

$2 Increase Adopted For Student Fee

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The status of increase in city schools' pupil instructional supply fees was determined yesterday. At the January meeting of the Greenville City School Board on Monday night, Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the city schools, revealed that the $2.00 increase "was a legitimate assessment."

During the summer of 1971, board members approved a $4.00 per pupil fee. Before it could be put into effect, however, the presidential freeze order raised a question about the legitimacy of increasing the fee, which had previously been $2.00.

Because of the uncertainty, only $2.00 in instructional supply fees was collected from each school child at the beginning of the school year.

With the favorable ruling, school officials will now be sending parents notices that an additional $2.00 fee is to be collected from each child to complete the $4.00 annual fee.

Board members approved a draft lease between the City School Board and the Recreation Commission for use of the Eppes property for a recreational center. Approval was subject to an assurance from the school attorney that item 8 of the lease dealing with property and personal responsibility met all legal requirements to relieve the school board from any possible liability.

In a series of mid-year mini reports, Associate Superintendent Glenn Cox gave reports on maintenance, food services and pupil transportation. He noted that delivery of two new busses was scheduled for Wednesday. These are replacements for old busses that have been sold. Cox also revealed that the mileage for daily bus trips per day had dropped from an average of 42.5 miles in 1967 to an average of 32 miles per day for this school year.

Cox noted that the hiring of two additional maintenance personnel had been made possible through funds from the Emergency Education Assistance Act. One is a custodial supervisor, and the second is a motor pool assistant.

He noted that the eventual long-range plan for maintenance of buildings and grounds included going into two shifts, with a day shift and a night shift.

In food services, Cox reported that an allocation of some $5,700 had made it possible to employ a full-time food supervisor. He observed this would facilitate the schools' policy of buying bulk, as it meant the schools now had someone to get out bids for bulk buying and to plan and supervise storage. New items of lunchroom and kitchen equipment have been added this year to several schools.

Dr. Cleetwood and members who attended the District Meeting of the N.C. School Boards Association in Williamston last week reported on that meeting. Dr. Cleetwood also gave brief reports on the Citizens Advisory Committee; on the program for Rubella immunization; and a forthcoming random testing as part of a statewide assessment of achievement, aptitudes and attitudes.

Dr. Rexford E. Piner, principal of Wahl-Coates Elementary School, reported on the new school which has been in operation since January 3. Piner observed that a few bugs had developed, but that the maintenance department at East Carolina University had been very prompt in correcting the deficiencies. He said there was a definite need to construct concrete stairs and sidewalks leading to the playground and that a gully back of the parking lot required cleaning and filling.

Bob Sigmund, director of secondary education, reported on progress on establishing the Aycock Learning Center. Sigmund said that East Carolina University was giving full assistance in lining up various assistants and that social workers were volunteering their services to the program, including a teacher who had offered her services in a tutorial program.

Two new teachers were approved by the board — Mrs. Dorene A. Drumm and Mrs. Margaret S. Lomax.

Dr. Cleetwood informed board members that forms were being sent to all current teacher and staff members, relative to their intent on whether or not they will be available to continue their employment for the coming school year.

A request for a student's release to transfer to a county school was approved; and in the case of an appeal of expulsion, the date of January 24 was set for a board hearing.

NCNB Reports 1971 Income

CHARLOTTE (AP) — NCNB Corp. reports a 20.6 per cent increase in consolidated income before securities losses for 1971. Board Chairman Addison Reese said income for the year was $16.6 million.

Last year's income was $13.8 million. Net securities losses for 1971 were $238,752, for a net income per share of $2.39.

Not A Candidate

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Labor Commissioner Frank Crane announced Tuesday that he will not be a candidate for reelection to his council of state post.

He said in a written statement that he has been labor commissioner for almost two decades and that his reasons for retiring "are entirely personal."

"The job has been challenging and during this period I have endeavored to make a positive contribution to the progress and development of the state," he said.

Crane, 65, was appointed commissioner by the late Gov. William B. Umstead in June, 1954 to succeed the late Forrest H. Shuford. He has been reelected every four years since then.

Phantoms Again Encounter North Viet MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — A pair of North Vietnam's fastest MIG jets fired three missiles at two American fighter-bombers along the Laotian border within 100 miles of Hanoi Monday but missed, the U.S. Command reported today.

The encounter was the second in three days between U.S. and North Vietnamese jets. On Saturday, the Americans fired the missiles and the MIG21 escaped.

The two American F4 Phantoms took evasive action in the engagement Monday and never got in position to fire back, U.S. spokesmen said. After launching their missiles, the MIGs turned back across the border.

U.S. warplanes were out again in force over wide areas of Indochina today, flying more than 250 strikes against North Vietnamese supply routes, depots and troop locations.

In the ground war, Viet Cong guerrillas kept up small-scale attacks across South Vietnam, with 26 more reported in the past 24 hours.

Many of the attacks were along the central coast in Binh Dinh Province, where two American helicopters were shot down Monday supporting the South Vietnamese. There were no U.S. casualties.

The U.S. Command said an Army Cobra gunship and an OH6 light observation helicopter spotting enemy positions went down 35 miles northwest of Qui Nhon, the provincial capital.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress opens its 1972 session today with a trio of civil-rights measures and final action on foreign aid high on the agenda.

Job-discrimination and school-busing disputes are promised in the first two bills on the Senate calendar, and Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said women's rights will be next up. The first Senate bill will be taken up Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the House scheduled final action Wednesday or Thursday on compromise, foreign-aid and campaign-reform bills that had been tangled in a House-Senate deadlock that was broken before the first session of the 92nd Congress, ended Dec. 17.

The House hoped to act on a bill after opening ceremonies today that would give Guam and the Virgin Islands nonvoting delegates in Congress.

Heading the Senate agenda is a bill to stiffen the federal law against job discrimination and expand it to cover any business

Abzug Seeking Censure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., urged Congress today to censure President Nixon for not setting a date for withdrawal of American forces from Indochina.

She said in a statement prepared for a news conference the President "has proceeded to flout both the intent and the language" of a 1971 law declaring it to be the policy of the United States that such a date be set.

The language was included in the Military Procurement Act signed by Nixon last November. The President said at the time he did not consider the language binding.

Mrs. Abzug said the President has "escalated the mass bombing of North Vietnam, choosing to do so while Congress was in recess, and now he is continuing the massive bombing of Laos and Cambodia. He has not negotiated in good faith in Paris."

"I believe that what is at issue for us," she added, "is a clear constitutional confrontation. Does the President have the authority under the Constitution to pick and choose which sections of the law he will obey and which he will disobey?"

Lt. Gov. Visits City Wednesday

North Carolina's Lieutenant Governor H. Pat Taylor, who has announced his candidacy for governor, will be visiting Greenville on Wednesday, January 19.

On that date, Taylor will be on hand at a public reception at the Greenville Moose Lodge from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

For this campaign visit, Lt. Governor Taylor will greet and talk to the public, who are invited to come by and meet him during the two hour reception period.

The reception will be held in the Red Room of the Moose Lodge.

or union with eight or more employees or members, as well as state and local-government employees.

The bill would empower the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) to issue cease-and-desist orders against job discrimination.

A similar bill passed by the House last year would give the EEOC authority to take court action but not to issue cease-and-desist orders on its own.

The commission currently is limited to persuasion.

After that the Senate will take up a $23-billion higher-education bill and Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., says he will offer an amendment to strip federal courts of power to order busing if they found students were not assigned on the basis of race.

The House already has added amendments barring the use of federal money for busing and providing that the federal government cannot force states to spend money on busing to achieve racial integration.

After those two bills are acted upon, Mansfield says he will call up a proposed constitutional amendment that would guarantee equal rights for women. The amendment was filibustered to death in the Senate two years ago and then revived last year by the House, which made some changes.

Ships Seized

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard ship, authorized to fire a round across the bow of a Soviet fishing vessel today after the vessel broke away from its escort, brought the ship under control and moored alongside, a Coast Guard spokesman reported.

No shots were fired, the spokesman said.

American Coast Guardsmen were aboard the fishing vessel, one of two taken into U.S. custody earlier on charges of violating the American 12-mile contiguous fisheries zone.

Details were sketchy here, but the spokesman said word was received at 5:35 a.m. EST that the Soviet ship was under control in icy waters in the Bering Sea. The order authorizing a shot to be fired had been given at 4:57 a.m. EST.

The armed icebreaker Storis was the ship on the scene. She had been escorting the two vessels when one, the Lamut, attempted to escape custody.

The Storis carries a 3-inch gun, two rocket launchers and two helicopters.

Game Animals Were Poisoned

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — The deaths of 19 game animals in a hunting preserve near here must have been caused by intentional poisoning, says the preserve's owner.

John B. Amos, owner of the 600-acre Royal Hunting Preserve, said the deaths "can only be ascribed to malicious mischief on the part of a person or persons unknown."

He reported Monday that 17 buffalo, an antelope and an elk died during late November and early December. Amos said a toxicologist, determined sodium nitrate poisoning as the cause of death.

The preserve opened last fall amid protests from several groups and individuals who criticized the hunting of the animals in an enclosed area.

Legislative Steps For Docks Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Within hours after 13,000 longshoremen resumed a dock strike at 24 West Coast ports, the White House announced it would seek congressional action to send them back to work.

"It appears that legislative action may be the only remedy to allow us to prevent another long and crippling strike," White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said in Washington Monday.

Ziegler said the administration was "examining alternative courses of action that might be recommended to Congress."

He and other administration officials did not disclose any details, and political observers said it could take weeks of congressional hearings before any bill was passed.

Picket signs appeared Monday morning at ports from Seattle to San Diego after Harry Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, told members that last-minute bargaining talks had failed to produce a settlement before an 8 a.m. strike deadline.

More than half the shipping which normally reaches West Coast ports has been diverted to Ensenada, Mexico; Vancouver, B.C.; and to East and Gulf ports, shipping sources said.

The longshoremen's work stoppage was a resumption of one ended Oct. 6 when President Nixon obtained an injunction under the Taft-Hartley law. West Coast ports had been closed 100 days.

After the 80-day Taft-Hartley back-to-work order expired Christmas Day, the ILWU consented to the employer Pacific Maritime Association's requests for two extensions. The last one ended Monday.

Before talks broke off Monday, ILWU negotiators had met through the night with the PMA and federal mediator J. Curtis Counts.

Bridges said in a telephone interview that the union "broke off on the issue of retroactivity."

"Counts put to both sides the proposition that we stop the clock and continue talks with any final agreement terms retroactive to Nov. 14," Bridges added. "We agreed. The PMA didn't."

The Nov. 14 retroactivity date marks the start of Phase 2 of the Nixon administration's economy control program. The union argued that management granted retroactivity to Aug. 14 in longshore negotiations on the East and Gulf coasts.

Besides retroactivity, issues separating the two sides were royalties for handling container cargoes, a guaranteed work week and fringe benefits.

Boy Collapses In School, Dies

Levon Sutton, a 15 year old ninth grader of Aycock Junior High, died this morning at Pitt Memorial Hospital shortly after arrival there.

Paul Raspberry, principal of Aycock, related that the student collapsed in class at about 8:40 a.m., during the showing of a film in the industrial arts class.

"Levon had played a bit in the gym, not in a game, but shooting practice balls. He reported to class when the 8:35 bell rang and collapsed shortly after the beginning of the film."

Julian Cleveland, industrial arts teacher, summoned two coaches for first aid and the rescue squad was immediately called for.

Raspberry said he received a call from the hospital soon after nine o'clock informing him of Levon's death.

Levon was the son of Mrs. Delzora Sutton of 1014 Fairfax Street. Mrs. Sutton is an employee in the Third Street Elementary School.

Coroner E. W. Harvey confirmed young Sutton's death but said that cause of death had not yet been determined.

N.C. Crop Value In '71 Said Down 1.7 Per Cent

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Crop Reporting service said today that the value of all crops produced in the state in 1971 was down 1.4 per cent from the year before.

Much of the decline was blamed on Hurricane Ginger and the record-high October rainfall.

The service said the combined value of field crops, vegetables, fruits and nuts produced last year is estimated at $946 million. This compares with $960 million in 1970.

The figure includes receipts for quantities sold and to be sold, value of crops used on farms and receipts from price support payments.

The 1971 crops were harvested from some 4,450,000 acres compared to 4,123,000 acres harvested in 1970.

The value of the tobacco crop—713 million pounds of flue-cured and 16 million of burley—was placed at $565 million. This was only $20 million short of 1970, despite an 87 million pound drop in production.

The second most valuable crop, corn for grain, was valued at $115.5 million compared with $115 million for the blight and drought ridden crop of 1970. The value of the 1971 crop was sharply depressed by weather damage and poor prices.

Last year's soybean crop is valued at $64 million for 22.5 million bushels. This compares with the 1970 figures of 20.8 million bushels and $60.3 million value.

The state produced 320 million pounds of peanuts valued at $44.8 million compared to 446 million pounds at $58.9 million in 1970.

Both peanuts and soybeans suffered extensive yield and quality damage during the season, mainly from Ginger.

Cotton production in 1971 is placed at 130,000 bales for a value of $30.6 million. Improved market prices and higher support payments lifted the value nearly $2 million over that of 1970 despite a drop of about 25,000 bales in production.

Two of the state's small grain crops produced record high out-turns. A record 11.6 million bushels of what brought $22.7 million compared to 8.5 million bushels worth about $13.9 million in 1970. Barley was valued at $4.4 million for 4.1 million bushels, compared to 3.3 million bushels at $3.3 million in 1970.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's first full look at Northern school segregation may provide some temporary solace to Southerners who feel they have been singled out unfairly for stern busing orders. But the eventual ruling could have an impact on all sections of the country, North, West and South, for two principal reasons. First, the court, in examining Denver schools, will be dealing with a typical American city with its shifting residential patterns and marked minority groups. The question, here as elsewhere, is whether high concentrations of white children in some schools and blacks (and Spanish-speaking Americans) in others are evidence of officially sustained segregation, without proof that school officials actually were trying to promote segregation. Second, most or all schools in a city be desegregated? Or is it enough to take the kind of partial measures the U.S. Circuit Court in Denver decided was legally sufficient when it acted to integrate a handful of schools in Denver but left about a dozen others primarily one race?

ruled that members of a United Mine Workers reform movement should be allowed to participate in a government suit to overturn the election of UMW president W.A. "Tony" Boyle. But the ruling limits the intervention to claims the government already has brought against the 1969 election. The suit is being considered by a federal district court here. Also, the court agreed to decide whether the Air Force may be held liable for damage to property caused by sonic booms. The case, to be heard later in the term, concerns a family in Nashville, N.C., and a ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court in Richmond, Va., that shielded the Air Force.

Daily Cemetery Visits By Mussolini's Widow

PREDAPPIO, Italy (AP) — The road to the hill country farmhouse where Benito Mussolini's widow has lived since Il Duce's day is pitted with ruts and potholes. "Benito paved roads all over Africa," complains Donna Rachele, as the widow likes to be called. "But he never thought to fix up the road to our house."

The restaurant is closed now for extensive repairs. The place was wrecked in a fight between Communists and Neo-Fascist youths last June 29, on Mussolini's birthday. Friends say the place will be reopened, perhaps in February. "I'm not a rich woman even though I am the widow of the ruler of Italy," Donna Rachele has said. "I need the money." The restaurant offered a "Mussolini wine" and "spaghetti alla Benito."

Until a few months ago she also went each day to "le Caminate," a restaurant she has run for 10 years atop the Rocca Delle Caminate, a nearby hill-top where Mussolini had his official summer villa. The restaurant is closed now for extensive repairs. The place was wrecked in a fight between Communists and Neo-Fascist youths last June 29, on Mussolini's birthday. The Mussolini tomb here in the Romagna Hills between Florence and the Adriatic also has suffered damage from vandalism. It was partly shattered by a bomb explosion at Christmas time. Mrs. Mussolini has hired a guard to protect it. Also buried there are Mussolini's son Bruno, who died in a war-time plane crash and daughter Anna-Maria, who died a few years ago. There is a granite coffin inside that Donna Rachele had prepared for herself. Donna Rachele has stuck to her old habits of life. "I'm usually up at 6," she says, "sometimes at 5."

Price Hikes By Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. has announced price increases ranging up to $35 on its 1972 model passenger cars, effective on vehicles shipped from assembly plants Monday. The increase amounts to an average of $20, or one-half of one per cent, across the company's product line, but prices on its intermediate-sized models in the Plymouth and Dodge lines were held at their earlier levels. In the announcement Monday, Chrysler said the boost reflects "a further recovery of cost increases previously approved by the Price Commission." The costs included an improved seat belt system required in all passenger cars built after Jan. 1. The company was authorized by the price panel to increase its new car prices by 4.5 per cent late last year, but at that time raised its prices 3 per cent. The retail price of the improved belt system has been estimated by industry executives at $25 to $30.

Production Data Said Hopeful Sign For '72

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says a solid gain in industrial production last month is an encouraging sign that the economy is beginning to turn upward. The Federal Reserve Board reported Monday that its industrial-production index increased by 0.7 per cent in December after a 0.6-per-cent advance in November. The December figure was 107.8 per cent of the 1967 base year, but 3.7 per cent below the mid-1969 peak. A spokesman for President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said that since August, when the President made his bold economic moves, the factory-production figure has been strong, rising at about a 7-per-cent annual rate. "This is very encouraging," the spokesman said. "It's the kind of thing that makes you smile." He said output was particularly strong in the manufacturing sector, moving ahead by 0.8 per cent.

For all of 1971, however, performance of the key economic indicator was less than vigorous. The board said the index was 3 per cent higher than a year ago. In past economic recoveries, the industrial-output indicator has grown by as much as 7 or 8 per cent. The moderate growth for all of 1971 left the economy with considerable slack. The December report indicated a possible quickening of the nation's economic pace, something the administration has watched for since the first of the year. But about half the December increase reflected a snapback of coal production from a recent strike. The automobile industry, one of the key factors in a strong recovery, kept production at about the November level of 8.6 million units. Output of such materials as steel, textiles and paper increased, along with consumer goods and business equipment. Production of most household appliances increased but consumer staples declined. In a companion report, the Federal Reserve Board reported that the nation's factories operated at 74 per cent of capacity in the last three months of 1971, up slightly from 73.9 per cent in the third quarter of last year. The failure of factories to operate at closer to capacity is largely traceable to the sluggish increase in industrial production. Factories were operating at 86.5 per cent of capacity in 1969, 78.2 per cent in 1970 and 74.5 per cent for all of 1971. The figures parallel the nation's economic growth.

Cigarette Industry Cut Its Advertising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette manufacturers cut their advertising budgets by an average of 28 per cent in 1971, the Tobacco Institute reports. It was the first year in which cigarette advertising was banned from broadcast media. The industry placed more of its money in print. The Institute said advertising in newspapers amounted to $56.5 million, up $43 million from 1970. Magazines got $91.6 million, an increase of $45.9 million; and billboards got $52.1 million, an increase of $44 million. The increased spending in print media did not make up for the loss of the $211 million the manufacturers spent on television and radio in 1970, however. In fact, the total 1971 advertising outlay of $200.2 million was less than was spent on broadcast messages in 1970. A spokesman for the industry-supported Institute, Horace Kornegay, said the statistics belied the "dire predictions that the companies would flood other media with advertising in 1971." Despite the broadcast ban, Kornegay added, consumption of cigarettes was up 3.3 per cent during the year.

Most Ignore Posting Law

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says that more than two-thirds of the stores it visited in Charlotte in the past ten days were not obeying Phase Two rules for posting base prices. An IRS spokesman said spot checks made in other North Carolina cities indicated about the same level of non-compliance. Stores were supposed to post their base prices — the highest allowable during the Phase One freeze — on January 1. The Price Commission has since ruled that stores doing less than $200,000 per year in gross receipts were exempt from the requirement. The IRS said it warned all the violators what it found in its survey, and that henceforth it will begin turning them into the Justice Department for prosecution — with fines of up to $5,000 for each day of continued violation.

Never saying 'Thanks' Is A Tragedy

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I lost (or somebody stole) my wallet. Fortunately it was right after Christmas so there wasn't much money in it. My driver's license and credit cards will have to be replaced, which will be a terrible inconvenience, but it's not fatal.

What cannot be replaced is something I had cut out of your column and had carried around for almost five years. It was a "confidential" to remind people who still had their mothers to thank them for all the things she taught them. Can you remember which one it was, and print it again?

A FAN IN AMSTERDAM, N. Y.

DEAR FAN, Was it, "Confidential to anyone for whom it is not yet too late: The gestation period of a mother's advice is anywhere from one week to 50 years. Losing one's mother before having thanked her for the many precious things she taught you is one of life's greatest tragedies"?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have definitely decided upon a divorce, but due to economic reasons, we are forced to live together for a few more months.

In the meantime he is carrying on a correspondence with some lady who is a "future prospect," and her letters come to the house. I, of course, read all the mail that comes here if I see it first. My husband says I have no business to open his mail. I say as long as we are living under one roof, I can read whatever comes here. What do you say? HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I say your husband is right. Furthermore, there is a federal law which also says so.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't ask anyone else because they might think I was bragging.

My aunt died a few months ago and she left me her beautiful full length mink coat. It is just like new, fits me perfectly, and I feel like a queen in it.

Now the problem: My husband and I are in moderate circumstances, and he doesn't think I ought to wear it to church. He also doesn't want me to wear it around his place of business. He says I shouldn't wear it when I go out for dinner because it might get stolen if I leave it in a check-room, and if I leave it on the back of my chair, it might look like I'm showing off.

I can't sell it because my uncle is still living and he gets pleasure out of seeing me wear it.

So what do you suggest? THE LADY IN MINK

DEAR LADY: I suggest that if you were to wear it only when and where your husband thinks you should, it is going to be "good as new" for the next 10 years. If I were you, I'd wear it for all dress up occasions and quit worrying about what people "might" think.

Five Handicapped Girls Talk About Their Problems

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm afraid to talk because sometimes the words don't come out right."

"You're not so special. Everybody's afraid of that."

"Practically every girl in the world has a boyfriend, and I never did because I never knew what to say."

"What can you say when people call you cruel names?" The five young handicapped girls were seated in a circle. This was the fourth weekly meeting of their group, and they were comfortable enough to talk honestly and openly about what troubled them.

Miss Lois Lorenz, a social worker in the Brooklyn Bureau of Community Service's Department for the Handicapped, and leader of the group says handicapped persons face problems we all face.

"However, their handicaps may make things even more difficult for them," she said, adding that the girls have many problems in common.

"Their parents have restricted their activities because they are limited. They have been guided and supervised as if they were children. Some have never been allowed to leave their homes alone. They have not been permitted to make decisions for themselves.

"Consequently, they have never learned to deal with people or arrange for their most basic needs. They don't know how to do simple things, such as shopping for clothing, or asking directions. They have never learned to talk to a boy or what to expect on a date because they've never been allowed to have boyfriends."

In addition, Miss Lorenz said, the beginnings of self-confidence they are able to build is often undermined by their home environment.

"Many of the girls have been slow in school. They have been compared by their parents to their brothers and sisters who are treated differently in the family and allowed more freedom. Their experiences have taught them to distrust themselves, to believe they have poor judgment, and they come to the conclusion that there is something "wrong" with them, and that they deserve in some way the treatment they receive."

"They come to the group thinking their problems are unique, but they soon learn that most of the girls share their concerns. This sharing helps them confront and modify the negative feelings they have had about themselves. The girls begin to get a sense that "Maybe, just maybe, everything I've suffered isn't all my fault."

Miss Lorenz said such realization helps the girls become close to each other. "They share experiences. They give each other suggestions on ways of handling their families or friends. They learn to trust."

Miss Lorenz says they also explore the feelings of others in the group. This gives them "feedback" on their own behavior, and permits them to learn what is appropriate to say and to be more at ease as they participate in group activities.

One of the important results of the group is the friendships that are formed among the group's members. "Some of the girls have never before had a friend," Miss Lorenz says.

Answering questions about their handicaps is another important part of the group's meetings. "When I am asked, 'Am I crazy?' or 'What terrible thing did I do to have this happen to me?', it can help if the person learns the factual cause of her handicap.

"We discuss the medical facts, the physical basis for the handicap and what they mean. I emphasize that the handicap is not punishment for some mysterious past 'sin,' and that anyone subject to the same physical conditions would have the same handicap. It helps to know you're not being punished for something.

"This has seldom been said to them before. They have not been encouraged to think of themselves in this way. They have rarely been told they have nothing to be ashamed of."

In many cases the girl's parents themselves are confused about their child's disability, and find it easier to avoid a subject which is painful for them as well. Talking about their disabilities thus helps the girls alleviate some of the secrecy and shamefulness associated with it in their homes.

"In the group meetings we try to develop their self-confidence, to help them to do things they've never been permitted to do before and say things spontaneously and freely they've never dared to say before.

"They are people. They have rights. Above all, they have the right to be treated with respect and understanding."

Mini-Bikes Turned Out To Pasture

By GRACE HOWELL
Wichita Eagle-Beacon Writer
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — An enterprising young Kansas couple has found just the place for their children to ride mini-bikes in safety, by opening the first mini-bike motorcycle park in the Wichita area.

When it became clear to the Roger Harlans of Haysville that their 9 year old, Roger Jr., was ruining the lawn with his bike they decided it was time to turn their son and his bike out to pasture.

And out to pasture they all went, just as soon as they found and leased their pasture. It turned out to be 40 acres of rolling terrain that needed weeks of clearing, weed-cutting, trash-hauling and track-marking before it could be opened to the public at $1 a bike.

Most of the operation of the park has been left to Mrs. Harlan. All summer she made the trip from their Haysville home, south of Wichita, to the park area, northwest of Wichita. She became adept at loading the car with bikes, her three children and food for the day, and spending the entire day operating the park.

Since the beginning of school, the hours have been shortened to 4 until 8 p.m.

"We have not had a dull day," she says. "We stay open in all kinds of weather and the kids say they are looking forward to riding in the ice and snow."

"Business was slow at first but we did some advertising and now we have steady riders all week, and up to 50 to 60 riders on Saturdays and Sundays."

The park even has a building on the grounds, a combination ticket booth, concession stand and nursery for the Harlans' year old daughter, Monique, who spends her days at the park.

"We sell bottled soft drinks, keep the coffee pot on for parents who are around and have our own ice chest and grill where we cook our evening meal.

"And we have placed our own hand-made picnic tables in a nearby Catalpa grove for the convenience of riders."

Research Report Gives Reasons

HARTLEPOOL, England (WNS) — The Lonely Hearts Club here has reported after a year's investigation that love is at the bottom of the list when a bachelor over 30 years old goes looking for a bride. "The first qualifications for a woman are money or a well-paying job," declared Evelyn Harrison, the club's chairman. "Bachelors also look for a lady who owns a house and who is adept at taking care of it, even down to the plumbing, garage and garden." Sex appeal, she added, can attract a man more than heart's love. "There's a trail of broken hearts here to prove it," added Mrs. Harrison.

School Merger Order's Impact

The federal court decision ordering a merger of the Richmond city school system with that of two suburban counties could have an impact upon local government operations far beyond the realm of public school affairs.

In ordering the immediate merger to overcome what he termed inadequate school integration, the federal judge termed local government boundaries merely a matter of convenience without genuine significance so far as public schools are concerned.

If, in the eyes of the federal courts, local government boundaries have no real meaning so far as schools are concerned, will they subsequently be regarded as having no significance whatever? If local government boundaries may be struck down by the courts in an effort to provide uniform schools from one city or county to the next, is the door being opened for similar action to provide other public services on a uniform basis?

There are such matters as police protection, fire protection, garbage collection, recreation programs and a host of other local government activities which vary widely from one local government unit to another. While these services may be provided to a greater degree from local tax funds than in the case with public schools, state and federal funds find their way into almost every phase of every local government operation.

Local governments are an important part of the system of government in this nation. If they are to function as they should they must be respected by the state and federal levels of governments and by the courts as well. Otherwise the day will come when self-determination at the local level will disappear altogether. In the place of what are now local government units there will be only smaller divisions of federal or state governments assigned supervisory duties.

In its broadest sense, the Richmond school ruling poses a threat to local government structure as it now exists throughout the United States.

J. Edgar Has Won A Respite

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON

A decision made early last autumn at the highest levels of the Nixon administration to try to ease out J. Edgar Hoover as Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was sidetracked when President Nixon himself changed his mind.

The scenario worked out called for a dramatic summit meeting at the White House between President and Director in which Mr. Nixon would praise Hoover and then ask for his resignation. The meeting took place, but the President never spoke his lines, never asked Hoover to quit.

Now, in a Presidential election year, Administration officials believe it is too late to dispose of Hoover until after the election. Yet, these officials are of the same mind they were in writing last autumn's aborted scenario. They feel the FBI is in trouble—trouble that cannot be dealt with until Hoover is gone.

This bizarre situation underlines one of the major arguments for Hoover leaving: after 47 years running the FBI, Hoover's independent political power is so formidable that even the President himself shrinks from asking him to quit and will not even consider removing him in an election year.

In fact, Administration officials are so awed by Hoover's popular support that they will not publicly admit any displeasure at all. Their public position is that the 77-year-old Hoover can remain as Director (1) as long as he is physically and mentally capable, adding hastily that both conditions now prevail.

Their private opinion is something else. They concede that the FBI has gone downhill as a law enforcement agency and squarely blame Hoover. Only a new Director can reform the bureau, they believe.

Although right-wing groups staunchly defend Hoover from all attacks and leftists regularly demand his dismissal, the question is not basically ideological. Thus, the leading advocate of Hoover's dismissal inside the Administration is one of the Justice Department's most militant anti-Communists and law-and-order advocates: Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert Mardian, a Goldwater Republican not hitherto accused of liberalism.

From the time he took over the Justice Department's internal security division in November 1970, Mardian has been shocked at Hoover's autocratic rule of the FBI officials from all the department's strategy meetings.

Moreover, Mardian is well aware of the little-known truth about the FBI today: with agents unequalled as law enforcement officers, its present performance is well below what it could be or should be. Far too much attention is spent on arresting petty thieves and catching Army deserters, not nearly enough on domestic intelligence and foreign espionage agents.

The FBI's inadequate record in the security field is attributed directly to Hoover. Although excoriated by civil libertarians, he actually has placed severe restrictions on use of wire taps and other techniques by his agents in security and intelligence work. Why? Fear of unfavorable publicity.

But worst of all is the shocking state of the bureau's morale. Justice Department officials and U.S. attorneys complain that highly competent agents are stripped of imagination and daring for fear of taking an unusual initiative that might bring a dreaded letter of censure from the ubiquitous Director. No agency in the government is so widely and closely controlled from the top by a single man.

The result: most agents, particularly those in security work, would welcome a new Director even though they subconsciously fear what might happen to the FBI, molded for 47 years in Hoover's image, when the change comes.

But few agents in the field think that time will come anytime soon. The purge of high FBI officials who had been privately critical of Hoover, including some with close contacts in the Justice Department, deeply impressed agents in the field with Hoover's undiluted and dangerous omnipotence. They also find the same J. Edgar still making even Presidents dance to his tune. At least until after the 1972 election, President Nixon will keep right on dancing.

Strength For Today

WE CAN GIVE LIFE RELISH

Many people complain that life has lost its relish for them. Where this is true, people need a little salt to bring out the latent flavors of life.

They may think that what they need to make life more palatable is more sugar. But this is a mistake. Sugar has its place, but it does not bring out the latent flavors of food and give it relish. This is done only with salt. Yet salt in itself is most disagreeable to the taste. Sugar by itself is very pleasant, and people are often sugar-minded then they are salt-minded. But a little pinch of salt added to a flat and tasteless dish will transform it into something really delectable.

Life often becomes flat and tasteless, and when it does, people long for the sugar bowl. If they can sweeten life up a bit, they believe, they will be happy. But God more often sprinkles a little bit of the salt of discipline over our lives, gives us a few reverses, makes us face a few hard things, and life that before was tasteless becomes a thing of relish. We may not like salt, and we may be very fond of sugar, but a little dash of untoward circumstances, a few disappointments and reverses, often make a tasteless life savory and palatable.

State Control Spectre

Let me come back to the case of Wisconsin v. Yoder, now pending in the U.S. Supreme Court, and attempt to knit together a few current ideas on the oldest struggle in civilized society — the struggle between the individual, seeking freedom, and the state, seeking order.

The Yoder case involves the conviction of three Amish fathers who refused on religious grounds to send their children to high school. They thus violated the Wisconsin compulsory school attendance law; they did this willfully and knowingly, and the facts are not in question.

But if the issue in Yoder is narrow as a matter of law, it is broad in terms of social policy. The case offers an opportunity to re-examine the whole theory of compulsory school attendance; and in conjunction with other rethinking of the increasing regimentation of American life.

The argument advanced by Wisconsin compulsory school attendance law; they did this willfully and knowingly, and the facts are not in question.

Calhoun also argues that children have rights, as a matter of law, that transcend the rights of their parents as a matter of parenthood. The right of an Amish child to a high school education, he contends, is at least equal to the rights of the black children in the famous school segregation cases of 1954.

The Amish respond to this effect: That their religious community has an impeccable record of good citizenship and presents no danger whatever to preservation of the state; that their children are in fact "educated" in farm husbandry and homemaking; that members of the community are free to leave if they choose, and that some do; and that the Amish prohibition against higher education, as an essential part of their faith, is constitutionally protected under their First Amendment right to the free exercise of religion.

The issue is thus joined. Does the state have the exclusive power to define "education" and to compel adherence to its requirements? In the past, (Continued on page 5)

Industrialists OK 4-Day Week

By ELMER ROESSNER The four-day, 40-hour week is cheered by an industrialist and opposed by two labor leaders in the January issue of Manpower, the Labor Department's slick monthly.

The debate is confined to the 40-hour week. If it were on a four-day, 32-hour week, the industrialist might have been less enthusiastic and the labor leaders more receptive.

The industrialist is W. Hunter Simpson, president of Physi-Control Corp. of Seattle and former official of the Western Electronic Manufacturers Association. The labor spokesmen are Jacob Clayman, a director of the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department, and Thomas Hannigan, director of research and education for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Simpson makes these points:

The 40-hour week provides close to maximum efficiency. It was established by law not to increase overtime earnings but to increase employment (which makes it a hot topic today).

The 4-40 plan has allowed

companies to make more efficient use of land, building and capital equipment. It does not necessitate a three-day shutdown, but permits a company to schedule a longer workday without paying overtime, obtaining 25 per cent more use of equipment during the basic work week. It results in lower turnover, less absenteeism and more unsolicited job applications. It reduces traffic congestion and pollution. With vacations, it reduces an employee's work year to 193 days.

Assertions that fatigue increases after eight hours are unproved. There is no way to measure fatigue, which varies from job to job. The shorter work week will come eventually; the problem of effective use of the three-day weekend will have to be solved.

Clayman and Hannigan made these points: The 4-40 plan threatens the eight-hour day, a labor objective since the turn of the century.

The main object is greater productivity and higher profits; labor is entitled to a share of any increased profits in the form of premium pay for work over eight hours. The advantage of bun-

Seeing Dreams Change

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — Courtship is the way life gleams. Marriage is the way life is. He used to give her posies. Now, after 25 years of marriage, he brings her in a pale tomato he grew in the backyard as if it were a thousand roses.

In the old days they told each other there would always be perfect truth between them. But the time has come when, if he tells her something, neither of them is sure whether he is fibbing or not. He tells her what is convenient.

Then he dreamed of her every night when they parted. Now, every night, he has nightmares about some aspect of his job—and how he has fouled it up again.

She remembers fondly the poetry he once read aloud to her in her small apartment by the light of a single glimmering candle. And what is the last thing he read to her lately? It was the riot act, wasn't it?

They were wonderful, they were, those long strolls in the moonlight together, side by side, arm in arm, they took when they were still falling in love. Now when they go for a walk—and seldom it is that they do—he walks three steps ahead if he is mad at her, and she walks three steps ahead if she is mad at him.

It was fun in the old days to work the crossword puzzle in the Sunday newspaper together, sprawled like a young god and goddess on the floor of his tiny apartment. Now he lies in bed until noon on Sunday, and all he wants to read is the sports section.

When she was a bride, she couldn't wait for him to come home from work to point out the new flower that had bloomed on the plant in their kitchen window. Today when he comes home he doesn't want to see a flower, he doesn't want to hear whether the kids are flunking or passing in college. All he wants when he opens the door is to see her standing there, holding out to him a freshly made martini. The quarrel starts after the third martini.

He used to have eyes only for her, and swore no other girl on earth was worth a second look. Now at cocktail parties he makes big talk with every strange blonde under 40, and she suspects that at the office he has begun taking his new secretary to lunch three times a week.

She wonders what has changed him from the shy, grave, chivalrous lad who led her so happily to the altar. What happened to them? Was it her fault? Could things have turned out differently?

No, no one's to blame. The boy simply married her, turned into an American husband—and grew older.

Novelist Betty Smith Is Dead

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Betty Smith, the author of the fabulously successful novel, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," is dead at 75. She died Monday in a Shelton, Conn., convalescent home.

Miss Smith established herself as a novelist with the publication of the novel based on her life as a girl in Brooklyn.

The novel was later made into a movie and a Broadway musical which will be produced again this spring.

The book sold a reported six million copies, and ranks second only to "Gone with the Wind" as the biggest selling fiction of all time. It has been translated into 20 languages.

She also wrote the novels "Joy in the Morning," "Tomorrow Will Be Better," and "Magie-Now" plus more than 70 published plays.

Miss Smith was born Dec. 15, 1896, in Brooklyn, the daughter of John and Catherine Wehner. Her mother later was remarried to an Irish immigrant named Michael Keogh.

Miss Smith subsequently started going by the name Betty Smith in the 1930, Smith being the name of her first husband.

Miss Smith arrived in Chapel Hill in 1938 with a playwriting scholarship for study at the University of North Carolina.

"I fell in love with the town immediately," she said. "I told myself, I'm going to live here until I die." She remained in Chapel Hill until illness forced her to enter the convalescent home several weeks ago.

Smith will be held at 11 a.m. Friday at the St. Thomas More Church in Chapel Hill. Burial will be in the Chapel Hill Cemetery.

A reception for funeral guests will be held after the services in the Carolina Room of the Carolina Inn at Chapel Hill.

Miss Smith is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Thomas McCauley of Boyds, Md., and Mrs. D. F. Pfeiffer of North Haven, Conn.; a sister, Mrs. William Hall of Woodhaven, N.Y.; and one brother, William Keogh of Hempstead, N.Y.

Miss Smith arrived by bus in Chapel Hill during the depression accompanied by her two small daughters and box full of scripts. She had just completed a playwriting course at Yale University. She studied there under dramatist George Pierce Baker and worked with such well-known classmates as Elia Kazan and Van Heflin. The class of 13 was nicknamed "Baker's Dozen."

At Chapel Hill, Miss Smith worked for two years with the Carolina Playmakers, a university theatrical group. Then in 1940, she began writing, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

"Those were struggling years for me," she recalled. "I had little money coming in."

However, Paul Green, the playwright, assisted her in getting a $1,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. Using it sparingly, she continued work on her novel. To her relief the grant was continued another year.

Finally, the novel was completed. It was rejected by 12 publishers before it was accepted by Harper and Brothers. It was an immediate best seller.

When Miss Smith was 18, she met and married George Smith in New York City. They moved to Ann Arbor, Mich., where Smith obtained his law degree. Her two daughters were born there.

Her experiences as a university wife were used as the basis of her second novel "Joy in the Morning."

It tells the story of a young student and his wife and her struggle to keep her husband in school and to preserve their marriage.

Miss Smith's real life marriage to Smith, however, ended in an amicable divorce.

In 1958, she married Bob Finch, but he died of a heart attack a year and a half later while working on a novel in their home.

Miss Smith had planned an autobiography. In it she wrote: "When I was first aware I would be a woman, I knew I'd have children. When I wept childish tears as they cut down the only tree in our tenement yard, I knew I would plant a tree everywhere I lived. And when at the age of eight, I got my first 'A' on a school composition, I knew I would write a book some day."

Miss Smith was born Dec. 15, 1896, in Brooklyn, the daughter of John and Catherine Wehner.

Voice Audition Winners Named

A Methodist minister, two under-graduate students, a graduate student, and a former graduate of the School of Music, East Carolina University, were named as winners Saturday in the district-wide auditions of the annual Metropolitan Opera voice auditions.

Beginning at noon Saturday, at the Recital Hall in the School of Music, four judges listened to candidates for the annual competitions which have been the beginning road for a number of today's nationally and internationally renowned opera singers.

Winners of the five singing categories are: Mrs. Betty Bradley Aldridge, a native of Raleigh and a graduate of ECU, contralto; Cary Stephen Koch of Richmond, Virginia, tenor, and an ECU graduate student; Rev. Charles Michael Smith of Washington, N.C. and currently a minister at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville, bass; and undergraduates Mrs. Betty Jacqueline Rausch, soprano from Morehead City, and tenor James Williams Powers Jr. of St. Pauls, N.C.

Dr. Clyde Hiss of ECU was program coordinator and one of the judges for selecting the five finalists. Other judges for the auditions were Dr. William Duckworth of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson; Robert Piper, Campbell College, Buies Creek, N.C.; and Dr. Catherine Murphy, of ECU.

As finalists in the district auditions, the five winners will have an opportunity to enter the regional opera competitions to be held in Atlanta on Saturday, February 5, at Walter Hill Auditorium. There the local winners will compete with other district finalists from a number of southeastern states.

Regional winners will then be invited to appear in the national competitions to be held in late March at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City.

Scott Studying Hospital Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says he will study an 871-page report on an State Bureau of Investigation probe into operations of the Cherry State Hospital at Goldsboro and will issue a statement on it in the near future.

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan delivered the report of the probe Monday afternoon.

Scott had requested the probe of the Cherry Hospital and the O'Berry Center, both at Goldsboro, and of the Broughton Hospital at Morganton last summer.

The governor said in ordering the probe he had received reports of mistreatment of patients at the three institutions and of drug abuse at the two hospitals.

The governor made no mention of the other two mental institutions in revealing he had received the report on the Cherry probe.

Scott said that in accordance with state law, the SBI report will not be made public.

"Such facts as may be made public without jeopardizing the sources of information or prejudicing innocent people involved will be brought to light at the time when I make a more detailed statement," Scott said.

Damage to the Harris car was set at $300 while damage to the Lassiter auto was estimated at $500.

Harris was reported injured in the mishap. Police charged Lassiter with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

The Supreme Court uncritically has accepted this proposition. Now the Court must weigh the powers of the state against the rights of the Amish families. It is a contest of values; and in a free society I think the Amish must prevail.

Other such contests are dimly emerging. The thrust of last week's school desegregation opinion in Richmond is that the Constitution affirmatively requires a certain kind of public education — that is, a racially integrated education. Opinions in Los Angeles, Detroit and Indianapolis are to the same effect.

This novel constitutional doctrine finds an echo in tax law. Under its taxing power, Congress has provided certain benefits in the past for fraternal and educational institutions generally — Elks Lodges, for example, and private schools. Now the trend is to say that these benefits may go only to certain lodges and to certain schools — to those enrolling all races.

In many other fields — in laws affecting commerce, in rules affecting over-the-counter drugs, in laws affecting the sale of housing, in laws affecting the sexual conduct of consenting adults — the same pattern may be seen.

Where such laws and regulations reflect a compelling interest of the state, perhaps they may be plausibly defended. But where their effect is to destroy a sense of community or needlessly to abridge the freedom of the individual, or to reduce the diversity essential to a free society, their justification demands most prayerful thought. The Yoder case, one hopes, will make a nation think.

Considering State Race

RALEIGH (AP) — Ruth Jones of Rocky Mount, president of the North Carolina Association of Educators, says she is seriously considering running for State Superintendent of Public Instruction in opposition to Craig Phillips.

Mrs. Jones, a teacher, said this in emphasizing her objection to Phillips' suggestion that the NCAE, the professional organization of North Carolina school teachers, confine itself to working for such things as salary increases, better working conditions and other benefits.

Phillips said in an interview last week, the NCAE should leave educational concerns to local and state school superintendents and local and state boards of education.

Mrs. Jones said Phillips suggestion would violate the basic purposes of the organization and leave the association in an indefensibly selfish position."

Mrs. Jones said teachers have shown many times that they are "tremendously concerned with what happens to the child in the classroom, not just how big their salary check is."

She said teachers right now "are upset because they cannot give the proper amount of individual attention to the children in their classes and that is why reduced class size is a major plan in the NCAE's proposed new legislative program."

New Nozzle For Rockets

RALEIGH (AP) — A North Carolina State University engineer said today he has developed a new composite material to strengthen solid propellant rocket nozzles.

Dr. Charles R. Manning Jr. said the material is intended to strengthen the nozzles against the ravages of space — high temperature, erosive gases, and particle bombardment.

Manning, associate professor of materials engineering, is conducting research that led to the discovery of a composite of hafnium-oxide and tungsten fiber with the potential of a strong high-temperature material for nozzle applications.

The material was developed in a research project supported by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. NASA recently renewed its support of the project with a $19,036 grant, bringing its total funding for the project to $74,765.

A patent for the new material has been applied for and the research team is constructing a special furnace to produce a small scale rocket nozzle — six inches in diameter — using the new material.

Dr. Manning said the new nozzle will be taken to NASA's Langley Research Center for actual testing on a rocket motor.

Eight Of Ten Vote No Change

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Eight out of every 10 pupils surveyed at suburban Oak Hills High School have voted not to change the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag.

The survey—by a faculty-student committee found that about the same percentage of pupils said they were dissatisfied with daily recitation of the pledge over the school's address system.

Some voted for weekly recitation on the public address system, others voted that the pledge be recited every morning in individual classrooms, and another group voted for weekly recitation accompanied by a short program.

A report Monday said 1,851 of 2,100 pupils who attended school Thursday were given ballots and all but 25 responded.

DOCKET NO. P-100, SUB 28

BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

In the Matter of

Investigation of Intrastate Toll Rates and Charges of all Telephone Companies Under the Jurisdiction of the North Carolina Utilities Commission

NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has instituted an investigation into the intrastate toll rates and charges of all telephone companies under its jurisdiction. This action was taken as a result of the Commission's review of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company application for increased rates in Docket No. P-55, Sub 28, wherein Bell proposes to increase its intrastate toll rates which if approved in whole or in part would result in non-uniform intrastate toll rates in North Carolina.

The Commission is of the opinion that it is in the public interest that uniform intrastate toll rates be maintained for all telephone companies under its jurisdiction. Accordingly, on November 8, 1971, in Docket No. P-100, Sub 28, the Commission has instituted an investigation into said intrastate toll rates making all telephone companies under its jurisdiction parties to the investigation and set the matter for hearing on March 21, 1972, at 10:00 A.M. in the Commission Hearing Room, Ruffin Building, One West Morgan Street, Raleigh, North Carolina. The Commission's investigation is for the purpose of determining if changes should be made in the present intrastate toll rates, and if so, if the changes should be made applicable to all telephone companies under the Commission's jurisdiction.

All persons or other parties having an interest in said investigation may file their protest or petition to intervene in accordance with Rules R1-4, R1-17 and R1-19 of the Commission's Rules and Regulations. The proposed rates and present rates are as follows:

New Bern Takes 66-56 Win Over Rose

Pitt Tech In 107-101 Win

BETHEL — Pitt Technical Institute had a hot hand last night as the Paladins burned their way to a 107-101 victory over James Sprunt Technical Institute of Kenansville. The score was not indicative of the game, which the Paladins won handily.

"It was no contest from the beginning," Coach Bob Turner said.

After the first 10 minutes of the first half, the Paladins had built up a 29-20 lead over their foes. By the end of the second ten, when the horn for intermission sounded, they had run the margin out to 58-37.

During the third period, Pitt Tech continued to pull away from Sprunt. By the middle of the period, they had worked up an 89-65 lead, and at that point Turner began to turn to his bench.

"They were able to make somewhat of a comeback against us after that, but it really never was close," Turner said.

Wayne Brown led the Pitt scoring with 32 points, while Eddie Stokes had 28, Frank Brown had 14, Leslie Saunders had 12 and Marvin Hardy had 10. For James Sprunt, Rufus Glaspie had 33, L. Jarman had 27, Willie Faison had 19 and Murray Hardy had 16.

The victory, the first non-conference game for the Paladins, boosted the record of the team to 6-3 overall.

Their next game is Saturday, when they travel to Beaufort Tech.

Jerome Owens

Owens Given Southern Honor

Jerome Owens, 6-1 East Carolina guard, has been selected Southern Conference Player of the Week for his performance against St. Peter's and Furman. The Baltimore junior hit 4 to 7 from the floor and 8 for 9 from the line against St. Peter's and followed with 8 for 14 from the floor and 7 for 8 from the charity stripe in the Pirates' win over Furman.

His totals for the week were a blazing 57.1 per cent from the floor and 88.2 per cent from the foul line and an average of 19.5 points in the two contests. Owens' 23 points against Furman is a Pirate high for the season.

In addition to his fine shooting game, Owens directed the East Carolina attack with fine floor games. He pulled down nine rebounds and was credited with 10 assists.

Other outstanding factors included some fine ball handling and excellent man-for-man defensive work.

Pirate coach Tom Quinn called Owens a "sparkplug." He sets the tempo of our game," Quinn remarked, "and he did an excellent job of pacing our attack against Furman. He is one of the major reasons that we are much stronger than we were a year ago. Jerome plays well on both ends of the court, and I do not think that there is a better point guard in the league."

Owens transferred to East Carolina from Baltimore Community College, where he led his team to a two-year record of 49-9.

His honor marked the second straight week, the Bucs have gained the Player of the Week. Jim Fairley claimed it last week.

Southern California moved up two positions after beating California and Stanford, unseating last week's No. 8 team, Virginia.

Marquette, which received the other first-place vote, remained the nation's No. 2 team with 722 points. The Warriors, undefeated through 12 games, had a close call last week against Detroit.

North Carolina, 11-1, defeated Virginia over the weekend and stayed in the No. 3 position with 652 points.

Louisville dropped down one spot to No. 6 despite winning twice; Ohio State moved up two to No. 7 after beating Michigan; Virginia dropped to No. 9 and Penn, which lost to Princeton, skidded four spots to No. 10.

NEW BERN — A tight zone defense and better rebounding gave New Bern a 66-56 victory over the Rose High School Rampants last night. It was the fourth-straight Division II loss for the Rampants, who have lost seven straight since their last win.

The Rampants put on one fine rally at the start of the second half, erasing a nine-point deficit. But after that, they watched New Bern walked away again, moving out to an even bigger lead.

New Bern put together a sticky zone defense that the Rampants were unable to penetrate, either with the pass or by driving. At the same time, New Bern was able to work the ball inside against Rose, getting many of their points from right below the basket.

The New Bern Bears also used their superior height to control the boards, and on most opportunities, the Rampants got only one shot.

The Bears ran up a six-point lead before the Rampants were able to get on the boards. Robert Weatherspoon hit on a pair of shots and Earlest Dove got one making the six-point lead. Robert Carraway finally broke the ice for the Rampants with a jumper with 5:24 left in the first period. Lonnie Payton added a free throw to cut the lead to 6-3, but New Bern was able to keep the Rampants from coming any closer.

From that point until late in the period, the two teams swapped baskets with the Bears staying three or five in front. Finally, with 1:36 to go, New Bern got a free throw from Tony Ernul, and then a basket by him 16 seconds later to run the lead out to eight, 17-9.

Rose, however, got two baskets, one by Al Hunter and the other by Robert Kear to cut the lead to 17-13 as the period ended.

Rose opened the second period with another free throw by Kear cutting the lead to three again, but, as in the first period, this was a close as they could get. New Bern went out by five and held to this until Van Smith hit with 2:25 left to make it 25-18. Then after a Rose free throw, Ronnie Gray hit, upping the lead to eight at 27-19. Following another couple of swapped baskets, Smith hit on a fast break with three seconds left to put New Bern into a 32-23 lead at the end of the half.

But the Rampants came storming back and made a game of it, at least for the first three minutes of the third period. Kear opened with a basket and Carraway got a free throw. J.C. Daniels hit a jumper and two free throws by Hunter cut the lead to only two. Payton then stole the ball and put it in to tie it at 32-32 with 5:43 to go.

But that was all the Rampants could manage. New Bern regained the lead on a free throw by Smith with 5:34 left, and a pair of baskets, by Ernul and Dove ran the lead back out to five, 37-32.

During the rest of the period, New Bern outthrew Rose, 8-6, to run the lead out to seven again, 45-38.

In the opening minutes of the final period, the Bears moved the lead to nine at 47-38 on a shot by Jerry Jones, and then made it 11 at 51-40 when Duke Williams got a basket. A pair of free throws by Williams made it 54-

41, and a rebounding shot by Gray ran the lead out to 15, 56-41 with 4:17 left.

The New Bern bench came after that, and Rose managed to cut the lead down to as little as six. George Price hit to start the rally and Kear got a three point play. Payton and Tommy Williams each hit to lower the lead to 60-54 with 1:21 left, but the Rose rally ran out there, as New Bern hit at the line for four of their final six points to wrap it up.

Gray led the Bear scoring with 12 points, while Smith finished with 11.

For the Rampants, Kear had 17 and Payton had 13.

In the junior varsity contest, Rose lost an early lead and went on to lose, 58-39 to the Bear Cubs. Rose held an early 4-2 lead, but New Bern came back and pushed out into a 19-11 lead, never losing command after that. The Cubs outscored Rose, 10-6, in the second period and held a 29-17 lead at the half.

In the third period, New Bern continued to pull away, outscoring Rose, 13-9. That made it 42-26. They finished things off with a 16-13 advantage in the final period.

Floyd Dickens led the New Bern scoring with 11, while Mike Simko had 15 to pace Rose.

The Rampants return to action on Friday, playing host to Goldsboro.

Carolina Dunks Pirate Tankers

The University of North Carolina gained a 65-48 victory over East Carolina University Saturday afternoon in a dual swimming meet in Minges Coliseum.

The Pirates suffered disqualification in both the relay events, and Coach Ray Scharf said that this was the only reason the Tar Heels won the meet. "We would have had 14 points more, and of course they would have had 14 less. That would have made it 62-51 in our favor. We believe, too, that our automatic timer malfunctioned on the disqualifications, but we didn't have judges to override the machines."

Summary:

400 medley relay: North Carolina (Waltmyer, Eddy, Reidy, Coxhead), 3:57.41.

1,000 freestyle: Gerry Champan (NC), 4:53.57.

Coca-Cola continued to cling to its slim one-game lead in the City Basketball League with a 64-62 victory over Big Value Discount of Farmville last night.

Second place Hallow's Distributing Co. beat College View, 78-54, to stay close, while Book Exchange downed Stewart's Sandwiches, 73-71 in the other game.

Coke is now 5-0 in the league, while Hallow's is 4-1. They are followed by Big Value, the Exchange and College View, all 2-3, and Stewart's, 0-5.

In the opening game, Stewart's threatened to take its first win, moving out into a 28-25 lead in the first period. But the Exchange came back with a 48-43 advantage in the second half, pulling into a 67-67 tie at the end of regulation. The Exchange then got six points in the overtime, while Stewart's got four, for the win.

Bill Kelly led the Exchange with 20, while Bill Stokes had 17, William Ward had 16 and Tom Jordan had 11. For Stewart's, Charles Meeks had 27, Frank Corbitt had 14 and Bobby Gaynor had 12.

Big Value Discount pushed out into a 36-28 lead over Coke in the first half of play, but the league leaders put on a big rally in the second half. They outthrew Big Value, 36-26, and then was just enough to pull out the win.

Jim Modlin led Coke with 16 points, while Johnny Turner had 14 and Tom Coker had 12. Ed Carraway had 31 for Big Value, while Ivey Smith added 16.

In the final game, Hallow's jumped off to a big lead and never lost it. They held a 43-24 lead in the first half, and then outscored College View 35-30 in the second.

Gene Rackley led Hallow's with 22, while Bruce Tucker had 20, Joe Gaddis had 12 and Wayne King had 11. For College View, Tom Hayes had 14 and Greg Holmes and Scott Coleough each had 11.

Three Tied For Industrial Lead

State Highway knocked off previously unbeaten Wachovia Bank, 36-34, and Carolina Telephone beat Empire Brush, 44-34, to pull into a three-way tie for first place in the Industrial Basketball League last night. In the other game, Greenville Utilities won its first game, beating winless Vermont American, 40-31.

State Highway, Carolina Telephone and Wachovia are all 4-1 in league play now. They are followed by Empire Brush, 2-3, Greenville Utilities, 1-4, and Vermont American, 0-5.

In the opener, Carolina Telephone pushed out into a 20-16 lead in the first half of its game. They then outscored Empire Brush, 24-18, in the second half to take the win.

State Drubs Clemson, 58-46

Two more Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams, Wake Forest and Duke, get a chance at high-flying North Carolina this week, with the Duke Blue Devils having the better chance.

Wake Forest, which has lost nine of its 12 games and is 0-2 in the league, will have to play at North Carolina's court Wednesday.

Duke will have the advantage of the home court in its regionally televised game against the Tar Heels Saturday afternoon.

Those games, and North Carolina State's 58-46 triumph over Clemson Monday night, are the only league games on this week's schedule.

ACC teams are idle tonight and will be idle Thursday and Friday.

On Saturday night, Maryland plays Navy in Norfolk, Va.; Clemson is home to Virginia Tech, North Carolina State is home to Pittsburgh, and South Florida is at Wake Forest.

North Carolina has lost only to Princeton in 12 games this season, and has won both its league tests, the latest 85-79 at Virginia last Saturday for the Cavalier's first loss in 13 games, and their first after four victories in the ACC.

Duke has broken even in its 12 games and has won one of its three league starts. The Blue Devils beat Clemson 71-69 last Saturday night, while Wake Forest lost 79-60 to Virginia Tech.

Clemson's deliberate Tigers did well in the first half against N.C. State's new 1-3-1 zone trap defense in which the Wolfpack players go out after the ball instead of lying back in a tight zone as they had done before.

The Tigers led 31-29 at the half. But they lost their shooting touch as the Wolfpack went into a man-to-man defense, and didn't score for a 10-minute stretch after intermission.

Tommy Burleson, State's 7-foot-4 center, led a second-half rally during which he scored 10 of his team's 12 points. Altogether, he scored 24 points and had 21 rebounds, both game highs.

Another Hughes Book Ready

NEW YORK (AP) — The Howard Hughes publishing derby by has gained another entry with the announcement by True

Dietrich, who worked for the billionaire industrialist from 1925 to 1957, said last week that he had completed a book on Hughes—the third such work to be announced since Dec. 7.

asked the Internal Revenue Service to investigate the two checks for "tax fraud."

The Times said that Davis, in a letter to the IRS, declared that "Hughes did not receive and has no intention of paying taxes on" the $650,000 that McGraw-Hill says it paid to Hughes.

True announced Monday it would publish Dietrich's account in its April issue which goes on sale March 9.

McGraw-Hill got things started by announcing it would publish Hughes' "autobiography" based on interviews writer Clifford Irving said he had held with the reclusive Hughes.

In a subsequent long-distance telephone news conference, a voice identified as that of Hughes denied knowing Irving and denounced the book as a hoax.

Irving counterclaimed that the voice was not Hughes' and McGraw-Hill produced two checks it said were made in payment to Hughes for the material and which were endorsed "H.R. Hughes."

The New York Times said today that Chester C. Davis, a Hughes aide and chief counsel of the Hughes Tool Co., had Rosemont Enterprises, a Nevada publishing company which claims it has exclusive rights to Hughes' life story, is seeking to block both the Eaton and Irving books.

Eaton's book has already been excerpted in the current Ladies Home Journal. Calkin warned the magazine to print no further excerpts pending the outcome of the suit.

Rhodesia Mobs Defying Police

GWELO, Rhodesia (AP) — Roving mobs of Africans today set fire to a movie house and welfare center in this industrial city and defied police demands to disperse in a third day of demonstrations by blacks against the British-Rhodesian agreement.

Police fired tear gas shells and used dogs to try to break up a crowd of more than 8,000 demonstrators in a black section of the city. But the crowd refused to move, while other protesters took to the streets and stoned vehicles, uprooted signposts and committed other acts of vandalism.

Troops with fixed bayonets escorted a passenger-freight train into the Gwelo station after blacks piled boulders on the tracks.

No deaths have been reported in the rioting which began Sunday night but the situation is very tense.

Dozens of buildings were set afire, including a restaurant and liquor store. Gangs of youths

Charge 23 Men Played Heroin Smuggling Roles

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-three men, most of them French citizens, have been charged with smuggling 1,500 pounds of heroin into the United States.

French-American cooperation has led to the arrest of 16 of them. Five are in custody in the United States, 10 in France and one in Canada.

The indictment announced Monday told of get-togethers in a Paris cafe, delivery of suitcases in New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, cash in six figures changing hands and a clandestine traffic in automobile keys.

Federal authorities estimated the wholesale value of the smuggled heroin at $8 million and gave it a street value of between $200 million and $300 million.

U.S. Atty. Whitney North Seymour Jr. said the indictment was filed Jan. 4, but not unsealed until Monday to allow French authorities time to round up some of the suspects.

Included in the indictment are 20 French citizens, an Austrian arrested in France and two Bronx residents identified as Louis Cirillo and John Anthony Astuto.

Cirillo, 48 was arrested in Miami in October and is being held here. Astuto, 27, also known as Salvatore Rizzo, is still at large.

The indictment accused the defendants of conspiring to conceal large amounts of heroin in automobiles—usually expensive—and shipping them to the United States.

A key break in the case came last September when customs agents uncovered a $40 million cache of heroin in a sports car brought aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth 2, and they made several arrests.

Early in October French authorities made additional arrests in Paris and seized 233 pounds of heroin, described at the time as France's biggest drug haul.

Face Death If Assets Hidden

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN Associated Press Writer ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistani businessmen who do not declare their foreign assets could face the death penalty, Finance Minister Mubashir Hassan warned today.

He told newsmen that response had been poor to a government order to businessmen to give an account of their foreign assets by last Saturday.

"We are extremely dissatisfied," said Mubashir. "No decision has been made yet, but we are considering the death penalty for businessmen who do not complete these returns."

He reported declarations totaling 120 million rupees, or nearly $25 million at the official rate. But he said this included bonuses, for returning foreign exchange, bringing the total down to about $15 million.

According to the Finance Ministry nearly $60 million worth of foreign assets was declared in 1969. President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto has charged that at least $400 million has been secreted abroad by Pakistanis. "Traitors will not be allowed to go unpunished, and subversion of the Pakistan economy shall not be permitted," said the Finance Minister. "Soon we are going to start arrests and thorough investigation, and interrogation of these people who did not declare holdings will be started."

He added that police and others who assist in tracing assets and cash hidden abroad would be rewarded with 10 per cent of the amount recovered.

Seek Dumping Sulfuric Acid Wastes In Atlantic

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — A proposal by American Cyanamid Co. to dump sulfuric acid wastes into the Atlantic will be the subject of a public hearing today.

The company has applied to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for permission to build locks from which the wastes could be loaded on barges.

Every three to four days these barges would transport 1,000 tons of sulfuric acid, iron sulfate and water wastes out to sea for disposal. The North Carolina Division of Commercial and Sport Fisheries is one of many opponents to the scheme, and Dr. Thomas L. Linton, head of the division, says he will present his objections.

In response to a request for public reaction, there have been 58 replies of opposition and 16 letters in favor, said Steven Osvald, chief of the Corps' permit section.

Ten of the unfavorable replies were in the form of petitions, he said, bearing a total of 533 signatures.

Of the answers in favor of the proposal, two were from the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers local and the Labor Assembly of Savannah.

The state of Georgia has not made public its position.

Dr. Fred Marland of the state Coastal Marshland Protection Agency, explained, "This is a real dilemma. We have to think about the competitiveness of Cyanamid with the other industries in the nation which are already engaged in ocean dumping."

Whatever the state's position is, he said, it may become moot because of two bills under consideration in Congress.

Both measures deal with ocean dumping and one of them would make the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency responsible for approving requests such as American Cyanamid's, rather than leaving the decision to the Corps of Engineers.

Set Autopsy In Woman's Death

GASTONIA (AP) — An autopsy will be performed at Gaston Memorial Hospital to determine the exact cause of death of Mrs. Marguerite Wilson, 47, of Mt. Holly.

Her body was found in a field near her home Sunday morning by a group of children. Temperatures dropped to about six below zero over the preceding night.

Elderly Couple Died In Flames

STANFIELD, N.C. (AP) — A fire that started in a fireplace near a wood heater has been blamed for the death of an elderly Stanfield couple Sunday night.

Firemen said James Morgan, 8, and his wife, 89, died in the blaze that destroyed their frame house.

The average American generates six pounds of waste a day, twice as much as in 1920, says National Geographic.

Comedy Probes The Drug Scene

A one-act play produced by Edgar Loessin of the ECU Department of Speech and Drama will be presented at the annual meeting of the Pitt County Mental Health Association Thursday, Jan. 27 at 7 p. m. at the American Legion Building.

The play entitled, "The Underground Bird," is a satire, a takeoff on the drug scene that uses comedy as a tool to probe the hidden motives of the addict, Mrs. J. N. LeConte, executive secretary of the PCMA, said. "Engaging, funny, fantastic, dead serious, the play embodied a warning: 'Beware, for there is that in all of us which, given its first heady taste of escape, could catapult us down the long tunnel of drug experimentation to the last thum-in-the-mouth dead end of addiction," she said.

Recognition for use of the play is given to the author, Rose Leiman Schiller, to the American Social Health Association, and to Plays for Living, Mrs. LeConte said.

Reservations for the dinner, which costs $3, may be made at the Mental Health Association office in the Coffman Building by Monday, Jan. 24.

The following newly elected Board members of the "Class of 1974" will be introduced: Mrs.

John Howard, the Rev. Robert Hufford, "Scrappy" Proctor, and Mrs. Nancy Warren, all of Greenville; John B. Lewis Jr. of Farmville; Eugene James of Belvoir; Mrs. Carter Smith of Fountain; David O. Speir of Bethel; and William C. Wiggins of Grifton.

Selecting Jury In Bombing Case

Selection of a jury began this morning in Pitt County Superior Court in the case of Donald Smith, charged in connection with the September 8 bombing of the Ayden Grifton High School.

Judge A. Pillston Godwin is presiding over the Superior Court session, this week.

The school bombing occurred as classes were in session and followed a series of bombings in the Ayden area that officers said were believed connected with racial unrest in the county that resulted following the shooting of a black man by a Highway Patrolman a month earlier.

Bachelor Executive More 'Acceptable'

By JURATE KAZICKAS Associated Press Writer

The path to the executive suite has been dotted with roadblocks for the single man over 35, whose bachelor status often provokes whispers about his masculinity, questions about his stability and the inevitable kidding about his supposedly swinging lifestyle.

But bachelor businessmen and the experts who find jobs for them say the old attitudes are slowly disappearing and being a bachelor is making less of a difference.

Interviews with a dozen executive recruiters and personnel officers produced unanimous claims that nothing matters but the man's business record. But some have lingering questions.

"You wonder why this guy hasn't settled down yet. You might want to have a psychologist talk to him. Of course you're concerned with his social life. I mean, does he go with boys or girls?" said Ron Kissam, president of Deane and Co., executive personnel consultants, in Los Angeles.

From Walter Raleigh, president of Boyden Associates an executive recruiting firm in New York: "We try to find some good solid reasons for his not having been married. In a big city it really doesn't matter, but it could be a serious factor if the man were going to a small town in Iowa, say."

"It's not always a correct assumption that just because a man is married it means he's more stable, but that's what most people think," said Otto Molidar, an executive recruiter with Conley Associates in Chicago. "Most people doing the hiring are married, happily or not, and they look for people with the same life style as themselves."

But there are advantages to hiring bachelors, and executive recruiters point to jobs that require a lot of traveling.

Bachelors are also able to work overtime or weekends without worrying about neglecting a wife or children.

Major companies like IBM, Mobil, Esso and the larger banks say a man's marital status has no bearing on his corporate status and is of no relevance in the hiring or promoting process.

Bachelors questioned don't necessarily see it that clearly.

Some executives feel that they might have been earning more money if they had some hungry little mouths to feed. "Had I been married with kids, I probably would have been making $32,000 rather than $25,000," said one bachelor who used to be in advertising. "It was never articulated or stated, but I always felt it was implied."

The Worry Clinic Wide Use For A Dog's Nose

Note Dr. Vasilev's use of dogs to find buried ores. Canine detectives are also being used to spot hidden narcotics in passenger luggage and freight boxes. Notice the cases I have cited of dogs that turned on their former human pals! Why?

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-574: Dr. Georgy Vasilev has been experimenting with the use of dogs to smell out various ore deposits in the ground.

It takes about 4 to 5 months to train a dog to be such a geologist, he explains.

"European sheep dogs," he adds, "are usually the best breed for the job."

Hunting dogs and fox terriers get distracted too easily by rabbits!

His trained dogs could sniff out the exact locations of previously known deposits that had already been marked on the experimeter's map. They could even detect the ore under 18 inches of snow and buried in bogs.

The ores the dogs spotted by scent were pyrite (iron and sulphur); emerald (beryl and aluminum) and malachite (copper carbonate).

In earlier columns I also gave you cases where dogs had turned on their former best friends and acted as if the latter were total strangers.

Not many months later, these human beings were found to be afflicted with leukemia.

Since that is characterized by a marked change in the blood, could such men have lost their former scent?

Was their changed spoor what made the dogs turn on them as total strangers when they had previously been buddies and pals?

You readers have often seen remarkable evidences of the keen scent of such dogs as hounds and especially beagles.

Some canines rely more on their sight than on a keen sense of smell.

This seems true to a large degree of cats, too, for they are attracted more by the quick movements of a mouse or bird than by odor.

But those dogs that rely on their sense of smell can pick up a scent that may be several days old and use it to select one man from 10,000.

It is thus possible that some ores may give off a faint odor that is distinctive.

If so, then keen-scented canines might very well be used to ferret out such metals.

For dogs have recently been trained to sniff out hidden caches of heroin and other illegal drugs that were secreted in luggage or shipping boxes at freight centers.

Some medical ailments among human beings give off a characteristic odor which pioneer doctors employed in their diagnosis.

If human beings can thus diagnose a few diseases by means of mankind's cruder sense of smell, might it not be feasible to train blood hounds and beagles to detect early and even undiagnosed cases of diabetes, leukemia, and possibly even cancer of the breast vs. the prostate?

This is a field for research toward Ph. D. theses.

And it would have far more practical uses than the detection of a few ores of slight commercial value, such as pyrite.

For such a trained canine detective of human ailments might short-circuit lengthy and expensive laboratory hospital tests.

He might also pick out those suffering from LSD or heroin and marijuana poisoning.

The San Francisco earthquake and fire in 1906 cost $1 billion and 452 lives.

County Included In Asks Control Wage Change Study By Districts

Pitt County is one of 21 southeastern North Carolina counties that will be included in a federal wage change survey ordered this week by the Department of Defense Wage Fixing Authority.

A three-man board, headed by Wiley L. Wall of Cherry Point, will begin conducting the survey next week, federal officials reported.

Wall said that rates of pay that may be changed as a result of the survey will become effective March 19. All federal wage grade employees in the southeastern area will be affected, he added. The survey will cover skilled and unskilled trade, craft and laboring jobs in federal establishments in the 21 counties, the chairman noted.

Pay raises will be restricted to a maximum of 5.5 per cent although some of the jobs may not require that much increase, Wall indicated. More than 5,000 North Carolina federal blue collar workers would be affected by the survey and could receive their first pay raise in a year, he reported. Counties included, in addition to Pitt, are Greene, Martin, Beaufort, Brunswick, Carteret, Columbus, Craven, Jones, Lenoir, New Hanover, Onslow, Pamlico, Pender, Bertie, Dare, Duplin, Hertford, Hyde, Tyrrell and Washington.

Paid For By Hugh Morton Candidate For Governor

that the state could better regulate welfare rolls are based on or off welfare."

"No one can keep a day-to-day check on welfare recipients," Kuralt said. "The state couldn't do it any better than the counties can."

He was reacting to recent state reports that as many as ten per cent of the people carried on county welfare rolls were ineligible. "Actually," Kuralt said, "it's usually a question of receiving too much or too little, rather than of being on or off welfare."

He suggested that a determination of the optimum size for a welfare administration unit be made. Then, he said, the many county units that are too small to hire qualified people could be consolidated until they were the right size.

Sen. Jordan Opens Fire

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan took advantage of a Democratic audience in Charlotte Monday to fire some partisan shots at the Nixon Administration.

"One of the advantages of an audience like this," Jordan told the Mecklenburg Democratic Women's Club, "is that I can tell the truth about the opposition without hurting anyone's feelings."

He proceeded to characterize the administration as one which has left the nation with economic problems, a decline in U. S. prestige abroad, a dollar crisis, six per cent unemployment, and a loss of foreign trade.

On textile imports, Jordan said the recent agreements with the Japanese may be "too little too late." He said 34 mills have shut down in North Carolina since President Nixon first promised to limit textile imports in 1968.

He also spoke at length on the drug problem, which he said was ruining the young people of the country.

Deadly Drums

LONDON (AP) — Teams of scientists equipped with protective clothing were rushed to southwest England today to help identify and destroy drums of dangerous chemicals from a Spanish freighter that sank 75 miles off the Cornish coast last month.

Experts fear that the 1,000 45-gallon drums aboard the Germania are either bobbing toward the coasts of Cornwall and Devon or have sunk and will release their contents into the ocean when their drums corrode.

Union Carbide of Belgium, which produced the chemicals, says the cargo included drums of sodium cyanide, which burns and impairs breathing; ethyl acetate, which is highly inflammable, toluene di-isocyanate, which has a poisonous vapor, and sulphur methoxypridazine.

British newspapers are calling them "drums of death." Scientists pointed out that the cyanide may not be washed up for years because it is heavier than water and may have stayed on the bottom with the ship.

Police said 55 students were arrested in Monday's fighting and said 2,000 students took part. The number of injured was not given but police said some patrolmen were hurt.

No Long Hair For Honor Guard

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark's army, navy and air force have selected the men to be honor guards at King Frederik IX's lying-in-state and funeral, and this order was issued: Long hair must be kept out of sight.

The late monarch was supreme commander of Denmark's armed forces and one known to frown at such military permissiveness as long hair and big beards, especially in the navy, to which the sailor king felt particularly attached.

Wilson attorney Jim Hunt, a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, announced here today that Louis A. Singleton, local attorney, will head his Pitt County campaign.

Hunt said that he has named Ed Davenport of Farmville to serve as one of the state-wide campaign coordinators and Christie Speir of Bethel, a senior at North Pitt High School, to serve as one of his state co-chairmen for young voters.

The candidate said, "Illegal, disruptive or violent activities in our public schools cannot be tolerated. Schools must be safe, law abiding places for our children. Acts which are illegal should be punished under the law. Acts which are not illegal but are disruptive should be handled firmly but fairly by the school administration," he added.

He pointed out that "I am a supporter of fair but firm discipline in our public schools.

Hunt noted that dismissal is no longer the first method of punishment but he said it should be used when necessary to maintain a good educational environment in public schools.

Young people with discipline problems, the candidate continued, should be handled as individuals because it may be possible to reorient poor behavior and save a student a lifetime of trouble.

"Education and learning and teaching should be fun," he added. "It should be free of fear, disruptions, and arbitrary punishment. It should be looked forward to and new challenges accepted each day. I believe this type of educational environment is possible and we must all work toward achieving that objective."

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Declaring themselves conscientious objectors to a state program of subsidizing therapeutic abortions for welfare recipients, a Lancaster couple says they will withhold part of their income tax payment.

"Abortion, however defined, violates our consciences," Mr. and Mrs. Mark Gallagher wrote in a letter to their state representative, Harold Horn.

The Gallaghers, Roman Catholics and social workers, have two children.

They asked Horn what percentage of the state's budget is spent on the program and said they would withhold that percentage of their tax liability.

The Welfare Department has spent about $1.5 million on the program since it was started in 1968.

Madrid Univ. Is Virtually Idled

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Students battled police for the second straight day today at Madrid University. The university was virtually shut by the violence.

The principal clashes took place near the medical school where the first serious police-student fighting in three years erupted Monday.

The students blocked traffic, hurled stones at police and chanted again for them to get off the campus.

At a biology building police forced their way inside with clubs and broke up a meeting of students. Several students were arrested. There was no report on injuries.

Banker To Head Campaign

A police source blamed an estimated 200 Communists for leading the disturbances at the university's three campuses with more than 70,000 students.

This view was echoed by the Falangist newspaper Arriba.

OPPOSING MORGAN

RALEIGH (AP) — A Durham attorney, Nick Smith, announced Monday he will seek the Republican nomination for attorney general and said he would be "actioned oriented" if elected.

Will Withhold Abortion Costs

The fighting broke out as medical students attempted a protest demonstration over their suspension in the dispute over academic rules. Many medical students have been boycotting classes since November.

News accounts said about 1,800 of the 2,500 suspended medical students had asked to be reinstated. The deadline was Monday.

But Monday's violence brought a sympathy strike by much of the rest of student body. Other students stayed home to avoid violence or having their identity cards lifted.

Guthrie Theater Out Of The Red

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The Guthrie Theater, on the verge of collapse a year ago, ended the 1971-72 season with a surplus of $6,000.

A fund-raising drive that netted $600,000 combined with the sale of more than 200,000 tickets during the season to pull the theater out of the red, a Guthrie spokesman said Monday.

Toyota Recalling 110,000 '71 Cars

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Toyota is recalling about 110,000 1971 Corolla cars in the United States to inspect evaporative emission control systems.

The firm's U.S. headquarters said Monday the cars were manufactured before May 1971 with engines of both 1,200 and 1,600 cubic centimeters displacement.

The company said a combination of unusual driving conditions may cause engine malfunction because of fuel starvation or deformation of the car's fuel tank in extreme cases. It said the recall was made on its initiative.

No Trace Of 7 Escapees

BELFAST, NORTHERN Ireland (AP) — British troops combed a Catholic district along Belfast's waterfront today in search of seven suspected members of the Irish Republican Army who escaped from a prison ship in the harbor. No trace of them was found.

The men broke out Monday night from the ship Maidstone, a former submarine supply vessel used as a detention center for suspects rounded up under Northern Ireland's emergency internment-without trial laws.

A government spokesman said the men cut their way through a bar across a porthole on the side away from the dock.

Then, believed dressed only in undershorts, they swam 200 yards in freezing water to the dockside, hijacked a bus waiting for dock workers and drove into the Markets area where they vanished.

The IRA claimed all of them were "safely clear of the Belfast area."

Twenty detainees have fled captivity in the past two months, most of them from the fortress-like prison on Crumlin Road in Belfast.

The 12,500-ton Maidstone was believed escape-proof. A team of military frogmen is said to be on constant standby in case a breakout is attempted, and the ship's hull is ringed by coils of barbed wire.

There also was sporadic shooting during the night as the 600 searching British troops encountered resistance from the residents. A police source said the troops shot at least one man.
