

Attacking North Viets Open New Front

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese broadened their seven-day offensive today, threatening the provincial capital of Quang Tri in the north and opening a new front 60-75 miles north of Saigon with infantry assaults led by tanks.

The enemy attacks now are spread across three fronts, the north, the Saigon area and in the central highlands, where North Vietnamese tanks drove to within four miles of a government base.
Of all the fronts, that in the north was the most critical. The North Vietnamese were striking south of Quang Tri and its nearby headquarters' base in an attempt to cut off the city, 19 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

Farther south, the North Vietnamese attacked South Vietnamese troops defending the western approaches to the old imperial capital of Hue.

The North Vietnamese scored initial successes in the drive north of Saigon. Official reports said South Vietnamese troops and their eight U.S. advisers were withdrawn by helicopters from the base camp of Quan Loi, 60 miles north of Saigon.
The attacks in the area were aimed at towns and bases near the Cambodian border.

"This is the decisive battle," President Nguyen Van Thieu declared in a nationwide television and radio address. "I call on the army to defend our country. I call on the people to do your best to support the battle front."
While the Saigon government's northern defense line held along the Cua Viet-Dong Ha River 10 miles below the DMZ, Quang Tri, the provincial capital nine miles to the south, was threatened by fighting on the southeast, south, southwest and northwest.

Two fights erupted six miles south and nine miles southeast of the town in the French Indochina War's "Street Without Joy" area along the coast and Highway One. Government forces reported 47 of the enemy and two of their own men killed and six South Vietnamese wounded.

Ten miles southwest of the province capital, Fire Base

Pedro was under heavy attack, but a marine battalion was reported holding on. Pedro was Quang Tri's last major defense position in that direction.
South Vietnamese bombers attacked tank columns on the move 12 miles northwest of the threatened town and 40 miles to the southwest.

McGovern Racks Up Victory In Wisconsin

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern has established himself as a major contender for the Democratic presidential nomination by scoring a smashing victory in a Wisconsin primary that knocked New York Mayor John V. Lindsay out of the race for the White House.
The South Dakota senator, making the breakthrough he had forecast here, ran strongly in both urban, blue-collar areas and rural, farm regions Tuesday to capture seven of Wisconsin's nine congressional districts.

He won 54 of the state's 67 votes at the Democratic national convention, increasing his total to 94.5 of the 3,016 convention votes, one behind Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.
"It clearly establishes me as a major contender in the public mind," McGovern told a reporter who asked what he thought the results meant. "I really think we received a boost tonight that could take us all the way."

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, in another strong showing after his Florida primary victory three weeks ago, rode late rural returns into second place by a narrow margin over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.
Humphrey led in two districts with 13 convention votes.
President Nixon easily won the state's 28 GOP convention delegates in the Republican primary.

In the Democratic balloting, returns from 98 per cent of Wisconsin's 3,294 precincts gave McGovern 30 per cent, Wallace 22 per cent and Humphrey 21 per cent. The other nine Democrats trailed far behind.
Muskie, once the overwhelming Democratic frontrunner, suffered another smashing setback with a fourth-place finish and only 10 per cent of the vote. This could cripple his ability to raise funds for crucial primaries ahead in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Ohio.
He vowed to press on and said those states are "more favorable ground."
Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington finished fifth in Wisconsin after a third-place finish in Florida and conceded, "I'd like to have done better."
An aide denied rumors he would quit the race, saying

Jackson plans a major effort in Ohio.
Lindsay, however, looked at returns placing him sixth after his poor fifth in Florida and said, "I don't think I can honestly deny them. Hence, I am withdrawing as a candidate."
The total number of votes in the Democratic primary was four times that in the GOP contest, indicating many Republicans took advantage of the state law allowing voters to cast ballots in either primary.

Seek Annexing By City School Unit

Mrs. Harold Broughton and five other property owners who live in Pinewood Forest Subdivision appeared before the Pitt County Board of Education yesterday seeking withdrawal from the Pitt County administrative unit.
The group expressed a desire to be annexed into the Greenville School District and have already received approval from the Greenville City Board of Education.

Kennedy explained the Charger Club of Ayden-Grifton has been working on the field, located at the south end of the football field, in an effort to get the land in playing order for this baseball season.
He explained that a bulldozer had worked on the field four days, costing the Charger Club only $135 (for the driver and operating expenses) and that David Hardee of the Soil Conservation Service had worked on the drainage of the field, at no expense to the school.
Kennedy said two farm tractors had been donated to help prepare the area for playing. The Charger Club then spent $45 for 300 pounds of rye seed the area.

Mrs. Broughton explained that out of 33 land owners in the subdivision, 27 approved being annexed into the Greenville district. Four families opposed the proposal and two families remained neutral.

Mrs. Broughton said the people living in the area are affiliated with the Greenville area ... shop in Greenville ... attend church services in Greenville ... work in Greenville ... and that they have no ties in the Winterville area.

Report One Vacancy In Housing Units Here Last Month

All but one unit in the four housing developments operated by the Greenville Housing Authority were occupied in March, it was reported Monday night.
According to the occupancy report submitted by Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, director of tenant affairs, all 65 units in N. C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) were rented during the month and residents of the area paid an average of $37.45 in rent.

members in her office were busy conducting the annual unit inspections. Work has also begun on rent revisions as figured under the Brooke Amendment, she added.
Commissioners were reminded that the Day Care section of the new Moyewood Social Services Center is now open and the staff there has begun accepting applications. The section at the present time, can accommodate 38 persons, it was pointed out.

In N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), Mrs. Streeter reported, one vacancy in the 160 available units existed during the month and residents there paid an average of $42.78 in rent.
All 188 units in N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) were filled, the director noted, and rent averaged $43.93 for March. In N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), the 40 units were rented and average monthly rent was $41.21.
Mrs. Streeter said that staff

Architect Cameron Dudley of Dudley & Shoe reported that he is still waiting to receive final word on the contract drawings and specifications for the 78-unit Newtown housing project. Dudley said that the Greensboro office of Housing and Urban Development has the documents a word from HUD is overdue.

Pitt Board Agrees Help Ayden Extend Waterlines

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon approved a request from the Town of Ayden to help extend waterlines to an industrial site South of the town and just West of the N. C. 11 bypass.
Ayden town manager Don Russell told commissioners that a 10-inch water main needs to be extended some 7,400 feet to the site and projected costs of the work total $42,671.
Russell said only 3,100 feet ($16,478) of the line lie within the town limits and requested commissioners to fund the $26,193 required to extend the line beyond the municipal limits.
Commissioners gave their approval of the expenditure in light of their policy to aid in extending water and sewage facilities to manufacturing sites.

Joe Fowler, executive director of the Ayden Economic Council said the water line is needed to supply a U.S. Industries plant to be located there in the near future.
Fowler said U.S. Industries plan to construct a $250,000 building and equipment for the facility, he said, should cost another $250,000. When completed, the 30,000 square feet facility should employ about 250 persons.
The Pitt County Community Shelter Plan currently being developed by the state Civil Defense Agency.
Col. David W. Spivey district CD director said there are about 110 buildings in Pitt County that could provide protection against rafiaation in the event of nuclear attack.

of the buildings in the county that could qualify as shelters, Spivey pointed out, "45 to 48 are at East Carolina University and about the same number are in the rest of Greenville" with the others scattered throughout the rest of the county.
He said that generally, in the event of attack, most county residents would have to attempt to seek shelter in Greenville buildings.
Time and distance are limiting factors in allocating space, Spivey noted.
In other business (in a joint action with approval of the Greenville City Council) the board re-appointed Thomas W. Rivers Sid Dunn and Charlie Hardee as members of the Tar River Port Commission and named Mrs. Elibath Hart of Grifton to the Sheppard Memorial Library Board.

Active Prison Terms Given To 5 Convicted In School Bombing

Eight blacks, ranging in age from 16 to 23, were sentenced in Superior Court here yesterday after entering pleas of guilty to "bombing or aiding and abetting in the bombing on an unoccupied building."
All had been charged in connection with the September 8 bombing of the Ayden-Grifton High School. Several of the defendants had also been charged in connection with other bombings in the Ayden area that occurred during a period of racial unrest in the area that followed the shooting of a black man by a Highway Patrolman last August.

took a nol pros with leave in each of the remaining cases after the defendants entered guilty pleas in the school bombing case.
Defendants receiving active prison terms included: William Junior Thigpen, 23, 15 to 18 years jail; Jerry Edward Bizzel, 20, seven to nine years jail; Melvin Leon Barrett, 19, seven to nine years jail; Marvin Brown, 18, seven to nine years jail; and Michael Wendall Epps, 16, 10 years jail.

Defendants receiving suspended prison terms were: Henry Earl Bullock, 17, five years jail suspended on payment of costs and two years probation; Bill Bright, 18, five years jail suspended on payment of costs and probation for three years; Ricky Lee Dixon, 18, five years jail suspended on payment of costs and three years probation.

Three defendants tried earlier in connection with the series of bombings received active sentences.
Donald M. Smith, the first defendant to be convicted in connection with the high school bombing received a 40-year sentence. Last week, Curtis Thigpen, 20 and a juvenile faced Superior Court Action. Thigpen was sentenced to 15 to 18 years jail while the juvenile was sentenced to two years at a state training school.

One of the defendants,

Ricky Lee Dixon told Judge William Copeland after he was sentenced, "My mother always told me to make my bed up right and I thank you for giving me a chance to go back and make my bed right."
Judge Copeland told the court, "In my opinion most of these defendants were very much misguided by other people not here on trial unfortunately."

One other defendant arrested in connection with the bombings, Johnnie Barrow, remains to be tried. A warrant has been issued for another individual, Jasper Taylor, but has not been served.

Youthful Face Now Appreciated

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Re: That 25-year-old school teacher who wants to scream because she's often mistaken for a teenager. She will enjoy it when she can adopt an attitude more mature than her looks.

I was nicknamed Babyface in the 7th grade and I hated it. In college I was frequently asked what I wanted to be when I grew up. Now I am 32, and married to a physician, and am still asked if my "father" is home when a patient comes to the door to see my husband. [I simply smile and call "the doctor."]

My husband was asked by a waiter recently if his "daughter" was old enough to have a cocktail. And that was in an area where 18 was the legal age! What fun! We both have lots of laughs when things like this occur. It doesn't happen quite so often now, but when it does, it really makes my day.

DEAR BABYFACE: As time goes on, you'll find it happening less, and you'll be enjoying it more.

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago, my husband [whom I'll call John] was caught "in the act" by the other woman's husband. [The husband brought the facts to me.] I was hurt and emotionally torn to pieces, but I loved John, so I said, "Maybe it was my fault. Let's forget it, and start over." In the meanwhile, the other woman's husband blew town and no one has seen him since. Not even their kids.

Last week my best girl friend [married], and a male co-worker [also married], were found by my girl friend's husband in a warm embrace in a parked car. My girl friend netted a broken jaw and a divorce suit. Her co-worker now won't even look her way.

Abby, what's with men anyway? Are understanding, compassion and forgiveness qualities that only women possess?

Do you know one man who would be willing to sit down with an erring wife, discuss the problem, forgive her and suggest that they start over? If you know such a man, please nominate him for sainthood.

CONVERTING TO WOMEN'S LIB

DEAR CONVERTING: I don't happen to know his name, rank and serial number, but I'm sure there's at least one such candidate.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in support of our country's USOs. I am a 23-year-old working girl who has been active in the USO for a number of years. One of our problems is finding other girls to attend the dances and other activities, such as skating, buffets, decorating, skiing, etc. One of the big reasons is their parents' attitude toward the USO. They seem to have the idea that it is an unfit and indecent place for their daughters; yet these girls are allowed to visit the local discotheques, fraternity parties and so forth.

The activities of the USOs I have attended are always chaperoned. When our local USO has a dance, it is over by 11 p. m. so the girls aren't out all night. Also no alcoholic beverages are ever allowed in the club. The girls must be between 18 and 25 years old, and must have three names for references, one of which should be a clergyman. The majority of girls already belonging to the club are looking for some good, clean fun and this is the place to find it. If a girl doesn't meet the standards, she is asked to leave. As for the men these daughters will meet, they are the same ones who left home as sons and brothers.

Maybe this letter won't help much, but it is a way of asking these parents to come in and see for themselves before they condemn the USO because of stories that have been passed along thru the years when somebody needed something to talk about.

A JUNIOR VOLUNTEER

DEAR VOLUNTEER: Thanks for a most illuminating letter. And since you did not mention that the USO is not a government funded project, the next time we are called upon to give to UNITED CRUSADE [or that one-big-community gift], we'll remember that the USO depends on that donation.

DEAR ABBY: So, for the past 10 years you have been advising those who could not dance or sing to learn how to play an instrument!

Perhaps that accounts for the fact that most of the pop music of the past decade sounds as tho the musicians had no sense of meter, and couldn't carry a tune.

For the next 10 years, how about advising those who can't sing or dance to try snapping their fingers? Or better yet, to simply listen! What the world needs is more good listeners—not tone deaf musicians.

EAR-MUFFED IN BANGKOK

DEAR EAR-MUFFED: It's a comfort to know that it's the same in Kenosha as it is in Bangkok.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Use Only One Valise

They take only one suitcase each and her husband's is crowded with four or five pairs of tennis shoes. His other tennis clothes go into a special little bag that is checked on the plane. Their carryon luggage consists of a suit bag, coats, her purse, a flight bag and eight to 10 tennis racquets.

Who so many pairs of tennis shoes?

"Cement or some synthetics (used to surface tennis courts) will wear shoe soles off in four to five days," said Mrs. Richey.

But replacements are no problem. As a consultant to the B.F. Goodrich Footwear Co., her husband wears their Purcell brand so he can report on performance and suggest improvements.

Ideally, the temperature of hot water in the home should be between 135 degrees F. and 140 degrees or not higher than about 40 degrees above body temperature.

Expert Advises Women To Spend Time Removing Makeup

By PEACE MOFFAT

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Keep your face perfect so you can show it naked," says skin care authority Georgette Klinger, who would like to see women spend as much time taking off their makeup as they do putting it on.

Miss Klinger has been pampering skin for 30 years, and in the blue and white office of her Madison Avenue salon she was willing to point out some ways for women—and men—to achieve healthy complexions. A petite and graceful woman, whose unlined face is a testimony to her skills, she refused, however, to generalize about how each individual should take care of her skin. "What each one does—it should all be different," she stated.

"People don't know about taking care of their skins," she began, pointing out that the time to start serious skin care is "when the first blackhead arrives."

"There's a lot of pollution now, so many more people have skin allergies and clogged pores," she says. "Hair is more of a problem too, with all the hair sprays and setting lotions. Using hair spray is like putting varnish on the face."

Miss Klinger says she is against the "so-called medicated makeup. The base is so heavy it clogs pores and cake makeup does the same thing," she explains.

She urges women to stay out of the sun—"it's drying, discoloring and causes changes in pigmentation" and she maintains that women need different cleansers in the summer.

Miss Klinger recently expanded and redecorated her salon, devoting an entire floor to her male clients who, she says, are numerous. The reception area is plush—with wall to wall carpeting and walls that are either mirrored or covered with linen, but the treatment rooms, where her clients recline in white lounge chairs under blue and white coverlets, are sparse, spoolish and clinically bare.

Her facials are individualized, but one might include removal of makeup, a pore-cleaning mask, massage with cream and even a face steaming over a bowl of herbal tea.

Miss Klinger, herself Czechoslovakian, has recruited all her cosmetologists from Europe. "Actually they come to me," she says with a twinkle. She laments the fact that there is insufficient training for cosmetologists here. "Here they take a beauty course, but there's nothing about the skin—just the hair. So you have beauty parlor girls with heavy hands giving facials."

In Europe the skin is taken more seriously—with cosmetologists trained separately from hairdressers. Miss Klinger says here they must take a one-year course, pass an exam before a board consisting of several doctors and work as an assistant for one year. Cosmetologists who come to Miss Klinger's salon undergo at least six more months of training.

In this age of concern for the "natural," with skin potions being made from all kinds of berries and vegetables, Miss Klinger says, "Strawberries and cucumbers are good to eat but they don't belong on your face." She points out, however, that long before use of natural products was a fad, she was using ones such as honey masks, cod liver oil masks and avocado oils which she says have proven value.

Her staff includes a resident chemist and Miss Klinger says she would be the first one to send a client to a dermatologist if necessary. But she maintains that in most cases the skin is a cosmetic rather than a medical problem. She uses no preservatives to extend the shelf life of her products, and she refuses to sell them through any outlets outside her own salon. Nor does she advertise.

"You have to promise miracles when you advertise," she says. "and I don't believe in miracles—just good skin care. My pride is the grandmothers who look just as good as their granddaughters."

Traveling Couple Aided By Good Eating Habits

By JEANNE LESEM

UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) —Travelers who eat unwisely or too well can learn about good eating habits from a young Texas couple whose occupation keeps them away from home nine months a year.

In an interview here, Michelle Girard Richey said she and her professional tennis player husband, Cliff, stay well by choosing a balanced diet and simply prepared foods. They avoid rich sauces and fancy cooking in general, even when they're not on tennis tours of the United States and Europe.

"Cliff can't afford to get sick," said Mrs. Richey. "We eat a lot of protein—steak, chicken, eggs and cheese—and as many vegetables as we can. In Europe, I go to little grocery stores to buy fresh fruit—the kind you peel—and yogurt."

She said she does this to supplement a steady diet of restaurant meals. Mrs. Richey, whose flawless skin and glossy black hair attest to her good health, said they also take supplementary vitamins to make up for vitamin loss from overcooked vegetables served in many restaurants.

The Richeys were here for the New York Clean Air Tennis Classic. Proceeds were earmarked for several environmental groups.

Moderation is the message that emerged clearly from Mrs. Richey's comments. She said pancakes are among her husband's favorite foods, but he eats only three at a time, "not great stacks of them."

"The fanciest restaurants just don't turn us on any more," she said. "In the States, we stay about half the time in private homes."

She explained that such housing is arranged by tournament sponsors who sometimes put players with the same families each year.

"We look forward to seeing our hosts," said Mrs. Richey. "They appreciate home life because tennis life is unscheduled, spontaneous."

On the indoor circuit, which isn't interrupted by weather, a match can go on until one or two in the morning. When it does, the next day's schedule isn't posted until late at night. This results in unusual meal hours.

Mrs. Richey said her husband likes about a three-hour time lapse between a meal and a match, so they sometimes eat at 4 p.m. Not many restaurants serve dinner that early, but in private homes the Richeys sometimes have access to the kitchen to prepare a meal for themselves if they have to eat at an unusual time.

Erratic hours and meals on tour make them long for home cooking at home in San Angelo, Tex., but it doesn't send them on food binges.

"We get a craving for vegetables," Mrs. Richey said. "We've found kids eat a lot of junk stuff—soft drinks, french fries. We don't even keep them around our house because if they were there, we'd eat or drink them."

"At home, we shop daily and keep a lot of juices on hand—largely orange. We look for yogurt with the least amount of preservatives and stabilizers. We haven't bought bread in maybe two years now."

The bread they eat is homemade, by her mother-in-law.

Can't Carry Appliances
"It's so good, it's like eating ice cream and cake. We sometimes have bread with butter or honey for dessert."

Before her marriage in 1967, Mrs. Richey cooked during summers for her family, which includes five brothers and sisters. But she makes no special effort to do so during tennis tours, although they often can get a hotel room that has a small refrigerator.

She said she doesn't carry small electrical cooking appli-

Marketers Say Doing-It-Yourself May Be Easier

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures

The kit market is helping provide the momentum for the current upsurge in do-it-yourself projects, according to the New York Home Fashions League's panel of marketers who recently discussed "A new billion dollar market: the creative consumer."

Interior designer James May pointed out people had to discover their hands when they realized it might be easier to locate a heart surgeon than a plumber, or that one could have a party catered for 500 people but couldn't get three people to help clean up the mess.

As workmen in various fields become scarcer, new products are being evolved that may be handled easily by amateurs, he pointed out.

Carpet tile is one of the newest do-it-yourself packaged offerings. Installation of carpet has been an expensive item to many stores, and carpet tiles have been added to the stock because they are packed, easy to carry home and simple to install. Many tiles are adhesive backed.

In attending an international textile fair abroad, May discovered the idea had spread to Germany and even to Britain. Carpet tiles now are to be found in every kind of fiber from wool to polypropylene, and in shags, tufts, multi-colors, printed patterns and silk screen.

Another designer Charles Gans explained that new lightweight furniture resulting from our mobile society is on the boards with new concepts for instant sofas, chairs, room dividers, book cases, oversized furniture, lighting techniques, platform furniture and wall systems. A great deal of it provides time and labor saving features for do-it-yourselfers. He illustrated by showing a new lightweight mirror that may be taped to the wall.

Crewel queen Erica Wilson pointed out that what has turned out to be a $100 million crewel kit business had been relegated to hard-to-find basement areas just a few years ago. She was usually advised by the manufacturer "to make something very simple, so it will sell." It was only when people tried to find other techniques that she was able to include more complicated designs.

As the tall English woman explained, "many people think of the do-it-yourself movement as modern... but in a sense it is typically American."

After all, the early colonists felled trees, built their own houses, made the candles to light them, the quilts that kept the occupants warm, and they decorated it with their own spun, dyed and needleworked materials.

Advertising man Alvin Cheskin commented that in an age of increasing architectural conformity, cookie-cutter offices and sterile mass production the home indeed may be the only place left for self-expression.

Before Broadway She Spent Three Years As A Soldier

By REBECCA
MOREHOUSE

NEW YORK (WNS) — Israeli women are so liberated they serve in the army in war and peace, if Israel can be said to have peace. But do they make good soldiers?

"Yes," said Rivka Raz, a former Israeli army lieutenant now starring on Broadway. "women can make fantastic soldiers. I believe a woman can stand better in difficult moments than a man. Women can resist more pain and suffering than a man; birth is pretty difficult and painful. My husband has a toothache and the whole house goes mad."

Rivka (Hebrew for Rebecca) Raz can be beautifully seen and heard in the new musical from Israel, "To Live Another Summer, to Pass Another Winter," at the Helen Hayes Theater. The 36-member company is a gusher of energy as it pours fourth the history of Israel and the Jewish people in song and dance.

"Premier Golda Meir came recently to see the show and she asked, 'How do you do that? How do you have so much vitality? How can you do it eight times a week?' The answer is we love what we do and we put everything we have into it. This show was prepared especially for Broadway."

Sabra

Mrs. Raz is a sabra, meaning a native-born Israeli.

"I was born in Jerusalem but I live now in Tel Aviv. Jerusalem is the university city and architecturally it's the most beautiful in the world, breathtaking. It's like a Washington or a Boston; at 10 o'clock at night there is nothing to do. Tel Aviv is like a little New York — theaters, discotheques."

Since her first stage success was "My Fair Lady," she is known as the "Fair Lady" of Israel. She played leading roles as well in "Oliver!" and "The King and I" and has received three Harp of David Awards, a counterpart of Broadway's Tony Awards.

"I really think I was lucky.

My very first role was Eliza Doolittle in 'Fair Lady.' I was in a little revue when someone said I should audition for it. I said, 'Are you joking?' But I had studied dance and singing and I got the part, happy to say. Because we are a small country, I am now well known."

Her husband Moshe Raz is production stage manager of "To Live Another Summer." Their three-year-old son, who is with them here, was born in the United States.

Citizen

"It automatically makes him an American citizen and I think it's wonderful," she said. "After 'Fair Lady' I thought I had to go learn something, so I came to New York and I was studying voice and dance and acting, with Lee Strasberg, when my baby was born. My husband was here too, studying stage managing. New York was nicer then; it was one of the nicest times in my life."

She served three years in the army.

"I registered at 18 and that same week the Sinai War broke out. Two years in the army is compulsory but I gave another year. One of the jobs I had, I was head of the women's prison in the army. Girls get naughty too sometimes, mostly discipline problems. We had no serious problems because prostitutes and thieves would never be in the army."

"I'm no longer in the army. The minute I gave birth to a child they kicked me out. When you become a mother you have another role in life. But my husband is in the reserves and serves a month or more every year."

What is it like to live under a constant threat of war?

"Except for critical periods, as before the Sinai War and the Six-Day War, you don't even feel that something is going on," she said. "Sometimes you forget to read the newspapers. Life goes on, women go shopping, women gossip, everybody works. We are not at peace with the Arabs, something threatens us all the time, but we don't feel it every day and we hope all the time for the

Wedding Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. NICK DICKERSON — of Rt. 1, Grimesland, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Tuesday. They were honored at a buffet dinner Sunday at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Dickerson of Rt. 1, Grimesland. Their other children are Mrs. Johnny Moore of Garfield, N. J., Raymond Dickerson of Henderson, Mrs. Leroy Bird of Fayetteville, Mrs. John Williams of Newport News, Va., and Mrs. Jack Cherry of Orlando, Fla. The couple has 24 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Social customs are changing in Israel, she said.

"We are not as strict as we used to be, but we are still not so free, not out of control. We do not have the unbridled sex life there is in Sweden, but a young girl will live with a man to see if she wants to marry him and I believe in it though I didn't do it."

"I was from a very strict family. I had to get home at 10 o'clock and when I went into the army my father gave me such a speech. There is a generation gap in Israel, too. The conservatives in our parliament have a lot to say and I think it's a little unfortunate. They did not want us to have TV on Friday night and Saturday but we fought for it and we have it."

Mrs. Raz said "To Live Another Summer" may tour the country after its Broadway engagement. She has already seen some of the U.S., performing for Israel bonds and the United Jewish Appeal.

Her favorite American actress? "Bette Davis is my great ideal for many years. To me she has the most fantastic looking face."

COFFEE VANILLA CORDIAL

It's fun to make a spirited liqueur.

1 package (1 pound) dark brown sugar

1-3 cups granulated sugar

2-3 cups water

2-3 cup instant coffee powder

1 quart vodka

1 vanilla bean, split or 2 tablespoons pure vanilla extract

Into a saucepan turn the sugars and water. Bring to a rolling boil, stirring to dissolve sugars; boil rapidly without stirring for 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in coffee, using a wire whisk.

Cool. Pour into a jar or jug. Add vodka and vanilla. Mix thoroughly. Cover tightly and let stand at least 2 weeks before serving. Remove vanilla bean. Makes about 7½ cups.

Consumer Advocates Try To End Clothes Care Confusion

OTTAWA (AP) — Ever been puzzled over the best way to care for a new dress? Or tried to find the tag carefully tucked away somewhere because it gave instructions for cleaning 'hat new blouse or sweater?'

Most consumers probably have, especially since synthetic fibers have added a whole new range of products to the market.

The consumer affairs department is trying to end such confusion by promoting the voluntary use by clothing manufacturers of a system of care symbols printed or woven on a label securely fastened to the article. But it wants the consumer's support.

"Garment makers don't have to use this system," says a booklet, "Care Labeling for Textiles," produced by the department.

"But more and more will do so if consumers demand it. If you like the system, ask for it when you shop."

The symbols, worked out with the co-operation of industry and consumer organizations, tell the buyer the dos and don'ts of washing, bleaching, drying, ironing and dry cleaning.

"European housewives swear by a system like this," the department says.

But it offers a word of caution: "These symbols won't apply to every single textile article. And the system won't work unless consumers try to understand it and make it work."

The system is based on five basic symbols, each figure indicating one method of textile care. A stylized tub means washing; a triangle, bleaching; a square, drying; an iron, pressing; and a circle, dry cleaning.

They are printed in traffic-signal colors. A green circle, for instance, shows an article may be dry cleaned. In amber, it means dry cleaning is permissible but tumble drying should be at a low temperature. A red circle, scored by red criss crossed lines, of course means "do not dry clean."

The box symbol for drying may include a circle to show the article may be tumbled dry, a curved line for clothes-line drying, three vertical lines for drip drying or a horizontal line for drying on a flat surface.

The iron and tub symbols apply to the complete article, including trimming, buttons, zippers, belts and lining. But they relate only to color fastness and shrinkage or stretch when 'extile articles are cleaned as recommended, not to other aspects of wear.

A complete label might include an amber tub containing a hand, a red criss-crossed triangle with CL inside it, a green square with three vertical lines, a red criss crossed iron and a red criss-crossed circle.

This means the article is hand washable using lukewarm water. It should be hung soaking wet to drip dry. Do not use chlorine bleach or iron or dry clean the article.

Need Every Reasonable Means

There are certain to be those who take serious exception to the special "drunk patrol" force of 24 special officers who patrol Charlotte streets from early evening to early morning for the specific purpose of apprehending drunken drivers.

The undertaking is part of an experimental program which, if deemed successful, could lead to Federal funds being made available for similar units in other cities and towns throughout the state. There can be little doubt that such a special unit, supplementing normal police patrol activities, will lead to the detection and arrest of many more drivers suspected of being under the influence of alcohol than the regular police patrols normally would. And it is also a good bet that the idea of special "drunk patrol" will be as popular with some of the citizens of Charlotte as it is popular with the other segments of the Queen City population.

That's almost always the way when special emphasis is placed on apprehending violators of traffic laws. North Carolina has been the day when electronic speed detection devices were almost outlawed by the legislature on the heels of assertions such devices "took advantage" of speeding motorists. There have been times when the special "wolf pack" units used by the state highway patrol to saturate dangerous sections of highways have come under severe criticism.

Unmarked patrol cars have been the subject of controversy also because some people assert they put the traffic violator at a distinct disadvantage.

With North Carolina's traffic accident rate what it is today — and has been for years — every reasonable effort needs to be made to apprehend drunken drivers, speeders and other traffic violators, for their own good as well as for the protection of others who use the highways.

Hopefully the vast majority of the people of this state have come to the place they expect law enforcement agencies to use every reasonable means at their disposal to make the streets and highways safer.

If the Charlotte "drunk patrol" proves successful, the creation of similar units in other parts of the state should be welcomed and encouraged by citizens.

Sees A Return Of 32-To-One

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N.C.—A return of 32-to-1 makes a pretty good investment, especially when dividends of entertainment and education are thrown in.

That's how Norwood W. (Red) Pope sizes up the bond issue for a state zoological park on the May 6 ballot.

He said approval of the $2 million in bonds for

General Assembly for development funds, but settled for the bond route in light of a tight budget situation.

Fund-Raising Slated
Once the bond issue is passed, demonstrating state involvement, a fund-raising drive will be launched in the private sector. Based on a consultant's study, Pope is confident a minimum of $4 million can be raised from corporate sources, foundations, civic groups and individuals.

Already, he pointed out, Randolph County interests have donated more than 1,000 acres valued in excess of $1 million and businesses have contributed temporary facilities worth more than $15,000 at the site.

"When the zoological park opens its gates in the summer of 1975, the citizens of North Carolina will step into a facility valued at more than $7 million for which he will be obligated to pay exactly 40 cents in taxes to retire the bonds," he predicted.

By the third year of operation, it's estimated a minimum of 1,000,000 persons per year will be coming to the park. Twenty per cent of them will be out-of-state visitors.

Widespread Economic Impact

The zoo's economic impact won't be limited to at-site visitors. It will spread beyond to business and service industries, including agriculture through new markets for farm products (animals eat lots of hay, peanuts and sweet potatoes). It will create jobs, boosting personal income. It will pour receipts from sales and income taxes into state coffers.

The Research Triangle Institute made a detailed study of projected financial returns from the establishment of a state zoological park. In summary, it said that for the period to 1981, total business income directly and indirectly attributable to the zoo could be expected to reach almost $42 million.

Total cumulative personal income generated over the same period was estimated at approximately $19½ million. A total cumulative state tax revenue for the same years was estimated at nearly $3 million.

Pope is convinced the $64½ million total is conservative. He sees the zoo, which would be the only rural zoo in America and the largest of its type in the world, as an economic stimulant with benefits that can only be guessed at.

A "Yes" vote on the zoo bonds can be the best investment a Tar Heel taxpayer ever made, he concluded.

First Flight Claim

By NEALE McMILLAN
WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Almost 70 years after Orville and Wilbur Wright made their epic flight at Kitty Hawk, N.C., people here are still claiming that the first man to fly an airplane was a New Zealander named Richard Pearse—and that he beat the Wright brothers by more than a year.

Their evidence is inconclusive, and there seems no prospect of anyone producing irrefutable proof now to support the claim.

But stories from old-timers and Pearse's indisputable brilliance as an aviator still arouse some hopes that he might have been the first man in the world to pilot a heavier-than-air machine.

Pearse's latest champion is the executive director of Auckland's Museum of Transport and Technology, R. J. Richardson, who intends building a memorial pavilion to house the pioneer's remaining aeronautical exhibits.

Richard Pearse was labeled "Mad Pearse" by his turn-of-the-century neighbors at Waitohu Valley, near Timaru, because of his fascination with flying and his study of aeronautics as he did the ploughing on his parents' farm.

Sometime between 1900 and 1904 he designed and built a high-wing monoplane of steel and bamboo, with aileron and elevator controls, and powered by his own four-cylinder engine.

It had a wingspread of 700 square feet and weighed 700 pounds.

Burt Reynolds' Picture

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — I am constantly asked by lecture audiences, "Is there anything too sacred for you to make fun of?" Up until this month I have been able to honestly say, "No, there isn't."

But that was before Cosmopolitan magazine ran a nude pull-out photograph of actor Burt Reynolds. I must admit that I can see no humor in this at all, and I can only express a sense of outrage against Helen Gurley Brown, the editor, and Mr. Reynolds who conspired in the dastardly act. I have always contended the male body is the most beautiful thing that ever walked on earth. The Bible tells us that God first created woman, but since it was the first human being He ever worked on, He obviously made some mistakes. For one thing there were too many curves to it and it lacked symmetry. So he went back to his drawing board and took all the bumps out.

What was left was a beautifully straight proportioned body from head to toe, which everyone who saw it called it a "work of art." God was so pleased with His creation that He decided to call it "man." Since time immemorial, the male body has been glorified and worshiped in every society. It has been revered in primitive cultures as well as our most civilized countries. While our mores have permitted the exploitation of the female body in paintings and photographs, the male body, up until the Cosmopolitan pull-out, was considered too sacred to show in public.

ART BUCHWALD

Now that Mr. Reynolds has posed in the nude, it's a whole new ball game. The civil libertarians and the Women's Lib bleeding hearts may ask, "What is wrong with displaying a nude male in a national magazine as long as it is done with taste and discretion?" The answer to this question is that by cashing in on the public's appetite for sensationalism, we are making the male nothing more than a sex object to be leered at and ogled by frenzied women. We are appealing to the most purrrent interests of a large (Continued on page A-6)

Other Editors Say Need For Change

(Wilson Times)

The walkout of four union leaders, as members of the Wage Board, is another example of the need to curb the growing power of the labor unions.

No one is asking that any fundamental rights be denied, the request is for equal rights to all, in other words for a man to be able to join or not join a union. The National Right to Work Committee is calling for early congressional hearings on labor legislation that would eliminate compulsory unionism.

The legislation, H.R. 11827, a bill introduced recently, would amend the National Labor Relations Act and the Railroad Labor Act by deleting the provisions authorizing compulsory unionism.

The public is fed up with the so-called union leaders who are fighting a political battle with the public being the ones to suffer. The public wants measures taken to curb the rising cost of living and this public is told that meats will decline in price and the cost of living increases will be investigated and measures taken to correct any inequities found to exist.

There is the need for hearings and hearings designed to come up with real labor reform, rather than patchwork solutions which only add to excessive union political and economic power.

Compulsory union membership should be eliminated, that is if this nation returns to a healthy economy. Excessive power in the hands of anyone or group is a key factor in bringing this nation to the brink of economic disaster.

This is an appropriate time to make changes for the need has never been more clearly demonstrated.

Busing Plan In Rough Waters

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The failure of House conservatives, particularly Southerners of both parties, to get behind President Nixon's proposed moratorium on school busing is deeply worrying Administration strategists. Instead of the united conservative support the White House had bargained for, such key House Southerners as Democratic Rep. Joe Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana and Republican Rep. Fletcher Thompson of Georgia are bitterly complaining that Mr. Nixon's anti-busing program is too little and too late—a "Yankee relief measure," as Waggoner calls it.

A just-completed White House survey of pending desegregation cases, however, shows that the South would benefit more than any other geographic area if the President's proposed moratorium, banning new court-ordered busing, became law.

Out of 50 such cases, about 34 directly affect Southern school districts, including all but one of the 11 Southern states.

Presidential aides trying to build political backing for Mr. Nixon's moratorium are now emphasizing this point: that although Southern school districts where court-ordered busing is now taking place will get no relief, these 34 new districts may become targets of court-order busing soon if the moratorium fails.

Even if the Administration can make that argument stick, however, the President's moratorium is far from secure. For example, many Congressmen from South and North are rushing to add their names to the petition to discharge the proposed anti-busing Constitutional amendment, now buried in the House Judiciary Committee.

But even if the discharge petition eventually attracts the required 218 names, forcing the issue to the floor of the House, a Constitutional amendment to ban school busing for racial balance could not be ratified until long after the November election, if ever. What that means is that many Congressmen opposed to court-ordered busing see greater political gain in backing a pie-in-the-sky Constitutional approach than in the more modest moratorium.

Rogers and Mao

Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's top foreign policy adviser, gave an emphatic explanation when Congressmen and Senators demanded to know why Secretary of State William P. Rogers was excluded from the President's session with Mao Tse-tung, China's top political boss.

Kissinger, who accompanied Mr. Nixon alone to the meeting with Mao, stated that it had been set up on the spur of the moment as a "ceremonial" handshake between Chairman Mao and Mr. Nixon.

A business session, Kissinger went on to say, was to be held later, with Rogers definitely present.

However, Kissinger said, the first meeting was suddenly transformed from a mere handshake into a business meeting that lasted one hour. That concluded the working session with Chairman Mao, obviating any second meeting.

Despite Kissinger's efforts to build up Rogers at his informal sessions with the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees on Tuesday, the Congressmen were not persuaded. The conviction that Rogers is far behind Kissinger was strongly buttressed two days later when the White House announced that Mr. Nixon was sending Kissinger, not Rogers, to make peace with the Japanese, still reeling from the President's China trip.

Strength For Today

LET THE TIDE DO IT
Many years ago when the Hell Gate Bridge was being built over the East River in New York engineers discovered the hulk of a derelict ship sunk deep in the mud just where one of the piers of the bridge was to be located. Try as they would, they could not dislodge the hulk, and apparently all the tugging in the world was never going to raise it from the bottom.

At last one of the engineers had a bright idea. He took an old flat boat and when the tide was low fastened it to the sunken ship. Then he waited for the tide to rise. What tug boats could not do the great energy of the sea did with ease. When the tide swept in, the derelict was loosened from the bottom of the river, freed from the mud in which it had been imbedded for generations. There is a spiritual truth here which must be apparent to us all. We have sins and weaknesses in our lives at which we have been tugging for years in an attempt to get rid of them. The message not only of the incident related above but the whole revealed Word of God is that if we will let the tidal energy of the divine sweep into our lives it will raise us out of our souls the derelicts that have been imbedded there. We fight a losing fight against sin when we try with our own efforts alone to dislodge it. It is only when we give our lives into the hands of God that He does for us what we cannot do for ourselves. — by Earl Douglass

Movers Try To Solve Disputes

By ELMER ROESSNER

With the spring moving season opening, a unique New York organization enters its sixth year. It is an organization of 300 moving companies that maintains an Office of Impartial Chairman to adjust disputes between movers and the moved.

It does maintain an impartiality; Ralph Nader has recommended it as "a possible prototype" for the moving industry to establish standards of arbitration in disputes between consumers and movers.

Moving and storage is a big business. Nearly 40 million, or one out of every five families, move each year. Costs have been going up and today the industry grosses $3 billion a year.

With all those moves, there are bound to be disputes. Rows between movers and the moved have become a standard gag of humorists. People complain that moving men do not come on time, that furniture and dishes are broken, and that prices have a way of escalating. But all these complaints can be appealed to the Office of Impartial Chairman if the moving company is a member. And if it is, it is bound by the decision. The OIC also polices a Code of Fair Trade Practices and conducts a public information bureau for customers in the five New York City boroughs and three adjoining counties. The impartial chairman is James P. Harley, who conducts hearings when customers cannot resolve disputes with moving firms. Some of the larger national companies maintain their own complaint and adjustment offices and some have won considerable consumer loyalty by their adjustments. However, the OIC decisions are compulsory; members have agreed to that in advance.

Last year the OIC handled 168 complaints out of a total of 450,000 moves. Only 10 per cent of the complaints involved loss or damage.

Here are some typical cases:

+ A Mrs. Palmrose was to be moved on June 24, 1971, and then was told that the company couldn't move her until July 9. She complained to the OIC that her lease expired June 30. Harley's office got in touch with the mover and Mrs. Palmrose was moved June 30.

+ A Mrs. Frank was quoted a price of $30 an hour for one van and four men. Six weeks later she was told the price would be $37.50 an hour. She complained. The OIC reported back that the new price was due to a wage increase and recommended that the mover stick to the quoted price. He did.

+ Mrs. Judy Lutz complained that she was overcharged on a move. The OIC ordered the movers to reweigh their trucks; they did and returned $144 to Mrs. Lutz.

+ Mrs. Bertha Turpin suffered damage to a mirror, a triple mirror and a desk. The moving company agreed to have the triple mirror and desk repaired, but disclaimed responsibility for the single mirror. However, it did not show up for the hearing and Mrs. Turpin was awarded a default judgment of $75.

Most of the complaints, according to Harley, result from lack of information about how to select a mover, such as hiring a local mover for a long-distance job. The local mover must then turn over part of the work to another mover, leaving a doubt as to which is responsible if anything goes wrong. The OIC information bureau attempts to avoid this.

Movers have organized in other cities, notably St. Louis, Cincinnati and Los Angeles, but none of the organizations are known to maintain an impartial and final arbitrator.

(Continued From Page A-4) segment of the female population, which has always treated men as second-class citizens. By denigrating the male body we are just adding to the age-old problem of lust, which men have been victims of for centuries.

But probably worse than all this is that now the barriers have been broken, no one knows where it will end. The American female appetite has been whetted by Cosmopolitan. It is not inconceivable that before long women will demand nude photographs not only of their favorite actors, but also their politicians. Richard Nixon the nude? Henry Kissinger in the nude? George Wallace in the nude? Mayor Richard Daley in the nude? You say it's not possible. I say everything is possible if there's money in it.

I can even conceive of the day when they will be running nude photographs of columnists to go with their columns. Joe Alsop in the nude? Bill Buckley in the nude?

You can laugh now, but when it happens, remember you heard it here first.

Spiro Agnew has said many times that this is a permissive society, and nothing dramatizes this more than seeing Burt Reynolds in the buff. The question that every woman must ask herself is, "Would you want your brother to pose for Cosmopolitan magazine?"

I apologize for being serious today, but there are times when something just doesn't lend itself to humor. The matter of male nudity cannot be treated frivolously, particularly when so many of us have so much to lose.

Coffee trees begin to yield fruit when three years old and bear for about 20 years.

Soundings taken by the Senator's money men indicated a shortfall of about that much between pledges on hand and actual delivery of cash.

The reason: some big contributors don't want their names and donations spread on the public record. The demand for secrecy has various explanations. Some contributors don't want the Nixon administration to know they're fattening a Democratic campaign kitty. Others don't want their names known.

As of today, however, Muskie men say the decision to go public, forced on Muskie by Sen. George McGovern, has cost them about a quarter of a million dollars—far less than first estimates but no small sum in a campaign compelled to put most of its workers on payroll status after the Florida primary. These Muskie "volunteers" will go back on the payroll, according to present plans, by April 10.

A footnote: Starting April 7, all contributors to any Federal election campaign must make full disclosure of all contributions over $100 under the new campaign disclosure law. The publicity of these disclosures will vastly complicate money-raising for all Presidential candidates, including Richard M. Nixon.

moving his body in conjunction with the application of an elevator mounted on the trailing edge of the wing.

Small flaps on the wingtips enabled the plane to be banked.

There was no rudder, although the front wheel of the undercarriage could be steered.

With his ailerons, which he patented in July 1907, Pearse was undoubtedly ahead of the Wright brothers. But did he actually get airborne before their flight on Dec. 17, 1903?

No records are able to show with any certainty that he flew any distance before March 31, 1904.

He made several flights that year, and on two occasions traveled 150 yards at a height sufficient to clear a 12-foot hedge.

Some believe he flew as early as 1902. But if Pearse deserves recognition for actually accomplishing this, he has only himself to blame for not receiving it.

There would be no mystery at all if he had confided in his contemporaries, left detailed records of his progress, or been a less secretive man about his activities.

Charitable Ass'n Plays Its Part In Centennial

FARMVILLE—The participation of the H. B. Sugg School Charitable Association in the Farmville Centennial activities beginning next Saturday will be the continuance of years of service to H. B. Sugg School and this town.

All officers and members of all chapters of this national organization are asked to return to Farmville Saturday to take part, according to National Chairman Cleveland Vines of Washington, D. C. The Association will sponsor a float in the Saturday afternoon Centennial parade and Joe Burney of the Washington, D. C. chapter has worked with Congressman Walter B. Jones in securing military jets for a flyover of Farmville just before the parade and for two helicopters to be displayed on Youth Day next Tuesday.

Chartered in 1960 as the H. B. Sugg School Alumni Association, the organization changed its name last year when H. B. Sugg High School was made an elementary school as part of the consolidation of the Farmville schools. There are chapters in New York; Washington, D. C.; Connecticut; Baltimore, Md.; and Farmville. National officers are Mrs. Patricia Hagen of Greenville, president; James W. Taylor of Baltimore, Md., vice president; Cleveland Vines of Washington, D. C., national chairman; Miss Bettie McKenzie of Washington, D. C., secretary; Joseph Maye of Baltimore, Md., recording secretary; Rudy Cobb of Farmville, treasurer, and Willie E. Whitfield of Baltimore, Md., social chairman. The national meeting will be held this year in Farmville Labor Day weekend.

Some past activities of the Association include the donation of a public address system for the school, a piano, materials for a concession stand for the football field, funds to the school yearbook, funds to various charitable organizations; participation in home coming events at the school and presentation of a farewell program at the closing of school last year.

The rhododendron is the official flower of the state of Washington.

Parking Problems Before Farmville Bd.

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE—Parking problems were on the agenda of the Farmville Board of Commissioners last night. An ordinance to provide no parking on the south side of Pine Street enacted last month was changed last night. The new situation is no parking on the north side from Walnut to Contentnea Streets and no parking from the west side of the alley behind the stores on the west side of Main Street to John Pollard's house on the east side of Main. The loading zone beside S&H Cleaners was left intact.

Harold Allred, manager of a store on East Wilson Street appeared asking that the loading zone on that street be made a 15-minute parking area, that police be asked to enforce the two-hour parking laws, and that an area at the end of an alley behind the stores on the south side of Wilson Street be designated no parking, so cars can have access to about 12 parking spaces behind the stores. The commissioners promised to begin again a program to encourage store employees to find off-street parking so street spaces may be left for shoppers.

Bennie Joyner, who has appeared several times in the last few months, asked what action has been taken toward the paving of Barrett Street. He was told that this street is next on the paving project list and that negotiations with the Marilyn Jones heirs would be undertaken the next day to buy 180 feet of land needed for a right of way for this project.

The purchasing of land for additional town cemetery space was discussed, but no action was taken.

Celebration To Begin

FARMVILLE — Tomorrow is the first day of the Farmville Centennial celebration and everyone is invited to enter various contests.

According to Bob Smith, who is in charge of special events along with Jack Connell, the contests are scheduled as follows: 3:30 to 4 p.m. — watermelon eating; 4 to 4:30 — egg throwing; 4:30 to 5 — soft drink chugging; and 5:15 to 5:45 — hog calling, with the winner receiving a pig.

The C&A Pickers will entertain from 5 to 6 p.m. and another band will be up town all day. There will be constant basketball shooting competition in preparation for the big "shootoff" Friday afternoon.

It will be a "dressup" day, of course, and there are many window displays of old and historically significant items to be seen around town. The stores are staging "old fashioned bargain days" Thursday and Friday, also.

Brushes, Inc.; and National Boat Works, Inc.

Framed certificates were presented to the following firms for their contribution: U.S. Social Security; N.C. Department of Motor Vehicles; N.C. State Highway Commission; Pitt County Social Service; Roses Store; U.S. Internal Revenue; East Carolina Sheltered Workshop; Moore's Super Stores; and Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization Control.

In accepting the post of president, Whichard expressed his appreciation to outgoing officers and asked the board of directors for their continued efforts and cooperation in behalf of the United Fund for the coming year.

"For the past three years we have exceeded our goal," Whichard said. "We must now turn to the future for what we must accomplish in the year to come."

Outgoing president W.C. Glidewell Jr. presented campaign chairman Ed N. Warren with a silver cigarette box for his work in the past campaign.

The luncheon yesterday, held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, was sponsored by Carolina Leaf Tobacco Company, The Daily Reflector, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., and Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

The goal for the 1971-72 was $141,299.04. A total of $150,765.19 was pledged to the campaign.

Whichard, co-publisher of The Daily Reflector, is past president of the Greenville Lion's Club and is a member of the Greenville Redevelopment Commission.

A graduate of Greenville High School and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Whichard served in the U.S. Army for 33 months and separated with the rank of first lieutenant.

He is a member of Memorial Baptist Church where he serves in the Board of Deacons and has previously held the position of chairman of the board.

Whichard is married to the former Jane Woodard of Raleigh and they have two children, John and Elizabeth.

Town Administrator Carl Beaman explained that voltage reduction in the town's electrical system may be necessary this summer at certain times. He said J.A. "Bud" Wooten, Water and Light Department head, says the "brownout" will not be enough to hurt motors, etc. and will be done on different circuits only when absolutely necessary. The Commissioners went on record as approving the need lighting and that is where we need help from the county board."

Kennedy was told the board will take into consideration his request when the budget for the coming fiscal year is prepared.

Obituaries

Clark

Mr. George Gordon Clark, 50, died Tuesday in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Alvin Davis, assisted by the Rev. Christian White. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Clark spent most of his life in Greenville and was a resident of 1402 Polk Avenue here. A graduate of Greenville High School and a World War II veteran, he was manager of the Handy Dandy Store on N. Green Street and was a member of Trinity Free Will Baptist Church and the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Bobbie Herring Clark, a son, Gordon Clark and two daughters, Terri and Beckie Clark, all of the home; his mother, Mrs. George A. Clark of Greenville; and three brothers, E. L. and Joe Clark, both of Greenville, and Bobby Clark of Burlington.

Barrett

Mr. William Mayhue Barrett of 410 North Street in Kinston died Sunday in Lenoir Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 1:30 p.m. at St. Mark's Baptist Church in New Bern by the pastor. Burial will follow in the church cemetery.

Born in Craven County, he was the son of the late John and Sallie Farnville Barrett. His survivors include his wife, Mrs. Viola C. Barrett of New Bern; two brothers, Horace Barrett of Greenville and Orlando Barrett of New Bern; four sisters, Mrs. Virginia Mosley of Kinston, Mrs. Frances Bryant and Mrs. Mary Magdalene Collins of New Bern, and Mrs. Marie Dawson of Fort Barnwell.

The body will be taken from the Phillips Brothers Mortuary here to the Lane Funeral Home in Kinston and visitation will be Thursday from 8 to 9 p.m. there.

Reese

Mrs. Alma Reese died Tuesday afternoon at her home at 1011 W. Fourth Street here after a lingering illness. She was the wife of Henry Reese. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Planagan and Parker Funeral Home here.

Wilks

Mr. Roy Lee Wilks of 1911 Kennedy Circle died at his home early today. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Pedestrian Dies Of Car Injuries

A West Virginia man, James Penley, 50, was killed last night when struck by a car about five miles South of Greenville on N.C.43.

Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey reported Penley suffered multiple injuries in the 8:50 mishap.

Investigating Highway

discussed the legalities of asking for a bond issue to serve outlying areas.

McDavid reported that the Hartsfield Company that drilled a well which has never cleared enough for the town to accept it is now drilling a test well to find which stratum is causing the trouble.

The Commissioners designated the area behind the National Guard Armory as the what the instructional program in his school is all about," Tripp told the board.

In addition to studying the curriculum areas of the school, Moore said the principal must also work in the area of human relations. He needs to visit with the parents of the children in his school on an informal basis and build a better relationship between the school, community and home.

Time is also needed to handle such routine matters as registering new students, working on school policy handbooks, checking cumulative records, routing the buses and checking school supplies.

Moore said meetings with personnel for the coming school year, including teachers, lunchroom workers, custodial workers and other workers, is needed.

Board member Richard Worsley said he would like to see the principals employed on a 12-month basis but the necessary money was not available at this time.

Superintendent Arthur Alford reminded the board members that the Pitt County NCAE banquet will be held April 18 at North Pitt High School.

A meeting to discuss the budget for 1972-73 has been set for April 25.

Until Friday

Prospective voters in Pitt County have until Friday to register to vote in the May 6 primary election.

Eligible persons may register to vote by visiting the Board of Elections' office on the third floor of the Pitt County Court House through April 7.

The board's office is opened each day.

Persons registering after the April 7 deadline will not be eligible to cast ballots in the May primary, although they will be eligible to vote in the November general election.

Arrest Two On Drug Charges

Greenville police last night arrested two men on drug-law violation charges following a raid on a Chestnut Street home.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, officers charged Bennet North Cole, 24 and George Dennis Odgen, 21, with possession of syringes and needles and with possessing marijuana.

The two were charged following an 11:15 p.m. raid on their 1114B Chestnut St. residence.

Both men were placed under $900 bond for their appearance in District Court.

One Injured In Auto Collision

One person was injured and an estimated $1,475 property damage caused when two vehicles collided at the intersection of Tenth and Clark Streets about 6:20 p.m. yesterday.

Police identified drivers of the cars involved as Mrs. Amalia Tano Manning, 305 Crestline Blvd. and Charlie Lester Artis, 43, of 505 W. Fifth Street.

Damage to the Manning auto was set at $925 while damage to the Artis car was estimated at $550.

Mrs. Manning was reported injured in the collision.

Artis was charged by police with failing to yield the right of way at the intersection.

Owners Say No To Player Move

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Terming the demand for a 17 per cent hike in pension benefits "totally unreasonable," baseball's 24 major league teams posted "No Game Today" signs at their ballparks and tossed the ball back to their striking players on what was to have been opening day of the 1972 season.

After an emergency five-hour meeting at which all of the clubs were represented, John Gaherin, negotiator for the owners, reported that the teams had reaffirmed the position of their Player Relations Committee, which had earlier turned down the players' proposal to end the strike.

"There was no sentiment to accept the players' proposal," said Gaherin, looking grim and worn. "The whole matter of a 17 per cent raise in pension benefits is vitally unreasonable, even in the light of the players' cost of living argument, which is not applicable in pension negotiations."

The players had offered to return to work on Monday, accepting the owners' original $490,000 boost for their health care package provided they could use the surplus in their $45 million fund for pension improvements. That proposal was rejected as "an imprudent approach" by the Player Relations Committee and that rejection was unanimously endorsed by the 24 clubs in Tuesday night's meeting.

"We are calling on the players association in the interest of the public and the game of baseball to have the players rejoin their clubs so that the season may commence as soon as practicable," said Gaherin.

"It would certainly be an advantage to all concerned to get the season started," said Gaherin. "There's no reason why this matter can't be dealt with that way."

Gaherin said he would attempt to resume negotiations with Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, today. "I'll call him in the morning, if I can find him," Gaherin said.

Miller was in Cincinnati Tuesday night to meet with Reds players. Earlier Tuesday, the Cincinnati club officially postponed today's game against Houston which was to open the 1972 season.

Gaherin said he had no new proposal to bring to the players.

"We will wait until we hear something reasonable within the realm of possibility," the owners' representative said. "There is nothing requiring that you make proposals," Gaherin said. "We'll wait and listen for one."

Gaherin indicated that the owners might accept some increase in pension benefits, but that the 17 per cent demanded by the players was too high. "That's not the kind of thing you negotiate in a news conference," he said.

Gaherin said the strike would continue "until we get a satisfactory settlement or the players agree to play."

History Points To Longshot In Masters

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The signpost of recent history—if that can be accepted as a guide—points to a mild longshot as the winner of the Masters Golf Tournament.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player, Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer, Tony Jacklin, Those are the names that leap to mind when the favorite's role in this storied old championship is mentioned.

But four of the last five winners have come from the ranks.

All have had a variety of things in common. All four—Gay Brewer, Bob Goalby, George Archer and Charles Coody—have been solidly established competitors, toughened and tested in the grinding demands of the American pro tour. All were mild longshots. And, prior to their Masters triumph, none had ever before won a major championship.

If that holds true again, then history would indicate that players such as Tom Weiskopf, Bert Yancey, Bob Murphy, Australian Bruce Crampton, Tommy Aaron, Frank Beard or Dave Hill might be logical candidates to shrug into famous green jackets that goes to the winner of this classic.

They fit the category. All are solid, long-established professional competitors. None has won a major title, though all are proved winners on the pro tour.

Weiskopf, tall, talented and newly possessed of a steadying maturity, may be the No. 1 man in the group.

"I think I've finally grown up a little," the handsome Weiskopf said earlier this year when he won the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic. He pulled down $52,000 in that triumph, the richest event on the tour this year and his third title in less than two years.

The hard-hitting 29-year-old Long has been noted as the man with one of the finest swings on the tour. But a towering temper had delayed his debut as a full-fledged star.

"I think a little maturity has helped," he said.

He also has a history of playing the Augusta National Course, site of the 72-hole tournament that begins Thursday, extremely well. He's finished as high as second, was sixth a couple of years ago and shares with Palmer and Nicklaus the record for consecutive sub-par rounds here, seven.

Yancey, the six-time tour winner, admits to an obsession with this tournament. He has a mock-up layout of the course in his home and dutifully makes the changes on his model as changes are made on the course.

He, too, plays the course extremely well. In the last five years he has finished third twice and fourth once, the latter just two strokes off the winning pace.

Murphy and Crampton are non-winners this season. Crampton, a 10-time tour winner now in his 16th year on the American circuit, has finished seventh or better six times this season.

"I could have won any of them, but something always got in the way," the pleasant, curly-haired guy said.

It's been much the same story with the red-headed Murphy, a former national amateur champ and a three-time winner. In a string of nine tournaments earlier this year he finished ninth or better seven times and could have won six of them. A three-putt green on the first extra hole cost him a playoff against Grier Jones for the Hawaiian Open title.

"I'm hitting the ball so good you can't believe it," the portly Murphy said. "But I'm putting terrible. It's hard to believe I'm finishing that good with all the three-putts I've been having."

Between them, Beard and Hill have done just about everything that can be done—without winning a major title.

Beard, winner of 10 titles, is a former leading money winner, former player of the year and is closing in on $1 million in earnings. The tempestuous, out-spoken Hill, a sometimes tour bad-boy, has won seven times, finished second in the 1970 United States Open and in 1969 won the prestigious Vardon Trophy for the best stroke average on the tour. Neither has played particularly well this season, though Hill lost in a playoff for the Los Angeles Open title, the first event on the schedule.

"Besides," Dave said with that crooked grin of his, "Augusta ain't ready for ol' Davy yet."

McAdoo: 'Draft Me'

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina basketball star Robert McAdoo has applied to the National Basketball Association to be included in its player draft next Monday as a hardship case, television station WTVD reported Tuesday.

McAdoo who is from Greensboro, came to UNC last fall as a junior college transfer. He led the team in scoring last season and has one more year of eligibility left. However, there has been speculation for some time that he likely would turn pro before next season.

Don Shea, sports director for WTVD, said McAdoo signed the hardship application last Thursday with his mother and North Carolina's Coach Dean Smith present.

Smith, who was reached by Shea in New Haven Conn., said he had encouraged McAdoo to sign the hardship application and predicted the application would be approved.

"I encouraged him to do this because it's a tremendous opportunity for him and he can still graduate from college by completing two summer sessions. Let me say I do want him to get a big bonus for signing," Smith said.

Shea said Smith told him that Jack McCloskey, former Wake Forest University coach who was appointed Monday coach of the Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA, had called him Tuesday and said he was interested in signing McAdoo.

McAdoo led the talented Tar Heels during the season which they wound up ranked No. 2 in the country and in the NCAA tourney in which they finished third.

Rose Back On Field

Rose High School's Rampants, after a two-week layoff, resume action Thursday, playing a make-up game with Bertie High School.

The Rampants, carrying a 4-0 record, have not played since March 20. The game, set for Guy Smith Stadium will begin at 4 p.m.

Friday, the Rampants close out their pre-conference play, traveling to meet the Tarboro Vikings.

The Rampants open Division II play on Tuesday playing host to Rocky Mount.

Ladies Loop Meeting Set

A meeting will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. for all people interested in a ladies softball league.

The meeting will be held in the Elm Street Gymnasium. All groups interested in fielding a team in the league are asked to have a team representative at the meeting.

Miller Says He's Behind West Outburst

CINCINNATI (AP) — Marvin Miller, executive director of the striking Major League Baseball Players Association left for Baltimore today after branding Cincinnati Red General Manager Bob Howsam "a liar."

Howsam had charged earlier in the day that without Miller there would be no players' strike and that baseball would be better off without him.

"Mr. Howsam is a liar," said Miller. "I appreciate the compliment, but it isn't true. I could go to Timbuctoo and it wouldn't make any difference. He assumes this is a one-man organization."

"But these are not the same players as there were in the game 20 years ago. Howsam and some of the other owners and general managers are living as it was 20 years ago. The players today are more concerned, more sophisticated, more educated. They are aware how much money there is in this game, despite the owners' cry of poverty."

"This is ridiculous and absurd. Fortunately not all of management is this way."

They don't call Jerry West "Mr. Clutch" for nothing.

West was held scoreless in the first half Tuesday night—and the Chicago Bulls took a 50-46 halftime lead over the Lakers.

West erupted for 23 points in the second half—and Los Angeles came on to beat the Bulls 108-97 and sweep their National Basketball Association Western Conference semifinal playoff series, four games to none.

The Lakers now advance to the Western Conference finals, where they'll meet the winner of the Golden State-Milwaukee semifinal.

Milwaukee took a 3-1 lead in that series by beating the Warriors 106-99 Tuesday night. The Bucks will try to wrap it up at home Thursday night.

In Eastern Conference semifinal series, Baltimore took a 2-1 lead by edging the New York Knicks 104-103 behind Archie Clark's 35 points, while Pete Maravich tossed in 36 points to power Atlanta past Boston 112-110, tying that series 2-2.

West did not score any points in the first half, but did commit three personal fouls. So Coach Bill Sharman decided to sit his star backcourtman down after 14 minutes of first half action.

"We had some words, Jerry never wants to leave a game," Sharman later explained. "But he had three personals and I didn't want him stuck with four or five in the last half, when the going could have been rougher than it was."

West's first basket came at 7:40 of the third quarter and put the Lakers ahead 60-59. The Lakers led 77-75 after three periods, then outscored Chicago 31-22 in the fourth quarter. West had six of his baskets in that final period.

West's backcourt mate, Gail Goodrich, led all scorers with 27 points and Jim McMillian equalled West's 23 points for the Lakers. Center Cliff Ray topped Chicago with 20 points and 17 rebounds.

Los Angeles center Wilt Chamberlain, who scored only eight points, hauled in a whopping 31 rebounds for the Lakers.

The Bucks got only 26 points for their two best-known stars, Kareem Abdul Jabbar and Oscar Robertson, but their "other people" came through in big fashion.

Forward Bob Dandridge led the Bucks in scoring with 31 points, and reserves Wally Jones and John Block came off the bench to score three baskets apiece as Milwaukee outscored the Warriors 16-6 at the start of the second quarter. Milwaukee held only a 33-32 lead before that spurt.

Jabbar was held to 15 points but did come through with 20 rebounds, while Robertson had 11 points and the same number of assists.

Jim Barnett tossed in 29 points and Nate Thurmond, the veteran center who reportedly received a $2 million offer to jump to the Carolina Cougars of the ABA, added 26.

Forward John Tresvant earned a shot by ex-Bullet Earl Monroe with 26 seconds to play and recovered the loose ball to preserve Baltimore's victory. Monroe scored 28 points against his former teammates.

Babe Ruth Registers

Registration will be held for boys eligible for Greenville Babe Ruth Baseball League Thursday and Friday at Elm Street Center from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m.

To be eligible a boy must be 13 years old before August 1, 1972 and not 16 prior to August 1st. If a boy did not participate in the Greenville Little League program, then he must bring his birth certificate.

Tryouts will be held for 13 year olds on Tuesday, April 11th at 6:00 p.m. and Wednesday, April 12, at 6:00 p.m. Tryouts for 14 and 15 year old boys will be Thursday, April 13th at 6:00 p.m. All tryouts for Babe Ruth League will be held at Guy Smith Stadium. The league needs 13 year olds to fill up team rosters.

For further information call the Recreation Department, 752-2355 or Connor Merritt, 752-5731.

ALWAYS

A MAJOR BREAK-THROUGH FOR THE HOME AND INDUSTRY!

Fire detection is available now at a much lower cost than ever before. Good fire protection costs not $600, not $300 but less than $230 for the average home!

Consider these two cases: Family No. 1 had life insurance, auto insurance and fire insurance; but nothing to warn them when fire struck. They were lost; their insurance couldn't replace their lives.

Family No. 2 had a fire. Their home and belongings were destroyed. Their insurance replaced their lost items. Most importantly, they are still a live and enjoying life because they had adequate fire protection!

Which group do you want to be in? If No. 2 is your choice, then call the Safety Crusader right away, listed under Rev. D.M. Suggs, Phone 746-4577.

New York Takes 2nd In Row From Colonels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The New York Nets have picked a fine time to start beating the Colonels at Kentucky.

After losing all five games on the Colonels' home court during the regular season, the Nets won their second straight play-off game at Kentucky Tuesday night, defeating the Colonels 105-90.

Kentucky, which set an American Basketball Association record by winning 68 regular season games, now will have to battle to avoid elimination from the playoffs in the East Division semifinals.

"I didn't think we'd be two down at home," said a disappointed Kentucky Coach Joe Mullaney.

"It doesn't look good for us," he continued. "We're two down, and now we have to face them twice at their place (the new Nassau Coliseum). And you know they're going to play like tigers."

Nets Coach Lou Carnesecca, however, was not taking anything for granted.

"We've got to win the next one," he declared. "That's the big one for us."

In other ABA East Division semifinal series, Julius Erving tied a league playoff record by pouring in 53 points to lead the Virginia Squires to a 118-113 decision over the Floridians. Virginia now leads that series 3-0.

In a West Division semifinal, Freddie Lewis hit a driving lay-up with 45 seconds remaining to lift Indiana past Denver 122-120 in overtime and give the Pacers a 2-1 edge in the series.

Utah and Dallas, idle Tuesday night, resume their series Wednesday night in Dallas. Utah leads 2-0.

The Nets moved ahead of Kentucky 16-15 with 3:23 to play in the first period and were never again headed. They outscored the Colonels 16-2 in the last 5½ minutes of the first half to take a 52-34 halftime lead and Kentucky never came closer than 10 points in the second half.

Rick Barry, who bombed for 50 points in the series opener, had 36 this time. Teammate John Roche added 31 points, while Dan Issel topped Kentucky with 22.

Erving sank 21 of 28 two-point field goal attempts, eight of nine free throws and the only three-point field goal he attempted. His scoring spurge tied an ABA record set by Roger Brown of Indiana in 1970.

The Floridians scored eight straight points to take a 100-99 lead with four minutes to go, but a three-point goal by Roland Taylor put the Squires back in front. Erving scored 16 of his points in the closing seven minutes.

Erving also led the Squires in rebounding with 14.

Taylor added 22 points for Squires while Mack Calvin led the Floridians with 27.

The Indiana-Denver game was tied 110-all after regulation play. Lewis, who came off the bench to score 23 points, sent the struggle into overtime with just 34 seconds to play. His basket in final minute of overtime gave the Pacers a four-point lead and was the eventual margin of victory.

Ralph Simpson scored 33 points, Dave Robisch 30 and Byron Beck 25 for Denver. For Indiana Roger Brown netted 30 and Bob Netolicky had 21.

Duke Captures Second ACC Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Duke, the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball leader, won its second league victory against no defeats Tuesday. The Blue Devils edged North Carolina State 2-1 as Al Schwartz scattered five hits.

A scheduled second game was rained out.

Duke is 7-7 in all games and Schwartz has pitched four of the victories, losing only once.

Duke scored its runs in the third inning on singles by John Poff and John Johnston, and a sacrifice fly by Dick Bersin. The N. C. State Wolfpack scored in the fourth inning on Wayne Curran's triple and Mike Baxter's single.

N. C. State is 0-2 in the league and 10-7 in all games.

In other games involving ACC teams, Maryland defeated Pembroke State 3-1, Virginia lost to Florida State 8-6, Wake Forest defeated Georgia Southern 4-1 and Clemson defeated South Carolina 8-0.

Games scheduled today were Columbia at Duke, Maryland at Pembroke State, Clemson at South Carolina, Virginia at Florida State, Wake Forest at Georgia Tech and North Carolina at Virginia Tech.

Maryland defeated Pembroke on substitute left fielder Tom Law's two-run homer and Bob Grossman's six-hit pitching. The Terrapins are 2-2.

Virginia pitchers yielded seven runs to Florida State in the first inning, but the Cavaliers fell only a couple of runs short of catching up in the game. Dave Brett led their comeback with two hits and three runs batted in. Florida State is 20-6, and Virginia is 5-4.

Wake Forest, which had lost to Georgia Southern the previous day, evened the series by scoring three runs on sacrifice flies and another on a wild throw. Georgia Southern did not score its run until the ninth inning. Wake Forest now is 4-5.

Lindsey Graham pitched the five-hit shutout for Clemson over South Carolina. Bill Prophet had a two-run homer for the Tigers, who are 10-7.

Rupp Says He Has An Offer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Adolph Rupp says he's not bitter because the University of Kentucky turned him out to pasture after 42 years as head basketball coach. But the 70-year-old "man in the brown suit" says he's considering an offer that would put him back on the court.

In a telephone interview from his home in Lexington, Ky., Rupp told the Orlando Sentinel that he had received an offer to coach a basketball team, but Rupp wouldn't say which team that was.

"I've got some business interests around Lexington, and of course, I'd have to be allowed to keep them running—have the time to give them some attention," Rupp said. "I'd also like a say in the hiring of the help."

Rupp said that if the problems could be ironed out. "Yes, I'm considering taking them up on their offer."

On March 27, the University of Kentucky athletic board voted to retire Rupp involuntarily because he had reached the mandatory retirement age of 70.

Rupp had compiled a string of 879 victories and 190 defeats, took his team to NCAA championships four times and won one National Invitational Championship.

Rupp said he had several job offers, including broadcasting positions offered by radio and television stations and an offer from "someone who wanted me to write a syndicated column, and things like that."

He said it would take a "tremendous offer" to get him to leave Lexington, and added the coaching job he was considering was "one tremendous offer."

No Openers Opening Day

CINCINNATI (AP) — Hold onto your tickets, opening day has been postponed because of an economic storm.

Cincinnati, a charter National League team, has always been privileged to open the season early, but the Major League Baseball Players Association strike continues.

In Chicago Tuesday night the owners vetoed a compromise proposal for the second time.

The Reds Tuesday said their opener against the Houston Astros had been postponed. About 51,000 ticketholders were told to hang onto them until an announcement about another opener after the strike ends.

"Opening game" is a traditional occasion in Cincinnati and has been a boon to downtown Cincinnati since construction of the new Riverfront Stadium.

The stadium had been readied for the opener when the Reds front office told the workmen to go home, there would be no game.

Signs in bars and restaurant windows came down. The signs welcomed the baseball season and hungry fans downtown for the day.

Economically, the cancellation caused many problems, particularly with restaurants.

The Netherland-Hilton Hotel, which was preparing an annual, 250-plate baseball luncheon for one group, received a cancellation and is now stuck with the food.

Many industries traditionally invite their out-of-town customers in for the day as a public relations ploy.

"I've got 1,500 people coming in here," said an executive at a local foundry. "Normally we show them around the plant, give them lunch and take them down to the ball park."

"Now what am I going to do with them? I guess I'll just have to give them some drinks and let it go at that."

The Reds were expected to lose $250,000 in the cancellation. About a dozen Red players continued to work out on the Astroturf football field at the University of Cincinnati. It is the same surface used in the stadium.

Most of the players will be off the payroll of both Cincinnati and Houston today. Some salaries begin at the start of the season, others in February. The other National League Clubs aren't scheduled to open until Thursday.

Career May Be Finished

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Veteran golfer Gene Littler was recovering today from a two-hour cancer operation which left his professional future in doubt.

He was reported in satisfactory condition. After having a malignant tumor removed from under his left arm March 15, Littler had all the lymph gland-bearing tissue beneath the arm removed Tuesday to see if the disease had spread.

"The tissue removed at surgery will be analyzed in detail by the laboratory and results of the study should be available by Friday," a spokesman at Mercy Hospital said.

Littler, a 41-year-old former winner of the U.S. Open, said before the operation he did not know how removing the tissues would effect his ability to perform on the professional golf tour, but admitted it could end his 18-year career.

The hospital spokesman said it wasn't yet known how long Littler would have to remain in the hospital, or how long it would take him to recuperate at his home in suburban La Jolla.

The annual spring benefit Greenville Tour of Homes will take place this year on Thursday, April 13, beginning at 1:00 p.m. and continuing until 6:00 p.m. The home tour is to benefit the Greenville Art Center in an effort to raise needed funds for the operation of the center.

Tickets for the tour are $5.00 per person, and are now available at the Greenville Art Center, 802 South Evans Street (telephone 758-1946). Hours for purchasing tickets are 9:00 a.m. til noon and 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. daily, and from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturdays. Tickets can also be arranged for by contacting Mrs. Louis Gaylord, Jr.

This year planners have chosen seven homes in and near Greenville for the tour. All have been selected with a view to provide homes that are marked by something different, for some quality that will appeal to the public. Some of the homes are new, some not so new, some are small and others are large.

A brief description of outstanding features of each of the seven homes highlights the individual tastes of their occupants. Beginning with the home of Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins, the tour ends with the apartment home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas.

First on the tour is the home of Dr. and Mrs. Leo Jenkins, located on East Fifth Street. The spacious entrance hall with the wide double stairway is done in off white with a red carpet. White walls throughout the house make a fine background for the many paintings on display, which includes paintings by Dr. and Mrs. Francis Speight, students and faculty of the University, and paintings by Dr. Jenkins himself. The private collection of art and photographs of the Jenkins' are also on display.

The Brook Valley home on Christenbury Drive belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brody is second on the tour. Built within the past three years, the French Manoir house is decorated in the Louis XIV, XV and XVI periods. Use of light colors and floral prints creates an elegant atmosphere. An oriental rug and antique bead tree of Venetian glass in the entrance hall provide a good introduction to the rest of the house. The floral arrangements in both the living room and the dining room were done by Mrs. Brody. Of special note are a handsome Louis XIV table in the dining room, painting in the living room, and two Horlors paintings in the den.

The breakfast room is noted for its brightness.

The Arthur Tripp home is located on Route 9, Greenville. Situated in a wooded area, the house overlooks a lake. Originally designed for a summer cottage, it has been added on to over the years, with the large "keeping room" or den added in 1967. This spacious room contains an array of historical materials — paneling from the Olivia Raney Library in Raleigh; a large heartwood pine mantel dating from about 1700 from the Drewery Plantation in Virginia; and old floors from New Bern. The Tripps have a good collection of pewter plates, old Imari and early cooking utensils as well as an early 1700 sideboard and corner cupboard. One intriguing item is a corner cupboard from Sycamore Plantation in Edenton that was originally designed for a coffin. The hallway contains an extensive collection of Early American tools, including a rat trap. A carved Oriental chest of champhor wood and a Queen Anne silver table highlights the new dining room. Another feature of the Tripp home is the large terrace and out-door kitchen and dining room used for entertaining large numbers of people.

The next home on the tour is that of Mr. and Mrs. Charles White on Longmeadow Road. The tenor of the interior of the clapboard home was inspired by the "House of Good Taste" which the White's saw at the New York World's Fair. Their love of music is felt everywhere in this home, from the Yamaha piano in the music room to stereo equipment found in every room. The study is used mainly for Mrs. White's music students. Wall paper in the dining room is a replica of the old Duke of Gloucester commemorative pattern based on an 18th century English textile. Of particular local interest is the fireplace in the family room, made of brick from the Old Austin building on East Carolina University campus. The White's home boasts a large, attractive backyard, which should be in full glory by the tour date.

From the White's clapboard home, the next stop is the contemporary home of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Clark on Orton Drive. The Clarks designed and decorated the house, combining Oriental, French and modern fabrics and furnishings throughout, giving the home a cosmopolitan air of distinction. The dining room is in green and white with Chinese Chippendale chairs and a large teak table. Indirect lighting and a painted chandelier point up the mural that Mrs. Clark painted for this room. A large screened porch is covered with wisteria vines. The Clark's love of music is evident in this home, particularly in their large comfortable library. Among the art work in this home is a Robert Sargent work and an oil by Mrs. Clark shown in the N.C. Artists Annual Show in Raleigh in 1954.

"Ecology at Rest" is the theme of Mr. and Mrs.

Thomas Howard's home on Evans Street extended. In July 1971, the Howards purchased the land, in August made their plans, and in December moved in. This home represents something new on the tour. A prefabricated house with an unusual roof, it was redesigned inside by the Howards to suit their needs and tastes. Circular plaster ceilings are used throughout the house, with a note of special interest in the icicle ceiling in the master bath. This small house shows what can be done to make limited floor space still into a home with a spacious atmosphere. An example of this is the storage space in the built up bed in the master bedroom. The unique light fixtures in this room as well as in the living room were made by Mrs. Howard.

The final house on the benefit tour is the garage apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas located on Memorial Drive. The Thomas' have concentrated on skillful use of gay bright chintzes, light colors and a combination of antique and contemporary furnishings. Included in the art collection are a Picasso, a Philip Moose painting and a work by Buffet. A feature of the apartment is a collection of glass in a small curio cabinet. There is also a collection of first edition books. Like many of the homes on the tour, part of the interest lies in a special object made by the owners. In this case it is a decoupage lamp in the center of the room.

As an added attraction tourists will be given the opportunity to have tea at the Art Center, and while there to see the permanent collection of the center, which is being placed on exhibit for the occasion.

Persons assisting in the benefit affair are: Mrs.

James T. Cheatham III and Mrs. James Ficklen, Jr., co-chairman; and committee chairman Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr., tickets; Mrs. Charles Stevens, hostess; Mrs. William S. Corbitt, Jr., guides; Mrs. James S. Jenkins, arrangements for the tea; Robert Pittman, posters; and Mrs. Marvin Blount Jr., showing of the permanent collection of the East Carolina Art Society.

Lt. Gov. Taylor In Pitt County For Two Days

Lt. Gov. H. Pat Taylor is scheduled to be in Pitt County Friday and Saturday as part of his gubernatorial campaign activities.

According to Taylor's campaign coordinators here, the lieutenant governor will arrive in Greenville Friday night and attend the Charity Ball at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

On Saturday morning, it was reported, he will make a stop in Ayden before traveling to Grifton to attend the second annual Shad Festival beginning at 10 a.m. He is expected to remain in Grifton for the festival parade at 11 a.m.

The coordinators reported that Taylor will be in Farmville around noon to speak at a luncheon and will attend the Farmville Centennial Parade at 3 p.m.

The Worry Clinic

An Investment For The Young

Norma is at the crossroads. Now is when she can insure her future marriage against divorce! And also be sure of a good paying position from just one year of the most practical college education in America. So heed Ben Franklin's advice!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case T-534: Norma G., aged 17, will soon be out of high school.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am not sure what I wish to pick as my career."

"But naturally I'd like to be happily married some day."

"My parents don't have much money but they could probably marriage than you can derive from the usual 4-year Liberal Arts colleges.

For such girls can operate their homes on a budget, since they are expert at accounting.

They can even prepare their husbands' income tax reports!

And type his letters; advise him on Business Law, and win him more friends or office promotions by their "Charm" course training.

Besides, after they graduate from even that one-year diploma course at a first rate Business School, they can obtain excellent paying positions.

And thus finance any desired Liberal Arts education thereafter by taking night classes at the extension branch of their state university.

Mrs. Crane received that one-year Business College training.

pay my expenses for one year of college.

"And they want me to go one with my education, but I wonder if it would be worth the money to get only one year at college."

"What would you recommend for girls like me?"

Head Ben Franklin

"An investment in knowledge," said Benjamin Franklin, "always pays the best dividends."

And the most profitable one-year college education you can now obtain in America is to enroll in a good Business School.

For such colleges offer you a splendid one-year (and also a two-year) diploma.

That diploma is based on your study of Business Law, Applied Psychology, Business Letter Writing, Bookkeeping, Accounting, operation of modern office computer machines, and also a course in Charm.

The latter involves how to dress and speak and be most cordial over the telephone, etc.

Most of those courses you can't get even from 4 years on the Liberal Arts campus!

Remember, there are also 8 positions awaiting every girl graduate of the one-year diploma course at a Business School.

And 6 jobs competing to win every male graduate!

But such students also obtain better preparation for happy

Actually, I have benefited more from her practical help than from all her courses at Northwestern, Indiana and Columbia University!

And I'm not joking! For she typed the manuscripts for my college textbooks.

She prepares my income tax reports.

She is a superb bookkeeper, and can take shorthand, though now I usually dictate by means of a machine, from which she can transcribe my letters.

In my varied experience with all types of colleges and universities, I rate the Business School first place for insuring a happy and solvent marriage!

Nurses Colleges come 2nd in my estimation as preparation for warding off a divorce!

So borrow the money, if necessary, and get yourself that one-year diploma from a good Business School!

Send for my "Vocational Guidance Booklet," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope plus 25 cents, and plan your future intelligently.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Sharp Drop In Measles

RALEIGH (AP) — A sharp drop in measles cases has followed an intensive campaign to vaccinate North Carolina children against measles and rubella.

This was reported Tuesday by John Irvin, coordinator of the state Board of Health's immunization program.

Irvin said that over 350,000 children have been vaccinated since last October and the total is expected to reach 500,000 by June. He estimated that about 60 per cent of North Carolina children now have been vaccinated against measles and rubella.

In 1971, Irvin said, nearly 2,000 cases of measles were reported in North Carolina while only 19 cases were reported in the first three months of 1972.

The immunization campaign was undertaken after the 1971 General Assembly added red measles to the list of vaccinations children must have before age two and before admission to school.

"Our ultimate goal is to vaccinate and therefore protect every child in the state against measles," Irvin said. "This is a serious disease which may cause encephalitis (brain fever) and may leave children retarded, and it may cause ear infection and lead to loss of hearing."

VOTER PROTEST

RALEIGH (AP) — A delegation of Halifax County blacks told the state Board of Elections Tuesday that election officials there were making it difficult for blacks to register by "not being on duty many times when citizens offered to register."

Concert To Have Guest Trumpeter

A special guest trumpeter, Dr. Kirby R. Jolly, is being featured as soloist with the Rose High School Stage Band in the band's annual spring concert Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. in the high school gym.

The prize winning 22 member band is under the direction of James Rodgers. The Thursday concert will include selections in jazz, blues, soul and rock.

A second guest will be Thomas Smith, who will be remembered in Greenville as the conductor of the Stage Band for several years and who arranged several of the numbers that have become performance favorites of the band.

A native of New York, Dr. Jolly graduated from Syracuse University, receiving both a bachelor and master's degree there. He received the doctorate degree from New York University in 1971.

Currently, Dr. Jolly plays solo trumpet in the New York Symphonic Band a position he has held for twelve years. He has also played with the Goldman Band in New York since 1965. From 1950 to 1956 he was first trumpeter in the Syracuse Symphony Orchestra; has played at Paramount and Loewe's Theater Orchestras in New York, and has made over 100 appearances with Broadway Theater orchestras.

A band director in several public high schools in New York, Dr. Jolly is a member of the National Education Association, the New York State School of Music Association, the Music Educators National Conference, among other organizations.

Admission for the Thursday concert is 50 cents for high school and college students, and $1.00 to adults. Tickets are now available and will also be available at the door prior to performance time.

No Plans To Visit Moon After Apollo Missions

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. James C. Fletcher, space agency administrator, says there are no plans whatever for Americans to visit the moon again after the two remaining Apollo missions.

Fletcher said this will leave the moon exclusively to Soviet expeditions for at least 10 years.

He said he looks for some headline-making Soviet manned space flight after termination of the U.S. Skylab project, in 1973 or 1974, and would expect a lunar landing of cosmonauts in 1975.

While this Soviet manned-space activity is at a high pitch the U.S. astronaut program will be at a low level, Fletcher said. This might lead to loud complaints, reminiscent of those which accompanied the Soviet achievement of the first satellite launchings in 1957, and the first manned space flights in 1961, said Fletcher, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

U.S. space leaders will be that of using the pool of astronauts to good effect.

He said NASA is working on this and one possibility is the operation of earth orbital missions with left-over Apollo command service modules.

There is also the prospect of missions involving rendezvous and docking of those vehicles with cosmonaut-manned Soviet spacecraft, he said.

Classes Begin In Decoupage

Decoupage classes, the last ones before next fall, have begun at the Elm Street Recreation Center.

A variety of boxes and hardware is on hand for local hobbyists to create gifts for family and friends, according to Mrs. Linda Burrell of the Recreation staff. Instruction is available for regular decoupage and also the newest ideas in paper tole, mise en scene, and repousse. Anton Pieck prints and Loessen florals may also be used. There is no charge for instruction but charges are made for materials used. Interested persons should bring a short jar that will hold a cup of varnish, she said.

Hours are Tuesdays 9 a.m. to noon; 1 to 4 p.m.; and 7:30 to 10 p.m. and Wednesdays 2 to 4 p.m. and 7:30 to 10 p.m. For further information or pre-ordering of wood for plaques, call the Recreation Department at 752-2355.

Accepts NIH Traineeship

Joseph P. Gaston Jr. has accepted an N.I.H. Traineeship with the Biomathematics Group at the University of Washington, Seattle.

A graduate of J.H. Rose High School and North Carolina State University at Raleigh, Gaston will maintain full-time status as a graduate student directed towards a Ph.D. degree in biomathematics or biostatistics.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Gaston Sr. of Greenville and is married to the former Jane Allen of New Orleans, La.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gaston have been teaching and working in the educational field for the past several years.

Death Takes Adam Powell

MIAMI (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell, the flamboyant former congressman who swept through life with beautiful women on his arm, a sermon on his lips and an adoring Harlem at his feet, has died after a long illness. He was 63.

His death at Jackson Memorial Hospital Tuesday night was attributed to complications stemming from an earlier prostate operation.

He had been confined to the hospital's intensive care unit since he was airlifted by the U.S. Coast Guard from his Bimini, Bahamas retreat March 7.

The first black elected to Congress from the East, Powell also became the first congressman in modern times excluded by a vote of the House.

He was turned out in 1967 for misusing funds and defying the courts, some 22 years after he was first sent to Washington.

Powell was re-elected in a special election one month later by his New York constituents who packed his 10,000-member Abyssinian Baptist church on Sundays hearing him admonish, "Keep the faith, baby."

However, he did not try to reclaim his seat.

In 1968, without making a single campaign appearance in Harlem, Powell was re-elected again, by a 7-1 majority—the same margin by which the Supreme Court ruled the following June that Congress had exceeded its constitutional power in barring him.

But he got neither the $55,000 in back pay nor restoration of the seniority that made him chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee.

HODDING CARTER, Pulitzer Prize winning publisher of the Greenville, Miss., Daily Delta Democrat Times, died Tuesday at the age of 65, the victim of a heart attack. He won the Pulitzer in 1946 for editorials and was well known for his policies of racial tolerance. (AP Wirephoto)

Offering Help In Tax-Filing

E. R. Carraway, local revenue collector for the N.C. Department of Revenue, says personnel to assist in the filing of state income and intangibles tax returns will be available Mondays of each week until April 17.

Persons desiring assistance are requested to contact the N.C. Tax Office in Room 303, third floor of the Pitt County Courthouse. Office hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Carraway requests that taxpayers bring with them the pre-addressed forms which were mailed to them from Raleigh. Completed returns should be mailed directly to the N.C. Department of Revenue, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

EARMARKED

SAN JUAN (UPI)—The government of the U.S. Commonwealth of Puerto Rico has earmarked 33 per cent of its $1.4 billion budget for the 1972-1973 fiscal year to public education. The Department of Education was allocated $347 million and the University of Puerto Rico some $116.7 million.

Trash Removal Drive To Go On

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — A state legislator says he has removed the litter he dumped beside a highway last week but that the last has not been heard of his campaign to force the state Highway Commission to remove trash from his six self-service gas stations.

Rep. J. Marvin Johnson, who is unopposed for the Democratic nomination to the State Senate, said Tuesday that if elected he will introduce a bill on the first day of the 1973 legislature to require the Highway Commission to "pick up trash on places the public is invited to, parks, filling stations or what not."

Last Thursday Johnson said he and an employe dumped trash from his McGee's Crossroads gas station into a ditch beside N.C. 50. He said it was a protest against the commission's refusal to remove litter accumulated at Johnson's filling stations. He said he and two workers removed the litter early Monday. Johnson said he then had the trash barrels at the McGee's Crossroads station taken out of service and plans to remove the barrels from the five other stations.

The legislator said none of the litter originated at his stations since they sell only gasoline. He contended the barrels were catching litter that otherwise would be thrown along the highway and that the commission should empty his trash barrels as a matter of public policy.

"I don't believe the average man is a litterbug," Johnson said, "but there's no place to put it except in the ditches" when traveling by auto.

Spaniards Have An Uncertain Future After Franco

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
MADRID (AP) — On Monera Street in downtown Madrid, shoppers spill over the curb. In Malaga, airport traffic stacks up. In Barcelona, nightclub swingers pay $5 per scotch to watch a black girl from California. The soccer stadiums from Seville to Santander ring with the shouts of paying customers.

In Burgos, or Valencia or Badajoz, the scene in 1972 is the same: high rise apartments, hot dogs, detergents, raffle jams and millions of Spanish rushing to embrace the consumer society.

In the past 10 years, the per capita income has shot from $290 to nearly $1,000. Spain's gross national product surpasses many Western European countries.

There still are hundreds of burros, public watering troughs and rocky small town streets where a car cannot go. There still are thousands of men in black berets and widows in black dresses. But there are tens of thousands more of their grandsons and granddaughters in bell bottom trousers and miniskirts.

Nearly 500,000 Spaniards now live and work abroad in Common Market countries. Most any businessman worth his salt has crossed the Spanish border dozens of times more than the country's aging, 79-year-old leader.

Yet Gen. Francisco Franco Bahamondo, "caudillo (leader) of Spain," a chief of state who has been abroad—and then just over the border—only four times since seizing power in 1936, remains the undisputed ruler of the country.

A nonsmoker, nondrinker, nonparty-goer who usually is in bed at 10 o'clock, he contrasts sharply with a jetting President Nixon, or even Haile Selassie, the ageless Ethiopian emperor who still gets around the world. But neither Selassie or Nixon can approach the absolute power of the 5-foot-4 general on whom Spain's future currently depends nearly 100 per cent.

After Franco goes, what will happen? Will Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 34, have a long rule as king? Will the 220,000-man army take over?

"It would be very easy for us to follow the examples of Greece and Argentina," says an official of Opus Dei, the Catholic lay organization whose followers dominate the present Cabinet.

"Unless Franco starts surrendering some of his powers, the army will have to step in," says a young Socialist.

"Man, listen," says a high official of the Bank of Spain. "Franco never moves quickly.

Nothing will happen until Franco is ready."

"Is Spain really going to have a king and a monarchy in the 20th century?" asks a tourist.

According to Franco and the constitution he set up, it is.

But in the meantime, there are other problems. Food prices rose 12.4 per cent in 1971. The city of Madrid needs 60 miles more of subway lines. The country needs 300,000 more housing units annually. Free education still is no match for private education. Dirty air pollutes all the major cities. There is student unrest, church unrest and more strikes predicted for 1972 than any previous year.

After struggling for half a decade to get a preferential treaty with the Common Market, the government must renegotiate a new treaty with "the ten" or lose valuable trade. It faces the risk of losing the Spanish Sahara and its rich phosphate deposits. The feud with Britain over Gibraltar is unresolved.

"The trouble is that nobody is running the government," says a government official who has suffered a fall from grace and dares not go all the way by identifying himself. "Nobody is taking the initiative."

"I am an optimist," says a former Cabinet minister. "But the lack of evolution towards the future in the last year is serious."

Like many Spaniards, he speaks out frankly, but not for publication.

Dionisio Riduejo, once a Franco supporter and now an avowed opponent, has no such reservations. He has been both jailed and exiled by the Franco regime.

"We already are in the internal struggle. There is no power in Spain but the armed forces.

This has been the case for 30 years. The army will referee the future," he says.

Riduejo's break with Franco has reduced him to a simple, sparse life in Madrid. His position contrasts with colleagues who have stayed with Franco.

Riduejo's story in some ways is a miniature reflection of the Franco years: troublemakers do not prosper, too much ambition is dangerous and support for the principles established by the general must be followed to the letter.

One of the themes propounded by the government is that Franco has brought the country "30 years of peace"—and prosperity.

There is little doubt that Spain has recovered from national poverty at the end of the civil war. But the price has been paid in part by the jailing of thousands of political opponents and the loss to other countries of such men as Picasso and Casals.

Franco began easing up, slowly and slightly, after the war ended in 1939. He re-established the Cortes as a rubber stamp parliament in 1942. Although only 20 per cent of its membership is elected, and even then under tight control, the Cortes produces debate.

In 1953, Franco and the U.S. government signed an agreement permitting U.S. military bases in Spain. With U.S. approval, the doors to other countries opened. Admission to the United Nations followed in 1955.

In 1966, Franco permitted religious freedom for Protestants in Catholic Spain for the first time during his regime. He softened censorship of the press. Spain, in the '60s, began to move toward Europe, although it remained out of NATO and the Common Market.

But beyond these changes, the rules for political activism outside the regime have changed little since the Civil War. There are no genuine political parties, no free trade unions and no uncensored press. Everything the government thinks could poison the people against the regime is carefully screened before it comes into Spain. Strikes are illegal. Meetings of more than 19 persons are not permitted unless authorized in advance by the Interior Ministry.

Franco still holds all the important jobs in the country: head of state, head of the armed forces, head of the Movement which is the country's only political funnel, and head of the government. "Francisco Franco, caudillo of Spain by the grace of God," is printed on every coin.

It is a rule of thumb that nobody can get ahead in Spain and be openly against his government.

Oppositionists have found the regime intransigent. The government remains strongly anti-Communist despite openings in recent years to the East.

Much of the real liberalization in Spain has come from the outside, from the millions of tourists who began moving into the country in the 1960s. Tourism, with more than 26 million visitors in 1971, now is the country's No. 1 industry.

Besides the dollars, kroners, pounds, francs and pesos, came the miniskirt, the bikini, women in bars, talk of French movies and the consumer society.

In the 1960s also came the technocrats. They moved into the government, concentrating on integrating Spain into Europe and beefing up the economy. They also brought in a new political force, Opus Dei (God's Work).

Franco himself seems mellow. He devotes less time to government. He holds two audiences—civilian and military—weekly, but leaves much of the day-to-day operations of government to conservative Adm. Luis Carrero Blanco, 67, the man with most longevity in Cabinet outside of Franco.

Until 1969, Franco balanced forces within the country, playing off monarchists, falangists, liberals, militarists and careerists against each other. Behind all, stood the power of the Franco army.

With the arrival of Opus Dei Cabinet members, a liberalization again seemed likely. But the Burgos trial of 16 Basque extremists turned the government back to the right.

Football pools, the lottery, social security and trade unions hospitalization, the knowledge that anything against public order means jail, help to keep the poor in line. Privilege and personal acquaintance with those in power still count heavily.

Franco seldom speaks publicly. When he does, he reminds Spaniards of the progress since the war and the penalties for "subversive activity." He also reminds them of his plan to continue the present form of government.

The succession plan began in 1947 with constitutional law to restore the monarchy. Franco nailed it down in 1969 by naming Juan Carlos to succeed him as chief of state when he dies or retires.

And here, according to many political experts, the plan may fall down.

The most prevalent view is that Juan Carlos, trained from youth by Franco, may not be able to hold the government together.

The prince has been a virtual prisoner with regard to political action since Franco named him as successor.

"At the moment I do not see the army taking over when Juan Carlos succeeds as, for example, happened in Greece," says the ex-minister. But he acknowledges it is a clear possibility.

Riduejo thinks differently. "The army already has taken note that it is the seat of power. It is reconstituting its center of power right now," he says.

"General Franco is potentially above the law," wrote Antonio Garrigues, Spain's ambassador to the Vatican recently. "But this is a charisma absolutely personal and not transferrable."

But, Franco told the nation in his year-end address last December: "Everything is tied down, well tied down."

City Sold All Its Alarm Boxes

HOLLAND, Mich. (UPI)—If you see a fire breaking out in this West Michigan community, use the phone because the 56 fire alarm boxes have been sold at $25 each—20 of them to fire departments in other cities.

The City Council agreed to get rid of the boxes because of the growing number of phones in private homes. Besides, of the 25 alarms turned in during 1971, all were false.

Improved Benefits Seen For Vietnam Veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is expected to improve GI-Bill benefits for Vietnam veterans this year, but it is not yet clear when the lawmakers will act or how much they will provide.

Most observers readily concede that educational benefits available to Vietnam veterans are not as good as those provided for troops who returned from World War II and the Korean War.

The House already has approved a 48-per-cent increase in apprentice and on-the-job training programs, more money for job and school counseling, steps designed to cut red tape, and making some benefits available to veterans with less-than-honorable discharges.

The House also has called for a 14-per-cent hike in individual payments to veterans who return to school. That's higher than the 8-per-cent boost recommended by the Nixon administration, but Senate Veterans Affairs Committee Chairman Vance Hartke, D-Ind., has proposed pay increases up to nearly 40 per cent.

Hartke says his bill would bring Vietnam veterans' benefits up to the level enjoyed by World War II veterans by translating World War II benefit figures into 1972 dollars.

The Indiana senator's legislation would raise monthly benefits for single veterans going to school from the current $175 to $244. Married veterans would receive $285 instead of $205, and those married with one child would get $326 instead of $230.

A proposal by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., would keep roughly the same payment schedules and provide a $1,000 book-and-tuition payment to the school for each veteran enrolled under the GI bill.

Advocates of increased payments say the costs of schooling have outrun the 1966 payment schedule, forcing many veterans to drop out of school and preventing others from starting.

Computer Linkup

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) —Computers on the campuses of the state's three largest universities —Michigan State, Michigan and Wayne State —have been tied together in a comprehensive program of inter-university cooperation.

The network can be expanded to serve other educational institutions in Michigan, greatly enlarging the computer resources for the schools.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

RESALE VALUE is assured in this long ranch plan with three bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, family room, kitchen, living room, dining room, mud room and two-car garage. The living area is 1,770 square feet. Plan HA719C was designed by architect Lester Cohen, Room 704, 48 West 48th Street, New York, N. Y. 10036. Information on obtaining blueprints is available by writing the architect.

Soviet Naval Presence Follows A Set Pattern

By GERARD LOUGHRAN
BEIRUT (UPI)—The Soviet Union and its east European allies have penetrated 15 Mediterranean and Middle Eastern countries in the past few years in a campaign to establish an unmistakable naval presence in the area.

The insinuation is gradual and, according to Western diplomats, follows a distinctive pattern.

First, they say, an occasional merchant ship or fishing vessel makes a visit. Once this practice is established and the Soviet ensign is familiar, a warship visit is arranged. Further "business" calls follow but not enough to cause alarm. Finally the visits become so commonplace that host countries find it difficult to deny access, particularly if their economic dependence has meanwhile grown.

At the same time, the Communists involve themselves in the development of ports and the provision of shipbuilding and repair yards.

Soviet-Malta Agreement
The latest such agreement, signed with Malta Dec. 27, 1971, covers, according to the Soviet Tass News Agency, the use of the island's dockyards for ship repair against a fixed payment.

In recent years Soviet bloc countries have been associated with port development or the construction of naval bases and shipbuilding and repair yards in Algeria, Cyprus, Egypt, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libya, North Yemen, South Yemen, Syria, Sudan, Somalia and Tunisia, as well as Malta.

Usually these facilities are handed over to the recipients on completion but in many cases Communist advisers remain and Soviet bloc ships receive priority.

The following Middle East nations are involved:

Egypt: A shipbuilding and repair yard was completed at Alexandria by the Soviets in 1968 following the provision of two floating docks. Port Said is in use by the Soviet navy and London diplomats said recently a Soviet naval base is being constructed at Mersa Matruh. Additionally, the Soviet Union provides technical aid to the Egyptian navy as well as workshop and training facilities, and merchant ships use Alexandria regularly for maintenance and repairs.

Algeria: The Soviets are supplying an up-to-date fishing fleet and are modernizing fishing ports under a projected schedule for completion in 1975.

Soviet Influence Grows
Syria: Romania and Yugoslavia have just about completed a deep water port at Tartous. It became part operational in 1970.

Lebanon: Czechoslovakia has completed construction of grain silos in the port area.

Libya: Romania was awarded a contract in May, 1969 for extension of Benghazi Port including construction of further deep water berths. There is no indication that work has started.

Tunisia: Poland has built a shipbuilding yard at Bizerta.

Cyprus: Poland has constructed four deep water berths at Famagusta.

Iran: The Soviets are extending port facilities at Bandar Pahlavi.

Iraq: The Soviet Union is establishing a fishing industry at Basra, where it has begun construction of a shipyard and dry dock. East Germany is planning to establish a maritime school at Basra and port improvements at Umm Qasr, where Bulgaria is constructing a sulphur export wharf. The Soviets also have plans for port improvements at Fao designed to facilitate exports of crude oil.

Kuwait: The Soviets are helping with the fishing industry at Shuwaikh.

Soviet Presence in Sudan
North Yemen: The Soviets have constructed a harbor at Hodeida.

South Yemen: A Soviet-planned harbor deepening scheme is in progress at Aden, where Soviet harbor pilots help to run the port.

Somalia: Soviets have constructed a new quay and two deep water berths at Berbera.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1972

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when it is advisable that you take no chances where either your reputation or anything of a basic nature is concerned. Be sure to keep your foundational structure protected carefully even though you desire greatly to make some drastic changes which would all be wrong for you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you neglect doing tasks and handling responsibilities, you can lose much and ruin your credit as well. A little more preparation is necessary before you can put that civic matter in motion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You want to make some radical changes, but you would do well to study conditions more before taking any action. A new contact can give good advice about this, also. Take it easy tonight at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to go off on some tangent early and leave responsibilities that require immediate attention, so think twice and then do what is right. Closest tie may be in a bad humor. Exercise patience and all will be fine.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Cooperate more with an associate and get much accomplished instead of wanting him to go off on some tangent with you. A problem of a public nature crops up which needs careful handling. Relax in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't permit all that work ahead of you to put you in a frenzy, but dig in and do as much as you can, and all will be fine. Build up your physical health sensibly. Don't waste time with unimportant things.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Recreation could prove to be most expensive or worthless, so get busy with other activities now instead. Your mate is worried, so keep silent and all will work out excellently. Do not argue at all.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Why complain about little annoyances? Handle them cleverly. Don't you realize how dull life would be without them? The rest of the day is excellent for all that detailed work you love. Do some serious research and really have a ball, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you go on losing that temper of yours everywhere, you can certainly make your life difficult. Become more philosophical and all is fine, associates will respect you more. You are an idealist, so prove it especially where sex is concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are not as bad off monetary-wise as you think. Count your blessings and they will multiply if you put that gray matter to work. Why don't you trust your hunches instead of those of others? Get smart.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are probably so jaded with usual fine pleasures you want to exchange them for the worthless, so thank your lucky stars and do not change unless for the better. Picking on good friends because you are bored is the first sign of foolish thinking. Refrain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid groups and do some tall thinking before you put that new plan to work, or you find you could lose your shirt. Others come to you for assistance. Give only what you can easily afford. Teach them to stand on own two feet and do them a real favor.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have had fine favors from a person older than you are and now you have the opportunity to show appreciation. Do it or you will regret it. Avoid social matters and become acquainted with some new or old author. Have fun.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she is one of those very sensitive young people who must have a feeling of security early if the great promise in this chart is to be realized, so busy yourself to provide well. When this youngster matures, you as parents will be most happy that you did. Slant the education along business lines, since this youngster is a born merchandiser, whether male or female. Argumentative, but clever.
