

Minges New Chairman Of Commission

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor
Dr. Ray Minges was elected chairman of the Greenville Utilities Commission last night. He succeeds Hoover Taft, who went off the board after serving two five year terms. Tom Shea had previously been appointed to a term on the commission and Shea took his seat last night.

Minges is a retired surgeon and Taft is a local attorney. Shea is an official with Burroughs-Wellcome.

Commissioners named W. L. Whedbee as vice chairman at the annual reorganizational meeting and Curtis Howell as secretary to the board.

Commissioners approved a water service area which Utilities now purchases all its power from VEPCO and does not use its three generators. Some coal pulverizers and spare parts were sold to the UNC-Chapel Hill Utility Division for $2,500.

Commissioners approved the purchase of a portable sewage pump from H. B. Owsley & Son based on a low bid of $3,424.

Commissioners approved a plan of a VEPCO load shedding plan which would be inaugurated in case of a power failure. Horne said the state utilities commission has asked local utilities to prepare a similar plan.

Assistant Director Malcolm Green said the first phase would be a voltage reduction of approximately four percent. The second step would be a voluntary load reduction by commercial and industrial customers who would be called with the request.

The next phase would be requests on radio, television and other media for curtailment of electric usage in homes.

The final step would be actual turning off of circuits on the system with the turnoffs being rotated among the various circuits.

Horne emphasized that the local utilities has not been advised by VEPCO of any load shedding necessity for the summer. The plan is to be prepared for emergency conditions.

Outgoing Chairman Taft expressed his appreciation to members of the commission for their cooperation. The commissioners approved a resolution of appreciation for Taft's services after he stepped down.

Wallace Wins By Landslide In Florida; Muskie Runs 4th

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Democratic presidential campaign has been scrambled by a Florida primary in which Gov. George C. Wallace won by a landslide. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey claimed victory in second place and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie suffered a drubbing.

Humphrey, declaring himself the leader of the national Democrats after Tuesday's primary, said, "We now have a whole new ball game."

Wallace, who rode to victory on his opposition to school busing and his pledges to bear down on crime and tax the wealthy, proclaimed he can now capture the Democratic presidential nomination. With his 42 per cent of the Democratic vote, he won 75 of the state's 81 delegates to the party's national convention; Humphrey won six with his 18 per cent.

School busing was the top issue of the campaign. The Florida voters, in a straw ballot which has no legal effect, overwhelmingly registered opposition to court-ordered school busing to achieve integration. They also voted strongly in support of quality education for all children.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington finished third with 13 per cent, ahead of Muskie with his 9 per cent, and vowed to win the April 4 Wisconsin primary.

New York Mayor John V. Lindsay won 7 per cent—barely edging Sen. George S. McGovern for fifth place after a heavy investment here in time and money. McGovern took 6 per cent.

In the Republican primary, President Nixon swept to victory with 87 per cent of the vote and easily won all 40 delegates to the GOP National Convention.

The Democratic primary left the party's top contenders with these prospects:

—Muskie: The preprimary frontrunner, he suffered a second successive blow after last week's lackluster victory in New Hampshire. The primaries in Illinois next Tuesday and later in Wisconsin now loom as crucial.

—Humphrey: Fighting to overcome a "loser" image, the former vice president got the boost he sought when he bypassed New Hampshire to concentrate here. He appears to be Muskie's main rival in Wisconsin.

—Wallace: The Alabama governor got the heavy vote he sought and will now enter many other primaries, both in the South and in Northern states such as Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland.

"I believe I have as good a chance as anyone to win the party nomination," he said at his Orlando headquarters.

Humphrey won his six delegates in a district including heavily Jewish Miami Beach, where half the population is over 65. "Among the progressive Democrats," the 1968 nominee said, "I am the leader."

The top six Democrats who ran in Florida, including Wallace, are entered in the Wisconsin primary. McGovern is challenging Muskie for many Illinois delegates, while former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota opposes the Maine senator in that state's presidential preference vote.

More than 1.6 million Floridians, three-fourths of them Democrats, voted in the state's first presidential preference primary. Previous contests have been for delegates only.

Wallace swept ahead with the first votes from his rural, north Florida strongholds and captured every one of the state's 67 counties, including populous Dade which encompasses the city of Miami and surrounding suburbs.

"This is my message to the national politicians," the Alabamian said as he hailed his larger-than-expected victory and the massive vote, nearly 3 to 1, for the antibusing proposal.

The proposal had been fought by Florida Gov. Reubin Askew and opposed by presidential candidates Humphrey, Muskie, Lindsay and McGovern.

Muskie, in a somber mood, assailed Wallace as "a demagogue of the worst sort" and vowed to fight him elsewhere around the nation. "We'll win some battles, we'll lose some battles," the Maine senator said.

His crushing defeat seemed certain to spur a reassessment, already under way, of his campaign plan of running in most of the 24 primaries, a strategy which Muskie has said in recent days may have spread him too thin while his opponents selected their best opportunities.

Pitt Bar Association Studying Possibility Of ECU Law School Goal

A motion to consider the possibility of working toward getting a Law School at East Carolina University made by Greenville attorney Marvin K. Blount, Sr., was approved by the Pitt County Bar Association Monday night.

Following approval of the motion made by Blount, the president of the bar association, James Cheatham III, appointed Blount and State Representative J. Horton Rountree as a committee to look further into a study on efforts to seek support for the recommendation.

Blount commented it is his feeling "that there are a large number of people in eastern North Carolina interested in studying law."

"Some of these people may not wish to practice law, but have a valid need to study law in connection with other careers," Blount added that many careers, because of their growing complexity, require professional people to have a good working knowledge of various aspects of legal matters.

"As things are now," Blount said, "it is becoming increasingly difficult for young people to gain acceptance into established law schools in the state. This leads me to feel even more strongly the need to look ahead and think seriously about establishing a law school here at ECU."

Rountree observed that at the present time, for example, "there are 3,500 applicants seeking admission to the Law School at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The school can take only 225 applicants. This results in a situation that is constantly depriving many qualified young people from having an opportunity to study law in North Carolina."

Blount and Rountree both pointed out that the establishment of a new Law School is a far less expensive proposition than establishing a School of Medicine or some other specialized type of school. "The basic requirement," Blount remarked, "would be a building, a reference library and a faculty. These things cost money of course, but far less than would be needed for a school in many other fields of study."

Blount said that the suggestion has the solid support of members of the Pitt County Bar Association and that broader support and endorsement of the idea would be sought.

"We will be contacting district bar associations in eastern North Carolina," Blount said, "and I feel confident that most members of these associations will give their support to the possibility of a Law School at ECU."

Election Day For Ayden Set On Tuesday, May 2

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night set Tuesday, May 2, as the date for the municipal election here.

Two seats on the board of commissioners, now held by J. B. Allen (Ward II) and J. J. Brown (Ward IV), will be up for election. Also up for election will be the position of mayor.

Mayor Ross Persinger, who has served as mayor of the town of Ayden for the past eight years, told the board of commissioners Monday night, he will not seek re-election.

In a letter to the commissioners, Persinger stated, "I have tried to fill this office to the best of my ability, integrity, and fortitude."

Persinger said his four years in office have given him an outstanding education in human relations, government financing, and the processes of government from the local level to the federal level.

Persinger gave no reason why he is not seeking re-election.

In other business, the board appointed Mrs. Elva Jeffries as registrar for the municipal election. Mrs. Gretchen Kite and Mrs. Josephine Reeves will serve as judges. Mrs. Lois Cleaton was appointed alternate.

The registration period will be held April 14-21 at the Ayden Community Building.

Charles Chappel was named to fill the position held by Bill Smith, who resigned recently, on the town planning board.

The board passed an ordinance replacing the Good Neighbor Council with a 10-member Human Relations Council.

The board granted a permit to the Town of Farmville to solicit ads on April 1 for their Centennial Celebration program.

The board agreed to place safety guards at strategic school crossings for two hours each day.

A report on the drainage in the South East Ayden area was heard. It was announced that David Hardee will construct a drainage ditch across the Doris Gooding property, to help the drainage situation in the King, Queen, Princess and Fleming Streets area.

Solid-Propellant Space Shuttle Motors Adopted

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics Space Administration decided today that the booster stage of the Space Shuttle will be powered by solid-propellant rocket motors rather than by liquid propellants.

The agency announced also that the booster stage will be recoverable, and that the chosen design will have engines of both the booster and the orbiter stage firing at launch, rather than in sequence.

Dr. James C. Fletcher, NASA administrator, said the decision means that the shuttle will cost less to develop than was forecast in January.

He said the development cost now is estimated at $5.15 billion, compared to the earlier estimate of $5.5 billion.

The booster decision settled the principal remaining question left open for further study when President Nixon announced in January a decision to proceed with development of the shuttle.

"The decision was based on the lower cost and lower technical risks shown in the studies for the solid rocket system," Fletcher said.

NASA said it will issue invitations to industry later this week to submit proposals for design and development of the space shuttle.

The decision also probably means that the Cape Kennedy, Fla., launch complex will be chosen over other contenders for space shuttle launchings.

NASA previously had decided on the design for the upper stage of the Space Shuttle, called the orbiter, and had awarded a contract for the engines.

However, a company passed over on the engine decision has challenged NASA's choice and the government's General Accounting Office is conducting an investigation.

The Space Shuttle booster will launch the huge vehicle through the earth's atmosphere, after which the booster stage will separate and possibly be lowered to Earth by parachute for use again on other missions.

The orbiter stage, fitted with a delta wing, and about the size of the twin-engine DC9 jet, will carry its two-man crew and two passengers into orbit, deliver personnel and supplies to sky laboratories or other satellites, and return to earth for an airplane-type landing. The shuttle development will take about six years.

Horizontal test flights are to start in 1976, and manned orbital test flights in 1978.

The complete shuttle system is to be operational before 1980.

Governor Asks Council Draw Policies For 'Good Life'

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott charged the state's new Council on State Goals and Policy Tuesday to "determine in the broadest sense what we mean by the good life . . . and suggest policies that will place that good life within the reach of all our citizens."

Scott called on the council, created by the 1971 General Assembly at the governor's behest, to take "a continuing across-the-board view of our long-range goals" for orderly development of the state.

The council is designed to serve as a high level advisory group for state government planners.

"My goal is to set in motion a few changes that will make state government more responsive to the needs and potentials of our citizens," said Scott at the council's first meeting. "In this manner we will develop and maintain a government that merits the confidence of the people."

"This council can play a key role in bringing our major options to our attention and can provide a unique forum for discussing these options and suggesting priorities for state action."

"It is my hope that the council will also set the tone and give direction to the planning activities within each state department as well as the over-all planning program within the Department of Administration," Scott said.

Scott will serve as chairman of the council. Council members receiving commissions Tuesday were Dr. Dean W. Colvard, chancellor, University of North Carolina at Charlotte; Mrs. Harry B. Caldwell, Greensboro, master of the North Carolina Grange; Dr. Samuel D. Cook, Durham, professor of political science at Duke University; Ivie L. Clayton, Raleigh, executive vice president of North Carolina Citizens Association; and David Gillespie, Charlotte, associate editor of the Charlotte Observer; Wilbur Hobby, Raleigh, President state AFL-CIO and

Democratic candidate for governor; State Sen. Phillip J. Kirk Jr., Salisbury; Dr. James G. Maddox, Raleigh, economics professor emeritus, North Carolina State University; and Mrs. John L. McCain, Wilson; Dorothy N. Allen, Raleigh, Executive director of Wake Opportunities Inc.; William B. McGuire, Charlotte, retired president of Duke Power Co.; and John L. Owle, Cherokee, Community Action Program project director with the Cherokee Nation; Dr. A. Kenneth Pye, Durham, counsel for Duke University; and William E. Stevens Jr., Lenoir, executive vice president of Broyhill Industries.

A 15th seat on the council is expected to go to the new lieutenant governor next year.

Mrs. Larson was in Cape Fear Valley Hospital this morning. Clark said she had apparently swallowed the contents of an aspirin bottle. He said he planned to go before a judge in Fayetteville today and ask that she be transferred to Dorothea Dix Memorial Hospital in Raleigh for psychiatric observation.

Mrs. Wainwright, a native of Vietnam, was the wife of Warrant Officer Edward T. Wainwright. Mrs. Larson, a native of Massachusetts, is the wife of S.Sgt. Edward H. Larson.

Mother, 2 Of Her 3 Children, Found Clubbed To Death

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)

— An Army wife from Vietnam and two of her children were found slain in their home early today, apparently beaten to death with a small baseball bat.

Cumberland County Sheriff W. G. Clark identified the victims as Mrs. Mia Wainwright, 25; her daughter Kim, 4; and her son Frank, 2.

Clark said a warrant had been issued charging Mrs. Gail Larson with three counts of murder. According to Clark, Mrs. Wainwright and her three children and Mrs. Larson and her two children were living in the same house near Ft. Bragg while their husbands were in Vietnam with the Army.

He said the killings occurred about 8:30 a.m. Tuesday while Mrs. Larson's two children were in school. The bodies, which were locked in a bedroom, were discovered by a neighbor whom Mrs. Larson called at 3:45 a.m. today. Mrs. Wainwright's youngest child, a ten-month-old infant, was unharmed.

Adoptions, Abortions Affected By Changing Times, Attitudes

By MARGARET BLANCHARD

Judy, age 20, is unmarried and pregnant. Tom and Linda are married, unable to have children and want to adopt.

Several years ago, the solution was simple. Judy would go to a home for unwed mothers, give birth and after proper "investigation" of Tom and Linda by an adoption agency the baby would be placed in their home for adoption.

Today the solution to both problems is not so simple. Judy, age 20, unmarried and pregnant, is more likely to have an abortion than give birth. Tom and Linda may find themselves investigated, approved by an adoption agency and then find their names placed on a waiting list for months or years.

The adoption picture for couples wanting the "prime infant," the healthy, pink-cheeked, newborn white baby is not good. Both the Children's Home Society (CHS) and the Department of Social Services (DSS) report a sharp decline in placement of such infants over the past year or so. The Children's Home Society regional office here has stopped taking and processing applications for prime newborn infants. The Pitt County Department of Social Services still takes applications but promises no miracles. Some names have been on its approve list for over a year.

The problem is two-fold agree Mrs. Fanchon Crawley at the CHS and Mrs. Shelby Bailey at the DDS: the growing acceptability and availability of abortion and the fact that more unmarried young women are keeping their babies.

Counseling an unwed mother on these two alternatives is new to Mrs. Crawley. She finds herself now offering an unwed mother who comes into her office for counseling at least four alternatives.

"She can get married and keep the baby. She can carry the baby and place it for adoption. She can have an abortion. Or she can carry the baby and keep it."

The results of the unwed mother keeping the child are not in yet. Mrs. Crawley finds that only recently has it been socially acceptable for a woman to do this. "Now," she says, "women in all walks of life are keeping their babies."

But the CHS social worker thinks that some of these babies might be given up for adoption later in the child's life. Sometimes the mothers find they really can't give the child proper care — or sometimes the unwed mother finds that the child interferes with her developing a life of her own.

Development of a life of her own is apparently not such a problem for an unwed mother who has an abortion. But that abortion creates problems for other people.

One problem created is the sharp decrease in the number of infants available for placement. "I really think this decrease in babies is due to abortion," says Mrs. Bailey with the DSS. "When the pill was popular there was no decline in the number placed. Now there is."

"There is no decrease or decline in pregnancy," she says. "And we don't know if abortion is a fad."

"But before the New York law (one of the most liberal abortion laws in the country), we were placing roughly 25 infants per year. The first year after the law, we placed only two infants."

"A woman can go to New York over the weekend, have an abortion and be back to work on Monday," says Mrs. Bailey. "And no one would have to know."

Does this place Mrs. Bailey, the woman who also has to fill requests for adoptive children, in the position of giving abortion counseling?

"Most of the girls have their minds pretty well made up about abortion when they come to me. If they want abortion, I arrange for them to see someone else," says Mrs. Bailey.

The abortion counseling in town is done by the Clergy Consultation Service. These clergy are connected with a nationwide counseling service for problem pregnancies. One pastor is on call weekly with his name available from REAL House.

Abortion counseling explains alternatives and helps get interested girls into a New York clinic or hospital for an abortion.

The ease with which unwed mothers can get counseling and ultimately to New York Clinics for abortion may have eased emotional problems for these girls afterwards. At least that's what one pastor involved in the Service believes. But these practices have not eased the problems faced by either Mrs. Crawley or Mrs. Bailey.

That growing waiting list at both agencies for instance, is a constant worry to the caseworkers involved. There seems to be no way to cut that list back.

Actually, that list is deceptive. Having first place on the list does not mean the family will get the first baby that comes along.

"We're more selective now," says Mrs. Bailey. "We look at length of marriage, stability, attitude."

Gone are the days where blonde, blue-eyed babies were placed only with families that were by heritage blonde and blue-eyed.

"We take the best possible couple for that particular baby," says Mrs. Crawley. "We want the couple that can offer advantages that the child could probably take advantage of. If he has music in his background, we try to find a family with musical background. The same is true with a mechanical heritage and so on."

"We don't really know how many of these things are inherited but we take into consideration than an average child with average intelligence will turn out like any average child in that house will."

But houses in Greenville and Pitt County are not filled with adoptive babies from Greenville and Pitt County. It is the policy of both agencies to place children out of the immediate geographic area so that no embarrassing incidents of recognition by actual parents or relatives can occur.

This means that Greenville and Pitt County residents are dependent upon unwed birth rates in other parts of the state for their adoptive children. And, according to statistics from both the Department of Social Services and the Children's Home Society, other parts of the state face almost the same situation that this area does. The crisis is so bad that one home for unwed mothers in this state has closed its doors and others are running at less than capacity.

Although the number of babies available for adoption seems to have reached an all-time low, Mrs. Crawley believes "there won't be many fewer babies for adoption than there are now. There will always be some babies because of girls who can't bring themselves to have an abortion for one reason or another."

Some babies. But that doesn't solve the waiting list problem. Some babies. That means some families will be left without children.

Families who wanted to adopt would not be left without children if Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Crawley had their way. There are children available for adoption. But these are not the "prime white infants." These children are those with physical and emotional handicaps or children who are school aged.

The two adoption workers believe that willingness to take a child in one of these two categories would probably increase chances of placement greatly.

Driven To The Edge, Pleads For Help!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 41-year-old man, and I feel like a jerk writing to you, but I have no one else to talk to, and I need some advice before I just drive my car off a cliff.

Over a year ago, my wife had an affair with a married man she works with. It was not her first, and I'm sure it won't be her last. I got fed up with her and her running around, and I finally got a divorce. [We have two kids who are living with me for good reasons.]

I really tried to work things out before divorcing her. That's how I met Lois. [She's the wife of the last guy my wife was fooling around with.] Well, to make a long story short, I dug Lois and Lois dug me. She has three kids, but she won't divorce her husband because she says it was his first offense, and he deserves another chance for the sake of their children.

I'll be honest with you. Lois and I have been having an affair. She says she loves me, but she can't divorce her husband.

Abby, I am crazy about Lois, and can't make it without her. Please tell me what to do. GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Quit seeing Lois unless you want to wind up with another wife who cheats on her husband.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married only two months. We were very happy until yesterday when his ex-wife called to tell him she was pregnant and is naming him as the baby's father!

Abby, my husband is not the baby's father! He divorced her for running around with other men and leaving their two children alone.

If this goes to court, can't a blood test prove for sure that my husband is not the father of her child? Please tell us the facts about blood tests. My husband is "O negative." We are frantic, but we are determined to fight this in court if it takes everything we have. WEST COAST CASE

DEAR CASE: A blood test can only prove who the baby's father is not! If your husband is in fact not the baby's father, but the baby's father just happens to have had "O negative" blood type, nothing is proved.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to tell you what she thought was a "cute" saying: "The neurotic builds dream castles. The psychotic lives in them, and the psychiatrist collects the rent."

Your reply was great! You said, "A competent psychiatrist doesn't collect the rent; instead he helps his patient find a dwelling he can live in. And his fee is more appropriately the cost of moving."

You couldn't have given her a better answer. I was in a psychiatric hospital for a short time recently, and am still under a psychiatrist's care. He has put me on the right track, and I now see a completely different side of life. The right side! I don't know what would have happened to me and my family had I not found him.

If more people who had serious problems would seek the help of a psychiatrist instead of hanging onto that almighty dollar, this would be a better world. I could never pay my doctor enough for what he has done for me.

Art of Coffee Making

Several weeks ago, we were very fortunate to have Robert Tulloh, representative of Coffee Brewing Center, to present a very lively demonstration on the art of coffee-making. The information given and the results was so interesting that I would like to share it with you today.

The elements that will determine the excellence of your coffee are: the coffee itself — the amount used — the timing — the temperature — and the clean coffee-maker in which the beverage is brewed. When these are all in balance you have good coffee. Each one should be taken into consideration whenever you buy, make and serve coffee.

When You Buy Coffee, Give A Thought To...

BRAND — Different brands vary in flavor because each represents a different blend of coffee beans. The selection, therefore, is largely a matter of personal taste.

GRIND — While brand is a matter of personal preference, there are specific rules about grind. These rules are based on the type of coffee-maker you use. To get the full flavor from the coffee, always select a drip or all-purpose grind for drip pot; a fine or vacuum grind for a vacuum-type coffee-maker; regular grind for a percolator. Soluble, or "instant coffee," is freshly-brewed coffee from which the water has been removed — leaving only the highly concentrated essence of the coffee bean.

SIZE — Coffee is one product in which the large economy size may not be your best buy. To give best results coffee must be fresh. Try to purchase the quantity you can use within a week.

When You Make Coffee, Consider...

HOW MUCH TO USE — For each serving, use one Approved Coffee Measure (or two level measuring tablespoons) of coffee, and 6 fluid ounces of fresh, cold water. For optimum flavor, coffee must be made full strength. If you prefer a less full-bodied brew, dilute the coffee with hot water after making it with the recommended coffee-to-water ratio.

TIMING — In automatic coffee-makers, the timing is done for you. With non-automatic types, the timing is up to you. In drip makers this will be 4-6 minutes. When using a percolator on a range, the usual perking time will be from 6-8 minutes. In vacuum pots, water mixes with the ground coffee for less than 3 minutes.

TEMPERATURE — Once brewed, coffee should never be allowed to boil. Boiling will cause an undesirable change in the flavor. BOILED COFFEE IS SPOILED COFFEE.

The question came up about coffee for children and the caffeine content. It was pointed out that there are units of caffeine in 6 oz of coffee 40 units of caffeine in 6 oz of tea and 38 to 42 units of caffeine in 6 ounces of some carbonated soda.

Here is a Coffee drink that is good for the children and adults also.

COFFEE BANANA BONANZA — For two servings, cut 1 banana into chunks. Combine with 1 cup strong colled coffee, one half pint ice cream and 1 teaspoon vanilla in electric blender. Run blender at high speed until mixture is thick and fluffy.

Sanford Is Aware Of The Odds

Enter Terry Sanford into the North Carolina presidential primary.

The former governor of North Carolina who is now president of Duke University is knowledgeable in the political game.

We suspect that he is well aware that the odds on his actually reaching the White House through the North Carolina primary are extremely long. What is more, a poor showing in his home state's primary would probably mean the end politically for Terry Sanford.

On the other hand a strong vote for Sanford and the capturing of the state's delegate votes would place him in a strong position at the Democratic National Convention. Sanford would be able to swing key delegates to a candidate, assuming a tight race develops for the Democratic nomination.

Sanford has long been the voice of a moderate new south, even before this was the popular stance to take.

Now, he feels that the south has the opportunity to serve the nation.

"We are now mainstream America, and we know the unfulfilled promises of this nation," he said in announcing his decision to run. "In other words we can lead; and because we can lead, we must lead."

The Sanford candidacy is going to be disconcerting to some other candidates in the North Carolina presidential primary because Sanford is sure to capture a large bloc of the popular vote.

We see his candidacy as the beginning of a series of strategic political moves. His strategy will be further revealed in the future.

One Woman's Cause Spreads

By BRYAN HAISLIP
DURHAM, N.C. — Woman's instinct to protect life can reach beyond her own household to the whole community.

One woman's instinctive reaction to violence brought into being an organization to create racial understanding and ease the tension of change.

The dark days of the assassinations of the Kennedy brothers and Dr. Martin Luther King troubled Mrs. Asa T. Spaulding, wife of an they can lead to trouble. Awards For Achievement Awards have recognized the organization's achievements in its brief history. In addition to local accolades, Women-In-Action received the 1969 George Washington Honor Medal and the 1970 Honor Certificate from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, and the Carolinas Regional Citation of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The honor of emulation also has come for the concept pioneered by Mrs. Spaulding and her Durham sisters. Chapters have been chartered in Raleigh and Wilmington. The idea has attracted attention from as far away as California, New Orleans, and New York.

"We feel Women-In-Action can be effective in any community. We'd like to see it spread nationwide," said Mrs. Spaulding. A barrier in that direction, she added, is the lack of funds.

An open strategy, in membership and focus, is the key to its approach to treating potential sources of violence.

Taking Sides Is Out "We're not in the business of taking sides," Mrs. Spaulding explained. "People who come to us must know that our hands are not tied by any point of view or interest."

Often, people are driven to extremes when they feel they are ignored and unheard, she said. A community forum where they can sound off serves as a safety valve to relieve pressures.

Bi-racial composition is a guideline for Women-In-Action. The parent chapter in Durham, roughly 300 members, is about two-thirds white and one-third black. Both share equally in leadership and work.

Friendships have been formed and myths dispelled in the process. Mrs. Spaulding said.

The typical business or professional man, absorbed in his work, can become insulated to community problems. Women-In-Action laid a pipeline to them.

"When we were meeting late at night to hear grievances, husbands all over Durham would be waiting up for their wives to come home," Mrs. Spaulding recalled. The women listened, talked at home, and the men learned.

She has relied on the counsel of her husband, retired president of North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, in the development of the organization. Without his interest, advice and support, she said, it might never have come so far.

More Of A Loss Than 'Political Concession'

There are those who see the appointment of John A. Lang, Jr., ECU vice president, to the post of secretary of the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs as a political concession to East Carolina partisans.

To us, however, Lang's appointment is a loss for East Carolina University.

While at ECU he carried out his duties with the same enthusiasm that took him to high places in government. We believe he will carry that enthusiasm to his new position in the state government.

Lang will be missed at East Carolina University, but we wish him well in his new position as secretary of the State Department of Military and Veterans Affairs.

McCarthy Guns Aim At Muskie

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—Addressing an overflow student audience at the University of Illinois auditorium one night last week, Eugene J. McCarthy unleashed a scathing campaign to discredit Sen. Edmund S. Muskie that could profoundly affect the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Condemning Muskie's proposal that amnesty for Vietnam draft dodgers should not be considered until the war ends, McCarthy noted the Senator had "asked forgiveness" for his pro-war stance in 1968. "You would think," McCarthy continued, "that if he wanted to have that kind of forgiveness, he might be willing to forgive some people who were right about the war in 1968." The excited students responded with their biggest roar of the evening.

But McCarthy's steel-tipped formulation was not meant for the ears of students alone. Two days later, television commercials showing McCarthy making the same charge were run throughout Illinois, beginning an expensive media campaign against Muskie in their two-man Illinois preferential primary contest March 21. McCarthy's wholly unexpected return from the doldrums to make a deadly serious campaign exclusively in this one state transformed the nature of the Illinois primary. Muskie's managers had expected from it a practical boost (winning control of nearly all the 170 delegates, either his own or Mayor Richard J. Daley's "uncommitted" delegates) and a psychological boost two weeks before the April 4

Wisconsin primary showdown.

But when other candidates ignored the preferential portion of the Illinois primary because it does not bind delegates, McCarthy jumped in with his only major campaign of the year. The upshot: a chance that McCarthy, discredited politically even among many fervent admirers of 1968, can win well over one-third of the vote—another setback to the faltering Muskie bandwagon.

Even worse than McCarthy's vote total March 21 is what he says in Illinois between now and primary day. Sen. George McGovern's pointed but genteel criticism of Muskie in New Hampshire, which so distressed the Muskie camp, cannot compare with sharp-tongued McCarthyisms. Quite apart from the March 21 outcome, McCarthy in Illinois further menaces Muskie's deteriorating image.

That is precisely Gene McCarthy's goal. Knowing he has no chance to be nominated, McCarthy has no active campaigning planned anywhere after Illinois (though, if he does well here, he may campaign in California). Rather, his motive is simply to stop Muskie.

The reason, he tells friends, is that the nomination of Muskie would be a disaster for the Democratic party. What's more, he now says things about Muskie, his golfing buddy of bygone Senate days, on public platforms that he formerly restricted to private drawing rooms. "Sen. Muskie is an incarnation of what's wrong with the Democratic party today," he declared in

The Happy Secretary

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Women's Lib organizations have moved out of the home and are now attacking the male chauvinists where it hurts — in the nation's offices. They finally have realized something that men have known all along — the power in this country lies with the American secretary. And while very few wives are willing to go to the barricades, there are millions of secretaries who are ready to take up arms to fight for the revolution.

I am one of the few male chauvinist bosses who takes Women's Lib's attempt to organize secretaries seriously. I know that my sweet-smiling, Junoesque secretary, Margi, who sits in my outer office, would really like to be a colonel in a heavy artillery women's brigade leading an attack on the National Assn. of Manufacturers.

But I wisely have prevented her from finding any excuse to feel oppressed or exploited. This is how I keep Margi happy.

In the morning I always get to the office at 9 o'clock sharp to open the mail so it will be ready for her when she comes in around 9:30. I naturally wait for her to finish her coffee and talk to the other secretaries on the floor before asking her if she would be interested in taking any dictation or answering any calls.

By 11 o'clock she's in her happiest mood, and we usually get our best work done. Occasionally, when she has to leave the office, I take her calls for her. If I feel it's important, I'll write down the name of the person who called and his telephone number.

But some are crank calls from department stores asking about bills that I don't want to bother her with, so I just listen to the person's story and try to get him off the phone as quickly as possible.

The most important thing I've discovered as a boss is not to burden my secretary with too many details. I might tell her about my appointments, just in case she wants to remind me later about them. (This, of course, is strictly voluntary, and she has no obligation to do it if she is busy reading Women's Wear Daily.) And I try not to bother her with IBM or Xerox salesmen who constantly are coming into our office to sell their wares. I believe Margi's time is too valuable to talk to these people. While I have been accused of being brusque with strangers who come into the office selling postage meter machines and insurance, I would rather

Other Editors Say Flag Of Suppression

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

We are ever amazed at those who wave communist flags and give the revolutionary clinched fist salute and shout "freedom" slogans.

Usually they are demanding freedom for people accused of murder or arson or insurrection. Or they are demanding various and sundry "freedoms" on campus.

They shout for these freedoms under a banner that represents the very antithesis of freedom.

In communist countries, not only are freedoms denied but the people are denied the right even to complain of their lack of freedom.

The greatest contemporary author in the Soviet Union was literally starved to death because his writings did not portray his homeland as a Garden of Eden.

Millions of people in Russia were executed simply because they disagreed with the communist doctrine.

But let's look at some other aspects of life in a land where freedom never rings.

A New York research organization, America's Future, Inc., has come up with the following figures, based on 1967 through 1969. Here is what it found: To obtain a pound of bread in New York, an American must work six minutes. In Moscow he must work 12 minutes. An American must work 24 minutes for a pound of sirloin steak; a Russian must work 2 hours and 12 minutes. The New Yorker requires only two minutes' labor to buy a pound of potatoes, the Russian requires nine. The American needs only 2 minutes for a bar of soap, the Muscovite takes 25 minutes.

With larger items the differences are more notable. To buy a cotton shirt, the American works less than an hour — 59 minutes. The Russian must work for 11 hours and 28 minutes. A business suit costs the American 13 hours and 22 minutes—the Russian a staggering 196 hours and 39 minutes.

An automatic washing machine in New York requires 53 hours' work. In Moscow it takes 204 hours. The average American must work 57 hours for a black and white TV set, the Russian, 695 hours, i.e. a 40 hour week for 4 months.

Apart from our priceless freedom, the material superiority of private enterprise over the socialist system is apparent.

With all that might be wrong with it, life in the United States and under our free enterprise system still is the best available to anyone since Adam and Eve were exiled from the Garden of Eden.

Declares Nixon Not 'All Wrong'

By ELMER ROESSNER

It would be amazing indeed if President Johnson's chief economic adviser would think that President Nixon's new game plan was a good idea, nevertheless, Dr. Arthur M. Okun has said that wage and price controls were too long in coming and should be replaced by some flexible wage-price restraints. He even approves of Nixon's efforts to restore trade with China.

Dr. Okun, now with the Brookings Institution, told a Lehigh University audience that he would like to see the elimination of government actions and policies which unintentionally abet inflation by exercising "one-way upward influence on prices and wages."

Among these influences he listed import quotas, sales and payroll taxes (including the proposed added-value tax), agricultural support programs, fair trade laws, world trade barriers, anti-trust and regulatory policies, national health insurance, and labor laws which permit inflationary wage increases. That's a remarkable list from a Johnson Democrat. Some of his positions appear far to the right of Richard Nixon. And many of those ideas flourished under LBJ. Okun held that eliminating those factors would be part of a program for working toward full employment and prosperity without inflation. While wage-price controls are not theoretically good for the nation right now, he said they were too long in coming and should be replaced by an "anti-inflationary watchdog effort by the government."

He went on: "Although the Price Commission has been too soft on big decisions and has fussed far too much over little decisions, it has made some headway. The controls program is not playing favorites between business and labor, but the majority of the public is correct in its judgment that it is inequitable."

No Big China Trade

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Present prospects of American businessmen closing deals over a friendly cup of tea in Peking are slim.

And even if the Americans get to Peking, they might find there was no sugar in the tea—or in the business deal.

Since President Nixon's trip to the People's Republic, businessmen all over the United States have been weighing their chances of opening trade with the Chinese mainland.

There are no immediate signs of a quick development of that trade if previous experiences by American businessmen are any example.

In Los Angeles, for instance, an export consultant has been waiting eight weeks for an answer to his application to attend a Chinese trade fair.

The head of a chemical company in Seattle says, "We've been working on this since last July, but the Chinese do not want to deal with the United States."

Such frustrations have made export-import specialists wary and here are some of the reasons:

—The People's Republic of China clings to a long-cherished policy of self-sufficiency. It is reluctant to become dependent on any outside power and does not want to buy more than it can sell in the world market. It wants to keep an over-all balance of trade.

—What mainland China can offer American traders is not very enticing because the country's economy is basically agricultural.

—China's imports include few consumer goods, except grain, and grain imports have been going down.

—America will have to compete with Japan and the European countries, and Japan in particular has some built-in advantages such as geographical location and low labor costs.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL
March 15, 1932

The world today mourned George Eastman, camera magnate and philanthropist, who gave away during his lifetime five times as many millions as he had when he died yesterday by his own hand. He explained his final act in a written statement that "my work is done." The genius of photography, whose fortune at the time of his death was estimated at $20,000,000, shot himself through the heart in his sickroom at his mansion near Rochester, New York.

Although the cold wave has continued in Greenville for the last several days, the mercury hit bottom again yesterday afternoon under the force of a stiff wind accompanied by snow. The snow flurry continued for fifteen minutes and the countryside was covered with a light blanket of snow. The weatherman predicted continued cold for tonight and tomorrow but after that time it was expected that springlike weather would return.

Strength For Today

MANY ARE DRIVEN

In "Bleak House" by Charles Dickens we hear the constable instructing poor Jo to keep on moving. And the poor creature, wiping his grimy tears with his arm, declares: "I am always a-moving on, sir. I've always been a-moving on ever since I was born. Where can I possibly move to, sir, more nor I do move!"

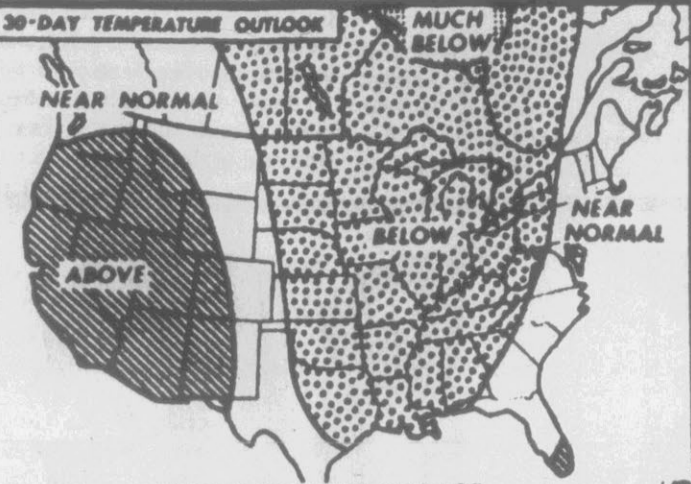

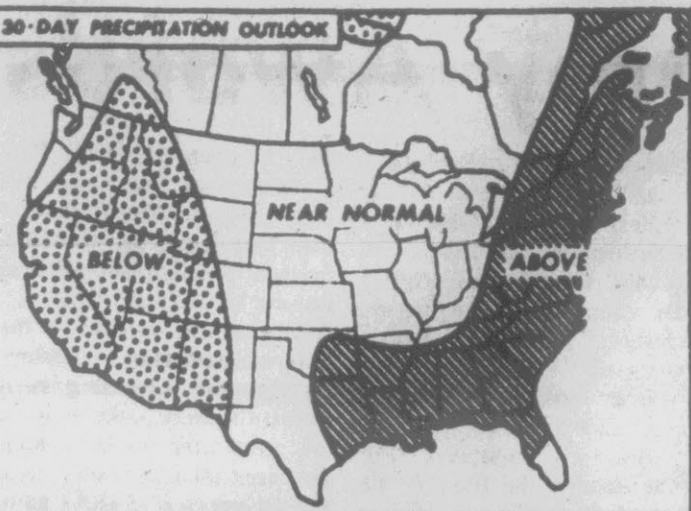

"My instructions don't go to that," replied the constable. "My instructions are that you are to move on. I've told you so five hundred times."

"Well! Really, Constable, you know," observed my Mr. Snagsby (to whom poor Jo's appeal had been addressed), "really, that does seem a question. Where, you know?"

Many people are like poor Jo. Life drives them on, and all they can say is, "Where can I possibly move to?" Their life lacks objective. They are like the scientist Huxley who once found himself being driven in a hansom cab break-neck speed around a certain network of London's streets because he had told the hackman to drive fast but had not instructed him as to his destination. It's always a question for us. "Where, you know?" And we may be sure that if we do not pick out an objective for ourselves, circumstances will pick out an objective for us and relentlessly drive us toward that objective — as the constable drove shiftless Jo before him and bawled out, "Move on; move on. I've told you so five hundred times."

Explained Program On Early Childhood

GRIFTON — An information session on the Early Childhood Program was conducted last week at the Grifton School for the parents of kindergarten students.

The visiting parents toured the classroom, talked with the school's staff and had an opportunity to hear facts on the Early Childhood Program.

A visiting team of specialists explained the young program to the kindergarten parents and later that evening, to the PTA. The ultimate goal of the Early Childhood Program is a non-graded system for kindergarten through third grade. An emphasis on instruction of individual and use of the open classroom are key factors in this new approach.

The program also aims to virtually eliminate competition in the classroom and allow each student to learn and progress at his own rate.

The Grifton School is one of 40 in the state to be selected for this special project. Principal Ike Baldree, accompanied by Mrs. Nanelle Congelton, Mrs. Jackie Parks and Mrs. Dottie Oakley, spent four weeks in Chocowinity last summer in a workshop on the program.

The visiting team of consultants was composed of Mrs. Peggy Boyd, early childhood coordinator, Miss Gill Walsh, British theory consultant, Mrs. Phyllis Jack, program associate with the Learning Institute of North Carolina (LINC) and Mrs. Ruth Windsor of the State Department of Public Instruction.

INCOME BOOST
SAN JUAN (UPI)—Per-capita income in Puerto Rico increased 10.4 per cent in 1971 to reach $1,564. About 20 years ago annual per capita income in the U.S. Commonwealth was $300. Rapid industrial development has been the main thrust behind the island's economic progress.

Planning Team McCloskey To Be Checks Georgia Banquet Speaker School System

Six representatives from Pitt County Schools are currently visiting a school in the Marietta, Ga., area to help them plan a new Career Awareness Program for Pitt County.

The local planning team will visit a selected Cobb County, Georgia school to conduct an on-site inspection of facilities and procedures used.

Pitt County was allotted $5300 in mid-February to develop and implement a kindergarten through sixth grade career awareness program in two schools. The schools selected were Bethel Middle School and Bethel Primary School.

The planning team members are Mike Mills, director of Middle School Occupational Programs, Mrs. Ola Perry, supervisor of Primary Education, Bernard Haselrig, principal of Bethel Primary School, Joe Nelson, principal of Bethel Middle School, Mrs. Brownie Highsmith of Bethel Primary School and Mrs. Pat Burton of Bethel Middle School.

RALEIGH (AP) — U.S. Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., will be the featured speaker at a banquet session tonight of the annual North Carolina Student Legislature.

Between 250 and 300 students from more than 30 colleges and universities are expected to attend sessions of the student legislature which will continue through Sunday.

Rep. Edward Biester, R-Pa., will address the assembly Thursday afternoon.

One of the main criticisms that secretaries voice about their work is that there is no chance for advancement. This is not the case in my office. I keep encouraging Margi to become a humor columnist. I have told her any time she wants to take over the column it's hers. This has made her feel that there is some future here, and while she hasn't done any humor columns yet, she is secure in the knowledge that if she wanted to she could go as far as any man in the business.

Many secretaries complain that bosses are more interested in their looks than they are in their work. The reverse is also true, and my secretaries prefer to work for a man who is good-looking rather than efficient.

We don't have this problem in our office because although I am good-looking, I'm serious about my work, and Margi considers me more than just a sex object.

It is for these reasons Margi has rejected all approaches from the Women's Lib movement. While she is sympathetic with their goals, she knows that Women's Lib couldn't give her any more than she has now. It's no wonder that most militant women resent somebody like me. By treating my secretary as I do I've pulled their rasion d'etre right from under their feet.

But McCarthy, campaigning with more vigor and less carping than in the golden days of 1968, seems more interested in knocking Muskie down than building himself up. The political climate may well support that aim. At a fund-raising cocktail party in Champaign, McCarthy was asked about a rumor that Muskie pulls telephones off walls. "I wouldn't know about that," McCarthy said softly, going on to shake hands with another guest. That exchange seemed to fit precisely into his Illinois campaign.

—Thus far Red China has refused to deal directly with the United States for any products at all. What little they do buy and sell has to go through a third country, or even a fourth.

Even if direct trading could be arranged, that would be no guarantee of a large volume of business. Under the Chinese policy of self-sufficiency, says Wilford Welch, a China-watcher with Arthur D. Little, Inc., the Peking government "has maintained a positive trade balance. They are unwilling to import more than they export."

He estimates that in 1971, Peking's foreign trade amounted to $4.4 billion, divided about equally between exports and imports.

Department of Commerce specialists say goods the United States might want to import from China include tungsten and tung oil, both used in steel production; brush bristles; textiles; ingredients for hair products; art works; rugs and pottery.

Most analysts say "high technology" products are the ones that would interest Peking. For example, sophisticated control systems for industrial plants, petroleum offshore drilling equipment and electronic items.

The Nixon administration approved an export license Monday for a U.S. firm to maintain a satellite television station in China. Although most of the equipment already is in China as a result of Nixon's trip, approval of the license was necessary if the equipment was to remain.

The Commerce Department said the value of equipment for television transmission was $2.3 million. It was the first export license approved since the nation lifted a two-decade embargo on trade with China last year. Sources said the action applies to equipment sent by RCA to set up an earth station in Shanghai.

In Los Angeles, Carl Scanlon, president of an export consulting firm, is the man who has been waiting word about the trade fair in Canton to be held April 15 to May 15.

"We have had a little export to China—testing equipment and chemicals—through British and Japanese companies," he said. "The price situation in this type of dealing is not good because the intermediaries take commissions. But I think the future of United States-China trade is bright if China approves direct trading."

Champaign, sounding a theme to be echoed throughout Illinois.

Besides the Vietnam-amnesty issue, McCarthy assails Muskie for signing the anti-Communist oath required of candidates in Illinois (which McCarthy refused to sign without being kicked off the ballot). He has challenged Muskie to debate at Freeport, Ill., scene of a Lincoln-Douglas debate, and will cite Muskie's inevitable refusal as contradictory to his Lincoln-esque pretensions.

All this is packaged expertly on the media by Sandy Weiner, a professional political technician from California contracted to run the Illinois campaign. Weiner has $250,000 pledged to him by McCarthy's faithful friends for an Illinois last hurrah and wants another $100,000. The spread-thin Muskie camp, concentrating here on individual delegate races (which McCarthy ignores), has $50,000 budgeted for Illinois media.

Finally, Richard Goodwin, perhaps the nation's best political speechwriter, will be shaping McCarthy's final attacks on Muskie. Goodwin, who shares McCarthy's attitude toward Muskie, has promised to return from Brazil for the final week in Illinois.

The effectiveness of advocating draft dodgers' amnesty and disobedience of anti-Communist oath laws is doubtful in this centrist Midwestern state. Nor is McCarthy likely to fully reestablish himself with his disillusioned former sup-

It Was Carole King's Year In '71 Grammy Awards

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Music Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Grammy Awards, given on Tuesday night to the best records released between Oct. 16, 1970, and Oct. 15, 1971, leave no doubt that 1971 was Carole King's year.

Miss King was nominated for four Grammys and won them all—including the three which are considered the top of the pop. Hers was the "record of the year," "It's Too Late," a song she wrote and sang; "Tapestry," a collection of songs she wrote and sang; "You've Got a Friend," which she wrote.

She also won as best female pop vocalist for "Tapestry." James Taylor won as best male pop vocalist, for "You've Got a Friend."

Quincy Jones won for best pop instrumental performance for "Smackwater Jack," an album with the title song written by Miss King.

Carly Simon, who writes pop songs and plays guitar and whose sister is an opera singer, was acclaimed best new artist of year.

Last year's best new artist, the sister and brother team the Carpenters, won this year's "best pop vocal performance by a duo, group or chorus" category with their LP "Carpenters."

Isaac Hayes' recordings received the most nominations—eight. He won a composer's award for best score written for a movie or TV special for "Shaft," a movie. He won an arranger's award for best instrumental arrangement for the single "Theme from Shaft." And "Theme from Shaft" won an award for its engineer, Dave Purple.

Kris Kristofferson was nominated five times, although songs he wrote were also nominated as sung by others. Kristofferson had three of the five nominations for "best country song" and one of his three won, "Help Me Make It Through the Night."

Sammi Smith won best female country vocal performance with that Kristofferson song, Jerry Reed won the best male country vocal Grammy for "When You're Hot, You're Hot," which he sang on television during the hour and a half on which 12 of the 44 awards were presented. The rest were presented at dinners held later in the evening by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, in New York, Atlanta, Nashville, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Other awards:
Conway Twitty and Loretta Lynn, "After the Fire Is Gone," best country vocal performance by a duo or group.
—Chet Atkins, "Snowbird," best country instrumental.
—Aretha Franklin, "Bridge Over Troubled Water," best rhythm and blues female performance. She won in the category for the fifth straight year.

—Lou Rawls, "A Natural Man," best rhythm and blues male performance;

—Ike and Tina Turner, husband and wife, "Proud Mary," best rhythm and blues vocal by a duo or group.
—Songwriter Bill Withers, "Ain't No Sunshine," best rhythm and blues song.

—Duke Ellington, "New Orleans Suite," best jazz performance by a big band.
—The Bill Evans Album," best jazz performance by a soloist, in this case a pianist.

"The Bill Evans Album" also won in the category of jazz performance by a group for the Bill Evans Trio.

—"Horowitz Plays Rachmaninoff" by pianist Vladimir Horowitz, classical album of the year. The album also won in the category of best classical performance by soloist without orchestra. Julian Bream's LP, "Villa-Lobos: Concerto for Guitar" won as best classical performance by soloist with orchestra.

—Verdi's "Aida" as conducted by Erich Leinsdorf with the London Symphony, best opera.

—Best orchestra recording: "Mahler: Symphony No. 1," Carlo Maria Giulini conducting the Chicago Symphony.

—Chamber music: "Debussy: Quartet in G Minor and Ravel: Quartet in F Major," Julliard Quartet.

—Best vocal: "Leontyne Price Sings Robert Schumann."

—Best Choral: "Berlioz: Requiem," Colin Davis conducting the London Symphony with London Symphony Chorus and Wandsworth School Boys Choir. This record also won as best engineered classical album.

—Best recording for children:

"Bill Cosby Talks to Kids about Drugs."

—Best comedy: "This is a Recording" by Lily Tomlin.

—Best score for an original cast album: Composer Stephen Schwartz, for off-Broadway's "Godspell."

—Best gospel: "Let Me Live," Charley Pride.

—Best soul gospel: "Put Your Hand in the Hand of the Man from Galilee," Shirley Caesar.

—Best ethnic or traditional recording, including blues: "They Call Me Muddy Waters" by blues singer Muddy Waters.

—The only former Beatle to win a Grammy was Paul McCartney who won with his wife Linda for best arrangement accompanying vocalists, for their "Uncle Albert Admiral Halsey."

However, the trustees of the National Association of Recording Arts and Sciences gave a special Grammy to the Beatles, two years after the four members went their separate ways. The governors of NARAS gave a special Grammy to composer Leonard Bernstein. Special awards also were announced for Louis Armstrong, who died last July, and Mahalia Jackson, who died in January.

Two Taking Study Tour

Miss Carolyn Mills and Bob Barrett of Greenville are participating in a United Nations-Washington study tour this week.

The study tour is being conducted by the United Methodist Youth Fellowship of the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church. Miss Mills and Barrett are members of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The young people are two of a group of 41 youths selected from United Methodist churches throughout the eastern 56 counties of North Carolina.

The study tour will attend sessions of the United Nations and the Congress of the United States. Briefings by various members of world and national governments will be features of the tour.

Miss Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mills, is a senior at Rose High Schools and is active in the United Methodist Youth Fellowship at Jarvis Memorial. She holds the office of secretary of the UMYF.

Barrett, also a senior at Rose High School, is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Troy J. Barrett. He is vice president of the UMYF at Jarvis Memorial and president of the UCYM here in Greenville.

The purpose of the study tour are to understand the functions and operations of the United Nations and the U.S. government and to provide the opportunity to participate in discussion of current world affairs.

Churchmen Are Organized

On Thursday, March 9, the men of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church held their first meeting of "The Fishermen" club.

This is a newly formed organization, with a theme and purpose of obtaining new members for the Sunday School through a visitation program.

Wayne Pollard, who was elected President extended an invitation to all the men of the church to meet with them at their next meeting to be held on Thursday night, March 23, 7:30 p.m.

Rev. M. D. McPherson, pastor of the church, and Melvin Moore were appointed as co-chairman of the committee to provide a study course in methods of visitation.

W. C. Hendrix was elected as secretary with Gerald Morris being appointed as chairman of the committee on membership.

Both the Sunday School superintendent, Daneel le Roux, and Pastor McPherson expressed their appreciation for the interest shown.

A person standing 85 feet above sea level can see about 12 1/2 miles.

Diverse Data Goes Into U.S. Employment Report

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, March 15, 1972—7

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Labor Department announced this month that unemployment dipped to 5.7 per cent in February, some officials hailed it as a sign of progress toward economic recovery. Others said the figure was meaningless.

In some respect, both opinions were correct. In February unemployment decreased in several key categories, yet the total number of unemployed didn't change at all.

The general impression that the basic monthly unemployment figure accurately reflects the nation's unemployment situation is just one of the popular misconceptions which have grown up around this key economic indicator.

There is, for example, the notion that if a person is not working he is unemployed. Not necessarily so, according to government criteria. Many who aren't working aren't even included in the statistics.

It also is erroneous to conclude that a 6 per cent unemployment rate means that 6 of every 100 principal family wage-earners are out of work. In fact, adult married men have the lowest unemployment rate of any group surveyed.

Nor is it accurate to equate the 6 per cent unemployment rate of 1971 with the last 6 per cent rate, in 1961. The nature of the American labor force and of unemployment has changed drastically in those 10 years.

And, finally, the unemployment rate is made up of dozens of components and subtleties that make it subject to misinterpretation.

"There are probably relatively few people who get past the headline and first few paragraphs of the monthly unemployment statistics stories," said economist John E. Bregger of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. "These people can get a completely false impression of what's going on."

Raw data for the report are gathered each month by the Census Bureau which visits 47,000 homes and interviews 100,000 people. Each household represents 1,300 households throughout the nation; each individual represents 1,300 in the nation's population.

While this might seem a small sampling, BLS defends it as scientifically representative and claims it is the largest monthly survey in the world.

To offset errors likely to occur in any sampling, BLS says the monthly jobless rate must change by at least .2 per cent to be significant. That makes analysis of each month's figure a tricky proposition.

Between December and January, for example, the jobless rate dropped from 6 to 5.9 per cent, a .1 per cent change that was well within the margin for error.

So while White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that the report "gives us a sense of optimism," administration economists acknowledged that the figure meant little.

Although the decline of .2 per cent in February just barely squeaked into BLS' significant column, Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson declared that it "confirms what we have been saying," that the economy is recovering on schedule.

But there is cause to view the new jobless rate decline with prudence. Between December 1971 and February 1972, the rate has dropped .3 per cent, precisely the same rate of decrease in the corresponding months a year earlier. After those consecutive months of decline last year, the unemployment rate started up again.

If the rate continues down for another month or two this year, it may indeed signal an economic swing, but it will be that long before anyone knows for certain.

Determining the percentage of unemployed by federal government standards is more complex than simply finding out who is working and who isn't.

The Census Bureau survey is consistent every month, dealing with the one week in which the 12th day of the month falls.

A person is considered unemployed if he performed a minimum of one hour's work for pay during the week or if he is temporarily idle because of illness, strikes or vacations. A person also is considered unemployed if he worked more than 15 hours without pay in a family farm or business.

Classified as unemployed are those persons who did not work at all during the reference week, but were available for work and took some specific step to find a job. A person also is listed as unemployed if he has been laid off or is waiting to begin a new job within 30 days.

Critics of the bureau's sampling criteria claim there are holes in the process that result in distorting unemployment statistics and the state of the nation's economy.

Some people aren't covered at all. For example a college graduate who is living at home and is not trying to find a job is not considered to be unemployed. So far as BLS is concerned, he simply hasn't joined the labor force.

On the other hand, a schoolboy looking unsuccessfully for part-time work is given just as much weight in the over-all unemployment statistics as an aerospace engineer who has been laid off, when in fact, the two have substantially disproportionate effects on the national economy.

Hobby Raps Tax Sharing

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina's tax "pie" is not equally shared," candidate for governor Wilbur Hobby told a Greensboro American Legion post Tuesday night.

"The money is used to support a wide variety of programs — most of which provide an extra piece of pie for those who need it least," the labor leader told the legionnaires.

Hobby pointed out that the state's highway fund amounts to over $697 million a year, or 15.7 per cent of the state budget.

"We have a state policy dedicated to providing a paved surface between every farm and market and every man and his job," Hobby said. "But, many of our good, hard-working families — the people who provide this money through gasoline taxes, vehicle registration and title fees, and auto license plates — do not live on paved roads or streets."

"What we do have are serious proposals to use our tax dollars to build roads for the 'big boys' to fancy beach clubs and resorts in remote and ecologically fragile marsh lands, such as Currituck Banks."

Rescue Squad To Present Program

"Emergency First Aid" will be the program topic for the Thursday night meeting of the Licensed Practical Nurses.

The program and demonstration will be given by members of the Greenville Rescue Squad. The meeting, which begins at 8 p.m., will be held at the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Home.

The announcement was made by Communications Chairman Ruby Norris.

All Licensed Practical Nurses in this area, members and non-members, are asked to be present.

Number To Call For Emergency

WINTERVILLE—The number to call for emergency assistance in the Winterville area is 758-0966.

According to Ashley Dail, captain of the Winterville Rescue Squad, the new rescue truck is in operation and the above telephone number should be called for assistance.

Identify Typical Insurance Buyer

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) — If you are 58 years old, earning about $7,500 in a white-collar job and living in a town of 10,000 to 25,000 persons, you're halfway there to being a typical customer for mass-marketed health insurance.

Other traits of this typical policyholder, according to National Liberty Corporation are that he is married and living with his wife, has a high school education, owns the house in which he lives, has a conservative life style and travels infrequently.

Mitchell Quietly Responds To Questioning In ITT Hearing

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell says he sees nothing wrong with White House aide Peter Flanigan's retaining an outside financial consultant to prepare a report for the Justice Department in the ITT antitrust cases.

Democrats have said Flanigan's role indicates improper White House influence. Mitchell, who testified Tuesday and will be a witness again today before the Senate Judiciary Committee, also said he met with Harold S. Geneen, president of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. for more than a half hour in 1970 but did not discuss the government's antitrust suits against the conglomerate.

Mitchell answered questions quietly and with a lawyer's precision during the eighth day of hearings by the Senate Judiciary Committee into suggestions that Justice Department officials acted improperly in the out-of-court settlement of the ITT case last summer.

Acting Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst asked the committee for the hearings after the suggestions were published by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson. Kleindienst's nomination to replace Mitchell as attorney general is pending in the Senate.

Anderson published a memorandum in which Dita D. Beard, an ITT lobbyist, linked the antitrust settlement with ITT's purported $400,000 financial guarantee for the Republican National Convention.

Mrs. Beard is suffering from a heart ailment and is hospitalized in Denver. Committee members indicated some of them will travel to Colorado next week to take her testimony.

Mitchell, who resigned March 1 to head President Nixon's reelection campaign, said he has never discussed the ITT case with Flanigan, whom Anderson has described as Nixon's ambassador to big business.

"Surely if that case would have been discussed, I would have remembered because I disqualified myself from it," Mitchell said.

Mitchell has testified that he was not involved in the three antitrust suits against ITT because his old law firm had done some work for one of the conglomerate's subsidiaries. He said he turned the case over to Kleindienst, then deputy attorney general.

The former attorney general said Flanigan, a New York financial consultant before joining the administration, was not involved in the actual settlement of the ITT case.

Under persistent questioning from Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., about the propriety of Flanigan's role, Mitchell replied: "If you mean contact a financial adviser who worked for the Justice Department before and he (Flanigan) was a conduit for the information, it was perfectly all right."

Democrats have said they want Flanigan, who hired Richard J. Ramsden to make the financial report on ITT, to come before the committee to explain his role. But the White House has indicated executive privilege would be invoked to keep him off Capitol Hill.

Mitchell said he met Geneen socially at the White House on May 27, 1970, at a dinner for business leaders and then in the attorney general's office for 35 minutes on Aug. 4, 1970.

He said the meeting in his office, at the request of Geneen, was held "to discuss the overall antitrust policy of the department with respect to conglomerates."

"I assented to the meeting on the express condition that the pending ITT litigation would not be discussed," he said. "Mr. Geneen agreed to this condition. The pending ITT litigation was not discussed at this meeting."

Mitchell told the committee that the discussion between the two was on the theory of the administration's antitrust policy.

Sheriffs In 'Workshop' Plans For 1972-73 School Term Given

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Sheriffs and law enforcement officers from 23 states are in Memphis for a three-day workshop on jail operations, which starts today.

The National Sheriffs Association workshop, funded by a Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant, is for officers from the eastern half of the country.

A similar session for western sheriffs will be held in Albuquerque, N.M., later this year.

Shelby County Sheriff Roy Nixon, workshop host, said the sessions are designed to establish guidelines for jail personnel and facilities.

He said the sheriffs will form seven committees to analyze jail administration, records, security, discipline, sanitation, correctional services, food, health and inmate legal rights.

The committees will issue recommendations Friday.

Nixon said he will present the group with a bill now pending before the Tennessee Legislature as a model for the many states that do not have minimum standards for corrections officers or facilities.

Among those participating in the meeting are Ferris E. Lucas, National Sheriffs Association executive Director; Virginia Jail Inspector J. V. Pugh; Anthony Kuharick, chief of the Bureau of Detention Facilities and Jail Standards for Illinois; North Carolina Jail Services Chief Woodburn Williams; Indiana Jail Inspector James Clark; and South Carolina Jail Inspection Supervisor G. S. Friday.

Solicitation By UCYM Planned For Saturday

Members of the United Christian Youth Movement, the group sponsoring Greenville's Community Ambassadors, will be conducting an on-street solicitation on Saturday.

City Manager Harry Hagerty has confirmed that the solicitors, who are to be properly identified, have permission to seek contributions on-street between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

The young people will be stationed at several sites in Greenville. These are: Elm and 14th Streets; New Bern highway and 14th Streets; Five Points; Tenth Street and Dickinson Avenue; West End Circle.

As usual in such solicitations, the city accepts no liability for accidents caused directly or indirectly by this solicitation campaign.

In Hot Pursuit

COLUMBUS, Ind. (AP) — A city policeman spotted a speeding car north of here Tuesday and gave chase.

When the speed neared 100 miles per hour, Patrolman Mike Walters radioed back that he didn't think he could catch the car.

He was told to give up the chase; he was pursuing a state policeman in an unmarked car summoned to a reported hold-major in Christian education from Greensboro College and completed work for certification in early childhood training at ECU.

Information concerning registration in one of the classes may be obtained by calling the Jarvis Church office, 752-3101, or Mrs. Ralph C. Tucker, 756-4126.

Plans for the 1972-73 school term at Jarvis Methodist Week Day School have been announced. Nursery School for children age three, on or before October 15, will be held on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from nine to 12.

Three nursery school classes will be held for four year old children. Two classes will be held on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings and another will be held on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from nine to 12.

A kindergarten class will be held each day from nine until 12 for children five-years-old by October 15.

Mrs. James Whitehead will teach one three-year-old and one four-year-old nursery class. An art education major, she graduated from Syracuse University, New York.

Mrs. H. M. Johnston Jr. will teach two four-year-old nursery classes. She has a Bachelor of Arts Degree and is working toward certification in early childhood training at ECU.

The kindergarten class will be taught by Mrs. Ralph C. Tucker. She has an A.B. degree with a

Club Hears Pitt Planner

WINTERVILLE — Phillip Michaels, Pitt County Planner, was guest speaker at the Winterville Ruritan Club Tuesday night.

Michaels, a recent graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and a native of Bethel, was recently appointed to coordinate work of the Pitt County Planning Board.

The speaker pointed out that planning has now become a profession...on the community, county, state regional and national level.

He noted that Pitt County is working hard on obtaining regulations regarding subdivision and mobile home parks.

Michaels said he would be glad to cooperate with municipal planning boards whose authority extends one or two miles outside the city limits.

R. E. Boyd introduced the guest speaker. President Sammy Hodges welcomed Kay Dunn, Pitt County Wildlife Protector, as a new member in the club.

DO YOU HAVE A DOUBT ABOUT
THE QUALITY OF OUR "PRIVATE" BRANDS?

We know that some people do.
They still think that if the price is low,
the quality must be low.

And they can't understand how
A&P can sell an A&P Brand for less than the top quality national brand . . . without sacrificing quality.

They overlook three eye-openers:

1. Aside from being the world's largest food retailer, A&P is also one of the largest food processors.
2. Even with products we don't process ourselves, we buy directly from the producer and eliminate many middlemen costs.
3. Every item which bears the A&P name is as good as . . . or better than . . . comparable national brands.

That last point is rigid policy from which we never deviate and is easy for you to prove without risking a nickel.

Just try a shopping-cart full of A&P Brands, now, while the big sale is on.

If you're not satisfied, we'll give you back every last nickel.

Ditez, Haber Put Their Dream To Work; Result Is A Repertory Theater

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
J. E. (Jed) Ditez, 24 and John L. Haber, 23, are two young men who have put a dream to work. Jed is Executive Director and John is Artistic Director of the Carolina Repertory Theater, now touring North Carolina with The Wonderful O.

It all started back in 1969. "We were both in England that summer," Jed stated, "on a theater tour as part of a class from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill." "Jed and I knew each other at school," John commented. "We worked together on a production of The Wizard of Oz."

The two expressed a mutual admiration for the role played by the British repertory theaters in taking theater to the people. "It's really exciting, what they're doing," Jed remarked. "We hit upon the idea," he continued, "that it would be possible to do something similar in the U.S., and especially in North Carolina."

Asked why especially in North Carolina, Jed, pointed out that "North Carolina has a history of people being deeply interested in cultural activities. We have the School of Arts, the only one of its kind in the nation. We have the first state supported symphony orchestra. Here in Greenville a fine program of summer theater draws strong support. North Carolina is indisputably the leader in outdoor dramas. I would say," Jed concluded, "that no state surpasses North Carolina in its public interest in all the arts."

John related that the period between conceiving the idea and being in a position to have something tangible to offer potential supporters was a time of search and work. "Jim, Ann and I spent a lot of time considering material for adaptation," John said. (He referred to Jim Wann, who wrote the book for The Wonderful O based on a James Thurber story and Ann Sternberg, who composed the original score for Wann's book.) "We looked at many possibilities, including The Lord of the Rings. Tolkien's marvelous work of fantasy, and many other works, searching for something with appeal to every age."

Once the trio had settled on The Wonderful O, there followed what John calls "a time of hard work for all of us."

It was only a year ago that the two felt they had reached the stage where they could begin to seek in earnest the support necessary to transform the dream into a reality.

In May 1971 the North Carolina Arts Council approved a founding grant of $5,000 for the establishment of a statewide repertory theater with emphasis on bringing family fare theater to residents in all part of North Carolina. The grant was called by one well wishing official an act of courage. "With this financial support, and with the enthusiastic encouragement of many people," Jed remarked, "we began looking for additional financial support."

"Our success has been a manifestation of the support people and firms in North Carolina are willing to give to something they believe in," John said. To date ten grants and founders gifts of over $1,000 each, including a $20,000 grant from the Mary Babcock Reynolds Foundation, have made it possible for the Carolina Repertory to take to the road this spring with The Wonderful O.

Despite this first flush of financial backing for the company, the two founders are being cautious. "John and I are both working without salary," Jed commented. "Fortunately, we are in a position to do this. Our families are seeing us through personally at this stage." Since neither of the young directors are married, this simplifies matters.

"Many of the actors and others with the show have taken huge salary cuts in giving up other jobs to be a part of the repertory company," Jed commented. "Most have done this for a number of reasons, a chance to be out among new audiences, or getting away from the grind of playing one role month after month at one place."

"Whatever their reason," John added, "they're every one dedicated to bringing the best possible show to the people of North Carolina."

Three-Piece Combo Will Give Program

A trio of musicians, billing their program as "ecstatic, erotic and raw," is next on the program of popular entertainment at Minges Coliseum.

At 8:00 p.m. Monday, Leslie West, Corky Laing and Jack Bruce, on bass, drums and guitar, will present a program of contemporary music.

The trio represents talent from two music groups — West and Laing were formerly members of Mountain; and Bruce comes from Cream. Disc critic Caroline Boucher a few weeks ago commented "The West-Bruce-Laing band will be the biggest and most refreshing galeforce to storm through our lackadaisical music business in a couple of years...each one of them brings out the other and perfectly complements them."

Tickets for the concert are now available from the Central Box Office at Wright Auditorium. Student tickets are priced at $2.00 and those for the general public at $3.00.

In this inaugural tour which opened March 1, the Carolina Repertory Company has 80 performances scheduled in every part of the state. After leaving Greenville last week-end, for example, their schedule takes them this week to western North Carolina, with eastern appearances in the following week in Elizabethtown, Murfreesboro, Wilmington, New Bern, Craven Technical Institute, and Wilson.

And the audience reaction? "We've had terrific audience response," Jed commented. Jed and John both felt strongly that the enthusiastic audience acceptance has justified their belief that good family style theater has a lasting appeal.

Already plans are being laid for the coming season. "We plan to use the summer to organize the fall and winter tour," Jed said. "What we hope to do is to have two plays for the next season, perhaps a non-musical production in addition to a musical."

Future planning is also seen as a continuation of the current method of presentation, one in which the company plays before a paying audience for one performance and then gives a free performance for school children in a public school. (The company had offered a free performance in Greenville, but city school officials could not manage the necessary arrangements because of problems involved in busing at the end of the week.)

As 1972 rolls on, the people of North Carolina in villages, rural areas and large towns are being introduced to original theater designed for North Carolinians.

With a little bit of luck, North Carolinians in future years will be seeing a lot of Jed and John and the some 20 other hard working young people who have a lot of faith that there are five million people out there eager to be entertained with the finest in family theater.

Conditions Quiet At High School

Principal Robert Allgood of Rose High School reports that conditions were quiet at Rose High School today following unrest yesterday resulting from incidents between two groups of black students.

"I think it is unfortunate indeed that community feelings sometimes erupt into the schools," Allgood commented, "but parents can rest assured we will always keep on top of such situations." Allgood said he felt that despite a few such incidents during the school year, an overall spirit of cooperation by the great majority of students is resulting in a school year of progress in many fields.

Palestinean State Offered By Hussein

AMMAN (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan offered today to set up a semi-autonomous state of Palestine on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River once Israeli troops withdrew from the region.

The King's Arab foes joined in rejection of the plan, communicated to the Arab governments Tuesday, before he announced it. Radio and press commentators in Egypt, Syria, Libya and Iraq charged it was the first step toward a separate peace agreement with Israel.

Palestine guerrilla leaders agreed to set up their own government-in-exile in retaliation, guerrilla sources said. A guerrilla statement termed Hussein's proposal "a plot designed to kill the commando movement and liquidate the Palestine cause for ever."

First unofficial reaction in Israel was cautiously favorable. Hussein announced his plan to a meeting of some 500 prominent Jordanians from both sides of the river. He told them the new state would be joined with the rest of Jordan to form the United Arab Kingdom under his reign.

A government spokesman denied a report by Baghdad Radio Tuesday that Israel had agreed to the plan as part of a peace agreement. The spokesman said there had been no discussions between leaders of Israel and Jordan.

The Iraqi broadcast appeared to be an attempt to whip up Arab sentiment in advance against the king's plans by raising the specter of a separate Jordanian-Israeli peace.

Hussein proposed that Jerusalem should be the capital of the "Region of Palestine" and Amman, the present Jordanian capital, would be the capital of both the "Region of Jordan and the United Arab Kingdom." The part of the plan involving Jerusalem was certain of rejection by Israel, which captured the Arab Old City of Jerusalem from Jordan in the 1967 war and has said repeatedly it would never give it up.

The king said the United Arab Kingdom would have a national assembly whose members would be elected by a direct and secret ballot, and membership would be divided equally between the two regions of the country.

As outlined by Baghdad, the plan included the occupied Gaza Strip in the Palestinian state but made no mention of the other Egyptian and Syrian territory occupied by Israel.

Drama Class To Stage Two Plays

The Drama Class production of the Pitt Players of Pitt Technical Institute will be held Friday and Saturday at the Methodist Student Center, corner of Fifth and Holly Streets.

There will be two one-act plays, George Bernard Shaw's "How He Lied To Her Husband" and Nicholai Gogol's "Diary of A Madman." The show will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night.

The admission is free and the productions are open to the public.

"Diary of A Madman" will be presented by the Pitt Players at the Regional Drama Festival at the College of Albemarle on March 25.

Robersonville Caravan On Road

BETHEL—The Robersonville Centennial Caravan will arrive here Saturday at 3 p.m.

The visitors, the Robersonville mayor and other townspeople dressed in 19th century attire, will stop on the campus of the Bethel Grammar School. Bethel residents are urged to turn out and welcome them.

The Robersonville Centennial Week is April 20-27.

Visited Hughes

MEXICO CITY (AP) —"Howard Hughes appeared in good health and I found him alert, pleasant—in fact, affable," the U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua, Turner Shelton, said today of his visit with the hideaway billionaire.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press here, Shelton said the hour and 15 minutes spent with Hughes and President Anastasio Somoza at the Managua, Nicaragua airport Monday night was his first and only meeting with the billionaire.

Hughes stayed in Nicaragua a month secluded in a luxurious hotel.

"My conversation with him dealt mostly with pleasantries," Shelton recalled. He described Hughes as slim, adding that he "stood straight." Hughes' hair was cut short, like we used to wear it," Shelton laughed, "and it has a sort of salt and pepper appearance.

Hughes sported a thin beard which he described as a Van Dyke that covered his cheeks, Shelton added.

The subject of the controversial autobiography written by Clifford Irving did not come up during their talk, said Shelton, nor did Hughes indicate his future plans.

Moles Driven Into Buildings

GRAND ISLAND, N.Y. (AP) —A sign on the front door of Town Hall reads:

"Please close door so moles do not come into building." Officials say flood conditions in this western New York township apparently are driving the moles from their underground haunts.

Crash Killed 112

DUBAI, Persian Gulf (AP) —A Danish airliner with 112 persons aboard crashed into a rain-swept mountainside and rescuers said today they found no sign of life.

Serling Airways of Copenhagen reported its twin-jet Caravelle vanished Tuesday night as it was preparing to land at this locality on the Persian Gulf on a flight from Ceylon to Denmark. The wreckage was located by helicopters and a search plane 12 miles inland from Qelba, a dependency of the Arab emirate of Sharjah.

Heavy rains prevented helicopters from landing at the crash scene, and it is almost inaccessible on foot.

"It appears there are no survivors," a Sharjah government spokesman said.

$42,500 Said Stolen From A Local Home

The weekend theft of some $42,500 from a home on the Old River Road is under investigation by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said this morning that theft of the currency from a safe in the home of Chester Rogers on Rt. 4, Greenville was reported Tuesday at 11:20 a.m.

Sheriff Tyson said that Rogers told deputies he left home Friday afternoon and returned Monday and found the safe missing. Most of the money, Rogers reported, belonged to four brothers.

The sheriff noted that no evidence of forcible entry to the home was found and no damages were reported. Value of the missing safe, he said, was estimated at $95.

Nixon Ready Busing Position

THURMONT, Md. (AP) —President Nixon is at Camp David in the Catoctin Mountains, reportedly working on a statement on busing.

Nixon left the White House by car Tuesday night, accompanied only by his personal physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, his valet and his dog.

Snow prevented a helicopter landing at the mountaintop retreat, and a light rain was falling in the capital when Nixon departed.

Deputy press secretary Neil Ball said the President probably would be working on the busing position statement which the White House has said will be sent to Congress within 10 days or so.

Allocation For Airport Is Made

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) —The Goldsboro-Wayne County Airport Authority has received a state allocation of $41,000.

A check for the allocation was presented Tuesday by Charles W. Bradshaw Jr., state secretary of natural and economic resources.

The airport will use the money to help finance installation of a taxiway, taxiway lights, a VASI landing aid and an addition to the parking apron.

Offer Credits For Campaigning

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) —Central Michigan University will offer students a chance to earn three credit hours in political science by campaigning May 15 to June 8 for candidates of their choice in the Oregon and California presidential primaries.

The course will be conducted by Dr. James R. Davis, author of the book "Presidential Primaries—Road to the White House."

On their return to the university campus the student campaigners would be required to write a paper on their experiences.

The $370 cost includes tuition and round-trip fare between Mount Pleasant and Portland, Ore. and San Francisco, a university spokesman said.

Soaring Flight By 'Birdman'

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP) —Australian birdman Bill Moyes soared to a record altitude of 4,750 feet above Lake Ellesmere with the aid of artificial wings Tuesday and landed safely, the New Zealand air force said today.

Moyes was strapped in a lying position under a 25-foot sailcloth wingspan and a speedboat towed him until he reached 4,000 feet. Then he released the towline, and winds of up to 24 knots boosted him to his record height. He made a circling landing.

This beat the feat of Bill Bennett of Van Nuys, Calif., who rose to 2,960 feet with a similar flight in Arizona.

"It was a smooth ride with very little turbulence," said Moyes.

A person standing 130 feet above sea level can see about 15 miles.

Rampants Blast Pam Pack In 10-0 Win

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Rose High's Rampants continued to roll along yesterday as they recorded an 10-0 shut-out, their second of the season, over the Pam-Pack of Washington. They are now 3-0. Rose previously downed Washington 8-4 there.

The Rampants got all the runs they needed in the first inning pushing over three. They added two more in the second, three in the fifth and another pair in the sixth. Rose rapped out 11 hits, three of them doubles, while winning pitcher Jim McDermott gave only five. He fanned eight and walked three.

McDermott set the Pam-Pack down in order in the first. The Rampants then went to work getting all they needed. Robbie Cox led off with a walk. He moved up on a hit by J. C. Daniels and scored when Bill Lee reached on an error. Daniels and Lee came in on Stanley Cobb's single to right. Randy McKinney advanced Cobb with a double but they could not come across.

Washington loaded the bases in the top of the second. With one out, Joel Moore drew a free ticket. Walks to Josh Hardison and Sammy Bullock filled the seats but McDermott fanned the next two batters retiring the side.

In their half of the frame, McDermott reached for the Rampants on a walk and went to second on a passed ball. He moved to third when Cox beat out an infield hit. Daniels lofted a long fly to right field scoring McDermott and a foul pop-up by Lee scored Cox.

The Pam-Pack put a pair of runners on in the third as Wayne Woolard and Harry Meredith each got singles. The next batter grounded out to end the frame. They put a man on in the fourth, also, on a hit, but again could not score.

The Rampants put a man on in the third and two in the fourth but failed to bring them across.

Rose did add three in the next inning, however. With two out, David Clifton got a hit and Jerry Griffin doubled driving in Clifton. McDermott was safe on an error that scored Griffin. Mike Reilly drew a walk. Daniels knocked a single into right to bring in McDermott but was caught as he tried to stretch his single into a double.

Joel Moore got a hit for Washington in the sixth but died at first as the next two batters went down swinging. Rose added the finishing touches in the bottom of the inning, getting the ninth and tenth runs. Cobb was awarded first base, getting hit by a pitch. John Barwick grounded to the shortstop who played the ball to second trying to get Cobb. The second baseman was late getting to the bag and both runners were safe.

Robert Brinkley blooped a hit into right-center that scored Cobb and put Barwick on third. Clifton brought in Barwick as he reached on an error. Brinkley went to third on the play and a few minutes later the Rampants tried the double steal but Brinkley was caught in a rundown off third base.

Daniels had a pair of hits for Rose, and Cobb went three-for-three. McKinney, Harding Sugg, and Griffin each had a double.

Rose is at home Friday hosting Bertie at Guy Smith Stadium at 4 p.m.

Allen, White Sox Are Unable To Reach Terms

By HERSCHEL NISSESON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Richie Allen wants to be known as Dick but his name may be mud before he ever puts on a Chicago White Sox uniform.

The controversial slugger, who spent 1969 in Philadelphia, 1970 in St. Louis and 1971 in Los Angeles, lasted all of 15 minutes with the White Sox Tuesday.

Allen whizzed in and out of a brief meeting with General Manager Stu Holcomb at the Sox' Sarasota, Fla., spring training headquarters. He showed up 23 days late, turned down an estimated $125,000 contract, asked to be traded and said he was "going home to mother."

"We had a pleasant discussion, but he just wants more than we will pay," reported Holcomb, who traded pitcher Tommy John and infielder Steve Huntz to the Dodgers for Allen during the off-season.

"There is no way at this stage we would free him to deal with another club.

"One of his complaints was that over the last few years in St. Louis and Los Angeles he was just being used as a gate attraction to sell tickets. He felt it would be the same way in Chicago."

Holcomb said he told Allen: "We want you as a player and for nothing else. I told him he would be with a professional club that was a good one, that it wasn't a bunch of misfits.

The next move is up to him. I don't plan to try and contact him any more."

That sort of left matters at an impasse, because Allen left the Sox' hotel carrying a suitcase and said: "We're miles apart. Nowhere close. I'm not going to talk to Holcomb anymore. There's no use."

With three-hit pitching like the White Sox got from Stan Bahnsen and two relievers in Tuesday's 4-0 exhibition victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, who needs Allen?

And according to the Texas Rangers, no one needs Frank Howard, either. The large slugger returned his estimated $100,000 contract unsigned and owner Bob Short said, "That's it as far as the Rangers are concerned."

"We've exhausted all avenues of trade for Howard," manager Ted Williams disclosed. "No one apparently needs his services."

Home runs are Howard's department and the Rangers got them from Lenny Randle and Elliott Maddox but still dropped a 6-5 decision to the Baltimore Orioles, who got a three-run shot from rookie Jim Fuller.

The Chicago Cubs scored all their runs in a wild third inning—Ron Santo contributed his second spring homer and a two-run double—and defeated Oakland 7-4. Eleven of the Cubs' 15 hits came off Catfish Hunter.

Slick-fielding Bud Harrelson committed two costly errors—each permitted a run to score—and the Cincinnati Reds edged the New York Mets 4-3. The New York Yankees dropped a 5-4 decision to Montreal when Mike Marshall put down a ninth-inning uprising.

Mickey Stanley belted a two-run inside-the-park homer and an RBI triple and Ike Brown also homered as the Detroit Tigers downed the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-5. California edged San Francisco 5-4 on Bruce Christensen's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning.

Reggie Smith hit a two-run homer in Boston's 10-5 trouncing of Houston. Steve Carlton hurled five strong innings—one run, two hits—as Philadelphia turned back Kansas City 7-4.

Larry Stahl singled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning of San Diego's 3-1 triumph over Milwaukee. George Stone, Jimmy Freeman and Russ Dillon scattered six hits as Atlanta shaded Minnesota 3-1.

The Tokyo Lotte Orions of the Japanese League scored four runs in the eighth inning—the winner crossed on third baseman Kurt Bevacqua's error—and nipped Cleveland 4-3.

Oak City Downs Panthers, 8-3

BETHEL — Oak City High School held off North Pitt High School yesterday to take an 8-3 victory and avenge a loss to the Panthers last week.

It was the second game for each team and evened their records out at 1-1. North Pitt won the first game between the two, 7-3.

Oak City pushed into the lead in the third inning, gaining a run. William Dolberry walked and Billy Rose also got a free pass to first. Marty Smith then singled to drive in Dolberry for a 1-0 lead.

Oak City padded its lead in the fifth, scoring twice for a 3-0 lead. But they broke it open in the sixth, coming up with five big runs.

In the sixth, Dolberry again got a walk and Willie Baker singled. Rose got another hit, scoring Dolberry. Ross and Baker then each stole up a base, putting runners on second and third. Ronald Duggins singled to drive in both runners, then stole second.

Smith got the fourth straight single, scoring Duggins. Smith moved up on an out, and then scored the final run on a hit by Milton Baker, making it 8-0.

North Pitt managed to come up with three runs in the bottom of the frame, but Oak City cut off the rally before it got too far gone.

Duggins, Smith, Milton Baker and Ken Spivey each had two hits for the Trojans, while Ken Tetterton and Steve Fuchs had two each for North Pitt.

Relief Pitchers May Help Twins

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Bill Rigney got the relief he wanted.

Now, he feels all the Minnesota Twins have to do is recapture a winning attitude in the American League. But there are still many "ifs" surrounding the 1972 season.

If the Twins stumble as badly as they did last year—from West Division champions two years running to fifth place—Rigney may find himself on vacation before October.

Calvin Griffith, in addition to trading shortstop Leo Cardenas to California for reliever Dave LaRoche and pitcher Tom Hall to Cincinnati for reliever Wayne Granger, brought up long-term minor league manager Ralph Rowe to the Minnesota coaching staff.

The last time Griffith called up one of his longtime minor league skippers, Sam Mele was on the way out and Cal Ermer soon stepped in.

"The biggest thing we've got to recapture is the winning attitude," says Rigney. "This is a winning club and there's no reason it can't return to the top."

The reasons may rest in the health of home run slugger, Harmon Killebrew, now No. 7 on the all-time home run list, and Tony Oliva, the three-time batting champion.

Killebrew, who will be 36 this season, will be used mostly at first base to prevent strain on his legs. Still, he must avoid a recurring injury to his right foot.

Oliva played more than two months on a gimpy right knee which required surgery in September of last year after his .337 average assured him of the Silver Bat.

Rod Carew and Cesar Tovar were the other Twins above .300, Tovar at .311 and Carew at .307 with an explosive finish.

One of the most pressing concerns in spring training was the double play, both offensively and defensively.

The Twins grounded into 158 last year.

And with Cardenas gone, there was a question as to who would take over at shortstop. Danny Thompson, the leading candidate, was kept out of the field most of last year with a sore throwing arm.

With Killebrew at first, there's an open race for third base among rookies Eric Soderholm and Mike Brooks and veteran Rick Renick. Tovar also could move in from left field.

Jim Nettles, Jim Holt, Charlie Manuel, Bobby Darwin, Steve Brye and Mike Adams are hungry for outfield spots. Rich Reese, Killebrew's backup, also could be sent after fly balls.

Pirates In Spring Drills

East Carolina University's gridders opened spring drills on Monday, and are working every day this week to get a good start of the 20 allowable days they can work prior to the spring game. This year, the Bucs know the system, and can work on things other than the fundamentals for Coach Sonny Randle, who begins his second year at the head coaching position. This year, the Bucs will not play an inter-squad game for the conclusion of drills, but will meet a group of alumni. (Reflector Photo)

Duane Thomas Finally Talks— And He's Got A Lot To Say

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

DALLAS (AP) — "I'm going to be my own man," Duane Thomas said. "I'm not going to beg for something I worked for. I am optimistic. But if they don't dig me, well, the hell with 'em."

The normally mysterious, tight-lipped running star of the champion Dallas Cowboys took a long, hard look at his controversial role in professional football today—and talked about it.

He talked freely. "I almost reached the point of putting an end to my career," he said.

The man who has been uncommunicative for months and became known as "The Sphinx" unburdened himself of the frustrations, misunderstandings and disillusionments that can beset a naive black athlete coming out of the ghetto into the wheeling and dealing world of big time sports.

It was an exclusive interview with The Associated Press—the first such interview since well before this 6-1, 220-pound powerhouse from Dallas' tough South Side had helped carry the Cowboys through a championship season and to a 24-3 victory over the Miami Dolphins in the Super Bowl.

"Football's not the only job in the world," he added. "If I have to go back from scratch and build over again and go into something else, okay, then it has to be that."

The interview took place in the neat, suburban home of Thomas' former coach at Dallas' Lincoln High School, Floyd Iglehart, one of the few people he trusts. Also on hand was Al Tabor, Iglehart's coach at Wiley College. Duane insisted that his two friends be present.

Thomas talked in a low, subdued voice. He proved not only articulate but even eloquent at times. Yet his words carried the ring of disillusionment. Obviously, he felt he was a man who had been discriminated against, lied to and cheated to the point that he had little trust left for anyone.

Thomas said his months of silence were self-imposed and not traceable to any outside source, such as former Cleveland great Jim Brown, as had been reported.

"It's not that I have anything against reporters," he explained. "I just don't like people because of their being narrow-minded on things."

The powerfully built half-back, still speaking in a low key, said he felt he received unfair criticism because of his long silence.

"You know, it takes different people to make up the world," he added. "There are some guys on the team who enjoy meeting the press, who get a kick out of being before a television camera. But not me. Because of my background, I don't particularly dig it."

"I didn't feel like talking. So I didn't talk. If I read the Constitution right, it gives me freedom to do as I please. There's no stipulation that says if you play football you have to talk. I don't get paid for talking. I get paid to play football."

For this reason, Thomas said he was disturbed by a statement attributed to Dallas coach Tom Landry after the Super Bowl that Thomas would have to change his attitude if he hoped to play with the Cowboys.

"If he said that, I think it is unfair-dishonest," Thomas said. "There is nothing wrong with my attitude. My attitude is a winning attitude."

"I never go around and complain about him (Landry) not talking."

One of Thomas' problems with the Dallas administration has concerned his contract, which is well below that of other super stars in the National Football League—and none in the Dallas football hierarchy denies super star status.

Yet, according to a source close to Thomas (he declines to elaborate on money matters), Duane signed a three-year contract with base pay of only $20,000 to be raised only to $22,000 next season, the third year of the agreement.

According to friends, Thomas not only was committed to an inferior contract but was persuaded to sign over power of attorney to his agent, who later was dismissed. Thomas, whose mother and father had died while he was in college and whose two brothers suffered accidents and costly ailments, found himself entrenched in debt and with a restricted source of income.

Although he blames the agent rather than the Dallas front office for this financial plight, it was undoubtedly this pressure which provoked Duane's unusual press conference last July in which he called Gil Brandt, the Cowboys player personnel director a "lair" and Coach Landry "a plastic man."

"When I signed with the Cowboys, Brandt put his arm around my shoulder and said, 'Don't worry, we'll take care of you,'" Thomas related.

"It was the middle of last season that I found out I had a poor contract. I went to Brandt and asked him to renegotiate. I knew they had torn up contracts before. But he had lost all memory."

"I went to Schramm (Tex Schramm, General manager). He said, 'Sorry, boy, you're stuck.' I figured they didn't dig me. I wasn't the stereotype passing type of nigger who comes in and says, 'Please, Mr. White Man, do this for me.'"

Then came the mid-season trade to the New England Patriots. "I wish you had been with me just to see the expression on their faces," Thomas said. "It was as if they had been pre-conditioned for me."

"They didn't even send all my records up there. The coach (John Mazur) told me to take a three-point stance. That was just a little tribute they wanted. "It didn't make any difference. I was a running back. It made no difference if I had done the job on my eyebrows. Three days later they came to me and told me to leave."

Thomas came home a more embittered man. That's when he entered into his shell.

"They're trying to brainwash and castrate a person's life," he said. "I said, 'If this is happening to me, whom they consider a super star, can you imagine what those other guys are going through?'"

Tar Heels Must Control Boards

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dean Smith, coach of the North Carolina basketball team, says that South Carolina has great strength on the boards and "we must work this week in practice on positioning ourselves for rebounds."

The teams meet Thursday night in Morganton, W. Va., in an Eastern Regional NCAA Tournament game.

Smith said at a news luncheon Tuesday that the sixth-ranked Gamecocks are "a better South Carolina team than the one we faced last year. They move the ball better and look more for the inside shots."

South Carolina beat the Tar Heels by one point last year in the last seconds of the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament finals. The Gamecocks are independent this year while North Carolina, No. 2 in the nation, has won the ACC chamionship.

South Carolina has 7-foot Danny Traylor and 6-foot-10 Tom Riker. The tallest North Carolina player is 6-foot-9 Robert McAdoo, who won the outstanding player trophy in the recent ACC tournament.

Eddie Fogler, who scouted South Carolina in its NCAA first-round victory over Temple last Saturday, said that this year South Carolina "plays more as a team."

"Last year, John Roche would hold the ball. Now, everyone is getting the ball and a chance to score. Kevin Joyce is a super player. He shoots well and rebounds like a 6-foot-7 man." Joyce is 6-foot-3.

North Carolina forward Dennis Wuycik, who attended the luncheon, said last year's loss to South Carolina "has been on our minds, but I don't know if this will be good or bad."

Squires Roll Without Charlie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Great Scott! The Virginia Squires scored 156 points without Charlie.

With Charlie Scott out in Phoenix ready to join the Suns of the National Basketball Association, the Squires rolled over the hapless Pittsburgh Condors 156-133 to highlight Tuesday night's ABA action.

Elsewhere, Denver whipped Indiana 123-106 and Dallas downed Carolina 113-105. Bernie Williams and Odie Smith took up the slack for the missing Scott with 23 and 18 points respectively, while rookie Julius Erving and second-year man George Irvine scored 27 apiece. It was Irvine's career high.

Fatty Taylor added 18 and Willie Sojourner 16 in the best balanced attack the Squires have shown this season.

Denver reeled off nine straight points during a two-minute stretch in the first period and Indiana never caught up. Ralph Simpson had 30 points and nine assists and lanky lefty Dave Robisch had 28 points, 17 rebounds and five assists to help the Rockets snap a five-game losing streak.

Dallas held off Carolina behind Donnie Freeman's 32 points, although the Cougars sliced a 15-point deficit to three midway through the final period. Rich Jones added 24 and Steve Jones 22 for the winners while Joe Caldwell was high for Carolina with 24.

Boston Close To Winning First Divisional Crown In Six Years

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quick! How many National Basketball Association divisional championships have the Boston Celtics won in the past six seasons.

None. That's right. Incredible as it may seem, the Celts, who have won three NBA titles in that same stretch, have had to do it in come-from-behind fashion, so to speak, after finishing less than best in the regular season.

But that drought, extending back to 1964-65, which ended a string of nine successive divisional titles, is about to end, thanks in part to John Havlicek.

The 6-foot-5 forward, who became Boston's all-time leading scorer just last Sunday, pumped in 38 points Tuesday night to power the Celtics to a 124-110 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

That kept them 5½ games ahead of second-place New York in the Atlantic Division and within two victories—or two Knicks defeats—of locking up the division crown.

In Tuesday night's other NBA games, the Knicks defeated Atlanta 115-107, Los Angeles beat Detroit 129-116, Buffalo held off Philadelphia 108-105, Cleveland whipped Baltimore 127-118 in overtime, Seattle edged Chicago 115-111 and Milwaukee downed Portland 109-98.

The Celtics trailed until Havlicek's basket gave them a 59-57 halftime lead, then they poured it on against the Warriors.

Dave Cowens added 24 points for Boston while Nate Thurmond led Golden State with 35.

The Knicks put on a fourth-quarter tear, outscoring the Hawks 16-3 in a six-minute stretch, to win going away. Atlanta led 94-91 with seven minutes to play before falling apart.

Dick Barnett and Walt Frazier had 22 points apiece, Bill Bradley 21 and Dave DeBusschere 20 to lead New York's balanced attack. Walt Bellamy of the Hawks led everyone with 26.

The Lakers, winning their 29th road game of the season, broke Milwaukee's record set a year ago. And by winning their 63rd game over-all, they kept alive hopes of breaking Philadelphia's 1966-67 single-season victory total of 68. Los Angeles has seven to play.

The Pistons trailed the Lakers by 19 points early in the third quarter, then trimmed the deficit to two with nine minutes to go before Los Angeles, led by Jim McMillian's 30 points and Wilt Chamberlain's 28, outscored Detroit 18-9. Bob Lanier had 35 for the Pistons.

Buffalo also had to fight off a second-half rally to turn back the 76ers, who trailed by as many as 23 points before chopping the gap to just 103-102 with about two minutes to go.

But Elmore Smith, who had 33 points and 24 rebounds, and Bob Kauffman, who added 20 points, each scored baskets to seal the victory. Fred Carter had 26 for Philadelphia.

Austin Carr's 33 points topped Cleveland's scoring but it was Walt Wesley, canning eight points in overtime, that shot down the Bullets, paced by Archie Clark's 31 points.

Lee Winfield, subbing for injured Dick Snyder, came up with a 38-point performance against Chicago, moving the SuperSonics within a game of Golden State in the battle for the Pacific Division's runner-up playoff berth. Chet Walker, scored 37 for the Bulls.

Milwaukee's victory over Portland clinched the Midwest Division title for the Bucks with their 59th triumph in 76 starts. Kareem Abdul Jabbar topped Milwaukee with 36 points.

The Bucks broke the game open in the third period, outscoring the Trail Blazers 33-18 with Jabbar collecting 10 points in that quarter.

Jabbar also broke his own Milwaukee scoring record with his final field goal. His season total is 2,597 points.

Sidney Wicks was high for Portland with 28.

Royals To Move To Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Cincinnati, nee Rochester, Royals are "it" again in the latest round of musical sports franchises.

After 14 seasons in Cincinnati, the National Basketball Association club announced plans Tuesday to move to Kansas City for the 1972-73 season, spreading home games among St. Louis, Omaha and the Municipal Auditorium here.

The decision still awaits approval by the league. But Joe Axelson, the Royals executive vice president and general manager, said the team expects no difficulty in getting it since attendance at Cincinnati has averaged only about 3,500 per game.

However, in Cincinnati, the players said late Tuesday they will refuse to play if the team management splits home dates among the three cities.

Tom Van Arsdale, team captain, called the move "bush" and added, "The players are going to fight it."

Van Arsdale said he had advised National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy, through Players' Association attorney Larry Fleisher, of the possibility the players could "refuse to play next season."

The Royals said they would play 21 games in Kansas City and 10 home games in each of the other cities.

"None of us are happy," Van Arsdale said after a team meeting.

"Hey, you're never home, man," said center Sam Lacey.

Greek Islands Still 'Available'

By JOHN RIGOS
ATHENS (UPI)—For the man who has nearly everything, there are still Greek islands for sale.

It will be an expensive present, but not beyond the reach of today's well-paid executives, technocrats and businessmen.

The price range for Greek islands is between $10,000 and $3.5 million dollars, said Dimitrios Pazarlis, an Athens real estate agent who specializes in islands.

Pazarlis has a list of 30 islands for sale. Others are offered by owners.

One such owner, Theodore Kalamaras of Athens, has an island off the coast of southwestern Peloponnese, near Gargalianoi, ancestral birthplace of U.S. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

The island, named Proti, is a 1,000-acre piece of land covered with trees, a few hundred yards off the coast. The price: $450,000 dollars.

"It's owner can row to shore, drive to Gargalianoi, 20 minutes away, and play golf with Vice President Agnew—that is, if Agnew retires to his father's birthplace," said Kalamaras.

Pazarlis estimates that there are about 1,250 islands in the Aegean and Ionian seas which could be sold and developed into private estates or resorts. Most of these islands are state or community-owned. Many belong to the Greek Church, the largest landowner in Greece.

"Quite a few, however, are in private hands, either snapped up at auctions or awarded for services to the nation in the Greek War of Independence of 1821," said Pazarlis.

Their owners hardly thought much of them until a decade ago when Greek shipping magnates began setting up their private island empires.

Stavros Niarchos was the pioneer in that field. In 1959, he bought Spetsopoula, in the Aegean 50 miles south of Attica, and turned it into a game preserve, where royalty was annually invited to think out the bird and animal population.

Two of the most frequent guests were King Constantine and Queen Anne Marie of Greece who honeymooned there and nearly killed themselves driving one of the shipowner's jeeps.

Aristotle Onassis, then brother-in-law of Niarchos and his arch rival in shipping and business, followed suit on a larger scale. He bought Skorpios off the coast of northwest Greece for $87,000.

Onassis poured a lot of money into his island. He built villas, constructed a network of roads, established a harbor big enough for his 3,000-ton luxury yacht Christina, brought landscape experts for the planting of trees and flowers all around, and set up a small zoo—for the sake of the children of his second wife, the former Jacqueline Kennedy.

It was his wedding to Mrs. Kennedy in 1968 which made Skorpios the most interesting piece of island real estate in the world. Other Greek shipping families joined the trend and soon prices started soaring.

One prospective buyer, seven years ago, was ex-Empress Soraya of Iran, who was all set to buy Baou, off the picturesque island of Mykonos. The nuns who owned it, however, changed their minds before the deal was signed and Mykonos lost one more attraction.

The Beattles started inquiries about an island following an Aegean cruise four years ago, but when they started having trouble among themselves the whole matter was forgotten.

The latest name to be connected with the acquisition of an island was Jean Bedel Bokassa, president of the Central African Republic. When Bokassa visited Greece earlier this year, he fell in love with the sea and the islands and expressed the wish to obtain one.

Greek Deputy Premier Stylianos Pattakos offered government help for the fulfillment of Bokassa's wish.

But despite Pattakos' generous nature, Greece officially is against the idea of foreigners owning islands. Greek legislation considers islands as border areas and as such they cannot be owned by non-Greeks.

Pazarlis said there is a loophole. Foreigners can form a company with a Greek partner and buy the island that way. Or they can pay for a Greek friend to buy the island and then rent it from the friend for a long period.

For those who are interested, the cheapest island is Tourkonisi, a nine-acre chunk of land off the island of Paros in the southern Aegean, available for $10,000.

The most expensive is Pelagonissos, 4,200 acres, for $3.6 million, near the island of Skopelos in the northern Aegean.

The most historic: Patroclus Island off Sounion at the tailend of the Greek mainland. This is 1,000 acres for $2 million. It was the island used by the generals of Alexander the Great as a base while they fought each other for his succession after his death in 323 B.C.

Uganda Tries To Solve Huge People Problem

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Unless Ugandans can be persuaded to abate their sex lives, it will take 100 years before all their offspring can go to primary school. By then, according to the Ministry of Planning, Uganda's population would be about the same size as China's today.

Such is the extent of Uganda's people problem. It is not a problem which is unique to Uganda alone: most African countries have it to a lesser or, a greater degree.

Uganda is merely the first country on mainland Africa to publish a detailed study of the likely consequences of a continued high rate of population growth, and to start taking concrete steps to avert them.

According to the Planning Ministry, the government is to finance a nationwide program of family planning education to be carried out, in the first instance, by the Family Planning Association here.

Mobile Clinics
 The association will operate mobile clinics which it is hoped will reach the most remote rural areas. At the same time Health Ministry personnel will be trained to give advice on family planning to those who want it.

The program's target is to reduce the present 3.4 per cent annual rate of population growth to 3 per cent by 1979. The target is in fact more ambitious than it seems, for the ministry calculates that without control measures the growth rate would increase naturally to around 4 per cent by the end of this decade.

At this rate, the population would double every 18 years, passing the 700 million mark in the late 2070s. More than half the population, moreover, would be under the age of 15.

If the 3 per cent target can be achieved, Uganda should have universal primary education by the turn of the century. Universal adult literacy should be achieved at about the same time, and there should have been a significant improvement in national health services.

Control Policy's Foes
 With the present 3.4 per cent growth rate, no real improvement will be possible in health and education services over the next five years. The increase in the population, combined with rising costs, will fully absorb the government's planned investment.

Likewise real incomes—the average Ugandan's theoretical take-home pay—will rise only by 1.5 per cent, compared with 4.9 per cent if the population were constant.

Even so small a reduction in the rate of population growth as 0.4 per cent will have the effect of making real incomes grow 30 per cent faster than they would otherwise.

Despite the obvious advantages of a population control policy, it is expected to meet opposition from many Ugandans on customary, moral and religious grounds.

Joining Is Voluntary
 In some parts of the country the size of a man's family still helps to determine his social standing.

For this reason it is emphasized that participation in the program will be entirely voluntary, and that every care will be taken to ensure that no damage is done to "the culture and morals of our society."

"Government's main interest at this stage," said the Planning Ministry, "is to make people fully aware of the potential benefit of child spacing to their own family welfare, and to make available to those families who actually demand it, the means for regulating their sizes."

When the program ends in 1979, Uganda's next population census will take place. Its results are expected to provide a guide to the effectiveness of the control measures. If the target 3 per cent growth rate has not been achieved, more sweeping measures may be introduced in the 1980s. For the moment, a start has been made.

Guinea Pigs Are Status Switchers

CHICAGO (UPI) — Among four-legged animals the guinea pig may be the world's champion status switcher. This rodent, according to Encyclopedia Britannica, was discovered in South America shortly after Columbus' voyages and was brought to Europe as a source of meat.

Although they won the approval of connoisseurs, guinea pigs apparently could not compete against pork and beef. But their reproductive ability and other characteristics made them almost ideal for the medical and biological laboratory, and they now are regarded as among the world's most valued animals.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, 74, Refuses To Quit

By DONALD LAMBRO
WASHINGTON (UPI) — At 74, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith that her political enemies will make an issue of her age in her reelection campaign.

"I know I'm not young anymore, but I can't do anything about age," the nation's only woman U.S. senator said in a rare interview.

Looking like a graceful grandmother, Mrs. Smith described her health as "perfect." And despite two hip operations since 1968, she has been able to give up the cane and electric scooter she formerly used to get around the Capitol.

She follows a busy work schedule appropriate for the ranking Republican member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

She also is No. 2 Republican on the Aeronautical and Space Committee, No. 3 on the influential Appropriations Committee and No. 2 on the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

Ability Important

Smartly turned out in a pale blue suit, the ever-present rose pinned to her lapel, Mrs. Smith said, "I don't think age is important. What is important is your mind and your ability to do your job."

"Still, I'm sure my age will be raised by my opponents," Mrs. Smith announced Feb. 7 that she would seek a fifth six-year Senate term, ending months of speculation that she might retire.

She gave the idea serious consideration after the long-time administrative assistant, William C. Lewis Jr., suffered a heart attack last December.

Lewis has been the guiding force in her career and for nearly two weeks Mrs. Smith occupied a VIP suite at the hospital to be near him until he was out of danger.

"I hadn't thought about it (retirement) ... until Bill's illness," she said. "Then it sort of hit me. I gave it some pretty serious thought. It would have been unfair to burden him with another campaign."

But Lewis, 58, a bachelor, made a full recovery. "The doctor said he ... could go on as usual."

Still there were days when "I thought how nice it would be to retire," the senator said. "But I made up my mind that I should try again."

A Primary Challenge

Mrs. Smith is being challenged in the GOP primary by Robert A. G. Monks, a Cape Elizabeth, Maine, millionaire and political novice. The winner will face Rep. William D. Hathaway, a four-term House Democrat.

With Lewis calling signals, Mrs. Smith's campaign is expected to be low key. Typically, she will campaign weekends, remaining in Washington to maintain her extraordinary Senate attendance record.

"My official business here has top priority," she said.

The lady senator spent less than $9,800 on her first campaign in 1948 and never has spent much on getting elected by any standards.

"I've never paid people," she said. "People work for me because they believe in me." She does not accept individual contributions except a set sum from the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, which this year has set aside $10,000 for her use.

She plans to buy some radio and television time in addition to speaking around the state, "but we're still working out details."

Mrs. Smith becomes a bit irritated when critics charge she has "lost touch" with her Maine constituents, seldom returning home to see them.

"I do return to the state, regularly, but I don't get publicity on it," she said.

Returning Home

"For years I didn't miss a trip a month until my hip operation. Now I return to Maine on the average of once in six weeks, which is better than most senators."

She said she also answers "a very heavy mail" and keeps in touch with state problems by telephone.

Mrs. Smith carefully orchestrates her rare Senate speeches and occasional political blasts in a way that keep her image very much alive.

Last December, she attacked her colleagues for "Chronic absenteeism," proposing that members of Congress be expelled from office if they miss more than 40 per cent of a year's roll call votes.

In unusually blunt terms, Mrs. Smith said the Senate was filled with "moonlighters,"

"junkteteers" and presidential hopefuls who were more interested in their White House ambitions than in "doing the people's work."

She introduced a constitutional amendment to carry out her proposal although she does not expect the Senate to act on it anytime soon.

"The most I can hope for this year is arousing the public on the need to do something," she said. "If the public knew what was going on, then the Senate would create a better system."

As for "junktets," Mrs. Smith was not critical of Senators who travel at taxpayers' expense to obtain legitimate first-hand knowledge.

"There are two kinds of junkets, one to become informed, and one to have fun," she said. "Too many senators have taken the latter."

No Lectures

She was firm about speaking engagements.

"You can get $40,000 to $80,000 a year for lecturing or you can be here and attend to your Senate duties. You have to do one or the other."

As one who climbed the Senate's leadership ladder slowly, Mrs. Smith believes younger members are too eager to make their mark.

"These newer people resent seniority ... they aren't willing to discipline themselves, to learn their committee assignments."

Usually outspoken about most subjects, Mrs. Smith is more cautious on the topic of women's liberation.

While she is known privately to disagree with many women's lib tactics, she speaks favorably about their general goals.

"I see women as people, like everyone else," she said. "I have no objection to organization, but I think now we should be looking forward to building on women of achievement."

"The younger women coming along should be encouraged to follow in their footsteps. I would like to see more qualified women in the House and Senate."

Mrs. Smith voted against the administration on ABM expansion (SST) and the Supreme Court nominations of Clement Haynsworth and G. Harrold Carswell. But she believes President Nixon has done a "credible job" and supports his reelection.

"I'm not a rubber stamp," she said. "But I agree with him more often than not."

Sec. Of Labor Hodgson Dismisses Union Charges

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson, responding to union charges that his department is oriented more toward big business than American workers, says "That's a bunch of garbage."
Hodgson volunteered the remark during an interview with the Associated Press in which he defended President Nixon's record on labor affairs.
"I think you may have seen some of the stories in the labor press about this department being management-oriented. To me that's a bunch of garbage," said Hodgson, who has had a series of run-ins with George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO.
Hodgson, who miffed Meany by canceling a scheduled speech to the AFL-CIO convention in Miami Beach last November, said he hadn't intended a snub to the president of the 13.6 million member labor federation.

"I never snubbed organized labor or any person in it," said Hodgson, who canceled his speech after Nixon's cool reception by 1,000 labor delegates at the November meeting.
Hodgson said he was puzzled by labor criticism of the Nixon Administration's record on labor matters, which he said included new laws for the biggest improvement in unemployment pay in a decade, the nation's first federal health and safety law and plans for a new law to protect and improve workers' pensions.
Hodgson also said that former Teamsters President James R. Hoffa, freed from prison after Nixon commuted his sentence, had better "stay out of the union business."
Excerpts from the interview:
Q: This Administration is sort of taking its lumps from organized labor on things like unemployment and wage controls. What is your response?

A: We feel that we've been building a record of accomplishment that shows that we have intense concern for the American worker and we have been attempting to establish a record of fairness to organized labor ...
A: What about relations with organized labor?
A: ...If one were to go back and examine much of the labor press (newspapers published by labor unions) at the time before the election in 1968, there were horror stories about the kind of anti-labor legislation that could be expected. That has not occurred ... We have chosen to work with, rather than around or against organized labor ... We did this on the Pay Board by bringing organized labor ... in on a tripartite basis. We did it in the construction industry ... where we worked with the building trades unions and management of the construction industry to set up a wage stabilization activity with a great deal of success ...

Q: What about the criticism that the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee is granting much larger wage increases?
A: I think you can pick out individual wage increases from either the Construction committee or the Pay Board and question them but both organizations have had to recognize that there are equity considerations there as well as considerations of inflation control that they have to wrestle with.
And there will be—particularly for the year 1971 ... for which the Construction committee has been issuing decisions—a number of wage increases above the guidelines.

But the fact is that board has brought the level of wage increases down from a level of about 16 per cent to about 10 per cent and they're continuing to bring it down ...
Q: Is it possible to see at this point a time in which the controls will be removed?
A: It is possible to see that there will be such a time. Clearly, that's the objective. But when that time will be, again only time can tell simply because we don't know how long it's going to take to get ... where we can say we have reached ... our objective of cutting inflation in half.
We should not only have inflation cut in half, bring it down to that 2 or 3 per cent or year, but make sure that it's cut in half and a new climate is established where if controls are taken off it'll not start going right back up again ... and when we reach that time, off they'll go ...

Q: There's been speculation that the President might choose to do something dramatic on the controls before the November election; do you foresee any major change in the controls?
A: The only thing I can say about that is this President will respond to the needs of the time ... I think you can expect that the President will take whatever action the circumstances dictate at the time, but I have no indication that there is any planned action ...
Q: On the relations with organized labor, the AFL-CIO doesn't seem to be too happy with this Administration.
A: It's a kind of puzzling circumstance in one way. Probably we've never had more things that we're working with organized labor on—that's all organized labor ... —than right now ...
Q: You were not asked to (talk to the AFL-CIO Executive Council at its recent meeting in Miami Beach. Mr. Meany indicated that you had sort of snubbed them in November by not showing up for a speech. What's behind all that?)

A: The President came to Miami with me as you know and I had a 15-minute speech prepared to give to the AFL-CIO. I'd seen the President's speech. My speech was all designed to say we've got an important thing going in the stabilization effort ... Let's get together and make it work.
Well, that's exactly what the President told them and so when it was over I called Mr. Meany's office ... He was out at the time. I talked with his secretary and told her I didn't see any purpose in going forward with it and she said she would convey that to Mr. Meany.
I then asked Bill Usery (assistant secretary of Labor) to seek out Mr. Meany and tell him that, and he did, and Mr. Meany's response was, "That's probably best." And so I didn't see there was significance there. It was certainly not a snub on my part. I never snubbed organized labor or any person in it ... and I don't intend to.

I've been trying to continue the kind of policy we've had ever since we've been here, which is one of fairness and maximum working with, rather than around them or against them ...

Some Litter Is Kept In Motion

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some litter is in perpetual motion and just won't go away.

The Litter Letter of the National Council of State Garden Clubs calls this "perpetual litter." The letter says much town and city litter is swept from sidewalks into streets; it is shortly returned to sidewalks by wind and passing traffic.

Actual tests have shown that some litter items make the trip back and forth as many as 15 times before they are picked up by power sweepers or are placed in a street sweeper's cart.

Plans Mapped By Pitt YDC

Members of the Young Democratic Club of Pitt County met Monday night at the home of Sonny McLawhorn to shape up future plans in this election year.

Among issues discussed were those of a big social event planned for April 11. Election of officers are slated on that date as part of a dinner meeting. Installation of officers will take place on May 3.

At the Monday night meeting, Carl Darden was named to head the club's Membership Drive Committee. It was also disclosed that an invitation has been issued to a presidential candidate to appear in Greenville as guest of the Young Democratic Club.

Ponder Rewards For Cop-Killers

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—A bill that would award $25,000 to persons furnishing information leading to the arrest and conviction of police killers is under consideration in the Michigan legislature.

"While every murder is both senseless and tragic, the deliberate killing of a policeman is particularly offensive," said the sponsor of the legislation, Sen. Patrick McCollough. "It represents an attack not only upon one man, but the entire system of citizen protection."

ALWAYS U

A MAJOR BREAK-THROUGH FOR THE HOME AND INDUSTRY!

Fire detection is available now at a much lower cost than ever before. Good fire protection costs not $600, not $300 but less than $230 for the average home!

Consider these two cases: Family No. 1 had life insurance, auto insurance and fire insurance; but nothing to warn them when fire struck. They were lost; their insurance couldn't replace their lives.

Family No. 2 had a fire. Their home and belongings were destroyed. Their insurance replaced their lost items. Most importantly, they are still alive and enjoying life because they had adequate fire protection!

Teacher Urged Roles In Govm't

By LYNNE OLSON Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — When Utah Rep. Isaac Humphrey taught social studies in high school, he urged his students to become actively involved in government. At least six followed his advice.
Four of Humphrey's former students now serve with the elderly, silver-haired legislator in the Utah House of Representatives. A fifth former pupil is Utah Secretary of State Clyde Miller, and a sixth, Melton Weilmann, directs Utah's development service department.
Humphrey taught American history, government and economics for more than 40 years in Salt Lake City high schools before his election to the state legislature eight years ago.
He declines to reveal his age because "it may scare people away from voting for me again."
Humphrey says he's proud, but not surprised, that so many of his former students have become active in state politics and government.
"The biggest weakness we have in government, especially in state and local government, is not enough people participating," he says. "Too many people who complain about government don't do anything about it."
"I encouraged my students not only to vote, but to become active in government, especially on the local level."
To stimulate such involvement, Humphrey remembers, he organized some of his classes into mock legislatures which wrote, debated and passed bills.
Humphrey, who was active in Democratic state politics throughout his teaching career, says his students never knew whether he was a Republican or a Democrat.
"I wanted them to be open-minded. I didn't want to influence them with my personal leanings," he says, pointing to the fact that two of his former students in the legislature are Republicans and the other two are Democrats.

Houston Bridge Said Too Low In Bank Cards

HOUSTON, Texas (UPI)—An $18.5 million bridge over the ship channel of Houston has been declared a hazard to navigation and a mistake in judgment by the port's chief engineer, Richard P. Leach.
"A ship could sink or the bridge could be dislodged," said Leach.
When the final steel girders were locked into place a vertical clearance of 135 feet remained. Leach said the clearance should be at least 150 feet. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers authorized present clearances despite requests from port officials for more liberal clearances in the early 1960s, Leach said.
So reports the research firm of Arthur D. Little, Inc., which predicts the number of card-holding households is expected to grow by 25 per cent in the next five years and sales volume will increase by 200 to 300 per cent.

The Worry Clinic Farmers Know Profit Concept

Alex explains why the South is gaining thousands of new industries at the expense of Michigan and New England. For it offers two special types of climate. And the second one outlined below even beats that which the weatherman predicts!

"And these operators of little farms have the viewpoint of management."

"For running a farm is much like conducting a grocery or other private firm, for the owner must keep books and at the end of the year compute his 'net' profit (if there is any)."

"These men thus have a broader concept of American business, so they realize that profits of a large corporation are lucky to reach 5 percent."

"But in Detroit and other northern cities, the workers have never had to keep books or run their own little business, farm or office."

"So they take home their full profit (if there is any)."

pay check without having to balance books and find if there is any 'net.'

"Lacking this businessman's viewpoint, they get excited when they read that their Michigan firm's gross sales are $50,000,000."

"For they are so ignorant of business costs they tend to think the stockholders thus pocket all that $50,000,000."

"Actually, after costs of union wages, materials, taxes, depreciation of plant, insurance, etc., are debited, that $50,000,000 may not even be 3 percent dividends on the stockholders' invested capital."

"And if the latter draw 5 percent, that's par for the course nowadays, even in inflated dollars!"

"So our workers in the South have a kinder attitude toward management, since they formerly conducted little private businesses of their own, as farms or small retail-shops."

"And this psychological climate even beats the milder weather of the South."

"That's a big reason why hundreds of Michigan firms have set up branch plants down here and some have even moved their main offices, too!"

Industrial "Climate" Industrial "climate" is becoming a major factor in the location of new plants.

The South has thus been raiding New England, as well as Michigan, because there is a more sympathetic attitude between workers who have formerly operated a farm or retail store.

They realize vividly from sad experience that "gross" sales are not "net!"

Alas, the usual salaried worker and union wage earner miss this vital training in our "free enterprise" system.

The bidding:

3 NT Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠ South was confronted with an awkward bidding problem in today's hand. The first three calls were rather routine, but over North's rebid of one spade, South had several choices—none of which was entirely satisfactory.

He could have jumped to three spades, but the lack of a fourth trump argued against a direct raise of partner's second bid suit. If spades do not divide three-three, a seven card trump suit might prove too awkward to manage.

South might have jumped to three hearts on the second round, but his six card suit was headed by a mere nine spot. He compromised by jumping to two no trump and altho his hand was admittedly unbalanced, he did have two stoppers in the unbid suit. When North carried on to three no trump, South chose to battle it out on those grounds.

West opened the four of diamonds, the five was played from dummy and East put in the ten which won the trick. Inasmuch as he could not profitably continue the suit without establishing a second stopper for declarer, East shifted to a heart. West put up the ace and returned the three of diamonds. South played North's six and East's eight held as declarer discarded a heart. The queen of diamonds was returned to dislodge the ace.

The king of hearts was cashed, however when West showed out—discarding a spade—declarer had to give up on the establishment of that suit. He proceeded to run the spades and on the fourth round, East was obliged to part with the ten of hearts in order to retain his protection in clubs.

South had six tricks in four spades, one heart, and one diamond. A club was led from the dummy and when East followed with the deuce, declarer successfully finessed the queen. He exited with a heart putting East on lead with the jack and the latter was left with only the king-ten of clubs.

North retained the jack-five of clubs while South was left with the ace-eight. East was displayed and the forced club return permitted declarer to score the fulfilling tricks in the suit. The defense was restricted to two hearts and two diamonds on the deal.

Illinois Wildlife Just Disappearing

CHICAGO (AP) — Wildlife is disappearing before the very eyes of conservation men in Illinois, the Prairie State.

Henry N. Barkausen, director of the Illinois Department of Conservation, says the department has created a new concept of protecting original tracts of land as nature preserves for vegetation and wildlife.

"We have a good example of this interdependency on 410 acres of rejuvenated farm ground in Jasper and Marion counties," Barkausen said at a meeting of the Illinois Nature Preserve Commission.

"They are the home of Illinois' remaining prairie chickens. The lands now are considered nature preserves."

The management of the preserve is under the joint supervision of the Department of Conservation and the Illinois Natural History Survey.

In addition to the disappearing prairie chicken, the commission has compiled a list of animals that are becoming increasingly rare.

Fish, some 31 species, are in trouble in the state. An example of dwindling numbers is the alligator gar in southern Illinois. The chorus frog, one of 12 amphibians, is on the list of rare species headed for extinction. Fifteen species of reptiles are feeling the pinch of pollution and stream management. Forty-six bird species rapidly are disappearing, with the upland plover's plight leading the trend to extinction.

White, Militant And Republican

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Leroy Gibson is a Republican by convenience, a militant by philosophy and a white man by birth. He's using the combination to run for governor as a segregationist "for the benefit of all people, black and white." "Working with people and getting them together, and building a future for our children, is that I'm after," the 41-year-old Jacksonville insurance salesman said in an interview. Gibson, one of four contenders for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, holds an unknown, untested strength in the May 6 primary. His only prior political campaign, for Congress, was unsuccessful. Since then, however, he has built up a potentially strong following as founder and, until recently, president of the Rights of White People organization.

The size of ROWP's membership is not known, but it is reported to have mounted forces of up to 2,000 persons—many of them armed—during racial unrest in Wilmington and Ayden during the last year.

Gibson refuses to discuss the organization's membership, other than to say "we are prepared for any event that might arise. For use to organize and not be prepared would be stupidity."

The race issue is the prime factor in Gibson's low key and, for the most part, unpublicized campaign for governor.

His main point is the public school and forced busing to achieve racial balance. He wants "to return all public schools to neighborhood control" by executive order from the governor.

"I have a plan that I cannot bring out at this time because they would try to block it. I will personally give the order and within 60 days after I move into office we will return to neighborhood schools or freedom of choice, wherever the people want to go," Gibson said.

"It will be the neighborhood concept, exactly what we had before," he said. "If it was good enough before, why not now?"

Gibson said busing of children would have no place in his plan. "We'll bus the teachers if necessary, but we'll not bus the school children. That's only logical. When you go to work, you go to the factor, the factory doesn't go to you."

He claims support from all races.

"Technically I am a segregationist," Gibson said. "I am white and I would do nothing to tear my race apart, but I know that a majority of the black people want their neighborhood schools back. They cannot come out openly because the leadership that's over them keeps pushing them down."

Gibson theorizes that, "If we don't return schools to the neighborhood concept, there's going to be one of the biggest revolutions America has ever seen."

Other points in his gubernatorial platform include:

—"We will have law and order because I intend as governor to build a special bus with my office in it and, when there's trouble, I'll put all my key people in it and go there. They won't have to call me."

—"I'll take all these filthy books out of the school system, especially the one by Eldridge Cleaver, and we'll substitute the Bible in there."

—"Welfare is due for a definite overhauling. If you're able to work, then you work. If you're not able to work, then you should have enough to live on. If you can work, no one should give you a dime."

—"We'll get more industry. By having all this other taken care of, we can actually bring in industry without any trouble."

He foresees no need for higher taxes because "my administration would be more efficient. We could save a tremendous amount of money—look at the thousands and thousands of dollars we can save on busing alone, and on the maintenance of school property that's being torn up now."

Gibson describes himself as a former Democrat, a conservative and "a statesman" in the same vein as Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

"I call myself a statesman because I work for the people, not for myself. I earn my own living and when it's over with I can say I didn't beat anybody out of time or money," Gibson said.

Crewcut and vocal about his 20 years with the Marine Corps, Gibson says he is seeking the vote of the working man. "They're the ones who are fed up, whose rights have been given away," he said.

"It's a poor man's campaign, appealing to the working class of people. My wife is my campaign manager and I have key people in several towns. They all work for nothing."

Gibson expects support from the ROWP, especially in Eastern North Carolina and in cities such as Winston-Salem and Asheville.

But, he says, ROWP would not be needed in North Carolina if he wins election.

A TWIG IS BORN... In these early March days when the sun warms the earth, the yearly miracle of billions of new twigs emerging takes place. On countless shrubs and trees, tender new growth begin its outward journey into the open air. From all appearances, the twig pictured here seems to like the sun and air after having lain dormant beneath its mother's bark all winter. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

"We needed a force to go in and look out for white people, strictly making sure that justice comes to white people. But if I'm elected governor we will not need ROWP in this particular state because I'll make sure we have law and order," Gibson said.

LEROY GIBSON

Jury For Angela Davis Chosen For Long Trial

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — With surprising speed, a jury has been selected and sworn for the trial of black militant Angela Davis. She is charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in the 1970 San Rafael Courthouse shootout in which a judge and three others were killed.

Her attorneys say they accepted an all-white jury because there was no chance of getting a black juror on the panel.

Prosecutor Albert Harris Jr., noting that the panel of eight women and four men includes a Mexican-American, labeled it as a totally untrue defense charges that the state would accept only an all-white jury.

Both sides surprised newsmen and court spectators Tuesday by accepting a jury after only nine days of jury selection. The attorneys had predicted earlier that the job would take five or six weeks—and the defense had questioned whether it would ever find 12 people to determine Miss Davis' guilt or innocence.

Miss Davis, a Communist party member, faced the men and women who will judge her and announced the defense's acceptance of the panel. She said:

"Although I cannot say that this is a jury of my peers, after much discussion we have reached the conclusion that the women and men sitting on this jury will put forth their best efforts to give me a fair trial."

Harris then announced the prosecution's acceptance of the panel. He said later that both sides had agreed to accept the jury during a private 45-minute session in the chambers of Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arnason.

Immediately after Arnason swore in the jurors, the attorneys started the process of selecting four alternates. This is expected to take the rest of the week.

Testimony and opening statements could begin as early as next Monday, but court sources indicated they may be delayed until March 27 to give attorneys additional preparation time. The trial is expected to last four months.

The jury is composed primarily of a middle-age working people. The youngest juror is a 22-year-old collection clerk, the oldest a retired librarian in her late 60s.

Santa Clara County had sent questionnaires to more than 5,000 prospective jurors for possible service at Miss Davis' trial. The 12 seated were chosen from the first panel of 150 called.

Employed By Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Randy Eastwood of Rt. 5, Greenville, has been employed by the town of Winterville as a waste water treatment plant operator. Hired under the Emergency Employment Act, Eastwood will be trained to grade two waste water treatment plant operator. Grade two is the grade required to operate the Winterville facility.

Eastwood, a 1968 graduate of Stokes-Pactolus High School, began work at the Winterville plant Monday.

He served in the U.S. Army for nearly three years and was stationed at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, during most of his tour of duty.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Eastwood of Rt. 5, Greenville, Eastwood will attend a session in May offered by the Institute of Government, Chapel Hill, on waste treatment operation.

He is currently working with employees at the Greenville Utilities Commission disposable plant to receive training.

Evangelist To Conduct Revival Starting Monday

GRIFTON—Evangelist Bobby Jackson will conduct revival services at the Grifton Free Will Baptist Church beginning Monday night.

The services will continue through Sunday, March 26, and will start nightly at 7:30. Special singing has been planned for the services.

A native of Wilson, Jackson graduated summa cum laude from Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tenn. He received his M.A. degree from Bob Jones University, Greenville, S. C.

As an author, he contributes frequently to religious publications. Jackson has released three record albums. A nursery will be provided during the revival services.

Revival Set March 19-22

A revival will be held March 19-22 at Greenville Church of Christ, Greenville Blvd. at Emerson Rd.

Speaker for the services will be Jack Hilliard, a Tennessee native who is pastor of a church in Jellico, Tenn. Hilliard has toured the Holy Lands and has lectured and shown slides on the area since 1966.

He will have an outline book published this summer and is presently working on a book in the area of Christian family relationships.

Services will be held each night at 7:30 p.m. except Sunday, when services will be held at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Minister of the church is Mike Brooks.

Chicod elementary pupils hosted their local PTA last week with an art show and tumbling exhibition.

Principal Charles Johnson welcomed the crowd of more than 100 and urged them to support the Chicod school.

The school gym, where the meeting was held, was filled with student art work, from drawings to hand-made kites.

A group of eight grade physical education students put on a tumbling exhibition, under the leadership of teacher Bruce Gray.

George Wheeler, football coach at D. H. Conley High School, had some remarks about the high school athletic program. He told parents that he looks forward to teaching and coaching their youngsters.

Wheeler announced plans for a player and cheerleader clinic to be held later this month at the Chicod school. D. H. Conley and East Carolina University footballers will join the high school coaching staff in introducing the sport to Chicod students.

PTA president Charley Mills adjourned the meeting, and parents were given demonstrations by some of the students who had prepared artwork.
