Heavy Opposition Heard

Rezoning Request Loses In Long Council Session

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Heavy opposition and defeat of a request for rezoning of an area north of Greenfield Terrace Subdivision developed Thursday night when the matter came up at the City Council meeting in a public hearing.

At the beginning of the council's first 1972 meeting on Old Christmas Day, which lasted until just before midnight, a full audience was on hand until the council approved Councilman Percy Cox's motion that the "request for rezoning be denied on grounds that there is not proper access to the property."

During the course of the public hearing, about a dozen opponents expressed concern about the proposal for rezoning sought by Milton P. Dawson and the congregation of Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, who have an option on 10 acres of undeveloped land adjacent to Greenfield Terrace. The church members and board have proposed developing a 100 unit apartment complex on the land.

Opposition spokesmen, all Negro with one exception, praised the concept of such a housing project, but pointed out there were other land sites available that would be more suitable for such a project. Other factors mentioned frequently were those dealing with excessive traffic that would result as there is only one paved road into the area; the downgrading of a residential area that was described as the pride of the Black community of Greenville; and a desire to maintain the area as one of home owners rather than one of landlords-tenants.

Attorney Earl Whitted, Jr., representing Dawson and the Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, observed that under the proposed plans, the apartment complex would be Greenville owned, managed and operated, and that the project would provide a $1,500,000 housing addition for the Negro community.

One proponent from the Mt. Calvary congregation noted that all the opposition seemed to come from persons who were members of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church.

Mayor S. Eugene West, following the council's action, told Whitted that he and council members would give whatever assistance they could provide in helping the Mt. Calvary congregation in efforts to locate some other land site for the apartment project.

Another public hearing, that on the abandonment of a portion of Allen Street, a dedicated 40 foot street that has never been opened, resulted in action being tabled until the February 10 City Council meeting. Mayor West, after attorney Louis Gaylord Jr.'s presentation of a request by the N.C. Equipment Company to abandon a portion of the street, noted that city policy does not allow developers to develop property without leaving an access street. Closing of this portion would leave only an 18 foot alley parallel to the Raynor-Forbes-Clark Warehouse open as an access street. Mayor West recommended reserving a decision on the matter until the next city council meeting.

Public hearings receiving approval included the rezoning of two areas forming part of Bob's Mobile Estates on Hooker Road and U.S. 264 by-pass from Highway Commercial to RA-20; rezoning a 200 by 200 foot lot on Greene Street north of Tar River from Flood Plain to Highway Commercial; and rezoning an area adjacent to Home Builders Supply Company from a combination of R-6 residential and Downtown Commercial Fringe to Highway Commercial.

Street assessment rolls for improvements for curb, gutter and paving of Douglas Street from Contentnea Street to the end of Douglas Street; and for curb and gutter of Greenfield Boulevard; Woodside Road; Fireside Road; McDowell Street from Battle Drive to Battle Street; and Battle Drive from Lincoln Drive to Bancroft Drive was set for a public hearing on February 10.

A request for a name change of the Recreation Commission to Parks and Recreation Commission was tabled until the July City Countil meeting. This action followed a lengthy discussion led by City Councilman William Dansey, who is the City Council's representative on the Recreation Commission. The discussion developed to encompass thoughts on a name change for the department as well as the commission.

Much of the opposition to a name change centered on lack of information of what would be entailed from the standpoint of actual changes in responsibility of a combined Park and Recreation Department, as well as a possible increase of funds that could conceivably develop as the recreation program and the park program expands. Dansey observed that a name change would basically recognize the reality of the existing arrangement wherein the Recreation Department and Recreation Commission already carry the greater portion of the responsibility for maintaining the city's parks.

The council's vote was four in favor of and two opposed to tabling the issue until the July meeting.

The Recreation Commission scored an approval on another request — that of seeking financial support to make possible an agreement between the Recreation Commission and the City School Board relative to a lease arrangement for the Eppes High School Gym and Cafeteria building.

India Establishes Hanoi Relations

NEW DELHI (AP) — India established full diplomatic relations with North Vietnam today, abandoning its official policy of treating Hanoi and Saigon as equals.

This means that India will have an embassy in Hanoi and only a consulate general, whose chief is of lower rank than an embassy's ambassador, in Saigon.

India has resisted this move in the past, despite demands from leftist political parties and Communist nations, saying it would jeopardize its status as chairman of the International Control Commission which is charged with supervising the 1954 cease-fire in Vietnam.

Reaction from South Vietnam was prompt. Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam told newsmen in Saigon that India's establishment of full diplomatic ties with Hanoi is harmful to its position as a neutral and as chairman of the ICC.

He said he plans to file a protest with New Delhi.

The Indian decision could have vast repercussions on the future of the ICC, whose other members are Canada and Poland.

In the past, India would generally abstain on controversial votes, with Canada and Poland opposing each other. Now India conceivably might adopt a stand closer to Poland.

The new diplomatic relations became effective at once, according to a brief Indian Foreign Ministry statement.

The Indian government radio, in a brief commentary made simultaneously with the announcement noted that India had been chairman of the ICC, but added: "The continuing strife in Indochina, especially in Vietnam, has been a cause of great anxiety to India in recent years. ...

"Recently, a number of countries have raised their relations with North Vietnam to the embassy level. They include Sweden and Switzerland."

Most Western nations had felt that India was biased, or at least sympathetic, toward North Vietnam.

India has often criticized U.S. policies toward Vietnam and only last week expressed its concern at the resumption of bombing of North Vietnam.

India also has been under pressure from the Communist bloc to raise its relations from the consulate general to the embassy level with North Korea and East Germany. There has been no indication whether any similar action was contemplated toward these two countries.

Powell, Rehnquist Take Their Seats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist took their seats today on the Supreme Court in the first double swearing-in ceremony in 60 years.

A packed courtroom to which all but invited guests were barred watched Powell, an aristocratic Virginia lawyer, and then Rehnquist, a young Goldwater conservative, take oaths administered by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

They took their places at the "freshmen" ends of the bench.

Burger concluded the 10-minute ceremony with brief words of welcome to his fellow Nixon administration appointees. He said: "We look forward to many years of work with you in our common cause."

This was the first time in memory that the general public was barred from an open session of the Supreme Court. A spokesman suggested the reason was the large number of guests.

The succession of Powell and Rehnquist to the seats once held by the late Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan brings the court up to full numerical strength of nine for the first time since the summer.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell introduced Powell and Rehnquist and presented framed letters of commission from President Nixon. They were read aloud by E. Robert Seaver, the court clerk.

No other court business was conducted at the session.

Afterward, the two new men joined their seven colleagues at the regular Friday closed conference.

The two new members cannot vote as the justices reach decisions on cases already heard this term. But they can vote on whether to grant review to scores of pending appeals.

Unemployment For December Edged Upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment edged up to 6.1 per cent last month, just below a nine-year high reached a year earlier, the government said today.

At the same time, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said the average rate of unemployment for all of last year was 5.9 per cent, up from 4.9 per cent in 1970 and 3.5 per cent in 1969.

Otherwise most job statistics for December were either unchanged or slightly worse when compared with the month before.

The 6.1 per cent over-all jobless rate was up slightly from November's 6.0 per cent and October's 5.8 per cent. It was just below the 6.2 per cent rate for December 1970, when the jobless figure peaked at a nine-year high.

The jobless rate for nonwhites jumped sharply from 9.3 per cent in November to 10.3 per cent last month. At the same time the rate for whites fell from 5.7 per cent in November to 5.4 per cent last month.

There was no change in the rate for adult men, at 4.4 per cent or for adult women at 5.8 per cent, but the rate for teenagers of both sexes edged up from 17.0 per cent in November to 17.5 per cent in December.

The nation's total civilian work force which showed a sharp gain in November showed little changed in December.

In real numbers the total force tumbled from 85.0 million in November to 84.9 million in December. Adjusted for seasonal variations, the government figured the civilian work force at 85.2 million in November and 85.3 million in December.

The total number of persons holding jobs also was little changed, at 80.2 million in real numbers and 80.1 million seasonally adjusted.

The number of job seekers was 4.7 million in actual numbers, or 5.2 million seasonally adjusted.

AMBUSHED

TEL AVIV (AP) — Eight Arab guerillas ambushed an Israeli military engineer in the Golan Heights Thursday, cut off his head and apparently took it back to Syria, the military command said.

Ineligible, But—

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's social services commissioner says eight welfare recipients found ineligible last fall by state investigators still are receiving welfare checks.

Clifton M. Craig said Thursday the counties in which the eight persons live were notified at least two months ago that an error had been made but they haven't done anything about it so far.

Craig declined to identify the counties, saying: "I'm not trying to crucify any county. I'm not after state administration. I'm only after proper administration."

Earlier this week, Craig said quality control investigators with the state Social Services Department had checked 239 cases of aid to families with dependent children from July 1 to Nov. 1, 1971, and found 24 ineligible for benefits.

Craig said the eight recipients still receiving checks were among those 24.

The welfare program in North Carolina is administered on the county level. Only the counties may add or remove persons from the welfare rolls.

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — President Nixon officially announced today he will seek reelection, telling New Hampshire campaign workers that he will allow his name to stay on the ballot for the state's March 7 presidential primary.

Nixon said he was seeking reelection because "I want to complete the work we have begun ..."

His announcement came in a letter from the Western White House to former Gov. Lane Dwinnell who heads the group of supporters that placed Nixon's name on the ballot Monday.

Store Break-In

BETHEL—Police are investigating the Thursday night theft of some $1,300 in watches and diamonds from a jewelry store on main street here.

Police Cheif Walter Gray reported that the break-in at Alexander's Jewelry was discovered by officers at 11:30 p.m. He said the incident occurred sometime after 11 p.m.

Cheif Gray said that police found a window on a storefront display area broken out and the merchandise missing from the display case. No estimate of damage to the store was available as the investigation continued.

For The Birds

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — Radio station WQTI-FM in Dunn has found that farmers in the eastern North Carolina area have recently begun piping the station's programs of country music into their barns and henhouses.

The farmers say it helps sooth the cows and makes the chickens lay more eggs. In fact, one farmer, Jeff Warren of Rt. 1, Roseboro, has printed musical notes on his egg cartons, with the notation, "Eggs laid to FM music."

In response to the new market, WQTI announced today that it will begin programming a special hour of "Music for Chickens" each night. A station spokesman said the chickens and cows would be hearing their favorite soft country and western melodies.

Graham Named To Library Bd.

Greenville attorney Laurence (Larry) S. Graham has been appointed by the City Council as a member of the Board of Directors of Sheppard Memorial Library.

Graham, a Raleigh native who has lived in Greenville since September 1969, replaces William Brewer, who recently resigned from the board due to plans to move outside the city limits.

A graduate of Wake Forest, where he completed both his undergraduate studies and the Law School, Graham is married to the former Fane Smith of Raleigh.

He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville where he is currently on the Board of Deacons. He is also on the Board of Directors for the Greenville Jaycees and the Boys' Club, and is a member of the North Carolina and Pitt County chapters of the Bar Association.

City Council Approves Selling Utilities Bonds

Sale of an additional half a million dollar electric bonds by the Greenville Utilities Commission received the stamp of approval by the Greenville City Council at its meeting last night.

City Manager Harry Hagerty said the utilities commission "had indicated a need to have the balance of $500,000 in electric bonds approved for sale. The Local Government Commission has advised us that now is a good time to do it."

Hagerty, recalling that these bonds are part of the bloc of electric, water and sewer bonds approved by public referendum in December 1969, said that the city's bond attorneys Mitchell, Petty and Shetterly of New York "had prepared the necessary resolution for the sale of these bonds. The wording of bonds sale resolutions is such a ticklish situation," Hagerty noted, "that it is necessary to be very careful how the resolution is worded."

The nearness of the 21st century was evident when Hagerty explained that the bonds, coming due at various dates on a staggered basis, would see the final section due October 23, 2000 A.D.

Utilites Commissioner Charles Horne noted that following sale of the elctric bonds, there still remained $500,000 in water bonds and $750,000 in sewer bonds of the original series to be sold.

Chicod Creek Watershed Hearing Continued Until January 28

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

NEW BERN — A hearing, in which five environmental groups are attempting to secure an injunction to prevent work from continuing on the Chicod Creek watershed project in Pitt and Beaufort Counties, was continued until Jan. 28 by Judge John Larkin in U.S. Eastern District Court here yesterday.

The hearing began Wednesday and continued yesterday. The order continuing the hearing was entered, according to Judge Larkins, to allow the original plaintiffs in the case to study a motion for intervention by two prospective defendant groups and time for the defendants to answer the plaintiffs objections.

Plaintiffs in the case include the Natural Resources Defense Council, the North Carolina Wildlife Federation, the Pamlico-Tar Conservation Coalition, the National Wildlife Federation and the Friends of the Earth.

Defendants include officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, USDA's Soil Conservation Service, USDA's Farmers Home Administration and the Pitt County Drainage District Number Nine (the Chicod Creek project).

The two groups petitioning the court for intervention in the action include a group of landowners and Greenville Attorney Frank Wooten on behalf of the Pitt Drainage District Number Nine.

Among witnesses who testified yesterday afternoon was Hollis Williams, Deputy Administrator for Watersheds, USDA, SCS, Washington, D.C.

"SCS has some 970 projects over the United States," Williams told the court, "with work currently under way on 651 of them."

Williams said the Environmental Policy Act should not apply to projects planned and approved prior to the January, 1970, effective date of the Act.

Earlier witnesses said an application for the Chicod Creek project was submitted in 1963 and approved in 1966.

Williams said if their projects had no adverse effect on the environment and had the approval of the U.S. Bureau of Fisheries and Wildlife, the SCS, and the Department of Water and Air Resources, then the "green light" for the project was turned on.

Williams told the court a special board of reviews, composed of biologists, engineers and other specialists, had reviewed the Chicod proposal and recommended that the SCS proceed with the work.

Williams said a full environmental impact study, as charged by the plaintiffs, is not needed for the Chicod project.

"No impact studies have been issued for any of the 651 projects under development at the present time," Williams said.

However, Williams said, that careful reviews of all the projects were made after

By ANN HENCKEN
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring hair styles start with a simple pageboy, but they end at a convoluted upsweep.

That "Don't touch me, I've just been to the beauty parlor" look, is back again. It includes such marvels as clots of hair bunched in back, twisted braids, buns, curls, ponytails, pins and ribbons—often all on the same arrangement.

However, women can choose a duck tail cut or a tapered style instead. Or she can go Chinese with a full length queue from Stan Hagleser.

Stylists from across the country gathered at a beauty brunch Wednesday at the New York Couture Council's press week, and they see these trends:

Long, straight hair of the 1960s is still being chopped off.

The best solution is a neat angled cut. Sides are shorter, swooping down to a longer back. This is often worn with bangs.

Many stylists are tired of the layered look. It's become an ordinary street fashion and must be replaced.

Short cuts are off the neck, partly to clear the way for backless dresses.

Upswept styles are coming back.

So is the ducktail. Remember that in the 1950s?

"More complicated, that's the word," says Pierre Hambur of New York City. "Hair styles will be more worked out, without being jazzed up."

Complicated is not the word for some arrangements. The word is confused. Styles range from a three-clump number of "teensy teensy" curls to three fat high-rise, buns in a row.

However, there is hope. It starts with the pageboy, from Mr. Andre of New York, or the bowl cut page boy, from Betty Bagwell of Columbia, S.C.

These are stylists who give a no-teased look—just lots of shiny loose clean hair, but well shaped and never far below the shoulders.

Landlady Upset About Tenant

By Abigail Van Buren

[c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I recently rented an apartment I have in my back yard to a 19-year-old boy with the understanding that he would be living there alone.

Since than I have seen him leave with his girl friend at 7:45 nearly every morning.

The girl is 16 and a junior in high school, so I assume he is taking her to school. The girl's parents are divorced, and the girl is supposed to be living with her father. Several other people have told me they have seen her coming and going from my apartment just like she lives there, and this has me upset.

Should I call her father and tell him what I suspect? Ask the boy I rented the apartment to if that girl is living with him? Ask him for the apartment and give him some other reason for wanting it? Or should I ignore the whole situation completely as none of my business?

LANDLADY IN L. A.

DEAR LANDLADY: Talk directly to the boy. After all, you and he did have an understanding that he would be living there alone. And their ages might also be a factor.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who is driving me nuts. She is forever ringing my phone or doorbell. She does nothing but complain and she expects me to listen. I am sick of listening to her, and I have told her so. It does no good. She can't be insulted.

Yesterday when she called, I told her I was busy and had to go, but she kept talking anyway. I finally had to hang up on her. She called me right back, and I wouldn't answer the phone. Next thing I knew this dingbat was at my front door, without a coat in the freezing weather, yelling and cursing and leaning on my bell. When I saw who it was I didn't pay any attention to her, so she tried the knob [thank God, it was bolted.] Then she went around and tried the back door. When she found that bolted, too, she threw stones at my window!

Please tell me how I can get this pest to leave me alone?

HARRASSED

DEAR HARRASSED: The woman is obviously more than a "pest"—she is a sick pest. If she lives alone, let her family [if she has one] know of her irrational behavior. You don't have to tolerate her harrassment, but the poor soul needs help. If you can't locate her family or close friends, notify your local Mental Health Society.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column concerning anonymous phone calls really hit home with me. I have been an employe of the telephone company for many years, and as such, I've handled numerous complaints involving the misuse of the phone.

In most cases [not always] when these anonymous calls are traced, they are found to be made by mentally disturbed and very unhappy people who want to impose unhappiness on others.

For example, one woman who tried to call her husband at his place of business and found his line busy, then attempted to call a lady she knew, and when HER line was also busy, this wife assumed that her husband and this lady were talking to each other! She then began to call this lady on the phone and harrass her with all sorts of vile accusations.

You gave very sound advice to the woman who wanted to know what to do about a persistent anonymous caller who would phone and say, "Your husband wants a divorce," and then hang up: "Get an unpublished number!"

DOWNTOWN PITT PLAZA

Resolution Cites Surge Of Highway Improvement

A resolution commending Governor Robert W. Scott and N. C. State Highway Commissioner W. Arthur Tripp; one adopting "Method A" and the non-partisan election and run-off method for conducting municipal elections; and a third one pledging support to the N.C. General Assembly authorized Clean Water Bond Referendum subject to the vote of the people on May 6; were approved by Greenville's City Council in an action filled first council meeting of 1972 held Thursday night.

— The resolution commending North Carolina's governor and Greenville's Highway Commissioner reads in part:

— "Whereas, eastern North Carolina in general and Pitt County in particular and Greenville specifically have long been overlooked and neglected by the State Highway Commission in its highway improvement program; and

— "Whereas Governor Robert W. Scott was specific in his . . . campaign, promising improvements in the State Highway System in the east . . .; and

— "Whereas, Governor Scott, unlike some of his predecessors, has fulfilled these promises in a truly admirable fashion, especially in the appointment of W. Arthur Tripp as Commissioner; and

— "Whereas, Commissioner Tripp through the exertion of his forthright and able leadership has been actively responsible for the planning, implementation, and execution of vast improvements in the State Highway System in Pitt County and the City of Greenville.

— "Therefore, the City Council . . . do hereby resolve that with deep appreciation Commissioner Tripp is hereby commended for his actions on behalf of Pitt County and the City of Greenville and to acknowledge Governor Scott's invaluable support of these projects."

In adopting the "Method A" of the new municiapl election procedure, city councilmen approved the establishment of a Municipal Board of Elections; the adoption of a non-partisan election and run-off election method for determining the results of municipal elections; and the establishment of a full-time registration office in Greenville.

Election of "Method A" also means that the Municipal Board of Elections will be empowered to appoint a special registration commissioner to be in charge of the Registrar Office, with full power and authority to register voters who reside in Greenville regardless of where they live in Greenville.

Under the provisions of the new municipal election procedure law, the City Council will need to appoint members of the Municipal Board of Elections in 1973. This will alleviate the old system wherein city councilmen acted as the Board of Canvassers dealing with municipal election matters.

Charles S. Edwards, of the Office of Water and Air Resources in Raleigh, explained to city councilmen the General Assembly authorization of a Clean Water Bond Referendum that would, if passed, provide for the issuance of $150,000,000 in state bonds.

Edwards noted that North Carolina is far behind many places in making provisions for clean water resources. He said that many small towns have nothing to help finance clean water, and that many larger towns in the state need to double their sources.

Edwards also pointed out that passage of the bond issue would "make it possible for the federal government to make grants for 55 per cent of the cost of sewer treatment facilities, in lieu of the present 30 to 33 per cent applicable for North Carolina.

"The passage would make it possible for your Utility Commission to apply for North Carolina grants of 25 per cent to join the 55 per cent that the bond issue passage would qualify you for," Edwards added. This would mean a minimum of 80 per cent in state and federal grants for such projects.

The City Council's resolution, after setting forth the advantages to be gained by passage of the bond issue scheduled for May 6, concludes "that it does heartily endorse the Clean Water Bond Referendum and pledges to support, within its capabilities, a positive vote for the Bond Referendum on May 6, 1972."

NEPA became effective and that only about five impact statements have been issued since that time. Preparation of each statement was estimated to cost $7,200.

Upon questioning by Judge Larkins, Williams said an environmental impact study could be prepared for the project within 15 days, but noted that a draft of the study would have to remain in circulation for review for 90 days before a final statement could be prepared.

"Follwoing this period," Williams pointed out, "the study would then have to go through the many channels for approval. This could take much more time."

Williams stated there was no money in the budget for replanning the Chicod Creek project at this point.

Frank Wooten, testifying yesterday afternoon, said the 230 landowners involved in the 35,100-acre drainage district have spent about $130,000 since the project began.

"They are obligated to pay for this," Wooten said. An FHA loan to help finance the project had already been approved but was stopped due to the suit, he stated.

The Chicod Creek project in effect will channelize the creek, allowing it to carry more water and drain more land in Pitt and Beaufort Counties, thus giving relief from flooding and providing opportunities for adequate outlet of drainage from farm lands.

Provisions have been made to include areas for wildlife in the project.

Environmentalists have said the channelization will damage wildlife habitat within the project.

Grover Hodges of Rt. 1, Grimesland, and Ben G. Forrest of Rt. 3, Greenville, both appeared yesterday afternoon as witnesses for the defense.

"Farmville is a losing proposition here (Chicod Creek area)," Hodges said. "There is an annual loss of crops, caused by drowning and there is trouble with septic tanks and water problems at home."

"If allowed to continue, the watershed project will clear these problems," Hodges said.

Hodges said his farming records show more losses as time passes. He reported that in 1962 he was $6,000 in debt at the end of the crop season. He reported there were fields on his farm that could not be cultivated because of the drainage problem.

Forrest reported that portions of his farm land were always under water and that farming was impossible.

Forrest reported that due to drowning of his crops in 1962, he lost about $10,000 that year. He reported a money loss every year since he has been farming in the Chicod area.

"If the Chicod Creek project is allowed to be completed," Forrest stated, "it would probably increase my production by 30 per cent."

Area Of Real Service Awaits

Greenville's new Citizens Advisory Committee to the City School Board will have its first public meeting Monday.

Members of the board have been elected from areas all over the city. The areas are broken down into sections small enough—26 in all—so that the elected representatives should represent real grass roots thinking on community and school problems.

In all there will be 36 members on the borad, 30 representing the areas and six elected at large. This will form the full board authorized by the city Board of Education.

Monday night the committee members will be told of the purpose, scope and responsibilities of the group.

This Citizens Advisory Committee can perform a real service to education in our city. Its members should be familiar with the thinking of the residents of their areas and problems and suggestions can be brought up at periodic meetings so that recommendations can be made to the Board of Education.

The educational services offered by the public schools reach almost every home in Greenville at one time or another. Now every neighborhood can have a representative on this committee who the people of the area know and who can speak for them at committee meetings.

Areas of the city which have not had meeting to choose representatives should take care of this task at the earliest possible time. The members elected should plan to faithfully attend the meetings of the Advisory Committee.

Representatives should make themselves accessible to the residents of their area. They should hear suggestions and present them at committee meetings. Obviously everything brought up will not be carried out, but the committee meetings will be an ideal time to discuss proposals for the better operation of our schools.

Nothing is more important to our community life than the efficient operation of our schools. The Citizens Advisory Committee has a golden opportunity to contribute the development of better schools. This is a trust that should not be taken lightly.

Ripple Could Become Wave

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — A pebble dropped into a pond spreads rippling circles.

So far it's a ripple, but North Carolina's pioneering Jobs for Ex-Offenders program could become a wave. It holds the promise for a reversal of the tide of released convicts who flow back to prison when they can't make it outside for lack of a job.

After an 18-month pilot run, the program now is being incorporated into the Corrections Department as an integral part of its rehabilitative efforts.

"This is the goal we aimed for. We feel very good about it," said Bruce C. Wells, executive director and a staff member of Palmer-Paulson Associates, Inc., the Chicago-based management consultant firm which initiated the program.

More than 200 direct job placements have resulted since Wells set up shop in the summer of 1970. At least that many persons, having paid their debt to society, have found the opportunity to earn their way back to responsible citizenship.

Far-Reaching Benefits

The actual number benefited by Jobs for Ex-Offenders is much greater, Wells said, through its impact on employer and public attitudes, and acceptance within and without the corrections system of the proposition that a man leaving prison deserves a chance to work.

While phasing out Palmer-Paulson's involvement, which ends this month, Wells is spending time in training sessions with the corrections department personnel who will take over. "They're a talented, sharp group," he said, including a retired Air Force colonel, a young woman with a Master's degree, and a former minister.

Direction of the program will be under L. W. Barrett, a corrections official whose responsibilities include work-release. North Carolina also was a leader in implementation of that concept. which permits a prisoner to serve time nights and weekends while holding down an outside job.

Helping former prisoners fit into suitable employment, Barrett said, holds a key to the reduction of recidivism — the return of ex-offenders to prison.

It's a major problem in North Carolina, as elsewhere. Each month, more than 1,000 persons leave the state's correctional institutions; over 600 of them sooner or later go back to crime and turn up in prison again.

Gains For Whole Society

Not only ex-offenders themselves, but the whole society stands to gain from the program, Barrett added.

"I think it's going to benefit the communities these prisoners return to — if they return with suitable employment, where they can earn a living, it's going to make much better citizens of them," he explained.

"I can see great potential in benefits to be derived by the ex-offender and his family — and a great saving to taxpayers — if these people are self-supporting."

Planning regions of the state will serve as the basis for the field force. In each region, the corrections department will have personnel trained to develop job openings for ex-offenders and to serve as liaison with prospective employers.

The regional approach assures both urban and rural emphasis, with a view to placing ex-offenders in familiar surroundings.

"They will be able to work right down to the smallest community in their region," Barrett said. "We'll try to develop jobs in their home communities."

Other States Copy Model

North Carolina was first in the field, but other states have since followed suit. Maine and Indiana are two which looked to the Tar Heel model in fashioning their programs.

Grants from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration launched the Jobs for Ex-Offenders program. The first year was financed under a $185,000 contract with Palmer-Paulson. For the current fiscal year, the state corrections department received $276,000. A six-month extension of the Palmer-Paulson contract runs through this month, covering the transition period.

Two Palmer-Paulson staff members involved in the program for joining the corrections department, assuring a degree of continutiy.

Several years experience will be necessary before a significant evaluation of the program can be made, Wells said. The real pay-off, he noted, is not simply in turning up job openings but in developing resources to make empolyment stick.

Thus far, he estimated, the overall retention rate for those placed is about 40 per cent.

"That sounds disastrous until you realize that many industries have a turn-over of 50 per cent or higher each year," he said. "Considering the problems most ex-offenders have, we think it's pretty impressive."

U.S. Space Program Is Beginning New Phase

The nation's space program may soon be in a new phase which should vastly change our way of space travel out of the Earth's atmosphere.

President Nixon has announced support of a space shuttle system which will make use of a throwaway booster rocket. The main craft, however, will be able to fly into space and return many times, this avoiding the tremendously expensive system now used to boost our astronauts into orbit.

The shuttle system has long been seen as the next step into space and now it seems such a system is near reality.

Muskie Casts Pall In Texas

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

AUSTIN, Texas — Loud voices that spilled from a room of Houston's Rice Hotel on Dec. 9 give a clue to the doubt and ambivalence of leading Texas Democrats over the prospect of denying this key state to President Nixon in the 1972 election.

Inside the room were Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, front-runner for the Democratic Presidential nomination, and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, front-running gubernatorial candidate in Texas this year. The topic of discussion assured nearly total conflict: the oil and gas industry.

Barnes reiterated his past complaint that Muskie's public record on oil-gas questions was solidly anti-Texas. Then followed a discussion of petroleum reserves, with Muskie concluding that the industry has too much preferential treatment from the Federal government. His voice rising, Barnes bluntly told Muskie that he was shocked the Senator could take positions on oil and gas with so little knowledge about the industry's operations.

Involved here is no case of a reactionary Texan declaring all-out war against a Maine liberal. Rather, Barnes is running for governor on a moderately progressive platform, seeking support among Negroes, Mexican-Americans, youth and labor. Moreover, far from opposing Muskie, Barnes could wind up supporting him for the nomination.

Barnes's attitude about Muskie matches other key Texas Democrats. Influenced by the Muskie bandwagon effect, they tend to believe in the inevitability of his nomination and, therefore, may well end up supporting him. But in private, they are increasingly doubtful he can carry Texas against Richard M. Nixon as Hubert H. Humphrey did in 1968.

Indeed, politicians of both parties are much higher on Mr. Nixon's Texas prospects than they were during our reporting trip here in August. That change is based partly on the President's new-found mastery and the ascendancy of Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally (described by one worried Democrat as "the most popular politician in the history of Texas").

But beyond that, the presumed inevitability of Muskie casts a pall on Texas Democrats. They correctly note that Muskie, concentrating on the big Northern states, is trying to avoid the faction-ridden Democratic party of Texas. Although its 25 electoral votes are viewed at the Nixon White House as indispensable, Texas gets scant attention from Democratic Presidential contenders.

Advice As To 1972

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The trouble with making New Year resolutions is that they generally only involve giving up bad habits.

HAL BOYLE

They don't say what a fellow should do with the time he saves after he gives up a bad habit. He needs also to make a resolution to replace the bad habit with a good habit. For example, if he resolves to give up drinking or thinking, he should also resolve to spend more time growing begonias or singing in his church's choir.

As a matter of fact, most people who make New Year resolutions are altogether too stern about it. They want redemption too quickly. They get downcast and discouraged if they don't keep all their good resolutions. Then they relapse into their old ways.

The way to solve this is to make some resolutions you can keep and some resolutions you can break.

Here is a mixed bag of resolutions for 1972 that should leave a fellow feeling fairly contented with himself by the dawn of 1973:

Quit smoking gradually by throwing away one cigarette from every pack he buys.

Cut down on his drinking by leaving not one but two drops in the bottom of each Martini he sips.

Don't walk on water at all.

Refrain from storming Ft. Knox with a toy gun.

Read at least one new poem a month.

Pat no more than one new girl in the stenographic pool on her what-you-may-call-it each fortnight.

The Millionth Candidate

WASHINGTON — "Ladies and gentlemen:

"This is John Chancellor of NBC News and I am standing at the entrance of the Democratic National Headquarters here in Washington, D.C., with Larry O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic Party, as well as many other political dignitaries on what indeed is an historic occasion. We are gathered to honor the one millionth person to announce his candidacy for President of the United States on the Democratic ticket.

"The excitement has been building all morning. As you can see by the computer behind me, the Democratic candidates have been announcing on the average of 45 an hour.

"In just a few minutes the millionth candidate will walk through this door, and he will be in for many surprises.

"There goes the computer—999,996. . .999,997. . .999,998. . .999,999. . .ONE MILLION! And here he comes—the man who is the one millionth candidate to announce he will run for President of the United States on the Democratic ticket!

"There is bedlam here in the lobby. That cheer you just heard came from volunteer workers. And now, as you can see, the millionth candidate is being surrounded by the Democratic Party dignitaries, who are congratulating him and slapping him on the back. Let me see if I can get my microphone in here and talk to him. Excuse me, please. Excuse me, please. Can the TV cameras get in, please? Thank you, thank you...sir, what is your name?"

"Archibald Partridge IV, of Cranberry Falls, Kan."

"How does it feel to be the one millionth Democratic candidate to announce for the Presidency of the United States?"

"Well, it certainly came as a surprise to me. When I left Cranberry Falls two days ago there were only 897,564 announced candidates and I really didn't think I was near it. But my wife Elsbeth said, 'If we drive by way of New Jersey you could have a chance.' "

"Sir, could you tell us why you have announced for the highest office of this land?"

"I want to give the people of this country a choice. The other 999,999 Democratic candidates are all saying the same thing. I feel the people want new ideas, new innovations and new leadership. They are sick and tired of the rhetoric and old formulas. Partridge stands for the people."

"Are you going to run in the primaries?"

"All of them. The polls indicate I have a very good chance to take New Hampshire, Florida, Wisconsin, California and Indiana, providing the voters split between the other 999,999

Other Editors Say Faces A Challenge

(Kinston Free Press)

Elmer T. (Ted) Klassen, 63, a messenger boy who became president of American Can Company, has taken up his duties as the new Postmaster General of the U.S. Postal Service. His stated objective is to "improve mail service while reducing costs." It is a challenge that needs to be met for the benefit of business, industry and the rank and file of citizens of America.

Mr. Klassen succeeds Winton M. Blount, who stepped down several weeks ago to enter politics and under whose direction the revamped postal service got off to a slow start last year.

Apart from hoinding the cost of mail service to as low a level as possible, it appears to us greater gains can be made in the effective dispatching of mail perhaps than at any other point. For instance from large metropolitan centers such as New York, where mail is dropped at the end of a five-day week, why is it that some of it does not get to points such as Kinston before the middle of the following week? Or take such drop centers as N.C. State College, the N. C. Department of Agriculture and other bureaucratic agencies, when they drop their mail into the boxes at the close of business on a given day, why is it that some does not reach its destination less than 80 miles away for two days? Could it not be that some greater care in the dispatching and expediting of mail from sending points would help the entire country as far as receipt of their mail is concerned?

Our purpose is not to work out Mr. Klassen's problems for him, but to suggest that no amount of automation or new procedures will solve problems that human carelessness causes. We do wish him well as he tackles the urgent aspects of the mail service and we hope he gets some help from others all over the land.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL

Jan. 7, 1932

It was revealed today that an unknown man posing as a bootlegger sold bottled water as bottled-in-bond whiskey at $2.50 per quart here yesterday and then disappeared. With each order, he notified his customers to meet him on the outskirts of town where delivery would be made. When the customers went to take a "little nip" and when the seal was broken, it was discovered that the bottles contained water. That water bootlegger may be laughing at the boys now, but if they could get their hands on him it would be a different tale indeed.

Strength For Today

CHOOSE

Do you have a hobby? If you do not then you should get one as quickly as possible. A hobby is some activity in which a person takes pleasure because it gets his mind off troublesome realities. Hobbies are fine as far as they go, but if they begin to take the place of serious and necessary work of any kind, they can be a burden and a mistake. Some people like hobbies so much that they go through life never doing anything but riding some hobby.

There are people in the world who have money enough and time enough to ride a hobby for all there is in it. Very few such people ever become outstanding in their communities or in their business circles. Especially does the confirmed hobby-rider play havoc in his home. He has this one hobby and ride it he will from dawn to darkness.

If you have a hobby that does not hurt anyone or alienate you from fellows or family, then by all means get yourself going on it. It will do you good. If, however, it annoys everybody else in the house but yourself, then lay off on the hobby or at least practice it in some part of the house where you will not annoy everybody else.

Almost everything in the world has some good in it and some evil. This is true of hobbies. A hobby becomes a blessing an annoyance or a helpful form of relaxation.

Uncontrolled Credit Loophole

By ELMER ROESSNER

There is a loophole in price control large enough to fire a round of inflation through. It is the failure to control credit.

The Administration has announced firmly there will be no credit controls.

So far, the cost of credit has not yet risen. Credit rates on loans to prime corporations have, in fact, declined a bit below rates that prevailed before the price freeze. The Federal Reserve has shaved the rediscount rate and last week the Treasury increased the money supply by buying $3 billion (b) worth of Federal securities back from banks, giving banks that much more cash to take care of year-end business.

Consumer credit has held fairly level and a few banks have cut rates on special-purposes loans. Retailers have not altered rates.

But they can.

What Can Happen

Retailers cannot raise prices without permission, except on exempt goods. And while permission seems readily obtainable by large manufacturers — and the bases for their claims remain secret from the public and their customers — a merchant might have more difficulty.

It will be simpler to raise the cost of credit.

Most retail credit is around 18 per cent. That's standard on revolving credit accounts. Auto and improvement loans are somewhat less. Credit card charges vary.

But there is nothing to prevent credit sellers from raising the rates as long as they obey the Truth-in-Lending Act. A retailer cannot raise the price of a bedroom set without permission, but he can raise the rate on the installment plan. A retailer selling a $500 set or a $500 TV set charging 18 per cent a year for credit gets $90 for credit. If he raises the credit charge to 24 per cent, he is, in effect, raising the price $30.

Of course, if the installments are paid off within a year, the interest on the declining balance cuts his gain in half. However, if payments extend longer, and they usually do, the gain is greater.

Credit Is Inflationary

Furthermore, consumer credit — in fact, all credit — is inflationary. Outstanding consumer credit in October was $131.6 billion (b). But by the time the Christmas add-ons are calculated, about February 1, it will be found to be about $135 billion. Of this, installment credit will be about $109 billion.

This credit increases the money supply by $135 billion, just as surely as if the Federal Reserve loaned that much to banks to loan to consumers.

Of course, we need credit: it's a sort of vaseline to keep the American economic system moving. But as long as rates are not controlled, it is possible to increase the cost of consumer goods bought on time.

Philosopher Using New Verbal Twists To Reach Moderns

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A pipe-smoking philosopher with a passion for the English language, Dr. Chad Walsh, is trying some new twists of verbal imagery to convey religious meanings to the modern generation.

"It's a matter of approaching the subject obliquely, appealing as much to the imagination and intuition as to the calculating mind," he says.

This indirect, subtler approach, contrasting with the old didactic style and traditional terminology, is in line with a change in outlook and mood developing in America.

"We're in one of the watershed periods when a change in consciousness and sensibility is taking place," Dr. Walsh said in an interview.

"There is a very profound revolt among the young against our sheer rationalism, which plays down the emotions and emphasizes only the mind. To them, logic is secondary and experience is primary."

Taking his cue from that transition, Dr. Walsh has put together a book, "God at Large," published by the Episcopal Church's Seabury Press, which packages classic Christian concepts in some unusual new wrappings.

He uses inkblots, Tarot cards, drawings, modern fairy tales, Hindu symbolism, poems, limericks, Zen koans (riddles) along with Biblical passages to get across the age-old Judeo-Christian teachings.

"It's an experiment born almost out of desperation to find a more effective style of communication that will be faithful to the Christian tradition," he said.

Dr. Walsh, 56, a professor of English at Beloit College, Beloit, Wis., and also an ordained Episcopal clergyman, said that religion, like other disciplines, tends to acquire a jargon that outsiders don't understand.

This tendency has heightened the need for new ways of communicating the faith, he said.

"Sometimes the traditional phrases and symbols wear out and have to be given a rest," he said. "They may be renewed, but right now, we're going to have to give them a vacation and express the content in new symbols," he added.

For those to whom the old symbols have become bare, he has resorted to various new devices of art and words to draw people subtly into religious thought, using such techniques as the Zen riddles.

One goes:

"Why don't you give away what you don't have?"

He said students generally are alienated from the organized church and critical of American society as too materialistic and impersonal, but they are open to religion if it is presented in other than "its present cut and dried terms."

Moreover, the regular Democrats complain that what little Muskie activity there has been here is directed at the party's liberal wing, a distinct minority. For example, Muskie agents have spent disproportionate time wooing Waco business man Bernard Rapoport, a leading liberal moneybags whose endorsement of Muskie is expected momentarily. While a remarkably sensible brand of Texas liberal, Rapoport scarcely represents the mainstream of the party here.

But even while courting Rapoport, Muskie incurred the wrath of some Texas liberals merely by meeting Barnes in Houston. Roy Evans, the new president of the state AFL-CIO and an implacable Barnes foe, felt that encounter showed unfathomable stupidity by Muskie.

Despite this overlay of Democratic sullenness, Texas Republicans — remembering Mr. Nixon's loss of the state in 1960 and, more remarkably, in 1968 — are cautious. That is why the same Republican leaders who condemned Texas Democrat Connally's appointment to the Cabinet now fervently pray that Connally will become a Republican and end up as Mr. Nixon's running-mate, thereby insuring the state.

Unsure of this happening, some Texas Republicans have put out this feeler to the Texas Democratic establishment: we will make no serious effort against your nominee for governor (presumably Barnes) if you don't go all-out to defeat Mr. Nixon and Republican Sen. John Tower.

But that is far from the intention of Texas establishment leaders: Barnes, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and national Democratic treasurer Robert Strauss. In particular Barnes is seething over the Nixon administration's unsuccessful effort to tie him into squalid financial scandals involving key state Democrats and would dearly love to see Mr. Nixon lose Texas for a third time.

That explains Barnes's frustration with Muskie as the probable nominee and the heated discussion in the Houston hotel room. In the months ahead, Muskie will have many opportunities to protray himself as a genuine centrist and give Texas Democrats a chance to campaign all-out in his behalf. If he does not, the 25 electoral votes of Texas which Mr. Nixon has always regarded as essential may be his by default.

Apparel Rules In Sauna Bath

DERBY, England (AP) — The City Council decided Thursday that "normal bathing costume" must be worn when mixed sessions begin soon at the municipal sauna baths.

"A normal bathing costume for males," chairman Louis MacDonald of the baths committee told the council, "is one which covers that part of the anatomy which is dangerous to the female of the species.

"The normal costume for females is one which covers that part of the anatomy which is even more dangerous to the male of the species."

According to Chief of Police Glenn Cannon, some of the items allegedly taken from the school at that time have been recovered.

All present members of the Vestry and the newly-elected will hold a meeting Sunday night at eight o'clock to elect its officers. Dr. Erwin Hester and Dr. Billy Jones have served this past year as the two Wardens of St. Paul's.

The parish gathers for worship Sunday at 7:30 for Holy Communion and at 9:30 and 11:15 for morning prayer.

Husband Shed By Raquel Welch

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Screen star Raquel Welch has shed her husband of five years, film producer Patrick Curtis.

In a Superior Court hearing that lasted less than 10 minutes Thursday, the twice-married actress was awarded an interlocutory divorce decree and token alimony of $1 a month. She had charged "irreconcilable differences."

She also retained custody of two children by her marriage to James W. Welch, a childhood sweetheart—10-year-old Damon and 8-year-old Tahnee.

Dr. Frank Fuller's motion to approve the $1.00 a year, month by month lease arrangement, was contingent on the availablility of about $18,000 from Police Club funds, plus a 5,000 ceiling assistance from contingency funds of the city budget. Councilman Dansey, presenting a report on means of financing repairs to the property, needed due to damage by vandalism, and finances necessary for operation of the project for the first year, stated that the total would amount to about $32,000. Of this amount, nearly $19,000 would be covered by state share funds; about $3,700 through "in-kind" work; and about $5,400 from the Recreation Commission's share of personnel costs and transfer of monies from two recreation budget items to this project. Altogether this would leave the city's share of the total estimated cost of $32,000 at about $4,800.

Another Recreation Commission request, one for the installation of a sidewalk in front of the South Greenville Recreation Center on Howell Street for a distance of about 375 feet, was approved. The Greenville Board of Education has indicated it will pay for the sidewalk on its property, the South Greenville Elementary School which is adjacent to the recreation center.

Two petitions for street improvements were considered by the council at its January meeting. Approval was given for priority work on construction of curb and gutter and the widening of East Fifth Street from Forest Hill Circle to Green Springs Park. The priority action was based on the difficult and dangerous situation that exists for school children due to the current condition of the street, one that dictates their walking on the edge of the street or in a ditch that borders the street along that point. A petition to install curb and gutter on West Longmeadow Road was placed on the chronological list of work to be performed in the future.

Hastings Ford was named the successful low bidder for two new automotive items of equipment, a 1972 automobile for the Greenville Police Department and a pick-up truck for the Fire Department and a pick-up truck for the Fire Department. The Governor's Highway Safety Commission will provide 50 per cent of the funds for the $3,278.50 automobile. The bid for the pick up truck was for $2,490.22.

Mayor West named councilmen Dr. Frank Fuller and John Taylor as the two members for a study committee to set out the missions and functions of the Human Relations Council and to assist the City Manager in the selection of Human Relations Director.

A change to the existing lease that adds approximately three acres of public land to the Moyewood Social Services Center was approved. The original lease, signed in December, 1967 between the City of Greenville and the Greenville Housing Authority, included the three acres. An amendment of March, 1970 withdrew the three acre portion, and last night's approval cancels the 1970 amendment and reinstates the original lease covering the entire area.

A refund of $15.00 for a privilege license purchased in error by Raynor-Forbes and Clark Warehouse was approved.

Councilmen also voted approval on a resolution that would continue the employment of C. K. Beatty, Director of Public Works, on a limited basis following his retirement, with a stipulation that the annual salary not exceed $2,400.

Payments to 34 police officers in the amount of $1,028 for off-duty time spent in court; and another sum of $1,072 for overtime hours in connection with December demonstrations were both approved.

In a final action of a long agenda, councilmen approved a Redevelopment Commission request for a public hearing on the close out of the Shore Drive Project. The hearing was set for the council's February 10 meeting, which will provide action in time to meet the June 30 deadline for closing out the project.

Replace An Entire Hip

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Surgeons at University Hospital in Augusta, Ga., have performed their first total hip replacement operation.

The operation, performed inside a sterile "greenhouse" type bubble set up in the operating room, was termed a "total success" by doctors, according to a spokesman.

Two orthopedic surgeons removed the top of the patient's leg bone and pelvic socket Thursday and replaced them with a stainless steel bone cap at the top of the leg bone and a high density polyethylene cup for a pelvic socket.

Surgeons at the hospital previously have replaced only the top of the leg bone or the pelvic socket. The sterile bubble reduces the threat of infection and allows both operations to be performed simultaneously.

A spokesman for the hospital said the two surgeons, who were not identified, were "very pleased" with the results of the 2½-hour operation. The doctors said the patient, also unidentified, will start moving the leg in four days and will stand up on the seventh day.

The spokesman said between 15 and 20 patients at the hospital are scheduled to undergo a similar operation.

The operation is presently planned for persons 65 years or older and is used mainly where the hip has been destroyed by arthritis, the spokesman said.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — More than 200 guests in the downtown Indianapolis Hilton Hotel were evacuated at daybreak today, many in their nightclothes, after fire broke out in a posh restaurant on one of the top floors.

As Warned, Bombs Planted In Banks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police found bombs in two New York banks and a Chicago bank today hours after media received anonymous warnings that bombs had been planted at banks in those two cities and in San Francisco.

Detectives deactivated a bomb in a safe-deposit box at a branch of the Marine Midland Trust Co. in New York shortly before it opened at 9 a.m. and at Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. on Wall Street.

In Chicago, a spokesman for the First National Bank of Chicago reported discovery of a bomb in a safe-deposit vault.

Handprinted letters were received special delivery early today by media in Chicago and San Francisco. They warned that bombs had been planted in the banks' safe-deposit boxes to demonstrate what the writer or writers called a plan to free political prisoners.

New York City Police Capt. Kenneth O'Neill described the device as battery-charged and smokeless, adding, "It would have made an effective bomb."

O'Neill and two detectives drilled into the clock encased in a 2½-foot-long safe-deposit box deep in the bank vault in the lower Manhattan branch.

The box was leased to a Charles Christopher Mohr, a police spokesman said. No further identification was made immediately.

Deputy Police Commissioner Robert Daley said New York police had been alerted by San Francisco police at midnight that Mohr's name was listed for safe-deposit boxes at two other Wall Street area banks.

"We are: 2nd graf original, deleting 1st lead

"We are taking this thing very seriously. We are not regarding it as a hoax," said Howard Pierson, a deputy superintendent of the Chicago police. Police in each city made plans to be at the banks when the time vaults opened this morning.

Special delivery letters, with Chicago postmarks, were received Thursday night at two newspapers and a radio station in the San Francisco area and at two newspapers in Chicago. They gave the bank addresses and in most cases a safety deposit box number where the bombs were said to be located in the three cities.

The letter suggested that in the future "the Movement in Amerika" might plant such bombs in buildings to "kidnap" the property "and offer it in exchange for the freedom of our people."

According to the letter, the unusual feature of the bombs is a long-range calendar clock timer with a cycle of seven months or 217 days.

"Prototype timers were made of low quality cordless electric clocks," the letter said. "In future bombings they will be highly reliable, nearly silent electronic watches.

"Similarly, the slow-burning powder placed in these safety deposit boxes would instead be contact plastic explosives," the letter said.

A detective with the New York City bomb squad, who declined to be named, said he had not heard of utilizing such a timer in a bomb but added he would not rule out the possibility.

Explaining the purpose of the bombs, the letter noted: "Kidnaping people and demanding property or money in exchange for their lives exemplifies the anti-life property values of a sick and brutal society. The Movement in Amerika would do better to kidnap property and offer it in exchange for the freedom of our people."

Skyjackers Demand A Larger Airliner

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A shotgun-armed man and a woman with a baby hijacked a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet from Los Angeles to Tampa today then asked for a bigger plane which officials said the hijackers wanted to take to Africa.

Officials said whether they got the plane was up to the FBI, which had cleared the airport of normal traffic.

The request came as the Boeing 727 was being refueled following a four-hour flight from the West Coast that began when a black man jammed a shotgun in a stewardess' back, grabbed her by the ponytail and forced her to the cockpit.

Passengers said his black woman companion covered the passengers with a pistol and warned them to "look forward or somebody's going to get shot."

The PSA commuter plane was en route from San Francisco to Los Angeles when the hijackers took over. The hijackers allowed 134 passengers and a steward to leave the plane at Los Angeles then ordered the pilot and nine other PSA employes to accompany them to Florida.

Paul MacAllister, assistant director of the Hillsborough County Aviation Authority in Tampa, said at the time the request was made for a plane to fly to Africa there were no aircraft in the airport that could make the flight.

All flight operations were shut down at the airport and police set up roadblocks to keep arriving passengers away from the airport.

The red, white and silver 727 was taking on 9,000 gallons of fuel from two fuel trucks, MacAllister said, when the request came for a larger plane to take the hijackers to Africa.

FBI agents kept airport personnel inside the terminal after the hijackers radioed there was to be "nobody in sight" when the jet touched down. Flights destined for Tampa were diverted to Miami and other area airports.

A jeep trailing a 12-foot ladder carried to the plane aeronautical charts of the U.S. Eastern Seaboard as the hijackers had requested.

FBI agents showed the jeep driver and drivers of the fuel trucks a number of wanted posters, but there was no immediate word as to the hijackers' identities.

When the plane put down in Los Angeles, the male hijacker said, "I don't want these people. I want them off," and ordered the passengers to leave.

Tax Exemption For Some Of Over-65s

Pitt County Tax Supervisor R. S. Moye said certain retired persons 65-year-old or older may be eligible for a tax exemption if they have a limited income and own their own home.

Persons 65 or older and who are not regularly engaged in an income-producing activity and who have a disposable (gross income) of $3,500 or less may be eligible for the exemption, according to Moye.

He said the law now provides up to a $5,000 exemption of the appraised value of real property owned by retired persons, provided the individual is making that property his principal place of residence. Rental property is not eligible for the exemption, Moye emphasized. Neither is personal property.

For the purpose of the exemption, Moye explained, the term "residence" includes the homesite lot, the dwelling, and related improvements, but is not applicable to mobile homes except those which are properly classified as real property.

For further information about eligibility for the exemptions under the new law, Moye said, interested persons may contact the Pitt County Tax Supervisors office at the Pitt County Court House. Moye noted that application forms for the exemptions are also available from his office.

Spiders Whammy Pirates Again, 68-67

Driving Attempt

The next time the Pirates of East Carolina University meet the University of Richmond, Coach Tom Quinn may ask for a search of Spider coach Lou Mills.

The Buc mentor will probably be trying to find that lucky horseshoe, rabbit's foot, or whatever it is that Mills has that seems to put the whammy on the Pirates.

Whatever it is that Mills has, he pulled out and used again last night on the Bucs to gain a 68-67 victory that left the Bucs stunned. For to lose the game, the Bucs had to go the final eight and a half minutes without a single field goal.

And Richmond had to do some things it hasn't done all year.

Perhaps the best thing Richmond did was to shoot foul shots. The Spiders came into the game with the worst free throw shooting percentage in the Southern Conference, just under 60 per cent. But against the Pirates, they hit on 16 of 22, for 72.7 per cent, and that was the game. The Bucs hit only 61.3, making 19 or 31, and just two more would have won the game for them.

The final eight-minute cold spell for the Bucs cost them a 12-point spread that they had gained at that point, when it looked like they were going to run the Spiders right out of Minges Coliseum.

But then Mills began fingering his voodoo charms, and the Pirates caught the hex.

And since in each of the past three years the Bucs have lost close ones to Richmond, maybe this year's close one is over now, and the Bucs can go about their business the rest of the way.

The game was close throughout the first half of play, as the lead changed hands on six occasions and was knotted up six times. The Pirates built up as much as a four-point lead two times along the way, while Richmond held an early five point lead and a late four-point edge.

Richmond got the opening basket on a drive by Mike Anastasio, but the Bucs came back with a free throw by Jerome Owens and a basket by Al Faber to take a 3-2 lead. Richmond moved out again, getting shots by Anastasio, Jeff Snider and John Welch to take an 8-3 lead before the Bucs finally came back to tie it at 8-8.

Dave Franklin hit to put the Bucs on top, 10-9, and then Owens hit to make the lead three. Richmond tied it again at 13-13, but the Bucs got two free throws from Jim Fairley and a basket from him to take a four-point edge, 17-13.

Richmond regained the lead at 18-17 on a three-point play by Snider, but the Bucs got back on top on a shot by Fairley. They again moved out by four, 23-19, but fell behind again as Clarke Wiseman hit two from the line and Gus Collier added two more for a 25-23 lead. The Bucs tied it up on another Fairley basket, but Wiseman hit and Anastasio followed with a bucket to give Richmond a 29-25 edge. The Pirates came back with two free throws by Faber and a basket by him to cut the halftime lead to 30-29.

In the second half, it remained tight for the opening five minutes. The Bucs and Spiders matched points until East Carolina moved out into a two-point edge at 44-42 on two more Fairley free throws with 15:03 left.

Joe Dauses hit a free throw for Richmond and then the Pirates caught fire. Franklin hit a shot from underneath, and Earl Quash scored from the line. Quash hit on a jumper to up the lead to six. After Richmond got a basket, Ray Peszko and Owens hit and upped the lead to eight, 53-45. Richmond added a free throw and then Owens and Franklin hit again, making it 57-46. After another Richmond charity shot, Faber hit and the lead was 12.

It dropped back to nine, but baskets by Franklin and Fairley brought it back to 12 at 63-51 with 8:48 to go.

And then Mills went into his mumbo-jumbo spell on the Pirates.

Snider began to hit from everywhere as he led the Spider comeback. Wiseman hit to cut it to 10 and Snider followed with a jumper to cut it to eight. Another basket by Wiseman and a free throw by him trimmed the lead to just five, 63-58. Wiseman hit a turnaround shot, but Faber countered by hitting two free throws.

Snider hit again, and Welch followed with a three-point play that tied it up at 65-65 with 2:36 to go. Snider then got a free throw to put the Spiders into the lead, 66-65, with 1:58 to go.

The Bucs worked deliberately, but couldn't get the shot. Fairley was fouled as he tried, and made both with 54 seconds left, giving the Bucs a 67-66 edge.

The Spiders came back down and worked carefully, finally getting the ball in close to Snider, who hit from underneath to put them back up, 68-67, with 14 seconds left.

The Bucs called a time-out to set up their final shot, which was taken by Al Faber with three seconds left. It hit the rim and rolled across, and a tap failed before the ball was grabbed by Richmond as the horn sounded.

Snider finished with 21 points, while Wiseman had 16 and Anastasio had 12.

For the Pirates, Fairley had 21, Franklin had 14 and Faber had 13.

The Pirates completely dominated the boards, grabbing off a 42-25 advantage. Fairley had 15, while Faber had 11 to lead the Bucs in that department.

The loss was the seventh in 10 games for the Bucs, and dropped their Southern Conference record to 1-2, and only VMI stands between the Bucs and the cellar.

Richmond, meanwhile, climbed to 3-6 overall, and 2-1 in the league, good enough to pull into a three-way tie for first.

The Pirates get a chance to either move up or drop alone into the cellar Saturday night when they entertain Virginia Military Institute, the current basement dweller.

Roanoke-Chowan Drops Pitt Tech

BETHEL — Pitt Technical Institute fell, 100-85, to an inspired Roanoke-Chowan Technical Institute team last night. The loss was the third for the Paladins in league play.

"They are the best team in the league," Paladin Coach Bob Turner said afterwards. "They are real big, and had us by three inches a man."

But Turner also felt that Roanoke-Chowan was playing with a little extra last night. This was the first outing for both teams following the Christmas-New Year holidays. "Their coach, David Hendricks, was killed in an automobile wreck during the holidays," Tunrer said. "I feel like they were playing with a little bit of extra effort in his memory."

The game was nip-and-tuck through the first 10 minutes of the first half, with both teams swapping baskets. But after that, Roanoke-Chowan pushed out into a 23-17 lead and held a five or six point edge until late in the half when Pitt pulled back to cut the lead to as little as two. The Paladins trailed, however, 46-42 at the half.

In the opening minutes of the second half, Roanoke-Chowan took advantage of a cold spell by Pitt to pull away again, moving out to as much as a 12-point spread. Pitt Tech then went into a half-court press and cut the lead down to as little as five. But Roanoke-Chowan again pulled away, this time moving out by 10.

The Paladins then went into a full-court press, and with three minutes left, had cut the lead back to three. But they ran out of gas there, and Roanoke-Chowan used the final three minutes to add 12 more points to the lead.

W. Owens led Roanoke-Chowan with 30 points, while H. Wynne had 26, W. Russell had 22 and J. Veale had 12.

Wayne Brown led Pitt Tech wih 36, while Eddie Stokes had 24 and Leslie Saunders had 13.

Baby Bucs Bow On Late Rally

East Carolina's University's freshmen blew a 14-point lead in the final 10 minutes of the game last night to bow to Richmond, 71-68.

The Baby Bucs had held a 56-42 lead with 10:50 left to play, but the Spiders outscored them, 29-12 during the final 10 minutes of the game and claimed the victory.

The loss was the fifth in a row for the Baby Bucs, who have yet to win a game. Richmond improved its record to 4-5 for the season.

The first half of the contest was a nip-and-tuck affair, with the lead changing hands several times. Neither team was able to build much of an advantage at any time. The Pirates moved out by five during the early minutes of the game, building up a 9-4 lead, but they couldn't hold it. Richmond held as much as a three-point spread late in the half.

Overall in the first half, the lead changed hands only four times, but the game was tied on 13 times. The last time it was tied was with 32 second to go when Tom Shore hit a three-point play for the Bucs to make ti 30-30. But Barry Taylor hit a rebounding shot with three seconds left to give the Baby Spiders a 32-30 lead at intermission.

In the second half, the two battled until the Pirates got a 38-36 lead on a shot by Tom Marsh with 16:56 to go. From there, the Bucs pulled away, and finally built up a 14-point spread.

A three-point play by Bob Ringer with 12:03 to go upped the lead to 10 at 52-42, and Fred Stone and Ringer added two more baskets for the 56-42 lead.

But Taylor and Dave Williams sparked the Spiders after that, and they slowly nibbled away at the Pirates lead. They cut it to two at 59-57, but the Bucs pushed back out by six at 63-57.

Richmond then cut it to one on a free throw by Williams with 3:32 to go, making it 64-63. Williams then hit on a pair of jumpers and that put Richmond on top, 67-64, and they never trailed again.

Taylor led the Spiders with 19 points, while Williams had 15. Bob Haldeman added 13 and Richard Bloom had 10.

For the Pirates, Marsh finished with 19, while Stone had 12, Ringer had 16 and Mike Smith had 11.

NCAA Seeking Answer To Financial Problem

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association was set today to discuss separating the big-time schools from the smaller ones in the wake of a prediction by Eddie Crowder that "almost startling clarity will ensue as soon as division occurs."

Crowder, football coach and athletic director at the University of Colorado, was a consultant to a special NCAA committee that made the controversial recommendations to limit the number of athletic scholarships and base them solely on financial need.

He said Thursday during a three-hour round-table discussion on the opening day of the NCAA's annual convention that it is "impossible to come up with a solution to govern in the neighborhood of 650 schools.

"The solution," he added, "is division of the NCAA into separate groups with each voting on proposals related to their particular problems."

Crowder made his remarks after Earle Edwards of North Carolina State, president of the American Football Coaches Association, and Bill Wall of MacMurray College, head of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, said their groups strongly opposed basing athletic scholarships on need.

Edwards cited a poll of more than 100 coaches at University Division (major) schools which showed 90 per cent against the need formula.

The proposals under discussion Thursday will not come up for a vote during this convention—the business session is scheduled for Saturday—but the delegates will be asked to vote on whether to convene an unprecedented special convention in the late spring to consider the recommendations.

Although the general feeling is that sooner or later something will have to be done to curtail the rising costs of intercollegiate athletics, the delegates differed on whether a special convention would be necessary.

Saturday, the powerful NCAA Council will introduce a resolution to consider both separate divisions as well as the financial aid proposals at any special convention. If that fails, the Council said it would push for a special convention to consider separate divisions only. If that also fails, it will propose considering financial aid only.

The NCAA's more than 650 member institutions have athletic budgets ranging from the neighborhood of $20,000 to more than $3 million.

Coaching Team Like Marriage

NEW YORK (AP) — What is it like to coach a hockey team for 25 years? Well, says Anatoli Tarasov, the man behind the bench for Russia's defending Olympic champions, it is like being married. Only better.

"We understand each other," said Tarasov, leaning against a corridor wall in Madison Square Garden, an interpreter at his side. "Our coach has been with us for 25 years, with one and the same team. When you have a wife for a quarter of a century, you can get bored. But you never get bored with a team. It is an exceptional joy of life."

Tarasov's well-drilled Soviets thumped the United States national team 11-4 Thursday night in an international exhibition game. The Russian coach called the game "useful for both sides," but when he was asked what chance the young Americans might have in the Olympics, he laughed.

"Suppose we lose," the roly-poly Russian said, sounding like he didn't believe such a thing could possibly happen. "You will still be disappointed. There are the Czechs, Finland and Sweden and then your team."

The Americans, who beat the Czechs twice in World Cup play, were in Thursday night's game for only the first 10 minutes, when it was scoreless. Then the Soviets struck for three goals in 57 seconds and before the period was over, it was 5-0.

The Russians added to their lead with three more goals in the second period. But the score that brought the crowd of 14,823 to its feet was the first U.S. goal, by smallish Stu Irving, a Viet Nam veteran.

In the third period, both teams scored three times, with Irving, Henry Boucha and Rob Ftorek connecting for the Americans. It was in that period that a communications gap developed between the Russian bench and referee Bob Giovatti.

There was a brief scuffle against the boards between the Soviets' Eugeny Mishakov and Keith Christiansen of the U.S. team. Mishakov dropped his gloves to throw punches, while the American seemed intent on maintaining a peaceful co-existence.

When it was settled, both players were tagged with minor penalties, but Mishakov also was assessed a 10-minute match misconduct, which, under international rules, calls for his team to skate short-handed for the full span of the penalty.

Perhaps your next new car shouldn't be a new car at all.

$5,000 for any previously owned Continental makes more sense than the same amount for an average new car.

If you're going to spend the kind of money that can put you in an immaculate, fully equipped, late-model Continental... don't settle for less. Move up to the prestige, luxury and pride of ownership that is uniquely Continental.

There's no better time than now. Unprecedented sales of 1972 Continentals have resulted in an outstanding selection of previously owned models. You'll be impressed with the cars and the relative cost of moving up.

No matter how you look at it, a nearly new classic Continental makes good sense. Think it over, then talk it over with the dealer nearest you... before you buy a lesser car.

The typical previously owned Continental has a full range of luxury and convenience features. Air conditioning, full power and leather-with-vinyl upholstery are common.

Presbyterian In Early Lead

First Presbyterian has grabbed the early lead in the Church Basketball League. The Presbyterians did it with a 57-54 victory over St. James last night.

In the other games, Immanuel nipped Piney Grove, 56-54, while Trinity downed St. Paul's, 54-43.

Presbyterian is now 2-0, closely followed by Black Jack and Immanuel, both 1-0. Trinity and Piney Grove are both 1-1, followed by Oakmont and St. James, both 0-1, and St. Paul's, 0-2.

In the opener, Presbyterian inched out into a 26-24 lead over St. James in the first half. The game stayed close throughout, with Presbyterian having a 31-30 advantage in the final period to get the win.

Larry Graham led Presbyterian with 26 points, while Robert Harring had 22 and Guy Howell had 10 for St. James.

Piney Grove slipped into a first half lead over Immanuel, 25-23, but was unable to hold onto it. Immanuel came back with a 33-29 advantage in the final half, and that was enough to pull out the two-point victory.

David Hahn led Immanuel with 14, while Bill Tripp added 12. For Piney Grove, Wayne Avery had 15, Jim Mills had 13, Tom Meeks had 11 and Buddy Allen had 10.

Trinity gained a 27-20 lead in the first half of its game and then held onto it for the win. In the second half, they outscored St. James, 27-23, to take it.

D. R. Daniels had 17 and Donald Bowen had 12 for Trinity, while Jack Wall had 17 for St. Paul's.

Benching Helps Taylor To Shine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Virginia Squires Coach Al Bianchi felt Fatty Taylor wasn't earning his pay against the Pittsburgh Condors so he stuck the backcourt defensive specialist on the bench for almost one quarter.

Then Taylor went back in and earned his salary ... and then some.

"We felt we could go out there and relax, play anyway and beat them," Taylor said after the Squires overcame a first-half deficit for a 137-130 American Basketball Association victory over Pittsburgh Thursday night.

Virginia trailed by 15 points early in the contest against a team they had defeated six times in six meetings this season.

Bianchi was so miffed he benched all his starters. With three minutes to go in the first half and the Condors on top by 13 points, Taylor re-entered the game, made a steal and pumped in seven quick points to give Virginia a 66-65 halftime edge.

In Thursday's other ABA game, the Dallas Chaparrals nipped the Memphis Pros 104-103.

"I was embarrassed by the way I played and I couldn't wait to go back there and show I could get the job done," Taylor said. Charley Scott then added 15 of his 28 points in the third stanza and Pittsburgh never threatened again despite Bob Verga's 43 points.

Steve Jones hit two free throws with 39 seconds left as Dallas survived a late rally by Memphis as the Pros overcame an 89-78 disadvantage and tied the game 95-all with 2:26 left. Donnie Freeman of the Chaps paced all scorers with 25 points and teammate Rich Jones added 23.

Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals has stolen 50 or more bases a season seven times.

Only Way To Beat UCLA Is To Overpower Them

LOS ANGELES (AP) — How do you beat UCLA?

The prescription comes from none other than Bruins Coach John Wooden.

"We could be overpowered," he says. "Our forwards, at 6-5 and 6-6 and 170-180 pounds, are smaller and lighter than most forwards we'll face in the conference. We're more apt to suffer in a rough game, especially if officiating gets loose and most likely on the road."

But eight opponents have been unable to find the formula thus far. As the Bruins open their conference season at Oregon State tonight, they are top-ranked nationally, leading the nation in scoring, and lopsided favorites to win the Pacific-8 once again and enter the NCAA playoffs in pursuit of their sixth straight national title.

This is Wooden's kind of team—quick, agile, pressing, fast-breaking, disciplined, deep. There is no Lew Alcindor or Sidney Wicks to pass the ball to and then get out of the way. But there is plenty of talent to be molded by the decade's most successful college basketball coach, and Wooden says, "I'm enjoying it very much."

It takes much longer for the coach to describe his team's strength than its weaknesses.

"We have good balance, speed, quickness, and the good big man," he says. "We have a blend of good outside shooting and the good inside game. Our strength is in running and pressing, but I think we can play most any type of game and have a good chance."

To add to the nightmares of frustrated opposing coaches, three of UCLA's starters are sophomores—Keith Wilkes, a catlike 6-6 forward who Wooden says might have started on last year's team if freshmen were eligible; Greg Lee, a strong, clever 6-4 guard; and Bill Walton.

"If we build around anyone it's Walton," says Woode of the redhaired 6-11 center with the weak knees and the quick hands who has overmatched everyone he's faced in his first eight varsity games.

Last week, when the Bruins faced Ohio State in what was supposed to be their first real test, Walton personally took care of the Buckeyes' two stars, guard Allan Hornyak and center Luke Witte.

He swatted down everything Hornyak put up near the basket, swept the 7-foot Witte off the boards and got the UCLA fast break winging as the Bruins jumped in front 30-8 and coasted in.

"This should have been a test for us," says Wooden with almost a note of disappointment in his voice. "One of our weaknesses might be how we will do when we get under pressure."

If they should get under pressure—and it could happen against Oregon State tonight—chances are the Bruins will look to Henry Bibby, the only senior in the starting lineup. He's a cool, sharpshooting guard who seems to have become even more effective with the advent of Walton.

In the UCLA set offense, Bibby plays the left wing, where Keith Erickson and John Vallely used to play, and Walton takes the low post, posing a neat dilemma for opponents who want to concentrate on one of the two.

"If Bibby's man drops back, he can shoot," Wooden says. "If he moves up Bibby can drive around him or take the ball in to Walton."

But this weekend, when the Bruins open their conference season at Oregon State and Oregon, they might not have their big man at full strength.

Walton came down with strep throat after the Ohio State game last Thursday and hasn't practiced since.

He was considered doubtful for the Oregon trip earlier this week but called Wooden Wednesday night and told him he "definitely felt able to go, though he's not very strong," the coach says.

Walton's backup man is Swen Nater, 6-11 and a good shooter but "not in Walton's class," Wooden says.

But barring crippling injuries to Walton and Bibby, UCLA figures to have too many guns, even in a conference that contains two good, big teams from the Northwest, Oregon State and Washington, and a powerful neighbor in Southern Cal.

The Trojans, Wooden says, are "the team to beat." When USC's lack of depth, brought on by three preseason injuries, is mentioned, he replies, "Depth really isn't that important in basketball."

It's an easy statement to make when you're holding all the cards. And this year, once again, John Wooden has them.

Morehead Pulls Off Upset Of Marshall

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's not often that any basketball team outruns—or outguns—Marshall's Thundering Herd, but it happened Thursday night.

Morehead State, hitting 68.4 per cent of its shots from the field in the first half, raced to a 61-53 lead at intermission and went on to score a 103-98 upset victory over the 13th-ranked Thundering Herd—at Marshall, no less.

Morehead Coach Bill Harrell used a starting line-up of five sophomore, and one of them, forward Eugene Lyons, responded by scoring a career-high 27 points, 25 of them in the first half explosion.

There was an element of deja vu to the game, and it wasn't a pleasant one for Marshall fans.

The last time Marshall was ranked in the top 20 was during the 1955-56 season, when the Thundering Herd briefly held the No. 18 spot. The following week they were knocked off by Morehead State, and the school had not held a national ranking again until this season.

Now it's happened again.

After Morehead took an early 24-14 lead, Marshall caught up and passed the Eagles at 34-33. A jumper by Lyons put Morehead on top 46-45 and the Eagles stayed on top till Randy Noll put Marshall ahead 80-79 with a foul shot with 7:06 remaining.

But Morehead responded to the challenge, outscoring Marshall 19-8 for a 98-87 lead and the game.

Lyons' running-mate at forward, Len Coulter, scored 26 for Morehead and guard Bill Dotson added 20. For Marshall, guard Mike D'Antoni netted 28, center Russell Lee tallied 23 and forward Randy Noll scored 21 points and pulled down a game-high 11 rebounds.

No. 15 Southwestern Louisiana, 7-1, avenged its only loss of the season by whipping Eastern Kentucky 87-80. The Bulldogs had dropped a 105-99 decision at Eastern Kentucky Dec. 1.

Dwight Lamar, the nation's leading scorer, pumped in 34 points to pace the Bulldogs, who took the lead for good midway through the first half and led by as much as 18 in the second half.

On the West Coast eighth-ranked Long Beach State opened defense of its Pacific Coast Athletic Association crown with an 89-75 triumph over San Diego State. Lamont King topped the 49ers, now 11-1, with 21 points while Jimmy Wilkins was high for the Aztecs with 20.

Senior guard Sam Simmons popped in 24 points to lead Bradley to a 95-79 Missouri Valley Conference victory over Memphis State. Don Holcomb scored 24 and Larry Finch 21 for the losers.

Sonny Willis sank four free throws in the final 20 seconds to give Houston a 70-66 victory over Colorado. Houston, 7-4, got 24 points and 13 rebounds from Dwight Davis.

In other major games, defending Missouri Valley champion Drake opened its conference schedule with a 61-58 victory over Wichita State; Louisiana State ended a six-game losing streak by tripping Georgetown, D.C. 90-71, and Weber State launched the defense of its Big Sky Conference crown by trouncing Gonzaga 84-48.

Marti Feels Time Coming

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Big Fred Marti, the first-round leader in the $125,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament, has yet to win a major tournament in six years in the pro tour—but feels his time may be coming.

"You've just got to keep trying, keep playing, and get lucky," the big blond said after shooting a sterling six-under-par 65 for a one stroke lead in this kickoff event of the long 1972 pro tour.

The Texan led the field despite continued weakness from a bout with pnuemonia that knocked him out of the last few tournaments of the 1971 season.

He held a one-stroke margin over George Archer, Bob Smith, Hale Irwin, Curtis Sifford and young John Mahaffey, a 23-year-old tour rookie and former national collegiate champion.

Geroge Boutell was alone at 67, with four others tied at 68 in the bright warm sunshine that bathed the 6,823-yard, par 71 Rancho Park Golf Course. They are Gene Littler, Tom Weiskopf, Jim Wiechers and Larry Wood.

Arnold Palmer had a 69, Billy Casper took a 71 and Lee Trevino struggled home with a fat 74, far back in the field and in danger of missing the cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday unless he improves.

"I think it's mostly experience," Marti said of the improved play that put him on top of this tournament and staked him to his best season of his career last year. He won the satellite Ontario Open, finished second in the Kaiser and won almost $60,000.

He spiced his round with a five-under-par 30 on his front nine, including a 20-foot birdie putt on his first hole. He also reached a par five in two, twice hit irons inside five feet and made another from 10 feet. He had two birdies coming home, but faltered with a bogey when he was short of a green and, tiring, failed to birdie either of the par five finishing holes.

Right Phrases Help In Selling

Morris wants to get into the upper 10 percent of what are the real "Sparkplugs of Civilization," namely, salesmen. This is a very specialized field of Applied Psychology. To win, you must "prospect" wisely and avoid jarring words such as "Sign here!" Instead, say, "Just O.K. it here!"

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-564: Morris T., aged 24, is a beginning salesman.

"Dr. Crane," he asked after my luncheon address to his group, "I would like to become a star salesman.

"But at present I rate in the lower 10 percent of our 50-man sales force.

"So how can I learn to close more sales?

"For I am nervous and uncertain of myself as I approach the dotted line stage."

Sales Psychology

For many years I taught the "Sales and Advertising Psychology" courses at George Washington University as well as Northwestern University.

But I also worked for 2 years as a door-to-door salesman; then spent a full year as a traveling salesman with the Great Lakes States as my territory.

So I offer you not mere braintruster sales psychology but modify it with practical "horse sense."

Here are some of the salient points to remember in selling:

(1) Use the prospect's name frequently in your sales talk, for this reassures him that you are more nearly a friend.

(2) But also get your own name into the interview often so he will feel that he knows you well.

For people hesitate to buy anything from a foe or even a stranger!

Knowing each other's name makes you seem like old friends, even after a mere 15-minute interview!

And to work your own name into the dialogue, employ the indirect discourse technique as:

"Your neighbor, Mr. Brown, asked me that same question last week when I sold him a policy, for he said, 'Morris, does that monthly premium cover all contingencies?' "

(3) Let the prospect participate in the sales demonstration when possible.

That's why vacuum sweeper salesmen routinely lean the handle toward the housewife as they look for a floor plug.

For that handle is automatically accepted by the woman, who then is told:

"Just push it over the rug, Mrs. Hall, and see how smoothly it runs.

"You can also start it by merely touching that little button with the toe of your shoe."

Then the salesman parades around, dropping some sawdust on the rug ahead of the housewife while she cleans up after him.

He may look like the flower girl at a wedding but this strategy creates a possessive feeling for the new sweeper.

Auto salesmen likewise ask their prospect to drive the new car around the block or even let him keep the car over the weekend.

For the longer we use an object, the greater is our dislike of giving it up, so we are more amenable to that "dotted line" stage!

(4) In selling insurance, use pad and pencil and figure slowly in the prospect's sight, so the latter can be a jump ahead of you in adding or multiplying.

This reassures the prospect that the figures are correct!

And also inflates his ego in thinking he is better at math than you are!

Since everybody wants to feel important, this is a deft indirect compliment for the prospect!

(5) Use the "minor decision" re deliver, as "Would you rather have delivery Saturday in time for the week-end cleaning or will Monday be O.K.?"

Don't bluntly say, "Well, do you want it or don't you?"

For further advice, send for my booklet "The New Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Twenty-one missions and four presidios were established in California by the Spanish between 1769 and 1823, says the California Almanac.

Rodanthe Is Getting Set

RODANTHE, N.C. (AP) — The tiny village of Rodanthe on North Carolina's Outer Banks is getting ready to celebrate Old Christmas Saturday.

It will mark the 217th year the residents have celebrated Christmas according to the medieval calendar of their English forebearers.

The actual date of Old Christmas is Jan. 5, but the celebration was put off until the weekend so it would not interfere with work and school.

Woodrow Edwards, postmaster of nearby Waves, is in charge of the festivities this year. He said there will be a musical presentation and a shooting match featuring baskets of oysters as prizes.

Highlight of the celebration will be the traditional appearance of "Old Buck," the mythical wild bull of the Cape Woods.

An Old Fallacy About Frostbite

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Medical Association advises there are a lot of common fallacies about forstbite.

Don't rub frosbitten parts with snow. Rubbing increases the risk of gangrene. Never, the association urges, use hot water bottles or heat lamps.

The Antarctic Peninsula and South America once were connected by a land bridge, says National Geographic.

Opening lead: Nine of ♣

When South opened the bidding with one spade, North's holding was too strong for an immediate jump raise [the limits of which are 13-16 points] and not quite enough for a jump shift [which shows 19 points]. North's hand is worth 17 points in support and requires an indirect sequence of bids.

The initial step was a simple forcing response of two clubs. When South rebid two hearts, North forced once more by naming a second suit. Over three no trump, North finally showed the fit by bidding four spades. If the opener held additional values, he might be expected to carry on. With a bare minimum and a concentration of strength in North's short suit, South was more than content to settle for game on the deal.

West opened the nine of clubs and the ace was played from dummy. A spade was led and East hastened to put up the ace in order to return clubs—the suit in which his partner was obviously short. The king was cashed, on which West discarded a diamond and then the four was led and ruffed by the latter to complete the defensive book.

Inasmuch as East had led back his lowest club for the ruff, West interpreted this play as a suit preference signal, requesting him to return the lower ranking of the two remaining suits—diamonds. The shift was to the six of diamonds, however declarer went up with dummy's ace since he was now in position to take full charge. A spade to the ten drew the remaining trump and the ace and king of hearts were cashed, followed by a heart ruff which put North in to play the queen of clubs on which South disposed of his remaining diamond. Declarer's hand was now high.

East could have defeated the contract had he retained control of the club suit. When he goes in with the ace of spades at trick two, he must return the four of clubs without first cashing the king. Now when West shifts to a diamond after he ruffs, South has no recourse but to finesse the queen. East wins with the king of diamonds and can cash the king of clubs for the setting trick.

Registration Of Bicycles Urged

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon today urged bicycle owners within the city limits to comply with the City Ordinance and have their bicycles registered at police headquarters.

Bicycles, the chief said, can be registered at the Police Department's Records and Identification Bureau from 8 a.m. to 12 Noon and 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. each week-day. The 50-cents registration fee, he explained, is designed to defray the cost of the registration program.

According to Chief Cannon, the registration program aids police officers in combatting losses due to the theft of bicycles within the city.

He said registration of bicycles enables law enforcement officers to return stolen and abandoned bicycles to their rightful owners. The registration program also enables officers to prove ownership of bicycles in theft cases.

Each year a number of bicycles recovered by the police department are sold at auction by the city because they have not been registered and therefore could not be returned to their owners.

Sixty-three bicycles were sold by the department in December. Another 25 bicycles were returned to their owners by the department during 1971.

Some 3,000 bicycle licenses were issued by the department during 1971, while to date this year, only 251 bicycles have been registered.

Last year, 157 bicycles were reported stolen.

According to Chief Cannon, persons operating bicycles not bearing current, 1972 registration stickers, are in violation of the city code and are subject to arrest. He also noted that unregistered bicycles may be confiscated unless ownership can be proven.

Even though students at East Carolina University are required to register their bicycles on campus, Chief Cannon said, they still must comply with the city code and have their vehicles registered with the city police department.

Boy Injured In Accident

A pedestrian was reported injured and more than $800 property damage reported in two mishaps investigated by Greenville police officers yesterday.

Ten-year-old James Nichols Jr. of 501 Church St. was reported hurt when he allegedly stepped into the path of a vehicle driven by Allie David Eakes, 68 of Route 1, Stokes about 4 p.m. on Greene Street, 180 feet North of the Church Street intersection.

No charges were made by officers who said an estimated $10 damage resulted to the Eakes vehicle.

William Alton Bowling Jr., 22, of Route 4, New Bern, was charged with following too closely following investigation of a 2:50 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth Street and Rocksprings Road.

Officers identified the drivers of the other two vehicles involved in the mishap as James Delacy Sandlin III, 22, of Rose Hill and John David Staley, 20, of McLean, Virginia.

Damage was estimated at $200 to the Sandlin and Bowling cars and $400 to the Staley auto.

No injuries were reported in the collision.

Wayne Morse To Try Regain Seat

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Wayne Morse is going to try and regain a seat in the U.S. Senate.

Morse, defeated in 1968 by Republican Robert Packwood after serving 24 years in the Senate first as a Republican and then as a Democrat, filed his candidacy Thursday for the Democratic nomination.

Morse's target this year will be the Senate seat held by Republican Mark O. Hatfield. Morse and Hatfield are both outspoken opponents of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

No. 2 Man In Chile Is 'Suspended'

By ISAAC A. LEVI
Associated Press Writer

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile's lower house voted 80 to 59 Thursday night to impeach the No. 2 man in the Chilean government, but President Salvadore Allende urged his Marxist supporters to keep the peace.

The vote in the House of Deputies automatically suspended Interior Minister Jose Toha from the Cabinet until the Senate—sitting as a jury—finds him guilty or innocent of charges that he permitted illegal armed groups to operate and violated the right of peaceful protest. The interior minister is first in line of presidential succession.

"The grounds on which the House impeached Toha were illegal," Allende angrily told 1,500 of his supporters who massed before the presidential mansion after midnight. "If they overthrow him as minister, I'll see to it that tomorrow he is appointed to another cabinet post."

But Allende, facing what may be the gravest crisis since taking office 14 months ago, urged his supporters to remain within the law.

The Christian Democratic party, the National party and the Radicals—which together make up strong majorities in the House and Senate—accused Toha, 48 and a Socialist like Allende, of violating the constitution by his actions as chief of the nation's police forces.

Testimony Thursday before the House said he tolerated such allegedly illegal armed groups as Allende's Cuban-trained bodyguard and the Socialist and Communist party youth brigades. Opposition deputies also testified Toha permitted police to break up the march last month by 5,000 women protesting food shortages.

The debate lasted 13 hours while 3,000 leftists marched around the Congress building. There was no violence.

March Of Dimes Campaign Set

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The March of Dimes, more accurately the National Foundation-March of Dimes campaign, is now under way in Greenville and Pitt County.

The 1972 Campaign Director of the 1972 March of Dimes, Leland Raine Moore, Jr., and Publicity Chairman Mrs. Lauren Riddick have jointly announced events scheduled to mark the campaign which began officially on January 1.

The familiar coin collection devices used annually for the March of Dimes drive are on location in various places in Greenville, Farmville, Ayden and Bethel. These were put in use in December and will be kept there through January.

Other activities on the calendar of fund-raising efforts are a "Coffee Day" on January 14. This will be an effort coordinated by Jaycettes of Greenville, Farmville and Ayden, in which proceeds from the sale of coffee at participating establishments on that date will go to the fund. Project chairmen for "Coffee Day" are Mrs. Melba Hargett and Mrs. Sara West in Greenville; Mrs. Sylvia Craft in Farmville; and Mrs. Tina Drye in Ayden.

Then on January 22 the annual "March-a-Thon", traditionally sponsored by the AFROTC cadets at East Carolina University with assistance from a large number of students, will take place. This year, Cadet Captain Clyde Crusenberry is project chairman for the "March-a-thon" as well as for the placement of the coin collectors.

A third fund raising project is the mailing of thousands of March of Dimes mailers to residents in the area during the month of January.

The annual March of Dimes campaign, now in its 35th year, was founded by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938. The current paramount goal of the March of Dimes concerns America's gravest child public health problem; birth defects.

With funds collected from the national drives, research for ways to prevent birth defects is carried on year round. Funds are also allocated for treatment and correction of birth defects which still occur throughout America on a large scale despite the successes of preventive work in various fields.

Leaders in the national drive point out that the National Foundation-March of Dimes does not, of course, claim credit for every new scientific discovery related to birth defects, but they do note that they are understandably proud that some of the advances made have come from the laboratories of men whose work the foundation has supported.

One important role of the foundation is to make known results of research, both in the U.S. and abroad, so that those in the health profession can make timely and effective use of new information and techniques.

The importance of this continuing role can be understood from statistics which reveal that birth defects now affect 15 million living Americans and each year kills more than half a million before and after birth.

When the March of Dimes first went into operation during the late 1930s, polio was the principal disease being fought. Some of the highlights of discoveries since that time include perfection of the Salk vaccine, developed by Dr. Jonas Salk in 1953, tested on nearly 2,000,000 school children in 1954 and declared "safe, potent and effective," in 1955.

Following the success of the long fight against polio, the focus on the National Foundation-March of Dimes in 1958 was turned to the fight against birth defects.

In January 1960, the first March of Dimes Birth Defects Center opened at Children's Hospital in Columbus, Ohio, followed by the first International Conference on Congenital Malformations, held in London in JUly 1960.

The nationwide volunteer program in support of mass vaccinations against rubella to eliminate congenital rubella as a major cause of birth defects was launched in June of 1969.

Junius H. Rose is Chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the March of Dimes. For 1972, the honorary National Chairman of the March of Dimes fund drive is renowned golfer Arnold Palmer.

POSTER GIRL . . . for the 1972 March of Dimes campaign, little Miss Carmen Donesa of Ft. Wayne, Indiana, talks to Greenville participants of the local March of Dimes 72 campaign. Carmen, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Antonio Donesa, attending a regional meeting in Atlanta before Christmas, chats with (L-R) Miss Ruth Elmore, commander of East Carolina University's Angel Flight, AFROTC Cadet Captain Clyde Crusenberry, and campaign manager Lee Moore.
