

Rose Recalls Lab School Background

Long-time Greenville educator Junius H. Rose delivered the address at dedication ceremonies of the new Wahl-Coates Elementary School on Sunday afternoon.

Tracing developments over the years leading to the construction of the modern Wahl-Coates, Rose recalled that "shortly after East Carolina Teachers' Training School was established, it was realized there was a need for what was then called a practice school." He noted the first one was a one-story, four room building with offices, located on Cotanche Street, built with $28,000 loaned to the college by the city, later repaid.

"At this time, there were only two other elementary schools in Greenville," Rose pointed out, "one on Evans Street ... and the other on Fleming Street."

A few years later the first practice school had to be abandoned as it was built over quicksand. "The Legislature appropriated money to build the first wing of the school just vacated," Rose said, adding that later an east wing, a gymnasium and the auditorium named for Dr. Howard McGinnis were added to the old Wahl-Coates. Speaking of the two people for whom Wahl-Coates is named, Rose praised them as "dedicated, outstanding teachers." He said that "Miss Dora Coates, gentle, soft spoken, lover of every child she taught, was about the greatest first grade teacher I ever worked with." Rose commented that Miss Frances Wahl "had a difficult task, because as principal she was responsible to two administrations, both the college administration and the administration for the city schools."

Rose gave an account of the fate of the first practice school building on Cotanche Street. "It was during the depression of the Hoover regime and I was given about two or three hundred men who were on relief labor," he said. When the college agreed to give the building to the city, he had the workers "take the building down brick by brick, stone by stone." These, he noted, were used to add to the Agnes Fullilove school, to the high school and for added classrooms to C. M. Epes School.

Rose concluded his dedicatory address by saying that "It is so fitting that this university through Dr. Jenkins, has transferred the name of Wahl-Coates to this building."

Supreme Court Accepts Case School Segregation In North On Docket

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, for the first time, agreed today to hear argument on claims of segregation in a Northern public school system.

The case, accepted for review, is from Denver where a group of black and Spanish-surnamed school children contend they were segregated by school board planning and policy rather than by segregation laws. The court will hold an oral hearing sometime later this term and issue a ruling by the end of June. The case was taken on without comment except for the notation that Justice Byron R. White would not participate. The reason for the self-disqualification was not given, although White is from Colorado. He has supported all civil rights advances by the high court.

The eight remaining justices including the new man, Lewis F. Powell Jr., and William H. Rehnquist, will participate.

While the Supreme Court has ruled that segregation laws in Southern and border states are unconstitutional, it has not reached the issue of school segregation in states which had no such laws.

The Denver pupils said their complaint goes even beyond the de facto, or neighborhood school, segregation of some Northern cities because they claimed it was brought about by the acts of school officials.

The suit claims that the school authorities deliberately perpetuated a segregated school system through their choice of school building sites and structuring of attendance zones.

West Coast's Dock Walkout Up In The Air Bulletin

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union ordered pickets to West Coast ports today, resuming a strike by 13,000 union members.

Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Association met jointly with federal mediator J. Curtis Counts prior to midnight Sunday and then went into separate sessions which continued into the early morning hours.

Counts kept moving between the separate meetings, which started after the longshore union made a new offer.

"Hopefully, we'll go all night because that will mean we're accomplishing something," said Counts, chief of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

"The fact that they're working is always a good sign," said Edwin M. Scott, Western regional director of the mediation service. Marathon sessions marked the talks over the weekend.

Scott said a temporary agreement under which the 13,000 West Coast longshoremen have been working expired at midnight, but that the ILWU had agreed to delay any strike until 8 a.m. PST today.

The strike began last July 1. It was halted Oct. 6 by a Taft-Hartley injunction providing for a cooling-off period of 80 days which expired Christmas Day.

Counts then obtained PMA and ILWU consent to continue dock work under a temporary agreement which first ran to Jan. 10 and then was extended through Sunday.

In the meantime, Counts has repeatedly warned that if a strike resumes the Nixon administration will ask Congress for a law sending the dockers back to work and "either settle the terms of a contract or establish a mechanism for settling those terms."

A major obstacle in the negotiations has been a conflict between the ILWU and the Teamsters Union over handling cargo containers. Longshoremen maintain that loading and unloading the containers traditionally is their job, but the Teamsters have contracts for handling containers at off-dock warehouses.

Demo Phone-In

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic party is inviting the public to join in its equaltime broadcast replying to President Nixon's State of the Union address.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma announced Sunday night the Democrats will hold a national "phone-in" from noon to 12:55 EST Friday to reply to Nixon's speech to Congress scheduled for delivery Thursday.

Mansfield and Albert said a panel of Democratic senators and representatives will accept telephone calls from viewers and will outline the party's alternatives to Nixon's proposals.

Viewers of the program—to be broadcast by NBC, CBS, ABC and Public Broadcasting System—will be asked to propose ideas for the Democratic platform, the congressional leaders said.

The opposition traditionally has received air time to reply to presidential State of the Union speeches, but this will be the first time a public-participation format has been used for such a program.

More Charges Of Robberies Face Two Men

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Two of three men taken into custody here Friday night in connection with an armed robbery in Beaufort County, have been charged with similar crimes in Greenville and Pitt County.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said James Daniel Bowden, 25 of 1919A Kennedy Cir. and Franklin Dee Brown, 22 of 305 White St. have been charged with armed robbery in connection with a robbery at the Cash and Carry grocery at St. Johns, near Grifton. Brown, the sheriff noted, has also been charged with armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in connection with an incident at the PICO Club last month.

According to Tyson, about $1 was taken in the PICO Club incident in which one man was shot with a shotgun. He said about $300 was taken in the grocery store holdup.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon reported that Bowden and Brown have also been charged with a robbery at the Little Mint on Memorial Drive January 1. He said an estimated $321 was taken in the 11:45 p.m. holdup.

Brown, Chief Cannon explained, has also been charged in connection with a December 23 robbery at Greenville Packing Co. and with a December 17 incident in which an estimated $244 was taken from James E. Collins at 105 West 13th St.

The police official reported an estimated $38 was taken in the packing company robbery.

Brown, Bowden and a third man were taken into custody here about 11 p.m. Friday by Highway Patrolmen following a robbery at Mr. Ed's Restaurant West of Washington on the Pactolus Highway. Officers said the restaurant's owner, Ed Stancil, was wounded when he was placed in a closet and one of the robbers fired a shotgun through the door.

Officers Friday found a sawed-off shotgun, an automatic pistol, ski masks and gloves in the car after stopping the three men.

Investigation of these and other robberies in the county as well as similar incidents in Craven County and in Rocky Mount are continuing.

Reports Due

Reports dominate the agenda for the Greenville City School Board of Education meeting tonight.

For the January meeting, at 8:00 p.m. in the board room at the Central Administrative office, members will hear reports on the NCSBA district meeting held in Williamston last week; a status report of the Citizens Advisory Committee; a progress report on the Learning Center at Aycock Junior High School; and reports on personnel, curriculum, lease of Epes property (to the Greenville Recreation Commission); and a request for an appeal of a student expulsion and one for a pupil transfer.

CANDIDATE

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joe R. Brown of Greensboro, calling himself a "Wallace Democrat" announced today he will run for the U.S. Senate on an antibusing platform.

Divided On Tax Increase

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The five men seeking the Democratic nomination for governor of North Carolina disagree on their stand on possible tax boosts.

Li. Gov. Pat Taylor says he would not hesitate to recommend the new taxes if he is convinced they are necessary to meeting pressing needs of the state.

But former State Sen. Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles says he is "dead set" against new taxes and has put a no-new-tax pledge into his platform.

Wilmington businessman Hugh Morton has taken a stand similar to Bowles and has assured voters he would not propose any increase in tobacco taxes.

Dr. Reginald Hawkins, the Charlotte dentist, says there should be "a complete change" in state tax policy which he says now favors "big corporations, the special interests" rather than the average man.

Gov. Bob Scott and state fiscal experts have warned that pressing needs for state government may make a search for new tax money inevitable in 1973-75.

Zeb Vance Kitchin Dickson, Eden school teacher, said if he were elected governor, "I should not recommend any new taxes unless it was absolutely necessary for effective government."

Scott has pointed out that in 1971 governmental agencies asked for nearly $1 billion more in state spending than was provided for in the budget of $2.9 billion state money.

Taylor indicated during a "meet the candidates rally" last week in Bladen County that he could be persuaded of the need for new tax money.

"I'm not against all taxes or increases," Taylor said. "I could not conscientiously tell you that we might not have to raise taxes. I'm telling you I've been in the General Assembly year after year and seen the people from the mental hospitals tell us they need more. By golly, if I could be convinced they do, I would be willing to recommend taxes."

Taylor also indicated educational needs might make new taxes necessary.

"I think our people are fed up to here with taxes," Bowles said, placing his hand at his neck.

Bowles has called for a greatly expanded vocational education program costing several hundred million dollars and says he can find the money by redirecting spending from current tax sources.

Morton says he has found the people generally are opposed to new taxes but noted that they also want more roads, particularly in remote counties.

Pay Boost Due On March 19

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — More than 5,000 blue collar federal workers in 21 eastern North Carolina counties are due for a pay boost of up to 5.5 percent March 19.

This was announced by Cherry Point Marine officials, who said the Department of Defense Wage Fixing Authority has ordered a wage change survey for the Southeastern North Carolina wage area. A three-man board, headed by Wiley L. Wall of Cherry Point will begin making the survey this week.

"All federal wage grade employees in our area will be affected," Wall added. "This will cover skilled and unskilled trade, craft and laboring jobs in 21 North Carolina counties and in Horry County, South Carolina."

Marxist Setback

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende suffered a stunning setback in two special congressional elections Sunday, but his leftist Popular Unity government called the results only "a transitory defeat."

The anti-Marxist opposition and the government parties each united behind a single candidate in the elections, one for a Senate seat, the other for a seat in the Chamber of Deputies.

Opposition candidate Rafael Moreno, a Christian Democrat, won the Senate election in Colchagua and O'Higgins provinces, just south of Santiago, with 77,614 votes to 68,338 for Socialist Hector Olivares.

In the election for deputy in Linares province, farther to the south, Sergio Diez, a National party member, defeated Maria Eliana Mery by a vote of 29,990-21,165.

The election in O'Higgins and Colchagua provinces was for the seat of an opposition senator who was killed in an automobile accident last year, and the seat in Linares had been held by a Nationalist who moved to Australia after Allende was elected in September 1970. Neither election changed the balance in Congress, where the opposition already has a majority in both houses.

Weekend Saw Low Point Of Nine Degrees

Temperatures here dipped to nine degrees during the weekend and did not go above 19 degrees all day Sunday.

The range between 8 a.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday was from 11 to 39 degrees. This morning at 8 a.m. the Utilities Commission thermometer registered 16 degrees. Winds also played a large part in the chilling effects of the weekend. The highest recorded were around 35 m.p.h.

The Tar River is rising. Its level this morning at 8 a.m. was 7.7 feet. The last recorded rainfall was Saturday morning when .023 of an inch fell between 8 a.m. and noon.

Oil companies reported many calls, though one dealer said his company's were about par for any cold snap. Most were from those who were not regular customers whose tanks are checked regularly, he said. Several other companies reported similar situations. Plumbers had their share of frozen pipes to thaw and burst ones to repair. Heating companies reported repairs to furnaces not caused by the cold weather, but made urgent by it. Garages said they were swamped with calls for auto repairs, mostly on starters and batteries. Tow-ins and calls to homes were numerous, they said.

City Trailing Cold Average

The Greenville Utilities Commission reported that the area is running behind seasonal averages for the number of cold days through Jan. 13.

Utilizing a system of degree days, which are measured amounts of cold experience in a locality, as of Jan. 13 the Greenville area had only 1,008 degree days as recorded by the GUCO weather station. A typical winter for the Greenville area, it was reported, has approximately 3,300 degree days for the season.

According to John White of GUCO, the measure of a degree day is the difference between the base temperature of 65 degrees and the average temperature for each day (when below 65 degrees).

The seasonal total, White said, is obtained by adding all of the degree days recorded for the heating season.

By Jan. 13 of last year, he reported, the weather station had recorded 1,508 degree days and for the prior year, 1,710 degree days had been recorded.

"If this short span of meteorological history is taken for its face value," White asserted, "then by 1960 we may be sunbathing in December and snow skiing in July."

Answers Sought To Unanswered Questions About Early Greenville

Harold Creech, president of Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, says that the article in last Wednesday's The Daily Reflector "has resulted in much conversation about the founding of Greenville, formerly named Martinborough, and the early history of the city."

Because of this interest,

Creech said he and other members of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association would like to determine the amount of interest that exists related to observing Greenville's bicentennial.

He said that the chamber is inviting any person with suggestions, whether for or against celebrations, to write or call the chamber office.

Specific questions of particular interest to the Chamber of Commerce are outlined by Creech for possible public response. There are:

1. Where are Richard and Susanna Evans buried?
2. Was the Evans Cemetery on the 100 block of Evans Street started before the death of Richard Evans?

3. When was Richard Evans born and when did he die?
4. What were the boundaries of the Evans plantation?
5. What was the size of the Evans plantation?
6. Did Susanna Evans give or sell the land for Greenville?

7. Where are the exact boundaries of the 100 acres which Susanna Evans deeded for the town of Greenville (Martinborough)?
8. What descendants of Richard and Susanna Evans are living today?
9. Who bought the first lot sold in the new town?
10. Are any descendants of the first commissioners of the new town — Wyrroitt Ormond, Charles Forbes, Henry Ellis, George Evans and James Lanier — living in Greenville area today?

11. Why was the name of the town changed from Martinborough to Greenville (later changed to Greenville without the s on Green)?
12. Are any buildings of historic value standing in the city today?

13. What is the oldest building extant in Greenville today?
14. Is the Alexander Evans who was born in 1772 and buried in the Evans Cemetery on Evans Street the son of Richard and Susanna Evans — and, if so, was he named Alexander for Alexander Stewart, a friend and colleague of Richard Evans and a member of the Assembly?

15. Why did the bill for the town of Martinborough first fail to carry in the Assembly at New Bern?
16. Who was the Seth Doany who witnessed Susanna Evans' signing the deed in July of 1772?

Dwellers In Kensington Strive To Save Quality

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Kensington, one of London's most fashionably elegant neighborhoods, is declaring a desperate war against hotels, hippies, mice, a fiberglass tiger and a gigantic human nose.

In graceful tree-lined squares and along an avenue so swank it has uniformed gatekeepers at each end to keep out the riff-raff, residents of Kensington are worried about that 20th century plague—pollution of the environment.

The environment of what is known as the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea is about as varied as you can find in London.

It has one genuine palace, an aristocratic mansion, endless cliffs of sumptuous Victorian homes, and Chelsea mews houses that once belonged to coachmen and grooms. They now rent for a racehorse owner's ransom.

It has scruffy boarding houses, slums, 300 hotels, the gawdy market of Portobello Road, and a main street that's beginning to look like New York's Times Square.

What worries the residents of Kensington's more expensive quarters is the boarding houses are spreading, the Victorian homes are coming down and more hotels are going up. Oriental bazaars full of hippies are infesting the shopping districts, and pop music and tourist buses are shattering the dignified Kensingtonian calm.

"I think it's great," says one American housewife living on Kensington Church Street, once a quiet country lane. "We have a crazy clothes shop called Mr. Freedom right outside the door, the Che Guevara boutique around the corner, and at last there's some action in the neighborhood."

"But we have two lords and ladies in our apartment building and they're mad as hell about the changes."

"We must preserve the environment and yet make way for modernization," concedes Mayor Mrs. Muriel Gumbel, who wears a gold chain of office and a scarlet ceremonial robe straight from the 16th century.

"We are determined to get hold of this environmental problem and prevent further deterioration," says Sir Malby Crofton, chief of the Borough Council.

The first offensive in Kensington's battle for dignity was fought against hotels. With 300 hotels already filling the district with tourists and 27 more on the way, the council issued an official statement saying "enough is enough." It banned all future hotel construction.

Like other London boroughs, Kensington is partially self-governing.

To contain the hippie invasion, the council closed down one boutique supermarket. Another one still is in business, however, with scores of stalls selling clothes, leatherware and trinkets to hordes of hirsute youngsters. Dozens more individual boutiques are thriving, to the grimaces of elderly Kensington residents who hate the pop music they blare into the streets.

Now the council is trying to get rid of a huge, orange fiberglass tiger that is the entrance to a fashion boutique called "Tyger Tyger." They are also threatening to prose-

Clifford Denies Nixon Loan Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Clifford Irving, author of a purported autobiography of Howard Hughes, quotes the billionaire recluse as saying that former Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford asked him for a $205,000 loan for Richard M. Nixon's brother.

Clifford, who served in the Johnson administration, denied any connection with the deal. "It is a complete fabrication," he said when contacted Sunday at his Washington home. "There is not one iota of truth in that statement. It had to be made up out of whole cloth."

Noah Detrich, a former Hughes aide, said in California that the loan, which was reported in 1960, was made but that company lawyer handled it and Clifford had no knowledge of it. Irving declined in a television interview Sunday to say what Hughes got in return for the 1966 loan. But he said the "quid pro quo" is described in his soon-to-be published book which he claims to have put together out of a series of interviews with Hughes.

The Dayton (Ohio) Journal Herald today quoted San Francisco attorney Melvin Belli as saying that the loan was a payoff for Richard Nixon's supposed effort to obtain the St. Louis-to-New Orleans route and other favors for Trans World Airlines, then owned by Hughes.

The loan figured in Nixon's unsuccessful 1960 presidential campaign. Both Nixon and his brother, Donald, have denied that Hughes obtained any favors as a result of the loan.

Irving's book has been a subject of controversy since it was announced on Dec. 7. The voice of a man claiming to be Hughes said in a recent long-distance telephone news conference that he did not know Irving and denounced the book as a hoax.

Newsmen at the conference said they were convinced that the voice was that of Hughes. Irving says it was not Hughes' voice because the man had too many memory lapses and talked longer than Hughes can without a break.

Irving talked about the loan during an interview with Mike Wallace on the CBS television "60 Minutes" program.

The late columnist Drew Pearson first reported the loan shortly before the 1960 election. Pearson said Hughes made the unsecured loan to Donald Nixon in 1956, while Richard Nixon was vice president, and afterward Hughes' problems with various governmental agencies were eased.

The Pearson story was termed a "smear" by Nixon's campaign manager.

Donald Nixon said he had sought the loan through his friend, lawyer Frank J. Waters, then a lobbyist for Hughes, in an unsuccessful effort to save his chain of restaurants. He said the loan was secured by his mother's lot in Whittier, Calif.

Donald Nixon said he had never asked his brother to do anything for him or anyone else. He said that a gas station was built on the lot and that it was worth $228,000 when it was finally given in payment for the loan.

In Beverly Hills, Calif., Dietrich, former head of Hughes Tool, and an aide to Hughes from 1925 to 1957, also confirmed that the loan was made but said Clark Clifford had no knowledge of it "because it was handled by a lawyer who worked for the Hughes Tool Co."

"The loan was made for working capital for the operation of the restaurant in Whittier," Dietrich said in a telephone interview. "It wasn't made for a chain, though he (Donald Nixon) was trying to build another restaurant at the time."

San Francisco attorney Belli said the money was transferred in the form of a mortgage payment to Donald Nixon and his mother, according to the Journal Herald story.

The newspaper reported that Belli said he was the attorney for Phillip Reiner, a Hughes accountant whose name was used on the loan and who subsequently sued for defamation of character over the use of his name. Belli said the suit was settled out of court.

Wins U.S. Citizenship

Trung Van Lu Raynor, of 10060 Jamaica Street, El Paso, Texas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Raynor of Greenville, received his American citizenship Friday.

In a ceremony held in the West Texas District Federal Court in El Paso, Trung was administered citizenship the day before his 23rd birthday.

Born Lu Van Trung in Phuoc Hoa village in Phuoc Thanh Province in the Mekong Delta region of South Vietnam, Trung was adopted in Saigon by Raynor in the summer of 1966 and came to Greenville in August 1966.

He is a graduate of Rose High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute prior to accepting employment as a Vietnamese teacher at the Defense Language Institute in El Paso in late 1969.

Trung is married to the former Thai thi Huynh Hoa, a native of South Viet Nam and a former teacher of Vietnamese at the Defense Language Institute.

Lifesaving Course Set

Mrs. Nell Stallings, water safety chairman for the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross, announced that a junior lifesaving course will begin Jan. 22 at Memorial Gym on the East Carolina University campus.

Mrs. Stallings reported that the junior class will be organized during the first Saturday session, to be conducted from 9 to 11 a.m., and classes will follow each Saturday.

The chairman said that participants should bring with them bathing suits, towels and bathing caps. Boys and girls are eligible for the course, she said, if they are not less than 11 years of age or more than 14 or if they have completed the fifth grade.

Entrants must be in sound physical condition, Mrs. Stallings added, and be able to fulfill several requirements. Students planning to take the course should be able to perform a standard front dive in reasonably good form, she noted, and swim 220 yards, continuously using a crawl stroke with scissor kick, backstroke using inverted scissor kick, or breaststroke. All should be able to perform a surface dive and tread water for a half minute, the chairman pointed out.

Bob Collier's gray hair vanished so gradually no one noticed!

Unretouched Photographs Demonstrate Amazing Action of Grecian Formula-16

The first picture shows how gray Bob Collier was before he decided to do something about it. The next picture was taken after 3 daily applications of GRECIAN FORMULA-16. You can hardly see the difference. As Mr. Collier continued using it daily, GRECIAN FORMULA-16 gradually built up the natural looking color he wanted. So gradually not even his closest associates noticed the day-to-day change. Now look at the last picture! See how much younger Mr. Collier looks after 18 days! From now on occasional use will hold his youthful looking hair color. Remember: the photographs above are absolutely unretouched. The amazing gradual change in hair color was brought about entirely by GRECIAN FORMULA-16.

No other type product works quite like it. Colorless — Easy to Use GRECIAN FORMULA-16 is not a harsh coal tar dye but a colorless liquid you apply just like hair tonic. As it grooms your hair, day by day GRECIAN FORMULA-16 builds up color in gradual stages until in two or three weeks you see hair color so natural you hardly remember how you looked when you were gray. Occasional use keeps it that way. So why look like an "older" man now that there is a masculine way to banish gray hair? Get GRECIAN FORMULA-16 today. $3.50. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Pearl Buck Speculates On The Future Of China

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — On a March morning in 1927, Pearl Buck lay huddled inside a servant's mud hut in Nanking during one of China's periodic internal upheavals. Other Americans living there died at the hands of Communist revolutionaries in the shooting that followed. Miss Buck, daughter of an American missionary, narrowly escaped. Her life was saved by members of a peasant class she came to admire during half a lifetime in China.

Today, a Nobel prize, scores of books and 40 years in the United States later, Miss Buck, 79, recalls the peasants and speculates on the future of China.

"I have strong feelings for the peasants," she said. "After all, I grew up with them." With signs that there is new upheaval under way in China, Miss Buck said the Chinese masses are ready for a different sort of leadership than that provided by Mao Tse-tung.

"There will be a dictator or possibly the start of a new empire, though not in one generation," she said. "But I look for a return of an empire, perhaps modified."

Miss Buck said she anticipates the emergence of a strong China, though one which may throw off any pretense of following Communist ideology once Mao is gone.

But whatever the shape of the new leadership structure in Peking, Miss Buck said, a Chinese-dominated Southeast Asia with no American presence is inevitable.

A native of West Virginia where a cultural center is under construction in her name, Miss Buck has split her lifetime almost equally between China and the U.S. That makes her one of the few American writers able to flavor current observations about China with a wealth of personal experience.

She spends about a week every two months at the Pearl S. Buck Foundation in Philadelphia, a three-story townhouse on fashionable Rittenhouse Square. It is furnished with exquisitely carved Chinese furniture and Asian pieces of art she brought to the United States so long ago.

During an interview, Miss Buck spoke steadily and clearly about things both Chinese and American.

She is pleased President Nixon is going to China but believes the journey carries with it strong political risk.

"It's important politically—everything depends on how he is received," she said. "He was not invited as far as we know; it's possible that he received word that such a visit would be welcome, but I think not."

"I think it was his own dramatic idea," she said. "It was a shock, very American and very direct."

By apparently requesting the visit himself, she said, Nixon "put us in a subordinate position from an Asian point of view. It's a tenuous position."

Her chair backed up against the desk on which she wrote "The Good Earth," a Pulitzer Prize-winner in 1931, Miss Buck said wryly of her current literary output, "I'm too prolific."

She turns out at least three books a year. Pearl Buck's day begins at 4 a.m. "One of the compensations of nature is that as one's time grows shorter, one needn't waste as much of it in sleep," she said. "Five hours is enough for me."

She writes or reads until breakfast at 8 or 9, then works again until noon. Later in the morning comes a walk through tree-shaded streets in Danby, an hour each day. Dinner, "an event" with the staff, is followed by her retiring at 8.

Miss Buck said she moved to Danby because it was a dying small town. With four foundation staff members and some personal funds, she decided a few years ago to pump new life into the village by encouraging tourism, new antique shops and the importation of Asian gift items for sale locally.

It is an admittedly commercial venture which she said is motivated by a belief that in America, and elsewhere in the key to great civilizations lies far from the cities.

"The life blood of a nation is fed from its villages," she said. "The Danby project continues, she said, and there are signs that the flow of young people to Boston and New York has been slowed."

Aside from her writing and the rejuvenation of Danby, Pearl Buck is devoted to her foundation, which is supported by royalties from her books. It is chiefly devoted to helping illegitimate children of American GI fathers and Asian mothers.

Miss Buck finds it difficult to generate excitement over the women's liberation movement. "I don't like the idea of working for it as a full-time thing," she said. "After all, I've been liberated all my life."

But she said she agrees with the movement's aims and adds: "Women are at a disadvantage in my profession. They are ignored."

Should women then seek a life outside the home?

"Yes, but I don't like the idea of a society where there is no father for children," she said.

Gift From Gramps Puts Her On The Spot

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the young woman whose husband's new stepfather made improper advances to her gave me the courage to write this letter because I have a similar problem. Only it's with my husband's grandfather.

I never encouraged Gramps, but I think he likes me in a way I don't think is very nice. At Christmastime he gave me an expensive bottle of perfume wrapped in two pair of lace panties. This I did not like, but I couldn't very well make a scene when I opened it in front of the whole family. Everyone laughed when they saw what it was, and my mother in law said, "Oh, isn't that sweet? Gramps bought those for you himself!" Gramps whispered to me later that he hoped I would model them for him sometime. I pretended not to hear.

Now he's started to come here during the daytime which I don't like at all. I have a small child and plenty of work to do so he knows I'm always home.

He makes me nervous. I just couldn't hurt my mother in law by letting her know how I feel but I am on the verge of telling my husband. Should I? NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: Yes. What are you waiting for? A valentine?

DEAR ABBY: Our son was married last May at a beautiful church wedding. He married the daughter of a socially prominent family [we are, too] and the young couple received many costly wedding gifts. [There were over 300 guests.]

In September I started getting calls. ["Did Joyce ever get our wedding present?"] I mentioned this to Joyce and she told me she was "waiting" for her monogrammed stationery. I told her I'd be glad to buy her some appropriate stationery and even help her write the notes, but she said she was "awfully busy" getting settled, and she'd wait. [This girl is a college graduate.]

Come December my friends were asking me if Joyce ever received their wedding gifts, so I bought some note paper and wrote a "thank you" to everyone I knew had given them a gift. I signed Joyce's name, and mailed them off. Then I told Joyce what I had done.

She was furious. My son isn't speaking to me. I really don't think I did such a terrible thing. What would you have done in my place? MEAN MOTHER IN LAW

DEAR MEAN: Your humiliation and impatience were understandable, but I would have let Joyce suffer the consequences of her procrastination and bad manners.

DEAR ABBY: A high school sophomore voted for himself in an open election. He later had second thoughts about whether he had done the right thing or not, so he wrote to you. In order to assure him that he had, you quoted Rabbi Hillel, the famous Jewish scholar, who said, "If I am not for myself, who will be for me?"

But the quote continues, "But if I am only for myself, what am I? If not now, when?" The message being that we must stand up not only for ourselves, but others as well. W. D. N.: CHARLESTON, S. C.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SHARP-EYED SHIRLEY": The husband who knows he is being watched constantly doesn't become more faithful, he becomes more careful.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Real Winding-Down Underway

The announced withdrawal of 70,000 additional troops from Vietnam represents a real winding down of the United States involvement in the war. President Nixon announced last week that the withdrawals would be accomplished by May 1. By that time there will be an authorized troop ceiling of 69,000 in Vietnam and the president said there would be a further announcement prior to May 1. Most observers expect that troop reductions will continue until 25,000 to 35,000 Americans are left in Vietnam filling technical jobs that the Vietnamese are not yet trained to handle. It still remains to be seen whether Vietnam's troops are adequate to fight the war on their own. Probably a spring offensive by the Communist will determine this. It is apparent, however, that the war for U. S. ground troops is over. Barring all-out world war, we doubt that we will ever again see large numbers of U. S. ground troops fighting in Vietnam.

New Planning Board Already Is Of Service

The county's new planning board should prove its worth in many ways as rural areas of our county develop for industry, business and residential use. The board has already gotten a request from Greenville Utilities Commission to work on a plan for water service areas west of Greenville. Action was taken after Frog Level residents requested that the commission either agree to furnish water service or relinquish the area. Water districts are developing all over the county and the county planning board can help determine where the service areas are to begin and end. It is just one of many planning services that has been needed by the county.

The Standards Are Color Blind

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Professional standards for law enforcement are color blind. There's no room for special treatment, or discrimination, based on race or creed, said Col. Edwin Guy, commander of the State Highway Patrol.

BRYAN HAISLIP

"If a man can't be proud to wear the uniform, knowing the organization is clean and fair with all its members, you can't keep 'em," said Col. Guy. "Our standards have got to be high and our ranks open to all who meet the qualifications."

North Carolina has nine blacks and three Indians among its 987 highway patrol troopers. If the percentage is small, it still represents giant steps in recent years.

The first black patrolman joined the force in August, 1967. He was one of a kind until a couple of years ago.

"It took us 41 years to hire one black trooper," Guy remarked. "We've added eight more in the last two years. That's progress I'm proud of. I wish we had more (minority race patrolmen) like those we've got."

N.C. Sets Example
The Tar Heel patrol sets an equal opportunity example for other states, North and South.

Massachusetts has one black, only recently hired, on its 725 force. Michigan has six out of 1,895; Indiana, three out of 917. South Carolina has four blacks in its 543 patrol; Virginia, three out of 1,052; Georgia, two out of 710. Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana have none.

Col. Guy sees no reason why the trend will not continue. Applications of 11 blacks currently are at some stage in the process of consideration. Some of them may be in the 50 - man contingent scheduled to be added to patrol strength next July 1. "We welcome qualified applicants of any race, creed or color," he emphasized.

Black troopers themselves are the best recruitment device for the patrol. They demonstrate that there is opportunity. Their presence, and their record of performance, encourages others to apply. Few Problems Encountered Problems have been minimal. Isaiah Green, Jr. of Raleigh joined the patrol last May but resigned almost immediately because he couldn't find suitable housing in the county to which he was assigned. Since then, he has rejoined the patrol and been assigned to Wayne County. Blacks report they are accepted by fellow patrolmen on equal footing. They work side by side, all troopers assigned on the same basis. Col. Guy made the decision to split up the black patrolmen instead of placing several in the same district. "I felt if we were going to break the barrier as we should, they would have to be assigned just like any other trooper without any consideration of race. It has worked well," he said.

The patrol commander doesn't blink at discrimination of the past, in the patrol as elsewhere. "We all recognize, I think, there have been injustices in the last 100 years," he said. "Now that change is here, why not be constructive about it?"

A reminder of the segregated education pattern of the past is the fact that black applicants have a tougher time with aptitude tests, Col. Guy said.

Standards Must Be High
At the same time, he said, strict adherence to high standards of qualification and training are essential to a force of professional caliber. "Out standards are high. We can't lower them to take in any trooper, regardless of race, without compromising the quality of the patrol that belongs to all the people," he explained.

The public has accepted black patrolmen easily, Guy reported. Only one or two written complaints involving black officers have been received, he said, and he's not sure they stemmed from race.

"The public respects the patrolman who does his job professionally, with courtesy and in accordance with policy," he added. His advance to all troopers is that there's no place in law enforcement for the loss of cool under verbal abuse.

The promotion route will be open to minority patrolmen on the basis of their record, Guy promised. It may take time, because loyalty is a hallmark of the patrol. More than 200 of the force have service of 20 years or more; annual turnover is in the range of 4 per cent.

Shattered Plan For Restraint

By ROWLAND EVNAS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The careful White House strategy of restraint toward the right-wing challenge by Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio against President Nixon in the primaries was splintered when a high-level Presidential assistant delivered a private tongue-lashing to William F. Buckley, Jr., that could backfire severely.

Shortly after Ashbrook announced his candidacy, senior White House aide Peter M. Flanigan telephoned Buckley, the erudite conservative columnist and editor of National Review, with a harsh reproach for his support of the right-wing challenge by Ashbrook.

What makes this so ironic is that Buckley privately opposed a frontal challenge to Mr. Nixon in the Republican primaries and endorsed Ashbrook's effort only after it could not be stopped. Some White House aides now fear, however, that Flanigan, a Manhattan financier and socialite who has been a stout Nixon man for years, may have provoked Buckley into a more hostile attitude.

Recalling the long friendship between Buckley and Mr. Nixon, Flanigan labelled the columnist an "ingrate." Specifically, he charged Buckley with forgetting the "fact" that White House intervention in the 1970 New York Senatorial campaign had elected his brother, Sen. James Buckley, who ran on the Conservative party line. That was treatment to which Buckley has never become accustomed.

The incident is a curious one. Flanigan apparently acted on his own, without the President's prior blessing. Moreover, his phone conversation with Buckley came after Ashbrook had made his formal announcement, far beyond any possibility of Ashbrook's changing his mind.

It was Buckley's position that he, as oracle and intellectual leader of Republican conservatives, must back Ashbrook once he announced publicly despite private misgivings. To do otherwise might reduce Ashbrook's primary vote in New Hampshire and Florida, thus further diminishing conservative influence within the Nixon administration.

Political pros in and outside the White House want all the Nixon lines open to Buckley and the conservatives, for a very good reason: they want and need conservative political shock troops when the campaign against the Democrats starts next summer.

But Flanigan's potshots at Buckley do not lead toward that mood of eventual reconciliation. To the contrary, there is fear inside the White House that Bill Buckley might now be in a most unhappy state of mind.

That could harden his line. Instead of merely giving Ashbrook passive support, Buckley might vigorously join conservative efforts to demand moves toward the right by Mr. Nixon in return for their endorsement. In particular, they want Ashbrook's candidacy to force Mr. Nixon toward their position on heavier defense spending. Buckley's tenure on the U. S. Information Agency's advisory commission ends later this month, the question now is not whether he will be reappointed but whether he will accept reappointment. The decision to keep him has already been made by Nixon.

Washington Thinks
How little the reflexive attitude of the White House senior staff has changed during three years in power can be measured by its outraged reaction to the vigorous questioning of Mr. Nixon by CBS correspondent Dan Rather in his Jan. 2 televised interview.

Rather was merely performing his professional function as a reporter, and Mr. Nixon did well in his responses. But the reaction at the top of the White House staff boiled down to this: how dare he ask those embarrassing questions to our President! That reflects the enduring preoccupation of the aides in trying to protect Mr. Nixon from all outside criticism.

Even more revealing is the private staff attitude toward a new book, about the Nixon Presidency by best-selling novelist Allen Drury called "Courage and Hesitation." Although it contains criticism here and there, the book is overwhelmingly favorable to Mr. Nixon and all his works.

But the occasional criticism is too much for the President's top staff. Having given conservative Drury the run of the White House (including a rare interview with Mr. Nixon), the protective aides complain bitterly that they have been betrayed because the book was not the glowing panegyric they expected.

Strength For Today

STRETCHING THE TRUTH
No Parking from Here to Corner

He can read as well as anyone else; and furthermore he can see that the front wheels of his car are already abreast of that sign. There is no more parking space left.

But what's he doing? Heavens above, he's parking right in front of that other car. Well of all things! He's moving that parking sign up to the front of his own car. And there he goes down the street whistling and stopping now and again to look into a store window. He hasn't broken the law; he's stretched a city ordinance to meet his convenience.

Some people treat all laws that way, especially the Ten Commandments. When these interfere with convenience they stretch them out a bit. When high heaven itself sets a limit in matters of conduct beyond which they cannot go without breaking the moral law and violating their conscience, they should worry—they move the parking sign. Their slogan is, "If you don't like the way a law operates, make it operate the way you like."

It's amazing how far some people can stretch the thousand-words-of-the-Decalogue without really breaking them.

Who Is Howard Hughes?

WASHINGTON — There is far more at stake in the Howard Hughes-McGraw Hill-Life magazine affair than whether Mr. Hughes did or did not sell his autobiography for publication. The American people, who have been reeling from one credibility crisis to another, are now being asked to decide whether two of the most distinguished publishing companies in this country or one of the richest men in the world are telling the truth.

The evidence is strong on both sides. Howard Hughes in his famous telephone interview says there is not a shred of truth in it. McGraw Hill and Life both insist they have the real thing and plan to go ahead and publish the autobiography no matter what Mr. Hughes says. The problem for the public, which up until this time has remained neutral, is that Mr. Hughes is such a mystery man that we don't even know what he looks like any more, and it's causing tremendous paranoia in everyone's home.

For example the other night my family was watching the news, and suddenly Hubert Humphrey came on the screen to announce he was once again a candidate for President.

"You know," my wife said, "it's funny, but I get the feeling that that isn't really Hubert Humphrey."

"How can you say that?" I said, looking closer at the screen.

"Suppose," she said, "just suppose, that person was Howard Hughes."

"Impossible," I said. "I know Hubert Humphrey. That's his voice. Besides why would Howard Hughes want to be Hubert Humphrey?"

"Nobody knows why Howard Hughes does things," she said. "It would be a perfect disguise for him. Everyone would think he was locked up in the Bahamas, and all the time he would be going around the country making speeches and meeting people and looking for new things to invest in."

"I can't believe it," I said, with my face pressed as close to the screen as I could get it.

"Well, we all know Humphrey has no money. It's very interesting that he would announce for President right after Howard Hughes denied he had sold his autobiography."

"I'm sure it's just a coincidence," I said. "You have to come up with something more (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Excellent Choice

(The Raleigh Times)

The appointment of Sam Ragan as North Carolina's first secretary of Art, Culture and History Department is a singularly appropriate one.

Ragan, a veteran North Carolina newspaperman, is no Johnny come lately in the field of cultural affairs. He has been active as an award-winning poet himself, has taught creative writing courses, has been an active book reviewer, has always gone out of his way to support the arts both personally and professionally. At the same time, he has been and is a trained and hard-working newspaperman who has never forgotten that a good newspaperman is always basically a reporter. Because of this, he has kept in touch with the people of the State, knows their feelings, their ambitions for their state, and is able to translate their feelings to state officials while at the same time getting to the people with what is going on in the fields of culture.

It is important that the man heading the culture department of state government be in touch with all the people, not with just the relatively few who are actively engaged in the practice of things cultural. It is easy to have an inbred culture which is of interest only to those few who sit in their own little circles and communicate only with those in the circle. But, what is needed for all the people are continually enlarging circles which will bring into their influence more and more people.

Ragan can do such a job. He is as interested in finding a lover of poetry who runs a farm for a living as he is in finding a poet on the campus. He is able, too, to get through to the poetry lover-farmer as he is to the professional writer.

His quarter century of experience as a newspaperman in Raleigh will make it possible for him to move with relative ease through the red tape and the bureaucracy of state officialdom. This will be a real factor in his favor as he undertakes to apply the state government reorganization plan to the agencies combined in the new department.

Pressing For A Four-Day Week

By ELMER ROESSNER

The persistence of unemployment of over six per cent of the working force is certain to increase demands for the four-day week. Not only will organized labor agitate for it as a "share the work" plan, but employer resistance will lessen as they face probable increases in assessments for unemployment benefits.

Across the country, a scattering of companies have adopted the four-day week. Results have been mixed, although no disastrous results have been reported and some employers are content.

For example, Eberle Architects-Engineers-Planners of St. Paul is enthusiastic about its shift to a four-day, 36-hour week last June 1. It reports:

Productivity has increased from six to 10 per cent. Absenteeism has dropped 30 per cent from 1970 rates. Employee turnover has decreased 24 per cent from

ELMER ROESSNER

1970 rates. Eberle has added some frills to the shorter work week. There is a two and a half hour quiet period each morning when normal office routine is suspended, providing time for individuals to think, create, plan, correspond and handle detail work. This is followed by a six-and-one-half-hour "more concerted" day. This arrangement is credited for boosting creativity and productivity. It might be difficult to adapt this idea to General Motors, for example. Eberle adds that punctuality has improved, coffee breaks are passe, staff morale has improved, its recruiting program has benefited, rush hours are avoided, and client acceptance has been excellent. Key personnel rotate for Friday coverage.

However, a general shift to a four-day week suggests some difficult problems. For instance:

A change from a 40-hour to a 36-hour week would undoubtedly bring demands for "no cut in take-home pay." In some industries, the rise in efficiency would not offset the loss of hourly performance. Where a 35-hour week prevails, a change to a four-day week would bring demands for a 32-hour week, with no reduction in pay.

In many plants, a four-day week would encourage moonlighting. Employers would gain nothing from better-rested workers or reduced absenteeism. In fact, productivity might decline.

In some industries and some companies, a four-day week would increase labor costs by up to 25 per cent. This would mean higher prices and more inflation.

A universal change to a four-day week might create a drastic labor shortage. Since it would require up to 25 per cent more workers, the six per cent unemployed would not be enough to meet the change.

A four-day week would greatly increase travel, sports and other leisure activities and this, in turn, would create vastly more employment, making the labor shortage worse than suggested above.

The four-day work week will come eventually, but it may still be a little early.

Air Activity Rises On Laos-North Vietnam Border

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — American fighter planes exchanged missiles with North Vietnamese anti-aircraft defenses along the Laotian border today and Sunday and were believed to have destroyed two of them, the U.S. Command announced. It said the American planes were not hit.

"There is a lot of air activity up there," said one U.S. officer, referring to the corridor along the border between Laos and North Vietnam where American bombers are pounding the Ho Chi Minh trail network. "It is one of the heaviest days since the beginning of the dry season."

North Vietnamese missile batteries near the Ban Kari pass unleashed three surface-to-air missiles—SAMS—at U.S. planes operating in the region 35 to 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone and threatened others. U.S. fighters escorting the bombers fired two missiles, and the U.S. Command said one SAM site and one anti-aircraft artillery radar were believed destroyed.

On Saturday the U.S. pilots sighted North Vietnamese MIGs nearly 200 miles farther north, near the Barthelemy pass and east of the Plain of Jars in northern Laos. One MIG crossed the border and tried to intercept an American flight, but the American Phantom jets fired half a dozen missiles, and it fled back into North Vietnam unhurt.

Paralleling the intensified air action was a Communist "high point" of ground activity in South Vietnam, which began a week ago.

The South Vietnamese command reported 20 small-scale enemy ground assaults, rocket, mortar, sapper and terror attacks, most of them in the central and northern provinces of South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command reported that one American was killed when enemy ground fire hit a light observation helicopter supporting South Vietnamese operations 17 miles southwest of Da Nang. Nine more Americans were wounded and three vehicles were destroyed or damaged by mines on Highway 16 about 25 miles north of Saigon, and six other Americans were wounded when a Vietnamese youth hurled a hand grenade into a truck in Ban Me Thuot, in the central highlands.

U.S. B52 bombers flew their heaviest raids in the central highlands in a month, and the region's South Vietnamese commander warned of a Communist buildup in the coastal lowlands as well as in the highlands.

Fifteen B52s dropped 450 tons of bombs on suspected North Vietnamese troop locations, bunkers and storage areas west and northwest of Kontum city near the Cambodian border and southeastward along the border of Binh Dinh province.

Lt. Gen. Ngo Dzu, commander of the 2nd Military Region, told newsmen that the most immediate threat of an enemy offensive is in Binh Dinh, where U.S. and South Vietnamese efforts to establish effective government control over the province have failed.

"They already have a buildup in Binh Dinh," said Dzu. "The problem is now through Tet," the festival of the lunar new year which begins Feb. 15.

U.S. officials say the biggest enemy buildup—and the likeliest place for another Tet offensive—is on the central plateau along South Vietnam's border with northeastern Cambodia and southern Laos. They estimate that 15,000 North Vietnamese troops are in this tri-border region or en route to it. But there are indications that the Communist strategy is to try to draw government forces away from the plateau by increasing activity in the lowlands.

Auto-Diesel Instructors At Pitt Tech Training Session

INSTRUCTORS MEET . . . Jesse Medford and Earl Taylor with Norman Barrett at weekend session at PTI where instructors studied new auto emission control system service methods. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Eighteen auto-diesel instructors from technical institutes and community colleges in eastern North Carolina spent the weekend learning to service new auto emission control systems.

The in-service training session took place at Pitt Technical Institute, Friday night and Saturday morning. Roland

Smith and Dwight McGowan, PTI instructors, served as hosts. Leading the workshop discussions was Norman Barrett, area coordinator for Area Manpower Institutes for Development of Staff, a program of Washington Technical Institute, Washington, D.C.

The training workshop provided an opportunity for the auto-diesel instructors to become better acquainted with the new auto emission controls and become better prepared to teach servicing them at their respective institutions.

According to Smith, the meeting could be termed a very successful one. "We learned a great deal during the weekend and the information will be very helpful in teaching our auto mechanics course at PTI," he said.

'Subversion' Role Denied

LONDON (AP) — U.S. Rep. James H. Scheuer of New York says he hopes his expulsion from Russia on charges of subversive activities won't adversely affect President Nixon's planned trip to the Soviet Union in May.

Scheuer denied that he had engaged in subversive activities or had encouraged Russian Jews to emigrate to Israel, as the Soviet Union charged in ordering him to leave the country last week.

The U.S. State Department said after the Soviet expulsion order that it "would not be helpful to relations."

Scheuer, a Democrat, told newsmen at the U.S. Embassy Sunday, "I would be horrified if the incident affected President Nixon's projected trip to Russia."

He was detained by Soviet security police for 40 minutes last Wednesday after they entered a Moscow home where he was dining with eight top Russian Jewish scientists. The expulsion order followed.

Scheuer was in the Soviet Union with a seven-member congressional subcommittee studying Russian educational methods. He arrived here Saturday.

Helping Early A-Bomb Victims

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Built by the Kyodan, the United Church of Christ of Japan which is related to several U.S. denominations, a nursing home has opened near here to "give symbolic expression by Japanese and overseas Christians to their recognition of joint involvement in the evils of World War II."

Among residents of the new home, called Hiroshima Seireien, are victims of the world's first atomic bomb blast at Hiroshima.

OPEN DOOR FOR VETS
ADRIAN, Mich. (UPI) — Adrian Collidge has begun an "open door" admissions policy for veterans of military service in which any veteran who can produce a high school diploma or equivalent will be admitted for a trial semester.

If the vet proves he can do the work by maintaining a "C" average or better during the semester, he is then admitted to the college as a regular student.

PTA Meets On Thursday

The Rose High School PTA will meet Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. at the high school.

For this meeting, a variety of student activities will be featured, beginning with pupils under Coach Bud Phillips presenting a program of modern dance, gymnastics, trampolines and basketball dribbling skills.

Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst and Robert Karl join forces with their students demonstrating textile printing, figure drawing, candle sculpture, wheel-thrown pottery, linoleum and woodblock printing, and drawing. There will also be an exhibition of work done in the art classes.

In the music part of the PTA program, Miss Louise Hoffer, choral director, will conduct the Biorodanjes and the Rose High Choral Group; and band director James Rodgers will lead the Rose High Stage Band, the Percussion Ensemble and the Woodwind Quintet.

The program will be presented at the beginning of the meeting, with the business session to follow the program.

concrete than that."

By then Hubert Humphrey had faded from the screen, and after a commercial we were shown films of Sheik Mujibur Rahman being welcomed in Bangladesh by his supporters.

My wife said, "Did you notice his fingernails?"

"What's wrong with his fingernails?" I said.

"They're short. Howard Hughes said in his press conference that he had short fingernails."

"Lots of people have short fingernails. Wait a minute. You don't think Sheik Mujibur Rahman is Howard Hughes!"

"I'm not saying he is, and I'm not saying he isn't. But look at his hair. Howard Hughes said he cuts his own hair. The sheik looks as if he cuts his own hair, too."

"You're going bonkers," I said.

"Well, why didn't he say that he wasn't the sheik in the interview?"

The news program went to another commercial and then gave an interview with Ralph Nader. I watched my wife carefully. Finally she shook her head and said, "No, he's too young."

The final segment of the show showed pictures of Africa, natives dancing, drums beating and eventually the camera closed in on Mrs. Richard Nixon wearing a native dress and a towering headdress.

My wife sat up in her chair and said, "Of course. Why hadn't I thought of it!"

"My God," I cried. "You don't think Pat Nixon is really Howard Hughes?"

She just smiled. "I'm not ruling it out. Everyone knows the real Mrs. Nixon hates to fly."

Masons Are Screening Pupil Developing Immunizations 'Food Bank'

District 10 Masons have combined their efforts to get a food bank program underway. Members of various lodges in the district have contributed food as well as money for food, clothing, medicine, fuel or other essentials to help widows, orphans or needy families.

One recent activity in connection with distribution of food from the recently established food bank was a delivery for old Christmas on January 6. District Deputy L. B. Anderson of District 10 and a member of Mt. Herman Lodge No. 35 F and AM in Greenville took care of this program.

With the success of the program during the Christmas season, lodge masters have expressed a desire that the program be kept active throughout the year, with members pledging themselves to contribute to keep the program a continuing one.

Spokesman Monty Frizzell noted that in the food bank program lodge officials would not be seeking recipients, but would stand ready to look into the needs of anyone coming to them for assistance. "We will do all we can to help anyone asking for help," Frizzell commented.

Italy Suffers Another Crisis

ROME (AP) — President Giovanni Leone met today with two former presidents and the heads of both houses of Parliament as he began his search for a premier to head Italy's 33rd postwar government.

A long crisis was expected, but it appeared likely Leone ultimately would ask Emilio Colombo to return to the premiership he resigned Saturday and put together another center-left coalition.

The tiny Republican party, whose defection caused the crisis, said it would join the coalition again if stronger measures were enacted to treat social and economic ills. The Socialists probably will want more power in the next Cabinet as their price.

Red Skelton To Relax His Pace

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton says he plans to retire soon, but a spokesman says Skelton doesn't mean complete retirement.

Skelton, who has 50 years as a comic behind him, told a crowd at the Hilton International he planned to retire after a few more bookings this year.

A spokesman for the 60-year-old Skelton later said the comedian planned to end appearances on the night club circuit, but he would not rule out television and movie work.

Kidnaped Wives Are Ostracized

GENEVA (AP) — About 200,000 Bengali wives who were raped by Pakistani soldiers during the war now are ostracized by the Moslem communities and have virtually no place to turn to, a church relief official reported today.

Tobacco TIPS

By SAM J. WEEKS

One of the greatest hazards facing flue-cured tobacco growers is caused by nematodes. There are very few fields where tobacco is grown that parasitic nematodes are not a problem.

Nematodes generally damage tobacco in two ways. They either enter the roots and feed internally, or puncture the roots and feed from the outside. They rob a portion of the food supply from the tobacco plant when attacking either of these ways. During the feeding process, nematodes inject a substance into the plants that may kill part of the root tissue, cause swelling, or stunt growth. A "cick" plant root system results, and eventually the entire plant may be stunted and the leaves begin to "fire" around the margin and tip. The wound made by the nematode also makes it easy for disease producing organisms to enter the plant. Tests have shown that the presence of certain nematodes will make black shank or Granville wilt worse even when using resistant varieties.

There are three different types of nematodes that attack the tobacco plant. There are two or more species within these three groups, which make nematodes more difficult to control. The crop preference of the different nematode species is such that each may attack a wide variety of crops. Any given crop may be resistant to one kind of nematode and susceptible to another. It is believed that root knot and meadow nematodes cause more damage to tobacco than stunt nematodes.

Nematodes do most damage when high numbers are present in the field at transplanting. Therefore, it is important for farmers to do everything possible to prevent a big carry-over of nematodes from the previous season. High infestations at transplanting time may stunt the tobacco plants so severely that they may not recover.

You should fumigate your soil with one of the recommended fumigants if the nematode maintained at each school. From this research, a record will be made of all immunizations needed by each child.

Ross said that from this record, letters would be sent to parents of all school children indicating what immunizations, if any, their child or children needed. He said he is hopeful that parents will take immediate action to insure that all immunization requirements are met and that they furnish the schools with records of such immunizations.

In most instances, children have received all immunizations with the exception of the newly required one for Red Measles.

Any mothers wishing to volunteer to help with the screening project are encouraged to contact Mrs. Distefano at 758-5676 or Ross at 752-4192.

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY

Impact '76, the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service's new five-year program which was unveiled last week, is a working program that should have great impact on all citizens of Pitt County. It will provide the basis for the annual plans of work which the Agricultural Extension agents in Pitt County will develop for the next five years.

Dr. George Hyatt, Jr., Director of the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, commented that Impact '76 increases the commitment of the Extension Service to speak up for the needs of our rural communities and small towns in this age of increasing urbanization. It challenges us to help our commercial farmers population is high enough to cause injury to your tobacco plants. Do not overlook the importance of transplanting a nematode-free plant in the field. Be sure your plant bed is fumigated for nematode control.

Crop rotations which include crops that are not susceptible to nematodes will help lower the nematode population. For example, in rotation tests conducted in three counties in 1971, the per acre value of tobacco grown in rotation with small grain and fescue was $315 more per acre than when tobacco followed tobacco.

If you would like to determine the nematode population in your tobacco field, you can get a nematode assay made. Information on getting a nematode assay for your farm can be obtained from the County Agricultural Extension Office.

Briton Awarded Franklin Medal

LONDON (AP) — The Royal Society of Arts says the 1972 Benjamin Franklin Medal for contributions to Anglo-American understanding has been awarded to British composer Sir William Walton.

The society said today that Sir William had been cited for his performance of his music with its distinctly English themes in the United States.

The medal is awarded to an American and a Briton on alternate years.

and agribusiness firms to stay competitive at both the national and international levels. And it points to ways that we can help our small farmers and those people who are forced to leave the land.

Further, he stated, Impact '76 increases the Extension Service's Commitment to serve all people, regardless of where they live, through programs in family living, 4-H and Community resource development. It calls for Extension to give special attention to the disadvantaged to the environment.

Pitt County's Extension Staff is committed to the goals of Impact '76. During the coming months a special effort will be made to have all the County's citizens become aware of the program and what it can mean to them. A special slide program is available to be used by Extension agents in presenting this story to civic and other special groups. Copies of the program statement will be made available to certain county agencies and to libraries. Any person interested in a program on Impact '76 or in more information about it should call 758-1196 or write to Agricultural Extension Service, P. O. Box 1427, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

CORN-SOYBEAN WORKSHOP AND FARM MANAGEMENT MEETINGS:

Farmers and agribusiness leaders will be presented information on grain marketing, harvesting and drying, and new production practices in a corn-soybean workshop which will be held at Parker's Barbecue in Greenville, Wednesday, January 26. The program, which will feature Extension Specialists from N. C. State University, will begin at 10:30 a.m. and end about 4 p.m.

On February 2, a series of four farm decision making meetings will begin. They will be held at the Agricultural Extension Building in Greenville. Each session will start at 7 p.m. Henry Riddick, Associate Agricultural Extension Agent and Dr. Charles Pugh, in Charge, Extension Farm Management at N. C. State University, will conduct the meetings.

All interested persons are invited to participate in these events.

Staubach Riddles Miami Defense For Super Title

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Four times MIAMI called the Commander-in-Chief's play—and four times Dallas was there to put it out of commission.

But Roger Staubach, a Navy ensign in Vietnam when the Cowboys were earning a reputation of losing the big ones, performed flawlessly as a field general Sunday in Tulane Stadium and got them that big one, a 24-3 victory over the Dolphins in Super Bowl VI.

"People said we were an unemotional team, that we couldn't win the big ones," the 29-year-old quarterback said after he passed for a pair of touchdowns and directed an offense which riddled the young Miami defense for 352 yards. "I think the team proved it is a very emotional team—a great team."

Staubach was the most obvious here of many heroes in National Football League championship, played before a sellout crowd of 81,023 fans who shivered through the windy, mid-30 degree day.

Running backs Duane Thomas and Walt Garrison and pass-catchers Lance Alworth and Mike Ditka also shared the spotlight—but it was a gang of grizzled bandits—Mel Renfro, Herb Adderley, Cornell Green, Chuck Howley and the rest of the Doomsday Defense—that demolished the Dolphins' dreams.

Miami's hope had been that wide receiver Paul Warfield, with a little bit of help from President Nixon and a lot from Bob Griese, would be able to shake loose and haul in the long bombs for touchdowns that had brought them the American Conference crown.

But from the outset, it was obvious that the Cowboys, who won their last seven National Conference contests, then shut down to once again reach San Francisco to meet the Dolphins in the summit, were ready for the bomb—and anything else Miami could throw against them.

"They were pretty intent on taking away the inside," Warfield said of the Dallas secondary, "and they did it. I just couldn't shake loose."

Virtually every time Warfield burst off the line of scrimmage or out of the backfield, he found Cowboys swarming around him, soaring high or diving low to slap away potential long gainers. "They showed me more than I expected," he sighed.

The president's play, a simple down-and-in pass pattern, was exactly what Dallas was expecting, and was ready to foil every time.

The first time the Cowboys saw it coming, they blitzed Griese, and the Miami quarterback, unable to take the time to look for Warfield, had to throw a safety valve pass to Jim Kiick that gained six yards—and left them with fourth down and forced a punt.

The next time it came, Green came out of nowhere with a headlong dive and fingertip deflection.

Then it was Bob Lilly and the front four again, storming in on Griese and forcing him to throw out of the reach of his wide receiver.

And, finally, with a variation on the play—Warfield in motion before heading into Texas territory, it was Renfro coming up to bat down the pass.

"I think he was a little leery coming in there after a while," Renfro said. "I'm relieved, more than anything, there was an awful lot of pressure on us. I've had something in the pit of my stomach all week."

In all, Warfield was held to just four catches for 39 yards and Griese, all but limited to throwing to his backs and tight ends, managed to complete 12-of-23 passes for only 134 yards.

And with Lilly, the murderous right tackle, and the rest of the front four controlling the in-fighting, the highly touted Miami ground game was even less effective as Kiick and Larry Csonka were held to 40 yards apiece.

Only twice did Miami even threaten to score. The first time with the Dolphins on the Dallas 24-yard line, Griese fired back at the hands of the Baltimore Colts a year ago.

Staubach, Dallas' "fourth running back" because of his scrambling that netted 343 regular-season yards, was forced to run for his life only rarely.

The rest of the time, with an unshakable wall of protection in front of him, Staubach, calling the plays that Coach Tom Landry shuttled in, gazed at the gaps in the Miami defense and sliced it apart with completions on 12-of-18 for 119 yards, including scoring strikes of seven yards each to Alworth and Ditka.

But most of the time he spent the afternoon handing the ball to the real runners, primarily Duane Thomas, who barreled for 95 yards and a three-yard touchdown and Walt Garrison, who finished with 74.

"Our game plan was to go out and start passing early to keep them opened up and then hit with our runners. It worked perfectly," said Staubach, winner in 1963 of the Heisman Trophy—symbolic of collegiate football's best player—and winner on Sunday of an automobile as Super Bowl VI's most valuable player.

The passing, particularly an 18-yarder to Bob Hayes, set up Dallas' first score. A nine-yard Mike Clark field goal climaxed an 11-play, 50-yard drive which began when Csonka, who had not fumbled in 235 regular-season and playoff carries, fumbled, with Howley recovering.

Then the Cowboys hit with their running, Thomas gaining 21 and Calvin Hill 25 in an 11-play, 76-yard march that made it 10-0 in the second quarter as Alworth snared Staubach's pass and twisted into the corner of the end zone.

After Yepremian's field goal in the dying seconds of the half gave the handkerchief-waving Dolphin fans their only real chance to holler, the Dallas ground game put it away, Thomas running for 37 yards in a 71-yard third-period march that made it 17-3.

Then came the crusher—Howley's midfield interception and 41-yard runback to the Miami nine which, three plays later, had Staubach hitting a wide-open Ditka for the final score.

Cavaliers Look To Return Carolina Scores

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There's a lot of Atlantic Coast Conference basketball between now and Feb. 26, but University of Virginia fans probably have that date next month especially in mind.

That's when the Cavaliers return to Chapel Hill for a return match with North Carolina's Tar Heels.

North Carolina whipped the Cavaliers 85-79 Saturday in Charlottesville in a game that is bound to strengthen North Carolina's third-place ranking nationally and hurt Virginia's eighth-place ranking.

Two ACC teams will be put up as sacrificial lambs against the Tar Heels this week when Wake Forest goes to Chapel Hill Wednesday and when Duke hosts the Tar Heels on Saturday.

For Wake Forest it means little chance of improving a sagging record following the Deacons' 70-60 loss to Virginia Tech Saturday. The Deacons are now 0-2 in conference play and 3-9 over-all.

Duke slipped past Clemson 71-69 Saturday to get its first conference victory for a 1-2 league record and a 6-6 over-all record.

North Carolina now is 2-0 in the conference and 11-1 over-all, while Virginia is 4-1 in the ACC and 12-1 over-all.

The North Carolina-Virginia game next month promises to be an emotional one. Virginia fans indicated that Saturday by their signs they had plastered in University Hall at Charlottesville.

The signs included ones that read: "UCLA—Virginia of the West," "Yes, UNC, There is a Virginia," and "What the hell is a Tar Heel, anyway?"

The emotion on the part of the players was evident, too. When Virginia star guard Barry Parkhill, who scored 24, fouled out with six seconds to go, he ran to the bench, hung his head and finally covered himself with a towel.

After it was over, Virginia Coach Bill Gibson called North Carolina "the most talented basketball team I've ever faced."

Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith was asked if this year's Tar Heels could be the best ever? "It has proved it's a great team," Smith said. "But it's still too early to say if this is the Tar Heels' greatest."

Wake Forest's downfall was a man named Allan Bristow. The Virginia Tech player scored 29 points in a game that saw the Gobblers in the lead all the way.

Willie Griffin led the Deacons with 19 points.

Driver Of Year Titles Shared

By BLOYS BRITT AP Auto Racing Writer CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Who really is America's 1971 race driver of the year? Richard Petty, Bobby Allison, or Mark Donohue.

Depends on who is doing the voting.

Petty, acknowledged king of the stock car racing contingent, was honored in Charlotte on Saturday night as the Martini and Rossie driver of the year. His selection was made by a panel of motorsports writers who cover all facts of the sport.

Allison, runnerup to Petty in NASCAR racing in both money and the number of triumphs, was selected auto racing's driver of the year by the National Motorsports Press Association, a Southern-based group. He is to receive the award at a banquet in Charlotte tonight.

Earlier, Donohue out-poled all other drivers for the All-America racing team for 1971 in the annual contest held by the American Auto Racing Writers and Broadcasters Association. He received the Jerry Titus Memorial award as driver of the year.

Petty, who won 21 Grand National events and a record $333,148 in prize, accessory and championship fund money while sticking strictly to stock cars, beat Allison 21 votes to 19 in the Martini and Rossie balloting.

Allison, 34, of Hueytown, Ala., captured 10 major NASCAR events and earned $251,841 in Grand National money. He also picked up about $30,000 from 27 triumphs in NASCAR's sportsman division for older cars and $8,000 for three wins in the Grand American circuit for a total take in excess of $289,000.

Donohue won the Trans-Am sports sedan road racing series, finished first in two USAC championship events and competed in other phases of racing to register $215,123 for the season.

Yet neither of these three could claim the 1971 money title. That honor went to Al Unser, youngest of the Albuquerque brothers, whose second Indianapolis triumph in a row was the springboard for a $356,884 season.

Second place in the overall money ranks went to Pete Revson, whose versatility placed him second in the Indy race, made him the first American to win the rich Canadian-American Challenge Cup road racing title, and boosted him to a full season this year on the international Formula 1 circuit. His 1971 winnings totaled $335,725.

By contrast, Jack Nicklaus' $244,490 set a new money record for the PGA tour.

Almost completely overlooked in all of the driver of the year balloting was the venerable A. J. Foyt. The 20-year veteran cashed $192,056 from USAC-sponsored championship, stock and dirt track racing and invaded NASCAR for $91,433 more for a $283,489 season.

"And that ain't all," the Texan drawled recently. "They paid me extra just to show." How much, he wouldn't say.

A Catholic layman and civic leader when he isn't racing, Allison earlier was selected as NASCAR's most popular driver and 1st year was voted Alabama's "Young Man of the Year."

At the moment, Furman's defending champion Paladins and Davidson's Wildcats are tied for the lead with 4-2 records as a result of Saturday night action in which the Wildcats routed Richmond's Spiders 112-80 and the Paladins dropped an 82-73 decision to East Carolina's Pirates.

The Citadel's Bulldogs edged VMI 68-62 in overtime and moved into a three-way deadlock for third at 3-2 with William and Mary's idle Indians and East Carolina.

Both Davidson and Furman have their only league scraps this week at VMI, the Wildcats on Tuesday night and the Paladins in a regionally televised encounter Saturday afternoon. William and Mary goes to East Carolina Saturday night for this week's only other league game.

Davidson put six players in double figures, forced 39 Richmond turnovers and ran up a 25-9 lead in the first five minutes when the Spiders went 5:38 before getting their first field goal. The Wildcats shot 53.5 per cent from the floor to 39.6 per cent for Richmond.

Sophomore John Falconi had 19 points and senior Eric Minkin 16 to lead the Davidson scoring parade, in which 12 players took part. Richmond had five players in double figures, led by Bob Jacobs with 16.

East Carolina got 23 points from transfer student Jerome Owens and 16 from reserve Nicky White in the Pirates' triumph over Furman, whose league-leading scorer Russ Hunt had 21.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — "It's nice to win a tournament when you don't play that well. It's nice to know that other people can make mistakes, too."

Jack Nicklaus was talking about his less-than-spectacular playoff victory over young Johnny Miller Sunday in the $140,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament.

Nicklaus, who now has won five of his last six starts and is threatening a dominance of the game unmatched in history, sank an 18-foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole for a $28,000 check in his first start of the year.

The victory by the Golden Bear left opposing players, officials and observers shaking their heads and wondering aloud: "How do you beat him if you can't do it when he's playing bad?"

Nicklaus had a brilliant 66 on the opening round, but didn't break 70 again. On the final round he missed six times from six feet or less.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS PITT COUNTY

The listing of property, both real and personal, owned by any person, firm or corporation as of January 1, 1972 will begin January 3, 1972 and continue through February 1, 1972. Property must be listed in the township in which it is located.

Persons who have requested to list by mail should receive the listing forms early in January. These must be completed and returned to the office of the Tax Supervisor before the listing deadline.

Anyone owning property, real or personal, subject to taxation must list such property within the listing period, and anyone failing to do so is liable to the penalties prescribed by law.

North Carolina Law requires owners and operators of parks or storage lots renting space for three or more house trailers or mobile homes to furnish the Tax Supervisor of the county in which the lot is located, the name of the owner and a description of each trailer or mobile home, situated thereon. This list must be submitted by January 15 of each year. Persons failing to comply with the law shall be liable to payment of the tax plus a penalty of $250.00.

You must have your social security number and motor vehicle registration cards when you come to list.

Under the Laws of North Carolina, no extension may be granted unless the county commissioners extend the listing period for all.

For a complete list of locations and dates for listing taxes during January, see other ad in this paper. Pitt County Tax Supervisor

The Worry Clinic

Moving Toward Neuter Strain

Sharon is puzzled by the strange alteration in her husband's behavior. He used to bolt his food and stick to meat and potatoes. Now he is a connoisseur and preoccupied with culinary recipes! Do you readers know what this means? Memorize this case!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-571: Sharon G., aged 39, is worried.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "What is wrong with my husband?"

"He used to be interested only in steak and potatoes. He sneered at my fancy salads and other attempts at culinary appetizers."

"For he grumbled that 'Food is food' and also argued that we wives spend too much time conjuring up exotic dishes."

"But after he passed the age of 40, he suddenly began to take a great interest in rose wine and French cuisine."

"In fact, he began to cook special dishes, just as a hobby. Now, he spends more time in the kitchen than I do!"

"And can recite the names of all the fancy restaurants in our area, as well as tell what they are especially noted for!"

"What would change a stodgy eater into such a connoisseur of food?"

Wives, Beware

Bluntly, my answer to Sharon was a surprise. "Sharon," I said, "you have apparently quit serving him adequate cheesecake in the boudoir!"

Wives, if your husbands begin to talk about various restaurant menus and seem to prefer gastric to erotic calories, take care!

For this is one of the common male symptoms of a man whose libido is waning.

Virile young men usually regard all steaks or hamburgers as about alike!

"Food is food," is their laconic remark, just as was true of Sharon's mate 20 years ago.

So when men become connoisseurs of exotic menu items and smack their lips over rare wines, they are on the toboggan that leads to impotence!

Except for professional chefs whose salary depends on fancy menus, it is usually a feminine hobby to concoct new recipes. It is the wife who thus scallops the edges of the grapefruit, drops a marachino cherry atop dessert or adds a sprig of parsley to give more color to the dinner plate.

A virile male's primary interest is boudoir cheesecake; not fancy dining room frills.

So when he begins to shift toward the dining room type of calories, you know that he is rapidly drifting toward the female category!

As such, he is becoming a neuter in the erotic realm.

This same excessive interest in garnishing menu items is also typical of the "female" partner in homosexual affairs!

The male, whether in heterosexual unions or homosexual alliances, is more sadistic.

Horse breeders thus know that when a filly is brought into the barn, which male animal snorts and prances and tries to break his halter.

Is it the gelding or the young stallion?

The gelding is more interested in his ration of oats and contentedly munches thereon.

But the stallion ignores his oats and hay!

Sharon should realize, too, that when her mate shows more interest in "oats," even of an exotic variety, her "cheesecake" in the boudoir is deficient!

So send of my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Seminar Seeks Interest Youth

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England says the Archbishop of Canterbury will attend a conference in New York next week on the increasing interest in religion by American youth.

Included among his activities, the church said Sunday, will be a speech before a three-day seminar on "The Charismatic Christ" being sponsored by Trinity Institute and sermons at Riverside Church, St. Patrick's Cathedral and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

The archbishop, the Rt. Rev. Michael Ramsey, is spiritual head of the world's Anglicans. He is due to arrive in New York Friday.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(c 1972; By The Chicago Tribune)

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—As South vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQJ1074 ♥AQJ10 ♣643
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♥ Pass
4 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Seven spades, and you should be able to spread the hand after the lead. North could hardly have combined a two no trump rebid with a jump preference on any lesser holding than both major suit kings and either ace, king, queen of clubs, or ace, king of clubs, ace of diamonds.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K10642 ♥7 ♣K852 ♣543
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ Dble. ?

What is your response?
A.—Three spades. Prospects for an adverse heart game are not at all remote and an immediate jump raise is best calculated to inhibit the opponents. Partner should not expect more than this, for with a good hand you would have chosen to redouble.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J10543 ♥8762 ♣1074 ♣J
Your partner opens with one no trump. What is your response?

A.—Pass. You are virtually broke and despite the singleton no thought should be given to a rescue bid unless partner should get doubled.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q4 ♥82 ♣AJ64 ♣KQJ83
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Six clubs. Partner has shown that he has at most a single diamond, for he has described five hearts, four spades and at least three clubs. In view of partner's strong bidding you may expect that he will have no more than one loser in the major suits.

Q. 5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ106 ♥K82 ♣Q85 ♣J75
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠
Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—One try for game is indicated on this hand and the suggested call is two no trump. Your values are well distributed and if your partner has a maximum raise there may be a chance for a game.

Q. 6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K62 ♥AK9743 ♣5 ♣QJ8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Two no trump. This is preferable to another rebid of hearts. Partner has shown a rather good hand and the key to the best final contract may be your club stopper.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠76 ♥AJ982 ♣83 ♣K1064
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♠ 1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. At no trump this hand is worth eight points. At hearts its value is 10 points. The hand is slightly unbalanced and an effort should be made to place it at hearts. Partner should have 16 points for his one no trump overall. If he rebids three no trump, then pass.

Q. 8—East-West vulnerable, and as South you hold:
♠AK ♥Q864 ♣AKJ62 ♣K10
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 NT Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. Best chance to show a profit is to pass and permit West to work for you. If he is honest you can make nothing. If he is fooling, vulnerability will take care of him.

Cite Shift In Balance Of Power

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda said Saturday the world's balance of forces has shifted in favor of Communism, thus making possible the limitation of the arms race.

The article written by V. Larionov, an official of the USA Institute of the Soviet Academy of Sciences. He did not make clear whether he meant the balance of forces in a military or political sense. The USA Institute is one of the many subdivisions of the academy and specializes in the study of U.S. affairs.

Larionov said the general political climate in the world had changed for the better, giving rise to hopes toward reaching a mutually acceptable agreement on arms limitation and disarmament.

Public Defender For Juveniles

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The girl was just 13 years old and was in the county jail of a nearby community. She had committed no crime, nor had any charges been placed against her.

"They told us she had been hanging around with an 18-year-old boy and they put her in jail to keep her from getting pregnant," according to the lawyer who arranged her release.

The boy was 17, charged with rape and carrying a reputation as "the town idiot" of another central Kentucky town. His hearing was still five months away, but papers had been prepared to turn the case over to the grand jury.

"Everybody had made up their minds that he'd gone on a rampage," the lawyer said. But with legal counsel, a hearing produced testimony from a doctor that there probably was no rape.

The boy finally was charged with a misdemeanor on which a hearing is pending, but even if he is found guilty, "it is the difference between a life in prison and a chance for rehabilitation," the lawyer said.

The case comes from the files of the Kentucky Juvenile Defender Program, the first federally funded program in the nation to provide legal counsel exclusively to indigent juveniles.

Funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare through next June, the program operates in a 17-county area, 16 of which are considered "rural counties."

Its present staff numbers only four—an administrator, a lawyer, a law clerk and a secretary—but legal interns, third-year law students, from the University of Kentucky, are used in the work, too.

"In this way we expand the return for the government's money by having three legal interns while we are paying just one lawyer," said James Archambault, administrator of the program.

The lawyer in the program, Mrs. Anthea Boardman, said one of the problems the juvenile defenders are trying to solve involves the lack of distinction in juvenile law between a misdemeanor and a felony.

For example, she noted, an adult can write a fraudulent check for any amount less than $50—say for $49.95—and his sentence is limited by law to a short jail term.

A juvenile, on the other hand, might merely play hooky from school and in some cases be committed to the Department of Child Welfare for years of confinement.

Archambault explained that the whole idea for the juvenile defender program came from a noted Supreme Court decision involving Gerald Gault, a 15-year-old Arizonan.

The youth was charged with making lewd telephone calls and, after an informal hearing, he was sentenced to a reformatory for six years—until he was 21.

Had Gerald been an adult, the maximum sentence would have been two months in jail.

On appeal, the Supreme Court upheld the decision on grounds neither Gerald nor his parents had been properly notified of the charges; been informed of their right to counsel; been allowed to cross-examine witnesses against him; provided written record of the proceedings that resulted in the sentence, or been allowed to appeal directly the conviction.

The supreme Court held that juveniles are guaranteed the same protections under the law as adults and all of these circumstances violated these protections.

However, Gault had served three years of his six-year sentence by the time the ruling was handed down.

"Our job is to give children the rights guaranteed by the Gault case and the Constitution," Archambault said.

He noted that only 13 of Kentucky's county judges—who usually act also as juvenile court judge—are lawyers. In many cases, the judge is unaware of state or federal law in a particular case.

"Most Kentucky juvenile courts are run arbitrarily ... with no standards of procedure for the judge to follow," Arch-ambault said.

"A child accused of possession of marijuana in one county may be reprimanded and sent home to his parents, while another child in another county may be confined to a state institution on the same charge," he continued.

Therefore, the juvenile defenders have expanded their goals from simply providing legal counsel to the upgrading of juvenile courts and clarification of juvenile law.

Expect To Vote

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A survey indicates that 88 per cent of the freshmen students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill expect to vote in the 1972 presidential election.

The poll was part of a nationwide questionnaire given 500,000 college freshmen under the sponsorship of the American Council on Education. Answers were received from more than 2,600 of the 3,100 UNC freshmen.

The students also were asked to classify themselves as "far left, liberal, middle-of-the-road, conservative or far right." The UNC student average was exactly half way between liberal and middle of the road.

U.S. Threat Downgraded

LOS ANGELES (AP) — China's policy makers now consider the Soviet Union and Japan—and not the United States—the major threats in its geographical sphere of influence, a former U.S. ambassador to Japan says.

Edwin O. Reischauer, who served under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, said he was convinced that the Nixon administration is disengaging the United States from Southeast Asia but total withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina would occur only after the presidential elections.

He told the Harvard and Radcliffe clubs of Southern California Saturday that the American position on the recent India-Pakistan war made the United States look foolish.

Reischauer, now a professor of history at Harvard, said that in an era in which changes were occurring even faster than during the Renaissance, President Nixon and his chief adviser, Henry S. Kissinger, still base U.S. foreign policy on "19th Century balance-of-power" theories.

Plan Mining On Floor Of Ocean

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Hughes Tool Co. says it plans to mine manganese from the ocean floor at depths of 12,000 to 18,000 feet.

Paul Reeve, manager of mining research for the company, said as he helped launch a 324-foot barge that will be used in the mining: "I can say very little about this because of the proprietary nature of the operation."

Reeve refused to disclose the location of the venture other than to say it is "somewhere in the Pacific."

Manganese is an alloy often used in lightweight aerospace metals.

Back In Race If He Is Wanted

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Durham eye doctor Eugene Grace says he'll get back in the race for U.S. senator if enough people want him.

Grace announced as a candidate for Sen. B. Everett Jordan's seat several months ago. After a few weeks of campaigning, he announced his withdrawal.

Saturday night he told a group of small businessmen in Charlotte: "If my support continues to build to the point of helping the farmer, small business and working people, and if the present candidates don't speak openly to vital issues, I shall stand as a candidate in the Democratic primary for the United States Senate."

IN MEMORIAM

A Prayer to Loved Ones and Acquaintances Of Leonard Kilby Herring

Dear Lord,
On this afternoon of the fourteenth day of December, 1971, only eleven days before the anniversary of the coming of Christ, I pray Thy mercy on the family, the friends, and even the foes of this conscientious former student of Pitt Technical Institute—father of two, devoted husband, and Catholic by faith — a late-comer to higher education but a forerunner to life beyond the grave.

Have mercy on his soul, Father, even as he himself boldly and sincerely asked his instructor of English to have mercy on him when he first entered his classroom that early September morn only three months past. Bless the hour that he drew a cross, colored it, and labeled his term project "MERCY."

Thank you that he responded favorably to his requests, though she only slightly understood his plea.

No more exams to miss or incompletes to change to grades. No more earthly difficulties — justified or unjustified. No more murals to draw or art projects to ease the tension. No more Santa Claus to pretend.

Instead, a throng of friends, a cross in hand, a wealth of peace, a crown of serenity, and a Saviour of endless, perfect MERCY.

Into Thy loving, tender, flawless hands we commend him to Thee.

In Jesus' name
we pray sincerely,
Amen and Amen
(Mrs. Jean Cox Brown)
Instructor of English

Four Pedestrian Deaths In N.C.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A one-car wreck on a rural road in Robeson County killed Charles E. Franklin, 20, of Fairmont.

John E. Morgan, 21, of Midland, was killed when his car ran off a rural road south of Concord.

A Pope Air Force Bass airman, George Easley Dye, 23, was killed when his car ran off a rural paved road 15 miles south of Lillington in Harnett County.

A fatality not included in the North Carolina toll was James D. Hollar, of Lenoir, who died in a Tennessee accident. He was driving a tractor-trailer involved in a collision with another large truck on I-40, just east of Cuba Landing.

Offbeat Place For Tourists

TERELJ, Mongolia (UPI) — Tourists visiting Outer Mongolia can spend a night in a feltlined yurt, the canvas tents in which Mongolian herdsmen have lived for centuries.

A bed in one of the 16 yurts erected for tourists rents for 10 tugriks ($2.50) a night. The yurts are heated by pot-bellied stoves and each yurt holds contains four beds. Terelj is located 48 miles southeast of Ulan Bator, capital of the Mongolian People's Republic.

Denim is a three or four harness twill-weave textile.

Four pedestrians, including a 12-year-old boy, were among 11 persons killed in North Carolina traffic accidents over the weekend.

The deaths brought the 1972 toll to 74, five more than at the same time last year.

Don Jeffrey Russell, 12, of Albermarle, was killed when he stepped into the path of a car on N. C. 73 near his home.

McKenzie Ballard, 27, of Norwood, was killed when struck by a car on a rural road four miles north of his home.

Leonard W. Allen, 69, of Arlington, Mass., was killed when he stepped in front of a car on U. S. 301 near Fayetteville.

The fourth pedestrian fatality was Hugh A. Hendricks, 51, of Maiden. He was struck by a car while walking across U. S. 321 in Lincoln County.

Two persons were killed when a car ran off a rural road three miles from Asheboro. The victims were Charles D. Hill, 20, and Emet W. Cox, 19, both of Asheboro.

The Highway Patrol said the other victims all were killed in one-car accidents in which the vehicles ran off the road.

James A. Gubton, 44, of Rt. 1, Castalia, died in one of the one-car accidents on a rural road 10 miles east of Louisburg in Franklin County.

Freddie Moore, 52, of Winnow, was the victim of an accident on N. C. 133 near Brunswick.

RALEIGH (AP) — Paroles are at an all-time high under the administration of Gov. Bob Scott. The governor's office says paroles saved North Carolina $12.5 million in custody costs in 1971.

A report compiled at Scott's request by the Board of Paroles shows that 7,593 men have been paroled during the first three years of Scott's term. This includes 2,839 in 1971. As many as 3,000 more paroles may be granted during his final year in office.

That tops the record of 7,384 during Gov. Dan Moore's four-year term. Some 6,659 were granted under Gov. Terry Sanford and 5,067 under Gov. Luther Hodges.

Fred Morrison, Scott's legal affairs assistant, said the increase in paroles stems largely from the increase in supervisory personnel and the late parole program initiated under Scott.

The parole program, started in the spring of 1968, is designed to get as many prisoners as possible out on parole 30 to 90 days before their sentences end. The beneficiaries of the program are men who would not normally be considered for paroles.

Six special parole officers, hired with a federal grant of $53,433, supervise the late paroles, help them find jobs and homes and generally aid them in easing back into free society. These officers work closely with the Jobs for Ex-Offenders program in the Department of Correction.

"Before they just gave them $15 or $25 and an old suit of clothes and let them out the gate with no supervision when it came time for their release," Morrison said.

The rate of recidivism, or return to prison, is about 70 per cent among inmates who are released without supervision, he said.

Among paroles, however, the recidivism rate is only about 20 per cent. Many of them are returned to prison for parole rule violations and not for additional crimes.

Morrison said another federal grant for the late parole program has been approved through the Governor's Law and Order Committee, and six more special parole officers will begin working with the program Feb. 1.

He said besides helping ex-convicts to readjust to society and keep from returning to prison, the parole program also saves the state money.

The Board of Paroles figures show that it cost 91 cents a day for each parolee they had under supervision in 1971. This ranged from 4,094 on Jan. 1, to 4,556 by Dec. 31.

The cost to the Department of Correction for keeping these men in custody would have been $9.02 per day each.

So the board figured that it saved the state $8.11 a day for each of an average of 4,210 convicts—a savings of $12.46 million for 1971.

The board report also notes that a total of $277,144 in welfare payments was saved because men out on parole are working at paying jobs were able to take their families of welfare. And, the report said the parolees earned $12.68 million in taxable income during 1971.

Spending Up By Tourists

RALEIGH (AP) — Spending by tourists in North Carolina increased by $48 million to a record $850 million last year, the state Travel and Promotion Division reported Saturday.

The division said 42 million out-of-state travelers visited North Carolina in 1971. This was an increase of 2 million over 1970. The visitors spent an estimated $549 million, and this was an increase of $31 million over 1970.

States that provided the most visitors to North Carolina were, in order, Virginia, Tennessee, Ohio, Florida, Georgia, New York and South Carolina.

The division also reported that 911,811 of the visiting tourists stopped at one of the state's three welcome centers during 1971. These included 340,674 at the center on Interstate 95 near Roanoke Rapids, 315,423 at the center on Interstate 40 near Waynesville, and 255,714 at the center on Interstate 85 at Norlina.

Quits Own Job Before Picking 2 To Be Fired

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — An electronic engineer says he was told to select two employees who would lose their jobs, but he quit his own rather than force someone else out.

"I lost my security and gained my freedom," said David M. Hodgkin, 48, an engineer at Collins Radio Co. here for 24 years.

He was among 550 persons who lost jobs at the plant last week in the latest set of cut-backs.

The father of four children, two of whom still live at home, Hodgkin announced his decision at the First Christian Church's Sunday worship service.

He said he rated the men in his group and decided—in terms of immediate money-making potential for the radio manufacturing firm—that his name should be on the bottom of the list.

He said he hopes to form a corporation which would be based on "human dignity and full participation by everyone associated with it."

Vaccine Curbs Cancer Growth

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Through the use of a tuberculosis vaccine, two Duke University doctors report, they have succeeded in arresting growth of a highly malignant skin cancer in 18 per cent of their test cases.

In a report issued by the university Saturday, the doctors expressed the opinion their work offers significant hope for recovery for patients afflicted with melanoma in its very early stages.

Dr. Hilliard Seigler, associate professor of surgery and immunology, and Dr. William Shingleton, professor of surgery, said their tests indicate that the tuberculosis vaccine BCG enhances the body's immune system and increases the body's ability to produce cancer-fighting antibodies.

"We had seen patients who had failed to respond to all the known modes of therapy—cobalt, chemotherapy, surgery, and profusion (infusing a drug directly into the affected area)—but with this new medical modality a significant percentage of melanoma cases were arrested," Seigler said.

"The immunization therapy has allowed 18 per cent of the melanoma patients to have regression of the disease."

The doctor said "this form of treatment is the only form of therapy known to date to be effective in bringing about regression in melanoma."

The research involved 22 patients in the terminal stages of melanoma, and tests showed only half the patients had intact immune systems.

The patients were given injections of BCG. Then they were placed on a blood cell separator which isolated and collected antibody-producing cells. In addition, the cells were stimulated with cancer cells that had been bombarded with x-rays to prevent them from dividing once they were reintroduced into the patient.

Ten of the 22 patients died, but in eight the disease was stabilized, the doctors reported. The other four showed tumor regression and evidence of antibodies.

Seigler said the clinical significance was not so much "the visible and lasting evidence of improvement" in four previously terminal patients. "What is important is the fact that we believe this figure can be improved by treating patients in the early stages of melanoma," he stated.
