Lease Agreement OK'd On Hospital Parking Lot

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday gave their approval to a lease agreement under which Pitt Medical Associates will gain the use of a 75-foot strip of hospital property as a parking area for persons visiting the Medical Pavilion on West Fifth St.

The strip of land affected by the lease runs from Fifth to Sixth Streets and is adjacent to the Medical Pavilion property.

Under the agreement, the medical group will pay $2,000 per year for three years for the approximately ½-acre plot with an option of seven more years.

The board, in its afternoon session approved a resolution supporting an attempt by the Town of Farmville to secure a $443,884 grant from the Economic Development Administration for water and sewer work. The projcet includes the installation of two deep wells and a 500,000 gallon water tank.

Commissioner Bruce Strickland told board members that tentative approval has been secured from health officials for a sanitary landfill site between Ayden and Grifton. He indicated that as soon as formal approval of the site is received and when construction of an access road to the site is complete, the landfill will be placed into use.

Strickland noted too that sites are currently being sought in the Farmville area and north of the Tar River.

Approval of a resolution supporting a move by Gates County to be included in State Planning Region Q was given by the board.

Gates County, currently in planning region R., has asked for the board's support in their request to become members of the Region Q area which now includes Pitt, Martin, Beaufort, Bertie and Hertford Counties.

Gates officials said in their opinion they can be better served by Region Q than by Region R. affiliation.

The region change will ultimately have to be approved by the North Carolina Department of Administration.

Commissioners were told by the County Manager that investments of county money as of March 6, totaled $2,202,539.17.

County funds, as a matter of policy, are invested in certificates of deposit with banks in the county until they are needed to meet expenses. In this way, the county benefits in that funds on hand are earning interest that helps meet county financial needs.

Commissioners adjourned yesterdays session until 5 p.m. Wednesday at which time they will meet with representatives of Associated Surveys, the group currently engaged in the county's property revaluation program. The board, at that time, will study a proposed schedule of property values with Associated Surveys representatives.

Final Contract Drawings For Newtown Are Ready

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Final contract drawings and specifications for the 78-unit Newtown housing project here have been completed and are ready for review by the office of Housing and Urban Development in Greensboro.

Architect Cameron Dudley of Dudley & Shoe told Housing Authority commissioners Monday night that the contract documents will be prepared for distribution by Wednesday to all concerned parties including HUD and various city commissions.

Dudley reminded commissioners that plans submitted earlier to HUD were final as far as project designs were concerned but were not the detailed contract documents required by HUD. Authorization was received from HUD on the schematic drawings pertaining to proposed developments in Newtown, he said.

Commissioners questioned whether further authorization on Newtown drawings is needed now since HUD approval was given earlier but Dudley reported that it is standard procedure for the Greensboro office to have final review on contract documents.

The architect added that he still did not have mandatory wage scales from the government but he noted that he anticipates no problems with this matter. The scale controls the minimum wages that are paid by a contractor to employees and are required by HUD, he said.

Dudley said that the contract drawings include site improvements, sanitary sewer specifications, parking provisions and all other details of the housing project. Title to the land in Newtown has not been received yet, it was pointed out, but the matter is considered a formality.

Target date for the initial advertising for bids in Newtown is still set for April 1, Dudley told commissioners.

In other business on a brief agenda, the occupancy report submitted by Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, director of tenant affairs, revealed that 64 of the 65 available units in N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) were rented in February with the vacancy due to the death of a tenant late in the month. Residents of the area paid an average of $37.54 in rent, she reported.

All 160 units in N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park) were occupied during the month, Mrs. Streeter reported, and residents paid an average of $42.92 in rent.

The 188 units in N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) were also occupied, she said, and rent there averaged $45.01 for February. The death of a tenant living in N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood) left 39 units occupied and residents paid an average of $41.78 in rent.

Mrs. Streeter said that the housing staff spent much of the month contacting each family and explaining rent collection policies.

Commissioners approved a resolution authorizing a legal services contract for the N.C. 22-6 Newtown Project. Assistant director J. C. Lamm explained that such a contract is needed for each project and includes provisions for necessary title work and transfer fees.

Executive director Col. A E Dubber reported that three staff members are attending a social services seminar through today in Greensboro. Commissioners authorized the attendance of Authority maintenance personnel at an upcoming school in Kinston. Dubber noted that the only cost of the session would be for mileage from Greenville to Kinston.

New Hampshire's Balloting Begins

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire voters cast the first primary ballots of 1972 today in an important test of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's standing as front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Muskie appealed for a big vote as a near-native from neighboring Maine in a campaign that ended with a barrage of charges between himself and Sen. George S. McGovern over which had been first to disclose the source of campaign funds.

"If I can't get help from my friends close to home, I don't know where to expect it," Muskie told 200 supporters as he wound up his campaign Monday night in the north country paper mill town of Berlin, just 40 miles from his Rumford, Maine, birthplace.

Two hours later, even closer to the Canadian border in the hamlet of Dixville Notch, voters gathered at midnight to cast the day's first votes. All 11 Republicans voted for President Nixon, while Muskie took five of six Democratic votes. McGovern had the other.

Polling hours elsewhere varied, with some opening as early as 6 a.m. EST and some closing as late as 8 p.m. With paper ballots in widespread use and a long list of delegate candidates, the vote count threatened to be slow.

Muskie was favored to defeat McGovern and three other on-the-ballot foes and one write-in contender in the Democratic preference vote. But the Maine senator's percentage was considered crucial for judging his performance.

Aides were hoping for at least 50 per cent. Muskie said "I don't make predictions" and refused to set a goal.

McGovern, seeking at least 25 per cent of the total, said at a brush factory here Monday, his campaign has gained momentum but "whether it will be strong enough to win, I can't tell."

The other Democrats on the ballot are Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana, Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty and Edward Coll, a 32-year-old social worker from Hartford, Conn. A well-financed write-in drive was conducted for Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas.

The Democratic contests overshadowed the Republican race in which Nixon was expected to easily outdistance liberal Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California and conservative Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio.

Three In Family Killed

PITTSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Three members of a Greenville, N.C., family were killed Monday and two other persons were hurt in a head-on collision between a car and a pickup truck near Pittsboro.

State Trooper B.L. Bailey identified the victims as James A. Keeter, 42, and Cynthia Jill Keeter, 8, both of Rt. 3, Greenville, and Winnie Chapman, 2, of Charlotte.

The Chapman girl was Mrs. Keeter's granddaughter.

Mrs. Keeter, 40, the driver of the car, was hospitalized in Chapel Hill in critical condition.

Also hospitalized in Chapel Hill was the truck driver, Jesse David Jackson, 17, of Apex. His condition was satisfactory.

Trooper Bailey said the wreck occurred on U. S. 64 4½ miles east of Pittsboro about 2:30 p.m. "Apparently, the truck ran off the right shoulder of the road and the driver lost control. The truck skidded into the left lane and hit the Keeter car head-on," Bailey said.

Bailey's investigation was continuing today.

Expect States To Repay Sums

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Already strapped by rising education costs, states will be told this spring to repay the federal government up to $30 million in allegedly misspent funds intended for poor children.

The nationwide crackdown promised six months ago by the U.S. Office of Education has been stalled pending development of a formal enforcement policy.

"We just about have that policy down to the point where we're going to visit Commissioner (Sidney P.) Marland about it," Deputy Commissioner Duane J. Mattheis said in an interview. "Once implementation of the policy takes place, there are going to be a fair number of letters coming out very quickly."

Last September six states and the District of Columbia were told to write checks totaling $5.6 million, the amount they allegedly misspent under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Although Marland said seven more states would hear from him within a month, there has been no action except for a Jan. 26 letter to Minnesota seeking repayment of $311,107.

"The reason we didn't get more through was because so much flak developed in all kinds of quarters and our own procedures bogged down," said Mattheis.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has completed Title I audits for about 40 states, Mattheis said, and it is very unlikely any state will escape repayment demands.

"The ones we have seen thus far have not remotely approached anything similar to fraud or cheating or anything like that," he said. "In every instance they spent for legitimate facilities, equipment, or education programs but it was just not targeted to the guidelines."

Between $1 billion and $1.5 billion a year has been spread among 16,000 of the nation's 18,000 school districts since the law was passed to help poor children catch up on reading and mathematics, and to provide them with hot lunches, clothing, and medical and dental care when necessary.

Wisconsin is the only state so far to repay the full amount

Kleindienst, Anderson To Be Heard

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst returns to the witness chair at a Senate committee hearing today for a possible confrontation with his accuser.

Kleindienst and newspaper columnist Jack Anderson were scheduled to testify at a Judiciary Committee hearing on why the Justice Department dropped an antitrust suit against International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

Anderson has written that the suit was dropped after ITT pledged to contribute $400,000 to defray expenses of the Republican National Convention. He has accused Kleindienst of playing an important role in the decision to drop the suit.

Others scheduled to testify today were former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, U.S. Dist. Court Judge Richard McLaren who was in charge of the department's antitrust division before his appointment to the bench, and Felix Rohatyn, an ITT director.

So far, the mystery woman of the whole affair, ITT's Washington lobbyist Dita D. Beard, has maintained silence.

Her physician, Dr. Victor L. Liszka of Arlington, Va., told the committee Monday that Mrs. Beard acts irrationally from time to time because of circulatory ailments complicated by excessive drinking and tranquilizers.

But her physician in Denver, where she remains hospitalized, disagreed.

"I don't believe Mrs. Beard has an emotional problem other than being somewhat apprehensive about this case," Dr. Lewis Radetsky, an osteopath specializing in heart ailments, told The Associated Press. He has been treating Mrs. Beard at the Rocky Mountain Osteopathic Hospital.

Lanier Joins Elections Bd.

Greenville attorney James C. Lanier Jr. took the oath of office yesterday as a member of the Pitt County Board of Elections, replacing Henry T. Smith of Farmville as the lone Republcian member on the county board.

JAMES C. LANIER

Democratic members of the board, including chairman J. B. Spillman Jr. and secretary Burney W. Baker also took the oath and began new two-year terms.

Lanier was named by the North Carolina Board of Elections to replace Smith who has been a member of the county elections board for more than 20 years.

Spillman and Baker were appointed to the board for the first time in 1970.

A Greenville native, Lanier attended Greenville City schools and the University of North Carolina and the UNC Law School.

He began the practice of law in 1952 and served from 1954 to 1958 at Pitt County Recorders Court solicitor.

He is a member of the Greenville Golf and Country Club and the local Elks Lodge and is a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

Winterville Election Day Set For May 1

WINTERVILLE — One seat on the Winterville Town Board is scheduled to be filed in the May 1 municipal election here.

Aldermen here Monday night approved a resolution setting Monday, May 1, as election day. Polls will be opened at the municipal building from 6:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m.

The seat held by incumbent E. C. Hines will be open. Hines has served four three-year terms on the Board of Aldermen. He has not filed for re-election.

The books, for the purpose of registering all qualified electors who are not now registered, will be open April 1, 8, and 15, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the lobby of the municipal building.

Challenge day has been set for Saturday, April 22, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Rommie Mallison will be the registrar and judges for the election are J. H. Mobley and Pearl Gardner.

The filing fee of $10 must be paid to the town office on or before noon on April 8.

In other business, the board accepted the final plats for Robinson Heights No. 2 and Shamrock Subdivisions. The members stated the two subdivisons are in accordance with the town's subdivision regulations and that both have been approved by the Winterville Planning and Zoning Board.

The board accepted a petition presented by J. H. Weathington concerning property grading, excavation and curb and gutter on some streets in the town. The streets included: Pitt Street from Main to North Streets; Ange Street from Main to North; North Street from Pitt to a point between Ange and East Streets; Trailer Park Circle.

The town received a grant totaling $4,300 from the Emergency Employment Act to be used toward hiring a waste water treatment plant operator.

The position has not been filed and the town is still accepting applications for the job.

Nixon's Named Entered In N.C. May Primary

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The head of the North Carolina Nixon Committee says he is confident President Nixon will be endorsed by Tar Heel Republicans in the May primary and will carry the state in the general election.

Charles R. Jonas Jr. made the statement Monday after President Nixon's name was added to the ballot in the state's presidential primary.

Two Democratic presidential hopefuls—Alabama Gov. George Wallace and New York Rep. Shirley Chisholm—also filed Monday with the state Board of Elections.

Jonas predicted that in the general election Nixon will receive "the largest plurality of recent political history in North Carolina."

He read a telegram from the President acknowledging the receipt of petitions signed by 117,000 North Carolinians asking that the President's name be placed on the ballot in North Carolina.

"I am greatly encouraged by this expression of so much early support in North Carolina," Nixon wired Jonas. "I have decided to enter the North Carolina primary, and these petitions helped to influence my decision."

Jonas said he plans to "mount a fullscale effort in the President's behalf" in North Carolina.

He added he does not expect Nixon to visit the state during the primary campaign but looks for him to come probably twice during the general election campaign.

Peace Probes Said Held By Jordanians And Isreal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

King Hussein and other Jordanian officials have held five direct peace meetings with Israeli officials since 1969, the Israeli newspaper Haaretz reported today. It said some of the meetings were arranged by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The independent newspaper gave times and places of the meetings and named American intelligence agents and diplomats involved.

Similar reports in the past have been denied by both Jordan and Israel, and Israeli Premier Golda Meir's office immediately denied this one with a terse "nothing to it."

Haaretz said information on the secret meetings was being leaked by newspapers in Cairo, and an Israeli official said the reports were apparently instigated by Egypt "as a continued attempt to damage Hussein's image" in the Arab world.

Haaretz did not make clear how much of its information came from the Egyptian reports.

It said the king agreed to allow 27 Israeli paramilitary settlements on Arab land west of the Jordan River—several already are installed—and to let Israeli tourists enter Jordan. Jordan would also cancel its military pacts in the Arab world and in return would get symbolic control of East Jerusalem, which Israel took from Jordan in the 1967 war.

The report said the first meeting was in London in September 1969, between the Israeli and Jordanian ambassadors. Then Hussein himself met Deputy Premier Yigal Allon in the desert near Aqaba, Jordan's port.

In November 1970, Hussein met Defense Minister Moshe Dayan in the Americana Hotel in New York, the report continued. Later Hussein met Foreign Minister Abba Eban in a London hotel, and last month Hussein's former defense minister, Anwar Nuseibeh, met Mrs. Meir in Jerusalem.

The last meeting was announced by Mrs. Meir's office at the time but it was termed a courtesy call by Nuseibeh, who lives in Jerusalem.

Gallup Says Poll Record Poor And Deserve Little Attention

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

The record of public opinion polls in primary elections is so bad that little attention should be paid to them, says George Gallup, the pollster.

"The polls taken in primary elections are little better than pilot studies—mere straws in the wind—and no one should regard them as anything else," Gallup wrote in a new book, "The Sophisticated Poll Watcher's Guide."

Primary elections often draw small turnouts. Combined with the ability of political parties to turn out the faithful, said Gallup, this makes primaries very difficult to predict.

Last-minute statements tend to be more influential in primaries because the candidates are usually less well known, he added, and this also makes polling less reliable.

Gallup, one of the first proponents of selective surveying to measure public opinion, established the American Institute of Public Opinion in 1935. The weekly polls issued by the institute over the years have become known as the Gallup Poll.

Gallup claims that most polls are accurate during general elections when candidates and issues are well known.

However, he listed some polls and polling methods which he says should make the poll watcher skeptical.

Polls by telephone are relatively cheap and fast, but not all that accurate, he said. They tend to discriminate against the poor who have no telephones and people who are less likely to be home to answer them, Gallup said.

"Telephone surveys have a built-in bias toward middle and upper income groups, and old persons—those who are more inclined to favor the Republican Party and its candidates," he said.

Polls conducted by mail can produce the same misleading results, said Gallup. "Those who send back their marked ballots tend to be older, better educated, with higher incomes and their views more conservative than the views of those who do not respond."

Polling has come a long way, said Gallup, since every national poll incorrectly predicted that Thomas E. Dewey would defeat Harry Truman for the presidency in 1948.

The problem in 1948, he said, was that polling stopped 10 to 14 days before the election and failed to record a last-minute shift of "undecided" voters to Truman. Gallup now polls on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday before a national election and makes public its last report on Monday, the day before the election.

Later polling, zeroing in on people who will actually vote and better handling of "undecided" voters have made polling more accurate, said Gallup, perhaps as accurate as it is going to get.

Expect More Farmers Meet ASCS Deadline

With the March 10 deadline nearing for sign-up in the 1972 feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs, some 6 hundred to 8 hundred more farmers are expected in the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) Office for enrollment during the final week.

Through March 2, approximately 1200 producers in Pitt County had signed up for participation in one or more of the set-aside programs offered in 1972, according to Stacy J. Evans, Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"We've been recording about 65 sign-ups per day, but we expect that average to climb sharply during the last week of sign-up," he said. "Total participation in Pitt County is expected to number about 1900 farmers."

"Farmers have been waiting to sign up early each day," he reported, "starting at 8:00 a.m. when the local ASCS office opens.

The office closes at 5:00 p.m., and Evans said that any producer who is in the office before closing time will be enrolled or registered for enrollment that day.

In the 1972 voluntary farm programs, participants agree to set aside a portion of their farm's base or allotment of whatever crop or crops they sign up for. Options are offered for additional voluntary set-aside in the wheat and feed grain (corn, grain sorghum, barley) programs, in order to aid farmers in bringing production into better adjustment with market demand. No option for more set-aside for upland cotton is offered, since cotton is in short supply.

In return for setting aside a portion of their productive land, producers earn set-aside payments based on their farms' established yields for the program crops. Additionally, program crops on participating farms are eligible for support loans.

Producers were reminded by ASC County Executive Director Evans that they may request set-aside inspection and measurement service at the same time they sign up for the farm programs. This service, which is provided at cost, offers a quality - and - quantity guarantee on set-aside acres.

MIGHT GET FREEDOM — Juan Corona, the farm labor contractor accused of killing 25 men and burying their bodies in orchards north of Yuba City, Calif., is escorted back ot his cell following a hearing Monday. At the hearing, Judge Richard Patton said the accused man "would absolutely be entitled to release on bail" once the California Supreme Court ruling outlawing the death penalty becomes final on March 18. Promoted In Nat'l Guard

The promotion of two area Guardsmen to the rank of captain in the North Carolina Army National Guard has been announced by Gov. Robert Scott.

Bobby G. Webb, who is currently serving as commanding officer of the 514th Military Police Co. here, and Cranford A. Heath of Greenville, presently assigned to 690th Maintenance Battalion in Kinston, received the advancements.

Webb, a 1960 graduate of South Edgecombe High School in Tarboro, is a graduate of the N. C. Military Academy Officer Candidate School at Ft. Bragg and attended the Military Police School at Ft. Gordon, Ga. in 1968 and 1971.

He joined the Guard in January of 1961 with the 30th Infantry Division in Tarboro and was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1965.

Heath is a 1959 graduate of Contentnea High School in Kinston. He attended the N. C. Military Academy OCS in 1963; the Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga. in 1965; the Ordnance School at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. in 1968; and the Chemical, Biological and Radiological Course at Ft. Bragg in 1969.

Heath first joined the Guard in 1958 with the 295th Field Artillery Battalion in Kinston. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1963 and has served continuously with the Guard since that time.

Multiple Warheads Being Added To Soviet Land-Base Missiles

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is adding multiple warheads to its land-based missiles and Defense Department officials estimate the Russians will have 85 to 100 in operation by midyear.

Development of these weapons has been under way for several years and the Pentagon confirmed last month that they are being deployed. However, numbers were not disclosed until Monday after Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird referred to their deployment in a speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Defense officials said the new triple warheads discussed by Laird are being fitted on the Soviet SS11, a missile similar to the U.S. Minuteman ICBM which carries a nuclear warhead equal to one million tons of TNT.

They say there is also some evidence—not yet confirmed—that the multiple warheads are being mounted on the Soviet's giant SS9 missiles which, with their 25-megaton warhead, threaten destruction of Minuteman missiles and their underground silos.

Laird acknowledged the Russian warheads are not as sophisticated as the separately aimed multiple warheads already on large numbers of U.S. missiles. These are called MIRVs or multiple independently targetable re-entry vehicles.

Aides later said that the re-entry system referred to by Laird has been tested on Russian SS9 missiles. U.S. officials say the Soviets have been unable to achieve the required accuracy with this system to assure destruction of U.S. ICBM sites.

But Laird, plugging hard for passage of his new $76.5-billion defense budget, cautioned that the two-year lead he said the United States holds in ICBM warhead technology "could be rapidly closed if we do not maintain a strong research-and-development program."

By the Pentagon's latest count, the Russians have more missiles than the United States, but because of MIRVs, the United States holds a 2-1 edge in the number of deliverable nuclear warheads.

$34,000 Goes To Physics Dept.

The East Carolina University Department of Physics has received $34,000 from the U. S. Office of Education to support the training of physics instructors for two-year colleges.

Dr. J. William Byrd, chairman of physics at ECU and project director said the funds will provide five graduate fellowships for students who will begin studies at ECU in the fall of 1972.

The program will be completed in 15 months, and the students will receive the Master of Physics degree.

At present, ECU has five students enrolled in a similar program, which is supported by a grant received last year from the Office of Education.

Grad Notified Of Acceptance

CHAPEL HILL — Jerry Price, a graduate of Behtel High School, has been notified of his acceptance into the 1972-73 freshman class of the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry here.

The son of M.B. Price, Price attended Atlantic Christian College one year before transferring to the University of North Carolina where he entered the School of Pharmacy.

While at UNC-CH Price has done research on the causes and effects of alcoholism.

Presently he is serving as president of his pharmacy class and spends time traveling around the state discussing drug abuse with high school students.

He was named to the dean's list at the university for his academic grades last semester.

Permit Frazier To Retain His Auto License

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Reginald Lee Frazier of New Bern, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, can keep his auto license tag which had been ordered picked up by the state Motor Vehicles Department.

This was decided by a hearing officer for the department Monday aftec Frazier told him he has been and still is fully covered by insurance on a 1971 Jaguar automobile. Frazier said he traded a 1969 Lincoln for the Jaguar in Maryland and simply transferred the license plate to the 1971 car.

Asst. Motor Vehicles Commissioner Bill Penny said last week the department's records showed no insurance on the Jaguar. On this basis, the highway patrol had been instructed to pick up the tag.

Family Practitioner Explains New Specialty

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Constance Holt is tall, pretty, with a heart-shaped face that dimples easily and a quick laugh to match. She's black, the mother of three, and one of a new breed of medical doctors, a family practitioner.

"Family practice is a new specialty in medicine in which the physician who has completed his training is equipped to take care of the needs of a family in a comprehensive and on-going way," Dr. Holt explains. "As a family practitioner I address myself not just to the medical problem, but to other problems from nutrition to preventative care to making referals."

Dr. Holt says the specialty is an update of the general practitioner, who, she elaborates, could be anyone from a doctor just out of medical school to a specialist who was forced into general practice by the needs of a community. The difference is that family practitioners must complete a three-year residency, similar to residencies for other specialties, and must pass a lot of boards to be accredited in the field.

"That way you have equal standing with other specialties," she points out. "But we're not here to squeeze the other specialists out—just to complete the care, and in a sense, to specialize in general medicine. We feel most complaints can be handled by a family practitioner who is well-trained."

The specialist has only been in existence for three years, but Dr. Holt says it resulted from a crying need. "People have been screaming for it," she says. "They're tired of this business of calling a doctor and having him say, 'we're not taking any new patients.' Or having to go to a special doctor for every different thing."

As an example of the work family practitioners can do, Dr. Holt cited the case of a child with a frequent upper respiratory complaint. "Immediately a family practitioner should be able to ask, 'what's going on at home? Is he sleeping in a drafty room? Does he have enough clothes to wear? Has he been neglected by his mother? Does the mother have a problem with her husband?' And if you know the family situation you should be able to figure out quickly if the complaint is purely medical or if there are other problems to be dealt with."

Dr. Holt came to medicine a little later in life than most doctors. She grew up in New York City, says that even in high school she thought of medicine and even took a pre-med course at Hampton Institute, but that she got "side tracked" in marriage. She then worked as a science teacher and analytic chemist.

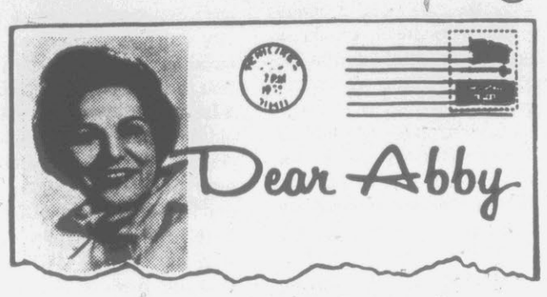
When her marriage failed, however, Dr. Holt decided to go to medical school. "It was a trauma, since I had been out of school for eight years," she recalls, "but I was very depressed and it was good to be working."

When she graduated from Howard University, she did her internship in Santa Barbara, Calif., married a doctor and moved to Rochester, N.Y. where she worked in a clinic. "It was in the heart of the ghetto," she says, "and it was my first opportunity to see comprehensive medical care. The clinic was designed so a team of physicians, neighborhood worker, public health nurse and dentist all followed the family very closely."

After she and her husband moved to Washington, D.C. Dr. Holt was able to work in a similar clinic, and it was while she was there that she began her residency in family practice at Freedman's hospital. Dr. Holt teaches in that program now, but she says she would like to go into private practice when her three children are older.

Dr. Holt says she was rarely discriminated against as a woman, though she laughs and says she was sometimes mistaken for the cleaning lady at the hospital in Santa Barbara. She adds, however, that she was turned down at one medical school because of her age.

Animal Lover Is Understanding When Entertaining



By Abigail Van Buren

[c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: The letter about those people in Hartford who allowed their big slobbering dog to dominate an otherwise elegant dinner party, struck a familiar note.

I happen to be a dog lover, too, and own two oversized Irish Setters. My dogs are welcome to roam around inside my home most of the time. This I consider my business.

Fortunately I have enough sense to realize that not everyone loves dogs. Indeed I am aware that some people don't care for dogs at all. And some are even terrified of them, so when I entertain guests, my dogs are kept out of sight.

No one enjoys being met at his car by a barking, excited animal—not to mention sharing his dinner with it.

Animals require responsibility, and their presence in many instances requires judgment, which unfortunately, is too rarely used.

And by the way, this goes for children, too!

DOG LOVER WITH HUMAN FRIENDS

DEAR LOVER: I'll bet you have more human friends than most dog lovers.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 23 years and have five children. The youngest is 13.

He has had other women over the years but nothing he couldn't stop. I thought that he was thru running around when I found out he had a full-time girl friend. He wanted a separation and moved out.

I was so miserable and lonely, I called him up and told him if he would come home he could write his own ticket.

He came home, has been here for two weeks, and I am more miserable than ever because he visits his girl friend every other day.

Abby, I can't live up to my agreement. I love my husband and don't want to lose him. He says if he moves out again it will be for good.

I have tried to make our sex life extra good and his home life extra pleasant since he's been back, but I get so depressed when he goes out. What should I do?

ALONE AGAIN

DEAR ALONE: That "ticket" you let him write entitles him to a free out-of-this-world trip, which could last a lifetime. Only you can decide if you are more miserable with this setup than you were without him, and act accordingly. In the meanwhile he's having his cake and eating it, too. And he'll be lucky if all that cake doesn't kill him.

DEAR ABBY: I recently read an interesting letter in your column about shoplifting.

One woman said she would not report a shoplifter if she saw one because unless she could provide evidence to support her accusation, she could be sued for slander. Abby, this is true but only if the accusation is made publicly.

However, if someone reports a shoplifter to a store employe or the security guard, there is never a problem of "involvement."

Stores can stay in business only if they operate at a profit, and in order to make up for what the shoplifters steal prices are climbing higher and higher. In plain language, it is the honest shopper who pays for all the stuff shoplifters steal.

I wish people would take their heads out of the sand and realize WHY all shoplifters should be reported.

MISSOURIAN

DEAR MISSOURIAN: In addition to which, the one with his head in the sand is in an ideal position to be kicked in the rear!

CONFIDENTIAL TO P. D. Q.: Telephone your Planned Parenthood Office. They can tell you everything you want to know concerning the abortion laws in your state and surrounding states.

Steel Company President Says Her Business Is Fascinating

DALLAS (AP) — Almost every day, Norma Mann places a hard hat atop her locks and climbs up and down construction jobs like a cat. She makes her living that way and she loves it.

The president of Mann Steel Co. is believed to be one of only two women in the United States who own and operate their own steel companies.

It is a fast-paced job. She says it is like playing basketball as compared to golf.

Early in the mornings, when other women are worrying with their dishes, Mrs. Mann drives her pickup to her office, brews a cup of coffee and gets down to business.

There's plenty for her to do.

Steel, sized to fit every construction need, has to be ordered and delivered, blueprints have to be gone over, more than a hundred husky ironworkers have to be put into motion and a huge weekly payroll must be met.

Yet Mrs. Mann finds enough time to give the industry a helping hand with its people problems.

She serves as a trustee for the Texas Ironworkers' Health and Pension Fund, is a member of the Ironworkers' Joint Apprenticeship Training Committee, a trustee for the Apprentice Trust Fund and is chairman of the National Ironworkers and Employers Training Program for Dallas-Fort Worth. She is also on the executive committees of half a dozen industry associations.

Since she started in business in 1957 at the suggestion of two contractors and a banker, Norma—as her employes call her—topped out an amazingly successful work record.

She has 40 subcontracts under way, including such projects as the 37-story Fort Worth National Bank Tower in Fort Worth, the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas and three projects at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

"This is a fascinating business," Mrs. Mann said, "although I sometimes wonder what I'm doing here. It's like playing a fast game of basketball compared to a casual game of golf."

When she finds time to catch her breath, she and her husband Martin (he's in another business) go fishing. This pleasure doesn't come too often, however, "because there are too many buildings that need building."

Independent-minded ironworkers, both in and out of the company, accept Mrs. Mann as one of their own. Her longtime superintendent, K. L. Robinson, put it this way: "We don't work for a woman—we work for Norma."

Mrs. Wallace Gives Report At Meeting

A special report was given by Mrs. Clevie Wallace at the Thursday night meeting of the Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa held at the Holiday Inn.

President Wallace told of activities of the North Carolina Alpha Delta Kappa Executive Board Convention, which she and Mrs. Jeanette Clapp, recently attended in Eden.

Mrs. Ann Byrd, recording secretary, presented the devotional program. Mrs. Betty Warren played a tape recording of a special message sent by Mrs. Thelma Switzer.

Each member gave a contribution to a postage fund for the Pitt County Unit of Women for War Orphans. The names of new pledges with their qualifications were presented and will be voted on at the next meeting.

Mrs. Frances Gold, Mrs. Jean Weathington, Mrs. Anne Worthington and Mrs. Jean Wilson were appointed to serve on the nominating committee.

Mrs. Wallace, who conducted the meeting, gave each members a new copy of Alpha Nu by-

KITCHEN PRAYER

Keep my kitchen
Bright and sunny.
May the cookie jar
Always have enough money
To feed my family,
The dog and the cat,
And a pot of coffee
For a friendly chat.

Help that the yeast
Will always rise
And the crust will be
Flaky on all my pies
May I never be so busy
That I can't hum or sing,
If I forget the beans
Please, let the buzzer ring.

The hamburger
That we so often see,
May I get new ideas
For variety.
May everyone please
Stay away from my door
Till the wax can dry
On my kitchen floor.

May my dear family
Always be able
To gather together
At the kitchen table.
Now when I'm tired,
No longer a winner,
Please let them be grateful
For a T.V. dinner.

It's A Bargain At $75 Million

Huge as the figure seems, the proposed $75 million capital outlay for modernizing North Carolina's prison system during the next ten years is probably a bargain price.

Most Tar Heels are rapidly recognizing that efforts to up-date the state's correctional system are rapidly being limited by the antiquated physical facilities in which the correctional system now operates.

Most of the prison facilities in North Carolina were constructed when the primary aim was to keep persons in prison indefinitely. Today, while detention continues a part of the program, rehabilitation of inmates has emerged as a major goal of the modern penal system.

It is no more possible to operate a modern penal system by using century-old facilities than it is possible to produce modern equipment for today's industries in plants which were constructed a hundred years ago.

That is what North Carolina is trying to do with the antiquated physical facilities of its prison system.

If the state's prison system is to be modernized as its leaders are trying to do, the system must be provided with modern facilities which lend themselves to today's rehabilitative programs. Considering the relatively small amount spent on updating the state's prison facilities in the last half-century, the estimated price for current modernization is not out of reason.

With other pressing needs for facilities of all kinds, there may be the inclination to give prison needs a lower priority than they deserve. If North Carolina is to have the kind of modern penal and corrections system it seeks, however, adequate capital outlay funds must be provided to build modern facilities in which such a system can operate effectively.

Five-Year Plan Will Affect All

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH, N.C. — Wherever you live in North Carolina, you'll feel Impact '76.

Enhancement of the Tar Heel life style, in quality as well as quantity, is the aim of the five-year program which more than 10,000 citizens helped put together.

When you hear it's sponsored by the N.C. State University Agricultural Extension Service, you may think it's just for farm people.

Not at all, said Dr. George Hyatt, extension director. The goal, he said, is to add a dimension of enrichment to the total life of the state, urban and rural.

In economic aspects, he agreed, the focus is on the farm. Even there, he pointed out, a strong agriculture is essential to a prosperous state economy in which all share.

Environmental quality is one of the five major areas covered by the long-range plan. "That affects everybody," Dr. Hyatt commented.

Family and Youth Goals

Family living and youth development are two other target areas. "Experience in recent years has shown that both country and city North Carolinians can benefit from the human resource programs of the Extension Service," the director said. Home economists are active in aiding urban families, and 4-H club membership includes a growing number of city youth.

Momentum for Impact '76, unveiled earlier this year with the commendation of Gov. Bob Scott, will be a major topic for the annual conference of extension service personnel in Raleigh this week.

Sessions on implementation of the plan, focused on both the county and state level, will be held during the conference which runs Monday through Thursday. A national viewpoint will be contributed by Ed Kirby, extension service administration for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Perspectives on Tar Heel agriculture will be given by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham and state leaders of the Farm Bureau, Grange, and National Farmers Organization.

Federal-State-Local Effort

The extension service is a cooperative effort of federal, state and county governments, extending resources of N.C. State University throughout the state. Its staff numbers some 750, in state offices on the NCSU campus and in each of the 100 counties.

Impact '76, so named because it aims for the realization of goals by 1976, is the latest in a series of long-range plans devised by the extension service to guide work. Around 18 months of study, identifying problems and gauging potential solutions, preceded its presentation to the public.

"Involvement" is the philosophical base, said Dr. Hyatt. Every county mobilized groups of citizens, crossing lines of business, education, religion, professions and civic leadership, to participate in the planning phase, he said. More than 10,000 persons, he noted, made some direct contribution to the Impact '76 design.

Five Goal Areas Set

The five major goal areas are: agricultural production, processing and marketing; family living; youth development; community resource development; and environmental quality.

Between 1961 and 1970, North Carolina farmers increased their gross income by about 38 per cent, primarily through the expansion of poultry and livestock production. "We believe that another 19 per cent income gain is possible by 1976, which would give us a total gross of about $2.1 billion," Dr. Hyatt said.

"We have become accustomed to measuring our agricultural progress in terms of increased production and more gross income," he continued. "But our real measures of progress over the next five years might be how well our farm people adjust to such challenges as urbanization, tobacco mechanization, environmental concerns, low net profits, overproduction, changing markets, competition for labor, 'engineered' foods, and inefficient production units."

Impact '76 increases the commitment of the extension service to serve all people, regardless of where they live, through programs in family living, 4-H and community resources development, he said.

Nutrition, housing, family relationships, and consumer problems are areas of need which know no rural-urban distinction, Dr. Hyatt said. Extension home economists will go into homes on a person-to-person basis to help families find a better life, he promised.

Hopes Undimmed By Dr. Salk's Warning

One of mankind's most baffling enemies is cancer and Dr. Jonas Salk indicates that the cure will not be easy to find.

Dr. Salk, who made the startling break-through which ended polio threat, said the cancer cure will not come suddenly.

"This is a tough problem that is going to have to be whittled away."

The Salk Institute is now working on a cancer cure and, while it is impossible to say when cancer can be controlled, Salk says that progress has been made.

We, of course, cannot say when a cure will be found, but with dedicated men like Dr. Salk working on it, we feel confident that eventually treatments will be found for some forms of cancer.

Reagan Letter Hurting Nixon

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A private letter written last summer by Gov. Ronald Reagan of California to reassure conservatives about the new China policy is now being used to further undermine President Nixon's shaky standing on the right.

Reagan's personal letter of Aug. 24, obviously backed and perhaps inspired by the White House, informed conservatives that Mr. Nixon's trip to China did not endanger the Nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan (Formosa) or its seat in the United Nations. That ill-starred prophecy today provides ammunition for Rep. John Ashbrook of Ohio, Mr. Nixon's conservative challenger in Republican primaries, to assault the President's credibility.

"We have pretty well guaranteed the continuation of Taiwan in the United Nations," wrote Reagan, describing Mr. Nixon's efforts to save the Nationalists' seat. "At the same time, we are pretty sure the Red Chinese will not accept a seat under those terms...I hope you will be able to give the President your unqualified support."

Campaigning against the President, Ashbrook raises this point: if White House reassurances proved worthless last autum when the UN voted to expel Taiwan and seat the Peking regime, what good are Presidential guarantees today?

In effect, then, the Reagan letter's hollow note six months later undercuts the Administration's present claim that Mr. Nixon made no real concessions on Taiwan during the Peking talks.

Ashbrook's arguments will not expand his vote significantly in Tuesday's New Hampshire balloting or subsequent primaries. But the White House fears the right-wing assault on the China policy might lose Mr. Nixon valuable campaign workers and financing, supplied in disproportionate numbers by the party's right wing, for his reelection campaign.

In Quest of Bliss

Ray C. Bliss, hounded out as Republican national chairman on President Nixon's personal orders three years ago, is now being wooed by campaign manager John Mitchell to serve as his liaison with state party organizations in the President's campaign.

Bliss, still Republican national committeeman from Ohio but concentrating on his insurance business in Canton, Ohio, has had several confidential talks with Mitchell recently. Though embittered by his gratuitous sacking in the spring of 1969, Bliss has made clear to Mitchell he

Strength For Today

CONFERENCE

The round table may be a very real and important factor in modern life if we make it so. In the twelfth century King Arthur's Round Table was an important piece of furniture, although there is nothing but tradition to confirm its importance.

The round table today stands for conference as over against strife. There are as many problems under hot discussion today as there are people. Some of this conferring is nonsense pure and simple. Still more is an attempt to browbeat individuals or groups into submission. However, on the whole the counciling table is of vast importance today. Everybody fears the sudden coming of a Third World War. Our weapons are so dreadful, our means of transportation so swift, that whole nations could literally be blown off the face of the earth if bombing of any variety really got started. The siren in our town sounds shrilly at noon each day. Invariably we glance anxiously at the clock in order to make sure that it is a time signal and not a raid.

This twentieth century in which we live is in almost every aspect superior to past ages. Our comforts are unprecedented. By way of a satellite we can see what is happening at the other side of the world. Yet there is hunger right in this fertile land of ours. The generation gap sometimes opens to such width that we are ready to tear our hair or rush for shelter.

But let us remember that the council table is superior to war and riot of any kind. We live in a wonderful age.

GETTING TO THAT POINT!

Italy: Situation Normal

ROME — The President flew west to China. I flew east to Italy. He was looking for normalization there. Let me report that everything is normal here. A normal situation in Italy is like a normal situation in the Army.

The government that fell the other day, pasted together provisionally by Premier Guilio Andreotti, was either the 33rd or the 34th government since 1947. It had been in power, so to speak, for only nine days, and may count as no more than an asterisk in the record books. In any event, its failure will result in new elections in May when the game begins anew.

Italy's political problems hold a dazzling fascination for an American who takes pride in our own confusions. We have trouble with labels: Conservative and liberal run together; it is often hard to tell the Democrats from the Republicans. But our difficulties pale beside the tints and shades of the Italian spectrum. From the Communists on the left to the neo-Fascists on the right, it sometimes appears that there's not a lira's worth of difference among them.

The country is still torn up over the issue of divorce. In any orderly approach to the question, you would expect to find the godless Communists all in favor of divorce, and the old-line Catholics all opposed. Nothing is orderly around here. Communist women, by and large, have been fighting bitterly against the new law; a great many well-to-do Catholic men, eager to be freed of marriages that collapsed years ago, tend to support the proposition. A referendum will be held in June of next year on repeal of the law permitting divorce; if the referendum carries, as expected, the situation will return to status quo ante, which is to say, back to the normal confusion.

Andreotti's abortive government was the tentative successor to a government headed by Premier Emilio Colombo. He resigned on January 15, having held the pieces together since August of 1970. The Colombo government didn't exactly fall; it sort of dissolved, like a runny omelet or an old dish of sherbet. The center-left coalition came apart at the seams, and when President Leone looked at the Chamber, no working government could be seen.

The divorce law was one factor in the collapse. There were many others. By general agreement, Italy's health services are a mess. So is higher education. In the whole country, a visitor is told, only 3,300 persons hold the rank of full professor; the overcrowded universities, once among the finest in Europe, have gone steadily downhill. Elementary schools also are suffering for want of adequate funding, but adequate funding depends upon tax reforms that no party is willing to support.

Italy's powerful trade unions are no more arrogant, perhaps, than the unions of France, England and the United States, but they seem to be less predictable. A

Other Editors Say To Prosper & Live

(Christian Science Monitor)

The Club of Rome has given valuable warning. Uncontrolled population and economic growth marks a road to disaster on earth.

Computer studies sponsored by this world alliance of businessmen and scholars quantify a similar warning in the "Blueprint for Survival" presented by 33 British experts.

Designed at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the computer models simulate world development. They take account of dozens of interacting factors involving population, environment, industry, and food production. Their projections, based on trends that could change, starkly suggest that mankind should stop all growth or perish.

To discount these studies as "simplistic," as some critics do, misses the main point.

O f course, the computer imperfectly mirrors the "real" world. Of course, the studies embody untested assumptions. It would indeed by simplistic to conclude that to grow is to die. No government could base policy on that today.

Nevertheless, the studies amply demonstrate the unprecendented challenge we face to manage our planet so mankind can prosper and live. The Club of Rome report, "The Limits to Growth," rightly points out that this requires "a Copernican revolution of the mind."

But there is more to growth than population and GNP. There's growth of knowledge and wisdom in managing our heritage. This includes moral growth in learning to live with mutual understanding and cooperation on our common spaceship. It also involves a kind of economic growth that will base prosperity on systems that conserve world resources.

Blindly to accept that all growth must stop is to substitute fear for prudence. It could turn off the very mental revolution the experts want to stimulate.

We believe humanity must rise to this challenge these experts identify. We have faith in mankind's innate capacity to transcend its old ways.

In this sense, we welcome "The Limits to Growth" and the "Blueprint for Survival" as awakening trumpet blasts we all must heed.

Words can become endangered things, too, and have to fight for survival, just as do scarce forms of plant and animal life. The two words that seem to be struggling hardest for existence in our beset civilization are "thank you." The more crowded we become, the less we hear them.

An old-timer is a man who can remember when the only ones who knew what a woman's navel looked like were herself and her family doctor.

There is no real difference between a man who eats too many peanuts and a man who eats too many radishes. Both share the same vice: Whatever they do, they are never content with doing it until they have done it to excess. They don't want satisfaction; they want to be punished for doing what they like.

One of the troubles with growing up is that we find our pleasures must become more complicated. We lose much of our joy in simple things. Why can't a man at 40 get the same thrill out of tasting snow that he did when he was only 4? The snow doesn't change; its flavor is eternal.

Winter, riding on a howling March wind, brought rain and snow plus considerable property damage to Greenville and the surrounding community yesterday as well as to other sections of the state. Probably the worst sufferer from the gale, which gained its greatest momentum shortly after noon, was the Greenville Floral Company. The greenhouses were damaged to the extent of $250 and L. S. Spence said today that carpenters were busy most of the day attempting to replace shattered glass.

Inflation Is Not Even Sleeping

By ELMER ROESSNER

Inflation has been slowed down. The Consumer Price Index rose only 0.3 per cent in January — or did it. There is some confusion over whether food prices did or did not rise in that month. Wage increases can't be more than 5.5 per cent a year, except in special cases. Prices can't rise more than 2.5 per cent a year, except in special cases. And every case seems special.

In the past week:

St. Regis Paper Co., under previous Price Commission authority, announced an increase in linerboard, used in making corrugated boxes, from $127.50 to $134.50 a ton effective April 1. Other paper companies will probably follow.

Continental Can. and American Can Co. announced increases in bleached paperboard, used to make paper cups and plates and frozen food containers up to $10 a ton April 1.

The Price Commission has authorized Campbell Soup Co. to raise prices 2 per cent on all domestic products.

The Commission allowed Celanese a maximum increase of 8.3 per cent on its chemicals and 10 per cent on fibers, specialty chemicals, plastics and coatings. The Commission turned down a few applications for higher prices, bringing its score to 1,670 increases granted and 100 denied.

St. Joe Minerals Corp. followed other producers and raised lead prices 14.5 to 15.5 cents a pound. Revere Copper and Brass, Inc. raised prices on all copper and brass products to meet the 2.25 cents a pound increase in the price of producer copper.

Collins & Aikman Corp. has been granted permission to increase prices of pile fabrics up to 8 per cent.

Duval Corp. increased sulphur prices $3 a ton.

The nation's railroads have asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to increase rates an average of 4 to 4.5 per cent, replacing the emergency surcharge of 2.5 per cent that went into effect Feb. 5. Some of the increases would be as much as 10 per cent. This, of course, would increase the price of everything moved by rail.

Wage increases are granted just as freely by the Wage Board. A new pattern in wage negotiations is emerging. Employers save time by granting union negotiators close to what they ask, and then buck the final decision to the Wage Board. The Wage Board then either finds an exceptional situation and grants the increases higher than the guideline, or cuts the settlement back.

When a negotiated settlement is cut back, nobody is fooled. When wage controls end — and they will some day — the unions will demand the disallowed increase retroactive to the date of the agreement.

Meanwhile, the public is being subjected to a vast, well-organized propaganda campaign preparing it for large increases in the price of fuel. As you may have noticed, you are being told that there is a gas shortage and it may be necessary for the sellers to decline new customers; that there is a shortage of oil so serious that it is necessary to intensify offshore drilling, no matter what happens to the ecology, and that we have to increase the mining of coal, even by strip mining, to convert it into gas, gasoline and power or the Russians will overtake us.

Inflation tumbles on.

Wilbur Hobby's Candidacy Is A Major Power Play

Ayden-Grifton SCHOOL NOTES

By SUE HASELEY
and ANNE DENSON

Biggest news is that the varsity boys are first in the district with a 22-4 record, including the tournament games. They went to Durham Wednesday night to play the Pinehurst team in the state tournament. It was a very close game and exciting.

Unfortunately, we lost. All the commentators praised the local team for their fine team work and we are proud of them.

Two buses, one from Ayden and one from Grifton, took students to the Wednesday night game. They left at 4 p.m. and bus fare was $2 each.

The Junior class is selling chocolate candy bars at 50 cents each. The profit will go toward financing the Junior-Senior Prom.

The Ayden-Grifton drama club presented its first production to a responsive audience February 24 and 25. The curtain went up on "A Winter Variety Show" at 8 p.m. both evenings and lasted 40 minutes.

The variety show consisted of two skits, two monologues, a dramatization of the Creation and a short one-act play "The Gallery" by William Paulk.

The drama classes plan to try to present two one-act plays to the student body soon. They have not chosen the plays but several are being considered.

The annual staff has completed the yearbook and have sent it to The Hunter Publishing Co. for publication.

The annuals are expected to be back at the school during May.

The SGA is beginning a student-to-student tutoring program designed to help students who are having difficulties in a certain subject.

The tutoring will take place during study halls and after school. The SGA plans to have the program underway by March 9.

Graduation, originally scheduled for Monday, June 5, may be changed to Friday, June 2. The suggestion came from the seniors to move the date. If the majority of the staff and student body vote to change the date, it will be done.

A vote was taken Feb. 29. If the date is moved back, June 1 would be the last day for students and one day would be taken from the Easter vacation.

would very much like to get into the 1972 campaign.

Mitchell's courtship of Bliss is partly explained by increasing friction between the President's campaign apparatus and regular state party organizations, which feel bypassed in Mr. Nixon's reelection efforts. Bliss, with unequalled acceptability throughout the party, would serve as middleman.

A footnote: Murray Chotiner, who usually pops up whenever Richard M. Nixon runs for office, is back again — but in a much less exalted role so far this time. Besides practicing law in Washington, Chotiner is on the fringes of the Nixon campaign, making plans to guard against cheating at the ballot box Nov. 7. Chotiner is a brilliant political tactician whose role in the 1968 campaign was larger than is generally realized, but he is also a publicy controversial figure and far from No. 1 on John Mitchell's list of favorites.

Muskie Trouble

Added to all his other difficulties as front-runner for the Democratic Presidential nomination, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie faces a brewing revolt of staffers protesting that a hard-working and well-liked aide has been sacrificed to appease Sen. John V. Tunney of California.

The endorsement of Muskie last December by Tunney, an intimate of Sen. M. Kennedy, was what really put the Muskie bandwagon in high gear. But the price has been high — first, Muskie writing the water pollution control bill to Tunney's specifications; then a series of Tunney demands to put his men in key Muskie campaign spots.

Most recently, Herb Hadad was abruptly fired as Muskie's deputy press secretary and replaced by Hadley Roff, a top Tunney operative. The reason given by the Muskie managers is economy: Roff's salary will be paid by a Tunney fat cat, saving some $18,000 due Hadad between now and election day. Besides, the Muskie campaign chiefs assured the staff, other heads would soon follow Hadad's because of the money squeeze.

But Muskie staffers are not buying that argument. They note nobody else has been fired and deeply resent Hadad's fate. A protest petition was about to be circulated among the staffers but was withdrawn at the pleadings of the Muskie managers.

The staffers are now investigating the incident. If they see John Tunney's hand at work, there might be a public outburst which would be just one more embarrassment for the suddenly troubled Muskie campaign.

Final Offer Unaccepted

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Dom Mintoff of Malta has not accepted the Western allies' "final" offer to pay $36.4 million a year for military bases on his Mediterranean island, but has agreed to discuss it with his government, the British defense secretary said Monday night.

"Mr. Mintoff did not accept, but I think he understood this was the final position," Lord Carrington told a news conference. "He said he would go back and consult his colleagues."

Mintoff, who has been trying to get British and NATO officials to raise their offer about $10 million, met with Prime Minister Edward Heath for 70 minutes after two days of bargaining with Carrington and Secretary-General Joseph Luns of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"We have made progress," said Mintoff but did not elaborate.

"As far as I am concerned, there are no future negotiations," said Lord Carrington, who has gone ahead with withdrawal of British forces from Malta.

Ali's Attorney Posts Guarantee

CHICAGO (AP) — An attorney for former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali has given a court $44,000 to ensure alimony payment to Ali's former wife.

After the presentation Monday, Judge Norman M. Eiger of Circuit Court in Cook County lifted a contempt warrant that he had issued after Ali failed to post the cash guarantee by the March 2 deadline he had set.

Ali divorced Sonji Clay in 1966, saying she refused to follow the modest life style dictated by the Black Muslim faith which Ali embraced. He has since remarried and has three daughters.

Meredith Begins 900-Mile March

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Civil rights figure James Meredith has walked the first seven miles of an announced 900-mile march through Mississippi during which he plans to campaign for U.S. senator and conduct voter registration drives.

Meredith, who 10 years ago became the first black enrolled in the University of Mississippi, began the march Monday.

Meredith said the purpose of the march is to expose the "reality of life for black people in Mississippi and in America."

An AP News Special
By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Win or lose, labor leader Wilbur Hobby has engineered his strongest power play by injecting his name and the 140,000-member state AFL-CIO into North Carolina's gubernatorial primary.

The Democratic nomination would make him the titular head of the party in North Carolina and, presumably, give him the power such a position carries.

But merely by running, Hobby has a bargaining position that was not available before he was a candidate. Regardless of his finish in the six-man race, Hobby will have votes and support that other candidates will need for the anticipated second primary.

"It's true, we are in a good bargaining position and we're going to stay in a good bargaining position," Hobby said in an interview.

Hobby, who uses the pronoun "we" in most references to himself, said, "We've been talking and trying to discuss the issues for several months with the candidates for governor."

Hobby entered the race just before the deadline for filing. He said his decision to become a candidate was based heavily on the withdrawal earlier of state Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan.

"All of them at that time were trying to talk to us, but the minute Bob Morgan got out of the race they seemed to think their local people could do it, so they quit talking to us," he said.

"About that time we decided something had to be done and we announced we were considering running for governor.

"The next morning we had a call from Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, who discussed it with us. Later Skipper Bowles called, and we had a call from Nancy Roberts. We called Reginald Hawkins as a matter of courtesy."

Taylor, Bowles and Hawkins are contenders for the Democratic nomination. Mrs. Roberts filed as a candidate and later withdrew.

"I expect they would come back if I wasn't going to be the front-runner. Some of them are kind of smug now. They think the people aren't going to get out and vote and that Wilbur Hobby doesn't have much of a chance, but after the primary they'll see it," Hobby said.

Hobby has no experience as a political candidate but maintains his candidacy now is serious.

"We're getting support from everybody, tremendous support from the academic community, from women, from labor people. We're getting support from the just plain everyday citizen who is tired of high utility rates, high Blue Cross rates and the unfairness of a lot of laws in this state and tired of paying an unfair burden of taxes," Hobby said.

He contends his lack of governmental experience would not hurt his chances against such opponents as Taylor, Bowles and Republican contender James Holshouser, all of whom have served in the legislature.

"Their record of accomplishments is next to zero," Hobby said. "Within two years here, we've doubled the membership of the AFL-CIO, brought in new programs such as on taxes and medical care, and we've served on several top commissions appointed by the governor.

"We just think our record is one that no other candidate can match, and we back it up.

Hobby has built his early campaign around the slogan, "Keep the big boys honest." Two frequent targets are North Carolina's Blue Cross and Duke Power Co.

"If I became governor," Hobby said, "my responsibility would be to the people. I wouldn't go along with all the hanky panky that's going on now with the big corporations. I'd hire rate experts who could deal with big corporations like Duke Power."

Hobby said he believes his campaign has stirred interest in the race.

"North Carolina has a history of being an antiunion state, an antipeople state. Now we're rallying the workers. A lot of them never had a reason to vote, but now they are registering," he said.

Nick Plans Prison Tour

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., says he plans to tour some North Carolina prisons before introducing prison reform legislation.

Galifianakis told a news conference Monday he wants to "see first-hand some of the reasons why prisons across the country are failing society."

He said he will tour the Tar Heel prisons later this month. He added, "We cannot cut our nation's appalling crime rate until we give prison systems all the tools they need to rehabilitate as well as punish offenders."

The 4th District congressman said he is "particularly interested in finding ways of reinforcing the effectiveness of the community college education program in our prisons ... looking for ways to improve probation and parole operations."

important to him as it is to the despot, but it is shown in smaller ways. No bugles blow when he makes an entrance, and he has no reserved parking place with his name on it. But if he is given a private coathanger separate from his fellows, he'd rather have that than a $10-a-week raise.

traveler who goes out to Rome's airport, expecting to catch a plane to somewhere, is likely to find that the fuel truck drivers — without the slightest warning — have proclaimed an eight-hour strike. Why the strike? Why the eight hours? No one knows. It is part of a way of life.

It can be a frustrating way of life. Many Italians, it is said, are beginning actively to long for a little more order, a little more discipline — a small cappucino, if you please, of stability. As one manifestation of this faint stirring, one hears much talk of the MSI (Movimento Sociale Italiano), the neo-Fascist party. In the 1968 elections, the MSI claimed only 4.5 percent of the vote, but in recent by-elections, it has shown spectacular growth. Come May, the neo-Fascists probably will double their seats (largely at the expense of the Christian Democrats), and may do much better.

The Communists meanwhile, seem to rock along with about 27 percent of the vote. They are troubled by divided leadership, and harassed by a Maoist rump faction, but they are marvelously efficient in getting out their vote. That's about the only efficiency, come to think of it, in a political situation that remains otherwise gloriously normal — all fouled up.

Candidate List Has 600 Names

CARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) —The ballot here for the May 9 primary could be the largest in the nation this year. It contains the names of 600 persons seeking various offices.

Kanawha County Clerk Jack Pauley says a Chicago voting machine firm told him the local ballot will be the nation's largest. He attributed the large number of candidates partly to an increase in persons running for delegate to the national party conventions.

Catching UCLA In Final Poll Is Like Catching Loch Ness Monster

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is the last week the rest of the nation's basketball powers have a chance to catch UCLA—but they'd have a better chance trying to catch the Abominable Snowman or Loch Ness Monster.

The anything-but-abominable Bruins from Los Angeles, who fastened their usual vise-like grip on first place in The Associated Press college basketball poll before the season even began, have now made their supremacy all but official.

Their perfect record through 25 games—including victories last week by a surprisingly narrow 85-71 over California and a more typical 102-73 against Stanford—earned them all 32 first-place votes and 640 points Monday in the next-to-last balloting by a nationwide panel of sportswriters and sports broadcasters before they begin the defense of their national championship in the NCAA playoffs.

Among their followers in the Top Ten rankings, the Quakers from Pennsylvania made the biggest improvement, vaulting from fourth to second with 402 points. Penn is 23-2 this season.

That dropped North Carolina and Louisville down one notch apiece, the Tar Heels taking third with 389 points and the Cardinals fourth with 377. Each team lost once last week while the Quakers swept all three of their contests.

Long Beach State didn't play a game all week but still managed to move up a notch to fifth with 375 points in the voting and South Carolina matched Penn's two-place jump by bounding from eighth to sixth with 352 following its three-game sweep last week.

But Marquette, feeling the loss of star Jim Chones even more, lost to New Mexico State and, despite a pair of victories, slipped from fifth to seventh, followed by Brigham Young, down one spot, Southwestern Louisiana, up two places to ninth and Marshall, down one to 10th.

In the Second Ten, Memphis State came out of nowhere to shoot up from 20th to No. 11 on the strength of a pair of victories; Hawaii jumped from No. 15 to 12, Maryland moved up nicely from 18th to 13th, Florida State dropped out of the Top Ten to 14th, Virginia slipped three places to No. 15, Minnesota came out of the also-ran crowd to take 16th, Oral Roberts retained 17th, Missouri edged up one spot to 18th, Houston spun from 13th to 19th and Indiana, surprising Ohio State last week, took over No. 20 as the Buckeyes, 14th a week ago, fell completely out of the ratings.

1. UCLA (32)	25-0	640
2. Penn	23-2	402

Tennessee, Kentucky Set Final Meeting For Southeastern Title

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

"It's showdown time," said Adolph Rupp ... and he was talking about Adolph Rupp.

In what may have been Rupp's last home game, the veteran coach's Kentucky Wildcats thrashed Auburn 102-67 Monday night and set up a Thursday showdown with Tennessee for the Southeastern Conference's berth in the NCAA Basketball Tournament. The Vols, meanwhile, whipped Vanderbilt 87-74.

Although university regulations say this is the 70-year-old Rupp's final season, Kentucky's president, Dr. Otis Singletary, said that "no announcement will be made until the Baron of Basketball makes it himself."

Rupp was mum on that subject, although calls and telegrams began pouring in early in the day and 18 of his greatest players came back for a visit.

With Tom Parker scoring seven of his game-high 29 points, Kentucky rushed to a 9-0 lead and piled up a 26-point bulge by halftime. Stan Key added 23 points and Jim Andrews had 18.

Auburn's Bill Lynn, said Kentucky "played better than anybody we saw all year."

That's almost what was said about Tennessee after sophomores Len Kosmalski and John Snow led the Vols past Vanderbilt with 29 and 26 points, respectively.

Tennessee's Ray Mears said his club played well for a longer stretch than at any other time and Vandy's Roy Skinner added, "I certainly haven't seen Tennessee playing better at any other time this season."

Elsewhere, another showdown was arranged as all five starters hit in double figures to pace fourth-ranked Louisville to a 102-83 rout of Tulsa. The Cardinals and Memphis State will play off Saturday night for the Missouri Valley crown and an NCAA berth.

Louisville's Jim Price scored 24 points and Henry Bacon added 22 as the Cards grabbed a 19-3 lead before Tulsa managed a field goal. The margin was sliced to one point late in the first half before Louisville pulled away again.

A number of other showdowns are in the works tonight. Ohio U. and Toledo play off for the Mid-American Conference title and Texas and Southern Methodist do the same in the Southwest Conference. In the Ohio Valley Conference, Western Kentucky meets Morehead State and the winner faces Eastern Kentucky Wednesday night.

In a game matching tournament teams, Ernie DiGregorio scored 24 points from outside and Marvin Barnes went inside for 20 as NCAA-bound Providence trounced NIT entrant Jacksonville 90-76. Providence pulled away in the final 10^{1}_{2} minutes with hot shooting and a bunch of steals.

It was the most decisive loss for the Dolphins in the Jacksonville Coliseum in five years and Providence's Dave Gavitt said. "We showed them a match-up combination zone they may not have seen much."

Meanwhile, 17th-ranked Oral Roberts closed out a 25-1 regular season with a 108-91 rout of Pan American behind Richie Fuqua's 46 points. Fuqua finished with an average of 35.9 points a game to 36.7 for Dwight Lamar of Southwestern Louisiana.

Among the small schools, Kentucky State's Thorobreds downed Carson-Newman 105-96 in the first round of the NAIA playoffs. Travis "The Machine" Grant scored 52 points—he needed 10—and passed Grambling's Bob Hopkins as the College Division's career scoring leader.

Off the court, Louisiana State fired Coach Press Maravich and his two assistants after a 10-16 campaign.

"I have reluctantly reached the conclusion that our basketball program will have a better opportunity for success with the change in the coaching staff," said Athletic Director Carl Maddox.

Driesell Dreams Of Seven Straight Wins

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — With Maryland about to launch a "second chance" bid for the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship, Coach Lefty Driesell can afford to daydream beyond.

"If we could get hot and win seven straight, we could be the national champions," Driesell said today. "Seven straight, and we'd be sitting on top of the world.

"Each game will be like sudden death, though. If you let up a little bit, you're out of it."

"First," Driesell added, "we have to beat Clemson."

That's who the Terps will play in the first round of the ACC's seven-team tournament, opening Thursday in Greensboro, N.C., while North Carolina's regular season champions get a bye.

Clemson, although last in the ACC with a 2-10 record and only 10-15 for the season, dealt 13th-ranked Maryland one of its four losses in 25 games. After losing 63-61, the Terps won the rematch 76-57.

Maryland's 8-4 league mark was its first winning ACC season in seven years. The Terps have advanced past the first round of the tournament only twice in the past 13 years.

"I think we have a tremendous balance in the ACC this season," Driesell said, while noting the frequent upsets of top teams.

"Five teams could win the tournament," he said. "Clemson and Wake Forest could, too, although they might run out of gas by the finals."

Sophomore Tom McMillen, playing much more aggressively during the latter part of the season, was named to the All-ACC team after averaging 21 points and 10 rebounds a game.

"He's an All-American," Driesell said. "When the season started, everyone expected him to score 50 points a game. Now that the pressure is off, he's playing loose.

"Despite the pressure, Tom led us in scoring and free throw percentage, and was second in rebounding, field goal percentage and blocked shots, and held his man to 10 points a game. No forward in the country could beat him going one-on-one."

Len Elmore, another soph who at 6-foot-9 is two inches shorter than McMillen, paced the Terps in rebounding and blocked shots while averaging 10 points a game.

"I think we were able to go 21-4," Drisell said, "mainly because our defense improved. Looking back, I guess we did better than I expected." Drisell said the turning point for the season may have come on Jan. 31 when the Terps rallied to beat N.C. State 66-65.

"To come from 16 points behind on the road, with a bunch of sophomores, was a great win," Drisell said. "That made us a tough ball club."

Driesell said he looked for Clemson to play its normal game on Thursday. "They're a disciplined team which works for a good shot," he said. "They won't be easy."

Parkhill Player Of Year In ACC

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Barry Parkhill, 6-4, high-scoring star who led the University of Virginia to its best basketball record in history, today was named Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year.

Parkhill, a junior from State College, Pa., was chosen on 80 of the 107 ballots by members of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. He was the only unanimous selection for the all-conference team.

Dennis Wuycik, North Carolina forward, was second in the player of the year voting, receiving 12 votes. North Carolina's Robert McAdoo received 10. The remaining seven votes were shared by Tom McMillen of Maryland, Tommy Burleson of North Carolina State and Bill Chamberlain of North Carolina.

Led by Parkhill, Virginia won 20 games for the first time in its history. He topped the conference in scoring with an average of 21.72 points a game. He also led the league in field goals attempted and in field goals made.

Although he is the shortest player on the all-conference team, Parkhill has rebounding strength and is adept at bringing the ball up the court against pressing defenses.

He averaged more than 26 points a game as a freshman and hit for 15.9 last season as a sophomore.

Bullpen Must Bounce Back For The Yankees

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — At the end of the 1970 baseball season, Lindy McDaniel had 29 saves, Jack Aker had 20 saves and the New York Yankees had a 93-69 record. At the end of 1971, McDaniel had four saves, Aker had four saves, and the Yankees had an 82-80 record.

"That's what killed us," says Manager Ralph Houk, pointing an accusing finger at the two bullpen aces. "That's the whole story of the season. I think our ballclub was better last year than in 1970—other than for the bullpen.

"Aker had a bad back that bothered him and McDaniel had a neck operation just before spring training and got off bad. Our bullpen has to be better this year because it was so bad last year. We think they have a good chance of bouncing back."

Bouncing back for the Yankees, as far as Houk is concerned, means bouncing back into the 90-victory circle and challenging the American League champion Baltimore Orioles for the A.L. East title.

While the bullpen is one area that needs strengthening, the Yankees are far from set in the infield and outfield, despite Houk's obvious optimism.

The team's major weapons are sound pitching in starters Mel Stottlemyre, 16-12; Fritz Peterson, 15-13; Mike Kekich, 10-9, and Steve Kline, 12-13, and the proven bats of outfielders Bobby Murcer and Roy White.

Murcer, at 26, is a legitimate superstar following a 1971 season in which he hit .331 with 25 homers and 94 runs batted in. White is a consistent hitter who swung at a .292 clip last season, and contributed 19 homers and 84 RBI.

Hope for improvement in the hitting department centers around catcher Thurman Munson, first baseman Ron Blomberg, and new third baseman Rich McKinney, acquired from the Chicago White Sox in a trade for pitcher Stan Bahnsen.

Munson can be expected to hit back to his Rookie of the year form after slipping to .251. Blomberg is the first base hope following a 64-game turn with the Yankees last year during which he hit .322 with seven homers and 31 RBI.

McKinney hit .271 with Chicago last season and displayed some power with eight homers and 46 RBI.

The remainder of the infield shows holdovers Horace Clarke at second base, Gene Michael at shortstop. But each has competition. For Clarke, it's rookie Fred Frazier; for Michael, it's Frank Baker. Also on hand is veteran Bernie Allen, acquired from the Washington Senators-Texas Rangers.

In the outfield, right field is open with Felipe Alou, Ron Swoboda, Danny Cater and Johnny Callison.

Indians May Have New Owner

CLEVELAND (AP) — American League baseball club owners vote in Sarasota, Fla., Wednesday on whether they want Cleveland sports promoter Nick Mileti to join their ranks as owner of the Cleveland Indians.

Mileti isn't speculating on the outcome of the vote.

"We feel we have a very strong position," he said, but added: "I wouldn't predict the outcome. I'm too old, and I practiced too much law to predict the outcome of anything like this."

The dynamic, 40-year-old attorney, who also owns the Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association and the Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey Legue, declined to comment on details of the purchase. But sources put the purchase price near $10 million.

The bill would be shared by Mileti and five local backers — Howard Metzenbaum, Alva Bonda, Bruce Fine, Marshall Fine and Joseph Zingale, all Cleveland businessmen.

"We've talked with Vernon (Indians owner Vernon Stouffer) on and off for two years," Mileti said.

"Every boy dreams of owning a baseball club, especially if he's played the sport as I have. It's a great opportunity for service."

Asked about sharing the Indians with New Orleans for 30 home games as mentioned by Stouffer, keeping the Indians in Cleveland and other plans for the club, Mileti said, "You're talking about another guy's club. It's premature to talk about these things at this time."

Clemente Says He Tries Hard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The greatest accomplishment to me," said Roberto Clemente, "is the way I have played all my life."

The Pittsburgh Pirates' outfielder said Monday it will be one or two more seasons before he closes his baseball career. He's giving himself time to get 118 hits, enough to crack the 3,000-hit mark reached by only 11 other players.

"I don't let anything bother me to play this game," he said after a workout at the Pirates' Bradenton, Fla., spring training camp. "If I hit the ball back to the pitcher, I run hard. If I hit the ball back to second base, I run hard. If I miss a ball in the outfield, I run hard after the ball. And I think that all the time I try hard playing this game, I think that this has to be my biggest accomplishment."

Clemente, 37, has been a National League All Star 11 times and has hit in all 14 World Series games in which he has played.

Elsewhere in spring training, Jim Fregosi of the New York Mets has been sidelined for at least a month with a broken right thumb. He suffered the fracture during infield practice Sunday but the break wasn't diagnosed until Monday.

The St. Louis Cardinals said they haven't heard from super holdout Joe Torre, one of the team's four unsigned players. General Manager Bing Devine hasn't said if he plans to invoke the "renewal clause" to bring the four to camp.

The clause says if the players is unsigned the club will announce by March 10 the player as signed at a salary set by the club with a pay cut of no more than 20 per cent. What it means is the player is to negotiate during the training period.

In exhibition play Monday, the New York Mets defeated Boston 8-2, Minnesota thumped the New York Yankees 10-1, Texas topped the Chicago White Sox 11-4, and Detroit blanked Pittsburgh 3-0.

Tar Heels Go For 4th Tourney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North Carolina basketball team has won three tournaments this season but the one the Tar Heels really want to win is this week's Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament.

They are favored, but are not taking anything for granted. Last year's final game is still in their memory.

As guard George Karl says, "We'll always remember the feeling we had when they (South Carolina) put the ball in the hole with six seconds to go."

That shot by Tom Owens beat North Carolina 52-51.

South Carolina has gone independent this year and has an at-large berth in the NCAA eliminations. The Tar Heels would like to meet the Gamecocks again.

The winner of the ACC tournament will play in the NCAA Eastern Regional Tournament March 16 at Morganton, W. Va., against the winner of a game Saturday night at Williamsburg, Va., between Temple and South Carolina.

But before getting a chance to possibly meet the Gamecocks again, North Carolina must win its two games in the ACC tournament which starts Thursday in the Greensboro, N.C. Coliseum.

The Tar Heels have an opening-round bye for winning the regular-season title on a 9-3 conference record. They will play in Friday night's first game against either North Carolina State or Duke, teams to which they lost once during the regular season.

Karl says, "Coach (Dean) Smith believes that we don't have to worry about our opponent.

Auditors Disclose Millions Misspent On Medicare

By G.C. THELEN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health insurance companies have misspent millions of Medicare dollars, federal auditors have found, because of business inefficiencies and excess payments to doctors.

Previously undisclosed audits by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare questioned practices ranging from the Purchase of 2,100 monagrammed golf balls to payment of $320 million to Florida doctors without assurance that the fees were reasonable.

The auditors' reports also showed that:

—Based on 129 processing errors found in 520 typical claims, the Colorado Medical Service (Blue Shield) paid in 1968 and 1969 an estimated $775,000 overcharge, plus $167,800 in duplicate bills, and another $1.5 million for unnecessary services by doctors.

—Connecticut General Life Insurance Co., between 1966 and 1969, made errors on 6.7 per cent of Medicare bills. The 36,000 duplicate or excess payments totaled $1.2 million.

—Aetna Life Insurance Co. had an 8.5-per-cent error rate between 1967 and 1969, issuing 156,000 excess or duplicate checks totalling $4.5 million.

—13.5 per cent of Medicare doctor bills paid by Florida Blue Shield between 1967 and 1970 were processsed with error or deficiency.

—Massachusetts Blue Shield made duplicate Medicare payments of $1.9 million between 1966 and 1968.

—In 1970, Occidental Life Insurance Co. paid $3.2 million in Medicare benefits to Southern California doctors who had "past histories of irregular or unusual billing practices." Some of these doctors had already been indicted for Medicare fraud, the audit said.

Spokesmen for the Social Security Administration and the insurance companies said many of the deficiencies disclosed by the audits have been remedied. Some insurors also challenge portions of the findings, objecting to the HEW aduditors' statistical projections of misspending from an analysis of sample payments.

The claims of corrective action could not be verified. The audits run two years late, and the Social Security Administration won't open current files to newsmen.

A staff report of the Senate Finance Committee on the 33 Blue Shield plans, 15 commercial companies, and two independent insurors acting as Medicare payment agents for doctor bills had this to say:

"Carrier performance under Medicare has in the majority of instances been erratic, inefficient, costly and inconsistent with congressional intent ...."

Thomas M. Tierney, who runs the Medicare program for the government, had a different assessment.

"I think in the over-all, they (carriers and intermediaries) are administering a very complex program," he said. "This is not to say there are not problems."

The insurance companies and "blue" plans funnel government money to health institutions and doctors who treat Medicare patients. They assume no risk, administrative expenses are paid in full and no profit is allowed.

The HEW audit findings, which will be aired this month at hearings by the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, are serving as ammunition for proponents of government-run health insurance.

"The weaknesses demonstrated in the audits should disqualify business from any role in new health-care insuring arrangements," said Max Fine, executive director of the Committee for National Health Insurance.

President Nixon, among others, proposes to funnel billions of dollars into the carriers and an expanded, government-required and subsidized health insurance.

The federal auditors' most common complaint involved overcharges—failure by companies to limit physicians' payments to "reasonable, customary and usual fees," as defined by doctors themselves.

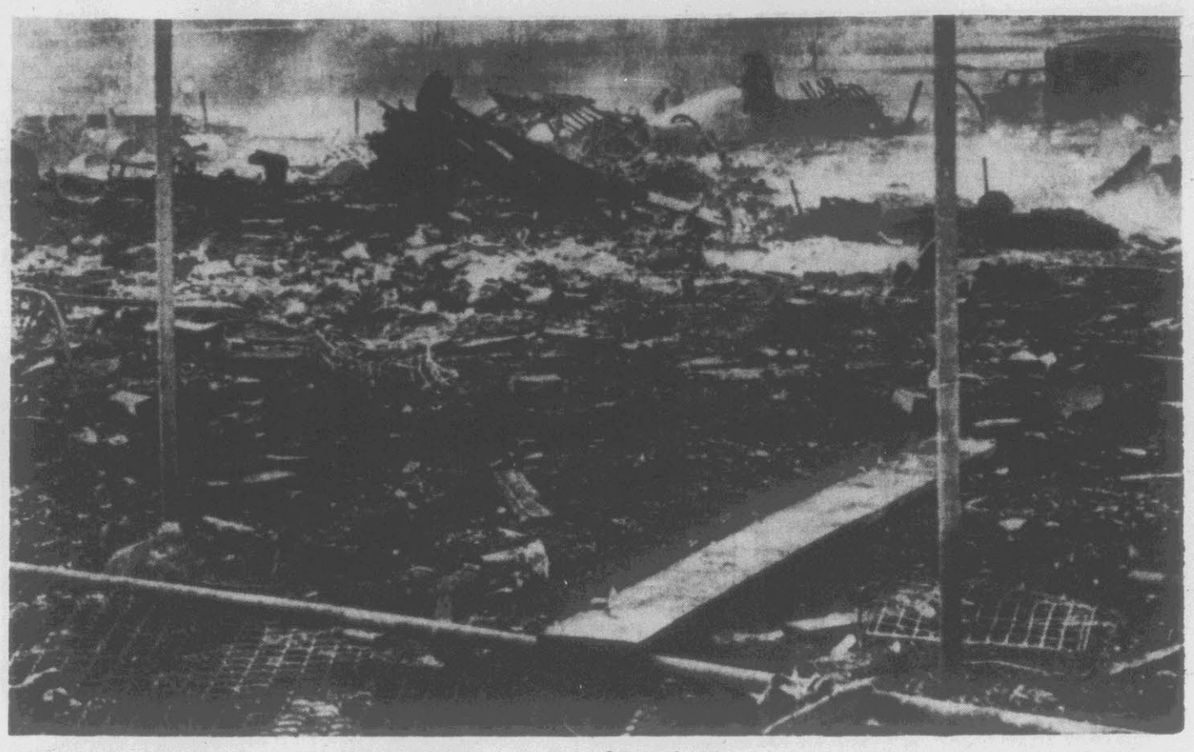
"No one can say for certain how much money has been overpaid as a result of the failure to apply statutory limitation on 'reasonable charges,'" the Senate Finance Committee staff report said. But it estimated the amount at "many hundreds of millions of dollars."

The Social Security Administraton, under prodding from Congress, has recently removed some companies from the program or cut their Medicare business. Cleveland Blue Shield lost its contract. Thirteen counties in Southern California were taken away from California Blue Shield. Chicago Blue Shield lost six counties.

The auditors also spotted some expenses they said were charged improperly to Medicare.

They included those golf balls, country club and social memberships, liquor, and leased cars at Virginia Blue Cross.

In additon, 21 of 74 Blue Cross plans have built new offices since Medicare began, financed in part with government money. The government considers this expense legitimate.



EXPOSION AFTERMATH — Firemen pour water on the smoldering remains of the Melrose Display Fireworks Co. plant in the southwest Chicago suburb of Orland Park Monday. The plant disappeared in a cloud of smoke, leaving parked cars destroyed, fence ripped, and debris all over the foreground. Disaster proceedings were put into effect in the Orland Park area. The plant was completely leveled by the series of explosions. (AP Wirephoto)

Assistant Principal's Suicide Note Blames Racial Frictions

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A black assistant high school principal who committed suicide last month told his students in a farewell letter that he wanted his death to impress upon them the need to settle their racial problems.

"There is no other way I can impress on you the need to stop standing back and to force out those sick people who will never let black people be equal because they want to compete or fight with white folks instead of working and understanding them," wrote Paul L. Cabell Jr.

The letter was made public Monday by his widow, Carlitta.

Cabell, 26, described by colleagues as a dedicated teacher and school administrator, was in charge of maintaining student discipline at Beecher High School. It has 1,000 pupils, 65 per cent of them white.

Fellow teachers said Cabell, in his second year at Beecher, was trying to preserve calm while punishing wrongdoers, and was deeply affected by several clashes between white and black students. His last day alive, Feb. 24, was marked by several student incidents.

Cabell was upset when he returned home and talked with his wife. She tried unsuccessfully to persuade him to resign and went to bed when he told her he wanted to sit in his study and think awhile.

Police said Cabell then wrote two letters—one to his wife.

In the one addressed to the Beecher community, he said:

"... I am weary of trying to bring insensitive trainers, also known as teachers, a curriculum—old or new—which does not attack the major problems of socialization of students and parents too busy making a living to live and understand together. It is more than a one-man job.

"One man can only cope and deal successfully with so much. What is being asked here is a job that total society never has been able to accomplish, yet I am being asked to do it for 1,000 students and assorted persons.

"I am a leader, but I can not march alone. To all those black students (here he named five of them) who worked hard at bringing sense to the errant and foolish brothers and sisters at Beecher, thanks for your efforts, I appreciated them.

"To the white students, I commend you for keeping your cool as long as you did. Tolerance and patience be yours forever.

"To the vast majority of black students who did not take a stand but let the words of a few hotheads (again he named five students) and several others turn your mind away from what it's all about, I say it is for you that I die.

"I die to emphasize to you and all minority people who ever dreamed to be free that it can only come through working together. It seems to me there is no other way for me to get your attention."

Adult Driver Class At PTI Meets Tonight

Pitt Technical Institute has an adult driver training course for persons 18 years or older. The class will meet tonight at seven o'clock in room 28.

The class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday at 7 p.m. at Pitt Technical Institute.

The course is composed of 36 hours classroom work, a minimum of six hours behind-the-wheel driving, and 16 hours observation in a dual-controlled car. There is a $16 fee for the course.

The driving part of the class will be scheduled during the afternoons and Saturdays and each person can be picked up at their residence and returned after the driving period.

For additional information, interested persons may call Pitt Technical Institute, 756-3130.

Head-On Crash Left 3 Dead

NORTH WILKESBORO, N. C. (AP) — A head-on collision between a car and a tractor-trailer left three young Asheboro men dead on U. S. 421 Monday.

They were identified as Edward L. Hedrick, 20, William M. Stevenson, 21, and John P. Stevenson, 22, all carrying papers identifying them as students at Appalachian State University.

Another passenger, Clayton L. Woodie, 20, of Asheboro, was injured, as was the truck driver, Ralph A. Noles of Dardanelle, Ark.

No Tar Heels In Juvenile Study

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The director of an association that will study juvenile detention needs in North Carolina says no Tar Heels will be involved in making the study.

One is to keep "politics" out of the study, John Holmes of Sarasota, Fla., said Monday. He is executive secretary of the National Juvenile Detention Association.

Holmes said he and his consultants are aiming for a study that will produce "an honest document."

The social services agency of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources has contracted with the association to do the study at a cost of $52,891.

Holmes made his comments in the initial meeting of a 20-member review and advisory committee to the study. He noted that the study will not go into the causes of juvenile delinquency. It will probe the general field of detention and care of juvenile offenders while they are awaiting court hearings.

Gov. Bob Scott, who appointed the 20-member advisory committee last month, sent a statement to the group. He said its task will be to arouse and awaken citizens to the problems and needs of juvenile detention.

Scott said, "Surely we will agree that dumping or throwing them (juveniles) in jail with hardened criminals is not the answer or remedy for their first brush with the law, especially before they are afforded a hearing."

Phone Hearing Begins Today

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission planned to open a hearing today on the application of Southern Bell Telephone Co. for $26.5 million a year in higher rates.

The company originally sought $29.6 million in its petition filed last October. However, that figure was reduced to $26.5 million after the commission restored uniform intrastate toll rates last year.

Southern Bell plans to call 15 witnesses during the hearing.

AgnesMoorhead Being Treated

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Actress Agnes Moorhead plans to remain in Rochester as an outpatient of the Mayo Clinic for about a week before returning to her home in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Miss Moorhead, 66, was released from Methodist Hospital on Sunday after having been a patient since Feb. 17. Officials declined Monday to disclose the nature of her illness.

Health Careers Day March 13

Nineteen hospitals and medical care centers will have representatives on the East Carolina University Monday, March 13, ECU's "Health Careers Day."

The hospital representatives will interview applicants among ECU nursing and allied health students for summer and permanent employment. Interested persons in the local community may be interviewed also, said Furney James, ECU Placement Service director.

Interviews will be conducted 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. in the main corridor of the Nursing Building.

James noted that the occasion is jointly sponsored by his office and by the ECU Schools of Nursing and Allied Health and Social Professions.

"Health Careers Day is an effort to bring students and employers together," he said.

"The very good response on the part of North Carolina hospitals indicates that ECU is known as an important source of well-trained health care personnel."

Among the represented hospitals will be:

Cape Fear Valley Point Memorial Hospital, Rex Hospital (Raleigh) Moore Memorial Hospital (Pinehurst), N. C.

N.C. Memorial Hospital (Chapel Hill), Sampson County Memorial Hospital, Memorial Mission Hospital (Asheville), N. C. Baptist Hospital, (Winston-Salem), Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Wilson Memorial Hospital, Cherry Hospital (Goldsboro), Duke Hospital (Durham), Watts Hospital (Durham), N. C. Cerebal Palsy Hospital (Durham), Wake County Memorial Hospital, Wayne County Hospital, and the Greenville Vocational Rehabilitation District Office.

Workshop Board Reviews Needs

The Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center's board of directors held a dinner meeting last week to discuss the needs and opportunities of the workshop.

Appointed to the Industrial Committee were Melvin Moore, Chairman, Fieldcrest Mills; James Hecker, Empire Brush; Harry Allen, Union Carbide; Bill Bellesheim, Burroughs Wellcome; S.A. Rogers, Blue Ridge Shoe Manufacturing Co., Robersonville; and Halbert Lowder, Southern Apparel, Robersonville.

The committee felt that one of the needs of the Workshop was additional sub-contract work.

The Worry Clinic

Our Lifespans Changed Little

Alice is involved in a sex debate. How do you readers vote on her dilemma? Alas, our improved medical treatment is largely offset by new threats to human life that weren't common in ancient days. But the male actually is the more delicate of the two sexes!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case T-519: Alice W., aged 17, has a sex question.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "we are having a debate next week.

"And our topic states: 'The female is the stronger of the human species.'

"Can you offer any scientific facts to help me?

"For I am on the Affirmative Team."

SEX DEBATES

In any debate, it is vital to define the issue more precisely.

Actually, the human male is muscularly much stronger than the female, even when they weigh the same.

Thus, a man who tips the scales at 125 pounds is able to surpass the woman of that same weight in such muscular events as lifting, chinning one's self, running, etc.

Prof. Hrdlicka even tested American Indians and found the same differences in strength between male vs. female.

The ratio in muscular capacity is 29:18, which means the female is only 62 per cent as strong as the male of the same weight.

"But what about disease and longevity?" Alice inquires.

Well, thanks to modern medicine and our aseptic childbirth techniques, American women now outlive American men by from 5 to 7 years!

You readers can even make a quick check on this by looking at your grandparents.

Do you have more grandmothers still alive or more grandfathers?

And in the small towns or villages, are there more widowers or widows?

"But, Dr. Crane," Alice persisted, "maybe the fact that more men smoke and drink to excess, causes them to die earlier."

That's quite true, for we seldom found women with cancer of the lungs till the tobacco advertisers stampeded teen-age females into using fags, much as girls were recently stampeded into mini-skirts and other fashions.

But the male actually seems to inherit a more delicate constitution than the female.

For at birth, the ratio of boy babies to girl babies run about 106 to 100.

But by middle age, this ratio is reversed.

And among the miscarriages, the ratio of boy babies runs at least 125 to 100, thus showing their greater susceptibility to premature death.

Far back in ancient times, the males were subjected to early death due to chronic wars, fighting with animals and contagious diseases.

Women in those primitive times were not as likely to be killed in war or by wild animals.

But they were equally liable to contagious diseases, plus a much greater likelihood of death in childbirth.

So the ratio of the sexes remained about the same then, as now.

For our Vietnam war death rate has been much less than our auto accident rates.

And our modern vaccination against diseases is partly offset by the deaths from tobacco, diabetes, cancer and hard liquor.

Although our average lifespan has now increased till it is about 70 years, that's due chiefly to saving babies, plus wives in childbirth.

For a recent report showed that a modern man, aged 60, has only about 6 weeks more longevity than did a man, aged 60, back in Lincoln's time!

So medicine isn't adding much extra lifespan to you people of middle age!

Debaters and public speakers, send for the booklet "Public Platform Strategy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper. enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

A team of Goren Stars defeated the Dallas Aces, current World's Bridge Champion, in the semi-finals of a tournament recently concluded in Las Vegas. My lineup consisted of Boris Koytchou, Peter Leventritt, Harold Ogust, Bill Root and Howard Schenken of New York City and Bill Seamon of North Miami Beach, and altho they eventually bowed in the final round to Italy's legendary Blue Team—it may be observed that this loss was to an aggregation that won the World's Title from 1957-1959 and again from 1961-1969 before retiring for the next two years.

Today's hand was taken from the finals and netted a swing to the Italians. The bidding presented in the diagram occurred at the table where the Goren Stars held the North-South cards. North had a close decision whether or not to carry on to game over three spades and his decision to pass was influenced perhaps by his anemic trump holding.

The queen of diamonds was opened and the king was played from dummy. Declarer could count eight top tricks, provided trumps divided favorably—five spades, two diamonds and one club. A ninth trick might readily develop from ruffing a club in dummy or else finding a club honor in the East hand.

At trick two the ace of clubs was cashed followed by a small club. Unfortunately for declarer, the suit responded in a most unfavorable manner. South played the ten of clubs and West was in with the jack. The latter returned a third round on which dummy discarded the six of diamonds and East ruffed with the eight of spades. The ace of hearts put West in to play the king of clubs and he was permitted to hold the trick as North and East took discards.

West exited with a diamond to the ace and South proceeded to draw two rounds of trump. When East showed out, declarer attempted to ruff out the nine of diamonds—however, West trumped in with the jack of spades to score the setting trick.

At the other table, the Italians bid up to four spades and once again the queen of diamonds was the opening lead. Walter Avarelli, whose career dates back to the original Italian lineup that defeated my team in the 1957 Title Match, won the trick with dummy's king. Playing for 10 tricks, he decided to develop dummy's hearts.

A trump was led at trick two and the A-K-Q of spades drew the outstanding cards in the suit. A heart was led, West played the five, North the nine and East was in with the king. He shifted to the nine of clubs which was covered by the ten, jack, and ace. Avarelli now led the queen of hearts from dummy and discarded a small club as West went in with the ace of hearts. The latter could cash the king of clubs for the third defensive trick, but dummy's hearts were now established for more than enough discards and the ace of diamonds was the entry card to reach the North hand.

The Italians scored 620 points for scoring a vulnerable game at one table and 100 points for defeating the part score contract at the other.

Copters Helping Protect Trucks

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 3,000 trucks now roll along metropolitan area roads with code numbers painted on their roofs as part of a three-month-old experimental program aimed at foiling hijackers.

When a truck is 30 minutes overdue on a run, police are notified of its intended route, the nature and value of its cargo. Police helicopters begin a search.

After the truck is identified by the four-foot-high code numbers, the helicopter can lay back and follow it while directing radio cars in pursuit, explained Detective Lt. Gerard Littlefield.

LOTS LEFT

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Only a small portion of U.S. soil believed to contain oil and gas resources has been explored, according to oil industry statistics.

Reports indicate geologists believe that 3.2 million square miles of sedimentary basins in the United States could contain energy resources. Only 50,000 square miles are under production.

Twenty-Five Fire Alarms

During the month of February, the Rural Fire Departments throughout Pitt County answered a total of 25 alarms covering a total of 23 fires. Two of the 25 alarms involved mutual aid, which is the case of one fire department going to the aid of another department.

County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said the fires occurred in the following categories; eight grass or woods fires; seven house fires; five automotive fires; and three fires involving buildings other than houses.

Estimated loss due to the 23 fire amount to $58,250 Joyner reports. The total estimated value of property exposed to fire amounted to approximately 97,825.

Staton House Fire Department again was the most active of the county's 18 fire departments, responding to six fires during February.

Local Teachers To Participate In Conference

Local teachers of mathematics will attend a spring conference of the North Carolina Council of Teachers of Mathematics (NCCTM) at Rocky Mount Senior High School Saturday.

The conference, planned for kindergarten through college math teachers, will include workshops, panel discussions, swap sessions and general interest sections.

The highlight of the conference will be a noon luncheon with Dr. Lola May as guest speaker. Dr. May, of Winnetka, Ill., will speak on "creating the Action That Counts."

The following Greenville teachers will participate in the conference: Dr. Katze O. Sowell, ECU, president of the Eastern Region of NCCTM, will preside at the opening session; Dorothy Johnson, vice president for elementary schools; Kemp Baldwin, secretary for the Eastern Region; Pauline Tucker, Elsie Eagan, Mavis Adler, Suyette Jones, Charles Ross and Frances Tyson.

Discussion Of Bible Slated

"Is The Bible Inspired?" will be in question discussed on Wednesday at 8 P.M. in the Catacombs, scene of the Coffee House at the Wesley Foundation on the corner of East Fifth and Holly Streets.

Announcement of the even was made by Presbyterian Campus Minister John N. Miller for the Campus Ministers Association.

The chaplains, Miller said, believe there is a lot of new interest in the Bible on ECU campus and in the community. What the Bible means to people depends greatly on what authority they give to this best-selling book.

In the informal setting of the Coffee House, Miller added, a chance will be given to all interested persons to ask questions or share their opinions.

The Catacombs are located in the basement of Wesley Foundation with entrance from Holly Street by the Pika House and across from Garrett Hall.

The Campus Ministers invites the public to attend.

Plan Organize ACM Chapter

A dutch luncheon will be held Thursday for persons interested in forming a local ACM Chapter (Association for Computing Machinery).

The luncheon will be held at Parker's Restaurant beginning at noon.

Interested persons may contact Dr. F. Milam Johnson, East Carolina University, for further information.

Prehistoric Bones Uncovered

KNIGHTS FERRY, Calif. (AP) — The fossilized bones of a prehistoric ground sloth believed to be 5 million years old have been uncovered in the Sierra foothills of Stanislaus County.

The skeleton is that of Pliomethanastes protistus, a species, until now, found only in Florida, said Dr. Sue Hirschfield, a paleontologist at California State college at Hayward.

A high school biology instructor from nearby Modesto, Harold Govett, discovered the remains in the side of an irrigation ditch.

Pitt NAACP Plans Drive

The Pitt County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will launch its annual membership drive Sunday, according to Pitt branch president D. D. Garrett.

Garrett said the NAACP unit is seeking 1,000 members during the campaign which will run from March 12 to April 9.

The NAACP, Garrett said, "seeks to remove all vestiges of racial discrimination and segregation. It is the nation's largest and most effective civil rights organization, with membership open to all."

The local branch is enlisting the support of churches, labor groups, and social and civic organizations for the current campaign.

Annual memberships are available for $4, $6, $10 and up, and live NAACP memberships, Garrett noted, can be secured for adults for $500 and for children under 13 for $100.

Mrs. Fannie M. Jenkins is serving as chairman of the membership drive.

Richardson Was Guest Speaker

Jack Richardson was guest speaker at the meeting of the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville on Wednesday night.

Administrator of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Richardson showed slides and spoke to the club about the proposed new hospital.

It was announced that the District Fine Arts Festival will be held in Williamston March 11. District Junior Day will be held April 5 in Rocky Mount.

Department reports were given by the various chairmen. Mrs. William Fuqua, president, conducted the business session.

Africa's 2,700-mile Zaire River, formerly known as the Congo, has 4,000 islands.

Rezoning Plea Sees Rejection

WILLIAMSTON—The Williamston Town Board, Monday night, rejected a rezoning request for property on Horton Street. The initial request, to have the area rezoned from R-6 residential to highway commercial, was the subject of a public hearing in January at which time extensive opposition was voiced.

Two resignations of town officials were were announced at the meeting. Mrs. Nan Boykin, Administrative Assistant for the Town, has resigned to accept employment in Wake County. Charles Alston, of the Williamston Planning Board, was the second resignation accepted. The board had no replacements to suggest, and will take this matter up in the April meeting.

J. E. Griffin was reappointed to a three year term as a member of the Williamston Town Planning Board, with the appointment retroactive to November 1971.

A recommendation to combine the Williamston Housing Authority and the Williamston Redevelopment Commission was tabled for further study, and will be discussed at more length in the April meeting. The purpose of the recommendation is the cut down on expenses by placing both agencies under one staff.

Two new members of the Police Department, James Phelps and Gary Taylor, were introduced to board members by Police Chief John L. Swain.

An ordinance that will prohibit parking on the west side of Horton Street from Church to Main Street was approved and will go into effect when the ordinance is drawn up.

Four applicants are on record seeking a taxi permit that is now open for assignment. The board's tentative decision is to grant the permit to Mrs. Annie Mabry. The law requires that a second voting be taken at the end of a 30 day period. This will be done at the April meeting.

Reach Decision In Flooding Case

WILLIAMSTON—Martin County Commissioners Monday reached a determination on a long pending case of flooding of property belonging to Jimmy Lee near Bear Grass. The commissioners went on record as saying as far as they are concerned, improvement of the road causing the problem is the number one priority in the county, and they have informed the State Highway Commission of their feeling in this matter.

Commissioners also made a determination to have timber cut on property which has been purchased for the county's solid waste disposal site, and approved a request for improvements on the road leading to the current waste disposal site. The road will be estended from 50 to 100 yards into the area.

Another action approved was the transfer of funds from the Economic Development Commission to Martin Technical Institute. A request for a doctor's complex of offices to be built adjacent to the new county hospital was also approved by the commissioners.

In a final action, commissioners requested a new map be made of all county home property, a total of about 140 to 150 acres.

After a long meeting, the commissions adjourned the March meeting and will reconvene at 7:30 p.m. on March 13 to consider other items not considered at the regular meeting Monday.

Queen May Visit Canada In 1973

OTTAWA (AP) — Queen Elizabeth may visit Canada next year to attend celebrations marking the 100th anniversary of the confederation that linked Prince Edward Island and Canada.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau told the House of Commons Monday that he had discussed arrangements for a visit by the queen with the province's premier, Alexander B. Campbell.

Oratorical Contest Winners Selected

Winners were named last night in the 1972 Boys' Oratorical Contest, sponsored by the Evening Optimist Club of Greenville.

Charles Ross, president of the club, awarded trophies to Gregg Denton, first place, Stuart Wells, second, and Felton Best, third. Certificates of participation were presented to all of the contestants.

The winners were among six boys competing in the preliminary contest. The subject of this year's contest was "Our Challenge—Involvement." The first place winner earned the right to represent the local Optimist Club in the Zone Contest to be held in the near future in Rocky Mount.

E. R. Carrraway and Jim Harris, co-chairmen of the Optimist Boys Work Committee, conducted the contest.

In addition to the contest, the club also held ladies night. The dinner meeting was held at the Woman's Club building. President Ross welcomed contestants, parents, judges and wives of the club members.

Forthcoming activities planned by the club include Bicycle Safety Week set for April 17-22, announced chairman of the week, Lyman Daughtery.

Ed Dixon told of plans to hold a Holiday Hipperdrome, which is an indoor circus, around Aug. 17.

Long-range plans concerning the annual club Chirstmas tree sale were reported by C. P. Saw.

Jim O'Brien reported that in approxiimately six weeks, the club would be constructing 30-foot welcoming road signs on four main highways leading into Greenville.

Dental Hygiene Course Planned

Dr. M. W. Aldridge will conduct a 10-hour course for dental hygiene students at Wayne Community College, telling and showing them how to teach disease control procedures to patients.

The five two-hour sessions will include lecture and practical demonstration on teaching patients flossing and crevice brushing techniques to prevent tooth decay, gum disease, and bad breath originating in the mouth.

March 18, Dr. Aldrige will be in Asheville for the last of five seminars put on across the state to teach practicing dentists how to teach their patients the techniques of disease control to prevent dental decay and periodontal disease. Over 400 dentists and dental auxiliaries from 60 different communities have attended one of the four seminars held so far.

Shanghai is China's main seaport and one of the largest in the world.

Number Of Talks Set By Bundy

Rep. Sam D. Bundy will speak to several groups during March.

Tonight he will address the convention banquet of the North Carolina York Rite Bodies in Washington. He will fill the pulpit at Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church next Sunday night. Thursday, March 23, he will speak to the Ayden Rotary Club, and Wednesday, March 29, he will be the featured speaker at the Onslow Scottish Rite Ladies' Night banquet.
