

New Pitt Schools Muskie Image Tarnished Office Building Plans Are Offered By New Hampshire Vote

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Cameron Dudley, representing the architectural firm of Dudley and Shoe, yesterday appeared before the Pitt County Board of Education and presented preliminary study plans for a proposed administrative office building for the county schools.

As proposed in the plans submitted yesterday, the facility would contain 16,344 square feet and would be located on U.S. 264 bypass in front of the present county school bus garage.

Included in the proposed building would be approximately 37 offices in addition to the superintendent's office and space for his secretary, a small kitchenette, staff lounge, four conference rooms (including one that can be divided into three separate rooms by folding doors or opened to accommodate about 150 persons for large gatherings). There will also be space for storage areas, bookkeeping and clerical areas, a lobby and reception area.

General construction of the facility would include exterior walls of wood frame with brick veneer.

According to the architect, projected cost of such a facility would be about $300,000, including site improvement and architectural fees.

Dudley was asked to modify his preliminary plans to include more storage space for records and supplies.

The architect also presented proposed plans for 12 additional classrooms, kitchen, multi-purpose room, and storage area to be added to the A.G. Cox School, Winterville.

According to the plans, the base bid would include the multi-purpose room, kitchen and eight classrooms (12,456 square feet); alternate number one would be two additional classrooms (2,046 square feet); and alternate number two would be for two additional classrooms (2,604 square feet).

Dudley estimated the cost of the project would be about $309,230 (not including site improvement).

John B. Lewis Jr., president of the Farmville Child Development Center, Inc., yesterday asked the board to consider operating the center in conjunction with the county school system.

Lewis, along with Mrs. Sarah Allen and Mrs. Myree Hayes, met with the board in December and asked about the possibility of the county schools operating the center. At that time, Lewis was told to return at a later date with specific information concerning the center.

Lang Given State Post

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott today named John Albert Lang Jr., a vice president of

JOHN A. LANG, JR.

East Carolina University, as secretary of North Carolina's new Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

The appointment completes the lineup of nine new secretaries for departments created under the state government reorganization act adopted by the 1971 General Assembly.

Lang, 61, became East Carolina's vice president for external affairs last year after 36 years' service with the federal government. He joined the ECU staff after serving as administrative assistant to the secretary of the Air Force.

He has held the rank of major general in the Air Force Reserve since 1967.

Lang's department will include the adjutant general's office, the Office of Civil Defense, the Civil Air Patrol, the Department of Veterans Affairs and the National Guard Mutual Assistance compact.

Scott on Monday named George W. Randall, a veteran administrator of correctional systems, as secretary of the Department of Social Rehabilitation and Control.

The two departments will join 17 others in an umbrella-type organization responsible for operations previously handled by about 300 agencies, boards and departments.

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) —

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the winner of New Hampshire's lead-off Democratic primary, fought today for control of the state's delegation to the Democratic National Convention in an unexpectedly close primary contest with Sen. George S. McGovern.

The South Dakota senator enhanced his presidential credentials by polling well over one-third of the vote in the presidential preference primary, a strong second-place showing which he said would give him a big boost across the country.

As counting in the separate vote for the 20 delegate spots continued through the night, far behind the preference totals, early indications of the expected Muskie sweep faded and McGovern's backers moved towards a possible split of the delegation.

By 7 a.m. EST, with 38 per cent of the delegate vote counted, the tally showed Muskie with 11 delegates, McGovern with nine. The 20 delegates will cast 18 convention votes.

By New Hampshire law, delegates who run pledged to a candidate must vote for him until released by the candidate, or until he is out of the convention contest.

All the Nixon delegates are pledged to him. In the Democratic contests, the 11 delegates who appear to be won by Muskie are pledged to him, and the other nine are pledged to McGovern.

The increasing chance of a split return in the contest for delegates further clouded the showing of Muskie as he headed for a tough contest in Florida next week without the overwhelming New England sendoff that would have strengthened his bid for the White House.

Muskie, battling McGovern and three other significant challengers, fell short of the absolute majority in preference voting that his managers had set privately as a New Hampshire goal.

The result thus encouraged McGovern and the rest of the large field of Democratic presidential contenders who will face Muskie next Tuesday in Florida's 11-way primary contest.

In the Republican race, President Nixon polled about 70 per cent of the vote in a sweeping victory over two GOP opponents of his bid for a second term.

Nixon loyalists won all 14 delegate races.

Democratic returns covering 94 per cent of the anticipated vote gave Muskie 48 per cent to 37 per cent for McGovern with the rest scattered among a long list of on the ballot and write-in candidates.

Muskie had contended before the balloting that his chief New Hampshire opponent was a phantom rival in the form of an unwritten percentage—to be determined after the votes were in—which he needed to score regardless of whether he won the primary.

McGovern, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and a spokesman for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the latter two among Muskie's Florida rivals who shied away from a New Hampshire contest, immediately cited the Maine senator's apparent failure to reach 50 per cent as a sign of weakness by the front-running contender.

McGovern told cheering supporters here that his feat in easily surpassing the 25 per cent goal he had set "gives us a leg up on everyone else."

"How we did here, on what was thought to be Muskie turf, is going to give us a big boost in the rest of the country," said McGovern, who has long contended a strong showing in the primaries would enable him to overcome the low ratings in public opinion polls that have hampered his 14-month-old candidacy.

Agnew, Peabody Are Endorsed

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) —

Republicans voting in Tuesday's primary election endorsed the renomination of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, and Democrats endorsed the vice presidential candidacy of former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody.

Peabody's name was on the ballot and he actively campaigned. A write-in campaign was conducted for Agnew.

With 81 per cent of the precincts in, Agnew had 36,664 votes, or 71 per cent of those cast on the Republican side.

TWA Jetliner Blown Up In Extortion Scheme

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Despite two searches and the presence of armed guards, a bomb exploded inside an unoccupied Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 jetliner here today.

It apparently was part of an extortion scheme which has triggered a worldwide bomb threat against TWA jetliners, authorities said.

The bomb, planted in or near the cockpit, exploded at 3:55 a.m., about seven hours after the plane arrived nonstop from New York with 10 passengers and a seven-member crew. It ripped a huge hole in the front fuselage, hurling debris for 100 feet at McCarran International Airport.

Law officers and TWA officials said they felt the bomb was one of those a mysterious extortionist has said he planted on TWA jetliners in order to get $2 million in ransom from the airline.

Trained dogs sniffed out a bomb Tuesday in a cockpit of a TWA jetliner en route from New York to Los Angeles after the plane returned to New York. No other bombs have been reported found.

No one had any idea how the bomb got aboard the plane here. It had been searched from nose to tail before leaving New York and upon landing in Las Vegas, said Charles Wyre, TWA general manager in Las Vegas.

In addition, two deputies guarded the four-engine 707 and three other TWA jetliners, of which were parked together in a loading area.

N.C. Adjutant General Visits Local Guardsmen

Maj. Gen. Ferd L. Davis, the Adjutant General of North Carolina, was in Greenville Tuesday night to meet and speak with local National Guardsmen, their families and interested friends.

Appearing at the informal session at Greenville's new National Guard Armory, Davis told the gathering of the importance of continued improved relations between the community and National Guard.

The general reminded wives of local Guardsmen that they must stand behind their husbands in order for the Guard to maintain its level of strength and readiness.

Guard strength in North Carolina is above neighboring states, Davis reported, and enlistments are steady. He cautioned that the enlistment strength of the Guard must be kept up, especially in view of the trend toward an all-volunteer Army.

Also on the program were members of the Adjutant Generals, staff from Raleigh including Lt. Col. James M. Fletcher who discussed the status of the North Carolina National Guard Association. Fletcher currently serves as president of the membership association.

The colonel also discussed the possibility of forming a rifle team in the Greenville area and reported on the activities of the state rifle squad that he heads in Raleigh.

Former Prisons Director Named New Dept. Head

RALEIGH (AP) — George Randall, a former director of prison systems in North Carolina and Oregon, will take over as head of the state's new Department of Social Rehabilitation and Control on April 1.

Gov. Bob Scott appointed Randall to the post Tuesday, apparently passing over current Corrections Commissioner Lee Bounds.

The Departments of Correction, Youth Development and Probation along with the Board of Paroles will come under the supervision of the new cabinet-level department created under state government reorganization.

Randall, 61, has been serving as Bounds' deputy since May 1969. His association with the prison system began in 1956 when former Gov. Luther Hodges selected him from a study of prison industries. Hodges later appointed him chairman of the Board of Paroles and in 1960 made him director of the prison system.

Randall held the post until 1965 when he became director of Oregon's corrections department.

He served in the House in the 1953 and 1955 sessions of the North Carolina General Assembly.

Scott's administrative assistant, Ben Roney, said Randall's appointment "was no reflection on Bounds' ability." He said under the new department Randall will have control over personnel and budgetary affairs only.

"The secretary couldn't run the prison. He wouldn't have any control over prison policy," Roney said. He said Scott decided to leave Bounds in his present position—a four-year term subject to the governor's approval—rather than appoint him to a "political position."

Randall said he anticipated no problems because of his former association with Bounds. "Lee Bounds in my book is a top man and I'm looking forward to a continued close working relationship with him," Randall said.

Bounds said he would have no comment on the appointment.

Cranberry Nut Bread Easy

CRANBERRY NUT BREAD — The cranberries for the bread may be chopped with a knife or with an old-fashion-style cutter in a wooden bowl.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

If you like a quick bread that is flat on top, or at most develops only a tiny crack, this recipe for Cranberry Nut Bread may appeal to you. A sweet offering, it doesn't need to be spread with butter. Serve it at a buffet supper table with baked ham or at a family meal as dessert. It goes without saying that the bread is also good at snacktime.

CRANBERRY NUT BREAD
2 cups unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup fresh or frozen cranberries, coarsely knife-chopped
1 cup walnuts or pecans, coarsely chopped
1 egg
¾ cup milk
¼ cup butter, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla

Line the bottom of a loaf pan (about 8½ by 4½ by 2½ inches) with wax paper; grease paper.

In a large mixing bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder and salt; stir in sugar, then cranberries and nuts.

In a small mixing bowl beat egg slightly; add milk, butter and vanilla and beat to combine. Add to flour mixture and stir just until dry ingredients are moistened. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until browned and a cake tester inserted in center comes out free of batter—about 55 to 65 minutes.

Turn out on wire rack; remove paper; turn right side up. Cool. Wrap in transparent plastic wrap and store several hours before cutting.

NOTE: If you use a 1½-quart glass loaf dish (about 8½ by 4½ by 2½ inches) for baking this bread, grease it and do not line with wax paper.

Widows Share Experiences, Learn To Help Each Other

By MARY LU ZUBER
Houston Chronicle Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "If only I had someone to talk with, someone who understands," pleads a widow. "It's so lonely," adds another.

"Doctors load you with tranquilizers and tell you you'll be all right. That doesn't help."

"You're a fifth wheel. Your friends are nice but. . . You're just alone."

These are widows talking, eagerly sharing experiences and problems, reaching out to help others and to be helped.

In only a few minutes of conversation, it's apparent one of their biggest troubles is loneliness. But these women are doing something about that loneliness and other problems widows face. They answered a call to be volunteers with Widowed Inc., a service organization which aims to help people adjust when they lose a mate.

Shirley Wolfer, executive director who lost her husband 16 months ago, started Widowed, Inc., in Houston after discovering the organization on a trip to Boston. A board of directors was formed and a call for volunteers brought out more than 50 persons at the organizational meeting.

Margaret Cox, Addie Goldman, Margaret Rosenthal and Mary K. Winttingham know the traumas of being widowed and they know one of the greatest needs is someone to talk with.

Listen to them:

"I have no family here, no one," says Mrs. Cox. "My husband and I were in the laundry business and we sold it before he died. I don't want to go back into that. Yet I don't have any experience in anything else."

"I'd never worked before. I had done volunteer work and some of the offices offered me jobs. I nearly fainted when I heard the salary. It was so little," says Mrs. Goldman. "Luckily I went into a good field, real estate."

"A widow often thinks she can live a lot more cheaply, but the cost of living without your husband doesn't drop in proportion to the loss of his income," says Mrs. Rosenthal.

Since finances are a big problem to many widows, one aim of Widowed, Inc. is to guide persons to the proper counseling in financial and legal matters.

"I lost some of my credit cards because I was honest and told the companies my husband had died. They sent me applications for a new card and when they saw I had no job, they didn't give me one," Mrs. Wolfer says.

"You're thrown out of society. You can't go out like you used to. You're a prisoner in your home. People tell you to take a trip. Well whom are you going with?" says Mrs. Goldman.

"Go with another widow," answers Mrs. Rosenthal.

"The real answer is that you have to change your lifestyle," says Mrs. Goldman.

"You're always doing everything the way you think he'd want you to do. I still do it, but you've got to realize it's you now, not him," Mrs. Rosenthal says.

Children can be life savers and heart breakers when a mate is lost, the women say.

"I don't know what I would have done without them. They carried on with their college just as their father had planned for them. They were so strong I felt I had to live up to them," Mrs. Goldman says.

"Children can also put you over the barrel," says Mrs. Wolfer. "They'll say 'Daddy promised me a motorcycle' and you have to explain that Daddy isn't there anymore and finances have changed. They have to adjust. But they can really hit you hard."

"You get to the point that you think you're going to blow your mind. We hope to keep people from bombing out," Mrs. Goldman says.

What Widowed, Inc., hopes to say by its actions is, "You're not alone in your feelings. Thousands of others are just like you."

Keep A Grude In Its Own Generation

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: This may seem like a small problem to you, but it's big to me. My husband's sister is a cat. About 20 years ago my husband and I had a big fight with her, and we decided then that we wanted nothing more to do with her, and we haven't spoken since.

Well, the other day my husband ran into this cat's 28-year-old son, who invited him to his house to meet his wife and see their new baby. And my husband went!

When he told me, I wanted to wring his neck. He said he only went to meet the boy's wife and see the baby, and he didn't think there was anything wrong with it. I became terribly upset and still am. Abby, we decided 20 years ago that we wanted nothing to do with that cat. And that includes her kids! Am I wrong to be upset? Or was my husband wrong for going to his nephew's?

STILL BURNING

DEAR STILL: Obviously the nephew didn't inherit his mother's grudge against your husband or he wouldn't have invited him to his home. I think you're wrong to be upset. Most people make enough enemies in a lifetime without going into the second generation.

DEAR ABBY: This is the most difficult letter I have ever had to write, but I desperately need help with this problem, and I can't ask anyone else:

I am the only daughter of a wonderful mother who had a hard time raising my four brothers and me. She's been a widow for many years and lives alone.

Everyone loves Mom. She is so kind and good, but there is a problem which is very embarrassing to all of us. I think Mom must have lost her sense of smell, and she doesn't realize that at times [quite often, really] she has a very offensive body odor.

We have tried hinting about how "older people" should bathe more often, but it doesn't seem to penetrate.

She can't understand why her daughters-in-law don't visit her more often or invite her to their homes. It just breaks my heart to see Mom shunned this way, yet it's so hard for me to tell her. I hate to hurt her. Can you help me?

NO NAME OR CITY

DEAR NO NAME: Tell your mother that she must bathe every day in order to keep herself sweet and fragrant. Explain that the body chemistry changes as we grow older [it does], while our sense of smell sometimes diminishes. Bring her a little gift of bubble bath, soap, dusting powder and cologne when you tell her. It would be cruel to withhold such necessary help from the dear lady.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a waitress in Burlington, Ia., for nearly nine years, and I have never been able to figure out why people will come into a cafe and always sit at a table where there are dirty dishes when there are plenty of clean tables they could just as easily have sat at. I have asked waitresses who work at other restaurants, and they can't figure it out either. Can you explain it? CAROL W.

DEAR CAROL: It's probably for the same reason people prefer to sit in a crowded little kitchen even tho there is a larger, more comfortable room available. Call it the coziness of clutter. And if it's any comfort to you, it's the same in New York City as it is in Burlington.

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with the woman who doesn't like to share her recipes.

I still don't give mine out unless I'm forced to. And I have yet to hear of the copycat who is as pleased with her results as she was with mine. CAN'T SIGN MY NAME

DEAR ABBY: My thanks to you for your open-minded response to "Disgusted with You"—the zealot writer who condemned you for sanctioning the right of free belief.

I once read that more blood has been shed in defense of the Bible than in defense of any other singular instrument of "peace." I become more convinced daily that it is true.

As the daughter of an Episcopal bishop, and as one who is more and more dismayed daily by the cruelty and criticism that so many "Christians" level upon one another, I look to you and those like you for the courage and encouragement I need to become as giving, loving and sympathetic as He, who founded Christianity was.

The ultimate goal is beyond my grasp, but you, and other sincere Christians make it all seem worth striving for.

Please print this. You are certainly due one credit for every criticism. In admiration,

ELIZABETH HARGRAVE BROWN
SATELLITE BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: Somebody handed me a gift, and I said, "Thank you very much." I was later criticized because I didn't go home and write that person a thank-you note.

Abby, I am a 62-year-old lady and this is the first time I ever heard that you are supposed to send a written thank you for a present somebody hands you in person. I said "Thank you" when I got it. Wasn't that enough?

LOTS TO LEARN

DEAR LOTS: Even after verbal thanks are expressed, it's considered an especially gracious gesture to send a written note of thanks, but it's not absolutely necessary.

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with your advice to "New in Town," who served an outstanding dessert and was reluctant to give the recipe out.

You said, "Would your enjoyment be diminished if others enjoyed it, too? Share!"

I say, let "New in Town" keep her recipe to herself. She's not selfish. She's just an individual with a special talent. Must we share everything?

She should write that woman a note saying she doesn't want to offend her, but that recipe is a family secret and she prefers to keep it that way. [And if she ever invites that woman to her home again, she should be sure to hide her recipe file.]

VIVA INDIVIDUALISM

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

East Carolina Being Watched

Even though ECU president Leo Jenkins will not be in the gubernatorial race this year, political observers around the state are still keeping a watch on things in the East Carolina camp.

Ned Cline, political writer for the Greensboro Daily News reported this week that Jenkins was considered earlier for a secretary's post in the reorganized state government. However, the article said, Jenkins apparently was not interested.

Cline reports anew, though, that John A. Lang, Jr., ECU vice president, will become secretary of the new Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

Lang is a former assistant to the Secretary of the Air Force and a career government-military man.

The Military and Veterans Affairs post is the last of the new secretary slots to be filled in the reorganized government planned. There is speculation that the post will be filled next week.

Cline also reported that Jenkins has said he is happy to remain at ECU and work for a top-flight medical school.

There had been speculation that Jenkins might be shopping for another university job, the article stated; maybe even at Western Carolina where the president has resigned.

The Greensboro paper reported that Jenkins would not say who he supported in the gubernatorial race. "I've got to see what I can get done for our med school," he was quoted as saying. The article concluded that apparently neither Taylor or Bowles had committed themselves to a full-scale med school plan.

Both Robert Morgan, chairman of the ECU board, and Leo Jenkins, its president, are definitely out of the gubernatorial race for this year. Yet it is apparent that ECU is very much a part of what is going on in Raleigh.

N.C. Expands Benefits Plan

By BRYAN HAILSLIP
RALEIGH, N.C.—Jobless pay benefits become available in 1972 to another 152,000 Tar Heel Workers.

They are coming under unemployment insurance through expansion of coverage to come 42,000 employers, including state hospitals and higher education institutions, non-profit organizations, and

Prior to the extension, unemployment insurance in North Carolina reached to 88,000 employers and around 1,300,000 workers.

Major elements of the state's 2,200,000 civilian work force now uncovered are agricultural labor, those in domestic and household service, state and local government employees, religious organization for those hired for religious purposes, and a few others.

What unemployment insurance means can be measured by the $52,619,877 in benefits paid to roughly 250,000 workers in the year ended Feb. 29.

"I don't know what in the world we'd do without it," said Chairman Kendall. "For the person out of work through no fault of his own, the benefits can keep him going."

The philosophy was spelled out by the 1936 special session of the legislature which adopted the employment security law to meet a federal deadline and retain administration at the state level.

Barrier Against Job Loss

"Economic insecurity due to unemployment is a serious menace to the health, morals and welfare of the people of this state," the act read. "Involuntary unemployment is therefore a subject of general interest and concern which requires appropriate action by the legislature to prevent its spread and to lighten its burden which now so often falls with crushing force upon the unemployed worker and his family."

The average weekly benefit in North Carolina is $39.71, available for a period up to 26 weeks out of 52. Eligibility requirements must be met to qualify for benefits.

Payroll taxes are paid into the trust fund from which benefits are drawn. Separate accounts are maintained for each employer and each employee, in order to establish experience credit ratings.

While some states have bankrupted their funds and been forced to borrow from the federal government, with resulting steep levies on employers, North Carolina has maintained its fund in sound condition, Kendall said.

Presently, the fund totals some $423 million dollars. Income to the fund last year, including payroll taxes and interest, amounted to slightly more than $67 million.

"We have one of the strongest funds in the nation," Kendall said. "It is actuarially sound, based on study and planning."

It represents a nice nest egg against a rainy day for the covered Tar Heel workers and their families, he added.

businesses with one-to-three persons on the payroll.

Gearing them into the system is a mammoth paperwork undertaking for the Employment Security Commission, the agency which administers out-of-work benefits and job-finding services in North Carolina.

"We are coming along very well," said ESC Chairman Henry E. Kendall, chief of the agency through the administrations of seven Tar Heel governors. "Problems are being ironed out, and cooperation is good."

First quarter payroll tax payments soon will be due from the newlycovered employers. The federal Unemployment Tax Act levy is 3.2 per cent of the first $4,200 paid to a covered worker in a calendar year. North Carolina employers pay one-half of one per cent to the federal government and 2.7 per cent under the state's Employment Security Law.

Experience Sets Rate

Credit ratings based on his own experience may reduce the employer's rate. For example, 31 per cent of the state's covered employers currently are paying the minimum 1 per cent rate.

Thus, while the newly-covered employer will begin at the standard rate they may in time pay a lower assessment.

North Carolina is ahead of sister states in implementing the extension of coverage which became effective Jan. 1, said Fuller Martin, director of the unemployment insurance division. Notices went out early in the year to some 57,000 employers likely to be affected, and already replies are in from 51,000.

They responded voluntarily, said Martin, with the persuasion of a quotation from the statute on the penalty for failure to do so.

Based on the replies processed so far, Martin projected 42,000 new employers liable for coverage.

Coverage Is Broad

Hog Cholera Problem Has Returned To N.C.

Hog cholera has proven a problem to many North Carolina counties over the past few years and now it appears it is back with us again.

State Veterinarian Thomas F. Zweigart reported the disease has been discovered in Hoke, Johnston, Moore, and Robeson Counties.

A number of hogs had to be exterminated and a state-wide quarantine on swine went into effect.

Hopefully hog cholera can be isolated before it spreads too far.

Fla. Governor Takes Chance

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—The Democratic Presidential primary campaign here, a snake-pit of lethargy, has now been transformed into a bruising busing battle between Gov. Reubin Askew, a church-going teetotaler with steel in his spine who had hoped to avoid any entanglement in the primary, and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, who is far ahead of his opponents in the March 14 primary election.

Askew's bold decision to stake his prestige on smothering the burning school busing issue has both angered and dismayed some of his political allies here in the state capital.

"His approval rating was 80 per cent in December," one Askew ally told us forlornly. "Now he's risking it all, trying to stop the wind."

The "wind" is a straw-vote question forced onto the March 14 ballot over Askew's objections asking voters to vote for or against a Constitutional amendment banning "forced busing."

With Wallace's seemingly invulnerable lead in the Presidential primary resting largely on his own anti-busing rhetoric, Askew is now trying to raise $50,000 for a one-week saturation television campaign with an admittedly modest goal: reduce the huge anti-busing straw-vote to less than a 2-1 majority.

At a private meeting with supporters in Miami Friday, he got pledges for $15,000 from such diverse sources as the AFL-CIO steelworkers, the Urban League, a Northern financier, and a Tallahassee bank president.

Askew, chosen to keynote the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach next July, will also try for an offsetting 2-1 vote in favor of a second straw-vote question he insisted be placed on the March 14 ballot: whether voters favor "an equal opportunity for quality education for all children...and oppose a return to a dual (segregated) system of public schools."

But his prospect for anything like that result is dubious indeed.

In fact, by insisting on placing that second question on the ballot, Askew ran a grave risk. If he cannot get a majority to vote yes on "equal opportunity," black parents will perceive the vote as evidence that the white majority never really has accepted the painful adjustment to equality in the public schools.

Moreover, Askew's decision to meet the busing issue—and the Wallace Presidential campaign here—head-on is certain to galvanize anti-busing forces.

The expected primary vote of about one million will now probably be swelled an additional 100,000 or more by the drama of the governor's television campaign in the baling busing battle.

The prospect of Askew losing such an unequal contest is already having a subtle effect on his popularity. Still another question on the ballot, for example, is a legal referendum (not a straw-vote) on Askew's much praised plan for an overdue reorganization of Florida's

It's Only Every 4 Years

WATERVILLE VALLEY, N.H. — Every four years 465,000 newspapermen and presidential candidates invade New Hampshire for the nation's first presidential primary. The citizens of New Hampshire welcome this diversion from an otherwise long, cold winter.

In Waterville Valley I spoke to Mr. Seth Corcoran, who waxes skis for a living when he isn't being interviewed by the press.

"I hope you don't mind if I ask you a few questions," I said.

"Don't mind at all. This is the fifth interview I've given today. Been on television 12 times this week, including all three networks and the BBC. What do you want to know?"

"I was wondering if you could tell me how it feels to have so much pressure on you? After all, the entire country is watching closely to see what New Hampshire does."

Seth said, "It's a tremendous responsibility."

Other Editors Say Wages Of Amnesty

(Jacksonville Daily News)

Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts thinks an amnesty should be granted those who resisted the Vietnam draft or went into exile to escape military service. Holding a hearing to create public support for this view, he asked "How much of a penalty are we going to ask these people to pay?" saying he did not believe those who left the country were getting much of a "free ride."

The other side of the coin should be blazoned for men like Kennedy and others of like mind to understand the consequences of their view. Especially as Kennedy insisted at the hearing that "Most of the political leaders of this country are asking for amnesty" for Vietnam war resisters "and they're going to the American public to try to get it."

Well, Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr is one leader who doesn't agree. He testified as to the disruptive effect of an amnesty on the draft and one America's ability to defend herself in the future. He undoubtedly speaks more accurately for the American public than the Senator.

Granting amnesty now would be unfair and a dangerous precedent, Tarr said. The induction system could be wrecked by granting total amnesty now to those who chose exile rather than to fight in Vietnam. It could jeopardize the safety of the nation in future conflicts, set a dangerous precedent of selective acceptance of laws and be unfair to men willing to enter the armed forces when drafted. Finally, the nation would accept a precedent for permitting the evasion of Selective Service law, which might someday be an unwelcome tradition.

That is powerful straight talk. But Kennedy did not seem impressed. We suspect that many Americans are impressed. We don't think most of the political leaders of this country are asking for amnesty, as Kennedy says they are. There are those who are self-seeking, who may be blind to the public backfire that amnesty now would create. But Tarr speaks for the majority.

I'll tell you that. The big problem is that we just don't have enough people in this state for all the candidates that are running here. I've shaken hands with Muskie seven times, McGovern eight times, Yorty four times and McCloskey three times. Ashbrook is coming up this afternoon to shake hands with me, and I've got an appointment with John Lindsay to shake hands tomorrow. He already shook hands with me last week in Concord for CBS, but his people say he wants to shake hands again in Waterville Valley for NBC."

"That must keep you busy," I said.

"Yup. But the primary brings a lot of people into the state, and if we don't shake hands with the candidates, they won't come here. Besides, shaking hands with the candidates in the wintertime is very good for blood circulation."

"It's great how you've taken all this attention in stride, Seth."

"Wal, it's only every four years you know. The rest of the time no one gives a dang what happens to the people in New Hampshire. So if shaking hands with can-

A Born Loser's Hope

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Many people feel that everybody is born either a winner or a loser—and that nothing he does in life can change his destiny.

Under this theory, naturally, a fellow would rather be born a winner than a loser.

How can he tell for sure which he is? It isn't too difficult. Take yourself, for example.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL

President Hoover's campaign to bring money out of hiding through an intense drive against hoarding will receive the support of Greenville Rotarians. This fact was determined at the regular meeting of the organization last night at which time Tom Clifton explained the government bond issue, similar to that adopted during the war, and called on the Rotarians to support it in every way possible. Through the sale of these bonds, President Hoover hopes to bring millions of dollars from their hiding places in sections of the country to relieve the financial strain.

The searchlight of the Lindbergh baby kidnapping investigation today swung its full glare into New England. Two men were arrested in a Boston railroad station while putting through a long distance call to the Lindbergh home.

Strength For Today

TRUE RELIGION

In the Sermon on the Mount occurs this declaration: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. For everyone that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened" (Matthew 7:7) The Bible teaches that God is more anxious to give his good gifts to us than we are to receive them. There are probably not many one-hundred-per-cent atheists, but whatever the percentage is, they make a big noise. It's a bit amusing, however, to see the reaction of an atheist when he gets into any kind of trouble. He can get down on his knees faster and pray more earnestly than most Christian believers. Down in the bottom of his heart he knows that the Being Who created the world is not anxious to harass people but to help them.

It is amazing how earnestly people seek divine aid when they find themselves confronting (or experiencing) trouble, sorrow, financial loss or pain. A good hefty backache, or the announcement of the doctor that an operation must be performed, or the investment we thought would be profitable turning out to be nothing at all—such circumstances will send even the most blatant unbeliever to his or her knees in a hurry. We should certainly never laugh at people who are in trouble—even though they may deserve the trouble they are experiencing—but it is almost amusing to see how fast people can get religion when they are up against a situation that is really frightening.

The assurance of the Bible is: "Ask, and it shall be given you."

Controls Nice For The Banks

By ELMER ROESSNER

The United States has a free enterprise system up to a point. There may be some question whether wage and price controls are compatible with free enterprise. Certainly organized labor does not think so. But there is no free enterprise in interest rates on savings. Interest rate controls have been in effect for years.

This is nice for banks.

Usury laws generally exempt corporations. Competition rules the rates banks may charge for loans. Currently, a lot of money has been pumped into the currency system, banks can get more than they lend, so competition—the free enterprise system—has lowered the prime rate. Most bankers agree that this is a temporary situation. Later this year, if present projections are correct, Treasury and business borrowing will increase the demand for loans and prime rates and all others will rise. Except for rates on savings, which are fixed by the Federal Reserve's Regulation Q.

If a bank is in a booming community and can make loans at high interest rates, it can give away television sets to attract more savings, but it cannot offer competitive interest rates, say seven or eight per cent, to attract more savings.

This situation came under sharp criticism by Lawrence S. Ritter, New York University economist, at the Conference Board's seventh annual financial conference. Discussing the report of the President's Commission on Financial Structure and Regulations, he called its treatment of legal interest rate ceilings on bank time and savings deposits "schizoid."

"A growing preponderance of academic and professional opinion has swung over to the view in recent years that such ceilings are neither justified nor workable."

"Whenever open market interest rates rise above the deposit rate ceilings, financial disintermediation comes into play, with depositors switching their funds out of financial institutions and into the direct purchase of higher-yielding open market securities."

"Although the ostensible purpose of the ceilings is to keep interest rates down," he continued, "in all probability they have frequently had precisely the opposite effect, squeezing market rates higher than they would have been otherwise."

"In addition, deposit interest rates ceilings discriminate against the small depositor, who is prevented by the regulations from receiving the benefits he has a right to expect from higher interest rates. Higher yields are permitted on deposits over $100,000 than on smaller ones. When frustrated small depositors started to shift over to Treasury bills a couple of years ago, the Treasury promptly countered by raising their minimum denomination from $1,000 to $10,000."

He pointed out that the commission in one way or another endorsed every point made above, but recommended that present ceilings on deposits of under $100,000 be kept for 10 years. The commission also noted that there was a zero interest rate ceiling on demand deposits, and that this ceiling is evaded by offering "free" services, but the commission did not recommend the zero ceiling be removed.

Two Premieres Slated By Rose High Students

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Students in Rose High's Vocational Education have branched out on a temporary dramatic expedition that promises to bring some fine entertainment to Greenville on Thursday and Friday nights. At 7:30 p.m. on both those nights, in the Band Room of the school, six boys and five girls from the Vocational Education Department will be on stage enacting roles in two distinctly different one act plays.

The two plays, Graduation Dress and Housebroken are by Claude West, Chairman of the Rose High Vocational Department. This week's staging marks the Greenville premiere of these two one-act plays, written some years ago by West and staged previously in other places.

Graduation Dress, set in the depression year of 1935 in a small mill town of North Carolina, concerns the Norman family. Years of poverty has eroded the moral and spiritual values of the family, with the exception of 17 year old Ona, a senior in high school. Ona's mother, pathetically resigned to the depravity of her husband, her older daughter Nancy, and her two young sons Bud and Christopher Jr., still hopes to salvage something for her youngest child. When Ona is named valedictorian of her graduating class, Ma Norman is determined the girl will have a suitable dress for the graduation exercises.

Pa Norman, wrapped up in pursuits of the next bottle of beer; and the boys, caring only for squandering every penny on having a good time, could care less.

It is Nancy, 25, the oldest of the four children who comes up with the money. Ona's happiness is brief. She discovers that Nancy is providing the money from income she earns as a prostitute.

Even more crushing to Ona is the advances her gentle boyfriend, Warren Barrows, tries to force on her. In despair, Ona feels she must quit school, give up everything she has longed for. The play ends when Warren, coming to apologize for his behavior, leads Nancy to convince Ona that her only hope for happiness is to stand her ground, to graduate and then to break her ties with the family. Ona accepts the logic of Nancy's advice realizing, however, hers will be a lonely victory.

Students appearing in the cast of Graduation Dress are Kathy Ballenger in the role of Ona Norman; Ronnie Woodcock, Warren Barrows; Sallie Jenkins as Ma Norman; Lynn Massey as Nancy Norman; Charlie Wall, Pa Norman; and Thomas Brown and Donnie Simmons as Christopher Jr. and Bud Norman.

The second play on the bill, Housebroken, is much happier fare, a domestic situation with a comic touch.

Janet and Norman Barrett, despite minor differences, are a happily married couple. The Barretts equate happiness with responsibility, and to them, responsibility is synonymous with children, which they have.

The Barretts are fond of a younger couple, their friends Charles and Sylvia Kramer, for whom things seems not to be going too well. Convinced that the salvation of the Kramer's marriage depends on their having children, Norman and Janet separately and unknown to each, indulge in counseling. Norman encourages Charles; and Janet encourages Sylvia to make necessary overtures.

Some lighthearted complications ensue, but all ends well with Charles and Sylvia deciding that "No matter whose idea it is, it's a good one."

The quartet making up the Housebroken cast are Jim Heidenreich as Charles Kramer; Valerie Hooper as Sylvia Kramer; Ricky Creech as Norman Barrett; and Sue Harrington, Janet Barrett.

West is directing and producing both the plays, with Jasper Perry as assistant director and supervisor of publicity.

The technical cast is Darryl Pennington, lights; Wayne Haddock, scenery; and Ervin Boyd, assistant for lights and scenery.

Tickets at 75 cents each are now on sale for the two night run. All proceeds will be used by the vocational education students to sponsor their annual employer-employee banquet, a traditional annual affair in which the students honor Greenville employers hiring them in the vocational program.

Interested persons should not delay getting tickets, as seating is limited for this production. The band room, site of the play, can seat only approximately 200 persons for each of the two performances.

Tickets are available from vocational education students or by calling 752-2344.

Vote Officials At Four Schools

The Pitt County Board of Elections will have representatives at the four Pitt County high schools to register students who will be 18 years of age by November 7.

The representatives will be at North Pitt today. Registration will be held at D. H. Conley Thursday and at Ayden-Grifton High School Friday. The registration will be held at Farmville Central Monday.

Students will need some positive proof of their birth date such as driver's license or birth certificate.

Claims Failure By Department

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan says the inadequate funding of the state's mental hospitals must be blamed in part on the Department of Mental Health for its failure "to convey to the people of North Carolina a sense of mission about the care of the mentally ill."

Morgan said in a speech in Charlotte Tuesday that the "weaknesses of the system have been exposed" by both a State Bureau of Investigation report and a study by the North Carolina Mental Health Association.

He rejected the mental health department's contention that conditions in state mental hospitals were caused by a lack of funds.

"Surely the absence of a sense of mission, of inspired leadership, cannot be blamed on insufficient funding alone, for others have labored with far less resources and far more inspiration," Morgan said.

He said the "only reasonable thing" for the department to do in the face of the reports is to

New No. 1

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina has a new "No. 1" — a $10,372 Cadillac which Gov. Bob Scott will use for official trips.

The 1972 model, which now carries the state's "1" license plate, replaces a 1970 limousine that has carried the chief executive to most parts of the state. The trips include one down the Outer Banks to let children ride in "No. 1."

The state's surplus property officer, George W. Williams, said the 1970 car was sold to a Greensboro funeral home for $5,950.

District Winner

A Martin County educator has been named as a district winner in the 1972 Terry Sanford Award competition. Mrs. Beulah Beatty, along with 14 other teachers, was identified for her creativity and ability to initiate innovative programs in teaching or administration.

Announcement of the state award winner will be made at the opening session of the North Carolina Association of Educators Convention in the Greensboro Coliseum April 6.

(Continued from page 4) trial court system. Askew will avoid that subject between now and the election out of fear that his overt support might boomerang.

In the face of this political misery, Askew is unshakable. Denying any intent to build a national reputation on his courageous busing stand, he pleads against "the hypocrisy we have witnessed in recent days" from th North on the busing issue. In a five-minute tape cut for statewide television this week, he said that Southern schools are largely desegregated and that a Constitutional busing ban now "merely would let other regions escape what we have learned to accept."

Askew is now desperately trying to mobilize Florida churches, the liberal Jewish community, labor unions and the colleges.

These are major sources of political strength for Askew, a devout Episcopalian lay leader, particularly in the churches. But it is highly questionable whether religious leaders can overcome the inflammatory emotion of the busing issue, as some are trying to do. At best, the governor's campaign may only build up enough support for the second question on the ballot to gain a questionable majority.

With typical shrewdness Wallace, when asked, advises his anti-busing supporters to vote yes on both questions: for the anti-busing amendment and for "equal opportunity" in the public schools. And of the other candidates only New York Mayor John V. Lindsay has joined Askew in an all-out frontal challenge to Wallace. The impact of the Askew-Wallace busing battle on Lindsay and his Democratic primary opponents will be discussed in a future column.

U.S. Warplanes Again Strike Inside North Vietnam

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers attacked North Vietnam defenses inside North Vietnam Tuesday for the seventh successive day, and more than a score of B52 bombers flew heavy raids south of the demilitarized zone today and Tuesday the U.S. Command announced. It said a flight of F4 Phantoms bombed an anti-aircraft artillery site about 25 miles north of the DMZ after the guns fired at a reconnaissance plane. A spokesman said the results were unknown, and there was no damage to the U.S. aircraft.

It was the 20th attack on anti-aircraft defenses in North Vietnam reported since last Wednesday.

The command also announced that a Navy A4 fighter returning from a mission either in Laos or South Vietnam crashed north of Da Nang. The pilot was rescued but was injured, a spokesman said. He reported that the cause of the crash was not known.

South of the DMZ, the U.S. Command reported, B52s flew nine missions against suspected North Vietnamese base camps around Khe Sanh and the A Shau Valley, a sector the big bombers have been hitting with regularity.

Ex-Premier Will Give Lectures

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Harold Wilson, the former British prime minister, will deliver three speeches in April at Lehigh University.

Wilson will speak April 19, 20 and 21 under the university's Blaustein lecture series.

Wilson also will appear at a special student convocation at Muhlenberg College in nearby Allentown.

Damage To Rolls Worth $3,458

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Bobby Goldsboro has been awarded $3,458.26 by a Circuit Court jury for damages to his Rolls Royce.

Goldsboro sued W. J. Stalcup and Ed Stalcup of Franklin, Tenn., for damages arising from a 1971 collision.

The award was made Tuesday.

South Vietnamese forces reported killing 23 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in three clashes south of Da Nang, in the central highlands near Ban Me Thuot and in the U Minh forest in the Mekong Delta.

In Phnom Penh, meanwhile, the Cambodian command said its troops have retaken the Mekong River island of Koh Sotin from Communist forces after 10 days of fighting and aerial bombardment.

The large island is 45 miles north of Phnom Penh and just south of the provincial capital of Kompong Cham.

The command spokesman, Lt. Col. Am Rong, said air

Black Elected Head LSU SGA

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — For the first time a black has been elected president of the Student Government Association at Louisiana State University.

Kerry Pourciau of Baton Rouge received 2,764 votes to 2,216 for Sam Breen in a recent runoff. They ran one-two in a six-man field in the first election.

LSU has about 18,000 students on its Baton Rouge campus.

10 sampans were destroyed, and that after the island was recaptured, government troops blew up eight heavily fortified bunkers that the Communists had built.

Government casualties in the 10-day operation were given as 15 killed and more than 63 wounded.

In northwest Cambodia, field sources reported more fighting near Siem Reap and the Angkor temple ruins. The sources said an estimated 1,000 enemy soldiers were harassing security troops along the highway between Siem Reap and Battambang, the other major center in the northwest.

The sources said the Cambodians made two attacks to clear Communist troops from villages five miles southeast of Siem Reap. They said so far 700 villagers have been liberated, but the Communists made off with a good portion of the rice crop.

Find Potential At Trade Show

MUNICH (AP) — At a U.S. Department of Commerce trade show, 112 American companies learned about the potential for electronic data processing (EDP) equipment in European markets. They sold $1.2 million worth of equipment off the floor.

The show, Systems 71, was staged at the Munich Fair Grounds.

Sea Wasp Vaccine Sought In Australia

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Scientists are testing a vaccine which they believe will combat the biggest killer in Australian waters—the box-jellyfish.

Better known as the sea wasp, it causes an average of two deaths a year. Victims die in agony. Shock from the intense pain can account for fatalities. Survivors say the pain is like being lashed with needle-encrusted, white-hot pokers.

Unlike the shark, the sea wasps are not easily spotted, nor can they be frightened away or even fought off.

The stings trail in hundreds from four main tentacles which flow up to 30 feet behind a cube-shaped body 4 to 12 inches long.

The battle against the sea wasp started three years ago at the government-sponsored Commonwealth Serum Laboratories. Director Dr. William Lane says: "We decided a small group should work full-time on the problem. Their achievement was to produce an antivenene in less than a year."

This was distributed to towns along the North Queensland coast where sea wasps infest bays and inlets during the summer. But the antivenene has rarely been used since a badly stung swimmer dies within three minutes.

Immunization seems to be the only answer.

Development has reached the stage of human trial. As volunteers, Lane and some of his associates have been vaccinated.

"We want to prove that the vaccine produces antibodies to the sea wasp toxin, Lane says. "It has done so in animals, but of course, we must insure it

River Work Completed

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers maintenance vessel SNELL recently completed a 36-day work assignment in the Roanoke River.

The Corps reported that hundreds of trees and snags were removed from the river from its mouth in Albemarle Sound to approximately halfway between Williamston and Palmyra Landing. State Road Bridge 11, it was pointed out, restricted passage of the vessel beyond that point.

According to the Corps, one of the oldest known obstructions in the vicinity of Plymouth was removed by the SNELL during the operations.

The SNELL removed a portion of the ancient Yankee vessel USS OTSEGO, a 250-foot full rigged sailing and side-wheel steam vessel which sunk in 1864. One of the iron and wood paddle wheels had been exposed above the bottom and had caused damages to small boats for years, it was noted.

This was the third trip to the Roanoke River by the SNELL since her construction by the Wilmington District in 1967. She is skippered by Capt. Donnie Davis of Harkers Island and carries a crew of nine men.

The SNELL operates along the Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway and certain tributary rivers in North and South Carolina.

Warranty On The Homes It Sells

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's largest real estate firm, Real Estate One, has announced a one-year warranty on repairs or replacement of plumbing, heating and electrical systems in homes it sells.

Richard S. Elsea, firm president, said the idea is to spur sales. He added that disclosures of poor maintenance in homes purchased through the Federal Housing Administration had influenced the decision.

Elsea said the contracts will not cover updating or building code compliance, nor will they include structural repairs.

Tip On Living Longer Average Life: Be A Woman

By LEROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI)—The best prescription for enjoying long life for an American male, apparently, is to become a justice of the Supreme Court or a U.S. Senator.

Failing that, one can have a good chance for living longer by being a scientist, a teacher, or a member of one of the other learned professions. Even physicians, whose life expectancy is 10 per cent poorer than that of other professional men, have a 10 per cent lower mortality rate than ordinary working white males.

Even newsmen, among the white collar group, aren't the best bets for long lives. Insurance companies do not keep specific statistics on news gatherers and editors because they claim they are not numerous enough to be statistically significant. But the American Psychiatric Association made an analysis of the longevity of journalists listed in "Who's Who" last year and found their mortality rate nearly twice as high as that of the rest of the "Who's Who" sampling.

For more than half the American populace there is one sure way to a longer average life—that's to be a woman. Women outlive men in the United States by a substantial margin regardless of what kind of work they do or what interests they have.

Choose a Younger Husband
This is one of the biggest changes Western society has experienced in the 20th Century. In all past centuries, the hazards of childbirth made feminine mortality rates so much higher than those of men that, even in the first decade of this century, some insurance companies would not write a life policy on a woman.

Now marriage counselors advise young women to marry men younger than themselves if they want to guard against a long widowhood.

The frightful occupational accident and disease hazards that once killed so many workers in the prime of life have been greatly reduced in recent years, but with few exceptions, the same jobs remain the ones with the biggest perils.

These include workers in mining, lumbering, heavy construction, railroads, taxi drivers, marine officers and seamen, guards and watchmen, fishermen, explosives workers, tunnel workers, longshoremen, detectives, window cleaners, sanitation men, bartenders and some electrical workers.

Life Goes On, Longer
The Society of Actuaries in Chicago did its last report on this subject in 1967, based on the ten years up to 1964. It found that the decreases in occupational mortality in the past 40 years have been dramatic. General construction workers used to have a mortality rate of 229 per cent of the standard for all workers; that's down to 119 per cent now. Similar drops have occurred in excess mortality rates of miners, seamen, policemen and others in high risk jobs.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., of New York has made a number of studies of the longevity of people in public life and of scientists and artists. It has found that all these people live much longer on the average than ordinary working folk.

Supreme Court justices commonly live 80 years or longer and have a 12 per cent lower mortality rate than men in the general population.

Members of Congress, particularly senators, do almost as well, with a death rate 11 per cent below the general male average.

Longlived congressmen and senators are a new phenomenon, though. Back in the 19th century, members of Congress lived no longer than ordinary folk. The Metropolitan interpreted this to mean that, increasingly, Americans have been electing congressmen from the more advantaged segments of the population.

Insurance for All
The other side of the coin finds automobile racing drivers, diver and aircraft test pilots the most hazardous of all occupations from the standpoint of longevity. But the drops in occupational death rates in the past 20 years have been so great that there are almost no occupations now that are non-insurable and not many that even compel the payment of penalty premiums. Police and airline flight personnel, for example, are readily insurable at reasonable rates today.

Hawkins Hoping To Unite Poor, Young And Blacks

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — There is no cheery, feminine voice saying "Hawkins for Governor," answering the telephone at Reginald Hawkins' campaign office. Instead, a nurse answers, "Northwest Clinic," which is where the candidate practices dentistry.

Nor is there a battery of campaign aides or "meetings" to shield the candidate from contact with the press. If Hawkins is tied up, it's probably with someone's toothache.

He conducts interviews in an office lined with medical and religious textbooks. The walls are covered with plaques and diplomas. Dr. Reginald Armistice Hawkins has certificates for his membership in the "international Platform Association" and for the Civic Affairs award of his college fraternity, among others.

The telephone rings. Someone from Fayetteville State University wants him to speak on Thursday, March 16. Hawkins reaches into his jacket pocket and pulls out an appointment book.

Yes, he says, the candidate is available on March 16. Could the speech be at night? He must pay attention to his practice, he explains. The date is confirmed.

Some time late that Thursday afternoon, Hawkins, and perhaps someone to help with the driving, will get into his red and cream colored Cadillac and drive to Fayetteville, reaching out to a constituency he hopes will materialize before the primary.

This is the second crack at the governorship by the 48-year-old dentist. In 1968, he was the first black candidate ever to run for the office in North Carolina. He finished last in a three man race with then Lt. Gov. Bob Scott and Melville Broughton, pulling 18 per cent of the 800,000 votes cast in the Democratic primary.

Hawkins ran then as an anti-establishment candidate, trying to put together an elusive Southern populist coalition of poor blacks and poor whites. He got 5 per cent of the white vote and almost all of the ballots cast by the 45 per cent of the blacks who turned out.

For 1972, Hawkins has revised the elements of his hoped-for constituency: he now plans to win by pulling together the votes of blacks, youth, and women in a new antiestablishment alignment.

There is a new awareness in the black community of the power of the vote, he says. Youth will go for him because it too is antiestablishment. Women are dissatisfied with their lot and will go for the candidate who best expresses that dissatisfaction, he says.

Hawkins brushes aside suggestions that young voters are not exactly flocking to register. "There are barriers set up by the election laws. And our registration drives have not begun in earnest."

He conceded that North Carolina is not exactly a hotbed of women's lib activity.

"They will respond, though, to someone who promises to give them a stake in the government."

In Hawkins' scenario, the "Establishment" candidates—Pat Taylor and Skipper Bowles—will split the status quo vote. The voters will realize that Wilbur Hobby was placed in the campaign to steal Hawkins' platform and supporters, and Reginald Hawkins will either win or find himself in a commanding position on primary night.

So he tours the state, mostly on weekends and Wednesdays, speaking on campuses and to black organizations, appearing at basketball games, or just stopping people on the street.

He tells them that North Carolina is responsible for repression of blacks and young people through illegal police tactics, excessive bail, and other harassment.

"They are trying to make a criminal out of me," he said. "During the last election, I was charged with violating election laws. The case was thrown out of court for lack of evidence three days after the primary."

He speaks also of the dental malpractice suit, which could cost him his license, that he is now appealing.

He says he will reform the tax structure to place a greater burden on corporations and utilities, and appoint regulatory commission members who "will protect the consumer, not the special interests."

On the other hand, he is not interested in condemning Bald Head Island. "We need tourist money. The state should go into partnership with private interests to develop the island and preserve the wildlife at the same time."

"The people who scream about Bald Head Island are the same ones who haven't enforced existing laws against big corporate polluters like the power companies. They scream while they let beaches erode all over the state," he says.

His platform places heavy emphasis on new employment, education and housing programs. He thinks they can be financed through his proposed shifting of the tax burden, without adding new taxes for the general public.

Hawkins, 48, sees himself as a man with a sacred mission. "This state is not doing well, and God has called me to help set it right."

"I have brought about more social change in Charlotte than any other individual. I have exposed the Establishment. I think the people will turn to me."

Lecturer On Female Superiority, Travel Film Series Here

A male who promotes woman as the superior being and a film maker who pictures the beauties of Ireland are next to appear on the lecture and film series at East Carolina University during the coming week.

At 8:00 p.m. on Monday at Wright Auditorium, Dr. Ashley Montagu will lecture on the still controversial subject "The Natural Superiority of Women."

The subject, which is identical to the name of Dr. Montagu's 1953 best seller book, at that time set the nation thinking and wondering about whether or not the doctor could have hit upon an unrecognized truth. When he first raised the question to the status of national awareness, there were large number of advocates (including many women) who wholeheartedly agreed with his thesis — and some who did not of course.

In his lecture, Dr. Montagu cites evidence for his contention that, from the biological and social standpoints, the female is the superior creature. He reaches back into the accumulation of myths circulated through the centuries about the female's inferiority and demonstrates the fallacy of such myths.

Dr. Montagu then goes on to emphasize that in his opinion the most important task of schools today is education in the practice and theory of human relations, the most fundamental of all human activities.

The lecturer contends it is not his purpose to demote men by elevating women; as a scientist he is not interested in proving theories but in stating what are facts.

On Thursday, March 16, at 8:00 p.m. in Wright Auditorium, another of the travel film series will be shown.

Norman Schley, long infatuated with the Emerald Isle, has produced a travelogue of Ireland that he will personally narrate.

In color, the travel film producer takes the viewer to a long leisurely trek through Ireland, with a warm and friendly song by an Irish lad opening the sequence of places seen and visited.

Music is also captured on the sound track with typical Irish singing at the "O'Donaghues" Pub. From there the film moves on to a completely rebuilt city with thatched roof cottages and natives in costumes of years ago.

Other sights and sounds featured in Schley's film on Ireland include a festival in Kilkenny where there's alpine horns, bag pipes and German orchestras.

Titled "Schley Ride to Ireland", the travel film took a year for the Wisconsin adventurer-film maker to complete.

Tickets to the lecture and film are now available from the Central Ticket Office at Wright Auditorium. Interested persons should telephone 758-6278 or go directly to the box office. Tickets will also be on sale just prior to the beginning hour for each of the events.

Fund Drive Launched For New Bethel Rescue Truck

BETHEL — The Bethel Rescue Squad has started a drive to raise funds for the purchase of a new rescue truck.

The squad has made application to the Governor's Highway Safety program for a grant of about $5,800 to help fund the purchase of the truck. The remainder of the estimated $12,000 to $13,000 cost of the new vehicle will have to be raised locally, according to squad captain Sammy Carson.

The new equipment is needed, according to Carson, to "meet the ever increasing calls which we are receiving."

The present truck will remain in service, Carson said as a back-up unit and will be used primarily as a heavy duty rescue unit.

The Bethel rescue organization is composed of 17 volunteers and has been in operation since 1960.

The 1960 model rescue truck operated by the squad "is now 12 years old and needs to be replaced with a new and better equipped vehicle with the latest modern equipment...in order to maintain the efficiency which the Bethel squad has acquired and given to the Tri-county area," Carson noted.

Carson said Burroughs Wellcome has already donated $800 toward the local part of the matching grant.

Carson said in the next few weeks, members of the Bethel squad will be calling on residents in the "immediate and surrounding areas for any donations or contributions they would like to make." He noted that donations to the squad are tax deductible.

CHECK FOR TRUCK ... Charles Ives Jr., a member of the Bethel Rescue Squad watches as Burroughs Wellcome plant manager Henry Leslie presents squad captain Sammy Carson a check for $800 toward purchase of a new rescue truck for the Bethel squad.

Complete Year Of Honors Work

Four outstanding undergraduates in the East Carolina University Department of History have completed a year of honors work in the ECU History Honors Program, directed by Dr. Richard C. Todd.

The students, their research, topics and faculty advisors were:

Wendell G. Wilson, "United States Involvement in Colombia, Jan., 1885 - June, 1885," Dr. Wilkins B. Winn;

Harry A. Jones, Jr., "Continuity and Change Between the Old and New World," Dr. James R. O'Connell;

John Ansel Caldwell, Jr., "United States Participants' Views of the Cuban Missile Crisis," Dr. Henry C. Ferrell;

Robert K. Fuchs, "Louis Brandeis: Sociological Jurisprudence or Legal Realist," Dr. Fred Ragan.

Wilson's work was singled out for superior distinction, and he was awarded the ECU history honors scholarship which carries a stipend of $250.

He is a member of Phi Alpha Theta History honor society and is cited in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Upon graduation, Wilson plans to enter graduate studies at the University of Arizona.

Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Wilson of Route 2, Mill Spring, N.C.

Jones is the son of Harry A. Jones Sr., Route 3, Greenville.

Caldwell is the son of J.A. Caldwell, 122 Matoaka Court, Williamsburg, Va, and is married to the former Lucia Villa, also of Williamsburg.

Fuchs is the son of Eileen Fuchs, 81 Millington Dr., Midlands Park, N.J.

Potato Studied In West Texas

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — "When you've chipped one potato, you've chipped 'em all" definitely does not apply in West Texas, one of the nation's big potato producing areas.

Approximately 20,000 acres are planned for potatoes every year in West Texas.

People like their potato chips golden brown, crisp and oil-free, and Texas Tech University researchers are studying varieties, growth rates, growing techniques and pre-treatment of potatoes at food plants producing chips to determine what makes the best chip.

HOUSEWIVES REBEL

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — A number of women who usually take the Long Island Railroad to New York for Wednesday matinees in Broadway theaters have vowed to pass up such trips.

"The round trip fare is now $5,000 one housewife said, "and there no longer are ladies' day fares. With shows at $9 things are getting to be a little too much."

Enthusiasts Over Autos

By HILMI TOROS

Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Massimo Asoltoli earns $60 a week as a bank clerk. He drives a $3,000 Alfa Romeo, spending more on the car than for his rent. He has no regrets. Nor do many others. This is a nation of enthusiasts about wheels.

"I love that car," says Asoltoli. "It's a part of me." He dishes out half of his salary for payments and the car's upkeep. Gasoline costs about $1 a gallon.

This nation of 55 million has 10 million cars—about one for every fifth citizen. Ten years ago it was a car for every 17th Italian.

Every third Roman has a car. Traffic in historic center of the capital crawls an inch at a time. To ease bumper-to-bumper frustration the city recently offered free bus rides to Romans, hoping that they would leave cars at home. Only a few did.

Across the nation industrial production fell 3 per cent last year but cars and imports held their own. Giovanni Agnelli, president of Fiat, said auto production could hardly keep up with demand.

Agnelli's firm pioneered the car that put most Italians behind the wheel. That was the Fiat 500, a half-pint that sells for just over $1,000 but looks almost like a scooter with a body.

An Italian who owns a car he can hardly afford becomes a dogged devotee of the manufacturer, upholding the car's virtues and ignoring shortcomings.

Coliseum Is Crime Haven

ROME (AP) — The Coliseum is one of the world's most popular sightseeing spots during the day. At night it becomes a haven for purse snatchers and prostitutes.

The architectural gem is 1,900 years old this year. It has withstood the ravages of time, earthquakes and barbarian invaders to serve as an arena for gladiators, a monument to Jesus, a bullfighting ring and a garbage dump. Recently publicity seekers scaled its 187-foot high walls to obtain an exhibition perch.

Somewhat neglected by the city, the amphitheater is the most imposing of existing Roman antiquities.

Construction started in A.D. 72, when Emperor Vespasian ordered a public entertainment center built. The four-story 50,000-seat oval complex took eight years to complete, mostly through the forced labor of Jewish slaves from Jerusalem.

For its inauguration, Vespasian's son decreed a 100-day spectacle of gore that pitted beast against beast, beast against man and man against man. Then he wept when more than 5,000 animals and hundreds of men bled to death in the arena.

The Coliseum became a public quarry in the 14th century and blocks of its stone were used in St. Peter's Basilica and other Roman buildings.

Later it was partly restored by a Pope who dedicated it as a monument to the passion of Jesus and pronounced it sanctified by the blood of Christian martyrs.

Charity Patient Helping Others

DALLAS (AP) — More than 38 years after she gave birth to a baby girl in the charity ward of Parkland Hospital, Mrs. Orlenia Slike of Sylmar, Calif., sent the hospital a check for $100 to be used for "some other unfortunate young woman."

Officials said her letter gave the baby's birthday as Nov. 4, 1933.

"I received very fine care and now my daughter is a wonderful woman with two children of her own," the recent letter read. The writer added: "My name was then Mrs. Orlenia Whitehead."

SCRAPS A PLAN
CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Planning in Montgomery County has been scrapped by the County Council, which voted 5-2 to cut the entire $13,820 planning budget for the next fiscal year.

Link Rejected By Wallacites

RALEIGH (AP) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace's staff rejected today any campaign connection in the North Carolina presidential primary with gubernatorial candidates Gene Leggett and Arlis Pettyjohn.

Leggett, running as a Democrat, and Pettyjohn, who filed as an American party candidate. Leggett has claimed to represent Wallace in North Carolina.

Michael Griffin, one of Wallace's advisers, said in a telephone interview from Montgomery that "all of these people are ex-American party officials: Gov. Wallace is running as a Democrat, and as a bonafide Democrat."

Griffin renounced Leggett's contention that he heads the Wallace forces in North Carolina.

Leggett and Griffin appeared separately, but at the same time, at the state Board of Elections office Monday morning when Wallace's name was entered in the primary. Each carried $1,000 for the filing fee, but only Griffin had the required letter of intent from the candidate.

"Mr. Leggett may be an honorable man and the biggest supporter of Gov. Wallace in North Carolina, but he is in no way associated with the Wallace organization," Griffin said.

He added, "Mr. Leggett is in no way associated with the Wallace campaign hierarchy, he is not the state chairman and he cannot raise funds for the Wallace campaign."

Leggett could not be reached for comment.

In Elkin Pettyjohn said Griffin's statement was correct.

"A lot of our people are for the governor, but I have never claimed to represent him here. I do support his philosophy of government," Pettyjohn said.

Quadrangle Grows

Construction now underway will "just about double" the size of the present Physicians Quadrangle on West Sixth Street near the hospital here, according to Dr. Stephen Bartlett, president of the Medical Arts Clinic of Greenville, Inc.

Three new buildings designed very similar to the present ones in order to complement the part of the quadrangle already in existence will be constructed at a cost of about $300,000. Dr. Bartlett said. The greenery in the center of the office complex will be retained, he said, and a sheltered area for loading and unloading wheelchair patients will be added, he said. J. H. Hudson Inc. of Greenville is the contractor.

Completion is expected in August. There is a possibility that at least three new physicians will be added, Dr. Bartlett said, although he said an announcement of names would be premature. The Quadrangle complex is owned by a corporation composed of physicians who practice there.

Rampants Rally Past Pam Pack By 8-5

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WASHINGTON — Rose High School spotted Washington a 3-1 lead yesterday, then stormed back in the late innings to take an 8-5 victory over the Pam Pack.

The game was the season opener for the Rampants, and started new coach Dave Holton off with a win.

Washington took advantage of some walks and some Rampant errors in the first four innings to move ahead, but then fell behind as the hard-hitting Rampants finally began to get them to drop in.

Rose used two pitchers, Stanley Cobb and Lee Cherry, who effectively held Washington in check, except for walks and a trio of errors. The Pam Pack got four hits off them, three off Cobb in four and two-thirds innings, and the other off Cherry who went two and a third. They hit only two balls out of the infield, one a single in the third and the other a game-ending fly to left. Rose, meanwhile, tatooed three Washington pitchers for 13 hits, and pounded the ball well even when they weren't getting hits.

Washington got on the board in the first inning as walks and mistakes hurt the Rampants. Wayne Woolard led off with a walk and was sacrificed to second. William Wollard walked, and Harry Meredith singled to deep short, loading the bases with just one out. Joel Moore laid down a bunt that was errored, scoring Wayne Woolard. Lee Nichols then mis- sed on another bunt attempt, catching William Woolard off third for the second out. But Nichols reached on an error, allowing Meredith to score for a 2-0 lead.

Rose threatened in the second, putting two on via singles, but couldn't scratch.

Then, in the top of the fourth, the Rampants finally got a run across. Bill Lee led off, beating out a grounder to third. He advanced on an out and then scored on a ground-ruled double to right by Cobb, cutting it to 2-1.

But Washington, which had threatened with a pair of one-out singles in the third, came up with another run in the bottom of the fourth, moving out to a 3-1 margin. Nichols led off with a walk and Sammy Bullock reached the same way. Nichols then attempted to steal third, where the ball was errored, allowing him to continue in with the third Pack run.

Rose finally broke things open in the sixth coming up with five big runs to take a 6-3 lead. Lee again got on via an infield single, but was out at second when Jim McDermott reached on a fielder's choice. Cobb singled to right and he was safe at second when Randy McKinney's ball was errored. McDermott came in to score on the play. With two outs, Derek Dunn walked, loading the bases. Harding Sugg then doubled to center, driving in all three runners and pushing Rose into the lead. Robbie Cox reached on an error, scoring Cox with the sixth Rampant run.

The seventh saw two more Rampants come across. With two away, McKinney singled to left and Larry Dixon got a hit to center. Both came across when Dunn doubled down the left field line, upping the lead to 8-3.

Washington made one last try to pull it out, coming up with two in the bottom of the seventh. William Woolard led off with a walk and Meredith was hit by a pitch. Moore walked, loading them up, and Nichols got a single on an infield chopper, scoring Woolard. Bullock hit into a double play, taking off some of the pressure, but Meredith came in on the play. The next batter flew out to left, however, ending the Washington comeback hopes.

Lee, Cobb, McKinney, Dixon and Dunn each came up with two hits for the Rampants, while Sugg, Dunn and J. C. Daniels cracked out doubles.

The Rampants seek their second straight on Friday, opening their home season in Guy Smith Stadium against Tarboro.

The four, Glenn Baker, Dan Monroe, Jim McCloe and Bill Hill, all won Southern Conference individual titles to qualify for the nationals.

The meet runs through Saturday. A total of 36 wrestlers in each of the 10 weight classes have qualified for the meet. Each round will reduce the number by half until the title is won in each class. Five victories will be needed by each national champion.

"It's hard to say what our chances are," Coach John Welborn said. "We have a chance to place some of our people, I'm sure."

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints will meet the Buffalo Bills in the National Football Conference team's first National Football League preseason game here Aug. 12, Saints' officials said Monday.

Monroe and Hill both were in the nationals last year, and this additional experience will certainly be a help to them, Welborn feels.

Baker, of Massena, N.Y., is a sophomore who has compiled an 18-5 record so far. "He was second in the North Carolina and the Thanksgiving meets," Welborn said, but added that in each, he lost to another Pirate, Ron Williams. Williams had to drop out of wrestling later because of academic courses which required much of his time. Baker will wrestle in the 118-pound class.

Monroe, an 126-pounder, is another sophomore, and is from Warners, N.Y. He put together a 26-5 mark for the year. Earlier this year, he won the Maryland Federation championship and was named the Most Valuable Wrestler in the meet. He finished third in the prestigious Wilkes (Pa.) meet, and was second in the North Carolina meet.

A native of Waverly, N.Y., McCloe is a junior. He will wrestle at 134 pounds. A transfer from Delhi Junior College in New York, he was a national junior college champion there. At East Carolina this season, he's compiled a 24-4 record. He is another Pirate who holds a North Carolina state title.

Hill, from Norfolk, Va., is also a sophomore. He put together a 24-2 record this season, winning a state title. He also finished third in the Wilkes Tournament. Hill will wrestle at 177 pounds.

Six other members of the Southern Conference will take part in the national event, four from William & Mary and the other two from Virginia Military Institute.

Final Church Game Is Set

Immanuel Baptist nipped First Presbyterian, 58-56, in an overtime last night, to send the Church Basketball League tournament into a final game tonight.

The loss was the first for Presbyterian in the double elimination tournament, setting up the final contest. It is set for 7 p.m.

The game was close all the way. It was tied at 23-23 at the end of the first half, and then knotted again at 54-54 at the end of the regulation time.

In the overtime, David Hahn and Lindsay Hardee each hit baskets for Immanuel, while Presbyterian could manage only one, by Bill Glidewell, and that gave Immanuel the win.

Hahn led Immanuel with 20 points, while Hardee had 11. For Presbyterian, Frank Freuler had 14 and Larry Graham had 10.

Davenport, Kidd Seek Honors

Two members of the East Carolina University track team head for Detroit, Michigan, this weekend, to participate in the NCAA National Indoor Meet.

Walter Davenport will be competing the triple jump, while Jim Kidd will take part in the half-mile run.

Both events will take place on Friday. The meet runs Friday and Saturday.

Davenport, a junior from North Wilkesboro, is a definite prospect to place high in the triple jump. His best leap this year, 50 feet, 8 3/4 inches, ranks him about seventh in the nation going into the meet. "No one in the East has done better than he has, and only a couple in the South have," Coach Bill Carson said.

Davenport, who thrives on competition, has been fairly consistant this season, and Carson feels that a leap of 49-11 should get him into the finals if he jumps well early.

"Walter's capable of going 51 in this meet. I don't think he'll be the winner, that would take 52-plus, but he definitely can be high on the list," Carson said.

Kidd, a senior from Manasses, Va., has turned in a best time of 1:52.4 for the 880-yard event. "I believe this places him around eighth or ninth in the country," Carson said.

"I think he can run in the 1:51's. He's in good shape now and if he gets in a good heat during the preliminaries, he could easily make the finals." Only the top two in each heat make it to the finals.

"He's better than his time. He could take off and beat some of the starts who might try to pace themselves in the preliminaries."

Bus Trip For Regionals Set

Anyone who is interested in attending the East Carolina University-Villanova game Saturday night may reserve a seat on a chartered bus leaving for Princeton, N.J. Saturday morning.

According to a spokesman for the ECU Student Government Association, tickets for the bus trip, priced at $23, will be on sale in Room 303, SGA office in the ECU Student Union.

The spokesman said that tickets may be purchased until 5 p.m. today and from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. Thursday. Tickets must be purchased in advance, it was noted, in order to allow the SGA time to make necessary arrangements.

The price of the ticket includes the bus ride to Princeton for the 8:05 p.m. NCAA Regionals contest and also the game ticket.

Interested persons may call the SGA offices at 758-6262 or go by the Student Union for further information. Reservations must be made by 2 p.m. Thursday.

Smith Warns That Carolina Must Not Be Overconfident In Tourney

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Any of the three nationally ranked teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship basketball tournament which opens Thursday—North Carolina, Maryland and Virginia—may get a bid to New York's National Invitational Tournament—should they stumble here. But they'd rather win at Greensboro and have a crack at the national college championship.

The ACC winner will play in an NCAA Eastern Regional game March 16 at Morganton, W.Va. Third-ranked North Carolina is the favorite on a 9-3 league record, good for first place in the regular season which earned the Tar Heels a bye in the first round of the tournament. They are 21-4 in all games. But Coach Dean Smith doesn't want his team overconfident. "We have lost three conference games—at Duke, Maryland and North Carolina State," he said. "That means any one of those teams is capable of winning the championship. And certainly Virginia has had a great season and is capable, too." The Virginia Cavaliers, ranked 15th nationally, are 8-4 in the league and 20-5 in all games. North Carolina beat them twice in the regular season.

The 15,000 seats in the Greensboro Coliseum had been sold out. On Thursday afternoon Maryland will play Clemson and then Virginia will meet Wake Forest. That night, North Carolina State will play Duke. North Carolina will play in Friday night's first game against the Duke-N.C. State survivor. The Thursday afternoon winners will play Friday night's second semifinals game.

The title game will be at 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Games the last two nights will be televised regionally. Virginia has its best record in 50 years, since the 1922 season when it was 17-1. The Cavaliers have the ACC Player of the Year in Barry Parkhill. Another key to Virginia's chances is the health of sharpshooter Jim Hobgood, whose playing time and production have been limited by a pulled Achilles tendon and a bruised heel. Virginia has lost four of those games. Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, in an attempt to take the pressure off, has told his players to view the tournament as the fun part of the season—that they've proved all they need to prove. They are ranked No. 13 on a 21-4 record. All their losses have come in the tough ACC, where they have won eight games.

Runs Starting At Rockingham

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
ROCKINGHAM, N. C. (AP) — Practice opened today for Sunday's running of the $103,000 Carolina 500 stock car race, and most drivers agreed a scramble is in the making to even get a shot at the price money. More than 50 entries had been received for the race. The starting lineup will be limited to the fastest 40 qualifiers in three days of time trials. "There are more cars running closer together speedwise than at any time in the last four years," said Dodge's Bobby Isaac, the 1970 Grand National champion who is hoping to win the title again this year. Isaac, who crashed at Ontario, Calif., last Sunday, will have a new car for the Carolina 500. He's among the favorites to win the pole position in Thursday's initial round of qualifying. Others expected to be contenders not only for the pole but the first place check of $20,000 in the race include Charlie Glotzbach, who is making his second start of the season in the Cotton Owens Plymouth; Richard Petty, who placed fourth in the Ontario race to winner A. J. Foyt, and who will debut his new "short track" Plymouth; Bobby Allison, runner-up to Foyt in the California marathon, in a Junior Johnson Chevrolet; and Benny Parsons, who not only is running well this year in a 1971 Ford but is finishing the 500 milers with regularity. He seldom finished in the distance events last year. Buddy Baker of Charlotte, who drives a Dodge from the Petty garage, is another top entrant. Also among the prospects is Englishman Jackie Oliver, who will make his debut at North Carolina Motor Speedway in a Ford driven at Daytona by 1970 rookie of the year Bill Dennis. Oliver, a former Le Mans winner, is taking time out from the Grand Prix circus to drive a stocker for only the third time. Petty will be seeking his fifth triumph at Rockingham, this year as top dog on Andy Granatelli's STP racing team. The 34-year-old, who won his third Grand National title and $333,000 in 1971, was the first driver to file his entry for Sunday's event. Petty now is past the 100,000-mile mark in competition, having cleared that hurdle when he completed his 80th lap at Ontario.

Gibson Named Coach Of Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — University of Virginia coach Bill Gibson was named today the basketball coach of the year in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association named Gibson winner of the annual Gerry Gerard Award. It was the first time a Virginia coach won the award. Seventy of the 107 votes in the annual poll went to Gibson. Dean Smith of North Carolina was second with 21 and Billy Waters of Duke third with 15. Gibson went through his first seven seasons at Virginia without a winner. Last year the team compiled a 15-11 record. This season the Cavaliers recorded 20 victories for the first time in the institution's history. Gibson, a Donora, Pa., native, was an outstanding player at Penn State. He spent four years coaching high school basketball, then went to Mansfield (Pa.) State College in 1956. He was highly successful there and his teams once went through 50 consecutive home games without a defeat. His record there was 102 victories to 37 losses. He took over at Virginia in 1963.

McDaniels Says He'll Pay Back

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Former Western Kentucky basketball All-American Jim McDaniels says he loves his alma mater and will pay back the $66,318 that it is being asked to return to the National Collegiate Athletic Association. "I love Western Kentucky, and I want to do what's right. I'm ready to give them the $66,000 in the form of scholarships or however they want it because those people could not have treated me better," McDaniels told the Louisville Courier-Journal Tuesday. The NCAA has asked Western Kentucky to forfeit its third-place finish in last year's NCAA basketball championship and to return its tournament receipts. The association said McDaniels signed three pro documents before his last college season began. McDaniels, who recently jumped to the Seattle Super-sonics of the National Basketball Association from the Carolina Cougars of the rival American Basketball Association, said he had signed the documents with an agent and with the Cougars. "I read lie after lie about myself. Then, when I heard this thing about Western losing its money and its trophies, I just couldn't keep quiet any longer," said the Scottsville, Ky. native. "When this is settled, I'm going to expose the whole mess and everybody involved in it." McDaniels said he was under tremendous pressure before signing the three documents in the fall of 1970. "Lordy, the pressures that can be put on a 22-year-old," the 7-foot star said. "All that money. All those promises made by supposedly reputable people. It was something you couldn't imagine unless you went through it." Johnny Oldham, Western athletic director and McDaniels' former coach, said "I'm not surprised by Mac's promise. That's the kind of man he is."

Cardinals Need Only Pitching

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The St. Louis Cardinals dropped the other shoe in contract negotiations with their holdouts Tuesday but it missed two of the four problem players. The Cardinals invoked the seldom used baseball law which allows clubs to order holdouts to report to training camp no later than March 10 under the renewal clause in their contracts. Hit with the ruling were pitcher Jerry Reuss and catcher Ted Simmons. But the Cards were not able to contact their other two dissatisfied players—first baseman Bob Burda and third baseman Joe Torre. Torre, the National League's batting champion and Most Valuable Player, will be the toughest autograph for Cardinal owner Gusie Busch, in camp or out. He wants $150,000—several thousand more than Busch is ready to spend. Two other holdouts ended Tuesday when pitcher Carl Morton signed with the Montreal Expos and outfielder Merv Rettenmund agreed to terms with the Baltimore Orioles. Morton received a token raise while Rettenmund got a bigger jump, probably into the $40,000 class. In exhibition games, the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates bombed Boston 13-1, the New York Mets jolted Detroit 9-3, the New York Yankees out-slugged the Texas Rangers 14-9 and Minnesota downed the Chicago White Sox 9-6. The Pirates got four-hit pitching from Bob Moose, Bob Veale and Bruce Kison and bunched five runs in the fifth inning and six more in the ninth to rip the Red Sox. The Yankees collected eight hits including doubles by Ron Swoboda and George Pena for an eight-run seventh inning to beat Texas. Pena had homered earlier and Don Mincher connected for the Rangers. Charlie Manuel drove in three runs with a homer and a single, rallying the Twins past the White Sox. Doubles by Wayne Garrett and Ted Martinez and a triple by Tim Foli keyed a six-run sixth inning explosion that led the Mets over the Tigers. All three are candidates for third base for the Mets, replacing Jim Fregosi, who is sidelined for a month with a broken thumb.

Minnesota Endures Criticism To Capture Big Ten Championship

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
How sweet it is for the beleaguered Minnesota Gophers. "It's a great thrill to win the Big Ten," said Bill Musselman, who suffered through the much-publicized fracas against Ohio State and tons of ensuing criticism but became the youngest coach ever to win a Big Ten basketball title when 16th-ranked Minnesota held off Purdue 49-48 Tuesday night. Three other teams joined the Gophers in capturing NCAA Tournament berths. Unranked Kansas State upset No. 18 Missouri 79-76 for the Big Eight crown, two free throws by Scooter Lenox with 39 seconds left gave Texas a 91-89 overtime victory over Southern Methodist in a Southwest Conference playoff and Ohio University's Todd Lalich scored with one second to play in overtime to give the Bobcats a 69-67 Mid-American Conference playoff triumph over Toledo. In the three-way Ohio Valley playoff, Morehead State turned back Western Kentucky 82-79 and will face Eastern Kentucky tonight for the NCAA spot. Minnesota's cliffhanger triumph over Purdue enabled the Gophers to finish one game ahead of Ohio State, which beat Michigan State 92-73, and gave the Gophers their first outright Big Ten championship since 1919.

But it wasn't easy as Minnesota blew almost all of a 15-point lead in the second half but held on as Purdue missed two free throws and two desperation shots down the stretch. "The last 13 seconds was the longest I've ever spent," first-year Coach Musselman said in the surprisingly quiet dressing room. "They're as good as any champion I've seen," said Purdue's George King, "and I think they'll represent us well. They'll match up well with anyone." Bob Ford of Purdue led all scorers with 24 points while Clyde Turner and Jim Brewer had 12 apiece for Minnesota, which went into a stall and didn't take a shot in the final 8:13. Ohio State's balance—all five starters scored in double figures, led by Wardell Jackson's 19 points—offset a 30-point performance by Michigan State's Mike Robinson but the defending champions still finished one game behind Minnesota. What about the National Invitation Tournament for the 18-6 Buckeyes? "I don't know," said Coach Fred Taylor. "I don't want to comment on it." Steve Mitchell, a 6-foot-10 junior, was the key to Kansas State's win at Missouri. His hook shot put the Wildcats ahead to stay 71-70 with 2½ minutes left. He added a three-point play with a minute remaining and Ernie Kusnyer's two free throws and three by Lou Kruger closed out the K-State scoring. The two free throws by Texas' Lenox offset a late SMU basket. Both teams played the extra session without their high scorers—Texas' Larry Robinson, who scored 30 points, and SMU's Ruben Triplett, who had 20. Both fouled out. Toledo hit the first basket against Ohio U. but never led again, although the Rockets caught up at 58-all on John Hodak's field goal with 3:17 left and forced the game into overtime. Tom Corde paced Ohio with 27 points while Mike Parker had 23 for Toledo. Morehead State, whose run-and-shoot offense was led by Howard Wallen's 18 points, pulled away from Western Kentucky in the final four minutes and wrapped it up when Wallen hit two free throws with four seconds left. Jerry Dunn scored 26 points for the losers. The only good news for Western came when former star Jim McDaniels told The Louisville Courier-Journal he would repay the $66,318 his alma mater is being asked to return to the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The Hilltoppers finished third in last year's NCAA Tournament but had their third-place finish and gate receipts taken away when it was learned that McDaniels had signed a professional contract before the end of the season. Elsewhere, Michigan trounced Wisconsin 93-70 behind Henry Wilmore's 25 points, John Ritter's 23 points and Steve Downing's 21 helped Indiana hold off Northwestern 72-67, Nick Weatherspoon's career high 37 points sparked Illinois over Iowa 91-84 and Kentucky State, winner of the last two NAIA Tournaments, earned a berth again with an 86-67 win over Fisk behind Travis Grant's 30 points.

A Mixed Doubles Tournament will be held Saturday by the Greenville Tennis Club. Signups for the tournament are not required, but entrants are requested to meet 9 a.m. at Elm Street Park's courts, with entries closing at 9:20. The club is also sponsoring tennis lessons, to begin Saturday, March 18, at Elm Street Park. The lessons will run from 9 to 11 a.m. and continue for six weeks. There is no charge for the lessons, which are open to club members only. The Greenville Tennis Club is now sponsoring a Ladies Day each Monday, starting at 9 a.m. In addition, the club has exclusive rights to the courts at Elm Street on Thursdays from 8 to 10 p.m. A men's tournament is being planned for May. Four Holdouts For St. Louis

By PAUL LEBAR
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — "We just have to wait and see who's going to do the job for us," says Manager Red Schoendienst about the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching. But away from the mound, a problem for the Redbirds the past two seasons, Schoendienst may be fielding the strongest lineup he's had since back-to-back St. Louis pennants in 1967 and '68. The Cards, strengthened defensively by assignment of Ted Sizemore to second base last season, gained valuable speed when fleet Jose Cruz was called up to play center field. That enabled bat wizard Matty Alou to shift from the outfield to first base, where he performed adequately, and Dal Maxvill to resume his station at shortstop, where Sizemore had been used. The lineup, except for right field, is more set than it has been for each of the three seasons the Cardinals have faltered since the repeat titles. And even at the questionable spot, where Joe Hague and Luis Melendez divided time last year, Schoendienst should be able to fare reasonably well. Joe Torre, the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1967, anchors the Cards infield from his third base post, and Lou Brock ranks as a standout in left field. The Cards have a promising prospect in 22-year-old catcher Ted Simmons, and Bob Gibson and newly acquired Rick Wise both right-handers, head the pitching. It is questionable whether the 26-year-old Wise can bolster the mound staff more than did departed Steve Carlton, but it's more questionable still whether youngsters Reggie Cleveland and Jerry Reuss are ready to shoulder heavier loads. No less than four pitchers will vie for the fifth starting role, the list including left-hander Santiago Guzman and right-handers Jim Maloney, Al Santorini and Jim Bibby. The Cards' club pitching showed a combined 3.05 ERA in 1971, but the fault was not that of relievers Stan Williams (1.38), Frank Linzy (2.14), Don Shaw (2.45) and Moe Drabowsky (3.45). In fact, the four had a collective record of 20-6 at season's end and, with the addition of Joe Grzenda to join Shaw as a left-hander, could form the NL's best relief corps. To climb back atop the NL perch it had occupied three of five years before a skid set in in 1969, St. Louis must have another 20-victory season from Gibson, now 36, and one of nearly equal caliber from Wise or the fifth starter in question. "It might take a little longer this year than it did last year before we make up our mind on the fifth starter," says Schoendienst. "But overall, we have a lot more to choose from than we had last year. I think our pitching is the big thing. I know I say that every year, but if we get the good pitching we're going to score enough to win."

Chaps Roll By Sickly Condors

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
This was the kind of night it was for the Pittsburgh Condors, who showed up for Tuesday's American Basketball Association game against Dallas with six healthy players. They outscored the Chaparrals 13-3 over one stretch of the second period. That cut their halftime deficit to 31 points—77-46. The Chaps went on to a 143-108 victory over the outmanned Condors with Steve Jones pumping in 30 points and Donnie Freeman adding 26. Elsewhere in the ABA Tuesday night, Kentucky downed New York 117-112 in overtime, Carolina topped the Floridians 116-108 and Utah took Denver 116-108. Pittsburgh's Bob Verga led all scorers in the Condors-Chaparrals game with 42 points, including 14 in the second period when the losers chopped 10 points off what had built to a 41-point margin.

Presenting 'The Wonderful O'

"THUSE HURRIBLE CREATURES" . . . a musical number from "The Wonderful O" is rehearsed by Mark C. Smith, Littlejack and Roger Howell, Black. The Carolina Repertory

Company production of an adaptation from James Thurber's story will be at McGinnis Friday and Saturday nights. (Photo Johnny Lindahl, The Daily Tar Heel.)

On Friday night, the eastern North Carolina premiere of The Wonderful O will take place. This musical, adapted from a James Thurber text, is the initial offering of the newly formed Carolina Repertory Company, a company dedicated to bringing family theater to residents of North Carolina.

The Wonderful O will be on stage at McGinnis for two performances, one on Friday night and the second on Saturday night. Curtain time each evening is 8:15.

Jim Wann, who wrote the adaptation of The Wonderful O, is a native of Lookout Mountain and is a graduate in creative writing from UNC-Chapel Hill. Music and lyrics are by Ann Sternberg of Asheville, a graduate of Columbia University. Costumes for the production have been designed by a Magna Cum Laude graduate of East Carolina University, Lois G. Garren.

Thurber's story involves Black, the man with the ship, who strikes a bargain with Littlejack, the man with the map, to search for emeralds, sapphires, and rubies on the island of Ooroo.

Black's ship is named AIEU, which has all the vowels except the O. Black has hated the letter O ever since the time his mother became wedged in a porthole. He couldn't pull her in, so he had to push her out.

Many of the young players in the cast are native North Carolinians. In the cast are Stephen Barefoot as Andrews; Eric Ellensburg, Hyde; William Ellington, Strugg; Fay Hauser, Magraw; Roger Howell as Black; Pat Hurley, the Old Man; Tom Kindle, Boatright; Elliott C. Moffitt, The Blacksmith; Amelia Penland, wife of Boatright; Berlinda Tolbert, the Barmaid; Malcolm Groome, Stragg; Jessica Johnson, Ophelia Oliver; Polly Lucia, Andrea; Brett Pace, as Otto Ott; Steve Simpson, Baker; and Mark C. Smith, Littlejack.

Tickets are now available at the McGinnis box office at $2.00 for adults and 50 cents for students. If available, tickets will also be for sale at the box office prior to performance.

Eye Irritation 'Cures' Risky

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Some cures for eye irritation may be more harmful than the air pollution which brought it on, says a New York eye specialist.

"Doctors and patients are overtreating eye problems from pollution," said Dr. Frederick Theodore, director of external diseases at Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

"Blindness or critical eye infection is resulting."

After he addressed the San Diego Medical Society, Theodore said in an interview that some medicines may hinder the eye in fighting infection. He recommended using boiled water.

Favors SBI Report Be Given Public

RALEIGH (AP) — The head of North Carolina's Department of Human Resources says a State Bureau of Investigation report on Cherry Hospital should be made public after the Department of Mental Health has had time to review and comment on it.

Dr. Lenox Baker said Tuesday that he favors releasing the report "if both sides of the story are told."

"We want to be certain that the report contains full and knowledgeable information, and not incomplete reports and insinuations," Baker said. "It should be released with full information on the background and capabilities of the people who made the study."

The report on the state mental hospital is now in the hands of Gov. Bob Scott, who has released copies to various professional organizations and to the district solicitor in Goldsboro. Under the law, only Scott can release the document to the public.

Scott has said the report contains evidence of patient neglect, administrative mismanagement, poor morale and drug abuse at the institution. As a result of the report three hospital employees have resigned, five others have been suspended and criminal charges have been brought against seven persons.

A summary of the report has been forwarded to Baker, but he said he has not read it and would prefer to find out about its contents in a face-to-face conference with the report's authors.

High School Sees Accent On The Arts

Accent on the arts at Ayden-Grifton High School in recent days has been the first production by drama students at the school and the first in a series of one-man art shows.

"Winter Variety Show," under the direction of Branson Woodward, Jr. with students from the drama classes and Drama Club at the school participating, was the first production in this new program.

"The show was composed of two skits," Woodward explained, "two character sketches and a dramatization of the creation from The Holy Bible, all of which attempted to answer various questions concerning the mysteries of life."

A one-act play, The Gallery, produced under special arrangement with the Dramatic Publishing Company of Chicago, highlighted the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. Clarrissa E. May, music-art teacher at the school, is supervising a series of one-man art shows initiated as part of a continuing program of accents on the arts. "I have started these shows to give my students an opportunity for expression," Mrs. May explained.

David Hughes, a freshman student from Grifton, is the first featured artist in this series. David has an exhibit of acrylic paintings, charcoal sketches and original posters and tempera paintings.

Peru Planned Town For Poor

By WILLIAM H. HEATH
Associated Press Writer
VILLA EL SALVADOR, Peru (AP) — Sprawled over a treeless flat 45 minutes' drive from downtown Lima, this new town has attained a population of 130,000 in less than a year.

"They are the poorest of the poor and they come from every part of Peru," says the Rev. Joseph Walijewski, the parish priest. "They've never owned anything in their lives."

Villa el Salvador—the Savior Village—is the newest and one of the largest of more than 200 marginal communities which virtually surround the Peruvian capital. Most of the people have migrated from rural areas in search of employment and a better life.

The town was planned and promoted by the government in an attempt to ease an explosive situation created last May by a squatter invasion on Lima's southern outskirts. A skirmish left one man dead.

Government bulldozers quickly opened roads through ankle-deep sand and the Ministry of Housing laid out streets and staked out thousands of 21x60 lots. An electric line has been strung and water pipes are being laid. Meanwhile water is brought by tanker truck.

Large vacant areas—set aside by planners for future schools, hospitals and industries—often are strewn with refuse by families unaccustomed to living in large communities.

Both government and Church are lending a helping hand, but the emphasis is on self-help. Government help has won Peru's military leaders strong support among the poor. The priest, who has spent eight years in South America and came here last August, is encouraging residents to form co-operatives as a means of earning a livelihood and reducing prices.

These include sewing cooperatives for abandoned mothers and a produce trucking cooperative which would eliminate several middlemen and lower prices in the community's bustling open air markets.

Reports Heard By Martin School Bd.

WILLIAMSTON—The principal business before the Martin County of Education Monday were reports from committees concerned with the county school system.

The Student Council Committee reported the results of a survey made before Christmas that involved about 650 junior and senior students. The students had been requested to give their opinion on facilities, staff and curriculum. The information gained will be used to evaluate the entire school program.

Mrs. Doris Wilson, Chairman of the Martin County Board of Education Committees, asked that the board give direction to the committees for various reports and projects. The board noted that a decision on types of reports needed would rest primarily with school principals.

Final action on the hours of school days for the coming school year was made. For students, the school day will be from 8:30 a.m. until 3:15 p.m., and for teachers and staff, the school day will begin at 8:15 a.m. and end at 3:45 p.m.

Board members discussed and without taking action the issue of ing cause of cerebral palsy, a disorder that now affects at least 750,000 persons in the United States.

provides this service for teachers paid by the state, but does not cover teachers paid from local sources. Another matter up for discussion was the effect the Tenure Act will have on the county school system. The act goes into effect with the 1973 school year.

March 30 was designated as a make up date for one day missed earlier due to closing for a hurricane.

$60,000 Goes To Prenatal Study

HOUSTON (AP) — A Russian-born scientist has been awarded a $60,000 grant to study how unborn babies are affected by lack of oxygen.

Dr. Donald Rappoport, head of the Division of Molecular Biology at the University of Texas medical branch in Galveston, received the award from the United Cerebral Palsy Research and Education Foundation.

Oxygen deprivation in unborn and newborn infants is a lead-without taking action the issue of ing cause of cerebral palsy, a disorder that now affects at least 750,000 persons in the United States.

The Worry Clinic You Can Stop Thumb-Sucking

Teddy is a victim of a common nuisance habit that humiliates children, especially by kindergarten age. Try to avoid the start of this habit. But if it already exists, then use some of the methods outlined below to chide its continuance.

By GEORGE W. CRANE,

Ph.D., M.D.
Case T-520: Teddy G., aged 4, sucks his thumb.
"Dr. Crane," his mother began, "I'm worried about the ridicule he will receive when he enters kindergarten."
"For he carries his thumb-sucking over into the daytime and thus will often stand in the living room, when we have guests, and contentedly suck his thumb.

"Ann Landers recently said thumb-sucking is a source of comfort to a child so we should leave it alone.

"Is that the attitude of official psychologists and psychiatrists?"

TENSION RELIEVERS
The cigarette addict and chronic alcoholic also regard those vices as a source of comfort, too.

But we don't urge the continuance of such bad habits. Same goes for thumbsucking! For it can cause a severe social inferiority complex in its victim when he enters kindergarten or Sunday School.

Thumb-sucking is originally a tension reliever which the baby accidentally discovers.

For example, if he isn't getting enough milk and his stomach gnaws, then thumb-sucking releases his tension in two ways.

First, it lets him expend energy via the muscles of the mouth and throat, much as chewing gum relieves the tension of older kiddies.

But thumb-sucking also produces more saliva, which he swallows, thus diluting his gastric juice and lessening his stomach-ache.

Mothers, please remember that infants can have peptic ulcers, so that extra saliva soothes the burn thereof!

When boy babies are subjected to the sadistic surgical act of circumcision, no anesthesia is employed to reduce the pain.

As the surgeon's knife starts cutting the infant's skin, the baby screams until a pacifier is placed in his mouth.

Then it frantically sucks on that pacifier during the surgery. To offset the original start of thumb-sucking, be sure the baby has ample feedings.

Then, if the habit has started, try to divert its hands to fondling a bedfellow, such as a woolly toy lamb or cloth puppy, or a teddy bear.

Such bedtime toy companions relax the child and thus serve as good substitutes for the act of thumb-sucking (as well as masturbation).

If a baby is under the age of a year, cut a strip of thin rubber tubing from an old inner tube.

Fasten one end of it to the sleeve cuff of the baby's pajamas by means of a safety pin.

Then pin the other to the foot of the mattress.
Don't place the rubber strip under any tension.

But as soon as the infant pulls his hand up to his mouth, then the rubber strip will be tensed and soon fatigue the muscles. Within a few seconds, therefore, the rubber strip will pull the thumb out of the baby's mouth.

Another effective method which I used on one of our children, was to insert the baby's arm through a cardboard cylinder.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, March 8, 1972—21

Then I pinned the cardboard cylinder to the infant's sleeve, above and below the elbow.

The baby could still wave his arm and hand around freely but couldn't bend the elbow enough for his hand to reach his mouth.

Send for my booklet "Child Psychology and Behavior Problems," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to Yesterday's hand was taken from the finals of the Hilton Invitational Knock-Out Team of Four championship held last December in Las Vegas. A team of Goren Stars bowed in the last round to the famous Italian Blue Team which has recently emerged from a two year retirement after having captured nine consecutive World Championships.

Today's hand was from the semifinal match and helped my team to pull away from the current World Title holders, the Dallas Aces. The bidding presented in the diagram occurred at the table where my good friend and associate, Harold Ogust was renewing a long standing partnership with another teammate, Boris Koytchou. Ogust, seated South, chose to reopen the bidding when West's one no trump call was passed around to him, by jumping to three hearts. Possession of a good seven card suit offered reasonable protection against any damaging penalty and since North was marked with some strength when the bidding died at such a low level, South wished to offer partner an inducement to proceed. North had ample to carry on to game.

West opened the ace of hearts and when the dummy was spread, he switched to the ace of diamonds. East signaled encouragingly with the six and a diamond continuation to the king completed the defensive book.

The switch was to the three of spades. South could count eight top tricks—six hearts and two black aces. Assuming that the opening no trump bidder held the king of clubs, a finesse in that suit would bring the total up to nine. If West also had the jack of clubs and the king of spades, which appeared to be a reasonable assumption, then it was possible to squeeze him out of the 10th merely by running down his winners.

Ogust put up the ace of spades from his hand and proceeded to lead out every one of his hearts. As the last trump was led, this was the position:

West had to make a discard on the seven of hearts. To throw the king of spades would establish North's queen, so he parted with the seven of clubs. Ogust now discarded dummy's spade and led a club. West followed with the jack and North played the queen which held the trick. The ace dropped the king and dummy's ten gave declarer his contract. As it turned out, had East shifted to a club at trick four when he was in with the king of diamonds, it would have broken up the squeeze and South would have been held to nine tricks.

At the other table, West also opened the bidding with one no trump, followed by two passes. South chose to reopen with two hearts and this bid was passed out. Altho the part score was easily made, my team picked up the game bonus scored at Ogust's table and went on to win the match.

AT THE OPEN DISCUSSION MEETING, KREWITT THOUGHT HE HAD A LOGICAL SOLUTION TO THE DRAFT PROBLEM ...

BUT ALL HE HAD WAS HIS DAY IN COURT!

Septic Tank Inspection Plan Is Announced By Pitt Board Of Health

Dr. O. R. Pearce of the Pitt County Board of Health has announced a new program of the Environmental Health Division of the Community Health Department to solve the increasing problems of disposing of septic tank pumping in the county.

Jimmy Stocks, the environmental health man in charge of the program, has met with septic tank servicemen from throughout the county to discuss proper disposal. Each serviceman has been required to find a suitable site for proper disposal and to inspect his own truck tank and pumping equipment for leaks and other mechanical defects.

After this self-inspection, the

Tailoring Class Starts Tonight

A class in tailoring will begin tonight at seven o'clock in room three at Pitt Technical Institute. The course will be 30 hours and will cost $3. Interested persons are urged to attend the meeting tonight. For further information, interested persons may call Pitt Technical Institute.

Environmental Health Division inspected each individual serviceman's equipment while it was being used for pumping sewage from a septic tank and during transportation to an approved site.

The sites on abandoned fields and farmlands that have been put in the Federal Soil Bank, are so located that sewage will not contaminate any private or public water supply. At the end of each day, sewage so dumped is plowed into the ground.

Once a serviceman has passed his inspection, he is issued a numbered permit to operate for one year with Board of Health approval. Annual inspection is required. The six approved operators in this county are William T. May of Grimesland, Hyman Boyd of Simpson, Cannon's Septic Tank Service of Grifton, Carey Dudley of Kingston and Glen Hardee and Randolph's Sanitary Service, both of Greenville.

Out-of-county operators who work in Pitt County also must be inspected by the Pitt inspectors. Anyone desiring information about standards or an appointment for inspection should contact Stocks at the Pitt County Community Health Department. Only persons that hold a valid permit and who are properly identified by the Community Health Department are authorized to service residential sewage disposal system within Pitt County.
