

Fifteen In Fla. Primary

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Secretary of State Richard Stone today nominated 15 March 14 presidential primary candidates, putting 1968 third party candidate George Wallace in the crowded field of a dozen Democrats.

Stone's action insures that Wallace, feared by other candidates because of his demonstrated vote-pulling power with conservative Democrats, will be on the ballot unless he takes himself off.

Stone said he listed Wallace as a Democrat because "news clips we have collected, particularly a New York Times article quoting Wallace aide Charles Snider, pushed us over the line from grey to black-and-white. He is a candidate."

Wallace has scheduled a press conference in Tallahassee Thursday to announce his intentions.

He could be taken off the ballot by the three Democrats on the selection committee — Party Chairman Jon Moyle, Senate President Jerry Thomas and House Speaker Richard Pettigrew. But all have said he should go on if he wants to run as a Democrat.

Other Democratic candidates nominated by Stone were: Sens. Vance Hartke of Indiana, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Henry Jackson of Washington State, Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts, George McGovern of South Dakota and Edmund Muskie of Maine.

Also nominated for the Democratic half of the primary were Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, New York Mayor John Lindsay, Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

Nominated on the Republican side were President Nixon, Rep. Paul McCloskey of California and Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio.

Few Pitt Errors In Welfare Work

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"There seem to be a surprisingly small percentage of errors in the administration of Pitt County's Social Services program," County Commission chairman, Charles Gaskins told Col. Clifton Craig, director of the State Social Services program in a letter last week.

Col. Craig has severely criticized county administration of Social Services funds in the press recently. Gaskins feels that in refusing to give the names of counties which have had gross errors involving eligibility, overpayment, and underpayment of Social Services recipients, Col. Craig has done the innocent counties an injustice.

"It is our feeling," Gaskins' letter to Col. Craig went on, "that our Pitt County employees are dedicated, and are carrying out their professional responsibilities."

"We always welcome and appreciate constructive criticism, but we believe it would be more meaningful if counties were notified on an individual basis of gross inaccuracies, rather than to report these errors as if all counties were equally responsible."

Col. Craig's criticism of county administration has always fallen on eight counties that are overdue with large numbers of review reports of client's cases. Pitt is not one of these. All Aid to Families with Dependent Children cases have to be reviewed by eligibility specialists twice a year. Aid to Aged and Disabled cases are supposed to be reviewed once a year. Home visits are made in all AFDC cases, but most AAD cases are based on a complicated nine-page financial information form filled out by the client.

"We would like to make home visits with every aged or disabled client or candidate to be a client," said

Miss Dorothy Bolton, director of the Pitt County Department of Social Service. "But it would take at least two more full-time eligibility specialists in the AAD division to accomplish this."

Miss Bolton admitted that there have been errors in figuring eligibility, but she said all Pitt County errors have been corrected as quickly as they came to light.

Miss Bolton explained how errors are monitored by the state office. "There is a Quality Control Division that sends a specialist into the county office every so often. The Quality Control specialist comes here with only several case numbers spit out by the computer in Raleigh. We pull these case files for her and she visits the client and calls on his landlord, any stores he has accounts with, etc. If she finds any discrepancies, these are noted in a report to Raleigh. Some have been found here, but they have also been corrected immediately.

"Very often our errors have occurred when changes in income status have not been reported to us. For instance, we had a case a couple of summers ago in which our local specialist visited an Aid to Dependent Children client in early June. The young mother said she was going to work in green tobacco two days a week at $8 a day. We figured her budget accordingly. In July the Quality Control specialist investigated and found she was working three days a week at $10 a day. There was no way we could have known about these changes if the client had not reported them. We did make adjustments accordingly, however.

"We have made many 'errors' because of deception by the client," Miss Bolton said. "Some of the most numerous offenders are Food Stamp applicants and recipients," Mrs. Evelyn Heidenreich, Food Stamp director, said. She used the past three months as an example. "In October, with 1,847 households receiving Stamps, we documented 62 cases of suspected fraud. All heads of these households were notified that they should either appeal or begin paying back the amount in stamps they had been erroneously issued. About 10 responded. At that time 23 were paying back over up to a 36-month period what they owed for

'Real Bad'

CLAYTON, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott says a computer and an astrologer have forecast a good year for him and for the state. But he says it hasn't always been that rosy.

"I remember one time when things were real bad," Scott told an awards banquet in Clayton Monday night.

"I was being criticized in the press for not buying Bald Head outright; the environmental legislation was going down the (legislative) committee drain; snow was keeping us from building new roads; Jessie Rae (his wife) was raising Cain because I was never home to be a romantic; and the children started calling me Governor instead of Daddy."

Scott added, "Things were so bleak that I thought a prayer would be nice—and so I called Dial-A-Prayer. You guessed it: They hung up on me."

Guerrilla Base Hit

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli troops crossed the Lebanese border Monday night and attacked two villages in retaliation for a recent increase in attacks by Arab guerrillas from southern Lebanon.

The Israeli command said two Israeli soldiers and an undetermined number of Arab guerrillas were killed and one Israeli was wounded.

The Israelis said they blew up four buildings used as bases by the guerrillas.

It was the first raid into Lebanon that Israel has admitted since last Feb. 1. The guerrillas have accused the Israelis of making repeated attacks across the border.

First Stage

DURHAM (AP) — A health official says Durham County is in the first stages of a possible influenza epidemic.

"We have been having reports of an increased amount of illness through the past week," Dr. O. L. Ader, county health director, said Monday. He noted the state Board of Health has reported marked increase in flu-like diseases in Robeson and Orange counties.

More than 350 of the 1,300 pupils at Carrington Junior High School in Durham were absent Monday, as well as several teachers. Northern High School also reported about 200 absentees.

Suicide Plot By Muslims?

Observers Are Puzzled By Baton Rouge Shootout

By TOM JORY
and

G. MICHAEL HARMON
Associated Press Writers
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Mayor W. W. Dumas blames Black Muslims in part for a street gunfight between law enforcement officers and blacks which left four men dead. Seven young Muslims deny their organization was involved.

A spokesman for the NAACP says he isn't sure who was involved in shooting which erupted Monday after police moved in to clear a city street of an impromptu rally at which militants were calling for improved conditions in the city's black community.

Gov. John McKeithen blamed the burst of gunfire on a downtown street two miles from Louisiana's capitol on "outsiders."

And Sheriff's Detective Capt. Bryan Clemmons Jr. says "some sort of suicide plot" might have been involved in the shootout which took the lives of two deputies and two blacks.

Twenty blacks were arrested and charged with disturbing the peace after the afternoon shootout and eight of the 20 were later charged with murder in the deaths of the two deputies.

Some 25 persons were treated for injuries, including Baton Rouge Police Chief Eddie Bauer.

Four hundred National Guard troops were called to duty to bolster local and state police in enforcing a dusk to dawn curfew. Bars and grocery stores were ordered closed.

"We have every reason to believe this is a national movement by the Muslims," Dumas said. "The information we get is that this isn't just local."

McKeithen said the city was aware of what he called the outsiders.

"Mayor Dumas called me Monday morning and warned me there could be trouble," McKeithen said, "but he thought they would come to City Hall and talk to him."

The seven young men who disclaimed Muslim involvement did so in a statement handed to newsmen after the shooting. They said they were members of the Black Muslim movement in Baton Rouge, but they were not identified.

They said the blacks who fought with police apparently were renegades who called themselves Muslims.

Harvey Britton, field director of the Louisiana NAACP, said, "We don't know that there are Black Muslims involved. Or if it is an out-of-town or fractional group. We don't know if it was the Muslims or the NAACP or anyone else."

In speaking of a possible suicide plot, Clemmons said:

"From what we get on the streets, they told people to bring your friends to a meeting Monday and they told them to tell a policeman and you'll see something you've never seen before. So we don't know."

When police arrived at the scene of the rally which had drawn some 100 persons, Bauer said, a group of 18 blacks stood shoulder to shoulder in front of a wall of cars blocking the street.

"They were lined up like a little bunch of tin soldiers, like they wanted us to come up and talk to them," Clemmons said.

"Something was said that they wanted to talk and that's when Maj. Fred Dummigan and Maj. Fred Sliman went up to talk to them. It wasn't but a second when they were jumped," he said.

"There was a lot of struggling and then this one black pulled a gun and there was some gunfire ... and police fired. Then there was more shooting."

Henry Baptiste, a black cameraman for television station WBRZ, said "five or six blacks" fired from between buildings and from alleys with pistols and shotguns.

The blacks opened fire, Baptiste said, when police arrived to move the cars barricading the streets.

Of those standing in the street, Clemmons said, only one he saw was armed and other blacks disarmed approaching policemen.

More heavily armed city and parish (county) police blocked off the area by encircling the block containing the theater.

Police moved through the area after the shooting stopped and routed blacks from buildings.

During the night, National Guard troops were posted at all gun shops and police stopped every moving car.

Three men were arrested when a group of policemen said they had been fired upon. Henry Harris, 24, of Baton Rouge was charged with attempted murder and two others with him in a car were charged with curfew violations.

Will Name Those Violating Wage, Price Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council says it will start disclosing the names of violators of wage-price controls, and a congressman has hinted his committee may investigate current policy unless additional action is taken to protect consumers.

Council Director Donald Rumsfeld said Monday the new disclosure policy includes the possibility that results of council investigations may be given to persons who file complaints against excessive price and wage increases.

Names of violators have been automatically withheld unless the government went to court to force compliance with wage-price guidelines. The government also continually has said consumers are not entitled to see business records that contain justification for price hikes. The council did not say whether companies will be required to disclose that information according to the new policy.

Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, meanwhile asked the Price Commission and Pay Board to detail how they have complied with congressional mandates in the new laws. The Texas Democrat said he is particularly interested in those pertaining to the handling of retroactive pay hikes and those on the rights of consumers.

Demolition Bid Results Given To Commission

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Bid openings for structural demolition on nine parcels in the Central Business District were held during December, it was reported at Monday night's Redevelopment Commission meeting.

CBD project manager Lawrence D. Holt, reporting in the absence of commission real estate office Kirby Boyd, said that the parcels are in the proposed loop road area of the project and Jefferson Florist & Nursery of Greenville submitted low bids for all of the demolition.

Holt said that bid openings for five parcels in the area were held on Dec. 20. Four of the structures have already been removed since the bid was approved, he added, and the other structure is expected to come down before the end of the month. The parcels are located at 915 Evans Street, 560 Cotanche, 552 Cotanche, 552-A Cotanche, and 314 Washington.

Dec. 21 bid openings for three of the nine parcels were held,

Holt continued, and the four structures on three parcels have already been removed. Locations are at 207 E. Eighth Street, 203 E. Eighth, 126 E. Seventh and 552 Evans.

A structure at 551 Evans has also been removed following a bid opening on Dec. 28, it was reported.

Holt reported also that a city hearing on the Close Out Amendment for the Shore Drive Project has been scheduled for Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. in City Hall.

Reporting for Shore Drive project manager Jim Bishop who was absent, Holt said that a 112 Credit application has been completed which will allow the city to claim credits in Shore Drive and apply them to other projects.

Holt said that the commission anticipates the approval of $421,063 in credits for the city under section 112. The credits are, in effect, a bonus for the city and will assist in taking care of the city's financial obligations on the project.

Citizens Advisory Committee Briefed On Its Role And Pitfalls

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The Citizens Advisory Committee was formally launched last night, as elected and at large members met for their first "day of school" last night at Third Street Elementary School.

Dudley Flood, former Pitt County educator and now Director of the Division of Human Relations in the Department of Instruction in Raleigh; and Eugene Causby, Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent of Instruction, were on hand to give the new body some pointers on the successes and failures of similar groups formed in cities and towns across the state.

Causby told the gathering that theirs was a "noble task," but that it was one in which "you'll have to struggle with problems." The educator said the days when the general public showed apathy to school problems was gone, and that "people in growing numbers want to be meaningfully involved in their schools and school boards want people involved."

Touching on the objectives of citizen advisory committees and groups, Causby warned that it was much too easy to "become another establishment ... one that can attempt to bring heat on a school board. What you need to bring is light, and let the light produce heat if that is necessary.

"School boards have legal responsibility for decisions taken," Causby pointed out. "Your role is one of bringing foresight to the board of education. Causby noted the success of Greenville's Citizens Advisory Committee would hinge on its ability to know the desires of the people, to come up with meaningful and valid suggestions for the school board, and to seek knowledgeable help in broadening the committee's circle of involvement.

"Yours is the task of making haste slowly, of avoiding pitfalls that would alienate you from the school board or cause you to lose credibility with the public," he concluded.

Flood emphasized in his remarks that the most persistent cause of misunderstanding on the part of the public about their schools is lack of full intelligent information.

"If people don't know what is available, what the programs, policies, facilities, resources are, how can they make intelligent judgements," he remarked. Flood observed that there has been far too much of people "fighting 'til they wore themselves out without knowing why they fought."

The Human Relations Director pointed out that despite differences in the way people express it, all people want the same common goal, better schools, but that it is far too easy to seize on problems, imaginary causes and whip such issues to death without ever directing attention to valid solutions.

"Pupils say it's the teachers, the teachers say it's the pupils, blacks say whites ought to change, whites say blacks ought to change. The perpetuation of these old arguments is not your task, yours is to find solutions," Flood commented.

He told the committee members that their success or failure would be in large measure dependent on the committee's ability to be a focal point of communications between the school board, the schools, and the public in making facts and situations known. "But its going to take involvement and work," he observed.

"There are times when you must get the cat by the tail to get the experience you need. "Yours is not a decision making role, yours is a search for methods, of permeation of information. You are not a gripe committee. If there are gripes, you must come to grip with them, but you must also come up with some good valid ideas."

Outlining the ideal working relationship between such a committee and a board of education, Flood said that any suggestions made by the committee should be ones complete with proposals of how to do it. He noted further that in considering committee proposals, that ideally the board would take three basic approaches — to take action if the members deemed it worthy of action and to let it be known publicly that the committee had suggested such action; in

North Vietnamese Score Gains In Laos Offensive

SYMPHONY BALL . . . co-chairmen for 1972 are Irvin Belk and Mrs. Edward Town Taws, Jr., whose appointment was announced Friday by Governor Robert Scott.

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam's dry season offensive has scored major gains in both northern and southern Laos, sources in Vientiane reported today.

Ten Laotian battalions retreated today from the village of Ban Nhik, in the south after a two-hour battle that broke an enemy siege, but the retreat left the entire Bolovens plateau to the North Vietnamese.

North Vietnamese kept up their pressure on Long Cheng, the former U.S. Central Intelligence Agency base.

mand in Saigon reported an upsurge in fighting in South Vietnam, with 26 enemy attacks, the most in 2½ weeks. One Viet Cong attack overran an outpost in the Mekong Delta, killing seven of the defenders and wounding 16. Six of the enemy were reported killed.

Henry Dunn Named To New Post Office Role

Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills announced today the promotion of Henry Dunn Jr. to the position of foreman of mails in the Greenville Post Office.

Dunn's new duties will encompass the supervision of the distribution of incoming mail. Dunn began working with the postal service on March 4, 1961 and for the past three and one-half years has been the Vehicle Operations maintenance assistant.

A native of Pitt County, Dunn is a graduate of Bell Arthur High School and attended East Carolina University. He is married to the former Pennie Johnston of Pactolus and they have four children: Gerald, Judy, Sharlene and Jamie.

Dunn has been active for a number of years with the North Carolina Association for Retarded Children and is immediate past president of this association.

Dunn was instrumental in fostering plans which led to the establishment of the East Carolina Sheltered Workshop in Greenville.

Dunn is a member of the Board of Directors at the workshop and was recently appointed to serve a five-year term on the Greenville Board of Education.

A charter member of Ballard's Presbyterian Church, Dunn is a member of the Board of Ruling Elders and is the teacher for the adult Bible Class there.

During the Korean Conflict, Dunn served in the Navy for a period of four years.

He is a member of the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children, the Pitt County Mental Health Association, the American Legion and the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Co-Chairmen Of Hope For Ulster Peace Ball Announced

RALEIGH — Governor and Mrs. Bob Scott have announced the appointment of a Charlotte man and a Southern Pines woman as co-chairmen of the 1972 North Carolina Symphony Ball.

They are Irvin Belk and Mrs. Edward Town Taws, Jr. Official hosts for the event will be Governor and Mrs. Scott.

Belk, a former state senator, is an executive with a leading retail corporation in North Carolina.

Mrs. Taws, of Southern Pines, is active in numerous civic and community affairs. She is a member of the Symphony Board of Trustees.

The annual North Carolina Symphony Ball, a major social event in the Tarheel state, was begun by Governor and Mrs. Terry Sanford in 1960. This year the ball will be held Saturday, April 22, at The Country Club of North Carolina in Pinehurst.

All proceeds from the $100-per-couple affair go to the Symphony's Maintenance Fund.

The North Carolina Symphony currently is making its 27th annual tour as a professional symphony orchestra.

Hope For Ulster Peace May Rest With Women

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two women ran screaming for the safety of a doorway, clutching each other in terror as gunfire erupted in the Ardoyne, a Belfast flashpoint district in the communal violence of Northern Ireland.

One was a Protestant, the other a Roman Catholic. A few minutes later they had become friends.

"Bullets don't discriminate," explained Winifred Matill, a Protestant from the Woodvale district.

Women of both religions have fought in the front line as Protestants battle Catholics in this deeply divided British province. Some have fought the British troops sent in to keep the two communities apart.

They have fought, grimly and with remarkable resilience, for 2½ years just to survive and keep their families going while snipers' bullets whine and guerrilla bombs blast homes, movie theaters and stores.

Yet there is hope that women from the two communities may play a leading role in restoring peace and sanity to Ulster.

Protestants and Catholics by the hundred have joined the Women Together Organization, founded nearly a year ago to try and establish communications between women of the two communities.

"There is all around us a great desire for peace and a weariness of violence, but also a sense of helplessness and despair in the face of it," said Monica Patterson, a Protestant and chairwoman of the association.

It has been carrying on a massive advertising campaign and a concentrated drive among women in the troubled areas. Its weakness is that its members are mainly middle-class women from both communities. It has yet to reach working-class women in the Catholic districts where no Protestant women would dare to attend a meeting.

Terrorist bombers have failed to halt the housewives going about their occupations. Department stores have been bombed but still the women hunt for bargains.

Anne Peskett, a 45-year-old Protestant from the Ormeau district, said: "At first we had a fear of going downtown. Slowly, you realize it is essential to live as normally as possible. So you take your chance."

Shop girls, too, have shown remarkable courage.

"You have three minutes to get out," the warning shouted by guerrilla bombers when they deposit their suitcase bombs, is almost a daily occurrence in Belfast, Londonderry, Armagh and elsewhere.

When the smoke of the explosion raises or the "all clear" sounds after a bomb hoax, the girls are soon back on the job, clearing the rubble or back behind the counter or desk.

Hospital authorities reckon several hundred women have been injured in the strife and turmoil, most of them suffering from shock, bruises and cuts from flying glass.

Twenty women, including some young girls, have died from guerrilla bullets or army gunfire.

Doctors report a big increase in nervous disorders among women.

"We write prescription after prescription for tranquilizer pills. The strain and tension are beginning to tell," said one physician in a working class district of East Belfast.

Glenn Seaborg Teaching Again

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, has returned to his role as an instructor at the University of California.

Seaborg met with 26 freshmen as the winter quarter got under way Monday, instructing them on the use of mathematics to solve problems related to questions of solubility and the reactions of molecules.

Seaborg, who won the 1951 Nobel Prize in chemistry, returned to the school last fall as a university professor of chemistry. He has served as chancellor of the university for three years before leaving 10 years ago to become chairman of the AEC.

Broun To Speak Here Monday

Heywood Hale Broun, noted sports essayist and CBS commentator, will speak at East Carolina University Monday, on the topic "Heywood Hale Broun at Large."

Broun's appearance, part of ECU's 1971-72 Lecture Series, is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. Tickets are available from the ECU Central Ticket Office.

Before becoming a regular on CBS evening news broadcasts, Broun had a widely varied career.

Broun is a frequent contributor to magazines, specializing in articles about obscure Victorians, and is also the author of "A Studied Madness," a book about theater and sports.

Poetry Renaissance Noted By Speaker

Author, publisher, ophthalmologist, Dr. Eugene Grace affirms that in recent years there has been a renaissance in poetry in the U.S.

Guest speaker Monday night at a joint meeting of members of the Poetry Forum of East Carolina University and the Greenville Writers Club, Dr. Grace said there were many more opportunities in recent years for poets to publish, although the poet must still beat his way through to the big magazines and national recognition.

Author of the recently published Rx for America (a non-fiction work), Dr. Grace told the approximately 30 poets and writers at the meeting that they must first resort to publication in the little magazines in the beginning stages.

As a publisher, he noted that currently black poetry was a flourishing field, and that he has published two anthologies of black poetry. He is also in the process of publishing a volume of poetry by Sam Ragan, a well known newspaper publisher and chairman of the N.C. Council of Arts.

Four local poets read selections of their own poetry at last night's meeting. Mrs. Julia Fields, poet-in-residence at East Carolina University; ECU sophomore Karen Dawes; and ECU instructor in English Doug McReynolds; and Mrs. Anita Brehm.

Dr. Grace was scheduled to give a talk to journalism students at Rose High School on Tuesday morning.

Asks More Jews Come To Israel Expects Larger Harvard Deficit

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — President Derek C. Bok says Harvard University's operating deficit—$759,000 in 1969 and $1.37 million last year—could rise $1.5 million this year.

In his first annual report, Bok attributed the deficit largely to inflation, reduction in government support and increased costs of financial aid.

Addressing the opening of the fourth congress of the World Hebrew Union, she appealed to Jews in affluent Western countries to join Soviet Jews in emigrating to Israel.

Gold Mine Is Now Property Of The State

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The first gold mine in the United States is now the property of the state of North Carolina and will be designated an historic site.

The 822-acre Reed Gold Mine tract in Cabarrus County was obtained through a combination purchase and donation. Work on the site must await legislative funding, so it will be at least two years before the property is opened to the public.

The mine is the site of the first discovery of gold in an area now part of the United States. From the discovery in 1799 until 1828, all of the native gold mined in the United States came from North Carolina.

The state continued as the nation's chief gold producing state until gold was discovered in California in 1848.

Brazilian Women Run TV Station, Newspaper

By FRANCISCO SILVA
MANAUS, Brazil (AP) — The head of Manaus' most important television station would rather stay at home, look after the grandchildren and cook than keep office hours.

Mrs. Sadie Hauache states quite frankly that, as far as she is concerned, man is king, and very especially so, her husband. Utterly feminine in her attitude, this charming lady almost seems to apologize for the fact that her husband's sudden and serious illness forced her to take over and run the station, which she does most efficiently.

In this remote capital of the huge jungle state of Amazonas, Mrs. Hauache isn't alone. One finds many women in leading positions.

Manaus has a tax-free zone that was created to boost local business. The executive secretary for the whole program is a lady economist. The local commissioner for the internal revenue is also a woman.

There are women who manage shops and restaurants, which is surprising in a country where "machismo" is a strong social feature. Young ladies breeze around in Manaus driving motorcycles, instead of riding in the back seat, as in most of Brazil.

The financial manager and chief editor of two of Manaus' leading newspapers is—believe it or not—an 18-year-old girl. The sudden death of her father forced her to assume a position her widowed mother was not up to.

"I knew I had it coming, only

I did not expect it so soon," she says.

TV manager Mrs. Hauache has a steely quality that only becomes apparent after she loosens up a bit. She tells how, as a teen-ager on her father's farm, she asked for his permission to ride a young bronco. Her father warned her, she said, that if she insisted she would have to face two choices: get thrown off or stay on top of the animal.

She decided to go ahead. As the horse started to buck, she held onto its mane so hard the hair cut into her fingers. Her hands were bleeding, but she did not let go until the animal tired.

After she got married, Mrs. Hauache left all her wedding presents in Manaus and followed her husband to Sao Paulo, empty-handed, because he wanted to make good on his own and she did not want to embarrass him with her family's wealth.

"I still only wear those jewels he was able to give me later in life," she said. "The family jewels are in a safe at home and I never take them out."

Newspaper editor Maria de Lourdes Archer Pinto talks freely about herself and her work. As she gets carried away by her topic, she rhythmically taps the table top until her speech seems to lunge forward at each beat.

She openly admits that she has much to learn. "Sometimes I act as if I know what I am doing, and people fall for it," she says.

"At least, one thing is sure. My employees are loyal to me," she added. "I think I may even say they love me."

Asked about any romantic attachment, her voice becomes a little sad. "One gets hard in this kind of life. I know it is bad for me, but I cannot help it. After all, every girl, no matter what she says, wants to feel protected. She wants to admire her man. But, whom will I be able to admire? I am sorry to say so, but all the young men I have met so far have disappointed me."

Slayman points out that most music dealers will allow parents to trade in instruments, and that most also have rental programs.

The educator advises that parents should check the quality of their child's musical instrument too. Playing one that is faulty or deficient would prove to be frustrating.

"Another reason young people become disillusioned with music can be traced directly to the music teacher," Slayman continues. "Occasionally a new teacher or a change from private to group lessons might give the youngster that needed motivational boost."

Germaine Talks About Myths

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Germaine Greer, tall, angular, articulate author of "The Female Eunuch," one of the few books on women's liberation to be heralded by men as well as women, doesn't stay in the usual mid-town celebrity haunts here. She prefers a lower west side hotel that's been a favorite of writers and authors for a long time, where the rooms are big, if almost shabby, and where it looks quite natural for her to have shawls thrown over the lampshades.

There, stretched out on her day bed, Miss Greer eats frozen fruit, watches TV, but without the sound, and talks about whatever her agile mind lights upon at the moment, though it's all in the framework of women's lib—expected from a woman who wrote that not only are women enslaved by men but that they are deformed by them also.

"I've never been able to discover why women are so crazy to be controlled," she says. "Look at Charles Manson—without the girls in his family he would have been nothing. The dangers of bringing up a daughter to be guileless and cute is that it leaves her vulnerable to somebody like Manson."

"There's a whole phenomenon of the loyalty of women to criminals," she continues. "But I wonder how true it is that girls really like a bad kind of man. It's part of a self-destructive urge. The losers are usually nicer people. But a woman will go for a man who'll be nice, friendly but not exciting, then some rat will come along and she'll fall for him."

Miss Greer maintains that the conditioning one goes through as a child is irreversible, but says it can be fought. "I suppose if a family is genuinely co-ed it can help, but the trouble is, most families are too small, which means your daughter tends to have friends of the same sex and the same age and so is exposed to the conditioning of other children. But a girl has to know what are the prejudices against her sex."

"I would really hope if I had a daughter she'd like me well enough to tell me what's on her mind. There's no substitute for friendship between parents and children. At 14 I was afraid I'd have no chest at all. But I would never have told my mother because she would have just sneered at me."

The author, a native of Australia, maintains that women can escape some of their bonds through other women who're "going to give you a hand. There's a big American myth that Daddy takes the kids out on the weekend to the ball park," she says. "It's a lie. He's out playing golf or cards. Men aren't going to help. But if we live our own domestic lives with other women—help each other, in the end, I think men will ask to be readmitted to the domestic scene. They don't realize how much they need it themselves. I think there's going to be a whole new scene where it's the men who want to get married."

Miss Greer, who was married herself once for less than two weeks, says, in a definite tone, that she will never marry again, but then she backs off a little. "I shouldn't say never," she laughs. "You can always backslide. Besides, a bit of cohabitation does the world good."

Since the publication of her book, Miss Greer says she is more critical of men. "They treat me in such a patronizing way, which seems to me to be highly inappropriate," she explains.

And as to whether her book has helped women—"Oh I hope it has," she says. "But it can only help in so far as women are looking for it. Women write and say things like, 'It's what I always thought, but didn't know how to say. It's given me courage. The scales have fallen from my eyes.' But they've just begun to understand the problem. Lots of women live crazy lives anyway. This just gives them a way to describe it."

"If the book has made one housewife go out and order a newspaper or magazine, or do something to get her interested in the outside world, I'll be happy. But what will really make the difference is if the whole level of consciousness is raised. What we need are abiding changes in lifestyles and I think that's happening."

Mother Loves Second Son 'To Pieces'

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I just read your letter about the woman with two young boys. She said she regretted having the second one. I went thru the same thing.

My oldest is 5 years old and the baby is 15 months old. The older boy was a model child. The baby was a headache from the word go. He cried constantly. He never slept unless I walked him, and to top it off he was built like a Sherman tank and I'm only 100 pounds. Abby, I would have given him away by 3 every morning if I could have, and I hated myself for feeling that way.

I talked it over with my doctor and he told me many mothers have a child like that. So tell that poor woman she is not alone, but to wait until the baby is old enough to run around, amuse himself, eat with the family and play with his brother, and he will settle down. Mine is still a lot of trouble, but he's improved tremendously and now I love him to pieces.

MANTUA [OHIO] MAMMA

DEAR ABBY: I hasten to advise you apparently I did not make myself clear when I wrote it was all right for a man to try to get his friend's wife pregnant, if his friend had tried and failed. I cited a Hindu religious book (The Vedas) as proof, but I did not mean to say it is all right in this age.

In these modern times it is better to get artificial insemination under the care of a registered doctor. Years ago no such thing was heard of, hence the advice in The Vedas. Nobody has ever done such a thing in India today, and personally, I would not go near it.

PREM AGARWAL

DEAR PREM: Thank you for clarifying your statement. I heard from many readers who took issue with it.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter [Sally] is 21 and has been married a year to Paul, a divorced man who has a 5-year-old son. The boy lives with his mother, but she sends him to Paul's whenever she wants to get rid of him, which is nearly every weekend.

At Christmas Paul said he and Sally were to go to his ex's house to watch Junior open his presents. Then the "ex" and Junior would be coming back to Paul's house, so the child could have another Christmas party in his daddy's house. My daughter refused to go along with these plans and I agreed with her. Paul went alone, and brought Junior back, alone.

My daughter gets along fine with Paul, except where Junior is concerned.

I believe where there is a divorce and a child, the parents should do what they can for the child, but leave the other spouses out of it. What is your opinion?

SALLY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think there should be a special place in heaven for any woman who marries a divorced man with a first family, because as far as the man is concerned [whether from guilt or whatever] his "first" family usually comes first. And the same holds true for a divorced woman with a first family.

DEAR ABBY: "Happy in San Angelo" praised her psychiatrist for curing her of a depression with hormones. A psychiatrist who even considers a physical cause for an emotional problem instead of blaming it on "mother" is a rare bird apparently found only in Texas. Too bad more of the same aren't around.

Tips On Getting Most From Music Lessons

CHICAGO (AP) — Is your son or daughter getting the most out of music lessons? If not—it may not be the child's fault, says a leading musical educator.

"Virtually every normal child is capable of playing a musical instrument for his own pleasure," says University of Illinois

Professor Herman H. Slayman. "I'd go as far as to say that 99 per cent of all children—if properly motivated and directed—can make music."

Slayman, who is educational advisor to the American Music Conference, has some advice for parents of frustrated young musicians:

"First, make sure the youngster is playing the instrument he wants—not one you want him to play. One of the main reasons for loss of interest is taking up the wrong instrument. Maybe the youngster finds the violin uncomfortable and could adapt more easily to the cello or bass. Maybe he can't hit the high notes on a trumpet or cornet and the baritone or tuba is the answer. Often a child who has trouble fingering the clarinet has no difficulty with the saxophone."

Slayman points out that most music dealers will allow parents to trade in instruments, and that most also have rental programs.

The educator advises that parents should check the quality of their child's musical instrument too. Playing one that is faulty or deficient would prove to be frustrating.

"Another reason young people become disillusioned with music can be traced directly to the music teacher," Slayman continues. "Occasionally a new teacher or a change from private to group lessons might give the youngster that needed motivational boost."

Program Of Wedding Music To Be Given

Usage (often wrongly called "tradition") dictates the inclusion of secular love songs and extracts from operas in church wedding music.

Wagner's "Bridal Chorus" from his opera "Lohengrin" or the Wedding March from Mendelssohn's opera "A Midsummer Night's Dream"—both popular choices in church weddings—are not appropriate to the serious, yet joyful character of the wedding service in church, according to a music group at East Carolina University.

The ECU chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, honor society for women in music, will present a program Wednesday, Jan. 12, of musical selections which are more fitting for church weddings.

The performances, free and open to the public, will be given at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center. Included will be instrumental, organ and vocal music.

Slow Learner Finally Passes

HENDON, England (WNS) — Sheila Scott, who has broken more than 100 records as an airplane pilot, finally passed her automobile driving test here after 12 years of instruction and practice. "It was my fourth test," she admitted. "When you're flying over the North Pole, you don't have to worry about all those cars getting in your path. It's hard to drive an automobile after you're accustomed to using your feet to steer a plane."

A grand jury report charging that "almost a billion dollars went down the drain" in New York City's administration of medicaid funds is of concern of every citizen of the country, not just those in New York.

Protected By Feudal Theory

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Feudal theory embedded in 20th century North Carolina law still protects municipalities from most claims for personal injury to its citizens.

The doctrine of sovereign immunity, based on the ancient concept that "the King can do no wrong," recently has been upheld again by the State Supreme Court as a bar to a damage action against a city. And while the court agreed it gave the doctrine the force of law in the first place, it said the legislature must do away with it if that's to be done.

The 1971 General Assembly refused to either repeal or modify the doctrine, and even failed to set up a study commission to look into the matter.

While North Carolina clings to the doctrine, with only minor modification, a number of other states have come around to the view that it is anachronistic to the system of justice for a democratic society. Since 1957, the doctrine has been overruled or greatly modified in 16 jurisdictions.

New Bern Case Ruling

The State Supreme Court ruled last November on a New Bern case in which Joseph F. Steelman, Sr., sued the city after his 16-year-old son was electrocuted when he accidentally touched the guy wire to a street light pole. The court said street lighting was a necessary governmental function and thus covered with immunity.

A decision is pending in a Winston-Salem suit also involving the issue of sovereign immunity. Claims exceeding $7 million are asked on behalf of nine National Guardsmen as the result of an armory explosion linked to gases from a city garbage landfill. Three died; several others were permanently injured.

The next date for the high court to hand down opinions is Jan. 14, and the Winston-Salem case could be among them.

The doctrine of governmental immunity to personal injury liability on the part of a municipality traces back to 1788, and the case of Russell vs. Men of Devon in England.

It was not a part of the common law adopted by North Carolina as of the date of the Declaration of Independence, a dozen years or so before the Russell case.

Early Decisions Rejected

In fact, early North Carolina decisions expressly rejected the doctrine. It did not enter the law until 1885, when it was expounded by the State Supreme Court in deciding an Asheville case.

Until 14 years ago, the doctrine of governmental immunity remained the rule in all jurisdictions in this country. The Florida Supreme Court broke away in 1957, declaring the idea of sovereign immunity had been erroneously transposed into the democratic system and should be abandoned.

Attacks on the doctrine have continued, against resistance from municipal officials who view with alarm the likely consequences of the abolishment. Smaller towns, in precarious financial position at best, could be bankrupt by sizeable claims. The cost of insurance against unlimited claims could well prove prohibitive.

In North Carolina, the principal modification is in the provision for governments to waive immunity to claims involving motor vehicle accidents to the extent of liability insurance carried by the governmental unit.

Sen. John Burney of New Hanover sponsored the bill at the last session to void the doctrine of sovereign immunity. Its opponents included the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

Study Proposal Defeated

The League came around to the position of supporting a move to put cities and towns under the State Tort Claims Act, with a $50,000 limit on liability. That, too, failed in the final days of the session. Another proposal to create a commission to study experience elsewhere and make recommendations also met defeat.

The prompting of the State Supreme Court makes it certain that the issue will be revived in 1973.

Associate Justice Dan K. Moore, writing the unanimous opinion in the New Bern case, said attorneys for Steelman presented persuasive arguments that the doctrine is outdated and no longer serves a useful purpose. Since the court first embraced the doctrine, attorneys contended, it would be appropriate for it to reject it.

"It is true that the doctrine was first adopted in North Carolina by this Court," Justice Moore wrote. "However, this judge-made doctrine is firmly established in our law today, and by legislation has been recognized by the General Assembly as the public policy of the state."

He concluded:

"It may well be that the logic of the doctrine of sovereign immunity is unsound and that the reasons which led to its adoption are not as forceful today as they were when it was adopted. However, despite our sympathy for the plaintiff in the case, we feel that any further modification or the repeal of the doctrine of sovereign immunity should come from the General Assembly, not the Court."

While a spokesman for the city asserted that specific losses cited by the grand jury investigation amounted to only $5 million, it offers little consolation to the millions of Americans whose payroll taxes are footing the bill for the program. Certainly the report, as the official asserted, "does great danger" to the program, but the program is in much greater danger if such cases of cheating and misadministration are not discovered and brought to light.

The report described cases of dishonest physicians and dentists, pharmacies shortchanging patients and nursing homes charging the city for care of patients who were no longer in their care. The loss, so the grand jury said in its report, was brought about not only by dishonesty in making charges, but also by "completely disorganized if not chaotic" supervision of the program by the city's officials.

What has been turned up in New York as a result of the two-year investigation upon which the grand jury based its findings should prompt similar investigations throughout the nation. Certainly similar findings elsewhere would in the minds of some people cause serious damage to the program.

Yet if such abuses are allowed to continue, the entire program will be endangered simply from the standpoint of economics. Medicaid is a costly program indeed even when it is properly administered according to the law and there are no overcharges or shortchanges for the services people are supposed to receive.

If, in addition to legitimate costs, billions of dollars are being paid for fraudulent charges, the costs will reach astronomical proportions within a few years.

It is not exposure of wrong doing under the program which will endanger it, but rather allowing these abuses to continue to the point the American people demand the entire program be terminated in order to eliminate the abuses.

Humphrey Sees A Hard Reality

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The paramour role the Florida primary has suddenly attained in Sen. Hubert Humphrey's long-shot chances of stopping Sen. Edmund S. Muskie for the Democratic nomination became clear Dec. 29 when Humphrey's national campaign team held a secret strategy session in Bal Harbour, Fla.

At the meeting, Humphrey's chances in Florida March 14 were rated high both by Mayor David Kennedy of Miami, his top Florida supporter, and by private polls just completed. But during the strategy session, it became clear that a Humphrey win in Florida would not merely be welcome but now had become an absolute necessity.

Yet, only two months ago, Humphrey was inclined against any serious effort in Florida or any early primary. What has made the difference is front-running Muskie's blitz, the scope of which his rivals belatedly have come to appreciate. The truth is that Muskie could have the nomination locked up by the first week of May unless stopped in Florida.

This was the hard reality accepted by the Dec. 29 Humphrey strategy meeting at Bal Harbour's Sea View Hotel presided over by national campaign manager Jack Chestnut and including familiar Humphrey lieutenants of past campaigns: William Connell and Dr. Max Kampelman from Washington, Eugene Wyman from Los Angeles, Wayne Andreas from Minneapolis.

Those old Humphreyites not long ago cherished the hope of the early candidates knocking each other out in the primaries, enabling Humphrey to win at the July convention. More recently, they hoped he could get away with just entering late primaries. But by the Bal Harbour meeting, Muskie's blitz had destroyed such illusions. The Humphrey advisers now admitted that March 14 in Florida seemed the last chance to stop Muskie.

At the meeting, Humphrey's campaign staff unveiled its brand new Florida poll. Gov. George Wallace of Alabama led with 27 per cent, followed by Humphrey with 23 per cent and Muskie with 22 per cent. All others ran surprisingly poorly, led by Sen. Henry M. Jackson with only 8 per cent.

What's more, Humphrey's polls showed a virtual dead heat between him and Muskie if Wallace were not entered. Contrary to the conventional wisdom of many Florida politicians, the poll had Jackson getting little of Wallace's anti-civil rights vote in North Florida.

This data was supported by Mayor Kennedy and his top political operative, Robert Hurwitz, who is in charge of Humphrey's Florida campaign. Kennedy gave a glowing report on Humphrey's chances predicting that some conservative Democrats who had made early commitments to Jackson are now ready to switch to Humphrey at the proper moment.

Indeed, Florida is deemed so important for Humphrey that, when the Humphrey inner circle assembled in Bal Harbour, plans called for him to formally announce his candidacy in Florida (probably Tallahassee) Jan. 24. Those plans were quickly scrapped at the strategy session, partly because Mayor John V. Lindsay of

Strength For Today

FORMULA

Of what does true worth consist?

First of all, of course, sincerity. It makes no difference what we think or do, if sincerity is not at the basis both of what we believe and do — then our philosophy of life and our actions are of no true worth whatsoever. Honesty would probably come next. To be dishonest to the extent of a single penny constitutes both a crime and a sinful act.

During the life and ministry of Jesus the leaders of Church and State were apparently men of great religious zeal. The trouble with their religion was that it was external. It largely consisted of going through certain motions. It was frequently based on conceit. The spectacle of persons standing on street corners and offering up prayers was particularly annoying to Jesus. When someone of note made a contribution it was done with the blare of trumpets and great congratulations. The widow who dropped a small coin into the collection plate and hurried on ashamed of what little she could do has come down across the ages as a person of true worth. The little coin she contributed was all she had in the world. She was, therefore, superior to those who made their contributions with the blare of trumpets.

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Up to that time no one had thought of adding those words to the injunction that we must love God with all our heart, soul, strength and mind. Adoration of God and welfare of one's fellowmen — this was the formula of true worth according to the great Teacher of Nazareth.

RATHER HARD TO IGNORE!

By J.J. KILPATRICK

A Breach Of Security

We are in the midst of another of those great ruffled flaps involving the press, the government, and the ethics of public and primate conduct. This one is serious.

The story goes back to the first week in December, when the Washington Special Action Group met at the White House to discuss the suddenly flaming war launched by India against East Pakistan. The WSAG, in effect, is the super-National Security Council of this administration — a top-level coordinating body intended to serve the President with the best advice and intelligence that can be pulled together by skilled and experienced men.

The three WSAG meetings of December 3, 4 and 6 were held in confidence, of course, behind locked doors, but written minutes were prepared. These minutes were stamped "secret-sensitive," which is the classification level just below "top secret," and then were distributed among an estimated 50 to 75 persons in the Pentagon, State Department, CIA, and the White House.

A person or persons unknown made copies of the memoranda and gave them to columnist Jack Anderson. He excerpted them for use in his column, and a few days later supplied the texts for use by newspapers generally. In one view — it is the view of anti-Nixon liberals — Anderson performed a great public service, and his anonymous informant was a man of noble character who risked his job in the name of truth and honesty in government.

There is another view. The importance of this disquieting affair does not lie in the memoranda themselves. The importance lies in the leak. Make no mistake: This leak must be found, and it must be stopped. This is a breach of trust, and a breach of security, of the most profoundly serious implications.

The memoranda are embarrassing, no more. For the most part, the minutes reflect the discussion of men trying to find out what is going on, and seeking to decide what best to do about it. The President, they are advised, is angry at India for its aggressive action; he wants "a tilt toward Pakistan." There is much talk of the futility of the United Nations. One detects sympathy for the plight of the emerging nation of Bangladesh; it promises to become "an international basket case." The conferees come to no particular decisions. They agree to prepare certain papers for the President. Their discussion is candid, spontaneous, unreserved.

Subsequent to these private meetings, the White House was publicly to assert its neutrality in the India-Pakistan war. Obviously the White House was not neutral. This was self-evident to every editor and critic in the country. But to say that the leaked memoranda prove "duplicitous" or "hypocritical" is to fall into naivete.

It is a fair surmise that every government in history has taken public positions inconsistent with its private wishes. Diplomats know this. They feed on dissimulation; they dwell behind facades. More than a century ago, Cavour remarked that he had discovered the art of deceiving diplomats: "I speak the truth, and they never believe me." The publication of these December memoranda may prove discomfiting, but the embarrassment is not gross.

What matters, to repeat, is the leak itself. This is not to be compared with the action of the Washington Post last month in blowing Henry

Words That Wound

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a dogcatcher gets tired of hearing: "Arf, arf, arf—here comes Bozo!" "Don't worry, Prince. He can't touch you as long as I have you on the leash." "Why is it you generally catch only little stray dogs, Bozo, and let the big ones get away? You're not scared of them, are you?" "If the dogs in this town ever start a revolution, Bozo, you're the first one who'll wind up in a wire cage."

"As soon as he starts chasing that small dog on the corner, kids, let's open the rear door of his car and let all the others get away."

"Please, Mr. Barker, can't I have that funny roly poly puppy in the corner? Cross my heart, I promise I'll take real good care of him."

"Sic him, Buck! That's him. Sic him!"

"As soon as I grow up, I'll get me a big net and put it over your head."

"They say that if nobody claims a stray dog at the pound you put him in a place where there's poison gas. You wouldn't do a thing like that, would you Mr. Barker? Tell me it's just a joke."

"Pop, can't you get some other job? All the kids tease me, and some won't even play with me because you're the dogcatcher."

"That little skinny poodle you just caught looks awful sick, Mr. Bozo. If we all give you a nickel apiece, will you let us have him? Maybe we can make him well."

"Why are you so mad at dogs, Mr. Barker? Did one of them bite you when you were a little boy—and now you're just trying to get even?"

"They say that at home your wife keeps you in the doghouse, Bozo. How about that?"

"Wonder what Bozo might have become if he hadn't dropped out of Harvard after his first semester?"

"Weren't you ever a little boy with a dog all your own, Mr. Barker?"

"Sometimes Mr. Bozo seems real nice, Daddy. He'll stop his car on a rainy day and offer a kid a ride to school, but none of the kids want to ride with him. Then he drives off looking real sad."

Discounters See Profits Hold

By ELMER ROESSNER
Self-service department stores did well in fiscal 1970-71, a study by Cornell University financed by the Mass Retailing Institute shows.

The study, based on the performance of 1,336 stores with total sales of $5 billion, showed that despite the fact that the costs of doing business rose sharply, gross profits were 27.90 per cent. They were 27.99 per cent a year earlier.

After-tax return on investment was 17.53 per cent for small firms and 14.35 per cent for firms with sales up to $100 million (m).

Surprisingly, stock shortages, largely shoplifting and internal pilferage, showed the first decline in three years. They were down from an average of nine per cent in previous years to 2.85 per cent of total sales. Stores in the over-$100 million class reported shortages dropped from 4.04 a year ago to 3.09 per cent in 1970-71.

Increases in wages and salaries were up an average of 10.43 per cent of sales. However, in firms with annual sales of $100 million, trimmed payroll costs from 11.73 per cent of sales to 10.42 per cent.

Less For Administration

Administration expenses were pared sharply, with many firms reporting they had been cut 20 per cent, or 2.25 per cent of total sales.

Occupancy costs rose almost 6 per cent of total sales, or $3.78 a square foot for a year, a new high. However, sales per square foot were increased 22 per cent to $79.74 for firms with sales under $20 million, and increased 5 per cent to $61.64 for firms with sales up to $100 million.

Sales for all except very large firms increased. Average sales of stores of very large firms dropped six per cent to an average of $4.01 million for the year.

Kurt Bernard, executive vice president of Mass Retailing Institute, said the figures show stores now represent the largest segment in general merchandise retailing.

Banks Disagree On Prospects For The Year Ahead

Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago and Cleveland Trust have issued optimistic forecasts for the year ahead, but Chase Manhattan Bank of New York is far more cautious.

Harris Trust predicts "significant economic expansion," a decline in the rate of inflation from three to 3½ per cent, and a fall in the unemployment rate to about five per cent. In addition, gradual relaxation of controls.

Cleveland Trust thinks: "Business prospects have been considerably brightened by the agreements for new currency exchange rates."

Chase Manhattan: "In recent months, the comments of businessmen and the performance of the stock market indicate widespread doubt about the business outlook...All this caution...has almost surely affected actual performance of the economy."

Humphrey Says He's Free Of 4-Year-Old Burdens

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Declaring his freedom from the burdens he carried in his last bid for the presidency, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey has launched his campaign in the first of several state primaries that he hopes will finally lead him to the White House.

"I am prepared to take this campaign directly to the people, carrying no one else's burdens," the Minnesota Democrat said Monday in Tallahassee, Fla., as he began campaigning in Florida's March 14 presidential primary.

"The people of this state will be the first to judge my fitness for the high office that I seek," said the 60-year-old senator who, while vice president in the Lyndon B. Johnson administration, lost the presidency to Richard M. Nixon four years ago.

Earlier in the day Humphrey was in Philadelphia where he entered the April 25 Pennsylvania primary. He will face an almost full field: Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Vance Hartke of Indiana, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, George McGovern of South Dakota, Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Muskie, making a campaign swing from Florida to Wisconsin, stopped in Springfield, Ill.

Husband Was A Masked Robber

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. Lisa McDaniel, 17, thought she recognized the masked man who held up the drycleaners where she worked, hit her with his fist and with gun drawn, took $150.

She told police of the Sunday night robbery. They later arrested James H. McDaniel, 18. He is her husband.

where he picked up the formal endorsement of Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, son of the late two-time Democratic presidential candidate.

Humphrey told newsmen that as vice president he had carried "the good and the bad" of the Johnson administration. He was linked with President Johnson's Vietnam policies.

As he began his campaign for the coming election, however, Humphrey urged total U. S. withdrawal from South Vietnam.

Humphrey picked up endorsements from his fellow Minnesota senator, Walter F. Mondale, and from San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, who nominated Humphrey for president in 1968.

Meanwhile, McCarthy was in Chicago, where he claimed the best chance of defeating Nixon. The 1968 peace candidate said he will campaign "completely and intensely" in the March 21 Illinois primary.

Lindsay's campaign manager said in Boston the mayor would announce Thursday his entry in the April 25 Massachusetts primary.

McGovern held a news conference in Phoenix, where he said national polls "are not important until the early primaries are in. We're going to have a lot of red-faced pollsters

Dr. Malby's paper dealt with the Eternal Feminine in Yugoslav literature.

when the New Hampshire primary returns come in."

Hartke, after filling his bid in the Pennsylvania primary, told newsmen: "Richard Nixon is absolutely a defeatable candidate, and I'm the man that's going to defeat him."

Ayden-Grifton SCHOOL NOTES

By ANNE DENSON and SUE HASELEY

The Student Government Association at Ayden-Grifton is preparing the constitution which will be voted on soon. The SGA has revised the constitution, prepared copies and plan to present it to the homeroom presidents. The presidents will take the constitution to their classes early next week. A two-thirds majority is necessary for ratification.

The Future Farmers of America, under the direction of J. J. Brown, will be in charge of the greenhouses which are presently under construction. The greenhouses, moved from Ayden High and South Ayden High, will be used by the FFA to grow and experiment with different types of plants.

Ayden-Grifton plans to participate in a countywide student task force in cooperation with Rose High, Farmville Central, North Pitt and D. H. Conley High.

The task force will meet to exchange ideas and suggestions and attempt to improve communications among the five schools.

Each school will have four members on the force. The Student Council will nominate and elect members from Ayden-Grifton.

In addition, the Student Government will organize a school-wide task force to improve communication within the school.

Exams will be given during the week of Jan. 17. The Pitt County Board of Education has ruled that seniors with a 93 or above average in a subject may be exempt from taking that exam.

The Chargers will play North Lenoir on Jan. 11 at North Lenoir and Conley on January 14 here.

Assails Auto Rate Policy

RALEIGH (AP) — State Rep. John Ingram, D-Randolph, says the present system of automobile insurance in North Carolina "rewards the unsafe driver and penalizes the safe driver."

Ingram strongly criticized the insurance system at a news conference Monday as he announced his candidacy for state insurance commissioner.

"How long can North Carolina afford to allow this industry to charge a safe driving male youth, with a perfect driving record, a much higher premium than one over 25 who has been convicted of drunk driving?"

Ingram, 42, is completing his first term in the House of Representatives. Only one candidate has filed for the insurance commissioner's post so far. He is Russell Secrest, who recently resigned his post with the Insurance Department to run.

Insurance Commissioner Edwin Lanier has not announced whether he will seek re-election.

New York had announced his candidacy in Florida and partly because an even earlier official start was now clearly needed.

With everybody objecting to Washington as a place for the announcement, Humphrey suggested Jan. 10 — the deadline for entering the Pennsylvania primary — in Philadelphia. Humphrey told the meeting he was optimistic about cutting into Muskie's lead in Pennsylvania and expressed hope Mayor Frank Rizzo of Philadelphia would end up supporting him.

Another reason cited at the meeting for Philadelphia as the announcement site: while Muskie is concentrating on what's wrong with America (as underlined in his announcement statement Jan. 4), Humphrey plans to support existing institutions and instead attack President Nixon's leadership. Thus, Philadelphia, birthplace of American political institutions, might have a symbolic meaning.

The Bal Harbour meeting next ripped up Humphrey's campaign schedule and worked up a new tentative draft concentrating on primary states: Indiana on Jan. 14, Wisconsin on Jan. 16-17, Ohio on Jan. 19, North Carolina on Jan. 22, California on Jan. 24-25.

But all agreed that Humphrey is doomed in all these states — and, probably, with politicians such as Rizzo — unless he quickly shows anew that he can win. The only place for that is Florida. So, after announcing in Philadelphia, Humphrey spends the rest of the week in Florida, where the hopes of his last hurrah candidacy are concentrated to a degree he would not have dreamed possible just weeks ago.

Arrest Two Men In Bank Robbery

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two men were arrested less than an hour after a Fayetteville bank robbery Monday and charged with armed robbery.

Cumberland County Sheriff W. G. Clark said enlisted man Sidney L. Stephens, 20, of Ft. Bragg and Warren George Brown, 28, of Fayetteville, were arrested at a house about two miles from the bank.

Clark said about $2,500 that was stolen all was recovered.

The robbery occurred shortly after 4 p.m. at a branch of Southern National Bank. One man went inside with a .22-caliber pistol and the other remained in a car, Clark said.

Visit Is Almost Nonpolitical

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Hugh Morton made an almost nonpolitical appearance before a Winton-Salem civic club Monday.

He showed slides taken as he traveled in all 100 counties last year.

Morton did use the opportunity to say that if elected he would oppose new tobacco taxes, and would work to combat poverty, to balance agriculture and industry and to make tourism more important.

Kissinger's cover as the source of a recent background; that was no more than an ill-mannered breach of professional rules. Neither is it to be compared with Daniel Ellsberg's clandestine distribution last spring of the aging "Pentagon Papers." Ellsberg was then out of the government.

We must infer, in this instance, that someone still employed at the very highest levels of confidence — someone holding top secret clearance, with access to other memoranda of immense importance — has blatantly violated the trust reposed in him. This goes beyond disloyalty; it sails close to the windward edge of treason. What other documents, one must wonder, has this person secretly copied? Where will he peddle them next? This is the alarming aspect. Anderson thinks it "funny," but then Anderson would. It is not funny at all.

In college an 85 will usually get you a "B."

In our school, it'll get you an extra week of hard work.

And that's the way you'd want it. Because our school is a teller training school. Where we teach our people to handle your money. That's why an 85 on the final exam isn't good enough.

And a 90 is only so so. We have to make sure our people know their job. You won't accept mistakes. And we can't afford to make them. So when our people don't measure up the first time, we keep on training them until they do.

Jim Fairley Goes Against VMI

Fairley Gains Southern Honor

East Carolina forward Jim Fairley has been selected as Southern Conference Player of the Week for his performance against Southern Mississippi, Richmond and VMI.

The 6-6 Laurinburg senior pumped in 22 points against the Southerners on Monday night, 21 against Richmond on Thursday, and 14 against VMI on Saturday. He also grabbed 28 rebounds for the three contests, giving him a three-game average of 19 points and 9.3 rebounds. He hit 47.2 per cent of his shots from the floor and connected on 66 per cent of his free throws. Fairley also had good defensive games, blocking several shots and forcing opponent turnovers.

Last year, Fairley missed the second half of the season with an injury, but still managed an 11 point scoring average and collected 6 rebounds per game.

Pirate coach Tom Quinn commented, "Jim had three good games this week. He seems to be regaining the form he showed in his sophomore year when he averaged 16.7 points and 12.1 rebounds."

Point Leader Was Overlooked

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Dwight Lamar was an unknown quantity and an unwanted commodity in high school.

Now the whole country is talking about Southwestern Louisiana's little, old point-maker.

"He's the best pure shooter I've ever seen," says Long Beach State basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian, who should know. He snubbed the Ohio high school product and lived to regret it.

Lamar, who scored 42 points Monday night to boost his nation-leading average and help the 13th-ranked Ragin, Cajuns defeat Northwestern Louisiana 101-88, never enjoyed the limelight at Columbus East high school.

In fact, when Tarkanian visited the city he had only two players in mind for recruiting purposes—Ed Ratleff, his current star, and Nick Connors, now with Illinois.

And when Ratleff suggested that Tarkanian look at Lamar, the coach suggested back: "No, thanks, I've never heard of him."

The final, ironic twist to the story came earlier this season when Tarkanian was welcomed to "Lamar Country." The 6-foot-1 Lamar scored 38 points to lead Southwestern Louisiana to a 90-83 victory over Long Beach State for the Bayou Classic title.

Providence upset 11th-ranked Villanova; 15th-rated Kentucky smashed Mississippi State 104-76 and 19th-rated Hawaii whipped Rice 84-65 in other games Monday night involving rated clubs.

Lamar, who led the nation's college division scorers last year with a 36-point average, now has a chance to win the university division scoring title because his school has moved up in status.

Winning both divisions would be precedent-setting, but it wouldn't surprise his coach, Beryl Shipley. "He's the finest outside shooter I've ever coached," says Shipley. "He's as good a natural, rawboned shooting guard as any in America."

Marin Barnes and Larry Kervirt each scored 22 points to lead Providence over Villanova. Henry Siemontowski scored 28 points for the Wildcats, who lost only for the second time in 13 starts.

Bill France Retiring As NASCAR Chief; Son To Take Over His Job

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William H. G. (Bill) France announced his retirement today as president of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) which he formed 24 years ago.

France, 62, said he will turn the reins of NASCAR, the world's largest stock car racing sanctioning body, over to his son, William C. (Billy) France. The younger France, 39, has served as vice president and chief operations officer for several years.

Bill France, who brought NASCAR from a loosely-formed organization in 1947 to a payout of more than $6 million in prize money in 1971, said he will continue as chairman of the board and as a consultant.

The changes are effective immediately.

France said he will devote his time to his post as president of International Speedway Corp., which owns and operates super tracks in Daytona and Alabama.

An ex-mechanic and race driver, France moved to Daytona from Washington in 1934 and did odd jobs to raise money for a gas station. He raced in stock car events and later promoted them on the old beach-road course at Daytona.

He and a group of friends organized NASCAR in November, 1947, and over the years the body not only became the largest of its kind with a membership of 16,000, but it practically became a France family enterprise.

A controversial figure at times, the stocky, 6-4 France ruled NASCAR with an iron hand, particularly during times of heavy participation of the Detroit auto makers in stock car racing.

More recently, his imposition of carburetor restrictor plates on the powerful stockers brought criticism from many drivers and car owners and gradually led to the withdrawal of direct factory involvement in this phase of the sport.

France insisted that the carburetor plates—some labeled it a handicapping system—were aimed at reducing track speeds, which had reached 200 miles per hour at Talladega; cutting down on engine and tire wear, thus making racing less expensive; and assuring a greater number of competitive cars in a given race.

Most observers agree that in the last two years NASCAR racing has been the most competitive in motorsports, though Plymouth's Richard Petty and Mercury's Bobby Allison dominated the money ranks this year with winnings of $250,000 or more each.

France is vice president of the Federation d'Automobile Internationale (FIA), the world governing body of auto racing, and NASCAR is a member of the Auto Competition Committee of the U.S., which sets rules and schedules in this country.

"Billy grew up in NASCAR," the older France said of his son. "He knows the sport from top to bottom and I have every confidence in his ability to continue the progress NASCAR has made."

France built the 2.5 mile Daytona International Speedway in 1960 at a cost of $3 million. Three years ago he constructed the $6 million Alabama International Motor Speedway at Talladega. Both now are properties of International Speedway Corp.

Pitt Tech In 99-90 Victory

BETHEL — Pitt Technical Institute raised its record above .500 with a 99-90 victory over Edgecombe Tech. The game was not as close as the score would indicate.

The victory boosted the Pitt Tech mark to 4-3 on the season, all against Eastern Carolina Community College Conference opposition.

Edgecombe pushed out into a 4-0 lead, but Pitt finally caught them at 5-5. For most of the opening half of the first period, the two teams swapped points, until the Paladins began to pull away late in the period. They built up a seven point lead at 33-26, but Edgecombe put on a rally in the closing minutes. They cut it back to three and trailed, 44-41, at the half.

In the second half, Pitt moved away again, this time, building the lead out to as much as 17 points midway through the half. They led this time 77-60, and it was more than Edgecombe could overcome. The Paladins began to go to their bench, and Edgecombe was able to cut the lead down to the final nine point average.

Pitt was led by Wayne Brown with 24, while Frank Brown had 21, Eddie Stokes had 20 and Leslie Saunders had 16. For Edgecombe, James Cherry had 33, Ernest Pitt had 29, Tommy Whitehead had 15 and Butch

Knight, 13. "We had our best night at the free throw line," Coach Bob Turner said. "We hit 17 of 25 which is real good for us. We just outran and outplayed them. I believe we're finally beginning to put things together."

The Paladins travel to Martin Tech on Thursday for their next game.

The Worry Clinic Young People Will Challenge

Contrast Annette and Amy, for both are intelligent teen-agers with spunk and a willingness to challenge ideas. They are independent thinkers who don't wish to be stamped like sheep. But beware of letting atheistic emotional bias becloud logic!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-567: Annette and Amy are both 15 years old.

Annette lives in Murfreesboro, Tennessee, while Amy's home is in Jackson, Mississippi.

They are regular readers of this "Worry Clinic" who show independence of thought.

"Dr. Crane," Annette began, "the reason so many married women hate you is just because you step on their toes."

"When you 'pick' on women, I realize it is to help cut down the divorce rate, as by warning them against being 'waddling walruses.'"

"And I think the woman's liberation is pretty silly!"

"For we already have the right to vote and work and talk freely."

"What more could a woman ask for?"

"I don't want to be the equal of any man!"

"In biology class we have learned the structural differences between male and female."

"And women are not built for competition with the male, for the female is more sentimental and should take pride in that fact."

"Dr. Crane, I have seen married women throw temper tantrums worse than a 9-year-old!"

"Since divorce is one of the greatest problems in the United States, I am reading your column to warn me in advance."

A refusal to sell out for game by East set the stage for a sparkling defensive play by his partner that pushed the opposition over the brink in today's hand.

South opened the bidding in third seat with one spade. West overcalled with two diamonds and North freely competed with two hearts. East's jump to four diamonds did not deter South from carrying on to four spades. When the bid reverted to East, he chose to sacrifice at five diamonds inasmuch as defensive prospects appeared quite dim. South's pass is forcing on partner and North should probably have doubled for a modest profit since the singleton queen of spades represents a rather thin fit to negotiate 11 tricks. Five diamonds would have been defeated two tricks. North chose to persist to five spades, however, which put it squarely up to the defense.

West opened the ace of diamonds and East — realizing that a continuation might present the declarer with a ruff and discard — followed suit with the three. A shift was clearly called for and West paused to consider his course, for the fate of the contract hinged on his play at trick two.

If he takes the passive course by shifting to a trump, it places South in position to take full charge. The latter can score 11 tricks by overtaking dummy's queen of spades with the king to draw two more rounds of trump with the ace and jack. Now the ten of hearts is led and passed around to East's jack. If the latter returns the queen of clubs, South plays the ace, leads over to the ace of hearts and then ruffs out West's king on the next round to establish the suit. North's king of clubs provides access to the eight of hearts on which declarer disposes of his remaining club. He loses one diamond and one heart.

There appeared to be little to lose by shifting to the ten of clubs at trick two and that is the play that West chose. This proved to be a lethal thrust. South won the trick in his hand with the king, proceeded to draw three rounds of trumps with his top honors and then led the ten of hearts. West resisted the temptation to cover, following suit instead with the deuce. East was in with the jack of hearts and by returning the queen of clubs, he was able to dislodge dummy's entry before hearts were established. There was no way that South could avoid losing a club for the setting trick.

Amy apparently agrees with Aristophanes, who once stated: "Wise men, though all laws were abolished, would lead the same lives."

Alas, many people in past generations have been cornered into law-abiding behavior mainly by fear of policemen or Hades.

"Character," said Dwight L. Moody, "is what you are in the dark."

But whether we are good or bad begs the question as to whether or not there is logical proof of God.

The Russian astronaut also denied the existence of Deity because he said he never saw God when he zoomed far out into space!

Yet every tribe of mankind has realized there is some mighty force behind the universe.

Elohim and Yahweh are the names that the ancient Hebrews applied to the Creator.

Maintou of the Great Spirit were the terms used by the American Indians.

But giving names to Deity or even indulging in wishful thinking, about the need for a God, still don't prove the existence of Deity.

Send for my booklet, "The Logical Proof of God," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

This "Logical Proof" is in the appendix of my college textbook, "Psychology Applied."

But this 25 cent booklet digests this proof for use by church leaders and all teen-agers with a quizzical mind and a debater's hunger for logic.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Continental Air Defense Said Useless Classified

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators say failure of U.S. air defenses to spot a lumbering Cuban airliner before it landed at New Orleans last fall demonstrates an enemy attack could be launched from the south "with little risk of being detected in advance."

A report released today by the House Armed Services investigating subcommittee says U.S. authorities—despite three hours' notice—did not know the plane had penetrated American defenses until its pilot radioed for landing instructions.

The report calls the existing American air-defense system "virtually useless" and says a 1,500-mile gap between Florida and California is "virtually devoid of military surveillance and air-defense command and control."

"Since our potential enemies know of the gaping holes in our air defenses," said Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., "I think it is high time that the American people were let in on this open secret."

Hebert's subcommittee urged Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to speed up lagging development of a new air-defense system—and for now install a sophisticated, new, over-the-horizon radar to cover Cuba and the Gulf of Mexico.

Gen. Seth J. McKee, commander of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) estimated the interim southern coverage would cost $70 million to $125 million. McKee testified NORAD did not know the Russian-built Cuban airliner headed toward New Orleans last Oct. 26 with 21 Cuban sugar conferees had penetrated U.S. defenses until it was informed the pilot had radioed the New Orleans tower for landing instructions 33 minutes earlier.

That report to NORAD was interrupted with the information that the Cuban plane was on the ground, McKee testified. Hebert's subcommittee said Havana had messaged the Miami Air Traffic Control almost four hours earlier with a flight plan, and the information was relayed to a variety of points including NORAD, the State Department, the Federal Aviation Administration headquarters in Washington and the New Orleans control tower. The subcommittee said the FAA urged the State Department to permit the plane's entry so as not to endanger release from Havana of a hijacked American Airlines 747 with 235 passengers.

It also said the State Department notified NORAD the Cuban plane probably would not make the flight because the Havana airport was closed for the arrival of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Automakers Unable To Meet Law's Standards

By STEPHEN H. WILDSTROM
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — As the federal deadline for sharp cuts in automobile exhaust emissions draws nearer, top research executives of the major automakers say they remain far away from being able to meet the standards.

The Clean Air Act of 1970 requires 90 per cent reductions in currently allowable emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons by 1975 and in nitrogen oxides by 1976. The automakers say that it cannot—and should not—be done.

"The 1975-76 standards would be a technical and engineering disaster," said Terry, Chrysler Corp. vice president for safety and environment, told a panel discussion Monday at the Society of Automotive Engineers congress.

"We're going far past the point of diminishing returns," he said, explaining that he feels the cost of cleaning up the last vestige of automotive pollution far outweighs the benefits.

Terry and Fred Bowditch, director of automotive emissions research for General Motors Corp., said their companies simply do not possess the technology needed to build production cars which will meet the 1975-76 standards and go on meeting them for 50,000 miles of use, as required by law.

The Clean Air Act allows the Environmental Protection Agency to grant the automakers a one-year extension if it is convinced the standards cannot be met. Both Terry and Bowditch said their firms soon would request an extension.

Ford Motor Co., meanwhile, said it is still years from production on an engine promoted by President Nixon as one which can meet the impending standards. Jack Collins, project director for Ford's programmed combustion—or Proco—engine, said "it certainly will be past 1976" before the engine is ready.

The engine, using specially designed fuel injection and a special combustion chamber, has been highly developed in a four-cylinder version for Army use.

But, Collins said, work is just beginning on an eight-cylinder passenger car version. Nixon, in Detroit in October, described the Ford engine as one capable of meeting or exceeding the 1975-76 standards.

But Ford engineers said that while the engine meets the standards when new, they don't have any data yet on its reliability or durability.

Many of these people have outstanding technical and professional qualifications, yet very few of them remain with us," Jenkins said.

The conference will bring together high-ranking officials of military bases, representatives of federal and state agencies, community and technical colleges, regional planning councils, chambers of commerce and private industry.

Sponsored by East Carolina University, the conference has been arranged by the ECU Division of Continuing Education, its Regional Development Institute and coordinated by John A. Lang Jr., Vice President for External Affairs.

An Adjuster 31 course, Principles of Insurance and Property Loss Adjusting, will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 13 at Pitt Technical Institute.

The class will meet each Thursday thereafter for a total of 30 hours instruction. The national examination will be administered from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, May 9.

Personnel from the claims adjustment profession are instructors. During the first meeting final registration is held, textbooks are secured, and tuition is paid.

Will Confer As To Jobs For Veterans

More than 100 participants are expected at East Carolina University Jan. 19 for a detailed conference on employment opportunities for separated military personnel.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU President, pointed out in a letter of invitation that approximately 5,000 military people are separated from services at Eastern North Carolina bases each year.

"Many of these people have outstanding technical and professional qualifications, yet very few of them remain with us," Jenkins said.

erroneous issue. In November, the number was 31; in December, 34.

"Our policy on Food Stamps fraud now is as follows, Mrs. Heidenreich said. "We deal with the person and tell them of the errors we have found. Food Stamps are cut off immediately. We write two reminding letters. Then we make a home visit. If response is not forthcoming, we plan soon to prosecute."

Several Public Assistance and Medicaid fraud cases are also going to be taken to court within the next few weeks, Miss Bolton intimated. "Legal preparations are being made now."

Miss Bolton reported that a special investigator to deal exclusively with suspected fraud cases was budgeted for this fiscal year and was just recently approved by State Personnel.

"We hope to be hiring soon," she said. "We feel this addition is going to help us deal more positively with such wasting of the taxpayers' money."

Martian Haze Said Clearing

By BILL STOCKTON

AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The haze that has hidden Mars since late September and threatened Mariner 9 with failure is rapidly clearing.

Scientists say the orbiting spacecraft's television cameras are returning striking photographs that show strange, unexplained features.

"The photographs are showing us a fantastic range of brand new phenomena that no one ever suspected existed on Mars. Every day something new is turning up in the photographs," Dr. Carl Sagan, an astronomer from Cornell University working on the Mariner 9 project said Monday.

The photographs have shown towering ridges and canyons "grander than the Grand Canyon." One such canyon appears to be 6 to 12 miles across and perhaps more than a mile deep, the scientists report.

There are pictures of great craters, one about 70 miles across that closely resemble earth features evolved through volcanic activity.

And one picture shows a 7,000-foot high plateau so riddled with cracks that its appearance has been likened to an elephant's wrinkled skin.

"No one has any good idea what this could be," said one puzzled geology expert.

Mariner 9 went into orbit Nov. 13, but eager scientists quickly discovered the spacecraft's two television cameras couldn't see through dust kicked up by a Martian storm.

The pictures sent back from as close as 860 miles generally showed a uniform grey.

Only by special, complex computer processing were details dimly discernible in some photos.

Pitt Players Offer 'Night Must Fall'

Night Must Fall is the play being produced by members of Pitt Players in Greenville on Thursday and Friday, January 13 and 14.

At 7:30 p.m. on these two evenings, the players will perform the play at the Methodist Student Center, located at 501 East Fifth Street. There is no admission, and the public is invited to attend.

The Emlyn Williams play centers around a young bellboy, Dan, who works at a summer resort. A lady resident at the resort is murdered; however, her head is missing. The bell boy shows up at the Bramson residence and begins to charm the household. Among his possessions is a large black hat box, which Mrs. Bramson's niece Olivia begins to suspect as containing something other than a hat.

Ziegler Reports 'Successful' Advance Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler is back from Peking after what he says was a highly successful advance trip to make arrangements for President Nixon's visit next month.

Ziegler said on his return Monday the advance party would report to the President before publicly discussing details of the 12-day trip. The party was headed by Brig. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., the President's deputy for international security affairs, and included representatives of the three major U.S. television networks.

It was the third advance trip by U.S. officials in preparation for Nixon's historic visit to China Feb. 21. Presidential adviser Henry M. Kissinger led the previous missions.

He said that a lease agreement with the Interior Design Department of the School of Art at East Carolina for the use of a house on Greene Street for testing purposes had been prepared by the commission attorney and the commission is waiting for execution of the lease by the Council of State.

Newtown project manager T. L. Wagner said that four parcels remain to be acquired in Newtown and all have been assigned to attorneys for condemnation. He said that only one individual remains in property owned by the commission in Newtown and only five people

Newsman Is Beaten Up

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Bob Johnson, a newsman for station WBRZ-TV, was reported in critical condition today suffering from injuries received during a beating while covering Monday's racial disturbance.

Maurice Cockerham, another WBRZ newsman, and Henry Baptiste, a black cameraman for the station, received cuts and bruises.

Al Crouch, WBRZ news director, and his crew had gone to a predominantly black area of Baton Rouge Monday to cover a meeting of civil rights activists at a church.

"We went into the church to see what was going on," Baptiste said. "They told us to leave. As we were starting to leave, they attacked us. We all slipped to the ground but Maurice and I were able to get away."

"Bob wasn't and he took the brunt of the beating." Two deputies and two blacks were killed during a gunfight which developed.
