License Law Deadline

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon, indicating that today is the deadline for displaying city and state 1972 vehicle registration plates and city dog licenses, said local police will begin enforcing the laws requiring the new tags to be displayed at midnight tonight.

According to Cannon, persons operating vehicles without 1972 registration plates after midnight will be subject to arrest. He noted that persons driving vehicles garaged within the Greenville City limits must display both 1972 state and city vehicle registrations in order to comply with the law.

He noted too, that owners of dogs for which a 1972 license have not been purchased are subject to prosecution.

Chief Cannon emphasized that the mere purchase of new registration plates is not sufficient under the law. He emphasized that the license plates must be displayed on the vehicle in order to prevent a violation of the law.

Last-Minute Rush

DEADLINE NEARING — Deadline for buying the new license plate for 1972 is midnight tonight and for some it seems to be a last minute task as lines lengthen this morning at the local license bureau. Next year license tags will display a three letter and number digit combination, whereby this year they have two letters and four numbers. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Big Donation By Klan

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union recently received its biggest donation ever. It was a check for $1,200 and it came from the Ku Klux Klan.

Dan Pollitt, a University of North Carolina law professor and state president of the ACLU, explained Monday that the Klan made the donation recently after the ACLU successfully represented a klan-man in a civil right case.

The man had been fired from a city job at Charlotte after his klan affiliation became known. The ACLU provided counsel and won the case when a federal court ordered the klanman reinstated in his job.

"The suit was filed. We won it. They (klanmen) were grateful," said Pollitt in explaining the contribution.

"We rarely get more than $50," he added.

Execute Alleged Spy

PARIS (AP) — The Romanians have shot one of their top generals as a spy for the Soviets, an authoritative diplomatic source reported Monday.

The diplomat said Gen. Ion Serb, former chief of the Bucharest military garrison, was executed last month for passing information on Romanian defense deployments and rocket operations to a Soviet military attache.

It was the first time in the memory of diplomats that a member of the Soviet bloc had taken such stringent action to stop the flow of military information to the Soviet government.

The case illustrates Romania's strained relations with the Soviet government since its refusal to participate in the 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia. Since then, the Romanians have shown great distrust of the Soviet Union, which shares a 1,000-mile frontier.

B52s Are Beefed Up For Air Blows

SAIGON, (AP) — B52 bombers rushed from the United States to Guam have joined the massive air campaign in Indochina, and tonight the air armada resumed operations in South Vietnam after a 24-hour cease-fire for Tet.

Informed sources said the B52s ordered across the Pacific to meet the threat of a big Communist offensive flew their first missions from Guam Monday. The U.S. Command refused to confirm or deny this, saying only that the air operations "could include B52s from Guam."

The U.S. Command announced that 251 strikes were flown against targets in South Vietnam in the 12 hours before the Tet cease-fire began Monday night, plus scores more in Laos and Cambodia. The strikes inside Vietnam included 242 by fighter-bombers and nine by B52s.

Most of the attacks were on enemy staging areas and infiltration routes from the western end of the demilitarized zone south along the Laotian border through the A Shau valley.

During the truce, American air operations shifted to Laos and Cambodia because the cease-fire applied only to Vietnam. Informants said after the pilots were switched back to Vietnam tonight, they resumed operations on the same intensive scale as on Monday.

A communique said the raids from dawn to dusk Monday triggered 100 to 125 secondary explosions, indicating hits on ammunition stores, and destroyed 20 bunkers.

U.S. pilots have been concentrating on South Vietnam's central highlands where a big enemy offensive is expected, either during the Tet festival of the lunar new year or during President Nixon's visit to Communist China next week. But the U.S. communique said the bunkers were wiped out within 23 miles of Saigon.

The U.S. Command also announced the phaseout of another 4,500 American troops from Vietnam, the biggest single cut in months.

Laird Points To Buildup Growth Of Soviet Nuclear Power Is Topping Forecasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today Soviet nuclear power is growing faster than he had forecast. He said a U.S. speedup in submarine-missile development signals America's will to keep a strong retaliatory punch.

Other defense officials said the recent decision to push the undersea long-range missile system (ULMS) also indicates to Russia it should not stall on agreeing to limit nuclear weapons, including submarine-launched missiles.

An initial U.S.-Soviet nuclear-arms-limitation agreement is expected by May, but the Russians are reported opposed to including submarine-launched weapons until they overtake an American lead in this department.

"The Soviet buildup is showing even greater momentum than I projected in last year's defense report," Laird told Congress today in his annual review.

"It would be diplomatically and politically unacceptable for the United States to allow the Soviets to achieve a large numerical superiority in both land-based and sea-based strategic missiles."

Laird reported that by mid-year the Russians will have 1-550 land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) in firing position compared with 1,054 for the United States. The Soviet navy will have 580 submarine-mounted missiles compared with 656 aboard U.S. subs, with the gap closing swiftly.

The U.S. bomber force will continue its downward slide from 565 planes to 531 while the Soviet heavy-bomber fleet remains at about 140. But a fast new Russian bomber has been tested and could be a threat in a few years, Laird said.

Crisis Talks For Britain

LONDON (AP) — Britain's top union leader cut short an American trip and flew home today for emergency talks with Prime Minister Edward Heath as the coal strike threatened the nation with a nearly total power blackout by the end of the month.

But Victor Feather, leader of the 9-million-member Trades Union Congress, warned before meeting Heath that averting a national economic disaster is all but impossible.

"We have got a situation in this country where there has to be a catastrophe before there are consultations," Feather told newsmen.

Thousands of miners planned a march on Parliament today to protest the government's handling of the dispute. They claim government refusal to consider their pay claim seriously for nearly five weeks brought on the national emergency.

Up to 20 million jobs were at stake in the worst industrial crisis since the general strike 46 years ago.

Already, 800,000 workers have been laid off as a result of massive power cuts forced by the national coal miners' strike, now in its sixth week.

Rountree To Run For Re-Election

H. Horton Rountree, representing Pitt County in the North Carolina House of Representatives for three terms, announced today that he will seek re-election to the House, subject to the May 6 Democratic Primary.

Rountree will run in the newly formed Eighth District, comprised of Greene and Pitt Counties.

During the 1971 General Assembly, Rountree served as chairman of the Congressional Redistricting Committee (which added Greene County to the First Congressional District), and as vice-chairman of the Higher Education Committee.

He introduced legislation creating the medical school at East Carolina University, the Eastern Regional Vocational Rehabilitation Center to be located in Pitt County, and providing financial assistance to students at Duke and Bowman Gray schools of medicine.

The Pitt legislator has served on interim committees studying rural health needs, ABC laws, and the Governor's Task Force on Law and Order and has been a member of the State Courts Commission since 1967, implementing the reform of the state's court system.

In addition to his legislative experience, Rountree has served as town commissioner in his native Farmville, as Pitt county

Approve Seeking Bids On Shore Drive Parcels

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Redevelopment Commissioners Monday night authorized the staff real estate officer to advertise for bids two parcels located in the west end of the Shore Drive Project.

Kirby Boyd explained that disposal parcel 2, located on the northwest corner of Green and First Streets and bounded on the north by the Tar River, and disposal parcel 5, located on the southwest corner of Pitt and First Streets, had not been advertised since April of 1971. Development proposals were received on both pieces of property, it was pointed out, but contracts calling for parcel development had expired. The real estate officer said that he hoped to have the parcels advertised in the newspaper sometime this week.

Commissioners instructed Boyd to contact local real estate agencies for possible help in selling the two parcels.

Approval of the use of Contract 6213, a HUD contract executed with all developers for the sale of land for redevelopment by a public body, was given by board members last night.

Boyd reported that no changes have occurred in the Newtown Project area since the last meeting and four parcels still remain to be acquired by the commission.

Central Business District project manager, Lawrence D. Holt reported that a Project Advisory Committee meeting was held Jan. 25 and members heard a presentation by Miss Jeanie Whaley, an East Carolina University graduate student concerning planning for the handicapped in the construction of the mall in the CBD project. Holt said that recommendations for including provisions for the handicapped, especially at intersections, were offered.

Holt reported that the treatment of alleys in the project was also discussed by committee members who viewed slides of the affected areas in CBD.

The project manager said that a special meeting with property owners in block 13, bounded by Washington, Evans, Third, and Fourth Streets, to discuss landscaping and rehabilitation has been set for Feb. 29.

Holt said that one parcel had been acquired in CBD since the last meeting and options had been obtained on two others.

Commission executive director, Col. A. E. Dubber said that a lease had been executed for the use of 319 S. Evans Street as a CBD site office for the Redevelopment Commission. Dubber pointed out that the lease on the present office at 307 Evans expires early in April. He said it is hoped that the office can be occupied by the downtown commission staff by the first of March.

Dubber said that the city clerk had been instructed by the City Council to publish notices concerning the abandoning of several streets in Newtown.

The director reported that a Carolinas Council meeting is scheduled for April 12-15 in Asheville. Commissioners authorized the attendance of two staff members and two board members at the session.

'Shocking Evaluation' Given Mental Hospitals

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Mental Health Association says it will release before March 1 the "shocking" results of an evaluation of four state mental hospitals.

John C. Higgins Jr. of Charlotte, association president, and executive director Victor Sydnor said Monday the evaluation was made by an association blue-ribbon committee headed by Mrs. Leif Valand of Raleigh.

Higgins and Sydnor said in a joint statement state mental hospitals "do not offer adequate treatment for their patients." They demanded that the "abuse of patients be stopped" and that the North Carolina Department of Mental Health develop adequate treatment.

The two officials expressed "shock and dismay" over a progress report formulated by the study committee over the weekend.

They said the association "must make clear that it abhors the reports of patient abuses. While these are most serious allegations, we feel a more serious problem is the lack of treatment within the state mental hospitals. This is the greatest abuse because it affects most of the patients within the hospital system."

The two officials added, "The most inhumane thing you can do to a mentally sick person is to commit this individual to an institution that cannot offer adequate treatment for the person's problem."

Sydnor said the evaluation was made at Broughton Hospital at Morgan, John Umstead Hospital at Butner, Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh and Cherry Hospital at Goldsboro.

TV Turning Back To Own Personalities

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After a disastrous encounter with bigname movie stars, television is turning back to its own hometown personalities for next season.

Among the series candidates there's hardly a film name that has topped a marquee in recent years.

But the names and faces will all be as familiar as last night's reruns. Virtually every star signed for a potential series has had his own series in the past. The season now ending was the year the movie stars fell on television—and burned out like meteors when the ratings came in.

Henry Fonda, Shirley MacLaine and Anthony Quinn were cancelled at midseason. James Garner in "Nichols" and Tony Curtis in "The Persuaders" are not likely to survive, and the Jimmy Stewart show is a question mark. Only Glenn Ford in "Cade's County" and Rock Hudson in the "McMillan and Wife" segment of "Mystery Movie" seem a sure bet for renewal.

James E. Duffy, president of the ABC Television Network, said, "If the story is there, if the concept is there, and if you have a major personality, you've got a lot going for you. But the day of signing a star first and then building a concept around him is gone."

Duffy said he believed that for next season all the networks deliberately went after stars identified with television.

Richard Boone, who was in "Medic," then "Have Gun, Will Travel," and headed his own repertory anthology series, is in "Heck." He plays a Western detective who uses scientific methods.

Fess Parker, television's Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone, is back in a movie pilot as "Elisha Cooper," a Northern California timber boss.

Leif Erickson, formerly of "High Chaparral," is in a show about a medical disaster team, "Med-Ex." (Continued on page 10)

Macrame Solves Knotty Problem

Macrame decorations can be expensive to buy, but they can be made at home easily and inexpensively. Yarns for macrame should be strong enough to withstand the abrasions that knotting produces. There are numerous ones on the market.

Shown here are a few examples of objects made by knotting. All are done in satin cord of Enka rayon. From left to right, first is a blue handbag with 12 inches of fringe and a bib necklace sparked with delicate beads. Next is a steel gray vest, certain to spark any wardrobe. A medley of colors and textures in bright orange and white go into the next necklace. Last is another necklace that can also be worn as a belt, and for the hair, a purple flower with green leaves can also double as a choker.

Prepare Near-Eastern Delight Dish During The Lent Season

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—A pre-Lenten forecast of continued high meat prices, even on normally cheaper cuts such as pot roast, is enough to send budget-conscious cooks back to the old ground rules. They called for many meatless meals during the pre-Easter fast that starts this year on Feb. 16, Ash Wednesday.

Main dishes and other courses built around fish, high protein vegetables, whole grains and whole grain flour also fit in with the current trend toward natural foods.

Here are a few suggestions for menus and a couple of main dish recipes.

For an appetizer or salad, serve Texas Caviar. That was the late Clementine Paddock's name for cooked black-eyed peas marinated overnight or longer in oil and vinegar dressing containing finely chopped fresh onion or scallions.

Near-Eastern Delight

For a dish with Near Eastern flavor, substitute canned, drained chick peas (Ceci in Italian, Garbanzos in Spanish) for the black-eyed peas, and add chopped fresh parsley to the marinade. Or use cooked, drained lentils or any other legumes you fancy such as red or white kidney beans, black beans, limas or pintos.

For a main dish, try tuna in foil. Divide contents of two (10-ounce) packages of frozen vegetables, such as broccoli, whole string beans or—budget permitting—asparagus, among four squares of aluminum foil. Break tuna from 2 (6½-7-ounce) cans into chunks and place ¼ on each vegetable serving. Top each with juice from ¼ lemon, 2 tablespoons of tartar sauce, and instant minced or chopped fresh onion to taste. Fold edges of foil to seal. Bake about 30 minutes in preheated 375-degree oven. If desired, layer ingredients instead in a shallow casserole, cover and cook until vegetables are done. Makes 4 servings.

Tuna also makes a good filling for buckwheat pancakes or crepes. For the filling, drain 1 (3 to 4-ounce) can of sliced mushrooms and add enough milk to the mushroom liquid to measure 2 cups. Set aside. Drain 2 tablespoons of vegetable oil from canned tuna (using two 6½-7-ounce cans) into a saucepan. Heat oil, blend in 4 tablespoons of flour and ½ teaspoon of salt.

Buckwheat Layers

Add reserved liquids and bring to boil. Add small amount of hot mixture to either 2 beaten egg yolks or 1 whole egg, stirring constantly.

Return egg mixture to saucepan and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly. Add mushrooms, tuna broken into chunks, 1 canned, drained pimiento, diced, and 2 tablespoons of coarsely chopped nuts. Heat to serving temperature.

Layer between each of 4 large buckwheat pancakes (made with ½ cup of batter each), and cut into wedges to serve. Or place a spoonful of filling in center of 12 thin 4-inch diameter buckwheat pancakes. Roll and place seam side down in a shallow baking dish. Top with any filling remaining or sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake 15 minutes in preheated 375-degree oven. Either makes 4 main dish servings.

Peanuts for Meat

Protein-rich peanuts substitute for meat in this loaf entree. Cook 1 chopped onion until transparent in 1 tablespoon of peanut oil. Add 2 cups of water, ½ teaspoon of salt and 1 cup of cracked wheat. Bring to boil, cover and cook over low heat 15 minutes, or until water is absorbed. Place 2 cups of cooked spinach, measured after draining, into blender container, along with 2 eggs and 1 cup of unsalted peanuts. Cover and blend at high speed until pureed and smooth. Turn into large bowl. Mix in wheat, ½ teaspoon of liquid hot red pepper sauce and 1½ teaspoons of salt. Turn into a 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan lined with oiled aluminum foil. Bake 55 minutes in preheated 350 degree oven. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes at room temperature before removing from pan. Serve with parsley mayonnaise, made by mixing ¼ cup of chopped fresh parsley into 1 cup of mayonnaise. Makes 6 servings.

Decorative Plants Can Be Grown Inside

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Many kinds of decorative plants, the U.S. Department of Agriculture points out, can now be grown under fluorescent lights at home in an indoor garden. Indoor gardens come in many shapes and sizes, each with its own decorative purpose. Some may brighten up an otherwise dull, dimly lit, corridor, while others may divide a room or light a wall.

The primary requirements for an indoor garden are a planter box, a good lighting system, properly selected plants, and care. The planter box can be made of pine, fir, or veneered plywood, which can be painted, stained, or oiled to suit your tastes.

Inside the planter is a watertight liner, best made from sheet metal painted with epoxy paint or asphalt to retard rust. Two layers of thick polyethylene stapled inside the planter make a good temporary liner. If the planter is mounted on casters, the entire unit may be moved easily. This facilitates handling of the plants, housecleaning, and the inevitable rearranging of furniture.

If your indoor garden receives no sunlight, high intensity fluorescent lamps provide enough light to grow a wide range of plants. If the garden is placed by a window and the lamps serve as supplementary light sources, standard fluorescent lamps suffice for some plants.

Place the planter box where the day temperature is about 75 degrees F., and night temperature is about 65 degrees F. Avoid locations near heating ducts, drafty doorways, or heavy traffic areas in the home. Otherwise, plants may be dried, chilled, or trampled to death.

For the novice, the following plants require the least amount of light, are relatively easy to care for, and are available year round at local stores handling house plants: Aglaonema, Aspidistra, Dieffenbachia, Dracaena, Syngonium, Pandanus vietchi, Philodendron oxycardium, pertusum, and Sansserveria.

Of all plant care watering is the most important. Too little water, plants dry out—too much and they drown or rot. By using a plastic funnel you can be sure your plant gets exactly the right amount of water. Insert the funnel's neck into the soil in the pot, then fill the funnel with water. When it empties fill it again. When water no longer drains from the funnel, stick your finger down the neck of the funnel so the water won't run out, then remove the funnel. Only the amount of water which the soil can hold leaves the funnel—never too much. Plants watered this way seldom need more water for several weeks.

Treat your plants with water-soluble fertilizer (never use dry fertilizer) every two to four weeks at the dosage recommended on the label. Fertilize only when the plant is actively growing—that is, when it is forming new leaves which are always small, and very pale green in color. About once a week turn each of the pots in the planter to encourage even development of the plant.

Executives React To Snoopy Secretary

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Re "pornographic" mail arriving at the office, and the behavior of secretaries:

I am an executive who occasionally receives erotic mail. I enjoy it and find no reason to make excuses to anyone, especially to paid employees. When I send for it, I request that all such material be marked "personal," and as such it is placed on my desk, unopened.

No secretary has the right to take it upon herself to destroy any of her employer's mail. A secretary is a secretary, not a censor. Her boss' tastes are none of her business.

Were I to discover that my secretary had destroyed any of my mail, I would fire her on the spot. And if the mail contained paid-for material, I would dock her the cost of what she had destroyed. Moreover, I would give her the most damning reference of all, namely that she was fired for dishonesty and theft, which would be absolutely true.

CALIFORNIA EXEC.

DEAR ABBY: The boss' porno mail should pose no problem to an adult woman doing what she's paid to do.

Today when all women walk a little prouder, it seems a bit hysterical for grown women in the business world to squeal when they see unfamiliar sexual material and stumble off as if their virginal eyeballs were seared. And then to take the unprincipled and even illegal action of destroying it, is infuriating. If my help ever pulled anything like that, I'd really give them something to get hysterical about.

But most amazing is the fact that these gals don't simply put the stuff on his desk and say, "Do you want me to throw this away or not?" Most of it's in double envelopes anyway. The inner one says, "Sexually oriented material." I know. I receive it regularly for reasons that are nobody's business but my own.

MR. W. D. S.

DEAR ABBY: A message to those "censoring secretaries" who throw out all the boss' pornographic mail: You're in the wrong occupation, honey. Try egg candling. Your boss will be tickled pink if you can find all the rotten stuff.

D. C.

DEAR ABBY: I have the perfect solution for the secretary whose boss has sent for pornographic material in care of his office: I would send a sample of this filth to the boss' wife, his minister, and to a few of his most important business contacts who may not know that he is the type of person who appreciates this kind of garbage. Then I would quit my job!

ANTI-PORNO

DEAR ANTI: If that is your "solution," when you are being interviewed for a new job, be sure to tell your prospective employers why you quit. They have a right to know what kind of person YOU are.

DEAR ABBY: I asked my secretary what she would do if any pornographic material were ever sent to my office and she said, "I would check it out first, and if I felt you could take it, then I would give it to you."

A BOSS

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90000. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hyphenated Malaysians Try To Like Each Other

By ANNE DARLING

KUALA LUMPUR (WNS) — A group of about 100 working women met one recent Saturday morning in their sleepy capital city of Malaysia to talk about their differences. The women were Malays, Chinese and Indians, who came dressed in their national costumes.

They explained to each other simple facts about how each ethnic group lives — the foods they eat, how they entertain, their likes and dislikes.

The Malay women told of little ways in which their traditional sense of politeness had been offended in the past. The Chinese women described the importance of having their names pronounced correctly. The Indian women explained the meanings of the various marks they wear on their foreheads and told about the caste system.

The women's meeting was typical of a quiet phenomenon that is occurring on this green Asian peninsula — after living together in disharmony for hundreds of years, Malaysians are trying now to understand each other.

Race Riot

It took a brief but bloody race riot two years ago to bring about the new thinking. The riot exposed for all the world to see the tensions and bitterness that existed between the different groups. And it shocked many responsible Malaysians who say now they had no idea the undercurrent of hostility was so intense.

"We have lived here side by side for generations," said Mrs. Azah Aziz, a Malay journalist and wife of the chancellor of the University of Malaya "but we don't really know each other."

Half the 11 million people of Malaysia (known as Malay until 1963) are Malays. A third are ethnic Chinese and most of the remainder are Indians, who migrated to the former British colony as many as 300 years ago.

Intermarriage has been virtually nonexistent. The Malays are Moslem, the Indians are Hindu, and most of the Chinese are Buddhists. Until recently there were three separate school systems.

"We don't even eat together," complained one Indian woman. "Surely in the future we must find some menu that will not offend anyone."

The Moslems, of course, do not eat pork. Many will not eat at Chinese restaurants for fear something has been fried in lard. The Indians and some Chinese, for religious reasons, do not eat beef.

The Malays run the government while the Chinese, and to a lesser extent the Indians, control the economy. The Chinese and Indians tend to be urban dwellers while the Malays have remained largely rural. Although there are poor people among all three groups, the rural Malays are lowest on the socio-economic ladder.

"There are still some Chinese who complain that the government favors the Malays," said Mrs. Yech Tan Jing. "But most of us now understand the importance of the rural development programs."

In addition to a crash program of building schools in the country, the government has begun a land development project that will resettle subsistence farmers and encourage them to modernize their agricultural techniques.

Also important in bringing about a more harmonious atmosphere is the major effort being made in the mass media to emphasize similarities and accept differences.

"With half the population Malay and the other half non-Malay," said one observer, "there's no question of throwing anybody out of the country. We just have to learn to live together."

Arrest Russian For Espionage

ESPIONAGE ARREST — Valery I. Markelov, 32, center, is escorted by unidentified FBI agents Monday night outside FBI headquarters in New York. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — FBI agents have arrested a Russian employee of the United Nations on charges of espionage in connection with the solicitation of classified documents on the Navy's new F14A fighter plane. Valery I. Markelov, 32, was seized Monday night in a Long Island diner after receiving certain documents from a Grumman Aerospace Corp. engineer, the FBI said. The engineer was working with the FBI. Markelov, a translator at the U.N. Secretariat, was held overnight in the federal house of detention for arraignment today before U.S. Magistrate Max Schiffman. A spokesman at the Soviet Mission to the United Nations declined comment on the arrest, saying the mission would have to study the situation. He would not say whether Markelov was a Soviet citizen. Grumman is in the developmental phase of building 12 prototypes of the twin-jet, carrier-based F14A. Details of the armament and performance characteristics of the swing-wing plane are classified. A spokesman at the company's headquarters in Bethpage on Long Island declined to comment on the arrest. The FBI said investigation of Markelov began in the fall of 1970 after the Grumman engineer, who was not identified, reported to authorities that the Russian had made his acquaintance. In the arrest announcement in Washington, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Markelov had 11 meetings with the engineer at various restaurants in the New York area. He "persistently requested confidential information" on the F14A and supplied the engineer a portable copying machine and a 35mm camera to reproduce the material, the FBI said. Markelov, who was born in Russia, arrived in the United States in November 1967, and lives with his wife and daughter in New York City. Maximum penalty for conviction of espionage is 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine, the FBI said.

State Will Appeal New Topless Dancing Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — A superior court judge's ruling that topless dancing is permissible under North Carolina law is headed for the state Court of Appeals. Mrs. Christine Denson of the state attorney general's staff said Monday the ruling of Judge Maurice Braswell would be appealed. "Topless dancing is not unlawful merely because the female breasts are bare," Braswell said in a written decision. He held a hearing on the issue Jan. 28. The state Board of Alcoholic Control issued an order in mid-January banning topless dancing in retail beer and wine outlets. A group of night clubs employed an attorney who obtained a temporary order restraining the board from enforcing its order pending a hearing. The state Court of Appeals ruled about three years ago that breasts were not private parts within the indecent exposure statute. In his ruling, Braswell said the revocation or threatened revocation of a club's license for permitting topless dancing is "an administrative effort to enforce a statute in an unlawful way." He added, "The construction of the statute is not an administrative or discretionary function of a state agency." Braswell said state laws which cover lewd and immoral dancing and indecent exposure as well as state law which sets certain behavioral restrictions in places holding beer and wine permits were constitutional. He also held that the statute under which the ABC Board acted in issuing its order that any club that permitted topless dancing would lose its privilege license was constitutional. But Braswell added that the statute "is far broader than the one subject matter of topless dancing, and that there are many ways in which the statute may be violated." "Therefore," he added, "the court will not restrain the respondent (ABC Board) in its future efforts to conscientiously enforce either of the aforesaid statutes."

"Past mistakes," Braswell said, "do not justify a blanket injunction against honest law enforcement." The topless controversy began when the State Supreme Court struck down an Onslow County ordinance prohibiting topless dancing. The court said the local ordinance was covered in state law.

Everett Named By Sen. Jordan

Sen. B. Everett Jordan has named Clifton W. Everett Jr., a Greenville attorney, as his Pitt County campaign manager. Everett will have full responsibility for coordinating organizational activities in the area effective immediately, Jordan said. "I am extremely pleased that Everett has agreed to accept this assignment and I am proud to have such an outstanding young man representing me there," the North Carolina lawmaker said. "I know of no one better qualified to speak for the causes in which we both believe." A member of the Everett and Cheatham law firm, the appointee has been practicing in Greenville for four years and prior to his arrival here was a research clerk for Judge Naomi E. Morris of the North Carolina Court of Appeals. He is a member of the executive committee of the Third Luncheon Optimist Club. He serves on the Administrative Board and teaches a Sunday School class at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church and is an Elk, Mason, and Shriner. He is married to the former Mary Cheatham Harris of Wilson.

HHH Plans To Cover Fla.

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, saying he does not expect George C. Wallace to be any "smash hit" in the Florida presidential primary, is planning a town-by-town airborne campaign aiming for no worse than a dead-heat finish on the crowded March 14 ballot. "We've got to do very well here," the Minnesota Democrat said. "We don't necessarily have to win, but we have to be within a few points of the leader." Humphrey said that kind of showing would boost his campaign for the presidential nomination in later primaries. In the 11-way race in Florida, Wallace, Humphrey, and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine rank as the leading contenders. Humphrey said a poll conducted for his campaign organization rated them in that order only three percentage points apart. "This is my first real test," Humphrey said in an interview, "but there are so many candidates in Florida that it's difficult to get a true measurement of your strength. There are so many people who cut into each other, we share constituencies." In his effort to build his own showing, Humphrey plans to spend 22 of the 29 days before the primary campaigning in Florida. He said he will begin Feb. 20 in the intensive hunt for votes, traveling the state by helicopter. "We're going to do it all over the state, 15 or 20 stops a day," he said.

Ask An End Harassment

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The General Board of the National Council of Churches has appealed to the Soviet Union "to stop the practice of trying to control dissent by committing dissenters to mental institutions." The board, in a religious freedom resolution adopted Monday, expressed concern for the "harassment and persecution" of Soviet Jews and Christians and the "harsh sentences imposed on them in trials closed to the general public." Another resolution called "a matter of urgency" the reaccreditation to the United Nations of two Nationalist Chinese newsmen barred at the request of mainland China.

The resolution said: "If this situation is not soon corrected, and if the U.N. continues to transgress its own principles due to pressure from some of its powerful members, whoever they may be, its future as an effective instrument of international cooperation and guardian of human rights and freedoms will be seriously endangered." Both resolutions will be sent to the United Nations.

"The Gallery" which is produced under special arrangements with The Dramatics Publishing Company of Chicago. Production dates are Thursday, February 24, and Friday February 25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are available in advance from members of the drama club at $7.75 for adults and $5.50 for students, as well as at the door at $1.00 each. The annual staff has also been busy laying out the annual. The yearbook will be sent to Hunter Publishing Company as soon as possible and is expected to come back during May. This book will be approximately 160 pages long and will have a special section for awards. The annual staff also plans to sell Krispy Kreme doughnuts Friday. This time students were asked to get in touch with an annual staff member Thursday so they will know how many to pick up. Students of Ayden-Grifton who are interested in joining the chorus club were asked to sign up with the music and art teacher, Mrs. May, who is also produced under special arrangements with The Dramatics Publishing Company of Chicago. The Herf-Jones ring man was back at the high school Thursday in case anyone had any problems with their rings. The Chargers will have their last game Friday at Ayden-Grifton. This will be the last game before the tournaments which will be held next week. The game Friday is against C. B. Aycock. The J.V. girls were victorious their last two games over Chicod and Woodington. After the Chicod game, the girls went to Greenville to watch and observe the East Carolina University Varsity and Junior Varsity girls teams.

A Degree Is No Job Insurance

It appears that another belief of our affluent society is crumbling. For years our advice to young people has been to get a college degree at any cost. This was supposed to assure a position upon graduation and usually was to mean instant entrance into the prosperous society.

No more. A Michigan State University Placement Bureau survey showed a bleak year for the 1972 college educated job seeker.

Total anticipated hiring is down by 1.8 percent from last year for those who will receive a bachelor's degree. Most employers expect to offer the same salaries as last year also.

Now days if a young man really wants to assure his future he might look in the fields of auto mechanics or construction work. That is where the opportunities now lie.

Note Of Candor In The Presidential Message

President Nixon was candid in his State of the World message of last week.

He said progress had been made in 1971 toward building "a stable structure of world peace . . . a more balanced alliance with our friends . . . and a more creative connection with our adversaries."

At the same time, however, Nixon acknowledged sharp disappointments during 1971 including the failure to negotiate a Vietnam peace. Others included the inability to prevent the Indian-Pakistani war, lack of success in finding a Mideast solution and the expulsion of Nationalist China from the United Nations.

The president has talked often of his efforts toward world peace and certainly this should be the number one priority for our nation, as a world leader.

A Challenge In Sanford Drive

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALIEGH — Is the president of Duke University the best candidate to run against a former Duke University student for president of the United States?

Those who answer "Yes" are stirring exciting currents in Tar Heel politics and posing a challenge to Gov. Bob Scott's leadership among the state's Democrats.

The student-initiated movement to get the name of Terry Sanford on the presidential primary ballot is gaining momentum, enlisting senior party support, and threatening to block Scott's efforts to line up North Carolina delegates behind Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine for the top Democratic nomination.

Backers claim the drive on Sanford's behalf originated spontaneously on campuses and without any anti-Scott intent. They cite the response (some 20,000 names on petitions) as evidence that Tar Heel sentiment is lukewarm and best for other Democratic presidential aspirants, including Muskie.

Challenge Presented
"It does present a challenge to Scott's ability to deliver the state of Muskie," agreed J. Clint Newton of Shelby. A political associate from Sanford's days as governor, Newton is lending a hand to the drat campaign.

Bill Blue, a law student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and Newton are receiving petitions from across the state to get Sanford into the presidential primary. They are past the requirement of 10,000 names, and shooting for a goal of 25,000.

Meanwhile, the campaign has spread to a dozen or so other states. Sanford will need strength from at least four states to be in contention at the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach in July.

Gov. Scott spoke out in opposition to the Sanford effort last week while campaigning in Florida for Muskie, his early choice for the presidential nomination. "It is not in the best interests of North Carolina to back a favorite son, and if it means a head-on confrontation with Sanford, I regret it," Scott said.

Nothing Divisive Seen
Newton said the movement for Sanford is "not in the least" divisive for Tar Heel Democrats. The governor's attitude, rather than discouraging the drive, may well spur efforts, he added. It's a mistake to assume that the party hierarchy is solid in the Muskie camp, Newton said. Adults as well as students are catching enthusiasm for the idea of Sanford as a presidential candidate, he said, and a number of influential state political leaders will soon give their public endorsement.

Those who already have done so include Senator B. Everett Jordan, President Leo Jenkins of East Carolina University, and Sheriff R. W. Goodman of Richmond County.

President Richard Nixon, who went to law school at Duke, is regarded as certain to be the Republican candidate in the fall presidential election. He carried North Carolina in 1968, and many observers regard that as the likely outcome in 1972.

Waiting Sanford's Word
Sanford has taken to his duties as Duke president while the presidential boomlet has been building. He told students who started the drive that he would talk with them after they gathered the petitions necessary to get on the primary ballot.

The deadline for a "Yes" or "No" from Sanford is March 6. By that date, the petitions and a letter of intent must be filed with the State Board of Elections in order for him to be entered in the May 6 primary.

Some see the movement as an effort to put Sanford in contention as a vice presidential prospect at the Democratic National Convention. The same objective is read into Scott's role as ardent booster for Muskie. Newton described the drive as a genuine search for a viable Democratic candidate who can win.

If Sanford does enter the North Carolina primary, Newton predicted, he will go on to other state presidential primaries. By the time of the National Convention, he could have a significant core of delegates, he added.

Haldeman Case Worries Aides

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Heart-sick over the public surfacing of H. R. (Bob) Haldeman but fully aware of his inviolability, President Nixon's top lieutenants came to a reluctant conclusion last week: ignore the Haldeman affair and hope it will be soon forgotten.

With rare unanimity, Mr. Nixon's politicians agreed in both closed-door meetings and private conversations on these two points: (1) it was folly for Haldeman, hitherto hidden from public view as Mr. Nixon's omnipotent chief of staff, to agree to be interviewed on NBC's "Today" show; (2) it was folly compounded for him to charge the Vietnam critics with "consciously aiding and abetting the enemy." At these meetings, not one voice was raised in Haldeman's defense.

But it was also conceded that Haldeman's power is such that only the President himself could scold him, much less impose any discipline. And nobody in his wildest imagination expects Mr. Nixon to dress down his most trusted aide.

Haldeman decided to appear on "Today" and assault the Democratic doves without consulting anybody. Acutally, White House strategists had privately agreed to start chipping away at the centrist image of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, front-runner for the Democratic Presidential nomination. But they never envisioned that Haldeman, with his own well-formed image of Prussian drillmaster, ought to be out front doing the chipping—particularly in the overtones of the Joe McCarthy era.

Consequently, at the private meetings this week (unattended by Haldeman), the President's political lieutenants sadly agreed the "Today" interview revived memories of another era and the "old Nixon." The early feedback from Republican politicians and businessmen confirmed this.

Haldeman, in contrast, was utterly insensitive to such considerations. He told associates at the White House that he saw nothing amiss in his statements and scoffed at the furor as the typical concoction of the left-wing press.

Ironically, Haldeman has been the greatly feared de facto disciplinarian at the Nixon White House, freezing out from further influence or contact with the President any staffer who has committed some blunder—sometimes without the offender being informed of either his crime or his punishment. But in this case, there is nobody to discipline the chief disciplinarian.

McCarthy vs. Muskie
A campaign attempting to strip away the Lincoln-esque trappings from Sen. Muskie has been tentatively prepared for the Illinois Presidential primary campaign by two of the most articulate and frequently poisonous voices in the Democratic party: Eugene McCarthy and Richard N. Goodwin.

Goodwin, perhaps the most skilled political speechwriter in the business, has recommended to McCarthy that he campaign for the March 21 Illinois primary by contending in Abraham Lincoln's home state how different Lincoln and Muskie really are.

The McCarthy-Goodwin line would run like this: Lincoln lost his seat in Congress by opposing the Mexican War in 1848 and defeated himself for the Senate in 1858 by taking a strong anti-slavery line. Muskie may look a lot like Lincoln, but when has he ever risked all by opposing his party and current public opinion? Certainly, not on Vietnam in 1968.

Of course, that won't defeat Muskie in the two-man preferential contest in Illinois. It won't even affect Illinois delegates to the national convention, who will be elected by district and most of whom will be pledged to Muskie. But a brutal McCarthy campaign in Illinois, McCarthy strategists believe, might do permanent damage to the Muskie image.

A footnote: If Goodwin is now dedicated to dynamiting Muskie's image, it was he who helped build it. Goodwin was principal author of Muskie's 1970 election eve television speech that so greatly magnified his popularity.

A Bedrock Philosophy

The United States Senate has been locked in debate for almost a month on an issue as old as the Republic itself. The pending bill, having to do with the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission, may be disposed of this week. The issue itself will remain. It merits your thought.

The debate centers upon an effort led by Senators Williams of New Jersey and Javits of New York to endow the EEOC with power to enforce its findings by the issuance of cease-and-desist orders. A conservative coalition, led by Senator Dominick of Colorado, is opposing the move.

Here we touch the bedrock of our philosophy. If the founding fathers were motivated by one impetus more than any other, it was by their hostility to the oppressions of a remote and central government. The King had refused his assent "to laws for establishing judiciary powers." Instead, he had "erected a multitude of new offices and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people." With the Revolution won, a new Constitution sought forever to prevent a recurrence of the evils.

Two principles emerged. One was the principle of federalism, by which political powers would be dispersed among the central government on the one hand, and the separate States on the other. The second principle was separation of powers—the concept that by separating the executive, legislative and judicial powers of the central government, the old abuses might be avoided.

Both principles have eroded with time. The Senate's current debate goes directly to this question: Shall the doctrine of separation of powers be further eroded? Senate liberals are cheerfully agreeable: The Williams-Javits bill would make of the EEOC a combined executive and judicial agency. Senate conservatives are stoutly resisting: They want judges alone to do the judging.

Liberals make this case: More than a dozen executive agencies, notably the National Labor Relations Board, already have the power to issue binding cease-and-desist orders. Such orders result from the findings of professional hearing examiners. The 25-year-old Administrative Procedures Act provides abundant safeguards of due process of law. In any event, final order are subject to judicial review. At a time when Federal courts are sorely burdened, with heavy backlogs and long

Other Editors Say Can't Quit World

(Milwaukee Journal)

A reader, upset by the country's international headaches and the goings on in the United Nations, suggested in the letter column that the U.S. cut itself off from the rest of the world and "build this nation into a fort." She wrote: "We produce enough of everything to take care of our own needs."

If only that were true! A partial list of items stockpiled for national security by the Office of Emergency Preparedness shows how dependent the U.S. is for vital materials that make life tick here. We would have to do without aluminum products because most bauxite ore comes from overseas. Crucial alloys such as nickel, chrome, manganese and antimony either are not to be found here or are in insufficient quantities. The same is true of tin and asbestos.

In fact, without materials from foreign lands, America would have trouble producing automobiles, airplanes, and most of its military machines. Natural rubber, silk, jewel bearings and quartz crystals for radios are supplied completely or mostly from outside our borders.

Should the nation adopt this fortress America concept, forget about coffee and bananas, for instance. Think of the great variety of imported goods that mean lower prices for the American consumer. These would no longer be available.

No matter how unpleasant the world appears, the US is part of it. We need it, it needs us.

Strength For Today

WHERE?
Comment. We're always ready to make it. In fact the right to make comment on all subjects including those we know nothing about lies at the basis of political freedom. If we know nothing about medicine we are eager to give our opinion on medical subjects. (Wouldn't it be wonderful if the people who are trying to find the cure for cancer could have the benefit of our penetrating observations.)

Let us give everybody a right to talk—excepting those who urge violence and crime as a means of advancing human freedom. When people start walking out on us it's about time that we ask ourselves a few searching questions. When those who have walked out in the midst of our disclosures of wisdom get around the corner they will undoubtedly raise their eyebrows and arms to heaven and tap their foreheads.

For some reason or other it just seems impossible for us to get a true mental picture of ourselves—what we say, and how little our comment adds to the world's wisdom. A good, searching look in the mirror might help us a lot. Our eagerness to comment can make us appear ridiculous if it goes too far. But if we sat like a bump on a log saying nothing our contemporaries wouldn't like that either. Satisfactory living largely consists of a little of this, a little of that, and not too much of anything. If we slip through life never taking sides on anything, we're nobody. If we take sides on everything and pound the table, we are bores—and perhaps worse.

Public Forum

To the editor:

The farmer is an important man in the growth of our country.

He does so much and receives so little. The farmer needs all the support you can give him. The bankers, fertilizer companies, and the Production Credit Association have given the farmers aid, along with many others.

Many farmers are leaving the farm and they are coming to the city to find work. One reason they are leaving is because they spend their time and effort to produce a crop and when they sell it they receive a small fraction of what is should be worth.

Corn is just one crop I'm talking about. On the average, you can buy a 50-pound bag of seed corn for about $25. The highest this year is about $31. When you sell corn you receive roughly $1 per bushel. In the winter when you or other farmers want to buy a bushel of corn, it will cost you about $1.80 per bushel. After the expense for fertilizer is paid, along with harvesting the crop, there is some profit left, but the farmer deserves more.

Commerce Denies Jobs-Export

By ELMER ROESSNER
Commerce Department and the AFL-CIO are in diametric disagreement about whether United States investments abroad are tantamount to exporting American jobs. The AFL-CIO says it is and is demanding that Congress limit manufacture autos abroad for the American market, costing the jobs of uncounted U.S. auto workers. "In some cases" those industries that have "high

ELMER ROESSNER

American corporations in establishing plants in low-wage foreign countries. Commerce has issued a staff study denying that American-financed foreign plants are cutting employment here.

A study sponsored by Harvard also said U.S. firms were not transferring work to low-wage countries.

The Commerce study made these points:

The fields in which foreign imports have caused the most lost jobs, textiles, shoes, steel and automobiles, are "overwhelmingly the output of foreign-owned enterprises, not of U.S.-owned affiliates." "Overwhelmingly" is perhaps correct, yet the big auto companies all, through affiliates or subsidiaries, concentrations of multinational corporations" have shown above-average growth in domestic employment. "To this labor economists can reply that expansion in the U.S. may be financed by savings on wages overseas.

Because of lower foreign wages, "some companies often have no alternative to transferring operations to lower-wage foreign areas.... If the products in question were not produced and supplied from abroad by U.S. affiliates, they would likely be supplied by foreign competitors." The choice, therefore, is often ... between foreign operations and no operations in all."

Commerce also reported that the U.S. imported almost $2 billion more in textiles than it exported last year. It did not say how much was made by American-owned plants abroad.

Today in cities along the Mexican side of the U.S. border, about 330 plants are producing textile, electronic, and other goods for the American market. Of these, approximately 280 plants are owned by American corporations.

All can import raw materials from the U.S., and pay only duty on the value added by cheap labor. The Hartke-Brake bill, now pending in Congress, would impose duty on the full value of the products entering the U.S. Mexican economists point out that much of the wages earned by workers in these plants is spent in the U.S. American labor leaders reply that if the work were done in the U.S., the wages would be higher and therefore even more money would be spent in this country.

The U.S. government is paying up to $87 a week to workers in steel flatware, glass, piano, shoe and several other industries who have been thrown out of work by plant closings resulting from foreign competition. Their pay supports them while they learn new skills.

Imports of marble and travertine products have also threatened the survival of American firms in the field. President Nixon has proposed a novel solution to this problem. Instead of asking Congress for higher tariff on such stone, which comes mainly from Italy, he is proposing that tariffs on unfinished and semi-finished stone be eliminated. This, he said, would actually increase employment in domestic production and fabrication.

However, just to be sure, he directed Labor and Commerce Departments to offer trade adjustment assistance to U.S. companies and workers injured by imports.

delays, judges should not be further burdened by the trial of cases charging discrimination in employment.

Conservatives make this response: The EEOC, with a backlog of 32,000 cases, is more burdened than the courts. Even if an independent General Counsel were provided, the agency still would be functioning as prosecutor, judge and jury. The very nature of the EEOC makes impartial determinations impossible, for the commission and its staff have a built-in bias in favor of minorities. Judicial review is severely limited by the practice of routinely affirming cease-and-desist orders if "substantial evidence" supports them.

At the heart of this disagreement is the difference that eternally divides liberal and conservative. The liberal tends to trust government and to urge that its powers be expanded; the conservative looks upon government with a wary eye and asks that its powers be restrained.

This is what the fight is all about. If the liberals prevail, the EEOC will become one of the most powerful agencies in government — far more powerful than the NLRB, which is confined to areas of organized labor. Its coercive authority would reach to charges of discrimination (by reason of race, sex or religion) in both public and private employment, in small business as well as large. Proponents agree that a vast new bureaucracy would have to be created.

Fortunately, the House already has voted, though narrowly, against this expansion of power. Nixon opposes the Williams-Javits bill, but he opposes it only in part. Politically, the issue is exceedingly close; philosophically, the two sides are at least 200 years apart.

Larceny Is Poor Second In Local Police Arrests

Traffic and motor vehicle law violations in 1971 again led in numbers all other causes of arrests made in Greenville during a single calendar year.

The annual "Police Department Report", compiled by Chief of Police Glen Cannon reveals that of a total of 5,354 arrests, 2,978 were for traffic and motor vehicle law violations. This number far outstripped the next largest single basis for arrest, that of drunkenness, accounting for 547 arrests; and was followed in succession by 328 incidents of embezzlement and fraud and 257 arrests of driving while intoxicated.

Each year the report is broken down into two parts — Part One Classes is that which includes more serious crimes. For 1971 this report shows larceny at 172 as the largest single cause of arrest, with other causes listed — aggravated assault 94, breaking and entering 62, burglary 22, auto theft 15, robbery 9, rape 6, and murder 5, for a total of 385 Part One Classes.

In Part Two Classes, which totaled 4,969 arrests, in addition to the causes already cited, arrests included: vandalism 21, forgery 26, carrying of unauthorized weapons 26, violation of liquor laws 40, disorderly conduct 52; and offenses against the family and

James Earl Ray Escape Foiled

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray has made a second unsuccessful attempt to escape from the maximum security Brushy Mountain Prison here, according to officials.

Ray, who pleaded guilty to killing the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was discovered Feb. 7 trying to make his way to an area in the ceiling of the prison gymnasium.

"We had reason to believe he was trying to cut an opening through the roof," state Corrections Commissioner Mark Luttrell said Monday in Nashville.

Ray has been confined to a disciplinary section.

Ray, who tried to escape last spring, is serving 99 years for the sniper slaying in Memphis in April 1968 of the civil rights leader.

children, 52. Narcotic Drug Law violations, arson and gambling each constituted a very minor basis for arrests, with the total given as 8, 2 and 3 for these categories. A further breakdown shows

Oil From Manure BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Agricultural researchers have developed a process for turning cow manure into a marketable type of crude oil.

The California Farm Bureau said scientists have turned to waste products seeking substitutes for pure oil. Under newly developed processes, two tons of manure converts into one ton of crude oil, the bureau said.

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Several Democratic presidential candidates have taken time out from attacks on the Nixon administration to spar with each other as the first state primary tests of their vote-getting strength draw near.

Mayor Sam Yorty says his Democratic opponents are surrounded by an army of image-builders, and Sen. George McGovern says Mayor John V. Lindsay is "substituting media for issues and money for people."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey denies he's being soft on Gov. George C. Wallace, whose attitudes, Humphrey says, tend toward racism. The Minnesota senator also took an indirect jab Monday at Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, who was hit by a more straight-forward punch from Yorty.

Former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who ran as a peace candidate in 1968 and is in the race again, told an audience in Chicago that most candidates from both parties have fallen in line with the stance he took four years ago. Meanwhile, former Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa said noncandidate Edward M. Kennedy is the only Democrat who could beat President Nixon. "I don't think any of these other mutts have a chance," said Hoffa, who was sent to prison by Kennedy's late brother, Robert.

Yorty told a news conference in Chicago he does not use speechwriters, but other candidates are surrounded by them, and the voter "does not really know if he is hearing the true feelings of the candidate or those of the image-building speechwriter."

"Take Sen. Edmund Muskie, for example," the Los Angeles mayor said. "He has at least three speechwriters who not too long ago wrote speeches for other Democratic presidential candidates. There is a taint of deception in all this."

After much hard work and planning on the part of the SCA voter registration committee, Farmville Central's first voter registration drive was held Feb. 7. Throughout the preceding week, co-chairman Scotty Johnson and Connie Moore had supervised the distribution of information sheets to prepare the students for registering.

Robert Twilley, an active member of the Pitt County voter registration drive, spoke to eligible students. He answered questions the students had about voter registration.

Out of a possible 126 eligible voters at Farmville Central, 96 students were registered. Although 20 students were not registered due to lack of proper identification, 76 percent of the eligible students were registered, given Farmville Central the highest percentage of students registered in the Pitt County Schools.

The Farmville Central DECA Club attended a district contest in Washington Wednesday. Winning the first place "Student of the Year" award was Sharon Burress, state DECA historian, from Farmville Central.

"Student of the Year" in the boys competition was Carlos Moore, president of the Farmville Central chapter of DECA.

Lillie Mercer, secretary of the Farmville Central DECA Club, took the third place award in sales demonstration. Winning the first place award for the creative marketing project was the Farmville Central DECA Club. The local club has won four first places and one third place in eight contests this year.

Farmville Central has two students who have placed as National Merit Scholarship finalists. They are Bobbi Schlatter and Roger Eason. These are the first students in the history of Farmville to achieve such honors.

GREENVILLE UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE OF ADOPTION OF SURCHARGE ON ELECTRIC RATE SCHEDULES

Whereas, the Greenville Utilities Commission has determined that it is in the best interest of the Commission's electric consumers that we provide our customers with electric rates equal to those of the private power company serving our area, and

Whereas, the Commission did adopt on May 1, 1971 rate schedules equal to those of Virginia Electric Power Company, who serves our area, and

Whereas, VEPCO, effective January 17, 1972, added a surcharge of 0.128 cents per KWH to all of its electric schedules, which surcharge has been approved by the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that this Commission does hereby approve the adoption of a surcharge of 0.128 cents per KWH to all electric rate schedules, effective with all billings on or after February 17, 1972, which surcharge shall be equal in all respects to VEPCO's adopted surcharge.

Pirates Win Battle Over St. Francis

Come Back Here, Ball

East Carolina University's Al Faber looks down as the basketball gets away from him but St. Francis' Bill Stevens (40) hasn't noticed yet. Moving it at right are ECU's Jim Fairley at rear, and Allen Spencer (22) of St. Francis. The Pirates outlasted the Frankies, 67-56, in the game. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

With 3:17 left to go in the game between East Carolina and St. Francis last night, fists started flying. When it was over, three players were benched, and it turned out to be the springboard that propelled the Pirates to a 67-56 victory over the tough Frankies.

The win was the 11th of the year for the Pirates and raised them above the .500 mark for the first time. They have lost 10.

When the fight erupted, Jim Fairley had come down with a rebound and was tied up by St. Francis' Art Hunter. The two began elbowing each other, and St. Francis star Kevin Porter joined in, and it turned quickly from shoving to punching.

Officials quickly separated the players, however, and after calm was restored, Fairley, Hunter and Porter were all ejected from the game, and three flagrant technicals were called.

At the time, the Pirates were leading the game, 54-51. The Bucs' were given four free throws on the technicals, and Ernie Pope calmly sank each of them to the roars of the crowd, boosted the Buc lead to seven, 56-51. St. Francis got two shots on Fairley's technical, but Clarence Hopson hit only one of those, trimming the lead to six.

The Bucs got the tap on the ensuing jump and Nicky White dove in for a layup, making it 60-52. The Bucs followed that up with a free throw and two baskets sandwiched around a Frankie free throw, to run the lead out to 12 with just over a minute to go.

The game never was an artistic success, and it provoked a total of five technicals during the play. One was called on the St. Francis bench for arguing with a call, and another was assigned to Porter for beating the ball while out of bounds. The other three, of course, came on the ejections.

Neither team shot well. The Frankies hit only 34.3 per cent, while the Bucs made 36.5. The rebounding was exactly even, 53-53.

The Pirates dominated the first half of play, but St. Francis made a fine comeback in the second, moving ahead by a point on several occasions, and by two on another. But the Bucs didn't give up, fighting back to move ahead again in the closing five minutes for good.

Porter, an All-American candidate, never got started for the evening. Averaging 26.6 points per game, he hit only four of 16 shots from the floor, finishing with eight.

The Bucs grabbed the opening lead as Earl Quash hit on a rebound after 30 seconds. Fairley got a free throw after nearly two minutes and Jerome Owens added a drive near the three-minute mark, all before the Frankies finally found the range. St. Francis got its first basket on a jumper by Joe Hazinsky with 15:57 left to play, but the Bucs moved out by eight in the next 2 1/2 minutes. From a 7-2, the Bucs got a basket by Owens, and then after Hopson hit, Fairley made a three-point shot to make it 12-4 with 13:22 left in the half. Dave Franklin added a jumper just over 20 seconds later to run the margin out to 10, 14-4.

St. Francis cut the lead back to five getting three baskets while the Bucs were making only a free throw, but the Bucs held them off from there slowly building their margin back up to 10. Owens made two free throws with 7:07 left to up the lead to eight again, 24-16, and then Quash hit a jumper to up it to 10. It stayed right there, moving briefly to 11 with 5:10 left when Owens made another free throw, 29-18, but the Bucs ran out of steam with 4:07 left, and didn't score again in the half.

St. Francis also had trouble finding the range in the rest of the frame. They hit on a steal by Hunter with 3:28 left, cutting it to eight, and then Sam Stone hit a free throw with 2:43 left to make it 30-23, and neither team was able to hit from there on in.

In the second half, St. Francis grabbed the early momentum and charged out into the lead. With Hopson leading the way, the Frankies came roaring back, cutting it to two on Hopson's baseline jumper with 16:43 left at 32-30.

Gary Copeland finally tied it up on a jumper with 14:47 left to make it 34-34. Hopson then hit another jumper 20 seconds later, putting St. Francis ahead for the first time, 36-34.

East Carolina tied it up and regained the lead on a three-point play by Fairley, but St. Francis got it back when Porter hit. The Bucs moved back ahead on a jumper by Owens, and made it two when Fairley made a free throw. The Frankies tied it twice more, 40-40 and 42-42 before taking the lead again when Hazinsky made a free throw at 43-42. The Bucs moved back ahead, 44-43, only to lose it twice more. Finally with 7:42 left, Fairley got his third three-point play of the night, making it 49-47 for the Pirates. St. Francis tied it twice more, 49-49 and 51-51.

but a free throw by Quash and a tap-in by Franklin inched the Pirates out to a 54-51 lead with 3:33 to go.

St. Francis went down, took a shot and Fairley gathered in the rebound. That brought on the blows, the ejections and the technicals, rushing the Pirates out to a 12-point lead with 1:27 left. St. Francis was unable to overcome that.

Owens led the Pirate scoring with 18 points, while Fairley had 17 and Franklin had 14. For the Frankies, Hopson hit 18 and was the only player in double figures. The Pirates close out their home slate Thursday, hosting Old Dominion.

Chowan Holds Off Buc Frosh

The Chowan Braves held off East Carolina University's freshmen in the final minutes last night to take a 75-71 victory over the Baby Bucs.

The Braves, led by the shooting of Nat Wright and Norm Roles moved out into as much as a nine point lead in the first half, only to blow it completely away as the Pirates came back to take the lead late in the period. Chowan again pulled away in the second half, going out by seven, and then eight, each time wasting it away as the Baby Bucs responded.

But the Pirates were unable to move ahead in the final minutes after tying it one last time at 71-71. Chowan grabbed the opening lead and after losing it at 4-2, took it back at 6-4, and held nearly all of the first half. Behind the two scoring leaders, they pulled away, building up a nine-point spread at 29-20 with 5:47 left.

But the Bucs rallied there and stormed back behind the scoring of Tom Marsh and Fred Stone to take a 36-35 lead with 35 seconds left in the half. Two quick baskets by the Braves, however, pushed Chowan back into the lead, 39-36 at the half.

In the second half, Chowan moved out by six, 45-39, only to see the Pirates outthit them, 12-6 in the next five minutes and take a 51-49 lead. The Bucs moved out by as much as four just before that, but Chowan again came back and regained the lead on a three-point play by Wright. From there, Chowan moved out by eight, 63-55, but again, the Pirates came back, gaining a 65-63 lead with 5:18 left. They couldn't hold it however, as Pat Callahan put Chowan back on top, 67-65, and they never fell behind again.

The Bucs did tie it at 71-71 on a pair of free throws by Harry Moser, but a three-point play by Wright (the basket) and Roles (the free throw), moved it out to 74-71 with 46 seconds left, and that was the game.

Marsh led all scoring with 32 points, while Stone had 18. For Chowan, Wright had 23 and Poles had 17. The Baby Bucs host Old Dominion's freshmen in their final home game Thursday at 5:45 p.m.

Pirates Set To Host Southern Mat Tournney

Both William and Mary and East Carolina will be strong contenders for the Southern Conference Wrestling Championship when the event opens here this weekend.

William and Mary has won the title the past four years and each time East Carolina finished second. But, this season the Pirates may put forth their strongest bid for an upset. In the only regular season meeting of the two teams, East Carolina won 20-11.

Other strong contenders for the title could be VMI and Davidson.

The Indians do not bring an impressive record into the Championship, but the record is not indicative of their strength. They return three individual champions from a year ago and two other men who won an individual title two years ago. Brad Smallwood won the title at 142 last year but will wrestle at 134 this season, Bill Hogan won at 150 last year but will go at 158 this year while Greg Peaney will defend his championship at heavyweight. John Kaila won the championship at 134 two seasons ago but wrestles at 142 now while Scott Moyer won the title at 177 in 1970 and now wrestles at 167.

East Carolina returns two individual champions in Dan Monroe at 126 and Bill Hill at 177. Both will defend their titles. The only other returning champion

Bucs Top Monarchs

NORFOLK, Va. — East Carolina University's wrestling team closed out its dual meet season Saturday night with a 36-6 victory over Old Dominion University.

The win left the Pirates with a 10-1-1 record for the 1971-72 season. The Bucs captured every weight class but two, losing both of those by decisions. Two Pirate wins were by pins and another by forfeit.

The Pirates will be playing host to the Southern Conference Wrestling Tournament Friday and Saturday.

Summary:

118: Glen Baker (EC) decisioned John McCarthy, 1-0.

126: Dan Monroe (EC) decisioned Jim Sadler, 11-0.

134: Ray Pond (OD) decisioned Tim Medicus, 8-2.

142: Roger Lundy (EC) decisioned Andy Bright, 11-0.

150: Rex Springston (OD) decisioned Robert Corbo, 8-7.

158: Roger Ingalls (EC) decisioned Frank Mansfield, 17-11.

167: Joe Daversa (EC) decisioned Kim Leaman, 19-8.

177: Bill Hill (EC) pinned Ed Fields, 1:58.

190: Jim Cox (EC) pinned Jim Parker, 4:22.

Heavyweight: John Huber (EC) won by forfeit.

in the conference is Jim Bailey from VMI who won a year ago at 190 and will defend his title this season.

The Pirates carry an 11-1-1 record into the Championships and are ranked among the top 25 teams in the nation.

The matches are slated to get underway Friday at 7 p.m. with the consolation events scheduled for Saturday afternoon and the championships set for Saturday evening. Winners of the conference finals will advance to the NCAA finals in College Park, Maryland on March 9, 10, and 11.

Kidd Wins 1,000 Race

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — East Carolina's Jimmy Kidd won the featured 1,000-yard run Saturday during the William & Mary Invitational Track Meet.

Kidd's victory paced several fine Pirate performances in the meet. Kidd won the event in a field-house record time of 2:16.1.

Other Bucs placing high included Richard McDuffie, who was second in the pole vault in 14-0, and Bill Bowles who was second in the high jump in 6-5.

The Pirates next participate in the Southern Conference meet to be held Saturday at VMI.

JV Tournney Is Underway

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville and Robersonville advanced to the finals of the Martin County Conference junior varsity basketball tournament.

The two meet tonight at Jamesville for the title.

Jamesville downed Oak City, 65-56, while Robersonville beat Bear Grass, 59-40, in preliminary games on Monday night.

Coca-Cola Is City Champion

Coca-Cola wrapped up the City League basketball title last night, taking a 75-46 victory over the Book Exchange. In other games, College View downed Stewart's Sandwiches, 59-53, and Big Value Discount of Farmville beat Hallow's Distributing, 65-62.

The win left Coke with a 12-1 record with only two games to play. Hallow's is second with an 8-5 mark, followed by College View, 7-6; Big Value, 6-7; Book Exchange, 5-8; and Stewart's, 1-12.

In the opening game, Big Value rolled up a 35-26 lead in the first half, then had to hold off a Hallow's rally in the second. Hallow's outthit them, 36-30, but it didn't quite come close enough.

Ed Carraway led Big Value with 16 points, while Lester Wells had 11 and Ronald Parker had 10. For Hallow's Bruce Tucker had 16, Bob Haubenreiser had 13, Ted Whitley had 12 and Gene Rackley had 11.

Coke rushed away to a 27-18 lead in the first half of play, then put it away in the second half. They outscored the Exchange, 48-28, in the second half, to win going away.

Bob Cargill had 15 to lead Coke, while John Turner had 13, Jack Warner had 12, Tom Coker had 11 and Charles Norfleet had 10. For the Exchange, Tom Jordan had 11 and Bill Stokes had 10.

It took an overtime to decide the final contest between College View and Stewart's. Stewart's inched out into a 28-27 lead in the first half of play, but College View came back to tie it at 49-49 at the end of regulation play. Al Como the led College View in the overtime, hitting six points of their 10 for the win.

Greg Holmes led College View with 24, while Tom Hayes had 15. For Stewart's, Frank Corbitt had 12 and Bob Gaynor had 11.

You Can Bet Marquette Wants Bid To NCAA Tourney This Year

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A couple of years ago, Marquette Coach Al McGuire snubbed the National Collegiate Athletic Association's post-season basketball tournament for the less-prestigious National Invitation

Tournament. When the invitations go out this year on March 1, you can probably bet the rent money that McGuire's going the other way. The second-ranked Warriors, who didn't have a big center—they do now—compete in the more demanding NCAA derby, currently are the nation's top independent—and a good bet to grab one of the precious at-large berths. That leaves only eight more free passes for the rest of the country along with the automatic entries of 16 conference champions.

Teams with fancy records will be hoping for a telephone call at 9:30 a.m., EST, on March 1 from Tom Scott, the chairman of the University Basketball Tournament Committee.

Maryland Waits For Tar Heels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Maryland basketball team has won 10 games in a row in its Cole Field House, and is waiting for third-ranked North Carolina to come into the lair.

State, Duke, Duquesne and Long Island. Since losing to Duke 76-74, North Carolina has beaten Maryland, Wake Forest, N.C. State, Clemson and Georgia Tech.

The teams play Wednesday night in a televised game which will start at 9 p.m.

Steve Previs, a backcourt starter, played only 21 minutes in the 118-73 rout of Georgia Tech last Saturday because of the return of a groin injury. Smith said, "I hope he can go Wednesday night, but we'll have to wait and see."

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith recalls that in 1959, when the Tar Heels also were in the top 10, they played at Maryland and were beaten.

Other games Wednesday night involving ACC teams are Duke vs. Davidson in the Charlotte Coliseum, Clemson at Wake Forest and Virginia at Penn State.

"Before the season started, we regarded Wednesday's game at Maryland as our toughest of the season and nothing has happened to change our thinking," Smith says.

Barry Parkhill, a junior Virginia's leading scorer with an average of 22.7 points, has announced he had been appointed to consider playing pro ball, but will stay in school this year. The American Basketball Association draft is coming up next week. Parkhill also said he has always dreamed of representing the United States in the Olympics, and has been invited to attend tryouts beginning June 12.

Since the loss to North Carolina, Maryland has gained four impressive victories for a 16-3 record, the school's best start in 40 years.

ACC teams had an open date Monday night, and also are idle tonight.

North Carolina has won its last five games and is 17-2 for the season. The Tar Heels are tied for the Atlantic Coast Conference lead with Virginia at 7-1. Maryland is next at 4-3.

76ers Fall For Seventh In Row

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "We played a very poor game," was the diagnosis by coach Jack Ramsey after his Philadelphia 76ers lost to the Houston Rockets, 130-116, Monday night for their seventh defeat in a row.

"My job is to make the team play together. I haven't been able to," he said. Houston coach Tex Winner, whose team's 24-37 record shows that he knows what it's like to lose, observed: "It was a long night for the home crowd. There'll be good nights."

"That was not a proudfest performance," he continued to mourn as the game between two also-rans in the National Basketball Association receded in his memory. "My premise in this business is that the talent is not that widely dispersed ... You're not that far from making it if you play hard and play together."

Only 4,166 spectators were there to watch as the 76ers fell further and further behind in the second half after staying almost abreast of the Rockets through the first half. The people who enjoyed the contest were the five Rockets who scored 19 points or more.

composed of three other athletic directors—Ernie Casale of Temple; J.D. Morgan of UCLA and Joel Eaves of Georgia—and Wiles Hallock, executive director for the Pacific-8 Conference and Fred Taylor, the Ohio State coach.

About the middle of February, each starts thinking about the candidates from his area. The teams are then presented to the committee in a joint meeting, discussed an acted upon for their relative merits.

There are three at-large berths in the East regional playoffs, two in the Midwest, three in the West and only one in the West because of a scarcity of true major independents, in that sector.

The policy of the NCAA committee, according to public relations spokesman Tom Hansen, is "to select the best nine teams available, regardless of their geographical location."

"It's based solely on sheer strength, the schedule that the teams play and the way the selection committee feels after watching the candidates," says Hansen.

Marshall Gets Top Ten Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Marshall has cracked The Associated Press' Top Ten major college basketball ranking, but the Thundering Herd and everybody else are a long way from UCLA country.

UCLA once again leads the AP Top Twenty, released today, by a comfortable margin but for the first time in four weeks the Bruins are not a unanimous choice for No. 1.

One first-place ballot out of the 41 cast in this week's nationwide poll of sports writers and sportscasters went to Marquette.

With the other 40 first-place votes UCLA, 19-0, had 818 points and a comfortable lead over Marquette, 19-0, which had 720 points.

The order of the next four teams in the Top Ten was the same as last week—North Carolina, Louisville, Pennsylvania and Virginia—but there was a big shakeup in the rest of the rankings.

South Carolina moved from ninth to seventh; Ohio State dropped from seventh to eighth; Long Beach fell from eighth to ninth and Marshall jumped from 11th to 10th.

Brigham Young, 10th last week, was at the head of the Second Ten, followed by Southwest Louisiana, Providence, Florida State, Missouri, Hawaii, Kentucky, Memphis State, Maryland and Tennessee.

HOLLYWOOD — Each of the three opening round favorites lived up to expectations last night as each took wins to advance in the Eastern Carolinas Conference tournament.

The Chargers of A-G did not have the cakewalk that North Pitt had. After leading by as much as 16 in the first half, they found themselves ahead by only two at 2:59 in the third quarter. The Chargers got things straightened out between periods and built their lead back up to the final margin of nine, 87-88.

The Chargers came back, however in the last quarter scoring 28 points, seven more than Eastern Wayne to take the Victory.

North Pitt's top-seeded Big Orange Machine annihilated the Lady Firebirds of Southern Nash, 50-21. Ayden-Grifton's Chargers fought past Eastern Wayne, 87-78, and Southern Wayne's girls squeezed by C. B. Aycock, 34-31.

Danny Garris put the A-G boys in front early with a free shot. Carlton McCarter and Melvin Stewart each canned a pair of field goals and A-G had a 9-0 lead 1:44 into the game. Lynn Best finally got the Warriors on the boards hitting a charity shot. The Chargers added 14 more in the period to nine for Eastern Wayne to be in front 23-10.

Best had nine field goals and 10 free throws for 28 points, high for the game. Body scored 19, Cedrick Dickerson had 13, and Price 12. All of A-G's players were in double figures except one. Jessie Smith got 23 for the Chargers, Sam Stewart and McCarter each scored 18, Milton Brown, 10, and Melvin Stewart, 10.

In the first contest of the night, the Pant-HERS zoomed out to a 10-0 lead in the first period and coasted the rest of the way. Minnie Hollis got the Big Orange off with a basket from underneath and buckets by Joy James, Phyllis Jenkins and another one by Hollis made it, 10-0 at the end of the period.

The Warriors began to pull back in the second quarter. They topped the Chargers, 26-21, in the frame behind the shooting of Best and Bobby Body to trail by 8 at intermission, 44-36.

The real battle of the night was the clash between the girls teams from Southern Wayne and C. B. Aycock. After leading the whole first quarter, the Saintes were ahead of the Aycock girls by a point, 8-7. The Falcons took the lead at the start of the second period as Phillis Parnell scored from the lane. The Saintes tied it up with 3:02 to go in the first half, 11-11, but the Aycock girls got the lead back on a jumper from the stripe by Mary Peacock, 13-11. Jaxie Bryan hit for the Saintes knotting it again at 13-13. They regained possession when Bryant dumped in a free throw with 1:44 to go in the period. Both teams added a basket to their scores and at the game's mid-point the Saintes led 16-15.

The Lady Firebirds got their only point of the half when Elizabeth Merrit sank a free throw. The Pant-HERS pumped in 27 to keep a commanding lead, 27-1.

Then in the third period, the Warriors started to make the Chargers sweat. Body hit to open the second half but McCarter came right back for A-G with a jumper from outside, 46-38. Best and Robbie Price combined for a three-point play cutting the lead to 46-41 at 6:13 on the clock.

C. B. Aycock got the lead back in the opening minute of the Pope led the Southern Nash girls with eight. Joy James paced the Pant-HERS with 14 and Hollis added 12.

They swapped baskets but with 4:27 left in the quarter, Price and Anthony Holmes scored pulling the Warriors within two, 50-48. The Chargers moved away, 56-50 a few minutes later. Both teams added five points in the final minute but Ayden-Grifton still led, 61-57.

The Saintes move up in the tourney to face the Big Orange in the second round. The A-G Chargers will meet the winner of the North Lenoir-Southern Nash contest, played tonight. Also on tap for tonight are to more games. D. H. Conley's Valkyries take on the girls from Southern Nash and the Farmville Central boys will clash with the Greene Central boys.

Furman Close To Second Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Furman's defending champion Paladins have moved to within one victory of the No. 2 seeding behind Davidson's Wildcats in the Southern Conference championship basketball tournament March 2-4.

Two Frosh Get Spots

Two East Carolina freshman basketball players have been named to honorable mention slots on the North Carolina All-State Collegiate Freshman Team. Fred Stone of Cayce, South Carolina and Tom Marsh of Bethesda, Maryland were selected by the sports staff of the Greensboro Daily News.

The Paladins, who will defend their title on their home court, upped their league record to 7-3 Monday night with a 113-97 triumph over Richmond's Spiders.

Neither one of the cagers is on an athletic scholarship at ECU. They are so called "walk-ons" on a team with only one scholarship player. Secondly, they were selected from a team with a rather unimpressive 3-9 record.

Furman, which trails Davidson by a game — the Wildcats are finished at 8-2 — needs only to win Saturday night at The Citadel to clinch second place in the regular season standings.

Pirate freshman coach Tom Crump expressed both surprise and pleasure with the selections. "I know that Fred and Tom are both outstanding players," he commented, "but I always figured that the fact that they were not on grants and our losing record would limit their exposure. They well deserve this honor because they have given so much for so little."

But The Citadel may not be a soft touch. The Bulldogs boosted their own record to 4-5 inside the conference with an 87-60 conquest Monday night of Virginia Military's Keydets, who've lost all 10 league games they've played and their last 11 overall.

Stone is currently leading the Baby Bucs with an average of 18 points per game. Marsh is averaging 17.1 points and is the leading rebounder with an 11.6 average.

second half on a jumper by Jean Evans, 17-16. They maintained control of it for the remainder of the period and were ahead by a basket, 25-23, going into the final frame.

Pat Brogden sank a charity shot for Southern Wayne making it 25-24 and Bryan hit from outside to give the Saintes the lead and this time they held on to it. Bryan added another jumper from the lane putting the lead at three 28-25. The Saintes put on a back-court stall and forced the Lady Falcons to come out of their zone defense. Sophia Raynor drew a foul from Aycock's Evans and made the first of two free shots 29-25. Peacock scored on a fast break cutting the lead to two, 29-27 and she tied it up with a jumper from outside a minute later.

Terry Bryan put the Saintes back out by two as she dumped one in from under the basket, 31-29 with 2:34 left in the game. Brogden canned a lay-up on a fast break for the Saintes, 33-29 but Peacock got the points right back as she pumped one in 12 second later, 33-31. That was the way it stood until Terry Bryan made a free shot for the Saintes giving them the three point win.

For Southern Wayne, Jaxie Bryan had 17 and Brogden had 12. Peacock dumped in 16 for the Lady Falcons.

Diana surprised herself by the ease with which she could win friends and carry on graceful conversation. But it required the proper psychological formula, which she had never known before. So she used her method and won friends galore!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case T-502: Diana B., aged 17, is the unhappy high schooler who lacked friends and never had had a date. So I taught her the 5 Laws for Complimenting her companions, plus the art of fading out of dialogue with a question mark! "Diana," I began, "the first law consists of praising your comrade's clothes or hair or teeth or his personal possessions."

"So tomorrow you should carefully inspect the boy who sits beside you in class."

"Then pick out something that merits a word of praise."

"Start the conversation with him by mentioning your admiration for his new tie or neat handwriting, etc."

She brightened at the thought she could now win friends. "But, Dr. Crane," she protested, "I don't know if I could muster up enough courage to speak first!"

However, I told her to take a big breath and then launch upon her compliment.

"Diana," I encouraged her, "there is an old proverb that says, 'Nothing ventured, nothing gained.'"

"If you wish to be popular and have a boy friend, you must force yourself to employ the right psychological strategy."

Diana's Decision Well, Diana decided she had been miserable long enough so she prodded herself into speaking first.

She began by complimenting the boy's attractive tie. "I hope you won't mind my saying so," she said, "but I think that is a very pretty tie. Where did you get it?"

The boy had been about as shy as Diana so he blushed at this unexpected compliment.

He wasn't even fed enough to say "Thank you" for Diana's bit of praise.

But he did mention that his sister had given him the tie for his birthday.

"Oh, you have a sister," Diana now proceeded more easily, "how old is she?"

Notice that Diana had profited from my tutoring her in fading out of her part of the dialogue with a question mark instead of a period!

For that interrogation mark is shaped like a fish hook.

So it hooks your companion gracefully into carrying on his half of the dialogue.

Soon conversation will reach enough momentum that it will then flow along easily without your strained effort.

After the boy had told his sister's age, Diana then asked him if he had any brothers, too. The boy replied that he had a younger brother in grammar school, plus an older brother in the army.

"Are they as handsome as you are?" Diana continued, growing bolder with her new skill at steering conversation.

Besides, she saw by now that the boy was as shy as she had been so she felt more confident.

And each day thereafter, it became easier for Diana to chat with the boy.

Missionary Will Be Speaker Here

The Rev. Albert F. Whelchel, a United Methodist missionary, will speak in the churches of the Greenville District Feb. 27 through March 3.

The Rev. Whelchel completed 21 years in the Republic of the Congo as a missionary. He is on a year of furlough and is visiting churches as invited.

His schedule is as follows: Westminster Church, Kinston, Feb. 27 at 8:45 and 11 a.m.; Jarvis Memorial, Greenville, Feb. 27, 3 p.m.; Grifton, Feb. 27, 6:30 p.m.; Belhaven, Feb. 28, 7:30 p.m.

Edward's Chapel, Feb. 29, 6:30 p.m.; Bethel, March 1, 7 p.m.; Wharton Trinity, Washington Circuit, March 2, 7:30 p.m.; Hookerton-Rainbow, March 3, 7:30 p.m.

A native of Georgia, the Rev. Whelchel is a graduate of Asbury College and Candler School of Theology.

In fact, within a week, he invited her to go with him to their high school basketball game.

So send for the "Compliment Club Booklet," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and use it to win friends gracefully!

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

The opening:
North ♠ Pass East ♠ Pass
West ♠ Pass South ♠ Pass
North ♠ Pass East ♠ Pass
West ♠ Pass South ♠ Pass

A sharp performance by East in declining against South's four heart contract led to a two trick setback where the slightest slip would have given declarer the deal.

And North has to sign cards points, three of these points consist of unguessed queens and jacks—when introduced into the hand to trump over South's one heart response in preference to showing the club suit. When South jumped to three clubs himself on the deal round, North could raise to four comfortably since he had already indicated his strength. South reids four hearts to show a good five card suit. Since North had a tolerance for hearts, he decided to gamble out a ten trick contract by passing.

West opened the six of spades, the ten was played from dummy and East adroitly followed suit with a small card. Had he covered with the king, it would have established North's queen as a second stopper in the suit and South would have ended up with eleven tricks—losing only one heart and one club.

South was obliged to win the first trick with the blank ace of spades and he promptly led a heart to North's jack. East made his second fine play by ducking. A heart was returned and East ducked again. South played the ten and when West followed with the nine, declarer abandoned trumps temporarily to set up his side suit. The queen of clubs was led to dislodge West's ace and the latter returned a spade. East covered dummy's queen with the king and South ruffed.

The king of hearts was led in an attempt to split out the trumps, but West showed out—discarding a club. East was in with the ace and another spade drove out declarer's remaining trump. He tried to run the clubs, but East ruffed the third round and the defense cashed two spades to set South down by two.

If East wins the first heart lead with the ace, he can try to force declarer by returning the king of spades but South retains control of the proceedings by merely discarding a small diamond from his hand, which is a loser in any event. East is unable to continue the force for a third round of spades can be ruffed in dummy. If East gets out with anything else, South has time to draw trump and dislodge the ace of clubs since he still has an extra heart to handle the third spade. All he loses is two spades and one club on the deal.

A Woman Entry
HONOLULU (AP) — The 24-year-old president of the Life of the Land ecology group has been nominated by a local Jaycee chapter as one of Hawaii's "Outstanding Young Men of the Year." Her name is Sophie Ann Aoki.

"There's nothing in the rules that says it has to be a man," said Jeffrey Wong, who nominated Miss Aoki. "The more I thought about it, the more I thought she qualifies. I just think she's good."

If Miss Aoki wins in Hawaii, she could compete in the national contest to become one of the "10 Outstanding Young Men of the U.S."

As your business grows, maybe your trucks should shrink.

It's basic math. More business, more trucks, more fuel and maintenance. If you're expanding, may we offer this small suggestion: the Datsun Pickup. It delivers up to 30 miles per gallon. It requires less maintenance simply because there's less to maintain. Yet it hauls the goods just like any other self-respecting half-ton in town. The Datsun Pickup is America's number one selling import truck. Pure and simple. Drive a Datsun... then decide.

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the women in Clifford Irving's life—a Florida scuba diving teacher and a Danish cabaret singer—went to the courthouse today to testify before a federal grand jury probing Irving's "autobiography" of Howard Hughes.

Scuba diver Anne Baxter arrived in a green pants suit, presumably to tell about accompanying Irving to St. Croix in the Virgin Islands last December.

Danish singer Nina van Pallandt has said she will tell the jury about her trip a year ago with Irving to Mexico, where he claims to have met Hughes beside an Indian ruin for the first long interview about the billionaire's purported life story. She says he never left her long enough to have met Hughes.

The grand jury met amid reports that a warrant would be sworn out for the arrest of Irving's wife, Edith, 36.

There were reports that the Swiss envoy in Washington

Rountree attended Pitt County School, Darlington School in Rome, Georgia, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where he received his law degree in 1950. He is a veteran of three years service in the U.S. Navy during World War II.

Commenting on the coming election, Rountree said "as a native of Pitt County with strong family ties in Greene County, I feel that I know the problems of our two counties. As an attorney, farmer, as well as having business associations across county lines, I am in a position of realizing the needs of the majority of our citizens."

He continued, "Our greatest asset is our people. If re-elected, I shall set as my highest priority initiating and supporting 'people' programs that will improve the quality of life in our area; better medical care, improved educational and job opportunities — especially technical programs — and the upgrading of our environment."

Rountree added that in his opinion his three terms in the General Assembly have moved him up "into a position where... his... voice can be heard and... influence felt in programs for improvement of the area." A fourth term, he said "will increase this advantage."

The incumbent hopeful is a Mason, past Exalted Ruler of the Elks, past Governor of the Moose, past Commander of the American Legion, and a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Married and the father of four children, Rountree is a member of the Episcopal Church and a past vestryman and is currently serving on the Pitt County Salvation Army Advisory Board. He is the recipient of the 1971 Citizens Award for the City of Greenville.

would dispatch an official to New York to swear out a complaint against Mrs. Irving as the first step toward extraditing her on charges of fraud and forgery.

Irving has said his wife, using a passport in the name of "Helga R. Hughes," deposited $650,000 in royalty checks intended for Hughes in a Swiss bank.

Swiss authorities said she later withdrew the money and deposited some of it in another Swiss bank under another pseudonym.

The latest issue of Time magazine said Irving has admitted his work is a hoax and is willing to plead guilty to fraud and perjury in return for leniency by the Swiss government toward his wife, a Swiss citizen.

Swiss officials denied reports, however, they had entered an agreement to drop bank fraud and passport forgery charges against Mrs. Irving if her husband went to jail.

Irving has said he met and taped conversations with Hughes on more than 100 occasions, but a voice said to be that of Hughes denied ever knowing Irving or authorizing the autobiography.

The Final Day

Today was the last day for Pitt County property owners to list their property for taxes without having to pay a ten per cent penalty for late listing.

Pitt County Commissioners, last week, extended the normal January tax listing period to February 15, thus giving property owners an extra 15 days in which to list their real and personal property for tax purposes.

Persons or business firms failing to list their property by the time the Tax Supervisor's office closes this afternoon at 5 o'clock will face the ten percent penalty charge.

Planning Bd. Meeting Set

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Law Library at the Court House in Greenville.

Included on the agenda for the regular monthly meeting of the planning body are reports of subdivision committees, subdivision regulations, requests for approval of priorities and goals and on proposed mobile home ordinances.

It is expected that subdivision regulations will be a major item for discussion at the session. The Wednesday meeting could be the last working session on the subdivision regulations before they receive final approval from the Planning Board and are passed on the Board of County Commissioners for its approval.

County planner Phillip Michaels said persons interested in attending the meeting are welcome.

Only police and soldiers are permitted to carry guns in Yemmen.

North Carolina's Task Force on Student Involvement feels it is accomplishing its goal of getting students actively involved in school matters other than traditional classroom studies, according to Michael Dixon of Farmville Central High School, Pitt County's representative.

Meeting with the State Board of Education in January, the students favored a Board resolution calling for "a vigorous program of voter education and registration the N. C. public schools, technical institutes, and community colleges." The students feel their school government classes need to cover more fully the process of registering and voting. A question-and-answer session on the subject between

Local Student On Honor Roll

LEXINGTON, Va. — Craig B. Jones of Greenville, N.C., a junior at Washington and Lee University, has been named to the honor roll and dean's list for the autumn academic term. He earned a 3.75 grade-point ratio on a 4.0 scale. A student must achieve a 3.5 ratio or higher for honor roll designation.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Gail D. Jones of 105 Dellwood Dr., he is an English major and a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity at W.L. He is also a member of Phi Eta Sigma honor society and the University Council.

He is a graduate of Rose High School.

Valentine Card From Pat Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pat Nixon says she gave the President a 15-cent Valentine card bearing the inscription "I love you."

She made the disclosure Monday while attending a luncheon and fashion show of the Women's Board of the Washington Heart Association.

Task Force, the N. C. Association of Student Council members and State Board of Elections director Alex Brock, Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, and Lacy Presnell III, assistant chairman of the State's Democratic Party, was held in Raleigh last week.

The Task Force was represented on the committee to pick North Carolina's Teacher of the Year. Their choice, Jay Rogers of Durham, has been named one of five finalists in the National Teacher of the Year program, Dixon said.

The Task Force newsletter, "Students Get Involved" cited a recent project at Ashbrook High School in Gastonia. "A positive student walkout" was held to call attention for the need for more mutual respect between teachers and students and more school pride. After the walkout, the students cleaned up the school and grounds while a local rock group played for them.

Students are gradually being appointed to advisory committees for local board of education as a result of the Task Force's work, Dixon said. Moore County student body presidents attend each board meeting and discuss student concerns with the Board, as do those of Graham and Gaston, he said.

Scholarships To Four Cadets

Four cadets in the East Carolina University Air Force ROTC have been awarded full scholarships for the spring quarter.

They are Joe Evans, Franklin Boyd, Andrew Gwaltney and Patrick McNamara.

The cadets were selected for scholarships on the basis of outstanding achievement during their terms in the ECU AFROTC Detachment 600. They are juniors at ECU.
