Three Men Seize TWA Airliner; Flown To Cuba

By ORVAL JACKSON

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Three black men, including two who have been active in revolutionary activity in the San Francisco Bay area, seized a Trans World airlines jetliner in Albuquerque early Saturday and hijacked it to Cuba.

The three men, wanted in the murder of a New Mexico policeman, brandished automatic weapons and a knife in commandeering the aircraft to Havana.

Robert L. Goodwin, 24, also known as Ralph Goodwin, of Berkeley, and Michael R. Finney, 20, of Oakland, were members of the Republic of New Africa organization based in Berkeley, a group that advocates establishment of a black nation in the south. It was founded in 1968 in Detroit, Mich. The other hijacker was identified as Charles Hill, 21, of Albuquerque.

The hijacked aircraft landed in Tampa for more fuel and for the plane's 43 passengers to disembark. Six crewmembers, including three stewardesses, were taken on to Havana.

The FAA said late Saturday it likely would be "quite a while" before the plane returned to the United States, probably not before Sunday.

The FAA said the crew was reported "safe and sound" in Havana shortly after the plane arrived in Cuba at 8:49 a.m., and said the hijackers were reported in the custody of Cuban authorities.

"Don't worry, I've been there myself," a stewardess reportedly told passengers when she informed them a hijack to Cuba was in progress. A hijacker held a cocked pistol to the head of the stewardess.

The hijacking was the second this week in the United States and the 24th so far this year.

One of the passengers, Kent Swigard, 24, a reporter for the Spokesman Review in Spokane, Wash., described the hijackers as "organized and incredibly calm." Swigard and his wife Marie were on their way to New York for a vacation.

"The plane was 98 per cent filled and they were just about to close the door when these three came bursting in with the last passenger," he said. After the plane began to taxi, a stewardess announced the plane would make an "unscheduled stop."

The FBI said air piracy charges would be sought against the three.

The crewmembers were identified only as Capt. J. B. McGhee, co-pilot R. C. Clark, crewman M. McFarland and stewardesses E. A. Caubre, A. Harrell and D. Barrios.

Eisenhower Memorial

Nixon Dedicates Hospital

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon Saturday dedicated a gleaming white hospital as a memorial to the late President Eisenhower, vowing to work to keep the nation physically, economically and morally healthy.

Mamie Eisenhower, widow of the former president and World War II general, termed the ceremony, witnessed by 15,000 persons in brilliant 80-degree sunshine, "a dream come true."

Nixon kept away from controversy in his off-the-cuff remarks, stressing his now familiar pledge to work for "a generation of peace." In a rhetorical escalation, however, he added for the first time a goal of "a century of peace."

But Gov. Ronald Reagan, who preceded Nixon to the rostrum, struck a partisan note. He described as "socialized medicine" the comprehensive national health care program proposed in Congress by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. The Nixon administration opposes the plan as too costly and has offered a less inclusive measure.

Mamie Speaks

"One young senator is proposing $77 billion worth of health care ... It is socialized medicine when they do it that way," said Reagan whose father-in-law was a prominent Chicago physician.

Mrs. Eisenhower struck a similar chord: "This has been done in the good American way. Ike believed in people doing for themselves and not depending upon government."

The $7.5 million hospital construction cost was raised by private contributions.

Nixon referred to the nation's medical care problems in a statement distributed to newsmen before the ceremonies began.

Bob Hope Jokes

"We have a very strong system of providing medical service in America, but it can be stronger, and it has to be," Nixon said. "The proposals we have submitted to Congress speak to the weaknesses of the present system. They assure that no American can be denied good health care because of financial needs, and that the promise of good health care and the expectation that the system can provide good health care will be met."

Comedian Bob Hope, who donated much of the land on which the hospital was built, referred to Nixon's recent confrontation with AFL-CIO President George Meany at the labor federation's convention last week in Miami Beach.

"The President may be our first patient. He is going to have George Meany removed from his back," Hope said.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who spoke before Nixon, said Eisenhower loved the Palm Desert area and would have personally picked it as the site for his most imposing memorial.

Nixon hailed Eisenhower, the man under whom he served as vice president and the only other Republican chief executive in almost four decades, as "a man of peace."

Federal Courts Issue Temporary Back-To-Work Orders In Dock Strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—Federal courts issued temporary back-to-work orders Saturday to longshoremen in 13 cities from Maine to the Mexican border. It appeared that commerce would be back to normal in most Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports by Monday.

Many of the ports have been closed for 58 days by a strike that began in New York and spread southward as longshoremen elsewhere walked out in sympathy. The federal government moved Friday to get them opened.

The court action increased to 18 the number of ports where dock workers were directed to return to their jobs for a preliminary 10-day period which probably will be extended to 80 days, keeping the eastern waterfront open at least until February.

Saturday's orders affected Portland and Searsport, Maine; Boston, Gloucester and New Bedford, Mass., and seven Texas ports strung along the gulf coast from Louisiana to Mexico — Orange, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Galveston, Houston, Corpus Christi and Brownsville.

Similar orders were issued Friday, at the request of the Justice Department, to longshoremen in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Alexandria, Va., Savannah, Ga., and Mobile, Ala.

The orders were issued under the Taft-Hartley Law in an action directed by President Nixon.

The effect of this week's orders is not expected to make itself felt in most places before Monday. Longshoremen in New York reported to the piers Saturday but went home without doing anything because no work orders had been posted.

Pakistan Says Troops Were Killed By Indians

By United Press International

A Pakistan government spokesman said Saturday that Pakistani troops had killed 1,000 Indians inside East Pakistani territory in the past week. The Indian government denied the reports.

Radio Pakistan quoting the spokesman in Rawalpindi said there also "is evidence of intensive Indian reconnaissance and offensive preparations around the Comilla-Chittagong area" in the southeastern section of the country."

The government radio station reported the spokesman as saying Saturday "Pakistan casualties up to yesterday were only 30 killed as compared to Indian casualties of over 1,000 killed in about six or seven days."

The spokesman said the Indians "supported by tanks and ... heavy artillery barrages" attacked several border outposts in East Pakistan Friday.

All-India Radio reported Saturday that a "war bulletin" issued by the rebel guerrilla force in the western sector of Jessore "says that the virtual siege of Jessore cantonment is still on and that they (the rebels) are consolidating their position in the strategic Jhingergacha area.

In New Delhi, government spokesmen said Saturday night Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has urged Pakistan President Gen. Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan to move toward a political settlement of the East Pakistan civil war.

The spokesmen said the message was relayed through diplomatic channels at least two days ago in response to Yahya's Nov. 20 speech offering friendship and a new era of good neighborly relations between the two countries.

Uruguayans Will Vote Today

By MATTHEW T. KENNY

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—An estimated 1.5 million Uruguayans vote for a new president and congress Sunday in an election that could swing this tiny South American nation sharply to the left.

The voters—men and women 18 years and up—will be deciding if they want a change from the hard line, anti-Communist government of President Jorge Pacheco Areco and, if so, how much of a change.

Although nearly 1.9 million Uruguayans are elegible to vote, pollsters estimate about 1.5 million will actually ballot between 8 a.m. (6 a.m. EST) and 7:30 p.m. (5:30 p.m. EST) Sunday.

They have 11 presidential candidates to choose from—including Pacheco—in what is probably Uruguay's most complex election.

The 51-year-old Pacheco's bid to continue in office—through a constitutional amendment permitting his re-election—seemed doomed. But his "official" substitute candidate, 43-year-old Juan Maria Bordaberry could be one of the front-runners.

A victory by Bordaberry would mean a continued war against the Tupamaro guerrillas by a conservative government, which probably would continue the modified state of siege and police powers that have been employed by Pacheco.

Red Guerrillas Striking Back

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist guerrillas in Cambodia struck back Saturday for the first time in the 6-day-old allied offensive, and fresh arms caches indicated they are gearing up for a full-scale counterattack, field reports said.

South Vietnamese troops backed by heavy U.S. air support slogged through the Cambodian rubber country north of Saigon against minor Communist resistance.

South Vietnamese observation helicopter pilots discovered four fresh ammunition caches 15 miles north of the Cambodian rubber town of Krek and 20 miles north of the Vietnamese border.

The caches were not stored in bunkers or even buried in the ground but were lying above ground covered with green plastic sheets —a strong indication that they had just been moved in and that the guerrillas are building up for a counter-attack.

Officials Will Participate In Conference

Participants in the countywide conference on human relations scheduled to be held Tuesday at D. H. Conley High School include educators, mayors, attorneys and chamber of commerce members.

The conference, entitled "Community Leadership in Human Relations", will begin at 2 p.m. and conclude about 6:30 p.m.

The program is being sponsored by Pitt Technical Institute, in cooperation with the City of Greenville and local civic agencies.

The conference will feature an address by Attorney General Robert Morgan.

Those planning to participate in the program include: Charles Dunn, director of SBI, Raleigh; Dudley Flood, State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Gene Causby, and Robert Strother, both of the State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh; Harvey Beech, Kinston attorney; Mayor B. D. Swartz of Wilmington; Howard Hunter, Ahoskie businessman; Mayor S. Eugene West, Greenville; Miss Evangeline Grant, Tillery; Harold Creech, director of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce; Van Reed, executive secretary of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce; Herb McKim, architect, Wilmington; Tom I. Davis, State Department of Public Instruction; Fred Cooper, Human Relations Commission, Raleigh; and the Rev. W. W. Finlator, Raleigh.

The purpose of the conference is to create a better understanding of the all-encompassing nature of human relations in people's lives and to stimulate discussion of how the leaders of the community can utilize good human relations practices in their individual pursuits.

Guidelines for the discussions Tuesday include:

—The value of preventative planning and positive action;

—the dynamics of fear and distrust;

—the snowballing nature of incidents; how lack of attention to seemingly minute details can mushroom into conflict;

—the pervasive nature of disruption and violence; reaching into all segments of the community.

Nations Attempt To Plan A Financial Package

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and finance ministers from the world's richest non-Communist countries will most likely try to work out a bulky package deal during the Group of Ten meeting in Rome next week.

Informants here said the package, aimed at solving the world monetary crisis, would have to contain:

—A new set of values for the dollar and other currencies, probably including a devaluation of the dollar in terms of gold.

—An end to the 10 per cent surcharge on U.S. imports.

—Some firm promises from Japan and the European Common Market that would increase their imports of U.S. goods.

Paul Voelker, undersecretary of the U.S. Treasury for international monetary affairs, doesn't think it can be done at a single session. The meeting, starting Tuesday, lasts three days.

"There could be a lot of splendid lunches and dinners," said one European central banker, "but no results."

Others think that an agreement can be reached or, at least, that enough progress can be made to prepare one that could be wrapped up in another session, perhaps before Christmas.

But even then the experts predict only a temporary settlement of the crisis triggered by President Nixon's announcement last August of his defend-the-dollar measures.

What Western governments really need is a long-term system for collecting and holding money reserves and for changing the values of their currencies when necessary. Such a system could take months or even years to work out.

The immediate problem is to start reducing the huge U.S. balance-of-payments deficit.

Although the 10 per cent U.S. import surcharge was imposed to start doing this, the Nixon administration insists that it is only a temporary measure. It could be removed, Washington says, when the major countries agree on a more effective way of doing the same thing: reducing the value of the dollar and increasing the value of other currencies.

Such a shift in currency valuation would discourage imports into the United States, as the surcharge does, and also would make American exports more saleable in other countries.

Many countries have already allowed their money to float upward in relation to the dollar, especially West Germany and Japan. The U.S. government would like to see these currencies rise still more.

Quotas Set For Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) — A marketing quota of 1,071.6 million pounds has been set by the Agriculture Department for the 1972 crop of flue-cured tobacco. The quota is substantially the same as last year's.

The department said the national average yield goal for 1972 remains unchanged at 1,854 pounds per acre, resulting in a 1972 national allotment of 577,994 acres, about the same as that for 1971.

Under acreage-poundage marketing quotas, if marketings from a farm in any year are less than the poundage quota for the farm, the difference is added to the farm's quotas—both pounds and acres—for the following year. Likewise, any marketings in excess of the farm's poundage quota are deducted from the farm's quotas for the following year.

The department also said that, as in the past, a small acreage will be reserved in 1972 to establish allotments for farms having no flue-cured acreage history during the last five years, for correcting errors and for adjusting inequities.

In a referendum in July 1970, 98.4 per cent of flue-cured tobacco growers voted in favor of continuing acreage-poundage marketing quotas on the 1971, 1972 and 1973 crops.

Flue-cured tobacco is grown in Georgia, Alabama, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

Two Named To Board Of Governors

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh attorney Hugh Cannon and the Rev. Eugene B. Turner of Lumberton have been elected to the new board of governors that will take over control of North Carolina's 16 state-supported insitutions of higher education next July 1.

Cannon, who headed the state Department of Administration under Gov. Terry Sanford, was named to the board as a trustee of the North Carolina School of the Performing Arts.

Turner is mayor pro-tem of Lumberton who was elected to the board as a trustee of Fayetteville State University.

So far, 24 of the 32 members of the new board have been named.

Performance Is Picketed

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — Klansmen picketed a performance of the rock opera Jesus Christ Superstar by the national touring company Friday night.

They wore robes and carried signs reading "Outlaw Such Performances" and "Keep America Free."

However, the performance went on as scheduled in the Anderson Recreation Center.

Other pickets, from churches, denounced the play as anti-Christian.

POLLUTION WATCHER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A satellite to monitor strip mining operations in five Ohio counties along with pollution in many of the nation's lakes and rivers will go into operation next spring, Wayne A. Pettyjohn, an Ohio State University geologist said Saturday. Pettyjohn said the NASA sponsored project will also check cities for air pollution and confirm the amount of sediment in the Mississippi Delta.

Pupil Counseling Plan Considered

The E.B. Aycock PTA voted last Tuesday night to establish a committee to study the means of organizing a pupil's counseling service.

The action came after a panel discussion of adolescent behavior in which Phillip Clark, case worker with the Mental Health Clinic, disclosed many referrals to the clinic were in the adolescnet ages.

An inordinate amount of time devoted to school disciplinary needs was a factor in the PTA discussion. Dr. John Ball of the ECU department of sociology saw in a counseling service a means of allowing educators to educate instead of giving much of their time to coping with the frustrated student.

The panelists, in addition to Clark and Ball, were Joseph Frankford, Mental Health Clinic administrator, Paul Rasberry, Aycock principal, and associate principal Alan Murrell.

In a related action, the Involved Parents Committee once again asked parents to give part of their time in being present at the school as a stabilizing influence on the children. They were asked to contact Mrs. W.L. Morris (752-4027) or Mrs. J. W. Gibbs (752-3836) to tell them what hours they would be available.

Coming projects were announced. They will include the sale of sweatshirts or jackets; a pancake supper in January; and a card party and fashion show in the spring.

Decision of the executive committee to permit return of those donations made to the air-conditioning fund, to all who so desired, on presentation of a cancelled check or receipt by Dec. 1 was disclosed. The balance of the fund will be given toward the air-conditioning project now underway at the school.

Mayor Lindsay Drive Target

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay is the target of an impeachment drive by Forest Hills residents angered over his support of a low-income housing project in their middle-class neighborhood.

Petitions distributed Friday by protesters at the construction site urge Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, a long-time political foe of Lindsay, to institute impeachment procedures against the mayor "for continual failures."

The governor is empowered to suspend the mayor for up to 30 days pending preparation and disposition of charges. He then may remove the mayor from office after allowing him to defend himself.

Lindsay is in Honolulu for a meeting of the National League of Cities and his press office declined comment on the petition.

Three Wrecks Are Reported

There were three wrecks in Greenville Friday, two of them three-car accidents.

A collision at the 264 Bypass-Charles Street intersection did $1,850 property damage, police said. Drivers were identified as Mrs. Arlene Williams Bailey of 2402 East Third Street here, Randolph C. Stokes of Route 2, Greenville, and Claire F. Aldrich of 4737 Herendon Road, Shortsville, N.Y. Damages were estimated at $500 to Mrs. Bailey's car; $750 to Stokes' auto; and $600 to Mrs. Aldrich's car. Mrs. Bailey was cited for failure to stop for a red light.

No charges were made in an accident at the Holiday Shell Station on Memorial Drive. Police identified owners of two cars involved as Thelonia Allen of 606 Ford Street and William Thomas of Route 2, Grifton. Driving the third car, police said, was Christini Burke. Damages were $75 to the Allen car; $125 to Thomas'; and $150 to the Burke vehicle.

The 264 Bypass 150 feet from Bismarck Street toward Crestline Blvd. was the scene of an accident that did $160 damage. Drivers were identified by police as David Earl Robbins of Route 1, Winterville and Emogene Summerlin of 214 N. Elm Street, Apt. 1. Damages were said to be $10 to Robbins' car and $150 to the Summerlin auto. Miss Summerlin was cited for following too closely.

Two Wrecks Here Saturday

There were two wrecks in Greenville Saturday, both on Memorial Drive.

Police identified drivers in at 10:55 a.m. collision between the Third and Fifth Street intersections with Memorial Drive as Robert G. McLaughlin Jr. of 400 N. Washington Street here and Clayton Bounds Cranford of 2003 St. Mary Street, Raleigh. Both were driving Jefferson Florist vehicles. Damages were estimated as $50 to one truck and $100 to the other. Cranford was cited for failure to see safe movement.

A 12:54 p.m. collision at the Glenwood Drive — Memorial Drive intersection involved Hugh John Benson of 506 Pine Street here and Charles Edward Neal II of Route 5, Greenville, Police said. Damages were approximately $110 to Benson's car and $240 to Neal's. Neal was cited for following too closely.

Queen's Guards Under Arrest

LONDON (AP) — Six men of the Life Guards, the ceremonial cavalry unit which guards Queen Elizabeth II, are under arrest for going on strike.

Their demand: one man, one horse.

Guardsmen said 26 men in London's Hyde Park Barracks have to look after 90 horses.

A row flared on Thursday when the men were accused of skimping the daily grooming and ordered to do it a second time.

The six quit and went to a nearby pub. Military police went after them.

Lt. Col. Denis Daly, the regiment's commander, said the six were in the cells charged with disobeying a lawful order.

He said the unit was under strength but added: "Recruiting is going well, at the moment."

Natural Gas Price Increase Seen This Winter

By WILLIAM B. MEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) —With little restraint from the Cost of Living Council, natural gas prices are going up an average 5 to 10 per cent this winter for the half of all American homes which are heated by gas.

The steeper gas bills were triggered by Federal Power Commission decisions in the past 18 months which permitted producers to raise their rates at the wells, setting off a chain reaction which is only now beginning to reach consumers.

The government, embarking on Phase II of President Nixon's economic stabilization program, is not standing in the way of rate increases for consumers which will double or quadruple its post-freeze guideline of 2.5 per cent for all price increases.

The Cost of Living Council and Price Commission have declared that utility rate increases approved by state or other federal regulatory agencies may go into effect, subject to review by the Price Commission.

Biggest Increase In Years

"The freeze has been virtually taken off all public utilities," Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., said last week. He said the Price Commission had neither the manpower nor the information needed to guard against inflationary rate boosts.

Metcalf estimated that the Cost of Living Council "has provided a mechanism which, as a practical matter, could result in the implementation of some $4 billion in electric, gas and telephone rate increases in the next six months."

"We're seeing the biggest increases in modern times," said Paul Rodgers, general counsel of the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners, which represents state agencies regulating utility rates.

His estimate of a 5 to 10 per cent boost in natural gas prices, already granted or in the works, is an average. The boost will be higher for 1.3 million gas customers in three boroughs of New York City. The New York Public Service Commission granted Consolidated Edison Co. average increases of 12 to 12.5 per cent for these users last Monday.

Exploration Needed

The FPC granted producers rate increases estimated as high as 30 to 50 per cent in response to warnings that gas supplies were dwindling and that producers needed a financial incentive to explore for additional reserves.

The FPC also approved increases for pipeline companies, which buy from producers, to cover not only their added natural gas costs but allow for fatter profits. The utilities, in turn, are seeking higher prices to cover increased costs of gas and its transmission, as well as wider profit margins.

The gas industry contends the increases are long overdue, but that natural gas will remain a bargain over coal, oil and electricity.

Hijacker Believed Still In Small Area

By JAMES BUCHANAN

WOODLAND, Wash. (UPI)— The FBI said Saturday a daring hijacker who parachuted from an airliner with $200,000 ransom probably landed in a tiny wooded area east of here, and might still be there, possibly with a broken leg.

"We feel he's in this area," FBI agent Thomas Manning said of the three-by-five-mile stretch of rough timber country 35 miles north of Portland, Ore. "If we have to, we'll cover every square foot of it."

In addition, an army helicopter was sent to check out "something white" spotted by a search plane nine miles northwest of the main search area.

Search officials said it could be a parachute shroud, but also a number of other things, including white plastic left by loggers.

Instruments Used

The hijacker, a swarthy, middle-aged man who called himself "D. B. Cooper," took over a Northwest Airlines 727 with a "bomb" during a flight from Portland Wednesday.

He forced the plane to land at Seattle, collected four parachutes and $200,000 in $20 bills in a white cloth bag and allowed the passengers off. Then he ordered the crew to fly him to Reno, Nev.

Somewhere along the way he parachuted into the night from the plane's open rear door.

Manning said the plane's in-flight recorder showed that at 8:10 p.m., when the plane was over the target area of the search, instruments showed the rear door being lowered.

Fortune Hunters Search

Three minutes later, he said, a "slight change in attitude" of the plane was recorded, indicating that was the moment of the jump.

The FBI agent said skydivers in the area had told him they doubted a man wearing street shoes could jump with a "stunt" parachute of the type the skyjacker was using and land in such a rough area at night without suffering injury.

Meanwhile, a parade of autos, pickup trucks and motorcycles carrying fortune-hunters looking for the 10,000 $20 bills diminished Saturday, discouraged by the rough terrain and the soggy back roads.

"You start thinking about it and you realize maybe he didn't live through the fall and there's $200,000 sitting all alone in the woods," said one of the treasure hunters Friday, a girl who identified herself only as "Anita."

A young farmer in a battered pickup truck commented that "even a good Christian man" would be tempted to keep the money if he came across it in the woods.

"A man could buy himself a pretty nice farm with that kind of money ... Even if he had to go to Australia," he said.

Budget System Is Under Study

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Administration Secretary W. L. Turner said Saturday his agency is studying the state's "A" budget concept in order to find a way to hold down its annual rate of increase.

Turner, in a written release, pointed out that the "A" budget — money for continuation of existing programs — rose 8.5 per cent in 1965-67, 9.6 per cent in 1967-69, 12 per cent in 1969-71 and 7.9 per cent in 1971-73.

"Obviously, this rate of increase cannot continue to be supported at this level," Turner said. "This rate of increase would result in a doubling of the 'A' budget in the next eight to 10 years.

"It is unlikely that state revenue can continue to support this rate of increase in state expenditures during the decade of the 70's and still provide for needed capital improvements and limited expansion in old and new programs to meet the needs of the state's population.

"The objective is to substantially tighten up the '' budget, which constitutes approximately 85 per cent of the total state budget," Turner said.

He said a new type of base budget or a refinement of the existing 'A' budget concept would be studied and the results presented to the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission for consideration and policy decisions before beginning work on the 1973-75 budget.

Construction To Continue On Plant

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power and Light Co. President Shearon Harris said Saturday that construction on all phases of the firm's nuclear generating plant near Southport will continue for at least 30 days.

The Atomic Energy Commission issued a show-cause order Monday and said the utility has 30 days to prove why construction on a 6.5-mile cooling water canal and clearing of transmission line rights of way should not be suspended pending further environmental studies.

Harris indicated that CP&L plans to challenge the AEC's work stoppage order.

The AEC's order stemmed from new regulations drawn up after a U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington ruled last summer that the agency's interpretation of the National Environmental Police Act was a "mockery."

The agency contended in its show-cause order that environmental problems at the CP&L plant's discharge canal, which will carry heated water from the reactors into the Atlantic, include the possibility that salt water in the canal could seep into local ground water. Also, the AEC said, many trees were being cut down in order to make way for transmission lines.

But Harris contended in a written statement that the firm had "developed an elaborate circulating water system which would release water 2,000 feet off shore into the Atlantic Ocean in order to provide the greatest degree of protection to the environment."

He noted that approval for the water system had been obtained earlier from all of the state and federal agencies responsible for reviewing them at the time.

Harris said the company feels that the off-site construction of the canal and transmission systems "will have a minimum effect upon the environment of the area, and is thus preparing for presentation to the Atomic Energy Commission a full review of the need to continue the off-site construction work."

Irish Attack Launched

By FRANK JOHNSON

Belfast, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Irish Republican extremists unleashed one of their most intensive campaigns of killings and bombings in Northern Ireland Saturday spreading terror among early Christmas shoppers, an army spokesman said.

The British army said gunmen of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) killed at least three persons and bombed scores of buildings in a wave of violence that left few areas of the British-ruled province untouched.

It brought to 133 the number of persons killed in violence in Northern Ireland this year, including 39 British soldiers, 11 policemen, two members of the volunteer Ulster Defense Regiment and 81 civilians.

An army spokesman said gunmen firing from an abandoned house inside the Irish Republic killed a customs officer and a cleaning man at a Northern Irish customs post near the border town of Newry, 45 miles south of Belfast.

Customs Posts Attacked

The post came under fire when the gunmen opened up on a mobile patrol of British troops who dashed to the building for cover, the spokesman said.

The army said the attack came after masked and armed raiders operating from the republic bombed or burned to the ground four other customs posts along the border in a 30-minute assault after clearing personnel from the buildings.

In Belfast's Roman Catholic Falls Road area a sniper using an American-made M1 carbine pumped eight bullets into a British soldier's back, killing him instantly, the army said. The soldier was with troops searching the area for gunmen and weapons.

Police said at least 10 persons were injured when a bomb explosion wrecked a furniture store in downtown Belfast owned by the lord mayor of the city, Joseph Cairns.

Supermarket Wrecked

In Londonderry a bomb explosion wrecked a supermarket after gunmen ordered shoppers to evacuate the building. Troops fired rubber bullets into a stone-throwing mob of youths in the Catholic William Street district.

Renovation Set For Capitol

RALEIGH (AP) — Director of Administration W. L. Turner has confirmed that the North Carolina Capitol will undergo extensive renovation costing $525,000 "sometime after the first of the year."

The work will make it necessary for Gov. Bob Scott and Secretary of State Thad Eure to vacate the 131-year-old building while the work is being done.

C. T. West, Scott's press secretary, said Scott would move to the office he already has in the Administration Building.

The last General Assembly approved funds for the renovation. Detailed information about the work to be done was not immediately available.

In 1970, Scott set up a committee to study the capitol and propose a renovation plan to the 1971 General ssembly. Earlier Scott took newsmen on a tour of the capitol, pointing out its leaky copper roof, cracked plaster, exposed wire, flaking paint threadbare carpet and other needs.

A member of the study committee, Charlotte architect James R. Johnson said at the time the committee was named that the capitol "has got to be a good working building with modern conveniences as subtle as possible. Today, we're dealing with things the builders then never thought of, like heating and air conditioning."

One thing Scott has insisted on is hot water for the capitol, something it has never had.

Syrian Leader Sees War Ahead

By United Press International

Syrian President Hafez Assad said Saturday in Damascus there can be no negotiations between Arabs and Israelis and that another war in the Middle East is "inevitable and certain."

In Cairo, the defense council of the 17-nation Arab League met to decide how best to mobilize the military and economic resources of 110 million Arabs for any struggle to retain occupied territory from Israel. Israel has a population of less than 3 million.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad flew to New York during the day for the U.N. General Assembly debate on the Middle East after telling ambassadors in Cairo that Israel is seeking a pretext to launch a preemptive strike against Egypt.

The United Nations announced Friday that the debate will begin on Dec. 3. There has been no reaction yet from Israel. Prime Minister Golda Meir is scheduled to meet the day before in Washington with President Nixon to discuss the worsening crisis.

Informed sources said Mrs. Meir would press Nixon to approve delivery of the additional Phantom jet fighters Israel maintains is needed to restore the balance of power in the Middle East as the result of Soviet arms shipments to the Egyptians.

Assad's prediction came in a speech read by him by Vice President Mahmoud Ayyoubi to a conference of Arab scientists in Syrian capital.

Death Occurs In Accident

SALTER PATH — A Greenville man was killed when he was thrown from the car he was driving near here early Friday morning.

Dead on arrival at Carteret County Hospital was Franklyn Earl Rhinehart, 25, of Greenville. His brother, Jimart Rhinehart, also of Greenville, and a friend, Robert Beaver of Cherry Point were passengers. Both were treated and released at the hospital.

According to Trooper T. H. Spainhour, Rhinehart apparently lost control of the car after it ran off the pavement and he attempted to bring the vehicle back on too quickly.

Rhinehart was an East Carolina University student. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Rhinehart, live at 208 Fairlane Road in Greenville.

Raleigh March Said Tomorrow

A march from Greenville to Raleigh to protest police brutality, according to Southern Christian Leadership Conference field secretary Golden Frinks, will begin here tomorrow.

Frinks said last night that the protest march will assemble at 9 a.m. at St. Gabriel's Chruch on West Fifth St. and begin its treak to Raleigh about 10 a.m.

Seven over-night stops are planned before the protestors reach the Capital City, however, Frinks said. Stops on the schedule include Kinston tomorrow night, Jacksonville on November 30, Wilmington on December 1, Fayetteville on December 2, Smithfield the following night, Chapel Hill on December 4, and Durham on December 5. A rally is scheduled at Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh December 6 to be followed by a march to the Capitol to present a list of grievences to Gov. Bob Scott, Frinks explained.

Frinks said SCLC president, Dr. Ralph David Abernathy is scheduled to be on hand to start the march.

The protest is being supported, Frinks noted, by the United Front Coalition which includes the SCLC, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, N.C. Black Panther Party, Pitt County Black Pastors Conference, the Committee for Racial Justice and the Muslum Temple of Greenville.

According to Frinks, the United Effort Coalition has "declared war against police brutality," and said "we will confront this state with specific demands on specific issues to bring an end to police brutality . . ."

Frinks noted, "we call upon all people — people of every race and every walk of life — to commit themselves, their time, their energy and lives to the struggle against racism and police brutality in North Carolina.

"We call upon those who have never suffered the hunger pains of poverty to join with those who have known nothing but poverty and the nagging fear of police brutality."

Items calling for bail bond reform, the creation of a Department of Civil Rights in the North Carolina Attorney General's Office, and psychological testing for police department job applicants are included in the list of demands to be presented to Gov. Scott, according to Frinks.

Early last week an Abernathy aid, Bernard Lee, said the march to Raleigh was tentatively set to begin tomorrow, but added it may be delayed "a day or two."

Broken Teen Romance Ends With Five Dead

By JAY SHARBUTT
Associated Press Writer

Authorities said Gary Logan, 18, jilted by a 15-year-old girl, fatally shot her, the girl's new boyfriend and her parents Friday night.

Sheriff's deputies said the youth then turned a shotgun on himself and died at his exgirl friend's feet.

Homicide detectives gave this account, based on interviews with those who survived and neighbors:

Logan arrived by motorcycle at the Jack Welch home Friday afternoon, carrying a .22-caliber rifle and a 16-gauge shotgun. Walking into the living room, he shot Welch, 42, and his wife Doris, 37. Louis Welch, 14, was in another part of the house when he heard shots and hid.

Ten minutes passed before a car carrying Welch's three teen-aged step-daughters and Rocco Nolfo arrived in front of the brown, one-story house. As they approached, Logan met them at gunpoint and ordered them inside.

Nolfo, 16, a neighbor of Logan who was then dating Laurie Roskam, was the first to die. When the gun went off, Susan Roskam, 14, rushed into her bedroom and leaped through a closed window into the front yard, badly cutting her right arm.

Laurie and her sister Janet, 16, then dashed out the front door. But, for some unknown reason, investigators said, Laurie stopped in front of the garage next to the house.

Janet escaped unharmed.

Sheriff's Lt. Charles Elliott said neighbors reported that Laurie and Logan had dated but she broke off the relationship two or three weeks ago.

"Apparently he had been calling the Welch home and had been attempting to restore the relationship," Elliott said.

Her stepfather died of shotgun chest wounds on the way to Antelope Valley Hospital, where he had worked as chief laboratory technician. Susan was listed in satsfactory condition today with arm lacerations and in a state of shock.

The Welchs lived in a modest-income housing development along a tree-lined street in the eastern section of this desert community, 60 miles north of Los Angeles.

Plot Is Seen To Seize Government Payroll At Ft. Stewart

FT. STEWART, Ga. (AP) — A group of servicemen plotted to heist the payroll of the Army flight-training center while holding him and other officers hostage, Brig. Gen. Eugene M. Lynch says.

Lynch, commanding general of Ft. Stewart, told a news conference Friday that Army investigators uncovered the conspiracy during a year-long investigation into alleged fraudulant activities by some of the fort's personnel.

Army sources told him they had learned that Lynch and members of his staff were to be seized and held at gunpoint while the payroll was taken, the general said.

The Army said that, because the base payroll, issued biweekly, varies from month to month, it could not readily calculate how much money the November payroll would represent. Some 3,500 men are at the fort.

Lynch said S. Sgt. Robert E. Ward, who for the last year has been noncommissioned officer in charge of physical security and provost-marshal investigations at the facility, was involved in the alleged plot.

Ward, 32, a five-year veteran, was wounded five times Monday in a gun battle with authorities in Punta Gorda, Fla. Officials said they had sought the sergeant for questioning in connection with the investigation of alleged fraud at Ft. Stewart.

Ward, recuperating from the wounds in a Florida hospital, is listed in satisfactory condition.

Lynch said the Army investigation at the fort has revealed larceny, fraud and the falsification of documents amounting to $20,000.

He said no formal charges have been placed against Ward or other servicemen implicated by investigators but a decision on the matter will be made soon.

Lynch said the payroll robbery plot "involved me as well as my deputy, Col. J. W. Herrington. For this reason, special security precautions were taken during the past week to protect the lives and property of those concerned."

Lynch said he was making known what he could of the investigation to insure public confidence in the military.

Tom Gordon, civilian publicinformation specialist at the fort, said Ward's job required that he cover Southern states in pursuit of persons for being AWOL and for other violations that occurred at Ft. Stewart. Ward, said Gordon, was on leave when apprehended at Punta Gorda.

Florida Asst. Atty. Jack Schoonover charged Ward with assault to commit murder in connection with the shoot-out at a Punta Gorda motel. Bond has been set at $10,000.

Effectiveness Up To People

The human relations conference to be held at D. H. Conley High School Tuesday afternoon and evening is of utmost importance to Pitt County and all its citizens.

More than 1,100 citizens of the county have received special invitations to attend the conference and leaders have emphasized that all interested citizens are invited and urged to attend.

Like most other communities, Pitt County has its human relations problems. A conference such as the one planned for Tuesday will not resolve all the problems or give pat answers for reaching solutions. The conference will provide, however, another important tool toward reaching better understanding among citizens of this county and hopefully lead to further progress in better human relations in this county.

The list of speakers and discussion leaders for the conference is impressive. For the most part they are people who have been involved in similar human relations seminars in other parts of the state, and individuals who have worked first hand in many communities in finding ways to ease those problems.

How effective this conference may be in helping Pitt County resolve its current problems does not depend upon the conference leaders, but rather on the number of local citizens who participate in the conference and subsequently use the information generated by the conference toward resolving our own problems in our own community.

It is of utmost importance, therefore, that the conference Tuesday be well attended by citizens of this county. In the long run the human relations problems which face this county must be resolved by local citizens on a mutually beneficial basis. They must be resolved by local citizens facing the situations as they exist and working harmoniously together to find solutions to the problems.

We urge local citizens to attend this conference Tuesday. The matter of bringing about better human relations is important to every person who lives in Pitt County.

Wild Boar Hunt Is Dangerous

By SONNY HEDGECOCK
The Highpoint Enterprise

ROBBINSVILLE — We went west after big game: the ferocious wild boar, king of the hill in his mountain vastness.

Our guide was Jimmy Collins, 32, who has spent 17 years chasing the boar and bear over rugged terrain. He stressed the importance of clean, quick kills.

"A bear isn't especially dangerous unless it is wounded, then it becomes a demon on dogs which is my main concern," said Collins.

"The boar is a different creature. It is always hard on dogs. Unlike the bear, the boar cannot climb a tree to escape the pack of dogs which swarm over him like flies on honey. His tactics are simple. He backs up against a rock or big tree to protect his rear and will cut the dogs to pieces as they come into range."

The boar has been blessed by nature with awesome weapons. His armor is a tough hide and a shield of gristle extending from the neck to the lower end of the rib cage. When playing the offensive game, the boar uses two large tusks extending from three to five inches from the lower jaw. These tusks grind against two small upper teeth which act as an oilstone to sharpen the lower tusks to a razor edge. One solid connection by these sabers and the best dog in the world goes hunting in the hereafter.

Dogs Scarred By Hunts

Collins has a pack of 19 dogs. The hounds — blueticks, plots, redbones and some crossbreeds — do the jumping and trailing. Big, fast and tough, these dogs bear the brunt of the attack as they are almost always the first to the quarry. One look at these dogs tells their life story. The older dogs resemble a frankenstein with their many scars of past battles. The younger pups are marked with learning scars.

The other hounds are a breed strange to most North Carolina hunters — the Norwegian Elkhound. Smaller and quicker than the larger hounds, these dogs never bark until the game is actually sighted. They let the hunter know when the bear or boar is bayed. They also make the quarry circle and fight until the third breed of dog arrives.

This third breed in no way resembles a hunting dog as most Piedmont hunters know it. The pit bulldog is 50 to 60 pounds of muscle and guts with its head making up about one-third of its body. Bred to fight, these dogs will actually jump and kill each other if given the chance. Unlike the slashing, running type of fight employed by the other breeds, the pit bulldog simply clamps onto the throat or head and hangs on.

Bulldogs Must Be Restrained

When the hunter moves in for the kill, Collins demands that the pit bulldogs be caught and tied to prevent them from fighting among themselves or jumping on other dogs in the pack.

Our hunt began at 5 a.m. The pack was turned loose in the mountains near the upper reaches of Fontana Lake. Nothing happened for the first hour. Then a long, lean redbone let out a bawling howl.

We took off after the dogs. Half an hour later the bawling of the hounds turned to the sound of a full-scale war. The shrill yip of the elkhounds replaced the coarse bawl of the trailing hounds.

"It's a boar," yelled Collins.

The hunters began moving in the direction of the fight. There was a shot, quickly followed by two more. About 100 yards from the fight, I noticed one of the bluetick hounds, literally cut to pieces.

Last-Ditch Battle

Larry McNeil and Steve Shean, both of High Point, were first to the scene of battle. The boar was on its stomach with its back to boulders, fighting the dogs. Two of the bulldogs were jaw-locked to its head.

Steve fired first and the boar came up, scattering dogs. His next slug connected and the boar rolled over, taking dogs with him. As the boar scrambled for footing, Larry made a clean kill through the head with a magnum pistol.

Field dressed, the boar rolled the scales around to 315 pounds. Collins said this was the largest boar he had ever seen, and by far the largest taken with his pack of dogs.

The big fellow has taken a toll. Nine dogs were cut and bloody. Five were seriously injured; one died.

"It's a tough break. But this is the type thing you have to expect on a big game hunt in these mountains," Collins said. "The game here is as big and tough as anywhere east of the Rockies."

Meir Telephones President Nixon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The angry reaction in Israel over Secretary of State William P. Rogers's tenacious refusal to yield to Israel's demands for more U.S. Phantom aircraft came to a boil when Prime Minister Golda Meir reached for her telephone on Nov. 17 and put in a person-to-person call to President Nixon at the White House.

When Mr. Nixon picked up the phone, Mrs. Meir poured out her anguish and her anger in no uncertain terms.

The United States, she implied, was acting in a way that smacked of bad faith. Instead of playing the role of uncommitted mediator, she went on, Rogers had laid down conditions for an interim settlement that she and her entire cabinet felt put the U.S. on the side of Egypt.

Moreover, Rogers's implication in an interview with U.S. News and World Report last week that Israel holds a clear military advantage over the Arabs, and that the balance of power was not shifting against Israel, had produced an alarming anti-U.S. reation in Israel.

In the background of Mrs. Meir's unusually candid conversation with Mr. Nixon was rising fury in Israel. Rogers was being accused of "going public" with the American interim peace plan (a first-step Israeli withdrawal a small distance from the east bank of the Suez Canal and the opening of the canal). He was also being charged with an unmistakable threat that unless Israel agreed to that first-step withdrawal there would be no more U.S. Phantoms.

One day after the Meir-Nixon telephone chat, the State Department unexpectedly revealed that new intelligence information had just become available on Soviet shipments of aircraft to Egypt. Those shipments, said the embattled State Department, had been detected after Nov. 1. According to the Department's careful explanation, its earlier findings that there had been no Soviet aircraft shipments to Egypt covered only the period ending on that date, Nov. 1.

Mrs. Meir's telephone call accomplished two immediate purposes: she gained an audience with the President (to be held here next month), something that the Israeli cabinet had long felt was essential in view of the steadily widening breach between the Israeli government and the State Department. Second, by dramatizing anti-American tension within the Israeli government, the telephone call surely hastened the sudden State Department reappraisal of Soviet air shipments.

Once it was discovered and publicly announced that the Russians were again sending Egypt TU-16 Badgers (a medium bomber) armed with air-to-ground missiles, the bitter controversy over more U.S. Phantoms for Israel was immediately reopened for a fresh look.

Finally, Mrs. Meir's traumatic telephone call spelled the final end of Rogers's first-step plan, which Egyptian President Anwar Sadat himself had already written off as a failure.

Thus, a new and infinitely perilous chapter now opens, with the Egyptians preparing a major move against Israel in the United Nations which may well be followed by an Egyptian decision to resume fighting to regain the huge chunk of their territory seized by Israel in 1967.

For Israel, the new chapter now opening seems distinctly promising if, as now looks possible, it results in a downgrading of Rogers's role as Middle East peace-seeker. For example, the pipeline of U.S. Phantoms is closer to being opened now than it was last week.

It is a well-known fact that the President's political advisers have long been skeptical about the political impact within the American-Jewish community of Rogers's Phantom veto on the 1972 Presidential campaign. These advisers now have gained at least a temporary advantage over the State Department.

But for Egyp's Sadat, the new chapter is filled with mortal danger. Sadat banked his political prestige at home on achieving at least an interim settlement with the help of the U.S. Having publicly and totally failed to get it, he is viewed here as having little choice but to risk the military option which, barring overt and massive Soviet help, has little chance to succeed. Soviet aid of that dimension is regarded here as unlikely.

Sunday Morning Notes

As most sports fans know, it was frustrating day for Duke with Chapel Hill winning 38-0. The first quarter was a good defensive duel with neither team moving the ball very much.

One fan on the bus after the game was explaining that his wife didn't understand football very well.

"She was really confused the first quarter," he chuckled. "I was trying to explain a first down and nobody got one."

There was a huge crowd at

ALVIN TAYLOR

the game and the bus wasn't able to make it right to the stadium gate. The bus driver unloaded his passengers at a street intersection with instructions that he would pick them up there after the game.

Everyone looked around for a street name sign.

"We'll all meet at the corner of 'Walk' and 'Don't Walk'," someone in the back of the crowd yelled.

And following the game the bus had a slow time getting out of the stadium area. The endless stream of vehicles would move a few feet and then stop for a long wait.

One man who had been sitting quietly in his seat suddenly laughed. "I tell you what's holding up the line," he said. "They're letting the Duke funeral procession get by."

That famous dog, who always interrupts Duke-Carolina games, made it to the stadium this time too. He ran out on the field at a crucial time and the game had to be stopped while an official shooed him off.

Enough Cat & Mouse

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Attorney General Robert Morgan has removed himself from the race for governor in 1972.

It is probably the first time in history that the front running candidate has bowed out.

All the polls indicated that Morgan was ahead of both Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor and Senator Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles.

Morgan left open the question of whether he will run for attorney general.

He said that his present "intention" is to run. That's the same thing he said about the gubernatorial race on several occassions in recent months.

Also not eliminated completely was the possibility of a race for the U.S. 'Senate.

Conceivably it could take two more press conferences before the people of North Carolina learn which route Mr. Morgan will take.

We have the highest respect for Mr. Morgan, his ability and his performance in government. We stood ready to endorse him for the governorship. We stand ready to endorse him for attorney general. We can think of no major office for which we could not give him our support.

But Mr. Morgan has played the cat and mouse game with the people of North Carolina for too long. This had not been the first time he has feinted at two or three different races at once.

In previous election years he stirred speculation regarding races for U.S. Congress, U.S. Senate and the governorship.

This year some of his friends and potential political, candidates have been put in akward positions. One announced his candidacy and then withdrew because he could get no clear signal from Morgan as to his intentions.

If Mr. Morgan knows today what he is going to do, he should say so.

This newspaper is going to presume he is running for attorney general and we will speculate no further.

Hungary Wants Crown

By ALAN SHEARER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Traditions have a way of being lost in a rapidly changing world but one that is very much alive involves the Holy Crown of St. Stephen, a symbol of governmental legitimacy in Hungary for nearly 1,000 years.

The Crown, hidden away in the United States for 25 years, has become the center of a controversy. Rep. William Scherle R-Iowa is afraid the crown will be sent back to Hungary in return for the recent release of Cardinal Josef Mindszenty, who spent 15 years in refuge in the U.S. embassy in Budapest.

Sherle contends such a move would lend authenticity to the communist regime in Budapest and have an immense psychological impact by giving credence to the Hungarian government.

Calling the crown the "Most treasured symbol of the Hungarian people," Scherle said that he and other house members would go to great lengths to block any such action.

Beginning in the year 1000 A.D. under the reign of King Stephen I, when Hungary first became a kingdom sanctioned by the Roman Catholic church, the crown has been worn by every duly recognized regent in Hungary.

Legend has it that the bowl-shaped crown, along with a jeweled cross, was sent to King Stephen by Pope Sylvester II as a symbol of the religious conversion of the Hungarian People. Laden with miniature inserts depicting religious scenes, the crown became an essential part of the coronation of successive Hungarian regents.

In the 16th century, the Hungarian jurist Werboczy wrote that the political being of Hungary resided in the Holy Crown. This concept provided that if the regent became indisposed or unfit to rule, the Primate of Hungary, the Archbishop of Esztergom the first archdiocese created by Stephen would serve as "interim regent" until a successor could be chosen.

This made the church a potent element in Hungary's power structure, a situtation without parallel in any other country, and it prevailed until World War II when the Nazis removed Admiral Miklos Horthy, who had reigned as regent for too decades, ending Hungary's 94-year-old monarchy. The next year the Russians took over, and in 1949, a Soviet-type constitution was adopted, ending all hope of reviving the monarchy.

The United States thereafter became involved in a succession of tense diplomatic disputes with Hungary over the crown, which had been hidden in this country since American troops found it in a Hungarian salt mine in 1945. The Communist government demanded its return.

In 1951, during negotiations for the release of Robert A. Vogeler, an American I.T. & T. official imprisoned by Hungary on spy charges, the communists insisted on return of the crown, plus $70 million worth of Hungarian assets seized in this country during World War II. The United States met all of the demands except one: The Crown stayed in America, hidden as it is today at an unspecified location.

Strength For Today

JOY AND COMFORT

Why is childhood beautiful?

Most of the youngsters we know are weeping or protesting against something. They pound one another with no pretense. They let it be known that the one thing they don't want to do is to obey the people who are apparently set over them. If they could just have their own way they would be happy.

Decades pass and these kids in the middle age laugh over what they thought, did and said during childhood. But anybody who does not like children is to be regarded with suspicion.

The Bible tells us that on one occasion children climbed up on the lap of their good friend Jesus, the Carpenter of Nazareth. The disciples were scandalized. Taking such liberty with an outstanding person was not to be tolerated for a minute. They had gone entirely too far — that is, for everybody except the Master himself. His words regarding children were: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God. Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein. And he (Jesus) took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them" (Mark 10:13-15).

Not only are children the hope of the world — they are the joy and comfort of the present if we make them so.

Everybody Gets Into The Act

By ELMER ROESSNER

There must be money in selling insurance. Everybody wants to get into the act.

At the moment, stock brokers, bank holding companies and conglomerates are all trying to become your friendly insurance agent.

Insurance agents are fighting mad.

The insurance companies are ambivalent. They don't want to do anything to antagonize their armies of agents. At the same time, all those big companies and corporations, with inside information, could drum up millions of dollars worth of additional insurance.

Brokers: At the request of various brokerage houses, the New York Stock Exchange has voted to change its rules to permit members to sell life insurance. The change has been sent to the Securities and Exchange Commission for comment and approval. The SEC must okay the change before it can become effective.

insurance agents. When customers make a killing in the market, their brokers would be first to know who were likely prospects. When a customer was hit by losses, they would not irritate him further by suggesting the purchase of additional insurance, but they might point out that existing insurance had loan value.

Additionally, customers' men could talk insurance to those investors, of which there are many today, who are sitting the market out.

Banks: On Aug. 10, the Federal Reserve Board issued regulations permitting one-bank holding companies to sell insurance if "incidental to banking." Two weeks later a clause in the regulations requiring public notice and hearings was dropped. Chase Manhattan Bank's holding company indicated it was setting up an insurance subsidiary.

The National Association of Insurance Agents (NAIA) has since asked the Fed to prohibit Chase from selling insurance.

Along with a number of independent agencies, it charges that selling insurance would be in violation of the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956; that Chase's use of its marketing power would lessen competition; that the operation would violate New York law; and that it would not be to the public's advantage.

Banks Already Undersell

The Fed has not yet acted. Meanwhile, savings banks in some states are permitted to sell life insurance. Agents aren't happy because the banks do not hire agents and therefore charge lower rates.

Conglomerates: Joseph H. Blades, president of an insurance management company, told an American Management Association meeting in Chicago that at least 100 American industrial firms had set up insurance subsidiaries in Bermuda.

These insurance companies could be assured of a volume of business by insuring other subsidiaries in the conglomerate and their funds could be used to invest in subsidiaries. These captive insurance companies could insure all manner of risks, including the underwriting of employee insurance and pension plans.

And the Ohio AFL-CIO, after a futile 15-year campaign to reform the state's insurance laws, is establishing its own auto insurance company for members.

Observations From Editorial Columns

SOMETIMES NOT KNOWING IS BEST

It's not just the money, it's also the annual struggle with Form 1040 and its "carry over to line 23 on page 26a and to line 58 on schedule Z" type in inanity that makes "income tax" an emotional matter with many citizens.

But somehow we can't see how the proposal — to shoot back to each taxpayer by return mail a computer printout itemizing how much tax he has paid for each of some 40 federal functions — would make the process any less painful.

The theory, presumably, that if a citizen knows how his money is being spent, the citizen will not so much begrudge contributing said sum for said spending.

Perhaps this is so, in some categories. Some citizens might feel proud of contributing enough to the defense budget, for example, to supply gas and oil for a tank for a year. Or be glad to note that so many dollars or cents of their hard-earned cash went into the battle against cancer.

But, on the other hand, it's just possible that many recipients of such form might become more enraged, not less, at the entire process, by realizing some of the ways in which dollars earned with such effort are squandered with such ease.

Perhaps the final blow, to some taxpayer seething with ire at seeing his dollars dispatched with such open-handedness, could be the "P.S." which would fittingly end such a form: "The cost of preparing this computer tabulation of your individual tax payment. . . $1.35 . . . " — Jacksonville (Fla.) Florida Times-Union.

MAIL SERVICES TRY COST CUTS

For the average postal patron, caught in the seemingly endless rise in mailing costs, there must be satisfaction in the increasing number of private mail services.

These firms are not allowed to compete with the U.S. Postal Service in delivering first-class letters, but they are offering prompt, dependable deliveries of mail not included in the government monopoly.

U. S. News & World Report cited Nov. 1 that one of the larger firms in the field is Independent Postal System of America, with headquarters in Oklahoma City. The fact that IPSA offers a wanted service is indicated by its rapid growth since its founding in February, 1968.

According to U.S. News, "While Government postal officials say they are not worried about competition from firms that deliver third-class mail, they do express concern about the loss of parcel-post business to one big company, the United Parcel Service."

Perhaps the average postal patron has not sought or expected long-range relief from increasing rates through new types of delivery services. The switch to the new U.S. Postal Service was viewed as a reform that would certainly improve the U.S. mail system — and it may be doing so now.

However, there is some satisfaction in the thought that our private enterprise system may help provide more than one means to improved mail service. — New Orleans (La.) Times-Picayune

EACH PERSON MUST DECIDE

Bits of wisdom and nuggets of philosphy can be found anywhere; each human is capable of reaching fundamental decisions within himself.

The fact is illustrated by the comments of a longtime entertainer, Ginger Rogers, who still is starring in musicals even though her movie dancing career is probably past.

Today's stage show seems to run to extremes in terms of language and conduct but when Miss Rogers was asked to star in the musical "Coco" she agreed only if a four-letter word in the script were taken out. It was.

"I'm not a prude," she explained later, "but cleaning up the stage and movies has to start somewhere . . . I have an aunt in California who is an actress and needs every role she can get to pay her bills. But very recently she turned down a part because she thought the picture, about cannibalism, was indecent.

"It's in the power of every individual not to do things he or she doesn't approve of, things which do not hold up a decent example to young people. Every indency contributes to the indecency of our society."

The idea that one person can put his finger in the dike is not new, by any means. But many who are disgusted by current mores, either as participants or as specataors, do not have the courage to buck the "trend."

Everyone who does have the strength of conviction can influence others to do the same; otherwise the downhill slide of public morals and tastes can only accelerate. — Tulsa (Okla.) World years old by now since he's shown up at every game for that long, was contented along the sidelines. Chapel Hill cheer leaders paid him a lot of attention and he wagged his tail.

The cheerleaders quickly dropped him, though, when he took up barking at the ram which is the Carolina mascot.

One fan never knew who won the game last Saturday. A victim of too much booze, he had settled down in the sand around the top of Wallace Wade Stadium. As the crowd inside the stadium cheered, he was happily bumping his head against the grill of a car.

One middle aged couple walked down a drive leading from the stadium. The man, obviously a Carolina fan, was very happy.

A car pulled up behind them and crept along for a time. The driver sat down on the horn. The couple jumped aside and the man with a sweeping bow gestured the car by.

The driver, obviously a Duke fan, stomped on the gas and the car roared past.

A Conservative View

Disagreement Within Ranks Of Conservatives

By J. J. KILPATRICK

The mail brings a reproachful note from General Thomas A. Lane, a warmly respected colleague on the conservative right. He encloses a clipping of a recent column in which I opposed the prayer amendment in the House, and he writes: "I think you were wrong on this issue."

Perhaps so. Most of my conservative brethren, at Human Events, National Review, and in the Congress itself, strongly supported the amendment. Thousands of thoughtful Americans, deeply concerned at the decline of religion as a force in society, have urged that voluntary prayers be restored in public schools. The House rollcall of November 8 found all but half a dozen conservatives voting "aye" and every liberal without exception voting "no."

Yet there was at least some disagreement in conservative ranks. Satterfield of Virginia, Passman of Louisiana, Griffin of Mississippi, Cabel of Texas, Steiger of Wisconsin — all of them possessed of pretty fair conservative credentials — voted their convictions against the resolution. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, who is nobody's flaming liberal, put presidential politics to the side and cast an especially courageous vote in opposition. In my own view, at least, these gentlemen were right.

This was not the only issue in recent months on which conservatives have disagreed. There was the matter of Federal subsidy for the supersonic transport plane. There is the continuing question of China. We are not of one mind on the Subversive Activities Control Board, preventive detention, campaign financing, and revenue sharing with the States.

The question fairly arises: How can conservatives, starting from the same general body of political philosophy, come to opposite conclusions on particular issues? The answer lies not in any fundamental disagreements, but rather in a healthy independence in putting principles to work.

On the prayer amendment, for example, one would find no quarrel among conservatives upon the bedrock of belief. The concept of divine creation, and the acknowledgement of divine power, are fundamental to conservative thought. Neither would one encounter disagreement on the importance of the church as a stabilizing moral force in society. We are united in believing that Congress should make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

So far, so good. Our disagreement arises on the application of these principles to the particular resolution before the House on November 8. Was it a wise and necessary change in the Constitution? Would it have strengthened the whole concept of religious faith to sanction prayer in public schools? Would the amendment, if ratified, foster political and religious dissension? Here we went off in different directions.

It was the same story, to get away from metaphysics, in the matter of the SST. Conservatives would agree, as a general proposition, that it is no proper function of the Federal government to finance development of an airplane intended for commercial use. But James Burnham of National Review, for one, believed strongly that the SST was a legitimate exception — that other considerations, having to do with continuing American technological superiority, were of overriding importance. We divided on the question.

Conservatives respect the prohibition against double jeopardy and defend the principle that a defendant must be assumed innocent until proved guilty. But conservatives also believe that the state's primary duty is to protect the lives and property of the people. Where did we go on preventive detention? Some of us followed Senator Ervin. Some of us followed Mr. Rehnquist.

This is no bad thing. It is part of the nature of conservatives not to be regimented, not to be bound. We are not subjects of King Caucus and were not meant to be. On most issues, we do indeed come out at the same point, but it would be a dull life if it happened every time.

HORATIUS AT THE BRIDGE!

Diplomats To U.N. Are Increasingly Critical Of N.Y. Surroundings

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A growing number of U.N. diplomats say they have just about had it with New York City and are hinting at a move.

They want no more of sniper shootings, protest demonstrations, sugar in gas tanks, rude policemen and other woes common to the city.

A delegate from Ceylon, Christopher W. Pinto said U.N. delegates are subject to "an extraordinary form of censorship" in New York.

"It tells them: 'Let your views meet with the approval of all shades of the city's opinion or suffer at the hands of the particular group you have offended.'

"New York is supposed to be a swinging, permissive city," said Pinto, "but where is this permissiveness when it comes to giving expression to the views of the countries represented here?"

Behind the complaints is the hint of a threat to move the world organization to another country.

The threat is nothing new, but it is being said now by more delegates and in louder voices. Representatives of countries as different as Spain and Mongolia are demanding that the U.S. government do something to improve the diplomatic lot.

The Soviet Union, a leading target of some of New York's less hospitable elements, is making a bargaining point of recent reports that the city receives large financal benefits from the U.N. presence.

The Russians, angered by a sniper attack on their mission last month, had the question of security added to the agenda of the General Assembly.

Consideration of the item in the assembly's legal committee has unleashed a torrent of speeches on the injustices of New York.

Besides the robberies, burgalaries, flag rippings and demonstrations, delegates complain that New York policemen are not properly instructed on how to treat foreign diplomats.

Many also think the confusing division of authority in the United States is nonsense. It forces diplomats to deal with City Hall and the police and fire departments while they think the federal government, through the U.S. mission here, should take care of all matters pertaining to U.N. delegates.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush told the delegates that he hopes for congressional action on a State Department proposal to extend federal protection to foreign U.N. diplomats and officials. The New York Police Department now has that responsibility.

But to the Russians the answer is clear: The United States doesn't need more laws, just more enforcement.

They were infuriated by the recent release on bail of a youth held in connection with the sniper attack on the Soviet mission. They say it was another example of the policy of U.S. authorities to "turn a blind eye" to such acts.

Many delegates also would like "high Washington officials," who they did not name, to stop criticizing the United Nations. And they want American news media to tone down coverage of criminals and radical groups.

Both the officials and the press, it is contended, encourage unruly people to act against foreign diplomats.

Instead, say the delegates, politicians should say nice things about the United Nations, and the press, radio and television should launch an education campaign to change American attitudes.

Only a few countries—mostly Western—have avoided heavy criticism of the United States in the debate.

Public Forum

To The Editor:

Some people today, who are employed by industries, are becoming very dissatisfied. Most of their grievances are stemming from misunderstandings between these people and their supervisors. Most of these people are of the younger generation, who, having never been employed elsewhere, believe wholeheartedly that they are too good to work at any job except exactly which one they choose. The rest are of the older generation who have been in and out of trouble during their entire lifetime of careers.

Every time someone is reprimanded about their job performance, they become very angry and begin talk of hiring a union to whom we sign away our mouthpiece and turn buy theirs for us, to pay for the rest of our lives.

Unions have helped the working class of people who want better working conditions and higher pay scales. In general, unions are for people who work in lower paid jobs. In the past these same unions have become rich by using these poor people on the pretense of fair representation.

A union is not the answer for employees of companies which provide the highest salaries in the area, excellent hospital insurance, good compensations, retirement benefits and up to six weeks paid vacations.

The trend of the working class of people has changed in the past 25 years. It is not what we can do for our company, but what our company can do for us.

During the past 26 years of working public industry, I have found that you only receive what you put into any job. If you take more than you contribute, then eventually greed eats away the profits and we have to go elsewhere for employment.

How much do we value freedom of speech and where we choose to work? Are we each not capable of being, man or woman enough, to express our ideas as individuals, to achieve the goals we want in life? Have we become so weak we need help for this?

Howard Lee Taking Aim At Congressional Seat

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee is taking dead aim on a race for the 2nd District Congressional seat. Lee tells me he is traveling the district to "get a realistic view of my chances."

"I'm trying to find out how much white support I could get," Mayor Lee said. "If I like what I find, then I'll run. I am encouraged at this point."

I asked Lee what he thought about the gubernatorial candidacy of Dr. Reginald Hawkins.

"I had nothing to do with him getting in the race," Lee told me. "I will evaluate his candidacy along with the other people running for the office. At this point that's all anyone can do."

Was a shortage of campaign funds the reason that Attorney General Robert Morgan pulled out of the Governor's race? "With our standings in the polls," Morgan said, "you would really have to be politically naive to think we couldn't have raised the money to run for Governor."

After Morgan's No-Go statement, attorney Harold Edwards of Charlotte said: "I am sick about that." Edwards probably would have managed Morgan's campaign in Mecklenburg... Hoover Adams of Dunn says the tip-off to Morgan's decision came when the attorney general chose Raleigh as the site for his press conference. "If he had planned to announce for Governor," Hoover says, "the press conference would have been held in Harnett County."

When Morgan pulled out of the race, gubernatorial candidates Pat Taylor, Skipper Bowles and Hugh Morton all said they felt they would be helped the most. Morton said Mogan's decision would cause him to announce earlier than he had planned to... At one time, some Morton supporters were hoping that Charlotte Mayor John Belk would take an influential position in their man's campaign.

One of North Carolina's most prominent Republicans told me this about Jim Gardner: "I really believe Jim wanted to run for the U.S. Senate but his wife absolutely didn't want to live in Washington. Jim is working within the party and if he runs this time, you'll see him giving full support to President Nixon."

Bill Booe, a Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, was happy to hear Gardner was out of that race. "Jim Gardner is a real credit to the Republican Party," Booe said. "He can do much for us and I hope he stays involved in politics." Just so long as he's not running against Booe, that is.

Down in the Raiford, Ga., prison they parked the fork-lift truck inside the laundry room. Two inmates encircled the truck with sheet metal, cut a slit so they could see, and then drove their homemade tank through two gates, as dumbfounded guards saw their bullets fall harmlessly off the metal. Two days later the escapees were charged with robbing a bank.

Asked what he intended to do about the bizarre escape, Prison Supt. Lawrence Duggers said: "I've instructed my men not to park the fork-lift inside the laundry room any more."

Democrats' Best Chance Is To Wreck Nixon's Recovery Program

By GEORGE BRYANT, Jr.

WASHINGTON — The best chance the Democrats have to wreck President Nixon's 1972 reelection hopes is to wreck his economic recovery program. And the campaign is on.

With this in mind, dismaying though it may be, it's easier to understand a lot of what's going on. The "concern" here at the seat of government with the "crisis of confidence" fits right into the picture.

The public mood is a subtle but powerful thing. When consumers and businessmen are optimistic, they spend. And this spending stimulates the economy — makes for "good times." Uncertainty and doubt become a depressant. It can be fanned into a political force.

Take the Senate's action on the Nixon tax-cut bill, for example. In August, Nixon asked for tax reductions of about $16-billion as a stimulant to consumer and business spending — a job-promoting cut. The House upped the cut substantially, but stayed within what can be called reason.

The Senate, on the otherhand, went wild. Depending on whose figures you use, that so-called august body much more than doubled the Nixon request. In doing so, it cast its vote for the biggest deficit this nation has ever seen, war or no war.

It's hard to see this as responsible and reassuring. It goes more in the direction of a deliberate act of political sabotage. There was nothing about it calculated to build confidence. And then on top of this, the Democrat-Chamber made a bid to finance presidential campaigns next year with Tax funds out of the Treasury.

This sort of thing shakes people, as well as the jittery stock market.

Or look at the behavior of George Meany. The old AFL-CIO boss has boasted for years that while he might not be able to pick the Democratic nominee for President, he can veto any man put up for the nomination. His open opposition to wage controls and his contempt for the President at the Florida Labor meeting bring cheers from men who rank as Democratic leaders.

There's nothing reassuring in this. Meany has never been known for his good manners and, thus, his attitude toward the President comes as no surprise.

But Meany has become a power in the economy. He has led the inflation-making wage drive for years. And it is here that the support he gets from Democrats causes concern.

The politics in the handling of foreign aid is another blow to confidence. Sure, the program has been abused and has been around much too long. But the Senate vote to simply cut it off, without even any discussion of the consequences, either here at home or abroad, is hard to justify.

Of course, the Senate is going to turn around on the issue and keep the program going. But still, the impression of disorder growing out of irresponsibility has been driven deeply into the public mind.

The situation today is a far cry from that which existed only a few months back when Nixon made his dramatic moves to put a real brake on inflation and stimulate recovery.

The wage-price freeze, along with the tax cut and moves to protect the dollar in world money markets brought a surge of confidence. And things did pick up a bit. Nixon's popularity, as reflected by the polls, scored a sharp gain.

Nixon can be faulted, of course, for the way he has handled things. There is confusion in Phase 2 over permissable wage and price increases. And it may well be that Nixon should have created a vast bureaucracy to handle things. But this would have given what are supposed to be emergency controls a permanent look.

It was the change in Nixon's political status which the Democrats have found hard to take. With the splits in their party, they faced the prospect that economic recovery would make Nixon a sure winner.

Thus, after prodding Nixon toward controls, the Democrats and their big union ally, Meany, find it expedient to reverse their field. That's politics. And it can be said that the Republicans, if caught on the same spot, might do the same thing.

But it promises uneasy months ahead for all, whether housewife, businessman or plain working stiff.

ON PROGRAM — Three high ranking U.S. military officers commanding troops and bases in North Carolina will discuss the present military posture and policies on a televised panel program moderated by Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University. The program, TOPIC, will be telecast Nov. 30 by station WNCT-TV, Greenville, channel 9 at 10:30 p.m. Left to right are: Maj. Gen. George Blanchard, commanding general, 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg; Maj. Gen. John H. Herring Jr., commander 839th Air Division, Pope Air Force Base; Dr. Jenkins, and Maj. Gen. Carl A. Youngdale, commanding general, U. S. Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune. DEAR ABBY: George and I have been married for 36 years. We have five children, all married and on their own with nice families. George was never much of a father. All the kids were scared to death of him. His idea of "teaching" them something was to give them a good belt in the chops. It's a miracle they turned out as good as they did.

I've always covered up for George, but I've known all along he ran around with other women. He's in his middle fifties now and you'd think he'd slow up in that department, but now he runs more—not less.

Last week he came home very late smelling like a brewery, with lipstick all over his neck. I got mad and hit him with the broom. He said: "If you don't like it, go live with one of the kids! Everything in this house is MINE because I paid for it."

Is that true? I never worked outside the home. Can he really kick me out? I don't know he law. CHARLOTTE

DEAR CHARLOTTE: Tell your husband that the law has provisions for Lochinvars who get their second romantic wind in their mid-fifties, and if he doesn't behave himself, HE may have to go live with one of the kids. Even if the wife did not contribute a dime to the house, she is part-owner of everything in it. She contributed to the marriage by caring for the home and rearing the children. See a lawyer and find out what your rights are. It will come in handy, if George ever tries to bully you again.

DEAR ABBY: My husband was getting his hair cut the day the Orioles tied up the World Series, and his hair hasn't grown out yet. MARGIE IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR MARGIE: He's lucky he wasn't getting a shave!

DEAR ABBY: We live beside my husband's parents, whom I truly like. His mother has a hobby; his father doesn't. My husband isn't home during the evenings, so his father comes to see the children and me while his wife works at her hobby.

It would be fine if he came once or twice a week, but he comes over every single night and he stays four or five hours! I would like to be alone occasionally in the evenings, and this is beginning to bug me. There are lots of things I could be doing besides entertaining him.

He reads your column faithfully, so maybe he'll see himself and cut down on his visits. Thank you.

HOPEFUL IN OHIO

DEAR HOPEFUL: And what if he doesn't see it? You're a big girl now, so tell him in a nice way that you have little chores to do and need a few evenings a week in which to do them.

DEAR ABBY: I am a senior citizen [65] who is keeping company with a gentleman who is 68. He is a widower, and I am a widow. We enjoy each other tremendously as we both like to bowl, golf, sail and play bridge. He takes me to lovely places to dine and dance. Before he pops the question [which I feel certain will be very soon] shall I tell him that I wear a wig? I have five, all the same shade and styled the same way. My own hair has become so thin these past few years that it cannot be styled, and when I wear a wig it's so natural looking no one could ever tell it's not my own hair. My gentleman friend has complimented me repeatedly on my "lovely hair." Should I tell him now? Later? Or not at all? UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Tell him now.

Educator Will Speak Dec. 6

A young black college professor, Dr. Charles V. Hamilton of Columbia University, has been named to lecture at East Carolina University on Monday, December 6, at 8:15 p.m.

Dr. Hamilton fills the lecture date left open when Civil Rights leader Ralph Abernathy could not meet a scheduled lecture in October.

Dr. Hamilton was last year described by Robert I. Pack in "The Times-Picayune" of New Orleans as "a man who combined the intellect of a great educator with the wit of a Bill Cosby and the stage presence of a John F. Kennedy." This praise followed the educator's joint appearance with Sentor Edmund S. Muskie at a lecture on campus at Tulance University.

A native of Oklahoma, raised on Chicago's South Side, Charles Hamilton received his bachelor's degree from Roosevelt University in 1954 and a doctorate from the University of Chicago in 1964.

Fron 1964 to 1967 he taught at Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, where he headed the political science department and received the Lindback Foundation prize for distinguished teaching.

In his ECU appearance, Dr. Hamilton, professor of Urban Studies at Columbia University where he holds a special Ford Foundation-endowed chair, will speak on the subject "Political Changes in Urban America." The lecture deals with what Hamiliton feels is a necessity for community control of all public services.

A revised lecture schedule for the remaining four lectures at ECU for the current season has been furnished by Paul Breitman, Assistant Director of Student Activities. Some involve a change of dates; one is a replacement lecturer.

—Monday, January 17, Heywood Hale Broun, a journalist and sportscaster, will lecture.

—Wednesday, January 26 will feature Norman Baker, navigator for Ra I and Ra II.

—Wednesday, February 2, Peter Nero, pianist and composer; and —Monday, March 13, sociologist Dr. Ashley Montague will lecture as a replacement for Dennis Hopper, who recently cancelled his entire current lecture tour.

PRICE, Utah (AP) — After 56 years of lonely hours and hard work in all kinds of weather, sheepherding is losing its appeal for Fred Rispaud.

"I might try town this winter," he says. "This is the only work I've ever had, but I'm getting a little old...."

Rispaud, who herds sheep near the central Utah town of Price—population 6,200—is one of a growing number of veteran sheepherders in the West who are retiring.

It's hard to find young men who are willing to put up with the isolation and demanding work for only $300 a month, says Marcellus Palmer, executive secretary of the Utah Wool Growers Association.

Finding men to tend the flocks is the major problem facing wool growers and is one of the main reasons the industry is declining by about four per cent a year, Palmer says.

Many ranchers have begun keeping their flocks in controlled areas, supervising them from pickup trucks, Palmer says.

Rispaud makes his round on horseback and by foot.

He and his two brothers came over from France as young boys to make their fortunes.

"We thought the whole country was full of gold when we came over in 1914. We thought we could just fill up our pockets and go home."

But it didn't work out that way. He's never been back. And his two brothers died in America.

Ever since, Fred has watched over flocks of sheep, winter and summer. Trips to town have been rare—sometimes for a trip to a hospital and an operation.

"The food was good and the nurses were nice. But I couldn't sleep. It was too noisy," he says.

Sheep men have turned to imported labor from France, Spain, and, more recently, Peru. But there still are problems with immigration quotas, opposition from labor organizations, and with finding men familiar with the sheep business.

"A man with a herd on winter desert range is responsible for an $80,000 or $90,000 investment. So many things can happen. If a man knows the dangers—sickness, weather, predators—he can try to prevent problems," Palmer says.

Rispaud doesn't have to do it all alone. He has three horses and his dog, Blackie, to help him mind 1,200 sheep.

His camp is comfortable. A saddle hangs from one tree to keep moisture out. Chaps hang from another. The wood pile is just outside his door.

Inside, there's a place for everything. A camp lantern gives light after sundown. His boss brings groceries, a few magazines every two or three days, and checks up on him.

Summertime means lots of visitors.

Some just come to see what it's like at a sheep camp; what he's like. He talks mostly of the land and his work.

Now, Rispaud is starting to think of spending winters in town, collecting Social Security.

Machine Solves Disposal Issue

NEW YORK (UPI) —A Portland, Ore., firm has thrown cold water on backyard burning with a machine that chews garden and hedge trimmings, leaves, branches and vines into useful compost material. Omark Industries said it developed the portable machine to help homeowners faced with disposal problems resulting from restrictions placed on backyard burning by many cities and counties.

Snakes Harmless, But Cast Members Were Still Nervous

In any play, an actor has to cope with a certain number of problems. He may have to learn to juggle, or speak with a special accent, or act a part older or younger than himself. But in the rehearsal for Holy Ghosts, the East Carolina University Playhouse's next production, actors are being confronted with a rather unique test of their abilities, not to mention concentration.

The play deals with a religious sect which uses snake handling as part of its ceremony, and nearly everyone in the play is required to pick up one or more live snakes in the course of the evening.

Although the snakes are harmless, a few of the cast members were nervous at the first "live" rehearsal. Now, however, the reptiles are treated and handled easily by everyone.

The largest snake, a five foot boa constrictor, is generally considered to be the cast favorite. He is the pet of one of the cast members. Holy Ghosts opens Dec. 8 in McGinnis Auditorium.

The Hard-Drinking, Two-Fisted Private Eye Is Gone

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The private eye still exists. In some ways, the mystique fostered by pulp magazines, motion pictures and radio remains.

But the fictional stereotype, the solitary knight-errant moving through a shadowy underworld of sleazy bars and waterfront saloons, ending each case with a smoking pistol or a sultry blonde; the hard-drinking, two-fisted shamus solving the big city's biggest crime, is gone.

"I'd rather run than carry a gun," said Larry Mayer, part owner of Lloyd's Detective Agency, one of the largest in Chicago.

Tony Pellicano, a private detective who specializes in finding missing persons, said, "To many people, the image of the private eye is terrible. They have this stereotype of the gun in a shoulder holster and a bottle on the desk. Maybe there still are guys who operate that way, but I don't know any."

The loner virtually has disappeared from private investigating. There are 200 licensed private detectives in Illinois, most of them in Chicago, and almost all of them own or are associated with big agencies.

"We still have some guys working out of their coat pocket or from their back porches," said Lee Buslik, Mayer's partner at Lloyd's.

The licensed detective who does not work for larger agencies usually is a full-time employe of a law firm and works only on cases for the firm.

"The average detective is different, much different than the guy in a trenchcoat, the Mannix type," Mayer said. "Today, the private detective is a businessman. He uses the latest in electronic equipment and cameras.

"I'm not going to hire a guy who comes in here with a trenchcoat and goes around wiping off doorknobs," Mayer added.

Lloyd's hires as many as 30 agents at one time, Buslik said. "A good agent can earn around $10,000 a year," he said.

A person working to obtain a license as a private investigator is permitted by law to work as an investigator for a licensed agency. These persons earn between $3 and $5 an hour. Agencies, on the other hand, charge as much as $150 a day plus expenses for the services of a detective.

"Ninety-nine-point-nine per cent of the people who walk in here have no idea how expensive a private investigator is," said Mayer. "We try and tell them what the cost may be. A good investigator is not cheap."

Buslik, an energetic man in dark-rimmed glasses who, like many private detectives, began as a "skip-tracer" searching for persons who failed to pay bills, said, "Some detectives still charge $35 for a job. They're shysters. The whole secret of our business is reliability."

"Surveillance can be expensive," Buslik added. "Some people ask for a one-day surveillance but we try to sell them a three-man or five-man shadow. It will cost them less because in one day a subject can be lost too readily by one investigator."

Buslik and Mayer, like many detective agencies, give full service, providing guards, alarms, investigators and even polygraph (lie detector) testing.

Pellicano works out of an 11th floor downtown Chicago office designed in rich reds and blacks with $900 mirrors and a giant carved zodiac glazing the walls behind his huge desk. His car is equipped with a telephone for which the monthly bill is $300.

"That's why I laugh when I see Mannix or some television detective handle a case for $100 and get shot a couple times besides," he said.

Pellicano, 31, said, "Private investigating is highly competitive, except for me. I'm the best. I've had over 3,000 missing persons cases and I've found every one. That's my thing. Finding missing persons."

Pellicano, like other investigators, was reluctant to divulge his investigative methods. "People who are missing or who try to disappear usually forget one thing—they don't change their birthday. That's how I find a lot of them."

Tracing a person through a birthdate can involve confidential records. Although private investigators wouldn't admit it, the only way, in many cases, to obtain these records is to pay someone off.

Pellicano, attempting to explain his approach to a missing persons case, said, "A private eye needs logic, common sense and a fantastic imagination. To find a missing person, you go into that person's mind, find out how he or she thinks and acts."

The increasing number of runaway teen-agers in recent years has brought a boom to investigators' missing persons business.

Paul Kitter, manager of the Chicago office of John Lynch Co., an agency with offices in seven major cities, said, "Often you look on the highways because most of the runaways are hitch-hikers. Close contact with the youth officer in local police departments is usually the answer to finding a missing teenager."

Kitter specializes in industrial investigations. Agencies may charge as much as $35,000 a year retainer to large corporations trying to protect against theft, embezzlement and production losses.

"Local police don't have the manpower," Kitter said, "to tie up people investigating industrial theft by employes."

Kitter, a bulky man with sprinkles of gray in his black, thick hair, has been an investigator for 30 years. His methods adhere to the usual police practices.

"We may use direct surveillance with a camera, or use undercover agents. Many good policemen adhere to the policy of a thorough neighborhood investigation on the theory that it usually turns up the little old lady who can't sleep nights and saw the whole thing."

Undercover work still is dangerous, Kitter said. "You get in tight spots, but violence is minimal if you're properly prepared.

"There are many times when I wished I had a gun. When you deal with people who may be erratic, emotional, you don't know how they will react. But I've always had the theory that I would rather take a punch in the mouth than shoot the wrong person," he added.

Illinois law prohibits a licensed detective from carrying a weapon unless he has been employed and authorized to do so by a state or municipal law enforcement agency.

"One of our big problems recently in industrial work," Kitter said, "is the number of men using drugs. This is a tremendous problem for industry. It causes injuries and loss of productivity.

"We had one case where a man on drugs ran amok in a warehouse while he was driving a fork-lift," he added.

One of the major types of investigations which private detectives handle involve domestic problems.

Pellicano said, "Our divorce work has been very heavy this year. But we have to be careful. You always get the people who ask, 'Can you have my husband beat up? Can you take pictures of my wife with this other guy?' We turn this business down."

Mayer of Lloyd's said, "Many times the clients will ask, 'How do I know you're not going to tell my husband?' We consider ourselves like doctors and lawyers. Our main concern is protecting the client.

"But often we tell people to try the Legal Aid Society for help. A person making $100 a week just can't afford the services of a private detective," he added.

The evidence collected by private investigators in domestic cases is rarely used in court. First, the law requires a judge or jury to be highly skeptical of testimony given by an investigator employed by one of the parties.

Secondly, it usually is used to intimidate one of the parties into settling a case out of court.

"Many times," Pellicano said, "a lawyer will ask us to take pictures with an unloaded camera. The subject doesn't know there is no film, so he agrees to a settlement."

A domestic investigation can involve one detective with a camera or a group of investigators using videotape television.

"A domestic case can run up to $15,000," Pellicano said.

Private eyes rarely get involved in crime cases being handled by the police.

"About the only time this happens," said Buslik of Lloyd's agency, "is when a client will ask us to look for evidence that hasn't been found. Usually, to clear somebody.

"If the client agrees in writing that anything we discover will be turned over to the police, we will ask police permission to enter the case," Buslik said.

One of Buslik's specialties is locating electronic eavesdropping equipment used to "bug" corporate offices.

"Sometimes we have to go through washrooms, board meetings rooms, executives' offices and we still can't find the transmitter. The electronic equipment used today is highly sophisticated," Buslik said.

Buslik has a private pilot's license and sometimes uses a plane to try and locate transmitters hidden in buildings.

"An investigator offering this service would have to spend $5,000 for the equipment needed to locate bugs," Buslik said.

Kitter of the Lynch Co. does not advocate using electronic equipment. "The only electronic equipment legal for use is a portable television camera and two-way radios in cars. Most of the equipment is really not perfected."

"Besides," he added, "people are hung up on electronic bugging. They say things like, 'Don't talk to me in the office. It might be bugged. Meet me on a street corner at 2 a.m. and don't wear any clothes 'cause you might be bugging me'."

Leon Lewison is a private investigator who specializes in polygraph testing. He quit medical school after three years to become a private investigator and is one of the few private lie detector testers available.

He has given 11,000 lie detector tests in the last two years.

"Only .2 per cent of the population are congenital liars and can beat the test," Lewison said. He uses polygraph in domestic cases, paternity suits, for parents who want their children tested to learn if they are using drugs, for companies who want a check on employes.

Use of polygraph equipment has reduced the cost of checking prospective employes, Lewison said.

Despite the use of polygraph and infinity receivers for bugging telephones, of long-range lens and videotape cameras, the private eye is still a gumshoe.

"It's exciting, yeah," said Mayer, "but there's nothing exciting about sitting in front of an apartment house for 12 hours."

"To find someone or something," Pellicano said, "you need time. If you have enough time, you can find anyone."

"To solve a case," Buslik said, "you look and wait for someone to talk. That's the whole secret of this business. Someone must talk. A witness, a bystander, an angry relative, an old girl friend, some unhappy guy who wants to feel important. Someone must talk and when he does the private detective must be there to listen."

Chilean People Like Americans

By ARTHUR GOLDEN

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — "You will find a tremendous contradiction between what you read scrawled on walls attacking your country and what you hear from our people themselves," an old Chilean told a newly arrived U.S. citizen who had come to live and work in Santiago.

He was right.

This bustling capital of three million people, seat of the government of Marxist President Salvador Allende, has a thunderour anti-American press and angry signs and posters condemning "U.S. imperialism." But residents of Santiago show no signs of anything but friendliness for Americans.

"There is more anti-American propaganda in Chile than in any other Latin American nation, except Cuba," a U.S. official told UPI, "yet I can't recall any American ever complaining of being mistreated here."

In restaurants, shops and taxis, American-accented Spanish brings smiles to Santiaguinos, who seem delighted when foreigners speak their language. Their questions about the United States are courteous and polite. They seem more interested in how Americans live than about U.S. policy in Vietnam or elsewhere.

"Chile has always been famous for the way it has received foreigners," a longtime American resident said. "This certainly hasn't changed with regard to Americans during the year Allende has been in office."

A bearded student, who described himself as a communist, said he abhored the foreign policy of the United States and the former power in Chile of the now expropriated American copper companies.

"But I have no hatred for the United States or its citizens," he said. "The Americans I have known have been kind and generous. I don't think anyone in Chile confuses the government of the United States with the people of the United States."

New Program Started To Assist Diabetics

By BETTY CASEY

"I learned to give myself insulin injections after I was in the hospital a week," said Duane, sturdy seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Maxwell of Ayden.

That week began on Labor Day weekend following the discovery during a pre-school physical examination by his pediatrician, Dr. Earl Trevathan, that Duane has diabetes. That discovery brought about many changes in the lives of the Maxwell family.

Sometimes the disease is called "sugar diabetes" because symptons show excess sugar in the blood and urine. Medically the disease is called diabetes mellitus and is described as "a chronic disease characterized by disorders in (1) metabolism of insulin, carbohydrates, fat and protein and (2) the structure and function of blood vessels."

GIVING INSULIN SHOTS . . . to himself every day was learned by Duane Maxwell of Ayden. Supervising the learning procedure are Dr. W. W. Fore and Mrs. Laurel Holloman.

Symptoms of the disease observed by Duane's parents just prior to the examination included excessive thirst and urination, loss of weight and lethargy. In their work each of the parents has some contact with the problems of diabetes, so they were fearful of the meaning of these symptons. Mrs. Maxwell is a social worker at the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center and Maxwell is regional supervisor of Vocational Rehabilitation for 20 eastern counties.

"We were hoping against hope that diabetes would be ruled out," said the mother, "and the next day when they called that he must be hospitalized immediately, we practically panicked."

New Program

Assistance and support from a new Regional Medical Program sponsored and funded by the Diabetes Consultation and Education Service of Chapel Hill helped the distraught family to understand and adjust to the problems which they face.

This program, directed by Dr. W. W. Fore, who spearheaded area instruction classes for diabetics with the assistance of four volunteer registered nurses and two dieticians, is now established as a Diabetic Committee.

Volunteer members of the committee include Miss Evelyn Perry, director of ECU School of Nursing, Miss Jean Owens, director of nurses at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Mrs. Violet Jones, supervisor of nurses of Pitt County Health Department, Mrs. Lorraine Nobles, director of the Dietary Department at Pitt Memorial Hospital, and Miss Patricia Lawrence, an ex-officio member, representative of the Dietary Service in Chapel Hill.

In addition, the regional program provides pay for a Diabetes Teaching Nurse, Mrs. Laurel Holloman, who is sponsored by Pitt Memorial Hospital. Her role is to teach diabetics and their families how to provide the special dietary and medication care needed; to provide inservice education; and to stimulate community awareness of diabetes and the necessary health care involved.

Mrs. Maxwell said, "The support we received from these people and the staff at the hospital in making this tremendously hard adjustment, was reassuring and most helpful — it dug us out of the ditch."

The program outlined for a diabetic includes a strict caloric regulation of a balanced diet; providing extra insulin, and testing of his urine to determine the dosage needed.

Duane's mother divides the calories he is allowed into three meals and two snacks and varies it with exchanges of vegetables and other foods. This does not mean that Duane cannot enjoy cake and ice cream at a birthday party, "but," his mother explained, "I figure the calories into the day's allowance." She also prepares his rigidly controlled school lunch and snacks.

"It has changed our family eating habits," also she admitted.

"I think our entire diet is healthier," laughed the father, "we've benefitted from the better balance of food."

Since Duane's body does not generate the insulin needed to convert this food into energy, every single day he must take an injection of one of the seven types of insulin which his doctor has decided will meet his needs. That is why Miss Holloman taught him to give his own "shots."

Does Testing

In order to determine the amount and effectiveness of his insulin dosage, four times every single day, Duane's urine must be tested for sugar content.

"I have a kit and do my own tests," Duane explained. He combines five drops of the specimen with 10 drops of water and adds a tablet. A resulting blue color signals that all is well, a green or orange color calls for adjustments.

"This," said Dr. Fore, "is one of several methods for testing." He also pointed out that injection sites on the body have been liberalized.

Infection is a special hazard to diabetics so it must be guarded against and treated promptly if it develops. This does not hamper Duane's activities however. His parents told him of the Diabetic Summer Camp sponsored by both North and South Carolina at Eagle's nest near Brevard for eight to 15-year-olds.

While marking time until next year when he will be eight and eligible for the camp, Duane made his own day camp with a tent in a wooded area beside a lake near their home. Sammy Moore, a playmate joined his camping activites.

"We go exploring in the woods, too," he grinned happily. He also enjoys scuffling good naturedly with his father and having his fater "flip him" head over heels.

"Diabetes is a rapidly increasing problem," said Dr. Fore.

The number of known diabetics in the U.S. rose from two million to three million in the last 15 years — and is predicted to reach the four million mark before 1980. It is expected to exceed 10 per cent of the population in the near future.

Why? Essentially diabetes is classified as a hereditary disease. (Although in Duane's case there has been no known diabetes in the family history.) Before the discovery of insulin and its use in treating the disease by Dr. Banting in 1921, as Aretaeus said in the first century, "the patient is short-lived." Now, with modern methods of treatment, the outlook is happier. Diabetics have a good chance to live normally to maturity, to marry and to have children. Some, but not all, of these children carry the diabetic genes to future generations.

Unfortunately, many people suffer from undiagnosed and untreated diabetes. It is suspected that two million people have it and don't know it. It is the number five killer in the U.S. and thought to be the greatest cause of blindness.

Classes

Classes have been directed this fall by Miss Holloman for between 60 and 70 diabetics. In conjunction with the last class to be held on Nov. 30 at 8 p.m. at the Moyewood Social Service Center in Greenville, a Diabetic Association will be organized for Eastern North Carolina. Two members of the Diabetes Consultation and Education Service, Miss Lawrence and Mrs. Virginia Coyle, will be present to assist with the organization and planning. They will also show a film of the Diabetic Camp. Dr. Fore and other members of the Diabetic Committee will be present. The meeting is open to all diabetics, their families and interested persons.

"A lay Diabetic Association for this area," said Miss Holloman, "will be a means of providing the diabetic with the latest information and research for diabetes; assisting children in attending diabetic camp and contacting community agencies available and helping the diabetic and his family to cope with his condition. It can also arrange screening programs to find the hidden diabetic, for early detection is of utmost importance."

"I urge all diabetics and their families to take part in the Diabetic Association," said Dr. Fore. "It will give them an opportunity to re-evaluate their treatment procedures and take advantage of new developments in techniques."

DISCOVERY OF DIABETES . . . during son's early years has brought about many changes in the lives of the Maxwell family.

With The Women

Their Marriage Hums Along Like A Dream

By CINDY ADAMS

NEW YORK (WNS) — "Love is one commodity whereby the more you give the more you have," said Mrs. Ferdinand Marcos, wife of the President of The Philippines, as we sat talking of her 16-year love affair with her husband.

"Our agreement is never to go to bed hurt. If I am the one unhappy I will say 'Ferdinand, there are things that have happened that have hurt me' and we talk it out before we go to bed. Unlike 'Love Story,' I believe love means never to be prideful.

"The President is quite rigid mentally. Like a clock, he rises at six, exercises and jogs around the bedroom for one hour, then breakfasts and reads a synopsis of all the news before beginning his day. Nonetheless, he telephones me several times a day. Even when I'm away from home he calls. When I'm in a hotel far away and the phone rings I can somehow always tell when it is he calling. He is never too busy for me."

Imelda Marcos and I were having this chat at two a.m. On a two-week swing through India, Iran, England and the United States, she was soon to be on her way to the airport for a four a.m. flight to London where her 14-year-old son and two daughters, 15 and 10, are in school. Called "The Steel Butterfly," the smashing brunette in the long, yellow Philippine national dress with the stiff puffed sleeves said to me, "I have the stamina of a paratrooper. I'm one of those fortunates who only needs two to four hours sleep a day. And thank goodness," she grinned, "it doesn't show on my face.

Love, Love, Love,

"My motivating force is love. I love what I'm doing. I think I'm the luckiest person in the world. God is good to me. I am a happy person. I had a happy childhood. I love my family. I love my life. I love people. I love going into the barrios and talking with the people. Sure, you can say I have a selfish motive. That I do this for the man I love. But I also enjoy it. The people prepare in the provinces and I would never offend them by not eating, so everytime I go on a campaign I gain ten pounds. It is really something quite wonderful to be able to talk with kings one minute and common people the next."

She patted her well-plumped upsweep ("I always do it myself") and her hands winked with diamonds and pearls. It was almost unnecessary to pose questions because Imelda Marcos is a born talker. We fell onto the subject of how you handle a man who is President and how a wife copes with the frustrations and tensions encumbent on such a man.

"When things are difficult the wife's role is important," she said. "You cannot become impatient. In the face of even the worst criticism you must play everything down. Some women add 300 per cent to a man's problems by pointing UP the troubles. I give my husband only 5 per cent of any problem. When friends, relatives or anyone close to us come to the Palace, I caution them before they come in contact with the President. I say, 'Look you will have the ear of the President. Be careful what you drop into that ear. Be careful you do not hurt a countryman. Do not try to lower his confidence.' It is always a temptation to put a little squeeze on someone whom others think of as being all-powerful.

Innuendos

"People say unkind things about me sometimes in the press. They say I direct him. Our enemies try to get to him through me. They make innuenous and try to put a wedge between us. It is impossible, because we are together a long time. He was 37 and I 22 when we were married so I have literally grown up with him.

"The President often tells me, 'What I love most about you is that you always make me feel ten feet tall.' I never say to him, 'Darling you CAN'T do this.' I always make him sure he CAN do it. When victory comes I takecare to give him his laurels and whenever he suffers a defeat I take care to let him know that I understand."

Mrs. Marcos summoned one of her aides to bring at attache case. She extracted from it a large photo of her husband inscribed "To my darling Meldy, my only love. I look forward to my vision: A live of abiding peace with you. Ferdinand."

"He hands me something like that everytime I go away," smiled The First Lady of The Philippines taking another long lingering look before stuffing it back in its carrying case. "In every single room of the Palace he put a picture of himself with a loving inscription to me. 'Otherwise,' he says, 'you might forget me when you get to the next room.' He also brings little presents such as the beautiful seashell he found somewhere which had awful perfume in it. He bough it because, he said, everytime he finds something beautiful he sees me in it."

Children

Imelda's aides tried hurrying her along to make her plane. "I'm going to London to see my children," she said, not the least bit hurried. "I took them out of the Philippines because they

Harrington-Evans Vows Spoken

WHITEVILLE — In a double ring ceremony on Saturday at 3:00 p.m., Miss Nancy Carol Evans became the bride of Lt. Ollie Dennis Harrington, U.S. Air Force.

The Rev. Edwin Hedgpeth performed the ceremony in the Smyrna Baptist Church here. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Broadus Turbeville, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of silk organza over net and taffeta designed with a scoop neckline and empress bodice. Clusters of pearls with chantilly lace patterned the bodice and full skirt. The bishop sleeves were circled with lace and pearls.

She wore a mantilla of English net with a deep border of chantilly lace matching that of her dress. Her flowers were a cascade of white rosebuds.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Evans of Rt. 1, Whiteville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ollie A. Harrington of Greenville.

Maid of honor was Suzanne Hemenway of Rocky Mount. She wore a long sleeve dress of limetwist chiffon and satin. The scoop neckline was trimmed with a stand up ruffle of chiffon. A cummerbund of green satin at the waistline created the peasant look. The long full skirt was bordered with a deep ruffle of the dress fabric. On her head, she wore flowers matching her nosegay of bronze and yellow pom pons.

Bridesmaids were Georgia Arend of Chapel Hill, Cheryl Townsend of Whiteville, cousin of the bride, Deborah Harrington of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Jack L. High of Charlotte. They were dressed identical to the honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Russell Fleming, Ronnie Johnston, Danny Harrington, brother of the bridegroom, and Tom Basnight, all of Greenville.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Big Spring, Tex.

The bride attended East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and is now attending flight school at Webb AFB.

Wedding Breakfast

On Saturday, Miss Nancy Evans and Dennis Harrington were honored at a wedding breakfast in the Waccamaw Room of the Holiday Motel, Whiteville.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Ollie A. Harrington, parents of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom M. Byrd of Greenville.

The honored couple and their parents were seated at the head table. Arrangements of bronze and yellow mums were used to decorate the tables.

After-Rehearsal Party

Following the rehearsal Friday night, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther High and Mrs. Gordon Townsend, aunts and uncle of the bride, entertained at an after-rehearsal party at the home of Mrs. Townsend.

The table was covered with a yellow organdy cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow and white mums. Yellow candles burned in silver candelabra.

Mrs. R. N. Jordan served the wedding cake and Mrs. Ted Griffin, aunt of the bride, poured punch from a crystal bowl.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Hubert High, Mrs. H. H. Collins Sr., Mrs. Marie Rieger and Mrs. Dorothy Long.

MRS. OLLIE DENNIS HARRINGTON

Miss Christina Morreale Weds Friday

WAYNE, N.J. — The Church of Annunciation was the scene of the wedding of Miss Christina Morreale and Charles Lance on Friday at 4:00 p.m.

Father Schinski officiated at the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George Stratis of Oakland, N. J., and Capt. and Mrs. Lee J. Lance of Asheville.

A reception followed the wedding and was held in the Wayne Manor.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride and bridegroom will reside in Greenville, N. C.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and received a B.S. degree in early childhood education.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Florida State University receiving a B. S. degree in criminalogy and correction. He is presently working with the N. C. Department of Corrections, Greenville.

MRS. CHARLES LANCE

Morning Party Held Wednesday For Students

Twenty-two students — 12 enrolled at St. Mary's Junior College and 10 prospective students — were honored at a morning party Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Ed Rawl Jr.

Hostesses for the occasion were St. Mary's alumnae from Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Greenville and Williamston. About 40 guests attended the social.

Honored guests were Rebecca Clark, Jane Flanagan, Penny Harrison, Jackie Minges, Peggy Corbitt, Pat Harrison, Virginia Scales, all of Greenville; Amy Everette, Kathryn Andrews and Candy Spier of Bethel; Sarita Wynne Hardy of Farmville; and Nellie Barnhill of Williamston, the students enrolled at St. Mary's:

Jean Trevathan, Betsy Kempton, Joyce Lynn Price, Josie Rawl, Jeanne Turcott, Margaret Stevens, Jackie Welch, Michelle Clark, all of Greenville; Christy Spier of Bethel; and Ann Abernathy of Ayden, the prospective students.

Assisting in addition to Mrs. Rawl and her daughter, Josie, were Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, Mrs. Frank Longino, Mrs. Charles Stevens and her daughter, Margaret; and Mrs. Andy Warren, all of Greenville.

Bitter Half Over Hitter Half

STUTTGART, West Germany (WNS) — Rolf Enz, 27, got his lady boss to put him on earlier shift at the factory because he is tired of being beaten up by his wife after his hard day's work. "She has put me on a six p.m. curfew and hits me on the head with a frying pan if I am even two minutes late for supper," Enx confessed.

Couple Exchanges Vows In High Noon Ceremony

MRS. FORREST EDWARD WILLIAMS

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — The marriage of Miss Judith Reid Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Cromwell Page of Greenville, N.C., to Forrest Edward Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Herriott Williams of Meadville, Pa., took place Saturday at high noon at Galilee Episcopal Church here.

The Rev. William Brake officiated.

The church was decorated in traditional green and white. Vases of white mums were located on either side of the altar. The pews were marked with satin ribbons.

Mrs. George Aldridge played a program of nuptial organ music before the ceremony as the guests arrived and played the traditional processional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white formal Priscilla of Boston gown featuring an empire waistline and bateau neckline. Illusions of alencon lace patterned the satin A-line gown. Her chapel length mantilla was boardered with alencon lace. She carried a nosegay of white phalaenopsis orchids.

Miss Mary Stuart Page of Vail, Cal., served as maid of honor. Other attendants were Miss Lynn Williams of Cambridge, Mass., and Miss Mary Scott Humphreys of Virginia Beach, Va.

The bride's attendants wore formal white saki gowns designed with a low, circular neckline edged in a rolled band of saki. The empire bodice featured a laced front that tied in a bow at the waist. The short sleeves were trimmed also with a band of saki and finished in a flared ruffle of saki. The wore white velvet picture hats with orchid asters and pom pons. They carried french bouquets of purple asters and pom pons.

William Herriott Williams served as his son's best man. Groomsmen were Porter Hardy III of Virginia Beach, Va., and Fred Steiner of Pittsburg, Pa.

The brides mother was attired in an avocado worsted silk dress. The princess style dress featured a scooped neckline and long sleeves. The neckline, sleeves and cuffs were outlined with avocado Venise lace daisies. Her headpiece matched her dress and was adorned with matching avocado Venise lace daisies.

Mrs. Williams wore an ice blue princess style lace dress with re-embroidered soutache.

The reception table held a center piece of heather, orchid mums and pom pons.

Mrs. Williams is a graduate of East Carolina University and a member of Chi Omega sorority. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Marie L. Clark and the late Edward Clark of Greenville and Mrs. Cora Page and the late Sim Page of Stokes.

Mr. Williams is a graduate of University of Missouri and is employed in Alexandria, Va. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Forrest Williams of Meadville, Pa.

Host and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. William C. Morton Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Mertin E. Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Bassart, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Koonee, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles James, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Woolard, Mrs. Mary Gardner Powell, Mrs. Harry Smith, Mrs. Jim Joyner and Mr. and Mrs. George Keen.

One Baby, One Tree Is French Campaign

PARIS (WNS) — "One Baby, One Tree." Such is the French campaign launched by Marie Madeleine Dienesch, Secretary of Social Works, in order to protect the nation's forests. From now on, parents will be encouraged to celebrate the birth of each child by sponsoring a baby tree that will be planted by the National Office of Forests in any forest chosen by the parents. Mlle. Dienesch planted the first tree in the Jardin d'Acclimation in Paris. The first French child to be so honored was Laurent Heroguez, born at Douai at 6:55 p.m., just before the ceremony. "Children will grow up proud of the tree that is their own," predicted Mlle. Dienesch. "We need such love and awareness of the life around us."

Miss Adelaide Park Weds Charles A. Gomer III

ITHACA, N.Y. — Miss Adelaide Hinton Park and Charles August Gomer III were married here today at 4 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Jack Irvin Thomas performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hampton Park of Ithaca, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles August Gomer Jr. of Baltimore, Md.

The bride wore a formal, floor length gown, designed by Priscilla of Boston, of light ivory re-embroidered alencon lace appliqued on English net. In her hair was a velvet bow with long streamers to the floor and covered with tiny blossoms.

Tucked in her bouquet of tiny white sweetheart roses and baby's breath was an heirloom lace handkerchief carried by both her mother and maternal grandmother at their weddings.

She was given in marriage by her father, the developer of the Duncan Hines line of food products. He is now president and sole owner of Park Broadcasting, a group of 18 television and radio stations, including WNCT-TV-AM-FM in Greenville, N.C.

Miss Lynn Marshall of Ithaca, N.Y., was maid of honor and Miss Betsy Brooks Gomer of Baltimore, sister of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. They both wore floor length gowns in cafe brown, with matching velvet bows in their hair. They carried bouquets of bronze fujii mums.

Mrs. Gomer's niece, Miss Elizabeth Parham Park of Ithaca, N.Y., was flower girl. She wore a long beige velvet gown, with a wreath of tiny white rosebuds in her hair. She carried a basket of baby's breath and tiny white rosebuds.

Mr. Gomer chose his father, who is associated with Inland Reyerson Construction Products Co., as his best man.

Ushers were the bride's brother, Roy Hampton Park Jr. of Ithaca, N.Y., and the bridegroom's brother-in-law. Capt. William Monroe Tucker Jr. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Roy Hampton Park III of Ithaca was ring bearer.

Mr. Gomer was graduated from the Gilman School in Baltimore. He and his bride are both 1971 graduates of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

She was also graduated from the Emma Willard School in Troy, N.Y., and from Mount Vernon Junior College in Washington. She completed a business course at the Katherine Gibbs School in New York City and was formerly employed in New York by Hill and Knowlton, the public relations firm.

Mrs. Gomer is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reed Dent of Allentown, Pa., and formerly of Raleigh, N. C., and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Park of Dobson, N. C.

Mr. Gomer is the grandson of Mrs. George Penn Dillard and the late Dr. Dillard of Eden, N.C., and of the late Dr. and Mrs. Charles August Gomer of New York City.

After a wedding trip to the Caribbean, the couple will reside in Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Hardee Gives Program

Mrs. Debra Hardee presented the program at the meeting of the Pitt County Cosmetologist Association held Tuesday night at Milady Beauty Shop.

She showed the winter trend, candlelight, with Mrs. Patsy Paramore as her model.

The December meeting was cancelled and plans were made to hold the January meeting at Mitchell's Hairstyling Academy.

can get spoiled. As children of the President they get special treatment. I worry what will happen after the President is no longer President. I don't want them to become bitter. At home they'll always be told they were first in their exams because of who they are. In London my daughter says, 'I am at the top of my class and not because of daddy, because nobody knows who I am.' "

As the Steel Butterfly left for the airport she told me she put her marriage into three phases. "Number one is the physical. I love the way my husband stands and smiles. Number two is the intellectual. I love his mind. And three is the spiritual. People say they are sure he's brainwashed because he answers the same way I do or picks the same street to walk as I do. Neither of us is brainwashed. It's merely that we're in tune with each other.

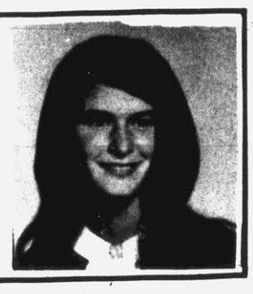
Engagement Announced

MISS WANDA SUE PEADEN . . . is the daughter of Mrs. Virginia Peaden of Rt. 6, Greenville, and the late Mr. W. J. Peaden, who announces her engagement to James Cotten Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Smith of Greenville. The wedding will take place Jan. 23.

On The Young Side

By MARGARET STEVENS



Climaxed by the presentation of a turkey to principal Robert Alligood, a Thanksgiving assembly commenced holiday activities at J. H. Rose High School Wednesday afternoon.

With such songs as "Light My Fire," the Rose stage band supplied music for the assembly.

Lynn Sherman, Charles Kuehn, Rip Respess, Edgar Cox, Jim Poluski, Darrell Davis, Greg Clark, Sidney Shearin, Raymond Fleming, Steve Thompson, Bill Ross, and Lindsey Burroughs.

Career Choices

To take guidance tests and receive counseling about possible career choices, five Rose students traveled to St. Andrews Presbyterian College, Laurinburg, Nov. 17-18.

Making the trip were Sue Trevathan, Jean Trevathan, Ann Brown, Nancy Cleetwood, and Lyle Barlow.

Journeying to the ancient capital of the Aztec Empire, junior Fred Vultee had the opportunity to attend classes at the University of Mexico, sample Mexican food, and visit ruins and museums during his stay in Mexico City, Mexico, Nov. 13-20.

Fred made the trip with his father, Dr. Michael Schweisthal, and Dr. Irvin Lawrence, who attended a Mexican Society of Anatomists Conference.

Touring the old Aztec city of Teotihuacan was one highlight of Fred's trip. He also attended a Mexican movie.

English Award

A commendation of excellent writing performance and literary study, the award qualifies Chris to be recommended for scholarships and awards from colleges and universities all over the nation. Chris is one of 11 winners in North Carolina.

Sponsored by the school board, four Rose students flew to Atlanta to represent Greenville in the All-American City contest, Nov. 14.

Mike Van Dyke, Rebecca Jones, Eugenia Parder, and Thomas Foreman made the trip with other members of the Greenville community.

Announced at the game's halftime, senior co-kings were Joe McGlohon and Kelly Darden. Co-princes were juniors Dean Phillips and Matthew Clark, and sophomores Jackie Savage and Phil Ragazzo.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

A "once in a lifetime experience" happened to Mrs. Robert Starling recently while she and her husband were touring European countries.

Mrs. Starling and four friends decided to attend an Austrian concert. Mrs. Starling entered the concert hall directly behind an attractive lady, who was wearing purple stockings and an Austrian costume.

The lady sat down on the front row with an empty seat beside her. Mrs. Starling asked, "Is this seat reserved?" The lady answered, "Yes, I am saving it for my daughter."

When Mrs. Starling started for a seat near the back of the concert hall, an usher stopped her, said something in a foreign language, ushered her back to the front row and left her standing there.

After being stared at for about two minutes, Mrs. Starling stared for a back seat again. The usher escorted her back to the front row, talking to her in a language she didn't understand. He then went after a chair and placed her right on the front row.

Following the concert, Mrs. Starling introduced herself to the charming lady who said, "I am Maria Von Trapp and this is my daughter, Maria."

After talking with them a few minutes, Mrs. Starling was delighted to have the autograph of "The Sound of Music" heroine.

Since Mrs. Starling entered the concert hall directly behind Maria Von Trapp and talked to her when she sat down, the usher apparently thought Mrs. Starling was a personal friend of Maria Von Trapp's, who should have a choice seat.

While abroad, the Starlings visited in England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Yugoslavia, Italy, Monaco, Switzerland and Fance.

The 12th annual Christmas homes tour, opening the holiday season in colonial Williamsburg, Va., will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 4-5.

The tour hours are from 2-9 p.m. Saturday and 1-7 p.m. Sunday with evening hours by candelight.

The event is being sponsored by the Green Spring Garden Club for the benefit of the Williamsburg Community Hospital.

Visitors will see restored houses in the historic area and contemporary homes in Williamsburg's residential section decorated for Christmas, with all decorations and arrangements in keeping with the architecture and period of the home. Doorways will be especially decorated and will be judged with the home arrangements.

Each year, new ideas for both interior and doorway decorations will be found on this popular Christmas homes tour. A community event, all decorations will be done by members of Williamsburg's garden and civic clubs.

The tour is also in cooperation with Colonial Williamsburg's Colonial Weekend of the same date.

PEKING PEAS

Two different textures contrast delightfully and the convenient ingredients come from the freezer and pantry shelf.

1 package (10 ounces) cook-in-pounch early green peas in butter sauce
1 can (5 ounces) water chestnuts

Cook peas according to package directions; slit pouch and turn peas into the empty saucepan. Meanwhile drain and slice water chestnuts horizontally; add to peas. Simmer just until water chestnuts are hot—a few minutes. May be prepared shortly ahead of serving and be reheated with cover left ajar on saucepan. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Mrs. Byrd Is Club Hostess

The Dilettante Book Club met at the home of Mrs. J. William Byrd for their November meeting Monday night. Mrs. Charles Q. Brown was co-hostess.

Dr. Edward Seykora, of the ECU Physics Department, presented a program of slides and a discussion on the solar eclipse which happened in Greenville.

He was able to combine his slides into a motion picture film so that the movement of the moon across the sun was continuous. Dr. Seykora explained how an eclipse happens and pointed out phenomena associated with eclipses.

Following the program, refreshments were served. Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Virginia Lanche, Mrs. Alice Carroll and Mrs. Winnie Weeden.

Citizens Organize Crime Fight

By JAMES C. CLIFFORD

EAST PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — This small black community on the San Francisco Peninsula is organizing a citizens war on dope pushers, burglars and muggers.

It's a rare resident here whose home hasn't been burglarized at least once or who hasn't been mugged and robbed. Between May 1 and Sept. 1 this year there were 344 reported burglaries — in a town of 20,000 people.

One problem for police has been public apathy — a sort of what-can-we-do acceptance of the situation.

"Some poeple just accept crime as a way of life," councilman Henry Anthony said.

Many Smashed Windows

Now, an organized effort is under way to enlist the citizenry in a drive against criminals. Anthony is in charge of it.

Sheriff's Lt. Gerald McNamara has little doubt drugs are behind most of the crimes.

"An addict has to steal to support his habit," he said. "One who has to support a $100-a-day habit has to steal $700 worth of stuff to fence in order to get the $100."

Replacement of windows in smash-and-grab thefts has cost many merchants more than they have lost in stolen merchandise. Next to local window-replacers, burglar alarm outfits have the liveliest business.

Insurance Rates Soar

Property losses, on a city basis, have been averaging $28,000 a month. Because of this, escalating insurance rates are forcing some firms out of business.

Not surprisingly, a lot of people here are frightened.

"We find that many people have guns in their house or their car," Police Sgt. Richard McKillip said. "They'd rather be caught by the police with a gun than be caught by their fellows without one."

Council Chairman Calrence W. Burley Jr., told of one man who wanted to buy a color TV set.

"But he couldn't do it because putting up the aerial is as good as giving the set away to housebreakers," he said.

Dectetive Joe Moore doesn't think the criminals could be stopped by bringing in more law enforcement people.

"It's not going to be stopped by 500 police," he said. "You can bring down an army if you want. But the community is going to have to get involved."

There was some fear at first that the new determination to war on crime might lead to vigilantism. But Lt. McNamara doesn't think it will happen.

"The most responsible people in the community are involved in this," he said.

Mrs. Gertrude Wilks, director of the Nairobi School, believes a $5,000 fire at her day school was "a warning" because of her part in the anti-crime campaign.

Suggests "Hot-Line"

Mrs. Wilks, who had bumper stickers printed reading "Rub Out Ripoffs," said she had received phone calls asking payoffs to leave the school alone.

She said some people are making payoffs "but I just don't frighten easily."

Councilman Anthony said he envisions a 24-hour community "Hot-line" for people taking part in the crime fight and a "block alert" program in which residents would keep an eye on neighbors, unoccupied homes.

"Right now we are mainly concerned with what we call "Phase One" the publicity and educational part of the program," Anthony said. "We are going to the churches first, to work up interest in the program. Later we'll start block alert and other things."

Anthony said there are some citizens who aren't too happy about this anti-crime drive.

Fear Retaliation

"We get plenty of calls from people wanting to take part, but we also get them from people who think we're wrong," he said. "Some poeple are afraid of retaliation."

Lt. McNamara is all for stirring up public support of the police.

"Already we are getting more suspicious person calls," he said. "We need the support of everyone in the community, not just the leaders, to make this thing work.

"The block alert system can do this. And it gives people a chance to meet officers in non-stress situations so they can get to know them. "That's an important part of any program such as this."

Judy's 'Other Daughter' Carves Own Reputation

By JOHN M. WILLIAMS

NEW YORK (UPI) — She's still called "Judy Garland's other daughter," but Lorna Luft is fast carving her own show business reputation as one of Broadway's newest leading ladies.

Up to a few weeks ago the 19-year-old was just another theatrical hopeful with no professional experience. Then she auditioned for the feminine lead in David Merrick's long-running "Promises, Promises."

As Frank Kubelik, the secretary with a forty-handed boss, Lorna is out there nightly belting songs with an exuberance that brings back memories of her mother.

Big Blue Eyes

Like her sister, Lisa Minnelli, she has her mother's touch and ability to communicate. Her eyes, big and blue, sparkle on stage and off, and during a recent interview she showed a natural warmth, devoid of artificiality.

"I don't think anybody is too big to be friendly," she said. "As far as the public is concerned, you're working for them and if you don't care about them, your career is going to go absolutely no-where."

Lorna took over the part of Frank Kubelik from Jenny O'Hara in October.

"I feel rather calm about the part now," she said. "But I was absolutely petrified on opening night."

Lorna handles her role well. The audiences of the past month have taken a sincere liking to the young actress.

Credits Mother

"Say, I didn't know she was Judy Garland's daughter," a playgoer was overheard remarking at a recent performance. "She's really good. Really."

Lorna attributes it to her mother.

"Mama was the kind of woman who could have people standing on their chairs cheering one minute and in tears the next," she said.

"But I learned from her problems. Mama had a hard time facing reality. Toward the end of her career, when she was down, she would turn to people and say, 'Hey, I'm Judy Garland!' and they didn't care. It hurt her deeply. She was raised — you couldn't imagine what movie kids went through in those days — with people constantly telling her who she was.

"I'm insecure, but my fiance, French actor Philippe Lavot, helps me overcome it."

Lorna feels that her father, producer Sid Luft, has been a moving force in her life. She considers him one of her best friends." She also feels that past accounty of Judy's and Sid's marriage were unfair.

"My father was the only man mama ever loved," Lorna said.

Heavy Growth In Fun Vehicles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There has been a phenomenal growth in the number of campers, trailers and other recreational vehicles in the past 10 years, according to the American Automobile Association. The AAA reports production of recreational vehicles increased 400 per cent between 1961 and 1971. There now are approxiately 3 million on the road.

Hospital In Lenoir Is Already Being Served By ECU Med Facility

By DR. WALLACE R. WOOLES
Dean, School of Medicine

East Carolina University has always attempted to provide as much service as possible to the region it serves — eastern North Carolina. The School of Medicine is attempting to provide its share of service to our region.

The School of Medicine has entered a unique relationship with the Lenoir Memorial Hospital in Kinston, N.C., which will be helpful and beneficial to both. Beginning November 1st Dr. Sylvanus W. Nye, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Pathology in the School of Medicine, has assumed the responsibility for providing pathology service to the Lenoir Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Nye is spending a portion of his time at the hospital providing diagnostic anatomic and clinical pathology services and in planning the future growth of pathology services for the hospital laboratories.

As the School of Medicine develops and the Department of Pathology grows, Dr. Nye and his staff will be able to provide the medical staff of the Lenoir Memorial Hospital with the services of experts in various areas of laboratory medicine such as blood banking, bacteriology, serology, hematology and clinical chemistry. Such an array of additional medical services will allow the doctors on the hospital staff to provide better medical service and care to their patients.

In turn the hospital will provide the faculty in Pathology the opportunity to practice their medical specialty and put into practice the science they are exploring in the laboratory and the art they are teaching to medical students. It will also provide the opportunity to collect various pathologic specimens to use in the teaching program. It will also be a way by which medical students can be exposed to the community practice of laboratory medicine at the very outset of their medical education.

This type of relationship is a unique example of the University providing a needed service to its region and the region providing a needed facility to the School of Medicine. Truly an ideal relationship.

Screening Has Hiked Arrests

NEW YORK (AP) — An airport passenger screening system in effect to identify potential hijackers has resulted in the arrest of about 1,500 people during the last year, most of them on charges unrelated to hijacking, say federal officials.

More than 400 were arrested for possession of illegal drugs or narcotics when officers searched them for weapons. About the same number were arrested as illegal aliens, and at least 300 were arrested for trying to board an airliner with a firearm, which is against federal law.

The balance were jailed on charges ranging from unlawful flight to avoid prosecution to possession of a hand grenade.

Robersonville Takes State Title, 30-18

ROBBINSVILLE — The Robersonville Golden Eagles, while they were rolling to a 20-0 victory over Warrenton last Friday night, kept wishing that Robbinsville, the twice defending champion in the State Class A, football ranks, would whip North Duplin. If they did, that would allow the Eagles a chance to travel 400 miles to the west to the home of the Black Knights for the state championship game.

Well, Robbinsville did win, and that set up the trip. And Robbinsville proved a good host too.

For when the dust cleared Friday night, the Golden Eagles were ready to soar home with the State Championship safely tucked away under one wing, 30-18.

The win was the 12th straight for the Eagles, who were knocked off only once this year, in their opener against 2-A Williamston. Since then, they have rolled without a blemish on their record.

The game was a battle all the way, with the Knights never giving up in their quest for a third-straight state title. But the Eagles proved to be too much for them with their fine rushing attack and passing game.

Jesse Coppage led the rushing parade, clicking off 147 yards in 26 carries. The Eagles picked up 210 yards on the ground, just 21 less than did the Knights.

Through the air, however, the Eagles completely outdistanced the Knights, and there was the big difference. The Eagles hit on nine of 15 passes for 177 yards, with Matt Wilson getting six of 12 for 131 to lead the way. Robbinsville got only 45 yards on three of 11 attempts.

It was the Knights who got on the scoreboard first however. Both teams battled through the first period without a score, although the Knights did threaten, Robersonville turned the ball over to them on their own 35 on a fumble, and the Knights drove down to the 19 before giving it back on a fumble of their own.

Neither team was able to do much after that until late in the quarter when Robbinsville got its first scoring drive together. A 46-yard run down to the 33 started the Knights on their way, and Jacob Jackson did the damage, cracking over from the two for a 6-0 lead.

Robersonville came right back, but couldn't quite get the score. Wilson hit Phil James on a 40-yard pass, which he caught in the open but fell at the 12, still in the clear. Robersonville picked up nine yards on the first two downs from there, but the Robbinsville defense dug in to stop the next two plays for no gain.

The Eagles forced a punt, however, from there, getting the ball on the 34. They took only seven plays to score, with Coppage going over from 12 yards out. That tied it at 6-6, and it stayed that way the rest of the half.

In the third period, the Eagles got the kickoff and marched into the lead and they never let it go. After taking the kickoff on the 34, the Eagles were aided by a 15 yard penalty. They used only three plays to get to the Robbinsville 45, and on the fourth play, Wilson hit Sommy Mobley for the touchdown. Coppage ran over the two-point conversion, and the Eagles raced into a 14-6 lead, one which the Knights never overcame.

They did come racing back, however, to pull within two points. Robbinsville got a good runback on the kickoff, returning it to the 45. Dwayne Cable carried it 23 yards down to the 19, and in two plays, the Knights were back on the board. Cable got the score, going over from the 15. But the try for the conversion was stopped, and the Eagles held the lead, 14-12.

Robersonville then got the touchdown that shut the door for the Knights. Following the kickoff, the Eagles ground out the yardage from their own 33, using 16 plays, plus valuable time. On third and five, Wilson hit Joe Paul Edmondson for a first down at the 50, keeping the drive going, and Coppage got 15 yards from there. He later added 11 yards from the 25, but after short gains, the Eagles appeared stopped on fourth down. But an off-sides penalty against the Knights gave Robersonville a first down at the three.

The Knight defense dug in for another goal-line stand and nearly pulled it off. The first two plays netted minus two yards back to the five, and a third down pass fell incomplete. But on the fourth down, Wilson hit Phil James in the end zone, and that raised it to 20-12.

Robbinsville came back with a drive down to the 15, but a fumble stopped them there as D-Dock Ayers pulled in the ball. Then later, the Knights got to the 36 but the Eagle defense held for no more yardage.

Finally, in the fourth period, Robersonville got going again, scoring its final touchdown. Coppage set that one up when he raced 51 yards down to the five yard line. The Eagles were thrown back on a five-yard penalty, but Wilson hit Edward Warren at the one, and Warren carried over from there on the next play. Wilson and Mobley again teamed for the conversion, making it 30-12.

Robbinsville trying to fight back, came up with its final score late in the game. Robersonville had driven down to the 18 before being stopped, and the Knights drove from there in just five plays. They were helped out by three 15-yard penalties against the Eagles, however. Key plays in the drive were a 15-yard pass to Jackson from Randle Birehfield, and a 13-yard run by Cable. Jackson finally went over from the three with 1:20 left, making it 30-18.

Robersonville ran out the clock after that, and the state championship was theirs'.

Musso, Defense Lead 'Bama Past Auburn

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Third-ranked Alabama, paced by the clutch running of Johnny Musso and a blitzing defense that shackled Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan, crushed previously undefeated Auburn 31-7 Saturday, giving the Orange Bowl a dream match of unbeaten powers.

The Crimson Tide, rolling to its 11th straight victory, will meet top-ranked Nebraska in the Orange Bowl New Year's Night in a battle that should decide the national championship.

Alabama solved the Sullivan mystique for the first time, keeping the strong-armed Auburn quarterback on the sidelines with a time-consuming offense that enabled the Tide to control the ball more than 40 minutes.

Meanwhile, Alabama's defense forced two interceptions off Sullivan that led to touchdowns and batted down three other passes at the line of scrimmage.

Musso, called by Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant the greatest running back he has ever had, scored touchdowns on runs of 12 and 6 yards and punched out 167 yards in 33 carries.

Junior quarterback Terry Davis gave the Tide a 14-0 first period lead with touchdown runs of 6 and 11 yards. Alabama's other score came on a 41-yard field goal by Bill Davis in the final period.

Sullivan, named the Heisman winner Thursday night, had sparked Auburn to comeback victories the past two seasons over Alabama and, as a freshman, overcame a 27-0 Tide lead to lift the Auburn frosh team to victory.

The defeat ended Auburn's 11-game winning streak including nine this year as the Tigers approach their Sugar Bowl confrontation with second-ranked Oklahoma which lost to Nebraska 35-31 Thursday. The victory also gave Alabama the Southeastern Conference championship.

Auburn's only touchdown came on a 31-yard halfback option pass from Harry Unger to Terry Beasley with 13:08 left in the opening half. It came on the first play after Johnny Simmons recovered an Ellis Beck fumble.

Alabama quickly established the tempo of the game at the start with a safety blitz that held Auburn to only nine yards on their first series following the opening kickoff.

The Tide then got their first of three tunovers leading to touchdowns. Auburn punter David Beverly fumbled a low snap from Bill McManus and failed to get his punt off, giving Alabama possession at the Auburn 20.

Terry Davis scampered 10 yards on a third-down option to the eight and scored from the 6 two plays later, giving Alabama a 7-0 lead after only four minutes had elapsed.

Despite its almost total control of the ball, Alabama led only 14-7 going into the final period.

The Crimson Tide drove from their 22 to the Auburn 24 early in the final period, from where Bill Davis kicked his 13th field goal of the year, tying a conference record.

In that drive, Musso reeled off runs of 18, 12 and 6 yards, all in clutch situations, helping Alabama overcome a 15-yard clipping penalty.

The field goal came with 13:03 remaining, and 18 seconds later, Musso scored on a 12-yard run following a 21-yard interception return by Chuck Strickland.

Several minutes later Jeff Rouzie intercepted another Sullivan pass and raced 33 yards to the Auburn 6. Musso scored from there on the first play.

Sullivan completed 14 of 27 passes for 121 yards, but failed to break the NCAA touchdown responsibility record he tied at 71 two weeks ago aginst Georgia.

Army Inches By Naval Academy

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sophomore Kingsley Fink passed three yards for a fourth period touchdown that gave Army a 24-23 victory over Navy Saturday after the Cadets had blown a 16-point first period lead in the rainswept 72nd service football classic.

Even after the winning TD pass to Ed Francis, who caught the ball with his feet inches inside the back line of the end zone, Army had to twice stop the aroused Middies inside the Cadets' 10-yard line.

Army's final score resulted from an exchange of punts early in the fourth period. The Cadets' Ron Danhoff angled a 33-yard kick that rolled dead on the Navy 7. Unable to gain, the Middies punted and Mike Gaines returned the short kick 11 yards to the Navy 30.

The Cadets then drove for the touchdown in six plays. Fink passed 15 yards to tight end Dave Sanders for a first down at the Navy 15, and Bob Hines and Greg McGuckin hammered out a first down on two running plays to the 5.

Army moved to the 3 from where Fink passed to Francis for the touchdown, sending Army ahead 22-21.

Army went for two points on the conversion with Fink hitting John Simar to make it 24-21 with 4:49 gone in the final quarter.

The final 10 minutes was all Navy offensively as the middies took the kickoff to their 30 and in 13 plays advanced to the Army 7. Army's defense held and with a fourth down and 16 situation, the Middies went for a touchdown instead of a tying field goal. Quarterback Fred Stuvek's pass, however, was intercepted by Randy Stein.

Stuvek moved to the 5 on a quarterback keeper but that was as far as the Middies could go.

Army held, took the ball on downs and then deliberately took a safety that made the final score 24-23.

Army took a 16-0 lead in the first period, scoring a field goal and two touchdowns within a seven-minute span.

The Cadets recovered a Navy fumble at the Army 45 and moved to the Middies' 27. When three plays netted only four yards, Jim Barclay kicked a 42-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead.

Several minutes later, Navy's Tom Moore fumbled a punt and Army's Bill Barker fell on it at the Navy 23. Army had a touchdown in four plays with Hines scoring from the 4 and Barclay kicking the point to make it 10-0 with 8:11 gone in the period.

Navy fumbled itself deeper into the hole on the ensuing kickoff when Forde was jolted on the return, dropped the ball and it was recovered by Bob Jarrell at the Middies' 31. On the seventh play after the fumble, Fink hit Hines for a four-yard touchdown that made it 16-0.

The momentum, however, switched to Navy in the second period as the Middies marched 48 yards in 13 plays with Stuvek running five yards for a touchdown. Roger Lanning kicked the extra point to close the gap to 16-7.

Before the half ended, Charley Robinson intercepted a Fink pass and returned to the Navy 32. The Middies drove 68 yards in seven plays for another touchdown. The key plays in the drive were runs of 19 and 25 yards by substitute halfback George Berry and a 26-yard pass from Stuvek to Steve Ogden. Stuvek scored from the 1 and Lanning converted to make it 16-14.

Navy gained the lead for the first time with 6:23 gone in the third period when Ogden took a 12-yard pass from Stuvek for the touchdown to complete a 13-play, 69-yard advance. That sent the Middies ahead 21-16.

The victory was the sixth in 10 games for Army this season and its 35th against 31 defeats and 6 ties in the service series. It was the fourth victory in six Army-Navy games for Cadet Coach Tom Cahill. Navy finished the season with a 3-8 record.

Tennessee Rally Beats Vanderbilt

By ESCAR THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— Tennessee bunched all its scoring in the fourth quarter and defeated upset-minded Vanderbilt, 19-7, Saturday in a Southeastern Conference football game.

Vanderbilt shocked the partisan crowd of 56,244 by taking the lead on a 9-yard touchdown run by quarterback Steve Burger in the second period, capping a 53-yard drive. Taylor Stokes converted and the Commodores nursed a 7-0 margin until midway in the fourth quarter.

Tennessee, which had failed to get inside the Vandy 20 in the first three periods, finally got its offense untracked and drove 80 yards for the game-tying touchdown, Jim Maxwell passng 7 yards to Sonny Leach for the score. George Hunt kicked his 25th consecutive extra point and his 55th straight over a two-year span.

Soon thereafter 11th-ranked Tennessee, and bound for the Liberty Bowl, got the ball in midfield and after picking up a first down, Hunt booted a 39-yard field goal to put the Vols ahead 10-7 with 3:47 remaining.

A pass interception by Eddie Brown and 14-yard return to the Vanderbilt 25 gave Tennessee another scoring opportunity. Steve Chancey ran 7 for the touchdown after Bill Rudder had picked up 18 on a draw up the middle.

Tennessee is now 8-2 and closes its season next Saturday against sixth-ranked Penn State. This is the seventh consecutive year the Vols have won eight or more games. Vanderbilt ended its campaign with a 4-6-1 record.

Kick Wins For TCU

By DENNE FREEMAN

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Nerveless Berl Simmons kicked a 29-yard field goal with 13 seconds left to play to give Texas Christian a stirring 18-16, come-from-behind victory over Southern Methodist Saturday and coinch third place in the final Southwest Conference standings for the Horned Frogs.

It was the third field goal of the day for Simmons who defeated Rice last week with a last-second field goal.

Simmons had earlier kicked field goals of 33 and 37 yards.

TCU finished with a 5-2 SWC mark and 6-4-1 for the season. SMU was 3-4 in SWC play and had an overall 4-7 record.

Clemson Surprises Gamecocks By 17-7

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—Underdog Clemson struck for 17 points in the second quarter and then relied on a rugged defense to hold on for a 17-7 football victory over old, intrastate rival South Carolina this windy, cold Saturday afternoon.

A crowd of 57,242, the largest ever to see a football game in South Carolina, jammed the newly-englarged Carolina Stadium to watch the 69th renewal of this bitter rivalry that started back in 1869.

Clemson, under second-year coach Hootie Ingram shackled the South Carolina offense with a hard-charging line and an alert secondary that picked off six passes.

Clemson was stopped in its first serious offensive thrust at the South Carolina one-foot line, when the Tigers failed to get over in four tries from the five-yard-line.

But, from then on it was a Clemson show.

First, it was kicking specialist Eddie Seigler who put the Tigers on the scoreboard with a 52-yard field goal against a stiff breeze, setting an all-time Clemson record.

Clemson got another chance midway of the second period when Ben Anderson intercepted a Gamecock pass and gave the Tigers the ball only 34 yards from the goal line.

Clemson needed only seven plays to move in for the touchdown with halfback Smiley Sanders going the final yard.

The fired-up Tigers then drove 64 yards in 13 plays for another touchdown, climaxed by a 10-yard pass from Tommy Kendrick to tight end John McMakin.

South Carolina struck back the first time it had the ball in the second half, driving 59 yards in 14 plays with fullback Tommy Simmons going over from the on-yard-line.

Dickie Harris, the sensational defensive halfback that was moved to offense to put some fresh blood into the anemic South Carolina attack last week, was held to 65 yards in 13 carries.

Harris suffered an ankle injury shortly before the end of the first half but returned for several offensive series in the last two periods.

The Clemson win snapped a three-game losing streak to the arch-rival Gamecocks. The victory left Clemson with a 5-6 season record and the Gamecocks with a 6-5.

Cincy Nips Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Senior tailback Mel Riggins scored the winning touchdown on a one-yard plunge with 1:43 remaining and safety Jim Henderson made a last-second interception as Cincinnati took a wind-chilled 19-16 football victory over Ohio River rival Louisville here Saturday.

Virginia Tech Rips Keydets

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Virginia Tech's Gobblers wound up a 4-7 football season here Saturday by whipping the hapless Virginia Military Institute Keydets 34-0.

The loss gave VMI a 1-10 season under new coach Bob Thalman.

Tech's Don Strock accounted for two of the Gobblers' TD's, throwing a 13-yard scoring pass to Mike Burnop in the second quarter and another 4-yarder to Vince Russo later in that period.

J. B. Barber and Russo ran for Tech's other two first half touchdowns — and a 27-0 halftime lead.

The two squads traded licks scorelessly until the fourth quarter when reserve quarterback Bob German moved Tech from its own 49 to score in four plays.

The key to that drive was a 64-yard pass from Vern Beitzel to Ken Terry, but time expired before the Keydets could score.

The Keydets did hold the Gobblers short of the end zone early in the first half and again late in the action.

That first time, the Gobblers rolled steadily to a first down at the VMI 5 and three more plays pushed the ball down to the 1-foot line.

On fourth down, Strock tried the middle of the line himself but did not make it.

With time waning in the final period, German engineered Tech to the VMI 2 but the Gobblers were pushed back to the 14 on a penalty and some aroused Keydet defense.

Strock returned to the game when German was injured, but he was caught for a loss as the game ended.

The victory gave Tech a greater edge in the series between the two Virginia schools. Tech has won 40, VMI 22, and there have been five ties.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Mark Williams kicked field goals of 22, 22, and 29 yards Saturday to establish a Southwest Conference season record and led Rice to a season-ending 23-0 victory over the Baylor Bears in the final game for Baylor head coach Bill Beall.

Baylor athletic director Jack Patterson announced that Beall's contract had been terminated by mutual agreement with the Baylor board of trustees.

The Owls, completing their first season under coach Bill Peterson, took advantage of seven turnovers against the bumbling Bears to move ahead of Texas Tech into sixth place in the final SWC standings.

Pirates Set To Open Year Wednesday

East Carolina University's Pirates begin what must be one of the cruelest basketball schedules in the nation Wednesday when they open the season against the University of West Virginia.

The Pirates play only 10 of their games in the relatively safe confines of Minges Coliseum, but they are on the road for 15 games, including a December slate that would make most coaches go gray-headed overnight.

The Bucs open up Wednesday in West Virginia's 14,000 seat coliseum. The Mountaineers have one All-American on their squad, which features all five of the starters back from last year's team. Following that the Bucs come home for a pair of games against Jacksonville and Davidson, two more powerhouses, then they go on the road to meet Duke University, always a strong team.

They travel to Charleston in mid-December to meet The Citadel then finish the year off with a six-day swing that carries them from Oklahoma to Ohio to Mississippi for four games. They'll play in the Oral Roberts Tournament for two nights the next night. They then have two nights off before meeting Southern Mississippi to close out the trip. Three days after that, they resume action against Richmond at home, in their 10th game.

And if the Bucs survive those 10 games they could be one of the best teams in the nation.

"Due to injuries and sickness last year, only two of the people who will probably be starting have played regularly together. We'll probably have three starters who have never played together, so this will make a difference. There is no experience as a unit," Quinn pointed out.

Depth, of course, is much better than it has ever been. "We are eight or nine players deep in quality," Quinn said. "One is as good as the next. We expect to play quite a few people, and we are an extra player or two in every position. All of them have experience too, except for the sophomores."

The height of the Pirates is as good as it has been in the front court, and may be a little better than in the past in the back court. "We'll probably start a front line with a 6-7 average, and we'll be at least 6-2 in the back court, which is a little taller than in the past."

And because of the good height, Quinn expects the Pirates to be as good as ever on the boards. They have ranked as one of the top teams in the Southern Conference in rebounding for the past three years, and Al Faber led the league in rebounding last season.

"We need a lot of work on our defense," Quinn said. "Especially on our one-on-one and two-on-two drills. Basically we'll be a man-to-man type team on defense, but we'll use the zone when pressing or at other times it's more desirable. We'll probably have more defenses than we've had in the past, and we'll probably play at a pretty quick tempo. I believe this group will play better at that speed, so it looks like we could have a high-scoring team."

Quinn said he felt that the team would average over 80 points per game, and perhaps would be the most prolific team of the Pirates in recent years. "Of course we hope to be able to hold the other teams down below this," he added.

While the Bucs look to be a good rebounding team, Quinn notes that the schedule has some teams that the Pirates will have trouble working the boards against. Such teams as Dayton, West Virginia and N.C. State all have seven-footers, and this will make it tough on the smaller Pirates. "We should be as good as any past team, we just have a tougher schedule."

Ball handling, a problem in the past, should be one of the bright spots this year. The Pirates have quality floor leadership and quarterbacking from transfer Jerome Owens, and junior Dave McNeill has also shown great improvement. "We'll be moving the ball around more on the break, and handling it more safely all the time," Quinn said.

The outside shooting of the Pitates, one phase which hurt them last year, looks to be improved also. "It will be adequate. We have people who can hit from outside, and this will serve to open up the inside more too."

Fouls are another problem of the Pitates, and Quinn is uncertain about this now. "We need to play. We've been fouling a lot in practice, but this may be because of our tempo. It should slow down in a game."

Foul-shooting is also an area of worry. "We have some people who are real good, and some who need a lot of improvement."

As far as who the top starters will be, Quinn still isn't sure. "We may not know until we're ready to go Wednesday night," he said. "There are eight possibilities."

In the guard positions, it could be transfers Earl Quash and Owens, or returning junior McNeill. "All eight should see a lot of action," Quinn said.

Leading reserves will be Terry Davis and Greg Crouse, who have plenty of experience. "Of course, the others will play a lot too."

Most everyone is looking for the Pirates to finish third in the league this year. Quinn isn't making any predictions, but just wants the team to do its best.

"Right now we just want to get on the court and start playing together as a unit. I won't judge this team until the latter part of January. With the schedule we have, it wouldn't be fair until they've been giving a while to work together and get to know each other."

And at any rate, the season really revolves around three days at the end of the season, as any Furman Paladin fan from last year can assure you.

Ten-Year Amateur Veteran Wins National Title For Formula Fords

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

His wife, Mary, a pretty bonde, overheard the remark but continued smiling as Harrell, from Tecumseh, Mich., accepted the trophy Friday after beating a 20-car field in a 30-minute dash for swift little Formula Ford racing cars at Road Atlanta near Gainesville.

Harrell, 28, a handsome, 10-year veteran of amateur competition, brought his Titan Mk 6A home 7.7 seconds ahead of favored Gordon Smiley, 26, of Shawnee Mission, Kan., after the two had battled furiously for the lead most of the way.

"That's the way it is with us amateurs," said Harrell, who had won five races in the SCCA's Central Division to earn a spot in the ARRC runoffs. "The race cars are about equal in power, and it all boils down to driver against driver. I wouldn't have it any other way. It wouldn't be fun."

In addition to Harrell, five other drivers won national titles in the first round of competition. Eight more champions were to be crowned in six races today and eight in Sunday's windup of six events.

"As long as the boss will put up with this, I'll just continue on racing," Davey said after posting an average speed of 95.84 miles per hour around the 2.52-mile course.

Evans, 29, a bearded bachelor who says he specializes in "finding out what is wrong with other people's cars, and charging them a fancy fee" had his hands full in beating Eric Kerman of Hempstead, New York, in the race for fast little C-Production sports cars. His margin at the finish was nine-tenths of a second. The average race speed was 89.05 mph.

The ARRC brings together the top three points winners from all racing classes in the SCCA's seven geographic regions. In all, 421 drivers registered at the track for the runoffs. They will divide $129,000 in prize and expense money.

Hale Irwin In Heritage Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin scrambled back into the third round lead in the $110,000 Heritage Golf Classic Saturday, taking a 68, but Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer were lurking close behind.

Irwin, still seeking his first victory in four years on the pro tour, had a 54 hole total of 209, four under par on the demanding 6,655 yard Harbour Town Golf Links.

The 26-year-old former football star at Colorado held a one stroke lead over big Bob Lunn and second round leader Mac McLendon, tied at 210. Lunn had a 71 and McLendon was one over par at 72.

But the biggest threats could come from two of the game's giants, Nicklaus and Palmer. Nicklaus had to work hard for a 71 and 211 while Palmer had a 69 for 212, just three strokes off the pace.

They were the only five players under par after 54 holes.

Frank Beard was next at 214, one over par. Lee Trevino, the leading money winner and already named the PGA player of the year, took a 72 and appeared to be out of it at 221, eight over par on the tight, testing, tree-lined layout.

"Chipping was my long suit today," said Irwin, who missed the green seven times but saved par on each occasion with his longest putt from four feet.

Irwin, a 6-foot, 170-pounder, hit a wedge over a tree to within two feet for a birdie on the second hole, laced an iron to four feet on the next and ran in a 25 foot putt on the 12th for his three birdies.

He didn't have a bogey but had to one-putt the last three greens for pars.

Lunn, a big guy playing his way out of a mild slump, had a share of the lead until he bogeyed the 458 yard, par four final hole. He missed the green to the left, chipped to five feet and missed the putt.

McLendon also shared the lead at one stage, but took consecutive bogeys on the eighth and ninth.

Nicklaus was obviously upset after his round.

He had 16 pars, birdied the 15th from 15 feet and took a bogey on the tough eighth, where his tee shot hit a tree and the ball dropped down into a palm frond. He had no shot.

"I hit the ball just awful," said Nicklaus, winner of his last three starts. "I don't know what happened. If I knew what I was doing wrong, I wouldn't do it. I've been playing pretty well for some time and I'm going to go out to the practice tee and see if I can find out something."

The 42-year-old Palmer made an 18 foot birdie putt on the third hole, chipped to two feet on the fifth and turned in 34.

But he took consecutive bogeys on the 12th and 13th, each from a trap, then made 18 and 15 foot birdie putts on the next two. He hit a four iron to two feet on the 17th, but bogeyed the 18th for the third consecutive day, again missing the green.

S. Miss. Rips WTSU

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Two seniors considered by some too small to play college football led Southern Mississippi to a 35-0 thrashing of West Texas State here Saturday in a season-ending game for both teams.

Wee Willie Heidelburg, a 5-foot-6, 145-pound running back, scored two touchdowns and slender 164-pound quarterback Rick Donegan completed 12 of 24 passes for 141 yards.

The Southern defense held the usually high-scoring Buffaloes to 143 yards total offense. The home team picked off six West Texas passes, including three by safety Ray Guy.

Guy's first interception came on the Southern 24-yard line midway through the first quarter. He ran it back 20 yards to start Southern toward its first score. Three plays later Heidelburg circled right end for 20 yards and the touchdown.

BC Rolls By 21-7

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Senior quarterback Ray Ripman passed for two touchdowns and set up another with a long strike as Boston College defeated arch-rival Holy Cross 21-7 Saturday in a traditional New England college football windup.

Rippman got the heavily favored Eagles rolling after Holy Cross took a surprising 7-0 lead on Pete Vaas' short scoring pass to Joe Neary early in the second period.

Favored by better than three touchdowns, BC struck back quickly for a pair of scores and went on to cap it's winningest season since 1940.

Drivers Demand Fire Precautions

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The world's top racing drivers will meet in London next week to demand stepped-up fire precautions after allegations that Swiss ace Jo Siffert need not have died.

Siffert, 35, died in the blazing wreckage of his car five weeks ago at Britain's Brand Hatch circuit.

A pathologist told an inquest Friday that his only injury from the crash was a broken leg.

"One can certainly say that, if there had been no fire, he would not have died," he said.

As it was, no one could get near him for five minutes. Track marshals testified at the inquest that two fire extinguishers failed to work and a third was ineffective.

One of them said that, except for these failures, he was certain Siffert could have been pulled clear within 20 seconds.

The seven-man inquest jury returned a verdict of accidental death and added:

"We suggest better supervision of safety and fire precautions."

Louis Stanley, secretary of the Grand Prix Drivers association, immediately called a meeting of world drivers to be held in London next week.

He said he wants drivers to insist that every track should have six highspeed fire tenders capable of at least 100 mph.

Emergency lights should be installed on every track, he said, to warn following drivers of fire hazards ahead.

Another suggestion he put forward is that each race should be watched from a fire-fighting helicopter. Tests have shown that a helicopter's blades can fan flames away from a burning car, even into the wind, he said.

North Forsyth Captures State 4-A Title; Havelock, Gates Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Forsyth has won the North Carolina high school 4-A football championship by beating High Point Central 10-7 on "Last Play" Boyd Shore's 32-yard field goal.

He had been deprived of an opportunity to kick a field goal by a bad snap on the last play of the first half in the game Friday night in Winston-Salem.

But a personal foul was called on High Point on what would have been the last play of the game. And since a game cannot end on a penalty, North Forsyth was allowed one more play, from the High Point 15. Shore's kick was high and perfect.

The boot was set up by a pass interception by Ed Summers. High Point drew the personal foul after Summers had been knocked out of bounds on the runback.

North Forsyth, which finished with a 10-3 record, got its touchdown on a seven-yard run by Claude Smalls in the second quarter. High Point tied the scored 7-7 in the third quarter on a three-yard run by James Betterson which capped a 52-yard drive.

Other state and regional titles also were decided Friday night.

In Western 3-A, Pisgah, undefeated in its 13 games, breezed to a 48-0 victory over East Alamance. Alamance got into Pisgah territory only three times, and never penetrated beyond the 30.

In Eastern 3-A, two touchdowns in the final period on plunges by Vince Allen and Randy Merritt carried Havelock to a 20-6 victory over Elizabeth City, Northeastern.

No state crown, only East and West titles, are decided in the 3-A and 2-A classes of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association.

In Eastern 2-A, the undefeated Gates County Red Barons also won their 13th game, crushing Southern Guilford 34-8. Gates County scored the first three times it had the ball, twice on runs of five yards by Ray Beamon and on a one-yard plunge by Ed Outland.

Outland also scored on a one-yard plunge in the second quarter, making its lead 26-0 before Southern Guilford was able to score.

In Western 2-A, Maiden defeated Mount Pleasant 6-2 when defensive halfback Rod Abernathy scooped up a Mount Pleasant fumble and ran it 87 yards for a touchdown with four minutes left in the game.

In Class 1-A, Robersonville of Martin County in the east turned back a bid for a third straight state title by Robbinsville of Graham County in the west. Robersonville won the championship 30-18 after taking the lead at 14-12 on a 40-yard scoring pass from Leon Wilson to Summey Mobley and James Coppage's run for the two-point conversion in the third period. The eastern powerhouse led the rest of the way.

Salisbury and South Point of Belmont played to a 14-14 tied and wound up as cochampions of the Western North Carolina High School Activities Association. The touchdowns were made by Bill Hannon and Danny Clawson for South Point and Ben Gatierh and Johnny Stratton for Salisbury.

Griffin Captures Two Titles In Swim Meet

RALEIGH — Jim Griffin of East Carolina University's swimming team has captured two first places during the Atlantic Coast Holiday Swim Festival, held at North Carolina State 'University.

The meet got underway Thursday and wound up Saturday night.

Wayne Norris, another Pirate, had captured one event through Friday' night's schedule.

Griffin finished first in the 100-yard freestyle, winning in a time of 49 seconds flat, which tied the meet record. He also won the 500-yard freestyle in a time of 4:57.0, a new East Carolina varsity record.

Norris' win came in the 200-yard butterfly in a time of 2:01.7, which set a new meet and new East Carolina varsity records.

Thursday night, Griffin finished sixth in the 1,650-yard freestyle in a time of 18:00.2. while Paul Schiffel was eighth in 18:20.

Norris was third in the 400-yard individual medly in 4:29.2, while Schiffel was fifth in 4:33.6, a new Pirate frehsman mark.

The Pirate 400-yard freestyle relay A team finished third in 3:21.3, while the B team was ninth in 3:33.2.

In Friday's events, joining Norris in points in the 200 butterfly, Schiffel was ninth in 2:09.8.

Dave Kohler was eight in the 200-vard breaststroke in 2:25.8. Norris, coming straight out of the championship heat in the butterfly, finished 12 in the breaststroke.

Norris was also ninth in the 500 freestyle in 5:13, while Schiffel was 10th in 5:13.4.

In the one-meter diving, Jack Morrow was sixth with 395 points. Doug Emerson was eight with 358, followed by Ted Szostak in 10th with 272 and Randy Moore in 11th with 247.

The A team was fourth in the 800-yard freestyle relay in 7:34.1, while the B team was eight in 8:02.4, and the C team was 12th in 8:10.5.

Hosting N.C. State continues to run away with the team totals, with over 500 points. South Carolina is second with some 190, followed by the Bucs with approximately 160. The meet wound up late Saturday night.

UNC Star Suspended

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith has announced the indefinite suspension of star forward Bill Chamberlain for failure to comply with workout rules.

Smith said Friday night he doubts that Chamberlain, a 6-6 New Yorker, will be in the lineup next Thursday when North Carolina opens its season at home against Rice.

Chamberlain did not play in an intra-squad game Friday night.

"In the interest of Bill Chamberlain and the team I have suspended him indefinitely," Smith said. "He simply did not do what other team members were asked to do and did."

Last season, Chamberlain sparked the Tar Heels to the championship in the National Invitational Tournament and was voted the tourney's most valuable player.

'Skins, 49ers Seek To Rebound

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The San Francisco 49ers have a chance Sunday to regain first place in the National Conference West, while the Washington Redskins must regain their momentum in the East to have a shot at the playoffs.

The 49ers, who visit the New York Jets—and may run into Joe Namath—moved into a tie with Los Angeles for the divisional lead Thursday, when the Rams fell to the Dallas Cowboys 28-21.

And with their victory, the Cowboys opened a one-game lead over the faltering 'Skins, who face Philadelphia Sunday and have won only one of five games since capturing their first five outings of the season.

Sunday's other National Football League games have Baltimore at Oakland, Atlanta at Minnesota, New Orleans against Green Bay at Milwaukee, Denver at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Houston, New England at Buffalo, St. Louis at the New York Giants, San Diego at Cincinnati and, in Monday night's nationally televised (ABC, 9 p.m., EST) game, Chicago at Miami.

The Raiders' margin over Kansas City in the American Conference West widened to a full game as the Chiefs bowed 32-21 to Detroit in the other Thanksgiving Day clash.

The Colts, trailing front-running Miami by 1½ games in the East, have beaten Oakland in four of five meetings, including 27-17 in the 1970 AFC championship. They'll be sending their No. 1 conference defense against the Raiders' offense, which is rated No. 3.

The Vikings' hold on first in the NFC Central Division was trimmed to a game by Detroit. The Falcons, one-half game back of Los Angeles and San Francisco, can keep the three-way race alive, but they'll have to do it against the stingiest club in the league.

The Vikes have given up only 82 points, the only team to yield less than 100. It's the first visit to Minnesota for former Vikings coach Norm Van Brocklin, who now coaches Atlanta.

The Saints, all but eliminated from the NFC West race, can lift their record within a game of the .500 mark—but to do so they'll have to stop Packer rookie John Brockington, the conference's No. 1 ground gainer with 806 yards.

The Steelers, with Ron Shanklin sharing the AFC pass reception lead, haven't lost at home this year. The Broncos hope to give new head coach Jerry Smith his first victory. They lost 28-10 to the Chiefs in his debut.

The Browns, who share the AFC Central lead with Pittsburgh, broke a four-game losing streak last weekend. Now they hope to duplicate their season opener, when they stunned the Oilers 31-0.

Time is running out for the winless Bills, out to reverse their 38-33 loss to the Patriots two weeks ago. Neither the Cardinals nor Giants are going anywhere this season, but St. Louis has the added incentive of trying to climb out of the NFC East cellar.

Despite a dismal 3-7 record, the Bengals still have a shot at catching the Steelers and Browns, whom they trail by only two games. It figures to be an aerial show, with Cincinnati's Virgil Carter and the Chargers' John Hadl unlimbering their arms.

The Dolphins, with AFC passing leader Bob Griese and No. 1 runner Larry Csonka, can open a two-game lead over Baltimore and deal the Bears a virtual death blow with a victory. Chicago trails first-place Minnesota by two games with four to go.

Kicks Capture Sixth Straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A national television audience watched Archie Clark pour in a career-high 40 points, but there's little doubt his Baltimore Bullets teammates were just about as happy with the 30 Austin Carr scored.

Clark's output, plus 26 by Jack Marin, led the Bullets to a 118-105 victory over Atlanta Friday; and, several hours later, Baltimore bounded into first place in the National Basketball Association's Central Division as the Carr-led Cleveland Cavaliers whipped Cincinnati 128-114.

In Friday night's other NBA games, the New York Knicks won their sixth in a row and closed within a game of Atlantic Division-leading Boston with a 104-89 triumph over the Celtics, Milwaukee ripped Portland 120-105, Chicago clobbered Golden State 121-89 and Los Angeles 132, Detroit 113.

In American Basketball Association play, Dallas beat the New York Nets 106-101, Indiana topped Denver 110-96, Utah turned back Carolina 124-115 and the Floridians edged Memphis 106-104.

The victories by Baltimore and Cleveland squeezed even more the already sardine-tight Central Division with the Bullets leading the Royals by half a game, the Cavs by two and a half and the Hawks by three—and not one of the clubs has a winning record. Baltimore's mark is 912.

The Bullets, en route to snapping a three-game losing streak and handing the Hawks their third straight setback, were in command by the end of the first period and led by as many as 15 points in the second. Jim Washington's 23 points topped Atlanta scoring.

Carr, Cleveland's 6-foot-3 rookie playing only his fifth game after being sidelined with a broken bone in his right foot, hit 12 of 20 field goal attempts.

But it was the Cavs' balanced scoring—19 points by John Johnson, 18 by Bobby Smith and 17 apiece by Butch Beard and Walt Jesley—that offset 33 point performances by the Royals' Nate Archibald and Jim Fox. It was only the fourth time in the club's history it has managed successive victories.

The Knicks wasted little time as they cruised to a 22-point first-half lead, then settled back behind a solid defense, to the disappointment of the crowd of 15,315, largest pro basketball turnout in Boston Garden history.

Walt Frazier's 25 points, Jerry Lucas' 24 and Dave DeBusschere's 23 paced New York. John Havlicek had 28 and Jo Jo White 26 for the Celtics.

Kareem Jabbar powered the Milwaukee attack with 33 points, and Bob Dandridge added 21 as the careening Bucks, retaining their four-game lead over Chicago in the Midwest Division, extended their record to 20-3.

It was their 24th consecutive victory at home in a streak extending back to last Jan. 22. Rookie Sidney Wicks had 30 for the Trail Blazers, whose record fell to 3-17.

The Bulls kept pace with Milwaukee by capturing their seventh game in a row as Bob Love, Chet Walker and Jerry Sloan combined for 67 points to turn back the Warriors, led by Jeff Mullins' 19.

The Lakers continued to win with their 13th straight as Wilt Chamberlain scored 31 points and had 31 rebounds and Jerry West tallied 25 points and had 18 assists. The Pistons' Bob Lanier had 29 points and was his team's only consistent performer during the contest.

Dooley Named Coach Of Year

Dooley's UNC team won the ACC championship with a 9-2 record and an invitation to play Georgia in the Gator Bowl.

He is the first UNC coach to win the honor outright. In 1963, Jim Hickey shared the award with Earle Edwards of N.C. State.

In the Gator Bowl, Dooley will be opposing his brother, Vince, for whom he served as chief assistant before coming to North Carolina five years ago.

Dooley was the odds-on choice of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. He was named on 55 of the 86 ballots cast. Duke's Mike McGee, was runner-up with 25. Others receiving votes included Hootie Ingram of Clemson, Cal Stoll of Wake Forest, and Al Michaels of North Carolina State.

Dooley, a native of Mobile, Ala., was an outstanding guard at Mississippi State. He served as an assistant coach there and at George Washington before joining his brother at Georgia.

Dooley's UNC teams are known for their strength in the offensive and defensive lines. This season he had to replace an entire offensive front. He did it with such success that three of the linemen were named to the All-ACC team.

The season was a trying one for Dooley and the Tar Heels because of the death in pre-season practice of Bill Arnold, a popular player who died of complications resulting from a heat stroke.

The Tar Heels rallied from mid-season losses to Tulane and Notre Dame to win their last five and the Gator Bowl invitation.

Pair Will Not Join NCS Team

RALEIGH (AP) — Paul Coder and Bob Heuts have withdrawn from the North Carolina State basketball team because of delays in their trial on marijuana possession charges.

Coder, center and team captain, and Heuts, a forward, were arrested two months ago in a park adjacent to the N.C. State campus and charged with possessing five ounces of marijuana. A hearing on the charges was set originally for next Wednesday in Wake District Court.

Coder and Heuts said in a statement Friday that "Due to the continued delay in our trial that is bringing undue embarrassment to North Carolina State University, its alumni, supporters and friends, we have decided to voluntarily withdraw from the N.C. State basketball as active players."

Wolfpack basketball coach Norman Sloan had no comment on the statement.

State opens its basketball season next Wednesday with a game against Atlantic Christian. The season will last until March and court officials have indicated it may be March before Coder and Heuts are tried on the marijuana charges.

N.C. State officials had stated they would take no action on the academic or athletic standing of the two players until the court acted, and there had been speculation that the hearing delays would make it possible for Coder and Heuts to play the entire season.

Coder is a 21-year-old 6-9, 235-pound senior from Rockville, Md., and has been a standout at center for the Wolfpack the past two years. Heuts, a 6-7, 195-pound junior from Chicago Heights, Ill., was starting forward. He is 20.

A BARGAIN COLT

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — When Will Whitehead of Del Rio, Tex., bought Mr. Kid Charge as a yearling at an auction sale here last year he picked up a real bargain.

Mr. Kid Charge cost Whitehead $4,100 and when he won the All-American Futurity for quarter horses here on Labor Day the 2-year-old picked up $200,841.62. It was the seventh straight victory for Mr. Kid Charge.

Funny Car Champions Race At Kinston Strip

KINSTON— The East Coast Fuel Funney Car Circuit Championships will be run at Kinston today, with time trials set for noon, and races at 2:30 p.m.

Tom "Smoker" Smith has won the title for the past three years, and is the favorite to repeat the feat this season.

Smith is driving the Virginia Twister, a Dodge Challenger owned by Kenny Warren Racing Enterprises. Among his challengers are such cars as the Satan Charger, the U.S. Male Chevy Vega, the Hippi Hemi, the Star Treak, the Pak Rat Chevy Nova, the Crazy Cuda and the Swinger II Chevy Two.

Smith said that at least eight cars will be challenging his for the title.

Smith, pushing the drag racing program, boasts it as the number one spectator sport in the country. "We attracted over two million people last year just in our division," he said. And there are half-a-dozen different division of drag racing.

"We're working with the high schools now, trying to bring the high school kids out and away from the drug scene," Smith said. "There's a place for them at the drag strip. We have classes for everyone, from the newest amateur right on up."

Smith got his start in drag racing back in 1958. He had run a few dirt oval races in the South Carolina area (he's a native of Spartanburg) during the late 40's, but had never even seen a drag race until the day he entered one.

"I was just riding around Aquasco, Maryland, and happened to run up on a track. I liked what I saw and entered right then. I got beat pretty bad then."

Smith started winning however, and in 1964 was signed by Chrysler. Since then he's won 75 per cent of his races.

For those who don't know the Funny Car classification is not a strictly stock type. It consists of a tube chassis with a fiberglass body, and weighs in at about 1,800 pounds. A regular street model Challenger would tip the scales at around 4,200 pounds. Smith rates his car as on the par, weight-wise with a Volkswagen.

Smith expects the cars in today's race to run the quarter in around 7.8 seconds or 185 miles per hour. His best time is 7.71 seconds, 186 mph.

Three-Pointers Lead Chaparrals

NEW YORK (AP) — Winning for the Dallas Chaparrals is as easy as one, two, three.

Three-point field goals by Rick Jones, that is.

Jones pitched in three three pointers in the fourth quarter to help the Chaps whip the New York Nets 106-101 in an American Basketball Association game Friday night.

"We didn't plan it that way," said Dallas coach Tom Nissalke, "I don't believe in setting up three-point plays."

The Jones bombs, nine of 11 last-quarter points, helped the Chaps storm back from a whopping 16-point deficit in the first half and took all the starch out of the Nets in the bruising, punctuated contest.

"Those three-pointers, they're an exciting play for the fans, all right," grinned Nissalke. "But I tell my players to use it with discretion."

In the ABA's other games Friday night, it was Indiana 110, Denver 96; Utah 124, Carolina 115, and Floridians 106, Memphis 104.

In the National Basketball Association, it was New York 104, Boston 89; Milwaukee 120, Portland 105; Baltimore 118, Atlanta 105; Chicago 121, Golden State 89; Cleveland 128, Cincinnati 114, and Los Angeles 132, Detroit 113.

Jones, who spent a dizzy first half trying to guard hot-shooting Rick Barry, sat it out until the last period. His third three pointer put Dallas on top 101-99 before two foul shots by New York's Bill Melchionni tied it. Then Steve Jones put the Chaps ahead for good, 102-101, with a foul shot at the two-minute mark and sealed it with a field goal later.

Barry scored a game-high 46 points for the Nets, going wild with 32 in the first half that helped build a 64-48 lead shortly before the intermission. Steve Jones wound up with 29 points while Rick Jones tallied 19 overall.

Simmie Hill of Dallas and Jim Ard of New York were thrown out of the game for fighting in the third quarter. The Nets' Bill Paultz and George Johnson of the Chaps also exchanged punches later but stayed in the game.

Weather, Fishing Postponing Plans For Winter Overhauls

By HELEN RAY

It is getting toward the time of the year when the pier owners and the boat captains are thinking about refurbishing piers and boats for the coming season. This is difficult now, for the weather has been so ideal and the fishing so good that the usual closing of piers and hauling of boats could be delayed a few weeks. The most activity is now over the weekends — and though the fish are still here in abundance, the sport fishermen can only fish on weekends; except those very wise ones who take their vacations in the Fall and are here now to catch the big ones.

Joe Burney, Triple-Ess Pier reports that big flounder are being caught from the pier and some trout are being picked up by beach surfcasters. Joe says he expects to close the pier the last of November, working the month of March to put the pier in good shape and opening about April 1 for the new season.

Joe Hardison, Oceanana Pier. There was great excitement this past week when Dennis Ward, 7 years old, of Newport caught a 9 lb. 4 oz. Flounder! John Devane proudly displayed his 20 lb. 4 oz. albacore! Trout, flounder and bluefish are plentiful and the weekend crowds are good.

Ken Bradley, Sportsman's Pier. This week has been good. A party of fishermen from Raleigh, N.C., Elton and Curt Bunch, John Ennis and James Lewis filled fish boxes with speckled trout, large ones, 145 one day, 104 another day and so on until the exact total became a little blurred. James Lewis claims credit for catching a 6¾ lb. flounder. These men seemed to be in the right spots at the right time for, believe it or not, on Wednesday, Nov. 17, they caught 8 nice sheepshead! On Thursday, Nov. 18, A. C. Taylor of Greensboro, N.C. caught a 4 lb. 8 oz. speckled trout. The weekend crowds have been record in number for this time of the year and Ken expects to keep the pier open as long as the weather is good and the fishing satisfactory. He may close the pier early in December and be ready for the new season in April. There are rumors that the tackle shop is to be remodeled.

Denny Lawrence, Iron Steamer Pier. Kirt Duncan reported for Denny that the weekends have been good and during the week approximately 20 to 40 flounder per day have been caught. On Monday, Nov. 15, P. L. Pegram of Rockingham County caught an 11 lb. 11 oz. flounder. Night fishing has been fine for mullet and black drum and puppy drum have been caught in quantity. Denny expects to close the pier about December 15 and expects to open about March 1 for the new season.

The sport fishing boats have not been out in great numbers but those going to the fishing grounds have had fair catches. Pearl Bedsworth reports for Captain Ottis' Fishing Fleet that last Sunday all the boats were out with parties and the highest catch was 12 king mackerel, with all boats returning with 5 kings at least. On Monday, Nov. 15, Dolphin I, Capt. George Bedsworth, Mate R. A. Merrill, returned with 33 kings; Dolphin VI, Capt. Wallace Guthrie, Mate Gary Lewis, returned with 26 kings; Searaven, Capt. George Purifoy, Mate Leo McIntosh, returned with 200 lbs. of bottom fish. Tuesday, Nov. 16, of the 6 boats fishing, the Shearwater, Capt. Percy Howland, Mate Ken Kramer, returned with 30 king mackerel. Wednesday, Nov. 17, Dolphin VII, Capt. Jack Lewis, Mate Mac Mizelle, returned with 20 kings. Friday, Nov. 18, Dolphin I, Capt. George Bedsworth, Mate R. A. Merrill returned with 18 kings, 3 amberjacks, the largest weighing 41 lbs., and a 10 lb. blue fish. Dolphin VII, Capt. Jack Lewis, Mate Mac Mizelle returned with 12 kings and 3 albacore. Miss Pearl reports that parties are booked for the first 2 weeks in December and the hope is that the weather is cold enough to ensure good catches of sea bass.

Capt. Jim Talton, Dreamo-Lu 2 took parties fishing on Sunday, Nov. 14, returning with 16 kings; Monday, returning with 29 kings and 2 albacore. Tuesday was devoted to bottom fishing and the boat returned with a fair catch; Wednesday no trip was made; Thursday, Capt. Talton returned his party with 16 kings. After the end of November, the Dreamo-Lu will be refurbished for the coming season and beginning April, with 100 bookings, the expectation is for a large and successful new season.

The "head boats" are making no trips during the week but the weekends have been exciting and good crowds have been returned with fine catches. The fishing from the head boats will continue until the end of the month and during the period December - April 1972 the boats are overhauled and readied for the new season.

Herb Orama, Herb's Tackle Shop reports three days of double trips this past week with Thursday being the best day. He returned his parties with 3 coolers filled with speckled trout and black bass. Jack McCann, Calico Jack's Inn, Marina, Restaurant and Boutique, Harkers Island reports they have had an excellent week of fishing, catching large speckled trout and big grey trout, in fact he is hoping that Mrs. Adler of Greenville, N.C. may have the International Record to her credit for a large grey weighing 6 lbs. 11 oz. There is still some checking to be done, as of this writing, but on any record, that is a nice trout!

Rod Myers, Capt. Lookout Motel, Marina and Restaurant, Harkers Island, reports very good crowds and excellent catches of speckled trout, grey trout, sea bass and bluefish. Rod expects to remain open for business through December 21 and after a short vacation, will reopen on January 1, 1972 for the new season. There are still several weeks of pier fishing and boat fishing, however, there is not one thing to keep the surf fishermen from catching the big ones from the shore — nor the many private boats to try their luck in the inlet and as far out as they dare to venture. The ocean is teaming with fish — and the sport of catching them is as great as ever!

Fishermen Pursue Snapper Blues Along Cape Lookout Coastline

Snapper blues were plentiful in the surf at Cape Lookout last weekend, and anglers pursued them on land and by air.

Jack McCann of Calico Jack's Inn at Harkers Island ferried a pair of surfmen to the lighthouse dock from where they walked to the beach. Then he tied up at Les and Sally Moore's dock (the Moore's are Lookout's only permanent residents) and escorted me in his beach buggy from the lighthouse to the point. Anglers formed a picket line along the breakers and overhead aircraft swooped low, rods lashed to their wing struts.

A fresh northeast wind smoothed the surf somewhat, but there was a band of dingy water next to shore. From the car, we watched one surfman in the lineup land two good-sized black drum. Over an offshore bar, hundreds of birds dove on bait driven to the surface by bluefish and little tunny (albacore).

Driving southward, we found another slough alive with fish and birds, but vacant of fishermen. I cast a treble-hooked spoon over the dirty water, let it settle, then began an erratic retrieve. A snapper blue hit it just in the curl and made it back into deep water before I turned it and rode it in on a wave. McCann's first cast with a white butterbean bucktail produced a strike and another snapper soon flipped the sand. sand.

We continued fishing while behind us, on a level stretch of beach, two small planes set down. The occupants unlashed rods and went straight to work down the strand from us.

In an hour and a half, we beached over twenty blues, the largest weighing perhaps two pounds.

Hoping for spotted seatrout which had been caught there several days previously, I prospected awhile with a MirrOlure, but failed to catch even a bluefish. On high water and with light tackle, I could not reach the bar. Chances are there were trout in the clear water, but we could not wait for falling tide to give us access because McCann had to make another run to Harkers Island.

We asked one of the airborne anglers if they had spotted trout in the surf, but he said not. Back at the Moore's store, we ate sandwiches and admired a full cooler of bluefish in the same size class as ours.

Small blues are not the most exciting fish in the surf, but, as McCann said, "they take up the slack."

Later that afternoon, I took a rental skiff and searched for trout in Barden's Inlet. None of the favorite spots — the "Short Turn," "Lighthouse Channel," and the hole east of Whitehead Island — produced even a strike.

The most productive location for several days had been in the mouth of marsh creeks north of the "Thoroughfare," a channel west of Harkers Island. At dusk a boat load of fishermen returned to McCann's marina with a good catch of trout, none of which would have gone much over a pound. They came from the "Thoroughfare" marsh.

Fishing for spotted seatrout has been hot and cold at Lookout so far this fall. Weakfish (gray trout) have been more dependable, both in the surf and at the rock jetty, which is a productive spot when the sea permits small craft to fish it. Grays have run uncommonly large this year, with five-pounders in many catches.

With fall late again this year, trout fishing all along the coast probably will extend well into next year. At Cape Lookout, the best is yet to come.

Buying Bird Dog Is Ultimate Test

By JIM DEAN

If you think swapping cars is the ultimate test of a man's patience and connivance, you haven't tried to buy a bird dog just before opening day of the quail season.

Auto salesmen and bird dog owners are cut from the same mold. Nobody else in our capitalist system can look you straighter in the eye and tell a more brazen lie.

For the past two months I have been looking for the Holy Grail — a stylish setter of reasonable origins which hunts and retrieves without making many mistakes and sells for under $200. I didn't figure that was too much to ask. Neither did the first dog trader I talked to.

"Got just what you want," he said excitedly. "This dog will do everything but fix you a cup of coffee after you take her hunting."

I later found out that he was right — or at least he might once have been right. The only thing wrong was the dog was about 12 years old and was getting a little senile. I once read that one year in a dog's life is equal to seven in a human's life. That being the case, this dog was only 84 years old.

One dog owner — who has trained many fine hunting and field trial dogs — was somewhat more truthful.

"Of course, you know you're not going to find what you're looking for," he said. "In the first place, good dogs are not for sale this time of year at anything less than several hundred dollars more than they're worth.

"The only thing you're going to find is a dog nobody would have unless he were starving in Donner Pass and ran out of something to eat."

Of course, I recognized the truth in my friend's advice, but I continued to search — at first methodically, then desperately as the opening day of the season arrived.

After checking the mange, range, stool and stance of every flea-infested mutt in the Piedmont, I finally hit rock bottom when I answered an advertisement in the classified section of the local newspaper.

"Honest John's Used Dogs
Get 'Em While They're Hot
All Styles and Models"

"This here dawg is a good buy," he told me when I went out to his used dog lot. He pointed out a dog which had at least one bird dog in his ancestry. "This dawg has got a lot of good points, heh, heh. You like a good pun don't cha?"

"No, well how about this 'un over here," he said. "It's a fine used dog. Low mileage. Of course, it's pretty much a business model, but it's got all the standard equipment — four legs, tail, two ears, nose and that sort of thing. It was owned by a school teacher who only hunted it once a year."

"I was looking for a setter," I said.

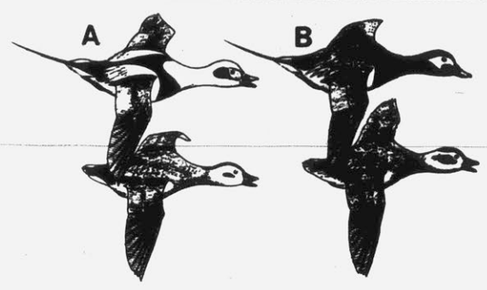
"Well, in that case I got another dog over in that cage over there which is just the dog for you," said Honest John. "All he does is set around all day."

And so it went. And so I went.

Opening day has come and gone, and I am still dogless in Tarheelia. But I have an ace up my sleeve. I know a 400 acre farm where nobody but me can hunt. It is about three-feet deep in quail, and if you play your cards right — that is, if you have a very good bird dog — I might let you hunt it with me. Of course, I have a few stipulations. You have to hunt with a single-barrel, .410, and I get first shot at the singles. O yes, I keep any birds that are killed. Also, if I like your dog, I get an option to buy him next spring. If you're interested, drop me a line...

MARSH WORLD

by ANGUS SHORT
Ducks Unlimited



OLDSQUAW

A medium sized sea duck, which nests chiefly along the east and west coasts, on inland ponds and some marshes in northern Canada, Alaska and Canadian Arctic islands. In winter it is found along both coasts, rare inland except on the Great Lakes. The male is a striking brown and white duck with distinct summer and winter plumages. Noisy and gregarious, they raft offshore in large flocks and feed on crustaceans, mollusks and other marine life.

A — Male and female in winter.
B — Male and female in summer.

Pitt County's Graphic Arts Program Underway

Pitt County's first Graphic Arts program is being taught this year at North Pitt High School.

Funded by the Elementary Secondary Education Act, Title I, the course is designed to develop skills and techniques in offset printing.

According to instructor James H. Stokes, the students are expected to become proficient in "the history and origin of graphic arts, graphic arts industry and careers, kinds and types of paper process photography, offset lithography and finishing and binding."

"Students will first specialize in one area and assist the instructor in class printing so that they may obtain the necessary skills to be proficient in the industry," Stokes said.

Stokes added, "As the student progresses, he will be expected to plan, design and carry out a printing job using modern photo-offset techniques. The job of a student at this point will be to take an idea and carry it to its finished product."

Although new this fall, the Graphic Arts class has already printed hall passes, memo sheets, football rosters and assembled handbooks for teachers, administrators and members of the Pitt County Board of Education.

Within the next few weeks the Graphic Arts classes will begin working with the journalism students in publishing a newspaper for North Pitt High School. The journalism class will collect, write, edit and prepare the paper before turning it over to the Graphic Arts shop for printing.

Plans are also being made to print a countywide education newsletter in cooperation with the office of School Information Services for Pitt County.

Reading Labs, A New Approach

Text and Photos by Bryan VanDercook

What would you do if you picked up today's paper and found that a key word in almost every sentence was printed in a strange, foreign language? How would you feel if every fifth or sixth word was blank in the pamphlet explaining your new insurance policy?

"This would be your world if you were handicapped by a reading deficiency," said Mrs. Sue Branch, reading supervisor for the Pitt County Schools.

Through an expanding program of "Reading Labs," financed by Elementary Secondary Education Act Title I, Pitt County Schools are working to eliminate this problem among its students.

A reading lab is a specialized classroom where students with reading disabilities come for help. Reading lab activities are designed to help remove much of the normal classroom pressure and place added emphasis on praise for success.

"This success-reward pattern is used to help restore the confidence of the student," Mrs. Branch noted.

There are three types of reading labs in the Pitt County School system: the primary school lab, (one in the county) that is concerned mainly with the development of basic reading skills; elementary school labs (10) which deal with remedial or correctional work; high school labs (four) and one junior high lab which deal with remedial reading.

The staff in the reading labs varies from two para-professionals on the primary school level to one reading specialist and a para-professional on the high school level. These staffs are in addition to the regular classroom teacher and student aides.

"The primary school lab" Mrs. Branch explained, "and elementary labs must take students who have the greatest disabilities first. High School labs work with Level III students."

"The fact that a student has reading deficiencies often means the normal classroom setting does not afford enough individualized instruction and therefore, he is not reading up to his potential," the reading supervisor emphasized.

Mrs. Branch continued, "When a student is placed in the reading lab program, there are specific goals that guide the instruction he receives."

"It is hoped that reading lab experiences will help develop basic comprehension abilities, correct word recognition difficulties, improve interest and taste in the selection of reading matter, increase vocabulary, and give those with hearing and speech handicaps an ability to adjust," added Mrs. Branch.

Each student participating in the reading lab program is first given a group test of reading achievement and reasoning ability, followed by an individual reading test and an interest inventory. A vision examination is given and referrals are made if necessary.

"All these test results are used to structure an individualized, special program for each student," states Mrs. Branch.

"The key to a reading lab's success is flexibility," Mrs. Branch stated. "The instructional techniques utilize auditory, visual and even some kinesthetic approaches."

Mrs. Branch noted, "The techniques are supported by the belief that a student needs a variety of modes from which to learn. If he can hear, see, feel and react by speaking, writing and doing, he will learn and retain more."

The machines and materials are creatively designed to involve these approaches. The Hoffman reader presents illustrations of a story accompanies by the words on a viewing screen while the student hears a recording of the text. The main story is followed by related sections dealing with comprehension, vocabulary and phonics.

The Controlled Reader projects a story, one line at a time, with a moving aperture that forces the student to read from left to right. The speed and difficulty of each roll of slides can be varied with the student's ability.

The Card Reader combines visual and auditory approaches. When the card is inserted, it triggers a voice recording of what is printed on the card. When the student repeats the sounds, his voice is recorded so that he and his teacher can review his response.

"All of the materials used are very formative and interesting, often relating stories from our country's history," Mrs. Branch said.

Mrs. Branch continued, "The evaluation of Pitt County's reading labs is very encouraging. On the elementary school level, an achievement test was administered to all reading lab students to measure the desirable educational goals and the score was raised six and one-half months on the average."

"One of the most impressive test results came from an oral reading test given before and after to tenth grade students on which they increased their reading level by eight months," stated Mrs. Branch. "This gains significance due to the fact that their reading lab was operational for only six months."

"The student of today is often made rebellious by his feeling that much of his education is irrelevant. For a student who has not learned to read in the early grades, the most relevant type of educational activity for him might well be the reading lab," emphasized the reading supervisor.

Continuing, Mrs. Branch said, "If a student feels that this training is applicable to his needs he will be motivated and enthusiastic. This is what the reading lab is doing."

The general attitudes of students in the reading labs has improved along with their skills, according to the reading lab teachers in the county. The teachers feel their success in the reading lab program has carried over into other areas of their school life.

"The students are given a tool with which to compete and survive in the political, economic and social world," commented Mrs. Branch. "The quiet attentiveness in each reading lab reflects their realization and appreciation of this effort to better equip them for life."

CARD READER . . . A high school student works with a card reader during participation in the reading lab program. The card reader combines visual and auditory approaches.

READING AND LISTENING . . . High school students read and listen to a story at the same time. The recordings have sound effects that augment the story. The reading and listening period is followed by word exercises. In the background is a bulletin board that depicts "Reading Is the Answer". A number of good books to read is shown.

TEACHER GIVES ASSISTANCE . . . A high school teacher helps one of her students find a story in the "We Are Black" series, stories of famous and infamous blacks. The materials used in the reading lab program are very informative and interesting.

Ranch With Spanish Influence

THE OLVERA
By GERRY BISHOP

A strong Spanish influence makes the Olvera a standout in one-story architecture.

Despite the luxurious appearance, the ranch, designed by the Associated Architects, could be built for a reasonable price.

An entrance garden that is walled in lends distinction to the facade. Screened on two sides by a high brick wall with arched openings and iron grillwork, the patio is reminiscent of old Spain.

Explosed rafters in the roof overhang and grille over bedroom windows enhance the Spanish flavor.

Besides three bedrooms and two and a half baths, the Olvera has a living room, dining room, family room with fireplace, modern kitchen, foyer, utility area, double garage and storage area.

Patio Retreat

The screened patio would be useful as well as decorative. It could be landscaped for beauty and furnished for comfort to provide a retreat during good weather.

The main entrance opens into a foyer which also connects with a narrow front porch and the garage.

The living room and dining room adjoin to form a large area for entertaining. This is a well lighted chamber, thanks to three large windows. Since this section occupies the left rear corner of the Olvera, it would be secluded, an asset for formal entertaining.

The living room-dining room area has fine dimensions. The living room section measures nearly 16 feet by 15 feet while the dining room's dimensions are nine feet by 11 feet.

The kitchen is next to the dining room. It occupies one end of the family room and is well situated to serve the dining room and the family room.

Bright Family Room

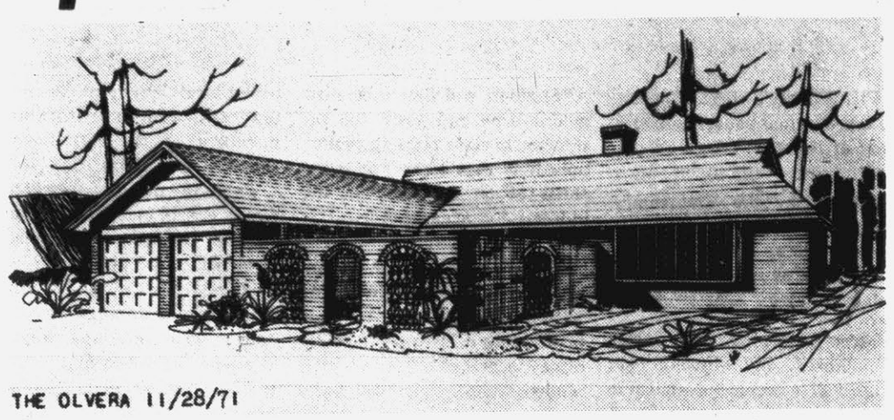
A large picture window overlooking the back yard brightens the family room which centers around a log-burning fireplace. The family room dimensions are approximately 12 feet by 23 feet including the kitchen.

The master bedroom is secluded in a rear corner and has a compartmented bath that includes a dressing area, vanity and shower. There's also a large walk-in closet.

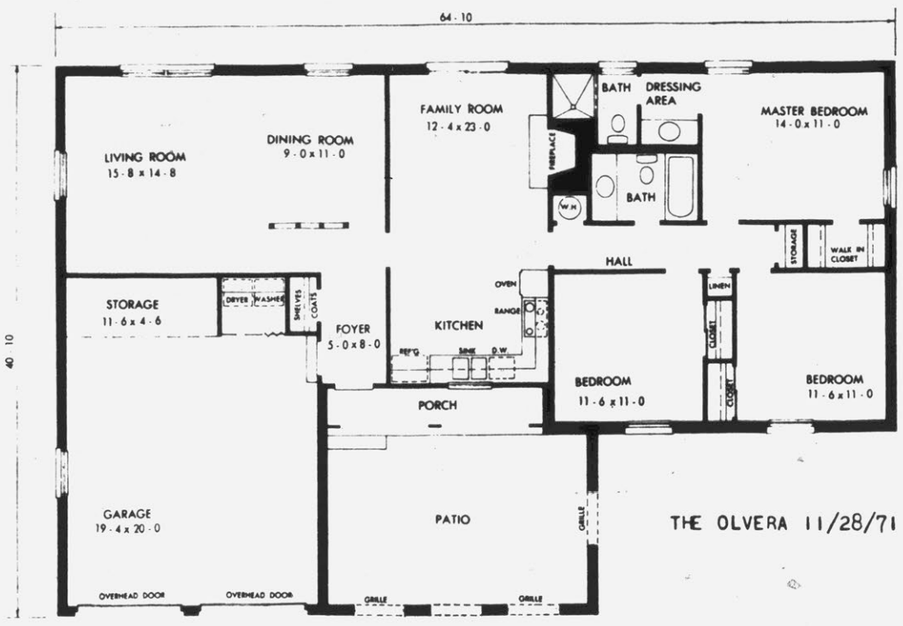
The other bedrooms are of equal size, approximately 11 feet square, and each has a large closet.

There is no basement. At the builder's option, an entrance to the crawl space may be constructed under the master bedroom to provide access to a horizontal furnace, or the furnace may be placed in the ample garage. There is also room in the garage for a water heater, a washer and dryer and storage space.

The main living area totals 1,468 square feet and there's 466 square feet in the garage and storage area and 58 square feet on the front porch. The exterior dimensions are approximately 65 feet by 41 feet.



A TOUCH OF OLD SPAIN — The Olvera is a one-story that enjoys the distinction of Spanish influence. This is achieved by a walled-in entrance garden with arched openings and iron grillwork. This model has three bedrooms, two baths, a dining room, living room, family room with fireplace, modern kitchen, foyer, double garage, storage area and laundry nook.



The American Home Is An Anachronism; Walls Are Growing Outdated

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

The American home is becoming an anachronism, says a Monday morning neighborhood kaffee-klatsch that prides itself on builder-watching.

"In two years fashions have included such extremes as mini skirts, maxi coats, pants suits and hot pants, but we are expected to be satisfied with the same old-fashioned home with its series of boxes called rooms," said one instant-coffee sipper, summing up the group's gripes.

"And have you ever tried to be Mrs. Gourmet, 1972, in a ranch house kitchen, the size of a closet. It's not in tune with Crab Louis, Chocolate Profiterole or Bearnaise Sauce," she explained.

Even if you don't cook such delicacies, you must have a place to display all those pots, souffle dishes, quiche pans, casseroles, paella pans, espresso pots, party perk and gram scale that your cooking school insists be part of the scene.

Every once in a while the ladies go on a builder-watching spree, checking up on the new-look in houses to see if they have been missing anything. But the only thing different about houses today is price. You get less for more.

One of their projects is to talk up what they think is the piece de resistance of modern living—areas "like you see in ads for glass doors"—one big enormous room that includes the kitchen, dining room and living room. But why must such houses be custom built at twice the price of a house that comes with walls?.

Walls have had it. Wall dividers were useful maybe in the days when one had to bathe in a portable tub at the kitchen coal stove. Room dividers helped shut out drafts. But why now?

With modern heating systems one big room would be Utopia. They all dream of a dining area at one end of a great room and a fireplace with a cozy seating area at the other.

"And you wouldn't need regular furniture. You could use cushions, platforms or build furniture to suit yourself," said one enthusiast.

The ladies would also do away with draperies and floor coverings that needed to be washed or cleaned. (Goodbye carpet and textile markets.)

"Instead" exclaimed one housewife, a summer sailor, "we could just swab the decks."

"It isn't just women who want a new kind of house," said an enthusiastic newlywed, a newcomer to the crowd. "My husband says he would be happy in a rustic house that resembled a fishing lodge. He'd like a big room of rough boards with a fireplace and bedrooms on a balcony. But I can't quite visualize my Pucci pants suit in a cocoon made of nylon fishing line," she quipped.

One woman, buoyed by the conversation, threatened to take down the wall between her living and dining room to see what would happen. Her husband was on a business trip.

Agreeing on such goals as these makes a cold Monday morning seem like spring. It can set a bevy of housewives up until their next builder-watching date.

But there is always one woman in every otherwise congenial circle who has a genius for a husband. His wife contributes little to the conversation until everyone is flushed with excitement, and then she makes the point that extinguishes the flame.

"When I asked my husband why our house had to have walls, he said 'how would you operate without your backbone, hip bones and shin bones'?"

"You should have told him you could still get along with your funny bone," said one coffee lover who is determined to be the first in her set to issue a "look, no walls," invitation even if she must build a new house to do it.

For those who don't believe that one husband can put a damper on a great Monday morning, here is a tip: If you contemplate taking out a wall, don't try it when you are home alone.

Court Assigned To Airport Area

DALLAS (AP) — The police at the new regional airport between Dallas and Fort Worth should have little trouble finding a court where they can take apprehended persons.

City courts in Dallas, Fort Worth, Grapevine, Coppell, Irving and Euless will be available, according to Lee Holt, a Dallas assistant attorney assigned to the airport. The giant complex extends into all these cities.

15,000 Girls To Be Immunized

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The city council has begun a two-month drive to immunize 15,000 schoolgirls against German measles. Vaccine, which cost the authorities $1.40 per child, was available to all white girls in their first year of high school and to all 12-year-old schoolgirls of other races.

German measles, or rubella, is an infectious disease which, if contracted by pregnant women, can result in mentally retarded children.

Will Undertake Salmon Survey

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — Danish and British fishery authorities will launch a large-scale operation to mark salmon off Greenland to determine how badly they have been decimated by intensified deep sea fishing.

Experts fear that wide-scale drift-net fishing in Greenland waters may have seriously depleted salmon schools and threatened breeding in Scottish rivers.

Manufacturer's claim—That this wrench will do away with the problem of removing the pipe nuts under a sink, which often defy the efforts of do-it-yourself home owners without professional plumbing tools.... That the two open ends of the wrench, one 2 inches and one 1¾ inches, will fit 99 per cent of all gooseneck nuts.... That the wrench has a corrosion-resistant gunmetal finish on steel. ... And that, because it will fit the nut exactly, there will be no marring of the gooseneck's chrome coating.

Manufacturer's claim—That the action of this cutter enables chains, rods and threaded bolts to be cut cleanly.... That there is no need to redress threads on machine bolts and threaded rods.... That the cutter has a nose-cutting feature that lets you cut chain, fencing and long wire. ... And that the cutter is so designed that it also can be used for bending metal stock up to one-quarter of an inch thick.

THE PRODUCT—An abrasive eraser for removing rust.

Manufacturer's claim—That a finger-sized abrasive handbar wipes away rust, other corrosion or spots from metal surfaces, leaving bright finishes. ... That it eliminates surface preparation and can be handled without gloves. ... That it can also be used for removing scuffs, stains and discolorations from composition flooring, ceramics, plastics, rubber, glass, fiber, wood, brick and stone.

THE PRODUCT—A so-called "burglar proof" security bolt.

Manufacturer's claim—That the security feature of the new bolt is a rotating pin coated with a non-stick finish enclosed in the barrel. ... That a hacksaw might cut through the outside of the bolt but would be stopped from cutting further when it meets the freely rotating pin. ... That the non-stick finish, of the kind used on cooking utensils, provides a smooth surface, permits the pin to rotate easily and makes it rustproof.

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—I read in the papers recently about an explosion in a brand new house when two workers were installing plastic counter tops on a sink counter. The story said the explosion took place because the men were using contact cement and one of them lit a cigarette. I am planning a project in which I will use this kind of cement. How dangerous is it?

A.—Regular contact cement is flammable and toxic, like so many other products used around the home. Used in a well-ventilated area where there is no open flame and according to the directions on the label, they can be used safely. However, there is a new type of contact cement on the market which does not have a toxic odor and which is nonflammable. If your hardware dealer or lumber yard does not have it in stock, he should be able to get it for you.

Q.—Can a leaky water pipe be repaired with a piece of garden hose, as I have heard?

A.—Yes, but it is intended only as a temporary repair. Slit a section of a hose and place it over the leaky area, using a C clamp to keep it secure. Even better, buy a special clamp for just such a purpose. The clamp comes with a piece of rubber. After the rubber has been placed over the leak, the clamp is put in place and tightened with screws. While this makes a much better repair than one with a piece of garden hose and C clamp, it also is temporary. In either case, turn off the water before patching the leak.

Q.—I'm putting some insulation in our attic soon. I'm using the batt type of insulation. I've read that the vapor barrier on the insulation should be facing the inside of the room. Can you tell me something about this?

A.—The vapor barrier consists of a waterproofing material which forms a kind of skin over the insulation itself. It is placed there to prevent moisture from entering the insulation and condensing there, which would destroy its effectiveness. It is installed toward the interior of the house because it is from there that the warm, moist air emanates and condenses on the cooler insulation. The same process takes place in many heated houses during the winter when warm, moist air settles on a cool window pane and condenses. When installing the insulation blankets, be sure the vapor barrier is continuous, since condensation can form on even a tiny area which is unprotected.

Massive Grand Piano Traveled

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — If you've ever worried about moving a piano, consider the travel history of a massive, hand-carved grand that was contributed by Bertha Lindel to Goodwill.

It first was shipped from Boston to Iowa City, Iowa, where Miss Lindel's mother resided. That was in 1887, and over the next half-decade it followed the music-loving Lindels on their gradual move westward. In a whistle-stop prairie town in South Dakota it was an object of fascination to the Indian population, among them Chief Rain-in-the-Face.

It eventually was brought to California by Miss Lindel, who gave it to Goodwill because of lack of space.

Retirement.

The end of work, or the beginning of worry?

Most people look toward retirement as a time of relaxation and enjoyment. And it can be if you prepare for it. But if you don't, it can be a time of worry and discontentment. A time when you can look back and think of a million ways that you could have saved, but didn't.

Well, there's no better time to think about retirement than now, while you're working.

One easy way to save on a regular basis is by purchasing U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Now, there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

They'll help make your retirement just what you want it to be.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All the motorists who are perfectly happy with the present automobile insurance system could probably fit into the back seat of a Volkswagen. Many of the others have been writing angry letters to Congress.

Their complaints center on climbing premiums, allegedly arbitrary cancellation of policies, fear of cancellation if they file claims, and asserted underpayment of claims.

They also are unhappy about long waits for trial in court cases — 16 months for the average case, 5 years in some instances — and about juries that award astronomical damages to some accident victims — and nothing to others.

Judges are unhappy, too, because accident insurance suits are taking up to 17 per cent of courts' time. Even major segments of the insurance industry have soured on a system which engendered so much ill will and drained the business of profitability.

Congress is about to respond. The betting is that Congress will pass a law next year establishing an entirely new auto insurance system to compensate the 50,000 lives lost and the many others injured each year in auto accidents.

Congress likes nothing better than to pass laws with high Consumer Voter appeal — especially in an election year, especially when no new massive expenditure of federal funds is involved and especially when it is answering the demands of an articulate and aroused middle class. Insurance firms favoring the move are creating a receptive climate for the change with full-page advertisements and television commercials.

The new system is called "no-fault" insurance because fault no longer would be a factor in determining whether an accident victim or his family would receive compensation for his life, injuries or lost wages from the insurance company which covered the vehicle he was driving or riding in or which struck him.

Under today's system, there must be a determination in every accident as to which driver was negligent. That frequently means that an injured person who was also negligent gets nothing. All too frequently, it means bargaining between two insurance companies or a legal tangle with the costs of going to court eating away at the sum that was to have paid for the victims losses.

The system covering property damage resulting when two or more vehicles collide would be left just about untouched by the no-fault system. Those disputes are easier to settle and generally far less costly.

But it is less easy to place a dollar value on life or limb. Harder yet is it to evaluate intangible losses — heartache, pain and suffering, the cost of a lifelong limp, the inconvenience of having been an accident victim.

It is on this point — how to compensate what lawyers call "pain and suffering" or "loss of enjoyment of life" claims — that opponents of no-fault focus. They contend that a person who has suffered has an unchallengeable right to go to court to seek damages from the negligent driver — or from his insurer.

This view is advanced primarily by the legal profession. These attorneys frame their argument in terms of principle, but their livelihood also is involved. Trial lawyers collect over $1 billion a year in fighting such suits — one fifth of lawyers, total income.

After 10 days of intensive hearings this year by the Senate Commerce Committee, a compromise took shape intended to answer that argument. Essentially, it would permit drivers voluntarily to buy additional insurance covering the "pain and suffering" of an accident. All drivers would be required to carry insurance covering the more tangible medical bills resulting from a crash.

The next step comes in January when the committee is to meet to draft a final version of its bill. The chief sponsor, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., believes that version will be passed over the objections of the trail lawyers.

The administration favors no-fault, too, but argues that states should have the opportunity to adopt it before the federal government moves into an area heretofore left to the state. Massachusetts and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico have put no-fault into effect — with generally good results — and several other states are moving toward it.

The compromise likely to emerge from January's deliberations would establish a federal system to go into effect in three to five years unless states in the meantime have adopted systems at least comparable.

As for the lawyers, argument over "pain and suffering," proponents of no-fault say it is a good principle but that it produces unsatisfactory results in practice.

In practice, they say, well-to-do people, able to make a good appearance in court and hire a lawyer whose compensation often is a percentage of what he can convince a jury to award get over-compensated while the poor get less — or, in 45 per cent of the cases, nothing.

They base this contention on a massive Transportation Department study of the insurance system. It found that college-educated accident victims collect an average of 63 per cent of their net economic loss resulting from accidents while people with an eighth grade education collect 23 per cent of their real loss — even though their loss is usually much lower.

This distortion of justice, they say, is evidence that the poor, while collecting less, pay more for their insurance. Rates are higher in urban neighborhoods, where the poor tend to live, than in the suburbs.

The study also showed that auto accident victims suffer more than $5 billion a year in economic losses but recover less than half of that from insurance. More than half of what they do recover comes not from auto insurance but from life insurance or health insurance or Social Security.

In all, of the $14 billion a year paid for auto insurance, only $7 billion returns to policyholders — two-thirds of it for the repair of cars and one-third to compensate victims.

Consequently, the proponents say, when no-fault is adopted, auto insurance rates are bound to decline, or at least halt their steady climb. Massachusetts drivers have realized substantial savings in the one year their state has had the new system.

The idea is to keep disputes out of court, but the legislation recognizes that some court cases would be inevitable: What of the stock market speculator who claims the accident which struck him down while on his way to his broker prevented him from making a killing on the market?

To keep such disputes to a minimum, the draft legislation would provide that issues which can't be resolved by negotiation would go to court. The insurance company would pay the policyholder's attorney's fees even if it wins the case, unless the court found that his case was "fraudulent, frivolous or excessive." Insurance firms are sure to oppose that provision.

The legislation also would provide for assigned claims plans in each state to cover damages caused by illegal uninsured vehicles or to pay damages covered by a policy issued by a company which has gone bankrupt.

One more argument is advanced by those who oppose no-fault. They say the system would lead to more accidents, more injuries, more deaths. Relieved of the fear that he will be punished by the cancellation of his policy for negligence, the argument goes, the driver will drive less safely.

"Only the guilty will get their money's worth under no-fault insurance," says Richard Markus, president of the American Trial Lawyers Association.

"With no-fault insurance, you pay more and get less," he says. "The drunk, the drag racer and the speeder are treated with new honor and distinction while taking their payments from the rights of the innocent."

Sen. Hart disputes that view. "Surely," he says, "most of us would agree that the threats of loss of insurance or increased rates are far down the list of what induces us to drive carefully. Much ahead on that list would be such things as fear of imprisonment, physical injury to ourselves and our passengers, damage to our cars and sometimes a thing so simply as inconvenience."

Let the police and the courts punish the unsafe driver, he argues, and let the insurance companies concern themselves solely with compensating the victims — faultless and negligent alike — of accidents.

When a man catches pneumonia, Hart says, his health insurance company doesn't refuse to pay his hospital bills if it finds he was negligent in failing to carry an umbrella in the rain.

How The Plan Would Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Subject to revision, here is how the no-fault auto insurance plan now pending in Congress would work:

1. Every single owner would be required to buy a basic policy covering his own losses, losses of any other driver or passenger in his vehicle and losses suffered by any pedestrian injured by his vehicle.

2. Every insurance company would be required to insure any licensed driver who applies. Policies could not be cancelled except for failure to pay the premium or revocation of the policyholder's driving license.

3. The basic policy would pay the medical and rehabilitation costs of those covered — the driver, his family, his passengers and his victims other than the occupants of another car. Those occupants would receive payments from the other driver's insurance.

4. In addition, all lost wages up to $1,000 a month would be paid until the injured person could resume work. People who earn more than $1,000 a month could buy optional "income replacement" insurance.

5. Services the victim would have performed if he hadn't been injured would be paid for. A housewife prevented from doing housework by a back injury would receive enough to hire a maid until she recovered.

6. The basic policy would also cover property damage to anything but another vehicle in use — for example, a picket fence or a parked car struck by the policyholder's car. If two vehicles collide, their owners would have to look to their own collision insurance for compensation. Such insurance would not be mandatory.

7. The policy would pay for all losses — including the intangible "pain and suffering" — suffered by an occupant of the policyholder's vehicle or a pedestrian struck by it if the victim was not already covered — that is, was not the owner of a vehicle or members of his family.

8. Finally, insurance companies would have to offer collision insurance, plus insurance to cover "pain and suffering" losses. The amounts awarded for "pain and suffering" would be determined by existing state law. This coverage would be optional. This provision is intended to satisfy the lawyers, claim that every victim should have the right to recover damages for "pain and suffering."

To avoid costly duplication of coverage, the insurance buyer would have the right to decide whether he wants his medical coverage provided by his auto insurance or by his health insurance. If he chose health insurance, his auto insurance would cost less and he would have to look to his health insurance policy to cover medical expenses resulting from an accident. But he would no longer pay twice — and would no longer be able to collect twice — for a single injury.

Lecturer To Speak Here

"Why Put Up With Fear?" will be the program to be given by Gordon F. Campbell, C.S.B., a Christian Science lecturer, on Thursday.

The program will be held at the Masonic Temple beginning at 8 p.m. He is being sponsored by the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Greenville.

Campbell is a recognized teacher and practitioner of Christian Science from Santa Monica, Calif. He is currently on tour as a member of the Board of Lectureship of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

A graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles, Campbell has a business and musical background. Since 1953, he has devoted his full time to the public practice of the Christian Science healing ministry. He became an authorized teacher of Christian Science in 1958.

He has served as a Christian Science lecturer since 1961 except for a three-year period while he was First Reader of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

Copper Basin Being Restored

COPPERHILL, Tenn. (UPI) —The 50-square mile copper basin in southeastern Tennessee is turning green again.

For more than 30 years Cities Service Company's Copperhill Operations has been active in restoring 22,000 acres of lands that were denuded of vegetation as a result of copper mining operations during the 19th Century.

Since the mid-1930s more than 7 million pine tree seedlings and countless number of seedlings or root starts for an "ivy-type" ground cover have been planted. A new 10-year program of planting 500,000 seedlings a year was begun in 1970 and by 1980 it is hoped that all but the badly eroded land should be restored.

Seals And Crofts On The Bill

Kris Kristofferson Is Coming Dec. 3

MINGES AUDITORIUM . . . will be the place, and the date is Friday, December 3, at 8:15 for a concert featuring Seals and Crofts (at left) and former Army Captain Kris Kristofferson, right.

A young man who's been around quite a bit — five years in the Army, winding up with Captain's bars and trained as a helicopter pilot; a man who since childhood never stopped writing songs even though it meant tough days of sweeping floors and cleaning a music studio — this is Kris Kristofferson, who comes to East Carolina University campus on Friday, December 3 at 8:15 p.m.

Kristofferson is one half of a bill to be in Minges Coliseum for this pre-Christmas holiday concert. Well known for songs such as "Me and Bobby McGee," "Help Me Make It Through The Night" and a batch of 12 songs in Dennis Hopper's film, "The Last Movie," Kristofferson's story is one of eventual success by steadfastly following his early love.

A native of Brownsville, Texas, his family moved to California where his favorite type of music, country music, was not at that time popular. "I was buying Hank Williams records and I was really considered a square," the singer-composer recalls.

Later, Kris studied literature in Oxford University on a Rhodes Scholarship and while there was discovered by a British promoter who attempted to mold him into what Time Magazine called a "teenagers' guitar-thwonking singing idol."

But the boy from the country realized he was not cut out for rock and roll, so after receiving his degree and an extension of the Rhodes Scholarship, he decided he "didn't want to become a perpetual student." Instead, he got married and went into the Army for five years. Stationed in Germany, he started writing and playing country songs again, performing in NCO clubs. His request to be sent to Viet Nam was turned down. Instead he was sent to West Point to teach English literature. The first song he wrote after completing his military tour was "Vietnam Blues."

The years following this hit were lean ones — years in which he swept floors and flew helicopters to offshore oil rigs to make ends meet. Now he's back on his feet, doing what he has always wanted to do, write and sing songs — country style.

The second half of Friday's bill is the appearance of a rock twosome — Seals and Crofts (Jim Seals and Dash Crofts). Like Kristofferson, they got their start in Texas. Seals is from Sidney and Crofts from the neighboring town of Cisco. Seals plays guitar, fiddle and saxophone. Crofts specializes in the mandolin. Both are equally at home with several other instruments.

In the years since they began playing together in Texas 14 years ago, the two have gradually built up a record of successes, from early performances in out of the way New Mexico mountain saloons or with communes in northern Nevada, years in which they fashioned their own basic simple approach in the changing world of Rock and Roll sounds.

After several years of providing backing for singers like Laverne Baker and playing thousands of one night stands across the country, the two decided in 1967 to break away and go on their own. With their album "Seals and Crofts" the pair established their reputation in songs for which they wrote both music and lyrics.

Public tickets for the two-fold entertainment are now available at $2.00 per person, and may be purchased at the Central Ticket Office on campus or at the Record Bar downtown.

Pin-Up Stella Stevens Eyes Candidacy In 1976

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Stella Stevens for president?

Sounds absurd, and the curvy blonde actress is the first to admit it.

But Miss Stevens—who once posed nude for Playboy, says "all sex is natural" and calls marijuana a gift from God—swears it's no publicity stunt. She's going to run as a third-party candidate in 1976.

Actor George Murphy made it to the U.S. Senate and actor Ronald Reagan is governor of California, but isn't it a put-on to envision a sex symbol in the White House?

No, says Stella. She thinks she has a chance of winning. "I wouldn't run if I didn't think so. It's no sillier than running for movie star, which I did 11 years ago. It's a new challenge in my life. If I work for it I think I'll win it."

She's never run for office. Why now?

"I'm an idealist, and I think our country has fallen apart. It has not become America the Beautiful....

"I've seen the tremendous pillage and rape of the land and our lives by money-crazy men. Everything's polluted. Our minds are polluted. By being told things are wrong. By being told lies."

After acting in perhaps two more movies, and directing one she's been writing for 2½ years, Stella said, "I'll have all my time to help mankind if possible. On the real stage of the world, where it can do some good, instead of on the silver screen."

She wouldn't seek the nomination of Republicans or Democrats—"I don't see much difference between them, the way they're behaving now."

Instead, she'll run as the candidate of the "One Party." "One is a symbol of unity, of one God, one Now, one Existence. There should be one peace on earth, and it should be soon.

"I believe God is inside every human being; there is that oneness."

She started the party with seven friends and now has "about 50 people who have volunteered support and some money."

Heart-shaped campaign buttons will read: "I'm One—Are You?"

Stella's trim curves alone could win her some male votes. Blue-eyed, with short-cropped hair, she was born 32 years ago in Yazoo City, Miss.

When she was 3, the family moved to Memphis, where she modeled in a department-store tearoom and did her first acting at Memphis State College. A touring movie publicist suggested she go to Hollywood.

She wrote her own screen test, from a scene in a Harold Robbins novel, "79 Park Avenue," and was signed by 20th Century-Fox.

Stella later had contracts with Paramount and Columbia. "The most fun" among her 23 movies were "The Nutty Professor," with Jerry Lewis; "The Silencers," "The Courtship of Eddie's Father," "The Rage" and "The Ballad of Cable Hogue."

In an interview, the self-styled presidential aspirant said, "I think it's time somebody got serious and did something about conditions in this country.

"Man is going to be doomed as a species if something is not done about the ecological problem. There's no air to breathe in our cities, no water to drink. Poison is pouring out of the taps in Los Angeles.

"We're living in a sewer."

On other subjects—

"I believe every law which goes against the laws of nature, which is God, should be abolished. Restrictions on private morality, sexual morality.

"God made sex. That's what keeps us going on. All sex is natural. There is no such thing as an unnatural sex act.

"It's absurd to be able to grow poppies in your yard but not cannabis. Marijuana, a plant of nature.

"God made the plant and put it there, made it produce that effect on man which is pleasurable. A lot of people have died from liquor, but nobody has died from grass that I know of."

Won't such claims kill her presidential chances?

"No, because I'm not a liar. If I lose by telling the truth, the country doesn't really want the truth."

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET REID

Witchcraft and Wizardry have always been intriguing subjects, but interest has increased tremendously in recent times. The books listed below offer a wide variety of reading into witchly phenomena.

For a resume of witchcraft, past and present, try THE BOOK OF WITCHCRAFT, by Lamont Brown. Among the most interesting portions of the book are illustrations of circles and secret signs and descriptions of a witches flora chart.

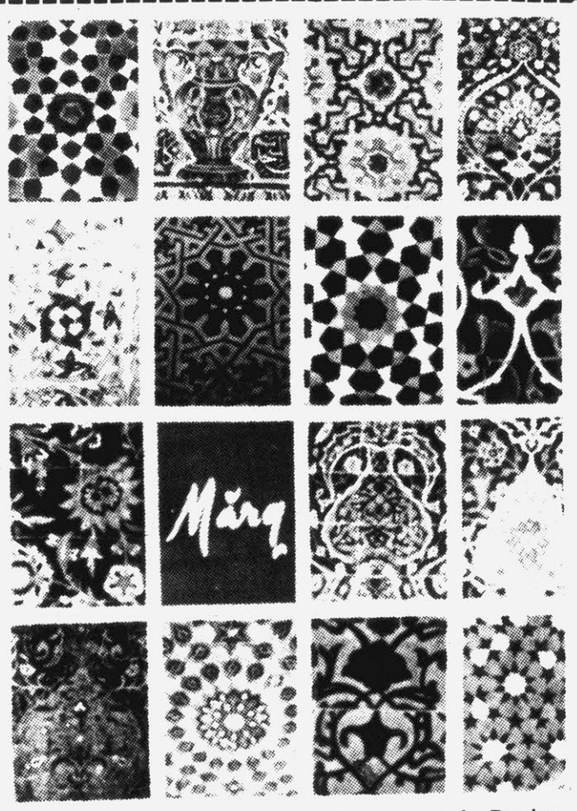
Similar in content but more detailed, is THE DARK WORLD OF WITCHES by Eric Maples. Mr. Maples has written his account in a way that brings our the humor as well as the horror of the subject. This book gives the fullest treatment of the historic persecution of witches.

Sybil Leek is probably the best-known modern witch, and it is only fitting that she should write a witchcraft primer. Titled THE COMPLETE ART OF WITCHCRAFT, this book is a provocative exposition of witchcraft — especially white witchcraft (Miss Leek's religion). The author gives the inside story on what goes on among those who live, practice and believe in this magic unknown to most of us. The mysterious, compelling sense that man can change his life, affect others beneficially, practice magic, and even survive death underlies the entire book.

Another practicing witch, Sarah Lyddon Morrison, has written a "how-to" book on enchantments, called THE MODERN WITCH'S SPELLBOOK. Where Miss Leek stresses religious "faith" in witchcraft, Mrs. Morrison emphasizes the strength of emotion. Her book contains a remarkable collection of spells, charms, amulets, talismans, and divination techniques for every occassion. It even includes a section telling where one can write to obtain such ingredients as henbane and bottled bat's blood.

A cat frequently figures in witchcraft as a witch's familiar, but a worse fate than that awaited SPEIGEL THE CAT. In this delightful cat yarn, based on a Swiss tale by Gottfried Keller, author David Martin has created a lovable rogue of a cat who bargains his nine lives with the municipal sorcerer, only to be saved by a most memorable witch.

Reviews



MARG, A Magazine of the Arts, published quarterly. Bombay, India, Army and Navy Building, Mahatma Gandhi Road, Fort, Bombay 1. Annual subscription $10.50, including postage. Mulk Raj Anand, Editor.

Like its sister publications in America and Europe, MARG, A Magazine of the Arts is feeling the pinch of production prices, with the result that it is a moderately expensive production.

After noting this, it must be said that the meticulous care, the richness of varieties of paper on which MARG is printed -- ranging from thin colored tissue to heavy art paper with a plate tipped in, the abundance of fine color and black and white photographs, and excellent line drawings and maps...all make MARG a joy to look at.

In the issue under review, the entire textual portion of the magazine is devoted to the Islamic architecture of Afghanistan.

The beginning of Afghan architecture is outlined by Dr. Klaus Fischer, with articles on "The Remains of Afghan Seistan," and "Notes on the evolution of Islamic Architecture in Turan, Iran and India." The latter article is a delightful example of reportage on known exploration work and study, bringing together information on the timeless fascination of ruins; the accumulated findings of archaelogists' notes; sketches; maps; and a profuse number of photographs which reveal the character of the land as well as the present status of ruins and some choice architectural examples still in a fine state of preservation.

Dr. Mulk Raj Anand, MARG's editor, has contributed extensively to the survey, with three major articles. The first, on "Space, Time and Diety" treats the background of Islamic architecture, placing the spread of the Islam religion into Afghanistan beginning in the 7th century A.D. Dr. Anand shows how climate building materials available and social conditions of the time each had shared in the variations of architectural details that arose from basic architectureal plans and techniques that were prevalent in Iran, Arabia, Egypt, Syria and Turkey.

In perhaps the most informative of all the articles from the viewpoint of the artist, "Colour, Form and Design in Islamic Architecture," Dr. Anand writes on the development of the mosque, the center of worship for the Islamic religion. The component architectural parts — the mihrab, the dome, arches, pendentives, walls, the minaret, pillars and columns– are each described in the context of their role as an integral part of the architecture of a mosque, with variations and changes that evolved as the revolutionary architecture swept eastward, generating excitement and offering a challenge to native artisans confronted with the task of erecting monumental structure that even today remain among the great beauties of man-made structures.

And Islamic architecture in Afghanistan counts among its crowning glories the exceeding richness, complexity and sophistication of brilliant tile-work. The countless mosaics of tile required to decorate the new shrines of worship throughout this remote area of the world is an achievement that resulted in thousands of skilled artisans giving vent to an outpouring of talent in creating some of the most exquisite works of art known to man.

The issue under review (Volume XXIV, Number 1) of MARG falls in the category of a magazine that is worth saving and treasuring. In the pages of this issue, architecture, art, history, archeology, and the people and land of this central Asiatic kingdom all come vitally alive.

Acquisitions And The Art Store

"CHRIST CARRIED TO THE TOMB" . . . a Rembrandt etching, is one of two major new acquisitions recently announced by the North Carolina Museum of Art. (NCMA photo).

Acquisitions

Two recent acquisitions, a portrait of the late Dr. W. R. Valentiner, first director of North Carolina Museum of Art, and a Rembrandt etching, have been announced by museum officials.

The Valentiner portrait, by Enrique Montenegro, was painted while Valentiner was director of NCMA and at the time Montenegro was a member of the faculty at N.C. State University.

Valentiner, who came out of retirement to become the NCMA director in 1955, was previously director of the Los Angeles County Museum, the Detroit Institute of Arts and the J. Paul Getty Museum in Santa Monica, California.

The Valentiner protrait is a gift from Mrs. Arthur W. Levy, Jr. of Raleigh, who had loaned it to the museum earlier.

"Christ Carried to the Tomb," a powerful etching by Rembrandt of sorrowing friends carrying the body of Christ to the tomb following the crucifixion, was presented to the museum by F. C. Sommer of Bernau, West Germany, in memory of his father, Dr. Clemens Sommer. The late Dr. Sommers was a member of the museum board at the time of his death in an automobile accident in 1962, and was a member of the faculty of the Art Department of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The late Dr. Sommer, a native of Germany, had published valuable findings on 15th and 16th century sculpture before coming to the U.S. in 1938.

The Art Store

Books on art, even fun books, are part of the increasingly large offering of a public service non-profit store operated at the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Giving details on some of the latest items available to the public, Beverly Wolter, the museum's publicity director, noted that "The Bluffer's Guide to Art", a paperback and part of a series on "bluffer's guides" is now available.

"From these guides," Miss Wolter observes "one can learn to overwhelm a listener by discussing an artist in terms like . . . 'whereas I think it's safe to say his primary irrelevance to personally fundamental dynamism . . . '. and firmly establish his authority unless, of course, the listener has read the book too."

This series, a spoof on the exaggerated language of some art critics, should be fun and should also help to deflate the more pompous practicioners of a certain inflated style of art journalism.

But books, Miss Wolter notes, are but one line of several. Other favorites with the public include reproductions of works of art and replicas of old jewelry.

As an integral part of the museum's service, the book store also sells post cards, the monthly 'Calendar of Art Events, the quarterly Bulletin, and exhibition catalogs.

Another function of the store is to support to a degree the work of craftsmen through presenting small items of jewelry and pottery — such as ash trays or miniature vases.

The range in variety available are indicated by the inclusion of objects such as the kalimba, a small, metal African musical instrument; origami, the Japanese paper-folding art; Advent calendars with little windows to be opened each day in Advent; and children's coloring books.

Under the management of Mrs. Fran (Richard) Myers, a native of New England, the services of the non-profit museum store has greatly expanded, as efforts have been made to give museum visitors an opportunity to acquire books on art and small reproductions and replicas of items that particularly appeal to them, but for which the average person could not afford an original. The store's manager will also gladly take special orders for books and other items that may be available from other sources but not in stock at the North Carolina Museum of Art store.

Two ECU Poets Among 32 Tar Heels To Participate In State Poetry Readings

Two poets from East Carolina University are among the 32 North Carolina poets slated to be taking part in the comprehensive North Carolina Arts Council Poetry Reading for 1972.

Vernon Ward, poet-in residence, and Mrs. Julia Fields, with the ECU English Department, have been named to the list of poets to participate in the state-wide round of poetry readings.

More than half of the poets are teachers or connected in some capacity with colleges and university English programs.

North Carolina State University in Raleigh has four poets involved in the program — Gerald Barrax, Dr. Guy Own, Gary Reath and Thomas Walters.

Other colleges or universities being represented are: Pemboke State University — Dr. Norman MacLeod and Richard Vela; University of North Carolina at Greensboro — Fred Chappell and Dr. Robert Watson; University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, William Harman and Mrs. Carolyn Kizer; Duke University — Dr. James Applewhite; St. Andrews Presbyterian College — Ronald Bayes; Queen's College — Paul Baker Newman; Appalachian State University — John Foster West; and Christ School, George W. Wood.

Poets affiliated with literary publications are on the list — Randall Ackley of Quetzal at Pembroke; Sam Ragan of The Pilot, a Southern Pines newspaper, and Mrs. Charleen Whisnant, of Charlotte's Red Clay Books, Inc. Gary Reath of N.C. State University is also editor of The Whole Thing.

Other poets listed for the 1972 program are: Betty Adcock, Raleigh; Pat Cooper, Wilson; Charles E. Eaton, Chapel Hill; Ardis Kimsey, Raleigh; Mrs. Jean McCamy, Wake Forest; Heather Miller, Elizabethtown; T. J. Reddy, Charlotte; Mrs. Campbell Reeves, Raleigh; Jean Rodenbaugh, Madison; H. A. Sieber, Greensboro; Thad G. Stem, Jr., Oxford; and Mrs. Julie Suk, Charlotte.

This is the third consecutive year the N.C. Arts Council has sponsored grants making the statewide poetry reading program possible. Charles W. Springman, Program Associate, notes "poetry readings are one of the Council's most enthusiastically received programs."

An announcement of places of reading and dates various poets are scheduled to appear will be made in the future.

The Arts Council provides money for travel to and from the place of reading, with the university or other institution responsible for providing hall retals, program cooredination and other necessary expenses.

Three For EEii's Reception Today

BELHAVEN — An assemblage of artists and craftsmen will be the order of the day at EEii's Little Koreners of the World, with a reception from one to six this afternoon.

Potter Irene Glover, painter Emily Huntley and writer Mary Jarrell, the three to be honored at the reception, will be on hand to meet and talk to the public.

Mrs. Jarrell, widow of the late poet Randall Jarrell, will autograph copies of "Jerome: Biography of a Poem," for which she wrote the introduction. Copies of "The Bat Poet," "The Gingerbread Rabbitt," and "The Animal Kingdom," all by the late poet will also be shown. Mrs. Jarrell's daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Boyette, are residents of Belhaven.

Painter Emily Huntley, art teacher from Guilford College, will have an exhibition of her paintings going on view today. A Rhode Island native, the artist has chosen North Carolina as her home state. She has exhibited her multimedia work, throughout the east as well as in European countries.

Beaufort County native Irene Glover has returned to her native baliwick after receiving the MFA degree from East Carolina University and six years away teaching. In addition to examples of works from the potters wheel and items fashioned by the hand-built method, Miss Glover will also show some drawings.

Other craftsmen and artists are expected to be on hand in EEii's garden, around the fountain and in the studios, giving demonstrations of the potters wheel, the forge, the backstrap loom, and in making macrame.

The public is invited to attend the opening of exhibitions which will be up through the month of December.

YOUR BODY CAN'T START OVER

There is an old saying that from the moment you are born you start dying and while this may be somewhat extreme, it is essentially a truthful statement of fact. But, it is also true that when you take care of your health you can slow up even though you can't stop the process.

Taking care of our bodies can be done in many ways. A good diet, a proper amount of exercise, regular habits, the right amount of rest and sleep, and most important, a family physician who you regularly consult for a check-up to see how you are doing. When you do, you put the odds on your side for a longer healthier life.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

Between Us

Somebody Has Task Of Uplifting A Child's Spirits

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

MILLIE 9, WENT with her mother to the hospital to visit a sick aunt. She was not allowed to see her aunt, and had to sit in the waiting room for a long while. She was upset and angry. When Mother returned, Millie jumped up, complaining loudly, "Why did you take me to the hospital? Why did it take you so long? You knew I was here all by myself."

Mother intentionally did not respond to these questions. She avoided long and obvious answers. "I took you to the hospital because I thought you wanted to see your aunt. I did not know they don't allow children to enter the rooms. If I knew, I would not have taken you. Why are you angry with me? I don't make the rules. These are hospital regulations" etc. etc.

Instead of defensive explanations, Mother offered sympathetic appreciation. She said: "I very much appreciate your waiting for me. I know how unpleasant it was to sit alone in the waiting room. Thank you, honey."

Millie's mood changed instantly. "How is Aunt Dora," she inquired.

Mother was helpful because she recognized her daughter's feelings and acknowledged her plight. She did not lecture or teach lessons. She was succinct and sympathetic.

Mother: You look pretty angry.
Tina: You bet I am angry. I have never complained about this teacher. She is old so I overlook things. But she is getting insensitive. During my whole lesson, she talked about my friend's playing. She said, "When Myra plays, I feel the presence of the composer in the room." I practiced so hard this week. I didn't move her at all even though I put so much feeling in my playing. This teacher not only ruined my lesson, she spoiled my day.
Mother: It must have been very discouraging.
Tina: Yes. I felt like saying if the composer were really in the room, he would be decomposing not composing.

Mother chuckled at Tina's words. Now, impressed with her quip, Tina laughed through her tears. She sat down at the piano and played a Chopin prelude.
Tina: How was it, Mom?
Mother: I could see the composer in the room. More than that, he was applauding.

Tina drew a deep sign of relief, ran over and gave mother a hug.

Mother dealt with her daughter's complaints most helpfully. She listened without interrupting. She mirrored feelings accurately. She did not belittle the situation of the emotions. She did not defend the teacher. Anger is often defused by listening with attention and responding with acute empathy.

MOTHER ENTERED the kitchen just as Mimi, 12 was about to pour frosting on a hot chocolate cake.
Mother: That's a dumb thing to do! Nobody pours frosting on a hot cake!
Mimi: You didn't have to say that.
Mother: It's not the first time you've done it! How many cakes do you have to ruin before you learn? Let the cake cool before you frost it. Otherwise it turns into a soggy mess.

The cake turned out not bad, but the mood was wrecked. Mimi looked depressed all evening. Mother wanted to make it up to her daughter. The next day she got her chance.

Mimi was making chocolate pudding.
Mother: I'm glad you're making the pudding tonight. When I do it, it comes out full of lumps. In fact, I prefer a lot of things you make to mine: your pizza, your tuna fish salad. Say, how come my daughter is such a competent cook?
Mimi: It's because of you.
Mother: Me?
Mimi: I'd like to take the credit, but I can't. It has been easy for me to relax when you're in the kitchen. You take things out carefully, measure accurately, clean up your own spills, put everything back in place. What would I have to worry about with you in charge?

In this espisode Mother demonstrated an eternal truth: It is never too late to become more understanding more compassionate, more human in relation to our children

Freedom Swimmers Face Risk Of Man-Eaters And Bullets

By DAVID J. PAINE
Associated Press Writer

HONG KONG (AP) — The two youths, near exhaustion from many hours in the water, swam wearily towards the island which loomed above them out of the darkness.

Suddenly the water behind them swirled. A huge fish, a shark or barracuda, glided towards them out of the darkness.

The attacker struck again, ripping at his calf. A third time the vicious teeth snapped, clamping on the youth's foot and dragging him down. He twisted and writhed and the teeth released their grip.

The victim was Chan Sze-king, a 20-year-old freedom swimmer fleeing Communist China. He survived the attack and 30 hours waiting on rain-swept rocks for help, but lost his left leg.

Chan was one of a steady stream of young Chinese who risk their lives to escape from Communist China. Most of them are lured by the bright lights of Hong Kong—the hope of a good job in this industrial colony and material benefits they could not expect in China.

Almost all the escapees swim across Mirs Bay or Deep Bay, the two stretches of water several miles wide between Hong Kong and the mainland. They are the freedom swimmers. Only a handful try to cross the 22-mile-long land frontier, which is far riskier.

Most are in their late teens or early 20s. The swim across the bays is a dangerous and arduous one. Few older people attempt it. In late 1970, as the water became colder with approaching winter, several dozen bodies of would-be refugees were washed ashore in Hong Kong.

There also is the risk of being caught by Communist Chinese border guards.

In the first 10 months of 1971, about 3,300 refugees were apprehended by Hong Kong authorities as they entered the colony. This was almost double the number for the whole of the previous year. For every one caught, probably another four slipped in unnoticed. This would mean that about 16,500 Chinese fled from Red China to Hong Kong between January and October.

As in the case of Chan, the refugees almost invariably are allowed to remain in Hong Kong.

Chan was working on an agricultural commune about 20 miles from the Hong Kong border in China's Kwangtung Province, when he and a friend decided to try and flee to Hong Kong.

The slimly-built youth had been a high school student in Canton when he was sent to the commune two years earlier.

"I was not very happy doing agricultural work and we had barely enough to eat, so I decided to try and get to Hong Kong," he said. "I hoped that I could get a job here. The question of communism did not come into it. I am not politically-minded. I just wanted a better life."

Chan spoke in a soft voice, often hesitantly, as he related the story of his escape.

"It took us several days, possibly a week, to reach the sea," he said.

"Eventually we reached the water (Mirs Bay) and it was not very cold. The weather was warm at this time of the year.

"I don't quite remember how many hours we swam but it took most of the night. We had plastic bags which we blew up to support us. My friend and I are both good swimmers; we used to swim a lot in the rivers around the commune.

"It was just before dawn, when we were getting near a small island, that I was attacked by a big fish. I did not see the fish at all and I don't know what sort it was.

"My friend, who was not attacked, helped me to get to the island.

"The next morning, about 30 hours after the attack, my friend saw a Hong Kong marine police launch. They saw him waving and came to the island.

"We were taken in the launch to a place where an ambulance picked me up and took me to a hospital. My leg was so bad by this time that they had to amputate it that afternoon."

The future is uncertain for Chan and he is reluctant to discuss the past. But he showed no signs of regret over the flight which cost him his leg and said: "I can't look back now."

Cockroach Is A Hitch-Hiker

NEW YORK (UPI)—For the cockroach, the ideal temperature is 70 to 75 degrees, says Dr. Ralph E. Heal, executive secretary of the National Pest Control Association.

Heal says there are few homes to which the cockroach is a stranger. This hitch-hiking invader finds that even the cleanest people get careless occasionally and give him what he needs. And his habit of grabbing a ride on shopping bags or soda pop cartons assures him of easy access to a home. He says the experienced pest control operator is wise to all the hiding places of cockroaches and can get effective control.

Rural Improvements In Western N.C. Are Apparent

By ED SPEARS
Asheville Citizen Writer
Written for Associated Press

ASHVILLE (AP) — The signs of autumn are many in western North Carolina. The leaves have shed their October brightness for November browns. The apples have been picked and the tobacco is in the bard or has been taken to market.

And at the Asheville Agricultural Development Council office, the community development program scrapbooks and farm youth project record books are being examined by judges before the annual awarding of prizes.

This year shapes up as another good year for largely rural western North Carolina, where three primary economic props are tourism, industry and agriculture.

Agriculture has its problems in the mountains, as elsewhere in the nation, but has attained a healthy status in the last 21 years that bodes well for the future. One of the reasons things look brighter in the countryside is the "partnership for Progress" program that the agricultural development council helped shape.

Morris L. McGough, the AADC executive secretary, remembers how it was in the post World War II days. Farm cash receipts then were in the $38 million per year range, and per capita income averaged about $750—far under state average. Farm homes showed neglect and farmers entered an era of mechanization and new technology sensing that a way of life was changing.

Most rural roads still were unpaved. Telephone and electrical service bypassed many communities. Crops were poor and cattle were skinny. "We'd lost the art of working together," one Haywood farmer told a writer.

The Asheville business community sensed that something was amiss, and heard that Tupelo, Miss., had brought in a farm-management team to better manage its resources.

Lloyd Langdon and George Cecil volunteered to visit Tupelo and returned with enthusiastic reports of how higher cotton yields and more milk per cow meant better living on Mississippi farms—and better business in the trading areas.

A survey was made of western North Carolina.

Findings included the facts that eroded soil could be restored to fertility with fertilizer and proper use, that trees which cover 75 per cent of the land could produce more income, that the area imported much of its milk and poultry when these could be produced at home.

The report suggested, also, that new industry be encouraged to located in the region.

The Asheville Agricultural Development Council resulted. It was formally organized in 1950 with McGough in charge. It covers 18 mountain counties with approximately one-half million population—half of which lives in rural areas.

The average farm is less than 100 acres in size compared to more than 350 acres nationally, and the mountain farmer averages only 9.3 acres of tillable crop land.

What could the AADC do?

"Progress is not inevitable," McGough said." It requires individual and team effort in the spirit of Christ's doctrine of trying: 'Seek and ye shall find . . . Knock and it shall be opened unto you. . . .'

"The AACD program is based on the simple belief that all the promotion and education in the world will bring at best only limited results unless it stimulates desires—gets folks to want to do better. The question that must be answered by one of the leaders of any community is simple: are you satisfied? are you satisfied with the kind of community you have?

"The answer is either action or inaction. The Partnership for Progress program provides a vision of what can be done—with the agricultural agencies providing the technical know-how as the people have wanted to move forward...and have recaptured the art of working together," McGough said.

The council, with leaders drawn from all counties, works through such subgroups as the community development program and beef cattle, poultry, dairy, forestry, burley tobacco and horticulture crops commissions. Community organizations, competing to outdo those of neighboring locales, have been the keystone to amazing advances.

Asheville and Buncomb County provide the funds for the AADC's basic expenses. Business and industry provide prize and scholarship money to stimulate competition. Special emphasis is given roadside improvement and youth programs.

"The countryside has been made more attractive. Roadsides have been improved. Over 80 community centers have been erected. Hundreds of neglected cemetries have been reclaimed from neglect. Churches have been built. Rural libraries have been installed and fire departments created. Industrial plants have been brought in. Community problems have been solved," McGough said.

The enthusiasim of these projects stimulated the desire to improve income and live better. The area seized the opportunity to expand dairy production, and now exports surplus milk to six nearby states.

Poultry production was expanded. Many new crops—tomatoes, strawberries, cucumbers—were added in seeking high income on small land areas.

Current agricultural income in the 18 counties is about $100 million a year and another $20 million in products is grown for home consumption.

Unified efforts and governmental programs have improved roads, sent electricity and telephone lines to most all coves and hollows. AADC has helped play a part in locating a research farm, the University of North Carolina Agricultural Center near Asheville Airport and the diagnostic laboratory that soon will be built.

Industry and agricultural form a special partnership in the mountains, McGough said, as most rural residents are part-time farmers.

They work their 40-hour weeks in plants and supplement their income by raising for example, a half acre of tobacco, 20 head of beef cattle or a field of tomatoes.

Landowners tend to be more stable workers in industry, McGough said, and the increased family income benefits local trading centers as well.

The success of AADC launched the spread of similar area development associations. Now 12 of them cover all of North Carolina.

McGough believes agriculture will continue to be very important to the economy of western North Carolina, and for the AACD to remain a grass roots effort of people getting together and deciding what needs doing and then going to work to do something about it.

Will Direct Dimes Drive

"Birth defects are forever — unless you help." That is the message that Lee Moore will bring home to Pitt County in the weeks ahead as campaign director for the annual March of Dimes campaign. His appointment was announced last month by Mr. J. H. Rose, chapter chairman for the voluntary health organization.

Arnold Palmer, outstanding golf figure, again serves as honorary national chairman of the January drive.

"Birth defects are everyone's concern," says Moore "because they strike nearly a quarter of a million infants every year. Although science has taken manifold steps in recent years to control and even prevent lifelong damage to newborns, we still face a stiff fight against congenital handicaps."

Funds raised for the March of Dimes provide help for more than 100 medical service programs across the country, including the Birth Defects center in Chapel Hill. Throughout the year, the voluntary health organization supports research, care, education and community service projects. Notable volunteer efforts have been launched for rubella immunization drives with health departments and medical societies.

Moore is active in civic affairs and is employed at Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Greenville.

Present Papers At Conference

A team from the East Carolina University Department of Geography presented papers and led special study and discussion sessions at a meeting of the Southeastern Divsion of the Association of American Geographers this week.

The meeting was held in Lexington, Ky. The ECU team included Douglas C. Wilms, Mrs. Janet H. Bigbee, Dr. Charles F. Gritzner, Dr. Ennis Chestang, Dr. Richard Stephenson and Dr. Edward P. Leahy.

Drs. Stephenson and Leahy served as discussants and leaders of the special sessions.

Dr. Robert E. Cramer is professor and chiarman of the ECU Department of Geography.

Many Facets In Museum Cluster

SHELBURNE, Vt. (UPI) — The Shelburne Museum, Vermont's top single summer tourist attraction, often is called "a collection of collections." The museum is located on a 45-acre site near Lake Champlain and features a 220-foot sidewheeler, the S.S. Ticonderoga, plus 35 buildings, each with its own display theme, including a former lighthouse that serves as an art gallery.

Economic Indicators Show October Increase

By JERRY BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by a record number of housing permit applications, the Commerce Department's list of economic indicators showed a 1.2 per cent increase during October.

Asst. Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said the October increase and a 0.2 per cent increase in September were difficult to interpret "because of the sweeping change in government economic policy."

"The indicators are still on a decisive uptrend, however," he said, "and this is consistent with private forecasts of a vigorous expansion of the economy in 1972."

Three indicators—stock prices, industrial materials prices and contracts and orders for plant and equipment—declined.

But a 15-per-cent increase in housing permit applications, to a record annual rate of 2.2 million, and other increases offset the losses.

Elsewhere on the economic front:

—The Construction Industry Stabilization Committee, appointed by President Nixon to hold down wage increases in the construction industry, approved increases in 47 contracts, most of them far exceeding the 5.5 per cent guideline set by the Pay Board.

—The Postal Service announced it will raise third-class postage rates 23.9 per cent Monday unless the Price Commission rules against it. The commission does not meet again until Monday.

The Postal Service had planned to put the increase into effect Sept. 15, but was prevented from doing so by President Nixon's wage-price-rent freeze. The increase would affect the cost of mailing advertising circulars, catalogs and other printed matter.

—Price Commission Chairman Donald Rumsfeld said that 64 price-increase requests considered by the commission averaged 3.3 per cent, a figure he said does not "threaten the achievement of the goal of bringing the cost of living increase down to 2.5 per cent by the end of next year."

—The Atomic Energy Commission announced an 11.5 per cent increase in its prices for processing fuel for nuclear power plants. AEC Commissioner Wilfred Johnson estimated in February that such an increase would boost the cost of electric generation by atomic plants by about 2 per cent.

Soul City Concern Expressed

RALEIGH (AP) — An association of Roanoke River Basin communities have expressed concern over possible environmental effects of the proposed Soul City project in Warren County.

Directors of the Roanoke River Basin Association have asked federal officials for permission to appear in opposition to the project, which is seeking federal aid, when hearings are held.

The directors said in a resolution creation of a new city of 44,000 as planned would create serious sewage disposal and water pollution problems. It said the proposed use of Kerr and Gaston lakes for sewage disposal would spoil the lakes for residential and recreational uses.

Accidental Death Ruled

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Accidental death was ruled Friday in the fall of Thomas E. Cooper, 28, of Zebulon, N.C. who died Monday night when he fell from the 17th floor of the William Penn Hotel.

Cooper's brother, Raymond, 26, who was in the hotel room, told homicide detectives before the inquest that the two had been drinking and Thomas had threatened to jump.

Raymond said his brother accidently fell through the window after being talked out of jumping.

The two men were passing through Pittsburgh on their way to the West Coast when the accident occurred, said Coroner's solicitor Bernard J. McGowan, who made the accidental death ruling.

Fayetteville Trial Set

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A man whose drunken drivig case resulted in the removal from office of a Fayetteville magistrate will now have to stand trial for the offense.

Dr. John L. Hill, a resident surgeon at Duke Hospital, will face trial Jan. 25.

Magistrate Frank Armour who was relieved of his office following a three-day civil trial last month, had dismissed the charge against the doctor.

Give Her a New Look from the Fashion World

An unusual yet practical Christmas gift many do not think of is a wig.

No more of the "hide your hair" philosophy is necessary with these man-made wonders to be in fashion and comfort.

Two "head-liners" popular this season are: (left) the "Giselle" with longer Hayworth-like tresses that brush off or around the face and bounce off shoulders in cascades of curls to recapture the Forties' look typical in today's fashions; and (right) the "Marcel" which can be brushed into soft curls or ringlets around the head.

Both have natural hairlines and are made of "Elura" which takes to heat and closer control. A few hints on wig care: wash whenever necessary but use a wig-wash in cool water and rinse thoroughly.

Tease your wig if you like and brush it frequently. Don't brush from the top down but start brushing at the ends and gradually work your way up to the top.

'Private Eye' Solves Gift Problems

The biggest detective mystery of the year is approaching. Question: "What size is Dad—or Mom or Aunt Wilma?"

Novice private eyes are getting clues with Scotland Yard techniques.

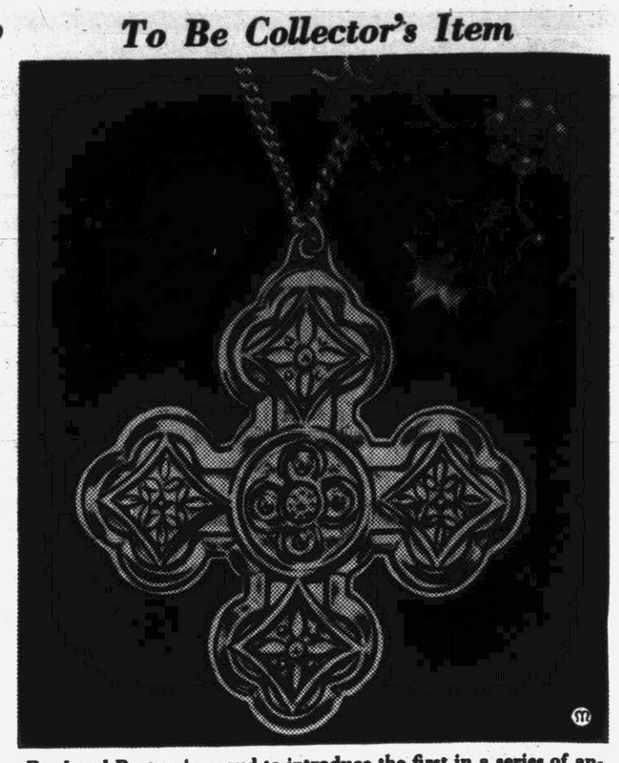
Everyone should be out of the house — everyone but the size snatching sleuth who scans closets and bureau drawers getting the clothing sizes of everyone in the family. Of course, there is no trace of breaking and entering. The culprit gets away clear.

When a size is needed for someone outside the immediate family, different tactics can be used. This time the snooping is by someone close to the person. Parents, spouses and roommates can be good sources of information.

Uncovering the color caper is a cinch. Eyeing the case may be called for. Colors the person wears most often may prove to be good leads.

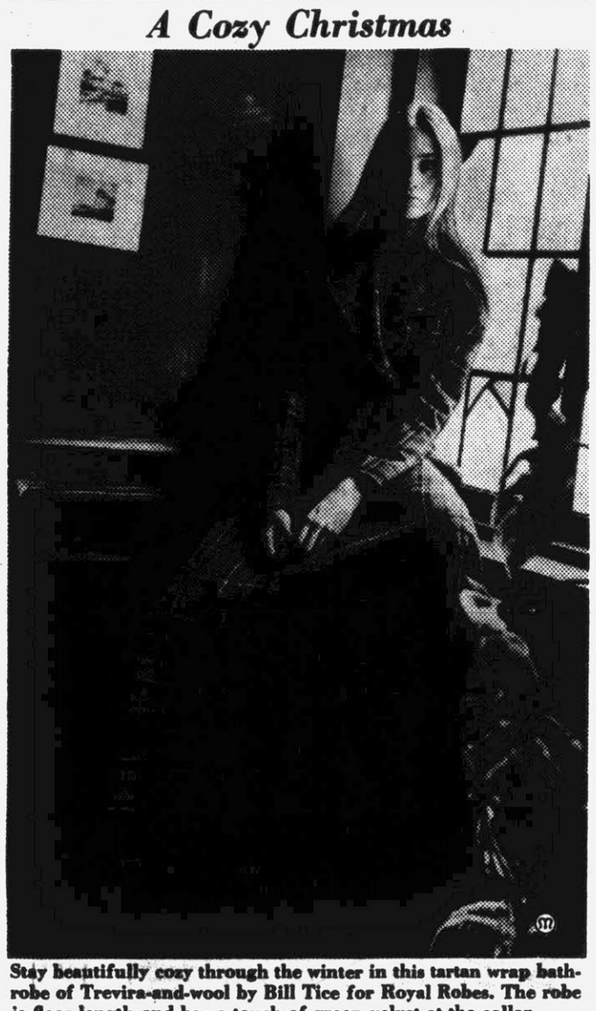
The case goes on. They don't want clothes? Don't fret. The same supersnooper can also ask questions like: "What do you want Santa to bring you?" Corny? Yes, but it sometimes works.

To Be Collector's Item



Reed and Barton is proud to introduce the first in a series of annual Christmas Crosses in richly detailed sterling silver. The 1971 Christmas Cross is an authentic reproduction of a 14th Century design by Gallicus, well known artisan from Prague, which was the cultural center of Europe at that time. This versatile original may be worn as a piece of jewelry, adorn a Christmas tree, or be hung in a window or on a door. It is three inches in diameter. At the conclusion of this year's Christmas season, the dies will be permanently retired, thus assuring the owner of a collector's item.

A Cozy Christmas



Stay beautifully cozy through the winter in this tartan wrap bathrobe of Trevira-and-wool by Bill Tice for Royal Robes. The robe is floor length and has a touch of green velvet at the collar.

Flattering New Leg Fashions Lure Gift Buyers to Hosiery Counters

"The easiest way for puzzled Santas to solve the gift problem for any female from 10 up is to visit the hosiery department," advises Betty Curry, Burlington fashion director.

"The lively leg is the center of fashion action and there's a record crop of flattering new leg fashions sure to delight even the lady who has almost everything."

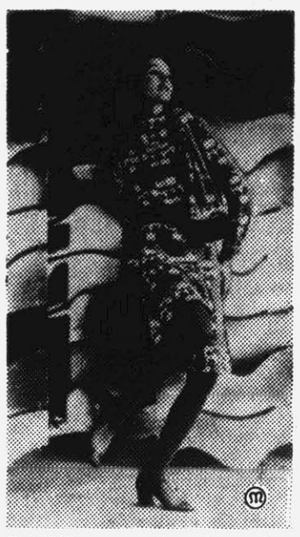
Stand-outs are fabulously flattering patterned panty hose—the Come-Ons by Burlington, including Crown Diamond, a delicately etched diamond pattern topped by crowns; Stained Glass, a lacy mosaic pattern and the Dandy with contrasting stripes—all sheer to the waist to insure a flattering view no matter how liberated legs may be.

Another flattering gift choice is Brief Top, with the tiniest bit of panty. All sheer and sandal foot panty hose are elegant gifts for party goers. And there's a new sheer support panty hose, achieving more support and sheerness simultaneously, that's a delight for ladies on their feet all day long.

SHIN SHAMS

A great new gift inspiration for Santas are Shin-Shams, a feather-light stretch leg fashion by Burlington's First Editions that looks like fine crinkled leather, has a stretch nylon foot that breathes and fits neatly into shoes, leaving shoe ornamentation to give the effect of a fabulously expensive custom boot.

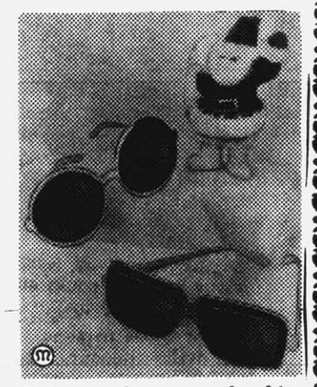
Shin-Shams come in a variety of styles and colors — all so lightweight and flexible, they tuck away in a handbag.



Brief Top panty hose in a rainbow range of colors, by Burlington, make the perfect gift for any female on the Christmas list, even the mythical lady who has "everything." This flattering style by Burlington is designed to insure an elegant view, no matter how liberated legs may be.

Note to Santas — A sure way to captivate all the belles on your Christmas list is to gift them with wardrobes of Shin-Shams by Burlington's First Editions, which transform every shoe into a custom boot instantly and are so light and flexible that they fold neatly away in a corner of a purse.

For her crowning glory — clasp barrettes in ovals, rectangles, swirls or circles; dramatic buckles. Available in four gift boxes of three each. In genuine gold finish, tortoise-tone, leather or wood textures. Goody's Fashion Accent Barrettes.



Christmas frame-ups for him and her — shades in oval and oblong styles with lenses surrounded by tortoise, ebony or white insets. Framing the entire sunglass is shiny aluminum. New Aluminaries "Studio Sunglass Collection," from Renauld.

Allow Time to Put Personal Touch on That Special Gift

And, getting personal can apply to practically everyone to be remembered at this holiday season.

Mom, Dad, grandparents and cousins by the dozens will appreciate the extra thoughtfulness involved.

As for the children in the family, monogrammed gifts include a bonus. Not only do children love something that is "theirs alone," but monograms and names make for easy identification of apparel and personal belongings.

The family pet? Of course. Kittens and puppies can be remembered with identification tags and sleeping baskets, even an extra can of food. A stocking hung at the fireside can have the animal's name imprinted on it, then filled with goodies especially selected for the pet involved.

The roster of gifts to be personalized is endless. Personal clothing or jewelry, luggage or stationery, handkerchiefs and household linens are among the many gift ideas.

Christmas Stocking Idea Lets Everyone Play Santa

Make this Christmas a "sock it to 'em" good time.

Yule time stockings and Christmas are practically synonymous. The tradition of filling stockings during this most festive time of year is really only three centuries younger than Christmas itself.

Over the 16 or so centuries which have passed since Saint Nicholas began the practice for all the good little boys and girls who lived in Asia Minor, filling stockings — hung by the chimney with care — has evolved into a world-wide Christmas Eve ritual.

In many families, each member, in addition to larger gifts that are piled under the tree, also selects a smaller "stocking gift" for the others. Sometimes, all the names are written on paper, individually folded and "secretly" drawn and each family member has a chance to play Santa for another member of the family.

One advantage of stocking filling is that small, inexpensive gifts can be exchanged. Many stores provide ready-filled versions for Santas who have extra-rushed gift lists.

Another advantage of the Christmas stocking is that everyone can get one. Mom, Dad, Sis, Junior and even the family pet can share in the fun. Many pet stores and departments have special stockings containing toys, treats and other "gifts."

WHAT A NOTION

The notions departments in stores will be offering a goldmine of ideas for easily made and very clever gifts.

Santa's Helper

Christmas shopping? Smart Santas can steam away difficult gift problems with a new appliance that whisks away wrinkles. Great for stay-at-homes and ideal for travelers too. The STEAM-ALL™ from Remington.

Post Position

Choice of Jewelry Offers Glamorous Gifting

Gold, Jewels Aglow with Christmas Lighting Make it a Brilliant Holiday

Make your first Christmas gift shopping stop the jewelry store, advises the Jewelry Industry Council, and it just might be the only stop you have to make.

Because there you'll find the gift that means so much, that shows care and concern in selection, that has undiminishing beauty and prestige. There you'll find an array of glamour and luxury for everyone on your gift list, at prices to fit your Santa's pocket.

The gift that's set in splendor is her Christmas diamond, and it makes for her memory of a Christmas set in splendor whether it's her first diamond or still another token of love. The jeweler is the connoisseur of diamonds as love gifts. From the fabulous and exotic to the simple and unaffected, he has diamonds that speak of love to every budget.

Jewelry Aglow

Karat gold jewelry, aglow with its own holiday lighting of rubies, sapphires, emeralds, diamonds and the beauty and appeal that has captivated women for centuries, is the most precious way to convey a special Christmas message. Sterling silver, a companion in preciousness, offers another unique gleam to adorn her Christmas scene.

Pearls to glisten against the backdrop of her little party blacks, to give her the classic, feminine beauty she wants this Christmas, pearls to let her know she's your queen of gems: another gifting great from the jewelry store.

And because she wants the very best for her man, she'll direct her booted feet to the jewelry store for the finest assortment of karat gold or sterling silver and stone set cuff links, tie tacs and slides, a diamond accented emblematic ring or daringly textured signet ring, leather accessories for his desk, monogrammed sterling for his bar equipment. She knows this is the Yule to make him a man of bold distinction.

Fashion Thrill

And to thrill many a Christmas miss on the list: fashion jewelry. The figurative pins, the Art Deco rhinestone reminiscences, the pendants, cuff bracelets, the high style rings, even the simulated stones, those fabulous fakes, can fill every fireplace-hung stocking with a wardrobe of jewelry wonders.

Christmas is a fine time for the gift of a fine timepiece, and that applies to everyone in the family. Dad could be lucky enough to find the prestigious, amazingly accurate quartz crystal watch under his tree; Mom's dream time could be diamond studded or electric; Junior is sure to want a sporty model, large and bristling with knobs that really do something; Sis may ask for a trendy fashion watch or a stylish, karat gold bracelet watch.

Toddler, Too

The younger names on the list will find their Christmas happiness comes from the jewelry store, too. A young man will beam with prideful pleasure at a sterling silver ID bracelet or gold filled pen and pencil set. The teenage miss will run to the first mirror to see how she looks in a new pair of larger pierced earrings or her favorite Victorian jewelry, all of gold filled.

The toddler may find a locket, a teeny sized ring from Santa, and even baby is included with shiny silver baby cup and flatware to take him through the "p's and q's" of table manners.

The home, especially warm and festive at holiday time, takes on special cheer that lasts throughout the new year as gifts of china, crystal, silver, pewter, clocks, party and patio ware, decorator items pop out of Santa's bag, sent from the jewelry store.

Tender thoughts . . . are reflected in this demure pendant of gold draped with tiny, tear-like fresh water pearls. So unusual, thinks the Jewelry Industry Council. A cage of gold drops from a single pearl to create the earrings that complete a cherished jeweled moment for Christmas Day. All Jewelry by — Leys, Christie & Co., Inc.

From the Christian Dior for Bulova Christmas Collection comes a trio of distinctive solid gold timepieces. Circling the top of the wrist is an interlaced bracelet set off by a diamond-studded chocolate dial. Brown is also used to face a brocatelle patterned band (center) . . . the third watch features a ribbed dial perfectly matched to the bracelet to give an all-in-one look. All the bracelets are sinuously flexible and tailored to be custom-fitted to the wrist.

Buckle up . . . her Christmas with a miniature array of buckles that pin to her holiday fashions, circle her wrist, clasp her ears and ring her finger. Textured and polished golden tones mix with distinction for gifting, says the Jewelry Industry Council. All Jewelry by — Trifari.

Remember, Gifts Can Say Thanks

At Christmas it is customary to gift people who have been of service throughout the year — the mailman, garbageman, milkman, newspaperboy, building superintendent, cleaning lady and delivery boy.

Cigarettes, cigars, tobaccos for the smokers could eliminate the "what to get" for some of these persons.

Cordials, liqueurs, cakes and candies are also season's specialties for thoughtful gifting.

Gloves and mufflers are appreciated gifts by the out-of-doors working man. And, thermos jugs and insulated food keepers can make the routes early in the morning a little more comfortable.

Star Light, Star Bright

Stars will be in her eyes — after receiving this lovely Linde Star earring and ring set from Santa. Small enough to put in her Christmas stocking yet precious enough to show your love, these marquise Linde Stars created by Union Carbide will make the Holiday Spirit shine year round.

Popularity of Home Sewing Opens Way to Gifts for Her

Home sewing is such a super vogue today among young women that you're certain to please that someone special on your Christmas list with a gift that will add joy to her new fashion creativity.

The woman who sews (80 per cent of those in the 17 to 30 age bracket are now doing their own thing) is motivated today by simpler patterns and exciting fabrics.

Because cutting is the all-important first step—whether it be a shoulder bag, belt or a short pantsuit — the home sewer today needs a basic wardrobe of sharp, high quality scissors and shears.

The fashion coordinator at J. Wiss & Sons Co. points out that just as the artist needs a different size brush for fine and broad strokes on canvas, so does the sewer require different types of cutting tools when it comes to finishing a hem, cutting a pattern, snipping threads, seam ripping, cutting miracle fabrics, creating appliques, embroidery, and constructing the sheerest lingerie.

No one pair of scissors or shears is able to do all these jobs well.

So start her off on her basic wardrobe of cutting tools with one of the famous Wiss sewing sets such as "Homemaker" which contains three of the items she will need the most: 7" dressmakers' shears with bent handles which permit the blade to rest flat on the table, making it easier to follow a pattern outline precisely; 5" sewing scissors and 4" embroidery scissors for light cutting tasks such as ripping, snipping and darning.

Packaged in an attractive travel case in five fashion colors and offering lasting protection as well as beauty, there's a wide choice of other sets containing pinking shears for making hems and decorative zig-zags on appliques; straight trimmers for cloth cutting and many other models.

Looking for a nifty stocking stuffer? Surprise her with those brand new Wiss extra sharp Knife Edge Shears designed especially for cutting today's miracle fabrics—double knits, acrylics, polyesters, bonded fabrics, velours as well as corduroy and leather.

And her cutting tool wardrobe will really be complete if you include a pair of the new Lingerie Shears with its serrated blade so the tricot will not slip when cut. Blades are long and narrow and have a special finger guide for greater cutting control.

Now you can see why in this new era of fashion self-expression a set of scissors and shears gets such a high rating during the big gift season.

An ideal starter set for her basic wardrobe of scissors and shears and for years of sewing pleasure doubles as a Christmas gift. Set contains 7" dressmakers' shears, 5" sewing scissors and 4" embroidery scissors. Finest quality, too. In attractive, simulated leather zipper case in Holiday Red, Nile Green, Como Blue, Tropic Yellow and Black. Homemaker Sewing Set, $23.95. By J. Wiss & Sons Co. At leading department stores.

CampingDad Now Joined By Family

Every year, more and more camping equipment is being placed under the family Christmas tree. And people aren't waiting until spring to use their gifts, because winter camping is growing tremendously as a family-style recreation.

A few years ago, cold-weather camping was usually reserved for men. It was "roughing it" in the purest sense. Now, women and children are joining in on the winter fun . . . and enjoying it fully.

According to Murray Crowder, noted outdoor writer and a member of Sears, Roebuck and Co. Sports Advisory Staff, "winter camping is now snowballing in popularity just as summer camping did 10 years ago."

The main reason, explained Crowder, is the advent of new, vastly improved tents, sleeping bags, and outdoor clothing. For instance, modern tents are lightweight, wind-proof and constructed of nylon or similar man-made fibers. In addition, attractive designs and bright colors appeal to the feminine tastes.

Today's sleeping bags are neither bulky nor heavy and provide great warmth. Modern bags, made of synthetic fibers, are non-allergenic and heat-retaining. In many cases, they are nearly equal to pure goose down and much less expensive.

"The new Catalytic heaters are also a big boon to winter camping," he added. "They're completely safe, portable and will keep any tent interior warm and comfortable."

But, according to Crowder, other factors are also contributing to the popularity of winter camping. Snowmobiling and skiing are luring campers outdoors during the winter. In fact, a growing number of franchise campgrounds are staying open through the snowy months for snowmobile campers. And their business is brisk.

"Above all else, winter camping provides uncrowded campgrounds, scenic beauty and a sense of freedom," Crowder added.

Alixandre accents the importance of capes for the Christmas Season with this shimmery version made of black-dyed Swakara® broadtail lamb from South West Africa. A sable encircled hood sets the tone of elegance on the slimly sculptured holiday wrap.

TODAY'S SANTA

Modern Santas are becoming quite conscious about today's fast changing fashion scene. This interest opens up a vast area for gift suggestions. Topping many lists are accessories. Belts, jewelry, and gloves are just a few gift ideas for today's new man.

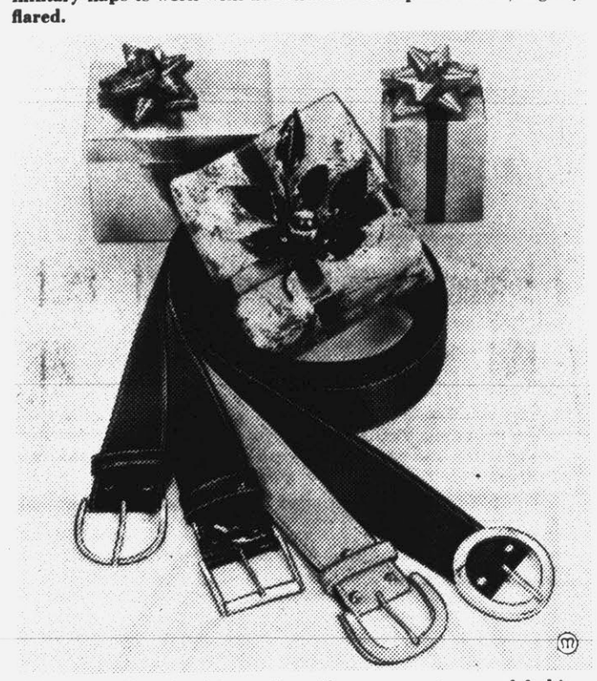
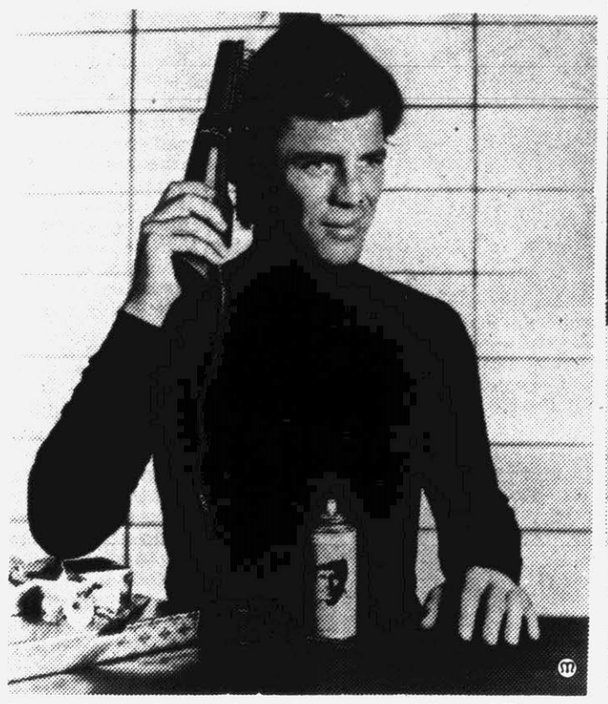
Going on a Christmas holiday? Take along knits, they're great for travel. They move with the wearer . . . resist wrinkles, and never lose their shape. This smart traveler is on the go in a blazer coat and slacks fashioned in a double knit of American Enka's Encron polyester. The blazer jacket, with its pleated, patch pockets and military flaps is worn with brown and white plaid slacks, slightly flared.



Gift wrap a belt for him or her. If you are not sure of fashion needs, you cannot go wrong with one of these classic buckle belts from Canterbury. Left to right: supple blue glove leather with contrasting white stitching and satin buckle; brown patent leather with satin/polished brass buckle; naural suede with heavy satin brass buckle; soft black Antiqua leather with chrome O-buckle. From Canterbury Belts.



Putting that last hair in place, this recipient of General Electric's Styling Comb wants to look dapper for his Christmas date. Packaged with Command® Dry and Natural Hair Control, the styling comb comes with a brush and two comb attachments — one for dry and one for wet combing. The contoured handle is comfortable to grip and makes it easy to use the comb with complete control and assurance. To give suggestions for today's many "in" looks, GE includes a booklet with some helpful tips on hair styling.

More Than 2,000,000 Couples Now Candidates for Silver Gifts

There couldn't be a better time for entertaining such an idea, because both marriages and silver wedding anniversaries are soaring to unprecedented highs in 1971.

Many of the 2.3 million marriages predicted this year will occur during the holidays — for December's the third favorite month for weddings.

And no matter what month the silver anniversary's celebrated, Christmastime is sure to see a silver deluge for anniversary celebrants.

With such excellent reasons for gift-giving, the only thing remaining is for Dad to choose the "perfect" gift for both mother and daughter. And the problem couldn't be easier to solve.

Consider, for instance, the girl who's getting married. Chances are that she picked a sterling silver pattern even before she picked her favorite boy friend.

In fact, according to a recent magazine survey of teenage girls, the average age at which they actually begin to collect their sterling is 14.

This enthusiastic response can mean only one thing — sterling silver flatware is something the bride-to-be very much wants. And place settings are what she needs, first and foremost.

The parents' gift of enough place settings to meet her entertaining needs forms the basis for those special company meals she'll serve the rest of her life.

Even if she receives additional gifts of place settings from relatives or friends, the parents' gift gives her the security of a basic set upon which to build.

For mother, the gift solution could well be a serving piece to add to her set of sterling. Many of the women who are observing their silver anniversary this year did not receive sterling at the time of their marriage, for silver sets were in very short supply during and after the war.

They may have received — or bought for themselves — a few place settings in the succeeding years. Chances are, however, that they simply don't have enough of the serving pieces which are so important.

And there's nothing that spoils the looks of a pretty dinner table so much as the odds and ends of flatware which "make do" when company comes.

Now's the time to help correct this lack, for with the children grown, most women generally have more time — and incentive — for entertaining.

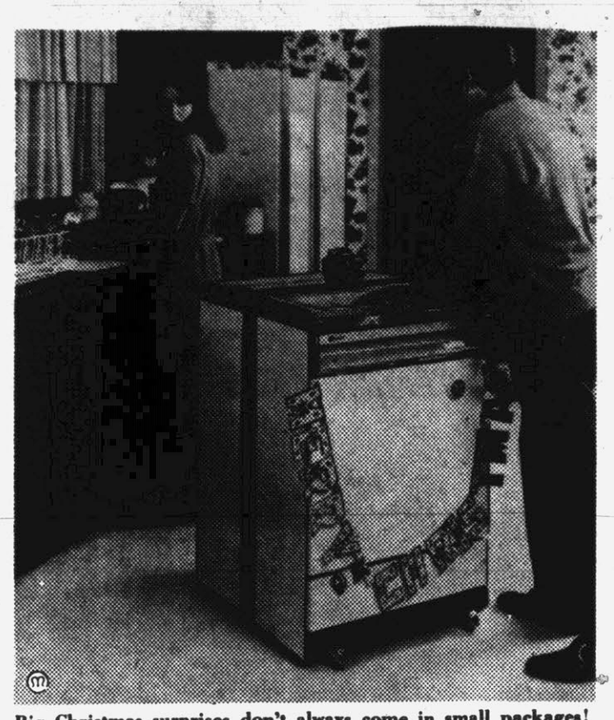
There are the essential serving pieces which are available in all sets of sterling: butter serving knife, tablespoon, cream or sauce ladle, gravy ladle, sugar spoon, and olive or pickle fork.

Others, which aren't used quite as often, but which add much to the looks of both dining and buffet tables, are: flat server, salad serving set, pierced tablespoon, pie or cake knife, cheese serving knife, and bon bon or nut spoon.

There's no generation gap when it comes to the appreciation of something as precious and beautiful as sterling silver — as any man who gives sterling flatware to the women in his life this Christmas is sure to discover!

Brides and mothers both want sterling this Christmas, with weddings and silver anniversaries at an all-time high. Place settings for the bride-to-be, serving pieces for her mother provide happy solutions on Dad's gift list.

Dishwasher Eases Mom's Daily Chores



Big Christmas surprises don't always come in small packages! Witness one surprised young housewife; in her fondest dreams she never expected a dishwasher — at least not until they could buy or build a permanent home. Congratulations to her husband for coming up with the idea of a Maytag convertible model for Christmas — the kind that's portable now, but can be built-in later. Guess he knows that an easier life makes a happier wife!

Christmas is the time for wishing peace, joy and happiness. And one gift that will bring joy and happiness to Mom, as well as peace to the whole family, is a dishwasher.

Even if Mom has rarely or never complained about doing the dishes by hand, or fussed about the constant kitchen clutter she has to cope with, she could well do without both!

And what Mother wouldn't enjoy having a little more time to relax or do with as she chooses — the hour or more of cleanup time that a dishwasher can save her every day?

Recruiting family help is easier, too — there's little cause for bickering over who should do the dishes when all there is to do is load the dishes and literally dial them done.

If the family is more or less permanently settled and space is available, a built-in model would most likely be her preference. However, there are models to meet the needs of families "on the move" or situations where 24" of cabinet space can't be dispensed with for installation of a dishwasher.

Both portable and convertible models can be maneuvered about easily for quick hookup to the kitchen sink; the decision between types would depend upon whether or not there might be a possibility of wanting to install the dishwasher permanently, in which case a convertible model would be the practical choice.

Special Gifts Deserve Distinctive Wrappings, Careful Handling

If that special girl on your gift list is going to receive a diamond or other piece of jewelry be sure that the wrapping is just as special.

Velvet ribbons flowing over textured wrapping paper — color coordinated — is one way to let her know something important is inside.

Another suggestion is to use embroidered fabric as the wrapping and tie with colorful ribbon.

Because the ring jewelry box is probably small in size it's a good idea to place the gift box inside a larger one, being sure to secure the present with insulation.

Advice to Woman Planning To Gift Whiskered Santas

Christmas is the time for a certain white-whiskered gentleman. It's also a time for men who would rather be clean-shaven to judge from the popularity of electric shavers as Christmas gifts.

Some shoppers may hesitate to buy shavers for men who habitually use ordinary safety razors, lather and water in the belief that men used to wet shaving aren't comfortable with electric shavers. For the vast majority of men, this is just not true, according to shaver company research.

Remington, for instance, finds that most blade users adapt easily to electric shavers inside of a week. A few need two weeks. A pre-shave lotion or powder can make first shaves with a new electric shaver much more comfortable, according to Remington experts.

A cord shaver may be the least expensive to buy, but it, of course, must be used where electrical power is available. Men on-the-go may find a cordless model more convenient.

The latest advance in shavers is the disposable blade. In this type, the cutting blades can be popped out as soon as they get dull, after about six months to a year on the average, and new ones can be inserted in seconds. Prices for this type are about the same as units with ordinary blades and the readily available disposable blades actually cost less than most ordinary blades on a cost-per-shave basis.

Additional features to look for are an adjustment that allows the user to set the cutters for different skin and beard conditions and built-in trimmers for side burns and mustaches.

Whatever the combination of features, a shaver selected with care and thoughtfulness is the perfect way to let a man know he's appreciated.

Student Set Starts Bicycling Boom; State, Private Agencies Give Hand

If all the bicycles Santa Claus is expected to deliver this Christmas were laid end to end, they would stretch out almost 2,000 miles, or roughly, from White River Junction, Vermont, to the outskirts of Amarillo, Texas. And if Santa expects to get them all delivered in one sled, he'd better add a few more reindeer power than he's already got on hand, for this Christmas' bike load will weigh in at a hefty 40,000 tons.

In simpler terms, American families are expected to buy nearly two million bikes this Christmas, more than in any other Christmas buying season in history. Recession or not, America is experiencing a bicycle boom of supersonic proportions, and total 1971 sales are expected to approach 8.5 million units.

Explain Popularity

Good health and physical fitness, economical means of transportation, a near-perfect vehicle for family recreation, an absolutely non-polluting vehicle ... all these adjectives apply to the bicycle, and, taken collectively, they help explain the bike's growing popularity, not only with millions of kids, but with growing numbers of not-so-youngsters over 30.

Additionally, the bike has almost universal appeal. Tall or short, thin or fat, black or white, rich or poor .... anybody can ride one. Bike riding requires no special skills, nor a high degree of athletic prowess. And American manufacturers are producing a wider variety of styles, sizes, colors, models, optional equipment and price ranges than ever before. Literally, there is an American-made bike to fit every taste, need and pocketbook. This year's Christmas bikes can cost as little as $30 and as much as $350, with the average price running somewhere between $50 and $150, depending on quality and optional equipment.

A big contributing factor to the current bike boom is the fact that there are more places to ride a bike — more interesting, pleasant places—than ever have been .... and more are on the way. For just as the federal highway building program has helped stimulate auto sales, so too, the recent growth of federal, state and local Bikeways development has made bicycle riding a more popular activity for whole families.

Nearly 10,000 miles of specially marked Bikeways, paths and trails have been developed across America in the last seven years, with the Bicycle Institute of America cooperating with the U.S. Departments of Interior, Agriculture and Commerce, as well as with many state and private agencies in the development of the scenic, historic and recreational trails.

Winter fitness — bundled warmly, bicyclists are discovering that even in blustery weather when street conditions are dry, cycling can be fun, especially on those newly-delivered Christmas wheels. The Bicycle Institute has some ideas, too, for winter bike fun. While stores are featuring festive windows and whole neighborhoods are out-doing each other with Christmas decorations, a Christmas bike tour can be great fun for the family crowd.

Brighten Christmas with New Color TV Set

It's A Gift All in Family Will Enjoy

Good advice for Yule shoppers this year is —

"Give a gift that the whole family will enjoy."

One natural gift-idea that particularly fits that formula is the color TV set — and now is the time to take advantage of a new generation of features, such as the new super-bright picture tube. It will brighten your home on Christmas and the whole year through.

Two years ago, Zenith first produced Chromacolor, a "new generation" picture tube that produces color pictures with greater brilliance, dramatic contrast, definition and sharpness of detail. The tube was initially offered in big screen consoles and table models.

In Smaller Set

This year's shoppers will also see it in 16-inch diagonal portables that are designed for favorite second-set locations such as the bedroom, den or kitchen.

The selection was never greater. Chromacolor's brightness, greater contrast and picture detail are available in a broad selection of 16-, 19-, 23- and 25-inch diagonal screen sizes for the first time.

Furniture-styles are well represented in the consoles and combinations on the market. These include Contemporary, Danish Modern, Country French, Early American, Mediterranean, French Provincial and Transitional stylings. You can mix them or match them with your home decorative scheme. Decorators point out that a contrast adds real character to the room arrangement.

Pushbutton Control

Another feature to consider is built-in TV remote control. It's a push-button cinch to operate from across the viewing area. The number of services increases with the number of push-buttons on the hand control. Manufacturers such as Zenith provide cordless remote controls for most set sizes.

Another development is Zenith's customized tuning. Whenever the TV picture is accidently misadjusted, it permits easy, one-step adjustment of the key controls —brightness, color level, tint, contrast and vertical hold.

Also look for other controls that make color viewing more enjoyable. They include: AFC or automatic fine-tuning control that locks in the TV channel and keeps it from drifting; ATG or automatic tint guard that locks in the most pleasing flesh tones, when you change channels.

IDEAL FOR THEM

For the baby who already has things, you could always give a month's diaper service. Baby won't know the difference, but his mother will love you for it!

ROUND SOUND comes out of the special cubed speakers in this 3-piece Circle of Sound modular stereo system from Zenith. Treble sounds fire upward and bass fires down into cone-shaped deflectors for 360° sound. Low-profile main unit has a see-thru top and encloses AM-FM-Stereo FM radio and record changer. All three units are a matching grained walnut color.

POP-UP MODULAR STEREO — Heralding the "new look" in home stereo for Christmas is Zenith's Latham with built-in cassette stereo recorder/player and FM/AM/Stereo FM radio all encased in a pop-up section with control panel on the front. Two matching speakers plus two microphones are included.

Portable

WELCOME UNDER ANY TREE is this portable Chromacolor 16-inch diagonal TV that Zenith designed for second-set locations such as the bedroom, den or kitchen. Smartly modern, with slide controls.

STOCKING STUFFERS

Little kitchen helpers can find an abundance of stocking gift ideas for Mom in housewares and notions departments. Pot holders, measuring spoons, measuring cups, thermometers, knives, serving utensils and hot plates make fine gifts.

For Mind, Body, Soul

For Christmas: food for the mind, body and soul. The people who publish the Better Homes & Gardens New Cookbook and the people who publish Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary have come up with a lovely idea for Christmas this year. They suggest giving "Food for the Mind, Body and Soul" in the form of a dictionary, a cookbook and a copy of the Bible. These three books together make a unique gift that says "I care" as almost nothing else can. The books can be wrapped separately, with an indication on the card whether it's "Food for the Mind," "Food for the Body" or "Food for the Soul." For the thrifty consumer, the books provide an inexpensive gift — one that will remind the recipient of the giver's love and good wishes for years.

SOMETHING TO LEAN ON

The baby who can't sit up yet still likes to move from place to place and see what's going on. The only problem is, he needs firm support for his back.

So get him a wooden papoose board or a portable plastic infant seat with a high back and sturdy straps. That way he can be toted about and propped in a good safe place in any room in the house where there's a family activity.

GREEN GIFTING

For all the family's 'green thumbs' Christmas time can provide an opportunity for garden accessory giving. Many smaller items like hand spades, rakes, watering pots make fine gifts. Check garden suppliers for off-season savings.

Winter Sports Type On List? Ski Goggles May Be Answer

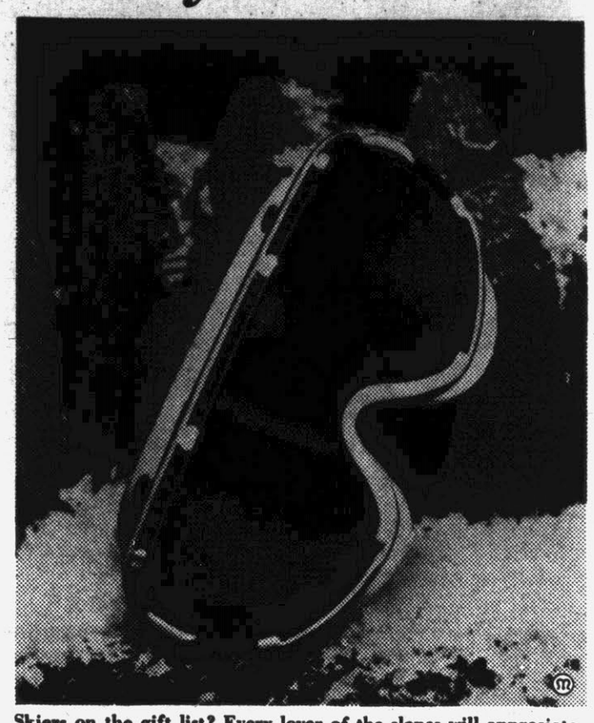
Christmas gift time can be problem time. The answer to one shopping puzzle is easily solved if you have a skier on your list.

Skier goggles by the makers of Cool-Ray Polaroid Sunglasses are the perfect gift choice to keep your skier happy on the slopes.

The Skier has lots of features every ski enthusiast demands. The wide one-piece gold lens gives clear vision all around, and the ventilation system is a real fogbeater.

The gold lens cuts through haze and lets the skier "read" the slopes as he skis—moguls, ice and other hazards are easily seen. What's more those Polaroid polarizing lenses cut out as much as 98% of reflected glare light bouncing off the bright snow, and at the same time the lens eliminates 96% of ultraviolet light that can cause miserable snow blindness.

You can give comfort, safety and style all wrapped up in one handsome package when you put the Cool-Ray Polaroid Skier under the Christmas tree.



Skiers on the gift list? Every lover of the slopes will appreciate a gift of ski goggles. Shown, "The Skier" by Polaroid.

Hair Care Gifts for Him – or Her

Any long hairs on your list? Look for slimmed down versions of professional dryer stylers. Fun to use, they make good grooming fast and easy. Photo Left: To thicken and add crown height, back comb the locks you wish to lift. Photo Center: Men can spray on water or conditioner distributing it while they style. Photo Right: To tame heavy hair into a smooth chignon, brush long locks under, then pin. For her, The Hairdresser.™ For him, The Mist-Air Hot Comb.™ Both from Remington.

Students Can Help Others Realize Joys of Season

Getting into the Christmas spirit can also be a way to arouse school spirit in a worthy plan to make other people happy.

It starts with a trim-the-tree party which can be followed by a dance in the high school gymnasium.

Then, the drive starts. Gifts are placed under the tree, for delivery to children's hospital wards, nursing homes, private families in need or servicemen stationed overseas.

Canned food, toys, dolls, games, paperback books and candy are carefully wrapped and labeled for distribution.

Sometimes there are special sections for the different grade levels, but most often gifts are just spread about randomly.

Members of the school's chorus group usually accompany the Santas and sing carols as the gifts are given out.

After the gift drive has been completed, another dance or special school event is sometimes held to celebrate the fine work.

Gifting Versatility Offered Modern Santa

Variety, portability and a range of prices making it easy on any budget, assures today's Santa a selection from among the modern electronic gifts to bring joy to the youngest and also the older but youthful minded.

A visit to stores displaying the brilliant diversity, ranging from tape and records through radios to TV and Sound Systems, is recommended by Zenith as a help to making gift choices.

Dads Who Play Santa-the-Doer Sure to Please Whole Family

If the ideal Christmas present is a happy combination of imagination and thoughtfulness, then husbands are sure to make a hit with their wives by surprising them with a GAF Sure-Stik tile floor.

The adhesive-backed vinyl asbestos tiles are sure to please homemakers on every count. Think of the times you've talked about remodeling that drab basement, den or playroom and put off the day of reckoning. The Christmas season should transform those resolutions into reality by providing a day to give gifts that are both stylish and practical.

Shoppers will find a wide variety of decorator designs available in the GAF adhesive-backed tile line. Over a dozen different Sure-Stik patterns which will coordinate beautifully with contemporary, colonial or Mediterranean furniture come in a lovely range of color selections.

Adds New Look

Any choice of tile design from the extensive selection revitalizes rooms by making the flooring a focal — and discussion — point.

Best of all, GAF Sure-Stik tile floors are wife-pleasers because they take care of themselves, eliminating time-consuming chores like scrubbing and waxing. Since vinyl asbestos is a dense, nonporous material, GAF Sure-Stik tile is resistant to grease, alkali, stains and indentations.

If the children spill orange juice or cola on the floor, wiping with a damp sponge immediately or even hours later will restore the sheen on the tiles. Periodic cleaning and buffing brings out a lovely patina.

Deep embossing on the 12" x 12" square tiles enriches classic designs like Casablanca or Taj Mahal, giving them a handsome, textured character. Embossing also hides surface scuffs that occur when Johnny invites in the neighborhood gang to view his new set-of toy trains.

And what wife wouldn't get a secret satisfaction in having her husband play Santa Claus to do a job she could easily tackle herself? GAF Sure-Stik tile floors are as easy to install as they are to care for. They may be applied in any room of the house, from attic to basement and over any subfloor —whether linoleum, concrete or plywood—once it is free of dirt and dust.

Quick Change

Since no messy adhesives are involved, once the tiles are laid, furniture may be moved back into place. From start to finish, an average-sized room will have new flooring beauty in a couple of hours time.

GAF Sure-Stik tile floors make it Christmas all-year round in any home, injecting holiday cheer into the room that most needs a festive look.

Wife-pleaser — This holiday season, a husband who plays Santa Claus to his wife by installing a GAF Sure-Stik adhesive-backed tile floor is sure to make a hit. The classic Casablanca pattern, one of a dozen decorator designs in the Sure-Stik tile line offered by GAF Floor Products, is indexed for a foolproof installation which brings style and carefree maintenance to floors in any room of the house — in a couple of hours time!

Toys, Fashions Stimulate Child's Curiosity

A vigil for Santa is enhanced by the comfort from one's Pooh Bear . . . and the cozy, warm quilted robe and dainty gown from Winnie-the-Pooh's Collection at Sears. Nightwear—pretty enough for picture-taking on Christmas morning — is adorned in lilac flowers and delicate lace. Practical, too, this children's gown and robe in sizes 3 to 6X is completely machine washable.

Monsieur Cou Cou, the bird; Havemeyer the Helping Hand; Ole Factory, a bloodhound; and even Nostalgia, the elephant were all on deck as ABC-TV embarked on a new children's series, Curiosity Shop. The show, which premiered on September 12, will be aired every Saturday morning from 10 to 12.

Curiosity Shop was created by Chuck Jones, Executive Director and Vice President of Children's Programming for ABC. It combines animation, film, live action and music. To quote Mr. Jones: "The title is the key to the promise of the series.

"We want to stimulate the child's natural curiosity by placing emphasis on asking questions more than answering them. The idea is to involve the child in explorations that stimulate his understanding of himself and the world around him."

Your curiosity seeker will delight at Monsieur Cou Cou, happily appliqued on an amethyst colored A-shape for the 3/6x'er and on a knicker set for the toddler. Nostalgia, the elephant becomes a pinafore pocket. Professor Trivia, "worms" his way across a striped smock.

Then there's Havemeyer, the Helping Hand, reaching upwards in stripes of red and white on a suspendered jumper or jumpsuit, or Ole Factory, the bloodhound, transformed into a chain shoulder bag, all for the 1/6x'er. For the 7/14 set, Monsieur Cou Cou dangles from a novelty belt worn with a grown-up navy and white dress, or Onomontopoeis dancing from the midriff of a skirt 'n shirt look.

The collection is colored in bright, festive, Holiday shades of red, navy, turquoise and amethyst, or pretty pastels such as light blue and pale green. Fabrics run the gamut from bonded acrylics and bonded knits to corduroys, poplins and "STOP THE PRESS" which means no ironing. Silhouettes include battle jackets, pinafores over dresses, quilted dirndls and A-shapes, blazer pantsuits, and short pants.

This season Cinderella, the childrenswear manufacturer who knows what little girls like, has created an irresistible collection of holiday looks inspired by these characters.

Puppet characters from Curiosity Shop, ABC-TV's new children's series, serve as a springboard for a group of lively fashions for children from the Cinderella and Nannette Holiday Collections. The A-shaped dresses in bonded acrylic knit feature shoulder strap bags of "Ole Factory," the lovable bloodhound. Little sister sports "Ole Factory" print on her leotards, while little brother likes man's best friend on his shirt, under his acrylic jumpsuit, with an "Ole Factory" pocket.

Little Ones Have a Holiday Ball With New Educational Toys

And, that's what a new toy for gifting is all about!

Colorful cubes with cut-out openings plus tubes, of non-toxic plastic, interlock into a maze of inventive different shapes. Then, a ball must make its way through the course.

The components for this ingenious plaything come in a kit from Samsonite's new toy collection.

The kit consists of ten blocks, short and long channel joiners, joiner clips and a ball.

While the youngsters are cleverly assembling the maze for fun, they're also developing coordination.

Ride 'Em Jetster

Santa Claus' Ride 'Em Jet is a safe, durable toy that encourages young imaginations — and does so without batteries and delicate moving parts. The Jet will provide many hours of playtime pleasure for toddlers between the ages of one to three years. Made of durable white polystyrene, the new toy allows the child to take an active part in his play. Durable for even very active children, the body of the toy jet is one smooth unit that remains intact during the roughest play. The toy is a full 35" long and 10" high at the tail section with a 7½" seat height. (Retails for under $15).

Turn her bath water into liquid silk with the luxurious 32-ounce size of Rainbath Body Soap Gel from Neutrogena — elegantly wrapped for Christmas in vivid paper enhanced by a hot pink velvet ribbon and "gilt" medallion.

Dolls Join Visions of Sugarplums Dancing in Little Girls' Heads

Just what she asked Santa to put in her stocking! A dancing doll from the world of Dawn and her friends. Dawn dances to any tempo you choose, slow or fast. She's joined by Angie and her other friends as they bounce along to the music. From Topper.

Christmas 1971 carries on the tradition as dolls and trucks again highlight the season's gift-giving. Today's little girls expect dolls that do things, like Smarty Pants who answers questions.

To fill stockings, there's the miniature World of Dawn with dancing dolls and smart outfits of boutique fashions.

SOMETHING TO LOOK AT

Baby spends a lot of time in his crib, and staring at ceilings is no fun at all. Give him a gay mobile to hang in his line of vision but safely out of reach.

Pre-Schoolers Toys Tested at Play

State Licensed Nursey School Provides Locale

Parents selecting toys for pre-school children this Christmas need not be surprised to learn that they have been pre-tested. This is a proud practice of a leading toy maker.

Indeed, the toys have been subjected to exacting play time handling by small fry to determine their appropriateness under the watchful eyes of Mrs. Sabine Lieberman, an up-state nursery school teacher.

Mrs. Lieberman supervises her class of little tykes in a pleasantly littered classroom with pint-size paraphernalia. She supervises play time and clean-up time, crackers, juice time and rest time. The nursery school, a colorful, brightly lighted room, is in the basement of the Research and Development Building of Fisher-Price Toys in East Aurora, New York.

Mrs. Lieberman's nursery school for 2½ to 4½ year olds is state licensed and is part of the Fisher-Price program carried on with the help of Dr. Jerome Kagan, noted Harvard psychologist and authority on behaviours of pre-school children.

Dr. Jerome Kagan, Harvard psychologist and Fisher-Price consultant, shown studying the pre-schoolers at play. He is author of "Child Development and Personality."

When the flip-top lid of Fisher-Price's new pull toy, ABC Block, pops up, a peek-a-boo figure appears and then quickly disappears. Its surprise action is created by squeezing the soft yellow plastic bulb attached to the block. With practice, preschoolers soon learn to control this action. They delight in the game of peek-a-boo as they pull the block along on its unbreakable bright red balloon tires. The white and yellow block is colorfully decorated with the A.B.C.s, appropriately illustrated with apple, bear and cow. Made of a rugged and durable plastic. Measures overall: 4¾" high, by 3⅝" wide by 4" high. Fisher-Price Toys, Inc., East Aurora, New York 14052.

First Such School

The school, believed to be the first such facility within the confines of a toy manufacturing company, provides free, unstructured learning situations for children from surrounding communities. It also provides toy designers with an opportunity to watch children work and play in natural surroundings.

"We watch the children come into the environment, adapt to it, grow with it and — specifically — watch them play with toys that appeal to them," said Robert Hicks, Vice-President of Fisher-Price Research and Development.

He added, "It's much more advantageous for the child than the one-time shot where a mother brings the child, basically scared and dressed up, into a strange room where he is watched by unfamiliar people while he plays with a toy — once."

Further, the supervisors and designers can watch a child over a longer period. If they're trying to make a toy that a child is going to play with consistently — then they have to observe a child longer.

The researchers talked specifically about the Play Family House toy. Although it is primarily bought by mothers as a girl's toy, they found it was played with at least as much by boys — but in a very boy-like way.

"The girls re-arrange the furniture" said Mrs. Lieberman, "They'll take the mother out and around and talk with her. They play with it as a little woman organizing her household. On the other hand," she added, "the little boys play with it as though they couldn't care where the furniture is.

Typical Boys

"They'd rather take the little people and toss them out of a window, playing as though there is a fire. Then, too, to little boys Daddy coming home is a big event. They'll walk up to the front door and shout 'I'm home' and everyone inside jumps to."

Mr. Hicks commented, "This is important in the development of little boys. It provides an imaginative release about firemen and daddies and all the actions little boys fantasize about."

"Toys can be facilitating to a child's development," said Dr. Kagan author of the Bible of psychology textbooks, "Child Development and Personality," now in its third edition. "They allow a child, not having the experience otherwise, to practice adult roles. They persuade him he is capable of meeting his standards and increasing his expectancy of success."

Close Supervision

Dr. Kagan works closely with the designers in analyzing the Fisher-Price toys already on the market and those still on the drawing board. His observations from his studies at Harvard was that he was seeing refreshing new approaches as well as new awareness that toy manufacturers are noting these responses from children and building proper values into the toys.

As Dr. Kagan says, "What the experience is doing for me is to encourage me to feel more positively about the development of toys as a teaching medium. I now believe in toys. Particularly in their ability to help facilitate the growth in children."

There's a Radio Set for Every Name on List From Wallet Size to New Digital Clocks

Probably the most perplexing problem for the Christmas shopper is to come up with a "special something" for that "someone special" on the gift list.

A solution, in a single word, is: Radio.

There are gift-ideas galore in radios on the market today. Sets come in all sizes. Designs are new and exciting. Prices range — to fit practically any budget.

There are small battery-powered transistor portable radios for those who like to take music or news with them wherever they go. Many models fit neatly into a jacket pocket, tackle box, purse, brief case or camera gadget bag.

TIMED RIGHT for dad is this versatile digital FM-AM clock-radio from Zenith. It tells time, wakes you to music or buzzer alarm, surrounds you with 360° Circle of Sound no matter where you sit.

Looks Like Camera

One FM-AM model from Zenith Radio, the Royal B29, even looks like a camera. Designed for tough use by the teen or sub-teen youngster or others on the go, it has a handy carrying strap.

Indoors, a universal favorite is the clock-radio that brings so many services to its user. It tells time, acts as a waker-upper with music or an insistent buzzer alarm, lulls the listener to sleep, and brings in radio favorites with the twist of a knob.

The new look in these sets is the digital clock-radio. With easy-to-read numbers replacing the conventional clock face, the set is ideal for the oldster's bedroom or anyone who would like to tell time across the room—without eyeglasses and in the dark.

A sure-fire hit with the young lady of the house will be a pretty table radio for her very own, mod designed such as Zenith Sonateer.

NEW FOR DAD or your teen listener this Christmas, this "wallet" FM-AM radio, by Zenith, offers a new version of the pocket portable. A special hidden FM antenna eliminates need for a "pull-out" FM antenna.

SOUND ENTERTAINER is this slim-styled FM-AM radio and monaural record player from Zenith. It goes anywhere, plays 33⅓ or 45 r.p.m. records anywhere on four D-cell batteries or AC power. Includes see-thru snap-on lid, earphone for private listening.

Purposeful Weather Command radios are equipped to tune National Weather Service stations broadcasting vital information on a continuous basis from 31 key cities in the U.S. and are specially helpful to outdoorsmen, including boaters.

World Spanners

There are also world-spanning sets like the Zenith Trans-Oceanic short wave and FM-AM portable radio. This set, with its 11-band reception, opens up an entire new world of radio listening for the owner. Its tuning ranges include VHF/FM weather; FM and AM broadcasts; long wave weather/navigation; short wave marine weather; ship-to-ship and ship-to-shore channels, and international short wave. It is designed to serve correspondents, diplomats, yachtsmen, explorers, outdoorsmen and armchair adventurers the world over.

Toy Maker Acts to Bridge Generation Gap

With the holiday season approaching, gift-buying has precedence in everyone's thoughts. This year there is help at hand with gifts for friends and family of all ages.

No longer just a toy company, Mattel produces a wide variety of products for the world of the young at heart. For kids of all ages, Mattel has introduced a whole new line of creative art, called Imaginings. These new art forms were designed by art experts, initially for children, but everyone wants to get into the act.

Six new mediums are packaged individually, with everything for each creative project in one of the packages. The line includes Clear Cuts, simulated stained glass; Color Streaks and Drip Drops, both psychedelic paints; and Super Shapes, paper mache sculpting.

A new multiple-lane track from Mattel called Fat Track finally utilizes the self-contained Sizzler power that revolutionized miniature racing. Fat Track allows through traffic as cars take the high banked curves, pass each other and jockey for position.

A brand new kind of doll, Living Baby Tender Love from Mattel is so real she almost seems alive. Her skin feels like a real baby's and she sits, poses and moves like a real baby. A perfect gift for a little girl who likes to play mommy.

Keep Family Together

To keep the family together, there are some new games that bridge the generation gap. When choosing a game, try for one that will stimulate the adults, but that children can enjoy, too. Guaranteed to please both adults and children, Blarney is a new vocabulary game using little-known words. Knowledge isn't the important thing, but the ability to bluff.

Everyone has a good time and there won't be a glunch in the room — glunch is a typical Blarney word, and means "a sullen look."

A sports spectacular for the whole family is a table-top game called Magnetel. Eleven shooting, scoring games can be played with a magnetic action. Consider some of the possibilities — Skid Pool, Rotation Pool and Skid-Tac-Toe.

While we're bridging the generation gap, consider some father-son gifts. Monogram models provide hours of fun for a boy and his Dad, plus a great "I did it myself satisfaction" for both. A scale model of a Lunar Module or a Huey Phantom Helicopter would be a good project.

Models are also available for smaller children. Snap-Tite models don't require the manual dexterity of the more complex kits with many tiny pieces. Color is molded into all of the Snap-Tite pieces — so there's no messy painting. The snap-together fit is exact and no glue is necessary.

Battery Powered

Two of the most popular kits are Snoopy in his Bugatti race car or on his World War I motorcycle with his bird friend Woodstock in the side car. To add extra fun, both the Bugatti and motorcycle will scoot across the floor with battery-powered motors.

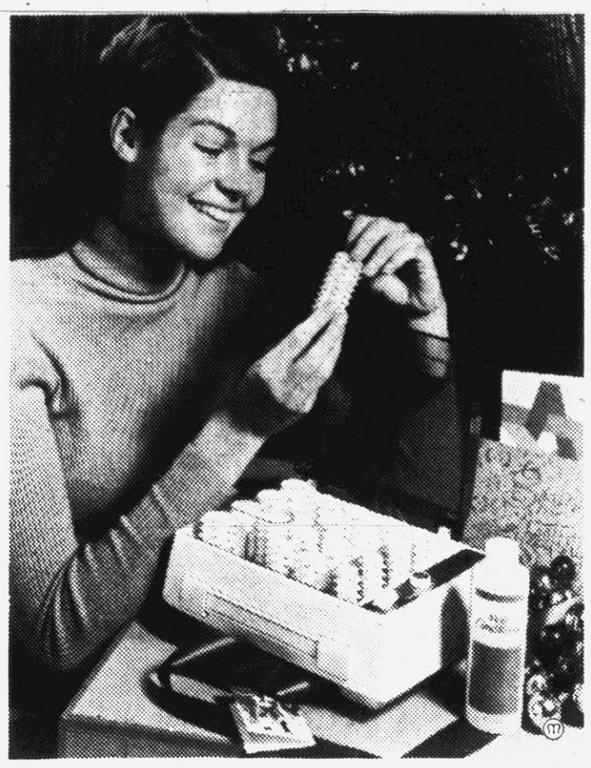
Gifts to Enhance Her Beauty, Much Desired



What once was a slow process, setting milady's hair, is now quick and easy with General Electric's new Mist Condition Speedsetter, a welcome gift for almost any female on your Christmas list. GE offers a choice of setting hair with mist, with conditioner or dry. This Mist Condition Speedsetter has 20 tangle-free rollers that all fit on any of the uniform-size heating posts. Another convenience feature is the comfort control to regulate the temperature of the roller.

Electric Magic Furnishes Aids She'll Welcome

Mirror, mirror on the wall, what's the perfect gift for the fairest Mom of all? Beauty aid gifts, of course!

A ten minute set is all it takes to hold even the fanciest hairdos.

Just watch Mom glow when she unwraps her electric facial sauna! Even the busiest homemakers find time in a hectic schedule for a weekly treatment that purifies the skin with a soft mist for a complete facial cleansing.

For a professional manicure or pedicure, Mom can clip and shape with an electric set complete with different attachments for cuticle and nail care.

Shavers with special shaping are another grooming idea. Many come with settings to adjust for legs and underarms.

Hair dryers come in the miniest tote-abouts to hooded models that fit over large rollers.

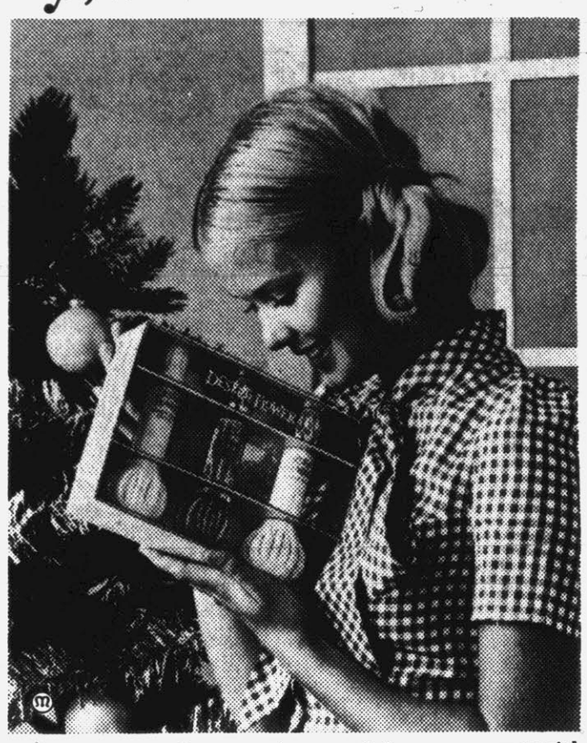
Small blower dryers are ideal for Moms with short, wispy curls since they make styling easy while the hair is drying.

And to top off her beauty plan, every Mom deserves a balanced diet of wigs!

Besides being a gal's best friend in hard-to-hold hair weather, easy-care modacrylic wigs give Mom a chance to be a quick-change artist for last-minute social engagements.

Wigs are also fun ways to step out of the ordinary with different hair colors.



A gift of fragrance is sure to please any lady on your very special gift list. The warmth of the fragrance and your thoughtfulness will linger long after the Christmas season is over. One of the world's most popular scents — Desert Flower — appears in glamorous, new packaging and is available in a wide selection of combination gift sets and single items. By Shulton.

"Deck the hall . . .": Cassette decks such as the new Ampex Micro 155 could be the perfect Christmas gift for the music lover who "has everything." Cassette decks fit smoothly into existing stereo systems to provide another source of listening pleasure.

Instant Eye Artistry

Headstart Hairdressing

Wouldn't it be nice if you woke up December 25th and some thoughtful Santa had given you the new hand-held dryer by Braun? Aptly named "The Professional One" because it does all the same things your hairdresser would do for you . . . namely curl, shape, fluff, straighten and dry your hair quickly and effortlessly. It comes as is or with the added plus of a soft bonnet and table/wall bracket for easy storage. By itself $16.95. With attachments $19.95. Either way . . . this new Braun dryer gives you a headstart on the new year.

Fancy Baths

International Bath Boutique — five foreign flavored bath specialties, Max Factor's Irish Bath Crystals, English Bath Herbs, Swiss Milk Bath, Polynesian Pearlescent Bath Powder, and French Strawberry Bath Gelée combine fancy and fragrance to become ideal holiday gifts (whether given alone or in combination) for even the most discriminating woman.

Watchful Eye on Your Newspaper Can Help Plan Holiday Activities

With a little inventiveness and a watchful eye on the newspapers, parents can plan a variety of family activities geared to the youngsters for the holidays.

Schedules of Christmas plays, movies and community parties are listed routinely in newspapers, church bulletins and PTA newsletters.

Some civic organizations and service clubs sponsor grab-bag parties, Christmas pageants and carol groups.

Visits to a favorite department store's Toyland can be fun outings. The kids have a chance to sit on Santa's lap, and browse through a wonderland of games and toys.

Neighborhoods frequently organize activities according to age group.

While the tots have a session with Santa, the older children might be making hand puppets and staging a puppet show. Teens often visit children's hospital wards to sing carols and distribute homemade cookies.

And, to get all the age groups together, a snowman contest can be arranged. The children can be given a certain time period in which to build and decorate a prize-winning Frosty.

Yule Wardrobe Duo

Ideal duo for the well-planned Christmas wardrobe: a softly flowing Empire gown, and with it, a jacket that can be worn criss-cross in front. Turn it around and it can be worn "V'd" in back and covered-up in front. Ursula of Switzerland designs it in a pale pink crepe knit of American Enka's Encron polyester. Encron knits resist packing and sitting wrinkles and look fresh and neat throughout the most hectic holiday season.

Key To A Merrier Family Christmas Found In Some Unusual Places

Select a convenient closet that can be locked with a key. Pile inside a collection of gaily-wrapped small gifts, the all-purpose kind that are suited to all ages and sexes — a deck of cards, perhaps, or a colorful poster, or desk accessories.

When family and friends are assembled, have them draw lots to determine who gets the first chance to use the key and choose a gift — blindfolded!

Allow only 30 seconds after the blindfold is on for the player to open the closet and grab a gift. If he muffs it, move on to another.

The game gains momentum and gaiety as successful players open the packages they have selected. Those who fail get a chance to choose from remaining gifts at the end.

Gift 'Special Man' Fashionably With Matched Sweater-Shirt Set

On Christmas morn there is nothing more satisfying than to watch that special man open a gift that he wants to don immediately. Puritan Peerset has designed such a fashion duo — a print shirt with exactly matching sweater.

An off-beet red and white print marks the shirt as an eye-catcher. Tapering to the waist for good fit, it also features a long, pointed collar that can be worn a multiple of ways—open-collared with an ascot, or closed with a tie. This combo suits the moods of today's male.

It's a "no-iron" cotton shirt, so both the wearer and the giver can relax completely about its usefulness as a dress shirt or a sports shirt, depending on the occasion.

The scoop-necked sweater, of pure wool, allows enough of the striking shirt to show through for the ensemble color coordination a man appreciates.

Both shirt and sleeveless sweater can be worn separately, of course, to spice up something already in a man's wardrobe that might need it.

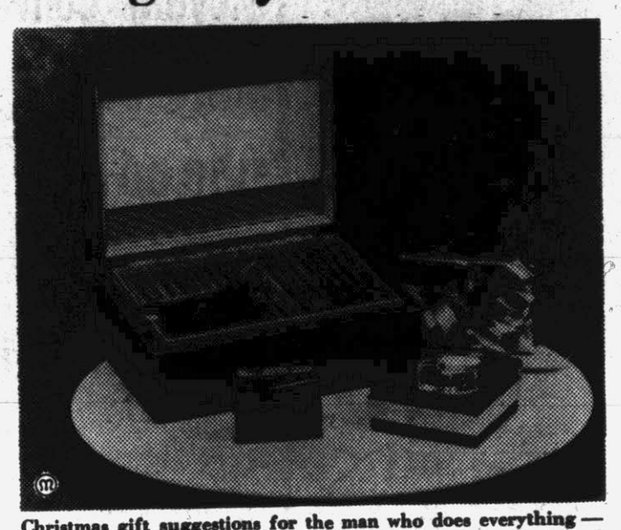
WORKSHOP ITEMS

Many of the tools Dad needs for everyday chores make perfect gifts from the children because of their low cost. Check local hardware stores and departments for specials.

Key to Gifting Man is Knowing His Habits

Consider Wide-Ranging Suggestions In Light of Leisure Time Interest



Christmas gift suggestions for the man who does everything — especially if he's a cigar smoker. Pictured above are a variety of gifts, each of which will please your personal Santa; including a humidor chock-full of his favorite cigars; a cigar cutter; a lighter; deep ash-tray; and a silver cigar holder. (Accessories courtesy of Alfred Dunhill of London, Inc.).

With the growing interest in leisure-time activities, the most rewarding gifts for the man in your life are those he can use for his non-working hours.

Is he the outdoor type? Does he fish, horseback ride, hunt or canoe? How about a new spinning rod or a riding crop? If you're going big, buy him a new tent, sleeping bag or air mattress.

Or a new cooler, a lantern or fancy flashlight. Stocking stuffers—flashlight batteries, spinning reel, casting flies, pocket knife.

Is he a do-it-himselfer — adding a new wing to the house, building a pool or a patio? An electric drill, bricks or fancy tile to build the barbeque—gifts like these could get him started on the renovating you want, too.

For Less Money

Want something for less money — how about glass holders that attach to the folding chairs or a great-looking hanging ashtray for his cigars when he wants to relax after doing all that backyard work?

Is your man a sports buff? Tickets to the "big game" of his choice—basketball, baseball, football, soccer or indoor polo — can't miss pleasing him.

Or a new cushion to sit on — a hip flask and cigars to keep him satisfied as well as comfortable.

For the fashion-conscious man—a tie is no longer considered a tired, unimaginative gift. What about some of the great-looking neck chains with a handsome medallion, the wildest argyle socks to go with his new suit, or a velvet smoking jacket for lounging in comfort after work.

For the man of leisure around the house — a lava lamp for his den. A sheepskin rug for the floor. Make an extra comfortable corner for him to relax in — if you want to go for the works — a new lounge recliner, that shelving he's been wanting, a big stand-up ashtray for cigars and a new humidor to keep his gift cigars fresh.

For the man concerned with his weight and physical fitness, there is a whole array of exercise equipment running from simple hand grippers to a built-in sauna. If he's into health foods—stuff his stocking with a jar of sunflower seeds or sesame nuggets.

How to really pamper him at Christmas. Give him a whole selection of cigars. Try an assortment of different sizes and shapes in a box of 25 or 50.

The perfect companion is a humidor. It need not be exotic and fancy-made of rosewood or teak, but any humidor that closes tightly and provides an inside source of moisture is appropriate.

At most tobacconists or department stores, a humidor can be purchased for as little as five dollars. The plastic variety for travelling is even less.

Other gift accessories that add to his enjoyment of cigar smoking are an elegant cigar cutter or clipper and a lighter. You may even want to get him a cigar holder. Now that is elegance!

Helping Others Hear Gives Special Cheer

Give the gift of better communications to a friend or a member of your family this Christmas and learn more about the subject of hearing loss at the same time.

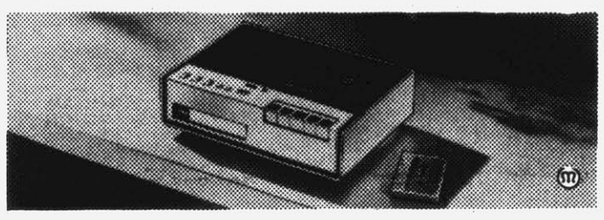
Hearing aid manufacturers today offer a considerable amount of educational material, in addition to a great range of modern hearing aids for every type of hearing problem.

According to Zenith, the tiny hearing aid pictured here is illustrative of modern designs for effective, comfortable listening. The same manufacturer also produces 20 other models in conventional, behind-the-ear, and eye glass designs for a variety of hearing problems.

A most recent example of more complete education on hearing problems for the layman is represented by a new long play recording, "Getting Through," available free from Zenith hearing aid dealers.

The record, first of its kind, covers basic facts about hearing problems, and simulates electronically what might be heard by persons with various types of hearing problens, with or without aid.

New Look in Big Sound



A new look in big sound — The Campusette (YZB-532), exemplifies RCA's expression of popular Italian free-form styling in consumer products, with a finish combining pecan graining and sculptured white plastic. The Campusette is a cassette player/recorder equally at home on campus or in a family's station wagon headed for a vacation. About the size of a standard dictionary, the Campusette both plays back pre-recorded cassette cartridges and permits recording of other material. With up to a full hour of recording time possible, a voice activated mike conserves tape. The Campusette is optionally priced at $79.95.

Snap-Tite model kits by Mattel are for the small model-building enthusiast. Parts are molded to fit together so no glue is necessary. Pieces are already colored so no messy paints are needed. These Monogram kits are just right for a small boy, who may not be quite ready for complicated pieces in a model. Plus Snoopy's Bugatti race car is battery-operated and will come off its display base to scoot across the floor. The World War I motorcycle—not quite finished in the picture — has a side car with Woodstock in it and will also move with a battery.

'Crafty' Gift Worth Giving to Him Early

Christmas is always packed with fun, but there is work, too: re-shining last year's tarnished ornaments and silverplate, fixing an old Christmas tree stand, making a Christmas greeting sign — even carving a new decoration for the living room or creating an individual gift for a very special person.

The Li'l Crafty Rotary Tool will help you do these projects quicker, easier and better, according to Sears, Roebuck and Co. tool experts, who offer these time-saving suggestions for the holidays:

Metal ornaments — especially the heavy ones — tend to tarnish when packed away in Christmas storage. With regular polish and buffing accessories, the Li'l Crafty makes dull finishes glisten.

How to Do It

Apply the polish to the ornament in a light coat, and wipe it off with a clean, soft cloth. Then finish the surface to a high polish with the rag buffer accessory.

The rag buffer also does a quick job on tarnished ornamental dishes and cups made of metal. Apply the polish in the usual way, and use Li'l Crafty to brighten depressions in silverplate engraving.

Touch-up paint jobs can make old Christmas tree stands look new. With an abrasive wheel locked in the chuck of the Li'l Crafty, "feather" out the finish around the spots that are chipped or rusted. A small brush or the end of a cotton swab can be used to apply the new matching finish.

Be careful not to smear it. When the touch-up hardens, you can blend it in with the surrounding surface by buffing the spot lightly with the rag buffer accessory.

For cheerful plaques and signs with special Christmas messages, the Li'l Crafty's burr accessories follow traced patterns exactly for perfect three-dimensional effects.

Choose a soft wood for the plaque: pine or redwood is an ideal material. Then pick the type of lettering you want; old Christmas cards provide a wide selection.

Transfer and enlarge the lettering onto ¼-inch square ruled paper, and then, with carbon paper, lightly trace the lettering onto the wood. Use Li'l Crafty's burr accessories to cut the lettering into the wood; smooth any rough edges with one of the finishing accessories, "brushing" the abrasive wheel lightly along the material.

The letters of the greeting can be highlighted with a bright paint or lacquer applied with a small artist's brush. Two coats are generally required. Let them dry thoroughly before you finish the surrounding surface.

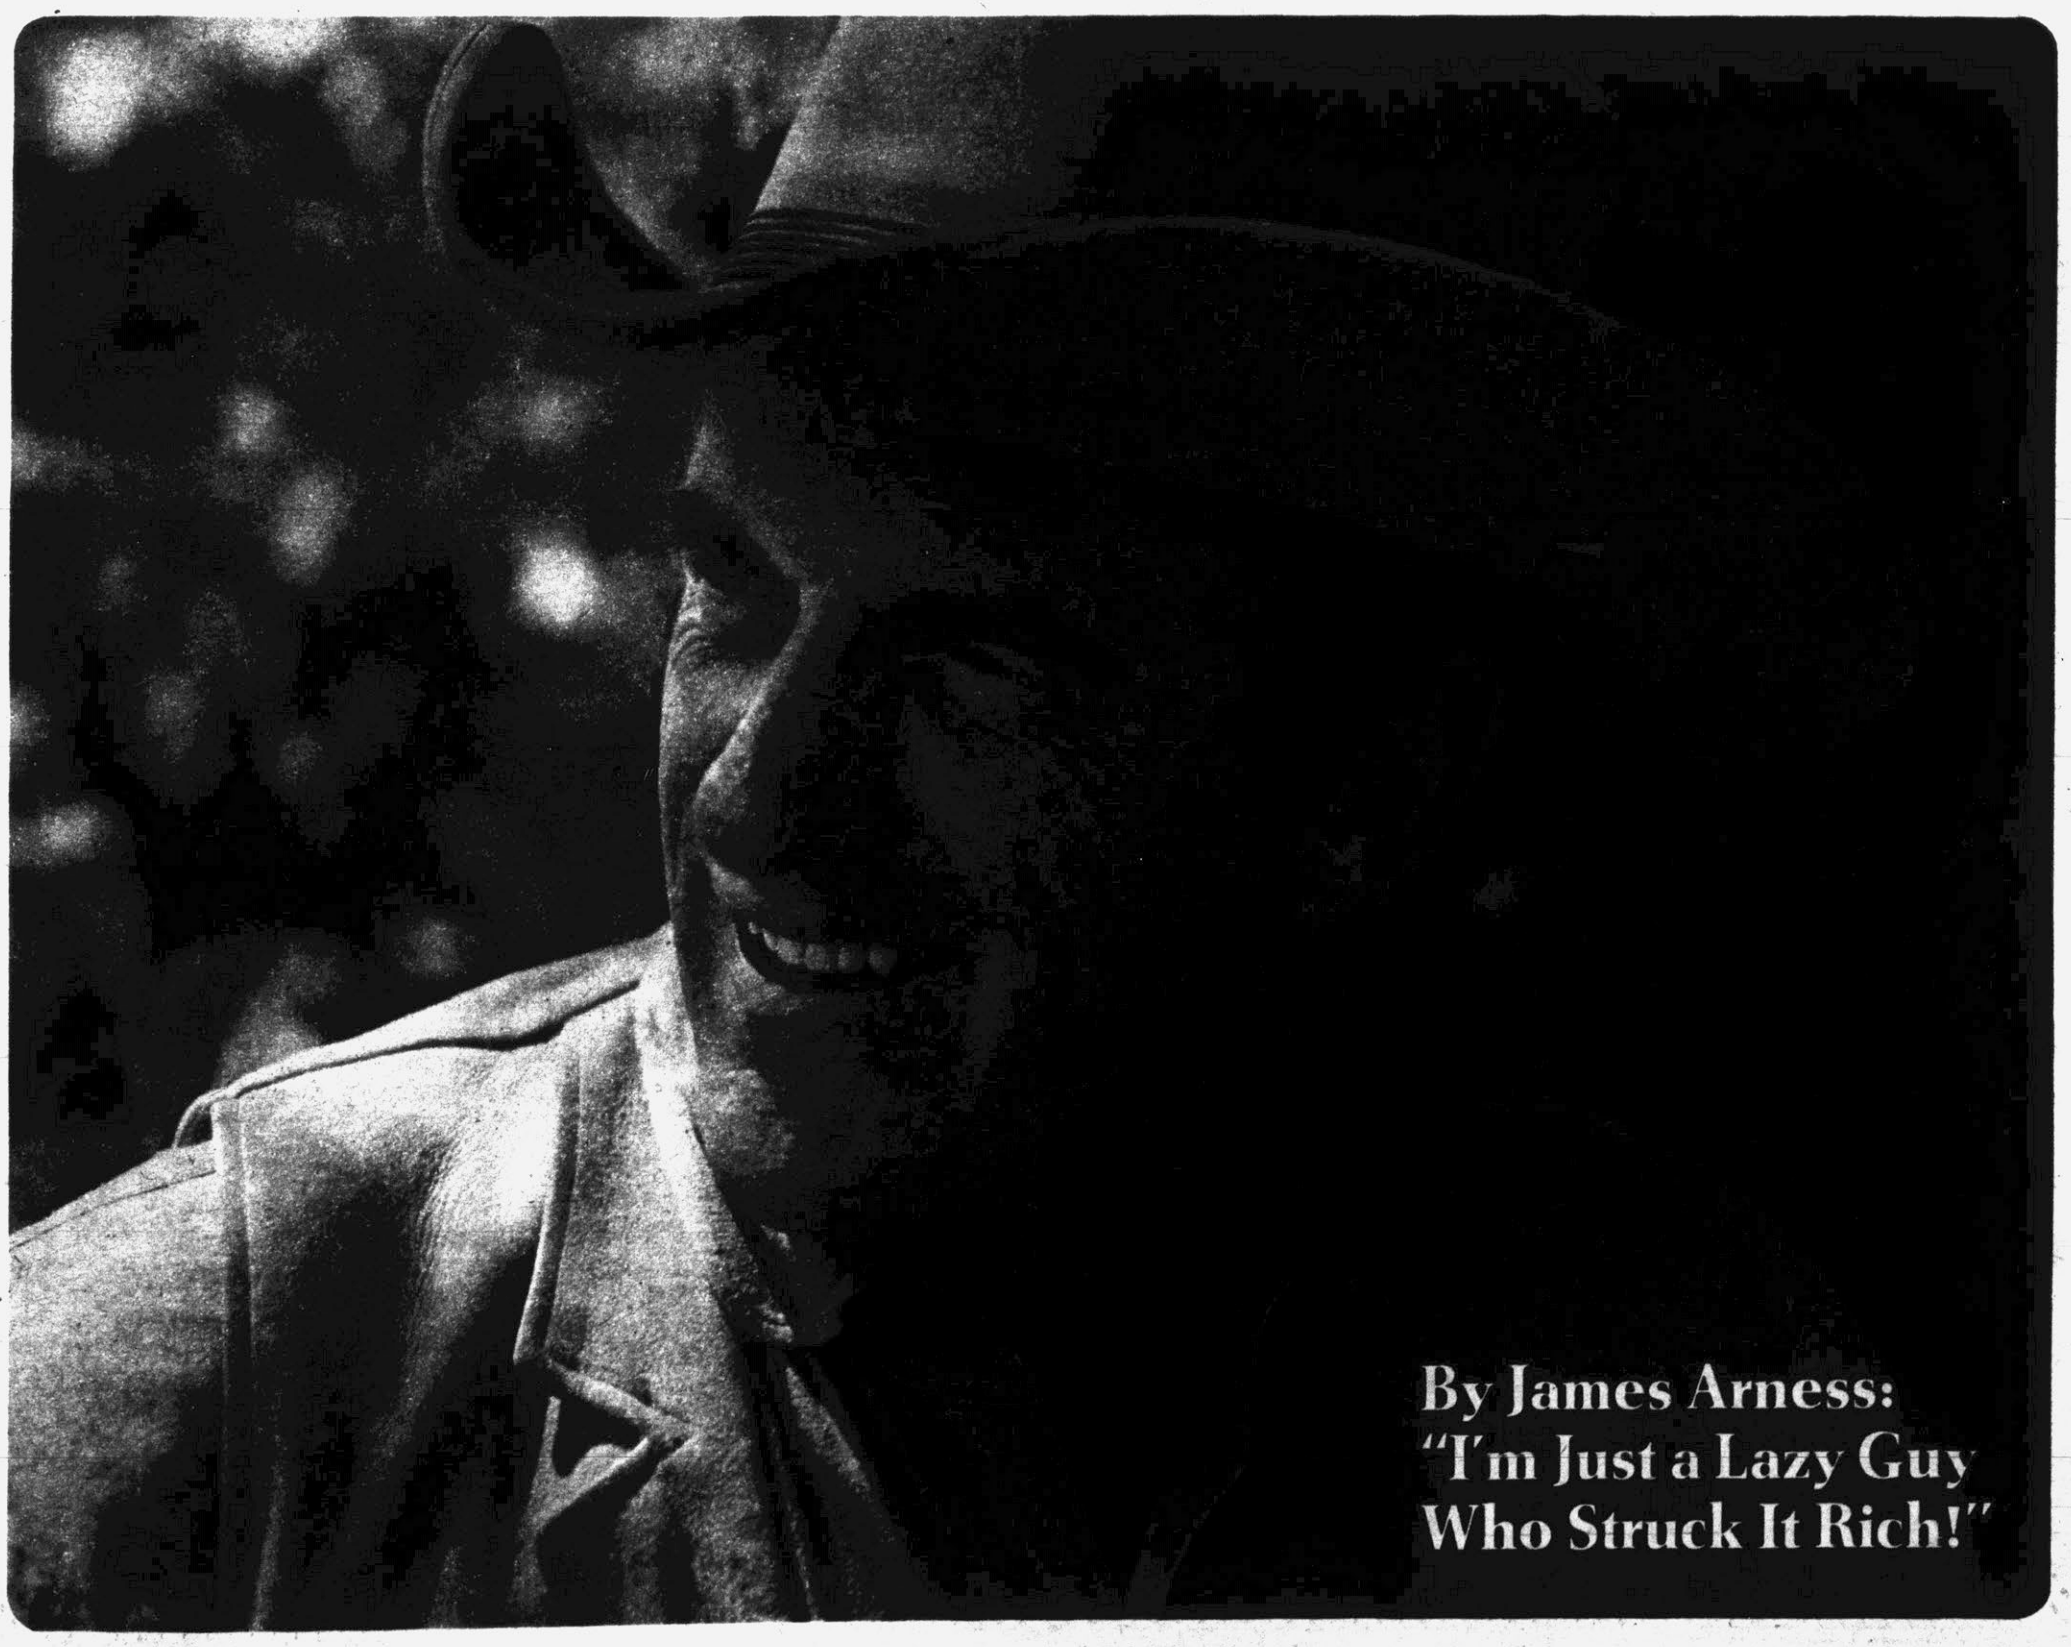
Things You Need To Know If You Plan Retirement

This Christmas, Try A Different Slant To Your Gift-Giving



By James Arness: "I'm Just a Lazy Guy Who Struck It Rich!"

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ARTHUR GODFREY, radio & TV personality

I've heard several reasons given as to why you quit radio. What is the story?—L. L. Baker, Bloomington, Ind.

● There comes a time after 27 years with the same program. And the network isn't what it used to be. There's no control over the affiliates. Some of them play me at 1 a.m., or 5 a.m. or 6 a.m. What's happened to network radio is that the affiliated stations found out they could make a buck without the networks. They hate anything that requires attentive listening. The network says, 'We're sorry, but there isn't much we can do.' So I say, the hell with it all. There are about 250 stations on the CBS network and the preponderant majority just plays rock and roll music or keeps repeating the news day and night. They don't want anything of significance. When I took off on my ecology campaign about five years ago, some 55 stations threatened to drop my show. They told the network that they wanted more music and entertainment. One of the things you have to watch out for is that some station owners have interests in strip-mining and timberlands. They don't want programs that generate public pressure against them.

FOR SEN. EDMUND MUSKIE

There has been talk about the term of office for President being extended to six years. What is your feeling about this idea?—D. Downs, Durham, N.C.

● In this time of complex issues and huge bureaucracies, our Government is already too slow in responding to our problems and needs. I oppose lengthening of the Presidential term to six years because I feel it would seriously undermine the control that voters exercise over the actions of the Executive Branch.

FOR PATTY DUKE, actress

When did you start acting, and what was your first big break?—Mrs. R. F. Long, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● I started when I was seven. Besides attending small professional schools, I went from office to office for bookings. Didn't get a job for two years. My father was a cab driver, my mother a cashier in a restaurant. My first big break was when I was 14 and did "Miracle Worker," playing Miss Helen Keller.

FOR HOPE LANGE, actress

I vaguely remember that you had once been named "official dog-walker" for Fala, President Roosevelt's dog. Is there anything to this?—Mrs. M. Thomsin, New York, N. Y.

● When I was a child, my parents owned a restaurant on Washington Square in Greenwich Village, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who lived in the neighborhood, regularly walked Fala by the restaurant. The dog, smelling the food, would stop by the door. Mrs. Roosevelt struck up an acquaintance with my mother, and when we learned that the First Lady was looking for a dog walker, I volunteered.

FOR HOWARD PYLE, Director of the National Safety Council

● Our estimates are that 600 to 800 deaths annually are attributed to hunting accidents, and that for every fatal accident there are eight nonfatal ones.

FOR DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR., actor

Many young actors say the star system has collapsed and that they are happy it did. How do you feel about that?—H. M. Mason Jr., San Antonio, Texas.

● I don't know if the star system has totally collapsed. Taylor and Burton still atttract attention wherever they go. And I'm not so sure today's young actors are so against the idea of a star system. What many of them object to is the fact that they are not stars, so they have to tell the world they never wanted to be stars.

FOR EARL SCRUGGS, musician

We were surprised when you broke off your relationship with Lester Flatt. What was the cause of the blow-up?—Henry Ross, Lansing, Mich.

● The press made our parting sound a lot less friendly than it really was. Lester wanted to return to the original way we had done material in 1948, while I was more interested in modern things. Learning a new tune has always been exciting for me. And then I'd been on the road for almost 20 years. I wanted to be with my children.

FOR JOHNNY UNITAS, pro football star

The attorney general of Massachusetts claims it is illegal for a pro football team to include exhibition game tickets in a season ticket package, thus forcing the purchaser to buy tickets he might not want. If this is upheld all over, how could the owners make up for the loss in revenue?—William M. Connolly, North Haven, Conn.

● The owners could simply schedule all the games as official games, and we'd play a 20-game season.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON, actress

Do you find it more difficult to work with child actors, as you do with six in the Brady Bunch, than adult actors?—F. Boone, Springfield, Mo.

● It depends on the youngsters. I have worked with children before—for example, in "The Sound of Music"—and some of them can be very difficult. The six youngsters I work with now are professional and very delightful. We all feel like a true family—when they step out of line, I discipline them as I would my own four. Anyway, large families are my way of life; I come from a family of ten.

FOR HARRY REASONER, newscaster

There is much talk about objectivity and bias on the part of newscasters these days. What are your thoughts on this problem?—R. L. Johnson, Bloomington, Ind.

● We have to draw the delicate line between what is legitimate news analysis and what is editorial comment. Both broadcasting and print journalists must deal with these things each day, and the honest ones know in their hearts that there are no instant answers. On TV, the heat is on hotter because you're right there on camera, before millions of viewers, and you have little time to reflect. So you just rely on your reporter's instinct and your own sense of fairness, both of which, hopefully, are developed by experience. With these safeguards, I think it is all right for a commentator—or even local station management—to take a stance, provided it is clearly presented as opinion.

Things You Should Know When

Predicts one authority: "By 1980, the average 65- year-old will have the health

Not long ago, a friend of mine, in his early 50's, was talking about the things he was going to do when he retired as office manager of a local business firm.

"First," he said, "Alice and I are going to take a nice slow freighter cruise, maybe go all the way around the world. Then we'll sell the house here and move south, plant a real garden, swim all year round."

"Pretty expensive plans, aren't they?" I asked.

"Well, I'm not rich," my friend said, "but I figure between my pension, and Social Security and what I'll get for the house, we should be able to afford it."

I certainly wish him well with his dream, but I'm afraid my friend may be in for a rude awakening. After years of constant activity, is he going to be able to just sit in a deck chair for most of a year? Will the price he gets for his home be enough to pay for a new one? How much has inflation nicked into his savings and pension money? My friend—ordinarily an astute businessman—hasn't thought about any of those things.

Yet the most important key to successful retirement, authorities say, is the foresight to prepare for it well ahead of time. Indeed, according to surveys by Duke University's Center for the Study of Aging, the happiest retirees are those who begin making careful plans five, 10 or even 20 years ahead of time.

A generation or two ago retirement was chiefly a concern of the privileged few. But today millions of Americans trade work for leisure in their later years, either because they are forced into it by their companies or else because they want to. According to Census Bureau estimates, by the late 1970's there will be more than 23,000,000 of us over age 65. Millions more are stopping work at earlier ages. The Bureau of National Affairs in Washington reports that half of all major businesses and a third of all smaller firms now permit employees to retire at reduced pensions at 55. Moreover, the medical advances that are extending life expectancy mean that the average retired person will have about 15 extra years of leisure.

How can you prepare now to make these years enjoyable and rewarding? Here, from experts, are some valuable suggestions for sensible long-range planning:

Your Home. One of the major blessings of retirement is the freedom to live where you choose. But the error that many retired persons live to regret is making a bad decision. For example, one couple who had spent 35 years in snowy Minnesota couldn't wait to sell their home and move to sunny Southern California. Unfortunately, after eight months there, they found that the combination of dry air and frequent spells of smog were giving them respiratory troubles. Another couple, who had lived in a small Illinois town close to their four children and 13 grandchildren, were lured by the promise of peace and quiet to buy a house in a "golden age" community a thousand miles away. Within three months they were desperate for the familiar sounds of children's laughter, and missed terribly the casual visits of their family and old friends.

To avoid such disappointments, experts advise that you think long and hard before you make major changes in your pattern of living. "When you live for years in a community you put down deep roots," says retirement planning expert Henry Jones. When you move, you become a stranger in your new community. "If you move without being prepared, you may find yourself unbearably unhappy."

Just as a businessman tests his new ideas, you should test your ideas for retirement living. "Select a few places where you think you might want to live," say advisers with the American Association of Retired Persons, "and do a research job on them." Read about them, study maps, get literature from the local Chambers of Commerce and other organizations that will tell you all about the community. Even pay a visit, if possible. Also, consider your present home town as a retirement possibility. You may decide that the advantages of familiar surroundings, friendly faces and mortgage-free living outweigh the attractions of year-round golf or deep-sea fishing.

Your Finances. No one can be expected to project a dollars-and-cents budget for his future retirement years. But anyone can make an educated estimate of his living costs and his anticipated income—and, more important, he can do a number of specific things now that can help him live more comfortably later on.

To begin with, don't underestimate what it will cost you to live as a retired person. Too many people assume that with the children grown, the house paid for and one's personal desires pitched to a lower key, expenses will be smaller. Perhaps. But medical bills may rise, investments may sour, moves to new living quarters may be expensive. Above all, while your income will be more or less fixed, inflation is likely to keep the cost of living rising. The trend toward earlier retirement, plus a longer life expectancy, makes traditional "retirement budget" tables unrealistic. Today financial experts say, a retired couple needs at least $600 a month to maintain a "moderate" living standard.

"When you live for years in a community," says one expert, "you put down deep roots. If you move without being prepared, you may find yourself unbearably unhappy."

To plan ahead, you should make an inventory of the sources of your retirement income—and then do what you can to maximize them. For example, check with your Social Security district office to get an estimate of your monthly benefits upon your retirement. Talk to your life-insurance man about how you can best use the cash values your policies have built up. If you have an annuity that guarantees you fixed payments for life, explore the ad-and vigor he had at 45 or 50." What other factors might you have failed to take into account?

visability of converting it to a new variable annuity which puts the same sum into a mutual fund and pays changing monthly amounts that reflect the changing value of the investment.

Your Activities. Many people who look ahead to retirement assume they will enjoy filling their time with travel, relaxation, sports, reading—"just lazin' in the ol' hammock," as one man put it. But the fact is that most of us quickly get bored with lazing about. Travel is expensive, some sports are physically too demanding and the 2,000 extra free hours a year soon loom up as an awful lot of empty time.

"As a result, there is a clinical syndrome we call 'retirement shock'," says Dr. Edward L. Bortz of Philadelphia's Lankenau Hospital. It can consist of anything from vague aches and pains to depression and despair. It comes from the sudden sense of uselessness that occurs when a busy and demanding life turns into a seemingly empty one. To avoid this experts recommend that you plan ahead for the activities that will fill your retirement years. For example:

- An avid fisherman took a preretirement hobby class in fly tying. Today, in his early 70's, he combines pleasure with business by crafting his own flies, testing them in the local streams and selling them by mail order.
- An accountant with a large company devoted three evenings a week—in the five years before his retirement—to building up a small business handling tax returns. After retirement, he expanded to a three-day-a-week bookkeeping service for neighborhood store owners.
- A middle-aged couple became involved in the affairs of a neighborhood day-care center for children. After retirement, they were made members of its board of directors—and soon were involved in a host of other community activities that kept them busy and interested.

It is not exactly news that there are countless opportunities for retired persons to work, to serve and to keep active. What is not so well-known is that, thanks to medical advances, age is no longer a barrier to ambition. Predicts Augustus Kinzel, president of the Jonas Salk Institute for Biological Studies: "By 1980, the average 65-year-old will have the vigor he had at 45 or 50."

Your Family. "Retirement poses great emotional adjustment problems for wives and children of retirees," says Dr. Jack Weinberg, director of the Illinois State Psychiatric Institute. A wife suddenly finds a man around the house and under her feet all day, either moping about, ordering her about as if she were his office staff or interfering in her own activities. Children find a retired parent either fiercely—and often foolishly—determined not to "bother" them or suddenly overly dependent on them.

Here again planning ahead can avert trouble. The man (or woman) who prepares himself for post retirement activities is less likely to be excessively dependent on his wife and children. Or spouses can jointly develop new interests during preretirement years to be shared later. I know one couple who, in their 50's, began a serious study of chess. Now retired, they engage each other in fierce "tournaments." Another woman, in the year before her husband was due to retire, gradually set up one room of their house as an office. When her husband left his job, he naturally gravitated to his home office and soon embarked on a writing project that now fills his days.

Your Self. Perhaps the major goal of planning for retirement is to prepare your own mind and spirit for the changes that will occur. In a work-oriented society it is easy to fall into the trap of believing that from being "somebody" you have suddenly become "nobody."

Some men are experimenting with "gradual retirement"—taking two months instead of two weeks for vacations and using them to expand their personal horizons. Some companies are giving older executives and senior workers from six to 12-month "sabbaticals" to enable them to experiment with retirement living. Many companies have "preretirement programs" for employees which cover various aspects of retirement and offer individual counseling service. Extensive advice on retirement planning is available from the American Association of Retired Persons, whose membership is open to anyone past 52. (For information, write the AARP at 1225 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.) □

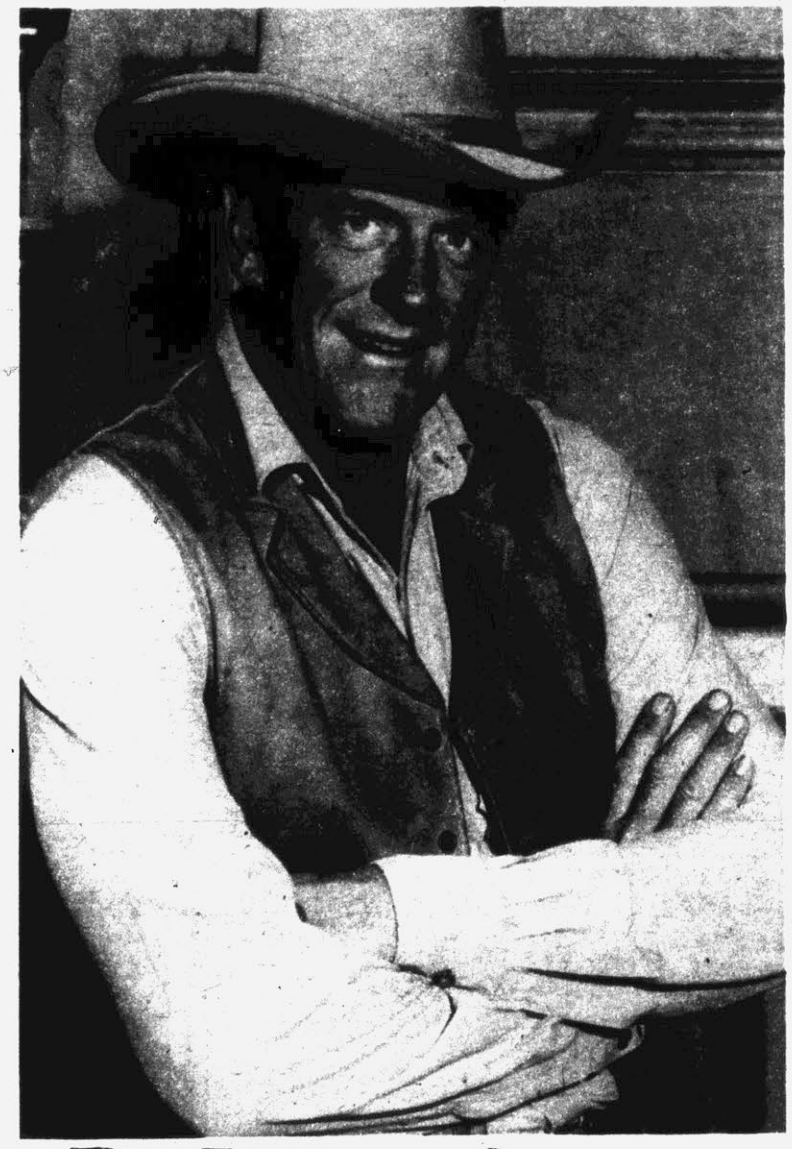
"I'm Just a Lazy Guy Who Struck It Rich"



By James Arness

Especially for Family Weekly

"One night, back in Minnesota, the station manager came in and asked me to do a political interview with the local councilman. I didn't even know the name of our local councilman. An hour later, this guy walks in and introduces himself as my councilman, Hubert Humphrey. 'Don't worry about a thing, son. I'll handle everything,' he told me."

"Gunsmoke" has been on the air for 16 years. Of course, it was the turning point in my career. But in my personal life, I don't think it has changed me a lot. I never liked to work hard, and I still don't.

Basically, I'm a lazy goof-off. Even as a kid I felt restless. I just took off every once in a while from my home on the outskirts of Minneapolis to ride the rails, do odd jobs, explore.

It was the draft in World War II that saved me from being thrown out of college in my first year. I just couldn't hack it. But I returned to college after I got back from the war because there didn't seem anything else to do. I figured I might as well take advantage of the G.I. Bill of Rights.

I was hit in the leg at Anzio, in 1944. The first couple of hours I didn't know if I'd ever get up again. Then this medic came along, examined me and said, "Congratulations, buddy, you've got a million-dollar wound!" That's the kind that's bad enough to put you out of action but not bad enough to affect your well-being—or so I thought. After three months in an army hospital in Italy and a year in a variety of hospitals in the States, I got my discharge and came home as I'd left—a private. And, as it turned out, with a bum leg. And the older I get, the more this leg of mine acts up. If it doesn't get better, I may have to create a new character—a combination of Matt Dillon and Chester, my limping side-kick when Dennis Weaver was on the show.

When I decided to enroll at Wisconsin's Beloit College, I had no more taste for book learning than before. When someone suggested that because I had a good voice I ought to take a course in radio announcing, I figured that sounded easy, so why not?

But then I kind of got to liking it. And when I heard of an opening to replace the regular disc jockey at a local radio station during his summer vacation, I got the job. Instead of taking it easy, I worked every day from three to midnight.

Every hour on the hour I had to read the news fresh off the teletype. One night the manager came in and asked me to do a political interview with the local councilman. I was never much interested in politics. I'm still not. At the time I didn't even know the name of our local councilman. "Don't worry, he'll introduce himself and bring a prepared script," the manager assured me. An hour later this guy walks in and introduces himself as my councilman, Hubert Humphrey. "Don't worry about a thing, son. I'll handle everything," he told me as he handed me a list of questions. "When I've finished my answer, I'll point at you again, and you read the next question." We had a hell of an interview.

I might have remained a disc jockey if it hadn't been for a friend of mine who had just gotten out of the Navy and had visions of becoming a great actor. "I met this guy from Hollywood who has a real in," he told me. "He can get us all the work we want." "What does he do?" I asked. "He's an extra," my buddy explained. Luckily we were very naïve.

We got to California with a hundred bucks between us. Of course, we couldn't get a job in any studio. I wasn't too disappointed because by then I felt that my life was radio. But my feelings weren't shared by the networks. I got nothing but discouragement. So the friend of my buddy suggested I use up the rest of my G.I. Bill to enroll in the Bliss Hayden Theatrical School on Robertson Boulevard. Eventually this led to my first job.

My big break came in 1955 when I became Matt Dillon on "Gunsmoke." This changed my mode of living, but not to the extent of the stories I keep hearing about myself. Like the one about my being the second wealthiest man in town—after Bob Hope. All I can say to that is it just ain't true—no way!

Sure, I make good money. But I spend lots of it, too—which brings me into conflict with my business manager. He's a great guy, except that spending a dollar really hurts him. He cringes whenever I buy anything.

What are my hobbies? Well, mostly I like to go into the wilderness—Canada, parts of northern California, and Baja California in Mexico. I love hunting and riding—also skiing. But that's becoming a problem because my leg is bothering me more and more. It's not so bad when I keep it straight, but now I've gotten arthritis in my knee. There isn't much the doctors can do about it. I've tried the spa deal at Baden-Baden, tasted a couple of glasses of that water. It was pretty good stuff, but it didn't do much for me.

"Gunsmoke" will be on the air for one more year under my present contract. After that, I'd prefer to do three or four two-hour "Gunsmoke" specials a year. It gets to be too much of a problem to turn out 26 good one-hour shows a year. Besides, this way I could live like I want—six months work, six months off at Mammoth, Mexico, or at the house I rented in Oahu, Hawaii. Great surf there. And I wouldn't miss Hollywood a bit. I've never been part of that scene anyway.

I've been divorced eight years. Rumors crop up periodically that I've secretly married again. I don't know how they get started. A month or so ago a journalist wrote how lonely I was, and how much I wanted to get married again if only I could find the right woman—a woman who likes the outdoors and wilderness. Before his article was published, he told me I'd probably be hearing from a lot of women, and he wanted 50 percent of the action! After the story came out, I called him and told him he could have 100 percent of it. I heard from lots of women, all right—all of them wanting to climb the Rockies with me!

Actually, I don't mind being on my own. In fact, I'm right fond of privacy. That's why I bought this house in Brentwood. The place is so isolated that I don't even know my neighbors, and they don't know me. What more do I need? I have three great kids (Craig, 23, Jenny, 21, and Rolf, 19). I like my work, enjoy traveling and have hobbies that keep me occupied and interested. In other words, I have a full life. □

Ronald Reagan's Daughter, Maureen: "Hollywood Is Prejudiced Against Me"

"My father used to act out 'The Shooting of Dan McGrew' for me. He died so beautifully that he scared me to death. One time, when I was four, and he lay on the floor gasping for air, I kept beating on his chest, crying, 'Wake up! Wake up!'"

You're blonde, blue-eyed, good looking, have a better than average singing voice, your mother is an Academy Award-winning actress, your father an ex-movie star and now Governor of California. Should be easy to get a job in show business, right?

"Wrong!" says Maureen Reagan, daughter of Gov. Ronald Reagan and his former wife, actress Jane Wyman. "Because Ronald Reagan is my father it is much more difficult to get a job! There exists a basic prejudice against him that I've never been able to overcome. Anyone who doesn't agree with his political views—which means most people in the film industry—automatically dislikes me as well. This town is far more against him than for him."

Typical, she said, was the reaction of a casting director a year ago who wouldn't even consider her for a role because the director disagreed with her father's handling of a tax issue. "I've lost out on a lot of jobs for that reason."

She did manage to appear on a few television programs, mostly interview shows like Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, Art Linkletter, Philbin's People and so forth. She also had a singing engagement at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. But she didn't earn enough to make a living, she readily admitted when I visited her in her second-story, walk-up apartment in an inexpensive apartment house on Beverly Glen Boulevard in West Los Angeles. The place was pleasantly but inexpensively furnished. Maureen told me she was doing her own cooking, sewing and cleaning.

That Maureen had difficulties earning a living was confirmed to me by her part-time publicist when I asked him how she got along financially. "Probably with unemployment insurance," he told me. "I imagine her parents help out from time to time...." He hesitated a moment. "Aside from that, I loaned her $1,500 last month." I did not ask whether she paid him for his public relations work.

Maureen—who did a walk-on in one film starring her mother, when she was five—stressed that it was only a couple of years ago that she decided to concentrate on acting again. She felt, however, that she had more going for her than most young women who attempt to get into show business. "There's a lot to be said for heredity," she insisted. "I have two talented people for parents. I think I have inherited some of their talent."

Most of what Maureen remembers of her early childhood concerns acting—primarily her father's. "He loved acting out 'The Shooting of Dan McGrew, for me. He died so beautifully. Usually he scared me to death! One day, when I was four, he hit the floor and gasped for air so convincingly that I beat on his chest and cried, 'Wake up! Wake up! Please wake up!' "

Another time, about a year later, she asked her mother to tell him when he came home that she'd gone away, forever and ever. Then when she heard him coming into the house after work, she hid in the living-room closet. "Obviously mother had winked at him, so he knew what it was all about. But he put on such a marvelous act about how disappointed he was I couldn't stand it and jumped out of the closet screaming 'I am here! I am here!' "

Maureen was seven when her parents were divorced. For the next four years she was shuttled from school to school. When she was 15, she was sent back East. "I guess mother wanted to broaden my horizons," she explained. First Marymount High School in Tarrytown, N. Y., then Marymount College in Arlington, Va. "I quit before the end of the first year. I just felt I ought to go out and make a living."

So she got a job as a secretary in nearby Washington D.C., simultaneously launching her career in show business. She sang with small bands throughout the Washington area and appeared in little theatre productions. By 1962, she was in constant demand in top supper clubs and stuck to it until her marriage to a Washington attorney in 1964. When the marriage ended in divorce in 1967, she returned to California but instead of trying show business again right away, spent an increasing amount of time in politics, mostly doing publicity for the Young Republican's organization. It proved satisfying ideologically and helped bring in some badly needed money. "Actually I have been in politics since 1960, but I really got going in 1967 when I started traveling outside the State to make speeches," she recalled. Except for a brief period when she did public relations for an airline, she devoted all her time to politics. But, she admitted, little of her time was spent in Sacramento where her father presides as Governor.

Maureen claims she is not bitter about her situation, although she considers the attitude of many producers, directors and casting directors unfair. "All I want is a chance to show what I can do," she told me, "and that is act! Particularly in movies." All she needs, says Maureen, is one lucky break, one good part to demonstrate her abilities.

Since she is unable to make a living with her chosen profession, she is still supplementing her income with public-relations work for political campaigns. "It helps make ends meet," she told me. "Besides, it beats unemployment!" □

Paul and I were drifting apart. He to his TV. I to my knitting. We only met at meals.

Then, La-Z-Boy® came into our life, with Sofette (our new reclining sofa). The Sofette proved to us that two could relax as easily as one.

At last, we could be together, separately. Each with our own set of controls for relaxing or reclining with individual foot rests. We could even use our Sofette as a comfortable guest bed. Or, get together and just rock.

La-Z-Boy gave us Sofette and a wide choice of beautifully carefree colors and fabrics. There were many styles to choose from, too. Our Sofette matches perfectly with our decor.

Now, I stick to my knitting and Paul knows the score. Thanks to La-Z-Boy. Get together with the La-Z-Boy Sofette® — at a store near you.

The Presidential Long Shots: What Makes Them Run?

Harris, Jackson, Chisholm, Mills, McCloskey. Do the names mean anything to you? They're all being mentioned as possible Presidents of the United States. But how much do we really know about them? And why are they running, even though the odds makers say they haven't a chance?

Running for President of the United States is a brutally punishing task, even for the candidate who has a lot going for him. It requires an endless, grinding toil, constant, exhausting travel and enormous sums of money. It takes away a man's leisure time for months—often years. And it can virtually destroy his family life.

These are formidable sacrifices even for a man with such political strength that he can feel the prize of the oval office within his grasp—a man such as Democratic front-runner Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

Yet as election year approaches, the field inevitably becomes studded with lesser candidates as well, men who make the same great investment of health and wealth despite immense odds against them.

For one thing, Presidential politicking can exert a siren call, an ego-pleasing summons which draws some men like a moth to a flame, even when they know their chances are nil. Republican Harold Stassen simply became addicted to it.

Others do it with the calculation of personal ambition, hoping to gain prominence and thus win some lesser award: the Vice Presidential nomination, for instance.

All of these elements and more seem to be present when one surveys some of the dark horses now on the Presidential track: Senators Fred Harris and Henry Jackson, Reps. Shirley Chisholm and Wilbur Mills for the Democrats, Rep. Paul McCloskey for the Republicans.

Sen. Fred R. Harris

Close observers regard Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma as a "true believer" but also find him a very ambitious man.

His beliefs have moved him to espouse, passionately, the cause of the "little people" and the poor, most particularly blacks and other minorities (his striking wife LaDonna is a Comanche Indian). But as he pursued this course on the national political scene, serving as chairman of the Democratic Committee and a member of the Kerner Commission on urban rioting, it all but ruined him with the generally conservative voters back home in Oklahoma.

Slim as his Presidential hopes are, he's the only man in America who might have a better chance of winning the White House than being reelected to the Senate—so he had little to lose by running.

It's well-known that the 40-year-old Harris badly wanted to be the Democratic nominee for Vice President in 1968 but lost out to Senator Muskie.

Some think the Senator secretly hopes he can attract enough notice to snag that second place on the ticket this second time around.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson

Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson stands as an inspiration to other dark horses.

When he began making Presidential noises last winter, few took him seriously. He still hardly scratches in the national poll ratings, yet has become regarded as a rising star because he's the only man in the field with much nationwide appeal for conservative Democrats.

Although generally liberal on domestic issues, Jackson is an unabashed "hawk" on the Vietnam War and a hardliner over all in foreign affairs. He would have the U.S. support Israel against all pressures, and issues dire warnings that trusting the Russians amounts to dealing with burglars.

At the least, the 59-year-old Jackson wants to keep the party platform—and the promises of its nominee—from turning away from these views entirely.

Older hands remember that back in 1960, "Scoop" Jackson spent a lonely afternoon waiting for a call offering the Vice Presidential nomination. The call—from Jack Kennedy—went to Lyndon Johnson instead. But "Scoop" may hope his phone will yet ring next year. After all, it's only 12 years later.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm

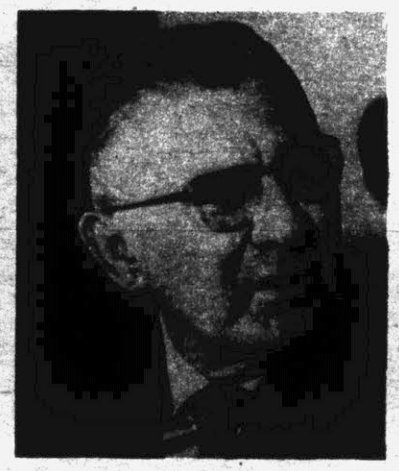
Rep. Shirley Chisholm, the tough-minded black congresswoman from Brooklyn, virtually admits she has no illusions of winning the Democratic Presidential nomination. But as a member of two minority groups—blacks and women—she feels that she has a unique chance to build a coalition from these constituencies and exert influence on what has always before been "a white male decision."

"The most I hope to accomplish is to be able to go to that convention and not have them [white politicians] make the sole decision of who is going to be on that ticket," she says.

What does she seek?

"We would be very much interested in who would be chosen for Vice President. We might want a statement on the rights of black people, the rights of women" included in the party platform.

To document her strength, Mrs. Chisholm expects to enter Presidential primary elections in Florida, North Carolina, Wisconsin and California.



Rep. Wilbur D. Mills

For many years, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas behaved as if being the chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee was all any man could ever ask. He reveled in that post.

But lately the stolid 62-year-old Congressman acts as if he has been nibbled by that old, familiar insect—the Presidential bug.

"If I could get the nomination, I could beat Nixon," Democrat Mills has said. "I'd sweep the South and the border states, I'd get the business community and a lot of Republican voters. Labor wouldn't turn me down, and the blacks would take me over Nixon."

Perhaps. But some close observers think Mills is suddenly barnstorming about the country (after years of living a secluded life in Washington) largely because he enjoys it.

"He's greeted like a visiting potentate and finds it very flattering," says one Mills-watching reporter. "So long as it continues to build his ego, I think he'll keep it up. He likes the idea that he could at least swing some weight in the final choice at the convention."

Rep. Paul McCloskey

In 1968, Sen. Eugene McCarthy wrote the book for dark-horse candidates by driving incumbent President Lyndon Baines Johnson out of politics.

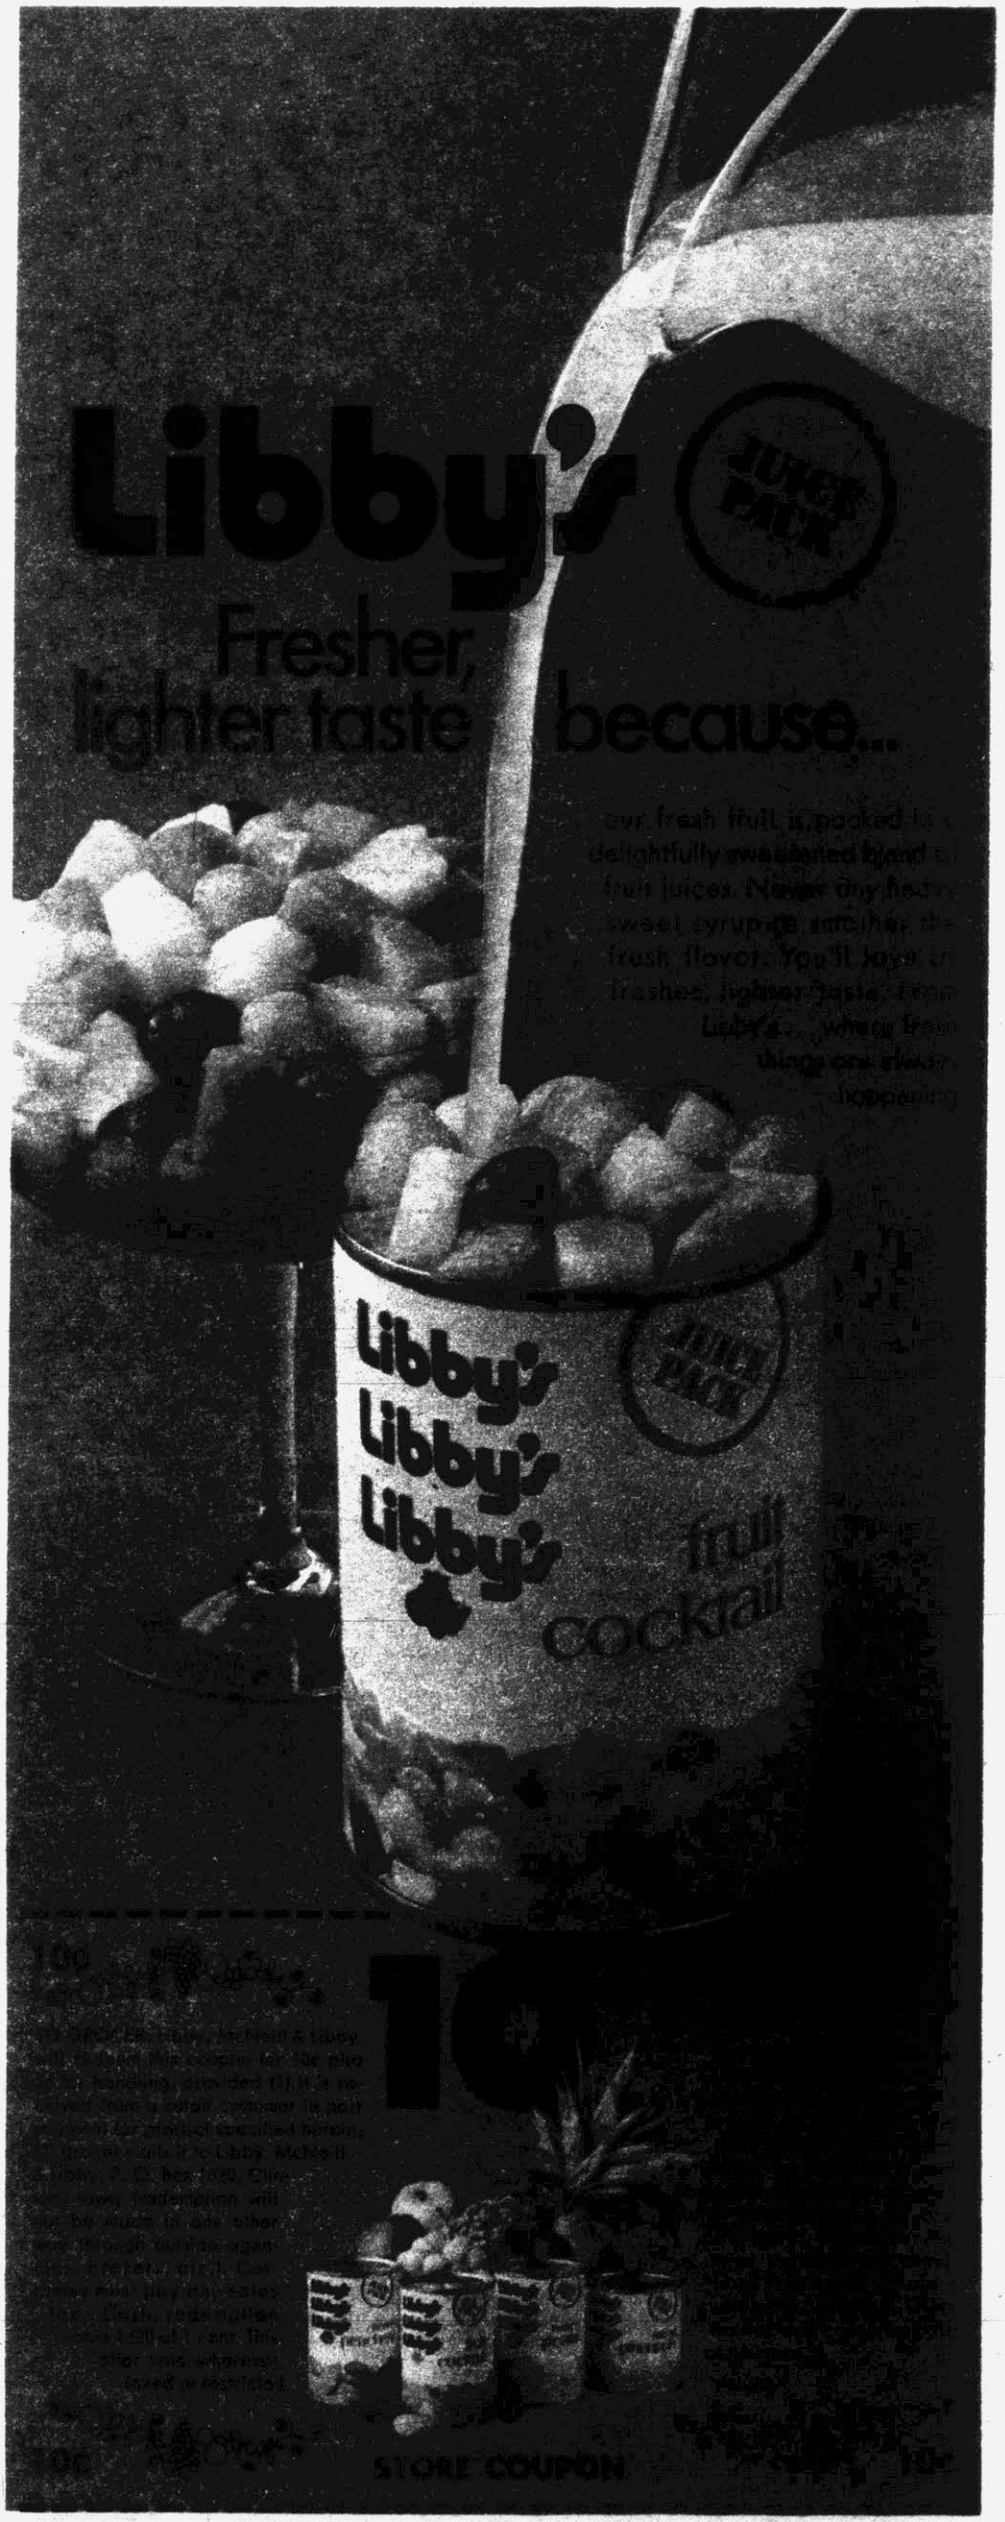
California Congressman Paul N. McCloskey, Jr. wants to do the same thing to Richard Nixon in 1972—and for the same reason: opposition to the war.

Most people thought McCarthy had no chance at all then. But McCloskey, a 43-year-old decorated Marine veteran of the Korean War, appears to have even less of one now.

The people in general and McCloskey's fellow Republicans in particular, seem inclined to go along with Nixon's gradual pace of Vietnam withdrawal. And so the Congressman's slender campaign effort flickers like a dying candle.

Still, he plows doggedly ahead, hoping that he can somehow draw enough votes in the New Hampshire primary election next March to make Nixon look bad.

"I know that even if I win some primaries, I'm not going to win the nomination. "But I've tapped a lot of dissatisfaction with Nixon and Agnew and all their policies on the war, race and priorities."



COOKBOOK/By Melanie DeProft

Here are some desserts you can dare to make several days in advance. The accent is on walnuts.

Do-Ahead Desserts

BROILER WALNUT HONEY CAKE

¾ cup walnut pieces, chopped medium fine
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¾ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup hot water

1. Sift flour, baking soda, salt, and spices together. Set aside.

2. Cream butter, adding sugar gradually until well mixed. Add egg and beat until light and fluffy.

3. Stir in in order until thoroughly mixed the sifted dry ingredients, honey, and walnuts.

4. Quickly and thoroughly stir in the hot water. Turn into a greased (bottom only) 9x9x2-in. baking pan.

5. Bake at 325° F. 35 to 40 min., or just until cake tests done.

6. Meanwhile, blend 3 tablespoons butter, melted, ⅓ cup honey, ¾ cup medium chopped walnuts; set aside and keep warm until cake is removed from oven.

7. Immediately spoon over hot cake, spreading evenly. Set under broiler with top about 8 in. from heat just until bubbly and lightly browned. (Watch carefully to avoid scorching.)

One 9-inch square cake

APRICOT BUTTER BARS

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
½ cup butter
⅓ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup dried apricots, snipped
½ to ¾ cup walnuts, medium chopped

1. Mix 1 cup flour and the sugar in a bowl. Cut in the butter with a pastry blender or two knives until the particles formed are the size of small peas. Turn into a 9x9x2-in. baking pan and press firmly into an even layer over bottom of pan.

2. Bake at 350°F. 25 min.

3. Meanwhile, blend remaining ⅓ cup flour, the baking powder, and salt. Set aside.

4. Beat eggs with extract. Add the brown sugar gradually, beating until thick. Stir in the flour mixture, apricots, and nuts.

5. Remove pan from oven; turn the apricot mixture onto the layer in pan and spread evenly.

6. Return to oven and continue baking 30 min.

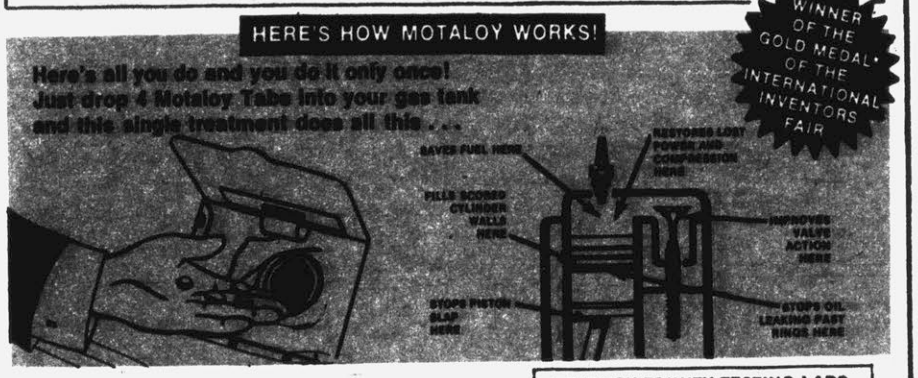
Now! MOTALOY gives your car's rings and valves a replating job while you drive!

SEE HOW ONLY $6 WORTH OF MOTALOY RECONDITIONS YOUR ENGINE — HELPS PREVENT THE NEED FOR A $100 RING AND VALVE JOB!



JUST DROP 4 Motaloy tabs into your gas tank . . . and you've started your engine rebuilding job! Each tab is a scientifically compounded alloy of 9 metals and elements. As you drive, tiny Motaloy particles are released into the fuel. These Motaloy molecules are carried through the fuel line into the combustion chamber . . . where the intense heat of ignition activates them to soften, then remove carbon deposits. Then, Motaloy starts metal-plating pitted and worn surfaces of cylinder walls, piston rings, valve seats, and stems.

A SINGLE MOTALOY TREATMENT DOES ALL THIS FOR YOUR ENGINE!

The more you drive, the more protection Motaloy deposits in the form of a fine, anti-friction metal plating that rebuilds, smooths, and protects vital surfaces! As Motaloy continues to plate and re-plate, engine compression is increased without a ring and valve job! Gas mileage improves, your engine eats less oil! And over fifteen years of use by over a million motorists — some of them with cars that have clocked over 100,000 miles after a single Motaloy treatment — prove that Motaloy can keep your engine running younger and peppier . . . for years longer!

PROTECTS NEW ENGINES... REJUVENATES OLD ONES!

Getting a new car? Start it off with a Motaloy treatment — 6 dollars of protection that can mean invaluable extra engine life for your car. Can actually help maintain full factory compression for the life of your car . . . so you'll get better performance for years longer . . . and a better trade-in or resale price whenever you decide to sell! And Motaloy's track record on cars that have rolled up 50,000 . . . 70,000 . . . even 90,000 miles shows fantastic results in improved compression, lower gas and oil consumption, better pickup, smoother running — just as if the engine were years younger! Give your car's engine a new . . . and longer . . . lease on life with amazing Motaloy! Remember — a single Motaloy treatment lasts for the-life of your car! And Motaloy cannot harm even the finest engine in any way!

USERS REPORT OVER 100,000 MILES OF BETTER ENGINE PERFORMANCE!

"About 1960 I put some Motaloy tabs in my gas tank, and I have driven this Mercedes-Benz 135,000 miles since!"
L.A.M., Sioux City, Iowa

"About 5 years ago I put Motaloy tablets in my Cadillac. I drove this car 125,000 miles and it never used any oil between changes — 1,500-2,000 miles!"
V.V.G., Cincinnati, Ohio

"My Chevrolet had 49,000 miles on it. It had noisy valves and other troubles. Motaloy corrected all this. It is running better than new."
L.F.M., Walterboro, S.C.

"After using Motaloy in my Chevrolet my compression increased an average of 31½ pounds per cylinder, which to me is conclusive proof that Motaloy will do everything that is claimed for it."
W.P.C., Elkview, West Va.

"My Dodge used one quart of oil every 225 miles. After using Motaloy I drove 1,245 miles and did not have to add any oil."
G.W., Cincinnati, Ohio

"Since adding Motaloy I have driven more than 1,500 miles, and I must say that I am amazed about the wonderful results. My gas consumption improved 40%, and my oil consumption is practically nil."
W.G.K., Fort Atkinson, Wash.

Radioactive Isotope Tracer Tests Confirm Motaloy's 'Plating-Action!

. . . The activation of the Motaloy and the subsequent tracing operations of the activated Motaloy was conducted by an independent research laboratory especially licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission to supervise the industrial application of radioactive isotopes.

Piston Rings	Light
Piston	Light
Cylinder Walls	Light
Intake Valve Face	Very Heavy
Exhaust Valve Face	Heavy
Intake Valve Seat	Heavy
Exhaust Valve Seat	Medium

TRY MOTALOY AT OUR RISK!

A complete Motaloy package (4 tabs) is only $6.00. Try Motaloy in your car for 30 days, to give its plating action a fair chance. If at the end of that time your car's engine isn't running smoother . . . if you aren't using less oil . . . if your gas mileage hasn't started to improve (as it will continue to do until you've reached full factory compression) . . . if you don't agree that Motaloy has given your engine a new lease on life — just return the empty Motaloy package, and we'll send you back every penny of your purchase price! If you do find Motaloy does give your car the equivalent of a ring and valve job for $6.00, tell your friends about it. They'll thank you for spreading the good word!

No matter how heavy the downpour, your shoulders stay dry.

the new Clear-View dome umbrella.

Only $3.99 Comparable umbrellas cost $8.00 and more

At last, a forward-looking idea in umbrellas. So sensible, so practical, you'll wonder how you ever got along without it. And so glamorous, you'll win enthusiastic compliments wherever you go. The ingeniously designed Clear-View dome keeps you dry and protected . . . not only your head, but your shoulders as well. Your hairdo stays neat and pretty right through drizzle or downpour. And you'll always see where you're walking! What's more, there's even an extra advantage . . . you won't get poked in the face by someone else's old-fashioned umbrella.

Lovely To Look At, Comfortable To Carry

Our smart, new Clear-View Dome Umbrella is styled in heavy-duty, reinforced clear plastic with sturdy metal ribs that open to a 26" diameter dome. A truly beautiful and useful accessory, wonderfully lightweight and comfortable to carry. You've probably seen umbrellas like this selling for $8.00 — perhaps even more — in fine shops around town. Our direct-by-mail price is only $3.99 plus 60c for shipping and handling or 2 for $7.00 plus 90c for shipping and handling or 6 for $19.00 plus $2.00 for shipping and handling or 12 for $36.00 plus $3.00 for shipping and handling.

NEW JN INSTA-JET PROPANE

FLAME GUN

WITH TUNE-A-FLAME INSTANT ACTION

PRE-SEASON SALE!

NOW ONLY $9.99

Limited Time Only! Order Now!

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON.

Lightweight, Easy-Handling

An engineering marvel! $9.99 JN Insta-Jet Propane Flame Gun is loaded from handle to barrel with important years-ahead features. Features to be found in expensive kerosene guns and burners that sell for as much as $39.95. Like Tune-A-Flame that lets you dial precisely the right size flame for the job you want to do. And the extra-long feeder tube that lets you reach pesky out-of-the-way places without straining or bending. Plus the easy-to-hold machine-gun grip and amazingly lightweight design. (Less than three pounds complete, including the propane cylinder.) So light, almost anyone can use the JN Insta-Jet, with only one hand, and never get tired!

The Four Seasons Flame Gun

You'll use the JN Insta-Jet right through winter, spring, summer and fall. And it will do your heart good! Because it takes the work right out of dozens of clean-up chores around your house. In winter, the adjustable instant-action flame clears away ice and snow faster than you'd believe possible. Whips right through even the heaviest drifts. Cleans walks and driveways. Routs clogged gutters of ice and old leaves. Thaws frozen pipes. No straining, no stooping, no bending. And you can say a final farewell to shoveling!

In summer, your JN Insta-Jet Flame Gun burns out weeds so fast, it's downright amazing! Destroys insect nests at a safe distance. Edges walks, paths, lawns and flower beds. Burns out unsightly grass between bricks or flagstones on the patio. Removes old paint from hard-to-reach places. All without exertion. And without staining your clothes.

Outperforms The Others!

This remarkable gun produces a clean, hot flame for up to 14 hours on a single standard cylinder of propane gas easily obtainable at most hardware, paint and department stores. Compare efficiency. Kerosene-burning rods (costing as much as $29.95 and more) work only twenty minutes to one hour before requiring refilling. What's more, the JN Insta-Jet propane flame is nearly twice as hot as kerosene. And the Insta-Jet is clean . . . can be used indoors or outdoors. Kerosene rods are messy . . . their flame leaves an ugly black residue on both the gun and the cleaned area.

Yes, compare. It's no contest! This JN Insta-Jet wins on virtually every count! So use your head instead of straining your heart. Send for this money-saving, work-saving flame gun today—without risking a single penny!

JAY NORRIS CORP. Dept. L-664, 31 Hanse Ave., Freeport, N.Y. 11520

UNCONDITIONAL FREE Replacement Guarantee!

We guarantee the JN Insta-Jet Propane Flame Gun absolutely. If you should damage it, return it to our factory together with $1.00 to cover the cost of shipping and handling. We will return it in perfect condition or send you a brand new JN Insta-Jet Propane Flame Gun as a replacement.

Dear Family Weekly...

I liked your article saluting the newspaper boys of America. What I didn't like was that you forgot to mention the paper girls.

I am Carla Muncy. I am in the 7th grade, I am 12½ years old, and I am a newspaper girl. I deliver the Bluefield Daily Telegraph every morning and the Sunset News-Observer every night. All together I have 80 customers.

I believe that my friend Louise Goldstonn (Bluefield Daily Telegraph), my sister Kim (Sunset News-Observer) and I work just as hard or harder than my brother and the rest of the paper boys in our town.

I wish you would say something nice about us girls, too.

Thank you,
Carla Muncy
Athens, W. Virginia

You're right, Carla. Our apologies—and admiration—to you, Louise, Kim and all the other newspaper girls who wrote in to say they felt neglected.—The Editors

Helps Rid Lungs of Excess Phlegm

This clinic-tested preparation is called BRONKAID®. In one tablet, Bronkaid combines an expectorant and bronchodilators to attack the two major causes of congestion and wheezing. Bronkaid Tablets quickly start acting to soften and loosen excess phlegm. This direct action helps rid your air passages of sticky, stringy phlegm. At the same time, Bronkaid helps relax tightened bronchial muscles and eases the distress that results from stagnant air trapped in the lungs.

With Bronkaid Tablets, you enjoy amazing two-way help in one combination tablet. Bronkaid helps you cough up phlegm, clear clogged air passages, restores free breathing. You cough less; you breathe more freely, easily. For rapid relief of coughing and wheezing of bronchial congestion and bronchial asthma, for relief that lasts for hours, get BRONKAID® TABLETS today. No prescription required. Available at your local drugstore. Drew Laboratories; Div. of Sterling Drug, Inc., N.Y., N.Y. 10016.

Denture Invention

For People With "Uppers" and "Lowers"

For the first time, science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds dentures both "uppers" and "lowers"—as they've never been held before. It forms an elastic membrane that helps hold your dentures to the natural tissues of your mouth.

It's FIXODENT®—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U. S. Patent #3,003,988.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

The special pencil-point dispenser lets you put FIXODENT exactly where it's needed. Resists oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last for hours. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at all drug counters.

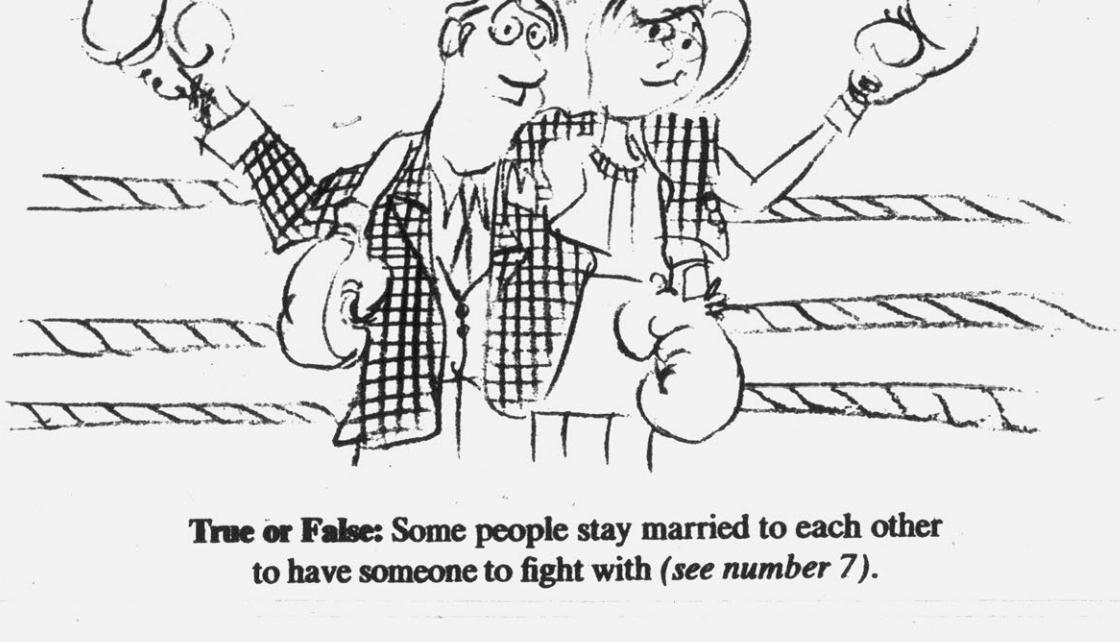
QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

What Makes A Good Marriage?



True or False: Some people stay married to each other to have someone to fight with (see number 7).

The delicate art of getting along with one's helpmeet is one which concerns most of America's husbands and wives—many of whom find that it's difficult to keep the home fires burning without getting one's fingers singed now and then. This quiz takes a quick look at some of the considerations involved.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. You'll get along better with your spouse by being frank and honest about what you feel, than if you're diplomatic and just say what you think he or she wants to hear.

2. Jealousy is bad for any relationship.

3. A wife is more responsive to what a husband doesn't say than to what he does say.

4. A man should think twice before he criticizes another woman in front of his wife.

5. A good physical relationship determines more than any other single factor how well a husband and wife are going to get along together.

6. The longer you're married to someone, the more inclined you are to overlook his faults.

7. Some people stay married to each other to have someone to fight with.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies show that in the long run it makes for a better relationship if you call the shots as you see them, rather than trying to gain approval by trying to "butter the other person up."

2. False. Dr. Paul Popenoe, Director of the American Institute of Family Relations, finds that jealousy has too often been maligned as a villain. "In the proper sense," he says in summing up his findings, "jealousy is actually a constructive and desirable feeling. Used correctly, it is a powerful force in the making of a successful marriage. Jealousy, in its constructive sense, indicates an intense appreciation of something that is precious and legitimately possessed, and a determination to defend that precious thing and its possession."

3. True. Studies at Oxford University's Institute of Experimental Psychology show that this is definitely the case. A woman may appear to be listening intently to what her husband or lover is saying to her, but actually she is paying far more attention to the look in his eyes, subtle changes in facial expression, his tone of voice. As research has shown, women are more responsive to nonverbal cues than verbal ones.

4. True. She's likely to resent it. For, as one leading authority on marital relationships has observed, women tend to personalize things, and when the husband makes disparaging remarks about other women, the wife is very apt to jump to the conclusion that the criticism was actually meant for her. (And the husband will never know what made his spouse angry.)

5. False—according to the findings of a leading marriage relations institute. It's pointed out that "innumerable marriages start on nothing more than the physical attraction two people feel for each other. And it should be borne in mind that during the course of a lifetime not more than one percent of the time—or one hour out of a hundred—will be devoted to actual love-making. What will husband and wife do with the other 99 percent of the time?"

6. False. At the University of Connecticut a study was made of 80 married couples who had been married for varying lengths of time, ranging from two to 21 years. Results of the investigation: "It was found that the longer couples were married, the less favorable personality qualities they saw in their mates. This was true for the couples who found their marriages satisfying as well as for those who were dissatisfied."

7. True. A psychiatric study of long-standing discordant marriages, characterized by frequent bickering, nagging and verbal infighting, has shown that in many cases this fills a psychological need of both parties. Each serves the other as a target for the expression of strong feelings of frustration and hostility. Though such marriages may give the appearance of being headed for immediate crack-up, they often endure. As one couple observed, "It's harder to fight with a stranger." □

This Christmas, Try a Different Approach

How do you make a gift seem even more wonderful than it is? Give one with a related accessory! It's fun, imaginative and more personal. To spark your own ideas, here are some examples of "paired" gifts:

1. An electric pencil sharpener, with a dozen (unsharpened) pencils.
2. Christmas cookies or fruitcake, with your "secret" recipe.
3. For a beginner in knitting or crocheting, instructions and yarn for a matching set of something—mittens and hat or scarf, belt and ascot—with you having completed the harder half.
4. Tickets or a pass to your local movie house—enclosed in a change purse.
5. A date book or reminder pad—with a couple of invitations filled in by you.

For Children

What to give the children? Give gifts of learning in the form of a macramé or candlemaking kit from Skil-Craft. You might pair the macramé kit with a finished example of the art or a gift certificate for lessons with a teacher. To the candlemaking kit, add candle holders or a snuffer. The kit on macramé, the art of creative knotting, includes a best-selling 80-page full-color instruction book, six skeins of yarn, "T" pins, beads and buckles, knotting board and crochet hook. The candlemaker kit, heralding another revived craft, contains wax, complete accoutrements for making seven molded forms and an illustrated 24-page instruction booklet. It's completely safe for children under supervision. Both kits are about $10 each.

For the younger child, give a gift that helps teach him the time. A unique clock from Bulova (about $11) features a bi-colored face with a double set of numerals to indicate how many minutes it is "to" or "after" the hour. It's packaged along with an entertaining instruction record. To this gift, you might add an egg timer or a drawing of a sun dial.

Or how about giving a giant Tinkertoy, 17 times the size of the regular model, with larger-size rods and spools, that are easier for young fingers to handle. Whether a child wants to build a crane with a nine-foot boom or a swing for the dolls, it's engineered to be indestructible for indoor or outdoor use. About $30. Match this gift with a decoratively written promise by parents to join in a fun-filled "construction" day early in the new year.

For Mother

What would Mom like to receive? If you've heard her mention she might like to start sewing her own clothes or is already the architect of whole wardrobes, give her the Singer Sewing Book, an authoritative up-to-date guide detailing the basic principles—and the newest advances—in sewing construction, including a section on decorating and sewing for the home. About $8.00. You might pair this gift with several yards of fabric plus a pattern or an electric scissors. Hamilton Beach makes a two-speed model in lemon yellow with a handy viewing light. It has stainless steel blades, is powered by a 12-watt motor. About $10.

Is she practical, but likes a bit of extravagance? Give her an Elgin velvet jewel case with her very own velvet-covered travel alarm that fits neatly in-

to Your Gift-Giving

6. A book or magazine subscription, with reading glasses case, perhaps made by you.

7. A pretty party apron, with a similarly-cut plastic cover to be whisked off when guests arrive.

8. An extra flashlight, with a half dozen extra batteries. Or anything transistorized, with lots of extra batteries.

9. A woodworking tool, of better quality than the recipient would give himself, with an attachable sign, "Property of _____. Hands off!"

10. A new address book, with an offer to help with some of the recopying.

11. An all-purpose vase, with flowers or leaves already in it.

12. A bottle of champagne, with 2 or 4 champagne glasses.

For Mom, a book on sewing; for Dad, a multi-band radio

side. It's perfect for that next vacation trip. Comes in black, red, or blue in size 7¼" x 4¾" x 1½". About $18.00. Include a piece of costume jewelry with this gift; or, if an imminent trip is planned, add some foreign currency or, from the country to be visited, a printed walking tour and post cards, prestamped and addressed.

For Dad

Is Dad the tough one on your Christmas list? Give him a gift of communication with a multi-band FM-AM radio that has seven-band reception, including foreign-country shortwave stations. It has easy-to-operate slide controls for volume, squelch, tone and has a world time-zone map with a calculation wheel on the back of the cabinet. From General Electric, in a black and silver color combination, its dimensions are 13½" W, 8½" H, 4½" D. About $110. Instead of adding to this gift, provide a clue to it by wrapping the box with an inexpensive world map.

If Dad's hair (worn a little longer these days) is hard to manage, give him a gift of good grooming with Remington's Hot Comb dryer/styler. It is unique because it's able to spray on water, conditioner or control liquids while it combs, styles and dries. The appliance, which can also emit the hot-air action alone, delivers forcefully and effectively by blowing air down the teeth of the comb and into the hair. It comes in a leather-textured travel case, packaged with a brush, both wide and narrow-toothed combs and hair conditioner. Under $22.

For Everyone

Gifts the whole family will enjoy might include bringing the outdoors inside through planting in contemporary see-through flower pots that come in exciting crystal clear or exquisite transparent-colored Plexite in amber, lapis blue, sea green, smoke, lemon yellow and lime green. Besides being a decorative accent when placed in any room of the house, these flower pots are shatter and scratch resistant, remain clear, have a glossy luster, are weather resistant if used outdoors. The 5" pot and saucer is carried in department stores and florists. About $4 for the set. To this gift you might add a bag of fertile soil and packet of seeds or perhaps a special plant bulb.

Whatever way you choose to give presents this Christmas, FAMILY WEEKLY wishes you a happy, healthy one. □

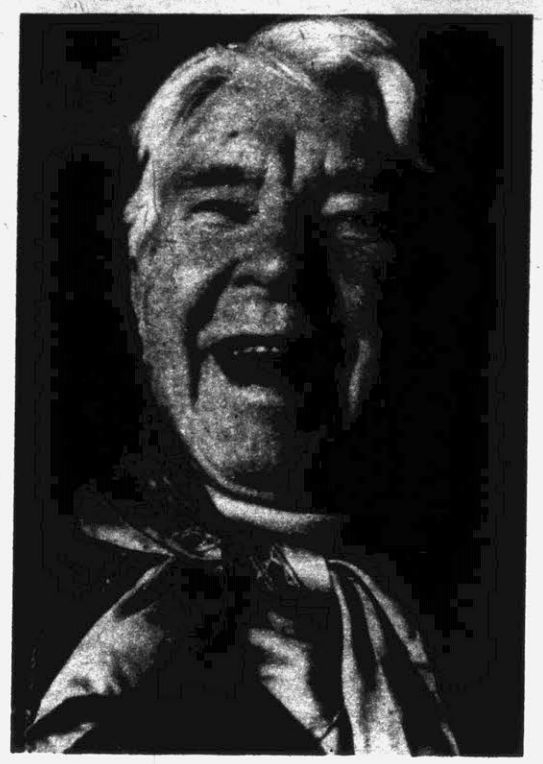
The Day I Met Carl Sandburg

"You pick out a pair of pajamas for me," he said. I flushed madly as the manager asked whether I wanted silk or cotton. I pointed to a pair of blue-silk pajamas and said, "Give him a pair of those"



It was 1925, and Carl Sandburg was coming to visit Mary Hardin-Baylor College in Texas. As president of the school's entertainment group I was to meet Mr. Sandburg's train and take him immediately to a luncheon, where 40 guests—some of them my professors—were anxiously awaiting his arrival. The train pulled in, and, as I came forward, Mr. Sandburg greeted me with, "I want to go to a jewelry store."

Knowing our limited time, I suggested we shop after the luncheon. He pushed back the lock of steel gray hair that dropped often over one eye. "I want to go to the jewelry store now," he said.

By the time we got to the luncheon, we were 40 minutes late, and Mr. Sandburg was the proud owner of a new pair of cufflinks. He offered no apology to the guests. I now thought my responsibilities were finished, but when the dinner was over, Mr. Sandburg said, "I would like someone to show me the campus at four o'clock." Of course my services were immediately volunteered.

We walked around the tree-shaded campus, where he especially enjoyed the Texas mesquites. As we neared the campus boundry, I suggested he rest before dressing for dinner.

"How far is it to town?" he inquired.

"A mile," I said.

"We will go there."

Students in women's colleges in the South in the 20's did not summarily take off for town without permission—and certainly not with a man. I tried to protest, but it was no use.

As we paced off the blocks, Mr. Sandburg asked the name of almost every tree, shrub and flower. In his eyes I was woefully ignorant because I knew none of them.

"Where is the tree that Sam Bass shot his initials in?" he asked.

I told him I had never heard of such a tree. Mr. Sandburg continued to argue, so I promised to introduce him to Mr. Hunter, the local druggist and county historian.

On the way to the drugstore he stopped and announced too all passers-by: "I lost my pajamas. Take me to get some new ones."

As a sheltered young lady of that period, I was not supposed to know what men wore for sleeping. I felt a blush rushing to the top of my head. I took him to a haberdashery, where he immediately made for a five-foot stack of Mexican sombreros. He began trying them on, admiring himself fore and aft in the mirror.

By now the clock on the Bell County Courthouse had struck six, and I knew we weren't going to make dinner. But this made no impression on him. He said, "You pick out a pair of pajamas for me"—and went right on trying on sombreros.

I flushed madly as the manager asked if I wanted silk or cotton. I pointed to a pair of blue-silk pajamas and said, "Give him a pair of those."

After Mr. Hunter had assured the poet that Sam Bass had never shot up a Belton tree, we started back to the campus. But at this point, Mr. Sandburg spotted the historic Philip Nolan Creek bridge, which he had to investigate forthwith.

While the Dallas to San Antonio traffic swished over the bridge, Mr. Sandburg waxed poetic. With arms outstretched, hair falling across one eye, he stood on the bridge and extolled the beauties of nature. People in the cars craned to see what was happening.

When we were headed once again toward the campus, he stopped and intoned, "I refuse to return the way we came. I must see new things."

The alternate route was an unpaved, rocky street. He was still curious about the vegetation as we came to a home with magnificent trees. When I could not name the species, he demanded that I go in and ask the owners. To this day I remember my discomfiture at having to question those strangers.

Back on campus, not long before recital time, he requested tea and toast brought to his room. The typical recital, including guitar accompaniment, went off without mishap. Someone got him on a train, but not me. I was too tired.

Eight years later, I met Mr. Sandburg again. We were house guests of newspaper friends in Arlington, Va. When I told him how he had embarrassed me, he laughed. "By the way, young lady," he confided, "you'll be happy to know the Pullman Company found my lost pajamas." — Ailese Parten, Plainview, Texas

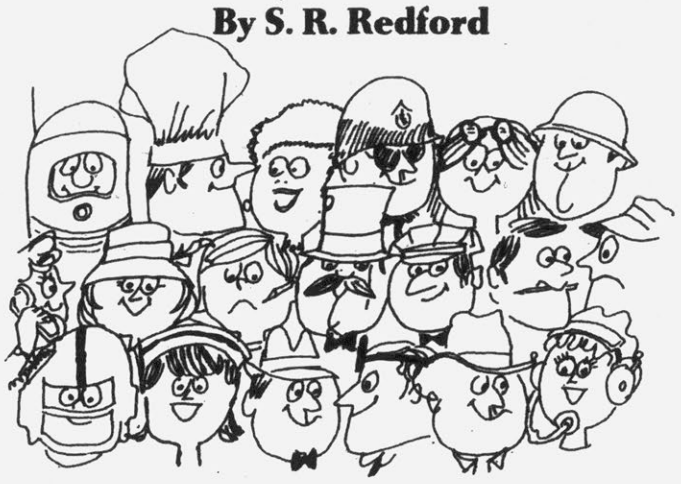
Jobmanship

A feature dedicated to helping you understand and improve your on-the-job relationships.

By S. R. Redford



A CLUMSY DISMISSAL CAN BACKFIRE

• Maybe you never thought of it before, but you can make trouble for yourself when you fire someone—if you don't know how to do it properly. Ex-employees who have had their egos shattered by clumsy firing techniques sometimes make off with mailing lists, files and technical data in order to get even. Some experts suggest you soften the blow by mentioning severance, bonus, vacation and retirement money which the employee will receive. If he's a cost-cutting victim, make that clear to him and save him the anguish of thinking he has been incompetent. Late in the afternoon and out-of-range of eavesdroppers, your task is easier and more merciful. Even if the subordinate loses his temper and becomes abusive, keep calm. By losing your temper, you'll only be encouraging the get-even schemes you're trying to avoid.

CELEBRITY SOAPBOX/By William Wolf

"Why Hide Your Feelings?" Asks Actress Cathy Burns

"If you feel rotten, you should act like it," insists actress Cathy Burns, known for her sensitivity on screen. "There's this thing about not crying. If a child falls down and hurts his face, you can't tell him it doesn't hurt. It does. Yet I've seen people in pain so strong Superman would double up. They're convulsed, yet they won't cry. But why shouldn't they? Letting out your emotions makes things real. Some people feel they should carry on regardless. I don't. If you feel terrible, you should act accordingly, including throwing things at the children or cat. Then it's real. You are expressing yourself, and maybe you'll then look at why you feel rotten.

"Also, there's something else I've learned. I've always been very quiet and looked like something lost on a beach. Whenever I had to make somebody respect me, I would get cold, hostile and up-tight. But I've learned that when you feel threatened, you should become outgoing and deliberately try to be friendly."

Pictured above is Ralph Ginzburg, the New York magazine publisher; no one is more tight-fisted than he. Mr. Ginzburg has made a career of perfecting and implementing ingenious methods of making and holding on to money. Now he has even launched a publication devoted to that subject. Its name is Moneysworth.

Moneysworth is more than just a manual of Ralph Ginzburg's personal financial ploys. It is a jolly, brash, authoritative Fagin School in the art and science of shrewd investment and expenditure. It covers personal finance, investments, consumer affairs (including product ratings), and just about every other facet of money management.

Perhaps the best way to describe Moneysworth for you is to list the kinds of articles it prints:

The New Japanese Cars: A Rating

At Last, A Proven Method for Beating the Stock Market—How a little-known Government publication has been used by sophisticated investors to quadruple their gains over the past 10 years (compared with gains of the Dow-Jones average). Fortune calls the method "extraordinary."

How Ralph Ginzburg Earns Interest of 50% from a California Savings Bank (Federally Insured)

How to Collect Social Security from Canada and the United States Simultaneously—It's perfectly legal.

The Third Most Expensive Item You'll Ever Buy—It's your funeral; Moneysworth tells how to minimize the grief.

In sum, Moneysworth is your own personal consumer crusader, trusted stockbroker, and chancellor of the exchequer—all in one. It is a bonanza of uncanny financial intelligence.

Although launched only a year ago, already Moneysworth has become the most widely read newsletter in the world (with a circulation of 350,000 and a readership estimated at one million).

Every week, Moneysworth is inundated with enthusiastic, unsolicited testimonials like the following (which are completely authentic):

●"When you wrote up Bausch & Lomb's stock, I bought 100 shares at 44 and soon thereafter sold out for 139½. When you came out with James Dole, I bought 500 shares at 7½ and nine days later sold out for double. Net profit: $12,996. Let me assure you that I shall be a Moneysworth subscriber for life."—Lawrence Gray; Ypsilanti, Mich.

●"Thanks to the advice in your article 'Inaccurate Billing by the Phone Company,' my firm—the Bayard Pump & Tank Company—received a $1,593 refund."—Armand DiRienzo; Bristol, Pa.

●"Moneysworth is to be commended for the reliability of its merchandise evaluations. I just bought a Canonet 35mm rangefinder camera—which you recommended as 'First Rate'—and have gotten some beautiful shots with it. Also thanks to your buying advice, I saved over 30% on its cost."—Robert D. Goodrich; Tucson, Ariz.

●"Your article 'How to Fight a Traffic Ticket' saved me a $200 lawyer's fee and a ticket. I did exactly as you suggested—taking pictures of the scene and double-checking the statute book—and came out the winner in court. Many, many thanks."—W.R. Wendel; Hicksville, N.Y.

●"I had never heard of KMS Industries before you wrote up its stock. I bought 400 shares at 8¼ and sold them about 30 days later at 16½. Profit: $3,400."—Carl H. Maser, Jr.; Burlington, N.C.

●"Thanks to your article 'How to Buy a New Car for $125 Above Dealer's Cost,' I have just purchased a Malibu Sport Coupe at a saving that I estimate at $350."—Ron Bromert; Anita, Iowa.

●"Your article 'How to Avoid Paying an Exorbitant Doctor Bill' saved me $65. As a token of gratitude, I enclose extension of my subscription."—Carl Wagner; Yorktown Heights, N.Y.

●"I am grateful for your tip on 'Tax Savings for Teachers'—which saved me the cost of a tax accountant and got me a very high income tax refund."—Charles Bryan; Brooklyn, N.Y.

●"Your article on low-cost, unadvertised trans-Atlantic air fares enabled me to save $108 on a vacation to Ireland. In addition, once I was there, I saved $64 on a car rental, thanks to your advice."—Bernard Bullon; Bronx, N.Y.

●"I have deposited $12,500 in a Mexican bank, as you suggested, and have been receiving, every month by airmail, interest at 9%. I am grateful to Moneysworth for telling me about this high rate of interest."—Charles T. Malburn; Sarasota, Fla.

●"Due to your information on stocks, I have made over $2,200 in less than a year. Yours is one of the most intelligent, down-to-earth periodicals ever published."—Ruth Pantell; Yonkers, N.Y.

●"Upon Moneysworth's advice, I asked the phone company for an itemized bill. As a result, I discovered that for years I had been paying for a nonexistent extra line. Result: A $550 refund. My trial subscription has paid for itself 110 times over!"—George T. Petsche; Washington, D.C.

In short, Moneysworth has become an absolutely indispensable financial mentor for many of America's most astute consumers.

The staff of Moneysworth consists of several of the most keenly analytical and imaginative minds in the fields of financial and consumer journalism. At the helm, of course, is Ralph Ginzburg himself, as editor-in-chief. The managing editor of Moneysworth is Paul A. Riedel, of the Whitney Communications Corporation. Its articles editor is Dorothy Bates, formerly of Scientific American. Augmenting this team of hard-nosed, experienced editors are reporters, researchers, product-testers, and consultants throughout the United States. Together, they create America's first—and only—financial periodical with charisma.

Moneysworth is published fortnightly. It is available by subscription only and costs $10 per year. Right now, however, we are offering Special Introductory 28-Week Subscriptions for ONLY $2.88! This is a mere fraction of the standard price.

Moreover, we are so confident that Moneysworth will prove invaluable to you that we are about to make what is probably the most generous subscription offer in publishing history: We will absolutely and unconditionally guarantee that the tips, techniques, and inside information in Moneysworth will increase the purchasing power of your income by at least 15%—or we'll refund your money IN FULL. In other words, if you now earn $10,000 a year, Moneysworth guarantees that it will increase the value of your income by at least $1,500—or you get your money back. And, meanwhile, you will have enjoyed a subscription to Moneysworth ABSOLUTELY FREE! As you can see, a subscription to Moneysworth is an absolutely foolproof investment.

What in the World!

THE QUEEN'S HUSBAND
Philip What?

Prince Philip's new biographer is an Englishman named Basil Boothroyd, who lived with the Royal Family long enough to write "Prince Philip, An Informal Biography," (McCall, $8.95). Mr. Boothroyd gave us this account of a princely problem: While Philip was serving in the British Navy in World War II, he had to sign the naval log in the space provided, "Mr. _____." He crossed out the "Mr." and signed, properly, his name, Philip. When he was reprimanded (he was just a teen-ager) with "Philip what???"; his answer was "Philip of Greece; I am a prince." (Princes seldom have last names—just the place they come from.) When he wanted to surrender his Greek citizenship, (Feb. 1947) there were rumors that it was because he wanted to marry Elizabeth (then Princess). But the real reason was that he could not advance in the British Navy. He had a British uncle, Mountbatten, so when he married, the family name became Mountbatten. Although the Queen is "Mrs. Mountbatten," her children are Miss and Mr. Windsor (her family name). When their son Charles becomes King of England, his children will be Windsor-Mountbatten.

The oceans won't last forever. North American rivers pour some 611 million tons of dissolved wastes each year into the Atlantic and Pacific. The dirty rivers are already making dirty oceans. The United Nations is proposing that each country bordering the two oceans set pollution limits on its ocean-emptying rivers before it's too late.

"Marijuana and alcohol – what's the difference?" many young people ask their parents. Here are some answers: "When used in moderation, both can produce a high (feeling of well-being); if used in large doses, alcohol can produce confusion and sleep; marijuana—hallucination. Alcohol can leave the user with a severe staggering walk; the stagger isn't as noticeable with marijuana. Flashbacks (hallucinations recurring long after use) can occur with marijuana; not with alcohol. The flashbacks remind us that marijuana is a very powerful drug, but one which is usually taken in diluted form. If enough is taken, it can produce the same effects that LSD does." These facts from a kit of color transparencies available for rent from "The Case on Drugs"—Dept. FW, 3M Co., Visual Products Division, St. Paul, Minn. 55101.

BABY DEER AND ALEX
A lesson in forgiveness

To err is human; to forgive, divine. Forgiveness is also a quality of some young animals. For instance, an eight-day-old baby deer was rescued from the fangs of a vicious dog by a forest keeper outside Pfaffing, Germany. The human family nursed the little roebuck back to health, assisted by their collie dog, Alex. Now the deer is one month old, and he trusts Alex completely. Alex is, in fact, the "foster parent." And the whole species of dogs is forgiven.

WHAT WEIGHT PROBLEM?
By Richard Armour

Overweight people are less likely to commit suicide or suffer severe mental disease than thin people or those of average weight.—News item

It's really not so bad, at that,
To have a little extra fat.
The person who is overweight
Might just as well accept his fate.

Without that fat, he might live longer,
Be somewhat healthier and stronger,
But then again his nerves might jangle
And be on edge and in a tangle.

And so he lives a tranquil life,
Unworried by his work or wife.
He may be fat from feet to face,
But still he's not a mental case.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N. Y., N. Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

Last summer I took my six-year-old son fishing. We were sitting together on the bank of the stream. After an hour or so of not having any luck, we began to get discouraged. "Looks like we just can't get these fish to bite," I said.

My son, aware that I was wearing my fishing license on the back of my hat, thought deeply for a minute. Then he said, "Daddy, maybe it'll help if you turn your hat around so the fish can see your license."

—Mr. K.S., Lansing, Mich.

Naturally, it caused quite some excitement when a horse left his post and went up to a pari-mutuel window. "I want to put $5 to win on myself," he declared.

"It's not so much that," was the response. "I just don't think you got a chance to win." —Harold Helfer

Some people sneak through life as if they were supposed to be somewhere else. —Bill Copeland

Daughter had passed her driver's test and was taking the family car out alone for the first time. As Mother waved from the window and Dad wished her "Bon Voyage" at the curb, the young lady suddenly blurted out:

"Say, Dad, what should I do if the brakes give way?"

"Perish the thought, honey," exclaimed Dad. Then he added: "But if that should happen, just hang on to the wheel and steer into something cheap!" —F. G. Kernan

"Got a pad? You have quite a list to make out!"

No more "baby books" for me...

WOULDN'T you like to help your child learn to read earlier and faster . . . to acquire an eagerness for reading that could be a real advantage in the school years ahead?

Now you can—for an investment so modest that any parent can afford it. Just print your child's name and address on the coupon below and mail it today. We will send you all three books shown here (retail value $7.50) — and bill you for only — $1.00, plus a small shipping charge, as your introduction to the I CAN READ BOOK Club for Boys and Girls.

Why we make this unusual offer

Frankly, this introductory price is far less than our actual cost for these famous children's books. Each is 64 pages. Each is colorfully illustrated. Each is handsomely bound in durable 6¼" x 8¾" covers.

But it's not the low price or the beauty of these books that is so important. It is the books themselves—and what membership in the I CAN READ Book Club can mean to your youngster. We want you to see how quickly your child will be reading these stories all by himself. Learning new words. Putting phrases and sentences together. Reading aloud without any help from you. All this is possible—because these are not ordinary books.

What makes these books so different

Simply this. The I CAN READ Book Club is sponsored by the Editors of My Weekly Reader, the well-known classroom paper loved by millions of boys and girls from kindergarten to 6th grade. These Editors know how to interest and teach children. They have chosen books written by the most gifted children's writers in America. Books which have a charm that youngsters 4 to 8 find irresistible. The stories are written in words children understand or can recognize. The plots are so entertaining that any child becomes eager to read each story from beginning to end —all by himself!

And then, just as eagerly, he loves to tell the story to someone else. Unlike other books for beginning readers that are read once and quickly forgotten, the I CAN READ books have a lasting quality. They are read, re-read and talked about by children because they can identify with the story and the characters.

Helps youngsters learn on their own

Membership in the I CAN READ Book Club will increase your child's desire and ability to read on his own—and may jump him years ahead in reading skills! Because the stories are set in large type and illustrated in bright colors by prizewinning artists, even little ones are attracted to the pictures and soon begin associating them with the words.

As The New York Times said of the first I CAN READ Book, "One look at the illustrations and children will grab for it. A second look at the short easy sentences . . . and the children will know they can read it themselves."

The Saturday Review writes, "The repetition of words . . . encourages beginning readers without boring them." And Rudolph Flesch, author of Why Johnny Can't Read, states: ". . . it will make an enormous contribution to primary education."

Mail coupon for your 3 books today!

Send no money; we will bill you for only $1.00, plus shipping, after the books arrive. Then, if you wish to continue your child's membership, another enchanting I CAN READ selection will be mailed each month. Not at the bookstore price of $2.50, but at the special member's price of only $1.69 plus shipping. Even then, you need not keep any month's selection unless you wish to. Just return it within 10 days and pay nothing. Cancel membership at any time. No minimum number of books to buy.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

ARCCIVE MAKES PRISONERS OF DOLORES AND TERRY.

DEEPSIX, BABY, YOU DIDN'T REMIND ME TO TAKE MY SMART PILLS THIS MORNING.

DOWNRIGHT STUPID TO LET ARCCIVE LURE US IN HERE AND LOCK THE DOOR.

HE'S RIGHT ABOUT THIS ROOM BEING BUILT TO WITHSTAND INDIAN RAIDS. NOBODY'S GOING TO SNAKE THROUGH THOSE RIFLE PORTS.

DOOR WAS PROBABLY DESIGNED TO STAND UP TO A BATTERING RAM; TOO... OH, OH!

PSSST! DOLORES, OUR HOST MAY HAVE BEEN A WHIZ AT THE CONFERENCE TABLE, BUT DIRTY TRICKS AREN'T HIS BAG. HE DIDN'T CHECK THAT HARDWARE.

THE DOOR HINGES ARE RUSTED TO NOTHING. WHEN HE SLAMMED THE DOOR, HE FINISHED THEM. I CAN PULL OUT THE PINS WITH MY FINGERS.

WAIT, TERRY. I THINK ARCCIVE'S BACK!

UNCOMFORTABLE, ISN'T IT, MRS. DEEPSIX? IT WILL NOT IMPROVE WHEN HUNGER AND THIRST MAKE THEMSELVES FELT EITHER.

AND YOU WILL STAY IN THERE UNTIL YOU TELL ME WHAT YOU KNOW OF THE LATE GENTLEMAN WHO RUINED MY DESIGN.

HE MUST HAVE BEEN VERY PERSUASIVE. MY GUESTS WERE ALL EXPERIENCED POLITICIANS, YET HE FRIGHTENED THEM INTO STAMPEDING LIKE CATTLE.

DID HE MAKE HIMSELF VISIBLE, WALK THROUGH THE CLOSED DOORS OF YOUR ROOMS?

WHAT WERE HIS ARGUMENTS? DID HE QUOTE THE CONSTITUTION? PERHAPS THE FEDERALIST PAPERS? PAINE'S "COMMON SENSE"?

WHAT DID HE LOOK LIKE? HAVE YOU SEEN HIS FACE IN A GILBERT STUART PORTRAIT? IN THE BACKGROUND OF THE GROUP AT THE SIGNING OF THE DECLARATION?

I HAVE A FEELING HE'S WITH ME NOW - LAUGHING! MADAM, YOU WILL ROT IN THERE UNLESS YOU TELL ME - WHO IS HE?

POOR GUY - HE'D NEVER BELIEVE THAT WE HAVEN'T THE FOGGIEST IDEA WHOM HE'S TALKING ABOUT!

TERRY, I THINK I KNOW!

A WEIRD THING HAPPENED TO ME THE OTHER DAY, CHUCK..I HAD TO DELIVER A MESSAGE FOR MY DAD TO A FRIEND OF HIS WHO WORKS IN A BARBER SHOP, AND WHEN I WALKED IN, ONE OF THE BARBERS SAID TO ME, "WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU, SON?"

THAT'S FUNNY!

SOMETHING LIKE THAT HAPPENED IN MY DAD'S BARBER SHOP ONCE A LONG TIME AGO... A MAN BROUGHT HIS GRANDDAUGHTER IN, AND THE BARBER THOUGHT THE LITTLE GIRL WAS A BOY, AND CUT OFF ALL HER CURLS! THE MOTHER WAS REALLY MAD...

EVERYONE WAS YELLING AND SCREAMING.. BUT THOSE THINGS HAPPEN, I GUESS..AFTER IT'S ALL OVER, IT'S REALLY KIND OF FUNNY...

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: THE SECOND WINNING OF ALETA, QUEEN OF THE MISTY ISLES, REACHES ITS HAPPY ENDING AND HERE WE LEAVE THEM FOR A WHILE, FOR WHAT THEY HAVE TO SAY MAKES SENSE ONLY TO LOVERS.

NOW, FREE OF THEIR MOTHER'S VIGILANCE, THE TWINS PLAN ADVENTURES. "LET'S GO TO THE PLAYING FIELD WHERE THE BOYS ARE," SAYS VALETA, SHOWING HER DIMPLES. "THAT'S THE FIRST PLACE MOTHER WOULD LOOK FOR YOU," ANSWERS KAREN.

THEY CHOOSE THE BAZAAR, FOR IT IS FORBIDDEN WITHOUT AN ESCORT. IT IS EXCITING WITH ITS NOISY, JOSTLING CROWDS. "I FEAR WE MIGHT BE RECOGNIZED BECAUSE OF MY BEAUTY," REMARKS VALETA, FLUTTERING HER LASHES. "NOBODY WILL NOTICE IT UNLESS YOU MENTION IT," SNAPS KAREN.

A VENDOR'S DISPLAY REMINDS THEM THAT THEY ARE, AS USUAL, HUNGRY. SO THEY BUY SUGARED DATES, FIGS DIPPED IN HONEY, CANDIED APRICOTS, ALMONDS, AND WOULD TAKE MORE BUT A HERALD RIDES BY CRYING: "PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT IN THE TOWN SQUARE!"

THEY JOIN THE CROWD AND, BY VIGOROUS SHOVING AND ELBOWING REACH THE FRONT ROW. NO ONE HAD TOLD THEM THAT EXECUTIONS WERE MADE IN PUBLIC TO GIVE MIRTH AND ENTERTAINMENT TO THE UNDERPRIVILEGED. THE TWINS LEAVE, WISHING THEY HAD NOT EATEN SO MANY SWEETS.

LOST, AND FEELING NONE TOO WELL, THEIR WANDERINGS BRING THEM TO THE WATERFRONT..... JUST IN TIME TO SEE A WET HAND COME OVER THE EDGE OF THE QUAY.....

1816 11-28

.... FOLLOWED BY A WET YOUNG MAN. "FIND ME A PLACE TO HIDE AND BRING ME DRY CLOTHES. HURRY!" HE ORDERS. "WHY NOT GO BACK TO THE SEA WITH OTHER SLIMY THINGS?" SNAPS KAREN. "YOU SPEAK WITH THE BAD MANNERS OF A PETULANT SCHOOLBOY!" GIGGLES VALETA.

© King Features Syndicate, Inc., 1971. World rights reserved.

"WE SHALL CALL THE WATCH. THEY WILL DRY YOU UP AND FIND A SAFE PLACE FOR YOU TO HIDE IN."
"NO, NO!" CRIES THE YOUTH, "HEAR MY STORY, FOR I AM THE VICTIM OF OUTRAGEOUS MISFORTUNE!"
