Cite Price Of Peace

HONG KONG (AP) — North Vietnam's army newspaper set the price of peace in Vietnam today at "complete U.S. liquidation of all forces, all elements, and all support that would continue the survival" of the present South Vietnamese government and army.

Joining in the Communist criticism of President Nixon's eight-point peace program, Quan Doi Nhan Dan said it "cannot be accepted by our people because it maintains the U.S. neocolonialist plot of Vietnamizing the war and maintaining the traitor Thieu in power."

Quan Doi was the third major North Vietnamese voice to say that Nixon's peace proposal was not acceptable because it did not guarantee abandonment of President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime.

One Missing, 2 Dead

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two Camp Lejeune Marines are dead and a third is missing as a result of an apparent boating accident Friday night or early Saturday morning, Onslow County authorities reported today.

Officials have identified the two dead men as Staff Sgt. Donald Gardner and Sgt. James Smith Junior.

Missing is a 27-year-old Marine sergeant, who was not identified. The bodies of Gardner and Smith were found about 3 p.m. Saturday on the beach near the New River inlet.

A capsized boat was found about 75 yards off shore. A Coast Guard patrol boat took the small fishing craft in tow, but the tow line snapped and the boat sank in the inlet.

Two Jacksonville divers tried to locate the sunken vessel Sunday afternoon.

JDL And Nazis Clash

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — Police and Sheriff's deputies quelled a brief flareup during a demonstration staged by the Jewish Defense League outside the headquarters of a self-styled Nazi group.

A police spokesman said about 40 demonstrators, including eight women and two juveniles, were arrested Sunday and booked for investigation of offenses including disturbing the peace, failure to disperse and assault.

Police set up a command post in a nearby park and summoned sheriff's deputies when fistfights and stone throwing broke out.

The police spokesman said one officer was injured slightly by a thrown bottle.

A JDL spokesman said the demonstration was in support of a recent city order that the National Socialist White People's party headquarters be closed, invoking an ordinance barring unsightly structures.

Nepal's King Is Dead

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — King Mahendra of Nepal, whose reign of nearly 16 years was devoted to ending the isolation of his Himalayan kingdom and bringing it into the 20th century, died today in Bharatpur after a heart attack suffered Sunday. He was 51.

His eldest son, Crown Prince Birendra, 26, succeeded to the throne of the landlocked Hindu kingdom, between India and Communist China.

Mahendra managed to maintain good relations with both big neighbors despite their hostility to each other, and with the United States and the Soviet Union as well.

Once during a visit to Washington he commented: "Nepal is a test case as to whether a small country situated between two big countries can, in the realities of power relations in this mid-20th century world, preserve its independence and sovereignty in its own characteristic manner."

Invade Secret Center

LYON, France (AP) — Ten antiwar militants who passed themselves off as workers and technicians slipped into a top secret control center for France's nuclear strike force today.

The 10 were arrested after they unfurled a banner saying "No to the Sale of Arms. No to the Atomic Command Post."

The underground command center near Lyon is nearing completion. It contains radar and computer equipment to centralize information about enemy attacks and to order retaliation by French bombers and submarines equipped with nuclear weapons.

The 10 demonstrators from the Group for Action and Resistance to Militarization also carried photographic and recording equipment.

They said in a statement: "We wanted to show up the ridiculousness of the security system as well as its dangerous vulnerability. We also wanted to show the scandalous waste of such a project in a country where work on social and cultural construction is stalled. We also wanted to protest against the sale of arms to underdeveloped countries"

First Thank-You In 36 Years

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Does anybody ever write to the mailman?

Melvin Lucherini, Logan, Utah, a postal employee for 36 years, got his first thank-you letter last week, and it came from Vietnam.

The letter was addressed to "the Mailman," in care of Mrs. T.C. Skanchy.

Capt. Thomas Skanchy credited Lucherini with keeping morale up at home and on the front. "The single most important item I receive is the mail," he wrote.

Retaliation For Londonberry Killings See Revenge In Belfast Bombs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army retaliated with bombs and the Irish Republic summoned home its ambassador in Britain today on the heels of the killing of 13 civilians in a battle with British army troops in Londonderry.

An announcement by the Irish government of Prime Minister Jack Lynch in the south said the Dublin Cabinet is satisfied that British troops opened an unprovoked attack on unarmed civilians Sunday in the Roman Catholic Bogside district of Londonderry.

Lynch's government also launched a campaign for an international inquiry into the killings.

Lynch announced the action after a hastily called Cabinet meeting. He said his foreign minister, Patrick Hillery will go to New York for talks with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

The meeting followed a 15-minute telephone conversation between Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic and Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain.

Earlier in the day, the Irish Republican Army blew up a store, a bar and an electrical shop in downtown Belfast. Security spokesmen expressed the belief the bombings were in retaliation for the killing of the 13 civilians in Londonderry.

The British Home Stores was blown up by two gellignite bombs in a window cleaners' van that was parked just outside the store in a busy shopping arcade.

Ten persons were injured, one seriously, and dozens of neighboring shops and offices were damaged.

The 13 deaths in Londonderry raised to 232 the number of persons killed in the Catholic-Protestant warfare that has raged in Northern Ireland since August 1969. Fifty-nine have died this year.

The IRA charged that the paratroopers fired indiscriminately into a crowd of unarmed civilians, and the guerrillas promised a wave of soldier killings in revenge.

The army said snipers opened fire first.

Thousands of Catholic workers went on strike in Londonderry today in response to a call from IRA leaders for a mourning period.

The big industrial complex at Maydown, just outside the city, produced a small fraction of its normal output, and many of the factories shut down. Most of the city's 5,000 shirt workers stayed home, and many shops closed in the center of the tense, nervous city.

Catholics gathered at St. Eugene's Cathedral for a requiem Mass, and their bishop, the Rev. Neal Farren, appealed for restraint. The funerals of those killed Sunday will probably be held Wednesday, and there may be more violence then.

The trouble began after some 10,000 marchers turned out in answer to a call from Roman Catholic civil rights leaders to demonstrate against the internment of suspected IRA terrorists without trial. The demonstration violated a government ban on parades.

After being halted near City Hall by police and army barricades, the marchers turned back toward the Catholic Bogside district where they were to hear speeches.

The army said at this point rioters in the crowd hurled rocks and nail bombs at the troops and snipers opened fire at the soldiers.

Maj. Gen. Robert Ford, the British army commander in Northern Ireland, insisted that his men did not go in shooting as the IRA charged. "They did not fire until they were fired upon," he said.

There were rumors that some of the victims may have been slain earlier and their bodies brought out Sunday to inflate the toll.

MARCHED AWAY — Dozens of civilians with their hands on their heads are marched away by soldiers after rioting in Derry, protesting against Northern Ireland's internment-without-trial measures. At least thirteen civilians were shot dead as British paratroops stormed the demonstrators. (AP Wirephoto)

Chute Failed Skydiver

FROGMORE, S. C. (AP) — A 22-year-old Marine sergeant stationed at the Beaufort Air Station was killed Sunday when his parachutes malfunctioned while he was skydiving near Frogmore.

Beaufort County Coroner Roger Pinckney and Marine sources identified the dead man as Sgt. Daryl Alan John of Burlington, Iowa.

Pinckney said John and a companion were jumping with the Cool Blue Skydiving Club, made up mostly of Marines who pursue their hobby on weekends.

Pinckney said John bailed out of the small plane at about 3,600 feet altitude.

"The main parachute didn't open," Pinckney said he was told by witnesses. "It came out and streamered but didn't open. Then he opened the second chute and it got tangled in the first one."

The coroner said John plunged to the ground in a wooded area near a small airport on Lady's Island in South Carolina's lower coastal area.

Pinckney said a watch on John's wrist had stopped at 3:20 p. m. He was in an upright, sitting position in a hole about 18 inches deep, the coroner said. Pinckney said the hole apparently was made by the impact of the body.

The coroner said an investigation would be conducted by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Bombers Pounding N. Viet Buildup

SAIGON (AP) — More waves of U.S. B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese troop and supply buildups today along a 200-mile stretch of South Vietnam's western border, from the demilitarized zone to the central highlands. They were the heaviest raids there in four months.

About 20 of America's biggest bombers unleashed more than 500 tons of explosives on North Vietnamese positions inside the southern half of the demilitarized zone, at the northern entrance to the A Shau valley and west and northwest of Kontum, in the central highlands, which U.S. advisers say may be one target of the anticipated offensive.

The heavy air attacks came as Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. Army chief of staff, told a Saigon news conference that North Vietnam is preparing for a multiphase offensive next month in South Vietnam just below the demilitarized zone and in the central highlands.

Westmoreland, who commanded U.S. forces in Vietnam in 1965-68, said the Communists may "have some temporary success." But he said he and top U.S. and South Vietnamese officers are confident Saigon's forces can handle any enemy offensive.

The South Vietnamese Command reported that its air force destroyed three North Vietnamese tanks Sunday just inside the border, about 32 miles west-northwest of Kontum.

On the DMZ front, North Vietnamese forces bombarded South Vietnamese bases along the zone with more than 200 rockets and mortar shells, and four ground clashes were reported.

The South Vietnamese command claimed 54 North Vietnamese troops were killed and said government losses were nine killed and 22 wounded. It was the heaviest action along the DMZ since last fall.

Offer Reward

AYDEN — A group of concerned citizens is offering a cash award to anyone furnishing information leading to the arrest of persons involved in recent acts of vandalism on property owned by black residents here.

J. Russell Wooten of Ayden, a spokesman for the group, said that so far some $400 had been put up by the various Ayden citizens for payment to persons offering information leading to the apprehension of the vandals.

Wooten said that there have been about a dozen cases of vandalism in the last month here involving homes, cars and other property owned by black Ayden citizens.

He reported that information furnished concerning the vandalism would be regarded as confidential as far as possible but he noted that court action, in many cases, would serve to make evidence concerning the alleged acts public.

Westmoreland Predicts Blow

SAIGON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland said today that North Vietnam is preparing for a major offensive next month just below the demilitarized zone and in South Vietnam's central highlands. He said that after a week's visit to the war zone, he is confident the South Vietnamese can handle any enemy threat.

The U.S. Army chief of staff told a news conference the North Vietnamese could conceivably "have some temporary success, but I think it would be quite temporary."

"I think the (South) Vietnamese are in a posture that they can react, so that any successes would be temporary," Westmoreland continued. "My feeling is that the plans of the (South) Vietnamese and their military strength are of such magnitude that the enemy would suffer very heavy casualties."

Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam from 1965 through early 1968, said the senior South Vietnamese officials with whom he met "have a great deal of confidence that they can handle any forthcoming enemy initiative." He said he and the senior U.S. officers in Vietnam share this confidence.

Westmoreland said it would be difficult to judge how long any offensive might last, but "my judgment would be that this offensive will consist of several phases, each phase being in duration of days, certainly no more than a week or so."

Pitt Native Is Candidate For Labor Office

Raleigh attorney John C. Brooks, 35, announced here this morning that he is a Democratic candidate for state labor commissioner.

Brooks, a Greenville native, disclosed during an 11 a.m. news conference at the Holiday Inn that he will run for the seat now held by Frank Crane who has announced that he will not seek reelection.

The attorney told newsmen that he is "seeking this office of the people because I believe that it presents an opportunity to reorient and revitalize the Department of Labor of North Carolina."

He added, "I believe that a new commissioner of labor can lead this department of our government toward a far greater concern for the human needs of the working women and men in North Carolina."

Noting that "in America today there are over 30 million women workers who make up 40 per cent of the labor force," and asserting that "The pay gap between women and men is getting wider," Brooks said he would establish a Women's Bureau in the department to work toward eliminating the gap between wages paid women and those paid men.

"As commissioner of labor I would encourage a close examination of the functions of the Department of Labor toward the end that it be capable of helping the working people of North Carolina enjoy a better life," Brooks stated.

He added that he would assist in expanding apprenticeship programs and on-the-job training courses in the state and using federal monies now available for the expansion would encourage wider participation in these programs by the state's system of community colleges.

Brooks said also that, "If we are to retain our system of small farms in North Carolina, we must give attention to providing industrial working opportunities on a part-time basis to our farm labor in order to permit these workers to supplement their farm-earned income."

A Morehead Scholar at the University of North Carolina, Brooks has been a clerk to Supreme Court Chief Justice William H. Bobbitt, an aide to former Gov. Terry Sanford, and administrative officer of the 1969 General Assembly.

He has authored and edited several books, most of which deal with the formulation of constitutional law. The candidate worked in Maryland and Illinois on changes in those states' constitutions.

Brooks is the son of Mrs. Fred K. Brooks and the late Dr. Brooks of Greenville.

JOHN C. BROOKS

Author Clifford Irving Before A Manhattan Grand Jury Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Clifford Irving was scheduled today to face a Manhattan grand jury today as the mystery surrounding his alleged autobiography of Howard Hughes spawned new theories on the origin of the book and the disposal of royalty checks.

The grand jury is investigating what became of the $650,000 McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. gave Irving to transmit to Hughes as payment for the book. It was reported that Irving would ask for a delay in his grand jury appearance so he could brief his new attorney on the case.

The latest speculation restored some of the uncertainty dispelled when Irving, 41, admitted through his attorney last week that his wife Edith had deposited three checks totaling $650,000 in a Swiss bank account under the name "Helga R. Hughes."

Irving and his lawyer, Maurice Nessen, said Mrs. Irving later withdrew the money at the request of Hughes and re-deposited the sum intact in a second Swiss bank.

But CBS and Time magazine reported Sunday that Mrs. Irving deposited only $450,000 in the second bank. The network said in its "60 Minutes" program that Irvin spent $50,000 of the money, while Time claimed the author was "frantically trying to raise $200,000."

In Zurich, Swiss authorities reported today that they have found the second bank account into which the Hughes payments had been redeposited.

Police said the new account was opened at the Swiss Bank

Corp. in the name of Hannah Rosencrantz, which CBS has said is another pseudonym of Mrs. Irving's.

The amount of money in the account was not given.

Time also reported that the 999-page autobiography Irving says was compiled after more than 100 meetings with the reclusive billionaire may be partially based on a computer printout.

Time said it had learned of the existence of a computerized document that "contains virtually everything that has ever been published about Hughes, as well as thousands of memoranda dictated for and by Hughes—material enough for a dozen 'authentic' books."

"The likeliest scenario is that Irving somehow obtained some or all of the material in the printout," Time said. "It has been rumored, for example, that an angry former employee from the Hughes operation brought the material to Irving."

A man said to be Hughes has declared in affidavits and in a long distance telephone conversation with reporters that he had never met with Irving and denounced the autobiography as a hoax.

Richard Hannah, a Hughes public relations man, said Sunday that biographical data on Hughes had been computerized under the direction of Frank W. "Bill" Gray and with the assistance of Dr. John Pettit, a computer expert.

But Hannah insisted the "book" contained no secret or confidential memos and said there was not nearly a sufficient supply of material for all of Irving's text.

Newsweek magazine reported that Robert Maheu, a former close Hughes associate who is suing Hughes interests for $50 million, and John Meier, a one-time Hughes protegee, had access to the computer copy.

Maheu denied he had access to the material, but added he thought a leak was possible.

Meier called the Newsweek report "ridiculous," saying "I never met the man (Irving)." Federal authorities in Florida confirmed they were studying subpoenaed guest registrations of the Sonesta Beach Hotel for last Sept. 23, when Irving said he and Hughes met to record part of the autobiography.

The Miami Herald reported that spokesmen for two other hotels in southern Florida showed Irving was registered at about the same time he claims to have been in the area for interviews with Hughes.

Both McGraw-Hill and Life magazine, which has excerpted the book, have suspended plans for publication.

Marriage 2000—Will This Be End Of ‘Other Woman’?

(Editor's Note: Following is the second of three articles on what marriage will be like at the turn of the century.)

By STELLA BRUCE
NEW YORK (WNS) — “The Eternal Triangle” — husband, wife and some shadowy figure in the background — is the cause, according to the latest world figures, of over 60 per cent of today's marriage break-ups.

And in well over half these cases, the shadowy figure is...a woman.

Today's wives — and their mothers before them — have learned to live with the spectre of “the other woman,” either real or imaginary. He's working later at the office...is it “another woman”? He's bought some after-shave. Hmm...does that mean he's got “somebody else...?”

But the way things are shaping up, we might be the last generation to get so steamed up about somebody who in many cases doesn't even exist!

For, according to an increasing number of experts, the “other woman” is in the process of being pensioned off. And when marriage moves into the year 2000 she might be nothing more than a quaint memory of the “gay old days” of the '70s.

New Code
That doesn't mean, of course, that some men might not go off the rails from time to time, but the furtive philandering which has provided a living for umpteen private detectives could well be on the way out. At least that's the theory.

Marriage 2000, according to such experts as British sociologist Dr. Charles Darkley, will probably be run on very different lines than our own.

And already, he maintains, the trends are leading toward a new code of what has been called, “ordered liberty.”

District Meet Planned By Group

Plans were completed for the district session to be held here at the Post Home at the meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of VFW held Thursday night at the home of Mrs. R. D. Bailey.

Mrs. Carrie West was named chairman for the luncheon for the out-of-town guests and delegates. The session will be held Sunday, Feb. 13.

President Myrtle Meeks presided at the meeting. The auxiliary will join the Post in a program set for April of Lit-A-Bike. Tapes, that glow in the dark, were given to all boys, girls and adults who ride bicycles free as a public service.

Dates and places for this program will be announced later.

Reports of various committees were given. It was reported that Christmas greetings were sent to all Gold Star Mothers and gifts of clothing and toys sent to O'Berry School, Goldsboro. Mrs. Robert Knapp was enrolled as a new member. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bailey.

New Pledges Initiated

Alpha Iota Chapter of the International fraternity of women educators, Alpha Delta Kappa, held its January meeting at Woman's Club Tuesday evening. Following dinner three pledges, Mrs. Romana Tucker, Mrs. Ann Harrison and Mrs. Betty Speight, were initiated into the sorority.

A program on “Sorority Education” was given by members Lily Weaver, Evelyn Blue and Janie Gold Starling. President Elizabeth Savage presided over the business session. Katie Lee Gardner was appointed to fill the unexpired term of secretary following the granting of leave of absence for year to two members.

Ways and means chairman, Becky Groome, conducted a sale of materials donated by members to help with the educational scholarship fund. As co-chairman of the fund, Mrs. Groome gave a report of the recommendations of her committee on the selection of a recipient. Each member will receive the report for further study and the final report will be voted on in February.

Altruistic Chairman, Dorothy Johnson, submitted her report for members to approve and began involvement. Chaplain Mickie West gave the devotional.

Explains Dr. Darkley: “The husbands and wives of 30 years ahead could well see morality as merely a basic love of humanity which dictates that nothing is wrong unless it causes pain of distress to others or injures the family unit.”

Some pundits gloomily forecast the end of marriage as we know it by the end of the century, but that's not the trend that the latest social surveys are revealing.

A leading psychiatrist puts it like this: Everything points to the fact that by the year 2000 the songwriter's fantasy of romantic love will have been at least partly discarded from modern marriage.

“That means it's possible that the mistress and the prostitute — the traditional guardians of romantic love — will eventually become redundant, and disappear.

“I can even visualize the day when promiscuity is looked upon sympathetically as a symptom of psychological disturbance.”

Other experts agree. “A move away from permissiveness is beginning already,” says Jose Merritt, a sociologist who last year conducted a survey into marriage trends involving nearly 2,000 husbands and wives.

Resurgence Of Spirit
“There seems to be some sort of resurgence of spirit among parents who had become confused and lacking in confidence.

“They are now trying to give a new scene of security to their children who, in turn, should pass it on when they themselves have families.”

What this means, says Dr. Darkley, is that young parents bringing up children at the turn

Mrs. Roberson Is Speaker

“Credit Education for the Young Adult Consumers” was the program topic for the Tuesday night meeting of the Greenville Credit Women International.

In giving the program, Mrs. Mary Roberson said, “Youths in this day will be better credit customers than their parents because they are credit-oriented. We feel that it is up to the credit profession to take aggressive steps toward providing the information on credit to the schools.

“This is one way of helping the younger generation to understand what credit is all about and how it should be used. Things should be explained to them in detail about the different types of accounts and also, the establishing and maintaining of a good credit record is an important part of the presentation.”

The business meeting was conducted by President Pearl Hartsell. Guests for the meeting were Trish Byrum, Brenda Edwards and Carol Ann Thomas.

Plans for “Birthday Night” which will be held March 15 were discussed. Miss Clara Seago was appointed chairman of the event.

of the century will probably have marriages which are basically more honest than ours are; they will live in a way which will astonish, and perhaps shock, the older ones among us.

For instance, a Swedish magazine recently headed an article on the future of marriage with a picture of five men carrying one girl over the threshold of their new home.

Is this what we can expect...? Highly unlikely, says Dr. Darkley, although he can foresee kibbutz-style living with people existing as a group rather than as segregated couples.

And will that mean communal bedrooms? “Perhaps so,” says Dr. Darkley guardedly.

Other sociologist believe that traditional types of morality will be replaced by a greater concern for the old, the poor and minority groups.

Children of a year 2000 marriage will probably be marrying even earlier than their parents did, perhaps at 15 or 16, according to some authorities. Will they be happy marriages? “Probably they will be, within the next context,” says Jose Merritt.

“But if they aren't, it's unlikely that people will tolerate unhappy marriages as long as we do. If it's not working out, people will be much more inclined to turn to the divorce courts.

Easier To Separate
“All indications are that changes in divorce law will continue, to make separation even easier.

“But this doesn't necessarily mean that moral standards will fall and everyone will rush around sleeping with everyone else. By 2000 we will probably value marriage far more as an institution than we do today.”

Other authorities feel the same. Perhaps the wild days of wife-swapping and wholesale adultery that have been forecast for the next century may not come after all.

“Sex will be sexier, love more loving and violence more vile,” forecasts Dr. Desmond Morris, author of “The Naked Ape.”

“And that might well serve to bring the family unit closer. Despite the temptations, most people will continue to try to pick the right partner for the right reasons.”

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to you? You used to encourage married couples to do everything within their power to save their marriages. Lately, you give the impression that divorce could be the answer for some couples. Why?

FAITHFUL READER

DEAR READER: Because I think it's more important to save people than marriages. And in some cases, in an effort to save the marriage, people have destroyed themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Our 7-year-old printed the following letter to Santa: "Dear Santa, all I want for Christmas is for my mommy to quit smoking because I love her very much and don't want her to die. If you bought more toys for me please give them to some other little boy because all I want is a Mommy who doesn't cough anymore, and doesn't get nervous when she can't find a cigaret butt. Thank you."

His Mommy cried when she read it. But she's still smoking. Sign me "Billy's father," or more appropriately,

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Mommy's hooked. If she really wants to kick the habit, she can, but she'll need encouragement and understanding, not contempt.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old and I have four big problems. A big nose, two big ears that stick out, and hair that is very thin.

I like to wear my hair straight and plain, but I have to keep brushing it all the time because if I don't, my ears stick out.

I am very self-conscious about my nose, too, especially with these big ears of mine. Can you help me, Abby? I hope so because the rest of me is okay. FUNNY-LOOKING GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Excessive brushing makes hair oilier, so easy with the hairbrush. Also, if your hair had some curl in it, it wouldn't be so "thin" and your ears wouldn't stick out.

In a few years you can put your nose [and possibly your ears, too] in the hands of a plastic surgeon, so cheer up, Honey.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from a nosy neighbor who wants to know if it's normal for a boy who's in the 8th grade to kiss his mother goodbye every morning, sounds like my neighbor. Please inform her that all my sons, ranging in age from 5 to 21, kiss me goodbye in the morning. I'm sure I don't know where they get such "abnormal" ideas. From their father, I guess, who's been doing it for 22 years.

Naval Reserve Unit Openings Available

Openings for first enlistment are now available at the Naval Reserve Training Facility in Washington, according to C. E. Bradshaw, YN1 petty officer in charge.

Bradshaw said the Naval Reserve Program now offers two types of enlistment. A person may enlist for two years active duty with a six year obligation or enlist for four to ten months active duty with a six-year obligation, he said.

Bradshaw pointed out that RM1 Jerry M. Schirk, station recruiter, will be on hand to answer questions about enlistments and will be able to tell the prospective enlistee when he would leave for boot camp, what Navy school he would attend and what type of job he could expect to receive while on active duty.

The officer explained that when the enlistee returns from active duty, he would drill on Monday evenings at the training facility. In addition he would also receive a full day's pay for the three-hour drill.

Bradshaw recalled that the Naval Reserve was formally established in 1915. By the end of World War I, he said, there were approximately 30,000 reserve offices and 300,000 enlisted men on active duty serving with the regular Navy in a variety of ships and billets.

He asserted that the Naval Reserve program expanded until today the Navy has a large and well-organized Reserve Force that is effectively administered and geared to answer a call to arms on short notice.

Incredulous At Reaction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The singer who made an unexpected peace speech to President Nixon at the White House says she thinks it's incredible that her action embarrassed some people.

Carole Feraci, 30, denounced the Vietnam war Friday night before an audience in the East Room that included evangelist Billy Graham and comedian Bob Hope.

After returning to her home here Saturday, the Canadian singer, said she had joined the Ray Conniff Singers a week before with the intention of making the statement.

"I think it's really incredible that people are embarrassed about the fact that I spoke up about people being burned and killed," she said.

Just before the singers were to start a program she unfurled a cloth sign saying "Stop the killing" and stepped to the front of the stage.

She then told Nixon, who was sitting in front of her, "Stop bombing human beings, animals and vegetation."

"You go to church and pray to Jesus Christ. If Jesus Christ was in this room tonight you would not dare to drop another bomb. Bless the Berrigans and Daniel Ellsberg."

The President's guests booed her, and Conniff asked her to leave.

She told newsmen she thought she accomplished what she wanted to and feels "a lot of people are going to have the courage to voice their opinion after this."

Charge Driver In Auto Accident

James Earl Lee Warren, 36, of 305 West 13th St. was charged with driving under the influence following investigation of a 1:52 a.m. mishap today at the intersection of Tenth Street and Grand Avenue, according to investigating officers.

Greenville police reported the Warren car collided with a utility pole at the intersection causing an estimated $600 damage to the car and about $250 to the pole.

'Woolybooger'

DREXEL, N.C. (AP) — A mysterious Mr. X has confessed that he, dressed in a furlike coat liner and oversized work gloves, was the Woolybooger which two deputies saw one night two weeks ago.

Mr. X says he pulled the hoax because the deputies had been stopping the cars of his friends as they left a night spot. The place had been kept under surveillance although no arrests were made.

Mr. X says he was the Woolybooger only one night. So what about reports that such a mysterious animal had been sighted in the area on other nights?

That mystery also has been solved.

Two men who saw a "Creature" fly in front of their car at 1 a.m. jumped out and captured it — two tow sacks stitched together and strung up on a wire. They said they saw four boys running through the woods.

Home For Aged Vote Expanding

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A proposal to expand the Penick Home for the aged at Southern Pines has won the endorsement of the annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina.

At its closing session Saturday the convention voted to provide $40,000 to begin planning the $2 million project. It was the first support the diocese has given the home in the home's 15-year history.

Edward E. Yaggy Jr., former chairman of the home's board of directors, said the remaining money for the expansion will come from five sources. He told the delegates money would be raised by bank loans, a "friendly foundation," a fund raising drive and private donations.

The home now has 63 residents and a waiting list of 101.

In other action, the convention called for a study of the methods used in calling clergy to church assignments and for a report to next year's convention.

At present, a minister accepting a church call is granted life tenure. The Rt. Rev. Thomas Fraser, bishop of the diocese, has suggested some sort of contractual arrangement.

Other resolutions passed by the convention called for:

—A study of the decision-making process at all church levels and a report to next year's convention.

—A study of the use of diocesan funds to establish a year-around conference center.

The conference also approved amendments to the constitution and to canon law. One of these would permit a parish to increase membership on its ves-

Rural Fire Fighting Effective

The broad scope of the county's rural fire fighting organization was illustrated by the annual report of the county fire marshal, Bobby Joyner.

There are 17 rural fire departments in Pitt County and during 1971 they spent 34,496 man hours answering calls and fighting fires.

The departments reported fire losses totalling $386,055 last year, but there was a total of $2,219,875 in property value involved in the fires which the rural volunteers fought. It is safe to assume that in the years prior to organization of a county-wide system of fire fighting the value of property lost in the same number of fires would have been much higher.

Gardner Adds A New Factor

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — The entry of Jim Gardner brings about a reassessment of the gubernatorial contest in North Carolina.

Will a Republican primary help or hurt the party's chances in the November general election? What will be the impact, if any, on the Democratic race?

Only time and the voters can tell. At this stage, the questions evoke answers as varied as the political stripe of the answers.

One thing sure is that the Rocky Mount businessman, who lost to Gov. Bob Scott in 1968, has put a new spark of interest in the campaign which will decide the next governor. The public likes to watch a fight; now they have two scraps over the governorship to follow instead of only one.

The GOP primary battle may serve to divert a little fire away from the Democrats for the time being. As long as he was the only Republican candidate, Jim Holshouser could concentrate on rapping the party in power. Now both he and Gardner will have to give attention to establishing differences between them to Republican voters.

Primary No Problem

A clean-fought primary will create no problems for the party, said Frank Rouse of Kinston, GOP state chairman. "Both candidates have said publicly they will conduct clean campaigns, with no mud-slinging," Rouse noted. "I hope both of them will stick to their word."

A primary might even be helpful in attracting new voters to register Republican in order to participate. Rouse agreed. As long as there was no primary contest in prospect, even those who intended to vote Republican in the fall might be inclined to register Democratic in order to express a preference in that primary.

For his part, Rouse said he will maintain strict neutrality in the primary. "My only interest is in getting good candidates on the ballot," he insisted.

In his book, he added, either Holshouser or Gardner would make a winnable contender against the Democrats.

In-Fighting Pleases Demos

On the surface, Democrats showed unconcern about the GOP primary. If anything they took satisfaction from the likelihood that the Republicans might bruise themselves up a bit with infighting.

Privately, some Democratic political observers were troubled. They worried that a Republican candidate might come out of a primary with an aura of success appealing to dissident Democrats and the growing body of independent voters.

"It doesn't matter how many Republicans get mad. There's not enough of them to elect a governor, anyway," reasoned one knowledgeable politician. When a Republican becomes governor, Democratic votes will do it."

Gardner demonstrated ability to appeal across party lines in losing the '68 race. Out of 1½ million votes cast, he lost by 84,000. In voter registration, Democrats outnumber Republicans nearly four-to-one.

If he beats Holshouser, Boone attorney and state legislator, Gardner could be in position for a strong second try. On the other hand, if Holshouser wins the primary it might give him a "giant-killer" image which would enhance his general election chances.

Senatorial Contest Developing

The certainty of a gubernatorial primary may open the door for another GOP spring battle.

Several hopefuls are eyeing the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate. Some have been hanging back, in the interest of efforts to find a candidate backed by party unity. Since a primary now is assured, they may be encouraged to plunge in.

William Booe of Charlotte, a school board member disenchanted with busing, is the only announced candidate. Others mentioned in speculation include: Jesse Helms of Raleigh, a TV executive and commentator; State Rep. James C. Johnson, Jr. of Cabarrus; and Hugh G. Chatham, Elkin industrialist and conservationist.

Most observers rate the Holshouser-Gardner duel for the gubernatorial nomination as close, and certain to engender high feelings. There is personal antipathy between the two men, and it could flare out in the heat of a campaign.

Holshouser, who served as state party chairman for several years, comes from the Old Guard wing of the party, based in the western area of the state. Gardner, elected to Congress in the Fourth District before his first run for governor, is from the east and has been a center of gravity for more insurgent party elements.

Joyner reported that the volunteers are receiving training in new fire fighting methods, also. There were four night schools last year with 96 people enrolled and 66 of these received certificates. There was also a school in arson detection, hospital fire safety and an industrial fire brigade class at Borroughs-Wellcome.

The firemen spent a total of 4,579 man hours in classes during the year.

The system of fire departments which has developed throughout the county has come about through a lot of hard work by many people over a number of years. The firemen volunteer their time and often community organizations make contributions so that adequate fighting equipment can be purchased. Coverage of the county is no longer haphazard since the county fire marshal's office coordinates the efforts of the various departments.

Rural living is more secure now that fire departments are located in all sections of the county ready to offer fire protection at a moment's notice.

Landfills Are Needed All Over The County

One does not have to drive far in Pitt County to determine for himself that waste disposal is not up to par in the county, just as a headline reported the other day.

Small dumps are to be found everywhere and usually the garbage is dropped on private land without authorization.

Rural landfills must be developed so that the mountain of trash which is being dumped all over the county can be placed in controlled areas.

Once designated places are provided then heavy penalties should be assessed against those who insist on throwing their trash just anywhere.

The Reasonable An Address To

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The central aim of President Nixon's dramatic revelation of the secret but now aborted U.S.-Hanoi peace negotiations was so completely to undercut domestic political attack on his Vietnamization policy that Hanoi would know it could no longer win the war in the halls of Congress and the Presidential campaign.

Thus, in confidential talks with White House aides and his legislative leaders, Mr. Nixon flatly said on Tuesday evening:

"What I'm going to say in my speech is an answer to reasonable people with reasonable doubts about how to end the war, but it is not an answer to those demanding total American surrender."

In short by laying out his eight-point peace plan on national television, the President was playing for a strong national consensus for Vietnamization if Hanoi continues obdurate. That would mean leaving a residual force of American troops in Vietnam for a long time, together with the continued bombing of supply and infiltration targets in Laos and North Vietnam.

But that master political strategy was by no means the only object of Mr. Nixon's stunning revelations. They came, by no coincidence, only short weeks before the President's history-making trip to Peking.

For months, Mr. Nixon's foreign policy experts in the State Department and White House have been puzzled as to how much Peking has learned from Hanoi of the secret American peace initiatives. The two long conversations between Henry Kissinger, the President's top adviser on opening talks with China, and Prime Minister Chou En-lai last year are still cloaked in secrecy. Nevertheless, there is strong reason to doubt that Mr. Nixon authorized Kissinger to tell Chou even the broad outlines, much less the intimate details, of the continuing negotiations in Paris with Hanoi's agent, Le Duc Tho.

Accordingly, the President could not be sure that his proposals for what he called "a peace that is fair to both sides" were known to or even suspected by the Chinese Communists. Peking and Hanoi have been operating on different wavelengths for a long time, a diversion of interest that grew much wider with Kissinger's first visit to Peking last summer.

Now, Mr. Nixon's Chinese hosts will have the full story in ample time to study and digest before the President arrives in Peking next month. With the Soviet Union having an ever-larger hand in Hanoi's military excursions into South Vietnam, the American peace initiatives toward Hanoi could play a vital role in the developing U.S.-China rapprochement.

Beyond that, moreover, Mr. Nixon tried to kill at least two other important birds with the stone he hurled on Tuesday evening.

Top Nixon political advisers have worried for months that Republican candidates for all offices this year are running scared on the Vietnam issue. Their well-grounded fear: that with most Democratic Presidential candidates calling for immediate and total withdrawal conditioned only on the return of U.S. prisoners of war, Republicans would gradually be forced on the defensive.

"We have been flying blind," in the words of one top party leader. "We needed an answer and now we have one."

The other bird the President tried to kill is the host of amendments in the Senate and House setting a date certain for complete U.S. pullout from Vietnam in exchange for release of the

By ART BUCHWALD Is The Budget A Hoax?

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon through a spokesman, said that the 1973 annual budget submitted to Congress was a forgery and he had nothing to do with it.

The book, which was purportedly authored by George Shultz of the Office of Management and Budget reveals in 1,103 pages the innermost secrets of the government's finances.

Shultz claimed this was the first time Mr. Nixon had authorized such a volume and McGraw-Hill and Life magazine had paid $362,000 for the rights to it.

The budget director said he met with Mr. Nixon secretly all over the country and had taped the President's fiscal revelations over a period of six months.

Lawyers for Mr. Nixon said that the President had never heard of Shultz, had never authorized him to put out a budget and had never received any checks from McGraw-Hill and Life for the book.

Spokesmen at both McGraw-Hill and Life said they have handwritten documents from President Nixon attesting to the fact that the 1973 fiscal budget was authorized by him, and they planned to go ahead with

Other Editors Say A Responsibility

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The number of persons killed on highways in 1970 reached 55,200. The number of persons injured was tabulated for that same year at 5.1 million. Some 1.6 million of these were hospitalized, some for life. Number of licensed drivers in 1970 between ages 18-24: 19,108,300 — involved in 20,000 fatal accidents. Number of licensed drivers the same year between ages 25-34: 22,633,800 — involved in 15,100 fatal accidents.

You have read an appalling set of highway accident statistics. We can, and do, shrug off appeals every day to come to grips with the problem of safety on our highways. But the indifference vanishes when the mangled forms are our families, when the twisted steel is our car. And what a way to get involved, what a price to pay for concern!

And there is a grim figure lurking in the actions in these statistics: The heavy drinker — 25,000 deaths and 800,000 crashes happen every year involving pedestrians and drivers who have been drinking. The problem is as old as the automobile. The solution is not right around the corner.

As Dr. Harold Bosley of New York City observes, "The old, old danger of death on our highways is now so much a part of our accepted way of life we seldom think of it as anything more than a statistic — until and unless it brushes close or strikes home. It is hard to see how we can accept the fact that more people have been killed on our highways than in our wars; that more people die of such accidents than in all the murders in all of our cities."

"The students of highway safety tell us that three factors combine to cause these tragedies on the highways: speed, alcohol and incompetence."

The whole tragic thing boils down to the person himself — the man behind the wheel, to each person who drives a car. We have a moral responsibility to ask ourselves whether we are fit and able to drive the most deadly instrument available to the average person — the automobile.

Not many of us would shove a surgeon away from the operating table and volunteer our services. "That would be murder," we say, and it would be. Yet we go out and drive on the highway, assuming our competence to safeguard our own life and that of others — and many of us thus share in murder.

Dr. Bosley suggests that in addition to the legal efforts to promote safety on the highways, those in religious institutions should launch an effort to create a sense of moral responsibility for pedestrians, riders in other cars and ourselves as well.

Axiomatic? Too simple to help, you say? It may be. But this is obvious: until and unless we take some such step we shall have a tough time convincing skeptics of the sacredness of human life and the meaning of moral responsibility.

printing it, no matter what Mr. Nixon's representatives said.

"There are things in this budget," a spokesman for Life said, "that only Mr. Nixon would know. Every page of it was initialed 'RMN' and our handwriting experts insist that the writing corresponds to the President's."

Mr. Nixon's representatives say the whole thing is ridiculous. They insist that Mr. Nixon hasn't left Key Biscayne for six months and whomever Shultz talked to was not the President of the United States.

To further substantiate the charges that the budget was a forgery, Mr. Nixon's public relations people set up a telephone press conference call from the President's hide-out in Key Biscayne to seven reporters in Washington who had known Mr. Nixon personally.

Mr. Nixon in the press conference said, "This must go down in history as the greatest yarn of all time."

"Anyone who is familiar with me knows that I would never ask for a $25.5 billion deficit. I also would never, in

Strength For Today

LIFE IS A STRUGGLE

The word "secular" means anything pertaining to the worldly or temporal as distinguished from the spiritual or eternal. The word "sacred" means dedicated, set apart, devoted exclusively to things that are elevating and ennobling.

The lives of all of us are partly secular and partly sacred. If we throw ourselves with abandon into the secular it is not long before our life and conduct begin a gradual (sometimes precipitant) decline. In every human being impulses both of good and of evil are at work on his nature, conduct, ideals. Sometimes the sacred aspects of life seem to be winning out and everything—as the saying goes—comes up roses. Then there are times when life appears to be taking a nose dive into everything that spells evil. We come to the end of one day and as we get ready for bed we shake our heads sadly and know that the secular had the upper hand that day. There are times when we can settle down to rest with the realization that the best aspects of our nature were exercised that day and deepened. But whether we like it or not, life is a struggle and in no area greater than the constant struggle between good and evil.

The last statement of the Lord's Prayer is "Lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil." We are asking the Lord to go easy on us and not let struggle between secular and sacred get out of hand.

Labor's Pendulum May Swing

By ELMER ROESSNER

There are some faint signs that the pendulum is about to swing the other way in labor-management relations.

Since the turn of the century, labor has been gaining in its relations with management. The big leap forward came in 1947 when Congress passed the Taft-Hartley Act over the veto of President Truman.

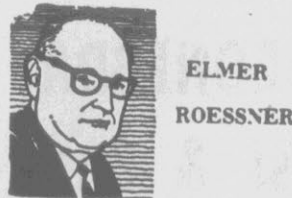

Since then Congress, the courts, the administrations and the states have been increasing the rights and prerogatives of labor. The pendulum has swung far to labor's side. Ten days ago Irving Bluestone, director of General Motors Department of the United Auto Workers, told the Conference Board, "New challenges are in the making as workers question authorization managerial prerogatives and seek more meaningful ways and means to participate in the decision-making progress...Industrial democracy...is essentially the extension of workers rights and responsibility in the management of his work and in the decisions of the enterprise."

At about the same time, on a new high-speed auto assembly line, young workers stood still, without turning the required bolts and performing other tasks, as cars moved by them.

But there are signs that management is determined to push the pendulum the other way.

Walter J. Campbell, editor of Industrial Week, predicted that collective bargaining would give way to productivity bargaining. "Instead of two antagonistic parties sitting at a table at which labor makes outrageous economic demands and industry grudgingly gives as little as possible, we will tend toward bargaining to raise productivity and to make America more competitive in the world market," he wrote.

The unbiased Conference Board, in its Record magazine, published an article in which Irston R. Barnes, former Columbia business professor and now economic consultant, declared that profits of greater productivity should be used to lower prices instead of increasing wage rates.

J.D. Hodgson, Secretary of Labor—a position that has traditionally supported labor's point of view—said of collective bargaining: "There are increasing situations in which it DOES produce serious negative effects, some situations in which it does hamper the economy." He cited the West Coast dock strike in which "in two months alone, last July and August, we lost an estimated 1200 million in exports, and there is danger that some of our export markets may have been lost forever. Losses to West Coast and Midwest farmers were severe — perhaps about $1 million a day to farmers in Washington and California alone in the form of lost wheat and other grain...The name of the game tomorrow will be productivity bargaining."

The Pay Board approved a 10 per cent raise for railroad members of the United Transportation Workers, provided the union carries out provisions easing restrictive work rules.

The International Union of Electrical Workers has agreed to a pay cut of 25 cents in Frigidair operations at Dayton. And a scattering of other unions have agreed to lower wages to save their jobs.

State Dept. Says 12 New Elements In Peace Plan

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is telling U.S. diplomats around the world that President Nixon's Vietnam peace plan includes 12 "important new elements."

This account of the Nixon offer, cabled to all U.S. diplomatic posts abroad for use in explaining the plan, contrasts with Hanoi's portrayal broadcast over the weekend.

"The so-called 'generous offer' of Nixon on Jan. 25 is no novelty, but only part of the old U.S. scheme," said North Vietnam's official Communist party newspaper, Nan Dan, in a long commentary entitled "Nixon talks peace in order to continue war."

"It only repeats the previous proposals which have been rejected," the Hanoi analysis said.

The Viet Cong was quoted Monday as saying the peace offer is "an extremely perfidious maneuver aimed at soothing public opinions of the United States and the world" Pe-king's official news agency said Communist forces "will step up the fight."

Nixon strategists declined to rate the denunciations as a rejection of the proposals. U.S. officials suggested China is mainly trying to show support for her North Vietnamese ally, and they continued to profess some encouragement from the lack of a flat Hanoi turnaround when the Nixon offer was presented at Paris Thursday.

The State Department cable pulls together ingredients from last week's statements by Nixon and presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger on the eight-point U.S. plan, saying the offer is flexible and negotiable and "a serious effort to bring peace to Indochina."

Kissinger pictured as main new elements in Nixon's plan the offers to pull U.S. and allied forces out of South Vietnam within six months provided there is a cease-fire and prisoner release, and to hold new South Vietnamese elections with President Nguyen Van Thieu stepping down a month before the vote.

The cable to U.S. envoys overseas says Thieu's agreement to resign a month ahead of the elections marks "a significant amplification" of his 1969 offer of new elections in which the Viet Cong could participate. It said his public announcement of this last Tuesday is in itself important.

The cable lists these 12 points as important new elements in Nixon's package:

Classmates Buy Van For Friend

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Doug Jackson's Independence High School classmates have seen to it that he won't have to hitchhike any more to the after-school job which helps his widowed mother.

Fifteen of his fellow seniors chipped in money their own part-time salaries and bought him a 1961 Goliath bus-van. They cleaned, painted and tuned it up, and presented to him Sunday.

The boys have been buddies since junior high school, and Doug was the only one in their group without some kind of transportation. He works at a car wash afternoons and weekends, and turns his pay check over to his mother.

POWs. The appeal of those amendments is mounting with the approach of the November election. Now, Republican leaders have informed Mr. Nixon they feel confident that end-the-war resolutions can be modified to conform with the President's eight-point plan, which would enable Mr. Nixon to sign them into law.

Whether the President has correctly judged the American political temperament on these points remains to be seen, but a spot-check of shrewd political opinion across the country indicates the short-term answer is yes.

The first real test will come if, as Mr. Nixon suspects, the North Vietnamese mount what he is privately calling "a big offensive" in the next two or three weeks and the U.S. counters with new and heavy attacks from the air. In that event, Mr. Nixon now has a prepared political position to fall back to: his new peace plan.

"1. Readiness to set a fixed date for total withdrawal of all U.S.-allied forces.

"2. Six months' period for this fixed date as part of an over-all agreement or as part of a military settlement only.

"3. Our withdrawals would be unilateral in a settlement of military issues alone (cease-fire and prisoner release).

"4. Our withdrawals would take place before the withdrawals of other outside forces in an over-all settlement.

"5. A new presidential election in South Vietnam within six months of an agreement.

"6. An independent election body, including the NLF (the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front), would completely organize and run this election starting on the date of the agreement and for the entire six months' period until the election.

"7. President Thieu and the vice president, (Tran Van) Huong, would resign one month before the election and a caretaker government headed by the chairman of the Senate would take over, except for election responsibilities.

"8. All U.S. and allied forces would be out before the election.

"9. The United States is willing to accept limitations on military and economic assistance to South Vietnam if North Vietnam will accept limitations on aid from its allies.

"10. South Vietnam is willing to adopt the nonalignment provisions of the 1954 Geneva accords.

"11. The cease-fire would be part of the final agreement and need not be immediate.

Buchwald . . .

my wildest dreams, predict a national debt of $493 billion, which is an increase of $37.4 billion over 1970."

The reporters who spoke to Mr. Nixon by phone all agreed it was his voice and voiceprint tests verified that it was Mr. Nixon speaking.

But Shultz stuck to his story that this was indeed President Nixon's budget and said his only guess as why it was being denied now was that the President didn't want to be held responsible for it.

Adding to the mystery was the endorsements on the McGraw-Hill and Life checks for the rights to the story. The checks had been signed on the back R.M. Nixon and had been deposited in a Swiss bank.

The Swiss bank revealed that a blonde woman with a German accent had opened an account in the name of Rhoda Mildred Nixon.

She had deposited the checks and then had withdrawn the money two weeks later.

No one knows who the woman is. Shultz' wife is not a blonde nor does she speak with a German accent, but there are other people in the White House who do.

There are three theories making the rounds of Washington concerning the publication of the budget. Theory 1: The President agreed with George Shultz to write the budget message, but then his advisers got frightened and they decided to deny it. Theory 2: The budget is a hoax cooked up by the Democrats to defeat Mr. Nixon in 1972. Theory 3: Henry Kissinger made a secret trip to Geneva and bought a dress and a blonde wig at the airport.

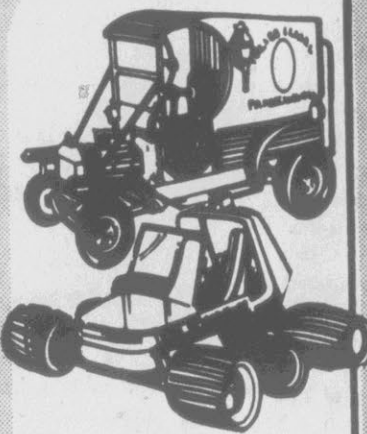

"12. The United States is prepared to undertake a massive reconstruction program in Indochina of several billions dollars, in which North Vietnam could share."

"Our proposal calls for an involvement," the State Department cable says.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets are steady to .75 cents lower today. Tops of 26.50-27.00 Rocky Mount; 26.00-27.00 Wilson; 25.75-26.75 Tarboro; 25.50-26.50 Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Newton Grove, Albertain, Lumberton; 25.75-26.25 Bethel; 25.00-26.00 Siler City, Denton; 25.00 Salisbury

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—On the North Carolina hen market today, prices were generally steady on heavy types. Supplies were fully adequate for a fair buying interest. Too few sources reporting to release prices on light types. Heavies, at farm, 14 to 15 cents per pound, mostly 14; FOB plants 16 to 16½.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices pulled ahead in early trading today, then backed off before noon as buying and selling were active.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 1.20 to 905.18 at 11:30 a.m. It had been off .22 at 11 a.m.

Advances were well ahead of declines in the early going on the New York Stock Exchange, but their pace slackened.

The early gains were a continuation of a strong rally of last Thursday and Friday, but traders said Friday's undercurrent of profit taking was renewed today in both the blue-chip and glamour issues.

Big Board prices included Pan American World Airways, off ½ to 14½; General Foods, up ½ to 31½; American Telephone, off ¼ to 45½; General Motors, up ½ to 81½; and Kennecott, up ½ to 25.

Officers Charge Booze Violation

FARMVILLE — Pitt County ABC officers and sheriff's deputies Saturday night charged Charlie Jones, 59, of Route 2, Farmville with illegally possessing non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

Jones was charged after officers found a half-gallon of illegal whiskey following a search of his premises.

According to investigators, Jones allegedly attempted to dispose of the non-taxed booze by tossing it into a stove, but quick acting ABC enforcers retrieved the whiskey from the stove before it could be destroyed.

Jones was placed under a $200 bond for appearance at a District Court hearing February 8.

—If, No More Policy Changes

An Unraveling This Week In Southern Conf. Ranks

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

There could be some unraveling this week of the closely knit group at the top of the Southern Conference basketball standings

—if there isn't another policy change before the week is out. Because of a belated interpretation by conference officials that games played by Appalachian State's Mountaineers don't count in the conference standings after all, East Carolina's Pirates have moved into the lead at 5-2 with a 66-56 victory Saturday night over Virginia Military. Furman's defending champion Paladins, who had beaten Appalachian twice, and Davidson's Wildcats, who like East Carolina had whipped the Mountaineers once, are half a game back at 4-2.

This week's schedule has East Carolina at Davidson on Tuesday night and at Furman on Saturday night. In addition, The Citadel's Bulldogs—3-2 in league play—will be at Richmond Tuesday night and entertain Davidson in a regional televised game Saturday afternoon.

Everything tonight, however, is of the nonleague variety.

Furman, an 86-72 winner Saturday night over Brown, is at Jacksonville; William and Mary's Indians, beaten 87-65 by Virginia Tech, are at home against Cincinnati, and Appalachian, which lost to Lenoir Rhyne 87-74, goes to Western Carolina.

In Saturday's other action, Richmond's Spiders dropped an 89-80 regionally televised scrap to Cincinnati and Davidson whipped Wake Forest 80-66 but may have lost sophomore ace John Falconi for as much as three weeks because of an ankle injury.

Because Appalachian, although a provisional league member, will be allowed to play in the championship tournament, it had been assumed the Mountaineers' four league games would count in the standings. Then came a sudden decision they wouldn't count, after all.

What if Appalachian wins the tournament?

"It can't happen," said a conference official.

Reminded anything is possible in basketball, the question was repeated.

"It would be," he said finally, "embarrassing."

Appalachian's seeding in the tournament will be determined by a rating service—and there could be some red faces if the Mountaineers did indeed come out on top.

VMI, which has yet to win in seven league starts, had visions of an upset over East Carolina after taking a 32-31 lead in the first half on 54 per cent shooting accuracy. But the Keydets shot only 18.8 per cent after intermission, and a 10-point Pirate spree put them down for good.

Sophomore Nicky White scored 15 points and grabbed 14 rebounds and Al Faber had 12 retrieves as the Pirates outbounded VMI 53-34 and also finished with 50 per cent shooting accuracy to 30.6 for the Keydets.

VMI was led by David Lester with 14 points.

Davidson hit on 36 of 51 free throw attempts and put its game with Wake Forest out of reach by outscoring the Deacons 12-4 in the first three minutes of the second half. John Pecorak had 18 points for Davidson and Falconi had 13 before injuring his ankle.

Down by three points at intermission, Furman outscored Brown 36-18 in the next 14 minutes. Roy Simpson had 21 points and 14 rebounds and Russ Hunt 16 points for the Paladins.

Junior Allan Bristow broke open a close game at Virginia Tech with 12 straight points in 3½ minutes midway the second half as the Gobblers went on to whip William and Mary. Bristow finished with 36 points, Jeff Trammell with 12 for the Indians.

Richmond turned the ball over 35 times and at one stage of the second half was down by 30 points to Cincinnati, which got 22 points from Dave Johnson. Gus Collier led the Spiders with 16.

Appalachian coach Bob Light was ejected after four technical fouls at Lenoir Rhyne. Stan Davis had 15 points for the Mountaineers.

Felony Charged Cowboys' Star

DALLAS (AP) — Duane Thomas, the running back who let his ball-carrying speak for him as he led the Dallas Cowboys to the National Football League championship, was up against a new adversary today.

Thomas, 24, and his younger brother Bertrand, 21, were arrested near Greenville, Tex. Sunday and charged with possession of marijuana, a felony.

Officers searching for a stolen automobile allegedly found two bags of marijuana in a car being driven by the Dallas star.

The pair was released on bond of $5,000 each, posted by a Greenville lawyer, Larry Green, after spending about six hours in custody.

Highway Patrolman Wendel Jeter and Deputy Sheriff Norman Gray arrested the Thomas brothers about 12 miles west of Greenville on Interstate 30 as they looked for a stolen car similar to the luxury model Thomas was driving.

While looking inside the car for its engine number, Gray said, he smelled marijuana smoke. Further search turned up two bags of the weed.

Olympic Ski Champion Is Disqualified

SAPPORO (AP) — Austrian ski officials were prepared today to appeal the disqualification of Karl Schranz, Austria's former world skiing champion, from the 1972 Winter Olympic Games.

"I can't believe it," said Dr. Karl Heinz Klee, president of the Austrian Ski Federation, after the 33-year-old Schranz was disqualified by the International Olympic Committee for allowing his name to be used for commercial reasons.

"We'll launch any appeals that are possible against this," added Klee.

French ski officials also were upset at the shocking ruling.

Maurice Martel, president of the French Ski Federation, called the decision "very deplorable" and demanded a meeting of his group to discuss the situation.

"I proposed in St. Moritz to both the Austrians and the Germans that we should withdraw our ski teams from the Sapporo Winter Games if only one of our skiers is disqualified," said Martel. "But they merely said it was a good idea and very laudable, but no decision was reached."

There have been reports that Schranz, who was preparing to compete in his fourth Olympics, was earning $40,000-$50,000 a year from his ski connections. The Austrian did not deny them, but he contended he was being punished for a crime of which all athletes are guilty.

"The Russians are subsidized by their own government and all international athletes get help from one source or another," he said.

"It's an emphasis on the wrong principle. I think the Olympics should be a contest of all sportsmen with no regard for color, race or wealth."

"If Mr. Brundage (IOC President Avery Brundage) were not a millionaire, he might have a different viewpoint."

The 84-year-old Brundage had threatened to take action against any Olympic competitors, primarily skiers, who had broken Olympic regulations by receiving payments from commercial firms.

BICH PICKS SKIPPER

NEW YORK (AP) — Bruno Bich of New York has announced that his father, Baron Marcel Bich of France, has chosen Paul Elvstrom of Copenhagen as the skipper of a new aluminum 12-meter yacht being designed by Andrew Mauric for the 1974 America's Cup challenge.

Elvstrom has won four Olympic gold medals and 11 world championships. Baron Bich plans to ship his two 12-meter yachts, France and Constellation, to Copenhagen in the spring. Apparently, they will serve as trial horses for the new yacht.

HARNEY WINS SAN DIEGO OPEN — Gray haired veteran Paul Harney sinks a 5-foot birdie putt on the 72nd hole to win the Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament Sunday. This was

Paul Harney Isn't Tempted By Sudden Success At San Diego

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Will sudden success lure Paul Harney back to a full shot at the rich pro golf tour and its $7.5 million in purses up for grabs this year?

"No," said the smiling gray-haired 42-year-old veteran who collected $30,000 for his victory in the Andy Williams-San Diego

Open Sunday.

"I'm not tempted. I have no ambition to go back on the tour."

Harney, who birdied the final hole for a one-stroke victory over struggling young Hale Irwin, is a club pro in Sutton, Mass., and now plays only about 10 tournaments a year. He was on the tour on a full-time basis for almost a decade before taking the job at Pleasant Valley Golf Club.

Harney, who hadn't won since 1965, had a final-round 70 over the warm and sunny Torrey Pines Golf Club course and finished with a 13-under-par total of 275.

Irwin, 26, appeared to have the tournament in his pocket when he made the turn three strokes in front. But he played the back nine in 39—including a disastrous three-putt bogey on the 15th—and slipped to a par 72 and 276. He won $17,100.

"He deserved to win it more than I did," Irwin said of Harney.

Veteran Gardner Dickinson had a 68, despite three putts on the final green, for third at 277. Australian Bruce Crampton was alone in fourth with a 72 for 278. Miller Barber, winner of last week's Tucson Open, Canadian George Knudson, Dave Eichelberger and Bert Yancey followed at 279.

Jack Nicklaus, who had won five of six starts going into this one, was well back at 285, tied with Takashi Murakami, the crewcut little Japanese golfer who had a share of the lead at the end of 36 holes. Lee Trevino took a final 74 for 292, beating only eight players.

Harney, dubbed "the Silver Fox" by his competitors, was playing about two holes in front of Irwin and appeared to be out of it when they finished nine holes.

But Irwin bogeyed two of the next three holes and dropped

How Stengel Broke A Hitless String

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

One of Johnny Vander Meer's best stories involves Casey Stengel, when that master baseball psychologist was managing the Boston Braves in 1938, the year Vandy gained lasting fame by pitching successive no-hit games.

Vander Meer, a sophomore southpaw that year with the Cincinnati Reds, had no-hit Stengel's Braves in Cincinnati on June 11, 1938, beating them 3-0 in a day game. Four days later, in Brooklyn's first night game, Vander Meer beat the Dodgers 6-0, to get his double no-hitter.

"My next start was in Boston," says Vander Meer who was 23 then and pitching with three days rest. "Casey Stengel normally coached at third base in those days and after I had turned in three more hitless innings to run the streak to 21 innings, Casey made a switch in his coaching. When the Braves batted in the last of the fourth inning, Casey decided he would coach at first base."

"Stengel timed his departure from the third base dugout perfectly. He waited until I got up from the bench on the first base side, and just as I got to the mound, Casey came bounding across the field on the way to first base.

"When he got near the mound, Casey slowed his pace and lowered his head so nobody would notice he was talking."

"John," Casey said, "we are not trying to beat you; we're just trying to get a base hit."

"He got me to thinking about the hitless string. I got the first two men in the fourth but the third batter, Deb Garms, singled and that ended the string. Casey had psyched me."

The fact that Vander Meer pitched 21 and two-thirds consecutive innings of hitless ball still is a major league record.

Riker Top Gun For Gamecocks

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Here come South Carolina's Gamecocks, loaded as usual. And the big shot is a tommy gun.

Displaying typical, fast-breaking firepower, Frank McGuire's 11th-ranked basketball team clouted No. 19 Northern Illinois 83-72 Saturday night behind Tom Riker's 34-point blast.

"It was another great night for Riker," said McGuire.

It certainly was. Riker, who scored 42 points to help South Carolina whip Fordham in New York last Thursday, made 15 of his 22 field goal attempts against Northern Illinois.

The blazing shot-making gives him 34 of 43 in the last two games, a little better than 80 per cent from the field.

While McGuire boosted his top gun he also awarded team superlatives.

"This is the second tremendous victory on the road trip," exulted McGuire. "The Fordham win was great, but this one was better."

"Northern Illinois is a tremendous basketball club. They used every defense in the book and hurt us with their press in the second half. They also had the home crowd advantage."

South Carolina earned its victory before a noisy crowd of 16,000 at Chicago Stadium in the first game of a double-header. Marquette, the nation's second-ranked club, defeated Loyola of Chicago 69-67 in the second game.

Snead Picks Up Seniors Tourney

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Sam Snead picked up $4,000 and his fifth PGA Seniors Golf Tournament Sunday when he shot a final-round 71 for a 72-hole total of 286 and a one-stroke victory over Julius Boros and Tommy Bolt.

The 59-year-old Slammin' Sammy trailed by three at the beginning of the round, but it was all tied up when Snead, Bolt and Boros reached the 18th green.

Boros, 51, and Bolt, 53, bogied the par 4 hole, but Snead reached the green in two, rolled a 40-foot putt to within 18 inches of the pin and dropped the fourth shot for par and victory.

Boros, the defending champion, and Bolt, who won the event in 1970, earned $2,500 each for their second-place tie.

Coaches Condemn ABA Draft Policy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The nation's college basketball coaches voiced strong opposition Sunday to the announcement that the American Basketball Association would open its draft to undergraduates this year. ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph neither confirmed nor denied the report about the draft, but word leaked out at the league's weekend meetings in Louisville. It was learned that the ABA would allow each team to pick one underclassman—regardless of class—when the league conducts the first five rounds of its telephonic draft Feb. 21.

Adolph Rupp, the University of Kentucky's long-time coach said, "I'm naturally disappointed, as I always have been, because I fought to prevent interference of pro basketball raiding amateur sports. Pro basketball has ruined many college teams—including ours—and I naturally have to resent bitterly the intrusion of the pros into the amateur ranks."

"Last year," continued Rupp, "the Atlanta Hawks (of the National Basketball Association) raided the University of Kentucky team of Tom Payne and killed our chances, perhaps, of winning the Southeastern Conference and the NCAA. He isn't doing them any good and he certainly could have helped us."

When Rupp was president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, he said he met with the presidents of both pro leagues, and "I thought I had a tacit understanding that they would not interfere in the future ... Apparently that was not their understanding. I think if this thing continues something drastic is bound to happen."

"I'm against it 100 per cent," said Coach Denny Crum of the University of Louisville. "I don't believe it's in the best interests of either the college or the professional program. It simply is not good. It makes the ABA look bad—greedy."

"I just think that the pros had best leave the college players alone," said West Virginia's Sonny Moran. "A lot of the do-gooders will say that some college players have to make the best of their college careers, but the NFL and other pro sports have built fine teams without having to draft underclassmen."

Memphis State's Gene Bartow said, "I don't think there's any college coach in the country who isn't going to say this is a blow to collegiate athletics. It is going to hurt our basketball program if they start dipping in, but I can't see what we can do." "I hate to see them start this," said Georgia Tech's John "Whack" Hyder. "It's always bad for a team to lose an undergraduate player for any reason. You count on them for the next year and you plan on them, and then, all of a sudden, they're gone."

"It's a shame to take an undergraduate," said Don Devoe of Virginia Tech. "However, if he's good enough to be drafted, I wouldn't stand in his way."

Chamberlain Is Getting Revenge On Bill Russell

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain is still getting revenge on Bill Russell.

When Chamberlain broke into the National Basketball Association in 1959, he was recognized as the greatest scorer the league had ever seen but was regularly slighted in comparison with Russell, the bel-lower of Boston's NBA dynasty.

Russell was hailed as the master shot-blocker, rebounder, and team leader, while Wilt pointed to his superior statistics in vain.

Sunday night Chamberlain, now an elder statesman in the NBA at 33, broke Russell's career rebounding record of 12,721 while the Los Angeles Lakers were pounding the Portland Trail Blazers 153-131.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee edged Baltimore 116-112, Boston whipped Philadelphia 130-114, Chicago downed Detroit 109-99, Phoenix shaded Atlanta 105-103 and Buffalo nipped Cleveland 99-98.

It didn't end the controversy over who was the better player but Chamberlain said it was a mark he would cherish.

"I'm proud because it shows consistency and durability," said the Lakers' 7-foot-1 center and captain. "It means as much to me as my scoring records."

He broke the record in his 932nd game—it took Russell 963—and went on to collect 24 rebounds, 27 points and praise from both coaches.

"Wilt was awesome," said the Trail Blazers' Roland Todd. "When he plays like this nobody can beat the Lakers."

"I just don't think any center in pro basketball can play better than Wilt is right now," said Lakers Coach Bill Sharman, a Celtic teammate of Russell.

They gave Chamberlain an inscribed backboard and hoop to add to his trophy case, along with mementos of a 50.4 scoring average in 1961-62, a 48.3 career minutes-played average, counting overtime, for the same season, and the honors he will receive soon for becoming the first NBA player to score 30,000 points.

The Lakers reached another record Sunday by breaking the team mark for field goals with 67. Gail Goodrich and Jerry West led with 29 and 28 points, and West added 14 assists. Reserves Stan McKenzie and Larry Steele led the Blazers with 22 and 21 points.

Milwaukee wiped out a 13-point halftime deficit and turned back Baltimore on Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's uncontested layup in the final minute following a court-length pass from Toby Kimball. Jon McGlocklin's two free throws in the final second sealed it up. Jabbar paced the Bucks with 39 points while Archie Clark had 24 for Baltimore.

Dave Cowens and John Havlicek combined for 25 of Boston's 41 points in the third period as the Celtics broke open a tight game and routed Philadelphia. Havlicek and Cowens led the Celts with 33 and 27 points, respectively, while Philadelphia's Billy Cunningham took game honors with 41.

Chicago outscored Detroit 24-5 over a nine-minute stretch of the third quarter and handed the Pistons their fifth consecutive setback and 11th loss this month, a team record. Chet Walker led the Bulls with 29 points and Detroit's Bob Lanier had 24.

Phoenix blew most of a 21-point lead before holding off Atlanta as Connie Hawkins, Clem Haskins and Neal Walk all scored 21 points. Walt Bellamy of the Hawks had 27 and Lou Hudson added 23.

Buffalo overtook Cleveland on Walt Hazzard's 15-foot shot with five seconds left. The winning basket gave Hazzard a game high 26 points. Austin Carr topped the Cavaliers with 23.

Saturday's scores: Boston 124, Detroit 112; New York 110, Seattle 106; Golden State 111, Phoenix 100; Cincinnati 120, Cleveland 118.

Only One Book Of All Seasons

Bravo to the superb educational TV program outlined by Ella Harlie! Its 13 sessions would delight Sir Walter Scott, greatest English novelist. As he lay dying, he requested "the Book." An attendant asked, "Which book?" Note Scott's stern reply!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D. M.D.

Case S-578: Ella Harlie is the talented president of the Educational Communication Association (ECA).

"Dr. Crane," she began "could you serve as Moderator for the 7th television program on 'The Bible as Literature'?"

"We are offering a 13-week series aimed at High School English Teachers.

"This series is to serve as background for an impartial discussion of the Bible and will probably tie-in with colleges for credit there.

"The television stations are furnishing us the time and we shall have several Bible experts on the panel that you are to moderate.

"Your Session No. 7 will cover 'The Transmission of the Bible' and will be scrutinized by academicians across the country.

"It should cover the linguistic and historical origins of the Bible and the various translations down through the centuries.

"Such discoveries as the Dead Sea Scrolls would also be relevant.

"So could you please be our Moderator for Session No. 7 on TV?"

God Sponsored America In the famous Declaration of Independence our prophetic Founding Fathers said:

"We are endowed by our Creator with certain inalienable rights, to wit, Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

So our wonderful Republic is rooted directly in the fact that a Deity is the original source of our freedoms!

Benjamin Franklin also informed his colleague at the time of the writing of our remarkable CONSTITUTION that they should invoke the guidance of Deity in their deliberations.

That resulted in what brilliant Prime Minister Gladstone of England later called:

"The greatest document ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man!"

Our U.S. CONSTITUTION thus rates next to the Bible as the most unique literary product ever evolved on this planet Earth.

Gladstone's remark exempts the Bible since it was not written at a given time but was the accumulation of many centuries of divine revelations via the prophets.

Sir Walter Scott, author of "Ivanhoe" and dozens of other famous books, is the greatest English novelist.

As he lay dying, he said: "Bring me the Book!"

His attendant wondered which of his many novels he wanted, so he asked:

"Sir, which book?"

"There is only ONE BOOK," sternly replied Sir Walter Scott. "That is the Bible!"

If we use Christ's yardstick, "By their fruits ye shall judge them," then contrast the fruits of the Bible with any or all other volumes:

It has changed the lives of more people than all other books.

It has produced thousands of colleges and universities.

It has been the basis for most of the great music and art of the world.

It has led to the erection of probably 95 percent of all hospitals and Nursing Schools.

It has sprouted the Red Cross, YMCA, and YWCA, Boy Scouts and other leading moral organizations.

So send for my booklet "How to Stimulate Bible Reading," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Cavalryman Recalls Era

IVYDALE, W.Va. (AP) —

There is one big difference between Clay County's former cavalry Sgt. Benjamin Franklin White and Gen. George Armstrong Custer.

White's outfit won its historic encounter with the Indians.

It was 1906 when White guided his horse down a rugged mountain path in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Heavy fog swelled from the ground as he and 400 other cavalry troops began the journey to the plains in an effort to quell one of the last Indian uprisings in the United States.

The U.S. 6th Cavalry Regiment had been called to do a job that had proved too much for the 10th. The Utes, dissatisfied with their reservation in Utah, broke away; 3,000 strong, they cut a path northeast into the low lands of South Dakota.

White, now an 87-year-old retired school teacher in Clay county, vividly recalls those events and how the 6th followed the Utes for a month before catching them at a gorge on the Cheyenne River in South Dakota.

"They holed up there and had a counsel of war," he remem-

Editorial Backs New Snowfall

BANGOR, Maine (AP) —

Just to give you an idea of the kind of winter it's been, Maine's largest daily newspaper has come out editorially for snow.

"Not a blizzard, mind you, bared." "We were ready to fight too, but they sent a party out to talk."

The talks went on for 10 days, White said, before the Utes reluctantly agreed to follow the 6th back to Fort Meade, S.D.

Although White taught school in Clay and Roane counties for 30 years, served as a justice of the peace in both counties and also farmed most of his life, his fondest memories are of the 6th and the "last Indian uprising."

His most prized possessions are his discharge papers which confirm that he served with honor during that campaign.

cover for balding ski slopes and fields where snowmobile trails have been made," read the editorial in Friday's editions of the Bangor Daily News.

After last winter's record snowfall, the weather this season been a complete reversal.

In many areas, the ground has been bare, and few Mainers can recall a winter of such mild temperatures and scant snowfall.

The News quoted its sports editor, Owen Osborne, as suggesting, "A snow dance is in order." And quoting an updated version of a childhood ditty, it continued:

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠106 ♥93 ♦952 ♣107654

Partner opens with two no trump. What is your response?

A.—Strictly speaking, you have not the required four points to justify a raise, but a bid of three no trump is a good gamble in that there is a reasonable chance of bringing in the club suit.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQJ105 ♥Q52 ♦109 ♣A102

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East

1 ♣ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

1 ♠ Pass 4 ♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—An ace showing bid of five clubs is recommended. When partner makes a first round slam try, as in this case, and then supports your suit, anything at all above a minimum justifies the taking of further action. You haven't much above a minimum but the fact that your hand contains two controls is sufficient reason for giving partner one more chance.

Q. 3—You are South vulnerable with 60 part score and you hold:

♠A7 ♥AJ7 ♦KQ8643 ♣107

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1 ♣ Pass 2 ♦ 2 ♥

1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—The recommended procedure is a cue bid of four hearts, to be followed by a bid of six spades on the next round. Partner has opened the bidding and jumped over the game, where a free bid itself would have indicated a strong hand. Since you have better than an opening bid and important key cards, the slam should be a cinch. However, in case a grand slam should be available, it may be necessary for you to show control of the adverse suit.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A72 ♥AQ84 ♦943 ♣A2

What is your opening bid?

A.—One no trump. This hand contains 17 points in high cards, has three suits protected, and is of balanced distribution. An opening bid of one heart is not the best tactics, for it leaves you with no convenient rebid if partner responds with one spade. An opening one no trump bid avoids this difficulty.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠643 ♥A4 ♦A965 ♣KJ53

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass ?

What is your bid?

A.—It is to be hoped that you were not naive enough to show one of your own suits. In this sequence partner is under no obligation to proceed, and you might find it uncomfortable to be left in a contract of three clubs or three diamonds. The proper procedure is to raise to three hearts, or, with a rather timid partner, four hearts.

Q. 6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠5 ♥AQJ72 ♦83 ♣KQ1064

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. This hand is worth only 15 points and is not strong enough to show a new suit at the level of three.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠92 ♥AQ954 ♦942 ♣943

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ 1 NT Pass ?

What is your bid?

A.—Partner's one no trump overall should be treated as though it were an opening bid of one no trump. Inasmuch as you have a balanced hand with only six p-nts, no action by you is indicated. Do not complicate matters with a bid of two hearts.

Q. 8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK95 ♥A73 ♦Q3 ♣AK102

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♣ Pass 1 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two no trump, showing a balanced hand with 19 or 20 points in high cards. The major suit is supported because there is no spade bid that suits the situation. A rebid of one spade is inadequate, and a rebid of two spades would be just a shade too aggressive inasmuch as it would be forcing to game even if partner had made a shaded diamond response. Partner should be permitted the option to pass if his hand has less than 6 points in high cards.

'No-Fault' Divorce Seen

BOSTON (AP) — Probate Court Judge Edmund A. Keville has proposed a "no-fault" system for divorces under which couples could end their marriages without attributing fault to either party.

"The reasons that are given in court as the causes of the end of a marriage are not in fact the real causes of divorce, which are much more subtle and some times indescribable by the parties themselves," Keville told a meeting of the Massachusetts Bar Association.

Keville proposed that, to get a divorce, couples should file an agreement with the court and then live apart for a year. After that, the divorce would be granted.

Labor is a big cost factor in tobacco production. According to time studies that have been made relative to tobacco production, 247 hours of labor are required to produce an acre of tobacco from seed to marketplace. Harvest operations alone require 150 hours of labor which is about 60 percent of the total.

Many growers are considering the feasibility of mechanizing, at least a part of their harvesting operation in an effort to reduce labor. Each grower should evaluate conventional barns, availability and cost of labor, available capital, etc. and determine how far he should go toward mechanizing his harvesting operation.

Research personnel at N.C. State University have made time studies with different size of allotments, curing systems, and harvesting equipment to determine which method or combination of methods provided the least expensive harvesting operations. The conventional curing systems were less expensive than the bulk curing systems. These studies were made on different size farms.

The use of a tractor drawn priming aid and conventional curing system proved to be the least expensive for the small farm (5.28 acres) and the average farm (9.27 acres). On the medium farm (15.86 acres), the automatic tying machine and conventional curing was the most economical. The self-propelled priming aid and conventional curing proved to be the most economical method for the large farm (32.20 acres).

Another test was conducted comparing the cost of harvesting tobacco using three different methods of harvesting and curing. These studies were made for two different size of operation — 17.7 and 35.4 acres of tobacco. The annual per acre cost would be $43.38 less for conventional barns that are now constructed than for conventional barns to be constructed. The figures given here will be for both conventional and bulk barns to be constructed.

The annual per acre cost for harvesting and curing for the 17.7 acre crop was: (1) Hand primed and sewing machine with conventional barn — $345.27. (2) Hand primed and barn racked with bulk barns — $328.85. (3) Machine primed and barn racked with bulk barn — $438.77. For the 35.4 acre crop, the costs were (1) Hand primed and sewing machine with conventional barn — $332.93. (2) Hand primed and barn racked with bulk barns — $327.06. (3) Machine primed and barn racked with bulk barns — $356.46.

We will be glad to discuss the tobacco mechanization alternatives with you and help you analyze your individual situation.

No Drought Before 1990

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — A United Nations weather expert has made a prediction that was great news for the 30 million inhabitants of northeast Brazil: there won't be another drought in this region before 1990.

Luiz Aldaz of the U.N. World Meteorological Organization announced the forecast recently at a seminar on droughts and floods sponsored by the Brazilian government.

Droughts are the curse of Brazil's poverty-stricken northeast. They hit irregularly, driving the hundreds of thousands of peasants from their lands in search of work and food. The last big drought was in 1970.

Farmers, in an area as big as Italy, Spain and Portugal combined, depend on unpredictable rains for their livelihoods. In all of northeast Brazil, only a 30-mile stretch along the Atlantic coast gets regular rainfall. This area is used almost exclusively for planting sugar cane, the northeast's economic mainstay.

According to Aldaz, there will be below-average rainfall in the northeast from 1971-1980. But rainfall will gradually increase during the following decade, reaching a high point around 1986, he predicted.

Based on these forecasts and existing weather records in Brazil, there should not be a serious drought in the northeast before 1990, Aldaz said.

Before 1970, the last major northeast drought was in 1958.

Plan Academic System Overhaul

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The College Park Senate has approved the first major overhaul of the academic system at the University of Maryland in 50 years.

Under the plan proposed by Chancellor Charles E. Bishop, 10 schools and colleges, 56 departments and numerous boards and institutes would be regrouped into five broad divisions.

Disgruntled Women To Seek More Political Gains

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Tar Heel women who aren't satisfied with the way men have been running the state will be working to wrest a bigger share of the power in this political year.

The core of the movement gathered in Durham Saturday, some 800 strong, to map their strategy. They included Junior Leaguers, housewives, professional women and students, blacks and whites, Republicans and Democrats from all 11 congressional districts.

Their goal was proclaimed on buttons pinned on their chests—“Make policy, not coffee.”

The message repeated throughout the session was that women make up a majority of the electorate and can have things any way they want them if they will get together.

The occasion was the formative meeting of the North Carolina Women's Political Caucus, supported by groups ranging from the National Welfare Rights Organization and the AFL-CIO to the League of Women Voters and the Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Midge Miller, a member of the Wisconsin General Assembly, told the group women represent 53 per cent of the electorate and it's time for them to stop electing middle-aged white men to run the nation.

The role of women, she said, is not just to seek a share of CANDIDATES FACE WOMEN — Six gubernatorial candidates appear before the N.C. Women's Political Caucus Saturday to answer questions. They the “old corrupt political pie,” but to “bake a whole new pie.” She said women are no more saintly than men, but being new to the political arena they have more idealism and on't owe all the “I.O.U.'s” to special interests which male politicians do.

Mrs. Miller urged women to work for an end to sexism, racism, militarism and poverty.

Martha C. McKay, temporary chairman of the caucus, expressed enthusiasm Sunday over the turnout and said the next step will be the formation of local caucus units to organize women down to the party precinct level.

Mrs. McKay said local caucuses already have been formed in Mecklenburg, Pitt, Guilford and Buncombe counties and core groups have been formed in Winston-Salem and Raleigh.

Much of Saturday's session was spent mapping plans to get women into half the delegate slots for the national conventions of both political parties this summer.

Jane Patterson, president of the Democratic Women of Guilford County, was optimistic about the chances for success.

“We're working together with the party. We're not waiting any longer. It's different than it was two years ago,” she said.

In 1968, before the state Democratic party was reorganized, only six of the national delegates were women. This year, buoyed by new party regulations which guarantee them proportional representation, women want 32 of the 64 seats.

And to make sure they get them, the women were briefed Saturday on what kind of records they need to keep from the precinct level on up in case they have to challenge the makeup of the delegation.

Determination also was evident as the women questioned six gubernatorial candidates on women's issues and as female candidates discussed their upcoming campaigns.

Mrs. Margaret Harper, state vice chairman of the Democratic party who plans to announce soon as a candidate for lieutenant governor, said this year will be different than when she ran for the same post in 1968.

“Four years ago I didn't know if people would just laugh at a woman running for lieutenant governor,” she said. “But they didn't.” She said she spent only $10,000 in 1968, most of it her own money, and got 23 per cent of the primary vote.

This year she has already spent $63,000 for a campaign manager, public relations firm and advertising and she hasn't even formally announced yet, she said.

“Women in the past haven't contributed to campaigns the way men have,” she said. “But 85 per cent of the money in North Carolina is controlled by women.”

She said political success will take money and women must be willing to give it.

“With billboards, with television, with these other things money can buy, you can't stop a woman,” she said.

During the caucus workshops a number of women announced they were running for offices on bodies ranging from school boards and city councils to the legislature.

They said a big problem in the past has been that women did not have confidence in other women and support them.

But Mrs. McKay said, “Women are feeling who they are and looking at other women differently now.”

The women asked pointed questions of six male gubernatorial candidates who appeared at the meeting. They were Democrats Zeb Vance Kitchin Dickson, Dr. Reginald Hawkins, Hugh Morton and Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor and Republicans Jim Holshouser and T. F. Willard.

All the candidates but Dickson said if elected they would name at least one woman to their staffs, name women to top state jobs, issue executive orders calling for equal pay for equal work in state jobs and support in principle an equal rights amendment for women.

Only, Hawkins, who is black, strongly supported the idea that women should hold 50 per cent of the jobs on state boards and commissions. He said such quotas are unpopular but they are the quickest way to make up for past inequities.

Mrs. Harper told a workshop after the candidates' presentations that the real test is not what the candidates say but whether they can be believed. “Find out what he's been doing for 20 years, not what he's said since he announced,” she said.

She said she is running because “I'm awfully tired of having people saying they're going to do something for women and then forgetting it when they're elected. A woman in high office can hold them to it.”

“A lot of men have been trying to talk me out of running,” she added. “Believe you me, they're scared of women running because they know if we ever get together we can elect everything.”

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Two wild and weedy ancestors of modern-day crop plants are playing a vital role in man's ability to satisfy his galloping need for food and fiber.

These plants are supplying scientists a rich reservoir of sources of disease and insect resistance, quality factors and other plant improvers that are not available in any other form.

The scientists, through painstaking selection and breeding, have come up with improved crop varieties that are as modern as an interplanetary transit system in comparison to their plant predecessors.

A number of popular tobacco varieties, for example, have resistance to the costly black shank disease. This resistance came from a wild plant that is related to tobacco but bears scant resemblance.

North Carolina cotton growers are planting a variety named TH-149 that has a fiber strength superior to anything they have ever grown before. It was developed largely at North Carolina State University where Dr. Joshua A. Lee and his fellow plant breeders used germplasm from a puny plant from the Arizona mountains called Thurber's Wild Cotton.

Currently, Dr. Lee is attempting to breed into a domestic cotton tolerance to the destructive bollworm that apparently is carried by a wild cotton found on Socorro Island off the west coast of Mexico.

The process is slow and tedious, Dr. Lee explains, using his work with the Socorro Island cotton as an example.

After an intensive program of crossing and selection in the greenhouse, a population was planted in the field. One plant out of 6,000 was selected as being resistant and having some of the properties of modern upland cotton.

The process of developing the TH-149 variety required 20 years.

The fickle nature of the exotic plants adds to the research time. The wild cottons tend to be prima donnas. They refuse to cooperate with the research scientist unless conditions are made just right.

For example, they have to have short days during the flowering season or they will not flower at all. Thus, they cannot be grown in the field during the summer months. In winter, they have to be grown in greenhouses.

But it is these difficult wild plants that have given man his essential crops, poor producers though they were at the start.

“From what we now know about the plants,” said Dr. Lee, “our ancestors of several thousands of years ago must have been discouraged at the prospects of growing their food and fiber instead of stalking it with a club and spear.”

For example, an entire ear of wild corn produced no more actual grain by weight than one large seed of modern maize.

A boll of wild cotton, such as Dr. Lee is using in his bollworm resistance research, is only about one-eighth the size of the fruit of modern cotton. The lint on seeds of wild cotton is not only sparse but grey or brown in color rather than white.

Plant breeders, both ancient and modern, have brought crop plants a long way from their humble beginnings. And the scientists continue to tap these plants in the wild form for their sources of toughness—a characteristic that has allowed them to survive the intense struggle in the wild.
