

Wholesale Prices See Another Steep Rise In February

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices of food and a wide range of industrial products climbed an over-all nine-tenths of one per cent last month for the sharpest rise in a year, the government reported today.

Prices of farm products and processed foods, some of which are exempt from federal price controls, rose 1.9 per cent and prices of industrial raw materials and manufactured products went up five-tenths of one per cent, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The over-all February wholesale price rise, generally a signal of rising consumer prices later, was a little less—seven-tenths of one per cent—on an adjusted basis for expected seasonal price changes. On the seasonal basis, the increase was the largest since December.

The report also said that the unadjusted rise of nine-tenths of one per cent would have been seven-tenths if agricultural products not subject to federal controls were eliminated.

It said that of the 1.9 per cent climb for farm products and processed foods, one per cent of it was for uncontrolled agricultural products such as raw fruits and vegetables, eggs and livestock.

The report said that the average monthly rise in the Wholesale Price Index since President Nixon imposed the wage-price freeze last August was four-tenths of one per cent, compared with a monthly average hike of three-tenths in the six months before the federal control program.

For the three months since Nixon's freeze gave way to the more relaxed control program, the monthly average rise was six-tenths of one per cent, the bureau said.

The February increase lifted the Wholesale Price Index for all commodities to 117.3 per cent of its 1967 average, four per cent above a year earlier.

The index figure means it cost wholesalers $117.30 last month on the average for goods worth $100 five years ago.

Airline Officials Seek Washington Answers

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
Top officials of the nation's 29 biggest airlines were called to Washington today to help thwart what President Nixon called "vicious extortion plots" against the carriers.

Nixon acted Thursday to require immediate implementation of new rules aimed at keeping dangerous individuals, weapons or bombs off scheduled airliners. The new procedures were slated to take effect three months from now.

The airline chiefs were summoned to meet with Secretary of Transportation John Volpe and the Federal Aviation Administration.

Retired Air Force Gen. Benjamin O. Davis, chief of the federal force of sky marshals, told newsmen at the White House not all the 29 airlines had taken a serious view of past federal directives aimed at frustrating hijackers and blackmailers.

In response to a question, Davis named Trans World Airlines as one that has adopted a realistic approach.

However, it was a $2-million blackmail attempt against TWA and the planting of two bombs aboard its jet liners—only one exploded—that prompted Nixon to aim for safety of air transport.

In New York, TWA's president, F.C. Wiser, said there has been "no contact with the extortionist since Tuesday evening and no ransom has been paid."

A short time after his announcement, a bomb scare emptied a restaurant and bar at Kennedy airport in New York. Flights were halted for about 20 minutes, but nothing was discovered. The scare was only one of several involving planes and terminals at New York, Baltimore, San Juan, Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville and Reno, Nev. No bombs were found at any of the sites.

Flights were delayed at many airports as the spate of threats continued and beefed-up security slowed departures and arrivals.

The FAA, meanwhile, said it will require new communications systems between air crews and the ground, and between cockpits and cabins aboard planes.

While claiming federal programs have drastically cut the number of successful hijackings, Nixon said in a statement:

"Our air-transportation system faces a new threat, in the form of vicious extortion plots like the ones which have been directed at air traffic across the country this week. We must not be intimidated by such lawlessness, rather we must and will meet this blackmail on the ground, as vigorously as we have met piracy in the air."

The President said he had "mobilized all appropriate security forces and resources of the federal government," including the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Nixon's order for more-stringent airline-security measures was described by aides as having the full force of law.

On Capitol Hill Thursday, the FAA told Congress there is no need to increase airline-ticket taxes to finance antibombing and antihijacking programs.

Such a request had been made when sky marshals were put aboard airplanes in 1970.

Draft Boards Told Can Resume Their Hearings On Backlog Of Appeals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service told local draft boards today they may resume hearing the appeals of thousands of young men seeking deferments or exemptions.

The action ended a three-month freeze on such hearings before 4,100 local boards.

Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr said the move completes a two-year overhaul of the draft system, moving it from a state-local focus to President Nixon's goal of a national system.

With Tarr's order, action can be taken on the 22,486 men who at last count on Jan. 31, had pending requests for, personal appearances before draft boards or appeals to state and national boards. Several thousand others have applied since then and are awaiting action.

Tarr suspended all deferment hearings on Dec. 10 to re-evaluate the original reclassification proposals that had been criticized as unfair. When re-ramped rules were issued Jan. 12 he kept the brakes on so those seeking deferments or exemptions could take advantage of the revised rules.

One of several new rules announced today allows a registrant who has his draft callup postponed to receive consideration from his local board for a reopening of his classification proceedings.

This is an amendment to the Jan. 12 rule that gives a man 15 days after his draft classification is mailed to request a personal appearance or to appeal.

The new rules also require state appeals boards and the national appeals board to give at least 15 days notice when a man is granted a personal appearance. Previously no personal appearances were granted before appeals boards.

Another change permits draftees to bring witnesses on their behalf before local boards.

The new rules also require: —A quorum of board members to be present during a man's personal appearance.

—At least 15 minutes for each appellant's presentation. The limit is to prevent harassment of boards but the board may grant more time.

—A man's local board—as well as appeals boards—to give him the reasons for rejection of his classification request.

American Dollar Still Shaky In Money Markets

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar steadied in some financial centers today from Thursday's sharp plunge but dealers said the American money was still shaky.

A degree of calm appeared to have returned to markets but most dealers believed it was only a preweekend pause. The downward trend could start again Monday, they said.

The dollar opened and closed at 301.90 yen in Tokyo, unchanged from Thursday's closing. The Japanese state bank was forced to buy up $56 million to support the rate.

In Europe, the U.S. currency strengthened slightly in London and Paris but weakened further in the Swiss, West German and Italian markets.

Morehead Scholarships For Two Pitt Students

An Ayden-Grifton and a Rose High School student are the recipients of $8,250 a year John Motley Morehead Scholarships to attend the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The Pitt County Morehead Scholars are Charles Lee "Chuck" Babington of Ayden and Roger Billica of Greenville. Babington is an honor student at Ayden-Grifton High School, where he is president of the Student Council and was co-captain of the football team. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thomas Babington of Ayden, he plans to enter the School of Business at UNC and perhaps the Law School after completing his undergraduate degree.

Billica, first in his class of 436 seniors at Rose High School, is editor of the school literary magazine, president of the band, and co-captain of the swimming team. He is an Eagle Scout and is chief of the Order of the Arrow. The son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry R. Billica of Greenville, he says he plans to be a physician.

W. W. Speight, chairman of the Pitt County Morehead Scholarship committee, said, "We are extremely proud of these deserving young men, and we know they will excel at the University of North Carolina."

The Morehead Scholarship are given to a select few young men each year as part of an endowment by the late John Motley Morehead. The awards are based not on need, but on merit only, Speight said.

McGovern Joining N.C. Primary List

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina's first presidential primary was expected to take on added importance today with the addition to the ballot of a sixth Democrat, South Dakota Sen. George McGovern.

State Elections Director Alex Brock said Thursday that McGovern aides had notified him they would appear this afternoon to pay the senator's $1,000 filing fee this afternoon.

President Nixon got his first challenger on the Republican ticket Thursday when Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., paid his filing fee. The third Republican eligible to enter the primary, Congressman John Ashbrook of Ohio, had until today to enter the race.

Also Thursday, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., became the fifth Democrat to enter the primary.

Other Democrats already in the race are Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, Alabama Gov. George Wallace, New York Rep. Shirley Chisholm and former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford.

McGovern collected 37 per cent of the Democratic vote in the New Hampshire primary Tuesday, cutting Muskie's winning total to 48 per cent, much slimmer than the landslide the Maine senator had hoped for.

McGovern had been shooting for at least 25 per cent of the primary vote, saying the outcome in New Hampshire would determine the future of his race for the nomination.

Nixon captured 69 per cent of the Republican vote in New Hampshire and McCloskey 20 per cent.

McCloskey sent his $1,000 filing fee to the Board of Elections by telegram. A North Carolina State University student, Don D'Ambrosi of Raleigh, later brought by the candidate's signed letter of intent.

D'Ambrosi said he did not officially represent McCloskey and did not know who would constitute the candidate's campaign staff in the state.

John Vance of Jackson's Washington, D.C., campaign staff appeared to pay his candidate's filing fee. He said he was sure the senator would visit North Carolina on "numerous occasions between now and May 6."

Vance said Jackson's decision to enter the state's primary had been made "within recent hours." He said he doubted the results of the New Hampshire primary had much to do with the decision.

He said a campaign staff for Jackson in the state would be announced later.

A prepared statement by

Jackson reiterated his stand against forced busing to achieve racial balance, said the people are fed up with Nixon's "mismanagement of the economy" and said he believes Tar Heels share his conviction "that a prudent defense is necessary to maintain peace in an unstable world."

Two other Democrats besides McGovern — Eugene McCarthy and Arkansas Rep. Wilbur Mills — also had until today to file.

Pappy Boyington Is Running Down

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Gregory "Pappy" Boyington was credited with knocking 28 Japanese planes from the skies during World War II. Now he says a multitude of problems is shooting down his health.

"The type of life I lived, the old machine was bound to wear out," the gravel voiced, 59-year-old Medal of Honor winner said in an interview Thursday.

Boyington, living here temporarily to get treatment at a Veterans Administration hospital, said his ailments have included cancer which required the removal of part of one lung.

"I've been quite ill the last five years. I just want to pass on without fuss," Boyington said. "I've had a pretty full life, and nothing lasts forever. Any way the wind blows, I won't kick."

Boyington was an American war hero even before the United States entered World War II. He was credited with six kills over China in 1941 while flying with Gen. Claire Chennault's American volunteer group, the Flying Tigers.

When Marine surgeons later predicted a broken leg would end his combat flying, Boyington molded a group of pilots rejected by other squadrons into the Black Sheep, a crack aerial battle squadron in the Solomons during 1943-44. A lieutenant colonel, Boyington spent the final year and a half of the war as a Japanese captive after his plane was shot down in January 1944.

Later, Boyington was officially credited with shooting down 28 planes.

Boyington said he was tagged with the nickname "Pappy" because he was the oldest member of his Marine Corps squadron.

He was in his late 20s.

Chiang Kai-shek Agrees To Fifth Term

By LEONARD PRATT
Associated Press Writer

TAIPEI (AP) — Chiang Kai-shek accepted his party's call today to stay on as Nationalist China's president and confront the challenge posed by Communist Chinese foreign policy gains.

His nomination by the Kuomintang for a fifth six-year term assured him of re-election. The National Assembly, controlled by the Kuomintang, will select the president March 21. Chiang, 84, was not present when members of the party's Central Committee stood and cheered his nomination. But the news was relayed to him by chief delegate Ku Cheng-kang. About four hours later, Chiang appeared before the committee looking relaxed and healthy.

"It is a great pleasure for me to be nominated as the party candidate for the fifth president of the Republic of China," he said.

Chiang said on Feb. 20 he wanted the National Assembly to choose his successor. But his was regarded only as political good manners. Kuomintang organizations all along had been urging Chiang to continue in office "in accord with the will of the people."

Chiang was elected China's president in 1948 on the mainland. But a year later he was driven out by Mao Tse-tung's Communists and fled to the island of Taiwan, where he has maintained a temporary capital ever since.

Both the Communist Chinese and the Nationalist Chinese contend the mainland and Taiwan are part of the same nation but each insists its regime is the only legal Chinese government.

Nationalist general elections are expected to provide more representation in the government for native Taiwanese, who make up 85 per cent of the island's 13½ million population but hold only a small minority of seats in the legislative bodies.

The Central Committee adopted a resolution Thursday calling on the National Assembly to give the president power to decide how many members should be added to the National Assembly, the Legislature and the Control Yuan, a watchdog body. Members elected in 1948, the year of China's last national election, would continue to hold their seats.

The POW Wife Is Now Fictionalized In Novel

By LYNN SHERR
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The POW wife: agonized, lonely, frustrated, anxious. And now, fictionalized.

In a new novel, "Limbo," authors Joan Silver and Linda Gottlieb present a story version of the approximately 1,850 women whose husbands have been captured or are still missing in action (MIA) in the Indochina war.

"These are women who are liberated in spite of themselves," explained Mrs. Gottlieb, 32, a writer and former educational film producer. "They are the first wives to be caught in conflict because of the sexual revolution at home and the antiwar protesters. It's a unique pressure on the women."

In the authors' view, that pressure leads to such happenings as romantic love affairs, peace demonstrations and anti-government sentiments. It's not a view that appears popular with the Pentagon.

When presented with the script of a film adaptation of the novel—which Mrs. Silver, 36, wrote, and Mrs. Gottlieb is producing—the Pentagon refused permission to film on an Air Force base or at landing fields. And they said that they would lend no technical advice.

John E. Horton, who represents the movie company in the capital, said he thought the decision was "nothing political—they just didn't agree with the tone of the script as opposed to what they feel the actual situation is." He said that in most cases of movies requiring Pentagon cooperation, "usually they are very helpful."

A Pentagon spokesman, Don Baruch, of the Audio-Visual Branch, said the request had been turned down, but would only say, "We don't feel that we should discuss a property that we are not working with."

In Mrs. Gottlieb's view, "Their reaction is that POW wives are loyal, faithful and pro-administration. That's why they wouldn't help us."

Instead, they will make do with other facilities when the film goes into production late in February. It is expected to be released in the fall, "at which time we hope all the men will be home," said Mrs. Gottlieb, an energetic brunette.

The two women, who have formed their own company, Omaha-Orange Films, said they chose to tell the story as fiction because so much actual reporting has been done, and because they wanted to reach a wider audience. The women who appear in "Limbo" are actually composite characters of the dozens of POW and MIA wives they interviewed over a five month period.

"The wives are truly sympathetic," said Joan Silver, a tall, slim writer of film scripts. "When they heard about our project, they said, 'Great, I want the story to be told.'"

Telling the story was not always easy for the two women, who are wives themselves, although not of servicemen. Mrs. Gottlieb said she wrote her part of the book between dentist appointments and tonsillectomies for her two sons.

Hypochondriac's Hubby Needs A Doctor, Too

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a hypochondriac. She complains night and unfortunately, day. If one thing doesn't hurt her, something else does. She either can't sleep or she can't stay awake.

I have been sympathetic, but I am all worn out from listening to her. I can't get a good night's sleep, and the hours awake with her are a bore.

Her doctor said there is nothing wrong with her, but he keeps her well supplied with "tranquillizers" which are really just pills with nothing in them. [She complains about the "reaction" she gets from them, too.]

There is an Alcoholics Anonymous and a Gamblers Anonymous. Tell me, is there a Hypochondriacs Anonymous? THE REAL SUFFERER

DEAR SUFFERER: One who complains night and day about pains, imagined or real, can't sleep and can't stay awake, and has "reactions" from pills with nothing in them, is suffering in every sense of the word. Ask the doctor who said there was nothing wrong with her to recommend a doctor who treats "healthy" people with your wife's symptoms. And don't put it off, or you'll need treatment, too.

DEAR ABBY: I am a well-adjusted male homosexual who occasionally needs a female companion to accompany me to business and social functions. Conversely, I have female homosexual acquaintances who also need a male escort for certain occasions, and therefore we "help each other out."

The problem arises when I go out with the girl as a favor to her. Should I be expected to pick up the check for the entire evening?

I have had evenings which have cost me $30 and more. I hate to be a cheapskate, but I can't afford many of these outings. How do you suggest this be handled? PERPLEXED HOMOSEXUAL

DEAR PERPLEXED: Since you obviously are perfectly candid about why you "help each other out," level with each other in the matter of the finances. The one who needs the favor should pick up the check.

DEAR ABBY: We have a neighbor who is constantly painting his house. Altho he has aluminum siding, he keeps painting the trim around the windows.

He uses a very small brush and keeps going round and round the house, and when he's finished he scrapes off the paint and starts to paint it all over again.

Another odd thing he does: When he paints the second story trim he leaves the can of paint on the ground, dips his little brush into the paint, climbs up the ladder and paints. And when he needs more paint he descends the ladder, dips his brush into the paint and climbs the ladder and paints some more.

I have watched him by the hour, completely fascinated. I wonder, is there something wrong with this man? PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Possibly not. Maybe he just enjoys the fresh air and exercise. Or likes to paint!

CONFIDENTIAL TO B. B.: From constantly rubbing up against a rich man, a poor man will get a hole in his sleeve.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Couples Should Visit Insurance Agent Prior To Wedding Date

NEW YORK (UPI)—All you with stars in your eyes about the coming wedding will be inclined to turn thumbs down on this suggestion:

Visit an insurance agent some weeks before the wedding.

With $4,000—that's the average—worth of new furniture and appliances, not to mention wedding gifts and clothes, a visit with the insurance man might save you trouble. And even money.

You'll have to see that your name is changed on all policies you now have. Be sure to go over your existing auto insurance policies with the agent, too.

"Few young couples realize that a change in marital status can affect the amount they pay for auto insurance," said Richard B. Neiley Jr., a vice president of Insurance Company of North America.

"Brides under 25 and grooms under 30 may find their auto insurance premiums somewhat reduced once they're married. Statistics on which insurance company rates are based show that, on the average, the young married man or woman is a better risk than his single counterpart."

Need Tenant's Policy
The authority said savings are likely to be substantial if the young man had auto insurance with a state assigned risk plan—usually made up of drivers with a record of traffic violations or accidents.

"The change in marital status might make him an acceptable risk for private insurance companies. And the rates for insurance from a private company usually are less than those in the assigned risk plan," Neiley said.

He also advises young couples to get tenant's or homeowner's insurance.

"Many people just getting settled in an apartment don't realize that their landlord's insurance doesn't protect the things they own," he said.

"A tenant's policy, which is relatively inexpensive, covers the contents of the apartment—clothes, furniture, books, that sort of thing."

Homeowners Policies
"If they're starting off in a home of their own, they'll need a homeowner's policy. It protects the house itself as well as the contents among other things. A certain amount of insurance is required by the bank holding the mortgage, anyway."

Be sure to make an estimate of the total worth of your possessions. That way you'll be able to get adequate coverage.

"It is quite common for couples to underestimate the total worth of the things they own," Neiley said.

"Many people just assume the value is $2,000 or $3,000 when it's actually several times that amount. Saving purchase receipts is important, too. You'll need receipts to prove value if you have to file a claim. A list of all your possessions and their approximate values is just as important."

Many insurance companies offer an Engaged Couples Endorsement. This is coverage that can be added to a tenant's policy. You can buy the coverage up to 90 days before the wedding. It covers your wedding gifts and possessions stored anywhere in the state until 90 days after the wedding.

Medical Insurance
Talk to your insurance agent about medical insurance, too. If you've been covered by your parents' policy, you probably won't be when you marry.

If both you and your intended work, check to see which of you has the better health insurance plan with his employer. It will cost less to get family coverage through one employer than individual coverage for each of you.

Life insurance, too, is something you should explore with the insurance agent. It's best to give him information on your income and financial responsibilities and then let him recommend plans that will best suit you.

Just remember the younger and healthier you are, the lower the premiums. You're going to need it sooner or later so it's a good idea to buy life insurance while the premiums are low. Some types of life insurance build a cash value against which you can always borrow or collect if you decide to cancel the policy.

A reliable, licensed insurance agent is your best source of advice on the types and amounts of insurance you and your fiancé need. You may feel you can't afford insurance and don't need it.

But when you need it, you can't afford not to have the financial protection it gives you.

Officers Elected By Leaf And Blade Society

New officers were elected at the bi-monthly meeting of the Leaf and Blade Society held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Laurel Walsh.

Mrs. Therese Lawler heads the group as president. Other officers are: Mrs. Sheila Kupec, vice president in charge of Leaf Bulletins; Mrs. Barbara Caspar, vice president in charge of Blade Publications; Mrs. Janet Aliapoulos, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Rose Richards, recording secretary; Mrs. Sylvia Dawson, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Alice Yarbrough, parliamentarian; and Mrs. Judith Randle, historian.

The presented gifts of service rendered in the form of gold leaf pins and Moroccan bound copies of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass."

After serving members and guests, Mrs. Walsh introduced the speaker for the evening, U.S. Randle. He spoke to the women on "Characteristics of reoccurring Spore Growth Found in Mildew Fungus Related to Book-binding and Astroturf."

Randle explored the destructive avenues of both "powdery" and "downy" mildew, emphasizing that most private libraries, patios, and artificially turfed playing areas will continue to be plagued unless proper precautions are taken.

Randle suggested the use of climate control through the elimination of cloud seeding and the complete saturation of distressed areas with a mixture of water and paraformaldehyde.

Mrs. Lawler announced the next regular meeting would be held at the Walsh-Aliapoulos docking site, where a basic study of sail reefing will be undertaken. The lecture will be followed by dinner.

Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Kupec are co-hostesses for the May meeting and all members are invited to bring interested guests.

For the resort and spring seasons, Pat Sandler will put American women into the clothes they've been waiting for—classic, casual, and contemporary. His favorite theme is the layered look, both day and night.

Ulster Churchmen Urge Prayer Instead Of Bombs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Roman Catholic and Protestant prelates of Ulster appealed today to the Irish to resort to prayer instead of bombs.

The church leaders' pre-Easter plea, however, coincided with the latest bomb blast, which wrecked a wallpaper store in Belfast. No one was injured.

The Most. Rev. George O. Simms, Protestant primate of all Ireland, and the president of the Methodist Church, Dr. Charles H. Bain, called on "all Christians in this island to mark Good Friday—March 31—as a day of national mourning, repentance and renewal."

William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, said he wishes to be associated with the appeal. Cardinal Conway also called for three days of prayer to "save our country from its present grave troubles."

As the churchmen made their plea, the army said two men planted a bomb in a shop owned by Belfast's mayor designate, William Christie. The bombers gave the staff 25 minutes to escape the blast.

The Irish Republican Army—IRA—identified three terrorists blown to bits in a bomb dump Thursday as a teen-age volunteer and two IRA lieutenants.

A communique handed to a Dublin newspaper said Lt. John Johnson, 20, was an explosives expert for the terrorists. Lt. Gerard Crossan, the communique said, was a 21-year-old father of two and Tony Lewis a 16-year-old apprentice guerrilla.

The three died in an explosion which demolished a bomb workshop in the heart of Belfast on Thursday. Their deaths brought to 61 the number of persons killed in Northern Ireland violence this year and to 10 the number killed this month.

Roman Catholics expressed conviction the explosion was the work of Protestant raiders, and fears mounted in Roman Catholic neighborhoods of a Protestant backlash to the IRA terror campaign.

But the British army and Belfast police said the blast came from a 30-pound gelignite bomb that went off accidentally while being primed in the guerrilla workshop.

The bomb exploded as pressure mounted on the British government to bring forward its long-awaited peace proposals. These are said to involve giving Catholics a greater share in governing the province, where they are outnumbered two-to-one by Protestants.

Ministers were accused in Parliament of perhaps contributing to further deaths by continuing to debate while violence raged.

A Northern Ireland government spokesman said that since August terror blasts have killed 63 persons, and wounded 1,264.

Two suspected IRA men were among the five, including a woman, who were injured in the Belfast explosion Thursday. One was believed to be the commander of the area's Provisional IRA group. They were under heavy guard today in a hospital.

Most Catholics in the vicinity of the blast were whispering the word "backlash." Some said the bomb was tossed from a passing car, implying it was delivered by revenge-seeking Protestants.

Official evidence indicated the blast was centered in a room at the rear of the building, away from the street.

A massive strike organized by Protestant workers declaring their intent to stay British closed down industry Thursday throughout the province and imposed electrical power cuts on homes and businesses.

Informer Disclaims He Had Extortion Motive

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A defense suggestion that FBI informer Boyd C. Douglas Jr., may have had extortion instead of patriotism in mind when he began collecting conspiracy evidence on antiwar priest Philip Berrigan has been hotly denied by Douglas as "a lie."

The government's chief witness at the trial of Berrigan and six others appeared a little shaken Thursday under intensive cross-examination attacking his credibility. The questioning continues into its fourth day today.

Douglas was a prisoner with Berrigan in the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary in 1970.

The subject of extortion came up during cross-examination by defense attorney Terry Lenzner.

Q. Did you ever talk to another inmate about the possibility of getting money out of the Catholic movement?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever say you planned to get close to Father Berrigan to extort money from the movement?

A. That is a lie.

U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman noted the government's objection to the questions and told Lenzner, "I hope you are going to follow this up."

Lenzner replied he had subpoenaed a witness "who will back up this line of questioning." He said the testimony will be presented in the defense phase of the case.

Douglas, 31, has testified that he started copying mail he carried secretly for the priest because he considered Berrigan dangerous to the United States.

Douglas admitted he arranged to meet Berrigan as soon as he arrived at the prison, but he claims the priest recruited him to smuggle letters in and out because he was able to go outside as a convict-student at nearby Bucknell University.

Under questioning by Lenzner, Douglas said he had done many things to stay in the good graces of the antiwar movement, including lying about his background.

Secrecy Classification Braked

The disclosure of the Pentagon papers and the so-called Anderson papers has proven embarrassing to the administration. It has brought about a belated move to revise the system for classifying government papers.

In issuing an executive order, Nixon said it was aimed at making more information available to the public. The order restricted the authority to classify papers as top secret and specified that such authority must be used with "utmost restraint." The secret designation is to be used "sparingly."

There is also to be a new system for declassification of documents to speed up this process.

The president said his aim was to "lift the veil of secrecy which now enshrouds too many papers written by employees of the federal establishment—and to do so without jeopardizing any of our legitimate defense or foreign policy interests."

He noted that previously, "classification has frequently served to conceal bureaucratic mistakes or to prevent embarrassment to officials and administrations.

The order places the burden of proof on those who classify the documents, rather than those who seek to declassify them.

New regulations covering the classification of state documents are long over due and it is regrettable that it took purloined documents to bring about this move.

However, while overdue, it is good that the administration has decided to see that abuses of the secrecy label on government papers are brought under control.

The greatest shock of the Pentagon papers to us was the fact that anyone ever considered them to be secret documents in the first place. We suspect that might be the reaction of the general public and, thus public confidence in the labeling of government papers was undermined.

It is regrettable, but true, that some few government documents involve security and thus must be classified as secret. Such classification should be done with care, however, and those who use this label to covering up bureaucratic mistakes or to classify harmless information should be made to answer for this.

We hope these new regulations will serve this purpose.

The Forecast To Candidates

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Planners say the present course of state spending could require $200 million in additional revenue for the 1975-77 biennium.

If the projection is correct, the next governor would have the onerous job of raising taxes.

It's better to realize the possibility while campaigning than face the music after election, Gov. Bob Scott told candidates gathered this week for a briefing on the state's fiscal affairs.

Democrat and Republican candidates for governor and lieutenant governor, or their representatives, attended the briefing, a first-of-its-kind in North Carolina. For two hours, they listened to state officials and a planning expert talk on the current status and future prospects for the state budget.

Scott said the idea for the briefing came out of personal experience.

Campaigning In The Dark
Running for office, he said, he found himself "almost totally unprepared to discuss knowledgeably the state budget...and the cost of programs."

If he had known better, he implied, he never would have advocated raising Tar Heel school teacher salaries to the national average. "That's one of the things I have been accused of backing down on," he said. "I had no idea what it meant in dollars and cents, and the impact on the total state budget."

Scott said he was concerned with campaign credibility.

"All of us sense that people have some little hesitancy to believe what candidates say," the Governor remarked, particularly in regard to spending and taxes. "I want the public to have faith in the political process, to believe in our system."

Session Termed Worthwhile
Candidates listened politely, made notes, and asked some questions. When it was over, most said they felt the session was worthwhile.

John A. Walker of North Wilkesboro, GOP aspirant for lieutenant governor, congratulated Scott and the participating state officials. "An outstanding presentation, well done," said Walker.

Whether it will make any difference in campaign strategy is another matter.

Taxes take on the air of an issue in the Democratic gubernatorial contest.

Lt. Gov. H. P. (Pat) Taylor, regarded as a leader in the race, has said the door can't be closed to the possibility of new taxes if required to finance needed services. Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles, another top contender, has taken a firm "no new taxes" posture.

Bowles Sees $300 Million
Bowles said it's his considered judgment that more than $300 million can be found in the General Fund for new and improved programs. He forecast a $140 million surplus for the current biennium, and said other millions could be realized "through more effective budget management procedures and by securing the full beneficial effect of reorganization of state government."

At the briefing, State Budget Officer Frank Justice said the surplus on June 30, 1973 could be predicted with no more precision than between $40 million and $100 million.

Development of a computer model for projecting state government revenues and expenditures was explained at the briefing by Alvin M. Cruze, Research Triangle Institute senior economist. State population and its characteristics determine the level of expenditures; revenues to finance them depend on per capita income and the tax structure. "Thus population, employment and income constitute a highly interrelated set of measures that are related to all revenue and expenditure totals, past, present and future," he said.

The total state budget has grown from $2.9 billion in 1967-69 to $4.3 billion for 1971-73. It is projected to over $5.7 billion in the 1975-77 biennium.

To show the impact of policy decisions on budget projections, Cruze said that if an additional 10 per cent increase in teachers' salaries were given in each year of the 1975-77 biennium, it would cost more than $200 million. That would then mean a deficit of over $400 million, he added.

Cruze warned that planning gives no crystal ball. Planning results, he explained, "provide early warning of impending problems and illustrate that likely effects of policies which may be implemented to alleviate these problems."

HHH Exploits Fla. Strength

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MIAMI — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's rising threat to capture second place from Sen. Edmund Muskie in next week's Democratic Presidential primary here is based on his solid and long-time standing with three large Florida voting groups: the old, the black and the Jews.

Thus, while Muskie attempts to safeguard his shaky centrist position, now being whittled away on the busing issue by front-running Gov. George Wallace and Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson and on the left by New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, Humphrey is cashing in on his old but still-remembered championship of special interest groups.

The former Vice President is exploiting these identifiable sources of Humphrey strength with the most sophisticated get-out-the-vote operation of any Democratic hopeful in the field — a swollen field of 11 candidates which makes forecasting the March 14 results a nightmarish futility.

With automated telephone banks manned by Humphrey workers expected to contact at least 250,000 voters in precincts of known Humphrey strength (a communication network organized by former Humphrey press aide Norman Sherman), this get-out-the-vote drive could well make the difference in the neck-and-neck race between Muskie and Humphrey.

No such easy access to pools of strength is available to Muskie. To the contrary, the relatively even distribution of his centrist support, regarded as his most formidable asset as the national front-runner for nomination, is a grave weakness in the overcrowded Florida field.

For example, while Wallace and Jackson are cutting into Muskie's center-right on the busing issue, Lindsay is cutting in on his center-left. By making common cause with Gov. Reubin Askew's uncompromising stand — a small but distinct minority which otherwise might have gone to Muskie.

That leaves a depleted center, and Humphrey is making a far more concentrated bid for this depleted center than Muskie.

Thus, at a lengthy closed-door breakfast session with black leaders in Tallahassee on March 2, Humphrey argued convincingly that his own ambivalent position on the busing issue had to be judged against his long record as a battler for civil rights. While Humphrey was making his pitch, Muskie was stuck in the New Hampshire snows at the demand of his managers trying to stem possibly grave slippage to Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

Moreover, Humphrey also holds an edge over Muskie with organized labor. In his speech to the Florida legislature last week, he came down hard on Muskie's refusal to support the space shuttle, a major issue for unions in space-oriented central Florida.

In addition, Muskie has made some inexcusable campaign blunders. His media managers, for one conspicuous example, permitted a counterproductive 30-second television spot to run for a whole week before killing it. It depicted the Senator in a routine attack on President Nixon's economic program, but the camera caught his eyes rolling as

ITT Pot Dome Scandal

WASHINGTON — The ITT-Kleindienst $400,000 misunderstanding has many tragic consequences. One is that the motives of one of the great conglomerates of this country are being questioned. There are certain skeptics who believe that ITT would never have offered $400,000 to finance the Republican convention in San Diego if the Justice Department hadn't agreed to let the conglomerate hold on to one of its prize possessions, the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. I can state without qualification that this is not the case. The decision to donate $400,000 to the Republican National Convention was made in good faith by men who felt strongly about preserving the two-party system. This is what happened:

The Republican Party wanted a national convention very badly, but they had no money to hold it. So, they went to the ITT people and asked, "Is there any possibility of donating any cash to the Republican convention?"

The ITT people replied, "We would love to contribute to the Republican National Convention, but we have an antitrust suit pending with the Justice Department, and if we gave, say, $100,000, it might look as though we were trying to influence the Administration to make a decision in our favor."

"Don't worry about that," the Republicans said. "No one will know you gave the money except President Nixon, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and H.R. Haldeman in the White House."

"But," said the ITT people, "suppose Jack Anderson finds out about it? He has such a suspicious mind that he could come to the wrong conclusion as to why we would want to contribute $200,000 to the Republican National Convention. He might say that the reason we did it was so that we could hold on to the Hartford Fire Insurance Co., which the Justice Department so unfairly wants us to divest from our conglomerate."

"You have nothing to worry about. Jack Anderson will never find out that you have contributed a dime to our convention in order to hold on to the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. — how do you spell that?"

"H-a-r-t-f-o-r-d. Our company believes its antitrust suits should be judged on the merits of the case alone. If we contributed $250,000 to the convention, the Senate Judiciary Committee might call hearings to find out whether we did anything to influence Richard Kleindienst, who we understand will be the next attorney general.

"On the other hand, if we lost the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. because of the Mickey Mouse tactics of your antitrust lawyers, it would be very bad for the balance of payments of the United States, our stock would take a beating and it would take a beating and it would have a serious effect on the economy.

"That is a very persuasive case you have presented. Why don't you lay it out to Kleindienst and ask him to help you? I'm sure he will because he won't know anything about your generous contribution to the Republican Party."

"How can we be sure? Even if we gave $300,000, which we're prepared to do, it

Other Editors Say Postscript On Pot

(Christian Science Monitor)

Recently these columns challenged a proposal, made by the President's Commission on Marijuana and Drug Use, that all penalties be dropped for the use of marijuana. That editorial sparked some angry rebuttal, particularly from younger readers, that millions of American use proprietary drugs or alcohol to achieve similar effects as produced by "pot." This, in our young critics' eyes, makes the legal banning of marijuana an act of hypocrisy.

We can agree with that argument without changing our original position. The legal use of amphetamines, a particularly harmful drug, is a case in point. Each year the American pharmaceutical industry produces between 8 and 10 billion of these pills — enough to keep every man, woman and child on a month-long high. The vast bulk of this production is eaten by housewives, businessmen, students, athletes and others who depend on them to carry them through another day of work, study or competitive sport.

James Graham, writing in Transaction on this, observes that the pharmaceutical industry has turned amphetamine production into "multi-hundred-million-dollar profits" and that these profits are used to lobby in Capitol Hill. Notes Mr. Graham: "The lawmakers who have declared that possession of marijuana is a serious crime have simultaneously defended and protected the profits of the amphetamine pillmakers."

Just as we warned that dropping the penalties against use of marijuana might be an opening toward de facto legalization of that drug, we must add here that the legalized, unrestrained manufacture, aggressive advertising, sale and broad-scale consumption of amphetamines and other proprietary drugs, is contrary to the social health of the country. And as our young critics observe, is hypocritical to boot.

Strength For Today Branch Bank Curbs Stifling?

WORK

Vacations are wonderful, but a life of idleness is probably the most boring type of existence anyone can experience. A job that we like to do is a blessing. There is plenty of fun in work if we go at it in the right way and in the right spirit.

There is no fun in drudgery—neither is there any satisfaction in slavery. Life has a way of scourging us once in a while, and usually it is all to the good.

There is no circumstance in life more satisfactory than interesting work carried on amid interesting surroundings and in company with interesting people.

Once in a while we run across a person who gets on everybody's nerves. The know-it-all is of that variety. The father that keeps the home stirred up. The mother who is always complaining about her husband. The kids that run away and come back six months later with a sheepish grin on their faces.

Look at the person who gets to work at a reasonable time every morning, who takes sensible vacations from time to time, who has a good word for ninety-nine per cent of the people he knows and silence for the one per cent out of a hundred that are practically "impossible." It won't clutter up our lives too much if we take life as it comes. Retirement is not always a happy experience for the retired. To have something to do that is interesting is better than to have a good balance in the bank—although a good bank-balance can make life more pleasant if we use it as we should.

Work has a wonderful place in life if we are sensible enough to make it so.

—By Earl Douglass

By ELMER ROESSNER

The fact that there are 13,500 banks bears witness to the absence, not the presence, of vigorous competition in banking, declared Lawrence S. Ritter, New York University economist, in his scathing critique of the President's Commission on the Financial Structure and Regulation. A few days ago his denunciation of the commission's support of ceilings on interest on savings was reported here.

While the commission said "increased competition is a prime objective of the free enterprise system," its opposition to branch banking is really opposition to more competition, according to Prof. Ritter's analysis. Nineteen states, largely on the West Coast, permit unlimited statewide banking, he said. Sixteen states, largely in the East, allow some form of limited branching, and 15 states, mostly in the Midwest, permit only unit banking. Interstate branches are prohibited everywhere. "The fact that there are more than 13,500 independent banks in the United States would appear to be prima facie evidence of a high degree of robust competition," he told the Conference Board. "However, closer scrutiny reveals that well over half of them are located in the 15 unit-banking states. About 11,000 of them, 80 per cent of the total, are small institutions with less than $25 million deposits per bank.

"If these numbers were the product of natural evolution, they would attest to the competitive viability of small banks.

"However, it appears rather clear that the reason there are so many small banks does not have much to do with their successful adaptation to changing economic needs or their innovative capabilities. They simply exist because they are sheltered from competitive pressures by state anti-branching statutes, to which federal authorities defer.

"If there were fewer banks closer to optimum size, the general public would be better served.

"Most state legislatures that have maintained strict anti-branching statutes have done so in the face of overwhelming evidence that branching would be more efficient and more viable in providing the financial services needed by a dynamic economy. Quite simply, the political influence of the banking industry on the state level has repeatedly outflanked the interests of the unorganized general public, a process that has been facilitated by the tactic of playing on the deep-seated American fear of bigness, especially in finance."

The only realistic way to initiate meaningful change is to permit federally chartered banks, irrespective of state laws, to establish branches.

"Under such pressures, the states can be expected to accelerate the granting of similar rights in institutions chartered by themselves," he said.

Dorothea Dix Hospital Doctors Point To Overwork

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. Eggert Rassekh is an overworked man.

He is the only psychiatrist assigned to treat between 150 and 160 patients in the Randolph-Davidson unit of the big Dorothea Dix state mental hospital in Raleigh.

But Rassekh is not the only one overworked. Another hospital unit has one psychiatrist for 146 patients while another has one psychiatrist for 57 patients.

In all, the sprawling hospital has only 11 psychiatrists, about 13 doctors with some psychiatric training and several medical students taking psychiatric training. They treat more than 1,800 mentally ill patients.

Rassekh says the normal load in a private psychiatric hospital is 12 patients for each psychiatrist and in big state hospitals in some other states about 105 patients to one psychiatrist.

Rassekh echoed the cry heard on all sides at Dorothea Dix: "Give us more staff so we can do the job, so we can cure more of these people and send them back to their places in society."

"The problem is mostly lack of sufficient staff," the doctor said, "and money for fully taking care of so many patients."

He said the chronically ill patients, of whom there are many in his unit, need the kind of personal attention that he does not have the staff to give.

"Within the framework of what is available, I'm proud of what the staff is able to do," he

Scott, Lang Visit Cadets

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott and his new secretary of military and veterans affairs, John A. Lang, ate lunch Thursday with Tar Heel cadets at the Air Force Academy.

Scott, who is in Colorado Springs for a meeting of the steering committee of the Education Commission of the States, also presented the cadets with a North Carolina flag and gave them a briefing on state politics.

He told about 20 cadets that "not much is going on back home—it's all politics. Everybody's running for something but me."

Scott said 12 people are fighting for his seat, and he is ready to go "back home to Haw River" when the time comes.

Lang was appointed by Scott Wednesday to head the new cabinet-level Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

Buchwald . . .

"We don't see how people could think such a thing. The reason we approached you is because everyone knows that ITT has no ax to grind. Your donation will be looked upon as an act of faith in the great American political system.

"Only those with evil minds and members of the Democratic Party would question your noble motives. But we assure you that neither President Nixon nor Atty. Gen. Mitchell, not even Mrs. Mitchell, will look upon your generous gesture as anything other than a gift from a conglomerate with a heart of gold."

The ITT people nodded their heads. "Your words have touched us deeply. Here is $400,000 with absolutely no strings attached. By the way, before you go, could we interest you in some fire insurance?"

said. Although the patient population of Dorothea Dix runs about 1,800, the hospital had 5,327 admissions in 1970-71. It discharged that many or a few more. Its population is gradually declining.

Dr. Barbara Jordan, an assistant superintendent at Dorothea Dix, said the hospital sends 76 per cent of its patients home within 90 days of admission.

However, she said 50 per cent of the patients are chronic cases who have been in the hospital more than three years.

"Our real problem," she said, "is trying to help these chronic, difficult-to-treat patients. To attempt it, we need more aides and particularly more rehabilitation teams — occupation and recreational specialists."

She said the state's big mental hospitals were created to deal with the ordinary, middle-aged psychotic patient. But with the development of local mental health clinics over the state, the bulk of these patients are now being treated at home, she said.

"This leaves us with the physically infirm old patients, with the very severely ill psychotic patients that can't be treated in local clinics, and mentally retarded patients, as well as young patients with behaviour disorders," Dr. Jordan said.

Because of the shortage of psychiatrists, nurses and social workers are doing much of the treatment work that ordinarily would be done by psychiatrists.

Each patient is assigned to one of the nurses or social workers to talk over his problems the same way he would with a psychiatrist.

Asked what her unit needed, Mary Smith, a nursing supervisor, answered: "More staff, more doctors, more nurses, more aides, more psychologists, more social workers."

"We don't need people who just want a job," she said. "We need people who care about people, and we could use more volunteer workers — more real volunteers."

"We need more help, somebody I can put in the day room to keep the patients busy."

As she talked, upwards of 40 male patients were seated in the day room of the Davidson-Randolph hospital unit. Some appeared asleep in their chairs. Others sat and stared at the floor. They had nothing to do. A bus ride had been planned for them, but it was canceled because the worker in charge of occupational therapy and recreational programs for the unit was out sick.

"We could do a better job with more staff," said Ann Biggers, a social worker, "but we have learned to live with what we've got."

"We are sending people home, cured. They are going back to their jobs, taking care of their families, becoming responsible citizens again," she said.

Evans-Novak . . .

Another blooper was his attack on left-wing agitator Jerry Rubin, heckling the Senator during his train ride through Florida last month. Far less conspicuous than Muskie's emotional outburst in defense of his wife in New Hampshire, it nevertheless caused consternation among pro-Muskie politicians here — not because of any love for Rubin but because Muskie's response was so intemperate.

Finally, Muskie is hurting for money to the point that he cannot even budget the maximum $180,000 available by agreement to each candidate for television and radio. In a hard choice last week, his Florida managers decided to underspend their television allocation in favor of a statewide newspaper campaign. Humphrey, Jackson and Lindsay have no such money worries here.

A third-spot finish for Muskie behind Wallace and Humphrey, with Jackson running a strong fourth and Lindsay close behind, wouldn't come close to a knockout blow against Muskie. But it would raise still more nagging questions about his durability, especially this one: If Ed Muskie can't deliver a knockout blow against Humphrey in Florida, can he take President Nixon in November?

Church-State Friction Is Moving Into New Fields

GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Friction between state and church is moving into some touchy new areas. Some churches complain of pressures to stop their taking stands on public issues and of government spying on church personnel.

The latest protest came last week in a brief filed with the U.S. Supreme Court, contending that military surveillance has included church leaders and that it violates guarantees of religious freedom.

Such government investigation activity nowadays is "replete with examples of special invasion into religious aspects of society," four national religious organizations said in a friend-of-the-court brief.

It was filed in connection with a case brought by the American Civil Liberties Union asking the court to ban military investigations of peaceful, lawful activities of persons outside the armed forces.

Such operations have "breached the wall of separation between the state and religious activities of Americans," the church organizations said.

They are the United Church of Christ's Council for Christian Social Action, the American Friends Service Committee, the Unitarian Universalist Association and the National Council of Churches, made up of 33 Protestant and Orthodox denominations.

They said some local congregations, members and many church leaders have been subjected to military surveillance, especially those working with an interdenominational antiwar agency, Clergy and Laymen Concerned about Vietnam.

Earlier, the policy-making board of the National Council last month complained that government tax pressure was being used to keep churches from speaking out on social concerns.

Many churches "believe that Christians are obliged by their faith to make Christ the Lord part of all aspects of their lives, and public policy is not an exception to that obligation," the church representatives said.

A bill recently introduced in the U.S. Senate by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., would allow churches and other charitable groups to press for legislation of interest to them without jeopardizing their tax exemptions.

Some church groups have said Internal Revenue Service agents lately have used the threat of a loss of tax exemptions as a lever against church activity on issues of general public concern.

THIS CHURCH GOING?

Why, you say, do ministers and other Christians so constantly urge you to go to church?

It's probably because you're human. They know that there lies within you an urgent lack of confidence in yourself, a feeling of dependence on a Supreme Being. When you lift your heart in prayer or raise your voice in hymns of praise, your spiritual energy is renewed.

They know, too, there is something in the human heart that makes men brothers—more fully satisfied to SHARE in worship.

Going to church is all that . . . and much more!

Natural Gas Shortage Triggers Rationing Moves

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A critically short supply of natural gas, the fuel which heats and air conditions millions of homes and businesses, has triggered stringent rationing in dozens of major cities. Within a year the crisis could blanket the nation.

Many gas utility companies already are refusing to take any new commercial, industrial or residential customers and, in some cases are cutting back service to existing customers.

"Lousy is the word we're using to describe the situation here," said a spokesman for the New York Public Service Commission, which as early as last October issued orders severely restricting the attachment of new gas service throughout the state.

Washington Gas Light Co. has ceased taking any new customers. New service has been refused to all applicants in Chicago for more than a year. A program under way in that city will make gas service available to some new customers, but the gas will come from cutting back or cutting off some old customers.

State utility commissions in Ohio, Michigan, Maryland and Pennsylvania have approved drastic gas-service limitations, while utilities in Georgia and California have been informed by their suppliers that no additional quantities of natural gas will be available in the foreseeable future, raising the spectre of future rationing there.

And no one sees the crisis easing before late 1974 or 1975. The problem has been growing for several years, fed by the inability or unwillingness of major natural-gas producers to explore for new fields.

In a classic domino effect, this has cut the amount of new gas available to pipeline distributors who, in turn, have cut back supplies to utility companies.

Even if new exploration began today, experts agree, it would take three to four years to find enough new gas and sink enough new wells to get production running ahead of demand again.

The Federal Power Commission last December initiated a study to determine if gas supplies were in fact as critically low as industry spokesmen claim. Those spokesmen argue that rate structures set by the FPC do not allow enough profit to finance the high-risk, low-yield job of gas exploration.

Consumer advocates, on the other hand, claim that the gas producers have deliberately cut back exploration to create a gas shortage and force the FPC to approve higher rates, a contention that gas producers strongly deny.

How long the FPC study will take is not known, and, at the moment, the gas supply situation has passed the critical point in many states. According to FPC statistics, the 75 largest gas producers in the nation already have committed 98 per cent of their proven reserves for sale and, because more gas is being used than found each year, the reserves keep dropping.

A New York State Public Service Commission study released last fall, concluded that the United States will consume 390 trillion cubic feet of natural gas by the late 1970s and as of now there are just 291 trillion cubic feet in reserve. Of that, 31 trillion cubic feet are locked beneath Alaska's North Slope, unavailable until the end of a legal battle which already has delayed drilling for 2½ years.

Grievances To Get Full Airing At Black Political Convention

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
GARY, Ind. (AP) — All week long, position papers on every issue of interest to black Americans have been flowing into a working center set up in Washington.

Drafted by black experts, or by state and regional meetings of black activists, they're the raw material for a National Black Agenda to be adopted this weekend in Gary.

If the hopes of its planners come true, the National Black Political Convention that convenes today will bring together 2,000 delegates to set the direction of black politics for the next decade.

Subjects on the agenda include the possible endorsement of a presidential candidate and organization of a black political party.

Judging from the working documents, black grievances will get a full airing at the Friday-through-Sunday meeting. Most seemed to follow the tone of one that read:

"Our cities are crime-haunted dying grounds. Huge sectors of our youth—and others—face permanent unemployment ... neither the courts nor the prisons contribute to anything resembling justice or reformation. The schools are unable—or unwilling—to educate our children ... white leadership and its policies have failed."

The men who organized the convention want it to be much more than a platform for publicizing grievances.

"This meeting of broadly diverse Africans in America must be the beginning, the initiation, of a realistic national black political movement which should result in the creation of some structure ...," wrote Imam Amiri Baraka, the former poet LeRoi Jones, now a black nationalist leader in Newark, N.J.

"Even before the convention begins, I think it has already increased the level of black political activity," said Gary Mayor Richard Hatcher, one of three co-conveners. The others are Baraka and Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., former chairman of the congressional black Caucus.

"This has happened in states where there was no black statewide political activity. Some states were factionalized, but still they got together ... like in Indiana. We hadn't had any statewide black political activity before."

Hatcher was talking about the structure each state set up to pick its share of the 4,200 black delegates eligible to attend.

Convention conveners chose to have 2,000 delegates allotted to states on the basis of their percentage of the total U.S. black population. Each state was then given an additional minimum of 5, plus all of its black elected officials.

Some observers feel poor delegates will not attend, however, because they have to pay their own transportation costs, and a $25 registration fee.

Wilbur Mills To Help Fountain

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Arkansas Rep. Wilbur Mills will come to Rocky Mount March 20 to help a Democratic colleague North Carolina 2nd District Rep. L. H. Fountain in his bid for re-election.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and a Democratic presidential contender, will speak at an appreciation night dinner for Fountain at 6:30 p.m. at Overton's Restaurant.

Fountain, a 20-year veteran in the House, is being challenged in the primary by Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee, the first black to be elected mayor of a predominantly white Southern city.

Sues To Prevent Her Suspension

DURHAM (AP) — Juanita Sitrewalt, 18, has filed suit to prevent South Rowan High School from suspending her for wearing a Confederate flag patch.

U.S. District Court Judge Eugene Gordon says he will consider signing a temporary restraining order until the case can be heard.

Miss Sitrewalt, whose father, Robert H. Sitrewalt is an American party candidate for the Rowan County Board of Commissioners, says she has been threatened with suspension because a rule bans such emblems.

Opening lead: Eight of ♣.

An impulsive play by declarer at the opening gun led to the defeat of South's four spade contract when he ran into a series of adverse distributional breaks.

Altho East and West can make five hearts on the deal, adverse vulnerability conditions as well as the power announced by South's demand opening bid impeded any interference with the opponents auction and North and South routinely bid themselves into a game in spades.

West opened the eight of clubs—an obvious short suit lead—and South played the queen from dummy in the hope of inducing a cover so that he might establish North's remaining clubs for discards. East was not so obliging as to cover, however, and the queen held as South followed with the jack.

A spade was led to the king in the closed hand on which East discarded a club. Had trumps divided two-one, as expected, the play would have become routine. After playing another high spade, South can cash the ace of clubs, cross over to the nine of spades to take a ruffing trick.

Declarer was able to utilize dummy's spades to establish one discard in clubs, throwing the nine of diamonds from his hand. He then led a heart toward the king-jack, in an attempt to establish a trick in that suit. West turned up with both the ace and queen and, after cashing them out, he led to his partner's king of diamonds to score the setting trick.

South can cinch the contract at trick one by declining the club finesse altogether inasmuch as he requires only three tricks in the suit to bring his total to 10 and this can be attained on power alone. Observe the affect if he plays North's three of clubs at trick one and then overtakes with the ace in his hand. This leaves him in position to draw three rounds of trumps with the A-K-Q in order to protect against a very bad break in spades. Now the jack of clubs is led and overtaken by North's queen to dislodge East's king. The latter may lead a heart thru the king-jack, but dummy retains the ten of spades to cash the ten-nine of clubs to discard South's losing diamonds. The defense is limited to two hearts and one club.

Claims Nixon Involved In ITT Action

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigator for columnist Jack Anderson has offered testimony to the Senate Judiciary Committee that President Nixon was involved in settlement of an antitrust suit against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

Brit Hume, the 28-year-old Anderson aide, quoted an ITT lobbyist as saying former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told her the President wanted the Justice Department to stop pursuing three antitrust suits against the giant conglomerate and make a reasonable settlement.

Mitchell said almost immediately after Hume testified that "the President has never repeat never, made any request to me directly or indirectly concerning the settlement of the ITT case and I took no part in that settlement."

Anderson and Hume were scheduled to continue their testimony today as the committee began its seventh day of hearings into the accusations by Anderson that Justice Department officials were guilty of improprieties in the ITT settlement.

The committee held the special hearings at the request of Acting Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst who said he wanted to answer Anderson's charges. His nomination to be attorney general is now before the Senate.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he wants Dita D. Beard, the ITT lobbyist quoted by Hume, to testify before the committee hearings—probably in about a week. However, Eastland said he does not plan to send investigators to Denver where Mrs. Beard is hospitalized with a heart ailment.

Anderson has published a memorandum attributed to Mrs. Beard in which she suggested out-of-court settlement of the multibillion-dollar suits against ITT was linked with the corporation's $400,000 pledge to the Republican National Committee.

Anderson, quoting from the memo, described a meeting between Mitchell, Mrs. Beard and former Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn at a small dinner party after last year's Kentucky Derby.

Hume told the committee Mrs. Beard gave him details of the meeting when he confronted her with the memo which she said was written to her boss, W.R. Merriam, head of ITT's Washington office.

"She said the attorney general berated her for the trouble she was causing him by the speeches on the floor of Congress," said Hume. "She had about a dozen speeches made for her telling how badly ITT was being treated."

Hume then said, "She told me the attorney general told her the White House had called him and told him 'to lay off' of ITT."

"I said this is what the President said?"
"She then softened it by saying the President wanted the attorney general to make a reasonable settlement," he said.

A Review

Two Brief Scripts Prove Entertaining

Claude West's two one-act plays, Graduation Dress and House-Broken, opening Thursday night at Rose High School in the Band Room for a two night run, provides an evening of entertainment that stands above that usually encountered in high school productions.

West's two brief scripts are splendid outlines, which could be rewritten to expand the material to make the plays more fully realized. Both plays need more lines, a deeper insight into what the playwright is trying to say. West gets his message across with an economy that is too spartan, leaving the viewer feeling he has heard a whisper when a shout would have been more satisfying.

Graduation Dress, the more promising of the two plays, has immediate impact and is not dated by its setting in the Depression years. There's a quality about it that recalls in an earlier manner the mood of Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie.

House-Broken, a delightful domestic fluff, makes good use of the timeless battle between the sexes. This standard situation is presented with wonderfully fresh approaches, including an impressive scene in which a married couple carry on a counterpoint dialogue, prodding each other with petty accusations while simultaneously carrying on a coy flirtation.

The most notable weakness in both performances is the old problem that seems to badger most amateur productions — a lag in picking up cues. Aside from this consistent distraction, the young players, all members of the Vocational Education classes at Rose High, perform their roles with a good understanding of their lines, in many instances displaying a fine perception of nuances that are present in the plays.

Sallie Jenkins as Ma Norman in Graduation Dress conveys a feeling of being permanently tired, physically and emotionally. Kathy Ballenger, in the role of the older sister Ona, is successful in registering moments of bitterness in a quiet, resigned way. Tom Brown as Junior and Donnie Simmons as Bud, the two Norman boys, are adequately loud and rowdy as the undisciplined young bullies. Lynn Massey in the role of young Nancy, makes the most of the least rewarding role in either play. Charles Wall, playing Pa Norman and Ronnie Woodcock, the suitor Warren Barrows, suffer the handicap of having hardly enough dialogue to justify their presence on stage.

The cast of House-Broken are at a much better advantage as this brief comic play is carried along more smoothly by some very crisp dialogue. Valerie Hooper and Sue Harrington are vivacious and lovely as the young matrons. Ricky Creech and Jim Heidenreich are well cast as proper spouses for the two ladies. The performance of this quartet carries an infectious sparkle that brings out the fun and wit of this play.

It would be good to see these two plays again, expanded, more tightly directed and given the advantage of a better staging. Under such circumstances, the pair could provide an evening of exciting entertainment. As it is, the current production is highly gratifying and well worth seeing.

The final performance of Graduation Dress and House-Broken takes place tonight at 7:30.

Whynot In The Center

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Census plotters say North Carolina's population center has shifted again — to a point just down the road from the tiny Randolph County town of Whynot.

Thomas E. Steahr, director of demographic services for the Carolina Population Center in Chapel Hill, said the exact population center — the balancing point for the state's 5.5 million persons — was 4.55 miles eastnortheast of Whynot.

Steahr said Whynot's claim could be contested by an even smaller community known as Erect.

Pirates Colliding With One Of Toughest Teams They've Ever Met In Those Villanova Wildcats

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Saturday night when East Carolina University's Pirates step onto the floor, they'll be facing one of the toughest teams they've seen this year in the Villanova Wildcats.

The tough 'Cats, 19-6 on the season, will be the Buc opponent in the first round of the NCAA Eastern Regionals, and that in itself is a milestone for the Pirate basketball program.

This past Saturday, the Bucs completed a run through the Southern Conference tournament to win the league title and take the group's NCAA tournament bid. They beat The Citadel, Davidson and Furman on the way to the title, and Coach Tom Quinn is hopeful that the competition the Bucs ran into will be a help to them as they go on.

Villanova, however, will be no pushover by any means. But good competition is nothing new for the Pirates, who have played against a number of tough teams this year, most of them on the road. The Wildcats have good shooters, good height and balanced scoring.

"We've got a lot of information on them," Quinn said. "The big problem is dissecting it and putting it together again."

The three main problems the Wildcats will put up for the Bucs are 6-3 guard Tom Inglesby, 6-8 forward Hank Siemionkowski, and forward Chris Ford, 6-5. The three are averaging well, and give the Wildcats good inside and outside strength.

Inglesby and Siemionkowski both are averaging 19 points per game, while Ford is hitting at a 17.7 clip. All three are hitting better than 50 per cent from the floor. Ford leads the way with a 52.0 per cent average, while Inglesby is making 51.2 per cent of his shots. Siemionkowski makes 50.7 per cent of his shots.

Villanova usually goes with only five men most of the way. The other two starters are 6-7 sophomore center Larry Moody, averaging 10.7 points per game, and 6-2 junior guard Ed Hastings, 8-6 per cent.

"We have to keep Ford, Inglesby and Siemionkowski from doing what they like best, penetrating with the ball and going one-on-one, especially Ford and Inglesby," Quinn said. "We have to respond to their moves and we have to rebound them."

Quinn also noted that the Pirates must be ready for almost any type of defense. "They use a lot of them, but we've seen a lot this year, and should be ready to work against most anything."

Quinn praised Villanova as being a solid club in every respect. "We may have a little depth on them, but their top five are as good as any we've faced this year."

"Ford is an excellent player who'll go high in the draft," the coach added. "He's a fine do-it-all player. Inglesby is a solid leader, and Hastings is a good outside shooter. Siemionkowski has good range and is a good board man." He averages 10.5 rebounds per game, and is the team leader in this.

Villanova, playing just a few miles away from its home court in Philadelphia, will probably have a crowd advantage, but Quinn feels that this is nothing new for the Bucs. "We had a distinct crowd disadvantage against Furman and it didn't hurt us," he reminded.

"At the same time, we could have an advantage if they are looking beyond us because of our record," the coach said.

"Our approach is that we have won the Southern title and we're the representative of the league. We want to do what other Southern teams have not done lately, advance beyond the first game. We think we can do this. We're anxious to show that we're a worthy representative."

The Bucs go in paced by Jim Fairley, who leads the team with a 14.0 average. He's followed by Jerome Owens with a 13.1 mark, and Al Faber with a 12.3 average. Dave Franklin rounds out those with double figures with 11.9. The other starter, Earl Quash, owns a 9.0 mark.

The play of Ernie Pope and Nicky White in the tournament however, gives the Bucs good bench support when they need it. Pope averaged 12.3 points per game in the tourney, while White got only 14 points in the three games, but was a heavy contributor in other ways.

Overall for the year, the Pirates are averaging 75.6 points per game, while allowing 78.4. Villanova is scoring at a 72.4 clip and giving up 66.6.

In the rebounding category, the Bucs are getting 54.0 per cent of the loose balls, while Villanova is capturing 51.1 per cent of them.

The 'Cats are hitting better from the floor, 48.3 to 45.4, and from the line, 72.4 to 65.3, but the Bucs have shown improvement lately. In the tourney, the Bucs hit 75.3 per cent from the line.

It could all boil down to fouls and rebounding. If the Bucs can control the boards and get Villanova into foul trouble, they could pull it out. Obviously with a 14-14 record, however, the Pirates must go in as underdogs.

But they went into the Southern as underdogs, despite one overlooked fact. The Pirates lost three Southern games during the regular season by a total of seven points (by three to William & Mary and The Citadel, and by one to Richmond).

If they had won those three, they would have finished 10-2 in the league and been the regular season champs, too. The Pirates flew out this morning to Princeton, and will stay at the Holiday Inn there. They are expected to return on Sunday.

The winner of the game will advance into the semi-finals of the regionals, to be held Thursday at Morgantown, W. Va. The winner meets the Providence-Penn victor. The other regional battle will send the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament champ against the winner of the Temple-South Carolina game.

Tar Heels Relax As Other Teams Fighting For Lives

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — While top-seeded North Carolina practiced at home, enjoying the luxury of a first-round bye, other Atlantic Coast Conference Basketball Tournament favorites were fighting for their lives against a pack of aroused underdogs Thursday.

Nationally ranked Maryland and Virginia survived, but North Carolina State was burned by the red-hot Duke Blue Devils in the last of the three games.

Duke's 73-60 victory earned the Devils a 7 o'clock semifinal game tonight against North Carolina, the nation's No. 3 team.

Maryland, ranked 13th, sneaked past Clemson 54-52, and Virginia, No. 15, struggled by Wake Forest 74-65 to set up the other semifinal.

The winner of Saturday night's championship game will go on to the NCAA Eastern Regionals next Saturday at Morgantown, W. Va., against either South Carolina or Temple.

The National Invitation Tournament (NIT), which opens next Friday in New York, is expected to invite two of the ACC semifinalists. North Carolina won the NIT last year after losing in the ACC finals to South Carolina, which no longer is in the conference.

North Carolina, 21-4 on the season, avenged a two-point loss to Duke by flogging the Blue Devils 93-69 last Saturday.

Maryland balanced a 19-point December road loss to Virginia by winning at home over the Cavaliers last Saturday, 45-42.

Maryland carries a 22-4 record into the game, and Virginia is 21-5.

Duke Coach Bucky Waters, who has seen his unpredictable squad win 14 and lose 11, figures his club is "in great position."

He explained, "We've played and won a tournament game. North Carolina still hasn't played. They could be cold or nervous. We have nothing to lose."

The Duke squad, depleted by dropouts, is down to nine players. But Waters firmly believes they can do the job.

Just before losing to Clemson and North Carolina last week in one-sided games, Duke fashioned three successive upsets, knocking off Virginia, North Carolina State and Maryland.

Waters, who was subjected to an early-season ouster movement by a small segment of the student body, rode out the storm and now is two victories away from the title.

Duke led the N.C. State Wolfpack 38-32 at the half, after State drew even at 57-57, went on a 16-point spree in the last four minutes to win going away.

Bill Melchioni and Stu Yarbrough each scored 16 points and Alan Shaw added 12 and 10 rebounds to play the leading roles for Duke.

Tommy Burleson, 7-foot-4 sophomore, led State with 18 points. But he hit only seven of 24 shots as the Wolfpack connected on only 37.7 per cent to Duke's 51 per cent.

Maryland and Virginia both came from behind in the last half to win the afternoon games.

Maryland trailed Clemson 28-22 at the half, but Howard White hit 11 of his 13 points in the second half to spark the Terrapin comeback. Sophomore Tom McMillen was the top Maryland scorer with 16 points as the Terps won their first tournament game in seven years.

Maryland led 52-50 with 10 seconds left, and then Jim O'Brien hit two free throws to wrap it up, offsetting a final basket by Clemson's David Angel. The loss was the eighth straight for Clemson in the first round.

Wake Forest shot 53.6 per cent in the first half for a 39-38 lead over Virginia, but Deacon shooters tailed off to 26.5 in the last half.

Barry Parkhill, top ACC scorer, led the Cavaliers with 24 points, and 6-foot-10 Scott McCandlish added 20 points and 16 rebounds.

Virginia Coach Bill Gibson called McCandlish "the most unheralded big man in the league. He pulls us together."

Qualified

NEW HAVEN, CONN. — One member of the East Carolina University Swimming Team has qualified so far during the Eastern Collegiate Championships here to participate in national competition.

Pirate coach Ray Scharf reported that Paul Trevisan, a junior, posted a 21:78 time in the 50-yard free style event as competition continued.

Trevisan's time, Scharf noted, established an ECU varsity record and earned him a spot in the national championships coming up at West Point in two weeks.

Ten members of the ECU squad are participating in the Eastern competition at Yale University. The finals will be held Saturday night.

ECU Baseball Romp Begins Here Saturday

This is 1972 and the Southern Conference may be wondering if the Pirate Peculiarity will make itself prominent again.

Since 1964, the Pirates have been in the District Three Regional Tournament in Gastonia in every even-numbered year. They went in 1964 as an independent, then went again in 1966, 1968 and 1970 as the Southern Conference champ.

The Pirates open the 1972 season Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m., playing host to the Wolfpack of N. C. State. The two teams meet again Sunday at Harrington Field, also at 2 p.m.

Coach Earl Smith had a fine pitching staff last year and expected to have a shot at it again, but the jinx of the off-numbered year jumped on them, and they failed to snap the string.

Now, according to tradition, it's time for the Bucs to go again.

Last year, the conference lost its automatic bid to the Regionals, but it has been restored, so the champ will again go.

"I feel we're better than we were last year," Smith said, looking back at the first losing season the Pirates have suffered in over 30 years. "If not for anything but experience, we're better off. We have mostly the same players except for Dick Corrada and our pitchers."

If the Pirates have any problems, it might come from the pitching staff, as yet largely untested in the league. "I guess our biggest asset would be our balance in hitting," Smith said. "But this could also be our biggest liability if we turn out to have too many .220 hitters."

Except for Don Oxidine, the pitching staff has little experience. Two sophomore righthanders may have to bear the brunt of the load, Bill Godwin and Tommy Toms. Both had fairly good summers in two different leagues, and Smith hopes that the experience will help them this spring.

"We're going to have to find help wherever we can," Smith said, "and we hope some of the others will come through for us."

He lists other pitchers as junior college transfer Jeff

Culver, sophomore Dave LaRussa, and freshmen Steve Herring, Glenn Forbes and Jim Tutsock. The last four are all lefthanders.

"Our defense should be better. We have a veteran outfield, and a veteran infield. Ken Graver is back with us after being in the service and should be a big help at first base," Smith said.

Hitting could be the key to the success. "We have to get good hitting from our three outfielders, and from Ralph Lamm, Graver, Troy Eason and Ronnie Staggs. A couple of others, Jimmy Paige and Lin Spears could also help a lot."

The catching position shows good strength with the return of Rich McMahan. Backing him up is Greg Fulghum, a freshman. The Pirates have a tradition of good catching, and Smith expects this to continue.

Graver returns to first after his army stint, but Smith recalls that he hasn't played first in a long time. Backing him up is Staggs, a good-looking freshman. Also there are Eason, John Narron and Jack Elkins, who may be converted into a third baseman.

At second Skip Horton returns, backed up by Ronnie Leggett and transfer Buddy Ward.

Mike Bradshaw returns to the shortstop position, with Bobby Harrison, a sophomore, backing him up, along with Leggett.

Lamm is back at third, with Bradshaw or Leggett possibilities here too.

The outfield of Larry Walters in left, Matt Walker in center and Mike Aldridge in right is intact from last year, but there is help here too. Smith can call on Eason, Spears, Paige and Staggs in these positions if needed.

"I guess any real question mark is in the pitching," Smith said. "They just haven't had the experience."

As far as the conference race is concerned, Smith looks for another dogfight. "We should be in it all the way," he said.

And if the jinx on the other teams holds true for another even-numbered year, come late May, the Bucs will be making plans to continue on to Gastonia and the regionals again.

Ladies Play At Walnut Creek

East Carolina Ladies Golf Association played Thursday at Walnut Creek in Goldsboro.

Among the Brook Valley Country Club winners were Helen Boyd, who won second low gross in the third flight; Joanne Proctor, who captured low putt honors in the third flight; and Ruth Billica, low gross winner in the fourth flight.

The Golf Association will participate in tournament action at Greenville Golf and Country Club in April.

Pirate Special On WCTI-TV

NEW BERN—WCTI-TV will feature a half-hour special on the East Carolina University Pirates tonight at 7 p.m.

Lee Moore, sports director of the station, said the program would include interviews with the Pirates coaches and players, plus others from other Southern Conference schools.

Also film highlights of the tournament would be shown.

'Old Man' Baker Makes Lee Smile

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Lee Petty and Buck Baker were names to be feared in stock car racing in the 1940s and 1950s. Their sons are big names today.

But there is a catch: Baker is still a driver to be reckoned with. Petty long since has stored his helmet in a crowded trophy room at Randleman, N.C., and has become a par shooter in golf.

Petty, 56, stood along pit wall at North Carolina Motor Speedway on Thursday as his son Richard, stock car racing's first $1 million career winner, won a front row berth for Sunday's Carolina 500 stock race.

Next up for a qualifying run was the 52-year-old Baker, who with the older Petty was thrashing around the Southern dirt ovals before many of today's drivers were born.

Solidly built and with only a slight tinge of gray showing in his stock of black hair, Papa Baker whipped a Chevrolet around the one-mile oval at 131.336 miles per hour to place sixth in Sunday's 40-car starting order.

"That old sun of a gun can still drive a race car," Lee Petty grinned owlishly. "Makes me wonder if I didn't quit too soon."

Baker's effort in a car he hadn't even seen until late Wednesday was overshadowed by the feat of Bobby Allison, one of the current lions of the sport, who won the pole position in a Chevrolet at 137.590 m.p.h. His speed was less than two miles off the world's closed course mark for a one mile oval. Allison set the latter record, 139.048 m.p.h. at Rockingham in March 1970.

Allison and Richard Petty thus will occupy the front row of 40 starters when the $103,000 race is flagged to a start at noon Sunday.

Petty's speed in a Plymouth was 134.452 m.p.h.

While Lee Petty watched with interest as his son made his qualifying run, old pro Buck Baker scrambled atop a truck cab when his 31-year-old sibling, Buddy Baker, took to the track to make his run under the clock in a Dodge.

The younger nailed a fourth place start at 134.176 m.p.h.

Thus, when the gaudily painted stockers line up for the start Sunday, son Baker will have father Baker directly in his rear view mirror — and probably on his rear bumper for the early part of the race.

"I'll just try to follow him and keep him in sight for a while," said the older Baker. "You can't go wrong tailing a good one like him. After all, he learned to drive from one of the best — me."

Other top first day qualifiers included Bobby Isaac in a Dodge, third best at 134.176 m.p.h.; Benny Parsons, 132.319 in a Mercury; and Dave Marcis, 131.313 in a Dodge.

The field will be expanded to 30 in time trials today, though most of the hotshots made the lineup in clear, cool weather Thursday.

Wings Feature New 'Special'

WINGED RACING CAR — A stubby winged racing car of revolutionary design, with Mario Andretti at the wheel, is pushed onto the track at Ontario, Cal. Motor Speedway Thursday for a demonstration run. Parnelli Jones and Vel Militch, who are building six of the cars for the Indianapolis 500, introduced the red and white Viceroy Special designed by Maurice Phillippe of England. The car has two wings mounted next to the driver at a 45-degree angle with an adjustable aileron on each. (AP Wirephoto)

Golfing Greats Track Mitchell

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer
ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Mitchell gambled and won—this time—but pro golf's grim-eyed high rollers were in hot pursuit of the drawing Virginian today in the second round of the $150,000 Florida Citrus Open golf tournament.

Mitchell, who went six under par with a gambling birdie on the 15th hole at the wind-swept Rio Pinar Country Club course, had an early first round 66 Thursday and it stood up for the lead all day.

But Lee Trevino was just two strokes back at 68 and warned: "The putts are starting to fall. I've got the right speed and I'm beginning to make some, just like I said I would."

Gary Player, the South African who always ranks as a major threat, was another stroke back in a group of a half dozen at 69. So was veteran Tommy Bolt.

Jack Nicklaus, 59-year-old Sam Snead and Masters champion Charles Coody were in a big bunch at 70.

"Actually, it was a pretty good round of golf," said Nicklaus, the only two-time champion this year and the man who just took over Arnold Palmer's accustomed spot atop the all-time money winning list. "Everything considered, I'm not too disappointed."

Palmer, the defending champion, matched par 72 but was far from discouraged.

"I still didn't hit the driver like I'd like to," he said. "And I didn't make one, single, solitary putt all day. But with a good round tomorrow I'd be right back in it."

Chris Blocker, a big, non-winning Texan now playing out of Florida, was alone in second with a 67 that included only 29 putts. He rolled in a pair of birdie putts in the 20-foot range in the closing holes to move into contention and one-putted four of the last five.

Mitchell was five under par when he came to the 15th, a par five dogleg and decided on the gamble that paid off in a birdie and the eventual lead.

He had to hit a high, lofting tee shot over trees just to his right to cut the corner. From there it was just a six iron to the green.

Mitchell two-putted for the easy bird.

Dale Douglass, Tommy Aaron, Babe Hiskey and Jerry Abbott also had 68s, just two strokes back in the chase for a $30,000 first prize.

Sonics Star Injured Knee

SEATTLE (AP) — Spencer Haywood, the Seattle Super-Sonics top scorer, will be out for the rest of the season while the Sonics battle for the remaining playoff spot in the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association.

Seattle is one game out of second place behind Golden State.

Haywood injured his knee Sunday when he slipped on a wet spot on the floor of the Seattle Center Coliseum during a game with Atlanta.

The Sonics filed a claim against the city Wednesday for "gross negligence" for not repairing the leaky roof of the Coliseum.

The Sonics said Thursday Haywood's knee would be in a hard cast for four weeks. The team said "his ligament is in good position and the knee cartilage appears to be unharmed."

Some Don't Want Aaron To Break Ruth Record

By MIKE RATHET

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hank Aaron wants Babe Ruth's career home run record—he wants it for himself and for the kids, black and white. But he already has been made aware that there are people who are pulling for him to fail.

"Last season I began to get quite a few pieces of mail," Aaron said as he sat nude to the waist in the Atlanta Braves' dressing room. "There wasn't one bad letter from a kid—they're all on my side."

"But there have been some that said I wouldn't have been able to hold Ruth's jacket when he played. They don't even say what color they are, and it's not vicious. They send figures, statistics to me about Ruth, showing what he did."

"I realize," he continued, "that if I ever break his record people may not accept me as being a better hitter than Ruth was. And I realize that he must have been a tremendous hitter. But records are made to be broken."

"I'd be telling a lie if I didn't say I was thinking about it. After 18 seasons, it's nice to know I can look forward to such a target, that it's within my reach. It would mean something to the black race."

"It probably would mean something to every kid, black or white but a little more to the black race. It was such a long time before we were accepted into the game. But I hope both blacks and whites are pulling for me."

"This is America—it's not just for blacks, not just for whites—it's for everybody."

That then is Aaron's viewpoint of the task he faces in the next three years, starting his 19th season in the majors with a total of 639 homers and needing 75 to tie and 76 to break Ruth's all-time record of 714 homers.

There isn't a player or a manager who has been interviewed during spring training who doesn't feel Aaron has a tremendous chance to surpass Ruth. They all, however, ask about the knee that has troubled Aaron and talk about the pressure that will mount as he gets closer.

Aaron discounts the knee as a problem and fully accepts the fact that he will have to deal with the mounting pressure.

"The knee didn't ever get to the point I thought about quitting or anything like that," Aaron explained. "It never bothered me at the plate, although it did bother me in the outfield. Particularly when I had to run across to cut off a ball."

The problem was with Aaron's right knee, in which fluid kept building up. At first it was thought there might be torn cartilage. But it was determined that it was merely a minor strain and that an off-season strengthening program would be all that was required.

"I haven't been having any trouble," Aaron said. "I was on a program lifting weights, a little every day. I worked on it real hard."

As for the pressure created by constant prodding by the press, Aaron says:

"I can sympathize with Roger Maris knowing what he went through when he was trying to break Ruth's record (Ruth's record of 60 homers in a single season).

"Sometimes I want to get away from it—be just another ball player.

"Fortunately for me I don't play in New York—that's going to help a little. What I don't want it to come to is the point where the team loses and I hit a homer and everything focuses on me."

"I don't want that—but I also know the closer I come that's the way it is going to be."

The first recognition that that's the way it is going to be came when Aaron signed a three-year contract with the Braves for a reported $600,000.

"Right away people were telling me what a fool I was," said Aaron. "They said I could make $300,000 a year, the closer I came the more I could make. But that's not the reason I wanted a three-year contract—I just felt I could play three more years and it gave me the security of not having to worry about next year."

Besides, Aaron cautions, he's more concerned right now about 1972 than 1974.

"I still got 75 home runs to hit—and that's an awful lot of home runs to hit. You don't do it in a year. What I want to do now is get strong for this year."

I'm not too concerned about the bat. I'm concerned about getting strong.

"When you're 38 you're always a little sore, your reflexes are a little slower and the kids coming up can throw a little harder. So I've tried not to give it too much thought. I don't want to concentrate on homers. I have a better shot at it being relaxed."

Area May Hear District Rally For War Exercises Churches In Wilson

A large-scale air-ground training exercise, dubbed Versatile Warrior, will begin March 11 at Camp Lejeune. The exercise will include extensive utilization of the Corps' newest close air support jet, the AV-8A. Also playing a large role in the exercise will be other fixed wing aircraft from the Second Marine Aircraft Wing, helicopters and gunships from wing units at MCAS New River and ground units from the Second Marine Division force troops, Fleet Marine Force Atlantic, Camp Lejeune.

The Third Light Antiaircraft Missile Battalion will be involved in live fire training from March 11 through 19. This segment of the exercise is code named "Hawkex". Hawk missiles will be fired at unmanned target drones. These drones will be launched and controlled by Fleet Composite Squadron Six, a Norfolk, Va. navy unit.

During the period of Versatile Warrior, residents of eastern North Carolina, especially in the immediate vicinity of Camp Lejeune, and Onslow Beach, may expect to hear explosions. The Hawk missiles will not carry explosive warheads. However, the launch noise of the Hawks and target drones may be heard and sound similar to a jet aircraft takeoff.

Exercise Versatile warrior combines five separate phases into one exercise which will end April 4. In addition to the missile firing, the exercise includes amphibious command post exercises (CBX) aboard the USS Mount Whitney. Air to air weapons firing (AAWEX) and employment of the Marine Corps newest aircraft, the AV-8A, in support of infantry units at forward battle sites is considered advantageous by the Marine Corps to combine these exercises as it will make easier the task of planning coordination and control of the operations as well as providing a realistic amphibious landing environment.

The AV-8A will be employed from rough expeditionary landing sites hacked out of the Camp Lejeune wilderness. The aircraft will be involved in vertical takeoffs to support infantry forces and some ordnance will be dropped in training areas.

Valuable Art Is Given Museum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution says art collector Joseph H. Hirshhorn has given additional art works valued at more than $7 million to a museum now under construction on the Mall.

Smithsonian secretary S. Dillon Ripley said Thursday the new works include 166 pieces of sculpture and 160 paintings by 118 sculptors and 113 painters.

Hirshhorn had previously given more than 6,000 works of art for display in the museum and sculpture garden which will bear his name. The Smithsonian said last summer it valued the original gift at $50 million.

WILSON — Greenville District churches, of the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, will hold a 1972 Evangelism Rally here Monday.

The rally will include ministerial and lay representatives. The event will be held at the Wilson First Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The churches represent Wilson, Greene, Lenoir and Pitt Counties. The rally here is one of nine district assemblies preceding the simultaneous revival in the North Carolina Conference churches during the month of April.

Host pastor, the Rev. Samuel L. Whichard, said the Greenville District Director of Evangelism is the Rev. Norman W. Butts of Snow Hill.

The guest minister, the Rev. M. D. McPherson, pastor of the Greenville First P. H. Church, will preach Monday evening.

The choir of the St. Paul P.H. Church, Greenville, of which the Rev. R. H. Brafford is pastor, will present special music preceding the sermon. A trio, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Byrum and Mrs. D. L. LeRoux, of the choir of the Greenville First P. H. Church, will also sing in the musical portion of the rally.

Pastor Whichard has announced that the evening's service is open to the public. The Rev. Tim B. Henry, Bethel pastor and conference director of evangelism, is expected to be in attendance.

The Tarboro District Rally, to be held in the Tarboro First P. H. Church on Tuesday evening, March 14, will be addressed by the Rev. J. Floyd Williams.

Swedes Bar Question Authenticity Of Chief Red Fox Book

GOTEBERG, Sweden (AP) — Journalism students here have refused to let newsman Malvyn R. Goode of the American Broadcasting Co. lecture on the working conditions of black newsmen in the United States.

Now touring Europe as a lecturer for the U.S. Information Agency, Goode had just taken the rostrum Thursday night when he was interrupted by a student.

The student presented a draft resolution voicing support for "black Americans' struggle against racism, fascism, capitalism and imperialism."

The journalism students adopted the resolution and a second requesting that Goode and Wilbert Petty, the U.S. cultural attaché, leave.

"If Swedish students worry about the conditions of black people in the United States, they should have listened to me," Goode told a newsman later. "I have experienced all the problems you may face as a black American. I have even been jailed nine times for my opinions."

PHRASE WITH MERIT
BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Sign in front of the Belair Baptist Church: "Jesus Saves ... And at Today's Prices, That's a Miracle."

NEW YORK (AP) — McGraw-Hill inc., which paid $750,000 for what two grand juries call a "bogus autobiography" of Howard Hughes, is now looking into speculation that a best seller it published a year ago may not be authentic.

The New York Times reported today that leading American Indian experts and persons familiar with the places and events mentioned in "The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox" have questioned its authenticity.

The Times' copyright story also said the author has been accused in a lawsuit of plagiarizing 12,000 words from a book published by James McGregor in 1940 entitled "The Wounded Knee Massacre: From the Viewpoint of the Sioux."

A spokesman for the publishing firm said it is now attempting to further verify some of the claims made in the book by Red Fox, whose book says he is a 101-year-old Sioux chief.

Another spokesman, Ted Weber Jr., said McGraw-Hill had obtained a license to use the material from the earlier book after reaching a settlement with lawyers for McGregor's estate who were preparing to sue.

"We are paying the estate money for use of that material, we are keeping the book on the stands and we are not being sued," Weber said.

"The Memoirs of Chief Red Fox" is said to have been transcribed from his handwritten manuscripts by Cash Asher, a journalist formerly associated with the American Indian Defense Association.

Red Fox and Asher each attributed any possible inaccuracies to the other during interviews at their Corpus Christie, Tex., homes, the Times said.

The newspaper said no reputable scholar could be found to endorse the validity of the memoirs on such subjects as the man's Sioux origins, his schooling, his election as council chief or his age.

What Lobster did for Maine, Old Crow did for Bourbon.

The good taste of Lobster put Maine on the map. The good taste of Old Crow made Bourbon famous. Before 1835, Bourbon was made every which way. That year, Dr. James Crow took it out of the hit-or-miss league and invented the process that gave Bourbon its mellow taste—and good name: Old Crow.

Spec. 4 Bagnell prays in his Vietnam barracks room before evening meal. In Buddhist tradition he shaves head and eyebrows every new and full moon.

On duty as aircraft approach controller at Can Tho airstrip, Bagnell sits at radar screen. He takes pride in his work and is described as an outstanding soldier.

Above left: prayers at the pagoda. Above: back to camp next morning.

Bagnell reads a letter from home in the barracks room where he burns incense and prepares his own meals of rice, fish and fruit.

GI from Syracuse, N.Y., teaches English to Buddhist monks and is helped in return with his own studies of Buddhist philosophy.

Spec. 4 Bruce Bagnell goes from duty as an aircraft approach controller at Can Tho airstrip, South Vietnam, to spend his spare time in a Buddhist pagoda, teaching the monks and studying their ways. And the enlisted man from Syracuse, N.Y., says "More and more the pagoda is becoming my real home."

He cannot actually become a monk himself at this time because of the differing demands of Army and Buddhist life. But he has worked out ways of satisfying both traditions. As a serviceman he takes pride in his work and is described as an outstanding soldier. In off-duty hours he lives and eats with the monks of the small, nearby pagoda. In return for his tutoring they help him with his studies of the Cambodian language and Buddhist philosophy. He goes to the pagoda now instead of to bars. He's given up smoking grass. He says he doesn't miss much of his old life—except his wife, Sherry, whom he married two weeks before going out to Vietnam.

The Worry Clinic Public Likes Slugger Image

Is Tad correct in saying President Nixon is too judicial to be a strong executive? As a rule, at a boxing match the public likes the slugger instead of the boxer. Thus, the crowd favored Dempsey vs. Tunney. And Truman vs. Dewey.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case T-522: Tad P., aged 32, teaches Political Science.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I note that you have an entire chapter in your college textbook that is devoted to Political Psychology.
"So what do you think of the remark I heard recently about President Nixon?
"It was suggested that he would have made a far better Supreme Court Justice than President.
"For he is more judicial than executive-minded.
"He waits overly long to make up his mind and thus creates the idea that he is diffident and uncertain of his course."

Political Psychology
Politics is a fascinating field of psychology for it has so many human facets, extending from prophet to demagogue.

A prophet stays way out in front of his people with his many predictions.
And the prophet often tells people what they don't like to hear.
So prophets are often stoned and even crucified.

In a free-voting country like the U.S.A., a presidential candidate dares not (like Goldwater in 1964) be too far ahead of the electorate, even if his ideas are later vindicated as superb.

So the typical political strategy is to let the communication media nurture ideas that may have been set off by Cabinet Members as "trial balloons."

F. D. Roosevelt thus would delegate certain of his Cabinet

Members to spring new programs on the public.
The radio and magazines, plus the newspapers, then banded those new ideas about until pollsters, such as Dr. Gallup, could take a reading of the public pulse.

If the trial balloons carried favor, then F. D. Roosevelt would seize them! If not, they were attributed to foolish Cabinet Members, who thus served as the sacrificial "goats" for the White House.

But a president also faces a doubly delicate situation when he has a hostile Congress.

For that Congress acts like the referee in a boxing match.
And the boxing referee may ignore the crowd's wishes.

Dempsey, for example, had the spectators in his favor in that famous "long count" world championship fight with Tunney.

But Tunney got the decision! In a national election, therefore, the crowd finally determines the decision and this apparently reverses the boxing ring situation.

But long before the crowd has a chance to vote, the legislative referee (Congress) may have thwarted the president till he no longer retains the favor of the average voter.

In general, however, the voters expect an executive to be a slugger; not a dapper boxer who feints and backs away.

That's one basic reason why Truman defeated Dewey, although the polls heavily favored Dewey.

But Dewey eased up in the final weeks of the campaign and began to admire his own mellifluous intonations in his speeches till the public swung over the "Slugger Truman."

And Truman was obviously the underdog, which likewise appeals to the average voters, for most people have more empathy with underdogs!

So send for my booklet "Common Fallacies in Logic and Political Tricks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Engine Uses New System

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A low-emissions automobile may be closer than we think—possibly only five years away—according to associate professor H. Searl Dunn of the University of Rochester College of Engineering and Applied Science. Dunn will work on research and development of a clean automobile propulsion system with the aid of a $31,500 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Dunn's way to cut auto pollution involves replacing the "dirty" high emission internal combustion engine with a much smaller engine plus a hydrostatic transmission capable of storing energy. A hydrostatic drive, he says, "is basically a hydraulic pump-motor combination that transmits power using fluid pressure." The pump is driven by some external power source, for example, a "clean" gas turbine. He adds that the system is different from all other alternative systems under study by automobile manufacturers and the Environmental Protection Agency.

The Atomic Energy Commission operates uranium enrichment plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio.

You Get 6 Different Results By 6 Tax Consultants

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Six tax consultants here came up with six different results when asked for help in filling out a federal income tax return.

The maximum difference was $454. One consultant said the taxpayer owed $77. Another said a refund of $377 was due.

An Associated Press writer and his wife went to the consultants for advice on filling out their joint return with itemized deductions.

The couple pretended to know little about possible deductions but gave the same information to each consultant when asked for it.

Some of the consultants found legitimate deductions, such as damage to the family car that was not covered by collision insurance.

Others listed deductions such as ordinary sunglasses, which the Internal Revenue Service says are only deductible if worn on jobs where they are an absolute necessity.

Some of the consultants say in their advertising that they will appear with the taxpayer if he has to go to court over his return.

David Kestler, chief tax auditor for the IRS office here, noted in an interview that "the person who signs the return is responsible for everything that's in it."

One consultant failed to suggest many legitimate deductions that the couple was entitled to, such as the husband's alimony payments.

Only one of the consultants went beyond the usual question about doctor bills and medicine costs to discover that the newsman was entitled to a deduction for the cost of crutches and special shoe supports needed because of a broken leg.

The deductions and the final figures weren't the only places where the tax experts differed. The fees ranged from $27 to $50.

One firm of a national chain charged $50, while another office of the same chain a mile away charged $35. Both consultants charged according to the number of special tax forms filled out. The cheaper consultant combined some of the deductions or assets on the same forms, thereby reducing the cost.

Both the IRS and professional tax consultant firms call on housewives and other women to work part-time during the tax crush. Some part-time employees are more knowledgeable than others because of previous experience.

One IRS consultant was stumped by a question of whether the newsman's education expenses to better qualify him for his job were deductible. "Gee," said the consultant. "That's a tough one. Let me ask someone else."

After 14 minutes of reading the IRS instructions and much debate among three consultants, it was decided that the education expenses might be deductible.

The newsman was sent to see the IRS' Kestler, who apologized because he would have to take time to consult with another auditor before giving an answer the next day.

Kestler later said the education expenses probably would be deductible.

He went on to say that illegal deductions weren't the only errors committed by some tax consultants. Sometimes there is just plain poor arithmetic.

None of the six consultants figuring the taxes for the newsman and his wife came up with the same figure on capital gains from stock sales.

And one consultant, instead of subjecting the full 100 per cent of the income from stocks held less than six months, figured only 50 per cent. The 50 per cent figure is legally used only for long-term stocks or those held more than six months.

At last report, the couple who took their returns to the six were still figuring their own taxes and had made it to line 50, which requires use of schedule X, Y or alternative schedule D, or schedule G, or...

Family Life Conference Readies

DR. CLARK VINCENT

DR. REBECCA SMITH

"Changing Patterns in the Family" is the theme of this year's Family Life Conference at East Carolina University, scheduled for March 13-14.

Anthropologist Ashley Montagu, who will be on campus for a lecture Monday evening, will highlight the conference with an address Tuesday morning.

"The Natural Superiority of Women" is his topic for Monday, and "An Anthropologist Looks at Love," his topic for the following day.

Other speakers are: Dr. James F. Keller, Coordinator of Family Relations Courses, Florida State University; Dr. Rebecca M. Smith, assistant professor of child development and family relations, UNC-Greensboro; and Dr. Clark E. Vincent, director of the Behavioral Sciences Center, Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

Among the topics to be discussed in the nine conference sessions are experimental families, identity in sexual and marital communications, family communications, the behavioral approach to family living and the future of sex.

Arrangements for the conference were made by a 21-member student faculty committee.

All conference sessions are open to the public, except for Dr. Montagu's Monday evening lecture. Tickets for this event are available from the ECU Central Ticket Office.

Viet Column Thrusting Into Eastern Cambodia

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — A south Vietnamese armored strike force of 100 vehicles and thousands of troops drove into eastern Cambodia today in a new thrust designed to destroy

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong base camps.

Field reports said fewer than 5,000 troops were committed in the first day but that the force was expected to grow in phases to as many as 20,000 men by next week.

Officers in the field reported no major contact yet in the drive north of the Saigon-to-Phnom Penh highway, about six to 10 miles inside Cambodia and 75 to 100 miles northwest of Saigon. It was the first major drive into eastern Cambodia since Nov. 22, although much smaller operations have been launched since then.

In a smaller drive under way since Feb. 1 about 25 miles farther southwest, the Saigon command said, 35 enemy troops were killed with the help of air and artillery strikes, while two South Vietnamese were killed and eight wounded.

U.S. B52 bombers softened up the objective areas and paved the way for a new South Vietnamese offensive west of Tay Ninh City in South Vietnam.

The armored column pushed across the border from the west then began driving northward.

"We're going to destroy any bases found in the area of our advance," said an officer. "This is an operation designed to pre-empt the enemy attacks. Instead of waiting for them to attack, we are attacking."

In other ground action, a reconnaissance patrol of the U.S. 3rd Brigade, 1st Air Cavalry Division, clashed briefly with enemy forces 32 miles northeast of Saigon. The U.S. Command said one American was wounded, while enemy losses were unknown.

The command said an Army OH6 light observation helicopter on a reconnaissance mission was shot down 21 miles northeast of Saigon, and one American was wounded.

In the air war, U.S. fighter escorts attacked antiaircraft defenses inside North Vietnam Thursday for the ninth successive day, one short of a record 10 days of sustained missions last Dec. 21-30. That was the highest number since the bombing halt in 1968.

From two to four F4 fighter escorts attacked an antiaircraft artillery site about 50 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone.

Townhouses For Families Of Navy Men

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Six hundred townhouse living units for the families of U.S. Navy personnel in the Hampton Roads area are under construction at Camp Pendleton about 300 feet from the ocean.

The two-story frame units are being built under a $10.5 million contract awarded Kirkpatrick & Associates, Inc., of Greensboro, N.C. The units will be air conditioned. Some will have three bedrooms, others will have four.

Ground was broken Jan. 19. Completion is scheduled for June 1973. The units will be available to families of 500 enlisted personnel and 100 officers.

Money for the townhouses came from military family housing construction funds appropriated by Congress in 1971. The units will cover approximately 75 acres.

This land is part of 460 acres formerly owned by 350 private individuals and corporations and condemned by the Navy in 1947 for lease purposes only, according to Cmdr. Billy G. Crockett, USN, head of the acquisition department, Atlantic Division, Naval Facilities Engineering Command.

In 1955, under authorization of then Secretary of the Navy Charles Thomas, the Navy took title to the land on payment of $261,000. The Navy acquired the land for use in the training of its amphibious forces.

Crockett said the use of the 75-acre area for the townhouses leaves 385 acres available for continued use in amphibious warfare training.

Chemistry Prof To Speak Here

Dr. James E. Worsham, professor of chemistry at the University of Richmond and current American Chemical Society Visiting Scientist, will be on the East Carolina University campus next week.

He will address the ECU Pre-Med, Pre-Dent Club and the student chapter of the American Chemical Society Tuesday evening and will give an open lecture-discussion the following day.

"Science and Society — Current Problems" is the title of the lecture, which is scheduled for 3 p.m. in room 201, Flanagan Building.

Also during his visit to ECU, Dr. Worsham will confer with faculty members on computer applications in the teaching of chemistry.

Get Prison For Obscene Movies

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The owner and the manager of an adult book store have been given prison terms for showing obscene movies in coin-operated machines.

Superior Court Judge John Friday said that simply fining them would be like patting them on the back.

The jury, which had viewed the films, deliberated three hours Thursday before convicting the owner of the Adult Center, Raymond Floyd, 33, and the manager, Joe Bryant, 24.

Floyd was sentenced to 12 to 20 months and Bryant to 6 to 12 months.
