Muskie Stops Running, But Not Hoping

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund Muskie, who let one of the biggest head starts in the history of presidential politics get away from him, announced today he will stop running but isn't giving up hopes for the Democratic nomination.

The Maine senator, who had been a clear-cut frontrunner for two years, said he was withdrawing from future primaries. He cited lack of funds.

Muskie said he was withdrawing with regret but had no choice. "I do not have the money to continue," he said.

"However, I do not withdraw my candidacy," Muskie said, reminding that his name would be on the ballot in several primary states.

But Muskie said he would not hold his supporters in those states to stick by him in the future months leading up to the July 10 Democratic National Convention.

People already committed to support him in primaries and state conventions "should feel free to reassess their commitments," he said.

Muskie, who has described himself as "everybody's second choice," apparently switched to a strategy that would make him a compromise candidate at the convention in the event of a deadlock.

Apparently Muskie intends to hold on to the 128½ delegate votes he has won in the early primaries and in state-level caucuses and conventions. With his name remaining on the ballot, he stands a chance of adding to this strength even without active campaigning.

Muskie had been the frontrunner in delegate strength, despite his primary setbacks, until Tuesday when George McGovern beat him in Massachusetts and Hubert Humphrey upset him in Pennsylvania where he had been the choice of Gov. Milton Shapp.

McGovern now almost doubles Muskie in delegates with 235½ and Humphrey is closing with 80. George Wallace has 77.

Warned Anew By U.S. Spokesman North Viets Disclaim Invasion

By DAVID MASON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The United States today demanded North Vietnam end its invasion of South Vietnam. But North Vietnam retorted it was "utterly absurd" to claim there is such an invasion.

Speaking at the Vietnam peace talks, resumed after a five-week break, North Vietnamese delegate Xuan Thuy charged it is the United States that "is conducting a war of aggression in Vietnam."

U.S. delegate William J. Porter had called on North Vietnam to "agree to end your invasion and commence the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam."

Porter warned, however that unless the Communists discuss the invasion and other related questions, the United States will break off the talks.

"The world is waiting," he told Thuy, "to hear how you reconcile this invasion ... with your protestations of good will and of a desire to seek peace at this table ...

"The question for you to answer today is whether you are prepared, as a first item of business, to discuss measures which will put an end to this invasion."

Porter added:

"I proposed specifically that you agree to end your invasion and commence the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam. Obviously, if concrete progress on that score can be achieved, there could be a corresponding reduction in ... our retaliatory response to that invasion."

Porter warned the North Vietnamese: "It will not be practical to hold meetings if you continue to refuse to deal with the substance of both the present invasion and general problems of peace, including prisoners of war and those missing in action ..."

Nixon Said—

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here at a glance is what President Nixon said Wednesday night in a speech on the Vietnam war: NEGOTIATIONS—The United States will return to the negotiating table in Paris today "to get on with the constructive business of making peace." The first order of business will be to get the enemy to halt its invasion of South Vietnam and to return American prisoners of war.

TROOP WITHDRAWALS— American troops will continue to be withdrawn from South Vietnam at the rate of 20,000 more over the next two months. This will bring the troop level down to 49,000 by July 1.

BOMBINGS—Air and naval attacks on military installations in North Vietnam will continue until the North Vietnamese halt their offensive against the South.

North Viet Troops And Tanks Aim Major Blow Against Northern Front

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops and tanks launched a major attack today around Quang Tri, the main city on the northern front. Hours later a U.S. officer in the provincial capital said the South Vietnamese were holding their own.

As the nearest fighting exploded three miles from the city, U.S. Navy ships in the Gulf of Tonkin began shelling the North Vietnamese positions and American planes raided North Vietnam.

"This is certainly a major attack," the U.S. officer told Associated Press correspondent Lynn C. Newland. "They threw a lot of stuff in there this morning and are going all out."

The low, gray overcast shielded the North Vietnamese from air attack and only 14 fighter-bomber strikes were flown.

Quang Tri is believed the major objective of the enemy offensive that began March 30 with an attack across the demilitarized zone separating the Vietnams.

Zooming In

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16's three explorers neared the end of their lunar journey of discovery today, speeding toward a fiery dash through the atmosphere and splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

They feel they might be coming home with the volcanic evidence they sought when they started out 11 days ago, a payload of rocks and other data that could vastly enrich man's knowledge of the moon.

Top Blood Quota

The American Red Cross Pitt County Bloodmobile drive conducted Tuesday and Wednesday on campus at East Carolina University once more resulted in the faculty and students going well over the top in donations with a total of 301 units collected. Bloodmobile chairman Douglas Morgan said, "Although it was not the biggest collection made at ECU, the students and faculty again more than met their quota. We're certainly very grateful for their consistent fine response to our needs."

On Tuesday the number of units collected was 151, with 150 collected on Wednesday. Rejects amounted to 16 the first day and 51 the second day. This means a total of 368 persons reported to the bloodmobile.

"I want to thank Jimmy Lewis of the AFROTC, members and staff of the AFROTC, the Angel Flight, faculty doctors and student nurses, Greenville Service League members, and other volunteers who made this an outstanding drive," Morgan stated.

Candidates And Non-Candidates At Annual Meet

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

GRIFTON — A sunny but cool spring day brought a group of candidates and non-candidates to the banks of Contentment Creek near here yesterday during the 50th meeting of the John Pierce Fellowship Club at Camp Contentment.

Heading the list of political hopefuls that attended the annual spring gathering were gubernatorial candidate Skipper Bowles, candidates for lieutenant governor Jim Hunt and Roy G. Sowers and John C. Brooks, a candidate for commissioner of labor.

Although there were no political speeches, each of the candidates present, including those for local, area and state elective posts were actively seeking to make themselves seen and hopefully of securing votes in the coming May 6 primary.

Bowles told newsmen that he would hope to establish a "mobile mini-capitol, a governor's office on wheels" if he becomes the state's next governor.

The politition said the mobile capitol would be staffed with a special assistant. His job would be, Bowles said, "to listen to the people's problems," and "would report directly to me, but would provide information to appropriate departments so that corrective action, whenever possible, would be taken."

He noted too, that he would propose a state-wide bond issue to raise funds with which to buy land for parks.

"The General Assembly last term marred its generally good record on the environment by drastically reducing the request from the Board of Conservation and Development to buy future park land. This was a serious mistake," Bowles said.

Other candidates at the dinner included First District

Congressman Walter Jones, District Judge Robert Wheeler and his opponents in the May primary Russell Wooten and W. E. Whitehurst; and State House members Horton Roundtree and Sam Bundy and their opponent for the Democratic nomination, I. Bruce Koonce.

About 450 persons registered for the dinner and open air meeting presided over by president Billy Phillips of Grifton.

Following the dinner and the introduction of the office-holders and candidates, Harry Mumford of Ayden was elected president of the club for the coming year. Judge Dink James of Greenville was named vice-president.

Re-elected to their club offices were secretary A. F. Rowe and treasurer Kirby Smith.

'Buffer Zone' Plan Acceptable In Rezoning Appeal

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The request by W. J. Moore for rezoning property south of Greenville Boulevard and adjacent to Belvedere Subdivision made a second round before the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission at City Hall Wednesday night with the result that the commissioners voted to recommend approval of the requested rezoning to the City Council.

In the March meeting, commissioners had requested Philip Carroll, representing Moore, and John Bell, spokesman for Belvedere residents, to meet in an effort to work out a possible compromise to major objections from Belvedere residents.

Carroll, stating he had met with Bell, told the Planning and Zoning members that amended plans relative to rezoning calls for a 100 foot natural buffer zone between the proposed shopping center area and the already developed area of Belvedere Subdivision; and a 25 foot natural buffer zone between a second boundary and a tract of Belvedere now in the process of being developed.

The main point of contention had been the lack of provision of an adequate buffer between the subdivision and the proposed shopping center.

The basic request for rezoning involves a change in zoning of two areas of the Moore property — a highway commercial and a R-9 residential area, both to be rezoned to shopping center.

Total depth of the area running south from Greenville Boulevard opposite Hooker Road is 975 feet.

Commission member Louis Clark congratulated Carroll and Bell for their mutual work on the problem.

A scheduled second appearance by J. A. Speight to seek action on a request to rezone lots 15 and 16 of Speight Subdivision from R-9 to highway commercial was not heard.

Under new business, approval was given for the modification of a planned access street from Devonshire Apartments to U.S. 264 by-pass. The requested modification, a minor one, calls for shifting the alignment of the access road by approximately 45 feet to provide setback room for a proposed building for the North Carolina National Bank.

Also in the Devonshire development, a second agenda item dealt with preliminary plans for the shopping center area.

City Engineer C. A. Holliday and City Manager Harry Hagerty informed R. T. Burney, representing the developers, that it was desirable that modifications be made in the parking lot plan for the shopping center.

Hagerty explained that it was an urgent concern of city officials that "no more acres of unbroken asphalt" be laid down in constructing parking lots.

A Committee Report on the State Highway Commission's response to Greenville's comments on the Thoroughfare Plan was not heard. The committee working on the report has asked for an extension of an additional month before presenting their report.

Representatives of the Pitt County Planning Board and the Greenville Utilities Commission have established boundaries for water system service as supplied by the city utilities.

The area to be served eventually by the Greenville Utilities Commission, according to GUC director Charles Horne, "is generally in accord with the area shown in the Comprehensive Water and Sewer Study prepared for the county in 1970."

The question of water system boundaries was brought to light as community water systems in the county, such as the Bell Arthur Water System, began forming, and as the Town of Winterville and Greenville systems began expanding in the area between the two municipalities. The 1970 water and sewer study was designed to provide a basis for planning for future progress and development in Pitt County.

The study was intended to prevent the duplication and overlapping of facilities, services and administration; obtain a clear picture of the water and sewer needs with a plan and outline for providing the needed facilities; and establish a guide for use in the future development of the county with justification for decisions.

Big Centennial Party Is Ending

By JERRY RAYNOR

ROBERSONVILLE — As the final day of Centennial festivities in Robersonville draws to a close today, planners and participants alike can look back with satisfaction at a successful birthday party for their hometown.

With seven full days of events plus Mrs. Nixon's appearance the day prior to the inauguration of the Centennial calendar, everybody in town and in the surrounding area has had a chance to join in remembering the town's first 100 years. (The fact that it is really the 102nd birthday has not been a point of deep concern).

Today's program centered on Youth day, with school children dressed in old fashioned clothes or an approximated version of what school children wore to school 100 years ago.

Function Is Combined With Fashion

FASHION FOR GOLFERS — Women golf pros were quizzed recently about the kind of golf wear that suited them best. They voted for fashionable but functional clothing, and as a result Catalina designers came up with this collection for the 42 pros who competed in the Dinah Shore-Colgate Winners Circle Championship in Palm Springs, Calif. in mid-April. From left to right, first is a bermuda shorts outfit with double pockets to hold necessities like score cards and tees. The plaid shirt is layered with a tank-styled sleeveless shrink. Next is a button front pant skirt, also with double pockets. The sleeveless mock turtle sweater allows complete arm freedom. Culotte outfits, like the one shown next have always been popular on the golf course. The shirt is of argyle jacquard. Last is a houndstooth skirt with a front zipper. The turtleneck sweater has raglan sleeves to allow for long swings.

Nutritionist Aids In Diet Meal Planning, Cooking And Questions

By JEANNE LESEME
UPI Food Editors

NEW YORK (UPI)—For persons on a fat-controlled, low cholesterol diet, what you don't know can hurt you.

Perhaps no other diet in current use creates as much confusion, frustration and outright fear as this one, which is prescribed by many doctors for patients with or susceptible to heart and blood vessel disease.

Nutritionist Mary Winston spends a lot of time helping dissipate the confusion and frustration and alleviate the fears.

As a community program specialist for the American Heart Assn., her duties include answering questions from the public about diet, meal planning and cooking.

Cholesterol Is Needed

In an interview, Mrs. Winston said the greatest area of public confusion involves identifying foods with low cholesterol and saturated fat content. Saturated fats, which are mainly of animal origin, increase cholesterol levels in the blood.

Some Cholesterol is necessary for good health, says the association, but too much of it in the blood encourages heart and blood-vessel diseases. Cholesterol levels are increased by eating cholesterol-rich foods or by eating saturated fat which encourages the body to make cholesterol. But when polyunsaturated fats, which include most vegetable oils, are eaten, the body clears excess, newly formed cholesterol from the blood.

"We get many, many questions about imitation (non-dairy) coffee creamers," Mrs. Winston said, adding that the creamers, along with imitation sour cream and powdered and frozen dairy whips, are not recommended because their saturated fat content can be as great or greater than the dairy foods they're meant to replace.

Avoid Baked Goods

Mrs. Winston said laboratory tests have shown that about nine out of 10 such products are made with coconut or palm oil, which are the only vegetable oils high in saturated fats. She said most commercial baked goods and cake, cookie and pie crust mixes should be avoided because they often are made with coconut or palm oil. She said these oils are preferred by manufacturers because they're cheaper and less subject to rancidity than other vegetable oils.

A pamphlet on fat-controlled, low cholesterol meal planning is available on request from local Heart Associations affiliated with the national organization. But additional information is needed, especially by consumers who rely heavily on convenience foods.

That's because manufacturers rarely identify the source of vegetable oil or the amount used in many products besides the ones Mrs. Winston mentioned. A spot check at a midtown Manhattan supermarket showed this information lacking on a wide variety of frozen prepared foods, some rice mixes and combination rice and pasta mixes, breading mixes for meat, fish and poultry and an imitation crumbled bacon mix.

Margarine is another product that holds pitfalls for low cholesterol dieters. It is popularly assumed to be superior to butter and other animal fats on such diets and, in some cases, it is. But Mrs. Winston said—and a supermarket visit confirmed—that many brands and types of margarine contain more hydrogenated oil than liquid oil. Hydrogenation, a process that partially solidifies the oil, also raises its level of saturation.

Look For 'Liquid'

Mrs. Winston said the association urges shoppers to look for "liquid" as the first word on margarine labels to make sure they're getting the best product for a low cholesterol diet. She added that corn, cottonseed, soybean and safflower oil are about equally effective. Olive and peanut oils are neutral and suggested only for occasional use in salad dressings where their flavor may be preferable.

Recipes from an American Heart Assn. booklet (available free from local Heart Associations) illustrate that a fat-controlled, low cholesterol diet need not be synonymous with deprivation. The recipes include breaded veal steak, veal scallopine in wine sauce, burgundy pot roast and even a quick and easy substitute for hollandaise sauce.

To make the sauce, blend 2 tablespoons of hot water into ½ cup of prepared mayonnaise over hot water until sauce is smooth and heated through. Stir in 1 teaspoon of lemon juice. Serve with vegetables. Makes about ½ cup. One and a half teaspoons of sauce is equal to 1 teaspoon of oil in your diet.

Child-Rearin' Made Easy, Sioux City-Style

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I must comment on mothers who go thru their teen-agers' drawers and read their personal mail. Don't they know that the way to teach their children to respect the privacy of others is to practice it? You also teach love by practicing it.

I raised three children, and they always came to me with their little problems because they knew that I would always listen, and comfort them even when they did wrong, and not condemn. Maybe that is why they never had any big problems.

I know a mother who kicked her 17-year-old daughter out of the house because she found out she had had a love affair. Kicked her own daughter right out into the street! Of course the poor child went to live with her boy friend. Where else? She soon became pregnant, and then her mother cried, "I tried to be a good mother. . . how could she do this to ME?"

I just don't understand some people, Abby.

BAFFLED IN SIOUX CITY, IOWA

DEAR BAFFLED: That makes two of us. (P. S. Some of the most wonderful mothers in the world raised their families in your town: Mine did.)

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "REAL SUFFERER" could have been written by my husband a few years ago. He, too, thought I was a hypochondriac because I was constantly complaining about my health, couldn't sleep and couldn't stay awake and was always taking pills. Then I discovered RECOVERY, INC.!

This self-help group taught me specific techniques for handling all the problems that husband outlined in his letter; preoccupation with symptoms, pessimism, sleeplessness, overactive imagination, self-diagnosis, nervousness, etc.

You would do your readers a service by telling them about RECOVERY, INC. It is in its 35th year with 825 groups in the U. S. and Canada.

A FORMER HYPOCHONDRIAC

DEAR FORMER: I investigated this organization and have found them to be everything you said they were.

Free literature is available by writing to RECOVERY, INC., 116 S. MICHIGAN AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60603.

DEAR ABBY: I am in serious trouble. Several years ago I stopped filing income tax returns. The reason? A silent one-man protest against the use of my money to kill—or to provide others with the weapons to kill.

Abby, I am a veteran of World War II, with a long hospital record behind me, and I know what war can do to young men.

When I made my decision, I also went back to church to work as best I could for peace and understanding among men.

I feel now that I have accomplished nothing except to place myself, and those who depend on me, in great jeopardy, for I now understand that by failing to file income tax returns I am facing a possible prison sentence and heavy fines, for which I have no money to pay.

The strain is affecting me both mentally and physically. Can you help me or tell me where I can receive advice?

Please don't advise going to my priest. I know his views concerning such situations, altho I feel I have done nothing wrong other than to refuse to contribute my money for war and destruction while millions in this world are dying for lack of food.

TRIED AND FAILED

DEAR TRIED: You strike me as being far too intelligent to suddenly "understand" that failure to file income tax returns is a federal offense, punishable by prison and fines. I advise you to see a lawyer.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALMOST EVERYBODY: You will be much better company if you remember one elementary rule: Never interrupt anyone when he is talking.

Award Given To St. Mary's College Alumnae During Luncheon

AT ANNUAL LUNCHEON. . .an award was given to St. Mary's Alumnae yesterday. Pictured, left to right, are Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, overall chairman of the Scholarship Drive, Mrs. Ed Rawl Jr., president, Mrs. Roy H. Rabon Jr. of Raleigh, executive secretary of the Alumnae Association, and Miss Alice Anne Horne, director of admissions at St. Mary's Junior College.

St. Mary's alumnae of Eastern North Carolina were the recipients of a high honor award, a sterling silver membership cup, at their annual alumnae luncheon meeting held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club Wednesday.

Alumnae from Eastern N. C. won the award for excellence in their promotion of a scholarship drive and in promoting the Alumnae Association. Serving as overall chairman of the scholarship drive was Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh of Greenville.

Scholarship committee members serving with Mrs. Kavanaugh were Mrs. J. Ed Clement, Mrs. Eli Warren, Mrs. Frank Longino, Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. Donald Patrick, Mrs. Charles Stevens, and Mrs. Rawl, all of Greenville, and Mrs. M. C. Williamson of Farmville.

Mrs. Rabon said three scholarships are available to St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh—the Smedes Scholarship, the Mary Johnson Iredell and Kate McKimmon Scholarship, and the Margaret Jones Cruikshank Scholarship.

Alumnae in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia participated in the membership cup competition.

Speaker for Wednesday's meeting was St. Mary's Director of Admissions Alice Anne Horne. She said two tests are given to students enrolled at St. Mary's: The Secondary Admissions School Test is geared for the 11th graders while the Scholastic Aptitude Test for college freshman is used as an indicator. "Schools are getting more flexible with tests," she said, and "each girl who applies at St. Mary's competes with each other, rather than competing with other schools."

Alumnae attending the luncheon meeting from Greenville were Mrs. Marvin K. Blount Jr., Mrs. Julius F. Budacz, Mrs. Clement, who gave the invocation and registered guests, Mrs. J. F. Team Chicken With Sauerkraut

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I tried your chicken and sauerkraut recipe

Program Given By Dr. Rives

Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives was keynote speaker at the meeting of the Dilettante Book Club held Monday night at the home of Mrs. Jack Thornton.

Professor of English at East Carolina University, Dr. Rives spoke on "28th Century Elegance in Eastern North Carolina."

He showed slides of homes and buildings which have "survived the years."

New officers elected for next year are: Mrs. Stella Chambliss, president; Mrs. Gayle Jeffreys, vice president; Mrs. Cynthia Wease, secretary; Mrs. Mary Cullop, treasurer; Mrs. Dahlia Lautares, yearbook chairman; Mrs. Thornton, social chairman; and Mrs. Virginia Lansche, librarian.

The spring luncheon was planned for May 20.

New members welcomed into the club were Mrs. Ilene Waugh, Mrs. Dorothy Wooles, Mrs. Alice Aldridge, Mrs. Mary Ann Kelsey and Mrs. Alice Carroll.

Miss Donna Smith was a visitor for the evening.

and liked it so much I'd be grateful if you would give another recipe for this combination. I had never thought of putting the two ingredients together, but now I think they're especially tasty. — CURIOUS COOK

DEAR CURIOUS COOK: Yes, it is a little surprising that kraut and chicken are such good companions. I think you'll like the following recipe because the kraut is deliciously savory.—C. B.

CHICKEN WITH TOMATO KRAUT

1 1/2 cup butter
3 pounds broiler-fryer chicken pieces

Salt and pepper
2 medium onions, cut in thin strips

1 large clove garlic, minced
3 large carrots, grated medium-fine (2 cups lightly packed)

1 can (1 pound and 11 ounces) sauerkraut, drained
3 tablespoons light brown sugar

1/2 cup dry red wine
1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce

1/2 teaspoon dried crushed oregano

1/4 teaspoon dried crushed thyme

1/4 cup minced parsley
Parsley sprigs

In a large skillet melt the butter; add chicken and brown slowly and thoroughly on all sides so that parts are almost cooked through. Remove chicken; sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper and set aside.

To drippings in skillet add onion, garlic and carrots; cook gently, stirring often, until tender. Add remaining ingredients except chicken; mix well; simmer until moisture evaporates—about 3 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Into a 3-quart oblong glass baking dish (13 1/2 by 8 3/4 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil turn the kraut mixture; top with chicken. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until chicken is tender—about 20 minutes.

Makes 6 servings.

Note: A 3-pound frying chicken, cut up, may be used in place of the 3 pounds broiler-fryer pieces. In either case have drumsticks separated from thighs.

Record Voter Turnout Looming

If Pitt County's total registration is any indication, we should be in for a record vote in the May 6 primary.

Pitt County election officials reported that there are now 31,606 registered voters in the county, compared to 26,398 on January 1.

There were 5,294 new registrations during the period from Jan. 1 to April 7.

As could be expected, 18 to 21 year olds helped swell the registration books since, for the first time this year, they were made eligible to vote. It was reported that an estimated 2,000 new registrations were in this age group.

There was an increase in registration of black voters. On Jan. 1 there were 6,521 blacks registered compared to 8,002 at the end of the registration period. White registrations went from 20,061 to 23,603.

The county was still overwhelming Democratic according to party registration. There are now 27,119 registered Democrats, 3,883 Republicans, 343 Independents, 36 American Party and 225 with no party affiliation.

In a county of approximately 75,000 citizens the 31,606 on the registration books would have to be considered a good number of voters. Also, the additional 5,294 persons who registered this year are likely to return to the polls on primary day to cast their ballots.

The primary and election to be held this year should be more representative of public opinion in Pitt County than ever before.

Church Group Broadens Role

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N.C. — The Christian Action League of North Carolina, for years a leader in liquor battles, is broadening its agenda.

Highway safety will be high on its priority list for the 1973 General Assembly, said the Rev. Coy Privette of Kannapolis, League president.

"The church is concerned with people. It ought to become involved when there are problems in society which money in highway safety. Somebody has got to go to bat if anything is going to be done about it."

He said the League also is contacting legislative candidates to sound out positions. When the legislature meets, he added, a League representative will be present at every committee meeting dealing with highway safety measures.

The show of interest elated motor vehicles department personnel in safety promotion. "It's the first time we've ever had a group like this come in and offer help on an organized, follow-through basis," an official commented.

Although Baptist influence is dominant, the Christian Action League is supported by 12 denominations in North Carolina with a total constituency in excess of 1,750,000, said Privette. That should give muscle to its advocacy of highway safety legislation, he added.

New, Old Goals Related

The new goal is closely allied to the League's prime aim, which remains opposition to relaxed laws covering the sale of alcoholic beverages. It will be a staunch foe of liquor-by-the-drink proposals in the legislature.

"We are flat convinced that liquor-by-the-drink encourages drunken driving," explained Privette. "We can't save lives on the highways on one hand, and on the other hand make liquor more available to drivers."

The time to talk to legislators is when they're running for office. Privette quoted a candidate: "We hear better during the campaign."

The League is getting returns from a five-part questionnaire circulated to General Assembly candidates. The first query asks the position on liquor-by-the-drink; others deal with drinking and driving as related to highway safety. A tabulation is incomplete, but Privette said the emerging picture is encouraging.

The wider perspective for the League's involvement in legislation may reach to areas other than highway safety. Mental health and prison reform are fields where church people should seek to exert their influence, he said.

"Too much in the past we have been only concerned with liquor legislation," acknowledge Privette. "Our lay people feel we should have looked to other social concerns a long time ago."

cause so much suffering to so many people, as the tragic toll on our highways does," he declared.

"If we don't try to do something about it, who will?"

In preparation for the highway safety push, a League delegation met Thursday (April 27) with state motor vehicles department officials for a review of the current situation and a discussion of strategy to save lives on streets and highways. Mrs. John D. Sugg of Albemarle, head of the N.C. Association of Women Highway Safety Leaders, also attended the meeting.

Rising Death Toll

They were told that traffic deaths totaled 1,835 last year, up 63 from 1970. So far this year fatalities have reached about 520, running about the same as the similar period in 1971.

Tighter laws to keep drinking drivers off the road is a prime need in highway safety, department spokesmen said. More than half the fatal accidents involve alcohol.

Mandatory breathalyzer tests for motorists arrested for drunken driving and repeal of limited driving privileges for those convicted will be among legislative goals next session.

The League offered its support for the department's package of safety legislation to go before the 73 General Assembly. It promised to bird dog legislative committees and rally back home support to prod the lawmakers to action.

Lobbying For Safety

"Let's face it," said Privette, pastor of North Kannapolis Baptist Church. "Not much lobbying is done in Raleigh unless there's money in it. There's no

Forum Fine For Voter And Area Candidates

A nearly full house turned out in the district court room Tuesday night to hear various candidates for state and local offices.

The forum was sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Local voters have frequently heard the opinions of candidates for governor and other high state offices, but with all of the political oratory going on this year voters do not always get a chance to hear the views of candidates for some local offices.

This was their opportunity and many citizens took advantage of it to hear candidates for Congress, Legislature, board of education, county commissioners, and other posts express their views. It should have been good for both the candidates and the voters.

On The Trail With Jim Hunt

By JOHN KILGO
ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL—The alarm clock went off in Jim Hunt's Raleigh hotel room at 4:45 a.m. He dressed quickly, got in his car and drove to Louisville.

He met workers at three mill gates before 8 a.m., shook the hands of some 500 people. Hunt then went to breakfast and while he was waiting for his bacon and eggs, he toured the restaurant: "Hello. I'm Jim Hunt and I'm running for lieutenant governor."

A George Wallace supporter laid it right on the line: "Your for Wallace?"

"I'm staying out of the presidential race," Hunt answered. "But I helped get this presidential primary so you could express your views."

The pace of campaigning never let up on this day. Hunt went from Louisville to Franklinton, back to Louisville to tour the business district. He talked with a black leader, had a radio interview, a 25-minute talk with a newspaper editor, and then back to Raleigh.

He spent the rest of the day meeting workers at Raleigh office buildings, holding strategy sessions with his staff, touching base around the state by telephone.

At 8:15 p.m. Hunt came to my office and spent nearly three hours answering questions.

Hunt has come out strongly in favor of streamlining the Tar Heel legislature.

He wants to see standing committees appointed which would serve the functions that have been served by study commissions in North Carolina. Hunt would give this committees professional staff and the committees would function between sessions of the legislature.

"When the General Assembly got to Raleigh," Hunt said, "it would be ready to start acting on legislation the minute the session opened."

He also wants to use electronic voting in the legislature "because the people have a right to know how their legislators voted on issues."

Hunt said his travels across North Carolina indicate to him that many people feel out of touch with their government.

"They feel lost," he says. "But North Carolinians, in my opinion, are committed to progress. They want to move ahead. They want to make life better for their fellow man. But the state government ought to be dealing more with problems. The federal government doesn't know our problems in North Carolina."

"Pollution control ought to be dealt with on the state level. Land use planning ought to be dealt with on the state level. I hate to see us sit back and let Washington always take the initiative. Why can't we do it?"

Hunt says the people are worried about the entire state of North Carolina. There isn't as much sectionalism as one might think.

"Some areas of the state need things more than other areas," he said. "Some areas need more jobs, some need better medical facilities and services. But North Carolinians in general are concerned about their schools, about crime, about drug abuse, and they're concerned about government itself."

Hunt says North Carolina people must decide what kind of state they want to be.

"Instead of uncontrolled growth," Hunt says, "we ought to make decisions of what North Carolina ought to be. We must set goals. We must improve our long-range planning."

OPTIMISM IS SUCH A WONDERFUL THING!

By J.J. KILPATRICK

Move To Strangle VOA

If the United States Government were run in the fashion of a major university, it would be necessary to list among the cataloged courses a whole Department of J. William Fulbright. Here the persistent student could begin with Introduction to Fulbright, advance through Organic Fulbright, and conclude with seminars in Fulbright. After extended graduate studies a dedicated scholar might understand one of Washington's most puzzling men.

The chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee was 67 years old this month. A onetime Rhodes Scholar, lawyer, and university president, he has served in Congress for almost 30 years — two years in the House, 28 years in the Senate.

An acknowledged expert in foreign policy, he is widely respected in other fields also.

Surely it would seem inconceivable that such a man, geared to global thinking and trained in the importance of ideas, would set about deliberately to destroy the one agency whose task is to publicize the American idea. Sad to say, that is precisely the course on which the Senator from Arkansas is embarked. He is proposing to slash the budget of the United States Information Agency by more than 20 percent; in the process, he is proposing to reduce the Voice of America to a whisper.

Three reasons are advanced to explain the Senator's inexplicable assault.

It is said that Fulbright gazes in distaste upon Frank Shakespeare, the USIA director, and finds him personally obnoxious. Fair enough. Shakespeare takes a hard line on communism; the Senator's approach, if not exactly soft, is perhaps more flexible. But directors come and directors go, and the damage that would be done by the proposed budget reduction is far more important than a personality conflict. In the long haul, neither Fulbright nor Shakespeare matters. This program does.

More to the immediate point, it is said the Senator is reacting with personal pique to the recent incident in which a USIA filmmaker appeared in a televised interview with Conservative Senator James Buckley of New York. The filmmaker, Bruce Herschensohn, tactlessly described Fulbright as "naive and stupid." He then resigned, and Shakespeare did not help matters — though he apologized — by giving Herschensohn the USIA's highest award. A fiasco. But, again, Fulbright is too big a man — and he has been called names too many times before — to let a personal indignity provoke so grave a retaliation.

A more plausible explanation lies in the refusal of the USIA, acting on White House instructions, to make publicly available to the Foreign Relations Committee its so-called "country planning papers." These are confidential in-house memoranda, spelling out our propaganda plans, country by country. As such, they are covered by the doctrine of executive privilege. Their publication could cause embarrassment. If this is the sticking point, surely it could be eased by rational compromise.

But we are at this sorry pass: The Foreign Relations Committee, at Fulbright's behest, has voted 9-4 to cut USIA's authorization for (Continued on page 6)

Spring Calms Cairo

CAIRO (AP) — Spring fever is ruling the Middle East. The threat of war seems a long way off.

The Mideasterner sees not the posturing of politicians but only the trees and flowers budding under soft April skies.

He hears not the oft-empty words of his leaders but only the sweet song of the winging bird.

He feels not the usual swift anger reserved for his enemy, but only a blissful lassitude.

In Damascus, shoppers happily jam the world's oldest super-market, the Grand Bazaar, or lazily sip black Turkish coffee under flaming jacarandas.

Jerusalem's lush hills echo to laughing picnickers on family outings while other Israelis gather noisily around soccer pitches as the national pastime gains seasonal momentum.

On Beirut's colorful Corniche the impatient Lebanese motorist, slowed to bumper-to-bumper pace, inches past packed beaches where scantily clad bathers—and the ubiquitous girl watchers—laze away the afternoon.

In Cairo young couples, trendy in their minis and flower-print shirts, stroll aimlessly along Africa's mother of rivers, the Nile, or join excited queues to see such American-made films as "The French Connection" or "I Love My Wife."

"Don't confuse relaxation with frustration," advised a journalist on one of Cairo's largest dailies. He added: Nothing—or no one—has made the Israelis leave captured Arab lands.

40 Years Ago Today

April 27, 1972

Tomorrow thousands of persons are expected to gather in the picturesque little city of Edenton to pay tribute to the memory of Joseph Hewes, one of North Carolina's signers of the Declaration of Independence and the first secretary of the nation's army. Formal exercises dedicating a monument erected to the memory of Hewes by Congress will be held just before noon. An entire day has been planned for entertainment.

Rev. A. W. Fleishman, pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church, is the new president of the Rotary Club. He was elected at a special meeting of the board of directors of the organization last night. Herbert Barker, head of the department of mathematics at East Carolina Teachers College, was elected vice-president. Mr. Fleishman succeeds Howard McGinnis, member of the college faculty, who served for the usual term of one year.

Other Editors Say An Unlikely Truce

(Wilson Times)

There doesn't appear any chance of President Nixon and AFL-CIO president Meany making up before election, or any time thereafter. You recall the outburst when Meany walked out of the Pay Board, and took three of the other labor representatives with him.

In the early days of the Nixon administration there were areas they held in common. Both men, agreed on the position the President took on the Vietnam War, both are anti-communists.

Since then, the economy slipped. Nixon set out on a new economic policy to stimulate recovery and curb inflation and also went to China to visit Mao Tse-tung, head of a Communist nation.

The new relationship with Communist China distrubs Meany, it is said, as much if not more than any of the other recent events. And Meany is accused of trying to sabotage the wage-price stabilization program.

There is so much to be said, but what is really important is what Meany and his AFL-CIO will do in the next election.

Since Franklin D. Roosevelt was president, organized labor has backed the Democratic candidates for President. In 1968, its prenomination support of Hubert Humphrey marked its most confirmed involvement in presidential elections.

This year, labor has affirmed its faith in the Democrats by announcing its backing of any of a number of possible nominees against Nixon. Meany leans again to Humphrey, but one union has come out for Edmund Muskie. Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers also favors Muskie.

Only the Teamsters, the largest U.S. union, show any sign of giving support to Nixon. Teamster President Frank Fitzsimmons was the only union member of the Pay Board not to resign over the administration's economic policy.

Grants-In Aid Build A Burden

By ELMER ROESSNER

The principal cause of mushrooming state and local taxes are Federal grants-in-aid that require equivalent funds from the local governments, according to the monthly publication of a leading bank.

Federal grants-in-aid rose from $7.5 billion in fiscal 1962 to $15 billion in 1967 to an estimated $33 billion this fiscal year. The grants increase the taxpayer burden, the publication says, by encouraging programs which would not have been undertaken if the federal money had not been available.

COMMENT: This is a rather wry view of grants-in-aid. Their value, effectiveness and propriety are questioned on a number of grounds by many people. But to say that they are the cause of local tax increases is putting the cart before the horse.

Schools and road programs receive rather large portions of such grants. Other federal funds support local housing development, social programs and public assistance.

Many of these programs are poorly executed, wasteful, inefficient and even corrupt. But that is the fault of the local governments, not the federal grants.

Without federal participation, many programs would be in even worse shape. Others would not exist at all.

Another argument against federal grants is that they force local politicians to overcommit local resources. But the grants, themselves, are resources which states and municipalities cannot afford to lose.

Overwithholding Windfall

The government expects a $5 billion budgetary windfall in the current fiscal year because of $3 to $4 billion in overwithholding of personal income taxes and $1 to $1.5 billion in higher receipts due to higher corporation earnings. This might well help reduce the expected deficit to $30 billion.

COMMENT: The savings from the windfall will be quite real. While the overwithholding will have to be returned to taxpayers at the end of this tax year, the practice is expected to continue on a steadily declining basis for several more years. Moreover, the IRS does not pay interest on overwithholding. But the government would have to pay substantial interest if it had to borrow that additional

Strength For Today

ARE YOU LISTENING?

Why is it that some people have fairly good vision and yet never see life just as it really is? "Having eyes they see not and ears they hear not." In other words, penetration (particularly of ideas) is not in their line. To be the only person in a community that sees everything as it is and knows the truth from A to Z must involve considerable misery. It's bad enough to be stupid and know we are stupid. What a terrible affliction it must be to be stupid and not know it.

Me. Me. Me. Are you listening? I wonder how it happened that so many stupid people chose to live in this community. Oh, I know what you're saying. Most of us can remember the day when the outstanding expression of contempt was: "If you don't like it you can lump it." All right, but where do we get with that kind of living?

A noted broadcaster some weeks ago began his broadcast with these words: "We have the answer. Now what's the problem?"

We may wonder sometimes why the world hasn't gone to pieces long before this.

Silent, soft-speaking persons may constitute a little minority in our population, but they do help a lot. There was a line in a Broadway show some years ago in which a lady said to someone she particularly dislike: "Bill, will you do me a favor? Drop dead."

Infighting Among N.C. Candidates Gets 'Rougher'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Now that the primary on May 6 is little more than a week away, infighting among the candidates is getting rougher. Skipper Bowles answered questions about the $573,000 he has spent so far, a record for a North Carolina primary and more than the other five Democratic gubernatorial candidates combined.

The millionaire businessman said, "To get known, there's only one way to do it, get on television. That's the way to tell what we're thinking on the issues, and also sell our program." He said that when contributions of about $377,000 did not cover expenses, he and other members of his family put up almost $180,000.

"I'm happy to say I'm just as well known as the lieutenant governor," Bowles said. Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor is among his opponents for the nomination.

Taylor had wanted to rest and catch up on paperwork at his home in Wadesboro most of today. But with time before the primary running short, he decided to devote more time to the field. So instead of just attending a rally in Lumberton tonight he spent most of the day campaigning in Robeson County.

A Republican candidate for governor, Jim Gardner, asked his supporters to avoid name-calling. "The people who are behind normally sling the mud. We're not behind and we don't have a thing to say," he declared.

His chief opponent in the primary, Jim Holshouser, said he was aware that it was risky to bring up Gardner's political actions in 1968, but that vigorous primary campaigning is necessary to build up momentum for victory in November. Holshouser said that four years ago Gardner deserted Richard Nixon, and supported Alabama Gov. George Wallace and California Gov. Ronald Reagan. Gardner has refused to discuss these allegations.

Wilbur Hobby, state president of the AFL-CIO who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, called for a halt to "thorny issues" which are separating blacks and whites.

And Dr. Reginald Hawkins, a black, who also is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said the federal government is mis-spending millions. "We have people living in poverty in North Carolina, elderly people and children that are not being taken care of, yet we gave all that (foreign aid) money to Japan and Germany, and made them among the richest countries in the world," he said.

In the race for nomination to the U.S. Senate: Democrats — Sen. B. Everett

Jordan, seeking re-election to the seat he has held the last 14 years, said there was not a shred of truth to the claim of his opponent in the primary, Rep. Nick Galifianakis, that he had opposed giving the vote to 18-year-olds. Galifianakis said, "We're going to win. I can feel it."

Republicans — William Booe has added to his main plank of opposition to court-ordered busing the issues of high taxes and high prices. Jesse Helms, well known in the east, has been campaigning heavily in Piedmont and western North Carolina, areas with the heaviest Republican registration. He has emphasized his name, face and endorsements by Republicans, but not his opinions. As a television editorialist in Raleigh he has fought the United Nations, the Supreme Court, Mainland China, and college professors. The third candidate is State Rep. James Johnson of Concord.

The first cornerstone for the Capitol building in Washington was laid Sept. 18, 1793.

Chavis Acquitted And Co-Defendant Convicted

RALEIGH (AP) — Black militant Ben Chavis has been acquitted and co-defendant James Earl Grant convicted on federal conspiracy charges.

U. S. District Judge John D. Larkins sentenced Grant to 10 years in prison after the jury's verdict was announced Wednesday night. Attorneys for Grant gave notice of appeal.

The jury of nine whites and three blacks deliberated four and a half hours before returning the verdict in Chavis. It brought in the verdict against Grant about 20 minutes later.

Although he was found innocent, Chavis was returned to the Wake County jail to await trial in state court in Wilmington next week on conspiracy charges stemming from last year's racial violence in the port city.

Grant and Chavis were charged with conspiring to aid Theodore Alfred Hood and Walter David Washington to flee the country to escape trial on federal firearms charges. Hood and Washington testified for the government in return for immunity on the firearms charges.

Defense lawyers in their closing arguments Wednesday characterized the government's case as a "pack of lies." Attorney James Ferguson of Charlotte described Hood and Washington as "two thugs" who were "so desperate for freedom they'd lie about anyone."

Ferguson said U. S. Atty. Warren H. Coolidge dropped the charges against Hood and Washington so they would "come in here and convict someone the government wanted worse."

But special prosecutor David Long said Hood and Washington were "henchmen" to the "big men," Chavis and Grant. He said the defendants wanted Hood and Washington to leave the country because they were afraid the two would "tell the truth" about them.

The firearms charges stemmed from racial turmoil in Oxford in 1970.

Washington testified that Grant had threatened to put a bomb in his house if he didn't leave the country before the hearing on the firearms charges. Hood and Washington said Grant wrote them a $150 check and gave them addresses in Canada, and Chavis cashed the check for them and gave them $30 more.

The two government witnesses said they went to Canada but returned in a few weeks because Grant didn't send them passports to North Vietnam or Algeria as they said he had promised.

Six Hurt In Boiler Blast

ROXBORO, N. C. (AP) — Six workers were injured Wednesday when a boiler being tested at more than 4,000 pounds of pressure per square inch ruptured.

Only one was hospitalized after the accident at a new generating unit under construction at the Roxboro plant of the Carolina Power & Light Co.

He was Malcolm Lee Strouth, 23, of Roxboro, who suffered lacerations of the face and complained of neck pain.

The men were sprayed with water and debris.

A. G. Smith, manager of fossil and hydroelectric generation for CP&L, said the newly completed boiler ruptured during a routine test in which it was pumped full of water at 1½ times the normal operating pressure. Normal operating pressure for the 700 megawatt twin-boiler facility is 2,900 pounds per square inch, Smith said.

Smith said the workers, some with Brown and Root Construction Co. and others with the firm which built the boiler, Riley Stoker Co., had brought the water pressure up when the boiler ruptured.

Smith said damage to the plant was extensive and that repair work would begin immediately. He did not estimate the monetary loss.

CP&L already has two generating units in operation at Roxboro.

tragedy," he asserted. Jerusalem says if the Arabs would only sit down and talk peace it would negotiate withdrawal.

But a visitor to Middle East capitals finds it difficult to understand what all the talk of war is about. No one would have guessed last week that President Anwar Sadat had—according to news stories—ordered the Egyptian armed forces on "full alert" to counter a possible pre-emptive war by Israel.

Cairo's lights burn brightly at night and its night life is boisterous. Hotels are packed, casinos filled with foreign gamblers.

Indeed, Egypt is enjoying its biggest tourism boom since the 1967 Middle East war. An estimated 450,000 visitors arrived in 1971 and a half-million are expected this year.

What besides the vernal equinox has brought calm—temporary though it might be—to the usually roiled Middle East?

Major credit may go to the Americans and their cease-fire initiative which halted the bloody Suez Canal fighting more than 20 months ago.

The decline of the Palestinian guerrilla movement, which through its espousal of violence helped raise regional tensions, also may have helped. Tough-looking commandos in their tiger suits are a rare sight on Middle East streets nowadays—certainly not in Amman where King Hussein of Jordan all but liquidated the fedayeen.

Hussein's own plan to form a federated united kingdom straddling the River Jordan appears to be gaining momentum despite objections from the Arabs and Israelis.

Indications in Amman point toward a widening of the "open bridges" policy to permit an increase of goods and people across the Jordan.

Meanwhile, spring moves inexorably toward summer, when the blazing desert sun both exhausts the spirit and triggers short-fused tempers.

"On June 5, it will have been five years since the Middle East war," mused an Egyptian journalist. "Who can say what will happen after that?"

which has touched every county, has shown him that North Carolina people are capable of doing many things.

"We have accomplished things that other states haven't been able to do," he says. "We have gone through court reform in North Carolina while other states haven't been able to do it. The people passed a constitutional amendment to reorganize the executive branch of state government. Georgia is having a hard time trying to do this."

"As gasoline tax was put on in our state. The people didn't like it. They fussed about it. But they didn't react against the legislators who passed that tax. The people of North Carolina continue to be committed to progress, to build a better state."

My talk with Hunt broke up shortly before 11 p.m. He then got on the telephone for another hour's work. The next morning he was up at 6 o'clock, on his way to Winston-Salem and another day on the campaign trail.

Fiscal '73 from a requested $200.2 million to $155 million. The recommendation could be overridden, of course, by floor action, but a committee's verdict carries respectable weight.

The Voice of America now carries 850 broadcast hours a week, in 35 languages beamed around the world. The Fulbright slash would cut this program to 454 hours in 11 languages. We would be competing at the level of Portugal and Albania. More than 3,500 professional broadcasters, most of them with irreplaceable language skills, would have to be fired. The VOA, in short, would be strangled.

Such folly must be avoided. The USIA, under Shakespeare, has not engaged in empire building: It has 600 fewer employees than it had four years ago. By comparison with Russia, China, and the Arab Republic, the United States is waging a modest program of information and propaganda. But the program is vital to our continuing national interest around the world; and Fulbright, who is genuinely a man of the world, must see the need to keep it strong.

UNIMPEACHABLE

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—State senators and members of the Texas House of Representatives may not be impeached.

The Texas constitution gives the power of impeachment to the legislature but allows proceedings to be directed against only the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, treasurer, comptroller and judges of the supreme court, courts of appeal and district courts.

Malaysia Fighting As Red Guerrilla Threat Grows

By BRIAN GOMEZ
Associated Press Writer
KROH, Malaysia, (AP) — A decades-old Communist threat lingers on in the jungles that divide Malaysia and Thailand.

Until 1969 no real threat was perceived and in the last 10 years little has been done to keep alive, among the populace, the danger of the Malayan Communist Party—MCP—re-emerging.

But increasingly the Malaysian government has been forced to take active steps to ensure the guerrillas do not gain a foothold in the Malayan Peninsula which juts out like a finger stabbed between the Indian Ocean and South China Sea.

The mountainous jungle terrain, where occasional battles are now fought, is among the worst in the world and only an hour's flight from South Vietnam.

Military artillery the past two months has been bombarding the jungle area, but the real victory has to be won in the multiracial towns and villages.

Once again barbed-wire fences are being built around new villages, a measure initiated in 1949 when colonial authorities fought a country-wide Communist insurrection. Success came in 1960 when some 400 guerrillas fled into Thailand to rebuild strength and watch for the right moment to make a comeback.

The racial riots of May 1969 and government handling of the situation then seems to have given the MCP the confidence it needed. Now they are probing down the spinal main range to try and rebuild links that mostly remain only a memory.

Top military leaders say some 1,200 known combatants in three regiments spread out in Southern Thailand are "the enemy."

This nation of 10 million was somewhat startled in mid-June to hear that a patrol several miles from the central tin mining town of Ipoh had been ambushed. Several more ambushes have taken place in the vicinity since then.

The area, designated a "hot spot" during the 1948 to 1960 emergency, is a natural target for the border Reds, most of them new recruits.

It is not surprising, therefore, that Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak recently gave a village in the vicinity an ultimatum—either cooperate quickly with authorities or face punitive controls.

A barbed-wire fence is now going up around Tanah Hitam—black earth—a new village. A night curfew has been in force in the area since September.

Plastic Bag For Hunters

HONOLULU (AP) — Deer hunters on the Hawaiian island of Molokai go into the field armed with plastic bags as well as guns.

The bags are for use in a program aimed at getting the sparsely populated island off the list as the last area in the United States where cattle tuberculosis is active.

With instructions provided by the Hawaii State Game and Fish Division, hunters remove internal organs of the deer they kill and place them in the plastic bags.

The bags are turned over to the State Agriculture Department's veterinarian on the island, and he checks the organs for tuberculosis.

In the two years that the program has been in operation, the organs of 600 deer killed in public hunting areas have been checked and no tuberculosis has been found.

But several infected deer have been turned in by hunters shooting on private lands, so the examinations continue, although this year hunters are told the bagging program is optional.

Dr. Ernest H. Willers, head of the department's Division of Animal Industry, said the program involving deer is a key to eliminating tuberculosis from cattle on Molokai.

He said the state must prove there are no infected cattle on the island before Maui County, which includes Molokai and three other islands, can receive a modified accredited status in a national program for tuberculosis eradication.

TO VISIT SOVIET MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba will visit the Soviet Union late in June, according to Tass, the Soviet news agency.

Castro has not been to the Soviet Union since a 1964 trip to Moscow.

As the government sees it, the measure will ensure security for the 6,000 villagers, mostly Chinese banded together in the last emergency. It will also cut off help for guerrillas.

This hope seems somewhat forlorn, judging from the remarks of military commanders in the region.

Said one colonel: "Most of the Communists are Malay-sians carrying valid identity cards. They can even come into my camp, and I won't know it."

Almost no one has any doubts it's the uneasy racial calm in the towns and villages that will determine the fate of the Communist movement, although Thai help in suppressing the guerrillas would be a key factor in disposing of the threat.

The Chinese, some 40 per cent of the population, basically control the economy; the Malays, mostly rural dwellers numbering 45 per cent, have political power.

The government through constitutional provisions providing special privileges—preferences in jobs, in particular—to the Malays is struggling to bridge the economic gap. But political realities, which the May 1969 race riots brought to the fore, indicate the Malays cannot, for the moment, accept Chinese sharing of political power.

The Communists meanwhile apparently are aiming to win support among the rural Malays—in keeping with Chairman Mao's teaching that political victory can be assured by surrounding the cities from the countryside.

So far, except for some success in the east coast Kelantan State, the Communists have failed in this ambition. However, political observers suggest this as a reason why the government seems to be over-reacting to the guerrilla threat.

Most observers have no doubt local troops will be able to lack the immediate militant threat, but the long-term danger lies in the dormant urban sympathizer.

The military itself has been playing a role in helping to ensure that the populace stays on the government side, providing medical and health services children and food and clothes for needy children.

Street-Naming Tangle Partly Resolved

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Street naming developed into a major topic at both the Joint City-County and the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission meetings at City Hall Wednesday night.

At the conclusion of the joint meeting, Ralph Tucker asked to bring up the matter of untangling the name confusion about the new Red Banks Road and old Red Banks Road (State Road 1704).

"What most people think of as the Red Banks Road starts at the Janie Gold Starling property line and goes to the New Bern highway," Tucker stated.

"I live on the real Red Banks Road, which has been here for a long time. The Red Banks Primitive Baptist Church on Red Banks Road has been here since 1782. There used to be a Red Banks Road School on the road. All these things are part of the real Red Banks Road."

Following a brief discussion, Tucker was asked about his thoughts of applying the name Red Banks Road to both the new street named Red Banks Road and the old Red Banks Road, now often referred to as 14th Street extended. Tucker readily accepted this suggestion, then added he wished further to recommend naming the road into which the old Red Banks Road terminates (State Road No. 1725) the Cherry Road. "This would be in honor of the late Walter Cherry," Tucker added.

Chairman H. T. Chapin appointed a committee to look into the matter of getting the street name on record. It was also pointed out that this would leave a section of a couple hundred yards of the old Red Banks Road (from where 14th Street intersects U.S. 264 to where the new Red Banks Road begins from 14th Street extended) unnamed. A suggestion to clarify this was offered, one to simply call that small section 14th Street extended.

Later, during the Greenville commission meeting, G. C. Wood, who stated he will be the managing agent for the proposed apartments now under construction, generally referred to as Devonshire Apartments, brought up the matter of a name for the apartments and for the street to run through the complex.

"We would like very much to name the street Eastbrook Drive," Wood commented. "We had a Greenville authority search this out and cannot find where it conflicts with another street name. And we really do have a brook. I saw it yesterday, gurgling and bubbling, a real pretty stream. In fact, we plan to build a small footbridge across it and develop the area so that it will be a little like Walden

Pond."

A commissioner brought up the idea that the proposed road, which is planned to lead off U.S. 264 into the apartment area and then circle around before joining Devonshire Drive, might result in confusion for mailmen and others.

Comments were then made about the possibility of an East Eastbrook and West Eastbrook Drive, but Wood said "it is our desire to have one name for the road and for the apartment, which will be named the Eastbrook Apartments."

At that point, City Engineer C. A. Holliday pointed out that a cross street connecting two sections of the proposed Eastbrook Drive was an entirely separate street and could not possibly bear the same name without utter confusion.

The dilemma was solved when it was recommended and accepted that the cross street be given the name Eastbrook Place.

The annual meeting is one that involves church leaders from the denomination from all across the state. Dr. Wyoming Wells is the presiding bishop.

To begin the meeting, a pre-conference musical was held on Monday under the direction of James L. Moore, State Minister for Music. The Wells Chapel Music Department under the direction of Johnnie Wooten presented the program.

On Tuesday church workers joined in a three hour workshop on the theme "Interpreting Christian Holiness," with an introductory sermon held that evening at 9:30 p.m., with music by the Ever Ready Choir, and The Joy Bells, accompanied by members of the Dunlap Temple Church of Richmond, Va., and the Hamilton Church.

A workshop was also held on Wednesday, and music on that day was furnished by the Washington and Belhaven Choirs, with an evening sermon at 9:30.

Today's program again featured a workshop for three hours with an evening service scheduled with music by the Rocky Mount and Edenton Choirs.

The program for Friday is a Women's Program, with a devotion led by the Prayer Warriors. An evening service is scheduled for 9:45 p.m., with music by the Kinston and Mt. Olive Choirs.

The events scheduled for Saturday highlight the week long meeting, with a final workshop, a "Youth for Christ Crusade" and a comprehensive "State Musical Extravaganza" slated to begin at 8:00 p.m.

For the extravaganza, narrators will be J. W. Moore, Mrs. Nancy Carree, Mrs. Lucy

Williams, Miss Ruth Sheppard and George Pass.

A large number of North Carolina choirs will be featured in this two hour plus program. These are: St. Augustine Choir of Raleigh; Faith Chapel, Winston-Salem; Wells Temple, Greensboro; Davenport Temple, Washington; Mass Choir of Rocky Mount; Mass Choir of Plymouth; Wells Chapel Radio Choir, Greenville; Cedar Fork Combined Choir, Windsor; the Lumberton-Laurinburg District Chorus; the Asheville District Chorus; the Greensboro District State Chorus; Revival Center Choir and Ensemble, Kinston; the Belhaven Gospel Choir; and The Edenton Choir.

On Sunday, the final day of the program, events include a worship service at 11:00 a.m. with a processional of Greenville and State Chorus; a message from the bishop at 12:30 p.m., a special program at 6:30 p.m., devotionals at 8:00 p.m., and the final evening service at 9:30 p.m.

An invitation has been extended to all ministers and their congregations in Greenville to attend events and services of the Fifty-First Annual meeting.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

By DUANE WILLIAMS

Eighth graders from four schools visited D. H. Conley Wednesday for orientation. The students visited the high school to become better acquainted with classes and school procedure.

Directing the program were Mrs. W. G. Mallison, Mrs. M. L. Little, Howard James and Charles McLawhorn, Jr. Students guides were Liz Byrd, Andrew Smith, Jane Hall, Madge Dews, Kay Branch, Deborah Sutton, Cathy Phelps, Barbara Powell and Kay Galloway.

Others participating in the program were J. R. Carraway, Principal; Mrs. A. M. Brown, the Rev. W. H. Mitchell, Kervin Hawkins, Polly Fornes, Coach Shelly Marsh and the FFA Quartet.

We hope all of the eighth graders enjoyed the school and we would like to thank all of the people who made the program possible.

Pitt Memorial Hospital has announced that the number of students which may be accepted in its School of Radiologic Technology has been increased, with four to be enrolled in September.

The instructors include Dr. Allen Taylor, director of the school, and Dr. R. William McConnell, radiologist, both of whom are graduates of Duke University Medical Center; Miss Sandra Harrison, R. T., chief radiologic technologist, Mrs. Judy Rivebark, R. T., assistant chief radiologic technologists, all of whom give clinical instruction in the diagnostic radiographic rooms. Other classes are given by members of medical staff.

Some of the courses taught during the two-year training program include radiation physics and protection, ethics, technical writing, anatomy and physiology, medical terminology, darkroom technique, positioning of each anatomical part, principles of radiographic exposure, medical and surgical diseases, special procedures, intra-oral radiography, nuclear medicine, radiation therapy, and film critique. The students hear lectures from commercial x-ray companies, staff technologists, and doctors from other teaching institutions. Each is eligible to join radiologic technologist societies at local, state, and national levels.

Upon completion of the 24-month course, each student receives a certificate of graduation and is eligible for certification by the National Registry of Radiologic Technologists.

Recent high school graduates, both male and female, who may be interested in a career as a radiologic technologist are asked to write the School of Radiologic Technology at Pitt Memorial Hospital, Greenville, N. C. 27834

His awards include ones in Math, English and French. David is also a member of the National Honor Society, co-founder and president of the Math Club, an attendee at the Governor's School, the Presidential Classroom, and National Science Foundation seminars.

A co-editor of the school's literary magazine, David has also been active as an instrumentalist in the East Carolina University Collegium Musicum, a group devoted to Renaissance music.

Bouquet Was Not Expected

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — George Davis expected bricks, not bouquets, after his car slammed into the rear of an auto driven by Shirley Scudder.

Davis went to the hospital after the accident, his ribs smarting. Mrs. Scudder's crumpled car went to the garage.

The flowers sent to Davis' hospital room the next day carried an unexpected note. They were from Mrs. Scudder.

Club Sponsoring Political Rally

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Central High School Political Science Club will sponsor a political rally of representatives of the gubernatorial candidates tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Representatives from Holshouser, Bowles and Taylor have announced they will be present for the rally. Invitations have been sent to Gardner, Hawkins, Gibson and Hobby, but no word has been received of their acceptance.

Representative Sam D. Bundy of Farmville will serve as the master of ceremonies.

The public is invited to attend the rally.

A mock registration of students and an opinion questionnaire was conducted at the school today and on Friday a mock primary will be staged.

Bowles Spends More Than All His Rivals Combined

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles has spent more than half a million dollars in his campaign so far, outspending all five of his opponents combined and setting a record for a primary campaign in North Carolina.

In a report filed with Secretary of State Thad Eure Wednesday, Bowles reported spending $573,552 in his campaign for the nomination. He also reported contributions of $560,977. Of that amount, $183,000 came from the candidate and members of his family.

Bowles told a news conference in Rocky Mount shortly after the filing that 80 per cent of his expenses went for mass media, primarily television.

Asked if he were trying to buy the election, Bowles said: "If we were trying to buy it, we wouldn't have told the people about it."

"I don't think you can buy an election in North Carolina. The only purpose in spending money in a campaign is to let people know how you stand by giving them information," he said.

Bowles added, "If it costs us the election, we still told the truth."

Eure said the money Bowles has spent is the most ever reported by a North Carolina gubernatorial primary candidate.

The other major Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, reported spending $386,111 during 1971 and 1972 and said that he had received contributions totaling $406,066 in 1970, 1971 and 1972.

The other four Democratic candidates and their reported contributions and expenses are Wilbur Hobby, $48,986 received and $47,550 spent; Reginald Hawkins, $1,690 received and $7,785 spent; Gene Leggett, none received and $2,885 spent; and Zeb Vance Kitchin Dickson, $2,109 spent.

Bowles spent almost $130,000 more than all five of them combined.

The largest spender among the Republican gubernatorial candidates was Jim Gardner, who reported expenses of $142,159 and contributions of $142,193.

His major opponent, Jim Holshouser, reported receiving $33,466 and spending $33,565 through the Friends of Holshouser organization. But an aide to Holshouser said after Eure's office had closed that they had overlooked $47,000 in advertising expenses and would file an amended report Thursday bringing the total expense so far to $80,565.

The other two Republican candidates, Leroy Gibson and Thomas Chappell, failed to file reports by the deadline.

The two American party candidates for governor, Bruce E. Burleson and Arlis F. Pettyjohn, reported having spent a total of $1,759.

Besides contributions from his family, Bowles reported $200,000 from various county campaign committees. The largest expenses were television and radio advertising, $197,163; printing and mailing, $193,783; and wages and expenses, $74,149.

Taylor reported more than 125 contributions of $1,000 or more, and he is listed as having contributed a total of $15,000 to his own campaign on four occasions.

Taylor listed contributions dating back to Oct. 13, 1970, even though the state's Corrupt Practices Act requires candidates to list only contributions received since Jan. 1.

Gardner, who was defeated by Bob Scott in the 1968 gubernatorial race, contributed $6,000 and loaned another $40,000 to his campaign. Key financial supporters included two Jacksonville, Fla., men—David McCulley and I. L. Levy—who together gave him $17,500.

Holshouser's largest contribution was $4,000 from the Political Action Committee for Education. He gave $3,000 to his own campaign.

In the U.S. Senate race, incumbent Sen. B. Everett Jordan's report showed he is outspending challenger Rep. Nick Galifianakis.

Jordan listed expenditures totaling $88,435 and contributions of $89,890. Galifianakis reported spending $81,380 and receiving $71,640.

Jordan received a total of $25,300 from the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee in Washington and $5,000 from the North Carolina Healing Arts Committee for Jordan. He received a total of $1,200 from the chairman, vice president and manufacturing executive of Burlington Industries and $1,000 from James Hamilton, president of Texifi Corp. of Greensboro.

He also got $5,000 from W. R. Davis of Elizabeth City and $1,000 from the late Mrs. W. Kerry Scott, mother of Gov. Bob Scott.

Galifianakis borrowed $32,000 of his campaign funds, $20,000 from the First National Bank of Asheville and $12,000 from Frank Kenan of Durham. He also received $10,000 from persons of Greek ancestry in the Boston area.

Another Democratic candidate for the Senate, Joe R. Brown, reported $1,927 in contributions and $1,770 in costs. The fourth candidate, Eugene Grace, did not file a report.

Republican Senate candidate Jesse Helms reported expenditures of $47,013 and contributions of $47,055. James Johnson and William Boone, the other Republican candidates, did not file.

In the Lieutenant governor's race, the high spender was Democrat Jim Hunt, who reported expenditures of $181,725 and contributions of $188,705.

Democrat Roy Sowers was second with expenses of $149,840 and contributions of $179,422. Allen Barbee reported spending $83,456 and taking in $8,642, and Margaret Harper of Southport reported expenditures and contributions totaling $36,868.

The fifth Democrat, Reginald Lee Frazier, did not file.

Republican lieutenant governor candidate Johnny Walker reported $62,345 in expenses and no contributions. The other GOP candidate, Norman H. Joyner, did not file.

Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford was the only presidential primary contender to file a report. He said he has taken in $388,000—$300,000 of it loaned by Mrs. Anne R. Forsyth of Winston-Salem until county campaign committees can raise the funds to pay it back.

Sanford said he has spent $379,000 so far in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In the 4th District Congressional race, Democrat Ike Andrews listed expenses of $44,113, contributions of $24,474 and bank loans of $27,000.

Democrat Wense Grabarek, reported $20,548 in contributions and $31,021 in expenses, and Democrat Archie McMillan reported donations of $1,267 and expenses of $1,998.

The other three Democrats—Charles Bullock, Jyles Coggins and William Creech did not file.

Howard Lee had received $71,905 and spent $64,161 in his effort to defeat incumbent Rep. L. H. Fountain in the 2nd District. Fountain reported $25,843 in assets.

Rep. David Henderson, running for re-election in the 3rd District reported receipts and expenses of $1,738.

A committee supporting James G. Martin for the Republican congressional nomination in the 9th District listed contributions of $14,057 and expenses of $11,629.

In the Democratic race in the 7th District, Hector McGeachy listed $52,300 in contributions and expenses and Charles Rose III reported about $24,000 in contributions and expenses. The third candidate, Doran Berry, did not file a report.

Campaign Contributions Fell Short; Family Helps

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — "I had to reach a decision a little while back. Contributions were not covering what was needed to do the job," Democratic gubernatorial candidate Skipper Bowles said in an Associated Press interview Wednesday.

Bowles was replying to a question about his campaign expenses and contributions report, filed with the secretary of state earlier. The report showed total expenditures of $573,552 in the period since announcing his candidacy in October until last week.

Of that sum, almost $180,000 came from the millionaire Greensboro businessman and his family — including two brothers. A total of $60,000 came from his own pocket.

"We all decided" the job needed doing, he said. "The family felt it meant that much."

"We believe career education means that much," Bowles said of his main campaign theme.

The candidate said other contributors put about $377,000 into the campaign. He said there was a deficit of about $12,000 at the end of the period covered by the report, but added "it's all paid for" to a question of remaining television and other advertising.

Bowles said of his expenses for the media — 86 per cent of the total — "I'm happy to say I'm just as well known as the lieutenant governor." He referred to Pat Taylor, his main opponent for the gubernatorial nomination.

"To get known, there's only one way to do it, get on television. That's the way to tell what we're thinking about on the issues, and also sell our program."

"The only reason to spend money advertising is to let the voter know how you stand, so he can make an intelligent choice," Bowles said.

To a question as to whether it takes personal wealth to get elected, Bowles replied, "I couldn't if I were not. But there are others who sell their soul to special interests."

Today the candidate was in Charlotte for a private meeting with potential campaign donors. He was to fly to Winston-Salem, where an afternoon news conference was scheduled.

Suez Canal Seeing Only Small Boats

By THOMAS CHEATHAM
KANTARA, Suez Canal (UPI)
—The only boats plying the quiet waters of the Suez Canal these days carry out the mission of a sort of "marriage counselor" between Egypt and Israel under the flag of the International Red Cross.

The red, black and yellow motorboats chug back and forth across the 200-yard wide waterway an average of twice a month as the result of the only agreement the two warring nations have come to since the 1967 Middle East War closed the canal.

Four months after Israeli troops had captured the east bank, the Red Cross successfully urged Cairo and Jerusalem to agree to the exchange of civilians and prisoners by boat under the provisions of the 1949 Geneva accords.

Eighty-four times since then, the boats have carried prisoners from both sides back home and have reunited families who were separated by the canal after the Israeli conquest of the Sinai Peninsula and the Gaza Strip.

The exchanges have involved the crossing of more than 12,000 persons under the auspices of the Red Cross, whose top man in Israel likens his organization's role in the Middle East conflict to that of a "marriage counselor."

"You try to bring about a reconciliation between the couple, or at least reduce the misery," Frenchman Guy De-Luz said. "Our task is to listen and, if possible, to help—but never to gossip."

A UPI reporter watched one recent exchange. It was a sunny spring morning and the Red Cross flags were flying on both sides of the canal—the signal that puts the routine into motion each time.

The first trip of the boats is made with only the belongings of the participants—cardboard boxes full of clothes, baskets of oranges, even television sets.

Then, on the Israeli side, out of a bus whose windows have been blacked out to hide Israeli forts enroute to the canal—come 15 Egypt-bound ex-changees, including several wide-eyed children. For all of them it is a big day, perhaps the biggest in their lives. They soon will be reunited with loved ones they haven't seen in five years.

Today, the chirping of birds has replaced the roar of gunfire that marked many of the exchanges prior to the August, 1970, Middle East cease-fire, and it is an entirely happy scene.

A mother carrying a baby is positively radiant. An old man, supporting himself with a cane, has to be helped out of the bus. Two boys, about 15, look frightened.

Then onto the boat and away to the other side. But suddenly, as the boat pulls out, it turns back to the landing and the young mother disembarks. She dashes back to the bus, disappears inside and emerges again grasping an envelope she had left behind.

"Probably the plans to our whole Suez defense line," comments a grinning Israeli soldier.

Then the motorboat is off again, this time to complete its journey. Soon, it returns, and now it carries 20 persons coming to rejoin their families in the Gaza Strip or Sinai. Among them are six Arab doctors who have completed their studies in Cairo and are returning to practice at home.

The returnees pile into the blacked-out bus. Down come the Red Cross flags, back to its mooring goes the boat. Another exchange has been completed and a little bit of Middle East anxiety has been relieved.

Centennial . . .

For the afternoon, attention was focused on field day events in games recalling popular pastimes of the 1870s. This began at 2:00 p.m. and ended at 4:00 p.m. with spoon races, bicycle races, balloon and sack races, tug-of-war and one rather untidy affair, a greased pig catch.

When this ended, attention was focused on girls playing a softball game dressed in the cumbersome costumes worn by modest maidens in those long past days.

For the Robersonville Centennial, planners divided the different days into various phases of special interest. The opening day, Thursday, April 20, featured bargain days in the town's stores, with a Kangaroo Court for a fun item.

On Friday, the selection of the Centennial Queen finalist took place, followed that night by a grand march and a Centennial Ball.

Mrs. Evelyn Peakes of Everetts, the former Evelyn Warren of Robersonville, was chosen Queen of the Centennial celebrations.

Saturday was a highlight day, initiated early in the morning with the ringing of bells, followed by the opening of Hospitality Headquarters. Actor John Payne cut the centennial birthday cake and took part in the big afternoon parade. That evening, the historical pageant was presented for the first of four showings.

On Sunday, activity appropriately slowed down, with citizens observing the day as Religious Heritage Day at their own churches. An old-fashioned hymn singing and an interdenominational program for one and one-half hours in the afternoon highlighted the Sunday activity, with a second performance that night of "Parade of Years," the

To begin the week, Monday was set aside as Farmers', Merchants' and Industry Day, with tours of industrial sites in the area. Displays of agricultural and other machinery, and a livestock show rounded out Monday's round of activities.

Acted On Two Rezoning Pleas

Two requests for rezoning, one scheduled and one unscheduled, were heard by the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission at the April meeting on Wednesday night.

The first request and the one listed on the joint agenda was that of Ralph Tucker for approximately 25 acres of land located on the west side of State Highway 43, directly across the highway from The Carriage House Apartments.

After a short deliberation, members of the joint board unanimously approved Tucker's request to have the property rezoned from the current RA-20 to Shopping Center.

One portion of the area, that earmarked for the site of a church, will remain RA-20 and was not included in the rezoning request presented by Tucker.

The joint board unanimously voted to table the second request, one submitted by John F. Moye for the rezoning of two tracts of land, one on 264 west by-pass across from Red Oak Subdivision; and the second tract adjacent to the western boundary of Red Oak.

Moye is seeking to have both tracts rezoned to highway commercial. The tract adjoining the western boundary of Red Oak is now zoned RA-20. The tract across the Road from Red Oak was rezoned to shopping

Lieutenant governor candidate Margaret Harper sees the No. 2 job in state government as being a helper for the governor and an ombudsman (listener) for the people.

"The lieutenant governor's job was made full-time this year and state government has grown so large that I feel this listener concept would be a boon to everyone," Mrs. Harper said last night after a day of campaigning in Pitt County.

She also advanced a new idea about the role of the lieutenant governor as presiding officer of the Senate. If elected, she said, she would immediately notify the President Pro Tem that as chairman of the rules committee he should have the rules committee change Rule 31 giving the presiding officer the power to appoint various committees and the committee should then set up other committees itself. "Thus," she said, "the Senate would organize itself and the lieutenant governor could in no way pay political debts."

No other lieutenant governor candidate goes along with this idea, she intimated.

Asked about her campaign financing, she said she has had about $3,000 in contributions. Some $38,000 has come "out of my husband's pocket, a wonderful indication of Jim's belief in me" she said. Jim Harper is editor of the State Port Pilot newspaper in Southport.

She said her campaign costs have been kept low because "it offends me to think that a political campaign should be so expensive as most for high office have become.

Mrs. Harper says she has no platform because she thinks one would not be proper, since state laws says a lieutenant governor "should perform such duties as are assigned."

Her convictions, she says, are those things I've been working for all my adult life — about the last 30 years. Some official positions she has held include president of the N.C. Federation of Women's Club, president of the N.C. Council of Woman's Organizations, president of the N.C. Press Women, incorporator and director of North Carolinians for Better Libraries, and a member of the Governor's Committee on Reorganization of State Government.

Her answers about some key issues were as follows:
The ECU Medical School — "I will work for anything that will improve medical care in Eastern North Carolina. I came from a county (Brunswick) that does not have a doctor and the hospital in the next county begs us not to send people over there even to have babies."

Public education — "Education in North Carolina is not uniform and this is wrong. Kindergartens should be a part of public school. There are no women administrators of any of the 152 school systems and only five assistants out of about 300. The Superintendent of Public Instruction has seven assistants, none of whom are female. With the large majority of classroom teachers being women, it's wrong that more women don't fill administrative positions. Vocational training should receive greater emphasis.

On running for governor — "I have no ambition for this office, because I don't believe a lieutenant governor could do his or her best work, especially the last two years, if this were in his or her mind."

On abortion — "I'm for further liberalization. Women who want abortions are going to get them and one woman's being butchered would make it right that they be liberalized, I feel."

On teacher pay — "If we expect to have the best teachers, we must pay them so they won't go elsewhere."

On annual session for legislature — "I'm against it because I fear it would produce professional legislators."

On traffic deaths — "I think we should take some really stringent action to take the drunk driver off the road, perhaps decrease the power of cars, and devise and encourage use of all the public transit we can."

On day care centers — "I'm for every effort to increase the number and use of such centers. Seeing those lovely children at Moyewood Day Care Center today and how happy and well-kept they are would have convinced me if I had not been already."

Bucs Split Shutouts With Richmond

Quinn Gets New Pact With Bucs

East Carolina University extended the contract of head basketball coach Tom Quinn for three years in a ceremony in the office of university president Dr. Leo Jenkins.

The Pirate coach was also given three additional scholarships to help improve the program and make it more competitive both within and outside the Southern Conference.

Quinn's new contract reportedly calls for $16,000 per year.

The coach came to East Carolina six years ago, and after a two-year building program, has placed the Pirates in the upper ranks of the Southern Conference for four straight years. He had two second place finishes, a third and a fourth during the past four seasons. His teams finished as the tournament runner-up in 1969, and Quinn was named Southern Conference Coach of the Year.

This past season, the Bucs won the tournament, and went on to bow to Villanova in the first round of the NCAA Regionals.

"It's a privilege on behalf of the East Carolina basketball program to look toward a continuation of a fine program," Quinn said at the signing. "I feel we are on the verge of moving into better things in the program. We're on our way and we are going to see bigger things happen."

Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich noted that the Pirates played one of the toughest schedules over this past year, and that things were not going to get any better. "We hope to continue scheduling the best teams available. We'll continue to play such teams as Duke and N. C. State and we have confidence in Coach Quinn in being able to meet these challenges."

Dr. Jenkins noted that with the contract's fulfillment, Quinn would be nearing a decade of coaching at East Carolina.

The coach also pointed out that most of the players on this year's team will be returning next fall. Only three seniors graduate and only one starter will have to be replaced. "They are looking forward to another fine year next season," Quinn said. "They would like nothing better than another trip to the Regionals, but with different results this time."

Dr. Jenkins joined in the current talk over a new coliseum for this area, and urged Greenville, Pitt County and East Carolina to work together toward getting a fine, large coliseum built.

"The people of the East are ready for this and they would support it," he said.

Quinn added that such a building would aid in getting such teams, as Duke, State and other members of the Big Four to pay visits to Greenville. "A building with a portable floor would also have many other uses, for circuses and ice shows and other things," he said.

Harrington Field saw a couple of two-hit shutouts pitched yesterday, but unfortunately, only one of them was for the East Carolina Pirates.

The net result of the two was a split with the Richmond Spiders in a Southern Conference doubleheader. The Spiders won the first, 1-0, but the Bucs bounced back to take the second, 6-0.

Roger Hatcher tossed a two-hitter in the first game, limiting the Pirates to only one threat in the entire game. He struck out four and walked three.

Bill Godwin, who just missed a no-hitter against VMI in his last outing, held Richmond hitless for four and two-thirds innings in the second game, and then got his two-hitter. He also fanned four and walked three.

The loss dropped the Pirates to a 7-4 Southern Conference record, trailing Furman and Richmond. It also put the Bucs back to the wall in their hopes of continuing their even-year domination of the Southern. Unless they get a lot of outside help from the other members of the conference, the Pirates must win the rest of their games to edge past Furman, and they must have help to get past Richmond, which has lost three contests now.

The Pirates will get a chance to test Furman shortly, however. They travel to Greenville, S.C., for a doubleheader with the Paladins on Saturday. For East Carolina, both games are a must.

Hatcher, in claiming the first game, saw the Bucs offer only one threat, in the second inning. Troy Eason walked and Rick McMahon followed him on base the same way. But with one out then, Hatcher struck out the next two to get out of it. Only three other Pirates reached base the rest of the way, and none got past first base.

Richmond, meanwhile kept the pressure on Tommy Toms, threatening on several occasions before finally pushing over the game's lone run in the sixth.

In the first frame, Reggie Dunnivant singled and moved up when Les Keenan reached on an error. He moved on to third on a fielder's choice but died there.

In the third, Don Trevillian singled and stole second, but didn't go further. Larry Pishioneri walked and stole second in the fifth, but again couldn't advance.

Then, in the sixth, the Spiders scored. Keenan reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on a single by Phil Rowland. Hatcher then won his own game with a single to center, scoring Keenan.

The Spiders made one last threat in the seventh. With two away, Trevillian reached on an error and again stole second. He reached third on a wild pitch, but the threat ended there.

The second game was just the reverse of the coin. Richmond was the one that was handcuffed, and the Pirates made the runs.

Richmond had just two threats, in the third and fourth. Al Selby walked in the third and moved up on a steal, but didn't get anywhere else.

Then, in the fourth, the Spiders had their best chance. Hatcher walked and was safe at second when Troy Eason hit him in the back with a throw trying to get a double play started on Phil Rowland's grounder to first. Both runners reached safely, with Hatcher moving on to third. Donnie Walsh grounded to third on the next play. Ralph Lamm faked Hatcher back, then fired to first just in time to get Walsh. Hatcher broke for home with the throw to first, but Eason relayed it to catcher Greg Fulghum who put the tag on Hatcher, completing the double play and getting the Bucs out of the frame.

East Carolina had pushed across its first run in the second inning. Mike Aldridge walked and moved up on a passed ball. Fulghum followed with a single to right, scoring Aldridge.

The fourth was the big inning for the Bucs as they scored three runs. With one away, Fulghum singled to center. Matt Walker followed with a hit to right, moving Fulghum to third. Walker was caught in a rundown after being picked off first, and Fulghum sped home, reaching just ahead of the throw as Walker made it safely back to first on the play. Jimmy Paige followed with a single to center, and Ron Staggs singled to score Walker. Godwin then reached on an error, allowing Paige to score, and the Bucs led, 4-0.

The fifth inning saw the final two runs come across. Again, with one away, Lamm walked. He moved up on a wild pitch and Aldridge walked. Fulghum got his third hit of the game, scoring Lamm, and Walker followed with a sacrifice fly, scoring Aldridge.

The Bucs again threatened in the sixth, as Mike Bradshaw and Buddy Ward both singled, but the rally died there.

Following this weekend's trip to Furman, the Bucs go to Williamsburg, Va., on Monday to meet William & Mary. They go to Davidson for a single game the following Saturday, closing out their conference schedule.

Aycock Downs Southern Nash

E. B. Aycock Junior High rolled to an 8-3 victory over Southern Nash Junior High yesterday.

The Phantoms spotted Southern a 3-0 victory before bouncing back with six runs in the fourth inning to take the lead for good.

Southern Nash gained the lead in the second inning, scoring twice. Matt Cooper walked, as did Steve Hicks. Both stole up a base and Gary Joyner singled to drive them in.

They gained a third run in the third when Randy Faircloth hit a solo home run.

But in the fourth, Aycock exploded for six runs, moving ahead 6-3. Ron Hunt singled and Curt Keys got a hit. Macon Moye doubled to drive in Hunt and both Keys and Moye scored when Jimmy Avery's single was errorred. Mike Brewington singled to score Avery and then stole second. Kelly Heath singled and Grif Garner reached on an error, scoring Brewington and Heath.

Two more came across in the fifth. Moye was hit by a pitch and stole second. Brewington reached on an error, scoring Moye while he moved on to third on the play. A passed ball then let Brewington score.

The victory left Aycock with a 4-3 record.

Falcons Topple Farmville, 5-2

PIKEVILLE—Charles B. Aycock High School continued to stay right in the thick of the Eastern Carolina Conference race with a 5-2 victory over Farmville Central yesterday.

The Golden Falcons picked up all five of their runs before allowing the Jaguars to score. The two Farmville Central runs came in the final inning of play. Aycock started the scoring in the third inning, getting a run. Kirby singled and moved up on an out. He scored when Durham singled.

Then, in the fifth, three more Falcons came across, wrapping it up. Kirby led off with a walk and McFatter slapped a double. Durham finished the inning off with a three-run homer, making it 4-0.

The final Aycock run came in the sixth inning. Hawley reached on an error and Kirby walked. McFatter was given an intentional pass and Durham followed with a single, scoring Hawley for a 5-0 lead.

Farmville finally got on the scoreboard in the top of the seventh. Ben Joyner singled and Glenn Dwyer reached on an error. Both advanced on a double steal, and an error let Joyner come on home. Chuck Finklea singled and Bobby Daniels got a hit, scoring Dwyer. The loss left Farmville with a 6-5 Eastern Carolina Conference record. The Jaguars are 6-6 overall.

Lucas Guides Knicks To 1st Round Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
To the Los Angeles Lakers, the first game of the National Basketball Association's championship series was a bomb—more precisely, a Jerry Lucas bomb.

Lucas, the New York Knickerbockers' center, went outside—way outside—to shoot against the Lakers' disorganized defense. His long, arching bombs blasted the net as the Knicks exploded for a 114-92 victory Wednesday night in the first game of the best-of-seven series.

Bill Bradley scored 29 points for the Knicks and hit 11 of 12 shots but Lucas' performance of 26 points was the key. The former Ohio State All-American led the New York attack in the first half when the Knicks hit 72 per cent from the floor for a 67-49 lead. They were never seriously challenged in the second half.

The Lakers, Pacific Division and Western Conference champions, could not get a consistent performance from any of the players. Gail Goodrich hit his first six shots and scored 16 points in the first quarter. He finished with 20, the team high.

Los Angeles has been in the NBA playoffs in 10 of the past 12 years but has never won a league crown. The Knicks defeated the Lakers in seven games for the title in 1970. Among veteran Lakers who have suffered through the team's playoff woes are Jerry West and Wilt Chamberlain.

Chamberlain didn't challenge Lucas' outside shooting early in the game when the 6-foot-8 Knick was at his bombs-away best with nine baskets in 11 attempts from 20 to 30 feet. Chamberlain got 19 rebounds.

Dave DeBusschere scored 19 points for the Knicks as well as getting 18 rebounds. Jim McMillan got 14 points, the second high for Los Angeles.

The second game of the series is scheduled for Sunday and will be televised nationally. The seventh and deciding game of the Indiana-Utah series will be played Monday night in Salt Lake City, where the Stars have won their three games in the series.

The Pacers' high scorer was Mel Daniels with only 20 points but his teammates backed him well with George McGinnis and Darnell Hillman each getting 16 and Roger Brown 15. Willie Wise and Zelmo Beaty led Utah with 30 and 23 points, respectively. Daniels sat out most of the third period in foul trouble but still managed 18 rebounds.

Utah led 55-53 at halftime and Indiana did not grab the lead for good until late in the third period at 75-74.

It also was a time of squaring their series for the New York Nets, who lost two games badly against Virginia on the Squires' court. The Nets put the Squires in a hole early and led 63-52 at halftime with Rick Barry leading the way, finishing with 33 points.

The Squires pulled within four points, 108-104, with 3:17 to play. The Nets got a quick basket and managed to increase their lead in the final moments.

John Roche, just returned from an injured ankle, scored 24 for New York, which also got 18 from Bill Melchionni and 16 from Bill Paultz. Julius Erving led Virginia with 27 points and 23 rebounds. Bernie Williams had 24 for the Squires.

The fifth game of the series is scheduled for Saturday afternoon in a national telecast from Hampton, Va.

Weaver Angry After Losing In The Rain

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Rain drops were falling on his head and Manager Earl Weaver of the Baltimore Orioles was ankle-deep in controversy as usual.

The vociferous Weaver, never bashful with umpires, let them know what was on his mind Wednesday night after they called a game because of rain with Kansas City leading 5-3 in the sixth inning.

"That wasn't a definite effort on the umpires' part," Weaver said after Baltimore's fourth straight loss. "They didn't even take the tarpaulin off the field to see if the ground was wet. How can you say the field's unplayable if you don't even look?"

The rain was still coming down hard in Kansas City as Weaver spoke, more than an hour after the game. He, nevertheless, insisted that Chief Umpire Larry Napp made a mistake by calling the contest after a 59-minute wait.

The Orioles had scored three runs in the top of the inning and had a man on second base with two out and pinch-hitter Bobby Grich coming to bat when it began to pour.

"If the conditions of the field were that bad when they called this game," fumed Weaver, "then we'll never play a game in Baltimore this season. It will never be drier in Baltimore than the ground I walked across tonight."

The hot Chicago White Sox won their seventh straight game with a 7-5 triumph over the Cleveland Indians in 10 innings; the Detroit Tigers hammered the Texas Rangers 8-1; the New York Yankees tripped the Oakland A's 4-2; the California Angels turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1 and the Minnesota Twins stopped the Boston Red Sox 3-1 in the other American League games.

In the National League, the San Francisco Giants beat the Philadelphia Phillies 8-6 in 10; the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6; the St. Louis Cardinals pounded the Atlanta Braves 9-4; the Houston Astros took the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 10; the New York Mets tripped the San Diego Padres 5-1 and the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Montreal Expos 2-0.

Before the Orioles came up with their rain-shortened rally in the sixth, the Royals had put the game away with a five-run fifth, highlighted by John Mayberry's two-run single. The runs broke Dave McNally's string of 22 and 1-3 scoreless innings. "I'm definitely in favor of seeing games like this continued later in the season," snapped Weaver.

Mike Andrews drilled a grand slam home run in the seventh inning for Chicago and the White Sox won their game in the 10th on Dick Allen's two-run homer. Allen unloaded his third homer of the year following a one-out walk to Rich Morales.

The Indians had tied the game at 5-5 in the top of the ninth inning when Alex Johnson doubled and came home on a two-out pinch single by John Lowenstein.

Bill Freehan's two-run double capped a five-run inning for Detroit and the Tigers scored two more in the seventh on Norm Cash's homer enroute to an easy triumph over Texas.

Joe Coleman, who pitched a three-hitter for the Tigers, said he felt his club's pitching staff "will make a lot of experts eat their words."

"We'll give Baltimore a run for their money," said Coleman, speaking of the defending American League champions. "We're not as bad as some people think."

Weak-hitting Gene Michael hit only the ninth home run of his major league career, a three-run shot, to lead New York over Oakland. Michael, a lifetime .227 hitter, drilled a line drive into the right field seats after Johnny Callison had doubled and Rich McKinney walked in the fourth inning.

Greene Central Holds The Lead

DUDLEY—Greene Central High School held onto its slim perch atop the Eastern Carolina Conference yesterday with a 4-0 victory over Southern Wayne.

The win boosted the Ram record to 10-1 in the league. They hold a game advantage in the loss column over Charles B. Aycock and Ayden-Grifton, both of which have lost two games. Greene Central is 10-2 overall.

Johnny Earl Johnson hurled the victory, holding Southern Wayne to only two hits. He struck out eight, but walked six.

The Ram got only five hits, and they were limited to three players. Donald Taylor and Stevie Williamson each had two while Billy Williamson collected the other one, a triple.

Greene picked up its first run in the second inning. Danny Whitley reached on a two-base error, scoring on Taylor's single.

In the third, Robert Ivey reached on an error and Mike Perry was safe on a fielder's choice. The two worked a double steal and Stevie Williamson singled to score Ivey. On the relay to home to prevent Perry from going in, Williamson went down to second and when the ball was relayed there, Perry streaked home with the second run of the inning, making it 3-0.

The final Ram run came over in the fifth. Stevie Williamson singled, and Billy Williamson brought him home with a triple. The Rams host North Pitt on Friday then play host to Ayden-Grifton on Saturday.

Cubs Break Law; Pay The Penalty

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Don't put the winning run on base.

Not when the game is tied. Not when it's in extra innings.

And especially not when you're the visiting team. That's one of the unwritten laws of baseball.

The Chicago Cubs decided to break the law Wednesday night—and they got busted for it.

The Cubs, reeling under the weight of a seven-game losing streak, were employing this bit of unsound strategy in Houston as they tried to overhaul the streaking Astros.

Deadlocked 4-4 in the bottom of the 10th inning, reliever Dan McGinn got the first two Astros, including Jim Wynn. It was Wynn's home run in the eighth inning that had tied the contest.

Up to the plate strode Lee May, who had already crashed four homers in the young season. Not a man to mess with in a tight game like this. May had already doubled home a run. So the Cubs decided to bypass the slugging first baseman, giving him an intentional walk to get to Bob Watson, hitless in four previous at bats.

Watson didn't take too kindly to this and showed his displeasure with a line-drive double to right center field that sent May scurrying around the bases. And when Chicago center fielder Rick Monday slipped trying to chase down the hit, May was home free, the Astros had a 5-4 victory, their ninth straight, and the Cubs had successive loss No. 8.

In other National League action, Cincinnati held off Pittsburgh 7-6, St. Louis beat Atlanta 9-4, San Francisco overtook Philadelphia 8-6 in 10 innings, Los Angeles blanked Montreal 2-0 and the New York Mets defeated San Diego 5-1.

In the American League, Minnesota beat Boston 3-1, the New York Yankees turned back Oakland 4-2, California tamed Milwaukee 3-1, Detroit shelled Texas 8-1, the Chicago White Sox whipped Cleveland 7-5 in 10 innings and, in a rain-shortened 5½-inning contest, Kansas City defeated Baltimore 5-3.

"We don't have just one guy to do the hitting like last year," said Wynn. "Bob Watson is hitting, Lee May is hitting ... and when Lee's not hitting, Bob is. This is a great team—a beautiful team!"

And May added: "When I saw the center fielder fall down, I just knew I had to score. These guys never give up. We can come back."

They came back from a 2-0 Chicago lead in the third on May's double and Wynn's two-run triple. Then, after run-scoring hits by Billy Williams and Glenn Beckert had put Chicago on top again in the seventh, Wynn brought them back again in the eighth with his third homer of the year.

"I'm just starting to breathe and I've been in here a half hour," Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said in the Reds' locker room after the squeaker against Pittsburgh. "These Pirate bats—they scare me."

He had plenty to be frightened about. Cincinnati took a 7-1 lead into the eighth inning. But the Bucs scored twice, then pushed across three more runs in the bottom of the ninth before reliever Pedro Borbon got Bob Robertson for the game-ending out on a fly ball with the bases loaded.

It preserved Gary Nolan's third victory of the season. Bobby Tolan drove in three runs with a homer and single but it was Dave Concepcion's bases-loaded single in the seventh that drove in what proved to be the decisive two runs.

ACC To File Depositions

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Bob James, Commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, was to give a deposition in U.S. District Court today in the suit brought by two Clemson University students challenging the academic requirements for athletic eligibility in the conference.

The president of the conference, Ralph Fadam of North Carolina State University, also was expected to submit a deposition.

The plaintiffs, Joe Edward Beach of St. George, S.C., and James Marion Vickery of Charleston, S.C., gave depositions April 13 before Judge Robert W. Hemphill in Anderson, S.C. They said the ACC requirement of a minimum 800 score on college board entrance exams violates the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution by denying them equal protection of the law.

Also heard at that time were Robert Edwards, Clemson president, Ken Vickery, Clemson dean of admissions.

Edwards said it was essential to Clemson's program that it continue as an ACC member and, as long as it was, it had to comply with conference rules.

The two students, neither a member of a Clemson athletic team, filed suit Dec. 14. Beach told the court his college board score was 760 and kept him from trying out for the football team. Vickery, who said he wanted to seek a swimming team berth as a diver, reported his score was 799.

Nicklaus Choice In Nelson Golf

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Jack Nicklaus is favored. Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper are on hand. But Bruce Crampton may be the chief challenger for the title in the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Crampton, an Australian now living in Dallas, hasn't won all season but he's been seventh or better eight times, has been in position to win a half dozen times and pushed his season earnings to more than $70,000 when he tied for fourth in last week's prestigious Tournament of Champions.

"The way he's playing, he could break through and win two or three in a row," one pro tour official said today before the curly-haired veteran teed off in the first round.

"He just grinds it out, week after week," said the official. "Just like one of those old slave galleys. You can just see him pulling at an oar and hear the drum beating in the background. Grinding it out."

"He's a thrifty player," said Fred Marti. "I played with him a couple of weeks ago. He really didn't play all that well, but he finished with a 67. He hit those good shots when he had to, didn't miss a putt inside six feet and got just all he could out of the round."

"I just try to score as well as I can, eliminating the money at stake from my mind," said Crampton, a 36-year-old who has won 10 tour titles and more than $750,000 in his 16-year career.

The strong, solidly-built Crampton, whose parents wanted him to be a tennis player, in recent years has been one of the most consistent, but least publicized, players on the tour. He has won at least one title and a minimum of $100,000 in each of the last four seasons.

But he didn't even make expenses the first five years in this country. He got his game together in 1962, won three tournaments and $56,000 then broke through into the top echelon of money winners.

Crampton is an intense competitor on the course but friendly and pleasant when he gets away from his work.

"You don't see football players smiling in a huddle, do you?" he asked.

Nicklaus, however, remained the solid favorite for the $25,000 first prize in this 72-hole event that ends Sunday. He's won three times this season, has accumulated more than $154,000 in purses and is gunning for a third consecutive title in this tournament.

Fraternity Undertakes Art Center Paint Job

Like an invading army they spread across the porches, blocked the windows, climbed to the second story and to the roof of the Greenville Art Center in the bright morning sun on Wednesday.

The young invaders, 30 strong, are all members of East Carolina University's Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity. They are well equipped with buckets of paint, paint brushes, sheets of plastic, scaffolding and ladders.

Their mission is to do a cosmetics job on the old lady of a building that has grown shabby around the edges under the impact of sun, wind, rain and unavoidable neglect.

The fraternity brothers, all volunteers, are working under the command of their fraternity advisor, Phil Privette.

"It's goint to take us several days," Privette explained, "as we have to work on spare time. We hope to get most of this done on Saturday."

The old 19th century brick building, on close inspection, has a surprisingly large area of woodwork. There's wood columns and the ceiling of a large front porch and a small back porch, numerous large windows with fan shaped wooden insets above, shutters.

and lots of wood trim.

"We are simply delighted to have this wonderful face-lifting come to us unexpectedly," Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the center remarked, "and we're all grateful to these fine young men who are giving their time and effort to help us in this way."

Paint and other materials were donated by Home Builders and A.B. Whitley.

Vote Sponsoring Festival In '73

GRIFTON — The Grifton Chamber of Commerce endorsed the N.C. Clean Water Bond Act during its regular meeting Tuesday night.

Jim Horne, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, discussed the clean water Bond Act.

The Chamber voted to sponsor next year's Grifton Shad Festival, expressing appreciation to Chamber vice president Clifton Gentry for heading the Second Shad Festival preparations. A Merchants' Committee was set up to plan special projects to help Grifton merchants. Elwyn Thompson was appointed chairman of this committee.

Roger Davenport moved that $700 be repaid on a bank note taken out three years ago when Christmas lights were purchased jointly by the Town of Grifton and the Chamber. The motion was approved unanimously and discussion on ways to raise the money ensued. It was decided that two suppers would be held this year, hopefully so next year's Chamber will be debt-free.

The first dinner will be June 2 from 4:30 to 7:30. Volunteers to help with the project should call Chamber of Commerce secretary Mrs. Vickie Troutman.

No action was taken on a request for a donation to help form Senior Babe Ruth baseball teams in Pitt County for boys 16-18 years old. Roger Davenport was asked to gather further information on this project and report back at next month's meeting.

Arrested Four On Narcotics Charges

Law enforcement officers — basing their action on an undercover investigation underway since January — arrested four Greenville residents Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning on drug law violation charges.

Charged with the illegal distribution of heroin was Clifton Wooten, 27 of Fairfax Avenue. Arrested on two counts of distributing LSD was Steve Everett, 18, of 205 Contentnea St.

Charged on separate counts with distributing marijuana and hashish was Dalton Earl Coward, 18, of Shady Knoll Trailer Park. William Major Buck, 22, was charged with distributing LSD.

Bond for Wooten and Buck was set at $5,000 while Everett and Coward were placed under $10,000 bond. Hearing in the cases has been set for District Court in Greenville, May 1.

According to officials, agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and officers of the Greenville Police Department and Pitt County Sheriff's Deputies took part in the roundup.

Everett, Coward and Buck were taken into custody in Greenville Tuesday night while Wooten was arrested by members of the Kinston Police Department about 2 a.m. Wednesday.

In the early months of the Civil War, the Capitol in Washington served as barracks, then as a hospital.

Hunt: Education Has Priority

"I believe that education must be the first priority of state government in the 1970s," Jim Hunt, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor told about 250 people at the Greenville Moose Lodge on Wednesday night.

The occasion was the annual banquet for the Greenville units of the North Carolina Association of Educators; the Association of Classroom Teachers; and the Association of Childhood Education.

"A sound educational system in North Carolina can do more than just 'book learn' our children. It can provide them with the training and guidance to mold them into productive, contributing members of our society," Hunt remarked.

The candidate mentioned the subject of school curriculum. "We must promote innovation in teaching methods and curriculum reform to equip our children to meet the challenges they surely will face in the future."

"At the same time," he continued, "we must support our educators, you people here tonight, so that we will have an orderly school environment in which teachers can teach and students can learn."

Hunt told his audience that he was aware that some of his responses to NCAE legislative proposals "will not be pleasing. I do not believe in pledging or advocating that which I do not believe to be reasonable or feasible," he commented.

On specific NCAE legislative proposals, Hunt outlined his stand: These included favoring the 10 month term and an increase in salaries; a 12 month term for principals, supervisory and other administrative personnel; a supplement for holders of Advanced Teachers Certificate; the addition of assistant principals and salary supplements for them; decrease in pupil-teacher ratio with a new category of allotment of administrative personnel to make this possible; faster action toward a full-scale program for state kindergartens; the same fringe benefits for teachers as for all other State employees; and State participation in capital outlay expenditures of local units.

Referring to the NCAE request for a Professional Practices Act, Hunt said "I believe very strongly in professionalism in teaching, but I cannot support the principle in this act. There is a great public interest in education, and nearly all teachers are public employees receiving their support from tax funds. For these reasons, I feel that the Stat should continue to approve certification standards for teachers."

Hunt also struck a note for discipline through early training. "It seems to me that much of the strife in our society today, much of the disrespect for our laws, much of our conflict, occurs because of the lack of attention and care given to our children at an early age. I believe very strongly in an education system that will teach our children a sense of values and will guide them to becoming productive members of our society."

Following the talk by Hunt, eight teachers who will retire this year and one who retired last summer were recognized by Mrs. Barbara Tyson, president of ACE and Associate Superintendent Glenn Cox. There are: Mrs. Magdeline

Grimes, who retired last summer; and Mrs. Herma Stancill, Mrs. Mae Gates, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Johnson, Mrs. Elizabeth N. Dowd, Mrs. Dorothy C. Brown, Mrs. Evelyn P. Norris, Mrs. Fannie P. Jackson, and Mrs. Lela B. Stancill, all who will retire at the end of this school year.

Cruelty To Horses Told

Graham House spoke to the Pitt County Humane Society Monday night about brutality to show horses.

House, a local horseman, told members of the use of acid and chains to "sore" the legs of Tennessee Walking Horses in order to produce a far-reaching show gait.

He noted that a recent federal law banned the transport of sore horses across state lines. The use of such devices also violates state and federal laws concerning cruelty to animals. Spectators are treated to a fantastic show step only at the cost of great agony to the horse. Disqualifying sore horses should discourage this practice.

Since horse show rules state that such sore horses should be disqualified, the Humane Society voted to request permission to have an inspector at the Greenville Horse Show, to be held May 7.

The next meeting of the Humane Society will be May 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the Salvation Army Citadel. The public is invited to attend and to join.

Appreciation Is Expressed To F.D. Duncan

A resolution of appreciation to F. D. Duncan was approved by members of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission last night.

Duncan, a member of the commission until his resignation two months ago due to reasons of health, was first appointed to the commission in June 1969 to fill an unexpired term. In July 1970, Duncan was appointed to a three year term.

"During his tenure," the resolution states in part, "F. D. Duncan served with dedication, diligence, perspicacity and integrity."

In the resolution, members of the commission joined in commending Duncan for his "devotion to public duty."

Intelligence Experts In Disagreement On Vietnam

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Intelligence experts told President Nixon three years ago a settlement resulting in a communist-controlled South Vietnam "would not necessarily un- hinge" the rest of Southeast Asia, according to a secret government study.

The intelligence officials said Hanoi's attempt to push gains in the two most vulnerable area countries, Cambodia and Laos, probably would be limited to political agitation, at least at the outset.

Hanoi would be preoccupied, for a time at least, with the formidable task of consolidating communist rule in South Vietnam," the experts said.

The assessment was included as a response to 28 policy questions studied by administration agencies in reviewing general aspects of the Vietnam situation.

The study, classified secret, was coordinated by the National Security Council and given the title National Security Study Memorandum 1.

The more-than-500-page document has been leaked to various news agencies with The Associated Press obtaining, at its own request, a copy from syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

The contradictory nature of most of the assessments provided by the various contributors was part of the findings—dealing with Southeast Asia after Vietnam.

As the summary prepared by the NSC under direction of Henry A. Kissinger put it:

"There continues to be a sharp debate between and within agencies about the effect of the outcome in Vietnam on other nations. The most recent NIE (National Intelligence Estimate) on this subject ... tended to downgrade the so-called 'domino Theory' ...

"The NIE dissenters believe that an unfavorable settlement would stimulate the communists to become more active elsewhere and that it will be difficult to resist making some accommodation to the pressure then generated."

With some exceptions, those downplaying the adverse effects of a communist government in Saigon were the civilian agencies—State Department, Defense Department and the Central Intelligence Agency.

The opponents were the military advisers, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the armed services intelligence community.

This difference generally marked assessments on many aspects of the Vietnam situation, as shown by the study.

The civilians were skeptical about policy, while the military was optimistic about South Vietnam's fighting ability and worried about effects of a communist victory or political supremacy.

This disagreement was sharply etched in the Kissinger summary when it stated: "The emphatic differences between U.S. agencies on the RVNAF (South Vietnamese army) outweigh the points of agreement."

The State Department quoted with approval a "CIA memorandum (that) concluded that it would be at least two years, and perhaps longer, before ARVN (South Vietnamese army) would become an effective fighting force."

The summary said "the military community gives much greater weight to RVNAF statistical improvements ..."

Given these differences it is not surprising to find the contributors disagreeing on the need or ability of Saigon's forces to improve.

The civilian experts, as expressed by the State Department, said: "We believe that the more crucial problems—leadership, morale, discipline and training—are long-term and highly complex and we are not confident that significant improvement in all these fields will be accomplished during the next year or so."

At another point, the study quoted civilian experts as stating:

"Under current and foreseeable circumstances, it will take probably a minimum of two years before structural and technical reforms can make any substantial contribution toward RVNAF fighting effectiveness."

Operating from this assumption, these experts said the South Vietnamese could cope without substantial American assistance only if faced by an enemy force made up of the Viet Cong.

Even if the North Vietnamese were used only as "fillers" in VC units, the civilian intelligence community found, "it would probably be necessary to provide the RVNAF with sufficient U.S. combat support to make up for its deficiencies ...

"The presence of substantial numbers of North Vietnamese fillers in Viet Cong units in the absence of any U.S. combat-troop involvement, would tend to negate even short-term, not to mention long-term, prospects for the RVNAF."

The summary reports that, paradoxically, the military believes "that RVNAF would not be able to cope with purely indigenous VC forces without U.S. combat support until the completion of the modernization in 1972."

The summary concludes that "all agencies agree that RVNAF could not, either now or even when fully modernized, handle both the VC and a sizable level of NVA forces without U.S. combat support on the form of air, helicopters, artillery, logistics and some ground support."

As to the effectiveness of the American support at the time of the study, there was marked disagreement in the documents over the value of the U.S. air raids against the North before a bombing halt was ordered in 1968.

The military said the B52 raids were more effective than credited by the civilian contributors and generally hurt the North Vietnamese.

The summary put the disagreement this way:

The military believes "that a vigorous bombing campaign could choke off enough supplies to Hanoi to make her stop fighting, while (the Defense Department) and CIA see North Vietnam continuing the struggle even against unlimited bombing."

Chairman

Laurence S. (Larry) Graham, a Greenville attorney, was elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Sheppard Memorial Library at the April board meeting held on Tuesday.

Graham has served on the board since January of this year when he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of William Brewer, who resigned. Brewer was chairman of the board at the time of his resignation.

"Being selected chairman of the Board of Trustees was a pleasant surprise," Graham stated. "I consider this a wonderful opportunity and look forward to working with the fine membership that is on the board."

Willy Brandt Defeats Attempt To Overthrow His Coalition

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt defeated an attempt today by the Christian Democrats to overthrow his coalition government and replace him as chancellor of West Germany.

A Christian Democratic motion of no confidence fell two votes short of the 249 needed for its adoption. It got 247, and a majority of the total 496 members in the Bundestag, the lower house of the West German parliament, was necessary to turn out Brandt's coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats and replace the Socialist chancellor with Christian Democratic leader Rainer Barzel.

Bundestag President Kai Uwe von Hassel announced that 260 votes were cast. Brandt had called on his supporters to abstain on the vote as a maneuver to spotlight any Social or Free Democrats who might go down to the voting urns to cast ballots. The implication was that they were reneging on their party obligations.

Brandt took the podium to defend his government as the showdown vote neared on the no-confidence vote brought by the Christian Democrats. The embattled chancellor dared any defectors from his majority to step forward.

"What do they have to fear?" he asked. "What do they have to hide?"

Brandt suffered one defection before the debate began, shaving his coalition to 223 of his own Social Democrats and 25 of the allied free Democrats.

Although this divided the Bundestag 248-248 and ended Brandt's one-vote majority, the Christian Democrats still had to muster 249 votes—a majority of the full membership—to bring down the government and replace Brandt.

The defector was Knut von Kuehlmann-Stumm, a Free Democrat who had been wavering for weeks.

Walter Scheel, the Free Democrat leader, tried to keep his forces in line by urging that they honor their mandate as members of the governing coalition.

Brandt contended that his government with its thin majority "has achieved more than you Christian Democrats did with much broader majorities."

"I have done my duty," he declared, "I have represented the interests of our people and our state better than if I had followed the often-confused advice of the opposition."

In an effort to help the Socialist chancellor, East Germany agreed Wednesday to a treaty easing traffic restrictions between the two halves of divided Germany.

However, the East Germans said they would not sign the treaty until the West German parliament ratified Brandt's new nonaggression treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland. The Christian Democrats oppose the treaties, and the implication was that East Germany would not honor the traffic agreement if the conservatives took over the government.

The chancellor was backed by a wave of strikes, protest marches and messages of support indicating widespread public acceptance of his efforts to improve relations with the Soviet bloc.

In the largest demonstration, 15,000 marchers carried torches through the street of Bonn Wednesday night and rallied in the capital's cobble-stoned market square.

The Bundestag had been expected to end debate on the budget Wednesday with a vote that would have given some indication of the division today. But leaders of the rival parties agreed to dispense with this, indicating that neither side felt sure enough of its position and didn't want to risk a defeat that would damage its prospects today.

A Non-Lawyer who believes that the Courts belong to the People

I believe that a better balance could be maintained in this district if a non-lawyer were elected. I have served for two years as Magistrate, and have, in those two years, experienced or observed every type of situation likely to come before District Court. As Magistrate, I have been trained in the District Court system and procedures at the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill. I make indictments for every court, accept pleas, and take bonds.

Our neighboring district of Greene, Lenoir & Wayne Counties have two judges who are not lawyers, and their record on the bench has been acclaimed by many.

Much more important than the degree held is the experience and the man himself. Can he make decisions without yielding to the pressures of friends and cronies? Does he or can he render fair & impartial judgements? Are defendants who are not represented by counsel treated as fairly as those who are?

What I Believe. . .

I believe that the solution (as nearly as possible) to the Drunk Driver Problem lies in the court. Law enforcement is doing its job, but too often the arresting officer seems to be the one being tried. I consider the drunk driver and drug abuse to be the most serious problems facing our district today, and largely because of laxity, diversity of judgment, etc., in our court.

I believe that Probation Officers are often grossly misused by the courts. They are too often simply asked to act as collection agents for the court, and cannot thus effectively do the job for which they are intended. They often do not receive the needed cooperation from the courts.

I believe that our citizens lose their respect for the courts when they see charges reduced for some defendants, while others must face the full penalty for their violation. This breeds contempt for a system that must stay above reproach.

I ask for your support on May 6

The limestone waters of bourbon country produce the finest whiskeys in the world. And if you've ever visited Kentucky, you know that everyone is a bourbon expert. Which puts Very Old Barton in a very special class, because it's the bourbon country bourbon. The people there can choose the same fine whiskeys you find on your liquor store shelves. More and more choose Very Old Barton. Maybe they know something.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to contact people who can help you make your usual routines more efficient and effective, particularly allies. Once this is done, get into recreation with the same vim and vigor and be happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who, upon reaching maturity, will start operating on a very even and practical keel, even though early in life the failure to come to the right decision on time makes the growing up a little difficult. Therefore it behooves you as parents to guide this child more than others. The ability here is great, but only time can bring it out properly.

Basic Reading Series Popular

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Electric Company," television's new educational series, is especially popular in elementary schools, according to a survey by Research Triangle Institute.

The daily half-hour series is watched in more than one out of three elementary schools equipped to receive it.

The series is designed to teach basic reading skills to 7 to 10 year olds.

Offer Parents Free Courses

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Beginning next fall, studying for final exams at Wesley College may be a family affair.

The college will offer tuition-free evening courses to parents of fulltime Wesley students. "If parents go to classes, they understand students better and students become more effective learners," Dean William C. Wright said.

SUING STUDIO
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cary Grant is suing 20th Century-Fox for $1 million, saying the studio lifted scenes from a 1952 movie in which he starred and used them in a 1968 movie.

To ECU Geology Dept. Collection Contributed

The Department of Geology at East Carolina University has received an extensive mineral and rock collection as a contribution from Mrs. Fred O. Drummond of Kannapolis. In 1968 Mrs. Drummond made arrangement with Dr. C. Q. Brown, then chairman of the Geology Department, to have her retirement. Dr. Brown is now director of Institutional Development at ECU.

Mrs. Drummond has taught school in the Kannapolis City Schools since 1947, and she is retiring this year as a science teacher at Cannon Junior High School. Through the years, the collection has grown and has been used and enjoyed by many of her students.

Mineral and rock specimens from North Carolina are a significant portion of the collection. Other areas represented by specimens collected by Mrs. Drummond include many states of the U.S., the Bancroft area of Canada, and the Mexico City region. Many specimens were obtained by trading with other collectors and some were gifts from friends.

"The collection represents years of dedicated collecting by Mrs. Drummond. We are most appreciative of this generous contribution from Ms. Drummond, and the collection will be a significant addition to our educational program."

The Drummond Collection will be housed and displayed in the Geology Department in Graham Building on the ECU campus. A portion of the collection was on display for the North Carolina Academy of Science meeting and Science Departments open house last week.

Baby's Arrival A Big Surprise

BALTIMORE, Md., (AP) — A student at Northern High School gave birth to a 7-pound, 14-ounce baby girl in the school's dispensary.

"She had no idea she was pregnant," the principal told hospital officials later.

The mother, 16, was described as a good student who had never missed a day of school.

"In order to make our public schools more meaningful and relevant for the individual student, we need to provide more opportunities to learn vocational skills, beginning in the earlier grades—but not as an alternative to basic subjects."

The cast for the Robersonville Centennial was a varied one . . . housewives, teen-agers, little children and citizens almost as old as the town. There were ministers, politicians, town officials, and former movie star John Payne. Black and white, young and old, they all joined in making the Centennial a big hit.

.... two charmingly gowned ladies seem to be wondering if that might be a Kentucky frontiersman on the other side of the town dignitaries seated in the reviewing stand.

Robersonville Celebrates 100 Years

.... a tiny spectator found it bewildering, so many things to see,

like the magnificently outfitted horse and rider, and the lovely marching girls

.... love my man's centennial whiskers.

The celebration of a town's Centennial is a festive, joyous occasion, bringing forth a renewed sense of friendliness and good will.

For a few days, everyday cares are forgotten as a town is transformed into a living stage set with residents, young and old, becoming actors in a colorful pageant combining past and present.

In Robersonville, from the pre-Centennial excitement of the First Lady's visit on April 19 until the last dying spark of the final display of fireworks Thursday night, each day will have been an exciting procession of events that will long be cherished and remembered by everyone involved.

.... would you believe this pump has run dry right in the middle of the Centennial parade?

The Worry Clinic Simple Tip To Heart Victim

Horace was naturally frightened at his first heart attack. A full stomach, plus vigorous exercise, place an extra load on a hampered heart. And the BEST quick treatment is rapid, deep breathing, to gain extra oxygen from the 20 per cent in the air around us!

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph.D., M.D.

Case T-562: Horace T., aged 42, is alarmed.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I suffered a heart attack 6 weeks ago.

"Right after lunch I decided to walk back to the office, which was only 4 blocks away.

"But I was late, so I hurried, and before I reached my office building, I got a dull pain across my left chest.

"Then I grew sick at my stomach.

"And I broke out in cold sweat over my forehead.

"So I called a taxi and went straight to my physician's office.

"He said I had suffered a mild coronary attack.

"And warned me to take it easy, with no strenuous exercise after meals.

"Am I likely to suffer another heart attack?

"Suppose I were all alone in the house, what should I do?"

HEART WORRIES

The pain in a heart attack is due to lack of enough oxygen to the muscle fibers in the heart wall.

For a coronary thrombosis (plug, due to thickening of the artery wall) or a coronary embolus (plug from a tiny floating clot) shuts off cir-ulation to a portion of the heart wall.

If you have the symptoms that Horace describes, maybe an area less than the size of a green pea is denied its former blood supply.

The larger the area of heart muscle shut off from blood, the more serious is your heart attack.

But if you are still conscious, the odds are more in your favor than if you are knocked unconscious at once.

And you victims often can tip the scales in favor of life vs. death during those first 10 minutes, even before a physician gets to you.

For the air around you contains 20 percent oxygen.

So breathe deeply and often, to build up a surplus of oxygen in your blood.

This quick remedy may let your heart adjust to the shock and begin to beat on a more regular rhythm.

Remember, even if you are scared and feel you don't dare breathe deeply because of the knife-like pain in your left chest, start that regular deep breathing!

For such exercise of the ribs and diaphragm will NOT harm your hampered heart.

Instead, it will bring extra life-giving oxygen to it!

All we medics do for you, anyway, is inject a big shot of morphine to reduce your fear and thus slow down your hampered heart.

And if you are conscious, we have you place a nitroglycerine tablet under the tip of your tongue, to dilate the coronary arteries so they may bring a little more oxygen to the muscle fibers.

Later, we administer oxygen from a bottle when we get you in the ambulance.

But you may die during the 30 minutes required to obtain an ambulance or drive you across town to the hospital.

Quick oxygen is your best lifesaver, so get it right out of the air via deep breathing!

Once I had a patient who had survived 12 heart attacks but died at the 13th, as per autopsy, so don't panic at your first attack!

Kinston Mayor EPIC's Prexy

RALEIGH — Simon C. Sitterson, Jr., Mayor of Kinston, was elected president of EPIC, Inc. (Electric Power in Carolina) at the organization's third annual meeting at the College Inn in Raleigh Tuesday. Sitterson has served as a member of the Board of Directors and was 1st vice president of EPIC last year.

During the meeting, representatives from 27 member municipalities and 20 North Carolina electric membership corporations heard reports from legal and engineering consultants and also an annual report by this year's president, James S. Melton and the organization's executive vice president, Gary Tabak.

In a panel discussion before the assembly, legal, engineering and investment counsel answered questions covering all aspects of EPIC from the physical design of generating and transmitting facilities to financing. Participating in the panel discussion were Tabak, J. O. Tally, Jr. and William T. Crisp of the firm of Tally, Crisp, Attorneys; George Ragsdale of the investment banking firm of Lehman Brothers, Inc.; and Robert E. Bathen of Beck-Southern Engineering.

Directors re-elected to serve another one-year term were: Carl W. Bateman, Rocky Mount; L. P. Beverage, Four

Bottles Help Support Orphans

PEARL RIVER, N.Y. (AP)

— A Boy Scout troop in this Hudson Valley community is using the proceeds of a glass recycling drive to support two orphaned children.

The youngsters—a Korean girl and a Brazilian boy—were "adopted" by Troop 34 through an international relief agency.

Funds for their support are provided by used bottles and jars collected by the scouts and delivered to a nearby bottle-making plant under a glass recycling program sponsored by member companies of the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

Maryland Using Yellow Cruisers

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP) — It was no April Fool's joke on April 1 when Maryland State Police placed the first yellow cruiser in service.

The single color cars will replace the regular black and tan patrol cars as they wear out.

A Busing Problem, But N.C. Racial Violence Down

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Numerous mechanical failures, parking problems and disorders among students have harassed North Carolina's school bus transportation system this year under increased desegregation.

However, racial violence has decreased. Some 500 discarded buses had to be put back into service to meet the sudden court-ordered busing to achieve racial balance in certain city and county school units. "We've had all kinds of problems," said D. J. Dar, director of the state division of transportation. "However, the school administrators have made it work under very trying conditions."

Robert Strother, assistant state school superintendent, said racial violence and disorders in North Carolina's schools have dropped considerably in comparison to the 1970-71 school year.

"There have been two-thirds less school closings this year," said Strother, a troubleshooter on racial issues.

"Virtually all of the troubles at the schools now occur prior to the beginning of school each morning, during the lunch hour and on school buses in the afternoon," Strother said. "This stems from a lack of adult supervision."

He added, "I would like to see a responsible adult, a teacher's aide, for example, placed on every bus to supervise the children. There is a big lack of discipline there. The lunch disorders have about halted."

"As a matter of fact, the Negroes and whites have about run out of big issues to wrangle about. Now there are kid issues. They don't become racial issues until the community gets involved."

The school youngsters don't know how to figure Strother when he approaches them to settle a dispute.

"They don't know whether I'm for or against them," he said. "I wear their type of boots, but I don't go for the long hair. I have a crew cut. So they're a little confused at my appearance and listen to me."

L. W. Alexander, assistant director of the division of transportation, said four major things have plagued the school bus system this year: (1) mechanical failures, (2) rowdiness and disorders by students, (3) lack of sufficient qualified drivers, and (4) lack of parking facilities at some schools.

Dark said he has no way of knowing how many city and county buses had to be put into operation to carry out court orders for busing to achieve racial balance.

Under state regulations, cities and counties must purchase the initial bus. Replacement buses are paid for by the state, which also foots the bill for maintenance and operation up to certain state standards.

The court orders caught some cities and counties short on funds. Those who had money in their budgets were unable to get new buses.

As a result, some city units had to pay privately owned city bus systems to help transport school children.

"We solicited the help of units that had discarded buses," Dark explained. "The units loaned the old buses to other units to tide them over until replacements could be bought."

Dark said the State Division of Purchase and Contract recently approved contracts for new buses. Some 100 buses were bought by city and county units to replace discarded buses. More will be purchased later, Dark said.

"The discarded buses wouldn't have been put back into operation except in an emergency," Dark said. "This caused many mechanical failures to crop up when schools opened for the current year."

He added mechanics and tow trucks were kept busy answering trouble calls.

"It was a trying time," said Dark, "but all in all, we're pleased that things have gone as well as they have." There were 9,275 school buses in operation in North Carolina at the end of the 1968-69 school year. This rose to 9,447 in 1969-70 and to 9,981 last year.

An estimated 10,400 buses are being used this year to transport 717,484 pupils at a cost of $24.9 million. This compares with $21.3 million in 1970-71, an average of $31.21 per pupil.

Dedicating New School Sunday

Dedication of the new Ayden-Grifton High School will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Robert E. Strother, assistant superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh, will be the keynote speaker for the event. A graduate of North Carolina University, Strother works in the area of human relations and student affairs. He is a native of Granville County and has served as a teacher, principal and county superintendent.

Strother has done post-graduate work at the University of North Carolina where he received his superintendent's certificate.

Special music for the dedication will be provided by Mrs. Clarissa May and the Ayden-Grifton High School Ensemble.

The invocation will be given by the Rev. R. T. McCarter, a member of the Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council.

The school has a current enrollment of 785 students, coming from the Ayden, South Ayden and Grifton High Schools when consolidation occurred.

The school covers an area of 121,859 square feet. Architects for the facility were Dudley and Shoe of Greenville.

William C. Wiggins, principal, and Frederick Parks and Kent Walker, assistant principals, head the faculty of 49 professional staff members.

Dinner For Newcomers

GRIFTON — About 65 persons attended the semi-annual newcomers' dinner here Monday night at the St. Mark's Episcopal Church.

Ed Bright welcomed the newcomers to Grifton and discussed some of the aspects of the town.

Bright invited the newcomers to get involved in church, youth and civic activities.

Elwyn Thompson, president of the Grifton Resources Improvement Program, acted as toastmaster and introduced the special guests, officers of GRIP, and Grifton Mayor David Bosley.

The event was sponsored by GRIP as part of its welcoming service to make newcomers feel at home in Grifton. GRIP "glad-bags" are also delivered to each newcomer which includes facts about the town, a descriptive brochure, and gift certificates from local merchants.

The meal was prepared by the ladies auxiliary of the Grifton Rescue Squad.

Women Shunning Ideal Profession

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dentistry is an ideal profession for women, yet they continue to shun it, says Dr. C.A. Laughlin, president of the American Dental Association.

During a visit for the 75th annual meeting of the Southern California Dental Association, Laughlin told newsmen that only 1.2 per cent of the nation's dentists are women and the number is declining annually.

Women should consider dentistry, he added, because they would be able to "set their own hours, establish a part-time practice from their homes and serve their family as well as patients."

The Dallas fire department responded to 1,132 heart attack calls and 26 drownings in 1971.

PLANNED SPACE OBSERVATORY — NASA's new High Energy Astronomy Observatory will be the largest unmanned U.S. scientific satellite ever launched when the more than 10-ton HEAO flies in 1975. The space agency has signed an $80 million contract with TRW Inc.

to develop two of the 4-story tall spacecraft to explore the high energy output of the stars from Earth orbit. The information will reveal much about the origin of Earth and the evolution of the solar system. The HEAO will be launched by a Titan II. (AP Wirephoto)
