As Vietnam Fighting Swells

Troops Continue Major Push Against Southern Cities

By BERT OKULEY

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese troops started a major push against Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost city Saturday, captured a district capital on the central coast and set up heavy artillery positions within easy firing range of refugee-swollen Hue.

Communist forces also tightened their grip on the provincial capital of An Loc, north of Saigon. South Vietnamese troops there were reported trying to flee the besieged town, some of them clinging to the skids of American helicopters moving out wounded soldiers.

Former Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky visited the northern front and said the situation was "serious but not desperate."

The South Vietnamese commander for the northern provinces said his troops would hold Quang Tri but an Italian freelance newsman—the only reporter left in the city—described the situation as "chaotic."

Key Assesses Strategy

A small garrison of American advisers is still stationed in the city, which is only 18 miles south of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and was the starting place for the current offensive one month ago.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, South Vietnamese commander for the five northern provinces, said the Communists were "throwing everything they have" against Quang Tri. "They've been trying for four weeks and we still have it. I think we'll be able to stay there," he said.

Ky, who has had no government job since he resigned to try to run against President Nguyen Van Thieu last fall, said he thought the Communist offensive would last four more weeks while the Communists try to conquer South Vietnam cities to get leverage in a proposed peace settlement. "If they can get some cities it's good for them. If not, at least they show their presence in South Vietnam and after that accept some arrangements — ceasefire, coalition government."

Abandoned Bases Occupied

Ennio Iaccobuci, an Italian freelance newsman, said North Vietnamese troops led by tanks, made an assault against the city earlier in the day.

He said the situation was "so chaotic that nobody knows where they (South Vietnamese units) have gone or where they are right now."

The South Vietnamese said they killed at least 150 Communists and knocked out seven tanks in the attack.

Thirty-five miles farther South, North Vietnamese moved into abandoned allied bases Bastogne and Checkmate and began firing on bases Birmingham and T-Bone with huge, highly accurate 130mm artillery.

Birmingham and T-Bone are on the outskirts of Hue while Bastogne and Checkmate, which were abandoned Friday night, are 12 miles away. The two bases guarded the southwestern approaches to the city.

Militiamen Panic

Still farther to the south, an estimated 1,000 Communist troops overran about 600 South Vietnamese militiamen at the district capital of Bong Son, ending three days of fighting. Bong Son was the 12th district capital captured by the Communists so far in the offensive. Another nearby district town, Hoai An, was captured by the Communists 10 days ago.

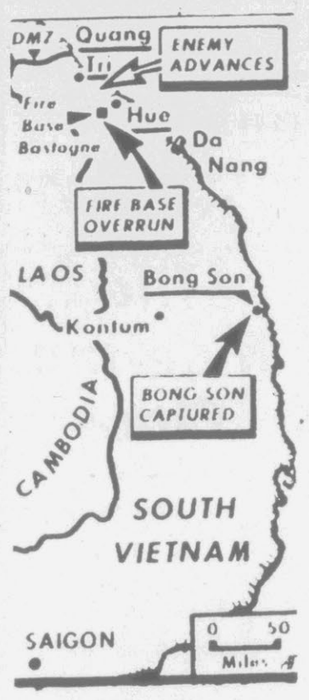
Field reports said militiamen apparently fled from the Communists at Bong Son and five of them pushed their way aboard an American helicopter which had landed to evacuate a wounded U.S. adviser. The pilot took the men to a base at Phu Cat where they were arrested.

Field reports also said about a score of defenders grabbed the skids of relief helicopters bringing supplies and reinforcements into An Loc.

It was the first time helicopters had been able to land at the town in two weeks but the ground fire was so heavy some of the helicopters turned back.

They carried about 96 reinforcements and were supposed to take wounded soldiers out of the surrounded city.

A 60-mile stretch of Highway 1 in Cambodia has been in communist hands for several days. The Communists want control of both highways so they can have a safe supply route and a potential invasion path to Saigon.



IN VIETNAM...The offensive in the Northern portions of South Vietnam continued Saturday as enemy tightened grip on Quang Tri and overran Fire Base Bastogne. Further south, Bong Son was the latest position to fall to the foe. (AP Wirephoto)

Sanford Visits Here

Terry Sanford met well-wishers here Saturday, continuing his aim to visit every North Carolina congressional district and most of the counties in his bid for the Democratic nomination for President.

He said he is encouraged by Edmund Muskie's bowing out of further primary campaigning, because he feels it will give him more delegate strength at convention time. Telephone calls were being made to various parts of the country to assess strength since this development, Sanford said.

"More than ever, I feel the convention will lend itself to a new face," he said.

Asked whether he would throw his support to Humphrey or McGovern if his not winning looked inevitable, Sanford said he would withdraw without telling his supporters which way to vote.

The large crowd who turned out to meet Sanford at a local motel were quite receptive to the former North Carolina governor's idea, "North Carolina should lead the nation." He said he believes it is the first time in 100 years that a Southerner and a North Carolinian could hope to win the nation's highest office.

Some of the better known local figures who turned out to talk with Sanford included Highway Commissioner Arthur Tripp, East Carolina University President, Dr. Leo Jenkins and ECU vice-president Robert Holt, Dr. Ray Minges, N.C. Veterans' Affairs Chief Albert Lang, ECU Director of Athletics Clarence Satsavich, Sanford's Pitt County Campaign manager, A. B. Whitley, and Council of Aging director Mrs. J. B. Spilman.

Sanford announced that Jeff Jenkins, son of Dr. Leo Jenkins, has joined his active campaign staff as a person to reach the junior business executive segment. Numerous other young people were in evidence, young families as well as high school and college students.

Taking a shot at the Nixon administration, Sanford yesterday accused the Nixon administration of not keeping its promises to reduce the national debt or balance the budget.

He said the administration was "wasting the taxpayer's money" and the budget deficit was so huge "that generations of our grandchildren will have to bear the burden of paying it."

Rather than reducing the national debt the administration has increased it by 25 per cent the last four years.

"We cannot go on this way," he emphasized.

Robbery Charged

Store employees and East Carolina University students helped apprehend a man fleeing from a local grocery store with $446 in cash, checks and food stamps allegedly taken from a cash register about 6:45 p.m. Saturday according to Greenville police.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, Albert C. Belser, 23-year-old Negro of Washington, D. C. was charged with grand larceny in connection with the incident.

The police official said Belser allegedly took about $390 in cash, $35 worth of food stamps as well as checks and other cupons from an unattended register at Harris' Supermarket on East Tenth St. Store employees who heard the register open yelled at the man and he ran from the store.

Several employees and customers gave chase and Belser was caught in Greene Springs Park and held for police. All of the money and other items taken was recovered, Cannon noted.

In addition to the larceny, Belser was also charged with assaulting the assistant store manager Steve Cayton.

Investigation of the case is continuing.

What Time Is It?

If you haven't set your watch or clock ahead one hour, it may not be the time you think it is.

Daylight Savings Time went into effect over most of the nation at 2 a.m. today.

The system of advanced time will be in effect until a return to Standard Time October 29, when the lost hour will be regained.

The San Francisco school board has allocated $2,306.82 to pay eight workers overtime to move ahead clocks in all the city's schoolrooms this weekend.

So, if you haven't moved your clock ahead, maybe you ought to do it yourself now.

Astronauts Welcomed Back From Mountains Of The Moon

By ROBERT C. MILLER

HICKAM AFB, Hawaii (UPI)—Back from the mountains of the moon, the Apollo 16 astronauts got a cheering welcome from a crowd of 2,500 persons and a kiss from a lovely Hawaiian girl Saturday, and then headed home to the Houston Space Center by Air Force jet.

"The frontiers of the unknown are man's eternal frontiers," Astronaut John W. Young Jr., 41, told the crowd after he stepped out on a red carpet, to U.S. soil for the first time since Apollo 16 left Cape Kennedy April 16.

Young, the Apollo 16 commander, and astronauts Charles M. Duke Jr., 36, an Air Force lieutenant colonel, and Thomas K. Mattingly II, 36, a Navy lieutenant commander, flew to this air base on the outskirts of Honolulu from the Carrier USS Ticonderoga.

The Ticonderoga plucked them from the Pacific Thursday after a perfect splashdown ended their 12-day lunar flight, the next to last Apollo journey to the moon and man's fifth lunar landing.

Each of the astronauts got a lei of red carnations and a kiss from a lovely "wahine"—or Hawaiian girl—as they alighted from their Navy planes under bright blue skies and balmy 80-degree weather.

After greeting Adm. John S. McCain, Commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific, and Hawaii Gov. John Burns, they boarded an Air Force Starlifter for the flight to Houston where will arrive at about 11 p.m. EST.

Young paid tribute to the "100,000 people" in the space agency and allied organizations responsible for the flight.

"What you saw was teamwork," he said. "That makes our country great."

Duke described the journey as "the most fantastic trip I'll ever have. But the important feeling I have is how glad I am to be an American and to represent this country in such an endeavor."

Mattingly drew laughter from the crowd at Hickam when he observed "how nice it is to see a mixed group for a change."

Hawaii Gov. Burns called the trip "a triumph for the American people" and said Americans "were with them every minute in space, have shared with them their accomplishments."

Each of the astronauts took the controls for a while themselves after they were catapulted off the Ticonderoga's flight deck for the 300-mile flight to Hickam on the outskirts of Honolulu.

Their arrival was earlier delayed somewhat by 23-mile-an-hour head winds and six to eight-foot seas, as well as boiler room problems in the Ticonderoga.

The 245 pounds of moon rocks the astronauts brought back, which scientists think may contain traces of the original lunar crust and provide leads to the formation of both the earth and the moon, were taken in two shipments to the Houston Space Center, one with the astronauts, another on a separate plane.

Readjustment Easy

The astronauts were reported in good physical shape by Dr. Charles Berry, the space agency's medical director.

Berry said in Houston Friday the trio had less difficulty readjusting to earth gravity and apparently did not have the heart irregularities noticed in space by the Apollo 15 astronauts.

The Apollo 16 crew was on a special diet of high potassium content during the flight in order to offset the conditions which caused the heart irregularities on Apollo 15.

Apollo 16 blasted off from Cape Kennedy April 16, and Young and Duke in the lunar lander Orion landed on the moon's southern highlands in an area named Descartes. In addition to the rocks, they brought back a wealth of film and scientific observations.

Previous Apollo crews landed in relatively flat parts of the moon. Apollo 16 made the first visit to the mountains of the lunar highlands.

America's final planned landing on the moon will be Apollo 17, which is set for launch next Dec. 6.

Miss N.C.

An East Carolina University coed, Miss Debbe Falls has been named Miss North Carolina USA and will compete in the Miss USA Contest in Puerto Rico May 9-20.

DEBBE FALLS

Contest judges visited each women's dormitory and sorority house on the ECU campus interviewing candidates and viewing them in both dresses and swim suits. The Miss USA contest does not have a talent division, but is judged on the appearance, personality, and charm of each girl.

Miss Falls, who will graduate next month with a degree in health and physical education, has been North Carolina Apple Queen, chosen at a festival in Hendersonville. She was Miss Lincoln County in 1969 and was a finalist in the Miss North Carolina pageant.

A native of Vale in Lincoln County, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hilton. She has one sister, Mrs. Terry (Bobbe) Royster. Dancing is her special interest and she said she may teach it exclusively in later years. After teaching at least all of next year, she hopes to get her Master's degree in health and physical education.

She is a member of Delta Zeta Sorority.

Hawkins Campaigns In County Friday, Speaks Saturday Night

Dr. Reginald Hawkins, Democratic candidate for governor, addressed a meeting of the Baptist Union here last night.

The Charlotte dentist was also in the county Friday, visiting North Pitt, Ayden-Grifton and Rose High Schools.

He told students at North Pitt, "The young will have a place in my administration."

He also told the students he has spent his life working for youth participation in politics, He said he was instrumental in winning Democratic reforms for youth, blacks,nand women at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Hawkins said the minorities he represents "are no longer interested in the crumbs off the table that have fallen from the political process. We want the whole thing."

At Rose High he shook hands with students in the halls and visited a black studies class where he quizzed students on their lessons.

The black candidate for governor said Saturday that he has asked the Justice Department for federal poll watchers in North Carolina during the May 6 primary. The request was made, he said, by telegram to Francis Kennedy of the Justice Department's Civil Rights division.

Hawkins said in his telegram that he was requesting poll watchers for several reasons:

—Because of acts of discrimination against blacks and others in past elections.

—Because of the failure of the state and some county boards of election to appoint black registrars, judges and poll watchers.

—Because of state legislation last year that prevents poll watchers in several counties.

"We are greatly aware of the fact that many blacks, youths and other voters will be denied the right to vote and have their votes counted," Hawkins said in his telegram.

"Therefore," he said, "we hereby request federal watchers and observers in North Carolina during the May 6 primary."

Hawkins said poll watchers could be sent to the state under the 1965 Voting Rights Act. In North Carolina 39 counties are affected by the act.

Hawkins called unconstitutional the actions of the 1971 General Assembly that prevents poll watchers in 14 of the state's 100 counties.

Hawkins said he was taking his action "not only to protect my election, but those of many local candidates across the state."

Hawkins said he would make telephone contact with Kennedy Monday morning.

Troops Scatter Youths In Belfast Unrest

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—British troops Saturday night fired rubber bullets to scatter hundreds of rock-throwing Protestant youths who attacked Roman Catholics and Northern Ireland police in East Belfast.

In London, William Craig, leader of the militant Protestant Vanguard Movement, said Protestants were beginning to foresee a situation in which civil war could break out in Ulster.

An army spokesman said at least two youths were taken to hospitals with gunshot wounds during the three hours of violence touched off when the Protestants, members of a street gang, attacked a bar in the Roman Catholic Short Strand enclave with bottles and bricks.

Police moved in to clear the area. Pitched battles broke out along Woodstock Road. Rioters stopped a bus, turned it over and smashed and looted shops, police said.

Second Gang Appears

Protestant youths were injured in baton charges.

A second gang joined the battle. Police, surrounded by a mob of an estimated 600 shouting Protestants, took refuge in Willowfield police station and summoned army help.

Troop riot squads with clubs and rubber bullets finally fought their way between the street gangs and the police station.

The Short Strand is an enclave of 6,000 Roman Catholics surrounded by 60,000 Protestants. Rioting by Protestants Wednesday and Thursday brought the posting of police to the district.

In London, William Craig, leader of the militant Protestant Ulster Vanguard Movement, said up to 30,000 Protestants were undergoing military training.

"The mood of the (Protestant) majority is now beginning to envisage a situation where it will come to civil war," he said.

"Civil war is certainly much more a possibility now than it was before" British Prime Minister Edward Heath imposed direct rule from London on the province, Craig said.

British Crackdown Sought

Protestants warned they would take matters into their own hands if the British government does not crack down on Catholic lawbreakers in Ulster.

South Carolina

State Share, $14.3 million; Local share, $43.3 million.

Aiken, $372,852; Aiken County, $506,870; Anderson, $535,031; Anderson County, $505,918; Charleston, $2,188,582; Charleston County, $2,727,386.

Students Not Interested

By GARRY J. MOES
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An official of a Soviet youth organization who toured U.S. college campuses says many American students do not appear to be seriously interested in using educational facilities provided for them.

The students obviously have many of the finest resources in the world, Levon G. Saakyan said in an interview Friday.

"My personal opinion is that American students do not always use these good conditions they have," he said. "I would point out a certain lack of discipline and lack of responsibility for what they are doing when they study. There is an attitude among university leaders that is too lenient. They are not trying to bring up their students to have a sense of full consciousness of their responsibility. Students have an easy life and perhaps they are too accustomed to it."

Saakyan suggested more students should engage in collective work experiences to learn a greater sense of social responsibility.

Saakyan, 34, first secretary of the Youth Leaders of Republic of Armenia, has just completed a two-week tour of six American campuses with Vladimir A. Kavtaradze, 35, a member of the Presidum of the Committee of Youth Organizations of the U.S.S.R., and Nickolia N. Mukhin, 24, president of the student council at Moscow State University.

Mukhin said Soviet student body organizations have infinitely more power within their universities than their American counterparts.

"Not one student may be expelled without the consent of the student organization, for example," he said, adding that Soviet student councils have a direct voice in planning of curriculum, making dormitory assignments, and most other aspects of student life.

Kavtaradze said he was slightly disappointed the three had been taken to such conservative colleges—"at least the students told us they were conservative institutions."

Zoning Boundary Proposed

A proposed new extra-territorial zoning area boundary encircling Greenville was outlined to the Planning and Zoning Commission Wednesday night.

City Engineer C. A. Holliday remarked that the proposed new boundary would "tie down the boundary to given landmarks such as a road, a stream or an identifiable marker.

"In proposing the new boundary, we are staying within the one mile limit as much as possible," Holiday stated, "with some variations one way or the other as necessity dictates."

In general, the proposed extra-territorial zoning boundary, the city engineer explained, would begin at a point on Allen Road.

From there, with slight variations, it would follow a pattern reading around the city limits back to a point of beginning to include, among other landmarks — the Farmville Road; State Road 1204 to N.C.43; northwest to Hardy's Creek, then back to Tar River; from Tar River where the western boundary of the airport is to State Road 1401; northerly to Road 1440; Greenfield Terrace extended to State Road 1417; to the Burroughs Wellcome property; then along the center line of proposed 264 by-pass back to Tar River; Tar River easterly to the old district line; along the F. M. Wooten property line, southwest to U.S. 264; easterly to Eastern Pines and back to Cherry Road (State Road 1725); to Bells Fork; to State Road 1708, the water line, across Atlantic Coast Line; to N.C. 11 and then to State Road 1447; then follow a branch and property line back to the point of beginning.

Following discussion, commission members recommended that instead of delineating a boundary along the center line of the proposed U.S. 264 north by-pass north, the boundary be moved to a point 1,000 feet from the proposed road.

The resolution for the proposed extra-territorial zoning boundary was recommended for approval and will now go to the county for thier consideration, recommendations, approval or disapproval.

$500 Given To Workshop

The Civitan Club of Greenville and the Pitt County Association of Retarded Children have each given $250 to the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center to be used toward the purchase of some equipment.

According to Howard G. Dawkins, director, the facility has purchased a three-ton fork lift, a one-ton small hand battery-powered lift and a battery charger, totaling about $12,500.

The equipment was purchased through money given by local groups and federal surplus.

The equipment purchased for the workshop will allow us to be more efficient and take additional subcontracts," Dawkins explained. "We will be able to load and unload heavy quantities of materials which had previously been difficult to load."

Joseph Clark, president of the workshop, accepted the donation with sincere thanks.

"This is not the first time the Civitan Club and the Pitt County Chapter of the Association of Retarded Children have contributed toward the building and support of the workshop," Clark stated.

"Both these organizations have given time and money since the inception of the workshop and this continued support demonstrated their interest and concern in helping the mentally and physically handicapped individuals in both Greenville and Pitt County. . . and throughout eastern North Carolina," he added.

Clark said the workshop has several projects in mind that will greatly enhance the facilities and the program of the workshop that are not supported by federal and state funds.

"It is with this type of community support that we will continue to grow and improve and thereby serve our clients," Clark noted.

Since the workshop was formally organized in 1965, it has grown from a faciltiy that offered evaluation and training programs to a facility that now offers evaluation and training, room and board, and transportation to its clients.

"The Civitans and the members of the ARC are to be congratulated for playing such a vital role in the helping of the handicap," Clark said.

"The workshop better serves the comminity through furniture refinishing, chair caning, picture framing, and subcontracting that requires hand skills such as assembly or packaging.

Candidate's Coordinator

Kenneth Dews of Winterville, prominent Pitt County farmer, has been named Rural Coordinator for Pitt County in the Pat Taylor For Governor campaign.

Announcement of Dews' selection as rural coordinator was made in Raleigh by Lindsay Warren, state campaign chairman for Taylor.

Dews, a Pitt resident for the past 22 years, is a member of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees and has served as vice chairman and acting chairman of the board.

Named last year to fill the unexpired term of A. D. McLawhorn on the Pitt County Board of Education, Dews is seeking reelection to that post in this year's election. He is currently a member of the Home Savings and Loan Association board of directors.

A Kiwanian and a World War II veteran, Dews ia a member of the Winterville Baptist Church where he serves on the Board of Deacons. He is married to the former Mamie McLawhorn and they have four children.

Along The Campaign Trail

. . . with Hobby

By JOE HASWELL
For THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic candidate for governor Wilbur Hobby accused the press Saturday of not living up to its obligation in the campaign.

Hobby told several hundred supporters at a rally on the State Capitol grounds, "evidently the big boys are getting to the press. The big boys are trying to freeze us out ..."

The state AFL-CIO president added that instead of covering the issues, a free press is "filling up the papers with a lot of trash in 1972, a year of decision."

Hobby singled out the coverage of tax reform he proposed Friday.

The Durham native said the reforms are the most comprehensive in the state during the past 40 years and received only seven lines of coverage in one of his hometown papers.

He also told the gathering, "I believe today we are on the path toward a victory."

Hobby again charged that state government is responsible to special interest and not to the people of the state.

"The men who go there (the State Capitol and the Legislative Building) go to represent the big boys of the stae, and I must confess to you they do a good job," he said.

. . . with Wallace

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — George Wallace says that if he fails to win the Democratic presidential nomination he will consider running on a third party ticket, as he did in 1968.

"I will certainly give a lot of thought to it," the Alabama governor said Friday at a news conference.

Wallace also addressed an enthusiastic crowd of about 2,000 from atop a pickup truck at the New Hanover County Airport.

He criticized his Democratic opponents as Johnny-come-latelys to the issues which really concern Americans. Among the issues he listed the Vietnam war, forced busing, high waxes, welfare, and foreign spending.

Wallace is in the North Carolina presidential primary next Saturday. He said he viewed the candidacy of former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, who also is on the ballot, as a stop Wallace movement. And he repeated that he did not consider Sanford a serious candidate.

For The Associated Press

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Pat Taylor asked a Winston-Salem audience Friday night ot "pass the word" on how Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles voted for new and increased taxes as a state senator in 1969, then failed to keep a promise to seek tax repeal in 1971.

It was the second straight night that the lieutenant governor attacked Bowles for his voting record on taxes. Bowles, one of Taylor's main oponents in the May 6 primary, has pledged no new or increased taxes if elected governor.

Taylor, speaking at a rally attended by some 300 supporters, said as presiding officer of the Senate in 1969, "I stood there and watched him, Bowles, vote for a two-cent tax on every cigarette pack sold in North Carolina.

"I stood there and watched him vote for a penny a bottle tax on every soft drink sold in North Carolina and I stood there and watched him vote to increase the per-gallon tax on gasoline from seven to nine cents."

Gardner Headquarters Opened

A RIBBON CUTTING . . . formerly opening the Jim Gardner for Governor headquarters in Ayden was held Saturday. Among those on hand for the event were Ron Roberson; Dr. John East, district campaign chairman for Gardner; Steve Nobles, local chairman for the re-election of President Nixon; Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger; and Buddy Allen, local campaign chairman for the Gardner movement. Gardner is seeking the Republican nomination for Governor in the May 6 primary and according to Allen, "It's the first time any statewide candidate has had a campaign office in Ayden. We are very proud of it."

Proper Management Of Water Resources May Be Long Process

MURFREESBORO, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina water pollution control officials say proper management of the state's water resources could be 15 years away.

The evaluation was contained in a report presented to the state Board of Water and Air Resources Friday by Harry Peek and Perry Nelson of the water quality division of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Peek, division chief, said three ten-man teams would take 15 years to finish the research necessary for proper use of our water resources.

Nelson said with the present staff the job could take 50 years.

The teams would be used to obtain information on water resources in each of the state's 14 capacity use areas. The report said about 20 years would be needed to complete research in each area and that coastal areas would be given top priority. Work could be done concurrently in several areas.

Peek said a conservative estimate of the cost of the job was about $3.5 million.

He said his division plans to ask the 1973 legislature for an extra 47 people for its staff.

A 1967 state law instructs the Board of Water and Air Resources to consider the water resources profile of an area before issuing water use permits in that area.

"We've tried to get the last two General Assemblies to increase our staff to accomplish the purpose of the legislation," said George Pickett, director of the Office of Water and Air Resources.

"Thus far we have been given no extra people. The General Assembly has given us an excellent plan but nobody to carry it out," Pickett said.

The board adopted a resolution calling for development of a more specific outline of necessary time and budgets for the research.

The board also approved a procedure that will allow a crackdown of violators of the state's open burning laws. And it okayed a state grant of about $64,000 for a navigational improvement project at Goose Creek in Onslow County that will include a 1,100-foot canal to connect with the Intercoastal Waterway.

A luxury boat manufacturer, Uniflite, will locate a plant near the canal.

High Mercury Content Found In Fish, Animals

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A top North Carolina environmental official says for the second time in a year, accumulations of mercury exceeding federal standards have been found in samplings of fish and animals in the Cape Fear River basin.

Dr. Art Cooper, assistant secretary of the Natural and Economic Resources Department, announced Friday results of a recent survey conducted by the Wildlife Resources Commission.

This is the second commission sampling of the basin within one year which has turned up mercury levels exceeding the 0.5 parts per million federal standard.

Cooper said however, "I would not know at this time what value to place on these results." He said he would confer with state health officials and academic specialists on mercury before making a judgment on the meaning of the samplings.

The meaning of the survey is not clear, he said, because there is debate at the state and national level over whether the federal standard is realistic.

Cooper said he expected an interpretation to be announced by mid-May. If a health warning is to be issued, he said, it would be done by the state Health Department.

Samples in the survey were taken from scattered points on the Deep and Haw Rivers, on the Cape Fear River east of Moncure to the coast and on the Black River.

Cooper said "mercury levels higher than 0.5 parts per million were found in some tissue of every animal taken at every sampling point."

He said specific data on the amount of mercury in each of the animals tested would not be released until an official interpretation is made because "the results could easily be misconstrued."

The survey was taken from September 1971 through January 1972.

Cooper said the Office of Water and Air Resources is studying waste discharge data in the sample areas to try to determine the source of the mercury.

Cabinet Members Hit Decision To Junk Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of President Nixon's Cabinet have denounced a Senate panel's decision to junk Nixon's family-assistance plan for a tough work-or-else program for many welfare recipients.

The Senate Finance Committee voted 10 to 4 Friday to kill Nixon's welfare-reform plan for families with dependent children and substitute a workfare program that bars all current welfare payments to families with no children under age 6.

Under the substitute measure, the mother or father of such families—estimated at 1.2 million persons—would be taken out of the present welfare system and put under a new Federal Employment Corporation. They would have to work for any further benefits.

Secretary Elliot Richardson of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the new measure is a "$9-billion step backward" that would be worse than the present system.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said the bill is a "big-budget, big-bureaucracy boondoggle masquerading as a conservative program."

Both Cabinet members described the measure as an administrative nightmare and a throwback to the depression-era Works Progress Administration.

Conservatives who dominate the Senate panel have criticized two aspects of Nixon's assistance plan—the increase in cost over the present program, and the extension of assistance to millions of the poor.

The Nixon plan called for a guaranteed annual income of $2,400 for a family of four. It also would have required recipients to register for work and training, but they would not have been penalized if no job was available, and only the adult would have lost benefits if work was turned down.

Under Workfare, the entire family would get nothing if the family head refused to work.

Pacts Are Key

By JOSEPH FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI)—Chancellor Willy Brandt warned Saturday East Germany would close the Berlin Wall again and bar West Berliners from family reunions if the West German parliament failed to ratify nonaggression pacts with Russia and Poland.

Brandt told a rally at City Hall that the entire Big Four agreement designed to lessen tension here would be void if his coalition government lost the ratification fight next week.

A West Berlin spokesman said more than 50,000 persons attended the rally, which was called by Mayor Klaus Schuetz under the slogan, "Berlin says yes to a secure future."

"There is an inseparable connection between the pacts and Berlin," Brandt said. "You cannot have one without the other. The Bundestag (parliament) will have to consider this in all seriousness. No one will be able to ignore the connection."

FRIDAY FATALITY . . . Joseph Franklin Tyson, of Stokes, driver of the motorcycle received fatal injuries when his vehicle collided with this car, driven by Jasper Lee Tyson of Greenville, late Friday afternoon at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive. (Reflector Staff Photos)

Motorcycle Rider Was Fatally Injured

A motorcycle rider was killed and three persons were injured in a series of three collisions in Greenville Friday afternoon and night.

Joseph Franklin Tyson, 21 of Stokes was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital following a 5:47 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive, according to police department investigators.

Pitt County Coronor and medical examiner E. W. Harvey said Tyson died of head and neck injuries.

Police charged Jasper Lee Tyson, 20 of 114A Howard Circle with manslaughter and careless and reckless driving in connection with the death.

According to officers, the Tyson motorcycle was headed North on Memorial Drive and collided with the Jasper Lee Tyson car which was apparently making a left turn off of Memorial Drive onto Fifth Street.

Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $1,200 while damage to the car was placed at $2,000 by investigators.

A 4:25 p.m. incident at the intersection of Third Street and Memorial Drive injured another motorcycle rider, identified by police as Randy Gordon Hodges, 21 of 411 Line Ave.

Officers reported Hodges was injured when his motorcycle went out of control after he attempted to stop when a car pulled from a stop sign into the path of his vehicle at the intersection.

No damage resulted to the Hodges vehicle.

Columbus Carlton Jenkins, 31 of Route 1, Bethel and a passenger in the car he was driving were reported injured in an 8:35 p.m. collision at the intersection of Spruce Street and Myrtle Avenue.

According to investigators, the Jenkins car collided with a utility pole causing an estimated $200 damage to the car.

Board Backs Bond Issue

WINTERVILLE—The Winterville Planning Board, at its regular meeting last week, endorsed the state Clean Water Bond proposal scheduled to come before the voters of the state in the May 6 election.

Spokesmen for the Planning Board said the passing of the clean water bond issue is necessary for the future growth of the Winterville community.

Under the act, Winterville and other communities throughout the state would receive funds to construct sewage collection and treatment facilities and to improve community water supply systems.

The board recommended that the town board approve rezoning of the Ed Fleming property at the intersection of Old N.C. 11 and Boyd Street from residential to general business.

The recommendation was made after Lewis Harper and Theodore Cannon requested the action to allow construction of a television shop on the property.

The Planning Board also recommended the town board hold a public hearing on the request.

In addition the planners recommended that some type of clean-up campaign be innitiated by the Town Board for the Winterville community.

Help Ourselves Via Bond Vote

Voters who go to the polls on May 6 will have the opportunity to vote for or against the issuance of $150 million in bonds for clean water.

From this amount some $75 million would be used for matching grants to finance construction of water pollution control facilities. Some $70 million would go for grants to construct public water supply systems.

Of the water pollution control funds, $25 million would go on a per capita basis to the state's counties. Fifty million would go to match federal grants.

For water supply $50 million would go on a per capita basis and $20 million for need. A $5 million contingency would be maintained. This means that counties in our area would be assured of some of the funds through the per capita allocation system.

Greene County would receive 145,000 for water and $72,000 for sewer under the allocation formula. Martin would receive $245,000 for water and $122,500 for sewer. Pitt's allocation would be $725,000 for water and $362,000 for sewer.

Because of this formula our eastern counties would not be at the mercy of some politician who wished to reward supporters. If the bonds are voted these allocations are spelled out. And since the bonds are to be paid off from general revenue funds, no tax increase is connected with the approval of the bond issues.

Almost everyone is concerned now with ecology. We want to see roadside trash eliminated, rivers and streams cleaned up and kept that way, air pollution eliminated. Certainly every citizens has a right to expect industry and government to clean up their wastes. But in doing so we must accept our own responsibilities as individual citizens to contribute to a clean environment.

Approval of the clean water bond issue becomes very much a part of our responsibility as citizens to keep the environment clean. Treatment plants mean clean rivers and it is obvious that municipalities must expand their water supplies is an adequate reserve of pure water is to be maintained.

The Daily Reflector believes that in voting in favor of the clean water bonds we North Carolinians will be helping ourselves. The funds will be used in a way which will mean that our streams will be kept clean and good water will always be available to us when we turn on the tap.

We heatily recommend a favorable vote on the Clean Water bonds May 6.

Banjo-Plunker Before Supper

By HENRY KING
Asheboro Courier-Tribune

ASHEBORO, N.C. — George Pegram comes home at five o'clock, dusty from a day's work as overseer for gravel spreading crews on the back roads of Randolph County.

You'd expect him to dash into the house and wash up for a hearty supper.

Instead George grabs his banjo and picks out some tunes. Lively tunes. Foot-tapping tunes. Tunes that make the family dog point his muzzle to the sky and howl in accompaniment.

"Now, that's my kind of music," said Pegram, rarin' back on the porch and grinning wide enough to show several gaps where teeth are missing.

Soon he'll get ready for supper, but first the tunes gotta be plinka, plunk, plinked on the banjo at the end of the day's work. Then supper tastes real good.

Holds World Title

Pegram, a genuine two-gallus overall man, is the "World's Champion Banjo Picker." For the past two years he's won the title at Union Grove Bluegrass Festival as the outstanding single performer. And for a number of years before that he was named "The South's Greatest Banjo Comedian" at Galax, Va., festivals.

The trophies are on his matel, but George doesn't mess with showing them off. A man with time on his hands ought to be picking a banjo, he insisted.

George could lead an uppity life if he wanted, but as he said he "ain't gonna git slicked up for anybody."

He's been invited to Hollywood to finish out a picture that was made at the Union Grove Festival but he's not sure he'll go. "I'll have to study it. I don't want to go on a wild goose chase," he said.

Gold-Plated Banjo

One of the invites he accepts is from the Southern Railway. He plays for conventions and get-togethers every year. "They even bought me a banjo, a 14-carat gold-plaged banjo. They pick me up every year and take me down to St. George, South Carolina, and I play for big gatherings," he explained.

Forty years ago, Pegram was a barefoot boy in Guilford County. Now a stubble-bearded 52, he recalled those days with a chuckle. "The first money I ever made in my life was, I got 15 cents for pickin' a banjo all night," he said.

He knew then that no matter what he did for work, the banjo would have a part in his life.

He came up when times were tough and he's done about anything, farm work, sawmilling, and now highway work.

Navy Service Recalled

He was in the U.S. Navy in World War II, a Navy man stationed on the U.S.S. Birmingham when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor.

"A Jap suicide plan came down and hit the deck and exploded and pieces flew all over. One of them ripped my eye out and blinded me. I got a glass eye now," he said.

Pegram is a family man who doesn't mind hard work, and he likes the independence it gives him. He doesn't travel much. "Home, that's a good place," he said.

As long as he is not beholden to any man, he can play as he pleases. "The trouble with playing for folks for wages is they want me to play what they want me to play, but if I'm my own boss I play what I want to play," he declared.

George plays mountain music. Foot stomping mountain music. He says modern musicians are ruining the old folk songs, changing the words and phrases, but that he never will.

"You heard of banjo styles. There's clawhammer and bluegrass and even classical. I ain't none of them. I got my own style.

"A couple of years ago the University of Chicago music staff tried to study my style. They never found out my style. I ain't clawhammer, bluegrass, or modern. I got my own way," he chuckled.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Congratulations are in order to the approximately 1300 young adults at Rose High School who are mature enough to realize the necessity of cooperating with school personnel and other adult authority to insure that the purpose of the Public School—education for all—will be possible. Greenville can be proud of these fine young people.

Greenville is fortunate to have the strong leaderships displayed by administration and personnel at Rose recently. Mr. Robert J. Alligood, principal and Mr. Clarence Gray, associate principal, with the aid of an able faculty, have proven again that it can and will work.

May I also thank Mr. Jerry Raynor, Reflector reporter, for his cooperation in reporting.

No One Thing Killed Muskie

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever happened to Ed Muskie, for crying out loud?

For so long, after all, he was the cinch nominee. So appealing was his bandwagon that chief after Democratic chief climbed aboard—only to find, in the end, that too few Indians would follow.

And by what miscalculation does a man squander away one of the most towering head starts in the history of presidential politics?

Some say it began in the snow of New Hampshire, when this shy and sensitive son of a Polish immigrant tailor mounted a flatbed truck outside the Manchester Union Leader and tearfully, bitterly denounced publisher William Loeb for printing commentaries against both the senator and his wife.

Others claim the lantern-jawed man from Maine drowned in a mainstream of his own imagination, selling himself as a cautious and soothing healer in the Democratic middle while frustrated voters were seeking strong ideological commitments rather than safety or solace.

"He had become so bland," said Richard Pettigrew, speaker of the Florida House and a staunch Muskie supporter," that nobody could figure out any reason to vote for him."

And Gary Hart, national coordinator for Sen. George McGovern, said there is an even more elementary problem in being a Democratic centrist: "There is no center in this party."

Another factor, certainly, was overconfidence. From the start, Muskie's organization appeared to be building more toward the race against President Nixon in November than toward the Democratic convention in July. Spurred by early national polls, the senator was billed as "the one man who can beat Nixon."

Complicating Muskie's personal perchant for caution was a multi-layered campaign bureaucracy which, despite a star-studded cast, lacked the capacity for the instant political decisions needed to move on key issues. An exception was the one reached Wednesday—to pull out of the primaries altogether.

There was considerable infighting. But of likely greater impediment was the sheer number of those involved, the many "senior advisers" like Clark Clifford and Averill W. Harriman and Luther B. Hodges, and the 19 senators, 34 congressmen and nine governors who had publicly endorsed Muskie and hence were entitled to be consulted at each major step.

Muskie strategists complain they were victimized by the "whipsaw tactic" employed by other candidates, though it surely came as no surprise, for example, that McGovern concentrated on New Hampshire while Humbert Humphrey worked in Florida. Muskie could have been just as selective about the races he entered.

But whatever the over-all explanation for Muskie's sinking fortunes, the tide of his own tears on that day in New Hampshire may have had the most irreversible effect.

He managed to laugh about the episode the next day, but it has haunted his campaign with such tenacity that shouts of "Here comes the crybaby!" greeted his approach on a Pittsburgh sidwalk several weeks—and several states—later.

The irony, of course, is that any other candidate might

Strength For Today

HEROES

The word "hero" is derived from a Latin word which means "one who protects." Every nation has its heroes. Many of them are soldiers who fought for a good cause and either died defending it or helped win substantial victories.

Much as we admire military heroes, the greatest heroes are to be found in places other than the battlefield. The woman in the kitchen is frequently such a heroine whose loved ones would die of starvation if she didn't spend most of her life bending over the stove in the kitchen. The young folks of this generation (and all generations past) think that most adults (including their parents) are a pretty stupid lot. "Wait 'till we get in charge of things. We'll set them straight." Yet the world is still a pretty messy place and leaders high and low are making the same mistake their predecessors made last year, last century, last millennium.

God bless our heroes — on battlefield, in kitchens, in offices and places of business. The world is full of heroes, most of whom don't know at all that they are heroes. God has given many of us children, but what He did not give us is omnipotence, or the capacity to know everything. In many events of life we will learn with the passing of time that in some events of life the wisest thing for parents to do is to stand on the sidelines and watch their children as they pass by and not get mixed up in their affairs too much ourselves.

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Sunday Morning Notes

Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor spoke to students at East Carolina University from the steps of Wright building one day last week.

He was engaged in a precise explanation of his stand on liability insurance.

"A lot of people are talking about no fault insurance," he told the students. "It's getting to be a very popular subject."

"Woof," came a bark from the edge of the crowd.

"No-fault in itself is not going to solve all the problems of insurance," the candidate continued. "We might move in that direction but it's not going to be the total answer to the problem."

"So if I get elected governor I will do all I can to try to help improve the insurance situation..."

"Woof, woof, woof, ..." came from the edge of the crowd. This was accompanied a series of growls and a few whistles from boys in the crowd. It seems the perennial dogs of the university campus had chosen that time to engage in a fight.

"People don't like the assigned risk ... assigned risk," Taylor continued as the commotion grew.

Finally he stopped. "I believe I'm going to lose the dog vote," he lamented.

Two men asked a local resident to direct them to a motel. The local person directed them from downtown to the motels on the bypass.

One of the fellows grinned and explained that they were from another Eastern North Carolina town.

"We went to the coast fishing but it got so stormy we decided to come inland," he explained. "We decided to spend the night in Greenville to see what's going on."

Well, fellows, we've got a swinging night life here.

Other Editors Say Truth Is Weapon

(Washington Daily News)

With a one year medical school scheduled to start next September at East Carolina University, many people are asking what will happen to the one year students after they have finished ECU.

It is a good question and one which needs a good answer. Of course as the picture stands right now, it is hoped that all the one year gradautes will find it possible to enroll in other medical schools, particularly at UNC-Chapel Hill for the remaining years of their study.

But there is another challenge which faces North Carolina directly. The next legislature will meet in January of 1973. Of course there will be an effort made to make this at least a two year medical school. Hopefully, it can be successful, but also hopefully it would serve a great and good purpose if it could be made a four year medical institution.

In North Carolina there seems to be jealousy so often. When something is mentioned for Eastern North Carolina or for East Carolina University, somehow eyebrows are raised, and in general some legislators readily appear to be against any move to help this area of the state.

We have never said that a full four year medical school at East Carolina University of itself will guarantee us more doctors in this doctor-short Eastern North Carolina. But the more qualified doctors graduating each year, the better chance any given community has of obtaining the services of a physician. That is only right and reasonable to say.

The truth is that we need doctors in so many parts of Eastern North Carolina right now. Many fine communities are without medical services. If truth cannot be our most potent weapon, then the other arguments also will fall by the wayside.

Then a full-fledged four year medical school at ECU will serve people well. It will give us a fine institution with facilities which some day will compare with UNC Medical school, Duke Medical school, and Bowman Gray Medical school. We all know so very well that the needs are here today. They will not be met through jealousy, antagonism, or indifference.

The next legislature surely will have the problem directly before it. And it is going to require a lot of groundwork and support to make the dream come true.

Austria Lacks Addicts

By PHILIP J. TILL

VIENNA (UPI)—Austria has a claim to fame almost unique in the Western world today—it has no drug problem and virtually no addicts.

"We're much too conservative," explains Erwin Roeck, drug squad chief at the Munistry of the Interior.

There isn't a single registered addict in the country, Roeck said. "Of course," he added, "there are a few odd addicts not reported to us by the doctors, but not enough to make trouble."

Roeck thinks Austria's location helps keep down drug addiction. "We've got a bit of an East European mentality and things that catch on in most Western countries only trickle along to us. For instance, we don't have pornography trouble, either."

He said Austrian police had never carried out a drug raid. "Raids are unnecessary," he said. "Nobody passes drugs around. There are some places we keep an eye on but we've never had to move in on any."

Hard drugs such as heroin are virtually unobtainable, and Austria has never had a known case of heroin addiction. In student circles there is some smoking of hashish, the North African equivalent of marijuana. But it is poor grade—"very weak," one student told UPI—and sells, when it can be found, for the equivalent of about $1.20 a "roll."

In all of 1970, the last year for which figures are available, 1,040 persons were prosecuted under anti-drug laws. They included a few peddlers of hashish, Roeck said, but were mostly persons caught smoking it. In the same span, two youths injured themselves by jumping from windows while under the influence of LSD.

In addition to the Austrian temperament cited by Roeck as a reason for the country's lack of a drug problem, authorities also maintain strict anti-smuggling vigilance at airports with the help of drug-sniffing dogs.

Punishment for use of drugs recently has been eased. "First users" are fined and required to undergo medical treatment. In the past the offense carried a possible jail sentence.

Now We Work For Ourselves

By ELMER ROESSNER

Just under one-third of the average American's work day now goes to support federal, state and local governments, Tax Foundation, Inc. reports.

For every eight hours of work, the equivalent of two hours and 34 minutes of the paycheck goes to pay taxes. This is 154 minutes. One-third of an eight-hour work day is 160 minutes.

Moreover, we work longer to pay for our various governments than we do to pay for food, clothing and shelter combined. According to the Foundation's calculations, it takes an average of one hour and two minutes out of an eight-hour day to pay for food and beverages. Houseing takes one hour and three minutes, and clothing costs 26 minutes.

This adds up to two hours and 31 minutes — 23 minutes less than tax time. Other time periods out of the work day are: transportation, 40 minutes; medical care, 23 minutes; recreation, 19 minutes; and miscellaneous, one hour and 33 minutes.

Although the time it takes to earn all tax payments is down slightly from last year due to some federal levies being lower, the burden has been getting heavier over the last five years. In 1967, it took two hours and 26 minutes to earn our tax payments. That's eight minutes less than 1971.

At the current rate, the average taxpayer's earnings for 117 calendar days are needed to meet tax bills. In 1972 we have been collectively, working exclusively for the government from the beginning of the year up until yesterday. Friday we started working for ourselves.

The Tax Foundation suggests a holiday should be declared the last day that we work for federal, state and local governments. It's an amusing thought, but how funny will we think it is in the years ahead when Tax Freedom Day falls later and later — first creeping up on Memorial Day, and eventually, Independence Day?

Unfair Trade Practices May Be A Frame Of Mind

The government periodically complains about how badly the country is treated in trade matters. As an example, Eugene T. Rossides, Assistant Treasury Secretary, listed what he saw as unfair foreign trade practices against us.

Among others, he cited the European Economic Community which restricts Japanese imports to six per cent of that country's total exports, and the Dutch quota on Japanese electronic goods. Both of these force Japanese goods onto the American market.

Then there are the Japanese, who impede U.S. imports while encouraging their own exports to us. Britain, it was noted, maintains quotas on imports from the dollar area of fresh, frozen and canned grapefuit and of rum.

Mr. Rossides spoke just after his boss, President Nixon, had concluded an agreement with Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau divvying up some of their common wheat markets. The two nations have agreed not to undercut each other nor deliteriously affect each other's historic wheat markets.

A Canadian spokesman said the aim was to maintain reasonable prices and avoid undue price competition.

Observations From Editorial Columns

News And Non-News

Good news, to reverse an old saying, is no news.

That's not true, no matter which way you turn it. The news media are constantly under attack from those who say, inaccurately, that "news" is always about crime and war and riots and disasters of every sort, never about "good" things. Those who believe this contention somehow overlook front page stories about moon landings, the steady progress against cancer and other diseases — human achievements of infinite variety.

The trouble with this particular breed of critic is that he doesn't know what news is. A spectacular example is the fellow out in California who decided to publish a "newspaper" with nothing in it but "good news". The very first edition which came out some 16 months ago, enlightened its readership thus in a front page story: "In the United States last year, 196,459,483 citizens did not commit a criminal offense, 4,896,720 college students did not participate in a riot or student demonstration and 201,489,710 citizens did not use illegal drugs."

It saddens us but doesn't surprise us to be reminded that few people want to read about what others don't do. The "Good News Paper" folded recently. — Atalnta (Ga.) Constitution

Excess Fat And Health

Excess fat, says a Houston doctor, is too often regarded as a figure and cosmetic problem instead of a serious menace to health. Dr. Richard O. Brennan, visiting Tulsa recently, noted that 53 per cent of the deaths in this country last year resulted from cardiovascular problems. Of that group, 90 per cent were overweight.

"It seems to me that if 48 per cent of the over-all population were dying from smallpox," he said, "we would be interested in helping." Indeed, we would so long as the smallpox could be cured without any self-discipline, restraint or sacrifice on our part.

Americans have known for years now that tobacco smoke causes cancer, but they continue to coat their lungs with tons of the stuff, puffing along toward the graveyard. We have known for years that excess alcohol destroys the liver and brain, but we guzzle it anyway.

It is unlikely that medical warnings about obesity will have much more impact than warnings about all those other ailments that kill people. Future historians are bound to be puzzled by a race that spent billions of dollars on medical research, but refused to quit killing themselves. — Tulsa, (Okla.) World

The Cure-All

There's a fast-growing group of Filipinos advocating that the Philippines become the 51st of the United States.

Says the head of the movement: "Statehood is the only cure for unemployment, graft and corruption, international indebtedness, social unrest, insecurity, rice shortage, sugar quota, lack of capital, brain drain, dollar control, smugglings and as part of the United States surely the Philippines will be an economic giant in Asia."

Maybe if he takes a couple of aspirin and lies down a while those fevered imaginings will go away. — Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

Buckle Up

During the first three months of its compulsory safety seat belt law deaths and injuries to drivers and front seat passengers declined by a dramatic 20 per cent in Victoria, Australia, the first governmental subdivision to require this safety practice.

There's no sense in waiting until the federal government requires either passive-restraint systems or starter interlocks that prevent the car from starting until the front belts are fastened to insist on safety belt use at state levels, Ford Motor Company President Lee A. Iacocca declares.

As unpopular as mandatory seat belt use may be, Iacocca adds, the life-saving and injury-preventing potential makes it well worth pushing for this type of law in all states.

Present estimates are that the use of seat belts is saving 3,500 lives a year and that if lap belts were used universally, instead of the estimated 40 per cent use at present, 12,000 more lives would be saved.

Those are cold figures, and ones that the Alabama Legislature should consider strongly when it meets again. Many of those 12,000 lives could be Alabamians. — Birmingham (Ala.) News

Time For A Serious Look At George McGovern

By J. J. KILPATRICK

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — The shouting scarcely had died Tuesday night in Boston and Philadelphia when the word was passed to have bags in the lobby at 6 a.m. A part of our gypsy caravan flew off to Indiana; part of us caromed to Ohio. Next week, Nebraska. Or maybe West Virginia? Who knows? It gets to be a blur.

But the blur is not as blurry as it was. The field of Democratic hopefuls, which once had seemed so large, has now dwindled down; and the utterly improbable notion is beginning to take root that the prize may yet go to George S. McGovern.

George who? Two months ago, to borrow a phrase from the late Joe McCarthy, such a prospect would have seemed the most unthinkable thing one ever thought. Back in Februrary, the Senator from South Dakota was three-four-five percent in the polls. His only role, it was thought, was to serve as a stalking horse for Edward Kennedy. Reporters were joking then about his lack of excitement: "When McGovern enters the room" — pause for effect — "nothing happens."

Well, plenty happened in Massachusetts. McGovern took on Edmund Muskie in a head-to-head race, and ran him into the ground. When a final tally permits close analysis, it probably will be evident that McGovern ran well everywhere. He was expected to sweep the pointed-headed precincts of Harvard, but he was not expected to gobble up the no-nonsense wards of middle Boston. It is hard to believe, but he ate the whole thing. The next several weeks will be rough, but they will be rough for Hubert Humphrey too. If McGovern can hold his position until the June 6 showdown in California, where the winner takes all, he could head for Miami with the roses around his neck.

How to explain it? Several reasons come to mind. Paradoxically, George Who is benefiting because many voters still do not understand who George is. And they do not especially care. His handsome face is a fresh face. In a time of massive disenchantment with the Establishment, whatever that noun embraces, McGovern is seen as a man apart. Like George Wallace, he provides a vehicle for protest.

But McGovern is something more. Many voters do indeed understand his positions, especially on the war: "My platform is to stop the bombing of the people of Southeast Asia immediately and then get every American out of Indochina lock, stock and barrel within ninety days." That is plain speech. McGovern has preempted the anti-war issue; he has reduced Humphrey and Muskie to the me-too murmurs; and the more the war heats up, the hotter he gets.

A third factor: McGovern throws off no sparks, but he conveys something else: decency, kindness, compassion. To a round table jammed with sweaty knights, clad in battered armor, he brings the Galahad touch. He is the ultimate do-gooder, but he arrives on the scene at a moment when many disgusted voters want to see good done.

Finally, mundanely, the April flowering of George McGovern has to be credited in significant part to old-fashioned organization, to a methodical tilling of the soil. He has been formally on the trail of this nomination for more than 15 months. He has attracted some of the top professionals in the business, many of them old Kennedy hands. His campaign management, in a short word is superb.

Put these several factors together, and add a few more — the abnegation of Kennedy, the slow dissolve of Gene McCarthy — and the McGovern phenomenon seems less amazing. But when I look at the whole show, at McGovern's winning the nomination, at his defeating Richard Nixon, I still do not believe it.

The far-out liberalism that served McGovern so well in Wisconsin and Massachusetts is likely to prove much too far out for other regions; and now that his candidacy is being taken seriously, his ideas — for example, his jaw-dropping concepts of tax and welfare reform — will get the serious attention they have not yet received. He is emerging from George who to George, what. And the doctrinaire "what" of George McGovern embraces an extremism of the left that goes far beyond the extremism once attributed to Barry Goldwater on the right. When McGovern ranked as no more than another dark horse, somewhere back in the pack, his philosophy went unnoticed. It won't go unnoticed now.

Bright High Schoolers Studying Advanced Math In Special ECU Course

By FRANCEINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

Saturday morning for most high school students is a time for rest, recreation or part-time jobs, but for twenty-one Eastern North Carolina students, it is an extra day of school.

These students are enrolled in a special program of advanced mathematics at Eastern Carolina University. All of them are highly motivated academically, and all demonstrate unusual talent for mathematics.

Dr. Tullio Pignani, chairman of the ECU Department of Mathematics says ECU began to offer its pre-college program three years ago, by popular demand of parents in the area.

"We were bombarded by requests from parents who wanted to enroll their children in college math classes," he recalled. "But in order for anyone to be admitted into a class here, according to state law, he must have an official class card. And only persons duly admitted into college can be granted class cards.

"However, we were interested in providing additional challenges and learning opportunites for those students whose math development was well above that of the high school level," he said, "so we began in 1969 to offer special math classes for qualified high school students."

Since the first year, when ECU financed its own program, the National Science Foundation has supported it, with funds for instructors, textbooks, materials and travel expenses for the commuting students.

The pre-college program begins in the junior year of high school and is carried through to the end of the senior year. It covers 30 weeks of each school year.

During the first year of the program, the students study such topics as real numbers and conditions, recreational math, finite math and mathematical systems on infinite sets.

Second-year students review fundamental concepts, and study natural numbers, mathematical systems, integers and topics from the theory of numbers.

Four weeks of each year are set aside for computer-oriented topics. The students learn to apply computer science to mathematics and are able to program and use FORTRAN computer language.

How are the students chosen to enter the pre-college program?

"They are recommended to us by high school guidance counselors, math teachers and principals," said Dr. Pignani.

"And we select them on the basis of their motivation and interest in learning mathematics, as well as their high school records in math and science subjects, and whenever available, their quantitative SAT scores."

Selection is done by Dr. Pignani and by ECU math instructors Nannie Lee Manning and Dr. Robert Hursey.

Dr. Pignani emphasized that the purpose of the program is not to train potential mathematicians.

"We do not expect them necessarily to pursue math further in college; many individuals show talent for math; but do not always follow that talent.

"While some students who complete the program do choose to major in math, many others enter such fields as the sciences, pre-medicine, business, sociology and psychology, all of which require a considerable use of mathematics," he added.

"Primarily, we want to enrich the mathematical backgrounds of these outstanding high school students, and to encourage them to use this experience and training to fulfill their aims in life."

A major benefit of the program is that the student who completes it will not be intimidated by college mathematics, as are many college freshman.

There are 114 pre-college math programs in the U.S., but all except the one at ECU and six others are highly concentrated and accelerated summer programs.

The ECU program, Dr. Pignan pointed, out is the only one in North Crolina have gotten away with the performance, particularly if television cameras hadn't been there to record each sob. But such are the perils of a frontrunner, a man whose every word and move had been scrutinized for nearly two years by opportunists in search of the pounceable.

And for Edmund Sixtus Muskie, who survived the high-risk period as an unannounced contender without commiting any dramatic faux pas, the timing couldn't have been worse—the start of the long primary trail— in which to forget the lesson behind George Romney's celebrated "brainwashing" remark and subsequent downfall four years ago.

Muskie, who described himself Wednesday as still being "everybody's second choice," remains hopeful he yet will emerge the compromise nominee. But he readily conceded "this decision reduces my prospects."

A few short months ago, he put it another way. "The primaries will do more this year to determine the nominee than at any time in the past," he said. "I've got to make an early showing or I'm dead."

Tar Heel Reputation Is A Hoax, Says Hawkins

By JOHN KILGO

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL — Reginald Hawkins says North Carolina's reputation as a liberal, progressive state is a myth and the state should be exposed for what it really is.

"North Carolina has been using blacks for years to hold up the facade of this being a liberal state," Hawkins said, "and it never has been."

Hawkins is running in the Democratic primary for Governor. He says he plans to win and believes he will.

"You see these polls that come out that say Taylor and Bowles are up there at the top with 31 per cent of the vote," Hawkins said. "Well, they don't tell you who has the 34. I have the 34."

Hawkins says a coalition of the young, blacks and women will give him 51 per cent of the vote on May 6.

"I see myself coming in number one," Hawkins says. "In 1968 I got 80,000 votes that were never counted because of election irregularities. Even with that only 47 per cent of the black turned out to vote. Since then we have put 100,000 new black voters on the registration books. If we can vote 80 per cent on primary day, plus the white votes I'll get, then I'll win the primary."

Hawkins says he doesn't have the money to run radio, newspaper and TV ads. But he says you can't "package" a candidate in North Carolina.

"A winning candidate must get out there where the people can feel him and hear him," he says. "I've carried my campaign to the boondocks and to the streets. That's where this campaign will be won, in the streets. I've been making five or six speeches a day and turning down three times that number."

Hawkins says he is saying the same thing all over the state. He says people, white and black, appreciate his candor.

"People are tired of the pseudo-liberals." Hawkins says. "They appoint some blacks as a buffer and do this to hurt blacks. And there are some blacks who are Uncle Toms. They're willing to sell blacks out. And there are some black ward heelers who take money from whites and hurt the black candidates. But these people are being exposed for what they are and they no longer have an effective voice."

Hawkins feels that Wilbur Hobby's candidacy will hurt the labor movement in North Carolina, because Hawkins feels it's a conflict of interest for Hobby to run for Governor and hold his position as president of the State AFL-CIO.

"Hobby was put out there to cut into my black strength," Hawkins said. "But you must remember that labor has not been out front in fighting for civil-rights and social reform. They have discriminated against blacks and against women. That's part of the record. Hobby has not hurt me. He's hurt Bowles and Taylor. He keeps talking about keeping the big Boys honest. Who's gonna keep the rest of them honest?"

Hawkins says if elected he'll reform North Carolina's tax laws, which he says discriminate against blacks and blue collar workers. He says a majority of the people are not anti-black and says he'll win.

What happens if he fails?

"There's the presidency," he says. "I'm not saying I would run for that office or would not. I would certainly not seek a lower office. And the only office higher than Governor is President of the United States."

Taylor Col. . .

And said one coed to another in downtown Greenville. "It turned warm and I bought my new bikini. Now look at the weather."

She was right. It was a cold bleak day. But never fear. There'll be plenty of bikini days ahead.

The Next Administration Will Confront 2 Unsolved Problems

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

For more than three years, much time and space has been devoted to the fact that the Nixon Administration took over a king-size mess—war abroad, inflation, rioting and a Democrat-run Congress which, to put it mildly, has leaned to irresponsibility and obstruction.

Thus far this Presidential election year, little attention has been paid to the problems which will confront the next administration, whether it be a second term for Nixon or a first term for one of the many Democrats scrabbling around in the state primaries.

This, however, will change in the summer, when the Democrats pick the candidate they will run against Nixon and the "promising" of premilinary politics has to give way to specific proposals tied to real problems — and they are many.

The war, while still an issue, is unlikely to be paramount this fall. Inflation still rages, although Nixon policies have held the cost of living rise below the disaster level. Riots occur, but burning and looting has been down lately. Business is on the rise, but with unemployment below politically acceptable levels.

Thus candidates of the two, perhaps three, parties will be forced to focus on the economy, barring some new armed conflict. This seems certain to go beyond the old tax and spending issues to unorthodox social and economic reforms in sharp conflict with policies of the past.

While the problems confronting the nation are many and varied, they can be broken down into two broad catagories—two areas of what might be called failure.

Under the present system, the economy faces failure in meeting competition from allies and former enemies this country has built up since World War II. This failure already has forced the nation to stop-gap gimmicks, such as devaluation. But the time has come to face up to what's basically wrong.

The other broad failure area is in education. The problem here is not in the production of scientists. It lies in the fact that, perhaps for many reasons, the public school system fails to turn out the trainable workers necessary to overcome the problem of poverty.

The heart of neither of these problems can be reached in the old way of simply voting more tax money for this or that scheme. The problem calls for moving in on sacred cows and this always involves the risk of wide political bitterness. Too, it risks retaliation.

Inflation, which has become chronic and threatens future collapse, is an example. The cause is well understood in and out of government. But nothing has been done to get at the roots of the problem. Politics has limited action to a little soothing salve on the sore.

The nub of the problem is the tremendous power held by the leadership of the big unions. By disregarding consequencies, they were able to force wages up at unreasonable rates even after the government backed away from its inflationary policies of the 1960s.

Doing anything about this is going to take a lot of political courage. Union labor is a minority, and small, in the total number of wage and salary earners. But the unions are rich in political funds and organization. They, more than any other group or groups, control the Democratic party and especially in the House and Senate.

Doing something about labor is going to mean doing something about business, too, just to give the appearance of impartialty, is nothing else. This means making government an even bigger force in the economy. It is a key reason why there is little prospect that wage-price controls will end after November.

President Nixon is well aware of what's happening to this country in world markets and is pictured by advisers as deeply concerned and to be considering some "revolutionary" approach. Whoever the Democratic candidates proves to be, he will face the same problem.

Education is an equally thorny nettle, maybe more so because of the way racial considerations must be considered. All of the federal government's own studies shows that Blacks simply aren't coming out of equal opportunity schools, integrated or not, with the equality of attainment necessary for them to compete for jobs with others and thus earn equality of living standards.

Changes in education run into controversy. By and large, educators don't like the idea of diverting money from traditional academics to highly specialized vocational training. For one thing, the universities and teacher's colleges don't produce the required. They hate to see education funds used to employ skilled men from the trades.

Either way the November election goes, the White House is bound to give the nation another four years of what one editorial writer has called "exciting and expensive confusion." This grows with "Big Brother" getting bigger.

Sen. McClellan Seeking Reelection For Last Time

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Arkansas senior Sen. John L. McClellan, whose name is synonymous with racket-busting and Senate investigations, is campaigning hard for his political life at an age when many men have long been retired.

McClellan, 76 years old in February, has on his hands some of the strongest opposition he has faced in almost 35 years in Congress. Rep. David H. Pryor, D-Ark., and one-time gubernatorial candidate Ted Boswell have the Senate's fourth senior member combing the backwaters and whistle stops of his native Arkansas as he has not had to do for many campaigns.

McClellan, who was first elected to Congress in 1934 and then ran successfully for his Senate seat in 1942, announced his candidacy for a sixth Senate term with an air of finality. "In all probability," he said, "I would not seek or need to seek another term."

Although he seems vulnerable in many areas—organized labor, civil rights organizations and the majority of young voters are near fanatical in their opposition to him—Pryor and Boswell both realize that the odds against turning out McClellan remain necessarily long.

Almost An Institution

This is because McClellan is an institution in his home state, a personification of a large segment of the land and its people: hard-bitten and God-fearing, he is a son of the thin mountain soil who struggled tirelessly and successfully, to rise from starkly ordinary beginnings.

Talking about the "last campaign" with a UPI reporter, McClellan said, "I am not afraid to lose. There is no sense in running if you are afraid to lose. Arkansas has been good to me. I can never repay the people for what they have done for me. No, that doesn't bother me. I'll sleep like a baby either way afterwards."

Any regrets about life? Would he have played it any differently had he to do it all again? "I would have gone to college (McClellan read law and was licensed to practice at 17, the youngest person ever admitted to the bar in Arkansas). I regret I didn't, but the money wasn't there. Oh, there are things in a fellow's life he may wish he had done in a different way ... but it's been good."

Until the mid-1950s few persons outside Arkansas knew of John McClellan. Then came a committee McClellan chaired which was officially called, "The Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field," later known simply as the McClellan Committee and evolving finally into the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, which McClellan still chairs.

In the beginning Robert Kennedy was chief counsel for the committee and Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts was a member. And it thoroughly and quickly went about the business of investigating alleged wrongdoing in labor unions.

Gets Hoffa And Beck

The committee was instrumental in amassing evidence that helped send Teamster bosses David D. Beck and James R. Hoffa to prison.

McClellan's often dour and deadpan face stared out at the world from the cover of Time magazine's May 27, 1957, issue and his droning monotone voice cutting through a fog of cigarette smoke to challenge witnesses at committee hearings made him familiar to millions more on television at the time.

McClellan's work on the committee earned him detractors as well as admirers. The New Republic in its June 17, 1957 issue editorialized, "In our opinion Senator McClellan is in contempt of the Constitution" for his handling of witnesses before his committee.

McClellan committee witnesses often cited the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer questions about themselves. McClellan said he did not believe the Fifth Amendment should be used to shield criminals. "What he clearly infers," the New Republic said, "is that the only people who should have the right to plead the Fifth are those Senator McClellan has decided are innocent."

Time called him "a born prosecutor." Civil rights groups sought his defeat election after election and charged repeatedly that he had voted against every piece of progressive legislation in their behalf.

But through it all, McClellan endured.

His 'Three Credos'

He was born Feb. 25, 1896, on a farm near Sheridan, Grant County, Ark., to Isaac and Belle McClellan. His mother named him after John Little, then a Democratic congressman from the McClellans' district and the congressman responded by sending his namesake $5, which was used to purchase a Bible for the newborn son. McClellan's mother died when he was three weeks old, and Isaac McClellan tutored his son at home. The boy became an excellent student in the country schools around Sheridan. Working the farm, he read law and ran successfully for county prosecutor, his first office.

"There were three credos I was taught to believe in as a young man," McClellan now tells even young campaign audiences, "baptism by immersion, paying your just debts and saving your own seed potatoes." He says it with a faint smile.

Despite the stiff upbringing, he was divorced by his first wife under circumstances that are not clear. McClellan will not discuss it. His second wife died of spinal meningitis. His three sons died as young men—one in World War II, a second in a car wreck and a third in a plane crash. Tragedy stalked this remote, often silent man, and he responded by working even harder.

He also drank heavily for a time and the cigarette habit grew to three packs a day. "Bourbon and coke was my drink," he said recently. "But on New Year's Eve 13 years ago I quit both. I had made up my mind I was going to quit then and I did. I took the last of my drink and snuffed out my cigarette and didn't even tell anybody about it."

Still Fit And Alert

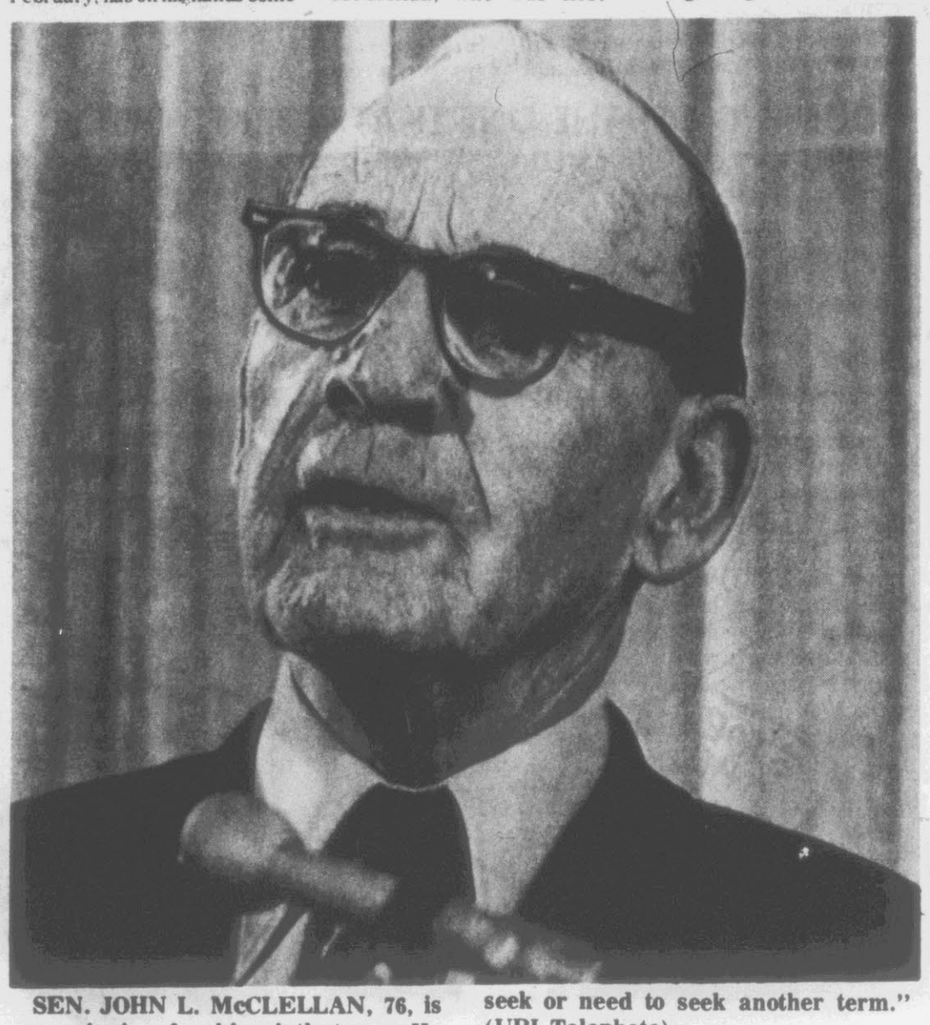
Today McClellan is fit and alert. He is in his Washington office by 8:30 a.m. and usually works until about 6 p.m. Campaigning in Arkansas he is at it early and stays with it late. "He wears us all out," a campaign aide said.

McClellan at 76 "eats like a horse," as one aide put it. On a recent campaign swing he lunched on barbecue chicken, baked beans, potato salad and a 10-ounce soft drink. Six hours later he put down much of a huge filet, baked potato, assorted vegetables and cherry pie. Between times he snacked on a water glass full of tomato juice and a handful of peanut brittle. "Never gains a pound," the aide said. "Works it all off."

He is an effective campaigner, knows his constituents and how to talk to them. He showed his technique at one recent rally at Lake Village, Ark., a dot of a community in the southeastern part of the state. There were about 600 persons there to hear the senator, mostly farmers and businessmen, mostly white, mostly middle-aged.

McClellan moved among them, ala Lyndon Johnson, pressing their hands and greeting many by name. "How you, Bill? Where's your Daddy? Good to see you." After the heavy, farm style noon meal, McClellan spoke, talked about a football team driving toward the goal line. "Now is not the time to change quarterbacks," he said.

Afterwards the crowd was on its feet, cheering, clapping, men who have voted for McClellan most of their adult lives. The Senator was pleased. He has a good combination going for him that has worked for 38 years. He hopes it will again.



SEN. JOHN L. McCLELLAN, 76, is campaigning for his sixth term. He says "In all probability, I would not seek or need to seek another term." (UPI Telephoto)

Company Is Assembling Special Service Robots

ROTTERDAM, N.Y. (UPI)—A small army of mechanical marvels is being mustered in this Schenectady suburb.

Robotics, Inc., a new firm specializing in making special function robots, put one of its machines to work recently cutting the ribbon at opening day ceremonies. Afterwards, other robots bounced rubber balls and served coffee to visiting newsmen and officials.

The president of Robotics is Ralph S. Mosher, a pioneer in robot technology and force feedback mechanisms.

Mosher said his machines, through a process called "teach control," can perform a wide variety of industrial functions.

"Teach control" instructs the robot to perform the work with a human operator at the machine's control panel. The robot can therefore perform all arm and hand movements by following the instructions—including grasping, moving horizontally or vertically, and making rotating functions. Mosher said.

He indicated the robots his fledgeling company is building could assemble parts, inspecting and rejecting faulty ones at the same time. They could also do die casting, welding, painting injection molding, and run stamping and punching presses.

Mosher said automotive and printing industry people were "particularly interested in industrial robots at this time."

In running heavy stamping machinery, Mosher said the robots could help manufacturers conform to anticipated federal safety standards expected by 1974, regulating dangers in such equipment.

Mosher worked with the General Electric Co., for 22 years, and became recognized for his design of the GE "Handyman," a mechanical device built to act as a master mechanic in an atomic power plant.

While not resembling the metallic manservant popularized in many science-fiction tales, the machines being constructed in a building at a former Army depot here are still just as much a product of space-age technology as their more imaginary cousins.

Board Okays Six Items

The Greenville Board of Adjustments, at the April meeting on Thursday night, again tabled the request for variance made by J. J. Perkins, then moved on to approve the six new items of business.

Perkins request is to obtain a variance from the minimum space requirements for construction of multi-family dwellings at the intersection of Avery and Baker Streets.

The six items approved by the Board of Adjustments are: Kwik-Pik's request to install self-service gas pumps on the west side of East Fourteenth Street extended; a request by the Little University Kindergarten to operate at 313 East Tenth Street, and the same institutions request to construct a principal use sign; the request by Blount and Ball Realty Company to locate a convenience market at 810 East Tenth Street; a request by Wheless and Moore to install self-service gas pumps on the north side of East Tenth Street; and the Philippi Church of Christ request to build a church on the north side of Farmville Boulevard.

All the approved requests were the subject of public hearings.

Mothballs should be used with care as they pose a danger to children if they are eaten.

Green Berets Fighting Now For Unit's Existence

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer

BAD TOELZ, Germany (AP) — American Special Forces, their green berets bloodied and somewhat discolored from twilight warfare in Southeast Asia, now are fighting for their unit existence.

Down from a peak of about 7,000 men to some 3,000, they will be cut further. Among those left will be a detachment at Bad Toelz in southern Germany.

It was in Germany where the dream of the men in the Green Berets was first conceived, combining the stealth of the wartime American Office of Strategic Services—OSS—and the daring bravado of Otto Skorzeny's German Special Commandoes.

Here in the foothills of the Alps, the Special Forces Detachment Airborne Europe numbers 305 officers and men. They are housed in a compound built by the Nazis as a training school for SS elite guard combat officers.

The commander of Detachment Europe is Col. Ludwig Faistenhammer Jr., 47. An ex-college boxer, he was born in nearby Munich and immigrated to the United States with his parents when he was a young boy.

An enlisted man in World War II fighting against the Germans, Faistenhammer has made a career of being a Green Beret with wide experience in Southeast Asia.

"We are an elite," Faistenhammer said in an interview, "and we have no problem with the local community. No dope. No incidents. No long hair, I tell the men, 'You don't like it here? Then out.' Those that stay are the best men in the Army."

Pride, even chauvinism, long has been the mark of Special Forces men, even while their now symbolic green berets were against regulations, worn only in the backwoods country around Fort Bragg, N.C., when the Regular Army was not looking.

The 10th Special Forces Group Airborne came into being in 1952 at the height of the Korean War, put together from volunteers from all across the Army. But they languished out of the public eye for years until John F. Kennedy became president. He looked them over, liked what he saw and their fortunes boomed. Already in 1959, they began special operations in Vietnam and Laos, beginning an association with the Central Intelligence Agency—CIA—that later would cost the Special Forces image dearly.

Their Vietnam scandal—the alleged execution of a Vietnamese double agent—cost the Green Berets notoriety around the world, signalling the eclipse of their once-favored position.

Special Forces was first organized by Col. Aaron Bank, something of a legend among the men who joined the original 10th. Bank combined the infiltration concept—and intelligence role—of the World War II OSS with the combat capability of the German Specail Commandoes of Col. Otto Skorzeny.

The men Bank gathered about him were a mixture of soldier-adventurers, men eager to leave the more humdrum duty of regular line units, opportunists, the curious, ex-OSS agents from Europe, China and other war-time theaters.

It was for Europe, in the era of East-West confrontation, that Special Forces was organized—commando specialists and guerrilla organizers for possible use in suppressed countries.

Vietnam became an unexpected interlude. Subsequent probes into Africa and South America broadened the oppprtunity for experience as Special Forces searched—and still searches—for a lasting role even in peacetime.

While the men of the Green Beret based in Europe concentrate on the future far from the jungle heat they fought in for the past decade, it is Vietnam, as it is for the entire Army, that remains their special trauma.

Special Forces puts its killed in Southeast Asia at more than 700, with many more wounded. Col. Faistenhammer and his sergeant major, John F. Pioletti of Fayettville, N.C., are typical: Each has served three tours in Vietnam or Laos; each was wounded in Vietnam.

DISCUSSING SEX CHANGE—Christine Jorgenson, who was changed from male to female more than 20 years ago, lectures to students at UCLA in Los Angeles. Miss Jorgenson, 46, contends that her sex change was the beginning of the sexual revolution. She has come out of retirement to speak at college campuses. (AP Wirephoto)

'PIF' Project Promotes Foreign Friendships

By BETTY CASEY

A happy mingling of foreign and southern accents spiced conversations between "Pifs," while real aromatic spices enhanced preparation of five delectable dishes of world-wide cuisine at the Pilot International Friends (PIF) "cooking spree."

"Sharing recipes is fun," said one petite Taiwanese, wife of an ECU professor, while energetically chopping mushrooms for a Chinese pork-and-vegetable dish. "But," she continued, "PIF" would have helped me a lot when I first arrived in Greenville. I was lonely and scared. Far from my family and friends, unable to understand the language, and expecting a baby within three weeks."

AMERICAN CASSEROLES. . .are sampled by Mrs. Usha Gulati, her small daughter, Gita, Mrs. Amalia Morales and Mrs. Renate Heckel.

PIF is a new project sponsored by the Pilot Club of Greenville to promote friendships and exchanges of cultural activities with foreign women living in the community, and to lend assistance with orientation problems.

The "cooking spree," held at St. James Methodist church, was one of many get-togethers for participants in the project.

There, women from North and South America, Europe, Asia and the Middle East chattered gaily as they chopped, kneaded, stirred and tasted Chaputi (bread from India), Tamale Pie, Chinese pork-and-vegetables, orange balls, and chicken rice casserole.

"However," explained Mrs. Juanita McCarthy and Mrs. Betty Casey, chairmen of the project under the Education and International Relations committee, "along with group activities, individual contacts and one-to-one relationships are emphasized." Each participating pilot and foreign woman has a specific personal "Friend" or "PIF"

Since Pifs come in all ages and with varied interests, sometimes the best thing an older Pilot can do for a younger friend far from home is to help her meet people her own age with similar interests; or show her how to shop in American stores; or just stand by to answer some of the many puzzling questions with which she is faced daily. To help her overcome homesickness and feel at home in America.

"How do you decide which detergent to buy for washing clothes? or dishes? Or which soap for bathing? Or shampooing hair?"

"How does a laundramat work? Does one make an appointment? Tip the attendant? Am I allowed to take wet clothes already washed and dry them?"

"Do women shade hands in America as they do in Germany? How do you set the table using knives and forks?" In China you only have chopsticks to be concerned with and in India only one big spoon.

"How do you tell people you don't have time to talk on the telephone?" "How do I get a prescription filled?"

One young Iranian woman and her husband, a student at ECU, faced this problem when they frantically took their little daughter to the emergency room with a high fever. They were't sure how to go about exchanging the little square of paper given them by the doctor for the medicine their daughter needed—on a Sunday morning.

A Big Problem

Hurdling the language barrier is always a big problem, even when the visitor has studied English in school back home in India, Germany, Chile or France. Many times they have not had an opportunity to practice using the language so find understanding and being understood difficult. Some incidents which result are amusing as well as frustrating.

Two Japanese students at Pitt Tech almost missed out on one of the PIF parties because they were too shy to try to return a telephone call. "I was afraid they couldn't understand me," one said.

One wife, known as a good cook in Germany, understood some English but ended up in some real tangles.

"I laugh about it now," she smiled, "but shopping was so difficult in the grocery stores, I almost lost my husband because we couldn't eat what I cooked here."

Meat is aged to tenderize it in Germany. She had to learn how to cook the tougher cuts of meats found in our stores. And her efforts at making gravy were catastrophic.

"The German word for flour is "mehl," she said. You can imagine what happened when she tried to make gravy with American 'meal' which she guessed was the same because of it's similarity in spelling.

Cooking Problems

Another young French wife laughs at the surprise she got when she cooked unfamiliar black-eyed peas which her American husband had requested. Not knowing that they would swell and increase in bulk, she cooked a whole pound.

"They boiled over on the stove and I kept dividing them until every pot I had was filled with black-eyes, "she confessed.

A German wife almost fed her husband a can of dog food. Another decided that the American method of cooking frozen corn-on-the cob was actually diabolic. Her American husband wanted her to practice reading English, so when he brought home the corn he insisted that she "just follow directions."

Corn is not a table food in Germany, it is fed only to farm animals, and the poor young bride did not even know that when still on the cob it is called an "ear" of corn. The husband found her crying in the kitchen.

"What's wrong?" he asked, "there's nothing hard about cooking corn."

"But it says to 'put my ear in boiling water," she wailed, "and I don't want to."

A series of parties in Pilot's homes helped with getting acquainted and discovering the needs and interests of the foreign friends. A special session explaining table settings, infant feeding and giving nutritional tips was presented by the Pitt County Extension Service.

Some Pilot's assist their "Pifs" directly and others help them locate classes or services to meet their desires and needs. They take them as guests to visit church, their book clubs, on picnics and to art shows.

It was arranged for one attractive coed from India, studying education, to visit an American classroom. She had never seen one. A budding short story writer from Germany was enrolled in a creative writing course. A Spanish speaking mother was assisted in finding a kindergarten and playground for her youngster. Several have been directed to the Learning Laboratory at Pitt Tech for courses in English, math and photography. Others signed up for knitting and sewing courses.

One dark-eyed Persian woman was assisted by a Pilot in interpreting the driver's manual and getting her driver's license. Explaining the following instruction proved to be quite a challenge. "Do not brake your car on a curve because it will break the grip of friction."

After she had signed the learner's license document the examining officer said, "You may now drive anywhere, anytime, as long as you have a licensed driver with you."

"Oh no," she replied, "I don't have a license."

"You have now," he explained.

"Really?" she laughed, "that's wonderful. I must write my mother and tell her I passed."

Pilot International Friends have many plans for pursuing their project of developing their mutual friendships. Every woman in the community with a foreign background is invited to participate in the program, whether she has been in this country a long time, or has just arrived.

Those who have already conquered some of the problems can be helpful in making suggestions that might ease the situation for newcomers.

Mrs. Janie Gold Starling is the new chairman for the project and she would welcome a call from any foreign woman who would like to be included. She can be reached at 756-5017.

AT A WORKSHOP. . .on nutrition and infant feeding, given by the Pitt County Home Extension agents, are Mrs. Shafin Tien, Miss Hye Young Oh, Mrs. Janie Gold Starling, Pilot Club president, Mrs. Phyllis Wooten and Mrs. Evelyn Spangler.

With The Women

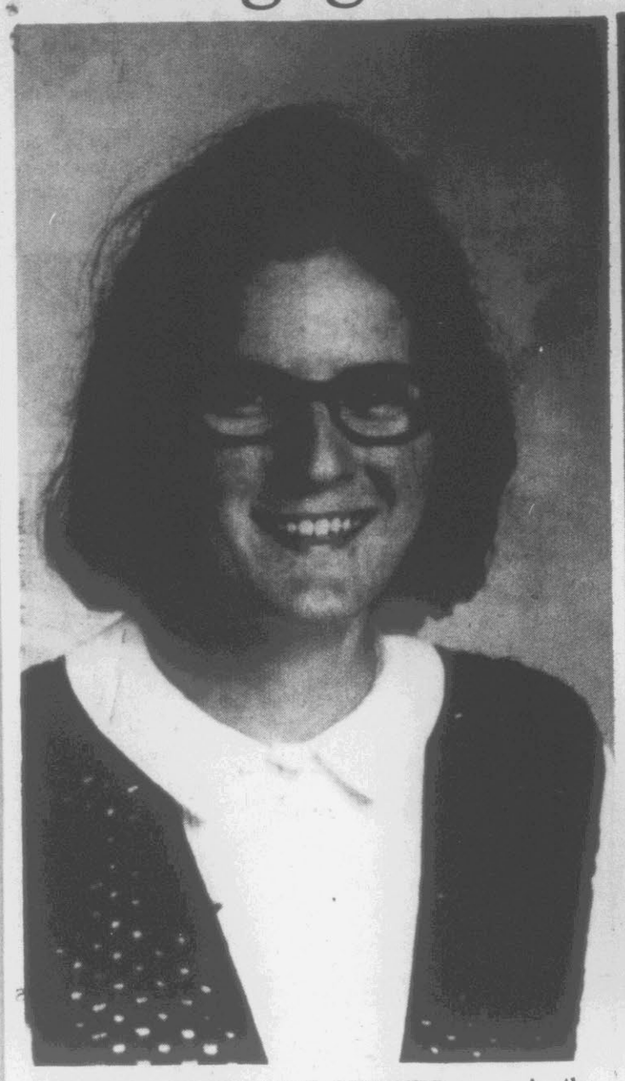
CHOPPING PORK AND VEGETABLES . . for a Chinese dish are Mrs. Betty Casey, Mrs. Shafin Tien, Miss Ruth White and Mrs. Akeng Chen.

"AMERICAN BABIES. . .are just like Chinese babies" observed Mrs. Juliett Chung while visiting with Mrs. Louise Moody and her son, Avery.

CREATIVE WRITING COURSE. . . was introduced by a Pilot member to Mrs. Gerda Nischan, pictured in foreground, who is a budding short story writer.

THE TABLE SETTING. . . for international cuisine is discussed by PIF's, Mrs. Monir Emami, Mrs. Evelyn deSelva Sutter, Mrs. Usha Gulati, Mrs. Juanita McCarthy and Mrs. Ruby Fields.

Engagements Announced



MISS CATHY LUCILLE SKINNER . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Skinner Jr. of Ayden, who announce her engagement to Linwood Odell Casper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood T. Casper of Tarboro. The wedding will take place June 30.

MISS PAULINE WAINRIGHT . . . is the daughter of Mrs. Jennis L. Wainright of Greenville and the late Mr. Wainright, who announces her engagement to Douglass Coleman Hardee, son of Mrs. Crego Hardee of Rt. 1, Winterville, and the late Mr. Hardee. The wedding will take place June 17.

'Sissy' Farenthold's Bid For Governor, Considered A Long Shot, May Pay Off

By ANN ARNOLD

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Even her best friends considered it a long shot when Frances Farenthold announced in January she planned to become Texas' second woman governor.

But the two-term lady legislator from Corpus Christi is used to making long shots pay off and already has forced long-time political observers to take her chances seriously.

"I never run for anything except to win," says the attractive, 45-year-old mother of four. "I don't just jump off into something. They may be long shots, but they're reasoned out."

Texas had a woman governor —Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson— in the 1920s. But she was elected only after her husband was impeached as governor and barred from holding the office.

Reform Champion

This year with Texas voters outraged over a multimillion dollar stock scandal and revelations of hanky panky by public officials, "Sissy" Farenthold may well have a chance to beat the odds and move into the Governor's Mansion —and not as a governor's wife.

Mrs. Farenthold has acquired a reputation among the 149 male House members for championing reform causes.

She took on the state land commissioner during her first legislative term and evenually won a legislative reprimand against him over a scandal involving sunken Spanish treasure.

When the stock fraud scandal broke last year, she was one of the first to demand a full investigation and to take House Speaker Gus Mutscher to task for his role in the dealings.

Labor Backing

In the gubernatorial race this year, her hard-hitting attacks on the "use of public office as collateral for private gain" already have put the front runners on the defensive and attracted young, energetic campaign workers to her cause.

Her reform and liberal leanings also have drawn considerable support from labor groups.

"I thought if we would run into any trouble on the feminist score it would be with the laborers," says her campaign manager, Creekmore Fath. "But their response to her has just been fantastic."

Background

The daughter of well-to-do Corpus Christi lawyer and grandaughter of a state supreme court judge, Mrs. Farenthold attended an exclusive Dallas high school and Vassar College. Later, she enrolled at the University of Texas law school and went to work with her father's firm after she got her law degree.

A few years later she met and married George Farenthold, an independent oil contractor who now is in the steel business in Houston. She practiced law only intermittently while their children were young; but as they became teen-agers, she found time to do more.

She helped set up the Corpus Christi Human Relations Commission and headed the Nueces County legal aid office for two years.

Mrs. Farenthold had never run for any public office, however, when she decided in 1968—just hours before the filing deadline—to seek a seat in the legislature.

She beat out two Democratic contenders and ousted a Republican incumbent in an admittedly "amateurish" campaign. And she won re-election handily two

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

"Come to Convention" is the call issued by Mrs. Paul Keller, president of the N.C. Federation of Women's Clubs, Inc., to delegates and representatives of the 362 clubs in the state.

The 70th annual convention will be held at the Holiday Inn-Four Seasons, Greensboro, Tuesday through Friday.

The formal opening of the convention Tuesday evening will be highlighted by an address by Hagan Thompson, public information specialist, Public Affairs, Division, Environmental Protection Agency. Special music will be presented by the Greensboro College Choir prior to the address.

A workshop on "Solving Club Problems" will be held Wednesday morning moderated by Mrs. J. Frank Bryant, past president of the NCFWC.

During the red, white and blue luncheon Wednesday, a fashion show will be held presented by the Prago-Guyes of Greensboro and commentated by Kathleen Brockman.

Mrs. Robert W. Scott, first lady of North Carolina, will be the assembly speaker.

During the evening session, the program "Life Begins at Forty" will be given by the Chapel Hill Woman's Club, which is a narrative and tableaux of the life of Sara Josephia Hale.

The Thursday morning session for all clubwomen will open with an address by Mrs. Jean Eason, director, Center for Continuing Education for Women, UNC-G. A panel discussion will be held at 11 a.m. on "The International Status of Women."

Friday morning's session will feature an address "Consumer Is An Ugly Word" by Mrs. Donald Shriver, president of the N.C. Consumers Council. Installation of 1972-74 officers will be conducted by Mrs. Grady E. Kirkman, past president of the state group.

Awards to winning clubs will be presented each day during the convention.

Greenville's two clubs which are members of the State Federation are the Woman's Club and the Junior Woman's Club.

Saint James United Methodist Church will be the scene of the June 23 wedding of Kay Galloway and Hank Worsley.

The couple met at the beginning of Kay's senior year in high school and Hank's sophomore year at N.C. State University and have been dating since then.

Kay finished at East Carolina University winter quarter and is teaching at the Ayden Grammar School while Hank completes work on his Master's degree in Raleigh. He will be going into the Air Force in July and will be stationed at Warner-Robbins AFB, Robbins, Ga.

Sun's Ultraviolet Rays Can Damage Skin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The fun in the sun season is just around the corner. But don't let Old Sol make you look older than you are.

Wrinkles and dry skin are an inevitable part of the aging process. Many persons hasten the process by overexposure to the sun.

As a result, they develop prematurely weathered skin, which is not only unattractive but can be the forerunner of a health problem, according to the California Medical Association.

It is the sun's ultraviolet rays, when in contact with the skin repeatedly and excessively, which cause damage. Skin which has been damaged by these rays not only become dry and wrinkled but develops abnormal pigmentation and becomes thickened.

When scaly patches appear on the face, scalp or other exposed areas, these lesions should be treated by a doctor, because they are sometimes the forerunner of skin cancer.

Pointers

Since prevention of weathered skin makes good sense, the following points should be kept in mind:

—The summer sun is least likely to damage skin before 10 a.m. and after 4 p.m.

—If you sunburn easily, keep yourself covered while in the sun.

—Sunlamps, though excellent if used under medical supervision to treat certain skin diseases, can do as much damage as the sun itself if used indiscriminately.

— Fair-skinned, light-haired persons are especially susceptible to damage from the sun, but dark-skinned persons can also develop weathered skin if overexposed to the sun.

—Ultraviolet rays do not generally pass through window glass, so you run little danger of overexposure if you have this protection.

—A number of protective creams on the market will screen out ultraviolet rays, but they should be recommended by a doctor since not all commercial preparations are protective.

—Do not apply baby oil or olive oil to the skin since they increase sun damage rather than prevent it.

Joe Johnson Speaks To Credit Women

"How To Use Consumer Credit Wisely" was the program topic for the Tuesday night meeting of Greenville Credit Women International held at the Three Steers Restaurant.

Joe Johnson, manager of the Jewel Box, was guest speaker.

It is very important that young adults be educated on how to use credit wisely. Everyone, at some time or another, is involved in credit whether they really want to be or not, he said.

Learning how manage money or knowing how to budget is most important in knowing how to handle money wisely. There is a need for credit because it helps support economy. Everything would stop if there was no credit, Johnson added.

It was announced that the state convention would be held at the Holiday Inn-Four Seasons, Greensboro, June 11-12. The International Conventional will be held in Washington, D. C., June 24-29.

Joyce Woolard was a guest for the evening.

Marriage Announced

Mrs. Reba Haddock of Greenville announces the marriage of her sister, Cornie Mills, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Adam Mills, to James Lassiter, son of the late Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Lassiter, on April 8, 1972, in Tarboro, with the Rev. O. L. Dyson officiating.

Singer Is In Love—With Job

By GUY A. GOODINE

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—What do you get when you fall in love? It depends on what you are in love with.

For Donna Lynn, 23, of Tulsa, it's making people smile or, better yet, laugh, clap their hands and stomp their feet.

Miss Lynn is an entertainer and she's in love with her job. Proof is in the doing.

"I've had a lot of fun and a lot of good times," she said of her nine months with a touring country-popular music band, "but I've had some bad times, too.

Tennessee Sound

"There have been some weeks—not days—that we've been without a job so, of course, without any money coming in. Then is when the professionals stick it out and the non-professionals get out. You've got to be dedicated.

Miss Lynn is featured singer with the Tennessee Sound, a band made up mainly of women. There are three that play instruments and sing, accompanied by two male entertainers—on bass and guitar.

The Tennessee Sound was in Tulsa looking at prospective recording studios before leaving on a 10-month tour of the northeastern United States, the Great Lakes area and parts of Canada.

"That's when you are really put to the test," Miss Lynn said.

"Try, just once, working a four-hour rehearsal, a four-hour show, piling into three cars and driving 700 miles to do it again."

Normal Life?

The pretty young entertainer wants to revert to a "sort of normal life someday," she said, but first—before "marriage and things like that"—she wants to do her best at her job.

"I probably will never be considered among the best," she said, "but I want to know that I am always doing the best I know how and that I am always trying my hardest to please our audiences. It's a good feeling when you know that the crowd feels you are good. There just isn't anything I can think of to compare to the sound of a rousing applause in a packed auditorium."

Miss Lynn compares her job to that of a dedicated secretary or career girl, but with exceptions.

"A good secretary wants to put out good, clean work she can be proud of. And she's extra proud when her boss lets her feel like she's a necessary part of his business.

No crowd -No pay

"It's the same way with us, but there is a difference. The secretary knows from week to week how much money is going to be in her pay envelope. We don't. We get paid a percentage and if there's no crowd, there's no pay.

Miss Lynn has appeared in several East Coast states and will be doing night club and auditorium work with the group in Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia provinces in Canada before the end of this year—along with appearances in several states, including Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and New York.

I asked Swan Schwoch of Weatherford, Tex., what it was like working with so many women.

"The only way to keep from getting gray hairs," he said with a smile, "is to be like that man over there."

Convention Report Given

Delegates to the state convention held in Charlotte reported on the event at the Tuesday night meeting of Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa.

The showing and explanation of the new state banner, which was adopted, was held. The banner will be presented to each chapter.

Scholarship Chairman Becky Groome reviewed applications from Rose High seniors, who had applied before the April 15 deadline. The committee will interview the applicants and the winner will be announced in the near future.

Members presented the program in the form of a talent show. The final meeting of the year will be the installation of new officers in May.

President Elizabeth Savage presided at the meeting and Chaplain Mickey West gave the devotional

Pros And Cons Of The Quest For Privacy

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: What's gotten into you? Everyone is entitled to privacy!

I refer to those people who were vacationing near Monterey when a car full of strangers drove up, and asked if they could share their picnic table. I think they had a lot of nerve trying to butt in that way.

I give those people credit for saying, "No, we want our privacy." You took the part of the intruders and gave out with a lot of dialog about "caring and sharing."

Look at the English. They are great protectors of their privacy. You don't see them letting just anybody move in and get chummy with them. LIKES MY PRIVACY

DEAR LIKES: For the other side of the coin, please read on:

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the people who didn't want to share their picnic table, I couldn't help but think how much they were missing. Privacy can be found in the confines of one's own home, and if that is what one wants, he should stay home.

We are not world travelers, but we have had many memorable outings when we took our children camping. We've shared picnic tables [and even lunches] with strangers from all over.

Had we wanted our privacy, we never would have met the two charming retired schoolteachers who were crossing the country on the narrow back byways instead of the freeways. ["You don't see anything from an airplane!"]

Or the party of happy young people who insisted that we share their campfire on the banks of a river one beautiful moonlit night too beautiful to describe.

Our children have romped with children of every color and creed, and it has enriched their lives.

Once we joined a family with nine children who were giving "Mamma" a vacation from the kitchen, treating her to a dinner of peanut butter and jam sandwiches and chocolate milk.

Those who shun strangers will never know the wonderful feeling of making friends of strangers, and have them blow you kisses when you wave them goodby.

Privacy seekers miss the whole point of living in, and enjoying, God's beautiful world, which belongs to all of us. I weep for them, and their growing numbers.

RECEIVED MORE THAN WE GAVE

DEAR ABBY: 27 years ago, I married a smart, young, ambitious man. Climb! Climb! Climb! Year after year the goals got higher. He worked, worked, worked!

Last week I nearly lost this wonderful man to a heart attack. What good was the split level home, the beautiful furniture, the sterling silver, the mink, the extra car? My only prayer was that this devoted husband and father should live to enjoy the fruits of his hard-earned labor.

I reproached myself a thousand times for having demanded so many material things. I nearly worked him to death. No wonder most women outlive their husbands.

I was lucky. Thank God mine is going to make it.

Abby, please tell young married women to settle for less and not to drive their husbands to exhaustion. Sign me,

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: No one can tell it like the one who's been there. Thanks for the reminder.

DEAR ABBY: Three of my friends came here for lunch and bridge the other afternoon. One is a widow, the other a divorcee and the third is married. They all had a wonderful laugh over a sign they had recently seen in the needlework department of The Farmers Market.

"NEEDLEWORK HAS TAKEN THE PLACE OF SEX"

Needless to say no one brought out her needlework, even when she was dummy. E. L. M.: MALIBU

How To Sauce Beef Fondue

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

If you have a fondue pot you've probably made Fondue Bourguinonne—the tender cubes of beef sirloin or filet that guests cook at the table in hot salad oil or a mixture of oil and clarified butter.

But what about the sauces to go with the fondue? These may be bought or homemade and range from mayonnaise mixed with curry powder to a spicy tomato concoction. Here's where we have something new to add: Cumberland Fondue Sauce. The recipe follows.

CUMBERLAND FONDUE SAUCE

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons currant jelly
1 cup cranberry juice cocktail
1 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon finely grated orange rind
¼ cup orange juice
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon water

In a small saucepan over low heat melt the butter. Add onion and cook until onion is tender.

Stir in mustard and jelly and cook, stirring, until jelly melts. Add cranberry juice, lemon rind, orange rind, orange juice and salt.

Mix cornstarch and water until smooth; stir into mixture. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly, and boil 1 minute.

Makes about 11-3rd cups.

Note: Serve sauce warm or cold. It is thin and should be offered in small oriental cups (without handles) into which meat, cooked in a fondue pot, may be dipped.

Creative Writing Contest Winners Named At Author's Luncheon

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Women's Editor

The 37th annual Author's Luncheon held yesterday was highlighted by the presentation of awards in the Creative Writing Contest.

The awards luncheon is sponsored by the Woman's Club of Greenville.

Mrs. J. Lindsay Savage, chairman of the Creative Writing Contest, made the following presentations:

Mamie Ives Woolard award, best sonnet, to Christie Speir of Bethel; Eva Berry Harris award, Mrs. Malcolm Trupp; Virginia Tripp award, Jean Dixon; Janie Gold Starling award, Mrs. Charlotte Smith of Greenville;

Helen Jones Perkins award, for a poem, to Elaine Doughtie of Bethel; Robert Moye award, for a story, Christie Speir, who also won the Hilliard Rogers award for an essay. The above awards are given to high school students.

In the junior high school category was the following: Daisy Carson Latham award, to Tim Giles, Aycock Junior High School. In elementary grades, awards went to: Bill Barrett, Pace fourth grade, Elizabeth Savage award; and Marcus Black of Winterville, Pace fourth grade, Christine Johnston award, for a poem.

Childrens' category winners were: Randy Pritchard of Bethel, Elizabeth Utterback award, for a story for young children; and the Eunice McGee award was won, for a best poem for children, by Dennis Ross, Pace fifth grade.

Mrs. Savage announced that there were 78 entires by boys and girls under the eighth grade in this year's contest.

Another highlight of this year's luncheon was the keynote speaker, Mrs. Bernadette Hoyle of Raleigh, who is founder and director of the Tar Heel Writers Roundtable.

Mrs. Hoyle, who was introduced by Mrs. John Casey of Greenville, spoke on "The Writing Syndrome."

Mrs. Casey noted that the Tar Heel Writers Roundtable will be held Aug. 18-19 at the Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, and is open to interested persons and writers.

"... a person writes for two reasons — to be read and to make money," said Mrs. Hoyle.

"What a person writes, reflects what he is. A writer has to have a time and a place in which to write and he would devote as much time as possible when writing.

"Writing a little bit each day becomes a habit and the days are just not right without writing," she continued.

"A writer has to learn to handle many things in order to write — how to rewrite, how to polish, writing down impressions, keeping diaries and notebooks — and he must learn to live with rejection slips, just use them for scrap paper.

"A writer must be committed and yet detached — never ask opinions of friends or family. In the final analysis, the opinion that matters is an editor's or a teachers, Mrs. Hoyle pointed out.

In conclusion, she said, "Children should be encouraged to write — they are encouraged to practice football, basketball, tennis, piano lessons. We as parents, should help them create and we should create with them."

Mrs. Dink James, chairman of this year's luncheon, introduced Mrs. Casey.

Mrs. W. E. Roseveare recognized area book clubs in attendance at the luncheon. She welcomed award winners and guests and gave the invocation.

Mrs. Milam Johnston gave a brief history of the awards luncheon and the Sidewalk Art Show. The Sidewalk Art Show is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, May 5-6, at the Greenville Art Center.

Entertainment for the luncheon was provided by Miss Carolyn Green and Miss Donna Grose, students at East Carolina University. Miss Green sang two selections from the musical "Show Boat."

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS . . . Christie Speir and Elaine Doughtie were also winners in the Creative Writing Contest.

Secret Errand For Husbands

EDINBURGH, Scotland (WNS)—Wives, beware of a husband who offers to bring you a morning cup of tea or coffee to bed. "He may be a secret drinker who wants a morning drink of whisky while you aren't looking, said Dr. Bruce Ritson, psychiatrist at the Royal Edinburgh Hospital. According to the doctor, 40 per cent of alcoholics conceal their drinking from their families. "And alcoholism is no respector of persons of social positions," he added.

Unorthodox

"Even in the beginning my political life was unorthodox," she says. "I didn't check around with the powers that be before I decided to run.

"I had done the women's work—licking envelopes and answering phones—at county headquarters for years and years. But if I had waited for the county Democratic committee (for support) I would have waited for years."

Mrs. Farenthold says her husband and family encouraged her to make that first race.

Not everyone else fancied the idea of a woman candidate, however, and Mrs. Farenthold admits she did not really expect to win her initial bid for the legislature.

"In my own head I thought, 'Oh, it'll be 10 years before a woman is ever elected down here,'" she recalls.

Today, she says, the climate has improved so much that her chances of becoming governor are not nearly such a long shot.

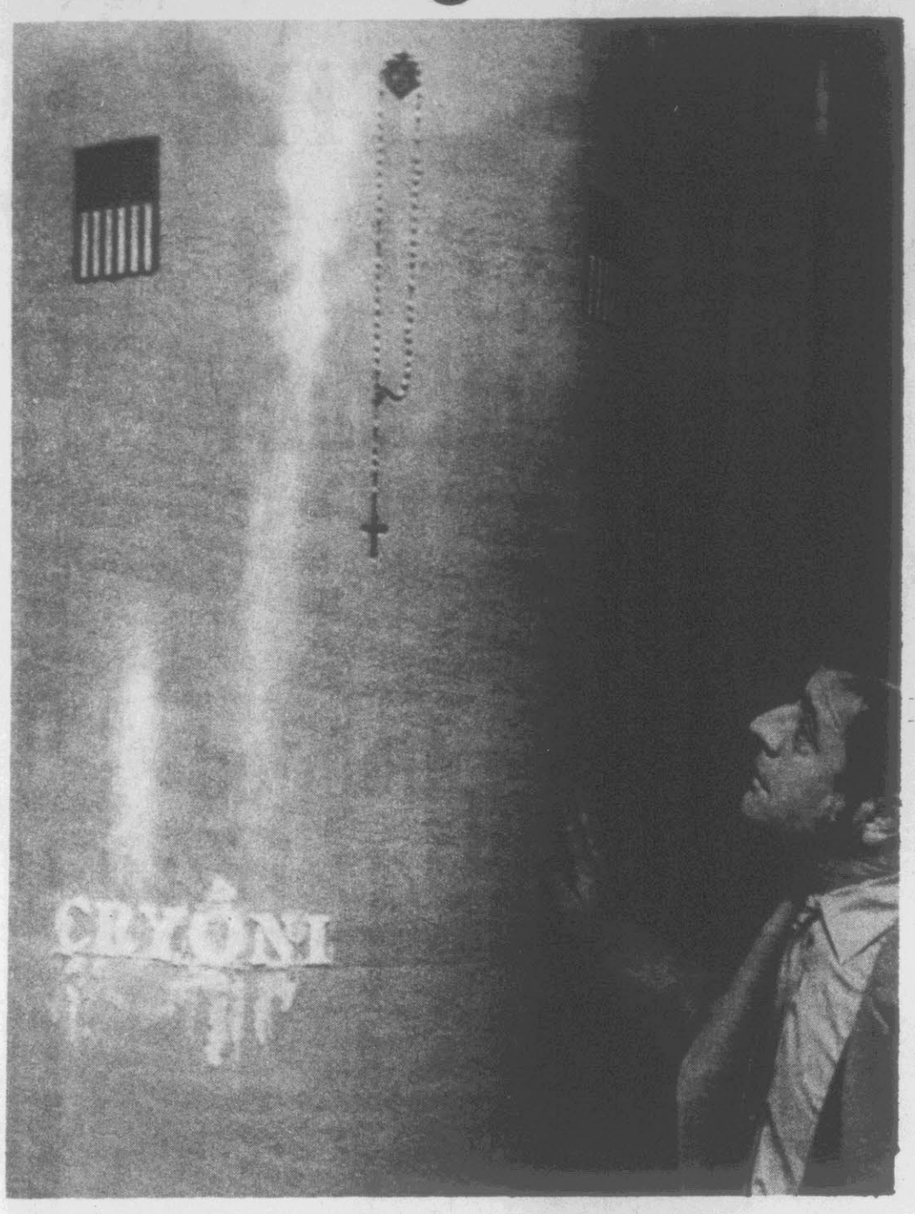
Gambling On A Cure For Frozen, Dead Wife



NICK DeBLAISE, stands beside the 8-foot high capsule in which the body of his wife lies, frozen at 320 degrees below zero. (UPI Telephoto)

By JOHN NEEDHAM

BUTLER, N.J. (UPI)—Nick DeBlasie, a 48-year-old retired New York City policeman, has invested $15,000 so far in a gamble that a cure will be found for cancer and that his wife, dead three years, can be unfrozen, brought back to life and the cure applied.

Her body lies now in an eight-foot high capsule in a rural cemetery here, frozen at 320 degrees below zero in 185 gallons of liquid nitrogen.

"I don't withdraw from reality," he said at the cemetery, standing beside the capsule on which a Rosary hangs between two American flag decals. "If nothing ever comes of this I surely won't be disappointed because I won't be around to know about it."

DeBlasie, who retired as a policeman in 1970 and now runs an automobile transmission repair shop near his Long Island, N.Y., home, is a member of the Cryonics Society of California, Inc.

Bilogical science rejects the society's "freeze and resurrect" theory. It contends that a frozen body will suffer lethal cell deterioration in the thawing process.

A Man Of Faith

DeBlasie replies that he believes strongly in God and that anything God wills, can happen. He refers to his wife, Ann, as the "patient" and speaks of her body being "suspended."

The vertical, aqua-colored capsule takes up part of a 6-by-9 foot wood-paneled room below ground in the cemetery. On a nearby table sits a Christmas tree and pictures of Nick and Ann. About every six weeks there is a replacement of the liquid nitrogen. It takes 20 minutes.

Seven other bodies in a California cemetery lie horizontal in individual specially made capsules welded shut. DeBlasie can open the top of his, "to view the patient."

The oldest person to have his body "cryonically suspended" was James H. Bedford, a 73-year-old former professor of psychology, who in 1967 was the first to be frozen. The youngest frozen body is that of 8-year-old Genevieve de la Poterie, of a Montreal suburb, who died of cancer last January.

DeBlasie learned of the society and its work in 1968. Later, when he knew his wife was dying, he contacted Robert Nelson, a 34-year-old electronics engineer who is president of the non-profit organization.

"I guess if we had a motto it would be 'Inform yourself, cryonic suspension may save your life,'" Nelson said on a trip to the cemetery here.

"Bedford specified that there be no attempt at reanimation unless medical science was up to the task of curing his cancer, his other ailments and making him younger, which is a pretty tall order."

Nelson's headquarters are in SantaMonica and there are cryonics societies in Michigan, Florida and Iowa, as well as a similar group in New York.

Frozen After Death

The normal procedure—the one followed when Ann DeBlasie died at age 43 on Jan. 3, 1969, in a New York hospital—is to inject an anticoagulant into the heart as soon as thhe person is declared legally dead.

Ice is used to lower the body temperature and blood is replaced with a "biological antifreeze" known as dimethylsulfoxide (DMSO). The patient is then placed in dry ice to further lower the temperature and is encapsuled—stored permanently.

"Being a Roman Catholic, I'm interested in the religious angle," DeBlasie said. He contacted his parish priest, who referred him to the local bishop, who told him to proceed and added, "Only God can actually say whether you're dead or not."

DeBlasie explained the procedure to his three children, ranging in age from 16 to 23, who felt it was a "magnificent idea." They and he plan to have themselves frozen, also.

The Reason Why

"People ask, why did I do it. First of all, you had to know Ann and the type of individual she was. She was a superdecent human being. She never asked for anything for herself, it was always what she could give.

"I believe within the next five or 10 years there'll be a major breakthrough (in cancer research), at least a complete remission," said DeBlasie, a chain-smoker who last month formed a group called Fight Against Cancer Today, to help in the search.

"Whether a cure comes along before that I don't know. I don't believe the scientists themselves could answer that question. If nothing ever comes of it, this would be the will of God."

For now, DeBlasie goes about his daily business, visits the cemetery every other Sunday, and hopes.

"I'll tell you one thing," he said. "You don't get that morbid feeling when you go over here, because you know something's there, something's trying to be done. I know I go and see my Dad, I go to a tombstone. You know there's nothing there."

Motivation In Honor Students

BRUNSWICK, Me. (UPI)—Add to proof of the excellence of contemporary youth: the most recent Dean's list at Bowdoin College in Maine contains the names of 512 students, more than half of those eligible.

Prof. Paul L. Nyhue, dean of students, said one of the factors in the record-size list of students making honors is the increasing opportunity being given Bowdoin students to design courses of study which develop their distinctive interests and talents. It adds up to strong motivation.

San Francisco Pet Industry Counts Fish As Best-Sellers

By WILEY MALONEY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A doggie in the window has great appeal but in the $3 billion annual pet industry fish are outselling them.

"Fish are the No. 1 pet now," said S.E. Herbert, head of Pet Dealers Supply Co., South San Francisco. "It's a tossup, now, whether dogs, kittens or birds come next.

Herbert, whose firm supplies most pet stores in the San Francisco Bay area, is backed up by Pet Supplies Marketing magazine, published in Fond du Lac, Wis., which heads its statistics with "aquaria" in its list of pet "livestock."

Robinson's "House of Pets," one of Herbert's largest customers in the area, also backs up its supplier. The four-generation Robinson firm was founded in 1849 during the gold rush when Ansel W. Robinson dumped a pail of gold fish, newly shipped from China, into a horse trough and set up a hand-letter for-sale sign.

"That was San Francisco's first commercial store," said Jim Umberfield, now its general manager. "I can't explain why gold fish sold except that every person has a yearning for a pet. The gold miners took the fish away in any small glass bowl or container they could lay their hands on."

Fish are still money in the bank today, with shops such as Buker's Pet Store selling red tail guppies for up to $4.95 per pair, red seats at $3.50 apiece and knife fish for $2.50. Ordinary gold fish go for 25 to 35 cents each.

East Carolina Takes Pair From Furman

GREENVILLE, S.C. — East Carolina University's Pirates crept past Furman's Paladins by sweeping a doubleheader Saturday afternoon, 7-0 and 4-1.

But the Bucs still trailed the Richmond Spiders, who took over the top spot in the league with a 7-3 record. The Pirates are now second with a 9-4 mark, while Furman fell off to third at 8-4.

The coming week will decide the outcome of the league and it rests with William & Mary to do a lot of the deciding.

The Indians have six conference games during the week. They play a doubleheader with the Pirates in Williamsburg on Monday. Then, Friday and Saturday they play home-and-home doubleheaders with Richmond.

The Pirates also have a game left with Davidson, next Saturday also on the road.

Furman, meanwhile has a doubleheader with The Citadel, plus a pair of games with Davidson. All games in the league must be completed by Saturday night.

A sweep of the remaining three games by the Pirates would probably give them an advantage, despite being a game behind Richmond in the loss column. The Spiders, having to play three doubleheaders in a week, would need a virtual miracle to pull them all out.

Only a tragic two-out-of-three loss would really kill the Pirate hopes should the rest of the conference gain splits in their doubleheaders.

In the first game yesterday, the Bucs mauled the league's top pitcher, John Katona, handing him his second loss against seven wins. Tommy Toms got the shutout win, hurling a three-hitter against the Paladins.

Bill Godwin got the win in the second game, just missing his third straight shutout. The lone Furman run of the game, an unearned one, came in the final inning of the play.

The Bucs did their share of hitting. Ronnie Leggett was the star of the first game, cracking out three hits and driving in five runs. Mike Bradshaw had a solo homer and Ron Staggs had two hits.

In the second game, hits were just a little harder to come by, with Ralph Lamm leading the Bucs with two.

The Pirates broke into the lead in the first game with a run in the second inning. Matt Walker drew a two-out walk and stole second. He moved on to third on an error when the ball was thrown away on the steal. After Rick McMahon walked, Leggett got his first RBI with a single to left, scoring Walker.

In the fourth, another Pirate run came in. Mike Aldridge led off with a double, but was thrown out on Staggs' grounder to short. Walker again walked and McMahon walked, loading the bases. Leggett laid down a bunt, reaching on an error as Staggs scored.

The third run came in the fifth. That one was scored with Bradshaw's round-tripper, a 350-foot blast to left.

The sixth saw another Pirate run come across. Walker reached on an error and moved up on McMahon's sacrifice. Leggett then singled to score Walker for the second time.

The Pirates capped the game with three more runs in the seventh. Jimmy Paige opened the inning with a walk, moving up on a wild pitch. Then, with two away, Staggs singled, scoring him. Walker again walked, and McMahon did too, loading them up. Leggett finished off his fine game with a two-run single, bringing in Staggs and Walker.

Furman offered little threat to the Pirates in the game. Two walks, to Katona and Mike Filipic, gave them a chance in the third. A fielder's choice and a single gave them their only other opportunity, in the sixth, but a double play erased that.

Furman did only a little better in the second game. They got an opportunity in the second inning when Mike Kaufman doubled, but died on second. In the fourth, Payton Barton walked and Kaufman reached on an error, but Godwin struck out the final batter.

They also threatened in the sixth when Mike Filipic singled and moved up on Barton's hit.

Only in the seventh did they finally score, however. John Little led off with a single to right, and Mike Bartlik followed with another. Then, with one out, Little moved to third on an out and tried to make it home on the play. Staggs relayed to the plate, but the throw was off the mark and Little made it with the only Paladin run of the day.

But by then, it didn't matter.

The Pirates got all they needed in the first on a pair of runs. Paige reached on an error and Ralph Lamm singled to center. With two outs, Staggs singled, and that brought in both runners, for a 2-0 lead.

The third saw the other two Pirates come across. Bradshaw singled and moved up on a sacrifice by Paige. Lamm got his second hit, scoring Bradshaw, and he advanced to second on the relay to the plate. Aldridge then followed with another hit, scoring Lamm for the 4-0 lead.

The Bucs had one more opportunity, in the fourth when Walker singled and moved to third on two outs, only to die there.

So now it all boils down to the final week. The final flurry of games gets underway Monday. By Saturday, the Southern Conference championship should be known. And if history holds true, it will be the Pirates — after all, it is an even-numbered year.

Virginia Runs Past New York; Takes 3-2 Lead In East Series

By BILL BASKERVILL
Associated Press Writer

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — Reserve Ray Scott scored 26 points and rookie Julius Erving added 24 and grabbed 32 rebounds Saturday as the Virginia Squires defeated the New York Nets 116-107 and took a 3-2 lead in the American Basketball Association Eastern Division finals.

The sixth game of the best-of-7 series will be played Monday night in Uniondale, N. Y., and a seventh game, if needed, will be played May 4 at Norfolk, Va.

It was nip and tuck Saturday until the last two minutes of the third period when the Squires ran off 10 straight points to take an 88-77 margin into the final 12 minutes.

With veteran Adrian Smith pouring in 10 points over the first 3:25 of the fourth quarter, the Squires opened up a 100-82 bulge and were never in trouble again.

Scott, who propelled Virginia to a 59-51 intermission margin in the nationally televised game with 14 second quarter points, relieved foul-plagued starter Jim Eakins midway the third period and started his bombardment from the baseline again.

The 6-foot-7 Erving, closely shadowed by 6-foot-2 Ollie Taylor, managed only 11 points and 11 rebounds in the first half but broke loose after intermission when Taylor got in foul trouble. Erving scored 13 points and nabbed 21 rebounds in the final 24 minutes.

Both teams started out tight with the lead changing hands five times in the first quarter as the Nets took a 28-26 margin behind Bill Paultz's 12 points.

The Squires took the lead 34-33 on a Roland Taylor jumper at 8:33 of the second period and never trailed after that.

New York closed to within one point at 67-66 with 5:47 to go in the third period, but Virginia outscored the Nets 21-11 the rest of the quarter and then romped in with the victory.

Rick Barry paced the Nets with 34 points, but had only three in the final period. Paultz added 26 for the Nets.

Twins' Kaat In Win Over Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Kaat, making his first start since an injury, combined on a four-hitter with Dave LaRoche and Harmon Killebrew knocked in the runs with a triple as the Minnesota Twins beat the New York Yankees 2-0 Saturday.

Kaat, a southpaw who hurt his left arm while working out during the baseball strike, allowed just four hits in six strong innings before he was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the Twins' seventh. LaRoche, then nailed it down with three innings of no-hit ball.

Killebrew delivered the Twins' winning runs with a two-run triple in the first inning that rocketed over the head of New York center fielder Bobby Murcer. The ball bounced into the center field monument at Yankee Stadium, more than 450 feet away.

Killebrew's shot off Fritz Peterson followed one-out singles by Danny Thompson and Rod Carew.

The victory gave Kaat his first decision of the year. Peterson lost his third game in three decisions.

Homers Pace Tiger Victory

DETROIT (AP) — Mickey Stanley, Bill Freehan and Willie Horton slammed home runs while Mickey Lolich scattered six hits as the Detroit Tigers snapped Wilbur Wood's string of three shutouts with a 6-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

Wood, lefthanded knuckleballer who has given up only one run in four starts, lasted just 22-3 innings in losing his first game against three triumphs. Lolich struck out nine to boost his record to 3-1.

Wood's string of 27 scoreless inning ended in the Detroit first inning when Tony Taylor walked, took second on a groundout, stole third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Al Kaline.

Horton led off the second with a triple and scored on a wild pitch. Stanley hit his first homer of the year in the inning.

In the third, Freehan drilled his first homer following a walk to Kaline. The homer by Horton, his first also, came off reliever Vicente Romo in the sixth.

A leadoff home run by Dick Allen, his fourth, in the fourth inning averted a Chicago shutout in the nationally-televised game.

Montreal Whips San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Right-hander Mike Torrez, who had only pitched two-thirds of an inning this season, tossed a five-hitter as the Montreal Expos beat the slumping Francisco Giants 2-1 Saturday.

San Francisco's Steve Stone, 0-1, hurled a five-hitter for eight innings, but the Expos scored twice in the third on John Boccabella's double, Tim Foli's triple and an error by first baseman Dave Kingman.

The Giants scored in the bottom of the third on Chris Arnold's single, Stone's sacrifice and Chris Speier's single. Torrez, 1-0, allowed only two hits the rest of the way.

Torrez' start was his first as an Expo. He struck out five and walked four in raising his career record to 3-0 against San Francisco.

Stone, making his second start this year, retired the Expos in order four innings out of the eight he pitched, allowing only one earned run, striking out six and walking two.

Billy Casper Moves Into Nelson Golf Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Billy Casper, who said a fight with his caddy helped change his attitude, bolted into the second-round lead with a stunning 65 Saturday in the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Casper broke out of a lengthy slump with his five-under-par effort and established a one-stroke lead with a 36-hole total of 133.

His seven-under-par total on the long, tough Preston Trail Golf Club course put him one in front of Lee Trevino, Puerto Rican veteran Chi Chi Rodriguez and Canadian longshot Wilf Homenuik.

Trevino and the wiriy little Rodriguez matched 68s and Homenuik—who has yet to win a major event in seven years on the American tour—had a 67.

The group at 136, tied for fifth at three-strokes away, included long Tom Weiskopf, former Masters champ Charles Coody, Miller Barber and Butch Baird.

Coody, Barber and Weiskopf all had 68s and Baird came out of the pack with a 65.

Jack Nicklaus, winner of the last two Nelson classics and heavily favored again this year, rallied from a double-bogey seven on the third hole for a 71 but was seven strokes off the pace at 140.

Arnold Palmer slipped to a 71-141 and was back in the pack.

Casper, a 40-year-old veteran who has won more than 40 tour titles, has won but once in the last 18 months and has had a variety of difficulties

They came to a head, he said, when he and his long-time tour caddy Del Taylor, had an angry exchange of words on the 10th fairway during the final round of last week's Tournament of Champions at La Costa, Calif.

Taylor walked off the course and Casper immediately scored three birdies in a row.

"We've been together so long and we're so close that you just have to have words sometimes," Casper said. "We talked it all out afterwards and we're even closer now.

"I think it cleared the air."

"I am more relaxed now. Everything is a lot more pleasant. I feel I've kind of turned a corner.

Texans Edge Boston By 7-6

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Ken Suarez' single with the bases loaded and nobody out in the ninth inning gave the Texas Rangers a 7-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday.

Dave Nelson opened the bottom of the ninth against Bob Bolin with a single and Ted Kubiak drew a walk. And after Nelson stole third, Dick Billings was given an intentional walk to set up a force play at any base.

But Suarez ruined the strategy by lining his game-winning hit cleanly to left, scoring Nekson and giving reliever Casey Cox the victory.

The Rangers had gone ahead 6-4 in the eighth inning when, with the bases loaded, shortstop Luis Aparicio made fielding and throwing errors on Toby Harrah's grounder, allowing three runs to score.

But in the top of the ninth, Boston tied it on singles by Tommy Harper, Aparicio, Rico Petrocelli and Ben Oglivie.

Danny Cater's fourth-inning single and sixth-inning sacrifice fly put Boston ahead 2-0. Frank Howard put the Rangers on top with a three-run homer in the bottom of the sixth but Aparicio's run-scoring single and Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly in the seventh put the Red Sox back in front.

East Carolina Second In WTVD; Pembroke 1st

DURHAM (AP) — Pembroke State University won its first state championship in any sport Saturday by capturing the WTVD North Carolina State Track and Field championships at Duke's Wallace Wade Stadium.

Pembroke won the 440 and mile relays and added two individual titles — Vic Elk in the six mile and Jim Smith in the 440 with a time of 44.8 — to edge East Carolina 61-50 for the team trophy.

East Carolina, dominating the field events, had the most individual champions, four: Ron Smith in the 120-yard high hurdles with 14.6; Richard McDuffie in the pole vault with 15 feet; Walter Davenport in the triple jump with 14 feet 9½ inches; and Roy Quick in the high jump with six feet eight inches.

The outstanding individual performer of the meet was sprinter James Ijames of Winston-Salem State. Ijames won the 220 in 21.5 and the 100 in 9.5, the latter tying a meet record. Including qualifying heats, Ijames ran six individual races, winning them all, and ran on two relays.

The only other double winner in the meet was David Taylor of Catawba in the shot put with 53 feet ¾ inches and the discus with 156 feet three inches.

In additional to Ijames' record-tying 100, three other meet records were set: Elk in the six mile with 29:38.0, Scott Eden of Duke in the three mile with 14:08.1 and Ben Bailey of Western Carolina in the mile with 4:11.7.

Some of the luster was taken off the meet as Duke, North Carolina and North Carolina Central, the only teams who have won the championship previously, sent a number of their top athletes to the Penn Relay in Philadelphia.

Quick's 6-8 leap in the high jump and John Hoffman's 206 foot, 11 inch toss in the javelin set new East Carolina school records. Hoffman finished second in the event.

Art Miller was fifth in the pole vault at 13-6, while Glenn Russell was fourth in the high jump at 6-4 and John Pitts was fifth, also at that height.

Gary Diedloff finished fourth in the javelin with 186-4. Lawrence Wilkerson was third in the triple jump at 46-1½, while Larry Malone was second in the long jump at 23-7¾, and Davenport was fourth at 22-5½.

Ivey Peacock's shot toss of 49-6, placed third, and was his best ever.

The 440 relay team of Malone, Charlie Lovelace, Mickey Furcron and Phil Phillips was fourth at 43.1. Bill McRee was fourth in the hurdles in :15.1.

Indians Nip KC

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Pinch hitter Roy Foster hit a sacrifice fly with the bases full and Tom McCraw doubled in another run as Cleveland scored two runs in the eighth inning and downed Kansas City 3-1 Saturday.

Until the eighth, rookie Monty Montgomery of the Royals and Cleveland's Milt Wilcox were locked in a 1-1 pitching duel.

Wilcox started the Indians' rally with a bunt single leading off the eighth. Del Unser also beat out a bunt and Alex Johnson walked to load the bases.

Foster then delivered a long fly to center for the game-winning run off reliever Tom Burgmeier. McCraw doubled in an insurance run.

Wilcox limited Kansas City to four hits as he handed the Royals their first defeat at home this season after six victories.

Reds Rally In Final Inning

CHICAGO (AP) — Tony Perez dashed home with the winning run on Dave Concepcion's ninth-inning grounder to lift the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Milt Pappas 1-2, had limited the Reds to one run on just five hits before inning-opening singles by Johnny Bench and Perez knocked out the Chicago starter.

Dan McGinn came on in relief and Ted Uhlaender attempted a sacrifice bunt. And when Don Kessinger fumbled Ron Santo's throw to third, pinch-runner Cesar Geronomo scored the run that tied the game 2-2.

One out later, with Phil Regan on the mound, Conception grounded to Glenn Beckert, who threw him out at first. But Perez, who had taken third on Kessinger's error, beat Jim Hickman's throw to the plate.

Santo gave the Cubs a 2-0 lead in the first inning with his third home run of the season, a two-out blast following Billy Williams' single.

The Reds cut the margin in half in the fourth against Pappas as Bobby Tolan walked, went to second on Bench's single, stole third as Perez struck out and scored on Uhlaender's grounder.

Rocky Mount Inches Past Rampants, 2-1

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

In case you haven't already noticed, or been informed, many of the summer league softball and baseball programs around the area will be getting under way this week.

Others will be joining in during the coming few weeks.

And there is plenty to keep everyone busy. Monday night, the Church Softball League, with its two divisions, gets underway. There are six teams in the American League and seven in the National.

Also this year, there is a new City League, which also starts Monday night. It has 10 teams. These two will play at the new park on Hooker Road, and at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Ladies Softball League, with six teams, starts play on Tuesday. Wednesday night, the Babe Ruth League begins its season, also with six teams.

The Pitt-Martin Semipro Baseball League, with teams from Farmville, Hamilton, Jamesville, Robersonville, Williamston and Greenville, begins play today.

The two Greenville Little Leagues, with six in each of the two — the North State and the Tar Heel — begin play on May 15.

Plans are underway to start a Senior Babe Ruth League this summer, for boys of American Legion age who do not join in that program.

The American Leagion Team will begin play late in May, while the East Carolina team in the Summer Collegiate League is slated to begin play in early June.

All together, that makes a total of 11 different leagues in action right here in Greenville during the summer months.

There is only one question remaining — with everyone on the fields playing — who's going to be in the stands watching?

Dr. Leo Jenkins and ECU basketball coach Tom Quinn put in a plug for a new 10-12,000 seat coliseum in the Greenville area during the signing of Quinn's new contract the other day.

If East Carolina's program is to be able to expand properly, a new coliseum is definitely a need, as pointed out here earlier. Hopefully, the idea will gain a little during he coming months. We will do our best to help it.

Terry Wills, formerly head trainer at East Carolina University, has added another feather to his cap. Wills left ECU two years ago to become the assistant athletic director at Elon College.

This past March, he ran the highly successful Carolinas Conference basketball tournament which was held in Elon, drawing praise from throughout the league for the way the tournament went.

Then, last week, it was announced that Wills would also handle the position of general manager of the Burlington Ranger of the Carolina League, a farm unit of the Texas Rangers. The team got away to a good start. At last report, it had won 12 straight before losing its first of the season.

Rocky Mount Inches Past Rampants, 2-1

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

ROCKY MOUNT — Rocky Mount increased its lead in the Division II baseball race Friday with a 2-1 victory over Rose High School. The loss was the third in five league starts for the Rampants, and their second in a row.

Two hit batters and a lazy single were the chief causes for the loss.

Randy Warrick, who hurled the victory for the Gryphons, did not allow but three hits by the Rampants, and effectively scattered them. Rose offered only three threats in their non-scoring innings.

Rocky Mount kept the Rampants in trouble most of the way, putting threats on in nearly every inning.

It all started in the first, when Rocky Mount scored both of their runs.

Ricky Bulluck and Phil Ford were both hit by pitches thrown by Lee Cherry, who settled down after that and pitched a good game. The next two batters were retired, and it looked as if the Rampants might get out of the jam.

But Terry Leonard lifted a lazy fly into center than just fell in front of Stanley Cobb for a single. Both runners came around to score on the hit, making it 2-0. It was to be all the Gryphons would need.

Nevertheless, they did offer several other threats. In the second, Bullock reached on a fielder's choice and Ford walked to put a runner in scoring position. In the fourth, Howard McCullough led off with a double to left and moved to third on the second out of the inning, but again the Rampants were able to get out of it.

Rocky Mount has its best chance in the sixth inning, but again failed to pay off. Larry Daughtridge led off with a single to left and was sacrificed to second. McCullough reached on an error, putting men at first and third. Jimmy Lewis tried to squeeze in Daughtridge, but Randy McKinney pounced on the ball and relayed it to Harding Sugg at home just in time to make the tag.

Rose, meanwhile, was trying to struggle back and overcome the first inning. Their first threat came in the second when McKinney walked and moved up on an out, only to die at second.

The lone Rampant run came in the third. With one away, Robbie Cox walked and moved up when Bill Lee also walked. Cobb then singled to drive in Cox with the run, making it 2-1.

Rose got a chance in the fourth, but it was quickly snuffed out. Derek Dunn slammed a ball against the fence, but after rounding second, headed back and was cut down sliding back into the bag.

In the fifth, Jim McDermott walked and moved up on a sacrifice, but again the Rampant were unable to generate anything else. It was the final threat, as only one more runner reached. That came when McDermott got a two-out single in the seventh.

It took a fine defensive play, however, to end the game. Cox hit a soft fly into short left, and Bulluck, running back, made a one-handed catch on the end of his glove to retire the Rampants and win the game.

Rocky Mount has lost only one game in league competition now, and stands 5-1 in the loop. They hold a one-game edge of Wilson, now in second place.

The Rampants seek to get back into the race on Tuesday when they plat host to Wilson's Titans.

NCCU Runners Set New Marks In Penn Relays

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — North Carolina Central's sprint medly foursome of Julius Sang, Larry Black, Jeff Horsley and Robert Ouku ran the fastest time ever recorded for the event Saturday—a 3:14.8 clocking—at the 78th annual Penn relays carnival.

The clocking shattered the Penn relay mark of 3:17.0 held by Villanova and also the previous fastest clocking of 3:15.2 set by Kansas University team anchored by Jim Ryun in 1967.

The sprint medley—440, 220, 220, and 880 yards—is strictly an American event and Saturday's time by the Carolinians will not be a world record, although it is the fastest time ever run.

The winners' blinding speed left everyone far behind, with William and Mary a distant second, followed by Howard University, Fordham and Adelphi.

Earlier, Bob Wheeler, sophomore speedster from Duke, swept from second place on the final leg of the four mile relay to give the Blue Devils their first major championship since 1941.

Wheeler, coming out of second place on the final lap, overtook Pennsylvania's Dennis Fikes to win by 10 yards for a time of 16:34.5. Villanova was third and Navy Placed fourth.

Earlier, defending champion Greg Fredericks of Penn State bettered his own record in the three mile which he set last year.

He beat Gary Harris of Western Michigan by a stride. Fredericks set the mark in the three miler at 13:31.5. Mike Keogh of Manhattan was third. All three broke Fredericks' mark last year, 13:36.1.

A gripping race had Duke, Penn, Villanova, Navy and Penn State all within striking distance going into the final leg of the four mile relay.

Villanova's Tom Gregan led at the end of the first quarter, and Penn State's Fredericks led at the half mile mark. Penn's Fikes led at the end of three laps, however, Wheeler stayed in second place throughout the first three-quarters of the last leg, cut loose in the back stretch, and outran Fikes to win.

Earlier winners in the field events were James George of Maryland in the javelin with a 245 feet, 10 inch toss; Hans Hoglund of Texas-Elpaso in the shot-put with a 62 feet, 11-1-4 inch toss; and Trevor Hall of Texas El Paso with a leap of 50 feet, 5-1-4 inches in the triple jump.

Penn won its first relay championship since 1959 wheniits team of Joseph Abitante, Donald Clune, Larry Lewis and Bruce collins won the 480 yard shuttle hurdles in 59.6 to set a Carnival record.

Knicks, Lakers Resume Series

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers and New York Knicks climb back into the National Basketball Association arena for the second round Sunday.

The Lakers hope to make a fight of it this time. The Knicks intend to keep blasting away from long range.

New York, underdog in this best-of-seven playoff series for the NBA championship, hit a sizzling 72 per cent of its first-half shots last Wednesday en route to a 114-92 decision at the Forum.

The nationally televised second game starts at 4:40 p.m. EDT at the Forum before the series moves back to New York's Madison Square Garden for the third and fourth games Wednesday and Friday nights.

Los Angeles, after setting an NBA record for season victories with 69, swept Chicago in four games and gusted defending champion Milwaukee in six games.

But the Knicks, despite the League's seventh-best regular season record, won the opener with ease as Bill Bradley, Jerry Lucas & Co. rarely missed a shot in the first 24 minutes of play.

Lucas, dropping in 20-to-25 foot bombs and Bradley, making 11 of his 12 shots in the game, took advantage of intricate picks and screens for open shots.

That is what the Lakers intend to do something about, and more aggressive defense may be the answer. Assistant Coach K.C. Jones has recommended a "fighting" instead of "switching" defense formula.

Thus the Lakers will persue their original matchups, forcing through and around the Knicks' screens.

Switching in the man-for-man defense, said Jones, "leaves shooters with just enough time to burn us."

The Knicks are similar to the 1970 team that lost important use of 6-foot-10 center Willis Reed with an injury but upset the Lakers in seven games for the championship. Coach Red Holzman and the rest of the Knicks remained cautious. "one game has nothing to do with another." Holzman said.

Conley In 5-1 Loss

SPRING HOPE — Southern Nash's Firebirds downed the Vikings of D. H. Conley yesterday, 5-1.

All of the Firebird runs came in the fifth of three Viking errors. Conley's only score was in the seventh.

Viking Bryant Hines was the only player to have two hits. No other information on the game was available.

Detroit Romps By White Sox

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"The pitches just weren't going where I wanted them," Tom Timmerman said apologetically. "I'd try to throw a slider inside but it'd end up outside. But I guess I had a lot on 'em."

The apologies were hardly necessary. Detroit's tall right-hander had so much on the ball Friday night that the Chicago White Sox could barely get their bats on it, ending up with a measly three singles.

The Tigers, meanwhile, had no trouble whatsoever with the offerings served up by four Chicago hurlers, hammering out 14 hits for a 12-0 romp.

Ed Brinkman and Norm Cash each drove in four of the runs as Detroit retained it's one-game American League East lead over Baltimore by snapping the White Sox' seven-game winning streak.

Baltimore also had a big night at the plate, pounding California 12-2. In other American League games, Minnesota beat the New York Yankees 41, Kansas City blanked Cleveland 4-0, Oakland defeated Milwaukee 5-1 and Texas outlasted Boston 9-6.

In the National League, the Chicago Cubs outslugged Cincinnati 10-8, Atlanta blasted Pittsburgh 13-5, St. Louis stopped Houston 7-2, Philadelphia silenced San Diego 3-0, the New York Mets whipped Los Angeles 6-1 and Montreal turned back San Francisco 8-6.

Timmerman, almost exclusively a reliever before this season, was hoping to develop into a fourth starter for the Tigers—but shaky showings in spring appear to have him headed for the bullpen once again.

Once the games started counting, however, he was a different man. In his last outing he pitched seven innings of two-hit ball. His teammates couldn't back him up, though, and he lost 1-0 to the Orioles.

This time he was even more effective, limiting the White Sox to just one hit through the first seven. Still, he couldn't accept his well-deserved praise.

Cash driving in four runs in a game was not so unusual. He's a slugger. But for the light-hitting Brinkman it was a different story. It was the second home game for the Tigers and the second time he was a star. In the first, he'd hit a two-run homer.

"I don't know how to act with all you guys around me," he said to the mob of writers clustered around his locker. "I'm not used to it.

Baltimore assaulted the Angels with a 16-hit attack—eight of them coming in a seven-run fifth inning—to halt a four-game losing skid.

Dave Johnson had three hits and three runs batted in and Boog Powell, Brooks Robinson, Paul Blair and Mark Belanger drove in two apiece.

Bobby Darwin, the 29-year-old rookie outfielder, was once again the Twins' hero, slamming his fifth homer of the year with a man on before Cesar Tovar capped their four-run seventh inning with a two-run triple.

Petty Likes His Starting Berth

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Richard Petty has won the Virginia 500 stock car race six times, and for Sunday's 17th running of the short-track classic he's starting right where he wants.

The 34-year-old Petty will line up for the 1 p.m. EDT start behind the front row tandem of Bobby Allison's Chevrolet and Bobby Isaac's Dodge.

"It's right where I like to sit," said stock car racing's only $1 million career winner. "That way I can match Allison and Isaac knock each other around for a while."

Allison won the pole position Friday at a track record 84.163 miles per our. Isaac got the other front row berth at 83.509 m.p.h., with Petty third in a Plymouth at 83.329 m.p.h.

Twenty drivers made the 36-car field Friday. The final 16 starters were to be selected in time trials today, after which there will be a 100-lap race for the powerful little modified cars.

Petty's reference to Allison and Isaac comes from experience from only a week ago. Racing in a 250-miler for the same Grand National sedans of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing at North Wilkesboro, N.C., Petty ran behind the two for two-thirds of the race before eventually gaining the lead and going on to score the 143rd victory of his career.

"Those two (Allison and Isaac) put on one of the best duels I have ever seen," Petty said of the North Wilkesboro race. "I had a ringside seat from 200 yards behind most of the way and I thoroughly enjoyed it."

He also said that Allison and Isaac occupied the front row at Wilkesboro while he started third—the identical alignment for Sunday's race.

Actually, Petty has won 10 times at Martinsville, a tightly wound .525-mile where car handling and driver skill is paramouth.

Oakland Nips Milwaukee, 2-1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dave Duncan's two-run single in the first inning and clutch ninth-inning relief pitching by Rollie Fingers carried the Oakland A's to a 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter of the A's, who gave up a solo home run to Dave May in the sixth inning, had the Brewers checked on four hits until the ninth when John Briggs hit a one-out single to left center field.

And when Joe Rudi bobbled the ball and Bobby Brooks threw it wildly back to the infield, Briggs scooted to third on the two errors.

But Fingers came on to strike out Billy Conigliaro and get George Scott on a game-ending grounder, preserving Hunter's first victory.

Duncan's bases-loaded single off Skip Lockwood sent the Brewers down to their fourth straight defeat. It followed a one-out walk to Rudi, a single by Reggie Jackson and a walk to Mike Epstein.

Big Innings For 9-5 Brave Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Marty Perez highlighted a four-run third inning with a two-run single and Felix Millan doubled home two in a four-run fifth as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-5 Saturday.

Perez' hit capped the third inning rally as the Braves snapped a 1-1 tie. Rico Carty and Dusty Baker delivered run-scoring doubles before Perez came through.

The Braves then put the game away in the fifth on Millan's two-run hit and run-scoring singles by Carty and Ralph Garr. Atlanta sent 10 batters to the plate in the fifth against relievers Bruce Kison and Bob Miller, who came in after starter Luke Walker was knocked out.

Hank Aaron's double in the first scored Millan with the first run of the game. Willie Stargell's double sent across a first-inning Pittsburgh run.

In the fifth, Rennie Stennett scored for the Pirates on a double by Dave Cash. Al Oliver then sent Cash home with a single. After Roberto Clemente hit into a double play, Stargell drove his second home run of the year over the center field war.

Robersonville Slips By Bertie

WINDSOR — Robersonville took its second win of the weekend yesterday as the Golden Eagles slipped past Bertie 3-2. All of the scoring was in the first inning.

Robersonville got on the boards first, getting all they needed for the win. With one out, Ricky Brown doubled and Loyal Corey walked. Phil James also walked, loading the bases. Summey Mobley got an infield hit scoring Brown and Wilson. Mobley was caught in a rundown between first and second, however, but before he was tagged out, James had come across with what proved to be the winning run.

Bertie almost caught up with the Eagles in the bottom of the frame but were stopped just a run shy. Marshall Williford walked and moved to second on a wild pitch. A passed ball let him go to third. Ken Williford drew a walk but an attempted pick-off play at first was errored and Marshall Williford came in to score. Kent Williford went to second the play. Wayne Dawson tripled to drive in Kent Williford.

Bertie threatened to go ahead in the second as Bennie Goldstein reached on an error that moved him to second. He moved up on a hit but one of Robersonville's three double plays ended the inning.

Bertie threatened again in the fourth, putting a man on third, but could not bring him around.

Brown had three hits for Robersonville while Thomas had a pair for Bertie.

TRENTON, N.J. — "We can do without any article of luxury we have never had; but when once obtained, it is not in human natur' to surrender it voluntarily..." Thomas Chandler Haliburton. THE CLOCKMAKER.

Al Unser has had the luxury of winning the most famous automobile race in the world. Not once, but twice. And not over a period of time, but twice in a row.

The 32-year-old family man from Albuquerque, N.M., has been to that precious piece of real estate located just off the end of pit road at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway known as the Indianapolis 500 victory lane. He's known the adulation of the crowd. The sense of achievement. The notoriety, the fame, the money. He's had it all. Two years straight.

Al Unser had definite plans on winning the Indianapolis 500 three times in a row, thus becoming a sport immortal.

This past weekend Unser had his new Indianapolis car, the Victory Special, here at Trenton in a 200-mile race. The machine retired early because of mechanical problems. Saturday (April 29) practices begins at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Unser will start work in earnest to keep the luxury of being an Indy 500 winner.

Many thoughts are going through Al Unser's mind. Here are a few...

On his car: "The car is a Parnelli, and it's entered by Parnelli Jones who won the '63 Indy 500. It's a fantastic machine and I know I can win the race with it. The car is designed to run 200 mph.

"We're not really surprised by the big increase in the speeds this year. The stretched-out design of the race car is the biggest transition. The raised wing and ties that the Firestone engineers have given us make for the increased speeds. The big raised wing on the back and new wings on the front of the car are getting 'clean air.' That's air that's undisturbed and it makes a terrific down pressure which in turn makes the car hold so much better.

"We haven't had any time to really test the car. that's why we'll be busy at Indianapolis, starting this Saturday. Everything has to be checked. The oil tanks, the radiators, the wings, the engine...everything.

"Mario Andretti and Joe Leonard, my teammates, have identical cars as mine. If a wing works well on one car, the other cars will have one just like it. It's up to each driver to have the car 'set up' to his individual liking. We are all one team, but each driver and his crew operators as an individual unit.

"We will each have two cars. Four are completed now and two more are just about done. The engines are turbo-charged Offeys with close to 900 horsepower."

One himself: "I don't feel my position at Indianapolis is any different than any other year. I don't think there's any jinx in going for a third straight win. It's just like when I won the pole (number 1 starting position) for the '70 race. Only a few drivers have won from the pole. A man makes his own jinx. If he believes in them he'll have trouble.

"I can drive my new car as hard as I can go. The difference is in reaction time. Everything happens almost immediately. But the strain is not much more than before.

"Winning the 500 would be worth a great deal to me. After all, I'd be the first man to do it three times in a row. But it's up to the individual as far as what winning at Indianapolis does for him. Winning brings a great deal of prestige and money. How much depends on what the individual does with his win."

On the race: "I'll be happy to sit in the front row after qualifying. The pole isn't that important to me.

"I don't like the soft 'gumball' tires for qualifying. If you can't race on your qualifying tires, you defeat your purpose. My Firestones will last the entire race, but I'll change for safety's sake.

"Every car in the Indianapolis 500 field is capable of winning. A perfect example is Graham Hill in '66. You would have been laughed off the field if you had said before the race that he was going to win. But he did.

"There's no race plan yet except that I intend to win."

Greene Central Downs Panthers; Holds Lead

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's Rams spotted the North Pitt Panthers a 2-0 lead then bounced back to score six runs in the fourth inning to take a 6-2 victory.

The win kept the Rams atop the Eastern Carolina Conference baseball standings with an 11-1 record. They were to play Ayden-Grifton one of their closest competitors Saturday night.

All of the scoring came in the fourth inning.

North Pitt led off its half with Jeff Price getting a walk off hurler Danny Whitley, chasing him. The new pitcher, Billy Williamson was greeted with another walk by Craig McLawhorn, but Price was then picked off second base.

Linwood Brown singled to put two aboard again, and William Little cracked a double, scoring McLawhorn to put the Panthers into the lead. Steve Fuchs then reached on an error, scoring Brown with the second North Pitt run.

But it didn't last long. Bob Scott led off the bottom of the fourth with a double. Danny Whitley then singled him in. Elwood Grant hit into a fielder's choice, getting Whitley. Donald Taylor singled and Johnny Earl Johnson reached on an error, loading the bases.

Robert Ivey then put the Rams on top with a three-run double, driving in Grant, Taylor and Johnson. Mike Perry followed with a triple, scoring Ivey. Stevie Williamson singled to erry, ending the scoring f or the contest.

Brown and Little each had two hits to pace North Pitt, while Taylor had three, and Billy Williamston and Scott each had two for Greene Central.

Chargers Fall To North Lenoir

WHEAT SWAMP — North Lenoir High School injured Ayden-Grfiton's chances of getting back into the Eastern Carolina Conference baseball race with a 7-2 victory Friday.

The loss dropped the Chargers record to 10-3 in the conference. They were to face first place team Greene Central Saturday night.

Ayden-Grifton got both of its runs in the first inning of play. Johnny Willis walked, and moved up on a wild pitch. Dale Manning singled, scoring Willis. Donnie Moore and Tom Craft both walked, loading them up and Grayson Lamm reached on an error, scoring Manning for a 2-0 lead.

The hit by Manning was to be the only one of the day for the Chargers. Winning pitcher James Willis held them hitless after that, striking out six, but walking nine to stay in trouble most of the way.

But his teammates were helping him out by getting runs. They came up with two in the bottom of the first to tie it up, 2-2. Lester Jarman singled and Sullivan reached on an error. He stole second and when Williams reached on an error, Jarman scored. Willis then singled in Sullivan.

The Hawks moved into the lead in the second inning when Turner hit a solo homer to make it 3-2.

Then, in the third, North Lenoir scored again. Tripp walked and Tillett singled. Williams got a hit, scoring Tripp.

Three more Hawks crossed the plate in the fifth.

Williamston Back On Top

WILLIAMSTON — The Williamston Tigers moved back into first place in the Albemarle Conference Friday with a tough 3-2 10-inning victory over previously unbeaten Northampton.

The game was one of mistakes, but neither team was too badly hurt by them. Williamston committed five errors, while Northampton was charged with four.

Dwight Ange was the only hitter on either team to get more than one hit, picking up a pair for the Tigers.

Northampton pushed ahead in the first inning with a run. Martin walked and scored on a hit by Wade.

They added another run in the sixth. Bradley reached on an error, then moved on to second when the ball was errored again. A third error allowed him to score to make it 2-0.

Williamston finally got on the board in the bottom of the sixth, scoring one. Ange singled and stole second. An error on the play moved him on to third. Rocky Cherry then hit a sacrifice fly to score him.

In the seventh, the Tigers tied it up. Joe Roberson reached on an error and Mike Weaver sacrificed him up. Eddie Rogerson singled, scoring Roberson to tie it at 2-2.

It stayed that way until the 10th, when Ange singled and stole second. He scored the winning run when Jimmy Raiford singled.

Robersonville Rips Jamesville

ROBERSONVILLE — Robersonville's Golden Eagles whipped Jamesville Friday, 14-0. Eagle pitcher Matt Wilson had a no-hitter going until the sixth when Jamesville got its first of two hits.

Robersonville got all it needed in the first with four runs. Edward Warren led off with a single to left. The ball got away from the fielder letting Warren go to second. He moved to third on a ground out and scored on Loyal Corey's single. Phil James grounded to third but the throw to second to get Corey was late and both runners were safe. Summey Mobley stepped in and slammed a home run to drive in Corey and James.

The Golden Eagles added another run in the second as Warren tripled and scored when Ricky Brown's fly to right was errored.

They added an additional four scores in the fourth and five more in the sixth to get the win.

Wilson led the Robersonville hitting with three. Warren had two including a triple, Mobley had two hits, one a triple, and drove in five runs. Corey also had a pair of hits and had three RBI's.

Robersonville is undefeated in loop play, 3-0, and 8-1 overall. Jamesville has yet to win a game.

Aycock Nips Rocky Mount

E. B. Aycock Jr. High moved into a tie for first in the conference Friday with a narrow 6-5 win over Rocky Mount.

Rocky Mount drew first blood with a run in the first. Dancy walked and scored on Walker's triple.

They moved out by two in the next frame on another lone run. Jones tripled and came across as Ward grounded out.

Then in the fourth, Aycock tied it up pushing over a pair of runs. Griff Garner led off with a single and scored the first Phantom run as Curt Keys doubled. Keys went to third on the relay. Ron Hunt sacrificed him in.

Rocky Mount moved out by two in the fifth as Johnson walked and Crocker hit a home run.

Aycock took the lead in the sixth as they pushed over four runs to go ahead by two. Macon Moye got a hit as did Jimmy Averette. Mike Brewington hit into a fielder's choice that got Moye at third. William Carraway walked to load the bases. Kevin Walker hit a single to drive in Averette and Keith Jones walked forcing in Brewington. Garner singled to score Carraway and Keys sacrificed in Walker.

Rocky Mount rallied for a lone run in the seventh but could not regain the lead.

Substitute Gives Cincinnati Pain

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Pepitone had a stomach ache. Jim Hickman played instead and turned out to be a real pain in the neck for the Cincinnati Reds.

Hickman, filling in for the ailing center fielder, belted a pair of three-run homers Friday to carry the Chicago Cubs to a 10-8 victory over the Reds.

"I didn't expect to play, not with a right-hander pitching," said Hickman.

But the fact that Jack Billingham throws from the same side that Hickman hits from didn't bother the veteran outfielder. He hammered Billingham's serves into the seats in the first and third innings.

Hickman's barrage was good medicine for Manager Leo Durocher, who came out of a hospital to manage his first game in a while. He watched his team halt an eight-game losing streak.

"Hickman will stay in the lineup," said a happy Durocher. "I'll certainly have to take another look at him."

In the other National League games Friday, the Atlanta Braves bombed the Pittsburgh Pirates 13-5; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Houston Astros 7-2; the Philadelphia Phillies beat the the San Diego Padres 3-0; the New York Mets defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-1 and the Montreal Expos slugged San Francisco 8-6.

American League results: Minnesota 4, New York 1; Baltimore 12, California 2; Detroit 12, Chicago 0; Oakland 5, Milwaukee 1; Kansas City 4, Cleveland 0 and Texas 9, Boston 6.

Chicago needed Hickman's home run bat Friday because pitching star Ferguson Jenkins wasn't in 20-game-winning form. The Cubs' $125,000-a-year pitcher staggered to his first victory of the season, giving up 13 hits.

"It was a struggle," said Jenkins. "I've never given up that many hits and stayed in a game."

Hickman's first home run followed two-out singles by Billy Williams and Ron Santo. In the third, he hit one after Glenn Beckert singled and Williams walked. The reserve center fielder also hit two other shots that just missed being home runs.

"He could have hit four of them," said Durocher. "The one he hit hardest didn't go out."

Rick Monday and Jose Cardenal also contributed home runs to the Chicago attack. Johnny Bench and Denis Menke each smashed two-run homers for Cincinnati in the homer-happy game.

Hank Aaron singled twice in one inning as the Atlanta Braves exploded for eight runs in the sixth enroute to an easy victory over Pittsburgh.

Seven of the runs came off starter Bob Moose, who had held the Braves to just three hits over the first five innings. A total of 14 batters went to the plate for Atlanta in the big inning.

"I don't know what happened," said a shell-shocked Moose. "I wasn't that wild. I'll probably have some more nights like this some day."

Aaron got three hits in all and drove in two runs to lead the Atlanta assault.

Joe Torre's two-run triple keyed a five-run rally for St. Louis in the sixth inning as the Cardinals halted Houston's nine-game winning string.

"Hopefully this is the start of something ... this is two victories in a row," said Torre, whose club has been in a slump since the start of the season.

Woody Fryman pitched a six-hitter as Philadelphia handed San Diego its fourth straight loss. The Phillies collected seven hits off loser Clay Kirby, including a single and run-scoring double by Tom Hutton.

Tommie Agee clouted a grand slam home run to cap a five-run eighth inning that powered New York over Los Angeles. The Mets' seventh straight victory was played before 51,210 fans at Dodger Stadium.

Tar Heel Outdoors: Sun Coast Is Overlooked Area Of State

By JOEL ARRINGTON

Probably the most overlooked section of the North Carolina coast, at least as far as fishing is concerned, is the so-called "Sun Coast," the area from Lockwood's Folly Inlet to the South Carolina line.

On a recent trip there, it became apparent that inshore and offshore fishing is of high quality and is available over a long season.

"Our most popular fish," he said, "is king mackerel. We have worlds of them from spring well into winter."

Although most effort is for kings, three inlets (Lockwood's Folly, Shallotte and Tubbs) offer exceptional trolling for bluefish, Spanish mackerel and flounder. October through March is best for casting to spotted seatrout, late April into November is the season for Spanish, and May through November for flounder. Spanish mackerel are caught from the inlets and along the beaches and offshore as far as 10 miles.

Three charter boats at Shallotte Point go for kings primarily, but also for barracuda, amberjack, bonito, sailfish and other species. Giant bluefish have recently been caught just a few miles offshore.

"Striped bass fishing is good from November to March," Tripp said. "We catch them in the Shallotte River, mostly on eels."

Tripp explained that the busiest season is September to October when numbers of anglers come for the spot run. The piers are heavily patronized at that time and small boat fishermen take advantage of the many free launch ramps in the area.

Of particular interest was Tripp's mention of two wrecks not far off Shallotte Inlet. One is about 12 miles offshore in 70 feet of water and the other is 18 miles out in about 90 feet. These sound like excellent spots for deep jigging, a relatively new fishing method in North Carolina. Fishermen who do note especially care for trolling with heavy tackle anchor over productive wrecks and work heavy lead-head jigs near the bottom. Tackle is usually in the 15 to 20-pound class.

"The wrecks are easy to find," Tripp told me. We mark them with bleach bottles and can give you a course that will put you within a half mile of them."

Shallotte Point nestles in the curve of Long Bay, which stretches from Cape Fear to Georgetown, South Carolina. Because of its location, the water offshore to about 15 miles is protected from southwesterly winds, which prevail in summer, and from northwesterlies which prevail in fall and winter.

"A northeaster doesn't bother us a bit," Tripp explained. When boats north of us can't get out, we have some of our best fishing days."

The only wind which causes problems is a fresh southeasterly.

Bottom fishermen will be interested to learn that there are rock formations as close as four miles out and there are major ledges from 22 to 28 miles offshore.

Surf fishing is also good from the three Sun Coast islands, Holden Beach, Ocean Isle Beach and Sunset Beach. Town ordinances prohibit beach driving from Good Friday until Labor Day, but paved roads along the beaches give easy access.

Boats may be rented at Shallotte Point and other marinas, but guides are not presently available. Directions for fishing locations and methods are freely given by fishing center operators.

The nice thing about the Sun Coast is that most boat ramps are within five to ten minutes from the ocean. With good fishing and access to it, the southeastern Tar Heel coast will not long continue to be overlooked.

Joseph Cherry of 605 Griffin St., Greenville, shows off a fine 16-pound-plus rock he caught while fishing in the Tar River Wednesday morning.

Tigers Second In Track Meet

JACKSON — Williamston High School tied for second place in the Albemarle Congerence Track Meet held at Northampton High School on Thursday.

Edenton's Holmes High School took first place with 75 points, while Williamston and Perquimans tied for second with 45 points each. Northampton finished fourth with 35 points. Plymouth, Scotland Neck, Gates, Murfreesboro and Northwest also took part in the meet.

The Tigers had three first place winners. Elbert Highsmith was first in the high jump with a leap of 5-9. He also finished second in the long jump at 21 feet, 11½ inches.

Laurence Lilly was first in the 880-yard run, times at 2:06.6. Clifton Hudgins finished second in the event for the Tigers in 2:10.6.

The Williamston 880-yard relay team of Mike Bundy, Bobby Williams, Willie Williams and Donald Lee won that event in 1:35.9.

Bundy also was fourth in the 100 in :10.7, and was fourth in the 220 in :24.1.

Garland Doughty was third in the mile run in 4:56.6

Ricky Clemons was second in the 440 in :54.3, and Cornell Moses finished fifth in :55.9.

The mile relay team of Clemons, Hudgins, Williams and Moses finished second in 3:39.9.

Higher Quail Limit Proposed

RALEIGH — An increase in the bag limit for quail from eight to ten birds daily heads the list of changes proposed by the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission for the 1972-1973 hunting season.

The Commission will also propose changes in the bow-hunting regulations to permit archers to take deer of either sex during the early archery season in all areas where a gun season for deer will follow. Also, the Wildlife Commission will propose the elimination of big game tagging on the Game Lands.

These are among the proposed changes which will be presented to the public for comment at nine hearings scheduled across the state during May. Dates, places and times for the hearings are below.

Under the proposal, the daily limit for quail would be increased from eight birds to ten, and the possession limit would increase from 16 to 20.

"The average quail hunter kills only about two birds per hunt, and this fact combined with information from our statewide survey indicates that the increased limit would have little or no detrimental effect on the quail population," said Frank Barick, chief of the Division of Game. "In fact, according to surveys and hunter reports, there appear to be more quail in North Carolina now than ever before."

"The big game tagging system which was used on the Game Lands last year didn't work out as well as we had hoped." added Barick. "For that reason, we're proposing to drop it for this coming season."

Barick also indicated that the proposal to allow archers to take either-sex deer during the early bow season is in line with regulations in most other states, and would not deplete deer herds.

In other action, the Commission will propose to shorten the deer season in Cumberland, Harnett, Hoke, Moore, Richmond, Scotland and northern Sampson counties as a result of the reduced deer herd in the vicinity of Ft. Bragg and the Sandhills Game Land. The season in these counties would be November 20 through December 16—the same dates as for the rest of the counties in the central part of the state.

"Many sportsmen have asked for this shorter season, and our biologists also confirm the need for it," explained Barick.

Proposed changes also include a longer deer season in northwestern counties. For several years, some northwestern counties had only a one-week season. The herd has increased in these northwestern counties, and the Commission is proposing a uniform two-week western season beginning November 20 and lasting through December 2.

The split season on black bear would be from October 16 through November 18 and from December 25 through January 1. The hunting seasons for bear, wild boar, deer (in the east), raccoons, opossums, squirrels and wildcats would all open October 16 to provide uniformity in opening dates.

The Commission also will propose four new bear sanctuaries where bears may be neither hunted nor killed. They are Shelton Laurel in Madison County, Holly Shelter in Pender County, Hollow Ground Swamp in Tyrrell County and Thurmond Chatham in Wilkes County.

North Carolina's hunters are urged to attend the public hearings nearest them and present their opinions and suggestions. Following evaluation of the hearings, the Wildlife Commission will adopt the final regulations on June 12, 1972. The following are the dates, places and times for the nine public hearings:

May 2, District 9, Sylva, Courthouse

May 3, District 8, Morganton, Western Piedmont Community College

May 4, District 7, Yadkinville, Courthouse

May 5, District 6, Albemarle, Courthouse

May 8, District 5, Graham, Courthouse

May 9, District 4, Elizabethtown, Courthouse

May 10, District 3, Rocky Mount, City Court Room

May 11, District 2, New Bern, Courthouse

May 12, District 1, Edenton, Courthouse, all 7:30 p.m.

Wildlife Afield: Angler Makes Supreme Sacrifice; Takes Family

By JIM DEAN

It figures, you know? Things like this don't happen to other people. Here I am, an avid fisherman whose very veins are trout streams. My gray matter is constantly squirming with visions of wobbling spoons, dry flies, canoes, four-wheel drive jeeps and the like.

At night, huge bass haunt the ledges alongside my bed, and barracuda stalk the halls. When I am not working—and often when I am—my body sits harmlessly at the typewriter while my spirit soars among the ghosts of "Pisces" past.

Talk to me and I seem normal. Ask me about the weather, politics, sports, religion, economics or the war and I'll give you a reasonable answer. "Looks like it's going to be clear and cloudy this afternoon," I might say, and you'll nod in agreement.

But, good buddies, my heart ain't in it. Behind the facade of normalcy, my life is wrapped up in fishing. Terminal obsession, a doctor would call it.

The reason I tell you this is so that you will understand the exquisite sacrifice I made this past weekend.

It all started when I was overcome—for a moment —with guilt. I just couldn't leave my wife, Diane, and the kids twiddling their collective thumbs at home while I went fishing again.

"Tell you what," I suggested to Diane, "Why don't we all go on a picnic out to this pond I know about. I'll even take turns looking after the kids so that you can fish a little bit."

In my mind, I was thinking that the fishing probably wouldn't be very good and therefore I wouldn't be missing much.

When we arrived at the pond, I agreed to take the first turn with the kids while Diane fished. I figured she would fish during the poor part of the day and then I would take over about the time any fish started to feed. Besides, my kids—Susan and Scott—are really to small to pull in any bluegills we might catch, so I could have some fun even while I was watching them.

If you've been reading this carefully, and if you are any sort of prognosticator, you will have discovered at least three flaws in my plan.

Diane left to go to the other side of the pond. I threw out a rig with a worm on it, and handed the rod to Scott. He immediately had a bit and began to reel furiously. A platter-sized bluegill rolled at the end of his line.

"Maybe you better let me help you," I suggested.

"No," he replied as he struggled with the big bluegill.

"Your sure you don't need some help," I insisted.

"No," he squealed. "You just watch."

"Please," I pleaded.

"No," he said with finality.

About that time, Diane let out a yell, and I looked up to see a good-sized bass leap out of the water. A few moments later, while Susan was pulling in her first big bluegill, Diane caught her second bass.

"Let me help you," I urged Susan. No dice.

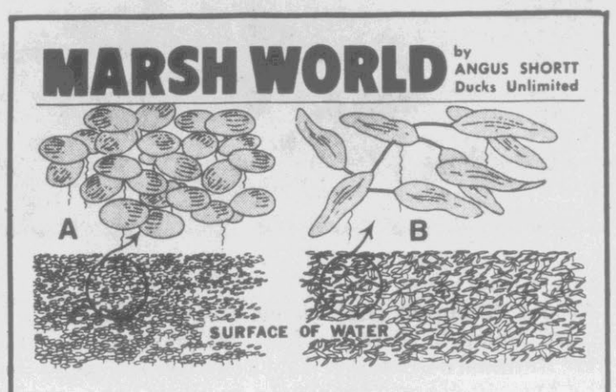
"Is it my turn yet?" I hollared at Diane. No answer.

The carnage continued. Scott and Susan reeled in one big bluegill after another and all the while, I could hear Diane hooting and hollaring on the other side of the pond as she caught and released the feeding bass.

"If you leave those kids and go fishing, I'll never wash another pair of your socks," threatened Diane from across the pond. I tried to pry the rod from Scott's hands with no luck.

I had been had, and all I could do was endure the humiliation. By the time I got a chance to fish, the fish had stopped biting. I didn't get a strike.

"That was fun," said Diane on the way home. "We'll have to do it again soon." Sure we will, Diane. Hold you breath.



DUCKWEEDS

Minute floating plants commonly found in calm water areas of marshes, sloughs and potholes. They grow in dense mats, often covering the entire surface. Two kinds are illustrated, A — Lesser duckweed (Lemna minor) this tiny plant is disc-shaped and averages only about one-eighth of an inch long, each with a fine thread-like root. B — Ivy-leaved duckweed (Lemna trisulca) has oblong leaves one-quarter of an inch or more in length. Also grows in dense mats the plants interlocking in a net-like pattern. Duckweeds are valuable duck food.

Heavy Odds, But Yemeni Tribesmen Fight Red Rule

YEMINI TRIBESMEN, who the government in Aden claims are armed and trained by Americans, want to topple South Yemen's Marxist government. Their war has been sputtering along for five years. (UPI Telephoto)

By RAYMOND WILKINSON

BAIHAN, South Yemen (UPI) —Snakes, scorpions and hot desert winds that blow out of Arabia's Empty Quarter are masters here. It must be one of the most inhospitable regions on earth, yet there is a war on for control of it.

The war—between several thousand desert tribesmen and the Russian equipped South Yemeni army—has been sputtering along for nearly five years.

The tribesmen several months ago stepped up the tempo of their hit-and-run raids against government outposts with a concerted offensive. Their aim is to topple the Marxist government that has ruled in Aden since the country gained independence from Britain in November, 1967.

Saudi Arabian Support

The tribesmen are recruited by exiled right-wing politicians and sheikhs and are bankrolled by the royalist Saudi Arabian government which periodically becomes embroiled itself in direct military conflict with its Communist neighbor to the south.

Several of these exiled political groups including the South Arabia League, the Hadhramaut Salvation Army and the National Liberation Organization, joined forces in a new group—the National Forces Organization for South Yemen in February last year.

The war has many of the qualities of cruelty, color and drama which characterized the campaign of Lawrence of Arabia and the Arabs against the Turks in World War I—plus a few modern touches.

The camel remains the traditional beast of burden in the more arid stretches of the desert, but the tribesmen often charge into battle atop brightly painted Ford pickup trucks, gifts from the Saudis.

Modern Weapons Too

They use viciously curved Gambia (desert knives) to silence unsuspecting sentries, but have added to their arsenal modern 50-caliber machine guns, Claymore mines, automatic rifles and bazookas—most of the weapons American-made.

The government equips its troops with Russian-made MIG17 fighters, modern artillery, light automatic weapons and vintage tanks.

It recently invited foreign newsmen to view a stockpile of weapons which, it said, was captured in the latest round of fighting—a battle to gain control of this border town.

The tribesmen rumbled across the desert from North Yemen in a fleet of 100 trucks, the government said, but were bloodied in several hours of fighting. They retreated, leaving 67 dead and a few trucks.

The government claimed a string of victories since the fighting picked up in October.

"They have been training for years for this," Information Minister Abdullah Khamri told newsmen. "But we have been successful in every encounter."

Aden claims American military advisers are training between 4,000 and 5,000 mercenaries headquartered in several Saudi camps strung along the border. Khamri said government troops "have seen American experts across the border in the Saudi town of Sharoua."

U.S. Aid Cited

Given the large scale military and economic assistance which Washington provides Saudi Arabia, Arab military experts in Beirut do not discount Aden's claims.

Khamri said his government protested several times to Washington, with which Aden does not have diplomatic relations, but the United States had not replied.

Many of the rebel leaders were officers in the Yemeni army but were driven into exile when the ruling National Liberation Front (NLF) purged the army of its alleged pro-British elements after independence.

Among the more active mercenary leaders is Col. Hussein Osman Ashaal, a former Yemeni commander-in-chief, who leads 600 tough guerrillas on hit-and-run missions in the arid western sector of the nation.

Ashaal's small bands mine roads, disrupting and often stopping traffic completely. Civilian aircraft are periodically rerouted or grounded because of the threat of rebel artillery concealed in the western mountains.

Further north, another British-trained rebel, Maj. Ahmed Saleh Ben Lahmar, has been fighting the army for control of the Alkaur Mountains which dominate the provincial towns of Attaq, Saeed and Shibam.

Bundy Speaking Schedule Given

Rep. Sam D. Bundy has announced his speaking schedule for May.

He will address the Grifton Lions Club Ladies' Night banquet Monday and Tuesday will be guest speaker for the Employer-Employee Banquet of the Rose High School Occupational Education Program at the Moose Lodge in Greenville. Tuesday, he will also attend his first meeting as a member of the Mount Olive College Board of Trustees.

May 10, he will speak at a Zone Lions meeting in Goldsboro and Thursday, he will be in Wilmington as the featured speaker for the convention banquet of the Eastern District of the North Carolina Health Association.

The Elizabeth City Kiwanis Club will have him as its 50th anniversary speaker May 16 and he will address the Windosr Toray Club on its Ladies' Night May 25.

Apparent Low Bidder On Work

RALEIGH — Barrus Construction Company of Kinston was the apparent low bidder for several road construction projects.

The bid, totaling $164,160 included 13.8 miles of conditioning road and sand, asphalt surface for surfacing six sections of secondary roads in Pitt and Beaufort Counties.

Final completion date for the work has been set as Sept 1, 1972.

The bids were opened Tuesday by the State Highway Commission at its regular monthly letting here.

All apparent low bids will be reviewed by the commission at its meeting in Raleigh Thursday.

Filipino Guerrillas Assume New Threat With A Brillant Leader

By EDUARDO RESPOSO

MANILA (UPI)—Communist-oriented guerrillas who have harried the Philippine government for nearly 30 years have a brilliant new leader who has the army worried.

He is former army Lieut. Victor Corpus, 28, who deserted to the underground Maoist New People's Army (NPA) in mid-1971 and now appears to be their new supreme commander. The ex-lieutenant is a son of former army Surgeon Gen. Vincente Corpus.

News of Corpus' rapid rise to the head of the guerrillas—a latter day version of the People's Liberation Army, or "Huks," who fought the government in the early post-World War II years—was made public by Gen. Romeo Espino, chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP).

According to Espino, Corpus has wrested leadership of the NPA from Bernabe Buscayno, a young high school dropout who had commanded the Peking-oriented rebels since birth of the NPA in March, 1969. Espino said the army had no knowledge of what may have happened to Buscayno, "but what is definite is that nothing has been heard from 'Dante' (Buscayno's military alias) for the past eight months or so."

Under Corpus, the chief of staff said, the guerrillas have become more daring and active and appear to be gaining recruits. He made his statement after a flying trip to Isabela Province whose jungles harbor the guerrillas' main training camps and bases.

Espino said that army intelligence has determined that the NPA now is at least as strong as the Huks were in the 1940s when they had several hundred hard core men under arms plus an estimated 20,000 sympathizers. In addition, as a result of raids on army patrols and installations over recent months, the general said, the Corpus forces are now better armed than ever before.

Espino said the Corpus-led NPA is rapidly stockpiling weapons of all sorts including Vietnam-vintage M16 rifles, M79 grenade launchers and Russian AK47 rifles preparatory to launching widespread violence. He said the weapons are gathered "from all available sources" including American bases.

The army chief of staff also said that Corpus has gained a "Robin Hood" sort of image among the peasants and has been winning new adherents because of a "strict code of ethics that rejects the rape, pillage and burn strategy" of the bandit-like Huks.

A measure of the military's concern over the growing threat posed by the guerrillas came in March when a reward of 100,000 pesos (about $16,666) was offered for Corpus' capture.

On Honor Roll For Second Term

LEXINGTON, Va. — Craig B. Jones, a junior at Washington and Lee University, has been named to the Honor Roll and Dean's List for the second academic term.

He earned a 4.0 grade-point ratio on a 4.0 scale. A student must achieve a 3.5 ratio or higher for Honor Roll designation.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Gail D. Jones of Greenville, N.C., he is an English major and a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity at the school. He is a graduate of Rose High School.

Winterville Vote Slated

WINTERVILLE — Incumbent E. C. Hines and Clinton Ray Anderson will be vying for a seat on the local board of aldermen in the municipal election set for Monday.

The polls will be open from 6:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. in the Winterville municipal building.

Hines is seeking re-election to a post he has held since 1960. A Winterville native, Hines attended the Winterville schools and has been employed by the Pitt County School Bus Maintenance garage for the past 23 years.

Anderson, a native of Winterville is a 36-year-old brick mason. He attended the Greenville city schools and Winterville schools.

He is a member of the NAACP, Prince Hall Masons, and the D. H. Conley High School Advisory Council.

Galifianakis Is Endorsed By John G. Clark

John G. Clark of Greenville, 80-year-old state Democratic leader who served in the administration of five governors, has endorsed Congressman Nick Galifianakis for the U.S. Senate.

Clark, one of the owners of Moore Oil Company here, served two terms on the State Highway Commission, appointments to six other state agencies and 17 years as chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee.

"Nick Galifianakis is eminently qualified for the U.S. Senate," Clark said in announcing his endorsement. "He has good ideas and fresh approaches to solving North Carolina's problems.

He added, "We need a change. It's time the next generation picked up the reins of leadership."

Isaac Stern Here In Concert Monday

Isaac Stern, numbered by critics and music lovers alike as one of the truly great international violinists, will appear in concert in Greenville on May Day, Monday.

Stern will perform at Wright Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. as one of this season's six major attractions of the Artists Series.

Born in Russia, Stern came to the U.S. when he was less than one year old and grew up in San Francisco. Beginning his musical training at six, he first studied the piano, but swithced to the violin two years later, making his debut with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra when he was 15 years old.

Since his New York debut 35 years ago, Stern has become a legendary name in music. The "London Times" recently said of him that "he belong to that great company of virtuosi around whose names legends have grown in the course of history."

Stern has traveled dozens of times in concert tours throughout the U.S., South America, the Far East, Europe and Australia. In addition to his concerts as a soloist, in recent years Stern, with pianist Eugene Istomin and cellist Leonard Rose, have performed as the Stern-Istomin-Rose Trio. In 1970 the trio gave eight concerts in which they presented the complete piano chamber works of Beethoven in celebration of the bicentennial anniversary of the composer's birth.

The Stern concert is sponsored by the Student Government Association of East Carolina University through the annual Artists Series.

Admission for the general public is by season ticket only.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—That "Ghost Story" pilot that was seen on NBC March 17 with Sebastian Cabot as a leading participant has developed into a series of one-hour suspense dramas to be made by Screen Gems for the same network for next season. The shows will be seen at 9 p.m. Fridays beginning in the fall. Cabot will be permanent host, with major players headlining each episode.

The "Miss USA Beauty Pageant" will be televized from Puerto Rico at 10 p.m. May 20 by CBS.

The winner represents the United States in the "Miss Universe Beauty Pageant" which CBS will broadcast from Miami in July.

An hour-long musical special starring Burl Ives is being prepared by York Enterprises and Henry Jaffe for release in major markets the week of June 11.

"As the World Turns" and "Edge of Night," CBS daytime serials, began their 17th broadcast years on April 3. Both were introduced on April 2, 1956.

Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson, stars of NBC's successful "Sanford and Son" series, are making a 13-week tour in a comedy and music revue that will play in 14 locations across the country through June. Also in the cast are comedian Slappy White, who appears in the video series at times, and singer Lyn Roman.

A feature of the NBC Saturday morning schedule for children in the fall will be "The Barkleys," animated comic adventures of an opinionated but lovable dog named Arnie Barkley and his canine family. JACK GAVER

Stan Kenton To Hold Workshop

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The Stan Kenton Jazz Orchestra in Residence program will be presented at Drury College from June 11 through 17.

Students will participate in bands, sectionals for certain instruments and will be encouraged to take part in jazz-rock combos. Classes will be in stage band, jazz ensemble, jazz-rock ensemble, neophonic orchestra, improvisation, composition, arranging, instrumental techniques and jazz history and theory. There will be 40 faculty members, including Kenton.

THE NORTHERN VIRGINIA YOUTH ORCHESTRA . . . of Springfield, Virginia, appears in concert today at 3:00 p.m. in Wright Auditorium under the baton of Dr. James Chritian Pfohl.

Youth Orchestra From Virginia Playing Today

A noted orchestra of young players, the Northern Virginia Youth Orchestra of Springfield, Virginia, just south of Washington, D.C., will appear in concert in Greenville today at 3:00 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

The orchestra's conductor, Dr. James Chritian Pfohl a native of Winston-Salem, is well known in North Carolina as founder and director of the Brevard Music Center for a period of more than 30 years. Dr. Pfohl was for several years conductor of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra.

The Northern Virginia Youth Orchestra, one of the nation's outstanding group of high school musicians, has presented concerts in Europe as part of an International Youth Orchestra Festival. They were also invited to play at the Southern Division meeting of the Music Educators National Conference in Daytona Beach, Florida last spring.

The program planned by the orchestra today is a varied one, including "The National Anthem;" Bach's "Chaconne in E Minor;" Gianini's "Symphony No. 2;" Slavonic Dance No. 1" by Dvorak; Ravel's "Pavanne Pour une Infante Defunte;" Massenet's ballet music from "Le Cid;" and the finale from Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 4."

"We are pleased to have this fine Youth Orchestra play in Greenville," Dr. Robert Hause, conductor of the ECU Symphony stated. "They have won many outstanding honors and their concert should be a rare treat for everyone."

This concert, sponsored by the ECU School of Music, is free and the public is invited to attend. The appearance of this young group should have especial appeal to young music lovers in Greenville.

Marching Bands In Competition

DALLAS (AP) — On May 12, the marching bands of Bishop College of Dallas, Grambling College of Grambling, La., Jackson State College of Jackson, Miss., and Southern University of Baton Rouge will compete for $25,000 in prizes.

The two-hour show will be dedicated to the memory of Louis Armstrong.

All four schools are black universities.

The band judged best will win $10,000, the second place $7,000 and the other two, $4,000 each. The competition will be held at Texas Stadium, new home of the Dallas Cowboys.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS

Anyone who has ever watched and listened to Pearl Bailey recognize her abrupt shifts, changes of pace and reconsiderations in TALKING TO MYSELF. Though this free-swinging book follows literally its title, it will be an unusual reader who doesn't decide that Miss Bailey is talking to him also. She is often uproariously funny, full of compassion, and at times strikes profoundly into the human soul as she gives her highly independent opinions about contemporary life. With obvious delight, Miss Bailey discusses the state of the nation, the American family, the conflict between the generations, the entertainment world and the perils of fame, and the themes of birth and love and hate and death. TALKING TO MYSELF is likely to succeed THE RAW PEARL, Miss Bailey's first, best selling book.

LOUIS ARMSTRONG by Hughes Panassie, the noted French jazz critic and friend of Armstrong's for forty years, is a remarkable chronological survey of the great trumpet player's evolution and achievement. Part one of this book gives his life story — from boyhood in New Orleans, to Chicago and New York and a world reputation. The personality of the man — his energy, warmth, and love of life — is affectionately described in ths story. This life story is followed by a discussion of the famous Armstrong musical style which as had a tremendous affect on jazz. In the final part of this book Mr. Panassie describes and analyzes the music of Louis Armstrong on records, from 1923 to the present. This portrait of Louis Armstrong and close examination of his music is illustrated with more than thirty photographs.

UP FROM WITHIN by George R. Metcalf focuses on eight of America's most prominent and influential black leaders who, despite the persuasive power of black militants, have chosen to fight for racial equality from within the system and side by side with whites to advance their causes. Mr. Metcalf gives an in-depth account of how each of them rose to power, what obstacles confronted them, and what stunning achievements they have had. Included is the story of Kenneth Gibson's bitterly fought mayoralty campaign in Newark; Julian Bond's struggle — taken all the way to the Supreme Court — to take his seat in the Georgia Legislature; and Clifton Wharton's courageous attempts as president of Michigan State University to keep both black and white student protestors from destroying the University. The full list includes: John Conyers, Jr., Kenneth Allen Gibson, Clifton Reginald Wharton, Jr., Shirley Chisholm, Horace Julian Bond, John Mackey, Alvin F. Poussaint, and Andrew F. Brimmer. Though each of them faced major difficulties, they continue to feel strongly that the most effective way to solve this country's racial problems is not to step outside of society in order to tear it down, but rather to effect changes and bring about progress by working one's way up from within.

Special Show of African Sculpture

A surprise bonus in art exhibits for Greenville this spring has developed as the result of arrangements made by the African Studies Committee of East Carolina University.

On Monday, a traveling African Sculpture Exhibition will open and remain on view through May 19 in Room B-104 of the Social Sciences Building on campus.

The show, with 30 pieces of authentic African sculpture, offers a compact glimpse into the rich world of African sculpture with selections of masks, ancestor statuettes and other works of art from the sub-Saharan region of Africa.

This exhibit comes from the Segy Gallery of New York, noted for its fine collection of African sculpture. In this survey exhibit some of the tribes represented are the Baole tribe of the Ivory Coast; the Geh Tribe of Liberia, the Congo's Bapende tribe; from Mali the Dogan and Bambara tribes; the Nigerian Ibo and Yoruba tribes; and other tribes from the Congo, Gabon, Sierra Leonne and Ghana.

During the exhibit period at ECU, the sculpture show will be open for public viewing each weekday, Monday through Friday, from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. A printed description and explanation of purposes for which the pieces were sculpted will be available.

Dr. Blanche Watrous, chairman of the African Studies Committee, made arrangements for this exhibition. She extends an invitation to all interested persons to take this opportunity to see this exhibit. No admission charge is being made.

Art Center Sculpture In Chicago

The large walnut sculpture by Peggy Burke in the permanent collection of the Greenville Art Center is now on loan for an exhibit in Chicago.

Miss Burke, a graduate last year of the School of Art at East Carolina University, is showing a collection of her sculpture at the Palette and Chisel Academy in Chicago from May 7 through June.

The modernistic sculpture was a 1971 purchase award for the Art Center. Sine its acquisition, it has been displayed in the downstairs hallway of the center and has become a favorite "touch piece" with young and old alike irresistably drawn to the alternately smooth and pitted surfaces carved by Miss Burke into the large block of walnut.

Only about 150 of 2,000 known species of ladybugs are found in the United States.

Reception Today At EEii's For Actor-Poet David Wood, Illustrator Carol Shearer

Author-actor Ira David Wood III, and his sister, artist-illustrator Carol Wood Shearer will be featured at an open house at EEii's little KORNERS of the world in Belhaven on Sunday, April 30, 1972 from 1:00 until 6:00 p.m.

David, a graduate of the North Carolina School of the Arts, will autograph his new book of poetry, "A Lover's Guide to the Outer Banks." For the past several years David has portrayed Sir Walter Raleigh and Ole Tom in "The Lost Colony". At about 3:00 p.m. David will give the reading of his poetry that he gave for the Nation's First Lady when Mrs. Nixon appeared in New Bern recently.

Carol, who did the illustrations for David's book, will exhibit the original illustrations, as well as watercolors depicting a variety of scenes from the Outer Banks. Also to be exhibited are illustrations by Carol for a new book being prepared by David. Carol studied at the East Carolina University School of Art in Greenville.

The works of both Carol Wood Shearer and Iread David Wood, III will be featured at EEii's of Belhaven during the entire month of May.

Music on Campus

As spring comes into full green, there's so much music in the air on campus at East Carolina University that the music makers are finding it necessary to double up with as many as three concerts taking place in the span of a single day.

The Music on Campus calender for today and the remainder of the week shows:

TODAY — 3:00 p.m. Wright Auditorium — Northern Virginia Youth Orchestra Concert (See story on Entertainment Page).

TODAY — 4:00 p.m. Room 105, Fletcher Music Center, Concert of English Renaissance Music. (See separate story on this page).

TODAY — 8:15 p.m., Recital Hall, Fletcher Music Center, Faculty Chamber Music Recital. (See separate story this page).

WEDNESDAY — 8:15 p.m. Recital Hall, Fletcher Music Center, Varsity Band Concert. (See separate story this page).

THURSDAY — 8:15 p.m. Recital Hall, Fletcher Music Center — Senior recital, Christopher Farrell, harp; and junior recital, Robert Beard, baritone. In the harp program, Farrell will play Grandjany's "Suite Classique;" Carolos Malzedo's "Chanson dans la Nuit;" and two Malzedo sketches, "Perdu dans la Brume" and "Rite Paien." Farrell is ECU's first male graduate major in harp.

For his vocal selections, Beard will sing songs by Purcell, Brahms and Debussy; excerpts from Handel's oratorio "Samson" and Mozart's "The Magic Flute." Also featured on the program will be a suite for multiple percussion and a sonata for tympani and piano. Beard has appeared in singing roles with the ECU Summer Theater, including "Man of La Mancha," "Oliver!" "The Red Mill" and "The Pirates of Penzance," He has also been soloist in productions given by the ECU Opera Theater. He will be accompanied by Donna Grose, assisted by Gray Barrier, percussionist, and Cathy Rountree, piano; E. Robert Irwin, organ; Garner Keel, tenor; Debra Johnson, Patricie Barker, Amy Boyce and Melissa Thrasher, sopranos.

FRIDAY — 8:15 p.m. Recital Hall, Barbara Jean Carter, senior recital, flute. Ms. Carter has listed three compositions for her recital — Pergolesi's "Concerto in Sol Maggiose;" "Trio No. 1 in C Major" by Haydn; and Enesco's "Cantabile et Presto." She will be assisted by Donna Grosse on harpsichord and piano; Marsha Miller on oboe and Beverly Ervine on bassoon for the Haydn trio.

SATURDAY — 8:15 p.m. Fletcher Music Center. Student composers at East Carolina University will receive first performances of their music on this date. Music composed by David Harris, Robert Conger, Larry Bell and several other students will be performed by faculty and students on the School of Music. Ranging in media from the traditional to the electronic, all the music scheduled for the program has been composed within the last two months. The young composers are students of Dr. Otto Henry, head of the ECU Electronic Music Studio, and Dr. Gregory Kosteck, ECU Composer-in-Residence.

All the Music on Campus programs are without admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Varsity Band Concert Wednesday

The first performance on East Carolina University campus of Elliott del Borgo's "Chorale and Variant" will take place at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday when it is performed at the Recital Hall by the Varsity Band in concert.

Under the baton of Dr. Ralph Verrastro, the ECU Varsity Band will also present seven other compositions of a widely varied nature, designed to demonstrate sounds and musical flexibility inherent in the modern band medium.

The program will consist of Eric Coates' "Knightsbridge March;" "Fantasia for Band," by Vittorio Giannini; J. Mark Quinn's "Portrait of the Land;" David Livingston's "Prelude and Fugue;" "Passacaille" by Lalande-Beeler; Robert Washburn's "March and Chorale;" and John Phillip Sousa's "Manhattan Beach."

The Varisty Band is one of three wind and percussion ensembles in the School of Music.

The performance is free and the public is invited to attend.

Chamber Music Featured Tonight

The third of three free Sunday concerts scheduled on campus today is a Faculty Chamber Music Recital featuring guest artist violinist Chris Teal. The concert will take place at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Fletcher Music Center.

Teal, a graduate of Indiana University, has a growing reputation as a young concert violinist. He has recently performed in Washington, D. C. and Richmond with praise from music critics. Last December Teal played the Brahms "Violin Concerto" with the Catholic University Orchestra and has also performed with the Cosmos Camerata of Washington.

ECU faculty musicians appearing in tonight's Chamber Music Recital are Linda Fryman, cellist; Rodney Schmidt, violist; and Paul Tardif, pianist. All are regular performers in the chamber music series. Ms. Fryman was solosit with the Oklahoma City Symphony for Saint Saens' "Concerto in A Minor for Violoncello and Orchestra;" and is the recipient of several competition awards. Tardif has appeared in recitals recently at the Philips Gallery in Washington and at the Aspen Music Festival. Schmidt, director of the ECU-Greenville City Schools Pilot String Project, is familiar to music devotees in the Greenville area through numerous local performances.

Selections listed for the chamber music players are the Handel-Halvorsen "Passacaglia;" Dohnanyi's "Serenade, Opus 10;" and Schuberts's "Trio, Opus 99."

This is a free concert and the public is invited to attend.

English Renaissance Music Today

The mid afternoon concert of English Renaissance Music by ECU's Collegium Musicum is scheduled today at 4:00 p.m. in Room 105 of the Fletcher Music Center.

Giving their reason for this concert as "because we like this music," members of the Colegium Musicum under the dual direction of Barbara Henry (instrumental director) and E. Robert Irwin (choral director)— will feature several vocalists and instrumentalists.

Vocalists for the performance are Andrea Rose, soprano; Amy Boyce, soprano; Sheila Marlowe, alto; Andi Simerson, alto; Talmadge Fauntleroy, tenor; Patrice Barker, soprano; Stephen Koch, tenor; Larry Bell, baritone; Ken Davis, bass; Michael Parker; bass; Rosalyn Barlowe, soprano; Betty Aldridge, alto; and Peggy Robinson, alto.

Instrumentalists in the ensemble are Michael and Patrice Barker, Randy Guptill, Lee Hendricks, David Howell, Leslie Kopp, Linda McLendon, Nancy Neidlinger, Vashti Phelps, Elizabeth Stoney, Michael Smith, Brenda Wall, and Christopher Ward.

Scheduled for performance are "Praeludium and the Irish Ho-Hoane" from the Fitzwilliam Virginal Book; "A Shepherd In a Shade;" "In Nets of Golden Wyers" and "I Goe Before My Darling" from "The First Book of Canzonets to Two Voyces, 1595;" "My Bonny Lass She Smileth;" "The Silver Swan;" "April is in My Mistress's Face;" "Hark, All Ye Lovely Saints Above;" and other songs.

Fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth century composers of England will be represented in the Collegium Musicum concert today. The public is invited, and no admission is charged.

First Art Show

Greene Central High School in Snow Hill has joined the ranks of eastern North Carolina planning annual spring shows of art.

On Sunday, May 7, the high school will feature its "First Annual Spring Art Show," to be on display in the school gymnasium from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. that date.

WHEN YOU EAT IS ALSO IMPORTANT

If you are skipping breakfast, it could be upsetting your whole daily balance of food intake. This is even true if you are on a diet. By morning you have already used up two thirds of the energy supplied by your evening meal. By mid-morning there is nothing left and you could drag most all day long.

What about vitamins? We believe a properly planned vitamin supplement can be important and we carry a complete stock of vitamin products made by reputable manufacturers. But, they are in no way a substitute for a well balanced daily diet. Start your day off right. You could feel better for it.

A Non-Lawyer who believes that the Courts belong to the People

I believe that a better balance could be maintained in this district if a non-lawyer were elected. I have served for two years as Magistrate, and have, in those two years, experienced or observed every type of situation likely to come before District Court. As Magistrate, I have been trained in the District Court system and procedures at the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill. I make indictments for every court, accept pleas, and take bonds.

Our neighboring district of Greene, Lenoir & Wayne Counties have two judges who are not lawyers, and their record on the bench has been acclaimed by many.

Much more important than the degree held is the experience and the man himself. Can he make decisions without yielding to the pressures of friends and cronies? Does he or can he render fair & impartial judgements? Are defendants who are not represented by counsel treated as fairly as those who are?

What I Believe. . .

I believe that the solution (as nearly as possible) to the Drunk Driver Problem lies in the court. Law enforcement is doing its job, but too often the arresting officer seems to be the one being tried. I consider the drunk driver and drug abuse to be the most serious problems facing our district today, and largely because of laxity, diversity of judgment, etc., in our court.

I believe that Probation Officers are often grossly misused by the courts. They are too often simply asked to act as collection agents for the court, and cannot thus effectively do the job for which they are intended. They often do not receive the needed cooperation from the courts.

I believe that our citizens lose their respect for the courts when they see charges reduced for some defendants, while others must face the full penalty for their violation. This breeds contempt for a system that must stay above reproach.

I ask for your support on May 6

MARKET DOWN — The Dow Jones Industrial average closed at 954.17 Friday, down 9.63 from the week before, while the Associated Press average fell by 6 points over the same period, to close at 336.3 Friday. Analysts blamed profit-taking, Vietnam, and discouraging economic news for the price decline in the early part of the week; and bargain-hunting, for the upswing that came Friday. Business Notes over the same 1971 period, he said, and earnings were $513,000 or 46 cents per share, a five per cent increase from 1971.

NAMED CHAIRMAN

Fred A. Coe Jr., president of Burroughs Wellcome Co., has been named chairman of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association at the organization's annual meeting.

Coe, who has been associated with Burroughs Wellcome for 25 years, was chairman-elect during the past year and has been a member of the board of PMA since 1968.

The 124 companies that make up the association produce approximately 95 per cent of the prescription drugs marketed in the U.S.

MERGER APPROVED

Initial steps have been finalized for a merger of the Bank of Hobbsville into the Bank of North Carolina, N.A., according to a joint announcement by the two firms.

L. W. Hathaway, president and chairman of the board of the Gates County bank, and J. Hugh Rich, president of the Bank of North Carolina with headquarters in Jacksonville, said that boards of directors for both institutions have approved the merger arrangement.

They reported that stockholders of the two banks are expected to meet soon to formally ratify the merger arrangement before requesting final approval from the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency in Washington.

STOCK RETURN

The board of directors of Black & Decker Manufacturing Co. declared the regular cash dividend of 25 cents per share on the outstanding common stock. The dividend is payable June 23 to holders of record on June 9.

DEALERSHIP SELECTED

Jack S. Straub, Richmond district sales manager for Ford Division, announced that Hastings Ford of Greenville has been selected as one of the outstanding Ford dealerships in the country.

Straub said that Harry Hastings, dealership president, received the Ford Distinguished Achievement Award at a luncheon Thursday in Richmond. The award, a National honor presented by Ford Division of Ford Marketing Corp., is designed to honor dealers who have consistently maintained superior facilities, customer service and salesmanship, Straub reported.

FURNITURE MARKET

Several Greenville furniture dealers registered at the Southern Furniture Exposition Building in High Point during the week while attending the Southern Furniture Market which lasted through Friday.

Registering were Billy Laughinghouse and Jesse R. Laughinghouse of Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co.; Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Carroll of Carroll's Furniture and Appliance; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Davenport, Home Furniture Co.; and Kenneth W. Brown, Ken's Furniture Co.

FIRST QUARTER RECORD

An all-time first quarter record in sales by Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee was set during the first three months of 1972, the company announced.

Total sales of $606 million were 16.6 per cent higher than in the comparable quarter of 1971, it was reported. The 1972 figure includes $226 million in March, a record high for March sales and the second highest sales for any month in NML history.

ANNUAL CONVENTION

Mr. and Mrs. John Causey of John's Flowers have returned from attending the 52nd annual North Carolina Florist Association Convention and design school in Asheville April 22-24.

During the convention, Causey was elected state association representative for the Southeastern Florist Association which covers the 11 southeastern states.

CERTIFIED FOR MEMBERSHIP

Max R. Joyner, C.L.U. of Greenville, regional agency manager with Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., has been certified for membership in the 1972 Million Dollar Round Table, the life insurance industry's international organization of million-dollar-a-year sales producers.

Membership in the association is limited to members of the National Association of Life Underwriters, on its foreign counterpart, who sell at least one million dollars of new life insurance each year.

Joyner has been in the life insurance profession with Jefferson Standard since 1956, and is an associate of the company's Goldsboro regional agency. He holds the Chartered Life Underwriter designation conferred by the American College of Life Underwriters.

Do you understand the power of the lever?

Western Auto does, and uses it every day to help create successful merchants all across America

Western Auto can help you lever a modest start-up investment into a substantial business operation.

Many of today's successful Western Auto dealers started with an actual cash investment of no more (perhaps less!) than you may be able to raise. Western Auto showed them how to multiply it.

Sixty years of experience

The Western Auto Associate Store Plan is time-tested. Nearly 4,000 owners find it the key to financial security, a better way of life. Western Auto is one of the nation's most successful retail operations—not part of the current franchise "boom".

No franchise fee with Western Auto.

With the Western Auto plan there are no franchise, advertising or royalty fees. Your total investment goes into your store. Western Auto makes its profit from your purchases and your long-term success. Western Auto wants to build you, not drain you.

No retail experience necessary.

This plan enables you — without a single day's experience in retailing — to apply ambition and a willingness to work . . . and succeed! This plan — and Western Auto people — help you every step of the way. From the beginning, you'll be independent — yet never alone.

Already a retailer?

Many of our current dealers have found converting to a Western Auto Associate Store an immediate answer to their growth and profit goals.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 30, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until shortly after midday most people are likely to be too abrupt and critical in their comments to others, but later extremely good aspects are in effect for making changes, gaining information of importance and traveling or arranging a future change of location. State your mind directly tonight.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You had better wait until after lunch when you get right facts and figures concerning the matter you have to decide about that is important to you. Investigate new outlets, but don't just jump into them now. Avoid risks.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Morning finds you having to take care of some irksome duty, but then you can still get out to places and see people you enjoy. Keeping promises made to others is most important in p.m. Clear the slate for a happy week ahead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you have long conversations with associates during spare time today, you find you come to a perfect understanding. Plan some time for that public work you have assumed. Show you are most capable at it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) It may be necessary for you to work today even though it is Sunday, so get at it willingly, then show bigwigs appreciation. Go over your wardrobe and see where it needs replenishing and refurbishing. Plan it now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You may have worries in the a.m., but they soon disappear through right activity. Then you can enjoy the company of congenials. You have some creative work to do that you like. Get at it in the afternoon.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take more interest in your home and family today and establish more harmony and comfort there. Know what is of greatest importance to you and concentrate your efforts on that, also. The future can be as bright as you can visualize it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Begin the day properly by attending services you like and become spiritually strengthened. You want to enjoy the company of others and the evening is the best time for that. Avoid one who has an axe to grind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Enlarge your thinking to include greater things so you can have increased prosperity in the right way. You can get advice from an expert in your field of work who can be most helpful. Avoid one who argues too much.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The morning starts with some difficulties cropping up, but as the day progresses all becomes much more favorable for you. Dress well and be off to some social affair where you can make big headway, meet interesting people.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Investigate the true principles under which you want to operate in the days ahead, which will make your life brighter and more prosperous. Get advice secretly from experts you trust. Follow through on it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A perfect day for you to exercise that sociable side of your nature you enjoy so much. Benefit will come from this. You can easily realize some very important aim. Avoid any situation that looks difficult.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put some effort into the philosophical and charitable aims you have and get right results now. A higher-up will give you all the information you need if you ask for it. Start using the right tools and all is well.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young people with a fine mind and good physical health, so be sure to give an adequate education stressing both the sciences and manual dexterity. then the finest talents can be put to work in a most practical way. Spiritual learning is also necessary for best results.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MAY 1, 1972

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: After an early start today you are able to put some of your special talents into the work facing you. Later a number of changes are imminent which require that you handle all factors in a tactful manner, otherwise you face a separation or estrangement that would be a regrettable loss.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You get a helpful suggestion from an associate in the morning but later in the day you worry about whether you are following the right philosophy. Permit others to express their opinions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Being prompt about paying a debt keeps everything on even keel now. Although mate's ideas are different from your own, they are acceptable. However, maintain your own ideas and opinions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show ingenuity so that you do not reach an impasse with associates. Being too demanding could cause a rift at this time. Go out with mate tonight and have a delightful time together.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Start on all that work ahead of you instead of trying to throw it off on the shoulders of others. Show that you are sure of yourself. Build up your energy tonight via rest.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Strive for more goodwill from others in the morning but be sure you are not extravagant in any way later in the day. Let pleasures be inexpensive. Encourage others through kindness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid subjects at home that could lead to an argument, which is best avoided at this particular time. Courtesy extended to all is your best approach. Try to improve present income.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are likely to be blunt today; if it's constructive criticism all is fine. Don't take any risks in travel. The evening is best spent at home with family. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take care of important bills, and then find a way to add to present assets. Do not follow your intuition early but later in the day it is working well. Avoid one who gossips.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Let there be a good reason for entertaining, otherwise forget it. Don't ask for favors point-blank. Improve your health through exercise and diet. Show that you are capable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't do anything that will make others think less of you. Also, be sure to get your credit improved. Show others that you are thoughtful of them. Think logically.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't criticize a good pal who does not do things the way you like. Study his or her methods and see if they are not superior. Show loyalty to friends. Stop wasting time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) It's an ideal day to see good friends but be sure you don't argue with them. Group affairs are not particularly good now, so forget them. Being objective is your best bet at this time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those quick-thinking young people who must be taught early not to criticize others. Teach to discriminate where friendships are concerned so that little time is wasted with slow prodders and success is assured.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

First Mondays Are Trade Days

SCOTTSBORO, Ala. (UPI)— This small north Alabama town still clings to one of the nation's oldest traditions.

On the first Monday of each month, the locals stage a century-old trade day. Persons from throughout the area descend on the town to swap and sell such things as coon dogs, antiques and outright junk.

which is concurrent with the school year.

Students from seven eastern North Carolina high schools are enrolled in the program, including Ayden-Grifton, Bear Grass, D. H. Conley, J. H. Rose, Kinston, Tarboro and Washington high schools.

Next year, the NSF grant will provide for the enrollment of students from a wider radius around ECU, so in a very real sense, the program is expanding.

Dr. Pignani expressed agreement with a widely-held view of modern educators when he noted that the ECU pre-college math program is one of an unfortunately small number of special provisions for the exceptionally bright students.

"The fact that special education is needed for pupils with learning deficiencies has been generally recognized," he said.

"But we need to make allowances also for the superior student, who is no less deserving of the best learning opportunites possible."

Names and high schools of students presently in the ECU pre-college mathematics program include:

Ayden-Grifton — Lloyd Allen Butler, Jr., Michael Ivan Phillips, Charles Luther Westbrook, and Michael Ray Worthington.

Bear Grass — Carolyn Gray Hodges, Russell Darrell Roberson Jr., Vann Rhodes Rogerson and Steve Alan Taylor.

D. H. Conley — Mark Hassell Smith.

J. H. Rose — William Lyle Barlow, Julia Ann Cleveland, Elizabeth Jean Hagan, David Noble Howell, and William Cardell Penny.

SPANNED WITH POWER

ARDENTINNY, Scotland (AP) — Workmen have completed Scotland's longest span of overhead electric power line, stretching 4,574 feet across Loch Long in Argyllshire. Towers holding the cables have been built to withstand winds of up to 145 miles an hour.

San Francisco Grandma A Whiz At Pool Table

By THOMAS C. MILLER

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Dorothy Wise is no "Minnesota Fats" but, as they might say in River City, the lady wields a mean stick.

Mrs. Wise, a 57-year-old grandmother whose glasses slip down on her nose when she's concentrating on a tough shot, is the best woman pool player in the country.

She is the current and only U.S. Women's Open pocket billiards champion ever, winning every national tournament since the women's division was created in 1967 by the Billiard Congress of America.

"But pool is just a slang word for billiards," Mrs. Wise said. "It's the same thing."

Call Shot

Her game is Call Shot, in which a player scores points by hitting balls in specified pockets and continues to shoot each time a ball is pocketed. The object of the game is to score 75 points (150 in men's competition) before your opponent does.

Mrs. Wise, who also travels around the country giving demonstrations and exhibitions as a representative for Spalding Sporting Goods, holds the women's record in tournament play for high run (successive shots) with 40. Her highest run is an 82, which wasn't scored in match play.

Last August in Chicago when she won her fifth straight national women's title, Mrs. Wise carried home $1,000 in first prize money and $100 for high run in the tournament. Since the national competition began she has lost only one match in the double elimination tournaments.

Now that her qualifications have been established, the question becomes: How did a nice lady like her get into a billiard parlor?

Man Better

"I've been playing for 28 years," she said. "I started when my husband opened a family billiard parlor in 1943 in Green Bay, Wis. during World War II he needed help, so I worked in the parlor and started playing."

Mrs. Wise admits that men are better pool players, but said there was no reason why women could not be competitive.

"The men are obviously ahead in the game," she said. "It's just because they have dominated it for so long. But there's no reason why women can't play this game. There's no strength involved. It's a game of concentration, light touch and strategy."

Men became better players, Mrs. Wise said, because pool halls had a bad reputation in the past and were forbidden to women.

Shady Image

"During the 1920's, I think it just got into the wrong hands," she said. "and billiard parlors were used to hide gambling and bootlegging operations. And it just became a place where women didn't go."

Before the pool halls gave the game a shady image, she said, billiards was a game for the elite.

"We don't really know the game's origin. It's so old that it's lost in antiquity," she said. "Shakespeare makes a reference to billiards in Anthony and Cleopatra, but they say it was only a figment of his imagination because no one has found any evidence of the game being played in those times."

It is known, she said, that Louis XIV played billiards in France because his physician prescribed the game as a form of mild exercise.

Six Basics

Arranging billiards tournaments for women is difficult. Some of the top women players, like Geraldine Titcomb of Cincinnati, are housewives who can make only one or two trips a year.

Many of Mrs. Wise's demonstrations are at department stores, where she begins by explaining the game and discussing the six fundamentals: stance, grip, bridge hand, where the cut ball is hit, speed and force, and angle.

Then she demonstrates a number of trick shots, which include pocketing as many as six balls on one shot. Perhaps the most impressive shot is one in which she places the cue ball on the chalk on the table ledge, hits it through the triangle-shaped rack in a hoop-like fashion, and pockets two at the far end of the table.

Fierce Competition

Even after the demonstration when she invites competition, she has plenty of suckers, mostly male, who think they can beat a nice little lady.

They find the lady to be a fierce competitor.

But Mrs. Wise met her match when she played the legendary Willie Moscone.

"When you can't squeeze into a size 12 anymore... When you're too embarrassed to go out... Weight Watchers® can help."

The first time you walk into a Weight Watchers meeting you'll know something special is happening. You'll hear it in the encouragement and understanding of the lecturer. (After all, every Weight Watchers lecturer went through exactly what you're going through now.)

You'll immediately sense the warmth and friendliness of the people around you—a feeling of common purpose. (Imagine! All those people are rooting for you!)

Then more good things happen. You'll discover a wonderful variety of good foods you can eat and still lose weight. 3 full meals a day. Snacks anytime.

You'll probably eat better than you've ever eaten in your whole life!

That's because you'll learn how to re-educate your eating habits. Sure, you'll be tempted to stray. Everybody is. That's why a Weight Watchers lecturer is there to help you every step of the way. And you'll look forward to those weekly meetings. You'll want everyone to know about your progress. (Why not show off? You should be proud.)

Then the excitement starts to build. People begin to look at you differently. Before you know it, you've reached your goal weight. And now the whole world looks different. Because you're different.

And here's the best part. You can now go on to the Weight Watchers Maintenance Plan.

Think of it. You can now have foods like french fried potatoes, Italian bread, spaghetti—and still keep your weight down!

But the first step is up to you. You could take it this very minute. You could be on your way to your first Weight Watchers meeting this week. Even tonight. What's holding you back?

There are some important differences between the other candidates and Pat Taylor.

The difference between just talking . . . and talking sense.

The difference between a few months of easy campaign promises . . . and 17 years of experience and hard work.

The difference between getting headlines . . . and getting results.

The difference between just wanting to be governor . . . and knowing how to be governor.

Those differences can be important to North Carolina during the next four years.

Think about it. Experience . . . integrity . . . ability. It all adds up.

Spring Brings Back The Coastal Lovers

. . . companions enjoy the warm sun and cool ocean breezes of April.

. . . before the arrival of swimmers, surfers and fishermen, these birds have the undisturbed sandy stretches to themselves.

Every year when spring arrives, the lure of water combined with the new warmth of sun and the smell of salt brings forth the first trickle of devotees of the sand and water of coastal North Carolina.

As seen by the photographs on this page, when April comes, it brings its quota of fishermen, strollers – both human and feathered, and those who love to sail the waters of North Carolina rivers and bays.

Hutchins 'High Priest' Of Intellectual Haven

By JACK V. FOX

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI)—You take the Milpas exit off the Pacific Coast Highway and then follow twisting turns up a hill until you come upon Eucalyptus Hill Road and a gate with a tiny sign that reads "Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions."

This is the lair of Robert Hutchins, 73, the 6-foot-2 patrician who for 20 years as head of the University of Chicago stuck pins into the pomposity of the higher education "establishment" and now is a sort of high priest of an intellectual haven unique in all the world.

The setting is unique, too—a once magnificent mansion, now going somewhat to seed, formerly owned by one of the Cluett Peabody textile family and set back in a miniature forest.

Gathered around Hutchins here are a clan of eight Senior Fellows, four Visiting Fellows who spend about a year, and 16 Associate Fellows who come and go, among them Neal Jacoby, whom President Nixon named to head his wage-price program.

Their responsibility is to think. Think big. Think general. Think far ahead. Think about anything under the sun. Then sit down around a big oval table arrangement and talk, talk, talk, while a tape recorder takes it all down for transcription.

At least that's what it seems like to a first time visitor who finds it hard to grasp what it's all about. What is it they do? What is it they achieve? Where are they heading? What is their purpose?

When the center was established 13 years ago with a grant from the Fund for the Republic, the mandate was to "clarify the basic issues and widen the circles of discussion around them."

With a guideline like that it is small wonder that the function of the center is difficult to define and in fact the Fellows recently called on Jacoby "as an outsider about to become an insider" to take a shot at it.

"They (the Fellows) were clear about what it should not be," Jacoby wrote. "It should be free of the departmental specialization, teaching and public service burdens of the American university. It should avoid highly structured problem solving activities of think tanks like Rand or Arthur D. Little.

"On the other hand, it should be more than a collection of eminent individuals like the Institute for Advanced Study. It should not attempt to deal with a large number of immediate or burning issues of public policy as does the Brookings Institution. (In fact, the center does not discuss such contemporary matters as Nixon's trips to China and Moscow, the tragedy in Ulster, the Mideast conflict.)

"Nor should it engage in basic data gathering and processing studies, such as those carried on by the National Bureau of Economic Research."

Visiting the center recently, this reporter was startled to come upon—of all people—Hugh Downs, who as straight man for Johnny Carson, emcee of the quiz program "Concentration" and host of the "Today" show, probably has spent more time before a television camera than any man in the world.

Downs was spending just a month at the center as a Visiting Fellow and had contributed a paper on "Communication." Here was a man who might explain what it was all about.

Downs was high in his praise of Hutchins as one of the greatest educators the country has produced and of the center as a unique organization with no strings to curtail its independence.

"I think you might call it an Early Warning System in the field of man's perception," Downs said. "These people were talking about pollution, the environment, consumerism 10 years ago."

Makers Of Wine Come Out In Open

By STEVE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Wine-making, once considered a job for little old men with grape-stained feet working in dark cellars, is now coming out into the open in Indiana.

Speciality stores selling wine- and beer-making equipment have sprouted throughout the state.

Even in a somewhat unlikely wine-making center such as the Sears Roebuck store in Terre Haute, a clerk says, "We've been having to restock the counter three times a day" with low-priced kits for the first-time wine-maker.

It's "mostly the middle age group in the 30s and 40s and also young people," who are buying most of the kits, says Roxy Roenick, 20, a clerk at the suburban Glendale store of L.S. Ayers & Co. in Indianapolis. She says over 300 of the kits have been sold in her section of the store in recent weeks.

The demand to ferment your own wines has resulted in a new franchise business in the state—Wine-Arts stores. Within the last year, stores have opened in Anderson, Evansville, Indianapolis, Griffith and Mishawaka.

"We are the supplier of everything for the home wine makers," boasts Bob Higgins, 27, a former industrial enginee who now runs the Wine-Arts store in Mishawaka.

"I've been making wine for quite a while; I started fooling around with it in high school," he admits. Back in those bad old days, just three or four years ago, home wine-making was an ordeal, because the proper equipment and supplies were hard to get, he says.

Those dark days are now past, Higgins claims from his shop that stocks everything from imported grape concentrates to bottle corking devices.

"Some are doing it for fun and some for economy. And there is quite a bit of economy in it if you enjoy doing it," says Higgins.

Good wines cost less than $1 a bottle "including the cork" when you do it yourself. Beer is brewed for less than 10 cents a bottle, once you have the basic equipment, he says.

However, most persons appear less interested in saving money than in having a hobby to take up a few spare hours, claims Saul Cye, operator of the Wine-Arts store in Indianapolis.

Homemade wine and beer-making is also producing a lot of homemade criminals.

Federal law allows the "head of the household" to make 200 gallons of wine a year. But, apparently, if a wife wants to start her own gallon of blackberries fermenting, she would be breaking the law.

Enforcing such laws is not too efficient, to say the least, Internal Revenue Service officials point out.

Beer-making is strictly against the law for anyone but authorized breweries, government officials add. But the fellow with a few gallons of homemade brew isn't likely to face arrest, officials admit. At least the law doesn't seem to be hurting the sales of malt, yeast and the other products for beer-making sold by the specialty stores.

Primary Election May 6, 1972

Chairman of Pitt County Board of Elections

Chosen For 1972 Session

FARMVILLE—Joseph Dock Joyner of Farmville Central High School has been named to attend the 1972 Governor's School of North Carolina session.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Joyner of Farmville, Joyner will study in the area of

JOSEPH D. JOYNER

English.

He is a member of the Student Council Association at Farmville Central and a member of the math club, Fellowship of Christian Athletes and the Natioal Honor Society.

He serves as secretary of the Key Club and is a member of the football and wrestling teams at the school.

Joyner, president of the United Methodist Church Fellowship at the Farmville United Methodist Church, is also a member of the church choir.

He is president of Explorer Post No. 25, an Eagle Scout, and was a representative of the seventh national jamboree in Idaho, Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico, and the 13th World Jamboree in Japan.

He plans to attend either the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill or North Carolina State University at Raleigh where he will major in math or political science.

New Museum Opening Set

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI)—The first major museum of natural history to be constructed in the nation since 1900 will open to the public May 13 in Greenville, near here.

The multi-million-dollar institution, conceived by John E. du Pont in 1957, houses the largest egg collection in the world, totaling 100,000 sets. The museum is a repository for eggs accumulated from older collections through the world. It also features collections of rare sea shells, birds and mammals.

Other activities sponsored by the museum include research, the publication of three scientific journals and an educational program.

Du Pont, a 33-year-old ornithologist who is director of the museum, said it was founded to preserve and record scientific samplings of various organisms. He has been an avid collector of birds and shells ever since his sophomore year at prep school and frequently makes expeditions throughout the world in search of specimens. He is the author of books on birds and shells and has published many scientific papers.

The museum's research collection comprises 1 million seashells, the most extensive collection of its kind, and 40,000 specimens of birds, including many extinct and vanishing species, besides the egg collection.

RIDE A DAIDARASAURUS

OSAKA, Japan (UPI)—Expoland, the amusement park attached to Expo '70, has been reopened as a permanent recreation park for children. Expoland rides include the daidarasaurus (Japanese for giant dinosaur), and a roller coaster in which five trains run simultaneously along five different tracks at speeds between 25 and 50 miles per hour.

Mich. School Has 9 Pupils

COPPER HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — "I used to dream about teaching in a one-room schoolhouse when I was a kid," says R. Douglas Livingston, "but I'd given it up by the time I started college because I knew there weren't any more of them."

But the 25-year-old bachelor now is the total teaching task force for the Grant Township School District—enrollment nine. After two years at Copper Harbor, he says, "I really love it here, but ... at times I start going buggy.

"I don't like to think how much of my salary goes for long-distance phone calls. That's my main avocation, direct dialing. It's how I made it through my first winter here."

The winter population of Copper Harbor is "about 27" but in the summer "with tourists and people with summer homes, the population jumps to near 200."

The community nestles along Lake Superior's shoreline—about as far north as you can go in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Copper Harbor has a sister school—also one room and nine students—in Kagana Ken, Japan.

Livingston, a Wheaton College graduate, said he wasn't prepared for a one-room school by his college courses, so he uses Mrs. Virginia Hogue, a family friend teaching misssionary children in Japan, as an advisor.

"She and I write each other and exchange ideas about what works and what doesn't. The students trade tape cassettes. And, her classroom breaks down pretty much the way mine does."

This year's enrollment at Copper Harbor totals one girl in kindergarten, two in the first grade, one working in both second and third grades, two girls and the school's only boy in the fourth grade and two more girls in the fifth.

The Cincinnati native heard about the Copper Harbor job "from a friend of a friend of a friend" in college. "I jumped at the chance. The first time I saw Copper Harbor, I felt like I'd come home. I really love it here. The country out here is so silent and beautiful, rich with nature."

But, he adds, scenery isn't everything. "My social life can get to be a drag. I'm a city person, and I miss it at times."

His nine students come from four families, and three of their parents are on the school board. "It's awkward at times."

However, there are advantages.

"I can give the kids a great deal of personal attention, spot problems before they have a chance to develop and make them work them out rather than letting them cop-out. You can't hide here."

After Copper Harbor, most students go to high school in Calumet.

Earthworm Count Down

CHICAGO (UPI) —They may not be exactly an endangered species, but there aren't as many earthworms as there used to be.

Earthworms, also known as night crawlers, are native to many parts of the world, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, and sometimes they are found in fantastic abundance.

But lately native species have been disappearing in such widely scattered regions as South America, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Urbanization of farm land in the United States also has decreased their territory.

In abundance, they are often considered pests and are exterminated. The earthworm population of a single acre of a cultivated field has been calculated at between 13,000 and 500,000. In one English meadow 3 million were estimated to be living on a single acre. Possibly 7 million per acre live on fields in Switzerland and the Netherlands.

These prominent members of the world's underground possibly are among earth's fittest candidates for survival. They have been found in apparent good health in mud 180 feet below the surface of lakes, in the eaves of buildings, among rocks and even in trees.

Says Schools To Face Accounting

NEW YORK (UPI)—Within the next 10 years there may well be a nationwide accounting process or institution to assess the successes or failures of the nation's schools, Sidney P. Marland Jr. predicts in "Teachers College Record," journal of Teachers College, Columbia University.

Marland, U.S. commissioner of education, indicated that the accounting agency would evaluate both the structure and content of the educational process and address itself to some of the most pressing problems in education, reporting its findings for public scrutiny.

Fireplaces Need Spring Cleaning

NEW YORK (UPI) — At spring cleaning time give fireplace brick and hearth a good scrubbing with thick suds applied with a stiff brush. Rinse and let dry. Take the screen and fireplace tools outside for a thorough cleaning. Use a scrub brush and plenty of lather for them. Rinse with a hose or dip tools in a pail of water.

And then, just to let everyone know you're celebrating spring, place an arrangement of spring flowers on the hearth in front of the fireplace, replacing the log grate.

Agriculture Counts

Senator Jordan introduced and led the fight for acreage-poundage legislation which is hailed as having saved the tobacco program; he was the leading figure in passage of the law which established the one-price cotton system benefiting cotton growers as well as the cotton textile industry; and he pushed through legislation improving seed quality, peanut marketing, and tightening the Wholesome Meat Act, all benefitting the ultimate consumer as well as those directly concerned. He works closely with producers of tobacco, cotton, peanuts, yams, soybeans, Irish potatoes, and other crops, as well as with all the state's vigorous farmers' organizations in helping develop sound federal legislation without which there would be chaos in the farm economy.

Spacious Colonial Offers Charm

By GERRY BISHOP

The Prestwick is a spacious two-story that captures the charm of old Williamsburg.

Designed by Associated House Plans, this handsome colonial's authentic lines are reminiscent of the graceful homes built two centuries ago in the one-time Virginia capital.

A steep roof builds character; five dormers lend distinction. Done in stone with a slate roof, this would be a very impressive residence.

The main entrance is slightly elevated (three steps). It opens into a centrally located foyer that is an excellent starting place for the traffic pattern. There's a coat closet and a storage closet on the left and a full bath that serves as a powder room straight ahead.

Altogether, the Prestwick has four bedrooms, three baths, a family room and living room — each with a fireplace — dining room, kitchen and foyer. An alternate plan provides a fifth bedroom.

There's also an option on the type of foundation. It could be basement or crawl space. If a cellar were built, part of it could be used for an integrated garage.

The large living room — approximately 19 feet by 13 feet — has a corner fireplace. Isolated from the main stream of traffic, the living room would be ideal for entertaining. The privacy is magnificent.

The family room, which is slightly larger than the living room with dimensions of 22 feet by 13 feet, also has a corner fireplace. The family room is connected to a rear patio.

The dining room, which has a frontal location between the foyer and kitchen, is 11 feet by 13 feet.

In the kitchen, appliances and cabinets are arranged in an L, leaving space for a table. The double sink is under a window over-looking the side yard.

Also on the first floor is a guest bedroom which is approximately 13 feet square. It has twin closets and is adjacent to the bath. It has space for a washer, dryer and linen closet.

On the second floor the master bedroom — 12 feet by 18 feet — has a private bath and walk-in closet. Each of the other bedrooms has a large closet and is just a step away from the third bath.

An alternate plan adds a fourth bedroom to the second level.

FIRST FLOOR	1434 SQ. FT.
SECOND FLOOR	1037 SQ. FT.
TOTAL	2471 SQ. FT.
ALT. SEC'D FLOOR	1206 SQ. FT.
ALT. TOTAL	2640 SQ. FT.

THE WILLIAMSBURG TOUCH — The Prestwick, designed by Associated House Plans, is a large two-story colonial with two fireplaces, one in the living room and another in the family room, a foyer, dining room, kitchen, bath and guest bedroom on the first level. One plan provides three bedrooms and two baths on the second level. An alternate plan adds another bedroom. Foundation options are basement or crawl space.

Condominiums gain new adherents every day among both builders and buyers.

There are a few misconceptions about condominiums that need clarification. They are often confused with cooperatives. They are sometimes thought of only as units in apartment buildings. And they occasionally are considered a way of life without responsibilities.

Both condominiums and cooperatives have definite advantages over rentals because they enable the purchasers to take income tax deductions of taxes and interest just as with private houses.

When you buy a condominium, you get an individual mortgage for the space you occupy, whether it be an apartment, row house or even a detached house in a condominium community. When you buy a cooperative, you purchase shares in a corporation which has a mortgage for the entire project and which assesses you for a portion of it according to the size and cost of your living quarters. In both cases, maintenance costs are separate from the mortgages.

If you decide to move from a cooperative, you must sell your shares. In most cases, the agreement calls for the corporation to get first crack at buying back the shares. Because this provision originally was designed to give the corporation complete control over the selection of new occupants, some state and local laws now forbid exclusion of anyone because of race, creed or color.

If you decide to move from a condominium, you sell your residence on your own, with the new owner taking out a mortgage or, if it can be arranged legally, taking over yours and paying you the difference in cash.

Even though you have the right to sell the condominium, you should know—before you buy it—whether there are certain restrictions to this right. These restrictions are formulated by an owners' association or a similar group that draws up the regulations for the entire project.

It is not only wise but imperative to know what every regulation is. There usually are dozens of them, relating to such things as pets, garage space and the facilities on the grounds. Ignore them and you are likely to be unpleasantly surprised at some later time.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—I am thinking about buying an above-the-ground swimming pool. Can you tell me how to install it?

A.—Not in this available space. And it wouldn't do you any good anyway. There are many different kinds of above-the-ground pools, each requiring its own method of installation. Be sure the one you select includes detailed instructions and that you have a pretty good idea that you can handle the project. It's not one of those jobs you can do in a couple of hours.

Q.—There is some copper on the outside of our house. We'd like to paint it. Any special kind of paint?

A.—Ordinary house paint will do if you first give the copper a coat of metal primer.

Q.—We have sheets of fiberglass over our patio at the back of the house. They are very dull looking, having been exposed to the weather for about six years now. Is there any way of restoring the finish?

A.—First, try washing the fiberglass sheets. The dullness may be the result of dirt and grime rather than loss of the original finish. But if the washing fails to achieve the result you want, go to a dealer who sells fiberglass sheets and ask him for the special finishing material designed to restore the gloss to such panels.

Q.—I am making over one of our bedrooms into a family room and want to install plywood panels over the present walls. The present walls have paper on them, but it is tightly attached. Can I glue the panels directly to the walls or must I put up furring strips?

A.—No matter how tightly attached the paper is, it would be risky to glue the panels to it. Eventually the paper might become loose and dislodge the paneling. However, if the walls are smooth, there's no need to put up furring strips. Attach the panels to the walls by nailing through them into the studs.

The Garden Clinic

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. I will have a big garden with lots of different vegetables and want to treat the soil for nematodes. What should I use? (B. P., Tryon)

A. The only practical and legal nematicides you can use to grow many different vegetables are a mixture of dichloropropene and dichloropropane — available as Shell's DD or Dow's Vidden-D—also dichloropropene—available as Telone. Other products, such as DBCP (Nemabon, Fumazone), Mocap, and Dasanit, can be used on a limited number of crops. Use exactly as stated on the label of the container. Treat now. (Charles W. Averre, extension plant pathologist)

Q. We have a section of the yard that needs color from annuals, but it is rather shady. Are there any we can plant to be assured of blooms this summer? (Mrs. W. S., Charlotte)

A. These annuals will endure relatively heavy shade: balsam, calliopsis, cockscomb, flowering tobacco, godetia, lobelia, periwinkle, impatens (Sultana). (Henry J. Smith, extension horticulturist)

Q. Will Southern Corn Leaf Blight be a problem this year in my garden? (S. P., Salisbury)

A. Probably not. This disease became serious in 1970 when most of the corn had the "Texas male sterile" genetic makeup. Seed companies have done an outstanding job of switching back to the normal genetic makeup which makes the plants resistant. The disease was not much of a problem in 1971 unless the grower inadvertently used 1970 seed. (Charles W. Averre, extension plant pathologist)

Q. What is the best way to fertilize a pecan tree and what kind of fertilizer should I use? B. W., Wendell)

A. Use three pounds of 10-10-10 or the equivalent for each inch of the tree's diameter. To get the diameter, measure the trunk one foot above the ground. Apply half the fertilizer in January, February or early March and the rmainder when you see the catkins (male bloom). Apply the fertilizer in a one-foot band in a circle at the edge of the outside branches. If the tree is in a grass sod, you may want to punch holes about a foot deep in the sod and fill them with fertilizer. This will prevent the fertilizer from burning the sod. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

"I don't know what bothers me most — the pollution of our environment, social injustice, the drug problem, the war, our economic situation, or my lousy golf game."

The world is full of problems. Some affect us personally. Some affect all of us.

The important thing is to understand the problems and opportunities that have the greatest effect or our daily lives.

A good example is buying or building a new home.

Should you buy now or wait until interest rates drop a point or two?

What will happen to property values and building costs during the next 12 months?

Will interest rates ever fall?

These are just a few of the many questions confronting the prospective homeowner today. No one has all the answers but we at First Federal have many facts we think you'll find interesting.

We'd like to help.

We wish we could help with your lousy golf game.

Project Child's Present Interest Into The Future

Do you scold in the presence of guests when your child is showing off?

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

MOTHER'S PURPOSE, in the following story, was to help her son see himself in a new light:

Eleven-year-old Rob wants to be a drag racer. He reads automobile magazines, builds models, and continuously talks about cars. One afternoon he showed Mother a car and asked her how she liked it.

Mother: It has a sleek style that pleases. But, I've noticed something important about you, Rob.

Rob: What?

Mother: When you are interested in something, you spend time and energy on it. You even do research. You read magazines on cars and you even consult encyclopedias.

Rob: Yeah, I really love cars.

Mother: Do you know what all this is a sign of?

Rob: What?

Mother: To me, that is a sign of a scholar. The skill you are teaching yourself can be applied to any subject that may interest you in the future. People who do research are natural scholars.

Here, Mother was most helpful: She enhanced her child's self-image by projecting his present interest in hot rods toward a future setting of scholarship.

JENNIFER, 10, acted up and showed off in front of guests. Her father said: "Jennifer, that's not the real you. That's not the girl I know. My daughter is gracious and polite and never a showoff." Jennifer retired to her room and wrote Father the following note:

Dear Dad,

Your remarks were not helpful. If I said to you what you said to me, you'd feel terrible. If my behavior annoyed you, you could have said, 'Jennifer, it's annoying." I usually take your feelings into account.

Yours truly,
Jennifer

P.S. If other people knew the real you like I do, they'd be disappointed.

P.P.S. Don't take it seriously. I just wanted to show you how it feels.

This 10-year-old hit upon a psychological truth. Our true self includes many parts: light and dark, sweet and sour, cruel and compassionate. This truth was articulately stated by the famous writer Leo Tolstoy:

"Men are like rivers. Every river narrows here, is more rapid there, here slower, there broader, now clear, now cold, now warm. It is the same with men. Every man carries in himself the germs of every human quality, and sometimes one manifests itself, sometimes another and the man often becomes unlike himself, while still remaining the same man."

THE FOLLOWING incident depicts how it is possible to call a child to responsibility without insult or attack.

Mother: David, I noticed a big hole in your window.

David (13): Oh, yeah, I tried to throw a rock over the roof of the house an it didn't make it.

Mother: I regret your attempt. Windows can be repaired but that rock could have hit a person. Rocks are not for throwing where people live.

David: I am sorry, Mom.

Mother: Please take care of the repairs and the bill. I see you as a person who can take care of his responsibilities.

Mother related: "I am sure that had I threatened or insulted him, as I used to in the past, David would have become angry and would never have put himself out to earn the money to pay for the window."

JAMES, 9, siad to his mother: "I am mean. I threw a stone and hit the cat." Mother replied: "I can't accept that. I expect you to change your self-picture, the way you see yourself. I would like you to think of yourself as a person who cares for animals and for plants and for people. In our family, we care for life."

James looked at his mother in awe and answered quietly, "Yes, Mother."

Mother did her son a great service: She did not allow him to coment a negative self-image. She deliberately ignored the details of the incident, and focused on the importnat: A statement of expectation and values.

Build Boat For College Course

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — In a chilly workman's shed used for restoring old sailing vessels, a group of 10 college students saw, hammer, fit, sand and carve to make a boat. They spend a month at it, then look proudly at what they've put together.

Their work is for a course in economics, but not really. It's a lesson in what craftsmanship is all about. Increasingly this type of experimental course is being offered at a number of colleges and universities across the country.

This program is offered by Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., and it's listed under an economics heading because that's what the teacher who dreamed it up teaches most of the year.

The students are 10 young men and women on a one-month break their college has set aside for this type of experimental course—designed to foster individual expression, creativity, or some other kind of experience they wouldn't get in Economics 101.

Other colleges, such as Yale, take a different approach, but the idea is the same. At Yale, students pick from a range of student-initiated "hall seminars" to fill out their schedules during the regular academic semester.

The subjects can range from film-making to advanced studies in science or political science, depending on what the students and their teachers agree on.

The setting for the Williams course—one of several in which students travel from their campus—is Mystic Seaport, an outdoor museum of sailing history that features replicas of 18th century buildings standing alongside well-preserved examples of old sailing ships.

So what, you might ask, could you learn in that chilly shed?

The course's main teacher, a boatbuilder from Maine named John Gardner (his more formal title at the seaport is assistant curator of small craft studies), says "this type of cross plank goes back to the Middle Ages. It goes back to Breughel ... boats like this were used in the Newfoundland fishery."

The gunwales, mast step and stern transom are made of yellow pin. Another part is made from the roots of a tree. The boat's planking is northern white pine, its bottom Virginia cedar, its stern white oak.

All that for a 13½-foot boat that could carry one sail and a couple of pairs of oars. Except that it's put together by hand, and the skill used to build it gives it both its beauty and seaworthiness.

The students live for the month on one of the sailing ships, the Joseph Conrad.

Quest Of Apollo 17 Should Be Most Exciting Of All

By BEN FUNK
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo flies only once more, before we leave the moon to the solitude of the ages. But Apollo 17 will be the big one, the most exciting of them all.

Armed with a new generation of instruments designed especially for the moon, Apollo 17 above all others will cross unknown frontiers, attempting to answer questions man has asked all through recorded history:

—Are gravitational waves, pounding across oceans of space from an early epoch of the universe, telling us when time began?

—Is the moon slowly fashioning an atmosphere and interacting with the solar winds to create the building blocks of future life?

—Under the bedrock of the frozen lunar interior, are there layers of ice that man can tap to make air and water for permanent bases on the moon?

"We'll have many, many answers" says Dr. Rocco Petrone, Apollo program director. "Not the final answers, no. But a far better understanding of it all."

Apollo 17, with astronauts Eugene Cernan, Ronald Evans and Dr. Harrison Schmitt aboard, departs for the moon Dec. 6.

This time, the target is Taurus-Littrow, a region of light-colored, steep-sided mountains and dark valleys that may be filled with explosion-produced volcanic ash. Flying over it, Apollo 15 command pilot Al Worden said he saw cinder cones, indicating the presence of volatiles, material that tends to erupt into violent action. Here, rocks may be found that were disgorged from deep within the moon.

But rocks take a back seat on this mission. The experiment that rouses scientists most is one called a surface gravimeter. On the quiet moon, it will detect waves of gravity that may have come across eons of time from the birthplace of the universe.

The existence of such waves was predicted in Einstein's theory of relativity.

Dr. Joseph Weber, a University of Maryland physicist, has devised an instrument to operate on the moon where the slightest wave through an atmosphere 1,000 times more quiet than the earth will trigger a signal.

Life never evolved on the moon because there was no atmosphere and no water. But acid treatment of moon rocks has converted simple organic compounds into amino acids, the building blocks of life.

With another new surface instrument called a mass spectrometer, Apollo 17 will explore the possibility of the moon coming alive in the future.

The device not only will measure the thin, tenuous atmosphere of the moon but identify its individual components. It may determine that the solar winds implant atoms of hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen and carbon in the lunar soil.

"At night, with cooling and shrinking, we think there are gases being vented by the moon and moving across the surface," Petrone said. "They can tell us if we are seeing the birth of an atmosphere."

The great majority of scientists insist there is no water on the moon. But there are dissenters. Apollo 17 will seek an answer to that crucial question.

The "water experiment" is called Surface Electrical Properties. As the astronauts traverse the Taurus-Littrow area in the moon rover, the device will penetrate the surface to a depth of 5,000 feet with energy waves. Some of the rays will penetrate bedrock.

"If there is ice under the bedrock, it will be reflected and recorded on tape," Petrone said.

Despite the sophistication of the new instruments the rocks will not be forgotten. For the first time, a trained geologist will apply a lifetime of experience to the mission.

"The astronauts have been intensively trained in geology and they have done their jobs well," Petrone said. "But Harrison Schmitt is a man whose adult lifetime has been spent in studying, teaching, learning. He should cap that mission with the tremendous return."

Dr. Jefferys To Science Session

Dr. Donald B. Jefferys, associate professor in the East Carolina University Department of Biology, will attend the meeting of the Virginia Academy of Science next week.

The organization will meet May 4-5 at Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va.

Dr. Jeffreys will attend a symposium on Recycling and Solid Waste Management sponsored by the Academy's Engineering Section.

Honorary Post In Aerospace Ass'n

Dr. Douglas R. Jones, Dean, School of Education, East Carolina University, has been made an Honorary Director of the National Aerospace Education Association, Washington, D.C.

Founded in 1950, the non-profit Association has been a major factor in supporting and guiding aviation and aerospace education programs in schools throughout the nation, from elementary to college.

Membership, representing every state, is composed of U. S. government and state officials, educators, school systems administrators, and professionals in the aerospace and allied industries.

On May 6, YOU Can

"Some people think there is really little difference between the two major candidates for Governor of North Carolina. There is a difference.

I wish I could talk to you face to face, but there are just too many people for me to reach in person. Instead, I hope you will take a few minutes to read what I want you to know.

If I am the next Governor, you will see a positive change in North Carolina. We will not have just more of the same in Raleigh. With new faces and new ideas, I will bring to this state government a freshness and vitality it hasn't seen in years . . . a new spirit for getting things done.

THOMAS & HOWARD CO.

President until its sale in 1958 of the largest service wholesale grocery in the world - Thomas & Howard. Employed over 1,000 people serving 5 Southern states.

Experience has been mentioned real often as a yardstick that you, the voter, should use in measuring those of us that are running for Governor. Well, I welcome the comparison. I hope you do judge us on experience.

The next Governor of North Carolina has a tremendous job to do, making the reorganization of state government really work. The Legislature and the Governor have put together the form – the bare bones. They've made a start. But if we're going to save the $50,000,000 per year that you were promised we were going to save, we need a man with experience – the experience of running a large organization.

First Union National Bank - Board of Directors - Executive Committee - Chairman, Salary Committee. The bank grew from 29 offices and $145,000,000 in deposits to a diversified bank holding company with 156 offices and deposits of $1,128,000,000 when he resigned to run for Governor.

And I have this background. I've been the operating head of a five-state operation with over 1,000 employees. Until I resigned to run for Governor, I was on the board and executive committee of three corporations with several thousand employees. I understand employee motivation. I understand how to operate efficiently. I understand modern management techniques. During my entire life I've been very cost conscious: figuring how to get the most for the money, how to eliminate waste. I have worked since I was a very small boy. I paid my own way through Chapel Hill, and I've been working hard since then. Some people like golf, some like to read, but I like to work. And its help make me successful.

Make The Difference.

The only "Outside Director" of North Carolina's famous Luck's Beans until Lucks was merged into American Home Products.

Now let's talk about another type of experience . . . the experience of running a government agency. I mean not just the writing of legislation, but running the day to day operation. Well, I'm proud of my years as the operating head of the Department of Conservation and Development. We had 1,500 employees, and I was responsible for putting together the budget and then spending the money. The record speaks for itself. C & D moved well while I was its head.

I've had the experience too of serving in the General Assembly – both in the House and the Senate – for five years. I resigned in October, after the Special Session, in order to run for Governor. So I've had the type of experience that not only gives me understanding of and compassion for the little man – I've worked the night crew a couple of years – I've driven a truck – but I've run that big business, and I've worked in the Legislature, and I've been the head of a state agency.

On the State Capitol grounds in Raleigh - his home while full time director of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development, and later while serving 5 years in the North Carolina House and Senate.

It has been too long since a businessman was in the Governor's office . . . and our state's finances show it. We need a Governor now who can manage . . . one who knows how to administer and shape the executive branch and the individual departments within it.

I'll put my experience up against anyone's."

A great "first family"

” for North Carolina.

THE FAMILY (back row) Daughter in law Jo Lynne, daughters Holly and Martha, Jessamine, and daughter in law Crandall. (front row) Hargrove III, son-in-law John Geik, Skipper with granddaughters Kelly (4) and Amy (3), and Erskine Bowles.

"Let's look at the major difference between the candidates – our tax and budget policies.

I am opposed to new taxes. I am opposed to any increase in old taxes. These promises will be difficult to keep, but they will be kept.

We have the best tax base that North Carolina has ever had. The Governor and the 1969 Legislature put a tax on soft drinks and ciagrettes. And did you know that after the first two years we had a surplus that was double the tobacco and soft drink tax? Our surplus has averaged $137,000,000 each biennium for the last ten years. With this surplus and with good hardnosed management, we can do the job without raising taxes. Out of the thirty-nine Governors who have made their State of the State messages this year and only five of them have asked for any major increase in income, tobacco or sales taxes. These Governors are saying it just as I do. The Governor of Washington requested a constitutional limit on taxes.

So I'm far from being alone in believing that we need to think about getting the fat out of the budget instead of putting further burdens on the people. North Carolina can do it.

Look at the record in our State. Go back to the early 1930s when Governor Ehringhaus taxed everything. Then Kerr Scott put a penny tax on gasoline, but only after a vote of the people. And then we have no further increase until 1961 under Governor Sanford. And then, in 1969, Governor Scott began his tobacco and soft drink tax. If you take the eleven Governors from Ehringhaus to Bob Scott, only three added substantial General Fund taxes. Governor Moore actually reduced taxes. And don't let anyone tell you that we can't move ahead without new taxes. They did. It's been done before, and we'll do it again. We'll provide the services that we promised you, and we won't raise your taxes.

I have proposed a detailed program of spending reform:

Realization of the Full Benefits of State Government Reorganization. There will be an independent Commission on Reorganization to act as a watchdog on this program, and $30,000,000 in savings can be produced by the elimination of overlapping and duplicated services.

Establishment of a Task Force on Expenditure Management. This will provide additional expertise and attention to both these programs of budget reform and of reorganization, and at least $30,000,000 in reallocable funds can be made available by this task force.

Full Program Budgeting. This will separate and rank programs for elimination of duplication and for more effective selection of priorities. A minimum of 5% of the total budget will be made available for more essential programs – making at least $100,000,000 available.

These new approaches will produce at least $160,000,000 in existing funds that can be saved or reallocated for new and better programs. Added to the $140 million surplus our State averages every two years, we will have $300 million in the General Fund – without new or increased taxes.

One of our major problems today is the frustration and despair that so many citizens feel with their government. People are convinced that it is out of their control. If the politicians want more money, it usually means more taxes. And the people seem to have no choice but to pay.

Well, it just doesn't have to be that way.

You can do something about government spending and taxes. You can vote for the candidate in this campaign who will make a difference.

You can vote for the only candidate who has pledged no new taxes . . . who has committed himself to a spending reform program for moving North Carolina forward.

It does make a difference."

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR DR. BILLY GRAHAM

What do you think of the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar"?—L. Smith, Chicago, Ill.

● I think it borders on blasphemy and sacrilege. I object to the fact that it leaves out the Resurrection. If there is no Resurrection, there is no Christianity. But I also think that the opera asks questions millions of young people are asking, such as: "Jesus Christ, are You who they say You are?" If the production causes religious discussion and causes young people to search their Bibles, to that extent it may be beneficial. But I do not endorse the production, nor do I urge young people to see it.

FOR CHER BONO of the "Sonny and Cher" show*

On the show you said you were Indian, that Sonny's name is really Salvatore, and that he comes from a family of 11 fat Italians. Were you joking, or are these statements true?—B. B., Chatham, Va.

● I am part Cherokee Indian, as well as Armenian, Turkish and French. Sonny's real name is Salvatore Bono, but the stuff about being from a family of 11 fat Italians is just kidding. Sonny has two very nice sisters and adorable parents. Yes, they are true Italians.

FOR BILLY TAYLOR, David Frost's bandleader*

Was there ever a time when David Frost asked you to play some music and you were not prepared? – Sally Martin, Dallas, Texas

● Once, I remember, David was in the middle of an interview with Pearl Bailey and Lawrence Welk, and he asked them if there was anything they could do together. They immediately began to ad-lib "Hello, Dolly!" We didn't have anything prepared, but we played what sounded like an arrangement behind them. It really worked out quite well.

FOR SIR RUDOLF BING,
retiring general manager of the Metropolitan Opera

As you retire, what do you consider your greatest accomplishment at the Met?—Mrs. Jack Smith, Miami, Fla.

● One should not take bows for doing what is decent and right, but in all honesty I have to say I consider having broken the color barrier one of my most important contributions (I broke it twice: with dancer Janet Collins in 1952, and singer Marian Anderson in 1955).

FOR GLORIA STEINEM, women's activist*

As a Women's Lib leader, how do you feel about having children of your own?—R. L., Waco, Texas

● I don't know. I just think the reasons I always assumed I would have children were mostly bad reasons. Strangely, having had the obligation to have children removed from me, I now feel freer to like children.

FOR ROBERT SHAW, actor*

As an Englishman who has done a lot of acting in America, which country do you like best?—L. Bellow, Bangor, Maine

● I much prefer America. The fact is, I don't like England. It's a parochial, small-minded, snobby society. America is a great, big, explosive society, and I love it. Besides—the only people who've given me a decent job in the last 10 years have been Americans. When I write my books, I do that for myself—but when I act, I act for Americans.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

I notice you mostly wear dresses with jackets on your show and even at your daughter's wedding. Is there a special reason?—Mrs. Robert Himmel, Biloxi, Miss.

● Yes, there is a reason. It's the same one some gals have for preferring pants suits or miniskirts or hot pants. I think that dresses with jackets are becoming to me.

FOR CURT GOWDY, baseball commentator*

In your opinion, what is the most important trade in modern baseball?—Danny Zwirn, Tustin, Calif.

● There have been a lot of them. It would be hard to differentiate one from the other. Like many other people, I think the most significant trade in the history of baseball was the one that brought Babe Ruth from the Boston Red Sox to the New York Yankees.

FOR DEE BROWN,
author of "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee"

Has any estimate ever been made of the number of Indians that inhabited North America when the Europeans first landed here?—E. A. Wine, Stuarts Draft, Va.

● Demographers disagree in their estimates. For North America above the Rio Grande, Government sources give figures between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000. Recent studies indicate that as many as 7,000,000 Indians may have been living south of the Rio Grande when the Spaniards arrived.

FOR BOB REINER of "All in the Family"*

Did the overall reaction to "All in the Family" surprise you?—R. Downey, Portland, Maine

● People we thought would like it—the liberals—don't like it. These people are very protective of minorities. They talk about "attitudes" of the show. But I get angry when people ask about attitudes. Who cares? People are enjoying the show—a lot of people, judging from the ratings. The big thing is that Archie is living in a prison—his own—and the more prejudices he has, the more imprisoned he becomes. "All in the Family" is real, and that's what makes it work. Everybody who tunes in either knows people like this family, or is this family.

Now! Convert your rotary lawn mower into a power rake and thatcher!

POWER-RAKE RAKES, PICKS UP DEAD GRASS, LEAVES, AUTOMATICALLY!

FITS ALL ROTARY MOWERS!

- You will never again have to do back-breaking hand raking . . . never again have to burn your leaves! (Helps ease the air pollution problem!)
- Gets lawn ready for reseeding or fertilizing . . . assures you a fuller, healthier, lovelier lawn year after year!
- You save money! No more costly rentals of lawn thatchers or aerators!

Why do many lawns fail? Often because dead grass, clippings and leaves accumulate. This thatch "clogs" your lawn . . . prevents it from breathing properly . . . disturbs normal water percolation to the roots . . . encourages weeds and fungus. New POWER-RAKE instantly converts your rotary lawn mower into a power rake and thatcher. Makes thatching a cinch . . . a dream of convenience! POWER-RAKE rakes and picks up dead grass and leaves automatically! Never again will you have to endure long hours of back-breaking hand raking . . . never again will you have to burn your leaves!

Breeze Right Through Lawn Cleanup!

With our revolutionary POWER-RAKE, all you do is remove your mower blade and bolt POWER-RAKE in its place. It takes only a few minutes . . . no special tools, no special skill required. Then let your rotary mower go to it! Watch dead grass and leaves vanish. POWER-RAKE's uniquely designed heavy gauge steel blade combs through the lawn, loosening dead grass and leaves, mulching them, then power-vacuuming them into your lawn mower bag!

Now Condition Your Lawn This Quick, Easy, Economical Way!

Why waste money needlessly on expensive rentals of lawn thatchers or aerators? Now you can condition your lawn quickly and easily, with this remarkable $4.75 Power-Rake. It does the job perfectly . . . helps insure a healthier, more beautiful lawn . . . a lawn that can breathe! It's true! POWER-RAKE gives you a clean lawn in the same time it takes you to mow it! Order yours now!

QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

How High Is Your "Eye-Q"?

True or False: You can ruin your eyes by reading in poor light. (See number 4.)

Our vision determines to a very large extent how we perceive the world and the people around us. The nearsighted person, for example, who has to be close to something to see it clearly, lives in a much different visual world than the fellow with the eyes of an eagle. In this True-False quiz, we focus our sights on seeing.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Women see things quicker than men do.

2. You can't see anything when you're asleep.

3. You can't see as well when you're hungry.

4. You can ruin your eyes by reading in poor light.

5. How far you can see depends on your state of mind.

6. You can't see as well in hot weather.

7. Lack of sleep can seriously affect your vision.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies at California State Polytechnic College show that women have greater "visual dexterity" and swifter eye-focusing speed, which facilitate reading, rapid performance of paper work, quickness of perception in sizing up people and things around them. This holds true for children as well. The study showed, for example, that: Boys are not only two to three years behind girls in the development of visual dexterity, but that they are still appreciably slower than girls after they reach maturity.

2. False. Your eyes do "see," in a way. When a person is asleep and dreaming, his eyes move back and forth under the lids, following the action of the dream. Studies show that when a person dreams of a tennis match, his eyes move rapidly from side to side like a Ping-Pong ball.

3. False. You can see better when you haven't had anything to eat for a while—according to studies conducted at the University of Hawaii, where research indicates that even "a 14-hour food deprivation can significantly increase visual sensitivity." A case, it would seem, of hunger sharpening the senses as well as the appetite.

4. False. University of California studies show that reading in poor light may cause temporary fatigue of the eye muscles, but it results in no permanent damage to the eyes.

5. True. Research at Yeshiva University has shown that you can see farther when you're calm and relaxed than when you're tense and anxious. Investigators also found that nearsighted people tended to be much more tense and anxious than others; and that, in fact, nearsightedness tended to be conditioned by a person's state of mind.

6. True. Studies at the University of Aberdeen have demonstrated that your vision is impaired when the weather is hot. Investigations have also shown that you can't see as well when it's extremely cold.

7. False—according to laboratory studies which show that no matter how sleepy you get, you still can see virtually as well as when you're fresh and rested. The research, which was done on subjects with normal vision, showed that "most visual functions show no deterioration even after 38 hours lack of sleep." It was only after 46 hours of sleeplessness that there was a slight decrease in visual ability. ☐

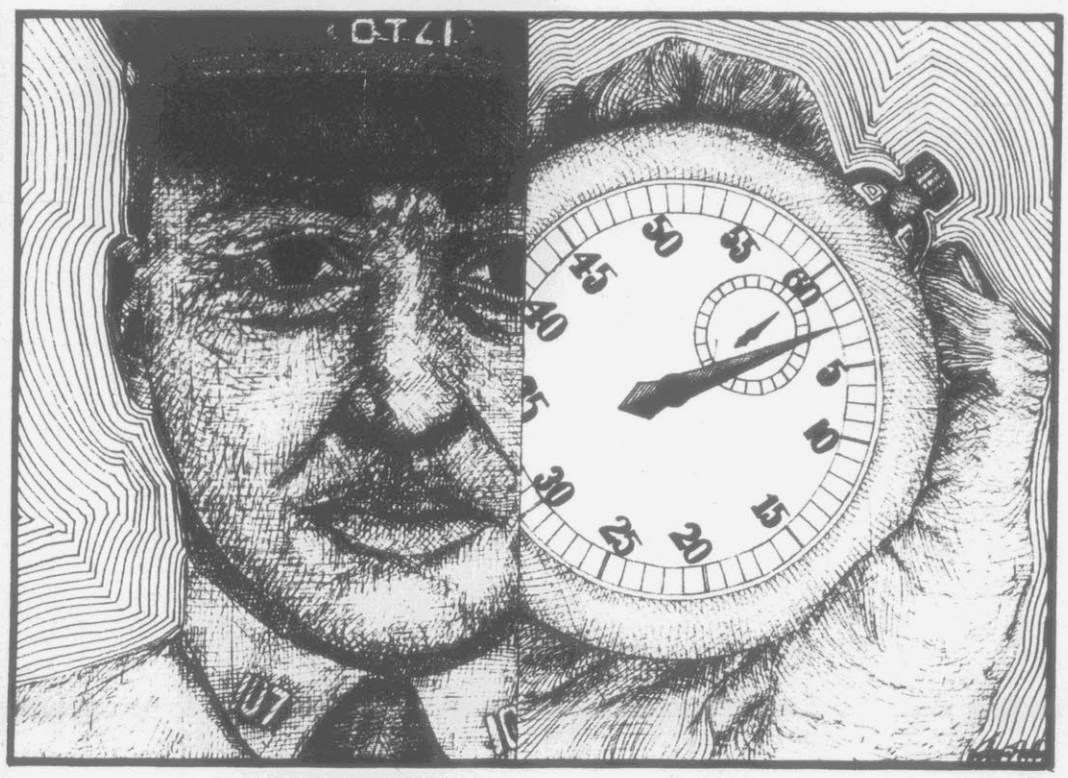
Headlines scream: "Policeman Killed in Line of Duty"... "Innocent Bystander Shot"... "Suspect Acquitted on Technicality." It's easy to criticize. But put yourself in the place of the man on the beat. How well would you score?

You Are The Policeman:



Quick Now, What Would You Do?

By William W. Blanks

To cope with the pressures and fulfill the responsibilities of the 1970's, the modern-day policeman must be a combination psychologist, medical doctor, lawyer, social worker and tactician.

As you read the following actual police cases, imagine that you are the policeman involved. Remember that you are duty-bound to act in such a way as to protect and serve the public. Keep in mind, too, that it is your life against the criminal's, and that a sudden, furtive act on his part may let him get the jump on you. Later, review officers and the courts will have hours, even days, to decide whether you made the right move. But you must make up your mind within split seconds.

Ready? Now . . . what would you do:

Case 1

● It is night in a large Western city as police units, their red lights blinking, respond to a report of a sniper firing at cars along a major freeway.

After an exhaustive search fails to turn up any sniper, the various units are ordered back to normal patrol.

A few minutes later, two officers in a patrol unit observe a man running from the direction of the freeway. He ducks down a side street.

The police unit swings down the street after the man and pulls to the curb behind him, its headlights holding him in their glare. The officer driving gets out and yells at the man to stop. He does. The officer approaches the suspect to "pat him down" for weapons. The other officer gets out and stands watching from beside the police car.

As the first officer begins to frisk him, the suspect suddenly jerks away and begins tugging an object from his right rear pocket.

You are the officer standing beside the patrol car. You have one second to act. What would you do?

In this case, what the real officer did do was yell, "Look out, he's got a gun!" and quickly fire one shot at the suspect. The bullet struck the other officer in the left hand, then entered the suspect's body. The searching officer, thinking in the confusion that the suspect had shot him, drew his own weapon and fired at the suspect, killing him.

A subsequent search of the suspect revealed that the object he had been pulling from his pocket was a wallet containing papers identifying him as a deaf-mute. The coroner's inquest went against the policeman. The verdict was accidental homicide.

Case 2

● Responding to a shots-fired call, two officers stop two men for questioning. As they approach the suspects, one of the men suddenly tries to jerk something out of his hip pocket. The officer nearest him forces the man's hand out of the pocket, and, reaching his own hand in, removes a loaded pistol.

Suppose you had been there. Would you have agreed with this officer's actions?

If so, you might have been sorry. The court held the search to be illegal because the officer did not first "pat down" the suspect.

Case 3

● The police of a large city are called upon to arrest on a murder warrant a man reportedly hiding out in a nearby apartment. Detectives are accompanied by the sister of the wanted man's girl friend, who tells of having been in the apartment with the defendant. She tells them that the man is armed, having bragged that he would shoot it out with anyone attempting to arrest him. Feeling that, under the circumstances, to identify themselves first would greatly jeopardize their safety, the police decide to break into the apartment.

If you had been one of those policemen, you might have made the same decision. Was it right or wrong?

The decision was not only wrong, it was ironic and tragic. A sergeant kicked open the door, whereupon one of the men inside made a threatening gesture toward him just as another man slammed a door with a loud bang. Thinking he'd been fired upon, the sergeant shot and killed the man before him, and, at that moment, inadvertently tripped, staggering across the room. The other officers, hearing the shots and seeing the sergeant stagger, began firing into the apartment. The occupants of the apartment, illegal aliens who spoke no English, began scrambling to get away from the gunfire. Two of them climbed onto a fire escape. On the ground below, a policeman armed with a shotgun ordered them to stop. Not understanding English, they attempted to flee. One of them was shot and killed, the other broke his leg jumping from the fire escape.

Investigation later disclosed that the murder suspect was not among the occupants of the apartment. Four of the police officers were indicted.

Case 4

● A policeman is directing traffic at a busy intersection on Christmas Eve. It is night, and the streets are clogged with traffic and crowds as people rush to finish their last-minute shopping.

A patrol sergeant stops by and advises the officer to be on the lookout for a young man in a Navy uniform, armed with a chrome-plated revolver, who, a few minutes before, held up a jewelry store four blocks up the street.

About five minutes after the sergeant leaves, a citizen summons the policeman and tells him there is a sailor with a gun in the alley behind a nearby theater.

The policeman starts into the alley, and sees the man in the Navy uniform duck into the shadows. He calls to the man to come out with his hands up. Instead, the man steps further back into the darkness. The policeman draws his own gun and approaches the suspect. As he does so, the sailor steps out with a chrome-plated revolver in his hand. Again the policeman tells him to raise his hands, but the suspect pays no attention. For a full second they are facing each other, barrel to barrel.

You are in the cop's shoes. Would you shoot?

If your answer is yes, be grateful you're not a cop. In this case, the officer, though frightened, stood his ground, and the sailor finally raised his hands. The sailor turned out to be a 17-year-old reservist returning home after a meeting at the armory. The gun was a cap pistol he'd found in the alley. Further investigation revealed he had no connection with the robbery, but was merely "fooling around" with the policeman.

The officer shuddered as he thought of the headlines: "Cop Shoots Youth on Christmas Eve." □

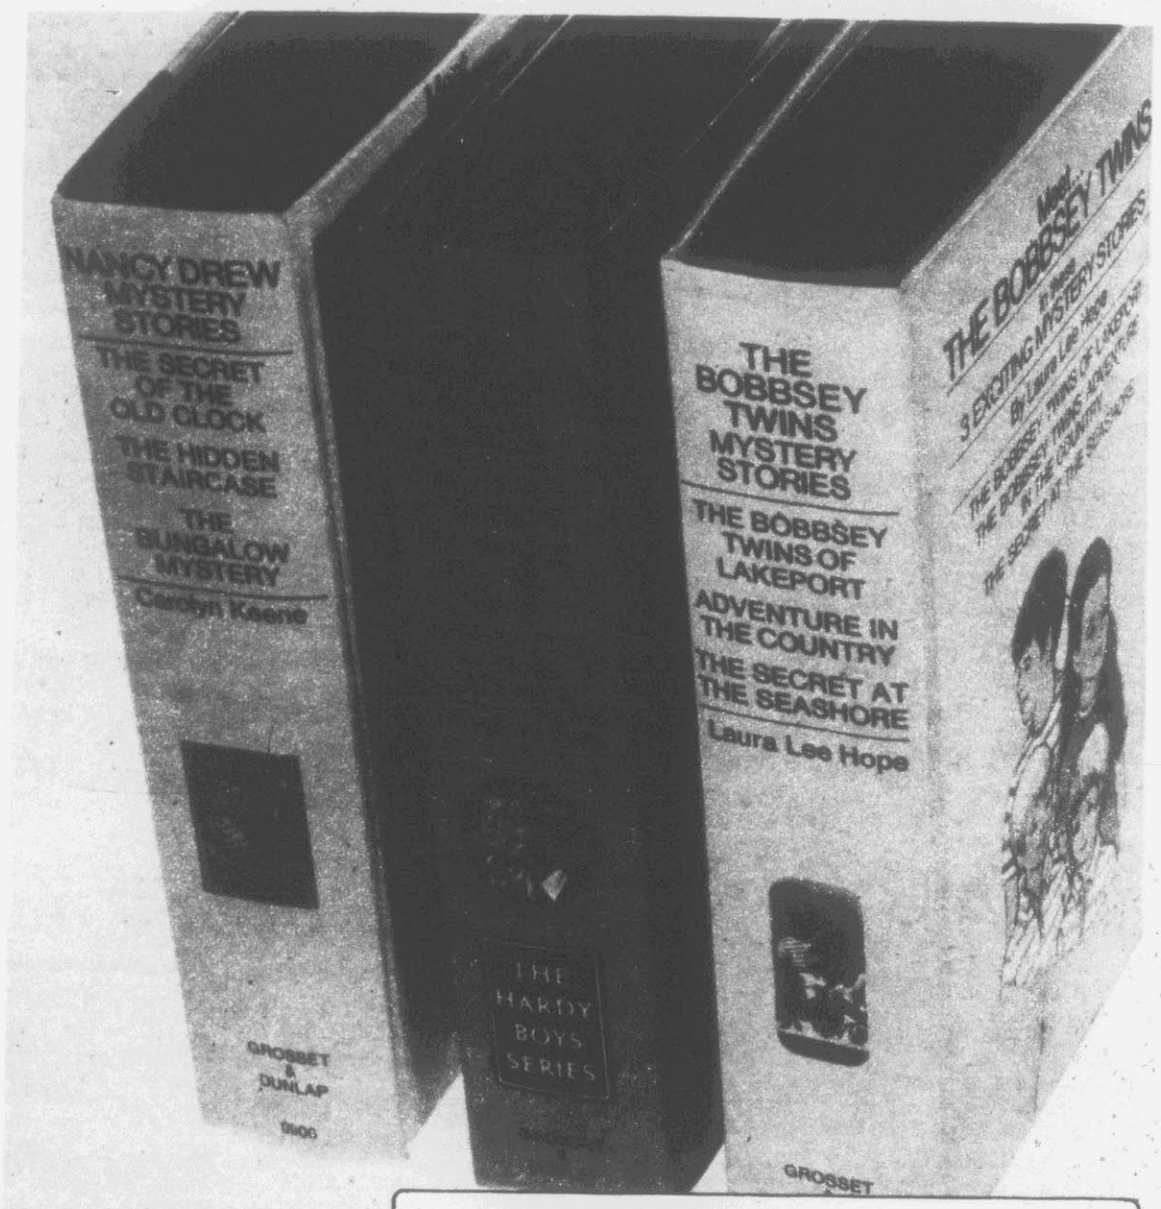
FOR PARENTS AND GRANDPARENTS

Reading Bait

for your grade-school child



Each volume here is a 3-books-in-1 "starter" volume in a best-selling series that young readers often get "hooked" on. Many of today's most successful adults first acquired their lifelong love of reading by "gobbling" a whole series of exciting stories like these.

To try this great way of encouraging your child or grandchild to read, just enter a trial subscription to any one of these series and get the 3-in-1 starter volume for $1. Then if your young reader doesn't snap up the bait and clamor for more, simply cancel your subscription. You have no obligation to buy even one more book.

If you're like millions of other parents who have children of grade-school age, you may already have a pretty good idea of how books like these can charm young readers. For chances are good that you yourself grew up with some of the youthful heroes and heroines who "star" in these volumes—Nancy Drew, the Hardy Boys, and the Bobbsey Twins . . . "more than 40 titles in each series."

If so, you know from personal experience how books like these reach out and capture young readers . . . even those who may be reluctant readers when it comes to less appealing reading fare. And you know how, once a youngster gets "hooked" on two or three stories in a series, he or she can't wait to go on and devour succeeding stories . . . very possibly acquiring in the process both increased reading skill and a love of reading that will yield lifelong benefits.

And that's to say nothing of the hours and hours of wholesome enjoyment that stories like these can provide for your boy or girl . . . something that's probably even more important today than it was in the more innocent days when you yourself were growing up. For these are the same kind of stories you remember from your own childhood—with up-to-date settings and illustrations, of course, but clean, inspiring and appealing to the best in your child.

To let you see for yourself how wonderful these stories are, and how your youngster will snap up this tempting reading bait, we make this trial offer. Just mail the coupon with $1 and we'll send you the starter volume in the series of your choice. And remember, the starter volume brings you 3 books in 1! If you were to buy these three books at retail in individual editions, you'd have to pay up to $4.50 for them!

When we send you your starter volume, we'll also enter a trial subscription for your child to the series of regular, single-volume books—but there's no obligation for you to continue with this subscription unless you wish. If your child doesn't devour the starter volume and beg for more stories in the series, just tell us so and we'll cancel your subscription with no questions asked.

Otherwise, you need do nothing and every five weeks we'll send you two regular single volumes in the series on approval, billing you just $2.95 plus 50¢ postage and handling for the pair. And you risk nothing under this arrangement. You may return any shipment you do not wish to keep within 10 days of receipt and may cancel your subscription at any time. Satisfaction guaranteed at all times!

NANCY DREW MYSTERY STORIES

The pretty teenage girl detective is featured in three thrilling tales that magnetically draw young readers from page to page, chapter to chapter, right up to the dramatic conclusions. In The Secret of the Old Clock, Nancy sets out to aid two elderly and impoverished sisters whose cousin was supposed to leave them money in his will—but who died without revealing the will's location. Her search for the will brings her into danger from a gang of furniture thieves. In The Hidden Staircase, Nancy is called upon to unravel the mystery of an apparently haunted house . . . and ends up saving her father, who has been imprisoned by an unscrupulous land promoter. In The Bungalow Mystery, Nancy discovers that her new friend Laura is being victimized for her inheritance by a clever and ruthless criminal—and is plunged into danger by her discovery.

HARDY BOYS MYSTERY STORIES

The teenage sleuths get entangled in three exciting mysteries that will keep young readers spellbound. In The Tower Treasure, a series of strange events plunge Frank and Joe into the search for an elusive criminal and the stolen treasure he has hidden near the scene of his crime. In The House on the Cliff, the brothers set out to rescue their detective father who has been captured by a smuggling gang—and end up in mortal danger themselves. In The Secret of the Old Mill, a friend of the Hardy boys becomes a victim of a counterfeit bill passer, leading the brothers into a hazardous series of adventures as they seek to track down the counterfeiters.

THE BOBBSEY TWINS ADVENTURE STORIES

The venturesome 12-year-old twins and the lively 6-year-old twins star in three captivating stories that are educational as well as entertaining for young readers. In The Bobbsey Twins of Lakeport, the twins search a spooky vacant house for heirlooms that the forgetful former owner has left behind. In The Bobbsey Twins' Adventure in the Country, the twins visit their aunt and uncle in the country and become involved in an exciting search for cattle rustlers. In The Secret at the Sea Shore, a visit to Ocean Cliff involves the twins in a manhunt for an elusive fugitive who has stolen money from an airlines shipment, and taken refuge in a nearby amusement park.

Billy Casper is best known as the two-time U.S. Open champion and winner of the 1970 Masters Tournament who has earned over $100,000 in prize money every year for the past six years. But he is also a Mormon who believes his faith gives him an "inner peace" that helps him maintain a sure touch in pressurized tournament play. An allergy-prone asthmatic, Casper is susceptible to grasses found on some golf courses and to chemical sprays. In fact, he wears an emblem identifying his medical condition for doctors in case a seizure makes it impossible for him to speak. . . . Casper passes up the lucrative endorsement deals and business opportunities that are offered to top golfers because "I prefer to give my spare time to the church." . . . He's made several world tours on behalf of the State Department and has been dubbed by President Nixon "America's Goodwill Ambassador of Golf." "The only thing I dislike about foreign travel is that it takes me away from my two families," he says. He and his wife Shirley have three of their own children, and they also adopted three infants as a "second family." Casper's allergies extend to a wide variety of foods. He sticks to a special diet that includes swordfish and bear meat.—By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

Playing It Safe
With Penicillin

Even the best of medicines sometimes cause serious reactions. Penicillin sensitivity is the classic example. The risk of reaction to drugs like penicillin is very slight. But what can a patient do to take precautions? The first time you get a certain type of drug, nothing. And nearly always nothing bad happens. But if you should get a slight rash, or a wheal (hive) at the site of injection, or have any other difficulties, make sure your doctor knows about it. He should carefully establish whether the incident is actually related to the medicine and note it in your history. Since you may move from town to town, be sure you know every drug reaction you've ever had. Be frank with doctors new to you, especially on hospital admissions. If you have had any sort of reaction to penicillin, you should probably never have it again except in life-threatening situations. On the other hand, don't jump to conclusions: Penicillin is still the most valuable antibiotic in the physician's cabinet, so don't rob yourself of its usefulness unless you have a clearly established reason to do so.—By John J. Secondi, M.D.

The Diet Watch

What's Wrong with Americans' Diets

A slim figure is healthy—but so, for heaven's sake, is a balanced diet! A University of California nutritionist recently announced that Americans annually eat 102 pounds of sugar per person—but only 18 pounds of fruit! They eat 100 pounds of white flour—but only 21 pounds of whole cereal. And they eat a fattening 53 pounds of fats like salad oil, but only 24 pounds of vegetables other than potatoes. Where do you stand? Do a little switching from the fattening fats to the slenderizing vegetables—for instance, to a low-calorie vegetable like asparagus (eight spears, twenty calories). And know your calories. Did you, for instance, ever hear of a food that is actually nutritious but hasn't any calories? There is one. It's parsley. One tablespoon has eight milligrams of calcium, seven of Vitamin C and 340 of Vitamin A—but not one calorie.—By Harriet La Barre

Jobmanship

How to Cope with The "It Won't Work"
Employee

When a subordinate challenges the supervisor's plan with "It won't work" or "We haven't the time," the supervisor's natural reaction is irritation. The difference between the effective supervisor and the one who feels confused and thwarted is attitude and control. Robert W. Dorman, an Executive Development expert writing in "Advanced Management Journal," warns that a supervisor "must pause and find words" to express his awareness of an opposing viewpoint—even if the resistance is not logical. By pausing, the supervisor suggests thoughtfulness, concern and constructive interest. "Well, I know you have given this some thought . . . ," he may say. Or, "There are certainly some difficulties and problems in this plan. . . ." The mood created by the pause and such words calms everyone's emotions. Reasoning is again possible, and the supervisor can continue to explain his ideas.—By S. R. Redford

Celebrity Soapbox

Actor GENE HACKMAN:

"Don't Believe
Everything You Read—
Or Hear!"

"Why do so many people believe everything they read or hear, jump to conclusions without knowing the facts, and accept other people's judgments instead of thinking for themselves? I've reacted this way myself. No, I know better, but I've seen things in the papers and just assumed they were true without sufficient evidence, only to learn later that I was wrong." The speaker is actor Gene Hackman, star of "The French Connection." "Recently I had a rough time when I went back to my hometown, Danville, Ill. A photograph from a picture I did in Spain had a nude man in it. It looked like me, but it wasn't me. Yet people immediately jumped to the false conclusion. I'll tell you the clincher that really taught me to make my own decisions. A few years ago I was shown a script. An agent read it and told me to forget it—that it was a lot of bull. I refused to listen to him. The picture was 'Bonnie and Clyde.' It got me an Academy Award nomination."—By William Wolf

People and You

Do You Feel
Like a Failure?

Do you often feel that you have very few good qualities, that you're not equal to others? Such feelings are often the result of having been brought up in a broken home. New discoveries show that there are four kinds of broken-home conditions during childhood that may lead to adult feelings of inferiority. They are: (1) a child whose home was broken by the death of the father; (2) a child who had to adjust to a parent's remarriage when he was older than eight; (3) a child who was older than 12 when the home was broken; and (4) a child who had to live with relatives or in an institution before the age of 16. Sociologists find that these children are the ones who are most likely to develop very poor opinions of themselves that carry through into adult life. Loving parents and relatives who are aware of this can try to praise and encourage children who face these situations, and thus help them to develop healthy self-attitudes.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

PLYMOUTH ROCK TO MOON ROCK! — ONLY $4.98

Special Price $3.98

FOR over 20 years, boys and girls by the millions have delighted in Paul Tripp's superb artistry. His unique power to captivate children has been consistently demonstrated by his long-running television shows: Birthday House, It's Magic, the Emmy-award-winning On The Carousel, and the Peabody award winner, Mr. I. Magination. He has written many widely acclaimed motion pictures including the perennial favorite, The Christmas That Almost Wasn't. In addition, he has written several best-selling books for children, and has created over two dozen wonderful children's records—notably Tubby The Tuba which has sold the astounding total of over 8 million albums!

Now, in this brand new concept in record albums, Paul Tripp makes the story of our great nation come magically alive. Here, Paul as Mr. Sam takes your youngsters on a marvelous, melodic journey through time. A journey that transforms American history into a fascinating, living, breathing thing . . . so your boys and girls can thoroughly enjoy it like never before in their young lives!

The Nation's Traditions Come To Life!

Place the phonograph needle in the record groove—and suddenly our country's magnificent traditions spring to life . . . traditions of men and women who are now once again flesh and blood rather than merely names in an impersonal textbook. Suddenly, your children are privileged to meet and make friends with the patriots, the pioneers, the presidents, the ranchers, the railroad men, the inventors, the aviators, the astronauts . . . all the extraordinary human beings who comprise our great American family.

This outstanding 12-inch high fidelity record album is titled Plymouth Rock to Moon Rock. As the title signifies, it traces America's growth from the first landing of the Pilgrims all the way to the landing on the moon.

A Firsthand Meeting With America's Heroes!

Here, through the medium of original songs, authentic music and fascinating dialogues, your children will become better acquainted with Patrick Henry, Paul Revere, and the Minutemen at Lexington. With Thomas Jefferson, Ben Franklin, John Adams, and a document called the Declaration of Independence. With Daniel Boone and a host of other courageous pioneers in covered wagons westward bound. With the '49ers digging for gold at Sutters Mill. With the suffering caused by a Civil War, North against South, brother against brother. And with a man named Lincoln who traveled the long road from a log cabin to the White House.

Your youngsters will learn about the Iron Horse, the railroad uniting East and West. About the inventions devised by brilliant men like Morse, Bell, Edison and the Wright Brothers. About the tragic times of the first World War, the depression and World War II. About the coming of the jet planes and the rockets. And finally, about the huge tasks that lie ahead of us tomorrow: the elimination of war, pollution, hunger and disease.

A Rewarding Experience For Your Children

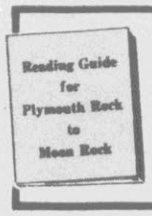
Listening to this recording is a vastly rewarding experience. It will serve to expand your children's knowledge as well as their imagination. And, at the same time, it will satisfy their natural craving for songs and stories. You'll be amazed how enthusiastically they'll take to American history in this exciting, entertaining form. And how they'll sit enthralled, reliving the events that constitute our nation's remarkable heritage.

Makes the American tradition of yesterday a living inspiration to young Americans of today.

Audition The Album At Home For 10 Days! Without Any Risk!

Plymouth Rock To Moon Rock by Paul Tripp (with a cast of talented child actors) is the perfect gift for all youngsters from 6 to 12. This record album (and the colorful, informative booklet that accompanies it) is not merely a "sometime" thing. Your boys and girls will enjoy it—and learn from it—over and over again. And all the while, they'll be benefitting from a rare combination of education, entertainment and patriotism.

Don't miss out on this exceptional direct-by-mail offer. This new Paul Tripp album is not sold in any store at any price. The only way to get it is by mailing the coupon below. You won't risk a single penny! When the album arrives, let your family play it, enjoy it as often as they wish. If everyone—including you—is not absolutely delighted with it, simply return the album within 10 days for a prompt refund in full—no questions asked. Take advantage of this exclusive offer today! (And be sure to remember all the children you know . . . this album will make a wonderful Christmas gift!)



EXCITING BONUS!

Beauty & You

As a woman, the odds today are that you will—at least once in your life—go lighter, go darker, enhance your own natural color, or simply cover that gray hair. A big decision? Not really. But it should be an informed one!

The Most Asked Questions About Coloring Your Hair

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Cover Photograph by Jim Dorrance

Brunettes: You don't have to put up with the "mouse" colors nature endows.

What Questions Do Women Ask Most About Hair Coloring? These Eight.

Why do women color-treat their hair? Perhaps the two most basic reasons are wanting to look better by wearing a more complementary shade or wanting to look younger, perhaps by blending unwanted gray hair with their natural hair color.

Years and years of scientific research at hair-coloring laboratories have drastically simplified the coloring process for you. The following answers to some of your typical questions will expand your hair-coloring know-how, and better prepare you for that easy step up to making the most of your hair's appearance with color.

Q—I would like to know what the terms "temporary," "semipermanent" and "permanent" hair coloring mean. Can you explain?

A—Temporary rinses, which last until hair is shampooed, are often a valuable introduction to hair coloring. Or they can be used to refresh tinted or toned hair between touch-ups, to tone down brassiness, or, for gray hair, to banish yellow and add highlights.

Because a temporary rinse only coats the hair shaft and does not penetrate it, it doesn't affect the natural pigment deep inside. Today's improved temporary rinses resist "running" or rubbing off, contain no peroxide and don't require a patch test.

Semipermanent coloring is the perfect answer for the woman who wants the effect to last longer. It can be used, for example, to cover gray (without changing the natural color) by selecting a shade close to your own hair color. Because the semipermanent formula gently penetrates the outside cuticle layer of the hair shaft, the natural-looking added color will last through three to five shampoos. Another effective way to introduce you to hair coloring, the semipermanent process allows hair to return to its original color in four to six weeks if reapplication is not desired. Now in Aerosol containers, the application often means only pushing a button for foam-in color.

Permanent hair coloring actually changes the color (pigment) of the hair by being absorbed down into the inner layer where pigment is stored. It cannot be shampooed away, but remains until the hair grows out and is cut off. The root hair may be retouched as it grows in.

Q—I'm a brownette who loves the thought of going blonde, but gradually. How do I work toward becoming completely blonde?

A—Frosting and tipping (pretty complements to your hair color) are two ways to achieve a subtle blonde look without changing your whole hair color all at once. Frosting is actually lightening and toning selected strands to "glimmer" like frosting over and throughout your natural hair color.

Tipping, usually for shorter hairdos, means lightening tiny strands of hair at the ends and toward the front of the head for soft contrast. A third effect might be streaking, which involves lightening only one or several clusters of hair for a strategic, more defined color accent.

Now, it's possible to frost or tip right at home, to sneak as far up to a blonde as you like. Retouching is not necessary for three to four months. Great for the busy woman!

Q—Please explain the difference between single- and double-process hair coloring. I'm not sure which I should select.

A—Single- and double-process are the two versions of permanent hair coloring. If you want to lighten or darken hair several shades, or just highlight or add depth to your own color, choose a single-process tint that is frequently applied by shampooing in.

For a more drastic change – from dark brunette to a pale blonde, for example – double-process hair coloring will achieve the results you're looking for. Hair is first pre-lightened (natural color is removed) before the toner is added for the desired blonde shade. Your dark hair will pass through about seven stages of color (like brown, red and red-gold) before reaching the ultimate stage—pale yellow. Then you're ready for the toner to add the color you want.

Q—I'm not ready for those gray hairs that appear more and more at my hairline. I would like to make them disappear yet still keep my natural color. Help!

A—The solution is easy. Choose a semipermanent hair color off the shelf that matches your own color while covering the gray or one that beautifully enhances gray when you're ready for this look. Remember, with a semipermanent formula the color lasts for about a month, or three to five shampoos.

Q—Am I to assume that the shade featured on the hair-coloring package will be the color I get?

A—The color you see on the package is the tint as it has been tested on a swatch of white hair. Manufacturers do this to show the consumer the true shade of the formula. Before purchasing, refer to the product color chart that lists which tint to use on your natural hair color for the desired end shade.

Q—How can I avoid unnatural-looking red highlights when coloring my hair with a brunette shade?

A—Because this has long been a common question among users of permanent brunette hair coloring, manufacturers such as L'Oréal, Revlon, Clairol and Alberto-Culver have aimed much of their scientific research toward finding a formula that resists red and gold highlights, termed "brassiness."

Clairol, for example, has made this scientific breakthrough in permanent hair coloring with the new eight-shade True Brunette line that resists the color fading that causes brassiness. This is a shampoo-in product applied to a dry head, worked into a lather, given a short time to develop and rinsed out for natural-looking brunette color.

Illustrations by Robert W. Richards

Some hair-coloring processes simply lather in, rinse out.

Preview the desired color with a strand test.

Q—Are the strand test and patch test both important—or is one more necessary than the other?

A—Both tests are important steps to insure totally satisfactory results from hair coloring. The strand test enables you to "preview" your future color before doing your entire head, and helps you estimate the time necessary to leave the color on for the desired shade. Simply choose a strand of hair (preferably one hidden away somewhere), and apply some of the hair-coloring mixture. After the indicated waiting period, rinse off excess, revealing the result.

The patch test, with instructions given on every package of permanent or semipermanent hair coloring, is meant to predetermine any sensitivity or allergy (found in relatively few individuals) to certain hair-coloring formulas. If no irritation occurs where the formula has been left on a patch of skin for 24 hours (behind the ear or elbow), you're ready to safely use the formula.

Q—Is there a special hair-care routine needed for color-treated hair?

A—Take advantage of the specially formulated colorfast shampoos on the market that allow hair to better retain its new color. Of course, regular conditioning is always a vital part of the hair-care routine, to help maintain the balance of natural oils for sheen and manageability. In addition to your regular conditioner after every shampoo, treat your hair to a deep-penetrating therapeutic conditioner (rich with emollients) about once a month.

Once you've started coloring your hair, it should be no trick to keep up with a consistent hair-coloring routine. Unlike the Renaissance woman who wetted her hair with harsh soaps and exposed her hair to the sun to bleach it —or mixed up a batch of alum, black sulphur and honey to turn into a pale blonde, and got brittle dried-out hair for her trouble – today's hair-coloring techniques have come a long way in terms of time, safety and their beautiful results. □

There's something about lace. You put it on and suddenly you feel so feminine. And, let's face it, kind of sexy.

But sometimes lace can also make you feel a little uncomfortable. Because it's so stiff. And scratchy. And catchy. Not to mention bumpy.

Which means you couldn't wear a lace bra under those clingy new fashions. Until now, that is.

Now there's the Flatterlace™ bra by Bali.

It's made of a special new see-through lace that's soft and smooth. And completely flat, so you can wear it under the clingiest clothes.

You can choose from a complete collection of Flatterlace bras. In underwire or soft cup. There's even a Flatterlace bra that plunges to a new low in décolleté.

Flatterlace. Guess who's going to love it.

In a Party Mood

Reminiscent of seaside bistros and gentle lapping waves: Shrimp Fra Diavolo bows in gentle candlelight.
In another party mood, Summer Lasagna can be cool and decorative under a patio umbrella.

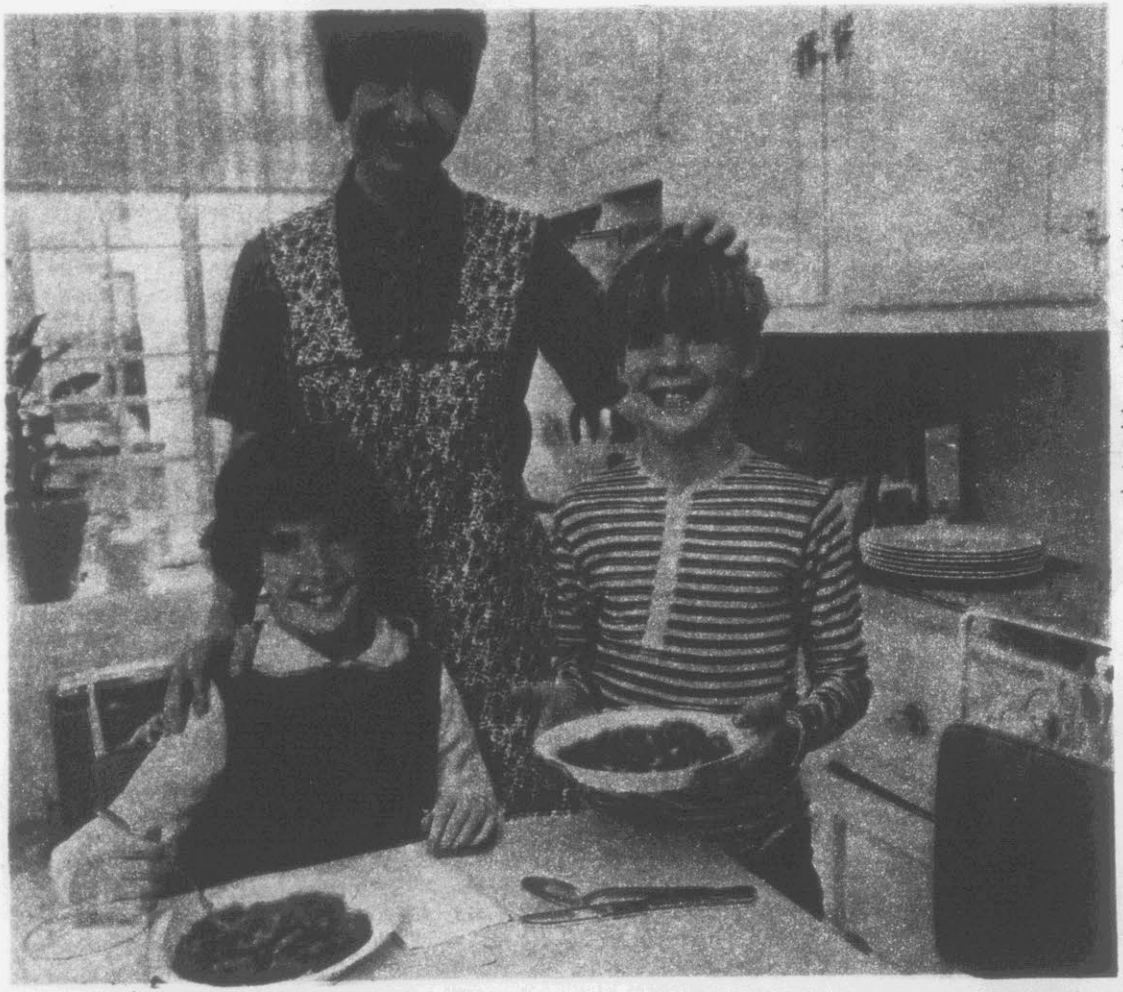
SHRIMP FRA DIAVOLO: Cook spaghetti from 1 pkg. (1 lb. 3½ ozs.) complete spaghetti dinner with mushroom sauce as package label directs. In 3 tablespoons vegetable oil in large skillet with cover, sauté 1 clove garlic, crushed, 1 minute. Stir in mushroom sauce, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, ¼ cup water, ¼ teaspoon basil leaves, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and 4 drops Tabasco. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Add 1½ lbs. peeled and cleaned shrimp, fresh or frozen, and 12 littleneck clams in shell, scrubbed, or 1 can (8 ozs.) minced clams, undrained. Turn heat to medium high, cover and cook 10-12 minutes, until clams have opened and shrimp are tender. Stir occasionally. Arrange cooked spaghetti on serving platter. Spoon shrimp and clams over spaghetti, pour Fra Diavolo Sauce over all. Sprinkle with extra chopped parsley. Pass grated cheese from package at table. Makes 4 servings

SUMMER LASAGNA: Make one day ahead for best flavor and time-saving ease on party day. Sprinkle 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin in ½ cup cold water. Heat 2 cans of lasagna sauce from 2 pkgs. (23⅞-oz. size) complete lasagna dinner to boiling, remove from heat, add softened gelatin, stir to dissolve completely. Stir in 2 tablespoons vinegar, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce and 5 drops Tabasco. Pour into a shallow dish, cover, refrigerate until mixture thickens slightly. Meanwhile in medium bowl blend 2 pkgs. (8-oz. size) cream cheese, softened with 4 tablespoons milk. Sprinkle 1 envelope unflavored gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Heat 1 can (10½ ozs.) chicken broth to boiling, remove from heat, add softened gelatin, stir to dissolve completely. With electric mixer at low speed, slowly pour chicken broth into cream cheese mixture, beating until smooth. Stir in 2 cans grated cheese from packages and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Cover, refrigerate until slightly thickened. Cook both packages of lasagna noodles according to package directions, drain well. Place ⅓ of lasagna noodles in bottom of 13½ x 9-inch glass pan. Pour cream cheese mixture over noodles, dot with ¼ cup sliced green olives. Arrange ⅓ lasagna noodles on top. Pour ½ of lasagna sauce on top, cover with remaining lasagna noodles, saving 4 perfect lasagna noodles for garnish. Cover with remaining lasagna sauce. Arrange reserved lasagna noodles down center of dish as pictured. Cover with plastic film. Chill several hours, or until firm. Garnish: soften 1 pkg. (8 ozs.) cream cheese with 2 tablespoons milk. Spoon into pastry bag with No. 6 star tip, to make lattice as pictured. Garnish with ¼ cup sliced green olives. Chill in refrigerator. Cut in rectangles. Makes 16 servings

Our great Ravioli. 6 minutes to fix. About 20¢ a serving. No wonder everybody's smiling.



The only thing better than giving your kids a hot lunch is watching them devour it.

But that's the way children take to our ravioli. And why not? Tasty squares of macaroni filled with beef and simmered in cheese and tomato sauce are enough to put a smile on any kid's face.

And, at about 20¢ a serving, it can add a little cheer to any family's budget.

Sound the Dinner Bell!

Pizza lovers take note: quick, satisfying Beefogetti Ranchero and Patchwork Pizza.

Dad and children come a-runnin' whenever either of these two winners is served. Each is speedy and fun to make. You'll catch on quickly, and the ingredients are simple.

BEEFOGETTI RANCHERO: Preheat oven to 350°F. Cook 2 pkgs. (10-oz. size) cut green beans according to package directions for five minutes only. Drain. In large shallow baking dish combine green beans, 2 cans (15-oz. size) spaghetti rings and little meatballs in tomato sauce, ½ cup sweet-pickle relish or chopped pickles and ¼ teaspoon Tabasco. Bake 15 minutes until heated through. Make 6 hollows in mixture with back of spoon, break 1 egg into each hollow. Bake 15-20 minutes, until eggs are just set. Makes 6 servings

PATCHWORK PIZZA: Prepare pizza dough from 2 pkgs. (15⅜-oz. size) complete pizza mix or 1 pkg. (1 lb. 12⅞ ozs.) 2 complete cheese pizzas according to package directions. Preheat oven to 500°F. Brush 12x15-inch broiler pan with vegetable oil. Spread pizza dough evenly in broiler pan making dough slightly higher around edges. Sprinkle 1 can grated cheese from mix over dough. Spread pizza sauce over dough to within ½ inch of edge. Sprinkle 1½ teaspoons dried basil leaves, ½ teaspoon dried oregano leaves and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley over sauce. Arrange toppings on pizza in patchwork fashion starting with ½ lb. sliced mozzarella, 1 green pepper, seeded and thinly sliced, 1 small onion, thinly sliced, 1 cup sliced fresh or canned mushrooms, ¼ cup sliced pitted black olives, 1 jar (4 ozs.) pimientos, drained and sliced. Arrange 2 cooked, sliced Italian sausages on pizza. Sprinkle pizza lightly with 1 tablespoon vegetable oil. Bake 12 minutes. Cut into 12 squares. Pass remaining grated cheese and crushed red pepper.

Another Ship-to-Shore Recipe:

FLOUNDER FILLETS PROVENÇALE: Preheat oven to 425°F. Lightly grease 5-6 small oval baking dishes or 1 large shallow baking dish. Using 2 tablespoons lemon juice, brush each side of flounder fillets (2 lbs.). Sprinkle with salt, pepper and ¼ teaspoon thyme. Dot fillets with 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Bake 15 minutes. Meanwhile in 1-qt. saucepan, in 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, sauté 1 cup sliced fresh or canned (drained) mushrooms, 1 clove garlic, crushed, and ¼ cup chopped onion for 3 minutes, stirring. Add 1 jar (16 ozs.) homestyle spaghetti sauce with mushrooms and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. When fish are baked, drain fish liquid from pan, add to sauce. Bring to boiling. Pour ½ of sauce over fish, bake 5 minutes. Pass remaining sauce separately. Makes 5-6 servings

Three great cheeses give you that great flavor in our Frozen Pizza, the world's biggest seller.

Every family has pizza-lovers. And the frozen pizza they love most is ours.

The firm crust and rich sauce have a lot to do with it.

So does the authentic Italian flavor.

And the time to make it, 12 minutes.

But most of all, it's the great cheeses. Romano. Mozzarella. Cheddar.

If you've already tried our frozen pizza, you know.

If you haven't, pick one up at the Time Saver Meals Display at your local grocer's. You won't just be saving time, you'll be saving money, too.

A menu for preparing ahead is Pizza-on-a-Stick. Surprise dessert is Tomato Devil's Fudge Cake.

Everybody loves a party, and the gang's coming to your house! Cut a snappy kitchen caper with Pizza-on-a-Stick and Tomato Devil's Fudge Cake. (Or be sneaky and just serve 'em to the whole family!)

PIZZA-ON-A-STICK: Preheat oven to 425°F. Allow 1 pkg. (13½ ozs.) frozen cheese pizza to thaw. Cut into 12 wedges. Alternately on hibachi sticks, skewer pizza wedges with 12 mushroom caps, or 12 green-pepper chunks, 12 cherry tomatoes, 12 stuffed green olives, or 12 pitted black olives, and 12 cubes of mozzarella cheese. Place on baking sheet. Sprinkle lightly with 2 tablespoons vegetable oil. Bake 10 minutes. (Can be made day before: cover with plastic film or foil, refrigerate, bake as directed just before serving.) Makes 12

TOMATO DEVIL'S FUDGE CAKE: Our do-ahead cake cuts and tastes best if made 1 day before serving. Preheat oven to 350°F.; grease a 10x4-inch tube pan. In large bowl combine 2 pkgs. (18½-oz. size) devil's food cake mix, 1¼ cups water, 4 eggs and 1 jar (16 ozs.) home-style spaghetti sauce with mushrooms (use this sauce only, no substitutions!). With mixer at low speed, beat until blended, 1 minute, scrape sides of bowl with scraper. With mixer at high speed, beat 2 minutes. Pour batter into prepared pan and bake 1 hour and 15 minutes, or until a cake tester poked in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes on cake rack. Turn out onto rack to cool completely. CREAM CHEESE FROSTING: In large bowl with mixer at medium speed, blend 2 pkgs. (3-oz. size) cream cheese (room temperature) with 2 tablespoons milk, 2 teaspoons vanilla and dash salt. At low speed, gradually add 3½ to 4 cups confectioners' sugar, beating until smooth. Spread over top of cake. Sprinkle top with ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts. Refrigerate before and after serving. Makes 15 slices

More Teen Treats:

PIZZA DREAM: Preheat oven to 450°F. Arrange 1 cup coarsely grated process American cheese in center of 1 pkg. (13½ ozs.) frozen cheese pizza. Top with 4 ½-inch-thick tomato slices. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon vegetable oil. Bake 12 minutes. Place 6 crisp bacon strips on center of pizza like the spokes of a wheel. Makes 4-6 servings

RAVIOLI A LA RUSSE: In medium bowl combine 1 can (15 ozs.) beef ravioli in sauce with ½ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup coarsely chopped sweet or dill pickles, 1 cup sliced celery, ⅓ cup pitted black olives, 2 tablespoons coarsely chopped pimiento, 1 tablespoon vinegar, ¼ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Cover, refrigerate. At serving time, arrange crisp lettuce leaves on serving plate. Pile ravioli mixture in center, garnish with 2 hard-cooked eggs, quartered. Makes 4-5 servings

Spaghetti and Meatballs. The good hot lunch for kids. It's fun all the way.

Big hearty meatballs, lots and lots of spaghetti and not-too-spicy sauce have made Chef Boy-ar-dee® Spaghetti and Meatballs a great favorite.

Not to mention that you can fix it in 6 minutes.

Kids love it. And at about 19¢ a serving, it's good for your budget, too.

You'll find Chef Boy-ar-dee Spaghetti and Meatballs at your grocer's Time Saver Meals Display.

Chef Boy-ar-dee Time Saver Meals

Make our Spaghetti Sauce in 5 minutes. It tastes as good as it looks.

What a sauce! You can see real onions and real lean ground beef.

There are lots of red, ripe delicious tomatoes and with them a marvelous blend of spices.

We put all these good, natural things in our spaghetti sauce because we think once you taste it you'll never want any other.

Bright (But Not Blatant) Lips Are Back!

Stan Place

Lips have undergone a metamorphosis from the pale, barely there, mouth of the sixties to the potent and genuinely more attractive bright mouth of today. How to make the most of your lips? Master makeup artist Stan Place, who conceived the faces illustrated here, shares his techniques with you.

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

The Proportioned Mouth:

If you have the kind of lips that draw compliments or never pose a shape problem, glorify them with a combination of lip color straight from the tube and a bit of gloss straight from a pot. Yardley's Cherry Smash Slicker lipstick is used to outline lips, while Pot O' Gloss, in Emphatic Pink, one of a new group of super-tinted lip glosses with more staying power, fills in the center. The effect: smashing color gilded with young, moist shine. The advantage of well-proportioned lips is that you can be the most adventuresome, experimenting with colors from the new browns to deep reds and never worry about calling attention to your mouth. Endowed with this beauty asset, remember always to follow your natural lip line; leave reshaping for those with thin or too-full lips. If your lips tend to dry or crack (and this goes for all lip types), capitalize on gloss or moisturizer in lipstick to protect your mouth from the elements. Don't blot lip color away, as with old-style lipsticks, but let the moisturizer do its work by providing a dewy look and needed protection.

The Small Mouth:

To reshape and redefine the small mouth (and make it look as if it "belongs," not following some fad from "beestung" to "rehashed forties"), there is no better tool than the lipbrush. But here's one with a difference: Coty's Colorbrush, an innovation that weds brush and lip color, emitting a flow of the shade through center of brush, is used to trace a fuller upper lip. The brush-and-color applicator, here in Firefall Red shade, should move from outer corner to peak of lip, working against the stretch of muscle, to give you a more fluid natural curve. As a guide, the height of the two peaks should line up under the opening of each nostril. The lowest point of the bottom lip should fall directly under the tip of nose. The net effect: You manage to balance the proportion of lips with the size of the nose, to fit within the natural sculpture of entire face.

Illustrations by Pam Duarte

The Abundant Mouth:

If your lips are too amply endowed, understate them by buffing and shining them in muted shades of lip color applied with the finger. Cover Girl, in a group of mirrored compact duos called Gloss & Gleam, offers two depths of shiny-smooth color to glide on lips (can double on cheeks, too). The deepest shade of Bare Bronze/Natural Bronze is used in the center of the lower lip only and dotted on the peaks of the upper lip. Then, the entire mouth is patted with the paler shade, smudging slightly into the deeper. The beauty trick: The eye is drawn toward the darker center and doesn't notice the width of the mouth. Here are some additional hints on minimizing lips: 1. Blot out the original mouth line by applying foundation over it first, then apply color a bit inside and straighter than the natural line. 2. Stop the lip color a bit short of the outer edges. 3. If your bottom lip line droops, draw in an illusory smile by tilting the corners up. The result: a mouth that's there, but tinier!

Miss America: "I've Got My Beauty Routine Down to a Science"

She's exceptionally lovely, she has a beau, she is the current Miss America. Does green-eyed, raven-haired Laurie Lea Schaefer do anything to protect her good looks? You bet she does! But, with her crowded schedule, it takes super-precision timing.

Traveling to different states daily, an eight-hour photo session, sometimes in 90° heat, a personal appearance on the day of an unexpected blizzard, a 6 a.m. flight, two-hour drives to and from an airport—these are just a few of the things that make up the helter-skelter but happy life of a Miss America.

How does this year's queen, Laurie Lea Schaefer, manage to put forth her best face for eager audiences, often under popping flashbulbs and klieg lights?

Laurie Lea believes in basics, stressing the importance of eight hours of sleep (she sometimes has to settle for five, jokes about her inherited tendency toward dark circles under the eyes), proper diet (she admits to having to watch her waistline) and good grooming habits.

Because she has gotten her beauty routine down to a science, she spends only 20 minutes every morning cleansing and making up.

"I could probably do it in my sleep by now," she quips. The routine includes a complete facial cleansing twice a day with a medicated soap, a deep-pore cleanser and, because of sensitive skin, a water-based moisturizing lotion.

Her makeup consists of foundation dotted on forehead, nose, cheeks and chin, then blended. "Too many women rub makeup into their skin, stretching delicate tissue unnecessarily," intones Laurie Lea. To bring out her deep-set eyes, she uses pale shadow in aqua or green, working on the correct principle that light shadow draws the eye out, while a smoldering shade tends to make the eye recede. A touch of waterproof mascara (important because she wears contact lenses), a gel blusher (because her skin tends to be dry) and lip color applied with a brush complete the daily session.

"I've found that a marvelous device for keeping my makeup fresh until evening," says Laurie Lea, "is to put a sponge under icy-cold water, then press it onto my skin. It works as if I'd just remade my face!"

Does she believe in exercise? Before Miss Schaefer became a reigning queen, she had lots of time for favorite sports such as swimming, skiing, horseback riding. After Atlantic City, it became apparent that to keep trim necessitated a daily exercise routine. She currently exercises four minutes in the morning and four minutes in the evening, doing calisthenics and isometric exercises.

How does she maintain a proper diet? "With all the banquets I attend and all the autographs I have to sign, it's a temptation to just wolf something down and be done with it," says Laurie Lea. But she has learned to love salads, lean meats and vegetables, never eat bread and avoid excessively greasy or high-calorie foods.

A casualty of her frenetic schedule are her hands and nails. Snatching up luggage and tote bags, moving rapidly from event to event and frequent hand washing probably contribute to the toll. Brittle nails are filed daily, polished every other day—first with a nail fortifier, then covered with a favorite shade of dark peach. Laurie Lea uses intensive-care hand cream liberally and gives herself a complete manicure at least once a week.

She needs to set her hair each night, but only with five rollers, placed high on the head so her sleep is not disturbed. Since her hair is dry and fairly long, Laurie Lea washes it once a week, but always uses a protein conditioner. She tries to use a deep-heat-cap conditioner once a month. "But no amount of caring for the hair will give results," says Miss Schaefer, "without a professional cut, where the hair is properly shaped, then kept up with regularly."

What does Laurie Lea Schaefer consider her greatest beauty asset? Anxious not to appear egotistical, she selects: "the eyes, because they can reflect your whole personality and a natural zest for life that helps anyone radiate true beauty." □

Laurie Lea at her coronation. Although beauty is her stock in trade, she only spends 20 minutes in the morning making up. "I could probably do it in my sleep by now," she says.

To save your weekend: Tampax tampons.

There's a spanking breeze. The sails are trimmed just right. You're heading into the wind and you're really moving. Even if "that time" of the month has come around, it's all clear sailing. And for that, you can thank Tampax tampons.

So sail away!

With Tampax tampons, there's nothing to hold you back. They're worn internally. So comfortable that when they're properly in place you can't even feel them.

When Your Dog Encounters a Skunk . . . .

If your dog encounters a skunk, it is an experience neither you nor Bowser is ever likely to forget. But don't despair. The trauma is temporary. In the meantime, here's what to do: 1. Don't let your fragrant pup in the house. The de-skunking process is definitely for the backyard. 2. Mix undiluted tomato juice with a little ammonia and work the concoction into the dog's coat. Be careful to avoid his eyes. Don't be stingy with the mix. If possible, leave it on for at least 20 minutes. 3. Rinse off, then wash with mild soap or detergent, or your favorite doggy shampoo. You may need two soapings. 4. Rinse well again and towel-dry to avoid chilling. A good first-aid precaution is to keep several large cans of tomato juice on hand at all times during the skunk season.—By Felicia Ames

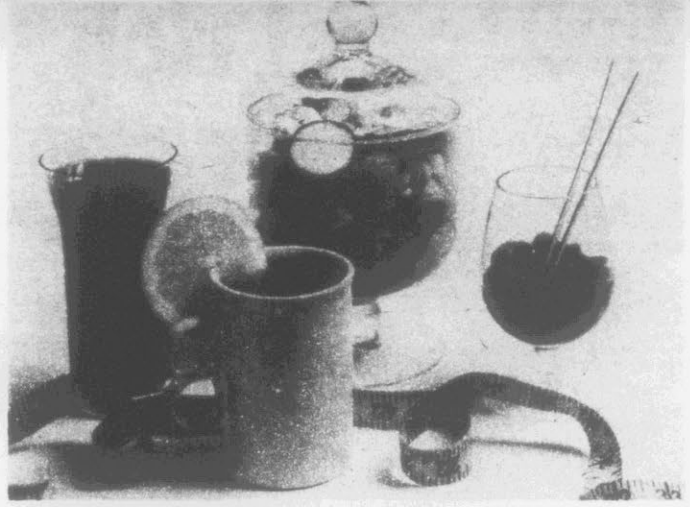
Four Recipes That Prove Snacks Needn't Be Fattening

Often a dieter's biggest problem isn't the three meals he eats—it's the four or five. Here are some easy aids to keep on hand for the next time those odd-hour hunger pangs strike.



Drinks in three moods: cool (Jamaican Delight), hot (Trim Toddy) and icy (Frosty Fancy). The big jar of Marinated Vegetables is just right to keep in your refrigerator.

JAMAICAN DELIGHT

- 1 can (6 ozs.) vegetable juice, chilled
- ¼ cup chilled unsweetened grapefruit juice
- Dash hot-pepper sauce

1. Combine ingredients in 12-oz. glass, stir. Makes 1 serving

Approximate calories: 56 for 1 serving.

TRIM TODDY

- 1 can (24 ozs.) vegetable juice
- 1 cup tea
- ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
- Orange slices

1. In 2-qt. saucepan, combine vegetable juice, tea and cinnamon. Heat gently just to boiling; stir now and then.
2. Add sugar if desired. Serve in mugs; garnish with orange.

Makes 4 cups, 4-6 servings

Approximate calories: total calories, 156.48; calories for 1-cup serving, 39.12.

FROSTY FANCY

- 1 can (12 ozs.) vegetable juice
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

1. In shallow pan, combine vegetable juice and lemon juice. Freeze until partially frozen (about 3 hours); stir now and then.
2. If frozen solid, let stand at room temperature 30 minutes before serving. Break up ice with fork.
3. Serve in chilled glasses with straws. Makes 3 servings

Approximate calories: total calories, 64.2; calories for 1 serving, 21.4.

MARINATED VEGETABLES

- 1 can (10½ ozs.) condensed chicken broth
- 1½ cups sliced carrots*
- 2 cups cauliflowerets
- 2 cups diagonally sliced zucchini
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- 1 envelope (about .6 ozs.) Italian-salad-dressing mix

1. In-qt. saucepan bring chicken broth to boiling. Add carrots, return to boiling, reduce heat and simmer covered, 2 minutes. Pour into bowl, cool to room temperature.
2. Stir in remaining ingredients, toss to mix well. Cover with plastic wrap or foil. Refrigerate 3-4 hours.
3. To serve: Place in attractive serving bowl, serve with wooden picks. Or arrange ½ cup drained vegetables on lettuce leaf and serve as an individual salad.

Makes about 7 cups

*We used a fancy wavy vegetable cutter.

Approximate calories: 346.75 calories for 7 cups vegetables, 1 cup marinade.

A nation of snackers deserves a cake just for snacking.

Coconut Pecan

Banana Walnut

Chocolate Almond

Here, America, is new Snackin' Cake™ cake mix from Betty Crocker®. It's very rich, very moist, and very, very fancy. (It even has real nuts!)

You need 3 things to make Snackin' Cake. A fork, a spoon and a pan (you won't even grease). No beaters or bowls. No need to make frosting. (It's so rich and moist you don't need frosting.) Using your fork, spoon and pan, you'll get Snackin' Cake from our package to your oven in two minutes.

You only need your fingers to eat it.
Snackin' Cake is so moist it won't crumble. So, like any good snack, it's a finger food. Served right from the pan, with no plates to wash.

So now you've got a fancy snack that's convenient, too.
For the first time, snackers, you have more than just another snack. You've got rich, moist, super-fancy Snackin' Cake. In three great flavors. Pretty nice, huh?

How to get rich

START YOUR OWN BUSINESS RIGHT FROM YOUR HOME

Mail Order Beginners Get Cash by Mail!

When Bob Carter of Newark, N.J. ran a small mail order ad in House Beautiful magazine he and his wife started on a shoestring. His ad cost $50. By the end of his first year in mail order he took in over $100,000!

Another beginner — a lawyer from the mid-west, sold a mail order item to fishermen. Specialty Salesman magazine reveals, "he made $70,000 the first three months!"

Have you ever thought of operating a little mail order business of your own? Something you could start on a shoestring right from home in your spare time. It's a fabulous business!

There is no other business where you can make so fast. Come up with a "hot" new item . . . and WHAM!

It strikes like a bolt of lightning!

Millions of people read your ad and suddenly, from all over the country . . . MORE MONEY in 60 days than you could earn in a lifetime!

Like the Vermont dealer who ran one ad in Sports Afield magazine. His ad pulled 22,000 orders — over A HALF MILLION DOLLARS IN CASH!

Yes, Mail Order is the fastest-growing, most profitable business in America! And now with the population explosion . . . the huge teenage market . . . and more people moving to the suburbs — we are on the verge of the BIGGEST BOOM in Mail Order history!

First We Asked Rowan,

How Close Were the Answers?

Recently, we interviewed Rowan and Martin—separately. Here's what they had to say—about each other, their show, their future.

Dick Martin and Dan Rowan

DOUBLE INTERVIEW
By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Q. What do you think of Dan Rowan?
ROWAN. I don't know him very well, but from what I've heard, I wouldn't buy a used car from him.
MARTIN. He's been around a lot. You'd think he'd go out and find a job.

Q. What do you think of Dick Martin?
ROWAN. Wherever he is, he always sits at the head of the table!
MARTIN. I think he's very lucky to have Dan Rowan.

Q. What do you think of your TV show "Laugh-In"?
ROWAN. From all reports, it has a certain following, which I find hard to believe. It's hard to be flippant about this. I think any show that consumes the amount of material this one does and maintains a high amount of humor and goodwill is unique, and I'm proud of the cooperative effort of all the people I work with.
MARTIN. I think it is the funniest show on the air, and the funniest show I can remember being on the air for any length of time, because we have the finest writing staff assembled on TV and everyone gets a chance to perform, in contrast to a star show, where they'd hardly ever get a chance. Dan and I appear in only 10 minutes of the show.

Q. What do you think of alimony?
ROWAN. I'd like to get some. It's better to get than to give!
MARTIN. It makes useless creatures out of women. It means subsidizing someone you're not really fond of. I've never known one woman who got alimony who contributed anything to life. You make parasites out of them!

Q. What do you think about birth control?
ROWAN. I think it's a little late in arriving. There's no question about it, there are too many people in the world, and the projection of future population is frightening. It's the only sensible way of assuring life for the world's people—if we consider it beneficial to continue life on this planet.

MARTIN. I believe it's the only answer. If I had to pick one thing to cure the ills of this world, I would say birth control.

Q. What do you do with your spare time?
ROWAN. I'm very busy. Tennis, sailing, fishing, hunting . . . and I read a lot. . . .
MARTIN. I sell birth-control pills. No, really, my spare-time love is golf.

Q. If you had not become an entertainer, what else would you have done?
ROWAN. There are several careers I would have liked to have, if I were so equipped: lawyer, writer, doctor. . . . At times I've even thought of becoming a politician.
MARTIN. I'd love to be an architect, a designer or decorator, a builder of something.

Q. Do you have a temper?
ROWAN. I have. I've moderated it considerably as I matured. I used to explode and get violent. I still have too much temper, but it's short-lived. A quick blowup and then I forget about it. I don't simmer.
MARTIN. Yes. It shows when someone tries to make me look like a fool, or tries to put something over on me. I'm at my worst when someone who has been a friend tries that, as has happened to me a few times.

Then We Asked Martin...

Q. You'll soon be starting your 21st year together as a team. How much longer do you think you will last as a team?
ROWAN. What time is it now?
MARTIN. Don't know! But it's starting to get permanent. . . .

Q. If you split up tomorrow, who would you team up with?
ROWAN. Dick Martin—if anyone could find him.
MARTIN. Sophia Loren. I can't tell you how stupid it is to team up with a fellow.

Q. Do you think actors should get involved in politics?
ROWAN. Definitely not! For a movie celebrity or TV-show personality to use his popularity to influence people is like a baseball player selling cereal. What does he know about the nutritional value and medical factors involved?
MARTIN. Certainly! But I don't personally want to because I am not politically minded.

Q. Did you ever hit anybody?
ROWAN. Many times. But I hate to count the times I've been hit! I don't know if I'm ahead or behind. . . . But I haven't hit anyone for a long time, and intend to keep it that way. I've gradually become a pacifist.
MARTIN. Don't think so. I'm not very belligerent.

Q. If you had only 24 hours to live, what would you do?
ROWAN. I'd spend one hour with my wife, 15 minutes on the phone to friends, take a 15-minute drive to the marina and spend the rest of the time alone on the open seas in my boat. Probably with a rosary in my hand.
MARTIN. I'd play 18 holes of golf and look for Sophia Loren.

Q. What do you think of magazine interviews?
ROWAN. I rather enjoy them because they provide me with an opportunity to talk about my favorite subject—me.
MARTIN. I like interviewers who have some different way of doing an interview. I find this interesting, for example. It requires specific answers. It depends upon the publication, too.

Q. What is your pet peeve about your partner?
ROWAN. His wardrobe! He dresses like a leftover!
MARTIN. Photographic sessions! Because afterward, Dan either shaves off or grows a moustache, and that requires going through another photographic session!

Q. What qualities do you like best in your partner?
ROWAN. His optimism. His cheerfulness. His unfailing good humor.
MARTIN. His honesty!

Q. Are you a religious person?
ROWAN. Yes.
MARTIN. That's difficult to say. There's a difference between a religious and a churchgoer. If you mean organized religious, then no. I'm no churchgoer.

Q. Name the three most beautiful women you can think of.
ROWAN. Adriana Rowan [his wife], Mona Lisa and a little girl in the 6th grade whose name I have forgotten. That oughtn't get me into trouble!
MARTIN. Dolly Martin [his wife], Sophia Loren—she's a pretty lady!—and Ruth Buzzi. □

What in the World!

ACTOR BJORN ANDRESEN
Being beautiful is a burden

Whatever you may think of the young man in this picture, quite a number of people think he is "the most beautiful boy in the world." That was the label Swedish actor Bjorn Andresen, 16, got after his screen debut in the prizewinning film, "Death in Venice." What does he think? "I think it's horrible," protests Bjorn. "I don't know who thought up the idea, but it makes me sick." Maybe he can shake the label when his next film comes out. He'll have a chance to show off his musical talent in that one, with a guitar solo he composed himself.

JOHNNY
He had to ask his mother

Remember Johnny Roventini? Johnny who? If you're over 30, you probably remember the 48-inch-tall, Brooklyn-born bellboy with the famous "Call for Phil-lip Mor-race" by his first name only. He's now in his 38th year of plying his unusual talent, mostly for special events. And he's got a lifetime contract. He really was "auditioned" by paging that familiar name in the lobby of the Hotel New Yorker for a dollar tip. He hesitated to leave the security of his $15 weekly salary, plus about $10 in tips, so he stalled the new job offer by saying, "I'll have to ask my mother." Johnny's call was a perfect B-flat. On the only night he ever missed a broadcast, he was snowbound on the Brooklyn Bridge. Over the car radio, he heard his announcer ask the audience to stand up and deliver the call themselves. "They were beautiful," Johnny remembers—"and right on key!"

What can you do with a rose besides sniff and admire it? Eat it! So says Zack Hanle, author of "Cooking with Flowers" (Price/Stern/Sloan, $3.95). Zack's first experiment was a rose-petal salad (just wash and serve) "because it's so pretty." It also contains about 400 times more Vitamin C than an orange. "Make friends with your local florist," Zack advises. "Every morning, florists snip the outer petals of unsold roses so they'll look fresh. Since they only discard the petals, they'll probably give them to you free. My florist told me I was the second one who'd requested his rose petals. Another customer ate them for his kidney trouble and finally stopped needing them because his condition improved so much."

Sure, we all speak English—but what about British? For instance, what's a duck? What's on the never-never? Who knocks for six? If the score is zero, it's a goose egg in America. But in England, it's a duck. Never-never? That's British for the installment plan. Who knocks for six? The British do. We do, too, but we say knock 'em dead. All of which proves that American English and English English are really two separate languages. If you drive in England, you may have to change a tyre, and if you get in trouble with a bobby, you may go to gaol. When are the English going to learn to speak properly?

DATES: Daylight Saving Time begins on Sunday, with your clock to be pushed ahead one hour at 2 a.m. The Kentucky Derby Festival runs April 30 to May 6 in Louisville, Ky. May Day is Monday. Announcement of the Pulitzer Prizes will be made Monday at Columbia University. The same day, America's Junior Miss Pageant begins in Mobile, Ala.

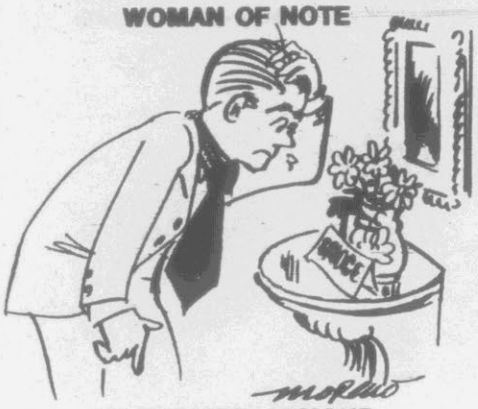
WOMAN OF NOTE



BY RICHARD ARMOUR

My wife is always leaving notes
To tell me where she's gone.
These notes are somewhat vague or terse,
And I feel put upon.

"Back ten," for instance, may not mean
At ten she'll home be lodged.
Perhaps it's an appointment then
To get her back massaged.

Today I found a puzzling note.
I'm frightened—do not scoff.
Just "Bridge" it said. Is that a game
Or what she's jumping off?

Why can't we be exposed to the problems of life when we are 17 and know everything? —Anna Herbert

Statements I'm inclined to doubt: "You can tell me, dear. I wouldn't dream of divulging a secret."..."Listen to this rock 'n' roll record, Dad. You'll love it."..."You can take my word for it, this suit will be in style for years."..."It's all explained in the policy. A child could understand it."..."Our generation isn't the least bit interested in money, Daddy." —Frank Rose

EQUALITY
(Corrections by my wife)

"As an economy measure," said a political-rally committeeman, "we're going to dispense with a dinner. We've decided we'd rather hear Senator Blank speak than eat."

"That suits me," said another committeeman. "I've heard him eat."

—Lane Olinghouse

Our office just bought a new conference table. It's eight feet wide, thirty feet long and sleeps twenty.
—Robert Orben

Having learned most of his driving in a horse-drawn buggy, an old farmer was prone to absentmindedness behind the wheel of his new pickup truck. On one of his trips between farm and mill, he chugged right through a junction.

He was stopped by a state policeman who asked: "Didn't you know there's a stop sign at that intersection?"

"Why, yes," the old fellow replied with a surprised look. "I knew the sign was there, but I didn't know I was!"

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES
Kids see life differently. Send contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

"Pass the corn," our four-year-old son said to his father one evening at the table.

Noticing his approach lacked the word "please," I casually suggested: "Try using that magic word."

He paused, then his eyes brightened.

"Hocus-pocus," he said.

LITTLE EMILY

"Well, Pop, looks like I have to choose you for my side."

Lose Weight You Hate—While You Eat the Foods You Love!

Now for the first time, you can eat fried chicken, cheesecake, milk-shakes, and brownies—and still lose weight with the Slim-Pak Plan!

THOUSANDS DO! YOU CAN TOO! You can get slim and stay slim while you enjoy your favorite foods: waffles or pancakes with maple syrup! Chili! Hot muffins! Turkey with dressing! Goulash! Beef Stroganoff! Ice cream sundaes! Pot roast! Mashed potatoes and gravy! Pie with whipped creme topping!*

THE DIME-A-DAY DIET! And the Slim-Pak Plan is not only safe, easy, and effective, it costs you just a dime a day! Even less when you buy the 60 or 90 day Plan! For a Dime-a-Day, you can have the figure you'll love, be able to wear the clothes everyone will admire!

LOSE WEIGHT—WITHOUT STARVING! The Slim-Pak Plan is not a fad or crash diet; contains no dangerous drugs. Especially formulated for the dieter who has "tried everything"—and failed!

SLIM-PAK IS PERSONALIZED! Slim-Pak can work for you where other diets have failed because only your Slim-Pak Plan takes into account the foods you like to eat, your sex, your age, your height, your present weight, and what you'd like to weigh!

OVERWEIGHT FOR 14 YEARS. "I have been overweight for 14 years. Two years ago, in 3 months I lost 40 pounds. Now, another addition to the family and I once again need the assistance of Slim-Pak. The results are marvelous!"

"SO MUCH TO EAT YOU DON'T GET HUNGRY!" "Started 30 days ago...45 inch waist. Today 41 inch waist and I can bend without any trouble...everyone tells me how much better I look. Slim-Pak leaves you so much to eat you don't get hungry."

LOSES 27 POUNDS IN 60 DAYS! "I have just completed my second month of the Slim-Pak Plan. When I started I weighed 180 pounds and measured 40 inches around the waist. I now weigh 153 pounds and have a 34 inch waist."

TEENAGER LOSES POUND A DAY! "I am 16 years old and have been on the diet for 2 weeks and have lost 14 pounds. I have dieted many other times, but I have gotten the greatest satisfaction from the Slim-Pak diet. I am very seldom tired and usually do not get hungry between meals."

MOTHER LOST 37 POUNDS. "My mother weighed 175 pounds. Six months of the Slim-Pak Plan and she is down to 138. I'm sending for Slim-Pak!"

'WITHOUT NERVOUS TENSION.' "Without fear of getting off my diet or nervous tension and that empty feeling, I have lost 3½ inches from my hips—5 inches from my waist. I have lost 18 pounds."

'MIRACULOUS' SAYS LADY, 70. "I am 70 years of age and they have helped me miraculously. Besides losing weight I have gained considerable strength and desire to live."

This 8-Track cartridge system features solid-state circuitry for instant-on performance, touch-control channel selector for four music programs, light-up program indicator, separate stereo controls, cartridge storage compartment, two bass-reflex speakers, simulated wood-grain enclosures and a 90-day guarantee on parts and labor. Cartridges insert easily into front of player unit... programs change automatically!

As a member of Capitol Stereo Tape Club, you receive PLAYBACK, the Club's full-size magazine—sent FREE every 4 weeks. PLAYBACK features tape recordings by all your favorite stars... Glen Campbell.. Aretha Franklin... Johnny Cash... Mantovani... Carole King... The Carpenters... Burt Bacharach... Engelbert Humperdinck ... Grand Funk... Neil Diamond... The Who... Merle Haggard... Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young... Tom Jones ... Dionne Warwicke... Elton John... and many more! Earn FREE cartridges! After fulfilling your enrollment agreement you receive one 8-track cartridge FREE (just 25¢ shipping/handinig) for every two you buy at regular Club price!

How the Club works: In each issue of PLAYBACK you'll find a review of the Selection-of-the-Month plus scores and scores of other cartridges from which you may choose. If you wish to receive this selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. Club price never exceeds suggested retail price of $6.98-$7.98 per cartridge

If you wish to take alternate or additional cartridge tapes... or no tape at all... simply mark the Selection Notice appropriately and return it by the date specified. You always have at least 10 days to make your decision. From time to time, the Club will offer some special selections, which you may reject by returning the special dated form provided—or accept by doing nothing. The choice is always yours.

All tape purchases, with the exception of occasional extra money-saving sales, will count toward fulfillment of your enrollment agreement. All purchases fully guaranteed. You must be delighted with every Club selection or you may return it within 10 days for full credit.

WHAT'LL WE DO, BROTHER? UNCLE LUCKY'S TAKEN WITH LITTLE STANLEY AND PLANS TO LEAVE HIM HIS ENTIRE FORTUNE!

THAT'S BECAUSE HE THINKS I'M HIS OTHER NEPHEW, FRANK, AND LITTLE STANLEY IS OUR SON!

IF HE ONLY KNEW WHAT A LITTLE MONSTER HE CAN BE!

NOW BROTHER, IT'S NOT LITTLE STANLEY'S FAULT. WE'VE GOT TO STRAIGHTEN OUT UNCLE LUCKY!

WHOOPEE! LISTEN TO THAT BOY PLAY, FRANK! I'M GONNA LEAVE HIM ALL MY MONEY SO HE CAN DEVELOP HIS TALENT!

BUT, UNCLE LUCKY, YOU'VE GOT MILLIONS!

BESIDES, YOU'RE ALL MIXED UP! STANLEY IS OUR NEIGHBORS BOY!

BOOM! BOOM!

OF COURSE IT'LL MEAN LOTS OF LABOR, BUT I'M SURE YOUR BOY CAN DO IT, FRANK.

I GIVE UP.

BOOM! BOOM!

THAT NOISE GRATES ON MY NERVES! PUH-LEEZE, STANLEY, STOP POUNDING ON THAT DRUM!

YESSIREE, THAT IS A GREAT SOUNDING DRUM!

BUT IF I CAN'T PLAY IT, WHAT CAN I DO WITH IT?

I DON'T CARE WHAT YOU DO WITH IT JUST SO YOU STOP BEATING ON IT!

OKAY, LEMME THINK...

MAYBE I CAN USE IT FOR A TRAMPOLINE!

THUMP!

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: NOTHING BREAKS THE SILENCE OF THE NIGHT SAVE THE FOOTFALLS OF THE PALACE GUARDS. YET IN THAT DARK HOUR BEFORE DAWN, 'THE SINGING SWORD' DISAPPEARS!

KLEPT, CONNOISSEUR OF JEWELS, WALKS STRAIGHT UP TO THE GUARDS. THEN, WRIGGLING LIKE AN EEL, DARTS BY, LEAVING HIS FLIMSY SHIRT IN THE HANDS OF ONE GUARD AND GREASE FROM HIS BODY ON THE OTHER.

THE ALARM SOUNDS AND KLEPT IS CORNERED ON THE MUSICIANS' BALCONY OVER THE DINING HALL. BUT AH!... HE IS A THIEF BEYOND COMPARE.

HE WAITS UNTIL THE GUARDS REACH THE TOP OF THE STAIRS. THEN, NIMBLE AS A CAT, SLIPS OVER THE RAILING AND SLIDES DOWN THE CURTAIN TO THE DARK HALL.....

.....THEN INTO THE CAVERNOUS KITCHENS WHERE A FEW SLEEPY SERVANTS BEGIN THEIR DAYS' TOIL. LIKE A SHADOW, KLEPT SLIPS INTO THE GARBAGE WAGON AND SQUIRMS DOWN OUT OF SIGHT.

IN THE SHADOW OF AN ARCHWAY HE DRAWS HIS KNIFE AND CHANGES PLACES WITH THE DRIVER. THUS, HE LEAVES THE CITY OF DONDARIS.

THEY'RE FLYIN' LIKE A COUPLA BLOOMIN' BIRDS!!

NOTE HOW THE GLASS FOGS IN THE AREA CLOSE TO THE "MODEL'S" NOSTRILS....

MEANIN' THAT IT'S NOT ONLY ALIVE... IT MIGHT EVEN BE SANDY!!

GIVE NO SIGN OF WHAT WE HAVE DISCOVERED, PRINCESS.... HOSTILE EYES FOLLOW OUR EVERY MOVE!

JUST LIKE YOU SAID, MR. ANVIL... WE'RE LETTIN' THE KID AN' SLANT EYES WALK OUT OF THE MUSEUM... BUT WE'RE TAILIN' 'EM...

THE BOSS SAYS T' STUFF THAT 50 MIL WORTH O' HEROIN INTA THE SACK THIS MODEL'S CARRYIN'!

IT'S A PRETTY CUTE GIMMICK... 'CAUSE WHO'D SUSPECT A DUMMY COULD BE WORTH... (CHUCKLE)... A BUNDLE LIKE THAT??

WHO LIVES HERE, ASP?

A GENIUS OF SORTS, PRINCESS! I MUST WARN YOU, DON'T BE ALARMED AT ANY STRANGE SIGHT OR CHILLING SOUND!

IT'S A (GASP) BAT... AND HE'S HEADIN' RIGHT AT ME, ASP!!

REMEMBER MY WARNING, ANNIE!

I'M TRYIN' T' KEEP MY COOL, ASP... HONEST!! B-BUT BATS AN' GORILLAS AIN'T EXACTLY MY FAVORITE TYPES!!

AS IF I DON' HAVE ENOUGH TROUBLE... THEY'RE SPRINGIN' A SKELETON ON US NOW!! ASP, I THOUGHT YOU SAID THE GUY WHO LIVED HERE WAS A BUDDY OF YOURS!!

YIIIIII!! IF YOUR PAL AIN'T STRICTLY BANANAS OR THE WORLD'S SCREWIEST PRACTICAL JOKER... HE SURE RATES AS A DANGEROUS-WILD-ANIMAL LOVER!

HE WILL HAVE HIS LITTLE JOKES, PRINCESS!

I'D SURE LIKE T' MEET HIM... IF I LIVE LONG ENOUGH!!
