Tax Valuation Standards Adopted By County Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
A uniform schedule of values, standards and rules to be used in valuating real property in the county for tax purposes was approved by the Board of County Commissioners last night.

The board's action was taken in light of the state laws requiring revaluation of property in the county every eight years. Under the law, property must be appraised at its true value in money.

County attorney W. W. Speight told board members it was the "duty of this board" to approve the values submitted by the appraisal firm "unless we can show the values are not justifiable."

The revaluation work is being conducted under a $175,000 contract by Associated Surveys, a Greensboro appraisal firm. Work began on the project about a year ago and the revaluation is scheduled for completion by October 1, in time to be listed on tax books January 1, 1973.

The rural property schedule basically established four classes for cleared land and takes into consideration whether the land is on a paved road, dirt road or path. Values range from a high (Class I land, on paved road) of $400 per acre to a low (Class IV land, on a path) of $100 per acre.

In addition to the basic schedule, a differential, considering a farm's tobacco and peanut allotment, will be added to the value of the property.

Woodland is listed as good, fair and poor with access by paved road, dirt road and path. Good woodland on a paved road, under the schedule approved last night, would be valued at $120 per acre while poor woodland on a path would be valued at $80 per acre.

Current value schedules have woodland valued at $50 per acre with very little cleared land valued above $3000 per acre.

William Hester of Associated Surveys emphasized that conditions affecting property value include among other things what similar property has sold for in the county, "location, zoning, past and probable future income," as well as topography and improvements to the property.

Hester said the schedule approved by the board for appraising dwellings in rural areas as well as in municipalities takes into consideration local building material costs, labor at the local rate, sales, and other factors.

Commissioners last night reviewed residential land maps for all municipalities and subdivisions in the county as well as downtown area maps in their review of front-foot values placed on residential and business property.

Generally, residential property ranges upward from a low of $10 and $12 per front foot.

Some comparative values given by Hester for areas in and near Greenville include: Brookgreen, $70 per front foot (150 feet deep lots); Brook Valley, minimum of $6,000 per lot off golf course and $7,000 per lot on course with maximum about $8,500; East Haven, $70 per front foot; Cobb Hill Court, $50 per front foot; Colonial Heights, (not including property fronting on Tenth St.) $40 per front foot; Lyndale, $55 per front foot; Brentwood, $45 per front foot; Drexelbrook, $55 and $60 per front foot; and Westwood, $35 per front foot.

Hester emphasized that the front-foot value on lots is only a basic price for good lots. Other factors effect the ultimate appraisal.

The highest commercial property values reviewed last night were found in the Greenville area. These values range downward from $750 per front foot (Blount Harvey property at the intersection of Fourth and Evans Street, and property on Evans Street just north of Five Points) and $650 per front foot (for vacant lot at the intersection of Fourth and Evans Streets), to $100 and $125 per front foot for property along Dickinson Avenue from Pitt Street to the Seaboard Coastline Railroad.

Commercial property in the Pitt Plaza area, according to Hester, is scheduled at $250 per front foot for 150-feet deep lots. The appraiser explained that on property such as Pitt Plaza itself, the basic $250 per front foot value would be affected by improvements such as paving, drainage and lighting. Property behind the 150-feet would be added as well as the value of buildings and other factors to give the total value of the property.

Although the new schedules will increase property values in the county, commissioners and county tax department officials said at present, they are unable to tell how much.

Commissioners pointed out that a good portion of the increase is due to a poor revaluation of property eight years ago.

Even though the revaluation, which under law must reflect the actual value of property, will increase the valuation of taxable property in the county, the tax rate is the governing factor in

NEW COUNTY SEAL —

County commissioners, last night, were shown printed copies of a new seal approved by them at an earlier meeting and scheduled to come into use July 1. The seal contains an outline of the county, a likeness of the court house, the wording "Agriculture, Education and Industry" and the date, 1760, when the county was founded.

how much taxes an individual will pay.

With a substantial increase in property values, it is conceivable that the tax rate in effect when the new values are placed on the books could be reduced.

The current tax rate is $1.52 per $100 valuation.

The schedule of values approved last night by the Board of Commissioners will be available for review by the public at the offices of the Tax Supervisor. Individuals or groups will have 30 days in which to appeal to the State Board of Assessments for relief from any inequities in the schedules.

One Student Wins Vote Right Test

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court has ruled that college students, in order to register for voting where their schools are located, must convince local election officials they consider their college residence home.

The court's ruling came as it upheld a decision Wednesday in Wake Superior Court that an 18-year-old Meredith College freshman from Tarboro has become a resident of Raleigh and is entitled to vote here.

The court said the facts in the case of Katherine Inez Hall would have justified Superior Court Judge Coy E. Brewer in ruling that Miss Hall was not a resident of Raleigh and "therefore not eligible to vote in Raleigh."

But instead, "he found that plaintiff had abandoned her former domicile and acquired a new one in Raleigh," the court said. "The facts he found are binding on this court, and they support his judgment that she is entitled to vote in Wake County."

The Supreme Court, in an opinion written by Associate Justice Susie Sharp stated that its decision applies only to the Hall case and that it "is in no sense a class action."

"Whether a particular stu-

May Register 'Til April 7

Local residents have until April 7 to register to vote in the May 6 primary election.

Registration books will be open Monday through Friday at the Board of Elections office on the third floor of the Pitt County Court House. Registration books will also be opened at the Court House (on the first floor) Saturday March 18 and March 25. Registrars will also be at Bethel Union School Saturday March 18 and at Pitt Technical Institute March 20.

Persons meeting residency and other requirements will be registered and may vote in the May primary if they register before the books close April 7. Individuals registering after April 7 will not be eligible to vote in the May primary, but may vote in the November general election.

dent is entitled to register and vote in the town where he or she is attending college must be determined by the rules as laid down by the court and applied to the facts of each individual case," the opinion said.

"The fact that one is a student in a university does not entitle him to vote where 'the university is situated, nor does it of itself prevent his voting there,'" wrote Justice Sharp. "He may vote at the seat of the university if he has his residence there and is otherwise qualified."

"An adult student may acquire a domicile at the place where his university or college is situated, if he regards the place as his home, or intends to stay there indefinitely, and has no intention of resuming his former home."

"If he goes to a college town merely as a student, intending to remain there only until his education is completed and does not change his intention, he does not acquire a domicile there," she added.

"The presumption is that a student who leaves his parents' home to enter college is not domiciled in the college town to which he goes. . . . However, this presumption is rebuttable."

In the Hall case, Justice Sharp pointed to evidence that her father pays her bills, she returns to her parents' home at vacation time and keeps much of her personal property there.

The justice said this evidence would have justified Judge Brewer in ruling that Miss Hall was "temporarily sojourning in Raleigh for the purpose of attending college; that she had not abandoned her domicile in Tarboro; and that she was, therefore, not eligible to vote in Raleigh."

Nixon To Moscow Talks On May 22

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will leave May 22 for Moscow to hold summit talks with Soviet leaders, the White House announced today.

Nixon, the White House said, will discuss with the Soviets "all major issues with a view toward further improving bilateral relations and enhancing the prospects for world peace."

The White House statement was issued simultaneously here and in Moscow.

Nixon said last Oct. 12 he would go to Moscow after his historic trip last month to mainland China.

The White House gave no indication as to the length of Nixon's stay in the Russian capital. However, it is expected the duration will be about the same as it was in China—one week.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the exact number of days for the visit was still being discussed. But he said, "I think you could assume that the visit will last about a week."

Mrs. Nixon will accompany the President as she did when her husband, then vice president in the administration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, first visited Moscow.

It was on that trip that Nixon engaged in his historic "kitchen debate" with then Soviet Premier, the late Nikita Khrushchev.

The brief statement announcing the departure date said:

As had been announced previously, Nixon's national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, and Secretary of State William P. Rogers will accompany him on the trip.

Pact Of Longshoremen Threatened By Pay Bd.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pay Board source says business and public members are on the verge of cutting back the West Coast longshoremen's pact, a move almost certain to cause another shutdown of Pacific ports.

A renewed dock strike, which could also involve East and Gulf Coast ports, probably would take another act of Congress to stop.

The board planned to resume deliberations on the contract today.

"There's a cut coming," a nonlabor source predicted.

"I've got a sure nine votes, and a probable 10."

Eight votes are required for a majority of the 15-member board. The five labor members support full approval of the longshore pact.

Harry Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, said last Feb. 29 he would lead his men on strike if the board cut the contract "by as much as one cent."

He has repeated the threat since, and said last week that a cut would so incense his members that he couldn't stop them from striking.

Although Bridges has said the International Longshoremen's Association would join him by striking East and Gulf Coast ports, ILA officials have refused to confirm a pledge of joint action.

The ILWU pact, containing a first-year pay raise estimated officially at up to 21.5 per cent, ended a 134-day strike of West Coast ports.

Congress gave President Nixon authority to impose an arbitrated settlement of that walk-out, but the union settled voluntarily before Nixon signed the measure.

Talks Locking Postal Facility

AYDEN — Postmaster Glenn Gaylor said this morning that he may begin locking the Ayden postal facility at night in an effort to stop unauthorized opening of mail boxes.

Gaylor said he is checking into the possibility of locking the lobby doors around 10 p.m. as a preventive measure.

If the Post Office is closed each night, it will be reopened at 6 a.m. in the morning when the first employee arrives for duty, the postmaster pointed out.

He reminded that there are courtesy boxes outside of the Post Office that would handle boxes or letters that are mailed after closing hours. An announcement concerning the 10 p.m. closing, if that action is taken, will be made to the public, Gaylor added.

According to Police Chief Thomas Burney, an officer spotted two youths around 12:45 this morning as they were opening boxes in the Post Office but the youths fled before he could make an arrest.

Chief Burney said officers found no damage to the boxes or combinations and no mail missing. Mail from several of the boxes was found on the floor of the lobby, he added.

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today President Nixon will go on radio and television at 10 p.m. tonight to outline his recommendations on the school busing issue.

Draft Call

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr today directed his 4,100 draft boards to order men born in 1952 who have lottery number 1 through 15 to report for Army duty on dates from mid-April through May 31.

The action is expected to fill most, but not all, of the 15,000-man request for April, May and June. Tarr said he will issue the June call no later than early May.

One reason for the uncertainty of how much of the 15,000-man call will be filled, Tarr said, is that this is the first time the Uniform National Call has been used. Under this, men are ordered into service on a nationwide basis.

Previously specific quotas were levied on individual states and local boards. As a result, all boards did not reach the same lottery-number ceilings.

Selective Service officials estimated between 11,000 and 12,000 will be called in April and May, with the main men involved classed as 1A or 1AO conscientious objectors. The later includes those willing to do noncombat military duty who were in the lottery held last August for men turning 20 this year. It does not affect those in the recent lottery, who were assigned numbers for next year's callup.

Centennial Planners Have 'Top Secret' Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — A disbelieving congressional prober wants to know why the commission planning America's 200th birthday party has been granted power to stamp its documents "top secret."

Chairman William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., of the House government information subcommittee, asked Jack LeVant, executive director of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission: "Did the military-industrial complex in charge of the American Revolution incur huge costoverruns as they have in all succeeding wars including the current 'cold war'?"

"Did your historians uncover embarrassing errors during the American Revolution which you want to hide behind a secrecy stamp while we are commemorating the 200th anniversary?"

"What other reason can there be for the commission having authority to stamp 'top secret,' 'secret,' and 'confidential' on its documents?"

Moorhead said his subcommittee asked all government agencies to identify those empowered to use stamps to protect national-defense information. Hugh A. Hall, acting executive director of the commission, said LeVant has the authority.

But a commission spokesman, Dan Buser, said: "It has never been and is not the intention of this commission to make anything secret."

Buser said that at no time had the commission requested the need for a secret stamp.

"I've never seen a 'top secret' stamp in our organization since I've been here. I don't recall anyone doing anything secret in the Bicentennial Commission."

Moorhead said in a letter to the commission: "The attitude of the secrecy-minded bureaucrats who think that the American people do not have a right to know the facts of government is implicit in the contention that your agency can wield the secrecy stamps classifying government information."

"The attitude is absurd, but the attitude also is dangerous."

LeVant was out of the country and not available for comment.

Miss Carlotta Dail Weds In Saturday Ceremony

Miss Carlotta Kay Dail and John Carl Kerr were united in marriage Saturday at 2:00 p.m. in a ceremony performed in the Arlington Street Baptist Church.

The Rev. Russell Myers officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Walter Hearne of Greenville, organist, and Mrs. Roy Alcock of Greenville, soloist.

The wedding scene was centered with a large bridal basket of white chrysanthemums, gladioli and pom pon chrysanthemums. On each side of the basket was a standing seven branched candelabrum. Completing the wedding scene was a bridal palm on either side of the candelabrum.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton J. Dail of Greenville. The bride wore a formal length white crepe gown designed with an empire waistline banded in a Venise lace leaf pattern. Matching lace encircled the high neckline and cuffs of the long full sleeves.

Her elbow length illusion mantilla was also edged with Venise lace. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white miniature carnations centered with a corsage of carnations.

Interspersed throughout the bouquet were ribbons and streamers of white bridal lace and white baby's breath.

Miss Della Raye Dail of Raleigh, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Jean Dail and Miss Rosemary Dail of Greenville, both sisters of the bride.

The attendants wore formal length print dresses featuring a pink, yellow and green floral pattern on navy and white. The jumper dresses were styled with a mock peasant blouse in white jersey. The fitted waistlines were laced with white cord.

They wore yellow satin double bow headpieces with formal length streamers. They carried colonial nosegays of mixed pink, blue and yellow pom pons chrysanthemums. Matching ribbons of multi-colors were interspersed throughout the bouquets.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Carl Kerr of Kinston.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Ray Cannon of Greenville, cousin of the bride, Gordy Lucas and Jimmy Presley, both of Kinston.

Follow Timetable To Avoid Wedding Day Problems

NEW YORK (UPI)—The bride bound to look radiantly beautiful on the wedding day follows a well-planned timetable. That avoid last-minute short circuits to the nervous system.

Authorities suggest the following countdown plan:

—Three months before the wedding, whether formal or informal; consult the clergyman to arrange necessary details. Make up guest list, consult with the bridegroom's family. Make arrangements for reception, catering and music. Choose your bridal party; order bridal gown and select what bridesmaids will wear; select silver pattern as well as china and crystal and register your choices with your jeweler. Decide on decor and furnishings for new home or apartment.

—Two months to W-Day. Order invitations, announcements and personal stationary; buy now what you will need and use for your trousseau. Set date for wedding rehearsal and arrange for rehearsal supper.

—One month to go. Address and mail invitations. Buy gifts for attendants and bridegroom, and make plans for luncheon for your attendants. Try to have your friends give showers now. Then finish your shopping for lingerie, linens and household furnishings. Check up on outfits for bridal party and have fittings on your wedding gown. Arrange for photographer to be present for final fitting.

Buy your bridegroom's wedding ring and he should get yours. Go with him to apply for a marriage license, and have necessary pre-marital medical examinations. Remind bridegroom to order boutonnieres and flowers for wedding party and for the two mothers.

Consult with caterer about reception menu and cake. Take up the matter of decorations with the florist. Arrange for accommodations for out of town guests.

One week before W-day. Send wedding announcement to the local paper, including your formal portrait that was taken at your final bridal gown fitting. (Check with the paper to see if the picture and announcement are needed sooner.) Check on arrival of gowns, trousseau items. Make a beauty shop appointment for wedding hairdo. Have bridesmaids' luncheon. Put your gifts on display. Pack uncrunchables when you have free time and spend leisure time with your family.

The day before: tell someone your honeymoon itinerary, and arrange for someone to check your new home while you are gone; go to hairdresser's early, and then to wedding rehearsal and dinner. Check your luggage. Go to bed early.

Bake An Orange Daffodil Cake For Easter Holidays

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

If you like Angelfood Cake, you may enjoy Orange Daffodil Cake even more. The latter boasts a marbled effect because it alternates white angelfood cake batter with a batter that uses egg yolks along with grated orange rind and a little orange juice.

The following recipe for Orange Daffodil Cake has a delicious Orange Butter Frosting and it's a great addition. You may want to follow our suggestion and serve the cake with fresh orange sections.

ORANGE DAFFODIL CAKE
10 egg whites (1 1/4 cups)
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
6 egg yolks
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
2 tablespoons orange juice
Orange Butter Frosting, see below

2 cups orange sections
In large bowl of electric mixer beat egg whites, salt and cream of tartar until whites form soft peaks; gradually beat in sugar; continue to beat if necessary until whites form stiff straight peaks.

Divide beaten egg whites into 2 equal portions. Into half of the egg whites fold in 3/4 cup of the flour.

In a small mixing bowl, without washing beater, beat egg yolks until thickened and lemon color; beat in orange rind and juice. Add beaten yolks, with remaining 1/2 cup flour, to second half of beaten egg whites; fold in gently but thoroughly.

Spoon the yellow and white batters alternately into an ungreased 10-inch angelfood cake pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven, on rack below center, until cake is golden brown and springs back when touched lightly—45 minutes; if cake browns too much toward end of baking, place a sheet of foil over it. Cool cake upside down in pan, placing the tube over the neck of a tall heavy bottle so cake doesn't touch any surface.

When cake is cold, with a small metal spatula loosen edges; ease from pan with fingers. Place on a cake plate and spread with Orange Butter Frosting. Serve with orange sections.

Makes 12 servings.
ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING

TV Message Was Smashing

LONDON (WNS) — Book-maker Roy Woolgar, 36, wondered what he could give his wife Doreen for her 34th birthday. Daughters Maxine and Lorraine came up with the most original suggestion: give her a TV commercial of her own. Dad promptly bought a seven second spot announcement for only $70. "Thank you for being such a wonderful wife and mother," it read. "We all love you." Mrs. Woolgar called the gift "smashing."

Tuesday Evening Reception Held

Assisting at the refreshment table were Mrs. John Duffus, Mrs. K. Joseph Davis, Mrs. Robert E. Cramer, Mrs. A. Ray Jennings and Mrs. Tullio Pignani.

Receiving with Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins were Dr. Richard Capwell, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Mrs. Capwell.

The dining table was decorated with pink carnations and lavender iris arranged among the two five branched candelabra. Other floral decorations of gladioli, carnations and spring flowers were placed throughout the home.

Dinner Given Miss Kovalchick

Miss Judy Elaine Kovalchick, April bride-elect of Stephen Williams Bailey, was honored Saturday night at a bridal dinner.

Hostesses were Miss Deborah Tetterton and Miss Sandra Daniels.

The honoree was remembered with a white carnation corsage and a gift from the hostesses.

Abby Advises Farm Worker

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-M. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I work on a farm on weekends, and the other day at work I was told that when a cow gives birth to twins, if one is a male and the other a female, both calves stand a 99 per cent chance of being sterile. But if both twins are males or females, they are okay.

Abby, I am a 16-year-old boy and my girl friend is 17. She has a twin brother, and when I told her what I had heard about cows she broke into tears for fear she may be sterile.

Could you please do a little research for us and find out if what applies to twin cows also applies to human twins? Thank you.

HOPING AGAINST IT

DEAR HOPING: When a cow gives birth to twin calves, one male and one female, in slightly less than 15 per cent of the cases, the female twin is a "free-martin," meaning her reproductive organs will not develop. Tell your girl friend she has nothing to worry about. Cows are cows and humans are humans, and never the twin shall meet.

DEAR ABBY: Why would a person laugh at his own jokes?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Maybe he just wants to make sure somebody laughs.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure Mrs. Enduring is just as unhappy with her life style as Mr. Enduring. If she could put her feelings into words she might tell us that Mr. Enduring showed very little interest in her personally until it was time for bed, secondly that his technique became more adventurous over the years but something was missing, such as love and affection, thirdly that the life of a wife with three children, who is cook, laundress, housekeeper, and chief decision maker is not exactly a life filled with erotic stimuli and that it takes a bit of doing to turn into something besides a drudge and it is not accomplished by slipping out of your apron.

Many husbands tire of coaxing their wives and find themselves a willing partner elsewhere, usually someone who is not tied to the responsibilities of a house and family. Then the energy these eager men display is unbelievable; there are phone calls in the morning to see how the dear lady slept, phone calls at noon for an intimate lunch in a candlelit restaurant and thoughtful little tokens. Now really, how many wives wouldn't respond to this subtle courting? How many mistresses would be so generous with themselves if all the man did was be physically there? Try it, you'll like it!

Now, you are going to say, "Tell HIM, not ME!" But if you have to tell someone that you would like a few expressions of love and affection it loses all meaning.

I am not Mrs. Enduring, but I would love to know how many wives feel as I do. Or am I expecting too much of marriage?

STILL HOPING

CONFIDENTIAL TO A. J. IN ATLANTA: Don't mail the earrings back to the gentleman's wife without first asking the gentleman. [Maybe the lady who left them wasn't his wife.]

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Musical Program Given At Meet

Stuart Aronson presented a musical program at the Tuesday meeting of the Fine Arts Department of the Woman's Club.

Aronson sang selections in Spanish, French, Italian and English. He is in the Department of Continuing Education at ECU and teaches speech and diction.

Mrs. W. E. Avery, vice chairman, presided at the meeting. A report on the District Fine Arts Festival was given by Mrs. Sylvester Green.

The art selections on display for the month were: Carlette Merritt's "My Private Sunset;" "Tempera," by Cassie Dayton; and "Textile Print," by Carol Cameron.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. T.T. Hollingsworth, Mrs. Charles Blanchard, Mrs. K.T. Futrell, Mrs. Green and Mrs. Troy Rouse.

Kayoed In Several Ways

LONDON (WNS)—Justice Falks, 64, of the High Court Family Division has advised husbands to stop "knocking about" their wives for one very good reason: it doesn't seem to do any good. The justice made his comment while hearing the case of Keith Hudson, 32, a former Navy pet officer who punched his wife in the nose because she failed to keep their house "shipshape." Keith explained that he punched Joan only because she kicked him in the shins first. "Hudson is altogether a decent man and devoted to his children," ruled the judge, but awarded the decree and the five children to Mrs. Hudson.

Caffeine beverages in moderation can be consumed safely by most individuals, according to a survey by the Coffee Information Institute.

FARMVILLE BELLES. Mrs. Robert E. Deans Jr., Miss Bettie Joyner, and Mrs. Carroll D. Oglesby, model dresses to be shown in a fashion show which is part of a luncheon on Ladies' Day of Centennial Week, April 6-12. (Photo By J. Briley)

Ladies' Day Fashion Show Scheduled For Early April

FARMVILLE — Gowns and accessories worn in many periods, some before and many since Farmville was incorporated in 1872, will be modeled in a fashion show at a luncheon on "Ladies' Day", Monday, Apr. 10 here.

Three dresses to be featured in the show were described by Mrs. Grace Carraway and modeled by Mrs. Robert E. Deans Jr., Miss Bettie Joyner, and Mrs. Carroll D. Oglesby.

Mrs. Deans, the former Miss Cordelia Lewis, will wear a wedding gown of crinoline days. Now faded white, the gown originally was lavender in color. It is fashioned of panels and bands of dainty laces, tating, and finely tucked linen batiste. The sweeping skirt ends in an exquisite flounce of Belgian duchess lace. Both needlepoint and pillow laces are used. Among the imported laces used are French alecon, Venetian, and 18th century Italian.

Miss Bettie Joyner, will model party attire of the days following World War I. The dress of pure silk brown taffeta is styled with a skirt, blouse, and short jacket. The ecru colored silk blouse has a jabot which was fashionable in the late teens, and lace ruffles over the wrist.

The "Roaring Twenties" gown worn by Mrs. Carroll D. Oglesby, the former Miss Gene Horton, belonged to her mother, the former Miss Sallie Keel. The straight design of the dress is in contrast to the elaborate embellishment of royal blue sequins over net. Rhinestones are used in the feathered headdress, necklace, and bracelets.

Mrs. Frank Allen and Mrs. W. C. Mercer are co-chairmen of the luncheon and Mrs. George C. Moye is the fashion show chairman.

Roller Skates Were Wedding Present

BRIGHTON, England (WNS) — Diamonds may be a girl's best friend, but Dodie Burton, 23, doesn't know what to do with the wedding present given to her by bridegroom Pascoe Watson, 26. "They are a pair of roller skates in solid gold plate with a diamond in the hub of each wheel," she explained. Watson, who bought them for $24,000 at the International Toy Fair here, suggested, "They'll come in handy when I start chasing you around the deck during our honeymoon."

Amtrak Support Still Required

The federal Amtrak is quickly encountering some of the problems which faced the privately owned railroads in operation of modern day passenger trains.

Amtrak, the National Railroad Passenger Corp., is running out of money faster than was expected. It is asking Congress for $170 million more in federal help to make it until mid-1973.

The service has critics and they want an end to federal financial assistance for Amtrak.

However, House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., sees the bill for additional funds as "an attempt to preserve and improve an essential system of intercity rail passenger service to meet the needs of the public."

"... the program as presently constituted required a fair test period, especially the opportunity to provide quality service and to restructure and revitalize the rail passenger network to make it competitive with other modes of transit."

Under the proposed bill $170 million would be added to the original $40 million grant and $100 million in federal guaranteed loans and $97 million paid by participating railroads.

We feel that Congress should go on with government support of Amtrak. It was obvious from the beginning that passenger service on the railroads was going to be a heavy loser. Yet, service had deteriorated to such an extent that it is going to take some time and much investment to woo travelers back to the railroads.

That this is badly needed cannot be questioned. Airports at the nations largest cities are greatly overcrowded while huge train depots stand idle. Automobiles are choking the arteries of these cities and the pollution they put out are harmful to the city dwellers.

The sole answer is rejuvenated railroad passenger service. It is regrettable that tax money has to be used for this, but it is necessary.

Urban Budgets Crisis Growing

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH—The urban fiscal crisis deepens, in North Carolina and nationwide.

Cities are struggling with the imbalance of dynamic demand for services on the one hand and a static primary revenue source, the property tax, on the other, said S. Leigh Wilson, executive director of the N.C. League of Municipalities.

Until the gap is closed, he warned, the quality of the Wilson noted.

It cleared the Constitutional cloud from the local one-cent sales tax, and doubled the share of state-collected gasoline tax allotted to municipalities for street work. Together, the two measures flooded millions into city budgets.

A third major source of aid is a $150 million bond issue authorized by the legislature and before the voters on May 6. If it passes, it will make available funds to local governments for water supply and sewage treatment facilities.

State grants from the bond money would greatly expand the flow of federal matching funds for the purposes, and reduce the local share required for such projects.

The League is actively promoting the clean water bonds, Wilson reported, urging its members to inform and motivate citizens to vote for their approval.

Still A Ways To Go

While the '71 session moved in the right direction, there's some distance to go before cities are in financial position to deal with 20th century problems, Wilson said.

"Cities and towns are directly tied to the property tax in their revenue structure," he explained. "The property tax is unresponsive to economic change, and just doesn't keep pace with revenue needs."

The League now is conducting a series of district meetings which will help shape its '73 legislative program. City officials are being asked to delineate their revenue needs and evaluate possible new sources.

League President H. Jack Elam III, mayor pro team of Greensboro, has advocated a local income tax. Early reaction among members has been mixed, Wilson said.

"However, of all the new sources proposed so far, the concept of some type of occupation or income tax has been more favorably received than any other," he added.

One advantage, Wilson noted, would be that a tax on incomes earned within a city would reach those who use municipal services although they do not live within its boundaries.

City-county consolidation, of function if not governmental structure, merits exploration as a means of saving tax dollars, Wilson agreed. Durham county and city, and Wilmington and New Hanover County, are far along in consideration of merger plans, he pointed out.

Consolidation is one answer, but not the total answer, he said.

Nationalist China Era Is Drawing To A Close

It cannot be a surprise to anyone that Chiang Kai-shek has accepted a call to remain as Nationalist China's president.

The 84-year-old Chiang is assured of re-election. However, with age against him, it is obvious that Chiang cannot hold the reins of leadership on Taiwan for too many more years.

With President Nixon's trip to mainland China opening new doors, Chiang's position with his allies is vastly changed.

Despite the fact that Chiang will be re-elected it is clear that an era is ending for Nationalist Chinese. This is a fact which future leaders who take over after Chiang Kai-shek will have to adjust to.

Hugh Morton Enjoyed Taste

By JOHN KILGO
WILMINGTON — Hugh Morton says that when he got out of the Governor's race three weeks ago, Pat Taylor was clearly ahead in the Democratic gubernatorial primary.

Morton made the comment in answer to my question. He wanted it made clear that he wasn't pushing Taylor for the nomination.

"Taylor was ahead when I got out," Morton said. "But I don't know what will be the case when voting day comes. One of my closest advisers in the campaign had worked in the Mississippi gubernatorial campaign last summer. He says that six weeks before that election, the winner had only 8 percent of the vote in the poll, while the eventual loser was showing 48 percent."

"There are a lot of undecided voters in this state right now. And many of them are apathetic. The mood is such that things could change in a hurry."

While a candidate, Morton probably worked harder than anyone in the race. He is not bitter about his experience.

"I met great people," he says. "I found out who my friends are. I learned more about this state than I ever knew before. I wouldn't trade the experience for anything. But it's sort of like being in the Army. I wouldn't trade that experience either but I wouldn't want to do it again unless I had to."

Does this mean Morton is shutting the door to any political race in the future?

"I have no plans whatsoever," Morton says. "I have no plans to run or not to run. I'm busy picking up the pieces now. I've paid most of my campaign bills."

Morton says the reaction he has received since he bowed out of the Governor's race has been "astounding."

"All of the comment that has come to me has been of the positive nature," he said. "I got into the race two years too late. Two of the other candidates in the Democratic primary had great financial backing. Some people who are politically naive say I made a big mistake when I got out. But when I saw that I couldn't win, I was't going to put my friends and supporters through a futile campaign. I got out only when I was convinced I couldn't win."

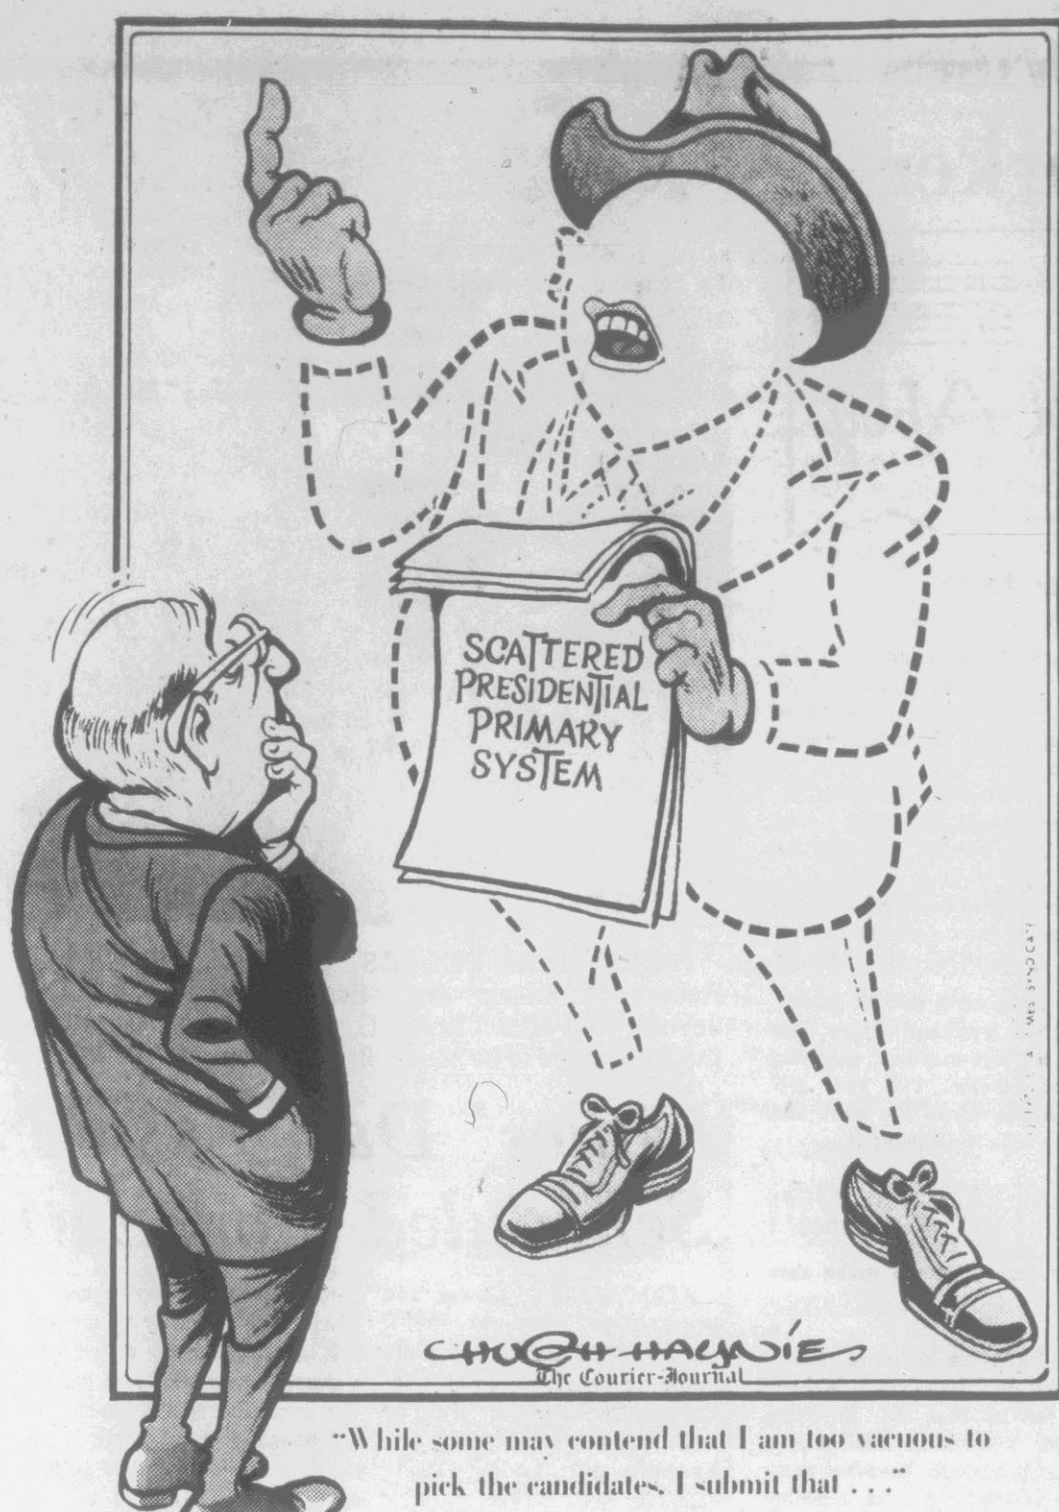

Morton is not going to take sides in the Democratic primary. He says some of his supporters have gone with other candidates now.

"I'm not going to be in a position of working against people who had worked so hard for me," he said. "If the Democratic nominee wants me to labor in his behalf in November, I will be more than happy to do that."

Looking at the situation in the Republican gubernatorial primary, Morton says friends of his in the GOP say the race between Jim Holshouser and Jim Gardner will be extremely close.

"If I had stayed in the campaign and won," Morton said, "I would have preferred to have run against Gardner."

A 'Lobbyist' Isn't Evil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Countless strings entwined Washington lobbyists with the federal government, but none more compellingly than campaign money, which the lobbyist often has and elected officials generally need.

For Dita Beard, celebrated Washington lobbyist of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., the sum was $400,000 reportedly pledged by an ITT subsidiary toward financing the 1972 Republican National Convention.

The question now being raised in Senate Judiciary Committee hearings is whether there was a connection between the alleged pledge and a subsequent Justice Department decision to abandon prosecution of three antitrust cases against ITT.

For Harold O. Lovre, the American Trucking Association lobbyist, it was $4,500 for the 1970 re-election of Rep. Gerald R. Ford, the House Republican leader. In this case, said Lovre, a former South Dakota congressman, it was personal, "we came down to Congress together. He's a friend."

If they didn't help fill campaign purses, said Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., "the power of lobbyists would be practically nil."

The lobbyist is a major force in the U.S. government. As an ambassador to Washington from an interest group or business, he also is an accepted fixture along the corridors of power, and generally an honorable one. Yet nagging questions remain about the campaign dollars at his command.

Where, asks Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., does the legislator draw the line in dealing with lobbyists?

"Do you or don't you accept what purports to be a campaign contribution, or what purports to be a fee for a speech plus expenses?" Bolling asked. "What is its real meaning?"

"We are not talking about bribery. We are talking about influence that is almost subliminal. You don't know you are being influenced."

There are citizens today who associate lobbyists with

Strength For Today

NECESSARY
Tuning up. The orchestra has to go through a long process of getting everybody right with everybody else. If this were not accomplished the result would be discord and chaos.

The same is true in the lives of us all. We have to keep in tune with those round about us. This does not mean that we have to agree with everybody and disagree with nothing. That would leave us in a state of mind characterized not only by confusion but by contempt. There are certain things in life that we cannot agree with. We cannot agree with dishonesty. We cannot agree with riotous disorder. Certainly everyone in a free country has the right to express himself, but he must do this in an orderly fashion and not to the detriment of anyone. And what holds good for internal matters holds good for international matters. We are not going to get very far in world peace and security unless there is plenty of tuning up between groups, nations and political parties.

Of course, the tuning-up process needs to begin in our own hearts, then extend to the home in which we live, to the group we go about with. It used to be that parents could snap out a command and kids of all ages would comply. Such an agreement seems to be no longer in existence. Tune up is the watchword now, and see that the tuning-up brings harmony, not discord.

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." (John 14: 27).

Installment Credit Has Slowed

By ELMER ROESSNER
Consumer instalment credit slowed in January, the Federal Reserve reports. It increased $637 million, compared with $900 million in December and $1.37 billion (b) in November.

COMMENT: While the slower growth of instalment credit may reflect some lack of confidence by consumers, another factor may be the boom in housing. Last year 2,048,000 new housing units were started. These require higher payments of rent as a rule or the taking on of large mortgage debts. A family that has signed itself to pay off a mortgage of thousands of dollars must naturally be cautious about additional instalment commitments.

Many new housing units come with major appliances, carpeting, air conditioning and other comforts already installed. These are paid off with the mortgage and do not add to consumer instalment totals.

Advance Mortgage Corp., a subsidiary of First National City Bank of New York, reports that a survey indicates that the number of housing starts will decline this year to about two billion. That's still boom.

of new detergent materials that it predicts will have wide application in nonphosphate and low-phosphate cleansers. The new products are made from liquid sodium polysilicate and sodium carbonates, and will be available to detergent manufacturers April 1.

COMMENT: Housewives have been treated to — and puzzled by — a series of claims for detergents in the past few years as waves of enzyme-added, phosphate, nonphosphate and a variety of additives were promoted.

The new compounds, called Snowall, will probably touch off another round of competing and conflicting claims and more confusion.

Gifts To Customers
Stirs Angry Debate

A large number of stores are promoting perfumes and cosmetics by giving substantial samples to good customers. Some marketing authorities say these gifts-with-purchases constitute a monster that can eat up profits. One manufacturer estimates that these gifts take about 75 per cent of the net profits of sales. Others defend the practice and point to increased in sales as proving the effectiveness of gifts.

COMMENT: The practice is not new, of course. Giving away samples is a long-established way of introducing products to consumers. The current gifts-with-purchases competition simply raises the value of the samples and confines them to customers who are spending money in that field.

It is an old custom in Japan. The buyer of a luxury item on returning home will often discover that a gift has been unostentatiously included in the package. Often the gift is something the customer admired but did not buy.

Mea Culpa Proposal
Splits FTC

The Federal Trade Commission wants Sterling Drug, Inc. to stop advertising claims that Lysol Brand Disinfectants in the home helps prevent flu and colds. The FTC charges that the claims are not justified. The FTC proposes that the company agree to a consent order to drop those claims and for one year include in all Lysol advertising the statement: "Contrary to our prior advertising representations, the use of Lysol Brand Disinfectants in the home will not have sufficient medical benefits in reducing the incidence or preventing the spread of colds, influenza, or other respiratory disease."

Officers For Citizens Advisory Group Named

As the months pass, members of Greenville's Citizens Advisory Committee continue to press ahead in getting organized and into the first phases of coming up with studies and recommendations based on thoughts and ideas from the community at large.

At Monday night's meeting, the slate of officers proposed by the nominating committee was unanimously approved. Elected to the five offices were: Samuel Sewall, chairman; Virgil Clark, vice-chairman; Donovan Phillips, liaison officer; Mrs. Phillip Nelson, recording secretary; and Mrs. Ida Smith, corresponding secretary.

Six of the nine members of the Greenville City School Board accepted the invitation by advisory members to attend the meeting and to meet the advisory members.

Of the two items to be considered on the agenda for the meeting, vice-chairman Clark reports that a committee will meet within a short time with railroad officials, city officials, highway officials and other knowledgeable persons. These meetings will be in connection with the matter of railroad crossing safety for school children within the city.

The second item, under the chairmanship of Dennis Roberts, dealt with a survey to be carried out by advisory members. In the survey, most of the contacts with parents will be through personal delivery and pick up of the survey forms. The committee on this project has devised a simplified form with nine basic questions. Questions the advisory members will be seeking answers to are ones such as: (What are) your positive and negative comments on the school buildings and equipment; on the people who work in the schools; on the programs offered in the school ... vocational, academic, etc.

Also, answers are being sought on other questions — What would you like to know about your school board and how it operates? What would you like to spend it on first in the schools? How would you spend the taxes you pay in operating the schools? What thing would you spend it on first in the schools?

After the surveys have been delivered, filled in by parents and returned to the Citizens Advisory Committee, members will compile the results for a report on thoughts and attitudes of parents.

For the April meeting, members will concentrate on a study of the projected school budget for the coming year.

In all these projects and programs, the 36 member advisory council has the role of keeping in touch with persons in their own community and for furnishing the school board suggestions based on such contacts and studies. The advisory committee is not charged with authority to formulate policy or regulations, but serves as an officially recognized channel through which Greenville citizens can express their opinions and have them brought to the attention of members of the school board.

bribes, high living and nefarious ways. In fact, all but a handful of the several thousand Washington lobbyists are regarded by the men who deal with them as honest, hardworking proponents of a cause or interest.

"Lobbying is a much misunderstood process, sometimes abused and often carrying bad connotations," said Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., former chairman of a House Select Committee on Ethics. "Lobbying is nonetheless a vital part of the daily interchange between the people and their government."

"Put simply, it is the representation of a group's interests before governmental bodies, and it is not, of course, for anything that is other than good for the public."

Rep. Olin E. Teague, D-Tex., values lobbyists for their expertise.

These lobbyist-educators, as Teague views them, include lawyers, businessmen, public relations men, former government officials, and former senators and congressmen.

Some 1,200 are registered with Congress. They represent the interests of unions and corporations, local governments and trade associations, causes as various as world peace and population control.

All have an interest in what Congress or the executive branch can do to enhance, or harm, their interest group. The action might be tax legislation on Capitol Hill, a regulator proposal by the Food and Drug Administration, or a pending sewer grant at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

It is the lobbyist's job to know what's afoot, to make things happen, or to stop them from happening.

He may clean the paperwork pipeline to get that sewer grant, testify before a committee on Capitol Hill, state his case in private to a congressman, or stimulate letters from important senators in protest of a proposed regulatory action.

The lobbyist has many levers on the bureaucracy: familiarity, exchange of information, an agency's need for his group's support, and the power to beam political heat on an official from Congress or influential citizens. But his ultimate lever on Congress is the power of money and of a voting bloc.

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, says his lobbying code is: "Don't beg. Don't threaten. Don't assume you are always right." The AFL-CIO is widely regarded as having the most effective lobby in town. It's a reputation that is in no way diminished by the organization's 13.6 million members and the fact that its political arm, COPE, will contribute upwards of $1 million this year to candidates for president, the Senate and the House.

A lobbyist for the American Medical Association, another of the capital's influential groups, says service is the selling point he stresses. He tells congressmen this: When the complexities of the government's health programs seem overwhelming, or when constituents write in with their medical problems, call on me.

Teachers, Supervisors At Raleigh Conference

Ten Pitt County teachers and supervisors will attend the Fourth Annual Conference of the North Carolina Council of the International Reading Association in Raleigh today through March 18.

This year's conference will continue the emphasis, begun last year, of providing sessions of immediate, practical value to the classroom teacher.

Seven separate series of sessions have been planned for: 1) early childhood teachers; 2) elementary and junior high teachers; 3) high school teachers; 4) clinicians and remedial reading teachers; 5) principals and supervisors; 6) community college teachers, and 7) media specialists and librarians.

Keynote speakers will include

Dr. Harry Hahn, past director of the First Grade Cooperative Research Project in Reading. Dr. Hahn will chair the pre-convention institute on "Reading and the Open Classroom" at the national IRA conference in Detroit in May.

Keynote addresses will also be given by Dr. Robert Wilson, author of Programmed Word Attack for Teachers and the recent Diagnostic and Remedial Reading; Dr. Jerry Weiss, editor of the classic Reading in the Secondary School, and Dr. William Kottmeyer, whose spelling series and remedial reading handbook are well-known to every elementary teacher.

Two events on the program for junior high and secondary teachers will be the appearance of Louise Scott, from Florence, South Carolina, whose language arts program for academically disadvantaged high school students has begun to attract national attention, and a presentation on "The Newspaper: A Living Textbook" by Mrs. Ann Wilson of Charlotte, North Carolina.

Over 2000 educators and lay people are expected to attend the conference.

Attending from Pitt County will be Mrs. Janie Manning, Mrs. Ola Perry, Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, and Mrs. Patsy James.

Attending the entire conference will be Mrs. Sue Branch, Mrs. Ann Worthington, Mrs. Ann Burke, Mrs. Jean Dupree, Mrs. Jean Satterwhite, and Mrs. Althea Weatherington.

Rush Drug To Save Mass. Baby

A five month old child, critically ill in a Springfield, Massachusetts hospital, received life saving drugs from Burroughs Wellcome Co. last week through the cooperative efforts of B. W. Co. personnel, an airborne freight company, a city Police department, the N. C. State Highway Patrol, and an airlines company.

An urgent call from the child's physician reached Dr. William Colvin, Medical Director at Burroughs Wellcome, after normal closing hours. The plea for help set in motion a human drama involving many players—each one to play an important part in getting the needed drugs to a point 650 miles distant. . . and, in time to save the life of one small child.

The baby was in critical condition due to a deranged electrolyte and fluid balance in addition to an exceedingly and dangerously high serum uric acid level. The drug requested was Allopurinol injection—a new drug currently under clinical investigation and not yet available to the general medical profession.

Harry Leslie, Plant Manager of the B. W. Co. production plant in Greenville, quickly got together the necessary Company personnel to locate and package the material. The Airborne Freight Corp. with offices in Greenville agreed to handle the shipment via air cargo. Because the last Eastern flight to New York carrying such cargo was scheduled to leave RDU at 8:50 p.m., time was of the essence. An urgent call to Glenn Gray of Eastern Airlines resulted in a short delay of the scheduled flight until the material could be transported there from Greenville—a distance of over 100 miles. Lt. J. R. Tripp of the Greenville City Police quickly got in touch with Lt. Carl Gilchrist of the State Highway Patrol who sent a Trooper to carry the package to RDU. In record time the packet was safely aboard the departing Eastern plane and landed at LaGuardia Airport where it was picked up and taxied to the Springfield hospital pharmacy. Shortly thereafter the drug was administered to the child.

Truly a real life drama, the happy conclusion to the story was the word today from the child's doctor that he now expects a satisfactory discharge of the patient from the hospital even though the child still requires further intensive care for complete recovery.

Commercial Fishermen Organize Association

WANCHESE-Commercial fishermen of the Albemarle Sound and Outer Banks region have officially signed Articles of Incorporation to apply for a charter from the State of North Carolina to form the Sound and Sea Fishermen's Association, Inc.

The new organization will be headquartered at Wanchese, serving its membership in the entire Albemarle region.

The signing meeting was held at Mann's Harbor with more than 90 fishermen and guests attending. The occasion climaxed a series of planning meetings over the past several months. The fishermen have been assisted in their effort to form the association by a Sea Grant commercial fisheries advisory project being conducted by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education.

The project which began in 1970 is directed by James A. McGee of ECU and he is assisted by Sumner K. Midgett of Shiloh. McGee and Midgett have traveled extensively throughout much of the region aiding the fishermen in organizing the association.

Officers in the new Sound and Sea Fishermen's Association, Inc., are J. Franklin Furlough, Jr. of Columbia, President. Vice-President is Willie R. Etheridge, Jr., Wanchese, and Secretary-

Treasurer is William C. Capehart, Edenton.

A larger planning committee of 18 members selected by their fellow fishermen in various fishing communities, led in the development of the organization and defining the goals of the association. The chief objective is a marketing situation that will enable the fishermen to market their catch collectively with a greater net return to the individual fisherman.

Furlough, President, presided over the meeting. Special guests were Dr. and Mrs. John Lyman, U.N.C., Chapel Hill. Dr. Lyman is coordinator of all Sea Grant activities in North Carolina.

Others who have contributed to the development of the association are, Drs. Fred Olson and Jack Greenfield, National Marine Fisheries Service; Roy Schaal, N.C. Rural Fund for Development; Gene Sutton, Farmers Cooperative Service; and W.E. Lane, Marketing Division, N.C. Department of Agriculture.

Summer Theatre Auditions Set

Producer-director Edgar R. Loessin has announced that local auditions for the East Carolina Summer Theatre will be held Saturday from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. in McGinnis Auditorium.

Talent from this area will be screened for the summer company which will present five productions — Fiddler On The Roof; Once Upon A Mattress; 1776; I Do, I Do; and The Fantasticks.

Those wishing to audition should prepare a song and bring their own music (an accompanist will be provided).

All roles are open for the season at this point, although Loessin stressed that this summer's shows require a mature company. He will be looking primarily for talented performers over 18. Candidates should also bring a snapshot photo and a resume of their past theatrical experience.

The Greenville auditions are the fourth in the series of auditions in Loessin's search for talent. He has already screened between 700 and 800 performers at the Southeastern Theatre Conference in Columbia, S.C., Chapel Hill, and the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

The next two weekends he will travel to Washington, D.C. and New York City to complete a hectic month of casting.

As the rounds of casting continue, the business office of the Summer Theatre is open and in full swing, and tickets can be purchased by writing Box 2712 in Greenville or calling 758-6390.

Those expecting to attend the theatre this summer should get their orders in as soon as possible to get the best seats.

Woman Is Charged In Triple Murder

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An Army wife from Vietnam and two of her three children were found beaten to death in their home near Ft. Bragg Wednesday.

Authorities said they had been slain about 20 hours before, apparently with a small baseball bat.

A woman who had an apartment in the same house and whose husband also is in Vietnam with the Army was charged with murdering them. She was committed to a state hospital in Raleigh for psychiatric examination after being treated at a Fayetteville-area hospital.

Police said the woman, Mrs. Gail Larson, 35 had swallowed the contents of a bottle of aspirin after phoning a neighbor and saying the three bodies were locked in a bedroom.

The victims were Mrs. Mia Wainwright, 25; her daughter, Kim, 4; and her son, Frank, 2. Mrs. Wainwright's youngest child, 10 months old, was unharmed.

Sheriff W. G. Clark of Cumberland County said the slayings occurred at about 8:30 a. m. Tuesday while Mrs. Larson's two children were in school. The bodies were discovered by the neighbor whom

Mrs. Larson called at 3:45 a. m. Wednesday, the sheriff said. Mrs. Wainwright, a native of Vietnam, was the wife of WO Edward T. Wainwright. Mrs. Larson is the wife of S. Sgt. Edward H. Larson.

The Army said the husbands have been notified of the slayings.

Goat Milk, But Goats Must Go

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — Joe Fair apparently will lose his milk goats Rosebud and Tagalong, but he won't be without a supply of goat milk.

The City Council, citing an ordinance banning goats from inside the city limits, ordered Fair, a 70-year-old welfare recipient, to get rid of his goats. Fair appealed to keep the goats, saying he and his wife need goat milk for stomach problems and that it is too costly at stores, five cents an ounce.

"We'll have a happy ending to this," City Atty. Robert Clayton said Wednesday, adding that some way will be found to provide Fair and his wife with goat milk or an acceptable substitute.

Open House At Facility

The Open House of the new Home Economics facility at Rose High School, announced earlier in conjunction with the monthly meeting of the Rose High P.T.A., will be open to the general public separately from the P.T.A. gathering.

Mrs. Grace Carraway, Chairman of the Home Economics Department at Rose High, said the Open House reception tonight from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m. is one in which all the Home Ec teachers and staff are encouraging interested persons to attend, whether or not they plan to attend the P.T.A. meeting.

"We are very proud of the new facility, and want as many people as possible to see it," Mrs. Carraway noted. "We have made arrangements to show up to 500 people through during this time." Mrs. Carraway noted that she and other members of the department will be on hand during that time to take interested persons through the various rooms and to explain the purpose of each area and the equipment being used in home economics studies.

The chairman also noted there would be refreshments to serve to those attending the open house reception.

Research Report To Be Published

Dr. James S. McDaniel of the East Carolina University Department of Biology is co-author of a research report to be published by the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society in its journal.

Morse Running For Senate Post

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Former Sen. Wayne Morse and ex-Congressman Robert Duncan are among Democrats who will compete this spring for the right to face Republican Sen. Mark Hatfield in the November general election.

A state senator, Don Willner, and Ralph Wiser of Portland, a political unknown, also seek the Democratic nomination. Polls say the race will be largely between Morse and Duncan.

Hatfield is the heavy choice to win the Republican nomination. He faces opposition from a Pacific University professor, Lynn Engdahl of Forest Grove, and two men not known statewide.

Tuesday was the filing deadline for the May 23 primary.

High Court Overturns Drink Law In Mecklenburg

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dry forces in North Carolina hailed today a ruling by the state Supreme Court that will prevent the legalizing of liquor by the drink in Mecklenburg County—at least until the General Assembly acts again on the issue.

This came as the court ruled unconstitutional a local law under which Mecklenburg's voters had voted approval of liquor by the drink.

Allen Bailey, the Charlotte attorney who led the anti-liquor forces said the court's ruling simply confirmed his feeling that the act was unconstitutional.

"We're pleased but really not surprised," said Marse Grant, editor of the Biblical Recorder, the Baptist State Convention publication. "We felt we had a really strong case."

"Of course," Grant said, "this issue will be before the 1973 General Assembly once gain. In order to get it settled, let's have a statewide vote on liquor by the drink and get it settled once and for all. County-by-county votes will merely drag this issue out for years to come."

Court action in the Mecklenburg case began even before the referendum in which voters approved mixed drinks. This came when Superior Court Judge W.K. McLean ruled that parts of the local mixed drink law were unconstitutional.

But the court went even further, ruling that the entire act is unconstitutional.

"We hold . . . that the Mecklenburg Act is a local act regulating trade and therefore void," said the high court in an opinion written by Chief Justice William H. Bobbitt.

Judge McLean also had ruled that provisions of the act violated a constitutional provision barring local acts regulating trade.

However, he said, mixed drinks could be sold in publicly owned buildings such as the Charlotte Coliseum, although not in private restaurants and clubs.

"Moreover, the provisions relating to the sale of liquor by the drink at licensed restaurants located in civic centers and auditoriums are so interrelated to such sales in restaurants located elsewhere as to preclude separation."

The Mecklenburg Act would have permitted the sale of mixed drinks in certain convention centers, social clubs and Grade A restaurants seating 50 or more persons. Liquor would have been serviced in miniature bottles.

"Unquestionably," Bobbitt wrote, "any restaurateur who elected to purchase, sell and serve alcoholic beverages in the manner prescribed by the Mecklenburg Act would be embarking upon a business venture for gain or profit."

"No limitation is placed upon what he may charge for the alcoholic beverages he sells and serves," he added. "The only limitation is that the gross receipts from the sale of alcoholic beverages must be less than the beverages. We think it clear that the purchase, sale and serving of alcoholic beverages by such licensed restaurateur would constitute 'trade' within the meaning of state law."

The court pointed out that the act was local because it applied only to Mecklenburg County.

The suit, challenging the Mecklenburg Act was brought by entertainer Arthur Smith and David P. Reule on behalf of themselves and others.

The 1971 General Assembly also passed a local act authorizing a mixed drink referendum in Moore County, but the people there voted against legalizing mixed drinks.

Baby Kangaroo Has New Home

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Joey, a 4-month-old female kangaroo, has a new home.

Joey's mother rejected her last week after the youngster fell from her pouch, so zoo officials fashioned a sling from a pillowcase, fastened it to the roof of an incubator and put the kangaroo on a four-hour feeding schedule.

Kangaroos normally do not leave their mothers' pouches until they are at least 6 months old, officials said.

Buzzards Keep Ohio Tradition

HINCKLEY, Ohio (AP) — Living up to tradition, the buzzards have returned to Hinckley on March 15.

A member of Hinckley's Buzzard Day Committee, Dave Mihalco, said the "official spotter," Sgt. Ambrose "Bud" Berger of the Cleveland Metropolitan Park rangers, and several other persons saw "four or five" pilot birds at 2:20 p.m. Wednesday.

Calls For New Mental Health Commissioner

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Reginald Hawkins today called for appointment of a new mental health commissioner, claiming the program under present leadership "appears to be highly insensitive to and irresponsible about many of the needs of significant segments of the population."

Hawkins, a black Charlotte dentist, made his comments in a speech prepared for a St. Augustine's College audience.

He said Commissioner Eugene Hargrove and his top administrators have "failed to define racism as a problem in mental health."

"Instead of being concerned especially about aiding in eradicating or at least reducing significantly many social problems inducing mental illness in many state hospital patients,

Seven Days Of Quizzing

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The defense has wrapped up seven days of exhaustive cross-examination of FBI informer Boyd Douglas, Jr. in the conspiracy trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six codefendants.

Over-all, the tough and often cocky Douglas, who returns today for his 14th day on the stand for brief redirect questioning by the prosecution, weathered a storm of defense questions about his story of an alleged plot that included the kidnapping of White House aide Henry A. Kissinger.

Douglas characterized his long witness box performance this way Wednesday:

"I wouldn't change my testimony that I have given in this courtroom under any conditions."

The comment came after Leonard Boudin, the last of six defense lawyers to cross-examine Douglas, suggested that perhaps some testimony of the 31-year-old ex-convict was inaccurate and that he might want to correct it.

Besides the Kissinger kidnap scheme the 48-year-old Berrigan and his codefendants are accused of conspiring in 1970 to blow up heating tunnels in Washington and vandalize draft offices around the country.

The term "Sooner" was coined in Oklahoma and meant a person who staked a claim to land sooner than the law allowed.

Sowers 'For' Med School

MOUNT OLIVE, N.C. (AP) — Candidate for lieutenant governor Roy Sowers says he approves the one-year medical school at East Carolina University and feels "a good case can be made for expanding the program into a two-year program."

"I am inclined to support this move," Sowers told students at Mount Olive Junior College Wednesday, "but before we took that action, I would want to be assured that the two-year graduates from that school would have a place to continue their education at the University (of North Carolina) or at Bowman Gray or Duke."

Sowers, a Democrat, also told the students, "Dollars have never been and never will be the solution to the treatment of our mentally ill."

"Public concern and a deep compassion for our unfortunate brothers and sisters is a must," Sowers added. "It is not enough to appropriate a few dollars and then turn our heads to more pleasant things on our agenda of needs."

Sowers pointed to the need for better planning and development in North Carolina in the future, saying, "Road building should be based on a larger view of North Carolina's potential and aims than mere traffic count."

Hearing Today On Deportation

NEW YORK (AP) — A special hearing is set by the U.S. Immigration Service today to determine whether former Beatle John Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono, should be deported.

The Lennons' visas expired Feb. 29 and have not been renewed. If the Lennons are ordered to leave the country, an immigration spokesman said, it would be without penalty and would not affect their right to return to the United States.

He described hearings on expired visas as "quite common."

Will Provide Destroyed Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold S. Geneen, president of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., has promised to provide the Senate Judiciary Committee a list of files purposely destroyed in the company's Washington office two weeks ago.

Ailing ITT lobbyist Dita Beard has been quoted as saying her Washington files were shredded by ITT security agents from New York after columnist Jack Anderson published a memorandum, allegedly written by Mrs. Beard, that has delayed Senate confirmation of Atty. Gen. designate Richard G. Kleindienst.

The memorandum resulted in the suggestion that the out-of-court settlement of three anti-trust suits against ITT was connected with the conglomerate's financial pledge to San Diego in the city's efforts to obtain next summer's Republican National Convention.

Geneen, who is to return to the witness stand today, and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Wednesday denied the settlement was connected with ITT's financial commitment to the California city.

The committee is investigating the charges at the request of Kleindienst. Meanwhile, Anderson gave newsmen a copy of a statement in which Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., alleged that the columnist's secretary and Mrs. Beard were frequent drinking companions.

Anderson wrote Cook that the allegations, made to a closed session of the Judiciary Committee Tuesday, were "so wildly inaccurate that it is difficult to imagine how you got the facts so confused."

Anderson said his secretary, Opal Ginn, had met Mrs. Beard only once.

A spokesman for Cook said the senator's staff is "rechecking our sources" as a result of Anderson's denial.

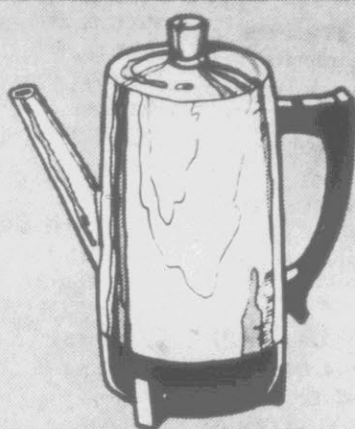

In other action Wednesday, Committee Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he would send a six-man subcommittee to Denver on Monday to interrogate the 53-year-old Mrs. Beard, who has been hospitalized with a heart ailment since shortly after the Anderson columns appeared.

Sen. Phillip Hart, D-Mich., will head the subcommittee, which also will include Democrats Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and John Tunney of California and Republicans Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky, Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland and Edwward Gurney of Florida.

Under questioning from Tunney, Geneen said Wednesday:

"I know that some documents were shredded. I believe it was more of a reaction to the feeling that our files were opened to the public. There is the worry about subjecting people to a kind of character assassination."

North Pitt Notes

By ELLEN HEATH

North Pitt's track team had its first meet Wednesday, at which they were victorious by about 60 points. They had two meets this week, both held in Greenville. Monday they met Rose High and Tarboro High, and Wednesday they met Kinston.

A grill's track team is being formed at North Pitt, but the members have not yet been chosen.

Susan James has been named All State in basketball. Susan is a senior this year and has played basketball for four years.

During the four years, her team didn't lose but one game. This year she has averaged about 12 points a game. Congratulations, Susan!

Voter Registration

Voter registration was held at North Pitt Wednesday. Students who would be 18 years old by November 3 were eligible to register. A total of 193 students have registered during the two voter registration days held at the school.

North Pitt hosted the Pitt County Honor Society meeting last week. Attending were the presidents and vice presidents of the honor societies from Farmville Central, D. H. Conley, Ayden-Grifton, and North Pitt.

Headed by Mrs. Katherine Lewis, the projects of the different schools were discussed.

North Pitt's Honor Society has permission to have a talent show to be held in April. They discussed the requirements for becoming an Honor Society member. Since the grading system is based on quality points, a 4.5 average in quality points, which is equivalent to an 85, was derived for the minimum average for qualification in a County Honor Society. Refreshments served at the meeting were prepared by Home Economics students at North Pitt.

The Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation is offering an expense paid six-week residential leadership school during the summer at Mars Hill College for rising juniors and seniors. One from each county will be chosen. Students interested in this program should see one of the counselors.

The Student Task Force met at Farmville Central Monday. The students attending from North Pitt were Glen Brown, Anne Murchison, Jeffrey Price, and Pam Edmondson. The pregnancy policy, voter registration, and a health survey concerning sickly-cell anemia were discussed at the meeting.

North Pitt's baseball team began the season right by winning 7 to 3 in the game with Oak City Friday. On Tuesday, the Panthers meet Oak City again at Bethel Middle School. Members of the baseball team are: John Grimes, Linwood Brown, William Little, Ken Tetterton, Dennis Bunn, Steve Fuchs, Tommy Cobb, Clint Lewis, Ricky Harrell, Danny Gonzalaz, Timmy Whitley, Jeffrey Price, Benjamin Johnson, Spencer Barnhill, and Craig McLawhorn.

The typical American supermarket in 1970 stocked 8,500 items, of which 38 per cent were non-foods, ranging from hair spray to rawhide bones for dogs.

Chavis Jailed

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Black militant Ben Chavis was arrested by Wilmington police just after midnight today and charged with conspiracy to murder and other counts stemming from racial incidents in the port city in February, 1971.

Police Chief H. E. Williamson, who announced Chavis' arrest, said one other was made at the same time and that others were expected. He said Chavis was jailed under $75,000 bond.

The chief said Chavis was accused in the sniper shooting of Harvey Cumber, a white man, near a black church. Some blacks were in the church at the time and were surrounded by National Guardsmen.

Chavis, an organizer for the Committee for Racial Justice and a minister, was in jail several weeks ago on a charge of accessory after the fact in the death of Clifton Eugene Wright. He had been freed under $15,000 bond.

He is also under federal indictment for conspiracy to aid known criminals to escape the country.

Pirates Rally In Ninth To Stop Duke

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina spotted the Duke Blue Devils three runs and trailed until the ninth inning when the Pirates pulled within a run at 3-2 and then took their third straight win as Ronnie Leggett slapped a two-out single into left field for the go-ahead scores and a 4-3 victory.

The loss gives Duke a 3-2 record for the season. The Bucs are undefeated in three starts.

Dave LaRousa was credited with the win for ECU. He came on in the seventh replacing Don Oxidine who never could quite get going. In the three innings he pitched, LaRousa struck out four, walked one, and did not give up any hits.

Gordy Jackson, the loser, went eight innings and threw to four batters in the ninth. He scattered only five hits, two of them in the last frame, walked three, and whiffed two. Mickey Lozanoff gave up the key hit after the Blue Devils had gotten a double play that almost ended the Pirate rally.

The Pirates did not play a neat game. Only in the first and last innings did they put men in scoring position. Duke, however, kept gnawing away at the Bucs but could not hold off the surge in the last of the ninth.

Duke started the scoring off with a lone score in the opening frame. Bo Bochow and Jim Thompson both drew walks. John Poff reached on an error that loaded the bases. First baseman Dan Phelan blooped a fly into center scoring Bochow.

The Pirates came right back to tie it up. Ralph Lamm singled and moved up on Matt Walker's hit. Mike Aldridge hit into a fielder's choice putting Lamm on third but getting Walker at second. The Pirates then tried the double steal. As Aldridge broke for second, Duke's catcher, Steve Warner threw to the bag. Lamm started to go home and the second baseman fired back to Warner. He missed the ball, however, and Lamm was safe.

That was the way it stood for the next three frames. The Blue Devils put men on in each of the second, third, and fourth, but failed to score. Duke did manage to break the tie in the fifth. Bochow again led off the inning with a walk and stole second. He moved to third on an out and scored as Poff grounded to second.

Duke added another run in the sixth to up their lead to 3-1. Bill Furbush drew a free ticket and was sacrificed up. Oxidine tried to pick off Furbush but his throw went skittering into center field letting Furbush go to third. A wild pitch let him come across.

East Carolina went down in order until the ninth except for the fifth when Ron Staggs was walked. A double play ended the inning, however.

Then in the bottom of the last frame, the Pirates put it all together. Linwood Spears, pinch hitting for LaRousa got a free pass. Troy Easton ripped a hit into right advancing Spears. Both runners moved up as Lamm beat out an infield hit loading the bases. Walker drew another walk that forced in Spears making it 3-2. With the sacs still filed, Lozanoff came in the pitch and got Aldridge to hit into a double play, nailing Eason as he tried to score. That left runners on second and third and Larry Walters was walked. Leggett then stepped in and lined a shot down the foul stripe into left to keep alive the Pirate streak.

The Blue Devils got only one hit, by Warner. Lamm had a pair for ECU.

The Bucs travel to meet Davidson on Saturday. They return home next Thursday to host Dartmouth.

Saratoga Walks By Greene Cen.

SARATOGA—Saratoga Central High School used walks and a couple of scattered hits to gain a 9-0 victory over Greene Central's Rams yesterday.

It was the opening game of the year for the Rams.

The game was a scoreless tie until the third inning, when Greene Central's pitching collapsed. Joe Webb led off with a walk and Mike Carter doubled. Gary Pipkin walked, loading the bases. Tony Langaton reached on an error, scoring Webb with the first run.

John McKeel, Tom Hayes and Audie Evans each walked, forcing in three more runs. Ricky Vick singled to drive in two, and Joe Webb reached on a fielder's choice, scoring the final run.

Five more walks, coming in a row in the fifth inning brought in the other two runs.

Overall, the five Greene Central pitchers walked 12 and hit two. They allowed only three hits, but their wildness did them in. Saratoga's Hayes, who went all the way on the mound, struck out eight, and waled none. He retired 10 in a row until Mike x Perry got the first hit, a triple, off him. He then retired 10 more before the Rams got their only other hit of the game.

Carter and McKeel each had two-baggers for Saratoga.

The Rams travel to Southern Nash on Friday, meeting the Firebirds in the first Eastern Carolina Conference clash for the two.

Heels Begin Eastern Quest

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Sports Writer
MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Penn's Quakers and North Carolina's Tar Heels attempt to succeed where they ailed last year in first-round action of the Eastern Regional Basketball tournament tonight. Third-ranked Penn, 24-2, takes on 15th-rated Villanova, 20-6, while the second-ranked Tar Heels, 23-4, collide with No. 6 South Carolina, also 23-4.

Just one short year ago, the Quakers marched into the regional finals against underdog Villanova sporting a perfect 28-0 record. The Wildcats administered an embarrassing 90-47 pasting and established themselves as the tourney's surprise team.

North Carolina, too, felt the cold winds of upset last season. Battling to a regular season title in the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Tar Heels dropped a one-point decision to South Carolina in the conference's postseason tourney and lost the right to advance into the NCAA regionals.

This year, South Carolina is not affiliated with the ACC but once again looms as a major roadblock.

Walton, Lamar, Head All-America AP Selection

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walton, UCLA's lantern-jawed tower of strength, and Dwight Lamar, the nation's leading scorer from Southwestern Louisiana, were named today to the Associated Press' 1971-72 All-American basketball team.

The two stars, both dominating forces in their regions, were joined by Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State, Jim Chones of Marquette's and Tom Riker of South Carolina.

Walton, a 6-foot-11 center and the only sophomore on the first team, has been compared favorably to Kareem Abdul Jabbar (nee Lew Alcindor) and Bill Russell in their college days.

"I've never seen a player who makes the outlet pass and starts the fast break as well," said UCLA Coach John Wooden, who coached Jabbar and saw Russell play at San Francisco.

Lamar, one of the best shooters in the country in recent history, could become the only player to win the scoring title in both the college and university divisions. The 6-foot-1 ace was the college division leader last season when the Ragin' Cajuns were in that class and appears well on his way this year now that they've stepped up to major college status. He's averaging 36.7 a game in his junior year.

Ratleff, a junior guard who averaged almost 22 points a game this year, also was one of the team's toughest rebounders. Strong and quick at 6-6, Ratleff has been described as the best college guard in America since the day of Oscar Robertson and Jerry West.

The 6-11 Chones was Marquette's big strength before signing with the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association late in the season. Before leaving college, he scored almost 21 points and averaged 12 rebounds in 21 games of his junior season.

The 6-10 Riker, the only senior on the big team, was an outstanding forward in clutch situations. He averaged nearly 20 points and 10 rebounds a game.

"He's the best pro prospect in the country," said South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire of the beefy Riker.

Based on votes from sports writers and broadcasters around the nation, the second team All-America included Barry Parkhill of Virginia, Dwight Davis of Houston, Jim Price of Louisville, Henry Bibby of UCLA and Robert McAdoo of North Carolina.

The third team included Richie Fuqua of Oral Roberts; Princeton's Brian Taylor; Maryland's Tom McMillen; Bud Stallworth of Kansas, and Wil Robinson of West Virginia.

Indians' Gaylord Perry Ready Now For Season

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Start the season, Mr. Schemmle. Two of Cleveland's most important Indians are ready right now.

Distressed over the poorest record in baseball last season, General Manager Gabe Paul did a little shopping over the winter and came up with a couple of big names—pitcher Gaylord Perry and outfielder Alex Johnson.

Perry, acquired from San Francisco for Sam McDowell in an exchange of pitching superstars, must assume Sudden Sam's position of leadership of the staff. And he showed he was ready for that challenge with six shutout innings in Cleveland's 8-2 victory over San Diego in an exhibition game Wednesday.

Johnson, the American League's batting champion two years ago, but a washout last season, jolted his second homer of the spring and added a single. And nobody said a thing about his hustle.

Johnny Bench, as might be expected, and Bobby Brooks, as might not be expected, both had two homers apiece in Wednesday's action.

Bench, Cincinnati's slugging catcher, connected twice against Baltimore, driving in three Reds' runs.

Brooks, a non-roster outfielder trying to win a spot with the Oakland A's, drilled his second and third homers of the spring and added a single, driving in four runs in a 12-1 romp over California.

Joe Rudi, Brant Alveya and rookie Greg Schubert also homered for Oakland.

Rookie Carlton Fisk, mired in a 1-for-15 spring slump, snapped out of it with a two-run homer that gave Boston a 2-0 decision over St. Louis—the fifth straight loss for the Cardinals.

The Chicago Cubs managed only one hit over the first six innings but packed nine runs in their last two swings for an 11-2 victory over the Tokyo Lotte Orions.

Shortstop Rick Auerbach collected four consecutive singles as Milwaukee's 15-hit attack wore down San Francisco 9-4.

Johnny Edwards drove in three runs with a single and double as Houston blanked Atlanta 4-0.

Norm Cash and Aurelio Rodriguez cracked home runs and Detroit thumped Kansas City 6-2.

Four Pittsburgh errors—two of them wild pickoff throws by pitcher Jim Nelson—helped the New York Mets to a 9-4 victory over the Pirates.

The Phillies took the Chicago White Sox 8-6, taking control with a three-run sixth inning against Joe Horlen.

Don Sutton and Claude Osteen shared a five-hitter as the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Montreal 5-0.

The New York Yankees suffered their fifth shutout in 13 spring starts from Minnesota.

Duke Stickers Trim Pirates

Duke University took a 17-7 romp over East Carolina University in lacrosse yesterday. It was the opening match of the year for the Pirates.

The first quarter of the match was fast and furious with both teams scoring well. By the time the period was over, the Blue Devils had inched out into a 5-4 lead.

Then, in the second quarter, the Blue Devil defense came alive, and held East Carolina to only one goal. At the same time, Duke was able to pick up eight more and race away to a 13-5 halftime lead.

Duke scored two goals in each of the final two periods while East Carolina got a goal in each frame.

Claude Hilton led the Pirate scoring with three goals and one assist, while Mike Denniston and Tom Christensen each had two goals and one assist.

For Duke, Rice scored six goals and had one assist, while Overend had four goals and an assist. Miller and Corran each had two goals, while Norris, Brodsky and Johnson each scored single goals.

East Carolina plays host to Dartmouth in its next match, Tuesday at 3 p.m.

While everyone was talking about smoother taste,

a new smoothness happened.
Barton's QT.

Several years ago, we at Barton began storing away a whiskey unlike any other ever produced in this country.

A new whiskey distilled at a higher proof than most traditional American whiskey, and then stored in seasoned oak casks.

The result is the new smoothness of Barton's QT. The Quiet Taste. A whiskey made to give you all the mellow, full-bodied flavor you drink whiskey for. But with a noticeably smoother taste.

It's similar in character to the other popular American whiskeys, but lighter and milder than any whiskey you've ever tasted.

Because Barton's QT is the American whiskey that's literally made to taste smoother. Not just sound that way.

Duane Thomas Likens Football To A Career In Art

By WILL GRIMSLEY
DALLAS (AP) — Controversial Duane Thomas likes to compare his pro football career to a symphony—with dissonant, abrupt chords opening the movement but finishing with a theme that leaves the public in "wonder and awe."

"I almost reached the point of putting an end to my career," the normally silent running star of the champion Dallas Cowboys told The Associated Press in an unusual, exclusive interview.

"Art held me back—it being impossible to leave the world of football until I had brought forth all I had felt called to produce."

The 6-foot-1, 220-pound Super Bowl standout traced his life from a black Dallas ghetto through West Texas State College where he suffered discrimination and loneliness and into the hidden treacheries of a big time pro career.

Promising a return to what he called "the highest perfection," he said he would again some day stir the same feelings in football crowds that Beethoven's "Eroica"—or Heroic—Symphony evokes from music lovers.

That's the way Duane Thomas talks. Two months ago they were calling him "The Sphinx." They said he couldn't—or wouldn't—communicate. He became sports' man of mystery.

The interview took place in the neat middle class home of Floyd Iglehart, who coached Duane at Dallas' Lincoln High School and who helped persuade the powerful halfback to give his side of a story involving family tragedies, bitter clashes with the Dallas Cowboys administration and more recently an arrest on a marijuana charge.

Of the marijuana charge, on which he drew a five-year suspended sentence, Thomas merely said, "It's a funny world." He doesn't smoke and close associates insist his drinking is confined to an occasional beer.

Some of Duane's happiest days, he says, were spent at Lincoln High, where Iglehart was his coach.

"There was no way to discriminate there," Thomas explained. "Everybody was black. If I had a problem, I'd go to the coach. That's where it's different from pro ball."

From Lincoln High, Duane got a scholarship to West Texas State in Canyon, Tex.

His coach at West Texas State was Joe Kerbel, whom Duane battled but admired.

"He didn't give a damn what color you were as long as you got the job done," Duane said.

Duane was a junior when his father died of cancer. His mother died a year later. Burtrand, a younger brother, had three fingers of his right hand chopped off in an accident.

Franklin, an older brother, developed serious kidney trouble which resulted in heavy medical expenses.

Duane also was forced to support a wife he had married in high school, from whom he later separated, and two children, a girl and a boy.

"Naturally, I ran up a sizeable debt. Who wouldn't under such circumstances? Several times I started to leave school but Coach Ike (Iglehart) always came over and persuaded me to stay."

Thomas was the No. 1 draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys and was an immediate success, averaging 7.3 yards a carry in his rookie year.

Yet there were clashes with the Cowboys administration, largely due to the Cowboys failure to redress an inferior three-year contract calling for a base pay of $20,000 to $22,000.

"The thing is that my way of living, where I come from, doesn't coincide with everything that's associated with the Dallas organization," Thomas said. "There were personality conflicts, prejudice and jealousy."

"I saw no appreciation from them—for my hard work, my dedication and my sincerity. All of this was being exploited."

Duane called a press conference last July in Dallas at which he sharply criticized the Dallas management. He subsequently was traded to the New England Patriots where he lasted only three days.

Thomas earned a varsity role with the Cowboys in 1971, running for 793 yards and a 4.5 average and scoring 13 touchdowns. He was a hero of the Super Bowl, rolling up 95 yards in 19 carries in the 24-3 victory over Miami.

Meanwhile, he placed himself in a virtual isolation booth, refusing all formal interviews and declining to answer even the simplest questions.

"They don't pay me to communicate," he said. "They pay me to play football, and I do my job. If they want a man to communicate, they should hire Howard Cosell." The reference was to the salty ABC commentator.

Demonstration At NCCU Held

DURHAM (AP) — Students have demonstrated for equal representation on campus committees, better food service, and other grievances at North Carolina Central University.

About 500 students at the predominantly black school demonstrated Wednesday night at the home of Albert Whiting, the president, and then at the Student Union building.

Harvey White, president of the student body, said they also were asking 24-hour medical service at the infirmary, better security, and more guards in dormitories, better maid service and improved lighting in the dormitories, and more information on what student fees are spent for. They complained about the scheduling of the pre-Easter holidays.

Wallace No Reactionary, Says Agnew

By JERRY BROWN
Associated Press Writer

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says Alabama Gov. George Wallace has been the subject of a lot of unfair political innuendo even though there was nothing radical about his campaigning for this week's Florida primary.

"I haven't heard him say anything that I would consider radical during that campaign," Agnew said Wednesday during a speech at Drake University in Des Moines.

But, Agnew added, "it seems to be the general impression—and this is again characteristic of the political innuendo that streaks back and forth across the nation...that he is somewhat of a reactionary person who is trying to deprive the minority groups of their freedom and bring out the worst of their emotions, causing us to divide as a people."

Agnew said that "something Gov. Wallace was saying must have struck a responsive chord in more than just the people of one section of Florida."

Wallace received 42 per cent of the vote in Tuesday's Democratic primary in Florida. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota placed second with 18 per cent, followed by Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington at 13 per cent and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine at 9 per cent.

Agnew was critical of a statement by Muskie denouncing Wallace's victory.

"When a man wins an election he shouldn't be referred to as a demagogue," Agnew said.

Wallace will compete next in the April 4 Wisconsin primary, where he got 24 per cent of the vote in 1964. He declined to predict how well he will do this year, but said "we know that the average citizen in Wisconsin, and other states, in my judgment, feels just like they do in Florida."

However, Humphrey said he considers the issues in Wisconsin far different from those in Florida.

"I don't consider the Wisconsin electorate the same as the Florida electorate," Humphrey said at a news conference in Milwaukee.

Wisconsin's primary includes all 11 Democrats who were on the Florida ballot plus Rep. Patsy Mink of Hawaii.

Muskie, viewed by many as the Democratic front-runner before Florida, enters Wisconsin as an underdog, according to his state campaign manager.

Muskie also is competing in next Tuesday's Illinois primary, where he is challenged on separate fronts by Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota.

Muskie and McGovern are competing for a share of the 160 national convention delegates who will be elected Tuesday.

However, McGovern is not entered in the separate preferential contest which heads the Illinois ballot. Muskie and McCarthy are the only contestants in that battle.

Convict Two Of Bombing

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — Two youths were convicted Wednesday of conspiracy to bomb the home of a Burlington narcotics detective and two were acquitted.

Jeffrey S. Martindale, 18, of Burlington, one of those convicted by a Superior Court jury, was sentenced by Judge Henry A. McKinnon Jr. to 13-15 years in prison.

He was on trial on a narcotics charge at the time of the alleged bombing attempt. His conviction on the narcotics charge is under appeal.

Thomas M. Hanford, 20, of Burlington, was sentenced to 10-15 years.

Judge McKinnon set their appeal bonds at $25,000 each.

William J. Stollings, 20, of Burlington, and Steve Boggs, 19, of Graham, were acquitted.

The jury deliberated about five hours.

Charges against a fifth defendant, Glen A. Lee, 20, of Burlington, were dropped on order of the judge, who found lack of evidence.

The youths were charged with being responsible for the planting of a bomb outside the home in which Police Sgt. O. F. Hoggard, his wife and three children were asleep last Nov. 30. Only firecrackers intended as detonators exploded.

Paraders Given Light Sentence

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A Belfast court has ordered a six-month suspended sentence for civil rights leader Bernadette Devlin and 22 others accused of defying a ban on parades.

Miss Devlin a 24-year-old member of Parliament, and her codefendants were also fined $39 for parading in Newry Feb. 6 to protest the slaying of 13 Londonderry civilians by British army troops on Jan. 30.

Jobless Statistics Are Poor Economic Yardstick

By JEAN HELLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Using the government's monthly unemployment statistics as a measure of the nation's economic health is, at best, a tricky business. At its worst, the report can be misleading.

For example, the current unemployment rate indicates the nation is in a recession. If so, then why are consumers spending so much money?

Throughout 1971, the unemployment rate hovered around 6 per cent, the highest level since the 1961 recession. Nonetheless, housing starts were up last year. New car buying soared. For a while, at least, inflation looked like a runaway. Newspaper classified pages were full of help wanted ads.

Almost nothing else in the economy coincided with the high unemployment statistics.

The reason lies beyond the over-all jobless rate, in the basic structure of the American labor force. It has changed drastically in the last 10 years, and economists agree that the solutions for unemployment will have to change just as drastically.

When the Labor Department announced earlier this month that February unemployment had dipped to 5.7 percent, the rejoicing was premature. Even if that figure should prove to be a continuing downward trend, the basic problems now facing the American labor force will not have eased. In 1961, the total civilian labor force numbered 70.5 million. About 4.7 million were unemployed, giving a 6.7 unemployment rate. Prime-age men, 25 and older, accounted for 56.2 per cent of the labor force and had a 5.2

per cent unemployment rate. Prime-age women were 26.9 per cent of the labor force and had a 5.8 per cent unemployment rate. Teen-agers were 7 per cent of the labor force and had a 16.8 per cent jobless rate.

In 1971, there were 84 million in the labor force with just over 5 million unemployed for a 6 per cent unemployment rate. Prime-age men had dropped to 49.6 per cent of the labor force with a 3.5 per cent unemployment rate. Prime-age women had grown to 28.2 per cent of the labor force with a 5 per cent unemployment rate. Teen-agers became 8.9 per cent of the labor force with a 16.9 per cent unemployment rate.

One crucial difference is that, in 10 years, unemployment among prime-age men dropped from a serious 5.2 per cent to 3.5 per cent, a rate generally considered to represent full employment.

Perhaps even more telling is the difference in the rate for all married men. They accounted for 51.5 per cent of the labor force in 1961 and had a 4.6 unemployment rate. In 1971 they were 46.6 per cent of the labor force and their jobless rate was only 3.2 per cent.

The low 1971 unemployment rates among prime-age and married men has been the center of a sometimes bitter debate between Nixon administration economists and critics of administration economic policies.

Administration economists contend the figure proves that unemployment really isn't as bad as it seems. For example, Geoffrey H. Moore, federal commissioner of labor statistics, wrote in the Wall Street Journal that the civilian labor force had ballooned in 1971 so that while unemployment was increasing, so was employment.

Bureau of Labor Statistics charts show the civilian labor force grew in 1971 by approximately 1.5 million people; the total number of employed grew by just one-third this amount.

George L. Perry, an economist with the Brookings Institution, strongly disagrees. In fact, he contends, it is precisely because of the current employment trends that the United States, for the first time in its history, is experiencing a sort of inflationary recession.

Perry's theory is based on weighed unemployment rates, in effect, giving different types of workers differing ratios of impact on the economy.

According to his theory, if 6 per cent of the nation's prime-age men are unemployed, the result would tend to be a depressant on the wage-price spiral. If, on the other hand, there is relatively full employment among prime-age men, wages and then prices will spiral upward.

However, relatively high unemployment among teen-agers exerts relatively little downward pressure on wages. Because of the types of jobs women tend to hold, the same would be true of their unemployment, although not to the extent that it's true for teen-agers.

As a result, the recent relatively low unemployment among prime-age men has created a very strong upward wage pressure without a corresponding downward pressure from unemployed women and teen-agers.

Democrats Said To Need Votes Going To Wallace

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats need Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in their corner if they are to unseat President Nixon, according to several Southern officeholders. And, they said, if such an alliance requires liberal elements of the party to bend Wallace's way on some issues, they must do it or write off the South. The assessments came in interviews and statements from several governors and senators Wednesday, after Wallace won the Florida Democratic primary with 42 per cent of the vote. South Carolina Gov. John C. West said Wallace "could well do for the Democratic party what Sen. Strom Thurmond did for the Republicans" in 1968, campaigning for the presidential candidate throughout the region. Georgia Sen. David H. Gambrell said the governor "has now become a national candidate" with populist-oriented issues. Gambrell said Wallace "has a good chance to go on to become nominated at the convention unless the party leadership accepts the issues that he is making as being their cause rather than exclusively his cause."

Sen. James B. Allen of Alabama said Wallace's victory made him either the candidate or the kingmaker of the Democratic convention in Miami Beach next July. "If Wallace does not win the Democratic nomination," Allen said, "he will certainly have considerable influence in deciding who does."

Pitt Red Cross Chapter Meets

The Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross held its quarterly meeting Wednesday night with Joe Clark, chapter chairman, presiding.

Some 12 Pitt chapter members attended the session at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The business agenda included various reports by county committee chairmen.

Miss Nell Stallings, first aid and water safety chairman, introduced and discussed a new method now being used in teaching standard first aid. Miss Stallings showed a portion of a film that is used in multi-media first aid instruction.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, of South Carolina said Wallace's victory pinpoints the issues bothering Americans, and the Democrats had better "learn a lesson" from the Alabama governor.

Wallace's campaign was chiefly antibusing. His speeches also criticized the plight of the average American who faces increasingly high taxes.

"Being against busing that destroys a community is not racist," Hollings said. "That's clear to the fellow running the filling station. 'It's not clear to the national candidates." Even Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Wallace "has gained considerably as a result of his victory and, in my opinion, he is a force to be reckoned with. He is campaigning on issues of concern to the people, like tax reform."

West noted that Nixon won the presidency in 1968 with less than a majority of the american electorate. The governor said he thinks whoever Wallace supports will inherit most of the governor's support—which in his 1968 third-party bid was nearly 10 million voters. "If we can come out of the Miami convention with a working Democratic majority and Wallace still in the party," West said, "Mr. Nixon's in deep trouble."

West said Wallace is not likely to support President Nixon's re-election bid because the GOP's image as closely associated with big business is alien to Wallace's populist campaign.

Friday Appears Choice

RALEIGH (AP) — President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina still appears headed for the presidency of the state's new 16-campus university system.

This was emphasized Wednesday when two other possible contenders for the job did not show up for interviews at the governor's mansion and a third, Dr. H. F. Robinson, provost of Purdue University, told a newsmen he was "not looking for a job."

Friday, meanwhile, met for dinner with Gov. Bob Scott and members of a committee of the new university system governing board which will recommend a president to the full board.

The committee may make its recommendation when the board meets in Greensboro Friday still in a planning committee role.

Chancellor John Caldwell of North Carolina State University and Dr. Cameron West, former state director of higher education who is now a consolidated university vice president, had been invited to appear before the committee for consideration for the presidency, but both declined.

Robinson, a former official at NCSU, accepted an invitation to appear before the committee. But before he went in, he told a reporter, "I'm not looking for a job. I already have a very good one."

Anxious For Peace Talks

NEW DELHI (AP) — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan says he is anxious for peace talks with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and indicates readiness to drop his country's 25-year-old claim to Kashmir.

In an interview published today by two Indian newspapers, Bhutto said he is ready to leave the Kashmir dispute to the people of the disputed Himalayan state, which has been a sore point between India and Pakistan for years.

Bhutto told the Indian papers he is looking forward anxiously to meeting Mrs. Gandhi either in New Delhi or Pakistan.

Bhutto said he has favored political and military confrontation with India over Kashmir and other disputes but now wants to turn to consultation and negotiation, the Indian newspapers reported.

Publication of the interview coincided with a statement by Mrs. Gandhi that India is ready to hold discussions with Pakistan "on matters of mutual interest." But in an interview with a Bangladesh news agency, she said the Bangladesh government would have to be a party to any negotiations involving Bangladesh.

The Worry Clinic
Obesity Often
Is A Crippler

Terry bought a revolver; made his will, and was on the verge of suicide. For he felt he was already "over the hill" and prematurely platonic. But within 90 days, notice what happened! Wives, many of you can also serve better "cheese-cake" via the advice below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case T-527: Terry G., aged, 38, is a sex cripple.

"Dr. Crane," he moaned, "here I am, hardly at middle age, but I am an impotent husband."

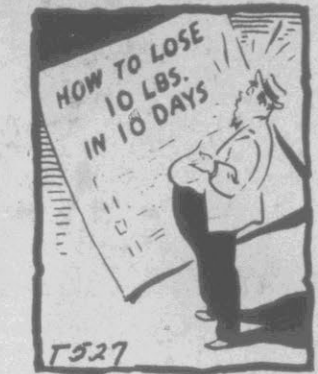

"Yet I have two brothers in the late 40s and they are still virile and vigorous."

"I've tried medical treatments but to no avail. I feel so blue I contemplate checking out altogether."

"In fact, I have purchased a revolver and recently made my will, though I haven't told my wife of that fact."

She is an attractive woman and very considerate, so I feel often become abnormally fat. Surgical castration thus produces obesity.

But obesity can likewise produce a somewhat sexless type of person.

Indeed, it also can even prevent otherwise healthy wives from getting pregnant.

So I urged Terry to go on that famous "10 Day Dehydration Diet" while the weather is still cool and thus lose off 30 to 40 pounds.

But I also advised him to cut out his cigarettes, for they can render even a thin man impotent.

And I exacted a solemn promise from Terry to follow his new medical regimen for at least 90 days.

Meanwhile, I elicited the eager aid of his devoted wife concerning his dieting plan.

He promised to stress protein foods, raw vegetables and fruits, but the first 10 days he was to reduce his total fluid intake, for that kills hunger considerably.

At the end of 10 days, Terry weighed 206, which encouraged him.

And he had broken his slavery to tobacco meanwhile keeping the cigarette hand constantly active, as by twirling his key ring, playing with rubber bands, or twirling his pencil, end over end, to drain off pent-up energy via such muscles.

Before the end of the 90 days, Terry's weight dropped to 185. Meanwhile, his wife had begun to increase her seductive allure in the boudoir and stress more cheesecake.

"Dr. Crane," Terry exulted, "I'm a new man! And no longer platonic!"

So send for the booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

It will also slenderize you pump wives so you can serve more boudoir cheesecake to your fearful mates!

(Always write to Dr. Crane, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Black Study At Naval Academy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — "A survey of black history and culture" has been introduced into the curriculum of the history department at the U.S. Naval Academy this semester.

Prof. John Huston, acting director of the history department, said that "with the increasing number of black students at the academy and a corresponding increase of black enlisted Navy personnel with whom academy graduate officers will deal, it is important midshipmen be exposed to the black culture and its historical significance."

Anti-Snow Test Was Frustrated

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Scientists working on an antisnow cloud-seeding experiment over Lake Erie says they were frustrated when "nature chose not to cooperate."

The experiment was designed to reduce the impact on western New York of snowstorms which develop when cold winds blow along the length of the relatively warm lake.

The idea was to seed clouds

Postal Service Admits 'Snafu' In Misplacing 319 Sacks Of Mail

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The misplacing of a railroad car packed with 319 sacks of mail, for 25 months, was apparently the fault of the post office, after all.

After at first blaming the Penn-Central Railroad for losing the car, the U.S. Postal Service admitted Wednesday that the snafu was caused by "a serious error" by postal authorities.

An investigation initiated by Police Chief John Cinni of New Castle, Del., led to the discovery of the car on March 8 on an obscure track near Perryville, Md.

A railroad spokesman said the Postal Service mistakenly reported the contents of the car had been transferred to a second car when the original was put in a repair shop. Actually, the spokesman said, the mail remained in the first car.

The spokesman also said it was the post office's responsibility to notify the railroad if a scheduled shipment did not arrive. No such notification was ever received from Birmingham, Ala., the post office to which the shipment was destined, the spokesman said.

Teacher Relates Work To Ass'n

Mrs. Marilyn Love, teacher of trainable children at Wahl-Coates School, told members of the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children how she works with her students.

At the meeting at Wahl-Coates Wednesday night, she explained the class schedule, and told of ideas she uses. A period of discussion by parents, teachers, and friends of the retarded children and how to make the public more aware of these programs followed.

Mrs. W. M. Murphy, president, presided at the business session. Mrs. Jean Cayton, of Farmville was elected secretary for the new year and Dr. Rexford Piner was elected to fill a vacancy on the Board of Directors.

"A serious error occurred," a postal spokesman acknowledged, "when a terminal company supervisor and a Postal Service representative certified that this particular car had been completely unloaded and that the mail had been transferred for forwarding to its destination."

An original statement blaming Penn Central was made by LeRoy V. Greene, formerly regional operations director for the Post Office Department in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

Green, now director of communications for the Postal Service's southern region, said most of the cargo was parcel post from mail order firms near Atlantic City, or third class items such as books, library film and advertisements bound for Birmingham.

Greene said that delivery started Wednesday, with each package accompanied by a letter of apology from H. W. Egerton, in charge of the Birmingham Post Office.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

By DUANE WILLIAMS
Conley's students and their guests are expecting to have loads of fun this Friday night, at the freshmen-sponsored dance. It will be an informal occasion held in the student commons area with an admission of $1.00 per person. Dance hours are from seven to midnight.

Some students at Conley will soon be traveling to Durham for a weekend of fun and work. They are members of Conley's Future Business Leaders of America. Students who will be traveling to the convention include the Parliamentary Procedures Team, a candidate for Miss F.B.L.A. and other members who will participate in the planned weekend activities.

Fashion Show

Juniors will be conducting a Fashion Show, Tuesday night in the D. H. Conley auditorium. The Belk-Tyler Teen Board will be doing the actual modeling of the clothes. Proceeds of the benefit will help with expenses of the Junior-Senior Prom. Admittance will be 50 cents, and - Oh! I almost forgot—the seniors really do appreciate the juniors making all of this money to help with the prom.

Parents will get their chance to see Conley when Conley sponsors the Parents Visitation Day, March 23, from 9:00 - 11:00 a.m. An interesting program will be presented to parents and guardians of students who are in the special Title I programs.

J. L. Keeter, assistant superintendent of Pitt County Schools, will give a talk on the special programs in Title I at Conley. Color slides and budget information will be supplied to add to the program.

After the program, a guided tour will be conducted of the special programs including bricklaying, drafting, home economics, introduction to occupations, math resource and reading lab. I'm sure all of the parents will thoroughly enjoy this program.

Finally, I would like to remind everyone that Conley's baseball and track seasons have opened, so follow the DAILY REFLECTOR sports!

Dedicatory Address By Adolescents Becoming Old At A Faster Rate

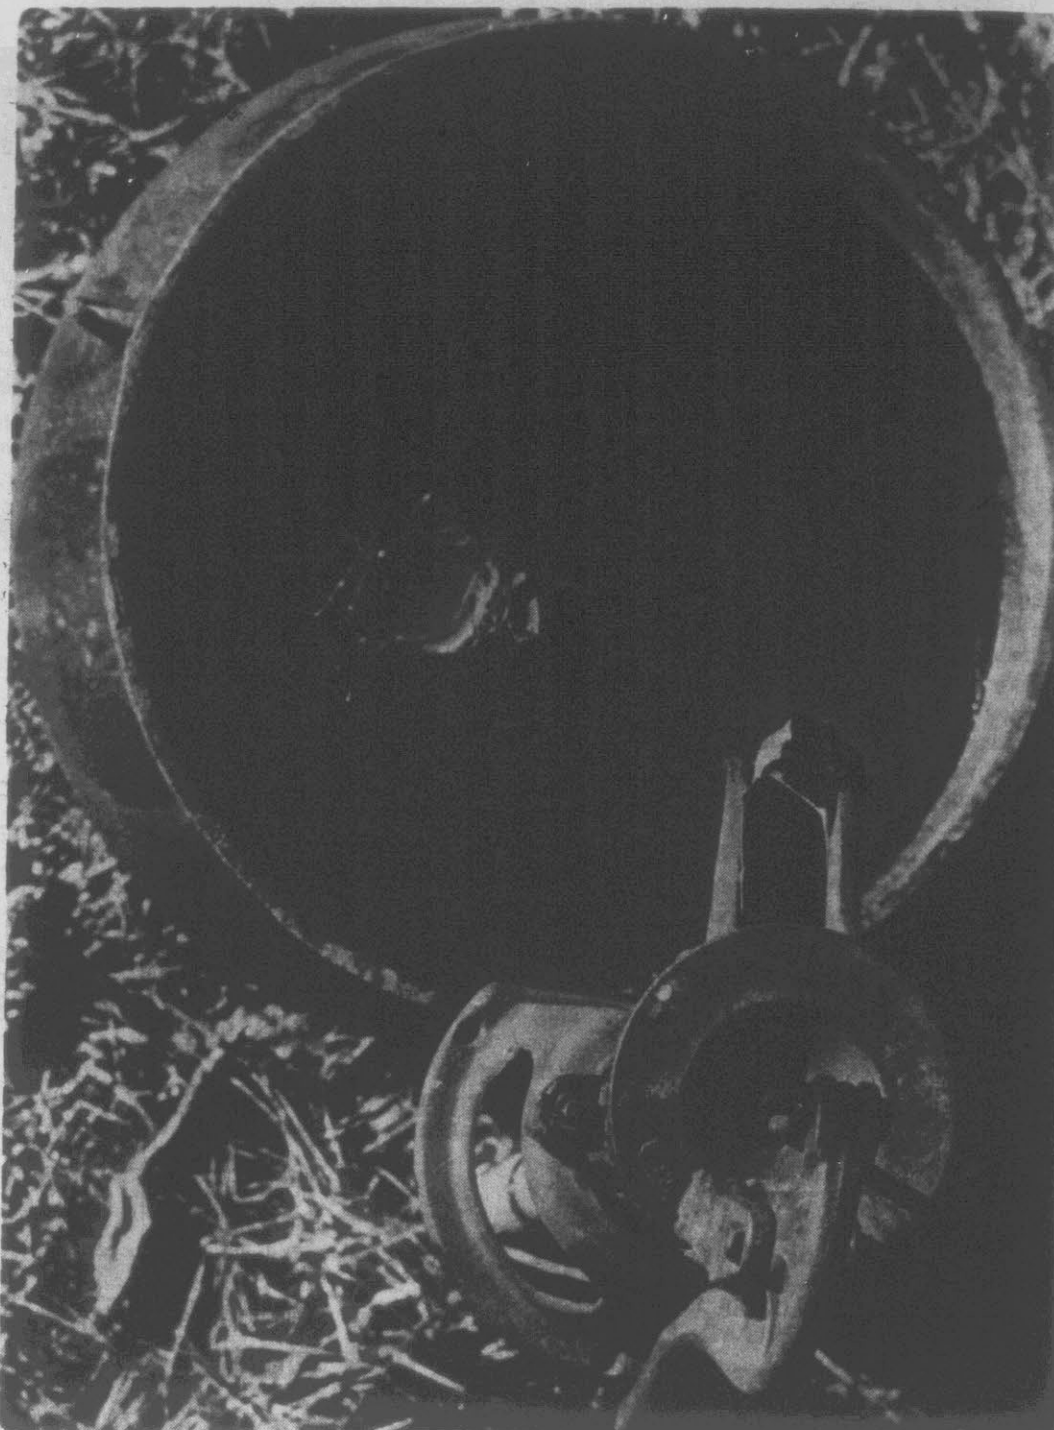

AYDEN—First District Congressman Walter B. Jones will be the keynote speaker for the dedication ceremonies of the new Ayden Municipal Building. Ceremonies and open house will be held from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The new facility is located on the corner of West Avenue and Third Street and was built at a cost of $350,000, including the land, building and furnishings. The two-story brick masonry structure with its 14,465 square feet, houses the town's administrative offices, the Police Department with jail facilities, the Fire Department and Rescue Squad, offices of the director of the Ayden Economic Council and the District Court and related offices.

Architects for the project were Dudley and Shoe of Greenville. The general contractor was Hardy-Harvey, Inc., of Kinston.

NAIL GUN WAS FATAL
SYDNEY (AP) — Robert Walter Davies, 39, was showing two fellow workmen the safety features of a cartridge-powered nail gun when it accidentally went off.

A nail was driven into Davies' stomach, and he died a few hours later.

IRON KETTLE OF YESTERYEAR — An old worn iron kettle sits under an old pump basking in the warm March sun. An old bird's nest has floated down to land on the water, making way for spring. Items like the old pump and kettle remind people that spring was just the same a hundred years ago as it is today, with the exception of a few modern conveniences. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Adolescents Becoming Old At A Faster Rate

By C. G. MCDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A psychiatrist says adolescents are becoming old younger. He advises parents of teen-agers to "get off their backs."

"If you haven't got inside your children in the first 12 or 13 years of life, you never will," says Dr. E. James Anthony, a St. Louis psychoanalyst.

Parental pushing—especially in the middle class—to have children achieve more and more at younger and younger ages is responsible in part for the psychological exhaustion, of adolescents, making them depressed and bored, he said.

Anthony, a native of London, holds faculty appointments at Washington University at St. Louis, the Institute for Psychoanalysis in Chicago and the University of Chicago.

The adolescent, Anthony said in an interview expanding on a formal report, "feels not only that he carries his own problems, but the aspirations and ambitions of his parents also."

"Nothing is more aging than this constant pressure," he said. "The load is very hard for him to carry."

Old age is in many respects "a point of view, a particular perspective," Anthony said.

"Oldness, as seen from the perspective of adolescence, has been falling earlier and earlier," he said, citing the case of an adolescent who dreaded reaching the "old age" of 18.

"The aging adolescent and the aging adult have a lot of features in common," the psychoanalyst said.

"For both, the future looks black and unappealing, both are intensely self-absorbed ... both can be extremely hypochondriacal and concerned with their bodies, which is not surprising because, in both, profound bodily alterations are taking place."

"Both are heavily engaged in the battle for interdependency, but both have periods when they relapse into extreme dependency, both can pass days in endlessly doing nothing, feeling that there is nothing to do."

"The suicide rate climbs steeply in the older adolescent and the older adult," he said.

The aging adolescent "can be rejuvenated and given a new lease on life," sometimes with professional help, sometimes on his own, said Anthony.

Hospital Report Said 'Political'

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — H. G. MacLean, a past president of the North Carolina Mental Health Association, has labeled as purely political a recently published study of state mental hospitals.

In a strongly worded statement issued at a news conference Wednesday, MacLean criticized Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, for using the study in such a way as to be a "vicious, unfair attack" on the state's mental health department and its hospitals.

The study was made by a committee of the Mental Health Association.

The charges came in a news conference held at the Alamance-Caswell Mental Health Center in Burlington, which operates in connection with the John Umstead Hospital at Butler.

Taking part in the news conference, in addition to MacLean, were J. Donald Wolfe, chairman of the Alamance-Caswell Area Mental Health Board, and Dr. Robert Ratcliffe, director of the two-county mental health center.

MacLean spoke caustically of several persons he said were involved with the report, which charges mismanagement and neglect in state mental hospitals.

MacLean said the report was issued when it was for the effect it could have on the May 6 primary. The report was released by Mrs. Leif Valand, a Raleigh civic leader who headed the committee which made the study.

"I am resolved that this whole study was politically motivated," MacLean said. "Politics should not be a part of mental health, other than the fact that the Mental Health Association is charged with the responsibility of convincing General Assembly members of the needs of the Mental Health Department."

Mrs. Valand could not be reached for comment, and Bowles also was unavailable.

However, Bowles' campaign manager, Jake Forelich of High Point, said it was possible the people assisting the candidate in research might have seen some portions of the report, "just as they have seen portions of other reports before they're released" to the public.

SUPPORT INCREASES
LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) —

More than $1.5 million in support of Texas Tech was handled through the Texas Tech University Foundation during 1971.

That is a net increase of almost a quarter of a million dollars over the previous year, according to B. K. Beckwith, chief administrator for the foundation.
