WARM GREETING IN COLD SNOW — Nurse Susan Conway of the Allegheny Valley Hospital at Natrona Heights, near Tarentum, Pa., dots the "I" in a huge "Smile" message which was tramped out in the snow in front of the hospital. The message was spelled out by Joanne, 13, and Donna Kashlak, 20, daughters of A. J. Kashlak, a patient in the hospital. Light snow covered the tracks of the two girls as they went from one letter to another. (AP Wirephoto)

Immediate Resignation Of Thieu Sought By VC

By DAVID MASON
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — The Viet

Cong demanded today that President Nguyen Van Thieu resign immediately as the first step toward formation of a coalition government for South Vietnam including the Communists.

The Viet Cong also told the Paris peace talks that the United States should set a "specific terminal date" for withdrawal of all its "troops, advisers, military personnel, weapons and war materials" from South Vietnam.

"Nguyen Van Thieu must resign immediately," the Viet Cong declared, "the Saigon administration must end its warlike policy, disband at once its machine of oppression and constraint against the people, stop its 'pacification' policy, disband the concentration camps, set free those persons arrested on political grounds and guarantee to the people the democratic liberties as provided for by the 1954 Geneva Agreement on Vietnam."

Once that was accomplished, the statement continued, the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government would negotiate with the Saigon government for formation of a coalition regime that would hold elections for a constitutional assembly.

The demands were made in what the Viet Cong called an elaboration of their seven-point peace plan presented last July 1. The new Viet Cong statement had been outlined in a broadcast by the Viet Cong's Liberation Radio heard in Saigon on Wednesday and reported in detail then.

The only new demand is that Thieu resign immediately. Previously the Viet Cong called for the United States to withdraw its support from the South Vietnamese president.

Sources in Saigon reported, meanwhile, that Le Duc Tho, Hanoi's chief peace negotiator, will be in Peking when President Nixon is there, raising the prospect that he and presidential adviser Henry Kissinger will resume their talks on the various peace proposals in the Chinese capital.

The Saigon sources, quoting diplomats in Laos, said Tho plans to stop in Peking on Feb. 20 on his way back to Paris from Hanoi.

Protest By Britain Over Embassy Fire

DUBLIN (AP) — Britain delivered a formal protest and demanded compensation from the Irish today for the burning of its embassy in Dublin. Gangs of youths roamed the streets during the night singing in celebration of the fire-bomb destruction of the building.

Sir John Peck, Britain's ambassador, told newsmen British-Irish relations are "at a low ebb—the lowest they have been for a long time." Peck made the formal British protest to Prime Minister Jack Lynch.

The Irish government apologized informally Wednesday night and assured the British compensation would be forthcoming.

Lynch summoned the Irish parliament—the Dail—into a two-day session to probe the slaying of 13 men and youths on "Bloody Sunday" in Londonderry, a flashpoint in Northern Ireland. It was this that set off the attack on the embassy.

A mob estimated at 30,000 burned out the Embassy Wednesday in retaliation for the killing last Sunday of 13 civilians in a clash with British troops in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city.

The outnumbered police made no attempt to restrain the mob as it hurled salvos of gasoline bombs and burned symbolic coffins straddled by effigies of British Prime Minister Edward Heath.

After seeing the Embassy gutted, one group moved on to storm the nearby British Passport Office. But there the police broke up the attack with a baton charge.

A firebomb attack had been made on the Embassy Tuesday, and the 30 members of the staff had evacuated the building and removed all secret and valuable documents before the attack Wednesday.

The Irish government apologized, accepted responsibility for the damage and offered to pay full compensation.

In Northern Ireland, officials called on the Civil Rights Association to cancel a parade scheduled Sunday in Newry and avert the possibility of a repetition of the bloodshed last Sunday. But a member of the association told newsmen, "Next Sunday's march is definitely and irrevocably on," in defiance of a ban on all such demonstrations. The government warned that British troops would break up the march.

One man was killed Wednesday night and five others were seriously injured when a bomb blew up a tavern in Stewartstown, 30 miles west of Belfast. Police said the bomb was placed in front of the saloon, and the people inside were given no warning to get out. A spokesman blamed the blast on the Irish Republican Army, fighting a guerrilla war to oust the British and reunite the province with the republic.

The man was the 235th person killed in the communal strife that has gripped Ulster since August 1969.

British troops came under sniper fire and an attack by nail bombs in Belfast after midnight. A military spokesman said the soldiers returned the fire "and a gunman was seen to fall."

The British Defense Ministry touched off new Catholic protests with the announcement that a second battalion of paratroops will be assigned to Northern Ireland later this month. It was the 1st Battalion of the Parachute Regiment that did the shooting in Londonderry last Sunday.

Strike Action Drags

By JOHN LENGEL

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite presidential pressure, the Democratic-controlled Congress seems unlikely to produce legislation ending the West Coast dock strike until next week.

The Senate and House are still at the hearing stage on the dock-strike bill President Nixon sent to Capitol Hill 12 days ago. He asked for action within a week.

In another message Wednesday, Nixon said the 117-day walkout has cost the nation $600 million in exports and "continues to impose a cruel and intolerable burden upon the American people."

Transportation Secretary John Volpe and Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz were to testify today before the Senate Labor Committee, which is considering the legislation.

Despite Nixon's plea for fast action, Democrats publicly place their faith in continued bargaining between shippers and striking dock workers.

"The parties are meeting," said Labor Committee Chairman Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J. "I do not quite share the feeling of impossibility of settlement."

But Republicans clamored for action.

"My state is a sitting duck for this strike," said Sen. Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii. He said unemployment is up to 12 percent on the island.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said, "We should act. It seems clear now that in the absence of congressional action the parties are not going to settle."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said labor and management are against the bill, which would impose binding arbitration on their talks. Representatives of both sides are scheduled to express their feelings at hearings Friday.

Says ABA Has No Authority

NEW ORLEANS, La., (AP)

— The president of the American Bar Association says the ABA has no authority to question the way the American Trial Lawyers Association is campaigning against no-fault insurance proposals.

Leon Jaworski said Wednesday that he had written to Virginia Knauer, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, responding to her criticism of the ATLA action.

Flu Mortality Rate Said Above Expected Level

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The mortality rate because of influenza is above the expected level throughout the nation for the fourth straight week of the current flu epidemic, the Center for Disease Control reported today.

Influenza or respiratory illnesses of some type now are occurring in all 50 states, according to Dr. James Sprague, chief of the influenza surveillance unit at the CDC.

"Although the disease is diffusely spread across the country, some states report that fewer people are effected and the disease appears to be milder than previous Hong Kong influenza epidemics," Sprague said. "However, other reporting areas do note high attack rates and severe clinical illness."

Through Jan. 29, the CDC said 8,820 deaths attributed to influenza occurred in the 122 cities used to measure the rate of mortality. This was compared with an expected 7,890 deaths.

The 1968-69 epidemic of Hong Kong flu claimed 27,900 lives.

The CDC lists 21 states where outbreaks of A2 virus, or Hong Kong flu, are widespread. They are:

Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Missouri, North Dakota, Kansas, South Dakota, North Carolina, Delaware, Maryland, Florida, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Texas, Louisiana, Montana, New Mexico, Oregon, plus Puerto Rico, New York City and the District of Columbia.

Outbreaks are on the decline in Maine, Nebraska, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Colorado.

Regional outbreaks are occurring in Maine and Nebraska, where they had been widespread, and Pennsylvania, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Georgia, Alabama, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Idaho, California and Washington.

Isolated outbreaks are reported in Rhode Island, Connecticut and Colorado, where outbreaks had been regional, plus Vermont, New Jersey, Iowa, South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Utah, Wyoming, Arizona, Hawaii and Alaska.

Respiratory illnesses also have been reported in New Hampshire and Nevada.

Concern Expressed Over Health Care At ECU

The president of the Student Government Association (SGA) of East Carolina University has expressed concern over the current system of health care available to students at the university.

SGA President Thomas H. Clay, in a letter to Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of ECU, and in letters to members of the East Carolina Board of Trustees, calls the present set up for providing medical attention to the 10,000 students on campus inadequate.

In his January 30 letter to Dr. Jenkins, Clay made reference to a "recent, near-fatal incident involving an East Carolina student."

"In view of the past problems of a similar nature," Clay wrote the President, "I feel that it is imperative that something be done to improve the health care available to ECU students."

As recommendations to be considered, Clay listed three suggestions to improve the current service.

... "That some type of ambulance service for the infirmary be established;

... "That top priority be given to the construction of a new well-equipped infirmary; and

... "That a procedure be established for campus doctors and/or nurses to visit patients in the dormitories."

Clay says he does not question "the policy or requiring students to go through the infirmary for outside medical help." To this he added, "I do feel that since this is the policy, it is imperative that the infirmary be equipped to handle the problems it faces. This recent incident is a further indication that something needs to be done."

In letters to members of the Board of Trustees, Clay noted, "You are undoubtedly concerned about the welfare of the student body. I believe that my proposals will greatly improve the present system. I urge you to concern yourself with this problem and help us rectify the inadequacies."

New Rescue Truck For Winterville Is Delivered

NEW TRUCK . . . This new rescue truck was delivered to Winterville

WINTERVILLE — A new, custom built, rescue truck was delivered here Monday and is expected to be placed into operation March 1, according to Ashley Dail, captain of the Winterville Rescue Squad.

The new custom unit, built using a modified van-type truck body, cost about $13,000, complete with radio. Half the cost of the truck is being funded by the federal government while the remaining $6,500 is being raised locally.

According to Dail, in addition to smaller contributions, the Winterville Kiwanis Club has so far donated $2,000 for the truck and the local Ruritan Club $500.

Monday, and is expected to be placed in operation about March 1.

Dail noted that part of the proceeds from the annual Kiwanis Club auction sale to be held Friday, will also be used toward the purchase of the rescue truck.

The squad captain said that at present 18 local men have been certified to do rescue work. He said that during the next few weeks, hopefully at least 12 more men will be certified during a training program that will also train all local volunteer rescue men how to operate the new truck.

Claims Drugs Sold By Faculty Members

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—The University of South Carolina student newspaper has published a report that students are buying drugs from several members of the university's faculty.

According to a Wednesday article in The Gamecock, a teacher identified only as Mr. X said he is one of at least four instructors at the Columbia campus who offer illegal drugs for sale.

The Gamecock article reported that the teacher said about 10 students know of his selling, but only two other teachers are aware of it.

The instructor was quoted as saying one of the teachers "sells stuff like I do and the other knows because he's a friend of mine. But he doesn't sell."

The article also said the anonymous teacher said he sells only "uppers (amphetamines), grass (marijuana) and hashish" but he doesn't sell anything else because "it's too dangerous for both myself and the user."

Altogether, the teacher is quoted as saying that he knows of three teachers who sell or have sold to students and one of them works in his department.

Mr. X said the reason teachers can get away with selling drugs is because "we are probably some of the most trusted members of society, for we speak of truth and nothing less. Or so the gods say."

He is quoted as saying "They (the USC administration) haven't the faintest idea that professors have anything to do with drugs."

"They're too concerned about the medical school thing, which is sort of funny because the medical school could become a primary source for smuggling drugs to the public. That is, if the right people get to work there," he said.

The article said the unnamed teacher contends that he not only sells to several of his students but he also gives them better grades.

"Generally," he is reported as saying, "I give the people who buy from me and are in my class above a 'C' because I have found that drug users seem to be more intelligent than the average student because they are socially aware."

In a statement today, Thomas Jones, president of the university, said: "The practice described in The Gamecock is despicable. Despite the fact the activity involves just one of the more than 1,000 faculty and staff employees on this campus, one is entirely too many for this institution to tolerate. There is no place on this campus for such an individual."

"The university's policy regarding acts on campus which violate local, state or federal laws is quite clear and has been stated many times in the past. We cooperate completely with law enforcement agencies and we will continue to do so."

Enjoy Your Youthful Look

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: What is a 25-year-old woman to do when people keep coming to her door and ask, "Is your mother home?" This has happened to me so many times lately I want to scream.

I am a high school teacher, and at the beginning of the school year, a fellow teacher [whom I had not met yet] stopped me in the hall and asked if I had a "pass" to be out of class.

Abby, I try hard to dress and look my age, but no matter what I do, I still come off looking like a 17-year-old kid. Suggestions? PATTY IN TACOMA

DEAR PATTY: Yes. Relax and enjoy it! Most women complain because no sooner do their pimples clear up, when they start getting wrinkles.

DEAR ABBY: Mike [not his real name] and I were married for 26 years. I loved him so much and always made allowances for his inability to grow up. Most of the burden of raising our six children was left to me, and I had to work outside the home to supplement the college costs.

A year ago Mike left me to go with his girl friend. [She was 25. He was 53.]

I managed as best I could without him. I kept my pride and did not beg him to come home, altho I kept praying he would. [Foolish me!]

He called this morning. His girl friend has left him. He is heavily in debt. He wants to come "home." Everyone knows he left me for another woman.

I still love him, Abby. Would I be a fool to take him back? TIME TO THINK

DEAR TIME: If you still "love" him, you'd be a fool not to.

DEAR ABBY: When a husband or wife passes on, is it proper to continue to address his [or her] relatives as "in-laws"?

DEAR C. B.: Technically, if one no longer has a legal spouse, he no longer has in-laws. But kindness and consideration transcend technicalities, and if the remaining mate feels warmly toward his former in-laws, he will continue to address them as such, unless or until he acquires other in-laws.

DEAR ABBY: I took your advice, and when an acquaintance of mine insincerely said to me [for the 15th time!], "Why don't you come over SOMETIME?" I replied, "I would love to. How about Tuesday evening?"

She stammered and blushed, and said, "No, not Tuesday. That's my club night." I decided to teach her a good lesson, so I said, "Well, what night would be convenient for YOU?"

She looked at me like she couldn't believe what she was hearing, and said, "Why don't you let me telephone you, and we'll decide on a date then?"

When we parted, she was still mumbling. I don't expect to hear from her. But I'll bet I cured her of giving those insincere "why-don't-you-come-over-sometime" invitations. NERVY

Couple Exchanges Vows In Candlelight Ceremony Friday

BELL ARTHUR — The Bell Arthur Methodist Church was the scene of the candlelight ceremony of Miss Sheila Vandiford and Rycke Mills Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ralph Hill, pastor of the bride. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Alfred Murphy and Mrs. Earl Dickerson, soloist.

The church was decorated with altar vases holding white gladioli and mums, spiral candelabra and bridal palms with white ribbons and single candelabra framing the kneeling bench at either end.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Vandiford of Rt. 1, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Levie Mills of Rt. 3, Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of bridal satin with the bodice overlaid with lace. The gown featured long fitted sleeves ending in a ruffle. Tiny covered buttons were used down the back. The full length chapel train was highlighted with a veil of illusion attached to a beaded headpiece.

Her cascade bouquet was centered with a white mum corsage with streamers, miniature mums and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Connie Mazingo, sister of the bride, matron of honor. She wore a full length gown of lavender crepe with matching braid around the bodice and band of the long puffed sleeves ending in a ruffle. She wore a matching bow with long streamers as a headpiece and carried a single yellow mum with lavender and gold streamers.

Under Islam Divorce Is Male Privilege

By ALY MAHMOUD
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — In the Moslem world a wife may be divorced and not even know about it.

Under Islam, divorce is a male-vested privilege.

To legally get rid of his wife a Moslem husband is required only to face her and declaim: "I divorce thee, I divorce thee, I divorce thee."

And Moslem husbands can divorce their wives in absentia, merely by declaring this intention to a justice of the peace. The divorce takes effect immediately, but the wife may remain ignorant of her new status.

In Egypt and Syria Moslem women frequently have launched campaigns to curb what they call the "tyrannical right" of husbands to rid themselves of unwanted wives. So far they have failed to change the law.

In other Moslem countries, such as Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, women are rarely permitted to defend their "rights."

Polygamy, however, has ceased to be a problem in much of the Moslem world. Men with more than one wife amount to no more than two per cent of those married in Egypt, 5.5 per cent in Saudi Arabia.

The reason for the decline of polygamy is purely economic, according to Dr. Hassan Saati of Cairo University. Men no longer are able to support two, much less four, wives in the Arab world.

But divorce remains a deeply entrenched male prerogative, mainly because of rules laid down in the Koran, the Moslem Bible.

Religious interpreters of Egypt's prestigious Al-Azhar University strongly oppose any attempt by women to change the rules of marriage and divorce. Religious leaders in other Moslem countries insist Koranic rules of divorce are sacrosanct.

At one time women in Egypt, Syria and Tunisia demanded divorce be granted only by law courts and only with the wife's consent.

A draft law in Cairo would end the practice of men divorcing their wives in absentia. Before the divorce could be granted the couple would be advised to reconsider their decision and return within 30 days should they fail to reconcile their differences.

Sanford Isn't Hurting Himself

Terry Sanford for president?

The possibility seems a little more real now than it did a few months ago—at least as a favorite son candidate in North Carolina.

A news report Monday stated that a petition drive to put the former governor on the presidential primary ballot in the state has already collected the 10,000 signatures necessary.

Bill Blue, a law student at Chapel Hill who is heading the drive, said the circulation of petitions will continue until a total of 25,000 signatures has been collected.

Mr. Sanford, of course, is not really in the race as an announced candidate. On the other hand he has done nothing to discourage the circulation of the petitions and Blue says he plans to present the petitions to Sanford in late February and ask him

Substandard Housing Blight

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Substandard housing blights the North Carolina rural landscape.

The 1970 Census reported 22.3 per cent of the state's rural housing substandard. That's based on the absence of indoor plumbing, taken as a criteria of the overall quality of the dwelling.

Building more homes in the countryside that meet today's standards for convenience and pleasant family living is the only way to change the scenery. The means to do it is provided through loan programs of the Farmers Home Administration.

For the last fiscal year, FHA loans made possible 7,200 new houses in Tar Heel rural areas. The loans, made to families in the low-to-middle income range, totaled $92 million.

Only South Carolina among the states did better than that.

What is substandard in housing may be hard to judge, since one person prefers what another finds inconvenient. The subjective measure is "What you and I wouldn't want to have to live in," observed James Buchanan, chief of the housing loan division in the state FHA office.

Housing You'd Live In

By that yardstick, houses constructed with FHA loans come up to the mark.

The typical one is brick veneer construction, three bedrooms, with indoor plumbing and central heat, 1,081 square feet of heated living area, with an average cost to build of $13,193.

They're neat and liveable, a far cry in appearance from the cabin in the cornfield and for most occupants symbolic of a new lease on life.

At the present level of lending, the FHA program is having "a substantial impact" on upgrading rural housing, Buchanan said. "Until recent years, it was more or less minimal. We still don't close the entire gap," he added.

Available funds this year are about $90 million, roughly the same as the 1971 fiscal year. If President Nixon's proposed budget is approved, the amount will rise to $100 million for fiscal 1973.

Boost To Rural Economy

As well as more units of housing, the program is a significant stimulus to the rural economy. "They say every construction dollar turns over seven times," Buchanan noted. "That means $100 million would have tremendous benefits to rural areas."

Loans are available to rural families without a home, unable to secure financing through conventional sources, and with an adjusted annual income less than $8,000 with sufficient credit-worthiness to assume the loan obligations.

The definition of "rural" has been relaxed in recent years to embrace communities of not more than 10,000 population which are not closely tied to an urban area.

Interest credit assistance is available based on family income, which can mean as little as one per cent interest on the loan.

Motivation Key Factor

Motivation is a key factor. For many of those eligible, owning a home always has been an impossible dream. They have to know the dream can become reality, and be encouraged to take the steps to make it so.

The federal-state extension service is a force for improved rural housing. John Collins, extension specialist in community development, is chairman of a State Task Force on Rural Housing. It is participating in a series of regional workshops during February conducted by the N.C. Rural Development Committee.

Prompted by Gov. Bob Scott, the state's electric membership corporations also have exerted efforts for better rural housing. Over 20 electric membership corporations throughout the state have assisted the FHA through publicity for the loan program setting up meetings with builders and contractors, and helping to package loans.

Through its 73 county offices, the FHA is enlisting the cooperation of the private sector in securing qualified loan applications. "We are interested in working with developments in putting together application," Buchanan explained.

The FHA administers a variety of loan programs. In addition to single family dwellings, it can make loans for rental housing in rural areas and assist in financing rural subdivisions.

for a decision on his candidacy.

Terry Sanford on the ballot as a Democratic candidate for president could mean that the state's electoral vote might go to him and thus would be withheld from any of the other Democratic candidates who might decide to run in this state, at least on the first roll call. This just might place Mr. Sanford, now president of Duke University, in a position to become the party's nominee for vice president.

The former governor has a good image in national Democratic party circles as a southern moderate during his years as governor and now as president of one of the nation's great private universities.

He has been mentioned in the past as possible vice presidential candidate for the Democratic party and he could prove attractive this year to whoever gets Democratic presidential nomination as a running mate.

It is going to be interesting to watch future developments in the efforts to place Terry Sanford's name on the North Carolina ballot as a Democratic presidential nominee.

That No. 1 License Is The One That Counts

Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Holshouser is a bright and confident young man of the party.

He has entered the race for governor wholeheartedly, including the purchase of a personalized license plate bearing the inscription: "GOV 72."

Now all Mr. Holshouser has to do is figure out how to exchange the "GOV 72" license plate for the big number "1", which the governor limousine sports. That is the one that really counts.

Temptation Of The Governor

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — North Carolinians are well aware of Gov. Bob Scott's never-ending fight to keep his weight down, but few people know about the temptations the Governor has to face day-to-day.

The most pleasant person in this political city is Miss Daisy Pearce. She's the Governor's hostess and head housekeeper and she plans the meals around the Mansion.

"The Governor loves his food," Miss Pearce bubbles. "He's so easy to cook for. He doesn't pick at his food. He enjoys it."

Gov. Scott weighs in at about 245 pounds. He once told me: "It's hard to lose weight when Miss Pearce is always slipping me something to eat that I can't resist."

What is Gov. Scott's favorite dish?

"He's just crazy about fried chicken," Miss Pearce said. "He also likes boiled and marinated shrimp. He dearly loves seafood...fish, fresh crabmeat on lettuce. Most of his foods we do boil because of the weight problem."

But Miss Pearce, the Governor tells me you tempt him with cakes and sweets.

"Well, coconut and German chocolate cake are two of his favorites and we do bake those right often. We'll have this real hot coconut cake and the Governor will say no and I'll cut it and then the minute he sees it all resistance is gone. He eats it and thoroughly enjoys it."

Is the Governor bad to eat between meals?

"Yes. He's gonna kill me for telling this. We sort of have a snack plate for him. We try to keep things that aren't too fattening, like beef hot dogs, cauliflower in vinegar, things like that. But sometimes he doesn't stop at that, if he sees something else. When he comes in from a trip or something he goes back just to look and then if he spots something he likes he'll eat it. He loves peanuts, and hot bread and chicken legs and whatever is around."

Miss Pearce, who also did the meal-planning for Gov. Dan Moore, says Mrs. Scott and the children are also easy to cook for.

"It's a wonderful family to cook for," Miss Pearce said. Gov. Scott had a group of people in for a black tie dinner the other night. The main course was possum. How was the old boy prepared?

"The possum was picked rather than skinned," Miss Pearce says. "We put it in the steamer for about 45 minutes. This tenderized it. Then we rubbed it down with salt, black pepper, garlic and many of the things that enhance the flavor of something wild."

"It was then spread out flat and run into the oven on a rack. We turned it and brushed it with barbecue sauce made of vinegar, red pepper, garlic...all the things."

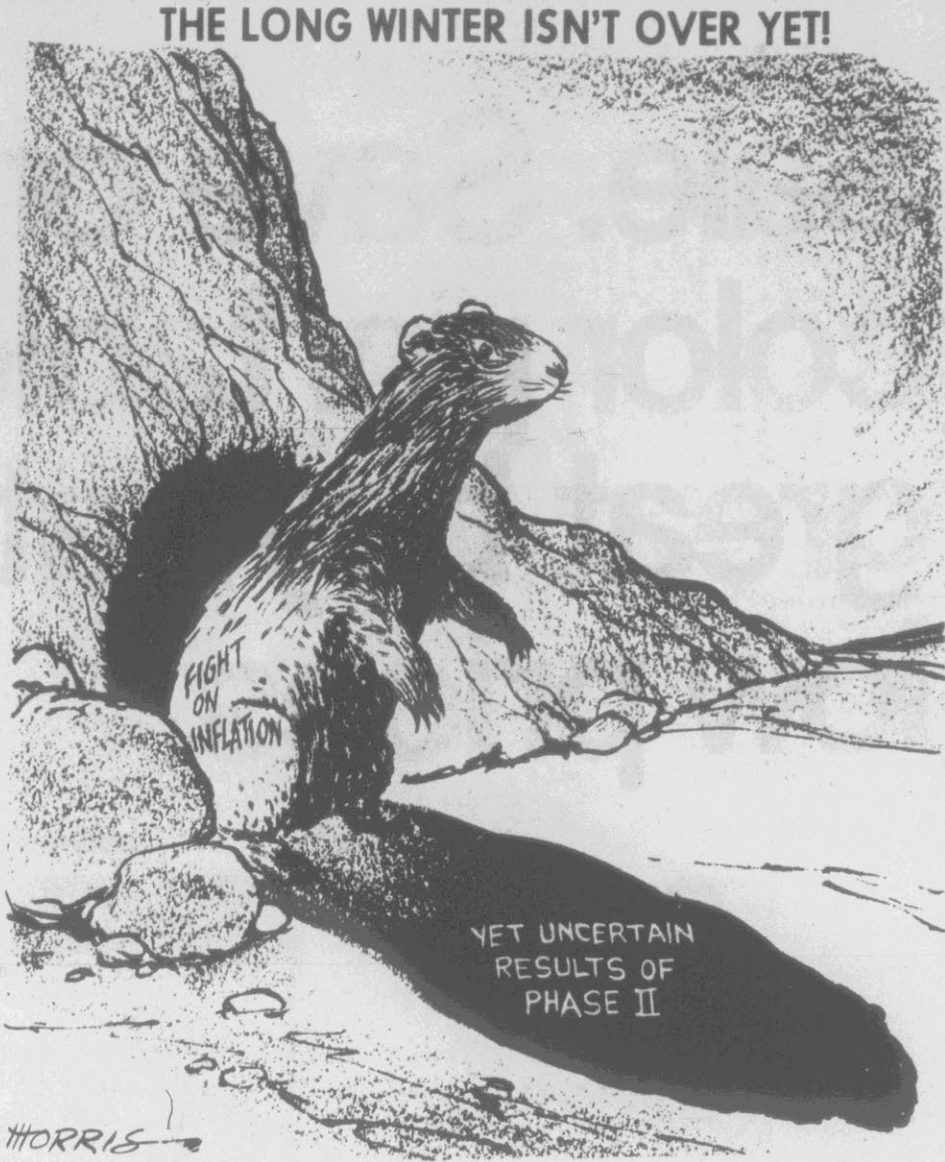

"It came out golden brown and smells great. It looks delicious."

It has been said that most people who turn up at a possum supper, even at the Governor's Mansion, pass it rather than help themselves.

"They ate it," Miss Pearce said, "because when the plates came back the possum was all gone. The Governor said it was great. He really likes it."

You can easily see that you too would have a weight problem is Miss Pearce were doing the cooking at your house.

As a matter of fact, I think I'll try the possum, Miss Pearce. But heavy on the barbecue sauce, please.

Tough Advice To Take

The office of the U.S. Surgeon General last month published its sixth annual report on smoking and health, and this week a Senate subcommittee, following up on the latest finding, will undertake further hearings on matters of concern to smokers and non-smokers alike.

The picture is hardly encouraging. In the view of the Surgeon General, cigarette smoking "continues to be a major health problem in the United States today." Cigarette smokers have higher death rates from coronary heart disease than non-smokers. They have higher death rates from pulmonary emphysema and chronic bronchitis. Cigarette smoking "is the major cause of lung cancer in men and a significant cause of lung cancer in women."

This is not all. "There is increasing evidence to support the view that women who smoke during pregnancy have a significantly greater risk of unsuccessful pregnancy than those who do not." Some studies have demonstrated "a significant association between cigarette

Other Editors Say Scott, The Man

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Governor Bob Scott is under fire from a Raleigh newspaper about the alleged failure to report a "low bag" full of money contributed to his campaign back in 1968.

Attorney General Robert Morgan says that even if there had been violations of the Corrupt Practices Act that long ago, then it would be too late now to begin prosecution of such misdemeanors.

In reports of its commendable but fruitless attempts to find out what happened to the sack of money, the News and Observer depicts the governor as being evasive and even hostile.

It quoted a handwritten note from the governor in which Mr. Scott is purported to have suggested that the editor of the N and O "go to hell."

We suspect the governor's reaction is not an effort to cover up any conscious wrong-doing on his part.

In all probability, the governor simply is blowing up at any suggestion of personal dishonesty.

We doubt that he or any other candidate for state-wide office kept his own books during the campaign. And it might be understandable that his campaign financial managers failed to identify certain funds as having come from a tow sack handed him in Macon County.

Perhaps it would have been more diplomatic had the governor responded to the newsmen with: "I don't know; I'll try to find out..."

We have always found the man pretty straightforward. But in this case, the governor probably felt his honesty and integrity were being impugned.

His reaction was that of Bob Scott the man rather than Bob Scott the governor.

We have seen the same Bob Scott surface in the past. It is a streak we remember surfacing in his late father.

The folks who have come down from Haw River to the State Capitol in recent years have been pretty strong people. They play the game of politics hard.

But cheating and stealing haven't been part of their repertoire.

If something was amiss in his campaign financial report, Bob Scott wasn't aware of it.

That doesn't necessarily absolve him of all blame. But it helps one understand why, when his honesty is challenged, he might be inclined to tell somebody to go to hell.

Double Talk Lesson

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no better way to kill a long winter than to spend the time polishing up your double talk.

Then, when spring finally comes, you'll emerge as the most interesting hypocrite in town. But if you let your double-talk vocabulary languish through lack of exercise, you'll be in trouble.

You'll inadvertently start saying in public what you really mean instead of what you want people to think you mean, and thereby blow your reputation as a conversationalist sky high. You'll become a social liability instead of a social asset. It makes people uncomfortable to hear the truth spoken out loud. The truth is to be written only in books. That's because it is easier and more legal to burn a book than it is to shut up a speaker. One requires only a match; the other, a fist.

Double talk is simply the truth turned inside out—You say one thing that is socially acceptable while thinking something else that is truer but socially unacceptable.

Here are a few typical examples of double talk. What the person said is in quotes, followed in each case by what he actually thought.

"That project you suggested is doing fine. We've got it in the final planning stage."—Gee, it's a lucky thing I bumped into this guy. I had forgotten all about his idea.

"Glad you'll be able to come, Jack. The party wouldn't be the same without you."—However, it would be more civilized.

"Nevertheless we wish to assure you that your patronage is

Arrangements for the big Salvation Army campaign were completed yesterday and the workers have been supplied with the cards for their districts. Today and tomorrow will be big days for them for fifty women will canvas residential sections and it is hoped that all will respond to the cause.

The essay contest sponsored by J.J. White closed February 1st and it was announced today that Mrs. C. H. McGlohon won first place honors and a pressure cooker. All home demonstration women and girls were eligible and the subject given was "Why I Should Use a Canning Budget." During the past year much work has been done with reference to the planning of meals, daily food essentials and how to have them available at all times. The canning budget offers the best solution for winter months.

Now playing at the State Theatre this week is "Kiki" starring Mary Pickford.

HARSHNESS NEVER PAYS

Just a hundred years ago Charles Dickens was the idol of the English reading world. One successful book after another had appeared until it seemed that his literary fame was indeed established.

But he made a trip to America, and when he returned to England he wrote "American Notes" and "Martin Chuzzlewit," both highly critical of America. Here he met his first great setback. The Americans had bought his books by the tens of thousands, and Dickens' only word for them was one of scorn and criticism. Even the English did not like his attitude. They felt that there was something essentially the matter with the spirit of a man who sees in a country and its people nothing but boasting, coarseness and stupidity.

The quickest way to get ourselves unpopular is by manifesting a constant spirit of criticism. Even the people who agree with our conclusions come at least to dislike our spirit that they cast in their lot with our enemies and join them in reviling us. The time comes when people hate the critic more than they do the things he criticizes, no matter how favorable they may have been toward his opinions in the beginning. Even Dickens, the idol of millions and up to that time the most popular novelist that ever lived, found that when he turned from stroking humanity and began to rub the fur the wrong way, everybody turned against him.

Humanity never thrives on harsh words.

One of the best hopes of reducing unemployment this year lies in increased spending for arms. Paradoxically, as we wind down the war in Vietnam, we are planning to bring Defense spending up to the World War II peak.

For the coming fiscal year, starting July 1, President Nixon has asked Congress for $83.4 billion (b) dollars, a rise of $6.4 billion (b) over the current fiscal year. That means jobs, jobs, jobs.

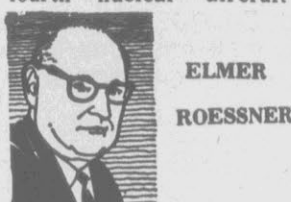

Of the Defense spending, 4.1 billion (b) will be for higher pay. That means spending, spending, spending.

Other job-making expenditures include:

- $942.2 million (m) for an undersea long-range missile system (ULMS) which will eventually lead to a submarine that can fire a nuclear warhead 6,000 miles at $1 billion (b) a shot.

- $951 million (m) for a fourth nuclear aircraft carrier, which doesn't include planes and escorts.

- $1.2 billion (b) increase for research and development of new weapons to $8.8 billion (b). Spending for the Vietnam war is budgeted at $7.1 billion (b), compared with $11.5 billion (b) in the current fiscal year.
- $3.6 billion (b) for naval ships, up $600 million (m) from the current year. This includes funds for seven big destroyers, six high-speed nuclear attack submarines, two missile-carrying hydrofoil patrol boats, the first of a new class of escort ships, preliminary work on a new pocket-size aircraft carrier, a submarine tender, two rescue and salvage ships, a destroyer tender, and modernization of six Polaris submarines to handle the improved Poseidon missiles.

- Several billion dollars more is being sought for various unfinished and projected planes for the Air Force including $141.2 billion (m) for the flying strategic command plane, $734.8 million (m) for additional work on F14A fighter, $910.5 more for the F15 fighter, $207.6 billion (m) more for the C5A cargo jet, $165.3 million (m) more for the F-111 warplane, $246.4 million

(m) for the PC3 anti-submarine plane, $133.1 million (m) for Harrier vertical take-off jets and $53 million for continued development of the Cheyenne helicopter.

There are no limits, of course. In a request for supplemental money to the 1972 budget, the President has asked $254.8 million (m) for four flying command posts and $141 million (m) for other projects, a missile that could be fired from a submarine to a surface ship.

The toughness embodied in these requests is in a large part due to Russian reluctance to discussing limiting submarines in the current SALT talks. If the Russians become more conciliatory, the Administration may agree to cut back some of the sub and antisub projects.

Denounce Muskie Dismissal Of Viet Peace Plan

Bitter Fight Over Serving A Customer

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two filling station operators fought with club and pistol Wednesday, apparently in the mistaken belief that one had taken a customer from the other.

James Alton Painter, 34, operator of the first station into which the truck driver-customer had pulled, was shot twice in the chest and once in an arm.

Capt. Mike Courain of the Iredell County Sheriff's Department said the other station operator, James Parsons, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill resulting in serious injury. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Courain said the truck driver, Eugene Long, 52, of Neodesha, Kan., was told he was at the wrong pump and would have to move to another.

Long related that rather than shift his moving van, he decided to drive on to another station. About two blocks away, he said, he rolled into the station run by Painter.

Courain quoted Long as saying Painter then came riding into Parsons' station in his pickup truck and the two men had words. He related that Painter then went to his truck and Parsons went into the station office, Painter returning with a club and Parsons with a pistol.

The truck driver could not say who hit first or shot first, Courain said, but Painter was rushed to a Statesville hospital with bullet wounds. Parsons was treated at another hospital for an abrasion, and released.

Courain said a statement was taken from the truck driver, who then was permitted to continue on to Atlanta.

critically. Yet the institute is performing an excellent and needed service in challenging the statistics, the completeness, and the objectivity of these annual reports.

The institute contends, quite correctly, that the bulk of the case against cigarettes rests upon statistical correlations that match smokers and non-smokers with certified causes of death. How good are the figures? The institute calls attention to a study published last September of 1,000 consecutive autopsies at Doctors Hospital in New York. Sixty-one autopsies were undertaken on cases that had been diagnosed as lung cancer. But in nearly 56 percent of the cases, "the diagnosis was incorrect." What, then, of the validity of death certificates?

Another study, undertaken in the Boston area, accidentally turned up a striking picture of cancer of the bladder in women who smoke and also drink coffee. Is coffee an overlooked villain? Curiously, the institute notes, neither of these studies is even mentioned in the Surgeon General's report.

Both the work and the criticism have to go on. Moss's subcommittee will be looking at a bill to limit tar and nicotine levels and the approach may have great promise. One of these days, a scientist may isolate the disease-producing agent and find a way to suppress it. Meanwhile, few persons would question the best advice to those who are hooked on the dirty habit: If you can, quit. It's tough advice to take.

Led by the White House, five Republicans have joined in denouncing Sen. Edmund S. Muskie for a campaign speech dismissing President Nixon's Indochina peace terms as proven failures.

And Nixon's campaign organization, the Committee for Re-Election of the President, said its only interpretation of Muskie's "change of heart is that he is appealing blatantly for votes from the left wing of his party."

Four Republican senators and House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford issued statements accusing the Democratic presidential candidate of trying to improve his political status at the expense of Nixon's efforts to end the war.

"This is the worst kind of gutter politics," said Sen. William E. Brock III of Tennessee.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Muskie's remarks "were not worthy of comment," then called it regrettable and unfortunate that some public figures chose to reject the Nixon terms "before Hanoi has."

"Now is not the time for partisanship to be put above the cause of peace," said Ziegler.

The Republican counterattack drew more attention than the original speech, in which Muskie told 150 churchwomen Wednesday that the United States should set a date for total military withdrawal from Indochina, with release of U.S. prisoners and safety of the troops the only condition.

He said Nixon "did not offer to exchange our presence in Vietnam for the freedom of our prisoners. Instead, he laid down additional conditions, a general settlement of all outstanding issues, or a cease-fire in all of Indochina."

Brock said he found it incredible that Muskie, whom he called an instrument of war policy during the Johnson administration, "would have the nerve to stand before the American people and denounce the one President who has been able to get us out of the Vietnam quagmire . . ."

Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr. of Maryland said: "The American people's memory is good enough to remember Sen. Muskie's role in our tragic involvement in the war in Southeast Asia."

Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the Republican national chairman, said the speech indicated that Muskie "lacks the wisdom, the maturity and the sense of responsibility needed to guide this nation during the 1970s . . ."

Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., said it was incredible that Muskie "for the most blatant partisan purposes, would try to undermine" Nixon's program for peace in South Vietnam.

Republican sources said the congressional reaction statements were orchestrated by White House officials.

Senate and House Democrats, meanwhile, were preparing for a party fund-raising dinner in Washington tonight, hoping it would produce $750,000 for their 1972 congressional campaign.

In other campaign developments:

McGOVERN—Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, campaigning in New Hampshire, called for an overhaul of the Social Security system, including a 20-per-cent across-the-board increase in benefits and elimination of outside earnings restrictions.

McGovern also reported he spent $4,380 on his campaign for presidential support among precinct delegates elected in Arizona, and his political coordinator asked other contenders to file accounts of their spending, state-by-state.

McGovern finished third in the Arizona delegate elections, behind Muskie and John V. Lindsay.

LINDSAY—The New York mayor told newsmen he doesn't feel he is doing badly in the national running. "Nothing is locked up until the voter's voice is heard," Lindsay said on the eve of his departure today for campaign stops in Massachusetts and Florida.

HARTKE—Indiana Sen. Vance Hartke said in New Hampshire that despite President Nixon's pledge not to ask for higher taxes, "he's caused high unemployment and he's caused inflation, and so now he's going to ask for a tax increase."

YORTY—Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, also in New Hampshire to campaign for the Democratic nomination, said the Nixon economic recovery plan is "a temporary pain reliever for the ailing American economy suffering from his faulty diagnosis and mistaken prescriptions."

JACKSON—Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., campaigning in Florida, said he is "absolutely opposed" to amnesty for draft dodgers who fled the country to avoid service. Amnesty, he said, would be difficult to explain to anyone who lost a relative in Vietnam.

HUMPHREY—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who filed for Ohio's May 2 presidential primary Wednesday, headed for Charleston, W.Va., to formally enter the May 9 primary there.

EDS: Following adv. for 12:10 p.m. EST

In a speech prepared for the West Virginia Legislature, Humphrey said the American tax system is unfair and unjust. "We must create a tax system that puts a halt to the relentless battle among special interests to see who pays the least," Humphrey said. "All American taxpayers are oppressed today because some Americans are not paying their fair share."

Doctor Developes Home Treatment that RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home-treatment that rinses away blackheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three boys.

The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough complexions became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers are now saying "this is one product that really works". . . and why mothers of teen-agers have endorsed its use.

The Masque-Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for clear healthy skins, but also for the self-confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!

Anyone Can Use It

If you suffer the agony of teen-age blackheads, acne-pimples and rough unsightly complexions, give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent, called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and foreign impurities.

As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean. . . really clean. . . refreshed, smooth like velvet!

Offer To Build Vocational School Led To Troubles

ONCE A MARTIAN RIVER? — This photograph of Mars, released Wednesday by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, shows a wandering valley as pictured from 1033 miles by Mariner 9. The valley, about 250 miles long and 3 to 3½ miles wide in this picture, resembles a watercut gully on earth. It raises the possibility, scientists said, of erosional episodes, or more abundant water in ancient Martian history. Not enough water is there now to allow formation of rivers. Note what appear to be branching tributaries. (AP Wirephoto)

RON DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
DUNLAP, Tenn. (AP) — What started out as a $3.5 million offer by two federal agencies to build a vocational school to serve two rural Tennessee counties has resulted in a teachers strike and the closing of public schools in Sequatchie County.

The offer, made in 1970 by the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Appalachian Regional Commission, was accepted by the county courts in Bledsoe and Sequatchie counties, but only after a bitter fight in the Sequatchie County Court.

Since, a new court in Sequatchie County was seated last fall and voted to withdraw from the project.

That decision led the 64 teachers in Sequatchie County to seek a special meeting with the county court. When the meeting was denied, they struck the school system Jan. 24, idling approximately 1,500 students in three elementary schools and one high school.

The students are still out, and face the prospect of classes long into summer vacation months to make up the lost time.

One of the chief complaints of the teachers is the loss of an average of $1,200 per year they had been receiving in supplemental pay from the federal agencies.

The school closing is unpopular with all of the parties involved. The teachers say they want to get back to work. The county court says it's up to the teachers to go back to work. And the students say they are caught in between.

A majority of the new, 19-member Sequatchie County Court voted last fall to withdraw from the vocational school project because the magistrates said they did not feel the county could afford the expense of keeping the school in operation after it was built and the initial federal support was ended.

The teachers, however, struck after the county court refused to call a special session to hear their arguments is the vor of the school. Heading the list of those arguments is the loss of the supplemental pay in a county where the starting salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree is $6,000 a year.

Meanwhile, TVA says it has no intention of participating further in the project. A TVA spokesman told The Associated Press Wednesday that "without a substantial dedication to the principles by the people of the area and their elected officials, the project cannot be successful."

"We are in favor of the project and would like to see it successfully completed," TVA said. "But until these matters are cleared up, we cannot participate financially."

At the same time that TVA announced it was withdrawing its financial support, word came from the Appalachian Regional Commission that it had reallocated to other uses funds originally intended for the vocational school.

While both federal agencies said they planned to pull out of the project, a chancery court judge in Winchester, Tenn., ruled that the Sequatchie County Court had no authority to rescind a contract entered into by its predecessor court.

The ruling last week by Chancellor L. Fricks Stewart was greeted with this remark by Sequatchie County Judge Jane Conway: "That's like locking the barn after the horse is stolen."

Proctor Upchurch, a lawyer who represented the Sequatchie Valley School Board of Administration in the lawsuit which led to Stewart's ruling, termed Mrs. Conway's response "most interesting the revealing."

"By me and many others," Upchurch said, "it could be interpreted as a confession, although I doubt if that was the intent."

Upchurch insists the project can be resumed if the Sequatchie County Court will reaffirm its approval.

Some of the students say they are getting impatient.

Darwin Boyd, a senior and president of the Student Council at Sequatchie County High School in Dunlap, says the court should at least listen to the teachers.

"I'm on the teachers' side," Boyd said. "I think they should have the right to be heard. It's hurting the students more than anybody."

"Some of us who plan to go on to college or a trade school have already paid our tuition," Boyd said. "If we have to go to school into the summer months to graduate we'll lose that and some of the students will just drop out."

In Nashville, state Education Commissioner E.C. Stimbart said he has agreed to meet with Carl Adams, Sequatchie County School Superintendent, to see what can be done at the state level to resolve the dispute.

But Stimbart offers little hope.

"The state's only control over the local school systems is through the minimum foundation program," Stimbart said.

"The proposed school in Sequatchie County would be built with TVA and Appalachian Regional Development Commission funds. As a result, I really don't know what our office can do. But sometimes, you know, people just want a good listen-er."

"From what I've seen of these comprehensive high schools," Stimbart added, "I think they will answer a lot of Tennessee's problems. I dedicated one last fall in Jonesboro, and I was very impressed."

If Stimbart cannot order the schools reopened, then the problem is tossed back into the laps of those who closed them—the teachers.

And the teachers say all they want is for the county court to call a special session to hear their gripes.

Lecture On Transscendental Meditation Scheduled Friday

An introductory lecture on transcendental meditation will be held Friday at 8 p.m. in the East Carolina University Educational Psychology Building, Room 104.

Open to the public free of charge, this lecture will explain what transcendental meditation is, how it can be practiced, and how it benefits the user.

According to Bruce Bagley, ECU campus coordinator of the Students' International Meditation Society, TM is a scientifically proved physical process of increasing ones energy, thus bringing about great efficiency and daily happiness. It is an addition to the daily life and does not involve changing any regular activities or any religious or philosophical beliefs, he said. He explained that he and his wife each meditate 20 minutes every morning and 20 minutes every evening. "I've found I have more energy, increased concentration for my studies, deeper religious belief, more resilience to day-to-day frustrations, and more patience with my two-and-a-half-year-old daughter," Bagley said.

He also told of studies on heavy drug users who have been taught TM. "86 per cent stopped doing drugs after beginning TM simply because the effects of drugs were not as pleasurable as the everyday happiness brought about by TM," he reported.

On-The-Job Training Is Proposed For Classes

The Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday afternoon heard a proposal from J. R. Carraway, principal of D. H. Conley High School that the occupational classes at his school be given some on-the-job training.

Carraway, appearing at the regular meeting of the county school board, said his students participating in occupational classes, especially in the areas of masonry, carpentry and drafting need on-the-job experience.

The Conley principal also stated the need for additional space for the physical education programs at the school.

Carraway suggested the board of education allow the occupational students to construct a physical education facility, to be located on the school campus.

"This would give the occupational students an opportunity to do actual work and at the same time, provide the needed space for our physical education programs," Carraway pointed out.

Alford was authorized to study the idea and see if such a project is feasible and if funds are available.

The board agreed that area Highway Commissioner Arthur Tripp should be contacted about the need for paving bus parking areas and other parking facilities at the four new high schools. It is hoped that funds for these projects will come from the State Highway Commission.

The board approved the use of the home economics cottage on the South Ayden School property as a meeting place for senior citizens in the Ayden community. The senior citizens group will be responsible for maintaining the facility and for payment of insurance to cover the building.

Payment of $2,529.55 to W. W. Speight, attorney for the board, for his services relating to the injunctive relief sought against certain individuals and groups recently, was approved by the board members.

Solicitation Is Given Approval

Approval has been given by the City of Greenville for the solicitation of funds house-to-house by the Greenville Muscular Dystrophy Association March 3, 4, and 5 between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

City Manager Harry Hagerty said only that volunteer workers must be properly identified as being associated with the Muscular Dystrophy Drive. Mrs. Nancy Hall is chairman of the drive.

New Brunswick is bordered by water on about three-quarters of its boundaries.

Kiwanis Auction Slated Friday

WINTERVILLE — The annual auction sale sponsored by the Winterville Kiwanis Club will be held Friday, beginning at 9 a.m., on the May Farm on N.C. 11 north of here.

In addition to the auction sale, barbecue dinners will be available.

At least part of the proceeds from the auction and barbecue sale will go toward the purchase of a new rescue truck for Winterville.

Teacher Union Chapters Will Be Chartered

East Carolina University alumni and friends, living in Pitt County are invited to attend a buffet dinner and meeting Wednesday, Feb. 23. A Pitt County chapter of the ECU Alumni Association will be organized.

The dinner will be held in South Cafeteria on campus. Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU president, will address the gathering.

Tickets must be bought in advance, from the ECU Central Ticket Office or from several area alumni with tickets to sell.

Although Pitt County includes the largest concentration of ECU alumni, nearly one tenth of the names on the ECU Alumni Office mailing lists, no chapter has ever been officially organized.

All area alumni are urged to attend and bring guests.

TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION

AS TAUGHT BY
Maharishi
Mahesh
Yogi

Anyone can begin to use the full potential of his mind in all fields of life. There is a way to expand the conscious mind, tap an inexhaustible reservoir of energy and creative intelligence, and bring fulfillment to life. The way, called Transcendental Meditation, is a scientific technique from man's ancient heritage. A safe, natural and spontaneous method for expanding the mind, Transcendental Meditation is easily learned and can be practiced by anyone.

Fun With Personalized License

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Several times daily Dr. James Edward Thomas of Raleigh looks into the throats of patients.
To symbolize this part of his work as a practicing physician he has his own personalized automobile license tag — "Say-Ah."
Thomas, who practices in Durham, is one of 9,000 North Carolinians with personalized 1972 tags.
Thomas was in a novelty shop at Asheville last summer when he saw several lapel buttons, one of which bore the expression, "Say-Ah." He liked it.
His previous personalized tags bore his initials "JET."
"I've already gotten a big kick out of it," Thomas said. "When I'm driving I look in the rear view mirror and see people laughing as they start to pass me."
Jane Watkins Sullivan of Raleigh, drawing on a character from the Tarzan books, has "Me Jane."
Clyde Willie Canup of Rt. 7, Raleigh, an exterminator, selected "Bug-Man."
Mr. and Mrs. John Ledford Owens of Raleigh have two Volkswagens, both red. The tag on one car is "Red-Bug," while the other, a camper, has "Bed-Bug."

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

By DUANE WILLIAMS
Students at D. H. Conley who were 18 before Monday are now Republicans, Democrats, Independents, or of no political party. Even though I chose Republican, the Democrats carried the body of students by a great majority. We would like to thank the people from the Pitt County Board of Elections who gave their time to help register the students.
Graduation
Seniors made their first big step toward graduation when they were measured for their caps and gowns this week. They were also called into assembly Tuesday to order invitations and graduation necessities.
Two new teachers have been employed to fill vacancies in our math department. The new candidate Jim Holshouser, ex-uding confidence, picked "Gov. 72."

Another candidate for governor, Democrat Hargrove Bowles, outdid Holshouser by one year. He applied for "Gov. 73" and the plate is in the process of being made.
Despite the increased popularity in personalized tags, many expressions have not been applied for, such as "So Long," "I-C-U," "Hi-Babe," "Me-O-My," and "Beware."
Mrs. Nancy Davis, in charge of the personalized tag decision, said sales jumped from 6,624 in 1970 to 8,690 in 1971 and will go above 9,000 this year.
The combinations of letters or numbers cannot exceed six. The fee for these tags is $10 extra.
Martha Yvonne Carroll, an employee at the state Motor Vehicles Department, drives a Volkswagen and has "My Bug."
Vada Cutts Brummitt of Raleigh chose "The End."
J. O. Fitz, Morganton newspaperman, has "Press."
Charles A. and Mary S. Roach of Durham selected, "Oh-Me."
Ross Eugene Hughes of Rt. 4, Candler, believes in spreading kindness. His tag is "Be-Kind."
Bobby Lee Wall of Rt. 1, Sandy Ridge, has "Be-Safe" and Annie Thelma Harman of Warsaw "B-Happy."
"Relax" was assigned to Atlantic Motor Lodge, Atlantic Beach.
Some others include:
"Snafu," Robert English Twigg, Hickory; "Win-GOP," William Ray Henderson, Boone; "Xmas," Hannah Slesinger Hockfield, Durham; "Wahoo," Howard Allen Wynne Jr., Raleigh; "Bye-Bye," Hugh Harold Shepherd, Drexel; "Photo," Burnie Batchelor, Raleigh; "Nebo," Lawrence McNeil, Nebo; "Push Me," Gary Freemont Jones, Graham; "Rag-Man," Harris Men's Shop, North Wilkesboro; "Romeo," Romeo Henry Lewis II; "Po-Boy," Wrenn Brothers, Rt. 2, Matthews.

Student Task Force To Conduct A Drug Survey

Members of the Pitt County Student Task Force Monday decided to conduct a drug survey in the county high schools.
The purpose of the survey, to be headed by Mrs. Sandra Sauve, Alcohol Educator for Pitt County, is to determine the significance of the drug problem in the Pitt County Schools.
The Student Task Force within each school will conduct the survey in its school. Prior to the survey, Mrs. Sauve will meet

Homemaker Award Won

Miss Helen Moseley has been named winner of the Betty Crocker American Homemaker of Tomorrow contest at Rose High School.
The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft Moseley of Greenville, Miss Moseley is one of about 500,000 girls in some 15,000 high schools who took an examination. The test is part of General Mills' Betty Crocker Search scholarship program.
In addition to basic homemaking skills, the test probes the girls' knowledge, attitudes and understandings in areas that cut across today's broad secondary school curriculum.
Open to all senior girls, the Betty Crocker Search seeks to help build in young women deeper appreciation and understanding of the American home in our society.

HELEN MOSELEY

Miss Moseley was recently inducted into the National Honor Society and is a member of the annual staff. She is also a member of the Pep Club, French Club, and is active in the Student Council.

Miss Moseley is now eligible for state competition. She will be given a sterling charm and certificate for being the winner at Rose.

Staff Cuts By Shaw U.

RALEIGH (AP) — Financially-stricken Shaw University has fired 34 staff members in the first of a series of cutbacks aimed at saving the predominantly black institution.
The staff members were notified of their dismissal in a series of hand-delivered letters from Dr. Archie Hargraves, president of the 106-year-old Baptist school.
Hargraves had announced in December that approximately 100 of Shaw's 200 faculty and staff members will be dismissed this semester to cut costs.
Although the cutback had been announced, the dismissals, effective immediately, left the school "demoralized." Staff members said the dismissals came as bitter surprises to those who received them.
Miss McLaughlin said the alleged incidents occurred Sunday night in Peppard's hotel suite.
In Hollywood, Peppard issued a statement saying: "The charge is completely false and without foundation. A court hearing will make short work of this slander."
Boston police said Peppard would be served with the warrants if he returns to Massachusetts of extradition proceedings could be sought.

Johnsons Are Aleman Guests

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Former President Lyndon Johnson and his wife are in Mexico on a vacation as the guest of Miguel Aleman, a former president of Mexico.
The Johnsons, along with a private secretary and two Secret Service guards, arrived in Mexico on Tuesday aboard a private jet and will spend a week at Aleman's home at Pichilingue Beach.
Most of those dismissed this week held administrative posts. Faculty dismissals are expected to come within the next two months. Hargraves said he will now know how many will be dismissed until a curriculum study is completed.

Women Sponsor Dinner Saturday

A chicken stew supper, sponsored by the Bethany Free Will Baptist Woman's Auxiliary, will be held Saturday from 5-7 p.m.
The supper will be served in the fellowship hall. The Bethany Free Will Baptist Church is located near Renston community.
Prices will be $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for children.
The cutbacks are aimed at trimming $1 million from Shaw's $4 million annual budget and eliminating a $1 million debt.

with the various groups. The following schedule will be observed: February 14, Ayden-Grifton; February 15, Conley; February 16, North Pitt, and February 18, Farmville Central.
It is undecided whether the survey results will be tallied by schools or by the county as a whole.
Discussion was held concerning the present Pitt County Board of Education policy on pregnant girls. The members of the Task Force felt the present restrictions should be relaxed and that pregnant girls should be allowed to continue their education in the county system. Further discussion on this matter will be held at a later date.
The group discussed the examination exemption policy which leaves the prerogative of

Heart Award To Pearl Bailey

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has presented the "Heart of the Year" award to Pearl Bailey, one of the first family's favorite singers.
"She has a big heart—it is a great heart," Nixon said in presenting the award, given annually to an American who has achieved career success despite a history of heart disease.
Miss Bailey suffers from coronary insufficiency, resulting from the heart's inability to maintain adequate circulation.
At the same time he presented the award in a White House ceremony Wednesday, Nixon issued a proclamation urging Americans to contribute during February, American Heart Month, to help overcome cardiovascular diseases, which Nixon called "our nation's most pressing health problem."

An important message for people who prepare their own income tax returns.

Maybe you've been cheating yourself all these years.

Every year, between January and April, millions of people sit down to do battle with Uncle Sam. Some are "self styled" accountants. Others think they can save a few dollars doing it themselves—so why not.
The sad truth is, however, no matter what their reason was for starting, many of them end the same. On the short end.
You see, when it comes to income taxes, amateurs should depend on H&R Block. We have all the facilities to help you make "income tax time" a pleasant experience. To begin with, H&R Block now has over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained personnel who are anxious to help you. They'll sit you down over a free cup of coffee and show you some things about your income tax that you might never have known existed. For example, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? And maybe you aren't aware that if your income increased last year, you may be able to save tax dollars by "income averaging."

Well, when it comes to income taxes, H&R Block is aware of just about everything because we're a company that eats, sleeps, and drinks tax returns 365 days a year.
Yes, maybe you can save a couple of bucks by doing your own return but it really may be costing you a lot more by not having your return done by H&R Block.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

Science May Have Found Efficient Solar Energy

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two Arizona scientists say they believe they have solved a problem whose answer has long eluded man, an efficient way of tapping the boundless cost-free energy of the sun.

With a $25,000 grant from interested utility companies, Dr. Aden B. Meinel of the University of Arizona and his wife Marjorie are building a device which will focus and trap sunlight.

The sunlight would be converted into heat which would be used to run conventional electrical generating stations.

Such stations now get their heat from nuclear fission of fossil fuels such as coal. The heat converts water to steam, which turns turbines connected to generators.

"This isn't a new electricity generating system. It's a new fuel source for generators that already exist," Mrs. Meinel told newsmen Wednesday after she and her husband outlined details of their new solar energy converter for American Physical Society members.

The first device, which the Meinels call a "credibility model," is expected to be ready in about three months. It is about the size of a large table.

GIFTS FOR SMU
Dallas (AP) — Two gifts totaling $400,000 have been pledged to Southern Methodist University by two members of the R.M. McFarlin family for permanent endowment of McFarlin Memorial Auditorium.

The heart of the Meinels' converter is a stainless steel pipe on which microscopically thin films of molybdenum, cesium and magnesium compounds are deposited. They allow sunlight to pass through, but prevent much of the energy it contains from radiating back out.

Special lenses concentrate the sunlight before it strikes the pipe, generating temperatures to 1,000 degrees. A gas or liquid flowing through the pipe carries off the heat for use at the power plant.

The failure of earlier converters to achieve such high temperatures has delayed past plans to convert sunlight into electricity, scientists said.

The Meinels have a timetable that calls for construction of a demonstration plant within five years. The smallest such plant might cost $100 million and generate 25 million watts of power.

Once the solar converters were built, there would be no cost for the heat they generated, the scientists said. There also would be no pollution, depletion of natural resources or danger of radiation, as exists with many present power plants. Each plant would cover an area about the size of a football field.

Meinel said the cost of a demonstration plant might be 10 times as great as that of a conventional generating station producing as much power, but he predicted the cost would become competitive if enough units were built.

Driver-builder John Greenwood heads the team.

Justice Was Rally Speaker

Justice Joseph Branch of the North Carolina Supreme Court addressed the annual lay rally of the Greenville District of the United Methodist Church at Jarvis Memorial Church last night. Attendance was 433.

Attendance trophies were awarded for the largest attendance of a charge of less than 300 members and a charge over 300 members. J. W. Sneed of Williamston awarded the under 300 to Bell Arthur for 17 present and Jasper Smith of Bethel awarded the over 300 to Hookerton-Rainbow charge for 39 present. Special music was presented by the Rainbow choir.

Judge J. W. H. Roberts of Greenville, the district lay leader, presided.

Justice Branch spoke on the importance of laymen in the church. "Laymen are the church," he said. He paid tribute to the importance of the church in the life of individuals and society. Speaking about the relationship of the individual with the church, he said it is necessary "to put first things first."

Obituaries

Mendenhall

Miss Cynthia Anne Mendenhall, 49, of 400 Maple St. died at 4 a.m. today at Duke University Hospital in Durham. Miss Mendenhall was Director of College Union activities at East Carolina University where she had been employed since September, 1964.

Born in Ft. Knox, Ky., Miss Mendenhall called Asheville her home town. She received a BS degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in 1943, taught business courses at Fayetteville High School from 1943 to 1946, then worked as outdoor recreation therapist at Highland Hospital in Asheville, from 1946 to 1953. She received an AB degree in recreation from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1954, then began her duties at ECU.

Miss Mendenhall had served as secretary of the North Carolina Recreation and Park Society and for some years made her home with an uncle, Thomas Redding of Elizabeth City.

A memorial service has been scheduled for 3 p.m. Saturday at St. James United Methodist Church.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that any gifts be made to the Redding-Mendenhall College Loan Fund at Methodist Children's Home, Winston-Salem, or to the American Cancer Society.

Dr. Fred Ragan Appointed To Magazine Post

Dr. Fred Ragan, assistant professor in the Department of History, East Carolina University, has been appointed associate editor of the American Chronicle, a newly organized magazine dealing with all phases of American history.

The initial issue of the magazine was published in January. It is published by Historic Services Inc., of Savannah, Ga. It will be a monthly publication.

Dr. Ragan said each issue will include articles, book reviews, color illustrations of American art, documents, and a forum for comments by readers. The ECU professor said his duties will be of a general nature but will include advice concerning articles and reviews and as a contributing editor, writer and reviewer. He remains on the fulltime ECU faculty.

Wreck Survivor Said Doing Well

Because of numerous inquiries, Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning released a report on the condition of Johnny Basso, the single survivor in the Friday night auto accident that calmed the lives of two Farmville youths.

Basso, 18, is in good condition, hospital administrator Jack Richardson said.

"Johnny is out of the special surgical unit and is sitting up some today," his mother, Mrs. Daisy Basso said. "His doctors say he'll have to be hospitalized for some time, but he's doing wonderfully well, I think."

Rumors about brain damage and other serious injuries are unfounded, she said.

Discover Fresh Water On Isle

CAPRI, Italy (AP) — Two policemen in skindiving suits have found fresh water on Capri, the honeymoon island that has to import it.

The officers were looking for smuggled cigarettes believed dumped from a boat. They didn't find the smokes but they found an underwater opening to a grotto that contained fresh water.

Naples University, after analyzing the water, announced Wednesday it is drinkable when filtered.

Barnhill

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Barnhill and Bert Barnhill, 27, will be conducted Saturday at 3 p.m. at Holly Hill Free Will Baptist Church with the Rev. R. W. Worrell officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Barnhill was born in Pitt County and spent her life in the Belvoir and Greenville communities and was a member of Holly Hill F.W.B. Church.

Bert Barnhill was born in Pitt County and spent most of his life in the Greenville community. Surviving Mrs. Barnhill are two daughters, Miss Olive Barnhill of the home and Mrs. Estella Aytch of Danbury, Conn.

Surviving Mr. Barnhill are Miss Olive Barnhill. The bodies will be at Flanagan and Parker Funeral home until the funeral hour. The family will be at the funeral home from 7 p.m. until 8 p.m. Friday.

Skill-A-Rama To Feature Scouts In Action

Peace Medal For Haile Selassie

ADDIS ABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie received the peace medal of the United Nations Wednesday.

In presenting the medal, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim spoke of Selassie's support for U.N. principles and of his contributions to promote international peace and understanding, the Ethiopian news agency reported.

Selassie is the first head of state to receive the medal.

A "Skill-A-Rama" Saturday behind King's Department Store on Arlington Drive here will feature Pitt County Boy Scouts in action.

From 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, the Scouts will show crafts, games, and various practical skills they have learned as Scouts. The show is part of the celebration of the 62nd anniversary of Boy Scouting.

Scouts will have displays on various types of cooking: Dutch oven over an open fire; cooking without utensils; and cardboard box cooking. Pioneering skills such as tower building, building monkey bridges, and knot tying will be demonstrated, as will camping skills such as how to set up tents and cooking area and patrol methods like fire-building with friction and use of knives and axes.

Cubs will participate, showing crafts, games, and achievements necessary to advance in rank.

Donations of $1 per family will be asked for, or tickets may be purchased from any Boy or Cub Scout in the County. Thomas Butts, Pitt District Boy Scout Commissioner, is chairman of the event.

Also as part of the anniversary celebration, all Boy Scouts and leaders will wear uniforms to church Sunday.

Coke Nearing City Crown

Unbeaten Coca-Cola gained ground on the rest of the City League last night, and moved close to clinching the 1972 championship. Coke downed Big Value Discount of Farmville, while College View dumped second place Hallow's. Distributing, 87-85. In the other game, Book Exchange beat Stewart's Sandwiches, 73-50.

Coke, now 10-3, has a magic number of three and could clinch the title during next week's play. The leaders meet Hallow's in the opening game of the week. Hallow's is second with 7-3 mark now, while Big Value and College View are both 5-5, and could only tie for the title. Eliminated from the race are the Exchange, 3-7, and Stewart's 0-10.

In the opening game, College View inched out into a 43-41 lead after a tight first half with Hallow's. It stayed right that way as the two swapped basket-for-basket the final half, each scoring 44 points in the period.

Tom Hayes led College View with 26, while Greg Holmes had 22, Bob Short had 17, and Reese Haines had 12. For Hallow's Gene Rackley had 23, Wayne King had 18, Joe Gaddis had 15, and Bob Haubenreiser had 14.

Coke had a little trouble in the first half, and found themselves in a 26-26 deadlock with Big Value at halftime. But in the second half, Coke broke it open and held a 41-30 scoring advantage as they took their 10th straight win.

Jim Modlin led the Coke scoring with 27, while Jack Warner had 15 and Charles Norfleet had 10. Ivey Smith had 21 to pace Big Value.

Winding up the evening, the Exchange eased out to a 20-13 lead at the half. They then outscored Stewart's 53-37, in the second half to finish the romp.

Tom Jordan and Glen Batten each had 18 to lead the Exchange, while Bill Stokes and Jim Sermons added 14 each. Frank Corbitt and Charles Meeks each had 12 for Stewart's.

Highwaymen In First Alone

State Highway moved into sole possession of first place in the Industrial League last night, and Vermont American won its first game of the year.

State Highway broke the tie with Wachovia Bank with a 44-40 victory over the Bankers. Vermont American downed Greenville Utilities, 76-66, and Empire Brush beat Carolina Telephone, 51-43.

State is now 9-1 on the year, while Wachovia falls off to 8-2. They are followed by Carolina Telephone, 6-4; Empire Brush, 5-5, and Vermont American and GUCO, both 1-9.

In the first game, Carolina Telephone pushed out into a 22-13 lead and appeared headed for an easy win. But Empire Brush rallied in the second half, outscoring the Phonemen, 38-21, to take the victory.

James Parker led Empire with 17 points, while Dwight

Foster and Curtis Barnett each had 10. Willie Wallace had 12 to pace Carolina Telephone.

In the second game, the one that decided first, State Highway slipped out into a 22-17 lead at the half. They managed to hold onto the lead, despite a 23-22 advantage in the second half by Wachovia.

Fred Mills led the Highwaymen with 11 points, while Jerry Smith and Bill Baggett each had 15 for Wachovia.

Vermont American zoomed away to a 41-29 lead in the first half, and that was all they needed. They held off a GUCO rally, 37-35, and claimed their first win.

Moses Teel led Vermont American with 25 points, while Connie McGowan had 17, John James had 14 and Ronnie Foster had 12. James Gorham had 23 and James Ward had 12 for GUCO.

Furman Has Top Two Scorers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Coach Joe Williams of Furman will throw the Southern Conference's top two basketball scorers at Jacksonville's Dolphins, the team Williams once coached, in the Paladins' bid for revenge at home tonight.

Meanwhile, Davidson's Wildcats will try to lengthen their league lead to a full game over the Paladins when they play host to Virginia Military's last-place Keydets.

Russ Hunt, the 6-foot-7 junior who was one of three sophomores on last year's All-Southern Conference team, has given Furman the league's top point-maker all season, but 6-foot-8 junior college transfer Roy Simpson now has moved into the No. 2 spot for the Paladins.

Going into tonight's game against Jacksonville, to whom Furman lost by only 91-90 at Jacksonville Monday night, Hunt has scored 404 points in 18 games for a 22.4-point average and Simpson has scored 300 points in 16 encounters for an 18.8 mark.

Manley Has Lead

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—The split field swapped courses today in the two-day $7,500 Holiday Pro-Am golf tournament.

John Manley of Charleston took a one-stroke lead Wednesday with a 69. All the leaders played the opening round at the Pine Lakes course. They switched to the Possum Trot course today.

A stroke behind was Norman Flynn of Lexington, while Chuck Matlack of Mount Pleasant was third with a par 71.

Teams of one pro and four amateurs were led by those headed by Flynn and Larry Parker of Charlotte, with best ball 62s.

Bucs Host Indians

The East Carolina University wrestling team, losers only in one dual meet this year, play host to their chief competitor in the Southern Conference Friday night at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The Bucs will be playing host to defending Southern Conference champ William & Mary.

The lone match lost by the Pirates this year was to Appalachian a week ago. William & Mary beat the Mountaineers earlier in the season.

The match will be a preliminary to the Southern Conference wrestling tournament which will be held in Minges, February 18 and 19. It is also the final home meet of the season for the Bucs. They have one dual meet left, in Norfolk next week against Old Dominion.

Austrians, Without Schranz, Help Open 11th Winter Olympics

By GEOFFREY MILLER

Associated Press Sports Writer SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Clouds of dissension hanging over the 11th Winter Olympic Games all but dispersed Thursday as the sun shone down on Emperor Hirohito of Japan and a throng of 50,000 at Makamanai Skating Stadium for the glittering opening ceremonies.

The solemn ritual, patterns of bright colors, sunshine on the snow and pageantry obliterated for one brief hour the bitterness over the expulsion of Austrian ski star Karl Schranz.

Schranz, kicked out of the games because he made money from advertising, did not even attend the ceremony.

The Austrian team, which at one time had threatened a mass walk-out in protest, was outfitted smartly in red and white uniforms and marched into the arena and saluted the emperor with as much dignity as any of the other 34 national squads.

The Olympic hymn was sung, the flag of the five rings was hoisted and the sacred Olympic flame was ignited in its cauldron atop the stadium, all according to tradition.

Now all is ready for the start of the games—ice hockey eliminations Thursday and the first figure skating, speed skating, bobsleigh and luge events Friday.

The opening ceremony, in this outdoor stadium set amid the lovely snow-clad mountain landscape of Hokkaido, was a color television producer's dream.

It began with the teams marching past the royal box in strikingly contrasted uniforms, and ended with 18,000 balloons being released and colored smoke bombs leaving rainbow patterns in the sky.

The choice of team uniforms ranged far and wide. The Finns looked like black-and-white penguins, the Russians like furry brown bears, the Swiss like delectable red-and-white candy canes and the Spaniards like matadors in black-and-red capes and cordobas hats.

The United States men's squad, in black leather coats that cost $160 each, made a big impression. But the American girls, in boot-length red capes, had a strange look of volunteer nurses.

By tradition the Greeks, heirs of the athletes who competed in the first games more than 2,000 years ago, led the parade. The Japanese, as host nation, marched last, in all-white outfits that blended with the snow.

Izumi Tsujimura, a Japanese girl, skated gracefully into the arena with the Olympic torch, which started out Dec. 28 on its traditional journey from Athens. Hideki Takada, a Japanese runner, bore it up the carpeted staircase and ignited the Olympic flame.

Two personalities in the ceremony caught the imagination of the crowd.

One was Avery Brundage, 84-year-old president of the International Olympic Committee whose dedicated campaign against professionalism led to the ban on Schranz.

The jaunty old president, a black fur hat on his head, strode into the center of the arena and spoke in English and Japanese, calling on the emperor to open the games.

The other outstanding figure was Ingrid Lafforgue, the brilliant French ski star who was kept out of the games by a broken ankle. She limped proudly into the stadium bearing the commemorative Olympic flag which had been in the custody of Grenoble, France, since the last Winter Games were staged there in 1968.

Miss Lafforgue, chosen to represent the mayor of Grenoble, handed the flag over to the mayor of Sapporo.

The ceremony took place in bitter 17-degree weather. Foreign visitors bundled themselves against the cold and looked with amazement at the Japanese women in kimonos who stepped daintily through the snow in sandals to the stadium entrances.

There were a few tiny hits.

The Olympic flag got wrapped around the staff and never billowed out properly until the teams were leaving the stadium.

Officials had to struggle with a red carpet which threatened to blow away.

And when 800 Japanese youngsters skated in with balloons at the end, some of them slipped and fell over and their balloons wafted away prematurely.

Oak City Runs Past Phillips

OAK CITY — Oak City built up a strong lead in the second period of play and rode that to a 70-60 victory over Phillips High School of Battleboro last night. Phillips gained a small measure of revenge with a 54-28 win in the junior varsity contest.

In the varsity game, it was close throughout the first period, with Oak City slipping into a 14-13 lead at the horn. But in the second frame, the Trojans took complete command of the contest, and burned the nets for 27 points. Phillips, at the same time, could manage only 11 points. That left Oak City far ahead at the half, 41-24.

In the second half, Oak City just held off Phillips and coasted to the victory. Phillips outhit the Trojans, 16-14, in the third period, cutting the lead to 55-40. They did it again, 20-15, but couldn't overcome the big margin.

Wayne Jones sparked Oak City with 28 points, while Edward Briley had 10.

For Phillips, John Savage had 18, while Albert Lyons had 12 and Arthur Bryant had 11.

The Oak City girls visit Northern Nash tonight, while both teams travel to Bear Grass on Friday.

Deacons Try To Stop Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolina, 13-2 and fourth-ranked nationally, plays Wake Forest tonight, a 4-12 basketball team it has beaten twice this season, but Coach Dean Smith still is apprehensive for his Tar Heels.

"Wake Forest has proved it is highly capable in some recent games," he said. "Wake Forest lost a one-point game to Duquesne and by three to Maryland. We could be in for the same kind of tight game."

He noted that Wake Forest outscored North Carolina after the first seven minutes of their game at North Carolina two weeks ago. "We jumped off to a big early lead as Wake Forest had trouble hitting at the start," Smith recalled. "But they came back very strong and made a real fight out of it."

North Carolina won 92-77.

The Tar Heels beat the Wake Forest Deacons 99-76 in December in the North Carolina Big Four Tournament in the Greensboro, N.C. Coliseum, where tonight's game will be played.

It will be the night's only game for Atlantic Coast Conference teams. North Carolina is 4-1 in the league and Wake Forest 0-4.

Forward Dennis Wuyckick, a senior, has 1,176 career points and could break into North Carolina's top ten scoring list tonight. He needs 12 to replace Jerry Vayda as No. 10. The ninth leading UNC basketball scorer is York Larese with 1,287. The top three are Lennie Rosenbluth, 2,045; Charlie Scott, 2,007, and Larry Miller, 1,982.

Clemson, the only ACC team to play Wednesday night, lost 48-44 at Virginia Tech when the Gobblers converted four free throws in the last 34 seconds.

Allan Bristow led Virginia Tech with 14 points while Terrell Suit was high for Clemson with 12. Virginia Tech is 10-8 and Clemson 9-7.

Old, New Spark Cougars To Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Something old and something new added up to something blue for the Dallas Chaparrals Wednesday night.

Carolina veteran Joe Caldwell was the something old while Cougar center Jim McDaniels, a rookie, provided the something new. Each scored 16 points in the second half to spark Carolina to a 110-101 American Basketball Association victory over Dallas—for the Chaps, something blue.

In the only other ABA game of the night, Denver upset Utah 122-116.

McDaniels, the 7-foot rookie from Western Kentucky, poured in 12 points in the third quarter as Carolina broke from a 49-49 halftime deadlock to a 78-73 lead after three periods.

Then Caldwell, a 30-year-old veteran in his eighth pro season, took command. The 6-5 former Arizona State star scored 14 points in the fourth quarter to keep the Chaparrals at bay.

McDaniels led all scorers with 24 points while Caldwell netted 22, Larry Miller added 21 and Gene Littles had 19. For Dallas, Donnie Freeman tallied 23 and Rich Jones 21.

Ralph Simpson scored 23 points and Larry Brown had 20 to pace Denver, in last place in the ABA West, past Utah, the West Division front-runner.

Rounds Take State Athletes

NEW YORK (AP) — A pair of All-Atlantic Coast Conference linebackers, John Bunting of North Carolina and Larry Hefner of Clemson, were picked in later rounds of the National Football League draft Wednesday. Bunting went to Philadelphia in the 10th round and Hefner to Green Bay in the 14th.

Two North Carolinians, who played college ball out of the state were among those drafted. Running back Stahle Vincent of Greensboro Dudley High and Rice University went to Pittsburgh in the eighth round. Linebacker Jim Teal of Salisbury, who played at Purdue, went to Detroit in the 10th.

There were seven rounds in the draft on the first day Tuesday and the final 10 rounds Wednesday.

Carolinians players chosen Wednesday:
8th Round: Ralph Coleman.

linebacker, North Carolina A&T, by Dallas.

9th Round: Don Kelley, defensive back, Clemson, Pittsburgh.

10th Round: John Bunting, linebacker, North Carolina, Philadelphia; Steve Williams, tackle, Western Carolina, San Francisco.

11th Round: Lonnie Leonard, defensive end, North Carolina A&T, Dallas.

12th Round: Sam Key, linebacker, Elon, San Diego.

13th Round: Tyler Hellams, defensive back, South Carolina, Kansas City.

14th Round: James Evans, linebacker, South Carolina State, New York Giants; Larry Hefner, linebacker, Clemson, Green Bay.

16th Round: Willie Wright, tight end, North Carolina A&T, Oakland.

17th Round: Ken Gamble, kicker, Fayetteville State, New York Jets.

Calm Emperor Watches Girls

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Emperor Hirohito watched the opening of the 11th Winter Olympic Games with a Sphinx-like absence of emotion Thursday, but he revealed one human trait.

He is a girl-watcher.

The 70-year-old emperor, a lean man wearing a thin mustache and dark sun-glasses, was in the red-carpeted royal box for 52 minutes, rising and sitting on signal like a wind-up doll as the resplendent ceremony unfolded in Siberian-like cold.

He never smiled once. He never applauded. His only words—in a high-pitched voice—were the terse declaration opening the games.

He stood stiff-backed and unmoving for 19 minutes while the brightly garbed athletes from 35 nations marched past his box, some of them waving friendly greetings and the host Japanese giving a stiff-armed salute.

The emperor could have passed for one of the frozen images of Sapporo's famed Snow Festival.

Only twice did he turn his head—and then only slightly.

Once when the Polish team, the girls in attractive brown fur and wearing high boots, strode by like prancing thoroughbreds.

The other time came near the end of the program when a Japanese skater in bridal white, Miss Izumi Tsujimura, leaped out of one of the portals and skated around the glassy track with the Olympic flame hoisted high.

The emperor followed her progress all the way.

Even sitting—with Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, and IOC delegate, former Prince Tsuneyoshi Takeda, on each side—Hirohito was as stiff as if a poker were laced to his back.

He leaned forward once—to get a better view of the pretty, scantily clad Japanese drummer corps, dressed in purple, blue and white, which emerged from each side of the rink.

Most of the time the emperor's head was straight forward, as if held by a vice. When the cannon sounded, he didn't flinch. When the fireworks exploded, he didn't twitch a brow.

Occasionally, Takeda, a member of the royal family, would lean forward and whisper in the emperor's ear, possibly to say, "You may stand now, your highness."

"Now sit, your highness."

The emperor never turned his head.

Archibald Leads Royals To Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"He's so great," said New York Knicks Coach Red Holzman of Cincinnati's Nate Archibald, "if I didn't have to play against him, I'd enjoy watching him."

Holzman didn't have to play against Archibald Wednesday night—but his Knicks did and he didn't enjoy it.

Archibald, one of the smallest players in the National Basketball Association—he admits being shorter than his listed height of 6-feet-1—went on the biggest scoring rampage of his pro career, firing in 49 points and leading the Royals to a 116-105 victory over the Knicks.

"He is improving almost daily," said Cincinnati Coach Bob Cousy about his second-year guard, who is ninth in the league in scoring with a 24.9 average and tops in assists with a 9.1 mark.

Archibald averaged 16 points a game last season, but said: "I was forcing a lot of shots last year. I think I got my confidence this year and think I know which shots to take and from where."

Archibald took 35 floor shots against the Knicks and hit 17. He also connected on 15 of 16 free throw attempts.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston walloped Chicago 124-100. Detroit whipped Cleveland 133-108. Philadelphia trimmed Buffalo 119-104. Houston routed Seattle 111-88, and Milwaukee edged Phoenix 106-103.

Archibald, in surpassing his previous pro high of 47, hit 10 straight Cincinnati after New York had tied the score 94-94 with four minutes remaining. The diminutive backcourt star connected for three consecutive field goals and four foul shots, putting the Royals ahead for good 106-98.

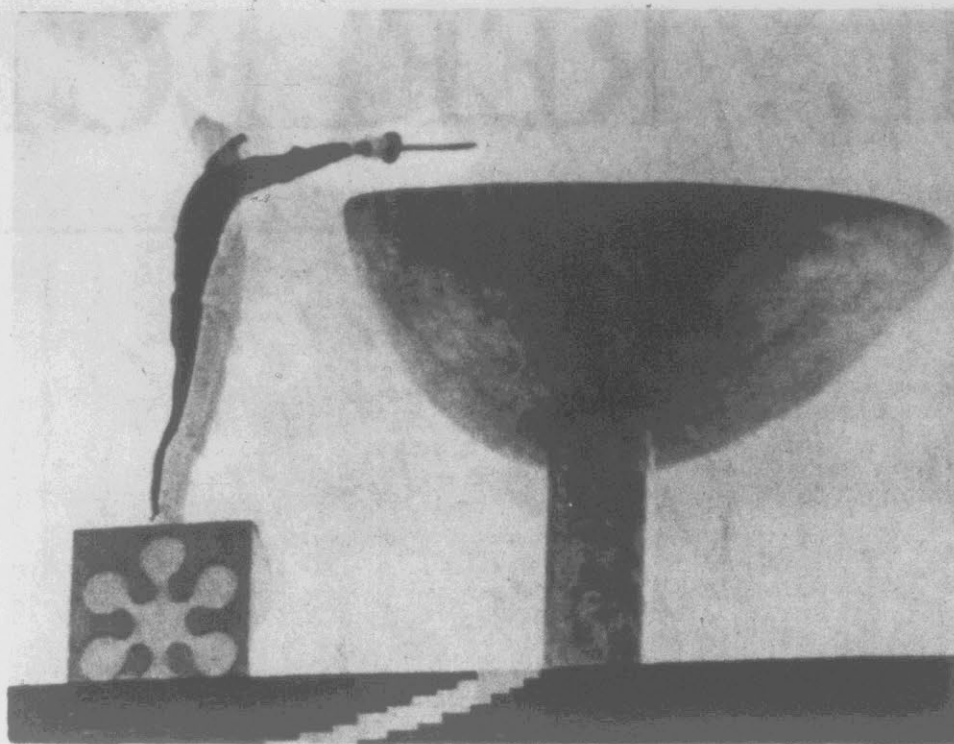

Bill Bradley was high for the Knicks with 27 points.

The loss dropped New York six games behind first-place Boston in the Atlantic Division. Boston, with John Havlicek pumping in 32 points and Dave Cowens grabbing 21 rebounds, stretched its winning streak to five games, beating Chicago, despite 36 points by the Bulls' Bob Love.

Dave Bing hit nine straight field goals and finished with 33 points as Detroit snapped a six-game losing string with its triumph over Cleveland, loser of 15 of its last 17 games.

Philadelphia burst to a 37-14 first-period lead over Buffalo and went on to whip the Braves as Fred Carter led the way with 23 points.

Houston got balanced scoring—23 points from Greg Smith and 22 each from Elvin Hayes and Rudy Tomjanovich—in crushing Seattle with a 66-point second-half.

Memphis State Upsets Third-Ranked Louisville

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I just didn't do my normal job tonight," said Ron Thomas, who was sick before and after the game.

"You've got to be disappointed," said Denny Crum, who wasn't feeling too well, either.

Louisville's star forward and coach both reacted rather weakly after Wednesday night's 77-69 basketball loss to Missouri Valley Conference colleague Memphis State.

The upset of the third-ranked Cardinals at Louisville broke a 15-game winning streak and threw the clubs into a first-place tie in the conference race.

Thomas, who hadn't practiced all week with the team because of a stomach ailment, said he felt "real weak." He scored only 13 points, four below his average.

Crum, whose team hadn't lost a game since opening day last Dec. 1, felt his boys were simply outbattled.

"I think the kids really wanted to win," said Crum. "Memphis State just outplayed us, but I feel we can play a lot better. But we can't look back."

Eighth-ranked South Carolina, the other team of status in action Wednesday night, won an easy 98-64 game over outclassed Stetson.

Elsewhere, it was St. Bonaventure 96, Northern Illinois 81; Georgia Tech 82, Georgia 78; Temple 67, LaSalle 56; Virginia Tech 48, Clemson 44; Penn State 81, Syracuse 76 in overtime; Boston College 64, Rhode Island 63 in overtime and Canisius 87, Colgate 72.

Ronnie Robinson, who scored a game-high 23 points, powered a second-half runaway by Memphis State. The Tigers pulled out to a 13-point lead with less than four minutes remaining and won their eighth in a row.

South Carolina had too much beef for Stetson. Seven-foot Danny Traylor and 6-10 Tom Riker grabbed 32 rebounds between them to out rebound the entire Stetson team, which had 30.

Traylor had 28 points while Kevin Joyce was runnerup scorer on the winners with 20. Jim Orr, Stetson's floor leader, had 26.

"Stetson certainly couldn't match our size, but I thought they played well," said South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire.

Three fast baskets by Matt Gantt early in the second half gave St. Bonaventure control over Northern Illinois. Gantt's field goals, part of a 10-2 spurt, moved the Bonnies into a safe 57-44 lead.

Frank Somoylo scored 26 points, 18 from the free throw line, as Georgia Tech survived a torrid finish by Georgia: Temple broke its game open with a six-point spurt in the second half, while LaSalle missed 19 straight shots, and clinched a spot in the Middle Atlantic Conference playoffs: Craig Lieder and Charlie Lipscomb each hit two free throws in the last 34 seconds for Virginia Tech and Chuck Crist scored 16 points for Penn State.

Danny Kilcullen sank a layup with two seconds left in the first overtime period to lead Boston College and Canisius used a 55-point second half to pull away from Colgate.

Further Hearings On 1.6 Ruling

By RICHARD H. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Further federal court hearings appear likely here on the National Collegiate Athletic Association's controversial 1.6 rule.

Officials of the NCAA said Wednesday in Kansas City and Knoxville, Tenn. they expected to challenge a judge's finding that application of the 1.6 rule had violated the constitutional rights of two athletes at the University of California at Berkeley.

The NCAA officials also said they believed the judge's ruling, even if it stood, applied only to the California case and did not invalidate the entire rule.

U.S. District Court Judge Albert C. Wollenberg said he would not comment on or interpret his ruling of Tuesday in a suit brought against the NCAA last November by Cal football players Isaac Curtis and Larry Brumsey. The judge explained that the ruling was a preliminary injunction that might be challenged.

The 1.6 ruling requires NCAA member schools to test freshman athletes before enrollment to assure that they will be able to do college work at a 1.6 or C-minus average.

Curtis and Brumsey contended that the rule forced athletes to comply with an "arbitrary and capricious" standard not applied to other students. Since they enrolled in 1969, Curtis has maintained a 3.2 or B-plus. Brumsey a 2.7 or B-minus.

NCAA sanctions were applied against Cal last year after the school reported the two athletes had not taken the 1.6-rule tests because of a clerical error but refused to make them ineligible for intercollegiate competition.

In Knoxville, NCAA president Earl Ramer of the University of Tennessee said, "We will stand on the validity of our 1.6 rule. I expect the NCAA to press the case."

At NCAA headquarters in Kansas City, the association's executive director, Walter Byers, issued a statement cautioning member colleges and universities that the 1.6 rule remains in effect and was not invalidated by Wollenberg's decision.

Curtis and Brumsey, who could not be reached for comment on Wollenberg's ruling, announced last week they were transferring to San Diego State and expected to play football there next fall.

NCAA public relations director Tom Hanson said the court order text had not yet been received at the association's headquarters.

"We believe further discussion and clarification is required and necessary and will seek a rehearing," Hanson said.

Hanson said also it was uncertain whether the indefinite probation on which Cal was placed would be lifted. He said there were other alleged NCAA rule violations not considered in Judge Wollenberg's order.

Rich Got Richer As Draft Comes To End

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The rich—namely, Dallas and Baltimore, the last two Super Bowl champs—apparently got richer in this week's National Football League draft.

"At first glance," said an executive of one NFL team, who requested that his name not be used, "I'd say Dallas and Baltimore got the best of it over-all. The Cowboys got nine players in the first four rounds and the Colts got some real good athletes, particularly in the second round when they had three straight picks."

"Other teams that did well in the first two rounds were Green Bay, Cincinnati, Chicago, Denver and St. Louis, and, of course, Buffalo got the very first pick in defensive end Walt Patulski of Notre Dame."

The shortest NFL draft ever wound up Wednesday evening after 19 hours and 26 minutes, but the 26 teams still managed to select a full complement of 442 collegians over the 17 rounds in what was considered a lean year for pro prospects.

Although they picked 26th and last in the opening round, the world champion Cowboys managed to come up with the player they ranked No. 6 in the country, 227-pound running back Bill Thomas of Boston College.

With three choices in the second round, the Cowboys' famed computer went for Houston running back Robert Newhouse, whose 1,757 yards in 1971 made him major college football's second highest single-season ground-gainer: John Babinecz of Vaillanova, a 220-pound linebacker with speed, and flashy wide receiver Charlie "Earl the Pearl" McKee of Arizona.

Round 3 found Dallas choosing Michigan linebacker Mike Keller and Utah kicker Marv Bateman, who led the nation with a 48.1-yard punting average. In Round 4, the Cowboys tapped Northern Michigan linebacker Tim Kearney, San Diego State wide receiver Robert West and Penn State linebacker Charlie Zapiec.

The Cowboys went into the draft looking for depth at running back and linebacker and when they filled both holes relatively early, a representative of one club shook his head in disbelief.

On later rounds, after taking a flyer at semipro defensive back Charles "Doc" Bolden, the Cowboys came up with such prospects as North Carolina A&T linebacker Ralph Coleman, Oklahoma running back Roy Bell, Florida State defensive end Richard Amman and North Carolina A&T defensive end Lonnie Leonard and the disbelieving headshaker muttered, "It's disgusting."

The Colts' first pick was 256-pound tackle Tom Drougas of Oregon and in the second round they added Jack Mildren, Oklahoma's Wishbone quarterback who will get a shot at defensive back; Michigan wingback Glenn Doughty and Penn State running back Lydell Mitchell.

Baltimore was looking for young talent at wide receiver and quarterback and unearthed three of the former and two of the latter, not counting Mildren.

The wide receivers were Doughty, Michigan State's Eric Allen, who holds the one-game major college rushing record of 350 yards, and Herb Washington, Allen's teammate. The quarterbacks were Van Brownson, who backed up Jerry Tagge for the national champion Nebraska Cornhuskers, and Little All-American Gary Wichard.

On the first two rounds, Green Bay came up with San Diego State cornerback Willie Buchanan, Nebraska quarterback Tagge and Chester Marcol, a record-setting kicker—62-yard field goal—from tiny Hillsdale College.

Cincinnati picked California defensive tackle Sherman White and Louisiana State defensive back Tommy Casanova; Chicago selected Southern Illinois offensive tackle Lionel Antoine and Iowa defensive back Craig Clemons; Denver chose Houston tight end Riley Odoms and St. Louis went for running back-wide receiver Bobby Moore of Oregon and Arizona linebacker Mark Arneson.

Wednesday's selections included the ageless Washington Redskins' taking 27-year-old running back Moses Denson, by way of Maryland State and the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian League.

The Redskins, who traded most of their early draft choices as George Allen built his Over-the-Hill Gang, were shut out during Tuesday's first seven rounds. Their eight-round pick of Denson brought mock cheers from the other teams.

Michigan had the most players drafted—10—and the Wolverines' conference, the Big Ten, also led with 43. Notre Dame and Wisconsin produced eight draftees apiece while 32 came from the Southeastern Conference, 31 from the Big Eight and 30 from the Pacific-8.

Other first-round picks included Stanford defensive end Greg Sampson by Houston, Georgia guard Royce Smith by New Orleans, Jackson State wide receiver Jerome Barkum and Michigan linebacker Mike Taylor by the New York Jets, Stanford linebacker Jeff Siemon by Minnesota, Penn State running back Franco Harris by Pittsburgh.

Rampant Tankers Claim 1st Win

Rose High School claimed its first swimming victory of the year, defeating Staunton Military Academy, 52-43, in a dual meet on Monday. The East Carolina junior varsity, swimming against Staunton at the same time, won, 70-25.

Rose was sparked by Tom Adams and Mike Van Dyke, both double winners. Adams won the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard butterfly, while Van Dyke took the 50 and 100-yard freestyles.

Paul Schiffl of East Carolina was a double winner, too, winning the 200 freestyle and the 100 butterfly.

Summary of the Rose-Staunton meet:

200 medley relay: Staunton (Rodrigues: Cook, Hogerton, Pardo), 1:56.19.
200 freestyle relay: Staunton (Rodrigues: Cook, Hogerton, Pardo), 1:56.19.

Inside Report At FARMVILLE CENTRAL

By VERA PARKER

Now that first semester exams are over, there is much work Farmville Central students must do in order to prepare ourselves for the coming four months. Then it will be time to begin those drastic exams again.

Although a large number of seniors were exempted from taking exams because of the grade averages, we will have to work hard to maintain our step ahead of the teachers.

Russ Cotto, school principal, said he was satisfied with the way the exam schedule worked out. The students were awarded a day off after exams were completed.

The student body is greatly impressed with the East Carolina University student teachers here. They are: Mrs. Alexis Cott, English; Miss Deborah Falls, health and physical education; Daniel Bolick, health and physical education; Miss Finnia Sutton, mathematics; James Cox, social studies; Johnny Bond, business education.

NHS Meets

The National Honor Society at Farmville Central met recently with National Honor Societies of Conley, North Pitt and Ayden-

Grifton. They discussed ways to improve the organization.

The club chose to meet each month at one of the four high schools. The next meeting will be held this month at North Pitt High School. The officers of each club will participate in the monthly joint meetings.

The brick masonry class, with assistance from the horticulture class, has completed the Green House at Farmville Central. The facility will be used for experimenting with a variety of plants. Author Davis heads the masonry class while horticulture students work under E.P. Bass.

Farmville Central students ordered their graduation invitations before the Christmas holidays. The color chosen for the caps and gowns is old gold.

The school annual, "Pawprint", is well on its way to the publishers. Co-editors for the annual are Maria Tugwell and Lizzie Tyson.

Junior-Senior Plans

The junior class has begun making plans for the Junior-Senior event.

The junior class did not make enough money from their magazine sale to finance the activity. Each junior who plans to attend must pay $2 by Feb. 18.

Farmville Central students participated in the College Day program held recently at Conley High School. Representatives for colleges, universities and technical institutes in the area were on hand to answer any questions the high school students had about the various schools.

The Aviation-Science class took a trip to Cherry Point recently. They were shown the radar stations, control towers, Marine barracks, modern aircraft and weather stations. Later the students dined in the mess hall.

The wrestling team here is in second place in the conference. The junior varsity boys are in eighth place in the conference.

The varsity basketball boys' team are currently number two in standings. The team is two games away from first place. They have won nine straight games.

The girls' basketball team is to be congratulated for its second win of the season.

Survey Includes Martin County

Martin County will be one of 14 counties in the state which will participate in a survey of farm operators to determine farm expenditures and pesticide usage.

Conducted by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service, the survey will be used to help determine the costs of farm production and the relative importance of various expenditures; to provide information on purchases and methods of use of pesticides and chemicals; and to assist with the Department's estimates of net farm income.

Enumerators working with farmers in Martin County are Kenneth A. Moore of Ayden and Charles Robert Dycus of Sanford.

The white-tailed deer is related to domestic cattle and like them possesses a four-chambered stomach.

Spokane Ready A World Ecological Exposition

By MICHAEL UPTAGRAFFT
SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)—
J.J. Downing and S.R. Scranton would never believe what they started.

Two years from now the place where they built a sawmill a century ago will be the site of a world exposition dedicated to the environment to which, 100 years ago, they doubtless paid little attention except for purely practical reasons.

The two were the first settlers at the falls of the Spokane River just below where an anticipated 4.5 million persons will pass through the gates of the Expo-74 during the Ecological Exposition's six-month run from May through November of 1974.

Stock Raising Partners

The two men had come into this area in 1871 from Montana, where they had been partners in a stock raising operation. They quickly realized the potential of the power developed by the falls of the river, one of the largest for its length in the world. The Spokane
River rises in Lake Coeur D'Alene about 25 miles east of here and runs westward for about 50 miles before emptying into the Columbia River. The river ranges up to 200 yards wide at some places.

Although there was power in abundance for their mill, the two partners apparently lost interest in the operation because of the long distances they had to haul timber after it was cut. They sold out in 1874 and moved on.

By this time, however, more people had moved into the area and, in 1880, the city of Spokane was incorporated with a population of about 350.

The railroad arrived about this time and the city grew rapidly to its present position as the hub of the 80,000 square mile inland empire of the Pacific Northwest.

Smallest to Host Expo

Spokane, at its present size of about 180,000, is one of the smallest cities if not the smallest ever to host a world exposition.

The idea came into being about two years ago when the Spokane County Historical Society thought it would be a good idea if something were done to celebrate the city's centennial year, which was arbitrarily set at 1974.

Court Is Cancelled

A special criminal term of Pitt County Superior Court, set for March 6, as been cancelled because of the inability to supply a judge to preside over the one-week term.

H. L. Lewis, Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court said the announcement of the cancelling came from Superior Court Judge
Robert Rouse, earlier this week.

The special term was one of seven special criminal sessions scheduled for the first six-months of the year in an effort to dispose of a back-log of cases on the Pitt Superior Court docket.

Other special sessions, Lewis noted, are still scheduled to be held.

Remaining criminal terms of superior court scheduled
through June, include regular terms of superior court scheduled

Remaining criminal terms of
superior court scheduled
through June, include regular terms beginning March 13 and 20, April 17, May 8 and 15, and June 26. Special terms are scheduled to start February 7,
March 27, and April 3 and 24.

Received Plaque At YDC Session

Sonny McLawhorn of Rt. 1, Winterville was honored last week in Charlotte during the Young Democrats Club installation activities as the "Outstanding College
Democrat" for 1971.

McLawhorn, an East Carolina University graduate, received a plaque in recognition of his selection as the state's top collegiate Democrat from new YDC president John Powell of Charlotte.

The recipient served as chairman of the North Carolina
Federation of College
Democrats in 1971, directing YDC activities at some 30 colleges and universities that collectively boast 2,000 members.

McLawhorn is employed by the Pitt County Board of Education.

Keynote speaker for the YDC session was Minnesota Sen.
Hubert H. Humphrey, a Democratic presidential candidate.

The society brought the idea to the chamber of commerce and shortly thereafter committees of local businessmen and officials began working on the celebration idea.

From this, George Reitemeier, chamber manager, said, the idea for hosting a world exposition was born.

Planning the Celebration

"However, it wasn't just saying let's have an exposition and that's that," Reitemeier said in an interview. "There were many things to do before we could go to the Bureau of International Expositions in Paris for approval of the idea."

An Expo committee was formed and began the planning.
Then a site was chosen.

This was Havermale Island, a 50-acre island located in the middle of the river in the center of the city. The falls where Downing and Scranton built their sawmill is located just off the west end of the island.

Since the city is a railroad hub for the Pacific Northwest, there are tracks running all over the city and several of them run across the island.
After a long series of negotiations the railroads donated a total of 13 acres of land on the island to the city for use in the exposition and agreed to remove their tracks from the Expo site. Work on this has begun.

Then came the problem of the city acquiring the entire island, most of which was in private hands. To date, the city has purchased most of the property on the island or has contracted to do so. Financing has been primarily by a business and occupation tax paid by local merchants.

Group Visits Paris

With the initial site acquisition and preparation taken care of, King F. Cole, Expo managing director, led a delegation to the Bureau of International Expositions at

Paris to get approval of the exposition. That came last Nov.
24 and the pace of the exposition began to quicken.

Cole said the next hurdle is to get congress to approve funds for a federal pavilion. "We don't need much from the federal government," he said,
"only the pavilion." He hopes to have a congressional appropriation by May "to give us two years in which to build the federal pavilion."

Although Expo-74 is listed as an international exposition, Cole said he doubts very many foreign countries will participate. "If we get four foreign countries to come it will be considered a success," he said.
The primary target for the exposition will be North American industries.

Shepherd of the Arts Throughout North Carolina

"NORTH CAROLINA BY NORTH CAROLINIANS"...a traveling exhibit of North Carolina scenes by North Carolina photographers has been a great success with the State's citizens. (Photo by Tommy Estridge)

A young, vital State agency, the North Carolina State Arts Council is the catalyst for stimulating statewide interest and involvement in all the arts.

Text by Jerry Raynor

Among state agencies it's very young. But in its record of accomplishments it has already gained a solid reputation as a trustworthy veteran.

The North Carolina State Arts Council will be five years old in April. Inaugurated by the N.C. Legislature in April, 1967, the role of the Council has been defined as one... "to promote all of the arts — drama, dance, film, literature, the visual arts, public media, architecture, the crafts, etc. — throughout the entire state."

Quite a large order for a small agency, one headed by young, energetic Edgar Marston, and the N. C. State Arts Council after five years still operates with a permanent staff of only five members. In addition to Marston staff members are: Charles W. Springman, Program Associate; Anne K. Underwood, Community Associate; Ruby G. Hearn, Administrator; and Pamela W. Huffman, Secretarial Assistant.

It must be noted, however, that a large measure of the success of the agency can be credited to the unstinted dedication of numerous enthusiastic citizens from every part of the state who have in one way or another encouraged and worked closely with the permanent staff in efforts to make North Carolina the undisputed leader in the South in a grassroots expansion of the arts.

Record Achievements

The record of achievement chalked up by the Council is indeed an astonishing one. It is a record amply justifying the faith of farsighted legislators; and one that is a continuing source of pride to Tar Heels in all walks of life.

Sam Ragan, chairman of the N.C. State Arts Council, recently outlined the broad aspects of the Council's programs: "These are, for the most part, people-to-people programs, and the Arts Council has literally crossed the State from the Albemarle country on the coast to the far reaches of the mountains of Western Carolina in its efforts to bring the arts in all their diversity to as many people as possible."

Ragan's statement accurately reflects the scope of services furnished by the Arts Council to the people of North Carolina.

Literary, Dance Grants

Within the last two years, for example, literary grants amounting to $15,000 were given to assist 34 publications. Most, but not all, were university magazines. With this money, the magazines are now able to offer awards to writers at large in annual competitions. A case in point locally is Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, which currently offers $500 in writing awards annually.

Direct salary assistance for a limited period of time is a program that has been a lifesaver to a number of struggling community art projects. In the past two years, ten art programs have received funds for salary supplements ranging from $240 provided the Goldsboro Community Arts Council to $2,400 each received by Rockingham County and High Point City Arts Councils.

Two major dance programs were sponsored by the Arts Council. To provide six universities in the state with three day residencies by the Murray Louis Company, the council furnished a total of $3,516 in state funds to match an $8,000 subsidy from the National Endowment for the Arts. The dance company appeared at Atlantic Christian College, Duke University, Western Carolina University, UNC-Greensboro and UNC-Charlotte.

Performances by members of the School of Dance of the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem were increased during the past two years to a total of 40 performances. Half of these were ballet programs, directed by Robert Lindgren, with the other half composed of modern dance programs directed by Miss Pauline Koner. The Council earmarked $10,000 to underwrite this tour, one of the most popular in the Council's continuing series of programs.

Poetry Reading

Another Council event that has received wide critical acclaim and broad popular response is North Carolina's poetry reading circuit. In the first two years, the Council sponsored a total of ten readings. During the biennium just ended, the number of readings was expanded to 16. Community arts councils and universities joined in sponsoring the poets' appearances. East Carolina University and the Kinston Arts Council were among those giving their support and providing facilities.

A museum study tour in which 35 art teachers from public schools across the state participated gave the teachers an opportunity to visit major museums and commercial art galleries. The teachers studied new ideas in visual arts in a week long tour that included museums in Raleigh, Washington, Philadelphia and Baltimore. For this third annual tour, the Council provided $5,954 to cover basic expenses.

In 1970, for the first time, the Council sponsored a statewide photographic exhibition and tour of photographs. Entitled "North Carolina by North Carolinians," the show continues to be a solid success, with more than three quarters of a million North Carolinians having viewed it to date. Opening at the 1970 North Carolina State Fair, "North Carolina by North Carolinians" has since been shown in shopping malls, public libraries, schools and art centers across the state and remains very much in public demand. This exhibition has also served the purpose of giving North Carolina photographers an opportunity to show their best efforts to fellow citizens. For this project, the Council provided $20,582.

Indian Crafts Aided

In the North Carolina mountains, native Indian arts and crafts were highlighted in May 1971 in four one-man exhibitions of Indian Crafts. To help the organizers of the Cherokee Indians' Qualla Arts and Crafts group, the Council partially subsidized the project by providing $2,400 in assistance funds.

Many Projects

The list of projects in which the North Carolina Arts Council has participated, either through programs conceived by the Council or through grants, subsidies or by providing consultants for a wide range of activities, is a long and impressive one.

To cite but a few, it has included grants to the Africana Art Gallery, Inc. of Raleigh; scholarships for nine North Carolina students for summer sessions at Brevard Music Center; assistance to the annual Eastern Music Festival held in Greensboro; and general exhibition funds for St. John's Gallery in Wilmington.

In all instances, grant and subsidy funds are provided only to organizations, never to individuals, requesting assistance. To be eligible for consideration, the requesting organization must be one that is registered non-profit with the Secretary of State.

There are times when a grant provides the impetus for an exciting new development in the state. A notable recent instance is that of a $5,000 beginning grant made in May 1971 to two young men fired by enthusiasm for establishing a new resident children's theater to tour the state with family type entertainment.

The Council's decision to underwrite this idea has been shown to be well grounded. Even before the first production is scheduled to begin its circuit of public schools and civic centers, the infant Carolina Repertory Theater has attracted widespread public support. It has received more than $50,000 from foundation grants and other sources as a tangible expression of approval of plans to bring wholesome live family entertainment to the children of North Carolina.

Future Plans

Speaking of the future of the arts in North Carolina, the Council's director, Edgar Marston commented: "During the next two years we shall continue to work for the goals stated when the Council first began its work — participation in the arts by a greater percentage of the state's citizens and a situation wherein more professional artists can make their living in North Carolina. "It is commendable," Marston added, "that an enlightened state government can have these goals."

The Worry Clinic Magnetism Is Not Real Love

Dorothy's case is typical of mere physical magnetism vs. true love. In both, the victims get butterflies in their tummy, plus palpitation of the heart, tremors and an ecstatic mood. But make your brain the Captain and never let your emotions mutiny! Don't marry before age 20!

By GOERGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.
Case S-587: Dorothy M., aged 19, is a college coed.
"Dr. Crane," she pleaded, "doesn't one's heart indicate when a person is in a true love romance?"

"For I am now head over heels in love with a classmate. His very voice on the telephone gives me palpitations of the heart."
"If he jilts me on a date, I can't eat and I actually feel sick at my stomach."
"So isn't this true love?"

Heart vs. Brain
People who marry after the age of 25 have fewer divorces than those who wed in the late teens. Why?

Because those past 25 have often been immunized against sheer sexual infatuation of the sort that Dorothy describes.

Inexperienced young people have romanticized in their imaginations during their early teens till they go almost emotionally berserk at 18 or 19 when they finally grow infatuated with a real sweetheart. Usually they are hypnotized by what we call physical magnetism, plus the earlier picture they have conjured up of that "one and only" lover they think has been predestined just for them.

When you are caught up in this type of ecstatic emotion, you tend to ignore your brain and merely drift along deliciously in a state of erotic intoxication.

Cold facts and even the advice of your best friends seldom will shatter that glorious "halo" you place over your sweetheart.

So the parents and friends should stall for time, urging the "victim" to get at least a year of college or learn a trade and defer the wedding till the age of 20 or 21 for girls (22 to 25 for boys).

And if you infatuated teenagers can still make your brain operate, grit your teeth and also stall for time.

Those people who wait till 25 or later to marry have weathered one or two previous infatuations, so they finally realize that such an intoxicated state is not of "one and only" type.

That's why they begin to enshrine their brain as Captain and refuse to let their heart mutiny against it.

For happy marriage does not even demand original ecstatic emotional intoxication like Dorothy's.

Indeed, you can learn to develop an overwhelming emotional attachment for a desirable member of the opposite sex, just by going through the proper motions, even AFTER the wedding!

Ancient peoples, like the Hebrews and the Chinese, often matched young people and the divorce rate never remotely attained that of modern times, where infatuated youth marry, often in a state of sexual hypnosis.

If you are ardently in love before the wedding, well and good, providing your brain has also checked off your prospective mate as "Superior" or "Very Superior" on the scientific Rating Scale below.

So send for may 200-point "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Rate before you take a lifetime mate!

And these 200 traits will help shatter your hypnotic trance and put eyes into the head of blind Cupid.

Stall till you are at least 20, and use these Rating Scales to make sure you pick A-1 quality matrimonial merchandise at the outset!

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

Amazing feats of mind-reading, ESP and hypnotism will be performed by John Kolisch at East Carolina University Thursday.

Kolisch will perform, using volunteers from the audience in ECU's Wright Auditorium at 8 p.m. Among his well-known accomplishments with volunteer subjects are levitation of the body and induced self-hypnotism.

Public tickets are available from the ECU Central Ticket Office.

Hunters bag 20,000 to 35,000 deer in Ontario each year.
