India Claims Forces Driving Nearer Dacca In E. Pakistan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

India claimed today that its forces had driven to within 28 miles of Dacca, East Pakistan, but conceded Pakistan's army was holding a large section around Chhamb in Kashmir on the western front.

A Pakistani official source in Dacca denied India's claim that the key southern town of Jessore in East Pakistan had fallen to Indian troops and said fierce fighting continued there and elsewhere on the western, northern and eastern fronts.

An Indian government spokesman said in New Delhi fighting was still going on in the Chhamb region, where they were pushed out of the town Tuesday to defensive positions farther east.

"This is a pretty big attack," he said. "The Pakistanis have thrown more than an infantry division and three armored brigades into the attack."

The Pakistanis appeared to be trying to cut New Delhi's only road link with Srinagar, the capital of Kashmir. The highway is west of Chhamb.

In East Pakistan, the drive toward Dacca is headed by three infantry columns moving from the east, south and west, a spokesman for the Eastern Military Command said in Calcutta.

He said Indian troops had advanced to the banks of the Meghna River at Daudkandi, 28 miles southeast of Dacca, while the other units were moving toward the capital from Jessore, the army headquarters town which the Indians say they captured on Tuesday.

Jessore is 80 miles southwest of Dacca.

The spokesman in Calcutta said Indian troops also had isolated Pakistani troops at Comilla, 50 miles southeast of Dacca.

Newsmen were still barred from the battlefronts, and there was no way to confirm or disprove the official reports.

A government spokesman in New Delhi described Pakistani resistance throughout East Pakistan as "moderate to stiff, but when we lean on them, they just seem to give up."

The advancing Indians have not met any major resistance in the southeastern section of the province around Comilla, he said, but heavy fighting is going on to clear the Pakistani army cantonment at Comilla.

In the southeastern delta region, he added, the Indians have reached the port of Chandpur, on the water route to Dacca.

The spokesman said Indian Navy planes were putting heavy pressure on the ports of Chittagong and Cox's Bazar, and were reported destroying three gunboats at Chalna in the delta.

He said the navy planes also bombed the army barracks at Chittagong during the night.

The spokesman also reported hard fighting in the Hilli region in the northeastern part of East Pakistan, 200 miles north of Calcutta.

The Pakistani government admitted some withdrawals in East Pakistan but nothing like the advances claimed by the Indians. A spokesman in Rawalpindi said the Pakistani army had pulled out of a customs post at Benapole, on the western border, and also withdrew from Brahmanbaria, which controls the major road south from the teagrowing region of Sylhet, in the northeast corner of the province. He said the forces took up alternative positions in both sectors.

On the western front, the Indian spokesman in New Delhi said, "the Pakistanis still haven't hit our main defenses" in Kashmir.

"So far, we've been fighting a defensive battle, but we're reorganizing," he said, "and we'll do something."

He refused to discuss casualties.

An Indian corps commander told the United News of India that Indian troops had made advances all along the ceasefire line dividing Kashmir "except for a tactical withdrawal in the Chhamb sector."

Vote Cease Fire Appeal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly called Tuesday night for a speedy end to the fighting between India and Pakistan and a political settlement in East Pakistan. It seemed unlikely to get either.

The assembly adopted a resolution calling on both countries for an immediate cease-fire and withdrawal of their armed forces behind their own borders. The resolution also said "an early political solution would be necessary" to get the East Pakistani refugees back home.

The resolution was sponsored by 33 of the United Nations' 131 members and got an overwhelming vote of 104-11, with 10 nations abstaining, one not participating and five absent.

Indian and Pakistani representatives said their countries would not abide by the resolution.

The assembly adopted the cease-fire resolution after the Soviet Union, supporting India, vetoed two similar resolutions in the Security Council, and the council rejected a Soviet resolution calling for a political settlement in East Pakistan.

The assembly resolution was a slight revision of the second one the Soviet Union had vetoed in the council.

A paragraph was inserted urging "that every effort be made to safeguard the lives and well-being of the civilian population in the area of the conflict." This was requested by Secretary-General U Thant.

Another paragraph was added calling upon the Security Council "to take appropriate action in the light of the present resolution." But with the Soviet Union backing India and the Chinese Communists supporting Pakistan, the council is deadlocked and nobody expects it to meet on the issue soon.

Morgan Files

RALEIGH (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan filed today as a candidate for re-election subject to the Democratic primary next May.

Morgan became the first candidate to file for a Council of State position when he paid his $295 fee to Alex Brock, secretary of the state Board of Elections.

Morgan, once considered a prime contender for his party's gubernatorial nomination, removed himself from the governor's race last month.

He said at the time he wanted to remain in the attorney general's office to complete work already begun.

Find 5 Murders

WESTFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Five persons, three of them children, were found shot to death Tuesday night in their spacious home in this suburban community, police said.

Police said an alarm had been issued for John E. List,46, identified as an executive for a New York City firm. They said List was wanted for questioning in the case.

Chief John F. Moran of the Westfield police said the victims, identified as List's wife, children and mother, had been dead about a month. He said the bodies were discovered by curious neighbors who entered the List home because no member of the family had been seen for some time.

Moran said a handgun had been found in the house but that it was not known whether it was the murder weapon.

Police identified the victims as Mrs. Helen List, 46; and her children Patricia, 16, John F., 15 and Frederick, 13. List's mother, Mrs. Alma List, a woman in her 80s, also was among the victims.

Italy Added To Nixon's Visits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has added Italy to the list of nations whose government chiefs he plans to meet before his visits to Peking and Moscow next year.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Tuesday Nixon had wanted to meet with Prime Minister Emilio Colombo of Italy this month, but the meeting was put off until after Thursday's presidential election in Italy.

Many Young Veterans Show Up Early For Regional Jobs Fair

Under spring like skies, young men by the hundreds began arriving in Greenville this morning. Many came early, far ahead of the 10:30 opening hour of the regional Job For Veterans Fair being held all day at the National Guard Armory.

Some, still in service, came in uniform. The majority came in civilian clothes. Most have two things in common. They are young — a great majority are in their early 20's; and they are young men seriously concerned about their future, and in particular their chances of getting full time employment.

In some places as early as 10:30 they stood — as they have often done in military life — in line, waiting for an opportunity to speak to one of the more than 30 representatives on hand from businesses and firms in Pitt and adjoining counties.

"This is really a remarkable response," Mayror S. Eugene West commented. "Even this early in the day we have as many as we can possibly handle." The mayor observed that if the Job for Veterans Fair winds up being as successful as all the earmarks indicate, it will very likely result in another being held soon.

"We are all pleased with the interest shown," Dr. Joe Pou, chairman of the fair remarked, "both by the businesses who are participating and the young men who are here seeking information on jobs."

A. B. Whitley, chairman of the mayor's Jobs for Veterans Task Force, said "I am sure this fair will bring about some good results."

One young marine, Sgt. J. G. Maples, a Career Planner with the 2nd Bridge Company of the 8th Engineer Battalion at Camp Lejeune, who accompanied some of the young marines from that installation visiting the fair, expressed pleasure about the reception given the men. "The majority of these men are veterans of Vietnam," he said, "and they are delighted at the friendly reception they have received here today."

Police 'Observer' Plan Pondered For Farmville

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners said they would deliberate over whether to give the town's "blessing" to a group of citizens interested in forming an organization to observe for police.

Vassar Fields presented the idea in the form of a petition signed by a number of local merchants. He said the group would train themselves to watch the town for any violation of the law. Members would have citizen's band radios to alert police.

The question as to whether the group would merely alert the police or make citizen's arrests if necessary caused some discussion. Fields pointed out that such an arrest is any citizen's right, but he said the purpose would be to increase the effectiveness of the police by being extra eyes and ears.

The Commissioners directed Fields to bring the idea back next month in written form, state the number of personnel involved and other particulars.

Some $200 was allocated to the midget football and basketball program, following a request by Carl Venters.

It was resolved to ask the state to designate this are Planning Region Q in connection with the Mideast Economic Development Commission. The request was also made by Venters, the Board's representative on the Commission.

Venters also asked that residents of Westwood Subdivision, who were town taxpayers seven years before they were given sewer service, be given some consideration on the set sewer tap-on fee of $100. Sewers have only recently been installed in the subdivision.

A request to place a street light in the 300 block of Barrett Street was honored.

Joe Griffin, a member of the Farmville School Advisory Board, thanked the commissioners for lights recently installed around Farmville Central High School and got their go ahead to erect a fence across a previously dedicated

Bethel Is Advised Parading Ordinance Has 'Serious Problems'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

More than 50 protestors charged with parading without permits in connection with an October 27 march in Bethel and a November 29 demonstration in Greenville were found guilty in District Court here yesterday.

But District Judge Robert Wheeler, who heard the cases told Bethel officials, "there are some serious problems about your city ordinance..." and suggested they consult with the town's attorney or other officials "before any other arrests are made under it."

Defense attorney Jerry Paul, in his arguments before the court, said the Bethel ordinance, just as the Ayden ordinance under which protestors have been arrested there, is identical to an old Greenville ordinance found to be unconstitutional by U.S. District Court Judge John Larkins. He said the Bethel ordinance is "unconstitutional on its face" and for its "vagueness."

The 21 Bethel marchers tried yesterday were among a group of 63 protestors, including juveniles, that Police Chief Walter Gray told the court were given a chance to disband. When they failed to do so, Gray said, they were arrested.

After finding the Bethel group guilty, Judge Wheeler ordered "prayer for judgment continued," in each case and ordered costs in each case remitted.

One protestor, Luke Williams, was handed a 30-day jail term for contempt of court after arriving late and causing a disturbance when he entered.

Judge Wheeler handed three-day jail terms to 33 Greenville marchers found guilty of violating that city's parade ordinance last week. He then ordered that credit be given for time already served in jail following their arrest and the majority of the group was released under that stipulation.

The few who had not spent three days in jail, including protest leader Golden Frinks, appealed their cases to Superior Court.

Frinks, the only witness tendered by the defense, said he "thought of asking for a permit . . . " but after thinking "cars need no permit" to travel on the streets "we deliberately refused to get that permit."

He added, "We were on that part of the street which we thought was a public highway . . . "

Frinks told the court the march had been planned as the first leg of a treak to Raleigh to protest "police brutality."

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference field secretary told the court his salary ranges from $2,000 a week to $80 a week to nothing." He explained his "salary is set by the situation in the local community." He added, "banking has been pretty good", on questioning by Solicitor Bill Barker.

The civil rights worker added that his salary on November 29, was "$86 per week."

In an earlier motion, Paul argued that by trying the Greenville marchers, city officials and the solicitor were violating a Federal Court restraining order.

Although the injunction issued by Judge Larkins in U.S. Dsitrict Court dealt with an earlier regulation — ordinance 330 — Paul contended that ordinance 337 under which the marchers here were arrested last week still contained some of the objectionable provisions that the federal jurist had ruled unconstitutional. He said that city and state court officials prosecuting the case could be in violation of the federal injunction.

Judge Wheeler, in entering his verdict, said "the court is of the opinion that the city ordinance is a valid ordinance . . . and it is quite clear . . . by Mr. Frinks' own statement, that he intended to violate the ordinance."

A number of other cases involving violations of parading ordinances set for trial today were continued because the defendants' attorney could not be present.

More than 340 cases stemming from marches are docketed for trial in District Court in Ayden Thursday.

Here Comes Christmas Cookies

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

One of the best holiday cookies we've ever eaten is a rolled cookie that's spiced delightfully. White pepper goes in along with cinnamon, cloves and ginger!

These cookies, said to hail from Norway, are thin and crisp. They take time to roll out, but if you like to work with your hands, you'll consider that fun. And when you taste them, you're bound to consider your time well spent.

ROLLED SPICE COOKIES

2½ cups unsifted flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
¾ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon white pepper
½ cup sugar
½ cup dark corn syrup
½ cup (¼-pound stick) butter or margarine
1 egg

On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, soda, cinnamon, cloves, ginger and pepper.

In a 1-quart saucepan stir together the sugar, corn syrup and butter; over medium heat bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Cool to room temperature. Beat in egg. Stir in flour mixture, mixing well. Chill dough, covered, overnight.

HOLIDAY FARE — Rolled spice cookies can be cut in shapes to suit your own fancy.

Divide dough into 4 portions. Work with one portion at a time and keep remaining portions in the refrigerator.

On a floured pastry cloth, with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out one portion of the dough as thin as possible—less than 1-16th inch thick. With floured cookie cutters, cut into various shapes. Place 1-inch apart on greased cookie sheets.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly browned—5 to 6 minutes.

Yield will depend on size of cutters, but if a 3-inch cutter is used there will be about 10 dozen cookies.

Pills on the surface of a knit garment may be removed brushing small sections of the knit with a semistiff brush or by using a fine grade of sandpaper or a safety razor while holding the garment flat. You also can get results with scissors or with one of the "pill removing cutters" now on the market.

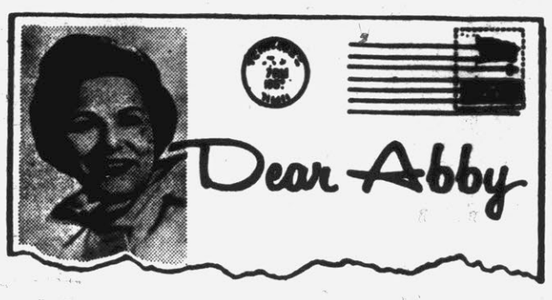
Heavy Load Calls For Help, Not Harassment



By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We've been married 14 years and have four sweet kids. Over the years my husband has done some pretty mean things. Here is an example:

Yesterday my youngest cried when I told her I couldn't attend the first PTA meeting as that was my night to do the weekly grocery shopping. When I realized how much it meant to her to have me meet her teacher and view her work, I knew I had to go, so when my husband came home from work, I told him his dinner was on the table, and I was rushing out to do the marketing early, so I could attend the PTA meeting.

Well, Abby, he flew into a rage like a madman when he saw there was no full-course dinner waiting for him—but something I had quickly put together instead. He shouted that he would not put up with meals like this, as though I fed him that way every night! He also said it wasn't necessary for me to go to the PTA meeting, and I was only using it as an excuse to get out of the house. [And all of this in front of the children?]

I did the marketing with a lump in my throat and when I returned, he refused to help me carry in the nine bags of groceries!

Abby, what do you think of a 41-year-old man with a master's degree and an executive position who treats his family this way?

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: Maturity and consideration do not come in degrees. And by the way, your husband is as much a parent as you, and as such he should have gone to the PTA meeting with you. [P. S. I hope your husband grows up before his kids do.]

DEAR ABBY: You jokingly said, "Now, if Ma Bell would only come up with a gadget that would signal those nonstop talkers to say goodby!"

Well, we of Standard Telephone in northeast Georgia have used a feature for some 20 years. Our apparatus signals a short warning at the end of five minutes. Sixty seconds later another warning signal is heard, after which the connection is automatically broken.

This does not, of course, prevent the parties from redialing each other. It does, however, free the line for others who may be trying to get either of the long-winded parties.

Yours very truly,

H. M. STEWART

DEAR MR. STEWART: The feature is great if one of the parties is eager to terminate the conversation. But can you imagine the resentment an automatic disconnect would create if both parties were enjoying a "long-winded" conversation about love? Or money?

DEAR ABBY: After years of accepting congratulations and gifts on my birthday just for having been born, it suddenly occurred to me who really deserved the gifts.

After that, on my birthday, I sent my mother one rose for every year of my life. I enclosed a note, "With loving thanks." She knew who had sent them.

Now that she is no longer living, I send a contribution on my birthday to my mother's favorite charity in her name. The card still says, "With loving thanks."

J.

DEAR J.: Thank you for sharing a beautiful idea.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "KEEP ME ANONYMOUS IN SAN ANTONIO": The person who is always first to notice a bit of "dirt" on the other fellow may need to have his glasses cleaned.

DEAR ABBY: I don't imagine you have finished counting the votes you asked your readers to send in concerning a letter which you found extremely difficult to answer. But will you please give us a clue as to which side is ahead?

IMPATIENT IN MONTANA

DEAR IMPATIENT: The "DON'T GO'S" are ahead. But it's no landslide. I'm hoping to have the results for publication next week.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

NEW YORK (AP) — Her blue jeans are faded, her checked shirt is well-worn, she's wearing not a trace of makeup and her blonde hair is hanging loose to her shoulders. She says her world has shrunk and that her pleasure comes from simple, quiet times.

Would you believe she's a movie star? Better yet—would you believe she's Candice Bergen—Lakey in "The Group," which marked the start of her film career, and T.R. in her latest film, "T. R. Baskin." And in between, she's the young woman who starred opposite Steve McQueen in "The Sand Pebbles" and Elliott Gould in "Getting Straight," and who has worked with directors like Claude LeLouche in "Vivre Pour Vivre" and Mike Nichols in "Carnal Knowledge."

Reluctant at the start about getting involved with movies—which she managed to do as a student at the University of Pennsylvania—when her real interests were writing and photography, Miss Bergen says she likes acting better now.

"It's so much more gratifying than it was at first," she says, in her slow, soft voice. "That's because I've changed and also because movies have changed. Now it's more like a bunch of friends making a movie together. No one treats you differently. You're just a person whose job is to read these lines and do the best you can. It's all scaled into the proper perspective, which obviates some of the guilt I felt at first when everybody paid you so much attention.

" 'T. R. Baskin' was a small film and very intimate for us. I've never worked harder or longer, but we all cared about the movie and about each other. I really feel like I earned my keep and did my job, and for one of the first times I felt I could come up with what was expected of me."

The actress, even more gorgeous in person than on the screen, says she enjoyed making "The Group," and thought the film was underrated. But after that—"I sort of went from film to film never giving it much thought.

"I've had my share of bombs," she says candidly, "and there were some I actively hated. 'Getting Straight' was the first film where I was in touch with myself, more on base. Then 'Carnal Knowledge' I loved. It was a joy—just total luxury on every level."

Miss Bergen's plush French provincial Park Avenue hotel suite can be described as total luxury too, but it's not the kind of place where she looks at home, and New York isn't the kind of place she likes, even though she once lived here. Sitting cross-legged on the sofa, her windows open to the unseasonably warm weather, she says she can't feel at home in the city, that she feels isolated here, and that she's too much of a naturalist not to resent the technology necessary in cities.

"When I was living here I was highly social, going out a lot—partly, I think, to avoid the loneliness of staying in my apartment. Now I have a house in California and I'm alone a lot. It's really funny—I treasure those moments, but in a city apartment, I have no sense of belonging—just a sense of alienation.

"Sure, there are things here I like, and I miss the city sometimes, but I miss it less and less. It seems the quieter I am, the more pleasure I have.

"There's a scene in 'T. R. Baskin' where I go to a singles bar," she continues. "I was really terrified just doing the scene. I do not deal with big groups like that. I've finally learned we all feel a vague sense of having to go to parties. We think we'll miss something if we don't.

"We aren't missing anything at all. It's artificial contact, not a valid meeting. I like to be with friends I've met, learning more about them. Going to parties precludes that. I feel really like I have shed a lot of excess baggage, realizing I have no obligation to these gatherings. Nobody cares if you're there or not. Realizing what gives you pleasure and what doesn't leaves you open to better relationships and terrific good times."

What gives Miss Bergun pleasure is having a few friends over, sitting around her "huge, long table," talking late into the night, and just generally being around the people she loves. "Home to me isn't about property or real estate," she says, "but where the people you love are. Being around them—that is just really joyful."

For the future, Miss Bergen wants to write when she isn't making films, and even in this age of women's lib, she admits she'd like to have a family. "Yeah," she says with a smile. "I would like it. Maybe that's just American female conditioning, but I don't think there's anything better than being in love. Having a family—I really shouldn't talk about it, since I don't know, but I can talk about being in love. All the rest you do is just exploring yourself."

Actress Finds No Place Like Home

DEAUVILLE, France (WNS) — French actress Dany Saval went to Hollywood to become a star five years ago and has now returned to France to write a book about it, "Alouette, Gentille Alouette." "Everything works at the touch of a button in Hollywood, and soon you go mad with nothing to do," she reported. "I'm so happy to be back in my Normandy farmhouse where nothing works, and it's always a gamble whether your cooking succeeds of flops." Her words for life in America's entertainment capital: "Golden exile." Her new philosophy: "Beware, Hell is not far from Paradise."

War Lines Up Major Powers

While the war between India and Pakistan seems far away, it could be a real threat to world peace.

World powers are lining up with the two belligerants and this could create the classic situation where two super powers eventually reach the point from which one or the other cannot back down.

In this time of nuclear weapons, war between nations possessing such awesome devices is unthinkable.

Americans are accustomed to thinking in terms of the United States and the Soviet Union being drawn, as opposing forces, into a war between two small nations.

While that is still a possibility, there is also the chance that the Soviet Union and Red China could be the two nuclear powers which might be drawn into direct conflict in the India-Pakistan war. The Soviets have opposed a cease fire resolution in the United Nations while China, along with the United States, have supported it.

It would be small comfort to the United States, or any other nation, if hostilities broke out between the two communist giants. A war of such magnitude would be bound to involve the rest of the world, the U.S. included.

That is why it is important that all major nations of the world lend their efforts to ending the shooting between India and Pakistan. No matter how the war goes, it will not settle the ancient differences between the peoples of the two nations. And as long as the shooting continues it represents a dangerous situation insofar as world peace is concerned.

The India-Pakistan war must be ended and the differences between the nations settled by negotiation. Any other path in a world armed with nuclear weapons is insane.

Team Approach In Drug Battle

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Scoring against drugs calls for a team approach involving enforcement, education, treatment and rehabilitation.

The quarterback for the North Carolina effort is the N. C. Drug Authority, created by the '71 legislature to call the plays for a unified program to bring drug abuse under control.

It's a major undertaking with a promise which is long range rather than immediate, acknowledged F. E. (Roy) Epps, the authority's acting director.

Drugs in North Carolina, compared to five years ago, is an epidemic, he said. There wasn't a single heroin arrest in the state in 1966; there will be more than 500 this year.

More than 2,000 arrests involving all illegal drug uses were made in 1970. Almost the identical total was reached this year in just the first eight months.

Upward Spiral Seen

The prospect is that the spiral will continue upward. "I don't think we have peaked yet," said Epps, a 20-year law enforcement veteran who came to his present post from the SBI where he worked in the drug area.

Three-fourths of those arrested on drug charges are young people between the ages of 16 and 25.

"We won't solve the problem of drug abuse until we can raise a generation that believes it's dumb to do drugs," he said. "As long as doing drugs is a fad or 'in' thing, the problem will be with us."

That gives emphasis, he added, to education for the pre-junior high crowd. The target group has to be the young who have not experimented or been tainted by the drug culture.

Creation of the drug authority was a key recommendation of a study commission set up by the 1969 General Assembly. Rep. Chris Barker, Jr. of Craven, a retired U.S. Navy rear admiral, served as study commission chairman and is repeating the role for the 13-member authority.

To assure objectivity among state agencies playing a part in the total drug abuse program, the authority is housed in the administration department.

Review Budget Requests

One of its functions, explained Epps, will be to review and make recommendations on requests for state funds. That calls for an impartial view, above the possibility of personality conflicts or inter-agency rivalry and aimed at coordination of all state activity against drugs.

Innovative steps to control the flow of drugs become effective Jan. 1. For the first time, the state will require the registration of drug manufacturers and wholesalers.

No fees will be involved, Epps said. The licensing is a regulatory rather than revenue measure.

A more emotional issue is the state licensing of "rap houses," counseling centers for drug users, which also is effective Jan. 1. Pro and con feelings run high in some communities, Epps said, on the value of the facilities for drug treatment.

Properly staffed and operated, with a broad base of community support, the houses have a potential for significant service, he said.

On the other hand, Epps cautioned, if they lend encouragement to the drug culture or serve as a haven for fugitives and minors in flight they can become a part of the problem instead of a solution.

Licensing Forms, Rules Mailed

Forms and regulations have been mailed to some 35 community drug action groups throughout the state. Not all will be subject to licensing, since some simply run information centers or a "hot line" referral service. Perhaps 15 to 25 will come under the licensing provisions, he said.

In each instance, it is his intention to visit the facility before a license is granted, to talk with personnel and point out pitfalls and offer advice on effective operation. Several months will be required to complete the process.

As in most programs, money makes the wheels turn for drug control efforts. Although still limited, funds are beginning to flow for the purpose.

The recent legislature provided $500,000 to the mental health department for allocation to communities on a 50-50 matching basis.

Durham and Cumberland counties have received initial grants from federal funds expected to total more than $1 million each over an eight-year period.

In sum, Epps observed, money now available represents "a pretty good start."

It's small consolation that North Carolina's drug problem is minor compared to other areas, Epps noted. The hope, he added, is in the state's pace-setting efforts to put together the team of resources with a chance to win.

Larry Brown Earned Honor In Long Service

The naming of the new Greenville Utilities building for Larry Brown is a fitting honor.

Mr. Brown, currently comptroller for GUCO, is retiring this year after 50 years service.

The Utilities recently purchased the Wachovia building which GUCO will occupy when Wachovia completes its new building. A plaque will be placed in the lobby dedicating the building to Mr. Brown.

Larry Brown has seen the Utilities Commission grow to the major business it is today and he has played a major role in making it an efficient operation. He has earned his honors.

A New Goodell In The House

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Little more than a year after the White House orchestrated the bloody purge of liberal Republican Charles Goodell as Senator from New York, a new super-villain is in President Nixon's party doghouse: Sen. Charles McC. (Mac) Mathias of Maryland.

Not since Goodell was defeated with White House connivance has any Republican so outraged Mr. Nixon and his senior staff as Mathias. The Senator's liberalism and tendency to bolt party lines have bred animosity in the inner sanctum.

Mr. Nixon was first peeved at Mathias in 1970 when he voted against confirmation of G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court. Irritation inside the White House has grown since then, climaxed on Nov. 22 when Mathias collaborated with Democrats in passing the Nixon-opposed tax checkoff plan for government financing of Presidential campaigns. On the final Senate vote, the only Republicans voting yes were Mathias and Clifford Case of New Jersey.

The anti-Mathias passion conflicts with Mr. Nixon's pledge that never again, after Goodell, would he oppose an incumbent Republican Senator. But with Mathias not up for reelection until 1974, a decision to purge or not-to-purge can wait.

The two most obvious conservative challengers against Mathias — Rep. Lawrence Hogan and Montgomery County Executive James Gleason — have privately pledged not to challenge him. But if he is bumped off the national ticket in 1972, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew might be more formidable. Agnew's opinion of fellow Marylander Mathias is even lower than Mr. Nixon's.

A footnote: Mathias is understandably puzzled by White House animosity over his role in adding a key moderating amendment to the checkoff scheme. He coordinated passage of that amendment with the Senate Republican leadership and chief White House lobbyist Clark MacGregor.

Strongman Strom

Although former Gov. Robert McNair of South Carolina has commissioned a top political pollster to sample his chances in a Senate race against Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond, the prospect of McNair running is close to zero.

South Carolina Democrats, in fact, regard Thurmond as unbeatable today. What McNair really wants to find out is whether Thurmond, aged 69 today, is vulnerable to a youthful, new-style Democrat in the image of Florida's Sen. Lawton Chiles.

When McNair's term as governor ended last January, he was pushed hard by some party leaders to start running against Thurmond immediately. McNair equivocated. Now Thurmond, hiring a shrewd black political operative, is blunting his segregationist image.

More important, Thurmond and his pretty young wife, a former Miss South Carolina, have their eight-month-old baby, which Democrats

The Bad Back Trouble

WASHINGTON — The biggest problem this country faces is not the economy, law 'n' order, the war or revolution, but bad backs.

It turns out that everyone in this country has back trouble, and until a cure is found for it, we will never be able to solve our other difficulties.

I discovered this recently when my wife's back went out on her while she was playing tennis. I immediately sent her off to an orthopedic surgeon, who told her she had a ruptured disc and would have to go in traction and wear a sponge collar around her neck.

It was her collar that gave us the tipoff on how many bad backs there are in this country. People rarely talk about their backs until they see someone else wearing a collar. Then they open up and confess about their own bad back troubles.

The first time I took my

wife to a party with her collar around her neck a friend said, "What are you doing about it?"

My wife said she was going to an orthopedic doctor.

"They don't know anything," the friend said. "What you need for a bad back is a neurosurgeon."

The next day we located one of the best neurosurgeons in the country. After careful examination, he concluded my wife had a ruptured disc and needed traction and advised her to wear a sponge collar around her neck.

Since this was the same diagnosis she got from the orthoepdic man, my wife was naturally disappointed.

But a few days later her spirits picked up. She told me when I got home, "The man who rakes our leaves said that neurosurgeons don't know anything about backs. He said the best way to get rid of my bad back was to sleep on the floor."

"Well the guy who rakes leaves should know," I said.

A week later she called me at the office. "Annabelle knows a woman in Seven Corners who can cure crooked spines with her fingernails. She has never worked on someone who didn't get better."

Three days later my wife got wind of an acupuncturist who lived in Chinatown. Her friend Aggie said, "Four gold

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Next year's presidential election promises to be especially difficult for both pollsters and politicians who will be trying to calculate the impact at the polls of 25 million new citizens eligible to vote for the first time. While youth generally has been viewed by many as considerably to the left of liberal, first-time voters between the ages of 17 and 23 are not, according to a late Gallup poll, likely to change the political map of the U.S. at a single stroke.

The results of the poll, as summed by Newsweek magazine, "seem to confound those who hoped or feared that the youth vote would wreak dramatic electoral change. Given the present level of interest, only about 42 per cent of the 25 million, Gallup analysts figured, would acutally go to the polls next year — a turnout much lower than the national rate of 62 per cent in 1968."

The favorite candidate of potential new voters is, by long odds, Sen. Edward Kennedy, but surprisingly enough, their second favorite is President Nixon. How do you figure them?

Between now and next year, countless groups of political candidates from the President on down will be trying to win the favor of the new citizens that became of age with adoption of the 26th amendment to the Constitution.

Again, commenting on the Gallup poll, Newsweek observes, "The most that can safely be said about the newcomers is that they seem slightly more liberal than the rest of the nation, but only slightly, and by no means likely to cast their ballots as a monolithic bloc on the left."

As to party choice, those registering for the first time choose the Democratic party over the Republican by about two to one. But significantly, a heavy percentage classify themselves as independent. Political strategy for capturing the youth vote varies. The leftwing presidential hopeful, George McGovern, has organized McGovern-for-President groups on many college campuses. Reportedly, the Nixon administration is aiming its youth campaign at the two-thirds of the 5 million voters who are not in school: housewives, soldiers, workers and job seekers.

In concluding its study of the youth vote, Newsweek comments: "It may be tempting to agree with the skeptics who dismiss the youth vote as too diffuse, too apathetic to make much difference in next year's politicking. But this would be to ignore the factor that may be more important than any other, and that is its novelty. For the politicians to think the young voters important is enough to make them so." That makes sense.

Along Cortes' Trail

EDITOR'S NOTE — John Platero, an Associated Press correspondent in Mexico, recently took up his boss's idea and decided to retrace the route followed by Hernan Cortes when that Spaniard arrived for the conquest of Mexico. Platero, of Spanish ancestry himself, learned the Spaniards of four centuries ago may have been tougher than modern man. Or at least tougher than the modern Platero.

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The idea seemed simple enough. Get a bunch of grub, a few pots and some other gear together and walk over the route Hernan Cortes followed when he set out from Veracruz for Mexico City on his epic trek of conquest.

But a lesson has been learned. A man born and raised on the streets of Brooklyn should have his head examined first.

Cortes started his preparations more than 400 years ago in Cuba, looking around for junk like ships, guns, food, sails, carpenters and other odds and ends.

But me, a son of the streets who suddenly decided to be a great adventurer, I prepared in a different way. I needed butane gas for my fancy cigarette lighter. I needed hiking boots, waterproof boots, street shoes, sneakers, sandals and bedroom slippers. Somone suggested I carry a three-foot machete. A guy can get hurt with a thing like that.

I had to worry about things Cortes never thought of. Like dress shirts, jackets, sweaters, raincoat, gloves and a nice tie in case someone invited me in for dinner during the 300-mile walk from Veracruz to Mexico City.

Then there was a gas stove with a tank that weighed 25 pounds that I had to buy and a five-cell flashlight in case the under water light I brought

Strength For Today

GOOD HARD JOLTS

It is amazing the way many people miss the Christian teaching that we are to be of good cheer — happy and joyful in every aspect of our lives. This does not mean that we are to go through life grinning, that we are always to be cheerful and trying to make everybody else cheerful. The death of a loved one, the decision of son or daughter to go his way or hers, just so they cut their ties with unreasonable parents — no one can be joyful over matters of this sort.

Maybe the kids have disappointed the hopes their parents had for them. It might be well for parents under these circumstances to do a little bit of straight thinking as to whether they are entirely fair in the attitude they take toward young people in general and their own young people in particular. It would be well for us to avoid certain groups of people — those who are always happy, those who are never happy, those who wouldn't give you the time of day if your life depended on it. Because we are the kind of people we are, prone to mistakes that we keep making over and over again, we cannot be too enthusiastic about ourselves unless we are ready for some good hard jolts.

We may not like what we have to take in life, but we reveal the kind of person we are by the way we take what ever comes our way.

Gain By Construction Workers

By ELMER ROESSNER

Wage freezes freeze wages, it is demonstrated by a little noticed series of government statistics compiled by the Department of Labor.

There are, of course, many ways to heat up wages. A good man can be given an hour or two overtime work a day. A good crew can be called in for half-a-day's work on Saturdays, or a full day's work every other Saturday. A good man can be promoted to an assistant foreman. Another can have his work regraded to a higher-paid classification. Men on piecework can be given new tools and new machines that will increase their income.

It is generally supposed that a bit of these subtle pay increases have been going on, especially where old contracts provided pay increases which were held up by the freeze.

Yet, surprisingly, the

ELMER ROESSNER

Department of Labor's report on "gross and spendable weekly earnings of production of nonsupervisory workers on private nonagricultural payrolls" shows that in October the average man got 2 cents less a week than he did in September.

The Pinch

The September weekly average was $129.13; the October average was $129.11. The "spendable" averages were also down. The spendable figure is arrived at by deducting Social Security and federal withholding taxes from the averages.

Thus a worker with three dependents took home $112.98 in September and $112.96 in October.

And a worker with no dependents took home $104.33 in September and one penny less in October.

There were, of course, great variations among trades. In contract construction, where wage increases are controlled by a special panel and not by the Pay Board, the average for September was $216.23 and the average for October, $225.79, an increase of $9.56 a week.

In summary, contract constructon workers made sizable gains, almost $2 a day; service workers were unchanged; and all other workers were nipped by the freeze.

Breathless Rise

Curiously enough, a few days later Chairman Paul W. McCracken of the Council of Economic Advisers told the Tax Foundation that, "Employers are forced to be extremely cautious about additions to payrolls" because of rising wages.

"We must candidly face the obvious fact that the relentless tendency" for wages to rise faster than productivity "is the single greatest reason for excessive rates of unemployment in many industrial nations today."

needles and you'll be playing tennis in a week."

Before she could look up the acupuncture doctor, her sister called from Cincinnati and told her the only way to get rid of her bad back was through yoga and meditation.

Several weeks went by, and while my wife did continue her traction, her heart wasn't in it.

"It seems so slow," she protested to me. "The hairdresser knows a spa in Italy that specializes in mud baths for bad backs."

"If it doesn't work you can always go to Lourdes," I said.

But while she was getting her passport for Italy, a brother-in-law from West Virginia called in to tell about a new miracle cure for backs that some lady in the Blue Ridge Mountains had developed from herbs.

"It sounds better than mud baths," I said.

The ointment arrived and, surprisingly, it had no effect on my wife's back.

Having tried everything, we decided to go back to the neurosurgeon on the off chance that he might know something about her problem that the hairdresser didn't.

The doctor said she was doing fine but would have to stay in traction for another month.

You can imagine her depressed state of mind when she left the office. But fortunately, on the way home the cab driver recognized her symptoms and said, "I know a hypnotist in Alexandria who specializes in nothing but ruptured discs."

regard as Thurmond's most potent secret weapon, on constant display. Finally, his extreme vulnerability a year ago to 1968 campaign pledges that Richard M. Nixon would stem Japanese textile imports evaporated this fall when Japan agreed to a quota.

Thurmond is keeping a certain distance from Mr. Nixon and will run a strictly Thurmond campaign next year.

A footnote: The Democrat most likely to get the party's Senatorial nomination is Don Fowler, the party's new state chairman. Fowler, an all-state basketball star and political science Ph.D., is 36.

The Controls Bill

The White House was thrown into apoplexy recently when Speaker Carl Albert suggested that, since the bill to extend President Nixon's wage-price control authority was all tangled up in the House Banking Committee, it might be well to delay Congressional action until next year.

Absolutely not, screamed horrified Presidential aides. The reason: even though the control authority does not expire until April 30, the White House fears renewal of the controls might get far more tangled up with election-year Presidential politics. That might defeat the bill and emasculate Mr. Nixon's Phase II economic program.

Albert agreed. As a result, the Democratic leadership is now shooting for House passage next week after which the bill will go to conference with the Senate version.

A footnote: The utter chaos inside the House Banking Committee over the controls bill once again suggests the impotency of its chairman, 78-year-old Rep. Wright Patman of Texas. Once the first amendment was adopted, an orgy of legislative mischief by committee members followed. The bill became so messed up that the bill to be voted on by the House will be the Senate version.

didn't work. I also packed four kinds of rope and line including a piece of hawser that Cortes could have used to tie up his whole fleet. I had about a qarter-mile hunk of this, difficult to pack in a small bag.

My 13-year-old son, John, who has lived in Montana, showed much more sense and had all his necessities in a small back pack that weighed only about 20 pounds.

When all my stuff was loaded in duffle bags, canvas sacks, carboard boxes and sprawled loose on the sidewalk waiting for the taxi to take us to the train station, the over-all weight was almost enough to sink any of the three ships Cortes began with.

"Sure you don't want to take the portable television," quipped my son with a mischievious grin.

"Not, so. I'm gonna rough it like Cortes," I replied ignoring his sarcasm.

Boarding the train to Veracruz I know now I must have resembled a one-man hippie safari tripping to never-never land. Porters, instead of offering to help, stared in amazement and whispered to each other.

"Who is the crazy gringo in knickers who looks like Cortes?" a railroad employe asked a station policeman.

After arriving at Veracruz, a fleet of taxis transported me to the bus depot. Half the passengers on the bus had to be put off because it took 21 first-class tickets to accommodate me and my gear.

I made it to Antigua, the starting point, and spent the night spread out in three rooms of a local hotel.

The next morning, a Sunday, I was able to locate a herd of mules that had the day off, and began the new conquest of Mexico full of vigor and excitement.

Three weary hours later, at a little pueblo down the road about five miles, I laid in the street completely exhausted squashing a large bag of marshmallows I had tied to my back pack.

The townspeople were most helpful after they quit laughing and had thrown special herbs into the air to fight off evil spirits. Explaining what I was attempting to do didn't help the situation any. They were certain the hot, boiling sun had fried my brains. The large glob of white gooey mush down had spread over my back pack.

A couple of the mules wandered off and I lost some of the equipment which gave me reason to cancel the trip on the spot.

The following day my son and I made it back to Mexico City, but my baggage had lost some of its earlier orderliness.

As I walked up to my house with a loose pillow in one hand and dragging a shopping bag spilling knives, forks and spoons along the way, I heard my wife say from the open window, "I wonder who the crazy gringo in knickers is—the one who looks like Cortes?"

Has King-Size Sweet Potatoes

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — If somebody offered to buy five pounds of sweet potatoes from W. W. Skidmore of Blossom, he might have to split one.

Skidmore, a retired rural postman, dug his own sweet potatoes this fall and turned up one that weighed seven and a half pounds. Another went five and a half pounds.

Pitt School Board Agreed To Maintain 1,500 Feet Of Ditch

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education Monday afternoon agreed to maintain the proposed 1,500 feet of ditch to be constructed along the north end of the North Pitt school campus.

Board member William House reported that the landowners adjacent to the North Pitt High School property had agreed to let the board of education construct the ditch on the condition that the board maintain the ditch. The ditch will be constructed on school property.

Attorney W.W. Speight has been asked to negotiate with the heirs of the property that separates the H.B. Sugg School campus in Farmville.

The board has been trying for several months to purchase the property so that the school campus would be one tract of land rather than divided by the railroad property.

Attorney Speight checked the deeds and reported to the board that the property had reverted to the heirs and that negotiation to obtain the property for the Pitt County Schools is under way.

The board agreed to release up to 40 feet of property on the Sugg campus to the town of Farmville to provide an access road to residents living in the area.

At last month's meeting, the board of education released 30 feet of property but was told later that the town would need more property for the new street.

Board members voted 4-3 yesterday to let the students of North Pitt High School select one black and one white queen from the senior class to head the Friendship Court during homecoming activities.

Miss Christie Speir, co-president of the Student Government Association at North Pitt, asked that permission be given to North Pitt students to select one black and one white queen.

School policies call for princesses to be selected from each grade.

It was pointed out that the other three high schools have held their homecoming activities and that only princesses were selected from the grades. It was felt by some of the board members that the policy should be consistent for this year and that all schools should follow the policy. Possible changes for the next school year could be discussed later.

"North Pitt is the oldest of the four high schools," Board member Richard Worsley said. "They have had more experience and I feel they should be given more consideration."

After some discussion, the board changed its policy to allow all the high schools to name one black and one white queen during homecoming activities in the future.

The matter of exempting seniors from both mid-year and final exams was brought before the board. The policy now is to eliminate all seniors with a 90 or above average from exams at the end of the school year.

Alford suggested that the students participating in the Student Advisory Committee meeting on Dec. 14 be allowed to consider the matter of exam exemption.

Board member Dr. Tom Patterson said he would like to see a detailed study on the feelings of the principals, teachers and students concerning the exemption of students from taking exams.

Alford said a survey would be conducted and a report made at the January board meeting.

Jimmy Herring of Grifton appeared before the Pitt County Board of Education to ask that his son's recent suspension from school be erased from his record.

Herring told the board that his son was suspended from the Ayden-Grifton High School for three days because he allowed seven or eight stolen football jerseys to be stored in his school locker.

Herring felt the suspension should be erased from his son's record and from others' who were suspended bacause he thought the principal had not punished all persons involved in the incident.

Principal Bill Wiggins told the board he had investigated the incident and that as far as he could determine, all the boys involved had been punished. Wiggins said he did not know of any other boys who had been involved in the incident. He said, however, that investigation in the matter is still continuing.

In other business yesterday, the board decided:

—To establish for seventh and eighth grade students a fall football program for boys, fall program of volley ball for girls, basketball for both boys and girls during the winter, and spring programs include baseball, wrestling and track.

—to allow the Farmville, Fountain and Falkland schools to dismiss at 12 noon on April 11 in order that the students may participate in Yourth Day which will be part of the Farmville Centennial observance.

—will meet one month at North Pitt for the board meeting and then do the same at each of the other high schools.

—begin plans to replace the Old Winterville Academy at the A.G. Cox School with seven or eight classrooms and a cafeteria and to construct a lunchroom at the Bethel Middle School.

—Required that all expelled students not go on any campus in Pitt County during the period of suspension. This will also include students who are suspended and for the period of the suspension.

Williamston Native Honored At Recent Writer's Banquet

WILLIAMSTON — The Rev. Samuel L. Whichard, Williamston native now pastor of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church in Wilson, was recently honored at a Writer's Banquet held at the Town and Country Restaurant commemorating the publication of Whichard's book, "500 Plus Bright Ideas."

The minister's book, a copy of which was presented to Mrs. Joyce Ward, librarian of the Williamston Library, has in addition to Rev. Whichard's writings, contributions from a number of noted local persons.

East of the faculty of the Political Science Department at East Carolina University; Dr. Clate A. Risley, National Sunday School Association executive; the Rev. J. Floyd Williams, presiding bishop of the Pentecostal Holiness Church; and Dr. Billy Graham, native North Carolina evangelist.

At the writer's dinner, the Rev. Tim B. Henry, Bethel minister, presided. Mayor N. C. Green of Williamston welcomed the approximately 50 persons attending, which included members of the Whichard family. Greenville residents attending the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoell, Mrs. Mae Briley, Mrs. Virginia Williams, Miss Kathryn Smith, and Gilbert Windham.

Rev. Whichard was at one time minister for St. Paul Pentecostal Church in Greenville. He has also served pastorates in Robersonville, Harkers Island, Wilmington and Lumberton.

Kennedy Attacks British Inquiry

LONDON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., says an inquiry into British army methods of interrogating suspected Irish terrorists amounts to a whitewash.

The conclusions of the government study, Kennedy said in a letter published in the Times Wednesday, are couched "in language that finds the facts of torture but whitewashes their meaning."

The study said suspects suffered physical mistreatment at the hands of army interrogators, but it said the treatment fell short of brutality or torture.

Kennedy stirred a storm some two months ago when he said in a Senate speech that Northern Ireland, torn by communal fighting, could become Britain's Vietnam.

Julie Has Role In Dedication

WASHINGTON (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower will fly to Durham, N.C., Friday to take part in dedication ceremonies for a new Environmental Protection Administration research center there.

Former Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina will introduce the President's daughter. William Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, also will take part in the ceremony.

After touring the installation, including its Air Pollution Alert Center, Mrs. Eisenhower will attend a luncheon in Durham with the presidents of nine colleges in the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area and students active in environmental work.

Arrest Man On Assault Count

A Rt. 6, Greenville man is being held under $3,000 bond following his arrest by Pitt County deputies on a charge of assault with intent to commit rape.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the alleged incident occurred around 2:15 p.m. Monday at a rural home and was reported at 7 p.m. that evening. Sheriff Tyson declined to release the name of the assault victim.

He reported that Willie Harper, 25, is scheduled for a hearing on the assault charge on Dec. 15 in District Court here.

Investigation is continuing, he said.

Police Consider More Dog-Use

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Police Department is making a study to determine if it should use more police dogs.

"We use the dogs to search buildings where suspected burglars may be hiding, in area searches for fugitives, to sniff for marijuana, and other duties," said Police Chief Frank Dyson. "If we can determine an adaptability, we'd like to use them to sniff out explosives, also."

The department presently employs nine dogs.

Damage was estimated at $450 to the Bryan car and $375 to the Manning vehicle.

Mrs. Manning was charged with failing to stop for a red light.

European Allies Eye Increase In Their Defense Expenditure

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS (AP) — America's European allies are shaping up a package of modest increases in their defense spending next year, hoping this will ease pressure from U.S. congressmen for a reduction in the 310,000 U.S. troops in Europe.

The complete package is expected to emerge at the end of this week's semiannual meeting of the defense and foreign ministers of the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The first American reaction was due today from Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird at the meeting of NATO's Defense Planning Committee.

Ten of the European allies who form the "Eurogroup" announced on Tuesday that they are increasing defense expenditure in 1972 by "well over" a billion dollars.

This compares with an increase of some $75 million in 1971, but about half of the step-up will be absorbed by inflation.

The billion-dollar addition will bring defense spending to more than $19 billion for Britain, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, Norway, Denmark, Turkey, Greece and Luxembourg.

The bulk of the increase will come from prosperous West Germany, which is planning to up its military spending from $6.6 billion this year to $7.3 billion in 1972. Britain is also planning substantial increases.

A West German spokesman said he is confident that by the end of the NATO meetings Friday, West German and U.S. representatives negotiating in Brussels will also reach agreement on German contributions to offset the expense of keeping more than 200,000 U.S. troops in West Germany.

The United States is reported seeking West German loans, purchases and direct budget support totaling $1.2 billion a year. The purchases are expected to include planes for Lufthansa, the West German airline.

It would be the first such agreement to include an actual West German contribution to the U.S. budget, such as those the United States has made to many countries since World War II. Defense Minister Helmut Schmidt has proposed that his government do this by picking up the tab for renovation of barracks and other living quarters for the U.S. troops.

Laird on his arrival Tuesday said the Nixon administration would urge Congress to maintain the present level of U.S. forces in Europe until the middle of 1973, the end of the next fiscal year.

Data Points To Hot Moon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A scientist says seismic data recorded during Apollo moon missions have supplied the first evidence that the lunar interior once was hot and molten like the earth.

Dr. Nafi Toksoz, professor of earth and planetary science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, presented his findings Tuesday to 1,000 delegates at an American Geophysical Union meeting here.

Toksoz studied the data with scientists from Columbia University and the University of Hawaii. He said it revealed the moon has an outer crust of the kind that usually results when hot materials cool, and that just below the crust lies a more rigid mantle.

The discovery could help scientists determine how old the moon is and how it was formed, an AGU spokesman said. He also said evidence the moon was hot and molten gives added weight to theories it once was part of the earth and contains valuable heavy metal resources far below its surface.

Toksoz said the data, which he called "among the most significant scientific findings" thus far from manned moon exploration, was gathered during the missions of Apollo 12, 14 and 15.

Rising Drain On Water Supplies

CHICAGO (UPI) —Americans are using more and more water and it's taking a lot of digging and drilling to maintain a steady supply.

Approximately 22 trillion gallons of water are pumped from wells annually, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, and each year about 500,000 wells are drilled to keep up with demand.

Ground water still is the most common source of both public and private supplies in the United States, although surface water is the principal source in many localities.

False Data On Credit 'Illegal'

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) —It is against the law in Texas to report false information about a person's credit worthiness. The legislature enacted a law this year making it a misdeameanor for anyone to knowingly report false information to a credit rating bureau or to knowingly furnish false information regarding a person's credit status to a third party. Violators can be fined up to $200.

Inflation And Tax Resistance Shut Down Schools

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

Inflation and an increasing relutance by taxpayers to approve new levies have forced some of the nation's public schools to close and many others to effect stringent economies.

Some schools in Ohio, Missouri, Wisconsin, California and Washington have shut their doors until the new year brings renewed revenue. Officials in West Warwick, R.I., Philadelphia and New York City have warned that their schools may also close.

From Montana to Massachusetts, public schools have resorted to double sessions, elimination of extracurricular activities, teacher layoffs and greatly reduced services.

Mayors of major cities and villages have pleaded with state authorities for sustained or additional aid to keep schools open, but the states say their resources have long been drained.

In Chicago, the Board of Education voted Monday to keep schools open for the remainder of 1971 by borrowing against the 1972 budget.

The board said it would seek new funds—additional state or federal aid—to avoid closing schools early at the end of the current academic year. Its anticipated deficit is $26 million.

The board had previously announced plans to close schools for 12 days—from Dec. 8 until Jan. 3—to effect a saving of $1.9 million a day in operating expenses and salaries.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois has refused to authorize additional state aid for Chicago schools until the city and Cook County made recommended cuts in welfare spending.

In Kansas City, voters decide today on a 54-cent increase in 1971 personal and property taxes for schools and libraries, which Kansas City School District officials say is necessary to prevent further cutbacks in services and to make some improvements.

The rate now is $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation.

City officials estimate the increase would raise some $4.3 million, of which $2.24 million would go for salary increases of up to 8 per cent for most of the school district's 5,500 employes.

Kansas City voters rejected a 90-cent increase in August.

In many states, maintenance and school construction have halted altogether.

Most educators interviewed in a nationwide survey by The Associated Press attributed their financial woes to inflation, excessive reliance on property taxes for revenue and the mounting reluctance of voters to approve construction bond issues or to increase their own tax bite.

"This isn't a very stingy town," said Laurence J. O'Connor, schools superintendent of West Warwick, R.I. "The time has passed for excuses and clouding the issue. It's simply, 'Do the people want the schools to stay open?'"

In California, the state Supreme Court ruled Aug. 30 that the present local property tax system of financing schools discriminates unconstitutionally against students in districts with little taxable property wealth.

Edwin H. Harper, the state's associate superintendent of public instruction, said he hopes the legislature will devise a new system that will provide a "considerable influx" of new money.

"I think it's a long, tough road ahead," he said. "It won't happen in any one year. Education has a real tough job to convince the public and the legislators of the need."

Harper said 47 per cent of the state's tax increase proposals failed in 1970-71, in contrast to 31 per cent in 1967-68.

Elsewhere, officials in such states as Ohio, Oregon and Maine have been urging a departure from property to direct income tax financing.

In New York City, the president of the board of education urged the state not to impose expected aid cuts at the risk of early school closings.

The system, operating on a $1.7 billion budget that includes anticipated state and federal aid, has already eliminated 5,000 teaching positions, reduced remedial services, curtailed summer instructional and recreational programs and slashed adult education programs.

The Philadelphia, Board of Education has threatened to close schools on May 10 unless it gets an estimated $35 million in state and city funds.

The board cut varsity sports and all extracurricular activities and barred the schools to the public after hours last September because of the deficiency. There is also a freeze on new construction.

In Montana, not only has the number of athletic teams been reduced, but interschool travel has been eliminated.

The West Warwick system has eliminated all teacher aides, dropped two teachers, left eight teaching positions unfilled and frozen all but contracted purchasing.

If the voters reject a special $195,922 appropriation later this month, O'Connor said, the system's 5,000 students will be out of school on March 1.

Old Dog Has New Teeth

MCCRORY, Ark. (AP) — It's been about a year since Taffie was fitted with her new dentures. Now she eats canned dog food and bologna instead of puppy food.

Taffie is a 10-year-old boxer dog. The idea for the new teeth kawned on her master, Dr. James Rowe.

Rowe said the amiable, brown-haired canine had worn her lower teeth to the gum line and could eat only puppy mix and other soft foods. Rowe called Dr. David Startup, a local dentist, and made the deal.

"They brought Taffie into my office," said Startup. "I put her in a chair, stuffed her mouth with cotton, turned on the overhead light and went to work as if it were any other patient."

Startup, a 1967 graduate of the Memphis Dental College, said he spent about two hours on Taffie's new human-shaped teeth.

"I gave her two 14-carat gold caps and four shiny white front teeth," said Startup. "She went through it all without a whimper."

Startup says the bridge is a "perfect fit," and the dog doesn't even need cement to keep them on.

"I've never seen anybody take to dentures like she did—much less a dog," Startup said. "She wore them from the first day as if they had been in her mouth all her life. It was amazing."

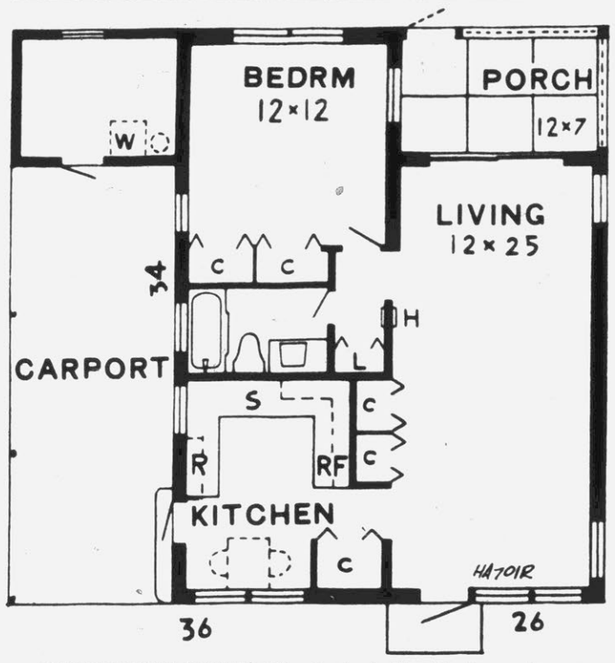
HOMES FOR AMERICANS



RETIREMENT HOME: The typical Florida home for an elderly couple has only one bedroom but a large living room, kitchen, bath, carport, utility room and porch. It requires only 790 square feet, plus carport and porch. Construction is masonry on concrete slab with cork or terrazzo finish. Plan HA701R was designed by architect Jan Reiner, 1,000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla., 33710. Information on obtaining blueprints is available by writing the architect.

Not Ready For Commutation Consideration

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says he doesn't plan to consider commuting the sentences of North Carolina's 10 Death Row inmates "until all legal avenues have been exhausted."

Scott's comment came Tuesday in response to a written appeal delivered to him Monday by eight organizations asking him to commute the death sentences for all 10 prisoners.

The governor's reply apparently indicates that consideration of commutation requests will be delayed until after the U.S. Supreme Court rules on the legality of capital punishment.

Scott has publicly expressed his opposition to the death penalty. North Carolina has not executed a prisoner in a decade.

The groups asking for the commutations were the North Carolinians Against the Death Penalty, the state AFL-CIO, state chapters of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the North Carolina Council of Churches, the Civil Liberties Union, the Southeastern American Friends Service Communittee and the North Carolina Women to Save Marie Hill.

The organization to save Marie Hill was formed after the Rocky Mount teenager was sentenced to death for a robbery and murder. Miss Hill appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, won a new trial and was sentenced to life imprisonment earlier this year.

The groups told Scott that "no thinking individual can doubt for a moment that the death penalty will soon be abolished in North Carolina.

"Your commutation of sentences of those now undergoing the inevitable erosion of mind and character which isolation and hopelessness entail would dispel the black cloud of despair which hangs over Death Row.

"More, it would be an official assertion that North Carolina is a civilized state which regards its citizens — even if convicts — as deserving of humane and merciful treatment," they said.

Divorcee Claims Needs Not Met

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Cummings says she owes $26,269 and needs more alimony and child support from her exhusband, actor Robert Cummings.

An attorney representing Mrs. Cummings, 53, told a Superior Court judge Tuesday the U.S. Internal Revenue Service has seized all of the estimated $500,000 in community property the couple shared when they were divorced last year.

Mrs. Cummings also said her 60-year-old former husband has not paid $1,100 in monthly support and alimony as ordered at their divorce and estimated current needs at $3,887 a month. Cummings and his wife have five children, two now grown and married.

Dayan Disclaims Critic's Charge

JERUSALEM (AP) — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, under criticism for alleged unlicensed archaeological digging, says, "To the best of my knowledge I have never contravened the antiquity laws."

Dayan made the statement in parliament Tuesday in reply to questions by Uri Avnery, sole house representative of the Haolam Hazeh party.

Avnery has accused Dayan of amassing a fortune in antiquities through unlicensed digging and purchasing in Israel and occupied Arab territory.

Dayan, an ardent amateur archaeologist, also denied Avnery's charge that he used military equipment for his excavations, and that he assigned soldiers to assist him.

NO PROBLEM

NEW YORK (UPI)—Shade problems have gone out the window, says the Window Shade Manufacturer's Association. There is now no window, be it casement, skylight, studio, picture, bay or jalousie, that cannot be shaded to perfection.

Even the 12-foot window wall and slant-topped cathedral type that once defied solution now can be treated to a variety of interesting decorative effects.

Commission Says Shortages Due To Regulations

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Federal regulation has contributed to the natural gas shortage by causing restraint of developing new supplies, the Interstate Oil Compact Commission said in a resolution adopted Tuesday.

The resolution, adopted at the final session of the annual meeting of the 33-state group, also asked for strengthening of the mandatory oil imports control program by elimination of incentives to build foreign refineries that ship petroleum products to the United States.

The IOCC pledged support for President Nixon's Phase 2 program to lower inflationary pressures but asked that it not be administered in such a way as to discourage exploration for new reserves of natural gas.

Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma criticized the Federal Power Commission which controls the wellhead prices of gas sold in interstate commerce, saying it had refused to meet with him to discuss problems involving prices in his state. Hall said the FPC's action reflected arrogance toward a sovereign state.

"The prevailing scarcity of clean fuel supplies must be charged to this commission," Hall said. "Short-sighted pricing arrangements have discouraged explorations for new resources. The decisions by the FPC are often based on out-of-date information and are not reliable."

Gov. John Bell Williams of Mississippi said the 1954 Supreme Court decision that the FPC should controll wellhead prices was a flagrant disregard of constitutional government and an invasion of property rights.

"It has reaped a whirlwind that has created a crisis as to natural gas reserves," he said.

Gov. Stanley K. Hathaway of Wyoming said the environmental revolution had caused the nation to take action against drilling for oil and gas.

"There are real danger signs ahead," he said. "Too many in Congress are riding high in the tide of environmentalist trend at a time this nation cannot afford to lock in its natural resources."

Hathaway was elected 1972 chairman of the commission, succeeding Gov. Preston Smith of Texas. Dale E. Saffels of Topeka, Kan., was named first vice chairman and James D. Reynolds of Camden, Ark., was elected second vice chairman.

The commission, which serves as a forum on oil and gas conservation matters, voted unanimously to admit North Carolina as the 34th state.

The commission will hold its 1972 midyear meeting in Hot Springs, Ark., June 11-13.

Large Pay Hike For Soldiers Effective

A major pay rise for members of the United States Army bacame effective Nov. 14, according to SFC Jim Moore, Army recruiter for Greenville.

The pay rise, which was enacted into law on Sept. 28, has been withheld temporarily as part of President Nixon's freeze on prices and wages, he said.

Under the terms of the military pay bill, newly-enlisted soldiers will receive $268 per month, Moore said. This compares with $134.40 under the previous law.

The pay rise will not only include substantial increases in basic pay, it was reported, but will also raise quarters and ration allowances.

Moore said that the new pay scales are a step towards making military pay for lower ranking enlisted men and junior officers comparable with that offered by business and industry.

According to U.S. government statistics, the average hourly wage in the manufacturing industry in 1970 was $3.36. Army pay for a sergeant, by comparision, will now amount to $3.11 per hour if the sergeant is authorized and receiving quarters and ration allowances, he said. If the same sergeant were married, his hourly pay rate would rise to $3.40.

Army officials estimate the average service time required to reach the rank of sergeant, E-5, is in the neighborhood of 22 months active service.

Moore said persons seeking additional information on the pay scales and enlistment opportunities should see him at his office, 323 Evans St., or call 752-4826.

Winds Whip Wild Fires

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Six homes and a business were damaged early today as more than 30 wind-whipped fires burned wildly in the Los Angeles area.

Fire officials said no injuries were reported.

All 110 city fire units and 400 firemen were called out to battle the widely scattered blazes, all of which were controlled after several hours.

Firemen blamed the blazes on power lines snapped by winds gusting to 50 miles per hour.

Three homes in the $50,000 to $80,000 range were heavily damaged along a brushy canyon in northeast Los Angeles, and three other houses and an upholstery store lost their roofs in another section of the city, firemen said.

"The wind was so strong the next thing we knew the whole roof was on fire, but we got out all right," said Mrs. Horace A. Kingsley, whose home in Vermont Canyon had an estimated $60,000 damage.

Another fire in suburban South Pasadena forced temporary evacuation of residents on one block before firemen contained the blaze.

Most of the fires in brushy areas, however, burned no more than a few acres before being controlled.

Scouts' Review Board To Meet

A change in the meeting place of the Monthly Review Board, Advancement Committee of the Pitt County District of East Carolina Council of Boy Scouts of America, has been announced by Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood.

The meeting will take place Sunday at 2:00 p.m., the regularly scheduled time. This time the meeting will be at the new Presbyterian Church, located at the intersection of Elm and 14th Street, across from Rose High School. Previously, it had been announced the meeting would be at the site of the old Presbyterian Church on the Corner of Pitt and West Fifth Streets.

Seek Source Of Creek Oil Spill

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The Coast Guard is trying to find out where 2,000 gallons of heavy, black oil spilled in a creek near Wilmington came from.

It said the spill was discovered Monday, but that the oil was blocked before it flowed into the Cape Fear River. Cleanup operations began Tuesday.

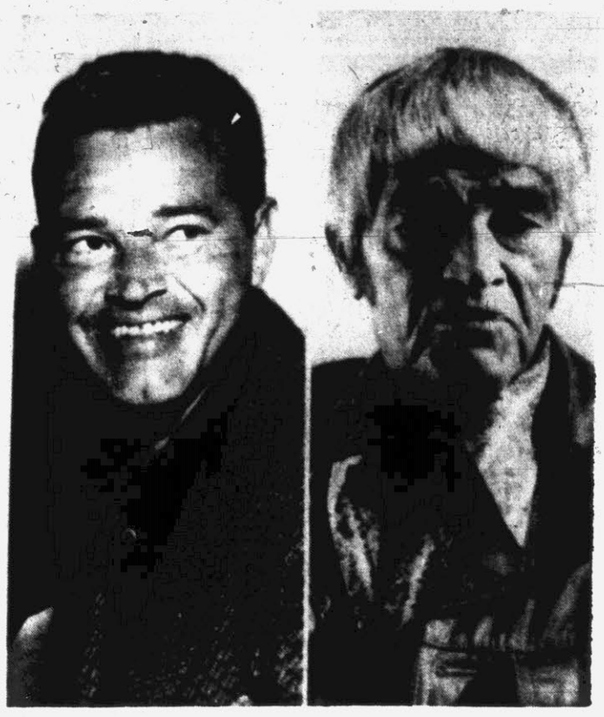
Fighter-Bombers Strike Radar Station



FORMER ACTOR RELEASED — Tom Neal, 58, former actor convicted of killing his estranged wife, talks with newsmen (right) after his release from six years in prison near Los Angeles. He's pictured at left in 1952, shortly after he made headlines with a fistfight in which he broke the nose of the late actor Franchot Tone. They fought over a blonde starlet, Barbara Payton. SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers dodged surface-to-air missiles, exchanged fire with an antiaircraft battery and attacked a radar station in a flareup of the air war along the border between North Vietnam and Laos, military spokesman reported today.

The U.S. Command said there were three incidents Tuesday about 25, 80 and 90 miles north of the demilitarized zone. There was no damage to U.S. aircraft, and results of the U.S. attacks were not known, a communique said.

The U.S. strikes raised to 87 the number of air attacks on North Vietnamese territory this year.

The U.S. Command gave this account of the three incidents:

1. Three Navy A7 jets were bombing the Ho Chi Minh trail on the Laotian side of the border 10 miles southwest of the Ban Karai pass when two 37-foot SAMs were fired at them from across the border. The pilots spotted the missiles and evaded them.

2. An Air Force RF4 photo plane checking on the supply buildup on the North Vietnamese side of the border 19 miles northeast of the Mu Gia pass was fired on by an antiaircraft gun. Two F4 fighter-bombers escorting the photo plane bombed the AA battery, but it was not known what damage they did.

3. Another Navy A7 bomber pilot on the Laotian side of the border seven miles southeast of the Mu Gia pass detected from his electronic equipment that a radar site nine miles north of the pass, on the North Vietnamese side of the border was tracking him preparatory to firing. The flier fired first but didn't know if his missile hit the radar.

It was the second time in four days that SAMs were fired on U.S. jets. As the United States steps up its air attacks on the Ho Chi Minh trail in an attempt to slow the North Vietnamese supply push south during the current dry season, the North Vietnamese are increasing their attacks to defend the trail.

Meanwhile, official sources disclosed that the South Vietnamese government is planning another big prisoner release in an effort to get Hanoi to free American prisoners.

The sources said both North Vietnamese and Viet Cong would be freed during Christmas, New Year's and the Tet celebration of lunar new year in mid-February.

The Saigon government will also announce cease-fires for the three holidays, the sources said. The Viet Cong already has declared three-day cease-fires for Christmas and New Year's and four days for Tet.

The number of prisoners to be freed has not yet been determined, the sources reported. But the Saigon newspaper Xay Dung said the government is considering releasing about 3,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong and granting amnesty to another 5,000 Viet Cong during the three holidays. This would be the biggest POW release of the war if carried out.

The United States is believed prodding the South Vietnamese government to initiate prisoner releases in hopes of getting North Vietnam to respond by freeing American POWs.

Last Oct. 8, the Viet Cong released the first American prisoner they have freed in nearly two years, Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., 23, of Warren, Mich. The Viet Cong sent word with Sexton they would welcome the release of two North Vietnamese prisoners in return; three days later the United States and South Vietnam freed one, a North Vietnamese lieutenant.

The United States holds no enemy POWs. The South Vietnamese hold about 35,000, a little more than 8,000 of them North Vietnamese and the rest Viet Cong.

The U.S. Defense Department lists 462 Americans known to have been captured in the war: 378 in North Vietnam, 79 in South Vietnam, three in Laos and two in China. Another 1,176 Americans are listed as missing in action.

On the battlefields of Indochina, fighting continued around Phnom Penh, the capital of Cambodia. A battle around the Cambodian government's radio transmitter at Kambaul, 12 miles from Phnom Penh, cut off all communications with the rest of the world for several hours.

Military sources said the 600-man government garrison at Phnom Baset, 14 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, was short of ammunition after three days of heavy fighting. The sources said Communist forces had been reinforced by about 2,000 fresh troops.

South Vietnamese paratroopers operating north of Highway 7, about 85 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, were hit by two mortar barrages totalling 100 rounds. The Saigon military command said an undisclosed number of South Vietnamese troops were wounded, but none was killed.

The Cambodian newspaper Damnoeung Pel Prik, or Morning News, reported that a high-level commission of inquiry is being set up to investigate the loss to the North Vietnamese of the town of Baray, on Highway 6 about 60 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The defeat led to the collapse of Operation Tchenla 2, involving more than 20,000 Cambodian troops.

Seeks Help In Strangling Case

JULIAN, N.C. (AP) — The public has been asked by Randolph County sheriff's deputies for help in information about the strangling of a 76-year-old widow, Mrs. Ethel Leach.

Sheriff Lloyd Brown said there are no clues. He said her body was found in a bathtub in her home in Julian. He said she was fully dressed and appeared to have been sewing when the assailant entered the house. The sheriff said Mrs. Leach's pocketbook, which contained $2, was found in the house Tuesday, and he thinks robbery was not the slayer's motive.

The sheriff said an autopsy showed she had been strangled

Sharp Drop For Air Operations

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. air-war operations in South Vietnam dropped dramatically last month when American pilots flew fewer than 10 per cent of the attack sorties there.

New Pentagon figures show that only 218 U.S. Air Force and Navy attack sorties were flown in South Vietnam in November while the growing South Vietnamese Air Force accounted for 2,745 such flights against enemy targets.

During the previous month, American planes were credited with 871 sorties, about four times as many as in November. The South Vietnamese Air Force registered 2,688 sorties in October, slightly fewer than the following month.

U.S. air strength in South Vietnam was reduced by two F4 Phantom fighter-bomber squadrons in October and November. But there still are three such units, plus a squadron of U.S.-manned A37 light bombers, in the country. The United States maintains nine squadrons of Air Force F4 and F105 fighter-bombers, plus about 45 B52 bombers and some gunships.

Indications are that American air power remaining in South Vietnam is being used chiefly to help destroy supplies moving along the Ho Chi Minh trail network in neighboring Laos and to support hard-pressed Cambodian forces.

Also joining in the effort to interdict supplies from North Vietnam are war planes from Navy carriers off shore.

According to the new figures, the level of U.S. air operations against the Laotian supply trails and Communist forces in Cambodia is rising again now that the dry season has returned. But it is not quite as high as last spring before the heavy rains closed in.

There were 6,300 American attack sorties into Laos in November, compared to 3,700 in October. The South Vietnamese Air Force does not operate to any extent over Laos.

Back in May, as the enemy's previous dry-season supply push was ending, U.S. planes struck with 9,500 sorties along the Laotian supply trail.

In Cambodia, there were more than 1,250 U.S. air strikes last month, complemented by 850 sorties flown by South Vietnamese pilots.

Subject to change, plans call for retaining nine squadrons of fighter-bombers and at least 28 B52s in Southeast Asia well into next year. There is no firm indication how much longer American bombers and fighters will be kept there.

Jilted Woman Gets Sentence

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte woman was sentenced to 5 to 10 years Tuesday for shooting her lover to death because she believed he was jilting her for a younger woman.

Her attorney said that the defendant, Mrs. Jeannette Barrett, 47, a divorcee, was emotionally unable to cope with being jilted by John Wesley Weatherly, 41, a business executive who had a wife and children.

Mrs. Barrett, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree murder in the shooting of Weatherly a year ago, was sentenced Tuesday, with the stipulation she be given work release and psychiatric help.

Offer Vets Chance Finish High School

A program which makes it possible for veterans to complete high school is nowavailable in the Learning Center at Pitt Technical Institute, according to Mrs. Joy Sasser, Learning Center Coordinator.

Any veteran who served after January 31, 1955, for at least 181 days, or who was separated earlier than 181 days because of injury, is eligible to enroll in the Learning Center and receive compensation for attending. This pay is in addition to the veterans' 36 months educational entitlement.

Compensation is paid to enrolled veterans for up to nine months of study and longer if necessary, should additional time be required for adequate preparation.

The number of hours per week a veteran will study in the Learning Center will be worked out with him and can be scheduled around his working hours.

Open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m., Monday through Thursday and from 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., Fridays, the Learning Center program will include reading improvement, math, and English grammar.

After completing the Learning Center program, the veteran will take the standard high school equivalency (GED) test. Upon the successful completion of the GED test, a high school certificate is awarded by the State Department of Public Insturction to the veteran.

Veterans with a high school diploma, but who desire to take the refresher work prior to entering a regular training program, and also eligible to enroll in the Learning Center for up to nine months and more if necessary, and receive compensation.

In the Farmville area, eligible veterans may attend the Learning Center in the Farmville Center of Pitt Technical Institute and receive the same benefits.

Veterans who wish to enroll or desire additional information should contact their local Veterans Administration office prior to going to the Learning Centers at Pitt Tech or Farmville.

BACKING BACKED

NEW YORK (UPI)—Shopping for carpets and wondering if that foam rubber backing will last for the life of the rug? The buyer can reassure himself on the spot, says Goodyear, which makes the synthetic latex that gores into the foam backing.

The company says backing should be at least ⅛ inch thick, weigh 38 ounces per square yard, and be fairly rigid. A good foam backing won't crack when vigorously bent or twisted, and it won't crumble when rubbed briskly.

Parade Preparation Is Near Completion

Plans and preparations for this year's Christmas Parade sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees are nearing completion, according to parade co-chairmen Bruce Thompson and Sherman Stalls.

The parade will consist of 14 floats, all depicting the theme of the event, "The Music of Christmas." Floats were built in Greenville by various church groups and employees of sponsoring businesses.

The co-chairmen noted that classes from Memorial Baptist, Belvior Free Will Baptist, Oakmont Baptist and First Presbyterian Churches, Phi Beta Lambda Fraternity and employees from Union Carbide participated in the building of the floats.

Sponsoring merchants are Larry's Shoe Store, Blount Harvey, Shoemasters, Union Carbide, North Carolina National Bank, Planters National Bank, Coca Cola, Burroughs Wellcome, Pitt County Florist Assoc., The College Shop, Belk-Tylers, White's Store, Little Mint and Hastings Ford.

Music in the parade will be provided by a number of bands from Eastern North Carolina including Rose High School, Bertie High School, Farmville High School, Pamlico County School and Northern Nash High School.

A calliope will provide Christmas music in its position just before the Santa Claus float.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday morning. Thompson said that although it will not be extremely long, "we hope through this parade the people of Greenville will better appreciate the true Christmas spirit."

Recruiter On ECU Campus

Capt. Ingrid Schreeck, recruiting officer for the Women's Army Crops, will be at ECU tomorrow to talk with qualified applicants about opportunities available as WAC commissioned officers.

Capt. Schreeck said that "Qualified students and graduates are needed to fill immediate requirements in the College Junior and Direct Commission programs."

The College Junior program, she pointed out, selects 150 young women between their junior and senior years in college and offers them the chance to "try the Army" for one month in the summer. It is from these 150 juniors that the Corps selects young women for the Student Officer Program where the Army will pay for their senior year in college and upon completion commission them second lieutenants, she added.

The direct commission program offers the college graduate the opportunity to be commissioned either a first or second lieutenant.

Capt. Schreeck is a graduate of Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. Prior to her assignment to the U.S. Army Recruiting Main Station in Raleigh, she served as assistant secretary and foreign liaison officer at the U.S. WAC School, Ft. McClellan, Ala.

The youngest governor of Oklahoma was J. Howard Edmondson, 33 when he took office in 1959.

street across school property.

The feasibility of removing and painting new lines on North Main Street to add a new parking space will be studied by Police Chief Carl Tanner and Street Department head E. P. Freuler.

J. L. Joyner of South Barrett Street asked the Board when a portion of Barrett Street is going to be paved. He was told that the project should be completed before a paving crew now working in the town leave.

Chester Worthington asked for a hearing to change a portion of the Joyner's Crossroads area, within the one-mile zoning band around Farmville from residential to light industry. He wishes to add to his warehouse enterprises in this area and has had his request approved by the Planning Board. The hearing was set for Dec. 29.

Bill Brady, a resident of the area on the 264 Bypass near Farmville where many residents are without drinking water, asked if any progress had been made concerning his last month's request for the town to provide water to this area. The Board informed him that preliminary work is being done to try to obtain a loan to extend lines to this and the Joyner's Crossroads areas.

The Board agreed to let the Farmville Rescue Squad erect a building on land owned by the town near the J. Y. Monk Park. The building would belong to the town for the use of the rescue squad.

Considerable discussion about drainage of building sites centered around the appearance of Robert Hill, a contractor who has built numerous houses in Farmville. Hill says he does not object to the town's rule that four inches of sand be laid under every house, but rather to a rule that foundations be built up above the curb line. He was directed to talk to the building inspector and to take his arguments to the Board of Appeals if necessary.

The South Main Street park was named in honor of Ivey Sylvester Bennett, a longtime merchant and former town alderman. The naming honored a petition by several Farmville citizens.

A request by County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner to allow rural fire departments to fill their water tanks from municipal hydrants when fighting fires in the immediate area was approved.

New building inspector H. P. Norman was given an office in the fire station.

Bennie Fulford was hired as a policeman. The Farmville native has been an auxiliary policeman and resuce squad member for some time.

A Review

Play Patrons To See Fine Acting

Some remarkably fine acting by a large cast does much to redeem the shortcomings of Holy Ghosts, opening tonight at McGinnis Auditorim for a four night run as the second offering of the Playhouse this season.

The fact that Holy Ghosts comes short of being a total success must be laid at the feet of the playwright, Romulus Linney. He has fashioned a second act that is vibrant, compelling theater deserving a better opening and closing act.

This second play by Linney to receive its premiere performance at East Carolina University should be, for theater patrons in this area, one with much more personal appeal than "Sorrows of Frederick," Linney's play on the life of Frederick the Great that premiered at McGinnis a couple of seasons ago.

Linney has peopled Holy Ghosts with a wonderfully varied assortment of grotesqueries — Southern Anglo-Saxon characters who are strongly reminiscent of a room full of Fellini creations. Yet each of his characters are creditable human beings, alive and eager to love and be loved. It is this vital quality of human involvement that sustains and nourishes the play.

Many of the individual performances in Holy Ghosts are outstanding examples of the actor's art.

James (Jim) Rees is a perfect choice for the Rev. Sealy C. Barkhorn. His is a sensitive, intelligent portrayal that projects a tightrope atmosphere of restrained fanaticism and a personal magnetism that polarizes action around his role as the leader of the snake-handling congregation.

Beth Grant as Nancy Barkhorn, the sensuous young wife who deserts her cloddish husband for the minister's son, turns in a beautifully balanced performance of a young woman seeking spiritual and physical satisfaction.

Rick Price's handling of the difficult role of an old man dying of cancer is astonishing, eerie and yet tender.

Albert Dulin gives innocence and poetry to his role of Spectre Carl; John Griffin and Timothy Green bring out the full range of complexities in their roles of men of the law caught up in the web of religion; and Mark Ramsey once more brings his fine talent to the role of an aging tramp-lawyer.

Vivian Speight as Leopera Wall, the fat girl with a passion for chocolate sundaes; Chris Jones and Hazel Stapleton, as Dr. Denny and former Baptist Sunday school teacher Leopera Wall — the two "genteel" members of the cast; Juanda La Joyce as the Negro woman Lorena Coggsburg; Jody Merritt, the beautiful young Bonnie Blue Flagg of questionable morals; and Alan Oatley and Mittie Smith as Bill and Muriel Boggs, the young married couple, each give performances that could hardly be bettered.

John Robbins as Coleman Shedman, the betrayed husband who is reformed and in the final act takes the mantle of ministry following the death of Rev. Barkhorn, never seemed to be able to shake off what may have been a case of first performance night nervousness. Robbins admittedly has the most thankless role with the least rewarding dialogue, but his puppet like movements and choppy delivery of dialogue were in sharp contrast to the other performances.

Effective use is made of church music, with the beloved old hymn "Amazing Grace" appearing and reappearing. Other old favorites interspersed include "What A Friend We Have in Jesus," "Stand Up For Jesus," "I Love To Tell The Story" and "Revive Us Again." All are appropriately played and sung in true revivalist style.

The second act of Holy Ghosts, is fine theater. It builds on itself, gathering momentum from a subdued opening scene to a final flowering of emotional fervor, with complete naturalness. It is in this act that the strange cult of snake worship is introduced. This act is skillfully written and the viewer has no problem identifying with the acceptance of practices and emotions that are, in essence, an outlet for pent-up human frustrations.

Linney has come so close to creating a wholly staisfying play that it will be unfortunate if he does not make an effort to redeem an overstated first act and an inconclusive final act. Holy Ghosts has the makings of a first rate piece of drama.

For immediate purposes, the fine performances and an immensely engrossing second act make "Holy Ghosts" an evening of entertainment to be highly recommended.

Playwright Linney will be on hand Friday night to see his play performed.

Foul Shots Drop Rose, 62-55

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WINDSOR — The Falcon is a fowl, but it was a bird of a different spelling that brought doom to the Rose High School Rampants last night. The Rampants placed their two-game winning streak on the line against the only team that has beaten them, the Bertie Falcons, and promptly had that string snapped, 62-55.

The unbeaten Falcons used the foul line to do it, sinking 24 of 32 attempt from there to more than overcome a six-point Rose High advantage from the floor.

The Rampants outhit the Falcons in field goals, 22-19, but that wasn't enough. Bertie dominated the backboards, and in the process the Rampants were called with 21 fouls. Only 13 were called against Rose, giving them 11 of 17 from the line.

Rose also was hurt by a streak of icey shooting that came in the second period. They pushed through two baskets at the start of the frame and then went for six minutes and 47 seconds without scoring. Indeed, the only thing they got after those first four was a free throw with just one second left in the half. That was all Bertie needed to run from two points down to 10 points in the lead.

But that alone wasn't what did the trick as the Rampants fought back to pull within one in the third period.

Lonnie Payton put the Rampants into the lead with a fast break basket and Tommy Williams added another for a 4-0 lead. Bertie came back however and tied it up at 6-6 on a shot from underneath by Lemuel Heckstall.

Rose managed to stay out in front for the next few minutes, swapping baskets with the Falcons. But with 3:13 left, Thomas Holloman cashed in on a three-point play and that swept Bertie into a one-point lead, 13-12.

Rose took it back on a shot by James Wooten, but Bertie came back with a shot off a rebound by Keith O'Berry and a steal by Iry Taylor to push the Falcons into a three-point lead, 17-14. Rose rebounded and tied it up on two baskets by Payton, at 18-18, but Bertie went out again on another shot by Taylor. Rose tied it again with 15 seconds left in the period on a jumper by Williams, and it was deadlocked at 20-20 at the horn.

Bertie again went out but Rose tied it up at 22-22 on a shot by J.C. Daniels. He hit again on another to put Rose into the lead, 24-22, but that was to be the last time. With 6:48 left to got in the period, Rose was not to score again in the half from the field.

Two free throws by William Heckstall tied it up, and another put Bertie into the lead. Two more by O'Berry pushed them out by three, and Lemuel Heckstall hit to up it to five, 29-24.

Bertie continued to pull away in the period, adding five more free throws, all of them by O'Berry. The last, with 17 seconds left, upped the lead to 10 at 34-24, but a charity shot by Wooten cut it back to nine at the half, 34-25.

In the third period, Bertie got the opening basket, but Rose began a comeback that cut the lead all the way down to one. Daniels and Williams hit and then Daniels connected on the fast break. Robert Kear made good on a free throw, and Dennis Taylor hit on the fast break, cutting the lead to 36-34.

Bertie got a basket from Richard Weaver to go back out by four, but from there Rose trimmed it to one. Daniels hit on a steal and then added a free throw with 2:01 left to make it 38-37. But that was as close as the Rampants could come.

Bertie pulled away again. Taylor hit from the corner and Lemuel Heckstall hit from underneath. O'Berry added a three-pointer and that ran it back out to eight. Taylor swapped a basket for a free throw for Rose in the closing seconds, and the Falcons had built the lead right back to what they had at the half, nine points, 47-38.

Rose could only come as close as four in the remaining quarter. They trimmed it down to seven on two free throws by Daniels, and a basket by him lowered it to five. Bertie hit from the line, but another shot, this one by Payton, cut the lead to 48-44, with 6:31 to go.

The two swapped baskets again, but after that, Bertie ran the lead out to 11, hitting on 10 straight free throws going down to the stretch. They didn't get a field goal after 4:44 left in the period, while Rose scored three, but the foul shots more than made up for the difference.

Payton finished with 23 points, high for the night. Daniels added 15. For Bertie, O'Berry had 21, Taylor had 16 and each of the Heckstalls had 10.

In the junior varsity game, Bertie's Little Falcons also came away with a victory, winning 57-37. They eased into a 6-4 lead and then outscored Rose, 11-10, in the second period for a close 17-14 lead at the end of the half.

The third period continued to be close, but Rose was never able to get more than a point into the lead. Bertie finally outhit Rose, 13-11, and held a 30-25 lead as the final period opened. But in that quarter, Bertie rolled away, outhitting the Rampant Cubs, 27-12, to wrap up their second win over Rose, too.

John Heckstall and Jesse Harrell each had 15 for Bertie, while Alphonzo Ruffin added 13. For Rose, Herb Bynum had 11.

Rose plays host to Tarboro on Friday.

Williamston Rips Perquimans

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's Tigers won their third straight Albemarle Conference contest last night, downing Perquimans, 64-45. The girls also stayed on track with a 54-28 romp.

In the girls game, Williamston rolled out to a 16-6 lead in the first period of play. They were never in trouble after that. The Tigerettes outhit Perquimans, 10-7, in the second period and held a 26-13 lead at the half.

They continued to pull away in the second period, outscoring Perquimans, 15-7. That gave them a 41-20 lead going into the final quarter. In that, they again outscored their guests, 13-8, to wrap it up.

Libby Warren led Williamston with 19 points, while Joanie Rogerson had 11. Debbie Brookings led Perquimans with 12 points.

In the boys game, Perquimans pushed ahead in the first period building up a 17-11 lead. But the bubble burst for them in the second frame as the Tigers clawed 19 points in, while putting the cap on the Perquimans basket after only three points had been scored. That raced the Tigers into a 30-20 lead at the half.

Williamston continued to pull away in the third quarter, hitting 19 again, while Perquimans got 14. That upped the lead to 49-34. The Tigers finished things off with a 15-11 advantage in the final period.

Dwight Ange led the Williamston scoring with 24 points, while Laurence Jackson had 12. Bernard Tillett led Perquimans with 15 with Louis Wynne and James Modlin each getting 10.

Pantego Wins Two From Bullets

JAMESVILLE — Pantego High School captured a pair of victories from Jamesville last night. The boys won their game, 73-58, while the girls eased by the Lady Bullets, 35-32.

In the girls game, Pantego edged into an 8-7 lead in the first period and then widened the lead with a 9-6 advantage in the second frame. That left Pantego ahead, 17-13 at the half.

In the third period, Pantego again outhit Jamesville, 6-3, and upped the lead to 23-16. Jamesville finally put it all together in the final period, outscoring Pantego, 16-12, but it fell just three points short of catching up.

Helen Johnson led Pantego with 14, while Sue Baynor added 11. Cheryl Smith had 14 to pace Jamesville.

In the boys game, Pantego rushed away to an 18-10 lead in the first period. Jamesville was able to match them in the second frame, as each team pushed through 15. That left it at 33-25 as the half ended.

In the third quarter, Pantego was able to add only one point to the lead, outscoring Jamesville, 18-17. That kept the Bullets within range, 51-42 as the final frame opened. But in that period, Pantego rushed away to score 22 and hold Jamesville to 16, and win the game.

Mike Riddick led Pantego with 15, while Louis Harvey had 14, Wilbert O'Neal had 13, Winfred Rodman had 12 and Thomas O'Neal had 10. Jamesville was led by Robert James with 16 and Bill Moore with 14.

Greene Central Nips S. Lenoir

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School gained a 59-48 victory over South Lenoir in a non-conference basketball game last night.

The Rams eased out into a 5-3 lead in the first period as neither team could find the range. Things warmed up for the Rams in the second frame, however, as they dumped in 15 while holding South Lenoir to just nine. That gave the Rams a 20-12 lead at halftime.

The Rams really got hot in the third period, swishing the nets for 26 points. South Lenoir also warmed up, but got only 18 as Greene Central continued to up its lead. As the final period began, Greene held a 46-30 lead. South Lenoir tried for a comeback in the final period, outhitting Greene, 18-13, but they couldn't overcome the big Ram lead.

Ervin Spivey led Greene with 14 points, while Lacy Ward had 10. D. Whaley had 13 to pace South Lenoir.

The Rams are scheduled to make up a snowed-out game with North Pitt in Bethel tonight.

GOLDSBORO — Goldsboro Junior High School nipped E. B. Aycock, 53-47, in an overtime victory last night. It was the opening game of the year for Aycock.

Goldsboro pushed out into a 26-15 lead in the first half of play, but Aycock caught up and tied it at 45-45 at the end of regulation play. Goldsboro, however, outhit Aycock, 7-2, in the overtime to take the win.

Jeffrey Hagan led Aycock with 14 points.

East Carolina University's Pirates open their Southern Conference season tonight at 8 p.m. as they play host to the Davidson College Wildcats, the defending regular season champions.

A freshman preliminary between the two schools is set for 5:45 p.m.

The Pirates go into the game still looking for their first victory, but after facing two of the top teams in the country, West Virginia, and the eighth-ranked Jacksonville Dolphins.

The latter the Pirates played to a near-standstill, losing only in the final two minutes of play, when a couple of key mistakes cost them an astounding upset victory.

Davidson, meanwhile comes in with a 1-0 record, having downed Clemson University, 76-65, in the Wildcats' opener in Charlotte Saturday night.

"Except for the errors right at the end," Coach Tom Quinn said of the Jacksonville game, "we beat them. Their coaches later told me that they had scrimmage against both Tennessee and Florida, and that we were a better team.

"And after seeing the film of Saturday's game, I found that we executed even better than I had thought just watching from the bench," Quinn added. "We did a real fine job in the game."

The coach had praise for sophomore Nicky White, who came off the bench to lead the Pirate scoring with 15 points. "His outside shooting even surprised me," Quinn said. "His rebounding probably would have been better were he not coming off the flu and an ankle injury. He's coming back to form now, and is going to help a lot."

Quinn also noted that the Pirates had gotten two "beautiful games" from senior Jim Fairley. "(Al) Faber's rebounding wasn't up to his par against West Virginia, but he did a great job against Jacksonville. And (Jerome) Owens and (Earl) Quash have truly made us a pretty good team. They both bring us good offensive and defensive ability."

And the coach doesn't look for the quality of play to drop either. "We played well against West Virginia. This is the type of team that can get up for a game easily. They're up for practice. I'll admit that they were sky-high for Jacksonville, but they were for West Virginia, and I expect them to be for Davidson, and Duke, and so on right on down the line. That's the way they play together."

Quinn also noted that the crowd enthusiasm seemed to help the team, and that the presence of the "Pep Band" helped a lot too. "It means a lot to a team when the crowd is with them."

The coach feels that right now is a good time for the Pirates to meet Davidson. "We have to play well, as well as we did against Jacksonville, and avoid those late mistakes," he said. "They have a fine team too."

Quinn listed Mike Sorrentino as a fine playmaker, and listed sophomore John Falconi as one of the up-and-coming stars in the conference. "Eric Minkin and Joe Sutter are both improved," he added, and they are going to be tough to beat."

Quinn sees the game as a close match. "I know how good we can be and I know how good they can be. I know one thing, too, they can't afford to look ahead to Furman. If they do, it'll be too bad."

Sutter led the Davidson scoring against Clemson, hitting 20 points. Minkin had 11 and pulled down 17 rebounds. Sorrentino had 10 and got 11 assists.

The game is the last December home contest for the Pirates. They begin a two-game road trip Saturday prior to the Christmas holidays, meeting Duke in Durham.

Conley Slips By Ayden-Grifton

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — If you like exciting basketball games you should have been at D. H. Conley High School last night.

The Chargers of Ayden-Grifton met the Vikings in not one, not two, but three wild and wooly contests that were not over until the smoke had cleared after each one.

The Viking J.V.'s slipped by the A-G J.V.'s 52-49 in the opener. The girls' game was not as close, 43-29 in favor of the Valkuries, but there was plenty of action. The boys game was the heart-stopper as the Vikings pulled away from the Chargers in the final seconds to win 74-71.

The Valkuries got the first points on the board as Glenda Denton hit from the top of the key. Madge Dews drew a foul and sank both free throws to make the score 4-0. June Hall scored from underneath with 4:02 left in the period for a six point lead.

A-G finally got on the scoreboard on a jumper by Nancy Suggs and pulled within two on a basket by Deborah Harris. Hall hit from the corner with less than a minute to go to give the Valkuries a 10-4 edge.

The Chargerettes got a free throw in the opening minutes of the second quarter but that was all they got for the next 5 minutes and 33 seconds, as the Conley girls ran their margin out to 16-5. A free shot and a bucket from underneath gave A-G a three-point play bringing them to within eight. But Hall scored to make it 18-8, with 50 seconds to go in the half. Her sister Jane Hall and Denton followed that with a basket to give the Valkuries another four points before the break.

Jo Ann Dawson got things rolling in the third period on a fast break netting two points. Jane Hall came right back with a layup to keep the lead at 13 as Conley moved out to get a lead of 15 at one point in the quarter and at the end of three periods Conley was in front 29-18.

In the last period, the Chargerettes tried to rally but they were too far behind to offer any kind of threat to the Valkuries who finished with 43 points to 29 for the Chargerettes.

June Hall led all the scorers with 12 and Worthington had 11.

Deborah Harris, who scored most of her points in the last quarter, led the A-G girls with 11.

The A-G boys controlled the opening jump and immediately scored as Milton Brown popped one in from the corner. David Pugh tied it up for Conley as he tipped in an arrant shot from outside. Willie Stewart got the lead back for the Chargers as he hit from under the basket and Brown scored on a jumper. The Vikings pulled to within one several times during the quarter but could not go ahead. They were down by five at one stage but fought back on field goals by Pugh, Bernard Wilkes and James Fleming to be down by only one at the end of the period, 18-17.

A-G again got the tap but Conley stole the ball and went ahead on a field goal by Wilkes with only 20 seconds having been played. Fleming hit from 20 feet to make it 21-18 with 7:11 to go. Dwight Hawkins dumped one in from the corner for a six point edge and got a charity shot as he was fouled by Stewart underneath. Jimmy Maye got the Chargers within four as he layed it up from under the basket and added a free throw to cut the lead to three. Hawkins scored from the opposite corner with 6:28 remaining but Stewart hit on a tap-in seconds later.

Hawkins got his third in a row in a twisting underhanded shot to make it 28-23 Conley. Danny Garris got a basket but the Vikings started to pull away as Wilkes and Hawkins scored. Garris scored again cutting the margin to five. Daniels layed one in to get the points back. At the end of the half Conley had a four point lead 35-31.

A-G tied it up on three straight buckets, two by Garris and one by Brown after the Vikings had pumped in a field goal and a free throw. The lead changed three more times in the period with Conley getting out to a three point advantage shortly before the quarter ended. Garris hit on two charity shots to bring A-G behind by one at the horn.

The elusive lead went back and forth in the last period. Brown got it for A-G on a jumper but Hawkins got it right back for the Vikings on two free throws. Brown hit again making it 53-52 for the Chargers. It was Hawkins that took it back for Conley again only to lose the lead on a layup by Charger Garris. Wilkes dumped in a pair of free throws to give Conley the lead and they did not lose it again. Two key players for the Chargers fouled out in the final minutes giving the Vikings a good break. They ran the score out to 66 to 59 a few minutes later and went on to win despite a final minute spurt by the Chargers 74-71.

Brown had 24 to lead the A-G boys and Garris had 16. Pugh and Hawkins each had 17 for Conley. Wilkes had 15.

Oak City Girls In Rebuilding Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(16th of a series)

OAK CITY — The 1971-72 basketball season is labeled as a rebuilding one for the Oak City Trojanettes. They lost nearly everyone from last season's team that threatened to take the title from perenniel power Robersonville, and Coach Phil Griffin has to replace just about everyone.

There is just one starter back from last season's team, forward Syliva Jones. "There are only five others back from last year's team," Griffin said. "And just three of them are lettermen."

That means that the experience on the team is almost non-existant except for Miss Jones. "We're definitely lacking in it," the coach said. "So this certainly must be called a rebuilding year for us. We've come a long way since the opening games of the season, but we still have a long way to go."

Height is just one of the problems that bother the Oak City girls. The tallest is 5-10, but she is not among the starters. The tallest of those is 5-8 Beverly Butler.

"Our rebounding has not been good," Griffin said. "We've been outrebounded by about everyone we've played. Sylvia (5-6) is our best rebounder, but she has the experience. The others should improve, but they are not real strong and are getting pushed around."

Speed is lacking in some places but good in the guards. "We try a little half-court press from time to time," the coach said. "But they are small, and this hurts us too."

When it comes to shooting, again the burden seems to fall on the experienced Miss Jones. "They seem to want her to do all of the shooting. She's the best shot, of course, and can hit from anywhere within 20 feet. But we're not taking enough shots, about 35 or 40, and Sylvia is taking about half of those. We have to shoot more, and the others have got to start taking their share."

The defense is about the only bright spot. It appears to be coming around. "We gave up a lot of points at the start," Griffin said. "But we seem to be doing better now. We're getting a little more confidence and more aggressive."

Griffin is one of the few coaches, however, who doesn't like the new five-girl, full-court rule. "I probably would if I had more experience, but with so many inexperienced girls, it really hurts us more," he said.

Currently, he's starting Barbara Little and Cindy Ross at the guards, Beverly Butler and Miss Jones at the forwards and Diane Joyner at center. Top reserves include Dianne Duggins, Diane Taylor, Ginger Andrews and Ylonda Reed.

As far as the Martin County Conference race is concerned, Griffin sees the rest of the county chasing Robersonville as usual. "They seem to thrive on it over there," he said.

But for Oak City to come along, the Trojanettes are going to have better team shooting, and take some of the load off Sylvia Jones. "They've got to handle the ball better too," Griffin said, "and let Sylvia work away from the ball to get open. They're just depending on her to do too much, and she does need help."

Jaguars Down Southern Wayne

DUDLEY — Farmville Central High School rolled to a 75-59 victory over Southern Wayne last night in an Eastern Carolina Conference game. It was the third victory in four starts for the Jaguars.

The Farmville Central girls, however, bowed to the Saintes, 41-19. Southern Wayne jumped off to a 6-2 lead in the first period and built that to a 13-6 lead by the half, as they outscored the Lady Jaguars, 7-4, in the second period.

In the third frame, however, the difference was really felt. In that the Saintes pushed through 20 points, while holding Farmville to only six. That boosted the lead to 33-12, and shut the door. Southern again outhit Farmville, 8-7, in the final period to insure the win.

In the boys contest, it was just the opposite. Farmville jumped off to the early lead, building it to 21-10, by the end of the first frame. In the second quarter, the Jaguars rolled out still further, pushing in 26, while Southern was getting only 14. That ballooned the lead out to 47-24 at intermission.

In the third period, things began to cool off slightly, but Farmville still outhit Southern, 18-15. That left the lead at 65-39 as the final stanza got underway. Southern was able to cut the lead with a 20-10 advantage in the final period, but it was to no avail.

Eagles Get 1st Win Of Season

AURORA — Robersonville High School gained its first victory of the season last night with a 50-47 win over Aurora High School. But the Aurora girls pulled a turn-about in the opener, downing the previously unbeaten Golden Eagle girls, 43-27.

In that contest, Aurora inched out into a 9-7 lead in the first period of play. Aurora continued to pull away after that, outscoring Robersonville, 11-4. That gave them a 20-11 lead at the half.

Robersonville got hot again after intermission, scoring 11, but Aurora kept it up, hitting 10. That left it at 30-22, with the final period opening. Aurora again shut the door on Robersonville, 13-5, and that was enough for the win.

Sherry Smithwick led Aurora with 18 points, while Johnnie Smith added 12. Ruth Goins had 10 for the Eagles.

The Eagles, however, came back with the win in the boys game. Robersonville pushed into a slim 13-11 lead in the first period, and clung to it desperately during the second. They outscored Aurora, 12-11, and held a 25-22 lead at the break.

In the third period, Aurora stuck close, outhitting the Eagles, 14-12, and pulling bak to within one at the horn, 37-36. But in the last frame, Robersonville managed two more points than did Aurora, 13-11, and held on for the win.

Shelton Smith led Robersonville with 17 points, while Clarence Wilson had 12. Randy Fulford led Aurora with 15, while Frankie Tatum added 14.

Belhaven Gets Second Victory

ROBERSONVILLE — Belhaven High School slammed the Robersonville Golden Eagles for the second straight time Monday night, downing them, 85-65. The Robersonville girls, however, rolled to a 52-24 victory.

It was only the second game for the Eagles, who just finished football a little more than a week ago.

Belhaven inched out into a 15-13 lead in the first period, then pulled away for good in the second frame. During that period, they outscored the Eagles, 21-14, and built up a 36-27 lead at halftime.

White House Says India Ignored Peace Concessions

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Indian attack into East Pakistan caught the United States by surprise and came only a few days after President Nixon had told Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of major Pakistani concessions, a high White House official says.

Briefing newsmen on the status of U.S. policy toward the Indian-Pakistani war, the official said neither Nixon nor any other American leader received a response from India.

Instead, the Indians attacked across the East Pakistani border Nov. 22 with Washington having no indication such military action was imminent, the official maintained.

The briefing was called to dispute congressional charges the administration is not neutral and to deny some news reports that Nixon and his national-security adviser, Henry Kissinger, are anti-India.

The official, who put down ground rules that he not be identified nor quoted directly, said U.S. calls for a cease-fire and withdrawal of troops from occupied territory and a charge of Indian aggression do not mean the administration has taken sides.

The United States, however, does have an obligation for the sake of peace to make clear to the world it does not favor recourse to war, the White House official explained.

The whole purpose of U.S. policy on the subcontinent, the official said, is to obtain a peaceful solution and to alleviate human suffering, not to fix blame or quarrel with India.

In explaining administration actions, the official opened his case by reciting that India is a great nation, one the United States traditionally supports. He said U.S. economic aid in the post-World War II period has totaled $10 billion.

So it is with great reluctance and disappointment the United States finds itself disagreeing with India, the official went on.

He said the present state of play opened last March 25 when the central Pakistani government moved troops into East Pakistan to crush the Bangla Desh independence movement.

From that time, the official said, the U.S. policy has had two major objectives:

First, ease the human suffering and bring about a return of the refugees who fled from East Pakistan into India. Second, find a political solution to the problem of East Pakistan.

In search of the first objective Washington has provided or has asked Congress for refugee and related aid this year totaling at least half a billion dollars, he said.

The second goal has proved harder and takes more time to reach, the official stated, but President Nixon has worked personally to help find negotiating positions as have Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

At no time has any U.S. official condoned Pakistan's attempt to crush the independence movement, the White House source said. In fact, the United States recognizes any political solution will have to evolve into some sort of autonomy for Bangla Desh.

The American diplomacy achieved some significant progress, the official maintained, although he declined to credit all the subsequent Pakistani concessions directly to the U.S. effort.

Nevertheless, after U.S. urgings, Pakistani President Agha Mohammed Yahya Kahn made several significant agreements, the official claimed.

First, Yahya announced a timetable for returning his country to civilian rule by the end of this month. Second, he agreed to a unilateral withdrawal of Pakistani troops from the Indian border. Third, he declared amnesty for all East Pakistani refugees not charged with major crimes.

And Yahya said he is willing to open talks with leaders of the Bangla Desh movement, although some aspects of that remain unclear.

Nixon made known the Pakistani concessions to Mrs. Gandhi when she was in Washington Nov. 4, the official stated, but there was never a response.

Instead, although it was clear these concessions indicated peaceful means for a settlement had not been exhausted and military force was not justified, India attacked, the official said.

He refused to characterize Mrs. Gandhi's lack of a response or the subsequent use of force as a betrayal, but the official did say the United States had no reason to believe Indian military action was imminent.

He added the administration believes India could have waited at least until the end of December to see results of Yahya's promise to return to civilian rule.

As of now, the White House official said, the administration will work for a cease-fire and troop withdrawal through the United Nations. He added a hope—the Soviet Union will use its considerable influence with India to bring about some sort of settlement.

The official explained he waited until now to provide the background to U.S. policy because it was hoped the issue could be settled through quiet diplomacy and because U.S. leaders were reluctant to believe the matter had come down to naked force.

Pay Board Considers Tightening Of Regulations

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pay Board is considering tightening its regulations to require advance approval for any wage agreement providing more than 5.5 per cent a year in pay raises, no matter how few employes are affected.

Presently there is no requirement that new pay agreements affecting fewer than 1,000 persons even be reported to the Pay Board. These small agreements, numbering roughly 10 million and affecting 83 per cent of working Americans, are now subject only to spot checks by agents of the Internal Revenue Service.

This arrangement was handed to the Pay Board by the Cost of Living Council before the end of the wage freeze.

A Pay Board source said that the board Tuesday received three different proposals from its staff. The toughest of the three would require that the Pay Board approve in advance any agreement exceeding the board's guideline that raises shouldn't be more than 5.5 per cent a year. Another staff suggestion would require that such above-guideline wage increases be reported to the board, the source said. The third would spell out detailed circumstances that would justify increases higher than 5.5 per cent, but require no report or advance approval.

Pay Board spokesman Herbert Wurth said the board was agreed "in principle" on the approach it wants to take, and would resume consideration today. A labor source said the public and management members of the tripartite board appeared to be leaning toward one of the tougher alternatives, requiring advance approval or at least notification of higher-than-guideline pay boosts.

Presently agreements affecting 5,000 or more workers require advance approval and those affecting from 1,000 to 5,000 must be filed with the board, subject to review.

In other actions Tuesday the Price Commission approved a 3.6 per cent across-the-board price increase for all steel-mill products of U.S. Steel Corp., which originally had sought an 8.6 per cent increase on only some of its products.

The 3.6 per cent increase, which is an average that will allow the firm to raise some prices by more or less than that figure, will prevail until next Aug. 1, when the next round of steelworker pay increases are due.

A Price Commission source said the panel had acted in the way it did because it feels it cannot realistically control the price of every product without risking the possibility of dropping some products off the market if prices are set too low.

The Pay Board scheduled for next Tuesday a review of the United Auto Workers three-year contract with North American Rockwell Corp., ratified last Sunday.

The pact, which includes pay increases plus fringe and cost-of-living benefits that reportedly bring the total to 30 per cent, covers only 11,000 workers at plants in three states. However, it is considered a pattern-setter for the entire aerospace industry.

The Price Commission announced approval of coal price increases for 20 firms, ranging from less than 3 per cent to nearly 5 per cent. The commission said last week it would not allow coal companies to pass along to consumers the full amount of a 15 per cent pay increase won by the United Mine Workers and approved by the Pay Board.

The Pay Board also Tuesday recommended to the Cost of Living Council that Puerto Rico be exempted from wage controls, along with Guam, the Virgin Islands and American Samoa, sources said.

Puerto Rico was covered by the wage-price freeze but the others were not.

The Cost of Living Council today said it would allow price increases that amount to a return to normal prices to be made without prenotification of the Price Commission. The action, the council said, is designed to clear up the problem faced by merchants who were carrying on special sales promotions when the freeze was decreed Aug. 15.

The council also said firms required to prenotify the commission need not do so in the case of "sharply shifting raw material costs."

Such increases without telling the commission, however, only are allowed when the product has customarily been subject to immediate and frequent fluctuations in the cost of a raw material. The increases may only reflect the increase in cost of the raw material, the council said.

FUEL WASTE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Homes built during the next 10 years will waste twice the amount of gas used to heat all the U.S. homes in 1968, says an Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. executive. He suggests that one way to ease the current fuel waste is to design buildings that use energy more efficiently.

The 'Good Life' Of Old Vienna Is Fading Away

By FERRY WIMMER

VIENNA (UPI) —The song is ending and the wine is bitter in Grinzing, the center of gemuetlichkeit—the good life—in Vienna.

The illness probably is fatal. The cause are those trappings of 20th Century progress—cars, suburban living and cold cash.

Grinzing, once a village, is a scenic little district in northwestern Vienna, out where the city meets the Vienna Woods. For centuries it has been the home of scores of little wine houses and wine gardens, owned and run by families whose wine comes from their own vineyards, passed down over the generations from father to son to grandson.

The wine is called "Heurigen" and so are the wine houses. for Viennese, the Heurigen have always been a homey refuge where they could drink the sharp white wine, engage in slow and easy conversation, listen to a little Strauss or Schrammelmusik from the house's violinist, sup on cold meat, cheeses and good brown bread.

That's the way it's always been. Now it is going.

"My ancestors have grown and sold wine here for the past 500 years," mourned Franz Hengl, the 30-year-old owner of the "Bach-Hengl" Heurigen and head of the Grinzing Vintners Association. "Now I see little chance that my 11-year-old son will continue in this business if the current trend prevails.

"The number of Grinzing wine growers has dwindled from 120 in 1956 to only 27 this year," Hengl said. "There will be only 22 next year."

One problem, he said, is that Grinzing has become a chic address and the land value of the vineyards, hard by the village, has soared.

"Many winegrowers have sold their vineyards to rich people who have built de luxe homes close to our gardens," he said.

These developments have eaten away "at least 30 per cent" of Grinzing's vineyards which "spoils the unique atmosphere of Grinzing," Hengl said.

Another problem is that the new dwellers, having moved to Grinzing for the atmosphere, are complaining about a vital ingredient of that atmosphere—music. The soft Viennese tunes can be heard all over the Grinzing hills on warm evenings, but nobody ever complained about this before.

"We have had many court cases in recent years," Hengl said. "At one time, authorities wanted us to end the music at 10 p.m. That's ridiculous. Now we have agreed to end at 11 p.m. That is still against our tradition. They should accept our music like those living near a railway station accept the trains."

But the biggest problem is traffic. The narrow winding streets are blocked every evening by cars. Parking places are gone by dusk. The little alleys become a maelstrom of inching traffic, frustrated drivers, choking exhaust fumes.

A parking area outside the village, first suggested in 1937 never got off the drawing board. Grinzing lies astride a major road to the woods, squelching plans to close the area to traffic. Any bypass road will chop through expensive houses—including the new villas built in the old vineyards.

"It's a vicious circle," Hengl said. "More houses, more traffic, more noise, more problems."

As the Heurigens die out, their places are being taken by restaurants. Under a charter dating from the 18th Century, Heurigens can sell only their own wine. The restaurants can serve wine bought anywhere. They also can—and do—sell ordinary hot dishes, just like any other restaurant. They even sell beer and whiskey.

There's an old Vienna song, a favorite in the Heurigens, about Himmelstrasse (Heaven Street), which winds through Grinzing. According to the song, Himmelstrasse leads to heaven.

Hengl snorted sadly. "If this keeps up," he said, "then our Himmelstrasse will lead to hell."

Fish Farm For Italian Lagoon

COMACCHIO, Italy (UPI) — The Po Delta Authority has worked out a fish farming program which it said could increase the fish catch from 50 to 2,000 tons a year by 1975 in the Comacchio coastal lagoon, a 26,670-acre body of mixed fresh and salt water.

Comacchio's main produce is eels, for which the production target is 1,500 tons.

NO SLICK TIRES

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) —Texas legislators declared war on slick tires this year. A law was adopted that will require annual inspection of tires on all motor vehicles in the state beginning Jan. 1, 1973. To pass the safety inspection the tire treads must be at least 1-16th inch deep.

N.C. Dept. of Archives and History
Written for Associated Press

RALEIGH (AP) — Culture Week, North Carolina's annual gathering of its 13 cultural and historical organizations, was held last week in Raleigh.

Meetings began Tuesday morning and events continued through noon Saturday.

The tradition of Culture Week goes back to 1913, when the North Carolina Folklore Society became the first organization to join the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association for its annual meeting. The State Art Society was second to accept the invitation.

Over the years 13 organizations have joined to meet annually at the same time and place — though meeting separately and remaining distinct organizations. The gathering has been held every year since 1913 with the exception of 1918, the year of the great influenza epidemic.

Prominent among Culture Week activities, in addition to the business meetings and the presentation of speeches of interest to the members, is the recognition of North Carolinians for work in the fields of history, literature, art, and music.

Among the history-related awards are the Sir Walter Award for fiction, won this year by John Ehle of Winston-Salem; the Mayflower Society Cup for nonfiction, which went to Jonathan Daniels of Raleigh; the American Association of University Women Award for juvenile literature, which was won by Mrs. Carl R. Newton of Raleigh; and the Roanoke Chowan Cup for poetry, received by Dr. Paul Baker Newman of Queens College in Charlotte.

Dr. Edwin A. Miles, professor of history at the University of Houston, was named winner of the R. D. W. Connor award, given annually for an outstanding article published in the North Carolina Historical Review. The Ruth Coltrane Cannon Cup for distinction in historical preservation, restoration, and research was awarded jointly to the Raleigh Historic Sites Commission, to Mrs. Samuel C. Kellan of Wilmington, and to the director of the State Department of Archives and History.

First prizes in the Peace Award for a locally oriented history book and the Smithwick Award for an article published in a periodical went, respectively, to James Wall of Mocksville and to Edward H. Smith of Kings Mountain. The Christopher Crittenden Award recognizing significant contribution to the stimulation of interest in and knowledge of North Carolina history was given to Dr. Gertrude Carraway, who recently retired as director of Tryon Palace at New Bern. Mrs. Joyce E. Jordan of Raleigh received the first annual North Carolina Museums Council Award.

In almost all cases, winners' names are engraved on cups and plaques which remain on permanent display in the lobby of the Archives and History-State Library Building in Raleigh, and a smaller momento is given to each recipient.

Looks Back On 'The Exorcist'

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "There are demons or something like them," author William Peter Blatty says flatly. And he's not kidding.

"I don't like the word 'demon' because it's loaded with superstitious qualities," the dark-haired Blatty says. "I prefer to think of the phenomenon as an energy form. A disembodied intelligence. Why not? After all, what is a thought? What is electricity?"

The 43-year-old Blatty, a lean, amiable yet intense man, has been interested in the occult—especially demons and demoniac possession—since his undergraduate days at Georgetown University.

But it wasn't until recently that he got a chance to put his knowledge of the subject into a book. And after "some 20 years of thinking about it and a year actually writing it," the novel, "The Exorcist," appeared.

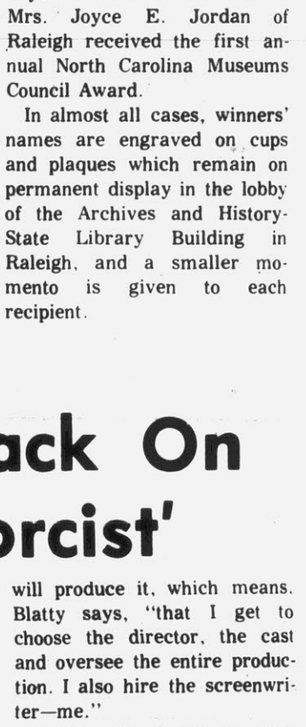
The book deals with the horrifying possession of an 11-year-old girl by a demon, perhaps Satan himself, and the exorcism of that demon some 300 pages later by a priest, Damien Karras. "I identify with Karras," Blatty says, noting that during his college days he was "heavy, very heavy on theology and philosophy."

"The book is based on an actual case that happened in Maryland in 1947," Blatty says. "I got interested in the case when I was a student. It concerned a young boy who was believed possessed and the church was called in for an exorcism. And it worked! I really believe it was legitimate. Ninety per cent of the time this sort of thing comes from mental illness, but not in this case. Or, let me put it this way, this is one case at least which we cannot explain psychiatrically."

The novel was well received by the reading public. Blatty says "it was No. 1 on the best-seller list for 17 weeks and it has sold some 140,000 copies thus far in hard-cover." He adds that of his previous four novels "I never had a book that sold more than 15,000 copies."

The book also has been sold to the films for $641,000 plus a percentage, Blatty says. And he will produce it, which means, Blatty says, "that I get to choose the director, the cast and oversee the entire production. I also hire the screenwriter—me."

Blatty, who hopes to start making the film in the spring of 1972, never has produced a film before but he has written over a dozen screenplays.



WILLIAM BLATTY

A Los Angeles resident, married, and the father of three children, 18, 19 and 20, Blatty says he has earned the bulk of his income writing for the movies. "I've gotten as much as $125,000 for a script," he muses, "but it's not like that these days."

While there are some scenes in the book which some might consider offensive if translated literally to the screen, Blatty sees no problem since "you can do things with a camera that give the audience the sense of what is going on without its actually seeing what is going on. What I mean is that you, the viewer, will know what is going on without ever really seeing what is happening explicitly."

As for the future, Blatty says, "I've got a couple of books in my head. I haven't started writing yet. Thinking a book through is the toughest part. It takes me a long time to get to the typewriter, but when I do I work until I'm exhausted, then I go to bed, and then I start working again."

Of the two books, Blatty says, "one will be a gentle-reminiscence of my parents and boyhood in New York City, the other will be a theological-thriller, the story of a man chasing after God."

WIGS THAT STICK

NEW YORK (AP) — Tape and glue may be on the way out for your hairpiece, says wig stylist Richard Hartwich. He has invented an adhesive material so a wig wearer can remove the hairpiece for cleaning and maintenance without the help of a professional.

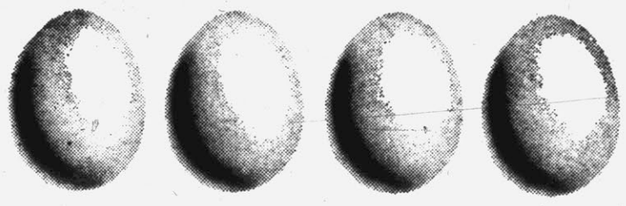
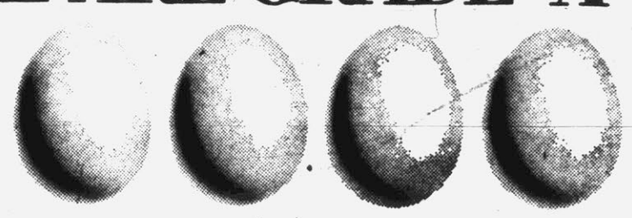
THERE ARE GRADE "A"



AND THERE ARE GRADE "A"



Not all Grade "A" eggs are alike.
To be labeled Grade "A"
eggs must meet certain minimum requirements.

There is many an egg that can be called Grade "A"
that just never could be a Sunnybrook Egg.

Sunnybrook Eggs... they're our best.
They have to be well above the minimum or they won't make the grade with us.

Break one in a pan, notice how proud the yolk sits up.
That's the sign of a good egg... a fresh egg.
a Sunnybrook Egg.

Try Sunnybrook. And if you ever find just one egg that doesn't measure up, we'll give you a dozen free.
12 for 1... that's pretty good odds.

Yuletide Customs Largely Imported From Germany

NEW YORK (UPI)—Amid gently falling snowflakes, carolers croon "Silent Night." Beyond a wreathed window stands a brightly lit and festooned Christmas tree. A great log blazes in the fireplace and children's stockings hang from the mantle, awaiting the arrival of Santa.

A typical American tableau? True. But the whole setting really is a German import.

Christmas trees originated in Germany. The Yule log originated in Germany. Visits from Santa combine two old German customs. And the internationally favorite Christmas hymn, "Silent Night, Holy Night," was written in Germany by a village priest and first published in Leipzig.

In ancient times, Dec. 25 marked the festival called Jul (Yule), celebrated by Germanic tribes to honor the sun god, Fryr. This was the winter solstice, the time of year when the sun was at its lowest point.

Jul ceremonies included the ornamentation of homes with evergreen boughs and the burning of special logs. In the 4th century, in order to superimpose its own significance on the pagan festival, the Christian church advanced its holiday, celebrating the birth of Christ, from Jan. 6 (Epiphany) to Dec. 25.

The Christmas tree tradition may have been further developed, according to legend, by St. Boniface, when he converted the Germanic pagans in the 4th Century. He dedicated a fir tree to the Christ Child, as a substitute symbol for the Sacred Oak of Wotan.

Martin Luther, the German reformer, added candles to his Christmas fir—tannenbaum—in the early 16th Century. Gilded apples and nuts and colored streamers were later ornaments. During the 18th and 19th Centuries, the holiday tradition of a decorated, lighted evergreen tree gradually spread outside Germany: to England with the Mecklenburg wife of King George III, and to the New World with German immigrants.

For German children, St. Nicholas' Day is Dec. 6, when a tall, white-bearded figure, in a sheepskin coat and crown or bishop's hat, goes from house to house rewarding good children with presents and punishing those who have been naughty. This is the origin of Santa Claus.

No other country in the world celebrates Christmas as Germany does. Its ancient traditions, in which pagan and Christian rites are intermingled, can vary even between neighboring villages.

The Christmas season in Germany starts with Advent, which includes the four weeks immediately preceding Dec. 25. Almost every home has its special Advent wreath, made of fir branches interlaced with red ribbons. It holds four candles, one of which is lighted each Sunday prior to Christmas Day.

In homes among the Eifel hills, between the lower Moselle and middle Rhine, a loaf of bread is left on the sill of a window looking toward the church. When eaten on Christmas Day, this bread is supposed to prevent or cure diseases. A candle is kept burning in one room of the house during Christmas Eve, symbolizing the arrival of the new light—originally the return of the sun, now the Savior.

At Alsfeld in Hesse, townsfolk assemble around the creche in the old market square to sing the Christ Child to sleep with carols as lullabies.

In the Black Forest, an extra plate is laid at the table on Christmas eve, ready for Mary, who was not expected by anyone on that same night years past.

On many German farms, before the candles are lit on the Christmas tree, the family makes a special round of the stable to pat every cow and horse, in remembrance of that day long ago when the Holy Family had only an ox and an ass for company.

In the Bavarian mountains, towards midnight on Christmas Eve, peasants descend through the deep snow from their lofty farms, each with a torch or lantern to guide his path. This makes a fantastic pattern as these many tiny lights gradually converge on a village church for midnight mass.

In Berlin, the tradition of a Christmas Fair is more than 150 years old. Currently, it is presented on the Fair Grounds in West Berlin. This is a vast display with booths and shops selling every conceiveable kind of ware, merry-go-rounds and Christmas tableaux.

Prehistoric Fragments Found In South Africa

By KENNETH L. WHITING

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prehistoric beings who roamed Africa two or three million years ago may have been more human and less apelike than believed earlier.

Most scientists hold that such specimens as Mrs. Ples and the Taung child, which are classified as Australopithecus, were simple creatures with an IQ little brighter than that of a gorilla or chimpanzee. They are classified as "hominid," or members of the family of man, however.

Fossils found at Makapansgat limeworks near the town of Potietersrus some 160 miles north of Johannesburg provide evidence that Australopithecus may have been a manufacturer and user of tools, says researcher Brian Maguire.

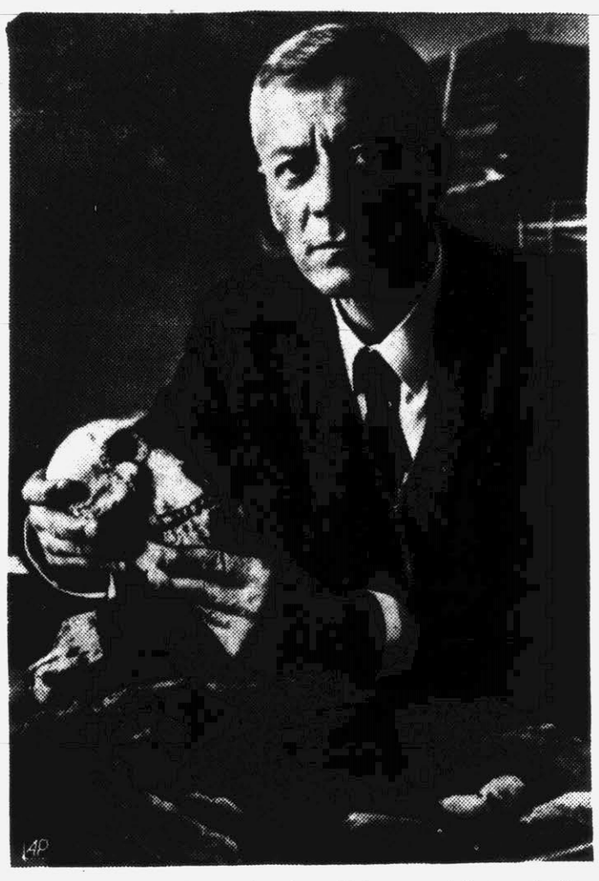
Working at Johannesburg's Bernard Price Institute for Palaentological Research, Maguire has completed a 10 year study of materials dug from Makapansgat.

Along with Australopithecus fossil remains, Maguire collected thousands of stone fragments which, he contends, give evidence of having been made and used as tools.

The making of tools is not usually linked with the lower animals. While chimps will use tools, even these highly developed primates have never been credited with making them.

Until recently it was taken for granted the apemen of southern Africa were not makers of stone tools. Prof. F. Clark Howell, a United States anthropologist, wrote in 1966:

"... if two-leggedness does depend on tool use, it stands to reason that Australopithecus, who was unquestionably two-legged, must have been a tool user. It would be nice to be able to confirm this by producing some chipped stone artifacts from the same strata ... but here we are stymied. Experts searched for stone tools to go with Australopithecus for years but did not find a single one."



OLD BONES — Fossils found at Makapansgat limeworks in South Africa provide evidence prehistoric beings classified as Australopithecus may have manufactured and used tools, according to researcher Brian Maguire. Maguire holds the fossilized skull of a baboon which was unearthed at Makapansgat.

Maguire says they have been found, but just not recognized as tools by scientists.

"To the conventional archaeologists such stone tools should be obviously flaked, usually into some conventional or readily recognizable form. The tools I have found are much more primitive and evidence of flaking is minimal."

They are nevertheless fashioned by hand, Maguire maintains. Natural circumstances cannot explain their features, neither the nature of damage nor the endless repetition of certain basic shapes.

Despite their crudeness, Maguire recognizes six basic tools, including those he labels as scrapers, planes, anvils and pounders.

Most have a scraping or cutting edge and most of the scrapers are notched or concave. These notches vary in size and position but almost without exception show signs of manufacture and sometimes much wear from usage.

"The evidence is there for anyone to see at Makapansgat and here at the institute," says Maguire.

More than 40 fragments of Australopithecus have been found at different levels at the limeworks. No remains of other hominids have been excavated, indicating that Australopithecus may have been the only occupant of the caverns and hence the maker of all the tools.

Young Patient Is Home Again After Long Stay

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Brain tumor patient, Maria Gomez, went home Friday afternoon amid the first snowflakes she had ever seen and the well wishes of the Pitt Memorial Hospital staff.

The nine-year-old daughter of former migrant workers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gomez had been hospitalized for more than two months, but considerable improvement lately has enabled her to go home.

The tumor which was discovered late in the summer has robbed of her speech and mobility, but she is quite aware of her surroundings. She was pleased with her family's new trailer home on the Sunnyside Egg Farm on Route 5, Greenville where her father works.

Mrs. Gomez and Maria went by the hospital chapel on the way out to offer a prayer of thanksgiving for Maria's going home. Then they got into Mrs. Robert Dominick's station wagon. Maria was clearly delighted with the snow and with the white boots given her by a friend.

"We want all the people of the Greenville area to know what their love and prayers have done," Mrs. Dominick said. "We are writing thank you notes to as many individuals, organizations, and business firms as we can to thank them personally, but the list is so large. Everyone has really opened his heart to Maria and her family.

"The family really doesn't need any more clothes," she said. "They say they want to give anything else they receive to others who need them more. They will continue to need food, however, since Gomez's income is just above the cutoff point of a man with his income and family size to receive USDA food stamps.

"So many people have asked me about helping to make the Gomezes' Christmas merrier. Anyone who wants to should call me by Dec. 18 or Mrs. Charles Pope after that," Mrs. Dominick said.

Penalty On Tax After December

WINTERVILLE — December is the last month that the 1971 town taxes can be paid without a penalty being added.

According to Winterville Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, beginning Jan. 1, a two percent penalty will be added. After Jan. 31, three-fourths of one per cent will be added each month to the delinquent taxes.

Nobles said the 1972 town tags are on sale at the Winterville Municipal Building. The cost is $1 for each tag.

Baboon Shines At Switchboard

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Subscribers at Kloof Nek Forest were left to wonder about the new bug in the telephone system when bells rang for no reason and some heard only barks, growls and sucking sounds.

A baboon had got into the unattended exchange. It pulled instructions from the wall, pressed every button on the switchboard, spilt milk on the floor and finally ate the only pen of operator Michael Anhauser who had left for a few minutes. "I don't know what to put in my report," Anhauser said.

NEW SCHOOL VOTERS

Commend Williamston Police Explorer Scouts

WILLIAMSTON — A new youth organization, the Police Explorer Scouts was recognized and commended for its efforts at the monthly meeting of the Williamston Town Board held Monday night.

Members of the Explorer Scouts were introduced to the Town Board by Police Chief John L. Swain, who explained the members are interested in law enforcement programs and are organized under the auspices of the Boy Scouts of America. The high school age members hope to study law enforcement and to assist police in directing traffic on occasions such as ball games and parades.

A public hearing on rezoning of portions of Elm Street from Unoffensive Industry to Downtown Commercial was approved by the town board in the absence of any opposition being registered.

Public hearings for January were set for a request to rezone in two instances. One is for a 456 portion of U.S. 64 by-pass from highway commercial to Residential Office zoning. The area is in the vicinity of VEPCO and the new hospital under construction. The second is a request by Dr. W. F. Coppage to rezone property on North Horton Street from White to Rhodes from the current R-6 residential zoning to highway commercial.

David Moore asked the board to look into problems created by a drainage pipe along North Horton Street. Moore said the pipe was inadequate in size, resulting in back up of water. The board turned the matter over to the Street Department for investigation.

Fire Chief James Thrower reported on the possibility of procuring new fire equipment with the trade in of an old 1956 truck which will soon be obsolete. The board is taking this under advisement.

Police Commissioner Wilbur Edwards informed the board that a decision had been made not to purchase the eight band citizens radio system considered as a possibility at an earlier date. Instead, the decision is now to request a federal grant for purchase of a high frequency band base station for the police department and all law enforcement agencies in Martin County. Edwards said it is believed this type of system would be more beneficial to the town and county. The board approved submission of an application for a grant.

David Hughes of the Williamston Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee, received board approval of the project. He was also asked to investigate the possibility of grants for use in the project.

Town Attorney Danny Manning was told to proceed with working out an agreement with the Seaboard Coastline Railroad. The railroad line has agreed to letting the town widen Faulk Street using part of the railroad's right of way for the improvement.

The engineers are Bob Stevenson and Charles Maskall, both of Seattle.

Workshop For Educators Held

The first of a series of four sessions of a workshop on Management and Leadership Development Program, conducted by the Division of School Planning of the State Department of Public Instruction for the Greenville City School System, was held Monday at Third Street Elementary School.

Dr. W. O. Fields, Special Assistant for Management and Malcolm Williams, consultant from the Division of School Planning, were in charge of the workshop session from 9:30 to 12:30 yesterday.

"Getting things done through people" was one of the ways Dr. Fields expressed the definition of Educational Management, the theme of this workshop. He also commented that educational management "is guiding physical and human resources into dynamic organization units which attain their objectives to the satisfaction of those served and with a high degree of morale and sense of achievement on the part of those rendering the service."

In his closing remarks, Dr. Fields noted that "the mistake that many of us make is in not realizing that all people do not see things the way we see them."

Members of the central office, the board of education and principals and teachers from all the schools in Greenville attended the three hours session.

The other three parts of the four part workshop will be held on December 14, 15 and 16 at Pitt Technical Institute with Roger Schurrer and Malcolm Williams in charge of the three sessions.

The Worry Clinic

The Sheep And 'Real Hippies'

Prof. Leon asks how to diagnose a bona fide hippie! Pseudo-hippies differ from real hippies! So learn how to tell them apart. And if you young married couples wish to avoid rearing hippie offspring, be sure to follow the advice below. Use those scientific "Rating Scales," too!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-537: Leon J., aged 31, is a college biology professor.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "maybe you noticed many hippie students wandering over our campus today.

"Some of them get liberal monthly allowance checks from home.

"But instead of paying for normal college living quarters (as their parents expect them to do), these hippies rent cheap 'pads,' which you would call flop houses in Chicago.

"Then they use the money they save thereby, to buy drugs.

"And we find that the marks they make on college exams are usually low.

"For our experience with hippies is that they are juvenile and so immature that they lack worthy goals in life.

"Dr. Crane, how do you diagnose modern hippies?"

Hippie Psychology

Many intelligent students wear sideburns and even go without haircuts.

But these are not what we normally call hippies!

Instead, they are social "sheep" who simply try to meld with the group fads on campus.

The real hippie is usually of slender, effeminate build, with long hair, juvenile beard, and dirty jeans.

He dresses slouchily, not to avoid standing out from the crowd, but actually to gain attention by being different.

So please distinguish clearly between many timid students who affect the hippie appearance in order to avoid being taunted by their classmates.

By contrast, the typical hippie eagerly tries to gain the social spotlight just by looking bizarre.

That's a lazy, grandstander device for getting photographed by newspaper and TV cameramen.

Hippies are thus adopting the usual feminine ploy!

For girls routinely wish to attract attention by their hairdo and costume.

Real he-men prefer to rate the spotlight by their accomplishment.

Hippies thus hope to feel important by violating standard customs, a la the iconoclast.

To rate first page notice, as an Einstein, Paderewski or sports star, may require 25 years of diligent work and daily practice.

How many hippies have ever won scholastic honors?

Do they become valedictorians or salutatorians of their graduating class?

Do they win varsity letters in sports?

Are they leaders in Science Clubs, the Band or Choral groups, where laborious practice is demanded?

Can they play a violin or any musical instrument that requires more than the 30 minutes they now spend learning a few guitar chords to accompany their kindergarten lyrics?

Do former Boy or Girl Scouts become hippies? Why not?

Ever meet an ex-newspaper carrier who was a hippie?

Hippies are usually "spongers" on permissive parents who have too long subsidized their loafing offspring by the unAmerican "allowance" plan, instead of making them work for their spending money!

If you young parents wish to avoid procreating hippie offspring, send for my 200-point "Tests for Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

VOLUNTEER SQUAD

MONTREAL (AP) — Police in suburban Brossard have set up a 210-man emergency volunteer snowmobile squad to help them during severe snowstorms this winter. One of the snowmobiles will be equipped with a red flasher and a radio and will pull a specially-designed stretcher.

AllendePlanning To Visit Cuba

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Chilean government says President Salvador Allende will travel to Cuba soon to repay Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's recent visit to this South American nation.

The government, however, gave no dates for Allende's visit to the Communist island nation. Castro had extended an invitation for the visit while in Chile.

Opening lead: Three of ♡

Correct placement of the adversely held cards by the declarer spells the key to success on many deals as is illustrated by today's hand taken from a recent team of four match.

The bidding was the same at both tables. Even with favorable vulnerability conditions, East's overcall of one heart is somewhat questionable, altho it did serve to get his partner off to the most effective defense against the final contract of three no trump with South as the declarer.

West opened the three of hearts, and East put up the king to return the seven. At one table, declarer considered the possibilities. West's lead of a low heart—as well as his raise during the auction—appeared to mark him with an honor in the suit. South finally decided to play East for the ace and king of hearts and West for the jack.

In an attempt to block communications, declarer played the queen of hearts at trick two. Had his analysis of the heart holdings been correct, the play of the queen would have blocked the suit. When the diamond finesse is taken subsequently and loses to East's king, he cannot cash the ace of hearts without dropping partner's jack and thereby establishing South's ten. If East leads a low heart to West, the latter is in, but has no way of reaching East again, and the heart suit is retired from the play.

As matters actually developed, when South played the queen of hearts, West put up the ace and returned the four. East cashed the jack and cleared the suit by dislodging South's ten. When East got in again with the king of diamonds, he cashed the setting trick with the nine of hearts.

It would not have availed declarer to put in the ten of hearts at trick two, for the final result would have been the same. On a third round of the suit, East's nine drives out the queen and two heart tricks are taken by the defense when the diamond finesse loses.

At the other table, South came up with an effective countermeasure — but on a different line of reasoning. When the seven of hearts was returned by East at trick two, declarer merely ducked altogether, and this play actually succeeded in blocking the suit. West covered South's ten of hearts with the ace on the next round, but now he had no hearts to return.

West exited with the queen of spades and North played the ace. The closed hand was entered with the ace of clubs to put the queen of diamonds thru. East was in with the king, however South won the heart return with the queen and claimed the balance for nine tricks, having lost three hearts and one diamond.

South reasoned as follows: In order to raise his partner to two hearts, West appeared marked with one of the missing red suit honors. A high heart appeared the most likely possibility, inasmuch as the king of diamonds would not appear of much value to West since it is located in front of the diamond bidder. If West has either the ace or king of hearts, then the only way to block the suit is to play a small heart at trick two.

Observe that South would still have succeeded, had East held the ace, king of hearts and West the jack—provided that the latter had the king of diamonds. With the diamond finesse succeeding, declarer is assured of three diamond tricks, four clubs and two spades once he gains the lead and there is no way that the defense can take more than the first three heart tricks before surrendering the initiative.

Plan Study Funding Of NewComplex

WILLIAMSTON — A committee has been appointed by the Martin County Commissioners to study ways of funding a proposed medical complex adjoining the new Martin County Hospital now nearing completion.

Members of the Hospital Board appeared before the County Commissioners Monday with a proposal for an affiliated facility that would provide private practice space for about a dozen physicians. The committee is to investigate all possibilities and report back to the commissioners.

Affairs in Bear Grass constituted two agenda items. The commissioners approved transfer of $5,000 from the capital outlay budget as a loan to purchase an activity bus for the Bear Grass School. The commissioners are also looking into the possibility of funds to pave the area in front of the Bear Grass Fire Station.

L. T. Fountain presented a display of plans to expand the county's recreation facility at Keehukee Park, a ten acre tract on the western side of Williamston. The N. C. Recreation Commission is to be contacted for assistance in plans and also for advice on funding.

Joe Lawrence Coltrain was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Grady Goddard on the hospital board; and John House and Paul Barber were reelected as chairman and vice-chairman of the County Commissioners, respectively.

A petition was received from persons requesting the paving of SR 1533, the Smithwick Creek Road, now a secondary dirt road.

In a final action, commissioners approved Christmas holidays for county employees for December 23, 24 and 27, and a New Year's holiday of December 31.

DINGBAT HAD NEVER BEEN KNOWN TO TAKE OUT THE GARBAGE OR RUBBISH ...

BUT THE ONE TIME HE FINALLY DID ...

Seeking Rights For Bicyclists

LOSTON (AP) — Heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White, a long-time proponent of bicycle riding for exercise, wants the Massachusetts Legislature to update laws governing bikes and give bicyclists the same rights as motorists.

White, 85, who treated President Dwight D. Eisenhower when he suffered a heart attack, offered a bicycle bill for consideration by the 1972 legislature. Six state senators joined him in filing it.

The measure would require bicycle riders to obey all traffic regulations. Going the wrong way down a one-way street would be prohibited, for instance. No passenger could be carried except on an "individual seat." And bicycles would not be permitted to operate at a speed greater than is "responsible and prudent under existing conditions."

EXPAND LANDS

TORONTO (AP) — The Ontario government has announced a three-year expansion program for eastern Ontario winter deer-grazing lands. To establish the ranges, crews of local men will be hired to cut nonmarketable hardwoods and remove shade-producing trees to stimulate regeneration of hardwoods and growth for deer grazing.

Martin Bd. To Host Meeting

WILLIAMSTON — Plans for a District Two School Board meeting to be hosted by the Martin County Board of Education were revealed at Monday's monthly meeting.

Alton Hopewell, Public Relations Director for the School Board, revealed that on January 12 the six county district meeting would be held at Williamston High School. Participants are school boards of Martin, Beaufort, Hyde, Dare, Tyrrell and Washington Counties.

Dr. Frank Fuller, member of the Greenville City Council and a faculty member at East Carolina University, is keynote speaker for the occasion. The three seminar type programs to be conducted during the afternoon will include Dr. W. O. Fields of the State Department of Plubic Instruction; Don Morrow of NCAE; Carlton Fleetwood; Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray; and Bob Martin of Pitt County, president of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners.

The school board was given a report on the early identification project being conducted in seven kindergarten classes in the county funded by ESEA. The kindergarten classes, totaling 150 children, have been the basis of a study conducted by Mrs. Sarah G. Allen, of East Carolina University's Developmental Evaluation Clinic. Mrs. Allen's report showed the results of efforts to determine the children who may have physical, hearing or coordination defects that could be a problem when they enter school on the first grade level.

The board voted to write a letter of congratulations to the Robersonville football team, which recently captured the State Championship title.

Dan Bowen reported on the new rates of reimbursement for the school lunch program. Under the new arrangement, the reimbursement is six cents per meal for paid lunches, 26 cents for reduced rate lunches, and 46 cents for free lunches.

Board of Education member Lawrence Lilley was appointed as the board's representative to the policies committee of the Martin County Association of Educators.

In the school budget, the budget was amended to reflect a $25,000 carry over of ESAP funds.
