

GOP Claim Is Branded 'Irrational'

RALEIGH (AP) — The executive secretary of the North Carolina Board of Elections today branded as unfounded and irrational charges by a Republican official that the last three Tar Heel governors were illegally elected.

Alex Brock said it was regrettable that such charges were made by Frank Rouse, newly elected North Carolina Republican chairman. Rouse said in a television interview Monday night that Govs. Bob Scott, Dan Moore and Terry Sanford were illegally elected.

Rouse was interviewed by a panel of newsmen on the University of North Carolina's television station, WUNC-TV. "The election process today," Brock said in an interview, "is about as perfect as we can possibly make it insofar as it relates to fraud to the extent of changing a statewide election."

He added, "We have hearing after each election and allegations of fraud in some instances. I rather suspect this will always be the case because elections are an emotional exercise."

"However, all candidates who are engaged in the political process as well as their supporters have demonstrated traditionally that they feel perfectly free to come forward at the least sign of any wrong doing. Any candidate for the office of governor would not have come strolling in if he had such information."

Republican Rep. Thomas Harrelson of Brunswick County commented earlier on Rouse's statement by saying: "I don't say it is so, but I do say it is possible."

Meanwhile, two former state election board chairmen branded Rouse's charge as unfounded.

Harrelson, who won his election to the General Assembly last year by proving that election frauds had occurred in Columbus County, said he recently sent a questionnaire to county Republican chairmen and Republican members of county elections boards throughout the state inquiring about election frauds.

The young legislator said 41 per cent of those answering expressed the opinion that some election fraud occurred in their counties and 30 per cent said the fraud was enough to affect the outcome.

"With 30 per cent of the counties having enough fraud to affect the outcome of elections, it would seem that would be enough to affect the outcome of any statewide race," Harrelson said.

The charges were made by Rouse in an interview Monday night over the North Carolina News Conference program of University of North Carolina television.

"We've elected three governors in the past 12 years, and we've been counted out each time, and we've got to do something about it," Rouse asserted.

When asked if he had any documentary evidence to support the charges, Rouse said, "No. We've just gone over the thing county by county. This is my considered judgment."

A former chairman of the state board of elections, Malcolm B. Seawell of Raleigh, said when asked about the claim, "I think it's an unfortunate statement and it's unfounded."

Lee Smith, who was elections board chairman in 1968 when Gov. Bob Scott was elected, said the charges were untrue and added:

"Any election we had any complaints on, we investigated."

Receive Bids On Road Projects

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Highway Commission received low bids totaling $18 million Tuesday on 51 projects calling for work on 297 miles of highway in 43 counties.

The bids will be reviewed by the commission when it meets in Raleigh next Wednesday.

All New Bern's Schools Closed

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — All schools in New Bern were closed today as school board officials hoped a cooling off period over the Thanksgiving holiday would ease racial tensions following disorders at New Bern High School Monday.

The decision to close a day ahead of the scheduled holiday was made Tuesday night by officials after a meeting with city and county officials and parents.

John Green, chairman of the city school board, said teachers would meet today to attempt to establish guidelines and discuss a "stronger method of controlling discipline."

A series of disorders at the high school Monday followed a report by a white pupil that he was jumped by a group of blacks behind the gym and robbed of a dollar. He was treated for minor injuries at Craven County Hospital and released.

School officials said they received numerous reports of harassment after the incident. Also on Monday, a bomb hoax telephone call was reported at J. T. Barber Junior High School.

Police patrolled areas near the schools Tuesday and no major incidents were reported. Joyner from the building. Frinks and Kirby told the court that their actions were not intended to interfere with the officers, but rather to protect the officers and the people gathered inside the church for a civil rights meeting. The two men indicated many of the persons attending the meeting were upset over the incident and they were attempting to prevent an outbreak of violence.

When asked by Frinks if people inside the church seem angry, Deputy Ivan Harris said there were "a lot of people there and a lot of them seemed to be angry."

Frinks, Kirby and Joyner appealed their convictions to Superior Court.

Officers followed Joyner into the building. They said Frinks and Kirby interfered with them as they attempted to remove

Deimos View

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists hope that Mariner 9 will shift the gaze of its television cameras from Mars on Friday and try to photograph Deimos, one of the red planet's two moons.

Deimos is only five miles in diameter and swings around Mars at a distance of 12,000 miles. The orbiting Mariner will be about 6,000 miles away Friday morning when it attempts the photographs, controllers said Tuesday.

Earlier photographs of Deimos and Mars' other moon, Phobos, showed the tiny satellites only as dots of light. Mariner controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here hope to see some surface detail and perhaps find clues to the origin of Deimos.

Mariner continued studying the Martian surface as a thick dust storm continued to subside.

One-Day Holiday

Thanksgiving holiday will be observed as a one day holiday tomorrow by city, county, state and federal offices, with business as usual operations beginning again on Friday morning.

A check with city hall, the county offices, the Employment Security Commission, the Social Security office, the military recruiting offices and other state and federal offices reveal a holiday scheduled for Thursday only.

Voice of America, will as usual continue round the clock operations with a skeleton crew maintaining a vigil there.

The city and county schools, Pitt Technical Institute and East Carolina University will all observe a holiday period Thursday through the week-end, with school activities to begin again on Monday, November 29.

Administrative offices for the institutes of education will also be closed. The Daily Reflector will publish a paper on Thanksgiving, but business and advertising offices will be closed tomorrow.

Eddie Wallace Is Named Police Officer Of Year

Patrolman Eddie James Wallace, Jr. was voted Police Officer of the Year at the Monday night Pilot Club dinner meeting. He was presented a plaque by Mrs. Nancy Warren, chairman of the Safety Committee. Wallace's name has been added to the Hall of Fame recognition plaque at the City Council Chambers.

Mrs. Warren pointed out that Patrolman Wallace "...is well respected in the courts, among his fellow officers and general citizens of our city ...he is married, father of two children, a high school graduate ...has attended numerous Law enforcement training programs and is a member of Evergreen United Holy Church...During his tour of duty in the army he earned the Good Conduct Medal, the National Defense Medal and the Overseas Medal, and was honorably discharged as a Sergeant."

Charlie Holliday, City Engineer, gave an alphabetically illustrated talk called "Safety Land."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — By a stroke of the pen, California may soon have 19 more state university campuses.

Gov. Ronald Reagan announced Tuesday that he will sign a bill next Monday allowing state college campuses to call themselves state university campuses if they meet certain as yet undefined criteria.

"It is a name change only ...to give more prestige to the system," a college spokesman said. There had been some criticism of the idea from the University of California system, which has nine campuses.

During the first quarter of Practical Nurse Education, students have successfully completed courses in the fundamentals of practical nursing, anatomy and physiology, vocational adjustment and basic nutrition. Attending classes seven hours per day, five days a week, has led to the students success and earned them the right to wear their caps.

For the next nine months, working under the supervision of the nursing faculty at Pitt Memorial Hospital, students will continue to acquire knowledge and understandings related to nursing practices and use of good judgment.

Graduates of this class will be eligible to take the licensing examination given by the North Carolina Board of Nursing. A passing score entitles the individual to receive a license and to use a legal title, "Licensed Practical Nurse."

India Says Troops May Cross Border In Self-Defense

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS India said today its troops have orders permitting them to attack across the border into Pakistan at any time and any place in self-defense, and that they have already done so on at least one occasion.

A government spokesman, elaborating on a Parliament speech by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, said local commanders at all levels were authorized to cross—even a private could go "if he is shot at from across the border."

India previously has denied its troops had or would cross the border under any circumstances, despite Pakistani allegations of large-scale attacks by Indian army units along the borders with the rebel province of East Pakistan.

India insists the attacks were launched by East Pakistani independence fighters, the Mukti Bahini. Mrs. Gandhi told Parliament the rebels have seized large sections of East Pakistan and inflicted heavy casualties on the Pakistani army.

Dispatches from Pakistan apparently were being delayed, but Radio Pakistan reported all Pakistani reserve officers and officers on leave before retirement were being ordered to report for duty immediately.

India partly mobilized its reserves last month.

Mrs. Gandhi told the Indian Parliament that no Indian troops were fighting inside East Pakistan, but she did acknowledge that Indian troops entered the province after a tank battle near the border on Sunday.

She said Pakistani infantry, supported by tanks and artillery, launched an offensive on the Mukti Bahini—the East Pakistan Liberation Army—who she said had liberated an area around Boyra, five miles from India's border.

"Pakistani armor, under heavy artillery cover, advanced to our border threatening our defensive positions," she said. "Their shells fell in our territory, wounding a number of our men."

"The local Indian military commander took appropriate action to repulse the Pakistani attack. In this action 13 Pakistani Chafee tanks were destroyed."

The Boyra area, about 45 miles northeast of Calcutta, borders the Jessore district of East Pakistan, where the Pakistani government announced on Monday that 130 Indians were killed and an estimated 500 wounded in fighting that involved tanks.

Boyra is also across the border from the area where India claims it shot down three Pakistani F86 Sabre Jets on Monday. Pakistan said it lost two Sabres but insisted the battle with Indian Gnat fighters took place over East Pakistan, not over India as claimed by New Delhi.

The Pakistanis claimed two Indian jets downed. Mrs. Gandhi called the air battle a "purely local action."

Pakistan claims that hordes of Indian troops have crossed into East Pakistan in support of the Mukti Bahini.

"This is wholly untrue," Mrs. Gandhi said. "In fact, it was Pakistan which threatened total war and moved its entire armed strength into operational positions on our borders and launched a massive hate-India campaign with slogans, 'Crush India, conquer India.'"

Juvenile Jury

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — With the consent of judge, prosecutor and defense lawyer, 12 members of a high school government class have been impaneled to hear the case of a 16-year-old girl charged with drug violations.

The trial opened Tuesday in Fairbanks Superior Court before Judge Warren W. Taylor.

Taylor said the verdict of the juvenile jury will be binding on the court, the same as with a jury of adults. In previous cases, Taylor said, juveniles have rendered an advisory verdict but not a binding one.

The jury was impaneled with the agreement of the judge, defense attorney Jay Hodges and Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Hackett. Legal authority for a juvenile to be judged by a jury of his peers apparently stems from an opinion of the state Supreme Court last summer.

The opinion ruled that a child has a constitutional right to a public jury trial. One question left open by the ruling was whether the jury should include persons at least as young as the child on trial.

Little Enemy Resistance To S. Viet Drive

TAY NINH, Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese forces advanced up the Saigon-Phnom Penh highway today and broadened a parallel offensive in Cambodia 60 miles to the northeast.

More than 20,000 Saigon troops are involved in the two operations, supported by South Vietnamese and American aircraft. None of the troops have encountered significant enemy resistance so far.

In the northern drive along Highway 7, more than 10,000 infantrymen, paratroopers, rangers and armored vehicles pushed eastward from Khek toward the rubber plantation towns of Mimot and Snuol.

More thousands of troops pushed northwest of Khek toward the Chup rubber plantation. Associated Press Correspondent J. T. Wolkerstorfer reported that South Vietnamese helicopters landed one battalion of paratroopers in the area of Chum, 20 miles from Chup. The paratroopers began setting up a base, apparently in preparation for an advance on Suong, on the edge of the plantation.

Hard fighting was anticipated at Chup, Mimot and Snuol. The southern advance up Highway 1, the main road between Saigon and Phnom Penh, took 1,500 South Vietnamese infantrymen through the Parrot's Beak sector of Cambodia in the vicinity of Svay Rieng. It began today, the third day of the Highway 7 operation.

It was not known yet how far the South Vietnamese planned to advance along Highway 1, although some informants said their objective was Neak Luong. It is a major Mekong River crossing point 35 miles from Phnom Penh.

Milestone In Training

White Caps Go To LPN Students

Students enrolled in Practical Nurse Education, during ceremonies today at Pitt Technical Institute, were congratulated by Dean of Instruction, E. B. Bright, on having achieved their first milestone in their training — the right and privilege to wear their white cap.

The cap, especially designed for Pitt Tech students, is a plain white cap which they will wear for the next nine months while gaining clinical experience at the Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville. After satisfactory completion of their clinical experience and classroom instruction, the students will be entitled to wear a gold velvet band on their present caps upon graduation in August.

During the first quarter of Practical Nurse Education, students have successfully completed courses in the fundamentals of practical nursing, anatomy and physiology, vocational adjustment and basic

Frinks, Two Others Get Jail Sentences

Golden Frinks and two other civil rights workers were handed six-months jail terms by Judge Herbert O. Phillips in District Court in Greenville yesterday on charges stemming from an incident at an Ayden church November 12.

Frink and George Kirby were found guilty of interfering with an officer while Frankie Joyner was convicted on a charge of resisting arrest.

According to testimony, officers were attempting to arrest Joyner on a capias issued by the District Court when he ran into St. Paul's Church.

Officers followed Joyner into the building. They said Frinks and Kirby interfered with them as they attempted to remove

Lengthy New Draft Questionnaire Raises 'Storm'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed new form for young men to apply for conscientious objector draft status has brought an avalanche of angry mail that has astounded Selective Service officials.

Most writers object to the length—30 questions compared to four in the current form—and the complexity.

Many of the more than 400 letters received in the past nine days are similar in what draft officials say is an organized campaign. They complain of "trick questions" and say the questions are "insulting" and "unfair."

But there is praise too. One Midwest draft counselor, while objecting to one section, said: "I believe the more personal approach and the expanded opportunity to express belief should be a very desirable feature."

Byron V. Pepitone, deputy draft director, said, "I'm surprised" at the reaction because the proposed new form was thought to be more fair.

Pepitone said much of the furor is caused by misunderstanding and unawareness that the C.O. document circulated was a draft for discussion.

Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr met Nov. 8 with eight representatives of major church groups to discuss the proposed form and he asked for comments by last Thursday.

Pepitone said an instruction sheet being prepared for the draft boards explains that "there are no right or wrong answers. They are to be used for a point of discussion between the board and the registrant."

The form notes a man is not required to answer all the questions but says he should consider each one.

Pepitone said the objections will be studied and he hopes the final form can be made effective "sometime this year."

Selective Service officials said the letter-writing is being prompted by the Selective Service Law Reporter, the Philadelphia based Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors and the National Interreligious Service Board for Conscientious Objectors based here.

Most of the letters are coming from lawyers, Pepitone said, some from college and church draft counselors.

Information On Babies Can Be Astounding

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Talk to an infant? Babies don't understand anything. You've got to be kidding!

But Bill Emerson isn't kidding. "If you don't educate a child from birth to 6 years you might as well forget it," he says. "A child develops 80 per cent of his measurable intelligence before he is five. And his capacity for learning can be enormously increased during that time. Then a child can go on."

Emerson says parents can benefit greatly from knowing what to expect from their babies at different ages. As vice president of publishing for The Learning Child, his business is making a practical translation of child-development information for parents. And although that information isn't necessarily new, much of it can be astounding.

"The day you bring your baby home from the hospital he can perceive all sorts of things," Emerson says. "That little fellow has 12 sets of eye muscles and he works like hell with them. By the time he is a month old he can already focus on objects up to 12 inches away."

Surprisingly, Emerson reports, babies like strong colors. "They don't even see that baby blue or pink," he observes. And he also points out it's absolutely useless to have things for babies to look at that are farther away than they can focus. A good toy for a month-old infant, he notes, would be a mobile with a variety of shapes that hangs over his crib.

To help parents in selecting play materials for various age levels, The Learning Child makes kits with a toy and an illustrated guide for parents telling them what their baby is capable of doing in a given two-month period.

Emerson says that as babies get a little older, they start pre-talking, which isn't just a lot of funny noises coming from the crib. "Learning to talk is quite a feat," he says. "And when they're lying there gurgling, what they're really doing is practicing their vowels and consonants by the hour. If you realize that," he goes on, "you know it's absolutely ridiculous to talk baby talk to a baby."

By 8 or 9 months, a baby is crawling and at this age, Emerson says, a parent can completely ruin his child's spirit of adventure. "If a mother is constantly saying 'no' to the baby, it's terrible," he declares. "What she has to do is baby-proof the house—get everything that could hurt a baby out of his way."

"At 13 or 14 months, a baby might start dropping things from his high chair," he continues. "This is a great experience for him, since he's learning about grasp and release, and when his mother goes wild over the mess, that makes a great show for him too. The mother can and should let her baby know she doesn't like it, but the baby doesn't care."

Emerson points out that at 22 months a baby will suddenly grab everything in sight and say "mine." "If a mother doesn't know what's happening, this can be a horrible experience for her," he says. "But there's nothing wrong with the baby. He's just beginning to understand his identity and to claim his territory."

Emerson, who was the last editor of Saturday Evening Post, is a Santa Claus of a man, with a bushy beard, twinkling blue eyes, a friendly southern accent and five children of his own. He was one of the founders of The Learning Child, and to prepare himself for the job, he went through a year's crash course in child development.

He says he is most horrified by the kind of mothers who ask, "How can I punish my 9-month-old baby for putting something in his mouth?" "Babies have to put things in their mouths," he exclaims. "Just be sure they have things that can't hurt them. This is how babies learn. It's that whole sensory experience."

"But," he continues, "everything is predicated on the basic assumption of parents' loving their baby. You know the English discovered during World War II that babies without attention just died."

"Without a loving environment you can't do anything," he adds. "But besides that, you can make the baby a part of your environment. Communicate with him, and enrich his life by doing very simple things. If parents know how their baby grows, they can work with nature and make the whole experience of raising a child more fun."

She Should Stop Seeing Married Man

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago I got involved with a married man. The relationship was really quite beautiful. The next thing I knew, I was pregnant. He led me to believe he would divorce his wife and marry me, so I let things go until it was too late to do anything. Then I had the baby, and gave it up for adoption.

I kept my mouth shut about who the baby's father was because I didn't want to hurt him or his family. He promised to pay half my expenses for the baby. This happened five months ago, and so far all he has given me is $20. [He said his wife handles all the money and he doesn't want her to get suspicious.] Abby, I know he could have done better than that. He is an executive with his company.

After the baby was born we kept on seeing each other because he said he loved me and I still loved him. Now I am getting disgusted with him. I want to move away, and find another job, but he doesn't want me to. [We work at the same place and I see him every day.]

I don't want to cause trouble, but I feel like he took advantage of me. If you were my mother, how would you advise me? I am 19.

DEAR ALONE: I would advise you to see a lawyer and let him handle it, to have nothing further to do with this man, and to move away and find another job.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about tight pants? I mean skin tight! Print this. I want to show it to somebody.

DEAR JUST: The only good thing I can say about tight pants is, it makes one careful not to drop anything.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. My wife's cat. I do not care to have animals in the house and my wife knows it. The stench of the cat's box on that first trip to the bathroom in the morning fills me with such nausea that it ruins my breakfast, and starts my day off wrong.

If that's not enough, then there's the constant threat of torn and scratched furniture, and little messes from "accidents" here and there, etc.

My beef is this: Why would my wife, knowing of my intense dislike for cats, so arbitrarily refuse to get rid of hers? When I complain, she says if she had to make a choice between me and the cat, she'd choose the cat!

We've been married for seven months. It's the second time around for both of us, so you'd think we'd have the common sense to find a solution before things go from bad to worse. What do you think?

DEAD SERIOUS IN HOUSTON

DEAR DEAD: What your wife doesn't know about cats would fill a cat care manual. [Give her one.] Cat boxes do not have to smell! And cats, properly trained are not destructive. But your problem is bigger than a cat! It's time you and your bride leveled with each other. Find out why she's using an innocent little animal to punish you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO GRANDMA G.: I know you mean well, but I send advice only to those who ask for it. Advice, regardless of how much it is needed, is useless unless it is sought. And those who need it most, usually want it least.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

New Issue For Plant Employees

SALOMACGIORE, Italy (WNS) — The textile factory here organized a Miss Italy beauty contest even though dissatisfied employees were occupying the premises on strike. Result: a barrage of stones, bottles and tear gas. Four policemen and three strikers were injured, but the bikini competitors and judges escaped unhurt. Now the workers have a new motto: "Down with employers who can finance beauty contests but can't pay their employees."

THANKSGIVING TURKEY — The stuffing is made the old-fashioned way with bread, sausage, onion, celery, butter and salt and pepper.

How To Stuff That Turkey

Bread stuffing for the turkey is an all-time favorite. But there are ways to vary it.

One way, used by old-time cooks, is to flavor the stuffing with pork sausage, adding the usual onion and celery—and lots of butter. We tasted this stuffing at a friend's house and we've been smacking our lips ever since! If your family likes a "dry" stuffing, this recipe may be right up your alley.

OLD-FASHIONED SAUSAGE STUFFING

1 loaf (1 pound, 6 ounces) sliced white enriched bread
1/2 pound bulk-style pork sausage
1 cup (two 1/4-pound sticks) butter
1 1/2 cups finely chopped onion
1 cup finely chopped celery

1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

With fingers, lightly tear bread slices, including ends, into irregular-shaped pieces, dime size or smaller, letting pieces fall into 2 large shallow roasting or baking pans.

Place pans of crumbs in a preheated 325-degree oven, stirring and turning often, until crumbs are dry—about 30 minutes. Reverse position of pans midway if necessary. There should be about 5 quarts dry crumbs.

In a 10-inch deep skillet over moderate heat cook sausage, breaking it up with a fork to form fine crumbs, for about 10 minutes. With a slotted spoon remove sausage to paper towel to drain. Discard fat in skillet. Wash and dry skillet.

In the clean dry skillet, melt 1-3rd cup of the butter. Add 1/2 cup of the onion and 1-3rd cup of the celery; cook gently until onion and celery are soft. Add 1-3rd of the bread crumbs and cook, tossing lightly with a wide spatula, for about 3 minutes; turn into a large bowl. Continue this process with 1-3rd more of the ingredients and then with the final 1-3rd of the ingredients, being sure to use even the finest crumbs at the bottom of the pans.

After all the onion, celery and bread mixtures are in the large bowl, add salt, pepper and sausage; toss thoroughly.

Makes about 3 quarts (12 cups) stuffing, enough for filling body and neck cavities of a 14-to-16-pound turkey.

NOTE: If sausage is frozen, thaw before cooking in skillet.

Growing Devil Worship Cult Spreads In England

By ANTHONY COLLINGS
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Black Magic is spreading across England, upsetting village vicars and serious witches alike.

"All this devil worship is attracting people to the wrong sort of cult," complained Mrs. Eleanor Bone, a "white" witch who says the only spells she casts are good ones that help in such ways as trying to remove warts.

Mrs. Bone runs a coven—six couples, plus Mrs. Bone as priestess—in the London suburb of Tooting Bec. Evil spells, she says, have no place in their monthly dances around a fire, but amateur dabbling in the black arts is getting them a bad name.

Church leaders are similarly worried about the growing interest in the occult. "We are frightened of what seems to be a steady and continuing growth in the popularity of witchcraft and devil worship," said a Church of England spokesman, "and it is frightening to realize it is attracting young people."

There have been a number of bizarre events in England, apparently linked to the black magic craze. A child's body was stolen from a grave. A young man hanged himself after his girl friend hexed him. Another youth was charged with murder after the body of an earl's grandson was found next to a bloodstained letter containing the words "Hail Satan."

The letter also had the Lord's Prayer written backwards—a favorite black magic incantation. "This is a problem that the Church has not met for the past 200 years," the Rev. Tom Willis told an Anglican Church synod last weekend.

"But priests are now finding all over the country that they are having to cast out devils and evil spirits. 'People are turning away from material things like cars and refrigerators ... The supernatural is gaining ascendancy.' 'More and more people are dabbling in fortune telling, home seances, witchcraft and black magic.'"

Police say some members of the score or so of black magic groups in the London area, who dance naked and conduct perverted church services, are respectable businessmen. Con men have cashed in on the growing interest in the occult. A Birmingham "faith healer" got an eight-year jail sentence for defrauding 670 pounds—$1,670—out of women by "removing evil spirits" through such techniques as anointing them and having sexual intercourse with them.

Govm't Car For Martha Mitchell

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Whenever Martha Mitchell wants to leave her luxury apartment by the Potomac she telephones for a sleek, chauffeured black sedan leased by the federal government.

Keeping a 1972 Mercury at the disposal of the attorney general's wife 24 hours a day costs the taxpayers $850 a year, plus the driver's salary of about $8,300.

"Those cars are supposed to be for official use only, not for Cabinet wives," said a General Services Administration official when told Mrs. Mitchell has been assigned her own car and driver since President Nixon took office.

The GSA assigns government-owned cars for use by bureaucrats with the exception of top executives and is responsible for seeing that they are properly used.

Mrs. Mitchell's car comes from a pool reserved for top Justice Department officers, but the GSA official said he finds it "highly unusual" that she has her own.

He said government regulations would have to be stretched for officials to send their drivers to pick up their wives even on a temporary basis.

The GSA official and a Justice Department administrator familiar with Mrs. Mitchell's car were reluctant to identify themselves.

The Justice official said the practice of making cars available to the wife of the attorney general is not new.

Autos were set aside for use by Mrs. Ramsey Clark, Mrs. Nicholas Katzenbach, Mrs. Robert Kennedy, Mrs. William Rogers and Mrs. Herbert Brownell, while their husbands ran the Justice Department, the official said.

How about other Cabinet wives in the Nixon administration?

"Mrs. Rogers, I think, has one because of all the diplomatic receptions at the State Department, but I doubt if budget restrictions will allow the others (to have them too)," the Justice official said.

Mrs. Rogers, wife of the secretary of state who was attorney general under President Eisenhower, has a car available during the day for diplomatic functions, the State Department acknowledged.

Mrs. Mitchell's car apparently is available all the time. "I know of no restrictions," the Justice official said.

She said authority for Mrs. Mitchell's use of the car comes from the White House Office of Management and Budget.

"It's an unwritten thing, perhaps a stretching of the regulations," she added.

The autos come from the Ford Motor Co. and as soon as the new Mercurys come out, the year-old model is traded in for a new one.

Plan Program Of Thanksgiving

A Thanksgiving program will be held at Brown Chapel Church on Thursday, November 25, at 7:30 p.m.

The Youth Departments of Whichard Chapel and Friendship Holiness Church will take part on the program, which will include a mother and daughter and father and son discussion on the topic "Why I Am Thankful." The public is invited to attend the program.

Drivers Are Cautioned

Don Costa, safety director of the Allstate Motor Club warns that "Motorists should drive defensively whenever they are on the road, particularly during the long holiday season."

Costa said that the joyous Thanksgiving tradition in America is often turned into a tragic occasion for hundreds of families every year due to traffic fatalities.

The safety director advised holiday motorists to allow extra time for travel when planning a motor trip. Heavy traffic and bad weather this time of year result in road congestion and frustration for those with too tight a schedule, he cautioned.

Costa also advised motorists to make certain their cars are in proper running order, never drive without seat and shoulder belts fastened, and keep an eye on the speedometer. He cautioned drivers to signal for every lane change and never drink when planning to drive, or vice versa.

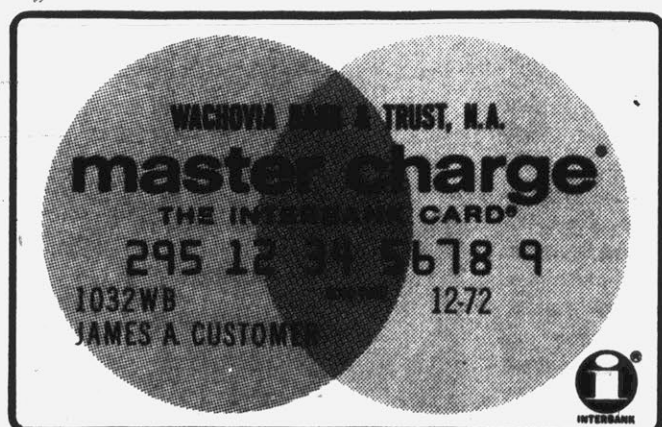

Ambulance Bids To Be Opened

WINTERVILLE — Bids for an ambulance and equipment and a radio for the ambulance will be opened Friday at 8:30 a.m. at the Winterville Municipal Building.

According to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, separate bids will be accepted for the ambulance and radio. The town is asking for a 1972 van or carryall vehicle equipped with ambulance equipment and a radio.

Bids will be accepted until 8:30 a.m. Friday.

New Slush Fund In The Works

Washington politicians have come up with a great many hair-brained schemes for spending taxpayers' money, but the one that would provide campaign funds from taxes for major political parties is much worse than most.

It will turn out to be nothing more than a multi-million dollar slush fund through which those in control of the respective parties can tighten their hold on political machinery. The idea that it will provide rank and file citizens a means of participating more meaningfully in the affairs of the political party of their choosing is ridiculous.

Citizens who want to participate financially in national political campaigns already can do so directly without adding the amount to their tax bill. And whatever they contribute — whether it be one dollar or a thousand — will provide individuals with a much more meaningful voice in their respective political parties than sending the money through a government agency.

Congress should reject the proposal once and for all.

Galifianakis Launched Campaign In The East

Rep. Nick Galifianakis is off and running in the race for the United States Senate.

Galifianakis is opposing Sen. B. Everett Jordan for the Democratic nomination and it is bound to be one of the most active senatorial campaigns we have seen in this state in some time.

The 43-year-old Galifianakis chose to begin his tour of the state on announcement day by making his first appearance in Greenville. He also made an appearance in Kinston and Wilmington in the east. The party also flew to Raleigh-Durham, Winston-Salem, Charlotte and Asheville during the day.

Galifianakis is starting the campaign behind and it is encouraging that he is paying some attention to the eastern section of the state by initiating his campaign here.

Seeing A Need Of Scapegoats

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Rising Republican alarm over the failure of the recession economy to respond strongly to President Nixon's New Economic Policy was bleakly evident last Tuesday when Mr. Nixon summoned his Congressional leaders to a routine session in the White House.

Rep. Bob Wilson of California, the shrewd politician who heads the House Republican Campaign Committee and who speaks his mind with sometimes brutal frankness, expressed alarm over the political impact of the skidding stock market. Had the time not come, he asked Mr. Nixon, for the Administration to relax margin requirements for stock purchases, thus making it easier to buy securities on credit?

The President replied that lowered margin requirements were certainly one weapon still in his recovery arsenal but the time to use it was not now. Contradicting the import of Wilson's suggestion, the President was confident the economy was responding well and Republicans running for reelection next year had nothing to fear.

That satisfied neither Wilson nor his fellow Republican leaders. Indeed, the President's characteristic hyperbole in describing 1972 far and wide not just as a "very good" year but as a "great" year finds little support today even at strategic places inside his own Administration. The proof of this lies in the fact that high-level Administration planners are beginning to look for political scapegoats to explain away the failure of a strong recovery after more than three months of the New Economic Policy.

One such prospective scapegoat is Dr. Arthur Burns, the immensely prestigious chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. In tones that are still muted, Dr. Burns is now being described by some Nixon economic operatives as the man who holds the real key to economic recovery by his power over the money supply.

Burns, it is being said, has now reduced the growth of the money supply to zero, after several months of rapid expansion, an alleged reduction that endangers strong recovery, particularly in the absolutely vital sector of capital goods (new plant and equipment).

Burns has been on the receiving end of White House brickbats before. In the face of today's soft-voiced reprimands, Burns remains as immovable as a mountain, according to his intimates at the Federal Reserve.

Allegations that he has cut the money supply to a zero growth rate are dismissed out of hand. Moreover, the continuing decline in long-term interest rates plus the record growth in savings and loan deposits (up a staggering $30 billion the first ten months of 1971) are perceived by Burns as evidence that ample money is available to fuel a strong recovery. What is lacking is not money but business confidence in Phase II of the NEP, dangerously spiced by fears of international economic warfare.

The other scapegoat now being readied for White House blasts is the Democratic Congress and its alleged foot-dragging in passing Mr. Nixon's new tax program, particularly the investment tax credit to induce business investment in capital goods. This, too, is still low key, but the Administration line is clear: business will not risk major investment in capital goods until the investment tax credit (retroactive to last spring) is signed into law. Thus, Administration strategists are lying the groundwork for blaming the Democratic Congress if the predicted strong recovery fails to materialize.

Strength For Today

RECOVERABLE

Is there hope in our present age of violence? There certainly is, one reason being that humanity has passed through such ages before and has emerged victoriously. Even when life is shattered there are certain elements of the shattered life that are recoverable. We cannot bring a loved one back from death, but we can live in the memory of that loved one. We cannot wave a wand over riot and have it subside. We cannot waste our fortunes and still have them.

Yet there is an immense amount of life that is always recoverable. We have to accommodate ourselves to our sorrows. We have to take financial loss as it comes and try to learn how to recoup and start again on new ventures. We must speak up on what we believe though it may mean severing certain friendships, being dismissed from necessary and pleasant employment. Some blessings are always to be found even in the most discouraging events. Life is not something to drive us to discouragement. It is a challenge that we must meet whether we want to or not.

Many a person has lost his wealth and later regained it. Many have lost their wealth and accustomed themselves thereafter to a much more simple life. Millions of people throughout the world are living pleasantly even though they have been through events that tried their patience to the breaking point.

Much of a broken life is recoverable.

WASHINGTON — The news that the FBI has been investigating CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr caused some trepidation among Washington journalists early last week.

But then the White House explained it all. Mr. Schorr was being investigated, a spokesman said, because he was being considered for a high government job, and the White House wanted to run a check on him before they offered him the position.

Well, all of us relaxed when we heard the explanation, not only because it made sense, but also because it showed that the Administration harbored no ill feelings. Mr. Schorr has been a consistent critic of Administration policies and if he was being considered for a high government job, that meant any of us could be tapped for public service.

A group of correspondents were sitting in the White House press room the other day, chuckling over the latest White House press release, when Clyde Mothballer of the Kinzu Telegram Ledger was called to the phone.

He came back white-faced and said, "That was my mother. The FBI was just at her house and wanted to know what library books I borrowed when I was a kid."

"Congratulations Mothballer," the AP man said, "that means you're up for an important government job."

"I don't know," Clyde said. "The Administration got awfully mad at me about my articles on the Supreme Court appointments. As a matter of fact someone from the White House called my editor and suggested I be sent to Moscow where I understood the government better."

"Don't be silly, Mothballer," the Boston Globe man said, "the Administration doesn't hold grudges. I wouldn't be surprised if they made you secretary of the treasury."

"You would think they would ask me if I wanted a job first," Mothballer said. "They wanted to surprise you," the Washington Post correspondent assured him. "To think, one of our boys will be in the Cabinet."

"The FBI man didn't say anything to my mother about a Cabinet appointment. But he did want to know if I ever played with Daniel Ellsberg as a kid," Mothballer said.

"It's just a smokescreen, Clyde," the Los Angeles Times man said. "They always ask that when they're considering somebody for secretary of defense."

"My mother said they also went around to the neighbors and asked them if I had ever had any strong feelings about Cuba."

"That means you're being put up for head of the CIA," a UPI photographer said. "With Dick Helms being moved upstairs, they're probably looking for a new chief of operations."

"It's possible," Mothballer said, "but my mother said she caught two of the FBI (Continued on page 5)

To The Editor:

I would like to appeal to the parents of the Greenville area concerning a potentially dangerous situation. We have been plagued for the past few weeks in the Brook Valley and Eastwood neighborhoods by young hunters armed with .22 gauge rifles and shot guns. In the course of the search for "game" their guns have been discharged literally in our backyards, scattering casings and shot to decorate roof and lawn. There are fifteen children under twelve years of age who reside on our street. It takes no extra-sensory gift to predict that there is a good chance, in the light of present circumstances, for a tragic reduction in that number. Gun shot wounds are among the three leading causes of accidental child death in North Carolina.

It seems to me sheer stupidity to allow an unsupervised fourteen year old out of the house with a lethal weapon. And perhaps one of the inherent glories of our democracy is the right to be stupid. Still there must be limitations. Adolescent carelessness is partially forgivable, parental irresponsibility is not. If the moral issues of negligence do not motivate some of our adults, maybe the legal ramifications will!

Banks Don't Agree On Phase Two

By ELMER ROESSNER

Banks hire the best economists available. They have access to many private statistics as well as government figures. They are privy to the attitudes and financial actions of the millionaires of America. Therefore, banks' views on the economy are both interesting and significant.

At the moment, banks' outlooks and opinions, as disclosed in current newsletters and public statements, are as diverse and confused as almost everybody else's. Here is a sampling:

Chase Manhattan, the nation's third largest: "Progress is being made in turning the economic policies announced by President Nixon... into operating fact. It has been highly uneven progress... A balanced array of tax measures should stimulate economic growth and reduce unemployment.... A reasonable program of price-wage restraints can slow the rate of inflation... There is general agreement that the program offers real benefits for the U.S. economy over the next year or so."

A Dissent

Irwin L. Kellner, economist, Manufacturers Hanover Trust, fourth largest: "Unless the Administration... acts quickly to bolster what is apparently a renewed sag in people's confidence... then its entire inflation control program stands in danger of collapsing and with it the recovery."

First National City, second largest: "It is ironic that the announcement of Phase II has led to more uncertainty in the private economy because the President's New Economic Program was both intended and received as an effort to dispel prevailing doubts about the course of the economy; (yet) predictable because the program overlays the normal uncertainty with new questions about the effects of government controls in various markets.... However, the consensus is that the rate of advance in real output in 1972 will be the most rapid in six years and that it will be accompanied by a decline in the unemployment rate and a further slowdown in the rate of inflation."

Cleveland Trust, 23rd largest: "Phase II... may finally prove to be deeply discouraging to the investment community... The U.S. has moved from a temporary price freeze that was to last three months and (that was to) rely on Believed by officers to have been connected with a counterfeiting ring, an Ayden man was held under bond today for hearing in the next sitting of the Federal court. He was arrested following the alleged passing of counterfeit silver pieces. The denominations ranged from five cents to fifty cents. Officers were not able to determine how much of the counterfeit money had been passed by the young man but a fifty cent piece, a nickel and nine dimes were recovered.

The city school system will close tomorrow for the Thanksgiving holidays and work will resume next Monday morning.

Plans had been fully completed today for the observance of Thanksgiving Day in Greenville. The highlight of the observance will be the union Thanksgiving service at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Greenville people, in spite of depression felt in all sections of the world, have many things for which to be grateful this year and they have been urged to attend the service in large numbers.

State Baptists In Final Session

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The North Carolina Baptist State Convention held the final session of its 141st annual meeting today, faced with a number of social issue resolutions and a proposed constitutional amendment on baptism by immersion.

The constitutional change proposed by The Rev. M. O. Owens of Gastonia would limit messengers to convention meetings to those from churches practicing total immersion only.

Owens said in an interview with the church publication, the Biblical Recorder, that he knows of no Baptist church in the state which baptizes by any other way. But he said he hoped his amendment would stop what he called a "mush-rooming" practice of Baptist churches in the state acceptance without rebaptism members who have been baptized only by sprinkling.

In Tuesday's election of convention officers, messengers chose the Rev. Thomas M. Freeman of Dunn as president, succeeding John Lawrence of Raleigh.

Charlotte attorney Allen A. Bailey, who led Mecklenburg County forces against liquor by the drink in the recent election, was elected first vice president, and the Rev. Ray Benfield of Carthage who led similar forces in Moore County, was elected second vice president.

Liquor by the drink carried in Mecklenburg County but was defeated in Moore County.

Benfield earlier had asked messengers to consider a resolution asking Gov. Bob Scott to appoint a study commission on alcohol controls and problems. His measure also would urge Baptists to investigate their local ABC systems to insure that required amounts of profits were being channeled into education, rehabilitation and other requirements.

men going through her trash basket last night."

"That means you're up for an environment job," the NBC man shouted.

"I wish I could be as optimistic as you guys," Mothbaler said. "Suppose the FBI was asking questions to intimidate me?"

The Chicago Sun-Times man was shocked. "Bite your tongue, Mothbaler," he cried. "the Nixon Administration would never stoop to a trick like that, even if they disagreed with every word you wrote."

"He's correct, Clyde," the Newsweek correspondent said. "Atty. Gen. Mitchell would resign before he'd allow the White House to intimidate a newspaperman."

"J. Edgar Hoover wouldn't stand for it," the New York Post man put in.

"I guess you're right," Mothbaler nodded. "I'd better call my mother back and reassure her. She just doesn't understand how Nixon's people operate."

Appoints Keel

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clarence D. Palmby has announced the appointment of James T. Keel of Greenville, N.C., to a 26-member National Peanut Advisory Committee to work closely with USDA officials on policy considerations affecting the Nations' 14th-ranked crop in terms of dollar value of production.

Keel is a native of Pitt County. In addition to the many years of involvement in the tobacco industry, he has for the past 20 years been actively engaged in the growing, processing and distribution of Certified Seed Peanuts.

Because of his association with all segments of the peanut industry, Keel is recognized as one of its foremost authorities. He is a past president of the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association and past member of the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Foundation Seed Producers Association.

Currently, Keel is president and chairman of the board of directors of Keel Peanut Company, Inc., Greenville, N.C.

Conduct Investiture And Awards Event

An investiture and awards program for members of Girl Scout Troop Number 394 was held earlier this week at the First Christian Church, sponsor of the troop.

Preceding the candlelight ceremony and investiture, Kim Carpenter presented a survey of work being done by Troop 394. Eight Girl Scouts — Mary Herring, Ellen Longino, Teresa Sanderford, Nell Mosely, May Sigda, Denise Daniel, Cindy Talbert and Margie Snell were the subjects of the investiture ceremony.

Scout leaders Mrs. Paula Deall and Mrs. Sue Rintamaa led the candlelight ceremony. Three candles were lit symbolizing the Girl Scout promises, with ten girls lighting ten other candles representing the ten Girl Scout laws. Each girl recited a promise at the time of the lighting of the candle.

The investiture and candlelight ceremonies were followed by an awards program in which professional badges were given Girl Scouts fulfilling requirements. This included 23 girls receiving first aid badges, seven receiving horsewoman badges, three sport badges, four swimming badges, two life-saver badges and one each for family life, water life, bird, chef, dress-maker, small craft and stamp collector.

Billy Woolfolk of the Greenville Rescue Squad, who instructed members of Troop 394 in Red Cross standard first aid, presented the Girl Scouts with their first aid card.

Six girls were awarded "Challenge of Emergency Preparedness" awards. These are: Barbara Bond, Ellen Bond, Ellen Crane, Marsha Hodge, Ann Howard and Barbara Pinkston.

Certificates of appreciation were given to Woolfolk for his instructional services and to the minister of First Christian Church for sponsoring the troop. Mrs. Margaret Joyner also received a certificate in recognition of her work as camping assistant.

Kinston Votes Big Bond Issue

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Voters at Kinston approved $2.3 million in water and sewer bonds Tuesday by a margin of nearly 7-1.

Fewer than 900 of the city's nearly 10,000 eligible voters turned out for the election. The vote for the water bonds was 765 for and 122 against, 764 for the sewer bonds and 122 against.

City officials said the water-sewer improvements would make Kinston more attractive to industrial prospects.

Ragweed seeds may lie dormant for 20 years, then sprout.

Bribe Charge In Natural Gas Case Still Disputed

By DICK BARNES and JOHN S. LANG
Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate hearings probing a disputed bribe charge in the El Paso Natural Gas Co. case solved few questions Tuesday and raised new ones, including whether efforts had been made in the Senate Commerce Committee to paper over the bribe argument.

The dispute rips through the middle of the Democratic party in Utah and has tied up Commerce Committee action on legislation that would make legal an El Paso merger which four times has been ruled a violation of antitrust laws by the Supreme Court.

Fourteen years ago El Paso acquired Pacific Northwest Pipe Line Corp. Resultant court decisions ruled that this lessened competition in California. El Paso will have to divest these holdings unless the merger bill is approved.

The legislation already had been enough of a hot potato for the Commerce Committee before Tuesday's hearing, at which one witness said he was told letters aimed at smoothing over the bribe dispute had come from the office of Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the committee and also sponsor of the bill.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, acting committee chairman for this hearing, said further testimony or deposition would be sought to clear up that matter.

The essence of the bribe dispute concerns whether Daniel Berman, a Salt Lake City attorney retained by El Paso, implied to John H. Klas, a banker and Utah Democratic chairman, that a $100,000 interest-free deposit could be made in Klas' bank if he dropped his opposition to the El Paso legislation.

Klas and Lawrence A. Higgins, another official of The Continental Bank and Trust Co. of Salt Lake, testified that, at a meeting Oct. 4, Berman first told Klas he was on the wrong side of the El Paso case, then said he could help arrange a $100,000 deposit from the gas pipeline company.

"I am a reasonably prescient individual," Klas testified. "I naturally had the impression that, if such a deposit were made, there would be a quid pro quo." The quid pro quo? "That I would dampen my opposition to the matter," he said.

When Berman mentioned the deposit, Klas said, he replied: "No way, Dan, no way." Berman testified that this account was an "absolute lie," and said: "I do not recall even mentioning El Paso at the meeting."

The charge was made Oct. 22 during Commerce Committee hearings into the merits of the bill by Beverly C. Moore, an associate of Ralph Nader. At the time, an El Paso official denounced the accusation as "an absolute unmitigated lie." El Paso Chairman Howard Boyd again denied the allegation Tuesday.

In addition to the dispute over whether such an offer was made, the hearing dwelt at length on recent negotiations aimed at resolving the Klas-Berman clash.

These involved several other prominent Utah Democrats, including Wayne Owens, a congressional candidate and chief assistant to Sen. Frank Moss, a Commerce Committee member; Donald Holbrook, twice campaign manager for Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton, and James P. Cowley, a former Moss administrative assistant and manager of his last three Senate races.

Boyd testified Berman had been retained to keep the firm advised of developments in Utah and help communicate El Paso's position to various people.

El Paso general counsel Scott Cuming said in an interview that Berman had arranged three meetings this year for El Paso officials with Sen. Moss, Gov. Rampton and J.W. Gallivan, publisher of the Salt Lake City Tribune.

In his testimony, Berman recalled several things that had been discussed with Higgins and Klas during the meeting at which the alleged interest-free deposit offer was made.

He said he could not remember on which day within a two-week period it had taken place, although he did recall the precise dates of other meetings he held with Klas on other matters in ensuing weeks.

This inability to remember the date of the principal meeting intrigued Sens. Inouye and Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., who questioned Berman at length on his calendar and record-keeping.

After Berman testified "It is an absolute lie to say I ever offered Mr. Klas anything with regard to his position on this," Klas returned to the witness chair and said: "I will categorically state that I will not change one word of my testimony or answers to questions."

Inouye, obviously exasperated at the impasse over what happened, said the hearing transcript would be sent to the Department of Justice for study of whether any legal action should be taken.

Director John Ford Is Honored By Hollywood

DIRECTOR HONORED — Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, talk with director John Ford, left, who was honored at a dinner in Hollywood Tuesday night. (AP Wirephoto)

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "John Ford can bring out in actors as many curves and bends as we have in federal highways," Gov. Ronald Reagan said at a gala salute to the well-known movie director.

After 140 films as a director, Ford made an appearance as an actor Tuesday night and his performance was applauded by a stellar audience.

Among those saluting him were two veteran actors who have worked for Ford—John Wayne and James Stewart—and one who hasn't—Reagan.

"One of my great regrets is that I was never directed by John Ford," said Reagan, who officiated at the showing of "Directed By John Ford." The film is a documentary directed by Peter Bogdanovich, the hottest new director around because of the movie "The Last Picture Show." The Ford film, which has appeared at the New York and San Francisco film festivals, was sponsored by the American Film Institute.

The 76-year-old Ford, considered by most critics the greatest director in American films and the only one to win four Academy Awards, rarely appears in public, especially since he broke his hip last year. But Ford, a retired Navy admiral, came to the showing, walking with the aid of a cane.

He seemed touched by the tributes. But he was as cantankerous as ever when asked about the film:

"I thought it was long, and the print was bad." However, he offered praise to Bogdanovich for his efforts.

"Directed By John Ford," which is designed for showings to film students, features reminiscences by Wayne, Stewart and Henry Fonda, plus an interview with Ford. The director's gruff responses drew appreciative laughter from members of the audience, many of whom have been subjected to his bite.

The film also features scenes from such Ford movies as "Straight Shooting" (1917), "The Iron Horse" (1924), "The Informer" (1935), "Young Mr. Lincoln" (1939), "The Grapes of Wrath" (1940), "The Battle of Midway" (1942), "My Darling Clementine" (1946), "Fort Apache" (1948), "The Quiet Man" (1952), and "Cheyenne Autumn" (1964).

Yugoslav Champ Of Boomerang-Tossers

By GORDON TAIT
SYDNEY (AP) — There's a good old Aussie argument going on about boomerangs—those come-back-to-me missiles perfected by the original Aussies, the Aborigines.

The main point at issue is: Are the "Made in U.S.A." models imported into Australia for sale to American tourists superior to those made by Aborigines in Australia?

The world champion boomerang thrower says, "Yes the Yank models are better." An Aboriginal leader says non-sense.

After that it probably will be no surprise to read that the world champion is not an Aborigine, not even Australian born, not even American born, but Steve Slady born in Yugoslavia.

The argument was sparked by Sen. Neville Bonner, the first and only Aboriginal member of the Australian Federal Parliament.

Bonner, in a speech to Parliament, asked for tariff protection for boomerangs "so that cheap imitations from overseas will not undercut the authentic Aboriginal article." He suggested legislation to restrict the manufacture of boomerangs in Australia "to those who own it as their special heritage."

Then came the follow-ups. Slady, who won his title with a throw of 125 yards in Sydney in 1967, was sought out.

"American boomerangs generally are better than Aboriginal-made," he said. "American manufacturers, like Australian manufacturers, are concerned that their boomerangs come back. The Aborigine couldn't care less whether his comes back or not, as long as it looks pretty and sells."

Then Noel App, manager of the Foundation for Aboriginal Affairs, was given his say:

"Our boomerangs do come back—they're not fakes."

"Some boomerangs mass produced in some Australian factories for export overseas are of poor quality. But the boomerangs made by Aboriginal craftsmen still are the best in the world. The hand-made ones are unbeatable."

"The Americans can't produce anything like some of the boomerangs we see in this country. Our Aborigines make some that can be thrown in the air and make two complete circles before hovering and falling at the thrower's feet. Nothing produced overseas can compete with these."

"Making a boomerang that will hover in the air for a number of seconds is an art which has taken hundreds of years to perfect. Most American missiles can't compete with the properly made Australian produce."

Set Williamston Yuletide Party

The Mid-East Council on Aging Program will hold a December 14th Christmas Party for all interested senior citizens in the Mid-East District.

The party will be held at Moratock Park in Williamston, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. with a Christmas turkey luncheon provided.

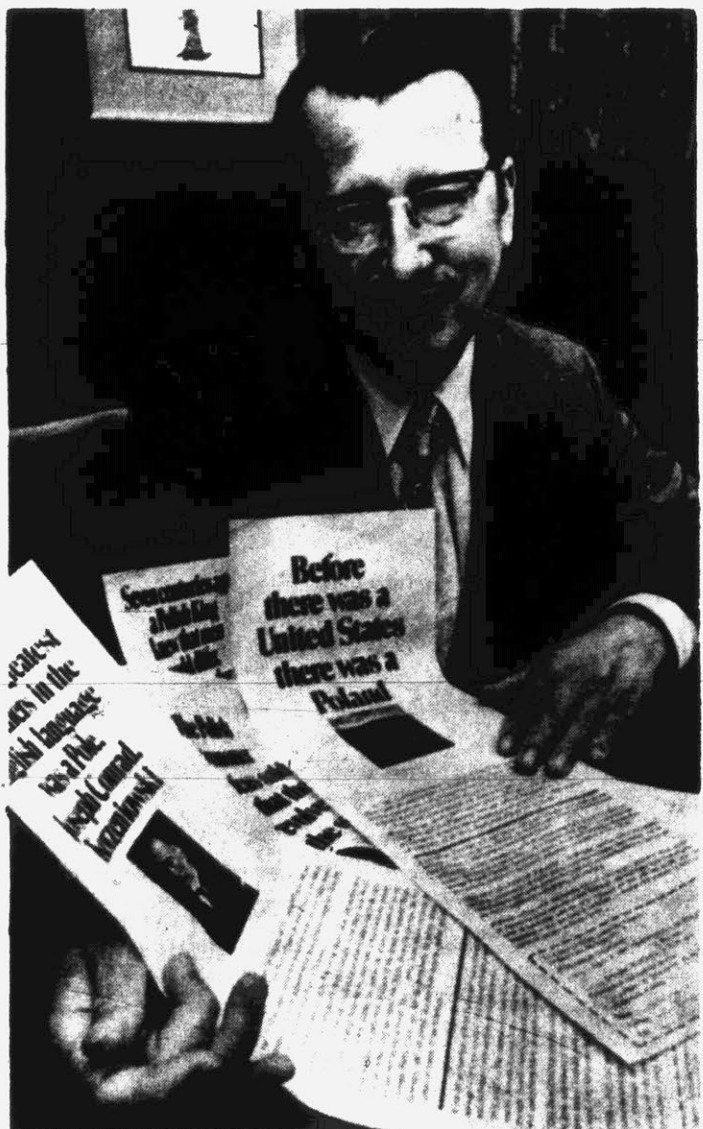

There will be games, a senior citizen talent hour, county booths prepared by senior citizens, entertainment by the Tweenage Choir of the First Baptist Church of Washington and other items of interest.

Those wishing to contribute to either the talent hour or items for the county booths are asked to contact their local Home Extension Agent or the president of a Senior Citizen Club by December 9th.

Blast Planned To Open Channel

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — An Army Corps of engineers spokesman said Tuesday 20 tons of explosives will be detonated simultaneously next month to blast open a channel that separates Core Sound from the Atlantic Ocean.

Edwin G. Long, chief of the engineering division, said the blast has been scheduled tentatively for Dec. 15 but the date is subject to weather conditions and other factors.

He said workers have begun drilling 20 holes across the Carteret County barrier beach and beneath the surf. Each hole will hold a ton of explosives.

The blast is intended to reopen Drum Inlet between Cape Hatteras and Cape Lookout and will provide a new gateway to ocean fishing grounds.

Nebraska Gets Nod In Charts; Alabama Seen Over Auburn

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Nebraska or Oklahoma? Nebraska or Oklahoma?

Oklahoma's unstoppable offense or Nebraska's immovable defense? Nebraska's own potent offense against Oklahoma's big play defense?

Throwing defense out the window, it says here that Oklahoma's super offense gets overshadowed and outscored by ... NEBRASKA.

Other Thursday picks: Georgia over Georgia Tech, Texas over Texas A&M, Mississippi over Mississippi State.

SATURDAY
Alabama vs. Auburn at Birmingham—Another easy one. Merely two more unbeaten. Johnny Musso's running or Pat Sullivan's passing? Will another wishbone bite the dust? Nope. ALABAMA.

Army vs. Navy at Philadelphia—After last year's 11-7 loss, Army's Tom Cahill was heard to mutter: "Next season we'll have the veteran quarterback."

So his starter will be, naturally, J. Kingsley Fink, a sophomore. Last year, each team had only one victory. This time Army has five and needs one more for a winning season; Navy has three. ARMY.

Arizona at Arizona State—Last year it was only 10-6 Arizona State. This time, a fiesta on the way to the Fiesta Bowl. ARIZONA STATE.

Pitt at Florida State—Panthers have surrendered hordes of points and haven't yet faced a passer like Gary Huff. FLORIDA STATE.

Utah at Houston—Marv Bateman may kick one through the roof of the Astrodome, but to no avail. HOUSTON.

Tulane at Louisiana State—Tigers ripe for upset after sky-high win over Notre Dame, but ... LSU.

Iowa State at San Diego State—Cyclones have the misfortune to play in the same conference with Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado. IOWA STATE.

Nation's Top Offense, Defense Collide In Top Thursday Game

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Can the nation's No. 1 college football defense stop the No. 1 offense?

Williams NL Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Williams, Atlanta's slugging young catcher, was named National League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America today.

Williams, who walloped 33 homers last season, received 18 of the 24 votes cast by two writers from each NL city, beating out Philadelphia's Willie Montanez by a wide margin. Montanez, who had 30 homers, received the other six votes.

Williams, 23, came up to the Braves as a third baseman-outfielder and was converted to a catcher during the season. He batted .260 and drove in 87 runs.

Montanez, who came to the Phillies as part of the settlement from St. Louis when Curt Flood failed to report, drove in 99 runs and batted .255. He had been the early favorite for rookie honors and led Williams in homers 17-15 at the All Star break in July.

But Williams blossomed in the final 2½ months and his 33 homers were fifth best total in the National League. He is only the second catcher to ever win the NL rookie award. The other was Cincinnati's Johnny Bench in 1968.

Williams, who lives in Montclair, N.J., is the first Atlanta player to win the rookie award and the third Brave in the 25-year history of the award. The others were Alvin Dark in 1948 and Sam Jethroe in 1950—both when the team was still in Boston.

Cleveland's Chris Chambliss was named American League rookie of the year by the BBWA on Monday.

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League today announced the signing of Dick Lyons' a 195-pound fullback cut this year by New Orleans Saints of the National Football League.

The former University of Kentucky player was signed as a temporary replacement for regular fullback Jim Evenson who suffered stretched knee ligaments in a game Monday in Hamilton.

CAGE CROWD

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The University of Michigan's basketball team drew an all-time high of 127,905 fans for 12 games in Crisler Arena in the 1970-71 season.

tions for Thursday's nationally televised game of the year. The kickoff is set for 2:50 p.m. EST.

Nebraska has yielded only 171 yards a game. Oklahoma's blistering wishbone offense has averaged 563 yards a game.

To the question, quarterback Jack Mildren, the trigger man in Oklahoma's offense, flatly said, "No." Sooner halfback Greg Pruitt, who has averaged 9.5 yards a play, said, "We'll win."

Both are impressed with the Black Shirts, Nebraska's defensive unit, but insisted Oklahoma can move the ball against the Cornhuskers.

"They're better on defense than any team we've played," said Mildren, generally regarded as the best triple option quarterback in the country. "However, we don't think anybody can stop us."

Pruitt, whose rocket running has netted 1,423 yards, said bluntly:

"I am confident we will beat them because I have confidence in our team and myself. I think we proved we played our best under pressure ... back there when we beat Southern California, Texas and Colorado in a row. I don't think Nebraska has played a pressure game this year."

Coach Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma, 9-0, doesn't go along with the theory that Nebraska, unbeaten in 29 straight games and 10-0 this season, is better on defense than on offense.

"Nebraska is as fine a college football team as I've ever seen," Fairbanks said. "They are a complete football team. They do so well in all phases of the game."

"Nebraska is not the type of team that beats itself. To win, we have to play better than we have all year long. We have to play a complete game. We're not going to win it on offense or on defense alone."

Fairbanks said he doesn't think Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney will make major adjustments on defense.

"Of course," Fairbanks said, "there will be adjustments. Nebraska probably will make some adjustment in their secondary for us. I don't expect any big change. They have the nation's best defense as it is."

Larry Lacewell, the Sooners' defensive coach, admitted Oklahoma doesn't have the depth on defense some other teams have.

"Depth in our defense has been a problem all season," he said, then sighed and added: "The only good thing that has happened to me this year is I didn't have to defend the Oklahoma offense."

Devaney has said that the theory the Sooners are strictly offense-oriented and do not have a good defense is a lot of hogwash.

"Oklahoma's defense is vastly underrated," Devaney said. "You've just heard more about their offense."

Fairbanks sidestepped a question about the game's outcome. Instead of answering the question, he said:

"I hope the game is not decided by some fluke. I want Oklahoma at full strength and Nebraska at full strength. I hope it's decided by whoever has the best players on the field."

Devaney hasn't made any predictions, either, but has let it be known that "we're going to do everything possible to remain No. 1."

Devaney did indicate he thought the game between these two high-scoring teams could be a close one.

"In a game between two high scoring teams," he said, "you normally don't think of a field goal being a factor but it sure could be."

Oklahoma is expected to attack mostly on the ground. The Sooners have averaged 481.4 yards a game and only 81.8 yards passing.

However, Mildren has completed 48 per cent of his rare passes for 646 yards and seven touchdowns.

Officers Are Named

The Greenville Little Leagues have elected their officers for the 1972 season, it was announced today.

Dan Gordon has been appointed supervisor of the leagues, beginning his sixth straight year in the post.

The new president of the North State League is George W. Shoe. Serving with him are Clarence B. Tugwell, vice-president; Freager R. Sanders, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. W. W. Brown, women's auxiliary president.

George S. Coffman will serve as the president of the Tar Heel League for the coming year. Named vice-president was Woody Peele, while Seth Jones Jr. will serve as secretary-treasurer. Mrs. James F. Bowman will serve as the president of that league's women's auxiliary.

Knick Defense Sparkles Again

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — That old Knick magic's got the National Basketball Association in its spell.

"We're really playing well now," said Dave DeBusschere as the revitalized New York Knicks walloped Cincinnati 125-110 Tuesday night with a punch reminiscent of past seasons.

DeBusschere's generalization can be broken down into specifics, namely: defense. That was the Knicks' formula during their 1969 championship season.

And that was their magic again Tuesday night.

"Defense creates offense," said New York Coach Red Holzman, whose club won its fourth straight game and climbed over the .500 mark for a change after struggling out of the starting gate this year.

In the night's other NBA games, Buffalo topped Atlanta 102-97; Milwaukee turned back Detroit 112-104; Cleveland trimmed Baltimore 104-102; Chicago smashed Portland 130-94 and Phoenix 128, Philadelphia 107.

New York's run-and-gun offense was powerfully evident right from the start as Dick Barnett led a first-quarter charge with 12 points, hitting his first four field goal tries.

"We're running better and we're handling the ball better," said Holzman, explaining the Knicks' reversal of early-season form that produced an unlikely 6-9 record, and, at one time, had them in last place in the Atlantic Division.

"It's a big thing, being over .500 ... It's been a long time coming," said DeBusschere, who snared 20 rebounds and scored 17 points in but 28 minutes of play against the Royals.

Another Royal pain in the neck was Walt Frazier, who has been another reason for the Knicks' sudden-found power. He scored 23 points and passed to teammates for four more baskets, something he's been doing with regularity in recent games.

Led by Barnett, Frazier and Jerry Lucas, the Knicks showed who was boss right away by shooting 60 per cent from the field and carving out a 65-39 halftime lead. It was all downhill for New York after that, despite a game-high 24 points by Cincinnati's Nate Archibald and 23 more by teammate Jim Fox.

Walt Hazzard, traded last summer, came back to haunt Atlanta as he scored 30 points to lead Buffalo's victory.

Facing his former teammates for the first time since his trade, Hazzard kept the Braves ahead in the foul-loaded contest. After Atlanta closed within one point with a minute left, Hazzard scored just as the 24-second clock ran out to make the score 100-97.

Then Walt Bellamy missed for the Hawks and Buffalo's Bob Kauffman grabbed the rebound. Rookie Elmore Smith's goal provided the Braves with their final two points.

Kareem Jabbar scored 34 points to lead hot-shooting Milwaukee over Detroit.

The defending NBA champions, breaking a two-game spin, shot almost 60 per cent from the field. Bob Dandridge threw in 24 points for the Bucks, while John Block and Oscar Robertson had 15 each. Bob Lanier scored 28 for the Pistons.

John Johnson and rookie Austin Carr sparked a second-half scoring binge to lead Cleveland over Baltimore. Johnson wound up with 25 points to lead the Cavaliers while Carr, the club's No. 1 draft choice starting his second game after recovering from a foot injury, scored 22.

Archie Clarke, who scored 10 points to lead a last-quarter Bullet comeback try, led both teams with 30 points.

Chet Walker scored 23 points to lead six Chicago players in double figures. The Bulls roared to a 35-20 first-quarter advantage behind Walker's 13 points and never were threatened.

Sidney Wicks, Portland's ace rookie, scored 25 points for the losers and added a touch of comedy by putting the ball in the wrong basket on one play. Those two points went to Chicago.

Rookie Moe Layton, making his first start of the year, tallied 27 points as Phoenix stopped Philadelphia.

Supports Antitrust

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angered by talk the Baltimore Colts are considering moving their franchise to Tampa, Fla., Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., said Tuesday he will support legislation to bring professional sports under antitrust laws.

Long said he hopes the threat of federal scrutiny of sports' "special rights," such as the common draft, the option clause, limits on league membership and location of television rights "will deter the owners from voting for the move."

However, although the Colts have been silent about any discussions it is generally believed the club is considering moving only its summer training camp and exhibition games to Tampa.

The Colts have been plagued by poor attendance at their home exhibition games.

Scouts List Top Prospects

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Florida quarterback John Reaves and Oregon running back Bobby Moore are rated better pro prospects by National Football League teams than Heisman Trophy candidates Pat Sullivan and Ed Marinaro, an Associated Press survey showed today.

Several scouts for pro teams were asked to name college stars who would be certain first-round picks in the NFL draft. Neither Sullivan, the Auburn quarterback, nor Marinaro, the Cornell running back, were among the 10 selected.

The 10 players named as sure-fire first-round selections are:

—John Reaves, quarterback, Florida.

—Bobby Moore, running back, Oregon.

—Walt Patulski, defensive end, Notre Dame.

—Tommy Casanova, defensive back, LSU.

—Willie Hall, linebacker, Southern California.

—Royce Smith, guard, Georgia.

—Franco Harris, running back, Penn State.

Baima Captures Scoring Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brian Baima caught just one touchdown pass in The Citadel's 47-7 rout of Davidson last Saturday, but that 12-yard aerial from Harry Lynch was all the Bulldogs' split end needed to win the Southern Conference football scoring championship.

It was Baima's 13th scoring reception of the season and gave him 78 points — six more than Clayton Deskins of Appalachian State and Phil Mosser of William and Mary.

Mosser scored twice in the Indians' 21-19 defeat by Richmond that cost them their second conference championship, but Deskins was scoreless for the second week in a row as Appalachian whipped Elon 14-10. Both finished with 12 touchdowns and 72 points.

The Citadel, the league's highest scoring team, swept the next three spots with running backs Bob Carson and Jon Hall fourth and sixth and sophomore quarterback Lynch sandwiched between them in fifth place.

Carson scored twice against Davidson and wound up with 68 points on 11 touchdowns and a two-point conversion. Lynch scored once for 10 touchdowns and a pair of two-pointers for 64 points. Hall, who scored twice, had eight touchdowns and a two-point for 50 points.

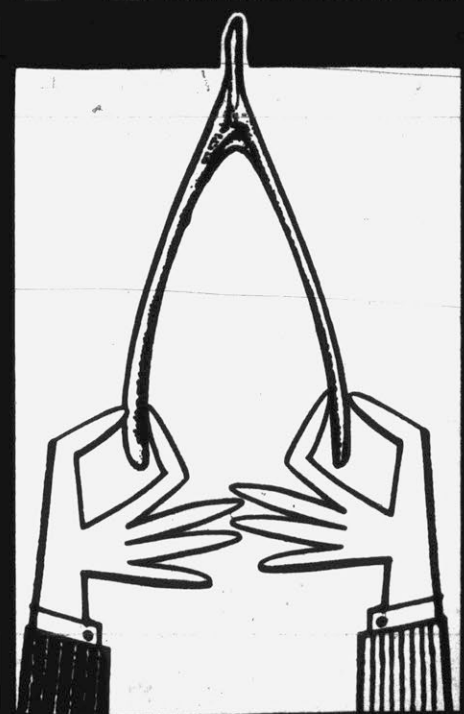

Tied for seventh with eight touchdowns and 48 points each were running backs Carlester Crumpler of East Carolina and Dennis Cambal of William and Mary. Crumpler finished his season a week ago, while Cam-bal was scoreless in the Richmond game.

There was a deadlock for ninth with seven touchdowns and 42 points each between Johnny Ribet of Davidson and Steve Crisp of Furman, last year's scoring leader. Ribet didn't score against The Citadel, but Crisp had one touchdown in a 23-10 victory over Carson-Newman.

Mike Dodds of William and Mary kicked 31 extra points and three field goals for 40 points, while Mac Bowman of Virginia Military — the only player with a game left — has six touchdowns and 36 points.

The Worry Clinic

Humor Tied To Social Quality

Harry wants to know why Bob Hope gets a different reaction from introverts vs. extroverts! He wishes a diagnosis of humor. So study this case with care. Then note the different reactions of your friends to wisecracks or jokes. And send for the booklet below if you aspire to be a writer!

By-GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph. D., M. D.

Case S-526: Harry D., aged 20, is a psychology major. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I am to write a theme for my Social Psychology class.

"It deals with humor. "So could you offer any suggestions?"

"For example, why are some people ardent fans of Bob Hope, while others don't seem to have much sense of humor?"

Humor Psychology

Humor is chiefly a social function.

Like language, it would be very rare in a person who was isolated on a deserted island, a la Robinson Crusoe.

Thus, would you expect "only" children to laugh as much at jokes or understand the prevailing humor of their generation, as would kiddies reared in a big family of brothers and sisters?

And what about the capacity of introverts vs. extroverts for humor?

On a desert island, an introverted violinist might still relish his music. And a chemist or engineer might be devoted to his scientific research.

For those introverted vocations don't require much socializing with other human beings.

As such, do you readers think a bank teller, an accountant, a farmer, a chemist, or an engineer would appreciate jokes the way an extroverted salesman does?

Humor thus depends to a large degree on wide social experience plus facile communication skills, as indicated by a rich everyday vocabulary.

For example, do you visualize the American Indians as being noted for "gags," wisecracks, puns and Bob Hope jokes?

A sense of humor also depends to some degree on previous experience with the humorous situation.

For laughter results at the unexpected "twist" of a former familiar cause-and-effect relationship that now doesn't perform according to Hoyle.

For example, when a stodgy business tycoon struts down the street in formal attire, with a silk plug hat atop his head, suppose he slips on a banana peel.

This drops him from his exalted deportment to a sudden wallowing on the sidewalk.

So onlookers laugh uproariously at this disruption of the previously expected behavior of such a pompous

The bidding:

Opening lead: Five of ♦ South was admittedly unfortunate in running into a four-one division in clubs, which led to the upset of his three no trump contract. He could have improved his chances, however, by taking one extra precaution on the deal.

Since South's spade suit is not biddable, being headed by the ten, he properly chose hearts—the higher ranking of the remaining suits for his initial call. West overcalled with one spade and North made a forcing takeout to two clubs. After his partner rebid two diamonds, North made certain of reaching game and at the same time showed his spade control, by cue bidding in West's suit. When South merely signed off at two no trump, North abandoned any glamorous ambitions he might have had and carried on to three no trump.

West opened the five of spades and dummy's king won the trick. South led the king of clubs at trick two in order to retain the lead in the North hand in the event that the opposition did not release the ace. West was in again and he returned the four of spades to dislodge dummy's remaining stopper in the suit.

South cashed the queen of clubs, however when West showed out, it became apparent that East held a second stopper in the form of the nine of clubs. Since there were no more entries to dummy, the suit became a dead issue. After playing the ten of clubs, South led a diamond and successfully finessed the jack. Even if diamonds broke, declarer could count only eight tricks—four diamonds, two spades and two clubs. He led the jack of hearts next to sneak thru a ninth. West promptly put up the ace of hearts and cashed the Q-J-6 of spades to send his opponent down to defeat.

South could have bettered his prospects slightly by crossing over to his hand at trick two with the ace of diamonds to play the jack of clubs. If West follows with a small card, declarer must overtake with the queen as his best effort to continue successful establishment of the suit since North has only the ace of spades left as a side entry to dummy.

When the jack of clubs is led, West is obliged to play the ace in the present case and when North gets in with his high spade, the king, queen and ten of clubs pick up East's remaining cards in that suit—permitting South to cash six clubs, two spades and two diamonds—10 tricks, without even risking the diamond finesse.

executive.

But outbursts of laughter also correlate somewhat with our physical exuberance and excess vitality.

When sick people are low in energy or approaching death, we medics try to protect them against too much conversation. For they haven't sufficient energy to maintain repartee.

Certainly, they do not have the surplus vitality to laugh at wisecracks or even appreciate funny "Get Well" cards. Take note!

Furthermore, a two-sex audience, comprised of males and females, will laugh far more loudly at the very same joke, than the same sized audience of men alone or of women alone.

Why? Because there is always a subconscious reciprocal stimulation of the two sexes when in the same room.

This creates more energy, which furnishes the motive power for extra giggles, laughter and heartier applause.

School Adds
Greenhouse

Through the cooperation of two occupational education classes, Farmville Central High School will soon add a greenhouse to its campus facilities.

The brick masonry class of Arthur Davis, Jr. and the horticulture class of E. P. Bass have combined efforts to prepare a foundation for the greenhouse. The metal framework of the building will be moved to Farmville Central from its present location at the H. B. Sugg School.

"After the framework is placed on its new foundation and the broken glass panes replaced, I hope we can begin using the greenhouse sometime in January," said Bass. "We will use the facility to teach skills in the horticulture business with an emphasis on ornamental vegetation such as azalea cuttings in addition to fruit and vegetable plants."

Carl Toot, Director of Occupational Education for Pitt County Schools said that this type of inter-class cooperation is common throughout the county. "We feel that this experience will better prepare the student for the inter-agency cooperation that is necessary in the actual work world," he explained.

Christmas Cards
Began In 1843

NEW YORK (AP) — John Calcott Horsley, 19th century British artist, really started something in 1843 when he designed the first Christmas card for Sir Henry Cole, founder of the Victoria and Albert Museum.

Before the year is out Americans will have bought more than seven billion greeting cards, says Irving Cohen, president of a card shop chain.

A Picasso Offering

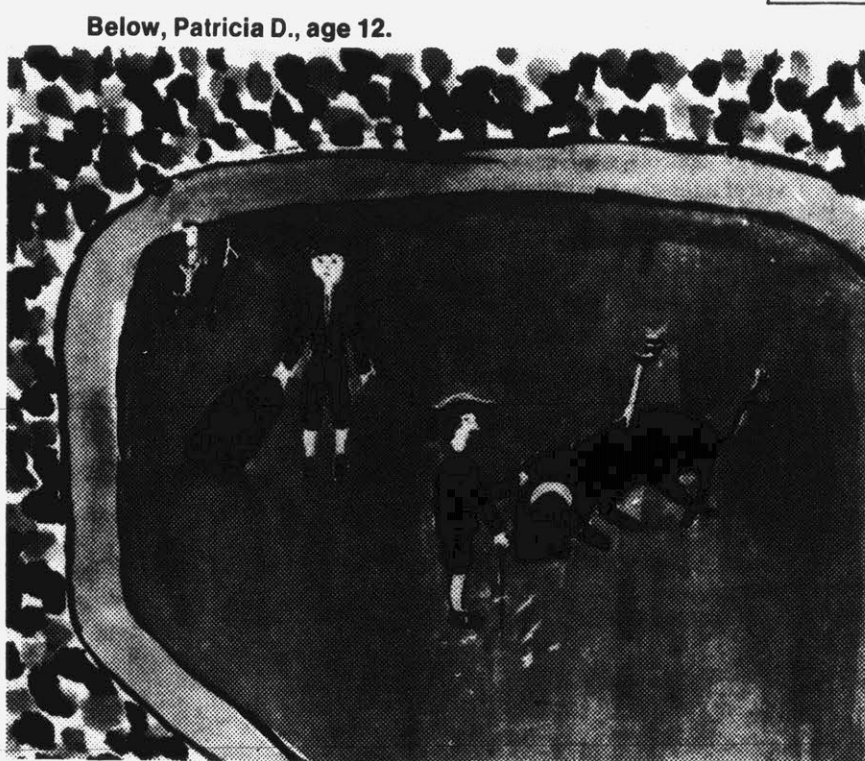

Pablo Picasso has given gifts of genius to the world during many productive decades of energetic creativity. Now, to celebrate his 90th birthday—October 25, 1971—an engaging collection of his gifts together with children's gifts to him is being presented in the form of a book, some illustrations from which are reproduced here.

To honor Picasso's 85th birthday, the children of the pottery-making town of Vallauris in southern France, where he has lived and worked on some of his greatest ceramics, drew and painted for him pictures of bullfighting. Picasso is an enthusiastic follower of the bullfight, and he was so delighted with the children's offerings to him that he chose some of their pictures, added a selection of his own bullfight sketches and drawings, and suggested that the collection should be made into a book. The book is being published, in time for his 90th birthday, by Harry Abrams, Inc., under the title "Children's Homage to Picasso."

Defense Bill Passed By Senate

By LAWRENCE L. KNUSTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Blocking moves to bring 60,000 U.S. troops home from Europe and to hold a $4-billion spending line on military intelligence, the Senate has passed a defense bill trimmed below presidential requests. But the net dollar effect of Tuesday's voting was to restore about three-quarters of the $800 million cut from the bill by the Senate Appropriations Committee, bringing the total new spending authority for the Pentagon to $70.8 billion. The total is $2.7 billion below the administration's request. The 80-5 vote by which the measure finally as passed and sent to conference with the House did not reflect the heated floor debates over U.S. European troop deployment and intelligence spending secrecy. The Senate did avoid a potentially bruising debate when an expected move to bring another Vietnam withdrawal move to a vote failed to materialize. Only once in a long series of votes on amendments did the Senate choose to go against the express wishes of the President, administration officials and military leaders. Then, on an 82-14 roll call, it added to the bill an amendment by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., earmarking $500 million in credit to help Israel buy Phantom jets and other arms. The Senate later voted, 54 to 38, to remove from the bill a proposal drafted by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield which would have placed a 250,000 ceiling on the number of troops stationed permanently in Europe and brought about 60,000 men home. That vote came after an appeal from Nixon who said a unilateral cut would, "with one stroke, diminish Western military capability in Europe and signal to friend and adversary alike a disarray and weakness of purpose in the American government."

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., who said the American economy can no longer stand the financial strains it has been bearing abroad since the end of World War II, pleaded the case for increased domestic spending and said: "There are those in this body who can hear the furthest drum before they can hear the cry of a single hungry child." Symington and Sen. J.W. Fulbright triggered another stormy debate in trying to convince the Senate to clamp a $4-billion spending limit on the nation's intelligence activities. They lost by a 56-31 vote.

Symington contended the veil of secrecy is so heavy that even senators often don't know of such major undertakings as American-financed combat in Laos. The result of the vote was to leave intelligence hidden in the defense budget.

Warn Businessmen Of Holiday Check-Cashing

Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., N.A. warned Greenville businessmen that they should exercise added caution in cashing checks as the holiday season approaches.

R. W. Howard, Wachovia senior vice president, said that careful examination of all checks and the customers' identification can prevent losses of large sums of money and unnecessary, time-consuming inconvenience to merchants.

Howard said, "Businessmen and their staffs should be extremely careful when they cash checks during the Christmas season. This is the time of the year when stores are busiest and most likely to overlook a bad check that might be spotted more easily at other times of the year. A few extra seconds can save a lot of time and money later."

The vice president listed 11 rules to help prevent losses to bad check artists: Beware of strangers. Strangers are not always crooks, but crooks are almost always strangers, he asserted.

Take checks only for the amount of purchase. Most bad check artists try to cash large checks; Weigh the possible loss

Sponsored Party At Nursing Home

The Pitt-Greenville Council on Aging sponsored a Thanksgiving party on November 18 at the Winterville Nursing Home.

A program of readings and songs relating to the first Thanksgiving were given by the Senior Citizens clubs of Popular Hill and Pleasant Plains under the direction of Mrs. H. R. Reeves.

Staff members of the Greenville Redevelopment Commission and the Governor's Council on Aging were present. Gifts were presented to each guest in the home.

against the possible gain. You might lose a customer, but you might also save yourself a lot of trouble;

Never establish the acceptability of any one identification. Ask for multiple identification; If you are offered several identification cards at once, be suspicious and ask for more;

Note the check cashier's height, weight, color of hair and eyes, and other distinguishing characteristics. Be certain they match the description on the driver's license; Have the check endorsed in your presence; Avoid second endorsements from strangers; Have personal checks made out in your presence and made payable to you.

Be extra careful on weekends and holidays. A check forger can use the excuse that other businesses and banks are closed; if you are suspicious about a customer, make certain the check will clear the bank before cashing it.

A Thanksgiving Day service will be held at the Christian Science Church, located on Fourth at Meade Street, Thursday beginning at 11 a.m.

A distinctive aspect of the annual Christian Science Thanksgiving service is the individual expression of gratitude by members of the congregation. No collections are taken.

Citations will be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

The service, which will be conducted by Mrs. James Wright, the First Reader, and James Wright, the Second Reader, is open to the public.

DURHAM (AP) — Civil rights attorney Julius L. Chambers of Charlotte and Lewis T. Randolph of Washington, N. C., have been elected to the board of governors of North Carolina Central University under the new higher education restructuring plan.

Both are graduates of the Durham school, Chambers in 1968 and Randolph in 1951. Chambers received his masters degree from the University of Michigan and his law degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Randolph is vice chairman of the Washington Housing Authority. He has served on the board of trustees of Elizabeth City State University and became a member of the Central board in 1969.

$1,000 Contribution Made To Child Development Center

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Child Development Center, an inter-racial, ecumenical endeavor, has been in operation for approximately one year.

This school has proven to be highly successful in providing training for children ranging in ages 3 through 9 who are mentally retarded. It is operated five days a week with hours 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. At present, enrollment is 11 children.

The staff consists of one teacher and two assistants supplemented by voluntary aids working daily.

A goal of the Center is to give the utmost care with the hope of providing mentally retarded children every opportunity to strive socially and physically to the best of his or her ability.

In the first year of operation, three children have been placed in special education courses in the public school. At least one other child will be promoted to the public school for training beginning in September, 1972. The Fund for Reconciliation is a four-year-program of the National United Methodist Church to raise $20 million to combat poverty, discrimination and injustice. The amount raised to date exceeds $10,500,000,

11 Paraders Arrested

AYDEN — Eleven protestors were arrested here about 1:30 p.m. yesterday for their participation in what Southern Christian Leadership Conference field secretary Golden Frinks called a "Chicken March."

The protestors, all black, walked along South Lee Street carrying white hens. When stopped by Chief of Police James Ross and told they were under arrest for parading without a permit, the protestors tossed the chickens into the air.

A half-dozen or more of the birds were killed by passing cars.

Frinks said the demonstration — the smallest since protests began here in August — was staged to protest a state of emergency invoked last Friday when it was announced that SCLC president Ralph Abernathy would visit Ayden. He termed Mayor Ross Persinger a "chicken" for authorizing the state of emergency.

An American Broadcasting Company television camera crew from Atlanta was present to film the march.

Abernathy aide Bernard Lee, who spoke at a meeting here Monday night, said yesterday that a march to Raleigh, to protest the shooting of a black man by a Highway Patrolman near here in August, has tentatively been set to begin November 29, although it may begin a day or two later.

Davis Attended Georgia Meets

Dennis C. Davis, instructor of physical therapy in the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions, was in Atlanta earlier this month attending professional meetings and visiting physical therapy personnel at Georgia State University.

Davis attended meetings of the Association of Schools of Allied Health Professions and the Council of Physical Therapy School Directors, and spent some time with clinical education personnel of Georgia State University's physical therapy department.

Opryland, U.S.A. Moving Along Right On Schedule

By NANCY SHIPLEY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Opryland USA, the $28 million entertainment-amusement complex which will be the eventual home of the Grand Ole Opry, is moving along right on schedule.

The complex, which will replace the ancient Opry House in downtown Nashville and compete with such things as Six Flags over Georgia and Texas and Disney World in the process, is scheduled to open April 29. And Mike Downs, the general manager, says it now appears it will open on schedule.

Downs says that when Opryland opens, "people will see the most unique entertainment facility in the nation."

Since construction began on the 360-acre site in June 1970, work has been underway on building the 110-acre theme park — which features folk, jazz and blues, country, contemporary and western music.

Final design work has been progressing on the new Opry House, which is not scheduled for completion until early 1974.

The new Opry House, which will cost about $10 million, will seat 4,400 people in air-conditioned comfort, one of the things missing at the old facility.

Doyle Wolfe, director of engineering and maintenance, says more than 225 construction workers are trying to get as many of the 100 buildings as possible under roof before winter.

"Once we get the roofs on the buildings it will make it easier to do the finishing work during the winter months," he said. Almost half of the buildings are already up.

"The American Jazz and Blues area which has a New Orleans motif is the farthest along of the five musical areas," Wolfe says. "We have 10 buildings under roof and two other structures nearing completion on the exterior."

The other musical areas which meander through the area are in varying stages of completion.

"With the exception of the contemporary music area," Wolfe says, "all the major musical areas have enough buildings in them to have taken on distinct personalities."

The visitors' parking lot will be able to accommodate approximately 4,000 cars on its 30 acres.

"When we finish paving the area, we will then go back and put in a number of landscape islands with the trees we removed," Wolfe says.

"This is more costly than leaving the parking area barren, but we are committed to developing the most beautiful entertainment complex in the nation and putting in the islands is just one of the added things we are doing to achieve that end."

Ben Moore, manager of landscaping, says Opryland is maintaining three separate nurseries with a total inventory of 7,000 trees and shrubs.

"We've got enough landscaping material on hand now to effectively landscape nearly 350 homes," he says, "and more material is coming in everyday."

Thais Find Use For All Parts Of Snake

By S. PHITHAYAKORN
Bangkok (UPI)—The Thais have found a use for just about every part of a snake but the hiss.

Canapes made from the gall bladder of a cobra, for example, are considered a boost to virility.

Leather goods made from the skins of snakes is a big seller to tourists in Thailand.

And the Thais have their own version of "snake oil," a medicine made by mixing a rice-distilled liquor with snake innards.

Venom extracted from various reptiles at Bangkok's famed snake farm is used in making anti-snakebite serum for Thailand and for export.

Sak Chaioungsri, 45, is a Bangkok restaurateur whose menu offers snakes prepared in a variety of interesting ways.

"Most of the customers who order cobra are drinkers," Sak said. "We do a good business in cobra dishes. I have to go out into the provinces to find cobras for my kitchen. I pay villagers about 50 abht ($2.50) per cobra."

Sak said he cooks cobra just about any way the customer might want it.

"There are different kinds of cobra curry," he explained. "And then there is fried cobra with all sorts of mints and herbs. I use a lot of hot peppers. Cobra meat smells gamy. It needs lots of spice."

Sak touts cobra meat as sort of a health food.

"It can cure backache and it's good for sore muscles," he said. "Some customers order only fresh gall bladders from cobras and eat them as canapes with drinks."

THE HOOVER COMPANY

has an opening for a man to call on dealers in Eastern North Carolina, who are now selling our products. Man should be located in or near Greenville. This is a good job with unlimited future, but I am not looking for a man who expects to start at the top. I am looking for a man between 20 and 30 years of age, who has a car, is ambitious and willing to work hard for good earnings and advancements with a large international manufacturer. If you think you can qualify, write to me giving me some facts about yourself, along with your address and telephone numbers where you can be reached during and after working hours so I can arrange an interview. appointment.
