Bloody Palm Unexplained

MYSTERY — Cloretta Robertson, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Robertson of Oakland, shows a bloody palm. Her parents say the bleeding has been occurring at times for more than a week. There are no evident wounds. Doctors at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Oakland have tentatively diagnosed the phenomena as "Easter bleeding syndrome." She is undergoing other tests. "It just sort of comes on", Cloretta says. "I don't know before. It doesn't hurt. I just look down and it's there." (AP Wirephoto)

Grocery Prices Trigger Sharp Living Cost Jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest jump in grocery prices in 14 years last month triggered the sharpest rise in overall living costs since before President Nixon imposed economic controls, the government reported today.

The Consumer Price Index, measuring typical family living costs, rose five-tenths of one per cent in February, the largest increase in nine months, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Grocery prices, which include a number of items that are not subject to federal price controls, soared 1.9 per cent for the greatest one-month increase since March of 1958, the report said.

The report followed the resignation of three AFL-CIO members of Nixon's Pay Board, who charged the government was rigidly holding down wages while letting prices continue to climb.

The bureau also reported that average weekly earnings of some 45 million rank-and-file workers rose 35 cents a week to $130.27, but that purchasing power declined 24 cents because of the rise in consumer prices.

The February boost pushed the price index up to 123.8 per cent of its 1967 average. This means it cost $12.38 last month for every $10 worth of typical family purchases five years ago.

The February increase was the greatest since a six-tenths of one per cent rise last June, two months before Nixon imposed a 90-day wage-price freeze which was then followed by Phase 2 controls.

The bureau said that, so far in the four months of Phase 2, living costs have risen at an annual rate of 4.9 per cent, greater than the 4.1 per cent rate in the six months before Nixon's August economic freeze.

Prices had been held to an annual rate of 1.7 per cent during the rigid three-month freeze that preceded the looser Phase 2 controls.

Communists Raid S. Viet Villages

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces slashed into a district town in the Mekong Delta on Wednesday firing automatic weapons and rocket grenades and killed 19 of the local militiamen and police and nine of their wives and children.

Another 29 of the defenders were wounded in the attack on Truc Giang, 50 miles southwest of Saigon. The assault force destroyed the police headquarters and a housing complex for the families of the defenders and heavily damaged the district headquarters, the Saigon command said.

Spokesmen said the enemy left nine dead behind, and one man was captured, along with a B40 rocket grenade launcher and four AK47 assault rifles.

Communist forces also attacked the command post of a South Vietnamese armored cavalry regiment in southern Cambodia early today, shelled the main South Vietnamese base for the current operations in eastern Cambodia and fired 261 rockets and mortar rounds at five government positions along the demilitarized zone and farther south near Hue.

Twenty-nine rockets hit the big Tay Ninh West base camp 60 miles northwest of Saigon in two barrages late Wednesday, killing seven persons, wounding seven and destroying more than 100,000 gallons of fuel. The dead included four children who were hit when some of the 100-pound missiles overshot the base and landed in a residential area.

It was the second attack on the base in as many days. Communist snappers invaded it Tuesday, killing 13 South Vietnamese troops and wounding 14.

Tay Ninh West is the headquarters for the 10,000-man South Vietnamese offensive now under way against enemy base camps in eastern Cambodia. Field reports said that force uncovered new ammunition and supply depots and captured more than 2,000 rocket, mortar and recoilless rifle shells, 5,000 uniforms, 2,000 hammocks and 65 sheets of iron.

Board Couldn't Go Beyond First Item On Agenda

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Before a decision was made to adjourn, the meeting of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Board last night had reached a point closely resembling the happy confusion of a 19th century Chinese opera to which a touch of spring madness had been thrown in for good measure.

For the first half hour of the city meeting following the short Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission meeting, all was proceeding in the usual manner, despite a lengthy and spirited confrontation between two parties present at the meeting in connection with the first item on the agenda.

The commissioners never got past the opening agenda item, a request by J. A. Speight for rezoning lots 15 and 16 of the Speight Subdivision located near the center of U.S. 264 business and U.S. 264 by-pass. Speight is seeking to have the property rezoned from R-9 residential to highway commercial.

Speaking on his own behalf, Speight noted that his reasons for requesting rezoning was that he was paying taxes on property that was not bringing in money; and that he could find willing buyers if the property was rezoned highway commercial.

Attorney Fred Mattox was the first spokesman for residents of Speight Subdivision adjacent to and in the vicinity of the two lots in question.

Mattox gave members present a petition which he claimed was signed by 100 percent of the people living in Speight Subdivision with the exception of one person. "Speight reserved a commercial area along Tenth Street to which there was no objection," Mattox noted. "The original map of the subdivision indicates the property would be residential on the by-pass side.

"On behalf of my clients I want to strenuously voice objections. Speight developed the area. It was his map. If there was an error, let him be the one to bear responsibility."

Speight, responding to a statement Mattox had made about the possibility of residential property losing value in the event the two lots were approved for highway commercial, pointed out that the Heath property across Tenth Street had been rezoned for the Ford place. "That property is now double the value of mine," Speight commented. He then told the approximately 25 residents of Speight Sub-Division on hand "I will buy each house and pay you what it sold for the first time."

After this statement from Speight, several resident asked permission to speak.

"This came before the City Council three or four years ago," Rudolph Alexander observed. "We expressed our concern then. Are we to be faced with this type of question over and over. The council denied the request then without a dissenting vote."

Two or three of those voicing objections mentioned their concern in not receiving notification in advance of rezoning action, City Planner Dillon Watson told the group that the planning board makes recommendation only and that any rezoning action must come before the City Council and be publicly advertised in the local newspaper.

Mrs. Paul Austin, one of the residents of the subdivision objecting to rezoning, informed the commission that last Speight bear the brunt of unfair accusations, Speight had informed her and several others of the request he was making.

Commission member Louis Singleton asked, as a supposition, what the opinion of the residents would be in the event Speight should seek to build multiple-family type dwelling on the lots, with a buffer zone.

Alexander and others replied they would object to any use of the property for anything other than single family residents.

It was at this point that the meeting proceeded from confusion to confusion.

"I move we make no recommendation on this matter," Singleton commented.

"There's no quorum present," City Manager Harry Hagerty remarked. "I don't know whether you can make such a recommendation under the circumstances."

"If you don't have enough people here to take action, what are we doing here anyway?" Earl Deal, one of the subdivision residents, asked.

"Let me clarify," Hagerty answered, "this board only recommends action to the City Council. I can assure you no action can be taken by this board."

City Councilman William Dansey, attending as a spectator, asked permission to make a statement. "It is my feeling any recommendation made without a quorum would not carry much weight with the City Council."

Singleton then made a motion to adjourn the meeting, which was seconded by Isaac Artis. Before the motion was put to a vote, however, Mattox asked to interrupt for a moment. "Can the minutes reflect that I be notified when this will come up again so that I can contact my clients?"

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pay Board remained in business today, determined to continue in one form or another despite the walkout of three labor members.

"I think it very likely that the Pay Board will go on, but how and in what manner remains to be seen," Chairman George H. Boldt said. "There's more than one way to skin a cat."

The board planned tentatively to continue work today on proposals to drop wage controls from small firms and to give some further relief to low-wage-earners.

The absence of three labor votes decreased the likelihood that any such proposals would be adopted. In any event they would require approval of the Cost of Living Council.

Meanwhile, the White House faced a decision on whether to allow the board to continue in its suddenly lopsided condition, or to reshape it in some way.

A number of options appear open. Balance could be restored by adding three more union or nonunion representatives of labor or by paring away three public and three business members.

Also, the board could be reconstituted entirely of public members, as is the Price Commission. Before Wednesday's resignations, the board comprised five members, each from labor, business and the public.

Another alternative would be to do nothing. With three labor votes gone, the board's decisions could become more conservative and the administration could point to the absent union chiefs as the reason.

"If I were the President," one nonunion board member said, "I'd wait until the dust settles before doing anything."

After today's meeting, the board plans a two-week Easter recess. Although it was scheduled long before AFL-CIO President George Meany and two AFL-CIO colleagues resigned Wednesday, the break will serve to give the administration some breathing space.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the board will not be disbanded, but also didn't comment on what its future form might be.

Meanwhile the board should have little trouble functioning.

Residency Law Facing Attack

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Republican Chairman Frank Rouse announced today the state GOP intends to file suit in federal district court to try to overturn the state's one-year residency requirement for voting in state and congressional elections.

Rouse said in spite of the action, no decision can be reached before the April 7 deadline for registering to vote in the May 6 primary.

He said, "Thousands of North Carolinians will be disenfranchised during the primary elections in May. We feel confident, however, that the court will have reached a decision before the general election in November," Rouse stated.

The Republican action was prompted by a U.S. Supreme Court ruling Tuesday striking down Tennessee's one-year residency requirement for voting.

"Although this action may bring about the registration of a greater number of Democrats than Republicans, we cannot sit idly by while North Carolinians, regardless of their party affiliation, are denied their basic constitutional rights," Rouse said.

Temporary Sites

The Pitt County Board of Elections has authorized two teams of black registrars to set up temporary registration sites in the county this weekend.

As a convenience to black, as well as white residents, the board has given permission for the teams to establish sites on Friday and Saturday in Winterville and Greenville.

On Friday, from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m., one team will hold registration at the Hammond Building in Winterville and the second team will set up at the Greenville Meadowbrook Recreation Center during the same hours.

On Saturday, the Winterville team will be at the Hammond Building from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. and the black team working in Greenville will be at the Recreation Center during the same hours.

The board emphasized that it is not operating the two sites but has given permission for the black registrars to pick the places they wish to hold registration. The sites will be open Friday and Saturday for this particular election only.

GOP Senators Oppose Paying Legal Expenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators are trying to keep the Senate from paying the legal expenses of Sen. Mike Gravel in a case resulting from the Alaska Democrat's emotional late-night presentation of the Pentagon papers. A series of votes today will determine just how far the Senate's role in Gravel's behalf will go, including assumption of legal expenses that could go as high as $100,000.

Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, is spearheading a GOP effort to either block payment of Gravel's expenses, or set up a five-senator committee to decide how much should be paid.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., are leading the fight against the GOP move on grounds the case is an issue of the Senate's standing as an equal branch of government and has nothing to do with approving or disapproving Gravel's actions.

Gravel read a copy of the Pentagon Papers, a then-secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, into the record of his Public Works subcommittee last June 29 in a session that lasted into the early morning hours.

The Alaska Democrat has sought to prevent Dr. Leonard Rodberg, who became an aide of his at about that time, from having to appear before a federal grand jury in Boston in a case involving publication of the papers by the Beacon Press.

The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled that Gravel's senatorial immunity covered Rodberg but not the Beacon Press, prompting an appeal to the Supreme Court in which the senator wants the immunity extended and the government wants it narrowed. Sen. William E. Brock-R-Tenn., charged as the issue came before the Senate Wednesday night that approval of the Mansfield-Ervin resolution means the Senate "in effect, condones every action" of Gravel.

Federal Jury Rules No Damages In Shootings

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — An all-white federal court jury has ruled against a group of blacks who sought $13.8 million in damages for the Jackson State College shootings in which two young Negroes were killed.

The jury deliberated a day and a half before reporting its verdict Wednesday in favor of the 47 defendants. They included Mississippi highway patrolmen and Jackson City policemen who went to the predominantly black college on May 14, 1970, during a disturbance.

The defense said the shooting started because of sniper fire from Alexander Hall, a women's dormitory. The plaintiffs conceded that the officers were subjected to insults and a thrown bottle but maintained there was no sniper.

James Earl Green and Phillip Gibbs were shot to death and seven students were wounded. Suits, which were consolidated for the case, were filed by Myrtle Green Burton, mother of Green; Dale Gibbs, wife of Gibbs; and three of the wounded, Tuwaine Davis, Leroy Kenter Jr. and Vernon Weakley.

It was the first court test of the shootings which had been investigated by the President's Commission on Campus Unrest and by federal and state grand juries. Neither grand jury brought criminal charges.

Jackson Police Chief Lavell Tullos said, "I'm very pleased with the verdict."

Charles Evers, the black mayor of Fayette, said in Hattiesburg the verdict is "a terrible thing, but it's no more than we expected."

"When I found out it was an all-white jury, I knew then very little would come of it," he said. "If it had been Evers and his policemen going onto a white school in this state, there would have been all-out chaos."

Chef Is A Master Of Haute Cuisine

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

The lush corner of France known as Alsace has long been a mecca for lovers of fine food and drink. Small wonder since it is the home of the world famous pate de foie gras and produces some fine wines to wash down the delicacy.

Andre Soltner, one of New York's best known chefs is an Alsatian with a lingering fondness for his homeland's pate and numerous pork dishes, but he has gone far beyond regional cookery and is a past master of the haute cuisine in the best Parisian tradition.

Soltner has remained an enthusiastic booster of the wines of Alsace which he feels have not received the attention they deserve in America. It is only in the past few years that much interest has been generated in this country for the Riesling, Sylvaner, Muscat and Pinot Gris grapes which give their names to Alsatian wines.

Soltner is head of the cuisine of Restaurant Lutèce, which is regarded by many epicures as the outstanding restaurant in New York. Soltner joined Lutèce in 1961 as chef and has since become a partner.

Ever since he served his apprenticeship in the Hotel du Park in the French city of Mulhouse, Soltner has been winning prizes and medals for his culinary prowess. His creations range from Ballotine de Sole to a feathery soufflé laced with brandy.

An officer in the Commanderie des Cordons Bleus de France and a member of the Chefs de Cuisine Assn. among other organizations, Soltner is an artist at heart. He cooks as his mood dictates.

"On Saturday, I make plans for what I will prepare and serve during the week ahead," he told me. "This is usually based on what is in season, but sometimes the butcher will call with something special, or my fish man will have something he knows I am interested in."

"At other times, I wake up in the morning and decide that Spätzle is what I'm in the mood for, then I make that. Feeling is the important thing."

The day I visited his place, Soltner was in the mood for Ballotine de Sole and here is the recipe for this creation.

BALLOTTINE DE SOLE

Prepare a mousseline with following ingredients
1 pound filets of sole
3 eggs
1½ cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper

Have ready 2 pounds filets of sole and ½ pound fresh salmon. Wet and then squeeze in kitchen towel and spread on table. Place a piece of wax paper of same size on towel. Place the whole filets of sole on paper, season with salt, then spread evenly with the mousseline. In the middle, place the salmon cut into fingers. Roll the whole thing on towel so as to make the ballottine and tie the ends and middle. Place ballottine in pot, cover with fish stock and cook slowly for 30 minutes. Let cool overnight and serve in slices accompanied by a sauce emeraude.

SAUCE EMERAUDE

Chop finely 1 ounce parsley, 1 ounce spinach, 1 ounce watercress. Place in kitchen towel and twist until the juice is extracted. Add to a spicy mayonnaise and serve.

New Method For Study Is Devised

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Increasing your learning power, according to Laia Hanau, is as easy as pie.

An assistant professor of study techniques at the University of Kentucky, Mrs. Hanau has proved her point nearly 1,000 times since she devised a study technique that is astonishingly simple.

It all began about 10 years ago when Mrs. Hanau, wife of a physics professor at the university, was about to begin practice teaching at a high school.

"It occurred to me that these kids had measles of the brain. They were just sitting there while a lot of facts were running around the room and they weren't absorbing them," she recalls.

"I told my husband that night that it wasn't the kids' fault or the teachers' fault; it was just that they didn't know how to absorb the things that were being told them or that they were reading.

"My husband isn't very emotional—physics professors never are—so he told me not to get upset. He said I should do something about it—and I did.

"About two in the morning, I just woke up and I had it," she said.

What she had was the first step in her technique, which she has copyrighted under the title, Statement-Pie. It makes it simple to categorize everything one reads or hears in the classroom.

Every lesson, Mrs. Hanau said, can be divided into statements that the teacher or book makes and Pie—or proof, information and examples about the statement.

Using this division, a student can arrange his notes to show the separate categories. And since only a certain amount of Pie is needed for each statement, he can eliminate considerable note taking.

"It also helps students to know what they are lacking in a particular lecture or study assignment," Mrs. Hanau said.

"For example, a student might end a class, look over his notes and say that he has plenty of Pie on a particular subject, but no statement. He didn't recognize the point the professor was trying to make," she said.

When the technique is mastered, step two in Mrs. Hanau's course involves spotting key words and definitions that are used by particular teachers. She calls these go-betweens.

Step three, involving the other two, is called over-all organization of content, or OAO, which Mrs. Hanau describes as a process to statement-Pie the Go-betweens.

This method, she said, pinpoints immediately for the student what he knows, what he does not know and what is "fuzzy" to him.

To learn all of this, Mrs. Hanau has made up her own set of text books, which one reads starting at what normally would be the back and works toward the front.

The books are a series of clear plastic overlays that give the student just one thought at a time and are laced with Mrs. Hanau's own brand of humor and a number of drawings.

At the start of each one is a note that tells the reader to relax, not to take notes and not to try to memorize anything in the book. That's part of Mrs. Hanau's philosophy.

"Learning in the classroom is a game, nothing but a game, and it ought to be fun," she said with a wink.

The course in her techniques is voluntary at the university medical school here. She also has introduced it at the universities of Michigan and Maryland.

"We can teach the course to professional students in 8-10 individual conference hours, to undergraduate students classes of about 20 in one semester and to high school students in one year at about three hours per week," she said.

Up to now, her techniques have been limited mostly to the professional level, since she is one of very few who know how to teach them.

But next summer a course will be conducted at the University of Michigan to train personnel to teach Mrs. Hanau's techniques. So far, about 1,000 have learned them; it can multiply rapidly.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful some day if we could teach them to children in the fourth grade? Just think of the knowledge they could acquire during the rest of their education," she said.

A Minute May Mean More Than You Think

By AP Newsfeatures

Did you ever stop to think how much a minute is worth and what it means to you and your company?

An examination of the Department of Labor's hourly wage scales show that today non-supervisory workers in industry are making an average of $3.36 an hour for 36.9 hour week.

Although industry is primarily concerned with the work day from an hourly standpoint, some interesting figures crop up when the minute is scrutinized.

A look at the traditional 10 minute coffee break or those five minutes generally taken each day to chat with fellow employees is a dramatic illustration.

The $3.36 per hour average wage is equal to 5.6 cents per minute and multiplying it through against the coffee break and office chatter time you come up with $218 over the course of a year. That's over 13½ weeks salary for the worker earning $3.36 an hour or $123.98 a week.

As a person progresses up the economic ladder his per minute value obviously takes on greater dollar and cents importance. The middle management executive earning $20,000 a year is clicking off the minutes to the tune of 16.7 cents per, or $725 a year in coffee breaks and chatting alone.

Should you want to calculate your own per minute value the formula is simple and quite obvious. Just determine your hourly wage rate based on the number of hours you work each week and divide by 60.

"It's amazing what a disparity there is between how much time a person thinks he spends doing various tasks related to his work and the actual time involved," says Harry B. Henshel, president of Bulova Watch Co.

"Everyone can benefit from an analysis of his typical day, be it at work or at play," he adds. Although originally designed to monitor executive time, the following do-it-yourself time-study method works for anyone who wants an accurate reading on where the hours go: first jot down the various elements that go into "your" typical day; then set up three columns headed, 1) how much time ideally should be devoted to each of the elements, 2) how much time "I" think is spent on each item and, 3) actual time spent.

Money Raised By Keeping Silent

EARLSDON, England (WNS)

—Sarah Adams, 14, was named chatterbox of her school so she promptly raised $125 for the local hospital by staging a one-girl, no -talking marathon. Sarah kept her lips sealed for 48 hours while friends took cash collections from people eager to sponsor her long silence. David Adams, her 19-year-old brother, stopped the marathon after 48 hours with the announcement, "My sister is mentally and physically tired to the point of exhaustion from the strain of keeping quiet." Sarah's first words after the marathon: "Never again."

The American Heart Association says more than 27 million Americans have some form of heart and blood vessel disease.

the past week to the following effect:

"1. Use a pan that is large enough to contain the entire bag and deep enough to hold all liquids that may be released during cooking. Pans should always be at least two inches deep.

"2. Always add one tablespoon of flour to empty bags, close and shake, when roasting meats. This step enables meat juices to bubble smoothly and will protect against bag bursting and release of hot juices.

"3. Although remote, oven mishaps can occur with any type of oven cooking. In the event a fire occurs in the oven, remember to turn the oven off and leave the oven door closed.

"4. Read carefully and follow other directions in the package."

Consumer Advocate Says Leave Store Manager The Wrappings

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — American consumers should register their distaste for "over-packaging," which adds daily to the nation's garbage problem, says Michael Pope, a consulting engineer in the field of waste management.

"The place they can make the most noise and where they'll do the most good is where they do their shopping," advises the president of Pope, Evans and Robbins, a firm that specializes in municipal, state and federal studies in the whole area of pollution abatement.

"Many women have already started taking a firm stand at the checkout counter," he continues. "They're wiping the problem off on the store manager by leaving him all the wrappings."

"If enough people do this and say, 'Look, I don't want this, I don't need this,' the packaging material will back up in the store and if they're using less they'll order less," he says. "A number of large grocery chains are already looking at the packaging thing to see if it's really necessary."

In other parts of the world, Pope points out, it is rare that the shopper gets fruits, vegetables and meat prepackaged—

"only half the stuff you buy in Europe is wrapped as compared to here"—and housewives shop with their own basket or reusable bag to carry home purchases.

Looking back to the days when "if you wanted an electric plug the man at the store reached into a drawer and handed it to you," he contrasts this era with the present, when "the plug comes to you mounted on cardboard and in a plastic bubble, both of which you have to get rid of."

"In this country when somebody takes a gift out of a box they throw away the box and tissue paper," he notes. "In other places they probably wouldn't even have a box but if they do it's used more than once for the purpose for which it was made, and there's a lot to be said for that. Here we sort of look down at string savers, but other places everybody saves string."

"In cities like Jakarta, Singapore and Bangkok I examined rubbish heaps and saw nothing discernible," adds Pope, who has been around the world a number of times in connection with his work. "Everything is used—what ends up in the scrapheap is really something that is useless."

Emphasizing the enormity of the United States' garbage problem, Pope points out that each person generates 5.5 pounds of solid waste per day, every day. And New York City alone generates "relentlessly" every day 25,000 tons of solid waste.

"The problems of solid wastes are local and the solutions are regional," explains Pope, who advocates community action groups working to get the local government to join with other local governments to tackle the problem jointly. "You need the economy of size to make recycling programs profitable; you need many communities working together to deliver a steady source of material."

Under an ideal setup, which he admits is not practical for the average person, he suggests waste should be divided for recycling into these categories: glass, aluminum cans, tin cans and other ferrous material; organic refuse; newsprint; magazines, and cardboard products.

"If these could be separated, kept separate when they are picked up, and the collection maintained, it would go a long way toward reducing the amount of waste in the community."

Pope, who lives in a Manhattan apartment, does what he can on a personal basis by separating glass and newspapers from the rest of the garbage. "I'm a big proponent of home-made toys made out of cardboard and egg crates, I buy returnable bottles whenever I can find them—and I talk to the store manager a lot."

DEAR ABBY: That letter in your column about the woman who had a sign in her living room saying, "Thanks for Not Smoking," might have surprised some folks, but not me. I believe in putting up signs.

In fact, I have a big poster with red letters on my front door which says:

"For all who wish to pass thru this door:

6. Don't bring me your problems. I've got my own.

(Signed) THE ESTABLISHMENT

Abby, I am 28 and have a husband and four kids and they come first. Since I have had this poster on my front door, lots of folks have said I was nuts, but I don't care. This is the first time in my life I have had any privacy. Sign me "That nutty lady with the sign on her door" . . .

SHIRLEY IN HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

DEAR SHIRLEY: I'll wager that your poster nets you more privacy than a 200-pound dog. [And you don't have to feed the poster!]

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I invited another couple over for Sunday dinner. [Chicken and homemade noodles.] We told them we'd eat between 1 p. m. and 2 p. m., but to come early. They said they would.

At 1:15 p. m. they telephoned to say they had started to watch the ball game on TV, and they'd come when it was over. We knew this would take several hours, so we helped ourselves to the chicken and noodles and went to the corner tavern and drank beer.

Three hours later our friends came into the tavern looking for us. They said, "How about dinner?"

What would you have done? THE TWO OF US

DEAR TWO: I'd have told them that "dinner" was between 1 p. m. and 2 p. m., but if they wanted some leftover chicken and soggy noodles, they were welcome to it.

DEAR ABBY: This is in reply to "Stalemate," the intelligent young couple who wanted help in deciding who would raise their three young children if they were both to die together:

As a professional who deals with this situation every day I have seen the heartbreak and confusion suffered because people have not been realistic about this possible eventuality.

By all means, keep all the children together. And provide as much financial aid as you can for the family you select in order to enable them to take on the added burden of raising your children.

Have a nonfamily member or the trust department of a bank act as an administrator. The small cost is a bargain in preventing family conflict.

Most of all, keep abreast of the times. The family you chose 10 years ago may not be the best for your children today. I know. We have three adventurous mountain-bred teen-agers who would find the overprotectiveness of my favorite sister entirely too confining.

I realize that the chances of both parents dying together are very slim. But it happens every day. EXPERIENCED

DEAR EXPERIENCED: Yours is a thought-provoking letter. Thanks for writing.

District Meet Held Sunday

Greenville was the hostess club of the District IX meeting of the N. C. Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., Sunday at the Woman's Club building.

One hundred and three registered for the meeting which included members, guests and young careerists from Carteret, Goldsboro, Jacksonville, New Bern, Kinston and Greenville clubs. Mrs. Grace Folger, district director, presided.

Mrs. Repsy Baker, president of the Greenville club, presented guests at the head table.

Mrs. Mary Ann Shaw, N. C. state chairman for the Young Careerists, presented the three persons acting as the selection committee and introduced the five young careerists.

Miss Jan Johnson, home economics agent, Craven County, New Bern, was the winner for the district. She will compete with the other district winners at the state convention at Pinehurst in June. Larry White, son of Dr. and Mrs. James White, entertained the district group by playing several numbers on the marimba.

Mrs. Elaine Martin, N. C. Federation president, brought greetings from the state office.

Vignetti. The induction ceremonies were conducted by Mrs. William E. Fuqua Jr., club president, Mrs. Phil Nordan and Mrs. Lewis Robbins.

New members were each presented a long-stemmed yellow rose during the ceremony.

The speaker's table was decorated with a silver bowl holding an arrangement of spring flowers.

New Members Entertained At Luncheon

The new members of the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville were entertained at a luncheon Saturday held at Dwight's.

Busing Clearly Volatile Issue

This is an election year and it has become clear that busing of school children to achieve integration has become the most volatile issue of the year. Therefore it is not surprising that President Nixon has stepped into the controversy.

The president proposed to Congress that pupil busing orders by the federal courts be halted. The moratorium would remain in effect until July 1, 1973 or until Congress acts on broader legislation concerning the matter. He also proposed federal aid of $2.5 billion to schools with large enrollment of children from poor families.

The president's move was clearly in the interest of stemming the rising tide of criticism concerning forced busing of students to achieve integration. What was once of concern only in the south has now become a national issue and the voters tend to blame the president when it comes time to express disapproval of an unpopular national issue.

It is likely that the legislation proposed by the president will be approved since the members of Congress are feeling the same pressures from home which are now moving the White House.

Throughout the South busing for integration purposes is now a fact, brought on by the years of legal segregation and busing to maintain segregated schools. However the argument that busing for segregation purposes of years gone by justifies busing to achieve racial balance in the schools is not plausible.

The time has come to establish national policies concerning school busing and racial balance in schools. Most certainly these policies should apply in southern school districts which have faithfully complied with court and HEW orders concerning integration, just as they apply in any other area of the nation.

There have been many rough spots, but over the years since school segregation was declared unconstitutional the desegregation of the south has moved surprisingly smoothly. There is little sentiment in southern states for returning to segregation laws which proved a burden to the region for so many years. Most southern leaders are glad to be rid of the problems of segregation and welcome the opportunity to move in the mainstream of the Nation.

As the White House shapes its policies on busing, it should keep in mind that they should be national policies. We cannot forever operate under two sets of rules, one for southern schools and another for school systems outside the south.

Brown-Bagging While Waiting

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N.C.—Drinking Tar Heels will be toting their brown bags for at least another season, waiting for a resolution of the liquor-by-the-drink issue.

Any hope that mixed drinks across the bar might be on the horizon somewhere in North Carolina was delayed, if not dispelled, by the recent State Supreme Court decision invalidating a Mecklenburg County local act.

What the court did, in addition to erasing the local acts.

Legislators are divided on how the same tactic might fare in '73. "The chance of getting this kind of legislation passed is slim indeed," said Rep. Clarence Leatherman of Lincoln, a staunch dry and veteran of many legislative battles involving liquor.

"The dries will oppose it vigorously, and those who want it don't want it very much," he said.

The other route to a settlement of the issue would be a statewide referendum, an all-or-nothing proposition on whether to allow sale of mixed drinks.

Allen Bailey of Charlotte, the attorney who led the successful fight against the Mecklenburg bill, said after the court decision that a statewide referendum seemed the only way to a final determination.

Agreement was expressed by Sen. Eddie Knox of Mecklenburg, a sponsor of the defunct act.

Outlook May Be Changing
In the past, the assumption has been that a statewide vote would favor the dry cause on the ground that they could roll up a count in rural areas and small towns to offset the city vote more likely to favor liberal liquor laws.

Some legislators now question whether this assumption holds true. Rep. Jimmy L. Love of Sanford is one of those who feel advocates of liquor-by-the-drink need not fear a statewide showdown.

The piecemeal approach has permitted opponents to concentrate their efforts in any election involving relatively small numbers, he explained.

In a statewide referendum, he reasoned, the turnout of voters likely would be smaller in small counties while larger numbers in urban areas might well be able to carry the day.

The North Carolina Travel Council carried the ball for liquor-by-the-drink in the past two legislative sessions. Its members are convinced that travel and convention business could be boosted by a control plan permitting mixed drink service.

Their efforts are likely to be spurred by the prospect of a South Carolina referendum on the question later this year Tar Heel resorts wouldn't want to face the competitive disadvantage, should South Carolina voters approve the change.

Liquor Battle Seen For 1973

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH — The upcoming fight over liquor-by-the-drink in North Carolina will make everything that has come before look like a kindergarten rumble.

The wets and dries are already manning their battle stations and candidates for Governor, while not anxious to get in such a controversial fight, might be forced into it.

The State Supreme Court says a local option act that gave Charlotte-Mecklenburg the right to vote on liquor-by-the-drink is unconstitutional. The court said the act regulated trade and the North Carolina constitution forbids local acts from doing that.

When the 1973 legislature convenes next January, the wets will try to pass a bill that would allow local option liquor-by-the-drink in all 100 counties.

The dries will fight it with all their resources and will encourage a statewide vote on liquor-by-the-drink. Such a vote would almost surely be a resounding defeat for the wet forces.

Coy Privette of Kannapolis, head of the North Carolina Christian Action League, says he is against any law that would "encourage drinking and driving."

"But if there has to be any kind of vote," Privette says, "it ought to be a statewide referendum on liquor-by-the-drink. We're against these piecemeal local option votes. Let's do it all at one time and be done with it."

A State ABC official, who did not want to be named, cringes at Privette's suggestion. The ABC official has not been active for liquor-by-the-drink, but he tells me: "If we end up with a statewide referendum, we could conceivably lose our ABC stores. A vote could come to that and I'm certain that on a state-wide basis, even the ABC stores would be voted out. We could be in real danger if we're not careful."

Mecklenburg Sen. Eddie Knox, who was instrumental in getting the local option bill through the legislature for his home county, says the only thing the wets can do is ask the General Assembly for local option votes in all counties.

The two front-running candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Pat Taylor and Skipper Bowles, are sidestepping the issue as if they were running barefoot through a field of hot coals.

Both men said liquor-by-the-drink would be a matter for the legislature to decide and they wouldn't be involved in it. Both men, of course, have spent the duration of the current campaign telling voters how they would try to influence meaningful legislation that goes before the legislature. But they feel liquor-by-the-drink is too controversial to touch.

Democratic gubernatorial candidates Wilbur Hobby and Reginald Hawkins tell me they would work for a statewide local option liquor-by-the-drink bill.

I was unable to contact Republican gubernatorial candidates Jim Holshouser and Jim Gardner.

It's impossible to say at this time what attitude the 1973 General Assembly will have on liquor-by-the-drink. There will be many new faces in the legislature next year.

However, there is no way the last legislature would have passed a state-wide local option liquor bill. Local acts for Moore and Mecklenburg counties made it only after some skillful politicking by the wets, and then only by the skin of your chinny chin chin.

Candidates for the Tar Heel legislature will be asked to give their views on liquor-by-the-drink between now and election day. You can rest assured that the liquor fight in '73 will be more controversial, more expensive, and more emotional than last year's.

Strength For Today

—MONEY—

Money makes the world go round. For some people the dollar sign is the symbol of success. It is, of course, for everyone a symbol of necessity. It would be fine if we could get along without money—but we can't. The burning question is how much do we need to get along without too much agony? For a limited number it is a matter of not allowing the appeal of lucrative living to get possession of them. The Bible does not say that money is the root of all evil but that the love of money is the root of all evil—and there is a vast difference in those two concepts.

Devaluation and other economic problems are beyond the reach of most of us to understand and solve. The first factor to consult is that of common honesty. How did we get the money we appear to need and how are we going to spend it? Dishonesty is out of the question if we want to enjoy peace of mind. Expenditure is a big problem if we confront things that simply have to be done for our loved ones and ourselves. If we overspend, we are miserable. If we have less than common decency requires, educational needs, the service to God and man through the Church and projects of philanthropy, money or the lack of it can do a lot to make life happy or otherwise.

Money is a tool to be used, not an idol to be worshipped. Get the honest, sensible, unselfish attitude toward money, and many of life's problems would be solved. Try it and see.

The Super Snooper Bill

A Senate subcommittee has been busy, busy, busy this month, marking up a final version of the super snooper bill. Before long we will know exactly what senators Javits of New York and Ribicoff of Connecticut are proposing in the way of new consumer legislation.

The general features of their little monster already are well known to professionals in the field. After all, this is the third year of the war. The two liberals have it in mind to weld together the strongest elements of their own 1970 bill with the strongest elements of the House Bill approved last October. In this election year they envision a final product of irresistible appeal.

All this calculated to bring a smile to the dour face of Ralph Nader. The gentlemen's idea is to create a new Consumer Protection Agency with more teeth than a barracuda, and to let the creature swim at will among the many government offices now charged with keeping an eye on consumer interest.

The CPA of the liberals' bill would become a super agency, with almost unlimited powers to meddle in the public and private sectors.

The country needs such an outfit about as urgently as Florida needs an April freeze. Consider a few specifics of S.1177, the Javits-Ribicoff bill. Among other things, the bill would empower the director of the CPA to intervene in any "matter or proceeding" that is his judgement" substantially affects the interest of consumers."

The wording is important. In the bureaucratic lexicon, a "proceeding" implies a formal hearing of investigation conducted with all the safeguards of the Administrative Procedures Act. If the authority of a new consumer agency were limited to intervention in such a proceeding, at least the ground rules would be clearer. But what is "a matter"? It could be anything. And in this day and age, virtually every agency of government is involved in decisions that "substantially affect" the consumer.

The Senate proposal would make the new agency the master of them all. The proposed CPA could demand that the food and drug administration, for example, initiate a proceeding against all manufacturers of cough syrup. If the FDA declined, it would be required, like a naughty child made to stand in the corner, "to make public in a current and concise statement its reasons therefore."

Even the President of the United States would be ordered around. The FDA's hypothetical refusal to initiate a cough syrup proceeding could be appealed to the President, "who shall by order published in the Federal Register decide whether the proceeding shall be commenced."

The new Consumer Protection Agency would have authority "as a matter of right" to leap into any court action based upon final action by a federal agency—so long as the director of the

Spelling Bee At The Bar

By BILLIE BROWN
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) —

Eighteenth century London had its White Hart pub, where Dr. Samuel Johnson, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Alexander Pope and other neoclassics gathered for learned discourse and a draught of ale.

Modern-day Atlanta has the Stein Club—the only bar in the world, as far as its habits can determine, that holds an annual spelling bee.

On a Friday night, it packs in more academic degrees per square inch than you could measure with a slide rule.

Hence the spelling bee, forcing Stein Club regulars who dispute and debate year round over draft beer to put up or sit down each January.

The Second Annual Stein Club Orthographic Open was held in the back room of the bar. This reporter went to kibitz and stayed to conquer—beating an economic geographer, an engineer with a masters degree in Middle English literature, an architect, last year's winner—the state Public Service Commission reporter—and 15 other contestants—by correctly spelling "phthisic," "gyve," "pyrrhic" and "jodhpur."

This display of orthographic pre-eminence earned me the No. 2 engraving on the Annual Orthographic Open plaque that hangs over the Stein Club bar, a case of beer, a hand-struck silver medal and a certificate.

Wearing my seventh-grade spelling medal from Bad Breznach, Germany, for confidence, I made my way through the obscure hubbub in the main room to the back and took my place among the 200 spelling enthusiasts.

As the zero hour of 8:15 approached, someone passed out sheets of yellow foolscap. Sergeant at arms Wilson Paige called for order.

Twenty beer glasses hit the table, twenty ballpoint pens poised over yellow foolscap, and the race was on.

The end of Round 1 spelled heartache and intellectual humiliation for 12 contenders. Round 2 eliminated four and Round 3, two more.

I was still in. My tablemates, hors de combat, rallied round, bending to peer as I wrote "thysic," and again as I scratched it out and substituted "phthisic."

"Gnathion"—which, pronouncer Paul Niblock explained, denotes "the lower midportion of the human mandible"—stumped me. But it stumped my last

Interest Rate Slide Has Ended

By ELMER ROESSNER
Interest rates, which have been declining for some time now, are turning up. Major banks have stopped paring their prime rate; several have announced that their prime rate is "floating," meaning that it fluctuates from day to day and from borrower to borrower.

The Federal Reserve last week raised the rate on so-called repurchase agreements from 3¼ to 3½ per cent. This is a type of loan by which the Fed pumps money into the banking system. Bankers regard this as a signal that interest rates are to be turned upward.

COMMENT: There are several reasons why interest rates will go even higher: First, the Treasury will have to do considerable borrowing during the rest of the year to meet the budget deficit, and higher interest rates will be necessary to attract money from other uses. Second, corporations have revised upward their spending plans in recent months to take advantage of tax credits now available for capital spending. Third, it is desirable to attract some of the billions of dollars back to the United States. Foreign holders have not rushed to invest them in the United States while interest rates have been low.

ELMER ROESSNER

Boom Ahead?
There's No Agreement

Authorities are far from unanimous in predicting better times ahead. University of Michigan economists at a seminar agreed that substantial increases in government spending, business capital spending, residential building and consumer spending on autos and parts will pace economic growth this year. They also predicted a decline in unemployment, but only down to 5.3 per cent.

The St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank stated, "Although most projections of the pace of economic activity this year are quite optimistic, uncertainty continues to cloud the 1972 economic horizon. With unemployment still high by historic standards, many people remain concerned about their ability either to obtain a job to their liking or to retain their present one. Inflation and potential inflationary pressures have not yet subsided."

The Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago states: "Inflation has clearly moderated since the New Economic Policy was initiated. Prices have not risen sharply since mid November.... The recent performance of the various price indexes is consistent with President Nixon's goal of reducing inflation to a two to three per cent range by the end of the year."

COMMENT: This wide range of opinion demonstrates that the direction of the economy has not yet made itself clear. There is plenty of hope, but it should be sprinkled with caution.

Autoists Want Better Performance

If auto buyers have to choose between cars that don't pollute the air and cars that run well, they'll take the latter, Industry Week magazine says. Car buyers, it adds, are exhibiting growing dissatisfaction with current and late-model automobiles that don't idle well, don't start quickly, continue to run after the ignition key is switched off, and guzzle too much gasoline.

COMMENT: There is nothing new in this. The psychology of auto owners is unchanged since 1904.

Auto owners must always have known that cars affect not only the ecology but general. They have fouled the atmosphere, created problems of disposal, and caused injuries and death.

Preaching Mission Will Begin Sunday

A preaching mission will begin at the Memorial Baptist Church, Fourth and Greene Streets, on Sunday and continue through Wednesday evening, March 29. The evening worship will begin at 7:30 each evening. Nursery facilities will be open and available. The concluding service on Wednesday, will be candlelight communion worship led by the pastor, the Rev. Norman Bennett.

Dr. Earl Parker, a native of Rocky Mount, will be the guest preacher. He has been serving as professor of Bible at Chowan College, Murfreesboro, since 1969.

Prior to that, Dr. Parker served as a pastor to churches in Virginia and North Carolina from 1955-1968. He was a chaplain in the U. S. Air Force from 1952 to 1954. Dr. Parker taught in the Department of Philosophy and Religion at Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C., from 1949-1951. During this time he served as college chaplain also.

Dr. Parker has earned degrees from Wake Forest University (B.A.), Yale Divinity School (B.D.), and Edinburg University in Scotland (Ph.D.). He has studied at Duke Divinity School, Durham, and Manchester University in England. He is married and has two

Special Regulations On Operating Draw Bridges Announced

The Department of Transportation of the U.S. Coast Guard announced the approval of additional special regulations governing operation of the draws of highway bridges across the Neuse River on U.S. 17 and the Trent River on U.S. 70 at New Bern.

The Coast Guard said that the request for approval of the additional regulations was submitted by the North Carolina State Highway Commission.

Amended regulations, applying to the U.S. 17 bridge at New Bern, stipulate that the draw shall open on signal prescribed, except that the draw may remain closed from Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The draw will also remain closed on Sundays and federal holidays from May 24 through Sept. 8, from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m., except that the draw shall open at 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. for any vessels waiting to pass.

According to the regulations, the draw will open at any time on signal of four short blasts for public vessels of the United States, State, or local vessels used for public safety, tugs with tows and vessels in distress.

Special regulations approved concerning the Trent River, U.S. 70 bridge at New Bern stipulate that the draw shall open on signal as prescribed except that the draw may remain closed from Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Closing regulations applying to Sundays and federal holidays, as stipulated for the Neuse River bridge, also apply to the Trent bridge, it was pointed out.

The Department of Transportation also announced that the draw of the pontoon bridge across the Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway on N.C. 33 near Yaupon Beach will remain closed from 12 noon to 6 p.m. on Friday, March 31; Saturday, April 1; and Sunday, April 2, with three exceptions.

The exceptions stipulate that the draw will be opened at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. to permit all accumulated vessels to pass. The draw will also be opened upon who was spending more time in boats than on rooftops. By helicopter he is now doing what was earlier a week's work in one day. (AP Wirephoto) daughters.

Music for these special services will be under the direction of Dr. Ralph Verrastro, School of Music faculty, East Carolina University. The Adult Choir will sing for these special services. On Sunday evening, the Youth Choir will sing.

The public is invited to attend and participate in these services.

CPA concluded that the action "has or is likely to have a substantial adverse effect upon the interest of consumers." The language is too broad. It would reduce old-line agencies of the government to hollow shells, drained of effective power.

When these same sweeping provisions were proposed to the House last fall, Florida's congressman Don Fuqua made a quick study of governmental activity that might "substantially" affect the consumer. He found no fewer than 30 agencies, ranging alphabetically from the Atomic Energy Commission to the Tennessee Valley Authority, whose power would become subject to the oversight of the Consumer Protection Agency.

The prospect is grim for both government and industry. In order to justify its existence, the CPA would be compelled to dispatch hordes of zealous investigators to stir up great clouds of intervention. In a paper blizzard, orderly regulation and business freedom alike would be lost. In the end, the overprotected consumer, the object of all this solicitude, would be gasping inside a cotton wool cocoon. Perhaps this is Nader's dream, but that gentleman's dreams alas, are other men's nightmares.

'Common Sense' Campaign Works

GREAT BEND, Kan. (AP) — Sheriff Marion Weese of Barton County says he appealed to the common sense several months ago of two youths discovered chopping down a stop sign, and the tactic saved county taxpayers about $2,000.

The sheriff said Wednesday he agreed not to file charges against the youths with the stipulation they help recover other missing signs.

The results in the no-questions-asked campaign were instantaneous, with many signs left in the dead of night on the sheriff's steps.

The campaign has netted 56 signs including 12 stop signs, 6 road-closed signs and 6 yellow light flashers plus 5 rubber cone stands and one mailbox.

Revival will be held March 27-31 at Bell Arthur Methodist Church. Services will be held at 7:45 each evening.

Douglas R. Holland, a member of "Faith Evangelism" will be speaker for the revival.

Ralph Hill, pastor of the church, invites the public to attend the services.

Sowers Urging Development Policy For N.C.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor Roy Sowers says North Carolina needs to enact a statewide development policy "before it's too late."

Sowers said Wednesday that if elected he will work for the enactment of such a policy. He made the statement in a speech prepared for a political awareness program at Wake Forest University.

"We need to organize and adopt our direction," Sowers said.

North Pitt Notes

By ELLEN HEATH

What's new at North Pitt this week? Haven't you heard?

It's the "Daisey Hut!" Last Saturday, Mrs. Jewel Whitehurst, with the help of a few seniors, painted her room a pale green and then decorated the walls and ceiling with huge yellow and white daisies.

Mrs. Whitehurst's math students were very surprised and pleased with the room's "new look."

The seniors who spent their Saturday morning painting and decorating were Elaine Doughtie, Susan James, Gail Michaels, Christie Speir, Rita Bullock, Teen Rawls, David Perry, Charles Weatherington, and Richard Nelson.

A talent show, sponsored by the Honor Society, will be held at North Pitt on April 14. All North Pitt students interested in participating in the talent show should write their names, talents, and study halls on a piece of paper and deposit it in the indicated box in the Student Commons. Auditions will be held from March 27 through April 12 during fifth and seventh periods.

Fashion Show

The North Pitt girls on the Belk Tyler Teen Board along with two North Pitt boys presented a spring fashion show for the Future Homemakers of America club and other clubs Wednesday.

The girls and boys modeling were Bernadine Jordan, Anne Murchison, Brenda Payton, Gail Michaels, Ellen Heath, Woody Andrews, and Alonza Price. Each modeled beachwear, jeans, casual wear, and a dressy outfit.

Marty Bunn, the Teen Board director, narrated the fashion show.

The Task Force on Student Involvement is seeking members for the 1972-73 school year. Any interested student should see one of the guidance counselors for an application. The "Force" consist of 16 students from across the state who determine policies, plan activities, and make recommendations to the state land local educational agencies about student affairs. Meetings are held monthly in Raleigh.

On Tuesday night at 7:00 o'clock two basketball games were played. In the first game, the senior girls and women teachers played the mothers and alumni. In the second game, the senior boys played the men faculty. The admission charge will be used for the athletic banquet.

Those playing in the first game were: seniors—Bernadine

Air Piracy Plague Began In May, 11 Years Ago

(Editor's note: An extortionist's bomb spurred the federal government to impose mandatory security measures on the nation's airlines. The following story, first of a two-part series by the AP Special Assignment Team, traces the development of a crisis that threatens to paralyze air transportation.)

By JOHN S. LANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Skinny little Antulio, Ramirez seemed an unlikely sort of pirate that sunny May Day in 1961 when he burst into the cockpit with knife and gun in his trembling hands.

"Let's go to Havana," he stammered to Capt. Francis Xavier Riley. And away they went, six passengers and a crew of three and 120-pound Antulio.

To Cuba, of all places, from which refugees by the hundreds of thousands were fleeing Fidel Castro's regime.

It was a one-day sensation. No one did much of anything about it.

For no one foresaw that during the next eleven years little Antulio would be followed through the cockpit doors of American planes by 176 hijackers threatening the lives of 16,500 passengers and crew members.

New Role Given To Guardsmen

The 514th Military Police Co. of the North Carolina National Guard is currently undergoing training in a new role to go with its new armory.

The Greenville based outfit, formerly charged with law enforcement responsibilities, is now a prisoner rehabilitation unit. The change in status was part of the Guard's reorganization that was put into effect last December.

Capt. Bobby Webb of Maccliesfield, commanding officer,

With pistols, shotguns, knives, razors, broken bottles, hatchets, acid, ice picks, tear gas, BB guns and—ultimately—bombs, desperate people would create a crisis that threatens to paralyze air transportation.

Each step in the evolution of airline terrorism has caught industry and government unprepared.

It was nine years after the first American hijacking that President Nixon formed the sky marshal force, spurred by the hijacking and bombing of three airliners on the ground in foreign countries by Arab guerrillas.

"It was a year and a half after an Eastern Airlines pilot was killed and his co-pilot seriously wounded by a hijacker on a flight to Boston before the government proposed that cockpit doors be made bullet proof.

It was after extortionists had bombed a jetliner in Las Vegas two weeks ago that the President made mandatory such ground security measures as metal detectors and baggage checks which the Federal Aviation Administration had been urging for years.

As a result of the President's tough new program, security officers say the airports and the skies have never been safer.

How safe the government can make air travel is yet to be proved.

Hijackings of American planes have caused seven deaths and a score of heart attacks.

The dollar loss is uncountable, but must run into billions. For example, one 10-cent telephoned bomb hoax cost Pan American World Airways $58,000.

Each incident has spawned imitators. Many unsuccessful hijackers were found to possess newspaper clippings detailing how successful air piracies were accomplished.

The feat of "D. B. Cooper," who demanded and got $200,000 and escaped by parachuting out of a jetliner, got banner headlines and a few comparisons to Robin Hood. In the next two months he was copied by five others, all of whom failed.

Yet for all that the actions of some sky pirates may have seemed glamorous, the truth is that life has been harsh for hijackers.

One hundred live as fugitives in exile, risking sentences of death or life in prison if they ever return to the United States. Five were killed in hijack attempts; three others committed suicide. A dozen are in mental institutions and 35 have been sentenced to prison for terms ranging from 50 years to life for air piracy or related crimes.

A few early hijackers were greeted as revolutionary heroes by the Cubans, but now they are treated with coolness.

"The Cubans are now worried just like we are that a hijacking could result in a catastrophic accident," said Albert Butler, chief of the FAA's Security Division.

"The first thing the Cubans do is put these people through a comprehensive psychiatric examination. Castro doesn't want criminals down there anymore than we want them up here.

"Those they don't send back are not allowed to work because that would take a job from a Cuban. They are very suspicious of the hijackers because they think they might be CIA agents.

"The Cubans give them room and board in a hotel and $10 a month. It's grim. One committed suicide. Jumped out a hotel window."

While the rewards are bitter, the chances for successfully hijacking planes are getting slimmer.

From a one-time high of 83 per cent, the success average of hijacking attempts diminished to 44 per cent last year and now is down to 25 per cent. U.S. marshals and Customs Bureau security officers arrested more than 2,250 persons and seized 700 firearms in screening passengers as part of the anti-hijacking program last year.

As for the legendary D.B. Cooper, FAA officials believe he did not make good his parachute escape.

"We'll find him—when the snow thaws in Washington," said a federal security officer.

Town Of Southport Changed By Atomic Power Plant

CRANES REACH SKYWARD—Huge cranes are shown back of the two nuclear reactor vessels, one round and the other in the square shed at the site of the Carolina Power and Light Co. nuclear plant near Southport. (AP Wirephoto)

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — Dogs slept in the middle of the dirt streets and cars drove around them when editor Jimmy Harper arrived in the peaceful fishing town of Southport in 1935.

Life still moves slowly in Southport, but the face of the countryside is being changed by a $400-million atomic power plant being built nearby.

Construction work on the Carolina Power & Light Co. plant, begun in late 1969, has had "a terrific impact" on Southport, Harper said in an interview.

"We weren't prepared to take care of the 2,500 workers brought into the area," he explained. "This is the biggest thing to hit our area since the mid-50s when the $25-million Sunny Point ammunition terminal was built north of Southport."

Two 821,000-kilowatt power units are being built four miles northeast of Southport on the edge of the Cape Fear River. The first unit is scheduled to be completed in 1974 and the second in 1975.

Harper said. "We've been a poor county, but the poor-mouthing is over."

A visitor to Southport is immediately impressed by the placid, slow-paced atmosphere and the huge live oak trees whose leaves stay green during the winter. It looks like time has bypassed the community.

One attention-getter is a whittler's bench on the waterfront.

"More ships have been built and more fish have been caught in conversation at that bench than you could imagine," Harper said.

Some of the trees are more than 200 years old. Harper said that over the years "some of the town's bitterest battles have been over preservation of the trees in preference to widening the streets. Some of the streets sort of wind around to fit the trees."

A graduate of Guilford College, Harper is editor of the State Port Pilot, Southport's weekly newspaper. He also fills in as a sort of good will ambassador and Chamber of Commerce representative.

"Our life here has always been slow-paced," Harper said. "Nobody seems to be in a hurry. I sort of fitted into things because I'm inclined to be lazy."

"Of course," he added, "work on the power plant has changed things here some, but I look for local life to revert to the old days when the plant is completed and 70 to 100 technicians move in to operate it."

For many years Southport, population 2,200, depended on menhaden and shrimp fishing for a livelihood.

"I don't see how some of the people here escaped starvation," said Harper. "For three months in the winter, from November through February, they did no fishing."

"Generally, the people in Southport feel that the plant is the finest thing that has ever happened to the area," he said.

"The persons who feel this way don't make as much noise as those who are dissatisfied mainly over the amount paid for their land."

Some residents of the Southport area have charged that drainage canals from the CP&L plant will create environmental problems. Company officials have denied the charges.

The Atomic Energy Commission has petitioned a Washington court to halt construction of the plant until environmental studies are completed. The company contends the AEC lacks jurisdiction in the matter.

The plant will use about 1.9-billion gallons of water daily from the Cape Fear River. The water will be sent through a 6½-mile canal, where it will cool and then be piped out into the ocean.

Harper's wife, Margaret, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor. Like her husband, she believes that once the power plant is completed, things will return to normal in Southport.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

By DUANE WILLIAMS
Making its first performance, the Drama Class will present a modern comedy, OFF THE TRACK.

The cast includes Charles Allen, who portrays John Morgan, the station agent and Robert Braxton as Silas Dobbins, the grumpy handy man.

Mary Alice Allen, Lorraine De Cuzzi, and Juanita Gould play the parts of three young college girls: Flickie Nelson, Betty Phillips and Joan Parker, respectively. Jackie Jones and Barbara Powell play the parts of Mrs. Guarino and Antonia Guarino, a mother-daughter role.

Duane Williams portrays Bill Lindsay, the young law student. Acting out the parts of Miss Pidge McDougal and Oscar Posenby are Kay Branch and Bennie Thompson. Playing the part of the young couple are Ryan McLawhorn and Deborah Sutton who play Willie Woodson and Evalina Bumpass. The extras are Paul Cox and Bernadette Grimes.

Dates for two performances will be April 19-20 at 8 p.m. Admission for advance tickets is $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Typing Contest

There was a typing contest at Farmville Central Wednesday. The contest was the Pitt County Typewriting Contest and students from Conley included Ray Moore, Joel Dunn, Lynn Boyd, Linda Vincent, Pat Scheller, Claudia Fornes, Lynell

Little, Randy Daniels, Melba Gregg, Donna Gibbs, and Debra Baker.

Hope all of you typists did well in the contest!

Friday was a day of testing for all students at Conley. The freshmen and juniors took the Iowa Test of Educational Development. Sophomores took the Differential Aptitude Test, while the seniors took the Armed Forces test.

The purpose of this battery of testing is to reveal to both students and school officials the interests and aptitudes on each grade level.

This week was a busy one for all the members of the Future Homemakers of America: National F.H.A. week has been in progress.

Emphasis on good citizenship was the theme of F.H.A. members. Different members spoke on the intercom everyday, passing on hints of how to become a better person. Keep up the good work!

Meter Will Warn If Car Speeding

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A radar-activated speed meter that signals an approaching motorist the speed at which he is traveling is to be tested on speed-prone city thoroughfares.

The device, radar tracking instruments and an oversize screen mockup of a car speedometer, was demonstrated Wednesday to city officials and newsmen near City Hall.

When aligned, the meter flashed a car's speed at the moment when the screen came into the driver's view.

The Department of Traffic intends to install the device, developed by traffic engineer S. S. Taylor, at four high-speed areas in the city.

Mixed Reaction To Marijuana Recommendations

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The recommendation by a national commission to abolish criminal penalties for private use of marijuana has drawn mixed reaction among both the nation's youth and law enforcement officials.

Some officials gave qualified support to the idea, but others branded recommendations by the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse as impractical and even dangerous.

Harry J. Anslinger, U.S. commissioner of Narcotics from 1930 to 1962, said the commission's recommendations could have "very serious national repercussions" and he called the findings "terrifying."

But Walter Richter, director of the Texas Program on Drug Abuse, said the group's report was "a very sane and humane and reasonable approach" that would free law enforcers to deal with the problem of hard drugs.

"I would be the last one to recommend anyone get involved with pot, but I think this helps put it in perspective," he said.

The 13-member commission, at the end of a year's study, urged Wednesday that the government end prosecution of marijuana users but continue jail terms and fines for growing or selling pot.

President Nixon, who appointed nine members of the commission, received the report without comment.

San Francisco Undersheriff Reuben Greenberg said he "agrees completely" with that recommendation. "We think the use of marijuana should be restricted, but not made illegal, the same way alcohol is."

But the proposal not to prosecute marijuana users and not to legalize it either was, in the opinion of Alabama Public Safety Director W. L. Allen, like "trying to follow the line of being just a little pregnant." He said he opposed the report.

Anslinger, who spearheaded passage of the federal Marijuana Tax Act in 1937, said liberalization of the law would cause the number of heroin users in the country to "mushroom."

"If these recommendations go through, allowing smoking in secret without any penalty, then I think in a couple of years we'll have about a million lunatics filling up the men-

Referendum On April 5

On Wednesday, April 5, pork producers will vote to continue their producer financed promotional program.

This program aids in the support of the N.C. Pork Producers Association through the assessment of five cents per head on all hogs sold to slaughter in North Carolina.

This assessment, according to Burney W. Baker, Pitt County Chairman for the Pork Referendum, has meant much to the North Carolina Swine producers through promotion of production, sale and consumption of pork and pork products.

In this referendum, pork producers are asking for six-year continuance of the five cents per head assessment on all hogs sold for slaughter.

All persons who share in the proceeds from the sale of hogs are eligible to vote in this referendum (husband, wife, children and hired hands).

In order for the assessment to go into effect, two-thirds of those voting must favor the proposals.

Enactment will allow the North Carolina Pork Producers Association to continue its promotional efforts keeping the consumer aware of the nutritional aspects of pork.

For further information, interested persons may contact the Pitt County Extension Office, or Burney W. Baker, Rt. 5, Greenville, county chairman for the pork referendum.

Escorted From The County Jail

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An unwanted guest has been escorted from the Salt Lake County jail.

Officer Dennis Meservy said he took custody of a muskrat discovered recently wandering in the jail. It apparently had fallen through a grate opening near one of the building's entry ramps.

Meservy said he took the animal into a nearby canyon and let it loose.

tal hospitals and a couple of hundred thousand more deaths on the highways—just plain slaughter on the highways," he said.

Opinions also were divided on college campuses and among others of the nation's youth.

Robin Arron, 18, of Sulfur, Okla., said she was opposed to all drugs and said of the report,

"I think it's terrible... To put it bluntly, we're going to have a lot of freak kids running around if they do this."

But Mike Taylor, managing editor of the student newspaper at the University of Missouri-Kansas City, disagreed.

"I definitely think they're on the right track. I don't think they're going to have any progress on drug abuse laws until marijuana is at least legalized," he said. "From what I've read and seen, the only thing wrong with it (marijuana) is that it's illegal."

Jeremy Bluhm, on the editorial staff of the Harvard Crimson, the student newspaper, said it was his personal view that "it is absolutely necessary to remove criminal penalties for private use" of marijuana.

While not completely endorsing the commission's report, many officials acknowledged the need for change in existing marijuana laws.

"Most of our laws about alcohol are too weak. Most of our laws about marijuana are too strong," said Dr. Walter Otto, assistant health officer in Chat-ham County (Savannah), Ga. "This committee has taken a step in the direction of relaxing the extreme fear people have about marijuana."

Los Angeles County Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch Jr. said he opposed complete elimination of criminal penalties for marijuana use but would like to see revision of current laws. "I favor minimal misdemeanor penalties on the possession of small amounts of marijuana and minimal enforcement attention to such possession," he said.

Police Chief Derold Husby of Lansing, Mich., said enforcement of existing marijuana laws was hampered by lack of prosecution and "ridiculous sentences," but "I can't condone any report saying it (marijuana) should be used, and society should accept it."

Michigan State Police Director Col. John R. Plants called the recommendations "incongruous," saying of marijuana: "If it's bad to sell, it's bad to use."

Jones

Mrs. Virginia Bland Jones, 65, died in Tampa, Fla. Wednesday night.

Funeral services will be conducted at two o'clock Friday afternoon at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Willis Wilson, pastor of the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Bethel Cemetery.

Mrs. Jones, a native of Martin County, attended the Everetts schools, and was a member of the Buchanan Baptist Church in Tampa, Fla. She was married to Lyman Jones and he died in 1933.

Surviving are a son, Lyman Jones of Tampa, Fla.; six sisters Mrs. Carrie Whitehurst and Mrs. Hazel Bullock, both of Stokes, Mrs. George Roberson of Tarboro, Mrs. Ernestine Sorie of Enfield, Mrs. Florence Eatman and Mrs. Elsie Harris, both of Greenville; three brothers, Linwood Bland of Bethel, Roy H. Bland of Williamston, and J. T. Bland of Stokes; and two grandchildren.

The family will receive visitors at the funeral home from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday.

Rogers

Mrs. Mable Hardy Rogers of Rt. 3, Greenville died at her home Wednesday afternoon. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Brown

Mr. Dennis Lee Brown, formerly of Bethel, died Tuesday night in Baltimore, Md. He was the son of Mrs. Thelma Brown, formerly of Bethel. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Adams

Funeral services for Mrs. Helen B. Adams, 72, widow of E. L. Adams, will be conducted at 3:30 Friday afternoon at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church by the pastor, the Rev. R. M. Stewart, assisted by the Rev. Harry Jones and the Rev. M. D. McPherson. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. Mrs. Adams died in a Goldsboro Hospital early Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Adams spent all of her life in the Black Jack Community and was a member of the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are six daughters, Mrs. Glenn Gaskins, Mrs. Elmer Dixon, Mrs. Calvin Mills, and Miss Mildred Adams, all of the Black Jack Community, Mrs. Blaney Taylor of Chocowinity, and Mrs. R. R. Newton of Rocky River, Ohio; a son, Eugene Adams of Greenville; 13 grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

The family will be at the home in Black Jack.

Peaden

Mrs. Lillie Smith Peaden, 64, widow of Charlie James Peaden, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital early Thursday morning. She had been in failing health for several years and critically ill for three months. She resided at 1117 Albemarle Ave., Tarboro.

Funeral services will be conducted at two o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Clarence Forbes, pastor of Acorn Hill Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in Edgecombe Memorial Park in Tarboro.

Mrs. Peaden was born and reared in Nash County near Nashville and was married to Willie J. Adams of Falkland in 1925 and he died in 1941. She later married to Charlie J. Peaden of Falkland and he died in 1967. She made her home in Falkland for many years and since 1967 she had made her home in Tarboro. She was a member of the Falkland Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Bill Harris Jr. of Tarboro; two sons, Willie Adams of Whitakers and Woodrow W. Peaden of the home; 10 grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Lottie S. Joyner and Mrs. Marvin R. Armstrong, both of Tarboro; three brothers, Selby A. Smith of Tarboro, Shelton B. Smith of Enfield, and Grady E. Smith of Leggett; her stepmother, Mrs. Sallie Smith of Rocky Mount; five step sisters, Rebecca, Nora, Gracie, and Loretta Smith, and Mrs. Edith Ward, all of Rocky Mount; and two step-brothers, Grover Eugene and Rodney Smith, both of Rocky Mount.

"Is it possible to call a special session?" inquired Philip Carroll, who had a request on the agenda, also for rezoning. "For me it is a pressing matter, otherwise I would not normally ask that a special meeting be considered."

"I'm in a similar situation," Leroy Cherry stated. "I got unadvertised at the previous meeting, and don't want to get another 30 days behind." Cherry was scheduled for hearing on a preliminary plat which had been tabled from last month on a technicality due to the failure of "The Daily Reflector" to run a required second public notice.

"My request," D. G. Nichols was next to ask the commissioners to consider a special meeting, "was understandably tabled before as I was not here on time. However, it's costing me $600 a month to wait."

"Speaking on behalf of Nichols," Mattox added, "can we waive the lack of a quorum?"

"I think not," Hagerty brothers, William Meeks of Newark, N.J., and Kater Meeks of Greenville; 13 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren. The body will be at Flanagan & Parker Funeral Home.

remarked. "However, Grady's (Nichols) type of request needs only the approval of the commission, and not the council. Therefore I think it's most important to have a special call session at the earliest possible date."

Hagerty added that the resignation of a board member had been received at a very late hour Wednesday.

Commission Chairman H. D. Chapin then asked commission members to move ahead with discussion on any items that could be considered.

"Mr. Chairman," Mrs. Nadine Bowen, secretary to the commission reminded Chapin, "there's a motion and a second on the floor to adjourn."

The vote was in favor of adjournment. A special call meeting was set for Wednesday, April 5 at 8:00 p.m. to take up the nine items of business on the agenda.

Mrs. Bowen explained to this reporter that a combination of circumstances had resulted in the probably unprecedented lack of a quorum for the commission. Commission member F. H. Duncan has submitted his resignation. Member Clarence Tugwell is out of state on a business trip; and member Louis Clark was away for his father's 80th birthday.

Carolina Opens Quest Tonight Vs. Seminoles

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pupils challenge teachers everyday yet tonight comes a classic in confrontations as John Wooden, and his defending basketball champion UCLA Bruins face Denny Crum and the Louisville Cardinals.

Teacher Wooden must be favored as the undefeated Bruins continue their bid for a sixth straight national collegiate crown and their eighth in nine years.

North Carolina and Florida State meet in the other semifinal, slated to start at 9:10 p.m. EST.

Wooden and his crew face a club coached by a 34-year-old who played at UCLA and assisted the head man for three years when the Bruins won the NCAA crown each season.

Wooden was asked what another championship might mean to him, and answered:

"Pride. You want to do the best you can with the group you have. You start living in the past and you're done. You live in the future and you're done. What you do in the present will affect the future."

In Los Angeles, the North Carolina-Florida State meeting naturally takes second billing to UCLA and Louisville. However, the winner will be in the final, scheduled at the Los Angeles Sports Arena on Saturday at 5:10 p.m., EST, Saturday.

Florida State boasts height with sophomore Lawrence McCray at 6-foot 11 and Reggie Royals just an inch shorter.

North Carolina is shorter with Bob McAdoo at 6-9 handling the post position. However, the club has experience and Coach Dean Smith rates it favorably with the 1968 team that went to the NCAA final before losing to UCLA.

McAdoo averaged nearly 20 points per game during the regular season and was followed in the scoring category by senior forward Dennis Wuychik.

North Carolina takes a 25-4 record into the tournament with Florida State at 26-5.

Murphy Feels He's Overdue

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "This is getting pretty damned exasperating," red-haired Bob Murphy said.

"Maybe this week. Why not? It's about time. Or past time. I'm overdue."

And that he is.

"I've been in position to win six times already this year and I just can't bring it off. It's enough to drive you around the bend," the chunky, 29-year-old Murphy said today before starting out in his first round in the $125,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

He's one of the favorites—along with Jack Nicklaus, South African Gary Player and defending title-holder Frank Beard—for the $25,000 first prize in this 72 hole chase on the 7,080 yard, par 72 Lakewood Country Club course.

And if his putter holds up, Murphy very well could be THE favorite.

"It's all putting," said Murphy, a stocky, cigar-chomping guy now in his fifth year on the tour.

Murphy hasn't won this year, but has probably the most solid record on the tour. In 10 starts he's finished ninth or better seven times, six times sixth or better.

He lost a playoff for the Hawaiian Open title when he bogeyed the first extra hole, missing a two-foot putt. But he ranks third on the money list this year with $57,421.

Murphy, who didn't take up golf until the age of 19 after going to the University of Florida on a baseball scholarship, has three tour victories to his credit, the last in 1970.

Other major contenders include Masters champion Charles Coody, Billy Casper, Tony Jacklin of England and Australian Bruce Crampton.

Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino are taking time off.

Live Miller Sparks Cougars

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — A player who was close to death only a few hours earlier helped the Carolina Cougars upset the New York Nets in the American Basketball Association Wednesday night.

Larry Miller, who only last week set an ABA single game scoring record of 67 points, was awakened in the pre-dawn hours by smoke in his lavish bachelor house at Greensboro, N.C.

"I could hardly breathe, the smoke was so thick," Miller related after the Cougars had wiped out a 20-point deficit and snapped the Nets' seven-game winning streak, 117-113.

"Another minute or so and I may have been overcome," Miller continued. "The room next door was filled with flames. I managed to stagger outside."

"I remembered my two dogs and tried to get back into the house. The smoke and flames drove me back. I broke a window, but again was driven back and I knew the dogs were gone."

Miller raced to a neighbor's home and called the fire department, but it was too late. He said the $20,000 house and the $15,000 furnishings were a total loss.

In breaking the window Miller cut the index finger of his left hand. Eight stitches were needed.

"It's hard to believe I came so close to dying," Miller said after he arrived to play against the Nets at the Nassau Coliseum.

Playing with two fingers on his left hand taped, he contributed 15 points on seven field goals and one of six free throw attempts. "It was difficult shooting fouls," Miller said.

Led by Rick Barry's 32 points and Bill Paultz' 24, the Nets appeared to have their eighth straight victory in hand when they opened a 20-point lead at 84-64 late in the third quarter.

But the Cougars had a bitter pill in store for the Nets.

NEW YORK (AP) — The last time St. John's met Niagara, the Redmen rallied from a 16-point deficit for a 93-90 victory—but that was when they had a healthy Mel Davis.

Tonight, though, Davis lies in a hospital room, depriving his teammates of their top scorer and rebounder as they seek a shot at their fifth National Invitation Tournament basketball championship.

St. John's Coach Frank Mulzoff was succinct as he considered playing the Purple Eagles in tonight's semifinal without his 6-foot-7 center. "It'll be like hell on earth for us."

The opener of the double-header at Madison Square Garden will have an abundance of big men—Jacksonville's 7-foot center Dave Brent and Maryland's 6-9 pivotman Len Elmore and 6-11 forward Tom McMillen.

Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell believes the championship will be decided by defense "and we are playing very well on defense now. This is our strong suit. McMillen and Elmore have played very well here."

But Jacksonville Coach Tom Wasdin sees things just a bit different. "The key to this game," he says, "is whether our rebounding holds up and how well our quickness goes against their inside speed."

The Dolphins have an injury problem of their own—scoring leader Ernie Fleming's sprained ankle.

There's no way that Davis can play for St. John's—but if Greg Cluess fills in for him the way he did against Oral Roberts, Davis' absence won't be felt quite so severely.

Davis was brilliant during his 14 minutes, scoring 12 points and grabbing 12 rebounds. But as he drove in for what ended up being his final basket of the game—and probably his final one in the tourney—his knee buckled.

He crashed to the floor writhing in pain so bad he cried. What a few minutes earlier had been just a cramp in his right knee was now a torn tendon. They took him off on a stretcher.

Girls In Net Win

Rose High School's girl netters nipped the Greenville Tennis Club ladies, 4-3, Tuesday, to win their second match in three starts.

The Lady Rampants split the singles events, three each, with the Greenville Club, then took the lone doubles event to win it.

Rose will play host to Goldsboro High School on Friday.

Summary:

Susie Pittman (R) defeated Sis East, 6-1, 6-0.

Rae Daniels (GTC) defeated Chip East, 6-4, 6-2.

Vickie Davenport (R) defeated Frances Cain by forfeit.

Bardee Bond (GTC) defeated Kathy Thomas, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

Lib Evans (GTC) defeated Josie Rawl, 6-3, 6-1.

Becky Piner (R) defeated Grasman, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Pittman-Davenport (R) defeated East-Daniels, 8-6.

Orioles Got Bats Going Against Pirates—But Four Months Late

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Baltimore Orioles finally got their bats booming against the Pittsburgh Pirates—about five months too late.

The Orioles, held in check by Pirate hurlers Steve Blass, Bruce Kison and Nelson Briles in the 1971 World Series, erupted for 10 runs and 14 hits and whipped the Pirates 10-5 Wednesday in exhibition baseball.

In other games, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 5-3, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 8-7, the New York Mets defeated the New York Yankees 3-0, Detroit shut out the New York Mets' B team 7-0, Montreal beat Atlanta 7-4 and Boston outscored Houston 11-7.

Also, the Chicago White Sox defeated Minnesota 7-5, Cleveland edged the Chicago Cubs 4-3, Milwaukee stopped San Francisco 7-3, Kansas City nipped Texas 4-3 and Oakland blanked California 6-0.

Nelson Briles, who hurled a two-hit shutout against the Orioles in the fifth game of the World Series, was the chief victim of the Baltimore outburst. He pitched five innings and was tagged for nine of the Baltimore runs.

Big Boog Powell, who managed only three hits—and no extra base hits—in the Series, slugged two home runs for the Orioles, and Don Buford added another. For Pittsburgh, Willie Stargell, the major league home run leader last season, slugged his first of the spring in the second inning off Mike Cuellar.

Frank Robinson, traded away by Cincinnati six years ago, drove in two runs with a homer and a double as the Dodgers defeated the Reds. Home runs by Don Money and Deron Johnson helped Philadelphia overcome a 7-2 deficit and defeat the Cards.

Jim McAndrew and Tug McGraw combined to shut the Yankees out on five hits, while Mickey Lolich gave up only one hit in five innings as the Tigers blanked the Mets' B team.

Montreal rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to defeat Atlanta 7-4. Rookie Dwight Evans cracked four hits and Boston collected 15 hits off Astro pitchers in their free-scoring affair. Jorge Orta and Walt Williams drove in three runs apiece to lead the White Sox past Minnesota.

Del Unser's two-out, ninth-inning triple lifted Cleveland past the Cubs, while Milwaukee rallied for five runs in the seventh inning—three of them coming on Darrell Porter's homer—to beat the Giants.

Lou Piniella drove in the winning run for Kansas City with a two-out, seventh-inning double, and Jim "Catfish" Hunter team with John "Blue Moon" Odom to shut out California on seven hits off Oakland.

Off the field, the Yankees and Red Sox made a trade which had been rumored for five months. New York sent veteran Danny Cater to the Red Sox, who are looking for a first baseman, in exchange for Sparky Lyle, a lefthanded relief pitcher whose 16 saves in 1971 were four more than the entire New York pitching staff could manage.

Allison Runs Hot In Practice

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer
HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., hoping to end Chevrolet's nine-year non-victory streak in long distance NASCAR Grand National stock car racing, set a blistering practice pace Wednesday in preparation for Sunday's 13th annual Atlanta 500.

Allison, who blew an engine while leading the Carolina 500 two weeks ago, consistently turned laps in excess of 158 miles per hour Wednesday at the 1.5-mile Atlanta International Raceway asphalt oval.

Allison and a field of some 70 stock car drivers, including defending champion A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., will begin three days of qualifying today, searching for the 40 starting positions in Sunday's 500-mile event that begins at 2 p.m. EST.

Chevrolets haven't won a Nascar event in excess of 250 miles since 1963 when Junior Johnson won the Dixie 400 at AIR. Allison hopes to end that string in a car prepared by Johnson.

Foyt, three-time winner of the Indianapolis 500, has won two 500-mile events this year—the Daytona 500 and the Miller 500 at Ontario, Calif. The USAC driving champion didn't compete in the Carolina 500.

Allison's time during the shakedown cruise Wednesday was better than the track qualifying record, a 155.796 set last August by Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., in a Dodge.

Five other drivers bettered the 150 m.p.h. mark in practice runs. Foyt piloted his 1971 Glen Wood Mercury at 154.359 m.p.h.; million dollar winner Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., had a 152.304 in a Plymouth; Baker 152.200 in a Dodge; David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., 151.359 in a Ford and Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., 151.783 in a Dodge.

The race for the pole is slated for this afternoon, with 15 cars qualifying. Fifteen more drivers will qualify Friday and the final 10 Saturday.

Sebring Runs Opening Today

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — A horde of race cars answered the roll call today as practice and qualifying opened for the 12-hour Grand Prix of Endurance, this country's oldest and longest motoring event.

Two days of time trials will set a field of between 60 and 70 starters for Saturday's 11 a.m. flagoff. It should be the fastest line-up in Sebring's 22-year history.

The old racing circuit, in use for perhaps the last time, is made up of 5.2 miles of battered concrete airport runways, asphalt roadways, hairpin turns, chicanes and "esses." It had been given its once-a-year grooming weeks ago.

But despite the dustand signs of age, an accumulation since World War II, the circuit's speed records were expected to survive only as long as it took to warm up some of the race cars.

The absolute lap record of 2 minutes, 31.65 seconds was set last year by Mark Donohue in a Ferrari 512M. The speed was 123.440 m.p.h.

Neither Donohue nor the British five-liter Ferrari were present for the first roll call. The five-liter cars were outlawed by a 1972 rules change by the Federation Internationale de Automobile (FIA) that lowered engine limits for sports-prototypes by three liters.

Also absent was Swiss driver Jo Siffert, whose Porsche 917K set the fastest lap during last year's race, 124.418 m.p.h. Siffert was killed in a racing crash last summer.

Present, however, were three flame red Ferraris, four Alfa Romeos, a Lola-Ford and a radically designed new Gulf Mirage, all of which meet the FIA's three-liter formula.

National Football League To Look At Possible Rule Changes

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — The National Football League will tackle the problem of rule change proposals today—and one of the people sitting on the edge of his chair is a guy who just recently was spinning on the rim of the moon as the pilot of the Apollo 12 command module.

Despite the fact that he's back on earth now as executive vice president of the New Orleans Saints, Dick Gordon feels he has a different perspective than many of the National Football League executives who are concerned with the possibility that defense has gained the edge over offense.

"I can reflect on some of these rule proposals differently than others in the game—some of them are so close it's like the guy who can't see the forest for the trees," Gordon explained.

As a fan he finds a certain intrigue in the rules. He's studied many of the proposed changes. He's not so sure that the offense needs help.

"People say the defense is so dominant, and maybe defenses have become better," Gordon said. "But maybe the best way to combat that is by offensive innovation. The only fact we have to work with is that there have been less points scored. I question the conclusions drawn from that. Maybe there are other reasons."

It should be noted, however, that Commissioner Pete Rozelle said at the meetings began that he considered the dropoff in scoring one of the "trouble spots" facing the sport and preferred to "stop a trend before it becomes dangerous."

There seems to be significant sentiment for change of some kind to redress the shift that has taken place during the last three years with 100 fewer touchdowns scored last season than in 1969.

In the weeks prior to the meetings, a number of proposals have been advanced. But the competition committee has declined to even let anyone peak at what its recommendations will be. However, it would appear that several proposals might be given strong consideration.

They include:

—Permitting offensive motion behind the line of scrimmage in any direction, including forward. That would, for example, enable a running back coming out for a pass to break across the line of scrimmage just at the snap, giving him a step or two advantage he does not now have.

—Giving offensive players more room to escape today's cat-quick defenders by some method that would serve the purpose of widening the field. One proposal suggests moving the hash marks to the middle of the field or closer to the middle than they are now.

—Making it mandatory for defensive linemen to maintain their position once they have assumed their three-point stance. That would enable offenses, which now often try to counter defensive movement, to initiate the movement and put the defense in a position of having to respond.

Games Are Rained Out

Rain and wet grounds forced the postponement of all area sports events yesterday. Only one has been rescheduled as yet.

Postponed were track meets involving North Pitt, Farmville Central, Conley, Greene Central and Ayden-Grifton, while a Robersonville-Edenton baseball game was called off.

Farmville Central has reset its track meet at Southern Nash for today, with Greene Central joining in.

Tankers At Meet

WEST POINT, N.Y. — Two members of the East Carolina University swimming team are participating in the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championship, now underway at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

Paul Trevisan is taking part in the 50-yard freestyle event, while Jack Morrow is in the field of the one-and three-meter diving.

A third Pirate, Jim Griffin, qualified, but was unable to attend because of practice teaching commitments.

The meet continues through Saturday.

Expos Defeat Braves

Nate Tries Harder, Leads Royal Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The National Basketball Association's two leading scorers represent opposite ends of the spectrum.

The leader, Kareem Abdul Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks with a 34.9 points per game average, is listed as 7-foot-2 but believed by many to be taller. He has always been an acknowledged superstar, a dominant force, who gives the impression he can score virtually at will.

Then there is the No. 2 man, Nate Archibald of Cincinnati.

Like that other No. 2, Archibald has to try harder. For one thing, although he's listed as 6-feet tall, Archibald is believed by many to actually be shorter than that figure.

Little Nate poured in 46 points Wednesday night to lead the Cincinnati Royals to a 135-130 victory over the Detroit Pistons. It was the 12th time in his last 13 games that the New York native, who played his college ball at Texas-El Paso, has hit for 30 points or more. More than capable, as his 27.6 scoring and 9.1 assist averages will attest.

In other NBA games, Cleveland upset Los Angeles 124-120, Golden State beat Baltimore 121-101, Atlanta edged Houston 107-106, the New York Knicks pounded Buffalo 123-99 and Boston beat Philadelphia 113-106.

Rick Roberson, a former Laker, scored a career-high 29 points, including 12 in the final quarter, to spark Cleveland. Jerry West and Gail Goodrich had 31 points apiece for Los Angeles and John Johnson added 28 for the Cavaliers.

The Lakers, now 67-13 on the season, failed in their bid to tie the league record for most victories in a season, 68 recorded by the Philadelphia 76ers in 1966-67. Los Angeles still has two regular season games remaining, however.

Golden State clinched second place in the Pacific Division and a berth in the NBA playoffs by beating Baltimore. The Warriors have a three-game lead over the Seattle SuperSonics with two games remaining.

Cazzie Russell had 33 points and Nate Thurmond 27 for Golden State. Mike Riordan's 15 points topped Baltimore.

Herm Gilliam tallied 14 points in the fourth quarter to spark the Hawks to their fourth consecutive victory. Stu Lantz led Houston with 29 points and Lou Hudson had 27 for St. Louis.

New York outscored Buffalo 40-20 in the first period and was never seriously threatened. Bill Bradley led all scorers with 33 points for the Knicks.

Boston outscored Philadelphia 14-5 in a four-minute stretch of the fourth quarter and went on to defeat the 76ers. John Havlicek topped the Celtics with 21 points, although Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia paced all scorers with 26.

Speed To Be Key For Padres

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Sports Writer
YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Speed! That's what the San Diego Padres are talking about this year.

They hope they've added enough, without sacrificing too much pitching, to scramble out of the National League West cellar for the first time since they joined the major leagues nearly four years ago.

"Speed will help us both offensively and defensively," says E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi, Padre president and co-owner. "If we had scored exactly four runs in every game last year, we would have won 89 games. Instead, we won 61"—and lost 100.

Similar sentiments come from Preston Gomez, manager of the Padres through all three of their losing years.

"This is the first year we have had the kind of speed to score without hitting the ball out of the infield," he says. That means they won't have to play for the one big inning as in years past, the Cuban-born manager adds hopefully.

The Padres hope this speed—from newcomers Derrel Thomas and John Jeter, and 1971 regulars Enzo Hernandez and Dave Campbell—will be the ingredient which has been missing in past seasons. In 1970 they hit 172 home runs and last year they were third in the league in pitching—but they again finished last.

Thomas, 21, is likely to be the Padres' starting second baseman while Bill Grief, also 21, who came in the same deal from Houston, is battling for one of the starting spots in the pitching rotation.

Clay Kirby, a right-hander with a 15-13 record and 2.93 ERA last season, and first baseman Nate Colbert, 89 home runs in three seasons at San Diego, are the Padres' mainstays.

Kirby, who had a one-hitter against San Francisco last season, has one starting spot, and Steve Arlin and Fred Norman have two others. That leaves Greif, Tom Phoebus, Ed Acosta, Dick Kelley and Mike Corkins vying for the remaining starters' jobs. Al Severinsen will be on call in the bullpen.

Two players acquired during the 1971 season, center fielder Jeter and third baseman Garry Jesteadt, are counted upon to produce for a full season. Jeter, who stole 36 bases and hit .324 in the International League, finished up swatting .320 in 75 at-bats with San Diego. Jesteadt hit over .291 and gave what Gomez called the best third base defense in the team's history.

With Jeter tabbed for center field, Leron Lee, Ollie Brown, Larry Stahl and Clarence Gaston are in a crowd seeking the other two outfield positions. Gaston hit .318 in 1970 but dropped 90 points last year.

Bob Barton gives solid defense behind the plate.

Showdown Is Near

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The stage was set today for a showdown between baseball's club owners and players over a possible strike before the season gets underway.

The owners, reacting to a series of near-unanimous strike votes by the players over their pension plan negotiations, came back with a show of force of their own Wednesday, voting not to add any money to their previous offer.

Gussie Busch, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, articulated the tough position taken by the brass, saying: "We voted unanimously to take a stand. We're not going to give another cent. And if they want to strike," said Busch, "let them strike."

That sent John Gaherin, the owners' representative in these negotiations, back to the bargaining table with Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, carrying no better offer than the one that has precipitated the series of strike votes in major league training camps this spring.

The two negotiators were scheduled to meet in Arizona Friday.

The key issue is the pension agreement which expires March 31. The players are seeking increases to match the 17 per cent cost of living increase during the past three years. The owners, who have already agreed to pay increased medical and dental costs, have balked over any pension increase.

Faint Playoffs Hopes Still On

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Nets missed a chance to take a giant step towards second place in the American Basketball Association's East Division race Wednesday night, but the Carolina Cougars managed to keep their faint playoff hopes alive.

The Cougars, 1½ games behind the Floridians in the struggle for fourth place, erased a 20-point second half deficit and beat the Nets 117-113. The loss left New York 1½ games back of second place Virginia, which was beaten by Indiana 129-118.

In other ABA games, Kentucky topped Pittsburgh 125-121 and Dallas defeated Denver 105-96.

Stew Johnson hit 10 straight points in the last 2:25 of the game to lift Carolina past the Nets. New York had led 84-84 late in the third quarter.

New York's Rick Barry led all scorers with 32 points and Bill Paultz added 24. Carolina's Larry Miller, who set an ABA record with 67 points in a game Saturday night, managed to score 15.

Indiana jumped off to a 15-point first quarter lead and went on to defeat Virginia, despite a 38-point outburst by the Squires' Julius Erving. George McGinnis led Indiana with 33 points.

So Virginia, 43-36, retained its 1½-game margin over New York, 42-38, in the second place race, while Carolina, 33-48, moved within 1½ games of the Floridians, 33-45, in the battle for fourth.

To further complicate matters, or maybe straighten them out, New York will travel to Virginia for a game against the Squires and the Cougars will host the Floridians Friday night.

Kentucky, the ABA East champions, set an ABA record by winning their 34th home game of the season. Dan Issel scored 32 points and Cincy Powell 25 for the Colonels. Bob Verga and Dave Lattin poured in 34 apiece for the Condors.

Donnie Freeman and Rich Jones scored 21 points apiece for Dallas. It was the 31st consecutive game Freeman has scored 20 or more.

Ralph Simpson netted 34 and Dave Robisch 20 for the Rockets.

Many Films Made Never Appear On The Screen

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The altered economics of the movie business has brought about a common phenomenon: the vanished film. More and more movies have been disappearing without a trace following rejection by distribution companies and the public. Figures are hard to estimate, but possibly $100 million worth of film entertainment is languishing in film vaults, most of it never to be seen by the general public. A recent case in point: "The Picasso Summer." After five years in various stages of production, the film has finally been rescued from oblivion for showing in the Late Night Movie spot on CBS. The network paid only a fraction of the movie's cost of $1.6 million for its appearance in the talk show time period. Except for the CBS pickup, "The Picasso Summer" might never have been seen anywhere. It started as a fantasy starring Albery Finney and Yvette Mimieux in the live-action story, with animated versions of Picasso paintings as an added feature. After several attempts to convert the film into a theatrical venture, Warner Bros. despaired, and sold the film to CBS.

Many another movie has not even enjoyed the reprieve of a television showing. This is a growing trend in the film industry, though not an entirely new development. Throughout Hollywood history, films have occasionally been abandoned by companies. The practice of shelving movies was fairly rare during the decades when the studios owned their own theaters. Then the companies could usually exact a profit from any film, good or bad. Antitrust decrees deprived the film companies of their theater chains. Now the cost of merchandising a single film is perilous.

"A major picture can run as high as a million dollars to release," says a veteran film distribution executive. "By the time you add up the cost of 300 to 400 prints, advertising, publicity, distribution fees and overhead, you can be spending more than the picture cost. In cases where a movie has no apparent chance to attract a market, it makes more sense to put it on the shelf than release it." Thus the list grows longer of films which have had only the barest of releases or none at all, then have suffered the ignominy of being shelved forever or sold to television at a pittance.

Examples: "The Phynx" was produced by Warner Bros. with three dozen vintage stars (Ruby Keeler, Johnny Weissmuller, Pat O'Brien, Dorothy Lamour, etc.) in guest roles. It had a test showing in Indianapolis and proved so dismal that further efforts were abandoned. "The Adventures of Gerrard" was filmed in Italy in 1968 with a big cast headed by Peter McEnery, Claudia Cardinale, Eli Wallach and Jack Hawkins. Four years and $3 million later, it has vanished from the United Artists schedule.

"Summertime," produced by Kirk Douglas and starring his son Michael Douglas, and Brenda Vaccaro, played in New York in June and then was withdrawn by Columbia.

Moose Team To Have 4 Busloads Of Escorts

CARLTON MCCOLLOM

Some 163 eastern North Carolinians, riding chartered buses, leave tomorrow for a weekend in Kingsport, Tenn. For 157 of the travelers, it is simply a matter of escorting six Greenville men to a national competition....as well as having a good time.

The occasion is the annual competition for ritual teams of the second degree of the Loyal Order of Moose, the Legion of the Moose. Twenty-five teams from all over the United States are participating in the event.

The degree team of Enoca Legion (which includes members of all N.C. lodges east of Raleigh) is composed of Greenville men: Jasper Anderson, James Harris, Lloyd Wilson, Carlton McCollom, Francis Tyson, and Jerry McLawhorn. There are two alternates: Tom Jamieson and John Simonowich.

Competing in three previous national competitions, the team has yet to place in the top three positions. Their captain, Harris, is hoping past experience will mean the difference this year.

A number of Greenville Moose Lodge members are making the trip. They are: Walter Beddard, Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Bynum Sr., Mr. and Mrs. William Ed Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dash;

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Lee Sawyer Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Stoneham, Mr. and Mrs. James Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Spain,

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Baldree, Mr. and Mrs. John Simonowich, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jamieson,

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McLawhorn, Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton McCollom, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Harris.

The party expects to return to Greenville on Sunday night.

Car Removal

Greenville residents, living South of the Tar River and having junk cars on their property, can have them moved at no cost by contacting the Greenville Police Department.

The car removal project, being headed by Sgt. Douglas Ross, is being conducted in an effort to clean up junked and abandoned cars which, in many cases, cause health problems by providing shelter for rats.

North Carolina State Adopted Hero's Daughter

By H. G. JONES, Director
N.C. Department of Archives and History

RALEIGH (AP) — A unique event in North Carolina history was the state's 1817 "adoption" of Udney Maria Blakely, the daughter of naval hero Capt. Johnston Blakely.

In the War of 1812 Blakely commanded the United States sloop of war "Wasp." In 1814 it defeated the British sloop "Reindeer" and "Avon" and soon thereafter disappeared, never to be heard from again.

Even before it became apparent that Blakely and his crew were lost, both Congress and the General Assembly of North Carolina took steps to acknowledge his service to the country.

Congress authorized a gold medal to be struck in his honor, and the General Assembly unanimously agreed "to present to Captain Blakely, on his return to the United States, a superb sword, appropriately adorned, in the name and on behalf of his fellow citizens."

After a year passed with no word from Blakely, many people felt that he must be dead.

The State Senate in 1815 passed a resolution that the sword authorized by the previous session be sent to his widow. Members of the House of Commons, however, felt the action might be premature and tabled the resolution.

The legislature unanimously resolved Dec. 28, 1816 that since Blakely was lost at sea and the opportunity of paying personal tribute to him was no longer possible, something should be done for his wife and child.

It decided that the sword authorized in 1814 would be presented to Mrs. Blakely along with a copy of the General Assembly's resolutions on the subject. She was to be made aware that the legislature would "always take a deep interest in her happiness and welfare."

A second part of the resolution stated that Blakely's child was to "be educated at the expense of this state, and that Mrs. Blakely be requested to draw on the treasurer of this state from time to time for such sums of money as shall be required for the education of said child."

The unusual action was without parallel at the time and has been repeated just once — in 1817 when $250 annually for seven years was voted to the son of Lt. Col. Benjamin Forsyth of Stokes County.

State Sen. Nathaniel Macon

corresponded with Mrs. Blakely early in 1817 requesting "that you will do the state of North Carolina the honor of educating your infant daughter."

He also wrote, "being informed that the child of Captain Blakely is a daughter, we have declined purchasing the sword until we could know from you whether a present more suitable to a female would not be preferred." (The resolution indicated that the sword was to be presented to the widow, but legislators apparently assumed the gift eventually would belong to the child.)

Mrs. Blakely's reply proposed that "a set of tea-plate, or that something as suitable, and useful, may be substituted, but your judgement and taste, I leave the choice of the gift."

She also acknowledged with gratitude the offer of funds to educate Udney Maria, and shortly thereafter she made an initial withdrawal of $600.

An awkward situation immediately arose from the fact that the legislature had set no limit or guideline on the amount of money to be used.

Mrs. Blakely wrote "I have drawn on the treasurer for $600, after consulting my friends, who are of the opinion that for the next five years, that sum will be sufficient." The conclusion was mistakenly drawn that $600 was the total requirement for the next five years. In reality, Mrs. Blakely meant $600 per year.

After some disagreement in the legislature and an attempt to limit funds to a considerably lesser amount than $600 per year, a committee report was approved describing the sum drawn by Mrs. Blakely as "quite moderate."

Udney Maria Blakely lived in Philadelphia with her mother and was educated at "the best schools of that city."

Total state expenditures on her behalf between 1817 and 1829 added up to more than $8,000. That including the cost of a silver tea service "with appropriate devices and engravings," which was decided upon instead of the sword.

After she finished normal schooling at the age of 16, her annual appropriation was discontinued by resolution as it had been adopted 12 years earlier.

Miss Blakely later moved to the island of St. Croix where she married in 1841 and died in childbirth the following year.

The silver tea service presented by the legislature is now displayed alongside her portrait at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 24, 1972

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You now find you have the warmth, magnetism and awareness of what others have in mind. You can get them to go along with your plans if you are not so engrossed in gaining your ambitions and wishes that you take from them but do not give in return. Fine for social events, public works.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do something constructive about those creative ideas you have and get in good with those at the head of large corporations. Come to a better understanding with loved one. Go along more with his or her ideas.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Instead of being so reticent, be more willing to cooperate with those who live at your home and all is better in the future. You can develop that project amazingly well if you use only practical and sane methods. Think.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You love to gad about making new contacts that are worthwhile, bringing home the proverbial bacon, and this is a fine day for such. Know what is expected of you by allies. Don't disappoint them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get busy with the monetary problems you have early and make big headway for the future, so that the weekend will be free of worry. Contact an adviser if you are confused just how to go ahead. Then carry through like a machine.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You look and feel so attractive today that others will be in the mood to grant you almost any favor you ask. Plan just how to have more savoir faire in the future. Improve your health.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan those new arrangements of a private nature carefully and don't confide in others, or they will go awry. Your intuitive faculties are working fine. Follow them and get good results, whether in business or personal life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Pick the right companions to accompany you at some social event that you feel will bring you pleasure or prestige, or both. Do that shopping early that is necessary. Do not splurge because you want to show off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Put that plan to work that will open doors of opportunity for you by seeing the right bigwigs who have the right keys. You have fine talents and can make the most of them now. Improve image at public work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have the opportunity to get into new outlets, meet interesting people, study new recreational activities now. Get the information you need. This can bring about a whole new uptrend in your life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Sit down with advisers and plan a far better existence along the right channels and ethical standards. Confide in your mate, who can be most helpful also. Stop being so opinionated and add to present security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Go along with what conservatives in high position have to suggest instead of giving vent to your emotions and getting into trouble. One who has opposed you can now be a valuable associate if handled properly. Take it easy in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although you have much work to do, plan some time for improving your home surroundings as well. Add the new articles that are colorful and charming. Add new trimmings to wardrobe so it looks more modern, sharp.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people with a desire for heroism who can become a true hero, heroine because of the inherited pattern within the subconscious, provided the parents give the right impetus and encouragement at the right times to bring this about. Otherwise your child will lose heart and become a sorry figure. Send to college if possible.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Conservationist Appears Before Winterville Bd.

Honor Roll For Stokes School Is Announced

STOKES—Matthew T. Lewis, principal of Stokes Elementary School, has released the honor roll for the fourth marking period.

Students qualifying for the honor roll include:

First grade—Woody Leggett, Jackie Clark, Shirlena Little, Diann Roach, Gay Singleton, Patty Roebuck, and Michelle Ward;

Grade Two—Jacqueline Barnhill, Johnny Hopkins, Mary Little, Cynthia Tyson, Kelvin Mooring and Ronnie Beachum;

Grade Three—Robert Carraway, Felicia Gilbert, Jane Harrison, Denise Hudson, Della Jenkins, Mitchell Leggett, Mary Little, Roger Nelson, James Payton, Sheila Spruell and Ben Andrews;

Grade Four—David Bullock, Louvenia Clemons, Lynette Paige, Annie Parker and Rosa Parker;

Grade Five—Mary Ann Hudson, Marcella Pittman and Cynthia Barnes.

WINTERVILLE—Roy Beck, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, met with the Winterville Planning and Zoning Board Monday night. Beck told the group there is available to the town of Winterville an analysis of the type of land and soil in that area.

The conservationist stated the report might be advantageous in determining the zoning and rezoning of land under the board's jurisdiction.

The board agreed to recommend to the Winterville Board of Aldermen that Robert Kelemon be employed by the town for another year.

Kelemon, employed by the North Carolina Department of Natural and Economic Resources, Community Services, Division, has been offering technical assistance to the town with code enforcement and planning implementation.

The total program for the 1972-73 year will cost $3,800, with $1,500 coming from local funds and the remainder being paid by state and federal funds.

Board members voted to recommend to the town board that a house numbering system be utilized within the town limits.

The board heard a request from Lewis Harper asking that he be allowed to erect a 60 feet by 40 feet building on the north corner of Boyd and Mills Streets.

The facility would be used to house a television and appliance shop.

The property, currently zoned for residential, would have to be rezoned to commercial by the planning board.

Board members recommended that Harper present a plan with the size of the lot and the size of the building to be erected on the property to the planning board for further study.

Skipper Bowles In Pitt Friday

Gubernatorial candidate Skipper Bowles will be in Pitt County Friday to meet the public.

His schedule is as follows: Ayden—breakfast at Bum's Restaurant and an appearance at the town hall between 8 and 9 o'clock; Pitt Technical Institute, 9 to 9:30; Holiday Inn, 9:30 to 10:30; East Carolina University, 10:30 to 11:15; and the Farmville Town Hall, 11:30 to 12:30.

The Worry Clinic

A Camouflage Of Forty Fears

Dorothy's husband cut her to the quick with his erotic insults. But I warned her not to take his snide remarks at face value. For he was emotionally "deranged," like many other panicky husbands at age 40. Note what happened when she used "cheese-cake."

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.
Case T-533: Dorothy J., aged 36, is the wife of the miserly husband who suddenly developed a strangle hold on the family purse strings.

"Dr. Crane," she moaned, "he has now demanded twin beds. 'And has told me he does not love me. In fact, he even said he never did love me!'"

"He has further insulted me by admitting that he truly loves his young secretary, who is only 22."

"Sol what can I do? I'm so confused and unhappy!"

SEXUAL CAMOUFLAGE
So I warned Dorothy that her husband was merely trying to divert her attention.

He was a platonic mate, as she admitted, and thus was trying to combine a "smoke screen" and "red herring" strategy.

"Don't get twin beds!" I warned.

"And never let his insults disturb you. For he really loves you but is scared to the point he is striking at you to protect his erotic ego.

"Like a toddler who irritably tells his mother, 'I hate you,' he is trying to punish you for his own misery."

Then I told Dorothy to snuggle up against his shoulder in bed and make love, starting with a kiss.

"But he folded his arms above his head," she reported next day, "so I could not even lay my head on his shoulder."

"And he said it wouldn't be fair to the girl at the office to let me kiss him!"

You readers can imagine the effect of such an insult to a devoted wife, if she took his remark at face value!

So I cautioned her never to take any such comments to heart, for he was emotionally "sick."

Meanwhile, I coached her in becoming more seductively aggressive the next night.

"He finally told me he loved me with all his heart."

"And admitted his so-called infatuation with his secretary was just an imaginary fabrication to hurt me."

Two weeks later Dorothy called again to tell me her husband had cried and confessed that he had been so terrified lest he become totally impotent, that he had even debated suicide.

Now he was his jolly former self—and generous again!

For his miserliness with money had been merely the typical platonic male's attempt to hang on to some symbol of power to offset his belief that he could no longer motivate his wife by love.

Wives, the odds favor you, for most men rarely propose marriage to but one woman and you are that favored "one and only."

But you must remain intelligently alert to your wifely obligations of some siren may win your mate away by the time he is 40.

So remain queen of your own boudoir and he'll be generous with money, too.

Opening lead: King of ♠

In today's column we are concluding a deal begun yesterday in which the reader was presented with the opportunity to determine how South, the declarer at five diamonds, succeeded in winning 11 tricks. Altho it is offered in the form of a double dummy problem inasmuch as all four hands are exposed to view, the deal was played in an International event and the actual declarer did make his contract.

The problem revolves around the lack of entries to dummy required to establish North's club suit for needed heart discards. If South plays the ace of spades at trick one when West leads the king, to take an immediate club finesse, West will ruff in. Declarer can draw the remaining trumps with the ace and now safely cash the ace of clubs. The six of diamonds is overtaken by the king to lead the jack of clubs and ruff out East's king. The carefully preserved four of diamonds puts North in with the five and a heart is discarded on the ten of clubs. South leads a heart to the king, but West cashes two tricks to defeat the contract.

If declarer wins the first trick and draws two rounds of trump ending up in dummy—to lead the queen of clubs, East can prevent the establishment of that suit by merely refusing to cover. South's ace blocks the suit and there is only one entry left to the North hand—the five of diamonds. Declarer is unable to prevent the loss of three heart tricks on the deal.

South anticipated all the potential problems in advance including the possibility of West's being void in clubs by a simple—yet completely effective maneuver. He merely ducked the first trick, permitting West to hold the king of spades. The latter continued with the queen, the eight was played from dummy and declarer ruffed in his hand with the six of diamonds.

The ace of diamonds was cashed and when both opponents followed, the seven of diamonds was led over to the king pulling the remaining trump. Now the queen of clubs was put thru and altho East did not cover, South was ready to take full command of the proceedings.

When the queen of clubs held the trick, declarer played the ace of spades next and discarded the ace of clubs from his hand to clear up the block in that suit. He could now continue with the jack and when East covered, South ruffed with the nine of diamonds.

The four of diamonds put North in with the five and two hearts were discarded on the ten and nine of clubs—which had been so effectively established. A heart was led to the king and altho West won the ace, South ruffed the continuation and claimed the balance, having lost only one spade and one heart on the deal.

Civil Marriage Rites Preferred

MANILA (UPI)—Filipino city dwellers prefer being married in civil ceremonies rather than in church, says a sociological study by the University of the Philippines. The study covered 382 couples selected randomly from different social classes in Manila and nearby Quezon City. The Philippines has 35.5 million inhabitants, of whom 85 per cent are Roman Catholics.

First District in 1966, and was the Republican candidate for Secretary of State in 1968.

A graduate of Earlham College in Richmond, Ind., the professor was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and later received a law degree from the University of Illinois. He earned his Masters Degree and Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Florida.

East is married to the former Priscilla Sheek and the couple has two children.

Bennett, district chairman for Gardner in 1968, is past chairman of the Cartaret County Republican Executive Committee, was a member of the State House of Representatives from 1963 to 1965, and is presently chairman of the Cartaret County Board of Commissioners and chairman of the County Board of Health.

Dimes Are Spurring N.C. Beef Demand

According to John E. Smith, Pitt County Chairman for the Beef Referendum, since the initiation in 1958 of a cattle promotion program in North Carolina, beef consumption has increased from 80.5 lbs. to 114 lbs.

This program has been supported through an assessment program whereby farmers contribute to the North Carolina Cattlemen's Association 10 cents per head on all cattle sold to slaughter in North Carolina.

Through the North Carolina Cattlemen's Association, funds collected from the assessments have been used to improve and increase production, consumption and aid in marketing of North Carolina beef and beef products.

In the past, this assessment has only been on cattle going to slaughter, but due to the small amount of revenue, the Association has had to work with over the years approximately

Rawls Honored By Fraternity

RALEIGH—Jeffrey D. Rawls of Stokes has been knighted into the Order of St. Patrick, honorary engineering leadership fraternity at N.C. State University here.

Membership in the order is one of the highest honors bestowed on NCSU engineering students. Rawls was one of 23 outstanding seniors recognized in the name of St. Patrick, patron saint of engineers all over the world.

$25,000 annually including membership fees.

They are now asking for a 10 cents assessment per head on all cattle sold in North Carolina during the next six years.

All persons who share in the proceeds from the sale of cattle are eligible to vote in this referendum on April 5, (husband, wife, children and hired hands). Two-thirds of those voting must favor the proposal for it to become effective.

For further information, interested persons may contact the Pitt County Extension Office or John E. Smith, Grifton, county cattle referendum chairman.

Physics Prof At Memphis Meet

Dr. Thomas Sayetta, faculty advisor of East Carolina University's Alpha Gamma chapter of Chi Beta Phi science honor society, was at Memphis State University last week for Chi Beta Phi's national convention.

Dr. Sayetta led a panel discussion of faculty advisors about the planning of national and local activities.

Chi Beta Phi is open to college students who have a "B" average and who have completed 30 credit hours in science.

There are approximately 30 chapters in the nation.

Experienced Men Sought

The Army is seeking men with military experience, according to SSG George Washington, Army recruiting officer here.

A major attraction for reenlistment is the Army's recent pay raise. A man who left the Army before November, 1971 will find that a Private First Class is now more highly paid than a sergeant was at the time of his discharge.

An Enlistment Eligibility Activity Center has been set up at St. Louis, Mo. and records of personnel recently separated from the Army are being screened for individuals who have a desirable MOS evaluation score, have excellent conduct and efficiency ratings, have had no courts-martial, have had no civilian convictions (no more than three minor traffic violations); and who have a high school diploma.

SSG Washington will be personally contacting these ex-soldiers to inform them of opportunities available to prior servicemen, he said.

OEO Will Seek Housing That Poor Can Afford

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The Office of Economic Opportunity will attempt to design housing that the "truly poor" can afford, Director Philip V. Sanchez says.

OEO is beginning work on a $4 million experimental design program "to find out if it's possible to construct a low-income home on a massive scale," Sanchez told newsmen Wednesday. Later contractors will bid on constructing sample units.

The antipoverty agency hopes to lower the cost of some aspects of home-building "through introduction of new materials that still meet code standards," Sanchez said.

The OEO chief, here for a meeting with his 10 regional directors, charged that current low income housing is too expensive to "reach the truly poor person."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE QUESTION OF THE ADOPTION OF US 13 AND NC 11 FROM WEST THIRD STREET TO NC 903

Project 6.803027, 9.8022038

The North Carolina State Highway Commission will hold a public hearing on the proposed design for the improvement of the above section of US 13 and NC 11. The proposed design consists of adding two additional lanes with a 30' or 44' median to the west side of the existing lanes. All alterations shall be at grade. The right of way will vary and will be that necessary to contain the construction.

A set of prints setting forth the above and a copy of the Environmental Impact Statement Negative Declaration is available for public review and copying at the Division Office of the North Carolina State Highway Commission in Greenville, North Carolina.

The hearing will be held on March 28, 1972, at 11:30 a.m., in the Municipal Auditorium of the City Hall in Greenville, North Carolina. The hearing will consist of an explanation of the proposed design, right of way requirements and procedures, relocation advisory assistance and the State-Federal relationship. The hearing will be open to those present for any questions, statements, comments, and/or submittal of material pertaining to the proposed design. Additional information may be submitted for a period of ten days from the date of the hearing to the office of Mr. R. W. McGowan, Assistant Chief Engineer, Preconstruction, North Carolina State Highway Commission, P.O. Box 25201, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611.

New Kalinin Prospect A Model For New Moscow

By DAVID NAGY
MOSCOW (UPI)—The best of all possible Moscovs lies just west of the Kremlin on an eight-lane boulevard of glass skyscrapers and fancy shops called "New Kalinin Prospect."

In the official view, this glittering half-mile shopping strip is a preview of what Soviet parade will be like in 1991, when the city's modernization plan is scheduled for completion.

The new city guidebook calls high-rise Kalinin "sweepingly bold ... the finest of Moscow streets." The plan says it will be one of five "administrative-cultural centers" in the heart of town.

The Soviets built New Kalinin from the ground up, between 1962 and 1968, out of tempered glass, aluminum, concrete, mosaic tile, neon and shrubbery. A double file of high-rise buildings cuts through the brownstone heart of old Moscow like a set of sharp white teeth.

A Model City
The aim was a complete shopping and entertainment center that would be the very model of the good life Soviet power is supposed to deliver in the last quarter of this century.

Trouble is, this telescoping of the future with the present also spotlights unintended contrasts between the bright new trends and the old economic warts of shortage, poor quality and primitive service.

Kalinin Prospect, for example, boasts "Europe's biggest bookstore," but it has no

Tolstoy or Dostoyevsky in stock. The street has the nation's biggest supermarket, but the cuts of beef are no better than the gristly chunks available in local butchershops.

A visit to the two-story glass shopping arcade can turn up such new items as Soviet potato chips, soft toilet paper, imported suits with labels that say "first class fashion" and Soviet men's colognes with names such as "Sweet Friend."

Quaint Names—Not Numbers
The shops have names such as "The Lilac Perfumery" and "The Snowstorm Ice Cream Parlor" instead of numbers. There is background music, and there are escalators.

The Sinitetika (synthetics) clothing store, a soft smooth voice coos shopping service message over the loudspeaker system. Then comes a recorded voice singing in thickly accented English, "rendrops kip faleeng on my ghed." then a Western pop group sings—"I never promised you a rose garden."

The good news here is imported British and French shoes for women and Western, wide-lapel suits for men. Prices in both run very steep.

Beyond the Sinitetika, the Enchantress Coiffeur Parlor grooms male and female heads in job lots and the Polish Cosmetic Beauty Institute skims warts, applies mudpacks and dispenses "everything for beauty."

In the Enchantress, a shaggy American visitor slips into one of the scores of chairs and awaits the quick bowl-cut Moscow barbers favor Blone, plump Galina Mihailovna steps up and dispenses a mod razor cut, a shampoo and a hot-air dryer for rubles 2.80, or $3.50 American.

Even Western Music
The "New Arbat" supermarket has about an acre of staple foods and several hundred people in two lines at the vegetable counter, where scarce tomatoes and cucumbers are on sale this day.

Walking back toward the river, the visitor stops at the small Melodia Record Shop for a look at something relatively new—Western pop hits reproduced by the Soviets, on sale over-the-counter.

Small blue discs, so rubbery they can be bent almost in half, feature Tom Jones, Louie Armstrong and one song by Simon and Garfunkel. The cost is a few kopecks (cents).

Along the New Kalinin Prospect, and inside its handsome shops, a new Moscow is, indeed, being glimpsed.

A VIEW OF KALININ PROSPECT from river toward the center of Moscow, which city fathers call "Moscow's finest street". This half-mile shopping strip is a preview of Moscow's modernization goal. (UPI Telephoto)

Nursing School Awarded Grant

The U. S. Public Health Service has awarded the East Carolina University School of Nursing a grant of $10,200 for its traineeship program.

The funds will be used to pay the tuition, fees and living expenses of three qualified registered nurses who return to ECU to earn the bachelor's degree in nursing.

According to Dean of Nursing Evelyn Perry, there is a current trend among practicing nurses to realize the need for the baccalaureate degree in modern nursing, and many return to a university program to earn the necessary credits toward the four-year degree.

LOANS TEA SET
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Julie Nixon Eisenhower has loaned the Jacksonville Children's Museum a tea set her mother brought back from China as a gift to her.

HEARING FRIDAY
WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A hearing is scheduled Friday for three blacks charged with conspiring to murder a white man during racial disturbances in Wilmington more than a year ago.
