Walkouts Tie Up N. Ireland

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST (AP) — Thousands of Protestant factory and office workers left their jobs today, paralyzing Northern Ireland in an angry backlash over British takeover of the their provincial government.

A wing of the outlawed Irish Republican army announced it was easing its guerrilla campaign against civilian targets. But militant Catholic nationalists of the IRA denied there was any truce. Underscoring the denial, three bombs exploded in parked cars in Protestant sectors of Belfast. There were no casualties.

The blasts sharpened tension in Northern Ireland's capital as columns of striking workers marched to city hall for a rally staged by the Ulster Vanguard Movement, a hardline Protestant organization.

Electricity was cut at breakfast time and within minutes trade, production and traffic ground to a halt throughout the province.

Vanguard leader William Craig, who called the two-day strike, was cheered when he told an estimated 20,000 strikers massed outside Belfast city hall, "We have to fight and we will fight."

Craig, a former provincial home affairs minister, said the aim of the protest was to force the British to restore the suspended provincial parliament with greater powers than before. He has vowed to make British rule impossible.

He called on Protestants to rally outside the provincial parliament building at Stormont when it holds its closing session Tuesday. He asked for a massive show of support for Prime Minister Brian Faulkner, who quit rather than give in to the British demands.

Thousands of workers across Ulster joined the strike and held meetings supporting Faulkner—an indication that the new British secretary of state for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, can expect little Protestant support while he rules the province for the next year.

Nearly all the 5,400 men at Belfast's Short-Harland aircraft plant walked out. So did most of the 10,000 workers at the Harland and Wolff shipyard. All banks closed. Trains stopped running from Belfast's two major railroad stations. All flights from Aldergrove Airport were cancelled.

The strike by the militant Protestants and the partial halt to the guerrilla campaign by Catholics of the Irish Republican Army were separate reactions to the British government's takeover of Northern Ireland's provincial government last week in an effort to end almost three years of strife.

Lobbyist Links White House To Controversy Before New Collapse

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — Lobbyist Dita D. Beard linked the White House to the controversy surrounding International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. before collapsing in bed during a hospital room hearing called by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The 53-year-old Mrs. Beard, recuperating from a heart ailment, fell back onto her bed in pain Sunday after undergoing questioning by a Senate subcommittee investigating charges by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

Dr. Louis Radetsky, her physician at the Rocky Mountain Osteopathic Hospital, said later she had suffered severe pains in her chest, left shoulder, left arm and hand. Radetsky said she was resting comfortably four hours after the attack.

Mrs. Beard, before the hearings were temporarily called off, had testified under oath that she had written a memo after her boss told her the White House had called him to find out what ITT's financial commitment would be toward the Republican National Convention.

"It suddenly jumped up, is this $600,000 going to Nixon's campaign," Mrs. Beard testified.

After the hearing, Sen. John

V. Tunney, D-Calif., said the telephone call mentioned a $600,000 figure.

"It would appear that the ambiguity was in the White House over whether the money would go to the Republican convention or to the presidential campaign," Tunney said.

In his column Anderson published a memorandum allegedly written by Mrs. Beard linking the out-of-court settlement of three antitrust cases against ITT last year with a $400,000 financial guarantee from the conglomerate to the city of San Diego to assist it in obtaining the Republican National Convention.

During the 2½ hours of testimony before her attack, Mrs. Beard again denied that she had written the memorandum published by Anderson. But she conceded there were several parts of it that she had put in an interoffice memo to her boss, W.R. Merriam, head of ITT's Washington office.

She said she had been asked to write a memo by Merriam after he told her the White House had called. She said Merriam did not tell her who in the White House had called him.

The Senate Judiciary Committee was asked by Atty. Gen.-designate Richard G. Kleindiest to reopen hearings on his nomination to succeed John N. Mitchell and to permit him to defend the Justice Department against the Anderson charges.

Kleindiest's nomination was confirmed unanimously by the committee but is now being held up by the full Senate until the hearings have ended.

ITT President Harold S. Gen-teen testified earlier in Washington that the corporation's commitment of $100,000 and another $100,000 if needed was to go to the San Diego Convention and Tourist Bureau and not the Republican National Committee.

Mrs. Beard changed part of her testimony between the morning and afternoon sessions.

Law Enforcers Say Public Misinformed About Irving Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Two top law enforcement officials have accused the media of misleading the public by presenting as fact "speculative" and "untrue" news stories on the investigation into Clifford Irving's purported "autobiography" of Howard Hughes.

U.S. Attorney Whitney North Seymour Jr. and Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan made the charges Sunday in a letter to Bernard Botwin, president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. They requested a special inquiry into the media's handling of the episode.

The prosecutors claimed the media seriously eroded the guarantee of a fair trial for Irving and others involved, perverted the public's right to know, compromised the integrity of agencies pursuing the investigation and subverted effective cooperation between law enforcement offices here and abroad.

Without identifying the publications by name, Seymour and Hogan pointed to stories that appeared Feb. 12 in The New York Times, Feb. 14 in The Daily News and Feb. 28 in Time magazine.

The news accounts, they charged, contained "demonstrably false and misleading misstatements of fact" about the Irving-Hughes probe. Spokesmen for all three publications later denied the charges and said the stories were based on reliable sources.

Troop Count In Vietnam Still Sinking

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — American troop strength in South Vietnam has dropped below the 100,000 mark for the first time since the summer of 1965.

The milestone in the phased pullout that began nearly three years ago was reached as the U.S. Command issued an official summary putting the number of troops in Vietnam at 101,700 for the week ending last Thursday. But military sources said that additional reductions in the following four days brought the level below the 100,000 mark.

The U.S. Command issues official strength summaries each Monday but they cover only the week ending the previous Thursday. The exact drop below 100,000 thus won't be officially confirmed until a week from now. Currently, American troop strength has been falling about 1,000 each day.

Last week's drop was 6,900, the most in two months, and cut the military population to less than half the level of six months ago.

The latest official summary gave this breakdown by service: Army 74,400; Air Force 21,500; Navy 5,300; Marines 400; Coast Guard 100.

The summary does not include 30,000 airmen based in Thailand and 15,000 Navy personnel engaged in the Indochina war from bases with the 7th fleet off Vietnam.

President Nixon has ordered U.S. strength in Vietnam cut to 69,000 by May 1. Peak American strength reached 543,000 in April 1969, two months before Nixon announced the phased pullout of U.S. forces.

During the big U.S. troop buildup in the summer of 1965, American strength in Vietnam reached 81,400 at the end of July, 100,300 in August and 184,300 by the end of the year.

Plans are for Army strength in Vietnam to be down to about 48,000 by May 1, with about 16,000 Air Force men and 4,500 Navy men remaining.

On the battlefields, the U.S. Command reported two small rocket attacks against American air bases near the coastal town of Qui Nhon and near Can Tho in the Mekong delta. There were no casualties in either attack, but one helicopter was lightly damaged, the Command said.

Proxmire Says Millions Wasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Much of the $5 million Congress has paid out for a federal transit exhibit has been wasted on luxury hotels, first-class plane fares, $15 dinners and $3,000-a-page memos, Sen. William Proxmire said today.

The Wisconsin Democrat accused the Department of Transportation of subterfuge and a "gross misuse of tax dollars." Proxmire also asked Secretary John Volpe for an explanation and said he will seek a General Accounting Office investigation.

Proxmire said William J. Bird, a vice president of Kaiser Industries, is serving Volpe as a special and unpaid consultant on TRANSPO 72, an aeronautics and mass-transit show to be held next month at Dulles International Airport near Washington.

But even though Bird is not on the federal payroll, since last October he has been housed by the government in suite 409 in Washington's luxurious Watergate Hotel for $854 a month, Proxmire said in a letter to Volpe.

Also since last October, Bird has been paid for at least 18 trips—at $388 per trip—from his California home to Washington, and has traveled at government expense to Rome, London, Paris and Stuttgart, Proxmire said. He added the trips cost more than $9,000.

Bird also has billed the government for an $18 taxi ride from Washington to Dulles, for $9 lunches and $15 dinners, Proxmire said.

The Watergate accommodations were rented for conferences and meetings in connection with TRANSPO 72, Proxmire said. But the senator said information he has shows Bird uses the suite as living quarters.

Proxmire said that neither Bird nor two other outside consultants, both Californians, who are working on the exhibit has any background in transportation matters.

One of these, Harry J. Krusz, president of Harry J. Krusz and Co., was retained by the Transportation Department to "conduct studies to identify management and operational problems confronting TRANSPO 72 and recommend corrective actions thereto."

Proxmire said Krusz submitted 10 reports to Bird, was paid $6,500 for the first two-page memo, $3,000 each for the next eight, which averaged four pages each, and $3,600 for the final report—a total of $40,000, or some $200 a day.

Proxmire characterized the reports as "inane and superficial."

Three Holidays

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, Superintendent of Greenville City Schools, has today confirmed the dates for the three day Easter holiday for city schools.

The first of the holidays will be on Friday, March 31, with the second and third coming on Monday and Tuesday, April 3 and 4. A fourth day, Thursday, March 30, originally scheduled on the school calendar as a holiday, will be used as a make-up date for the one day last autumn due to schools being closed for hurricane conditions.

The central offices of the school will observe Friday and Monday as holidays, but will be open for business as usual on Tuesday.

Advertising Ban Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today upheld the ban on cigarette advertising on radio and television.

The National Association of Broadcasters and six broadcasting companies had argued in appeals that the ban restrains freedom of speech and discriminates against radio and television.

The court brushed aside without elaboration their pleas for a hearing and, as proposed by the Justice Department, affirmed a ruling by a three-judge panel in favor of the blackout.

The NAB appeal was turned aside 7 to 2, with Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan calling for a hearing. The appeal by the broadcasting companies was turned down 6 to 2, with Douglas and Brennan dissenting again and Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. disqualifying himself from consideration of the case.

Congress imposed the ban in the Public Health Cigarette Smoking Act of 1969. It was signed into law by President Nixon, April 1, 1970, and all cigarette advertising was swept from radio and TV beginning with Jan. 2, 1971.

The NAB said Congress acted without any evidence that cigarette advertising induced smoking. Stressing that newspapers, magazines and the remainder of the print media remained free to publish such ads, the NAB asked the court:

"If Congress sincerely considered that cigarette advertising was a harm to the public, how could it leave open the opportunity for the public to be injured through the new vastly increased quantities of such advertising available in all other media, save broadcasting?"

The Justice Department replied that Congress could have applied the ban to all media. "But, as this court has frequently held, legislative reform is not invalid merely because it does not go far enough," the government said.

The broadcasters said they were "aware of no other case that has reached the Supreme Court in which a legislature, federal or otherwise, had attempted to impose an absolute or outright prohibition on the exercise of commercial speech."

The district court, in its 2 to 1 ruling last October, held product advertising is less vigorously protected by the First Amendment than other forms of speech. The ban, the majority concluded, has "no substantial effect on the exercise of any First Amendment right, and that all that has been lost is 'an ability to collect revenue.'"

Taking Blood 2 Days

The first 1972 visit of the Pitt County Red Cross Bloodmobile is slated for Wednesday and Thursday, in a two day collection effort to be held at the usual Greenville collection point, the Moose Lodge.

Hours for the two days, Douglas Morgan, chairman of the bloodmobile explained, are scheduled for slightly different times.

On Wednesday the collection hours will be from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.; and on Thursday, from 10:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m.

The initial collection for 1972 in Greenville is being sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees, with Buff Chalk and John Jackson as chairmen.

Morgan pointed out that donors who contributed to the last Greenville blood drive held in December 1971 are now eligible to make another donation if they wish to, as the required time lapse between donations from an individual has been met.

Russians Announce Spacecraft Probe Of Venus Launched

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced it launched an unmanned spacecraft to Venus today and that it is expected to reach the area of the planet in July.

The Soviet news agency Tass said "Venera-8" weighs about 2,600 pounds, its on-board systems are functioning normally and once it reaches the "environs" of the planet, "the descending craft is to make a smooth descent into the Venusian atmosphere and carry out scientific measurements."

The last Soviet Venus probe was Venus 7, which plunged into Venus's atmosphere Dec.

15, 1970, made a soft landing and transmitted data for 23 minutes from the planet's surface.

The Soviets claimed it was the first time that "scientific information was relayed from the surface of another planet of the solar system."

The previous Soviet Venus craft that attempted to soft land on the surface radioed information for 53, 51 and 96 minutes respectively as they penetrated the Venusian cloud cover.

Venus 7 was launched Aug. 17 and covered the 199 million miles between Earth and Venus in 120 days.

April Hearing Seen For 2 Watershed Motions

A hearing on two new motions entered by parties involved in a Federal Court case involving the Chicod Watershed project may come in early April, according to Frank Wooten, attorney for the defendants in the case.

Wooten, representing landowners who want the creek cleared in order to reduce flooding in the area drained by the creek, said land owners who intervened in the suit have filed a motion in U.S. Eastern District Court to have the case dismissed because a $75,000 bond ordered by Judge John Larkins has not been filed.

However, Wooten noted that one of the environmental groups involved in the case — the National Resources Defense Council — had entered a motion to have the bond reduced from $75,000 to $100.

Wooten noted that this is the "first time a substantial bond has been required..." in such a case. Quoting from a paper seeking the bond reduction, Wooten said the "plaintiffs are modestly financed..." and "...do not find it financially feasible to post $75,000 bond."

The plaintiffs — several environmental groups — contend that the channelization project will cause irreparable damage to the ecology of the area and destroy wildlife habitats.

Sen. Hartke Quits Nomination Campaign

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana has pulled out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination and says he will devote his "full energies to nominating and electing Hubert H. Humphrey."

"My determination was there," Hartke said Sunday, "but I didn't have the money." Humphrey, who was stumbling for labor support in Philadelphia when informed of Hartke's announcement, said the endorsement "doesn't mean that it turns things around" but added he thought it would help him in the April 4 Wisconsin primary, the next ballot-box test for the presidential hopefuls.

"Every time you get an endorsement you like it," the Minnesota senator said. Hartke waged an intensive personal campaign in the March 7 New Hampshire primary but finished a disappointing fifth with only 3 per cent of the vote and polled less than 1 per cent a week later in Florida, where he made no serious effort.

Many observers had expected his withdrawal, especially after he allowed last Friday's deadline to pass without filing for the May 2 primary in his home state of Indiana.

The only Democrats now campaigning actively in Wisconsin are Sens. Humphrey, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, George McGovern of South Dakota and Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York.

Reps. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, Shirley Chisholm of New York and Patsy Mink of Hawaii, former Sen. Eugene J.

McCarthy of Minnesota and Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles are on the ballot but are making few if any campaign appearances.

On the Republican ballot, President Nixon faces Reps. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio and Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California, but McCloskey has dropped out of the race, and Ashbrook is not actively campaigning in Wisconsin.

Couple Exchanges Vows On Sunday Afternoon

RALEIGH — The marriage of Miss Lynda Dianne Keggereis and Fred Oris Watkins III was solemnized Sunday at three in the afternoon at Hayes Barton United Methodist Church here.

The Rev. Clyde G. McCarver officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lee Keggereis of Raleigh and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Oris Watkins, Jr. of Washington.

Leonard A. Smith, organist, and Miss Jackie Mooney, both of Raleigh, presented the nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of sata peau over bridal taffeta designed with an empire bodice of Venise lace, long fitted lace sleeves, high neckline, and a bell skirt. A band of Venise lace circled the skirt, empire waist, and neckline. The attached train extended chapel length.

Her short veil of imported illusion was attached to a Camelot cap of matching Venise lace. She carried a cascade of yellow roses, white stephanotis, blue delphiniums, and peach carnations, centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Shaaron Cypher of Raleigh, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Frances Watkins of Washington, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Sandi Underwood of Trinity, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Peggy Soble Linton of Washington, Mrs. Sandi Pennington Wilson of High Point, Mrs. Karen Reece Seawell of Greensboro, and Mrs. Susan Weathers Strickland of Raleigh. The attendants were attired in long yellow dresses, softly gathered above the normal waistline to the lace illusion over crepe bodices. The dresses had low rounded necklines and long lace lantern sleeves trimmed with velvet ribbon.

MRS. FRED ORIS WATKINS III

Each used fresh flowers of white, yellow, peach and blue in their hair. The matron and maid of honor carried nosegays of mixed flowers in white, yellow, peach, and blue. The bridesmaids carried nosegays of white and yellow flowers.

Fred O. Watkins, Jr., father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Billy Watkins and Wayne Watkins, of Washington, both brothers of the bridegroom, Chris L. Cypher of Raleigh, Michael Parsons of Greenville, Bruce Linton, Denny Pinkham and Bill Gravely all of Washington.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University. The bridegroom after completion of a tour of duty in the Navy, will resume his education at East Carolina University.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will be at home in Greenville.

Reception
The parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

Forthcoming Activities Set

Forthcoming activities were discussed at the meeting of the Home Pride Garden Club held Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Joe Clark. Mrs. Phil Moore was co-hostess.

Plans were made for clean-up of the Greenville Art Center lawn. Easter baskets were made for underprivileged children and will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Husbands will be entertained at a gourmet dinner April 14 at the home of Mrs. Ledyard Ross. New members will also be honored at this spring meeting.

Installation of officers will be held at the river home of Mrs. Robert Browning in Bath. Members will also visit some of the historic restorations there.

Anniversary Bash Turns Into A Farewell Party

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I will never again say that a letter in your column is too unbelievable to be real. Listen to this:

My husband and I recently attended the 25th wedding anniversary party of a couple we had known for years. It was a beautiful dinner party at a club for about 100 guests.

Around midnight, the husband said that he and his wife had an announcement to make. They stood arm in arm, and he said, "We've had 25 years of marriage. Our children are married now, and there is no longer a reason to go on pretending our marriage is a success. It has been a failure for many years, so we've decided that while we are both young enough to enjoy life, we're getting divorced. It's nobody's fault. It's mutual and friendly and we hope you will continue to be our friends."

They kissed each other and danced together as the band played, "Good Night, Sweetheart."

At first we all thought it was a joke. It wasn't! They asked those who had brought gifts to please take them home, saying they had decided only yesterday to announce their divorce at their anniversary party since all their friends would be there.

Can anybody top this?

WAS THERE

DEAR WAS: I hope not.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are very close, especially since we are the only remaining members of our family. My husband and I enjoy entertaining and we always include my sister and her husband on these occasions.

I love to prepare exotic meals. My sister's husband loves to eat, and I enjoy seeing him put the food away. My sister is a plain cook, rarely entertains, and when she does have us over for a meal, it's always something unimaginative like pot roast.

After a dinner party in our home, my sister will call to tell me they vomited after eating my bouillabaisse, or they were sick all night because of the odor of curry at my house. Tonight, after being invited to my home for a dinner party next week, she told me not to serve so many hors d'oeuvres, as they wouldn't be able to eat their dinner.

I always presumed that one was responsible for limiting one's own intake, and I'm more than a little perturbed at someone else setting the rules for my dinner party.

How does one cope with such a situation?

RAISED EYEBROWS

DEAR RAISED: Reciprocate your sister's invitations with the same kind of meal she would serve you. And exclude her from your exotic dinner parties.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I have been the recipient of a lot of junk mail, and I have learned at a glance what is not even worth opening, so I have just thrown it into my waste paper basket and saved myself a lot of time.

Well, several months ago I accidentally threw out a check for $2,688.75. I know that eventually another check in that amount will be issued to me because I can prove that I have it coming, but in the meantime you would not believe all the red tape I am going thru. And it's not resolved yet!

I'd have been ahead to open all the junk mail I've received over the last ten years and at least LOOKED at it before throwing it out.

HASTY HENRY

DEAR HENRY: You and I, and a lot of other people agree. Thanks for the reminder.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 68700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Alix Hurault, 20. "And in September we'll have a musical festival here on the Loire." And mother? "My youngsters are so busy with the chateau that I have to do all the housework," she reported.

Insurance Experts Advise Making List Of Possessions

By AP Newsfeatures

If you had to make a list of every item in your wardrobe—coats, dresses, suits, slacks, lingerie—all of it—could you do it? Then could you list all the books in your library, or all the knickknacks you picked up on your last vacation?

Who would ask you to make a list like that? Your insurance company. It's the only way they have of figuring out how much to pay you for what possessions have been destroyed.

That's why insurance companies and their agents advise their customers to make a list of their possessions—furniture, books, china, clothing—everything. And they further advise those with homeowners or tenants insurance to keep this list in a safe place.

George M. Snyder, vice president of Insurance Co. of North America recalls once when he was sent out to see a family whose home had been destroyed by fire. "Together we made up a list of things the family had lost," he said. "It took hours to put together. Several days later, the woman phoned my office to tell me they'd completely forgotten to list the contents on one room in the house. As unlikely a story as that may seem, it happens all the time."

But even a number of insurance people admit they haven't done a home inventory. Why? Because it's tedious, time consuming and difficult to update.

One way to accomplish the same thing, however, is with photographs. Open the closet doors, spread out your clothes a little so a corner of each thing is in view and, click! Now turn around and photograph the bookcase on the other side of the room. And keep going until you have a visual record of your entire house or apartment. Tuck the photos in an envelope and take them to your safety deposit box or another safe place. Then make a note on your calendar to update your visual list in a year, either with new photos or a list of things you've acquired in the last year.

Keep receipts for important purchases, too. Get appraisals for antiques, or anything else of questionable value. It's nice to know how much your treasures are worth anyway, and information on the value is important in making a claim.

Trial Was All In The Family

LONDON (WNS)

Jacqueline Levene, 24, and her father, Mordecai Levene made legal history in the High Court here when they appeared as opposing lawyers in a divorce case. In court, Miss Levene addressed her father as "my learned friend" and asked Justice Holling to jail the husband in the case for contempt of court. Father managed to have the case adjourned and commented, "It's a good thing she didn't win, or I'd never hear the end of it from my friends." Jacqueline's comment: "It's the first time we've fought in court, but things are different at home."

Peterson-Gorham Vows Said In Friday Ceremony

Miss Bettie Louise Gorham, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Jesse W. Williams of Greenville, and Frank Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton F. Brown of Greenville, were united in marriage at six o'clock Friday evening at the home of the bride.

The double ring candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. B. B. Felder, pastor of the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church, Greenville. At the end of the ceremony, Bishop W. L. Jones offered the Minister's Special Blessing.

Traditional wedding music was presented by Arthur Norcott, organist, and W. L. Morris, soloist, who sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The lighting of the candles was performed by Miss Brenda Foreman, cousin of the bride.

The house was decorated with a color scheme of yellow and green and religious motif representative of Easter and spring. The altar scene was decked with a background combination of greenery, white gladioli, yellow pom poms and silver candelabra with yellow and white candles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza, empire style with long puffed sleeves, a Victorian neckline and a chapel train. The trim was a wide panel of Venice lace with satin ribbon running through the lace. The panel adorned the front and back of the gown.

Her headdress was white silk illusion extending shoulder length and was attached to white silk organza bows interspersed with lillies-of-the-valley and sequins. She carried a prayer book centered with a white orchid.

Miss Veronica Coburn of Greenville, who served as maid of honor, wore a floor-length yellow and white sleeveless organza gown with a round low-cut neckline and an A-line silhouette and empire bodice. She wore a matching headpiece and carried a nosegay of white pom poms.

The flower girl was Miss Bragetta Short, cousin of the bride. Trent Williams cousin of the bride, served as ringbearer.

Rudolph Blackwell of Greenville was best man and Julius Williams served as usher.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed to a yellow and white ensemble. Following the trip, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Mini-Clothing Clinic To Begin Tuesday

According to Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, associate home economics extension agent, a Mini-Clothing Clinic will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The clinic will be held at the Pitt County Extension Office on the corner of Third and Greene Streets (beside Planters National Bank).

It will be open each day from 9 until 4 o'clock plus Thursday evening from 7 until 9 o'clock. The clinic will afford home sewers an opportunity to view samples of quality clothing construction techniques. In addition to the exhibit, demonstrations will be held each day from 10:00 until 11:00 (floating). On Tuesday, Mrs. Hsia-fen Tien will demonstrate how to make Chinese frogs (decorative fastenings), Wednesday Mrs. E. C. Davenport will demonstrate a new method of making bound buttonholes, and Thursday, Mrs. Gratz Norcott will demonstrate the art of patchwork garments.

A Display Of Raw Arrogance

Inequities exist in the current phase of wage-price controls, but the labor leaders who walked off the federal Pay Board come across as arrogant people who care nothing for the public.

The four leaders should have stayed on the board, regardless of how they felt about any particular rulings which were made.

Granted there are problems in the efforts to control wages and prices and they are not going to be solved to everyone's satisfaction. Almost everyone is in agreement, however, that inflation is a great threat to the nation's economy. Thus we should stick to the present plan, at least until it is proven conclusively that it will not work.

The labor leaders chose to walk off the board, apparently because they lost a round or two to the majority of the board. If everyone took this approach, governing boards all over the nation would soon be depleted.

Fortunately the administration has chosen to continue the board with five public members, the one remaining labor leader from the Teamsters Union and one representative of business.

In making the decision Nixon stated, "As president I cannot permit any leader representing a special interest, no matter how powerful, to torpedo and sink a program that is needed to protect the public interest."

The board should continue to function. It should be reasonable with labor's requests for pay increases but it should not knuckle under to powerful labor lords who put their interests above those of the public.

A 'Transplant' Gives Of Self

By BRYAN HAISLIP
LAURINBURG, N.C.— "People relate to you as you relate to yourself," said Robert M. Urie.

"If you have problems accepting yourself, others will find it harder to accept you."

That holds true whether the problem is mental, psychological or physical, said the Vermonter who started out as a dairy farmer, aimed for the ministry and now is on the staff of St. Andrews Presbyterian College.

Polio dethroned his plans. At 26, married and the father of three children, he was stricken by the crippler. He spent five weeks in an iron lung, recovered to face the unnerving prospect of using wheels for legs.

No small problem, that. How well Urie worked it out was recognized last week when Gov. Bob Scott presented him with the award as the state's "Outstanding

Access For Handicapped
He served on the Governor's Study Committee on Architectural Barriers which was instrumental in amending the state building code to require that all public facilities be designed to give access to the handicapped. The step beyond, he added, is the renovation of existing structures.

It can be done and the cost is not great, if there is the public and private to do it, he said.

The St. Andrews campus is an example of what it can be like: ramps at curbside and staircases, doors wide enough to enter, restroom facilities adapted, no water fountains or telephones placed out of reach.

Urie came to Laurinburg before St. Andrews opened its doors. "It's been a great experience to be part of a school's birth and growth," he observed. Since 1965, he has been director of rehabilitation series. In that capacity of campus life.

He's Been The Route
He knows what they go through because he's been the route. Since he lost the use of his legs 16 years ago, he's graduated from college, earned a master's degree, and is working on a doctoral dissertation.

Handicapped Citizen of the Year."

Chipping At Barriers
In ten years as a Tar Heel, Urie has become thoroughly transplanted ("I can't understand why anyone would want to live north of the Mason-Dixon line"). He also has given tireless efforts as an individual and on committees and commissions to chip away barriers for the handicapped.

The first obstacle is attitude. Too many so-called normal people see the handicapped person as a handicap rather than a person, he said.

The person with a handicap doesn't want or need sympathy, he said. "So he's the guy in the wheelchair. Okay, so what else does he have? Who is he? What can he do? The handicapped want to be identified first as citizens and only in a secondary way as handicapped."

The second hurdle is access. Buildings and public facilities should be constructed in a way that does not frustrate those confined to a wheelchair or otherwise handicapped, Urie maintained.

"Stairs are my mortal enemy," he said.

Home Rule Suspension Darkens The Prospect

The suspension of home rule in Northern Ireland by the British government can only mean that the situation in that strife torn country is darkening.

British Prime Minister Harold Heath announced the move last week. He said the suspension would be for one year, internment of guerrillas without trial is to be eased and Catholics will get a greater voice in provincial affairs.

The move, even though it might have been necessary, will heighten the violence in Northern Ireland. Yet it is obvious there must be great changes in thinking and in the system of government to bring about a reconciliation of the people there. Perhaps this radical move will bring this about.

AFL-CIO To Fight Wallace

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MILWAUKEE—Alarmed by the specter of George Wallace coming even close to repeating his spectacular 1964 showing here in the April 4 Democratic primary election, the AFL-CIO high command has quietly printed tens of thousands of copies of a stinging anti-Wallace brochure ready for instant distribution—if the Wallace campaign takes off.

Union leaders around the state are under orders to watch for any signs of Wallace strength. If it develops, the anti-Wallace pamphlets will be rushed in for a house-to-house drop to stem the Wallace tide.

Although there were few signs of strong Wallace support before the governor of Alabama kicked off his campaign here last night (Thursday), both the labor unions and the Democratic party establishment, overwhelmingly liberal, are fearful that Wallace, riding high on busing and populism, will ride high here, too. But labor and such party leaders as Gov. Pat Lucey have major tactical differences on how to deal with the Wallace phenomenon that gave him 42 per cent of the Florida primary vote 10 days ago.

John W. Schmitt, state president of the AFL-CIO, flatly ruled out any distribution of the anti-Wallace pamphlet in advance on grounds it could dangerously build up Wallace. But Lucey and other party leaders have been attacking Wallace publicly and frequently, putting the spotlight on him as the target of the establishment.

It is precisely that image—champion of the little man against "them" (the establishment)—which Wallace cultivated with such success eight years ago that he got 34 per cent of the Democratic primary vote.

Thus, in a scouting expedition we took on Monday in a barometer precinct on Milwaukee's West Side, and in the Polish-American heartland on the Southside, fully 25 per cent of our 56 Democratic voters agreed that "George Wallace stands up for the little man more than the other candidates."

Nevertheless, Wallace emerged from our voter sample, conducted with the help of the Oliver Quayle field staff, with only 5 first-choice votes, far behind front-running Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Moreover, many of our voters were extremely harsh when asked about Wallace. A Southside machine operator who is "strongly" against school busing said that Wallace "looks like a dictator." Another called him "too much of a radical." A housewife said: "I could never vote for him. He scares me."

Of those who expressed an opinion, 42 voters agreed that Wallace is "too extreme," while only six disagreed, and 37 said they think "less of Wallace" because "he exploits the race question."

Admittedly, Wallace had not arrived here when we took our voter sample. Hence, the 9 per cent Wallace total represented by those five Wallace voters will

Memos You Never Saw

WASHINGTON—The one thing that hasn't been emphasized in the ITT Senate Judiciary Committee hearings is the fact that lobbyists in Washington tend to take credit for a lot of things they are not responsible for. They do this through memos to their bosses. Anyone who has been in Washington for any length of time knows lobbyists are notorious for exaggerating the roles they have played in legislation and government decisions.

Here are three examples of memorandums that even Jack Anderson has never seen:

Other Editors Say Ever Upward

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

A man earning $10,000 annually in 1966 subsequently got raises adding up to 30 per cent until, this year, he was making $13,000. But, according to Tax Foundation, Inc., higher taxes and inflation have so cut into his higher wage that in 1972 it actually buys him $119 less than his $10,000 salary of 1966.

At a higher point in the salary scale, a purchasing power loss of almost $2,000 is suffered by the man whose salary rose from $50,000 to $65,000 over the 1966-1972 span, and has had his new affluence nicked by inflation and taxes.

The man whose income rose from $10,000 to $13,000 over the 1966-1972 period had exemptions of $1,400 in the former year and of $3,000 in 1972.

In 1966 his deductions ($1,890) plus his exemptions ($3,000) plus his $2,065 deductions, gave him a taxable income of $7,935. In 1972, his taxes total $1,993—federal income tax, $1,398; state income tax, $157; and Social Security taxes, $468.

His 1972 after-tax income is calculated to be $11,007. The rate of inflation is another income nibbler. The rate of inflation over the 1966-1972 period is estimated at 28 per cent. This cuts the man's 1972 after-tax income by an estimated $2,421, making its effective worth $8,586—or $119 less than his undeclared, after-tax income of $8,705 in 1966.

And the tax bite continues to grow. Collection of state individual income taxes increased 330 per cent overall in the decade 1961-71. The 43 states collecting this tax in 1971 took in $10 billion against the $2.4 billion collected by 34 states levying the tax in 1961. In 1961 collections of income tax represented 12.4 per cent of total state collections; in 1971 it represented 19.7 per cent of the total.

Revenue from general sales and gross receipts taxes, however, continued as the leading 1971 state source of revenue, 30 per cent of total revenues, or $15 billion. In 1961, sales and gross receipts taxes totaling $4.5 billion represented 23.6 per cent of total revenues.

Such statistics and percentage figures may make dry reading for many people. But when the taxpayer seeks answers as to why he is finding it more and more difficult to make ends meet, these same statistics help provide the answer: inexorable increase in taxes plus ever-spiraling inflation.

told Warren Burger it was an outrage that Croakly had been selected as the scapegoat in zipper price fixing, and it was obvious that someone in Justice was trying to drive us out of the zipper business.

Byron White, Bill Douglas and Bill Brennan were very sympathetic to our cause and I got the feeling Potter Stewart and Bill Rehnquist felt there was more to the case than what they had heard in the arguments. Thurgood Marshall and Harry Blackmun use our zippers so we shouldn't have any trouble with them.

Tell the chief we're home free and he doesn't have to go to the White House with this one. The lunch cost $165 which I'll put down as taxi fare so there won't be a stink. By the way, Harley, destroy this memo, huh?

The second one was marked "personal and confidential":

Against 'Try It' Advice

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP)— "Try it, you'll like it," may convince the fellow in the commercial. But trying to get me to taste a new food is like trying to persuade a victim of claustrophobia to set up housekeeping in an elevator.

I was born with a plastic spoon in my mouth, and I'm more at home with hot dogs than with haute cuisine.

Brought up inland in the days when seafood stayed near the sea, I have a special mistrust of strange aquatic beasts. The only version of fish I was exposed to was tuna, and somehow I never pictured what came out of a can in such a neat cylinder as having had a life of its own.

The creatures I met up with later, however, showed definite signs of having once swum chummily with their classmates in schools of fish, a fact hard to forget even when they arrived anonymously filleted and innocently hiding in the lemon-butter sauce.

Worst of all are the wormy-squirmy-looking shrimp, the squishy-squashy oyster and the fiercely clawed lobster. I have it on good authority that these are delectable and I'd love to share the gourmets' lipsmacking rapture as they tackle such delicacies. I admit it's all in my mind and I start out bravely, only to lose courage before the fork reaches my mouth.

This mental block leads to complications in my social life. I was attending an elegant cocktail party at which all manner of stuffed clams, lobster puffs, deviled crabs, anchovy canapes and other seafood goodies were displayed on silver trays.

"What am I going to do?" I whispered to my companion. "I'm starved." She looked sympathetic as she speared a shrimp and munched it ecstatically. "You're in luck," she said. "There's some chicken over there."

I bit into a drumstick—tender, delicate and tasty. As I put the bone down I mused about how tiny the chicken must have been to have such a slender drumstick. At the same moment I realized that I had subconsciously noticed that what should have been dark meat was white.

By then I knew it wasn't a chicken I had eaten, but I didn't know what it was and, moreover, was not anxious to learn. But my friend confided smugly, "You just ate a frog's leg."

Thus emboldened, I decided to cooperate at lunch one day with another friend who had undertaken to re-educate my palate. He was eating fried clams and suggested I sample some.

I prepared a full glass of water to wash it down with, eyed the route to the ladies room, rolled my eyes heavenward and gingerly popped a small bit into my mouth.

"I did it, I did it," I exclaimed proudly. "It really didn't taste fishy at all."

"No wonder," he retorted. "What you just wasted all that drama on was a piece of fried potato."

Strength For Today

BY WHAT AUTHORITY?
Holy Week.

Monday, the Day of Authority. Tuesday, the Day of Conflict. Wednesday, the Day of Silence. Thursday, Farewells and Fellowship. Friday, the Day of Suffering. Saturday, the Day in the Tomb.

Let us on this Monday look at the two incidents which characterized our Lord's activity on that day. In the first place, Jesus passed condemnation upon a fig tree which had plenty of green leaves but no fruit. It was a symbolic way of saying that God is not pleased with the religious life of any believer unless it produces fruit—good works, kindly thoughts, projects of helpfulness.

The second circumstance of this day was our Lord's cleansing of the temple. This sacred structure had been built glorified and set aside for worship. It had, through the passing of years, however, become a busy place of trade and other activities not particularly associated with worship.

Jesus was furious when he saw the uses which were being made of the sacred temple. He overthrew the table of money-changers (for there was a great deal of dishonesty here in the matter of scaping gold off the coins.) He made short work of the booths in which doves were sold. He would not even permit a man to carry a vessel through the temple.

The health of any society depends upon the health of its spiritual life. If the spiritual life of a nation is weak or diseased the life of the nation is thereby seriously impaired.

Jesus would have the temple which stood at the center of the nation's worship clean, sincere, helpful.

He makes the same requirement of the modern Church.

Boom Ignoring Mortgage Rates

By ELMER ROESSNER
Interest rates are rising—no, they are being pushed up by the Federal Reserve System. This poses the question: will higher interest rates dampen the housing boom?

Possibly not, although the danger is there. If further rises in interest are small, they probably will not make mortgages too expensive for the millions of Americans who want new housing, and the thousands of builders ready to construct new apartment houses.

Government agencies underwriting mortgages will probably try to keep interest rates on them down. Furthermore, savings bank and savings and loan association deposits continue high. Ira O. Scott, executive vice president of the Savings Bank Association of New York State, predicts that there will be an ample supply of mortgage funds this year and foresees a total of 2.2 million housing starts. He said that deposit growth should be between $7 billion and $8 billion in savings banks and $17 billion to $18 billion in loan associations this year.

Other reports indicate a poor crop year in other communist bloc countries. The satellites normally have a deficit of eight million tons of grain a year.

Curiously light snowfall was responsible for this year's crop failure. The snow did not provide sufficient insulation against a deep freeze in the first 10 days of January, and the cold killed deeper than usual in the soil. An estimated 25 million acres may have suffered damage.

Four-channel stereophonic listening may boom (no pun) this year. RCA will introduce four-channel records in May. They were developed in conjunction with two Japanese companies and will play four channels of sound picked up by four separate microphones. Listening will require four speaker, meaning a boost in sales of stereophonic equipment. RCA will also introduce a four-channel player.

Shoes will cost more later this year. There has been unusual heavy buying of American hides by foreign countries, pushing leather prices higher. Shoe prices may rise between $1 and $5 a pair.

There will be more naming names in TV commercials. CBS and ABC have decided to go along with NBC and allow advertisers to name competitors in commercials. The change is the result of pressure from the Federal Trade Commission, which feels that "better than other leading brands" doesn't tell customers much.

However, there won't be much name-calling on television. As NBC's experience shows, advertisers are reluctant to make brand-by-brand comparisons. No telling when Brand X will slam them back.

SUBJECT: Busing
Cal, baby:
Just came from a bowling game at Camp David with Dick and Pat and Tricia and Bebe. I spoke to Dick about his busing moratorium message. I pointed out as diplomatically as possible that if he did away with school busing, IOU Industries might have to shut down its school bus manufacturing division in San Diego, which happens to be his lucky city. I said if he does away with busing he will do away with 1,500 jobs in Southern California.

Dick said he had been so caught up in the emotional issues of busing that he hadn't given much thought to the companies which make school buses. He indicated he might work out a compromise. He still would do away with forced busing but would order the Defense Department to use school buses to take our troops to the front.

I believe it's okay to send the check to the San Diego convention committee, as we got what we wanted. By the way, Cal, please destroy this memo, huh?

The final one read as follows:

TO: Roscoe Mulligan, Vice President, Worldwide Telephone Answering Service, Inc.

FROM: Daphne Sears
SUBJECT: Phase 2
Dear Roscoe:

I can't understand why New York keeps calling people at the White House about getting permission to raise our answering service rates by 25 percent. I told you that I was working on it. I'm meeting with the entire Cabinet tomorrow and will state our case.

I had exploratory talks with John Connally at a barbecue and he indicated he had no objection to the raise. Also, I met Martha Mitchell at a PTA meeting the other night and she said she was going to speak to her husband about our problem.

Richard Kleindienst was over for breakfast the other morning and said as far as he's concerned there won't be any legal difficulties.

But this thing has to be kept under wraps or the Democrats will try to make political hay with it. Tell Hal (President of Worldwide) to stop biting his nails and get out his checkbook.

By the time you receive this I'll be on my way to Hialeah Race Track to talk to Agnew. Wish me luck. And Roscoe, please destroy this memo, huh:

which staff, students and parents participated.

J. E. Spruill, principal of the school, said the program was planned around a dinner theme celebrating the 12 months of the year. "We have a big table for each month of the year set up," he explained, "and persons attending will be seated at the table representing the month in which they were born."

One unusual feature is a self portrait of every student in the school incorporated into the decorations. Each child was asked to draw his self portrait. The result may not be pictorially accurate, but assembled on the long wall of the cafeteria after being cut to shape, the total effect is striking. Sad-eyed pigtailed little girls, snaggletooth grins, bright orange faces, exaggerated freckles and towering Afro hairstyles jostle each other for attention.

Entertainment under the direction of Mrs. Zenora Langley made use of the talents of boys and girls. The Boy's Chorus sang "God Be In My Heart;" the Girl's Chorus sang "Let There Be Music;" and the entire chorus joined in singing "Acquarius."

Dudley Flood, Director of the Human Relations Division of the State Department of Public Instruction, was guest speaker.

Others taking part on the program were Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the city schools; Rev. Thomas J. Payne; and P.T.A. President M. E. Whitehurst. Hostesses for the dinner were Mrs. Evelyn Norris, Mrs. Pauline Spain and Mrs. Fannie Jackson. The Decorating Committee consisted of Mrs. Elizabeth Samsel, Miss Ann Tillman and Mrs. Patricia King. Thirteen women served as the food committee; one for the head table and one each for the 12 individual monthly tables.

Mrs. Norma Gray,

supervisor of the Greenville City Schools Art Program, was in charge of scenery; and Mrs. Nancy Dixon was dinner chairman.

The theme of Sadie Sautler's eighth birthday dinner was "The Worth of The Individual."

Pat Boone Is Theft Victim

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Pat Boone is the victim of a $20,000 jewel robbery, his manager reports.

John Mucci, Boone's business manager, told police he noticed last Tuesday morning that a filing cabinet in the singer's office had been rifled, but that he forgot that the jewels had been put there.

Mucci said Boone had given him the jewels, which belonged to the singer's wife, to have them appraised. Mucci said he did not think to look for them until Friday.

New Fractures For Daredevil

DETROIT (AP) — Evil Knievel, the daredevil motorcycle rider, has suffered a spill that has cost him a broken collarbone and several broken ribs.

Knievel was injured Sunday when he lost control of his motorcycle while jumping over 13 cars at a motorcycle show at the Michigan State Fairgrounds here.

Knievel, who was in satisfactory condition, was dragged about 80 feet by the cycle, which skidded into a wall.

Knievel was carried to the audience on a stretcher. He told the fans, "I'm all right," and was carried to a waiting ambulance.

Knievel was paid $50,000 to make five jumps at the show.

One official said he was scheduled to perform in California in two weeks.

"Evil intends to do it, too," he added.

undoubtedly swell when the governor takes his populist, anti-tax, anti-establishment campaign from here to Green Bay, Lacrosse, Racine, Wausau and Sheboygan next week, in addition to heavy campaigning in the ethnic Polish precincts of Milwaukee's Southside.

But Wallace will not come close to his 1963 primary showing (when his opponent, former Gov. John Reynolds, was a synthetic, stand-in candidate for Lyndon Johnson). To do that, Wallace would have to build the busing issue, and our survey strongly indicated that busing as a political issue has as not yet bloomed here.

We gave our voters a list of nine major issues and only a single respondent listed "school busing" among the most troubling "top issues" of the day.

When we zeroed in with a specific busing question, we found an overwhelming 46 voters opposed to forced school busing, and only six favoring it as a desegregation device. But the fact it was not picked as a major issue, as it surely would have been in Florida or in such Northern states as Michigan under court-ordered busing, indicates the dimension of Wallace's problem in trying to cash in on a racial issue in a state with a mere 2.5 per cent black population.

With only 7 days to elevate busing from a latent to a perceived issue, Wallace has his work cut out. Thus he may deliberately deemphasize busing here and concentrate on his anti-tax, anti-establishment populism. In Wisconsin, long the turf of the maverick politician, populism will yield a richer harvest than busing.

Two Sets Of Figures Illustrate Growing Inflation

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The basis for the increasingly critical confrontation of the administration with inflation, and now with labor leaders over how the battle should be waged, is starkly revealed in two sets of figures.

The first set documents the shocking rise in living costs over the past five years, as stated in terms of the consumer price index:

1967...100
1968...104.2
1969...109.8
1970...116.3
1971...121.3

The index now is in the area of 125, which means that one-quarter of the dollar's buying power has evaporated in a little more than five years. And with wholesale prices rising sharply, more retail price increases are coming.

The other figures show the per-hour wage increases in negotiated labor contracts, as compiled by the Bureau of National Affairs, an independent research organization:

1967...14.3 cents
1968...18.5 cents
1969...22.1 cents
1970...27.7 cents
1971...39.8 cents

In the rising cost-of-living figures, you see the pressure on union leaders for matching wage increases. In those rising wage rates, you see the inevitable upward pressure on prices and on the government to stop them.

This is not to say that either of these alone is the sole cause of the other. But certainly each is a factor in the other and will continue to be until another factor—government power—becomes more effective.

Government intervention began with a broadly inclusive freeze last Aug. 15 that was widely approved for different reasons by many segments of society.

It has been followed, however, by a widely exemptive, somewhat subjectively applied hold-down that is causing increasing tensions and, it appears, is failing to have the desired impact on prices.

The question now before the Nixon administration is whether a set of controls can be applied on the basis of human judgments and political goals or whether a rigid law must be invoked to eliminate such considerations.

Can the price of rent units, raw foods, houses, mortgages and other interest rates continue to be exempt in light of the devastating news that the rise in prices is now accelerating?

Many people feel that President Nixon's decision not to accede to the wishes of union leaders suggests that, unless there is a decisive turnabout in living costs, the economy's direction is toward firmer controls.

What has to be an overwhelming consideration is that all men, all voters, are consumers. They may be union members or farmers or businessmen, but they are consumers as well—and sometimes consumers first.

If you are to make exceptions for any element of economic society—labor or the farmer, for example—you do so at the risk of alienating the entire consumer society.

Blue-collar workers, for instance, have expressed themselves in polls as deeply concerned with, of all things, big wage increases, which they

British Sign Malta Pact

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Malta have signed a $260 million pact under which Britain will continue to have use of the air and naval bases on the tiny Mediterranean island for the next seven years.

The agreement was signed Sunday by Prime Minister Dom Mintoff and Britain's defense secretary, Lord Carrington, and came after six months of haggling and only five days before the deadline for British troop withdrawal from the island.

Under the pact, Malta will get $36.4 million a year in rent for the bases, almost three times what it was receiving. Britain will put up $13.8 million of it and the rest will come from NATO allies.

Mintoff also received pledged from members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for $18.2 million in economic aid for Malta and $6.5 million from Italy to meet his budgetary deficit.

The United States helped push Mintoff into accepting the package by agreeing to review its economic aid to Malta if he signed. Washington was concerned about the growing Soviet presence in the Mediterranean and was afraid Mintoff would let the Russians use his facilities if Britain abandoned them.

But the new agreement stipulates Malta will not permit Soviet bloc forces "to be stationed in Malta or to use the military facilities there."

Fire Hazard In An Afro Hairdo

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond fire authorities say they have discovered a new type of fire hazard, the massive Afro hairdo.

Firemen said an unidentified woman was sitting in an automobile Sunday in the city's East End when she struck a match to light a cigarette.

The match set her hair afire, firemen reported, and in turn the headliner of the car was set ablaze.

The woman escaped without injury. The fire caused an estimated $25 damage to the car.

By ARTHUR EVERETT
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) —
The prosecution and the defense having rested, the conspiracy trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others resumes today with a motion for dismissal pending.

Summons by defending lawyers are expected today, if the judge rules against dismissal.

The defendants were charged in connection with an alleged plot to kidnap presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger, blow up heating tunnels in Washington and raid draft offices to show their dissatisfaction with the Vietnam war.

Sunday hundreds of peace militants in black robes, with faces painted white to resemble death masks, marched past the federal court house. Among spectators on the steps were Deputy Asst. Atty. Gen. William Lynch and two of his prosecution aides. They apparently had interrupted preparation of their final trial tactics.

The march began more than an hour later under brilliant blue skies, in 40 degree weather made harsh by knifing winds.
It is to be followed by daily demonstrations leading up to an Easter Saturday rally, which organizers hope will draw 15,000 persons.

Estimates of the number who paraded from City Island, midway in the Susquehanna River, to the state capital grounds across the courthouse ranged from a sponsor's figure of 700 downward to about 400. The goal had been 1,000.

Most of the demonstrators were young. Some laid palm leaves on the streets they trod, calling attention to the religious significance of the day, Palm Sunday.

On hand for speeches and songs at the base of a 104-year-old Mexican War monument were three of the seven trial defendants—the Rev. Neil McLoughlin, the Rev. Joseph Wendroth and an ex-priest Anthony Scoblick. Berrigan himself is in the county jail, since he is under a six-year federal prison sentence for destroying draft records. The nine-week-old trial could reach the jury

by midweek.

The defense abruptly rested its case Friday without offering any testimony.

Four Taken From 'Home'

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Police report that four young brothers, apparently suffering from malnutrition and with bruises on their bodies, have been taken temporarily from their parents and put in a foster home.

The Charlotte and Mecklenburg County Department of Social Services said it would petition Juvenile Court for temporary custody. And later this week, a department spokesman said, there will be a hearing at which the department will present its plan to keep the children in a foster home. The parents will be able to present their side at the hearing.

The children are aged 3 months, and 2, 3 and 4 years.

Police were summoned Saturday night by a neighbor who said the parents asked her to care for one of the children while they went out. The neighbor was quoted by police as saying she went to the house, got the other three children,
and called the police Youth Bureau.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is fine for organizing your efforts so that you will be able to handle whatever activity arises on a more efficient basis. The afternoon and evening are good for letting others know you want to be with them. You are now able to charm allies with your thoughtfulness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Showing that you appreciate an associate who has been loyal and helpful establishes more goodwill. Also take time to express appreciation to other individuals who are worthwhile.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have time now to make improvements to surroundings, so get an early start on such. Work harmoniously with others instead of arguing so much and wasting time. Take it easy tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Associates now see you in a fine light so put across new ideas for the future that will be mutually profitable. Romantic tie is most amenable to your wishes. Make this a happy evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make your home as charming as you can. Then make plans with kin that are just what you want for the future. Show more appreciation for art and music. Think along progressive lines.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact associates you have not seen lately and make sure that all is operating on the right basis. Get a health checkup and know that all is fine with you. Happiness can be yours.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you use more practical methods, you can increase the value of your property. Study what your true financial position is. Know just where to economize and where to invest. Read tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you get together with good friends now, you can reach certain aims that have not been possible in the past. Charm them with your warmth and intelligence. Relax and enjoy yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are now able to find the right answers to what has been puzzling for a long time.
and then start an upturn toward greater happiness. You are in a romantic mood tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can accomplish more if you contact good friends and ask for their advice.
An invitation to a fine social affair should be accepted cheerfully. Much enjoyment could result.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make appointments to see persons who are in high position, and new doors of opportunity open to you. Civic work should be done well.
Show others that you are a fine citizen.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) New ideas are developing in your mind and you should follow through on them after more study of details. Making new contacts with those of different background can be helpful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan to see advisers today who can help you plan future activities. Evening is best time to handle financial affairs that are vital to your security and happiness. Be wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young people who will cooperate and benefit with others in undertakings that could last a long time. There is much ability here where artistic qualities are concerned. There is a fine marriage in this chart since the nature is helpful and kind.

Pop Singer Is Ordered To Rest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pop singer Tom Jones has been ordered to stay in bed until Tuesday after collapsing in a Boston hotel room from apparent effects of the Hong Kong flu.

Jones' agent, Chris Hutchings, said here Sunday that the 31-year-old entertainer was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital Saturday and a doctor told him to return to the hotel and rest in bed.

The illness forced Jones to cancel an engagement Saturday night in Boston and Sunday night in New Orleans. Hutchings said Jones probably would leave Wednesday for Miami, Fla., to open a 10-day engagement Friday at the Deauville Star Theater.

Muskie Favorite In Demo Women Vote

NEW BERN — Senator Edmund Muskie proved to be the overwhelming favorite of Democratic women in the First Congressional District last Thursday when they cast votes in a "mock" nominating convention. Other popular choices were Terry Sanford and Henry Jackson. George Wallace and Shirley Chisholm carried one state each.

Congressman Walter B. Jones was keynote speaker at the all-day convention. The luncheon address was delivered by Mrs. Betty McCain, newly appointed vice-chairman of N. C. Democrats. Other participants in the days program included Mrs. Mary Winfield, N. C. Democratic National Committee woman, and Mrs. Margaret Harper, former vice-chairman, who resigned that post to run for lieutenant governor.

In a short business session the convention elected Mrs. Verona Cratch of Washington to succeed the current director, Miss Janice Hardison of Greenville, who had served three terms.

On hand to campaign for various offices were candidates, their wives, or campaign staff representatives. Posters, bumper strips, buttons, and brochures were in evidence among the women who had convened to study the process of delegate selection in North Carolina.

Mrs. Kathleen Orringer of New Bern was in charge of arrangements.

Politics Next For Rupp?

Indiana Brightens U.S. Olympic Swim Hopes

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — America's Olympic swimming hopes seemed bright today in the wake of Indiana's record-tying fifth consecutive NCAA championship despite a bitter controversy among the Hoosiers, runner-up Southern California and third-place Tennessee. Ten American records were smashed—including two each by Indiana butterfly specialist Mark Spitz and Stanford breaststroker Brian Job—in the three-day competition as the Hoosiers struggled to a 390-371 victory over surprisingly strong Southern Cal. The only disquieting note as the nation's top collegians took another giant step toward the Olympic Games in Munich, Germany, this summer came when the bitterness involving the three top teams surfaced as the meet drew to a close Saturday night. The crowd at the U.S. Military Academy pool let loose with several rounds of jeers when Tennessee's Dave Edgar and John Trembley, on orders from Coach Ray Bussard, eased up in the six-man 100-yard butterfly final—they were assured of 10 points for fifth place and nine for sixth—to save themselves for the windup 400-yard freestyle relay more than an hour later, which the Vols won in record time to secure their overall third-place finish. Edgar and Trembley had the second and third best times in the afternoon qualifying heats and their slowdown enabled Indiana's Larry Barbieri and Pat O'Connor to finish 3-4—Spitz won in a record 47.988 seconds—and pick up some crucial points at a time when the outcome still was in doubt. "There are situations when you have to sacrifice individuals for the team and other times when you have to sacrifice the team for individuals," said Bussard. "Tonight we had to sacrifice two individuals for the team. But the action of the Tennessee pair drew taunts from members of the Southern Cal squad—"I just think those guys could have put forth a full effort," said one—who starred in last year's Pan American Games at Cali, Colombia, while Indiana stars Spitz, John Kinsella and Gary Hall were absent. Charlie Campbell of Princeton another of the so-called "second-stringers" who won a gold medal at Cali and set a record of 1:50.557 in the 200-yard backstroke here, sided with the Trojans. Other American records were set by the Tennessee quartet of Ken Knox, Tom Lutz and the rested Edgar and Trembley with a clocking of 3:01.118 in the 400-yard freestyle relay Stanford's Job, 2:02.592 in the 200 breaststroke and :56.833 in a qualifying heat of the 100 breast; Jerry Heidenreich of Southern Methodist, 1:38.357 in the 200 freestyle; the Southern Cal foursome of Ed McCleskey, Steve Tyrrell, Tom McBreen and Jim McConica, 6:38.635 in the 800-yard relay, and the three Indiana stars —Spitz, 1:46.898 in the 200 butterfly; Kinsella, 4:24.496 in the 500 freestyle, and Hall, 1:51.507 in the 200 individual medley. Paul Gilbert of Yale set an NCAA record of :51.293 in the 100 backstroke and just missed the American mark.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The $20,000 World Record Drag Racing Championships were postponed over the weekend until April 15-16 because of a three-inch snow. Between 300 and 500 cars are expected back at Charlotte Motor Speedway to compete for the prize money.

SOCCER WINNERS

GUATEMALA (AP) — Costa Rica defeated the Rochester Lancers 1-0 Sunday in a North Central American and Caribbean tournament soccer game.

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Editor The University of Virginia limited the East Carolina Pirates to just three hits, and snapped the Pirate winning streak at six games Sunday, 6-2. It was the first loss of the season for the Bucs, who had opened with six straight wins. That represented the best start for the Pirates since 1965, when they won their first seven contests. Two Calavrier pitchers shared the honors in the game, with reliever Mike Judkins getting the win since starter John Cunningham did not get the required five innings. He was lifted after one out in the fifth inning, after giving up the first Buc hit. Virginia pounded out nine hits off three Pirate pitchers, and they led all the way, scoring single runs in the first, second, fifth and ninth innings, and getting a pair in the sixth. The Pirates were able to push over a run each in the second and fifth innings, although they were able to get threats off on several other occasions. Each team's staff recorded five strikeouts, and both teams hit the ball well. Only the Pirates hit it to someone, and the Calaviers hit it around the Bucs. Virginia got the ball rolling in the first inning, pushing over its first run. With two away, Bill Hall walked and moved up on a wild pitch. Steve Sroba also walked, and a passed ball advanced both runners. Dave Bratt then reached on an error, allowing Hall to score and give Virginia a 1-0 lead. They added another in the second frame. With one out, Al Bracht singled to left, keeping the ball close to the line, as did a number of Cavalier hitters throughout the day. Then, with two away, Robin Marvin reached on another error, putting runners at first and second. Terry Dan singled into left, and as Bracht raced home, Marvin was caught in a rundown between second and third to end the inning, but the run made it 2-0. The Bucs came back with their first run in the bottom of the second. With one down, Larry Walters was hit by a pitch. Consecutive walks to Troy Eason and Mike Bradshaw loaded the bases. Rick McMahon then hit a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Walters with the first run. Virginia threatened in the third, as Bratt walked and John Williams singled, but that ended it. But in the fifth, they picked up another run. Hill reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. He scored with Bratt singled into left, upping the lead to 3-1. The second and last Pirate run came in the bottom of the inning. McMahon led off with a single to left, and then when Cunningham tried to pick him off, the throw was wide, and McMahon raced all the way to third. He scored when Jeff Culver sacrificed him home with a fly to left. Later, Ron Leggett walked and Ralph Lamm reached on an error, to keep the threat alive, but it fell there as the next two men fled out. Virginia came up with two more in the sixth. Bracht singled and moved to second when Charlie Williams, who had walked before him, was thrown out trying to move to third. Judkins walked and Marvin singled to score Bracht, but Judkins was thrown out on the play. Dan was hit by a pitch and Hall singled to right, scoring Marvin to give the Calaviers a 5-2 lead. The final Virginia run came in the ninth. Hall led off, reaching on an error. With two outs, he scored on a single by John Williams. The Pirates got off threats in the sixth, and put men on base in the seventh and eighth, but could get nothing else going. The Pirates, now 6-1, play host to the University of North Carolina-Wilmington on Wednesday at Harrington Field. Game time is 3 p.m.

Allison Wins Atlanta 500

By ED SHEARER Associated Press Sports Writer HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., finally ended Chevrolet's long victory drought Sunday, winning the Atlanta 500 NASCAR Grand National stock car race and declaring, "I just feel like it proves the car can do it." Allison, pitting for fuel on the last lap of the day's sixth caution flag, fell into third place eight seconds off the lead with only 61 laps to go, but pushed the 1971 Junior Johnson Chevrolet past defending champion A. J. Foyt's Mercury three and one-half laps from the finish. Allison took the checkered flag .16 seconds ahead of Foyt, giving Chevy its first major NASCAR triumph since Johnson won the Dixie 400 here and the National 500 at Charlotte in 1963. "It's a real capable car and I think today really showed it," said Allison, who averaged 128.214 miles per hour for the $110,000, 500-mile test over the 1.5-mile asphalt oval at Atlanta International Raceway. Allison's charge in the final 60 laps brought roars of approval from the estimated 70,000 fans when he went into second place ahead of Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., with five laps to go and again when he sailed by Foyt on the backstretch of the 324th lap. It appeared that Foyt, who had handling problems throughout the day, slowed down when Allison whizzed by, but the three-time Indianapolis 500 winner from Texas said, "I didn't let off at all. Allison just flew by me." Foyt, who had won his last two 500-mile events on the NASCAR circuit, said, "With all the changes we made in the race, it's a wonder we finished. I'd think it was going to go through the fence on every turn." Allison and Isaac, piloting a Dodge, each led the race five times during the sunny afternoon, the winner for 147 laps and Isaac, winner of the Caro-

Bruins Strong 2 More Years

By DAN BERGER Associated Press Sports Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — The only province left to conquer for UCLA's incredible basketball team is the collegiate record for most victories in a row—60. The way things look, that mark may be in serious jeopardy. After clinching NCAA crown No. 8 Saturday with an 81-76 victory over pesky Florida State, the Bruins took the basketball home for a year. Some have said the current John Wooden group will go unbeaten for at least another two years. The king isn't about to abdicate. The reason: four of Saturday's starting five return, along with the three top reserves. Up from a good freshman team come two or three explosive lads who could easily "bump" the stars. UCLA is unbeaten in its last 45 games. But going unbeaten for another two years is an absurd thought in the mind of All-American center Bill Walton, whose 57 points and 41 rebounds in the Bruins' final two games led to his being named player of the NCAA tournament.

"I don't know if it's possible to go unbeaten for three years," said the 6-foot-11 sophomore, who appeared annoyed that the question was brought up. "After all, the greatest player who ever played lost two games when he was here." The reference was to Lew Alcindor, now called Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. When he was at UCLA, the Bruins were 88-2 although Alcindor was named player of the NCAA tournament all three years as the Bruins were winning titles.

Wilhelm The Great

KNUCKLE-BALLER — Venerable Hoyt Wilhelm of the Los Angeles Dodgers give the New York Mets his delivery in his first outing this spring yesterday. The 48-year-old Wilhelm comes into 1972 setting a new record in every appearance, having been in 1054 games boasting a lifetime earned run average of 2.50. (AP Wirephoto)

Every Spring Hoyt Bombed In First Game

By TOM EMORY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Every spring it's pretty much the same. Aging Hoyt Wilhelm signs his contract, goes to spring training and gets bombed in his first exhibition game.

A few heads shake and some one comments: "Looks like the old fella doesn't have it anymore."

The 48-year-old knuckleballer made his initial spring appearance Sunday. He got bombed as the New York Mets defeated Los Angeles 9-1. Wilhelm didn't get the loss—Tommy John got that—but he did get the attention.

Wilhelm gave up six runs when he faced the Mets in the seventh inning. He retired only one batter.

"It's the first bad inning he's had since he's been with us," Dodger Manager Walt Alston said. "He's pitched in camp just like he pitched last year, so we're not disturbed."

It doesn't matter who is shaking his head as long as it isn't Alston. In his 21 years in the major leagues, Wilhelm has won 143 games and has always been a warm-weather pitcher. Alston knows the weather is getting warmer.

In other exhibition games, Baltimore nipped Texas 6-5 in 14 innings, Montreal belted Houston 11-5, Boston defeated the Chicago White Sox 7-5, California routed Cleveland 7-1, Minnesota edged Atlanta 1-0 in 11 innings, Detroit beat Philadelphia 3-1, Oakland whipped San Diego 8-3, the Chicago Cubs trimmed Milwaukee 3-2, New York blanked Kansas City 2-0 and two separate Cincinnati squads topped St. Louis 5-3 and Pittsburgh 5-4.

A sacrifice fly by Terry Crowley scored Brooks Robinson to give Baltimore its victory. Robinson doubled and moved to third on a bunt.

Bob Bailey had four RBIs with a homer and single and Rusty Staub had three with a bases-loaded pinch double for Montreal.

Reggie Smith homered twice for Boston for four RBIs. Jorge Orta got three hits, including a homer for the White Sox.

California scored five times in the sixth inning on four walks, a Jim Spencer double, a single and a sacrifice fly.

Jim Holt singled in the 11th inning, driving in the winning Minnesota run against Atlanta. Danny Thompson, who walked and was sacrificed to second, scored on Holt's safety. Jim Kaat and Tom Norton hurled the shutout for the Twins.

Detroit scored three runs in the second inning, including home runs by Willie Horton and Bill Freehan, while Mickey Lolich held the Phillies to one run and three hits in five innings.

Joe Rudi and Sal Bando each hit two-run homers and Reggie Jackson doubled in two runs for Oakland. Jim "Catfish" Hunter pitched seven innings for the A's.

Billy Williams' homer drove in three runs for the Cubs. Burt Hooten pitched seven innings and gave up single runs to Milwaukee in the sixth and seventh innings.

Mel Stottlemyre and Sparky Lyle combined for a one-hitter for the Yankees. The duo faced just 27 Kansas City batters.

Johnny Bench singled in two Cincinnati runs in the seventh inning, breaking a 3-3 tie with St. Louis.

Lakers Count On Wilt For NBA Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association playoffs begin this week and the Los Angeles Lakers hope that lightning strikes twice. Or more precisely, they hope that Wilt Chamberlain strikes twice.

When Chamberlain played with the Philadelphia 76ers in 1966-67, he helped them set an NBA record for most victories in a season (68) and best percentage (.840). That team went on to win the NBA title.

On Sunday, Chamberlain recorded 23 rebounds to help the Lakers beat the Seattle SuperSonics 124-98 and break the 76ers' record.

The regular season finale gave the powerful Lakers a 69-13 mark for an .841 percentage.

Los Angeles thus begins its quest for a title this week. The Lakers, runaway winners of the Pacific Division, will play the Chicago Bulls to kick off the Western Conference semifinals. Golden State will play Milwaukee, the Midwest Division winner, in the other best-of-7 semifinal. In the East, it's Atlantic Division champ Boston against Atlanta and New York vs. Baltimore, the Central winner.

In other NBA games Sunday, the Boston Celtics routed the Detroit Pistons 133-120; the Atlanta Hawks stopped the New York Knicks 120-106; the Golden State Warriors nipped the Philadelphia 76ers 116-115; the Cincinnati Royals ripped the Cleveland Cavaliers 135-122; the Houston Rockets hammered the Portland Trail Blazers 131-109 and the Baltimore Bullets whipped the Buffalo Braves 119-101.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Denver 108, New York 91; Pittsburgh 131, Virginia 130; Indiana 98, Dallas 88 and Kentucky 105, Floridians 104.

Saturday night results in the NBA: New York 98, Cleveland 83; Chicago 121, Detroit 105; Houston 106, Baltimore 85; Boston 121, Buffalo 116; Milwaukee 119, Cincinnati 95 and Phoenix 118, Seattle 99.

John Havlicek and Jo Jo White combined for 50 points despite part-time service to lead the Celtics to an easy victory over the Pistons.

Atlanta came from 10 points behind with a 38-point third quarter that virtually sewed up its victory over New York.

Golden State lost a 14-point lead and needed a basket by Clyde Lee and two free throws by Jim Barnett to beat Philadelphia. Hal Greer had given the 76ers a short-lived 113-112 lead with 37 seconds left.

Immediately after the contest, Philadelphia Coach Jack Ramsay resigned. The 76ers finished third in the NBA's Atlantic Division, missing the playoffs.

Players Named To All-Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom McMillen, the tourney's Most Valuable Player, and Len Elmore, the front-liners from Maryland's titlists, have been named to the all-tourney team of the 35th National Invitation Basketball Tournament.

Joining the pair on the Associated Press' first team were Marshall Wingate, the star of Niagara, which lost the championship game 100-69 to Maryland Saturday, Harold Fox of Jacksonville and Richie Fuqua of Oral Roberts.

Nate Archibald scored 45 points and John Mengelt added 28 as Cincinnati walloped Cleveland in the Royals' last game as Cincinnati's home team. They move to Kansas City next year.

Elvin Hayes celebrated his special night in Houston by scoring 30 points and leading the Rockets to victory over Portland.

Archie Clark scored 29 points and Mike Riordan scored 20 to lead Baltimore over Buffalo.

Vida Blue Remains A Holdout Despite Efforts Of 2 Firms

NEW YORK (AP) — Vida Blue remains a holdout today despite the efforts of two commercial organizations to get the Oakland left-hander to agree on contract terms with A's owner Charles O. Finley.

Robert Gerst, Blue's attorney, confirmed the report Sunday by Guy LeBow of the National Broadcasting Company which involved an offer of $25,000 to Blue to accept Finley's stand-fast contract proposal of $50,000.

"Vida is unwilling to accept it," said Gerst. "He thinks all of the money should be paid by the owner of the team. Mr. Finley is the one who is going to make all the money from him."

According to LeBow, the two organizations made the offer because they believe baseball can ill afford to lose Blue as an attraction.

"I think it's very nice that they're willing to pay him money," said Gerst in Los Angeles. "but Vida honestly doesn't want it."

Finley, in Phoenix, said he had not heard of the offer to his ace pitcher. "If it was true," the A's owner said, "that doesn't surprise me. He's just one of the finest young men I've had the pleasure of meeting."

Finley, who has refused to budge above the $50,000 he's offered Blue, said the pitcher almost agreed to terms Saturday but then changed his mind. The owner said he had dispatched catcher Gene Tenace to Oakland to talk with the pitcher.

"He's going to tell him how much the players miss him and how much they want him back," Finley said. "We're doing everything we can to get him back, short of raising the $50,000 offer."

Blue, who earned $14,750 last season when he was named the American League's Most Valuable Player and won the Cy Young Award with a 24-8 record, had demanded a boost first to $115,000 and later to $92,500. Finley has held fast at $50,000 and the owner said that Blue, in his last conversation, had mentioned figures of $85,000 and $70,150.

Peabody Award For TV Movie

NEW YORK (AP) — "Brian's Song," ABC's made-for-television movie based on a true story of the friendship of two football players, one black and one white, was named winner Sunday of one of 17 George Foster Peabody awards.

The broadcasting awards, named for the late banker-philanthropist and administered by the University of Georgia's Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, will be presented at a luncheon here April 25.

The screenplay of "Brian's Song" by William Blinn was cited for "extraordinarily sensitive translation of a touching human drama..." The film, aired last November, starred James Caan and Billy Dee Williams in the roles of the late Brian Piccolo and Gale Sayers, running backs of the Chicago Bears.

NBC's "This Child is Rated X," a documentary on juvenile rights, also received an award, and the same network was cited for excellence in dramatic programming for "The Price," "Jane Eyre," "All the Way Home" and "The Snow Goose." CBS won an award for its "The American Revolution:

1770-1783, a Conversation with Lord North."

Special awards for distinguished careers went to Dr. Frank Stanton of CBS, "as a gallant and courageous spokesman for the industry," and George Heinemann of NBC for children's and youth programming.

Another special award went to Arthur Godfrey, a CBS broadcaster, "as an affectionate gesture for his continuing service to American radio."

Other television awards: United Nations Television, for promoting international understanding with its "United Nations Day Confer with Pablo Casals"; youth or children's programs, ABC-TV News' "To Make a Wish"; education, WQED, Pittsburgh, for "The Turned On Crisis," and a special award to the Mississippi State Educational Television Authority, for innovative use of television in education.

Other radio awards: education, WHA, Madison, Wis.; youth or children's programs; WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va., for "Junior Town Meeting of the Air"; promotion of international understanding, Voice of America; public service,

NBC Radio's "Second Sunday," and a special award to WCCO, Minneapolis, for "The Hart of the Matter," cited as "A unique approach to public education."

John Rich, of NBC radio and television, won a special award for "two decades of distinguished radio and television reporting on China and the Far East."

Terry Sanford To Open New Campaign Offices

DURHAM (AP) — Duke University President Terry Sanford says he is dead serious about running for president and he plans to open a campaign office in Washington this week.

The former North Carolina governor, who was in Hampton, Va., Saturday to address a Virginia Young Democrats convention, acknowledged at a news conference that he is getting a late start in the presidential race.

However, said Sanford, he plans to enter one of the four state primaries still open to filing—probably New Jersey's.

Asked why he entered the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sanford replied, "Because I became progressively more dissatisfied with the issues being developed in this campaign and because I'm not satisfied that a Democrat can win the election this fall as matters are going now."

Sanford said he is developing his own campaign issues, the most important being a call for "revitalization of federalism." He said, "The major thrust now is to make government work."

Sanford, who—as governor—brought food under the state sales tax to further his education program, said he could not be categorized as being totally for or against busing.

He said some busing is putting too great a burden on children in solving the desegregation problem. At the same time, though, he said he is in favor of breaking up segregation.

Sanford said his organization will be reaching out from his Washington office to contact delegates before they gather in Miami for the National Democratic Convention in July.

A car so advanced, it can tell you just about everything that's right or wrong with it.

Remarkable new invention in every 1972 Volkswagen.

We've all been through it.

The agony of an automotive check-up.

You sit nervously thumbing through old magazines, praying that somehow you can get out of there for less than $50.

Then, the moment of truth:

A Service Manager telling you that one of his best mechanics thinks you need a new generator.

Those days will be over soon if you own a 1972 Volkswagen.

For instead of a mechanic telling you what he thinks is wrong with your car, now your car can tell you for sure. Sound amazing?

It is.

A car wired like a space capsule.

When Man went to the Moon, the success of each mission depended a great deal on a highly technical computerized system that told the Astronauts the exact condition of their space vehicle.

A similar system is now built into every 1972 Volkswagen.

The system in the car.

Running throughout the car is a network of sensors, each reporting the condition of various parts of the car.

Most of these sensor points are located in key areas like the engine or the electrical system, but many are found in seemingly insignificant places like the heated rear window.

The information from all areas is channeled to one central socket located in the rear engine compartment.

The socket is about the size of a pack of cigarettes.

We mention the size only because of what happens next. And that's what this amazing socket can do.

60 vital service checks.

Soon you'll be able to take any 1972 Volkswagen into an authorized VW dealership for the most advanced automotive check-up in the world today.

At that time, your car will actually be plugged into a computer.

And in half the time it takes to perform a conventional check-up, 60 vital service checks will be made and recorded.

Checks wheel alignment in 10 seconds.

In 10 seconds, you'll know if your front wheels are properly aligned.

In a minute, you'll know the condition of the compression of all engine cylinders.

Without a mechanic so much as taking a peek, you'll know whether or not your battery needs water.

Ignition, cylinder compression, dwell angle, generator, electrical system—

All checked out without human error.

In effect, your car will be telling you how it feels directly.

And once again, this information is emanating from that one tiny socket built into the back of every 1972 Volkswagen.

Results printed out in plain English.

One-half of the system is already here. Built into every new Volkswagen.

The other half, the computer, is on its way.

Imagine.

A computer five feet away from your car is printing out in plain English just about everything that's right or wrong with that car.

When all 60 service checks have been made, the print-out sheet is yours to keep.

What better proof to show that your automobile has finally had a thorough physical check-up?

A new way to look at a VW.

It started with economy, back in 1949, when it wasn't fashionable for an automobile to be economical.

But since when has a VW been fashionable?

Since never.

Obviously, the Volkswagen Beetle hasn't made it on looks alone.

But then, that's always been the plan.

While everyone else has been worrying about how their cars looked, we've been worrying about how ours acted.

And now, after all that time, we've even advanced it to a stage where it can speak.

AN AMAZING SOCKET, BUILT INTO THE BACK OF EVERY 1972 VOLKSWAGEN, THAT WHEN PLUGGED INTO A COMPUTER, WILL ACTUALLY REPORT THE CONDITION OF YOUR CAR — DIRECTLY TO YOU!

It is predicted that the national flue-cured tobacco poundage will decrease 10 percent between now and 1976. Yields per acre are expected to increase about 5 percent during this same period due to increases in production efficiency.

Two of the most important issues facing the tobacco industry during the 5-year period (1971-1976) are related to smoking and health, and taxes. At the present time, direct takes account for 40 cents of the tobacco users dollar or five times what the growers receives for his crop since his share of the consumer dollar is only eight cents. Also, manufacturers have reduced the tobacco leaf used per cigarette. This has averaged about 1.9 percent annually for the past twenty years.

According to the U.S.D.A. Farm Index, cigarette makers during 1970 used an estimated 1.96 pounds of unstemmed tobacco per 1000 cigarettes. This is approximately four percent less than was used in 1969.

The use of filters has been closely connected with the lower tobacco content. Most filters have shorter tobacco columns than non-filter brands, and they average about one-seventh less tobacco per cigarette.

In addition to shifting production to filter cigarettes, manufacturers have lengthened the filter, made slimmer cigarettes, and have accelerated the use of sheet tobacco and stems.

All signs point to a continued downturn in cigarette leaf content over the next few years.

These and other conservation measures are at least partially responsible for the prediction of 10 percent reduction in poundage quotas during the next few years.

Tobacco TIPS

By SAM J. WEEKS

Multi-purpose tobacco disease control chemicals are available for use in the production of tobacco. DD-PIC, Vorlex, Telone C, and Terr-o-cide are all effective in reducing the incidence of black shank, Granville wilt and nematodes. These materials are valuable when used along with the disease resistant varieties in fields where black shank or Granville wilt have caused damage to previous crops. Proper use of such treatments could add $200 or more per acre to the performance of resistant varieties in problem fields.

In tests, these multi-purpose chemicals increased the yield in black shank infested fields by $263 to $337 per acre over the untreated areas.

There are several fumigant-type nematocides that give effective nematode control. Included in this group are DD, Telone, EDB 85, EDB 40, Doreline, and Fieldfume. Each of these nematocides requires a waiting period after application of 14 days before transplanting. Each is effective in soils with high population of nematodes.

The non-fumigant or "contact" nematocides do not require any waiting period. The non-fumigant type nematocides can be applied broadcast and mixed with the soil by diking in just prior to the preparation of the beds for transplanting. If necessary, Mocap or Dasanit can be applied the same day that the tobacco is transplanted since no waiting period is required. They also provide wireworm control when applied one to two weeks prior to transplanting.

More detailed information on chemical soil treatment can be obtained from the County Agricultural Extension Office.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou

Changes in the national feed grain program are expected to result in less corn and more soybeans on North Carolina farms in 1972.

North Carolina State University extension economists point out that the less-corn, more-beans effect is the primary purpose of the changes that have been announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The goal is to relieve the grain supply situation that plunged corn prices to the dollar a bushel level in many parts of the country last fall. Soybeans, on the other hand, are enjoying a good market and an optimistic forecast for continued strong demand.

In deciding what adjustments to make in their acreage of corn and soybeans, growers should figure as accurately as possible their total cost of producing each crop, the kind of yields that can be expected in a normal or average year and, using future quotations, project market prices for next fall's harvest time.

"A person who expects relatively low yields or relatively high production costs may be better off participating in the feed grain program," is the advice of Dr. Everett Nichols, grain marketing economist at N. C. State University.

But where the opposite is the case, a farmer might come out ahead by not participating.

There is a key provision of the feed grain program that must be kept in mind. If a grower plants less than 45 percent of his feed grain base, he can lose up to 20 percent of his base allotment for 1973. If the acreage isn't planted for three straight years, all of the allotment is lost.

The base or planting history can be protected, however, if the farmer doesn't accept program payment.

County reports to the state office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service show that some 53,000 acres of grain base were lost in North Carolina in 1971 for failure to plant or failure to report planting.

The basic changes in the feed grain program for 1972 are:

— The feed grain set-aside is increased from 20 to 25 percent of the base.

— Set-aside payments are increased from 32 cents per bushel for corn to 40 cents a bushel. Because of the corresponding change in acreage set-aside, the net money to the farmer remains about the same.

— Barley is included this year in the feed grain program. By maintaining his set-aside and conserving base, a grower can raise as much feed grain as he chooses. And he may plant his remaining acres to any crop he wishes, except those under production controls.

He may plant soybeans as a feed grain substitute crop and receive planting credit this year.

New Jersey Lottery Appeals To States In A Financial Bind

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX
Associated Press Writer

New Jersey's weekly 50-cent lottery has been such a winning ticket for extra revenue that five other states running the game have copied the technique of tantalizing taxpayers with cheap chances for rich rewards.

Officials in at least 20 other states looking to lotteries for financial relief have asked New Jersey for help in setting up their systems.

Inaugurated in January 1971, the New Jersey lottery netted more than $60 million during its first year of operation, and officials estimate the net take will reach $93 million by June 30 of this year.

Says Ralph Batch, director of New Jersey's lottery: "We are pleased with the success of the lottery thus far. The results certainly show that a weekly lottery with 50-cent tickets was a wise choice."

Profits from lottery operations range from 30 to 50 percent in the six states where they are now held. In New York, New Jersey and New Hampshire, the funds go for public education. Connecticut's profits go to the state's general fund, and Pennsylvania's defray real estate taxes on the elderly. Massachusetts will apportion its profits among local governments.

States considering lottery proposals include Ohio, Washington, California, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Missouri. Lawmakers and voters in Missouri, Ohio, Kansas and Washington must decide whether to lift state constitutional bans on lotteries. Voters in Colorado will make the decision in November. But bills in the Nebraska and California legislatures are considered unlikely to pass this session.

The New Jersey success was watched closely from New York and New Hampshire, where profits from longer-running lotteries, based on the monthly sale of more expensive tickets, had not been meeting expectations.

New York entered the lottery business in 1967 and, with a population more than twice that of New Jersey, netted a total of only $120.3 million in its first four years, after forecasts of $500 million a year.

Last year, New York netted only $26 million for education on gross sales of $58 million. This year, the 50-cent ticket has collected more than $1 million every week for the schools, as ticket sales went from two or three million a month to about three million a week. The state's record for tickets sold was established the week of March 12 with 5,788,980. Top weekly prize is $50,000.

"Our lottery has never produced so well as now," says Frederick C. Aber Jr., the lottery's promotion manager. "People like the fast payoff, and people who hesitated to buy at $1 don't hesitate at 50 cents."

New Hampshire's system is similar but also includes a $3-a-ticket drawing three times a year for a top prize of $50,000 each time. Its top weekly prize is $5,000, but certain number combinations qualify for a super drawing every two or three weeks for a top prize of $50,000.

Once established, state-run gambling by lottery has caused little controversy other than debate over operational methods and how to increase revenue.

It was because of slim profits that both New York and New Hampshire officials went to Trenton to learn New Jersey's secret to a successful system. The New Jersey plan was devised by a Princeton-based firm specializing in computer work.

In New Hampshire, where officials predicted $4 million profits yearly when the lottery began in 1964, profits dipped to $836,563 in 1970. But the new weekly drawing initiated last July has lured 325,000 takers a week and brought in an extra $2.2 million since then.

New Jersey—moving to meet a 5 per cent sales drop from the loss of some New Yorkers who had bet across the Hudson River in New Jersey but since have returned home to buy 50-cent tickets—tripled the number of eligibles in its special millionaire drawing, which occurs 12 times a year.

Three states opening lottery operations this year have adopted the New Jersey formula.

Connecticut sold so many of the 50-cent tickets for its inaugural weekly drawing on Feb. 24 that the state's Gaming Commission had to print an extra 500,000 stubs to meet the demand.

Top prize in Connecticut's weekly drawings is $5,000, and these weekly winners than compete for prizes up to $100,000. State officials expect $2.5 million in profits by July 1 and another $14 million in the fiscal year beginning then.

Pennsylvania, which awarded its first $50,000 prize to a 50-cent ticketholder March 8, has imitated New Jersey's circus-like lottery-drawing gadgetry. Politicians mount a traveling stage console amid a whirl of flashing lights, dancing girls and other high-powered entertainment to spin the lottery wheel and read the winning number. More than seven million tickets were sold in the first week.

"Our first week's sales were higher than any other state's in any week," said Pennsylvania's revenue secretary, Robert P. Kane. Fifty-cent lottery tickets for a weekly $50,000 top prize went on sale in Massachusetts March 22 for the inaugural April 6 drawing. As do New York and New Jersey, Massachusetts will hold drawings for million-dollar prizes, with winners of lesser prizes competing.

Officials in New Hampshire say they expect an initial 10 to 20 per cent drop in ticket sales when the Massachusetts lottery opens

UNIVERSITY TESTS ON TOBACCO AVERAGE

3 cents a pound more net using Enide® 50w for weed control

Six on-farm herbicide and cultivation tests were conducted on flue-cured tobacco in 1971 by The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service and Cooperating Growers with the following results:

Average yield and value per acre were highest where Enide 50w was used with two cultivations (second and layby) when compared with the use of no herbicide and two cultivations. The tests were conducted under a wide range of environmental and management conditions. Herbicide use was the only variable in cultural practices at each location. These data were obtained from North Carolina State miscellaneous publication No. 73, 12/71.

Net profits were increased 3 cents per pound ($70/A) by using Enide 50w. Calculations based on 35¢ per pound production costs and $10 per acre for costs of herbicide.

Average of 6 on-farm tests 1971	No herbicide, 2 cultivations	Enide 50w 2 cultivations (2nd & layby)	Increase
Pounds per acre	2,212	2,387	175
Value per acre	$1,732.00	$1,873.00	$141.00
Production costs per acre	$ 774.20	$ 845.45	$ 71.25
Income per acre	$ 957.80	$1,027.55	$ 69.75

COST-CUTTING TIP

apply Enide® 50w during your transplanting operation

The fact that Enide 50w can be applied to tobacco at transplanting will provide extra savings to profit-oriented growers. You apply Enide "over the top" during transplanting with a spray rig on the transplanter and reduce your application costs to practically nothing. The operator of the tractor pulling the transplanter controls the Enide spray. For a single-row planter, only one nozzle is needed. For multiple-row planters, a boom with one nozzle per row does the trick. (Be sure to use the proper nozzle.) The Enide spray is directed right "over the top" of the tobacco plants as they are transplanted. There is no need for extra labor. There is no need for a second trip through the field to apply herbicide. Cost of material, $6 to $10 an acre, is the only cost of getting weed protection when you need it most. For more information, see your farm store dealer today.

More marketable tobacco

more profit for you...

with Lannate

Test results and grower experience show dramatic proof that LANNATE gives you more of what you buy an insecticide for:

■ More hole-free tobacco.

■ Near perfect control of key tobacco insects budworm, hornworm, flea beetle, aphids, cabbage looper.

■ The hit-and-run killer—after LANNATE has done its job, it breaks down into harmless materials.

■ Combination contact/stomach action—LANNATE knocks 'em off their feet and gets 'em while they eat!

■ Low use-cost per acre. One two-pound can of 90% active LANNATE covers 4 to 8 acres.

■ It's easy to use, completely soluble. And it's easy on sprayers and tobacco because it contains no abrasives or solvents.

That's why LANNATE is the No. 1 insecticide for quality tobacco!

As LANNATE is a highly toxic chemical and protective equipment is required, read and follow label instructions and warnings carefully.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—As South vulnerable, you hold:

♠J6 ♥QJ3 ♦KJ82 ♣A973

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass

2 ♣ Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Had partner wanted you to bid, he would have doubled one spade. His double on the second round is obviously for penalties, and you have just the material to convert it into a hand-some profit.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠10643 ♥AQ2 ♦AKQ193

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass

2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. A slightly aggressive call, but this hand figures to produce seven tricks and if partner has adequate protection in the black suits a game may be scored in no trump. A bid of only two diamonds would be too conservative. Since partner failed to make a one-over-one response there is a good chance he has values in clubs.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J4 ♥AQ62 ♦AQ10 ♣AQJ10

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♣ 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣

Dble. 3 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass, the somewhat reluctantly. It is distinctly disappointing to give up a hand worth 20 points, but facts must be faced and it is clear that partner has practically nothing, so that no action would be safe.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A1032 ♥Q1086 ♦7 ♣8764

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. You have a maximum raise, counting an additional point for the promoted heart honor. A game bid is clearly indicated, as partner is obviously showing additional values and testing the quality of your raise.

Q. 5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠732 ♥A42 ♦K873 ♣AQ9

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦

Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts is quite adequate. Your hand is not as good as the high cards would indicate, due to the evenly balanced distribution. In fact, deducting a point for dummy's flaws, your hand is worth less than the 13 points required to assure a game.

Q. 6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQ1086 ♥A ♦1064 ♣AQ102

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT

Pass 2 ♣ Pass 2 ♥

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Partner has indicated a weak hand (he wasn't strong enough to bid his suit at the two level immediately) with length in hearts. He clearly does not care for either spades or clubs so you have no alternative but to withdraw reluctantly from the auction.

Q. 7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQ1093 ♥53 ♦8 ♣KJ10975

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass 1 NT Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three clubs. This is a perfect preemptive bid. With a good hand you would have passed the double, with a weak hand you would have made a simple take-out. The jump bid must, therefore, indicate a holding not rich in high cards but, nonetheless containing good playing strength.

Q. 8—As South vulnerable, you hold:

♠AK742 ♥A42 ♦105 ♣J93

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid?

A.—Three spades. North's vulnerable preempt promises seven winners which with your three puts you on the verge of game and make a four level contract reasonably safe. The probing bid is well worth the effort for, if partner has some spade support, there may be a game in that suit. If he merely returns to four diamonds you may retire from the proceedings. The three spade bid is, of course, forcing for one round.

Emotional Morons

We psychologists realize that many people with a high I.Q. may still be so emotionally immature that they should be termed "Emotional Morons."

The psychological profile of the typical teen-age speedster usually involves a "show-off" male, who craves the social spotlight and admiration of girls, but hasn't won it via athletics, scholastic honors, etc.

He is also not likely to have carried a newspaper route nor to have been a Boy Scout nor to have earned his own spending money, so he lacks "horse sense."

Unlike the experienced aviator, who constantly keeps his eyes circulating around to observe the various dials, he tends to ignore such inside indicators, as well as many warning signs posed along the highways.

Actually, a frail 90-pound coed can push the throttle to the floor and hit the 100-mark, so fast speed is no sign of male dominance!

You high schoolers might write themes on some of the numbered questions above!

Girls, avoid dating such "show-off" male juveniles!

Send for my "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and weed out the "Emotional Morons" from the mature male autors!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing cost.)

Don't smoke cigarettes in bed.

Jesse James' Old House Stirs Controversy

By MARGARET P. RICHARDS
KEARNEY, Mo. (UPI) — It will be 90 years April 3 since Jesse James was killed by "the dirty little coward who shot Mr. Howard," but the fabled outlaw still is kicking up a controversy. More than 2,000 Clay County, Mo., citizens recently petitioned county administrators to buy or condemn the now crumbling house that sheltered Jesse and Frank James between forays. They want it propped up or rebuilt and the farm made into an historical park. Jesse's grandsons—the brothers Lawrence, Forrester and Chester Barr—who stand to inherit the property, want to keep it in the family. What's left of the old homestead, which once comprised 240 acres, is now the property of Mrs. Mae James, widow of Frank's only child, Bob. She is in her 90s and was declared a ward of the state some time ago. The Probate Court administers her affairs. In the meantime visitors pay 75 cents to go through the ancient splitlog house. The money goes to support Mrs. James in a Liberty, Mo., nursing home.

THE CRUMBLING HOUSE that sheltered Jesse and Frank James, is involved in a tug of war between Clay County citizens and Jesse's grandsons. (UPI Telephoto)

Old Homestead Is Unsafe
Visitors flock to the farm, although they can only peer into the oldest section of the house, with its giant fireplace, because the floor is sinking and so rotted with age that it is unsafe. Many are drawn to the house, part of it built in the 1820s, by the legend of the brothers Frank and Jesse James who robbed rich Yankees to help poor Southerners—a story historians discount.

Almost everyone in Kearney feels strongly about the James farm—one way or the other—and many tell tales of the outlaws handed down by parents and grandparents.

Here as elsewhere, Jesse gets top billing—possibly because he was shot down by a traitor member of his own gang, perhaps with the connivance of the governor of Missouri. Frank lived to come home at last, a free man, and to be recalled to this day by oldsters as a "fine, steady kind of fellow."

"You know Frank was never convicted of anything, and for that matter neither was Jesse," Grover Albright, 87, said as he talked about his "first cousins once removed."

"I ought to know. My mother—she was a Cole—was a cousin to Frank and Jesse. My mother and I lived there (the James house) and took care of Aunt Zerelda."

Aunt Zerelda a 'Hellcat'
Aunt Zerelda was Mrs. Zerelda Cole James Samuel, mother of the James boys and their sister, Susan. Their father was The Rev. Robert S. James, an upright Kentucky man, who founded several still-living little churches in the Kearney area and was one of the organizers of William Jewell College, now a thriving, Baptist-affiliated college.

He left his family when the boys were small and apparently died of cholera shortly after he arrived at Hangtown (now Placerville), Calif. As for his wife, Albright said:

"She was a fiery one—kind of a hellcat. My mother said The Rev. James went to California to get away from her tongue."

Albright said The Rev. James and his wife both were educated people. "But because of the war things were different for Frank and Jesse and they didn't get much schooling," he said. "But it don't take schooling to be smart, and they were smart."

Frank rode with William Clarke Quantrill during the Civil War, and Jesse joined him after several incidents, including one in which his stepfather, Dr. Reuben Samuel, was strung up on a tree by Yankee militia (he later was cut down and suffered only a red streak on his neck) and Jesse was beaten. Later Jesse was jailed briefly—as far as is known, the only time Jesse was jailed.

Et Tu Ford?
Jesse was shot twice while with Quantrill, which helped identify his body when he was killed. Jesse had been living under the alias of "Thomas Howard" at a modest house in St. Joseph for several months when, on Monday, April 3, 1882, he took off his guns, the better to climb on a chair to straighten a picture. In a matter of seconds Bob Ford shot him in the head—and rushed out to telegraph Missouri Gov. Thomas T. Crittenden, who had posted a $20,000 reward for the James brothers, dead or alive. Jesse was 34 when he died.

The slaying of unarmed Jesse taught Frank something, according to Albright, who said: "Frank wore one of them big six inch guns as long as he lived. I worked for him three years and a finer man I never knew, but he always wore that gun."

If the James Gang committed all the crimes attributed to it, their loot amounted to about a half million pre-inflation dollars between Feb. 13, 1866, when the Clay County Savings Bank at Liberty was robbed of $58,000 and when Jesse was killed.

"He was some guy," Albright said, admiringly.

Protestors Want Help

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A civil rights leader says outside assistance is needed to help mobilize Wilmington's black community in behalf of black activist Ben Chavis and 11 other activists.

The Rev. Irv Joyner, an official of the National Committee for Racial Justice, spoke Saturday at a rally at the Capitol to protest the arrest of Chavis and the 11 others.

An estimated 150 students from St. Augustine's College, Shaw University and Kittrell College marched to the Capitol during a heavy snowfall. Joyner urged them to write letters to national newspapers and television stations concerning racial turmoil at Wilmington.

Chavis is scheduled to be given a hearing March 30 on a charge of conspiracy to murder. The charge resulted from the shooting death of Harvey Cumber, a white man, during racial disturbances at Wilmington in February last year.

The 11 other activists face charges growing out of the year-old racial violence in the port city.

Restraint Order On Church Noise

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — The Newport Church of God has been instructed by a judge to keep the noise down during revivals.

Newport Police Court Judge Ben Sampson issued the instruction on a complaint brought by Leon Lucas, a city fireman who lives close to the church.

Lucas said the church was in violation of a city ordinance prohibiting loud and unnecessary noise.

The church contended Saturday that it has a constitutional right to conduct worship ceremonies as it pleases.

Complain Women Take Easy Jobs

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah highway construction workers are complaining that women are taking over soft jobs as flagmen and refusing to get on union lists that would have them doing hard work such as operating jackhammers.

C.E. Berger, Utah State AFL-CIO president, told Gov. Calvin Rampton during the weekend that too many women have been displacing veteran union men in jobs where they direct traffic around construction sites.

State Highway engineer Blaine J. Kay said many of the women who have been flocking to become flagmen are college girls who find it a good high-paying job they can handle while attending school.

"They do a good job," Kay said, "and many of the contractors like them better than men because they learn quick and motorists treat them with more courtesy."

$150,000.00 State of North Carolina
Clean Water Bonds and the question of the issuance of
$2,000,000 State of North Carolina
Zoological Park Facilities Bonds will be submitted to the qualified voters of the State of North Carolina, which questions shall be voted on separately.

The issuance of the Clean Water Bonds and the Zoological Park Facilities Bonds has been authorized by Chapters 909 and 950, respectively, of the 1971 Session Laws of North Carolina, subject to a favorable vote of a majority of the qualified voters of the State who shall vote on each question in said election.

The polls for said election will be open from 6:30 A.M. to 7:30 P.M.; provided, however, that at voting places at which voting machines are used the County Board of Elections may permit the polls to remain open until 8:30 P.M.
Absentee ballots will not be allowed in said election.

In accordance with the general laws of the State of North Carolina, the times and places for registration and the names of the election officials will be determined by the authorized officers of the County and information with reference thereto and as to the location of the voting places may be obtained from the County Board of Elections. Qualified voters who are not certain whether they are registered for this election should contact the County Board of Elections.

Dated this 20 day of March, 1972.
J. B. Spilman
Chairman,
County Board of Elections

ALL SET TO GO . . . In Greenville hundreds of dogwood trees are within days of bursting into full white display. At the moment, the grayish-green buds are opening, and transformation to trees like clouds of white is but a matter of days or even hours. Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

FESTOONS . . . of maple flowers and winged seeds are one of the many glories of spring. In yards, in fields and in forests, different varieties of maples display great splashes of color ranging from deep ruby red to orange, vermillion, and shades of yellow-greens. The colors are very striking against bare branches before arrival of the young leaves which follow the flowers. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Jenkins Is Elected To Body's Executive Board

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, has been elected to the executive board of the National Commission on Accrediting. The Commission is the final authority on academic accreditation of college and university programs in the country.

Dr. Jenkins was elected during the three day annual meeting of the NCA held March 25-27 in Chicago. A member of the commission for the past three years, Jenkins was elected to the executive board to represent the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

The executive committee includes members from such organizations as the Association of American Colleges, the Association of American Universities, Association of Urban Universities, National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, the Federation of Regional Accrediting Commissions of Higher Education and the American Association of Junior Colleges.

Dr. Jenkins has been the only member of the commission from North Carolina elected to the executive board.

Offering Course In Management

A personnel management course, co-sponsored by Lenoir Community College and the Small Business Administration, will begin Tuesday.

The nine-hour short course will consist of three sessions: Personnel Management, Communication and Control, and Human Factors in Business.

Enrollment will be limited. Owners, managers, and prospective business owners are eligible. Films and materials will be furnished by the SBA. Interested persons may call the college at 527-6223 for advance registration. Certificates will be awarded to those who complete the course.

Writers Club To Meet Tonight

The final March meeting of the Greenville Writers Club will be held tonight at 8:00 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Betty Casey, 204 Lewis Street. In addition to reading manuscripts brought to the meeting, a discussion will be held on writing articles about people who have experienced unusual or dramatic events in their lives. All persons interested in any field of creative writing except poetry are invited to attend.

Highway Hearing Here Tuesday

A public hearing to discuss the proposed widening and improvement of U.S. 13 and N.C. 11 in Greenville will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the municipal auditorium of the City Hall in Greenville.

The hearing will begin with an explanation of the proposed design, right-of-way requirements and procedures, relocation advisory assistance, and the State-Federal relationship of the project.

The hearing will be open to those present for any questions, statements or comments pertaining to the proposed design.

To Address March Meet

Dr. H. A. I. Sugg, a Professor of Political Science at East Carolina University, will be guest speaker at the March 28 General Meeting of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters.

Prior to his retirement from the Navy, Dr. Sugg lived in mainland China while serving on a tour of duty there.

Dr. Sugg will discuss past U.S. policies toward the Peoples Republic of China and Russia. He will also analyze recent trends, including President Nixon's trip to China, and future possible developments with China and Russia as well as entertain questions on these subjects.

A spokesman for the league said this lecture should have particular appeal to high school and university students.

This meeting, to be held at 8:00 p.m. Tuesday at the Methodist Student Center on East Fifth Street, is open to the public.

Invite Students To Be Guests At Special Dinner

MOUNT OLIVE — All Free Will Baptist juniors and seniors in high school, their parents and their friends are invited to be the guests of Mount Olive College at Parker's Barbecue on Memorial Drive in Greenville on Wednesday, March 29.

A meal will be served at 7 p.m. Thomas E. Smith of the College Admissions Office will be present to talk with students interested in attending the College.

Smith will show slides of Mount Olive College and its student life and will discuss the educational advantages of the College. He will also answer questions, not only about Mount Olive College, but on attending college in general.
