World Bids Farewell To '71 Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In Rome they throw crockery into the streets. In New York the city throws a free party for thousands in Central Park. In San Francisco they are throwing party makings to six gorillas.

On such varied notes will the world bid farewell to 1971 today, ending the year that was with traditional toasts, champagne celebrations and perhaps a pair of ear plugs for those who prefer to sleep through it all.

Guy Lombardo will give the midnight downbeat for Auld Lang Syne in the grand ballroom of New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel, rounding out four decades as Father Time's minstrel.

In London the midnight arrival of the Royal Horse Guard and the Pipers and Drums of the Scots Guard will ensure that even the insensible know 1972 has arrived.

Italians brave their streets tonight knowing that housewives and apartment dwellers traditionally seize the occasion to clean house by throwing old crockery, pots and furniture out the window. Authorities appealed for restraint in the practice.

French gastronomes will feast on oysters and champagne. The traditional dinner for Danish families is boiled cod. In Spain the custom is to eat 12 grapes at midnight—the event is televised live.

One of the biggest parties in the world is in New York's Central Park where a parade, fireworks and dancing are expected to draw tens of thousands.

Indianapolis Jaycees expected more than 2,000 Hoosiers for an all-night party at the Union Station. Money raised will be used to restore the railroad station, a local historic landmark.

Today the San Francisco Zoo is throwing a "gorilla party"—for its six gorillas, naturally. Each beast gets an acacia tree to gnaw on and a six-foot bag of assorted food and goodies.

As the holiday period began, the National Safety Council estimated that 400 to 500 persons would be killed in traffic accidents over the weekend. Motorists everywhere were warned about drinking and driving.

Free candy-striped minibuses will be available in Sacramento tonight to shuttle celebrants from one night spot to another.

For revelers who over-revel, the Maine Turnpike Authority will provide a complimentary "coffee break for safety." Similar free coffee is available for drivers on the Illinois tollway.

Police in Dearborn, Mich., and in Lake Zurich, Ill. both offered to drive residents home in an attempt to cut down on the number of accidents.

A Louisville, Ky., disc jockey got drunk on the air Tuesday as a warning of the dangers of drinking. Gary Burbank, 29, passed out after downing three-quarters of a fifth of whisky during the first 2 1/2 hours of his WAKY broadcast.

"I'm smashed," he told his technicians. "Take over."

Holiday Closings

Schedules for New Year's observance vary among the public offices here.

Federal offices are having their holiday today and will reopen as usual Monday. The Post Office closed at noon today and will not reopen until Monday morning.

State offices will be closed Monday.

All county offices except the tax offices will be closed Monday, but tax listing will begin Monday.

City offices will be closed Monday.

Sheppard Memorial Library will close New Year's Day, but will be open Monday.

The Daily Reflector will publish its normal editions.

Most Greenville businesses will be closed tomorrow.

Marine Exercise Continuing In Eastern N.C.

CAMP LEJEUNE — Marine Corps Air-Ground Training Exercise Blue Ax, which began Thursday, December 30 at Camp Lejeune is still in progress and will continue through January 7.

Blue Ax is an assault exercise, combining Marine Corps air and ground operations at Camp Lejeune and is the most extensive air-ground control exercise to be held in recent years.

Eastern North Carolina area residents should not be alarmed if they hear explosions throughout this period as the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing aviators drop their ordnance in training area bomb zones.

BACK INTO FIRE — John H. Bolar was driven back by smoke and flames of a burning house, but went back a second time to rescue a 13-year-old girl. (AP Wirephoto)

Went Back Into Burning House To Rescue Girl

COLUMBIA (AP)—I couldn't have stood out there and just listen to that mother scream. I had to do something.

Columbia policeman John H. Bolar did something. He went back into a burning home for the second time Thursday and rescued the 13-year-old daughter of the screaming woman.

Bolar arrived at the home after another policeman saw smoke pouring from the house and radioed for assistance.

"When I got there, the mother was on the steps screaming and a man was bringing a small child out," Bolar related later.

"The mother was screaming that one child was still left inside. She said the kid was in the third room back.

"The man who brought the small child out said it was too bad to go back in there. I tried but had to come back out." The mother kept screaming and Bolar tried again. He turned his flashlight on and crawled back into the smoke-filled house on hands and knees.

"I found the room, but the smoke was so bad I couldn't see anything. I was about ready to leave when I heard her cough. I thought she was in the bed, but she had tried to get out and was lying on the floor.

"She was wringing with sweat and I had to drag her out. It was starting to get pretty hot in there."

The girl, Lavonne Gunter, and her mother, Mrs. Betty Gunter, were both hospitalized for treatment of smoke inhalation. Walter Gunter Jr., 11, was hospitalized with burns on the face and arms. All are in satisfactory condition.

Watch Smoke

RALEIGH (AP) — Folks with badly smoking automobiles better be careful beginning Saturday.

That's when a tougher new state law governing auto emissions goes into effect, and Deputy Motor Vehicles Commission J. M. Penny said Thursday troopers of the State Highway Patrol and personnel from the MVD's licensing and safety division are set to enforce it.

"Everybody is ready to go," Penny said.

Also effective Saturday is a new law which requires 1968 and later model vehicles to be equipped with emission control devices. Under the law, vehicles must be checked during annual safety inspections to see that the emission control devices are on the vehicles. However, inspectors do not have to determine if the devices are working.

Trawler Is Towed

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A Coast Guard cutter towed a crippled 85-foot fishing trawler to Morehead City today after a Coast Guard helicopter Thursday night dropped two pumps aboard the crippled ship to keep it from sinking.

The craft was identified by the Coast Guard as the Holly Murphy, which had a crew of three when it started sinking Thursday afternoon about five miles from Ocracoke.

The Coast Guard station at Ocracoke had a cutter on the scene within 45 minutes of receiving the distress call at 4:45 p.m. The helicopter dropped the pumps about 11 p.m. Seas were rough at the time.

The Holly Murphy had shipped so much water that the trawler had a 12-foot draft, too much for it to get back into Ocracoke Inlet, which is only nine feet deep in places.

Coast Guard Chief Wayne Gray at Cape Hatteras said the trawler could have been towed through the inlet "if there was an emergency."

Golda Believes U.S. To Deliver Phantoms

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Premier Golda Meir expressed a strong belief today that the United States has decided to resume deliveries of F4 Phantom jets to Israel. A war of nerves mounted in the Middle East, with Jordan charging Israeli jets flew near its capital and Egypt announcing completion of military maneuvers.

Mrs. Meir expressed her views on the Phantoms in a radio interview while commenting on a report from Washington that the Nixon administration would go ahead with the Phantom supplies after discussions in January.

The premier, who visited Washington early in December, noted that the State Department did not deny a Washington dispatch on the Phantoms in the New York Times.

"This bears witness that indeed the planes will come to Israel," Mrs. Meir said.

The Phantom has become the workhorse of the Israeli air force.

An agreement for the delivery of the aircraft terminated last summer and was not renewed by Washington despite urgent pleas by Israel. It was generally believed that the U.S. administration hoped thereby to preserve influence with the Arab states and at the same time to engender more Israeli flexibility.

Jordan reported Israeli jets invaded Jordanian air space and broke the sound barrier near Amman. Egypt said its forces completed maneuvers simulating the recapture of the Sinai Desert from Israel. And Israel reported Arab guerrillas from Lebanon fired bazookas at an Israeli jeep near the border but missed it.

Amman Radio said sonic booms from two formations of Israeli planes frightened residents in Salt, 15 miles northwest of Amman, and Naour, six miles south of the capital. "Flying at extremely high altitudes," the broadcast said, "the planes caused sonic booms but could not be intercepted by anti-aircraft guns because of bad weather." It said the flights lasted 40 minutes.

Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported that Egyptian armed forces completed a week-long exercise Thursday simulating the crossing of the Suez Canal and the retaking of Sinai.

The report said the exercise "was structured along the lines of contingencies expected in the task of liberating occupied territories. It included crossing of water barriers, tank engagements in full collaboration with the air force, battles involving various types of artillery, paratrooper assaults and logistic operations."

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, turned over command of the armed services today to Maj. Gen. David Elizar, who headed operations against Syria, Lebanon and northern Jordan during the 1967 war.

In a meeting with newsmen Thursday, Bar-Lev, 47, said there was a possibility that Egypt might start a new battle on the Suez front, but he added: "I don't believe the Egyptians themselves know what to do, so how can Israel know what will happen?"

In Washington, a U.S. official said discussions will be held with Israel about further arms deliveries, but he refused to confirm a report that the Nixon administration has decided to grant Israel's request to buy more F4 Phantom jet fighters-bombers.

Just what arms the U.S. plans to let Israel have has been kept under tight secrecy, particularly whether the Phantoms will be included. The United States has not sold any of the planes to Israel since last July, but it may have agreed to resume deliveries at the meeting last month between President Nixon and Premier Golda Meir.

Economist Sees Need Of Long Controls Program

By ROBERT L. CAMPBELL, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government control over wage and price increases will be needed long after Phase 2 ends, says Paul W. McCracken, retiring chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

And, McCracken said, Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic control program will last at least through the 1972 election.

McCracken told a farewell news conference Thursday he could not predict what kind of controls would be around after Phase 2 ends, but added:

"Phase 3 will have to be something that permits the market system to operate still more freely than it does now, but which has some regard for the tendency of costs and prices to continue rising after the overheating of the economy has ended."

He said Phase 3 might be no more than a matter of official supervision, but stressed the government would have to exercise controls "for a long time to come."

McCracken emphasized his remarks did not necessarily reflect the administration's position, but rather were "the personal views of a professor on his way back to academia."

McCracken is returning to his economics teaching position at the University of Michigan. Herbert Stein, now vice chairman of the council, will become its chairman Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, the Price Commission said Thursday tenants can expect at least a one-month delay in any increases in their rents, and many probably will not have to pay the increases until March.

Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said all tenants on monthly or weekly leases who did not pay increases before Wednesday do not have to pay more than their December rent in January even if they have received notice of an increase.

In other economic action: —AFL-CIO President George Meany said the Pay Board would be paralyzed by a crush of appeals and challenges unless it changes its policies of permitting business members of the board to automatically challenge any scheduled salary increase over 7 per cent.

—Donald Rumsfeld, executive director of the Cost of Living Council, said in Chicago he expects the Pay Board will approve only a portion of a 12 per cent first-year wage increase to 11,000 North American Rockwell Corp. aerospace workers. Rumsfeld also said he expects the council to issue guidelines next week on contracts within the aerospace industry.

—The Price Commission said retailers must post their price-calling lists in a position "easily accessible to the customer and must not require him to ask a store employe for access to the information." The commission has asked the Internal Revenue Service to start checking retailers Jan. 3 for compliance with the posting requirement.

of workers there. That kind of action just might get the fellow's goat. The picture was taken at West Palm Beach, Fla. (AP Wirephoto).

Haggard, Tired U Thant Is Given Rousing Sendoff

By ALEC COLLETT, Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Haggard but smiling bravely, U Thant was given a rousing sendoff by his colleagues and staff as he left U.N. headquarters for the last time as secretary-general.

"I am an optimist," Thant told newsmen Thursday night. "I have hope for the future of the United Nations."

"There might be difficulties, perhaps for a couple of years. But things will improve." Thant said he felt "greatly relieved" at stepping down from the job he often complained has vast responsibilities but little power.

Asked what gave him the greatest satisfaction at the end of 10 years in office, Thant, in a reference to the admission of Communist China this year, replied: "The principle of universality is almost fulfilled, I would say."

He added that his one regret was that the divided countries were still not in the world body, "but I guess the two Germanys will be in next year."

He looked drawn and tired, having returned to work only three weeks ago after hospital treatment for a duodenal ulcer.

The 62-year-old Burmese ended a crisis-ridden decade as chief of the U.N. secretariat with a day of emotional farewells.

Undersecretaries-general rubbed shoulders with messengers, secretaries and clerks at a champagne party given by his personal staff and senior colleagues.

Thant said he would spend the rest of his life helping to achieve the ideals and principles of the United Nations.

Spelling out his philosophy, the mild-mannered Thant added: "The modest man is a strong man;

the arrogant man is the weak man."

Throughout the day, a stream of ambassadors and secretariat officials dropped in on Thant in his 38th floor office.

He left his farewell party at 5:30 p.m. to keep his last official appointment, with Ambassador El Hadj Abdoulaye Toure of Guinea.

The memorable decade began for Thant on Nov. 3, 1961, when he became secretary-general following the death of Dag Hammarskjold in a plane crash in Africa.

Thant served longer than either Hammarskjold or Tryve Lie, the first U.N. chief.

Author Carter of New Haven, Conn., served as best man. Ushers were Lee Murphy, cousin of the bride, Edmond Love Jr. of New Haven, Conn., and Edward T. Love, of Greenville, brother of the bride, Charles Gorham and Freddie Outterbridge, both of Greenville. Junior usher was Jonathan Bradley of New Haven, Conn., nephew of the bride.

MRS. JAMES LEWIS WILLIAMS

Bishop W. L. Jones performed the double ring ceremony.

The wedding music was presented by Johnny A. Wooten, organist, and soloists, Mrs. Ella Harris and Mrs. Rosa M. Harris, sister of the bride. They sang "I Love You Truly", "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

The background of the church was centered with a fifteen semi-circle candelabrum flanked on either side by two tall standards of greenery. The couple knelt for prayer on a white prie dieu. Candelabra filled with gladioli and mums were placed on either side of the altar. The pews were marked with white satin bows and greenery.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of white velvet and imported French lace. The gown was designed with a fitted empire bodice, high neckline and Bishop sleeves trimmed with lace.

Her headpiece of white velvet was attached to a chapel length veil of illusion edged in matching lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids centered with a cattleya orchid and miniature red carnations tied with red satin streamers.

Miss Lucille B. Gorham was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of flame red velvet trimmed in red and green. The gown was designed with puff sleeves and empire waistline. She wore a matching headpiece and carried a white muff designed with a colonial bouquet

The mother of the bride wore a formal length royal blue velvet gown trimmed with silver sequins styled with bishop sleeves and wore matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal length aqua gown with long sleeves. She wore matching accessories. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

The wedding was directed by Miss Esther M. Porteur of Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Eppes High School and attended Elizabeth City State University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Hillhouse High School, South Central College and the University of New Haven, Conn. He is employed at Hillhouse High School.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in West Haven, Conn.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Bachelor Benedict Club. The tables were covered with white satin cloths and decorated with red carnations and greenery on the corners. The appointed table was centered with a candelabrum filled with snapdragons and baby's breath.

Serving were Charles Gatlin, assisted by Mrs. Lizzie Williams, Mrs. Ruby Taylor, Mrs. Pricilla Tyson, Mrs. Doris Hanley and Mrs. Mable Love. Mr. and Mrs. George T. Gorham and Mrs. W. L. Morris received the guests. Mrs. H. B. Jones presided at the register.

Bridal Breakfast

The wedding party and friends were entertained at a wedding breakfast Saturday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Guthrie. The breakfast was given by the Ever Ready Club of Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church.

The wedding party was honored at an after-rehearsal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Linberge Joyner, cousins of the bride.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Moore of Greenville announce the marriage of their daughter, Brenda Joyce, to Douglas Gayle Wade, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Wade of Moore, Okla., on Dec. 23, in a ceremony performed at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will reside in Oklahoma.

Kiss-And-Tellers Seldom Are Believed

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, whilst in the pictures, I foolishly allowed a boy named Brian to kiss me. (I didn't know him very well.) He also tried to grope me, but I foiled his attempt.

Now some friends who live in his neighborhood have told me that Brian has been telling everyone that he had what he calls "a go at me." This is a lie! But, Abby, I fear that people may believe him and I perhaps will be classed as "easy," which I certainly am not.

What should I do? I would dread to think that my reputation is soiled at age 16 because of this one incident.

WORRIED IN IRELAND

DEAR WORRIED: Don't worry about it. Boys who kiss and tell are known not only for their kissing and telling but for boasting about conquests that never materialized.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I married Bob, a sweet easy going guy. It was his first marriage and my second. I had a daughter (Jill) who is now four. Bob is the only father Jill remembers, and she worships him. He adores her, too.

Last week my ex called and said Bob could adopt Jill if he wanted to. I was thrilled! When I told Bob, he said, "Nothing doing. He just wants to get out of paying the $40 a month child support, and I'm not letting him get away with it. He'll support Jill until she's 18!"

Abby, when Bob and I were first married he wanted to adopt Jill, but my ex was really nasty about it, so now Bob says he wouldn't adopt Jill on a bet.

I am getting to resent Bob now, but I won't bring up the adoption again if it kills me. I really love him, but I'm afraid the resentment will build up inside me and one day I'll explode. What should I do?

JILL'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Don't wait for the explosion. Tell Bob how you feel and ask him to please reconsider. It's better to talk out your feelings, even the Bob may not change his mind.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing for our school's entire faculty in regard to a recent article in your column in which you stated that there are better ways to discipline a child, other than physical punishment.

We are interested in knowing a few, since after years of teaching (especially in the lower elementary grades) we teachers have found that an occasional swat can work wonders when all the reasoning in the world has failed.

TEACHERS OUT OF TRICKS

DEAR TEACHERS: Surely you have heard of disciplining a child by denying him a privilege he enjoys? The "occasional swat" which you find works "wonders" can, in some schools, "swat" the teacher right out of a job.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. R. S. IN BROOKLYN, N. Y.: Don't demand that your 21-year-old son either quit seeing the girl or leave the house unless you are fully prepared to have him leave. It's a better than even bet, he'll pack up and leave.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU
My wish for you and yours is a happy, healthy, peaceful New Year. Love, ABBY

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

COOKING IS FUN!

MORNING COFFEE
Cinnamon-Jam Coffeecake
Coffee
CINNAMON-JAM COFFECAKE
Raspberry jam and cinnamon combine to give delicious flavor.
3 cups sifted flour
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
2 eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 tablespoon hot water
1 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
4 tablespoons red raspberry jam

add to buttermilk. Stir buttermilk and vanilla into egg mixture, blending until smooth. Spread 1-3rd of the batter in a buttered 9-inch tube pan. Spread 2 tablespoons of the jam in center of batter. Mix reserved crumb mixture with walnuts, 1 tablespoon sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle 1-3rd over jam. Repeat layering batter, jam and crumb mixture two more times, eliminating jam from third layer. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out free of batter—45 to 50 minutes. Cool in pan on wire rack for 10 minutes. Turn out of pan and serve warm or cool.

To keep electric scissors in good running order use a drop or two of light machine oil on the blade pivot.

Couple Weds In Double Ring Ceremony Sunday

In a double ring ceremony Sunday at 5:00 p.m., Eva Bernadine Stancil became the bride of Kenneth Ray Kearney in the First Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Kenneth Moore. A program of wedding music was presented by Bruce Evans of Greenville, organist, and Alan Jones of Snow Hill, soloist.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Pearl Elks of Greenville and Mr. Edwin C. Stancil of Jacksonville, Fla. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Kearney of Rt. 3, Snow Hill.

Given in marriage by her brother, William C. Stancil, the bride wore a champagne satin gown. She carried a prayer book centered with an orchid, showered with miniature carnations.

Maid of honor was Kathy Susan Weir of Greenville. She wore a striped gown with a floral print design. She carried a colonial bouquet of spring flowers tied with rainbow ribbon.

Bridesmaid was Miss Sarah Elizabeth Kearney of Snow Hill, sister of the bridegroom. She was dressed in a baby pink gown and carried a colonial bouquet of spring flowers tied with rainbow ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were William A. Aldridge of Williamston, Roger L. Kearney of Snow Hill, Ronnie A. Carlie and Leslie E. Chadwick, both of Kinston.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

MRS. KENNETH RAY KEARNEY

The bride and bridegroom are employed by the Candlewick Inn. The bridegroom attends East Carolina University and plans to graduate this summer. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother.

Women Made News In 1971 In Sports And Politics

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

1971 was the year of the liberated woman—or was it? It was the year Swiss women won the right to vote, but it was also the year a proposal to enfranchise women in the tiny country of Lichtenstein was defeated. It was a year during which women made inroads into many fields, such as politics, the armed forces and sports and there was a myriad of stories about women in professions usually thought of as closed to their sex—such as truck driving, construction and radio and television repair.

1971 was the first year a woman was even considered for the Supreme Court, though not appointed, and the year the Supreme Court struck down an Idaho law that gave men preference over women in administering deceased persons' estates. It was the first time since the 14th Amendment went into effect in 1868 that the Supreme Court said women had been denied equal rights.

In another case the Supreme Court ruled employers cannot refuse to hire women with small children while taking on men in the same situation. The case was brought to court by Mrs. Ida Phillips, a Florida waitress who sued under the 1964 Civil Rights law after she had been turned down for a job as an assembly trainee. In an unsigned opinion the court said an employer cannot have one hiring policy for women with pre-school-age children and another for men. The decision reversed a ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans which held that employers could have two hiring policies, one for women and another for men, for prospective workers with young children.

A male bastion in Washington, D.C. fell in 1971 when the National Press Club agreed to accept women as members. Not to be outdone, the Women's National Press Club voted 104 to 0 to admit men.

The last of the Ivy League colleges to hold out against coeducation gave in this year, too. Trustees of 202 year old Dartmouth College adopted coeducation after more than two years of study and discussions by trustees, faculty, alumni and students and nearly four years of student campaigning. President John G. Kemeny said women will be admitted as bachelor's degree candidates in September, 1972, as members of the class of 1976.

On July 16 Jeanne M. Holm became the first woman to be promoted to brigadier general in the Air Force. Of her appointment, Gen. Holm said, "I never expected this in my wildest dreams. The publicity associated with the promotion of a woman to this rank will help people realize there are women in the armed forces. And it will prove to women that they may now aspire to the higher ranks."

Women all over the country held an anniversary party Aug. 26 celebrating the 51st year of their franchise. Mayor John Lindsay of New York City proclaimed "Women's Rights Day" and named the first woman police captain in the city's history. A march up Fifth Avenue drew about 6,000 women, and at a rally following the march Betty Friedan, writer and a leader of the National Organization of Women, predicted that the women's movement would some day be a "bisexual movement."

The gallery of the American Stock Exchange felt the brunt of women's wrath that day when eight feminists invaded the premises, shouting, "De-sexagrate Wall Street," and "We can't bear any more bull." Guards led the women off, but after they were gone a round of applause and cheers rose from the men below.

In Chicago, about 500 women gathered in Civic Center Plaza to hear speakers urge local, state and national laws to give women equality.

Three women who are heads of state piloted their countries through uneasy times this year. In India, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was reelected to her third term of office in spite of a four-party opposition alliance. Mrs. Gandhi had called the elections a year ahead of schedule to seek a fresh mandate for her Socialist policies, and obviously achieved her goal. She based her party's campaign on an appeal to all sections of the Indian electorate, arguing that she alone could assure stability and communal harmony for the nation. But 1971 was to prove a trying year for her. Civil war in Pakistan brought over nine million refugees to India and brought those two countries into war.

Israel's premier Golda Meir received an honor from her country in 1971, though the wording might be objectionable to feminists. Mrs. Meir was chosen Israel's "Man of the Year." The 73-year-old grandmother, in the 50th year of her arrival in Palestine, continued to face problems—within Israel's border and out.

Ceylon's Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike clamped a curfew and emergency measures on her country in April when insurrectionists launched an attack against 74 police stations. They held control of several rural village areas before being put down by the armed services and police. In October, sources told Associated Press Correspondents that the same problems still posed a threat to Mrs. Bandaranaike's Socialist government.

Several women made big political news in the United States this year, and Congresswoman Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., voiced the thoughts of many women when she predicted it would soon be impossible to elect any man president who does not take a firm stand on women's rights.

But this year a woman was thinking about running for the presidency. Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., the only black woman in Congress, said if she ran it would be "not only from the standpoint of a black person but from the standpoint of a woman." In October Mrs. Chisholm said she expected to raise $300,000 by the end of the year, and if that happened, she said, she would formally announce for president on New Year's Day.

"It's not only the question of the presidency but of a whole new thrust in government," she said. Mrs. Chisholm added it was necessary to realize "there are other peoples in America besides white males who have talents and capacities and if we can get them into high positions we can straighten out the mess in America."

Bella Abzug, forceful Democratic congresswoman from New York, stayed in the news also. One of her actions was to introduce an effort to dismantle the entire U.S. draft system to cut off manpower for the conflict in Indochina.

Her proposal was defeated in March, but Mrs. Abzug was still in the public eye. Along with other well-known women, like Mrs. Chisholm and Gloria Steinem, writer and member of the Democratic National Policy Council, she was part of an organizing conference in July for the National Women's Political Caucus, a group which will work to have more women elected to political office. Other goals of the group are passage of the equal rights amendment, and reform of policies of political parties which have excluded women, specifically demanding that women comprise 50 per cent of the delegates to both parties' 1972 conventions.

One person who proved that women can be elected to office was Patience Sewell Latting, the mayor of Oklahoma City, Okla., and the only female mayor of a city in the United States with a population of more than 200,000. Becoming mayor this year was Mrs. Latting's second "first" in her political career. She had become the first Oklahoma City councilwoman in 1967.

Women worked outside existing political systems this year too, and several made headlines by trying to change the establishment. One, actress Jane Fonda, along with other actors and entertainers, presented an antiwar show at military bases across the country. Miss Fonda said the show wanted to display a "different view of the war" than that offered by USO shows featuring comedian Bob Hope.

Angela Davis, black militant who was arrested last year in connection with the shooting of four persons in a San Rafael, Calif. courtroom, remained in jail in California but her trial was ordered moved from Marin County to San Jose after 10 months of tightly guarded pre-trial hearings. Judge Richard E. Aranson ordered the change stating, "The court finds a reasonable likelihood Miss Davis cannot obtain a fair trial in Marin County."

The widow of the Scottish discoverer of penicillin made headlines this year when she was arrested in Greece. Lady Amalia Fleming, a resident of Athens, was charged in September with plotting the escape of the man who tried to assassinate Premier George Papadopoulos, and was sentenced to a 16-month prison term. After being held in a Greek prison for less than a month, however, she was deported to England.

In Ireland, Bernadette Devlin announced she was going to have a baby. The unmarried

Member of Parliament, who is champion of the Roman Catholic minority in Northern Ireland, declined to name the father and said she would stay in politics. After the birth of her daughter in August, Miss Devlin said, "I'm just like any other mother in the world—I think my baby's beautiful."

One woman author who made news this year was Germaine Greer, whose book, "The Female Eunuch," rapidly became a best-seller after its publication here. Miss Greer, a native of Australia, wrote that women are not only in bondage to men, but they are also deformed by them.

News was made in June by Patricia Nixon's wedding to Edward Finch Cox. Tricia was the eighth daughter of a president to be married in the White House, but she was the first to have an outdoor wedding.

A young woman who made news on another continent was Princess Anne of England, who celebrated her 21st birthday on August 15. Her coming of age party took place aboard the royal yacht and left society buzzing because Princess Margaret and her husband were not there. In September it was rumored that Princess Anne would be given a new title, Princess Royal, traditionally reserved for the oldest or only daughter of the sovereign, but a palace spokesman said the Queen had no intention of granting her the title in the foreseeable future.

Finally, in the sports world, 1971 was a record-breaking year, with Mrs. Billie Jean King becoming the first woman tennis player ever to win over $100,000 in one year.

College students, retired couples and many families inbetween are discovering one of the easiest ways to own a home is to purchase one with wheels. One of the major advantages is price, says Mary Dale McGregor, extension housing specialist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The home on wheels costs around $8.85 per square foot. The site-built home costs around $16 per square foot.

This Dentist Is Petite And Happy About Her Profession

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Petite and perky, blonde and beautiful, fragile and feminine are adjectives not generally applied to the family dentist. But they accurately describe Dr. Sheva Rapoport, president-elect of the American Association of Women Dentists.

And add another one—enthusiastic, especially about dentistry as a profession for women.

"It doesn't take muscles to be a dentist," says Dr. Rapoport, who is 5 feet 4 and weighs 115 pounds. "I remember back in my dental school days when my patient would be a big, strapping football star and the audience would move in closer and wait to see me struggle to extract a tooth. What fun it was to show them that it only requires a little technique."

The Allentown, Pa., dentist, wife of a lawyer and mother of two young children, is dismayed by the small percentage of women dentists in this country—only about 1,300 out of the more than 100,000 practicing today.

"We come out to about 13 per cent, compared to about 14 per cent women physicians," she points out. The proportion is declining, she adds, particularly in her own specialty of periodontics, or treatment of the gums and bony structure which supports the teeth. But she sees a reversal of the trend in the higher incidence of women starting dental school this year.

"We've been doing more to show women that dentistry is available as a profession. We're getting away from the notion that men can be dentists, women dental hygienists. What is important is your motivation, not your sex. You either make the effort and develop techniques to get you there or you won't get there. If you have the motivation and the qualifications there's no reason you can't succeed."

These qualifications include liking to work with your hands, she explains, and here she thinks a woman has an advantage over a man. "I sometimes wonder how a man ever gets his finger in some patients' mouths," she said, exhibiting her own small hands. "A woman's temperament is better, too. I think we can sympathize more and we have more patience."

"You have to like people," she continues. "If you can't communicate, forget it. You deal with a different person in the chair every half hour and you have to change personalities with every patient who comes into the room. One is all business and wants me to get in and get the work done, and the next one is petrified and I have to reassure him. At the end of the day I'm more tired from 'psychologizing' than from

Dr. Rapoport is concerned with educating people on the importance of dental care. On behalf of the Leghig County Dental Society she talks at schools and before various groups, utilizing films and pamphlets supplied by Crest Professional Services.

"Today we're taking the dentist out of the repairman's corner and putting him into the prevention field, where he really belongs," says Dr. Rapoport, who has been in practice for 10 years.

Not only does the dentist with the dazzling smile readily admit to being 34, but she almost has to insist on it since she looks much younger, a fact that has led to some amusing reactions in first-time patients who had assumed she was a college girl working as a dental assistant.

It was while doing just that in high school that she decided to become a dentist. Though she was one of two women in a class of 120 at Temple University School of Dental Medicine, she recalls that her fellow students "as a whole treated us more than equal. They didn't put us on pedestals, didn't carry our heavy instrument cases (I would have liked it) but were very kind to us."

Dr. Rapoport runs a home-office combination, and if the housekeeper or sitter fails to show up there's no problem. The children—Jed, 6, and Dana, 4—know she is handy and they can come down to the office if they need her. She adjusts the schedule of her full-time practice to give her more time with the family, taking two days off and working two nights instead, when her husband takes over.

Two new sets of placemats designed for children include non-toxic crayons, marking of which can be washed off the mats. The coloring mats contain letters of the alphabet and numbers. Child fills in and ostensibly learns a little about while eating.

A Memorable Year Is Ending

Tonight 1971 fades from the scene and with it for Pitt County goes some happy memories, as well as some not-so-happy ones.

It was a year when the State Legislature took a step of major significance in improving health care with the initiation of a one-year medical school at East Carolina University.

Broader Role To Serve N.C.

By ROBERT L. DENNY
Executive Director
N.C. Council on Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities

RALFIGH — It is with gratitude and humility that we come to the end of an eventful year for our agency. Gratitude for state and federal legislation that has broadened our Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities. We were formerly the Council on Mental Retardation. Now we have a broader mandate to act on behalf of persons having cerebral palsy, epilepsy, brain damage, emotional disturbance and neurological disturbances during the development period, that is, from infancy to the age of eighteen.

One of the functions of the Council will be to provide advice to the agency designated to administer the federal Developmental Disabilities and Facilities Construction Amendments of 1970, and to all other State agencies as will facilitate the implementation of the State Plan in order that the requirements of the federal law may be fulfilled.

We will have a continuing public information program to promote public understanding of developmental disabilities. We will study the need for new State programs and laws in this area and make recommendations to and advise the Governor on matters relating to developmental disabilities.

Coordination Function
Another function of the Council under the new legislation will be to coordinate the programs of all State agencies that provide services for persons with developmental disabilities in order to prevent duplication and overlapping of services. The Council will review those portions of the budgets of such agencies which provide services for the developmentally disabled prior to submission to the Advisory Budget Commission.

Other legislation passed by the 1971 General Assembly gave ample proof that our senators and representatives are concerned with people and in meeting their needs. One of the most important acts of legislation was the establishment of a statewide system of early childhood education for the handicapped. This makes it possible for public school systems across the State to use their teacher allotment to develop programs for children with disabilities before they reach first grade or even kindergarten age. Research has proved that early intervention such as this minimizes or even prevents some disorders and reduces the stigma which the child might feel.

Funds For Vocational Aid
Funds were reappropriated to continue the extension of vocational education into the seventh, eighth and ninth grades.

The legislature approved $250,000 to be used for planning for the establishment of a State Rehabilitation Institute at Chapel Hill to provide on-site comprehensive services for the vocational, physical, emotional, and social rehabilitation of physically disabled persons. Also approved was $10,000 for planning for a Regional Rehabilitation Center at Fayetteville. Construction funds in the amount of $350,000 were approved for a Regional Rehabilitation Center at Greenville, to be matched with federal and local funds.

Case services funds in the amount of $822,520 for the biennium were approved for private non-profit rehabilitation centers, sheltered workshops, and other sources.

Autism Program Set
A law was passed to establish a special program for the training and education of children with severe learning, communications, and behavior disorders. Through the Medical School of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill a special program will be developed for those children affected by autism and related handicaps. Regional centers will be established at Greenville, Chapel Hill and Asheville.

Also approved were state funds for the education of exceptional children in private or out-of-state educational facilities when appropriate education is not available in the public schools.

An act to protect children through licensing of day care facilities was approved. This bill establishes a licensing board and mandatory licensing of day care facilities under minimum standards.

These are only part of the bills passed by the legislature which will be of lasting benefit to that segment of our population that is handicapped — persons who through no fault of their own are unable to cope with their needs.

Thus it is at this season of the year, when our thoughts turn to helping others, that it is good to reflect on the affairs of our State. To remember that over 100 years ago, when our State Constitution was written in 1868, it included the statement that beneficent provisions for the poor, the unfortunate and orphan, is one of the first duties of a civilized and christian state. The mentally retarded and developmentally disabled are among the unfortunate, but by continuing attention to meeting their needs and helping them to fulfill their potential, we can help them lead richer and fuller and more satisfying lives.

It was also a year when racial differences came to a head following the shooting of a Negro farm laborer by a highway patrolman.

But it was a year when Pitt County high schools were fully integrated and consolidated and, considering the community problems, this went surprisingly smoothly.

It was a year when Greenville became one of the finalists in the All-America Cities competition. While the winners had not been announced at year's end, the selection indicated we must have done something to improve on our way of life.

The ECU Medical School fight had been underway for years with authorization being approved by the Legislature on two previous occasions. As the Legislature met this year it became apparent that funds would be right. However, when the legislators found home they had approved funds for actually beginning a one year program of physician training with the students assured of transfer to Chapel Hill for their second year.

With that commitment the state had further moved East Carolina into the field of training health professionals and the move should have enormous effect on improved health care for decades to come.

The Medical School joins the Nursing School and Allied Health Professions programs to form the School of Health Affairs at East Carolina University.

The death of the farm laborer led to demonstrations which lasted over a period of months but as the year ended there were indications that all Pitt citizens were seeking ways to resolve their differences amicably.

Shock waves went through the county when the Ayden-Grifton school was bombed while school was in session. On the other hand the fall saw four new high schools opened to all the young people of the county. It was a monumental effort but the school programs at year's end were proceeding remarkably well.

A bi-racial group traveled to Atlanta for Dr. Joe Pugh's presentation before the All-America cities selection committee and they came back with high hopes that our city will be chosen for the coveted designation.

Highway construction had local citizens agog as contracts were let for multi-laning all of the U.S. 264 bypass and the eastern bypass to Burroughs-Wellcome. Tenth Street improvements got underway and the Charles Street improvements were near the bidding stage.

In Greenville land acquisition proceeded on the Central Business District project and it seemed assured that this project to build a new downtown will be carried out.

It was a significant year for Pitt County. We feel that all of us learned something in the field of human relations despite — or perhaps because of — the racial strife. Our community has been building during the year and East Carolina University made significant progress. While we did not solve all our problems we did go to work on them.

A Boondoggle Is Shaping Up

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In the absence of its hospitalized chairman, Rep. John Blatnik of Minnesota, the House Public Works Committee quietly approved a billion-dollar building boondoggle on Dec. 16 that the White House has been fervently pushing the last four months.

If the House itself puts a ribbon on the committee package, President Nixon will have one of his sweetest post-Christmas presents: a restoration of the old lease-purchase method of constructing and financing government buildings which opponents say costs the taxpayer nearly twice as much as direct government financing via open Congressional appropriation.

But for the President, it has two glittering assets: first, it bypasses Congressional appropriations by back-door financing, which excludes the cost of the buildings from the over-swollen Federal budget; second, it is an election-year boost for the already booming construction industry.

For Congressmen in districts due to get one of the 63 new government buildings House Majority Leader

Hale Boggs of Louisiana is included — lease-purchase also has obvious charm. Boggs has been pushing it, along with the entire Republican leadership and Republican members of the Public Works Committee.

The new lease-purchase program was drafted by the General Services Administration (GSA), the Federal government's housekeeper, with strong assistance from the White House. It would permit the Nixon administration to make construction deals with private contractors covering nearly $800 million in direct construction costs. But opponents say the actual cost under lease-purchase, which commits the government to pay the builder an annual leasing fee for the 10- to 30-year life of the contract, could double that figure.

In 1954, the Eisenhower administration embarked on a lease-purchase program that ended in failure. A Public Works Committee majority recommended terminating it in 1958 on grounds that it was "the most indefensible waste of funds in the history of government construction."

Strength For Today

KEEP ON LEARNING
Sound learning is a continuous process. If we ever get to the place where we are no longer learning something new or something old will at the end of one's life mean a total of knowledge and understanding that will add depth and gladness to living. There is a lot of truth packed into the statement that we are never too old to learn. This may involve reading. It may involve travel. It may involve conversation with people who have something interesting to talk about.

Albert Einstein worked out a mathematical equation which turned the world upside down. Thomas A. Edison was getting patents on new devices as decade followed decade in his fruitful living.

We look up at the stars at night and astronomers tell us that each one of these stars is a sun. How many planets revolve about these suns? Are any of them inhabited?

There are millions of interesting objects on the landscape round about us. Lawns, trees with their changing foliage, mountains that tower into the sky, water that plunges over a precipice, water that spreads out into rivers and lakes, buildings a thousand years old, forms of transportation that grow more marvelous with every passing year.

One of the best ways to be happy is to keep on learning. Retirement can be a bore if we allow it to become so. Books, people, new discoveries. Keep on learning.

All-American Dialogue

WASHINGTON — You don't really feel the generation gap in this country until a son or daughter comes home from college for Christmas. Then it strikes you how out of it you really are.

This dialogue is probably taking place all over America this week:

"Nancy, you've been home from school for three days now. Why don't you clean up your room?"

"We don't have to clean up our rooms at college, Mother."

"That's very nice, Nancy, and I'm happy you're going to such a free-wheeling institution. But while you're in the house, your father and I would like you to clean up your room."

"What difference does it make? It's my room."

"I know, dear, and it really doesn't mean that much to me. But your father has a great fear of the plague. He said this morning if it is going to start anywhere in this country it's going to start in your room."

"Mother, you people aren't interested in anything that's relevant. Do you realize how the major corporations are polluting our environment?"

"Your father and I are very worried about it. But right now we're more concerned with the pollution in your bedroom. You haven't made your bed since you came home."

"I never make it up at the dorm."

"Of course you don't, and I'm sure the time you save goes toward your education. But we still have these old-fashioned ideas about making beds in the morning and we can't shake them. Since you're home for such a short time, why don't you do it to humor us?"

"For heaven's sake, Mother, I'm grown up now. Why do you have to treat me like a child?"

"We're not treating you like a child. But it's very hard for us to realize you're an adult when you throw all your clothes on the floor."

"I haven't thrown all my clothes on the floor. Those are just the clothes I wore yesterday."

"Forgive me, I exaggerated. Well, how about the dirty dishes and empty soft-drink cans on your desk? Are you collecting them for a science project?"

"Mother, you don't understand us. You people were brought up to have clean rooms. But our generation doesn't care about things like that. It's what you have in your head that counts."

"No one respects education more than your father and I do, particularly at the prices they're charging. But we can't see how living in squalor can improve your mind."

"That's because of your priorities. You would rather have me make up my bed and pick up my clothes than become a free spirit who thinks for myself."

Try A Proven Toast

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — We live in a world we don't know the meaning of.

Many Americans, rising at midnight tonight to toast the advent of 1972, will lift his glass and exclaim heartily:

"Here's mud in your eye!"
What does the phrase mean? He doesn't know—but he likes the ring of it.

Well, according to Julius Wile, wine authority and importer of Bollinger champagne and other foreign potables, "mud" is a colloquial term for the natural sediment found in the bottom of bottles of fine wines. In other words, "here's mud in your eye" is the same thing as saying "bottoms up."

How about the origin of "toast" itself? Wile notes that the meaning dates back to the Stuart days in Merrie Olde England, when social gatherings often took place around a huge fireplace. Bread was toasted over the fire and crumbled into cups of warmed wine or liquor. Then one drank one's "toast."

For some time Louis Sobol, a longtime chronicler of celebrities and their ways, has made an annual collection of their personal toasts to the New Year. Here are a few he has gathered for 1972.

Actor Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.: "Here's to today. Not yesterday, not tomorrow, but today. These are the good old days—if only we knew what to do with them."

Hostess Perle Mesta: "So here's love to one, friendship to a few, and good will to all."

Actor Cary Grant: "Here's to wine and women, mirth and laughter—resolutions and aspirin on New Year's Day after."

Newscaster Walter Cronkite: "Here's to world peace. May that be the way it is on Dec. 31, 1972."

Composer Henry Mancini: "May friendship, like wine, improve as time advances; and may we always have old wine, old friends, and young cares."

Singer Pearl Bailey: "At this New Year's time, I don't want confetti streaming down my throat, nor the noise with all the trimmings. I love the peace and quiet of knowing God has given me another day that could stretch out as long as a year. That is the New Year."

Actor Jackie Gleason: "May you live to be a thousand years old... And I go to your funeral."

Television star Roger Moore: "May you live as long as you want to, may you want to as long as you live."

Wages Will Rise In Year Ahead

By ELMER ROESSNER
Despite the wage freeze (freeze?) wages will go up in 1972. Here's why:

Wages of 6.7 million workers are scheduled to go up under previously negotiated contracts. This includes increases agreed upon for over two and three years and cost of living adjustments provided in many contracts. The Department of Labor estimates that these build-in increases will average 6.1 per cent, or 29.2 cents an hour. Of course, the increases will have to be approved by the Pay Board, which has been showing a tendency to grant many raises negotiated before the freeze.

Major labor contracts involving 2.8 million more workers will come up for renegotiation. This is fewer than in 1970 and 1971, and they do not include any trend-setting unions, such as the auto workers, truckers, steel, communications and dock workers, as in those years.

Price controls are only partially effective, and rising costs of living will stir demands for higher wages and put the Pay Board in a quandary.

Election Effects
The fact that 1972 is an election year will have great influence on Pay Board rulings. While the Administration cannot afford to abandon wage and price controls, neither can it afford to increase labor opposition. Members of the board will be under extreme political pressure to "give a little,"

which they probably will. Here is a timetable of contract expiration during the year:

January: 16,500 Machinists with McDonnell Douglas companies, 10,000 Ladies Garment Workers with Philadelphia manufacturers; 10,000 longshoremen and warehousemen with Hawaiian sugar companies.
February: 15,700 Communication Workers with General Telephone of California.

March: 40,000 Retail Clerks with California food employers.

June: 36,000 Ladies Garment Workers with New York underwear and negligee manufacturers; 13,000 National Maritime Union with Atlantic and Gulf dry cargo and tanker operators; 20,000 Retail, Wholesalers and Department Store Workers with New York hospitals; 13,700 Seafarers with Pacific Maritime Association; 10,000 Radionic Workers and Zenith.

Quiet Summer
July: 11,050 United Shoe Workers and Boot and Shoe Workers, with Brown Shoe; 15,000 Peninsula Shipbuilders with Newport Shipbuilding and Drydock.

August: 15,500 Machinists with General Dynamics Fort Worth division.
September: 17,700 Insurance Workers with Prudential.

October: 14,550 Firemen & Oilers, Chemical Workers, with Olin.
November: 22,000 Screen Actors Build with television; 23,000 Television and Radio Artists with television; 15,000 Clothing Workers with New York and New Jersey laundries.

This listing does not include agreements affecting less than 10,000 workers.

Study N.C. Flu Cases

RALEIGH (AP) — A state Board of Health official says steps are being taken to determine the type of flu that has affected an estimated 250 persons in Robeson County this week, but an answer is about two weeks away.

Dr. Stephen Gehlbach, field epidemiologist with the health board, said virus samples are being collected in the Robeson county area and sent to the state's laboratory.

"Positive identification of the virus should be a couple of weeks away," he said. He noted that in addition to the Robeson outbreak, a few cases of flu have been reported in Orange County.

The doctor said there is "a chance that the outbreak may be Hong Kong flu, a form of influenza that is currently spreading across the northeast portions of the country."

"Hong Kong flu has been isolated in other parts of the country and it is generally associated with fairly substantial outbreaks of the disease," he added. "This type of flu generally strikes more people and a greater range of ages than other types."

The lease-purchase plan would not have been revived if the GSA, understandably worried about a decline in construction of Federal buildings, had not come up with a novel idea: a government building-construction fund to be financed by annual "user" or rent payments by every government agency.

That plan for a multi-million-dollar revolving fund for construction of all future Federal buildings was enthusiastically received in Congress.

But unable to get the Nixon administration to openly ask Congress to appropriate funds to build the 63 buildings already authorized, GSA came up with the lease-purchase plan and quietly persuaded the Senate to take it on to the revolving fund. The package passed the Senate with no debate by voice vote on Nov. 1.

The problem was not the Senate but Blatnik's Public Works Committee. Both Blatnik and Rep. Robert Jones of Alabama, the committee's ranking Democrat, are strongly opposed to all forms of lease-purchase. Jones was principal author of the 1968 committee report blasting its long-range cost to taxpayers.

Aware of Blatnik's opposition, Administration officials tried to win him over in a confidential talk two months ago. Blatnik refused to say yes.

Following that, at a meeting in the office of the House Republican whip, Rep. Leslie Arends of Illinois, Administration officials and Republican members of the Committee reached agreement to go all-out for the plan.

Thus, on the evening of Dec. 15 while Blatnik was recovering from a mild heart attack, Democratic Rep. Kenneth J. Gray of Illinois, a backer of the plan and chairman of the subcommittee that approved it, made his move. Without notifying Blatnik, Gray called for an executive committee session the following morning, not giving a reason. At that closed-door session, he put an amendment on the lease-purchase bill to pull other Democrats in: emergency funds for the bankrupt John F. Kennedy Center.

He then called for a vote on the lease-purchase bill and it was rammed through without a roll-call. The White House is now pushing for a House vote. But Blatnik is back in business and Rep. George Mahon of Texas, chairman of the powerful Appropriations Committee, is most unenthusiastic about back-door spending bypassing his committee. Mr. Nixon won't get his lavish post-Christmas present without a battle.

those wishing to take advantage of the provision must submit in writing to their local draft board postmarked on or before midnight tonight a request that their deferment be terminated and that they be given a 1-A classification.

By being placed in the extended priority pool, it means they are liable for call in January, February or March, McCachren explained.

"However," he added, "we definitely know that there is no call in January and a likely possibility of no call in February since a registrant must be notified 30 days prior to his induction date. There is a slim possibility of a March induction call."

"If a call is received," McCachren said, "and the registrant's random sequence number is not reached or if there are no February or March calls, such registrants will be placed in a lower priority of calls on April 1, 1972, and will be subject to involuntary induction only in the event of mass mobilization."

McCachren also said that a "registrant who drops his deferment at this time may later have the deferment reinstated provided he continues to meet the established criteria."

"It is recommended, however, that a deferred registrant who was assigned to the extended priority selection group on Jan. 1, 1971, retain his deferment as his chances for induction may be increased if his deferment is dropped at this time," McCachren stated.

Straw Decided Close Election

MARKSVILLE, La. (AP) — A close election race has been decided by a straw.

When ballots were cast Dec. 18, Wade Mayeux and Daryl Lemoine drew 518 votes each for a seat on the Avoyelles Parish Police Jury, the parish governing body.

A recount changed nothing. So, at a meeting of the Parish Democratic Executive Committee on Thursday, Mayeux and Lemoine settled it according to state law. They drew straws. Mayeux won.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Superior Court Solicitor W. G. Ransdell Jr. said Thursday he will seek the indictment of two North Carolina State University basketball players on marijuana charges.

Ransdell said he will present the Wake County Grand Jury with bills of indictment charging Paul Coder and Bob Heuts with felonious possession of five ounces of marijuana.

Charges against Coder, 6-9 senior center and team captain, and Heuts, 6-7 forward, were dismissed earlier this month by District Court Judge George Bason. He ruled that evidence in the case had been obtained in an illegal search.

However, the judge's ruling did not bar Ransdell from presenting the case to the grand jury.

Coder and Heuts had resigned from the team shortly before the district court hearing, saying they felt the case was an embarrassment to the university. However, they returned to action the day Bason issued his ruling.

NCSU coach Norman Sloan said he did not know how Ransdell's action would affect the status of Coder and Heuts on the team.

Coder was named Atlantic Coast Conference player of the week by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association this week for his play against Davidson in which he scored 15 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

than 300 American airmen held captive in North Vietnam.

Nixon's orders to send waves of U.S. bombers against North Vietnam for five days emphasizes his administration's policy of continuing air support to the Laotian and Cambodian governments and also indicate a private lack of confidence that the South Vietnamese can defend themselves yet.

It was also a show of strength, a signal to Hanoi that it could not push the United States or its allies around.

The official line from Washington and Saigon was that the heavy attack had the objective of protecting the diminishing American forces in Vietnam.

But it is no coincidence that they were ordered at a time when:

—North Vietnam, claiming it had a right to protect its air space, suddenly became bold in challenging American planes along its border in Laos. Five U.S. jets were lost a week before the five-day campaign began.

—The Plain of Jars in northern Laos fell to North Vietnam.

—The North Vietnamese had made vast gains in Cambodia and by U.S. acknowledgement controlled as much as 80 percent of the country.

A massive North Vietnamese buildup was reported in northeastern Cambodia, just across the border from South Vietnam's Central Highlands. U.S. officials said it appeared the North Vietnamese were preparing for an all-out offensive in the poorly defended highlands.

U.S. military sources now concede the goal was to ease the pressure on the South Vietnamese, the Laotians and the Cambodians, and that the only threat to the American forces was an indirect one. What did the five days of bombing accomplish?

"Certainly the destruction of supplies destined for shipment down the Ho Chi Minh trail to North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces," said one source.

"The raids will alleviate pressure that those forces could apply."

Other sources say it is too early to assess whether the raids accomplished their objectives. But they probably will have little effect on the outcome of the war. Years of sustained bombing didn't force North Vietnam to give up, and five days of it certainly won't.

THE AIR RINGS WITH EXCITEMENT AT THE DAWNING OF A NEW YEAR. MAY THE DAYS AHEAD HOLD PEACE AND HAPPINESS FOR ALL.

S. Vietnam Remains Prime Hanoi Target For 1972

By J.T. WOLKERSTORFER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — If 1972 brings dramatic changes in Indochina they seem likely to be achieved by force of arms, not by the stroke of a pen. Peace remains as elusive as at any time during a quarter century of bloodshed.

More and more fighting has spilled over into Laos and Cambodia, which are North Vietnam's supply lines to South Vietnam.

But this country remains Hanoi's prime target.

The Saigon government enters 1972 facing the prospect of new enemy offensives and a steadily diminishing allied presence; if its ARVN forces did the bulk of ground fighting in 1971, they must do more of it in '72.

U.S. troop strength will be down to 139,000 or less a month from now. A residual force of approximately 50,000 is projected for July 1. This will include advisers, helicopter units, logistics personnel and, to provide their security, about three infantry brigades.

Those figures do not include some 13,000 Navy men of the 7th Fleet or some 30,000 Americans, mostly airmen, based in Thailand.

Troops from Australia and New Zealand are virtually gone, with Thais and Koreans now making up the bulk of 56,000 in outside forces not counting the Americans. Both Thailand and Korea already have begun withdrawal of their troops.

Despite the allied withdrawal, the military situation in the Mekong Delta and military region 3 surrounding Saigon seems relatively stable.

The situation in military region 2, including the central highlands, and military region 1 below the demilitarized zone is considerably shakier.

Military and diplomatic sources predict a North Vietnamese offensive in the central highlands, perhaps timed to coincide with President Nixon's trip to Peking. Intelligence reports indicate an ominous enemy buildup in the tri-border area opposite the highlands outposts of Kontum and Dak To.

Diplomatic sources also predict a North Vietnamese drive into the two provinces below the demilitarized zone in late summer, when the U.S. presidential campaign is on.

Still, the northernmost provinces are probably South Vietnam's most vulnerable. North Vietnamese troops operate almost with impunity in mountains running from the Laotian border to the narrow strip of populated coastal lowlands.

In addition, North Vietnamese supply lines across the DMZ and through Laos are shorter than those to other parts of South Vietnam.

"The three North Vietnamese divisions now operating around the Plain of Jars in Laos may be diverted for a slashing attack aimed at taking Quang Tri and Thua Thien in late summer," one military source speculates.

"Such an attack would be followed immediately by a North Vietnamese bid for a cease-fire and a negotiated settlement. The terms might be: an end to the fighting in South Vietnam and release of American prisoners in return for the two northern provinces."

Saigon's army faces one major disadvantage as American forces withdraw: it is conventionally trained, modeled on the U.S. Army—but without the helicopter mobility or tactical air support which the American Army has relied on.

The South Vietnamese Air Force is ultimately programmed for 1,300 aircraft including 500 helicopters. Commanders operating in eastern Cambodia have found only a few helicopters available for trooplift, resupply, medical evacuation and command and control.

Over-all, there's little doubt the South Vietnamese army and militia are better than ever. In most areas, they are operating without U.S. advisers at the battalion level, and in some cases with almost no U.S. direct support.

But their effectiveness remains uneven, with good units and bad—and they have yet to fight a major battle against sizable units without massive U.S. air support.

In Laos and Cambodia, the military situation remains critical. In the past two weeks, North Vietnamese forces have recaptured the Plain of Jars and the Bolovens Plateau from Laotian troops.

Loss of the plain and positions to the south and west makes Long Cheng — the semi-secret base of Gen. Vang Pao's CIA-backed guerrilla army — extremely vulnerable. If Long Cheng falls, there is little to keep enemy forces from moving on Vientiane, the capital. While troops have pushed dangerously close to both capitals, military sources say North Vietnam neither needs nor wants to capture them.

Their primary interest is in keeping Laotian and Cambodian forces off balance and preoccupied with protecting their capitals, thus keeping them away from supply routes and sanctuaries needed for attacks on South Vietnam.

Politically, President Nguyen Van Thieu has proven himself Saigon's most astute and powerful politician since Ngo Dinh Diem. His grip on military and administrative machinery is beyond challenge for the foreseeable future. Although the one-man presidential election in October was widely regarded as a farce, there is no doubt Thieu would have won any election because he is the country's best known and most viable political figure.

Even ranking U.S. officials here concede that it was at least naive to suggest to the American people that a U.S.-style democracy was possible or practical in today's South Vietnam.

Thieu's major problems in 1972 will be the economy and building a working government at the village and hamlet level. A cutback in U.S. military spending and the inevitable reduction in American foreign aid are posing grave problems for a country with virtually no exports or production. The Thieu regime has proposed sweeping economic reforms, designed to reduce imports, stimulate production and exports, attract foreign investment, increase tax revenue and reduce government expenditures. Sound as the aims may be, they are currently a political football. Even if they were fully effective it might be five years before the economy even approached self-sufficiency.

The war has totally disrupted Cambodia's marginal economy. Indochina, in summary, appears headed for another year of unabated and possibly intensified war, aggravated by political and economic turbulence and the withdrawal of U.S. and Allied forces.

Lift Swine Restriction

After December 31, on-the-farm inspection and permits for the movement of swine will no longer be required. This means that feeder pigs and breeding animals which heretofore had to be inspected before movement can now move freely within the State.

The lifting of these restrictions has been made possible by the absence of any hog cholera in North Carolina since June 2, 1971.

Much of the credit for the outstanding progress made in eliminating this costly disease problem belongs to the Vocational Agriculture teachers in Pitt county, County Extension Chairman Edwin L. Yancey said. They have helped with the on-the-farm inspection as an extra duty. The numerous quarantine periods when market animals required inspection called for much extra effort."

The requirements for inspection are lifted and cholera is, apparently, no longer a problem, Yancey stated. "Good management is still needed however to reduce losses from other problems. The practices of isolating all new purchases, being sure of the health of all new animals, and selling only clean, healthy pigs will help insure a more profitable swine industry."

Agricultural Workshops Begin Tuesday

Using Futures as a marketing tool for agricultural products will be the subject of a four session workshop which begins Tuesday, January 4.

The workshops which are sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service will be held in the Agricultural Extension Auditorium at 203 West Third Street in Greenville, at 7 p.m.

Dr. John Ikerd and Dr. Everette Nichols, Extension Marketing Specialists will conduct the classes. They will concentrate on using futures to market livestock and grains. According to Dr. Ikerd, the four sessions will give a person the basics needed to begin using futures. The workshop will not deal with futures as a speculative device.

Any person interested in participating in these workshops should contact the Extension Office at 758-1196.

Economically, New Year Can Be Happier Than '71

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be a record 9 per cent, $95-billion gain in national output in 1972. Thanks to price control, two thirds of it may be real.

The U.S. guarantee to pay out gold for dollars at the historic rate of $35 an ounce had wiped out the fixed exchange values for all the non Communist countries. Their currency values were "floating." The U.S. aim was to pressure them into raising the value of their currencies. That in effect would devalue the dollar and make American goods more competitive in price in world markets.

On Dec. 18 the President announced the agreement of the Big Ten on a drastically changed currency realignment. The U.S. dollar was devalued, other non-Communist currencies were revalued upward by as much as the Japanese yen's 16.88 per cent, the surcharge was lifted and some as-urances were given that old trade barriers would be dismantled. Foreign traders could again make contracts with fore-knowledge that prices and payment terms will hold firm. So the skies brightened for overseas commerce. The forecast for the home front remained unsettled, subject to change.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets steady Thursday. Supplies fully adequate. Demand good. Prices paid producers and handlers for consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby by outlets: Grade A large whites: 39 1/2 to 40. Medium, whites: 37 to 37 1/2. Small, whites: 33 to 34.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices strengthened a bit in moderate trading, reversing an earlier fractional loss. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was up 0.76 to 889.83. Advances outnumbered declines on the New York Stock Exchange by a solid margin. Earlier, declines were ahead. Analysts said traders were doing last-minute 1971 buying and selling. In the news background, First National City Bank lowered its base lending rate 1/8 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent.

Large blocks included 100,000 shares of Matsushita Electric, up 3/4 at 18 1/2; and 350,000 of United Aircraft at 29, off 1/4. Other Big Board prices included CBS, down 3/4 to 46 1/2; Occidental Petroleum, up 1/4 to 11%; Fannie Mae, up 3 to 97 1/2; Benguet, up 1/4 to 6 1/2; and Chase Manhattan, up 1/4 to 58 1/2. Continuing Investigate

Investigation of several incidents over the past several months where women drivers have been stopped by a man displaying a flashing red light is continuing, according to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson. Tyson said today that women drivers should continue to use caution noting that the man responsible for the series of incidents — including one rape in October — has not been arrested "as some rumors have stated."

The sheriff said his department is continuing to investigate similar reports. He explained that the latest reported incident occurred Tuesday on U.S. 264 North of Farmville, about 8:30 p.m. Sheriff Tyson said a woman reported a white car was parked beside the roadway and when her vehicle passed, the car pulled onto the highway behind her. She said she did not see a red light and that the vehicle followed her and made no attempt to stop her car.

Four Persons Are Hurt In Three Mishaps Here

Four persons were reported injured here yesterday in three collisions that resulted in an estimated $4,350 property damage. According to investigators heaviest damage resulted from an 11:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of First and Summit Streets.

Police reported a car driven by Vernon Warren Coffin III, 25, of Raleigh went out of control and overturned as the driver swerved to prevent colliding with a car pulling from the intersection in front of him.

Both Coffin and a passenger in the car were reported injured and damage to the vehicle was estimated at $3,600. No charges were made. Gina Whitehurst, 20, of Robersonville was reported injured in a wreck on a private parking lot at Pitt Plaza about 8:25 p.m. Investigators reported the Whitehurst car collided with a vehicle driven by Billy Everett Pate, 27, of Route 1, Pikeville causing an estimated $300 damage to the Whitehurst car and $200 damage to the Pate vehicle.

Thomas Earl Harris, 43, of 1105A Chestnut St. was reported injured when the motorcycle he was riding was involved in a collision with a car driven by Woodrow Payton, 46, of 908 Legion St. about 5:08 p.m. at the intersection of Greene and Dudley Streets.

The sermon will be by the Rev. B. B. Felder accompanied by the choir, ushers and congregation of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church.

Wants Shelters For Runaways

BALTIMORE (AP) — A bill establishing shelters for runaway children and a national network to help families locate runaways will be introduced in Congress early next year, says Rep. Paul S. Sarbanes. The Maryland Democrat told newsmen Thursday that the measures are needed because of what he termed a "marked nationwide increase in runaways." In Maryland, he said, the increase has been about 17 per cent over the past year. The total number of missing children in the state may reach 6,000, he added.

Find Family Of 6 Slain

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A family of six was found shot to death early today in their South Side apartment in what police termed an apparent murder-suicide. Police said the father and four children—three girls and a boy ranging in age from about two to 13—were found dead in their beds. The mother was found dead in the bathroom. A .38 caliber revolver and a note also were found in the bathroom, police said. The names of the victims were not immediately determined, but police said the father was an enlisted man at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station. They would not divulge contents of the note. The children were all shot in the chest and both parents were shot in the head, investigators said.

Bucs Hold Off Huskie Rally For Win

TULSA, Okla. — The East Carolina University Pirates held off stubborn Connecticut several times during the game, and gained a 74-64 victory to take third place in the Oral Roberts Basketball Tournament here last night.

Host Oral Roberts captured the championship by beating Loyola of Los Angeles, 103-86, in the other game.

The Pirates moved ahead with about 13 minutes to go in the first half and never trailed after that. They moved out by as much as 11 points in the first half, and held that margin in the second half also.

Early in the second half, however, the Huskies rallied to within two points at 48-46, only to see the Pirates pull away again by as much as 10 points.

The Bucs were again paced by Big Al Faber, who knocked in 20 points for his second night over 20 in the tournament. He also was the leading rebounder for the Bucs, pulling down 15.

Connecticut, however, outrebounded the Pirates for the evening, grabbing off 50 to 46 for the Pirates. Cal Chapman was the game's leading rebounder with 18 for the Huskies.

Overall, East Carolina shot 46.5 per cent while Connecticut hit on only 35.1, but the Huskies had many more shots than did the Bucs. Both teams hit on 29 each from the floor. But the Bucs also had better free throw shooting and that made the real difference.

East Carolina hit on 16 at-tempts at the line, missing six. Four of those misses came in the final two minutes of the game when Connecticut was fouling to get the ball. They shot the Pirates out from a five-point advantage with 2:30 to go to the final 10 point spread.

Connecticut pushed ahead on a driving layup by Lee Barbach, but Earl Quash hit on a fast break for the Bucs to tie it up. Faber canned a shot from underneath to put the Pirates on top for the first time, 4-2.

They stayed in the lead until Gary Custick hit on a tap to tie it at 7-7. Jim Fairley hit on a pair of free throws to open a Buc lead again, but Chapman hit on a jumper and Al Vaughn scored from the baseline to put the Huskies into the lead again, 11-9.

Faber hit on a rebound with 14:25 to go to tie it again, but Chapman put Connecticut back on top again, 13-11. Faber hit on a free throw and then Greg Crouse drove in for a basket, returning the Pirates to the lead, 14-13. They never trailed again.

Jerome Owens hit on two baskets to run the Pirates out to a five-point spread, 18-13, and Ray Peszko swapped a basket for a Huskie free throw to make it six, 20-14. Connecticut got another free throw, but Faber followed with a basket to run it to seven, 22-15.

It stayed at that margin until Dave Franklin hit a free throw and Owens scored on the fast break, making it 27-19. With 4:40 left in the half, Franklin got a three-point play and Faber tapped in a rebound to make it 34-23, the widest Pirate lead of the half.

Connecticut put on a rally in the final four minutes of the half, however, and chopped three points off the lead to make it 38-30 at intermission.

The Pirates ran it back out to 11 on a free throw by Franklin and two by Faber at 41-30, but Connecticut then began its rally. Custick and Vaughn both scored to cut the lead to seven, 43-36, and after Franklin hit for the Bucs, the lead dwindled to just three points.

Custick got a three-point play and Chapman hit from the line. He added a basket with about 16 minutes left and the Pirate lead fell to 45-42. Nicky White got a layup, but Chapman countered that. Owens then hit from the line, but Bill Deehan hit a jumper with 14:04 left to cut the lead to 48-46.

That was as close as they came, however. Franklin came back with a jumper, and Peszko hit a jumper, while Connecticut got only a free throw in between.

Then, from a 52-49 lead, the Pirates ran it back to eight.

Faber hit from the line, and he and Crouse both scored baskets to make it 57-49. The Huskies never got closer than five after that.

That margin came in the final three minutes when Custick hit a free throw with about 3:45 to go, and Doug Melody stole the ball after the throw-in to cut the lead to 69-64. But neither team seemed to find the range for the next minute. The Pirates twice sent men to the line without a score, and Connecticut also missed on one change.

Finally, with just under a minute to go, Faber hit with a drive to make it 71-64 and seal it. Owens hit on a free throw and Fairley added two more to raise the lead to the final margin.

Besides Faber's 20 points, Owens had 18, while Franklin had 11.

For the Huskies, both Custick and Chapman had 18 points, while Vaughn had 14.

The Pirates take to the road this afternoon, and meet the University of Dayton tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Flyer's home court. Then, they are off until Monday night when they meet Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg, bringing their week-long road trip to an end.

Orange Bowl Stands Above Others In '72

By TOM EMORY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Nebraska-Alabama meeting in the Orange Bowl could be a forerunner of college football playoffs to determine a national champion. But for now it's just the best game fate and the bowl makers arranged for New Year's Day.

There are other bowls in the holiday week, including the Sugar, Rose and Cotton bowls, also Jan. 1. None have the flavor, however, of the match-up between the No. 1 Cornhuskers and the No. 2 Crimson Tide.

Nebraska is a deadly efficient offensive and defensive machine which earlier this year defeated then No. 2-ranked Oklahoma. The Huskers are not as colorful a team as Alabama but under Coach Bob Devaney have a 31-game unbeaten streak, including 22 straight victories. The team also is looking for its second consecutive national title.

Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama has won three national championships. A Tide victory over Nebraska would give him a fourth. He's relying on slashing running back Johnny Musso and the Wishbone-T to make up in speed what his team lacks against the Cornhuskers' strength.

Oklahoma passed on Nebraska and it appears Alabama may try to do the same with Terry Davis at quarterback. Davis threw only 66 times during the season, but completed 42 for 452 yards and eight touchdowns.

Meanwhile, in New Orleans, Oklahoma and Auburn are preparing for the Sugar Bowl. The Sooners use the Wishbone-T, an offense Auburn saw in its game against Alabama.

The Sooners had the most potent scoring team during the season and Coach Ralph Jordan of Auburn admits his team's defense must be extremely sharp to stop the likes of quarterback Jack Mildren, and running backs Greg Pruitt and Joe Wylie.

Auburn has a top scoring threat of its own in Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan, a quarterback, and his favorite target, wide receiver Terry Beasley.

Stanford faces another high-scoring offense in Michigan in the Rose Bowl, and Coach John Ralston says the Pacific-8 champions will lose if the defense must play 75 per cent of the game. He says the team must cut down the Wolverines running and force more passing.

Coach Bo Schlembecher of Big Ten champion Michigan says Stanford is the best passing team his players have faced all season, but the defense can't be content to just worry about the pass. He warns the Indians run well, and would not hesitate if Michigan was concentrating too much on defending against a passing attack.

Quarterback Eddie Phillips has been chosen as the starting Texas quarterback against Penn State in the Cotton Bowl after being out with multiple injuries this season. The Nittany Lions now must worry about Phillips engineering of the Wishbone while the Longhorns also will have their problems with the Penn State offense which features such runners as Lydell Mitchell and Franco Harris.

In tonight's Gator Bowl, or for this year, the Brother Bowl, Georgia, coached by Vince Dooley, plays North Carolina, coached by his brother, Bill.

Georgia, No. 6 in national rankings, has an offense sparked by strong running quarterback Andy Johnson, and scatback Jimmy "The Greek" Poulos. North Carolina, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion, has three 500-plus yard rushers in Lewis "Green Giant" Jolley, George Hamilton and Ike Oglesby.

Lakers (Ho-Hum) Win Thirtieth

SEATTLE (AP) — It is altogether unlikely, Jim McMillan says, that he will become bored with winning, even though the Los Angeles Lakers' string is 30 games long now and is timed by months.

Spencer Haywood of the Seattle SuperSonics had expressed some concern about ennui gently settling over McMillan and the rest of the Lakers. He had mentioned it to McMillan Thursday night as the Lakers gutted the Sonics 122-106 to continue their major league winning streak.

"Haywood asked me during the game, 'Don't you get tired of winning?'" McMillan recalled. "I told him no, because we beat teams differently every night."

This version called for McMillan to score 34 points, Wilt Chamberlain to pull down 24 rebounds, Jerry West to assist on 11 baskets, and the Lakers to go off on scoring streaks of 12 and 10 straight points and a 26-9 rout when pressured by the Sonics.

"Jim was outstanding tonight," Coach Bill Sharman said. "He's the complete ball player. He does all the intelligent things. We didn't try to go to him in the first half, but we did in the second."

Even without the Lakers looking for him, McMillan scored 16 points in the first half, 12 of them in the last four minutes of the second period, including six during the Lakers' 12-point streak. His scoring helped the Lakers come from the low end of a 43-42 score to lead 56-45 at halftime.

Seattle charged back to take an 83-82 lead with just over 10 minutes left in the game. But before McMillan, Chamberlain and West, who had 28 points, sat down for the night, the Lakers outscored Seattle 26-9 in one streak and had taken a luxurious 111-92 lead.

Elsewhere, in the NBA Thursday, Baltimore defeated New York 110-102, Golden State ripped Detroit 128-122, Chicago whacked Portland 117-92, Houston whipped Atlanta 129-115 and Phoenix downed Buffalo 123-102.

Elvin Hayes poured in 42 points and Rudy Tomjanovich grabbed a career-high 23 rebounds as Houston ripped Atlanta.

Hayes hit 25 points in the first half and then he and little Calvin Murphy pulled the Rockets into a comfortable lead in the final period.

Lou Hudson had 28 for the Hawks.

Jack Marin's 33 points led Baltimore past New York, ending the Knicks seven-game winning streak. Archie Clark added 24 for the Bullets, who led by as many as 30 points before standing off a late New York rally. Ex-Bullet Earl Monroe led the Knicks with 21 points.

Chicago won its seventh straight, beating Portland easily.

Norm Van Lier scored six points in a 13-0 Chicago spurt that put the Bulls in control in the second period. Van Lier finished with 24 points and Bob Love had 21 for the Bulls.

The Golden State Warriors, down by 20 points at halftime, ran off a 17-2 spurt in the fourth period and overtook Detroit. Nate Thurmond hit 42 points, one shy of his career peak, to lead the Warriors. Dave Bing, recently returned after eye surgery, had 30 for the Pistons.

Paul Silas and Dick Van Arsdale hit 19 points apiece, leading six Phoenix shooters in double figures as the Suns defeated Buffalo.

It was the eighth straight loss for the Braves who were led by Walt Hazzard's 25 points.

Inks Buc Pact

Ricky Leonard of Rocky Mount, a 6-2, 245-pound offensive tackle, is one of the latest to sign a grant-in-aid to East Carolina University. Leonard, while playing at Chowan Junior College, was named to the All-Coastal Conference team. He is one of three Chowan gridders to sign with the Bucs.

Maryland Pulls Off Upset Of St. John's

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Undeclared Virginia made the biggest advance in the latest Associated Press rankings of college basketball teams, from 18th to 11th place. Is it the turn of another Atlantic Coast Conference team, Maryland, in next week's poll?

The Terrapins, now ranked 16th, put in their bid by upsetting ninth-ranked St. John's of New York 90-69 Thursday night to win the inaugural Maryland Invitational Christmas Tournament.

The Terps have lost only one of nine games. The St. John's Redmen were absorbing only their second loss in 10 games.

North Carolina, 8-1 and fourth ranked, won the Sugar Bowl Tournament in New Orleans, 75-69 over stubborn Bradley.

The Braves remained in contention throughout. But Dennis Wuywick's three-point play with 6:22 remaining pushed the Tar Heels into the lead, and Bobby Jones scored six points down the stretch. Jones and Wuywick tallied 16 points each, and Robert McAdoo added 15 for North Carolina. McAdoo scored all Wake Forest, who had been scoreless in the 76-75 first-round loss to Duquesne, scored 25 against Navy. Wake Forest is 2-6 and Navy is 3-4.

ACC teams are idle today and Saturday. On Monday, Virginia is at Wake Forest. There are no games Tuesday. On Wednesday, it's North Carolina State at Maryland, Clemson at Georgia Tech, Duke vs. Virginia Tech in the Charlotte, N.C. Coliseum, and Florida Southern at Wake Forest.

Virginia won the Palmetto Classic in Charleston, S.C., 77-72 over host, The Citadel. It wasn't until the final minutes that the Cavaliers were able to gain their ninth victory. Tim Rash's jump shot put them ahead 69-68, and then they sank eight consecutive free throws while the Bulldogs hit only two baskets. Steve Fishel of The Citadel was the game's high scorer with 22 points. Barry Parkhill had 21 for Virginia.

Clemson, 4-2, won the Pointsettia Classic in Greenville, S.C., 77-67 over Auburn. Dave Angel, who scored 27 points and snared 22 rebounds for Clemson in the championship game, was voted the tournament's most valuable player.

Wake Forest lost to Navy 72-62 in the consolation game of the Steel Bowl Tournament in Pittsburgh. Willy Griffen of

Bullets, Trojans Gain Victories

JAMESVILLE — Host Jamesville and Oak City both captured their second victories in the Jamesville Holiday Classic last night, and both had to struggle to do it.

Jamesville beat Chowan, 58-53, in an overtime, while Oak City had to come from behind in the final period to nail Columbia, 52-41.

In the opener, Oak City pushed out into a 13-7 lead over Columbia, but then saw their lead dwindle away. Columbia came back to outscore the Trojans, 11-7 in the second period, trimming the lead to just 20-18 at halftime.

In the third period, Columbia put Oak City behind by outthrottling them, 16-9. That ran them into a 34-29 lead as the final period opened. But the Trojans got back into the game with a bang. They limited Columbia to just seven points during the final period, while burning in 23 of their own, winning going away.

Ronald Duggins led Oak City with 14 points, while Edward Briley had 12 and Whit Whitfield had 11. For Columbia, Neal Fenner had 11.

In the second contest, Chowan shot away to a 17-11 lead over the Bullets in the opening frame. Jamesville turned the advantage around in the second period, 11-9, but still trailed, 26-22 at intermission.

In the third period, Jamesville continued to pound away at the lead, 19-17, but still was behind, 43-41 as the last period opened.

The Bullets, however, forged ahead in the final period, outscoring Chowan, 10-6, until the final two seconds. Waverly Westbrook then hit a pair of free throws to tie it at 51-51 and sent the game into overtime.

Gurkin Martin hit to break the tie in the overtime, then added two free throws to spark the Bullets to a 7-2 advantage during the period, as they gained the victory.

Alvin Grimes led the Jamesville scoring with 14 points, while Tommy Mizelle had 13, Robert James had 11 and Larry Modlin and Martin each had 10.

For Chowan, Richard Elliot had 18, Westbrook had 13, and Paul White and Donald Bass each had 10.

UCLA Captures Sixth Straight

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

UCLA's national-leading scoring average suffered, but the Bruins' record thrived and so did its ability to work a full-court press.

The Bruins, the nation's top-ranked team, won the Bruin Classic Basketball Tournament Thursday night, beating sixth-rated Ohio State 79-53 for their eighth victory without a loss this season.

The 79 points marked the first time this year the Bruins had not reached the 100-point level, dropping their average from 112.3 points per game to 108.1. But they didn't have to score 100 to wallop Ohio State.

Employing a stifling full-court press from the outset, the Bruins took charge quickly. Forcing the harried Buckeyes into numerous errors, they built an 11-1 lead, then put on a 14-2 burst for a 30-8 advantage midway through the first half.

Ohio State closed to 48-38 with 5½ minutes gone in the second half. But 7-foot Luke Witte picked up his fourth foul 2½ minutes later and when he left the game, UCLA pulled away.

In the biggest surprise of the holiday-packed tournament program, unheralded Villanova upset third-ranked South Carolina 77-76 for the championship of the Quaker City event. Tom Inglesby capped a 28-point performance with two free throws with six seconds remaining, giving the Wildcats their surprising victory. Inglesby was named the tourney's most valuable player.

In another upset, 16th-ranked Maryland routed ninth-rated St. John's N.Y. 90-69 in the final of the Maryland Invitational Christmas Tournament. Jim O'Brien scored 20 points for the Terrapins, who won their eighth game in nine starts. However, Len Elmore, who collected only seven points but grabbed 18 rebounds, blocked numerous shots and stole several passes was named the tourney's most valuable player.

Meanwhile, North Carolina's globetrotting Tarheels wore down stubborn Bradley 75-69 for the Sugar Bowl Tournament title. For the fourth-ranked Tarheels, it was their sixth victory in eight days and their third tourney championship. Previously, they won the Big Four in North Carolina and the International Christmas Tournament in Spain.

Virginia, No. 11, remained unbeaten, defeating The Citadel 77-72 for the championship in the Palmetto Classic. Barry Parkhill's 21 points led the Cavaliers, who gained their ninth victory.

Ron Thomas' 28 points and Jim Price's 25 helped 15th-ranked Louisville whip Fordham 96-82 for the Holiday Festival championship. The Cardinals, who had refused to attend the playing of the National Anthem during the semifinals, changed their tune and stood at attention for the playing of the Anthem before the final game.

Once-beaten Missouri won its first Big Eight Conference pre-season championship since 1954, trimming Kansas State 67-58 for its 10th victory. Sophomore Al Eberhard paced the Tigers with 21 points.

Charlie Mitchell pumped in 33 points, boosting Eastern Kentucky to an 83-78 triumph over Oklahoma City and the title in the All-College Tournament.

Undeclared and unranked Duquesne captured the Steel Bowl championship, routing Pitt 87-67 behind sophomore Lionel Billings' 35 points. It was the Dukes eighth victory.

Florida State earned the title in the Far West Classic, subduing Washington State 85-61. Joe Sutter, who scored 22 points, hit three field goals late in the game, lifting Davidson to an 83-73 victory over Virginia Tech in the final of the Charlotte Invitational Tourney.

Clemson, sparked by Dave Angel's 27 points and 22 rebounds downed Auburn 77-67 for the Poinsettia Classic championship.

Northwestern took the Shreveport Invitational title, stopping Centenary 89-82 as Vernon Wilson led the way with 28 points.

Larry Garloch's two free throws with one second remaining enabled Miami, Ohio to squeeze past William and Mary 69-67 for the championship of the Tangerine Bowl Classic.

Tracy Tripucka's 23 points helped Lafayette beat George Washington 85-74 for the title in the Garden State Classic.

Arnie Berman and Rich Cureton each sank two free throws in the final minute, giving Brown a 70-69 decision over Morris Harvey in the final of the Hall of Fame Tournament.

Oral Roberts, playing a major schedule this season for the first time, won the Oral Roberts Classic, thrashing Loyola, Los Angeles 103-86 as Richie Fuqua scored 30 points.

The Quaker City Tournament began with Canisius overcoming Long Island 86-76 and Niagara crushing Cornell 96-69.

The game was the first for Cornell since a boycott early this month by its black players in an apparent dispute over their use in games.

Dwight Lamar, the nation's leading scorer, connected for 40 points and Roy Ebron added 35 as 13th-ranked Southwestern Louisiana trimmed California State-Los Angeles 113-102.

Marshall, rated 17th, held off Ohio University 88-81 as Russell Lee scored 26 points.

Tennessee, the No. 20 team, took third place in the Quaker City Classic, edging Boston College 61-60 on Len Kasmalski's two foul conversions with 25 seconds left.

Toledo presented Coach Bob Nichols with his 100th career victory, overwhelming St. Joseph's, Ind. 95-78.

And Wisconsin-Eau Claire, ranked second in the college division, upended No. 1 Kentucky State 101-81 for its 10th straight victory.

Bitterness Is Still Around Shula's Switch

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins began winding down preparations today for the American Conference championship game against Baltimore while Coach Don Shula revealed he is still bitter about the war of words that followed his decision to leave the Colts.

That bitterness is one of the factors that underscores Sunday's battle en route to the Super Bowl in a decisive third meeting between the clubs this year, and it can be viewed on national television over NBC beginning at 4:30 p.m., EST.

"I don't want to be involved in a verbal discussion about the situation," Shula said when he was asked about the outpouring of words that accompanied his leaving the Baltimore coaching job to take the position with the Dolphins last year. But he admitted:

"I am a little bitter at a couple of statements that were made. One thing was what was said by a couple of players who I had great respect for."

Shula, who came here at the cost of a No. 1 draft choice awarded to Baltimore by Commissioner Pete Rozzelle when he ruled the Dolphins had been guilty of tampering in securing his services, took a club that had a 3-10-1 record in 1969 and immediately turned it around.

The Dolphins posted a 10-4 record last season while finishing second to Baltimore in the Eastern Division and then were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs. This season a 10-3-1 record brought them the Eastern title and, following their first-round victory over Kansas City, they now stand on the threshold of their first AFC championship.

The Colts, meanwhile, took a Shula assistant—Don McCafferty—and won their first Super Bowl under him last year, but finished second in the East this season with a 10-4 record. They moved into the AFC championship showdown by beating Cleveland in the first round.

The oddsmakers have found little to choose between the teams and the record enforces that estimate. The Dolphins won the first meeting this season 17-14 at Miami on a fourth quarter field goal by Caro Yepremian and the Colts won 14-3 at Baltimore on two long drives engineered by Johnny Unitas.

Unitas put together one touchdown drive of 18 plays in the Colts' victory and it has been the subject of some discussion in the days preceding the actual clash. Miami quarterback Bob Griese has said the percentages are against Unitas duplicating that performance.

"The percentages begin zooming way up there after 10 plays," Griese pointed out. "You don't see many 18-play drives and that's because there's always the possibility of a fumble, or an interception or three plays in which you can't make 10 yards."

Unitas declined to answer Griese specifically, saying "I'm not concerned with that at all. I try to do the best I can. If it works it does, if it doesn't it doesn't."

Two of the guys who made it work—running back Norm Bulaich and Tom Matte—remain question-marks for the game, Matte with a bruised right knee and Bulaich with a hamstring pull in his right leg. Together they gained 1,348 yards on the ground this season.

The anticipated Baltimore running back duo, in the event of their absence, would be a pair of rookies—Don Nottingham and Don McCauley. Nottingham carried 92 times for 388 yards during the regular season while McCauley gained 246 in 58 attempts. Unitas, meanwhile, passed for only three touchdowns.

But it hasn't been the Baltimore offense that has brought the Colts this far—it has been their defense. That defense, led by big Bubba, permitted only 140 points—an average of 10 a game—during the regular season.

Arrayed against that defense, is Shula's arsenal of weapons—all of whom have become household words during the Dolphins' run toward their first title.

There's Griese, the beady quarterback who throw 19 touchdown passes during the regular season. There's Paul Warfield, his No. 1 target with an NFL-leading 11 touchdowns and a 23.2 per catch average. And there's Larry Csonka, the hard-charging running back who gained 1,051 yards.

Dallas, Colts Favored To Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins have come a long way in their short six-year history, but they will go no further—and Super Bowl VI figures to be a Baltimore-Dallas confrontation just as Super Bowl V was last year.

That, at least, is the way it looks to this pro picker, who picked against the Dolphins last week when they surprised the Kansas City Chiefs in a game that lasted 82 minutes and 40 seconds.

The Dolphins won't get that long to beat the Colts, and there are those who suspect they can't get the job done in 60 minutes against a Baltimore team that was ranked No. 1 in total offense, rushing offense and pass defense during the regular season.

While the Colts and Dolphins battle for the American Conference berth in the Super Bowl, the San Francisco 49ers and Dallas Cowboys will battle for the National Conference post. And the pick here is the streaking Cowboys.

Here's the way the two games look from here in detail:

Baltimore 24, Miami 21—The Colts are out to prove a point—that last year's Super Bowl victory was no fluke. The Dolphins may have proved their point—that they have arrived—in their dramatic victory over the Chiefs. The thought here is that the game against Kansas City may have taken something out of them physically and, possibly, emotionally as well. It's difficult to see them rising to such an emotional peak two weeks in succession.

Dallas 31, San Francisco 17—The Cowboys also are out to prove a point—that last year's Super Bowl loss to Baltimore was a fluke. And they have the weapons to do it with Roger Staubach at quarterback, Calvin Hill and Duane Thomas at the running back spots and Bob Hayes and Lance Alworth at the receiving positions.

Ole Miss Rips Georgia Tech

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Peach Bowl was a lopsided contest Thursday night as the Ole Miss Rebels scored virtually at will in the first half and then added only three more points in the last two quarters as they dug in defensively and finished with a 41-18 victory over Georgia Tech.

The game had been billed as a duel between Tech's stingy defense and the Rebels' explosive offense, but in the first half the Jacket defense did not live up to equal billing with the Rebel offense.

Ole Miss, despite muddy conditions, struck efficiently on the ground and through the air to score five touchdowns and a field goal while Tech was searching for a first down.

Tailback Greg Ainsworth, greased with mud, slipped through Tech defenders time and again and wound up with 119 yards rushing.

Down 38-0 shortly before halftime, the Jackets finally put a drive together after Steve Punnal intercepted a Kenny Lyons pass at Tech's 34.

Ole Miss' sophomore quarterback Norris Weese, who passed for one touchdown and ran for another, was voted the offensive player of the game. Rebel linebacker Crowell Armstrong won defensive honors.

Only Davidson Wins A Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three Southern Conference basketball teams went after holiday tournament championships, but only Davidson's Wildcats came out with a title.

The Wildcats won the Charlotte Invitational, for which they are the host team, for the sixth time in 10 years with an 83-73 victory Thursday night over Virginia Tech's Gobblers.

But The Citadel's Bulldogs were edged 77-72 by unbeaten 11th-ranked Virginia in the finals of their own Palmetto Classic, and William and Mary's Indians dropped a 69-67 decision to Miami, Ohio, in the title game of the Tangerine Bowl Classic at Orlando Fla.

East Carolina's Pirates won third place in the Oral Roberts Classic by whipping Connecticut 74-64, but Furman's Paladins finished last in their own Poinsettia Classic, bowing to Holly Cross 104-88 in the consolation encounter.

Tonight's only action for conference teams has East Carolina stopping off at Dayton for a New Year's Eve date with the Flyers.

Joe Sutter, voted the tournament's most valuable player, scored three baskets within 1½ minutes near the end that finally got Davidson out of trouble against Virginia Tech. John Falconi led the Wildcats with 26 points, and Sutter had 22. Charlie Lipscomb scored 24 for Tech. Rutgers routed Georgia Tech 91-64 for third place.

Two free throws by Larry Garloch with one second left gave Miami its victory over William and Mary, which led 42-33 with 18 minutes left. But Miami outscored the Indians 18-5 over the next six minutes. Phil Lumpkin led Miami with 15 points, while Steve Seward had 15 for the Indians. Rollins edged Stetson 82-81 for third place.

The Citadel led Virginia's unbeaten Cavaliers several times and didn't fall behind for good until Tim Rash hit a jumper to make it 69-68 with two minutes left. The Cavaliers then hit eight free throws to ice it. Barry Parkhill had 21 points and Jim Hobgood 16 for Virginia, while Steve Fishel had 22 for the Bulldogs. Air Force took third place by nipping Xavier of Ohio 62-59.

Al Faber scored 20 points and pulled down 15 rebounds and Jerome Owens added 18 points as East Carolina won third place in the Oral Roberts.

Furman, outrebounded 69-42, trailed Holly Cross 62-36 at intermission and never was in contention as Gene Doyle scored 26 points and grabbed 21 rebounds for the Crusaders. Bud Bierly had 16 points for Furman.

An Authentic Story Of Early N.C. Family Is Finally Put Into Print

By H.G. Jones, Director
N.C. Department of Archives and History

Written for the AP
RALEIGH (AP) — The authentic story of a distinguished North Carolina family and the times in which they lived is revealed in Volume I of "THE PETTIGREW PAPERS" recently published by the state Department of Archives and History.

Edited in final form by Dr. Sarah McCullah Lemman, head of the Department of History and Political Science at Meredith College in Raleigh, the project was begun 30 years ago by Dr. J. Carlyle Sitterson of the University of North Carolina and was subsequently worked on by Dr. Bennet H. Wall, then of the University of Kentucky, and by Dr. C. C. Cathey, also of the University of North Carolina. Dr. Lemman is also the author of the three pamphlets published by the Department of Archives and History dealing with North Carolina's role in the War of 1812 and the two World Wars.

A central figure in the Pettigrew family, Charles, was born in Pennsylvania in 1747 and at the age of 13 moved with his family to eastern North Carolina. He became the first elected bishop of the Episcopal Diocese in North Carolina, and, though not credited with directing the church toward spectacular development, the family papers do reveal him to have been a dedicated churchman.

Charles Pettigrew and his wife first lived on a plantation about a mile from Edenton, possibly "Mulberry Hall," but moved years later to "Belgrade" on Harvey's Neck. His first wife, Mary Blount, died in 1786 shortly after the move to "Belgrade" and eight years later, at the age of 50, he married Mary Lockhart, who lived at "Scotch Hall" near Edenton. An interesting sidelight of the Pettigrew letters is that Charles referred affectionately to both of his wives as "Polly."

Documents included in this volume begin chronologically with the will of James Blount, dated March 10, 1685, and conclude with a bill of sale for a slave, written Dec. 30, 1818. Primarily, however, the collection consists of more personal items such as the letters of Charles Pettigrew and his only surviving son, Ebenezer.

Ebenezer's letters to his wife when she spent the winters in New Bern away from the plantation which he operated near Lake Phelps are filled with both humor and pathos. They reveal simultaneously the loneliness of his life on the plantation and the fortitude required to sustain life and achieve success during the colonial period.

Particularly notable, too, are Charles' letters to his two sons in attendance at the new University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His advice concerning their health and morals put today's standards in interesting perspective.

The Pettigrew Papers is a social history and will provide a source of documentary materials concerning colonial religion, health and medicine, plantation management, travel, and postal customs. Further information can be had from the publications division of the State Department of Archives and History in Raleigh.

First Lady Plans Africa Visit

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Off to Africa Saturday, Mrs. Richard Nixon will embark on a nine-day, 10,000-mile trip that gives her a new role as an official representative and visiting emissary of the President. It's the second foreign trip she has made on her own as first lady. The first was a relief mission to earthquake-stricken Peru in the summer of 1970. This time, Mrs. Nixon heads a five-member official U.S. delegation to the inauguration of Liberia's new president, William Tolbert, in Monrovia Sunday through Tuesday. And she will go on for official visits to neighboring black West African republics of Ghana and Ivory Coast.

Her schedule includes a range of activities from attending white-tie formal banquets to touring hospitals and schools, watching tribal dances, meeting African women leaders and shopping in a native market.

The President will give Mrs. Nixon a personal sendoff from Andrews Air Force Base, Md., when she departs at 8 p.m. EST New Year's Day aboard a presidential jet plane. While she is abroad, Nixon will conclude meetings with Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato in California.

A 4,100-mile, non-stop overnight flight across the Atlantic will bring Mrs. Nixon to the Liberian capital Sunday morning. She will be greeted by Tolbert and his wife as their top-ranking foreign guest at inaugural festivities.

A vice president for 19 years, the 58-year-old Tolbert, a wealthy rubber planter, succeeds the late President William Tubman as head of the black republic that was launched in 1822 by freed American slaves. Tubman, who had been president for 23 years, died in July.

Mrs. Nixon will review Liberian troops, make a few brief speeches and attend the oath-taking, a colorful parade and the traditional formal inaugural ball and banquet.

She will leave Monrovia Wednesday for a two-day stay in Accra, Ghana, and then spend Jan. 7-9 in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, known as the "African Riviera."

A party of 40 will fly with her to Liberia, including 11 members of the news media, five Secret Servicemen and White House physician Dr. Walter Tkach.

The other members of the inaugural delegation are: evangelist Billy Graham, Bernard J. Lasker former chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, who campaigned for Nixon in 1960 and 1968; Samuel Z. West-erfield Jr., and Mrs. John H. Johnson, wife of the publisher of the magazines Ebony, Jet and Black Stars, who is from Selma, Ala.

PRISON IS ROBBED

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Burglars took cigarettes, liquor, a record player and a movie projector from the officers' canteen at Durban Central Prison which is not far from the main cell blocks. Detectives, said one report, are not certain whether this was an inside or outside job or whether it was "an outside job planned from the inside."

Independence Day In January For Maryland

By JOHN WOODFIELD
Associated Press Writer

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Stubborn Maryland will once again celebrate Independence Day next month as it has persisted in doing since 1784.

July 4th may be all right for most, but Maryland history buffs insist that the end of the Revolutionary War, not the beginning, marked U.S. independence from Britain.

The end came on Jan. 14, 1784, in the Maryland State House when the Continental Congress ratified the Treaty of Paris to end the war.

Although Cornwallis had surrendered to George Washington in 1781, British troops occupied several U.S. towns until 1784.

"It's one thing to want a divorce and quite another to achieve it," Gilbert Crandall of the state tourism division says in his annual argument to support Jan. 14 as the real birthday of the United States.

The Treaty of Paris arrived in Annapolis some days prior to Jan. 14, 1784, but Thomas Jefferson, chairman of the ratification committee, could not produce a quorum for a vote. On Jan. 13, two delegates from Connecticut reached Annapolis. The following day, a delegate from South Carolina finally fought through driving snow to take his seat in the old Senate chamber.

With a quorum present, the treaty negotiated by John Jay, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams was quickly ratified and the United States became an independent sovereign power.

As it has for years, a 13-star flag will fly over the Maryland State House Jan. 14 and the Treaty of Paris will again be on display in the rotunda, a few steps from where it was ratified.

And a group dressed in the scarlet and blue regimental uniforms of the "Maryland Line," the state's Revolutionary War unit responsible for Maryland's nickname as the "Old State," will perform close order drill while a fife and drum corps plays "Maryland, My Maryland."

Then Maryland will host a dinner of authentic Revolutionary War cuisine for delegates from the other 12 original colonies and toast that day 188 years ago when British troops withdrew from American soil.

Summary Points Up City School Year

Education in Greenville is big business. This is brought home by a recently published financial summary of the operations of the Greenville City School system for a nine month period constituting the 1970-1971 school year.

For the nine month period, total funds — local, state and federal for all phases of school operation amounted to more than four million dollars. The actual figure is $4,014,213.50.

A general break down of this amount by major categories shows the Current Expense Account for $2,282,892.42, which included $1,878,654.95 for instructional service; $264,137.39 for fixed charges; $88,925.75 for plant operation; $40,323.00 for general control; and $10,851.33 for auxiliary agencies.

Under the category of Local unit-General Operating Fund, a total of $1,413,282.96 was spent. This included $884,519.27 for current expense and $528,763.71 for capital outlay.

Local unit-ESEA Title I funds amounted to $318,038.10.

In addition to the plus four million noted in the above divisions, $11,573.52 in additional funds were expended in ESEA Title II and Title VI funds; with another $83,200.00 received from Local Unit-Emergency School Assistance Grants.

Seeks Dissolve Men's Marriage

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — The state of New Hampshire has moved to dissolve the marriage of two men.

Atty. Gen. Warren Rudman on Thursday filed a petition in Hillsboro County Superior Court for a declaratory judgment dissolving "the marriage, so-called" between Francis Mucka and Neil Trudelle, alias Tina Marie Trudella.

Rudman acted after Nashua City Clerk Lionel Gilbert sought his advice. Gilbert said the pair had taken the required blood tests in Concord after failing to get married in Lowell, Mass., and had been married by a justice of the peace who didn't realize one of them had impersonated a woman. A hearing was set for Jan. 24.

Green Light For Price Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Producers of machinery, food and newsprint are among the concerns whose price increases have been approved by the Price Commission.

The action brought to 382 the number of increases approved by the commission. There have been 11 denials.

Massey-Ferguson Inc. was granted an average 4.82 per cent hike for farm, industrial and construction machinery, recreation products and vehicles.

Akzona Inc. Pfeiffer's Foods Inc., won a 5.2 per cent increase for its salad dressing.

Crown Zellerbach Corp. received approval for a 5.16 per cent increase in newsprint.

Beatrice Foods Co. was granted a 2 per cent increase for its domestic products.

This Year Jesus A Youth Hero

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jesus in 1971 became the latest hero on the American youth scene.

That seemed to be the year's top development in the religious field, which has grown increasingly fluid and variable, more of a protean movement than one with clear-cut institutional structures.

This aspect showed up in many ways, including the surge of interest in Jesus and in other religious resources among young people, who widely shunned traditional church organizations.

It "has been a year of search for instant salvation," says the Rev. Dr. Eugene Smith, U.S. executive for the World Council of Churches, who adds that America is bulging with religion in quantity, but it is of uncertain quality.

"In a complex world, many are seeking simple answers," he said in a year-end review. Of the youth groundswell, he said that "like all mass movements, this one combines the elements both of hope and heresy."

The nation's youth culture, which has varied from quietism to tumultuous protest to psychedelic escapism to cultish conformity in dress and speech, displayed its new religious bent in sundry ways.

Most visible and audible was the Jesus movement, cropping up throughout the country, in communes and Bible-study meetings. The underground Jesus press grew to about 50 papers, produced for and by youths.

"Excesses and defects" exist in the movement, including band-wagon faddism, says its roving historian, Edward Plowman. But he concludes in a book, "The Jesus Movement," that it has the vitality to "change the world."

Along with it, and sometimes including backing from regular church youth groups, Jesus festivals in many communities drew thousands of young people, sometimes tens of thousands.

Broadway blossomed with hits about Jesus—"Godspell" and "Jesus Christ-Superstar." Night clubs took up the theme, and the word, "Jesus," decorated dirty T-shirts.

Colleges and universities continued to expand their offerings of religious courses, a trend going on for a decade, and demand for the classes continued to rise.

Aside from these intellectual pursuits, there was a growing fascination with the occult, with parapsychology, astrology and charms, as well as with eastern meditative disciplines and Oriental religions.

Youth followers of Ramakrishna, in saffron wrappers, went through city streets, chanting their prayers.

Other major religion stories of 1971:

—Indictment of six persons, including three Roman Catholic priests, an ex-priest and a nun, on federal charges of plotting to kidnap a presidential aide and blow up a federal heating system in protest against the Vietnam war.

—Studies commissioned by U.S. Catholic bishops at a cost of $500,000 showed most priests favor optional celibacy—but the bishops and a worldwide Synod in Rome insisted that the celibacy requirement must be maintained.

—Religious forces—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish—joined in opposition to help defeat a congressional proposal to amend the U.S. Constitution to allow public schools to sponsor "nondenominational" devotions.

—Homosexuals came out in the open in their demand for full acceptance in the churches. In New York, San Francisco and elsewhere, they organized their own congregations.

—The U.S. Supreme Court knocked out state plans in Rhode Island and Pennsylvania for subsidizing salaries of parochial school teachers, blocking similar plans in 15 other states and increasing financial pressures on a shrinking system of church schools.

—United Presbyterians and American Baptists elected women to their top offices, and the Lutheran Church in America and American Lutheran Church ordained their first women ministers.

—The Presbyterian Church U.S. (Southern) squeaked through a touchy convention without a threatened split, but some disgruntled forces in the Church still were planning on it.

—Another Roman Catholic bishop, Bernard M. Kelly of Providence, R.I., resigned from the episcopacy, protesting its rigidity. He was the second bishop in this country to do so.

—The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod turned aside proposals by its president, the Rev. Dr. J. A. O. Preus, to clamp unprecedented, new restrictions on doctrinal interpretation.

—John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, often called a conservative, was elected president of the National Council of Catholic Bishops, succeeding a moderately liberal bishop, John Cardinal Dearden of Detroit.

—Southern Baptists had more trouble with putting their beliefs in print. At the behest of their convention, another Bible scholar was recruited to rewrite an Old Testament commentary along conservative lines, but protests arose when officials blocked a teaching manual because of its promotion of racial integration.

Come to Church

Randlett To Be Church Soloist

David Randlett, chairman of the music department of Free Will Baptist Bible College in Nashville, Tenn., will be guest soloist at Grace Church here Sunday morning.

A Pittsburgh, Pa. native, he is a 1963 graduate of Eastern Nazarene College with a Bachelor of Music degree. In 1968 he earned the Master of Music Education degree from George Peabody College for Teachers. He has taught public school music and has been minister of music for churches in Massachusetts, Virginia, and Tennessee. He is the brother of Doug Randlett, minister of music for Grace Church.

Gospel-Singing Slated Sunday

A gospel singing will be held at the Church of God of Prophecy, located on Mumford Rd., Sunday beginning at 2 p.m.

Guest singers will include the Faulkner Family of Fayetteville, the Assembly Quartet of Windsor and the Manning Brothers of Greenville.

The public is invited to attend.

Film On Drugs Will Be Shown

The film, "Drugs and the Nervous System," will be shown during the Sunday School hour Sunday at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church.

All youth, parents and adults are invited to attend.

Three Model Homes To Be Opened For Viewing

Three model homes erected in Ayden by United Durham Inc. will be opened for viewing by the public Sunday at 1 p.m.

These homes are some of the first off the assembly line of this profit-sharing business run by black people. Its modular homes are designed to provide maximum livability for minimum cost — about $10,000, according to Floyd W. Wicker, a development associate with the organization. Chartered by the State of North Carolina in Sept., 1968, UDI's main purpose is to offer to low-income people basic consumption needs through businesses created to offer essential services and products such as food, shelter, clothing, medical care, and the like. It was funded through a $960,000 Office of Economic Opportunity grant, Wicker said.

"UDI's businesses, like all businesses, have to be economically sound," Wicker said. "But UDI insists that their businesses meet certain additional requirements. A UDI business's production must be geared toward the needs of low-income people. It must hire local poor people. Portions of profits must be turned back to the low-income community for improvement of that community.

UDI Tech Homes have had a display home that the business has used for an office in Durham, Wicker said, but these homes in Ayden are the first to be offered to the public for sale.

Each features a rough-sawn plywood exterior planned to provide a textural quality and variety of patterns and colors harmonious with the surroundings. The interior is spacious. There are sloping ceilings with exposed beams and glass sliding doors leading from the living room onto a large outdoor deck. One of the three bedrooms can be utilized as a family room or a separate dining room if the owner wishes. The compact kitchen is built for efficiency with a refrigerator and range with hood in decorator colors and a stainless steel sink and ample cupboard space.

Wall-to-wall nylon carpeting is provided in bedrooms, living room and hall, with tile floor treatment in the kitchen and bath. Electric baseboard heat is controlled by individual thermostats in each room. A hot water heater is also provided. Special equipment such as air conditioning, washers, dryers, carpets, and porches are optional to the buyer. Reduced prices will be available when the appliances or extras are included in the purchase price.

The $10,000 purchase price does not include the cost of the lot or the optional equipment, of course.

New Towns Get Aid From HUD

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the early 1960s, an English urban planner named Ebenezer Howard envisioned cities built from scratch that combined the best of two worlds—a full range of urban life and the beauty and serenity of country living.

Transplanted to the United States, Howard's dream is shared by William Nicoson, 38, a former Wall Street lawyer who heads the new communities program at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Ringed by a green belt to preserve open space and prevent sprawl, Howard's cities were to be balanced communities, with adequate business and public facilities, and residential units—places where people could live and work.

The ideal new town also would have diversity in housing and income levels, in employment, recreation and life style. Nicoson believes too many working Americans spend too much time traveling in heavy rush-hour traffic going to and from work.

He believes Americans in the future will be able to combine the amenities of the country with the sophisticated life of the city. They will have plenty of fresh air, greenery, clear streams; and they'll have spacious apartments, jobs close at hand, easy access to shops and theaters and a wide variety of neighbors from different backgrounds.

Nicoson said in a recent interview that he believes the new-town movement is about to come of age in America with public and private groups getting interested in large, planned communities all over the United States.

HUD has approved loan guarantees for developers of six new towns over the last 19 months but none since last spring because of new guidelines issued by the Council for Environmental Quality. But, says Nicoson, two or three more will be announced in the next month or two.

With scores of proposals pouring in from Alaska to the Virgin Islands, and all points in between, HUD expects to approve another six or nine over the rest of the fiscal year.

Larger plans—and budgets—may be in the cards for fiscal 1973.

Nicoson believes HUD will be able to assist developers in the planning of 15 new communities a year with each new city accommodating as many as 100,000 people when fully developed.

New towns are just what the name suggests, small cities which can be: started from scratch near no existing community; satellites of a big city; an expansion of an existing village or small town, or built as a self-contained community within a big city.

The projected population of the six new towns when fully developed totals nearly 400,000.

Functions Urged On Counselors

NEW YORK (UPI) — High school guidance counselors should do more than "match talents to tasks," says Harold L. Munson, professor of education at the University of Rochester. In his book, "Foundations of Developmental Guidance" (Allyn and Bacon), the nationally known authority on counseling urges counselors "to balance three functions — counseling the student, consulting with parents and teachers, and coordinating job and college placement services."

Pre-SCHOOLER BOOM
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Census Bureau predicts that pre-school population will reach 25 million by 1975 and 30 million by 1980.

We all know the feeling of frustration that comes from not finding enough hours in a day. Time to kill is a luxury for most of us.

New Year's reminds us that time is one commodity that cannot be bought. Try as we will, we cannot crowd more than twenty-four hours into a day. Whether it's too much time on our hands or too little, we need constantly to be aware of how we spend our time.

After all, in a hundred years, we'll all be gone. This thought makes current problems look pretty small. Proper balance of work, play and worship makes happier lives. Let God speak to your heart and bring new perspective into your life. Attend church this Sunday.

School Desegregation Case Top N.C. Story Of '71

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Editors and news directors of Associated Press member newspapers and broadcast stations have chosen the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County school desegregation case and its ramifications as the top news story of 1971 in North Carolina.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in April that extensive busing was a valid tool for desegregation in the school system, paving the way for massive busing throughout the state and nation.

The state's top 10 stories were selected by the newsmen.

No. 2 was the thorough reorganization of higher education. Effective with the new year, the 16 state-supported institutions of higher education will come under control of a new board of governors, although each campus will have its own local board of trustees. The Consolidated University of North Carolina will be divided into individual units. Education restructuring was a victory for Gov. Bob Scott.

The third-ranked story was the decision by Mecklenburg County voters to legalize sale of mixed drinks while a similar proposal was rejected in a Moore County referendum. However, Mecklenburg did not toast in the New Year with cocktails. Superior Court Judge William K. McLean has ruled that mixed drinks cannot be served in private establishments such as restaurants and lounges, but only in public buildings like the Charlotte Coliseum. He ruled that portions of the mixed drinks referendum in Mecklenburg violated the state constitutional prohibition against local acts to regulate trade. His ruling has been appealed to the state Supreme Court, and a decision is expected early in 1972. No. 4 was Hurricane Ginger. Late in September, Ginger brought three days of heavy rain, wind and flooding to coastal and Sandhills North Carolina instead of veering into the Atlantic as has been expected. The heaviest damage was to crops, with some estimates of the damage to soybeans, corn and grains running as high as $50 million.

ing him near Ayden, in Pitt County. Civil rights groups, particularly the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, protested the killing, claiming the laborer was not resisting arrest as the highway patrolman claimed. A coroner's jury later exonerated the patrolman, but months of marches, demonstrations and bombings followed. 8. Bald Head Island. The legislature, after sizzling debate, decided not to purchase the controversial island off the coast, near Southport, thus leaving it for commercial development. Opponents had contended throughout 1970 and 1971 that the island is an ecological wonderland that should be preserved for scientific study. 9. Gov. Bob Scott, nearing the end of his term in office, guided the sweeping reorganization of state government, combining dozens of small departments and agencies into larger units. The governor contended, and the legislature agreed, that the government could operate more economically and efficiently without so many scattered agencies and overlapping duties. 10. Political campaigns for the 1972 elections got off to an early start. Six candidates announced they would run for governor and others announced for senatorial and congressional seats. Visits by leading Democratic candidates for president added flavor to the campaigns as the state's financial backers began to fall in behind their favorites.

Fannie Flag Stumbled Into Best Career Breaks

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Some performers make the grade by persistence, grit and self-denial. Fannie Flag insists that she literally has stumbled innocently into the best breaks of her career. Fannie crashed into the mass publicity consciousness as the stunt girl on Allan Funt's old "Candid Camera." She airily and repeatedly drove a car through the side of a "drive-in" theater. Earlier she had entered the "Miss Alabama" preliminaries to the "Miss America" pageant—and lost. She did get elected "Miss Congeniality," however, and that provided her with a drama scholarship at the Pittsburgh Playhouse. As she tells it, she happened to be in the right place at the right time to be cast as Dick Van Dyke's sharp-tongued sister-secretary in the hit CBS series. She will soon be returning to Van Dyke's Arizona base for another intensive six months of production for next season.

family resemblance to Van Dyke. "He was on his way out when somebody told him to take a look at me," she said. Fannie—born Frances Carlton Flagg in Birmingham—concentrated on the theatre from the moment she wrote, directed and starred in her fifth-grade play. She had just cast her first vote and had her own TV interview show in the southern city when she decided to invade New York. Within a week she had sold four sketches to a nightclub revue and had a job in the production. "Candid Camera," for which she dreamed up stunts and worked in them, followed for two seasons. Several seasons ago, Fannie had a hit record album which contained a hilarious impression of the then-first lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. During the Van Dyke hiatus she has turned out another smash comedy recording, this time doing an impression of another Southerner, Martha Mitchell. ("She was harder to do than Ladybird," Fannie said. "Her own material is funnier than anything you could make up.")

According to the director of Archives and History, Dr. H. G. Jones, the 1972 challenge grants will bring the total contributions of the Smith Richardson Foundation through the department since 1960 to $344,616. The grants have served as an incentive in the raising of an additional sum of more than $450,000, Jones said.

Superior Judge System Is Upheld

GREENSBORO (AP) — A divided three-judge federal panel has upheld the constitutionality of North Carolina's system of nominating Superior Court judges by districts, but electing them on a statewide basis. The 2-1 ruling Thursday resulted in the dismissal of a case brought by James E. Holsouser of Boone, former Republican state chairman and now the party's candidate for governor. The majority decision, written by Judge Woodrow Jones with Judge Eugene P. Gordon concurring, held federal courts have no jurisdiction in determining the method of election of state Superior Court Judges. They based their decision on several points: —That the one-man, one-vote principle does not apply to the judiciary. —That North Carolina's system is not discriminatory to any particular set of voters. —That there is a reasonable basis for the election set up. —And that the system does not deny North Carolina voters a republican form of government. The third jurist, Graxton Craven, in a dissenting opinion, wrote that the judges were denied equal protection of the law with respect to the election of all Superior Court judges except those within the voters' own judicial districts, where nominations are made in primaries. Lawyers representing Holsouser argued during a hearing Nov. 19 that judges should be nominated and elected by either a districtwide or statewide primary and general election, rather than a combination of the two. They said the system denies equal protection of the law because it violates the one-man, one-vote principle. They said a vote in the primary can be diluted in the general election, and some voters in the general election are denied the right of a primary. The majority opinion, noting that the equal protection question was really the only basis on which the federal judges could make a ruling, held that: "To hold with the plaintiff here and invalidate the election process permitted by these statutes, this court would be plowing new ground, extending the one-man, one-vote principle far beyond the fields heretofore entered by the Supreme Court."

Ten Restoration Grants Offered

RALEIGH (AP) — Ten challenge grants totaling $48,500 have been authorized for 1972 by the Smith Richardson Foundation for restoration, preservation and survey of historic sites in North Carolina, Gov. Bob Scott announced Thursday. The governor pointed out that if all the challenges are met, a total of at least $122,500 will be raised for historic site work. The grant recipients follow (first figure is amount of grant and second is amount of qualifying funds that must be raised): Wake County Committee of the Colonial Dames, for Joel Lane House, $3,000 and $6,000; Perquimans County Restoration Association, for Newbold-White House, $5,000 and $5,000; Historic Flat Rock Inc., for the Old Rectory of the Church of St. John in the Wilderness, $5,000 and $10,000; Fort Defiance Inc., for Fort Defiance (home of Revolutionary Gen. William Lenoir), $5,000 and $10,000. Historic Hope Foundation, for the Hope Plantation Mansion, $5,000 and $10,000; Beaufort Historical Association, for the Josiah Bell House, $5,000 and $5,000; Yadkin County Historical Society, for the Richmond Hill Law School, $5,000 and $10,000; Old Wilkes Jail, $2,500 and $5,000; and Historic Darden Hotel Foundation, for research and immediate repairs to the Darden Hotel in Hamilton, $3,000 and $3,000. A grant of $10,000, to be matched by a like amount, was authorized for the State Department of Archives and History's survey of historic sites.

Lost Boys Are Rescued

BAYBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two chilled and hungry teenage boys were brought to safety by a Marine helicopter Thursday 18 hours after they got lost in a desolate section of Pamlico County. Pamlico County Sheriff Leland Brinson said the search for Kerry Lupton, 16, and Roy Jones, 18, both of New Bern, began around 9 p.m. Wednesday when they failed to return from a deer hunt. The search began after a third member of the party, Glenn Lupton, 17, brother of Kerry, found his way out of a thickly-wooded pocosin and notified authorities when his companions failed to return to their car. Two helicopters from the Cherry Point Marine Air Base joined the search for the boys Thursday. After the craft had flown over them two or three times, but could not see them because of the heavy underbrush, the boys attracted attention by climbing trees and tying pieces of their clothing to the branches.

Capture Helped By Police Dog

MONROE, La. (AP) — A snarling police dog bit Wendell N. Hicks, 23, of Wilmington, N.C., and ended his gun fight with police Thursday. The dog had run down and cornered Hicks and a companion, Berlin Rollins, 24, of Monroe, La. They had abandoned their auto and were seeking refuge in a housing project after a $131 grocery robbery. Police Chief James Kelly Jr. said both men were booked on charges of armed robbery and attempted murder.

Offices Will Be Closed Saturday

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville municipal building will be closed Saturday morning for the New Year holiday. The town office is usually open on Saturday from 8:30 a.m. until 12 noon. Town Clerk Elwood Nobles said the regular town board meeting will be held Monday at 7 p.m. at the municipal building.

American Men Turning Sissy?

Linda says her husband is not henpecked! But British psychiatrist, Dr. Joshua Berer, thinks American males are growing more sissy. They let their wives baby them to retain such feminine interest when they fear to lose their women to other virile males who bring home the bacon!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case S-559: Linda T., aged 27, is a music teacher.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I have been married for 3 years. "And I certainly don't think my husband is henpecked!"

"But the British psychiatrist, Dr. Joshua Berer, recently claimed American males are being dominated by their women."

"I think he mistakes the fact that American husbands pick wives with business experience and then let them handle the family funds."

"Dr. Berer says modern husbands often play the role of a baby to offset the fact they are not the provider for the home."

Are Men Sissy?
Do you readers believe that American males are growing stressed fighting and raiding rival tribes to steal ponies. Alas, nowadays, many American males are boldly publicizing the fact they are homosexuals.

They even try to marry other such half-females!

And many of them appear so effeminate they not only can't wield a ping pong paddle. But they aren't even interested in watching robust competitive sports on TV or from the stadium seats!

This suggests lack of normal male pugnacity! Meanwhile, they act like jittery infants who must have their "pacifier" to keep them quiet and docile.

The modern adult "pacifier" is the cigarette, which emotionally disturbed adults now suck on frantically like the disturbed baby in its crib. Instead of being virile self-reliant leaders, millions of men now meekly let TV announcers stampede them, just like silly sheep, into adopting nonsensical habits.

The poll of students by NATIONAL REVIEW even showed 8 colleges out of 12 where a big majority voted meekly to submit to Russia without firing a shot!

The women's college, Sarah Lawrence, might be expected to take such a sissy stand.

But its 74 percent against firing a shot was also matched nature keeps her fairly well appeased in the act of babying, coddling and even financing her mate.

And the virile TV or movie heroes help her sublimate her inner yearning for a dominant male.

Wives, send for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Virile North Carolina's 74 percent for fighting Russia, in case of a confrontation, topped the 4 valiant American colleges where males still aren't lacking in testosterone!

Remember, virile males don't need pornographic pictures and crass sex movies to fan an artificial interest in eroticism.

A pretty girl, even in the old-fashioned full-length skirt, would turn on such a masculine admirer.

Nowadays it takes miniskirts, hot pants and topless costumes to whip up a feeble erotic spark in the sissy modern male.

The usual woman craves a strong man, meaning a dominant male.

Luckily, she will compromise for a half-man in marriage, since her 75 percent maternal

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
East doubled the final contract and West chose to defend altho his holding did not include the defensive values that partner might expect from a player who had opened the bidding and then made a free bid subsequently.

West opened the king of diamonds which, inadvertently, created a serious problem for East. The lead might have been made from a holding including the ace or the queen. If West had the ace and king, then East should take a discard at trick one. However, if West held the king-queen, then the first trick should be ruffed, for West would need the ace of hearts then to warrant an opening bid and the latter card would provide him with a reentry to give East a second diamond ruff and assure defeat of the contract inasmuch as East still retains the ace of trumps to score the setting trick.

East considered the situation at considerable length, and finally—after a mental flip of the coin—he chose to discard a heart. South won and promptly led a heart. West put up the ace, cashed the queen of diamonds and led a third round of that suit. North ruffed with the queen and it did not matter what course East took for the ace of spades was the third and last trick to be scored by the defenders. South was able to discard a club on dummy's high hearts and he lost only one trick each in spades, hearts, and diamonds on the deal.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1	Dble.	1
2	3	3	Pass
4	Pass	Pass	Dble.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♦
West inadvertently created a problem for his partner in defending against South's four spade contract and when East failed to make the winning guess, declarer scored up a vulnerable game.

Altho West held the required 13 points as well as two defensive tricks for an opening bid at the one level, we would have been inclined to take preemptive action on his holding because of the extreme shortage in the major suits. Had he bid five diamonds, either on the opening or as a rebid, his loss on the deal would likely have been only 200 points if he was doubled. As the auction actually proceeded, there was no chance to stop the opponents from reaching four spades.

You've got a lot to live

Pepsi's got a lot to give

What we mean is this: living isn't always easy, but it never has to be dull. There's too much to see, to do, to enjoy. Put yourself behind a Pepsi-Cola and get started. You've got a lot to live.
