. But the alternate quarterback, Tommy Rhodes, who has been running the team recently, has a hand injury and probably won't play, coaches said.

Jamesville In First Victory

CHOWAN — Jamesville High School put together its first victory of the year last night, downing Chowan, 56-41. The Jamesville girls fell, however, 35-12.

Jamesville edged out into a four-point lead in the first period of the boys game, grabbing an 18-14 edge. Neither team was able to gain in the second quarter as it continued to remain tight. Both scored 12 points to make it 30-26 at halftime.

The Red Devils managed to inch out just a little more in the third period. The action slowed down, but Jamesville got a 9-6 edge in the scoring and led, 39-32 as the final period got underway. In the last frame, Jamesville outhit Chowan, 17-9, to sew up the victory.

Bill Moore and Larry Modlin led the Jamesville scoring with 15 points each, while Robert James had 11 points. Paul White led Chowan with 10.

In the girls game, Chowan moved out into a 9-2 lead in the first period, and was never in trouble after that. They outhit Jamesville, 7-5, in the second frame, and led 16-7 at the half.

In the third period, Chowan continued to pull away, outscoring Jamesville, 8-5. That made it 24-12 at the end of the period. Jamesville went scoreless in the final period, while Chowan got 11 to wrap it up.

Wanda Evans led the Chowan scoring with 12 points.

Jamesville plays host to Creswell on Fridav.

Vida Blue Named As AL's Most Valuable

NEW YORK (AP) — Left-handed pitcher Vida Blue of the Oakland A's was named the winner of the American League Most Valuable Player award today. At 22, Blue is the youngest player ever to win an MVP honor in either league.

Blue, who won the Cy Young Award as the AL's outstanding pitcher last month, earned 14 of a possible 24 first-place votes and 268 points from the Baseball Writers Association of America committee. Sal Bando, Blue's Oakland teammate, garnered four-first place votes and 182 points to finish second.

The Robinson boys of the AL-champion Baltimore Orioles gained the next two places. Outfielder Frank Robinson received 170 points and two first-place votes to finish third, while third baseman Brooks Robinson collected 163 points and three first-place votes to come in fourth.

Detroit pitcher Mickey Lolich, runner-up to Blue in the Cy Young balloting, got the other first-place vote and finished fifth with 155 points.

A total of 29 players were mentioned in the MVP voting. Blue was the only player to be named on every ballot.

Until Blue received the honor, the youngest player to be named MVP was Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench in 1970. Bench was just a few weeks shy of his 23rd birthday when he received his MVP award, while Blue will not turn 23 until next July 28.

The hard-throwing left-hander, in his first full season of major league ball, compiled a 24-8 record, led the league with a 1.82 earned run average, completed 24 of his 39 starts and struck out 301 batters.

In addition to his 14 first-place votes, Blue also received four seconds, two thirds and one each for fourth, fifth, seventh and eighth.

Blue is the fifth pitcher to win both the Cy Young and MVP honors. Don Newcombe did it in 1956, the year the Cy Young Award was initiated. The others were Sandy Koufax in 1963, Bob Gibson, 1968, and Denny McLain, also 1968.

He is the fifth pitcher to win the American League MVP since the award was first issued 40 years ago. Hal Newhouser won it twice, in 1944 and 1945. The other pitchers to win the MVP were Lefty Grove, 1931; Spud Chandler, 1943; Bobby Shantz, 1952, and McLain, 1968.

Blue is the first Oakland player to win the MVP and the first member of the A's to receive the honor since Shantz won it in 1952, when the twice-transplanted franchise was in Philadelphia.

Bando, the Oakland third baseman who hit .271, slammed 24 home runs and drove in 94 runs, was named on all but one of the ballots.

Frank Robinson hit .281 with 28 homers and 99 runs batted in, while Brooks Robinson batted .272 with 20 homers and 92 RBI. Lolich, 25-14, was the winningest pitcher in the major leagues.

Worsley Is Winner

Jane Worsley captured first place in the annual Handicap Tournament held by the lady golfers at Brook Valley Country Club.

Mrs. Worsley took top honors in the championship flight, beating out Jane Sauve.

Mary Meade Powell captured the title in the first flight, while Ruth Billica was the second place finisher.

In the second flight, top honors went to Mary Peterson, while Louise Hodge was the runner-up.

Prizes will be awarded at a luncheon at noon Thursday at the club.

Bears Beaten By Creswell

CRESWELL — Creswell captured its second straight victory over Bear Grass High School last night. The boys took a 66-59 victory, while the girls won, 38-22.

In the girls contest, Creswell edged out into a 9-2 lead in the first period, then expanded that lead in the second game. They outscored the Lady Bears, 14-3, and that built the Creswell lead to 23-5 at halftime.

Bear Grass put on a small rally in the third period, outscoring Creswell, 11-7, but the hosts still led, 30-16 as the final period opened. Creswell wrapped it up by outhitting Bear Grass, 8-6, in that frame.

Verlene McDowell led Creswell with 11 points, while Vickie Davenport had 10.

Creswell pulled away in the first period and gained an 18-12 lead in the boys contest. They were able to add only two points to this lead in the second period as the Bears hung in there for a 15-13 edge in scoring. That made it 33-25 at the half.

Both teams tossed in 17 points during the third period of the game, and the Creswell lead remained at eight points, 50-42. In the last frame, Bear Grass tried to rally, but couldn't quite put it together, as they outhit Creswell by only one point, 17-16.

Vann Rogerson led Bear Grass with 16 points, while Charles Modley had 15 and Nathaniel Armstrong had 14. Creswell was led by Immanuel Lewis with 20 points, while Don Davenport had 16.

Knicks Rally From 19 Down To Beat Phoenix; Others Do Same

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big leads don't mean a thing in the NBA.

"You come back from anything in this league as long as they have the 24-second clock," commented Coach Red Holzman of the New York Knicks Tuesday night after the Knicks had wiped out a 19-point deficit to beat Phoenix 112-111 in the National Basketball Association.

The Buffalo Braves, Baltimore Bullets and Golden State Warriors also came from behind to win while Seattle overcame an 18-point deficit only to lose to Chicago as the Bulls forged ahead again in the final quarter.

The Braves beat Cincinnati 102-98, Baltimore tripped Houston 110-107, Golden State overcame Detroit 122-101 and Chicago defeated Seattle 95-87. In the other NBA games Los Angeles whacked Cleveland 108-90 and Milwaukee routed Portland 125-105.

Down by 97-78 the Knicks caught fire with 9½ minutes left. Walt Frazier led the charge with 16 points, including two free throws that gave the Knicks a three-point lead at 112-109 with 17 seconds left and clinched the victory.

Altogether Frazier had 39 points for the game, his career high. Dick Van Arsdale led the Suns with 26.

Buffalo, behind by 14 points at 52-38, rallied to go ahead of the Royals at 81-80, fell behind again, then went ahead for good at 92-91 on a Mike Davis layup. Walt Hazzard was high for the Braves with 27. Nate Williams had the same for the Royals, 19 of them in the first half.

Houston led Baltimore by 107-103 with 1:19 remaining before the Bullets tied the score on two steals by Dave Stallworth and Jack Marin. A layup by Phil Chenier with 23 seconds left put Baltimore ahead to stay. Elvin Hayes of the Rockets was game high scorer with 31 points. Chenier topped the Bullets with 26.

Seattle wiped out a 42-24 deficit to tie Chicago at 55-55 in the third quarter before the Bulls came on again. Bob Love led the Bulls with 25 points. Don Kojis was high for the SuperSonics with 22.

Joe Ellis and Nick Jones came off the bench and ignited a Warrior rally that wiped out a 10-point Detroit lead. Ellis had 10 points in the third period and Jones eight. Jeff Mullins was high for the Warriors with 33 points. Jimmy Walker had 30 for the Pistons.

The champion Milwaukee Bucks and the Los Angeles Lakers each had little trouble winning their ninth straight. Kareem Jabbar led the Bucks with 33 points. Sidney Wicks was high for Portland with 20.

Jerry West led the Lakers with 25 points. Bobby Smith paced the Cavaliers with 16.

Austin Carr, Cleveland's No. 1 draft pick who has been out with two broken bones in his right foot, played his first game. He scored five points in the nine minutes he played.

Deskins Caught By Brian Baima

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brian Baima of The Citadel not only went over the 1,000-yard mark in pass receiving last Saturday, but he also caught Clayton Deskins of Appalachian State in the Southern Conference football scoring race.

The Bulldogs' ace wide receiver caught only four passes in The Citadel's 35-33 victory over Furman, but they went for 148 yards and two touchdowns, giving him 1,086 yards on 56 catches and 12 touchdowns.

Deskins also has scored 12 touchdowns after being held scoreless at Eastern Kentucky last Saturday, so he and Baima head into Saturday's final games with 72 points each. The Citadel will be at Davidson in the afternoon, Appalachian at Elon in a night game.

William and Mary running back Phil Mosser scored once in the Indians' 17-13 defeat at Temple and took over third place with 10 touchdowns and 60 points. He replaced Bob Carson of The Citadel, who has 56 points but went scoreless against Furman. Carson has nine touchdowns, two extra points.

Carson fell all the way to fifth, in fact, with a teammate from The Citadel, Harry Lynch, taking over fourth with 58 points on nine touchdowns and four extra points. Lynch scored twice against Furman.

Tied for sixth with eight touchdowns and 48 points each are Carlester Crumpler of East Carolina and Dennis Cambal of William and Mary, both of whom went scoreless last week.

Johnny Ribet of Davidson scored his team's only touchdown in a 14-7 defeat by Richmond and took over eighth with seven TDs and 42 points. William and Mary kicker Mike Dodds is ninth with 39 points on 30 conversion kicks and three field goals.

The Citadel's Jon Hall is 10th with 38 points, while defending champion Steve Crislip of Furman and Mac Bowman of Virginia Military have 36 points each. It's the first time Crislip has been that high all year, although he has been the Paladins' leading ground gainer.

Furman went through a two-hour workout Tuesday as they continued preparation for Saturday night's home game against Carson-Newman.

The Paladins worked on their running game and on springing running back Steve Crislip. The 170-pound back is only 98 yards shy of the Furman single season rushing mark of 871 yards, which he set last year.

University of Richmond scout Ray Tate warned the Spiders Tuesday they'll be playing against the "best offensive team we'll face this season" when they take on William and Mary Saturday.

Richmond spent the day working on its kicking game with Jay Jones getting off some booming punts during the drill.

Mathis Takes On Ali Tonight

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Buster Mathis bucks the odds tonight when he takes on a primed Muhammad Ali in a 12-round heavyweight fight in the Astrodome.

Mathis, who has not fought in 2½ years while serving a self-exile to "get myself together," is such an underdog in the fight, no betting odds have been established.

The fight is scheduled to begin at 10:50 p.m. EST before a crowd estimated at 25,000 by the promoters, Top Rank, Inc., and Astrodome Championship Enterprises, Inc.

It also will be beamed to 27 foreign countries.

The fight is expected to answer questions about Mathis, such as, is he in shape after such a long layoff and has he regained the desire to fight he seemed to have lost March 29, 1969 in his last fight, a unanimous decision loss to Jerry Quarry.

"I think the odds are 50-50 when I step into that ring," Mathis said. "But I'm not worrying about the odds. Everybody expects me to lose anyway. But I think the world is in for a shock."

There aren't many unanswered questions about Ali. He reported here in much better condition than when he came here July 26 and beat his former sparring partner, Jimmy Ellis.

Angelo Dundee, Ali's trainer, has been pleased with Ali's condition for the fight. Ali spent much of his training time skipping rope and doing extra exercises.

Ali, 29, is guaranteed $300,000 or 40 per cent of all receipts and Mathis, 26, will get 15 per cent of all receipts. Peers Management, which handles Mathis' affairs, put up $200,000 of Ali's guarantee.

Stanford and Penn State will meet in football games four straight seasons beginning in 1973.

Neumann Sparks Memphis Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Neumann, the Memphis Pros' million-dollar baby, was hardly playing like a five or ten-cent bargain ... until he went against the Floridians Tuesday night.

Then, the former University of Mississippi star, the leading major college scorer in the nation last season, began earning his professional pay.

The 20-year-old Neumann, one of the youngest players in the American Basketball Association, erupted for his pro career high of 32 points, leading the Pros to a 119-109 victory over the Floridians.

Denver edged Indiana 111-108 in the only other ABA game Tuesday night.

Neumann had averaged 40.1 points a game in his only varsity season at Mississippi, before leaving Ole Miss after his sophomore year and signing his lucrative contract with Memphis. He was regarded as a "hardship" case, because his father suffered a heart attack near the end of the season.

With Memphis early in the season, he played little and scored little. But Coach Babe McCarthy was not worried. "Johnny has the potential of being a superstar, but there's no sense in rushing him," said McCarthy. "There is no doubt that he has a world of ability."

McCarthy's patience paid off against the Floridians. Neumann scored 14 points during a nine-minute span when the Pros erased a 35-25 deficit and charged into a commanding 53-43 lead late in the first half. He finished as the game's high scorer.

Bob Warren of the Pros and Larry Jones of the Floridians each scored 27 points.

Larry Brown's jump shot with 1:17 remaining put Denver ahead of Indiana 109-107 and Julius Keyes clinched the victory with two free throws with 10 seconds left.

Ralph Simpson paced the Rockets with 31 points. Mel Daniels was high for Indiana with 23 points, 16 in the final period.

The loss dropped the Pacers out of first place in the West Division, one-half game behind idle Utah.

Duke Gets Nod In Carolina Game; Indians Choice Over Richmond

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The humane society," says Coach Charles Y. McClendon of Louisiana State, "oughta step in and cancel the game before putting my little boys on the field against Notre Dame."

Forget it, humane society, because the LSU fans have been waiting for this one ever since last year's heartbreaking 3-0 loss at Notre Dame. Revenge—even the thought of it—is beautiful. And come Saturday night, the Bayou Bengals get Notre Dame in their own lair at Baton Rouge, La.

"I knew we had 11 games this season," says McClendon, "and my players knew it. But not many of our fans knew it. There's no way they were gonna forget who we're playing Saturday night."

Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian, whose own fans aren't the most genial hosts of all time, has no qualms about invading the Baton Rouge snakepit.

"When I was at Northwestern," he points out, "I brought teams to South Bend and won. I've taken Notre Dame teams to all kinds of stadiums. The Cotton Bowl isn't exactly the easiest place for a visiting team to play.

"But the crowd can't throw one block or throw one pass or run for any yardage."

For better or worse, the first pick this week is . . . LSU.

Ohio State at Michigan—Another revenge game. Last year was Ohio State's turn after Michigan spoiled their perfect 1969 record and they answered back by doing the same to the Wolverines. Michigan, ranked third, has a shot at the national championship should the Nebraska-Oklahoma survivor lose its bowl game. MICHIGAN.

Air Force at Colorado—Air Force has the revenge motive but the better team belongs to . . . COLORADO.

Arizona State at San Jose State—San Jose is coming off a stunning upset of Stanford, but unless Dee Andros has come down from Oregon State to coach the Spartans the pick is . . . ARIZONA STATE.

Cornell at Penn—The Big Red is tied with Dartmouth for the Ivy League and Ed Marinaro, the Big Red Machine, would like nothing better than to close out his career in a blaze of glory . . . and yardage. CORNELL.

Dartmouth at Princeton—Another chance for revenge. Tigers haven't forgotten last year's 38-0 embarrassment. PRINCETON.

UCLA at Southern California—A little more salt in Pepper Rodgers' wounds . . . an he wasn't even around last year when UCLA romped 45-20. SOUTHERN CAL.

Texas Tech at Arkansas—Razorbacks must win to stay alive in the Southwest Conference scramble. ARKANSAS.

California at Stanford—Stanford can't win the little ones. This is a big one. STANFORD.

Michigan State at Northwestern—Michigan State beat Ohio State 17-10 two weeks ago. Northwestern beat Ohio State 14-10 last Saturday. Therefore . . . MICHIGAN STATE.

Villanova at Temple—The big late-season news in Philadelphia usually is Army-Navy. That's next week. This may be better. VILLANOVA.

Harvard at Yale — The game? Not this year. YALE.

North Carolina at Duke—Last year, Georgia blew a Peach Bowl bid by losing to Georgia Tech and North Carolina got it instead. This time, North Carolina may blow a Peach Bowl bid by losing to . . . DUKE.

Other games:

Upset Special of the Week—Brown over Columbia.

EAST—Penn State over Pitt, Boston College over Massachusetts, Connecticut over Holy Cross, Colgate over Rutgers, Syracuse over West Virginia.

SOUTH—Tennessee over Kentucky, Clemson over North Carolina State, The Citadel over Davidson, Florida State over Tulsa, Ohio U. over Marshall, Maryland over Virginia, Kansas State over Memphis State, South Carolina over Wake Forest, Tampa over Vanderbilt, VMI over Chattanooga, Virginia Tech over Southern Mississippi, William & Mary over Richmond.

MIDWEST—Toledo over Kent State, Bowling Green over Dayton, Illinois over Iowa, Purdue over Indiana, Iowa State over Oklahoma State, Kansas over Missouri, Cincinnati over Miami of Ohio, Minnesota over Wisconsin, Northern Illinois over Xavier.

Networks Move To Hike Ratings

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC and CBS moved Tuesday to cut their losses and attempt to improve their schedules. NBC made its move 10 days earlier.

The upheaval begins at the end of this month and continues through the first of the year. Viewers just settling into their viewing habits will have to start over.

A dozen or so programs have been shifted to new nights and different time periods. Twelve programs have been canceled temporarily retired, 10 of them new series. All but one have been scraping the bottom of the Nielsen ratings list.

Network television's 1971 season seems to have demonstrated clearly one fact: Big motion picture stars do not necessarily make big television stars. The same is true about singing idols.

Among the ABC programs which will soon disappear are Shirley MacLaine's "Shirley's World," Anthony Quinn's "The Man and the City," and Bobby Sherman's "Getting Together." Henry Fonda's "The Smith Family" will be shelved until spring, presumably returning only for reruns. None of the shows, despite the luster of the stars, made the grade with the television fans.

CBS, to nobody's surprise, will soon divest itself of "The Bearcats" and "Chicago Teddy Bears," neither of which was worth salvaging. The network had tough luck when Sandy Duncan's "Funny Face" had to be discontinued the rest of this season after its young star's eye surgery and convalescence. Since the comedy series has proved one of this season's hits, it will undoubtedly be picked up again next season.

NBC's "Sarge" tried to combine action and religion in a hero who was a priest and had once been a cop, but the network found it didn't work. "The D. A." lacked something it contained in a couple of pilot shows, and "The Funny Side" wasn't funny enough. They will soon be gone.

More shows will disappear quietly. But the "Second Season" newcomers announced by the networks really don't sound much more exciting. The singing team of Sonny and Cher, introduced to viewers in their summer series, will be moving into a Monday night CBS spot. Don Rickles in a situation comedy appears to have a break in his spot in the schedule—no competition except ABC's "Love, American Style."

Two shows which will have a major problem called Flip Wilson are CBS's long-running "My Three Sons" which is being moved into an early Thursday night spot along with something called "Me and the Chimp" with Ted Bessell—former TV fiance of Marlo Thomas' "That Girl."

ABC, with an hour to fill Monday nights will have a "Show of the Week," and throw in all sorts of specials, including Jacques Cousteau's programs, George Plimpton's exploits and its "Monogram" series, to fill the time.

Revival Series Begins Tonight

The Rev. Gene Lee is conducting revival services at the Church of God of Prophecy, Mumford Rd., beginning tonight through Nov. 28.

Services begin each night at 7:30. Special music will be presented Thursday night by the Gospel Four of the Tarboro Church. The Acmeville Singers and the Travelers of Elizabeth City will also sing during the revival.

The Rev. Vernon Morris is pastor.

Second Meeting Of School Year

U.S. And Soviet Pacts Narrow The Hostility Gap

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A series of U.S.-Soviet agreements has narrowed the hostility gap between the two superpowers, but they are still some distance from a breakthrough to any lasting settlement.

"All of the recent developments have been favorable and we are a lot further down the line than many people ever thought we would be," one American expert said, "but I wouldn't want to talk about being near long-term stability or anything like that."

However, he did acknowledge what other officials and sources have indicated; the breakthrough could develop as soon as late spring if accords can be reached on Berlin, the strategic arms limitation talks and a European security conference. The Berlin agreement is the key.

The Soviet Union and the three Western powers—the United States, France and Great Britain—agreed in early September on a treaty guaranteeing access rights between West Germany and West Berlin and liberalizing communications between the two areas.

However, the implementation details are in the hands of West and East Germany and there have been a series of delays and disagreements that have made progress fitful, at best.

The East Germans are taking a much tougher stand than expected by the West, which has delayed the start of really substantive talks, according to some American officials.

This show-down is troubling West Germans, Russians and the Western allies alike, but for different reasons.The West Germans have made agreement on the Berlin situation a qualification for the Bonn government's signing of treaties with Moscow and Poland recognizing the current European boundaries.

But the Russians say they won't sign the Berlin treaty ratification papers unless West Germany ratifies its treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland.

All of this is expected to be sorted out, even by West Germany, but it will take at least until spring.

Another East-West problem that probably won't sort itself out before spring is the matter of the strategic arms limitation talks—SALT—just resuming this week in Vienna.

The Americans and the Russians are publicly hopeful of some sort of agreement before President Nixon's Moscow trip in May and signs now indicate the two powers will reach some sort of accord on defensive missiles. There is, however, some doubt about offensive weapons.

The third factor in the stabilization equation is the European security conference being sought by the Soviet Union.

As in many East-West negotiations the situation becomes a bit vague as time goes on. The United States originally was very cool to such a meeting, citing the Russian vagueness of purpose.

Recently, the Russians have narrowed the task of such a conference to non-security matters, environment, exchange of scientific and technological information and the like.

While U.S. and diplomatic sources say there really isn't anything important enough along these lines to demand a full-blown continental conference, they indicate relaxation of the Moscow approach is a helpful sign.

This appears to mean that if accords can be reached on Berlin and SALT the West would participate in a European security conference.

One more troublesome factor is the relative troop strength in Europe. The United States and its North Atlantic Treaty Organization partners have asked the Soviet Union to discuss the matter of mutual balanced force reductions—MBFR—in Central Europe.

After much negative response, Moscow last spring raised Western hope when it indicated an interest in MBFR. However, nothing from Moscow of late has underlined that hope, although the matter is still being pursued.

All of these matters are closely intertwined and the failure of one could lead to the distrust that could wreck the others.

VAST VINEYARD

PASCO, Wash. (UPI) —The world's largest concord grape vineyard is being developed east of Pasco along the Snake River. So far 583 acres of vines have been planted and Manager John Smith says 3,150 acres are expected to be in production by the spring of 1974.

KIDNEY-SAVER

SEATTLE (UPI) —A new machine which will permit doctors to keep kidneys alive for up to 12 hours is being operated by the Northwest Kidney Center here. The portable machine will allow more kidney transplants in Washington, Oregon, Alaska and Montana.

Monarchies Vanish, But Royalty Still Has A Future

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer

"In a few years," the late King Farouk of Egypt once mused, "only five kings will be left in the world—the King of England and the four in every deck of playing cards."

Farouk's despondent forecast was premature. Many a monarchy has vanished since World War I, and some once-secure thrones are now precarious perches, but there's still a future in the royalty business.

A whole new generation of apprentice kings—and queens—is ready to carry on the dynasties.

Most are serious young executives, but playboy princes haven't entirely vanished from the scene, and some royal fledglings lead lives of sheltered privilege.

A portrait gallery of some royal heirs shows these princes and princesses:

England's Charles Philip Arthur George Windsor, Prince of Wales and the next King of Great Britain and the Commonwealth, is the kind of prince girls dream about—tall, talented, 22, blue-eyed, languidly handsome and immensely rich. He dances with debutantes, but he doesn't dream much about them; he's too busy. A millionaire since he was 18, Charles is now a sub lieutenant in the Royal Navy, earning $11.28 a day, living in a 6-by-7-foot cabin, sharing a bath with 38 officers, learning to be a gunnery director for Sea Cat guided missiles. He plans to stay in the navy for the next few years. He already is a fully-qualified combat pilot in the Royal Air Force.

Charles graduated from Cambridge University—in archeology and anthropology—where he set a precedent for royal informality by appearing in a college play in a garbage can and told everyone, "I want to be treated as an ordinary student." On formal occasions he is regally formal, such as representing his mother Queen Elizabeth II at Charles de Gaulle's funeral. But at independence celebrations in Fiji he put on fisherman's clothes and went shark hunting in a punt, and yelled "Go to hell" when he was told to come ashore for a banquet.

He plays both polo and the cello and drives fast sports cars, but when it comes to royal affairs, he is serious and businesslike.

Far more formal is Japan's Crown Prince Akihito, a personable and self-assured 38-year-old. But by Japanese royal standards Akihito is practically a revolutionary. Twelve years ago he broke through the chrysanthemum curtain that shrouds the imperial family and married a commoner, Princess Michiko, "child of beauty and wisdom." Their romance began on a tennis court and launched a craze for the sport, which is still Akihito's favorite recreation.

The royal couple, who now have three children, live sheltered in Oriental custom and tradition in the Togu Palace, but both are aware of the ways of the West. Michiko, a businessman's daughter, majored in English literature at Tokyo's Sacred Heart University, and Akihito studied with an American private tutor.

Akihito makes few public appearances, but he once compared the role of Japanese royalty to a robot and said he wanted to bring the imperial family "closer to the people." His father, Emperor Hirohito, 70, appears before his subjects only twice a year, opening up the palace grounds on New Year's Day and his birthday. The gates might open more often once Akihito takes the throne.

Belgium's King Baudouin has no children and the heir to the throne is his 37-year-old brother Prince Albert. The contrast between the two could hardly be more pronounced. Baudouin at 41 is slim, serious, soft-spoken and retiring. Albert is heavy-set, jowly, hot-tempered and sometimes criticized for living it up with the international jet set instead of staying home to perform royal duties.

Albert's blonde Italian wife, Princess Paola, is one of the brighter decorations of the haute monde.

Albert's boating career as a young navy captain was soured by seasickness, and he now sticks to sports cars or, on trade promoting missions abroad, to planes.

The couple live with their three children in Le Belvedere mansion on the outskirts of Brussels.

Denmark's Princess Margrethe Alexandrine Thorhildur Ingrid, when she takes the throne, will be the country's first reigning queen in six centuries. She seems ideally fitted to preside over the democratic welfare state—a humorous, 31-year-old modern mother, an experienced archeologist who speaks five languages, schooled in philosophy, constitutional law, political science, arts, economics and sociology, and coached by her father King Frederick IX in royal statecraft.

Margrethe—called "Daisy" by close friends—has been to English boarding school, two Danish universities, the Sorbonne in Paris and the London School of Economics. She has taught herself about labor relations, learned jiu-jitsu in the Danish Air Force Women's Auxiliary Corps, and worked on archeological sites in Italy, the sweltering Nubian Desert and the jungles of Thailand. She designs her own jewelery and designed a Christmas charity postage stamp that sold 80 million copies.

Four years ago, she married French-born diplomat Count Henri de la Borde de Monpezat, and she has two sons. Now known as Prince Hendrik, he merely provides royal support in public, but Margrethe says he wears the pants at home.

Holland's past two rulers have been queens and another woman is in line for the throne—Princess Beatrix, a 33-year-old blonde who has broken royal tradition by giving birth to three sons. A witty and artistic woman—she is an accomplished sculptress and painter—Beatrix is well-liked and informally casual, but she can become haughty when intimacy threatens. She was partly raised in Canada when the royal House of Orange family took refuge there during Germany's World War II occupation of Holland.

The mere mention of Germans still makes many Dutchmen wince, and Beatrix's 1966 marriage to German diplomat Claus von Amsberg set off a barrage of smoke bombs, a flurry of antiroyalist pamphlets and a summer of violence. Prince Claus has striven to Hollandize himself and seems to have won public respect, if not affection.

Beatrix is thoroughly trained and conscientious in royal matters, and many in the Netherlands think her mother Queen Juliana may abdicate to make way for the younger woman. Some Dutch citizens would like to do away with royal rulers, and if this were to grow into a genuine movement, said Claus, "I do not believe you will find the members of the royal house standing at the barricades to defend the institution of the monarchy as such."

In line for Iran's jewel-encrusted Peacock Throne is dark-haired 10-year-old Crown Prince Reza, the son whose birth Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlevi awaited for 22 heirless years. Born in a commoners' hospital in the slums of south Tehran—his mother the Empress Farah had her confinement there as a gesture of democracy—Reza faces a job more difficult than any European prince: ruling a nation that is still pulling itself into the 20th century. The child is pampered like all Iranian male children, and surrounded by dazzling luxury. But his father the Shah is deliberately toughening him up for the job ahead, and Reza is said to be promisingly bright. So far, he is more involved with school, model cars and skiing than statecraft. Like his father, he may be sent to Switzerland for schooling later.

Reza is heir to one of the world's oldest monarchies, dating back some 2,517 years. But his family is nouveau royale—Reza's grandfather was a barely literate Cossack colonel who seized the throne in 1926 and despotically began prodding Iran into modern times.

Being the future ruler of Jordan is such a dangerous prospect that King Hussein—veteran of more assassination attempts than any ruler in the world—took it away from his own son and gave it to his brother, 23-year-old Crown Prince Hassan. Hussein's son Abdullah, now only 9 years old, was too young for the job. Besides, his mother is English, and a half-English Arab king would stand little chance of survival in the Middle East today.

Hassan's own chances of ruling Jordan are hardly an insurance underwriter's dream, but the stocky, stolid-faced 23-year-old with an Oxford education is as fitted for the task as anyone could be. The black-haired, mustached prince—like Hussein only 5-feet-4-inches tall—works and learns at the king's side, cultivating the loyalty of Bedouin tribesmen. He has been a general in the Jordanian army since he was 18. A shy, devout Moslem, Hassan smokes but doesn't drink. He shares Hussein's fondness for well-tailored London suits, and plays soccer, cricket and the piano. He and his wife—Pakistani beauty Thrwat Khan, who stays carefully in the background—have two daughters. Like Hussein, Hassan carries an essential item of Jordanian political life—a gun.

Morocco's Prince Sidi Mohammed began his professional royal career this summer at the age of 8, by welcoming Vice President Spiro Agnew to Rabat—an elaborate ceremony which he performed with a calm, if slightly bored, aplomb.

The eldest son of King Hassan II, the little prince has a staff of private teachers, an aide-de-camp, and Moroccan and European governesses. His upbringing is supervised by diplomat professor Mohammed Aouad, who has been made a full minister in the Moroccan government. In addition to studying Islamic theology and history, the prince took private golf lessons from U.S. pro Billy Casper on the king's personal course this summer.

At a recent royal reception a friend of the family admonished the little prince for pushing through a door ahead of his elder sister.

"My father also goes through doors first," he replied. "The rules that apply to other people don't apply to him or me."

Crown Prince Harald is the first male heir to the throne of Norway in 600 years. Serious and studious but totally informal, the 34-year-old prince and his wife—the former commoner Sonja Haraldsen—are popular in proroyalist Norway and take a businesslike view of their job.

As a child, Harald spent five years in the United States, during the Nazi occupation of Norway, and he still speaks English with a trace of an American accent, despite his schooling—economics, political history and political science—at England's Oxford University.

A good skier and a keen fisherman, Harald is one of Norway's top sailors. He qualified for the Olympic Games yacht races in Tokyo in 1964 and Mexico in 1968. He won the U.S. open championship for 5.5 meter yachts six years ago, and now is chairman of Norway's Yachting Federation.

A royal heir with a difference is Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon of Spain, where the throne has been empty for more than 30 years. Gen. Francisco Franco named Juan Carlos in 1969 as Spain's next ruler after Franco himself—now 78—dies or retires.

Juan Carlos, a handsome blond 33-year-old—married to Princess Sofia of Greece—now stumps the country and makes trips abroad to build up a political image that can fill the Franco void and the gap in the Spanish monarchy. Spain's last King, Alfonso XIII, was Juan Carlos' grandfather.

An avid yachtsman, golfer and hunter, the prince is a brown belt judo man and a licensed pilot, commuting by helicopter from his home at Zarzuela Palace outside Madrid.

The royal couple have a son and two daughters.

Faced with a growing feeling that the monarchy in Sweden should be abolished, Crown Prince Carl Gustaf—a ruggedly handsome 25-year-old with a reputation as a discotheque prowler—has been buckling down recently to prepare for the day his grandfather King Gustaf Adolf, now 88, vacates the throne.

"I think I can do it," he told a news conference when asked about his qualifications as a ruler. These days he wears conservative business suits, talks about his naval and government training and says it has "given me the kind of background fit for a king in the world of today." He always used to argue, "I'm just an ordinary guy."

Advises Adding To Foreign Aid

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The ambassador from Thailand, Sunthorn Hongladaron, says that instead of reducing foreign aid to developing countries, the United States "should be increasing it in this critical period."

The ambassador, in an interview Tuesday before a speech at Central Piedmont Community College, added his voice to those which have criticized the recent cutback in American foreign aid. The U.S. has been giving Thailand about $30 million a year in economic aid and $75 million in military assistance.

Performing His 2nd Sex-Change

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte surgeon says that six months ago he completed operations on a man which changed his sex to female, and now is doing the same for another patient.

The doctor says both were trans-sexuals, defined as persons clearly male or female physically at birth but who spend childhood longing to be of the opposite sex.

Spain is a leading producer of cork.

Ayden-Grifton
School News

By ANNE DENSON
and SUE HASELEY

Ayden-Grifton High School held its first homecoming Friday, Nov. 5. The Chargers defeated the North Lenoir Hawks by a score of 67-6.

Eight girls, two from each class, were elected members of the Friendship Court and were presented on the field at half-time. Representing the senior class were Jan Paget and Nicie Cannon. Junior Jessica Fleming and Shirley Thigpen represented that class. Karen Stroud and Wanda Stewart were elected from the sophomore class, and for the freshmen, Burnetta Fleming and Marcy Sudor were the representatives.

Both the girls' and boys' basketball teams are preparing for the coming season. Miss Deborah Pfeil coaches the girls' team and Coach Bob Murphrey is coach for the boys' team. The first game will be played against Southern Wayne on November 22. The first home game will be on November 30 against North Pitt.

The Ayden-Grifton student body has enjoyed a successful magazine sale. The profits will be divided among the classes to be used for class projects and parties.

Since Ayden-Grifton is brand new this year, the administration, faculty and students are busy organizing clubs. The only club now in existence is the design club, sponsored by Wes Ezzell.

A French club is being planned and headed by Mrs. Barbara Harper. Mrs. Linda Balkcum will sponsor the Spanish club.

There will be a drama club under the direction of Branson Woodard, Jr. and the chorus will be sponsored by Mrs. Clarrisa May.

The math club will be headed by Mrs. Grace Foster. The girls' Monogram club, an athletics club for girls, will be sponsored by Miss Deborah Pfeil.

J. J. Brown will organize and direct the Future Farmers of American, and Wes Ezzell and James Churchill will sponsor the Vocational Industrial Clubs of American, a chapter of the national organization.

Junior High School Marks Book Week

National Book Week is being observed this week at Aycock Junior High with emphasis on programs and materials available at the Media Center (library).

In observing National Book Week, stress this year is being placed on the library as a source of individualized learning for each student. Students are being encouraged to make the widest use of their library, both in connection with assigned studies and particularly as the place in school the student can individually pursue learning.

The library, operated by Mrs. Beatrice Maye and Mrs. Sarah Rogerson, is augmented by a vital Audio-Visual Service. F. R. Sanders is coordinator of Audio-Visual Serives for the Greenville City Schools. Mrs. Dorothy Williamson is Media Clerk for the Aycock Media Center.

Materials in this newer field of library service is a growing adjunct to printed material, and includes films, both those owned by the school and obtained from loan sources. One loan source is the Migrant Center in Grifton.

Among material available to school children in a modern school today, in addition to the regular collection of fiction, technical and reference books, are specialized supplementary materials .... records, tapes, playing games, magazines, and opaque projectors.

As National Book Week is being observed in Aycock and other schools in the city, the fact is borne home that the diversity and scope of learning material had radically changed in the past 20 years.

The Aycock Center (or library) is typical of modern facilities, a true center with areas for various activities. There is a listening area, a reading area and study area. A research area is designed for use of teachers as well as students.

Mrs. Maye notes that flexibility plays an important role in the services provided by this new type of library. A t the one in Aycock, a teacher can bring an entire class in when the need exists so that each student in a class can work on a particular project.

Planning for the ordering of new books and audio-visual material is a joint project — with teachers encouraged to give suggestions for specialized material to be considered. The center too serves the function of coordinating group exhibits and projects of the school that are often arranged and displayed by media center personnel.

MEETING PLANNED

Members of Silver Stream Council No. 48 are urged to attend a dutch supper at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Parkers Restaurant. A regular meeting will follow at eight o'clock in the council hall for the official visit of Great Pocahontas Almeta Harris.

Begin Course In 'Acupuncture'

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The University of Washington's Experimental College opens a course this week in Chinese acupuncture, the 4,000-year-old practice of inserting needles into a patient to alleviate disorders.

The aim is to "reach the organ, system, or nerve to give stimulation of the system and cure or alleviate all kinds of disorders," explained Prof. Mifoo Hsu, a graduate of acupuncture schools in Hong Kong and Tokyo who will teach the course.

Don M. Schiffman, director of the Experimental College, said Hsu's course will delve into the history and method of the art rather than attempt to prepare acupuncture practitioners.

No degree credits are offered by the college, which is sponsored by the Associated Students of UW.

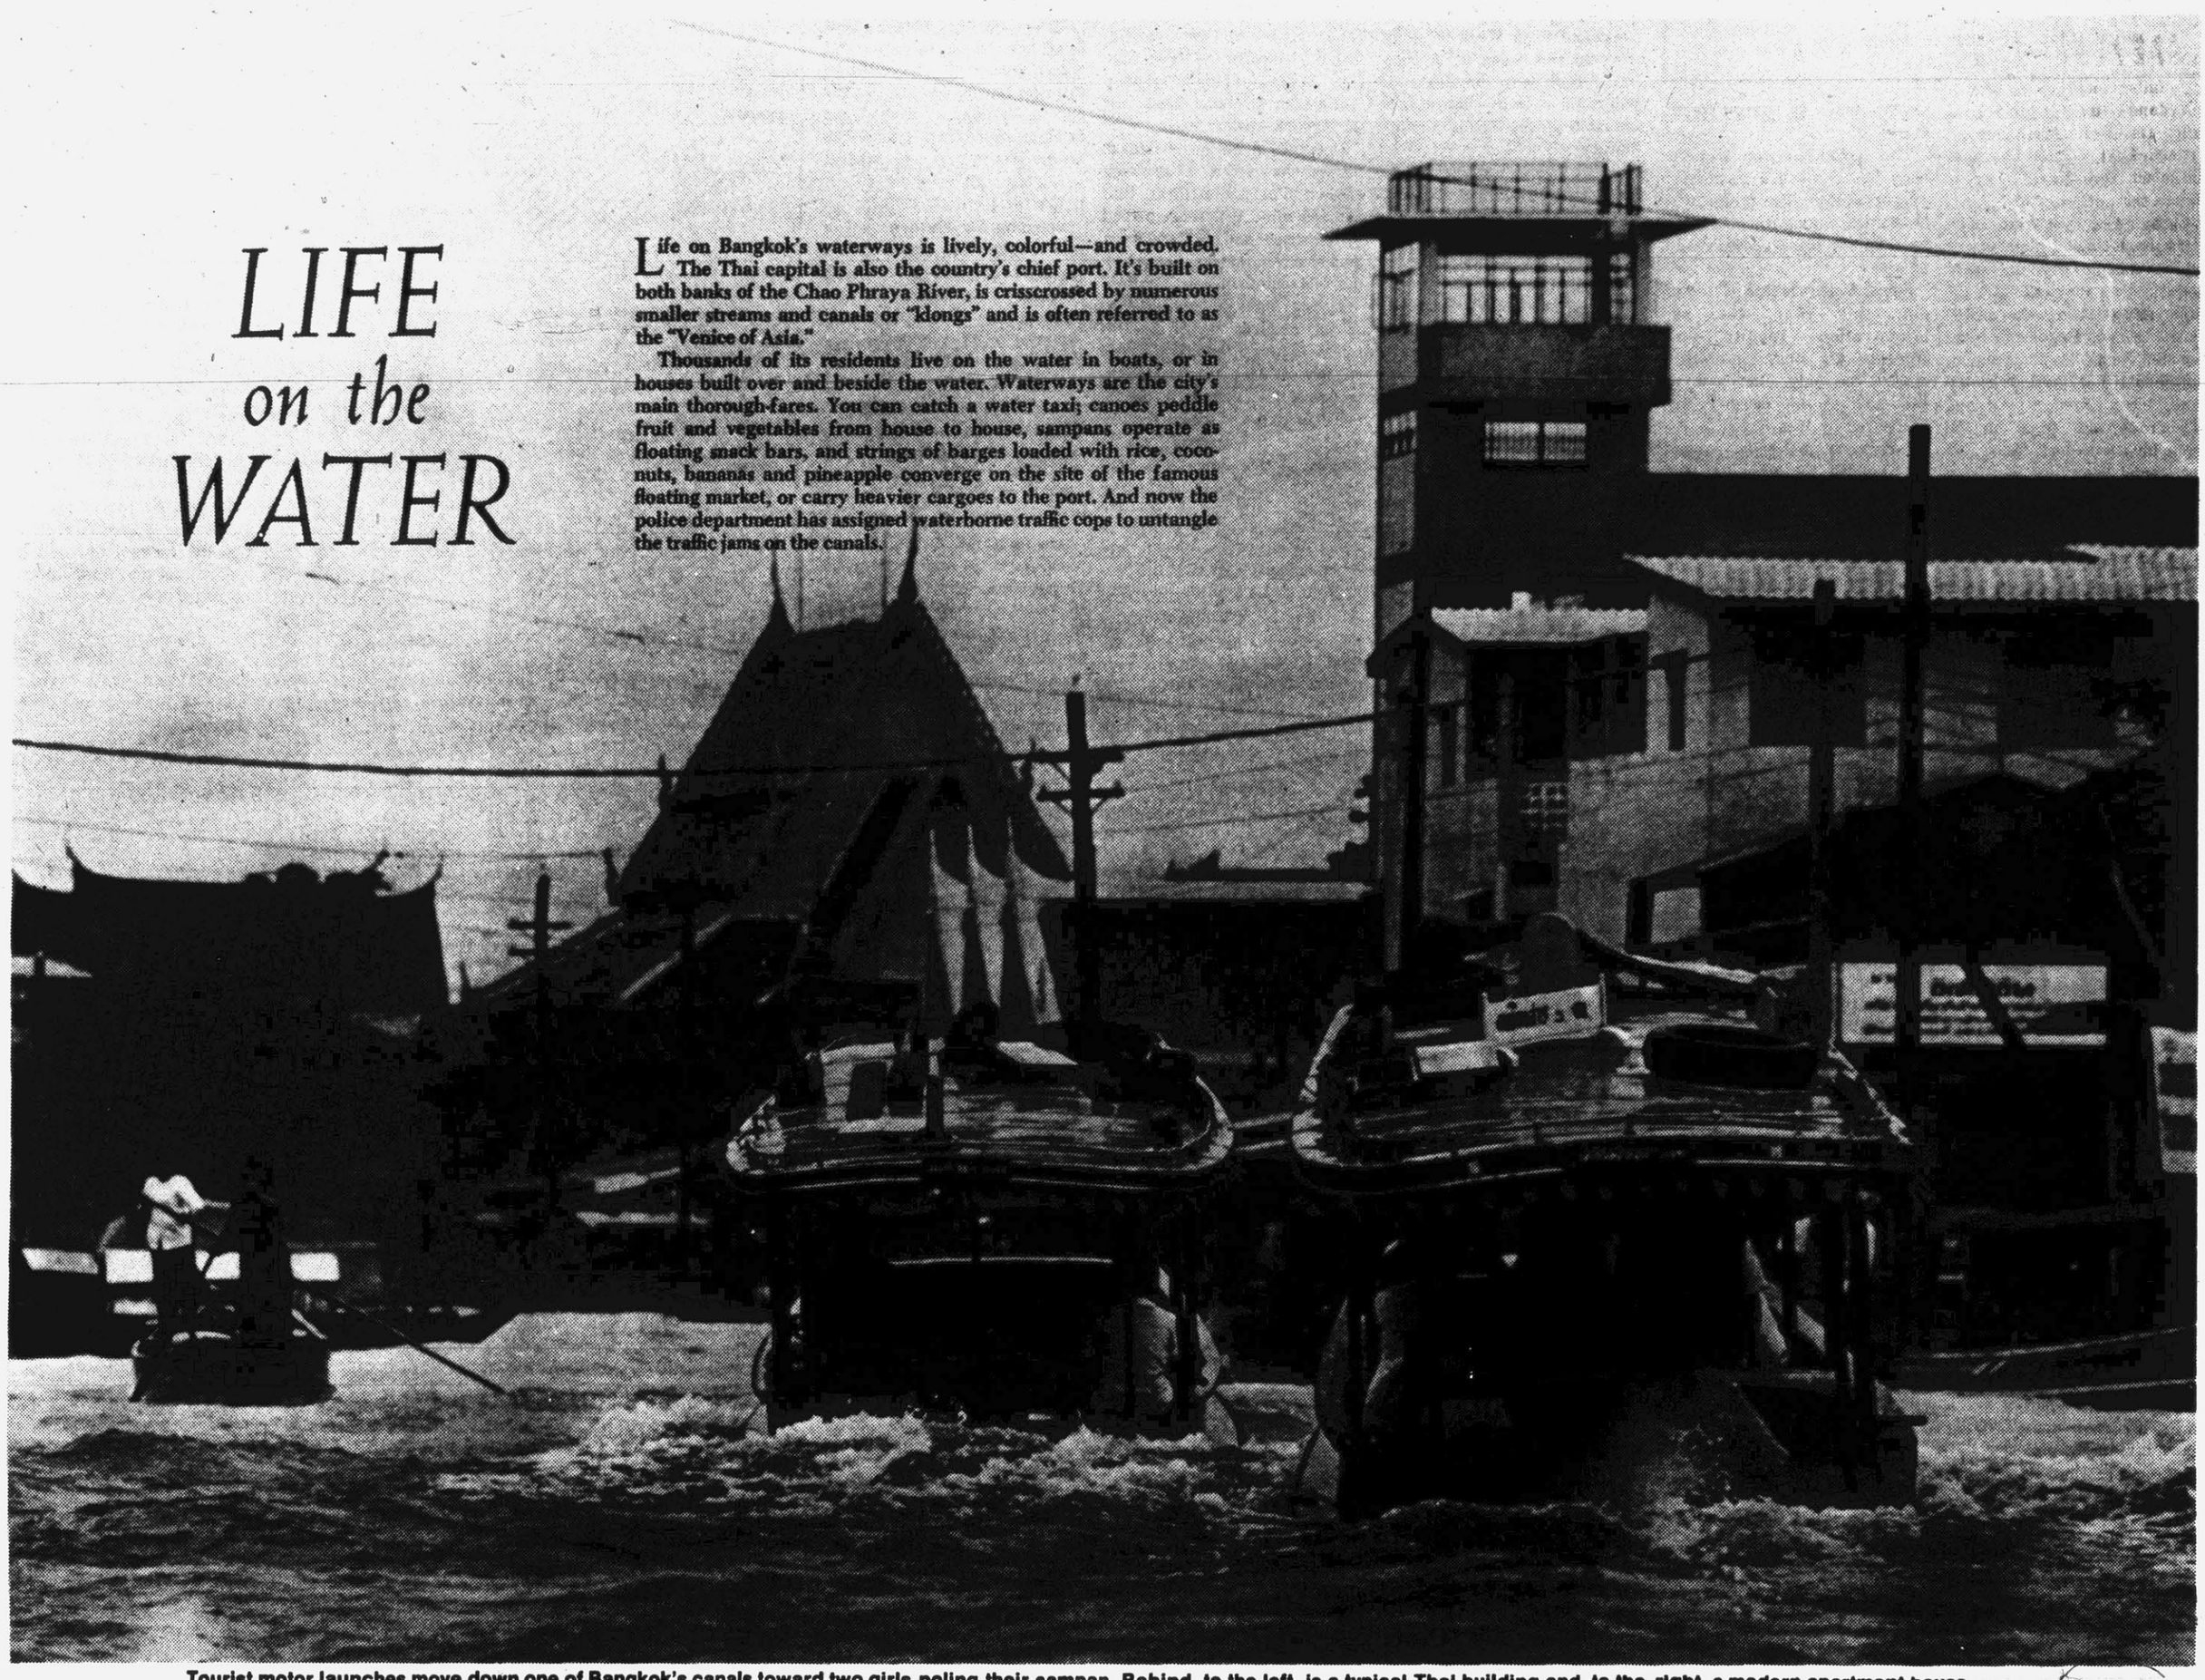
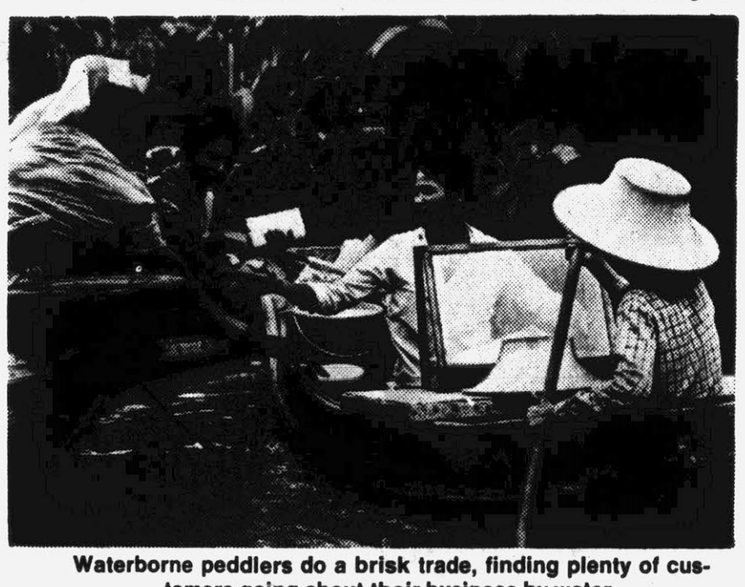
LIFE on the WATER

Life on Bangkok's waterways is lively, colorful—and crowded. The Thai capital is also the country's chief port. It's built on both banks of the Chao Phraya River, is crisscrossed by numerous smaller streams and canals or "klongs" and is often referred to as the "Venice of Asia."

Thousands of its residents live on the water in boats, or in houses built over and beside the water. Waterways are the city's main thorough-fares. You can catch a water taxi; canoes peddle fruit and vegetables from house to house, sampans operate as floating snack bars, and strings of barges loaded with rice, coconuts, bananas and pineapple converge on the site of the famous floating market, or carry heavier cargoes to the port. And now the police department has assigned waterborne traffic cops to untangle the traffic jams on the canals.



Tourist motor launches move down one of Bangkok's canals toward two girls poling their sampan. Behind, to the left, is a typical Thai building and, to the right, a modern apartment house.



Waterborne peddlers do a brisk trade, finding plenty of customers going about their business by water.

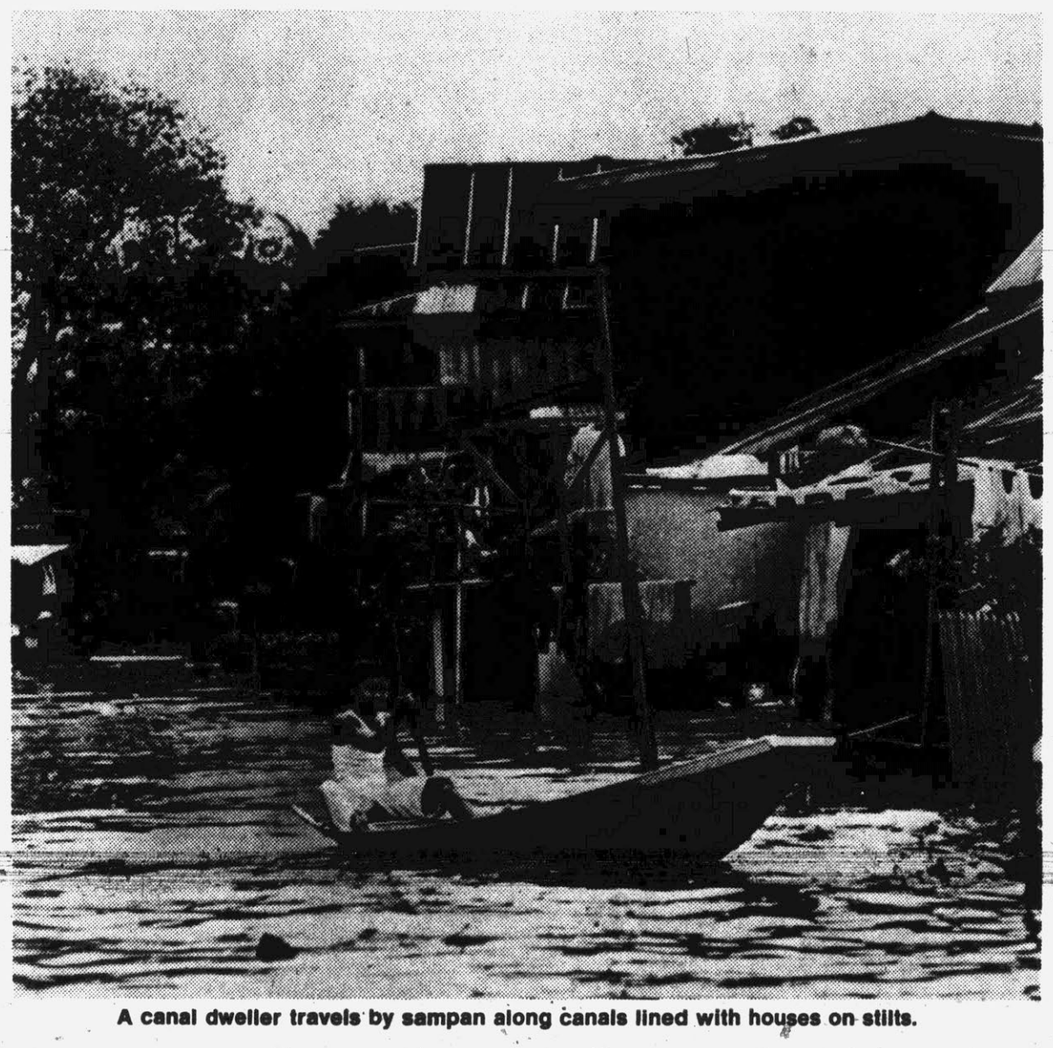
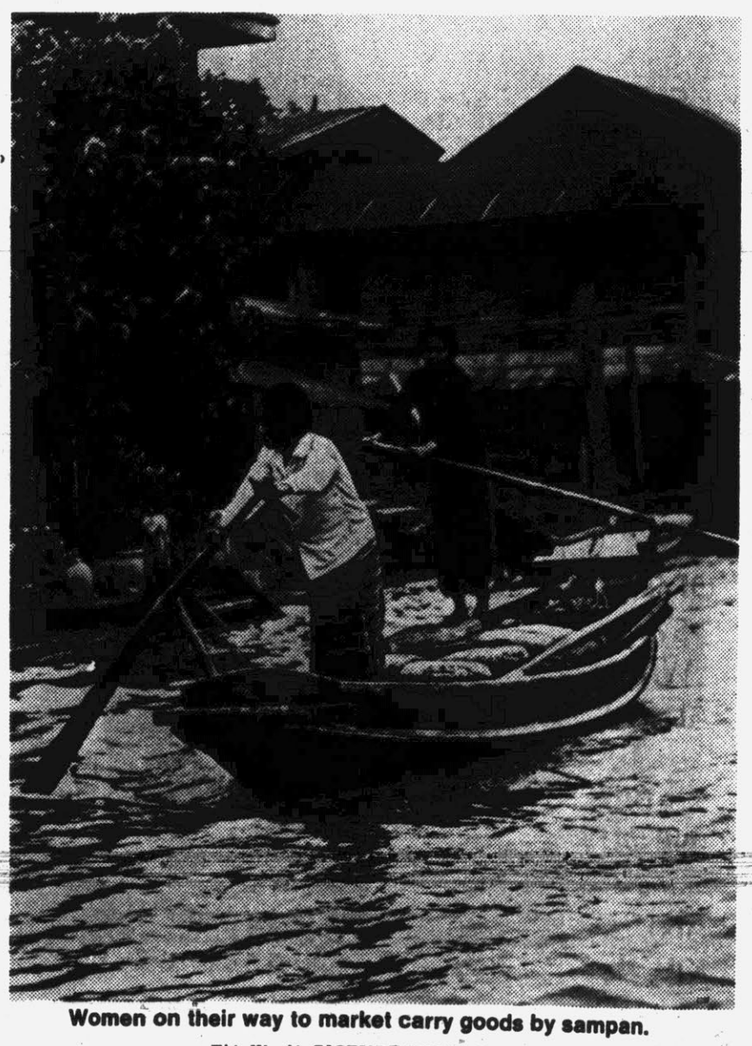
A small boy's floating fruit store.



A canal dweller travels by sampan along canals lined with houses on stilts.



Women on their way to market carry goods by sampan.

The Worry Clinic

Brickbats Are Common Fare

Mary's father could tell her that editors (and columnists) are the common target of both bouquets and brickbats. But one's enemies are more likely to write than are the admirers! So you may enjoy a few good laughs at the comments below. Note that naive psychology professor in Oregon!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-521: Mary H., aged 20, is the daughter of a Mississippi editor.

"Dr. Crane," she began at the state editors' luncheon, "it must be wonderful to write so people can learn how to win friends and avoid divorce.

"In fact, as a high school sophomore I memorized your H-E-L-P formula for carrying on an interesting conversation.

"For when I first started dating, I was so shy, I could not hold up my end of a conversation.

"But do you ever get criticized for your newspaper column?"

Bouquets vs. Brickbats

Yes, I often receive very nice compliments from children and teen-agers who have altered their shy personalities by joining the "Compliment Club."

Also, many wives will tell how they staved off divorce by some of the sex booklets offered as a "fringe benefit" of this daily feature.

Indeed, scores of women (and men) have won back their former mates, even after the divorce, by gaining a new understanding of the psychological outlook of the opposite sex.

But it is an axiom that one's friends are less likely to write than are one's enemies!

For when the shoe pinches, many readers grow so irate they take out their hostility on me.

You readers know that I purposely "needle" fat women to help them go on a diet NOW; not next week or next month.

And to increase their anger at their own bulging tummy, I taunt them with being a waddling walrus or baby hippo.

The usual overly plump woman understands my purpose and starts to lose weight NOW!

But one indignant woman at Akron wrote, saying:

"Dr. Crane, to judge from your picture in our Akron BEACON JOURNAL, you are no prize winner yourself!"

She recited that same angry jibe 3 times on page one and then on page 2, she said she bet I wasn't married but added:

"If you are, I sure am sorry for your wife for it is no honor to have to sit and look at that face of yours every night at the dinner table!"

She signed her letter—"An angry heavy set woman."

But I also have a widely used college textbook called "Psychology Applied," which has had over 1,200 college classroom adoptions.

Two of my sons helped me with the recent revised edition, but when it was advertised to the various colleges and universities, here is what was scribbled by a Forest Grove, Oregon, Psychologist on the permit return order card:

"Crane's 'Psychology Applied' textbook is crap.

"And I've laughed at his newspaper articles for years.

"Even met his sons and am still unimpressed!"

The French police motto is the neat phrase, "Cherchez la Femme."

That says, "Look for the woman," which means, "Seek the motive."

What do you readers think was the motive underlying this psychology professor's snide comments?

Was it jealousy of the wide popularity of the textbook?

Or ire that I am writing this daily newspaper column when he'd like to be doing it?

Apparently, he must read this column regularly for he says he has laughed at it for years! Naive professor!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♠

North and South immersed themselves in a heated dispute regarding the proper play of the club suit by South to bring home his four heart contract without casualty. What was overlooked by both participants was that the declarer need not have subjected himself to any guess on the deal—since a foolproof alternative was available.

West opened the king of spades and was permitted to hold the first trick. South won the continuation with the ace and proceeded to draw two rounds of trumps by leading over to dummy's queen and back to the ace.

A small diamond was led and West, fearing that declarer might be trying to sneak thru a singleton, rose with the ace. He continued with the jack and North played the king. Had West followed with a small card on the first diamond, it would have left his partner in position to put up the queen on the next round and cash out his high spade to complete the defensive book and assure South's eventual defeat.

A third round of diamonds was ruffed in the closed hand and a club was led. West followed with the three. The ten was played from dummy and East won with the jack and cashed the setting, trick in spades.

North was highly critical of his partner for not putting up the ace of clubs and then returning the ten. If the ten is permitted to ride, it will dislodge West's king and establish South's queen for a spade discard from dummy.

South countered by stating that he was playing the opening bidder for both the king and jack of clubs. Regardless of the merits of the discussion, declarer had a line of play at his disposal that was foolproof as the cards were actually distributed, once West failed to duck the first diamond lead.

After the third round of diamonds is ruffed and both opponents follow suit, it is suggested that South cross over to the ten of hearts to lead a fourth diamond. When East shows out, declarer discards his remaining spade, instead of ruffing. West is in with the jack of diamonds and since he has only clubs left—the forced lead away from the king assures South of scoring two tricks in that suit. In all he loses one spade and two diamonds.

If it develops that East is the player with the fourth diamond, South can still ruff in and try out the clubs in an attempt to guess the layout in that suit.

Porpoise Is Ulcer-Prone

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) —A porpoise, like a man, can get an ulcer under stress, according to pathologist D. Gordon Johnson.

Dr. Johnson's studying whether humans can catch colds, skin sores, pneumonia and ulcers from porpoises and vice versa.

He is head of the pathology department at St. John's Hospital here and devotes a good part of his spare time to investigating marine mammalism disease in a program financed by the U.S. Navy.

From as far away as the Arctic Ocean, researchers drew bacterial specimens from seven sites on a sea mammal's body and send them to Johnson's laboratory for hundreds of tests on whether diseases are transferable to humans.

The Navy donated $100,000 in grants in connection with its program to use porpoises and dolphins in search and survival missions.

"We are, in essence, housebreaking marine mammals to live in domesticity much like the cow, horse, dog and cat," Johnson says.

"First, we must establish any threat the marine mammal may be to man's health, and what health problems man can bring to the sea creatures."

Johnson has worked previously with the Navy's Point Mugu porpoise training laboratory and personally made many dives to determine the kinds of illnesses man and animal can inflict in each other.

His most startling conclusion was that a porpoise literally developed ulcers from the strain of learning its missions.

Company Giving Extra Holiday

SYDNEY (AP) — One of Australia's largest finance companies is giving 1,300 employes a holiday with pay every fourth Monday.

"There is no catch in it," said managing director William M. Edmends. "A greater part of our work is being done by computer and we can afford to give our employes more leisure time."

The company made $9.7 million profit last year.

'Batch-Drying' Of Damaged Corn Is Suggested In Area

Pitt County agricultural extension agent S. J. Weeks suggests that farmers use a "batch" drying method when dealing with corn that was damaged by the recent storm and extended damp weather.

Weeks, noting that an estimated 60 per cent of Pitt corn was in the field at the time of the storm, pointed out that harvesting of the downed corn has created drying problems.

Harvesters are picking up a substantial amount of dirt along with the fallen corn, the agent said, and much of this dirt and debris remains with the corn when it is put in storage bins. This dirt can form a core in the center of the grain bin, Weeks reported, and hinder the drying process.

Weeks noted that by using the "batch" method of drying, or drying eight inches to four feet of corn at a time in one bin and then transferring the corn to another bin, the grain should be in a better condition for spring use and sale.

He pointed out that approximately 140 degrees heat should be employed in drying corn layered to four feet in a bin and from 160 to 180 degrees in shallow layers of about eight inches.

In addition, by spreading the corn out as it is placed in the bin the dirt and debris is more evenly distributed and the chance for core development is lessened, Weeks added.

Some farmers are using the layer method of drying, he continued, by putting in two or three feet of corn, partially drying the layer, and then putting another layer on top of the first. Weeks said that he felt this process would not do the job adequately.

Soybeans also suffered heavy damages in the storm and wet weather, Weeks reported, and he recommended that beans be harvested before corn, if possible.

Pianist Began Travels Early

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Voytek Matushevski, a young music student at North Texas State University, claims to be the only pianist in the world who has played for the Nixons, the Brezhnevs and the Kosygins.

Matushevski, studying here for a musical arts doctorate, won the 1969 young artists' competition of the National Federation of Music Clubs. He is a student of Leon Fleisher and has made concert tours throughout Europe.

The Polish-born pianist began playing at the age of six and made his debut at 14 while a student at the Warsaw Conservatory.

History Clings To Hilton Head

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (AP) — History still clings to the moss-draped oaks here.

In the island's forested setting, Indians once stalked game, English settlers outwitted Spanish soldiers, Southern planters grew rich on slave labor, and brother fought brother in the Civil War.

The Indians left ceremonial shell rings on the island about 4,000 years ago. The shell ring people were followed by a more warlike tribe that built its villages near the water and fortified them with shell-and-earth walls, says the National Geographic Society.

Champion Among Cheese-Eaters

CHICAGO (UPI)—Italy holds the cheese-eating championship of the western world.

Cheese, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, represents 3 per cent of the Italian food energy intake. The Italians thus top the French, Swiss, Norwegians, Swedes, Dutch, and Danes, in that order.

Campaign-Financing Plan Survives Test

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate turned back 49 to 46 a Republican move today to kill a Democratic-backed presidential campaign financing plan which could give major party nominees $20.4 million each in public funds next year.

The key test apparently indicated that the Democrats have the votes to write the plan into the $26-billion tax cut bill.

But Republicans indicated they might continue to fight the proposal by offering a series of amendments to it.

The move of Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., to kill the plan was beaten with votes of 49 Democrats. It was supported by 43 Republicans and 3 Democrats.

The vote was preceded by a bitter shouting, partisan debate.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, a leading proponent of the plan introduced by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., declared "some form of public financing of campaigns is absolutely necessary to put an end to the day of labor's man, industry's man and whoever's man.

"Unless something is done, there is no way to prevent our national politics from becoming the exclusive preserve of the rich or of those who serve one of the economic interests of this nation."

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., declared that the proposal "smells" and represents an attempt by the Democrats "to legislate their way back into office."

"This is an affront to democracy," he shouted. "In effect what the Democratic party is telling the people of this nation is that you will give. There is no consideration as to the quality of the candidates."

Pastore interrupted to say that the income tax checkoff procedure designed to raise the money was entirely voluntary and that no one had to contribute who did not want to.

Morgan Decision Cheers Gubernatorial Hopefuls

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan took himself out of the race for the Democratic nomination for governor Wednesday, and his move brought some quick reactions from other Democratic political hopefuls.

"It's a whole new ball game," said Wilmington developer Hugh Morton. Although he has not yet formally entered the gubernatorial race, he quickly solicited "the support of Robert Morgan's many friends" Morton said he would have a definite statement "fairly soon.

President Leo Jenkins of East Carolina University said he had pulled out of the race for government because of his support for Morgan and now he would have to reconsider his decision not to run.

State Sen. Hargove Bowles of Greensboro said that while he was "delighted" to have less opposition, Morgan's withdrawal did not change his plans.

Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor noted that he and Morgan became close friends in the General Assembly and he did not relish running against him. He said he was pleased at the withdrawal.

Bowles, Taylor and Charlotte dentist Reginald Hawkins are the three announced candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

State Sen. Hector McGeachy, D-Cumberland, who tentatively announced as a candidate for attorney general several weeks ago with the reservation that he would not run if Morgan sought re-election, was surprised at Morgan's decision. McGeachy said he will make a definite decision after conferring with his supporters "as to the office I will seek," He said his Raleigh headquarters would remain open in the interim.

McGeachy said he looked forward to serving the people of the state "in a statewide office."

Although he took himself out of the race for government and said his present intention is too seek re-election as attorney general, Morgan left the door open for a U.S. Senate bid if Sen. B. Everett Jordan should change his mind and not seek re-election.

Morgan told a news conference at which he announced his decision that the pace of political activity in the state is "without precedent in North Carolina." He pointed out that three candidates have announced for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination even though the primary still is six months off.

Morgan said a "campaign for the governorship appears extremely tempting" because "the polls show that if we should determine to seek the governorship, we could win."

He added that he has unfinished work in the attorney general's office "which I cannot abandon at this time and still keep faith with the people of North Carolina." He pointed to his consumer protection activities, the Police Information Network, the Organized Crime Council and the addition of 12 new staff attorneys."

It is obvious, he said, that he cannot complete the projects he has started and "undertake at the same time a campaign for governor.

"In this year's peculiar political climate," he said, "I cannot delay a decision until these things are accomplished, as I had once hoped I could.

"My first duty is to the office to which I already have been entrusted," Morgan said. "I will honor that trust. I shall not be a candidate for governor of North Carolina in 1972.

"My present intention is to seek re-election to the office of attorney general of North Carolina," Morgan added. He said he expects to make his formal announcement early next year.

Morgan's wife, Katie, told reporters at the news conference that Morgan would consider running for the Senate only if Jordan should decide not to make the race.

"We wouldn't run against him," she said.

Judge Closes Plants

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal judge for the first time invoked early today the "emergency powers" of the Clean Air Act and ordered 23 major industries in Birmingham, Ala., to shut down until an air pollution crisis eases in several Southeastern states.

U.S. District Court Judge Sam C. Pointer issued a temporary injunction ordering the plant closures as an autumn temperature inversion continued to hold pockets of stagnant air in its grip.

Officials hoped increasing winds today would help clear up the situation.

The injunction was sought by the U.S. Justice Department on the recommendation of William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

An EPA spokesman said the order affecting the 23 industries, which include several steel producers, will remain in effect until the air pollution alert is lifted or until Friday when the judge will hold a hearing on the action.

Dr. George E. Hardy, health officer for the Jefferson County Health Department in Birmingham, said a number of the industries had refused to comply with requests to cut production despite a pollution index reading of 750.

The EPA, which dispatched a team of lawyers and technicians to Birmingham on Wednesday, considers a level of 625 to require remedial action and a level of 875 to constitute substantial danger to human health.

In Nashville, Tennessee authorities extended a pollution alert already in effect for Chattanooga to all of East Tennessee.

A large, high pressure system has covered the southeast and Gulf states for several days, creating a low-level temperature inversion along with light circulation.

Cancelled

The speech previously scheduled to be delivered by Senator George McGovern at East Carolina University this afternoon has been cancelled.

A spokesman said that the decision not to make the speech at 3:30 p.m. on campus is the result of the voting today in Washington on the Campaign Spending Bill.

Both McGovern and Senator Edmund Muskie have agreed not to make scheduled speeches in North Carolina this afternoon.

McGovern still plans to attend the reception in his honor to be given in the early evening hours at the home of Dr. Leo Jenkins.

Peace Effort Futile

By DAVID MASON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The United States and South Vietnam, in a hard-line tactical move, tried to pull the Vietnam peace talks out of deadlock today, but got nowhere.

Ambassadors William J. Porter and Pham Dang Lam said in effect they had nothing to add to the allied position and called on the Communist side to make a constructive reply or take positive action.

Porter limited his prepared conference speech to 23 words and Lam's talk was only two or three minutes long.

Communist delegates, leaving the brief 136th session of the talks, repeated long-held positions. North Vietnamese Minister of State Xuan Thuy turned Porter's demand around and said he hoped the United States would give "serious consideration to our point of view."

Porter told the Communists: "There is nothing new in your statements today. You are using the same stale material I have heard since my arrival here. We have repeatedly made our position clear. We are awaiting a constructive reply and, therefore, have nothing further to say."

The next conference session was set for Dec. 2, skipping the U.S. Thanksgiving Day holiday Nov. 25.

Rezoning Is Endorsed At Joint Meet

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Rezoning of a ten acre tract of land adjacent to Greenfield Terrace Subdivision from the current Unoffensive Industry zoning to R-6 residential was recommended for approval by members of the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission at a meeting held Wednesday night.

The recommendation followed a presentation by Attorney Earl Whitted, Jr. attorney for the requestors, M. P. Dawson, Jr., and Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church.

A delegation of interested citizens was on hand as Whitted explained to the joint commission the reason for the request. Members of the Board of Directors and the congregation of Mt. Calvary are proposing the construction of a housing complex over a period of years that would eventually result in a non-profit housing corporate involving a construction outlay in the neighborhood of $1,800,000. Whitted told the commission that HUD now had the application on file for consideration.

In the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission which immediately followed the joint meeting, commission members recommended for approval the final plat of Section III of Oakdale Subdivision, contingent on the recreation area being reserved meeting required size. The stipulation in this regard arose due to shift in designation of lots to be reserved for recreation purposes.

Pat Thomas, spokesman for the development, noted the plat for Section III is the final one for the Oakdale Subdivision, which he said should be completed in two years or less, as they were running ahead of schedule.

A preliminary plat of Bob's Mobile Home Estates, planned for construction on Hooker Road near Greenville Boulevard, received approval for recommendation after being presented by Roger Mann and Robert Browning.

The two representatives for the development, were told by Greenville Utilities Commission Director Charles Horne and City Planner Dillon Watson that under current regulations and ordinances, fire protection could not be extended inside the development nor streets dedicated based on rights of ways contained in the preliminary.

The two representatives told the commission they preferred to revise the preliminary plan to include widening of streets thus qualifying for full fire protection and being able to dedicate streets.

All costs connected with this project will be borne by the developers. Approval of the preliminary plat also involved approval for recommendation for rezoning a portion of the area that projects into the 400 foot highway commercial strip.

The planners were commended on the planning of the mobile home estates, which contains more than a maximum of recreation space, and a non-systematic arrangement, and two parking spaces for each mobile home.

Edwin L. Clark's request for rezoning of one lot north of the Tar River on Greene Street was recommended for approval. The lot is a 260 by 260 one that has been filled in. After Clark had purchased and begun fill in, his lot had been included in a designation of Flood Plain zoning.

The commission recommended for approval a request by Home Builders Supply Company for rezoning of a lot between Chestnut and Myrtle Streets. The approval also includes, based on a recommendation by City Planner Watson and City Engineer C. A. Holliday, a larger area that runs from Myrtle to Wilson to Dickinson Avenue. It was stated this area already was in fact used for highway commercial purposes, and that the recommendation to rezone to that category confirms the actual usage.

Bryan McClure, Project Manager for the Shore Drive Project, Greenville Redevelopment Commission, asked the Planning and Zoning Commission to approve a resolution to go to the City Council. The resolution, covering Amendment Number 5 to the project, deals with a close out date of January 19, 1972 for the project; dedication of the area to the city; a revised finance plan; and a zoning plan.

Commissioners approved the resolution with the exception of the revised finance plan, for which they stated they had no opinion on that phase of the amendment to pass on to the City Council.

City Engineer Holliday gave a report on the Thoroughfare Plan Study Committee, for which he outlined seven changes to be made before returning the plan to the State Highway Commission. The plan, with all revisions, will be studied by the City Council with eventual agreement between the council and the State Highway Commission.

Air Support Props Up Deteriorating Cambodia

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Official U.S. sources tonight described the military situation in Cambodia as deteriorating, and said American air support has been substantially increased.

The U.S. Command declined comment, but official sources outside the command said the Cambodians had been getting increased American air support for 10 days.

Dispatches from Cambodia have reported U.S. Cobra helicopter gunships are attacking enemy forces mounting a threat to Phnom Penh 10 miles west of the capital.

The disclosure came amid reports circulating in Saigon that the Cambodian government also had requested South Vietnamese infantry reinforcements to relieve pressure around Phnom Penh.

Sources said that the major increase in U.S. air support was in the form of tactical fighter-bomber strikes flown from bases in South Vietnam and Thailand.

U.S. rocket-firing helicopter gunships have been providing cover for Cambodian supply convoys moving along the Mekong River to Cambodia's capital and along Highway 1, the Saigon to Phnom Penh overland route.

"The situation is not good," said one source.

Fighting has been raging for a week on Phnom Penh's western outskirts, where the Cobra gunships have been in action. Two North Vietnamese and Viet Cong regiments are threatening Highway 4 and 5, both key supply arteries.

A Cambodian counter-offensive on the northeastern front began Wednesday with U.S. tactical fighter-bomber strikes, shelling and infantry probes.

Reports from Phnom Penh said that bombers had hit a rubber plantation about 50 miles northeast of the capital and around the small town of Rumlong, two miles farther north.

Rumlong was captured by troops of the Communist command's 9th Division after an 18-day siege that inflicted heavy losses on the 1,000 Cambodian defenders.

Two days of strikes by U.S. B52 strategic bombers failed to save the town from falling into the hands of the enemy.

Most of the 20,000-man Cambodian task force is cut off from overland supply routes on the northeastern front as the result of the fall of Baray and Rumlong, which left a four-mile stretch of Highway 6 in enemy control.

Strong North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacks also have been launched south of Phnom Penh.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command reported American bombers made their 77th strike of the year in North Vietnam Wednesday and hit enemy supply depots in the demilitarized zone for the sixth day in a row.

All Councilmen Were Recalled

DONALD, Ore. (AP) — All of the town's five councilmen—including the mayor—were recalled Wednesday in an election in which 108 of the town's 116 eligible voters cast ballots.

The recall committee was formed after the council passed a building ordinance.

APPARENT BOMB

WELLSELEY, Mass., (AP) — An apparent bomb exploded today outside a Honeywell computer operations building, damaging glass panelling on a three-level stair well.

Call Meeting

Annexation is the prime subject on the agenda of items to be considered at a Special Call meeting of the Greenville City Council tonight at 8:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

A total of 11 separate areas will be discussed in annexation discusssions.

Other items to be considered at this meeting are the application of a taxi permit by Jerry Summers; a request for a taxi franchise from Austin Parker; bids on a 1972 pick-up truck; withdrawal of East Eighth Street, Charles Street, East Seventh Street and a 20 foot alley; and consideration of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, North Carolina National Bank, Planters National Bank and Trust Company, Home Savings and Loan Association, and First Federal Savings and Loan Association as depositories for funds of the City of Greenville.

Nixon Administration Opposing Fare-Fixing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration asked Congress today to deny a request that the Civil Aeronautics Board be empowered to fix international air rates.

Arguing against a key provision in a CAB-backed bill, and offering an administration plan as a substitute, Asst. Secretary of Transportation Charles D. Baker said:

"We believe that the board's authority should be limited to the suspension and disapproval of such international air rates and that it should not include the power to prescribe or fix such rates."

The powers contained in a House bill, Baker said in testimony prepared for the House transportation subcommittee, "are an extension of the board's domestic rate authority which we consider to be too wide-ranging for use on the international side, and not necessary."

Deputy Asst. Secretary of State Bert Rein agreed with Baker's views. The State Department, Rein said, is not persuaded that regulation should extend beyond the prevention of "uneconomic low rates or excessively high rates."

CAB Chairman Secor D. Browne told the subcommittee Wednesday that Congress should "arm the U.S. government with the same power to regulate international air fares that foreign governments have."

A Senate Commerce subcommittee has approved legislation to let CAB suspend for up to a year and reject or cancel existing or proposed fares suggested by foreign airlines. But the Senate panel struck out a provision that would have let CAB set the fares. Major U.S. airlines have complained bitterly about suggested lower rates.

Wig Tightened For Romance

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (WNS) — Robert Emery, 38 and a balding tourist from Boston, paid $160 for a handsome wig here. "Only wild horses could make it shift," promised the wigmaker who fit it tightly to his head. But that night Robert courted a local lady, and his wig was knocked off during the first kiss. "Our women are wilder than horses," said the wigmaker who refused to take back the wig but tightened it for romance.

Secretary Needs Change Of Scenery

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can help me figure something out. I can't, and I'm about to lose my mind.

Seven years ago I fell in love with my boss. Yes, I knew he had a wife and grown children, but he told me he loved me and that his sex life at home was nil. Soon my love for him became the most important thing in my life. We managed to get together often. I even rented an apartment near his home to be more accessible.

Suddenly his wife tells him she has known about our affair from the beginning, but she said nothing, hoping to ride it out. I asked why he didn't let her divorce him, and he said he didn't want a divorce, that he and his wife are "working things out now."

Where does that leave me? He ignores me at the office now. I gave him seven years of my life. My questions:

1. How could any wife stand by, knowing her husband had another woman, and just "ride it out," as she says?
2. If his sex life at home really was nil, why is he sticking with her and trying to work things out?
3. Is there any way I can get him back?
4. Could it be that he really loves her after all?

I am almost 40 and I'm afraid life is passing me by. Please help me. I can't even get him to talk to me about it.

THREE TIME LOSER

DEAR LOSER: 1. She loved him.
2. Maybe his sex life WAS nil, but it's better now.
3. I doubt it.
4. Could be.
Hand in your resignation and relocate as far away as possible. For a going away present he should give you excellent references.

DEAR ABBY: I am a college student with two more years of medical school ahead of me. I want to become officially engaged to the girl I've been going with for the past year. She has already accepted my proposal, but she wants some kind of ring. I can't afford very much right now, but she says she doesn't care, as long as it's an engagement ring.

Here's the problem. Her father owns a jewelry store. I'm afraid if I go to his store for the ring [which, believe me can't be much of a sale] he will think I am asking for a "deal" which I would not do.

On the other hand, if I go to a competitor I'm afraid my girl and her father will not like that either. She says her folks like me and I don't want to spoil anything. What should I do?

STRUGGLING IN ITHACA

DEAR STRUGGLING: Shop at your future father-in-law's. And if he wants to give you a special deal, take it and say "thank you."

DEAR ABBY: Something has been bothering me and I would like your opinion.

I am alone and I am frequently asked places thru a friend or relative. Rarely am I contacted personally. It's usually like this, and very often at the last moment, "Bring Mary along. Or tell Mary if she wants to come, she's welcome."

An invitation like that turns me off and I have the feeling that I'm not really wanted, but I can crowd in if I feel like it.

I could never give anyone that kind of invitation, and can't understand why others do.

How would you feel under the circumstances, Abby!

A LITTLE HURT

DEAR HURT: I'd feel just as you do. Perhaps your letter will serve to "remind" the guilty, who are probably more thoughtless than unkind.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

White House Menus Disclose Fancy Presidential Tastes

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

For years, Americans prided themselves on the simplicity of their food. But a glance at the menus left behind by former chefs at the White House shows that many of our presidents had epicurean tastes.

There have been meat and potatoes men like Lyndon Johnson who seemed to prefer barbecues to fancy fare, but President Nixon likes Beef Wellington, and George Washington had a fine appreciation for Madeira wine.

The outstanding presidential gourmet was Thomas Jefferson. Scholar, scientist and statesman, Jefferson could also season a salad to perfection, cure a ham and stock a memorable wine cellar. It was Jefferson's contention that, without good food and drink, a man would wither and lose his vitality.

Our presidents in the last century seemed to have a weakness for chicken, and partook of the bird in odd forms and at odd times. James Monroe favored a rich chicken pudding, Andrew Jackson relished chicken hash for breakfast, and Dolly Madison entranced White House guests with a wonderful consomme made from julienne of chicken, fresh tomatoes, chives and white rice.

President Ulysses S. Grant has not been regarded as a gourmet, but his wife Julia, served a dish of veal rolls laced with white wine that hardly came under the heading of plain cooking.

Theodore Roosevelt made his contribution to culinary history with a Sagamore Hill salad featuring chopped eggs, red onions and Belgian endives. His kinsman Franklin D. was a true gourmet, but he liked to surprise guests with down to earth foods. One time he even served hot dogs to Britain's King George VI.

Woodrow Wilson used to start his day with skillet cornbread and the Eisenhowers often wound up their evening meal with a concoction called Frosted Mint Delight. But one of the most delectable desserts was served by that veteran gourmet, Jefferson. Here is the recipe.

WINE JELLY

3 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1½ cups cold water
1½ cups sugar
½ cup lemon juice
3 cups dry red wine
Frosted grapes
Mint Sprigs
Whipped Cream

Sprinkle gelatine over water in medium saucepan. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat, add sugar and stir until dissolved. Stir in lemon juice and wine. Pour into shallow 6 cup mold, chill until firm. Unmold, garnish with frosted grapes and mint sprigs. Serve with whipped cream with dash of brandy folded in. Yields about 10 servings.

Frosted grapes are made by dipping small clusters of the fruit into slightly beaten egg white and sprinkling with granulated sugar. Place on waxed paper and let stand until dry.

Holiday Events Discussed By Police Wives

A Christmas project and holiday party were discussed at the meeting of the Greenville Police Wives Club held Monday at the home of Mrs. Claudette Fonseca.

A large number of dolls and stuffed toys were reported completed and Dec. 1 was the date given for final completion. The dolls and toys will be given to the Salvation Army for distribution.

On Dec. 17, the club will give a party for policemens' children and a barbecue supper has been planned for Dec. 20 for all policemen and their wives.

Three new members were welcomed at the meeting.

Students Give Fashion Show Friday Night

A fashion show was given Friday night at Pitt Plaza by girls of the Cooperative Office Occupational Class at J. H. Rose High School.

Clothes were modeled by Mona Hardee, Susan Tice, Rusty Pinkston, Ada Swain and Carol Morgan.

The purpose of the show was to acquaint the people of Greenville with Cooperative Office Occupations. The girls taking this two-hour course attend school in the morning. Here they have practice on office machines and work in an office-like atmosphere. They also study various topics pertaining to an office such as grooming, telephone manners, classes of mail, telegrams and filing.

This is in addition to their regular courses. After lunch they report to work at various businesses in the Greenville area. Here they get experience and on-the-job-training.

Man-Of-The-Year Title Fits

Horton Rountree, who was named Greenville's Man of the Year at the annual Chamber of Commerce-Merchants Association banquet, has a background of service.

Dr. Leo Jenkins pointed out that Rountree, one of Pitt's two representatives in the State Legislature, is known in Raleigh as "Mr. ECU because of his strenuous battles in behalf of the university."

The ECU president pointed out that Rountree drafted and introduced legislation which created the university and in 1969 introduced legislation to initiate the doctoral program at ECU. He also guided through the Legislature the bill which led to the new Eastern Vocational Rehabilitation Center being located here.

Rountree was chairman of the Congressional Redistricting Committee in the House.

Rountree was active in the recent special session of the Legislation which passed a restructuring bill for higher education. He was one of the leaders of the regional universities group during the session.

Just recently, Rountree and Fred Cox of Grifton were named by Gov. Scott to terms on the East Carolina University board of trustees.

Much of what has been affected at ECU in recent years has been guided through the Legislature by Rep. Rountree. His service to our community has been considerable and it is fitting that he was presented the Man of the Year award.

Skiing Proved Economic Boon

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — They laughed when North Carolina promoters first talked about skiing as an attraction to open up the winter season in the mountains.

Today, ten years later, it's a $10 million joke. The first snowfall no longer signals hibernation, but the hum of activity on the slopes of nine Tar Heel ski resorts and the merry jingle of coin for the mountain tourist trade.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Thousands of Southerners have learned the winter sport, once as foreign as cricket or jai alai. Ski clubs from as far away as Florida and Alabama, as well as North Carolina cities, make regular forays to the slopes during the season.

The way it's going, said Chuck Barbour, hot buttered rum served apres-ski could replace the mint julep as the region's favorite imbibement.

"It's phenomenal," said Barbour, state director of travel and promotion. "Skiing has absolutely turned around the way we used to think of the mountains as a travel area."

Ending The Economic Lull

After autumn color, mountain resorts once boarded their windows. Jobs ended for many residents, and an economic lull settled over the area until spring.

Since skiing got started in 1961, millions have been poured into new developments. The influx of winter visitors has given a lift to business generally, with benefit to crafts, service industries and other interests.

The first snow has flown in the mountains, spurring along to completion new accomodations for what the ski resorts expect to be a banner year. The ski season gets rolling by mid-December and continues until late February or early March.

The climax comes with the fourth annual Snow Carnival of the South next Feb. 14-18, in and around the town of Boone.

Its feature will be the world's most improbable sports event, a $30,000 ski meet with top professional downhill-racers participating.

Cataloochee Was First

Ten years ago it would have been not only improbable, but impossible. That was when Tom Alexander got the idea to make his Cataloochee dude ranch at Maggie Valley year-round by adding a ski slope.

Lots of friends thought he'd lost his mind, but 3,000 skiers showed up and a new travel industry for North Carolina was born.

How well it has fared is shown by the 176,000 skiers logged last season and the host of imitators who got on the bandwagon.

One new area, Wolf Laurel at Mars Hill, joins the North Carolina ski scene this season. The other resorts, in addition to Cataloochee, are: Applachian Ski Mountain, Blowing Rock; Beech Mountain, Banner Elk; High Meadows, Roaring Gap; Hound Ears Golf and Ski Club, Blowing Rock; Seven Devils, Boone; Sapphire Valley, Sapphire; and Sugar Mountain, Banner Elk.

Beech Mountain, the leader among the resorts, attracted 73,000 skiers last season.

Skiing isn't inexpensive. An estimate of $50 per day for lodging, equipment rental and incidentals wouldn't be too far off, Barbour surmised. Multiplied by last year's visitors, it indicates a boost of $10 to $15 million to the mountain economy.

Nature Gets Helping Hand

Nature sets the stage for Tar Heel skiing, but man and machinery lend a hand.

North Carolina's ski slopes are located in the highest mountains east of the Mississippi, Barbour noted. Snowfall averages more than 100 inches annually, he said.

The lack of natural snow is remedied with snow-making machinery, standard equipment at all areas.

Virtually everybody who is anybody has tried skiing since it became an in-fixture on the fun scene. Gov. Bob Scott has tried it. Gil Horton of Wilmington, chairman of the state Conservation and Development board, is an enthusiast.

Barbour gave personal testimony to the sport's appeal. "It's fun to watch, and once you see it you can't stay off the skis," he said.

The first time out, he scorned the beginner's slope and whizzed down the major course.

"I busted my — well, the only way to stop was to fall down," he confessed. The instructor pointed out that accidents happen just that way, and Barbour went back for lessons.

He'll show off North Carolina skiing to colleagues during the Snow Carnival when the 11-state Southern Travel Directors Council meets in the mountains. Further exposure will come from the meeting at the same time of the Mid-Atlantic Chapter of the Society of American Travel Writers.

"Hardly anybody took North Carolina skiing seriously at first," he said. "Now everybody admits it's no joke."

Good Watchdog In The Anti-Inflation Effort

Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is acknowledged to be the top fiscal expert on Capitol Hill.

He is reserving judgment on President's Nixon's Phase 2 economic program.

In a speech here Monday he said he welcomed the president's original freeze on prices and wages. He said correcting the problems of inflation is something we must fight for. "I hope you feel the same way," he told his audience.

We certainly do feel the same way and we hope Wilbur Mills will keep an eagle eye on the programs which are designed to curb inflation. The public can have no better watchdog.

'Big Mystery' Is Miles Away

By JOHN KILGO

While Republican Jim Holshouser was flying around the state Monday announcing for Governor, the big mystery was miles away in Rocky Mount or Orlando, Fla., or somewhere else unreachable by telephone and his name is Jim Gardner.

This piece is not meant to embarrass anyone and certainly it isn't written to rip open old wounds, but face it: Not many months ago Holshouser and Gardner did not get along well at all.

I did a column on Gardner about 14 months ago. He told me at that time that he was bitter at the Republican hiearchy in North Carolina. He said he probably would never run for office on the Republican ticket again.

"The '68 election," said Gardner at that time, "left a bad taste in my mouth."

Gardner told me in that interview the Republican Party did not help him pay one cent of his campaign debt.

But picture this, 14 months later. Holshouser and Gardner both show up at a $500-a-plate Republican fund raising affair in Charlotte.

Holshouser said to the gathering: "The next U.S. Senator from North Carolina just might well be in this room tonight." He didn't call Gardner's name. He didn't have to. Everyone knew he was talking about the Rocky Mount businessman.

At the same gathering, Gardner said he "wished Holshouser well" in his run for Governor.

When Holshouser came to Charlotte Monday to announce for Governor at a press conference, he was introduced by Henry Wilmer, chairman of the Republican Party in Mecklenburg County.

Wilmer seemed to rule out the possibility of any Republican primary for Governor when he said: "Allow me to introduce Mecklenburg to the next Governor of North Carolina."

Then Wilmer turned to Holshouser and said: "Jim let me assure you I'm going to do everything I can to make that statement come true."

For a man who is supposed to stay neutral in case of a primary in his party, Wilmer clearly staked himself out for Holshouser.

I asked Holshouser if he had assurances that Gardner would not run for Governor.

"Not at this time," Holshouser said, smiling.

I then asked if he had indications that Gardner would not run for Governor.

"Not at this time," Holshouser said. "I think Mr. Gardner's political plans will be announced in the very near future."

Most knowledgable politicians I've talked with believe an agreement has been reached between Gardner and Holshouser. Have they signed a peace treaty? Have they agreed to live and let live? That's not clear but the feeling is that Gardner is headed for a race for the U.S. Senate, not for Governor.

Something has happened to get Gardner to agree to that mush. Gardner felt too many Republican Party leaders took the side of his gubernatorial opponent in the '68 Republican primary, John Stickney. Gardner won the race in a landslide but still there were some hard feelings.

If Gardner and Holshouser have buried the hatchet, and if Gardner decides to run for the U. S. Senate as a Republican, the GOP will definitely be in a threatening position next year. Maybe that's why Holshouser looks so happy these days.

Strength For Today

THE FUTURE

One of God's great kindnesses to us is that He hides the future from our inquisitive gaze. Suppose we knew that on a certain day we or our loved ones — or perhaps both — would experience a profound tragedy. Life between now and then would be an existence full of torture. We need to peer into [illegible] stumble and we should find ourselves sprawled on the ground. The Bible assures us that it is not for us to know times or seasons, but we can be sure that we will have the power necessary for every contingency if we have faith and energy. Is the future enticing or dismal? In some ways, a bit of both, but on the whole more hope. than discouragement.

The teaching of religion is that there is an eternal future. This should not frighten us for the assurance is that God sent his only begotten Son into the world to save us, not to condemn us. Deliberate evil? Yes, if we are practicing anything like that then it is time for us to ask ourselves a few searching questions. It is amazing how much of the future God leaves in our hands. In other words, triumphant living means getting right with God and staying right with Him. It means loving our neighbors as ourselves. We can be sure that God is on our side. The matter of greater importance is whether or not we are on his side.

They Can Learn To Read

In recent years, one of the great controversies of education has revolved around the inner-city school.

By virtually every account, these schools have been failing in their primary function: They have not succeeded in giving their poor black, Puerto Rican or Mexican-American children a basic education.

Recognition of the widespread failure has led to a number of hypotheses, proposals and attempted solutions. One such theory, for example, holds that black children as a group are inherently or racially different from white children in their learning aptitudes. Another theory places the blame for poor achievement largely upon poor environment. Educators have proposed smaller classes, better buildings, and new computerized devices. Judges are ordering "busing," in the thought that a proper racial mix will make things better. A few extremists have proposed to abandon reading, writing and speech in favor of a bastard "ghetto English." The sense of failure is pervasive.

In the midst of this gloom and confusion, the Council for Basic Education has just produced a sensible ray of light. Convinced that inner-city children can be taught to read at national levels of achievement, the council set out to find ghetto schools that are not failing but in fact are succeeding. In a paper published this week, the CBE associate director, George Weber, describes his search for such schools. He found four.

Two of these success stories are being written in New York, one of them in the Chelsea section of the lower west side, the other out in Harlem. A third exemplary school was uncovered in Kansas City, a fourth in Los Angeles. The third-grade children of these schools are by and large the products of poverty and poor environment. Many of them arrive in the first grade speaking Spanish only. On the face of it, they have every reason to fail; but they are not failing. In these schools they are learning.

To The Editor:

O.K., so the Christmas decorations are out a bit early, to take advantage of putting them up in good weather, so we understand.

Personally, we look at it as an added blessing at this Thanksgiving Season, as we look to Advent and His Coming.

Symbolically speaking, the "red" triangle symbolizes the Trinity — God the Father, the Son, the Holy Spirit. The "white" wreath at the top of the triangle symbolizes purity and the Son, freely given; and to all who freely respond, He brings Life — Abundant and Eternal. The "green" wreath at the bottom symbolizes to us a bell, ringing in the blessing of His Advent. Green could also symbolize Christian growth and the challenge to grow in His grace as we prepare for His Coming.

So instead of complaining about the Christmas decorations being early, let us rejoice as they say, loud and clear, "God so loved...that He gave His Son..." What will YOU share in His behalf this Christmas?

To The Editor:

The Nicky Cruz Crusade was indeed a glorous experience. It was thrilling to have so many people come together to engage in a spiritual crusade. It was promoted in a large area of Eastern North Carolina and it was indeed interesting to see so many different denominations and groups participating. Out of the total of around 25,000 persons who attended the three nights, in excess of 1,200 (mostly young persons) came forward indicating a desire for Jesus Christ in their lives. For all of those who attended it was indeed a spiritual blessing.

It would be impossible to personally thank all of those who helped to make this a memorable experience because of so many individuals and groups involved. Since it covered such a large area, there are many who worked that we do not know of. Therefore, may we take this means to thank each and everyone who contributed in any way. However, we firmly believe that it was the Lord himself who really made this crusade a success as his hand was definitely in it.

The offering at the Crusade went to the Nicky Cruz Outreach, Inc. for operation of Outreach Youth Centers. Nicky and his staff are only a salary. It is hoped that one of these Centers may be located in this area, which is primarily for youth who have experimented with drugs. A large number of young persons leave these centers cured from drugs and other problems. It must be emphasized that this is due to the Christian way in which the Centers are staffed and operated.

We thank the Lord that this Crusade could be conducted for his glory and it is felt that with follow-up, there will be lasting results.

Tough Going Ahead

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The new economic policy is only three months old but it isn't too early to say that the going is getting touchier all the time and that the prospect of quick, clean accomplishments is fading.

The Pay Board especially appears to be facing problems. The five labor members have been aligned in opposition to the majority of the 15-member board. And wage demands, and some agreements, far exceed guidelines.

The soft coal industry has agreed to a 39 per cent increase in wages and benefits. Rail signalmen have won a 46 per cent increase over 42 months, subject to Pay Board approval. Similar agreements are forthcoming.

Are these to be considered impudent attempts by labor to flaunt government efforts to keep wage increases, on average, to 5.5 per cent a year?

The president of the National Association of Manufacturers, W. P. Gullander, thinks they are. He forecasts an uprising against "abusive labor union power, of which industry has been aware for more than a generation."

But when you listen to labor leaders you obtain an entirely different view. It isn't greed or antagonism or disrespect or power or selfishness that motivates them, as they see it.

It is, instead, responsibility to men and women who, over the years, have suffered financial deprivation, insecurity and health problems. And that battle, rather than having been won, may have suffered a setback from inflation.

This presents the Pay Board with the nearly impossible task of resolving quickly and practically the incredibly divergent points of view that are rooted in hundreds of years of history.

It presents them with issues

40 Years Ago Today

Dr. T. M. Watson, Greenville specialist, was elected vice president of the North Carolina Pediatric Society at Duke University this week.

For the pleasure and enjoyment of those people who have been unable to see a football game this season, the Greenville high school team has arranged a football game for Thanksgiving Day with the Farmville team.

Members of the high school football team, headed by Coach C. W. Porter, were guests at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary Club Monday night.

The approach of winter is now becoming evident in western parts of North Carolina while the southeast was drenched by rain this week. Greenville, meanwhile, has been experiencing a long dry spell this week with cooler temperatures expected tonight and tomorrow.

Quit Fight To Halt Inflation

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Cost of Living Council has set a rubbery limit of 2.5 per cent on price raises and the Wage Board has set an equally stretchable 5.5 per cent limit on pay increases. Congress is cutting both personal and corporate tax liabilities without cutting expenditures deep enough to eliminate the budget deficit.

COMMENT: Thus ends the fight to halt inflation. We'll try controlled inflation for a while, then more inflation and, eventually, bring out a "new dollar" and start all over again.

Census Bureau Sees 64 Million More Americans

The Census Bureau estimates that by the year 2000, the population of the United States will be somewhere between 271 million and 322 million, an increase of at least 64 million. The present population is 207 million.

COMMENT: This will frighten some people. But others will look upon it as a promise of 64 million more customers, requiring more food products, more housing, more living conveniences, more power, more new inventions. We don't have to sink into the poverty of China and India; we can increase the standard of living as the Japanese are doing.

Businessmen Don't Like The Nep

Dun's magazine polled its 300-member panel of corporate leaders and found "overwhelming" opposition to President Nixon's New Economic Plan. One, Ian MacGregor, chairman of American Metals Climax, said, "We may be faced with a controlled economy for a long period, or the risks of the freeze will have been taken for nothing."

COMMENT: Other polls show that labor, foreigners and Wall Street do not like it, but that consumers do.

Outstanding Consumer Credit Tops $130 Billion

The Federal Reserve reports that outstanding consumer credit at the end of September was $130,644 million. Of this, $104,973 million was installment credit.

COMMENT: It has so long been argued that the American standard of living has been made possible only easy credit that the statement has been accepted as gospel. And there is so much validity to the statement that it is rarely re-examined.

However, the current outstanding credit probably costs about 12 per cent a year on average, since most installment credit costs around 18 per cent. That means consumers are paying about $16 billion for the use of credit. Actually, the cost of credit is higher since the price of goods sold on credit are often increased to cover losses for skips, bankruptcies and other nonpayments.

If American mores were different and people saved money until they could buy for cash, they could purchase $16 billion more worth of goods and services a year. That would create a lot of jobs.

There is another twist to the situation. The wealthy can not only get more for their money by paying cash, although many don't but they are the principal beneficaries of the profits on credit. Furthermore, it is largely the poor who become overextended in credit buying and go through the bankruptcy wringer. Of the almost 200,000 bankruptcy cases filed each year, more than 150,000 are filed by wage and salary earners.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

By DUANE WILLIAMS

Hi! As the new reporter of the weekly D. H. Conley news, I'll get off to a flying start with the football awards. Charlie Speight and Steve Evans, outstanding seniors, were named all-conference players last week. Those receiving honorable mention were Norman Marable, Lawrence Harper, Calvin Clemmons, Willie Hawkins and Teddy Carmon.

Morehead Scholarships

Two Conley seniors have been nominated for the Morehead Scholarhsip. Bryant Hines and David House have already completed their first interviews. Hines now serves as S.G.A. president and participates in basketball. House is a member of the Honor Society.

Seniors interested in attending Saint Augustine's College in Raleigh left early Tuesday morning to tour the campus. The seniors visited the campus to become better informed of the facilities and opportunities there. The trip was an all-day affair. The students traveled by bus and returned late in the afternoon.

Library Club Convention

Twenty-five Library Club members of D. H. Conley traveled to Chowan County High School Thursday to attend the Northeastern District Conference.

Electing new officers for the coming year was the primary purpose of the meeting. After the election, the delegates were entertained by singing and films presented by the host school.

Thanksgiving holidays begin Thursday, Nov. 25. School will be back in session the following Monday; so, brief as it is, happy Thanksgiving to all.

What makes them click? Why do they succeed when so many other ghetto schools, also examined in the CBE study, produce the same melancholy test scores? Weber's year-long investigation, limited though it was, has turned up some useful conclusions.

Weber begins by brushing aside the theory of inherited characteristics: "Higher average intelligence does not, in my opinion, have anything to do with race or ethnic group." Neither could he find evidence to support the popular notion that smaller classes, in themselves, will improve the skills of inner-city pupils. He discards the concept of intensive pre-school training. He could find no correlation between achievement and physical plant. Two of the successful schools are roughly 50 years old, and all four are of the old-fashioned "egg crate" design.

Eight factors, his study indicates, apparently produce a successful school: "Strong leadership, high expectations, good atmosphere, strong emphasis on reading, additional reading personnel, use of phonics, individualization, and careful evaluation of pupil progress."

Woodland School in Kansas City, built in 1921, is 99 per cent black. Its 650 children are "Very poor." Here one touches the core of the core city. Yet Kansas City has driving leadership in the person of Robert R. Wheeler, area superintendent for urban education. Wheeler simply will not accept "the myth that environmental factors develop unalterable learning depression." He scoffed at the notion that pupils do poorly because they "don't have enough oatmeal," or "need more trips to the zoo." By putting its money into reading specialists, relatively large classes and a disciplined program of instruction grounded in phonics, Woodland is getting results.

Weber regrettably does not provide figures on per pupil costs in the exemplary schools. Obviously special teachers and individual instruction represent an added expense. Yet it seems a fair assumption that such a cost is much less than the cost of transporting ghetto children out to the suburbs. Weber does not make the point, but the point ought to be made: The children of his study are getting a good education. Other children, in other cities, are getting a good busing. Which makes more sense?

Cooperation In Farm Survey Is Requested

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Crop Reporting Service requests farm operators to cooperate when contacted on the December Livestock and Wheat Survey which starts Nov. 22.

The survey is conducted on a nation-wide basis for obtaining the necessary information to make estimates on fall seeded wheat and livestock and chicken numbers.

Noel Lee Jr. of Rt. 3, Washington, will conduct the survey in Pitt, Beaufort, Dare, Hyde, Martin, Tyrrell and Washington counties. Garland Strickland will conduct the study in Greene, Craven, Edgecombe, Jones, Lenoir, Pamlico and Wilson.

Reports from individuals will be held strictly confidential and summarized with other reports into state and national totals.

that have been settled only after long fights and then only temporarily, it being understood by both parties that the argument was to be reopened one or two years later.

It isn't surprising, therefore, to see the same alignments and attitudes existing as before. Labor members of the board are likely to vote together. Business denounces profit limitations but proclaims the need for wage restraints.

And while it is conceivable that the Pay Board will be able to attain the degree of restraint it seeks, it also seems likely that it can do so only with considerable friction.

Five American Combat Deaths During Past Week Announced

SAIGON (AP) — Five American combat deaths were reported in Vietnam last week, the U.S. Command announced today. It was the sixth consecutive week that the total was eight or less.

The South Vietnamese Command said 219 of its men were killed in action. Last week's toll was 198.

For the second consecutive week and the second time this year, the U.S. Command reported fewer than 25 Americans wounded in action. The total last week was 21, eight more than the week before.

The South Vietnamese command reported 1,063 of the enemy were killed last week, but the U.S. Command reported 900. U.S. spokesmen had no immediate explanation for the discrepancy.

The previous week's enemy death toll was increased from 789 to 790.

The U.S. Command reported 22 Americans died of nonhostile causes.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American—45,599 killed in action, 302,201 wounded, 9,934 dead from nonhostile causes.

South Vietnamese—135,696 killed, 293,993 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—782,568 killed.

This week's summary was the sixth in a row to list more deaths from nonhostile causes than deaths in combat.

There have been 10 such weeks in the past four months. However "death not as a result of hostile action" is the classification frequently applied to deaths in combat situations in which enemy action is not the immediate cause.

A U.S. spokesman said this was the case with five Americans killed last week when their helicopter crashed due to a mechanical failure while on a mission supporting besieged South Vietnamese troops.

As U.S. involvement in ground combat wanes, aircraft crashes are becoming the biggest killer of Americans.

Line Clogged By Bowling Balls

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — The Crystal Tissue Co. has resumed operations following a four-day shutdown caused when two bowling balls clogged a line in its waste treatment system.

The bowling balls were removed Tuesday night and operations resumed Wednesday.

"We absolutely have no positive knowledge of how the bowling balls got into the line," Thomas McMurray, vice president of the company, said.

The system treats plant waste dumped into the Miami River and the Environmental Protection Agency reportedly insisted that it be in operation.

Coal Miners Will Argue Against Pay Restraints

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As construction workers learned the wage freeze isn't over for them, the nation's soft-coal miners prepared to present to the Pay Board today their case for a three-year contract that may feel the restraints of federal control.

The Pay Board said Wednesday pay increases in the new miners' contract may be subject to rollbacks if "unreasonaly inconsistent" with the 5.5-per-cent standard yearly increase the board has set.

The board called in the United Mine Workers of America and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association for a session today. Their new contract reportedly calls for a 30-per-cent wage hike.

Meanwhile, without public announcement, the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee has issued an order by telegram saying "no economic adjustments provided in collective bargaining agreements in the construction industry that were to take effect on or after Aug. 15 can be placed into effect until further notice from this committee."

Most of the nation's 2.8 million construction workers are unionized. The stabilization committee ruling does not apply to nonunion workers.

The telegram, sent to union and management representatives last Friday, said the matter of ending the freeze for construction unions will be taken up at the stabilization committee's next regular meeting Saturday.

A high-ranking committee staff member Wednesday promised "substantial clarification" of the situation after that meeting.

Meanwhile, the President's Pay Board has allowed everyone but union construction workers to begin collecting, as of last Sunday, raises that fell due during the freeze but were delayed.

Furthermore, such freeze-delayed raises for nonconstruction workers may not be rolled back as were some post-freeze raises in old contracts.

The Pay Board spent another day debating labor's demand for unconditional retroactive pay of wage increases lost in the freeze. The vote was 9 to 5, against labor's position, a spokesman said. Merit pay also was considered, without a decision, he said.

In other economic developments Wednesday:

—The Price Commission gave approval to a 2.5-per-cent car-price increase requested by American Motors for its 1972 models. A decision was put off on a request from Chrysler for clearance of a 5.9-per-cent hike.

—The Commerce Department said personal income went up $750 million in October, bringing the rate to $872.25 billion on a seasonally adjusted basis. The small gain reflected the impact of President Nixon's freeze.

—The Internal Revenue Service said it tallied 53,000 inquiries about Phase 2 in one 24-hour segment of the opening days of the period. But, said Gerald Portney, IRS deputy assistant commissioner for stabilization, there were only 958 actual complaints, and the volume should fall as the regulations become more widely understood.

—At a closed meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council in Miami Beach, labor leaders decided to stay on the Pay Board. A source who was in the meeting said it was felt industry and public members of the board were harrassing the five labor representatives with the intent of forcing labor out and blaming them for failure of any new wage controls.

The construction stabilization committee was set up last March to restrain spiraling construction wages. Through a process of reviewing new agreements it succeeded in trimming new first-year raises from 20 per cent to roughly 10 per cent.

However, it has presented the administration with a problem since the freeze was announced Aug. 15, as it doesn't easily fit into the scheme of post-freeze controls. Last Friday the Pay Board adopted a regulation authorizing the stabilization committee to administer the board's policies in the construction industry.

But what escaped widespread notice at the time was that the regulation also contained a provision requiring that freeze-delayed construction raises get committee approval before being paid.

Spokesmen for the Pay Board and the stabilization committee were unable to explain Wednesday why construction workers are subject to more stringent regulations than other workers.

Asked why no announcement was made of the committee's telegram, a Labor Department public relations spokesman said, "They aren't big on public announcements."

Poultry Plant Cleanup Progress Is Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says many of the 68 poultry plants in 13 states where government inspectors found unsatisfactory sanitary conditions earlier this year had made progress in cleaning up.

It issued this status report Wednesday on the 11 North Carolina plants included:

Southeastern Poultry of North Carolina, Charlotte—Although an older plant, sanitation is achieved.

Swift & Co., Greensboro—Federal inspection has been withdrawn and the facility closed.

Rose Hill Poultry Corp., Rose Hill—Improvements have progressed satisfactorily and plant meets requirements for operating under federal inspection.

Watson Seafood and Poultry, Inc., Raleigh—Considerable progress made in past year. A few minor deficiencies being corrected and management has accepted responsibilities for sanitation and good operating procedures.

Gerber Products Co., Asheville—Over-all operation and sanitation considered good. Facilities and maintenance above average.

Holly Farms Poultry, Inc., Wilkesboro—Over-all operation good. Sanitation is well above average and presents no problems other than sheer enormity of checking such a large plant.

B&H Foods, Charlotte—Sanitation and operations are presently good. Sanitation has lapsed on occasions, but has been satisfactorily corrected on a daily basis.

Holly Farms Poultry, Hiddenite—Plant is acceptable for federal inspection. The over-all sanitation and operation procedures are good.

Mid-State Farm Co-op, Siler City—Much progress has been made the past year. Several pieces of equipment still need replacing and preoperative sanitation needs improvement. In many instances inspectors must hold up operations until minimum sanitation requirements are met.

Morton Frozen Foods, Concord—Many improvements have been made, sanitation has improved with inspectors holding up operations until cleaning is accomplished.

Lucks Inc., Seagrove—Upgrading of plant facilities and sanitation has resulted in satisfactory compliance.

Salaried Doctor Practice Rises

CHICAGO (UPI)—Hospitals these days are using more full-time salaried physicians on their staffs. The increase in full-time salaried hospital doctors is having the net effect of increasing the efficiency of hospital administrators, Dr. Milton Poemer reports in Hospitals, journal of the American Hospital Association. Dr. Roemer, professor of public health at University of California at Los Angeles, said full-time doctors also stimulate firmer group discipline within the medical staff.

A Review

Audience Is Spellbound By Touring Production

North Carolina's finest young performers pulled off an almost incredible feat at Wright Auditorium early Wednesday afternoon. Eight singers and dancers and a harpsichordist held an audience of nearly 2,000 youngsters spellbound for an hour and a half.

"An Entertainment at Court," the current tour attraction presented by student performers from the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem, under the direction of William Dreyer, is a splendid example of what can be achieved with youthful talent still in the training stage.

Student performers singing and dancing were: Rodney Franklin of Shepherdsville, Ky.; Sandra Lavalle, Schenectady, N.Y.; Carol Levinson, Hampton, Va.; Nancy Mette, Camp Hill, Pa.; Michael Reeder, Murphysboro, Ill.; Joyce Solkov, Dayton, Ohio; Michael Williams, Durham, N.C.; and Frank Wolff, Winston-Salem, N.C. Harpsichordist was Elizabeth Randolph of Winston-Salem, and the stage crew consisted of Don Martin, Prudence Mason and Kevin Dreyer, with costumes designed by Maureen Trotto.

The entire production sparkled with the vitality and freshness that young people can bring to a stage. The group early established a rapport with the nine to twelve year old school children filling every available seat in the huge hall.

This reviewer, when told before the performance that the balcony scene from Shakespear's "Romeo and Juliet" would be presented, felt a bit skeptical about the possible reception of this offering to children of this age. It was therefore a real surprise when the youngsters greeted the announcement of this scene with enthusiastic cheers — like veteran opera buffs acclaiming their favorite aria.

The hour and a half show packs in a wonderfully varied array of authentically researched entertainment encompassing stately and formal court dances, rollicking May Day picnic comic entertainments, an Elizabethan Masque, several dances, a stage fight, and old story ballads.

"Entertainment at Court" is divided into two portions — the first mirroring forms of entertainment practiced in medieval courts by traveling troubadours and performers for what was in past centuries a long, leisurely time of celebration; and a second portion reflecting the gaiety and high spirits associated with the welcome return of spring after the rigors of winter.

"The Twelve Days of Christmas", the opening number, is an imaginatively staged number, involving mimicry, singing and dancing. The eight performers are, incidentally, gifted singers, dancers, and actors.

Two local school children, Jeffrey Savage and Kim Cargile, both sixth graders from South Greenville Elementary School, were chosen king and queen of court. They marched with the troupe of young actors and actresses in the procession into the auditorium and sat on stage throughout the program.

Visually, the production is stunning. Confined to a small stage prop of gold and orange, with actors and actresses dressed in simplified period costumes of dull gold and black, the effect was one suggesting far more riches than were actually there.

From any viewpoint, "Entertainment at Court" is a superb production, one that very obviously satisfies a young audience without once resorting to gimmicks. This production is ample proof that children will wholeheartedly respond to good entertainment.

Dreyer and those responsible for assisting him in this tour presentation are to be commended, not only for putting together top-notch entertainment, but for having the wisdom to sense that children like to be challenged by something several stages intellectually above the run-of-the-mill fare normally hashed out to their age group.

Gets 30 Years For Slaying

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — J. C. Kastor of nearby Kannapolis has been sentenced to 30 years in the slaying of an 81-year-old woman last June in what authorities said was a robbery attempt.

Kastor was sentenced to the maximum term Wednesday, a day after he was convicted of second-degree murder in the shot-gun slaying of Mrs. Forney "Aunt Pearl" Walker in her home near Concord.

It is estimated there are 20,000 to 50,000 caves in the United States, says National Geographic.

Try Again To Dislodge Court Nominees In Committee Web

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another attempt will be made today to dislodge President Nixon's Supreme Court nominations from the Senate Judiciary Committee where a vote was blocked a week ago.

Committee approval of Asst. Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist and Richmond, Va., attorney Lewis F. Powell Jr. appear assured if their nominations can be brought to a vote.

But Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Birch Bayh, D-Ind., were expected to resist a vote on Rehnquist's nomination, arguing that the record in his case is incomplete.

Kennedy said the committee's hearings on Rehnquist should be reopened, but Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., told a reporter he "can't imagine that happening."

A leader of liberal Democrats in the Senate, Hart declined to say how he will vote, but he said there is no question a majority of the committee and of the Senate support both nominations.

Hart added, however, the same was true at the time the committee approved Nixon's nominations of Judges Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of South Carolina and G. Harrold Carswell of Florida for a prior vacancy on the court. The Senate later rejected both those nominations.

Little opposition has developed to Powell, a former president of the American Bar Association, and at the committee's meeting last week Bayh moved to report his nomination favorably to the Senate.

Senators supporting both nominations were unwilling to permit a vote on Powell's nomination unless Rehnquist's was acted on at the same time—a strategy they have given no signs of abandoning.

"I'd oppose separating them," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, a member of the Judiciary Committee.

Scott said he did not anticipate a filibuster in the committee or in the Senate to prevent a vote on the nominations "because so few senators are against them."

Kennedy, Bayh and other liberal Democrats have questioned the commitment of Rehnquist, 47, a former Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, to civil rights and civil liberties.

Liberal Republicans, however, including Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon and Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland—both of whom voted against the Haynsworth and Carswell nominations—have announced they intend to vote for Rehnquist's confirmation.

Powell and Rehnquist would succeed retired Justice John M. Harlan and the late Justice Hugo L. Black.

British Arrest More Suspects

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops seized 23 suspected gunmen in predawn raids today, bringing the total rounded up since August to 1,003.

About half of them have been released, and about 300 are indefinitely interned as suspected members of the Irish Republican Army. The rest are in jail awaiting assessment of their cases.

Security forces claim that arrests on this scale, coupled with arms seizures and battle casualties, have dealt a massive blow to the IRA's terrorist campaign to unite Northern Ireland with the neighboring Irish Republic. But violence continues.

Guerrillas bombed a library and a bus station Wednesday night in the border town of Strabane, though without casualties. Later a mob of about 200 rampaged through the streets, hurling rocks and smashing store windows.

Belfast, after two bombings during the day wrecked a furniture store and a hardware store, had a quiet night. Barricades went up again in Londonderry after the wounding of a 14-year-old boy who the army said was hit by a sniper's bullet intended for a British soldier.

In Dublin, capital of the Irish Republic, armed detectives searched a DC7 freight plane from New York but found no arms.

The republic's prime minister, Jack Lynch, succeeded in ousting two critics from the parliamentary caucus of his Fianna Fail party. This left him with a 70-74 minority in the Dail, the lower house, but support from independents is expected to keep him in office.

The two critics, former Health Minister Neil Blaney and Paudge Brennan, refused to support Lynch in a confidence vote last week. They favor a tougher line to gain the reunification of Ireland, while Lynch says reunification can come only through peaceful means.

Hearing On Dam Is Rescheduled

GREENSBORO (AP) — A hearing on a request by conservationists to stop construction of the New Hope Dam has been rescheduled for Dec. 2 in U.S. District Court in Greensboro.

It had been scheduled for Friday.

The conservationists seek a preliminary injunction to halt construction of the dam and lake in Chatham County pending a final court decision in the case. A number of counties and cities in the Lower Cape Fear River area have entered the suit on the side of the Army Engineers. They claim competition of the project is vital to their growth and welfare.

Lost Day's Pay For Long Hair

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A fireman, a lieutenant, a captain and their battalion chief all lost a day's pay because the fireman's hair was too long.

Fireman Robert Burrows, 31, was suspended for one day Wednesday for violating Fire Department rules on personal appearance.

A disciplinary board also ordered his three superior officers suspended for the day for "failing to notice" Burrows' hair, which he said extended to "just a little curl at the neck."

Burrows got a haircut after his pay was docked $36.18, Lt. Robert Hammermeister $42.11, Capt. Richard Conte $48.05 and Battalion Chief Cecil Russell $57.61.

Hottest Selling Magazines In Yugoslavia Are 'Sex Journals'

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

BELGRADE (UPI) —The hottest-selling magazines in Yugoslavia these days are a handful of sex journals sold openly from nearly every street corner in kiosks blazoned with nudes.

"How is this possible in a Socialist country?" muses Aleksandar Bandanjak, the editor of "Eva i Adam" (Eve and Adam), a twice-monthly magazine which he founded two years ago and has guided to a circulation of 200,000—a sky-high figure in a nation of only 20 million where slicker Western competitors like Playboy also are on sale.

Eva i Adam, a sort of Playboy of the Eastern world, combines plenty of nudes —49 in the most recent issue —with a highbrow dash of Norman Mailer and Jean-Paul Sartre, some low-brow "true life" fiction and a heavy dose of "sex education" articles of the "what-to-do-with-a-frigid-wife" variety.

Badanajk himself is a balding, 45-year-old family man ("my daughter thinks my business is funny") who founded Eva i Adam in response to changing times in this most liberal of the Communist countries.

"I was working for a history magazine and I noticed a great interest in intimate affairs," he says. "So I decided to do a magazine on sexual enlightenment and education. We chose the name, Eva i Adam, instead of Adam i Eva, so as not to be too Biblical.

"In the beginning, we were very modest and we still respect certain limits. No Danish-style pornography. We go for better taste."

Even so, Badanjak has had his troubles with the law.

"After one year, there was a problem," he says. "The public prosecutor asked that we be abolished, said it's not good for the youth. But I made a big spectacle, and told the court that the truth doesn't hurt youth.

"The judge agreed and said that the process of democracy in our society is at such a level that there was no need for the court to meddle in this matter. That was a very famous statement."

Badanjak definitely is part of a trend. Strip-tease is popular in Yugoslavia. Belgrade was the third European city to see "Oh, Calcutta." Sex magazines have flourished and even major daily newspapers feature nudes.

One magazine, "Flesh," was banned after it printed a picture of a nude standing beside a portrait of Lenin.

"I suppose some people in government are against us," Badanjak says. "But some probably like to look —it depends on their ages."

Badanjak works out of a tiny office in the respectable Duga publishing house.

Books with such titles as "Gruppensex," "Erotikon," and "L'Intention Sexuelle" litter the bookshelves. But the only picture on the wall is a portrait of President Tito.

Three staff members work full time. A lot of the material, Badanjak admits, is pinched from foreign newspapers and magazines, while the nude pictures come either from agencies in Vienna or London or from Yugoslav volunteers — "students needing money or starlets needing publicity."

Badanjak moonlights as an economic writer. But in Eva i Adam, sex is all.

Burning Permits Still Required In The County

After long weeks of rain, recent days of sunshine and cool air have created conditions that make watchfulness necessary for the control of possible grass and forest fires in the county.

Bobby Joyner, Pitt County Fire Marshal, reminds Pitt County residents that the North Carolina Forestry Service requires that permits be issued to burn in the open prior to burning in fields or around wooded areas.

To obtain a permit, an interested person can contact State Forester Ben Hardison at the N.C. Forestry Service, telephone 756-0414. Hardison can furnish the caller with information on where to obtain a burn permit. There are approximately 18 such permit points in Pitt County, so anyone needing a permit need not travel far to obtain one.

For the first time in months, Joyner reports a number of grass fires in the county, as well as a couple of farm equipment fires. The report, all for fires occurring on Tuesday, shows:

—1:05 p.m. A grass fire at Renston on the R. M. Howard farm near Winterville. The Winterville Fire Department responded. No appreciable damage occurred.

—1:30 p.m. A combine caught fire on the Jack Stallings farm near Greenville with damage estimated at $200. Staton House answered the call.

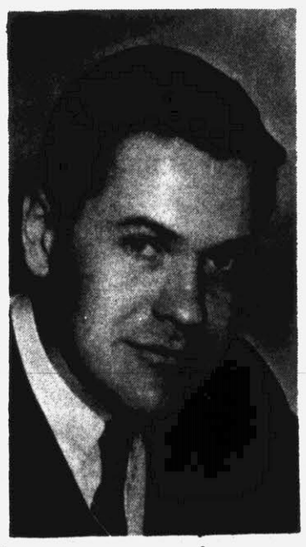
—2:35 p.m. A grass fire on the Tom Gay farm on the Old Creek Road caused no substantial damage. Stokes Fire Department responded.

—8:12 p.m. A combine equipment fire occurred on the Jack Warren farm, with Staton House reporting to the scene. No estimate of damage is available.

This morning at 8:50 a.m. a trash fire was reported in the vicinity of a wooded area on the Tommy Burney property near Winterville. The Winterville Fire Department answered the call. No appreciable damage was reported.

Chas. Dunn Will Speak

Charles Dunn, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, will be the guest speaker Sunday at 11 a.m. at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.



CHARLES DUNN

Dunn was appointed to his present position by Attorney General Robert Morgan and assumed the position on Jan. 3, 1969. Dunn graduated from Ahoskie High School and attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, receiving an A.B. in political science in 1956. He later did graduate work in political science at the university.

He has worked with various newspapers including the Hertford County Herald, the Chapel Hill Weekly and the Durham Morning Herald. He was legislative assistant to former Congressman Horace Kornegay and special assistant to Governor Dan Moore during his administration.

Dunn served in the U. S. Army Signal Corps 1957-59.

He is married to the former Martha Ellen Sherrill and they have a daughter, Sherrill.

Small Watershed Project Has Wildlife Preservation Areas

Two Wildlife Wetland Preservation areas in Chicod Creek covering approximately 61 acres of swampy woodland are the first to be built in a small watershed project in southeastern United States.

A wildlife wetland preservation area, according to Roy Beck of the Soil Conservation Service, is a wooded swamp that is now covered by water during periods of prolonged rainfall.

"Certain species of wildlife, like dobbing ducks, mink, otter and muskrats, snakes, frogs, salamanders and crayfish, live in the preservation areas," Beck explained.

"When the stream channel is altered, it will be moved to the side of the valley floor. Flood waters will be able to flow more rapidly down the side of the swamp. However, rain water can be held there behind special control structures installed on the ends of the drop pipes."

Swamp water must rise three inches to 18 inches deep before over topping the special structure and flow into the drop pipes into the improved channels.

In addition to the 61 acres of wildlife wetland preservation areas originally planned for Chicod Creek, another 30 swamp-drainage control structures have been added to the construction plan. The additional structures will be installed along Chicod Creek Main and Cow Swamp Main channels.

A 12-acre lake for fishing will be built in the Chicod Creek Watershed.

"It, too, will be the first such mitigation measure built with Public Law 566 assistance in this area," Beck said. "Local sponsors have planned a special access graveled road where the public can park an automobile and boat trailer off the state highway. Small boats can be launched by hand there."

The remaining shoreline on the property will be private property.

"Eleven channel pools for fish will be dug in the bottom of the large canals. Each of these pools will be two-feet deep and almost 3,000 feet long," Beck stated. "A low level rock dam will be built to hold back the water in each pool."

According to Beck, fast growing trees will be planted on the banks of the pools to furnish shade for the fish pools. Ecologists feel the shading of the stream water serves to keep the water cool, thermal pollution abatement.

In Cow Swamp, only one side of the channel will be dug. This will protect some of the existing conditions along the stream.

"During construction, a wire net will be placed downstream to trap floating debris such as roots and stumps," Beck noted.

Accelerated stream erosion also takes place during construction. Ten special sediment pools will be dug in the bottom of canals at strategic locations to trap surplus sand.

Another means of controlling erosion during construction will be the daily seeding of temporary vegetation on all completed construction areas. Annual rye grass will be seeded during the fall and winter. Brown top mullet will be seeded during the spring and summer.

"When the proper season for planting permanent vegetation comes along, the edges of the maintenance roadways along woodlands will be seeded to shrub lespedeza. Over 130 acres of these shrubs will be planted along some 30 to 40 miles of maintenance roadways," Beck emphasized.

It is estimated that the fish and wildlife mitigation measures planned for the Chicod Creek will cost about $100,000. This includes the cost of the land rights. The Pitt County Drainage District Number Nine will pay for all land rights in the project.

Another $100,000 will be spent on vegetation measures that are designed to control erosion and benefit fish and wildlife along the Chicod Creek and its tributaries.

Beck said no construction work will be done on Chicod Creek from its mouth at the Tar River up to the U.S. 264 highway bridge and on up to the railroad bridge and almost to the mouth of Cow Swamp.

New Test For Firing A Gun

HOUSTON (AP) — The paraffin test, one of the oldest scientific crime detection aids to determine if a suspect has fired a gun recently, has been abandoned by Houston police.

The police now are using a technique involving chemicals and ultraviolet rays. Police chemists consider the new test more reliable than the long-used paraffin method.

Torpedoes Will Be Recovered

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Inflatable floats will enable the Navy to recover torpedoes used in practice at savings of thousands of dollars a year.

At your next party are you going to serve the same old things?

Or the first truly new whiskey in a long time?

$4.80 FIFTH
$3.05 PINT

Over the years, there've been a lot of new whiskeys.

But Barton's QT is the first truly new taste in whiskey in 182 years.

It's distilled at a higher proof than leading traditional American whiskeys.

And the distilling makes it milder and lighter and smoother than any whiskey you've ever tasted.

We store Barton's QT in selected, seasoned barrels. (Traditionally, most whiskey has been stored in new barrels.)

We even filter Barton's QT in a special way—to make it lighter and smoother.

Next year, we expect that many other distillers will also be selling whiskey distilled at a higher proof and stored in seasoned barrels.

But they'll still be serving Barton's QT at the best parties.

For an illustrated booklet detailing the whole exciting QT story, just send a card to Barton's QT, P.O. Box 3376, Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Biracial Plea To End Unrest

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP) — Government leaders, noting the imminent end of a state of emergency in Wilmington and New Hanover County, have pleaded for a biracial effort to end tension.

In addition, Mayor B. D. Schwartz met Wednesday with representatives of religious denominations and arranged a period of prayer for racial peace. The observance Friday through Sunday will include the ringing of bells by churches on Saturday.

The state of emergency was declared a week ago after a series of park meetings by the militant Rights of White People. It forbade meetings in public parks, and the transportation of firearms at night. It expired in the county at noon today and will expire in the city at 7 p. m. Friday.

Schwartz and the chairman of the county commission, Meares Hariss Jr., said in a joint proclamation Wednesday:

"We issue a desperately urgent plea to our black and white citizens to come together with the will and determination to meet this crisis and solve our problems."

Black pupils have been asking for a greater voice for Negroes in school programs. The Rights of White People organization has threatened to try to shut down the schools in its drive against busing for integration.

Troopers At Strike Site

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — More than 25 state troopers were sent to a construction site near Wilmington Wednesday when authorities feared picketing by members of the Wilmington Building Trades Union would erupt into violence.

Meanwhile Superior Court Judge Joshua James issued a temporary restraining order against a number of union locals, members of the Wilmington Building Trade Council, restricting them from having more than five pickets at the scene.

The workers began their picketing Tuesday after claiming that Daniel Construction Co. of Greenville, S.C., was paying workers at the construction site less than the scale in the area.

The disturbance Wednesday occurred outside the entrance to the site of an intermediate plant being built about 15 miles northwest of Wilmington by the DuPont Co.

State troopers moved in when union members reportedly blocked the road to the site with cars. Some minor rock throwing was reported.

By mid-morning construction work had halted at the site and Daniel employes left the area. About 800 Wilmington building trade union members remained.

Oleander Official Flower

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP) — The oleander has been named this city's official flower.

The city council adopted it after a chamber of commerce committee pointed out that oleanders on Port Arthur's Seawall Drive, planted in 1932, are a memorial to local servicemen who lost their lives in military actions.

Bob Collier's gray hair vanished so gradually no one noticed!

Unretouched Photographs Demonstrate Amazing Action of Grecian Formula-16

The first picture shows how gray Bob Collier was before he decided to do something about it.

The next picture was taken after 3 daily applications of GRECIAN FORMULA-16. You can hardly see the difference.

As Mr. Collier continued using it daily, GRECIAN FORMULA-16 gradually built up the natural looking color he wanted. So gradually not even his closest associates noticed the day-to-day change.

Now look at the last picture! See how much younger Mr. Collier looks after 18 days! From now on occasional use will hold his youthful looking hair color.

Remember: the photographs above are absolutely unretouched. The amazing gradual change in hair color was brought about entirely by GRECIAN FORMULA-16. No other type product works quite like it.

Colorless—Easy to Use

GRECIAN FORMULA-16 is not a harsh coal tar dye but a colorless liquid you apply just like hair tonic. As it grooms your hair, day by day GRECIAN FORMULA-16 builds up color in gradual stages until in two or three weeks you see hair color so natural you hardly remember how you looked when you were gray. Occasional use keeps it that way!

So why look like an "older" man now that there is a masculine way to banish gray hair? Get GRECIAN FORMULA-16 today. $3.50. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Duplication Costs Lead

LONDON (AP) — Expensive duplication of effort has cost the North Atlantic Treaty Organization members their lead over the Soviet Union in development of new weapons, says an authoritative British reference annual.

"Russia now has the initiative in weapons technology," report the editors of Jane's Weapons Systems 1971-72, published today. The 586-page volume is a companion to Jane's Fighting Ships and Jane's All the World's Aircraft.

The Western allies have long talked of the need to standardize their weapons development, wrote editors R.T. Pretty and D.H. R. Archer, "but little was carried out in practice.

"Parallel programs abounded and the path of weapons development is littered with expensive abandoned projects."

One of the main reasons for the growing disparty, Pretty said in an interview, is that "when Soviet military authorities say they want a weapon, they get it."

The editors cited recent advances in the Soviet early warning radar system, "the modern Soviet navy and the nature of its armament and equipment, and the existence of an operational antiballistc missile system around Moscow" as examples of "the Soviet ability to take the initiative in weapon system development and deployment."

Speedup Pleas Bring On Strike

LONDON (AP) — A row over a speedup on the production line halted work at the big Ford plant in East London today.

The company wanted trim workers to increase output from 263 cars to 269 per shift. The men refused to handle the extra vehicles, the dispute spread to other parts of the plant, and the company sent home 5,000 employes.

Washington Has A Freeway Killer

By DON MCLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carol Denise Spinks set out in the twilight of April 25 to the neighborhood grocery on an errand for her mother and never returned. She was the first known victim of the "freeway killer."

Angella Denise Barnes was second, Darlenia Denise Johnson third, then Brenda Fay Crockett and Nenomoshia Yates. Finally, Brenda Denise Woodard's body was found Tuesday morning beside the highway that was their common link to death.

Each death remains unsolved.

The body of the Spinks girl was found a week after she disappeared beside the Anacostia Freeway, the middle link in an expressway span from the lower side of Washington's Beltway, through the city's southeast edge and on toward Baltimore.

Five of the victims lived near the route, and another who lived in the inner city was found dead near the freeway.

There may be more. Another slain Washington area girl was found some distance away near Bowie, Md., but she was last seen in May at a shopping center less than a mile from the spot where the latest body was found.

Similarity is the catchword of the case.

Four of the victims had the middle name Denise. Another had the similar sounding last name Dinnis. Two shared the first name Brenda. Like the Spinks girl, two others were on grocery errands when they disappeared. All were walking someplace.

The six girls from the District of Columbia, and whose cases bear the greatest resemblance and probability of a common killer, were black. The other, from suburban Maryland, was white.

At least four of the victims were sexually molested, and the possibility is held open in the other cases. All were young or slight enough of build to be taken for about the same age. They ranged from 10 to 18.

The best clue in the deaths police may have is a note found on the latest body, reportedly signed "The Freeway Phantom."

Police are keeping the contents of the note as secret as they can, but various sources have said the three scrawled lines on a sheet of white notebook paper link the author to the other five slayings involving Washington girls, and close with the phrase, "Catch me if you can."

Police aren't saying publicly that the cases are connected.

GNP Data Goes Above Expectation

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government took a final reading of the economy's July-September performance today and found it better than first believed.

The Gross National Product, output of the nation's goods and services, advanced by 3.9 per cent in the third quarter, a full percentage point higher than the government announced almost a month ago in preliminary data.

At the same time, the rate of inflation was lower than originally announced, advancing at a rate of 3 per cent in the third quarter compared with the 3.4 per cent announced earlier.

Despite the revised report, the economy still came across reflecting considerable slack in the July-September period, advancing too slowly to trim the high rate of unemployment significantly.

Economists say a growth rate of at least 4 per cent is needed just to begin making inroads into unemployment.

The revisions in GNP occurred mainly in residential construction and net exports, the Commerce Department said.

In another report, the department said pre-tax corporate profits showed little change in the third quarter, remaining at the $83.5-billion annual rate that occurred in the second quarter.

GNP reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.060 trillion in the third quarter, a 7 per cent economic advance in terms of current, inflated dollars. But when adjusted for inflation by using 1958 dollars, the gain was 3.9 per cent.

Union Leaders Declare Pay Board Harassment

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders, charging efforts to harass labor members off President Nixon's Pay Board, reportedly will urge convention delegates representing nearly 14 million union members today to fight federal wage controls in the courts and Congress. But they will keep their men on the Pay Board.

"There is no question that the 10 public and industry members are trying to sandbag the labor members ... it is harassment in an attempt to discourage us and force us to walk out, but we won't," said a source in a private AFL-CIO strategy meeting.

He said the harassment was aimed at blaming labor for any failure of wage controls.

The federation's 35-man executive council reached a consensus decision at the meeting to recommend the legal and legislative fight against wage controls for approval by 1,000 AFL-CIO convention delegates.

"We are going to go legal and legislative—that's the route we are going to take, but we won't get off the board," one source said.

Sources added that the three AFL-CIO members on the Pay Board, including President George Meany of the labor federation, expect the two other labor members to take the same position. The two are Presidents Frank E. Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters and Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers whose unions do not belong to the AFL-CIO.

There are five members each for labor, industry and the public on the board.

"Industry and public members of the Pay Board are trying to divide the labor members. They gave Fitzsimmons carte blanche (on wage hikes). But he said, 'Hell, no, I'm sticking with the other four members,' " the source said in reporting on discussions at Wednesday's closed AFL-CIO council meeting.

In claiming harassment, sources said it was reported at the labor meeting that the Pay Board refused to include in its minutes a labor proposal demanding full back pay for wage hikes tied up during the recent 90-day wage-price freeze.

The labor members were outvoted 9 to 5 on the demand, with Pay Board Chairman George Boldt abstaining, sources said. Labor was outvoted 10 to 5 on the Pay Board's first wage control rulings 11 days ago.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Thieves ransacked a West Side home Wednesday night while the family was at a funeral home paying respects to the head of the household, Theodoro Nazario, 41, who was shot to death two nights before.

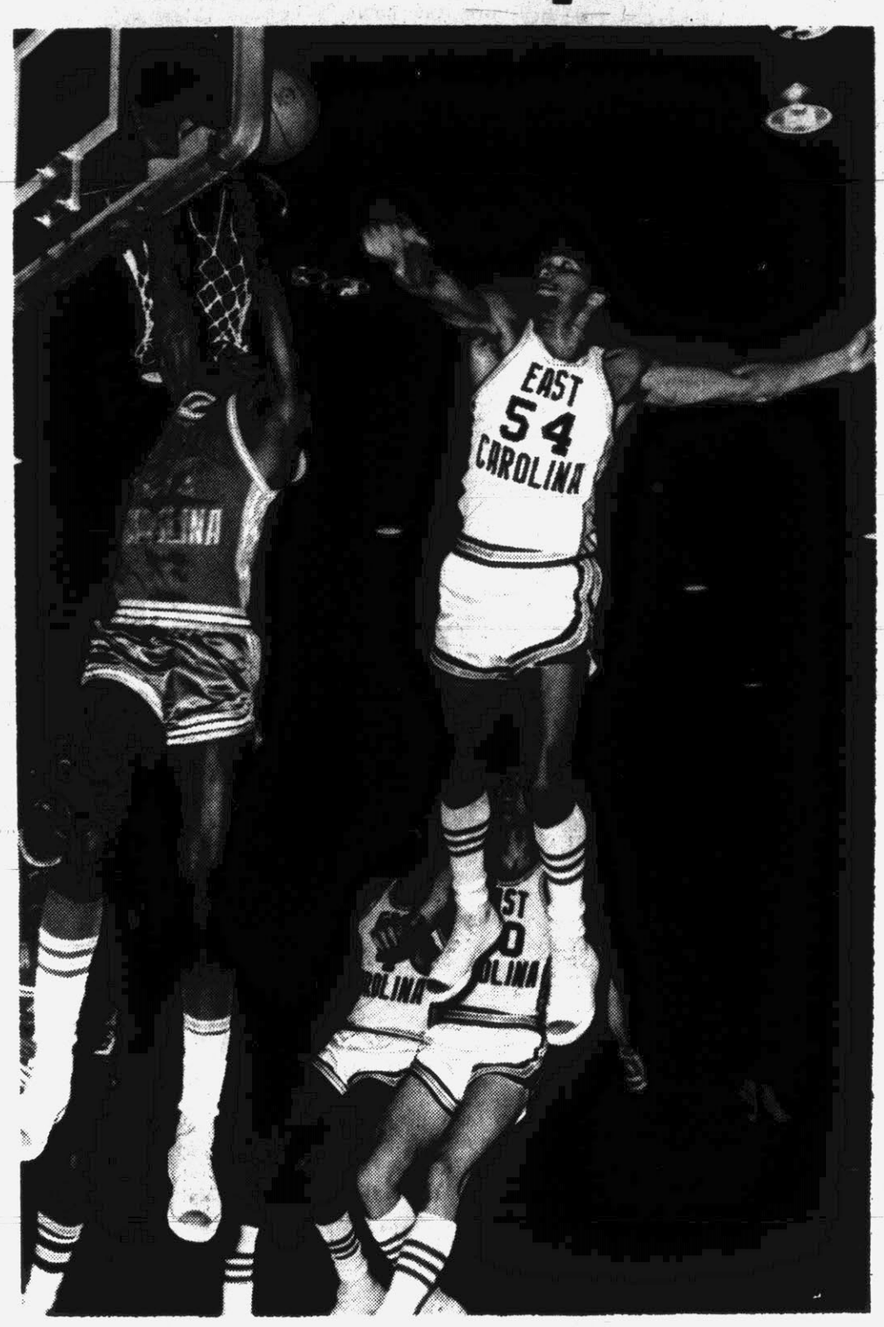
Gold Nips Purple In Offensive Show



A Long Way Up

Junior College Transfer Jerome Owens (54) leaps high into the air to try and block a shot by Dave Franklin during the annual Purple-Gold basketball game at East Carolina University last night. Owens, 6-1, pushed through 20 points during the game, and sparkled in his floor play. In the background are Earl Quash, behind Franklin, and Terry Davis and Ernie Pope, behind Owens. The Gold won, 106-99. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Coach Tom Quinn put his 1971-72 basketball Pirates on display last night, and saw an offensive show put on for the fans. When it was over the Gold team had eased to a 106-99 victory over the Purple in a contest that was fast and furious all the way.

The defense didn't really get a chance in the contest, which saw run-and-shoot tactics most of the time. But the board strength of the Pirates and their ability to move the ball were quite evident.

Quinn was most impressed with the hustle shown by the team. Everyone was in on the scrambles for the ball, and the contact under the boards was bruising. "The hustle was as good as I've seen on any team here, man-for-man, right down the line," Quinn said afterwards. "Our shooting boardered on spectacular at times, but we did miss some easy shots inside at times."

The Pirates did shoot well most of the time, although the Gold team's first half statistics were poor. Overall, the Gold shot 43.7 but was recovering from a 34.5 mark in the first half. The Purple hit a respectable 47.1 percent for the game.

Displeasing was the foul shooting and the fouling. The Purple committed 24 fouls, while the Gold had 17. The Purple hit on 17 of 21 for 81 per cent, a good mark, but the Gold made good on just 16 of 32, 50 per cent.

The bright spot in the free throw shooting was junior college transfer Earl Quash, who hit on eight of eight.

"Our junior college transfers and our sophomores played well," Quinn said. "(Jim) Fariley seems to have made a good recovery on his leg."

Quash, who was the game's high scorer, finished with 32 points, hitting 12 of 25 from the floor to go along with his eight free throws. His fellow transfer, Jerome Owens, sparkled in his defensive and ball handling play, and scored 20 points.

Ray Peszko, a Greenville sophomore, had 27 points, high for the Gold, hitting on 13 of 21 from the floor and one of four at the line.

He and fellow sophomore Nicky White led the rebounding in the game with 14 each. White finished with 15 points.

"The team made every effort to run the offensive stuff," Quinn said, "but the pace of the game was so fast that most of the time they never got to set up. The turnovers were high, (17 and 16) but not alarming for a game of this pace."

Quinn did note that he didn't plan for the Pirates to play at this pace all of the time.

"We seem to have good depth this year, and we have a good inside threat and an adequate outside one. Our ball-handling also looked good," he said.

The two teams divided up the varsity as evenly as possible and it showed that throughout the game by the closeness of the affair.

Besides the 32 of Quash, the Purple scoring saw Dave Franklin hit 18, Steve McKenzie get 16, Dave McNeill, 14, and Al Faber 10. McKenzie led the rebounding for the Purple with 10 while Faber and Franklin each had eight and Greg Crouse had nine. Faber and Franklin both fouled out of the contest.

Along with Peszko's 27, White's 15, and Owens' 20, Terry Davis had 19 and Fairley had 16.

Fairley also pulled down 12 rebounds, and seemed to come alive in the second half, after poor first half, when he got only two points.

White put the Gold into the lead with a free throw, and Peszko hit from the floor to make it 3-0. The Gold stayed ahead for most of the first 10 minutes of play, building up to as much as a nine point lead at 15-6 on Owens fast break basket with 15:33 left.

But Quash sparked the Purple and they came back to tie it at 17-all and then take the lead at 18-17 on Faber's free throw with 12:23 left.

The lead changed hands for the next few minutes but he Purple finally built up a five-point edge on two free throws by Franklin at 28-23.

Again the Gold came back, regaining the lead on White's basket at 31-30. Again the lead switched back and fourth until two free throws by John Pitts with just one second left gave the Purple a 49-47 lead at intermission.

The Gold finally regained the lead at 55-53 on a jumper by Davis, and they ran that out to an eight point bulge on Davis' shooting at 68-60.

Again, however the Purple, led by McKenzie and Quash came back, with a three-pointer and a jumper by Quash tieing it at 75-75 with 9:38 left. Quash put the Purple on top, 77-75, and the lead moved out to four at 81-77, but the Gold came back to take the lead for good.

Sparked by Owens, the Gold took the lead again at 84-83 as the JC transfer ripped off six straight points, and after that, Fairley came through with a three-pointer which helped move the lead out to six at 95-89. After that it was just a question of margin.

The Pirates now get back to work on ironing out mistakes prior to opening the season December 1 at the University of West Virginia.

Saban Quits Bronco Post

By JOHN MOSSMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Jerry Smith, 41-year-old offensive line coach of the Denver Broncos who became head coach Wednesday, said he "welcomes pressure" but admitted he was "flabbergasted" when asked to take over the reins from Lou Saban.

Smith, in his first year as a Bronco coach, succeeded Saban as field commander in a move that stunned players and other members of Denver's National Football League organization.

Saban will remain as general manager but stressed that Smith will be in complete charge of the team for the remaining five games of the season.

He indicated management will decide on a permanent coach at the end of the season, but said he was certain Smith would be in the running for that post.

Smith served under Saban as defensive line and linebacker coach of the Boston Patriots in 1960 and 1961. He then rejoined Saban at Buffalo in the same capacities in 1962 and remained there until 1968.

A collegiate star at Wisconsin and a guard with San Francisco and Green Bay in the NFL in the '50s, Smith spent the last two seasons on the coaching staff of the New Orleans Saints.

He planned no personnel changes, but said Whitey Dovell, who had been coaching the tight ends and special teams, would take over his duties as offensive line coach.

"I'm proud Lou selected me," Smith said. "He's a big man, a man who fascinates me by the job he has done. We have a tremendous organization and I don't think we are far away from a .500 season."

The Broncos are currently 2-6-1 and had a 20-42-3 mark during Saban's 4½ years at the helm.

Saban coached the Bills to AFL championships in 1964 and 1965 but never produced a winning season at Denver.

Ali Batters Mathis In Unanimous Victory

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — There's one thing Jurgen Blin can learn from Muhammad Ali's 12-round unanimous decision over a weary Buster Mathis in the Astrodome Wednesday night—watch for the "linger-on" punch.

That's what Ali says he used to deck Mathis four times in the 11th and 12th rounds and also to keep from hurting Mathis for life.

Blin might also look out for the punch. Right after the fight, Ali announced he would fight Blin Dec. 18 in Zurich, Switzerland.

"If a referee is too dumb to stop a fight when a man is so far gone he just can't do anything, then I'm not going to take the responsibility for maybe hurting him for life," Ali said.

"I thought the fight should have been stopped in the 12th when he was so unconscious he couldn't fight off those little jabs.

"You can't say I was wrong," Ali said. "Yes, I deliberately tried not to kill him. When a figher gets hurt in the ring everybody starts shouting for something to be done about boxing.

"Now when I don't knock someone out, everybody starts yelling 'knock him out, knock him out.'"

Ali was in control throughout the fight. Mathis, trying to make a ring comeback after a 2½-year layoff, fought well in flurries in the early rounds, but he got progressively more weary as the fight went on.

By the 11th, Ali was landing stinging jabs regularly and suddenly a short right put Mathis down. Mathis took a six count and then went down again but was saved by the bell.

"I'm a religious man," Ali said. "I don't believe in killing a man in front of his wife and child just to please a few people. If I'm good enough to know when he can't win the fight and just keep him from getting me, then you can't say I'm wrong."

It was a bitter defeat for Mathis, who lost for the third time in 29 fights. Before the fight, Mathis said he didn't fear losing, only having people say, "I told you so."

Mathis came out for the 12th round but he was in trouble almost immediately. He went down from light punches early in the round but was up at the count of seven. He went down a second time, but thi time it was as much from sheer exhaustion as Ali's light punches.

Mathis wept in his dressing room prior to talking with newsmen. "I tried, I tried," Mathis said.

"Hold up your head, you should be proud," Mathis' handlers said.

Mathis got his biggest cheers in the seventh round when he matched Ali's shuffle. It looked like a dance. "I thought I had the fight won at that point," Mathis said in explanation for copying Ali.

Cougars Win Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big Mac and The Hound are making the Carolina Cougars a tough team to beat in the American Basketball Association.

Big Mac, known as Jim McDaniels, and Ted "The Hound" McClain, combined for 46 points to lead Carolina over Denver 113-101 Wednesday night for their fifth victory in six games.

McClain came off the bench and got 10 points in the second quarter. Larry Miller added 21 for the Cougars, including 10 in the third period. Ralph Simpson topped the Rockets with 27.

Utah edged Indiana 113-111, Pittsburgh shaded the New York Nets 122-121 and Kentucky humbled Virginia 117-112 in the other ABA games carded.

Two free throws by Zelmo Beaty with seven seconds left gave Utah its squeaker over Indiana. Beaty and James Jones shared high scoring honors for the Stars with 23 points each. Rick Mount of the Pacers was high for the game with 30.

Robersonville Faces Second Big Test

Phil James

The Robersonville Golden Eagles go after the second rung in the Class A State Football Playoffs Friday night, and a berth in the state finals.

The Eagles will play host to Warrenton in the semi-final game, while defending state champion Robbinsville visits North Duplin in the other game.

The two winners will meet next week in the state championship game, to be played at either Robbinsville (west of Asheville) or at Calypso (south of Goldsboro), the Western winner.

The Eagles will be seeking to clinch that berth with a victory over Warrenton's John Graham High School. If they do, it will be the 11th straight victory for the Eagles, who have lost only once, in their opener to Williamston. After that, they mowed down nine straight regular season opponents, they downed Knapp, 20-0 last week in the first round of the playoffs.

Edward Warren

John Graham gained the playoffs by winning the Tar-Roanoke Conference championship. Then, last week, they took a 38-12 victory over Saratoga to gain the right to meet Robersonville.

"They are big and fast," Coach Noland Respess said of the Warrenton team. "They're probably the biggest team we've played as far as size is concerned. They use their size to run right at you from a pro set."

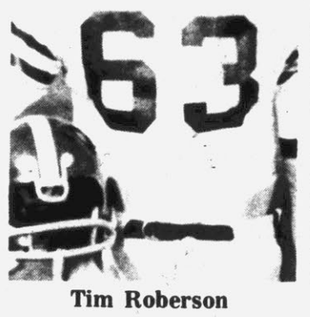
Warrenton brings a 7-3 record into the game, having played only nine regular season contests.

The bread-and-butter players for the Warrenton team are two of their backs, Dwight Davis and Kenny Clayton. "Both are outstanding runners," Respess said. "We'll have a lot of trouble containing them."

Warrenton also likes to put the ball in the air occasionally with Quarterback Eddie King throwing mainly to Macon Robertson, whom Respess calls a "very good receiver."

"They don't pass a great deal, but enough to open you up on defense for the run," Respess said.

Defensively, the Warrenton club runs from a 5-2 spread, and Respess notes that his team has seen this only once or twice so far this year.



Tim Roberson

A big blow for the Eagles came in the Knapp game, however, and it could be telling. Tackle Robbie Leggett was injured in the game and will miss any remaining contests the Eagles have. "He's the only one who will miss the game," Respess said, "but he's a big part of our team."

Leggett was injured earlier in the year and missed five games on the defensive side of the line, but was able to play offensively. He's rated by Respess as one of the top players on the squad. "He was our defensive signal-caller, and we're definitely going to miss him. But we have played without him before, so maybe we can take up the slack."

Respess feels that the Eagles should be up for this one, and ready to play. "Matt Wilson looked great passing last week, and I think we can move the ball on them. I feel like we'll be able to pass on them as well as run.

"We hope this is not going to be the end of the season, and we want to play one more game," he said.

Should the Robersonville team get past Warrenton, Respess voiced a preference to play Robbinsville. "It really doesn't make any difference," he added. "Either one of them will be tough. But I think the boys would like to have a chance to go up in the mountains instead of just 100 miles or so away. It would be a good trip for them.

"There's really only one thing we really want — that's to win."

The Eagles play host to Warrenton at 8 p.m. on the Robersonville field on Friday.

Big Weekend Set For Los Angeles Coliseum

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While Coach Tommy Prothro of the Los Angeles Rams worries about how he'll defense wide receiver Gene Washington of the San Francisco 49ers, Bill Nicholas relaxes. He's already mapped his strategy for Sunday's big game.

Bill Nicholas?

He's the Memorial Coliseum general manager and his plan is double coverage, not on Washington but on the Coliseum.

Nicholas is busy preparing for the year's biggest football weekend at the Coliseum—the UCLA-Southern California game on Saturday and the 49ers-Rams National Football League match Sunday.

Instead of the normal 50-man cleanup crew, he's assigning about 110 to rid the Coliseum of debris from the college game in time for the pro game.

On Saturday, he expects a minimum of 65,000 fans with up to a capacity of 80,000 "if it's a nice day." The 49ers-Rams game is an 80,000-seat sellout.

"We'll have the place cleaned up by 9 a.m. on Sunday," Nicholas said. "It's even easier this year. Last year the USC-UCLA game started at 5 p.m. and we only had 12 hours—9 to 9."

The USC-UCLA game begins at 12:50 p.m., giving Nicholas' crew an extra three or four hours.

Besides sweeping up and hauling away countless paper cups and hot dog wrappers, plus some illicit booze bottles, Nicholas has to call in a crane to put up 2,600-seat bleachers for the pro game.

Fortunately, the college game comes before the pro tilt, he said, because pro fans "eat more and make more of a mess. Concession sales are 50 per cent higher per capita at Rams games."

He hopes the weather bureau's forecast for clear skies holds up. While rain would make the turf slippery for football players, a downpour would bring havoc to Nicholas' team of workers.

"If we catch a shower, it just makes everything that much harder," he said. "The fans leave behind slickers, canvas, newspapers—anything they use to keep dry."

One of Nicholas' problems—the boozing fan who leaves his bottle whole or in pieces—is still evident but a somewhat diminished headache.

"They don't leave as many bottles as they used to," he said. "It's some kind of elitness in today's football crowd. Instead of drinking from bottles, they bring Thermos jugs with mixed drinks."

Houston Snaps Losing Streak

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston's eight-game losing streak is over in the NBA.

The Rockets wiped out an 11-point deficit in the second half and upset Philadelphia 118-112 in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night.

Elvin Hayes, the Big E, Calvin Murphy and Stu Lantz combined for 87 points as the Rockets snapped their losing streak the hard way—on the road.

Hayes scored 33 points, 21 of them in the second half. Murphy had 31 and Lantz 23, of which 10 game in the last quarter. It was Lantz's basket with 6:33 left that put the Rockets ahead for good at 98-96. Billy Cunningham was high for the 76ers with 29 points.

Boston routed Phoenix 140-121, Baltimore downed Cincinnati 113-103 and Seattle defeated Atlanta 112-104 in the other NBA games scheduled.

Pistol Pete Maravich, who hasn't played since the opening of the season because of mononucleosis, made his season debut with Atlanta and scored 18 points in a losing cause in his 26 minutes of action. Walt Bellamy was high for the Hawks with 28 while Spencer Haywood led the SuperSonics with 23.

John Havlicek, with 32 points, led Boston over Phoenix as the Celtics avenged their fight-filled game defeat by the Suns last Friday. There were no fisticuffs this time. Connie Hawkins was high for the Suns with 35.

Jack Marin, with 24, and Dave Stallworth, with 23, combined for 47 points in leading the Bullets over the Royals. Nate Archibald scored 25 to pace the losers.

State To Win For Michaels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North Carolina State football team will be trying to "Win this one for Al Michaels" in its final game of the season at Clemson Saturday.

The players have asked in a statement that Michaels, installed as interim coach after the resignation of Coach Earl Edwards early this year, be retained and given ample opportunity to install his football program.

Michaels was an assistant under Edwards for 17 years. State is 2-8 for the season and 1-4 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Elsewhere around the ACC Wednesday:

Clemson worked on its game plan. Coach Hootie Ingram said he was concerned about defending against the running of N. C. State sophomore Willie Burden, who has 765 yards in 210 carries, a season record for the school.

North Carolina, 5-0 in the league and seeking a bowl bid, worked on its offense for the game at Duke. Quarterback Paul Miller, the total offense leader in the ACC, had a good day directing the attack. The Tar Heels will end the regular season with a 9-2 mark if they win.

At Duke, Coach Mike McGee said workouts this week have been satisfactory. He said that veteran defensive end Bruce Mills, who has been out the last eight games with an ankle injury, probably will be available.

Virginia worked against Maryland's passing attack. Defensive coordinator Bill Clay said, "On any given day Maryland can beat anyone in the conference."

Maryland is 1-3 in the conference and 2-8 in all games, and so is Virginia.

Wake Forest plays a night game Saturday at South Carolina. That will wind up the regular season for ACC teams except for the traditional South Carolina and Clemson game, which will be played at South Carolina the following Saturday.

Irish: No Bowl Game

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The University of Notre Dame planned to announce today that its football team will pass up a post-season bowl game this year, even if one is offered, The Associated Press learned Wednesday night.

Felt they were shunned by the Orange and Sugar bowls, the members of the Irish squad voted Wednesday night not to participate in any post-season games.

With the Orange and Sugar bowl assignments apparently set for Nebraska, Oklahoma, Alabama and Auburn, the team voted by a "wide margin" not to take part in a bowl game.

Michaels Gets Team's Support

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A host of North Carolina State University football players and former players want Al Michaels to be given a chance to prove whether he can successfully coach the Wolfpack.

". . . We respectfully suggest that Coach Michaels be given ample opportunity to install his football program at N.C. University," said three players Wednesday in a statement they said had the endorsement of more than 80 per cent of the State squad.

The statement was addressed to a selections committee charged with recommending a coach for State, which has a 2-8 record this year with one game to play.

Michaels, who had served as an assistant coach at State for 17 years, was installed as interim coach early this year upon the resignation of Earle Edwards.

"We feel that he has earned this opportunity through his long service and dedication to football and to North Carolina State," the players' statement said. It described Michaels as "an inspiring and respected leader."

In another statement, 18 former Wolfpack captains, eight members of the all-time Wolfpack squad and 48 other former NCSU players proclaimed similar sentiments.

They told the selection committee Michaels "deserves an extension of his one-year interim contract."

"While we share the frustration of Wolfpack fans over three consecutive losing seasons, we feel that Coach Michaels has not been given ample opportunity to implement fully his own program," said the former players.

They pointed to his record of "18 years of dedication to NCSU athletics; of his national reputation as a coach, a leader of men; of his outstanding rapport with his team and of his commitment to a winning football program that in no way compromises academic excellence."

Virginia State Loses Its Title

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — Virginia State College officials tried to unravel today a Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association ruling that revoked their CIAA Northern Division football championship for using an ineligible player.

Coach Walt Lovett, whose son —Walter L. Lovett Jr. — was found by the CIAA executive committee to have violated the transfer rule and academic requirement of the CIAA and NCAA, said after the ruling Wednesday that he still didn't understand it or the charge itself.

Lovett said he would not issue an official comment until he met with college officials today.

"Right now I just hope it won't have any affect on our play Saturday, and I don't think it will," Lovett said. The Trojans play at Morgan State Saturday.

The executive committee issued its finding after a meeting at Norfolk State College.

The decision means Virginia State, which had a 5-0 CIAA record and a 6-1-1 over-all mark, must forfeit victories over Virginia Union and Shaw, "games in which Virginia State College certified that Walter Lovett Jr. participated," the committee said.

The forfeitures gives Elizabeth City State, 6-2 in the league the Northern Division championship. Elizabeth City will play Southern Division champion Winston-Salem State, also 6 - 2, for the CIAA title on Thanksgiving Day in Norfolk, Va.

CIAA Commission L. D. Smith had ruled Monday that the Trojans must forfeit the two games which they won by 37-6 over Virginia Union and 46-0 over Shaw—on the basis of an anonymous letter he received which questioned Lovett's status.

Virginia State contended Lovett — a reserve wide receiver who saw only limited action in the two games in which he played — had enrolled in July 1970 and had sat out his required year after transferring from Morgan State.

Virginia State appealed Smith's finding to the executive committee and asked for Wednesday's hearing.

The Trojans had been mentioned as possible participants in the post-season Boardwalk Bowl in Atlantic City, N.J., and the Orange Blossom Classic in Miami, Fla.

Keydets Have Chance For Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On paper, this season seems no different than last year at Virginia Military Institute as far as the Keydets' football fortunes are concerned — but looks can be deceiving.

It's true the Keydets have lost eight in a row since winning their opener, a 27-3 Southern Conference romp over Davidson's Wildcats — and it was exactly the same in 1970 when the Keydets opened by beating Furman and then lost their last 10 games.

But the Keydets on Saturday have a chance to double that win production when they play host to Tennessee-Chattanooga, a team that's having its own troubles. The Moccasins, in fact, will bring a 1-9 record to Lexington for the encounter.

It may be no consolation to coach Bob Thalman, but VMI at least has improved in the way it's been losing. At this stage last season, the Keydets' had given up 391 points. This year's defensive unit has cut that in half, yielding just 192 points.

Saturday's game could be a matchup between the Moccasins' Mickey Brokas and the Keydets' Mac Bowman.

Brokas, a sophomore, has completed 142 of 313 passes for 1,867 yards and 16 touchdowns, breaking very school record except the one for percentage of passes completed.

Bowman, a junior, has carried the ball 197 times for 672 yards for the Keydets and needs just 121 yards in the next two games— VMI finishes Nov. 27 against Virginia Tech—to break the season rushing record of 792 yards set in 1968 by Tom Sowers.

Tailback Jon Hall and fullback Bob Carson were impressive in Wednesday's drills as The Citadel's Bulldogs wound up contact work for Saturday's game with Davidson.

Meanwhile, Furman went through a light hour and a half workout to brush up on its offense plans for Saturday night's home game against Carson-Newman.

The passing of quarterback Ken Nichols to Joe Sgroi and Jerry Haynes and the running of Barty Smith and Billy Meyers highlighted Richmond's football workout Wednesday.

The Spiders meet William and Mary Saturday in the Southern Conference championship game.

Plan Turning South's Belated Start To Advantage

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A new crop of Southern leaders is hoping to make use of a century of economic and social isolation to turn the region into a "model neighborhood" that could be an example for the rest of the nation.

The aim is to use the South's late beginning in industrialization and urbanization to help the region avoid the mistakes of the North.

"People haven't deliberately set out to destroy the quality of American life," said Duke University President Terry Sanford.

"What happened in the North was not evil, it was simply the result of haphazard growth," he said.

The former North Carolina governor believes that the big asset of the Southern states is time. Most of the South still has time to take preventive measures at the state and regional level, he said, while the nation's cities and large industrial areas, with federal help, are desperately applying corrective measures to try to eliminate crowding, pollution and inadequate public services.

His proposal for making the best of this time advantage is the Southern Regional Growth Board, a loosely knit compact that would study and provide clear policies for orderly growth and industrialization in the South.

The board would deal with such problems as population concentrations, rural-to-urban migration, black out-migration and white in-migration in the region, new towns and communities, industrial locations, mass transit, health care, housing programs, land use planning, pollution, voter registration, nutrition, no-fault insurance, judicial and prison reform, legislative reform and tax structures.

Sanford first proposed the compact at an April symposium of the L.Q.C. Lamar Society, a bipartisan group of Southern progressives. On Oct. 3 representatives of 13 Southern States met on the Duke campus and agreed to recommend that their states enter the compact.

An interim steering committee was set up to explain the proposal to the states, to hire an executive director and to seek financing from private foundations until state funds are received from legislatures which approve the compact.

Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton was selected to head the interim committee. Holton will announce the official creation of the board when governors of five or six states sign executive orders to begin participation in the compact.

"The board should be a viable, going legal entity by the end of the year," Sanford said.

The board would have no enforcement authority and would act solely as an adviser and a research resource for the states. Therefore, its effectiveness would depend on the willingness of Southern leaders to make use of its resources.

Governors so far have expressed views ranging from enthusiasm to pessimism about the proposal.

Holton views the role of the board optimistically and said "regionalism is the course to progress in a changing South."

He added, "Because of the influence and prestige of the members, such a group could have considerable impact in encouraging Southerners to unite in planning for orderly growth in population, transportation, housing and industry."

Gov. John West of South Carolina also supports the "idea and principle" of the board and thinks it could have a "tremendous" impact on Southern growth patterns. He cited as an example the influence generated by the Southern Regional Education Board.

Gov. Bob Scott of North Carolina has expressed great interest in the board, calling it an "exciting idea for the region."

Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas said he believes the compact has "possibilities," but he is not "totally committed" to it. He said the impact of the board would depend on how many governors are willing to use their offices to make it effective.

A spokesman for Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee said he didn't think the "governor has any strong opinions on it, one way or the other."

The spokesman said Tennessee's representative to the October meeting came back with the opinion "that it's an excellent idea in theory that's pretty hard to argue with. But, in reality, we don't really see how a board of this sort could really have much impact. They propose a very small staff, and we just don't see how it could do much."

Despite the reservations of some governors, Sanford believes the board can have a major impact just by outlining regional goals and the policies needed to achieve them.

"I'm operating on the rather optimistic theory that, given the right road map, most people will follow it," Sanford said.

He said the goals of wholesome rural and city life for the region are shared by all, but the complex policies needed to make them a reality have never been outlined in usable form.

"The new turn in the attitude of Southern governors is undeniable," Sanford said. "I think we've got everything running for us in the South.

"But you can only lead to the extent you know where you are going," he said.

Sanford said the board is not "dependent on 100 per cent participation. Five or six states will do it at first."

He said the board would not have and would not need any authority over state functions. Progressive leaders realize the need for long-range planning, he said.

But there are so many pressures from local and special interest groups that the states need some kind of "moral backing" from a regional policy group in trying to enforce plans for location of industry, housing and transportation routes, Sanford said.

"How do you justify saving open space from development unless you can tell people why? How can you explain why a no-access freeway should be built through an area to prevent construction along it? It's much easier for public officials to sell it if they can show people how it fits into an orderly growth pattern.

"Highways and other government projects shouldn't be used to create more problems than they solve. You reach a point where it costs more to develop an area than it brings in. New York doesn't want any more industry because it costs the city more in services than it brings in. We've got to help local people see this," he said.

The first task of the board once it is activated will be to develop regional objectives. This itself could be a controversial task when the board gets down to specifics such as housing patterns, race relations, urban problems and land use.

But, he said, "we've lived with controversy before in the South and I think we ought to be able to handle it."

In a speech at the meeting in October, Sanford said, "The South is no longer hypotized by the war we lost and the era of destruction we suffered. The new leadership across the board is looking forward, not backward.

"In the last 10 years something quite unique has happened to our region. We have made industrial progress and we have brought in new industry; we have reversed the out-migration trend and our per capita income has moved up to 78 per cent of the national average.

"A new cast of governors is moving to the forefront shunning the dishonest demagoguery that pits race against race, that capitalizes on bitterness and meanness and that has sapped the energies of the region for decades; and they are now responsive to new issues like abolishing hunger, promoting decent housing for all and opening opportunities in education and employment; issues that earlier politicians denied even existed at all," he said.

Sanford said "Southerner" no longer means "white and defiant, but black and white and committed to the South and demanding a saner future."

He said if the region takes advantage of its opportunity, the "post-racial" South can serve as an example for the nation.

Relocating Old Graves

SILCOTT, Wash. (AP) — Grave robbers seeking salable Indian artifacts and bones have been desecrating a 19th century burial ground above the Snake River on the Washington-Idaho border, anthropologists from both states say.

"This site was raped by a white with no social conscience," said Dr. Roderick Sprague, University of Idaho anthropologist working with Washington State University scholars to discover something of the life, death, and styles of Indians in the 1800s. About 38 graves have been disturbed in what Sprague called a "flat out example of grave robbing." The Indians in the graves were believed to be part of those who followed Nez Perce Indian Chief Joseph in his flight from the U.S. Cavalry in the bloody Nez Perce War of 1877.

"They don't let our Indians rest in peace whether they are dead or alive," said Nez Perce Tribal Chairman Richard Halfmoon. "It makes me mad to just be around the place and to see the way things are."

Mike Rodefer, a WSU graduate student directing a crew of eight Nez Perce in relocating the graves, said whoever made the excavations was "awfully good."

Rodefer said his crew was working to relocate the graves which were possibly endangered by the filling of the reservoir behind Lower Granite Dam after the structure's scheduled 1974 completion.

Each of the desecrated graves had been carefully located by pushing a rod into the soil until it touched a coffin, Rodefer said. After being dug up, he said, most of the handmade coffins were smashed open and the jewelry and bones were removed. In many cases the skulls also were removed.

An ancient skull is reported to bring $25 on an underground market in nearby Lewiston, Idaho, and sources say the skulls are shipped to California for resale at higher prices.

Indians Train In Health Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Thirty American Indians are enrolled in new physician assistant training courses at Indian Health Service facilities in Arizona and New Mexico, reports Dr. Emery A. Johnson, assistant surgeon general of the United States and director, Indian Health Service.

"Indian community health medics are conceived primarily as a means of extending health services to remote locations where there is no full-time physician," Dr. Johnson said. Among trainees are ten men and one woman who have served as medical corpsmen.

Thai Premier Feared Effect Of Red China In UN

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK (AP) — Premier Thanom Kittikachorn said today that one factor which prompted the return to full military dictatorship in Thailand was a fear that Peking's entry into the United Nations would swing the Chinese in the country to communism.

Speaking to a meeting of 154 senior government officials, the leader of the military clique that has ruled Thailand for years said the government was uncertain what effect Red China's diplomatic victory would have on the three million Chinese in Thailand.

"If the Chinese take the Communist ideology in great numbers," he continued, "the situation in the country could be turmoil because it will aggravate the existing terrorist infiltration that exists in every part of the country."

Events had reached a point that required "quick, drastic and absolute measures," Thanom declared.

The measures taken Wednesday included suspension of the constitution proclaimed three years ago, dismissal of the two-year-old Parliament and the Cabinet, and creation of a Revolutionary Council made up of the five men who have been running Thailand since Field Marshal Sarit Thanarat died in 1963.

Meanwhile, life went on as usual in Bangkok, and the reaction of the average Thai to the end of the experiment in democracy was the usual Thai response when something doesn't work out, "Mai pen rai," or never mind.

"This is not an event that will bring the people into the streets," said Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman, who lost his job with the rest of the Cabinet.

But the crowds were in the streets this morning, going about their business as usual.

Offices, banks, schools and movie theaters opened. So did the government ministries, with undersecretaries temporarily in charge. Tanks were on guard at Parliament House and the headquarters of the junta. There was a machine gun post on top of the post office, and truckloads of paratroopers moved about the section of the city where government offices are located. But there was no indication that these precautionary forces would see any action.

King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit went ahead with a visit to the provinces.

Early morning golfers were out on the Turf Club links just down the road from the heavily guarded government house. Members of the British Embassy staff were assembling a miniature railway and ferris wheel for a charity fair Saturday.

The 32,000 American troops stationed in Thailand received no orders restricting them to their bases, and flight operations over Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam continued as usual.

Few Thais will miss Parliament. Only 40 per cent of those eligible voted when it was elected. It met only once a week, and members of the public could get in only with special permission.

The public thought it good fun when members of the house staged sit-ins or shaved their heads to protest against the government. But Field Marshal Thanom and the other members of the junta—Gen. Praphas Charusathein, Gen. Prasert Ruchirawongse, Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chullasapya and Deputy Premier Pote Sarasin—were not amused.

Walked Into Asia Minor

ISTANBUL Turkey (AP) — Two American brothers have left this last European outpost to continue their walk around the world in support of UNICEF—the United Nations Children's Fund.

David, 32, and John Kunst, 24, leading their mule "Willie-Make-It-Two" and their dog "Drifter," crossed into Asia Minor heading for the warm climate of southern Turkey before they proceed to Iran in the spring.

They have walked 5,000 miles in 16 months since they left home in Waseca, Minn., June 20, 1970. They went through Portugal, Spain, France, Italy, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

In Communist Bulgaria they passed through villages where huge posters showing bombs over the heads of women and children identified Americans as "U.S. assassins" and asked for "peace in Vietnam." They took all these calmly and continued with a smile their peaceful walking mission. David, father of three, said they really had no trouble anywhere.

During their two-week stay here they paid good-will visits to Istanbul's mayor and other notables. The Tourism Department gave them a small wagon which they will use to carry food, camping equipment and their many pairs of comfortable shoes. They have christened this vehicle "USA-Turk Machine."

The brothers estimate the whole trip should take about three years.

"If all goes well, and it will, we plan to be back home in the United States sometime in 1973," said John.

Fidel Again Blasts U.S.

CONCEPCION, Chile (AP) — Fidel Castro sharply criticized the United States again Wednesday night and praised the Soviet Union for "saving the revolution in Cuba from certain failure."

The prime minister spoke to 20,000 persons in a local soccer stadium during a stop in this industrial center on his tour of Chile.

He referred to the United States as "this great, greedy colossus of the North" and said it seeks to tell Latin Americans what kind of government they should have.

He accused Washington of wanting "to impose on us the philosophy of exploitation and piracy, to convert us into slave-producers of raw materials and make off with our minerals."

Castro claimed that Latin America—now that Chile is turning socialist—"has taken a decisive step in shaking off the imperialist yoke—a step in which the Cuban revolution played a historic role."

He said the United States tried to smother the revolution from the start but that the Soviet Union—Cuba's chief source of economic aid—had saved it.

Castro also blamed the United States for Cuba's problems with industrial production.

"We have to import everything" because of the U.S. economic blockade, he told a group of steelworkers earlier in the day.

"It was like an elephant stepping on an ant. Obviously when this happens the ant finds itself with many problems, and we had many problems."

These Things Nature Has Given Us

Of all nature's bounty, this is undoubtedly the most celebrated individual item and has been called that which brings music to man's life. (Photograph 1)

Guessing games in every form imaginable appeal to people's imagination. Witness the lasting popularity of charades and the millions of cross-word puzzle fans who find enjoyment in searching out clues.

With the thought our readers might find it a challenge, we are presenting seven objects to identify. In each instance, the photograph is a detail of a complete object.

No trick photography is involved, and all items shown are ordinary ones from nature frequently encountered in this area.

A brief caption with clues is given under each photograph. If you wish to test your ability to identify the photographs, identities are given on page 28

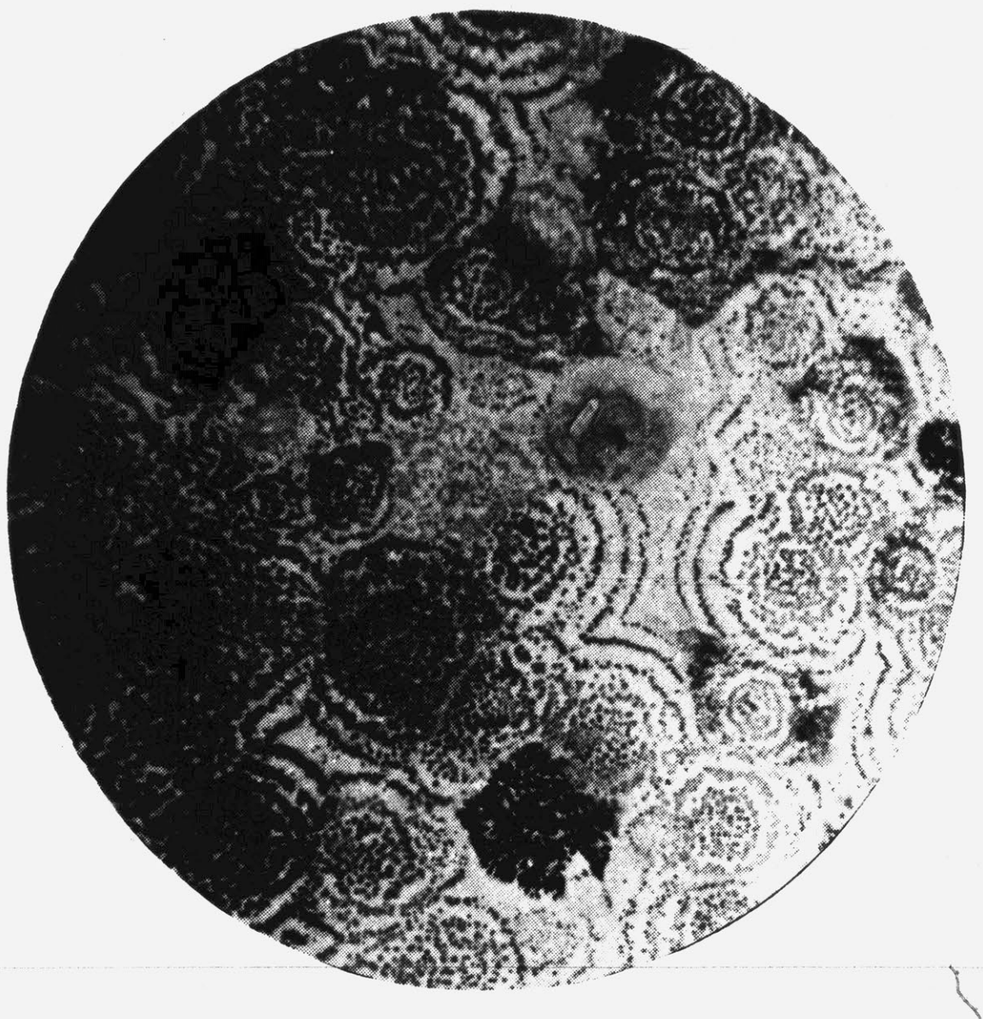
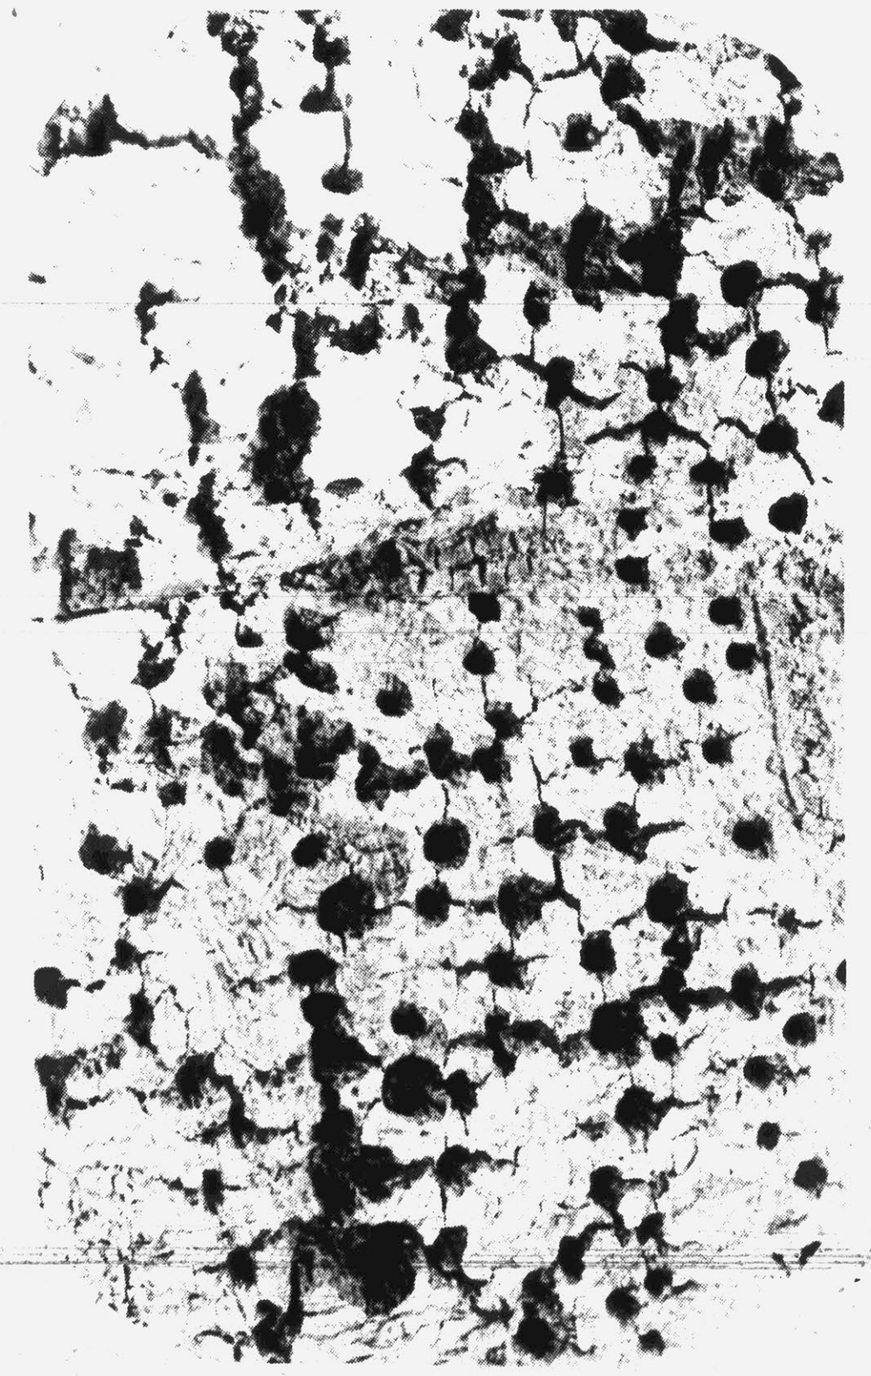
Bubble, bubble, sluggish trouble could describe the slow paced movement of this phenomena of nature. (Photograph 4)



With a little assistance from man, this object is convertible to a favorite haunt of certain birds. (Photograph 5)



To seek its hidden treasures, specially equipped feathered creatures have altered forever the outer appearance of this object. (Photograph 6)

White House Asks For New Presidential Jet

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the No. 1 jetliner in the White House fleet already has a look-alike sister ship, President Nixon wants an identical twin borne at a cost of more than $9 million to taxpayers.

The proposal, treated with such priority that it was included Wednesday in a supplemental budget request for the current fiscal year, would provide him a second top-of-the-line model from Boeing's 707 series.

In Seattle, a Boeing Co. spokesman said the plane could be ready by mid-1972, an election year in which Nixon's extensive travel routine is likely to expand. A presidential aide would say only that a delivery date is indefinite.

The new airship, a 707-320B, would replace a 13-year-old 707-120 which has seen considerable service as Nixon's chief backup plane, including his recent trips to Alaska and Key Biscayne, Fla., and adviser Henry Kissinger's second visit to Peking.

And it would match exactly the "Spirit of '76," the sleek, 9-year-old queen of the executive jet set at nearby Andrews Air Force Base. Although there is no difference in looks or luxury between it and the backup plane, the 707-320B has better range and can operate from shorter airstrips, according to Col. Ralph D. Albertazzie, the President's pilot.

"For example," said Albertazzie, "we got it into the Orange County, Calif., airport, and the backup couldn't have done that. We went into Templehof (Berlin) and Roanoke, Va., and the backup couldn't have done that, either."

Albertazzie, who has flown Nixon into all 50 states and more than 250,000 miles, said he had not been aware the President was going to ask for the new plane, one of several items for which a total of $91.5 million is sought in new spending authority from Congress.

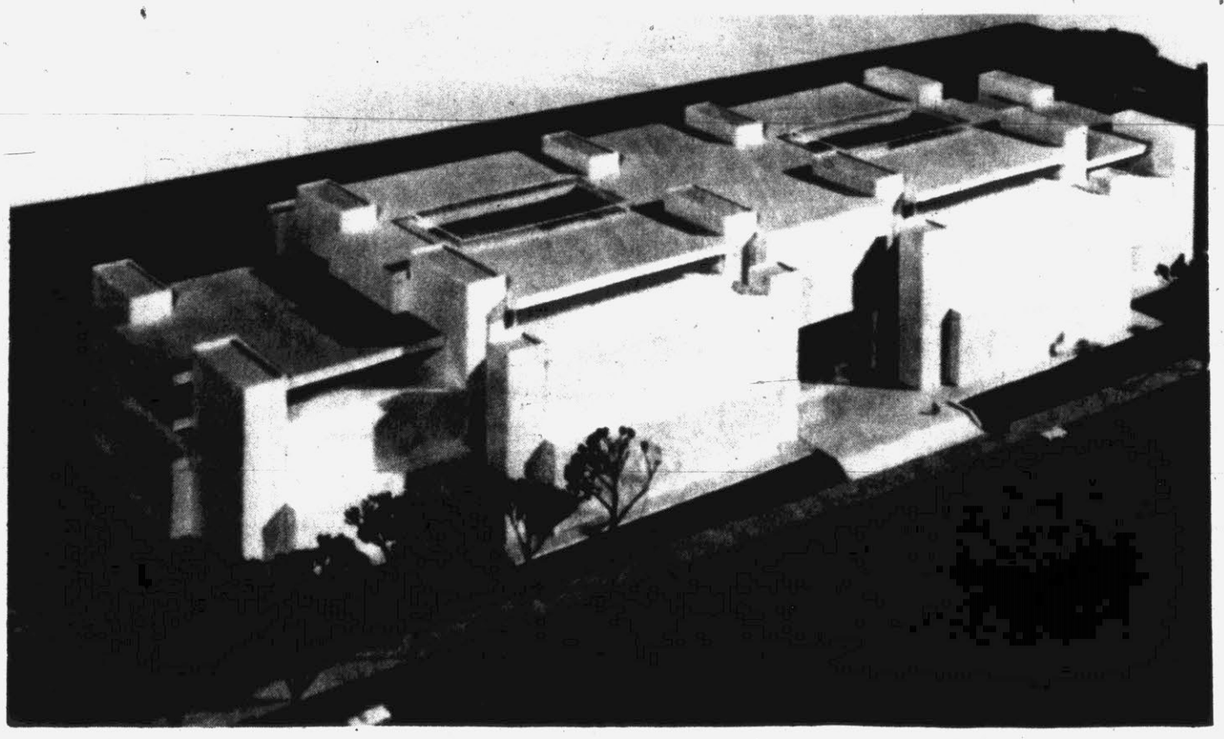
"But it is a longstanding requirement," he said. "It will give us true backup capability." At the moment, he added, the "Spirit '76" is the only 707-320B in the Air Force inventory.

Asked if he thought Nixon should have a jumbo jet, such as a Boeing 747 or a DC10, Albertazzie replied: "We've considered it. But the problem is one of ground support. Right now you can use a 707 at almost any airport in the world."

Bond Jumper Is DeclaredOutlaw

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Franklin DeWayne Wright, 29, a $100,000 bond jumper charged with 10 felonies, has been declared an outlaw under a 100-year-old, seldom-used law. This means any North Carolina citizen or police officer may kill him with impunity if he refuses to surrender.

Murder and kidnaping are among the charges against Wright, who was declared an outlaw Wednesday, by Superior Court Judge William Copeland at the request of Solicitor Thomas F. Moore. The solicitor said the request was prompted by threats to witnesses involved in Wright's cases and his two failures to appear for trial.



TO HONOR AIR AND SPACE TRAVEL — This is the design of the proposed National Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution which was given approval today for construction on the Mall in Washington. It is to race America's flight technology from Kitty Hawk to the present, with dedication planned for July 4, 1976, the nation's bicentennial. It is to cost $40 million. (AP Wirephoto)

The Worry Clinic

An Early Test Of Communism

Roger is typical of modern hippies who wish to shun the sweat and tears and shed blood that has given us this economic paradise on earth. Our freedoms have thus been derived from the sacrifices and shed blood, ever since Calvary. Modern permissive parents have spawned a generation of "chickens."

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

Case S-522: Roger D., aged 19, is a hippie.

"Dr. Crane," he challenged, "what have we young folks got to be thankful for?"

"The establishment runs everything to make a fast buck.

"We are forced to fight in wars that don't interest us.

"And even the police drive us off the street yet won't let us sleep in the public parks.

"So what have we to lose by destroying this country?"

Confused Kids

Most of these same hippies are eating fairly regularly. How?

Because this lush American "free enterprise" system still gives their parents such high wages or salaries, that Papa can mail a remittance check to his hippie offspring regularly!

In Communistic Cuba, China or Russia, if you don't work you starve.

And any open revolt against the Communist "establishment" leads not to benevolent treatment from policemen.

It means death or slavery in Siberian salt mines!

Hippies take advantage of our charitable American system, knowing that they can parade and riot with relative inpunity.

Basically, most of them are mentally "sick."

They are too "chicken" for real fighting!

But they boldly throw rocks and smash windows in a sham appearance of masculine virility and bravery.

Actually, they lack guts!

And are afraid of blood, so they make avid converts, to the New York City slogan — "Better red than dead."

American freedoms, which they now so flagrantly abuse, were purchased by blood of our soldiers, sailors and sturdy pioneers.

And our very continent was settled in Massachusetts by hardy folks who left Europe to obtain religious freedom, not gold!

When they landed at Plymouth Rock, they banded together in a Communist cell.

All their farm products and the game they shot were thus thrown into a common larder.

Then each withdrew according to his needs.

But the single men griped because married men also got portions for themselves, their wives and also their children.

So Governor Bradford wrote that the Communist venture proved a grand failure.

As a result, he then allotted to each man his own plot of ground.

Each worker thus had the right to all the crops that he harvested therefrom.

This was the birth of our American "free enterprise" system!

And it was such a striking success that Governor Bradford could hardly believe his eyes.

For under this "private property" idea, everybody became industrious, thrifty and willing to expend plenty of "elbow grease."

That's when the famous Thanksgiving Party was held, which was attended by over 80 Indians.

The Indians brought venison and wild turkeys.

They stayed for several days.

For that early Thanksgiving was a day of true "Thanksgiving"; not the griping parties so typical of modern hippie brawls!

Many of those pioneers had lost half their families and friends by pneumonia, malnutrition and hostile Indians.

Spilled human blood has bought our human privileges, ever since Calvary. Note well!

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♠	3 ♠	Pass
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Deuce of ♠

A mental block induced by the desire to score an overtrick led to a loss on the deal for South, the declarer at four hearts, when today's hand was played at a recent tournament.

East opened the bidding with one spade, and South who had the equivalent of game in hand, indicated his intentions to partner by overcalling in the opponent's suit. West, who held a fit with partner, preempted by raising to three spades despite his paucity of high card strength. This call was passed back to South who bid four hearts. Altho the opponents had the ingredients for a good save, they usually chose to defend against South's game bid.

A diamond opening by West would have led to a direct defeat for the declarer, inasmuch as East can ruff the first trick and then put his partner in with the ace of clubs to trump another diamond. The king of spades scores the fourth trick for the defense.

No player seated West was sufficiently inspired to uncover the killing lead. In fact, at every table a spade was opened which was covered by dummy's nine and East's jack which won the trick. The spade continuation was ruffed by South who then led the king of hearts. When West showed out, discarding a spade, it became apparent that declarer would lose a heart trick unless he crossed over to dummy to take a finesse against the jack of trumps.

In rubber bridge, South might be expected to take his 10 tricks by cashing out his trumps [six hearts and four diamonds] and give up on any attempt to net an additional 30 points on the deal. In duplicate, however, the extra trick might prove to be the difference between a reasonably good or a very poor score on the deal since South's result will be compared against all the other player's who may be expected to reach four hearts.

Only one player uncovered the method for trying to score an overtrick without jeopardizing his contract. At trick three, he led the nine of clubs from his hand. If West put up the ace and returned a diamond for his partner to ruff, it was the third and final trick for the defense, inasmuch as the declarer can pick up the remaining trumps with the ace and queen of hearts.

If East is permitted to win the nine of clubs with the king, he can force declarer again in spades. Now, when South crosses over to dummy's jack of diamonds and East trumps in, he is unable to get his partner in for another ruff. South can ruff a club return and draw trump —losing one spade, one club and the single diamond ruff.

Family Of Hemophiliacs Holds A Dinner For 250 Persons; Pay In Blood

By JOSEPH R. TYBOR
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Corrigan, who have six hemophiliacs in the family, held a dinner for 250 persons willing to pay the price—a pint of blood.

The couple has four sons and two grandsons who have hemophilia, a hereditary disease which afflicts only males. It leads to difficulty in controlling bleeding, even after minor injuries, because of delayed blood clotting.

The Corrigans have been organizing such dinners semi-annually for 17 years. The latest one was Wednesday night when about 250 relatives, neighbors and friends each gave a pint of blood and then sat down in a high school cafeteria to a catered dinner of mostaccoli, ham, chicken, roast beef and all the trimmings.

The Chicago Blood Donor Service provided the medical staff and equipment.

"We started at the suggestion of a friend who got the idea after he took three others to the blood bank one evening and then made a night on the town of it," said Mrs. Corrigan.

The Corrigans have to pay for a current blood need of 1,500 units a year for their sons Chuck, 26, Marty 16, Bill, 14, and Roger, 4.

Until four years ago whole blood plasma had to be used and the children received the transfusions at a hospital. But since then Mrs. Corrigan has been giving her children injections of cyroprecipitate, a blood derivative which brings about clotting. She keeps the cyroprecipitate in her kitchen freezer and administers it at home.

"She does it right on the table," said Marty. "She's gotten pretty good at it."

Mrs. Corrigan says she uses about 47 units of cyroprecipitate a month. Each unit has to be paid back with two units of blood.

The Corrigans three years ago adopted a baby who was unwanted because he was a bleeder. The boy is their youngest, Roger.

The Corrigans have four daughters—three who are married—and another son who is not a bleeder. Two of the grandsons have the ailment.

"Overall, we've been thankful," said Mrs. Corrigan. "We've had faith in God, and he's rewarded us. People have been wonderful."

As for the dinners, Corrigan said:

"We've found it's not that people don't want to give blood. It's that they don't like the idea of going to a blood bank alone. Here, we have a good time. Our friends may stay three or four hours."

Agency Is Big, Unsung Landlord

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) —What's in a name?

Often, some surprising things.

Take the Volunteers of America, for instance. The national social welfare agency, currently observing its 75th anniversary, is one of the country's unsung landlords — sponsor of a $70 million non-profit housing program across the nation for tens of thousands of persons in low and low middle income families, the elderly and the handicapped.

The massive residential housing program, financed locally and guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration, is one of the largest of its kind ever undertaken by a social welfare organization.

"We plan these housing complexes with total provision for community life," says General John F. McMahon, commander in chief of the Volunteers of America and president of the VOA National Housing Corp., Washington, D.C.

"Within each complex," he said, "there are day care centers, adult education programs, athletic and other recreational facilities."

There are VOA housing complexes completed under construction and on the drawing boards in 35 cities across the nation.

The first project completed, McMahon said, was Kennedy Homes in Gainesville, Fla., providing housing for 172 families and built at a cost of about $2 million.

Kennedy Homes has a recreation center, day care center, community center, a teen-age program, adult education program, home management classes and a chapel. It has a tenant council which sets the rules for its residents.

A family health center services the more than 800 tenants, offering first aid, immunizations, health education and counseling, public health nursing services in the home.

The Gainesville police department has cooperated, conducting classes in self-defense for women and in the detection of drug addiction.

Newly completed is Loring Towers, a $3.5 million high rise in Minneapolis for lower middle income persons who are over 62 years of age. It consists of 208 units, including efficiencies and one-bedroom suites. Offices, a lounge and complete dining facilities are located on the first floor of the building.

Construction has started on Sunset Park, a $5 million apartment and service complex for low income elderly persons in Denver. McMahon says it is one of the first attempts in the nation to offer on a single site most of the facilities required by the aged, including recreational, social and shopping areas.

Every unit in the 13-story apartment has been designed with the handicapped in mind and there will be ramps beside major stairways and extra wide doors for wheelchairs.

On the ground floor of the 242-unit apartment building there will be central kitchen and dining facilities, social and recreational areas, carpentry and metal shops, a crafts room, and an auditorium.

The main building will be connected by a second floor bridge to a commercial structire with such service businesses as a barber shop, pharmacy, grocery and clothing stores. Other services will include complete casework counseling and a medical clinic operated by two local hospitals.

The first facility for the elderly opened by the Volunteers, McMahon said, is the Theodora Home in Seattle, Wash., in operation since 1965, with 200 residents. Here, well appointed rooms, with private bath, are shared by two residents to keep costs down.

In Columbus, Ohio, the $6 million Capital Park Apartments is the largest and one of the newest of the completed complexes. Housing 316 families, the facility has one, two, three and four bedroom garden apartments and three and four bedroom townhouse apartments with rentals from $90 to $155 per month. In the complex are two community buildings, a laundry, playground and adult education areas.

In Houston, the $3.5 million Yale Village houses more than 1,000 people. For low and middle-income families, rents for the air conditioned apartments range from $144 for one-bedroom units to $215 for five-bedroom suites in townhouse structures.

Volunteers of America also operates Kings Row in Houston. The $2.5 million project is for 180 low income families who are required to pay one-fourth their monthly income with the federal government supplementing the rentals to meet operating costs.

One of the unique facilities, McMahon said, is the Maud Booth Family Center at the $4.5 million 477-apartment North Hollywood housing complex in North Hollywood, Calif. The center provides living quarters for more than 100 families afflicted by death, desertion or divorce. Emotional counseling and job training is given the remaining parent. The center also provides supervised day care for pre-school or school age children.

Other VOA projects are in operation in Hayward, Calif., Oklahoma City, Topeka, and Wichita, Kan. Under construction or on the planning boards are developments in North Las Vegas, Nev., Virginia Beach, Va., Kansas City, Kan., Fort Worth, Pittsburgh, Binghamton, N.Y., Lubbock, Tex., and Sunland, Calif.

"It's not the rent alone that makes our program so attractive," said McMahon. "Our provision for community life seems to be as worthwhile as our low rentals."

THE HOOVER COMPANY

has an opening for a man to call on dealers in Eastern North Carolina, who are now selling our products. Man should be located in or near Greenville. This is a good job with unlimited future, but I am not looking for a man who expects to start at the top. I am looking for a man between 20 and 30 years of age, who has a car, is ambitious and willing to work hard for good earnings and advancements with a large international manufacturer. If you think you can qualify, write to me giving me some facts about yourself, along with your address and telephone numbers where you can be reached during and after working hours so I can arrange an interview appointment. Goodyear's Three Blimps Now Only Known Airships In World

ONE OF THREE Goodyear blimps is being undocked at San Francisco. Goodyear believes it makes money from its blimps which move about the country to appear over major cities and events. (UPI Telephoto)

By ROBERT STRAND

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Riding in a blimp is like floating suspended under a big, fat football which goes scudding here and there, sometimes poking its nose at skyscraper windows, sometimes just hanging motionless.

Press the right pedal, and surely but slowly it turns right. Pull a string and let some air or gas out. Turn the wheel at the side of the pilot's seat, and the blimp's vast, ponderous prow goes up, or down.

Make like a dive bomber, if you wish. Scramble for altitude, moving at a maximum of 50 miles an hour but going up a maximum of 30 degrees, which seems very sharp. Indeed.

Taking off in the blimp is pure Jules Verne. Eight men tug on ropes holding the nose steady. Another four men bounce the 192-foot long craft—a few times on its one wheel to test the weight, which probably would be 50 pounds on the bathroom scale, but then again it might be minus 50.

A couple of 25-pound shot bags are slid in or out. The crew chief points his index finger up. The pilot revs two small aircraft engines at the rear of the gondola, and the airship's six passengers are up and away—with the ropes dangling in the wind.

Across the ground the ship's shadow moves with the velocity of a bicycle.

The only blimps left belong to Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. It got into the blimp business in 1917, a time when German dirigibles were dropping bombs on the British.

Both kinds of airships represented technological improvement over the paper balloon of 1783—sent up, and down, successfully by the Montgolfier brothers with a sheep, rooster and a duck aboard. Henri Giffard, a Frenchman, flew a balloon airship in 1852 propelled by a three horsepower steam engine.

In the American Civil War, balloons were used for reconnaissance. In the 1930s, passenger zeppelins such as the Hindenburg had spectacular bad luck. In World War II the U.S. Navy operated 168 airships.

One by one, the major powers abandoned this form of military might, and now Goodyear's three blimps are the only airships known to be flying in the modern world.

A blimp is a non-rigid gas bag, nowadays filled with helium, in contrast to a dirigible which has a rigid structure. The blimp is supposed to have acquired its name when a World War I British officer thumped his finger on the bag, and the sound went "blimp."

Goodyear believes it makes money from its three blimps, stationed in Miami, Houston and Los Angeles, because of their advertising value. The blimps move about the country, each followed on the ground by crews of 22, to appear over 80 major cities and such events as the Rose Bowl or the Indianapolis 500.

At night 7,500 lights attached to the sides flash pictures of golfers, turkeys or Santa Clauses, easily seen by a couple of million metropolitan viewers at a time.

LEADS IN POLL

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusettes is the clear favorite of rank and file Democrats for their party's 1972 presidential nomination, according to the Louis Harris poll.

Adult Basic Education Course Offered By PTI

Pitt Technical Institute is now offering a self-improvement course in Adult Basic Education, in Room 28 of the Administration Building, at the institute on Monday and Wednesday nights, from 7 to 10:00 p.m.

The course is designed in such a manner that an adult may enroll at any time during the year and does not have to wait until the beginning of the year or quarter.

Adults who wish to enroll will find they can start in the course at their present educational level and progress at their own pace. All books and materials are on an adult interest level and are free to the students.

Helping any adult, over 16 years of age and not enrolled in school, to reach his or her own educational and personal aims or objectives in life is the major purpose of the course.

Individual objectives range from improving one's ability to read, write, and do arithmetic better, to finally completing an eighth grade or high school education.

Since some jobs require an eighth grade or high school education to be eligible for employment or promotion, many adults are taking advantage of the classes which are offered free of charge. Some adults attend class to learn to be better shoppers and spend their money more wisely.

Other classes now meeting include the Learning Center for Adults in Moyewood, Meadowbrook, and Kearney Park Housing areas in Greenville, and in the Farmville Center of Pitt Tech.

According to Charlie Russell, director of Adult Basic Education at Pitt Technical Institute, classes can be started in any community when 10 or more citizens are interested in starting a class and at no cost to the students.

"We will also be happy to work with any organization or business desiring to provide free classes for their employees wanting self-improvement," said Russell.

For additional information about Adult Basic Education and setting up such classes, interested persons should contact Russell at Pitt Technical Institute, telephone 756-3130, Extension 53.

Cuddling Helps Loved Feeling

NEW YORK (UPI)—It is not enough to feel love for a baby. Child development experts say love must be physically demonstrated right from the beginning.

Cuddling and soft words of affection help the infant to feel happy and wanted. Holding him securely but gently not only gives him the firm physical support he needs, but makes him feel safe and loved, too. The points were made in an article published in the journal, "Bedside Nurse."

More Funds For Negro Colleges

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI)—Public Negro colleges are receiving increased financial and professional support from private and public sources, according to the annual report of the Office For Advancement of Public Negro Colleges (OAPNC).

The report also shows that alumni and faculty support to member institutions has increased with the establishment of foundations and development offices on their campuses.
