Dock Strike Accord Seeing Opposition

By RICHARD M. HARNETT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Rank-and-file opposition to terms of the proposed West Coast dock strike settlement developed Saturday while longshore leaders were meeting to ratify the pact.

International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union President Harry Bridges, who has recommended acceptance of the contract, said the discussions among approximately 100 delegates from 24 ports, would apparently be prolonged at least through the weekend.

He said a membership vote would be necessary before there is a back-to-work movement on the docks.

San Francisco Local 10 issued a bulletin critical of the proposed settlement. It said the guaranteed wage provision was "full of fish hooks" and that the proposed contract had other "important items adversely affecting our membership."

Under ILWU procedures, any large local can veto the settlement during the caucus and it then would require a two -thirds vote of the membership to accept it.

Bridges, in a message to members through the union newspaper, said the strike "was won, and won hands down." He said his recommendation for approval was not based on fear of government intervention, but on "how much more we might win if we stayed on strike."

The walkout, in its 127th day, is already the longest strike in U.S. waterfront history.

The proposed pact provides $1.12 per hour in wage increases, bringing longshoremen's base pay to $5 per hour next July. It increases pensions to $500 per month at the age of 62 and provides dental care.

Regular longshoremen are guaranteed 36 hours pay for 36 hours work a week to be paid from a $5.2 million fund collected through a "tax" on cargo shipped to the docks in containers that were not packed by ILWU members.

The backlog of cargo could begin moving as soon as the union approves the pact, although the employers must also accept it and they have not voted yet. The vote by 15,000 longshoremen in 24 ports could take a week.

Sadat Confers On Future Strategy

By United Press International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Saturday summoned 12 of his top advisers to conferences Sunday to discuss foreign and domestic strategy in light of his recent trip to Moscow, government sources in Cairo reported.

The report coincided with Washington dispatches quoting Egyptian officials there as saying Cairo is still interested in a peaceful solution to the Middle East and can be expected to carefully examine Secretary of State William P. Rogers' proposal for indirect talks with Israel.

The Israelis already have accepted the Rogers' proposal but the Egyptian sources said Washington had not yet approached the Sadat government on the talks which would focus initially at least on reopening the Suez Canal.

Sadat flew to Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders following riots by Egyptian students who demanded that he immediately resume the war against Israel as he had repeatedly promised. Before leaving Cairo, Sadat told Egyptian troops he would consult with the Russians on setting a new "zero hour" for the Arab offensive.

The joint communique on his Moscow talks, however, referred to boosting Egypt's defensive — not offensive — capabilities and stressed continued diplomatic efforts to settle the conflict peacefully.

The communique prompted speculation that Sadat had failed to obtain the offensive weapons he wanted as well as Kremlin approval for the resumption of hostilities.

Sadat's meetings with Egypt's top political and military strategy-makers will be the first since his return from Moscow. The Caigo sources said they will be designed to assess the results of the talks before Sadat reports to the extraordinary session of the National Congress of the Arab Socialist Union next Wednesday.

President Will Have 'Suitcase Satellite' Link

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon will have instant communications with the rest of the world during his trip to China through an elaborate network including a "suitcase satellite," the Florida White House disclosed Saturday.

The communications facilities for the Nixon trip are in sharp contrast with those in China before the Americans began to arrive. Last year, China had only ahandful of static-afflicted radio circuits to foreign nations.

Ziegler said Nixon's primary means of communications would be through the same satellite system that will be used to relay news coverage of the President's historic visit.

But the President will also have several backup systems just in case the satellite and the newly-installed ground stations should fail.

He said Nixon could use the communications facilities aboard his jetliner, "Spirit of '76." That system was used last year to keep the White House in touch with an advance party that visited China.

In addition, Ziegler said, Nixon will be accompanied by a "suitcase satellite" system, a portable ground station that is always taken along on overseas presidential trips. That station can relay signals to a prepositioned satellite over the Pacific.

Ziegler said there was still another backup communications system but he declined to disclose the details of that one.

An advance team of television network and communications technicians has been in Peking since Feb. 1 installing a ground station capable of beaming television signals, telephone calls and teletype messages to a newly launched satellite which will relay them to the United States.

Aerial Attacks Escalate Against Enemy Buildup

By KENNETH J. BRADDICK

SAIGON (UPI) — American planes Saturday flew the heaviest raids in South Vietnam in more than two years to counter what U.S. military spokesmen described as an "enemy buildup." Major ground fighting was reported in the central and northern coastal areas and five GIs were wounded by mines.

A U.S. Army observation helicopter was shot down by Communist gunfire 25 miles northwest of Saigon, and one crewman was wounded.

Longtime Communist strongholds in the northern half of South Vietnam were hit by 12 missions of B52 stratofortresses while another 172 Navy and Air Force fighter-bombers also struck at Communist positions.

"Increased air strikes in the Republic of Vietnam are intended to counter the increased enemy buildup incountry," a U.S. command spokesman said. Command records showed the latest air action was the heaviest in South Vietnam since early 1970.

While carefully avoiding references to declaration by allied commanders that the Communists plan a large-scale offensive linked to the Tet lunar new year beginning Tuesday and President Nixon's visit to Peking starting six days later, the spokesmen said:

"We are using our air power to disrupt his lines of communication and supply and also to hit in some of his known base camp areas. We will not allow him to move down the roads freely."

All of the big bomber strikes and most of the smaller jets' runs were either in the A Shau valley just south of the Demilitarized Zone(DMZ) hard by the Laotian frontier or near the tri-border region in the Central Highlands. North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces have used both locations for many years as base camps and springboards for offensives.

The South Vietnamese Air Force, whose planes now regularly fly missions over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos and Cambodia as well as South Vietnam, reported destroying a North Vietnamese tank between the abandoned Khe Sanh combat base and the Laotian frontier near the DMZ Friday. The make of the tank was not known, spokesmen said.

REPATRIATED

CALCUTTA (AP) — The Indian government announced Saturday that 7.9 million of the estimated 10 million Bengalis who fled East Pakistan last year have returned to their homes.

Soviet Boast Of Role

PARIS (UPI)—The Soviet Union said Saturday it is the main supplier of aid to Indochinese Communists, furnishing them with antiaircraft missiles, supersonic jet fighters and other "terrible" modern weapons to combat the American "aggressors."

Moscow advertised its role as the military and economic arsenal of the Vietnamese, Laotian and Cambodian Communists in a special report to a 75-nation Congress on "peace and independence for Indochina."

The Soviet delegation handed out the report to the 1,200 delegates, including 130 Americans, in an apparent attempt to emphasize Moscow's major role in the Indochina conflict before President Nixon's visit to Peking next week.

"The whole world today knows that the multilateral and effective aid of the Soviet Union has played and will continue to play a decisive role in the organization of a successful retaliation to aggressors in Vietnam," the Soviet memorandum said.

"Guided by the principle of proletarian internationalism our country has put at the disposal of fraternal Vietnam terrible modern weapons including antiaircraft missiles and supersonic jet fighters."

One-Day Bargain

VIROQUA, Wis. (UPI)—Vernon County Clerk Roger Novy will hold his Valentine's Day half-price sale on marriage licenses again on Monday.

Furthermore, Novy said, because this is leap year he will reduce the sale price another 50 cents, putting the normal $5 price to $2 on Monday only.

And, he adds, if the bride who buys the license was born on Feb. 29, the price will go down another $1.

Novy has sponsored such sales the past several years and he again warned that a sale of such magnitude must operate under strict rules.

"There will be absolutely no mail or phone orders," he said. "Sales are strictly limited to one to a customer, there are positively no exchanges or refunds and all sales must be in cash with no time payment or credit card purchases."

And, he said, despite an increasingly large number of requests each year, no trade-ins can be accepted.

To top off this year's sale, Novy is once again offering a "Door-buster special." From 8:30 a.m. until 9:30 a.m. licenses will be priced at $1.50.

Device Detects Marijuana

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Allegheny County coroner's office has a device which Coroner Dr. Cyril Wecht says will detect marijuana in body fluids and tissues.

Unlike alcohol and heroin, marijuana eludes most laboratory procedures, leaving coroners stymied when they want to find out whether an accident or a crime may have involved the substance.

The new instrument—a spectrometer—costs $50,000 but Wecht got his free on condition that he tell the manufacturers everything he learns about its drug detecting capabilities. It also may find heroin, LSD and other substances.

Juvenile Aid Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The North Carolina Youth Development Board Saturday urged creation of a statewide system of community centers to provide before-and-after commitment aid to juvenile offenders.

The board's propsal was made by chairman Mrs. C. L. Gilliatt before the North Carolina Bar Association's penal study committee, which will present its study on the state juvenile corrections system to Gov. Bob Scott next month.

Mrs. Gilliatt said the board envisions establishment of 11 centers across the state to provide pre-hearing services to the juvenile court, detention services, juvenile probation and after-care service for delinquents released from institutions.

Such a system, she said, "would result in many children never being committed to correctional institutions."

She estimated the cost of each center would be $300,395 for capital expenditures and operating costs for each at $512,456 a year.

The board told the committee the judiciary has permitted the juvenile corrections system to "become a dumping ground for the retarded, the disturbed, the delinquent and the unwanted."

For The Disenchanted

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said Saturday he wanted to "dispel for all time the notion that a person has to be devious—or worse—to be a success in politics, or even to be in politics."

"Those who make that assertion do not take into account the essential nature of politics, which is this ... a means of making things happen for people, to bring about progress and advancement for people, to activate plans and programs for people," Scott said in a talk prepared for an NAACP-sponsored conference on youth participation in politics.

Scott told his young listeners that there is "something illogical" about young people who "use government, accept its benefits, would be lost without it, but do not 'believe in it'."

"And it is equally clear," Scott said, "that many young people have become disenchanted with our political system, that they have lost confidence in the capacity and credibility of government," Scott added.

"I would not detract one whit from the idealism—the very commendable idealism—that motivates such disillusionment ... But I do submit that, for all our weaknesses and shortcomings, we have the right idea.

"As Winston Churchill said: democracy is the worst political system ever devised—except for all the other systems."

Masked Terrorists Hit Wedding Celebration In Ulster; Best Man Shot

BELFAST (UPI) —Three masked men invaded a Londonderry hotel during a Catholic wedding celebration Saturday, shot and wounded the 17-year-old best man and set off a bomb that wrecked the building, police said.

Best man Alphonsus Patton, brother of the groom, was shot in the head when he pleaded with the bombers to remove the explosive device because children among the guests might be hurt, police said.

Patton was rushed to Altnagelvin Hospital where his condition was reported "very serious."

The masked men strode into Londonderry's Woodleigh Hotel, two carrying a bomb and the third brandishing a pistol. As they placed the bomb on the reception desk, the man with the pistol shouted a warning that the guests had three minutes to get out, police said.

Hotel Destroyed

"Young Patton rushed up to him and pleaded not to blow the place up because there were lots of children at the party who might get hurt," a police spokesman said. "As he was arguing, the gunman shot him in full view of everyone."

The guests and hotel employes fled. The bomb exploded 55 minutes later, wrecking the hotel, police said. The blast hurt no one.

Most of the wedding guests came from Londonderry's Creggan housing estate, a Catholic area known as a stronghold of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, police said.

"The IRA don't care who they hurt just so long as they can blow up a hotel," a police spokesman said. "They probably didn't know a Catholic wedding party was on until they got there but it doesn't make any difference to them."

The hotel was bombed as British troops moved into the town of Enniskillen to try to prevent another march by Catholics Sunday in defiance of the government ban on parades.

The Northern Resistance Movement, organizers of the march, predicted 10,000 would take part in the protest against internment of suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) but they pledged the parade would be peaceful.

Nevertheless, security officials said troops and police would enforce the ban. A security source said Enniskillen, a town whose population of 7,000 is almost evenly divided between Catholics and Protestants, "has a tremendous potential for violence."

British Power Crisis Stirring Howls Of Criticism

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's grimmest industrial crisis in 25 years inspired a howl of opposition criticism of Prime Minister Edward Heath and his government Saturday.

Power cuts resulting from a five-week coal miners' strike blacked out 15 to 20 per cent of the country. Homes, stores, theaters and other public places were without heat.

Firms throughout the country laid off thousands of workers in anticipation of tighter government curbs next week. The full effect of the curbs could be a shutdown of half the nation's industry, throwing millions out of work.

Heath interrupted a weekend at his official country residence to return to London for crisis conferences with Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, Trade and Industry Secretary John Davies and Employment Secretary Robert Carr.

Troop Use Questioned

The strike by Britain's 280,000 coal miners has bitten deeply into the country's fuel supplies. Davies said industry will come to a virtual standstill if the strike lasts another two weeks.

He did not discount the possibility of using troops to move essential coal, though he said it would be "highly unwise" to do so at this stage.

Harold Wilson, leader of the opposition Labor party, assailed Heath as "a half-time prime minister producing half-time work in Great Britain."

In a speech at Cheltenham, Wilson accused Heath of "industrial sabotage" through "pitiless policies and calculated hostility to the trade unions."

Press Criticzes Heath

Labor Party Chairman Anthony Wedgwood Benn said "the government's handling of the situation has been appalling."

The Labor party announced it will vote in parliament Monday against the emergency powers taken by the government this week.

Mine Workers' President Joe Gromley attacked the Heath government as "irresponsible and unreasonable" in handling the strike.

Press criticism of Heath and his conservative government mounted.

Stream Channelization Conference Set

A Conference on Stream Channelization will be co-sponsored by East Carolina University, the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters, the Pitt County Soil and Water Conservation District and the National Wildlife Federation.

Events during the past few months dealing with channelization have brought into the "limelight" the real need for further understanding the reasons for and effects of channelization. The effects of stream channelization are being interpreted differently by various groups, leading to the current controversy. Both sides of this controversy will be discussed at this conference.

Tom Willis, Director of the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute announced that the conference will be held at South Cafeteria, on campus, Tuesday, beginning at 9:30 a.m. and adjourning at 4:00 p.m. Advance registration is required. The registration fee for this conference is $3.50, and will include luncheon. Registration should be made through the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute, P. O. Box 2703, Greenville, Telephone 758-6650.

Willis said that due to recent hearings on stream channelization before the Eastern District Federal Court and the impact the decision of the Court will have on the economy of this region, this might be the most important conference held in the area in recent months. Because a large attendance is expected, arrangements are being made for several hundred; therefore, to assure a reservation, Willis suggests that those interested should make arrangements to attend immediately.

Col. Paul E. Denison, former District Engineer of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, Wilmington District, will be a principal speaker. Among others participating in the conference will be experts form out of state and from several universities in the area. Subjects to be covered are: economic reasons for channelization, impact on soil characteristics, geologic consequences, its effects on game and fish, and legal aspects of channelization.

Elbert Brown, 23, had most of his clothing burned off and was listed as serious at Pitt Memorial Hospital. Linwood Everett of Rt. 8, Greenville had minor burns on his hands.

The flash fire that resulted when the gasoline exploded broke the windows and otherwise damaged the room.

Officials at the company said that nonflammable cleaning mixtures were available and they did not know why they were not being used.

Fire officials caution citizens against using flammable cleaning fluids in an enclosed area. There have been numerous cases of such explosions recently.

ECU Offering 2 Study Tours

East Carolina University's Department of Geography will offer two travel-study tours this summer, one to Europe and another to the Mediterranean countries of northwest Africa.

Dr. Ralph Birchard will lead the 38-day European tour, which begins July 2, and Douglas Wilms will lead the 30-day Mediterranean tour, which begins July 9.

Participants on either tour may earn nine hours extension credit at the graduate or undergraduate level, which can be used for renewal of North Carolina teaching certificates.

The tours, offered in cooperation with the ECU Division of Continuing Education and the National Education Association, have been conducted by ECU geographers for the past 13 years.

According to Wilms, the overall objective of the travel study tours is to provide participants with an understanding and appreciation of the geographical conditions and problems of places visted.

Of major benefit to participants, he said, is the actual observation and contact with the physical environment, settlement and land use patterns of the various regions covered by the tour. These aspects will be considered in relation to economic and political systems, history and basic cultural patterns.

Persons interested in joining one of the travel tours may write Dr. David Middleton, dean of the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, Greenville, for further information.

Guest Scholars Chose Sciences

The sciences are overwhelmingly the preferred areas of study for outstanding college-bound high school students, according to data compiled by East Carolina University.

The data was based on surveys of the 114 National Merit Exam semi-finalists and superior high school students who visited East Carolina University last fall.

Each of the 114 students who participated in ECU's annual Scholarship Weekend cited first, second and third choices of major fields in individual questionnaires.

The sciences mentioned in their replies were biology, chemistry, mathematics and computer science, physics and psychology.

Other areas of interest were, in descending order; humanities, professional fields, social sciences and fine arts.

The single disciplines most often preferred by the students were mathematics (67 first, second or third choices), English (55), political science (20) and physics (29).

The visiting scholars, who were primarily from North Carolina and Virginia, attended classes, met with campus department heads and officials, and were guests at special entertainment events during their three-day weekend at ECU.

New China Policy Group Agrees Only On Welcome

HONG KONG (UPI)—Members of the U.S. Committee for a New China Policy, who returned from a visit to China, agreed Saturday that the Communist Chinese are eagerly anticipating President Nixon's visit and will give him a warm welcome.

But the committee members could hardly agree upon anything else at a news conference.

They revealed a split in the committee leadership, exchanged insults, answered few questions and almost came to blows at the news conference, which one group claimed was "usurped" by another faction.

A dozen members of the committee entered China last month for a month-long visit that ended Friday for four and Saturday for another eight. During their stay they were received by Premier Chou En-lai and other Chinese officials. Some members also traveled fairly extensively.

Positive Results Expected

They were invited by the Chinese People's Institute for Foreign Affairs, a semi-official body under the direction of the Chinese foreign ministry.

Each of the members agreed that all they saw and all the people they talked with indicated clearly that Nixon would be well-received and would be treated graciously.

"Our visit convinced us that the Chinese on all levels are looking forward to President Nixon's visit and that they expect some positive results," Robert E. Compert, a San Francisco businessman, said.

Several other members of the committee spoke up and declared their agreement with his observations.

Factions Argue

At the outset of the news conference, Dr. Thomas B. Manton was in charge. He identified himself as the chairman of the delegation, the chairman and founder of the committee, and the director of Country Councils of the Asia Society.

After Manton and his colleagues had been talking with newsmen for about 30 minutes, other members began showing up, the newcomers claimed it was they who had rented the room (in a local hotel) for the conference and demanded that Manton and his group leave.

"I must ask you to leave," Daniel Tretiak, who said he was the original committee chairman, told Manton. "We booked this room for this conference and you have no right here."

Compert said Manton was elected last month at an executive meeting which was hastily and illegally called and Tretiak still was the chairman.

Mardi Gras Is Nearing Climax

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Residents of New Orleans and thousands of visitors, with a series of weekend parades, free-flowing liquor and general merry-making, are working up to the climax of the nation's oldest and biggest almost-no-holds-barred annual celebration—Mardi Gras.

Mardi Gras (Shrove Tuesday) is Tuesday. It is the climax of a carnival calendar that opened in December with a series of carnival balls. Nightly parades started last weekend and continued in an increasing tempo through this weekend.

Three hundred thousand persons are expected to jam the business district and French Quarter Tuesday to welcome Rex, King of Carnival, followed by an all-day procession of floats and decorated trucks.

In the crowd will be groups of young people who came to New Orleans with little planning and about the same amount of money. They have become a growing aspect of carnival and a problem for city officials.

The American Civil Liberties Union, reporting it received "several dozen" complaints about police harassment of youthful carnival visitors, issued notices for youths to "come at your own risk."

Police Superintendent Clarence Giarrusso, responding to the ACLU, said experience has shown that some visitors "must commit burglaries, drug violations, engage in prostitution and other illegal acts" to support themselves.

"I say, without hesitation," Giarrusso said, "that they are not welcome."

Hulk On Bottom

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The Coast Guard announced Saturday that the tanker V. A. Fogg, which vanished 11 days ago with 39 men on board, may have been discovered on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico.

"We have found wreckage on the bottom about 50 miles southeast of Galveston, Tex.," 8th Coast Guard District headquarters said.

"However, it has not yet been identified as the V. A. Fogg. The underwriting company that contracted for the boat that found the wreckage is en route to the area with commercial divers."

Reports in Texas said the wreckage was located by a vessel named Miss Freeport. The largest part of the wreckage was 450 feet by 50 feet with five or six other pieces in the area.

The Miss Freeport was reported to have returned to Galveston to take on divers who will go down into the gulf in an attempt to confirm that the wreckage is that of the V. A. Fogg.

The wreckage was found in 130 feet of water.

The Fogg was enroute to the open gulf to clean its tanks of flammable liquid when it vanished, probably sinking with all hands in an explosion.

EXPECTING

Ended Up Shot

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A man who wanted to see how his dogs would act if he pretended to be injured ended up getting shot by a motorist trying to help.

Police quoted Sam Davis as saying he lay in the street and hollered and screamed" while his two dogs growled and snarled at anyone who tried to come near.

A passing motorist got a gun from his car and attempted to ward off the dogs, but his shot missed and hit Davis in the leg, police reported.

Capp Fined On Morals Charge

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) — Cartoonist Al Capp has pleaded guilty to one of three morals charges resulting from accusations made by a university coed last spring.

The other two charges were dropped Friday. Capp, 62-year-old creator of L'il Abner, was fined $500 and court costs.

Circuit Court Judge Merrill Farr said the alternative to paying the fine and costs would be one year in prison.

"You are a public figure," Farr told Capp. "I don't think you'll ever seriously be tempted to do something like this again."

Shortly after his arraignment, Capp pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted adultery. He also had been charged with sodomy and indecent exposure.

An Extra Ticket For Littering

Record Industrial Gain

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A record $702 million new industrial plants and expansion of existing plants was announced in North Carolina last year.

The Commerce and Industry Division, in reporting the figure to the Conservation and Development Board Friday, said these plants would create 24,433 new jobs.

Highlights of reports of other divisions to the C&D Board, which is holding its quarterly meeting in High Point:

Forestry Division—The wettest fall in 30 years has resulted in the fewest forest fires in the last 10 years.

Division of Recreation—Every community of over 7,500 population in the state, except Eden, now has a full-time recreation service. And Lee County became the first county in the state to vote a recreation tax.

Division of Commercial and Sports Fisheries—The division has applied for $80,000 in federal funds to plant 200,000 bushels of oyster, clam and scallop shells to revitalize the state's oyster industry, which was damaged by Hurricane Ginger.

The Parks Committee presented requests to the board for money to expand and improve Pilot Mountain, Raven Rock and Duke Power state parks.

It also said it hopes the state can acquire 175 acres on the Outer Banks north of Kitty Hawk from the federal government when it is declared surplus. The property has been used as a bombing range.

A total of $590,000 is being sought for roads, water and sewer lines and adding facilities at Pilot Mountain. The committee is seeking $74,500 to buy 200 acres more for Duke Power park and make road improvements; and $140,000 to obtain 1,500 more acres at Raven Rock.

It also wants $100,000 to build campaign areas, boat launch facilities and picnic equipment at Masonboro park.

C&D Approves State Park Bid For Near $21 Million

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Conservation and Development approved a request Saturday by the state parks division for capital improvements totaling nearly $21 million for the 1973-79 bienniums.

Of this amount, $13.9 million would be for the 1973-75 biennium; $3.5 million for 1975-77; and $3.5 million for 1977-79.

"Improvement of our parks facilities in the future is imperative," said Tom Ellis, director of the parks. "We should not require North Carolinians of the 70's and beyond to try and enjoy themselves at park facilities of the 40's, 50's and 60's."

About $10.5 million of the request is for development of existing state parks areas. Some $6.5 million would be for land acquisition funds for new state parks and $4 million for land acquisition at existing state parks.

The biggest expenditure for one state park would be $3.6 million at State Mountain State Park near Winston-Salem.

Pilot Mountain, also near Winston-Salem, would receive $2.2 million for the six-year period.

About $1 million was recommended for Duke Power State Park, including $600,000 for the 1973-75 period.

Other recommendations for parks include:

Raven Rock, $900,000; Masonboro, $896,000; William B. Umstead, $775,000; Pettigrew, $709,000; Lake Waccamaw, $630,000; Morrow Mountain, $622,000; Hanging Rock, $602,000; Cliffs of the Neuse, $400,000; Boone's Cave, $400,000; Hammocks Beach, $355,000; Mt. Mitchell, $293,000; Singletary Lake, $280,000; Jones Lake, $164,000; Sandhills Nature Preserve, $117,000; and Mt. Jefferson, $101,000.

In other action, the board approved an expenditure of $600,000 for the state parks during the remainder the 1971-73 biennium. A total of $170,000 will be for construction projects at Pilot Mountain State Park, $140,000 for Raven Rock and $100,000 for Masonboro.

Other allocations for the remainder of the 1971-73 biennium include: Duke Power, $74,500; $10,000.

Stone Mountain, $50,000; Weymouth Woods-Sandhills Nature Preserve, $25,000; Hanging Rock, $20,500; Ft. Macon, $10,000; and Hammocks Beach,

Subject to approval of federal and state agencies, the land of water conservation fund will provide $600,000 in matching funds.

Reporter Provided Data To Convince Publishers Irving Book Was A Hoax

By PEGGY POLK

NEW YORK (UPI)—A veteran investigative reporter who collaborated on an unfinished book about Howard Hughes gave Life magazine "the last piece of information we needed" to brand Clifford Irving's purported autobiography of Hughes a hoax, a Time-Life executive said Saturday.

Frank McCulloch, New York bureau chief of Time-Life news service, said the reporter, James Phelan, read parts of the Irving manuscript during a meeting Friday at which he supplied convincing information that the Hughes autobiography is a fraud.

McCulloch met again Saturday with Phelan, who flew here from the west coast to see executives of Time-Life and the McGraw-Hill Book Publishing Co. about the alleged autobiography which is the subject of an international investigation involving federal, Swiss and Spanish authorities and the New York district attorney's office.

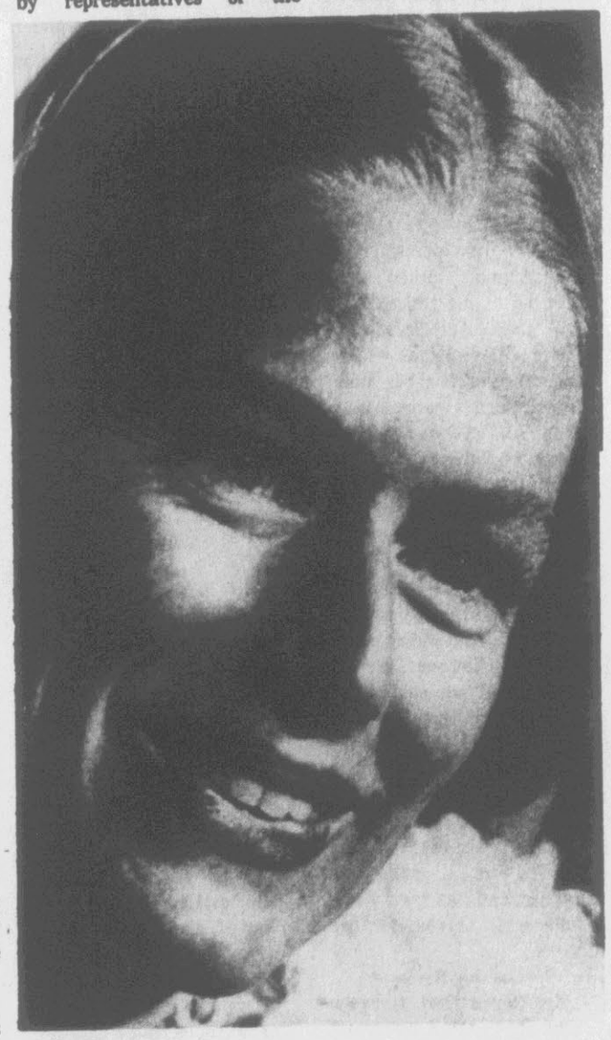

A spokesman for McGraw-Hill said Saturday they had found "similar incidents" in the Phelan and the Irving manuscripts and notified authorities of these "p a r a l l e l s." McGraw-Hill has suspended plans to publish the book next month but not yet decided whether to cancel it.

Full Details Promised

Life announced Friday after the meeting with Phelan that "we are not going to publish any of this as the autobiography of Howard Hughes—which it clearly is not." It said Phelan had provided "additional information concerning a possible source of the material" in Irving's book and that a story in Time magazine next week "will provide full details explaining how Irving put together the manuscript and carried out his hoax."

McCulloch, who as a reporter in Los Angeles had known Hughes, had been approached by representatives of the billionaire recluse and asked to talk by telephone to him shortly after McGraw-Hill and Life announced Dec. 7 they would publish the autobiography that Irving claimed to have compiled from a secret series of face-to-face interviews with Hughes. The caller identifying himself as Hughes disavowed the autobiography.

McCulloch said that Phelan read parts of the Irving manuscript and gave Life "another piece of information—the last piece we needed" to make its decision.

NINA VAN PALLANDT is scheduled to appear before a Manhattan grand jury Monday to testify in connection with the purported autobiography of Howard Hughes. (AP Wirephoto)

Official Party Of 13 To Travel With Nixons To Red China

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP)—President and Mrs. Nixon will be accompanied to China by an official party of 10 White House aides and three State Department advisers, the Florida White House announced Saturday.

Heading the list are Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's assistant for national security affairs. Others on the list, described by a White House spokesman as much smaller than on previous presidential trips overseas are:

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler; presidential assistants H.R. Haldeman, Dwight Chapin and Patrick Buchanan; Air Force Brig. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, Nixon's military assistant; Marshall Green, assistant secretary of state; John A. Scali, special consultant to the President; Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's personal secretary; Alfred S. Jenkins, director of the State Department's Bureau of East Asian Affairs; John Holbridge, senior staff member on the National Security Council; and Winston Lord, special aide to Kissinger.

Counting the President and First Lady, the official party numbers 15 and Ziegler said this was in keeping with Nixon's desire that only a "small working party" accompany him when he leaves Thursday for the Feb. 21-28 visit to Mainland China.

Ziegler said, however, that there will be an "unofficial party" of 21 individuals mostly such White House aides as deputy press secretary Gerald Warren, staff assistants Ron Walker and Tim Elbourne and the President's physician, Dr. Walter Tkach.

In addition to the official party of 15 and the unofficial party of 21, Ziegler said still other support personnel—mainly secretarial, communications and military people—will make the trip.

He did not give a precise over-all figure.

As the official party was announced by the Florida White House, President Nixon and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally relaxed on Grand Cay, a small island in the Bahamas where they flew by helicopter Friday.

When Nixon flew to Florida Thursday, he carried with him extensive background material on China. Aides said he hoped to spend some time this weekend reading it.

While on the small island in the Bahamas owned by industrialist friend Robert Abplanalp, aides said Nixon would confer with Connally on "outstanding domestic issues." This was expected to include the study — headed by Connally—of the possibility of seeking a value-added tax to ease the burden of local property taxes.

Meet-The-GOP-Candidates Reception On Friday

A "Meet the Candidate" reception will be held here Friday night for all major Republican candidates currently running for office in North Carolina, it was announced by First District Chairman W. E. Dansey.

Dansey said that among those candidates attending the function at the Moose Lodge will be gubernatorial hopefuls Johnny Walker and Norman Joyner, U.S. Senatorial candidates Jimmy Johnson and Bill Booe, and First Congressional District candidate Mack Howard.

The chairman added that Jesse Helms of Raleigh has indicated that he will attend if he (Helms) makes the decision to enter the race for the U.S. Senate.

Other guests expected will be State Republican Chairman Frank Rouse, Dansey, and the chairmen and vice chairmen from all of the 21 counties in the First Congressional District.

Dansey reported that interested persons of all political parties are invited to attend. This informal reception, he noted, will give each citizen attending an opportunity to speak with the candidates on a personal basis, thus becoming better acquainted with the candidates and their views.

The affair will be sponsored by the Pitt County Republicans, the Young Republicans Club of Pitt County, and the College Republicans of East Carolina University.

Electric Costs Join The Spiral

Two articles in Wednesday's Daily Reflector should have caught the eye of anyone maintaining a home and paying the electric bills.

One announced that the Greenville Utilities Commission had approved a surcharge on electric rate schedules of 0.128 cents per KWH, which would mean an average of about five percent more on local customers bills.

The other was a blast by Hugh A. Wells, member of the N. C. Utilities Commission at some utility firms which he said want the commission "to leave all the thinking to them."

"They want to run their own show their own way, make their own decisions, good or bad, and they want a Utilities Commission which will say, 'amen'," Wells was quoted as saying in a speech before the N. C. Electric Membership Corp.

The connection, of course, is the fact that Greenville Utilities purchases its power from a private utility company, just as do most municipally owned utilities.

Since rate setting is a tremendously complicated procedure, the local Utilities decided some time back to adopt the same retail rate schedule as Virginia Electric and Power Co., from which Greenville Utilities purchases its power on a wholesale basis.

This latest surcharge resulted when an identical surcharge was approved for VEPCO by the regulatory agencies and the private company put the surcharge in effect for the retail customers which it serves.

It is desirable for GUCO to have the same rate schedule as Virginia Electirc. It makes them municipally owned utilities competitive with the private companies. VEPCO has the resources to continually study rates which saves this cost for the local utilities.

But also, Greenville Utilities does not come directly under the regulation of the State Utilities Commission, while VEPCO does. If the N. C. Utilities Commission does its job effectively it will see that the private companies hold their cost to the least possible amount which will allow them the fair return they are supposed to get, and this will be reflected locally.

The North Carolina Utilities Commission should never be the "amen" boys that Commissioners Wells says some firms want them to be. The commissioner carefully examines all requested increases and turns them down if they are not justified.

Electric costs remained constant for a number of years, but now this vital service has joined the inflation spiral. The State Utilities Commission should see that rate increases are minimal.

Bible Still A Seller

By ANTHONY COLLINGS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Jesus speaking Liverpool slang is one of the imaginative methods Bible publishers are using in an effort to promote sales and make the Bible more meaningful.

Thanks largely to such efforts—and aggressive salesmanship by Bible societies—scripture sales are growing every year. One publisher estimates total worldwide sales at 25 million annually.

Other books might outsell individual Bible editions, but "the Bible in all its editions remains the all-time best seller," says a spokesman for London's Oxford University Press.

This publisher has brought out a controversial new English translation dropping the old Shakespearean thee's and thou's—and, critics say, some of the poetry. In just one year this version sold over two million copies, the company says.

Another British publisher William Collins, Sons & Co. says it alone has sold more than 100 million Bibles since 1843.

The biggest publisher of the scriptures is the United Bible Socieites (UBS), a London-based grouping of 120 national Bible societies around the world.

At a nominal sales price, the UBS distributes more than five million Bibles a year in 244 languages from Eskimo to Swahili.

"The big problem now is improving the old translations so the meaning gets through," a UBS spokesman says. "Some of the early missionaries made some quite unfortunate translations."

For example, primitive Sa'ban tribesmen in Borneo were puzzled by the Sa'ban language version of the parable of

A Door Closes, Another Opens

By ALENE VENTURA
The Salisbury Post

MOCKSVILLE, N.C. — "When one door closes, another opens..."

That is the philosophy of Mrs. Clinard P. (Nan) Howard, Mocksville's lady mail carrier.

She also believes that a higher power has a hand in the little quirks that shape a person's destiny.

If her boss at a Davie County manufacturing plant had given her two days off to be with a son leaving for military service overseas, she'd be working there today. He didn't, and she quit.

Meanwhile, she had taken a civil service examination some time before and practically forgotten about it. Her name reached the top of the list at the local post office, and Postmaster Roy Cartner called two days after her son's departure for Thailand and offered her a job as a mail carrier.

She took it. One door closed, and another opened, Mrs. Howard explained. "I'm so glad things worked out as they did, " she added.

One of Half-Dozen

Her philosophy as well as her vocation sets her aside. Nan Howard is one of no more than half-a-dozen female carriers of the U.S. Mail in North Carolina.

When the job was offered, Nan was skeptical about the driving involved but the postmaster was skeptical about her lifting parcel post packages. That didn't bother her a bit. "You see, I grew up on a farm," she said.

"I decided that I'd never know whether I could do the job if I didn't try it. I'm so glad I did — I love my work, and being out of doors."

That was six years ago. She started as a substitute carrier, and has been a full-time mail carrier for two years.

No Looking Backward

Mrs. Howard has an outlook that anticipates tomorrow rather than dwelling on yeaterday. She has known sorrow. Two sons died in tragic accidents.

She got the urge to work outside the home when her youngest child reached school age. Although she enjoyed caring for the children, she wasn't enthusiastic about housework, she admitted.

An ambition to be a licensed practical nurse was thwarted by her own illness, and then an injury to a daughter which interrupted her course of study.

The mail carrier job suits her fine. The day begins at 7 a.m. when she reaches the post office, pigeonholes the mail and loads it for delivery.

First, she does uptown delivery on foot, then begins covering the residential district by vehicle. She is usually through for the day around 3:30 p.m. or a little later, "depending on how heavy the mail is for a given day."

Men Are Surprised

Men react with amazement to a woman mail carrier, but dogs show no partiality.

One day walking her route through the business district a salesman stopped her. "Who are you?" he asked. "I'm a mail carrier," she replied.

"I've traveled for 40 years, and now I've seen everything!" he exclaimed.

She's been bitten twice by dogs. The first time, a man had assured her "he won't bite!"

The second time, she was bitten by one of two dogs which had stalked her footsteps. "I can watch one — but I can't watch two," she explained ruefully.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard have lived in Mocksville for 28 years. He is semi-retired, working on his own doing window repairs and mirrow installations.

They traveled around quite a while before settling in Mocksville. During World War II, they lived at New River when he installed windows in Marine barracks.

Two children live at home, son Jack, 14, and a daughter, Mrs. Linda Dunn, whose husband is now in Vietnam. Another daughter lives near Mocksville, and a third in Florida. The Howards have seven grandchildren.

Muskie Today Is Anti-Saigon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The inner dynamics of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's front-running campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination explain why he has now lunged toward an advanced position on Vietnam: a threat to end military supplies for the Saigon regime unless power is shared with the Communists.

So clear an anti-Saigon stance has been stubbornly resisted by Muskie during his laborious three-year journey away from support of the war. But irresistible pressure has come from the new Muskie apparatus of advisers, political technicians and supporting politicians. Nearly all advocate total termination of W.S. military aid to South Vietnam, the heart of President Nixon's Vietnamization program.

The result is Muskie's new position, bearing shrouded implications that may not be revealed until Nov. 2. For now, Muskie men are jubilant that brutal White House attacks against his position have pinned down a Democratic nomination which seemed nearly certain any way. But still to be determined is the impact on Muskie's centrist image, essential to defeat President Nixon.

That image depends upon imprecision, and nothing could have been more imprecise before last week than Muskie's on Vietnam. He steadfastly refused to say whether he would or would not continue military supplies to Saigon after U.S. troops were gone. Muskie had declined to go as far against such aid as was advised by Clark Clifford, the hawk-turned-dove former Secretary of Defense and now Muskie's principal political tutor on Vietnam.

When President Nixon laid bare on Jan. 25 secret negotiations with Hanoi, Muskie (in Carbondale, Ill.) had time to place but one telephone call before making a public statement. It went to Clifford in Washington, who urged a denunciation of the President's initiative.

Muskie, by nature a cautious state-of-Mainer, instinctively rejected Clifford's advice. "Obviously," he declared that night in Carbondale, "we all welcome a new initiative on the part of our government to end the war and bring the troops home." The next day, Jan. 26, brought some Muskie criticism of the Nixon plan's details but no outright opposition.

Nor was there any change Jan. 27 when Muskie, airborne between Jacksonville and Daytona Beach in Florida, told us that Mr. Nixon's speech probably secured short-term political advantage. But long-term advantage, Muskie went on, would depend on whether the plan actually ended the war. On that point, he was extremely doubtful. Supremely confident, Muskie scarcely seemed geared for massive rebuttal.

But some Muskie operatives were less self-assured. Veterans of 1968 peace politics, they feared Mr. Nixon had suffocated the war issue for the foreseeable future. One top aide wondered, almost hopefully, whether it would take a successful 1972 Tet offensive by the Communists to revive anti-war sentiment.

More important, Muskie's soft response to the Nixon plan evoked harsh private reactions from prominent Democratic doves who had endorsed the Senator for President. One such influential Congressman telephoned a Muskie lieutenant to inform him that he and his constituents were in a state of anxiety over Muskie's position. However small the true weight of such sentiments might be on the scale of national public opinion, they were keenly felt in Muskie headquarters.

Finally, Muskie's foreign policy advisers in Washington had immediately begun writing a Vietnam speech, hoping Muskie would change his position. In this atmosphere, Muskie was indeed changing. On Saturday morning, Jan. 29, Muskie told aides he felt the Nixon proposal had been rejected by Hanoi (though

Sunday Morning Notes

Highway Commissioner Arthur Tripp introduced Gov. Scott, who was speaker at the announcement dinner for National Boat Works, Inc. new plant.

Tripp said he had been in Raleigh the previous day and visited the governor. He mentioned to the governor that he was to introduce him in Greenville.

"Is there anything I should know about you," Tripp said he asked the governor.

"No, you know too much already," the governor quipped.

It was the night of the UNC-N.C. State basketball game and Gov. Scott said his wife was attending the game that night.

"She sent her regrets," the governor told the group. "Of course, she's not too regretful since that's where she wanted to be."

Scott mentioned that past governors had been given automobiles by their close friends when they went out of office and each car had been successively bigger.

ALVIN TAYLOR

He said he mentioned this to his wife and she told him, "The way you're going, you',, go out on a rail."

The governor said the news media picked up this story and "sure enough, someone mailed me a creosote post with a note saying 'any time.'"

The governor, who had just viewed slides of National Boats latest models, commented rather wistfully, "I'd rather go out in a Grady-White."

Utilities commissioners were discussing protection of the Tar River water shed above Greenville, since the city gets part of its water supply from the Tar.

Much has been done to end industrial and municipal dumping in the river, but Director Charles Horne pointed out that wastes from farm animals flowing into the river was still considerable.

Commissioner W. L. Whedbee thought about that for a while.

"You know," he told his fellow commissioners. "I wish you hadn't mentioned that. I'll think about it when I drink my next glass of water."

Well, honest folks, the water has been purified when it comes through the faucet.

And among the mail we

Other Editors Say Fighting For Jobs

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Management's report to New York City Public Library (NYPL) employees made it explicitly clear: Staffers who didn't join or pay dues to the union after Jan. 1, 1972, "may not remain in the employ of the Library."

Thus the Library's staff — 42 per cent of whom refused to join Local 1930, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees — saw their individual freedom of choice sold out.

But they refused to take it lying down. Led by Richard Brower, supervisor of the Microfilm Reading Room, Dorothy Reither of the Branch Libraries, and three others, they formed the "Ad Hoc Committee Opposing Agency Shop at the NYPL."

"The whole agency shop concept is repugnant to our personal beliefs," said Brower. "There is no question that it clearly infringes upon our personal freedom of choice.

"We saw this coming as far back as July (1971) when we collected nearly 400 signatures in opposition to the agency shop — but when mamagement announced it had caved in on the issue, Library staffers were up in arms."

Brower and his fellow employees collected enough money to retain counsel and discovered that the legality of the compulsory agency shop hung on the question of whether they were considered public or private employees. (The Library receives a small amount of its operating budget from private sources.)

That question has yet to be decided by the New York Public Employment Relations Board which held hearings last December. If the library is ruled a public agency, the staffers will not be subject to compulsory unionism since New York's Taylor Act forbids it.

A determination on that question is expected soon; meanwhile the compulsory agency shop fees will be held in escrow. Brower and his group are hopeful. They still cannot believe that in this country a man may be told he cannot hold a job unless he pays tribute to a private organization — in this case, a union.

40 Years Ago Today

The Capitol paused yesterday from duties to pay tribute to Abraham Lincoln and hear of his struggles and achievements. Abe Lincoln's memory will be honored tonight in nationwide observance of his 123rd birthday anniversary by the Republican Party led by President Hoover who will speak over the radio of the man who preceded him during the troublesome days of the War Between the States.

Continuing its efforts to throw a greater safeguard around life and property, the Greenville fire department has completed the installation of an improved fire alarm box at the corner of the Third and Evans Streets. Electricians put finishing touches to the new box yesterday afternoon and it was ready today for instant service in case of need. The new box is the second of its kind installed in the last two months. The first was placed at Five Points. The new box prevents duplication of alarms, uses less current and is easier to manipulate. It is also larger and can be used for telephone purposes.

Strength For Today

GIVE THEM A HAND

The way to stop an evil is to stop it at its source. There would be no alcoholics if we paid a bit more attention to the drinking situation and what it means to us. In this day of drug addiction we are realizing how severe we have to be in order to keep habit-forming drugs out of our country. Fortunately those in authority recognize the devastating evil of drug addiction and are throwing themselves, with every bit of power and influence they have, against every commodity that cultivates addiction.

In a taped conversation between two high school students, the drug situation in a town of twenty thousand was recently discussed. It filled everyone with horror to read that the overwhelming majority of students in the local high school had tried some form of habit-forming drugs. Some (but not many) stopped at marijuana. Occasionally a heroin addict had been of the "stuff" for a number of months and was looked upon as "cured."

But drug addiction is only one of many present-day evils assailing youth. The automobile, which can take them fifty miles from home any evening they care to establish this separation, has complicated the way millions of people live — or try to live.

But with all their parades and their criticism of adult life, we can be sure that the youth of today is the best generation of young people many of us have seen. They make their mistakes, and sometimes these mistakes turn out to be influential and devastating. But the majority of young people are committed to the better life and trying with all their energy to bring it about. We need to assit them.

Could Create School Dictator

By ELMER ROESSNER

The White House proposal for a value added tax (VAT) is a persuasive one. It has two features, tailored to meet important objections to the plan.

First, it would relieve taxpayers of school taxes on property.

Second, the Administration asks that part of VAT be returned to low-income families, thus meeting the objection that it is a regressive tax, falling most heavily, in relation to income, on the poor.

A third point, a feature of VAT as applied in Europe, would permit the return to the payer of taxes paid on exported goods, thereby making American export prices cheaper and bolstering our shaky balance of trade.

The last feature would require a vast amount of work. An automobile, for example, might carry hundreds of value-added taxes by the time it was loaded on shipboard. How would the tax rebate be divvied up among the exporter, the company that made the steel, the firm that made the plastic for the seats, the company that produced the copper, the one that applied the insulation to the copper wire, the company that made the insulation and so on through the several hundred firms that added value to the ton of steel that eventually became a slick auto?

They may have worked out formulas for VAT export refunds in Europe, but they are far from perfect, as recent VAT scandals in France show.

But a big objection would be the use of VAT to support public schools. Top courts in four states, California, Texas, Minnesota and New Jersey, have decided that the present system of supporting schools with taxes on property, plus state contributions, is unconstitutional because it gives pupils in wealthy districts more lavish education than youngsters in poor districts.

A concensus of legal thinking is that the Supreme Court will uphold this thinking and that the court would rule that the federal government must provide the money so that equal education is available in all 50 states.

But in proposing that a VAT be used to replace school district taxes, the Administration is taking another step for a federal take-over of education in the United States. The first steps were laws and interpretations saying which children should go to which schools, even if they had to go by free bus.

But with the federal government paying all the expenses, it would soon be in a position to dictate which schoolbooks should be used, what courses should be given, at what ages sex education should be introduced, and what qualifications should be for teachers.

Eventually, it might go as far as directing that one out of every 11 teachers be Negro, that one out of every 100 be Indian and that one out of every 300 be Chinese, all, of course, evenly divided between the sexes.

Observations From Editorial Columns

MIGRATING ARMADILLOS

Scientists who keep tabs on the climate have observed a sign which may indicate the next ice age is on the way. The sign is the movement of the humble armadillo, himself a survivor of several previous ice ages.

Armadillos, we're told, are fond of warm latitudes. Before 1914, the animals ventured no further north than northern Mexico and southern Texas. After that, however, they migrated north and by 1949 made their homes in Oklahoma and Arkansas. By the 1960s they had reached Nebraska, where Dr. Charles B. Schultz of that state's university, reports the populace was quite unprepared for them. "It scared people to death to go out in their backyards and see one," Dr. Schultz observed.

Recently armadillos started migrating southward, possibly foretelling an incipient ice age. Indeed, the armadillo has vanished from the midwestern plains. If the evidence is supported, there seems little to worry about for now. Some estimates are that it would take at least 5,000 years for a new ice age to become full-fledged. That old coat will do for another winter. —Charlotte (N.C.) News

PRETTY HARD TO SWALLOW

A $16.05 meal for $1.51 may be a bargain on the menu, but not out in the kitchen. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith gave this example from the Transportation Department's executive lunchroom to show how federal bureaus are using tax funds to subsidize meals served at cut-rate prices.

While American housewives are paring their grocery lists to cope with inflation, executives at the Treasury Department are paying $2.45 for a meal which costs $14.31 to prepare. Lawyers and the Justice Department pay $1.66 for a $7.50 lunch.

Mrs. Smith hopes to blow the whistle on this extravagance with some legislation. Meanwhile, how about offering the taxpayer some cut-rate bicarbonate of soda? —Gastonia (N.C.) Gazette

FULL RIGHTS FOR YOUNG VOTERS

Now that the right of 18-year-old-citizens to vote has been settled by an amendment to the United States Constitution, state legislatures need to turn their attention to making these new young voters full citizens in every sense of the word. To do any less will be to make a mockery of the value of the ballot.

South Carolina is one of the states where the legislature ratified the amendment to lower the voting age, but refused to extend legal rights of adulthood to any citizen below the age of 21. The result is a form of discrimination that should be corrected.

The situation in this state — and others — is that 18 and 20-year-olds now have the awesome responsibility of voting, while being denied the opportunity to exercise many other rights of citizenship. They are deemed fit to make decisions on critical local and national issues, but they aren't allowed to enter into legal contracts, or to generally participate in the mainstream of life. —Greenville (S.C.) A Conservative View

Passionate And Widespread Opposition To Busing

By J.J. KILPATRICK

This miserable business of "busing," with all its implications and consequences, may yet tear this country apart more savagely than the issue of Vietnam. From California to Michigan to Pennsylvania to Florida, wherever a wandering newsman goes, the bitter question constantly comes up: What about busing?

Resentment is greatest in the South, which ironically has tried the hardest and shown the most progress in achieving desegregation of its public schools, but Southern anger is merely the tip of the iceberg. The presidential aspirant who fails to recognize this hazard is likely to wind up in shipwreck. Opposition to busing is massive, passionate, and widespread.

No other issue touches so many American families so close to the heart. Vietnam, the Mideast, the future of Formosa—these are problems far from home. Welfare reform, deficit finance, revenue sharing—these are specialized concerns. Even unemployment and the high cost of living, which had promised to be the universal springs of discontent, have come to be afflictions a man learns solely because of his race, suddenly nothing else matters.

Black spokesmen, no less than white, resent the process. William Raspberry, brillant young columnist for the Washington Post, commented the other day that "virtually no one wants busing on the level it would take to integrate the schools in most metropolitan areas." He continued:

"I, for one, would be willing to take one step backward, to honest desegregation. That is, let us move forthrightly against any attempt at official discrimination. But at the same time, let us end the humiliation of chasing after rich white children.

"And it is humiliating. For one thing, it says to black children that there is something inherently wrong with them, something that can be cured only by the presence of white children. Some of us don't believe that. Some of us beleive that given adequate matter what color their seatmates happen to be."

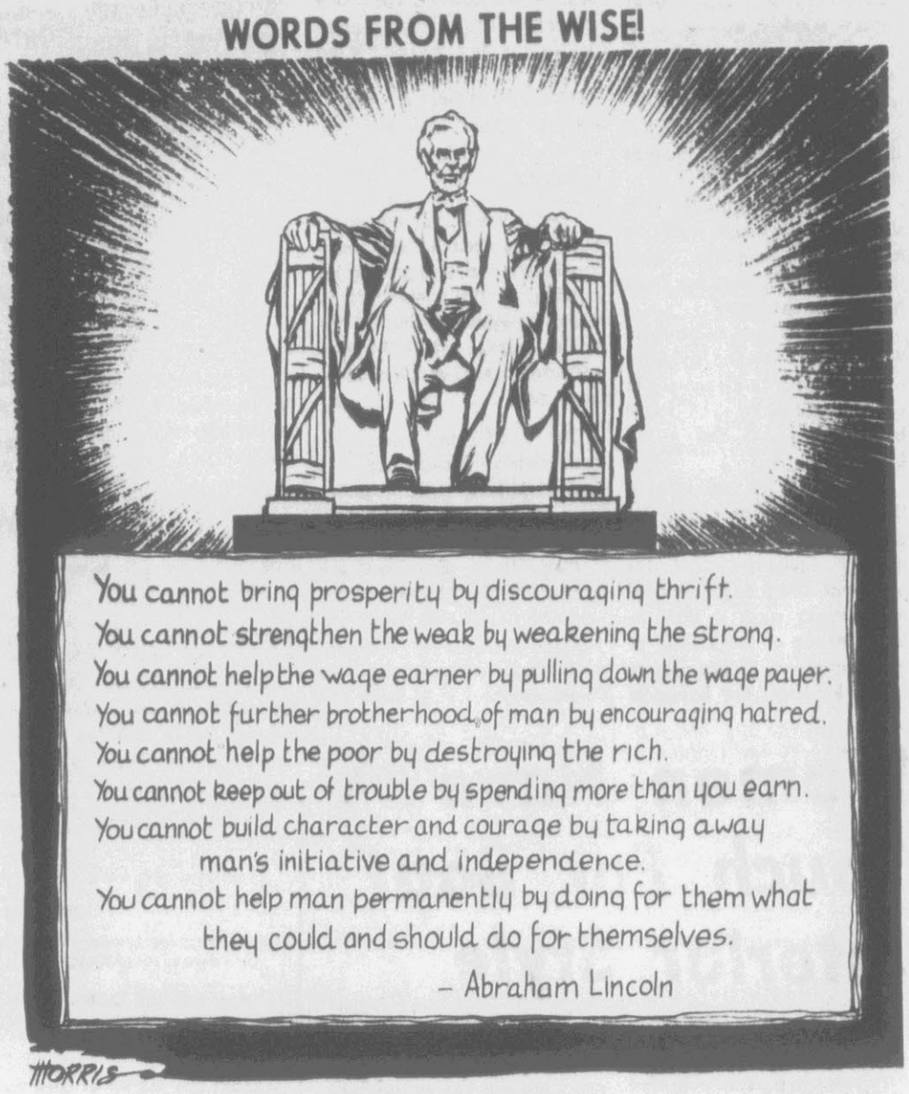

My own impression, for whatever it may be worth, is that the American people, both North and South, have come to accept the constitutional principle that was fashioned nearly 18 years ago in Brown v. Board of Education. I will go to my grave still convinced that Brown was band law—a willful perversion of the clear meaning and intention of the Fourteenth Amendment—but the principle no longer is challenged. That principle, quite simply, is that the States cannot engage in discrimination by race.

The vice in these busing orders is that they trample upon the very principle that Brown sought to estalbish. White children are shipped here, and black children are shipped there, and out on the West Coast yellow children are shipped somewhere else, and these brutal orders are imposed not for "quality education"—that is the flimsiest smokescreen; they are imposed to achieve "racial balance," which is to say, they are imposed solely because of the color of the children's skin. Local school boards thus are compelled to dq precisely what the Supreme Court in Brown said they could not do: They are compelled to assign children to schools by reason of their race.

Thus we return full circle to the humiliation that Rapsberry so clearly defines. In place of "honest desegration" we impose a dishonest integration. The process is destructive of communities, of schools, of parent-teacher communication, of human relationships themselves. Instead of quieting racial antagonism, this cruel and stupid policy can only make tensions worse.

The Supreme Court can, if it chooses, take appropriate action to stop this folly in its tracks. It would be quite in character for the Court to say here, as it has said in other areas of the law, that its opinions have been misapplied—that "equal protection of the laws" does not demand "racial balance." If the Court fails to act, outright constitutional amendment will have to be pursued.

Pennsylvania Pondering Means Of Keeping Its Doctors Within State

By DR. WALLACE WOOLES
Dean, ECU School Of Medicine

Most states have either adopted, tried, experimented with or discarded various proposals and plans not only to attract physicians but also to retain graduates of the medical schools within their state.

The Legislature in Pennsylvania is now considering legislation whose goal is to retain within the state graduates from medical schools receiving state appropriations.

The specific piece of legislation is an amendment to a State Appropriation Bill for medical schools called the Stapleton Amendment. This amendment provides that each graduate from a medical school receiving a state appropriation, would become indebted to the state in the amount of $7,500 per year. If the bill is passed, every graduate of a four-year medical school in the state of Pennsylvania would owe the state $30,000!!!

In addition to not attending medical school in Pennsylvania, the student would have only three possible choices: 1) He could practice in an area of the state designated as a physician shortage area by the Pennsylvania Secretary of Health. For each year of practice in this area one-fifth of the student's indebtedness would be forgiven — $6,000 per year. 2) The student could choose to practice in Pennsylvania, in a location of his choosing and repay his debt over a period of 15 years. 3) Finally, the student, with sufficient resources, could pay his debt and be free of any obligation to the state.

The State Approriation Bill containing the Stapleton Amendment passed the Pennsylvania State Senate in December by a vote of 48-0. The Appropriation Bill was then sent to the Pennsylvania House where the Stapleton Amendment was rejected. As of this writing the bill is in a House-Senate Conference Committee where there is currently another serious attempt to add the amendment.

Numerous voluntary and optional programs have been tried or are presently available to do what Pennsylvania is trying. The only difference in the Pennsylvania approach is that Pennsylvania is attempting to make these programs mandatory and to force them upon all medical students.

Since very few students will have the resources to pay their debt, this bill forces practically all medical school graduates to stay within the state to work off their obligation to the state.

It is easy to recognize and appreciate the frustration of the State of Pennsylvania and indeed all states in attempting to provide sufficient physicians to meet the health care needs of its people.

Although it is easy to sympathize with them, I question the wisdom of their approach and have no difficulty in recognizing very serious consequences of this legislation. Not only for medical education but, by extension, for all educational programs financed by a state.

Needless to say, all of medical education is watching the progress of this bill very carefully. It may well be the first drastic attempt made as each state attempts to meet its medical manpower needs in the way best suited to each state.

N.C. GOP Primary Is Seen As An 'Equalizer'

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — North Carolina Democratic Party Chairman John T. Church is happy the Republicans are having a primary for Governor.

"We knew we would have a tough primary," Church said, "and now the Republicans have one of their own. That sort of equalizes things."

I asked Church what effect President Nixon's popularity, or lack of it, in North Carolina would have on state races. Church acted like I was talking Greek.

"I'm the chairman of the Democratic Party," he reminded me, "Nixon's their (Republicans') problem."

Church says he hasn't seen "any nasty, slurring attitude" among Tar Heel Democrats.

"People want to help me," he said. "I haven't seen any bitterness in our party. I wouldn't say we're in great shape financially but we're in decent shape."

Church sees his role as one of "keeping peace in the party, keeping things as harmonious as possible. We have to be united. I'm staying strictly neutral in the primaries. As a party we must be more disciplined than ever before. We must be more professional than ever before."

What effect will the presidential primary have on Tar Heel politics?

"It's a brand new thing," Church said. "I don't think anyone knows what it's going to do."

this was debatable) showing a green light for him to criticize it.

Subsequent Florida-to-Washington telephone calls and non-stop meetings back in Washingoon transformed Muskie's past imprecisions into much harder formulations. Muskie staffers do not deny the new position, delivered Feb. 2, boils down to this: unless Saigon seeks political accommodation with the Communists, Muskie as President would—sooner or later—end its warmaking potential by cutting off military supplies.

That is still a step from Sen. George McGovern's flat acceptance of Hanoi's demands. Muskie as President could judge that Saigon had conscientiously sought but failed to attain accommodation. Nor has he set any time limit for Saigon's even seeking an accommodation.

Nonetheless, the White House can now claim Muskie is forcing Saigon into an historically fatal embrace with the Communists even though its armed forces are faring well on the battle field. Muskie's political advisers do not deny this but add American voters really don't care about such questions anymore, a fateful judgment that has helped propel Ed Muskie a long distance on the Vietnam road.

The Unemployment Picture Is Twisted For Politicians' Needs

By GEORGE BRYANT

Commenting on the recently issued January work force statistics, Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson noted that public attention tends to bypass the "doughnut" and focus on the "hole." And he has a point.

The doughnut is the 80-million, out of a total labor force of 85-million, who are working. This is a record. So is the fact that the wages and salaries they receive are at all-time highs.

The hole, of course, is the number of unemployed, about 5-million, or slightly under 6 per cent of the work force. In the past 50-plus years it has seldom been below this level, except in time or war. Currently, "full employment" is defined as an economy which would leave only 4 per cent of the labor force out of work.

Out of the mass of figures issued by Washington, the percent of the labor force unemployed is the most controversial and, probably, the least understood. Politicians twist it for their use. But the actual breakdown of the unemployed gets little attention.

For the man or woman who needs a job, is actively seeking a job and is qualified to do a job, but can't get a job, there is no comfort in statistics. Times are tough and even tragic. The same can be said for some teen agers.

But in trying to fit the employment-unemployment picture into perspective, as a part of the overall economy, the breakdown is significant. And it helps explain why jobs are hard to fill in many cases. The Labor Department's statistics breaks the unemployment total, 5-million, into three groups: Men, 20 and over, women, 20 and over, and teenagers, 16-19.

The bulk of the labor force is made up of adult men. Here, the Unemployment totals some 2.1 million or 4.4 per cent. When the figure is refined to married men, the traditional breadwinners, the figure is 3.3 per cent.

Women have become increasingly important in the labor force for many years, but especially during the last 10 years, when the number rose by about 10 million, or some 50 per cent. Of the 1.7-million women out of work, Labor estimates that 15 per cent quit their last jobs voluntarily and that 44 per cent had been out of the labor force for some time but had returned to find no jobs.

Of course, many working women are in fact also heads of family. But there are also many who work so that a family can enjoy two incomes and thus live at higher standards than otherwise could be afforded. Roughly one-third of the total unemployed are adult women. They account for near 44 per cent of the unemployed in the adult labor force.

Some 25 per cent of the unemployed are teenagers, although they constitute only a small part of the total working force. And this number tends to distort the whole picture. Many are part time workers and most have acquired little in the way of skills and education.

The breakdown helps explain why unemployment will shrink slowly, even if the economy does rise along predicted rates. The quick demand will be for those who have training. The builder, say, who needs a carpenter, an electrician, a painter or a plumber won't find them among the teenagers or among women.

And whether President Nixon's "planned" deficits will make much of a dent in the unemployed totals during the remainder of this year is open to question. A great deal of the Federal budget today falls under the heading of social programs which pump money out to individuals, but lack of help of spending which creates jobs directly and quickly.

And the bad pockets of unemployment, created in many instances by shifts in government policy, will be slow to respond. And this is the area where much of the unemployed among highly educated and skilled workers lies.

It was, to a considerable extent, Congress which killed a lot of jobs. Seattle, for example, can attribute a great deal of its unemployment to the killing ot the super-sonic transport. Other areas got caught by weapons cutbacks as Vietnam fighting declined.

Military and space spending are slated for rises and if these are voted some of the hardest hit areas will see employment gains, but they won't be immediate.

Meanwhile, unemployment will continue to be an issue. Politics will see to that. At 6 per cent, there will be many cases of individual hardship. But, on balance, it isn't likely to turn the economy around. The "doughnut" is too big.

Ranch Plan Underlines Economy

By GERRY BISHOP

Economy and comfort are the key features of the Drayton, a one-story designed by the Associated Architects.

This model is a real inflation-cheater. It can be built for a price that will fit most wallets and it provides a lot of cozy living area.

Sound design makes the Drayton an eye pleaser. The chimney of native stone, a large picture window in the living room and handsome eight-inch bevel siding are distinguishing features.

The built-up-roof — it has a 6-12 pitch — calls for asphalt shingles.

Besides economical construction, this ranch would be inexpensive to maintain. Most of the work, such as painting, could be done by the owner.

The Drayton is a two-bedroom with a living room and fireplace, a kitchen with an abundance of cabinets and dining area, single bath with a tub and a full basement.

The cellar is left unfinished in the plans. Provision is made for the furnace, water heater and laundry equipment. But the basement could be partitioned off in many ways to suit the living habits of the family or accommodate future space needs. Finishing the basement could be a family project.

The plans call for gypsum wallboard or drywall construction for all interior walls.

Oak floors are specified in all the main rooms, with vinyl flooring in the kitchen and bath.

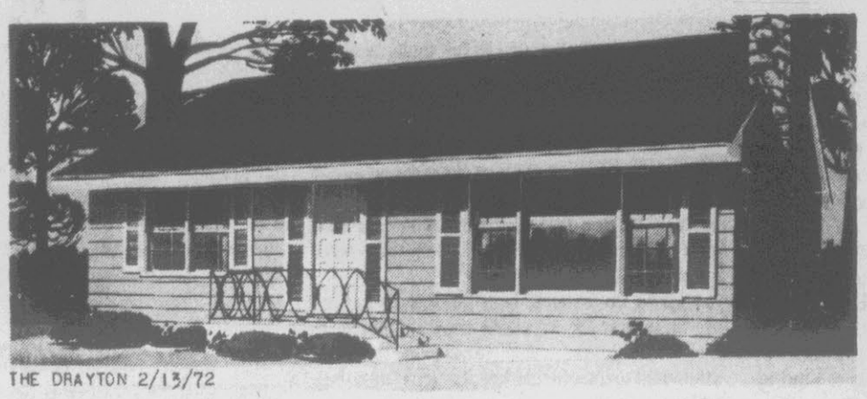

The windows are standard size of wood double-hung construction.

The main entrance opens into the living room which has lots of window exposure and would be a cheerful area. The open fireplace is the focal point of the room. Fine dimensions — approximately 22 feet by 13 feet — provide plenty of room for family activities and entertaining.

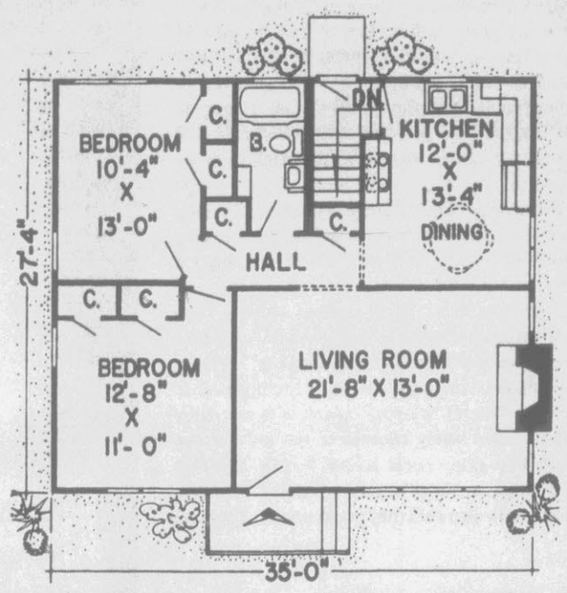

The kitchen is half workshop, half dining area. Cabinets and appliances are arranged in an efficient U. The double sink is under a window overlooking the back yard. The kitchen measures approximately 13 feet by 12 feet.

The bedrooms are approximately the same size — 13 feet by 11 feet — and each has twin closets. The bath is only a few steps away.

The exterior dimensions are approximately 27 feet by 35 feet and the living area totals 959 square feet on the first floor and an equal amount in the basement.

COZY AND REASONABLE — The Drayton, designed by the Associated Architects, is a two-bedroom ranch that fits nicely into a young couple's budget. Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG

Q.—We have a very old woodhouse that I intend to paint in a couple of months. I paint it about every three or four years. After the first year or two, the paint begins to peel on one or two of the outside walls. When I get ready to paint again, I have to go through the job of scraping off the areas where there is peeling. Is there some way I can do it this time so there won't be peeling?

A.—It seems likely that scraping the entire exterior rather than just the peeling portions may be in order this time. It may be that, while you remove the peeled paint in one area, the peeling may be continuing in other sections after the new paint has been applied. In much the same way, a leak in a corroded pipe may occur soon after a leak has been halted at some other point along the pipe.

Basically, however, the CAUSE of the peeling is moisture behind the paint. Until you find out where the moisture is coming from, you will continue to have trouble. There are a number of possible reasons. Do you sometimes have overflowing roof gutters? Are there any openings or gaps in the exterior, especially around window frames and doors? Do you have excess moisture inside the house without any normal method of exit?

Before you paint the next time, examine the outside of the house more carefully than you have ever done before, using a ladder and not relying on an inspection from the ground. Even a very narrow open seam can permit the entrance of water. Caulk or repair anything that even seems to need it.

If there is excessive moisture in your house, causing condensation on window panes, toilet tanks and other cool surfaces, the chances are that some of it is escaping through the inside walls to the outside. It gets under the paint and results in peeling. To prevent this, you need a dehumidifier or some method of allowing the moist air to get out of the house without going through the walls. Opening windows at least once a day is of some help. Ventilating fans often solve the moisture problem. So do small ventilating louvers or vents which can be installed in the outside walls, permitting the moisture to leave rather than settle under the paint.

Q.—I sometimes see an advertisement for "loose fill" insulation. What kind is it?

A.—Loose fill insulation is the kind that is poured into place, such as between rafters in an attic floor. It also is used by professionals to blow into wall openings of older houses when insulation is needed and it would be too expensive to knock down walls.

One of the easiest power tools to operate is the standard jig saw, which can do inside, outside and straight cutting. Because it can handle the most intricate of designs, it is a special favorite with hobbyists who perform delicate tasks.

An outgrowth of this time-tested electric machine is the portable jig saw, sometimes called a saber or bayonet saw. Unlike the regular jig saw, which is stationary, the portable model, as the name makes evident, can be brought to material which is anchored to something else.

The many kinds of blades available enable the tool to be used for cutting wood, felt, leather, rubber, plastics, insulating materials, composition boards, linoleum, resilient floor tiles and both ferrous and non-ferrous metals. Different brands have different methods of attaching the blades. While these differences appear to be slight, it is important that each manufacturer's instructions be followed to the letter so that the blade will be held firmly in the machine.

To start a cut, the portable jig saw's forward edge is placed on the stock, the motor started and the blade moved forward. The forward pressure should not be excessive—just enough to permit the blade to do its work. There must also be a slight downward pressure to keep the base riding smoothly on the material. This downward pressure is more necessary on some machines than on others, but you will soon discover exactly how much, if any, pressure to apply to your jig saw to halt any tendency to vibrate.

Like the table jig saw, the portable model can follow either a curved or straight line, although the cut itself won't be as fine. But the tool is light enough so that, when used properly, it will produce a smooth result. Since the saw has no frame or other hampering parts, it can be used to cut stock of any length or width.

Q. Will it be possible to find seed this spring of sweet corn varieties that carry resistance to Southern Corn Leaf Blight? (Mrs. S. G., Sparta)

A. Yes. All corn seed that will be offered for sale this year was developed with "normal" cytoplasm and should have resistance to Southern Corn Leaf Blight. You could have problems, however, with corn seed carried over from last year. (Charles Averre, extension plant pathologist)

Q. We would like to plant two pyracanthas, one on either side of a large living-room window, to grow flat against the house. However, there are three small pines, about 9-12 feet distant, on the front lawn. Would their shade cause the pyracantha not to produce berries? (W. C., Henderson)

A. Planting where you suggest would not be advisable. For an abundance of berries, full light is needed. Though the pines may be small at present, it is probable that in a few years they would cast a shade too dense for the pyracanthas to produce berries satisfactorily. (Henry J. Smith, extension horticulturist)

Q. I fertilized my strawberry bed last September with 8-8-8. What should I use this spring for fertilizer. (B. R., Troy)

A. Nothing. If you used as much as one quart of 8-8-8 per 100 feet of row, any fertilizer you add this spring would only grow more vines at the expense of fruit and would also cause the berries to rot by holding moisture around the fruit (shading). (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. I am growing tomatoes in a greenhouse and the plants are about 12 inches tall. I am getting ready to trellis the tomatoes with twine but a neighbor told me that I should not tie the end of the twine to the base of the plant. What is your thinking on this? (L. J., Wilmington)

A. Your neighbor has a good point. Many greenhouse tomato growers tie the end of the twine to the base of the plant. This practice is usually satisfactory but many times diseases do start on the stem where the twine is tied on the plant. Examples of diseases that may get started this way include stalk rots caused by Pythium, Sclerotinia, Botrytis, and Rhizoctonia. Some greenhouse tomato growers simply dig a small hole and insert the twine about four to five inches deep and then cover it up. Other growers drive stakes in the ground and tie the twine to it. Another technique is to run a tight wire along the ground and tie the twine to it. (Charles W. Averre, extension plant pathologist)

Women Have A Touch For Boat Interior Style

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

This year's boat show in New York provided a riot of color that seemed to take its cues from home fashions. Popular lime, yellow, bristol blue, burgandy, and the beige-y wood tones from sand to tobacco colors have gone to boat hulls. And in the big cruiser class is red, white and blue to the boot stripe, at least.

"The patriotic theme can't be overdone right now. It is not only a presidential year, but people seem to have a new appreciation of their country. They are taking another look. It is something young people started with the environmental bit," says Mary Reed, styling coordinator for Hattaras.

The interior of the 42-foot cruiser she had decorated was red, white and blue all the way. In the salon area, upholstery was blue, table white, and linen draperies were done in a contemporary pattern of the three colors.

Mrs. Reed's newest fait accompli, the Mandarin look, will be unveiled at the Miami show.

While interiors of boats are influencing colors that also go to hulls, and as one man put it, "you can't buy a boat until your wife approves it," teenagers are also having their say. One 16-year-old boy determined the entire color scheme for a boat his mother was buying, "and did a great job," Mrs. Reed explained. Dad had already decided on the electronics and the decoration had been left to mother, who just wasn't apt in that direction.

The emphasis on interior boat decoration started out as a theme to "let women have their say, too". But the idea is evolving into a boat fashion competition with companies outzinging each other in decor. More than one boat has been sold because the interiors superseded all other considerations.

The 43-foot cruiser in the Mandarin style has fabrics that are exact reproductions of old Mandarin color combinations—muted orange, apricot and hyacinth-blue with an accent of gold. There are Chinese lamps and Chinese Chippendale chairs and orientally-inspired campaign chests, Mrs. Reed points out.

"We will have a swing to Oriental things in everything and the captain's wife who has the latest fashion in her home and wardrobe will want to continue her fashion prowess at sea."

More women enjoy boating today and that may be one reason "seasickness seems to have died out," Mrs. Reed comments. It is seldom mentioned any more, and "it may have been psychological. Mal de mer probably set in because of ennui—nothing to do aboard but count waves. Now there is hi-fi, television and a dreamy galley with a house-size dishwasher, French door refrigerator and a four-surface cook center with built-in ventiliation. Boats are air-conditioned and more comfortable than ever before. In short, the second home is likely to have more comforts than home.

It is usually difficult to find a good spot for airconditioning on a boat, but Mrs. Reed now buries it in the upholstery at the rear arm of a sofa, and other non-irritating areas.

When people choose special color schemes, the men go for blue, the women gold, especially gold and white in the new crisp tones. Their teen-agers are always pushing for more color. The girls like great big romantic floral patterns and shaggy carpet.

"Personality plays a large part in the choices," says Mrs. Reed. "The fisherman is interested in utility and the tailored decor. The second-home owner wants comfort and whatever lends to cruising advantages and—as one woman put it, 'this has got to be my floating condominum'. The real yachtman is practical about the whole thing and he wants nothing superficial."

Fire Report

In January, Pitt County's rural fire departments answered a total of 35 alarms covering a total of 33 fires.

In reporting the fires, Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner noted the break down shows that 18 were house fires; seven were auto fires; two buildings other than houses; and four were grass or woods fires.

Also, the total included one false alarm and two mutual aid actions, where one department goes to the aid of another department.

During the month, Staton House Fire Department was the busiest department in the county, with a total of nine fires personnel of the station were called out to fight.

Plans For Farmville Centennial Inspire Enthusiasm

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — "I'm going to enjoy this centennial celebration," Farmville resident, Mrs. Andora Tyson, said the first day she wore her ankle-length dress and matching bonnet downtown. "It's a sure thing I won't be around for the next one."

An enthusiastic attitude seems to prevail here where plans to celebrate the week of April 6-12 as the town's hundredth anniversary are in full swing. A "smoothie" without a beard or at least a mustache looks a little strange, and long dresses, bonnets, bloomers, and colorful vests are becoming more commonplace every day. Citizens are encouraged to appear in centennial costume whenever they like, but are requested to do so if they appear on the streets the last four Fridays before the special week begins.

Centennial activities are being planned by the Rogers Company of Fostoria, Ohio. A corporation known as Farmville Centennial Inc. was formed early in the year. Officers are W. C. Monk, president; L. N. Hurley, vice president; and C. L. Beaman, secretary and treasurer. The Board of Directors consists of co-chairmen, Lloyd J. Engelhardt; and revenue chairmen, J. D. Joyner and LeRoy Redden.

Funds to begin preparing for the celebration were raised by selling centennial stock at $1 a share. Hopefully, all the buyers will reimbursed when the Centennial week is over.

A centennial store upstairs at the North Carolina National Bank was opened in mid-January and observes the bank's hours. The first couple of days, 91 of the 100 sterling silver centennial coins minted for the occasion were sold. Nine have been saved for auctioning during Centennial Week. Each of the silver ones sold for $25 a piece, but there are also bronze ones available at the store for $2 each, plus some encased in Lucite for use as paperweights. Also, on sale are commemorative plates embellished with the Centennial seal, plus likenesses of Farmville landmarks.

The main merchandise however, is centennial clothing — hats, bonnets, ties, dresses, vests, etc. for every member of the family. All other Farmville storekeepers agreed not to sell similar items, so the store could realize a profit. "At first the store stocked the number of each item recommended by the Rogers Company," Mrs. Ann McGaughey said. "We've had to reorder and reorder. This gives you some idea of the way Farmville people have accepted the centennial idea."

Town license tags bear the centennial seal.

Although anyone may participate through the Centennial headquarters, which Mrs. McGaughey has open each morning at the Farmville Economic Council office, many Farmvillites have chosen to band together in Centennial chapters. There are five general divisions — Brothers of the Brush, men who agree to grow "facial hair"; Smoothies — teenagers and men who offer legitimate reason why they should not grow facial hair; Little Shavers — boys up to 14; Farmville Belles — ladies; and Little Miss Belles — girls up to 10 years old. So far there are more than 100 chapters with an average of 15 members each. Some of the names they've given themselves include Bustle Belles, Belles of Joy, Hairless Harrys, and Baptist Bums.

"These groups have formed so they can enjoy the festivities with those they choose. But we will be calling on different chapters to help out with different activities Centennial Week," Mrs. McGaughey said. "No one can refuse to help with the promise that he may be called on next time, can he?"

The Brush Brothers had their kickoff—when most started the bristling process — Jan. 13. Chapters were established and permits to be clean shaven began being sold at $2 a piece. Membership in the Brush groups is just $1 — monetary incentive, according to David Stowe, who heads the Brush group along with Clarence Artis.

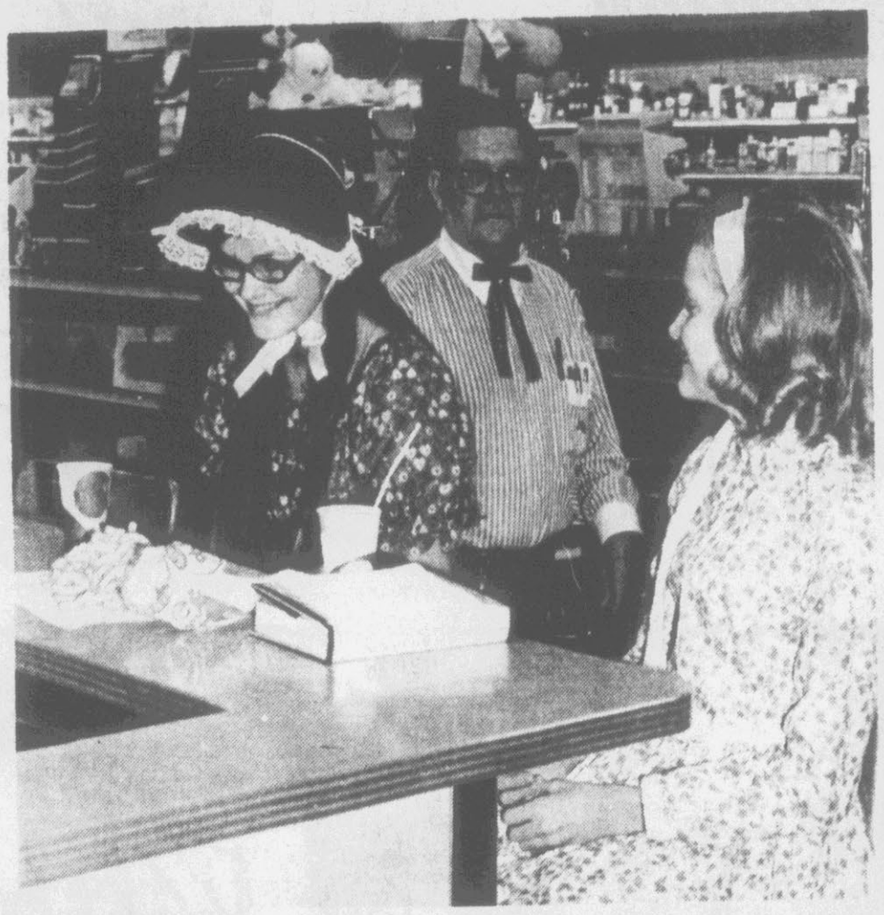

The Belles opened their activities Jan. 20 with a fashion show of women's attire to be sold at the Centennial Store. Mrs. Marian Stowe and Mrs. Lillian Bradley are heading up the Belles activities.

There will be promenades of townspeople in their 100-years-ago fashions here and in neighboring towns from time to time. Dr. and Mrs. Dan Heizer are in charge of planning Saturday caravans of promenaders to nearby towns to invite others to the Centennial Week affairs.

Mrs. Grace Carraway and Mrs. Gene Oglesby are preparing a commemorative handbook, which will include a history of Farmville and other pertinent information.

Mrs. Daisy Holmes Rogers and Mrs. Catherine Tyson have prepared a town history which has been given to the Rogers Company for incorporation into a script of a pageant to be given Saturday through Wednesday nights of Centennial Week. A Rogers Company representative is due to arrive within the next few days to help conduct the preparations for the big week and to direct the pageant, which is being coordinated by Mrs. Lehman Holmes and Mrs. Carlillia Barnes. Other special events will be headed by William Vines and James Lancaster. Special Day activities will be the responsibility of S. E. Selby and Dr. Bert Warren.

During Centennial Week besides the pageant, there will be "ole time" sale days in the store, a religious heritage day, parades, and numerous other activities. "All admissions and costs have been kept to a minimum," Mrs. McGaughey said, "but profits, if there are any after expenses are met, will be divided between the Farmville Fire Department and the Farmville Rescue Squad, both of which are volunteer services to the townspeople."

Family Grown, Housewife Has Begun Dramatic Soprano Career

By J. RICHARD TOREN

RAVENSWOOD, W.Va. (UPI) —When Ann Esch made her operatic stage debut in Louisville last fall a newspaper critic called her a "stunning discovery" and added, "It isn't likely that she will return to being just another West Virginia housewife who sings." He was right. Her family grown and at a time of life when a woman might try for a secretarial or clerking job, Ann Esch is launching a career as a dramatic soprano.

She has some big boosters. Basso Jerome Hines of New York's Metropolitan Opera told her, "You belong on the Metropolitan stage." He later engaged her for a major role in "I Am the Way," his own opera based on the life of Christ. She will sing it again in Atlanta in March.

A Teen-age Prodigy

Even as a 16-year-old, Ann Esch was drawing critical acclaim. A Columbus, Ohio, newspaper critic heard her first performance with a symphony orchestra and wrote that "this 16-year-old redhead has a voice that established singers can listen to with envy."

Three months ago, F. W. Woolsey of the Louisville Times, who also called her "a stunning discovery," said she was "an assured, confident artist in every way."

Why has she been hiding in the hills of Appalachia?

"I'm a late bloomer if there ever was one," the petite redhead replied in an interview.

"When I was just 22 and taking classes at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, my teacher told my husband, Henry, and me that I could have a solid career if I chose to go that route," she said.

"At that point I made my decision. My family truly meant more to me, and I couldn't face the sacrifices involved in not keeping them first in my life.

Artistry Based on Life

"I wasn't torn apart by making that choice, and I've never regretted it. In fact, my life has been so rich and full that it's given me the background on which to build what artistry I have—rather than trying to build a life on artistry."

That full life included marriage to electrical engineer Henry Esch the same week she graduated from high school, rearing two children now in their early 20s, and two years with the family in Germany where she was able to study at the Robert Schumann Conservatory in Dusseldorf.

Esch has been employed by Kaiser Aluminum since 1949, the last eight years based at the big Kaiser plant near this lovely Ohio River town.

"Mother always said I could sing before I could talk," Mrs Esch recalled. "I was singing solo in church by the age of 12, and was in high school plays and glee club concerts."

After their marriage, the Esches lived in a number of cities, "and wherever we were I tried to avail myself of any good teachers." That included the Peabody faculty while Esch worked in Baltimore.

After their second child was born the couple moved back to Ohio, living a dozen years in Newark while the children were growing up.

Family Above All

"All through the 1950s I was pretty much tied down with a young family, so I didn't really try any professional singing. I sang at Rotary meetings, some recitals of German lieder (songs), and lots of oratorio work—all in nearby towns that didn't take me far from my family," she said.

Five years ago the family, settled in Ravenswood with son Paul in college and daughter Carolyn in high school, urged Ann to try her vocal wings.

She entered the Charleston Symphony's statewide talent contest in 1966 and won first place, which meant an appearance as solist with the symphony the following season.

Ann has appeared with the symphony each year since then, singing in the Verdi Requiem, Beethoven's Ninth or Choral Symphony, the Gypsy role of Azucena in Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and the title role in Puccini's "turandot." Both operas were given in concert or non-stage form.

A Conductor's Praise

Charleston Symphony Conductor Charles Schiff has become another of Ann's biggest boosters.

"She has one of the most phenomenal voices I have ever had the privilege of working with—a voice of remarkable beauty, size, power, ease and range, combined with great intelligence and artistry," he said.

"Ann Esch belongs on the stages of every major opera house in the world in leading dramatic soprano roles, and I expect, given the right circumstances, that she will soon be there," he added.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal white chiffon gown with an empire bodice. The neck, cuffs and hemline of the full skirt were ruffles of chiffon.

Her mantilla was of white chiffon, edged with white alencon lace. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids, tips of Baker's fern centered with a white orchid tied with bridal satin.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Alvin Davis.

The refreshment table was covered with a gold lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow and white pom pons with lighted tapers. Wedding bells decorated the corners of the table. Green, white and yellow completed the decorations throughout the fellowship hall.

National Beauty Salon Week Observance Begins

"Turn A Head With A New Hair Style" is the theme for the 22nd annual National Beauty Salon Week, Feb. 13-19.

The week-long event, sponsored by members of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, focuses attention on professional hair care through the efforts and activities of state and local NHCA groups across the country.

The Pitt County Cosmetologists Association began their activities by having Mayor S. Eugene West of Greenville, Mayor James Dupree of Bethel and Mayor Ross Persinger of Ayden sign proclamations saluting National Beauty Salon Week.

Members of the local group will be visiting the Greenville Convalescent Home to provide community services. In addition, they will give toys for children to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Other activities such as speeches for school groups and a television appearance Monday at 7:30 a.m. will be made by members. Spot announcements will be heard on the radio and signs on bill-boards will salute NBSW.

The project for the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association of North Carolina has been to raise funds for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

The refrigerator motor runs but will not freeze the water in the ice trays. Call a serviceman; the refrigeration units on the blink.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Award-winning Reflector photographer Tommy Forrest is in the process of adding another award — for life, when he marries Vashti Phelps of Plymouth.

The couple met last fall at "The Den," which is a center for Presbyterian students and guests. They will exchange wedding vows on June 4 at the First Baptist Church, Plymouth.

The bride-to-be is a junior in the East Carolina University School of Music. Her fiance is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute.

Another East Carolina University student, Connie Pou, of Greenville will become the bride of David Womble on April 15 in a ceremony to be performed in the Oakmont Baptist Church.

Connie is a senior majoring in English and is also a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority. Her fiance is a graduate of ECU and was a member of Kappa Sigma Fraternity. He is presently an assistant manager of a local dry cleaners.

The couple met at a fraternity Christmas party two years ago. They were pinned after dating for a year and then announced their engagement this past Christmas.

Connie's sorority pin gave David the idea for a ring which was fashioned similar to the pin. Taking the place of an engagement ring, the diamond-shaped ring is encircled by emeralds and pearls.

St. James United Methodist Church will be the scene of the high noon May 20 wedding of Katrina Jolly and Les Garner, both of Greenville.

The couple became acquainted while attending high school but didn't begin dating until they were students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Majoring in political science, Les will graduate in May. He is a Morehead Scholar and is Phi Beta Kappa.

Katrina is a sophomore and is majoring in elementary education.

Sociologist Predicts Computers Determine Romance By 1990

TORONTO (AP) — The year is 1990.

Boy meets girl at a party. He's strongly attracted to her. He sees a serious relationship looming, so he asks here: "What's your code number? I want to look you up."

The boy is referring to the computer-compiled profile of the young woman that is available at a central depot which records her background, beliefs, health, interests and personality traits.

But the girl declines to disclose her code number, leading the boy to the conclusion that she isn't interested in him or has something to hide.

"That's the way courtship will be conducted within 20 years," says Dr. Leo Davids, 33, a sociologist at York University in Toronto.

"Young people won't waste time courting partners who are grossly incompatible."

He said in an interview his predictions were not guesswork. "They're scientific estimates based on trends already under way or coming very soon. Given a number of known facts you can figure out the rest.

"Fatherhood, for example, is going to be vastly changed two decades from now."

Picture the office of the human relations director in an industrial plant. A young husband is explaining that he's just become a father—therefore he'll be working part-time for the next eight or 10 years. The director is not surprised Legal provision exists that frees fathers to spend at least 20 leisure hours a week with their younger children.

"It's becoming increasingly appreciated that working fathers are responsible for more child neglect than working mothers," Mr. Davids said. "Remedial action will be taken in the future."

If Davids' forecasts prove to be accurate the 1990s will be a bleak period for the writers of traditional style songs, poems, movies and novels.

He says romantic love will practically disappear.

Young people today are rejecting the romantic myth, Cavids said. "They are drawn, generally, to what they call 'beautiful people.' They don't fall in love at first sight. Rather, a gradual process of mutual discovery sometimes results in love.

"A boy meets a girl but before he commits himself deeply, he makes sure that her values and personal philosophy are akin to his. In other words, the beautiful creature is being asked to state her views.

"In the future the only people retaining a belief in romantic love will be found among the uneducated and the poor."

He said a popular type of union will be the three to five-year childless trial marriage. At the end of the term, the contract comes up for discussion and the couple can decide to continue as before, opt out, or renew it on different terms.

And, he said, the most radical changes will occur in the approach to parenthood where adults wanting to reproduce will be required to tender an application to a local parenthood board that consists of physicians, psychologists, geneticists and social workers.

Gun-Toting Ambassadress Has Her Way

WASHINGTON (WNS) — Miss Louise Gore, President Nixon's good-looking blonde Ambassador to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) in Paris, has worked out an ingenious scheme to get herself and the Embassy chauffeur through those horrendous traffic snarl-ups off the Champs-Elysee each evening.

After sitting mute and frustrated in the back seat while French drivers to the right and left were out-maneuvering her polite driver into the line of traffic time after time, she dreamed up the following strategem:

At a local store, she bought several toy water pistols, loaded them and lined them up on the seat beside her.

As she told it at a recent dinner here, "When one of those excited drivers would shout at my driver to make way, I would just smile sweetly, lower the window gently, point the water pistol in his general direction and let fly. After about 10 seconds of surprise, the driver who a minute before had been shaking his fist at us would collapse with laughter and, with a gallant motion of the hand, wave us on."

This is the ingenious former member of the Maryland legislature who is credited with playing a key role in persuading South Carolina's Strom Thurmond to accept Spiro Agnew, then Maryland's Governor, as Nixon's running mate in 1968.

Walnut Cream Cheese Cake Recipe Wins Praise

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Cream cheese first started being used as an ingredient in cake more than a dozen years ago, according to our recollection, when such a cake won a large money prize in a bake-off contest.

Now an ingenious cook has invented another cream cheese cake that's absolutely delicious. It's baked in a bundt pan that has a pancoat of butter, walnuts and sugar so the cake doesn't need frosting. Walnuts also give delectable flavor to the cake itself. When tried in our kitchen, we found this cake stayed beautifully moist.

WALNUT CREAM CHEESE CAKE

1½ cups walnuts
2 tablespoons butter for pancoat
2 tablespoons sugar for pancoat
1 cup butter
2 packages (each 3 ounces) cream cheese
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1½ cups sugar
4 eggs
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Chop 1-3rd cup of the walnuts very fine for pancoat and chop remainder medium fine for batter.

Butter a 2-quart bundt pan heavily, using 2 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle with the 1-3rd cup very finely chopped walnuts, then with 2 tablespoons sugar.

Cream 1 cup butter with cream cheese and lemon rind; gradually beat in 1½ cups sugar. Beat in eggs, 1 at a time, until thoroughly blended—batter may look slightly curdled.

Resift flour with baking powder and salt; gradually blend into creamed mixture. Stir in remaining medium-fine chopped walnuts. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—1 hour and 20 to 30 minutes. Let cake stand in pan placed on a wire rack for 10 minutes, then turn out on wire rack to cool.

Couple Speaks Vows In Ceremony Friday Night

The Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church was the scene for the wedding of Miss Carolyn White and Randall Stokes Friday at 7:00 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Lewis White Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Jinnings Byran Stokes Jr., all of Greenville.

The Rev. Harry Jones, pastor of the couple, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Wedding music was rendered by Randy Buck, pianist, and Misses Louise and Vicki Hardee, who sang, "More," "We've Only Just Begun" and "Wedding Prayer."

In the background of the church candlelight reflected from four seven branched candelabra flanked by emerald greenery. A massive arrangement of white gladioli mums and pom pons centered the altar. Pews were marked with ribbon and bows of white satin and greenery. At the altar was a prie-dieu where the bridal couple knelt for the wedding prayer and benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional floor length gown of white crepe trimmed in Venise lace with an empire waist which featured full Bishop sleeves also cuffed in matching lace.

Her full length mantilla flowed to chapel length. She carried a lace covered prayerbook centered with a white Georgiana orchid with white bridal satin streamers.

Mrs. Walter Gaskins, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floor length dress of pink organza over pink satin accented with red velvet ribbon. In her hair, she wore a matching red bow and net of silk illusion. She carried a nosegay of pink and white daisies accented with red streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Michael Clark, Miss Cathy White, sisters of the bride, Miss Russelyn Adams, Miss Sylvia Dixon, Miss Trudy Halstead, and Miss Terry Tyson, cousin of the bridegroom. They wore dresses identical to that of the honor attendant and carried colonial nosegays also like that of the honor attendant.

Miss Amanda Stokes, sister of the bridegroom was dressed as the attendants and carried a white flower basket filled with pink Petals.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Richard Stokes, brother of the bridegroom, Michael White, brother of the bride, Mack Vernon Dixon Jr., Wayne Buck and Walter Gaskins, brother-in-law of the bride, and Kelly Mills, all of Greenville. Chad Clark, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer and carried a lace and satin covered pillow.

Mrs. Mack Vernon Dixon Jr. registered guests. The wedding was directed by Mrs. James Smith.

The grandmothers, Mrs. R. L. White Sr., Mrs. Callie Cannon, Mrs. Nannie Gray and Mrs. Jinnings Bryan Stokes Sr. wore corsages of white carnations.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a navy polyester knit ensemble with matching accessories. She wore the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The couple will reside at Rt. 3, Greenville. The bride is currently a senior at D. H. Conley High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Chicod High School and is presently engaged in farming.

After-Rehearsal Party

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Stokes Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Elks entertained the bridal party at an after-rehearsal party Thursday night in the educational building of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. James Harvey Stokes welcomed guests and invited them to the refresment table. An arrangement of pink carnations flanked on either side with burning pink tapers centered the bride's table. The table was covered with a white satin cloth and tied at the corners with white satin bows, wedding bells and ivy streamers. A pink and red color motif was used throughout the building.

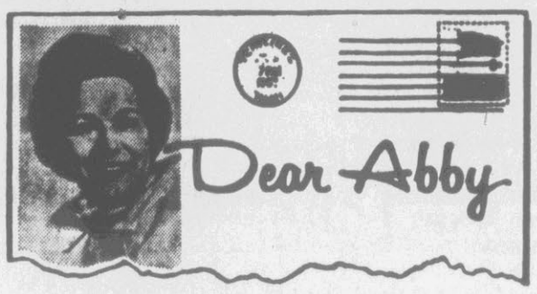

After the bridal couple cut the first slice from the three tiered wedding cake, Mrs. Harvey Stokes served cake and Mrs. Ernest McGowan poured punch.

Mrs. Frankie Hardee assisted with the serving.

The wedding attendants were remembered with gifts from the bridal couple

Good-byes were said by the hosts and hostesses.

Best Way To Free POWs: Stop The War

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR READERS: Over the years one of the most frustrating aspects of being "Dear Abby" has been my inability to provide solutions for some problems. One in particular, since it is not within my domain to "solve," and affects so many American families.

I refer to letters from individuals and organizations urging me to ask my readers to write to Hanoi, asking that our prisoners of war be released, or humanely treated, or allowed to communicate with their families, or that a "list" be published so that the families will know whether their serviceman is alive or dead.

My dear readers, you are appealing to the wrong person. You should be appealing to your congressmen, senators, and president, urging them to bring an end to this senseless war in Viet Nam.

If OUR country were being bombed, would YOU agree to release the enemies' war prisoners?

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a sweet motherless 14-year-old niece who comes to me with her problems. She has asked me so many times to tell her how to be "popular." Is there something you can recommend for her to read? I know there is no easy road to popularity, but I would like to help her. Please? AUNT LAURA

DEAR AUNT LAURA: Will this do? I wrote it in my column nearly 10 years ago, and it's still true:

"The key to being popular with both sexes is: Be kind. Be honest. Be tactful. If you can't be beautiful [or handsome] be well-groomed, tastefully attired, trim of figure, and KEEP A SMILE ON YOUR FACE! Be clean in mind and body. If you're not a brain, try harder. If you're not a great athlete, be a good sport.

"Try to be a standout at something. If you can't dance or sing, learn to play an instrument. Think for yourself, but respect the rules. Be generous with kind words and affectionate gestures, but save the heavy artillery for later. You'll be glad you did. If you need help, ask God. If you don't need anything, THANK God!"

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your readers that holding one's hand over the telephone doesn't always block out the sound.

I know a very dear little old lady. Her children live out of the state so I telephone her daily to chat with her. She is very alert, well-informed and has a wonderful sense of humor at 86.

Several days ago I called and one of her daughters answered the telephone. After the usual "how are you's, etc." she said, "I suppose you'd like to talk to Mother," whereupon I replied, "Yes, if she's not busy." Then she apparently placed her hand over the telephone, but I heard her say, "Mom, it's your gabby friend. I'll give you 5 minutes, then I'll ring the doorbell and you say we have to go."

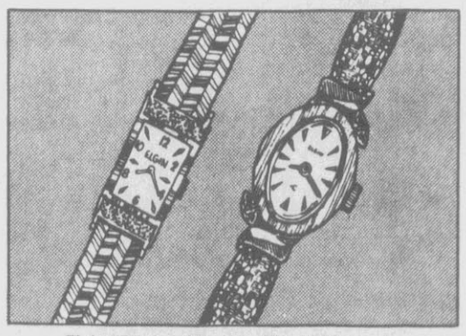

I managed to be pleasant, but I felt very foolish not to have been suspicious of that doorbell routine. It had occurred each time this daughter was in town. WISER NOW

Miss USA Says:

I'm Having Experience Of A Lifetime In One Year

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Michele McDonald cried when she won the Miss USA contest, and she's convinced she'll cry even harder when she has to give up the title at the end of her reign. But, in between, she's smiling a lot.

"It's really like a fairy tale," exclaimed the willowy 19-year-old as she passed up the pastries and sipped orange juice in a restaurant here. "I remember when I was little I would watch the pageants and say 'Some day I'd like to be in that dream' but never thought it would happen.

"I think it will be very sad the night I take my last walk. I know I'll cry" she went on "The experiences I've had traveling and meeting people—you couldn't do it in a lifetime, and here I'm doing it in a year."

The traveling, especially, has been a major part of the excitement for the Butler, Pa., girl who had never been out of her state nor in an airplane before going to Miami Beach to participate in the finals as Miss Pennsylvania. Since then she has been in some 30 states, including Alaska, and has visited the Bahamas and Brazil.

Her royal duties involve appearing at conventions, riding in parades, making talks before various groups and doing promotion for stores and companies, which includes some modeling.

"I don't think winning a title has changed me inside, but it has broadened my views and has opened doors for me," says the brown-eyed beauty who has long, ash brown hair. "I would like to go into modeling for awhile, but eventually I want to be a registered nurse in pediatrics."

Why a nurse and not a doctor? "It just seems like women should be nurses and men should be doctors," said Miss McDonald, who admits, "Truthfully, I prefer to stay away from the subject of Women's Lib. There's nothing wrong with it as long as people don't go to extremes. They lead their life and I lead mine. But winning a beauty contest does not make me a sex object."

MISS U. S. A. — Michele McDonald didn't win the Miss Universe contest, but she's having a fine time in her royal role as Miss U. S. A. So far she has traveled in some 30 states.

She recently received an engagement ring from the boy she went with all through high school. Both graduated last spring and her fiance is attending college, but they have no immediate marriage plans.

Miss McDonald, who returned to Miami Beach in July to compete in the Miss Universe contest, found that pageant even more interesting than the Miss USA contest, even though she failed to win. "The girls were so excited, just coming to another country. There was a language barrier but I formed close companionships with some I hope to visit one day."

The teen-ager, who is 5 feet 8 and weighs 124 pounds, likes different lengths in her clothes, depending on the occasion, and she enjoys wearing hats, of which she has a large variety. Her mother makes some of her dresses, but she herself likes to sew and cook.

"And I like to collect things every place I go—ash trays, menus, state charms for my bracelet," she adds. "I already have six or seven scrapbooks at home. It will be nice to show my children and grandchildren."

An athletic girl who played basketball and volleyball in high school, Miss McDonald is an avid fan of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who are "only about 28 miles down the road from home. I wore a Pirate uniform in the Miss USA pageant and when I got back home I got to sit in the dugout with them during a game and threw out the first ball. I even got an autographed ball."

That ball, the uniform, her scepter, sash and crown, keys to various cities, her trophies and a picture with President Nixon will go in a glass case in the living room of her home after she makes that final, tearful walk that marks the end of her reign.

Angel Food Roll For Guests

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Roll cakes, stuffed with fillings other than the traditional jelly, are good enough for guests.

So here's a new combination you may want to try. A package of angelfood cake mix is used for the roll and the filling is a luscious combination of semi-sweet chocolate and whipped cream. To gild the lily you may, if you like, top the servings of this Chocolate Cream Angelfood Roll with vanilla ice cream.

CHOCOLATE CREAM ANGELFOOD ROLL

1 package angelfood cake mix
2 tablespoons honey
1½ teaspoons water
½ of a 6-ounce package (½ cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup heavy cream, whipped

Line the bottom of a jelly roll pan (15 by 10 by 1 inch) with wax paper; grease paper.

Prepare cake mix according to package directions and pour into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes. With a small metal spatula loosen around edges and turn out onto a tea towel sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Remove paper; trim off edges. Immediately roll up cake, from 10-inch side, in towel. Cool.

In a small saucepan combine honey and water; over moderate heat, stirring constantly, bring just to a boil. Remove from heat. Add chocolate and vanilla and stir until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth. Cool completely. Fold in whipped cream. Chill until thick enough to spread.

Unroll cake; spread with chocolate mixture and roll up again. Chill several hours or wrap in foil and freeze. Before serving sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Cut into slices about 1-inch thick.

Makes about 10 servings.

Popular 'Squaw' Is A Canadian

PRAIS France (WNS) — Because of her long, brown hair, Pauline Poulain, a 28-year-old Canadian teacher, is frequently taken for an Indian squaw by her young pupils at the Roger Semat School in suburban St. Denis. "It gives them added interest in their studies," she smiled.

Miss Poulain is one of 199 Canadian women teaching here in the exchange program of the French-Quebec Center. She is paid her $600-a-month Canadian salary instead of the $300-a-month French pay. "I've had to change my vocabulary because my native Quebec French is purer and older than the Paris version," she confided. "I'm afraid that Canadians will find my wordage 'drolement snob' when I return there."

A poll of her class revealed that almost all students would like to return with her.

IRA Sees Present Conflict As 'The Final Chapter'

MASKED MEMBERS of the outlawed IRA patrol Bogside area in Londonberry, reportedly armed with American-made M-1 carbines. (UPI Telephoto)

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

BELFAST (UPI) —The outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), one of the oldest underground forces in the world, sees the present conflict in Northern Ireland as the final chapter in its fight to reunify Ireland.

"This is the final phase," said Sean MacStiofain, chief of staff of the provisional IRA. "If we don't win now, we will not have the chance again."

IRA leaders believe they would find it virtually impossible to mount such a sustained struggle again or to win backing from a significant section of Northern Ireland's half million Roman Catholics.

Their aim is to unite the six counties of British-ruled Northern Ireland with the predominantly Roman Catholic Irish Republic.

The 'Real' Purpose

Behind the current wave of killings, bombings, arson and terror, lies a twofold purpose. The first, the short term objective, is aimed at wrecking the Northern Ireland economy and making the work of government impossible.

When that stage has been reached, the IRA believes the British government will be forced to suspend the Northern Ireland government and rule the province directly from London.

Once direct rule from London has been imposed, according to the IRA reading of the situation in which nearly 250 civilians and soldiers have died, it will have brought about the traditional Anglo-Irish confrontation.

"In that situation we would expect the backing of every Republican north and south of the border," a provisional IRA leader told UPI. The term "Republican" in the Irish context means those who favor a 32-county republic embracing the six counties of Northern Ireland.

The IRA is now split into two wings. The militant provisionals who claim responsibility for most of the violence in Northern Ireland, and the officials who preach a Marxist-Socialist doctrine and who claim their actions in the North as "purely defensive."

Sinn Fein Convention

The split devloped within the IRA over the method to be followed to achieve reunification. It came to a head two years ago at the annual convention of Sinn Fein (ourselves), the IRA's political front.

One group proposed and carried a resolution recognizing the London, Dublin and Belfast Parliaments and advocating an extreme brand of socialism. This group was headed by Thomas McGiolla, leader of 'official' Sinn Fein, with Cathal Goulding, chief of staff of the official's military wing.

A second group, led by Rory O'Brady, a Roscommon school teacher, stomped out of the meeting hall and formed its own Sinn Fein party, which became known as the "provisional" or "green" IRA.

Although it enunciated a vague form of socialism, the Provisional IRA was a physical force organization in the old traditions of the IRA.

Almost immediately the provisionals opened an offensive in Northern Ireland. In a few months it had syphoned off much of the official's strength, leaving that faction only the Lower Falls and a few other areas of influence in Belfast.

Provisionals Arm Themselves

The provisionals moved swiftly to grab arms and ammunition already stockpiled in dumps throughout Northern Ireland. They established their own network to channel through additional supplies.

Today, the provisionals have a fairly extensive arsenal of sophisticated weapons, ranging from bren guns and rocket launchers to 50 caliber browning belt-fed machineguns, a weapon of extraordinary firepower.

American Army weapons provide the basic firepower of the provisionals—the M1 Carbine and its fully automatic sibling M3 "grease gun" a cheaper, lighter version of the others used at the end of the last war.

The Thomson Machinegun, famed in song and ballad as the traditional weapon of the IRA, is not much favored by the provisionals. They consider it clumsy, inaccurate with a tendency to "climb" thereby causing the gunman to spray a target.

American Supporters

Much of the financial backing for the provisionals has come from Irish-American societies scattered through the United States, although the more prominent societies contributing funds for relief in Northern Ireland have stipulated they must not be used for gun-buying.

In some instances in New York, in heavily populated Irish areas, door-to-door collections have been made in homes and apartment buildings to raise funds for the IRA. Proceeds from dances and social events have been channeled into its fighting fund.

The savage guerrilla war being waged by the IRA today bears little resemblance to the romanticized exploits of its turbulent past.

It is a grim, ugly war. The hidden sniper, the gelignite bomb wrapped in a brown paper parcel and shoved in a doorway, the Claymore Mine planted on the roadway, the booby-trapped automobile parked in a public street. These are the weapons of the urban guerrilla. The glamor has gone —a glamor built up by newspaper accounts of trench-coated, grim-faced freedom fighters; of a faceless, silent army fighting in the shadows; of crack commando-style units hitting with drilled precision.

Today, the IRA Provisional may be the milkman on his rounds, or the mother pushing a stroller along the sidewalk, or the elderly man pausing in a doorway to light his pipe.

IRS Meets 'Justice'

But its changing face has not altered the iron discipline imposed by the IRA on its members. It operates its owl scales of justice. To some, it might appear "rough justice" but in the teeming Catholic ghettos of Northern Ireland—for the most part unpoliced—it is a form of punishment that meets with approval.

Criminal offenses, such as house-breaking, drug pushing, sex offenses, are dealt with by tarring and feathering the culprit. Breaches of IRA security are met by pistol whipping or shooting in the lets. The informer, the ultimate crime in the underground, is shot through the mouth and his body dumped in the gutter.

Contrary to the movie-style IRA character, both the provisional and official wings frown upon their members drinking. It is a serious offense to reach for a pint while on "active service."

Behind the Provisional IRA's determination to wage its guerrilla war against occupying British soldiers and Northern Ireland's security forces, lies an equal resolve to be around when the pieces are being picked up.

"We have no intention of leaving the stage when this is over," is the way a provisional leader explained it.

Tree-Planting Profits Are Easy To Anticipate

If I plant trees today, what kind of profit can I expect to make? And how long will it be before I realize an income from my investment? If you are a landowner, you have probably asked these questions at least once before.

Now lets see if we can give you some satisfactory answers to these questions. First, lets look at what it will cost you to plant these trees. Usually areas to be planted need to be site prepared first. This could involve many different operations such as chopping, burning, and blade work.

Generally, from site preparation to tree planting the cost is about $60.00 per acre. The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation's Service Rural Environmental Assistance Program will pay a landowner $18.00 an acre for site preparation and $14.00 per acre for tree planting. This is a total assistance of $32.00 per acre. Therefore the average cost per acre to the land-owner is reduced to $28.00.

If you figure you must make at least eight per cent on your investment, the $26.00 per acre compounded at eight per cent for thirty years is worth $263.00 per acre. Also, other costs that must be considered are annual ones such as ad valorum taxes and fire protection. If we use an annual cost of $1.40 per acre and compound it at eight per cent these annual costs will be worth $187.00 in thirty years. The total worth of your investment at the end of thirty years would therefore amount to $450.00 per acre.

Now that we know what the investment is worth, lets consider what the timber will be worth in thirty years. To figure the net worth, we will assume the value for the timber products to be $5.00 per cord and $25.00 per thousand board feet on an international one-quarter inch rule. Also, any money made on intermediate thinnings are reinvested at eight per cent for the remainder of the rotation period.

On better sites for timber growing, with the present spacing of ten by seven feet for planted trees, the first commercial thinning can usually be made in ten years. Subsequent thinnings, can be made every five years thereafter.

The total value of these thinnings reinvested at eight per cent until the end of the stand is clearcut at the end of thirty years, with the value of the final cut at $447.00 per acre, results in a total value of the timber at $970.00 per acre.

If we subtract the cost of the investment, $450.00 per acre, from the total value of the timber, $970.00 per acre, we have a net profit of $520.00 per acre.

Now that we have looked at the cost and returns involved in tree planting, what about to the questions that were asked in the beginning?

Yes, you can plant trees for profit. And on your better sites you can expect income from your investment in ten years and five years thereafter.

If you are interested in planting trees for profit and want more information, contact your local North Carolina Forestry Service County Ranger or one of the following agencies: ASCS, SCS or N. C. Extension Service.

CanMeetChurch Rule Saturday

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Roman Catholics in the western half of North Carolina have been given the opportunity to fulfill their Sunday mass obligations on Saturday evening.

Bishop J. Michael Begley of the new Diocese of Charlotte, has made the decision because of a manpower problem — some parish priests had to say four masses on a Sunday. The new additional hours of 5 to 8 p.m. on Saturday are effective Feb. 19.

Saturday masses are common in most parts of the nation. However, the Diocese of Raleigh, which covered North Carolina until the Charlotte Diocese was split off from it recently, has not allowed them.

Jenkins Dreams Of SmokestackCarillon

If Dr. Leo Jenkins' dream comes true, Music on Campus may someday soon be dominated by a gold or purple smokestack from which the countryside will be caressed with peaceful peals instead of polluting particles.

"I'm very hopeful this will materialize," Dr. Jenkins said, "rather than destroy this majestic structure, I'd like to see it become a beautiful center, the tallest carillon in all of North Carolina."

Revealing that he has someone drawing up plans, Dr. Jenkins said he envisions the idea of clearing away huts, the laundry, and other buildings now clustered at the foot of the towering smokestack.

"I can see it as a structure enclosed with a platform and chairs, something really attractive," Dr. Jenkins commented. "The color of the tower would be ECU purple or gold, with a carillon on top. We could have concerts of music that could be heard at least two miles away."

Asked about the cost of the project, Dr. Jenkins remarked that "we'll welcome assistance on this and would be delighted if some music lover gave us $50,000 for the carillon."

He stated that very soon a drawing of the proposed project would be available for the public to see.

Insults Cut Deep When They Come From Parent

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

MARK, A CHUBBY 11-year-old, was showing a pair of trousers he had selected and bought by himself.

Mark: How do you like my new pants?

Father: They're too tight. You're too fat. Don't you know that?

Mark: Why don't you just call me stupid?

Father: O.K., Fatso, you are stupid!

Mark: You're right. Like father, like son, maybe.

Before Father had a chance to answer, Mark ran upstairs, took off his pants, rolled them into a ball and threw them down the stairs.

A battle followed that lasted all afternoon.

Insults cut deep when they come from a parent. When a father calls his son stupid, he starts a vicious cycle: Insult leads to anger. Anger leads to revenge fantasies which bring guilt, anxiety and self-hate. Moreover, there is always the danger that the son will believe and accept his father's evaluation. It is not in a father's interest to convince his son that he is stupid.

Father would have been more helpful had he said: "I see you like tight-fitting pants. I see you like pants without cuffs. I see you like colorful pants. I see you prefer slacks with belts (or without belts)."

A descriptive comment does not lead to defensive reactions.

ABOUT TO DRIVE her 15-year-old daughter to a shoe store, Mother noticed Roslyn was not wearing stockings.

Mother: You don't have stockings on. How will you try on new shoes?

Roslyn: They'll give me those little socklets.

Mother: That might give you a deceptive fit. Why can't you do things right? Why are you such a difficult child?

Roslyn: One. I was born that way. Two, I have learned from you.

Enraged, Mother slapped her daughter.

Communication patterns need reform in many cases. From the start, this Mother's questions were not helpful, because they brought forth predictable answers.

It would have been more effective had she refrained from asking questions, calling names, and insulting her dauthter. Mother could have made a statement, and offered a choice. You definitely need stockings to try on shoes. You can put them on or we can postpone going to the store. You decide."

When we state our feelings without insult and offer choices without polemics, children often decide to understand our concern.

MOTHER RECEIVED a special delivery letter from Sara, a college sophomore, with an urgent request for money: "Even though we had agreed on an allowance of $200 a month, I must have more. I need $300." Sara enclosed a clipping from the local paper headlined "cost of living up 10 per cent."

Mother's first reaction was that of anger. Only a month before, they had gone over her needs and decided the budget. Mother was in a quandary. Should she give in to her dauthter's demands, should she refuse it? Should she ask her for a strict accounting? Mother avoided these obvious approaches. Instead she wrote her daughter a chatty letter about life in New York. At the end of the letter she added: "As for additional funds, we have talked about it in detail and agreed on the sum. However, the cost of living has gone up 10 per cent as your clipping substantiated. Your allowance will be increased 12½ per cent to $225. Let me know if my figures are right."

Sara's answer was brief: "Thanks for the check. It helps."

Mother managed to avoid acrimony, and to gain good will. She resisted the urge to moralize and preach. (Do you know how many students would have been happy to have $200 a month?) She refrained from criticism and comparison. (How come other girls manage on an even smaller budget?) Mother was factual, flexible and solution-oriented.

Dad's insult won't make Mark's clothes fit better.

Advisory Group To Meet On Monday

On Valentine's Day, Monday, February 14, the Citizens Advisory Committee of the Greenville City Schools will have their first full-fledged meeting following an earlier orientation meeting in January.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held in the new Wahl-Coates Elementary School.

On the agenda are recognition of committee members, individual comments and personal data as the beginning phase of the meeting.

This will be followed by a business session during which recommendations will be heard from the Sterring Committee — plans for a nominating committee, for organizational structure, format for meetings, governing policies and procedures, and the appointment of special committees.

This meeting is expected to result in a general shaping up of the Citizens Advisory Committee as a working body that will be in a position to coordinate a wide spectrum of matters of interest concerning the schools.

In this connection, the 36 members will be engaged in reporting, consolidating, and keeping the school board advised on community concerns and plans.

Pirates Hold Off The Citadel, 91-83

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University ralled from 10 points down in the early going to take command of the game, and then nearly lost it late in the contest against The Citadel last night. But the Bucs finally prevailed, 91-83, and tightened their grip on third place in the Southern Conference race.

The Pirates have only one more conference game left, against William & Mary in Williamsburg, Va., next Saturday night. A win there will insure them on third, and should Furman University stumble anywhere along the way, the Bucs could move into second.

The Pirates produced a balanced scoring attack in mowing down The Citadel and gaining revenge for an earlier loss. All five of the starters hit double figures, with Jim Fairley leading the way with 23.

But although they didn't hit twin figures, Ernie Pope and Nicky White came off the bench and provided some key plays and points when the going started to get tough late along the way.

The Bucs also burned the nets in the final period, dumping in 56.6 per cent of their shots from the floor. They finished with a fine 52.5 per cent for the game.

They also hit well from the line, actually winning it there. The Citadel made one more field goal than did the Bucs, 33-32. But the Pirates hit on 27 of 37 free throws as compared to 17 of 24 for The Citadel. The fouls really mounted up late in the game, when The Citadel was trying so hard for the ball.

The Pirates also completely dominated the backboards, outrebounding the Bulldogs, 58-38. Al Faber and Fairley led the way with 12 each.

For a while however, it looked like The Citadel was going to brush the Bucs right out of the way as they had done earlier.

They rushed out to a 6-0 lead before the Pirates finally hit after nearly four minutes. Jim Below started the action for the Bulldogs with a drive after just eight seconds, and less than a minute later John Sutor hit for a 6-0 lead. Sutor hit again to make it 6-0, but the Bulldogs cooled off right there.

The Pirates, bothered by the full-court press of the Bulldogs, finally got a shot when Earl Quash hit with 16:07 left, but The Citadel continued to ease away, slowly building up to a 10-point spread on Lou Meckstroth's shot from the corner with 14:00 to go.

The Citadel held their lead throughout the next few minutes and held a 20-10 advantage with 11 minutes left.

But then the Bucs seemed to come alive. Quash hit a jumper and Jerome Owens made a free throw. Fairley hit two in a row, cutting it to three, 20-17, before the Bulldogs finally got a shot by Oscar Scott.

The Bucs trimmed it to one on a free throw by Fairley with 6:02 left, and again at 24-23 on Faber's basket from underneath.

Then, with 5:08 showing, Fairley tossed in a rebound to give the Pirates their first lead. The Citadel grabbed it back on a shot by Sutor, but Fairley again connected and this time the Bucs never fell behind again.

The Citadel tied it at 29-29 and 31-31, but the last time, Faber returned the lead to the Bucs with a free throw. He had a second opportunity, but missed it and Dave Franklin pushed it through on the rebound for a three-point edge, 34-31 with 1:43 left in the half.

With 35 seconds left, Quash was credited with a basket when his cross-court pass was slapped away and went into the basket, making it a five-point edge for the Pirates. They led at halftime, 38-35, however.

In the second half, The Citadel trimmed it back to two with a free throw, but the Bucs got a three-pointer from Franklin to move back out by five. From there, they slowly built it and eventually led by 20 points near the midway mark. Franklin got another three-point play along the way, running it out to 13, 52-39, and a steal by Fairley two minutes later made it 16, 57-41. Faber got a bucket on a goaltending call and then White hit on a fast break to make it 64-44 with 12:10 to go.

Right there, however, The Citadel found its press working again and proceeded to run the lead right back down to eight before the Pirates could hit again. Getting balanced scoring, they hit six straight baskets to close within 64-56 before Franklin hit two free throws and then got a basket to ease the lead back out to 12, 68-56 with 8:26 to go. The Bucs were able to move it all the way to 16, 74-58, but could up it no further.

The Citadel made one more drive at the Bucs, cutting it to as little as six with 28 seconds left, but they never really had the opportunity to pull it out.

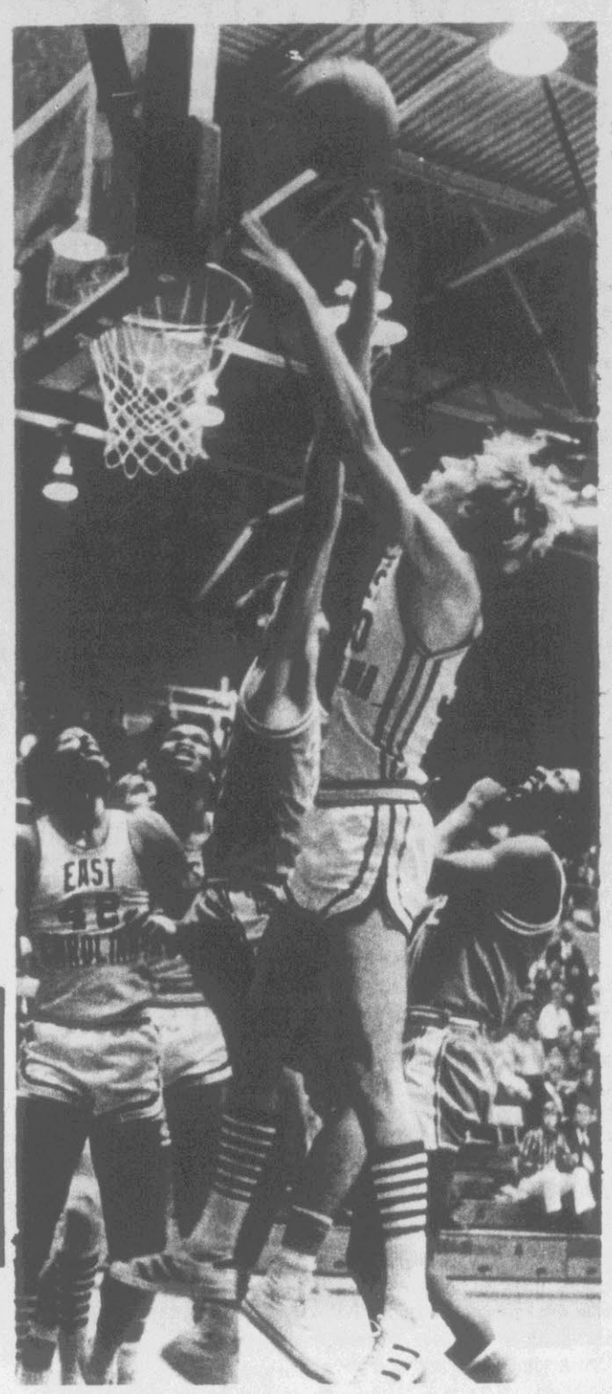

Besides Fairley's 23 points, Franklin continued to play steady ball, hitting 17 in only 26 minutes of play. Quash had 14, Faber had 12 and Owens hit 11.

For the Bulldogs, Sutor was high with 20, while Scott had 15 and Below had 11.

Burleson Leads Wolfpack Win

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Tommy Burleson scored 18 of his game high 25 points in the last half to lead North Carolina State to a 74-59 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Clemson Saturday night.

ACC member North Carolina met independent Georgia Tech in the second game of the Charlotte Coliseum's doubleheader.

State, in bringing its conference record to 3-5 and its overall mark to 12-8, wiped out a 14-10 Clemson lead with a 16-4 surge in a six-minute stretch to take the lead for good.

Clemson, now 1-6 in the ACC, and 9-10 overall, lost its fifth straight game. The Tigers scored the last six points of the first half to trail 30-28 at the intermission.

The Wolfpack, with the 7-foot-4 Burleson leading the way, opened up a 48-35 lead in the first seven minutes of the last half. After Clemson closed to within nine points, Bob Heuts scored eight points in two minutes for State, and the Tigers were through.

Corner shooter Rick Holdt scored 12 of his 16 points in the first half for State, which shot 57.7 for the game against Clemson's 35.5.

Dennis Odle scored 17 to lead Clemson, which played without Bud Martin, who may be out a week with a chest injury suffered against North Carolina Friday night.

Parkhill Paces Cavs By Wake

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Barry Parkhill fired in 34 points as Virginia's sixth-ranked Cavaliers shook loose from Wake Forest midway through the second half Saturday and defeated the Deacons 74-67 in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game.

Parkhill hit his first five shots from the floor and the Cavaliers, tying third-ranked North Carolina for the ACC lead, led most of the first 20 minutes until Eddie Payne hit a hot streak for Wake Forest.

Payne, who finished with 22 points, scored six in the last 1½ minutes of the first half to give the Deacons a 38-36 margin at intermission.

But Virginia's pressing defense cut down Wake Forest's shooting accuracy, which was better than 50 per cent in the first half, and the Cavaliers took the lead for good in the first three minutes of the second half at 44-42 on a field goal by Parkhill.

A 9-2 run midway the half built a nine-point lead for Virginia and the Cavaliers led by 11 with less than four minutes left before Willie Griffin and Don Jackson led a late surge that cut the final margin to seven.

The victory in the regionally-televised game was Virginia's 18th in 19 starts and the Cavaliers' seventh in eight ACC games. Wake Forest is now 6-14 over-all and 1-6 in the ACC.

Parkhill was Virginia's only double-figure scorer, while Griffin had 19 points for the Deacons. But Jackson, averaging only 15 points a game, was shut out until he made two field goals in the final minute.

Americans Pull For Red Icemen

By PHIL BROWN

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Don't be surprised if the U.S. Olympic hockey team learns some Russian and goes out to yell "Shaibu"—"Shoot"—when Russia meets Czechoslovakia in the Winter Olympics' final game Sunday.

The Americans did all they could Saturday night, beating Poland 6-1, controlling the game all the way. They finished the Olympic Class A hockey tournament with three victories and two losses.

Now they need a loss by Czechoslovakia or by Sweden, when it plays Finland Sunday, to give them a bronze medal—the first U.S. Olympic hockey medal since the Americans took the gold at Squaw Valley in 1960.

U.S. Coach Murray Williamson said the young American team had given 150 per cent in every game, represented North America in the finest fashion, and now "what will be will be."

Whoever wins the Russia-Czechoslovakia clash wins the gold medal. The Russians, winner of two straight Olympic hockey golds and nine straight world titles, have three victories and one tie so far.

The Czechoslovaks have three victories and one loss, and if they lose will have a 3-2 record identical to America's. But in that case, the Americans will take the bronze on the basis of their 5-1 victory over the Czechoslovaks earlier in the tournament.

If Sweden—now with two victories, one loss and one tie—loses, it will fall definitely behind the Americans. If it ties, it will match the Americans in standing points, but place higher because it beat America 5-1 in the tournament's first round.

The Americans zipped off to a fast start against the Poles. With assists from Stuart Irving, 23, of Beverly Farms, Mass., and Robbie Ftorek, 20, of Needham, Mass., Tim Sheehy, 23, of International Falls, Minn., jammed the puck past Polish goalie Walery Kosyl 57 seconds after the opening face-off.

Craig Sarner, 22, of St. Paul scored two goals and one assist and moved into a tie for second place in the Class A scoring race with nine points. Russia's Valerii Kharlamov leads with 15. One of Sarner's linemates, Kevin Ahearn, 23, of Milton, Mass., had three assists Saturday and ranks fifth in scoring with seven points. The third man on that line, Henry Boucha, 20, of Warroad, Minn., had one goal and one assist and is in a tie for eighth with five points.

Heard Pulls Out By Four Strokes

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Heard, playing miles away from the vast throngs that whooped and hollered after Vice President Spiro Agnew and friends, retained his lead in the Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic Saturday.

Heard, 24, had a two-under-par 70 at Bermuda Dunes for a 72-hole total of 275 and a two-stroke lead over veteran Bob Rosburg, who matched Heard's 70 in his round at La Quinta.

Charging rookie Lanny Wadkins also escaped the stampeding mob scene at Indian Wells—site of Agnew's round with Hope, Frank Sinatra and Doug Sanders—and posted a 69 at La Quinta.

Wadkins has a 278 total and was alone in third place in this unique, five-day tournament played over four courses in this desert resort.

Arnold Palmer also moved into contention with a 66, six under par, under trying conditions at Indian Wells. That put him at 279, four strokes away.

Palmer, the defending champion who improved 10 strokes from Friday's round, was tied with Johnny Miller.

The skinny, 24-year-old Miller usually an easy-going, placid young man, had some complaints when he finished with a 71. He played in the group just in front of Agnew.

"It was a hard round," Miller said. "I got so upset with the gallery a couple of times I just wanted to quit."

"There were a thousand cameras out there. They were clicking and whirling all the time, on every backswing. It got so you'd flinch every time.

"Or there would be some drunk who'd yell something to a friend just as you were about to take the club back," he said.

"But I guess I shouldn't complain. I suppose Arnold Palmer had to go through that every day and he's learned to just grin and bear it."

But Palmer wasn't really grinning when he hit two poor shots and made a par 5 on the 462-yard finishing hole.

He missed the green badly with his second shot, then chipped poorly while Hope joked and chatted with the gallery over a microphone.

"I don't want to talk about it," Palmer said, but later added:

"The microphone was turned in the wrong direction.

There was a decided holiday attitude for the massive gallery at Indian Wells, with most of the attention centered on the foursome that included the vice president and his joking, clowning companions, pro Doug Sanders, host Bob Hope and retired entertainer Frank Sinatra.

"I didn't play a great deal better than before," the vice president said. "I just missed more people."

He hit three spectators with two errant shots off the first tee in last year's tournament, and the year before skulled Sanders in the back of the head.

This year the vice president hit several balls that bounced into the tightly packed gallery. Two women were struck, but neither was injured.

"I felt it was to my advantage to play over there," said Heard, who scored his first tour victory and won more than $100,000 last season.

"I had maybe 100 or 150 people following me. I knew most of them—just friends of mine."

He had two birdies and parred the rest of the holes—"just a pretty good round," he said.

He hit a seven-iron to within three feet on the second hole, made a birdie from 20 feet on the fourth and missed a short birdie putt on the back nine. The rest were routine.

"I'm just totally beat, Heard said. "And there's still a round to go. I think a 68 or 69 tomorrow would put me in business."

Palmer had seven birdies—two of them on par fives that he reached in two—and a single bogey. He made two birdie putts in the 18-foot range, hit irons close for the others, and almost holed out a wedge for an eagle two, tapping in from two inches.

"To win, I'd have to shoot 62 or 63," he said. "But on this course, that's not impossible."

Furman Rips Keydet Five

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Furman toyed with VMI for the first ten minutes Saturday night, then used its superior height and speed to overpower the Keydets, 104-66, for a Southern Conference basketball victory.

The Paladins broke to a 23-18 lead with ll minutes left in the first half, then steadily increased the margin to 48-35 at halftime.

Midway through the final period, the Keydets' lone big man, Fred Allison fouled out. After that, Furman's front line scored almost at will.

Russ Hunt shot 15 of 21 from the field and led the Paladins with 32 points. He hit all of his first 12 shots. Roy Simpson hit six of six to start the game and finished with 20 points.

Dave Lester led the Keydets with 23 points.

Furman's record improved to 12-10 overall, 6-3 in the Southern conference. VMI's ledger now reads 3-17, 0-6 in the league.

Heels Demolish Ga. Tech 118-73

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Third-ranked North Carolina bombed Georgia Tech with 15-2 barrage over three minutes early in the basketball game and sped to a 118-73 victory Saturday night as the Tar Heel starters sat out the last eight minutes.

North Carolina State whipped Clemson 74-59 in the Atlantic Coast Conference opener of the doubleheader as Tommy Burleson scored 18 of his 25 points in the last half.

North Carolina, now 17-2 and winner of five straight, got double-figure scoring from five players in its power-packed lineup. Dennis Wuycik, the nation's top shooter on the No. 1 shooting team, led the rout with 24 points. He hit 9 of 12 shots from the floor and six straight freethrows.

His 15 first-half points helped the Tar Heels to a 61-40 lead at the intermission against Tech, the team North Carolina routed in the National Invitational Tournament last March.

Rounding out the attack for North Carolina were George Karl, with 19 points; Bobby Jones with 17; and Rober McAdoo and Bill Chamberlain, each with 16.

North Carolina shot 59.7 per cent to Tech's 45.9 and held a 42-19 rebound edge, with Chamberlain grabbing 10.

North Carolina's pressing defense led to 30 Tech turnovers and the Tar Heels added some fancy passing to further confuse the Engineers.

Blue Devils Run By W&M

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Playing without Richie O'Connor who quit the team, Duke rolled to an 87-69 victory over William and Mary Saturday night as five Blue Devile players scored in double figures.

O'Connor, the Blue Devils' second leading scorer with a 15.4 average this season, informed Coach Bucky Walters Friday night he was quitting the team.

William and Mary grabbed and early 10-8 lead, but Duke came back on the scoring of Gary Melchionni to go ahead 14-12. The Blue Devils then broke it open with an 11-point scoring binge and held a 39-22 edge at the half.

Alan Shaw got 19 rebounds as Duke outrebounded William and Mary 55-41. The Blue Devils had a shooting percentage of 44.7 to William and Mary's 37.1.

Jerry Fisher scored six goals and six of seven free throws to lead the Indians with 18 points. Chris Redding was top scorer for Duke with 18 while Stu Yarborough had 17, Ron Righter 15 and Melchionni 13.

Baby Bucs Win Second In Row

East Carolina's freshmen held off Louisburg Junior College last night to claim their second straight victory, 59-51.

The win was the third overall for the Baby Bucs. Louisburg experienced cold shooting both from the floor and from the line in the game and despite a press which yielded 29 more shots at the basket, they couldn't pull it out. The Hurricanes hit only 28 percent from the floor and an even more astounding 27.8 from the line.

And it was there that the difference was recorded. Louisburg made one more field goal than did the Pirates but made 10 less free throws.

The Baby Bucs gained the lead at 9-8 on a free throw by Tom Marsh. From there the Pirates built up as much as a 16-point lead in the half and held a 34-20 edge at intermission.

Louisburg rallied in the second half behind the play of Don Harris and Bill Zepplin to pull into a 41-41 tie midway through the period, but Mike Smith hit a free throw and three baskets to help the Pirates build back out to an 8 point lead with five minutes left. That sealed the outcome.

Bob Ringer led the Baby Buc scoring with 18 while Smith had 17 and Tom Marsh, 10.

Zepplin hit 12 for the Hurricanes with Harris, adding 11 and Wayne Ellington, 10.

The Baby Bucs host Chowan Monday night at 5:45 p.m. in a preliminary to the East Carolina-St. Francis Game.

Panthers Ousted From The Field

NEW HOPE — Eastern Wayne's Warriors wiped out any tournament hopes for North Pitt last night as they blew past the Panthers, 64-46, in a play-off game to determine the eighth place team in the Eastern Carolinas Conference.

The Warriors will face the regular season champs, the Chargers of Ayden-Grifton, on Monday night.

North Pitt fell behind in the first quarter and could not recover. The Warriors dumped in 17 points while the Panthers scored 10. Eastern Wayne upped its lead by 13, getting 13 in the second period to North Pitt's seven. At the half the score was 30-17.

The Panthers made one less point than did the Warriors in the third quarter, 12-11, but Eastern Wayne's 22 points in the last frame iced the victory. North Pitt scored 18 in the final period.

Ulice Jordan led the Panthers with 17 points and Daniel Highsmith had 13.

Lynn Best paced the Warriors with 21. Bobby Body dumped in 18, Cedric Dickerson had 11, and Anthony Holmes 10.

Greene Central Gains Position

SNOW HILL — Greene Central knocked Southern Wayne out of the conference tournament and captured seventh place with a stunning 79-44 win over the Saints.

Greene Central's girls, who were in a play-off also, did not fare as the boys did. They lost to the girls from North Lenoir 25-9.

In both games, the winning teams dominated the contest. The North Lenoir Lady Hawks pumped in 10 points to start off the first quarter while holding the Ewes to a free throw. In the second period, neither team could get anything to go in as the Lady Hawks only got three points. The Ewes made a basket but were behind by 12-4 at the half.

The Lady Hawks added four in the third quarter and nine in the fourth to three and two for Greene Central to take the win.

Beverly Summers led the winners with 17. No one had more than three for Greene Central.

The Greene Central boys jumped off to a 17-4 first quarter lead and never were threatened by the Southern Wayne Saints. The Rams dumped in 21 in the next frame to 11 for the Warriors to have a commanding 39-15 advantage at intermission.

Greene Central outscored the Saints, 17-9, in the third period and 24-20 in the last quarter completing the rout.

West led the Southern Wayne boys with 13 and Ed Loftin had 10.

Stevie Williamson and Bryant led the Rams with 14 apiece. Billy Williams had 12.

The North Lenoir girls will meet the Pant-HERS of North Pitt in the opening round of the Conference tourney Monday night at D. H. Conley High School while the Greene Central boys will meet the Farmville Central Jaguars Tuesday night.

Daniels Is Champ

GOLDSBORO — Rose High School's wrestling team finished fifth in the six team race for the Division II Mat title, held in Goldsboro yesterday.

The Rampants were able to come up with only one individual champion, as Angelo Daniels won in the 122-pound class. Daniels won by a pin in the championship event.

Goldsboro won the overall crown with 70½ points, while Rocky Mount was second with 65½. Wilson finished third with 60, and New Bern was next with 52½. Rose beat out Kinston for the basement, scoring 36½ to 20 for the Vikings.

No further details of the tournament were available.

Chargers Take Title As Aycock Falls

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

If you like the sport of wrestling — not the kind you see on television — but the "real" wrestling, you can take your pick this coming weekend.

For two fine tournaments will be staged in Greenville. And it seems as if the people in charge of scheduling are taking their tips from those in charge of scheduling the outstanding specials on television.

Naturally, they are back-to-back.

At East Carolina, on Friday and Saturday, the Southern Conference title matches will be held. Preliminaries will be held on Friday, with the semi-finals, consolations and finals on Saturday. East Carolina and William & Mary are expected to wage a neck-and-neck battle for the title. Individual winners are eligible for NCAA competition.

Just across the way, at Rose High School, the Rampants will play host to the Northeastern Sectional, a preliminary to state competition. Eleven high schools from throughout the northeastern part of the state will be sending top prep wrestlers to the match.

The first and second place finishers will advance to the state tournament.

So you can take your choice of which you'd rather see.

While we're on the subject of scheduling, I'd like to put a plug in for some earlier starting times for the night-time high school activities next year.

Traditionally, football games have started at 8 p.m., but there is a growing movement to up them to 7:30. This gets the games over earlier, providing the traveling teams with an earlier arrival time at home, and at the same time, speeds up the handling of game reports to the various media.

The past couple of years, the Eastern 4-A schools have also been greatly benefited the same way by moving up their basketball starting times. The junior varsity cage games start at 6 p.m., and the varsity between 7:30 and 7:45. This allows most games to be completed at around 9 p.m., letting everyone get home earlier, plus again speeding up the reports.

We'd like to suggest that the Division II, Albemarle, Eastern Carolina and Tobacco Belt football conferences give thought to moving their football starting times to 7:30.

And during basketball, we'd like to see a radical change. Instead of having three games, starting at 5:30 p.m. with a junior varsity, we'd rather see the junior varsity games (when a girls game is to be played) moved to the afternoon or some other day; entirely separate from the other two.

Then, the girls' game could be scheduled to 6 or 6:30, with the boys following it by 20 or so minutes. As it is now, many teams in these leagues don't arrive home until after midnight after these Tuesday and Friday marathons.

American Men Have One Ski Chance Left

By BOB JOHNSON
Associated Press Sports Editor

SAPPORO, Japan, (AP) — American men went into the final round of Olympic competition Sunday with one last chance to win an Alpine skiing medal.

Tyler Palmer, 21, of Kearsarge, N.H., appeared to be the American to do it—in the slalom—if anyone could. Rated No. 6 in World Cup slalom standings, Palmer had a ban run but then a good one in training Saturday.

The U.S. Hockey team could win a bronze or silver medal—but that depends on the outcome of Sunday's Sweden-Finland and Russia-Czechoslovakian games. The Americans and Czechs are tied in points and if they finish like that the U.S. team will get priority, having defeated the Czechs 5-1 in the tournament.

There appeared to be no chance of a U.S. medal in the only other event of the 11th Winter Olympic Games' final day, the 40 kilometer cross-country relay.

So it could be that Dianne Holum of Northbrook, Ill., will leave Sapporo as not only the most successful but also the last of the American medal winners in these Games.

She took the silver medal Saturday in the 3,000-meter speed skating race with a time of 4:58.67. Dianne led most of the way but up came The Netherlands' world record holder, 33-year-old Stien Baas-Kaiser, who streaked to a new Olympic record of 4:52.14. Her world record, set last year, is 4:46.50.

Another Dutch girl, Atje Keulen-Deelstra, won the Olympic bronze medal in 4:49.81.

The 20-year-old American had won the gold medal in the 1,500 meters on Wednesday, so she became the top member of the entire U.S. team in performance.

Miss Holum's 3,000-meter victory gave the United States three gold medals, one silver and three bronze. This put the United States fifth in medal standings going into the final day.

Russia had six gold, five silver and three bronze medals. East Germany was second with four, three and seven. Switzerland and The Netherlands were tied with four, three and two.

The Soviet Union picked up its sixth gold medal Saturday in the women's 15-kilometer relay race. Galina Koulakova, who raced the last lap for the Russians there by won her third medal of the Games, having already collected gold for the five and 10-kilometer individual races.

The winning Russian threesome posted a time of 48 minutes, 46.15 seconds. Finland was second in 49:19.37 and Norway third in 49:51.59.

The United States team, anchored by U.S. Champion Martha Rockwell of Putney, Vt., finished 11th and last in 53:38.60—just behind the Canadian team anchored by Roseann Allen. The 17-year-old Canadian had a lead of 1.44 minutes at the start of the last lap, and the 27-year-old American was only 4 ski-length behind at the finish. The 10th place finish gave Canada a consolation prize—the North American championship.

Switzerland's fourth gold medal came Saturday when a sled piloted by Jean Wicki won the four-man bobsled race in a total time of 4:43.07 for the four runs. Italy's No. 1 sled, driven by Nevio De Zordo, won the silver medal with 4:43.83, and West Germany was third with runs totaling 4:43.92 for its sled driven by Wolfgang Zimmerer.

The No. 1 American sled was out of the race because driver Jim Hickey of Plattsburg, N.Y., broke a rib in training Friday. The other American sled, driven by Boris Said of New York, finished 14th in the field of 16 with a time of 4:48.3.

France's No. 1 skier, Jean-Noel Augert, was injured Saturday in a training run for the slalom. He fell and, at first, doctors thought he might have a broken rib. He did not—but how well he could run the slalom Sunday remained in doubt.

Palmer 21, who ranked third in the Alpine World Cup last year, also fell on a practice run on the steep slopes of Mt. Eniwa, but he was not hurt. He had a good run the second time.

"I'm skiing well," he said. "I just have to go as fast as I can."

Others ranked as favorites included Italy's Gustavo Thoeni, who won the gian slalom, Henri Duvillard of France, Edmond Bruggmann of Switzerland and Andrezes Bachleda of Poland.

Other Americans entered in the race were Rick Chaffee of Rutland, Vt. Terry Palmer, Tyler's brother, and Bob Cochran, whose sister, Barbara, won the women's slalom Friday.

Dianne Holum Picks Up Seventh U.S. Medal

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — "Obviously," United States speed skating team manager Jim Hawkins observed," our girls have reached a higher peak than our boys."

Obviously—except for one small point.

For while the girls have now won seven mdeals at these 11th Winter Olympic Games—which just happens to be seven more than the boys have won—there's a high-flying mob of males anxiously awaiting Sunday's final day of competition and a chance to take home a medal of their very own.

The seventh medal—the first silver to go along with three golds and three bronzes—arrived Saturday, compliments of Dianne Holum.

The 20-year-old girl from what could well be called "Medal City, U.S.A," Northbrook, Ill., finished second to Stein Baas-Kaiser of The Netherlands in the gruelling 3,000-meter speed skating race.

And on Saturday night, that skating mob, better known as the U.S. hockey team, beat Poland 6-1, placing itself in a position to take home a silver or bronze.

The team finished their five games with a 3-2 record, leaving them tied with Czechoslovakia for third in the Class A standings. And depending on the outcome of Sunday's games between the Soviet Union and the Czechs and the Swedes and Finland, they could end up second or third.

American men also have two other chances Sunday to avoid being shut out. They'll be competing in the special slalom and cross-country relay ski race.

Miss Holum was clocked in 4 minutes 58.67 seconds in the 3,000 meters, but her dream of becoming a double-gold winner—she had won the 1,500 meters—vanished as Mrs. Baas-Kaiser swept around the Makomanai outdoor rink in an Olympic-record 4:52.14. Dutch teammate Atje Keulen-Deelstra took the bronze in 4:59.91.

Craig Sarner of North St. Paul, Minn., and Tim Sheehy of International Falls, Minn., led the American attack against Poland with a pair of goals apiece. Stuart Irving of Beverly Farms, Mass., and Henry Boucha of Warroad, Minn., added the others.

But once again the stars of the game were the Yank defense, and goalie Mike Curran.

The game ended on a strange note when, with 22 seconds remaining, Poland's Feliks Goralczyk was awarded a penalty shot. He swept in to the left of Curran, who came out and forced him to shoot wide to the right.

But Canadian referee Bob Nadin ruled Curran had come out of the goal crease too soon and awarded another penalty shot to Goralczyk, who responded by coming in to Curran's right—and shooting wide again.

"I think everyone hopes for as many gold medals as possible," Miss Holum said after nabbing her silver, "but I feel I skated as well as I could and I'm happy with the results ... I have a gold medal and a silver and I'm very happy."

She said she "started out slowly because I wanted to conserve my energy. It was not until the last 800 meters that I really made my big effort.

"I had a good finishing time but there were some good skaters to follow and I didn't know whether it would be good enough for a gold medal."

It wasn't. One of those to follow was Mrs. Baas-Kaiser, who reversed Miss Holum's strategy.

"I made a fast start because I knew I had to do that if I was to beat Dianne."

The 33-year-old Dutch winner, who holds the world 3,000-meter mark of 4:46.50 and won the world title for the event in 1967, said capturing the gold "equalled the thrill of that."

Was she thinking about retirement?

"I cannot look into the future—but maybe in 20 years my children will stop me," she laughed. She'll have to wait a bit for that, though. She has no children now, and has been married just eight months.

In Saturday's other final events, Jean Wicki drove Switzerland's four-man bobsled team to a gold medal—then immediately announced his retirement.

And 29-year-old teacher Galina Koulacova won her third gold of the Games by anchoring the Soviet Union's victorious three-woman 15-kilometer (9.5-mile) cross-country ski team. Miss Koulacova had earlier won the individual five and 10-kilometer races.

"You have to go when you would like to stay," Wicki said after driving his crew in the Swiss No. 1 sled to a four-run total time of 4:43.07. Italy's No. 1 sled got the silver in 4:43.83 and West Germany's No. 1 the bronze in 4:43.92.

Wicki, a 38-year-old garage operator, said he wants to spend more time with his family—but would also like to stay in touch by helping to develop young Swiss bobsledders.

The best the Americans could manage in the four-man bobs was the 14th-place finish of the No. 2 sled with Philip Duprey of Saranac Lake, N.Y., Ken Morris of Kew Gardens, N.Y., John Copley of Burlington, Vt., and driver Boris Said of New York.

The No. 1 U.S. sled, with driver James J. Hickey Jr., Jim Bridges and Tom Becker, all of Plattsburgh, Air Force Base, N.Y., and Howard Siler of Boston, was disqualified when it overturned during Friday's first two runs.

America's 15-kilometer cross-country girls fared equally poorly. Miss Koulacova anchored the Russians' winning time of 48 minutes 46.15 seconds, Finland took the silver in 49:19.37 and Norway the bronze in 49:51.49—and the U.S. girls came in 11th and dead last in 53:38.60.

Martha Rockwell of Putney, Vt., who anchored the American trio, found herself trailing Canada's anchorwoman, Roseanne Allen, by a massive 1 minute 44 seconds when she began the last leg.

"I did my best to overtake Roseanne at the finish," Miss Rockwell said, "but I had raced so hard to catch up with her that I simply had no steam left to overtake her over the last few hundred meters." Miss Allen crossed the line for Canada less than a second—a scant ski length—ahead of Miss Rockwell.

Whoops! Spiro Bops 'Em Again

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, sinking a few long putts and scattering spectators with an occasional errant shot, played Saturday in the Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament.

Although two women were hit by Agnew shots, they said they were neither hurt nor annoyed.

"I didn't play a great deal better than before," the vice president said after his 18-hole, five-hour round at Indian Wells Country Club. "I just missed more people."

Last year Agnew hit three spectators with two misfired shots. The year before, playing in the tournament for the first time, he shanked a fairway shot that struck pro Doug Sanders on the back of the head.

Sanders played Saturday with Agnew for the third straight year. Also in the foursome were comedian Bob Hope and retired entertainer Frank Sinatra.

After the round, Agnew apologized for poor shots and Hope joked: "We saw some very novel shots out there today. I want to report there were no casualties."

After sinking a 35-foot putt from the green fringe on No. 14 for a birdie 4, the vice president shanked his tee shot on No. 15, the ball zipping over spectators' heads but hitting none.

On No. 16, just as he prepared to tee off, a fellow down the fairway yelled, "Fire!" Agnew hesitated, then hit a low line drive that skimmed the grass, striking a middle-aged woman on the heel about 75 yards out on the right side of the fairway.

Mrs. A. D. Shiach, about 45, of Playa del Rey, Calif., said she was unhurt and unsurprised. "I expect a lot of people to get hit at these tournaments," she said, adding that she was a Republican. "I don't mind. It gave us a chance to see him up close."

Agnew's duck hook off the 18th tee bounced about 200 yards away on the left side of the fairway against the leg of Joyce Atkinson, a 25-year-old brunette from Oceanside, Calif. She said it didn't hurt—"I just didn't get out of the way fast enough."

When Agnew teed off on the first hole, his ball—plastic as a prank by Hope—shattered as the vice president hit it. Everyone laughed, including Agnew, who then teed up his real ball and smacked it about 220 yards down the fairway.

Agnew's score was not recorded and he did not finish playing two holes on the front nine after poor shots. But Sanders said, "He would have been in the neighborhood of 92 or 93, which is extraordinary under the circumstances."

Tom Reynolds of San Diego State caught 67 passes last season, seven of them for touchdowns.

LITTLEFIELD — The Ayden-Grifton Chargers shook off a sticky man-to-man defense after the first period of play and went on to romp to a 71-57 victory over Charles B. Aycock Friday night.

The victory gave Ayden-Grifton the Eastern Carolina Conference regular season championship and top seeding in this week's tournament.

The Ayden-Grifton lassies also came away with a win, but had to struggle to get it, 39-28, in the game much closer than the score indicates.

The Chargers finished the conference year with a 15-3 league record, while Aycock broke even at 9-9. The Chargerettes finished with a 12-6 mark, while Aycock was 11-7.

Ayden-Grifton opened the feature event as if they were going to blow the Falcons off the court, running off three quick baskets for a 6-0 lead. But when Aycock finally did find the range, they ran off 10 straight points to power into the lead, which they held until midway through the second period.

Melvin Stewart got the Chargers rolling with a basket after a minute of play, and Danny Garris followed with two more from outside. Then, Aycock's defense began to click, and they went to the boards hard.

Charlie Lewis got them started with a basket and Arthur Stafford added a free throw. Lewis stole the ball to cut the lead to one, and Stafford canned a jumper with 3:43 left to put Aycock ahead, 7-6.

A free throw by Robbie Wooten and a tap-in by Terry Durham moved the Aycock margin out to 10-6 before Ayden-Grifton could find the mark again.

Jesse Smith finally did it, cutting it to 10-8, but Aycock came back with five more in a row to move out by seven. A three-point play by Lewis and a jumper by Durham made it 15-8 with 18 seconds left in the period. Carlton McCarter hit a jumper cutting it to 15-10 with five seconds left.

After Aycock got the opening basket in the second frame, A-G got one from McCarter and another from Garris to trim the lead to three. They hung close to Aycock for the next couple of minutes, trimming it to one at 18-17 on two free throws by McCarter. Aycock went back out by two, but another free throw, this one by Stewart, inched the Chargers back to within one.

McCarter then tied it up with a free throw with 4:36 left, and his second shot on the one-and-one pushed Ayden back into the lead, 20-19. They never trailed again.

Two baskets by Willie Stewart moved the Chargers out into a five-point spread, 24-19, and they finally upped it to nine on a driving layup by Milton Brown with 46 seconds left, 30-21.

Aycock cut it back to five on a basket and two free throws by Stafford, and the margin held there at 32-27 at halftime.

Ayden-Grifton's better offense, it's shot selection and rebounding really began to tell in the second half. Ayden-Grifton knocked through the first four baskets of the period, running the lead out to 13 at 40-27. It stayed at that point for a couple of minutes, and then a jumper by Melvin Stewart ran it to 15, 48-33, with 2:12 to go in the frame. Finally, with 1:01 left, Stewart hit again for the biggest lead so far, 17 points at 52-35.

Aycock cut it back to 12 on three free throws and a basket in the early minutes of the final period, but Ayden-Grifton got going again on a three-point play by Stewart. McCarter hit from underneath and Stewart scored on a drive, moving the lead out to 19, 59-40. Ayden-Grifton moved it to 21 at 63-42, and then added two more on shots by Stewart and McCarter to make it 25, the widest spread of the evening at 69-44. Against the reserves, Aycock managed to cut it back to the final 14-point spread.

McCarter led the Charger scoring with 24 points, while Melvin Stewart had 16 and Smith had 11.

For Aycock, Stafford had 21 and Lewis had 15.

In the girls contest, Ayden-Grifton fell behind at the start and didn't get the lead until late in the third period. They then dominated the final period to win it.

The Aycock girls got the opening lead on a shot by Phyllis Parnell, but Ayden-Grifton tied it up as Patsy Loftin hit. It turned out to be the only points for the Chargerettes during the period.

Aycock then got a rebounding basket from Jean Evans and a free throw from Triva Howell to hold a 5-2 advantage as the period ended.

Aycock moved out by as much as four in the second period, holding the lead at the foul line just about the entire period. The Falconettes got only one basket, but cashed in on six-of-six from the line to lead, 13-9, with 39 seconds left. The Chargerettes got a basket from Connie Carter to cut it to 13-11 at the half.

In the third period, Aycock moved back out by three, 16-13, but Ayden-Grifton cut it to one on a drive by Decia Little and then took the lead with a jumper from the side, 17-16, by Deborah Harris. Aycock tied it twice, at 17-17 and 18-18, before moving into the lead again on a free throw by Jean Evans at 19-18. Terry Davis hit another free throw to up it to two, but Terry Wooten tied it for Aycock with a rebound with 32 seconds left. She was fouled on the play, completing the three-pointer to put the Chargerettes ahead, 22-21. She knocked in another basket at the horn to stake Ayden-Grifton to a three-point edge, 24-21.

In the final period, A-G went out by five on Miss Little's opening basket and held that lead until late in the period when she made it seven with a basket and eight with a free throw. Miss Wooten moved it out to 10, and Nancy Sugg hit to make it 11 with 13 seconds left and that was the final margin.

Ayden-Grifton played without its leading scorer, Maude Babington, out with a leg injury for the rest of the season. Miss Wooten led the scoring instead, getting 12, while Miss Little added 10.

Jaguars Bop North Pitt To Take Second

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's Jaguars took sole possession of second place in the Eastern Carolinas Conference Friday night by crushing the Panthers of North Pitt High School 80-63 as they rallied in the second half to move away from a stubborn Panther team that had tied the Jaguars at the end of the second period.

The Pant-HERS are set to go into next week's tournament on a winning note. They demolished the Lady Jags 59-20 in the first game of the night.

The Big Orange Machine got rolling in the first period and never stopped. The North Pitt girls had little trouble containing the Lady Jaguars both under the boards and from the floor.

Phyllis Jenkins started the Pant-HERS off with a basket on a fast break after only six seconds had gone by. Naomi Anderson tied it up for Farmville Central hitting from outside 2-2, but that was as close as the Lady Jags were to get. Minnie Hollis put the Big Orange ahead to stay with a shot from the corner, 4-2, 2:47 into the game.

Susan James, who hit eight free throws without a miss, canned her first two of the night with 4:41 left in the first quarter making it 6-2. Debbie Pollard dropped in a lay-up and Hollis dumped in another bucket from the corner to move out by eight, 10-2. Dewanda Davis sank a jumper from outside for the Lady Jags cutting the lead by a basket. Both teams made free shots and the Pant-HERS had a commanding edge at the end of the quarter 11-5.

James got the first two points of the second period with a pair of free shots but the Jaguars matched them with one each from Davis and Pam Monk. The Big Orange began to pour it on and dumped in 13 points in the next two minutes to three for the Lady Jaguars and went into the dressing room at halftime ahead by 29-12.

North Pitt continued to dominate the game as in the third quarter they scored 17 points while holding the Farmville Central girls to three. The Big Orange again outscored the Lady Jaguars in the final period 13-5.

James led the scoring with 14 getting three field goals in addition to her eight free shots. Hollis and Jenkins each had 10 while Debbie Pollard dumped in 12.

The North Pitt boys started out looking as if they were going to pull off an upset of the Jaguars. They tied the score four times in the first quarter and five times in the second. But then in the third quarter, they just seemed to fall apart as they fell beind early in the period and could never recover.

The field goal shooting of the Jaguars proved to be the deciding factor in the game as North Pitt edged the Jags out at the stripe 21-20. Farmville pumped in 30 shots from the floor to 21 for the Panthers, who could not seem to get their shots to go in in the second half.

The Jaguars scored first. McCoy Williams hit from the lane after Farmville Central had controlled the opening tip-off. Ronnie Briley tied it up at the 7 minute mark 2-2 and Daniel Highsmith put North Pitt ahead with a charity shot. Robert Tripp put the Jags back in front with a lay-up after a steal and Connie Tripp made the lead three at 6-3 sinking a jumper from the corner with 5:33 to go in the first period.

North Pitt over-took the Jaguars and passed them for their biggest lead of the night. Briley connected on a three point play, tying it at 6-6. Herbert Wright vaulted the Panthers into the lead with another three point play, 9-6 with 4:24 to go. David Brown threw in a free shot for a four point lead 10-6.

James Johnson got the Jaguars going again as he hit from the lane, 10-8, and a field goal by Melvin Bunch tied it again. Bunch drew a foul on the play from Briley and made the charity shot to put Farmville Central ahead by a point 11-10. Charles Rasberry hit from the stripe also but a jumper by Joe Wright tied it for North Pitt 12-12 with 1:51 on the first quarter clock.

Williams got the elusive lead back for the Jaguars with a pair of free shots but Daniel Highsmith knotted the score again hitting from the lane. Luther Hunter canned an outside shot for Farmville Central with :26 to go in the first quarter for a 16-14 edge.

The Jaguars quickly zoomed out to a seven point lead with 6:12 to go in the half. The Panthers steadily closed the gap with free shots and a basket by Ulice Jordan. Highsmith finally deadlocked the score again at 25-25 as he tapped in a rebound at 4:41. Both teams swapped baskets but North Pitt collected a foul on Phil Lewis and the two shots by Phillip Brown put the Panthers in the lead, 29-27. Hunter sank a jumper from 20 feet 29-29 and Rasberry and Johnson combined for a four point play to go back in front 33-29.

North Pitt tied it and went ahead three more times in the half but Hunter dumped in a lay-up with 24 seconds on the clock to make it 39-39 at intermission.

The Panthers got into foul trouble in the opening minutes of the third quarter and began to fall behind as Farmville Central dumped in 17 points in the period to eight for the Panthers. At the end of the frame, it was Jaguars 56, North Pitt 47.

The Jags ran by the Panthers in the last period 24-16 to take the win.

For the visiting North Pitt boys, Ronnie Briley and Highsmith each scored 14 while Herbert Wrights and Brown each had 10.

Farmville Central's Williams led all the scorers with 19 points. Three players, Bunch, Rasberry and Hunter, all dumped in 13.

In the girls game, North Lenoir inched out into a 4-3 lead in the first period, then shot away to lead by 11 after the second. They outhit the Ewes, 13-3 and held a 17-6 lead at halftime.

In the second half, Greene Central was unable to do more than dent the lead. Both teams tossed in four points in the third frame, and the Hawks led, 21-10. Greene Central held a 6-5 edge in the final period but couldn't really generate a rally.

Conley Downs Southern Wayne

HOLLYWOOD — The D. H. Conley Vikings swept a pair of games from Southern Wayne High School Friday night. The boys won their event, 88-58, while the girls took a 44-37 victory.

The win put the Conley boys into third seeding in the tournament this week with a 12-6 league record. Southern Wayne's boys finished 1-17, in 10th place. Conley's girls, 13-5, take second seeding in the tournament, while Southern Wayne finished 12-6, in a tie with Ayden-Grifton.

In the girls contest, Conley eased in front in the first period, 14-10, but Southern Wayne fought back in the second period, knotting it at the half. The Saintes outhit the Valkyries, 11-7, and that made it 21-21 at the half.

Conley again eased into the lead as the third period came to a halt, with a 12-10 advantage. That left the Valkyries in a 33-31 lead. Conley then held off Southern with an 11-6 final quarter to take the win and second seeding.

June and Jane Hall and Annanell Worthington each hit 13 points for Conley. Pat Brodgen and Terry Bryan each had 12 for Southern.

In the boys contest, it was no contest. The Vikings rolled away at the beginning and Southern was never in the game. By the end of the first period, Conley had built up a 21-4 lead.

Southern came alive after that, matching Conley basket-for-basket in the second quarter, 22-22, but they were still down by 17 at the half, 43-26.

Southern and Conley again matched scores in the third period, 18-18, as the score climbed to 61-44. Conley then wiped the Saints out in the final period with a 27-14 advantage, easily winning.

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's Tigers blew by the Edenton Aces Friday night as both their boys and girls teams took wins. The Tiger boys won by 11, 63-62, and the girls got their 19th, 44-22.

Williamston's girls jumped out to an early lead in the first period. They scored 12 to be in front of the Lady Aces by five as they got seven in the opening frame. Williamston upped its lead getting eight in the second quarter to just one bucket for Edenton. At the half it was 20-9 for the Tigerettes.

Williamston dumped in 14 points in the third quarter while holding the Lady Aces to five to lead 34-14. The Tigerettes slipped by Edenton by a basket in the last period 10-8.

Mable Brown led the Williamston girls with 15, Joanie Rogerson dumped in 13 and Kathy Davenport had 10. No one for the Lady Aces scored more than six.

In the boy's game, the Tigers led by four at the end of the first quarter 14-10. They were still ahead at the half 28-22 as they scored 14. Edenton got 12 in the period.

Edenton cut the lead by a basket in the third quarter by out-scoring the Tigers 15-13. They pulled within two 41-39 mid-way through the period but Williamston moved away and pumped in 22 in the last frame to another 15 for the Aces to take the win.

Ernest Rankins led the Aces with 19 points. George Riddick had 13.

Albert Bonds led all the scorers with 22. Fellow Tiger Clifton Little got 13 and Dwight Ange had 12.

Oak City Wins Martin Crown

OAK CITY — The Oak City Trojans downed Robersonville High School, 50-40, Friday night, and gained their second straight Martin County Conference championship. The Robersonville Girls, who have already clinched their title, won, 52-25 in their game.

The win brought Oak City to an 8-1 league record, while Robersonville fell off to 3-6 and will be third seeded in next week's tournament. The Robersonville girls are 9-0, while Oak City is 4-5.

In the girls game, Robersonville rolled away to a 14-4 lead after one period of play. The Golden Eaglettes continued to drub the Trojanettes in the second period, dumping them 10 points further back with a 16-6 advantage. That made it 30-10 at halftime.

In the third period, the action slowed with the Eaglettes holding only an 8-3 scoring advantage. That upped the lead to 38-13. Robersonville again outhit Oak City, 14-12 in the final period.

Jennie, Peggy and Brenda James each had nine points to pace Robersonville, while Sylvia Jones had nine for Oak City.

In the boys contest, Oak City inched out ahead of the Eagles in the first period by 10-7. They slowly pulled away in the second frame, outhitting Robersonville, 14-10, to hold a 24-17 lead at intermission.

The Eagles refused to let them get much further ahead, as Oak City only held a 12-10 advantage in the third quarter. That left them in a 36-27 lead as the final period began. The final quarter was also close, but Oak City downed Robersonville, 14-13, in it, wrapping up the win and the title.

Creswell Takes Pair From Bears

BEAR GRASS — Creswell won a pair of games from the Bear Grass Bears Friday night as the Creswell girls dumped the Lady Bears 41-23 and the boys slipped by the Bear boys 48-43.

Creswell's boys had trouble getting started as both teams scored 12 points in the opening period. Creswell took the lead in the second, however, and held on to it. They got 14 in the second to 10 for the Bears to lead at the half 26-22.

Creswell added four points to their lead in the third quarter by scoring 10 points and holding Bear Grass to six. Bear Grass caught up in the last quarter, though, to be down by two with two minutes to play, 44-42. Two of their starters fouled out, however, and the Creswell free throws put the final margin at five 48-43.

The girls game was not as close as the Creswell girls jumped out to a 10-7 lead in the first quarter. They added 10 more points in the second period to be in front at intermission 20-11.

The third frame was a cold one for both teams as the Creswell team only scored six points and the Lady Bears got three. Creswell made up for it in the last period getting 15 to nine for the Lady Bears to take the win.

Norman led the Creswell girls with 13 and McDowell had 10. No one had more than nine for Bear Grass.

MARSH WORLD

by ANGUS SHORTT
Ducks Unlimited

CANVASBACK

This big diving duck is found in the deep water of marshes and marshy edges of lakes as well as the deep prairie potholes. The wedge-shaped bill, merging into the forehead gives this duck a distinctive head outline. Canvasback obtain most of their food by diving and rooting in the bottom mud for succulent roots and tubers of aquatic plants. Sago pondweed on the prairies and wild celery in the east are favorite foods. The nest, nearly always built over water, is a sturdy, basket-like structure of woven reed stalks lined with finer material and securely attached to surrounding vegetation. Ten eggs are generally laid.

America's Cup Yacht Is Leased To Marines

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI)—From the ditty bag:

—The 12-meter yacht Valiant, an unsuccessful contender for the defender's role in the 1970 America's Cup series, has been leased to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y. by Brown University. The Valiant was recently presented to Brown as a gift by the syndicate which built her. The lease period is for two years after which Valiant probably will serve as a trial horse in preliminaries for the 1974 America's Cup series.

—The American Power Boat Association's famed Gold Cup race for unlimited hydroplanes will return to the Detroit River this year for the first time in four years. Detroit was top bidder for site of the race with an offer of $45,000. The event had been held in the Motor City for years until Seattle, San Diego, Reno, Nev., and Madison, Ind., made successful bids to host the race. Ina nnouncing a tentative schedule of 10 races for the unlimiteds this year, the APBA said prize money for the events would total more than $315,000.

—What is billed as the world's biggest annual sailing event, the Southern California Yachting Association's Midwinter Regatta, will take place this year Feb. 18-20 with more than 1,000 yachts expected to participate in nearly 100 individual racing classes. Twenty major trophies will be at stake in addition to class prizes as boats as small as eight feet and as large as 60 feet plus take part in the competition.

—The 14th annual Gold Cup Awards for Boating Safety, sponsored by Mercury Marine, were awarded at the recent National Boat Show to the Delaware Valley Safe Boating Council, the Nassau County (N.Y.) Department of Recreation and Parks, and Boating Magazine. The Boating Council, made up of members from Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey, was cited for its efforts in 1971 in coordinating boating safety in the tri-state area. The Nassau County group was selected for its young boatman's classes, and the magazine won in the press category for its editorials on boating safety.

—Baron Marcel Bich of France, who lost out to Australia in eliminations to select a challenger for the 1970 America's Cup, will be back in 1974 seeking the same role. He recently named Paul Elvstrom of Copenhagen, Denmark, to skipper a new aluminum 12-meter, being designed by Andre Mauric, in the elimination series two years hence. Elvstrom, a veteran sailor, has won four Olympic Gold Medals and 11 world championships in racing competition.

—New on the market and especially designed for boatmen is a solid state television set which is operable on either batteries or AC power. Introduced by RCA and known as The Sportsman, the black-and-white receiver boasts a 12-inch screen instead of the 9-inch receiver found on most portable sets. It comes with a mounting bracket and also has a plug-in attachment that enables it to operate from a 12-volt cigarette lighter.

—The world's longest regularly scheduled yacht race—from San Pedro, Calif., to Papeete, Tahiti, 3,571 nautical miles—has been scheduled to begin this year on June 15. Known as the "Race to Paradise," the first race in the series was sailed in 1925.

Difference May Mean Everything

By JIM DEAN

"Nowadays, there's folks and then there's critters," said Uncle Remus, "but it used to be long ago that folks and critters were very close to one another, and got along satisfactual."

Uncle Remus was getting pretty close to one of man's biggest problems. Despite man's great knowledge, he still tends to think "there's folks, and then there's critters." Man still separates the two.

It's a misconception that could kill us all — folks and critters.

The problem is that man is a rather unique creature. He is intelligent, inventive, opportunistic, industrious — and most of all — proud. But he is too proud to admit any real kinship with the other "critters" on this earth. Man refuses to accept any notion that he is just another animal on this earth — albeit a unique animal.

There is much evidence to support man's refusal to accept himself for what he is, and at the same time, there are compelling reasons why he must.

This world — not just this country — is in the midst of an environmental awakening. Poor land use, air and water pollution and other forms of environmental degradation have shocked man into the realization that the ultimate quality of his life is dependent upon how he uses the earth. Man is at last beginning to pay the price for his determined and short-sighted destruction.

But while man is beginning to look for ways to restore and protect his environment, his pride still stands in the way of any real solution.

A Paradise — With 20th Century Problems

Text and Photographs by Jerry Raynor

Midway along the eastern end of the Pamlico Peninusla, where the broad Neuse River empties into the Pamlico Sound after swinging northeast from Minnesott Beach, two tiny fishing villages nestle along the shores of a small river jutting in from the vast waters of the sound.

Whortonsville and Pamlico in many ways are like scores of other tiny settlements along North Carolina's many-fingered coast, villages marked by an air of unhurried restfulness any time of the year.

These villages are even more tranquil in the cold months of winter when tourists and recreation fishermen have withdrawn inland.

In winter months, nature compensates for the cold with a world of crystalline beauty, etching the landscape in bold relief. Leafless hardwood trees are gray and silver against the frost blue sky. Naked trunks and limbs are reflected in liquid shadows in deep sapphire waters. Forests of pines are an evergreen promise of the permanancy of green. Broomstraw, the color of polished bronze, becomes a sheet of rippling gold with each gust of breeze, and tall marsh grasses are like brown flames on the surface of quiet backwaters. Blackbirds and winter song birds give music to the silent days.

These villages of unpretentious buildings of white painted or silvered wood; these tongues of water; the irregular sweep of dark level farm land; and fringes of forest make a gentle paradise.

Yet it is a paradise with problems — problems that most of the dwindling number of secluded corners of the world must inevitably face.

"The majority of our young people are leaving," Talmadge Osborne Hudgins, Jr. commented. Hudgins, one of the young men who has chosen to stay, lives in Merritt, another small Pamlico County village, five miles from Pamlico. "There's very little opportunity for a young person here."

It is a cruel situation. The remedy, more local industries with employment opportunities this would bring, is the very thing that could so easily destroy that which these people love — the quiet pattern of living and the beloved landscape nature has patiently fashioned through past centuries.

For those who stay, there's two basic occupations, farming and fishing.

"Some of the men are part time fishermen," Hudgins said. "Most are full time. In winter they fish for flounder. When spring comes, they go crabbing, and in summer and autumn shrimp is the mainstay." The sturdy attractive trawlers, averaging about 60 feet in length, are objects of pride by the men who put out to sea on them.

On farms around Whortonsville and Pamlico soy beans, corn and tobacco are the main staples produced on the rich, black land stretching between roads, forests and innumerable creeks.

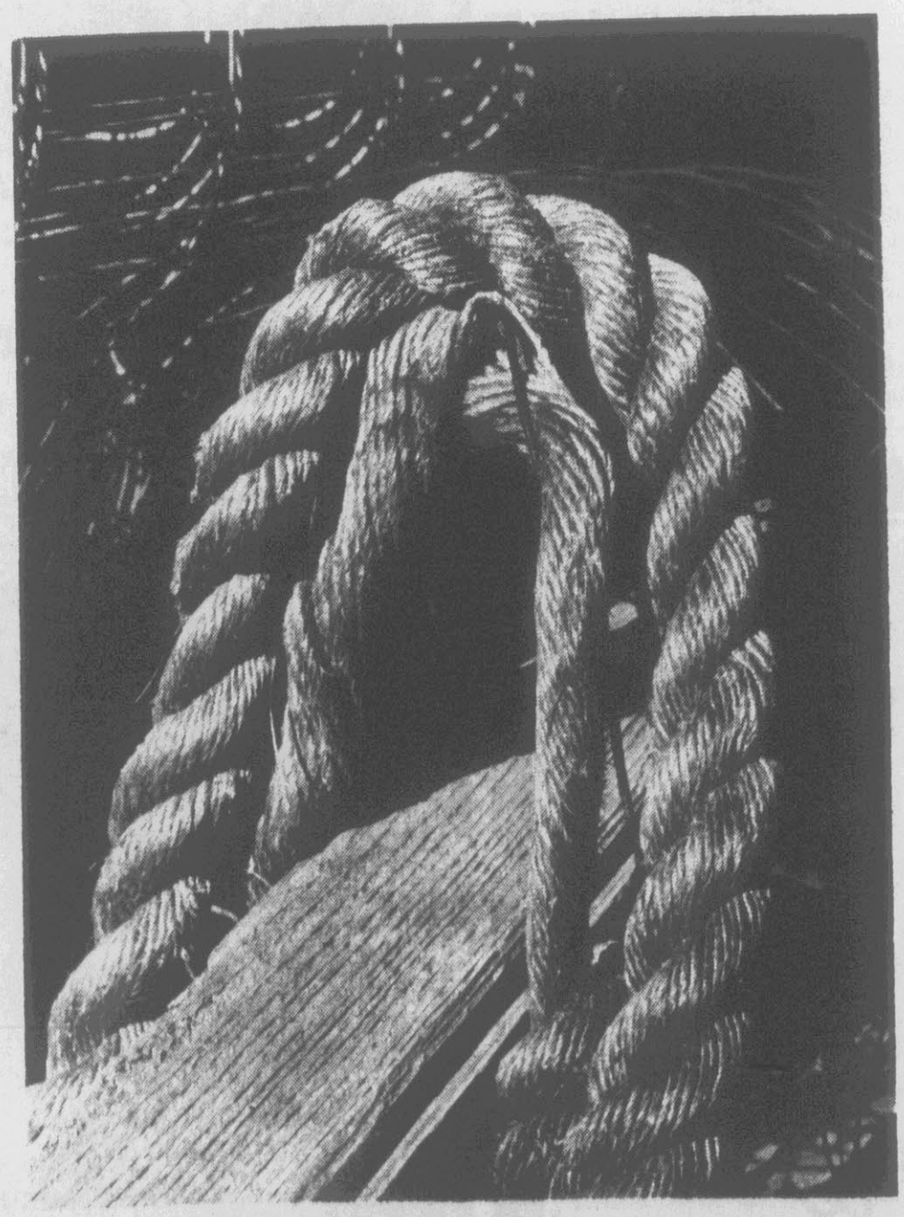

Hudgins mentioned too that "tourists come in the summer."

And what will be the fate of this lovely land? Suggestions, plans, recommendations are legion. But nobody really has the answer or answers.

For the present, however, five million North Carolinians can be grateful there are such places left. We can also hope that somehow these remaining havens of tranquility will not in future years become a birthright to be sold in the marketplace of thoughtless industrialism.

. . . on a winter weekend, trawlers rest in dock at Pamlico village.

. . . a coil of rope and a weathered board symbolize fishing, an important occupation in Pamlico County.

An abandoned country school near Whortonsville, a relic from past days.

Mercedes McCambridge Has Message

VETERAN ACTRESS Mercedes McCambridge holds a picture taken on the night in 1950 when she won an Oscar as best supporting actress for her performance in "All The King's Men". (UPI Telephoto)

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mercedes McCambridge looked incredulously at the picture of herself taken on the night in 1950 she won an Academy Award for her first movie, "All the King's Men."

"Has anybody ever looked so young?" she said with a sigh and a grin.

She was on top of the world then. She had been called radio's greatest actress, playing in everything from soap operas to such favorites as "Inner Sanctum," "I Love a Mystery" and "Lights Out!" She had starred on Broadway, then won an Oscar in her movie debut.

"Radio serials—that was a great way of living," Miss McCambridge said in an interview at her New York Hotel, where she is living while starring in the new Broadway play, "The Love Suicide at Schofield Barracks."

Remember Radio?

"Maybe that always happens —you think 'the good old days' were the best way of living. That was the time when nobody worried about gaining a little weight or had their noses fixed.

"There was great audiences contact—the radio audiences had to work as hard as the performers, supplying sets and costumes and everything in their own minds.

"I loved it, but the most awful thing was when you had to die. They always told you ahead of time when your character was being written out, and you'd think, 'Oh, shoot, there goes the rent money.'

"It was an awful temptation, say if you were going to be shot, and then you were to groan and the prop man would fall down with a thud—to say, 'Ha-ha! you missed me,' At least you'd get another day's work out of it and there wasn't much anyone could do about it because the broadcasts were live. No, I never did do it."

Then came her bad times—divorce, remarriage, two still-born children, another divorce, her son near death with a skull fracture. And the worst time of all was alcohol.

Miss McCambridge, who now is the national honorary chairman of the National Council on Alcoholism, doesn't use her private problems as excuses for her drinking.

She Overcame Alcoholism

"When it comes to hangups, alcoholics and non-alcoholics have them in about equal numbers," she said. "Alcoholism is a disease, an addictive disease. Our bodies don't assimilate alcohol the way 9 out of 10 do.

"Do we use it as escape? Why does anybody have even one drink? It's a mood changer, an escape from the way we feel. Everybody uses alcohol as a cop-out but for the alcoholic it's a disaster. When a person drinks, he's under anesthesia but most people can burn it off. We can't and we're no longer reasonable."

Speaking of herself, she said that alcohol very literally nearly killed her.

"I never even drank as much as most people do," she said. "But the way it affected me was to make me physically ill. I would get bronchitis and rapidly go into pneumonia. Now I haven't had either in eight years.

"And I felt I was bad and that I couldn't live with myself."

The actress, who will be 54 on St. Patrick's Day, said that today's attitude toward alcoholism reminds her of an incident in her youth in Joliet, Ill.

The Secret Disease

"When I was a little girl, cancer was supposed to be very bad, something you said, 'Shh, that's not nice. One of my aunts died and a member of the family hoped the death certificate could read something else because nice people didn't get cancer. It's the same way with alcoholism.

"I'm no Carrie Nation and I think alcohol is wonderful, if you aren't an alcoholic. If you are, it's a disease, not a moral problem."

That is why, although she does not enjoy it, she puts herself in the spotlight, spending two week periods three or four times a year speaking to groups at campuses, clubs, business firms, anywhere.

"I'm trying to bring alcoholism into the light of day where people will see it for what it is," she said. "Alcohol is the third highest killer after heart disease and cancer. And I feel a great sense of gratitude and responsibility that I'm alive. How many are dead?"

Peter Falk Scores Big On TV And Broadway

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The early 1970s, in retrospect, will have to count as the years when Peter Falk came into his own.

Not only was his "Columbo" segment of NBC's successful "Mystery Movie" the hit of the series, but he moved right on to a smash Broadway show, "The Prisoner of Second Avenue."

The combination, at a time when the length of Hollywood's unemployment lines was more spectacular than its motion picture films, was certainly satisfying to a hard-working actor. It was also an indication of how the nation's audiences have changed hero concepts since the days of the John Gilberts, Robert Taylors and Tyrone Powers.

Falk is a short—5 feet 8—square and rumpled fellow in his early 40s with a glass eye he has never bothered to conceal and an obvious New York accent. Surely not the matinee idol. Yet, he continually plays good guys and is so much in demand that he finds it necessary to schedule his time as carefully as a dentist.

"Columbo," the "Mystery Movie" segment in which he plays the title role, was adapted from a Broadway play "Prescription for Murder," in which Thomas Mitchell played Falk's role. Falk first played Lt. Columbo ("he doesn't have a first name") in a two-hour, made-for-TV movie four years ago.

As "Prescription For Murder," the film was run and did well, and two years later there was a second feature using the character. When "Columbo" was chosen as one of three rotating series for this season's "Mystery Movie," Falk was delighted. It meant he would make but six episodes which would occupy him for about 2½ months. The rest of the time he was free for film and stage work.

Then along came a opportunity to play in the latest Neil Simon play on Broadway—a golden break, since Simon has never had a flop Falk by this time was in the happy position of being able to accept the role—with a contract that lets him out of the play next June, in time to go back home to Hollywood for another batch of "Columbo" episodes.

Falk, although born in New York, grew up in Ossining, a suburb of the city. He attended Hamilton College, Syracuse and the New School of Social Research and wound up with a master's degree as an efficiency expert earning good money. He hated his work.

His college education was interrupted by a period in the Merchant Marine—he was a cook. The idea of being an actor came later.

He got interested in the theater in amateur shows in college, and later worked with a little theater group. A meeting with Eva LeGallienne resulted in some straw hat theater work, followed by study in New York drama schools. A lot of Broadway experience followed.

"I had some luck with films," he said, "but as far as television is concerned, things really started with "The Price of Tomatoes," in the "Dick Powell Theater" series."

It won him an Emmy. Earlier, however, he had picked up Oscar nominations for his parts in the film "Murder, Inc." and Frank Capra's "A Pocketful of Miracles."

PERENNIAL OPERATOR

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rehn Scofield apparently can't miss being an operator. His latest film role is that of Dr. Spezio in "The Hospital" with George C. Scott. Just before taking the part, Scofield was the man behind the scenes, operating all the hand puppets in Honeywell's traveling ecology show, "Annie and the Air Pollution Gang."

Philip Moose

One Man Show Emphasizes Mediterranean

Alpine Village

North Carolina's well known mountain-based artist, Philip Moose, is back east again with a one-man show in the Greenville Art Center.

Phil Moose likes to travel, to wander about the spicy sun blessed regions of the earth, then return to the cool of Blowing Rock to sort out his impressions and transfer them to canvas.

As his most recent voyages took him to the semi-tropical Mediterranean lands, a sizeable proportion of his new show is devoted to landscapes of Greece, Itlay and Morocco on the southern fringe of the Mediterranean world.

The splendor of colors, the old world charm of villages, courtyards and buildings that form a link from today to ancient ages past, are sources of inspiration that have challenged artists over long ages.

The North Carolina mountain artist has shown admirable restraint in extracting elements of basic beauty from these almost overwhelmingly opulent landscapes without succumbing to the dangers of exotic clutter.

There's a fine line between essential richness and a surfeit of overpowering local color in the Mediterranean area. Moose realizes this difference. None of the glory of these fabled lands is lost in his paintings, but are revealed lucidly in the artist's judicious pruning of tempting excesses.

Not all of Moose's paintings in the Greenville show are based on Mediterranean, however. There are scenes of North Carolina's splendid mountain country in which the artist accurately pins down the elusive, incomparable smoky mauves, blues and greens of the mountains in summer and autumn and the frosty blues, whites and grays of winter.

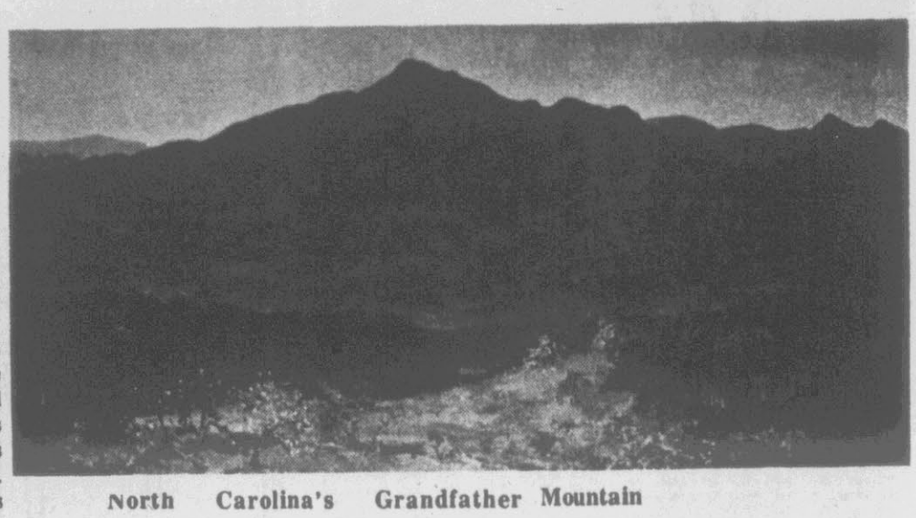

Moose also shows several recent efforts in the abstract vein with good effect, particularly in Mysterious Moonlight, but it's apparent Moose's talent lies in landscapes.

Not everybody may share this writer's opinion that Moose's finest paintings are the small and medium size ones. In these, there is a directness, a vibrancy that consistently reveals Moose's ability to unlock the singing poetry of form and colors in landscapes. This quality of tautness is sometimes obscured in his larger paintings.

Over the years, Moose has been the recipient of numerous museum and exhibition awards, including the Pulitzer Prize in painting. His work is in a large number of museum and private collections.

This show will very likely be one of the Art Center's highlights for the year. It is highly recommended for one, or better yet, several visits.

Area Artists Have Work In Two N.C. Traveling Shows

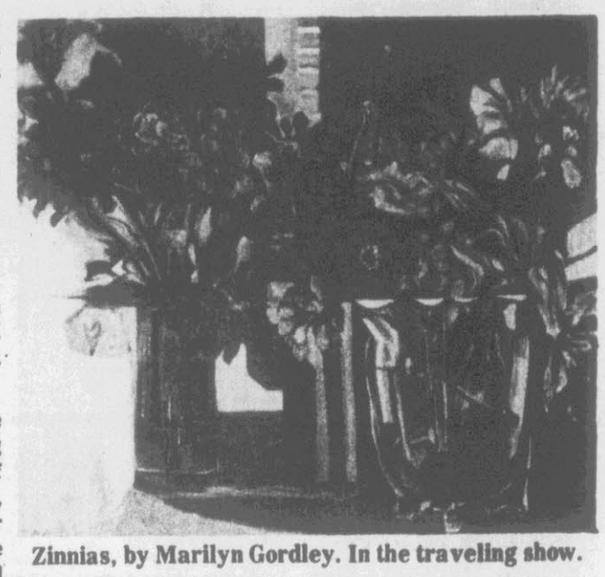

Two Greenville and one Farmville artist are among the 39 artists whose works have been chosen from the 34th annual North Carolina Artists Exhibition for a two part traveling art exhibit to be on show in 22 North Carolina towns and villages.

Part I, which will be shown in Washington and Wilson among other North Carolina towns, will include work by Farmville's Clara Flanagan and Greenville's Marilyn Gordley.

Part II, to be seen locally in Williamston and Kinston, will have a work by Greenville artist Paul G. Martick.

The 44 works comprising the traveling shows were among those chosen by Will Barnett of New York; Adelyn Breeskin, curator of contemporary art for the National Collection of Fine Arts, Washington, D.C., and chief curator Dan Swanson of the Walker Art Center, Minneapolis for inclusion in the big annual North Carolina show recently held at the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh.

The only cost for the show is a minimal shipping charge to be paid by institutions requesting the exhibits. The traveling exhibit is being shown in galleries, libraries, schools and museums in the villages on the traveling itinerary.

POPULATION, ENVIRONMENT AND PEOPLE, Edited by Noel Heinrichs For the Council on Population and Environment. Forword by Rene Dubos. McGraw-Hill Paperbacks, 227 pp., $2.95

The twin crisis of overpopulation and environmental pollution is now, today a frightening realtity threatening species survival. This book, an outgrowth of the 1970 First Congress on Optimum Population and Environment contains 24 essays by thoughtful, concerned citizens of diverse training and interests. Scientists, statesmen, professionals in the community housewives, a Nobel prize winner examine the basic problem, consider the human factors and suggest solutions for reversing destructive trends. Differing in emphases and panacea, all the essayists are, however, aware of the urgency and immediacy of the planetary threat. Where Paul Erlich (THE POPULATION BOMB, 1968) focuses on unrestricted human reproduction, Philip Hauser (demographer, University of Chicago) emphasizes the urban crisis with inadequate housing, congestion, minority group inequities, arguing (p. 27) that it is as important to "eliminate the slums of Chicago ... as it is to save Lake Michigan."

There are refreshingly few charts and graphs. Comments on overpopulation and pollution are concise and impressive: It took over 3 million years to generate the first billion (around 1850), but only 30 years (p. 20) between 1930 and 1960 to generate the third billion; on pollution: "Every American child is 50 times the disaster for the world as each Indian child;" on consumption: "Each American is 300 times as bad as each Indonesian." Members of the affluent society in the United States, Western Europe, Russia and Japan are the "prime looters and polluters of the planet." (p. 108)

Americans are the worst offenders, according to Dr. George Wald (biologist Nobel prize recipient) in "wasting all our remaining resources, polluting the surface of the earth" (p. 221). Are there possibilities for corrective action? Three should be considered: population stabilization, "cultural consumerism" and elimination of minority group discrimination. Former Senator Tydings discusses "Stabilizing U.S. Population Size: A Political Strategy" (p. 131) and Richard Lamm of the Colorado State Legislature considers "The Politics of Fertility" in appraising the limits of coercion (p. 206). "Cultural consumerism" bears directly on the "quality of life" with a plea by Stuart Udall (p. 138) for reasserting non-economic values in attacking waste and misuse of the environment. The Population-Environment crisis will have little impact on minority groups living in unrelieved poverty. Benedetta Washington of the Job Corps reminds us (p. 177 ff) of the Spanish American mother's comment: "Children are the only things we can have". In general, it is recognized that all minority groups with education, steady employment, acceptable standards of living tend voluntarily to restrict their family size. On the optimistic side Shirley Radl (executive director of Zero Population Growth) provides a dramatic example of community action potential (p. 182); the situation is not hopeless if we recognize with Garrett Harden (biologist) that (Population) + (Prosperity — (Pollution)" and that freedom decreases as population increases (p. 67).

This book is strongly recommended for all readers and should be a must for the young and affluent. There is little in these essays to support Margaret Mead's and Marshall McLuhan's conjecture (p. 103) that "sex is cooling off."

"Green, slimy, crawly, creepy things with beady eyes and fangy teeth." That's what friends may say when you ask them to say something nice. How far would let your friend go before you took them off your Ten-best Friend list? Bernard Waber's drawings exemplify the dialogue in NOBODY IS PERFICK. His dramatizations of friends, daydreams, and "everyday" situations will thrill children and remind adults of the humor and fun of escaping back to childhood.

"The child's heart beat quickly because he realized that the tiny circus had come to his house to give a performance...Please, 'whispered the child, let it last forever.' He knew that he had been waiting for them since he was very young — and that he must keep them safe and guarded. The thought of grown-ups seeing them made his hands go cold. Each of them was different and each was beautiful — but it was the girl with paper birds in her hair who touched the child's heart. Like himself, she was longing for someone to speak to her who would understand the deep things in her heart. Like himself, she wanted to be loved."

Barbara Wersba has reavealed a deep, thought provoking, and stimulating account of childhood imaginings, daydreams, and friendships in LET ME FALL BEFORE I FLY. Are children the sole possessors of imaginings? "The child learned to act like everyone else — and everyone believed him." He realized the circus people had been a dream and hid his loneliness inside himself until one night he dreamed his dream and was once again with them. "And when the child woke, THEY were still with him."

If you listen, think of all the happiness you could hear. The character of Lia portrayed by Gunilla B. Norris in IF YOU LISTEN is one of a girl who feels she is in a cage — a cage of knowing the right people, doing the right things, and no one ever knowing anyone else. Sue-Ellen, who does not fit into the avantgarde pattern of Lia's upbringing, offers friendship to Lia; and these two children communicate with one another using radar of emotion and empathy. One day, unable to meet Sue-Ellen by the tree, Lia allows here anxieties to be verbalized. "No one listens to anyone else in this family," Lia stormed, for herself and children like her everywhere.

Dave Freeman Show At Gallery 501

The current vignette exhibition of paintings and drawings on view at Gallery 501 in the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte features the work of Dave Freeman.

A teacher in the Department of Art, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S.C., the young artist has exhibited in individual and group shows at the Mint; Columbia Museum of Art, S.C.; the University of Wisconsin; Gallery of Contemporary Art, Winston-Salem; etc, and has received awards at the 24th Annual Exhibition, South Carolina Art, Charleston; Drawings, USA, Minnesota Museum of Art; National Polymer Exhibition, Eastern Michigan University, and in the South Carolina Art Commission, Greenville, S.C.

Freeman is noted for his use of brillant colors and his method of generally breaking each painting or drawing into 2 or 3 panels to be viewed in relationship to each other or as individual works.

The Freeman exhibit will continue on view at Gallery 501 through February 27.

Miniature Furniture, Drawings at Mushroom

In what very likely sets an all-time record in Greenville for a miniature exhibit, Miss Joanne Lotina has on view at the Mushroom a collection of footstools and chairs fashioned of cut and shaped tin cans and tiny seats of velvet. Standing only a couple of inches high, the entire group can be held in the palsm of a big man's hand. Miss Lotino has curled the metal for a lacy effect, and painted it in black.

Also at the Mushroom, Mrs. Lelani Connell is showing a collection of page size colored drawings of children in various costumes. Some are single figures, others are couples. They are executed in the style often seen in children's illustrated books, and are tender and whimsical.

AN OLD TOOTHBRUSH SHOULD BE REPLACED

Brushing your teeth with a worn out toothbrush is not only making it difficult to clean your teeth but can actually be harmful as well. You cannot do a good job with a bad toothbrush and this will most often lead to a heavy build up of calculus. At the same time there is a serious risk of damage to your gums.

Ask your dentist to select the type of toothbrush he wants you to use. He will know what style and texture will be best for your teeth and gums. We have a complete dental needs section and carry those brands of toothbrushes most often recommended by dentists.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

MONSTER FROM THE MURKY DEEP? — That's not a four-eyed monster in the two top photos, but a three-inch-long mudskipper, shown at bottom. Reflection in the water gives the appearance of an extra set of eyes belonging to the little fish, which actually spends a lot of time out of the water. (AP Wirephoto)

As your business grows, maybe your trucks should shrink.

It's basic math. More business, more trucks, more fuel and maintenance. If you're expanding, may we offer this small suggestion: the Datsun Pickup. It delivers up to 30 miles per gallon. It requires less maintenance simply because there's less to maintain. Yet it hauls the goods just like any other self-respecting half-ton in town. The Datsun Pickup is America's number one selling import truck. Pure and simple. Drive a Datsun... then decide.

North Pitt Notes

By ELLEN HEATH

Club meetings were held Wednesday. Included in these were Student Government, Student Involvement Committee, Pep Club, Library Club, Future Farmers Teen Dem Club, Senior Council, Junior Council, Sophomore Council, and Freshmen Council.

With the mini courses only a couple of months away, the Student Government is very busy with plans. The mini course handbook is almost complete. During a two-week span, each student will take two mini courses at alternating periods each day.

Planning for the graduation, the Senior Council selected several themes, mottos, colors, and flowers for the entire senior class to vote on. "We've only just begun" was chosen as the theme. Senior colors are royal blue and white.

The January statewide Teen Dem Convention was the main topic at North Pitt's Teen Dem Club meeting. Plans for the upcoming Fayetteville Teen Dem Convention to be held in March were also discussed.

The North Pitt Teen Dem Constitution, organized by Jimmy Nelson, was approved at the Wednesday meeting.

Honor Society committees met Thursday. The students included in this were Gail Michaels, Jimmy Hayes, Vickie Clark, Christie Speir, Robin McKee, Ellen Heath, and Johnny Edwards. They discussed whether or not induction would be held this year.

The Junior Council is busy preparing for the Junior-Senior. The decorating committee held two meetings recently to discuss possible themes and bands for the event.

The student on this committee are Susan Strickland, Brenda Bullock, Darrell Cogdell, Anne Murchison, Brenda Payton, Ellen Heath, Vera Bullock, and Ella Hardy. Mrs. Mary Everett is the adviser for the Junior-Senior Prom.

The Student Task Force meeting was discussed at the meeting of the Student Involvement Committee.

Sports

Basketball games with D. H. Conley Tuesday night and Farmville Central on Friday night close North Pitt's basketball season.

The conference tournaments are coming up in a couple of weeks. The Panther boys may get to play in this tournament yet, that is, if they win the play-off game Saturday night.

The "Big Orange Machine" is ranked number one. The Junior Varsity Tournament is being held this week.

North Pitt's wrestling team closed the season tied for number one in the conference after losing a match to Conley Thursday night. A wrestling tournament was held at Farmville Central Wednesday. At this tournament, the wrestlers competed with wrestlers of the same weight class.

Residential Burglar Said Thrill-Seeker

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—Thrill-seeking youngsters rather than professional burglars or dope addicts account for most of the city's residential robberies, according to a pair of juvenile detective sergeants.

Officers Richard Cadenasso and William Phelan say their analysis indicates most home thieves are 12 to 17-years-old—and usually neighbors of their victims.

What's more, they usually have little economic need to steal, the detectives say.

"For a long time, we thought the residential burglar was a dope addict, much older, making a quick hit for a television set or some other easy-to-sell item," says Cadenasso, "but our cases over the past year are proving that speculation wrong."

Their analysis shows that the majority of thefts are committed by "kid" burglars, usually fearless and motivated by a desire for thrills and excitement, and frequently with their judgment warped by marijuana.

They seldom live farther away than a half a dozen blocks from their burglaries and often are well-known by their victims, with the victims either unwilling or unable to effect their apprehension.

"Any profit motive is only incidental," says Phelan. "After we get them together with their parents, they are usually honest about it, even boastful. They say a burglary is fun, easy and it blows their minds.

"The kids aren't stealing to buy grass for the most part, either."

Abraham Lincoln was the only President ever to undergo enemy fire, facing Rebel bullets at Fort Stevens a few miles from the White House.

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR JOHN W. GARDNER, chairman of Common Cause

I've heard a great deal about your Common Cause —but I've never seen a clear description of what it is.—Catherine Mattingly, Princeton, N.J.

● Common Cause is a national nonpartisan citizens' group with over 250,000 members lobbying in the public interest at all levels of government. Lobbying is a legitimate part of our political process, a right granted to all of us in the First Amendment. But now somebody besides big companies and special-interest groups is in on the act—and that's us. The concern of Common Cause is issues: 1. to make government more responsive to the needs and wishes of the people; 2. to withdraw American forces from Indochina; 3. to work for controls in lobbying; 4. full disclosure of conflict of interest on the part of every public official; and 5. legislation guaranteeing freedom of information on the Federal and state levels.

FOR WALTER CRONKITE, newscaster

Do you memorize what you are going to say on your nightly newscast or do you read from a prompter?—E. Miller, Camarillo, Calif.

● I use an electronic prompter on the camera, but since I have worked with the copy all day, I am intimately familiar with it, and memory undoubtedly plays a part. In fact, for several years in the early 50s I did two news broadcasts a day out of Washington with no script whatsoever—merely a list of the items I wanted to cover and an occasional note on a proper name or a figure.

FOR MR. BLACKWELL, dress designer and compiler of the "Worst Dressed Women" list

I was surprised that you came out with "nonseasonal" clothes. Doesn't that mean women will buy fewer clothes and designers will make less money?—S. Smith, Hartford, Conn.

● You're right, but I don't believe that a woman should go broke buying clothes every season. With the sophisticated heating we have nowadays and the temperature changes taking place across the world, it isn't necessary, for instance, to wear a winter dress under a winter coat.

FOR ROD LAVER, tennis champion

Is there any advantage to being a left-handed tennis player? —Mrs. M. Foster, Ashland, Mass.

● Not as much as there used to be. A left-hander has a more definite spin, and a few years back few right-handers knew how to play it. Indeed, when I first faced another left-hander, he almost drove me off the court. Now, with more left-handers on the scene, the right-handers are getting accustomed to them.

FOR JANE BLALOCK, professional golfer

Would you favor, as husband material, a man who knows a lot or a little about golf?—Mrs. W. E. Mangas, Harrington Park, N. J.

● I want to marry somebody who doesn't even know how to spell the word golf. I get so tired of hearing about it all the time.

FOR LORNE GREENE, TV star

How do you explain the continuing popularity of "Bonanza," in which you play the strong head of a family at a time when family values are being downgraded and parental influence is being challenged?—Elizabeth Dribben, New York, N.Y.

● Secretly, people want to have a family of love and respect. This drive is really the basis of why they've followed "Bonanza" for so many years. I believe it is because the activities on the screen reflect the wishes of the viewers.

FOR BETSY DRAKE GRANT,

actress and author of "Children, You Are Very Little"

How do you go about the business of putting your thoughts onto paper? What do you do when you feel "stuck" or "dry"?—Ann Regan, Brighton, Mass.

● Writing for me begins with images. I see or hear something—a room, a line of dialogue or a face. It comes from nowhere. Writing is peculiar. It's a form of dreaming while awake. When I get stuck in my writing I do housework. I also cook and garden, while my mind is working away.

FOR PETE ROZELLE, commissioner of the NFL

How much are referees paid for the Super Bowl?—Jerry Hartenburg, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

● Officials selected for the Super Bowl game are chosen by the commissioner's office. The six who work the game are paid $1,500 each, plus expenses, and the two alternates receive $700 each, plus expenses.

FOR NORM CROSBY, comedian

How did you work out that funny malaprop routine of yours in which you say things like I struggled to reach the "pinochle of success"?—Mrs. Edward Long, San Mateo, Calif.

● I used to be advertising director for a shoe store in New England, and my old bosses were always misusing words. They'd say, "Are you going to stay here tonight, or are you going to communicate?" I used the gimmick in New York, got a tremendous reaction and was on my way.

FOR ANN B. DAVIS, of ABC-TV's "The Brady Bunch"

Harriet Ann

You're an identical twin. I've heard such twins often have ESP experiences with each other. Have you had ESP communication with your sister?—G. Dunn, Los Angeles, Calif.

● Yes, in little things. We often try to phone each other at the same time. One time I phoned Harriet and said, "I don't know why I'm calling. I thought you might want me to." It turned out her son had just broken his leg. We share a lot of interests. We went to college together, and she heads a theater group. We still look very much alike.

Pearl S. Buck at 80: "What

A famous author reflects on what all her years have convinced

"I have no wish to 'be on the young side,' advertisements notwithstanding. I value my age. It took me a long, long time and much work to get where I am now. Shall I try, crabwise, to move backward? Not I!"

I am nearing my eightieth birthday. What do I believe now? The last time I was asked this question I was in mid-life. I have learned a great deal since then. My beliefs have changed. They will change still more as long as I live on earth. They may even continue to change as I proceed into another stage of life. Let me begin, however, at this present stage and let me begin with people.

I used to believe that people are all born good. This belief came from my education by a Confucian scholar when I was growing up in China. I no longer believe that people are born good. I believe that whether a human being is born good or evil depends largely upon the genes which he helplessly inherits. He may be made better or worse by his environment or education, but he may never be a good person. It may be well at this point to define what I, at least, define as a good person. Even goodness depends upon the definition of the person who defines it. Not being a criminal myself, at least so far as I know, I would say a criminal is not a good person because he is antisocial. A criminal, of course, would differ with me in definition. He would describe himself doubtless as a good criminal. I would describe goodness as a compound of qualities. I would demand trustworthiness first of all; that is to say, someone whose word can be counted on even to the extent that if he says he will arrive at three o'clock, he will arrive at three o'clock or let you know if the unforeseen occurs. He is, in short, a person to be counted on in matters large and small. He is invincibly honest.

I do not believe most people are honest. Life has taught me this truth. I now count upon dishonesty, petty or important, and as a result, I believe passionately in total honesty as an essential of goodness.

Human beings, I once believed, are capable of loving other human beings. This I took to be only natural, since we enjoy being loved and therefore loving. Of course love is a very loose term. It means different emotions to different people. Love in the family between parent and child, between siblings, between friends, between man and woman—these are all aspects of love. They may be permanent or transient, even in a family. A child may love a parent so long as the parent is necessary, but the day will possibly—in our culture, probably—come when the parent, no longer needed, is certainly no longer loved. Therefore I believe human beings are not naturally loving. They love when that particular person, whoever he or she may be, is necessary. This is to say, therefore, that I now believe that human beings are not naturally loving.

This is true. As a result of my disbelief in the natural capacity of most human beings to love others, I believe deeply in the miraculous, healing, uplifting, joyous quality of love—any love, all love, eternal or transient. I am profoundly grateful for any and all love that I have been given in my life by friend or stranger, by parent or child, by husband and lover, by equal or superior or inferior. Knowing and accepting its probable transience, I thank God for it nevertheless. I consider the her about that elusive subject, our life on this planet

"I am profoundly grateful for any and all love that I have been given in my life by friend or stranger, by parent or child, by husband and lover, by equal or superior or inferior. Knowing and accepting its probable transience, I thank God for it nevertheless. I consider the greatest talent, or capacity, or natural gift which has been given me is my instinctive inclination toward love rather than hate . . . ."

greatest talent, or capacity, or natural gift which has been given me is my instinctive inclination toward love rather than hate, or even dislike, in my relations with my fellow human beings. This natural gift keeps me from hating anyone. The most I can do in this area is to put them out of my mind and life. I forget them. In so doing, I am free from the corrosive effects of enmity and hatred. I attribute my excellent health to this capacity. It enables me to live in good spirits and thus in an atmosphere conducive to creative work and enjoyment of life.

I would find it difficult to live except in surrounding beauty. At this moment, while I am writing these very words, I look out on a winding country road, a great old tree, a green lawn. I walk that road almost every day. It grieves me that its beauty is marred by trash and empty cans thrown from passing cars. I pick them up every day but the next day others are there. I pick them up. This daily task convinces me that my fellow Americans do not understand the spiritual necessity of beauty. Nor do they understand that the first element of beauty is order. Trash on the roadside is disorderly. We Americans are a disorderly people. The streets of Seoul, Korea, are cleaner than the streets of New York or Philadelphia or any American city I know. Therefore cities elsewhere are more beautiful than ours, in spite of our splendid buildings. And do not speak to me of poverty. It is not slums that make poor people. It is dirty, disorderly people who make slums, and this is true in any country. I had a friend who lived in a beautiful apartment in Harlem. It was in a building which had been handsome in the days of New York's splendor—but, inhabited by disorderly people, the building was a slum indeed. My friend, however, continued to live there with grace and beauty. And this disorderly living is not only in the city. For 20 years I owned a large farm in Pennsylvania. On it were six beautiful old stone houses. I lived in one, my farm manager lived in one and the farmhands lived in the other four. I put heat and water and electricity in all the houses. All were fresh and clean. The four inhabited by the farmhands and their families soon became slums. There was no love of beauty and hence no order.

I believe, therefore, in the beauty of order as a necessity for beauty. And beauty, simple or elaborate, is a necessity for growth of mind and heart and spirit. A child, taught order and beauty, carries within his mind and spirit the source for creative energy.

Next, but not last, I believe in the generation gap. I insist upon the generation gap. I am insulted if young people treat me as one of them. I am not one of them—long ago, yes, but not now, after decades of creative work, intensive thought and meditation, mature conclusions and dignified living. Moreover, I have always believed in the generation gap. As a child, I looked up to my parents and would have been confused and bewildered if they had stooped to my level. As a student in college, I respected my teachers because they were my teachers, whether I learned from them or not. When I became a college professor myself—at first in my own college and later in Chinese universities—I insisted upon the generation gap, however slight the difference in age. I needed that gap, as child, student, professor. The secret of the long life of the Chinese lay in the preservation and practice of the generation gap. Not all parents were worthy, even in China, not all teachers proficient, but the proper levels were preserved as basic to a structured, orderly society. If I am to believe what I read and hear, even the incited disorders of Communism in China have not succeeded in destroying the generation gap there.

Only through the generation gap can each generation contribute its best—the young to use their impetuous zeal to learn and to progress, and the old to express their wisdom and optimistic belief in themselves. I have no wish to "be on the young side," advertisements notwithstanding. I value my age. It took me a long, long time and much work to get where I am now. Shall I try, crabwise, to move backward? Not I! I believe in the value of old age and old people. I deplore the loss to our nation that we do not use this resource. I pity the foolishness of young people without wisdom and guidance, for the progress of the nation is impeded, slowed up, destroyed thereby. If each generation learns only by its own experience, we merely mark time and get nowhere. I am all for old people, myself included, and have been so always. Anxious to learn, as a child and a youth in China, I sought out—not the young, for I knew what they had to say—but the old who had lived long before I was born.

And now last comes the final question, the most important of them all, the question which faces every human being alive. When we die, young or old, is it the end or is there more beyond? When my husband died, I faced this question with every resource at my command, religious and scientific. I am so constituted that I am not satisfied except with a reasonable rationale for both. I cannot accept any suggestion that religion can answer a question without a scientific basis, nor will I depend on a mechanistic, scientific reply. Today I face the question for myself. I am at an age that reminds me often that this mortal life cannot continue forever, however robust my frame, inherited from robust ancestors. Do I believe in the persistence of my spirit, my soul, my being, now housed in my mortal frame? My answer is yes, I do believe in a continuing existence. When I say continuing, I mean an individual continuing so that I can recognize myself as I expect to recognize others at the same level. I have come to this conclusion by following both a religious and a scientific hypothesis. When we know how to do it, we shall be able to communicate between the different levels of existence. We have neglected real research, scientifically, into this field, but some beginning has been made.

Meanwhile, I conclude here, as I concluded in the final lines of my book, "A Bridge for Passing," that there is no such thing as a miracle. Instead, there is a thing which we just don't know how to do yet. I believe there is no supernatural. Instead, there is only the supremely natural. □

Ken Buchanan

World Lightweight Champ: "The Bigger Boys Picked on Me"

Edinburgh, capital of Scotland, has only one professional prizefighter, but he is also world lightweight champion—26-year-old Ken Buchanan, who wears boxing trunks made of Scottish plaid, talks in a thick Scottish burr, has a band of kilted bagpipe players perform at his fights, yet is much more popular in America than in his native land. Buchanan does his fighting in rings all over the world, then goes home to his wife and year-old son and works out in a drafty, unheated, little gym. . . . Buchanan, who throws rapierlike punches at his opponents and ducks and weaves so fast it's hard to hit him back, weighs a constant 133 pounds. When he trained at Grossinger's in New York's Catskill Mountains for his successful defense against Ismael Laguna of Puerto Rico, owner Paul Grossinger noted in awe that "he eats the equivalent of six meals a day, but never gains an ounce." . . . Buchanan claims his small stature was responsible for his becoming a fighter. "The bigger boys took advantage of me when I was growing up. I started to fight back and learned how to use speed and agility to beat them up." After proving himself in street fights, Buchanan began to box as an amateur while earning his living as a carpenter. He became British lightweight champion but nearly gave up boxing because his income was so small. His championship over Laguna, his successful title defenses, and the $100,000 guarantee he received for the second Laguna fight—a record in the lightweight division—have cured him of the financial shorts.

The Doctor Lets You In Vitamins: A Two-Edged Sword?

Is it possible to have too many vitamins? Absolutely—and this is one reason why many experts are concerned over America's current vitamin craze. In the first place, if you are really vitamin-deficient, your hunger will probably propel you to the proper foods. Two hundred years ago, British sailors earned the nickname "limeys" because of their craving for citrus fruits—shortly before they came down with scurvy from Vitamin C deficiency. Their bodies were telling them something was wrong, through their hunger. Also, too many vitamins can do you harm. An excess of Vitamin A causes liver toxicity; too much Vitamin C causes diarrhea. But mostly, the danger in taking pills—10, 20, 30 a day, as some people are doing—is that it is blind medicine, an unsure remedy for an ephemeral disease. You should never take medicines of any kind "just in case." In this instance, the practice can undermine good eating habits based on sound nutritional principles. If you think your diet may be inadequate, consult your doctor or the County Health Department for instruction.

—By John J. Secondi, M.D.

The Diet Watch

Successful Dieters Are Well-Motivated

In a study of overweight people at a New York Nutrition Clinic, doctors found that 30 percent of those studied were successful at losing weight because they were well-motivated. As one doctor defines "well-motivated": "For instance, being in love and knowing that summer is coming and you'll have to appear before him (or her) in a bathing suit." Some motivations that have been found to work for people: aiming to lose a certain number of pounds before a particular social event like a friend's wedding, or before a vacation; aiming to lose weight by spring, when your excess weight won't be so easily concealed by a coat or heavier winter clothing; and many women even get "instant" motivation by looking at beautifully skinny models in a fashion magazine just before sitting down to lunch or dinner. It kills the appetite.

'Why I smoke Vantage.'

I read the papers.
I watch TV.
I hear the things some of them are saying about smoking.

All I know is that I enjoy smoking and I don't plan to quit. Last year, maybe the year before, I did get on to one of those low 'tar' brands. Worked at it for a solid month.

Trying to pull flavor through one of those cigarettes was like sucking on a pencil.

So I went back to my old brand. What's the good of smoking if you can't get flavor through a cigarette?

Only it wasn't the same thing, my old brand. All those critics made me feel guilty about smoking them.

That's about the time Vantage came out and did I latch on to them!

First off, they tasted good. Like my old cigarettes.

And then, frankly, all that the critics say about 'tar' and nicotine has to make an impression.

Fact is, they don't make me feel guilty about smoking Vantage.

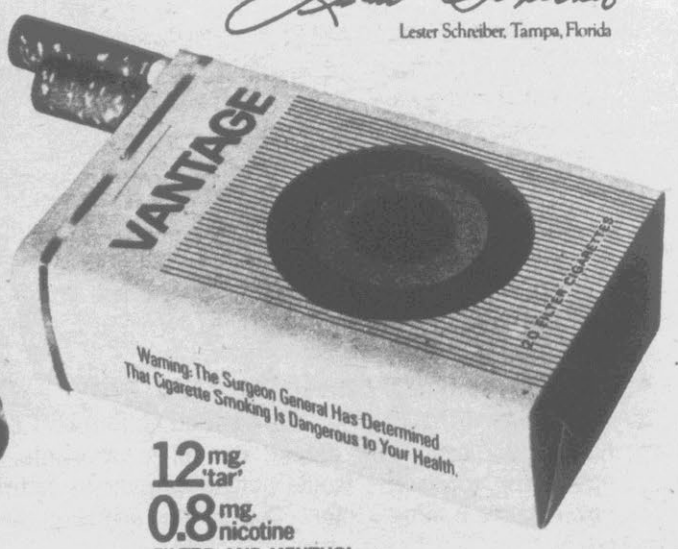

I mean here's a cigarette that's got a whole lot less 'tar' and nicotine than my old brand and I'm still getting good rich flavor out of them.

They're always telling people to stop smoking or to cut down on 'tar' and nicotine.

But how about telling a guy like me, who likes smoking, how to cut down on 'tar' and nicotine yet still get some enjoyment out of a cigarette.

Will every smoker like Vantage? All I can say is to try them.

The Super-Nutritional Breakfast

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

By Marilyn Hansen

We all know, don't we, that breakfast is the most important meal of the day? Well, this week's Cookbook features breakfast menus that are not only nutritional, but super-nutritional. Some will be different to you, but all will be healthful and good to eat. (One word of caution: don't try all of them at once! One new breakfast menu every few days is probably all your family can assimilate.)

The All-American. A traditional breakfast with several interesting—and vitamin-packed—twists.

THE ALL-AMERICAN BREAKFAST MENU

Fresh Fruit Cup*
Baked Eggs with Wheat Germ*
Canadian-style Bacon
Banana-Cereal Bread*
Coffee, Tea or Fortified Milk*
*Recipes are given for starred items.

FRESH FRUIT CUP

¼ cup orange-flavored instant breakfast drink
1 cup ice water
4 cups fresh fruits

1. Dissolve instant breakfast drink in water. Pour over fruits, mixing lightly. 2. Spoon into serving dishes. Garnish with fresh mint if desired.

Makes 4 cups, 6-8 servings

Try these fruits: sliced bananas, melon balls, sliced peeled peaches, diced oranges or grapefruit, diced apples, halved seeded grapes, diced pears.

BAKED EGGS WITH WHEAT GERM

Butter or margarine
¾ cup light cream or fortified milk
12 teaspoons wheat germ
6 eggs
Salt
Pepper
Dillweed, fresh or dried

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Butter 6 ramekins or 6 (10-oz. size) custard cups. 2. Place 1 teaspoon butter in the bottom of each ramekin. Pour 1 tablespoon light cream into bottom of each. Sprinkle cream with wheat germ. 3. Break an egg into each cup and sprinkle with salt and pepper. 4. Bake 15-20 minutes, or until eggs are soft-cooked. Serve with Canadian bacon and garnish with fresh or dried dillweed.

Makes 6 servings

BANANA-CEREAL BREAD

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
2½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 tablespoon orange-flavored instant breakfast drink
½ cup water
1 cup mashed banana
1 egg, slightly beaten
⅓ cup solid all-vegetable shortening, melted and slightly cooled
2 cups fortified oat flakes

The Super-Nutritional Breakfast

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease well a 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Sift flour, baking powder and salt into 3 qt. mixing bowl. Stir in brown sugar.
2. Dissolve instant breakfast drink in water; add to flour mixture with banana, egg and shortening. Blend just until flour is dampened.
3. Stir in cereal and nuts. Pour into well-greased pan.
4. Bake for about 50 minutes, or until cake tester inserted into center comes out clean.
5. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Loosen sides of loaf with spatula, turn out onto rack and finish cooling.
6. For ease in slicing and mellowing of flavors, store bread, covered, 12 hours or overnight before using.
7. This bread may also be frozen. Wrap well in aluminum foil, plastic wrap or bag; seal and label; freeze. Makes 1 loaf

THE SURFSIDER

Grapefruit and Orange Wedges
*Surfer Shake
Whole Rye Wafers—Butter or Margarine
Coffee, Tea or Hot Apple Juice

SURFER SHAKE

3 cups milk
1 cup vanilla ice cream
2 eggs
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
½ cup skim-milk powder
¼ cup natural-flavored malted-milk powder
¼ cup molasses
2 tablespoons wheat germ
1 teaspoon vanilla

1. Place all ingredients in order given in electric blender. Blend at low speed 30 seconds, blend at high speed 1 minute until foamy.
2. Pour into glasses. Makes 4 servings

THE NEW ENGLANDER

*Orange Wedges
*Silver-Dollar Pancakes
with Maple-Blended Syrup
Sausages
*Coffee, Tea or Fortified Milk

ORANGE WEDGES

6 medium oranges

1. Cut each orange into eighths. Arrange in dessert dish in flower-petal fashion, cut side up.
2. Eat with fingers, including white part of rind. The pulp and the white rind of citrus fruits, which includes oranges, contain bioflavonoids. These bioflavonoids make Vitamin C more effective and improve quality of body tissues.

1⅓ cups milk
Butter or margarine

1. Beat all ingredients with rotary beater until smooth. Pour batter by tablespoonfuls onto hot griddle. (Grease griddle if necessary.)

The Family Weekly Foodshelf

Introducing a New Feature for Cooks on the Run . . .

By Marilyn Hansen

Every cook sometimes gets caught in a bind: 20 minutes till dinner, no time to shop, and there's not a thing in the house! What to do? Family Weekly Foodshelf is a new feature designed to rescue harried housewives. Its recipes, tested for their quickness and simplicity, and using ingredients likely to be found in almost all home pantries, rely on the maxim that any cook can work wonders with things like a can of soup, a dash of spice, some ground meat and just a touch of ingenuity. Clip and save these recipes for those "emergency" days that are bound to come.

(Some of the "common ingredients" required for Foodshelf recipes: popular canned soups, instant soup mixes, hot-roll mix, biscuit mix, bread mix, piecrust mix, pudding mixes, frankfurters, hamburger, luncheon meats, canned tuna, canned salmon, common canned vegetables [such as corn, peas, stringbeans], canned fruits [such as peaches, pears, pineapple], common seasonings.)

DILLY BURGERS 'N' BEANS

In medium bowl combine 1 lb. ground chuck, ¼ cup finely chopped onion, ½ teaspoon salt and dash pepper, mix well. Shape into 4 oblong patties. In electric or regular skillet heat 2 tablespoons vegetable oil; brown burgers on both sides; pour off fat. Add 1 can (16 ozs.) pork and beans in tomato sauce, ¼ cup sliced dill pickles and 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish, stir to mix. Cover; cook over low heat 15-20 minutes until burgers are of desired doneness. Serve with green salad and corn bread.

Makes 4 servings

SUPER SUPPER SOUP

Take 2 cans (10¾-oz. size) cheese soup and 1 can (10½-oz. size) tomato soup. In 3 qt. saucepan, combine soups with 3 soup cans of water. Stir to blend. Heat to boiling. Name a margarine that gives you 36 extra pats in every pound. Miracle Brand Margarine from Kraft. It gives you two more sticks than you get in a pound of regular margarine. And every stick spreads smoother too, because it's whipped. The miracle pound. From Kraft!

If you had a pound of margarine that spread 36 extra slices of bread, what would you call it?

Miracle.

By Robert Mitchum: "Me, I Just Cook for Myself"

"We normally have one big party each year. It's the party, with about 200 people. Lots of wine to impress the wine snobs. And five-foot iced bowls filled with oysters, clams, etc. It's a pretty choosy party—and very well cast."

As told to Helen Dorsey

I've cooked about everything that can be cooked with rudimentary, fundamental equipment. I'm a journeyman cook. I make chili . . . mandarin duck . . . a great mole [a Mexican sauce, pronounced mo'lay].

I started cooking when I started stealing chickens. Chicken is "out" now, though. You might say I've had a lobotomy of the chicken. I'm basically a south-of-the-border cook, but I've made an Irish stew or two. I made it for the cast of "Ryan's Daughter." Had to do it to survive. They had Irish stew on the menu at the Skillage Hotel there. It was like nothing I'd ever seen. I don't know what the heck it was. I imagine every time they ran into an old mutton, they skinned it back, whacked it apart and threw it in a pot with lots of potatoes. It was awful! The meat would stretch out like an accordion.

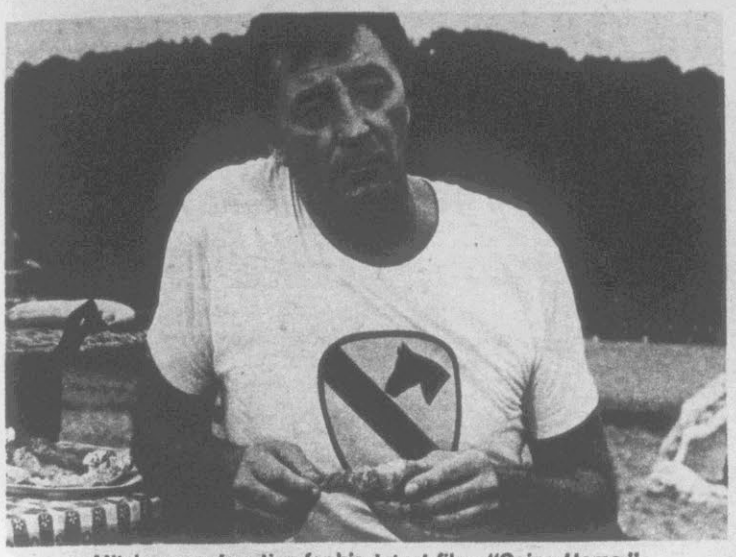

There's no way you can judge a person by his palate. Me, I just cook for myself. And if a lot of people turn up, I just have to cook some more.

If I make a spaghetti sauce, I cook it down all day. You know, good chunks of beef, vinegar and a little piece of bitter chocolate to take the edge off the tomatoes. Then some garlic and onions. Cook that down all day, but slowly. I don't like bay leaf too much, but I do season with chili powder, oregano, chervil and whole black peppercorns.

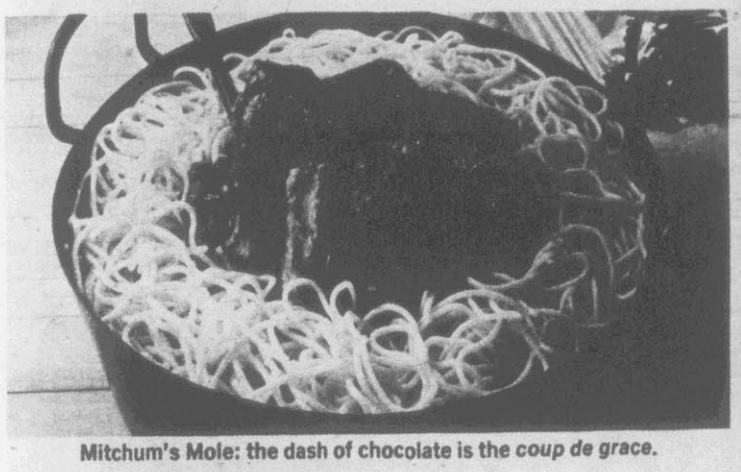

The pasta is cooked separately, of course. With pasta, you're building a castle. Some Mexican beer goes well with it.

At home we have a Chinese lady who cooks for us. But my wife cooks, too—and so do I. No formal meals . . . not if we can avoid them. We normally have one big party each year. It's the party, with about 200 people. My wife, Dottie, and Reva, my girl Friday, and the caterer work it all out. Lots of wine to impress the wine snobs. And five-foot iced bowls filled with oysters, clams, shrimp, crayfish. Sometimes we have suckling pigs, quail, roast beef. It's a pretty choosy party—and very well cast.

ROBERT MITCHUM'S BEEF MOLE

2 lbs. boneless beef chuck, cut in 1½-inch cubes
2 tbsps. salad oil
2 medium onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic, chopped
1¼ cups water
1¾ tsps. salt
2 to 3 tbsps. chili powder
1 bay leaf
½ tsp. ground coriander
Dash each: cinnamon, cayenne
1 tsp. vinegar
2 medium tomatoes, peeled and seeded
2 tbsps. toasted sesame seed
⅓ cup dark seedless raisins
½ cup toasted, salted peanuts, finely ground
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate
2 tbsps. salt
4-6 qts. boiling water
1 lb. spaghetti

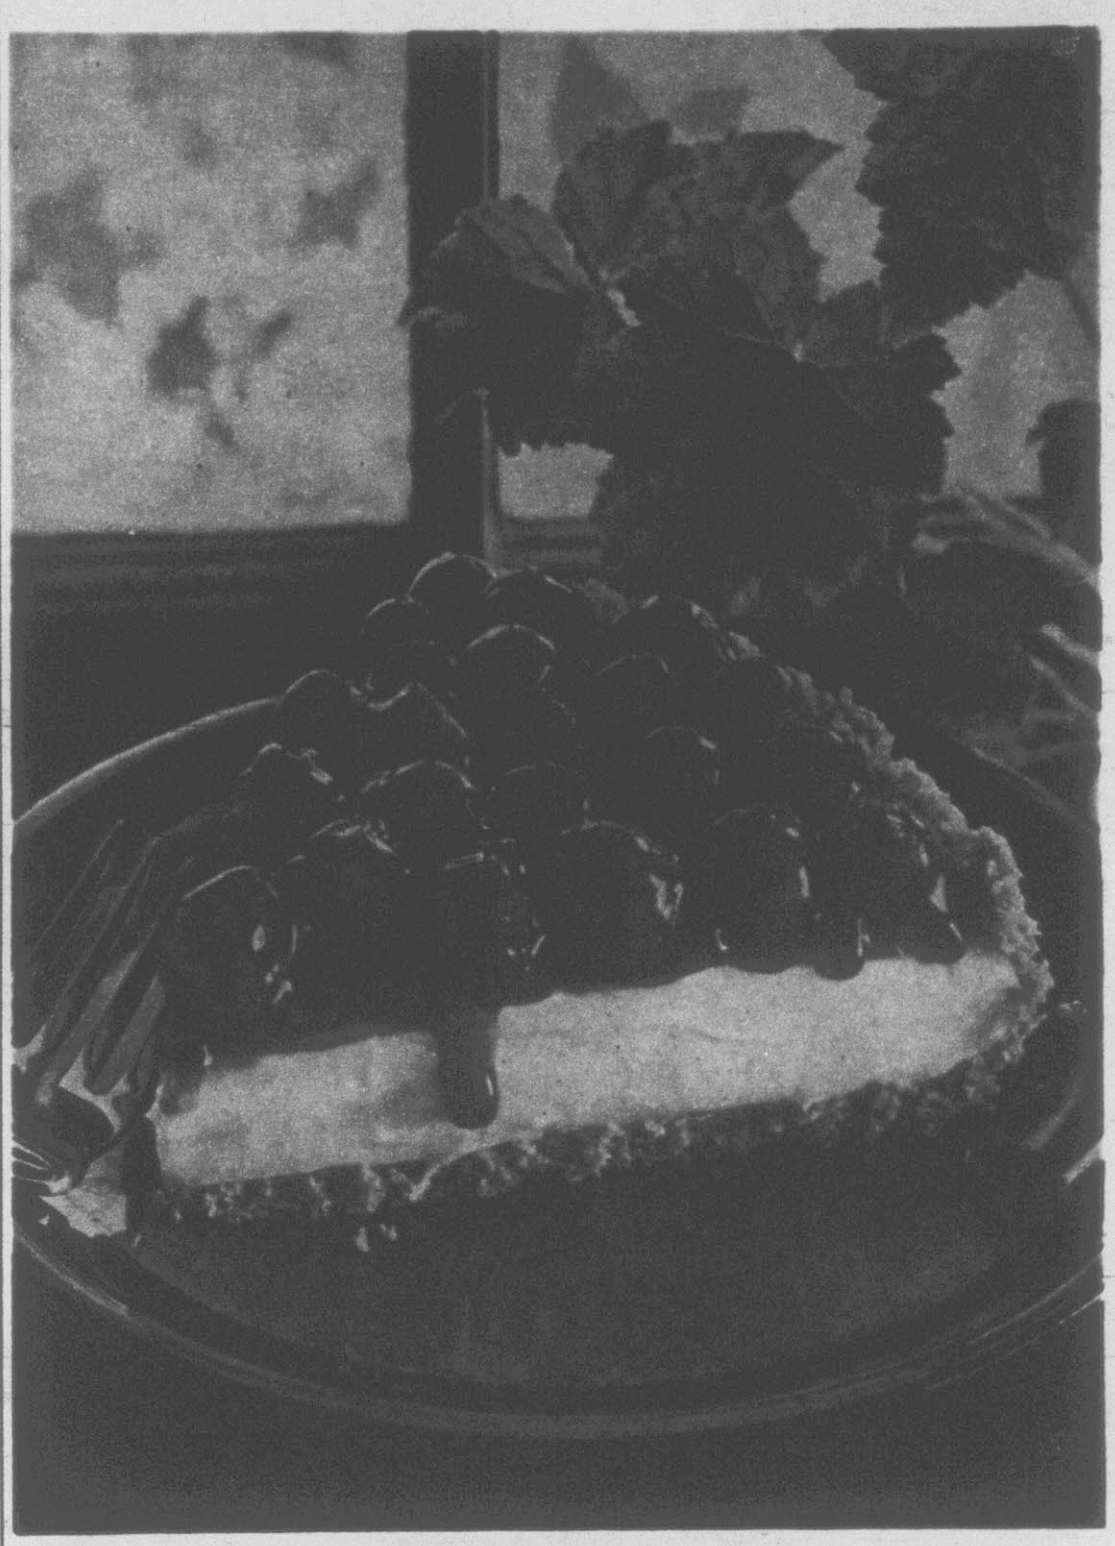

In Dutch oven brown meat in oil. Remove meat; sauté onion and garlic in drippings until tender. Add browned meat, water, salt, other seasonings and vinegar to sautéed onion mixture. Cover, simmer 45 mins. Blend tomatoes, sesame seed and raisins in electric blender until smooth; stir into meat mixture. Cook 15 mins. longer (or until meat is tender). Stir in ground peanuts and chocolate; cook over low heat 10 mins. stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, add 2 tbsps. salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Serve with beef mole, garnished with chopped parsley, if desired. Serves 6.

AFTERTHOUGHTS: If desired, ⅓ cup peanut butter can be substituted for toasted ground peanuts.

MITCHUM'S LAMB STEW

2 lbs. boned lamb shoulder, cut in 1½-inch cubes
Flour, salt, black pepper
3 tbsps. vegetable oil
3 cups boiling water
3 chicken bouillon cubes
1 bay leaf, crumbled
¼ tsp. ground allspice, optional
Small clove garlic, pressed
3 large potatoes, peeled, cut in large pieces
1½ doz. small pearl onions, peeled
1 lb. turnips, pared, cubed
1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen peas
½ cup half and half

Dredge lamb pieces in a combined mixture of ¼ cup flour, 1 tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. black pepper. In Dutch oven (or heavy kettle), brown lamb in vegetable oil. Drain off excess fat, if any. Add boiling water, bouillon cubes, bay leaf, allspice and pressed garlic. Bring to boiling, simmer covered for 1 hr. Add potatoes and onions; simmer covered 15 mins. Add turnips; simmer 15 mins. longer (or until meat and vegetables are tender). Add green peas, continue to cook for about 5 mins. (or until peas are tender). Stir in half and half, heat to serving temperature. Taste to correct seasonings. Serves 6.

Househints

In the kitchen and around the house: quick ideas for new things—or to help you do old things better.

1. When children or hobbyists spill airplane glue on upholstery or rugs, you have a problem best tackled by a professional—especially if glue has hardened. If you wish to try yourself, use nail polish remover, but first try it on an inconspicuous spot and work quickly to make sure color will not be affected.

2. Frustrated by heavily taped packages? Pierce tape at one end with beer-can opener and pull opener across the tape. (Wash opener afterward to prevent contamination of juices, etc.)

3. When using a double boiler for frozen foods, start with warm, not hot, water in the lower pan so thawing food won't stick.

4. Switch-about for a saucy treat: instead of using tartar sauce for fish, try on chicken; instead of pairing raisin sauce with ham, use on meat loaf. Do dream up your own combinations!

5. Cauliflower stays freshly white when you add a teaspoon of lemon juice to the cooking water—and never overcook.

6. Pork cookery has changed recently. Overcooking at 185° is not necessary for safety. Use your meat thermometer to indicate that it's safely done—and much more palatable—at 170°. Remember that some pork remains pink even when well-done because of reaction of oven (gas or electric) gases with the meat.

A Reader's Remembrance:

The Day I Met Ronald Reagan

"Since I was handling the arrangements, I thought I might as well 'arrange' this speaker right into our home. I invited him to dinner. When he accepted by return mail, I got weak in the knees. What on earth had I done?"

"Guess who's coming to dinner?" I challenged my teenage daughter one night in February of 1963.

"I don't know—Abraham Lincoln?"

"Well, almost," I said excitedly. "It's Ronald Reagan!"

She merely replied, "Oh, I wish it were Tommy Sands."

Well, if he was her idol, Ronald Reagan had been mine for years, and I was thrilled.

This was back in the days before he was even a candidate for Governor. My husband and I were heading a speaker's forum in Sacramento that year, and since I was handling the arrangements, I thought I might as well "arrange" this speaker right into our home. I reserved a room for Mr. Reagan in a nearby hotel. Then I invited him to dinner at our house before his speech. When he accepted by return mail, I got weak in the knees.

What on earth had I done? I began to despair because our home could never compare to the luxury Ronald Reagan had known as a famous star in Hollywood. I made a critical tour of the house. It didn't look so bad, but of course we'd need new carpeting, new draperies, new dishes, some sterling silver and new furniture. In six days? Finally I thought: he'll enjoy us more if we're just natural. We respect our home, so we shouldn't be embarrassed. After all, our distinguished guest came from humble beginnings, too, and probably hadn't forgotten them.

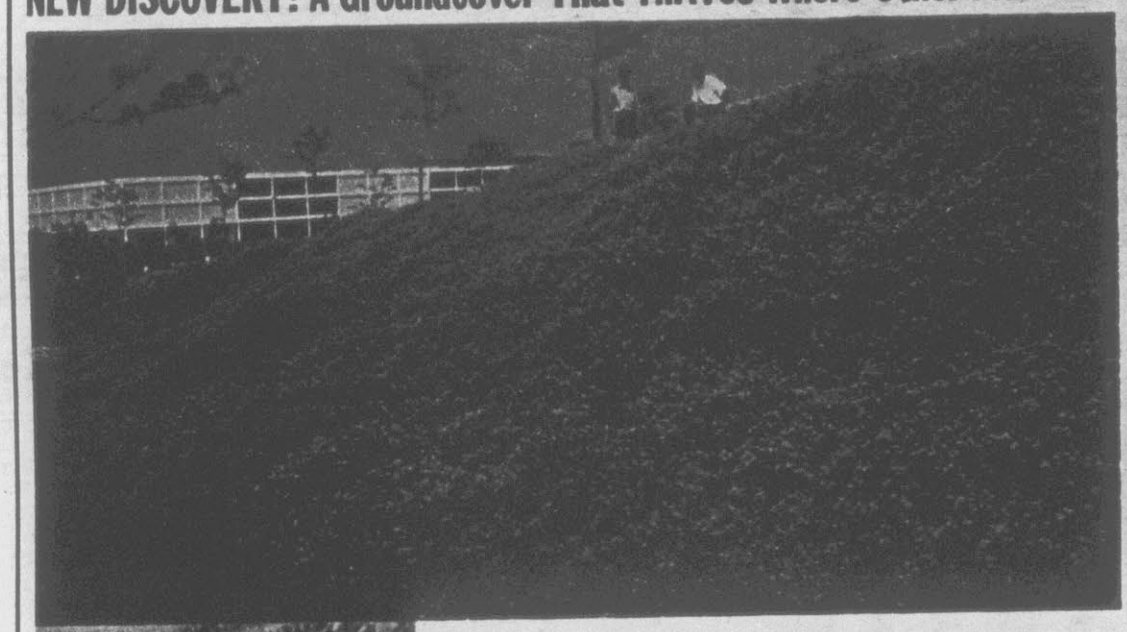

I wanted to be sure I wouldn't make any blunders, so I brushed up on my Ronald Reagan history by reading a biography of his life. What I learned made me decide that he was "home folks," so I chose a simple menu: lamb potpie (instead of filet mignon), fruit salad and steamed pudding.

While my husband went to pick up Mr. Reagan on The Evening, I had last-minute pangs about the faded carpet, and had just about decided to cancel the whole date when they walked in. I thought I was going to faint, but I remembered the advice of my speech teacher: Just keep breathing. It worked. Mr. Reagan took my hand in both of his and said, "How nice of you to invite me to your lovely home." From that moment on, the evening was a delight.

After dinner (and he ate two helpings of everything!) Mr. Reagan and I had about an hour together. My husband had gone ahead to make sure everything was in order for the speech, and Ronald Reagan talked with me about many national problems and his philosophy of government. He impressed me as an intelligent man, a sincere and dedicated human being.

The speech went off beautifully. Mr. Reagan seemed to have an instant rapport with the audience, an electricity about him that made the evening a success. I smiled to myself that I had had the chance to meet the private Ronald Reagan, a "down home" kind of person who talked to my children and me with sympathy and understanding – and who came back for seconds on my lamb potpie!—Jean Ayres Hartley, Sacramento, Calif.

NEW DISCOVERY! A Groundcover That Thrives Where Other Plants Despair!

Dramatic growth results on an eroding hill: picture taken 2 years after a cluster of only 3 crowns was started!

Strong-Growing Wide-Spreading

Penngift CORONILLA (VARIA)

TRANSFORMS PROBLEM AREAS INTO A SPRING-TO-FALL CARPET OF BLOOMS

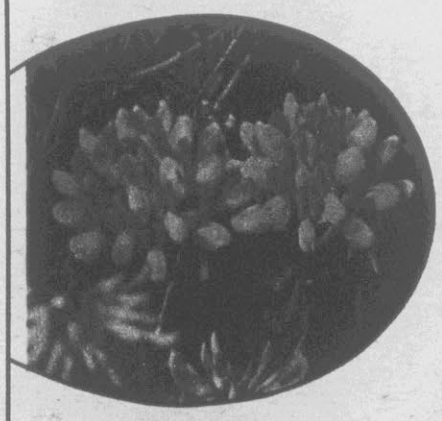

• CONTROLS EROSION • NEEDS NO MAINTENANCE • DEFIES DROUGHT
• CONDITIONS SOIL AS IT GROWS • BEAUTIFIES STEEPEST SLOPES

Once established, Coronilla, a recently discovered groundcover that spreads vigorously in poorest soil—beautifies banks, slopes, foundations, borders, edgings and driveways with a dense foot-deep blanket of solid blooms. Controls erosion even on steep gullies—turns almost vertical slopes into living walls of flowers. Defies drought, needs no maintenance. As a nitrogen-fixing legume, it conditions and improves any soil it grows in. Nothing else like it! Here is the outstanding groundcover discovery that turns hard-to-plant problem areas into sweeping vistas of floral beauty . . . and once the roots take hold and plants are established, provides faster coverage, better and more colorful results with less care or cost than any other groundcover we've ever seen or heard of!

This plant marvel shoots out dense mats of bright, green foliage which lies low to the ground and covers itself with brilliant pink flower masses from spring to fall. Talk of "picture beauty"! Equally important is its dense, fibrous, deep root system which grips sandy or rocky soil, even washed-out gullies so tenaciously that it binds and holds together poor subsoils or eroding cliffs under severe conditions where other plants can barely survive . . . much less form a thick, solid stand!

Ideal For New Homes & Hard-to-Mow Areas!

Rarely needs any soil preparation! Set 3 ft. apart for strong growth and dense coverage. Neat, low growing. Chokes weeds. Ideal for steep banks! Winter-hardy. Thrives from Texas to Canada!

America's No.1 Skinflint

Pictured above is Ralph Ginzburg, the New York magazine publisher; no one is more tight-fisted than he. Mr. Ginzburg has made a career of perfecting and implementing ingenious methods of making and holding on to money. Now he has even launched a publication devoted to that subject. Its name is Moneysworth.

Moneysworth is more than just a manual of Ralph Ginzburg's personal financial ploys. It is a jolly, brash, and–surprisingly–authoritative Fagin School in the art and science of shrewd money management. It covers not only personal finance, but consumer affairs (including product ratings).

Perhaps the best way to describe Moneysworth for you is to list the kinds of articles it prints:

QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Why We Sometimes Worry Over Nothing

True or False: If a person feels worried, the last thing you should do is use humor to snap him out of it—he needs sympathy (see number 5).

Everybody worries some of the time, and some people worry all of the time. This quiz takes a hard look at worry and what makes it tick, and provides some practical tips on how to cope with the worry habit.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Most worriers wouldn't worry if they didn't have something to worry about.
2. Worry makes you a better judge of human nature, because you're more alert and watchful.
3. Americans are the world's greatest worriers.
4. Women worry more than men do.
5. If a person feels worried, the last thing you should do is use humor to snap him out of it—he needs sympathy.
6. Worry makes you unlucky.

ANSWERS

1. False. The inveterate worrier doesn't really worry about the things he worries about. They are just convenient outlets that provide expression for his constant inner anxiety. If you could take away all his worries, resolve all his problems, he'd feel lost and vaguely uncomfortable without them. And he'd lose no time in finding a new assortment of concerns to worry about.

2. False. Tests on over one hundred men and women at the University of Munich have demonstrated that a worried or anxious state of mind makes it difficult or impossible for a person to see others as they really are, to have real insight into their characters or personalities. Worry was found to rob a person of empathy—the ability to put oneself in someone else's place, to identify with another individual. It follows that when you're worried or anxious, you're far more likely to be taken in by some plausible-sounding stranger.

3. False. The Economic and Social Research Institute recently made a psychological in-depth study of the worry-anxiety levels among the populations of leading countries. The findings: the nations with the highest anxiety levels —whose constituents were most prone to worry—were found to be Japan, Germany, Austria and Italy. Those with the lowest anxiety levels were the United States, New Zealand, England and Ireland.

4. True. Psychological studies of hundreds of men and women at the University of California showed that the women averaged significantly higher scores on worry-anxiety tests than men did. Evidence indicates that even when things are running smoothly, many women will worry about not having anything to worry about. ("Things are just going too well, too perfectly—something is bound to happen to spoil it all," etc.) Research has also shown that the more "feminine" a woman is, the more she worries, and the more "masculine" a man is, the less he worries.

5. False. Psychological studies at Northwestern University have shown humor to be most effective in snapping a person out of a worrisome mood. A bit of lighthearted kidding or a joke or two that really tickles his risibilities can work wonders when it comes to changing a man's "mental set."

6. True. Worry handicaps you in the most strategic life areas. It cuts down the odds of success in any venture because it saps both self-confidence and nervous energy, generates a defeatist outlook and a pessimistic fear of failure. Studies show worry is a direct cause of accident proneness. Lucky people seldom worry, while chronic worriers seldom have much luck! □

The most natural way to relieve constipation.

We created Serutan like a fine old recipe with natural ingredients to help you overcome constipation the most natural way.

We blend a rare, moisture-holding plant with ingredients from corn, oats, and defatted wheat germ. Not a harsh chemical or drug in it, so it won't cause irritation or griping.

Serutan forms a soft gel that moistens food wastes and produces bulk to stimulate your sluggish colon. Very different from magnesia or harsh chemicals.

Taken daily, Serutan will get you regular, and keep you regular—even if you've had a problem for years. Fruit flavored, regular, or toasted granules.

Serutan.

We've been talking about nature for a long, long time.

What Do Many Doctors Use When They Suffer Pain Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues?

This Exclusive Formula Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief In Many Cases from such Pain. Also Helps Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due to Infection.

News about a most effective medication comes from a recent survey of doctors. Asked what they, themselves, use to relieve such painful symptoms, many of the doctors reporting, named one particular medication they either use themselves or in their office practice.

This medication gives prompt relief for hours in many cases from pain and itching of hemorrhoidal tissues. And it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues caused by infection. Tests by doctors showed this to be true.

The medication used was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Just see if doctor tested Preparation H doesn't help you. There's no other formula like it. Ointment or suppositories.

TV's Sandy Duncan Finds Life Anew After Trial by Surgery

STAR PROFILE/By Peer J. Oppenheimer

I was really looking forward to meeting Sandy Duncan, TV's "Funny Face," that cool November morning. Almost overnight she had become the golden girl of show business—a combination of Mary Tyler Moore, Audrey Hepburn, Doris Day and Lucille Ball rolled into one delightful 103-pound package from Tyler, Texas.

Naturally I was quite unprepared for a phone call that canceled our luncheon date. "Sandy has just been taken to the hospital," I was told by a network representative.

"Fatigue again?" I asked.

"Off the record, no. She's going into surgery at UCLA Medical Center. They've discovered a tumor behind her left eye." There was a moment's hesitation. "It could be malignant."

My shock mirrored that of her family, her friends, fans, coworkers and studio heads alike. Network officials discussed emergency plans in case Sandy didn't pull through. Her mother flew in from Tyler and slept on a hospital cot in her room to be near her. Her father called daily. Her agent rushed from New York to pace the hospital corridor. For one week after the operation it was touch and go.

A month later I sat across the table from a laughing, chatting, vivacious Sandy. It was almost impossible to tell that just a few weeks before she had faced the possibility of total blindness and even death. Almost—but not quite. For the ordeal she'd endured had changed her. "An experience like that gives you a different perspective about what is important and what isn't," she explained. "Like I react differently to people now. I've become more intolerant of phoniness. I find I have a compulsion to tell the truth. For instance, yesterday I had a call from a fellow who wanted to take me out. Before, I might either have gone with him so as not to hurt his feelings or might have given some silly excuse like saying I had to work the next day. Now I simply told him I didn't feel like going—period. He accepted it and wasn't offended. I have learned that most people prefer honesty."

Sandy's nightmare began last August, just at that point in her career when it seemed that nothing could go wrong. "At first there were these headaches," Sandy vividly recalled. "Then I noticed I couldn't see things too clearly. It felt like I had Vaseline over my eyes. I went to the doctor and he diagnosed it as optic neuritis. I thought rest might help the condition, but it didn't. It got so that I couldn't do anything! My sinuses didn't work right. Frankly, I was a mess!" Measures were taken to relieve the pressure, but the condition became progressively worse. Finally, three weeks later, she lost her sight completely.

A month after the operation, I sat across the table from a laughing, chatting, vivacious Sandy. It was almost impossible to tell that just a few short weeks before she had faced possible blindness and even death. Almost—but not quite. For the ordeal she'd endured had changed her....

A brush with death, says Sandy, "gives you a different perspective about what is important and what isn't."

"It turned out to be a tumor behind my eye, hemmed in on two sides by bones," Sandy explained. "There was only one time that the fear really got through me—the night before the operation. I was sure I would never wake up from it! Always before I'd had this ability to keep myself buoyed up. I kept telling myself that what I was going through was a lot harder on the people who loved me than on me. But that one night was really bad."

Fortunately, the tumor was benign, and while it will be some time before Sandy can go back to work (her vision is still weak, with images swimming in front of her eyes, and her left eye still has a tendency to turn outward), four weeks after the operation she considered herself well enough to pack for a safari to Kenya. "I've always wanted to see Africa," she laughed, seemingly having forgotten all the hardships of the weeks that had passed. "Besides, the trip is in behalf of the San Diego Zoo, and that's a good cause, don't you think?"

Aside from this recent setback, Sandy has faced one other upheaval in her life—the failure of her three-year marriage to actor-musician-singer Bruce Scott, whom she met when they were cast as twins in the 1968 musical "Your Own Thing." Indeed, they looked so much alike, "we got lots of funny looks after we were married and went into hotels together." No doubt Sandy's career played a part in the split.

She now lives in a two bedroom rented house in the Hollywood Hills with her girl friend Lynn, who came out from Texas to be with her. But Sandy, who is very close to her parents and goes home at least four times a year, still considers Tyler, Texas, her real home. That's where her father, Mancil Duncan, owns a gas station. His business has picked up considerably with Sandy's success (especially since he sells her autographs on the side!).

It will be interesting to watch Sandy's progress. "I feel more like a television than a movie person," she remarked candidly. "I appeal to Middle America, maybe because that's my own identity. Little old grandmas who watch TV write me. But I don't think the hip kids who go to movies relate to me. Which I don't mind. I think a lot of hip kids are phony. They say it doesn't matter how you dress or wear your hair, but if someone has short hair and wears a suit, they immediately ridicule him."

When Sandy first left home, her mother urged, "Just try not to change too much." When I asked Sandy if she'd adhered to her mother's plea, she insisted, "Of course I've changed. How could you be in this business and not be affected by it? But I think what she meant was don't change for the worse." □

What in the World!

FLORENCE HENDERSON, VALENTINE GIRL
Her husband is full of surprises

Florence Henderson, the mother of "The Brady Bunch" (ABC-TV), will be 38 Monday, Valentine's Day. Florence tells the story of how, a few years back, she was playing in "The Sound of Music" in Chicago, while her husband, Ira, stayed at home in New York with the four children. Valentine's Day arrived. But Ira, who had planned to fly into Chicago for the double occasion, phoned to say he was grounded by a blizzard. "I was down in the dumps, so some friends took me to a private club for a special party. The waiter asked for my drink order. 'Dubonnet on the rocks with a twist,' I said brightly. My friends looked at me kind of strangely. What's wrong with that drink? I wondered. When the waiter came back with the drink, my friends were still acting funny. I finally glanced up to see that the waiter was Ira! He had just combed his hair differently, and I hadn't really looked."

What if, for $20 to $40 a month, you could get unlimited hospital and dental care, plus unlimited house calls from the family doctor! Dr. Samuel Shukert, a kind of Ralph Nader, M.D., is waging a one-man war against America's health-insurance establishment by putting such a plan into effect for his patients in Denver, Colo. His patients, of course, are ecstatic. Doctor Shukert's income is derived solely from insurance payments, none from "doctor bills." But the Colorado Insurance Commission has hauled him into court, charging him with selling insurance without a license. Undaunted, Shukert, 32, intends to expand his plan. "Health coverage in this country is a farce," he says. "I'm going to show that through faith, hard work and cooperation, people can cut health costs in half." "Extremely difficult," is the way a Blue Cross-Blue Shield spokesman described him. "Extremely difficult, but not dishonest."

NOVELIST HAROLD ROBBINS
75 million books sold

Harold Robbins, the world's richest writer, spent three and a half months locked up in a hotel suite and seeing practically no one while writing his new book, "The Betsy." He writes only one draft, never rewrites, never has a writing block, never uses a secretary even though he's a two-fingered typist. "The only thing that slows me down is physical fatigue," he says. What about those wild parties they say he throws? "They're fun parties, not wild—like bringing over a nude show from Paris for a big celebration. And no parties at all when I'm working." How does he feel about the fact that he and Arthur Hailey both have brought out big novels on the same subject (the automotive industry) at the same time? "Well, I don't know, but I've been talking about doing mine for the last nine years." How did he research the book? "I paid a team of four women and three men a thousand a week to go to Detroit for a couple of weeks and ask everyone everything."

TOOTH AND CONSEQUENCES

BY RICHARD ARMOUR

An isolated tribe in the Philippines, living in Stone Age culture, has no tooth decay.
—News Item

They keep no brush and toothpaste
handy,
And yet their teeth are fine and dandy.
They have, it's said, no dental floss,
And yet enamel shows no loss.
They don't massage their gums, it's clear,
Or see their dentist twice a year.

Their simple life, though, never varies,
And that is why they have no caries;
A life of gnawing roots and stuff
Like seeds and bones and bark that's tough . . .
No pop to drink, no sweets to eat,
Undone (and uninspected) meat.

You'd have no cavities? You can,
If you, too, live like Stone Age man.

Raking the fallen autumn leaves was a source of real joy to my friend's young son. He had raked all the leaves in his own yard and was disappointed that there were no more. His mother suggested he ask their next door neighbor if he would like to have his leaves raked.

The boy hurried over. When he asked permission to rake the leaves, the neighbor looked thoughtfully at him, then at the leaves scattered about the yard.

"That looks like a pretty big job," the man said. "I figure it'd be worth at least 75 cents."

Tears welled up in the boy's eyes. "I'm sorry, sir," he said, "but I only have 55 cents."

—Mrs. R. E. Wood, Spring Lake, Mich.

The measure of a man's real character is what he would do if he knew he would never be found out.
—Thomas LaMance

Two middleweights were fighting it out, and then suddenly there was a lull in the proceedings.

One of the men was very heavily tattooed. The other fighter seemed to slacken his pace.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER.

Our Story: BAD NEWS TRAVELS FAST AND SOON THE GREAT WALLS OF DONDARIS ARE THRONGED WITH ANXIOUS CITIZENS GAZING OUT ACROSS THE FIELDS WHERE THEIR BATTERED OUTPOST ARMY IS STRAGGLING HOMEWARD.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE HISTORY OF DONDARIS, DEFEATED SOLDIERS ENTER THE GREAT BRONZE GATES WHEREON ARE CARVED SYMBOLS OF FORMER VICTORIES.

KING GIAN ORDERS THE SURVIVORS TO REPORT TO HIM, AND THEIR STORY IS FRIGHTENING.

"OUR BRIGADE KEPT ORDER AND COLLECTED THE TRIBUTE IN CONQUERED POLDIS. THE PEOPLE SPREAD A GREAT BANQUET FOR US TO COMMEMORATE THE YEARS OF PEACE WE MAINTAINED. MUCH WINE WAS SERVED, THEN THEY SUDDENLY DREW SWORDS AND FELL UPON US!"

THEN THE KING SENDS MESSENGERS TO THE TWO REGIMENTS THAT OCCUPY DORAIN AND FAR HAPLION TO WARN THEM THAT REVOLT IS RAMPANT AND TO BE PREPARED.

THE KING IGNORES HIS INCOMPETENT GENERALS AND SETS THE ARMORERS TO WORK SALVAGING THE WAR WEAPONS THAT HAVE LAIN RUSTING FOR A DECADE. NIGHT AND DAY THE FORGES ROAR.

THERE IS PANIC AMONG THE NOBLES. THEY KNOW THE WEAKNESS OF DONDARIS AND ARE READY TO MAKE A DEAL WITH AN ENEMY FOR THEIR OWN SAFETY. AND THEIR KING IS NOT THE PUPPET THEY HAD SUPPOSED.

HOPE COMES TO AN ENSLAVED PEOPLE WHEN THERE ARISES A GREAT LEADER TO WELD TOGETHER THE LANDS OF POLDIS, DORAIN AND FAR HAPLION. THEN THEY TURN FIERCE EYES TOWARD DONDARIS AND REMEMBER ANCIENT WAR SONGS.
