S. Viets Evacuate 2 More Fire Bases

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces in the central highlands abandoned two more bases under fire today, but field reports said U.S. bombers knocked out a highway bridge and slowed the North Vietnamese drive toward Kontum City.

Ten Americans were reported killed in the flaming crash of a U.S. helicopter, one of three reported shot down Monday during the South Vietnamese retreat from Tan Canh and Dak To. The dead included six advisers to the South Vietnamese forces at Tan Canh and four helicopter crewmen.

South Vietnamese troops were reported to have evacuated Fire Bases 5 and 6, the last of a string of six government positions on "Rocket Ridge" dominating the high ground north of Kontum. Seven bases fell Monday.

Official reports said the main North Vietnamese advance down Highway 14 south of Tan Canh had not progressed past the town of Dien Binh, which is 11 miles by road north of the new South Vietnamese defensive line at Vo Dinh and 21 miles north of Kontum City. Kontum is believed to be the chief objective of the North Vietnamese offensive, now in its 27th day.

Field reports said U.S. fighter-bombers knocked out the Dien Binh bridge over the Dak Psi River, nine road miles southeast of Tan Canh.

"That is enough to halt the enemy's armor and slow down their advance," said one American officer.

ican officer.

The South Vietnamese put six infantry battalions—up to 3,000 men—at the Vo Dinh defensive line and ordered scattered units of the 22nd Division fleeing from Tan Canh through the mountains to pull back to the same position.

U.S. B52 bombers flew 36 strikes against North Vietnamese troop positions and staging areas at points ranging from eight miles southwest of Kontum City to 29 miles to the northwest. About 900 tons of bombs were dropped.

Troops in Vo Dinh reported enemy tanks and trucks half a mile to the northwest and 2½ miles to the east of the defense line. A U.S. Air Force C130 gunship was called in to attack them, but the result was not known.

U.S. fighter-bomber pilots reported destroying two North Vietnamese tanks and two trucks in the Tan Canh area. But informants said the U.S. air strikes failed to destroy all of the South Vietnamese artillery left at Tan Canh and Dak To, and at least four 155mm and several 105mm howitzers were captured.

An American who had been at the Dak To airfield before it was overrun said the six advisers who were killed had been landed there from Tan Canh because South Vietnamese soldiers were clinging to the skids of the evacuation helicopter and it was feared the aircraft would crash.

Earlier reports said the advisers began walking toward the South Vietnamese lines. But the later report said a Huey helicopter picked them up, was shot down after it took off and crashed in flames in an area held by the North Vietnamese.

The crews of the other two helicopters shot down were rescued, and no injuries were reported to them.

Another American adviser from Tan Canh, Capt. Ray Dobbins, spent Monday night in hiding near the captured base, and a helicopter rescued him today.

Sources said that a captured North Vietnamese tank man reported four of Hanoi's tank battalions in the highlands, each with 20 tanks. He said one battalion was used in the drive against Tan Canh and Dak To.

South Vietnamese sources said President Nguyen Van Thieu had sent a message to Lt. Gen. Ngo Dzu, Saigon's commander in the highlands, ordering the recapture of Tan Canh and the Dak To airfield. Thieu said he would provide "all necessary means," and Tan Canh would be "An Loc No. 2," a reference to the provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon.

'Casper' Is Flying Home

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16's astronauts passed out of the moon's sphere of influence and into the earth's as they streaked for home today after five days of lunar exploration which caused them to wonder whether they had found the pure volcanic rocks they sought.

"I really don't think we got any volcanic rock to speak of," reported astronaut Charles M. Duke Jr. But the ground assured him scientists believe the moonmen have the volcanic evidence, but not in the form they expected.

The exchange followed the successful firing of a once-troublesome engine that thrust them out of lunar orbit and started them toward a Thursday splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

The only major event on a leisurely schedule today was a walk in deep space, 200,000 miles from home, by Thomas K. Mattingly II to retrieve two moon-mapping film canisters from the equipment bay at the rear of the command ship Casper. The walk was scheduled for 3:03 p.m. EST.

At 9:47 a.m., Casper passed through a so-called "twilight zone" in space where the gravitational pull of moon and earth are equal. Once across this invisible line, earth's gravity began exerting an influence on the spaceship. They were 38,894 miles from the moon and 215,787 miles from earth.

As the astronauts left lunar orbit Monday night, commander John W. Young expressed the sentiments of his crewmates when he looked out the window and said:

"There's the old crescent earth coming up. Just beautiful. And I tell you we can hardly wait. I know we got a couple things to do before we get there, but we're looking forward to it."

From more than 9,000 miles away they televised to Mission Control "one last beautiful shot of the moon" and then engaged in the scientific discussion.

Endorsement Is Given To Budget For City Schools

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The tenor of approximately 75 persons attending the first ever public hearing on a Greenville City School budget was to give full support to the school board for its proposed 1972-73 school budget as the board prepares to adopt and present the budget to the Pitt County Commissioners.

At the conclusion of nearly three hours of discussions, those present unanimously approved by two motions their "endorsement and support" of both sections of the proposed 1972-73 Greenville City School Budget.

The first endorsement covers the Current Expense portion of the budget, which Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood termed "the most critical" portion.

The second motion endorses the Capital Outlay budget, with a recommendation that the proposed budget item of $166,000 for a new administration building be deleted.

Several persons expressed an opinion that the school board should consider at their board meeting tonight the possibility of substituting more pressing needs in lieu of the amount proposed for such a new building.

This meeting, termed "a historic one" as it is the first time the public has been officially invited to participate in open discussions on formulating thought on a school budget, brought out many factors not generally known to the public in behind the scenes planning and shaping of the annual budget.

Acting as moderator for the school board and those attending, Dr. Cleetwood pointed out several major recent developments that have contributed to the "unusual circumstances" making this a difficult year for budget planning.

Among the most prominent of these factors is the loss of certain ESEA Title I funds which have been tightened resulting in the loss of several positions; Greenville City Schools no longer qualifying for Emergency School Assistance funds; and the loss of state-allotted teaching positions despite the fact the number of students will remain essentially the same.

Dr. Cleetwood pointed out that in regards to the loss of state-allotted teaching positions, Associate Superintendent Glenn Cox had returned from Raleigh yesterday with assurances that the loss would not be quite as great as originally anticipated following contacts with the state offices.

In expressing strong endorsement for the full amount of a little over one million for the current expense budget and $438,000 in capital outlay, the contingent of interested persons is asking the school board to seek an increase of about a quarter million dollars over last year's school budget.

A brief run-down of major points eliciting strong interest, statements of support, and expressions of plans to conduct a major effort to influence county commissioners at budget approval time include:

—The fact that of the one million dollar gain in revenue for Pitt County as a result of the added one cent sales tax, only $62,000 or six percent of the million was allocated to the Greenville City Schools current budget. Dr. Cleetwood pointed out that some cities, Raleigh for example, earmark the entire additional revenue from the

Archie Bunker Taking Lumps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Already cuffed by the Teamsters Union, television's Archie Bunker has collected some new lumps from the American Jewish Congress.

The CBS television series "All in the Family," in which Archie Bunker is blue-collar worker who makes racial and ethnic slurs, is "creating a new freedom to be offensive," says Rabbi J. Lelyveld, president of AJC.

The rabbi said a major sin of the television show is that "it is teaching our children disrespect."

He said his own children have come home from junior high school "with Polack jokes that have been told to them by their teachers."

"There is no such thing as a harmless bigot any more than there is such a thing as a friendly cancer or a benign drug pusher or a lovable murderer or rapist," Rabbi Lelyveld said Monday in the organization's official publication "Congress bi-Weekly."

"When policeman are 'pigs' they are fair game for the slaughter," Rabbi Lelyveld said. "When Polacks are stupid, subhuman beings, when kikes are shrewd and dagos or wops are sly and murderous, it is only one step from the epithet to contempt, and another step to discrimination and another step to persecution and the final step to the gas chamber and systematic extermination."

Earlier this month, a Teamsters Union publication said workers resent the image presented by "All in the Family."

"For some reason the writers of those shows decided the average worker is a dingbat—fat, more than a little dumb, a committed racist and most of all, very comical," the union said in its publication, "Focus."

"There are a lot of workers who are thin, think everyone deserves a truly equal opportunity, are sincerely compassionate and essentially intelligent," the Teamsters' publication said.

31,606 Registered To Vote In Pitt County; 27,119 Listed Democrat

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County now has a total of 31,606 registered voters eligible to cast ballots in the May 6 primary.

Pitt County elections officials reported today that a total of 5,294 persons registered to vote in the county during the period from January 1 to April 7. On January 1, there were 26,398 registered voters in the county.

Of the new registrations, 3,542 were white, 1,751 were black and one was an American Indian.

On January 1, there were a total of 20,061 whites and 6,251 blacks registered while the total now is 23,603 whites, 8,002 blacks and one American Indian.

A break-down of party affiliation shows a total of 27,119

Democrats, 3,883 Republicans, 343 Independent Party and 36 American Party members are now registered. A total of 225 registered voters listed no party affiliation.

An estimated 2,000 of the newly registered voters were in the 17 to 20-year-old group, according to Ann Paul, secretary to the Board of Elections who noted, too, that about 200 persons changed their party affiliation, and an estimated 200 individuals transferred from one precinct in the county to another during the period.

In addition, about 150 cancellations were received from other counties where persons formerly registered in Pitt had registered in other areas. And the Pitt board sent an estimated 300 cancellations to other counties due to persons from other areas moving to Pitt and registering to vote here.

Election officials emphasized that the way an individual is registered will affect the number of ballots he receives on voting day.

Registered Democrats can receive only Democratic ballots, ballots for the Board of Education and Zoo Bond vote, while registered Republicans can receive only Republican ballots, Board of Education slips and Zoo Bond ballots.

Persons registered as Independents can receive only Zoo Bond and Board of Election ballots while those registered as

Arrest Trio For Boone Slayings On February 2

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Authorities announced the arrest early today of three men from Asheville in the death of a wealthy automobile dealer, his wife, and their son, whose bodies were found in a bathtub in their home in Boone on Feb. 3.

Sheriffs Tom Morrissey of Buncombe County and Ward Carroll of Watauga County, said each of the men had been charged with three counts of murder in the first degree. They were identified as Jerry Ray Cassada, 28; Dean Chandler, 20, and Eugene Clarence Garren, 22.

They were taken to the Buncombe County jail in Asheville and were to be transferred to the Watauga County jail in Boone.

The bodies of Bryce Durham, 51 his wife,

Virginia, 46, and their son, Bobby, 19, were found with the water still running in the bathtub of their split-level home. An autopsy disclosed that the men had been strangled and that there also was water in their lungs, and that Mrs. Durham had been strangled.

A motive has not yet been disclosed. Authorities said the home had been ransacked but that a money bag, probably a day's receipts from the Modern Buick-Pontiac Agency which Durham owned, was found in the house.

Troy Hall, son-in-law of the slain couple, found the bodies less than 30 minutes after receiving a call at his home from Mrs. Durham. He related she said in a barely audible whisper: "Help, they have Bobby and Bryce." Then the telephone went dead.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP)

— Charges were dismissed Monday against three teenagers arrested for mowing lawns without a permit, but the boys said they would buy the $2.50 credentials before they go into business again.

"A lot of people really cared what happened," said a smiling Pershing "Kip" Williams Jr., after Municipal Judge George Pallotto dismissed the charges against him and two other 17-year-olds, Rick Sigler and Danny Walters.

The courtroom was crowded with friends and spectators when Judge Pallotto dismissed the case and also ordered police to expunge all record of the arrests.

The youths, all from Miami, drove to this nearby Broward County community April 12 and went door-to-door, offering to mow lawns to pick up pocket money.

A police cruiser pulled up next to Williams' mower-laden car, and an officer asked if the boys had purchased city identification cards required of door-to-door solicitors.

When they said "no," the patrolmen placed them under arrest.

They were taken to the police station where they were photographed and fingerprinted before being released on $55 bond each five hours later.

Police defended the arrests, saying the youths were "in one of our better neighborhoods" and that "door-to-door solicitation is an excellent cover for potential burglars."

City Councilmen said the police failed to use proper judgment in making the arrests and ordered an investigation of the incident.

The arrests gained national publicity, and young Williams said a man in Seattle, Wash., wrote him and asked, "What kind of a city is Hollywood, Fla.?"

The youths' attorney argued that the city ordinance only required identification cards for door-to-door salesmen and said nothing about door-to-door lawn mowers. Judge Pallotto accepted that argument.

After the hearing, Mr. and Mrs. Pershing Williams Sr. said they were pleased with the outcome, but they planned to ask the City Council to pay the youths' bail bond fees and the $26 fee police charged for towing their son's car away.

The maximum penalty on conviction of the charge was 30 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Judge Throws Out Grass-Cutting Case

An Ex-Actor Can Still Entertain

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Forty years after his first taste of being on-stage in drama school productions at the University of Virginia, actor John Payne remains a dedicated contributor to the world of American entertainment.

During his week-end stay in the quiet Martin County of Robersonville as the star attraction of the town's Centennial Celebrations, Payne talked about his past as a movie actor in more than 80 films, his TV years, and his role as a literary agent.

"I'm active in the literary properties field now," he replied to a question about his current activity. "This involves developing material for motion picture and TV shows."

Payne explained this is "a literary process all its own, one in which I work on original scripts. It's mostly a matter of adaptation, involving considerable editorial work." He mentioned that novellas are one of the main sources for developing material for various adaptations.

When a question about his movie roles in the early 1940s came up, Payne said many of the musicals in which he appeared with such stars as Alice Faye, Betty Grable and Jackie Oakie, were "formula movies, great fun to make and still good entertainment. But the changing times turned movie making more to action."

In response to his feeling about the new attitudes in movies Payne voiced praise mixed with personal reservations.

"There's been a vast improvement in techniques," he observed, "movie making is much more exciting now in many ways. Equipment is light, portable, with more accent on reality. I do feel some of the rich colors possible in studies have been lost, but movie makers certainly have more latitude in location and yet maintain high filming standards."

"Movie makers are taking wide liberties," Payne continued, "and I must say I cringe at certain things being done now." The former actor recalled a rather curious turn of affairs connected with the timing of one of his most popular films, "The Shores of Tripoli."

"It was during the shooting of this film that Pearl Harbor occurred," Payne related. "When the film was released, it resulted in the enlistment of a lot of young American men in the Marines."

And was Payne one of the Marine volunteers? "I'm afraid not," he answered with a big smile. "I've always loved flying and still do. So I joined the Army Air Force." On veteran Marine on hand commented "that by this time the Marines have forgiven John."

As a related issue to the change of attitudes expressed in today's motion pictures compared to those of 20 to 30 years ago, Payne feels "there's a real need for good pictures with reference to today's sensitivities. The same moral principles still apply," he added, "patriotism is not an outworn word, it is simply that the framework of reference is different. We have to remember we are still a new country not yet 200 years old."

"If you stop for a moment and think about it, our country's constitution reads like a prayer. We hear so much about the generation gap and not being able to understand our young people."

"I feel very strongly," Payne concluded, "that over 90 percent of our young generation has a great future, that they are prepared to face the stresses, strains and sacrifices for whatever comes in the future."

For a moment the conversation turned to politics. "I don't consider myself in the political field," he said. "I do believe in Nixon and decided to put my actions where my mouth was."

He said he was ready to appear any place on the President's behalf "any time I'm called on."

After the formal interview had ended, Payne had a chance to experience the Saturday morning calm of a small rural town. "It's really great," he smiled, "and it's so much like the atmosphere I grew up in." Like Mrs. Nixon, he made special mention of the beauty of the dogwood trees in bloom and the wide tree-lined streets. "It's simply good to be back," he emphasized.

Payne's birthplace and boyhood home, Roanoke, Virginia, was noted by one official, introducing him to the towns people later in the morning as a "place about 200 miles upriver where the Roanoke begins its course."

On several occasions young middle aged housewives, recognizing a favorite from their own younger days, introduced themselves and told the actor how much pleasure his films had given them.

Later, when Payne had finally succeeded in extracting the first slice of cake from the large Centennial Birthday cake, he charmed the very young by feeding them bits from the slice that had been given him.

Long before the round of festivities was completed on Saturday, it was very plain to see that the Virginia native had not only reconfirmed his place in the sun with the generation who had been young with him, but had also won a special place in the hearts of a much younger generation.

Taylor And Hobby May Meet At Chapel Hill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democratic candidates for governor Wilbur Hobby and Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, both of whom have been toying with the idea of a public debate with opponents, were to be in Chapel Hill at the same time today.

It was anybody's guess, however, whether the two would cross paths, and if they did, whether they simply would exchange how-do-you-dos.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles was to make campaign appearances today near Rockingham, at New Bern and at Morehead City.

Another Democratic candidate for governor, black dentist Reginald Hawkins of Charlotte, was to divide his time today between drilling teeth and conducting campaign work by telephone. Monday, he said that big businesses and vested interests in general are exempt from paying privilege taxes to municipalities while most small businesses are not. He said he favors restructuring the tax system to protect the poor man from "vested interests."

Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Holshouser walked into the lion's den Monday and ended up singing.

Holshouser paid a visit to the campaign headquarters of Democratic opponent Taylor in Winston-Salem. Taylor's campaign workers wished Holshouser good luck. Then as Holshouser left, he turned, grinning and joined the Taylor workers in a chorus of "but only in the primary."

Holshouser's major GOP opponent, Jim Gardner, planned stops in Greensboro and High Point today. He campaigned in Durham Monday.

The Rocky Mount businessman's hopes of victory were raised Monday when two-time gubernatorial nominee Robert Gavin endorsed Gardner.

Two of the Republican candidates for the nomination to the U.S. Senate race found themselves fussing about which was the best and most true-blue Republican.

Charlotte lawyer and school board member William Booe and state Rep. James Johnson of Concord spoke in Hickory Monday night.

Johnson said, as earlier, regarding party loyalty, that "You've got to labor in the vineyard before you can sup at the table."

Booe reminded his opponent that President Dwight Eisenhower was a Republican converted from Democratic ranks, along with North Carolina Congressman Earl Ruth and Wilmer Mizell and others.

Recital Program Is Cancelled

The recital of soloists and instrumentalists scheduled on campus for Friday night has been cancelled.

Cancellation has been necessary due to the serious illness of the father of one of the participants.

Friday night's concert had originally been slated to feature four faculty soloists and a number of instrumentalists in a program to be held at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall.

Co-Manager In Greene County

Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, Democratic candidate for governor, announced that Sherill D. Norman of Snow Hill will serve as a co-manager of his Greene County campaign.

Norman, a nursing administrator who moved to Snow Hill in 1965 from Carteret County, was active in the campaigns of former Governor Terry Sanford and current Governor Bob Scott.

The co-manager, who joins Ben Rayford in heading the Greene County campaign, has been a Jaycee and has served in various positions with the Moose, the Rotary and the Masonic orders.

He is a graduate of Morehead City High School and East Carolina University where he received a B.S. degree and served as president of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity. Norman is a member of Calvary United Methodist Church and serves on the official board.

GOP Women To Organize Here

An organizational meeting to officially establish a chapter of Republican women has been announced for Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Home Savings and Loan Building on Evans Street in Greenville.

Speaker for the occasion will be Mrs. Alma Tilghman, who has just been elected president in North Carolina for Republican Women. Mrs. Tilghman is from Beaufort.

Mrs. Marcia Pendergraph, who is acting chairman of the organizational group, says the group, when organized, will be known as the Pitt County Republican Women Group.

All women interested in becoming a member or taking part in this group are urged to attend. Those wishing more information are asked to call Mrs. Pendergraph after five at 756-3386.

Safe Food Handling Practices Should Be A Part Of Cooking

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Many women and even some men spend days or weeks learning to cook, then spoil it all when they neglect to learn safe food handling practices and storage. They will accept an old wives' tale about moldy foods being harmful but scoff if you suggest their wooden chopping board or salad bowl needs a good scrubbing.

People like this are candidates for the food poisoning statistics kept by the National Center for Disease Control (NCDC), Atlanta.

Dr. Matthew Loewenstein, chief of the federal agency's enteric disease section, says one simple precaution overlooked by most home cooks is the need for cleaning a chopping board after it has been used for raw meat or poultry products.

Cutting Boards

In a telephone interview, Loewenstein said cooks frequently contaminate food when they return cooked meat or poultry to the same board or surface that held the raw product. He added that, ideally, separate boards should be used for raw and cooked foods, but a single one is safe if you clean it well with soap and detergent and hot water after each use.

Other experts who concur include the National Safety Council, Chicago; Bob Rust, an extension meats specialist at Iowa State University, and Bryan Killikelly, chief of the USDA Consumer and Marketing Services New York office.

Rust said home kitchens don't live up to the standards set by the Federal Meat Inspection Act of 1906 and the Wholesome Meat Act of 1967.

Among other things, the standards forbid placing nonedible products such as cookbooks, towels, grocery sacks or purses on surfaces where meat is prepared.

Temperature

The law also requires that room temperature in areas where fresh meat is being handled rise no higher than a chilly 50 degrees Fahrenheit. If it does, the room involved must be shut down completely every four hours for a thorough cleaning.

Killikelly said food spoilage often starts from an ostensibly minor thing, such as a stop at the hairdresser or self-service laundry en route home with groceries. Contamination can spread quickly in perishables left in the trunk or the back seat of a car. Frozen as well as fresh food is vulnerable.

Preventive Tip

Preventive measures are simple, easy and inexpensive. They include the following suggestions from the USDA, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) and the National Safety Council:

—Don't buy torn, damaged or dirty products. Cans with bulging ends are especially dangerous because that condition indicates food spoilage which can include botulism, the rarest but deadliest type of food poisoning.

Insulated Cooler

—If you must make other stops after grocery shopping, carry an insulated picnic cooler in your car just large enough to hold the perishables. Styrofoam carriers are among the most efficient and the cheapest. Large air spaces around food in them can be filled with crumpled paper to increase insulation efficiency.

—At home, store fresh meat and poultry at refrigerator temperature no more than a few days. Freeze it in extended storage is necessary. Wrap raw meat and poultry loosely for refrigerator storage but tightly in moisture-resistant material—such as aluminum foil or freezer paper—for freezing.

—Store canned products in a cool, dry place. Too warm an area can cause spoilage, even in unopened cans. When this happens, the can's ends will bulge. Food in them should be thrown away without tasting.

—Cooked food can be refrigerated safely as soon as steam stops rising. If you want to speed cooling, let the container of hot food in sink of cold tap water and stir the food to cool it evenly. Then cover and refrigerate it.

Refrigeration

—Refrigerate promptly any unopened containers marked "perishable" or "keep under refrigeration."

—Defrost food in the refrigerator or under running cold water, not on a counter at room temperature. Most harmful bacteria multiply rapidly at temperatures between 40 and 140 degrees Fahrenheit. Cook defrosted food promptly.

—Always wash fresh-chilled poultry before cooking it. Cool it within a day or two after purchase, and all at one time. Never partly cook it and store for additional cooking later.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Food poisoning symptoms don't necessarily alter the taste and appearance of food, says the National Safety Council. Contrary to folklore, molds are harmless, although ugly and unpalatable. Meat that smells bad is decaying but putrefaction doesn't cause food poisoning, the council said.

Regardless of the appearance and odor of food, if you've doubts about its safety, throw it out without tasting. The financial loss is minuscule compared with doctor bills and suffering incurred as a result of food poisoning.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Forty-five cents and an eight-cent stamp will buy insurance against food poisoning. Use the stamp on a letter ordering two Public Health Service (PHS) publications and three USDA Home and Garden Bulletins that contain sound advice on food safety.

They are: PHS publications No. 1404, Hot Tips on Food Protection, price 10 cents, and No. 1623, No Picnic, price 5 cents; USDA Home and Garden Bulletins Nos. 170, 173 and 174, Meat & Poultry Wholesome for You, Meat & Poultry Clean for You and Meat & Poultry Care Tips for You, price 10 cents each.

They can be ordered by title and number from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Reader Disagrees With Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-M. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked with your sympathetic attitude toward HEARTBROKEN GRANNY. [She wanted to visit her son's children tho he was divorced and his ex-wife was remarried and had taken the children to live in another state.]

I was a divorcee with preschool children, and now I am happily remarried to a wonderful man who is doing an excellent job with his ready-made family.

I have been bugged to death by my ex-mother-in-law who "misses" her grandchildren. She sends them cards and gifts for their birthdays and holidays, so they won't forget her. I always send her a brief but to-the-point thank you. I wish she'd stop sending them things!

As yet she hasn't asked to visit the children, [we live in a different state] but if she does I'll not permit it.

My children now have new grandparents who adore them, and one set of grandparents is enough. I just can't understand the nerve of my ex-in-laws. Why can't they accept the fact that I want nothing more to do with them?

You should have told HEARTBROKEN GRANNY to leave her ex-grandchildren alone. Sometimes you make more problems than you solve.

HAPPILY REMARRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: When one loses a mate [whether by divorce or death] if there are children, the biological grandparents remain grandparents forever. Circumstances differ, but it would seem unnecessarily cruel to deny grandparents the right to see their grandchildren. In some states [California] such a right has been written into the law.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine died last year, leaving two little girls who went to live with an aunt.

Last Christmas I sent a check payable to the aunt in a Christmas card addressed to the girls. I told the girls to give the check to their aunt to cash, and she would give them the money to buy themselves something for Christmas.

I received the cancelled check. However, last week I heard from the girls [in response to my letter asking them what they had bought with my Christmas money] and they wrote that the aunt had never given them the money.

Should I ask the aunt for an explanation, or just forget it and never send money that way again?

My husband says I should let it be. What do you say?

MINOR PROBLEM

DEAR MINOR: DON'T let it be. Let the aunt know that you know that the girls have not received the money—YET!

DEAR ABBY: When my son joined the Navy I informed him that I would not accept any reverse charges telephone calls.

After he was gone about a week I received a postcard with his name, rank and serial number on it. It also had "MESSAGE" printed on it. After "message," he filled in, "SEND ELECTRIC SHAVER." [No "Dear Mom, please, love," nothing—just an order to send his electric shaver.] Then he signed it on the bottom.

Well, I made up my own form postcard. I printed my name, for my rank I wrote "MOTHER", and after serial number I put down my Social Security Number. For "message" I wrote, "Shaver on the way. No letter—no mail."

Pretty soon I got a telephone call from my son. He said he just received the postcard and wanted to know what was the matter with me, and why couldn't I write a letter?

I told him nothing was the matter with me, and when he could write a letter I would write one.

After that I heard from him regularly, but I never got another form postcard. Just letters.

Very truly yours,

PLATFORM SEATING — Vladimir Kagan designed these units with the idea that people like to be seated at different levels.

This Furniture Designer Likes Platform Seating

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeature Writer

In designing a new line of furniture, Vladimir Kagan of New York is taking a new direction because, he says, "We are going through a revolution in the function of the home."

He adds:

"If the furniture industry isn't careful, it will be invaded by outside sources with completely liberated ideas."

It is already happening in house construction where built-ins such as closets are making chests of drawers redundant, he says, adding, "how long will it be before furniture is molded completely into houses?"

Known as an innovator—Kagan was an early designer of see-through furniture and free-form sofas, tables, desks, chests. He is pioneering platform seating, bench-like fabric-covered multi-level units that may be used together or separately.

"Seating is an important part of my design philosophy, especially in these days of television viewing and home entertaining. I think of inner space as an interior landscape with varying heights as one experiences outdoors. Sitting on one level can become tedious, one reason people squirm so much or curl up in their chairs. People like to sit on the arms of chairs, on tables, on the floor, but furniture is usually designed so we must stare into the faces of people."

In addition to platform seating, he has just expanded his omnibus furniture, a modular-like idea that was introduced several years ago. The series now has 36 basic multi-level units that utilize right and left components, variable seating and curved or cantilevered extensions that include tables. Arms also may be added to the units. The additional pieces now make it possible to accommodate 12 people in one assemblage at two heights or more "with another level on the floor."

The high cost of labor, shortage of craftsmen, scarcity and expense of lumber, and the trend to conservation of natural resources makes it obvious that new ideas in styling and new materials must be realized by the furniture industry especially, he says.

CHILDREN NEED MEAT TOO

According to a front page article in "The Daily Reflector" Friday, April 14, a shopper fed her husband, herself and four children on a teacher's salary. She was cutting back on meats. She was feeding her children spaghetti or pancakes for dinner and then save the meat for her husband and herself. Our children need meat also.

All life requires protein. It is the chief tissue builder; the basic substance of every cell in the body.

Protein is made up of smaller units called amino acids. After foods are eaten, the proteins are broken down—digested—into amino acids which are then rearranged to form the many special and distinct proteins in the body.

The proteins in food are usually made up of 18 or more amino acids. The body can make its own supply of more than half of these, but the others must come readymade from food and are called essential amino acids.

Proteins that supply all the essential amino acids in about the same proportions needed by the body rate highest in nutritive value. Foods that provide good amounts of these top-ranking proteins best meet the body's needs. Generally these are foods of animal origin—meat, fish, poultry, eggs and milk.

Proteins from cereal grains, vegetables and fruits do not provide as good an assortment of amino acids as animal proteins do, but they do supply valuable amounts of many amino acids.

To have your daily meals rank well in protein quality, only a portion of the protein needs to come from animal sources. Combining cereal and vegetable foods with a little meat or other source of animal protein will improve the protein value of the meal. It is a good idea to have some food from animal sources at each meal, milk for example.

You need protein all through life for the maintenance and repair of body tissues. CHILDREN URGENTLY NEED PROTEIN FOR NORMAL GROWTH.

The protein requirements depends on how fast the body is growing and how large it is. The faster the body is growing the more protein it needs for building. The larger the body, the more protein it must have for maintenance and repair.

A child grows faster during the first year than at any other time. His second fastest growing period is during adolescence.

According to the Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances children 2 to 12 years of age need from 22 to 45 grams of protein. Teenages 12 to 18 need from 50 to 60 grams of protein, men 18 to 75 years of age need 60 to 65 grams and women same ages not pregnant need 55 grams of protein. These amounts are considered adequate for maintenance of good nutrition in healthy people.

Building of cells is only one of the roles of protein in the body. Among other functions, proteins help to——Make hemoglobin, the blood protein that carries oxygen to the cells and carries carbon dioxide away from cells

—Form antibodies that fight infection

—Supply energy

Important amounts of protein are found in meat, poultry, fish, milk, cheese, eggs, dry beans, dry peas and nuts.

Land-Utilization A Problem

In spite of what has seemed a move away from cities into less crowded areas in the past decade, the 1970 census figures indicate that more than 58 per cent of the people in the United States live in urban areas that constitute less than one per cent of the nation's land area.

What may be even more significant is that the definition of an urban area is a city of 50,000 people or more with the surrounding built-up territory.

To some extent, at least, this situation may account for the alarming rate at which crime is increasing in many areas, the difficulties with traffic and other municipal problems. It may also account in part for the sharp increase in tourism as people leave that crowded one per cent of the land to seek more elbow room in other areas for relaxation.

While urban areas are looked upon as offering better economic opportunities schools, medical facilities and cultural advantages than rural areas and small towns, the day must come when educational opportunities and medical care are as readily available to those who live away from the urban centers as they are to those who live in large cities. The day must come when economic opportunities in smaller towns away from congestion are much greater than they are today.

Such changes will not be easily or quickly accomplished. They will take careful planning and considerable effort at every level of government and civic responsibility. But as those changes are realized, the quality of life for literally millions of Americans will be improved.

As the nation seeks to utilize its land areas and its natural and environmental resources to the best possible advantage, careful consideration must be given to human factors.

With more than 58 per cent of the nation's people now living on only one per cent of the land, we have a long way to go in effecting proper utilization of the other 99 per cent of the territory in this country for a better pattern of life for the majority of the American people.

Only Woman, Only Organist

By BRYAN HAISLIP
SOUTHPORT, N.C. — What bothered Mrs. Margaret Harper about running for office was leaving the Southport Methodist Church without an organist. About Christmastime a new family moved to town and joined the church. The wife was an accomplished musician.

"The Lord provides," said

Margaret.

That philosophy keeps her loose in the frantic last days before the May 6 primary. She's running hard, with rising confidence, for the Democratic nomination as lieutenant governor.

"If it's time for a woman to be elected to state office in North Carolina, and I believe it is, nothing in the world can keep me from winning," she said.

Mrs. Harper is not only the only church organist among candidates in state primary races. She's also the only woman.

And while women have run before, including her own try for lieutenant governor four years ago, she's the first to be accorded serious prospects for victory.

Polls Put Her Second

Recent polls have rated her second in the field of five for the Democratic nomination. Political observers agree that if she makes it to a run-off, she has a toss-up or better chance to win.

Time and tide seem in her favor. Four years ago, her candidacy was a novelty. Rising concern for women's rights now makes it appear appropriate and timely.

There are Democrats who are saying that a woman would enhance the party's state ticket when it takes on the Republicans in the fall general election. The GOP already has its feminine candidate in Mrs. Grace Rohrer of Winston-Salem, running for secretary of state.

Mrs. Harper trusts Providence but she goes after the votes herself. Since early February, she has followed a campaign schedule that keeps up with her male opponents and disproves the theory of the weaker sex.

"I think I was born with physical stamina. My mother was a very vigorous woman into her 80's," she said. "I get tired, but not exhausted. There's an exhilaration that keeps you going."

No Sex Barriers

She goes in all the places where a man would go, with no barriers because of sex, she reported. She shakes hands in barbershops and country stores, and speaks before men's civic clubs and at political rallies.

Jim Harper takes in stride the role of candidate's spouse. He travels with his wife except when other details of the campaign keep him busy. In a lighter mood, he once accepted an invitation extended to a function for candidates' wives.

As far as Margaret Harper is concerned, the fact she's a woman is only one facet of her appeal for votes. Her background is a record of activity in politics and civic organizations and business experience in the insurance and newspaper fields.

Running On Ability

Women can run for office on the basis of their ability to do the job and not by reason of sex, she argued.

"I believe in equal pay for equal work and equal opportunity to advance, but I enjoy the difference between men and women," she said.

"I don't mean to put down Women's Lib, but I'm really not a feminist."

Some of the sorority are lending a hand. They are part of what she described as the happy conglomeration of her organization — clubwomen matrons and business executives, students and political mavericks.

Women ought to share the responsibilities of citizenship, Mrs. Harper said, and public office is one. "We are one-half of the population and yet we hold less than one per cent of elected offices. That's failing to utilize our resources," she said.

The doctrine of political involvement is one Margaret Harper has preached to women for years, including the past four as first vice chairman of the state Democratic Party.

Now she's again putting it into practice as a candidate, and waiting to see if 1972 is the year for it to reach fulfillment.

No Opposition To Bond Issues

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Supporters of the zoo and clean water bond issues for North Carolina are gearing up last minute advertising campaigns for the measures and express confidence that they will pass May 6.

With less than two weeks left until the election, no organized opposition has developed to either the $150 million water bonds or the $2 million zoo bond issue.

The water bonds are intended to launch a five-year local government clean water program throughout North Carolina by providing 25 per cent state matching grants to cities, towns, counties, sanitary districts and other eligible units for water supply and water pollution control projects.

These bonds are being actively endorsed by virtually every municipal and county government body and most major civic and women's clubs and community betterment groups in the state. The groups have joined to form the Statewide Clean Water Bond Committee to push the proposal.

Leigh Wilson, executive director of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, said, "We feel reasonably confident the bonds will pass."

Wilson said the bond committee will begin this week advertising campaign in support of water bonds.

The state has estimated that it will need $697 million in the next five years for public facilities for sewage collection and treatment and public water supply systems.

Currently the federal government pays only 33 per cent of waste treatment facilities construction costs, leaving local government to shoulder the other 67 per cent. With 25 per cent state matching funds, the federal share will increase to 55 per cent, leaving the local governments with 20 per cent of the cost.

FACING THE WIND

Lady Asquith, whose autobiography made such an extraordinary sensation in the English-speaking world when it appeared a few years ago, tells of how she met a beggar in the road one day and had an interesting talk with him. Before they separated she asked him this interesting question: "How do you decide which way to go?" His answer was very significant. "I always go," he replied, "with the wind at my back."

He was true tramp, a derelict, a drifter, a slacker, a ne'er-do-well. He never faced the wind or anything else in which there was opposition. When the wind blew he turned his back on it and went the other way. He turned his back on duty, privilege, sacrifice, normal living. What he was interested in was to avoid the effort and discipline which facing the hard things of life would involve.

Airplanes take off against the wind. A kite stays in the air only against the wind. Every man who is worth his salt has something — duty, faith, affectionate interest in someone else — which holds him against the wind. Only the slacker turns his back to the gale and finds his feeble satisfaction in going the easy way.

David With A Slingshot

One of the pleasant things about our town is that some ambitious David is forever passing through, twirling his slingshot for a crack at some Goliath. Such a visitor turned up last week: Richard W. Mason, of the San Fernando Valley.

He doesn't look much like David. He looks more like a school teacher, which is precisely what he is. For the past fourteen years he has taught sixth-grade pupils in the Canoga Park section of the Los Angeles public schools. Now he has taken indefinite leave to have his go at Goliath: He is serving as president of the National Association of Professional Educators. His purpose is to offer teachers an alternative to the compulsive unionism of the National Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers.

Not many of our Davids manage to fell their targets: Justice Douglas is not impeached, a World Calendar is not adopted, seniority reigns untouched on the Hill. But now and then, against improbable odds, a few determined men and women put enough energy and dedication in a cause that is right and crash — down comes a supersonic transport plane. Mason and his NAPE may triumph yet.

Surely, at least in a conservative view, their cause is right. Whatever may be said of trade unionism in other areas of public employment, trade unionism among teachers holds an incongruous place. Teachers are professionals; ideally their loyalty should be to teaching only — to the difficult art of pursuing truth and transmitting learning. No winds should blow in academic groves but winds of freedom.

In recent years some alien winds — winds of compulsion — have entered there. The American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) has grown into a powerful body with all the trappings of old-time trade unionism — the bargaining committee, the shop steward, the strike. And the NEA, once a free association of like-minded

Other Editors Say Port Rivalry Hurts

(Washington Daily News)

In many ways it is understandable that there should be rivalry between the Wilmington and Morehead City ports.

After all for many years now North Carolina has been pushing these two ports with great energies. And it is natural that one port will do more business than the other port.

Morehead City today apparently feels that the state is making the Wilmington port the "fair-haired child," and that Morehead City has become the step-child.

If we examine the picture carefully, it is difficult for outside people not fully acquainted with the overall picture to make a clear-cut judgment. The State Ports authority has been attacked as being more favorable to Wilmington than to Morehead.

The offices are in Wilmington, and that fact alone might cause it to appear that Wilmington is number one and Morehead is number two. But once the offices were moved to Raleigh, and that did not work out too well. We understand, however, that the Carteret people are asking that they again be moved to Raleigh and that two competing offices be set up — one for each port.

It is to be regretted that this rivalry has reached the point of great controversy. Both ports must face stiff competition from Norfolk, and they should be working in close cooperation one with the other.

We suspect that in many instances shipping lines have chosen one port over the other and perhaps more shippers have chosen Wilmington than Morehead. We do understand that much tobacco is being shipped out of the Wilmington port, but again, we would have to think in terms of the shipper making the choice rather than the State Ports authority.

We do not wish to see this rivalry get to a point where both of our ports will be hurting each other. If that happens, then only Norfolk will be the gainer and North Carolina will be hurt immensely.

Wilmington and Morehead are state ports and not local ports in the truest sense. If anywhere along the line, however, the State Ports authority has favored one over the other, then it is not right and it should not be that way. But right now there is no concrete evidence that we know of to substantiate any such discrimination.

Hydrogen Big In Fuel Research

By ELMER ROESSNER

Two promising developments in automotive fuel research — both based on hydrogen — were described at the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society this month.

The more exotic of the two was the successful use of hydrogen as fuel in converted gasoline engines. Dr. Roger J. Schoepel, an associate professor and chairman of the energy resources program at Oklahoma State University, reported the adaptation of four conventional engines to hydrogen fuel.

Hydrogen proves to be an excellent fuel, according to Dr. Schoepel, and produces hardly any pollution. The exhaust is essentially steam, which results from burning hydrogen and unused air. The only pollutant is nitric oxide and that is one-tenth of the concentration emitted by conventional gasoline engines.

In the past, the main engineering bar to using hydrogen was preignition due to the ease with which hydrogen-air mixtures can be ignited. Early developers were plagued with backfiring and detonation in the cylinders. The new system eliminates this difficulty by injecting the hydrogen into the cylinder — similar to fuel injection in diesel engines. The hydrogen is ignited at the start of injection and burns as a brief jet.

Dr. Schoepel indicated two negative factors would have to be overcome in developing hydrogen as an automotive fuel: a negative public attitude towards hydrogen and an entrenched fuel supply, distribution and sales system based on gasoline and diesel fuel.

The second use of hydrogen in automotive fuel research was the manufacture of "good quality" gasoline from shale oil. Lawrence K. Barker, chemical engineer with the U. S. Bureau of Mines, described the two-stage hydrogenation process.

Over 90 per cent of the nitrogen and sulphur compounds in shale oil were removed during the first hydrogenation step. The resulting "relatively clean" naphtha was again hydrogenated with a different catalyst, lowering nitrogen content to seven parts per million and sulphur content to less than 0.001 per cent.

The main drawback, as it has always been for shale oil, is cost. Until the processes for extracting oil from shale and gasoline from shale oil can be reduced to where it meets the rising cost of conventionally produced gasoline, nothing much is going to happen. moreover, there are still serious, unsolved problems on how to dispose of the waste — especially the acids — that result from shale processing.

Bureau: Is Now 'Lost'

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) — Just when you think the world may have stabilized—for better or worse—things fall into chaos around you.

One recent disaster, enough to boggle the mind, is that you and I have lost the Weather Bureau.

When you think about it, however, you know it had to happen. No government agency can exist with a simple name like "Weather Bureau." Congress probably wouldn't appropriate any money any longer for an outfit so unassuming.

Now you must call it the "National Weather Service." And an official Commerce Department statement announces that the real name of National Weather Service is "National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration."

As anyone would expect, Washington twisted this into the acronym NOAA.

Closest pronunciation we can find sounds like "Noah." And certainly Noah was the central figure in the largest weather phenomenon in written history.

The men who once worked for the Weather Bureau, and now for NOAA, still drop little morsels of information on the desk.

They all fall into the pattern of "did you know that," as in the following:

At the instant you read this word, there are 1,800 thunderstorms in progress. There are 45,000 of them a day somewhere in the world.

The energy released in one second in an average thunderstorm is greater than that produced by several atomic explosions.

teachers, has felt compelled to compete with compulsory devices along the same line—checked-off dues and a union shop. Both organizations are demanding not only the right to represent their own members in bargaining with school boards — no one reasonably could object to that; they also are demanding the power to bargain exclusively for non-members as well — and to compel the non-members to pay a fee for the unwanted service.

In Hawaii, to cite a recent example, the Hawaii State Teachers Association, an NEA affiliate, won a certification election over an opposing union aligned with the American Federation of Teachers. On February 15, the State Comptroller notified all teachers — the NEA members, the AFT members, and the several hundred independent teachers who wanted no part of either union — that henceforth "an service fee will be deducted from the payroll." The fee, amounting to $77 a year, "is a mandatory deduction." Proceeds will be turned over to the HSTA — to the considerable chagrin, one supposes, of the AFT, and to the outraged cries of the independents.

Hawaii's compulsory "service fee" is not unusual; it is increasingly typical of the power grabs of the two great unions. In defense of the compulsion, union spokesmen marshal all the threadbare arguments against free riders. But their arguments are specious. Call the practice a "service fee," or call it an "agency shop," the system approaches extortion — the obtaining of money under threat of harm, in this case, the threat of being fired.

Mason's National Association of Professional Educators, headquartered in Encino, came into being two years ago when 6,000 independent teachers in Los Angeles rebelled at paying compulsory tribute to a union they positively did not want. Now membership is spreading rapidly among teachers across the nation who are fed up with militancy, with strike threats, and with class war against parents, pupils, and taxpayers.

Mason was in town to testify against a House bill that would legitimize exclusive bargaining rights for unions of public employees. He was headed to Miami to talk with independent teachers there. He will be visiting other States in which the NEA and the AFT are seeking to impose union membership or service fees as the price a teacher must pay to stay in her classroom. And he has his slingshot in hand, loaded with a lovely missile — the love of freedom. Right on!

N.C. Teacher Receives Award At White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A black high school teacher from Durham, James Rogers Jr., who made a black studies course as "exciting and as important to white students as to black students," received the National Teacher of the Year award at the White House Monday.

Rogers, 31, received the award from Julie Nixon Eisenhower, who stood in for her mother. Mrs. Nixon is recovering from influenza.

"If we had more teachers like you we would be a much better nation," Mrs. Eisenhower said in giving a large plaque to the Durham High School American history teacher.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who presented the award to Rogers as several dignitaries looked on, noted that Rogers was the first of his race to ever be named teacher of the year in the competition sponsored by the Encyclopedia Britannica, the Council of Chief State School Officers, and the Ladies Home Journal.

Mrs. Eisenhower said Rogers was "an inspiration to us all."

Rogers had been teaching only two years. He had worked with an antipoverty program to help high-school dropouts. The graduate of North Carolina Central University received his masters degree in history and education from Appalachian State University in Boone, N.C.

The ceremony at the White House Monday was attended by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot Richardson, Education Commissioner Sidney Marland Mr., North Carolina's two U.S. Senators, Sam J. Ervin and B. Everett Jordan, along with other North Carolina congressmen, state and federal officials.

Rogers was accompanied by his parents and three sisters.

He accepted the award "on behalf of all teachers of the United States." He said the award was "not mine alone. I represent all people involved in the public teaching profession."

Rogers is one of the youngest teachers to ever receive the award.

He was selected by a panel of educators from among 49 nominees representing 47 states and two territories. In addition to citing Rogers for his success with both white and black pupils in the black studies class, the judges noted Rogers' "superior ability to inspire a love of learning and intellectual curiosity in students of varying backgrounds and skills."

Restructuring Of Methodist Boards, Agencies Is Opposed

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Proposals to restructure the United Methodist Church's boards and agencies face opposition today from delegates attending the denomination's governing conference.

Nearly 1,000 delegates of the church's lawmaking assembly began Monday night considering reports of legislative committees that have been studying restructuring proposals contained in a 183-page volume.

The study proposes creation of four boards: Church and Society, Disciple, Global Ministries and Higher Education and Ministry.

If approved, it would cause reshuffling of several agencies and boards in the United Methodist Church throughout the nation.

The greatest resistance to the restructuring study thus far has come from the conference's Board of Education. A separate board now, its function would be combined with evangelistic and lay activities.

The issue first came on the floor of the general conference eight days ago, when the two-week conference opened. The Structure Study Committee, which has spent four years studying the issues, presented it to the delegates. It was later referred to legislative committees.

Another effect of the proposed restructuring would be the setting up of a powerful council of ministries which would have the power to establish policies and adopt regulations between sessions of the general conference.

The general conference, top governing body of the 10.5 million-member denomination, meets every four years.

SPUD LEADER

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho is the nation's leading potato producer, growing about 73 million cwt. (hundredweight) annually, worth more than $144,350,000. The state ranks second in sugar beets and fourth in barley and has large crops of wheat, hops and apples.

Delegates heard a report Monday from church leaders concerning "Key 73," a broad-based evangelistic program to be undertaken by a number of Christian denominations in the United States and Canada.

More than 130 denominations and evangelism groups are participating in the program. This is the first time that the United Methodist Church has participated with such diverse groups as Pentecostal groups and evangelistic associations as well as member denominations of the National Council of Churches.

The program drew fire from Dr. Richard Pittenger of Huron, S.D.

"I am not opposed to this kind of cooperation," said Pittenger.

He added, however, that

Methodists would be expected to enter into various evangelistic programs which could "actually end up embarrassing us and our people."

"Especially is this true when these experiences are led by our itinerant evangelists...who blast either openly or by inference those who insist on the validity of Christ's clear teachings."

Many Methodists, Pittenger said, "support in a massive way the ministries of television preachers who preach a partial gospel. One of these, who wields vast influence with people in high places... has become sort of a high priest."

Pittenger said he had twice heard evangelist Billy Graham comment during his crusades about congressional legislation concerning rat control in slum areas.

He quoted Graham as saying, "We had rats when I was a boy and we did not ask the federal government to get rid of them for us. We got rid of the rats ourselves."

Graham, Pittenger added, was raised on a farm "and there is a great deal of difference between getting rid of rats from farms and granaries under your control and getting them out of the walls of tenements from which they skulk on the helpless young."

"The United Methodist Church must publicly disavow this kind of radical insensitivity to burning human needs," Pittenger said.

Later, a delegate, Harry M. Gordon of Scranton, Pa., made a motion that the remarks about Graham be stricken from the record and that the conference "send Christian greetings to Graham."

The motion failed on a close vote by a show of hands.

In other action, the Fund for Reconciliation announced that $12 million will be spent to heal broken relationships among persons of different ethnic and racial backgrounds.

The fund, however, fell short of the $20 million it had hoped to raise when it was set up four years ago.

Church officials said that about $29 million in other funds had been generated for the program which is part of the Quadrennial Emphasis Program, "a new church for a new day."

More than 1,200 special projects have been supported by the fund. They include housing, job counseling, legal aid, narcotics and alcoholism prevention programs, jobs for dropouts, grants for small businesses, and work among delinquent gangs.

License Examiner's Role Cited By Scott

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today the judgment of driver license examiners is critical in the over-all problem of combating deaths and injuries on the highways.
The licensing of would-be drivers "is a distinct 'plus item' in the over-all effort" of traffic safety," the governor said.
His remarks were contained in a speech prepared for a regional driver's license workshop of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.
Fred M. Mills Jr., state secretary of transportation and highway safety, delivered the talk for Scott, who was unable to attend due to the death of his mother, Mrs. W. Kerr Scott.
The governor said driver license examiners "are making life-and-death decisions" every time they take a license applicant out for a driving test, every time they administer a written test or check an applicant for vision.
He added that "we are beginning to see the development of an awareness on the part of the average motorist that he is basically responsible for the carnage on our highways. Evidence of this growing awareness becomes more apparent

Seventeen In Crowd Killed

MANILA (AP) — Exploding hand grenades tossed into a crowded town square early today killed 17 persons and injured nearly 100, including the governor of Ilocos Sur Province, Red Cross officials said.
Relatives said the attack was an attempt to assassinate Gov. Luis Chavit Singson, the fifth since he was elected last November. His left elbow was struck by shrapnel.
Hospitals in the area 220 miles northwest of Manila were filled with casualties from the explosion, which was attributed to the political feuding that has torn the province for the past year. At least 42 persons have died in battles between Singson's supporters and a rival group headed by his cousin, Vincent Crisologo. Both men have private armies of armed mercenaries.
Elsewhere today, government troops battled about 60 members of the Maoist New People's Army in a mountainous region of northeastern Zambales Province 80 miles northeast of Manila.
Initial reports said one government soldier was killed and three wounded in the fight, which lasted most of the day.

Pirates Capture 3-2 Victory Over VMI

Texas Teams Continue Wins

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

When you're hot, you're hot and that's not just some more Texas bluster, podnuh.

How else can you account for the Houston Astros and Texas Rangers continuing their winning ways Monday night on key blows by players who are hitting their weight, but not by much?

In the only baseball games played, the Astros nipped the Chicago Cubs 3-2 on an 11th-inning home run by 211-pound John Edwards (.239 lifetime average) and the Rangers defeated the California Angels 6-4 on a two-run seventh-inning single by 205-pound and .254-average Larry Bittner.

The only other scheduled contest—Detroit at Milwaukee—was postponed by cold weather.

Houston's triumph was its seventh in a row and lifted the Astros into a tie with Los Angeles for the National League West lead. Texas has won four straight and is tied with the Chicago White Sox for second in the American League West, just .042 percentage points behind Oakland.

At the other end of the scale, the Cubs have dropped six in a row, the Angels five, and both are last in their respective divisions.

Houston's strong start isn't surprising since most experts thought the Astros improved themselves with off-season deals.

"This is the best club I've ever gone to Florida with or come out of Florida with," manager Harry Walker said following spring training.

One of the new acquisitions, first baseman Lee May, socked a two-run homer in the first inning after Ron Santo's staked the Cubs to a 2-0 lead with a home run of his own.

Edwards' homer with one out in the 11th made a loser out of Cub ace Fergie Jenkins for the third time in the young season, although it was only the fourth hit of the game off the 1971 Cy Young Award winner.

But the Rangers are in lofty surroundings for one of the few times since their birth as the expansion Washington Senators in 1971 and some of the boys aren't used to it.

"The two series coming (Detroit and Boston) are important because we've got to see if we can hold our own with the big boys," said Bittner.

Bittner, who had been stuck out twice earlier by Andy Messersmith, drove home the tying and lead runs as the Rangers scored three times, in the seventh. His bases-loaded single was a smash off the glove of first baseman Jim Spencer. Leo Cardenas and Spencer homered for the Angels.

You're Out Of The Game

Houston Astros' Cesar Cedeno just did not have a very good night as he became quite upset over a close call at first base by umpire Frank Pulley. After an exchange of words Pulley ejected Cedeno from the game which made the Astro even madder and he had to be held back by Astro Coach Buddy Hancken. The Astros went on to win the game, 3-2, in extra innings. (AP Wirephoto)

Seagren On Comeback Trail; Getting Hungry

By DAN BERGER

Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — He went from a 15-foot pole vaulter in high school to a 16-4 vaulter in his first year of college.

And then came all the glamor an athlete can hope for: the national pole vault champion; one of the first to clear 17 feet.

Then there was a successful tour of Europe, cheered by hundreds of thousands; a desired speaker at banquets because of his good looks and easy-going speech; a world record and then the Olympic gold medal followed by a storybook marriage to a beauty queen.

Bob Seagren then came down to earth. Literally.

The rugged graduate of the University of Southern California was horseback riding with his wife Kam in mid-1971 when—

"the horse ran away with me is what happened. I thought I had control of him until he threw me. I landed hard, on my right knee ... really tore it up."

The operation late last year left him depressed and upset. "I was slow coming around, even after the case came off," he says.

"Most guys who have cartilage operations are back playing football in four weeks. It was months before I could run and it was a little depressing to see my right leg 2½ inches smaller at the thigh than my left."

But Bob Seagren may have profited from his experience of falling out of the headlines.

"I'm hungry again," he says. "It's really satisfying when people ask for your autograph and want to do stories about you. But in the past year, I've just been nobody, just an average guy. Last week at the Kansas Relays, I was treated just like I was one of the 47 pole vaulters. I wasn't treated like Kjell."

At Kansas last week, Seagren cleared 17-0, the first time he'd reached that level in more than a year. And he nearly went over 17-5 but "I didn't know what to do. I'm using a new pole and it was a bit shocking to be so far over the bar."

Sam Snead has won the PGA senior golf title five times.

Kjell Isaksson now holds the world record. Back in 1968 when Seagren set the mark at 17-9, many thought he'd be the first over the 18-foot barrier. He wasn't and now Sweden's Isaksson holds the mark—18 feet 2 inches—and is favored by signature seekers.

At Kansas last week, Seagren cleared 17-0, the first time he'd reached that level in more than a year. And he nearly went over 17-5 but "I didn't know what to do. I'm using a new pole and it was a bit shocking to be so far over the bar."

Sam Snead has won the PGA senior golf title five times.

LEXINGTON, Va. East Carolina University's Pirates outlasted Virginia Military Institute yesterday and escaped with their third straight win over the Keydets, 3-2.

The victory boosted the Pirate record in the Southern Conference to 6-3 and left them knocking on the door to first place. They still trail first place Furman, however, which has a 8-2 record.

Furman is supposed to make up a doubleheader with Davidson today. The Pirates next outing will be Wednesday against the team that is currently tied with them for second, Richmond. A sweep of the pair by the Bucs, coupled with at least a split by Furman could propel the Bucs into a near-tie for first.

Curve-baller Glenn Forbes of Robersonville tossed the victory for the Pirates, although he needed help in the late innings. Don Oxidine came on in the seventh with one away, and stayed until the ninth, when Tommy Toms came on to face the final three batters.

Forbes gave up eight hits, but he scattered them well enough to keep VMI handcuuffed except for the sixth inning when they came up with both of their runs.

The Bucs got only five hits off the Keydets' Don Darnell, but they proved to be enough to get them through the game with the win.

The Pirates started the scoring in the first inning, getting two across. With one away, Larry Walters walked and Ralph Lamm followed with a single.

Mike Aldridge then uncorked a double, driving in both runners. Aldridge later moved to third on a wild pitch, but was stranded there.

The Pirates also missed on a chance to score again in the second when a double steal failed to pay off. Skip Horton had reached on a fielder's choice and moved to third when Forbes singled. The two then tried the double steal, but Horton was cut down at the plate, leaving the score at 2-0.

Finally, in the third, the Bucs got the run that proved to be the winning one. With one away, Lamm was hit by a pitch. He stole second, and when the ball got away there, he moved on to third. Aldridge finished off the afternoon with a sacrifice fly to center, scoring Lamm after the catch for a 3-0 lead.

Only in the final two innings did the Pirates offer another threat. That came when Lamm walked and stole second in the eighth, and when Ron Staggs walked and moved up on an out in the ninth. Neither advanced beyond second, however.

VMI, meanwhile, was putting on some threats, but getting little in the way of payoffs. In the second, with two away, Lenny Reidel singled and Wayne Harrel doubled, putting runners on second and third. Forbes fanned the next batter, however, getting out of the jam.

In the fourth, Vernon Beitzel singled to open the inning and Ken Wester followed with a walk. But a pickoff of Wester, a popup and a ground-out got Forbes out of the jam again.

The sixth, however, payed off for the Keydets as they scored two runs to close within 3-2. With one away, Louis Dowdy walked and Beitzel slapped a double.

Wester followed with a single, scoring both runners, but the rally died there as the next batter hit onto a twin-killing.

Harrel singled and moved to second on an out in the seventh, and Wester led off the ninth with a single, moving up on an out, only to follow Harrel in waiting out the frame without advancement.

The Pirates now have seven Southern Conference games remaining on the schedule. Following Wednesday's twinbill with Richmond, they travel to meet Furman and William & Mary in doubleheaders, and close with a single game against Davidson. The Pirates also have two single games with new conference member Appalachian, but they do not count in the standings.

Sharman Named Coach Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Sharman, whose Los Angeles Lakers won a record 69 games during the regular season, was named Coach of the Year in the National Basketball Association today.

The 45-year-old Sharman was a runaway winner in the voting by three sports writers in each of the league's 17 cities with 42 votes. Tom Heinsohn of Boston and Al Attles of Golden State tied for second with three votes each.

Gene Shue of Baltimore received two votes and Lenny Wilkens of Seattle one.

In Sharman's first season as Los Angeles coach, the Lakers reeled off a 33-game winning streak, unprecedented in the history of major league professional team sports while cruising to the Pacific Division title. The Lakers then went on to win the Western Conference Championship and are preparing to meet the New York Knicks for the NBA title.

In 81 of their 82 regular season games, the Lakers scored 100 or more points.

Sharman's attributes the team's success to the conditioning program he put the Lakers on when he was lured away from the champion Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.

"There are no secrets in this game," Sharman said. "A player who is in the best shape possible is in a position to function and reach maximum efficiency. No other sport can compare with basketball in the importance of conditioning."

"I've tried through the years to work out patterns and drills that will keep my team in condition. I take the game seriously. That's why I demand so much of my players. You have to win everything—all the time."

Hawks Looking For New Coach

ATLANTA (AP) — Richie Guerin, dean of National Basketball Association coaches, had a new title and a new job today. The new Atlanta Hawks general manager has to find a new Hawks coach.

Hawks President Bill Putnam announced Monday that Guerin, coach of the Hawks since 1964 when they were in St. Louis, would become the general manager and also would find his own successor.

"Richie is in charge of the basketball situation, scouting and all," Putnam said.

The new general manager declined to speculate on his choice for a new coach.

"I would never mention a name unless I had contacted the person," he said.

Several men, including Memphis Pro Coach Babe McCarthy and Marquette University Coach Al McGuire, have been rumored as Guerin's successor.

The Hawks have been in the NBA playoffs every year since Guerin became coach, and won Western Division titles in 1968 and 1970. His regular season record with the team is 337-290 and he is 26-34 in playoff games.

Guerin began his pro career as a player with the New York Knicks.

He was traded to the Hawks in 1963 and replaced Harry Galatin as coach in December 1964. He was a player-coach for six years.

Hopes For Super Bowl For Netters

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — William F. Talbert, chairman of the U.S. Open Championships at Forest Hills, has come up with an answer to the current tennis war—a double-header tournament climaxed by a Tennis Super Bowl.

Now all he needs is approval from the feuding parties—Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis troupe and the affiliate associations of the International Lawn Tennis Association.

"I have been distressed by news that the contract pros plan to boycott Wimbledon—or are being shut out, whichever the case may be," the former ranking player and U.S. Davis Cup captain said today, "and that the top pros also may not play at Forest Hills and other established tournaments."

"I lay awake at night wondering what the solution might be and then the thought struck me: Why not hold two tournaments simultaneously—one tournament for the contract pros and another for the other players. Let each group determine its own champion and then have the two champions meet on the final Sunday in a sort of super bowl."

"Who could be against it? Both sides would get what they want. The public would benefit. This fighting is silly. All the public wants is to see the players. Why shouldn't they?"

Talbert said that, as chairman and tournament director of the U.S. Open, he would propose a $50,000 tournament involving the best 96 players, such as Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase, who are not under contract to Hunt, playing for a proportionate purse.

"All Hunt is asking is a purse of $50,000—we're willing to put that up," Talbert said. "The other players could compete as they normally would. Then we could have a playoff."

"I don't think Lamar Hunt would object to it. He helped found the American Football League and was largely responsible for the Super Bowl in pro football. I would hope that there would be no obstacle from the ILTF, but who can tell? It's just too simple."

At the present time, the 1972 Wimbledon the most famed tennis tournament, is scheduled to go on without such stars as Rod Laver, John Newcome, Ken Rosewall and Arthur Ashe, members of the Hunt troupe. The big championships at Forest Hills, Rome and Paris also are likely to suffer because the ILTF refuses to give in to WCT's demands for expense monies.

The feud is threatening to destroy the advantages of open competition, which was voted in 1968.

Davidson Dumps Duke

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Duke of the Atlantic Coast Conference was sailing along nicely Monday with a 5-0 lead over the Davidson baseball team of the Southern Conference. Then the roof fell in, and Davidson won 9-6.

The Wildcats scored four runs in the eighth inning, two of them on Duke Errors and two on walks. Davidson added five runs in the ninth inning on four hits, three walks and two errors.

Tangled Tango

Members of the New York Nets and Virginia Squires show their footwork in a kind of lunging basketball ballet as they struggle for a rebound in the game Monday in the ABA Eastern Division playoff series. Going for the rebound are the Nets John Baum (20) and Virginia Squires' Bernie Williams (11), while the Nets Bill Melchionni (25) keeps step. Baum captured the ball in the third period action as the Nets won, 119-117. (AP Wirephoto)

New York Nets Find Combination, Get Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
After losing the first two games of their American Basketball Association Eastern Division playoff finals to Virginia, then waiting through a nine-day layoff before Game 3, the New York Nets managed to find the right combination at the Nassau Coliseum Monday night—let four men share the scoring and let Ollie Taylor perform "a little assault and battery" on defense.

That combination produced a 119-117 victory for the Nets, cutting Virginia's lead in the series to 2-1 and giving the Nets a chance to square things in the fourth game Wednesday night.

In the ABA Western Division finals, Utah got 34 points from Willie Wise and 32 from Jimmie Jones and bombed the Indiana Pacers 139-130 at Salt Lake City. The Stars now lead that series 3-2, and can wrap it up Wednesday night in Bloomington, Ind.

The Nets led nearly all the way in their game, but seven straight points by Virginia put the Squires ahead 117-116 in the final two minutes. Center Billy Paultz tied it for New York with a free throw with 1:16 to play, then Rick Barry hit a lay-up with just eight seconds showing on the clock to provide the margin of victory.

Barry and John Roche scored 25 each for New York, followed by Paultz with 23 and Bill Melchionni with 20. Taylor, meanwhile, did the job on defense, limiting Julius Erving, who had scored 27 points in the first half, to just four in the second half.

"I played him without the ball," said the 6-foot-2 Taylor, who shackled the 6-6 Erving after intermission. "Yes, it was a little assault and battery, but I didn't beat him up that much. I just tried to muscle him a little bit, force him outside. From 15 feet in, he's murder—just unstoppable."

Taylor's criminal efforts apparently paid off. Although his 31 points were high for the game, Erving managed to sink only 11 of 35 field goal attempts, and was but two for 12 in the second half.

On the other hand, the Utah shooters, led by Wise and Jones, were unstoppable. The Stars sank 67 per cent of their field goal attempts in jumping off to a 78-61 halftime lead and finished with a 61 per cent shooting mark for the game.

Jones connected on 13 of 17 field goal attempts, prompting his coach, LaDell Anderson, to remark, "Everybody was trying to guard him—and nobody did a very good job."

Mel Daniels led Indiana with 29 points and Billy Keller added 24, including five three-point goals.

In the National Basketball Association playoffs, the New York Knicks and Los Angeles Lakers will open their best-of-seven championship series Wednesday night in Los Angeles, the NBA announced Monday. Starting time will be 10 p.m. EST.

The second game of the series will also be played in Los Angeles, on Sunday April 30. The teams will then fly to New York for the next two games, May 3 and May 5. Starting times for those games have not yet been determined.

Dates for the fifth, sixth and seventh games of the series, if necessary, have also yet to be determined. The fifth and seventh games would be played in Los Angeles, the sixth in New York.

The fates were against the Rampants of Rose High School yesterday as they fell from a tie for first place in the Division II baseball standings. New Bern and the weather combined to take a 2-1 victory over the Rampants.

The game could not have ended on a more argumentative note. When it was called by umpire-in-chief J. M. Merrill, the Rampants were at bat in the sixth, trailing by the final score. They had the tying run on third and the go-ahead run at second and no one out. The heart of the batting order was coming up. Bill Lee had worked up a 3-0 count against the New Bern pitcher.

It was then that Merrill raised his hand, and waved the Bears off the field, signaling it was raining too hard to continue.

After a wait of nearly 30 minutes, Merrill conferred with base umpire Jim Malory and it was decided that the game could continue. New Bern was told to return to the field, but protested that it was still too wet to continue. After some five minutes of arguments, they agreed to continue, but only after another five minutes wait for warmups.

By the time those five minutes had expired, the rains had increased and Merrill ended the game.

The loss was the second for the Rampants in league play and left them a game out of first place.

The Bears left no doubt about the fact that they came to play ball, banging Rose hurler Stanley Cobb hard during the opening innings and keeping him in trouble all the way. At the same time, their pitcher, Jerry Jones, used his stuff to keep the Rampants off the basepaths until the third, and hitless until the fifth.

New Bern's first threat came in the second when Wade Lamb singled to center with one out, advanced to second on an out and then gained third on a passed ball.

But it was in the fourth and fifth that they scored on Rampant mistakes. Gene Austin led off the fifth with a walk and Gary Robinson followed with a double to center. David Land walked, loading the bases.

Cobb then whirled and faked a throw to third, and Merrill charged him with a balk, waiving Austin across the plate. Rose coach Dave Holton argued that Cobb had legally stepped off the rubber before faking the throw, but it was in vain, and the Bears held a 1-0 lead.

The angry Cobb struck out the next two Bears before the last grounded out.

In the fifth, New Bern struck again for what proved to be the winning run. With one out, Larry Weatherington walked and Jim Heatherly singled, moving Weatherington to third. Heatherly then moved to second on a steal, and the ball was thrown into center, allowing Weatherington to score unhindered for a 2-0 lead.

The Rampants, held in check most of the way, got their lone run in the shortened sixth. They had put only two on base prior to that. Jerry Griffin had been hit by a pitch in the third and Robert Brinkley had singled to right in the fifth.

The aroused Rampants came up in the sixth, however, determined to do the job. They nearly made it.

Jim McDermott led off with a single to deep short. Robbie Cox hit a sharp drive to third that could not be relayed in time to make a play. J. C. Daniels followed with a single to center, scoring McDermott. The ball got past the Bear catcher on the relay and both Cox and Daniels moved up to second and third. Lee followed and worked up a 3-0 count on Jones, but Merrill stopped the game at that point. Rose again argued that it wasn't raining that hard, but again, the argument was in vain.

Rose travels to Kinston today to face the Vikings in hopes of getting back into the title race.

Aycock In Win

E. B. Aycock Junior High School gained a 1-0 victory over Wilson Junior High School yesterday.

Chris Manning tossed a two-hitter at Wilson to gain the shutout win. He struck out seven and walked two in going the distance.

The game was a scoreless tie until the sixth inning when Aycock finally scored the lone run of the contest. Curtis Keys led off with a walk, and then stole second base. Macon Moye followed with a double and that brought in Keys with the winning run.

The victory brought the Phantom record up to 3-3 for the season.

Opening lead: Six of ♦
Despite West's craven attitude during the auction and total lack of resourcefulness in defending against South's four heart contract, East managed to salvage a small profit on the deal for his side thru a highly imaginative play.

East opened the bidding with one diamond and South overcalled with one heart. West lacked the values to enter the auction freely and North who had the equivalent of an opening bid plus excellent support for partner did his best to forestall further competition by jumping directly to four hearts.

East was not disposed to allow his opponents to steal the hand at a bargain price and he doubled—holding 18 high card points. It is with West's decision to pass that we must take issue. His total lack of defensive strength as well as his length in diamonds—East's original suit—so diminishes the defensive potential, that West should take out insurance on the deal by carrying on to five diamonds. As it develops, East cannot be prevented from winning 12 tricks on the deal due to the favorable location of the king of spades as well as the even division of that suit which enables him to establish West's long spade to discard the deuce of clubs. East's only loser is in hearts.

Against South's four heart contract, the original opening of the jack of spades by West would have enabled the defense to rattle off three tricks in that suit. The ace of diamonds and ace of clubs will net the defense a 500 point profit on the deal—nearly sufficient to offset their game.

East is marked with strength in spades by his double of four hearts, and West's sequence in the suit suggests the desirability of attacking in that direction while he still retains the initiative. His decision to lead a diamond instead put it squarely up to his partner.

East won the first trick with the king of diamonds and the appearance of dummy strongly suggested that once the ace of clubs was dislodged, North's side suit could be profitably developed to discard declarer's spade losers. Since it must be presumed from South's vulnerable overall that he had the top cards in hearts, then spades offered the only hope of defeating the contract.

Altho West had failed to lead the suit himself, East decided to play his partner for the jack and he accordingly shifted to the ace, followed by the queen of spades. North was in with the king and after trumps were drawn, South led a club to the queen. East was in with the ace and a third round of spades enabled West to score the setting trick which would have been denied him, but for East's prompt action at trick two.

Florida Law Is Invalid

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Florida law that allows widows an extra $500 property tax exemption was declared discriminatory and invalid Friday.

Circuit Judge Thomas Testa, saying the law discriminated against men, acted in a suit filed by Mel Kahn, a widower.

Kahn said in his suit that while a widow may have lost a breadwinner, a widower "loses a cook, nurse, laundress, seamstress, tutor, babysitter and chauffeur for the children, as well as the pecuniary value of those services."

Kahn filed suit in January 1971 when the state refused to accept his claim for the $500 exemption allowed widows.

How A Church Is 'Retarded'

Sybil wants to know why stodgy churches resort to paid choirs. But produce few "conversions." So analyze the 3 types of music outlined below. It is "head" music and sociology sermons that have retarded our churches!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case T-560: Sybil G., aged 19, attended the Northwestern University School of Music.

Since I then taught the psychology courses for the Music School Students, I tried to stress the viewpoint of the orator vs. that of the usual clergyman? "Dr. Crane," Sybil inquired, "why do preachers who are revivalists produce far more converts than the usual clergyman?"

"And why do many fancy city churches pay their choirs whereas other churches with volunteer musicians, add many more new members to their church rolls?"

"I am engaged to a Garrett Biblical student so I'd like to help him develop a dynamic church that really influences people."

Oratory vs. Music
There are really 3 distinct types of music, as viewed psychologically.

One is the "head" variety; the second is for the "heart", and the third is "foot" music for dancing or marching.

Professional choirs usually come under that "head" category.

For the singers focus almost exclusively on the director.

But orators, magicians and other platform artists maintain steady eye-contact with their audience.

They observe closely to see if the crowd is following them or if they need to vary their methods to gain greater attention.

Alas, far too much church music ignores the congregation.

For the verses (lyrics) are often unfamiliar to the audience and the tunes are even strange.

The director also keeps his choir's attention riveted on his waving hands.

And the singers may even sit in recessed alcoves, so the congregation can't even see them!

Since they are thus invisible, and their music is neither the sort to resurrect lofty teen-age inspirational memories, nor are the lyrics even understandable, such music is not productive.

For it doesn't enlist active vocal participation by the congregation nor does it arouse the crowd to a higher religious mood.

So it merely wastes 5 or 10 minutes of valuable time and leaves the clergyman with an emotionally "cold" audience.

Which makes it harder for the

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Tuesday, April 25, 1972—9 pastor to produce a mountain-top religious experience as he enters his peroration.

"Heart" music, however, brings the congregation into active participation.

It also revives their childhood memories of mother and idealism.

So they are then partly aroused for that lofty point of inspiration in the clergyman's peroration.

Alas, far too many college trained musicians begin to worship music for its own sake.

They belong to the effete "art for art's sake" fraternity.

Actually, the major function of church music is to work up the crowd by a revival of its earlier idealism.

It is not to let a paid choir or Music Director show off their melodic "pyrotechnics."

Church music is merely supposed to be a melodic aid to a superb orator in the pulpit. It is not an end in itself.

I-IT'S ACTUALLY FLOATING... GO ON, SHERMAN, WHAT'S THE NEXT PICTURE?

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually beautiful day for excellent relations with other people. Get together with them to make the new cooperative arrangements that can create greater harmony. Make your surroundings more attractive as well and be happy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to discuss ideas with others since there can be much mutual understanding now. Listen to their suggestions carefully, too. Get together at fun places later in the day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Go out of the way to gain the support from others that you need, then do your work especially well for best results. Buy needed spring clothing. Choose with special care. Stay within your budget.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Once your important work is done, be off to see people who can help you with creative ideas you have. Mate is in a fine mood, so don't spoil things by bringing up some old question, quarrel. Concentrate on happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Concentrate your efforts on home and family today so you make all more harmonious there and get the support you need for projects. Do some enjoyable entertaining at home in p.m. Much good comes of this.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Sit down with newcomers and plan new routines that can be mutually helpful and remunerative. Handle all that correspondence quickly and well. Some transportation problem can be worked out satisfactorily now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can get your monetary affairs in fine order if you really apply yourself. Start early. That annoying property matter can now be taken care of with the right solution if you think objectively and clearly. Grow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can easily take care of those personal matters that are vital to your welfare and get excellent results. Analyze your present position and talk over with an expert how you can improve it. Take suggestions wisely, not with resentment if you disagree.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) In the quiet of your study you can figure out exactly what you want to have or to accomplish in the future, and make plans for it. One in trouble comes to you for advice. Give it willingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to have a good time and can now contact those people you would like to have accompany you, but don't include one who is a spoil-sport. Go after that personal aim that means so much to you. Use tact.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go after more prestige and success in the outside world today and be sure to get it via right channels. A credit matter requires your immediate attention. Give it. Take it easy tonight at whatever you like best to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Follow through with those new ideas you have. Get out early to be with the people who can help you commercialize on them. Get help from another for some trip you have in mind. This can be very successful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have to show true devotion for the one you love if you are to get the results you want. You have responsibilities that are annoying, but need handling without quibbling any further. Avoid one who bickers a great deal.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those fortunate young people who will have so much charm that others will want to do almost anything for your child, but you must teach early to stand on own feet and be willing to work for what is desired. Then this becomes an exceptionally successful chart. The fields of music, art, design, etc., are especially good here. Do not neglect to give benefit of sports.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Convention Hall Made Available

By ERIC SHARP
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., (AP) — General Motors says it is agreeable to giving up a lease on the Miami Beach Convention Hall, apparently clearing the way for the Republicans to move the GOP National Convention here from San Diego.

A GM spokesman said in Detroit Monday that the company had been contacted about moving its Aug. 16-31 Buick Division convention out of Miami Beach. The spokesman said GM was willing to give up the convention hall if it could be released from its commitments to hotels and other businesses in the area.

But the spokesman said he believed that "should be no stumbling block" and "we're perfectly willing to give up the space."

Just prior to GM's statement, a high GOP source involved in the Miami Beach convention negotiations said "the only real problem facing us is whether GM will change its dates."

Sen. Robert Dole, chairman of the GOP National Committee, held conferences with a party official here Monday. Then he announced an emergency session of the national committee would be held in Washington on May 5-6 to vote on moving the convention.

Dole said that the Republi-

Named Sowers' Campaign Aide

RALEIGH — Mrs. Jean Stanfield, Plymouth businesswoman, will be Washington County manager of Roy Sowers' campaign for Lieutenant Governor.

"I am extremely pleased that Jean Stanfield is working in my campaign," Sowers said in making the announcement. "She believes as I do that the Lieutenant Governor's office ought to become known as a 'people office' and she is going to help me make that a reality."

cans faced "almost insurmountable problems" to holding their convention Aug. 21-24 in San Diego. The Democrats have scheduled their convention for Miami Beach July 10-14.

GOP leaders said they could not move their convention up any earlier than Aug. 21 because of conflicts with party bylaws.

San Diego pledged more than $500,000 for the Republican convention, but the city has raised only about $100,000 so far. The party also is involved in disputes over construction at the San Diego Sports Arena and is having trouble finding enough hotel rooms.

The Los Angeles Times reported Sunday that Peter Graham, operator of the Sports Arena, has demanded $442,500 worth of permanent interior changes to the facility and an additional $100,000 rent. The Times also said the Republicans were asked to pay up to $850,000 to make the sports arena usable as a convention center. Graham has refused to comment.

Miami Beach officials have indicated they won't offer the Republicans much more than $100,000 if the switch is made, the GOP source involved in the Florida negotiations said, "that doesn't mean anything. Miami Beach knows we can't yelp much about them only giving us $100,000 when the other place wants to charge us nearly a million."

Muskie Target In 2 Primaries

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

Democrats in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts vote today in doubleheader presidential primary elections, with Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and George McGovern forecasting victories. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie was embattled on both flanks.

The dual primaries began an intensive month of Democratic balloting with Muskie of Maine, his early lead a fading memory, battling to remain a contender for the White House nomination.

Muskie put his campaign emphasis on Pennsylvania and said in Pittsburgh he was "reasonably confident." Humphrey said he expected to win and begin "the long victory trail to the White House."

McGovern, far ahead in the polls in Massachusetts, said he expected to score "a clean sweep there," and ventured south Monday to hunt votes in Pennsylvania, too.

The voting began at 7 a.m. EST in Pennsylvania and some Massachusetts communities. Polls were to close at 8 p.m. EST in both states.

In Pennsylvania, Humphrey of Minnesota, Muskie, McGovern of South Dakota, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama were on the presidential preference ballot. That contest is not binding on the 182-vote delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

Pennsylvania Democrats were choosing 137 of the delegates in the primary. Humphrey said he expected to win more of them than any other candidate. Muskie was banking on the support of Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Democratic leaders signed on in his frontrunning days to buoy his delegate showing. The long and complex Massachusetts ballot listed 12 names in a presidential preference poll. There are 102 delegates at stake there, 20 to the statewide winner, the rest apportioned among the 12 congressional districts. Only McGovern and Muskie were running full delegate slates. The Muskie slate is headed by Boston Mayor Kevin H. White and boasts a lineup of party office holders and leaders.

But in Massachusetts, the preference vote is binding on the first convention ballot, raising the prospect that some name Democrats pledged to Muskie might win delegate seats and go to the convention in Miami Beach, Fla., committed by state law to vote for McGovern on the opening ballot.

The issues were essentially those the Democratic rivals stressed in Wisconsin, where McGovern received his biggest boost with an April 4 primary victory. The candidates talked of the war, the economy and of tax reform. School busing was not a prime issue.

President Nixon is sure to win the Republican primary in Massachusetts, where Reps. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio and Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California remained on the ballot. McCloskey endorsed McGovern in the Democratic primary, and said that even though he had

Escort Service For UNC Coeds Now Provided

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — An escort service for coeds at the University of North Carolina was begun Monday night as the result of an increasing number of attacks on women students.

Steve Saunders, chairman of the Residence College Federation, said the service will operate from the undergraduate library from 8 p.m. until 2 a.m. nightly.

After several UNC coeds were assaulted this year, authorities sought to warn them of the danger by urging them not to walk alone at night, to report attacks and stay in well-lighted areas.

Officials also said better lighting is planned for some areas such as the arboretum and the paths around Kenan Stadium.

Business Favors For Govm't Figures Widespread

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson recently accepted a free ride to Chicago aboard a jet owned by Standard Oil of Indiana.
But an aide said it was the only time since taking office in February that the secretary has ridden on a corporate plane.
Undersecretary of Interior William T. Pecora is another high administration official who recently took a free ride on a company jet, traveling to South Dakota and back courtesy of Northern Natural Gas of Omaha, Neb.
But Pecora, too, insisted it was the only time he has ever accepted such a favor.
The question of corporations making their private airplanes available for government officials was raised last month by lobbyist Rita Beard of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. Mrs. Beard, a key figure in the Senate's investigation of ITT's relations with the Republican administration, said some members of Congress made liberal use of the company's jet fleet.

Singed out by name was Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind. The senator, said Mrs. Beard, considered ITT "a sort of personal taxicab company."
To find out how much use is made of company jets by officials, the Associated Press staked out the general-aviation terminal at Washington's National Airport for five days.
In addition to Peterson and Pecora, six senators and two members of the House were seen, departing or returning to Washington aboard corporation-owned jets.
They were Sens. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.; Milton Young, R-N.D.; Lawton Chiles, D-Fla.; William Spong, D-Va.; Harry F. Byrd, a Virginia independent, and Peter Dominick, R-Colo., and Reps. Dan Daniels, D-Va., and REP. John S. Monagan, D-Conn.
An investigation of the individuals and companies involved, did not turn up any evidence of outright conflict of interest, a though in almost every case there were strong common ties.
Most of those spotted at the airport indicated they saw nothing wrong with accepting the favors, but some did, including Pecora and the lobbyist who ferried the undersecretary and Sen. Young halfway across the continent and back.
Asked if his company made a practice of offering transportation to members of Congress and government officials, Lynn Mote, head of government relations for Northern Gas, replied:

Funeral For Mrs. Scott

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. W. Kerr Scott, 74, mother of Gov. Bob Scott and wife of the late governor and U.S. senator, W. Kerr Scott, was to be buried today near her home.
Mrs. Scott died Sunday night in Duke Hospital after being critically ill with pneumonia for several days.
Funeral services were to be at 3 p.m. at the nearby Hawfields Presbyterian Church, of which she was a lifelong member. Burial was to flow in the church cemetery.
Flags flew at half staff on state buildings in Raleigh Monday as tributes for Mrs. Scott poured in at the executive mansion.
The faculty at North Carolina State University adopted a resolution of expressing "deep regret" over her death and "gratitude for the lifetime of good work she has done for this university and for the state."
Mrs. Scott's husband was governor from 1949 to 1952. Prior to that, he was North Carolina commissioner of agriculture for many years. He was elected to the Senate in 1952 and died in 1958.
Mrs. Scott was a native of Hawfields. She and her husband grew up about a mile apart.
been in the Commerce Department's Office of Minority Business Enterprises that afternoon and had mentioned the company plane was going back to Chicago. "It seemed silly for them to fly commercial when we were both going to the same place," he said.
As secretary of commerce, Peterson is the administration's leading envoy to the business world.
Interior Undersecretary Pecora said his flight on the Northern Natural Gas plane April 13 was arranged by the office of Sen. Young.
The undersecretary was the principal speaker at a dinner that night in Sioux Falls, S.D., marking the start of construction on a $10-million federal installation to store weather and other information from satellites.
Lobbyist Mote said Northern is interested in the project because it will generate 1,000 jobs and the company hopes new residents will buy natural gas.

Pecora said he didn't know the plane belonged to Northern until just before he boarded it. He added that lobbyist Mote never raised any questions dealing with the policy of inter-ing corporate aircraft.
Byrd, also through an aide, said he had no recollection of ever flying before on a plane furnished by Jessup. "The senator certainly doesn't deny he has flown before in corporate planes and doesn't have any policy against it," said the aide.
Sen. Dominick boarded a DeHavilland registered to Manufacturer's Leasing Corp., which is located in the Koppers Corp. building in Pittsburgh, Pa.
A Koppers spokesman said the plane usually is leased to his firm. The company helped organize a dinner at which Dominick was invited to speak and sent the plane "as a courtesy" to provide roundtrip transportation for the Senator.
Dominick, a member of the Labor Committee, spoke on labor legislation to the Pittsburgh Personnel Association. He collected a $500 fee.
Sen. Talmadge flew home in the Southern Railway plane which, an aide said, was headed for Florida but made a stop in Georgia for the senator and his wife.
A Talmadge aide said Southern Railway and other Georgia based companies often call the senator's office on Friday afternoon to say the plane is heading south with seats available.
The aide specifically mentioned Lockheed Aircraft Corp., which last year got $250 million in federal loan guarantees to save a California subsidiary. Talmadge cosponsored that legislation.
Shortly before Talmadge departed aboard Southern's plane, Rep. John S. Monagan, a Democrat, flew home to Connecticut on a jet owned by Uniroyal.

"I want to say this was no joy ride," Monagan said. "I've never before ridden on that plane. I've only been in that airport once in my life."
"We had matters to discuss. We discussed improving the position of this company. It's one of the largest employers in my district. We have 9 per cent unemployment in my state and Uniroyal has had to lay off about 200 people."
Sens. Spong and Harry Byrd and Rep. Daniels rode a twin-prop plane to Charlottesville, Va., for the funeral of former Gov. John S. Battle.
An aide to Spong said the plane was sent to Washington by a Claude Jessup. Newspaper files in Charlottesville show Jessup is chairman of the board of Continental Trailways, an officer or director of numerous other enterprises, and chairman of Alderman 250 Corp., a real estate development company. The files also show that Jessup has been a fund raiser for both Spong and Byrd.
Through an aide, Spong said he may have traveled once or twice in a Jessup plane, but does not make a practice of us-

Most TV Station Managers Dislike The Prime Time Rule

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A nationwide survey of television station managers shows two-thirds of them dislike TV's prime time access rule, which would be magnified greatly if the Justice Department is successful in its antitrust suit against the networks.
The prime time rule was imposed last October by the Federal Communications Commission as a method of providing more diversified and innovative sources of program than those offered by the networks. It requires the local stations to produce their own shows for a half hour each night or turn to independent producers or advertising agencies.
Whether more innovative and diversified programming has resulted is questionable.
Sixty-one out of 97 managers polled by The Associated Press were against the rule. Only 23 managers said they either favored the rule or believed that it should be tested further. Thirteen offered no opinion.
"It's producing a variety of programming and allowing independent producers to enter the market," said Lee Jason of KFSN, Fresno, Calif. "But it's decreased the quality of programming because independent producers can't gamble with an innovative product. Instead, they stick to tried-and-true formats, like game shows."

A struggle within the industry could be in the offing. Some stations are losing money from the rule, but others are profiting from it. NBC is seeking to have the rule withdrawn by the FCC, presumably because it has cost the network money. But the rule has greatly helped the competitive posture and financial standing of another network, ABC.
A number of independent producers are risking money with new shows on the assurance of the FCC that the rule will stay in force.
While critics assail the rule, saying it has produced a proliferation of game shows, bargain-basement dramas and off-network reruns, the Justice Department has filed suit to take entertainment programming away from the networks altogether. The suit, filed April 14 in Los Angeles, would turn network programming over to advertising agencies and independent producers in much the same way as does the prime time access rule.
The networks have mixed reactions to the prime time rule.

Julia Goodman, president of NBC, is leading the fight to revoke the rule, which he calls "unrealistic" and says has produced "absurd results."
But at ABC, a spokesman said, "We think it needs another year for everyone to take a look at it. The first year was an experiment. A shakedown year with a lot of waivers."
"There's no question that it helped ABC. The economy was bad, cigarettes were gone. It reduced our inventory in a slow market time and we were able to weed out a lot of losers."
NBC said that according to the Nielsen reports over-all viewing from October to February declined 8.4 per cent as compared with last year in the 7:30-8 p.m. period. Network affiliates report viewing off even more—12 per cent for the access time period.
Independent stations, however, increased viewing 36 per cent.
The networks also said the access rule has caused a significant decline in viewing of the evening news shows. NBC said the three network share during the news shows declined from 85 per cent last year to 77 per cent.
Few of the shows offered to television stations through syndication or barter—a means by which a sponsor offers a show free in exchange for a few minutes of advertising time—were innovative or noteworthy, many of the managers felt. One show that was, "Story Theatre," met with only modest station and audience acceptance.

A common ground of agreement by nearly all of the station managers was that the new shows were not as good as those offered by the networks. The public apparently agreed, because over-all viewing during the early evening access time declined in the Nielsen ratings.
The two most popular shows were "Lawrence Welk" and "Hee Haw," with new shows offered to stations by barter after cancellation by the networks.

One Injured In Collision Here

An estimated $800 damage resulted from a 5:55 p.m. collision here yesterday in which one person was reported injured.
Greenville police investigators identified drivers of the vehicles involved in the mishap as Kenneth Ray Noble, 59, of Kinston and William Stanley Harris, 56, of 401 West Village Dr.
Police, who set damage to the Noble car at $300 and damage to the Harris' vehicle at $500, reported a passenger in the Noble vehicle was injured in the collision.
Harris was charged with following too closely.
The collision occurred on Charles Street, 500 feet North of the U.S. 264 intersection.
