

Tax-Listing Period In Pitt Is Extended

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon voted to extend the listing period for 1971 property taxes to February 15. Commissioners, in extending the listing period, indicated their action was taken because of an apparent misunderstanding among many tax listers over the January listing deadline.

The board's action now allows tax payers until February 15 to list their property for tax purposes without the 10 per cent penalty for listing after the last day of January. However, persons or business firms failing to list before the new February 15 deadline will face the 10 per cent penalty for late listing.

Commissioners gave tentative approval yesterday to expanding the county's computer center.

Gene Windham, manager of the county's computer operation told commissioners the present computer is used on the average of 229 hours per month as compared with an average of 105 to 110 hours for other computers in the state. More capacity is needed, he explained, to make the operation more efficient.

Based on Windham's report, the board gave tentative approval for enlarging the center's equipment, subject to cancellation of the order anytime up to 30 days prior to delivery.

Windham told the board that delivery on part of the equipment would take eight to 10 months while up to 18 months would be required for delivery of the entire new IBM System Three equipment.

At present the county is paying about $5,400 per month for rental of the equipment. The new system will rent for approximately $7,100 per month.

Two members of the Ayden Zoning Board of Adjustments were reappointed by Commissioners.

Levi Worthington and Billy Nobles were re-appointed for two-year terms on the Ayden board.

Commissioners To Seek Re-Election

BRUCE STRICKLAND

CHARLES GASKINS

Incumbent Pitt County Commissioners Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur, Robert L. Martin of Bethel and Charles P. Gaskins of Greenville, filed for re-election to the board yesterday with the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Gaskins, currently serving as chairman of the board of commissioners filed for a seat from District One (Greenville Township), while Martin filed for the District Two seat and Strickland for the District Three post.

District Two includes Bethel,

Belvoir, Pactolus and Carolina townships while District Three includes Falkland, Fountain, Arthur and Farmville townships.

All three of the commissioners have held seats on the board for several years and have served as chairmen and vice-chairmen of the board.

Martin has been a commissioner since 1956, and is currently serving as president of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, while Strickland has been a member of the county board since 1960.

A Greenville businessman and former Pitt Register of Deeds, Gaskins was appointed to the board in 1967 when the North Carolina General Assembly expanded the board from five to six members, giving an additional seat and more equal representation to Greenville Townships. He was elected to a four-year term in 1968.

Martin is agent for the Seaboard-Coast Line Railroad in Greenville and a farmer. Strickland has farming and warehouse interests.

Pushes Docks Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he would seek action late today on legislation to halt the West Coast dock strike.

The Montana Democrat made the announcement in a nearly empty Senate, and said aides should get word to the members that the dock strike bill will be called up between 4 and 5 p.m.

It would take unanimous consent to put the bill before the Senate, because it is not yet on the calendar of legislative business.

Mansfield made his announcement after criticizing the Senate record for absenteeism and inaction so far this year.

"It's been a lousy January and so far it's been a lousy February," Mansfield told newsmen.

Asked if he thought the House would be able to act before Congress quits Wednesday night for a Lincoln Day recess, Mansfield said his concern is to get the measure through the Senate by then.

Limited Response

The American Red Cross Pitt County Bloodmobile collection in Ayden yesterday resulted in a very limited response from town and area citizens with a total of 24 units collected and four donors rejected.

Quota for the Ayden collections effort was 135 units.

Douglas Morgan, chairman of the Pitt County Bloodmobile, observed that the blood program is a total county effort and he hopes that collection drives scheduled for other dates this year will be more successful.

"The Ayden collection," Morgan said, was "well planned and organized. Ralph Riggs, president of the Ayden Jaycees and the Ayden Jaycees members really did a fine job in publicizing and organizing the drive."

Ready Dollar Day Event

Because it has been an unseasonably warm winter, Thursday's city-wide Dollar Day in Greenville will be one of many winter bargains.

According to Harold Creech, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchant's Association, February's Dollar Day in Greenville will "feature exceptional bargains since the unseasonable warmth of the early part of winter resulted in slower sales of winter items. This of course means there are going to be more bargains available than is usual for the February Dollar Day."

Thursday, "practically every store city-wide will be taking part in this semi-annual event," Creech pointed out.

Again, as in the past, the coin operated parking meters will be covered with bags to provide a free parking situation for that day.

Creech noted that in the past, Dollar Days draw shoppers into Greenville from as far afield as Wilmington, Raleigh and Rocky Mount to take advantage of the traditional bargain days. "I'm sure Thursday will see the out of town shoppers coming in again," he commented.

The next big Dollar Day comes in August, when shoppers will have an opportunity to pick up summer bargains before Greenville's stores move into their winter lines.

"I'm sure we're going to have a big day of it Thursday," Creech said. "It's become the biggest thing in Greenville, and this particular one will probably be the most successful yet."

Disclose New Boat-Building Plant Slated For Greenville

Plans for a new multi-million dollar manufacturing plant were announced by National Boat Works, Inc. president Eddie Smith at a special dinner during which Gov. Robert W. Scott spoke last night.

The plant will be constructed in Greenville's expanding industrial park to meet the increasing demand for Grady-White pleasure boats.

Upon completion, the 150,000 square foot facility will become one of the largest production plants of small powerboats on the nation's east coast. It will supply the firm's growing network of dealers along the eastern seaboard from Maine to Florida and in the Great Lakes region.

Smith said the plant will have a production capacity of 2,000 boats annually, which is twice its present output. Employment is also expected to double. The company presently has a force of 150 craftsmen.

Smith paid tribute to the company's employees for making the hand-crafted Grady-White boats a success. He told the civic and business leaders at the dinner held at the Candlewick that in three years National Boat Works has increased employment by more than 300 percent and doubled sales.

"We like to think that the weight of our presence is now being felt," he stated.

"We have a special responsibility because we represent local initiative," Smith stated.

The new plant will be built on a 35.5 acre site purchased from Greenville Industries, Inc., a community organization formed to encourage industrial development in Pitt County. Additional adjoining property has been optioned by the firm for future expansion purposes.

A color oil rendering of the building was unveiled at the announcement dinner. The rendering was unveiled by National's executive vice president Wiley B. Corbett.

Gov. Scott offered his congratulations to the firm on its development and expansion.

"A company has many options," the governor stated. "It can go any where and it makes us shudder to think that any company may do that. I've got the feeling that many here in this room went further than the call of duty in working out problems in order that they might remain here."

Noting that National Boat Works would be doubling its production, the governor stated, "We really have a new industry coming here."

He said the decision to expand is an expression of confidence in the business they are in and in Greenville "by their decision to remain here."

Smith announced that preliminary site work already has begun, and that construction is scheduled to start immediately. National has negotiated a contract with George W. Kane, Inc., the state's second largest builder, for design and construction. The project will be under the supervision of Kane's Eastern North Carolina Division, headquartered in Henderson and managed by Mack G. Parsons. Al Hutton of Greenville, a veteran Kane engineer, is the project manager.

National Boat Works, Inc., acquired Grady-White Boats, Inc., in 1968. The firm was founded a decade earlier by a group of Pitt County businessmen. From its beginning, manufacturing operations have been performed in several former tobacco warehouses on Albemarle Avenue in Greenville.

Special Environmental Proposals Submitted

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sent Congress a special environmental message today proposing half a dozen new legislative measures including a tax on air-polluting sulfur emissions.

Other proposals made by the President would:

—Ask the United Nations to establish a special environment fund, which would reach $100 million over five years and the United States would support with a fair share of the funding.

—Encourage states to start controlling the location of highways and airports by 1975 or else start losing federal aid for such projects.

—Discourage construction on the dwindling lands bordering lakes, rivers and oceans by restricting tax advantages.

—Control the land-disposal of toxic wastes through state regulation under federal guidelines.

—Control soil runoff from construction projects, again through federal guidelines and state regulation.

—Make it a federal offense subject to criminal penalties for the first time to harm animals listed as endangered species, and extend legal protection to species headed for the endangered list.

At the same time, Nixon announced a complete ban on the use of all poisons to control predatory animals on federal land. Poisons have been used by livestock grazers on federal lands, especially to control coyotes which attack sheep.

In other executive actions, Nixon said he has ordered the development of occupational health standards to protect farm workers from pesticide poisoning, and has ordered the preparation of new insulation standards for federally aided multiple dwellings to conserve energy.

He added that federal tax policy is being "clarified" concerning tax exemption for the financing—by industry—of facilities to recycle industrial wastes.

Nixon reminded Congress that 18 of his 20 major environmental legislative proposals last year are still awaiting action.

any amount and equal to payment which the employee receives from the military for training will be deducted from the salary paid to him by the Housing Authority.

The maternity leave policy, which is similar to the guideline adopted by the city, states that an employee may be granted maternity leave without pay for a period not to exceed six months.

Pay, in lieu of accrued, unused annual leave, may be claimed in maternity cases and, "in as much as child-birth is not illness, no sick leave can be used," the policy reads.

Assistant director J. C. Lamm reported that the annual contributions contract for the 78 housing units in Newtown had been executed by the government and everything is now in order preparatory to advertising for bids.

The annual contract calls for the construction of 78 units, 16 of which will be utilized by the elderly. Price of the project will be $1,393,337, according to the contract.

The government is obligated to pay the principal and interest on bonds issued by the authority in the amount of 100 per cent of the total project development costs.

One unit was vacant in N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) during the month of January leaving 64 units in occupancy. Mrs.

Sallye C. Streeter, director of tenant affairs reported. Rent averaged $37.64.

In N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park) two units were vacated during the month but one was rented soon after, she said. Residents in the 150 units paid an average of $43.88 in rent.

All 188 units in N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) were occupied and residents paid $45.47 in rent. The 40 units in N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood) were also occupied during January, Mrs. Streeter reported, and their rent averaged $43.72.

The director said that she attended a housing seminar in Charlotte Jan. 16-18 that included sessions on tenant selection practices, lease and grievance procedures and prototype costs.

A Person May Fib To Hide Loneliness

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: There is a woman in our office who tells the most outrageous lies! She claims she has a gentleman friend. [But nobody has ever met him.] She said he gave her a bracelet for Christmas which is too "good" to wear to the office.

She says he lives "out of town," and occasionally on Monday mornings she will report that he was here for the weekend, or she's been "there" to visit him.

This woman is no teen-aged kid. She is in her forties. Is she sick? How can we let her know she isn't kidding anybody?

THE GIRLS AT THE OFFICE

DEAR GIRLS: She's not necessarily sick, but she must be pathetically lonely to fabricate such tales. To let her know she isn't kidding anybody would be very unkind. Why not let her think you believe her? It wouldn't cost you anything.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband is coming to visit our children soon. He is now married to the woman who caused our divorce. At the time of our divorce he told me that he loved this woman above everything else in the world.

When he wrote to say that he was coming, he asked me to get him a "date" while he is here. Should I?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Yes. With a psychiatrist.

DEAR ABBY: My eldest daughter is being married soon and I am going to give her the nicest wedding I can afford. I am a divorcee with seven other children to raise, so I am on a very tight budget. I sent invitations only to adults because it is costing me $7 a plate, but now I am getting "acceptances" back from people who are including their children. [Mostly on the bridegroom's side.]

Abby, I just can't afford to have any more people. I don't want to make any enemies, but how can I handle this?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Write, or telephone those who have "accepted" for their children, and explain that your budget allows only for adults. They should respect your frankness as well as your determination to stay within your budget. And if they don't, they'll make better enemies than friends.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to "WONDERING," who wanted to know if it was "normal" for a boy in the eighth grade to kiss his mother goodby every morning: I learned the value of the habit of kissing goodby very early in life.

I was 10 when my father, a policeman, went to work one Thanksgiving Eve and never returned. My mother had forgotten to kiss him goodby that day, and it took her years to get over it.

My son is now married and has two children. HE still kisses me hello and goodby, and he is teaching his children to do the same. And if MY husband ever stops kissing me goodby, I shall start.

WONDERING, ALSO

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

By LYNN SHERR

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A British woman has come to the defense of Feminist Enemy No. 1 in America: Sigmund Freud.

"Women's liberation has been too harsh on Freud," declared Juliet Mitchell, 31, a member of the London Women's Liberation Workshop. "He's immensely important to women."

She said that the popular interpretation of Freud—as the man who said female anatomy condemns women to the home and kitchen—was "Just a vulgarization. True, Freud said, 'Anatomy is destiny.' But his next question was, What is destiny? In throwing out the author for his misogyny, women are throwing out a great work which can help them," she said.

Miss Mitchell, a tall, soft-spoken leader of the women's movement in England and a popular theoretician on both sides of the Atlantic, was in town to publicize the American edition of her new book, "Women's Estate." In it, she discusses the status of the movement throughout the world, including her own country.

"We're still an unaccepted phenomenon in England, operating in a hostile environment," Miss Mitchell elaborated, with regret. "The press is extremely hostile and we're taken as a big joke."

She put the number of active British women at about 5,000—"that is, 5,000 women who go to weekly meetings," she said. "Here in America you meet someone and she says she's into women's liberation and that only means that she believes in equal rights. In England she has to be doing something."

So far, much of the activity has been directed towards union and factory organizing. And there was a series of sit-ins against the Wimpy Bars—among the few London restaurants to stay open late at night—that recently persuaded the owners to seat unescorted women.

In some areas, Miss Mitchell, pointed out, British and American women are working towards similar goals: equal pay, birth control clinics, abortions. But "nobody cares about the use of Ms.," she said.

Miss Mitchell also expressed annoyance with the Superstar status given to Australian Germaine Greer, author of "The Female Eunuch."

"She's your pigeon, not ours," she said, laughing and admitting that Miss Greer is also a friend. "There's a great kindness for other women, but she is not a member of the movement. And the star treatment is against the whole collective spirit. Women don't want the image of brilliance and glamour. Our appeal is to the ordinary woman—the housewife stuck at home, not the career woman."

Miss Mitchell, a socialist who has taught and lectured widely in England and Canada, noted a preference for the term "women's liberation" over "feminism"—generally used interchangeably in this country.

"Feminism says that the oppression of women is primary, that it's the fundamental oppression," she explained. "Women's liberation wants to liberate women from their oppression, too—but it recognizes that it's only one of the oppressions in the world."

"We've never had a strong feeling about the superiority of women like you do over here," she said. "There's never been the pride in what women have one in history. That fits in with our not caring whether a woman is Prime Minister. We're not keen on great women because we don't think women are necessarily so great," she said.

Convention Dates Are Announced

Dates of the state convention were announced at the Thursday evening meeting of the Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa held at the Holiday Inn.

President Cleve Wallace said that the convention will be held in Charlotte April 21-23. She also conducted a business session and asked for committee reports.

Altruistic Chairman La Rue Brunson reported that the chapter's collections of clothes and jewelry would be distributed to the patients at Cherry Hospital. Further plans were discussed for other altruistic projects.

Mrs. Wallace reminded members that the names of new pledges would be presented at the March meeting.

Miss Alya Ray Taylor gave the devotional and read a poem "The Gift of Friendship" by Helen Steiner Rice.

Present Can Be Car Or A Bit More

By AP NEWSFEATURES

Valentine's Day doesn't have to mean just cards and flowers, although it is the biggest single day of the greeting card year, according to Irving Cohen, president of Fifth Avenue Cards. He says the recession hasn't hit the greeting card industry, and he predicts a 15 per cent increase in sales in Valentine Cards this year.

Cohen points out that this year there is an emphasis in Valentine Cards on sentimental themes, and notes that there are also many cards especially designed for servicemen.

For those who want to give more than a card on February 14, the nonprofit Medic Alert Foundation suggests giving its emblem which could do more than show affection—it could save the wearer's life. The emblems include an engraving on the back in which the owner's special medical problem, like diabetes, epilepsy, an allergy or a heart condition, is briefly described.

"For the romantically inclined, we will even arrange to give their Medic Alert 'Valentine' a special postmark by having the emblem and wallet card remailed from any one of 12 communities of love, like Love, Miss. or Lovely, Ky.," says Alfred A. Hodder, executive director of the foundation.

Valentine's day might also be a good time for the woman of the house to present her family with a portrait photograph of herself. Professional portrait photographers point out that with several tips, any woman can face the camera with confidence.

They advise getting a good night's sleep before the sitting, and not to try anything new, like a new hairdo, and say it's best to choose a dress that looks and feels comfortable, with simple lines and no bold prints.

Photographers also say makeup shouldn't be a problem, since today's film is so sensitive to light and color, and advise a moisturized base in a shade close to ones own, with little or no eyeliner, and mascara on the lashes.

Prison Inmates Organize Union

NEW YORK (AP) — Inmates at Green Haven Prison in Stormville, N.Y., are pressing for recognition of a labor union to act as their bargaining agent in matters of wages, working conditions, job training and fringe benefits.

More than half of the 1,800 men at the maximum security institution have signed up for membership in the incipient Prisoners Labor Union, sponsors said Monday.

And the Executive Committee of District 65, Distributive Workers of America, which has 30,000 members, has recommended that the union be made an affiliate.

Sponsors said the union, which is expected to undergo ratification votes by both the prisoners and the union rank and file, would become the first in the nation composed exclusively of prisoners.

A State Corrections Department spokesman in Albany declined comment, but Green Haven Supt. John L. Zelker said he opposed formation of the prisoners union.

Zelker said the union might impair the security and well-being of the prison.

The prisoners say they want more than the 25-to-50 cents a day they now earn for the manufacture of clothing, furniture, brushes, mattresses.

Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., said the reforms promised after riots at Attica state prison and at New York's Tombs city prison had not been put into practice and called the new group "the most hopeful sign that I have seen that we're going to have improvement in the prison system of the state."

Badillo is helping to sponsor the PLU, as are the Urban Coalition, the New Democratic Coalition, and the Legal Aid Society, which helped the prisoners draft membership cards and put them in contact with District 65.

Shirley Raps Primary Law

RALEIGH (AP) — New York Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm says provisions of North Carolina's presidential primary law are unfair and it may result in a lawsuit.

Mrs. Chisholm, first black woman ever to seek the Democratic presidential nomination, spoke to packed houses Monday on the campuses of North Carolina State University and Duke University.

She said the North Carolina presidential primary law is unfair in the formula it uses to allocate national convention votes among the participating candidates. She said it would permit two candidates with a total of 44 per cent of the vote to get all the convention votes while four candidates with 46 per cent of the vote got none.

"This to me is not the democratic process," she declared.

Mrs. Chisholm said a suit challenging the primary law may be filed "within a few days" and said she had been "approached by five different groups to join in the suit." She declined to identify them.

She said that even if she doesn't get the presidential nomination she hoped "to be in a position of real strength to bargain" at the Democratic convention by throwing together a coalition of women, blacks, youths and other minority groups.

"We must have a coalition that can put it all together so when we go to the convention we will not have to squirm," she said. "We hope to have the strength to create a revolution in the most beautiful, bloodless convention ever."

She said if she wins enough delegates to bargain with Sen. Edmund Muskie, the frontrunner, she would insist "a black man must be vice president, a woman must be head of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and an Indian must be head of the Department of the Interior."

Sen. Goldwater Can Still Fly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater says published reports that he can no longer fly an aircraft without a copilot are based on a "complete misunderstanding of the law."

The Arizona Republican, a retired Air Force Reserve major general, said Monday that under Federal Aviation Administration regulations a person over 60 cannot fly a commercial craft under any conditions.

But the 63-year-old Goldwater said a person over 60 who meets FAA medical requirements is not prohibited from flying a noncommercial aircraft, with or without a copilot, and that he had passed the physical examination.

The FAA confirmed Goldwater's interpretation of its regulations.

Political Outlays Can Be High

Stories recently in the news about political campaign financing in North Carolina have tended to add substance to the usual vague talk about the high cost of seeking political office.

Everyone concedes it takes a great deal of money to run for political office, particularly on a state-wide basis. Although we seriously question whether anyone knows exactly what is spent in most large political campaigns, observers usually quote the million dollar figure as the cost for an all-out gubernatorial campaign in this state.

That's a great deal of money by anyone's standards. And it is far less than shows up on the reports on campaign financing which are required under the state laws.

The reports, we suspect, actually show little more than the tip of the iceberg, not because candidates deliberately hide their campaign contributions and expenses; but because in state-wide races there are so many different organizations working for a single candidate it is almost impossible to keep up with what each one does.

In addition to campaign funds flowing into and out of the central campaign headquarters in a state race, there are usually campaign organizations in most of the 100 counties, and these usually raise and spend funds on behalf of the candidate without keeping detailed reports for the central office. Then too, there are area organizations which may also receive and spend contributions without making detailed financial reports to a candidate's state headquarters.

In recent statements a spokesman for one gubernatorial candidate said 25 of his friends pledged $3,000 each to cover what amounted to pre-campaigning expenses . . . that is, just getting started. Another gubernatorial candidate reportedly spent $30,000 for television time during the early weeks of the year just to acquaint the voters with his name, face, and possibly a few of his views. And even a candidate for lieutenant governor said he and a small group of supporters borrowed $150,000 from a bank to start the ball rolling on his campaign.

Those figures are more meaningful and more understandable than the half-million, quarter-million or million dollar figures tossed about when citizens speculate about what a campaign might cost.

Politics is big business even in this state when it comes to campaign expenses. And keeping up with detailed accounts of all the contributions and expenses in every local and state campaign in North Carolina in this election year probably would create the equivalent of another major industry for the state.

Trail Boss Of '72 Campaign

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Riding herd on an in-fighting political party is a job for a trail boss with savvy, grit and a cool head.

John Church sits loose in the saddle as State Democratic Chairman, his eye on the fall round-up of voters.

Going into the turbulent '72 campaign, which promises power struggles in the ranks and a stiff challenge from the opposition, he's confident North Carolina will possibility that the four-man Democratic primary for governor might stir bitterness lingering to handicap the party in the general election.

Parties In Same Boat
He might have worried, he said, before a GOP gubernatorial contest was assured. Now that Jim Holshouser and Jim Gardner are squared off in what looks like a tight Republican primary, he reasoned, both parties are in the same boat.

Commitments he had before taking the job of chairman have been put aside, Church said. His stance is strict neutrality among the candidates.

Contenders to head the state ticket are Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor; Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles, Guilford state Senator; Hugh Morton of Wilmington and Linville; and Dr. Reginald Hawkins, black Charlotte dentist.

"Any one of them would make a great governor," Church asserted. The winner, he added, will take the measure of the Republican nominee.

The presidential preferential vote and its implications for Tar Heel politics left Church searching for words. "How would you describe it?" he asked.

Factors for Uncertainty
Gov. Scott is in the camp of Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine. A move is afoot to get the name of Terry Sanford, Duke University president and former governor, on the ballot. Earlier primaries in Florida and Tennessee have diminished the prospective importance of the North Carolina vote, and some leading aspirants may bypass it.

The outcome could be a Tar Heel delegation to the Democratic National Convention with first-ballot votes tied to minor candidates.

For his part, Church said, as state party chairman he will avoid any expression or action which might indicate partiality for any of the presidential hopefuls.

On a recent Washington trip, he took care to note, Gov. Scott spent the day at Muskie headquarters but he chose instead to visit Democrats in the North Carolina Congressional delegation.

"Pocketbook issues" will be the deciding factor between the parties when voters go to the polls next fall, Church predicted. On that score, he declared, the Democrats can offer the record and program deserving continued support.

BRYAN HAISLIP

keep to the accustomed Democratic trail.

"What's best for party unity" is the way he's running state party headquarters, he said. Gov. Bob Scott named Church, a Henderson chain store executive and state Senator, to the position.

His assignment is to promote harmony among his scrapping friends through the spring primary, and steer the party towards the general election engagement with the Republicans.

One tactic he's considering is a hatchet-burying pow-wow immediately after the blood-letting of the primary.

"We might hold a large party gathering — say, a barbecue — to get us all back together again," the chairman said. "It's been suggested, and we're thinking about it seriously."

Potential For Division
Before any peace-pipe smoking, there will be the heat of battle. Democratic contests for major state offices, plus the first-time presidential primary, all have divisive potential.

How factions are shaping up will be more apparent when the Democrats hold their annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner in Raleigh on March 4. Candidates and their supporters will be out in force, and politicking in hotel corridors, hospitality suites and campaign headquarters will be at fever pitch.

House Speaker Phil Gdwin is dinner chairman. The speaker will be a headline Democrat, and the turn-out should set a record, Church said. Proceeds will enrich the treasury for the fall campaign.

Church discounted the

Democrats Set Telethon Plea

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Robert Strauss, Democratic National Treasurer, is plotting a last desperate scheme to erase the party's oppressive $9 million 1968 campaign debt in one huge bite: a national fund-raising telethon to be held before this summer's national convention.

With the somewhat skeptical approval of National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien, Strauss's telethon over a national television network will begin late on a Saturday night, continuing into Sunday afternoon for a total of 12 to 14 hours. If as much as $5 million in pledged contributions are telephoned in to the political and show business celebrities presiding, Strauss could probably negotiate with certain creditors to liquidate the entire $9 million debt.

That would be a psychological and financial masterstroke, improving party morale and easing the problems of raising the formidable sums needed for the 1972 campaign. It would also greatly enhance the stature of the O'Brien-Strauss team.

But there is serious doubt whether the telethon, remarkably effective in raising funds for muscular dystrophy and other dread diseases, can work for a bankrupt political party. Besides, managers of telethons habitually have trouble actually collecting from donors who have pledged contributions. Strauss hopes to mitigate this by arranging for the donors to telephone their credit card numbers for automatic collection.

If the telethon works, it could end the long frustration for Strauss, a Dallas lawyer and Democratic national committeeman from Texas, which began when he took over the treasurer's post — and the 1968 debt — on March 5, 1970. Because major party contributors would rather see their money financing new campaigns than erasing old debts, Strauss has been unable to dent the vast debt.

Hounded by creditors (especially the telephone company), Strauss had just about given up a few weeks ago when the idea of a telethon was raised by John Y. Brown, Jr., the Louisville, Ky. entrepreneur who developed Col. Sanders Kentucky Fried Chicken. Strauss earlier had considered and rejected a telethon, but Brown convinced him it could work — particularly with the credit card gimmick.

Strauss was further encouraged by the 200,000 telephone calls generated by the Democratic party's mid-day national television response on Jan. 21 to President Nixon's State of the Union address.

Although one network has promised time for a telethon on July 8-9, the weekend before the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach, Strauss would prefer a May or June weekend — perhaps coinciding with Harry Truman's birthday May 8. There is one little problem — rounding up $750,000 to $1 million to stage the telethon.

Colson's Communique
Stung by published accusations that he has been waging covert political warfare against liberal Republican Senators, White House aide Charles W. (Chuck) Colson has written a confidential letter to Sen. Charles (Mac) Mathias, Jr., of Maryland terming the charge "100 per cent untrue."

Reports of White House guerrilla warfare against such liberal Republican Senators as Mathias have

Let's See How It Works

Senator Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut sounded off the other day with a fine rhetorical question. He was worried about the administration's pending bill for drastic reform of the public welfare system.

"Don't we have an obligation," asked the Senator, "before we embark on a national program costing billions of dollars, to test this program out to see how it works?"

The question is a little too long, perhaps, to be chisled in stone in the Senate chamber, but it might usefully be worked into old-fashioned samplers to hang in each Senator's office. Of course the Congress has such an obligation! As Patrick Henry incessantly advised his fellow founding fathers, that is part of the value of a federal system: It encourages small-scale experiments as a safeguard against large-scale blunders.

Apprehension is growing that precisely such a large-scale blunder is in prospect, not only in welfare but in an unrelated field also: automobile air bags. The Department of Transportation, unwilling to abide by Ribicoff's Rule, still is insisting that beginning with 1976 models, all automobiles offered for sale in the United States must be equipped with passive-restraint devices meeting certain standards. What this means, is air bags.

Several weeks ago a divided House Committee on Government Operations warned against premature imposition of the air bag requirement. Agreeing that the device has "an obvious potential" for saving lives, a committee majority nevertheless spelled out a dozen thoughtful reservations.

The air bag relies upon electrical impact sensors. These activate an explosive mechanism, which releases gas of compressed air, which inflates a large nylon bag, which pops out of a hidden compartment, thereby imposing a cushion between the passenger and the dashboard. All this happens in 40 to 60 thousandths of a second.

It sounds like something Rube Goldberg might have invented. To say the least, the system includes a number of component parts that might malfunction. As the committee observed, the sensors and the gas container must remain perfectly ready for split-second activation "for a number of years, under varying temperature, atmospheric pressure, vibration, and other environmental conditions."

The bag cannot be too hard; it cannot be too soft. The blasting device must rupture the gas container without simultaneously rupturing the passengers' ear drums. The triggers must be so sensitive that they will not fire in response to the minor bumps of parking or of bumper-to-bumper traffic.

Public Forum

(Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words)

To the editor:

The League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County has read and has had confirmed in conversations with a member of the County Commission, the director of the Department of Social Services and the chairman of the Social Services Board, that the Pitt County Department of Social Services plans to hire an "investigator" to look into suspected cases of welfare fraud.

We are very concerned about this unprecedented step which the Department of Social Services plans to take.

This person's job description requires a minimum of a high school diploma and three years experience in law enforcement, credit investigation, collections or related types of investigative or law enforcement work.

We feel this "investigator," used as an internal control device peering over eligibility specialists' shoulders, could well be an inhibiting factor and that these workers might become much less willing to help people truly in need.

We fear that this "investigator" is a potential intimidating factor as far as welfare clients are concerned. We fear that this "investigator" might discourage some families with legitimate needs from applying for help.

If there is a need for inspection of a client's eligibility, could this not be done better by someone with social welfare training than by one with a law enforcement background?

The League of Women Voters has a strong belief that the privacy of the welfare participants should be protected. The League also feels that all administrative procedures should be conducted with respect for the rights and dignity of the individuals on the welfare lists.

The League of Women Voters hopes that the guidelines given to the "investigator" will be clear-cut so that he does not invade the constitutionally guaranteed privacy of these individuals.

We also hope that the Department of Social Services and the Pitt County Commission will take great pains to explain to welfare clients just what their rights are concerning this "investigation."

Sincerely,
Margaret A. Blanchard

Words That Wound

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a candidate for a presidential nomination gets tired of hearing:

"You have to admit that it isn't exactly easy to make Phineas Techemseh Weatherall a household name to every voter in America."

"There's at least one advantage you have over all the other candidates. After all, you don't have a record of any kind for them to shoot holes through."

"If we could count on all our other contributors like we do your mother, we wouldn't have to worry where our money is to come from. She sent another $5 today."

"Remember, eat lots of cheese when we swing through Wisconsin. It's a big dairy state. No, I don't think you have to eat anything special in New Hampshire. I don't think the natives there eat much more than elm bark in winter anyway."

"Somehow you gotta ante up some money for the billboard people. What if they get mad and start painting signs on their billboards saying 'Phineas Weatherall doesn't pay his bills'?"

Another $5 came in from your mother. She says she made it selling homemade cookies door to door."

"One of the things we need most, Phineas, is to find a good dread disease you can announce that you've joined the

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL
Feb. 8, 1932

The terrific bombardment of Chapel by the Japanese and the furious reply of Chinese guns stopped early today with little apparent change in the position of either side. Yesterday the Japanese attacked American missions in China while Great Britain and France clashed pointedly at the World Disarmament Conference today over two distinctly separate theories about abolishing the war.

Thieves entered the Five Points Billiard Parlor and Cafe last night and obtained a liberal supply of cigarettes and then cooked themselves a midnight lunch. The thieves are believed to be part of a band of youths that has been operating about town for the last two weeks.

The greatest sales of the new year will be inaugurated by Greenville merchants Thursday, February 11th. It will be the semi-annual "Dollar Day" and thousands of people from the surrounding communities are expected to take advantage of the bargains to be offered.

No Big Business In Red China

By ELMER ROESSNER
As the time nears for President Nixon's visit to Red China, businessmen are becoming more reconciled to the fact that there is no great bonanza in trade with the Chinese mainland. The reasons are:

1. China is producing few exportable surpluses.
2. China has no store of gold or foreign currencies with which it can increase its imports.
3. China is selling as much as it can to Americans, and buying as much as it can afford from Americans already. Since June 11, 1971, it has been legal to export 145 classifications of goods to Red China ranging from buoys to spiegelien, which, as any puddler knows, is a pig iron containing 15 to 30 per cent manganese and 4.5 to 6.5 per cent carbon. Furthermore, before that date it has been possible for China to get goods on the American market and to purchase American products through other places, notably Canada and Hong Kong.

It is unlikely that Chinese importers will be eager to shift sources of supplies with which it has been doing business for years, notably the British Commonwealth and Japan.

However, if American exporters and importers play the game according to the rules laid down by the Chinese, they may increase trade to a limited extent and some importers and exporters may become millionaires in the process. But not many, and not for a long time.

China's total of imports and exports in 1970 has been estimated at about $4.2 billion, an increase of eight per cent over 1969. While exports increased slightly, imports rose 16 per cent, leading to the first trade deficit in three years.

Now $4.2 billion is not a very big pie, considering that China's population is about a quarter of the world's people.

How leading China traders fared in 1970 in millions of dollars:

| Country      | Imports | Exports |
|--------------|---------|---------|
| Japan        | 253.8   | 568.9   |
| Hong Kong    | 467.1   | 10.6    |
| West Germany | 85.1    | 168.6   |
| Britain      | 90.5    | 107.0   |
| Australia    | 41.5    | 145.5   |
| Canada       | 19.2    | 158.8   |
| France       | 69.8    | 43.2    |
| Singapore    | 127.2   | 22.9    |
| Italy        | 63.1    | 57.0    |

Hong Kong's leadership in imports is due to the fact that much was repacked for sale in other countries. Since the Nixon trip was announced, Japan has stepped up efforts to trade with China.

Since 1960, China has bought these products heavily from non-Red nations: wheat, chemical fertilizer, metals, machinery, electronic equipment, transport equipment, pharmaceuticals, crude rubber, cotton, jute, wool, and synthetic fibers and technology.

Pan American World Airways has compiled a 126-page book on "Trade with China," telling how to do business with China. One doesn't for instance, stick a cigar in a Chinese businessman's mouth, slap him on the back and say, "Let's work out a deal over a couple of Bloody Mary's at the bar." The book is $3.95 from Pan Am offices or from Pan Am, Pan Am Building, New York 10017.

Ayden-Grifton SCHOOL NOTES

By ANNE DENSON and SUE HASLEY

The guidance department at Ayden-Grifton has begun several group counseling sessions in order to help students who could not be reached through the usual counselor-to-student channels.

These groups, 14 in all, function as a place where a student can talk out his problems with those who might have had similar difficulties.

The goals of these sessions, as stated by the members, include proving students acceptance and understanding.

The guidance department has set up these counseling groups through study halls.

Preparations are being made for the Junior-Senior Prom. There is a suggestion box for any ideas on the theme, which has not been decided on yet.

Many of the newly-formed clubs are preparing constitutions for their members. These clubs meet at activity period every Wednesday. Most of the clubs have already elected officers and are planning activities to be carried out during the rest of the year.

The pep rally on Friday, Jan. 28, featured the cheerleaders performing a pom-pom routine and cheers. Some of the boys dressed up as cheerleaders and pitched in to help the girls.

From Ayden-Grifton High School congratulations go to Tina King, who scored the highest grade from the school on the Betty Crocker Future Homemakers of America test.

Electrical Week Proclaimed Here

Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West has proclaimed the week of Feb. 6-12 Electrical Week and urged local citizens "to participate in this significant event."

Mayor West pointed out that the "electrical industry and its members provide services which are increasingly essential to the people of Greenville."

"In addition to its present services," he asserted, "the industry is preparing to carry even greater responsibilities for our well-being in the future..."

"It is appropriate that a period of time can be set aside to focus our attention on the importance of the services performed by electricity and the electrical industry," the mayor added.

No One Asking About Blackeyes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire is sporting what appears to be two very black eyes, but no one on his staff has mustered the courage to ask him what happened.

The Wisconsin Democrat wore dark sunglasses at a subcommittee meeting and in the Senate Monday. When newsmen asked about it, Proxmire's answer through an aide was, "No comment."

Other members of his staff said no one had had the courage to ask Proxmire what had taken place and that he had not volunteered any information.

Kilpatrick . . .

It is further objected that the air bag offers no protection (as seat and lap belts do) against panic stops, severe skids, rollovers and sideswipes. There is serious question, in the majority's view, whether air bags will protect a passenger who happens to be "out of normal seat position"—a not unlikely prospect—at the moment of impact.

In fairness, it should be said that a six-member minority of the committee indignantly dismisses these objections as unwarranted. The minority is confident that air bag systems would have an enduring reliability, of 99.999 percent, that problems of bag design have been solved, and finally, that 13,000 lives could be saved each year through adoption of the requirement.

It makes no difference, at the moment, which side is right. The point is that serious and responsible men strongly disagree on the merits of a compulsory, national requirement.

Patrick Henry was on the right track nearly 200 years ago, and Abe Ribicoff is voicing the same wise counsel today. To abandon seat belts (this is part of the deal), and to put reliance upon a complex system not yet fully tested in real-world driving conditions is, in a word, to risk folly. First, let's see how it works.

Fire Departments Offered Assistance By Martin County

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners have approved granting up to $1,200 to any qualifying fire department in the county for the purpose of constructing driveway and parking areas.

The action took place Monday at the monthly meeting of the Commissioners. Money for the projects will come from secondary road funds under a state law that permits such usage of secondary road funds.

Another discussion was heard on claims by Ulysees Rogers that water from State Highway Commission and Board of Education projects was draining on his land, located near the Rogers School in the Bear Grass area. Commissioners directed representatives of the highway commission and the board of education to meet and make a decision on the matter, one of five year's standing.

Two men were named to the County Planning Committee, Robert Haislip Jr and Paul Johnson, both of Oak City.

Commissioners instructed the tax collector to request authority from the state to grant a two percent discount for early payment of taxes in August, and also instructed the collector to comply with the law in inventory listings.

Two small roads were recommended to the State Highway Commission for inclusion on the state road system. One is the Tarkel Neck Road in the Darden Community, the other the J. B. Coltrain Road in Griffins Township.

Confirmation was made by commissioners of extending until February 15 the deadline in Martin County for listing taxes. The extension is already in effect, and the commissioner's action yesterday was a retroactive one.

But two out of three of the Sons of Revolution are against you because your great-great-great-grandfather was tarred and feathered as a Tory in New Jersey in 1778."

Woman Is Given New Pancreas

NEW YORK (AP) — Madeline Caputo, the only living recipient of a pancreas transplant, was discharged from Montefiore Hospital and Medical Center Monday with no restrictions on her activities.

Mrs. Caputo, 32, the mother of a 6-year-old boy, has been suffering from diabetes since she was 17, and 10 weeks ago she was near death with complications.

She still has her own pancreas, which produces digestive enzymes while a second pancreas, removed from an accident victim, supplies her with needed insulin. She also received a new kidney transplanted six weeks after the pancreatic surgery.

Twenty-three other persons who have received transplanted pancreas have died.

Irving Ordered Provide Sample Of Handwriting

NEW YORK (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has ordered author Clifford Irving to submit a sample of his handwriting to a federal grand jury investigating his Howard Hughes "autobiography."

On the advice of his attorney, the 41-year-old Irving refused to supply the handwriting sample Monday during his first appearance before the grand jury.

Judge Morris E. Lasker ruled later, after a closed session with Irving's lawyer and two assistant U.S. attorneys, that the government's request for the sample was proper.

It was not known what Irving would be asked to write. But one federal authority commented with a smile, "We might ask him to write 'H. R. Hughes' five times to make a comparison."

McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. gave Irving three checks made out to H. R. Hughes for a total of $650,000 to be conveyed to the billionaire industrialist for his cooperation in the book.

But in court affidavits identified as Hughes' handwriting and in a telephone news conference a voice identified as Hughes' denied ever meeting Irving or collaborating in the book.

And Irving subsequently admitted that his Swiss-born wife, Edith, deposited and later withdrew the checks from a Swiss bank account she opened in the name of "Helga R. Hughes."

As Irving was going before the grand jury Monday, the Internal Revenue Service announced it had filed income tax liens totaling $490,111 against Irving and his wife and one for $22,446 against Richard Suskind, who helped research the book.

A spokesman said the liens were based on the $650,000 Irving received for Hughes.

Suskind arrived from his island home on Majorca Monday night but had no comment at Kennedy airport. He was expected to appear before the grand jury today.

So far he is the only person who has corroborated Irving's claim of having met with Hughes. In a court paper, Suskind has sworn that he was with Irving and a man he believed to be Hughes in a Palm Springs, Calif., motel last June. He said in the affidavit that Hughes offered him an organic prune and they discussed a mutual interest in health foods before he left the room.

Others who have been called before the grand jury include Mrs. Irving, whom the Swiss authorities have asked to be arrested for bank fraud.

been current ever since the 1970 election when Vice President Spiro Agnew, with White House blessing, attacked former Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell of New York as a "radical liberal." That signalled White House backing for James L. Buckley, running for Goodell's seat on the Conservative party ticket. Buckley was elected.

Colson's Dec. 27 letter was indignant. While conceding obvious "policy differences" between Mathias and President Nixon, the implication that Mathias or any other Republican liberal was being undermined by the White House was "a complete fabrication and totally without foundation."

Colson's letter to Mathias should bury, at least for the present, any fears by Republican liberals that Mr. Nixon would countenance a repeat of the 1970 Charley Goodell phenomenon.

A footnote: Despite their Presidential primary campaigns against Mr. Nixon, the House Republican Campaign Committee will give maverick Republican Reps. Paul (Pete) McCloskey of California and John Ashbrook of Ohio "exactly the same treatment and support" that all other Republican incumbents will receive if they run for reelection to the House.

Aid Bill Is Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling it "below minimum acceptable levels," President Nixon has signed a $2.74-billion foreign-aid authorization bill—$1.5 billion less than what he wanted for the current fiscal year.

"Viewed against the vital national objectives which our foreign-assistance programs are designed to pursue, this act is a great disappointment," Nixon said as he signed it Monday.

The authorization bill is about $300 million below the level mentioned in separate House and Senate foreign-aid appropriation bills which, when settled in congressional conference, will actually provide the money for this year's foreign aid. Presumably, only $2.74 billion of the $3 billion mentioned in the appropriation bills could be spent.

The bill chops U.S. spending in the United Nations from 31.5 per cent of the total U.N. budget to 25 per cent. It also cuts off aid to the Greek military junta unless Nixon declares the money to be among the "overriding requirements" of U.S. security; limits aid to Cambodia to $341 million, and halts all $510 million for military credit sales on April 30 unless the President releases $2 billion authorized for domestic social programs by then.

The bill was passed after four months of wrangling during which legal authorization for foreign aid lapsed twice and was extended temporarily. The end product is a compromise between the Senate's desired reforms and last year's spending.

Much of the drawn-out debate on foreign aid was centered on attempts to tack onto the aid bill various amendments aimed at U.S. disengagement from Vietnam.

Williamston Bd. Seeks Continued Use Of Dump

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's Town Board on Monday night approved a draft request submitted by the town attorney seeking permission from the U.S. Corps of Engineers to continue using the present city dump.

The request is in response to a charge by the corps that Williamston's city dump, in a swamp adjacent to the Roanoke River, violates U.S. Government pollution laws by dumping raw refuse at a point that results in the raw sewage going into the river.

The letter seeks permission to continue use of the dump until the sanitary land fill, already on the planning board by the county, can be put into use and be used by Williamston.

The board also approved taking action to clean out and fill in Skewarky Canal, which because of erosion has become clogged with trees and branches and has damaged the city's sewer lines at certain points.

Crime Compensation Law Gains Popular Backing

EDITOR'S NOTE—There has long been a clamor for society to compensate victims of crime. Seven states now have laws providing compensation to victims of crime or persons injured in aiding victims of crime, and with federal government backing, there may be more on the books soon. A report on the situation:

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Donna M. Morrissey, a young registered nurse, was shot in the left shoulder by an unknown assailant as she got out of a car at a Boston skating rink Dec. 23, 1970.

While Donna was recovering, her father told her about a Massachusetts law which, under certain conditions, provides monetary compensation for victims of a criminal act.

On March 22, 1971, Donna

filed a claim for compensation and after a June 14 hearing, the 25-year-old nurse was awarded $765.20. Three months later, Donna received her money.

Massachusetts is one of six states in the nation with laws compensating victims of crime. A seventh, Nevada, compensates persons injured in aiding the victims of crime.

A bipartisan group of legislators hopes to encourage other states to enact similar laws and, as a stimulus, is preparing a bill for Senate action under which the federal government would pay 75 per cent of the costs of compensation programs established by the states in accordance with federal standards.

Arguments in favor of such legislation include:

William Brown, attorney general of Ohio: "We do everything we can to rehabilitate the criminal, so it's only fair that we help the victim."

Robert Morris, University of Chicago Law School professor, who helped draft a crime compensation bill pending in Illinois:

"It's an extraordinary community which says help your neighbor, but the hell with it if you get hurt."

In addition to Massachusetts, the states already with such victims-of-crime compensation laws are New York, New Jersey, California, Hawaii and Maryland.

The Massachusetts law is fairly typical of the compensation statutes, although the different states have different maximum awards.

It allows the filing of claims for compensation by victims injured in a crime or by certain dependents of victims killed in a crime.

The law provides for compensation of up to $10,000 to victims who have lost more than $100 or two continuous weeks of earnings or support, provided the sum is not covered by public or private insurance. All expenses—including medical costs—are included in the $100 figure which is automatically deducted from any compensation payment. Donna Morrissey, therefore, actually received $665.20 of her $765.20 award.

Claims are filed in District Court and payments are determined by the court which must decide whether a crime was committed, whether the crime directly resulted in personal injury or death and whether police records show the crime was reported promptly.

The law took effect July 1, 1968 and the state attorney general, Robert F. Quinn, says most of the claims filed since then have resulted from assault and battery cases. The state paid $4,498.58 in fiscal 1968-69, $60,885.76 in 1970 and $27,162.33 for the first four months of 1971—the last period for which figures were available.

The number of claims has been lower than expected, according to a spokesman in the attorney general's office. "Most people don't know about this program," he said. "I've even met lawyers who don't know what it is."

The proposal before Congress, in addition to picking up part of the tab for state compensation programs, also would provide payment up to $50,000 for victims of violent crimes committed in the District of Columbia, in national parks and forests, on Indian reservations and aboard airplanes and ships.

Even without the hope of federal money, many states and officials have been considering some sort of compensation law.

An Associated Press sampling showed proposals for such a law pending in a group of states that includes Pennsylvania, Georgia, Illinois, Milwaukee, Michigan, Florida, Missouri and Ohio. Washington, Delaware, Kansas and Arkansas legislators considered such measures in the past and defeated them and there are moves to introduce compensation bills in Colorado and Rhode Island.

Lawyers Oppose Easier Divorce

By MIKE DUFFY
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The American Bar Association has given approval to proposed legislation to legalize abortion, but it refused to endorse liberalized divorce laws which could deprive lawyers of a large portion of their business.

The National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws drew up the proposed legislation on abortion and sought the ABA's support in its drive to have state legislatures throughout the country drop the proposal, which would permit abortion on demand up to 20 weeks of pregnancy.

The ABA's House of Delegates approved it without a word of protest Monday, but later a handful of delegates stipulated that they wanted to be recorded as voting against the measure.

The proposals on marriage and divorce drew heavy criticism.

"We are dealing with whether the family itself will go down the drain," said Ralph J. Bodell of Milwaukee, Wis., head of the family law section of the ABA and leader of the opposition.

Several other delegates said that passage of such legislation would further weaken American family life and increase the number of divorces and family breakups.

The proposal would have created a "no-fault" system of divorce proceedings and eliminated the adversary system in divorce actions.

The proposal was defeated by a vote of 170 to 72. The Philadelphia Bar Association urged passage of a resolution revoking the ABA's approval of federal wiretap guidelines. The resolution would have condemned the use of electronic surveillance in all cases but those involving national security.

The measure was referred for study to a special committee and reserved for action at the ABA's August meeting in San Francisco.

Orders Ala. Hire Blacks

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered Alabama's Department of Public Safety, which includes the presently all-white state trooper force, to hire Negroes and white equally among new employees until blacks make up 25 per cent of the department's personnel.

In a ruling from the bench Monday, U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. said the department has discriminated against blacks seeking employment and that the new hiring requirements must be effected immediately to achieve racial balance.

Johnson left it to the department to find and hire qualified blacks, and he did not ask for changes in the department's present system of testing and interviewing job applicants.

Johnson's ruling was in response to a suit filed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People seeking to require the department to hire only Negroes until one-third of all troopers are blacks.

Johnson said he set the figure at 25 per cent because that was closer to reports given at the hearing concerning the racial makeup of the state's population.

Phyllis Diller Has A Facelift, Will Keep Image

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedienne Phyllis Diller has had a $4,000 reconstruction job on her face, but her famous cackle has been left untouched.

Is she abandoning her standard role as a harried housewife?

"Absolutely not," she says. "I'll still project the same image when performing. I'm not deserting the housewife. I'll just be showing her it isn't a sin to look better."

The work by her surgeon, Dr. Franklyn Ashley, includes a face lift and a nose job. Miss Diller also had her teeth straightened.

She said she decided on the work after an appearance on the Sonny and Cher television show.

"I wore a dog collar necklace and my neck hung out over it on one side like I had a horrible growth and the bags under my eyes had reached the point of no return," the 54-year-old actress said.

Will Decide Competence

RALEIGH (AP) — An escaped mental patient charged in the hijacking of a Continental Trailways bus has been sent to Dorothea Dix state hospital in Raleigh for doctors to determine if he is competent to stand trial.

defendant, Donald Rayson, 22, of Atlanta, is charged with 7 felonies, including kidnaping and robbery. The bus was hijacked early Sunday morning about 20 minutes after it left High Point, N.C.

Police finally stopped the bus, with the hijacker and a kidnaped 15-year-old girl aboard, by putting up a road block of vehicles. The bus rammed through the roadblock, but wrecked on its side in a ditch after slamming into a motorist's car. The motorist was seriously hurt.

Henderson had escaped Friday from a hospital at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he had been sent by a mental hospital for surgery. Henderson was believed to have swallowed a safety pin.

It is not known when the results of the psychiatric tests at the mental hospital in Raleigh will be completed.

Campaign Spending Limit Now Law

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The era of the anonymous political financier is ending, and Americans in 1972 will be told more than ever before about the sources and use of the money behind the candidates.

Those candidates, for the White House and for Congress, will campaign under new spending ceilings which will curb escalating television expenditures.

But disclosure of every campaign contribution over $100, and of the way all the money is spent, is likely to be the major 1972 impact of a campaign-spending law signed by President Nixon Monday.

It takes effect in 60 days, providing two months for a final round of fund-raising under the old rules, more loophole than law.

The new law limits to 10 cents for each eligible voter the sum a candidate may spend for campaign advertising in any primary or general election contest. No more than 60 percent of that amount may be used for television and radio campaigning.

That translates to an advertising ceiling of $3.9 million for each presidential nominee in the final, fall campaign, with no more than $8.4 million of it available for broadcasting.

The final figures will be slightly higher because of what amounts to a provision for cost-of-living increases.

While the spending limits claimed much of the attention during a long congressional controversy over the bill, their impact may not be evident in the 1972 White House campaign.

The measure requires that broadcasters charge political candidates their lowest advertising rate, which is likely to mean there will be at least as much presidential campaign television as there was four years ago. In 1968, Republicans spent about $12.7 million on radio and television in President Nixon's campaign; Democrats say they spent $6.1 million.

With the bill's rate provisions likely to mean a reduction by about one-third in the price of political television time, the 1968 Republican performance could be matched within the new spending ceiling. The over-all advertising limit covers television, radio, newspaper, magazine, billboard and paid telephone campaigns.

It does not cover direct-mail costs, and there are reports that will be a major facet of the Republican campaign to re-elect Nixon.

Nor does it limit a candidate's total campaign spending.

Edgecombe Nips Pitt Paladins

TARBORO — Edgecombe Technical Institute downed Pitt Tech, 112-107 last night, and knocked the Paladins out of any hope for a post-season tournament berth.

The defeat left Pitt Tech with an 8-4 mark in the Northern Division of the Eastern Carolina Community College Conference, and a third place standing in the league. Only the top two teams from each division qualified for next week's conference tournament.

For the first 10-minutes of the game, the two teams swapped baskets, with neither able to get an advantage. But for the next five minutes, Edgecombe pulled away from the Paladins and built up a ten-point spread, 37-27. Pitt turned on a rally in the final five minutes of the period, however, and finally tied it at 51-51 at the half.

In the second period, Pitt grabbed the lead off the tap and pulled out to hold an eight point spread, 76-68. But Edgecombe battled back and moved out into a 92-82 lead. Pitt pulled back within five points, but lost their biggest man, Wayne Brown, who went out with an ankle injury with about five minutes left. After that, Pitt was unable to continue the comeback, and just matched Edgecombe from there on out.

Brown led Pitt with 29 points, while Eddie Stokes had 28 and Henry Beamon had 25. Frank Borwn added 11. For Edgecombe, Tommy Whichard had 32 and Butch Knight had 31, followed by James Cherry with 24 and Ernest Pitt with 20.

Pitt closes out its season on Thursday, traveling to Coastal Carolina Community College.

Coke Ices Tie For City Title

Coca-Cola iced no worse than a tie for the City League title last night with a 71-61 victory over Hallow's Distributing. And Stewart's Sandwiches won its first game of the season, 61-59, over Big Value Discount of Farmville. In the other game, Book Exchange beat College View, 62-48.

Coke, now 11-0, can only be caught by Hallow's, 7-4. Any single Coke win or Hallow's loss will sew up the regular season title for Coke. The rest of the standings have Big Value and College View tied for third with 5-6 records, followed by Book Exchange, 5-6, and Stewarts, 1-10.

Big Value Discount looked like an easy winner in the first half, as it moved out into a 36-27 lead over Stewart's. But the Sandwich men came back with a 34-23 advantage in second half scoring, and that pulled out the victory.

Charles Meeks led Stewart's with 20 points, while Frank Corbitt had 14 and Horace Lawrence had 12. For Big Value, Charles Lehmann and Lester Wells each had 14, while Ivey Smith had 12 and Ronald Parker had 10.

Coke had little trouble in winning its game. They pushed out into a 42-24 lead at halftime and then coasted home. Hallow's rallied for a 37-29 advantage in the second half, but it couldn't overcome the Big Coke lead.

Jim Modlin led Coke with 29 points, while Charles Norfleet had 20 and John Turner had 11. For Hallow's, Gene Rackley had 26, Bob Haubenreiser had 14 and Joe Gaddis had 13.

In the final game, Book Exchange and College View ended the first half in a 28-28 deadlock. But the Exchange took control in the second half, outthitting College View, 34-20, and rolled to the win.

Tom Jordan and Bill Stokes both hit 21 points to lead the Exchange, while Jim Sermons had 14. Tom Hayes paced College View with 21, while Greg Holmes added 12 and Al Como had 11.

Highwaymen Hold To Lead

State Highway continued to hold to first place in the Industrial Basketball League with a 63-54 victory over Empire Brush. Wachovia Bank downed Greenville Utilities, 76-68, and Carolina Telephone beat Vermont American, 73-37, to stay in the runners-up positions.

State Highway is now 10-1, while Wachovia is 9-2 and Carolina Telephone is 7-4. They are followed by Empire Brush, 5-6 and Vermont American and Greenville Utilities, both 1-10, all three of whom have been eliminated from the title race.

In the opening game, Wachovia had trouble with GUCo in the first half, managing only a 38-37 lead at intermission. But in the second half, Wachovia outthit GUCo, 38-31, and it was enough to win it.

Bill Baggett led Wachovia with 17, while Jerry Smith had 16, Terry Sparrow had 15 and Dan Evans had 13. James Gorham led GUCo with 26, while James Ward added 14 and Rufus Bynum had 13.

In the second contest, State Highway eased out into a 32-28 lead in the first half of play. They then outthit Empire Brush, 31-26, in the second half, to hold onto first place.

Smith Worthington led the Highwaymen with 16 points, while Clyde Elks had 14 and Phil Page had 12. For Empire Brush, Curtis Barrett had 21, Dwight Foster had 11 and James Parker had 10.

Carolina Telephone roared away in the first half, building up a 43-17 lead at intermission. In the second half, they outthit Vermont American, 30-20, to win easily.

Willard Jackson led the Phonemen with 22, while Bob Worthington had 11, and Earl Johnson and Danny Tugwell each had 10. Connie McGowan had 12 to pace Vermont American.

Duquesne Loses Top Reserve; Seven Left

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Duquesne's basketball team has no bench. Literally.

The 20th-ranked Dukes have dwindled to seven iron players after the loss of their No. 6 man.

"This team seems to be able to adjust to anything," said Coach Red Manning after Monday night's 72-66 victory over Murray State of Kentucky.

Yes, but this is ridiculous.

Dog Trial Set Sunday

The East Carolina Retriever Club will hold its first annual Hunting Dog Field Trial Sunday, starting at 9 a.m.

The event is open to any retriever who has never won a place in an A.K.C. sanctioned or licensed field trial.

There is no age limit and the dogs may be retrained on the line. Land and water tests will be set up under similar hunting conditions.

The winning dog will receive a silver trophy which can be retired if won three years in a row. There will also be ribbons for the first four places and a possible four Judges Awards of Merit.

The ECRC will also hold its annual Spring Sanctioned Field Trial on Saturday, Feb. 26, at Camp Bryan Farms near Havelock. Stakes for this event will be Qualifying, Derby, and Puppy.

Sunday's event site may be reached by following signs on highways 13 and 11 at the airport.

For further information contact John Adams of Greenville, 756-7240.

The team from Pittsburgh, which has been trying to adjust all season to player departures, was hit again Monday when top reserve Dave Roddy was declared ineligible.

The Eastern College Athletic Conference said that Roddy had violated conference rules by playing in his fourth varsity season, three years at Duquesne and half a season at Miami, Fla. in 1968-9. Under current regulations, a player is only allowed three seasons.

The loss of a player is nothing new to Manning. He started with 14 before opening day and a series of problems dropped the number steadily down. Despite the mini squad, Duquesne has compiled a fancy 15-2 record.

In other games Monday night, third-ranked North Carolina clobbered North Carolina State 101-78; No. 6 Virginia pounded Virginia Tech 107-85; ninth-rated South Carolina whipped DePaul 91-67; No. 13 Southwestern Louisiana beat Eastern New Mexico 75-64; No. 14 Florida State clouted South Alabama 104-81 and 17th-ranked Missouri defeated Iowa State 77-72.

Lionel Billingsy, Duquesne's leading scorer, led three mates in double figures with 21 points.

Robert McAdoo got 31 points for North Carolina, the most any Tar Heel player has scored this year with its perfectly-balanced offense.

Al Drummond's two field goals ignited a 9-1 spurt that helped pull Virginia out of trouble. Kevin Joyce scored 21 points as South Carolina seized the 39th career victory for Coach Frank McGuire; Dwight Lamar poured in 29 points for Southwestern Louisiana; Ron King scored 23 points for Florida State and Greg Flaker fired in 23 to help Missouri win and move closer to a Big Eight championship.

Payton Holds To Point Lead; Crandall Second

Rose High School's Lonnie Payton has widened his lead in the Pitt-Martin-Greene scoring race, but this week finds himself with a new competitor.

Robersonville's Ernest Crandall has moved into the second spot on the list, easing past D. H. Conley's Dwight Hawkins, who has fallen to fourth.

Payton upped his average from the last report to 19.4, and holds nearly a two-point edge over Crandall, who's hitting at a 17.5 clip.

McCoys Williams of Farmville Central moved up from fourth to third with a 16.9 average, while Hawkins is fourth at 16.8. Teammate David Pugh is fifth with a 16.1 average.

Throughout the top 20, there are no new faces this week, although there were some changes in position.

In the team scoring race, Farmville Central has moved up from third to take over the leadership from Oak City, which dropped all the way to fifth. The Jaguars are averaging 66.8 points per game, while Rose holds to second with a 65.2 mark. Conley has third at 64.3 and Williamson is fifth at 63.4.

In the defensive category, Williamson, the leader in the Albemarle Conference heads the list with a 47.7 per game average. Eastern Carolina Conference leader Ayden-Grifton held its position of second with a 51.8 margin, followed by Oak City with a 56.3 mark.

Again, in the girls race, only three have topped double figures for the year. This week, however, there is a different leader as Oak City's Sylvia Jones has taken the top with a 14.6 average. Last week's leader Jennie James of Robersonville is second at 13.1, followed by Joanie Rodgers of Williamson at 11.6.

In girls offense, North Pitt continues to lead with a 50.0 average for the season. The unbeaten girls also holds lead in defense with a 21.3 points per game average.

Albemarle Conference leader Williamson is second with a 46.1 average in offense and a 26.4 mark in defense. They, too, are unbeaten on the season.

Third place in offense is held by Robersonville with a 39.5 mark, while third in defense is Ayden-Grifton at 29.1.

The leading scorers, team offense and defense and overall records follow:

Perhaps your next new car shouldn't be a new car at all.

$5,000 for any previously owned Continental makes more sense than the same amount for an average new car.

If you're going to spend the kind of money that can put you in an immaculate, fully equipped, late-model Continental... don't settle for less. Move up to the prestige, luxury and pride of ownership that is uniquely Continental.

There's no better time than now. Unprecedented sales of 1972 Continentals have resulted in an outstanding selection of previously owned models. You'll be impressed with the cars and the relative cost of moving up.

No matter how you look at it, a nearly new classic Continental makes good sense. Think it over, then talk it over with the dealer nearest you... before you buy a lesser car.

The typical previously owned Continental has a full range of luxury and convenience features. Air conditioning, full power and leather-with-vinyl upholstery are common.

Tar Heels Rip State, 101-78

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After losing by only one point to Virginia Saturday, the North Carolina State basketball team had hopes against North Carolina — but the hopes became ashes Monday night.

The North Carolina Tar Heels won the regionally televised game 101-78, and their coach, Dean Smith, said, "Certainly this was one of our best games of the season."

"I was shocked that North Carolina State elected to run with us. This was one of the fastest-paced games we have played this year."

Smith said N. C. State looked tired after its 69-68 loss at Virginia.

The State Wolfpack did not rebound the Tar Heels, 50-42, and Smith said rebounding "is the only major weakness we have."

Robert McAdoo scored a career-high 31 points for North Carolina, and 7-foot-4 Tommy Burleson led N. C. State with 22 points and 14 rebounds.

The victory enabled North Carolina to tie Virginia for the Atlantic Coast Conference lead at 6-1. N. C. State is 2-5.

In all games, North Carolina is 15-2 and Virginia, a 107-85 winner over independent Virginia Tech Monday night, is 16-1.

Virginia Tech threatened to make the game close until Virginia sophomore Al Drummond led a 9-1 surge with about four minutes left, and the Cavaliers rolled home. Drummond made 12 of his 14 points in the second half. Barry Parkhill had 27 points for Virginia, and Randy Minix had 19 for Tech, which is 11-9.

Clemson, the only other ACC team to play Monday night, won 66-62 over Athletes in Action, a touring team of former college players sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ.

The only regular to start for Clemson in the exhibition was sophomore Denny Odle.

ACC teams are idle tonight. On Wednesday night, Duke will be at Wake Forest, Maryland will be home to Duquesne, and Virginia will play West Virginia at Charleston, W. Va.

Evert Takes Billie Jean

Seventeen-year-old Chris Evert delivers a powerful two-handed back hand shot, right, to her opponents Billie Jean King, who throws her racket after missing a shot. The young Evert crushed the veteran, 6-1, 6-0, in a rematch of their famed 1971 showdown at Forest Hills, N. Y. (AP Wirephoto)

Chris Evert Massacres Old Pro Billie Jean

By HUBERT MIZELL

Associated Press Sports Writer
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Billie Jean King wasn't just beaten, she was massacred. Chris Evert, teen-age darling of the "Net Set," saw the old pro was wavering and moved in for the kill.

"My game stunk from the start," said Mrs. King, who won $100,000 on the tennis courts last year. "She could tell it. Chris kept knocking the ball back, waiting for me to make the mistakes. And, baby, I made 'em."

The 17-year-old Miss Evert, the heroine of Forest Hills in 1971 despite getting smashed by Billie Jean in the semi-finals, got herself a rematch Monday and it was strictly no contest.

"Let's face it, Billie Jean was never in it," said the ponytailed cutie, who thrilled a hometown crowd of 3,500 in the finals of the $25,000 Women's International.

"After three games, I knew she was in deep trouble." Chris methodically buried Mrs. King 6-1, 6-0 on a day of pure frustration for the 28-year-old Californian.

"I'm anxious to see what happens to her career after all this attention," said a frazzled-looking Billie Jean. "If she comes out on tour, she'll find out the facts of life."

Miss Evert cannot, according to tennis rules, become a pro prior to the year in which her 19th birthday falls. She will be 18 next December, opening the way for tour play in January 1973.

"I think I'll try it," Chris said of the pro circuit.

While 99 per cent of the turn-away throng cheered for the local favorite, a small knot of spectators kept yelling, "Go get her, Billie Jean."

Miss Evert knew the sounds. "Those were fellow tour players clapping for her. They stick together."

Chris' serve, a powder puff job at Forest Hills, had more zip this time, but Mrs. King said "I don't think her game has changed that much. Her serve still isn't that hot."

Miss Evert, yellow lace panties peeking from beneath her tennis skirt, recalled that her rise at Forest Hills was "rewarding since many people doubted I'd ever be good on grass courts."

Billie Jean came past and gave Chris an answer for such critics: "Tell 'em to stick it in their ear."

Since she is an amateur, Miss Evert has to pass up Monday's first place check of $4,400. It went back to the sponsors. Mrs. King picked up $3,000 as runner-up.

"I just couldn't believe I could play so terrible," said Billie Jean. "But, I'll be back. I'll reach my peak in June when the big events are here. I won't play as often this year."

She went "flat out" from January to December ... last year to become the first woman athlete to win $100,000 in a year. I did it, big deal. Now I want to win Wimbledon where I played so terrible last time."

Chris Evert will be there, too.

Carolina Back In Third Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The names and places may change elsewhere, but it's still UCLA and Marquette on top of the college basketball poll.

The nation's 1-2 teams from the early part of the year continue to ride high, wide and handsome, spreadeagling the rest of the Top Twenty field.

UCLA made a sweep Monday of first-place votes from the nation's sports writers and broadcasters with 44 for a point total of 880. Marquette, with an identical 17-0 record as the Bruins, collected 784 points for No. 2.

After that, things just didn't look the same as last week.

North Carolina replaced Louisville as No. 3 while the Cardinals dropped to No. 4.

Penn moved up a spot to No. 5, replacing Long Beach State, which skidded to No. 8. Also moving up this week were No. 6 Virginia and No. 7 Ohio State.

South Carolina dropped a spot to ninth while Brigham Young stayed No. 10 to round up the Top Ten.

Marshall remained No. 11, but the rest of the ranked clubs

GOOD TRY

BALTIMORE (UPI) —Tom Matte's 116 yards in 11 ball carrying attempts, including a 58-yard run in the 1969 game, ranks as one of the all-time outstanding Super Bowl performances. Matte's 58-yard scamper, a Super Bowl record, wasn't enough, however, as the Jets upset the Colts, 16-7.

Furman Takes On Davidson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Southern Conference basketball lead goes up for grabs again tonight and under normal circumstances you'd have to like the chances of Furman's defending champion Paladins stepping back into first place.

After all, the Paladins are playing at home against Davidson's front-running Wildcats, and an earlier meeting between the two resulted in a 93-86 Furman victory at Davidson. The defeat snapped a 59-game winning streak for the Wildcats on their home court.

Meanwhile, however, Davidson has moved to the top of the conference standings with a 7-2 record, followed by the Paladins at 5-2.

In addition, the Wildcats right now — even though sophomore star John Falconi is sidelined with an ankle injury — are the hottest team in the league with eight straight victories.

Davidson is 15-5 over-all and Furman 11-9 going into the game, the only one tonight involving conference teams.

The Citadel's Bulldogs posted the only victory Monday night as three league teams took on outside foes. The Bulldogs beat Stetson 93-68 in a game in which they once led by 34 points.

The losers were Virginia Military's Keydets, who took an 87-66 licking from Roanoke's Maroons, and Appalachian State's Mountaineers, who were bombed 101-70 at Mercer.

Lou Meckstroth led The Citadel, now 9-9, with 17 points as the Bulldogs hit on 48.8 per cent of their floor shots and put four players in double figures. Stetson's Anthony Hill had 18 points.

Roanoke shot 57 per cent in beating VMI and boosting its record to 14-4 while dropping the Keydets to 3-16. A 15-6 spree with 16 minutes left put it out of reach for the Maroons, who got 23 points from Jay Piccola and 18 from Beatty Barnes. David Lester had 18 for VMI.

The defeat at Mercer ended a three-game win streak for Appalachian, now 6-14 for the season.

Crusaders For Olympic Reform

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent
SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Suzy Chaffee, a golden-haired crusader in ski pants, has descended on the 11th Winter Olympic Games to do battle with Avery Brundage and his International Olympic Committee.

"Brundage has been compromising world athletes for the last two decades," the statuesque, 25-year-old former U.S. Olympic skier from Rutland, Vt., said.

"I was forced to perjure myself by signing the oath in 1968 that I had obeyed all Olympic rules."

Suzy, now a globe-girdling model and designer, is here petitioning athletes, officials and newsmen to support her 10-point program to reconstruct and democratize the IOC.

"Look, this is my 'Outfox Brundage' coat," she said, displaying a rug-like cape of rich South American fox fur.

She was a member of the U.S. Women's Alpine team in 1968 at Grenoble. Her brother, Rick, is captain of the current men's team. She carries with her a portfolio of Olympic history, papers and petitions which she plans to distribute this final week of the games to all delegations.

"I am serious—this is a crusade for me, as well as for others," the 5-foot-9, 122-pound blonde, said. "In fact, I'd rather nobody take my picture lest my motives be misunderstood."

Suzy said her purpose is to collect signatures of all winter and summer athletes, influential people and newsmen and present the document to the IOC.

If the IOC fails to respond, there should be a boycott, she added. "We should never have another fiasco such as the Karl Schranz case here last week," she said. "We must rid the Olympics of hypocrisy. We must give the athletes a voice in the Games. If people can't learn to play together, how can they ever learn to live together?" Schranz was banned from the games because of commercialism.

Here is the 10-point plan which Suzy says has the support of John B. Kelley, Jr., former Olympic sculler and now president of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union, and Nicholas Kounovsky, former Russian gymnast:

1. A universal definition for sports and athletes, eliminating the terms "amateur" and "professional."

2. Open competition, bringing back the highest standard of athletic excellence.

3. A more democratic IOC organization, with athletes having one third of the voting power.

4. Political neutrality. The IOC should not interfere with the internal affairs of any nation, whether it be Communist Russia or apartheid South Africa.

5. Sports financing. Private citizens, industry and government be encouraged to play a more active part in funding Olympic efforts, thus furthering international peace.

6. Foster international good will through exchange of athletes.

7. The athletes and Olympic committees work more closely with local socio-athletic programs, such as the Peace Corps and VISTA.

8. Cultural renaissance. New emphasis on music, science, culture.

9. Olympic awards. Original works of art instead of medals. Winners may not receive cash although bonuses are permitted in other competitions.

10. Revive the Greek translation of "Olympics" meaning "peace." Starting with the 1976 Games, all participating nations call a cease fire on all wars and acts of aggression.

Miss Chaffee said she has been working on the current project for two months. She had had a personal interview with count Jean de Beaumont, who is slated to succeed Brundage as IOC president. She has sent her petition to the White House.

There was some slight advancement for the Americans, though.

Melissa and Mark Militano, the brother and sister team from Dix Hills, N.Y., who went into the finals in eighth, moved up one spot.

The youngsters received applause greater than any other couple.

And when their artistic scores were flashed, ranging from a low 5.2 to 5.7 in the ratings in which 6 is perfect, the crowd loudly booed the judges.

A newsmen asked Mark what the booing of the crowd told him.

"It told me that the judges were no good," he said.

Miss Nadig acknowledged the storm made things difficult in the giant slalom but downplayed it.

"The visibility was especially poor in the steep part of the track," Miss Nadig said. That was understating matters.

Skiers said the snowfall was so heavy they couldn't see some of the 51 gates until they were within several hundred feet of them—and many in the crowd said they couldn't see some of the skiers along the course.

Miss Proell was timed in 1:30.75 and Wiltrud Drexel, also from Austria, took the bronze with 1:32.15.

Miss Nadig, who covered the treacherous run flawlessly, matched the double-gold feat achieved by Andrea Mead Lawrence of the United States, who won her two in the 1952 Games' slalom and giant slalom.

And she has an opportunity to become the first female triple winner Friday in the slalom—but it seems remote.

"I have had quite a number of tumbles in the slalom, so I don't know," Miss Nadig said of her chances of winning again. She is not rated in the top-seeded group.

Miss Proell, who had been beaten by less than half a second in the downhill and by less than two in the giant slalom, was the unhappiest two-time silver medalist you could find.

She stood with her back to the course as Miss Nadig rocketed toward the finish line. Then, when the Swiss miss' time was announced, Miss Proell said: "It does not matter to me," but the forlorn look she wore said otherwise.

Even more distressed were the American girls. The best any of them could do was the 11th-place finish in 1:33.16 by Barbara Cochran of Richmond, Vt. Her sister, Marilyn, was 20th. Karen Budge of Jackson

Maggots In Poultry Processing Equipment Recalled

POTENTIAL TROUBLE SPOT — Federal poultry inspectors say feathers, blood and manure which gather on poultry processing equipment are potential trouble spots. Picking machines, such as this, require frequent and thorough cleaning. (AP Wirephoto)

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
A U.S. Department of Agriculture poultry inspector says he recalls vividly the situation that led to the discovery of maggots on equipment in a poultry processing plant in North Carolina.

He told his story and later signed a statement in return for a promise that his name would not be used with published accounts of what he said. He said he feared reprisals from USDA officials.

Each plant under federal inspection has federal poultry inspectors assigned to it by the USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. The inspectors' duties include checks to assure over-all plant sanitation.

One USDA inspector is assigned each day to look over the plant and approve or reject sanitation. Operations cannot begin until the plant is approved as clean.

This particular inspector said he noted during one of those routine checks that feathers had been left on a picking machine, a device that mechanically plucks feathers from poultry so it can be dressed.

USDA regulations require that all machinery be clean of such things as feathers, blood and manure from the previous day's operation.

The inspector reported the condition to his inspector in charge, a veterinarian, but the plant was permitted to begin the day's operations anyway.

The inspector said that other inspectors assigned to sanitation after that also reported the feather buildup, but that still the plant was not required by the vet to clean it up.

Several months passed, the inspector said, while the plant processed 60,000 chickens a day.

"One day a federal inspection team that travels around the state stopped at the plant," the inspector said. "The plant was shut down for 4½ hours to give management time to clean it up because it was so filthy."

"That's when the maggots were found" on the picking machine, he said. "They were all through the feathers. We were having a lot of trouble with flies at the time."

The inspector in charge of the plant at that time has since retired, according to Dr. George Harner, head of the USDA's Mid-Atlantic Region, which includes North Carolina. Harner said no administrative punishment was dealt to the veterinarian.

Harner refused to let a newsman see sanitation reports on the plant to check how many times the feather buildup had been reported. Such reports are filed daily from each federally inspected plant.

Twelve inspectors who were interviewed in depth also gave other examples of what they called outright failure by USDA to enforce sanitation regulations.

An inspector at a plant that processes more than 200,000 chickens a day said he complained to superiors that proper action wasn't taken when a toilet overflowed and the raw sewage bathed dressed poultry.

In the interview and in a signed statement, the inspector said that only a portion of thousands of chickens contaminated by the sewage was condemned.

The toilet was on the second floor. Directly below it was a huge chilling vat. Dressed chickens are moved slowly through the vat, which is filled with cold water, to reduce the temperature of the poultry and prepare it for freezing or shipment in ice packs.

The sewage was pouring into the chiller in a slow, but steady, flow, the inspector said. That would mean all poultry in the water would be contaminated.

The chilling vat is an unattended operation, and therefore no one knows how many chickens had been processed through the contaminated chiller before the sewage overflow was discovered.

Only the poultry actually in the chiller at the time the overflow was detected was condemned.

Other poultry processed in the chiller that day already had been boxed and mixed with poultry that had been processed in other chillers.

Dr. Harner said there were "four, maybe six chillers operating that day" and that it would have been "impossible" to tell which of the stored product came from the contaminated chiller.

Thus, the USDA veterinarian in charge had no other choice than to condemn only the poultry that was in the chiller at the time the sewage was found, Harner said.

The inspector thought there was another choice—to condemn all poultry processed that day that might have been contaminated by the sewage if that was the only way to assure the consumer he would be protected.

Icemaking machines are described as easy items to be ignored by inspectors' supervisors.

Three inspectors signed statements that they found scum in ice machines at two plants. The discrepancies were reported to superiors and the superiors ignored the reports, the inspectors said.

The filth in the icemakers would build up overnight after operations were shut down, the inspectors said, and would be swept down into the inner part of the machine the next day when water was run through it.

The ice came into direct contact with chickens.

The inspectors say their reports have been ignored so long that they no longer check for sanitation of the ice machines.

Harner said he was not aware of the specific problems, but did acknowledge that sanitation is a constant problem.

Mary Jane Sneed, a senior at North Pitt High School, has been named recipient of a Bennett College Scholarship for the 1972-73 school year.

Miss Sneed will enter Bennett College at Greensboro as a freshman in the fall. Bennett is a four-year college for women.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Loney Lee Sneed and Joseph Sneed, both of Bethel.

GAO Found Inspection Reports Rather Vague

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
The General Accounting Office investigated federal inspection of 40 poultry plants in several states during 1969 and at 68 plants during 1971.

The 68 plants investigated last year included 17 that had been visited by GAO in its prior visit.

Only the 1971 report gave details of what investigators found. It listed discrepancies at four unnamed plants in unnamed states.

Sometimes the report on the discrepancies was vague, such as simply saying that sanitation was "inadequate" in a particular phase of the operation.

Specific findings, however, included manure and mold on walls, fly problems, rust in icemakers, water with rust in it dripping on dressed poultry, dirty equipment, heavy blood accumulation on equipment, no soap in restrooms, and rat feces on tables.

The report said since the plants inspected had been picked at random it could only conclude that such filth was widespread in plants inspected by the Consumer and Marketing Service.

The GAO noted that as early as June 20, 1969, a C&MS supervisor had recommended that inspection be withheld or withdrawn at one plant until the plant management "indicates . . . that they will operate their plant in accordance with . . . regulations."

Between that time and Feb. 1, 1971, the plant was described in eight official memorandums as having filthy conditions, but it continued to operate with USDA approval.

As late as July 23, 1970, a supervisor noted rat feces on a packing table and no evidence of traps or other means to control vermin. He also reported feathers and filth in a scalding tank, rusty equipment, paint flaking onto products, and numerous other specific instances of filthy equipment.

The GAO report added that the supervisor had warned the plant after the visit that summer that sanitation "was definitely unacceptable."

However, the GAO added, no subsequent action was taken and GAO investigators visiting the plant about seven months later found much the same conditions.

The GAO said unsanitary conditions at 17 plants it visited in 1969 still existed when it rechecked the same 17 last year. Conditions at the other 51 plants selected at random in 1971 included filth similar to that found at the initial 17, the GAO said.

The Word 'My' Tells A Story

Heed Matthew's case! For children reared in this manner become "free enterprisers" instead of "hippies" and "Prodigal Sons." They will also resent waste of their taxes by profligate politicians. And they develop more justifiable pride in their own accomplishment!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-592: Matthew R., aged 12, is our daughter Judy's oldest child.

Late last Spring, Judy brought her youngsters to visit us at the farm for a few days.

"Grandpa," Matthew suggested, "I think we better plow the garden so we can have some cucumbers and sweetcorn later in the summer."

So I got our old Ford tractor going, but hitched it to a disk and by repeated disking, we got the weeds shipped up and the ground fairly well pulverized.

Matthew, as well as Peter (11) and Debbie (1;), all wanted to take turns running the tractor, so I let them do so.

For self-reliant adulthood is a matter of arithmetic!

The more experiences a child can obtain of a constructive sort, the greater will be his confidence and versatility when he grows up!

When we had the ground in good shape for planting, each of the children wanted his own plot of ground.

Matthew specialized in planting cucumbers, sweetcorn, sunflowers and radishes.

Peter and Debbie stressed tomatoes and some unusual beans from Mexico that looked like white Navy beans but were jet black.

They also planted some corn and watermelons, as well as cantalopes.

Alas, the rains prevented their getting to work with hoes so the grass and weeds began to take over.

But they got a fair crop of sweetcorn, plus some dandy cucumbers.

Almost every day thereafter, they'd head for the garden plot to see how their vegetables were flourishing.

When Judy drove down to the farm a few weeks later, they asked to be dropped off at the garden before they even arrived at our summer home.

For there was a certain amount of "free enterprise" competition between them to see whose garden products would mature first.

And they always showed the most interest in their own rows of corn!

For this possessive concern is basic to our American competitive system.

In Communism, where there is no private ownership, the morale of workers is much less.

For inherent in every husband being is this "My" or possessive tendency.

Toddlers thus point with pride to their toys or crude pencil marks and glowingly say "My."

In fact, "My" precedes their use of the personal pronoun "I", for our personality extends to our possessions.

Our superb "Free enterprise" system thus would always surpass Socialism and Communism if the dictocrats at Washington would leave us alone.

Indeed, many a householder will even attack far stronger foes when he sees his possessions threatened.

It isn't just because he fears the financial loss thereof. Instead, it is a basic form of disguised self-defense.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
5 ♠ Pass 6 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass

An inference drawn from his opponents' auction provided West with the information required to produce an inspired lead against South's slam contract.

South opened the bidding with one spade and North had a bit too much for a jump to three spades, inasmuch as his holding is worth 17 points in support — one point above the upper limit of the direct raise. He therefore temporized by responding with two diamonds.

South's jump shift to three hearts is forcing to game and North designated an interest in slam by bidding four spades. It was his intention not only to fix the trump suit, but to show extra values as well as a strong fit.

South was now convinced that the partnership had the material to win twelve tricks. His only concern was the club suit—where the opposition might conceivably have both the ace and king. If North had either first or second round control of the suit, South wanted to be in six spades. Blackwood would not necessarily provide an answer, for slam hinged on which controls partner held—not how many.

In order to convey his message to North, South bid five spades. Proceeding beyond game when all suits but one have been mentioned, suggests that the bidder is primarily concerned with his partner's holding in the unbid suit. Inasmuch as North held the king of clubs, he accepted the invitation and proceeded to six spades.

West had paid close heed to the auction, and he was firmly convinced that the opposition was well heeled in every suit but clubs. On the other hand, it is quite clear that North would not have contracted for slam unless he held a control in clubs—either the king or a singleton. If North had the king, then the only hope for West was to find his partner with the queen and thereby subject the declarer to a guess at the outset.

West accordingly underled his ace of clubs—placing the three squarely on the table. The lead appeared perfectly normal and—having no reason to suspect his opponent's motives, South made the natural play of the seven from dummy, hoping that West had led from the queen and East would be obliged to play the ace.

West had a bad moment while his partner studied the situation. However, after fingering the nine momentarily, East finally decided that he had little to gain by that play even if South had the ace. He therefore put up the queen, and tho he was considerably surprised to hold the trick—he recovered in time to return the suit. West cashed the ace for the setting trick that could never have been taken except thru his brilliant opening.

Helicopters Said Once A Chinese Toy

CHICAGO (UPI) — Helicopters, which only recently have won a firm place in aviation, may have been flying around in Oriental skies more than 500 years ago.

They were toys, known as Chinese tops, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, and by the mid-15th century were amusing scattered spectators in Europe.

However, as far as is known, no one either in the Orient or in Europe tried to transform the principle of the toy chopper into people-sized flying machines. A few years later Leonardo da Vinci designed a small helicopter but this did not carry people either.

Not For 300 Years

Helicopter development took a recess for another 300 years until Sir George Cayley, in about 1792, developed a contra-rotating model. From this came all modern helicopter developments.

Except for the toys, which presumably utilized thrust from the human arm, power was the big problem with helicopters. Some of the early models involved steam engines and — amazingly — a large twisted rubber band. Even the rapid development of the gasoline engine in the 1890s did not immediately advance helicopter flight.

It was not until 1907 that the first man-carrying helicopter, built by Paul Cornu, made a free vertical flight. But he and other chopper pioneers never solved the other big problem — control.

Stumbling Blocks

The simpler flight techniques demonstrated by the Wright brothers with the fixed wing discouraged many from further attempts at direct lift. Helicopter development once again was in recess.

Then, in 1923, the U.S. Army perfected a helicopter with four large rotors that flew with three persons aboard. Controlled vertical and forward flight was officially acknowledged to have been achieved in 1930, when Corradino d'Ascanio flew a coaxial helicopter.

The first really practical helicopter was the Focke-Achgelis, built by the Germans shortly before World War II. But in 1939 Igor Sikorsky, in the United States, flew a helicopter equipped with only one main rotor. Two years later he established the practicality of the single-rotor helicopter by remaining in flight for 92 minutes, breaking all previous records.

Development of Gyroplane
During this period another type of rotary wing aircraft, the autogiro or gyroplane, was developed by Juan de la Cierva of Spain. Unlike the helicopter, this aircraft could not hover or land vertically. But its development contributed materially to the evolution of the helicopter, whose effectiveness was demonstrated convincingly during the Korean War to rescue thousands of combat casualties.

Its role in the Vietnam hostilities apparently assured its military future, but the helicopter's most important job may be in a civilian capacity in helping decentralize air travel.

Seek Institute Gradeless Study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No one should ever get an F in English, says the National Council of Teachers of English. The council's new grading policy stresses the student's personal and social growth, his learning exploration, his study habits, and states that a student's progress be measured through methods other than the assignment of a letter or numerical grade.

The Council's grading committee soon will offer recommendations on how the new grading policy can be implemented by the Council's membership.

Set $1 Million To Tout Tourism

MANILA (UPI) — A budget of $1 million for Philippine tourism promotion in Japan has been approved by the government. The money will be charged against the 16th year schedule of Japanese World War II reparations payments to the Philippines and will cover the cost of Japanese technical services and equipment necessary to promote Filipino tourist spots.
