Flames Destroyed Furniture Store

An early morning fire today destroyed the Reese Furniture Co. at 509 West 14th St.

Fire officers said the blaze was reported at 1:35 a.m. and noted that fire was shooting from the front of the store when trucks arrived at the scene.

All of the masonry building that remained standing at dawn were three outside walls and some structural steel. The furniture in the store was completely burned.

Jonah Reese, owner of the store, could not be contacted this morning, but records on file with the Pitt County Tax Supervisor indicated that the building was valued at about $38,000. No estimate of the value of the stock was available.

Officers, who reported the blaze apparently began at the front of the 9,200 square foot store, said firemen prevented the spread of the fire to houses near the rear, across 14th Street from the front, and a two-story wooden building on the east side of the furniture company. Two pickup trucks parked on the street were damaged before firefighters were able to push them to safety.

Reese was quoted by police officers as saying a night-watchman for a nearby fertilizer firm told him that he had checked the building a short time before the fire was reported and found no trouble.

Today's fire was the latest in a series of blazes that have struck the Reese firm over the past decade or more.

Investigation of the cause of the fire is under way.

of a Justice Department antitrust suit against ITT to the firm's pledge of $400,000 to the Republican National Convention.

Mrs. Beard, 53, has been in a Denver hospital, reportedly suffering from a heart condition, since the committee took up the ITT case at the request of Richard G. Kleindienst, whom President Nixon has nominated to succeed John N. Mitchell as head of the Justice Department.

Last Friday, in a statement released by her attorney, Mrs. Beard denied there was a deal between ITT and the administration. The statement did not mention the memorandum.

The two unidentified specialists agreed with her two doctors that she was in no condition to travel to Washington to testify but that she would be able to give testimony to committee members from her hospital

Fla. Campaign In Final Day Humphrey, Muskie Cite Hopes Against Wallace

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

AP Political Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie, criss-crossing Florida in the last full day of campaigning, say they still have a chance of defeating Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace Tuesday in the nation's second 1972 presidential primary.

Wallace, however, predicts he'll top the 11-man Democratic field and says he has an excellent chance of capturing a majority of the state's 81 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who is making Florida a major test of his presidential candidacy, says he has a good chance of pulling ahead of Muskie and Humphrey and finishing second.

And New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, appearing with Sen. George S. McGovern on a television interview show from which all of the other candidates pulled out, predicted "the voters of Florida may surprise the country" with how they vote on Wallace.

"He may not get as big a vote as everybody seems to think he is," the New York mayor added.

All of the candidates had busy schedules today as they campaigned in the complicated contest in which victories will be judged both on the relative standing of the contenders in the statewide vote and on how many delegates each wins by finishing first in one of Florida's 12 congressional districts.

Wallace remains the heavy favorite. Most observers consider Humphrey and Muskie competing for second, although Jackson says his polls put him neck-and-neck with them. Lindsay and McGovern are believed contending for fifth, though some Lindsay aides see him finishing higher. Also on the ballot: Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana and former Sen. Eugene J.

McCarthy of Minnesota.

In the Republican primary, conservative Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio campaigns in the Miami area in what most observers consider a doomed bid to defeat President Nixon for the state's 40 GOP convention delegates.

In campaigning Sunday, all of the major candidates except Muskie appeared on television interview programs—Humphrey, Wallace and Jackson on the three network shows and McGovern and Lindsay in the remains of what started out as an all-candidate debate.

Muskie, bowing to pressure from his rivals, reversed his previous position and agreed to disclose the sources of his campaign funds in three stages, starting with a report within 10 days on contributions between Jan. 4, when he declared his candidacy, and Sunday.

Humphrey, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press" said he expects to do very well.

"I think we have good momentum and I believe that I'm the only progressive candidate that has a chance to beat Mr. Wallace," said the Minnesota Democrat, who needs a strong showing in Florida to overcome a "loser" image resulting from his 1968 defeat to President Nixon.

Wallace, however, said on the ABC program "Issues and Answers" that "I believe that I will be the winner on Tuesday." If he wins, he said, he will enter a string of other primaries and campaigns all the way to California's June 6 winner-take-all primary that will net the victor 271 convention votes, 18 per cent of what is needed for the nomination.

Jackson, whose candidacy has probably suffered most from Wallace's candidacy because of the Alabama governor's strong antibusing stand, said he started out way behind Humphrey and Muskie "and now I'm all bunched up with them."

"If I beat either Humphrey or Muskie down here, Scoop Jackson's moving up," he said, adding that although he had talked earlier about dropping his bid if he failed to do well in Florida, he now plans to stick in to the finish.

Amtrak Running Out Of Money Even Faster Than Was Expected

By CARL C. CRAFT

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less than a year after taking over most of the nation's intercity passenger train service, Amtrak is running out of money faster than Congress expected.

Amtrak, the National Railroad Passenger Corp., is fighting for $170 million more in federal help to survive at least until mid-1973.

Critics are demanding an end to federal financial assistance as Amtrak's program comes up for congressional review this week. If cleared by the Rules Committee, an Amtrak reform and funding bill could reach the House floor Wednesday.

The service's backers on the House Commerce Committee urge approval of the money. But to Amtrak's distress and despite Transportation Department protests, the committee also wants several amendments to the 1970 Amtrak law.

The committee hearing record on Amtrak's relatively brief life "is a tale of woe 764 pages long, describing the making of a potential debacle," says Rep. John G. Schmitz, R-Calif.

It amounts to "bad contracts, continuing bad service and poor on-time performance, bad equipment and small ridership," Schmitz adds in a report dissenting from the committee-approved legislation.

Schmitz continued, "And all this despite paying Amtrak's president the stupendous salary of $125,000 a year, second only to that of the president of the United States—a salary which this bill protects by a grandfather clause so long as he is willing to receive it!"

But committee Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., says the bill is "an attempt to preserve and improve an essential system of intercity rail passenger service to meet the needs of the public."

The money is warranted,

Staggers adds, because "the program as presently constituted requires a fair test period, especially the opportunity to provide quality service and to restructure and revitalize the rail passenger network to make it competitive with other modes" of transit.

The bill would add $170 million to the original $40-million grant plus $100 million in federal guaranteed loans to go along with $197 million paid by participating railroads. The bill also would authorize $4 million to provide service to Montreal and Vancouver, Canada, and Nuevo Laredo, Mexico.

Amtrak would be required to use $147.5 million of its total funds from all sources for capital improvements, and would be pressed toward raising more revenue by carrying mail and express. Amtrak backers say such requirements would limit the corporation's flexibility.

The company's future officers would be limited to an annual salary of no more than $60,000 each.

Antipollution Effort Costs Are Evaluated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government study says the cost of antipollution efforts will close hundreds of factories, put thousands out of work, push prices and imports up and force the nation's production down.

Walter Hamilton, a deputy assistant secretary of commerce and chairman of an industry advisory committee, said, however, that industrial executives found the report's projections "less bad than they feared."

The report, released Sunday, is the first comprehensive government attempt to assess the economic impact of antipollution efforts.

It was issued by the Environmental Protection Agency, the President's Council on Environmental Quality and the Commerce Department. Eleven private consulting firms furnished the agencies with information for the report.

The study said big corporations are in the best position to survive the antipollution costs and to take over the markets lost by the smaller firms that go under.

The report's authors acknowledged they had no idea whether their estimates are too high

American And Chinese Ambassadors Confer

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Arthur K. Watson and Chinese Ambassador Huang Chen met today for the first in the series of meetings they will hold to maintain contact between their governments.

The meeting at the Chinese Embassy on Avenue George V lasted 50 minutes and Watson told newsmen: "We had a very friendly and warm discussion, and we hope it is the beginning of many others."

Asked when the next meeting would take place, Watson replied: "We will not be formal about fixing dates. Today's was just the beginning of several meetings, and we hope we will be continuing the dialogue."

Neither Watson nor the Chinese said what was discussed, but the White House in announcing Friday that Paris had been chosen as the site for the ambassadorial talks said they would deal with travel and trade matters.

President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai agreed during Nixon's trip to China last month to maintain contact between their governments through meetings in the capital of some third country where both governments are represented.

The U.S. envoy said the first meeting was the "continuation of President Nixon's trip to China where he received such a good welcome."

The two ambassadors met with only a Chinese interpreter present. Afterward Huang saw Watson to his limousine.

"We will see each other when we need to see each other," Watson told newsmen.

Huang was even less communicative. He told newsmen: "Following the joint Chinese-U.S. communique, both sides have agreed that Paris should be the channel to maintain contacts. These contacts have been started by this meeting today."

Irvings Plead Guilty

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Clifford Irving and his wife, Edith, pleaded guilty today to federal charges of conspiring to defraud a publisher with a fake autobiography of Howard Hughes.

When Judge John Cannella asked the 41-year-old writer to describe what he did, Irving replied:

"It was that I conspired to convince McGraw-Hill that I was in communication with Howard Hughes, when, in fact, I was not."

The judge asked Mrs. Irving: "What did you do that was a criminal act?"

Mrs. Irving, 36, speaking rapidly and with a German accent, said she had signed certain checks from McGraw-Hill made out to H. R. Hughes, and that she had used false documents.

"I put the money in and out," she said.

"Did you realize that you were part of a hoax?" the judge asked.

"Yes," she replied.

Both Irving and his wife appeared pale and nervous. She crossed her arms in front of her. Irving held his hands clasped behind him and his eyes were downcast during the 25-minute proceeding.

Conviction on the federal conspiracy charge could mean penalties of up to five years in prison and $10,000 fines.

Also scheduled to appear in court with the Irvings today was researcher Richard Suskind.

They were indicted last Thursday on a variety of criminal charges after federal and county grand juries spent six weeks in a joint investigation of the making of a 230,000-word manuscript that duped two major publishers.

Heart Specialists Say Lobbyist Dita Beard Can Testify 'Soon'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two heart specialists who examined Dita Beard at the request of the Senate Judiciary Committee say the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. lobbyist will be well enough to testify in a day or two but shouldn't leave her hospital bed.

The committee wants to question Mrs. Beard about a memorandum attributed to her that links the settlement of a Justice Department antitrust suit against ITT to the firm's pledge of $400,000 to the Republican National Convention.

Mrs. Beard, 53, has been in a Denver hospital, reportedly suffering from a heart condition, since the committee took up the ITT case at the request of Richard G. Kleindienst, whom President Nixon has nominated to succeed John N. Mitchell as head of the Justice Department.

The committee resumes the hearings Tuesday with testimony from Mitchell.

Meanwhile, Republican Sen. Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky accused two of his Democratic colleagues of conspiring with columnist Jack Anderson to discredit government officials "despite the absence of wrongdoing of any kind."

Cook, in a letter asking Committee Chairman James

O. Eastland, D-Miss., to call a closed meeting to consider the accusation, said the hearing record compelled him to conclude that Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Birch Bayh of Indiana were involved in a "political conspiracy" with Anderson.

Cook said Brit Hume, an associate of Anderson, gave notes about the case to Kennedy, and the senator didn't make the notes available to the committee or inform members he had them.

"The giving of notes and other documents to a member of a senatorial committee which is investigating the very subject matter contained in those notes is a serious affront to the committee process bordering on contempt," Cook said.

Kennedy in response to Cook's accusation, said: "I hope that each member of the committee has instructed his staff, as I have, to develop every relevant piece of information and that none of them will be deterred by the diversionary efforts of those who would rather not see the investigation proceed."

Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., announced that he has asked the Federal Trade Commission to reopen the ITT antitrust case because "sufficient questions have been raised about the propriety of the Justice Department settlement to warrant a new, independent investigation of this case."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, in a prepared statement, accused Anderson today of "dragging the name of the President of the United States before the Senate Judiciary Committee on the basis of evidence which is so unreliable that it would be barred from every court of law in the nation."

Names Patron For Skindivers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has named St. Paul the Apostle as patron saint of Italian skindivers because he survived a shipwreck. The Italian Association of Skindivers announced that their request for a patron saint raised problems at the Vatican. They had first asked for the prophet Jonah, who, the Bible says, was swallowed by a fish and then thrown out on the land. But Jonah raised some juridical questions because he belongs to the pre-Christian era.

St. Paul was in a shipwreck in a storm off Malta on his way as a prisoner to Rome in the year 60 or 61.

The announcement said this was the first patron saint the Pope has named since the end of the Ecumenical Council in 1965.

weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina, bringing the year's total to 308 compared to 295 at this time last year.

Motorcyclist Joseph Cook, 30, of Hickory, died in a Charlotte hospital Sunday night of injuries suffered in an accident on Highway 321, north of Le-noir.

One of the pedestrians was Alvie Dunca, 52, of Rt. 1, Whiteville, who was struck by a vehicle on a rural paved road six and one-half miles north of Chadbourn.

One girl was killed and seven other teen-agers were injured in a one-car accident in Vance County. The dead girl was Wanda L. Van Dyke of Rt. 1, Kittrell, a passenger in a car driven by Ray Allen Pulley, 16, also of Rt. 1, Kittrell, the patrol said.

Highway Patrolman R. G. Melton said the carload of teen-agers shot off a rural paved road and overturned several times. The wreck occurred about 8:30 p.m. five miles north of Henderson.

A wreck in neighboring Vance County in the northern part of the state killed two Charlotte men. Highway Patrolman Wallace E. Brown said the two were in a car leaving an 185 exit ramp a half mile west of Norlina. Their car was struck broadside by another car whose driver was charged with drunken driving and two counts of manslaughter.

The patrolman identified the victims as William Prentiss Grant, 57, the driver of the death car, and Paul Grey McConnel, 58. The driver of the other car who was charged in the accident was Clarence Edwards, 21, of White Plains, N.Y. Four persons in the Edwards car were injured, one critically.

Two persons were killed in a one-car wreck on N.C. 98, three miles west of Wake Forest. The Highway Patrol said the victims were in a car that ran off the highway at high speed and overturned three times.

The driver of the car, Joseph Lee Avery, 31, of Rt. 1, Wake Forest, and his brother, Clyde Avery, of Raleigh, were the victims.

Five pedestrians were killed over the weekend.

A Wilmington girl, Sandra Jo Saffko, 16, was struck by a car and killed as she was walking on the wrong side of a rural paved road three miles south of Wilmington.

A car struck and killed Laura G. Burnette, 55, of Rt. 2, Bailey, on U.S. 264 one mile east of Bailey.

A Fayetteville woman was killed when a car struck her on N.C. 59, 2½ miles west of Fayetteville. She was identified as Margaret G. Judge, 32.

A Vance County man was killed when he stepped in front of a car on U.S. 1 in Kittrell. He was Nathan Fogg, 56, of Rt. 1, Kittrell.

A man walking on a trestle over the Yadkin River near Lexington was killed when he was struck by a train. He was James Robert Kennedy, 34, of Rt. 1, Linwood.

A train-car wreck a mile east of Concord resulted in the death of Christine Bryant, 2, of Hickory.

A two-car wreck on a rural road just west of Whiteville killed one man and injured several persons. The patrol said Dempsey George, 45, of Rt. 1, Whiteville was killed when the car he was driving ran a stop sign and was hit by another vehicle.

A motorcycle driver, Stephen G. Rhodes, 18, of Lumberton, was killed when his cycle struck a vehicle in the side at an intersection.

A three-car wreck on U.S. 29, three miles north of Charlotte, killed Randall J. Foster, 20, of Rt. 1, Corcoran.

A speeding car went out of control and hit a guard rail on U.S. 421 two miles west of Thomasville. The patrol said Roger Lee Farrington, 21, of Rt. 1, Lewisville, was killed.

A Highway Patrol car on an emergency call struck another car in the side on U.S. 29 one-half mile west of Thomasville. James Henderson, 60, of Thomasville, a passenger in the car that was hit, was killed.

A Charlotte man was killed when the car he was driving struck a utility pole in Charlotte. He was Eugene Hoke, in his early 20s.

Driver Charged In Sunday Wreck

Margie Everette Hazelton, 22, of Route 1, Grimesland was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a mishap here yesterday at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive.

Police reported that the Hazelton car collided with a vehicle driven by John Alexander Hollingsworth, 21, of 502A Darden Dr. causing an estimated $25 damage to the Hazelton car and about $100 damage to the Hollingsworth auto.

Officers reported a passenger in the Hollingsworth vehicle was injured in the collision.

Their current production, which was staged in McGinnis Auditorium, is an adaptation of a short story by James Thurber.

ECU To Sponsor Course In International Foods

"International Foods," a course in the preparation of various dishes in the styles of Central Europe, Scandinavia, the Orient, Latin American, and India, will be offered by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education on Wednesday evenings, March 22-April 26.

Instructor Marilyn Steele of the ECU School of Home Economics, described the course as "an educational experience of the different cultures of the world through the kitchen."

She noted that in addition to foreign foods, the course will include cooking styles of some regions in the U. S.

The course will consist of lectures, demonstrations and actual preparation of different dishes. Classes will meet 7:30 - 9:30 in the ECU home economics department facilities.

Since class enrollment will be limited to 15 persons, early registration is urged by DCE officials.

Further information and registration forms are available from the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, Greenville.

CELERY PARMESAN
A new and epicurean way to serve celery.

1 compact head celery
2 cups fat-free chicken broth
2 teaspoons minced parsley
¼ teaspoon oregano leaves
¼ teaspoon minced garlic
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup heavy cream
3 tablespoons butter, melted
¼ teaspoon salt

Cut off leafy tops of celery and trim any brownish part from root. Cut head lengthwise into 6 wedges; rinse in cold water. In a large skillet bring broth to boiling point; add parsley, oregano, garlic and celery wedges. Cover and simmer until almost tender—15 minutes. Drain; broth left may be used in soup or sauce. Place wedges in an oblong 1½-quart glass baking dish (10 by 6 by 1½ inches) or similar utensil. Sprinkle with Parmesan. Mix cream, butter and salt; spoon over celery. Bake uncovered in a preheated 325-degree oven until celery is tender and thoroughly hot—20 to 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

DEAR ABBY: I know a man who took his wife and recently widowed sister in law to a baseball game. No sooner had the three of them sat down in their reserved seats when in came a gentleman and his young son, and sat right beside them. The man who had brought the two ladies happened to know the late entry, so he introduced him to the women.

The gentleman, who happened to be a widower, had the seat right next to the widowed sister in law. The two of them hit it off very well. Six months later they were making wedding plans!

Not until then did the widow learn that her brother in law had bought ALL FIVE TICKETS, and seated her right next to his friend.

Wouldn't you say this was a lot better than trying to arrange a blind date? IT HAPPENED IN HOUSTON

DEAR HAPPENED: Much! Had the brother in law asked his friend if he wanted to meet a nice widow, the friend would probably have said, "No thanks, I know enough widows."

And if he had asked his sister in law if she wanted to go out with a nice gentleman, she probably would have asked, "How tall is he?"

DEAR ABBY: As a man who takes pride in his cooking ability, I think you blew it in your answer to "NEW IN TOWN," the hostess who served a delicious dessert and didn't want to give out the recipe. [You said, "Share!"]

To an accomplished cook, a special recipe is very much like a "secret formula" for a masterpiece. By giving it to just anyone, this woman will cheapen her own worth as a cook because her formula may fall into the hands of someone who is totally lacking in the art of cookery.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Monday, March 13, 1972—3

Her answer should have been a decisive, "I never give out my recipes!" JAMIL S. IN N. Y. C.

DEAR JAMIL: I disagree. I say, give the recipe to whomever wants it, and if the recipient is "totally lacking in the art of cookery," he will cook his own goose—in schmalts!

DEAR ABBY: I just read an article in the newspaper about a woman who spoke up at a gathering of the nation's weathermen saying she didn't like the idea of naming hurricanes after women. She said she thought that was just another way of putting women down.

Well, I don't agree with her at all. I think it's rather exciting to have a hurricane named after you. And I think every woman secretly hopes that her name will be chosen for the next hurricane. What do you think?

HURRICANE NANCY

DEAR NANCY: I admit, I didn't mind when HURRICANE ABBY was in the headlines, but I was soon replaced with HURRICANE BERTHA. [Ah, the fleeting quality of fame!]

Weddings Can Have Certain 'Hitches'

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—The chapel lights dim. "Oh Promise Me" has been sung. The guests stand at attention for the bridal procession.

So what happens?

The bride won't go into the chapel. She's got cold feet or stage fright—or both.

The bridegroom, maybe he's holding things up by noticing that he's got on bedroom slippers. Or he remembers the wedding rings are in another suit.

A man who's been kind of a "father of the bride" at 10,000 weddings cited those and other hitches in an interview about wedding day crises. Stanley Lewin, president of Continental Hosts Ltd., has taken care of large and small details as caterer to all kinds of weddings in the metropolitan New York area.

To get that hotel wedding off on the right foot when the bridegroom showed up in bedroom slippers, the banquet manager lent his own patent leather pumps. They were a little large but much preferred to a pair too small.

Dignity Tested

Lewin says cases of lost items aren't so easy. One bridegroom, looking for his car keys, took all the papers out of his pocket and put them on the roof of his car. He retrieved the keys, then drove off, letting his marriage license fly to one of the four winds. Special dispensation from the mayor of New Rochelle was required to get that wedding ceremony into the records.

In recalling another "lost" item, Lewin tells of the father of the bride who, standing at the front of the chapel, literally lost his pants down to the ankles in the midst of the ceremony.

The dignified gent looked neither to right or left as the much too large pants with the rented tux slipped. And in just as dignified a stance he retrieved the trousers after the bride and bridegroom said their "I dos."

Sometimes Lewin raises his eyebrows at highly informal attire.

Bride Flees

Once he took a bridegroom aside and told him—"Brother, I wouldn't wear those boots if I were you." "Oh, don't worry," the bridegroom said. "I'm wearing these for the ceremony." He held up sneakers.

In the cold feet department, one wedding was attended by a double dose of same. The delay was two hours as the Romeo and Juliet in the case tried to come to a decision.

The bride actually fled, running down the street in her wedding gown. She was returned to the scene by two policemen who said she seemed "hysterical." At that point, the groom said "nuts." He wanted no part of marrying her! But she suddenly wanted to marry him.

Guests were through two courses of the post-wedding dinner before the two once more agreed to marry. Plaza Suite it wasn't, but it was a good imitation of the pre-wedding jitters that struck the bride in that Broadway play. The play, of course, was a hit, and so was the movie based on it, because it was so true to life.

At weddings, you see, the oddest things sometimes happen. Even minor things—like flowers showing up tied in green ribbons when all the bridesmaids are wearing blue!

Mrs. French To Represent Club In District

Mrs. Margaret French spoke to the members of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club concerning her work in the Mental Health field Thursday night.

She will represent the club as a young "Careerist" at the District IX meeting on Sunday March 19.

Mrs. French will be competing with contestants from five other clubs in the district. Judges for the occasion will be announced later. At the present time, Mrs. French is teaching at Pitt Technical Institute. She says "The greatest challenge is to have faith in people."

Approximately 100 members of Business and Professional Women's Clubs from Carteret, Goldsboro, Jacksonville, Kinston and New Bern will register for the district meeting at the Woman's Club Building. The Greenville Club will have 10 delegates.

Mrs. J. B. Spillman gave the main speech for the evening on "Citizenship". She stressed the importance of being a good citizen and one way to be a good one is to vote.

Mrs. Retsy Baker, president, reminded the members of the state convention in Pinehurst to be held June 9-11.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Heneritta McAdams and Miss Miriam Pleasants.

Reinforces A Greenville Dream

Raleigh's successful shopping center developer Seby Jones believes there will be a mall-type shopping center in downtown Raleigh prior to 1985.

Speaking to the Raleigh Rotary Club and in subsequent interviews with The Raleigh Times, Jones said, "Unless effort and time are given to downtown, it will do nothing except what it has done in the past 20 years."

"On the other hand, new shopping centers such as Crabtree on U.S. 70 West and the newly announced Raleigh Mall on U.S. 401 South should bring in enough people to help downtown."

Jones, developer of Crabtree Mall, envisioned a four-block mall on Fayetteville Street with cross streets remaining open. He could see a two-story mall with underground parking under the whole thing.

Jones said the major problem would be acquisition of the property. "If I had the property I could open such a mall within seven years. I wouldn't hesitate to undertake it."

Such an endorsement for a downtown shopping center in Raleigh is notable. While Raleigh's development and potential are quite different from that of Greenville, we could not help but see similarities between the plan envisioned for Raleigh's downtown and that which is presently underway in Greenville.

Through redevelopment Greenville has plans for completely reworking the traffic patterns in the downtown area, constructing a new loop street around the central business district.

For two blocks on Evans Street a covered and air conditioned mall would be constructed, with pedestrian traffic overpassing Fourth Street which would remain open to traffic.

Rather than acquiring large amounts of property, the Redevelopment Commission plans to work with building owners and store operators so that property will be brought up to shopping center standards. Adequate parking would be providing in areas around present stores with provision for deck parking as the need grows.

Greenville can have a completely rejuvenated downtown area. Federal funds are already committed and work is already underway to clear right-of-way for the planned loop street. We feel that we can have a successful business area and the shopping centers and downtown will prove beneficial to one another.

Developer Jones sees possibilities for such a development in Raleigh. Mr. Jones visions for downtown Raleigh reinforces our belief that we are headed in the right direction here.

Little Impact By Governors

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N.C. — Recent North Carolina governors have fared poorly in efforts to influence the choice of their successor.

Whether they spoke sotto voce or from the stump, Tar Heels haven't been inclined to listen to their departing leader on the matter of the next tenant for the Executive Mansion.

Will Campaign '72 see history repeat itself, or will a new pattern emerge?

Political observers ponder the question as the gubernatorial contest heads towards the May 6 primary.

Regarded as the front-runner in the six-man field for the Democratic nomination is Lt. Gov. H.P. (Pat) Taylor, by official position and personal friendship close to Gov. Bob Scott and his administration.

Ranked second by polls and astute politicians is Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles of Greensboro, a state senator who on occasion has been critical of political involvements touching the governor.

Scott Stands Apart

So far, Scott has kept a discreet arm's length from the campaign. His official posture is hands-off the race. Besides, he's up to his elbows in the presidential primary as state chairman for Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine.

All the same, political gossip identifies Taylor as the anointed of the Scott administration. An attempt to turn that assumption into campaign ammunition was made by Hugh Morton, Wilmington and Linville businessman and promoter, in his abortive sally for the governorship. Before bowing out at the filing deadline, Morton had charged that Taylor was Scott's hand-picked candidate.

There are indications the tactic now is being weighed in the Bowles camp. "We're going to hand Scott around Taylor's neck," one aide close to Bowles said during the recent Jefferson-Jackson Day Democratic gathering. Bowles May Emphasize Differences.

He predicted that Bowles will begin to sharpen the differences between his position and the Scott administration on issues in the days ahead.

What the pay-off of such a strategy would be causes hesitation among the candidate's advisors. A recent poll indicated that 60 per cent of North Carolinians are satisfied with Scott's role as governor. If that accurately reflects the public mood, there wouldn't be much to gain in a campaign with an anti-Scott tone.

For his part, Bowles insisted he's running as his own man on a positive platform. "I'm not running against anything," he emphasized. "I'm running for my program."

Blurred factional lines in the party make this primary different from some of the past. Easy divisions on the basis of philosophy or personality do not apply; Bowles counts supporters who backed Scott for governor, including some within the administration, while Taylor has adherents who opposed Scott when he ran.

Plus And Minus Factors That makes the plus and minus factors hard to count in any attempt to directly involve the governor in the campaign.

Another complication is the prospect of a tougher than usual GOP challenge in the fall general election.

The Democratic candidate will have to shoulder the burden of the Democratic administration. He might find it ticklish to do so after a primary campaign against its record.

The survival instinct is strong in politics. The organization that wins the governor's office has a tendency to seek to perpetuate itself.

W. Kerr Scott, the present governor's father, provided a classic example. He rallied the "branch-head boys" to break entrenched power and be elected governor.

But when he tried to elect Hubert Olive of Lexington as his choice to follow him, the people rebuffed him. William B. Umstead defeated Olive by a wide margin.

The son is more subtle than the father. Whether his approach will have a different outcome remains to be seen.

Misgivings In Tallying N.H.

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — As the surprising returns came in from New Hampshire, a major Democratic figure in California who months ago committed himself to Sen. Edmund Muskie's Presidential campaign wistfully commented: "I'd be a hell of a lot happier if he had got 50 percent instead of 48 percent."

Two percentage points in a tiny New England state of eccentric political reputation do not make that much difference. But the symbolic drop below majority status in New Hampshire confirmed misgivings about front-runner Muskie growing in the California leader's mind for several weeks.

He is not alone. Our telephone checks of prominent public endorsers of Muskie throughout the country displayed a prevalent (though not universal) uneasiness about him, augmented by the lackluster showing in New Hampshire. They now articulate, in private, what before they merely pondered: inadequacies in the Muskie campaign and the candidate himself.

Thus, Muskie's campaign has entered a most dangerous period. Confidence in him could slide much lower if he finishes third or even, as is possible, fourth in Florida next Tuesday. He can scarcely hope for a major confidence boost from the peculiar Illinois primary a week later. Not until the April 4 Wisconsin primary can Muskie reestablish his credibility as a winner. In the meantime, Muskie bandwagon-riders will be exceedingly nervous.

Their nervousness stems from the very reason they boarded the bandwagon. Few endorsed Muskie out of personal or ideological commitment but because his able lieutenants convinced them he was the Democrat best equipped to be nominated without a bloodbath in Miami Beach and then go on to defeat President Nixon.

But many publicly avowed Muskie men during the last few weeks have started wondering whether the Muskie vote-getting potential was oversold in the first place. The New Hampshire results are consequently important, not because they give substance to heretofore shadowy concerns about the Muskie campaign.

One such concern is the campaign's extraordinarily centralized direction. After the fact, his New Hampshire supporters privately complained the result might have been better if they, not Muskie operatives from Washington unfamiliar with the state, had made basic campaign decisions. Similar grumbling before the fact comes from Florida, Illinois and other primary states.

Moreover, there is rising complaint across the country that Muskie's lieutenants had devoted excessive attention to collecting endorsements from big name politicians and insufficient effort to building a grass-root organization. That they were outorganized in New Hampshire by Sen. Hampshire by Sen. George McGovern's forces is obvious.

But the most acute criticism concerns the candidate himself: on the morning after New Hampshire, one of his big name supporters commented to aides that Muskie was "not riding the issues and not in tune with the times." Specifically, he faulted Muskie for skirting vital economic and educational questions while getting tangled with tangential issues. Sen. Hubert Humphrey is doing an incomparably better job handling issues, he concluded.

The seeds of the ultimate discontent are found in the New Hampshire returns: doubt about Muskie's previously unchallenged popularity among white working men. McGovern beat him badly in the blue-collar wards of Manchester and other areas (including the mill town of Groveton).

Considering the fact that Muskie lost French and Irish ethnic wards in Manchester while easily winning similar wards in Nashua, the difference might be the vituperative campaign by the right-wing Manchester Union Leader against "Moscow Muskie."

Strength For Today

SIGNIFICANCE OF LITTLE THINGS

Great events often turn upon little circumstances. As historians examine the chronicle of the past they often find that some little event which was almost unnoticed at the time constituted a turning point which ushered in a new epoch in history. That day the Nazi leaders decided that they could not send any more planes to bomb London was historic indeed. Now we can see that if saturation bombing had been kept up on London for just a few days longer it might have been necessary to evacuate the city.

We are living in days of indescribable significance. No doubt many events which will influence history for centuries have turned, during the past few years, on almost unnoticed circumstances.

The same is true in our individual lives. It was not the great resolve we made, the legacy we inherited, the diploma we received which our lives today what they are. More likely than not it was our meeting someone who proved to be a good friend. Or perhaps we suddenly found ourselves in circumstances which tempted us and turned our feet in wrong pathways. Fate hailed us in some hallway, and we did not recognize him.

Be careful about little things. They are the great determining factors of everyday life. Upon them great issues often turn.

Different From Others

WASHINGTON — One of the biggest cliches of American politics is that politicians are no different from anybody else. "They put on their pants one leg at a time." Everyone has accepted this without question, and while I hate to destroy another myth I can now reveal after some very difficult research that politicians are different from other people, at least when it comes to putting on their pants.

The first clue I had to this was when I read a book Lyndon Johnson and how he dressed when he was President. Mr. Johnson had two Secret Service men hold his pants as he sat on his bed, and he put both legs into them at the same time. This certainly made him different from the rest of us and I decided to pursue the subject of other political leaders.

President Nixon, for example, has his valet lay his pants on the bed, and then the valet leaves the room so the President can make his decision in private. He keeps a yellow legal pad by his

Other Editors Say More From State

(Washington Daily News)

When we talk about the federal government picking up the tab for improved educational opportunities, the talk sounds ever so pleasing. But in practical application, it seldom works that way.

The federal government so often supplies funds on a matching basis, and when that happens, it means the state must supply funds to match those of the federal government.

Then certain regulations and many court decisions are handed down, and so often the real impact of these regulations and court decisions are felt in increased monies from the state.

When we add it all up, we find that regardless of the course of funds, it is the taxpayer who is footing the bill. What the federal government spends comes out of the pockets of taxpayers and even to the extent that the federal government operates year after year in the red, what is borrowed adds to the national debt.

North Carolina cannot operate in the red. This state constitutionally must only spend money which has been appropriated and is available. We have no deficit spending in the state.

So often when the federal government hands down a program, either through law or through a court decision, the state must fall in line, and then the counties are often called upon to fall in line too and to provide their share of the necessary finances.

There seems to be a movement afoot in this country to have the federal government take over education completely. The states continually call for more federal funds, but today in North Carolina the greatest share of the tax dollar still goes for education.

If it should happen somewhere along the line that the federal government should take over education lock, stock, and barrel, even to the complete financing of it, then state budgets could be reduced radically. We do not expect this to happen anytime in the foreseeable future, but it could happen one day, and it might happen one day.

But as of today, when the federal government deals in things educational, we can be sure that the state will be called upon to accept its financial part along with counties.

The burden seems heavy to many, and if the present trend continues, one day we might see a complete revamping of our entire educational processes in America.

The true goal must be that of providing better educational opportunities for our young people. Any other objective will merely represent a waste of time and effort.

bedside where he writes out all the alternatives. Will it be better to put his right leg into his pants first, or will it be better to put his left leg? What will be the political repercussions if Jack Anderson finds out how he puts his pants on? Will the electorate think less of him if he puts his pants on like everybody else? What would happen if he didn't put on his pants at all?

Occasionally he might ask Henry Kissinger's opinion or call up John Mitchell wondering where he should do it, but the final decision has to be Mr. Nixon's. It is probably the loneliest decision that any President of the United States has to make.

When it comes to putting on his pants, no one agonizes more about it than Sen. Edmund Muskie. Since he doesn't want to offend either the left or the right he usually sticks his foot into the center of his pants, this, of course, causes complications as it takes him over an hour to put them on and makes him late for his appointments all day long. Sometimes Sen. Muskie gets so angry when he tries to

Little Is Needed By Red China

By ELMER ROESSNER

Just as the People's Republic of China seems to be opening for the purchase of American produce, it appears that the nation doesn't need much if anything.

have been introduced, and peasant morale and discipline have been improved.

At the same time, reports from India indicate a bumper wheat harvest there, so large that the nation is talking about self-sufficiency in the near future.

Russia is short of wheat, judging from the fact that it has just placed a big order with Canada.

Here are other look-aheads in business:

The transatlantic passenger war will intensify this summer. The lines, members of the International Air Transport Association (IATA), agreed to modest increases in summer rates and, by omission, did not provide for low youth fares. Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines filed their summer rate schedules with the Civil Aeronautics Board but, conforming with the IATA schedule, did not list low student rates.

Now several foreign lines have filed low summer rate schedules with the CAB because, as they said, their governments insist upon it.

Meanwhile Congress is moving a bill that would give the CAB veto power over rates charged by foreign airlines in this country.

The consequences may be a test case over the constitutionality of the upcoming law, which could drag all through summer, or by evasion of CAN interference by offering more charter flights.

The housing boom will continue during 1972. A survey by Advance Mortgage Corp. of Detroit indicates two million starts this year, only slightly under the 1971 record of 2,048,000. Mortgage interest rates appear to be well pegged down. Only a sharp rise can dampen the boom.

Manufacturers' inventories will continue to increase. The National Association of Purchasing Management has polled members and 45 per cent said new orders were higher than a year ago; 42 per cent said they were the same, and 13 per cent said they were lower than in January, 1971. This is a tip-off that (1) tight-fisted purchasing agents are convinced that there are better times ahead and (2) they believe inflation will continue, making purchases today bargains.

Japan is not dismayed by the devaluation of the dollar or the quotas being set on Japanese exports to the U.S. But Japan knows that its productivity increased 14.7 per cent a year from 1966 through 1970, while U.S. productivity was around two per cent a year.

New Cruisers For Red Navy

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russian navy is reported building a major new class of cruiser, at least the ninth new type of long-range Soviet surface warship to appear in about a dozen years.

Details are skimpy, but intelligence reports indicate the new cruiser will displace about 9,000 tons. It probably will be armed with advanced anti-aircraft and antiship missiles, U.S. sources say.

The cruiser is under construction at the huge Nikolayev shipyard on the Black Sea where the Russians also are building a huge new vessel which could be an aircraft carrier.

Top U.S. defense officials told Congress recently that the Russians have greatly expanded their naval shipbuilding capacity, and predicted that modernization of the Russian surface fleet will accelerate during the next five years.

"During this period, we believe the Soviets will add many new ships to their fleet, including missile-armed cruisers, destroyers, and helicopter anti-submarine-warfare ships," said Adm. Thomas H. Moorer.

Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, forecast that by mid-1977 almost half of Russia's surface warships will be bristling with missiles.

According to U.S. assessments, the Russians have added 63 new ships over the past five years, raising the strength of their surface fleet to 215 major combat vessels. By contrast, the U.S. surface fleet has been shrinking from 324 ships in mid-1968 to a planned force of 243 by mid-summer as the Navy moves into its postwar policy, dictated by high costs, of a smaller but more-modern fleet. Since 1966, the U.S. Navy has sent 34 new fighting ships to sea while laying up or scrapping many obsolescent war vessels, most dating back to World War II.

But for all the Soviet naval gains, U.S. defense leaders say the Soviet navy lacks enough all-weather ports, air cover when its fleet operates far from the homeland, and supply and support ships in the open ocean.

put on his pants that he is short-tempered all day long. His staff has been working on this and hopes to have a solution to the problem before the July convention.

Sen. George McGovern has a different problem. He has only one pair of pants and he has to be very careful when he puts them on so that he doesn't tear them. Before becoming a presidential candidate he always put on his shoes first. But when Frank Mankiewicz took over as campaign manager he persuaded McGovern to put on his pants first and then his shoes. This changed McGovern's image overnight and he has lost his serious demeanor, and seems much more relaxed as a candidate.

Gov. George Wallace, on the other hand, goes through three pairs of pants before he gets one on. What he does is jump out of bed in the morning and he is so excited to get going that he rips the pants as he is trying to get into them. His people have tried to persuade him to take it easier when he's getting dressed, but Wallace says "Nobody, not the Supreme Court, nor those Eastern Establishment press lords nor those Washington bureaucrats are going to tell me how to put on my pants."

Sen. Hubert Humphrey had been identified with President Johnson's hard-line pants policy until late in the 1968 campaign, and many people feel this cost him the election. This year Humphrey no longer has to worry about Johnson and he has let it be known that when it comes to putting on his pants he's his own man. He has told audiences, "At least now when I put on my pants I no longer have my foot in my mouth."

Sen. Teddy Kennedy refused to say how he puts on his pants in the morning as he was afraid that people would think he was a candidate for the Presidency. But people close to him told me that if there was a deadlock in Miami at the Democratic convention, Kennedy would be willing to put on his pants and accept a draft.

In the mock elections, Taylor got 26 votes to squeak past Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, who got 24. Reginald Hawkins got three Democratic votes and Wilbur Hobby, six.

Republicans among the high school delegates gave 12 votes to Holshouser and six to James Gardner.

But that too casts a cloud on the Muskie campaign. If Muskie can be wrenched out of his centrist position into a leftist image in Manchester by one reactionary newspaper publisher, can the national Republican apparatus do the same nationwide come November?

Muskie's secret weapon for the nomination is the lack of a clear alternative. "Muskie is the best of a very bad lot," a key figure in Mayor Richard J. Daley's Chicago organization told us, adding that Humphrey is unacceptable and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy seems genuinely unwilling to run. Such negative support is incapable of fueling a bandwagon. Rules Don't Say To Wear Suits

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — A group of Cornell University coeds discovered by security officers Friday night swimming in the nude in a university pool claimed that college regulations required only that bathing suits used in the pool be supplied by the school but did not say that suits had to be worn, a university source said Saturday. There were no charges.

Informer Begins Third Week As Trial Witness

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Boyd Douglas Jr., former friend of the Rev. Philip Berrigan when the two were federal prisoners, begins his third week on the witness stand today in the courtroom where Berrigan and six other defendants are on trial in an antiwar conspiracy case.

Douglas, who informed on Berrigan while the priest was in the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary, is due to face two more defense attorneys for the "Harrisburg 7."

Leonard Boudin and the Rev. William Cunningham, a Jesuit priest-lawyer, are scheduled to bring the cross-examination of Douglas to a close.

The government is hoping to convince the jury on the basis of Douglas' testimony that Berrigan and the six others plotted to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and sabotage heating tunnels beneath key government buildings in Washington, D.C.

Douglas was serving three years in the penitentiary for fraud and assault, Berrigan was in prison for destroying draft board records in Catonsville, Md. As a study-release prisoner, Douglas was free to leave daily for classes at nearby Bucknell University.

Douglas has told the court he befriended Berrigan and smuggled letters out of the prison for the Roman Catholic priest. Later, he turned informer.

A defense team headed by former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark spent last week questioning Douglas. At one point the defense suggested that Douglas had an extortion plot in the works.

Douglas has called defense charges a lie. But Clark said the defense will produce a witness to corroborate these charges.

The defense has also zeroed in on Douglas' finances while he was an informer. It was learned that he received a $1,500 reward for tipping the FBI that a draft board raid was afoot in Rochester, N.Y. According to details of the arrangement revealed at the trial, the FBI outfitted Douglas with a charge account while the agency culled information from him about antiwar activities of the Catholic left.

Named District NCAE President

Mrs. Nancy T. Franklin has been named president of District 15 of the North Carolina Association of Educators.

Mrs. Franklin is a teacher at D.H. Conley High School.

Named president-elect in the recent balloting was J. Wayne Miller, principal of East Iredell Elementary School. Miller will automatically succeed to the NCAE presidency at the association's 1973 convention.

Modest Rally By American Dollar

LONDON (AP) — The dollar continued a modest rally on European foreign exchanges today.

In generally calm conditions the dollar firmed slightly in early trading in London, Frankfurt, Zurich and Paris. But it fell in Madrid to a new low of 64.41 Spanish pesetas, down from Friday's 65.86.

The dollar took a battering last week in Europe. Analysts blamed this on rumors that new currency control measures were being planned by the European Common Market. There was a mood to "get out of dollars."

Central bankers met in Basel, Switzerland, on Sunday and emerged expressing confidence in the situation.

Pirates Rack Up Two In A Row Over Wolfpack

Villanova's Coach Kraft Expects ECU Next Year

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Villanova's weekend victory in the NCAA Eastern Regional tourney here has won it the right to play highly regarded Penn on Thursday.

The contest will be in Morgantown, W. Va., a strange meeting place for these two Philadelphia schools which normally battle it out in Philadelphia's Palestra.

It was Villanova's win over East Carolina 85-70 Saturday that won it the bid. For Penn it was a defeat of Providence, 75-60, in its first tournament game.

For a while it looked like East Carolina wouldn't have to wait until next year.

But Villanova's basketball team rallied in the second half to defeat East Carolina.

"Our timing was off early in the game," said Villanova coach Jack Kraft said. "But East Carolina had a lot to do with it."

"They gave us trouble and since they have such a young team I'd say they will be heard from next year," Kraft said.

Before the game began Villanova was favored. East Carolina had a 14-14 record going into the contest, and only one senior in its starting five. Villanova was 19-6.

Once the game got under way, it was another story. Villanova and East Carolina went just about point-for-point throughout the entire first half and Villanova only led 38-36 at the intermission.

"They presented several different 'looks' on defense and we didn't get the right movement on offense as a result," Kraft said.

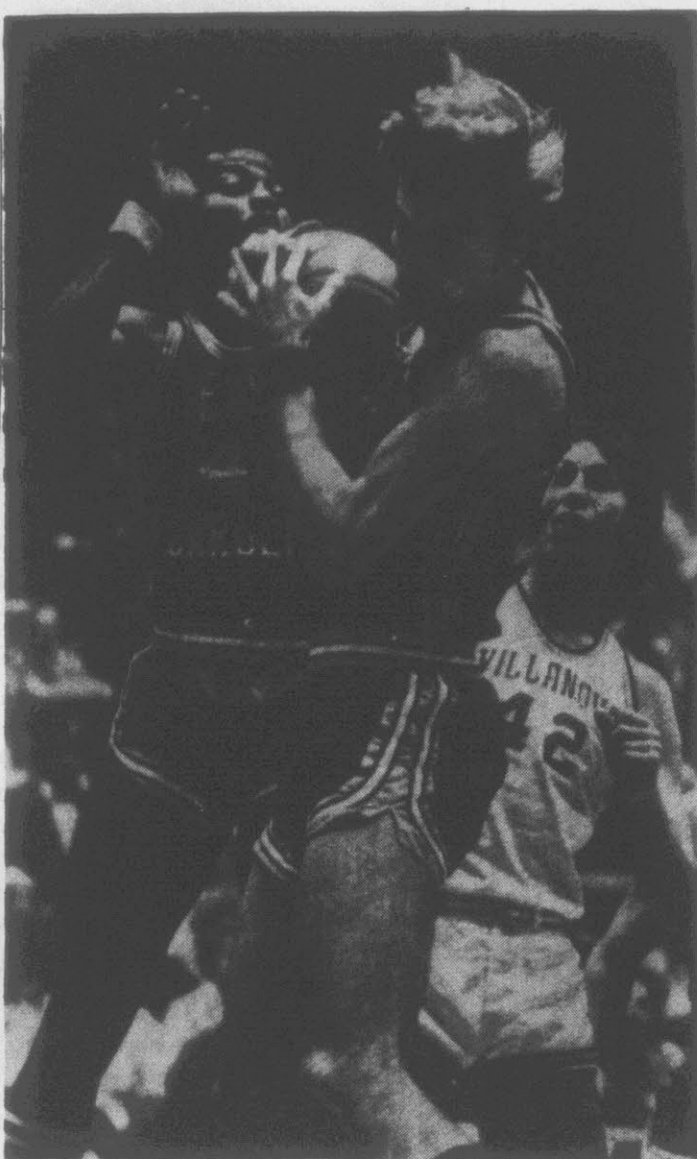

Only in the second half, when Villanova's Larry Moody got hot from the floor, did East Carolina fall irretrievably behind.

Moody with 20 points and Chris Ford with 24, were Villanova's scoring leaders. Dave Franklin was high scorer for East Carolina with 19 points.

"It will be funny playing Penn somewhere other than the Palestra," Kraft said, "but we'll be glad to play them anywhere."

Once again, East Carolina's Pirates used a late inning home run yesterday to ease past a N. C. State Wolfpack team that could never quite break the ice.

Saturday, the Bucs won 8-4 on a grand slam by right fielder Mike Aldridge. Sunday, it was pinch hitter Troy Eason who did the honors with a two run round-tripper in the bottom of the eighth inning giving the Pirates a 2-0 win; their second win in as many starts.

Bill Godwin went the distance for East Carolina, getting the win. The Wolfpack used a pair of hurlers, with the loss being credited to reliever Lew Hardy who came on in the sixth.

Memphis State,

Maryland Say

'Yes' To NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Memphis State and Maryland have said yes to the National Invitation Tournament, completing the 16-team field for the New York basketball extravaganza.

Both clubs were knocked out of NCAA tourney consideration Saturday. Memphis State was beaten by Louisville 83-72 in the Missouri Valley Conference playoff and Maryland dropped the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs to North Carolina, 73-64.

Previous teams selected for the NIT include, Oral Roberts, St. Joseph's, Pa.; St. John's, N.Y.; Niagara, Princeton, Jacksonville, Davidson, Fordham, Lafayette, Indiana, Virginia, Texas-El Paso, Syracuse and Missouri.

East Carolina put men on in every inning except the third. State set the Pirates down in

Nancy Ready To Challenge

DALLAS (AP) — Nancy Richey Gunter, serving better than she ever has in her tennis career, is ready to challenge Billie Jean King as undisputed queen of the Virginia Slims Woman's Tennis Circuit.

"I have more confidence and I'm hitting my serves harder than I ever have in my life," said the 29-year-old Mrs. Gunter of San Angelo, who pocketed the largest prize in women's tennis history—$11,000—Sunday.

Mrs. Gunter mowed down the exhausted Mrs. King 7-6, 6-1 in the Maureen Connolly Brinker nationally televised finals and grabbed the lead in the women's tennis tour with $16,800.

Mrs. King was obviously physically drained after emotional, winning battles with 17-year-old sensation Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong of Australia, making her American debut.

"I just ran out of gas," said Mrs. King. "I was low on adrenalin. Those earlier matches took it all out of me."

Mrs. Gunter, because she hadn't played in many tournaments on the tour, was unseeded and advanced through the lower bracket unchallenged. She finished the tournament without losing a set.

"You can bet she (Mrs. Gunter) will be seeded at Richmond two weeks from now," said one Virginia Slims official.

order the frame. Until Eason's homer in the eighth, no Buc runners got past second base. State also had men on in every frame but the last. The Pack got a man to third in the second but could not bring him in.

State went to work in the first inning as Jerry Mills led off the game with a single. First base was as far as he got as the next batter hit into a double play.

The Pirates got a man on in their half of the inning also. Ronnie Leggett slapped a single down to third base line but was caught trying to steal up a few minutes later.

Pat Korsnick reached for State on a line shot off third baseman Ralph Lamm's glove. Don Zagorski drew a walk but two pop flies ended the inning. ECU put a man in scoring position in second when Larry Walters and Ron Staggs were walked but the Pirates were not able to advance either.

State got a pair of hits in the third but again failed to score.

Aldridge walked for the Pirates in the fourth and stole second but could not come in.

State almost had a rally going in the top of the sixth as Rick Richardson reached on an error and moved up on Korsnick's hit. Godwin fanned the next two State batters and got the next one to fly out cooling State's chances. They put another runner on in the eighth but the Pirates got a double play for the last outs.

The Pirates had gotten tired of knocking on a closed door and decided to open it in the bottom of the eighth. With one out, Rick McMahon reached first when he was hit by a pitch. Eason then stepped in and poled the ball 320 feet over the right field fence for the game winning runs.

Mills had two hits for the Wolfpack.

ECU remains at home this week hosting Duke on Wednesday at Harrington Field.

Court To Begin ACC Hearing

ANDERSON, S. C. (AP) — A federal court was scheduled to begin consideration of a suit against the Atlantic Coast Conference today.

Two Clemson University students, neither a member of an athletic team at the school, say the ACC requirement of an 800 or better score on a standard entrance exam before students may compete in intercollegiate athletics denies them equal protection of the law.

A preliminary hearing in the suit was held Jan. 31 in U. S. district Court in Columbia, which assigned it to a District Court at Anderson. Clemson is 18 miles from Anderson.

Leg In A Cast For One Week

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Montreal Expos announced Sunday that third baseman Coco Laboy's right leg will be placed in a cast for a period of one week "as a healing aide."

Laboy has been experiencing some discomfort from a spring training strain of the right knee. The club said Laboy should be able to resume exercises after the one week immobilization.

The Obstacle Man

BLOCKING THE LANE — Hank Siemionowski of Villanova gets a hand on the ball as he blocks the lane to keep Dave Franklin of East

Carolina from driving around him in Saturday night's NCAA playoff game in Princeton, N.J. (AP Wirephoto)

By KEN ALTYA
Associated Press Sports Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Last March when North Carolina's basketball team lost a one-point game to South Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference finals, they had to settle for a place in what some ACC people regard as "the losers' tournament"—the National Invitation at New York.

South Carolina, playing in the ACC for the last time, got the NCAA bid that goes to the conference champion.

But the Tar Heels picked up the pieces, went on to New York a week later and stormed through four foes to win the NIT. Their task was made more difficult when Dennis Wuycik, their scoring leader, suffered a knee injury in the first game that kept him out of the rest of the tournament and required surgery.

In his absence, Bill Chamberlain, then a 6-foot-6 junior from New York, showed the home folks some superb basketball. He scored 87 points in four games, finishing with a career high 34 against Georgia Tech to win the Most Valuable Player Award.

Now the Tar Heels, fresh from a 73-64 victory over Maryland in the ACC tournament finals Saturday night, are preparing for their first NCAA tournament in three years. They play South Carolina, an at-large independent following its withdrawal last summer from the conference, in an Eastern Regional semifinal Thursday night at Morgantown, W. Va.

Penn and Villanova meet in the second game, with the survivors playing Saturday for a berth in the national semifinals at Los Angeles on March 23.

Chamberlain scored two points, a pair of free throws against Maryland, in 44 minutes of playing time against Duke and Maryland in the Tar Heels' two tournament games. He took seven shots from the floor without hitting.

But he made his contribution in the final game as he had six rebounds, three assists and led the cheers from the bench. "I just played badly, but we won and that's what matters," he said.

That North Carolina could so dominate Duke in the semifinals (63-48) and Maryland for the title without a single Chamberlain basket underscores one of the strengths of coach Dean Smith's 11th North Carolina team.

Chamberlain's replacement, 6-foot-8 sophomore Bobby Jones, had 48 minutes playing time in the two games. He hit 10 of 16 shots for 20 points and grabbed 19 rebounds in a marvelous display of jumping ability.

The over-all balance of the team, which lacks a really big man in this day of 230-pound 7-footers, is further reflected in its rebounding record.

Six-foot-9 junior Robert McAdoo, tallest of the starters, ranked sixth among ACC rebounders over the season, averaging 9.6. Yet, as a team, North Carolina was second in the ACC as four of the league's top 16 rebounders wore Carolina blue.

This balance extended to scoring, as well. The team averaged 91.2 points to lead the ACC, but its top man, McAdoo, was No. 4 individually at 19.7. However, of the top 22, five—more than any other team could claim—were Tar Heels.

The quickness of the team, its pressure defense as personified by aggressive guards George Karl and Steve Previs and flaming spirit have carried it this far—four games away from winning the national title. Wuycik's 24 points against Maryland, 16 in the first half, gave him 35 for two games to lead the team. McAdoo was next with 30, Karl had 26, Jones 20 and Previs 17.

McAdoo was voted the award as outstanding player in a vote of all seven basketball coaches.

When it was over, Smith smiled and confessed, "Actually, I was more nervous before the Duke game Friday. I felt we should beat Duke. And when I feel we should beat a team, I worry more."

Next, he gets ready for South Carolina, coached by Frank McGuire, who brought him to North Carolina as an assistant.

Both teams are nationally ranked on 23-4 records. North Carolina is No. 3, South Carolina No. 6.

Maryland, No. 13, and Virginia, No. 15, go on to the NIT and could meet in a semifinal game. Virginia opens against Lafayette Friday night and Maryland plays St. Joseph's Saturday afternoon.

Maryland's Tom McMillen, with 18 points in the finals, wound up with a tourney high of 51 for three games, followed by teammate Jim O'Brien, with 37.

The Terps won coach Lefty Driesell's praise for "the guts to cut a 17-point lead to five" in the second half.

But Maryland, a 50 per cent shooting team for the season, hit only 37.7 against North Carolina, the nation's top team at 53 per cent. The Tar Heels managed 54.9.

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer
ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The conversation took place on the 18th fairway during Sunday's final round of the $150,000 Florida Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

"When I won at Akron," loose and easy-going Jerry Heard said to Lee Trevino, "that's what I wanted to do—win. It was the first one. This time I want the money."

It was more than simple avarice on the part of the budding star from Visalia, Calif. He was in debt and pressing and admitted the financial problems had bothered him game.

He had a one-stroke lead at that stage, while he and Trevino waited to hit their second shots to the green on the final hole at Rio Pinar Country Club, and Heard used that picture swing to loft his shot to within about nine feet of the flag.

He rolled in the putt for a birdie three, a 69 and a two-stroke victory at 12-under-par 276. And he picked up $30,000 for first place—a check that solved the money worries.

"This will do it," the 24-year-old said. "I'm flat even. I can tell you it's a big load off my mind."

Bobby Mitchell, who bolted out of the pack with a string of five consecutive birdies on the back nine, closed with a 66 and second at 278.

Jim Jamieson, 70, and Leonard Thompson, 69, were next at 279 in the tightly bunched field.

Chris Blocker, who shared the lead at the end of three rounds, slipped to 73 and 280. He was tied with George Archer, Rod Funseth, Bob Murphy and Australian Bruce Crampton.

Jack Nicklaus, 69, and South African Gary Player, 66, were next at 281. Trevino bogeyed the first hole and never really got it going. He had a 74-282. Arnold Palmer didn't make the cut for the final two rounds.

Heard, a casual, apparently unflappable character, emerged from the ranks last year when he won the prestigious American Golf Classic in Akron, Ohio—his first tour title—and had yearly earnings in excess of $100,000.

But he decided to buy out his backers, a group of 10 Californians, and go on his own. He had to go into debt to do it and didn't get out until this victory.

The Best Warranty This Side of a Rolls-Royce

You can't put a price on the warranty you get with a Volkswagen. You see, a Volkswagen warranty runs twice as long as anybody else's small car warranty. And only one car, the Rolls-Royce, has one better.

Here's how ours works: All you do is maintain the car according to the Volkswagen maintenance schedule. If any factory part is found to be defective in material or workmanship within 24 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first (except normal wear and tear on service items) any U.S. or Canadian VW dealer will repair or replace it free of charge. See your dealer for details.

More Than 5,000 Inspections Per Car

The story behind our warranty starts at the factory. Where 1,104 nit-picking inspectors have one job, and one job only. To find something wrong with a Volkswagen before that Volkswagen finds its way out of the factory.

Every one of the more than 5,000 parts that go into a VW is carefully examined. Some of them get the once-over two or three times. If one of our inspectors is unhappy with only one of the parts, the whole car gets pulled off the line. Sometimes we pull as many as 225 VWs a day. But it's worth it. We pick the lemons. You get the plums.

The Most Advanced Service System In The World

No other car maker anywhere can offer you Medi-car, Volkswagen's ultrasensitive Electronic Diagnosis. It's designed to spot problems in your Volkswagen when they're at the minor adjustment stage. Long before they can do any real damage to your car or your wallet. Every one of our dealers has VW Diagnosis. And you get the first four check-ups free with a new VW.

The Highest Resale Value

Based on what's happened in the past, no other economy car on the road holds its value after 3 or 4 years as well as a Volkswagen. So, if you're thinking about buying a new car, think about what it's going to be worth when it's an old car. Because when the time comes to part company with your VW, you won't be left holding the bag.

Unless that's what you carry your money in.

The Worry Clinic Pendulum Hits A Bad Extreme

exclaimed, "Why, that awful Sexologist! How can you ever suggest such a thing?"

"But when I told them you had taught the Bible Class at the Methodist Temple in Chicago for 35 years and had addressed church groups of Presbyterians, Catholics, Jews, Baptists, Mormons, etc., they did a right-about-face.

"In fact, they decided we should invite you to speak Sunday morning on a Bible theme.

"But see if you couldn't stay over for an evening address on "Sex and Marriage Problems. Isn't this rather typical of women's reactions?"

Women's "No!" Experienced men have learned that a woman's "No" may not mean what it says! Since I pioneered the scientific discussion of "Marriage and Family Problems" in this daily newspaper column, I have long been labeled a "Sexologist" and the "American Dr. Freud."

But my discussions have always been discreet medical and moral analyses, devoid of the modern lewd 4-letter words that are bandied about so promiscuously.

Some of the earlier publishers (and especially their wives) even had my column dropped from their newspapers, saying I was too frank for a family newspaper.

What they often didn't know was that I had already received letters from their own teen-age grandchildren who were then pregnant, due to prudish adult reticence.

You readers also know that I employ such scientific euphemisms as "boudoir cheesecake" and "erotic calories" to avoid throwing lewd sex terms at Young America.

Paradoxical as it may seem, I am thus regarded as America's "Sexologist," while imitators with no psychological or medical doctorates, use much cruder terminology but are regarded as quite "proper" columnists!

It merely illustrates the old adage that a prophet pioneers better living customs but is stoned and maligned in the process.

Psychologist William James thus described this situation perfectly when he said any innovator of a worthwhile product, encounters this attack:

- (1) The leaders of the Status Quo deny it as worthless or shocking and impossible;
- (2) Then they concede it may have some slight merit but is entirely unneeded;
- (3) Finally, they eagerly claim, "We helped develop it."

Alas, the public tends to swing from one excess to another.

When prudery reached its climax and people were not given sound medical or moral advice on marriage problems, I launched the scientific discussion of such to prevent divorce.

This started the pendulum toward scientific marriage counseling.

But then the pendulum swung to the lurid, salacious extreme of modern smut and pornography.

Send for my medical booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and see why thousands of divorces have been nipped in the bud! (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

What action do you take?

A.—Six diamonds. Surely you wish to contract for slam and you like spades and diamonds equally well. Having already shown a preference for spades, it is your duty to show satisfaction with diamonds. Partner, who undoubtedly has two five card suits, should then select for trumps the one which is solid, being prepared to obtain discards of the other on dummy's heart suit.

AKQ6542 ♠3 ♠1063 ♠Q94

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—You might have jumped to three hearts in the first place, but since the bidding above didn't, the South hand now finds that partner is able to jump on his own power. Therefore, a slam prospect is bright and a jump in hearts is now indicated. Jump to four hearts with an aggressive partner, to five hearts with one that needs prodding. You have 14 points in support of hearts and partner should have 19 in high cards.

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY

A few days ago a friend of mine introduced me as an agricultural Extension agent, and my new acquaintance quickly asked "What is the Agricultural Extension Service?" Well, that didn't exactly hurt my feelings but it did remind me that just because an organization has been strong for almost 60 years, and has more than 3000 offices throughout the nation, it doesn't mean that everybody knows all about the Extension Service. Hopefully, this column will help you understand a little better this organization which began as a unique American educational effort and has since spread to many other countries of the world.

The Agricultural Extension Service is one of the oldest out-of-school adult education agencies in the United States. It was established in 1914 by the Smith-Lever Act for the purpose of "aiding in diffusing among the people of the United States useful and practical information or subjects relating to agriculture and home economics, and to encourage the application of the same."

The Extension Service is a cooperative venture between the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Land-Grant Universities, and the counties. North Carolina State University is a Land-grant University and therefore administers the Extension program in this state through the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences. Each of the 100 counties and the Cherokee Indian reservation has an Extension office with at least an agricultural Extension agent and a home economics Extension agent. Because North Carolina has a large rural population, this state's Extension service is one of the largest in the nation.

In addition to the county staff a support staff of subject matter specialists provide training for agents, literature (bulletins, newsletters and information sheets), program resources. Many specialists also hold joint teaching or research appointments at N. C. State University. As members of the University team, the Extension agent can also call upon the total resources of the University for solving problems within Extension's areas of responsibility.

A college degree in an area of study closely related to the assigned program responsibilities is required of all agricultural and home economics Extension agents. Advanced study is encouraged and ample opportunity is made available for such training. The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service has a continuing program of in-service training which is designed to keep agents abreast of the latest information in subject matter and teaching techniques.

Program aides are being used increasingly by Extension to work in situations where teaching must be done on a one-to-one basis. They are not college trained but are given very comprehensive instruction in a specific subject matter field and work under the direct guidance of an Extension agent.

The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service has a planned program, Impact '76, which was developed through the help of County advisory boards and thousands of lay leaders in the counties. Impact '76 will provide the basis for each agent's annual plan of work through 1976. As evidenced by the variety of problems and opportunities identified for Extension effort in Impact '76, the program of this organization are oriented to people. They are not handed down from state or federal levels.

Agricultural production and marketing, Family Living, 4-H and Youth, Community Resource Development, and Environmental Quality are the broad concerns of the Agricultural Extension Service. The Extension Service focuses mainly on the problems and opportunities of rural people. Present day inter-relationships between rural and urban communities and people however, have moved Extension agents into closer contact with urban audiences. Housing, Aging, home management waste management, planning, horticulture (gardening and landscape), foods and nutrition and clothing are a few subjects as cases in point.

Pitt County's Agricultural agents, three program aides, three secretaries and the County extension chairman are committed to the principle that people can best help themselves when they are best informed. News articles, radio, television, letters, meetings, workshops, and personal contact are tools used by agents to do this job.

If you are not acquainted with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, or if you have a questions which we might answer, call, write or drop by our office (you might enjoy browsing through the hundreds of bulletins on subjects ranging from Catfish farming to Rose Growing). Telephone 758-1196, P. O. Box 1427, 203 West Third Street, Greenville.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

North Carolina farmers face what one expert describes as a "catastrophic" seed situation in planning this year's soybean crop, according to Woody Upchurch, agricultural information specialist at N. C. State University.

The Prolonged warm, drenching weather last fall delayed harvest in major production areas and caused the beans to deteriorate.

The supply of locally produced bean seed apparently has been sharply reduced. Seedsmen are making a major effort to bring in large quantities of seed from other states to supplement the local supply.

These beans are coming primarily from Tennessee, Mississippi, and Arkansas. Availability of out-of-state seed is limited by quality problems in other eastern seaboard states and also by the necessity to import beans from only those states that grow the same varieties as North Carolina. This rules out the Midwest.

Spokesmen for the North Carolina seed industry are optimistic that enough seed will be available to plant the 1972 acreage — which could be one of the largest in recent years.

This is the second consecutive seed crisis for Tar Heel farmers. It comes on the heels of last year's severe shortage of blight resistant corn seed.

The problem with soybeans this year is one of quality, according to Gene Sullivan, extension seed specialist at North Carolina State University. Tests of seed samples clearly indicate a serious quality problem.

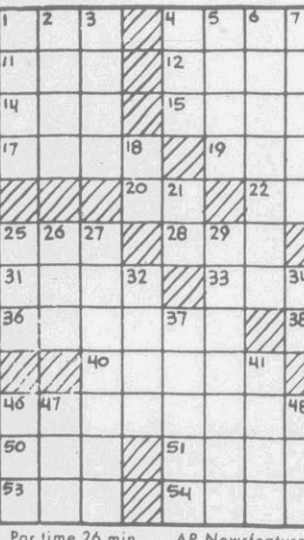

George Spain, head of seed testing for the N. C. Department of Agriculture said early maturing varieties, such as Dare and York, seem to have been more affected by the weather than the later maturing varieties, such as Bragg and Lee. But all have been reduced in quality to some degree. Spain estimates that only about a third of all soybean seed being tested are meeting the 70 percent germination minimum standard for commercial seed.

It is expected that growers will be able to purchase enough seed to plant the 1972 crop. However, supplies of some varieties may be shorter than others and prices may be up from last year.

Sullivan said one of the greatest risks some farmers can run this year is to plant seed that haven't been tested for germination. Growers who do are almost certain to run into trouble, and could have a complete stand failure.

SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S PUZZLE

Research Cited In Journal

Research of two East Carolina University professors is cited in a recent issue of "Reading Teacher," a national journal of current developments in the teaching of reading.

Dr. Patricia N. Daniel and Dr. Robert S. Tacker found that one factor determining how much school children learn is their preference for either auditory or visual presentation of material to be learned.

Because some methods of instruction emphasize one method of presentation over the other, the authors concluded that in cases of learning difficulty, the child's preference should be considered.

Their research was conducted at Wahl-Coates Elementary School, the ECU laboratory school.

Dr. Daniel is assistant professor of elementary education, and Dr. Tacker is associate professor of psychology.

NEW TAX BITE

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit and Wayne County will soon impose a 5 per cent tax on hotel and motel room rates to help finance construction of a downtown stadium. Backers estimate the tax will raise as much as $2 million a year.

Enthusiasm And Anger At Black Nat'l Convention

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
GARY, Ind. (AP) — The first National Black Political Convention has concluded and at times angry, at times wildly enthusiastic, meeting. Left as its most visible accomplishment was the creation of a new black political movement. Whether "The National Assembly," as the new movement was tentatively called, might eventually evolve into a third political party no one could say. But great things were predicted for its future. "All of these seeds have begun to come together and germinate into one flower," said Chicago's Rev. Jesse Jackson, comparing the new movement to independent black state political movements in South Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama. "If we do nothing else today," Jackson said, "we will have made a revolutionary step toward a black political nation in this country and in the world."

A combination of unexpectedly hot debates and long, confusing parliamentary wrangles on the convention floor left one of the three-day assembly's main tasks unfinished at the closing session Sunday night—adoption of resolutions.

A compromise motion from New York brought together in the convention's interim report all resolutions proposed by state delegations and left the final decisions on policy to a steering committee which will meet later.

The compromise motion was offered and adopted after part of the 254-man Michigan delegation had walked out and part of the Illinois group threatened to do the same.

But it put the convention on record as tentatively adopting both sides of several controversial issues, including for and against integrated schools.

It also put the convention against the endorsement of any political candidate for president, but for the presidential bid of Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y.

"People are tired now," said Rep. Charles Diggs of Michigan. "We are forgetting what we already agreed to ... No matter how they look today, the final agenda coming up May 19 will not be the same documents."

He said an earlier vote gave a steering committee of 50 state delegation chairmen plus a few others the authority to rewrite and resolve all conflicts in the list of final resolutions, to be released on the birthday of the late Malcolm X, May 19, and to "ratify that document in the name of the convention."

Another document, a National Black Agenda calling for a "permanent political movement that addresses itself to basic control and reshaping of American institutions" also was adopted tentatively.

"The unifying objective of this political movement must be the empowerment of the black community, not simply its representatives," the agenda said. "It must offer basic alternatives to all the existing American political, economic and cultural systems."

The agenda's list of basic recommendations included:

—Black representation in both the Senate and House in ratio to the 15 per cent black population of the nation, with the same principle applied to state and local governments.

—Reparations to blacks in the form of real estate and cash.

—The formation of black unions as an alternative to labor organizations which practice racial discrimination.

—An urban homestead act to keep federally owned housing projects and lands from passing into commercial ownership.

—Free public education, national health insurance and day care centers.

—Black-owned systems of communications for black communities.

—A 50 per cent cut in the national defense and space budgets.

—An end to U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

—Formation of a national foreign policy which would "further the progress of the revolutionary movement in Africa ... and assist African countries in their move toward meaningful political independence."

Eye Living Conditions Given Mental Patients

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University law students who studied North Carolina's mental institutions from the inside have recommended more than 100 changes which they say could be implemented immediately to improve the living conditions of patients.

The seven students were admitted as if they were patients in mental hospitals and retardation centers last summer. The study was initiated by George Cochran, head of Duke's Center on Law and Poverty.

The students' reports were detailed in a six-part series published by the Durham Morning Herald.

Some administrators of state hospitals have acted on the students' recommendations. But the superintendents agreed most crucial problems at the institutions cannot be remedied unless more money is provided.

The students said they found unsanitary conditions at most institutions and that patients were treated like prisoners, were frequently mistreated and often did not get adequate treatment. They also reported sexual activity among the patients at various facilities ranged from one encounter to "plenty."

They said none of the institutions they saw could be described as one of the "snake pits of the past", but they said one reason apparently was patient sedation. They referred to this as putting patients in "chemical strait jackets."

The reports were complimentary of some institution personnel but critical of what they called the state's stress on high-salaried doctors instead of better training and wages for attendants.

Cochran said the students were not permitted to tour Broughton Hospital at Morganton because the superintendent, Capers Smith, said they would interfere with treatment of patients.

An evaluation report recently issued by a committee of the North Carolina Mental Health Association called Broughton the "worst" hospital in the state.

Cochran said none of the students would volunteer to study Cherry Hospital at Goldsboro from the inside because they were so "shocked" by what they saw on a tour of the facility.

The State Bureau of Investigation turned over to Gov. Bob Scott last month a report on a probe of Cherry Hospital prompted by reports of patient neglect and abuse. The report has not been made public.

State Mental Health Commissioner Dr. Eugene Hargrove said most of the allegations concerning patient treatment are unfortunately true and said the students' reports provided "good, constructive criticism for us."

Programs At Library Set

A program of music and films for children for this week have been announced by staff members of the city's library system.

On Tuesday, beginning at 4:00 p.m. in the Children's Room of Sheppard Memorial Library, Mrs. Barbara Henry will present a program of Renaissance music with instrumentalists of ECU's Collegium Musicum. Authentic instruments of the type used by music makers in Europe in the Renaissance period will be used for the selections of songs to entertain children.

Two well known films, "Red Balloon" and "Jazzo" are to be shown during the week in all three libraries. The first showing is at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday at Carver Library, followed by a showing at 7:30 Wednesday night at Sheppard; and concluding with one at 4:00 p.m. at the East Branch Library.

All the listed events are open to children of elementary age.

Club Inviting Foreign Women Of Community

All foreign women in the Greenville community are invited by the Pilot Club International Friends (PIF) Committee to be guests at a demonstration of American cookery Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. The demonstration will be conducted by Mrs. Sue May and Mrs. Evelyn Spangler, home extension agents, and Mrs. Mary Ann Denny, State Board of Health nutritionist, at Third and Greene Streets in the Agriculture Building. Included will be demonstrations of casserole preparation, table setting American-style, and tips on infant feeding.

Foreign women wishing to attend are requested to call Mrs. Betty Casey, 758-2245, or the Agriculture Office, 758-1196. Assistance for transportation and babysitting will be provided if requested.

CONVENTION ENDS — As the National Black Political Convention ended Sunday in Gary, Ind., poet Imamu Amiri Baraka, chairman of the convention, speaks to the delegations. The convention, which ran for three days, ended on a note of discord as the delegation from Michigan left the floor in protest. (AP Wirephoto)

Honored N.C. Pharmacist Dies

GREENSBORO (AP) — Dr. Roger A. McDuffie, a Greensboro pharmacist for more than a half century, died Sunday at the age of 78.

His alma mater, the School of Pharmacy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, gave him its Distinguished Service Award in 1967, the first time it had gone to a nonstudent or a person not on the faculty. The university presented him an honorary degree in 1961.

For 30 years McDuffie was on the state Board of Pharmacy, and for seven years he was its president. He was a past president of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, which named him Pharmacist of the year in 1960.

A funeral service will be Tuesday.

College Student Shooting Probed

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C. (AP) — An investigation is under way into the fatal shooting of a Catawba College student, Charles Thomas Shockley, whose body was discovered Sunday in woods near a golf course.

Shockley, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shockley of Southern Pines, had been shot in the head, investigators said. They said a .45 caliber pistol was found beside his body.

The youth was last seen by his parents early in February when he visited them. They said Catawba officials notified them a few days later that he was missing.

Shockley's body was found in woods about 150 yards from a green at Southern Pines Country Club.

Moscow Visit
LONDON (UPI) — Mrs. Imelda Marcos, wife of the president of the Philippines, announced Saturday she will make an official visit to Moscow next week at the invitation of the Soviet government. "The president has authorized me to accept," the First Lady said. The Philippines do not maintain diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.
