

Attorney Is U.S. House Candidate

Mack Howard, a Lenoir County native who has just recently resigned his commission as a major in the U.S. Army and is now establishing an office in Greenville as an attorney, on Tuesday announced his candidacy for congressman from the First Congressional District.

At an afternoon news conference held at Holiday Inn, the Republican candidate observed that while he was serving in Washington D.C. as Legislative Counsel to the Secretary of the Army and advisor on Congressional matters and liaison between the Department of the Army and the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives, he "had been urged by many friends in the District to return to eastern North Carolina and run for Congress."

He gave as a major reason for making his decision that "during the past year in Washington I have had the opportunity to

Unions Reject Back-To-Work Plea

Over 2.5 Million Britons Idled

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Britain's coal strike and the resulting power famine sent the unemployment total above 2.5 million today, the highest since the Depression year of 1933, but the Trades Union Congress rejected a back-to-work appeal by Prime Minister Edward Heath.

With industry cut back to a three-day week because electric power stations can't get coal to fuel their generators, the Department of Employment said

1.2 million men and women, or 5 per cent of the working population, had been laid off since Monday.

Before that the unemployed total was 1,023,000, and 280,000 miners are on strike.

With the strike in its sixth week, 10 power plants shut down and 70 more reduced their output. The power cuts were increased 50 per cent today, increasing the blackout for homes, factories and offices to three three-hour periods.

Heath met with Victor Feather, general secretary of the 9-million-member TUC, and appealed to him to urge the miners back to work. Feather rejected the appeal and accused the government of mishandling the strike.

The miners are demanding a raise of $15.50 over their current basic pay of $49.40 a week. The National Coal Board has offered them half this amount; and an inquiry board is now holding hearings with the hope of reaching a recommendation by Friday.

Joe Gormley, president of the striking National Union of Mineworkers, said that if the tribunal's recommendations are not acceptable to his men, "I hesitate to think what will happen to Britain."

Unless the strike is settled and coal moves into the power stations by the end of the month, millions more will be thrown out of work in a wholesale shutdown of industry.

Only hospitals and other essential services will be left with electric power.

Shortages of bread, milk, sugar and fresh meat were reported. Supermarkets said housewives were rushing to buy canned goods despite assurances from the Food Manufacturers Federation that there was no need for panic buying.

Pollution was on the increase in some parts of the country because of cuts in power to sewage pumping stations.

With Heath and his government under increasing fire because of the power crisis, the prime minister faced up to a challenge on another front. He warned members of his Conservative party who oppose Britain's joining the European Common Market that the government would resign if it is defeated in a House of Commons vote Thursday night on the European Communities bill, a key piece of Common Market legislation.

Hospital Board Approves Purchase Of Lab Machine

Pitt Memorial Hospital trustees Tuesday night approved

the purchase of a new culture machine for the hospital laboratory.

A loan of $45,000 has been obtained from North Carolina National Bank in order to pay cash for it. The company has promised there will be no charge for the four and a half months it has been being tried out and that $5,000 worth of materials will be included. Hospital pathologists, Dr. Lee West and Dr. Charles Gilbert, say they will pay the $3,000 per year maintenance charges for the first five years. A sum of $1,000 per month will be paid the bank each month from revenue from tests made by the machine—"In other words, we expect it to pay for itself," Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson said.

Pastors will be asked to fill out application forms for special visiting privileges beginning right away. Security officers have had considerable trouble recently with persons who say they are ministers and should be afforded unlimited visiting privileges, when they are not, Richardson said.

Ed Hackett, the hospital's patient representative, reported on his office's activities. His job is to help the patient get settled, help him with insurance and other financial problems, or with other matters that might arise. Patients who have been helped by him usually can be given a courtesy discharge without having to handle business arrangements with the hospital the last day of their stay there.

Richardson was given the go-ahead to deal with College View Laundry on a proposed three-year contract for some 30 per cent less than the laundry has charged previously. College View asked for the extended contract period so they could afford to buy additional equipment to handle the hospital's volume. This action would end the Board's consideration of using a prison laundry service in Sampson County.

The hospital received $13,100 from the Duke Endowment this week. The amount, the largest received by any hospital in this area, is based on $1 per welfare patient day.

Richardson told the Board all architectural plans for the new hospital should be ready for review by the North Carolina Medical Care Commission when the group meets in September. February, 1973 seems a likely bidding date, he said.

Board chairman Woodrow Wooten read a letter of appreciation from Mrs. Edward Switzer, a Board member's wife who was recently a Pitt Memorial patient.

Scott Declares Dismissed Pair Root Of Trouble

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today he fired two high officials at Cherry Hospital because investigators concluded they "were the main sources of trouble in and with" the mental institution.

Scott made the comment in a statement contradicting reports that one of the officials, personnel manager George Culbreth, was dismissed because of a prior criminal conviction.

Mental Health Commissioner Eugene Hargrove said Tuesday Culbreth was fired because the State Bureau of Investigation found that he had not reported the conviction when he applied for the post at Cherry Hospital. Culbreth and J. W. Gaddy Jr., the hospital's business manager, were ousted last week after Scott publicly requested their resignations.

Scott said today "the prior criminal conviction of the personnel manager at Cherry Hospital was not my reason for requesting his resignation."

"The SBI report concluded that these two gentlemen — that is, the personnel and business managers — were the main sources of trouble in and with Cherry Hospital and had conspired and worked together toward ousting people who tried to correct many difficulties there, causing bad morale among other employees," Scott said.

Culbreth charged Monday that he is being used as a "scapegoat" for the mismanagement of his superiors. He said his duties as personnel manager did not include management responsibilities.

Culbreth also said he had not been informed of the reasons for his dismissal. But Hargrove said Tuesday that Culbreth had been told orally and in letters mailed Feb. 7 and 8.

"Mr. Culbreth was not fired for his prison record per se, but because of the fact that he omitted any reference to it in his application for the job" six years ago, Hargrove said.

Frank Graham Dies After A Long Illness

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Frank Porter Graham, former president of the University of North Carolina, U.S. senator and United Nations mediator, died today in North Carolina Memorial Hospital, where he had been a patient since Jan. 21. He was 85.

He had been admitted to the hospital in Chapel Hill on Jan. 21 for a series of tests for an undisclosed condition, and suffered a heart seizure last Friday.

His liberal views had put him at odds with many conservative elements in the state.

His defeat for Democratic nomination to a full-term in the Senate in the early 1950s came after a bitter campaign with racial overtones. Opponents picture Graham as a traitor to the South who had signed the controversial report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights during the Truman administration.

Graham was a professor of history at the university in Chapel Hill when the trustees selected him as president in 1930. A few years later he became the first president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, which included the school in Chapel Hill, North Carolina State University in Raleigh, and the Woman's College in Greensboro, now the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

His appointment to the Senate in 1949 by Gov. W. Kerr Scott — the late father of the present governor, Bob Scott — was a political blockbuster which led to the most heated campaign in recent state history, and his defeat for Democratic nomination by the late Sen. Willis Smith.

Supporters of Smith convinced many voters that Graham stood more solidly for equal rights for the black man than Southern traditions called for.

Ayden Publisher Is Filing As Candidate For District Judge

An Ayden newspaper owner-publisher and magistrate, J. Russell Wooten, announced today his candidacy for the District Court judgeship now held by Robert D. Wheeler of Grifton.

Wooten, owner and publisher of the Ayden News-Leader — a weekly publication in the Ayden area — was scheduled to pay his filing fee today at the State Board of elections' office in Raleigh. He has served as magistrate in Ayden for the past two years.

The publisher has attended several schools on the District Court system, sponsored by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill, during his term of office as magistrate. His bid for one of the four judgeships in the Pitt-Craven-Pamlico-Carteret County district is his first bid for elective office.

'Superior Unit Award'

The 398th Supply Co. of Greenville, Army Reserve unit commanded by Capt. Ivey C. Gentry Jr. of Kinston, has received a Superior Unit Award for 1971 by the direction of the Secretary of the Army.

The award recognizes a unit that has maintained excellence in five categories; performance at annual training, performance on an inspection by the Inspector General of Third Army, rating on the Command Maintenance Inspection, percentage of MOS qualification, and attendance at monthly training assemblies.

Col. Corbett Rushing, commander of the 171st Direct Support Group of Raleigh, made the award presentation.

Gentry reported that this is the first award that the 398th Supply Co. has received. The unit was organized in January of 1968 with the primary mission of supporting the Regular Army in the area of supply in the event of declared war.

The company will train this summer at Tooele Army Depot, Salt Lake City, Utah.

ECU Announces Student Union Low Bids

East Carolina University has announced low bidders on contracts for a new $2.5 million Student Union facility on the Greenville campus expected to be completed by May 1, 1974.

Low bids will be reviewed and subject to final approval by the Property Control Office, Department of Administration, before contracts are awarded. C. G. Moore, East Carolina University Vice President for Business Affairs, said this is expected within 60 days and that actual construction would begin within 30 days after contract awards.

East Carolina University will issue revenue bonds to finance the project. Bonds will be sold by the executive committee of the ECU trustees in April, Moore said.

The new ECU Student Union will be located on university-owned property between Seventh and Eighth Streets.

Moore said the center of the building will be approximately the present intersection of Charles and Eighth Streets.

"It will contain all of the present student union facilities, offices and more," Moore said. It will include a 750-seat theater, an eight-lane bowling alley, student government and publications offices, a bank and other service and recreation facilities.

Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C.,

meanwhile notified ECU officials that the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has approved a grant to finance interest costs on the Student Union bonds in the form of a subsidy up to $84,100 per year. Moore said it is doubtful that interest costs will reach that figure.

Apparent successful low bidders on the project are as follows:

General contract — C. J. Kern,

Greensboro, N.C. $1,842,000 (Nine bids were received.)

Plumbing — J. H. Askins Co., Goldsboro, N.C. $71,730 (Nine bids were received.)

Heating and Air Conditioning — Kinston Plumbing and Heating Co., Kinston, N.C. $225,639. (Eleven bids were received.)

Electrical — Bryant-Durham Electrical Co., Durham, N.C. $174,475 (Six bids were received.)

Wear Fur For Fashion Not Just Warmth

DON'T HIBERNATE IN FUR. These days the fashion idea for fur is that the coats are made for action and good looks, not just warmth. At a recent fashion show, Swakara, the broadtail from South West Africa was shown in a number of styles. From left to right, first Heidi Vanderbilt models a floor-length evening coat with a Chinchilla collar. Next, Rita Gam shows a black broadtail blazer with matching pants. Kathy Lindsay Schaffer, daughter of Mayor John

Lindsay of New York City, models a beige sports coat next. Kiki Topping, last, has on a trim black walking coat with a silver fox collar and matching hat. All the coats were designed by Revillon, and the well-known actresses and society personalities who donated their services did so to benefit the Will Rogers Hospital and the O'Donnell Memorial Research Laboratories. Psychologist Says The Obese Person Has To Develop An Awareness

By ROBERT STRAND
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Do you have a weight problem? Maybe the best thing for you would be a large sundae, topped with oodles of nice chocolate syrup and whipped cream. This is a first step advocated by Dr. Leonard Pearson, a psychologist specializing in obesity. He argues that the problem is not dieting—but discovering how you are using food in your life. "The obese person has to develop an awareness of food, which leads to an over-all sense of freedom about it," he said in an interview. "This can break the tyranny of food, and can end the agony of a life preoccupied with eating." Pearson, a Sonoma State College professor, operates the Institute for the Treatment of Obesity and Overeating. One of its features is a workshop to which participants are urged to bring all their favorite foods. "You are entitled to feel that you want to eat, to like to eat, to overeat," he said. "Once you understand all of this, you can stop worrying about diets, about calories."

People are asked where they feel hunger. Some feel it in their jaw, shoulder or back rather than stomach. They are asked to reflect on whether they like things soft and oozy, crunchy and brittle, hot or cold. With "food awareness" exercises, people discover which side of the mouth they like most, for everybody has a preference. Some like the top back of the mouth, just as an infant does, and are encouraged to use a straw.

Then Pearson helps participants identify the emotions often triggering hunger. In different people it may be tension, anger, loneliness, anxiety or sexual arousal. "Many people don't always want food," he said. "They want companionship, social sharing. Once they understand this, they can have coffee and conversation."

For cultural and ethnic reasons, some have emotional ties to pasta or pilaf that they have been eating all their lives. Pearson said it's best not to eliminate these items from the diet. If a meal is really an excuse to work toward some forbidden goodie, Pearson advises, "skip the meal, and just eat the ice cream that's so important."

Tonic Water Provided Lead

FELIXSTOWE, England (WNS) — Mary Johnson was scanning a newspaper advertisement for tonic water when she came upon a recommendation signed by a woman with her mother's name. "I wrote to her and discovered that she really is my mother," reported Mrs. Johnson. "We had been separated for 40 years. Now I am united with my entire family again."

President Sends Greetings To Mrs. Haddock

AYDEN — On Thursday Mrs. Launa Haddock of 112 Fenner College St., celebrated her 94th birthday. Her sisters, Mrs. Claude Burney and Mrs. W. J. Bullock both of Ayden were the hostesses for a social hour in honor of her birthday. Birthday cake and ice cream were served to a small group of relatives and friends who called during the afternoon. At the close of the social hour, Mrs. Roy Turnage entertained Mrs. Haddock and the guests by playing her favorite songs on the organ. A birthday card from President Richard Nixon was one of the many surprises enjoyed by Mrs. Haddock.

Tell Gift-Giver About Mistake

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for six months. About a week ago my husband came home with a wedding present from one of the men he works with. This seemed strange to me because I was sure that this man had given us a gift the day of our wedding. I checked my list of gifts and found that I was right.

The question is, do we tell this absent-minded gift-giver that he has given us two gifts? Or should we keep quiet and spare him the embarrassment?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Tell him. He could have you confused with another couple, who may be out a gift if you keep quiet.

DEAR ABBY: My husband sleeps in his underwear. He wears the long woolen kind, and he sleeps in the same underwear he has worn all day. The problem is getting him to change it. Abby, there are four suits of clean underwear in his drawer, but he won't put on a clean pair without a fight. I can't even get his underwear away from him to put in the wash. Don't tell me to grab it when he's in the bathtub. He doesn't bathe much either. Please help me. He is getting pretty ripe.

FARGO, N. D.

DEAR FARGO: Look at it this way. You don't have to worry about another woman stealing him. And he's easy to find in the dark. But if you want action, try begging, bribing, nagging, and leaving! And in that order.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you referred to the complaint of a wife that her husband had made love to her exactly five times since January 1, 1970. As I recall, the wife signed herself "Practically Untouched in Tulsa."

You advised her to see a lawyer. I am sure that many lawyers around the country were flattered by your recommendation, but you would have earned the undying gratitude of the nation's judges had you suggested instead that she see a judge, as their social contacts are considerably more limited than those of the lawyers.

ANONYMOUS ATTORNEY

DEAR ABBY: Please inform your many readers that the American Red Cross will record a family member's voice on tape, take a Polaroid picture of the family member, and mail the tape and picture to a loved one on military duty overseas or in a military hospital anywhere in the world. This activity is free and is one of the many programs available thru the Red Cross Chapter's Service to Military Families.

MRS. CORNELIUS HARRIGAN
Volunteer Chairman
Service to Military Families

DEAR MRS. HARRIGAN: It's done! Now so far we have the USO, The American Red Cross, and even a non-affiliated group of interested do-gooders in The City of Brotherly Love who will perform the same service. Thanks for writing.

Industrial Growth Means Jobs

North Carolina set new records last year in new industrial plants and expansions of existing plants.

The Commerce and Industry Division announced that a record $702 million was invested in new industrial capacity in our state during the year.

The division said that the plants would create 24,433 jobs upon completion.

It was an outstanding year for North Carolina in its quest for new jobs for its expanding population. We trust that the new industries being brought in will maintain an adequate wage scale which will allow those 24,433 persons who find new jobs to live decently.

We also assume that the new industries are the kind that will be good corporate citizens so far as protection of our environment is concerned.

If these two criteria are met then we will have something that will be of great value to Tar Heels, the new industries that are coming in and those that are already here.

North Carolina has much to offer industries which move to our state. We have a central location, good water and rail transportation, and for the most part we have clean air and water. We feel that most industries which want to move to our state would want to keep it clean. For those few who do not we should convince them they would be happier some place else.

To Rule Otherwise Would Be Infringing

Superior Court Judge Maurice Braswell has ruled wisely in deciding that topless dancing is legal in North Carolina.

Any other ruling could be a dangerous infringement on the rights and freedoms of all our citizens.

Topless dance clubs do not have to appeal to all of us in order to conclude that the topless dance is an art form to some people and, consequently should not be stifled by the law.

The case will undoubtedly be appealed, but we hope that the higher courts will agree that the topless ban is a form of censorship which should not be allowed.

JACKSONVILLE, Florida

When Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio opened his Florida Presidential primary campaign against President Nixon here last week as avenging archangel of the Republican right, the big political guns of the White House were aimed at him from behind the facade of Nixon nonchalance.

The carefully nurtured notion that the White House scarcely deigns to notice Ashbrook, attractive 43-year-old founder of the American Conservative Union, is belied by the facts. Having failed in top-level secret efforts to talk him out of running, the Nixon high command is battling to make sure his vote total is not embarrassingly high in the March 14 Florida voting.

Consequently, state party leaders have been muscled into line against Ashbrook and big conservative names are on their way to Florida. Such precautions against a little-known Ohio Congressman would seem ludicrous, despite the President's pervasive fear of losing his bedrock conservative support, if it were not for this political reality: the troublemaking potential of Ashbrook, who is in the battle not for personal glory but as a missionary warning conservative Republicans that Mr. Nixon has betrayed them.

The White House wants to destroy Ashbrook's credentials as a serious conservative leader with a humiliating defeat, in hopes of making it moot whether or not he campaigns for Mr. Nixon in the fall. For Ashbrook will not campaign for Mr. Nixon, as he did in 1968, unless the Administration moves well to the right — an unlikely prospect. "I might give him a grudging vote," Ashbrook told us here. He means it.

It is precisely the impact of "grudging" campaign support — or less — that worries the Nixon camp. As a highly-respected, articulate conservative, Ashbrook might turn off right-wing shock troops who are the best workers in the Republican party, counted on for money and shoe leather.

Realizing this, the President's top men tried to stop the Ashbrook campaign before it started. On Dec. 28, the day before Ashbrook announced, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell telephoned him and tried to head him off.

Mitchell's beguiling theme: of course Ashbrook's angry protests against huge budget deficits, the relative decline of American military power, and President Nixon's decision to cuddle up to the Chinese Communists had merit. Mr. Nixon's chief political manager could understand that.

But, continued Mitchell, Mr. Nixon was holding the line as well as he could. If a Democrat is elected in November, things would be much worse.

Having made his pitch in vain, Mitchell returned to the pleasures of his vacation in Palm Springs, Calif. Also in vain was vice President Spiro T. Agnew's low-key effort to persuade conservative columnist and editor William F. Buckley, Jr. not to back Ashbrook.

With Ashbrook still running, the Nixon high command is now geared to make him flop miserably in his primary campaigns, particularly in Florida.

White House political aides were not pleased when L. E. (Tommy) Thomas, the party's conservative Florida state chairman, predicted Ashbrook would get up to 25 per cent of the vote here. As a result, Thomas now forecasts an Ashbrook disaster and is importing a dazzling horde of conservative celebrities to trumpet for the President.

Florida Republicans will be wooed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas (Republican national chairman), Sen. John Tower of Texas, Sen. William Brock of Tennessee, Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton (a former national chairman), White House political aide Harry Dent and more.

Further, Thomas has restrained all but one Republican county leader from defecting to Ashbrook. Starting with the state's top Republican Sen. Edward Gurney every Florida party leader is behind Mr. Nixon.

'No Retreat' In Drugs War

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — North Carolina leaders in the war against drugs feel that repealing laws against the use of marijuana would be a retreat in the battle.

"I don't see how we can let the bars down on any dangerous drug," said Roy Epps, director of the N. C. Drug Authority. "If you open the gate to one, how will you keep it closed on others?"

How harmful marijuana is must be determined by scientific research, said SBI Director Charles Dunn. Whether it should be legalized, he added, ought to be decided on the basis of scientific findings, not opinion or politics.

"Frankly, I don't favor repeal of marijuana laws," he added. Dunn and Epps dissented from the recommendation of John H. Finlator, recently retired deputy director of the federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, that criminal penalties against marijuana use be abolished.

Tar Heel Native Finlator, a North Carolina native, said last week that marijuana should be classed with alcohol and tobacco as a socially acceptable drug. "Their potential harm is limited, and falls within that area which the people of this country have apparently decided is acceptable," he said.

Both alcohol and tobacco have proven more harmful than marijuana, Finlator argued. The scientist rather than the policeman must decide that, said Dunn. Even if it's the case, he asked, "can we afford another problem like alcohol?"

The federal government has research projects going on marijuana, he noted, and valid conclusions on the drug's effects will have to wait on their completion.

Epps said there is an important distinction between marijuana and alcohol and tobacco. The latter two require a manufacturing process involving substantial investment; the former can be grown and used by anyone, anywhere.

Difficult to Control

"It would be impossible to exercise control over marijuana through taxation or licensing, as with alcohol and tobacco," he explained.

Finlator's views will find a little support among those in the field of law enforcement, Epps predicted. A veteran of narcotics work with the SBI, Epps said he could not recall hearing another present or former law enforcement official speak in favor of legal use of marijuana.

"Most of them would be ready to stand up and fight if you suggested it," he said. Finlator grew up in Raleigh. A brother, Rev. W. W. Finlator, is pastor of a Raleigh Baptist church.

While number two man in the federal drug enforcement agency, Finlator came to Raleigh in 1970 to speak to the Governor's Conference on Drug Abuse.

"Nothing that he said then in public or in private even implied that he felt laws against marijuana should be repealed," Epps recalled.

Individuals React Differently How harmful marijuana is has been debated a long time without definitive answers, Epps said. Just as with alcohol, its effect varies with the individual, he pointed out. "Some get belligerent. Some want to hug your neck," he said.

"My position on marijuana is that it is not constructive. It does nothing to improve intelligence, looks, or the ability to perform. It is a source of potential harm to some, and a very real hazard to others."

Not everyone who uses marijuana goes on to hard drugs, such as heroin; many of those on heroin started off on marijuana.

Typically, the first step for a drug user is cigarettes and alcohol, then on to marijuana or amphetamines. "Very few people start directly on heroin," Epps said.

The person who smokes marijuana has crossed a borderline into the drug culture. Having committed an illegal act involving drug use, Epps said, he is to that degree exposed to the drug culture and more likely to try something else.

Why make it easier to take that step? he asked.

CHINESE TORTURE!

By ART BUCHWALD

The Old Nixon Warned

WASHINGTON — The New Nixon was furious. The White House staff had never seen him so mad. "Where is he?" he demanded as he opened closets, looked under beds and searched behind the drapes.

"Who, Mr. President?" "The Old Nixon," the New Nixon said, storming down the halls.

"I think I saw him in Bob Haldeman's office," someone said.

"I might have known it," the New Nixon muttered. He walked into Haldeman's office, and there he found the Old Nixon hiding under Haldeman's desk.

The Old Nixon looked up sheepishly, "Were you looking for me?"

"No I was looking for Howard Hughes. What on earth did you do on The Today Show the other morning?"

"I didn't do anything," the Old Nixon said. "I'm clean."

"Clean, my eye. You got Bob Haldeman to say that anyone who didn't go along with my peace plan was a traitor and consciously aiding and abetting the enemy."

"Well, what's wrong with that?" the Old Nixon demanded.

"Nothing except that now the Democratic candidates are accusing me of using Joe McCarthy tactics to win the election. I didn't want to bring up the patriotism issue this early in the campaign."

"Ah, come on Dick," the Old Nixon said. "I was just having fun. Haldeman had never appeared on a television show before, and he came to me for a little guidance. I figured it wouldn't hurt anything if he accused the Democrats of a little treason."

The New Nixon said, "For heaven's sake, Tricky, can't you get it through your head that we've got to stop that kind of mudslinging? There are a lot of people in this country who want to get out of Vietnam, and they don't care how we do it. If you start accusing them of treason, the whole thing will backfire on us."

"Look, you didn't say it. Haldeman said it. He was speaking as a private citizen. Why don't you have Ron Ziegler announce that he was just speaking for himself?"

"I've done that already," the New Nixon said. "But I want you to stay away from my staff. Except for Kissinger, none of them knows one end of a microphone from the other."

"I think you're overreacting, Dick. The staff likes me. I tell them how it was in the old days before you got your 'President-of-all-the-people' complex."

"Why don't you just go away and let me run the country?"

"Because you need me, Dick, and you know it. You're not going to have an easy time of it in November in spite of all your trips around the world kowtowing to those Commie leaders. When you're finished with all your statesmanship, it's still good old dirty politics that are going to win the election."

"Look, Tricky, I have to go

Other Editors Say UN And The Press

(Christian Science Monitor)

It is a pity that Kurt Waldheim, the United Nations' new Secretary-General, has seen fit, in one of his first official acts, to uphold the decision to withdraw the accreditation of the two Nationalist Chinese members of the UN press corps.

Both journalists work for Nationalist China's official news agency. They were barred from the UN last December at the request of Communist China on the ground that the 'general Assembly's resolution expelling Nationalist China from the UN applied equally to the news agency's employees.

The ruling touched off a wave of protests from newsmen and press organizations, including the International Press Institute and the UN Correspondents' Association. The latter backed up its protest with a legal opinion from Ernest A. Gross, a former United States representative at the UN, who found that the discreditation of the two correspondents was erroneous "in fact and in law."

But Mr. Waldheim told his recent press conference that he stood by the opinion of the UN's own legal counsel that the discreditation was mandatory under the assembly's resolution.

In his affidavit, Mr. Gross pointed out that the UN had never in the past made a distinction between the various types of news media represented at the UN — whether official, semiofficial or private. We might add that several nonmember states have journalists accredited to the UN, among them Communist East Germany, which is represented by a correspondent of its official press.

As we said at the time of the original ruling in December, we deplore the ouster of the Nationalist Chinese journalists as a flagrant violation of the principle of press freedom. Moreover, it constitutes a dangerous precedent, for in effect it allows a Communist country to place a ban on newsmen that it does not want to have around.

Hobby Industry Seeks Divorce

By ELMER ROESSNER

The hobby industry, expecting sales of more than $900 million this year, has decided it has come of age. It wants a divorce from the toy industry, with which its sales, profits and legislative facets have long been mingled by the government and private economists.

Demands for a separate understanding were strongly voiced at the Hobby Industry of America's annual convention and trade show in Chicago last week.

"While government statisticians still classify us in the toy industry, the consumer is smarter," said Harold Carstens, president of the association. "To millions of hobbyists, a toy is not a hobby. Imagine the put-down of a business executive assembling, for relaxation, a scale-model ship or a scale-model electric train empire, being told he's playing with a toy. Or a woman making her own jewelry."

The hobby industry has adopted the slogan, "Don't toy with hobbies!" Hobbies, ne pointed out, are not playthings; they are means of education, for training, for stimulating creativity, for relaxation and for financial gains.

Carstens pointed out that a number of major food companies, including General Mills, Consolidated Foods, Nabisco Co., and General Foods, have acquired hobby and craft companies. It's not only that hobby products are excellent premiums, but they lead to repeat sales and they broaden their market for many foods, interesting both young and old consumers. Hobby products also take advantage of proven methods of distribution.

Carstens pointed out that if hobby goods were classed as educational items instead of toys, duties on them would be lowered by many foreign countries who impose high tariffs on toys to protect their own toy industries. In addition, educational materials enjoy lower postal rates than other merchandise within the United States.

Recognition is coming, Carstens said, pointing out that the Small Business Administration has issued a booklet on hobby merchandising.

Another reason the hobby industry would like to be disassociated from the toy industry (although many toy companies make hobby

The Roald Amundsen, replica of a viking ship used by Norsemen in early voyages to America, plans to weigh anchor in Elizabeth City Thursday and continue her sail around the world. The craft crossed the ocean under its own sails and after touching many ports, tied up in Elizabeth City where bad weather has held her.

Forgetting that they were listed as the underdogs, the Teachers Cagers went to Wilmington last night and handed the strong Wilmington basketball team a 24 to 23 defeat. These two teams will meet again Friday night at the college campus building.

Playing at the State Theatre this week only is Bing Crosby in "I Surrender Dear."

Strength For Today

YES—THE BEST EVER

"What are we coming to anyway?" "The world's bad enough and getting worse by the minute." "You know as well as I do that this is the most turbulent and disordered age in history."

We know nothing of the sort. Would you like to have lived a thousand years ago—in the year A.D. 971? Most of our ancestors were going about in girdles of animal skin. Kings were in a huddle, counselors and chieftains trying to work out a way to get ahead in the world and put neighboring kings out of business. A thousand years ago one was likely to get an arrow through his head if he stole an hour or two to visit a neighbor.

Let us get this in mind: with all its dangers and disadvantages the age in which we live is the best age humanity has known in its history. The threat of war is still with us as it has been from the beginning. Heads of State are wrestling with serious problems, but they are intent on solving these problems. Let us rejoice and give thanks.

The kids are in revolt. Maybe they ought to be. Politicians are still planning for victory over the opposing party. But what's wrong about that? There are two sides to every question, and the other side may be right—at least once in a while.

There's lots to talk about after we have watched tv's news report for a half hour. Our age is comfortable, dangerous, interesting.

Hallelujah!

Two Charged In Bombings

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Three bombs shattered windows in the Manchester police station and the new central fire department station early today and two persons were arrested.

Police said Karl A. Laaman, 23, of Buffalo, N.Y. and Kathryn A. Holt, 21, of Boston were charged with illegal transportation of explosives.

Police said Laaman was arrested minutes after the blast and had an injured left hand. He was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital.

A torn and bloodied glove was found at the scene of the explosions.

Miss Holt was arrested about an hour after the blast.

No policemen or firemen were injured.

Police Capt. William Luther said one bomb went off outside the station and blew out two large windows. Ten minutes later, Luther said, another bomb exploded in the same area.

At about the same time, Luther said, a bomb exploded outside the fire station a short distance away and shattered several windows.

Luther said the type of bombs used "were hard to determine. I assume they were homemade."

were exuberant when Buckley got on the list of journalists accompanying the President to China. His absence will limit speech-making for Ashbrook.

If Ashbrook survives the primary season to California, the White House plans to bushwhack him there with the biggest conservative of all: Spiro Agnew. Agnew will share the platform with Ashbrook at the convention of the conservative California Republican Assembly April 8 to block its endorsement of Ashbrook.

Unruffled by all this, Ashbrook intends to persist in his theme: that Mr. Nixon has lost all rights of allegiance from conservatives. In short, unsilenceable, he still may be a factor next fall.

Thieves Spurn Stealing Fruit

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI)—Florida citrus growers used to record large losses to fruit thefts but in recent years the thieves have turned away from the fruit and increasingly to grove equipment, says Florida Citrus Mutual, a growers' cooperative.

Larry Thompson, director of Mutual's fruit protection division, says figures for the 1969-70 citrus season showed growers lost more than $116,590 in stolen equipment, an increase of 155 per cent over the previous year. But fruit thefts for the season were down to less than $2,000.

"Are you out of your mind? I'd have to bump somebody from the Washington Post or the New York Times off the plane. I couldn't do that."

"I could," the Old Nixon grinned evilly.

"Now you listen to me. I'm going on the radio today to say that I do not consider any of my Democratic critics traitors because they disagree with my Vietnam peace policy. I'm going to ask them to think before they speak, but I'm going to clear them of Haldeman's implications. I don't want you to talk to Haldeman or Erlichman or Klein or anyone else on my staff without first clearing it with me."

Young Minister's Day Off Taken Up By Clinical Psychologist Role

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer
BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Each Sunday a young man with a full red beard dons black ecclesiastical robes and helps lead the congregation in worship, his occasional sermons filled with a message of love and acceptance.

Then, as the rest of the week, he's the Rev. Jack Wright, 35, the full-time associate minister at Burbank's First United Methodist Church, a sprawling mission-style red brick building whose bell tower's electronic chimes mark each hour.

On Tuesday, his day off, he drives the family's aging green Mustang 10 miles over the hills to Sierra Madre, another Los Angeles suburb, and becomes

Dr. Jack Wright, a casually dressed, fee-charging clinical psychologist with a stream of patients whose lives are in crises.

Jack Wright is an unusual Methodist minister, the product of a unique program at Fuller Theological Seminary in nearby Pasadena.

He's a pioneer on a frontier where religion and psychology are being merged in hopes some of the church's problems and those of its members can be solved.

Begun in 1965, the Fuller program blends a rigorous six years of study in psychology and divinity to produce Ph.D. Clinical psychologists. Seminary officials say it is the only such graduate psychology program in the country.

"We think this program is an attempt to tie psychology in a very technical and deep way into the common life of the congregation of the local church," Fuller President David Hubbard, a scholar of the Old Testament, said in an interview.

As associate minister of the 1,500-member Burbank church, Wright gets to preach the sermon every sixth Sunday. He said his sermons are about the Bible using psychology to help understand present times.

"I preach to them about love and acceptance and confrontation with themselves over lost dreams," he said.

He uses his psychology daily in administering the church's education program and has often found it helpful in pastoral counseling situations.

But being a minister and a psychologist has its problems.

He sometimes feels church members with problems worry they are talking to "the local shrink" instead of their minister.

"I have a feeling some are a little suspicious of my doctorate in psychology," he said. "The beard doesn't help, of course."

AJACCIO, Corsica (AP) All 10 persons aboard a small Greek freighter were jailed after customs inspectors said they found 1,289 cases of American cigarettes worth $140,000 concealed in the hold.

Human Rights Broadened

TOKYO (UPI)—Nearly four out of every 10 Japanese believe children who fail to provide for their parents in old age are guilty of violating human rights, according to an official survey among 2,496 persons over 20 years old.

A majority of those surveyed also said violations of human rights include police search of individuals, dismissal of union strikers, air pollution and circulating irresponsible rumors.

Hunger-Fighters Have One Answer

By BARNEY SEIBERT
SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Henry Borsook's assignment might have staggered a less eminent scientist.

Cafeteria owner Clifford E. Clinton went to Borsook, a California Institute of Technology biochemist, one day during World War II.

"This is what I must have," Clinton told Borsook and his first requirement was a pip—a product that would provide one third of a day's full nutrition packed into two ounces. And he added:

'Must Not Offend'

"It must not offend any religious dietary law and must make no significant drain on supplies of accustomed food."

"Production costs should make it available to people of very low income—under five cents a meal."

"It must have a long shelf life, require no refrigeration and be palatable whether served hot or cold," Clinton said.

Clinton, the son of missionaries, had seen hunger during his childhood in China, during World War I service and during the depression in Los Angeles, when he opened his cafeteria to the hungry, charging them a nickel a meal or giving them free food if they had no money.

He knew that famine accom-

STOKES — Twenty-three Stokes-Pactolus School students were named to the principal's list during the third marking period.

The following students were named to the principal's list:

Sixth grade — Crystal Allen, Juanita Gonzalez, Laura Harrison, Jimmy Singleton, Annie Battle, Danita Gray, Loretta Hudson, Tom Summerlin, Wilma Crandall, Jenny Haddock, John Hunt and Nell Tyson; or malnutrition.

Oil Seeds Rich
Cal Tech's Borsook, a physician as well as a biochemist, knew that oil seeds were the best source of low cost protein. In the United States, he knew that the residue from millions of bushels of soybeans from which oil had been extracted was discarded or fed to animals.

From this soybean cake, Borsook developed a formula that met each of Clinton's specifications.

With only minor variation, the formula still is in use, currently feeding the hungry refugees from the recent war between India and Pakistan.

Borsook's formula resulted in Clinton establishing "meals for millions," a non-profit enterprise aimed at providing an adequate diet for the world's hungry.

In the 25 years since the Meals for Millions' high protein food supplements have battled famine and poor nutrition in the United States, India, Brazil, Ghana, Mexico, Ceylon, Chile, Colombia, Uganda, Ecuador, Guatemala, Honduras, Kenya, Nigeria, Pakistan, Thailand and South Korea.

Recently, Meals for Millions shipped 25 tons of its Multi-Purpose Food (MPF) supplement to feed the hungry Bangladesh refugees in camps around Calcutta.

MPF is processed by Modern Protein Foods, Santa Monica, another non-profit enterprise. Any money that modern protein food earns is turned over to Meals for Millions to finance its research, training and food supplement programs, a spokesman said.

An Entire Family
Borsook's original formula led to an entire family of high protein foods supplements, all based on residue from oil seeds. The protein supplements are made in various parts of the world from waste products of coconut, peanuts, safflower, sesame and mung beans.

Still in the research phase are food supplements from ground fish (fish meal or fish flour) and algae, according to Lawrence Lipman, director of food development for Meals for Millions.

Meals for Millions is supported by public subscription—chiefly grants from church groups, womens clubs and civic organizations. Governors of 23 U.S. states proclaimed last November as 1971 "Meals for Millions month." The 25 tons of MPF for Bangladesh refugees was largely made possible by a grant from the Disciples of Christ church.

Food Supplement
MPF is designed to be used as a food supplement. "For example, Mexicans can add it to the corn flour for their tortillas; American Indians may add it to the flour for their fried bread. It provides proper protein without significantly altering the taste," a Meals for Millions official said.

However, in an emergency situation, the almost tasteless powder can be mixed with water to make a somewhat unpalatable but highly nutritious gruel.

The original Borsook formula also led to development of a non-dairy milk substitute made entirely from soybeans and marketed in such milk-short areas as Hong Kong.

Two ounces of MPF are said to supply one-third of the daily protein requirement of an adult male. For a child the recommended amount is half that.

BATTLES BOTTLES

MONTREAL (AP) — Three young Montrealers are battling pollution by scrounging through refuse from bars and apartment blocks for bottles that can be recycled and sold in their craft shop. The trio turns the bottles into goblets, jardinières, candle holders, lamps, jewelry and punch bowl sets.

Dedicating Town Hall On Mar. 19

Seek To Buy School Land

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night set March 19 as the date for formal dedication of the new Ayden Town Hall.

The facility, occupied in September, contains 14,465 square feet and houses the town's administrative offices, the police department, the fire department, Rescue Squad, offices of the director of the Ayden Economic Council and the District Court.

In other business, Mayor Ross Persinger appointed a committee composed of commissioners Rex Smith and Harry Mumford to work with Don Russell, city manager, and Bill Stroud toward the establishment of a retirement program for town of Ayden employees.

The board approved a one year extension of a contract with Howard Harrell Co., of Forest City, for Christmas decorations. Board members passed an ordinance prohibiting the drinking or offering to drink alcoholic beverage on public property within the town of Ayden.

An ordinance prohibiting trucks with more than one tone capacity to drive through the town hall parking lot was approved.

Ralph Ford, code enforcement officer for Ayden, reported to the board about public hearings and condemnation of approximately 25 homes within Ayden.

Mayor Persinger instructed Russell to prepare an ordinance establishing a Human Relations

WILLIAMSTON — Members of the Martin County Board of Education, Tuesday, voted to make the Smithwick heirs of near Jamesville an offer of $1,800 per acre for a 20 acre tract of land adjoining the present elementary school property.

The board has been seeking to purchase additional land for the purpose of expansion of the school property.

Other matters considered at the school board meeting includes a plan to standardize the school day throughout the county, with a teacher's day to run from 8:15 a.m. until 3:45 p.m. and the student's day to be from 8:30 until 3:30 p.m. At the Commission.

The ordinance will be discussed at the March board meeting.

Board member Macon Holiday of Jamesville was selected to attend the Human Relations Workshop to be held in Greensboro February 27-29. Holiday will be attending with several representatives from the schools.

Candidate Lost Part Of Script

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — State Rep. Clahrd Clark of Monroe lost the last page of a speech announcing his candidacy for Congress from the 8th District. He had to look around for another Tuesday in a moment that seemed much longer because of the silence.

The 45-year-old lawyer, a consumer advocate in the legislature, is the only Democrat to announce in opposition to Rep. Earl B. Ruth of Salisbury, a Republican who is seeking his third successive two-year term.

The children were Betty Pearl, Willis, Ralph, and Irene. Irene and Ralph are still living. So is a brother, T. W. Howard, 94, who spends his summers at Ocracoke and his winters with a daughter in Tucson, Ariz.

"My mother spent her life taking care of her family," Miss Fleming said. "She never cared for organizations or church work, though she attended worship at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church and she helped out during both World War I and II by knitting sweaters and socks for servicemen. Knitting and crocheting were two things she really enjoyed. And she loved nature — gardening and studying birds were two favorite pastimes.

"Her greatest joy, though, was people. She has told me in the past few years that some of her happiest days, other than when her children were growing up, were when her only two grandchildren lived with her after their parents moved to Norfolk and the boys stayed here to finish high school. The grandsons are Ralph Fleming Jr., a Durham minister, and Dennis Fleming, who lives in Louisville, Ky.

Until two years ago Mrs. Fleming was active and faithfully kept a diary, but in 1969 she fell and broke a hip. This accident plus some small strokes have made her a bed patient. Her daughter, a retired public school teacher, cares for her as she would a beloved infant, feeding her pureed food, tending to her every need, and constantly talking to her even though her mother can respond only with her eyes and mumbled sounds.

The centenarian has received numerous birthday greetings and today her daughter and some friends will have a birthday cake for her.

She declared she will not be bound to special interests or to persons who might aid her campaign financially. She also promised not to discriminate because of sex in hiring for her office if elected. Secretary of State Thad Eure has hired few if any men since he took office in 1936, she said.

No Interference By Litigation

Attorney Kenneth Hite told Redevelopment Commissioners Monday night that litigation involving property owned by Sam Underwood (UNCO) in the courthouse block will not interfere with the closing out of the Shore Drive Project.

Hite said that he had been advised by attorneys of the Department of Housing and Urban Development that litigation to acquire the property by condemnation would have no effect on the close out proceedings.

The commission attorney reported that he is proceeding with efforts to bring the matter to court.

Will Prosecute Isle Developers

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says the state plans to prosecute the developers of Baldhead Island for dredging on the shore of the island without a permit.

Scott reported Tuesday that a state fisheries official had spotted unauthorized dredging Saturday. He said Walter Johnson, assistant supervisor of the Division of Commercial and Sports Fisheries, "discovered excavation work occurring below the high-water mark on the (Cape Fear) river shore of the island."

He said Johnson had also ascertained that the permit required under the state's dredge-and-fill laws for marshlands had not been obtained.

"Director Eugene Simmons of the Department of Conservation and Development has informed me that warrants are being drawn against two parties—E. L. McLamb and Son, contractors; and Carolina Cape Fear Corp.," Scott said in a prepared statement.

McLamb is a contracting firm based in Little River, S.C. Carolina Cape Fear owns the island and plans to develop it into a plush resort.

William Henderson, president of the corporation, was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Scott has sided with conservationists who want to see the semitropical, 12,000-acre island near Southport preserved under state ownership.

Thomas Linton, director of the fisheries division, said the agency has evidence that a dredge was used to fashion a barge landing which was used to unload heavy equipment on the island. Linton said the landing was carved from a marshy shoreline on the southwest edge of the island, just across the mouth of the Cape Fear River from old Fort Caswell on Long Beach.

Violation of the dredging law is a misdemeanor and could bring a fine up to $500 or 90 days in jail for each day of violation. But the implications of the suit would go far beyond criminal penalties.

Scott has indicated in the past that the state might slow down or prevent development by refusing to grant permits for destruction of the estuaries. The state claims ownership to the marshlands around the island.

Carolina Cape Fear is reportedly trying to prepare the island for a big promotional effort this spring and summer to sell resort home sites.

For the past six months the company has been awaiting a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' decision on a permit application to build a pier that could be used to unload equipment.

Scott said in his statement, "The state of North Carolina will maintain a constant vigil against any and all unauthorized activities affecting the environmental features of Smith (Baldhead) Island, or any other properties for that matter."

New Terror For Belfast

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST (AP) — Three blindfolded men were shot in the thigh in a Roman Catholic district of Belfast Tuesday night and police said they probably were victims of punishment squads sent out by the Irish Republican Army.

Two other men were wounded, one seriously, by bullets fired from passing cars in apparently similar but separate incidents.

Outside the capital, a youth was found tarred and feathered on the road to Lurgan.

The IRA, trying to drive the British from Protestant-ruled Northern Ireland and merge the province with the Irish Republic, periodically punishes members or supporters regarded as having betrayed the cause in some way.

British troops found the wounded, blindfolded trio after Belfast newspapers received a midnight telephone call reporting that the IRA's militant Provisional wing had shot three men in the leg "for committing a robbery with violence."

One of the trio was dragged away by a crowd before the soldiers could call an ambulance. The two others were taken to a local hospital.

A 46-year-old man and a 17-year-old youth, both Catholics, were shot from speeding cars in the Short Strand and Grosvenor Road areas.

The man was reported in serious condition with wounds in the arms and chest. The youth, with similar wounds, was said to be in fair condition.

"They were both Catholics, they were both shot in Catholic areas and the indications are that it was the work of the IRA," the police spokesman told newsmen.

Brooks Hays To Disclose Plans

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Brooks Hays, former congressman from Arkansas, is to announce at a news conference Friday whether he will seek the Democratic nomination from North Carolina's 5th Congressional District.

Hays now is connected with Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem.

So far, no one has challenged the Republican incumbent, Rep. Wilmer Mizell.

Going To The Metropolitan

NEW YORK (AP) — James Levine, 28-year-old assistant conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra for six years, will become principal conductor of the Metropolitan Opera next year.

The appointment was announced Tuesday by the opera company's general manager, Goeran Gentele, and its new music director, Rafael Kubelik.

No one has the title of principal conductor at the Met under the present practice of Rudolph Bing, who is retiring as general manager.

Levine, who made his Metropolitan debut during the 1970-71 June Festival conducting Puccini's "Tosca," is a native of Cincinnati.

Punishment Cell For James Ray

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, who pleaded guilty to the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., will spend 30 days in a disciplinary cell at Brushy Mountain State Prison as a result of his second unsuccessful escape attempt.

"We think there might have been someone else ... working with him," Warden Robert Moore said Tuesday, "but there is no way to implicate another prisoner. Ray was caught alone—and he's not telling anything."

Moore said Ray was caught Feb. 5 while crawling from a room adjoining the prison auditorium where he had sought to cut a hole in the roof. He also tried to escape last May 3.

Ray is serving a 99-year sentence.

Alamance Votes For Bond Issue

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — Alamance County voters approved 4,007-1,078 Tuesday a $2 million bond issue for relocation and expansion of Alamance Technical Institute.

The new 48-acre site outside Burlington was donated by Gov. Bob Scott and an aunt, Mrs. George Carrington of Burlington.

One million dollars in state and federal money also will be used to move the school from Burlington.

Only a little more than 5,000 of the 39,000 eligible voters went to the polls.

District Judge

(Continued from page 1) Whedbee, have all filed as candidates for re-election. So far, no one has announced opposition for Judges Phillips, Roberts or Whedbee.

Wooten has served as chairman of the Ayden Planning Board and Zoning Commission, president of the Ayden Chamber of Commerce and president of the Ayden Recreation League.

Commenting on his bid for the bench post, Wooten said "I believe very strongly that positions such as District Court judgeships should not be the exclusive domain of practicing attorneys."

He said qualified non-lawyers should have the doors opened to them to run. "The statutes provide for this and in other districts in Eastern North Carolina, non-lawyers have been elected."

Continuing, Wooten said, "I believe it's time for some ice-breaking in the Third District so that the people can be made to realize that the District Courts belong to them and are not the exclusive property of the Bar Association."

"I have a positive program of reform," he emphasized, "which will be outlined as the campaign progresses, but for now, I simply as the voters to keep an open mind."

The son of the late Rev. J. Ernest Wooten, a Free Will Baptist minister, Wooten is married to the former Louise McLawhorn and the couple have two children.

Wheeler was the last of the incumbent District Judges to file for re-election. He paid his filing fee with the state elections board January 31.

Judge Whebee was the first of the present District Court jurists to file — on December 13, 1961. He was followed on January 19 by Roberts and on January 28 by Phillips.

February 21 is the last day for hopefuls to file as candidates in the May 6 primary, while April 7 is the final day persons can register to vote in the election.

progress of the schools. Mrs. Jack Wilkerson read a letter written by her to Mrs. George Coffman, area coordinator of the Citizens Advisory Committee. In it she stated that a slow-moving freight train is causing a problem crossing used by school children for long periods of time.

Glenn Cox said he believes the train uses the route only occasionally and that attempts to change it might be unsuccessful.

A nominating committee appointed by Council president, the Rev. J. H. Taylor, includes Charles Ross, Mrs. W. L. Morris, Mrs. Wilkerson, and Mrs. Stewart Buchanan.

Ross reported on immunizations of school children and emphasized the importance of having these updated.

The Council will recommend to the Board of Education that a Friday, March 30 be a school makeup day.

Touching on the problems caused by reaction to the Vietnam war, Howard said "as responsible citizens we must actively voice our wishes and opinions in order to stop the revolutionary minority groups, curb the violence in our cities, halt the disrespect for our flag and in general make a concerted effort to return this nation to the proper priorities upon which our freedoms were founded."

Howard also spoke on the problems of farmers in eastern North Carolina. "It is inconceivable," he commented, "that this nation could relegate the small family farm which at one time was the backbone of our country, to a backseat position." The candidate said he feels more domestic and foreign markets can be secured to make the area's "economy more viable and stimulate industrial and social growth."

The young Republican candidate was accompanied on this announcement trip by his wife, Eloise and their two-year-old daughter, Shannon Lea.

Bucs Close Home Year Against Monarchs

East Carolina University's Pirates close out their 1972 home basketball season Thursday night, looking for their 12th victory of the season.

The Bucs, fresh off their 76-65 upset of tough St. Francis, will be looking for their third victory in a row, and their ninth in the last 12 games.

Old Dominion, an old foe, will be the visitor against the Bucs in this one, and again, it will take all the Pirates can muster to pull off a win. The Monarchs have the reputation of always playing rough against the Pirates, and this meeting should prove to be no exception.

"Our last two ball games have been very hard-fought," Coach Tom Quinn said. "Both were very physical. Earlier in the year, we didn't play well in this type of game, but we are now."

"We got a little derailed during the Furman and Davidson games, but these last three games meant a lot to us," Quinn said.

He noted that there were good match-ups in the St. Francis game all down the line. "We had Jerome Owens on Kevin Porter, Jim Fairley on Hopson, and right on down the line. I think we did a good job on everyone. Only one of these players hit double figures, and two were way under their averages.

"We've come on strong in the last three games. Winning against Richmond and The Citadel two teams who beat us earlier, meant a lot to us," Quinn said.

The coach noted, however, that it was hard for the Bucs to get up for St. Francis, after having been up for the previous two games, both with conference opponents.

"I thought St. Francis would be as difficult to play against as any team we've met this year," the coach said. "They do a lot of things away from the ball, and this can hurt any team. We got down good on defense, however, and this hurt them."

Quinn noted that St. Francis has never really taken the Pirates seriously. "They always consider it a mistake when they lose to us. This year, we understand they didn't even look at the scouting report on us because they thought we would be an easy team for them to beat.

"In turn, we respected them, and were prepared for them, and it meant the difference," he added.

The final home contest brings in a team that is much like that of the Pirates, but is a higher scoring unit.

The Monarchs, averaging 94 points per game, are led by guard Dave Twardzik, who's hitting 24 points per game. All five of their starters are hitting double figures. They include Joel Copeland (15), Richie Michaelson (12), Rich Nau (11) and Terry Foster (10).

"They are a good shooting team," Quinn pointed out. "They are making 49 per cent of their shots, and they have four members of their starting five hitting over 50 per cent.

Old Dominion, getting many good shots, is a running team, and likes to work with the fast break.

"It'll be a good height match-up and they are about equal to us in depth, too," Quinn said.

In Twardzik, the Bucs will face another fine guard. "We have to stop him as we stopped Porter if we're going to win," Quinn said. "He shoots well, although he's not as fast as Porter. He's been their high scorer in the last six games, and has been in all but three this year."

Old Dominion got off to a slow start, but has come on strong recently, passing 100 on a number of occasions this season. Oddly enough, the Pirates have failed to hit 100 once this season.

Following the Thursday game, the Bucs have three more contests. Saturday, they close out the Southern Conference season at William & Mary, seeking to wrap up at least a third-place finish for the second year in a row. Then, next week, they have road games against George Washington and N. C. State.

Prior to the varsity encounter, at 8 p.m., the two schools' freshman teams will meet. Tip off time for that is 5:45 p.m.

Sr. Babe Ruth Formed

A meeting will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. at Elm Street Park for all persons interested in Senior Babe Ruth League.

The league is for boys 16-18. All interested boys and their parents are invited to attend the meeting, when the league will be organized.

Paschal Grabs Pole For Friday Running Of Citrus 250-Mile

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jim Paschal, a husky, cigar-smoking chicken rancher from North Carolina, has the pole position for Friday's Citrus 250 mile race for sports sedans at Daytona International Speedway.

He figures it may be the last time he'll have the honor.

Paschal, 44, quit high speed racing three years ago for the more moderate competition of smaller cars, such as the Javelin he has campaigned on NASCAR's Grand American Circuit since 1970.

"I was among the starters at the first Grand National race at Darlington, S.C., 21 years ago. I have put a lot of miles on race cars since then, and I can see the end of the road," the crew-cut, well-preserved veteran said Tuesday.

He had just recorded a speed of 100.952 miles per hour around Daytona's 3.81-mile road course that includes the high banks of the speedway proper. It was more than three miles faster than the next top qualifier for a race that pays the winner about $5,000.

"I still get a kick out of driving a race car, but my chicken business back home near High Point, N.C., takes so much of my time that I really can't concentrate on racing. And driving one of these high-powered cars takes concentration . . . you have to think quickly and make decisions in a split second. It's sort of like a golfer, you have to keep at it day after day to be a contender."

Paschal figures he has won close to half a million dollars during a career that spans more than 25 years. He says he has invested his share of the money as well as he could, and that it really isn't the money that keeps him going.

"I just love to get out there and drive — road courses, ovals, big tracks or little tracks, it doesn't matter which," he said. "and by golly I can still go with the best of them."

Paschal's speed Tuesday was recorded on a wet track and he hoped to better it in another round of qualifying today. Forty starters will be picked for Friday's race.

Meantime, the field of starters for Thursday's two 125-mile races for Grand National stock cars grew to 45 Tuesday. It is from these races that 38 starters will be picked for Sunday's $178,000 Daytona 500. Two spots were filled last Saturday — the pole position, by Bobby Isaac, and the other front row spot by

A. J. Foyt.

Isaac, who qualified at 186.804 m.p.h. in a Dodge, and Foyt, whose speed in a Mercury was 184.804 m.p.h., will have the two inside pole positions in Thursday's races.

With Tuesday's trials, 31 drivers had qualified for Saturday's Permatex 300 for older model sportsman cars. The pole position for that race went to Bill Dennis of Glen Allen, Va., at 174.868 m.p.h.

Meantime, 1969 Daytona winner Leroy Yarborough signed to drive a Jack-Bowsher-prepared Ford in the Daytona 500 and Donnie Allison was given a car for Saturday's Permatex.

Allison and 1970 winner Pete Hamilton remained the only NASCAR Grand National regulars without a Daytona ride.

Williamston Teams Advance

WINDSOR — Williamston High School's girls and boys, both winners of the regular season title, advanced to the semi-finals of the Albemarle Conference tournament here Monday night. The girls downed Perquimans, 50-26, while the boys edged Scotland Neck, 60-52.

In the girls game, Williamston got just about all they needed in the first period, rolling out to a 19-2 lead. They outthit Perquimans, 11-8, in the second quarter and held a 30-10 halftime lead.

Perquimans put on a small rally in the third period, with a 12-11 advantage, but trailed, 41-22 going into the final period. Williamston wrapped it up with a 9-4 scoring margin in the period.

Mable Brown and Kathy Davenport led Williamston with 13 each, while Brenda Banks had 11 for Perquimans.

Williamston now will meet the winner of Wednesday night's game between Scotland Neck and Weldon on Thursday.

Maryland Puts Streak On Line

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A North Carolina basketball team has rarely lost at Maryland's Cole Fieldhouse, but the Tar Heels have had more scares there than kids in a haunted house.

The third-ranked Tar Heels hope history won't repeat when they play the 19th-ranked Terps tonight at Cole, where Maryland has won its last 10 games. All of Maryland's losses this season have been in road games.

In 1957, when North Carolina was undefeated in its 32 games and won the national college championship, it had to come from behind to gain a tie at the end of regulation time at Cole, and finally won 65-61 in two extra periods.

The next year, North Carolina went into the fieldhouse ranked No. 2 in the nation, and lost 74-61.

All three of North Carolina's Atlantic Coast Conference championship teams of 1967, 1968 and 1969 had to battle from behind to win close games at College Park, Md.

It was the same story in 1970, when Charlie Scott and Co. fell behind by 26-6 and then rallied for a 77-69 victory.

The only exception to the rule in recent years was last season, when North Carolina was ahead by 25 points at the half and breezed home 100-76.

North Carolina is 7-1 in the conference and 17-2 in all games. Maryland is 4-3 and 16-3.

North Carolina is tied with Virginia for the ACC lead, and Maryland is next.

All ACC teams but North Carolina State will be playing tonight.

Virginia, 18-1 and ranked No. 6, will be at Penn State.

Clemson, trying to end a five-game losing streak, will be without Bud Martin in the game at oncoming Wake Forest. He bruised his breastbone in the North Carolina game last Friday, and missed the N.C. State game a night later.

In its last four games, Wake Forest had lost by 12 points to North Carolina, beaten Temple and Duke at home, and lost by only seven points at Virginia.

Both Clemson and Wake Forest are 1-6 in the ACC. In all games, the Clemson Tigers are 9-10, and the Wake Forest Deacons are 6-14.

Duke, 10-8, plays in the Charlotte, N.C., Coliseum against Davidson, 16-6. Davidson has won the Southern Conference regular-season title with an 8-2 mark.

Hunt Widens Scoring Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Furman's Russ Hunt has lengthened his lead in the Southern Conference basketball scoring race and teammate Roy Simpson, a junior college transfer playing his first season for the Paladins, is still No. 2.

Hunt, a 6-foot-8 junior who was named to the All-Southern team last year, has scored 527 points in 23 games for a 22.9-point average and nearly a three-point lead over Simpson.

The Paladins' No. 2 scorer, also a 6-foot-8 junior, has poured in 420 points in 21 games for a 20-point average. The two are the main reasons the Paladins are averaging nearly 91.5 points per game.

Davidson's injured sophomore star has taken over the No. 3 spot even though he's missed the last six games with a hurt ankle. Falconi has scored 272 points in 16 games for a 17-point average. Stan Davis of Appalachian

State, with 353 points in 21 reported encounters, is now fourth with a 16.8 average, and William and Mary's Jeff Trammell is fifth with 333 points in 21 games for a 15.9 mark.

Others in the top 10 are John Sutor of The Citadel, 15.3; Joe Sutter of Davidson, 15.2; Steve Fishel of The Citadel, 15.1; John Rutt of Appalachian State, 14.9; and Jerome Owens of East Carolina, 14.0.

One conference game is scheduled tonight with Richmond's Spiders, sixth in the standings at 3-6, at The Citadel to meet the fifth-place Bulldogs, 4-5 in league play. A Richmond victory would tie the two clubs for the No. 5 spot.

Nonconference action has Davidson taking on Duke at Charlotte, N.C., William and Mary at West Virginia and Virginia Military's Keydets seeking to break an 11-game losing streak at home against West Virginia Tech.

Rampants Surprise New Bern By 75-65

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants put it all together last night and rolled to a 75-65 victory over the New Bern Bears. It was only the second Division II victory for the Rampants this year, but lifted them out of sole possession of last place in the league, into a tie with Wilson Fike. The Rampants took the lead for good in the early minutes of the third period and pulled away to lead by as much as 18 points with just under three minutes to play. After that, New Bern put on a rush at the Rampants, but it was all academic as not enough time remained for them to pull it out. New Bern led by as much as four points late in the third period, but were unable to pull away from the aroused Rampants, playing their final home game of the season. Lonnie Payton had another fine game for the Rampants, helping to control the boards with his rebounding, while leading the scoring with 24 points. J.C. Daniels added 16 points to the Rampant cause, while Robert Kear, making his first start in several games due to a knee injury, hit 10, half of those coming late in the game. The Rampants played good defense all the way, forcing New Bern to hit from the outside most of the time. While they were hot in spurts, the Bears couldn't sustain their offense, and that proved to be their downfall. Rose grabbed the early lead as Tommy Williams put the Rampants into the opening lead. Daniels hit on a jumper to make it 4-0 before a free throw by Van Smith put New Bern on the board with 4:34 left. Payton got his first points to make it 6-1, and with 3:14 left in the period, the bears got their first basket as Ronnie Gray hit from the corner.

New Bern fought back after that, finally tying it at 8-8 on a jumper by Billy Moore with 1:55 left. Payton tossed in a missed shot to return Rose to the lead and a free throw by Ed Johnson upped the lead to three. New Bern cut it back to one, but a free throw by Kear with 20 second left, when a technical was called on a Bear upped it to two. Payton then canned a turnaround jumper with eight seconds left, drawing a foul at the same time. He hit and Rose held a 17-12 lead as the period ended.

In the second frame, however, New Bern came back to take the lead. Smith hit a jumper and another by Tony Ernul cut it to one. Smith tied it up with a free throw, when Ernul hit again with 6:17 left to put the Bears ahead, 19-17. Rose tied it, but New Bern got a three-point play from Ernul to lead, 22-19 with 4:35 left. Rose cut it back again, taking the lead, 25-24, on a jumper by Johnson, but the Bears regained it on a four-point play by Donny Dunn. He hit a jumper and was fouled after the shot, making both ends of a one-and-one for the 28-25 New Bern margin. They upped it to four on a jumper by Ernul, but Rose fought back, tying it at 32-32 as Kear dropped in a rebound. The Bears went out one more time, but two free throws by Payton left it at 34-34 at halftime. The Bears got the opening basket of the third period, but Rose tied it on a baseline jumper by Daniels. Payton got a three-point play with 6:12 left, moving Rose out 39-36 and they never trailed again. Slowly they pulled away, moving out finally to a six-point edge at the end of the period, 52-46. Payton hit eight points to pace the Rampants through the period, while Robert Carraway and Daniels each hit four points.

Any hopes the Bears may have had of a comeback were quickly dashed as the final period opened. Rose got baskets from Williams, Johnson and Kear to run the lead out to 12 in the first minute of play. A three-point play by Tom Clark ran it to 14 at 6:24, and a basket by Williams with 4:31 showing made it 16. Finally two free throws by Kear ran the margin out to 18, 70-52 with 3:46 left, and then still held a 17-point spread with 1:51 to go, 73-56.

New Bern made one final rush, using the press to steal the ball on several occasions, but there just wasn't time left for the Bears to pull it out.

Ernul led the Bears with 22 points, while Smith had 10.

In the junior varsity game, New Bern inched out a 59-57 victory over the Rampant Cubs. Rose grabbed the opening lead, 15-9, but couldn't hold onto it.

New Bern came back and grabbed a 32-31 lead at halftime.

In the third period, New Bern again outthit the Cubs, 16-12, and boosted the lead out to 48-43. Rose fought back in the final period, tying it on several occasions late in the game, but the could never get the lead. A final second shot just missed as the Bears held on to win.

Herb Bynum led Rose with 20 points, while Jackie Savage had 16. New Bern was paced by Gary Mattocks and Rich Green each with 12, while Rob Shields had 11 and Ronald Wallace had 10.

The Rampants play their final regular season game Friday, traveling to Goldsboro.

Overlooked Riley Has Been Help To Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There was Tonto, Little Beaver, Robin, Dr. Watson and Gabby Hayes. And now there's Pat Riley.

The sidekicks of the Lone Ranger, Red Ryder, Batman, Sherlock Holmes and Hopalong Cassidy have been joined by the guard of the Los Angeles Lakers among the assistants of the world's heroes.

Thus while Gail Goodrich, Jerry West, Wilt Chamberlain and the rest of the Lakers were attempting to dispose of the pesky Cincinnati Royals Tuesday night, Riley made his entrance to post career bests for points and rebounds in a 125-118 triumph.

Often overlooked, Riley has been a key factor in the Laker success this season, his fifth in the rugged National Basketball Association.

Elsewhere, Boston beat Portland 111-104, Baltimore whipped Houston 113-98, Atlanta downed Detroit 113-105 and Golden State shaded Buffalo 103-100.

Coach Bill Sharman admitted Riley played well Tuesday night but said his super reserve has been consistently great off the bench.

"The key to Riley's play," said Sharman, "is the first two or three shots. If he hits them, he goes. So for him to do well, he's got to look for good shots early, hit them and that gets him untracked."

The Lakers led 20-16 early in the game when the Royals scored 14 points in a row to grab a 10-point lead. In came Riley to score eight points in 11 minutes as the Lakers closed the gap to six. And when they trailed by nine after one period, Riley stayed in and propelled Los Angeles to a 40-point quarter.

His overall statistics: 12 of 17 shots from the floor, 3 of 3 from the free throw line in 27 minutes of playing time, nine rebounds, 27 points and hustle on the fast break.

A fourth-quarter Boston explosion ignited by Dave Cowens powered the Celtics over the Trail Blazers. Cowens poured in nine of his 21 points in the final frame as Boston scored nine consecutive points to break open the game.

John Havlicek led all scorers with 31 points in helping Boston to its 10th triumph in the last 11 starts. Rookie Sidney Wicks led Portland with 30 points.

Jack Marin scored 39 points and Wes Unseld grabbed 18 rebounds as Baltimore snapped an eight-game losing streak by beating Houston. Marin and Archie Clark scored 13 points apiece in the third period as the Bulls, ahead by only five at the half, roared to an 89-70 bulge.

Clark contributed 29 points while Elvin Hayes led the Rockets with 31. Baltimore's Phil Chenier and Houston's Mike Newlin were ejected for a second-period fight.

A 22-11 spurt in the third period carried Atlanta past Detroit. The Pistons trimmed the Hawks' lead to 107-104 with 1:29 left but two free throws by Pete Maravich and four by Lou Hudson secured the triumph.

Hudson finished with 26 points, Maravich 25 and Walt Bellamy 22 as the Hawks remained three games behind Baltimore in the Central Division. Bob Lanier had 28 and Dave Bing 27 for Detroit. The game was played with only one official, Jack Madden, when his partner failed to show.

Cazzie Russell's 32 points, including two last-minute free throws, sparked Golden State over Buffalo. The Warriors led by as many as 16 points before a Buffalo comeback brought the Braves to within 96-95 with 1:28 remaining. But Jim Barnett hit a field goal and free throw and Russell and Jeff Mullins added two foul shots apiece to lock up the victory. Mullins scored 24 points while Mike Davis paced the losers.

Games Too Long For ABA Trio

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They made the game too long for the Indiana Pacers, Virginia Squires and Pittsburgh Condors Tuesday night.

The three teams blew fourth-period leads and dropped American Basketball Association contests to the Kentucky Colonels, Dallas Chaparrals and Carolina Cougars.

The scores were Kentucky 101, Indiana 99; Dallas 116, Virginia 111 and Carolina 126, Pittsburgh 113. In other games, Utah beat Memphis 118-99 and the Floridians nipped Denver 125-124 in overtime.

Kentucky trailed Indiana 81-75 entering the final period but reeled off 11 straight points to go ahead to stay. Dan Issel led the way with 31 points, Artis Gilmore had 29 and Cincy Powell 23. Bob Netolicky paced Indiana with 27.

Dallas trailed Virginia by eight points late in the third quarter but Joe Hamilton hit a 40-foot three-pointer just before the buzzer to start a rally which carried over into the final period. Virginia's Julius Erving led all scorers with 27 points while Rich Jones had 25 and Donnie Freeman 23 for the Chaps.

Carolina trailed Pittsburgh by 17 points in the first half but narrowed the lead to two by the end of the third quarter. The Cougars tied the score early in the final stanza and went in front for good on Joe Caldwell's layup.

Gene Littles scored a career high 34 points to pace the winners while the Condors were led by George Thompson with 27 points, Dave Lattin with 26 and Bob Verga with 23.

Utah led from the start in posting its fifth win in a row and saddling Memphis with its sixth consecutive loss. Willie Wise paced the Stars' balanced attack with 22 points and Zelmo Beaty added 21. Charlie Williams of Memphis had 24, including four three-point goals.

Craig Raymond's short jump shot with one minute left in overtime enabled the Floridians to defeat Denver although Mack Calvin was high man with 33 points and Manny Leaks added 23. Denver's Ralph Simpson scored two of his game-high 35 points on a layup with 39 seconds to send the contest into overtime.

Pair Of Upsets Mark Evening

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer They had a Friars roast in New England and a Frog feast in the Southwest.

It made a very interesting recipe of college basketball games Tuesday night.

Rhode Island upset the 13th-ranked Providence Friars 75-73 and the Texas Christian Horned Frogs snapped Southern Methodist's seven-game winning streak with a 93-84 triumph that tightened the Southwest Conference race.

"Maybe we were a little flat after a tough trip," said Providence Coach Dave Gavitt, whose team was snowed in Sunday at the Buffalo airport after a game with St. Bonaventure.

In Fort Worth, Tex., Simpson DeGrate scored 36 points and seized 21 rebounds, helping the runnerup Frogs cut SMU's conference lead to one game.

Missouri, ranked 15th, turned back Nebraska 80-65 in another key game and took over sole possession of first place in the Big Eight Conference.

Rhode Island, leading 35-31 at the half, fattened its margin to 14 points before Marvin Barnes and Ernie DiGregorio led a Providence rally. But key baskets by Steve Rowell, who led the winners with 20 points, halted the comeback try. Barnes led all scorers with 23 and DiGregorio had 22.

"They beat us on the boards," said Gavitt. "They did a lot of good things inside." TCU hit its first four shots from the field before a screaming hometown full house of more than 7,000 at Daniel Meyer Coliseum. The Horned Frogs, propelled by DeGrate, roared into a commanding 49-37 halftime lead.

Larry Delzell had 26 points for SMU, whose conference mark slipped to 7-2. TCU now is 6-3 in the Southwest.

John Brown scored 32 points and had 15 rebounds for Missouri. With the score 50-40, Brown put in five of the next six points to give the Tigers their biggest margin of the game, 56-40 with 11 minutes remaining.

Texas A&M, also a contender in the Southwest derby, moved closer to the top with an 86-85 triumph over Arkansas; Wisconsin stopped Purdue 84-65, Iowa trimmed Illinois 87-84, Kansas State beat Kansas 78-66 and Boston College turned back St. John's N.Y. 70-66 in other games.

Stint As Prison Inmate By Lawmaker Left Him Strained, Shaken Man

By JOHN ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer
HADDAM, Conn. (AP) —
Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn., emerged from prison an emotionally strained man who had become a master at hustling cigarettes.
McKinney, 41, voluntarily lived in the life of a prison inmate for 36 hours.
He was stripped, fingerprinted and given No. 1104. He was thrown into "the hole" after a knife was found in his cell. He was harassed by guards.
"No cigarettes, no privacy, no freedom, no movement, no paper, no pencils, no books," said McKinney, unshaven and wearing green prison overalls.
"Believe me, it's something I'll never forget," he added.

"It's hard to describe what it does to you. The emotional strain is tremendous."
McKinney wanted to gain a greater understanding of prison life. So he joined 18 trainee correctional officers in a training program that included a day and a half behind bars.
The program ended Tuesday night.
The guards at the Haddam Training Academy went to great lengths to make the ordeal for McKinney and the trainees as realistic as possible.
For 24 hours they were not allowed to leave their cells, which contained a toilet, a sink and a bunk. On the second day they got out only for meals and a 15-minute recreation period.
The guards even planted a "shiv"—a tableknife—in McKinney's cell. After finding the knife, McKinney was "charged" with illegal possession of a weapon and thrown in a dreary, windowless isolation cell for three hours.

One guard, Capt. Richard Tedford, said McKinney, a heavy smoker, began the prison stint without any cigarettes, but soon was sponging off the other inmates.
"We moved him to another cell to cut off his source of supply," said Tedford, "and darned if he didn't get them there, too."
Hudson's Bay Company trappers were the first Europeans to see Plains Indians hunting buffalo from horseback.

Arrest Sixteen Tuesday During School Unrest

GREENSBORO (AP) —
Fourteen whites and two blacks, students and nonstudents, were arrested Tuesday in three incidents connected with unrest at Smith High School.
The unrest began last Friday after no blacks were chosen in the senior superlatives election.
A biracial committee of students agreed Tuesday to throw out the disputed election and hold a new one which, unlike the first, will involve a nominating process. This does not guarantee that a black will win a superlative, but a black representative on the committee said, "Now blacks will at least be considered."
School officials reported that 1,050 students of the enrollment of 1,809 were absent Tuesday.
Principal William B. McIver said all students will be readmitted today without going through usual procedures.

MAY SELL SPRUCE GOOSE — The U.S. General Services Administration is considering selling the "Spruce Goose", the giant $40 million experimental seaplane that Howard Hughes built a quarter of a century ago, it was reported Tuesday. The 140-ton, eight-engine plane remains the largest plane ever built with a 320-foot wingspan. It is shown the only time it ever flew, Nov. 2, 1947, when it was airborne with Howard Hughes at the controls. (AP Wirephoto)

Getting Service Grows More And More Difficult

By LYNN SHERR
Associated Press Writer

Maybe you noticed it the other day, when your car broke down on the way to work. Or perhaps it was last week, when your dishwasher conked out after a dinner party. Or last fall, when you moved into that new house and couldn't find anyone to build the bookcases for the den.

Whatever the problem, it had no easy solution. You probably went to the telephone, dialed, had a frustrating conversation, then dialed again. And again.

Because even if the telephone was working, the repairman probably wasn't.

Tradesmen say it's due to "a crisis of craft personnel." One general contractor from the South gazed fondly at the ornate mansion in Asheville, N.C. built by the Vanderbilts at the turn of the century and remarked, "If I had the money to rebuild the Biltmore House today, I couldn't find the workmen."

Despite a general increase in the number of craft personnel over the past two decades—10 million workers in 1968, compared with 8.1 million in 1949—the needs are now growing faster than the employment rate. One government report projects that some five million more such workers will be needed by 1980, which is about 3.5 million more than we'll probably have if present growth rates continue.

The shortage already is evident.

Russell M. Sanders, vice president of operations for the American Homeowners Association—AHA—says, there are regional differences. If you live along the East Coast, you need major contractors: plumbers, electricians, plasterers, carpenters. In the Midwest, it's appliance repairmen. In the Southwest, you're short of masonry and roof workers. And in the West, according to Sanders, "it's everything—particularly in the Los Angeles area."

One of the reasons behind the growing demand for service employees is the ever-increasing number of items that need servicing. The Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers says that Americans now own some one billion appliances, not even counting radios and televisions. That figure is double what it was a decade ago.

The shortage of personnel exists during a period of more than six per cent unemployment and despite the promise of very substantial pay.

Why aren't young people in particular flocking to Boston, for example, where a carpenter says he earns $20,000-$25,000 a year or to Dallas, where a 25-year-old plumber takes in $12,000-$15,000 annually?

Labor mediator Theodore M. Kheel explained: "Before this generation, a man who was an electrician would have three sons and they'd all become electricians. Now the smart ones go to college."

As for the others, "they just don't care any more. They just want a day's pay," said Anthony Ferrari, of Ferrari Plumbing and Heating in Lexington, Mass.

Jack Schenpp, of the RCA Service Co. in New Jersey, said that the number of young people entering the company training centers had declined recently. "Service electronics is not exactly the glamorous end of the business. There is very little social significance attached to fixing someone's TV set," he said.

Of course, there are exceptions. Some trades do report youthful interest: the advanced stages of electronics work, for instance, and apprenticeships in construction.

And there are parts of the country, hard hit by the nation's lagging economy, which show no signs of a serviceman shortage at all.

In Seattle, for example, where the unemployment rate is about 9.8 per cent, Louis O. Stuart, educational director of the state Labor Council (of the AFL-CIO), says there is "no problem."

But generally across the nation, when you do get service, it's costly.

At a meeting of House Republican leaders last September, Rep. John B. Anderson, of Illinois, said auto repair costs had climbed nearly 8 per cent in 1970 as compared to 3.6 per cent for the new cars themselves. He said household repairmen had raised their prices by 9 per cent in the same time while new appliance costs climbed only 1.5 per cent.

Individual tradesmen, blame the higher fees on their own higher costs. Anthony Ferrari, who now charges about $12 to fix a stopped-up toilet, a job that would have cost $7 five years ago, says all his costs have doubled.

Auto dealer Ed Bailey, in Royal Oak, Mich., used to charge $15 for a tuneup—with plugs, points and condensers. Today, he charges $30—partly because, he says, his labor costs have gone from $5 an hour to $12 an hour.

Prices certainly won't go down if the number of skilled craftsmen continues to dwindle. The question is, what to do about the decline?

Builder Frank Marberry of Albuquerque, N.M., "I think we need some kind of propaganda program—to motivate young people to become interested in this sort of thing."

With precisely such a goal in mind, several groups—in government, industry and labor—have begun remedial programs. The U.S. Office of Education has just awarded $100,000 to Automation House—a nonprofit foundation in New York—specifically to produce films and other devices to interest young people still in high school in such trades as carpentry and bricklaying.

Another program, cosponsored by the AFL-CIO and the Job Corps, has been in operation more than three years, and in 1971 claims to have placed 1,645 disadvantaged craft youths in jobs. After on-job training, the youths are guaranteed union jobs as apprentices in carpentry, painting, or whatever.

The American Homeowners

Association offers one solution for the consumer. The three-year-old, Milwaukee-based group tries to provide prompt, efficient and reasonable service after one phone call you join for an $18 refundable deposit, and are guaranteed speedy service by dialing the local AHA telephone hotline. Local contractors are recruited on the basis of low bids and high quality of work. Divisions of AHA—which takes 15-20 per cent of each repair bill—are now established or proposed in about 44 cities.

A partial solution from industry is simplification of parts. Transistors and modular units help make it easier for you—or your repairman—to fix complex appliances like color television sets.

The major problem, however, remains one of manpower.

International Air Service Up

HOUSTON (AP) — While 1971 was a poor year nationally for air travel, the number of passengers flying out of Houston's Intercontinental Airport increased almost 7 per cent says Joe Foster, city aviation director.

The biggest increase was in international passengers which grew more than 12 per cent. In all, 4.8 million passengers passed through boarding gates.

Best Chinese Food Awaits

By JUDITH BRODIE
HONG KONG (AP) — Even if President Nixon gains nothing from the political pickings of Peking he will be offered the best Chinese food in the world.

The Communists have done away with much of the pomp and lavishness of the old imperial court, but the magnificence of Chinese classical cooking remains. The business of eating is still taken seriously. Big banquets given for VIPs are a stunning series of 10 or more carefully chosen courses.

If normal protocol is observed Nixon should be invited to at least one state banquet where classic Chinese dishes such as sharks' fins and birds' nests soup are highlights. He could eat Peking duck, Mongolian hot-pot and local carp and pike.

The visiting head of a country usually gets the highest honor of a state reception in the Great Hall of the People. This is a long oblong building, rather nondescript except for its size, on the west side of Tien An Men Square in the heart of Peking. The huge complex of reception rooms and vast halls is a source of pride to the Chinese. Many people in Peking will tell you they helped in its construction after Chairman Mao Tse-tung came to power.

Banquets are heralded by a simple invitation requesting each guest to arrive promptly. Everyone meets in a large reception room where soft drinks are passed around. After the chief guest goes around the room, the assembly walks across the red carpet into an enormous dining hall where up to 5,000 guests can be seated and fed.

The banquet is dominated by the top table covered in white cotton cloth. Nixon will sit on the right of his Chinese host—either Mao or Chou En-lai—and Mrs. Nixon on the left.

Chinese hors d'oeuvres are cold cuts of spiced meat, fowl, and ham arranged fan-like with or 9:30 and everyone usually slices of bamboo shoots, lotus goes home, although Chou En-lai has been known to continue private talks in one of the ante-rooms until dawn.

for a meal is "century-old" eggs with their fraudulent name and fascinating taste. They are in fact chemically preserved duck eggs seldom more ancient than 100 days. Quarters of them are eaten with tender pink ginger and Chinese pickles.

The major and minor dishes must please the senses of seeing, tasting and smelling if they are to meet the high standards of Chinese gastronomy. A balanced meal must vary fish with fowl, crisp with juicy, bland with rich and sweet with piquancy.

Service in the Great Hall of the People is carried out at a cracking pace by efficient waitresses and waiters.

It is hardly surprising after so many courses that desserts are modest afterthoughts. Popular endings are almond bean curd and lotus seeds in milk. Fruit is served in summer.

The layers of food bring several kinds of beverages. At modern banquet settings there is a large tumbler for fizzy fruit drinks or beer—both foreign influences but enjoyed by the Chinese. There are smaller glasses for the devastatingly strong Mao Tai, a fiery brew made from millet, looking like vodka. To a Westerner it may taste like a superior grade of kerosene. I am assured, however, that even an overdose is not followed by a hangover.

Background music for Great Hall banquets is provided by a band of the People's Liberation Army in full uniform. The music tends to be an unobtrusive selection of semimilitary and revolutionary airs.

Beyond the top table is a stage with banks of plants and draped with curtains. On this lonely platform, with its microphones, Nixon may address the gathered assembly. The brilliant red of the Chinese flag will hang alongside the Stars and Stripes.

Banquets end abruptly by 9 or 9:30 and everyone usually goes home, although Chou En-lai has been known to continue private talks in one of the ante-rooms until dawn.

guard against fire

ALWAYS

A MAJOR BREAK-THROUGH FOR THE HOME AND INDUSTRY!

Fire detection is available now at a much lower cost than ever before. Good fire protection costs not $600, not $300 but less than $230 for the average home!

Consider these two cases: Family No. 1 had life insurance, auto insurance and fire insurance; but nothing to warn them when fire struck. They were lost; their insurance couldn't replace their lives.

Family No. 2 had a fire. Their home and belongings were destroyed. Their insurance replaced their lost items. Most importantly, they are still alive and enjoying life because they had adequate fire protection!

Which group do you want to be in? If No. 2 is your choice, then call the Safety Crusader right away, listed under Rev. D.M. Suggs, Phone 746-4577.

Prison Head Is Black, Respected; Loves His Work

By TIM KLASS
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — On July 8, 1966, an assistant warden celebrated his fifth wedding anniversary by fighting an uprising at the Maryland Penitentiary.

As some 1,000 inmates rampaged through the overcrowded, gray stone prison, James Jordan heard a man cry out that a prisoner was trapped in the burning commissary.

"I looked inside and saw this figure through the smoke and flames. One inmate took off his shirt, wet it down and put it on my head. I tried to crawl in, but I couldn't get to him and two of the prisoners held my ankles and dragged me out," Jordan recalls. The trapped inmate escaped serious injury when two of his comrades broke through a rear door.

The riot caused about $750,000 damage to the 160-year-old penitentiary and resulted in the suspension of Vernon Peppersack as state corrections commissioner. Jordan was credited with turning the tide in the uprising—but it almost ended his prison career, too.

"I love prison work," he said the day after the uprising. "It holds the greatest challenge, but I just don't know if I'll be able to go down in that yard again."

His wife, waiting at home for Jordan to take her out to dinner and movie the afternoon of the riot, had seen film clips of her husband being pulled from the burning building.

"She insisted for several days that I quit; go teach in the public schools or something. It could have gone either way.

But I showed her where I wouldn't have been happy doing anything else. Now, I hope I'm in a position to make changes," said Jordan, 47, appointed last Sept. 16 as corrections commissioner—the first black man in the state and only the third in the nation to hold such a post.

Ironically, he was suggested for the job by his predecessor, Joseph Cannon, a white man who replaced Peppersack but was fired last August for "administrative deficiencies." Jordan's appointment quieted rumblings by inmates and prison reform groups, who feared that programs initiated by Cannon would be lost in the shuffle.

Lawrence W. McDaniel, public information officer for the Division of Corrections, said Jordan quickly managed to heal most of the old wounds with state legislators and the governor's office.

And just as he once turned the tide in a prison riot, Jordan says he now aims to turn the whole Maryland correctional system from confinement and punishment to rehabilitation and treatment.

"We hope within five to eight years we will have some community corrections based on 100-bed institutions" for 40 to 50 per cent of the prison population, Jordan said. A pilot project began last January in Baltimore.

The commissioner claims he's gotten support for his philosophy of correction from Gov. Marvin Mandel "all down the line." Jordan often meets with officers during shift changes at the various institutions, sometimes early in the morning or late at night.

"You must treat the men—inmates and correctional officers—as human beings," he says.

"Even the radicals, I have their support, and I need their support. The black community wants us to make changes so that these people will come out and not go back to crime."

A disciplinary procedure requiring hearings and avenues of appeal laid down by a federal judge after a suit by inmates earlier this year upset Mandel, Atty. Gen. Francis B. Burch and several other state officials. But Jordan said it has helped keep Maryland free from major prison disorders.

"Another thing that helps keep the lid on is the men (inmates) know I'm black. The black population and the staff know I will not tolerate any racial discrimination, and I'll fight for prison reform," Jordan said.

Yet he is quick to add that merely being black won't provide him with instant solutions: "The problems will be solved by my ability."

Jordan became assistant warden at the pen after five years as an instructor and three as correctional education supervisor—"like a principal"—at the Maryland House of Correction in Jessup. He was the first black to hold that and each succeeding position.

In April 1969, Cannon appointed him superintendent of the Correctional Institution for Women. Jordan became Cannon's deputy in May 1970.

During that time, Jordan said, he saw many boyhood acquaintances behind bars—no close friends, "just people I knew." But a cousin is serving a 40-year term in the pen, and that man's brother was shot in a robbery attempt and is incarcerated at a minimum-security prison camp.

"We just went different routes," Jordan said. "When you're supporting a mother, you don't have time to get involved in crime."

Antarctic Explorer Said To Have Invited Failure

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor
MCMURDO STATION, Antarctica (AP) — "Great God!

This is an awful place and terrible enough for us to have labored to it without the reward of priority....

"Now for the run home and a desperate struggle. I wonder if we can make it..."

The words are from the diary of Robert Falcon Scott, captain, Royal British navy, written 60 years ago at the South Pole—the "awful place"—as the loser of an incredible race to reach the Pole. He had lost the prize to Roald Amundsen, a Norwegian explorer who became the first man at the bottom of the world 35 days before Scott.

"Home" was a safe hut almost 900 icy miles away, across the two-mile-high polar plateau, down the 126-mile crevasse-ripped Beardmore Glacier, then another 400 miles across the Ross Ice shelf, with winter coming, with temperatures that would, on the homeward journey, dip to 50 below zero.

Scott and his four companions didn't make it. Death closed his diary 177 miles from "home."

In his native England, Scott was acclaimed as a gallant hero, a pioneer daring a totally unknown and cruel land.

But now there are those who say Scott was a stubborn fool, whose bad decisions practically guaranteed failure and death.

The bill of particulars from such critics runs like this:

—Scott man-hauled his heavy sledge containing food, fuel and a tent, rather than employing dog sleds as Amundsen did.

—He erred in relying on Siberian ponies to move out part way the first year to set up caches or depots of food and fuel, as way-station supplies for the full journey out and back the next year. The ponies floundered in deep snow, died of exposure, or had to be shot to end their suffering.

—Of the men who climbed up the Beardmore Glacier to the polar plateau, only four were supposed to make the last leg on to the Pole. But Scott on the scene changed his mind, taking a fifth man, thus compromising his supplies.

—A fellow countryman, Sir Ernest Shackleton, had pushed within about 150 miles of the Pole a few years before, but turned back because he realized he didn't have enough supplies to reach his goal and win his way home safely, as he did. Did Scott know he was pushing beyond a safe point of no return?

—"Gallantly," Scott kept 35 pounds of rocks on his sledge, as a contribution to science. If he had abandoned them, might the weight saving had made a margin of difference to men whose endurance and physical condition were steadily declining?

Scott and two companions—the others had died earlier—reached within 11 miles of their One Ton Depot where food and fuel were stashed. When they pitched their tent for the last time, they had food for two days and fuel for one, and One Ton Depot beckoned. But a blizzard set in and lasted for nine days. Diaries say they sang songs in their final days. Beside them were found unused supplies of opium that could have eased pain before death.

It was probably bad luck rather than bad judgment, but Scott's tins of kerosene fuel had been soldered so that shrinkage occurred around the solder points, and some fuel evaporated. This diminution of fuel for heat and cooking added to their immense discomfort from cold and frostbite.

Some students of Scott doubt that the three men—Scott, 43, Dr. Edward A. Wilson, 39, and Lt. Henry Bowers, 28—would have lived, even had they reached One Ton, because of their physical deterioration.

Amundsen had reached the Pole on Dec. 14, 1911, traveling as far as Scott, but making the journey in 55 days, the return journey in 38. He was safely back in Framheim, his base which is better known now as the Little America area, on Jan. 26, eight days after Scott reached the Pole.

Scott had taken 78 days to get to the Pole, after starting out on Nov. 1. He trekked back for more than 10 weeks before the end.

Regardless of whether Scott was truly a hero or a man whose miscalculations led him and his friends to death, there is no question of his courage. The Scott party found, after the dark antarctic winter, in a snow-covered tent, the site marked by skis and the bamboo mast of their sledge.

Scott's men from his winter base built a huge cairn of snow over the tent, topped it with a cross and brought back the diary and rocks.

But the shelf ice moves slowly toward the sea, where its leading edge keeps breaking off to form huge icebergs. Thus, in time, Scott and his men will find burial at sea.

Prince Edward Island was first settled by the French, about 1719.

North Sea Oil Search Pushed

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Reports indicate the oil industry plans to spend up to $3.5 billion in the next six or seven years on exploration and production in the North Sea.

Eighteen rigs are currently working off Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom. The work level will pick up before the end of 1973, sources said. A total of 15 new rigs are expected to be on location by then, built at a cost of $284 million.

Ancient Sword Found In River

READING, England (AP) — A 2,000-year-old Celtic sword found by a skin diver in the river Thames, has been described by a museum expert in Berkshire as "a very exciting discovery." The three-foot-long sword "is exceptionally beautiful and was probably owned by an aristocratic Celtic warrior," said an official at Reading Museum.

English Course Can Be 'Alive'

Ruth's experience shows that English composition becomes far more dynamic and exciting when the assignments are combined with practical psychology. "An Autumn Sunset" is relatively static when contrasted with "How to ask a girl for a date?"

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Cast T-503: Ruth S., aged 28, is an English teacher.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I used to be a shy, friendless high schooler, too."

"But your column ran in my hometown newspaper so I sent for a few of your booklets and dissected myself."

"And I could hardly believe it was so simple to win friends and be popular!"

"In fact, within a week I had seen such a radical change in the way my classmates reacted that I thought to myself, 'How long has this formula been known?'"

"Now I am married to another teacher who is wonderful but he was so shy in college that he would never have asked me for a date if I hadn't used your 'Compliment Club' method on him at the start."

"Then I deftly tooted his horn with honest praise until he blossomed out into quite a good conversationalist."

"So now I mix Applied Psychology with my classroom assignments in English composition."

"For example, I insist that all my pupils pay 3 sincere verbal compliments per day for a full week and then write an account of how people receive compliments."

"As you have mentioned many times, the average person gets so few bits of praise, he gurgles happily and often doesn't know how to reply."

"But I have also used your suggestion about assigning the task of writing a 50-word contest letter about soap or cereals or other commercial products."

"The teen-agers are delighted at such practical English assignments."

"In fact, one of the girls won a new steam electric iron by submitting her classroom letter to the manufacturer who sponsored the contest."

"Another popular classroom project involves watching their clergyman or any other public speaker and analyzing his getuses, plus his slow, choppy delivery during those first 3 or 4 minutes."

"But the most amusing assignment involves their greeting people with a cordial 'Good morning, how are you?'"

"Then they are to tabulate whether the other person replies with merely a 'Fine' or if he answers, 'Fine, thank you.'"

"And they are to be on the alert for anybody who goes even farther and answers with a 'Fine, thank you. How are you?'"

"Then I have the students try to match those replies with the type of job or occupation their friends follow."

"For I tell them the introverts, such as machinists, chemists, musicians, farmers and those who deal with inanimate objects, will usually reply with a single word, and never think to express thanks for an inquiry about their health."

"The extreme extroverts will show far more social comprehension and thus answer with a 'Fine, thank you. How are you?'"

"Dr. Crane, English becomes fascinating to boys as well as girls, when it is mixed with practical everyday situations! "My students are enthusiastic about our class, for the psychology makes English composition dynamic and far more exciting than a mere essay on an 'Autumn Sunset,' don't you agree?"

Well, Ruth's superb teaching technique is a delight, so I urge all educators to send for my "Test for Teachers," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

West's opening lead eliminated one of South's losers and provided the latter with an opportunity to emerge unscathed at six spades, but when declarer failed to follow up his advantage—West made a quick recovery before it was too late.

North's decision to reach for slam on the deal was highly aggressive facing a partner who has made a preemptive opening bid. If South held the ace of hearts, for example, instead of the ace of clubs, the partnership would have been off the first two tricks in clubs. Similarly, without the jack of clubs in declarer's hand, there is virtually no play for the slam.

West opened the five of diamonds which presented the declarer with an opportunity he would not have otherwise had. If West leads either a trump or the ace of hearts, South can obtain two discards—on the third heart and the ace of diamonds—but must eventually fall back on the club finesse, which fails.

The jack of diamonds was played from the North hand at trick one and when this held, South hastened to cash the ace, discarding his two small hearts. The queen of clubs was led next and when East played the nine, declarer followed with the four, losing to West's king. The latter alertly returned the king of diamonds which provided East with an opportunity to discard his remaining club—the 10. Now, when South attempted to cash the ace of clubs, East ruffed in to score the setting trick.

When South received the favorable opening which enabled him to eliminate his heart loser, he was in position to cinch the contract provided that neither defender has a singleton club. The winning play is to ruff a heart in order to lead a small club from the closed hand. In the present case, West must put up the king which is the only trick that the defense is able to score.

Had East held the king of clubs, he can top dummy's queen, however South wins the return, cashes the ace and then ruffs out his small club with the ace of spades.

Stewardesses Are Escorted

NEW YORK (AP) — One airline has set up a nighttime escort service for its 300 stewardesses working out of LaGuardia Airport.

The stewardesses are driven by male employees from the aircraft landing area to their automobiles and the males wait for the women to drive away.

The service was put into effect after one stewardess was attacked in the employee parking lot.

This is the unadulterated raw story of what life and love are really like in the HELL of an '80 a day habit.

Many parents may be put off by the 'R' rating on this film but in the words of the nation's most esteemed critics "This is a shame" for young people, teenagers and adults alike 'should see the horrors, sickness and vileness resulting from the use of drugs'. "PANIC" is damn strong stuff but we believe this is what you and yours must see. We believe you, your children, and the community at large will all benefit. We know you will agree.
