Frank Rouse Backtracks

GREENSBORO (AP) — State Republican Chairman Frank A. Rouse did some more backtracking Monday from a charge last week that the Democrats in effect stole the last three gubernatorial elections from the Republicans through voting irregularities.

Under stiff questioning on WFMY-TV's "Newsmaker" program, the newly elected Republican chief maintained it was "very possible" that the Democrats stole the elections, but insisted he was just making a comment, not a formal charge. And he again stated he was in no position to provide supporting evidence.

Rouse, a 33-year-old Kinston construction executive, said the furor over his original statement obscured the main point he was trying to make: that Republicans are not getting a fair shake under the present election laws.

Noting that the Democrats hold the majority on every board of election in the state, Rouse charged, "Our civil rights are being violated."

Asked if he "seriously believed" that, for example, 180,000 votes were stolen in 1964 (the Democrats' margin of victory), Rouse replied: "It's possible, very possible."

Pressed to explain how, the GOP chairman made it clear that he'd just as soon have the whole thing forgotten. "It doesn't do any good to rehash the past... Let bygones be bygones." Then he added that his original statement, made in a Chapel Hill television interview, was "not a charge, but a comment."

India Demands

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi demanded today the withdrawal of Pakistani troops from East Pakistan, saying their presence "is a threat to our security."

With Indian and Pakistani troops fighting along the borders of East Pakistan, Mrs. Gandhi told Parliament that a Pakistani withdrawal was the only way to peace and indicated India would continue to send troops across the border.

"We cannot allow annihilation of people next door," she said "and this must be clearly understood by the world."

"It is not in our national interest to let an entire population be annihilated. It is a threat to our freedom and security."

The Pakistani command in East Pakistan claimed Monday that the Indian army was widening the fighting along the border and battles were continuing in at least two sectors.

Stabs Teachers Before Class Of Kindergarteners

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Terrified kindergarten youngsters watched as a woman who had entered their classroom stabbed two teachers several times with an ice pick.

The woman surrendered to police and complained that one of the wounded instructors earlier had made her daughter cry, officers said.

Rosemary Hardy, 34, was booked for investigation of two counts of attempted murder Monday afternoon, officers said, when she surrendered several hours after the stabbings at Hillcrest School in the Portola Heights district.

Inspector John Lanthier said Mrs. Hardy told him she had written to one of the stabbed teachers, Joan Hoskey, last week "asking that her child be treated better." He said the mother complained that "the teacher made her (the child) cry."

Both teachers were reported in serious condition. Miss Hoskey, 39, the teacher whose class the assailant invaded, underwent surgery for stomach wounds and also had been stabbed in the neck, chest and back.

Shirley Bayerle, 35, was treated for wounds in the left eye, face, neck and back, which police said she received after she rushed to Miss Hoskey's aid.

Principal Jerome Kennedy said he entered the classroom in response to word there was an emergency.

"There was a heavy-set black woman bending over Mrs. Ba-yerle," he said. "She had Mrs. Bayerle down on the floor. She, the black woman, was on her knees."

"I pulled the woman off Mrs. Bayerle. She said, 'You leave me alone.'"

"I said, 'You leave her alone.'" Kennedy said the woman then ran off.

Parade Dec. 11

The Greenville Jaycees will sponsor this year's Christmas parade Saturday, Dec. 11 at 10 a.m., according to project co-chairman Bruce Thompson.

Thompson announced that the holiday affair will feature a number of floats and bands from Greenville and other areas of Eastern North Carolina. "In parade" band competition will be a highlight, and Santa Claus is expected, he said.

Having "Music of Christmas" as its theme, the event is being backed by local merchants and participating floats are being constructed at Cannon's Warehouse on Dickinson Avenue by local church groups and employees of sponsors, with the help and supervision of the Jaycees.

"The Jaycees and sponsoring merchants will welcome your support to make this year's parade the best in Greenville's history," Thompson said.

Mills Sees Pressure In Tax Veto Threat

By ROBERT L. CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Powerful House and Senate Democrats view President Nixon's threatened veto of a pending tax bill as a velvet glove attempt to knock out campaign financing and tax relief provisions he doesn't like.

"It's a polite way to put pressure on ...," Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Monday. "It's not the first time a statement like that has been made."

Nixon met for three hours Monday with his chief Capitol Hill lobbyist Clark MacGregor, who emerged to tell newsmen that amendments tacked on the original $26 million bill would "balloon" the federal budget.

The bill—a part of Nixon's new economic program—has been cleared in varying forms from the House and Senate and is now under consideration by a joint conference committee.

The House version was reportedly acceptable to the White House, but Senate Democrats added a number of provisions Nixon said he finds unacceptable. Now the conference committee must iron out the differences before the measure goes to the President and a possible veto.

One change backed by the debt-ridden Democratic party would allow individuals to earmark $1 of their income taxes to finance presidential campaigns. It would help both parties, but is not needed as badly by Republicans who reportedly have a $40 million surplus.

Other Senate revisions would give tax relief to parents of college students; increase to $800 the personal income tax exemption, and give tax credits to firms which locate in ghetto or rural areas.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon concluded after meeting with his aides "that, should Congress fail to remove ... the budget-busting Senate amendments and the political check-off rider, he will be unable to give his approval to this particular legislation."

MacGregor told newsmen the amendments "ballooned" the tax bill's provisions to over $40 billion, would increase the federal deficit and "thus are highly inflationary."

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, heads the House conferees. He has said if Nixon vetoes the bill, it will be impossible to pass a tax measure this year.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and head of the Senate conferees, called Nixon's threat an attempt at intimidation and expressed doubt the President would veto the bill.

But he added: "I believe we ought to give him the chance."

More March Arrests; Another Effort Made To Unveil SBI Report

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

As 62 marchers were being arrested yesterday for parading without a permit here, beginning a march to Raleigh to protest the August 6 shooting of a black man by a Highway Patrolman near Ayden, a complaint was filed with the Clerk of Superior Court seeking to force officials to make public a State Bureau of Investigation report on the shooting.

The complaint, listing Charles J. Cain, Freddie Jacobson, Jean Lowry, H. C. Mullholland, Elaine Schaal, Allen Schlick, John Taylor and Elizabeth Wilkerson as plaintiffs, was directed at North Carolina Attorney General Robert Morgan, SBI Director Charles Dunn and Eli Bloom, solicitor of the Third Solicitorial District. It said the "plaintiffs and the members of their class are being irreparably harmed and damaged by the continuing public disturbances in Pitt County," and noted, "the protests, disorders, and violence have been coupled with the efforts of the authorities...to restore public order, some of which efforts have been misdirected and excessive..."

The complaint charged the unrest "constitutes an immediate threat to the life, liberty and constitutional privileges and freedoms of each of the plaintiffs and members of their class..." and is "caused by the failure and refusal of defendants to release the contents" of the SBI reports.

Cain and the other plaintiffs, members of the board of directors of the Greenville Chapter of the North Carolina Civil Liberties Union, saying in the complaint that a coroner's inquest which found the Highway Patrolman acted in self defense did not have the entire SBI report available, asked the court to enjoin the defendants "preliminarily and permanently, to disclose to the public the contents of the State Bureau of Investigation report of the killing of William Murphy."

Cain, in a statement made about the filing of the complaint, said since the official SBI investigation of the shooting was not completed until after the coroner's inquest, "the coroner's jury was not provided with the entire body of available evidence regarding the death."

He said, "This has allowed widespread doubt to persist in the public mind regarding the circumstances of Murphy's death and has contributed heavily to the continuing unrest..."

The final SBI report, he said,

"presumably contains all the available facts and could help restore order through full public understanding if it were not confidential."

"We have a threefold purpose," Cain said, "in undertaking this civil action."

"First to establish as a matter of public record the complete body of available facts regarding the death in the hope of contributing to the restoration of tranquility;" and "second, to allow the examination of the final SBI report in order to determine what weaknesses exist and what procedural changes could be useful in the investigative reporting process."

"Third, to demonstrate to skeptical segments of the public that its imperfections notwithstanding, due process can be obtained through our established judicial system."

The 62 protesters arrested about 11:40 a.m. yesterday, were beginning a planned march to Raleigh to protest the shooting and back their demands that the Patrolman involved, Billy Day, be dismissed.

SCLC field secretary Golden Frinks and Harold York of New York City, SCLC National Researcher, were among those arrested. York was the only white among the group of protesters taken into custody.

After all the other protesters walked peacefully onto waiting buses, York lay down in the street and had to be picked up by policemen and placed in a police car.

A prepared statement handed to newsmen yesterday quoted Frinks saying "Tomorrow, we will march again, and will ask all people to join us."

Find Marijuana In Bomb Search

CHICAGO (AP) — A soldier en route to Ft. Bragg, N.C., after a leave was arrested Monday when police investigating an anonymous bomb threat on a Piedmont Airlines plane said they found four pounds of marijuana in his luggage.

He was Gerd Kalis, 20, of Chicago, who was charged with possession of marijuana.

A search turned up no bomb on the plane, which carried 40 passengers.

Committee Asks Investigation Of Law Enforcement Methods In Pitt

The North Carolina Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, which held closed hearings here last month, has called for investigations of law enforcement methods used during the arrest of protesters over the past three months.

The six-page report, based on testimony heard during closed sessions here October 14, was released simultaneously in Washington and Raleigh.

Saying, "There is serious racial polarization in the Greenville area of which much of the community is unaware," the report requested the Pitt County Grand Jury to investigate the death of William Murphy, a black man shot by a Highway Patrolman near Ayden August 6 and which has led to protests over the past three months that have resulted in more than 850 arrests in the county.

The Advisory Committee report also called for N.C. Attorney General Robert Morgan to investigate charges of mistreatment of prisoners arrested during demonstrations in Pitt County towns and of bail procedures used in the county.

The report also suggested civilian review boards be established to oversee law enforcement procedures and that law enforcement agencies in the county "initiate a vigorous program of recruitment of non-whites."

The committee report also urged that the U. S. Department of Justice investigate the Murphy shooting, and charges by demonstrators that they have been "sprayed with mace, herded into jail cells, not permitted to make phone calls, and treated disparagingly and harshly," after being arrested.

The Rev. W. W. Finlator of Raleigh, is chairman of the Advisory Committee and presided at the closed-door hearings here that dealt with more than 50 witnesses.

"Police brutality was commonplace" during the arrests of the protesters, the committee report indicated.

Cold Winter Could Force Some Industrial Plants To Close Down

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief White House overseer of the nation's fuel supplies says some major industrial plants could be forced to close down this winter because of severe natural gas shortages.

Fred Weinhold, energy specialist for the White House

Office of Science and Technology, said in an interview that the heating requirements of homes and such institutions as hospitals will be met.

But, Weinhold said, some major industrial customers who buy gas on an interruptible, or "when-available" basis, are going to face major curtailment.

"In a cold winter, it could go beyond that and affect some firm industrial customers" who have contracts guaranteeing delivery, he said.

The energy specialist, who receives and reviews reports from other agencies and who sits on a joint board on fuel supplies, said the nation appears to have sufficient stocks of coal and industrial and home fuel oil as winter arrives. It's with natural gas, he said, that "we're in the tightest spot."

His assessment follows a Federal Power Commission report Saturday that the country as a whole appears to have sufficient electrical power reserves to meet winter demands.

However, the FPC report added, some areas face possible shortages—mainly due to recent coal strike which left supplies at 60 electric power plants "critically low."

But Weinhold said the current levels are the same as they were a year ago, when there was no strike.

Residual fuel oil used extensively by major northeastern industries and power plants should be available this winter in ample supply, Weinhold said.

Temporary import quotas for home heating oil have been made permanent at the 45,000-barrel-a-day level, he said, and this should be enough to meet the needs of the Eastern Seaboard.

But with natural gas, Weinhold said, "reserves and production just haven't been increasing anywhere nearly as fast as demand." In some southwestern cities, gas transmission companies have told electrical plants which now use only natural gas that they should seek alternative sources of fuel because of the growing demand-production crunch, he said. In addition, some gas suppliers in the East and Midwest are turning away new customers.

With "interruptible" contracts, an industrial plant gets a lower rate with the understanding that it will be the first to be cut off if a shortage develops. Under a priority system developed last winter by the government, the last to lose service would be homes, schools, hospitals and similar customers.

And, said Weinhold, "there's no question but that the human needs for heating will be met."

Use Your Imagination To Make Your Own One-Room Environment

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If you live in one room you may be bound by its four walls, but you needn't be bound by any decorating rules, insists Ann Pardue Sonet, who with Ellen Peterson Morris has written "The Seventeen Guide to Decorating for One-Room Living."

Careful planning, double-duty furnishings and an imaginative approach will turn the space into an environment that suits both your activities and your personality, says Mrs. Sonet, who is home furnishings editor of Seventeen Magazine.

"Whether it's a bedroom, dorm room, apartment shared with a roommate or first home as a newlywed, the secret is to put a tremendous amount of thought into what you want the room to do for you," she explains. "If you're sharing a room in the family home with a sister your needs will be different than in a studio apartment, where you will be eating, as well as sleeping, entertaining, pursuing hobbies and perhaps studying."

"Use your space—go up, out and under," she advises. "Up with shelving that goes all the way to the ceiling. You don't need a dresser six feet wide. Get several that are tall and skinny. Put brightly painted pegboard on the walls and hang everything, including chairs, on it with hooks. If you've got a bed don't waste the space under it. There are all kinds of storage boxes that fit beneath it."

But she doesn't think you must necessarily have a bed as such. She suggests other sleeping arrangements that range from sofa-beds to a bed made from a flush door that hangs on chains from the ceiling. Or consider placing a mattress and box springs right in the middle of the floor and for daytime cover it with shag or fake fur rugs.

"Chairs can be anything. If you dig sitting on the floor all you need is just big cushions. Maybe furniture isn't for you," she adds. "Maybe you would like to put your money and effort in another direction and build a sleeping pit by raising the level of the floor around the outside with wood platforms and carpeting the entire area."

Versatility is the name of the game when it comes to utilizing space, Mrs. Sonet notes. Trunks store all kinds of things and make bedside tables or coffee tables as well. A table can be used for a desk as well as for eating. Cubes of cardboard, metal or plastic provide storage space, can be switched around and make good room dividers.

"You can create a sense of privacy without physically dividing the room," she points out. "Put up a 'wall' of hanging plants. Use decorative window shades from floor to ceiling. Or cover shirt cardboards with pretty wrapping paper, join them together with notebook rings and hang them from the ceiling on cup hooks."

She also suggests curtaining off a section of the room as a tent to make either a bed or study area. And for odd storage space she recommends hammock-type netting or a series of wire vegetable baskets suspended from the ceiling. Or more baskets attached to a wall with L-shaped brackets.

"If you just blow all the things you've heard about decorating to the wind and start out on your own, you come up with wonderful ideas," she says. "I think we are too stodgy in our approach to decorating. It doesn't mean you have to be freaky, but it should be your own approach as opposed to a so-called pattern approach."

"A room should be a total unit," she goes on. "Why put a carpet on the floor, paint on the wall, curtains at the window and ignore the ceiling? Make your walls into a garden with stick-on flowers and paint clouds on the ceiling; or paint a bold arrow across the floor, up the wall and across the ceiling. It helps create the feeling of being in an environment rather than a box."

"Once you've learned to cope with a one-room situation you'll never have trouble planning a house," declares Mrs. Sonet, who herself has gone the whole route—sharing a room successively with a sister, college roommate, working girl and, early in their marriage, her husband.

The Sonets have just bought a cooperative apartment in Manhattan and she's busy decorating five rooms. "I still have scads of space left in the closets because I can't get over using every inch," she laughs.

SHELVING DESIGN — Ordinary ladders, painted in bright colors, make an unusual storage arrangement, as shown in this sketch from a new book. "The Seventeen Guide to Decorating for One-Room Living." The ladders are placed along the wall, going from floor to ceiling. When they are secure, boards are slipped in to rest on the rungs of the ladders.

Be Wise And Befriend Husband's 'Buddy'

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Norm) has taken an interest in a co-worker. [A buddy-type friendship he says.] She's divorced and has a child and lots of problems. For some reason, I don't trust her.

Norm says she's a good girl who dates occasionally, but if she has nothing to do on weekends, she gets bored and lonely. Anyway, Norm told her she was welcome to drop in at our house when she wanted company. [So far she hasn't taken him up on it.] He even offered to tune up her car and change her oil.

Last Saturday he suggested that instead of just the two of us spending the evening alone, we invite this girl over to play cards with us. When I told him I enjoyed being alone with him, and didn't particularly want her, he became upset.

Abby, I am sorry this girl has problems, but we didn't cause them, and I don't think it's our place to entertain her. Also, Norm is not a garage mechanic, and I don't see why he should be tuning up her car.

Do you think I am being unreasonable?

NORM'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Unreasonable? No. Shortsighted? Yes. Since your husband has a buddy-type friendship going with this girl, make her your buddy, too. Why not invite her over, and ask a single man? [They may like each other.]

If you don't trust her, it's better to have her in your home where you can watch her. You may discover that she's a good girl who's had a lot of bad luck. Give her a chance.

DEAR ABBY: I read only two things in the newspaper. The obituary column and Dear Abby. [And in that order.] Why on earth did you print that cheap barroom story about the man pinning $2 to his wife's pillow, and she gave him a dollar back saying she never charged anybody more than a dollar?

That story has been around since World War I. Can you honestly say you didn't know you were being had?

TIM IN WIS.

DEAR TIM: If I had known I was being had, he wouldn't have had me.

DEAR ABBY: With regard to that minister who was tempted by other women because his marriage had grown cold:

Following a family crisis, I took my problems to my pastor only to find that I left my heart with him. Double trouble.

To dust hard-to-reach areas under refrigerators and stoves, wet a large cotton sock, place it over a yardstick, and slide the stick under the appliance. If you put detergent on the damp sock, the area will be cleaned as the dust is removed.

Gourmet Corner: Delights Of A Northern Yuletide

By TOM HOGE

Associated Press Writer

A friend just returned from a year in Finland has been regaling me with tales of the fare in that remote land of spiced herring, hot reindeer steaks and frosted vodka. Most fascinating was his account of a northern Yuletide.

For Christmas dinner, the Finns may feature some odd dishes by our standards, such as fish soaked in lye and porridge. But other dishes such as spicy sausages stuffed with barley, rich ham and a casserole of liver, potatoes and vegetables compensate.

I became so interested in his account that I finally persuaded another friend with Scandinavian connections to wangle me an invitation to lunch with some Finnish officials at Scandinavia House, their New York headquarters.

There we were served a yellow pea soup filled with chunks of ham, chunks of salted herring with sour cream, Finnish dark bread with cheese, and finally tiny pancakes dressed with a berry jam and powdered sugar.

For me, however, the piece de resistance was a herring salad called Rosolli-Sillisalatti which is a feature of every Christmas dinner in Finland. It contains boiled potatoes, beets, dill pickles and several other ingredients. Here it is as prepared by the wife of a Finnish official at Scandinavia House.

FINNISH-HERRING SALAD
3 small cans herring fillet cubed

3 cups cooked beets cubed
1 1/2 cups boiled diced potatoes
2 cups cooked cubes carrots
2 dill pickles sliced
3 hard-boiled eggs
2 apples diced

1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped coarse walnuts

On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour and baking soda. In a square cake pan 9 by 9 by 1 1/4 inches, in a 350-degree oven, melt butter; tilt pan to distribute evenly. In a medium mixing bowl with a wooden spoon beat eggs enough to combine yolks and whites; add flour mixture, sugar and vanilla; stir to blend. Stir in walnuts. Pour batter evenly over melted butter in pan but do not stir. Bake in the pre-heated 350-degree oven until firm about 20 minutes. While still warm cut into 16 squares; remove with wide metal spatula to wire rack to cool completely, placing either bottom or top side up. Store in a tightly covered tin box. Makes 16.

Alas, Gift Deer Is Bagged By Paleface

Cook led a delegation to the Capitol Monday to present Gov. Linwood Holton with an eight-point buck—the tribe's annual tribute to the governor and the only taxation the tribe pays to the state. The dance was a little something extra, rather like a surtax.

Chief Cook was rather red-faced when he acknowledged to Holton that a paleface shot the animal.

Indians have been leaving the reservation in such numbers that deer now outnumber tribesmen, so each year the Pamunkies invite outsiders to join their hunt.

This year, Cook said, there was the understanding that if someone other than an Indian bagged a deer worthy of presentation to the governor, the deer would be confiscated by the tribe. And that's what happened, he said.

SouthGreenville PTA To Meet

The South Greenville School PTA will hold its second meeting of the year on Thursday at 8:00 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Chapel Hill Shop Said Nation's First Birth Control 'Boutique'

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A bright little shop in Chapel Hill billed as the nation's first birth control "boutique" is doing a brisk business in its self-proclaimed role of bringing "sanity and taste to the sexual revolution."

"Adam and Eve," situated near the campus of the University of North Carolina, looks at first glance like any other college town boutique.

But stacked on its modern glass and chrome display shelves are a wide variety of nonprescription contraceptives for men and women—Vaginal foams, jellies, creams, hygiene products, "love oils" and numerous brands of domestic and imported condoms.

The store, calling itself "America's first love boutique," opened Nov. 17 to capacity crowds. Its backers are making plans to expand the idea nationwide.

The store is a subsidiary of Population Planning Associates and was founded by Dr. T. R. L. Black and Philip D. Harvey who received their master's degrees in family planning from UNC. Harvey is a former director of CARE in India and Black, a member of the Royal College of Physicians, is a former officer in the New Guinea medical service.

"We're not here to start a sexual revolution," said John J. Quinn, director of marketing for "Adam and Eve."

"We're here to provide a tasteful response to a revolution already in progress. This is the middle ground between the clinical drug store approach and the lasciviousness of the smut shops."

"Up until now the only people in the business community who have been responding to the sexual revolution are ones promoting sensationalism and lasciviousness. We want to make it something nice, unembarassing and relaxed," Quinn said.

On a recent day the shop was crowded with students, businessmen and a few middle-aged women. Some hovered around the shelves of greeting cards and accessories. Others stood studying the shelves of contraceptives or discussing the relative merits of the devices with the sales personnel.

The customers moved quickly away from the contraceptive shelves when a photographer appeared.

The shop carries several side-lines, including posters, bumper stickers, buttons, sex-oriented sculpture and novelties and a line of accessories such as purses, belts and ties. It also includes a shelf of contemporary games on such themes as ecology, population and women's lib.

For $20 customers can get a black iron chastity belt modeled after the "Old English version," lock and key included. A leather version with chains is $2 cheaper.

Books and literature on sex, contraception, population problems, family planning and marriage are also a major part of the store's business.

And "Adam and Eve" offers a low-cost pregnancy testing service through which a woman can send a specimen to a federally licensed laboratory and get the results the next day.

Quinn said there are two reasons for stocking the store with sidelines.

One is that "contraceptives belong to the side of life where pleasurable things are relevant. They can't be stuck under a drug store counter and considered for prevention of disease only."

He said the other reason for carrying non-sexual items is "so that people will have an excuse to come into the store but pretend they're not looking at the sex-related items."

"Because of society's attitudes, people still have mental blocks about it," he said.

Quinn said the store is patterned after Sweden's "Birds and Bees" shops. He said the store's personnel are being trained to answer customers' questions about birth control, sex and family planning.

"So far there have been no adverse comments at all," he said. "In fact some white-haired ladies have come in and congratulated us."

But Quinn does expect to face

"But I want them to know that's not what we're here for," he added. "We want to bring sex and the responsibility that goes with it into the light of everyday society where it belongs."

Find Manson Guilty Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson, facing death in the seven Tate-La Bianca murders, has been sentenced to life imprisonment in the murder of a movie stuntman and a musician.

Manson, 37, shouted his disgust at jurors and courtroom spectators after Monday's decree despite its possibility of parole.

"You're in prison! You're in prison!" he said with a direct stare each time at a different reporter in the front row of spectators.

He whirled in his swivel chair toward the jurors and said, "The only thing they can judge is what they are told to judge."

The Sharon Tate trial, which lasted 9½ months, resulted in the death sentences for Manson and three women codefendants for the August 1969 murders of Miss Tate and four friends in her mansion and of a wealthy market owner, Leno La Bianca and his wife.

Monday's verdict involved the asserted death of Hollywood stuntman, Donald "Shorty" Shea, 37, whose body was never found, and for the slaying of local musician Gary Hinman, 34.

Mayor West states he plans to be back in Greenville Thursday in time to be in attendance at the regular December meeting of the Greenville City Council slated for 8:00 p.m. Thursday night.

Broyhill 'Draft' Effort Slated

RALEIGH (AP) — Headquarters for a movement to draft Republican Rep. James T. Broyhill in a race for the U.S. Senate was scheduled to open in Raleigh today.

R. Frank Everett of Robersonville, unsuccessful GOP candidate for Congress in the 1st District in 1970 and chairman of the draft movement, said it has the support of the 11 congressional district GOP chairmen.

Broyhill has stated repeatedly that he will not run for the Senate, but will seek re-election to Congress next year.

Trade Contacts Can Open Door

It is a rapidly changing world, and not the least of the changes is the new attitude between the United States and the Soviet Union on trade between the two countries.

Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans last week termed his visit to the Soviet Union a "watershed" in the development of Russian-American trade.

The secretary said he found among Soviet leaders a "cordial desire to do more business."

Stans has been conferring with Soviet leaders on expanding trade and economic cooperation.

The two countries are talking about a massive increase in trade. They feel that there can be a ten-fold increase in bilateral trade turnover by the mid-1970s. Last year's turnover was $177 million.

The Soviets are interested in U. S. machine tools, consumer goods, agricultural products and computer software. The United States wants natural gas, oil, copper, pulp and paper and rare minerals.

At the height of the Cold War differences between the United States and the Soviet Union there was little talk of increasing trade between the nations. Now, despite the vast differences in our economic systems, both nations seem to welcome increased trade.

We think increased trade between two giants can be a good thing. Either nation represents a huge market for the other, and trade contacts can perhaps lead to improved relations in other fields between the U.S. and Russia.

Quality Marks The Good Diet

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Nutrition depends upon the choice of foods; a good diet is a matter of quality, not quantity.

Too many North Carolinians eat well, but not wisely. One-fourth of Tar Heel households lack proper nutrition, according to a

Task Force Panel

Those named by Gov. Scott to the nutrition task force include:

Mrs. Dorothy Allen, Raleigh, Wake Opportunities, Inc.; Dr. Eloise Cofer, Raleigh, N.C. State University; J.C. Davis, state department of agriculture; Raleigh Eaton, department of public instruction; Dr. Joseph Edozien, department of public health nutrition, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; Thompson Greenwood, Raleigh, N.C. Merchants Association; Max Hovis, United Dairies of Greensboro; John Kerr, department of social services; Dr. Howard Schneider, Institute of Nutrition, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; Alvin Smith, Cherokee, chairman of the Cherokee Tribal Health Council; Dr. George Wise, professor of animal nutrition, N.C. State University; Dr. George Debnam, Raleigh physician; Dr. Garland Hendricks, Wake Forest minister; and Dr. Olson Huff, Charlotte, state vice president of the Cystic Fibrosis Chapter.

More than 1,000 North Carolina families were surveyed in the nutrition study, initiated at the request of Gov. Scott.

Campaign Promise Fulfilled

He asked for it after travels in his campaign for governor showed what he felt were unmistakable signs of poor nutrition. Action on the study findings would bring full cycle his interest in the subject, and perhaps earn for him the title of the "Good Nutrition Governor."

The study showed minimal urban-rural differences in dietary adequacy, although there was a regional disparity with 39 per cent of eastern households lacking adequate nutrition compared to the 27 per cent for the state as a whole.

Race and income level appeared to be significant factors in proper nutrition; nonwhite households were more than twice as likely to have inadequate diets as were white households, and 43 per cent of households with the per capita income under $1,000 had inadequate diets versus only 24 per cent of those with per capita incomes over $2,000.

Scott lifted up as a prime concern the impact of poor nutrition on children. He noted evidence from the study that children on proper diets were growing at a faster rate than those who were not.

"Furthermore other scientists in the field of nutrition have suggestive evidence that early malnutrition has an adverse effect on eventual intellectual attainment," Scott said. "Increased attention must be given to the nutrition of the very young child."

study conducted by the State Board of Health.

Steps to alter the pattern of choice that results in poor nutrition is the assignment Gov. Bob Scott has given to a special, 15-member task force. Professionals in the field, food industry representatives, and consumers serve on the panel.

Recommendations will be drafted in time for implementing action in the 13 months remaining in Gov. Scott's administration, said Dr. Ron Levine, task force chairman. He looks towards a report next spring.

"There's an incredible range of choice in foods today," said Dr. Levine, a director of the North Carolina Nutrition Study and head of the Community Health division of the state board of health. "Modern processing and packaging has put on grocery shelves an enormous variety of convenience items."

Often the choice is determined by eye and taste appeal rather than nutritional value. Television creates demand, even among toddlers, for food full of calories but empty in balanced elements of nutrition.

Children Short-changed

One of the study's disturbing findings was that preschool children get short-changed more than grown-ups in their diet. It said that 43 per cent of the children, compared to 27 per cent of the households, were consuming a nutritionally inadequate diet.

While changing eating habits may involve a long-range process of education, Dr. Levine said, the task force will search for those measures which can be promptly implemented by administrative action and which can be the basis for legislative recommendations.

How it will proceed with its work will be determined when the task force gets together for its first meeting within the next few weeks. "I want the members to have input as to procedure," Dr. Levine explained.

"We also will welcome the ideas and contributions of individuals, groups and organizations."

Situation Is Bad For The Nation's Elderly

It is a sad fact of old age that this is a time when income drops off just as the old need more funds for personal care.

The situation is worse, however, than we imagined. The Senate Special Committee on Aging reports that one out of four elderly in the country lives on $2,000 a year or less.

It is bad for anyone to have too little income for a decent living. For the elderly with their increase health problems, it is deplorable.

Coolness Over Campaign Bill

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Just before the House began its week-long Thanksgiving recess, chief White House lobbyist Clark MacGregor prowled the Republican cloakroom with this private message: There would be no great unhappiness by President Nixon if Congress did not pass any campaign spending reform bill at all.

Officially, the President, having vetoed a 1970 bill to narrowly restrict radio-television campaign spending, favors the comprehensive landmark reform bill passed by the Senate Aug. 5. But MacGregor surprised few Congressmen. Behind its official endorsement, the White House always has considered campaign spending reform a pistol aimed at the Republican party.

Mr. Nixon's political aides feel campaign spending reform is a Democratic attempt to nullify the one great Republican political advantage: bountiful financing. That theory was buttressed greatly by Senate passage Monday of an amendment to the tax bill for government financing of Presidential campaigns, succoring the bankrupt Democratic party.

This partisan mood generates doubt about the fate of the spending reform bill (not to be confused with the tax bill) in the House next week following the Thanksgiving recess. Previously optimistic supporters now cannot rule out the possibility of defeat.

There would have been no such partisan overtones had the reform bill been rushed to the House floor earlier in the year when the 1972 Presidential campaign still seemed remote.

But by last week, the facade of bipartisanship was splintering. Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican caucus and his party's leading advocate of campaign reform, was getting complaints from fellow Republicans that he was playing the Democrat's game. Anderson's Democratic collaborator, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, was getting fishy-eyed stares on his side of the aisle for seeking bipartisan compromise.

Moreover, Congressmen of both parties had finally read the fine print. Except for the loosely drawn bill adopted in the House Administration Committee under chairman Wayne Hays of Ohio and sure to be rejected by the House, the various proposals would genuinely restrict the swash-buckling campaign financing to which Congressmen have become accustomed. That is, the new law would oppress the many lawmakers who use campaign contributions to live beyond their $42,500-a-year salary.

Even so, something close to the tough Senate bill would have passed the House comfortably last week before the Thanksgiving recess. But Hays had other plans. Specifically a NATO meeting in Brussels, "Come hell or high water," he told the Democratic caucus Nov. 17. "I leave from Dulles (airport) Friday (Nov. 19)." Unwilling to be absent while campaign reform was decided, Hays demanded quorum calls to delay the bill until after the recess.

So did Rep. Philip Crane, a militant Republican from Chicago's suburbs who wanted time to build support for his amendment prohibiting organized labor's political spending. The combined efforts of Hays and Crane persuaded House Democratic leaders to delay the bill until after the recess.

What made the delay particularly important was last Monday's Senate approval of income tax checkoff for government financing of Presidential campaigns. Bipartisan leaders of the campaign reform bill agree

What Kind Of No-Fault?

CHICAGO — Imagine, if you please, a convention of new car dealers construing the Tenth Amendment. You will have caught the general atmosphere of last week's convention of the National Association of Independent Insurers. The principles of federalism haven't been expounded more lustily since 1787.

The topic was "no fault" automobile insurance. It is a hot topic everywhere these days. The Hart-Magnuson bill is percolating through the Senate Commerce Committee. A dozen State legislatures are studying the proposition. Sunday supplements are filled with articles on "no fault." Public opinion polls say that motorists are begging for a chance to buy it.

But insurers make this point, that getting into "no fault" insurance is like buying a new car. What kind of "no fault" d'ya want? You can have a little old compact "no fault" with a wind-up motor, or you can take a few options — radio, air conditioner, dual carburetors and retractable headlights. And you will pay for what you get.

Member companies of the NAI, who write more than half of all automobile insurance in the country, are agreeable to selling whatever forms of "no fault" the motoring public wants. They are pushing their own model bill, which closely parallels an Illinois act that becomes operative in January. By analogy, the NAI bill is a medium-priced family sedan. They think it's a good model, but you know how it is with a new line of cars. What is needed, they say, is experience on the road.

That brings up the second point. If a major departure is to be made from the insurance system that now exists, the companies reasonably would like some experience in where they are going. They strenuously oppose the pending Federal bill, not because they oppose the concept of "no fault," but because they object to having a single, monolithic, untested system suddenly imposed upon 50 States at once.

In urging this objection, they speak as ringingly as so many James Madisons propounding the benefits of our Federal structure. Under our grand design, the States are expected to function as experimental laboratories, trying out new ideas in government. The American theory, entrenched in the Tenth Amendment, is that the States ought to exercise legislative powers not delegated to the central government. A new approach to automobile insurance, the NAI members insist, is a perfect example of what Mr. Madison had in mind.

Seven States have begun to experiment with "no fault." Massachusetts is nearing the end of its first year with the plan. Florida and Illinois are coming on line next year. Delaware and Oregon have moved into the field. Minnesota and South Dakota offer options. Some of them are trying one thing, some another. It makes good sense, in the NAI view, to encourage diverse approaches.

Other Editors Say Handle With Care

(The Durham Herald)

An experiment announced the other day may have an important bearing on the future of the state's motor vehicle inspection program. The idea is to find more facts in the interest of upgrading the program; and toward that end Governor Scott has asked automobile dealers in Raleigh, Wilmington and Asheville to conduct detailed inspection of about 120 car parts during regular inspection of vehicles in November, December and January.

The detailed inspection, at the state's expense, will require about four manhours a car. It will not be required, but rather will be conducted with the owner's permission, and there will be no requirement for repairs other than the items covered under the regular inspection program.

The research project, sponsored by the Governor's Highway Safety Program, the Department of Motor Vehicles and North Carolina State University, will serve a valuable purpose. As Dr. Rolin Barrett, project director, has explained it: "It is necessary to look at every item in any way connected with safe vehicle operation in order to make an intelligent decision regarding the selection of those items to be included in an annual inspection."

In the interest of traffic safety, so far so good. There could be the risk of rubbing public opinion the wrong way, however, if the impression is left with the people that a campaign is being cranked up for a comprehensive inspection program similar to the ill-fated one of little more than two decades ago. The massive inconvenience and other defects of that program caused public resentment to flare, and the legislature to kill the program after only a short life span.

It was more than 15 years before another program, one limited to brakes, lights, horns, windshield wipers, steering mechanisms and directional signals, could be placed in effect. The 1969 legislature added tires to the list. In that session, an attempt was made to kill the program. It failed, but not before causing a scare. The 1971 legislature added rear-view mirrors, but rejected a proposal to include exhaust systems.

The inspection program has room for improvement, and the research project holds promise toward that end. Results of the detailed inspections will be awaited with interest. Meanwhile, lessons from the past show that public opinion is sensitive on the inspection issue, and is to be handled with care when changes are proposed.

Life's Little Quirks

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

We are taught almost from birth to be ambitious and get as much out of life as possible. But anyone in his 80s who aspires to live into his 90s is regarded as vain or stubborn, not ambitious. When we become something of a nuisance to others, we are all expected to be polite and die gracefully and without making too much of a bother about it.

A thing we've never heard—and never expect to—is for a pro football quarterback to ask heaven for a white Christmas.

Mere acquaintanceship doesn't always lead to knowledge. A city-born friend of mine confessed the other day he hadn't seen a live cow until his 15th birthday. When I asked him how many milk faucets there were on a cow, he confessed he didn't know. "I was just interested in what a cow looked like," he said, "not how she did her work."

As a matter of fact, probably half the population of America today doesn't know the number of faucets on a cow. The answer is four—usually.

Nothing gives a man more of a feeling of mortality than having a tooth pulled—or finding a hole in his shoe.

Success is relative, but about the hardest thing for anyone to put up with is a relative who becomes a success.

Where there is no friction in a marriage, there isn't likely to be very much real love or real hate either.

Wishing to do their part toward the relief of poor during the winter months, members of the Kiwanis Club contributed considerable food to the Welfare Department last Friday night to be used in the charity campaign.

Dr. R. H. Wright, president of East Carolina Teachers College, was presented a basket of food at the opening of the curb market in its new home Saturday morning. The basket was in appreciation of the services Dr. Wright rendered by permitting the market to use an old school building as headquarters.

Two youths started out yesterday morning to take all the milk they could find on people's porches, and while accomplishing their purpose for a time, they were soon landed behind jail bars after a spirited chase by police. Residents on Eighth and Ninth Streets awoke yesterday morning to find they didn't have any milk and hurried calls were sent to the dairy. Meanwhile, two police officers saw the two boys and gave chase.

Strength For Today

ONE IN A BILLION

Are you all mixed up about things? If so, then you are a typical twentieth century citizen. Maybe you forgot an engagement. The taxes are overdue perhaps and you have the disconcerting feeling that you may be sold out before the budget can be balanced. Are the kids giving you trouble? You should open the Bible to the first chapter of Genesis and see the mess in which Cain and Abel involved their parents, Adam and Eve.

There are some who believe that the Church is on its way out. There was a definite conviction about this almost two hundred years ago, but the Church — in spite of the loss of membership and internal problems — is still doing business and will undoubtedly continue to do so.

If we allow the circumstances of life to stand us on our heads then we are in for a bad time. The millions of people living on this insignificant little planet called Earth have their problems and many of them are trying to take a punch at somebody or something they do not like.

If you think you have problems, then ask yourself if you would trade places with this neighbor or that. One of them is in business and losing money every day. Another is having marriage troubles. The son of the folks who live at the end of the block has run away from home.

Mix-ups? You're just one in a billion.

Another Record Christmas Seen

By ELMER ROESSNER

I have predicted it before and I'll predict it again: This season's Christmas sales will set a new record, not only in dollar volume, where there will be a big gain, but also in physical volume.

Last year December retail sales were $37,020 million. In 1969 they were $35,963 million. In 1968 they were $34,365 million. In 1967, they were $32,622. This year December sales will scrape $40,000 million.

That won't be because of inflation, but inflation will be a factor. Most goods went up in price before the freeze and some went after.

But there will be an increase in physical volume, that is, the number of toys, television sets, diamonds and a million other things.

Here is why:

Total personal income in September, 1971, was at an annual rate of $870.8 billion, compared with $809.0 in September, 1970. And it is still growing.

Total employment in September, 1971, was 79.3 million, compared with 78.3 million in September, 1970. And unemployment was 5.1 million last September, but 4.3 million a year ago. The rise in those employed far outweighs the rise in unemployed. The percentage of jobless declined. And employment generally rises in December.

Housing starts are likely to set a new all-time record this year with about 2 million units. Home furnishings will eliminate many problems of what to give your young couples this year.

And while people have money, more millions are staying out of the stock market until its course is more clear, and they have funds on hand to buy more things for relatives, friends and themselves.

There are some lesser factors: The Federal Trade Commission's campaign against dangerous toys will encourage many parents to buy with less fear. And there is one more shopping day between Thanksgiving and Christmas this year than last.

Wisent Recovery Repeated In Corn

The last true wisents, the ancestor of the cow, were killed in the last century. But scientists, by inbreeding cows that showed some wisent characteristics, eventually succeeded in breeding an animal that is exactly like a wisent.

U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists have done a remarkable job of back-breeding of a similar nature in corn. They discovered a South American corn, Corico, was five cells thicker under the kernel hull than American hybrid corn and that the protein contained amino acids, niacin and other B vitamins. This trait has been transferred to U.S. hybrids at the University of Missouri and eventually American corn will be more nourishing.

Scientists say that it would also be possible to breed corn backward so that corn would again be grass, which it once was, before the Aztec gods converted it into corn.

Will Outline Surgical Cement Opens Nixon Plans For Elderly

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon dispatched his top emissaries to the White House Conference on Aging today to detail administration programs for 20 million Americans over 65.

Four Cabinet officials and three presidential advisers were scheduled to speak at luncheons in four hotels.

A Republican National Committee source said the President will address delegates at the conference conclusion Thursday morning. Conference officials would not confirm the time, although Chairman Arthur S. Flemming said Nixon has made a firm commitment to make a personal appearance.

Meanwhile, a move to recommend guaranteed minimum-annual income for the elderly continued to build momentum at the conference.

Sen. Russell D. Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, predicted Monday that the 92nd Congress "will legislate to guarantee a national minimum income standard for the aged."

Wilbur Cohen, a former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, headed a conference incomes subsection which went on record 30-1 recommending a median budget of $4,500 "for an elderly couple as adjusted by annual change in cost of living and standard of living. The immediate goal should be not less than the poverty level for an elderly couple."

And Dr. Jean Mayer of Harvard University told his nutrition subsection that improved diets for the elderly will not work "without an adequate income maintenance program."

A Monday night open forum, designed to head off muzzling charges that arose at earlier White House conferences, drew 102 speaking requests from delegates, although not all took the microphone when their names were called.

A steering committee limited each speech to three minutes to conserve time. A Puerto Rican delegate from the District of Columbia, who was slow in answering to her name, was given a second chance when Spanish-speaking delegates threatened to walk out in protest.

Paul Sedillo Jr., chairman of the Spanish-speaking group, said delegates are angry over what they regard as poor representation.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The government's recent release of a wondrous surgical cement has opened up "a completely new milestone chapter" in reconstructive bone surgery in the United States—beginning with improved total artificial hip replacements that could benefit at least one million Americans.

The cement also may lead to artificial shoulder and knee replacements.

This was reported to the American Medical Association Monday by Dr. Roderick Turner of Massachusetts General the checkoff will magnify Republican opposition to spending reform, particularly in light of the new coolness from the White House.

Nixon men support Crane's anti-union spending amendment though they are not actively lobbying for it. That is no act of friendship toward campaign reform. If the Crane amendment carries, organized labor's hostility might doom the entire bill.

Furthermore, Presidential aides are talking tougher about the House's refusal to waive equal-time requirements for Congressional candidates. They say Mr. Nixon would not hesitate to veto a bill repealing equal-time requirements for the Presidential election — Trying to force him into televised debates — while not imposing the same regimen on Congressional candidates.

So, the White House has slightly lowered its true feeling about campaign spending reform. It regards the legislation as Democratic-inspired, directed against Mr. Nixon and for his 1972 Democratic foe very nearly as much as the tax checkoff for government financing. While the President cannot offend the national consensus by actively opposing spending reform, there will be muted celebration at the White House next week if the bill perishes in confusion on the House floor.

Hospital who amplified at a news conference.

He said the newly-approved plastic cement now makes it possible for orthopedic surgeons throughout America to perform a kind of "cement hip-socket" operation originally pioneered and widely used in Great Britain with "startling" success but hitherto limited to experimental, investigative use on patients in the United States.

And he declared that Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, by being one of the relatively-recent beneficiaries among 10,000 other Americans who have undergone the hip-replacement operation—"may have stimulated the Food and Drug Administration to release the cement for general use" after three years of investigation.

Among other prominent Americans who have served as pioneer patients in this country, he said, are Eugene Ormandy, director of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, and George Halas, longtime coach of the Chicago Bears professional football team.

The operation is designed to aid persons afflicted with diseased hips resulting from osteoarthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, congenital dislocation of the hip, and certain other conditions.

In a report co-authored by Dr. Otto E. Aufranc, also of Massachusetts General Hospital, Dr. Turner said American investigators have already at least matched the successes of the British surgeons—with at least 95 per cent of patients reporting both relief of pain and restoration of a functional range of motion. Also, some American researchers have introduced some potential improvements, he said.

The operation involves inserting the "methacrylate" cement—while still in doughy form—into the hollowed-out hip socket and molding it to form a cup before it hardens. The cup forms a receptacle for a ball-topped metal device inserted in the thigh bone—thus completing the ball-and-socket hip-joint.

"The cement hardens in nine minutes from the time we first start mixing it," Turner told newsmen, "so we have only about three or four minutes working time for placing it in the socket."

The new "cement" technique is designed as an improvement over artificial hip joints employing "metal-on-metal or metal against living tissue," said the surgeon. He said the artificial hips should last about 45 years without deterioration.

"I think," he added, "that this represents a medical advance more significant than heart transplants because whereas heart transplants have been performed on more than 300 patients—with only a handful still alive—more than 95 per cent of patients undergoing this total hip replacement operation have had relief of pain and are back functioning as housewives and businessmen."

Furthermore, he said, there are promising possibilities of eventually using the cement to fashion artificial shoulders and knees; to strengthen "unstable fractures" in various parts of the body, and to temporarily repair bones ravaged by widespread, terminal cancer.

old-fashioned kitchen match? I haven't even seen one for years. Has it struck out?

The trouble with Christmas gifts is that they often aren't tokens of affection but tokens of tribute exacted under duress.

In this category fall most gifts by businessmen to their customers, gifts by nieces and nephews to wealthy aunts, and gifts by fawning parents to placate their greedy children. If we all gave presents only to those we really wanted to please, and none to those we didn't, our secret hearts would stand revealed. And who could really afford for that to happen?

Doodling has fallen to a low estate in this country. Doodling shows the state of your mind. A friend of mine has doodled the same thing—row after row of empty squares—for 25 years. If he would but now and then doodle a circle with a dot in it, that would show he wasn't altogether in a rut—and had had a fresh nonthought.

'Hospice' Dedicated To Making Life Easier For Terminally Ill

By JAMES CARRIER
Associated Press Writer
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) —

A corporation has been established to make living easier for the dying.

Hospice, Inc., is an organization dedicated to the terminally ill. Originally a "home on the way," a hospice is a place where—it can't be denied—most patients will die.

"We are trying to make dying more human and meaningful," says Florence S. Wald, a research associate at Yale University School of Nursing, who serves as vice president of Hospice, Inc., a group of clergymen and medical professionals.

"It's a period of life that can have a lot of meaning. It can be content, full of joy, with lots of reminiscing," she says.

"There is no place in the general hospital for a dying patient," says Dr. Ira Goldenberg, a member of the hospice steering committee and professor of surgery at the Yale School of Medicine.

He explains:

"The pace of the general hospital is set toward getting patients out of the hospital, to get them to a state of good health. And the dying patient sort of clutters up the place. That's what it boils down to."

"In a general hospital the dying patient—who everybody knows there is no hope for—is the one the doctors visit last, if at all, on rounds. This is the patient the nursing staff finds that it just doesn't have the opportunity to get the bed bath as the patient who had an appendectomy the day before."

Goldenberg says hospices in England, notably St. Christopher's in London, have demonstrated that bringing the family into the picture a little more, and working with the family and the patient and the staff can bring a rejuvenation, psychologically, for the patient.

Life in a hospice is flexible to conform to the wishes of the patient, who helps prescribe his own life. Emphasis is on making the patient comfortable, free of pain and nausea.

If the patient needs another pain pill 3 hours and 59 minutes after the last one, he doesn't have to wait another minute, as he would in a general hospital, says Goldenberg.

But the patient isn't doped out, either, he says.

"We hope to have a staff that will work together, support each other, a group of patients who will come to know each other," says the Rev. Robert Canney, director of Catholic chaplains in Connecticut.

"To me, at least, it will be dying among friends, and people who care," he says.

Hospice is appealing for $3 million to build a facility in New Haven's suburbs. It would house 70 terminally ill patients, and provide outpatient care for another 70 who are well enough to live at home.

The cost, according to Hospice President Edward Dobihal, director of the Department of Religious Ministries at Yale-New Haven Hospital, would average 69 per cent of a general hospital's room rate. Dobihal is hopeful that the fee could be covered by insurance.

The dying may actually look forward to life in a hospice, according to Pastor Fred Auman of New Haven's Trinity Lutheran church and a member of the hospice committee.

Pastor Auman said the purpose of the hospice would be:

"To give that individual an opportunity to not be hooked up to every possible kind of device, to be given comfort, to be given, perhaps, his mind back, to be able to participate as a human, to receive friends, to be able to sit up because the pain has been controlled."

Hospice is several years from a building of its own, but already the staff is thinking of what should be written over the door.

One suggestion is "Alpha and Omega House," the beginning and the ending and the rounding out.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices sank as profit-taking pressures mounted in today's moderate trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 7.45 to 822.28. Earlier it was up almost 2 points.

Declines held a small lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange. Earlier, advances were ahead 3 to 1.

Analysts said investors were profit-taking after the recent sharp rally gains which sent the Dow average up some 31 points in the past two sessions.

They also noted many investors were waiting to see what would come of the Group of 10 meeting now in progress in Rome. Investor hopes that some solutions to international monetary problems would emerge from the meeting were generally given as the reason for the market's recent meteoric rise. Analysts said investors were disappointed with the report today that the Common Market nations and Britain had rejected the U.S. monetary proposal at the meeting.

Placements and mail order-retail were mixed. All other stock categories were lower.

Pirates Open Against West Virginia

Patterson, Peeler, Kiernan Get All-Southern Conference Berths

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's Spiders, who won the league championship after being picked to finish fifth in a preseason poll, didn't do it without talent, for eight of them were named today to the All-Southern Conference football team of The Associated Press.

The Citadel's high-scoring Bulldogs put six players on the team to four for defending champion William and Mary, which lost its title in a 21-19 season-ending defeat to Richmond, and three for East Carolina. Virginia Military and Furman got one berth each.

Almost half the team selected by the league's coaches, the news services and the Southern Conference Sports Writers Association are underclassmen — eight juniors and three sophomores.

Two of the first-year performers make up half the power-packed backfield — quarterback Harry Lynch of The Citadel, the league leader in total offense, and fullback Barty Smith of Richmond, the most devastating blocker the conference has seen in years.

They are joined by Phil Mosser of William and Mary, the conference player of the year in 1970 who was hampered by injuries much of the season, and Jon Hall of The Citadel, who replaced Mosser as the league's rushing champion.

The ends are two of the finest receivers the league has had at one time, Brian Baima of The Citadel and David Knight of William and Mary. Baima caught 64 passes for 1,237 yards, 19.3 yards per catch, and 13 touchdowns, while Knight grabbed 48 for 845 yards, a 17.6-yard average.

With them up front on offense are tackles Pete Ramsey of VMI and Mike Davitt of The Citadel, guards Jackson Neall of William and Mary and Pat Hutto of The Citadel and center Bob Conrad of Richmond.

Making up the defensive line are ends David Shi of Furman and John Nugent of Richmond, tackles Milt Ignatius of Richmond and Rich Peeler of East Carolina and guard Keith Dooley of Richmond.

The linebackers are Monty Kiernan of East Carolina and Pat Kelly of Richmond, and the backs are Ray Easterling of Richmond, Jeff Varnadoe of The Citadel, Paul Scolaro of William and Mary and Jack Patterson of East Carolina.

Six players are holdovers from last year's All-Southern — Neall and Mosser on offense and Peeler, Easterling, Varnadoe and Scolaro on defense.

The juniors are Knight, Hall, Shi, Nugent, Dooley, Varnadoe, Scolaro and kicking specialist

Keith Clark of Richmond. Kelly is a sophomore like Lynch and Smith.

Lynch accounted for 2,092 yards in total offense, an average of 190.2 yards per game. He hit on 81 of 177 passes for 1,507 yards and 11 touchdowns and gained 595 yards on 146 carries for 10 more scores.

His teammate, Hall, scored nine times and gained 1,230 yards on 169 carries for an average of 111.8 yards per game.

Despite missing one game and playing much of the time with an ankle and shoulder injury, Mosser gained 885 yards on 201 carries, caught 21 passes for 212 yards and returned 26 kickoffs for 617 yards. He scored 12 touchdowns, 10 running and two on pass receptions.

Smith, a versatile 230-pounder who could play defense if necessary, gained 630 yards on 167 yards for Richmond and caught 23 passes for 189 yards. But his principal value to the Spiders was as a blocker, particularly late in the season when several injured backs returned to action.

The defensive backs among them had 16 pass interceptions, and Varnadoe, Easterling and Patterson also were excellent kick returners.

East Carolina University's Pirates open the 1971-72 basketball season Wednesday night as they travel to Morgantown, W. Va. There the Pirates will take on strong independent West Virginia.

The Mountaineers boost at least one bona-fide All-American in guard Wil Robinson, a 6-2 senior who averaged 25 points per game last year.

And all four of his starting teammates from last season return to join him, giving the Mountaineers one of the most experienced teams in the country.

Joining Robinson in the backcourt is 6-3 junior Levi Phillips, while 7-0 Mike Heitz will be at the center position. He's a senior.

The forward positions, despite experience are up for grabs among three people. They are 6-7 Dave Werthman, who started late last year, but has been bothered by a back injury during pre-season drills; Sam Oglesby, a 6-5 senior who was the leading rebounder and the second leading scorer (14.7) last year; and 6-6 junior Larry Harris, who saw much action in a reserve role and finished with an 11.1 average.

Curt Price, a 6-1 senior, will be the top reserve, and he'll work both in the fore and back court. "Our teams are really quite similar," East Carolina Coach Tom Quinn said, "although they're more oriented to scoring from the backcourt. They love to run, in the West Virginia tradition, and we're going to be running more this year too. The game could be very highscoring."

Quinn added, however, that one or the other might slow it down slightly since it is the opening game and there are still some problems that must be worked out by both teams.

"They have a fine place to play," Quinn noted. The new 14,000-seat arena in Morgantown is in its second year, and rates as one of the outstanding on-campus basketball courts in the country.

"We'll find out a lot in this first game that will help us in the next three toughies," Quinn said.

The Pirates have a tough opening slate, to be sure. Following the West Virginia encounter, the Pirates return home to host Jacksonville and Davidson, then travel to meet Duke University.

"With some clubs, an opening like this isn't recommended," Quinn said. "But I think this year's East Carolina club will rise to the occasion and play well. Most of our starters are experienced against tough teams, and they shouldn't be uptight about it. Even our junior college transfers have played in some mighty good company before."

"I think our program is at a level now where we shouldn't get the jitters in such type of competition," the coach added. "The only real difference in this one is that we're on the road and they're at home. And then too, we have to get used to each other, and since they have all five of their starters back, they know each other well."

"We just need the experience of playing together as a team," he said.

The Pirate coach is uncertain about his starting lineup for the game, and has a number of candidates to draw from. Leading candidates for the front court positions include junior Al Faber, who led the Southern Conference in rebounding last year; junior Dave Franklin, who along with Faber was an All-Sophomore Team choice in the league; senior Jim Fairley, who is coming off a leg injury that sidelined him half of the season last year; and sophomores Nicky White and Ray Peszko.

In the backcourt, there are three prime candidates. They include junior Dave McNeill, who started the last five games of the year; along with junior college transfers Jerome Owens and Earl Quash. Quinn said it would probably be sometime Wednesday before he definitely decided which of the eight would start.

Backing them up are a number of experienced players, including Greg Crouse, Terry Davis, and Steve McKenzie.

The meeting between the two schools is the first since 1968 when West Virginia won the season opener then, 82-75. Overall, the Mountaineers hold a 6-0 record against the Pirates. The Mountaineers won the first meeting, 98-76 in 1966, then beat the Bucs twice in the 1967 season, 59-55, in Morgantown in the opener, and 82-53 in the Southern Conference tournament. The next year, the Pirates again lost twice, 77-60, in the only game played in Greenville, and 76-71 in the tournament.

Following the West Virginia game, the Bucs open the home season Saturday, playing host to Jacksonville University.

Gaylord Perry Goes To Cleveland Indians

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — The Chicago Cubs and Oakland A's did it, the Houston Astros and Cincinnati Reds did it and the Cleveland Indians and San Francisco Giants did it.

In fact, it seems that almost elated with grabbing one of the game's top showpaws.

Everyone else was happy with his acquisitions, too.

"The game today is speed — and that's what I traded for," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson, whose Reds acquired quick-footed second baseman Joe Morgan from Houston.

Morgan and four other Astros — infielder Denis Menke, pitcher Jack Billingham, outfielder Cesar Geronimo and minor league outfielder Ed Armbrister — went to the Reds for slugger Lee May, second baseman Tommy Helms and outfielder Jimmy Stewart.

Anderson didn't mind giving up the power-hitting May, the majors' third best home run hitter last season.

"Sure, we gave up power but I think this deal now gives us a chance to play the kind of baseball I like — the running game," said Anderson. "I look to Morgan to steal 50 bases for us this coming season."

Just a couple of hours before this stunning, eight-player swap, the Cubs started things by sending southpaw star Ken Holtzman to the pitching-hungry A's for outfielder Rick Monday.

"We hated to give up Monday, he's a fine ballplayer," said Oakland Manager Dick Williams. "But to get something good, you've got to give up something good."

Shocked Reaction

Greenville and Williamston area people expressed shock at the trading of Gaylord Perry to the Cleveland Indians by the San Francisco Giants.

Perry has been with the Giant organization since signing his professional contract.

Perry, however, is in a Players' Representatives meeting in Mexico City, Mex., and has not been able to be contacted.

W. M. "Booger" Scales, long known as the Number One Giant fan in the South, said that he had talked with Perry's parents in Williamston, and that they and Perry's wife, Blanche, who notified them from her home in the San Francisco area, were all in a state of shock. "They (Gaylord and his family) have just bought a brand new home out there. They expected to be with the Giants from now on," Scales said.

Scales said neither the Perrys or area people with whom he talked to last night and this morning have been able to figure out why Perry was suddenly traded. In the meantime, Scales has one used Giant uniform for sale.

everyone was doing it Monday at the wild and woolly opening of the winter baseball meetings. Trading, that is.

As quickly as one could say "Sudden Sam" McDowell, the Indians' strikeout king was delivered to the Giants to top off an explosive day of swapping that involved 13 players, many of them big names.

The Indians, who had their problems with the temperamental but talented left-hander, landed right-handed ace Gaylord Perry and in fielder Frank Duffy as the big leagues roared through one of their biggest dealing days in history.

"I talked to McDowell, and he said: Thank you. I hope I live up to the faith you have in me," said San Francisco manager Charlie Fox, obviously

Jamesville Hopes To Be Challenger

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(Ninth of a series)

JAMESVILLE — The Jamesville Bullets return three starters from last year's team, and are hoping that the Martin County championship might be coming their way too.

Coach George Hall feels that his team has a chance in the race this year, and that by playing each of the other three teams three times, this will be an added advantage.

The three returning starters are Larry Modlin, Tommy Mizelle and Robert James. Joining them are four lettermen back, Bill Moore, Gurkin Martin, Ellis Moore and Carl Mariner.

This forms a good nucleus to build around, with plenty of experience. "We're starting Modlin, Bill Moore, James, Martin and Mizelle. Martin, who is a sophomore, is about the least experienced of the group," Hall said.

Top reserves include Ellis Martin and Alvin Grimes, up from the junior varsity of last year.

"Overall, I'd say we had pretty good experience," the coach said.

Height is a problem, and then again it isn't. Modlin, who stands 6-7, is probably the tallest or one of the tallest men in the conference. But he has little help. Only one other man on the team tops six feet, and he's 6-1. The rest are all under six feet tall.

"Our rebounding so far has been better than last year, but it still has a ways to go," Hall said. "If we can keep Modlin out there, we'll do all right. But he's been getting into foul trouble, and this hurts us. James also has been doing a good job. If we can keep up our rebounding, we'll be all right."

The Bullets don't have a lot of speed. "But we do like to run," Hall said, "and get the fast break when we can." He lists Grimes as the fastest man on the team. "He does a real good job on the fast break."

The shooting, Hall felt, would be one of the highlights of the team this year, but so far, it hasn't reached its potential. "Mizelle is usually a fantastic outside shooter, but he hasn't come around yet. Bill Moore and Martin are also good on the outside. We try to get the ball into Modlin, too, but most teams sag their defenses around him, and that makes it hard for him to get the ball."

The defense so far has been the weak point of the Bullet attack. "We're trying to play our reserves some, and work on rebounding, and somehow, we're just not concentrating on the defense. We're letting them pass the ball inside, and just standing around or moving without really playing defense. We need to concentrate more on this part of the game."

Hall looks at the conference race as being real tight. "Oak City won last year, but I thought Robersonville had the best team. Both of them should be strong again this year. Bear Grass hasn't done much so far, but they could come around too and make it a real right race," Hall said. "I still think Robersonville and Oak City will be the ones to beat, however."

He's not counting the Bullets out, however. "We can do it. But we've got to start concentrating on defense. If that comes around and we can keep up our rebounding, we'll be in there all the way."

Nebraska-Alabama Game Gives All Signs Of Another Super One

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out the college football wash:

Best sign last week at the Nebraska-Oklahoma game was the one strung out across the top of one of the dorms at Norman, Okla. It didn't come true, but it read:

"We're gonna annihilate bomb cream destroy eliminate flunk grind humiliate incapacitate jinx kill liquidate massacre nail obliterate pop quunch (sic) rip shuck trounce upset victimize wishbone x-terminate yank zonk Nebraska."

Saddest memory? Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks, after being grilled in the locker room, showing up later at a post-game reception and saying in a soft voice:

"Probably the most disappointing thing about the game is that we've got a great bunch of young men on this team. We worked five years trying to get a group of people together to play the way we wanted. They worked real hard to get in this position and not being able to fulfill what the kids worked for is disappointing."

"But just getting themselves in a position to challenge for No. 1 is quite an accomplishment. We just ran out of holes. We needed one more birdie. But it was the greatest game I've ever been involved in ... a classic game."

What about Alabama, Nebraska's challenger in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Night?

"Alabama is a tremendously improved team since the first part of the season," says Tennessee's Bill Battle, one of the Crimson Tide's victims.

"They've gotten a super coaching job. They have a good, solid defense and a great running game. They haven't had to throw the ball much all year."

"Alabama has all the attrib-

Ranking To Decide

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Appalachian State University's seeing for the Southern Conference Basketball Tournament will be determined by a national ranking service.

The teams are usually paired according to their league standings, but the Mountaineers will be well below the required number of 10 conference games because of their late admittance to the conference.

Pairings usually pit the No. 1 team against the No. 8 team, No. 2 against No. 7 and so forth. Appalachian, without a valid conference record, wouldn't fit in with that system.

Therefore, if Appalachian is ranked No. 2 among conference teams by the ranking service, it will be seeded No. 2 in the tournament, and so forth.

Appalachian plays Davidson and East Carolina once and Furman twice. Conference officials have decided the four games will count in conference standings for the teams playing Appalachian, but will not count on the Appalachian ledger.

The Southern Conference tournament will be March 24 at Memorial Auditorium in Greenville, S.C.

Kennedy Gets Added Powers

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Kennedy reigns supreme in the National Basketball Association with new powers vested in him by the 17 club owners.

Kennedy's new powers as commissioner are virtually dictatorial.

"In strengthening and enlarging his authority as Commissioner by a rare unanimous vote of the owners, we felt the best interests of the public and best interests of professional basketball are being served," said Abe Pollin, chairman of the NBA's Advisory Committee and owner of the Baltimore Bullets.

In gaining strength Kennedy was given the okay by the owners to make decisions, which cannot be appealed, on situations now covered by the by-laws and constitutions. Kennedy also can fix a penalty whenever there is a rule that carries no specific penalty for violation.

Other unappealable powers given Kennedy:

—The right to fine any club $250,000 for tampering with a player under contract to another club.

—The right to set the date and time of all games, including playoffs, and to impose a $25,000 fine or forfeit, or both, on any club refusing to play a scheduled game.

—The right to fine, suspend or expel any person who bets on a game, directly or indirectly.

"The owners feel that the complexities of running the National Basketball Association as it is now constituted with 17 clubs necessitates the conferring of total power of administration on the Commissioner," said Pollin.

It would take a three-fourth vote by the owners to deprive Kennedy of his new powers, and if that happened, he said, he would step aside, which would mean the league would have to buy up his contract. He currently is working on a four-year agreement.

A merger with the American Basketball Association would not affect his powers, Kennedy said, because he would be the commissioner of the merged league under the merger agreement.

Pacific Fires Homer Smith

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Homer Smith says being fired after two losing seasons as head football coach at the University of the Pacific was "the biggest shock I've ever had."

"I never dreamed I wouldn't have at least a third year to build a team," said Smith, 40, after athletic director Cedric Dempsey made the announcement Monday. No successor was named.

"There just wasn't time. We did seem to be improving. We had plans," said the former Princeton backfield star and Davidson coach. "This just came as the biggest shock I've ever had—I hope that I'll ever have."

Smith coached the UOP Tigers, of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, to a 5-6 record last season and a 3-8 record this year. Five of this year's losses were by seven points or less, two by one point.

Dempsey's announcement said merely that "We felt it was in the best interest of the football program and the university that a change be made at this time."

In five seasons at Davidson, Smith, a native of Independence, Mo., compiled a 24-23 record. His 1969 team won the Southern Conference championship.

Alabama Climbs Into No. 2 Spot

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

All-winning Nebraska came within 14 points of a perfect score in this week's Associated Press poll, while equally unbeaten Alabama climbed into second place and set up college football's version of the Super Bowl.

It will take place on New Year's Night in Miami's Orange Bowl when the two leaders clash with the national championship at stake.

Nebraska's defending champions received 48 first-place votes and 1,066 points in the final regular-season poll from a nationwide panel of 55 sports writers and broadcasters. The Cornhuskers won last week's 1-2 showdown with Oklahoma 35-31.

Alabama, an impressive 31-7 winner over previously unbeaten Auburn, earned four top votes and 938 points while Oklahoma slipped from second to third with 851 points. Many voters still rated the Sooners No. 2.

Michigan, which finished its regular season a week ago with a 11-0 record, remained fourth with two first-place votes and 764 votes while Penn State picked up the remaining top vote and moved up from sixth to fifth with 740 points. The Nittany Lions didn't play last

The Worry Clinic Affection Has To Be Spoken

Heed Dr. Thompson's wise suggestion. For millions of people feel timid and so lonely they may wish they were dead. In fact, suicide is now the greatest cause of death among our 5 million college youth! So articulate your affection! Verbalize your love! Don't depend on telepathy, especially with young kiddies.

Thompson is both a clinical psychologist and superb pulpit orator. After several years in leading Presbyterian pastorates of the Philadelphia area, he recently transferred to the booming new Bethany Presbyterian Church in suburban Indianapolis. "We need more evidence of Christian friendship," he recently told a Sunday morning congregation. "So I want all of you to stand Personalized Religion Clifton Hirschman told our recent Scientific Marriage Foundation luncheon crowd of this episode. "I stood up," Clifton began, "and saw an elderly man behind me. "He had a weather beaten face but I took his hand and recited just what Dr. Thompson had urged us to say. "But I also patted him on the shoulder as I told him, 'God loves you, and I love you, too.' And some of the folks in your own church tomorrow, who seem so self-assured, may actually be putting up that appearance as a bold front to hide their breaking hearts.

For most of us try to conceal our inner hurt and lonely despair by acting indifferent on the surface. Clergymen in the larger cities report uniformly this cry, "Nobody cares." And I receive thousands of letters from disconsolate souls who write the same sad plea — "Nobody cares if I live or die."

Do you readers know that the greatest cause of death among our 5,000,000 college students is suicide? And hundreds of high schoolers also end their own lives because they think their parents don't love them and "Nobody cares."

In my boyhood, I can still remember my mother's voice, singing a song about a dying wife who was hearing his first story about Jesus. "Tell it again, tell it again."

Mexico's Development Stage Trails Badly For The Farmer

Editor's Note—Our neighbor Canada is strictly 20th century. In contrast Mexico "stands now about where the United States stood at the Reconstruction period after the Civil War." in the appraisal of California Prof. John A. Crow, author of the book "Mexico Today." Some of the things that make this so are discussed in this article, second in a series of three by the AP's chief correspondent in Mexico.

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — A toothless farmer, barefoot and wearing tattered clothes, stood on the edge of a crowd of about 250 men who till communal farmland in Mexico's sweltering state of Tabasco.

In the center of the crowd stood a tall Mexican of 49 years, wearing a sport shirt and slacks. Luis Echeverria, president of Mexico, was listening to the forgotten man of Mexico, the "campesino" farmer who survives on the very edge of this country's flourishing economic growth.

The farmers had flagged down the president's bus as he toured Tabasco State on one of the tours he has made since taking office a year ago. They wanted paving of the rutted, dirt road on which they stood. Echeverria promised that if they would terrace the roadbed at government expense he would send in the paving equipment. That way, he explained, they could help themselves, earn a daily wage and end the seasonal isolation of their four villages.

"At least he stopped," the toothless farmer said. "A lot of presidents wouldn't."

It was one of thousands of stops Echeverria has made. He traveled 27,460 miles in his first 11 months in office, pushing for reforms he feels must be made to end corruption, oppression, fear and the increasing gap between Mexico's rich and poor.

This country has a reputation as one of the most rapidly developing nations in the Third World. Economic statistics reflect years of stable and sure growth.

But as far as that farmer is concerned the statistics lie. For him, and for millions of peasants and laborers, the situation is desperate. Their share of nation's growth is hard to find.

"It is obvious, at this point of Mexican development, that there can no longer be a postponement of the measures meant to reduce unbalances," says the National Bank of Foreign Trade in a report on Echeverria's policies. "A more equitable income distribution among the different strata of population must be achieved."

Government protection of developing industries, the report suggested, has to taper off. Consumer goods are priced out of reason with the cost of production. An appliance which sells for $10 in another country may cost $20 here even though labor costs are lower.

Many Mexicans blame part of this on heavy U.S. investment. They say subsidiaries of American firms set retail prices keyed to high profits. Sixty-five per cent of this country's foreign trade is with the United States. Many of Mexico's exports are produced by subsidiaries of American companies and sold on the world market by the parent firm or by U.S. middlemen.

There are economists who say American dominance in Mexican technology, commerce and finance has made this country an economic stepchild of U.S. demand.

The 1970 census found 29,788,308 Mexicans economically active. But 40 per cent of them had an average monthly income of $40 or less. Only slightly more than 100,000 Mexicans reported monthly income of $800 or more.

The Roman Catholic Church, seeing social responsibilities in this country where almost 97 per cent of the people are Catholic, circulated this fall a document called "Social Justice in Mexico". It severely criticized the government, and the Church, for allowing the poor to drift along in a marginal existence.

The report pointed out that Mexico's agriculture reform, basis of the 1910-17 revolution, has not worked as well as some people claim. In 1970 there were 819,504 people tilling "ejido" or communal farmland. Often their plots are so tiny, and the land so poor, they could not feed themselves properly much less raise a cash crop.

The 1.2 million private farms in the country total 3.3 billion acres. Eighty-three per cent of this is in holdings of up to five hectares—a little over 12 acres. The remaining 17 per cent of the farms account for more than half the arable farm land and represent 58 per cent of total agricultural production. This minority receives 66 per cent of all capital dedicated to agriculture, the study showed.

The situation is better, but not much, for 5.4 million laborers. Minimum wages are set by the federal government but the standards tend to benefit the patron or boss more than the worker.

The minimum wage in Mexico City is $2.52 for an eight-hour day. A factory worker earning that can barely feed his family. He has no hope of ever owning a new car or buying his own home.

While most Mexican workers are unionized that does not mean the same thing it might mean elsewhere. The unions are affiliated with the Confederation of Mexican Workers. It in turn is controlled by the Partido Revolucionario Institucional or PRI which has ruled Mexico for almost half a century. Union corruption is widespread.

The study also that roughly two-fifths of Mexico's homes have dirt floors and lack running water.

People like these rose against oppression and injustice in Mexico's revolution of 1910. To avert another uprising Echeverria and future Mexican leaders must deliver on the promises of their ancestors.

Warren Will Help Taylor

RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor's campaign for governor will be managed by former State Sen. Lindsay C. Warren Jr. of Goldsboro.

Taylor introduced Warren as his campaign manager at a news conference in Raleigh today.

Warren, an attorney, served in the state Senate from 1963 through 1969. He was chairman of the North Carolina Courts Commission which was the architect of the state's revamped court system and he served as chairman of the Warren Commission which recently recommended restructuring of higher education in North Carolina.

In accepting the task of directing the Taylor campaign, Warren said he considers Taylor "one of the best qualified persons by experience, knowledge and understanding to ever seek the office of governor."

He said he has contacted friends throughout the state and found Taylor has strong support. He said the Taylor campaign would be based on "positive programs and proposals."

Skyjacker, Or A Hole In The Ground, Still Hunted

WOODLAND, Wash. (AP) — An airplane hijacker has vanished with two parachutes and $200,000, and the search for him has ended for all but the FBI.

A University of Washington sociologist calls the sky piracy an "awesome feat in the battle of man against the machine."

Dr. Otto Larsen said the sky-jacker apparently has won public admiration as "one man overcoming, for the time being anyway, technology, the corporation, the establishment, the system."

Thus, Larsen said, the hijacker "comes off as a kind of curious Robin Hood, taking from the rich—or at least the big and complex. It doesn't matter whether he gives it to the poor or not."

FBI officials in Portland, Ore., and Seattle say they will continue their pursuit of the man who apparently bailed out of the hijacked Northwest Airlines jetliner last week as it flew from Seattle to Reno, Nev.

But local law enforcement agencies have turned to other chore.

"There's nothing new and we've taken our men off unless something else turns up," a spokesman for the Clark County, Wash., sheriff's office said Monday of the search for the hijacker in the brushy, timbered Cascade Mountain foothills of southwest Washington.

The FBI continued questioning dozens of persons who believed they recognized a composite sketch of the hijacker, but the investigators reported no success in finding a definite lead.

Officials said they had concentrated the search around Woodland because the jetliner's flight recorder had indicated small shifts in the plane's air position as it passed over the area.

Law enforcement officers searching for the hijacker were faced with three major disadvantages—surprise, piecemeal evidence and the meticulous planning which apparently went into the deed, the first involving the escape of a hijacker by parachute.

The air pirate seized control of the plane Thanksgiving Eve, passing a note to stewardess Florence Schaffner which said he had a bomb and would blow up the plane unless he got what he wanted.

His demands—bizarre at the outset—in retrospect provided an insight into the careful planning which apparently went into his operation.

He asked for $200,000, which he received in $20 bills, and for two parachutes. And he said he wanted to go to Mexico.

The plane circled over Seattle for 2½ hours while the money and parachutes were obtained.

When the plane landed so the hijacker could pick up the money and the chutes, he ordered two more parachutes—sports chutes which could be opened by hand during a free fall. The firstones were military chutes which could be opened only by a static line attached to the plane.

He released the 36 other passengers and two of the aircraft's six crew members and then specified to pilot William Scott how the plane should be flown to a refueling stop at Reno, Nev., en route to Mexico—altitude no more than 10,000 feet, the rear boarding door open, the landing gear extended and flaps lowered to slow air-speed to 200 miles per hour.

The type of aircraft—a Boeing 727—may have been involved more by choice than chance. A Boeing spokesman said the 727 is the only commercial jetliner from which a person could bail out successfully. The passenger stairs lower vertically from the tail, and "it would be a very safe drop ... away from the flaps and engines," the spokesman said.

As the plane took off for Reno, the hijacker stayed in the rear of the plane and the four crew members in the cockpit, as he ordered.

The last words the crew had with the hijacker over the aircraft intercom system came about the time the aircraft lumbered through cloudy, night skies over the Woodland area.

Air Force pilots following the hijacked plane said they did not see anyone leave the darkened, unpressurized and frigid passenger compartment of the airliner, but when it touched down at Reno the sky pirate was gone.

"He took leave of us somewhere between here and Seattle," Scott said, adding that a cockpit indicator showed the rear boarding stairs were lowered at the time the crew last talked with the hijacker.

Agents found two of the parachutes in the plane, one open and torn. That led to a theory the hijacker used some of the material to bind the money to his body when he jumped.

Although officials said they intended to provide everything the man demanded, they learned a day after the incident

Ayden-Grifton School News

By ANNE DENSON and SUE HASELEY

If approved by the school board, Ayden-Grifton will be the first school in Pitt County to participate in a voter registration program, Dec. 7. This project will register students in their home counties since, by state law, out-of-town college students must vote in the precinct in which their parents live. Then, they may send in absentee ballots.

Students who are 18 by December 6 may register in this program at the school. They will need positive identification and proof of age — preferably a driver's license. They will also need to know the precinct in which they live and their place of birth. An oath will be administered stating all information given is correct.

There are five ways of registering: Democratic, Republican, American, Independent, or no party. Those classified as Democrats or Republicans will be eligible to vote in the respective primaries. Party preference may be changed up to 31 days before the election.

Those who will be 18 years old between December 7, 1971, and April 7, 1972, may register at the county office after their birthdays. Those who will be 18 between April 7 and November 2, 1972, may register between March 7 and April 7 and will be eligible to vote in the primaries, even though they may not be 18 at the time the primaries are held.

Pam Carraway, Billy McLawhorn, Brenda Smith, Linda Ingram, Leroy Sumpter and Teresa Gardner will assist the county registrar in this program at the school.

Basketball Begins

The Chargers' basketball teams began the season Monday night, Nov. 22, with a double victory over the Southern Wayne Saints. The girls won 45 to 28, and the boys by a score of 51 to 35.

Maude Babington, a junior, was high scorer for the girls, making 13 points. Nancy Sugg, the second high scorer made 11 points; JoAnn Dawson, 8; Connie Carter, 5; Deborah Harris, 3; and Terry Wooten and JayJay Little, two each.

In the boys' game Melvin Stewart was high scorer with 21 points. Milton Brown scored 14 points; Danny Garriis, six points; Willie Stewart and Jimmy Mayo, four each; and Carlton McCarter, two points.

The Chargers also played Southern Nash Wednesday, Nov. 24. The first home game will be against North Pitt, tonight. Eighteen games remain for Ayden-Grifton, 13 of which are conference games.

Correction: The choral department will sing at Tarrytown Mall in Rocky Mount on December 14 at 4:30 p.m. instead of on November 23, as previously stated.

Discuss Widening Of Interstate 85

RALEIGH (AP) — Talk of the possibility of widening portions of Interstate 85 in North Carolina followed massive traffic jams Sunday night near Greensboro, Burlington and Creedmoor.

A state Highway Commission assistant planning and research engineer, Ted Waters, said there are no definite plans for widening the highway—"just hopes. Something obviously will have to be done."

Waters noted that the interstate highway was built with 90 per cent federal funds and only 10 per cent state money and there is no provision in the federal highway program for rebuilding or improving interstate highways.

"I don't suppose there's anything in the law that would prohibit us (the state) from doing it," he said.

Illegal Abortion Charged Doctor

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Police report they have charged a Monroe doctor with offices in Charlotte with performing an illegal abortion on a 16-year-old unmarried girl.

Dr. A.E. Perry Jr., 50, was accused of performing the abortion on or about Nov. 12. Police say he charged the girl $300 and that she became ill Nov. 15 due to complications from the abortion.

Perry had been convicted of performing an illegal abortion in 1956 and served 11 months in prison. His license to practice medicine was revoked by the State Board of Health while he was in prison, but it was reinstated in 1961 on the condition he work only in Charlotte.

But there's no chance of the highway being improved anytime soon. If work were started immediately on a widening project it would require five to seven years to complete.

Waters pointed out that I-85 between Greensboro and Burlington is now carrying an average of 35,000 vehicles a day—equal to its design capacity which it was expected to reach in 1975.

"When you have a road that's carrying near its capacity, any sort of interruption causes a back-up of traffic," Waters said.

Highway Patrolmen said the three traffic jams Sunday were triggered by wrecks. They said traffic was backed up for eight miles near Creedmoor in a jam that lasted seven hours, the Burlington jam had traffic backed up four miles for four hours and the Greensboro jam backed up traffic 10 miles and lasted more than two hours.

A Highway Department spokesman said the opening during the next few weeks of a now-uncompleted missing link of I-85 between Butner, just north of Durham, up to Oxford, should prevent a repeat of traffic jams in the Creedmoor area. Traffic now is detoured from four-lane I-85 to two-lane U.S. 15.

Migrant Worker Died In Flames

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A fire of undetermined origin has taken the life of a 45-year-old migrant worker.

The victim, identified as Jodie Tucker, was alone in the house on U.S. 117 a mile south of Wilson at the time of the fire Sunday.

RIGHT NOW, THERE ARE MORE REASONS TO BUY A CAR FROM AMERICAN MOTORS THAN ANYBODY ELSE IN THE BUSINESS.

Since the Price Freeze ended, you've been hearing all kinds of talk about car prices going up. A lot of them already have.

Because of surcharges, the price of the VW Beetle has gone up $210; the 2-door Toyota Corolla 1600, $253; the 2-door Datsun 510, $253, and the 2-door Chrysler Colt, $240.*

And it's not just imports. Ford's Pinto has gone up $133. Our Gremlin went up $59.*

What's more, every company that makes cars in America has asked permission to raise prices on all their cars.

So, it won't be long before any car you buy will cost more.

But American Motors dealers still have plenty of 1972 models they bought at "Freeze Prices."

So, if you buy a car from us now, you can save yourself a lot of money.

SELECTION

Because of the price situation, a lot of car dealers don't have many cars on hand. So you may not be able to get the car you want.

The chances are, this won't happen at your American Motors dealer.

Since he's been keeping his stocks up, he'll probably have the make and model you want.

Even if he doesn't, we have a good supply of cars on hand. So we'll probably be able to deliver exactly the car you want faster than any of our competitors.

BUYER PROTECTION PLAN

There's more to buying a car than just price and style. When you buy a '72 from us, you get American Motors Buyer Protection Plan.

When you buy a new 1972 car from an American Motors dealer, American Motors Corporation guarantees to you that, except for tires, it will pay for the repair or replacement of any part it supplies that is defective in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is good for 12 months from the date the car is first used or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.

All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service in the fifty United States or Canada and that guaranteed repairs or replacements be made by an American Motors dealer.

You get a car that's been road-tested and checked over so thoroughly that we make this promise: If anything goes wrong, and it's our fault, we'll fix it. Free.

And, if we have to keep it overnight to fix it, over 1900 dealers will loan you a car. Free.

You also get a name and toll-free number to call in Detroit if you have a problem.

Nobody else in the business does all this for you after you buy a car.

See your American Motors dealer now.

All things considered, there never was a better time to buy a car from him.
