

Raps Parent Activities On Schools

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission says the outlandish activities of parents in opposing school desegregation is a major cause of trouble at newly integrated schools.

"Decent behavior on the part of our young people is not only possible but almost certain if their elders do not provide them with too many disgraceful examples to follow," Theodore M. Hesburgh told the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday.

Hesburgh appeared in opposition to a proposed constitutional amendment designed to halt court-ordered busing for the purpose of school desegregation.

He said a survey of five recently desegregated school systems shows a far higher degree of acceptance of the new situation among pupils than among parents.

"The message is clear," he said. "Desegregation involving busing can work, given half a chance."

Among Hesburgh's listeners were a number of women in red-white-and-blue hats and dresses, representing an anti-busing organization. Earlier, six members of the American Nazi Party, in khaki uniforms, were evicted after being denied the chance to testify in favor of the amendment.

The committee also heard from Rep. Norman F. Lent, R-N.Y., chief sponsor of the amendment, who said the courts are dismantling the neighborhood school system in an effort to make it racially balanced.

He said his amendment, which would prevent the assignment of pupils on the basis of race, would restore control over the schools to local school boards. Lent denied the assertion of the Civil Rights Commission that his amendment would undo all the desegregation that has been achieved so far, but he was unable to tell the committee how many districts might be affected.

The findings of the Civil Rights Commission study of five desegregating school districts, which included Charlotte, N.C., was challenged by two members of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg School Board.

In the report, summarized by Hesburgh, the commission said the number of disturbances in the Charlotte system had died down this year and now were about the same before desegregation.

"Maybe we haven't had quite as many riots this year," said Jane Scott, a board member. "But now we have a task force that is called when a principal sees trouble coming and it is subdued before it reaches the riot stage. Is that a proper educational setting?"

Mild Limits On School Busing

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a $23-billion higher-education bill and sent it to a conference committee to determine how firmly Congress should legislate against busing of pupils.

The Senate version of the bill, which also authorizes $1.5 billion to help school districts desegregate, was approved on an 88-6 vote Wednesday. The Senate added comparatively mild restrictions on busing.

But the House, acting on the legislation last November, tied it to three stringent antibusing amendments.

Finding a common ground on busing will be one of the major questions, but not the only one, in the conference which is expected to begin in about two weeks.

There also are important differences on the formulas for aid to college students, for federal assistance to colleges and universities, and for paying out federal funds to assist school districts faced with desegregation problems.

The Senate dealt Wednesday with a last-gasp effort to revive the tough antibusing rider sponsored by Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., defeating it 48 to 47. This proposal first was tentatively adopted 43 to 40 last Friday, then rejected 50 to 47 Tuesday.

Hopes of the busing foes had been centered on the Griffin proposal which would eliminate the right of federal courts to issue busing orders in school-desegregation cases.

The tough provisions of the House-passed bill would:

—Prohibit use of any federal funds to support busing to achieve desegregation.

—Bar federal agencies from persuading school districts to use their own funds for this purpose.

—Stay, pending final appeals, all busing ordered by courts in desegregation cases.

The mild busing restrictions voted by the Senate were written to tie into the House provisions and cut back their effect.

In the higher-education part of the bill, which contains the bulk of the money authorized, the Senate version contains a brand new formula entitling all college students to $1,400 yearly grants, less family contributions, based on uniform federal standards.

The House measure would continue this type of aid in the usual way—loans, grants and work-study programs channeled through college financial-aid officers.

There also is a wide variation in the way the two versions would provide direct support for institutions of higher education.

The Senate bill would provide allowances based on the number of federally aided students enrolled.

Budget To Fill Mental Care Needs

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says that in the budget to be presented to the 1973 General Assembly, he will seek to correct existing shortages in patient care personnel at North Carolina's mental hospitals.

Scott made the statement Wednesday after the North Carolina Mental Health Association criticized the way the state mental institutions are being administered. The agency cited inadequate staffing for patient care.

The association said the mental hospitals are being administered as "concentration centers for isolating the mentally ill from society."

Scott said the association report "raises the question of whether priorities need to be revised in order to make better use of the money already available."

The governor said he was asking Dr. Lenox Baker, new secretary of human resources, and the Board of Mental Health to review their priorities "to be sure that we are 'putting first things first' — that is, that we are taking care of the mental hospital patients as adequately as humanly possible."

Scott added, "Long-range developmental goals are fine, and are very necessary, but they should not tie up funds or personnel needed to care for the patients who are here . . . now . . . today."

A study committee headed by Mrs. Leif Valand of Raleigh made several recommendations in the report released by the mental health association. Among other things, it called for revision of staffing procedures to provide adequate personnel for supervision of the safety, welfare and treatment of patients.

The study covered Broughton Hospital at Morganton, Um-stead Hospital at Butner, Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh and Cherry Hospital at Goldsboro.

Dr. Baker said many of the problems outlined in the association report "are problems which Department of Mental Health officials have cited previously as areas constituting real need. I have been pleased with the concern and alertness the department officials have evidenced to these problems."

Baker expressed hope that the mental health association and others "will continue to produce recommendations of how specific needs might best be met by all our agencies with the facilities available."

"I will be working with the Department of Mental Health in helping them obtain the resources they need and in making recommendations for needed changes."

Britain Intervenes In Turkish Sentencing Of Schoolboy Drug Pusher

SENTENCED — Timothy Davey, 14, lowers his head as he is sentenced to six years and three months in prison by a Turkish court. (AP Wirephoto)

LONDON (AP) — The Foreign Office disclosed today the British government has intervened in the case of a 14-year-old British schoolboy, Timothy Davey, who has been sentenced to six years and three months in Turkey on charges of conspiring to sell 57 pounds of hashish.

Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home summoned Turkey's ambassador to London, Zeki Kuneralp, Wednesday and expressed the concern of the British government over the sentence.

A Foreign Office spokesman told a news conference: "We understand that an appeal will be lodged against the sentence and our immediate concern is that the process of appeal be conducted as quickly as possible."

The foreign secretary raised the question of how long the appeal process in Turkey might take. Kuneralp promised to check and let Douglas-Home know.

Douglas-Home's intervention coincided with angry pressure for action to relieve the plight of the boy, who said he was trying to raise money for the defense of his mother's boyfriend against a drug charge.

Members of Parliament said Turkey was giving itself a medieval image and termed the sentence harsh, brutal and immoral. Newspaper editorials urged mercy.

Timothy also was fined the equivalent of $10,894 at the trial in Istanbul Wednesday. There were three young codefendants: Jean Claude Morisot, 20, and Patrice Buonotti, 20, both French, got 12½ years, and Friedrich Stohl, 17, Austrian, got eight years, four months.

The defense said it would appeal, and the Daily Mail reported that Turkish Foreign Minister Haluk Bayulken gave the British ambassador, Sir Roderick Sarell, a "sympathetic hearing" when he told him the case would have a serious impact on relations between Britain and Turkey.

One British newspaper sided with the Turks. "Feel sorry as you wish," wrote columnist Donald Seaman in the Daily Express, "but don't blame the Turks who know what drugs can do to whole families—never mind boys of 14—and are trying to stamp out their end of a huge, terrifying, growing menace operated by unscrupulous men and women all over the world."

Laborite member of Parliament Tom Driberg declared it was time "for the British government to do something."

Stream Channelization Efforts Discussed By Experts At Conference

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Approximately 300 persons, including soil conservationists, wildlife personnel, League of Women Voters members, farmers, engineers, lawyers, and other interested persons are attending a Stream Channelization Conference at East Carolina University today.

ECU Regional Development Institute director Tom Willis said the purpose of the conference is to create further understanding of the reasons for and effects of stream channelization. He said a balanced program of pro, con, and neutral speakers was planned.

Col. Paul Denison, a retired district engineer with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said urban and rural flood control problems are related to channel projects. In rural areas, he said, farmland flooding and damaged cropland result in economic loss to the individual farmers and to the nation. Flood capacity of small streams is continually decreasing and the acts of man have caused rapid degeneration of stream systems, he said. Urban problems with flooding are even more tangible. Solutions he suggested included impoundments such as upstream reservoirs and dams to control water, improvements to channels such as widening and deepening, and some non-structural alternatives. "We need to go to more one-side clearing projects and southside shade in streams that produce fish. Limited construction should be done to the banks above streams and stream realignment should be done only in critical areas. Solutions to provide the maximum benefit with the least cost and damage to man's environment should be sought," he concluded.

Jack Adair, head of the Engineering and Watershed Planning Unit of the South Regional Technical Service Center in Fort Worth, Tex., said there are 20 million acres of wetland suitable for cultivation in the United States and 75 million acres unsuitable. There are 2,228,000 acres moderately limited in coastal areas here, part suitable for wildlife, some for farming, and some for woodland. "We are not trying to drain all the land in the United States, just that that needs draining," he said. He noted landowners are concerned about damage to land itself and to productivity of that land. If impoundments will not correct flooding problems, channel improvement or floodways are needed, he said. "We are striving to identify environmental issues, study these, and carefully give the environment analysis consideration. Environmental impact statements will be prepared to show all aspects of each project we deal with," he said.

Louis E. Aull, an Agronomy Extension Specialist on Non-Farm Land Use with N.C. State University, discussed soil characteristics, both physical and chemical. "You do not see any change in the characteristics of soil overnight," he said, "but past and present land use and lack of land use policy is contributing more to affect these characteristics and the environment."

The meeting continued into the afternoon

Art Society Elects 5 New Directors At Annual Meeting

Two officers were reelected, one new one elected, and five new members of the Board of Directors named at the annual dinner meeting of the East Carolina Art Society held at Candlewick Inn on Wednesday night.

Frank M. Wooten, Jr. and Mrs. Samuel Sewall were reelected as secretary and corresponding secretary, respectively, and Mrs. C. H. Rand named the new recording secretary.

New members on the Board of Directors are Jack Thomas, Mrs. Steven White, Mrs. Charles White, William Holley and Mrs. Alton Barrett.

All will serve two year terms beginning July 1, 1972.

John C. Tyler of Roxobel in Bertie County was guest speaker at the annual affair. Tyler spoke on work involved in the restoration of Hope House, a historic site in Bertie County, restored in 1971. He used slides to illustrate his talk. Tyler is active in statewide historical efforts, and currently serves as President of the Society for the Preservation of Antiquities in North Carolina and is also president of the Hope Foundation that administers the restored Hope House.

Tyler was introduced to the approximately 130 members and guests by Dr. Ralph Reeves, a faculty member at East Carolina University and Program Chairman of the Pitt County Historical Society.

Mrs. Betty Fore, president of east Carolina Art Society, Inc., presented a series of reports on activities of the society during the past year.

Fewer Men, Higher Cost Military Force Ahead

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is heading for an all-volunteer military force with the fewest men in nearly a quarter century and a cost at least $12 billion higher than before the Vietnam war.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird says no one can guarantee that higher pay and other new incentives "will suffice to satisfy the need for manpower, without resort to the draft."

But while there are uncertainties, Defense planners aim at ending the draft by mid-1973 and relying on volunteers from then on.

En route to this goal, Laird announced Wednesday he hopes to cut the draft to 50,000 men this year, lowest since 1949 when 9,781 were inducted.

At the same time, Laird said he may need to ask for congressional authority to draft men into the National Guard and reserves as a last resort. But he will propose a number of incentives to avoid this.

The number of men in uniform will level off at 2,358,000 by the mid-1973 date, under President Nixon's new defense budget.

An analysis of Nixon's budget shows the cost of major military "people" items will total about $27 billion in fiscal 1973. Back in fiscal 1965, the annual bill for pay and allowances, medical care, housing etc., came to about $15 billion for a force of 2,655,000 men.

Thus, just before the United States plunged deeply into the Vietnam ground war, it cost about $12 billion less to pay the "people costs" of a military establishment with nearly 300,000 men more than planned for post-Vietnam.

Some of that increased cost is attributable to inflation and salary boosts that would have been voted anyway. But much of the rise is directly traceable to the Nixon administration's drive for an all-volunteer force.

According to administration theory, the government can attract enough volunteers to military service if:

—Pay is brought more in line with civilian scales;
—The quality of service life is improved by eliminating irritants and expanding fringe benefits, and —The country will accord uniformed men respect.

But many senior military officers contend the draft is indispensable, if only to spur young men into volunteering.

Ellis-Pollard Vows Said In Wednesday Ceremony

WINTERVILLE—Miss Trillis Elaine Pollard and Bobby Ray Ellis of Ayden were united in marriage Wednesday at 6:00 p.m. in the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church.

The Rev. Horace Thompson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Idie Pollard of Winterville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Weldon Ellis of Farmville.

Traditional organ wedding music was presented by Mrs. Roy Turnage of Ayden. James Langacre of Greenville, soloist, sang "Because" and the "Wedding Prayer."

The altar was centered with a basket of white mums and gladioli. The church was decorated with a background of bridal palms and seven branch candelabra holding lighted tapers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white imported peau de soie and alencon lace. The gown was styled with a round scooped neckline, lace empire bodice, long bishop sleeves of lace and appliques of lace down the front of the gown and on the bottom of the skirt.

Her elbow length veil of silk illusion fell from a lace Juliet cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of mixed spring flowers with matching satin streamers.

Mrs. William B. Hall of Apex, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Mrs. Tony Moore of Greenville was bridesmaid.

Their dresses were of red crepe designed with empire waistlines, round necklines and long bishop sleeves with trimming on the sleeves and waist. Their headpieces were Juliet caps and they carried nosegays of mixed spring flowers tied with streamers of matching ribbons.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Prentice Herring of Greenville and John Walter Ellis of Farmville, brother of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of mint green lace and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother selected a dress of green knit with mat-

Pilot Members Hear Talk On Cuts Of Meat

Following their monthly dinner meeting, Pilot Club members attended a demonstration of the methods of cutting a forequarter of beef for marketing at a local super market.

The program was conducted by Andrew Humphrey, meat merchandizer and supervisor, of Harris Super Markets.

The program was arranged by the finance committee with Mrs. Sue Smith as chairman.

New officers to be installed at a later meeting were elected. These are: Mrs. Ruby Fields, president; Mrs. Sue Howell, first vice president; Mrs. Sue Smith, second vice president; Mrs. Ouida Debter, recording secretary;

Miss Frances White, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Juanita McCarthy, treasurer; and directors, Mrs. Lenore Morton, Mrs. Nancy Warren and outgoing president, Mrs. Janie Gold Starling.

Plans for a pictorial review of the club's activities to be shown at the March meeting were announced by Miss Ruth White, chairman of the Public Relations committee. The "Pilot of the Year" will also be chosen at the meeting.

Club Officers Are Named

New officers were elected at the meeting of the Carpe Diem Book Club Tuesday at the home of Mrs. George Fuller.

Named were: Mrs. William Dansey, president; Mrs. Robert Pittman, vice president; Mrs. Dallas McPherson, secretary; Mrs. William Cozart, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Moore, historian.

The officers will begin their terms of office this month.

The Bonae Artes Book Club met at the home of Mrs. James Tucker on Tuesday. Larry Holt, Central Business District Project manager of the Redevelopment Commission, was introduced as guest speaker.

He told of plans for the downtown redevelopment goal and of four objectives, improve the traffic flow, improve parking lot facilities, separate pedestrian from vehicle traffic and building code enforcement.

Holt was formerly real estate officer with the Redevelopment Commission and Housing Authority of Greenville.

Mrs. Herbert Carlton, president, conducted the session. Mrs. Lee West, Mrs. Graham Davis and Mrs. Tucker were appointed to the nominating committee.

Mrs. John Clark Sr. and Mrs. Sherman Parks were welcomed as guests for the meeting.

Mrs. Virgil Clark was co-hostess for the meeting.

cessories. She wore a corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Ayden following their wedding trip.

Mrs. Ellis graduated from Winterville High School and is now a student at East Carolina University. The bridegroom graduated from Farmville High School and ECU. He is now employed by Hampton Shirt Co. Inc., Kinston.

Mrs. Horace Thompson directed the wedding.

After-Rehearsal Party
Mr. and Mrs. Idie Pollard, parents of the bride, entertained at an after-rehearsal party following the rehearsal Tuesday night in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with a silver bowl holding an arrangement of pink carnations, pom poms, snapdragons and greenery. Pink burning tapers in silver candelabra were also used.

Mrs. Pollard poured punch and the three tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Weldon Ellis after the traditional first slice was cut by the bridal couple.

Mrs. Frank M. Brown of Greenville and Mrs. C. B. Rogerson of Grimesland, aunts of the bride, assisted in serving.

Designer Scaasi Likes 'All The Pretty Colors'

By ANN HENCKEN
AP Fashion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — While many designers are indulging in bright plaids or natty beiges, designer Arnold Scaasi likes "all the pretty colors"—especially pink.

"It's the most flattering color," Scaasi said Tuesday, relaxing after a spring-summer showing of his made-to-order line, priced $850 to $1,500.

His dresses have names such as "pink frosting" and "pink thistle." They may have ruffles at the throat and the waist—and white-on-pink lace.

He uses geranium pink for a wool pants suit with a white halter top.

Pink ostrich feathers are snuggled with black ones on the skirt of a short cocktail dress with black bodice.

Open a white coat and find a pink and black rainbow print.

Count the pink flowers on a fluffy white floral print evening dress.

Pair a pink plaid coat with matching A-line dress.

Scaasi also likes dots—and confetti prints with millions of multicolored sprinkles tossed over a blouse or black evening dress.

However, he says the clothes are pretty but not elegant.

"I hate 'elegant.' Our lives are more interesting," says Scaasi.

If a woman can't afford the Scaasi prices but wants a successful spring wardrobe, he suggests she might plan around a pink coat this year, instead of a red one.

However, Scaasi will design a line of ready-to-wear clothes, priced $200 to $300 for Maria Moutet in Paris to be open in April. Scaasi feels the mood is right for a high-fashion in ready-to-wear, instead of the kooky look of previous seasons.

Should Invitations Include Children?

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: When people make expensive weddings or Bar Mitzvahs, I can understand why they might not want small children. But when they invite friends who have children in their late teens (or even older), living at home, I think it's an insult to the parents and their children to exclude them.

I am a widow with a 20-year-old daughter and a 21-year-old son at home, and I will never again accept an invitation which does not include them. Why should I have to come alone? Do you agree with me?

BURNED UP IN BROOKLYN

DEAR BURNED: No. When one invites a single adult [widow, widower, divorcee, etc.] to a large affair, a thoughtful gesture would be to indicate that an escort [or partner] would be welcome. If the partner happens to be an adult offspring, fine. But grown children shouldn't be automatically invited just because they are still living at home. If they are wanted, they should receive separate invitations, but they shouldn't be "shleppalongs."

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend has dark wavy hair which he wears down to his shoulders. He's rather slight and has delicate features, so it's not surprising that he gets mistaken for a girl a lot. He doesn't like to be mistaken for a girl, so I suggested he cut his hair a little, but he doesn't want to. Anything else he can do?

DANNY'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: He could grow a mustache.

DEAR ABBY: We have friends who have an only child, eight years old. He was born long after the parents had given up all hope of ever having a child. [I mention this only so you will know why they dote on him.] This boy has never known discipline, so he is spoiled rotten. He is exceptionally bright, so his parents hang on his every word and permit him to dominate every adult conversation.

Worse yet, this child is never left home! Even on New Year's Eve his parents dragged him to an adult party! This kid was allowed to stay up until the party ended at 2:30 a. m.!

Our problem: A club to which we belong is planning a charter flight to Europe this summer, and these friends have signed up WITH the boy included. This is not a family type trip, Abby. Nobody else is taking a child. We all agree that this kid is a pain in the neck. But who should tell the parents?

Serving The Highest Precepts

When West Germany's Chancellor, Willy Brandt, returned home after a visit and holiday in the United States, he was asked what one thing he saw in America stood out most in his mind.

His answer could only flatter American people. It was that he saw more people giving of themselves to helping others that he had seen anywhere else in his travels. To sum up: they shared. He cited a number of personal incidents and observations to underline that impression.

Well, it's true.

Americans give of themselves to an amazing degree, and we take it pretty much for granted. You can see it right here at home.

Innumerable unpaid volunteers work where there is a need. They give their time in almost monthly fund drives for one good cause or another; and those who cannot give their time give money.

Volunteers working for the Heart Fund, the March of Dimes or the American Cancer Society (to name only a few) are an American phenomenon. In other lands, their work is left to "the government."

Our churches have willing corps of workers in a variety of fields; fraternities and clubs and informal organizations devote a sizeable portion of their principles to helping others. Businesses and businessmen contribute to causes that benefit the community. Countless women work in the schools, in hospitals, simply to help; not for remuneration.

We honor people who give of themselves.

We judge the value of lives more and more according to how much they have given, rather than how much they have taken.

The finest, the highest precepts of humanity are being lived by more Americans than ever in history.

From Drudgery To A Full Role

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Women are going after equal representation on the North Carolina delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

They're prepared to exhaust avenues in the delegate selection process and go to court if necessary to get it.

"Women do 95 per cent of the drudgery in the party. We'd like to be included in the decision-making as well," said Mrs. Jane Patterson of Greensboro.

There's no bigger decision to be made than the selection of a presidential ticket. Women want their share of the action when that comes about at the convention in Miami Beach on July 10.

Mrs. Patterson, a blonde housewife whose taste for political involvement dates back to college and political science degree, serves on the policy council of the North Carolina Women's Caucus. It was formed earlier this year to promote a larger role for women in state politics.

Top Priority Goal

The council took the delegate issue as its immediate action goal at a Greensboro meeting last weekend, she reported.

The non-partisan caucus is just as interested in feminine in-put for the Republican party. Mrs. Patterson said. As a Democrat, her energies are aimed in that direction.

Unlike the GOP, she noted, the Democratic party has a provision that its national convention slate must reasonably reflect its composition as to sex, age, and race.

More women as candidates for public office, as well as greater influence in party affairs, is an aim of the women's caucus. Participants in its formation included two women who are running: Mrs. Margaret Harper, Democratic contender for lieutenant governor; and Mrs. Grace Roher, GOP challenger for secretary of state.

No Candidate Endorsements

The policy council decided specific candidate endorsements, even of women, would be a no-no, Mrs. Patterson said.

"I personally feel that if a man is running and you think he would do more for women, then you should vote for the man," she asserted.

On that basis, plus long-time friendship, she is supporting Jim Hunt for lieutenant governor with a clear conscience.

Women would, and in certain circumstances, should cross party lines to vote for a woman, she said, but sex loyalty should not be blind.

Around 53 per cent of the electorate are women, Mrs. Patterson said. Their participation in the party machinery should be on that basis, she argued.

She'd be willing to disregard a couple of percentage points and settle for at least half of the national convention delegation as women, she added.

No Easy Goal

That objective is ambitious and may not be easy to obtain. A spot on the national convention delegation is much coveted among party faithful, and males aren't likely to end their long dominance without a struggle.

Six women were among the more than 100 delegates and alternates to the 1968 convention. This year, North Carolina is entitled to 64 delegates and 42 alternates.

Half that number would be seven times as many women as the party selected four years ago.

Women already have met one disappointment in their efforts for proportionate representation on decision-making bodies of the party. State Democratic Chairman John Church named a platform committee which numbered only four women among its 15 members.

Mrs. Patterson said she didn't know whether that could be taken as a straw in the wind as to the attitude of party leadership.

In any event, she added, women will pursue their objective on the assumption that appeals within the party and eventual court action may be required to reach the goal.

The strategy calls for getting women out in strength to the series of precinct, county and Congressional district conventions which hold the key to the selection of national convention delegates, Mrs. Patterson said.

A Hopeful Note About High Cost Of Living

The Labor Department sounded a hopeful note in announcing that, while the cost of living climbed again in January, the rise was smaller than in December.

Consumer prices rose 0.1 per cent during January. After allowing for seasonal trends, government economists computed the annual rate of increase at 3.6 percent.

As everyone who pays household bills recognizes, the rapidly rising cost of living has been the greatest threat to the man of moderate income. There is some hope that inflation may be coming under control, but it will take a slowing rise for several months to determine this.

Big Turnover In Legislature

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH — The North Carolina legislature is going to have a dramatic new look when it convenes for business in January of next year.

At least half the people who served in the State Senate last year, will not be back in 1973. The turnover in the State House won't be quite so drastic but it will be the heaviest it has been in many years.

Secretary of State Thad Eure is taking a reading of the politicians who are running for reelection to the legislature and those who are calling it quits.

Eure didn't want to reveal the results of his study when I talked with him this week, but he did say there might be 25 or more new faces in the State Senate.

"There will not be a majority of new faces in the House, I don't think," Eure said, "but the turnover there will still be very significant."

Some of the people not coming back to the State Senate were active leaders in the Upper Chamber. Among them, Skipper Bowles, John Burney, John T. Church, Jack Baugh, Jyles Coggins, Ruffin Bailey, Claude Currie, J. Ollie Harris, Dr. Carl Killian, Hector McGeachy, and George Wood.

This is by no means the entire list. But these men, in most instances, were legislative leaders.

Their reasons for not coming back differ — some are running for another political office. But there seems to be a common denominator among most of them. The legislature takes up too much time.

Says Secretary of State Eure: "Many of these men just can't take the time away from making a living that it takes to serve in the legislature this day and time. The only ones you can really count on now are those who have been stricken with the political bug and can't get shed of it."

Serving in the Tar Heel legislature is a complete new ballgame. It used to be that a man serving in the legislature could go to Raleigh every other year for five months and that was it. The legislature stayed in session for seven months, and even at that it didn't get around to settling the controversial matter of no-fault insurance and a special session had to be called to restructure higher education.

The demands on a legislator's time don't stop there. In addition to being in session longer and longer, legislators are now called on to make more speaking engagements, to work more closely with their local governing bodies even when the legislature isn't in session, and matters pertaining to state government come to their attention by mail or telephone almost daily.

And then there's the matter of campaigning. Not long ago a person trying to win election to the legislature didn't have to spend a great deal of time on the campaign trail. Now, most face a stiff battle in the primary and in the general election.

A man running for a legislative position now must count on about five months of active campaigning and this means more time away from his business.

"It also means more money to be spent getting elected," Eure says. "The cost of (Continued on page 6)

Depravity In The Wings

WASHINGTON—There is this movie playing in our town. You may have heard of it: It's called "A Clockwork Orange," based on the novel by Anthony Burgess and directed by Stanley Kubrick, whose face adorned the covers of recent issues of Newsweek and Saturday Review.

"Orange" won the New York Film Critics' awards for best picture and direction, which tells as much about New York film critics as it does about the movie. For if you were the sort of child who enjoyed torturing birds and pulling the wings off flies, you'll love "Orange." It is, as they say, a groove, with a little something for the most refined of tastes.

It all takes place in London at some time in the near future. Kubrick warms up his fans with the stomping of an old derelict by a gang of four aspiring Charles Mansons (wow!). But that, as one is quick to learn, is as nothing: There follows a fight with a rival gang and a wild ride through the country in a stolen car, during which a number of motorists are driven off the road, presumably to their deaths (dig it?).

The quartet of doped-up psychopaths then gains entry into a writer's home by asking for a telephone to report an accident, administers a crippling beating to him (to the tune of "Singin' in the Rain") and rapes his wife before his eyes. It really is a gas.

After a little light comedy during which Alex, the leader of the hoodlums, playfully maims two of his accomplices to assert his leadership, they raid another house and Alex beats a woman to death with a statue of a phallus (how 'bout that for symbolism, Mr. Melville?).

At this point Alex gets caught, beaten up by the police, sentenced to fourteen years in prison, is released in two years after a drug treatment which renders acts of violence literally sickening to him and spends most of the rest of the film getting brutally beaten and forced into a bone-breaking attempted suicide. The apparent lesson, and it is a false and despicable one, is that all humanity is so inherently evil that it is impossible, indeed senseless, to try to differentiate between a good act and a bad one, decent conduct and indecent.

It cannot be denied that Kubrick has talent. Some of the scenes crackle with brilliance and some (not those mentioned) are genuinely funny. But Kubrick's genius is a diabolical one and, given the temper of our times, an irresponsible one.

Man is today as he always has been, which is to say not very nice, and that goes for all levels of society. We are, after all, one of the few animals which kills other than to eat and one of the few that slays members of its own species. There is, in short, a darkness in our souls which does not afflict other mammals.

Wives Worn Out

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that every doctor's wife gets tired of hearing:

"I hate to call you at home, but would you mind waking up your husband and ask him what to do about my husband's hiccups? They're keeping me awake."

"Is that a new mink coat you're wearing?"

"Oh, you lucky woman. I certainly envy you. I think your husband is the most adorable man on earth."

"Does your husband tell you everything about his patients? I hope not in my case."

"What's Dr. Uptight's bedside manner like when it's his own bedside?"

"Helene, you knew what a doctor's wife's life would be like when you married me. After all, you were a nurse for four years."

"Helen, why are you so insanely jealous of my feral patients? I don't even know the color of that woman's eyes. The only thing about her that interests me is her left kidney, and I'm getting pretty bored with that."

"I hate to bother you at home, but my son just swallowed his top."

"Would your husband be annoyed if I tried to reach him at the country club? He seems to spend more time there than at his office."

"With so much flu around I guess you and Vernon will be able to afford a winter as well as a summer vacation this year."

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL
March 2, 1932

A postcard was mailed to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh from Newark, New Jersey today reading: "Babe safe. Instructions later. Act Accordingly." Ransom has been demanded for the Lindbergh baby, kidnapped from its nursery last night and Colonel Lindbergh is willing to pay if he can get the infant safely back to its mother's arms. Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr. is only twenty months old but he is the world's most famous baby. His birth was one of the biggest news stories of 1930 and his first photograph was one of the most prized pictures in the history of journalistic photography. He came as a birthday gift to his mother, Mrs. Anne Lindbergh, for she was 24 that day, June 22, 1930. Mrs. Lindbergh, who is reported to be expecting another baby in the spring, was inconsolable today and aside from the grief at having the baby kidnapped, she was made additionally anxious because of the baby's illness. The baby had been suffering from a severe cold.

Strength For Today

GRATITUDE

Sixteen pictures hang on the walls of my study. Most of them have passed away, but Raymond Burr (Perry Mason) smiles from his cordially inscribed photograph (of course he'll find the body and win his case in court!) A classmate — Vice Admiral Joel T. Boone — is smiling down on me with a friendly smile. He has eighteen medals, beginning with the Congressional Medal of Honor. As a physician he got out of the trenches — in World War I — and began ministering to the wounded in cross-fire. His sergeant almost died of anxiety. When Joel got near enough, the sergeant jumped out of the trenches, grabbed his superior officer and threw him head first into safety. (Yes, they decorated the sergeant).

the passing years. They come — and that is it. I could hardly call George Washington a personal friend because he died almost a hundred years before I was born, but as long as there is any space on my walls George Washington in plaque or plaster will have a place. "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Children and grandchildren will find other personages to honor. We respect honest purpose in any field. (Oh, I forgot. A little picture of Lawrence Welk ("Wonderful, Wonderful"). Best of all, from my standpoint, is my father's college diploma bearing the date of 1877.

Strength for the Day? Yes, and strength for many days as we remember our forebears and present day friends living committed lives.

Foreign Wages Is Loss Factor

By ELMER ROESSNER
Pan American World Airways, American Airlines and Trans World Airlines all reported losses for January. Pan American's loss was $12.9 million compared with $8.7 million a year earlier, but American and TWA reduced losses from a year ago, American, $2 million from $7.1 million, and TWA to $8.2 million from $12.5 million.

COMMENT: Three factors are largely to blame: competition is intense, with foreign nations subsidizing national airlines heavily for prestige; the rush to giant planes here and abroad which fly with so many empty seats, and the differences between United States and foreign pay scales. Note that American, with no transoceanic route, did better than the other two.

Pan Am, which has lost almost $100 million in the last two years, has a $300 million revolving credit with 38 banks that expires March 31. It is now trying to renegotiate the arrangement.

Consumer Price Index Slows Down
The Labor Department's consumer price index rose a seasonally adjusted 0.3 per cent in January. Since wage and price controls were imposed last August, the index has risen at an adjusted annual rate of 2.6 per cent compared with 4.1 per cent in the previous six months. Higher food prices, property taxes and auto registration fees, none of which are controlled, were largely responsible for the January rise.

ELMER ROESSNER

COMMENT: While the small decline is encouraging, it does not mean that inflation is under control. In fact, it means that inflation continued at 0.3 per cent during the month. In addition, wage increases approved in January and February will provide valid reasons for higher prices in February and March. So will the one per cent increase in wholesale prices in January, although it has been slightly vulcanized.

End of Interest Decline Predicted
Bankers Trust Co. in its annual study of the investment outlook reports that short-term interest rates, which have been declining, will turn upward later this year. It predicts that heavy government borrowing to refinance indebtedness and an increase in borrowing for expansion by business will force rates upward.

COMMENT: This should end fears of a general decline in interest rates on savings accounts.

Credit Men Foresee Slight Improvement
A minor rise in the industrial production index and a similar rise in the wholesale price index is forecast for the midyear by business credit executives polled by Credit and Financial Management magazine.

COMMENT: This is one of the few new optimistic forecasts. Despite the fact that the average increase predicted is only one per cent, it is better than a kick in the pants with a frozen mulluk.

The artist, if he would be true to himself and hence to his art, cannot hide or gloss over the demonic side of man's nature. Yet he need not revel in sadism and bestial lust, reducing all things to their lowest common denominator and wallowing in that baseness, for neither is that the truth about man.

There is a disturbing current flowing throughout our society and movies such as "Orange" are but isolated reflections of it. The code by which men have lived, the social contract, if you will, has become undermined and beasts stalk the streets unfettered. And those beasts are, of course...ourselves.

You see it in the aggressive way people drive. You hear it in the roar of the crowd at pro football games on fall Sundays. You sense it in the empty streets of the cities, where men caught abroad after dark walk quickly and purposefully, looking neither to right nor to left. You catch a glimpse of it in the emptiness behind men's eyes. There is a hint of drift, of purposelessness in our lives.

Perhaps it stems from the notion of the importance of "doing one's own thing." For if self-expression, no matter what its form or content, is the most highly valued thing in life, then it follows that one act is no better or worse than another, that the freedom to commit atrocities is just as important as the freedom to feed a starving child. That is a point of view, but it is doubtful if the survivors of Buchenwald would applaud it.

It is difficult to assess how deep the sickness runs. But it is pretty clear that there has been a general debasement of our cultural mores, of which the content of television and movies and airport bookshops is merely the mirror-image. In an age of permissiveness, the public gets, by definition, what it wants and many of the things it wants are sordid and are known to be sordid.

In all probability we will not collapse into the total social chaos on the brink of which we seem to teeter today. There is a cyclical rhythm in the beat of men's lives and it is likely that the pendulum will swing back again into a new and blue-nosed era of perhaps oppressive social control.

That will be unfortunate for man is not himself without the touch of bawdiness, of sexuality, of merriment, which proclaims him a son of the earth. And yet there can be but few who would not agree that we have gone too far: Rape is not funny, murder is not a joke, kicking a man into a bloody pulp, despite what the New York critics may say, is not artistry.

There is a name for what "A Clockwork Orange" represents and it is depravity. Having seen it, you walk quickly from the theater, looking neither to the right nor to the left, ashamed to be human and in the night air there is leathery rustling as of the wings of great bats.

Rio Hondo in northwestern Argentina is famous for its thermal springs.

"Your husband is only an internist. Mine's a surgeon. They're much harder to live with."

"Woman to woman, could you ask your husband whether my husband made any remarks about me when he talked to your husband this morning?"

"Don't you worry a little bit about the possibility of him bringing home some kind of strange disease sometime?"

"I hate to call you at home, but my husband and I had a small quarrel, and now his nose is bleeding and—"

The time has come again for the annual census of youngsters living in Greenville who will be enrolled in kindergarten and the first grade in Greenville schools for the coming 1972-73 school year.

Charles R. Ross, director of Elementary Education in the City Schools, says that during the month of March census forms will be sent to Greenville homes. School children in all grades will be given the forms to take home to parents. Ross stresses this is not a registration of children, but is a census to help school officials plan for the coming school year and to provide information needed as much as possible in advance.

Since there will be a number of parents in Greenville with young children who will not be reached through older school children. Ross is asking that parents in this category contact the city school office. This can be done by coming by the office, located at 431 West Fifth Street or by telephone, 752-4192.

Forms being sent into the homes are one page forms with entries for basic information on each child. Parents are being urged to complete the forms for record purposes, even if plans are for the child to attend a private or parochial school.

Age requirements applicable to new students is to reach the age of five on or before October 15, 1972 to be eligible for kindergarten; or to reach the age of six on or before October 15, 1972 in order to enroll in the first grade. At a later date, the city schools will announce times, dates and places for enrollment of children in the kindergarten and first grade programs.

Backlash In Ulster Anticipated

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST (AP) — Speculation grew today that Northern Ireland's Protestant extremists may be getting ready to retaliate for the current murder campaign by Catholic guerrillas.

An opposition member of the provincial parliament said a "soft backlash" already is developing. He cited the wounding of two Roman Catholics in fusillades this week and the recent bombing of a hotel where Catholic politicians were meeting.

Other sources cited the assassination Feb. 8 of a Catholic in Belfast and the finding of a time bomb in a hotel just before the annual dinner-dance of the Catholic Gaelic Athletic Association.

"It could well be that a few people are just having a go," said a government official. "We are keeping a fairly close eye on these incidents, but so far there is no sign of organized activity."

Northern Ireland's Protestant majority for many months has left the task of fighting the guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army to British troops and the provincial police. Expectations from time to time that Protestant vigilantes would take to the streets have not materialized. But this week has seen a new upsurge of IRA attacks, with two militiamen murdered at their homes on Tuesday and Wednesday and another man wounded seriously Wednesday night.

Any developing Protestant backlash would probably get a powerful boost if a report in a London paper today turns out to be true.

The Daily Mail, a Conservative paper, said Britain's Conservative Cabinet is about to approve a plan for Northern Ireland under which it would relax the internment without trial of suspected IRA members, take over responsibility for law and order, reorganize the provincial government with representation allotted between the Protestant majority and Catholic minority rather than by elections in the present gerrymandered districts, and Trio Guilty Of Holdup-Killing.

RALEIGH (AP) — Three Raleigh men are facing life in prison after a Superior Court jury convicted them of first degree murder in the shotgun slaying of a part-time store clerk last Oct. 14.

Delmos Eugene Bryant, 30, Steve Holloman, 25, and Sherman White, 20, were sentenced Wednesday by Judge Maurice Braswell. The jury recommended mercy, which meant an automatic life sentence.

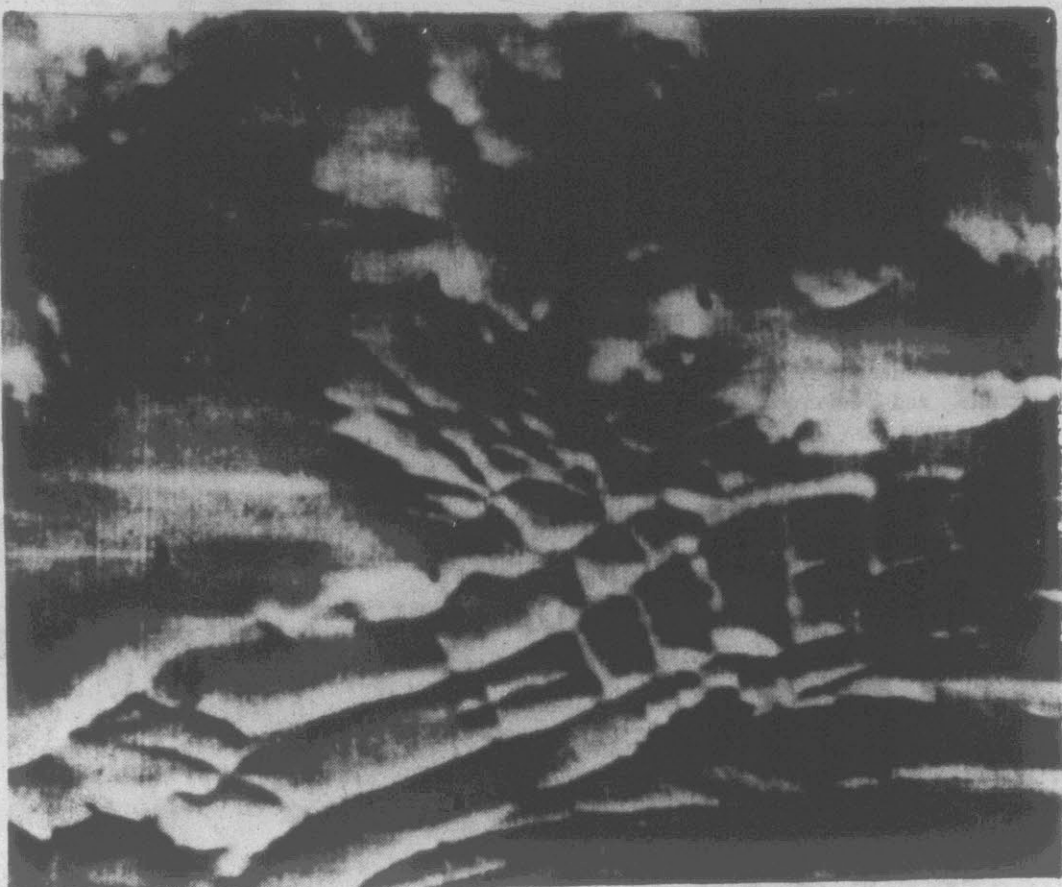

The three were accused of killing John Thomas Massey, 48, during a robbery of Smiley's Produce and Grocery.

would hold a referendum every 10 years or so on whether the people want to join the Irish Republic.

Meanwhile, the killings continued. The bullet-riddled corpses of two teen-age boys were found in an abandoned truck outside a Belfast hospital during the night. Apparently they were victims of a British army sharpshooter defending a police patrol.

Their deaths brought to 255 the number of persons reported killed in 31 months of communal strife in the province.

'RIDGE' PATTERN ON MARS — At first glance this criss-cross pattern near the south pole of Mars might resemble the ruins of an ancient city, but Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientists have a less dramatic explanation: the pattern, photographed by Mariner 9 last month, is a series of ridges probably created by a combination of fractures and erosions. Area shown is about 26 by 30 miles, as seen from a height of 1821 miles. (AP Wirephoto)

Nixon Nearing Decision On Approach To Busing

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP)

— President Nixon is nearing a decision on the steps his administration will take in an effort to blunt court-ordered busing of children to achieve racial balance in schools.

Soon after his return from China, Nixon began collecting from his aides and Cabinet advisers the pros and cons on a series of options—ranging from a proposed constitutional amendment to more federal intervention in court cases.

When Nixon boarded the presidential jet in Washington Wednesday to fly to his bayside Key Biscayne compound, an aide bounded up the ramp steps behind him carrying two black briefcases.

While spokesmen wouldn't divulge contents, it was virtually certain the briefcases contained material dealing with busing—now emerging as one of the hottest political issues of this election year.

And as the "Spirit of 76" flew toward Florida, Nixon summoned White House aide John Ehrlichman to his cabin, presumably to begin discussions on busing. Sources list these as among the options before the President:

—A constitutional amendment. This would be designed to forbid courts from ordering busing to achieve racial balance. But administration officials indicate problems have been encountered in agreeing on suitable wording.

—Legislation. The White House has watched with interest the Senate's hassle over legislation intended to curb busing but has yet to take a public position or propose specific legislation.

—Court intervention. Under this option, the Justice Department could attempt to reverse lower court rulings requiring busing and perhaps intervene in pending cases to clearly establish the administration stance on the issue.

—Televised speech. Under this approach, Nixon would use national television time to discuss the issue and outline his proposed solutions, perhaps including increased funding for schools.

According to Nixon's spokesmen, no decision will be disclosed during his stay in Florida.

Indications are, however, that the President plans to announce his decision before mid-March—perhaps as early as next week.

Officials say the President is not limited to the four most widely discussed options. Nixon could, they say, come up with a package of actions including two or more of the options.

Pitt Conservation District Enrolled

Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District has enrolled in the 26th annual Goodyear Conservation Awards Program, it was announced today by Arch J. Flanagan. Conservation districts and cooperators will be recognized by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company for their outstanding accomplishments during 1972.

The awards are based upon each district's work of planning for service, and measuring service. The awards, also, recognize outstanding cooperation with the board of supervisors by one landowner within each participating district, regardless of that district's standing within the state.

The first place conservation district in each state will be eligible to send one member of its governing body, together with its outstanding cooperator, on an all-expense paid vacation-study trip to the 10,000-acre Goodyear Farms and The Wigwam, resort hotel, Litchfield Park, Ariz.

The continuing purpose of this program is to stimulate the efforts of America's conservation districts and to instill landowners with a fuller realization of their great responsibility of stewards of our natural resources.

Pitt District, while it was still in the old four-county Coastal Plain Soil Conservation District, won the first place Goodyear award in North Carolina three times. Joining the President for the trip here was daughter Julie Eisenhower, whose husband David is on sea duty. Mrs. Nixon was off to open a Camillia festival in California.

National security adviser Henry A. Kissinger, kingpin of the China strategy, was a late arrival.

The Florida visit was generally described as a low-key affair, with no public appearances in this state.

Serving with Flanagan on the Board of Supervisors are Truman W. Haddock, Robert G. Little, F. Curtis Martin and Ralph C. Tucker.

Installation Service Held

FACTOLUS—The Eastern Community Gospel Convention held its installation service at Hayes Chapel Missionary Baptist Church here Sunday.

The installation message was delivered by the Rev. W. B. Moore, pastor of Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church of Greenville.

Officers installed included: Rev. W.S. Wilson, advisor; Mrs. M.R. Wilson, president; Mrs. S.A. Walker, vice president; Miss Dorothy Barnes, secretary; Mrs. Susie Taylor, assistant secretary; and Mrs. Fannie Jenkins, treasurer.

Executive board members installed include: Lemuel Clemons, chairman; Mrs. E. B. Thompson, co-chairman; Mrs. Verna Thompson, C.C. Johnson; Mrs. Annie Little; Monty Frizzell; Mrs. Vella Jordan; Mrs. Hattie Wilson; Mrs. Lucy Jones; Mrs. Hattie Donaldson; and Mrs. Melissa Scott.

Miss Ruby Suggs was named editor and Alexander Carr was chosen auditor.

Teacher Drops Out Of Contest

RALEIGH (AP) — Ruth Jones of Rocky Mount, president of the North Carolina Association of Educators, has withdrawn from the race for the Democratic nomination for state superintendent of public instruction.

Mrs. Jones, a black fifth grade teacher, requested in a letter to the state Board of Elections Wednesday that her name be withdrawn. Alex Brock, executive secretary, said he would comply with her request.

She had filed for the office during the final hours before the deadline Feb. 21. Her withdrawal leaves only two Democratic candidates in the race. Supt. Craig Phillips is opposed by John O'Connell, a former employe of the state Department of Public Instruction.

Hundreds Of Thousands Of Pay Raises Are Snarled

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of individual pay raises are being held up in a tangle of red tape at the Pay Board, which says the situation will get better, sometime.

Despite streamlined procedures initiated Jan. 20, the board said Wednesday its backlog of unsettled cases has nearly tripled from about 800 then to 2,219 as of Feb. 25.

Although there was no count of the total number of workers involved, 320 of the pending wage settlements cover more than 5,000 workers each and must be cleared by the board before taking effect.

Executive director Robert Tiernan said in an interview that additional steps are being taken by the board to reduce the growing pile of pending cases.

He said Internal Revenue Service agents are being schooled at special three-day seminars to begin taking over initial handling of cases involving fewer than 1,000 workers, which account for about two-thirds of the backlog, or 1,341 cases.

In line with this, the board's first complete manual of pay regulations is being published this week as an aid to IRS pay specialists.

In addition, Tiernan said, the board's own 130-man staff soon will be able to devote more time to clearing up the load of larger cases.

Right now most of its attention is occupied by settlements covering West Coast dock workers and Ohio state-government employees, he said.

Tiernan said that, despite the swelling backlog, he does not plan to ask for a larger staff unless he has to.

So far this year the staff has been occupied primarily with the board's major decisions on railroad men and aerospace workers and with the task of rewriting pay regulations to conform with the economic-controls law Congress passed last December.

Matters have been delayed further by these revisions in board regulations, which may not take effect for weeks yet. Although the board in recent weeks has announced policy decisions on merit pay, fringe benefits and deferred pay raises, none has been published.

Each must be reduced to legal language by staff lawyers, cleared by a board subcommittee, reviewed by the Cost of Living Council, Internal Revenue Service and the Justice Department, and subjected to 10 days of public comment after being published in the Federal Register.

And things could get worse before they improve.

It took weeks for the board to issue forms for requesting approval of pay increases. Thanks to the revised policies, the forms now must be changed, requiring many of the cases to be sent back for more information.

"That's going to screw up the system again," Tiernan said.

Morgan Will Head Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan plans to personally direct an investigation to determine if the state's conflict of interest law has been violated by State Highway Commissioner E. J. Whitmire of Franklin.

Morgan said Wednesday he would have no comment on the probe until after he makes a report to Gov. Bob Scott.

The governor requested an investigation after The (Raleigh) News and Observer said in a copyrighted story Tuesday that it had learned crushed stone taken from a quarry owned by Whitmire was being sold to the highway commission.

Morgan did not say when the probe might be completed.

A state law prohibits commissioners from furnishing or selling any supplies or materials, "directly or indirectly" to the commission.

The newspaper quoted Whitmire as saying he was "reasonably sure" he had not violated any state law.

Probing Source Of Hog Cholera

RALEIGH (AP) — State and federal officials are trying to determine what caused an outbreak of hog cholera in a herd belonging to James Potter of Rt. 2, Raeford.

Dr. T. F. Zweigart, state veterinarian, said Wednesday it was the first outbreak of the disease in North Carolina in nine months.

Zweigart said there were about 400 swine in the feedlot operation and some 200 animals died before any report was made to veterinary officials.

He said the Potter farm, individual herds around it and a larger undetermined area would be quarantined. Zweigart urged swine producers to report any illnesses in their animals.

★★★★★★ North Pitt Notes ★★★★★★

By ELLEN HEATH
The "Big Orange Machine" captured first place in the Second District Tournament Friday night at Southern Wayne. This victory made 51 straight wins for the Panther girls.

A State Girls' Tournament will be held for the first time this year at High Point Central High School. The team, accompanied by the cheerleaders, will leave North Pitt Thursday at 9 a.m. to play in the tournament that night against East Lincoln. The game will begin at 7 p.m.

If the girls win this game, they will automatically play both Friday and Saturday nights. These games will be played at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. The "Big Orange Machine" needs and deserves support in the tournament. Admission charge is $1.50.

The Reading Lab and Library Club are sponsoring a book fair this week. Paperback books, including classics, fiction, biographies, adventure stories, science, nature, crafts, mystery, and reference books, will be on display in the library. Students will have the opportunity to buy a copy of these books. All English classes are scheduled to go sometime during the week to look over the display.

Graduation Plans
In preparation for graduation, the Senior Glee Club and the program committee have already begun meeting. The seniors throughout the county have requested the principals to consider changing graduation from Monday, June 5, to Friday, June 2.

For this to be possible, the Easter holidays must be shortened from three days to two days, Good Friday and Easter Monday. If the school calendar is changed, Thursday, June 1, will be the last day of school.

All high school students and staff members were given the opportunity to express their feelings on Monday and Tuesday. The Students Involvement Committee was in charge of the students' ballots. The "Prelude", edited by Gail Michaels and Rosalyn Jones, with the help of the annual staff, was sent off last week after the hard work on it was completed. Hopefully, the annual will come out before the end of the school year.

The presentation of North Pitt News on WOOW is now 11:15 a.m. each Saturday. Jackie Nelson and Jessie Murchison, both members of the Student Involvement, presented last week's broadcast.

Wins Contest
Jimmy Nelson, a junior at North Pitt, won first place in a theme contest sponsored by the Employment Security Commission. He received $25.

Johnny Edwards, a North Pitt junior, along with Wilbert Jackson of Ayden-Grifton, and Brian Vandercook, coordinator of School Information Services, represented Pitt County in the NEA-NCAE Workshop on Human Relations in Greensboro during the first part of the week.

Andrew Daniel, an outstanding North Pitt wrestler, participated in the state match in Winston-Salem last week. Ronnie Howell and Linwood Brown, two other wrestlers, also attended the match.

Baseball practice began about two weeks ago. All home games will be played at Bethel Middle School at 4 p.m. The team, coached by Melvin Boyd, will be chosen this week, and the names of the players will appear in next week's "North Pitt Notes."

Condolis Spoke During Assembly

WASHINGTON — W. G. Condolis, official of Jehovah's Witnesses, spoke on "Are You Marked For Survival?" Sunday afternoon at the John Smith High School here.

The talk climaxed a three-day assembly which the Watchtower Society arranged for the 20 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses in eastern North Carolina. Approximately 1,452 people were in attendance including the Greenville area.

On Saturday, the Witnesses baptized 17 new ministers.

Meeting of the Greenville congregation of Witnesses will revert back to the regular schedule this week.

Mrs. Taylor Earns Award

Mrs. Dee Taylor, Field Representative with the Greenville Social Security Office, this morning received the Award for Excellence in Television Presentation for the Atlanta Region, which comprises eight southeastern states.

William McClure, District Manager for the Greenville office, made the announcement. He said Mrs. Taylor received the award at a breakfast ceremony early this morning in Atlanta, the scene of the third annual award ceremonies.

"Mrs. Taylor was in competition for this honor with representatives from social security offices throughout the Atlanta Region which consists of eight southeastern states," McClure revealed.

Mrs. Taylor's program is aired weekly on WNCN-TV as a segment of "Farm-News." The particular program presented for competition was one from early September, which covered student benefits, farm wages, and other items of interest to eastern North Carolina viewers.

MRS. DEE TAYLOR

"We are very happy that Mrs. Taylor has received this recognition for her outstanding work in this area," McClure said.

Clemson Upsets Duke; A-G Loses

More Surprises Coming?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Don't count on sure things in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship basketball tournament which begins a week from today in the Greensboro, N. C., Coliseum.

Witness the rumblings at the ag end of the regular season.

One night North Carolina, which had been the conference leader, is upset 85-84 by North Carolina State.

And the next night Clemson, the tail ender, shocks Duke 59-40.

Clemson did it Wednesday night in its own Littlejohn Coliseum, with a pressure defense that allowed the Blue Devils only six field goals in the second half.

It was only the second league victory for the Tigers and came after 10 straight conference losses.

Duke, on the other hand, was coming off consecutive conference victories over North Carolina State, Maryland and Virginia.

Clemson, behind 22-20 at intermission, raised its shooting percentage from 25 per cent in the first half to 54 per cent in the second half.

Maryland, which had been tied with Duke at 6-4 for third place in the conference, took undisputed possession by defeating Wake Forest 64-56 Wednesday night on Bob Bodel's six free throws in overtime.

Wake Forest rallied from a 52-44 deficit with 1:40 remaining in regulation time to tie it at 54-54 on a basket by Pat Kelly which sent the game into overtime.

The leading scorers, each with 21 points, were Tom McMillen of Maryland and Willie Griffin of Wake Forest.

ACC teams now are idle until Saturday, when the regular season will end with these games: Duke at North Carolina, Virginia at Maryland, North Carolina State at Wake Forest, and Clemson at South Carolina.

The standings, conference

games and all games:
North Carolina and Virginia tied at 8-3 and 20-4 apiece; Maryland 7-4 and 20-4; Duke 6-5 and 13-10; North Carolina State 5-6 and 15-9; Wake Forest 3-8 and 8-16; Clemson 2-10 and 10-

Phillie Manager Changes Outlook

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — One of the busiest offseason markets in recent baseball history bypassed the Philadelphia Phillies—until last Friday.

Before that day, Manager Frank Lucchesi had a solid No. 1 pitcher in right-hander Rick Wise ... and problems. Now he has a solid No. 1 pitcher in left-hander Steve Carlton ... and problems.

The Carlton-Wise deal didn't go that far toward solving the team's problems but Lucchesi puts up a brave front, asserting that he has changed his philosophy of managing. No more experimenting and more emphasis on fundamentals and winning is Lucchesi's party line.

The truth is that the Phillies are one big experiment, with emphasis on youth. If Lucchesi's youngsters don't get old quick, the popular skipper could be out of a job by July 4.

The Phillies' problems start with pitching, even though Carlton was a 20-game winner last season with St. Louis. After Carlton it's a grab-bag. Dick Selma, the fine reliever who was sidelined most of last season with a sore arm, is being made a starter. Woodie Fryman, 10-7, Barry Lersch, 5-14, Ken Reynolds, 5-9, 35-year-old Chris Short 7-14, and Billy Champion, 3-5, will battle for the other starting spots. Joe Hoerner, 4-5 with nine saves, and Billy Wilson, 4-6 and seven saves, will be in the bullpen.

The Phillies tried desperately to trade 32-year-old Deron Johnson for a starting pitcher or second baseman, but there were no takers for the first baseman who hit .265 with 34 home runs and 95 RBI. He'll be back at first. Denny Doyle and Terry Harmon, both unproven as major leaguers, are slated to platoon at second. Larry Bowa, whose .987 fielding percentage is a major league record, is a strong point at shortstop. Don Money slipped from .295 to .223 as a hitter last year. But he'll be back at third base to prove which year is his proper level.

There are nine candidates for six outfield jobs. Lucchesi says if he had to start the season today he would play Greg Luzinski in left, Willie Montanez in center and Mike Anderson in right. It probably is the youngest outfield in baseball, averaging 21 years.

Luzinski is the 6-foot-1, 220-pound power hitter who hit 36 home runs and drove in 114 at Eugene in the PCL, then came up and hit .285 with three homers and 15 RBI in 36 games for the Phillies. He's the big hope of the youth movement.

Anderson also is one of the outstanding young prospects in the Phillies' system. He was a .334 hitter with 36 home runs and 100 RBI in the PCL.

Montanez hit .255 in his first full big league season, slugging 30 home runs and batting in 99. He played well in center field and was a leading candidate for 1971 Rookie of the Year. He has shown signs of temperament that Lucchesi feels hurts his potential. He slams his helmet, throws his bat and has been labeled a "hot dog" by opponents. He delivered 13 game-winning hits last season, however, which has Lucchesi considering a training camp drill in helmet and bat throwing.

Other outfield candidates include the Phillies' biggest 1971 disappointment, Roger Freed. Acquired from Baltimore in December 1970, he was handed the right field job. The International League's Most Valuable Player in 1970, leading the league in hits and RBI, he batted .221 in 118 games for the Phillies, driving in 38. Byron Browne, Oscar Gamble, Joe Lis, Tom Hutton, Ron Stone and Nellie Garcia are the rest of the outfield corps.

If the Phillies can come up with pitchers to go with Carlton, if Luzinski and Anderson make the grade, if Money comes back ... if, if, if ... the team could move up. If not, it will be a long summer for the 1.5 million or more who come to Veterans Stadium full of hope.

Ranger's Ratelle Out For Season

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a shot like hundreds taken by National Hockey League defensemen all season. Dale Rolfe of the New York Rangers wound up from just inside the blue line and teed off.

Jean Ratelle, cutting in front of California's net, jumped to get out of the way of the puck. But Ratelle didn't go high enough. The rubber crunched into his right ankle and in a flash, the NHL's second leading scorer was finished for the regular season.

Ratelle hobbled out of Madison Square Garden on crutches and was in Lenox Hill Hospital for X-rays while his teammates were finishing off the Seals 4-1 Wednesday night. It was shortly afterwards that the results of the pictures were delivered to Emile Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers. They were not good.

Rolfe's shot had cracked a bone on the inside of Ratelle's right ankle, the tall center, whose 109 points left him one short of Boston's Phil Esposito in the scoring race. He will wear a cast on his foot for the next three weeks. It will be a month before he can skate again. That's just about how much time is left in the regular season.

Elsewhere Wednesday night, Montreal slipped by Buffalo 4-1, Toronto trimmed St. Louis 3-1 and Chicago outlasted Los Angeles 6-4.

The routine shot which ended Ratelle's bid for the scoring title also shattered any chance his line had of breaking the NHL's single season record for points by one unit. He, Vic Hadfield and Rod Gilbert had 290 points, 46 shy of the mark set by Boston's Phil Esposito.

Wayne Cashman and Ken Hodge last year.

Bobby Rousseau scored two goals and Pete Stelmowski and Glen Sather one apiece as New York won its fifth straight.

Wayne Carleton got the only goal for the Seals, whose winless string stretched to nine games.

The Canadiens got two goals apiece from linemates Yvan Cournoyer and Marc Tardif to whip the Sabres. The goals increased Cournoyer's total to 35 and Tardif's to 27 and the victory kept Montreal eight points back of second place New York in the NHL East.

The Maple Leafs, who would be satisfied with fourth, moved into a tie for the final playoff berth with idle Detroit by knocking off St. Louis.

Third period goals by Ron Ellis and Jim Harrison broke open a tight game for the Leafs, who now have 65 points, the same total as Detroit, but have played one more game than the Red Wings.

Chicago overcame a 2-0 deficit against Los Angeles with six straight goals, three by Jim Pappin. Dennis Hull put the Hawks in front for good and Bobby Hull's scored what proved to be the winning goal midway in the second period.

Michigan State varsity fencers Chris Held, Paul Herring and Jim Scieszka competed as undergraduates at Culver, Ind., Military Academy.

Out Of Play-offs

DURHAM—Ayden-Grifton's Chargers, winners of the East Carolinas Conference crown, lost to Pinecrest, 60-55 in the first round of the state 3-A play-offs here last night.

The loss ends the season for the Chargers who finish the season at 22-4. A-G led from the free throw stripe 15-10 but from the floor, Pinecrest outscored A-G 50-40 making up the five point difference.

A-G was right on the heels of Pinecrest in the first quarter. Pinecrest was ahead by a free throw at the end of the period, 15-14. The Chargers took the lead in the next quarter by outshooting Pinecrest 12-8 to be in front at the half, 26-23.

Ayden-Grifton's downfall came in the third frame as they could only get 12 points while Pinecrest zoomed back ahead on 19. Ricky Goldston, who lead both teams in scoring with 21, got 10 of his points in the period to put the Pinecrest team on its way to the win. Ayden-Grifton was still with-in reach, however, trailing by four going into the last period, 42-38.

The Chargers could not get enough to take the lead back as Pinecrest dumped in 18 to A-G's 17.

Willie Stewart paced the Chargers with 14 points. Jessie Smith and Danny Garris each had 11. Besides Goldston's 21, Dexter Pride had 10 and James Leak scored 11.

Dolphins Grab NIT Berth

NEW YORK (AP) — The last time—and first time—that Jacksonville played a basketball game in Madison Square Garden, it set the collegiate record for single-game scoring by a team.

The next time the Dolphins invade the Garden, they'll be shooting for bigger game in a series of games—the championship in their debut at the National Invitational Tournament.

The Redmen of St. John's, N.Y., already own two records in the NIT—the most appearances, 20, and most titles, four.

Jacksonville, St. John's, Fordham, Syracuse and Niagara were named Wednesday by Ben Carnevale, president of the NIT Selection Committee, the first five entries to be chosen in the 16-team, March 17-25 event.

At least 19 other teams are still in the running for the remaining 11 berths. Most of them will be decided by the final standings of several collegiate conferences—but those winners won't be the ones at the NIT.

The top teams will be en route to the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships. The runnersup, along with a number of independents such as New Mexico, Oral Roberts and Duquesne, will be the ones to receive NIT bids.

Jacksonville, which bombed St. Peter's, N.J., 151-113 in that record-wrecking Garden debut, is 17-6 with one game remaining; St. John's is 17-8 with one to go; Fordham is 16-8 with two to play; Syracuse has a 19-5 mark with two left, and Niagara, 18-6, has one more game on the schedule.

Scoring Lead Is Three-way Fight

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Virginia's Barry Parkhill continues to lead a three-man fight for the Atlantic Coast Conference individual scoring title going into the final week of the regular basketball season.

The Cavalier star has a 21.8 average and is followed closely by Maryland's Tom McMillen, with 21.2, and N. C. State's Tommy Burleson at 21.0.

Parkhill has only one regular season contest left while both McMillen and Burleson have two. Parkhill has led the race all but one week this season.

McMillen scored 45 points in two games last week to edge ahead of Burleson, who scored 35 in two outings.

Burleson is conference leader in rebounding with an average of 14.0 recoveries per game. North Carolina's Dennis Wuycik has the top free throw percentage with .856, and teammate Bobby Jones has the best field goal percentage with .717.

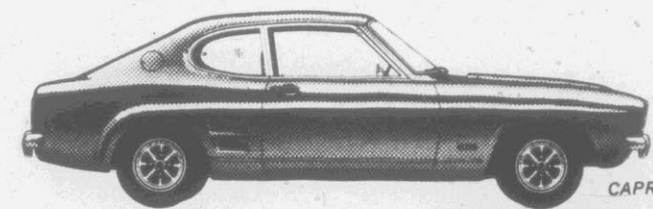

Five UNC players rank among the ACC's top 10 performers in field goal shooting—Jones, Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain, Robert McAdoo and George Karl.

Top $$$ Winners Among Favorites

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) —

Five drivers who together won almost a million dollars in stock car racing last year were among favorites today to capture the pole position for Sunday's $210,000 Miller High Life 500.

The inside front row spot, worth $1,000, and 19 other berths in the 51-car starting field were to be decided in the first of three rounds of time trials beginning at 1 p.m., PST.

Most experts figured the pole sitter would have to better the 151.711 miles per hour lap record set by Texan A.J. Foyt in the inaugural race for NASCAR Grand National stockers at Ontario Motor Speedway last year.

Foyt, whose Mercury was among today's pole candidates, went on to win the inaugural, beating Dodge's Buddy Baker by 8½ seconds in a thriller.

Baker, back again in a day-glow red Dodge owned by STP millionaire Andy Granatelli; Bobby Isaac, in a Dodge painted a lighter red; Bobby Allison in a Chevrolet; and all-time stock car king Richard Petty in a Plymouth were the other drivers considered pole contenders.

Isaac, a 37-year-old veteran from Catawba, N.C., who left school after sixth grade and now earns $75,000 a year as a race driver, was considered to have the fastest car at Ontario.

The mid-haired, slightly built Isaac won the pole for the recent Daytona 500 at a speed of 186.464 m.p.h. He easily captured a 125-mile heat race that included Foyt, but then was sidelined early in the $178,000 race by engine failure.

"We think we have solved our problems since Daytona," Isaac said Wednesday, "and we've done it without sacrificing speed."

Foyt was the second fastest qualifier at Daytona and Baker was third.

Allison, whose $279,000 in prize money was second only to Petty's $333,000 last year, also won a 125-mile heat race at the Florida track, driving around wreckage from a 12-car pileup that killed his friend Friday Hassler.

Petty, not noted as a pole winner, won a 500-mile Grand National at Riverside, 20 miles from Ontario, in January and notched another triumph in a 265-miler at Richmond, Va., last Sunday. He now has a 2-2 won-lost record this year.

Allison and Isaac, among others who took part in Wednesday's initial practice, recorded unofficial laps above Foyt's existing stock car record. Allison was the fastest at 152.520 mph.

The Miller 500 drew a whooping 112 entries, including a number of top drivers from NASCAR's West Coast division.

Among them are Ray Elder, the racing farmer from Carruthers, Calif. who has won his division title twice in a row; Hershel McGriff, the 42-year-old hotshot from Bridal Veil Falls, Ore.; Jack McCoy of Modesto, Calif., and versatile George Follmer of Arcadia, Calif., who is equipped this year with a 1972 Dodge.

Wednesday's practice was routine, except that country and western singer Marty Robbins spun off one of the speedway's turns and took what he described as "car-saving maneuver" that prevented damage to his guadiely-painted Dodge.

South Carolina Finding New Prosperity By Severed ACC Ties

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
While some of the country's college basketball teams have secured postseason tournament berths, they're still knocking each other around in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

And the "second season" hasn't even started down there yet.

Maryland's 18th-ranked Terrapins took a 64-56 overtime triumph over Wake Forest Wednesday night and squeezed closer to the leaders in the three-team race.

But even if Maryland happens to overtake co-leaders North Carolina and Virginia by the end of the regular season Saturday, there's still the playoffs to be considered. The winner of that meat grinder, starting March 9, comes out with the conference title and a berth in the NCAA tournament.

South Carolina, a team which knows all about those fierce ACC playoffs, cut loose from the league this year and is enjoying new-found prosperity because of it.

The eighth-ranked Gamecocks, 81-64 victors over Creighton Wednesday night, were invited to the NCAA tourney without having to face the mad ACC merry-go-round.

Fifth-ranked Marquette, which defeated Tulane 73-60; Providence, 73-65 winner over St. John's, N.Y., and Villanova, a 78-75 victor over Notre Dame, were other independent powers chosen as at-large entries for the national tourney.

The other teams selected for the NCAA were idle Wednesday—No. 9 Marshall; No. 10 Florida State; No. 11 Southwestern Louisiana; No. 13 Houston and No. 15 Hawaii.

Three of the five teams who were initial selections for the 16-team NIT field were in action Wednesday night. Syracuse topped Niagara 87-79 in a battle involving two tourney-bound teams. The other selections were St. John's, Fordham and Jacksonville.

Detroit topped Duquesne 79-71 in a match involving two NIT hopeful clubs.

Bob Bodell's six free throws in overtime carried Maryland over Wake Forest after the Deacons had tied the game in regulation on a last-second shot by Pat Kelly.

"It looked like we didn't want to win," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell. "We tried to give it away with stupid, fundamental mistakes at the end. We played better in overtime, but it should never have gone into overtime."

Bodell, who made nine of 11 free throws in the game, sank six straight from the foul line in the final two minutes to clinch Maryland's hard-earned triumph.

South Carolina shot 59 per cent from the floor, dispelling any doubts by Coach Frank McGuire that his Gamecocks might be nervous after the NCAA bid.

"I told my team before the game not to be bothered about the NCAA bid, just go out there and play relaxed," said McGuire.

"We were unable to contain Kevin Joyce," said Creighton Coach Eddie Sutton.

Joyce, the star South Carolina guard, scored a game-high 22 points.

Maryland Just Missed Losing

By GORDON BEARD

Associated Press Sports Writer
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Lefty Driesell, who says he does more coaching in practice than during a basketball game, stepped out of character Wednesday night and it almost proved costly.

After Driesell's suggested strategy backfired, enabling underdog Wake Forest to tie the score on a last-second shot, the 18th ranked Terps regrouped in overtime for a 64-56 victory.

Maryland, 20-4 for the season and third in the topsy-turvy Atlantic Coast Conference with a 7-4 record, led 52-44 with 1:40 left in regulation time and Bob Bodell's two free throws made it 54-50 with 12 seconds remaining.

Then, after Wake's Bobby Dwyer drove in for an 'uncontested layup with seven seconds left, Maryland's Len Elmore botched an inbound toss and a jump ball was called.

Elmore, who stands 6-foot-9, was opposed at the Maryland foul circle by the 6-1 Dwyer and the obvious play with three seconds on the clock seemed to be for Elmore to swat the ball downcourt.

After a timeout, Elmore controlled the tap but sent the ball back toward the Maryland basket and Pat Kelly of the Deacons suddenly converted a field goal at the buzzer to tie the score 54-54.

Wake Forest gained control of the overtime center jump and intended to run out the clock for one lone shot before Elmore converted an errant pass by Bob Hook into a basket which put the Terps ahead to stay with 2:07 remaining.

Bob Bodell, who made nine of 11 free throws while scoring 11 points, sank six straight from the foul line in the final 1:42 to clinch Maryland's second hard-earned victory over Wake Forest, now 8-16.

Afterward, Maryland players said they had planned for Elmore to attempt the downcourt tap until Driesell changed signals during the timeout huddle.

"We got the tap where we wanted it," Driesell said, "but Wake slipped in and got it."

Maryland, bothered by the slowdown tactics of the Deacons, trailed 20-18 at halftime and then blew leads of six, seven and eight points after intermission.

"It looked like we didn't want to win," Driesell said. "We tried to give it away with some fundamental, stupid mistakes at the end. We played better in overtime, but it should never have gone into overtime."

Tom McMillan of Maryland and Willie Griffin of Wake Forest each scored 21 points. The taller Terps showed a 42-23 edge in rebounds, with Elmore grabbing 14 and McMillan 12.

The Terps, who have not had a winning ACC record in seven seasons, now have a chance to finish in a three-way tie for first should they beat Virginia Saturday and North Carolina lost to Duke.

Virginia and North Carolina are currently tied for first at 9-3, although the ACC championship is decided in a postseason tournament.

Coach Jack McCloskey of Wake Forest, asked if he'd like to play Maryland again, said: "I'd love to play them in the finals."

Goodrich Making It With Lakers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The man who once wasn't wanted now has the Los Angeles Lakers wanting for nothing.

Gail Goodrich, once dismissed in the expansion draft, has been one of the National Basketball Association's stand-out guards since coming back to the team in a trade two seasons ago.

And Wednesday night, the dynamic, little player was a star again with a field goal at the four-second mark to give Los Angeles a 109-108 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Goodrich's heroics came shortly after Walt Chamberlain missed three straight free throws with the Bucks ahead 108-107.

The third toss rimmed the basket, Happy Hairston snared the rebound and fed Goodrich, who delivered the winning goal from 15 feet out.

In the night's other NBA games, it was: Boston 115, Cleveland 105; Seattle 116, Detroit 102; Baltimore 95, Phoenix 90; Philadelphia 108, Buffalo 99 and Houston 108, Cincinnati 96.

Los Angeles had to wipe out a five-point Milwaukee lead in the last 95 seconds.

The Lakers fell behind 108-103 on a shot by Oscar Robertson. Jerry West, who led the winners with 28 points, pulled the Lakers within three on a field goal.

Then Milwaukee's Lucius Allen missed two free throws and Hairston connected to narrow the deficit to 108-107.

John Havlicek led a third-period explosion with 15 points to help Boston win its fourth straight game. The Celtics, who led 53-47 at halftime, scored 39 points in the period and pulled away to an easy victory.

Spencer Haywood and player-coach Len Wilkens teamed to give streaking Seattle its 11th victory in 12 games, lifting the SuperSonics into second place in the Pacific Division. Wilkens wound up with 28 points and Haywood, 27.

Archie Clark scored 14 of his 20 points in the second half as Baltimore rallied to defeat Phoenix. The Bullets were down 56-44 at halftime.

Bob Rule's 20 points led Philadelphia's balanced scoring attack. The center was one of seven 7ers in double figures.

Houston got 26-point performances from Elvin Hayes and Stu Lantz. The Rockets out-rebounded the smaller Royals, 65-45.

Roche 'Learning To Live With Things'

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — "You learn to live with things," said John Roche, who proved it Wednesday night by scoring 19 points in the fourth quarter and providing the spark the New York Nets needed to defeat the Virginia Squires in American Basketball Association play, 114-111.

What Roche has had to live with is the knowledge his father lies gravely ill in New York's Veteran's Hospital after suffering a stroke two weeks ago. He admits it affected his play during that time, but says he's learned to put things in perspective.

"It takes a while for it to sink in," he admitted. "It seemed unimportant when I missed a jump shot, when you think about the fact you're father is lying sick in bed in a hospital. While he's still gravely ill, you learn to accept it." Virginia never trailed in the first half, leading by as much as 11 points before going into intermission with a 53-48 margin. The game saw-sawed back and forth in the third period, the Nets taking a 77-76 edge into the final quarter.

Roche put New York ahead to stay 88-86 with a jumper with 7:42 to go. The Nets moved ahead by as much as eight, 109-101, but Virginia closed to 113-111 with six seconds to play. Then Bill Melchionni sank a free throw with four seconds to go, and Bernie Williams missed a three-point attempt to tie at the buzzer.

Rick Barry of New York led all scorers with 37 points. Melchionni netted 24 and Roche 23 for New York. Charlie Scott netted 30 and rookie Julius Erving added 22 for the Squires.

In other ABA games, Indiana defeated Utah 111-98, Kentucky clipped Carolina 134-125, Dallas whipped Memphis 125-86 and Denver beat the Floridians 138-125.

Indiana outscored Utah 16-2 during one stretch of the fourth quarter to come from behind and beat the Pacers. The defeat ended Utah's 10-game winning streak, but left the Stars with a 9½ game lead over the Pacers in the ABA's West Division.

Artis Gilmore, Kentucky's 7-2 rookie center from Jacksonville, poured in a career-high 41 points to pace the Colonels. Gilmore hit 16 of 19 field goal attempts and also hauled in 20 rebounds. Stew Johnson and Wendell Ladner scored 25 apiece for Carolina.

Dallas raced to a 60-39 halftime lead over Memphis, then cleared their bench in the second half. Donnie Freeman topped Dallas with 30 points, while Johnny Neumann led Memphis with 19.

Denver outscored the Floridians 27-10 in the last 8½ minutes. Ralph Simpson led Denver with 28 points, but Mack Calvin took game honors for the Floridians with 31.

WE CATER TO PRIVATE PARTIES

Congratulations. You just saved $5 by doing your own income tax. And all it cost you was three long, sleepless nights.

And a slight case of heartburn.

If you had gone to H & R Block, on the other hand, you could have relaxed while someone else figured out your income tax. Furthermore, if your return is audited we will accompany you, at no extra cost, to the Internal Revenue Service and explain how your return was prepared, even though we will not act as your legal representative.

And, when you figure your own, you may be entitled to deductions you're not taking and taking deductions you're not entitled to. For instance, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? Or, that if your income increased over the last few years, you may save tax dollars by "income averaging"? And even if you did, would you know how to begin with? Probably not. And there's no reason why you should. After all, you're an amateur when it comes to doing income tax.

You see, when it comes to income taxes, amateurs should depend on H & R Block. We have over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained personnel. They're warm and friendly people who are anxious to help you. They'll sit you down over a free cup of coffee and show you some things about your income tax that you might never have known existed. This means that H & R Block is ready to offer you just one low fee a year, with no extra charge for audits and estimates. H & R Block's charges start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for the 7 million families we served last year. Which is somewhat less than what you paid. Not to mention the fact that aggravation isn't tax deductible. And we are.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

Symposium Will Have Diplomats, Govm't Officials

McGovern Hopes New Hampshire Primary Will Be A 'Cliffhanger'

By WALTER MEARS
AP Political Writer
DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern is forecasting a cliffhanging finish in the New Hampshire presidential primary as he and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie begin their final drives for votes in the March 7 balloting.

Muskie and McGovern, virtually certain to be the one-two finishers in the Democratic race, both planned five days of New Hampshire campaigning until election eve.

"A small number of votes one way or the other can decide this election," McGovern said Wednesday night in asking some 800 University of New Hampshire students for support.

"I don't think it's going to be at all surprising if this election here turns out to be ... a cliffhanger," the South Dakota senator said.

McGovern's strategists contend that if Muskie's New Hampshire campaign is to be judged a success, the Maine senator should poll substantially more than a majority of the vote, in a race with five names on the Democratic ballot and an active, expensive write-in campaign under way for Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas.

It is part of the primary election gamesmanship for a political manager to set the opposition goal high while keeping his own public claims modest and more easily attainable.

But an outcome approaching the kind of cliffhanger McGovern envisioned would be a major and unexpected boost for the underdog entry from South Dakota.

Muskie, speaking at a $500-a-plate fundraising dinner in Boston Wednesday night, said he believed the people of New Hampshire would judge him fairly in the primary and won't head the "veritable drumbeat of venom" from conservative publisher William Loeb.

Lindsay To Wear Black Armband

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay says he will march in the St. Patrick's Day parade wearing a black armband for the 13 Irish killed on bloody Sunday in Londonderry.

"When we go up Fifth Avenue we'll be doing so proudly, but we'll be wearing the black armband voluntarily to salute the memory of the 13 shot down in the massacre," Lindsay said Wednesday.

The mayor also said he wanted to visit his grandmother's grave in Londonderry. "But when I do, I want to visit a United Ireland," he added.

$100 Bills Given To Bystanders

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An elderly man from Stockton, Calif., passed out several $100 bills to bystanders in a bus station, police said Wednesday.

A girl said she received $400. Police delayed the bus, questioned the unidentified man and quoted him as saying:

"I have plenty ... and I don't need it any longer."

He made clear that he is ready to return to the attack, if necessary, against Loeb, whose Manchester Union Leader is New Hampshire's largest daily newspaper.

He said the New Hampshire primary is particularly important because "if I can't do well here, the rest of the country ought not to be asked to consider me."

Muskie said he once won an election by one vote, but added, "I haven't been able to persuade the press that that's a sufficient margin. If I don't do so, I may be in trouble next Tuesday."

AMERICAN STUDIES
TOWSON, Md. (UPI)—And now—American studies. A new program so named within the General Studies Major at Towson State College covers the culture inter-relationships of art, literature, architecture, town planning, social reform and geography.

"The United States Looks at Western Europe - With Concern" is the theme of the second annual European Studies Symposium at East Carolina University March 15-18.

Speakers for the symposium include diplomats, government officials and educators from Europe and the U.S.:

Count Reginald de Warren, Counselor with the French Embassy in Charge of Information and Public Relations; Guy Vanhaeverbeke, Deputy Director of the European Community Information Service; H.J. van Oordt, First Secretary, Embassy of the Netherlands; Arva C. Floyd Jr., NATO Political and Military Affairs Officer, U.S. Department of State;

Joseph C. Sloane, Director of the Ackland Memorial Art Center, UNC-CH; and Calvin Davis, Duke University Professor of U.S. diplomatic history.

They will address the symposium gathering on such topics as Europe after World Wars I and II, Europe as a third force in world politics, NATO, European economic independence and modern art in Europe.

Presiding over symposium sessions will be Dr. Kermit C. King, ECU's Director of International Education; John A. Lang, ECU's Vice President for External Affairs;

Dr. Emily Farham, professor and chairman of art history at ECU; and Dr. Joseph A. Hill, professor and chairman of business administration at ECU.

The symposium, part of ECU's European Area Studies minor program, was arranged by a faculty committee, chaired by Dr. Ralph Birchard of the geography department.

The public is invited to attend any of the symposium events, all of which are scheduled for the Nursing Building Auditorium.

Trumpeter Hirt Has Operation

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Al Hirt, the New Orleans jazz trumpeter, has undergone abdominal surgery at the Medical College of Virginia.

A hospital spokesman said the 50-year-old Hirt's condition Wednesday was satisfactory.

Hirt entered the hospital last week for tests.

Says Rock Band Was Too Loud

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A rock music band went to small claims court seeking $100 of a contract they claim a night club failed to pay them after the group was forced to play in a storeroom because they were too loud.

Members of the Gibraltar Group said Wednesday they contracted with the nightclub last March to play six nights for $600. They said they played three nights in the club and one night in a storeroom with only a club official in attendance, then were fired with payment of $500.

Tony Cerkvenik, president of the Fifth National Banque, the night club, said he put the group in the store room because they were driving away customers.

Justice of the Peace John Murphy took the case under advisement.

Premier Offers His Apologies

TORONTO (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has apologized to a housewife for cursing in Parliament.

But Trudeau also said much of the grousing about his profanity came from "hypocrites who use the words themselves and act shocked when they hear them."

In a House of Commons exchanged Monday with opposition leader Robert Stanfield, Trudeau said "that was your goddamned question."

The prime minister made the apology to the housewife Wednesday on an open-line radio show.

If you happen to think all American whiskeys are pretty much the same, you're in for a pleasant surprise.

Because new Barton's QT is unlike any whiskey ever produced in this country.

It's similar in character to the other popular American whiskeys, but lighter and milder than any whiskey you've ever tasted.

Barton's QT is the American whiskey that's literally made to taste smoother. Its secret is being distilled at a higher proof, and then stored in seasoned oak casks.

What you get is the mellow, full-bodied flavor of American whiskey, with the new smoothness of the Quiet Taste.

And once you make the comparison, you'll see.

The Quiet Taste is as smooth as you can get.

The Worry Clinic Diabetic's Ego Needs A Boost

Heed the splendid remarks of this mother of a 10-year-old diabetic son! Marshall Foch, in World War 1 said: "Morale is more important than munitions." So bolster the ego of all youngsters who feel below par. Use the psychiatric strategy below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph.D., M.D.

Case T-516: Mrs. John R., has a diabetic son, aged 10. "Dr. Crane," she began, "recently you described a little boy, aged 5, with diabetes."

"It ran in our Hammond TIMES as Case R-525."

"Well, our son's diabetes was discovered when he was 6."

"And we, too, have often had to answer his many questions about 'Why me?'"

"Last summer we learned about the diabetic children's summer camp at Williams Bay, Wis."

"Our boy went there for the first time. And his letters to us were a joy to read."

"Instead of being homesick, as we had expected, he was bubbling over with information about his new friends who 'are just like me,' as he said."

"Prior to this time, he had not been acquainted with any other diabetic child."

"But there were 99 such youngsters at this wonderful camp."

"They have a medical staff on hand, so the children go horseback riding, take swimming lessons, go on nature hikes, play ball and also camp out a couple of nights."

"Meanwhile, the staff teach the children how to administer their own shots of insulin."

"And the youngsters go to church on Sunday as a group."

"We found that this camping trip made our son feel less alone with his problem."

"He now says he wants to become a Counselor at this camp when he is older."

"That is one summer job with the requirement that you must be a diabetic!"

"Children also must have reached their 9th birthday to attend."

"Dr. Crane, alert other parents and have them obtain full information from the Diabetes Association of Greater Chicago at 620 North Michigan, Chicago, Illinois, 60611."

"And thanks, too, for your earlier suggestion about holding an ice cube on the skin before inserting the needle for a shot. It certainly acts as a good local anesthetic to kill the pain of the needle!"

Opening lead: Nine of ♠
A substantial swing resulted in today's hand taken from a recent team-of-four contract when one declarer resorted to an unorthodox play in the trump suit to thwart an impending ruff.

The bidding was the same at both tables. When South's opening bid of one heart was kept open by North's one no trump response, the former wished to be in game inasmuch as he had 21 points in high cards and distribution, and responder had shown at least six. A jump to three hearts while highly invitational is not forcing.

A jump to three no trump would be considered acceptable, however South was reluctant to commit himself to that contract with a slightly unbalanced hand and he chose instead to proceed directly to four hearts.

At one table West opened the nine of spades and East played the ace as declarer followed suit with the ten. A continuation did not appear inviting and since South's jump to four hearts apparently marked him with most of the missing high card strength, defensive prospects were not bright. East reasoned that the best chance was to find West with a high trump honor and, in the hope of obtaining a ruff, he shifted to his singleton deuce of diamonds.

South overtook the ten of diamonds with North's queen in order to lead a trump. East played the ten which was covered in turn by the queen and ace. A diamond was returned by West and East ruffed with the jack of hearts to complete the defensive book. South won the club return and cashed the king of hearts, however West's nine stood up to score the setting trick.

At the other table the play progressed in the same manner until the trump was led from dummy and East played the ten. Declarer reasoned that if he covered and West had the ace of hearts, a diamond return would be ruffed. He accordingly decided to permit East to hold the trick and he played the three of hearts from his hand. West could not gain by over-taking so East was in with the ten of trumps, but there was no way to put West in to obtain a ruff.

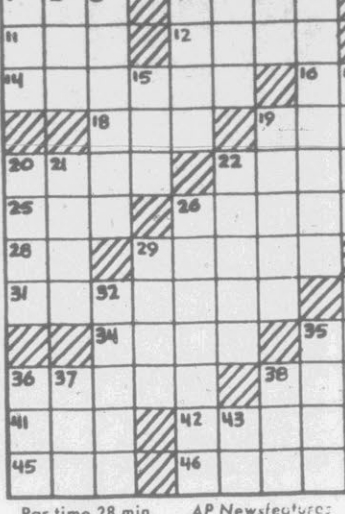

East shifted to a club and South played the king of clubs, followed by the king of hearts and East's jack fell under the ace. West returned a diamond, but East was out of trumps and South was in to draw the last heart with the queen. In all he lost two trump tricks and one spade to chalk up the game contract which had failed at the other table.

ailment are often afraid that they are the only ones of their age with such an affliction. So it bolsters their ego greatly to find that thousands of other boys and girls are in the same boat with them.

physicians, business leaders, teachers and even some clergymen!

And if those mature adults tend to be despondent over their fear they are "freaks," just imagine how much more dejected are grade schoolers and shy teen-agers.

An axiom of psychiatry states that the first step in regaining self-assurance, plus freedom from inner terrors, is just to face your bugaboo and dissect it with brutal frankness.

Many women formerly ended in a mental sanitarium just because of their mistaken notion that they were "not all there as a woman" because they had entered the menopause.

That bugaboo has vanished from millions of women the past generation, thanks to the hundreds of progressive newspapers that have printed my office cases exploding such erroneous sexual misconceptions.

Nixon, Chou Discussed Vietnam Peace

Editor's Note: The author of the following report is chief AP White House correspondent and accompanied President Nixon on his China trip.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon talked to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai while in Peking last week about Vietnam peace prospects and possible freedom for American prisoners of war, an administration source says.

The source chatted with reporters Wednesday only on condition that he not be named. But the Boston Globe, which did not attend the briefing, identified the official as Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's chief national-security adviser.

The official was asked if Nixon and other Americans had sought the good offices of the Chinese in helping resolve Vietnam problems, including the POW question.

He replied that the Americans stated their point of view. Asked if the Chinese said nothing on the topics, the source declined to discuss the subject further.

The source suggested there will be a public announcement within two or three weeks about Chinese-American agreement on a third country where they will establish continuing diplomatic contact far short of formal state relations.

The third country, he emphasized will not be Poland, where American and Chinese representatives have met periodically for a number of years. There has been speculation that Canada would be the prime choice.

Actually, the official said, there is little of overwhelming significance that is likely to be accomplished immediately.

However, he emphasized, Americans expect the third-country contact point to be very active, particularly as an avenue for carrying out people-to-people exchanges in science, technology, culture, sports, and journalism which both Nixon and Chou promised to facilitate in their Sunday communique issued in Shanghai.

The third-country channel also is expected to be used to promote trade between the two nations.

The communique said the United States and China will keep in close touch through various channels. These will include occasionally sending senior U.S. representatives to Peking "for concrete consultations to further the normalization of relations between the two countries."

This was described by the official as an option for the conduct of serious business. He suggested that from time to time there may be points when further progress in breaking down 22-year-old barriers can only be accomplished by direct talks with Chou and other Peking officials.

The official, reflecting administration worry that a significant segment of the voting public might be less than enthusiastic about the Nixon-Chou Shanghai declaration, said that if Sino-American relations should take a turn for the worse—perhaps through death in the aging top leadership ranks in Peking—Nixon would have given up nothing.

The administration is particularly sensitive to domestic reaction relating to the future of Taiwan.

The official noted that in the communique on the current stronghold of the National Chinese, the mainlanders did not include their traditional denunciation of the U.S. treaty commitment to Taiwan.

In view of that, he said, Nixon and his associates, felt no need to reaffirm the longstanding commitment in the joint statement.

He pictured the Americans as being eager to state their views in positive rather than negative ways, knowing the communique would be published widely throughout the mainland, and anxious to avoid buttressing the Communist government's cold-war picture of the United States as a belligerent capitalist power.

The informant said Chou and his associates were taking domestic political risks of their own by abruptly welcoming Nixon. He said that in the past they had pictured the President as the devil incarnate but, were prepared to join with him in a declaration of peaceful coexistence.

He said the turnaround produced a significant emotional upheaval in China.

The Chinese, the source said, were particularly anxious for the coexistence statement, ranking it second only to the divergent American and Chinese declarations of attitudes toward Taiwan.

The coexistence statement apes word for word a 1955 China-backed declaration of unaligned nations, a document the United States had rejected at the time.

The source said, in so many words, that a lot of things have changed since 1955 and that Nixon and his colleagues saw no reason to balk at the so-called five principles of coexistence inasmuch that they reflect Washington's views and hopes.

Fresh, Exuberant Show By Young Dance Troupe

LAST MINUTE RUN THROUGH ... in work costume before changing for performance is made by Gwen Spear, Charles Devlin and Nancy Thusen. The three danced in "Pas de Trois-Glinka", one of several dances performed at West Craven High School near Vancboro on Wednesday.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

One of the rewards of seeing a group of very young dancers perform is the pleasure of seeing talent in its freshest stage.

This is true of the troupe of dancers from the North Carolina Dance Theater, an affiliate of the North Carolina School of the Arts (NCSA) in Winston-Salem. All except a couple of the 13 dancers are recent graduates of NCSA who have joined the North Carolina Dance Theater, formed last year.

The troupe is on its first week of this year's scheduled four one week series of public school tours in Eastern North Carolina.

These boys and girls, in their late teens and early 20's, have the polish of professional dancers and are yet young enough to have retained the child-like exuberance that gives their performances a special quality that more than compensates for a few weak points in technique.

On Wednesday afternoon, the dancers presented an hour plus program at West Craven High School near Vancboro. (Today they will dance in Snow Hill, and tomorrow in Williamston). For the school tours, the programs consist of representative dances from complete ballets.

"This bits and pieces method," explained Duncan Noble, a dance instructor at NCSA shepherding the traveling group, "permits us to show students a greater variety of dances in a limited period of time."

Noble prefaced each dance with a brief explanation about the choreographer, the composer, basic movements involved and a concise outline of the story thread.

In Pas de Trois - Glinka, Greenville's Gwen Spear, Raleigh's Charles Devlin and Nancy Thusen of Arlington, Virginia made the most of the opportunity afforded them in the one classic dance on the program. Gwen, a dancer with beautiful long legs and a marvelous profile, seems well suited for dances such as Pas de Trois - Glinka with its graceful movements embodying some particularly lovely arabesques. Devlin is a dancer of exceptional vigor tempered with a finely balanced control. In this and other dances, it is evident that Nancy Thusen is a dancer who possesses that rare element of enchantment that goes beyond perfection of technique. She has the gift of projecting a wide range of moods in succession with complete naturalness.

Two solo dances were featured on the West Craven program. Edward De Sota, in the only dance without music, captivated the high school audience in Osceola, one of a vignette of ten dances choreographed by Jose Limon honoring famous Indian chiefs. Osceola, incorporating traditional Indian rhythms and ritual dance steps, was admirably suited to the dark haired De Sota, the huskiest dancer in the troupe. Susan Moore performed the colorful bolero solo that won for the lovely willowy dancer the current Miss Winston-Salem title.

The comic element in the "Sailor's Dance" from the ballet Miles Standish provided delightful diversion and demonstrated to the student audience the many possible variations, including exaggeration, of the plie, or bending of the knees movement, used extensively in ballet.

"Sailor's Dance," in which the peculiar gait of men long at sea is mimicked, also provided moments of outstanding acrobatic dancing by the male trio.

Of the dances on yesterday's program, Ten and Two was the most satisfying. (Because of stage limitation, it was necessary to use only seven and two dancers). This beautifully choreographed dance, in which moods of tenderness and sadness are created in shifting formal patterns, has a very simple story. Two lovers meet, become separated, and search for each other. Susan Moore and Michael Saunders turned in first-rate performances as the two lovers. They received splendid assistance from the seven supporting dancers.

"In-Games," a stylized variation of jazz movements adapted to ballet, opened the West Craven High School program of dance.

This touring program of dance, which for many school children in eastern North Carolina is their first acquaintance with live ballet, is a venture worthy of the warmest praise.

Underwritten by the State Department of Public Instruction, the dance troupe of the newly created North Carolina Dance Theater is one of several exceptional programs being carried out in North Carolina to bring the arts to the people, and especially to young people.

The 13 North Carolina Dance Theater members on tour are: Istvan Ament, Judy Crump, Edward De Soto, Charles Devlin, Sharon Filone, Kathleen Fitzgerald, Lynn Keeton, Rael Land, Linda Miller, Susan Moore, Michael Saunders, Gwen Spear and Nancy Thusen.

The dancers are traveling with a minimum crew "to cut expenses as much as possible," Miss Janet Spencer, managing director explained. In addition to Miss Spencer and Noble, others accompanying the dancers are Wendell Putney, stage manager; Annie Belle Bailey, costumes; and stage crew members Larry Ward and Bob Gambrill.

Stage props, lighting and costume are kept to a minimum. "Students at the schools we're visiting have really been a big help," Noble said. "They're very interested in what we're doing and show their appreciation by giving us their help."

"It's not an easy life for the troupe," Miss Spencer remarked. "These kids have to be up and on the road at 6:30 in the morning. But they love it, and we all feel that we're doing is really worthwhile."

And the school kids, in their enthusiastic response, clearly show they feel it's a worthwhile program.

Some 3rd Class Postage Rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rates on some third-class mail will be increased March 12, the major change being, a five-cent minimum per piece charge of advertising circulars, the Postal Service has announced.

The increases do not apply to bulk postage rates for groups authorized to mail at reduced rates such as nonprofit organizations, the Postal Service said Wednesday.

Six Americans Killed In Combat

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that six Americans were killed in combat in Indochina last week, the highest toll in more than two months.

A check of daily battlefield communiques disclosed two more American combat dead during the week, but due to delays in the reporting system they probably will be carried on the weekly casualty summary next week.

The toll of six was two more than the average of four a week for this year. It was the highest weekly toll since Dec. 12-18 when seven Americans were reported killed in action.

The summary reported 56 U.S. troops wounded in action last week, nearly three times that of the previous week and the most since Dec. 5-11 when 56 also were wounded.

Nine U.S. servicemen died of nonhostile causes last week, the command said. This was the highest number in six weeks.

The South Vietnamese command said 360 of its troops were killed and 729 wounded, the highest tolls in three weeks. The command claimed 1,026 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed, nearly double the 637 enemy dead claimed the week before.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American—45,656 killed in action, 302,707 wounded, 10,086 dead from nonhostile causes.

South Vietnamese—140,227 killed in action, 304,407 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—797,489 killed.

Collected $400 For Heart Fund

A total of $400 was collected in the Pactolus community during a Heart Fund campaign this year.

Mrs. Ann Vernelson and Mrs. Sandra Gray, in charge of soliciting funds for Pactolus, said an appeal for donations was made through the Pactolus Elementary School and $325 of the total was raised there.

Last year a total of $295.77 was collected in the community.

The fifth grade students collected the largest amount of the money at the school and were given a party for their work.

Family History Research Class

Pitt Technical Institute will have an organizational meeting for a course in Family History Research Tuesday in room 22 at 7 p.m.

The course will cover: history of genealogy, importance of genealogy; sources of information; pitfalls to avoid; and charts and forms. The course will consist of lecture and laboratory time. It will be an activity course.

Cost of the course will be $3.30. For further information, interested persons may call Pitt Technical Institute.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

By DUANE WILLIAMS

Conley's aviation science class returned from their trip to Washington, D. C., Sunday. The class visited the Washington National Airport and all of the other sites of interest.

D.H. Conley's newspaper, The SHIELD, circulated March 2. I'm sure there's something in this edition for everyone.

Attention car owners! Conley's Ecology Club is now selling Viking car plates. The plates are of blue background with a gold Viking head emblem and the words D. H. Conley Vikings. The plates sell for $2.00 each. The money will be used to finance a trip for the Ecology Club to the mountains this spring.

Caswell Center in Kinston will be the destination of the psychology classes and their instructor, Jane Davis. The class is presently studying mental retardation and on their trip, they will observe, among other things, the supervision of the mentally retarded.

Conley's Library Club had a going away party for student teacher Carolyn Brann who completed her work here. The club met briefly during homeroom Tuesday to say their goodbyes.

Voting

Conley faculty and students voted this week to see whether a change would be made in the school schedule. The vote was to decide whether or not to shorten the Easter holidays from three days to two days so seniors will graduate June 2 instead of June 5. No decision can be made until results have been gathered from all other county high schools.

Conley's wrestling team has been great all year and they proved this in the state finals held Thursday in Winston-Salem. The wrestlers of Conley were incredible for a first-year team.

In the state tournament Melvin Tyson placed third, Dyke Hatch fifth, Billy Justice and Alton Nicholson seventh, Jimmy Swinson eight and Stacy Evans ninth. Congratulations to all of the Conley wrestlers for a great year!
