Pres. Nixon, Chou En-lai Confer Nearly Four Hours

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai conferred nearly four hours today, apparently sounding out each other on the problems that separate their two countries.

In the evening, President and Mrs. Nixon, accompanied by Mme. Chiang Ching, wife of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, attended a modern revolutionary ballet in the Great Hall of the People.

Unlike the largely ceremonial meeting Monday, Nixon and Chou sat down in the Great Hall of the People with only close advisers present. This indicated that they were buckling down to the hard questions of where they disagree.

Chou's remarks of the first day, suggesting a normalization of relations, gave hope that something concrete may emerge from Nixon's visit to China.

For the first time, the Chinese press gave extensive coverage of the visit with pictures of Nixon with Mao and with Chou.

Governor Asks For Resignation

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today he has asked for the resignation of Daniel K. Muse as state burial commissioner no later than April 1.

Scott said an audit report had disclosed administrative irregularities in the operation of the burial commission. The governor did not elaborate.

Muse has been state burial commissioner since September, 1965. The commissioner supervises burial associations throughout the state.

Muse was not immediately available for comment. Scott released a copy of a letter he had written to Muse Feb. 16. In it the governor said, "During the past several months I have been concerned about reports relating to the general administration of the burial commissioner."

"You and I have discussed this matter on two occasions. After the audit was made by Mr. Henry Bridges, state auditor, I asked the Department of Administration to check into the problems which were contained in the audit report."

Scott added that when Irvin Aldridge was appointed secretary of commerce, "I also asked him to review the audit report covering the operation of the burial commission. The Department of Administration personnel and Irvin Aldridge have furnished me recommendations based on their review of the administrative irregularities contained in the report. I am asking you to submit your resignation to me as burial commissioner no later than April 1, 1972. I will appreciate your cooperation in complying with this request."

Scott said Muse had not yet complied with his request.

SHEIKDOM COUP
BEIRUT (AP) — Sheik Khalifa bin Hamad al Thani, prime minister of the Persian Gulf oil sheikdom of Qatar, seized power from his cousin before dawn today.

"Chairman Mao Meets President Nixon" said the headline across the top of the front page of the Peking People's Daily, the newspaper of the Communist party and China's most important journal. And beneath that headline the entire front page was devoted to the meeting between Nixon and Mao Tse-tung and the other events of the President's first day in China.

Pitt Contests Seen This May

Several of the incumbent candidates in Pitt County will have opposition in the May primary although some others will be unopposed until the general elections in November.

Three Democrats have filed in Pitt County for the two District 8 seats in the House of Representatives. Mrs. Ann Paul, executive secretary of the Pitt Board of Elections, reported that incumbents Sam D. Bundy of Farmville and H. Horton Rountree of Greenville have filed as has I. Bruce Koonce of Greenville.

Two Republicans have filed for the District 8 seats but since they have no Republican opposition they will not appear on the ballot until November. They are Frank Steinbeck of Greenville and R. E. "Robbie" Roberson of Ayden.

Mrs. Paul noted that District 8 consists of Pitt and Greene Counties and filing reports have not been received from Greene so there could be other opposition there.

Mrs. Elvira Tyson Allred has filed for reelection as Pitt County Register of Deeds and will be opposed by O. James Rooks, black minister of Greenville.

Incumbent State Senator Vernon White of Winterville has filed for reelection in Pitt County to one of the District 6 seats. Mrs. Paul said that no reports have been received from the other three counties in the district, Halifax, Warren and Edgecombe. Sen. Julian Allsbrook of Roanoke Rapids has announced that he will seek reelection to the other District seat.

In the race for county commissioner, Charles P. Gaskins will seek reelection from Greenville district 1 and will be opposed in the November general elections by Miss Jensina Steinbeck, Greenville Republican candidate.

In District 2, composed of Bethel, Belvoir, Pactolus and Carolina township, R. L. "Bob" Martin has filed for reelection and in District 3, made up of Falkland, Fountain and Farmville, Bruce Strickland has filed for reelection. None of the commissioners have Democratic opposition in the primary.

New School Slated For West Greenville

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Reporter
An "intent to purchase" 30 acres of land for the proposed new middle-junior high school in western Greenville was approved by members of the Greenville City School Board last night.

Approval is subject to several requirements that must be met before the board will be in a position to go ahead officially with purchase approval. Primary among these requirements is approval of the Pitt County Commissioners.

Charles Gaskins, chairman of the County Commissioners, has informed the board this item will be on the commissioner's agenda for the March meeting.

Other requirements concern results of soil boring tests and approval by the State Department of Public Instruction. Dr. J. L. Pierce, director of the Division of School Planning for the Department of Public Instruction, has written superintendent Dr. Clet C. Cleetwood that "on the basis of limited information available I would say that the site could very well serve the projected need."

Dr. Pierce was in Greenville February 2 to look over the site.

Board member Lester Turnage Jr., chairman of a site acquisition committee, reported that the committee's recommendation for a middle-junior high school site is the 30 acre tract south of Kearney Park on undeveloped land owned by Guy and Plato Evans.

"The owners have told us we can have the 30 acres for $150,000," Turnage reported. He said the committee had studied and considered 11 separate available sites and feels this one "is in all respects the most ideal." It is bordered by Kearney Park, the Seaboard Coastline Railroad and the right of way of Arlington Drive extended, which is now under process of being developed.

Funds to purchase the land are available in the school budget. At budget time last year an amount of $70,000 was approved for site acquisition. This, added to $80,000 held in reserve from insurance receipts from settlement of the Eppes fire, provides the needed purchase amount of $150,000.

According to Turnage, City Engineer C. A. Holliday is preparing a plat of the area, and action is being taken to have a topographical map made.

The dates of March 27 and March 28 was revealed by Dr. Cleetwood as dates for conducting immunization of school children for Rubella measles. The immunization is a state requirement.

In outlining preliminary work to be made on the forthcoming school budget, which the board will begin tackling in March for study and review during a period of approximately two months, Dr. Cleetwood noted "it is going to be rough going."

He cited the recent unexpected mid-year increase of utility rates imposed by the Greenville Utilities Commission, salary and fringe benefit increases, and rising costs all around as factors that would have to be faced in attempting to draft a "budget that will meet the minimum essentials within the limited resources available."

On fringe benefits, Dr. Cleetwood told board members that recent state legislation has provided hospital, medical and disability benefits for all state employees, including teachers and other state employees in the school system.

The superintendent observed this raises the questions for the board about thinking in terms of providing similar benefits for non-state employees in the school system. Again the problem of any such consideration is monetary, as there are approximately 200 of the 500 school system force not on the state payroll. "This means," Dr. Cleetwood explained, "that a full fringe benefit program, which would cost $153 per employee per year, would be a budget item in the neighborhood of $30,000."

Another new legislative act was also discussed by Dr. Cleetwood. He told board members that the new teacher tenure act, to go into effect two years from now, means that once a teacher has completed a probationary term and becomes a "career" teacher, dismissal would be a complicated process involving a special hearing by an "outside board" selected from among 143 persons in the state named to serve as members for such a board.

Board members heard a report from Donovan Phillips on the work to date of the Citizens Advisory Committee. Phillips explained that at its recent meeting, the committee established its role as "a link between the board and the people, one to serve also in the capacity of a human relations committee." He said the committee considered one of its primary objects was "to be a real service rather than another obstacle to the board."

A nominating committee was established at the recent meeting, and officers are expected to be elected at the March 13 meeting. Proposed are a president, a vice-president, a liaison officer, a corresponding secretary and a recording secretary.

For the one school day lost to date, the board approved taking Thursday before Easter as the make-up date. Originally, the school calendar provided for that date as part of the three day Easter holiday — Thursday, Friday and Monday.

Board members last night approved participation by Rose High School in a survey project of 100 students to be conducted by the Educational Leadership and Human Relations Center located at Saint Augustine College in Raleigh. Approval is subject to personal endorsement of the survey form by members of the State Department of Public Instruction's Human Relation Division.

It was pointed out results of the survey would not be made a matter of public record releasable to news media, but would be used statistically in conjunction with results of four other schools in North Carolina being asked to take part.

Member Dr. James Bearden took exception to one of the questions listed on the survey "It is a known fact that racial violence in the community could occur at any time." He noted he could not see the validity of questions such as this.

In reports of school facilities, Associate Superintendent Glenn Cox said the lease with Greenville Recreation Department for use of the Eppes property had been signed and is in effect; that work is going on at Aycock Junior High on the field track; that installation of air conditioning units will be completed there prior to warm weather; and that work is underway to repair leaks in the roof of Rose High Gymnasium.

A report by Dr. Cleetwood revealed that progress is being made on drafting recommendations for policy guides to be considered by the school board in formulating a policy manual. Many of the standing policies which in effect are guidelines used by the board have never been codified.

Dr. Cleetwood also advised that for the third time a bid had been made to secure the services of an Advisory Specialist for the city school system. If Atlanta approves funding, the specialist would be hired initially for the period July 1, 1972 to June 30, 1973.

Board members turned down with thanks an offer by Encyclopaedia Britannica for placement of several sets of

Bloom Running For Solicitor

Eli Bloom, long-time prosecutor in the Greenville Municipal Records Court and in the new District Court, has filed for election as Solicitor for the Third Judicial District.

Bloom, who has served as Solicitor of the four-county District, including Pitt, Craven, Pamlico and Carteret Counties, since March 1971, is seeking election to complete the balance of the unexpired term of former Solicitor Luther Hamilton Jr. of Morehead City. Hamilton resigned from the post effective February 28, 1971 and Bloom was appointed by Gov. Bob Scott to fill the vacated spot. The term being sought by Bloom ends January, 1975.

Bloom faces no opposition in his bid for the post.

The candidate served as solicitor for the Greenville records court from July 1, 1941 until appointed chief district prosecutor for the Third District November 1, 1968. He began his duties in that post when the District Court system went into effect on December 1, 1968 and remained chief district court prosecutor until appointed assistant solicitor for the district January 1, 1971 during the final phase of reorganization of the court system.

Bloom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and operated a ladies ready to wear shop in Greenville for many years until he retired about five years ago.

I Bruce Koonce, a Greenville resident for the past 36 years and former chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections filed yesterday as a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the North Carolina House of Representatives.

Koonce will face incumbent Representative Horton Rountree in the May 6 primary for nomination to the House from Pitt and Greene Counties.

"I enter this race," Koonce said yesterday, "with a deep sense of humility and for the reason of involvement to further strengthen our democratic process of choosing our officials."

According to Koonce, "I feel that I can make a contribution to the advancement of good government in this state and will use my every effort to work for the promotion of all issues that would be of help and importance to this district and to the Eastern region of our state."

Wayne Case Is Taken To Court

James' appeal was in a petition filed Monday in Wake County Superior Court against the Wayne board. In his petition, he asked the court to review by trial the decision of the board.

Bag A MIG21

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Fliers shot down their second North Vietnamese MIG in five weeks Monday night and made five attacks on antiaircraft batteries in North Vietnam, the U.S. Command reported.

Maj. Robert A. Lodge, 30, of Columbus, Ohio, and 1st Lt. Roger C. Locher, 25, of Sabetha, Kan., said they intercepted the 1,300-mile-an-hour Communist jet over northeast Laos and fired three missiles at it when about 90 miles southwest of Hanoi.

They reported an explosion and a fireball lit up the night skies. The American were flyin an Air Force F4 Phantom.

Military spokesmen said two MIG21s crossed into Laos while American planes were supporting Laotian forces north of the Plain of Jars.

Lodge and Locher said they fired their electronically controlled missiles at one of the enemy planes and the second fled back toward Hanoi.

Now 3-Way Race For Judgeship

The District Judgeship now held by Robert Wheeler of Grifton became a three-way race yesterday as William E. Whitehurst of Ayden paid his filing fee to the State Board of Elections and cast his hat in the May 6 primary ring.

Wheeler has said he will seek re-election to the post he has held since 1968, while Russell Wooten of Ayden announced last week that he would attempt to unseat the incumbent jurist.

Yesterday, Whitehurst, a resident of Pitt County for the past 20 years, said he is seeking the post because, "I feel the position of District Judge is not just for lawyers, but for a person who has had experience in law enforcement and the functions of the court as well."

A native of Pasquotank County and a U.S. Coast Guard veteran, Whitehurst came to Pitt County as a member of the North Carolina State Highway

Patrol in 1951 after completing the Highway Patrol's Basic School at the Institute of

'Keystone' Is Free Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for the six major free-cured tobacco producing states told a Senate subcommittee today that "unfettered free trade" is a keystone in the progress of the tobacco industry.

North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham made the comment in a presentation prepared for the agricultural exports subcommittee of the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee.

Graham spoke as a representative of North and South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

He commended federal efforts to open trade channels with Red China and other Communist nations and said the United States "must keep doors open to trade for leaf tobacco and tobacco products with the European Economic Community."

"Tobacco continues to enjoy a great part in shaping the nation's economy," he said. "Not only does the U.S. lead the entire world in tobacco production, but the U.S. also is the world leader in tobacco exports."

"U.S. grown tobacco and U.S. manufactured tobacco products sold abroad last year were assigned a dollar value of some $713 million. Put another way, this means that tobacco export sales accounted for about one dollar in every six dollars of U.S. agricultural export sales," he said. "Thus, tobacco and tobacco products made a significant contribution to our balance of trade payments."

Tasting-Tour Of Hotel Kitchen By Pat Nixon

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent PEKING (AP) — In the family tradition of kitchen diplomacy, Pat Nixon made a tasting tour today of the kitchens of the famed Peking Hotel, the mother house of Chinese haute cuisine.

"This is marvelous, I think I'll sit down and finish the whole bowl," exclaimed the First Lady, deftly locking her chopsticks into a morsel of chicken breast simmering in a soy and mushroom sauce.

All the little chefs in their little white Mao caps beamed with revolutionary pride as the President's lady gnoshed at random in the spotless white tiled kitchens.

There were goldfish in white sauce, egg rolls rampant on a field of seaweed, steamed baby birds couchant on clam shell pastry, something hairy called "hair vegetable in chicken soup" and hundreds of other delicacies being whipped up by the hotel's 115 chefs for the noonday delight of the 200 guests in residence in the massive old hotel.

Sun Hein Ming, chairman of the hotel's revolutionary committee, which in Maotalk means head chef, played galloping gourmet for Mrs. Nixon's hour-long romp through the menu.

Mingling with the comrades slaving over a platter of hot hors d'oeuvres, Mrs. Nixon was persuaded to sample a sweet and sour stuffed pickled squash.

"It's delicious. Here, try it," said she, turning to a reporter. He swallowed as directed and experienced a small nuclear explosion in the duodenal chamber.

"Very spicy," explained Mrs. Nixon's interpreter, too late.

Amid a flood of TV lights and a push of reporters reminiscent of her husband's triumph in the kitchen debate in Moscow, Mrs. Nixon proved an apt student of the four styles of Chinese cooking. She barely blanched in passing through the rooms where pheasants and ducks hung out to drain, and with instinctive savoir faire she refrained from asking the gourmet's name for the pork fillets that the chefs were kneading and molding into flaccid lumps.

"That one called Beautiful Woman's Rolling Buttocks," volunteered an interpreter out of range of the First Lady's hearing but with sufficient volume for the TV microphone booms.

The President loves Chinese food," Mrs. Nixon assured the wives of the Chinese foreign minister and vice premier who accompanied her on the kitchen tour.

Toward the end of the long march down the endless corridors of epicure, the First Lady firmly turned chopsticks down on further sampling.

"All I seem to be doing all day is eating," she sighed, waving aside a proffered egg roll. "I don't want to buy all new clothes when I get back."

Permits Issued For Apartment Complex And Lumber Corp.

Building permits have been issued within the past week covering two projects amounting to more than a million dollars in construction in Greenville.

Building inspector J. W. Wilson confirms that a proposed 100 unit apartment complex and a lumber corporation are in the works for immediate construction within the city limit.

The new apartment complex at a cost of $964,788, to be known as Lakeview Terrace Apartments, will be located off the extension of Arlington Drive now under construction at Hooker Road. The property is being developed by Miller Building Corporation of Wilmington. Architects are Jeffries and Faris of Wilmington.

Wilson said access to the apartment site, on the east side of Hooker Road but not to be adjacent to Hooker, will be by two streets, one going into Arlington Drive extended; the other an extension of Millbrook Street across Hooker Road.

Planned for the apartment complex are 14 individual buildings, in addition to a maintenance and laundry facility building. The plan shows provisions for 14 four bedroom apartments; 30 three bedroom apartments; 40 two bedroom apartments and 12 one bedroom apartments. In addition, there will be four one-bedroom single story sections.

The new wholesale and retail lumber and home supply building is being constructed by Wicks Corporation on the south side of West Greenville Boulevard, on a site between Colonial Oil Company and the railroad. Construction is to be by the Wicks Corporation, with a cost listed at $110,000.

Construction on both the Wicks project, according to Wilson, is already underway.

Today's freak distribution produced some wild results when it was dealt in the Mixed Pair Championships at the Fall Nationals held in Phoenix late last year. Although East was obliged to make a belated entrance into the auction—sometimes at a high level—he could not be restrained once he got going and where he was permitted to buy the hand for six hearts, he emerged with a handsome profit for his only loser on the deal was one spade trick.

East's bidding pyrotechnics, consisting of an original cue bid, followed by single-handedly bidding up to the six level opposite a consistently silent partner, made believers out of many of the North-South pairs and they persisted to six spades in an attempt to minimize their losses on the deal. A club lead by West would have netted three tricks for the defenders since East can ruff the opening lead. The more normal lead of a red card restricted East to two tricks and a 100 point profit on the deal.

At one table, a slip by East at the outset provided South with an opportunity to put on a bit of razzle-dazzle that completely disorganized his opponent and led to the only plus score achieved by a North-South pair.

The bidding proceeded as shown in the diagram and West chose to open the nine of diamonds against six spades doubled. East overtook the first trick with the ten and there was no valid reason for him not to cash one heart next to score the setting trick; instead, he continued with the king of diamonds which South ruffed.

Declarer had 11 tricks in the black suits with no way to score a 12th. By running his winners down, he would oblige his opponent to make a great many discards. If a quick tempo was maintained and all the spot cards were not kept track of by the defender, there might be a chance to create a guess for him late in the play. This is how South proceeded:

The queen of spades was put thru for a successful finesse, after West played the seven. The jack of spades was covered by the king and ace and then the six of clubs was led to South's king. A small spade was overtaken by the eight and the eight of clubs was played to the ace. Now the ten of clubs was covered by the jack and queen.

A spade put South in and he led his last trump on which the four of hearts was discarded from dummy. The four of clubs was led to North's nine and this was the position at trick 12:

North

The three of clubs was led and East who had paid very little attention to what had happened in the club suit earlier in the play, suddenly found himself confronted with a crucial decision. He knew that South had a club left, for he had counted out the distribution of every suit as the hand progressed, but he was not sure of the spots. If South's club was higher than the three, then it would be correct to discard the ace of diamonds, for declarer was known to be out of that suit and after winning the club at trick 12, he would be obliged to surrender the last trick to East's ace of hearts. Naturally, if South had held the deuce of clubs, then North would retain the lead and East has to hold the ace of diamonds.

East was hopelessly confused because he just didn't remember. He finally parted with the ace of diamonds and dummy took the last two tricks.

In Rhyming Line Or Two, Here's Hot Retort For You

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: The letter from that girl who didn't want to get too chummy with a young man for fear of what he'd say behind her back reminded me of something that happened to me back in 1912.

I saw a pretty little girl at a country dance who interested me, so I asked a friend of mine what "kind" of girl she was. I've never forgotten his reply:

"The grass grows green in Ireland
The flames are hot in Hell,
And damn the guy who'd kiss a girl
And turn around and tell."

LAUDERDALE

DEAR LAUD: Your friend practically damned the poor girl with his poem. A true gentleman would have said:

"Don't ask a guy about a gal
If you want no illusions,
Just take her out yourself, my friend,
And draw your own conclusions!"

[VAN BUREN]

DEAR ABBY: Thanks a million for your answer to that pastor who, for safety's sake, objected to throwing rice in or around the church. He said, "If the bridal reception is at the country club, great, throw rice everywhere!" [You said, "So if somebody falls down and breaks a leg at the country club, it's better?"]

I manage a country club in Indianapolis, and I am also safety-minded. Furthermore, have you ever seen a nicely polished hardwood floor after rice has been thrown, and guests have walked on it? It ruins the floor!

One bridal couple had rose petals thrown at them instead of rice. That was worse! The rose petals stained our carpet. Why don't we give up the pagan rite of throwing rice, flower petals or confetti?

G. M. GRADY

DEAR MR. G: I'm with you all the way. If people want to throw something after a wedding, why not be practical and throw money? [At the bride's father. He can probably use it.]

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this in regard to "Neat and Orderly," the 28-year-old bachelor who is concerned about his being such a perfectionist.

I am an 18-year-old college freshman with the same problem. For instance, not only are the bills in my wallet arranged in descending order, the bills range from the oldest to the newest, the oldest being foremost so as to spend them first.

The clothes in my closet must all be facing the same way, and each article of clothing must be equally spaced from the next. [And I won't have a hanger in my closet that is even slightly rusted.]

So many people have told me that there must be something wrong with me, I started to believe them. But everybody's compulsive about something, and I am compulsive about orderliness, and there are worse things a girl could have. Right, Abby? "ANOTHER PERFECTIONIST"

DEAR ANOTHER: Right. And one of them would be for a girl like you to marry a slobbish man.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GYPPED IN BUFFALO": One usually gets what he pays for. The inconvenience of poor quality lingers long after the thrill of a bargain is forgotten. Sale merchandise marked "not returnable" is not returnable.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Trillis Pollard, bride-elect of March 1, was honored at a miscellaneous shower on Saturday night.

Hostesses were Mrs. Frank M. Brown and Mrs. James M. Smith of Salisbury. The shower was held at the home of Mrs. Brown on Fifth Street.

The bride-elect was given a corsage of lavender chrysanthemums upon arrival. Guests were greeted by the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Idie Pollard, of Winterville, Mrs. C. Weldon Ellis of Farmville, mother of the bridegroom-elect, and Mrs. Brown.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white mums and pink carnations flanked by pink tapers in silver candelabra.

Woman Wins Over Finest Chefs

PARIS (WNS) — Women's Liberation in France; Mme. Denise Henry has won the national competition of the Poêle d'Or (the Gold Pan) against the finest chefs of France. The finals were held aboard the liner France docked at Le Havre.

"Women are the great cooks despite the reputations of male chefs," she declared. "It is the same in couture where male designers could not surpass Mme. Chanel in the old days, nor Mme. Gres in the present era." Mme. Henry's country restaurant in St. Lambert has attracted famous diners, ranging from Pope John XXIII to Danielle Darrieux, the "Coco" star. Nowadays she comes to Paris to supervise the gastronomic cruises of the river boat Borde-Fretigny on the Seine.

president-elect, Don Costa, director, Safety Division of All State Insurance, Mrs. Margaret Cronan, Pilot International Safety Chairman, and Mrs. Sue Smith.

Mrs. Smith Named District Pilot Chairman Of Safety

Mrs. Sue Smith, of the Pilot Club of Greenville, has been appointed District VI Chairman of the Safety Committee of Pilot International for 1972-73.

The appointment was made by District First Lt. Governor Sara Hunning of New Bern and will be announced, with other appointments for the coming year, to some 16,000 Pilot members through the March issue of the organization's magazine "The Pilot Log."

This new issue also outlines the programs to be undertaken by Pilot Clubs during the new year under the theme "Leaders in Service—The world is Yours."

Mrs. Smith recently attended the Pilot International 11th Annual Traffic Safety Conference, Washington, D. C. As district chairman, she will have a major role in developing the programs in District VI, which includes Pilot Clubs in North Carolina.

In addition to working with clubs throughout the year, she will develop and present special plans for her committee's activities during the annual district convention to be held in San Francisco, Calif., in July.

Mrs. Smith, a local motel owner, has been a member of the Pilot Club of Greenville, Inc., for three and a half years. She was named Pilot of the Year for 1971 and has served the club as a member of the Safety Committee and as a director.

For the past year, she served as chairman of the Finance Committee. Under her direction, the club was able to net $1,821.50 from its fund raising project, Christmas creations.

On the district level, she served as Finance Chairman, 1970-71.

Beginners Will Make Mistakes

Beginners in the presidential primary field are open to mistakes the first time around, which is perfectly all right if we learn by them.

This is North Carolina's first experience in the game, and it's just possible the 1972 N.C. primary could prove to be a flop. There has been no rush of candidates to signify their interest, though that might come later.

The wariness may be due to a number of factors; but two of them stand out as potential deterrents. One of these would be the early endorsement of Edmund Muskie by the Governor of North Carolina; the other, a move to insert Terry Sanford's name in the lists.

Governor Robert Scott and former Governor Terry Sanford have a large number of influential and loyal followers, posing an imponderable impact on the outcome of a presidential primary in this state.

Either of these moves might have a cooling effect on candidates who want to test their vote-getting power on an "impartial" electorate. Together, they pose a strong deterrent.

The cost of co-campaigning in a primary runs high (ask any candidate), and a candidate has to expect an opportunity of substantial reward for his efforts and money.

It is just possible a considerable number of 1972 presidential hopefuls may conclude they do not "need" to run in North Carolina's primary. And to be worthy of the name, the primary does need the candidates.

Thomas Wolfe's Home Is A Fitting Landmark

Thomas Wolfe may be North Carolina's most famous writer of fiction; thus it is fitting that his home in Asheville has been made a national historic landmark.

The Department of the Interior announced 78 new designations this week, including Wolfe's home "Dixieland".

The announcement said, "As the scene of his boyhood, the rambling Spruce Street house in Asheville became the 'Dixieland' boardinghouse of the classic 'Look Homeward Angel'. Preserved unchanged by the city of Asheville since the death of Wolfe's mother in 1945, the home is open to the public as a striking memorial to the author."

The house will not be owned or managed by the National Park Service, but the designation means that it is recognized as a landmark and its preservation is encouraged.

Wolfe's reputation as a writer grows through the years. Certainly his home deserves to be preserved as a memorial.

Cost Hits Job Of Restoration

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH—Restoration of North Carolina's 132-year-old Capitol has been delayed by the prospect of soaring costs. Estimates for the work, which has been scheduled to begin this month, ran nearly double the $525,000 provided by the 1971 General Assembly.

How to resolve the problem

BRYAN HAISLIP

— through transfer of funds from other sources or scaling down the scope of the restoration — will be discussed by the Advisory Budget Commission when it meets here Feb. 25.

"The situation is not out of the ordinary," said Dr. William Turner, director of the state department of administration. "It's something you run into these days on practically any building work."

Inflation and rising costs affect construction at the rate of 8 to 10 per cent annually, he pointed out. The specialized nature of restoration, he added, makes it expensive and virtually impossible to accurately predict costs.

No Long Delay Seen

A halt to the project or the necessity to go back to the next legislature for additional money is not foreseen, Turner said. Nor should completion of the Capitol overhaul be delayed for more than a month or so, he said.

"We may not be able to do all we had hoped originally," he conceded. "But we will go right ahead with the work as soon as we can."

A prime objective has been to have the Capitol restored by the end of the year, and ready for the inauguration of a new governor is still viable, Turner declared.

Gov. Bob Scott and Secretary of State Thad Eure moved out of their Capitol offices early this month to prepare for the restoration. Since then, it has sat empty and waiting.

$945,000 Is Maximum

The $945,000 reported to the Advisory Budget Commission late last month represents the "maximum financial liability" involved in the restoration, said Carroll Mann, state property control officer.

It was arrived at by having contractors look the Capitol over carefully and estimate the maximum amount that might be required for the work that needs to be done, he explained.

"That doesn't mean every dollar of that will be spent," he cautioned. At the same time, he agreed, it is the amount which should be in sight before the work begins.

Mann said he would have further information to put before the budget commission on Feb. 25, the result of his continuing study of the matter and negotiations with contractors.

At the January meeting, the budget commission decided after discussion to carry the matter over one month.

Burney Polls Senators

In the meantime, Sen. John Burney of New Hanover, a commission member, has written fellow Senators to report the situation and ask their reaction.

"They voted for this appropriation to fix the Capitol, and I wanted to know how they felt about it," Burney explained. He said the sentiment they express will guide his action as a member of the Budget commission.

Burney said he has heard from about two-thirds of the 50 Senators, but he declined to say how they responded until he has heard from all of them.

The present Capitol, described as a gem of architecture, was completed in 1840. It replaced the original Capitol which was destroyed by fire on June 21, 1831.

Cost was a problem then, too. Over an eight-year period, the legislature made a series of appropriations which finally totaled almost $532,000.

Now, it appears that close to twice that amount will be needed to put it in sound condition.

Kleindienst's Approval Seen

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Belying last fall's White House concern about Senate confirmation of Atty. Gen.-designate Richard Kleindienst, a secret decision by the Leadership Conference on civil rights not to oppose him assures confirmation with only a scattering of votes against him.

The Conference, composed of 126 organizations supporting civil rights, could not reach "full consensus" on Kleindienst at a meeting last week. Without such consensus, it does not take formal positions.

That protects Kleindienst, an outspoken conservative and scarcely a champion of civil liberties, from assault by the nation's most powerful civil rights lobbying group. The Conference spearheaded the defeat of President Nixon's first two Southern Supreme Court nominees.

Moreover, Kleindienst is picking up support—or at least, lack of opposition—from moderate and liberal Senators with whom he has engaged in acid feuds. Republican Sen. Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky, who could not get Kleindienst's approval for a judicial appointment, will speak for Kleindienst in the Senate.

More revealing is the lack of any present intention by Republican Sen. Clifford Case of New Jersey, a bonded liberal, to oppose Kleindienst.

Case, promised active White House support for reelection this year, had a serious run-in with Kleindienst over Justice Department refusal to approve Clarence Clyde Ferguson, a black who taught law at Rutgers and now is ambassador to Uganda, for the Federal bench. Despite that clash, Case will not fight Kleindienst's nomination unless Senate Judiciary Committee hearings turn up damaging testimony.

Even more important, Case's attitude is reflected by Democratic liberals on the Judiciary Committee, including Philip Hart of Michigan and John V. Tunney of California. Only Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, abroad when Kleindienst's nomination was announced, is expected to make a serious assault.

A footnote: Relatively easy Senate confirmation has not eased fears by Presidential intimates that Kleindienst's tendency to put foot in mouth will embarrass the President during the fall campaign.

No 'Man in Peking' When President Nixon left for China, he had tentatively decided not to ask the Communist government for a permanent representative in Peking.

With no immediate prospect of diplomatic recognition between the U. S. and Red China, the President feels that the quid pro quo of permanent representation would cost him more than any conceivable benefits from "our man in Peking."

His reasoning: Western nations with regular diplomatic establishments in China learn no more from their Peking agents than can be read in newspapers having resident correspondents or from the Asian Communist press. The party's total control over China's closed society makes impossible normal functioning of a diplomat.

Mr. Nixon does hope for more regular communication with Peking, with periodic conversations at a high level. Where these would take place, and how frequently, is a major item on the agenda for Mr. Nixon and Prime Minister Chou En-lai.

A footnote: Mr. Nixon has been advised not to expect a roaring reception in Peking Monday (Sunday night, Washington time)—certainly nothing so glorious as his wild 1969 reception in Bucharest. The Party has decreed a "tepid" and "austere" reception in Peking. If private talks go well, the Party will gradually escalate pro-Nixon demonstrations, peaking on his last stop in

Easier Said Than Done

One of the favorite all-year sports around this town is to rate the bristle factor at the highest levels of public service. We have had some gold medal winners. The late Speaker John McCormack could reach full bristle in 0.05 seconds; Frances Knight, the dragon lady of the Passport Office, has reigned for years over the women's division. A promising contender for the men's title emerged the other afternoon, when some of us went around to the Commerce Department for a farewell press conference with outgoing Secretary Maurice Stans. Someone asked him why minority assistance programs had failed so badly, and Stans bristled in nothing flat. It was a bristle of majestic proportions. The program hasn't failed, said the indignant secretary, and he was overflowing with evidence on the point.

The story merits "a few minutes of your thought." If the desperate problems of our urban minorities are to be significantly relieved, they must be relieved primarily through economic opportunity in the private sector. The task cannot be done through public housing or public welfare or make-work jobs on the public payroll. The answer lies in generating new income sources down in the cities where the people live.

As Paul R. Porter recently has demonstrated, in a perceptive essay on the plight of our inner cities, there is small reason to suppose that black employment opportunities will be created by what might be termed, in this context, "white capital." Manufacturing plants aren't moving in; they're moving out. Between 1954 and 1963, Boston lost 452 plants; its suburbs gained 443. St. Louis lost 280; its suburbs gained 349. In Milwaukee, 146 plants closed down; 602 set up shop in the suburbs. It is a fair assumption that the trend continues.

These dramatic shifts might be countered, of course, by a massive program to move blue-collar blacks out to where the jobs are. It is easier said than done. Everything that is recommended in this complex human problem is easier said than done. Another approach, offering psychological benefits almost as important as the economic benefits, lies in a bootstrap operation for developing minority business enterprises. Over the long haul, this approach holds great promise. Lyndon Johnson saw this. So did Richard Nixon. But an impression prevails, as the question to Flags fluttered merrily under the influence of a stiff north wind today as Greenville turned to the observance of the bicentennial celebration of the birth of George Washington. While virtually all stores and business houses were open as usual, banks were closed and the post office observed special hours. In the business district, flags flew from poles along the sidewalks lending a festive appearance to the scene. In Washington, President Hoover today attended the first joint session of Congress and paid tribute to the first president in a speech that signaled the opening of a nine month celebration honoring the 200th anniversary of Washington's birthday.

Miss Mamie E. Jenkins and Miss Kate Lewis of the college faculty spent the weekend in Franklinton.

Strength For Today

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Everything in the U.S.A. goes back to George Washington — first in peace, first in war, and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

Thomas Jefferson wrote this about President Washington some years after his death:

"His mind was great and powerful, without being of the very first order; his penetration strong, though not so acute as that of a Newton, Bacon or Locke; and as far as he saw, no judgment was ever sounder. It was slow in operation, being little aided by invention or imagination, but sure in conclusion....Perhaps the strongest feature in his character was prudence, never acting until every circumstance, every consideration, was maturely weighed; refraining when he saw a doubt, but, when once decided, going through with his purpose whatever obstacles opposed. His integrity was most pure, his justice the most inflexible I have ever known, no motives or interest or consanguinity, or friendship or hatred, being able to bias his decision. He was indeed, in every sense of the words, a wise, a good and a great man....On the whole, his character was, in its mass, perfect, in nothing bad, in few points indifferent; and it may truly be said, that never did nature and fortune combine more perfectly to make a man great, and to place him in the same constellation with whatever worthies have merited from man an everlasting remembrance...."

We can all say "Amen" to that, and "Hallelujah."

Four-Day Week May Be Ahead

By ELMER ROESSNER

The four-day week may be coming, but it won't be coming generally this year, or next, or next, judging from research by Eileen B. Hoffman, published in the Conference Board "Record."

While there has been a lot of attention to the idea — and that attention will continue as long as unemployment remains high — Miss Hoffman finds that there is little forward movement. "Only a tiny fraction of all U.S. firms and about 100,000 workers have switched to a rearranged workweek of fewer days or hours," she found. This does not include recession-induced layoffs and reduction in workweeks.

"At least one domestic airline has adopted a four-day, 40-hour schedule for half of its employees," she reports. "Some municipalities in California have put their police forces on the four-day week and in Florida one sanitation department's workweek has been shifted to four days. The Social Security Administration is considering a four-day 40-hour schedule for 15,000 employees in its

ELMER ROESSNER

Baltimore headquarters, pending changes in federal overtime statutes.

Laws block the four-day week in with 10-hour days in 21 of the 50 states. These laws prohibit women from working more than eight hours a day and anti-discrimination laws often extend that to men; sometimes they require overtime after eight hours in any one day.

States in which the four-day, 40-hour week can cause trouble or expense are Alabama, California, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Washington.

District of Columbia laws also limit the hours at which women may work at certain jobs.

There are three general variations of the four-day plan:

The compressed workweek: In this, the same number of hours are worked in fewer days, such as four 10-hour days, with weekly wages unchanged.

The reduced workweek: In these cases, there is a slight decrease in the total hours, but still longer days, such as a four-day, 38 hour week. Some companies say that total production is as high as before because start-up and closing-down time is reduced.

The less-workweek: This involves the four-day workweek with no change in hours per day. This is rare, but the Steelworkers and Transport Workers have adopted it as a bargaining point. A Minnesota advertising agency tried a four-day, 32-hour week last year. It was successful in summer, but not in the rest of the year when clients wanted five-day service.

And, as reported here earlier, many unions agree to a four-day week only on condition that there be no lengthening of each day's work unless at overtime rates.

Miss Hoffman concludes that there has been a persistent shortening of the work year since the 1940s, largely through longer vacations and more holidays, and a reduction in career work by earlier retirements. But there has been no dramatic decline in the workweek since 1945.

Exotic Dancers Assist Charity

BALTIMORE (AP) — Exotic dancers of The Block nightclub district helped thaw an icebound city by raising more than $4,000 for Variety Club charities.

"We're still counting" money taken in in the Burlesk-A-Thon first weekend, sponsors said Monday.

The girls—who came from Block nightclubs and as far away as Boston—shook out more than $4,000 in a grinding 10½ hours of shimmying at a 190-seat theater.

A spokesman said the money will be used to buy a small bus for trips by handicapped children, and it probably will be dedicated to the girls on The Block.

HHH's Florida Clouds

Reflecting Sen. Hubert Humphrey's slumping campaign in the Florida Democratic Presidential primary, the volatile Robert Herwitz has been quietly stripped of duties as state campaign manager while keeping the title.

Some Humphrey lieutenants were all for sacking Herwitz, a Coral Gables, Fla., public relations man, after his unexpected tirade attacking David Schoumacker of CBS as a "yellow-dog" journalist. Even before that, top Humphrey operatives were dissatisfied with his performance.

But Herwitz on the payroll is a prerequisite for support from Mayor David Kennedy of Miami. Consequently, Herwitz remains nominal state campaign manager while actual control in Florida is assumed by Humphrey's Washington-based managers.

A footnote: A recent telephone check of Florida voters interviewed last November by pollster Oliver Quayle for Sen. Henry M. Jackson shows Humphrey dropping to third place from second. Gov. George Wallace in first place, Sen. Edmund Muskie in second and Jackson in fourth are gaining. But Mayor John V. Lindsay, whose Florida "boom" has been built by the Eastern press, is shown by Quayle slipping from 10 per cent statewide down to 5 per cent for a poor fifth.

What is a genius? A genius is a man who can make all four faces of a county courthouse clock tower work three days in a row—and all agree what time it is.

The trouble with getting much more leisure in our lives is that it will force us to work twice as hard to find something to do that really entertains us.

If we were all told we could start our lives all over again, the only observable result would be a generation of major unemployment among gravediggers.

Stans made evident, that nothing much is moving forward.

So Stans bristled. The Office of Minority Business Enterprise, which started this fiscal year with a $4 million appropriation, will have $60 million next year. During the last fiscal year, government grants, loans and guarantees to minority entrepreneurs reached $434 million, more than double the figure for 1969. Over this same period, government purchases from minority-owned enterprises leaped from $8.2 million to $77.8 million. Stans is especially proud of the 43 "Mesbics" now in operation—Mesbic being the acronym for Minority Enterprise Small Business Investment Company.

Under the government's prodding, says Stans, the private sector is showing significant activity. Blacks and Chicanos increasingly are getting into franchised businesses, retail sales, and automobile service stations. Two years ago there were only 14 black automobile dealerships; now there are 89.

Stans is a realist. The dimensions of the inequity, he concedes, still are "tremendous." Minority groups make up 17 percent of the population, "but they control less than one percent of the nation's business sales, representing four percent of the country's total number of enterprises." The truly big gains are yet to be made.

All the same, the departing secretary makes a good case. Black spokesmen may not be impressed—they are rarely impressed by the Nixon administration—but the record of achievement is not bad—not bad at all.

Which does North Carolina have the most of?

For every 5,000 North Carolinians, there is 1 state patrolman.
For every 5,000 North Carolinians, there are 1¾ dentists.
For every 5,000 North Carolinians, there are 3 firemen.
For every 5,000 North Carolinians, there are 4¼ Wachovians.

Which makes sense. Because people go to the bank more often than they dent fenders, chip teeth, or have fires. And Wachovia is more people's bank. So it takes more of us to serve all 500,000 of our customers.

Especially the way we do it. One at a time.

Kilmer Stresses Determination As Key

Principals at ECU Banquet

Determination can mean a lot to a football player, Billy Kilmer, the quarterback who guided the Washington Redskins into the NFL playoffs this past year, said last night.

He was addressing the East Carolina University football banquet, held at the Candlewick Inn.

And Kilmer is a living example of what courage and determination can do. Just recently he has been recognized for this, winning the 1971 award as the Most Courageous National League Football Player.

"Kilmer doesn't have the greatest ability," East Carolina Coach Sonny Randle said. "But he has the leadership qualities and traits that no quarterback will ever duplicate. This alone makes him great."

And Kilmer pointed to his own experiences, both as an individual and as a member of the Redskins to prove that determination will go a long way in helping a player to win.

He cited the start of practice last year, when George Allen took over as head coach of the Redskins. "The Redskins had a history of losing," he said, "but Allen put pride in us to change this. He has the ability to make you play hard on Sunday."

He listed several examples. "Alex Karras said after Sonny Jurgensen got hurt that the Redskins couldn't possibly win, and I want to thank him for the season I had," Kilmer said. He added that Jimmy The Greek had called the team the "Over the Hill Gang" and prophesied loss after loss for the 'Skins.

"Allen let us know all of this, and the Over the Hill Gang was ready to play and win. It just snowballed throughout the season."

Emotions mean a lot to football players, and Allen is a key man for pulling this out of his players. Kilmer told of the Redskins first meeting with Dallas last year. "It was a rainy, gloomy day, but Allen told us it was just 'Redskin Weather', and for all we knew after that the sun could have been shining."

But the sun has not always shone on Kilmer. While in high school he was moved around from position to position in his final year, and finally decided that he was through with football. But he was contacted by the UCLA and offered a grant to play as a single-wing tailback.

At UCLA, he said, he learned that determination can overcome a lot of difficulties. As a senior, he found himself battling for the first string position, and really had to work to hold it.

"But I did, and one of the teams we beat that year was Duke."

Following his graduation, Kilmer signed with San Francisco. "John Brody was just beginning to hit his good years, and so they moved me to half-back." But disaster struck in December of 1962, when Kilmer was in an automobile wreck and had a leg broken in two places.

"The doctors told me not to get discouraged if I couldn't play football again, but I decided I was going to."

Kilmer worked hard in rehabilitating his leg, but found that he'd never again be a halfback, but only had the strength to go as a quarterback. But he was dropped to third string at San Francisco, playing only seldom. "But I learned a lot from Y. A. Tittle, and it has helped me a lot since then."

Finally, he was traded to New Orleans, where he played more. But he realized that the Saints were looking for young players in the draft, and he asked to be traded. There were several teams looking for established players who could step in. But instead, he was traded to the Redskins and again found himself behind a top quarterback, Jurgensen.

"I asked Allen to trade me to someone who could use me, but he decided not to. And it's funny how life has its turnarounds. The break came for me when Sonny got hurt."

Kilmer admitted that he hadn't played well during the exhibition season, but that Allen brought him in and told him he had complete confidence in him. "I knew I had to work hard and do what George said. We had fine receivers and runners and a great offensive line. I realized that this was the chance I had always wanted—the rest is history. We didn't go as far as I wanted us to, but things should be better this year."

"What I want to impress on you is this," he said. "Determination, dedication and self-discipline. If you have these three things, you will succeed anywhere in the world. Football is one of the things in the world. If you let down in practice, in the meeting rooms, and on the field, you're not only letting yourself down, you're letting down your teammates, your friends and your family."

Randle told the team that it would long be remembered at East Carolina. "No matter what happens from here on, you'll be remembered as the team that started East Carolina to greatness. No one will ever forget that night in Raleigh. We started slow, but we made some noise before we were through."

The banquet was held under the sponsorship of Jack Marston, president of North Carolina National Bank, and Jack Mingo, president of the Pepsi-Cola Company of Greenville.

Eleven area teams open play tonight and Wednesday, seeking five berths in the State Tournament fields for next week.

Play involves 4-A, 3-A, and 1-A boys competition, and girls play, which is without classification.

One team, the Williamston boys, have already qualified for the state 2-A tournament, by winning the Albemarle Conference tournament, which serves as the District One tournament.

Rose High School will be opening District II 4-A play tonight, traveling to Rocky Mount. The Rampants, who finished in a tie with Wilson for fifth place in the league, lost a coin-toss Saturday, and will meet the third place Gryphons. Game time is set for 7:30 p.m.

Elsewhere in the 4-A, New Bern entertains Wilson. The winner of that game meets Kinston on Thursday, while the Rose-Rocky Mount winner takes on Goldsboro, also on Thursday. The two surviving teams will meet for the title on Saturday.

In the District One girls tournament, two area teams are involved, Williamston and Robersonville. The Williamston team plays tonight, facing Pantego at 8:30 p.m. The winner meets the Manteo-Gates winner (that game at 7 p.m.) on Thursday.

Robersonville takes on Columbia Wednesday at 7 p.m., with the winner meeting the winner of Wednesday's Bath-Northampton game. Finals will be held Friday.

The tournament is being held in Edenton.

The District One, Class A boys tournament is being held in Plymouth, and also involved two area teams, Jamesville and Oak City.

Tonight, Jamesville will meet

Manteo at 8:30, following the Belhaven-Chowan game. The two winners meet Thursday.

Ali-Chuvalo Meet Again

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Muhammad Ali gets a second chance to knock Canadian heavyweight boxing champion George Chuvalo off his feet when the two meet in a 12-round bout at Pacific Coliseum March 13.

Promoter Murray Pezim said the two fighters will sign contracts in Vancouver today or Wednesday.

It will be the second meeting between Ali and the Toronto boxer. Chuvalo lost a 15-round decision to the former world champion in a title match March 29, 1966.

Chuvalo was badly outclassed but managed to stay on his feet throughout.

Ali, who will be making his fourth fight since losing the title to world champion Joe Frazier, will receive a guarantee of $200,000. Chuvalo is guaranteed $60,000.

Owens: Keep Pros Out Of Olympics

By HARRY EISENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — If the Olympic Games are to continue "on the premise upon which they were built," then four-time Olympic gold medal winner Jesse Owens says keep the professionals out.

On the other hand, however, Hal Connelly, who won a gold medal in the Olympic hammer throw, says: "Just one washing machine commercial ... would make this task of making the team just a little bit easier."

Owens and Connelly were two of four former Olympians who discussed professionalism in the Olympics on the national education network program "The Advocates," scheduled to be aired tonight.

Joining Owens in opposition to professionalism in the Olympics was Bob Mathias, a two-time gold medal winner in the decathlon and now a congressman from California.

Joining Connelly in favor of allowing professionals to participate was Suzie Chaffe, a member of the 1968 U.S. Olympic ski team.

Owens said letting professionals into the games would destroy "the whole connotation of inspiring a youngster ..." to seek an Olympic medal.

"Nobody forces you to compete in the Olympics," Owens said in an interview after the taping of the program last week. "You're there because you want to be. It's a great honor to represent your country."

Mathias did not take as strong a stand as Owens, saying he believed it would be all right for an amateur athlete to be subsidized for his training and equipment, "but not money in the pocket. If he is making a profit in sports, then he is a professional."

Miss Chaffe, who caused a stir at the Winter Games in Japan earlier this month when she circulated a petition to allow all athletes to compete in the Olympics, said the public "has been greatly deceived that amateurism is a good force in the world ..."

She said many athletes who sign the Olympic code have to perjure themselves to compete. One stipulation she pointed to was that an athlete can train only 60 days a year for the sport he is competing in.

Connelly said he hoped his outspoken beliefs on Olympic athletes receiving financial considerations will cause some changes. "What I'd like to see in the Olympics," he said, "is a world without hypocrisy."

Highwaymen Are Industrial Kings

State Highway gained a 73-55 victory over Wachovia Bank in the Industrial League last night, and wrapped up the regular season title. In the other games, Empire Brush beat Carolina Telephone, 58-47, and Greenville Utilities downed Vermont American, 83-55.

State Highway finished the season with a 14-1 record, while Wachovia was 12-3. Carolina Telephone was third at 8-7, followed by Empire Brush, 7-8, Greenville Utilities, 3-12 and Vermont American, 1-14.

The league's tournament opens Wednesday night. Empire Brush meets Greenville Utilities, while Carolina Telephone takes on Vermont American. The Highwaymen and Wachovia receive first round byes.

In the opening game, GUCo moved out into the lead by the end of the first half, 38-27. They then outthit Vermont American, 45-28, in the second half to win easily.

James Gorham led GUCo with 32 points, while Walter Bynum had 17, James Ward had 15 and Rufus Bynum had 10. For Vermont American, Connie McGowan and John James each had 16 and Ronnie Foster had 15.

In the second contest, Carolina Telephone eased into a 20-18 lead in the first half, but couldn't hold it. Empire Brush came back with a 40-27 advantage in the second half to take the win.

Curtis Barrett led Empire Brush with 19, while Dwight Foster and James Parker had 13 each. Robert Noville had 13 and Willie Wallace had 11 for Carolina Telephone.

In the final game, State Highway eased into a 31-28 lead at the half, then outthit Wachovia, 42-27, in the second.

Lee Will Go To Best Salary

OAKLAND (AP) — Only in professional basketball could a player talk like Clyde Lee and still ask for more than $50,000 a year.

"Any points I get are just garbage," the 6-foot-10 forward for the Golden State Warriors said recently, discussing his shooting skill.

But Lee is one of the National Basketball Association's top rebounders. With the NBA and rival American Basketball Association escalating the way over talent again, he figures that makes him worth his asking price.

Tonight Lee might be facing Seattle's Jim McDaniels, a rookie who has signed two contracts worth more than $1 million each in the past year. The 7-foot-1 player, an All-American at Western Kentucky, signed first with Carolina of the ABA and jumped to the Seattle SuperSonics last week.

The Sonics have a half-game edge over the Warriors in the race for second place in the Pacific Division.

Lee, who is playing out his option this season, will rejoin the Warriors tonight after missing two games.

UCLA, Marquette Are Riding High

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While the rest of the teams jockey among themselves for position, UCLA and Marquette continue to ride high as the nation's 1-2 college basketball teams.

The top-ranked Bruins, undefeated in 20 games this season, maintained their position with 838 points over the Warriors, 22-0, who had 715.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters gave UCLA 41 first-place votes Monday while handing the remaining top ballot to Marquette, despite the Warriors' loss to the pros of star Jim Chones.

The remaining ranked teams are far back in the chase and hardly any look the same as last week.

North Carolina, third last week, dropped to fifth place and gave way to Louisville.

Pirates Face Colonials In Capital

Thundering Herd Deserves Name

KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

What's in a name? Everything—in the case of the Marshall basketball team.

"The Thundering Herd is entitled to its nickname ... they're fast, they rebound and they're accurate," St. Francis Coach Dick Conover said after his club was trampled 95-80 Monday night.

The eight-ranked southern brutes didn't give the Pennsylvanians a sporting chance, running roughshod from the start of the second half to break open a close game with nine straight points.

"And that," said Conover, "is the way basketball is meant to be played."

The way basketball was played in the other parts of the country would have suited Conover's aesthetic tastes, too. All the other ranked teams won, including No. 1 UCLA.

The Bruins rolled up their 21st victory this season, defeating Washington State 85-55.

Southwestern Louisiana, the country's No. 10 team, downed Northeast Louisiana 112-91; No. 13 Virginia whipped Clemson 62-60 and 18th-ranked Kentucky turned back Georgia 87-63.

Elsewhere, Kansas State moved into a tie for first place in the tight Big Eight Conference race by hammering Oklahoma State 74-52.

St. Francis held a 46-45 half-time lead, but that didn't last long. Russ Lee, who scored 23 points in the game, powered a 50-point second-half the Thundering Herd literally ran away from the underdogs. Joe Hazinsky led the losers with 23.

"We were really flat in the first half," said Marshall Coach Carl Tacy. "We thought the zone defense would contain Hazinsky but it didn't bother him or the team—they shot 70 per cent from the floor."

"We shifted to man-to-man in the second ... and that did the job all right."

UCLA didn't wait too long to do the job on Washington State, streaking to a 9-0 lead five minutes into the game. The Bruins lost most of a big lead in the second half, then turned on the power again.

Keith Wilkes and reserve

Larry Hollyfield each scored 16 points to lead five Bruins in double figures. Bill Walton had 15 and Greg Lee and Henry Bibby, 13 each as UCLA won its 36th in a row and 166th in the last 171 games.

Dan Steward paced the Cougars with 23 points.

Southwestern Louisiana, enjoying Top Ten status for the first time this year, got a 41-point performance from Dwight Lamar, the nation's leading scorer.

Lamar, boosting his average to 36.4, connected on 15 of 31 field goal attempts and added 11 more from the free throw line. He also led in assists with eight and triggered a couple of Northeast Louisiana turnovers.

Roy Ebron also turned in a powerhouse performance, scoring 36 points and grabbing 24 rebounds.

Scott McCandlish delivered two free throws with four seconds left to give Virginia a tight-squeeze triumph over tough Clemson.

"It's a good win," said Virginia Coach Bill Gibson, whose team lost two games last week. "We still don't have our offense straightened out, but our shot selection was better tonight."

"Clemson's very sticky, very tough. I thought we played a great defensive game. This team wins when they have to, and they had to win tonight."

The Cavaliers' crucial victory boosted them back into first place in the zany Atlantic Coast Conference.

Kentucky lost an early lead, then used a brutal defense to choke off Georgia in the second half. The losers scored only 15 points in the first 15 minutes of the second half while being dogged by the Wildcats.

"They just came out and took the fight away from us," said Georgia Coach Ken Rosemond.

Jim Andrews led the Kentucky offense with 32 points and helped the Wildcats break away from a 36-36 tie at halftime.

Kansas State bolted to an early lead and coasted over outmanned Oklahoma State. The winners held the Cowboys scoreless for almost six minutes at one stretch, moving from a 17-10 advantage to 29-10.

Pirates' Jim Fairley

Fairley Gets Second Honor

East Carolina forward Jim Fairley has been selected as Southern Conference Basketball Player of the Week for the second time this season.

Fairley collected 17 points and 13 rebounds against St. Francis on Monday night, 19 points and 17 rebounds against Old Dominion on Thursday night, and capped the week with 15 points and 16 caroms against William and Mary on Saturday.

For the week he hit 18 of 32 from the floor for 56.3 per cent and .3 for 21 from the foul line for 71.4 per cent. His outstanding board play yielded 46 rebounds for an amazing 15.3 game average.

His performance moved him to the position of leading scorer on the ECU squad with an average of 13.6 points and placed him in a tie with Al Faber as leading rebounder with an average of 10.1.

Pirate coach Tom Quinn called Fairley "the most consistent player of our team. At the first of the season," Quinn added, "we did not know if Jim would be able to come back after sitting out the last half of last year with an injury. But much to our pleasure, he made a complete recovery and has given us fine performance all year."

Briefs

Bobby Winkles, who produced three NCAA championship baseball teams at Arizona State, will coach with the California Angels this year.

Dick Kinaman, who scouted for the Los Angeles Angels in 1971, will manage their Quad Cities team in the Midwest League this season.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss ... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss ... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair ... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

East Carolina University's Pirates open the final week of the 1971-72 basketball season tonight, traveling to Washington, D.C., to meet former Southern Conference rival George Washington.

The Pirates come into the game off a two-game losing streak, having been beaten by Old Dominion and William & Mary in late games last week. The two losses dropped the Pirates below the break-even mark for the year, 11-12, and make it necessary for the Pirates to win both games this week to insure a winning season.

But neither task is expected to be easy. George Washington, a team which got off to a poor start, has come on strong recently, and will be a tough challenge. Then, Saturday night, the Pirates travel to Raleigh to meet 7-4 Tommy Burleson and his N.C. State teammates.

East Carolina Coach Tom Quinn was unhappy with his team's performance against William & Mary last week. "Early in the game, it seemed we were just not prepared to play. We've had this problem in a number of games, and we have to spend the whole game playing catch-up. We let William & Mary run their offense. They played a 1-2-2 zone the whole game and we didn't attack it at all."

Earlier when the two teams met in Minges Coliseum, William & Mary went out into a big early lead, only to see the Pirates come back and blow them off the court in the late part of the half. But in the second half, the Bucs again began playing below their ability, and the Indians came back to make it an interesting game.

George Washington will be another team that the Bucs will not be able to let down against. "They have some outstanding people," Quinn said, "But they have lost Mike Tallent. I don't know whether he's graduated, or what," he said.

At any rate, since Tallent's departure, the Colonials have surprisingly played a better brand of basketball.

"They have some excellent personnel," Quinn said. These players include Randy Smith, a junior college transfer; Mike Battle, an excellent pivot man; Ron Nunn, whom Quinn considers one of the best shooters among big guards. Others are Robbie Spagnola, a transfer from Miami, which gave up basketball, and two veterans, Lennox Baltimore and Vic Conrad, both big men.

"Their talent is as good as any we've seen this year," Quinn said. "They've only recently put it together, but they are doing okay now. They try to get the ball inside to the big men, and they like the running game."

Defensively, Quinn feels the Colonials are only average. "They are good rebounders, and they do some pressing, but usually use a zone."

This week's activities for the Pirates winds up the regular season. Next week, they travel to Greenville, S.C., to take part in the Southern Conference tournament.

Maryland Has Spider Respect

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Maryland Terrapins, who have climbed to No. 12 nationally on an 18-3 record, will have new respect for Richmond of the Southern Conference in their basketball game tonight.

The Spiders upset West Virginia 98-87 Saturday night and got a 23-point performance from a rejuvenated Mike Anastasio. He had been all-conference as a sophomore last season, but had been averaging only 8.2 points in the Spiders' first 20 games this year, of which they won only five.

Maryland, which will be playing at home in Cole Fieldhouse, where it hardly ever loses, will be the only Atlantic Coast Conference team in action tonight.

Thirteenth-ranked Virginia, 19-3, snapped a two-game losing streak by edging Clemson 62-60 at home Monday night as Scott McCandlish hit two free throws with four second left.

The victory tied the school record of 19 triumphs, and gave the Cavaliers the ACC lead at 8-2 against North Carolina's 7-2.

Bo Hawkins hit a layup with 1:08 left that gave the Clemson Tigers a 60-59 lead, but he was called for charging, and Frank DeWitt's free throw tied it up for Virginia. The Cavaliers got the rebound when DeWitt missed a second foul shot, and played for a final shot — which DeWitt missed. However, McCandlish was fouled on the rebound and hit both free throws.

Jim Hobgood led Virginia with 15 points. DeWitt had 12 and McCandlish and Barry Parkhill 11 each.

For Clemson, Denny Odle had 16, and Terrell Suit and Mike Browning 14 each.

The game, the only one of the night involving ACC teams, left Clemson at 1-9 in the league and 9-13 in all games.

Zelmo Beaty Zips 63 For The Stars

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mixing turn-around jump shots with lay up feeds by his teammates, Utah Stars' eight-year veteran Zelmo Beaty established a new individual scoring record with 63 points Monday night in the Stars' American Basketball Association win over Pittsburgh, 149-140.

The old record of 62 points was set a year ago by Stew Johnson formerly of Pittsburgh and now with Carolina.

"I knew I was within reach of the record when they started passing up good shots to get me the ball inside," a jubilant Beaty said after the game. "That's the kind of team this is. I don't think I would have broken the record if my teammates hadn't pushed me into it."

On his way to the record, the 6-foot-9, 235-pound Beaty hit on 24 of 31 attempts from the floor and 15 of 15 from the free throw line. He also pulled down 15 rebounds in leading the Stars' attack.

In Monday's other American Basketball Association game, Baltimore shaded Philadelphia 102-95.

In the only National Basketball Association game, Baltimore shaded Philadelphia 102-101.

Condor coach Mark Binstein said after the game that his team tried every defense imaginable to stop Beaty.

When Beaty was within one basket of breaking Johnson's mark, Pittsburgh fell back on defense and Stars' guard Mike Butler yelled at teammate Jim Ligon: "Let him make it, Ligon."

Ligon did and the rest is history.

"I would have done the same thing myself," said Beaty.

Known for his scoring, Beaty also is brutal under the backboards, averaging almost 16 rebounds per game.

Pittsburgh's George Thompson kept the Condors within striking distance as he repeatedly hit key baskets and wound up the game with 45 points, playing both forward and guard.

The Nets broke a four-game ABA losing streak with Bill Melchionni's 26 points leading the easy victory over the Chaparrals.

New York built a 20-point lead late in the first half and the Chaps never got closer than eight points after that. Donnie Freeman of Dallas led all scorers with 37 points.

Golf Date Switched

The Pitt County Ladies Golf League will not meet this Friday, as announced yesterday.

Instead, the monthly tournament will be held on Friday, March 3. The league, involving five teams from the county, will meet at Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The Worry Clinic

There Is Hope In Efficiency

Melvin offers a challenge to all intelligent Americans (newspaper readers automatically comprise a great majority of the latter). Uncle

Sam needs to lie on the psychiatrist's couch and learn how to avoid fiscal insanity!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case T-508: Melvin F., aged 34, is a New York state official. "Dr. Crane," he said, "last July we started having abled-bodied welfare recipients call for their monthly checks at the State Employment Offices. "And that very first month 18 percent of the checks went unclaimed!"

"Which probably means we had 18 percent of our people who were 'free loaders' on the backs of the hard working taxpayers of New York."

"And even among those who did pick up their checks in person, I'd estimate that many thousands were able-bodied and capable of earning their own living if they had jobs."

"So how can we inject more efficiency into government and thus reduce the tax load on the backs of our employed people?"

Inefficient Uncle Sam

Applied Psychology includes the vital field of efficiency engineering.

Alas, Uncle Sam is woefully inefficient.

He could reduce taxes phenomenally by using these basic "horse sense" methods:

(1) Farm out the Postal Service to private, tax-paying firms who have already shown they can handle the mail at less than 5 cents per first class letter!

Meanwhile, the latter would PAY taxes, instead of debiting us for extra federal handouts on top of the recent 8 cent postal rate. Remember, too, that such private firms then would not coerce their employees regarding how they vote on election day!

(2) Farm out Social Security to private insurance firms. Economists have proved the latter can pay retired folks almost DOUBLE what they now receive in monthly Social Security checks.

Meanwhile, we taxpayers would no longer be forced to support a fast army of tax collectors, nor pay for the heat and other costly upkeep of Social Security Buildings all over the U.S.A.

Then, too, politicians could not intimidate Social Security recipients at election time with the threat of tearing up their Social Security cards.

(3) Reduce the Health, Education and Welfare department to a skeleton staff and meager funds.

For our 2,000 Liberal Arts College chemical departments could do a superb job of testing all new drugs and foods — at no cost to taxpayers.

Besides, the sponsors of those drugs and new foods could create college fellowships for graduate chemistry students, who could earn a Ph.D. by such chemical research.

And the vast billions now squandered inefficiently on welfare could be cut in half by moving city welfare recipients out upon the vast reservations in the warmer climate of southern states, where Uncle Sam already owns as much as 40 percent of the land area.

Why pay high city rents for welfare families when we have idle land already available where their kiddies can romp outdoors, hunt and fish, instead of expending their surplus energy in city rioting and looting?

(4) Synchronize all elections so city mayors, county officials, as well as governors, are all elected at the same time as state and U.S. Representatives or Senators.

This would save millions the costs for polling places and election officials.

It would also bring out a bigger vote, thus hampering the "Machines" that thrive on a small turnout. Send for my booklet "Common Fallacies in Logic and Political Tricks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

The coyote is hunted more relentlessly with gun, poison, trap and hound than any other animal.

Demo Consultant Advice Is Rejected

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

The Democratic Governors Caucus has unanimously rejected a political consultant's proposal that the party concentrate its 1972 presidential campaign in 20 states that offer the best chance of victory and, in effect, write off the rest.

The consultant, Joseph Napolitano, told the 25 governors meeting at Annapolis, Md.,

Arrested Under Fireworks Ban

Carl Hannah Jr., 45, of Route 3, Greenville was charged by Greenville police officers yesterday with possessing fireworks for the purpose of sale.

Hannah was charged, according to Chief of Police Glenn Cannon, after officers searched the service station he operates on Memorial Drive and discovered 15 packs of firecrackers.

assigned to me and to have the good judgment to determine the kind of legislation that would benefit our people."

An Onslow County native, Koonce attended school in Richlands and North Carolina State University in Raleigh before entering the tobacco business for three years in Wallace.

Koonce moved to Greenville in 1936 as an employee of Person-Garrett Tobacco Co., a subsidiary of Universal Leaf Tobacco Co., and headed the accounting department for Universal's operations in Greenville, Fairmont and Lumberton. When Person-Garrett's name was changed to the J.P. Taylor Co. in 1969, Koonce continued to head the Greenville office and is completing his 36th year of continuous employment with the Universal Leaf organization.

A past-president of the Greenville Exchange Club, Koonce, in 1951, was instrumental in helping to form the Greenville Little League Baseball program and in building the Little League playing facilities. He also coached a Little League team for several years in addition to serving as treasurer of both leagues in the city.

Koonce served as chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections from 1965 to 1970, supervising the reregistration of the entire county in 1968 and helping establish the present loose leaf, permanent voter registration system for Pitt County — the system now in use by the election boards of all 100 counties in the state.

The political hopeful is a member of the First Presbyterian Church and is currently serving his second term as a member of the Board of Deacons.

He is married to the former Margaret MacLeod of Greenwood, S.C. and they have two sons. He is also a member of the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

According to Koonce, "There are many state-wide issues I feel very strongly about and in my opinion should be pursued and placed into reality as quickly as possible.

"Penal reform, I think, is of prime importance in helping curtail crime," he emphasized. "Our correctional institutions must be changed from confinement and punishment to rehabilitation and treatment so that when these persons are released they can make a worthwhile contribution to society and not return to crime."

He said, "Something must be done about our present drug problem. It is gradually getting worse . . . with more and more young people from 15 to 21 years of age becoming involved. If something isn't done, eventually we will have a drug-crazed

Monday that the Democratic presidential nominee could carry as few as 18 of the 20 selected states and still capture the White House with a majority of the nation's electoral votes.

The target states where Napolitano suggested the Democrats put their money and effort this year include the 13 carried by Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968 in his unsuccessful campaign against Richard M. Nixon and Alaska, California, Delaware, Illinois, Missouri, New Jersey and Ohio.

In another political development Monday, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine said he would participate in a debate between the various Democratic presidential candidates if National

Planning Board In Special Meet

The Pitt County Planning Board will hold a special meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Law Library at the Pitt County Court House.

The purpose of the special session, according to secretary-treasurer Johnny R. Dilda, is to review work on the subdivision regulations work draft.

Dilda said if the review meets the satisfaction of the board a corrected version of the work draft will be presented to the board for approval.

Government at Chapel Hill. He was stationed in Ayden for about nine years.

Whitehurst, after leaving the Highway Patrol, served as a Justice of the Peace in Ayden from 1964 to 1968 when the new court system went into effect then was appointed to the post of magistrate by the late William J. Bundy. He served in that position for 1 1/2 years.

Since that time, Whitehurst has been employed as Safety Director for the Tidewater Transit Company of Kinston.

A member of the Moose Lodge and the Ayden Methodist Church, Whitehurst and his family live at 205 North Pitt St. in Ayden.

In filing as a candidate for the judicial post, Whitehurst said "I feel that the position of District Judge is not just for lawyers, but for persons who have had experience in law enforcement and in other functions of the court system as well."

Whitehurst added, "If carried out in the proper manner and with the dignity that a court should be held, the revisions of the court system instituted four years ago are good ones."

"If elected, I pledge to do everything in my power to hold this position with honor and integrity."

society of young people. This has got to be curbed by some means."

The state's highway safety program "needs to be strengthened with stiffer laws, too," Koonce said. "Too many of our worst offenders are getting off on lesser charges than those which were actually committed. Our highway death rate is tremendous and is rising each year."

"Our public school teachers need to be upgraded and their salaries placed on a more commensurate basis comparable to other professions requiring the same number of years of college study and training," the candidate added. "Placing all issues and projects in their proper perspective as related to the best interest of all our people," Koonce noted, "I shall always bear in mind and in action that if elected, I would be a representative of all the people of this district regardless of race, creed or color and would endeavor to carry out the wishes of the majority."

Democratic Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien makes suitable arrangements. Muskie, generally considered the front-runner for the nomination, had been accused by some of his opponents of ducking debate challenges.

Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, however, charged that Muskie's letter to O'Brien was "a subterfuge to avoid debate."

"He knows a debate with all the candidates would be impossible to pull off," Yorty said, "because it is impossible to get

In turning down the request, board members expressed appreciation for the generous offer that would have given the schools more than $2,000 worth of books, but stated that non-acceptance was the only possible choice in view of the board's policy of non-involvement in any form of advertisement.

Ophthalmologist Speaks To Local Optimist Club

Dr. Eugene (Gene) Grace, Democrat candidate for the U.S. Senate, last night was guest speaker at the weekly meeting of Greenville Optimist Club.

The Durham ophthalmologist, also owner and president of Moore Publishing Company in Durham, is the author of a recently published book on the medical situation in America, RX for America.

The candidate, in his talk to the Optimists, focused on the problems of government being too far away from the people. He observed that more things now handled by big federal bureaus should be put back on the local level of government.

Following his appearance in Greenville last night, the candidate is scheduled to speak to a group in Havelock tonight.

all the candidates together at one time and location."

The North Carolina Board of Elections nominated 10 Democrats and three Republicans to participate in the state's first presidential primary May 6.

The board is required by law to nominate all known, generally advocated and nationally recognized presidential candidates, but it left out Yorty and

Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana, both of whom are actively campaigning in other primary states.

The Democrats selected are Sens. Humphrey of Minnesota, George McGovern of South Dakota, Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Muskie, former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, Reps. Shirley Chisholm of New York and Wilbur

D. Mills of Arkansas, Mayors John V. Lindsay of New York and Yorty, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama and Duke University President Terry Sanford, a former governor of North Carolina.

The three Republicans are President Nixon and Reps. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California and John N. Ashbrook of Ohio.

Two Boys Given Active Terms For Area Thefts

Two teen-aged boys were handed active jail terms by District Court Judge Herbert O. Phillips here yesterday after they pled guilty to breaking and entering homes near Greenville last month.

Ronnie Earl Brown, 18, of Route 8, Greenville, and Randy Earl Case, 16 of Route 4, Greenville, were arrested by Pitt County Sheriff's Deputies in connection with the theft of an estimated $1,500 worth of property and cash from the Wilbur Hardee home at Pactolus January 26.

Brown was also charged in connection with the theft of about $275 worth of property from a trailer home on Jackson Avenue (Route 8, Greenville) and some $300 worth of merchandise from a Route 6, Greenville home earlier.

In sentencing the two, Judge Phillips told the youths the state had been lenient in allowing them to enter a plea to a general misdemeanor charge rather than forcing the two to face trial on the felony charge of breaking, entering and larceny under which they had been arrested.

From the evidence presented, Judge Phillips noted, "You had violated the felony statutes under which you were charged. I do not feel any further consideration could be extended."

He then sentenced Brown to two years jail in each of the three cases, with two of the sentences to run concurrently. Case was then sentenced to two years in jail on one charge.

"I can make no further comment on your conduct," the Judge told the defendants. "It speaks for itself."

Selected For 1972 Edition

Allan Joseph Jones of Greenville has been selected to appear in the 1972 edition of Who's Who in American Junior Colleges.

A sophomore at Lenoir Community College in Kinston, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Jones of Greenville and is married to the former Elaine Whichard of Greenville. They have a daughter, Christa.

Nominated by the college faculty and administration and sponsored by the mathematics and physics departments, he is a senator on the college's student government and is chairman of the Lyceum Committee. He is on the tennis team and is active in the photography and the Veterans' Club.
