Buy Bank Bldg.

The purchase of the North Carolina National Bank building at Five Points, formerly known as State Bank, by the Greenville Redevelopment Commission was negotiated Wednesday.

The sale of the structure by NCNB to the Commission for $175,000 was announced jointly by John T. Marston Jr., the bank's senior vice president and city executive, and Col. A. E. Dubber, executive director of the Redevelopment Commission.

Under the terms of the sale, NCNB will lease the building from the Commission for two years and will have a right of renewal option for up to two more years. The bank will continue to occupy the building.

Bank and Commission officials signed the necessary documents Wednesday afternoon executing the deed and initiating the lease, effective May 17.

"While we hate to eventually give up the location we now have," Marston commented this morning, "we want to cooperate in every way with the Central Business District division of the Redevelopment Commission."

The official emphasized that "no decision has been made as to the future location of the main NCNB office here," but he added that the bank is now developing plans for the early opening of a branch in the eastern sector of the city on the 264 bypass.

Marston said that the branch is scheduled to be located some 300 yards south of the Washington Highway on the bypass.

Pessimistic Over Wallace Walking

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) - George C. Wallace is said to be in good spirits and politically enthusiastic amid indications he will be unable to resume his fight for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Doctors say one of the .38-caliber slugs that ripped into his body may leave the Alabama governor a cripple. Wallace, shot five times at close range Monday, was alert and vigorous Wednesday when visit by his family and a few friends, but doctors attending the 52-year-old governor were becoming increasingly pessimistic about his chances of walking again.

Dr. James Galbraith, a University of Alabama neurosurgeon called to Holy Cross Hospital to attend Wallace, said his chances of ever walking again are less than even.

And if he can, Galbraith said, it will probably be only with the aid of braces.

Peace Cause Reviewed By Sister McAllister In Greenville Appearance

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

Sister Elizabeth McAllister made two talks in Greenville on Wednesday as guest speaker in a day of Peace activities, first at 4:00 p.m. at the Third and Evans Street Corner of the courthouse grounds and again at 8:00 p.m. in Wright Auditorium on campus at East Carolina University.

A science teacher at Marymount College in Terrytown, New York, the Catholic nun emphasized several major points of concern in both her talks - compassion; personal dedication extending beyond periodic demonstrations for peace; a need for awareness of the erosion of legislative and judicial powers by the executive branch of government; and what she termed "the formation of communities of concern." Such communities, she pointed out, would be "a public forum elected officials would have to account with."

GNP And Profits Up Economic Picture Brightening

WASHINGTON (AP) - Profits of corporations rose $5.6 billion in the first three months of the year, the biggest increase in a year, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said the increase brought before-tax profits of companies to a record $91.6 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate.

The increase came despite curbs on profit margins established by the Nixon administration when the Phase 2 economic controls went into effect last November.

The rise was far short of the $11 billion increase in profits recorded in the first quarter of 1971, but the record may be better since profits at that time rebounded from the General Motors strike.

Discounting last year's artificial rise in profits, the increase was the largest quarterly step-up in profits since the first quarter of 1969.

The bulk of the profit rise was in manufacturing and was concentrated in businesses which make durable goods. Higher earnings were particularly evident in the automobile, machinery and metals industries. The department also released a revised first-quarter report on Gross National Product, output of the nation's goods and services, and it showed that the economy fared slightly better than had first been reported a month ago.

GNP market value of the nation's goods and services rose 12 per cent at an annual rate instead of the originally announced 11.8 per cent.

Inflation advanced at an annual rate of 6 per cent, down from the earlier figure of 6.2 per cent, and the economy actually grew at a rate of 5.6 per cent when inflation is discounted.

The new report showed consumers began to open their pocketbooks at a greater rate in the first three months of the year, as the personal savings rate declined to 7 per cent of disposable personal income. This figure was 7.8 per cent in the last three months of 1971.

Calling Runoff

RALEIGH (AP) - Charging that the North Carolina Labor Department has been controlled by management for 30 years, John Brooks announced today that he will seek a runoff in the race for the Democratic nomination for labor commissioner.

Brooks captured 145,059 votes in the six-way race May 6, running 153,065 votes behind W. C. "Billy" Creel. Creel, however, did not capture a majority.

Brooks told a news conference, "When my opponent began work for the Labor Department, I was 5 years old. Today I am 35 years old and North Carolina has not improved its position relative to the rest of the country."

He said he would campaign on "a program to revitalize the department, giving new emphasis to training our working citizens with employable skills and encouraging new industry that employs skilled workers to come into North Carolina."

Brooks said, "I offer a candidacy that looks toward fairness to management and working people." He charged that Creel was the candidate of the present establishment in the Labor Department and that Creel had received most of his financial support from management interests.

He said he had been told during the campaign that it was "in the interest of certain industries to have low cost, low wage workers."

Red Cross Official To Contact Victims Of Recent Tornado

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary for the Pitt Chapter of the American Red Cross, said today that a representative of the Carolinas Division of the national organization is in the county to personally contact families affected by the recent tornado.

Mrs. Taylor reported that Mrs. Martha Dixon, a disaster case worker from Mullins, S. C., will be in Pitt County "as long as it takes to make the personal contacts with each family affected."

The executive secretary noted that Mrs. Dixon will make an effort to insure that basic needs of families who suffered heavy losses in the storm are met and also to check on the insurance status of stricken families.

The Pitt Red Cross official estimated that approximately 25 families in the county had to relocate because of damages to their homes. Minor damages at other homes that did not require a relocation resulted in many cases, she added.

Mrs. Taylor said that she and Joe Clark, Pitt chapter chairman, made an initial survey of the disaster area Tuesday with Civil Defense officials.

Families needing assistance who are not contacted by Mrs. Dixon are urged to call the Red Cross office here at 752-4222, Mrs. Taylor said.

School Is Lost To Big Fire

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) - The 15-classroom Dana Elementary School in a rural area of Henderson County was destroyed in a general alarm fire early today.

Firemen and sheriff's deputies said the center portion and two wings of the 45-year-old, two-story brick structure were in ruins. But they saved outlying buildings containing a gymnasium, library, an auditorium and two classrooms.

The first alarm was turned in at 4:06 a.m., firemen said. By the time the first volunteer units arrived, they said two classrooms in the front part of the building were ablaze.

TIGHTER INSPECTION

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Food and Drug Administration is increasing its inspection and enforcement efforts to halt a "decline in general sanitation practices" in food plants.

Stalked Another?

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) - Federal authorities said today they are investigating the possibility that Arthur H. Bremer, the man accused of gunning down Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, may also have been stalking a second presidential candidate.

Based on items found in a search of Bremer's automobile, federal sources said it appeared Bremer may also have been following Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

An inventory of items found in Bremer's 1967 blue two-door hardtop included McGovern campaign literature, as well as Wallace campaign literature.

"On that basis," a source close to the investigation said, "we are checking out the possibility that Bremer may have been stalking McGovern too." Bremer, 21, of Milwaukee, is being held in Baltimore County Jail at Towson, Md., under $200,000 bond.

Pitt County Receives $318,323 In Distributal Tax Proceeds

For the quarter ending March 31, Pitt County received some $318,323.53 in net distributal tax proceeds, according to the sales and use tax collection and distribution report released by the Department of Revenue.

The quarter figures compare with $310,052.29 received by the county for the quarter ending Dec. 31 of last year.

The report, issued by State Revenue Commissioner G. A. Jones Jr., showed that net collections in Pitt County totaled $321,652.63 for the quarter with the cost of collection by the state amounting to $3,329.10.

On a per capita distribution basis as figured by Pitt County relative to town or city populations, Greenville received the lions share of the proceeds or $79,552.14. Population of the city was quoted in the report as 29,063.

Ranking behind Greenville in population and in per capita distribution, Farmville received $12,109.51 on the basis of 4,424 people. The report indicated that Ayden, with a population of 3,450 was next and received $9,443.45.

Other towns in Pitt, their populations and receipts are: Grifton (Pitt's share) 1,548, $4,237.23; Bether, 1,514, $4,144.17; Winterville, 1,437, $3,933.40; Fountain, 434, $1,187.96; Grimesland, 394, $1,078.47; and Falkland, 130, $355.84.

Jones reported that the total population of the county was 73,900 at the time of the distribution and the county itself received $202,281.36 of the total amount on the basis of its population. Distribution to the nine towns in the county, added to

Distribution to the nine towns in the county, added to the county total, provided the total figure of $318,323.53.

The commissioner, in the report, explained that the per capita figure for each county is determined by dividing the total net distributable proceeds of the county by the total population of that county plus the total population of all municipalities within the county. The figure is multiplied by the county population and each municipality to determine the amount to be distributed to the county and to each municipality.

Greene County, figured on an ad valorem tax basis, received a total of $21,760.25 with $20,139.65 distributed to the county and the balance allotted to Snow Hill, Hookerton and Walstonburg. Snow Hill received $1,257.30 on the basis of an ad valorem levy of $40.277. Hookerton received $220.70 on the basis of a levy of $7.070. Walstonburg, with a levy of $4.568, received $142.60. Lenoir County received $267,742.03 with $203,219.28 of the total going to the county and the rest allotted to four municipalities. On the basis of the ad valorem levy of $845,068, Kinston received $58,574.57. Grifton's share amounted to $192.48 on the basis of a levy of $2.777.

Beaufort County received $142,932.29 with $104,204.57 going to county distribution and the balance going to seven municipalities. Washington, with a population of 8,961, received the largest share, $25,952.67.

Jones reported that total proceeds of all counties figured on an ad valorem tax basis was $6,058,190.70. On a per capita basis, the total of the counties was $9,370,941.28.

He noted that the cost of collecting the tax by the state amounts to $1.035 per $100 of collections.

USCS Plans To Proceed With Stream-Channelization Program

By DON KENDALL Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. Soil Conservation Service plans to proceed soon with a controversial 66-mile stream-channeling project in North Carolina which critics say is part of a national "ditching" operation carried on with serious effect to the environment.

Called the Chicod Creek Watershed, the project was halted two months ago when a federal judge ordered the SCS to prepare a statement telling how it would affect the area's wildlife, fish, land and water.

A draft of the statement was prepared and is being circulated for public comment by May 19. A final report will be made later to the Council for Environmental Quality.

Joseph W. Haas, an SCS watershed specialist, said the project may work order dealt only with the environmental impact statement and that unless further legal action is involved the Chicod Creek project will continue.

Contracts for actual construction could be let "in a few weeks" if no further legal snags develop, he told a reporter.

Under the "small watershed" program carried out by SCS in cooperation with state and local sponsors, farmers in an area are expected to carry out certain plans such as terracing and pond-building to help reduce water runoff.

In addition, because the small watershed law - passed by Congress in 1964 - requires flood-control benefits, plans frequently include widening, deepening and straightening of streams.

Sometimes a plan requires a new, manmade drainage canal or large ditch. The entire process, called "channelization," is aimed at moving runoff water along the passageway more rapidly than before.

In wetlands or swampy areas, the improved channels also serve as giant drains, thus making more land available for crops.

Currently, the SCS is spending around $120 million a year to help farmers and local districts share the costs of small watershed developments.

Several environmental groups, including the Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc., are using the Chicod Creek plan as a rallying point against what they consider misuse of natural resources and a threat to natural balances in affected areas.

She Needs Help Fending Off Critics

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Is it a crime to be single? I am a woman in my 40s and I've never been married. Please tell me what to say to people who ask, "How come you're not married?"

I work in an office with a group of girls who are from 20 to 30 years old. Most are married and have been for a long time.

I have two sisters who are married, and two brothers, also married. This makes me look like an outcast. My nieces, who are 18 and up, talk about nothing except finding a guy and getting married.

I dread to go to work in the morning, and I even turn down invitations because I am always the odd one.

Dear Abby, please tell me what to say to these heartless people.

DEAR READER: You need not apologize for your unmarried status. [Some are single by choice, and have better lives than their married friends.] Your problem is feeling self-conscious about it. Forget it.

Some legitimate reasons why a woman your age is single:

- A preference for variety.
- A satisfying arrangement with one who cannot marry her.
- Prefers to look after herself and nobody else.
- Hasn't met anyone for whom she'd trade her independence.

And if anyone has the nerve to ask you why you're not married, look right thru him as tho he were speaking a foreign language.

DEAR MISS VAN BUREN: I was intrigued by the letter from the woman concerned about privacy in the matter of marital status. I believe her purposes would be better served by using initials rather than the abbreviation "Ms." In the matter of correspondence, this ploy has the further advantage of giving no clues as to the sex of the writer.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that in the Soviet Union [frequently cited as a model for sexual equality by extremists in the feminine liberation movement] the Russian last name indicates the sex of an individual, thus negating this particular advantage of using initials.

I find these absurd efforts to obliterate differences on the assumption that this will produce the miracle of equality one of the more entertaining phenomena of the present age. Sincerely, T. P. RONDOMANSKI

DEAR T. P.: Very interesting. To further illustrate your point, a Russian man would be "Romanov," and a woman, "Romanova."

DEAR ABBY: Once again, a letter in your column from a man complaining because his wife doesn't give him enough "affection." ["I just can't get her into the bedroom," he says.]

When a man says "affection," he means sex. Sex is great, but what most women really want is affection. The reassuring words, the warm embraces, the loving looks.

In my case, I can't show my husband the least bit of "affection" without his wanting to head for the bedroom, the clothes closet or any place that's handy.

He isn't the "affectionate" type. And he doesn't want to waste time with preliminaries.

Women are advised to fake orgasms in order to please their husbands. Will you please advise men to fake a little affection in order to please their wives? It could save their marriage. JINNY

DEAR ABBY: I was raised a Lutheran but I am not a member of any church. I am presently engaged to a Catholic girl. She wants to be married in the Catholic church by a priest, but I do not.

After many discussions, neither one of us is willing to convert. We still love each other and feel that we could make a go of marriage in spite of the religious difference. What are the possibilities of a wedding? CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: You could have a civil marriage which would be legal, but not recognized by the church. Unless your Catholic fiancée leaves her church (or persuades you to join it) I would say you are at a stalemate.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter in your column relating to the difficulties of getting an arrest stricken from the record after an acquittal.

In Illinois, the procedure is simple: One files a petition with the Chief Judge of the Criminal Court, and states simply that he was arrested and acquitted and desires to have his arrest record expunged.

Not only will his arrest be expunged, but if his fingerprints and photographs were taken, those will be returned by the Chief of Police and absolutely no record is kept of the arrest. J. L. E., CHICAGO ATTORNEY

DEAR MR. E.: Congratulations to the progressive State of Illinois!

DEAR ABBY: I have read so many letters in your column from young daughters in law who were critical of their mothers in law.

Please, Abby, tell these young women not to judge their mothers in law until they themselves have been a mother in law. I have been a mother in law for three years now and believe me, it has made me a much better daughter in law!

If only a young woman could realize that a man does not have to stop being a son in order to be a good husband. WISER NOW

Making Your Way Through The Maze Of Sewing Machines

By SIDNEY MARGOLIS NEW YORK (WNS) — The great interest in home sewing today, including the apparent fascination of high-school and college girls with fashion handicrafts, has stimulated equally keen interest in sewing machines. But, one reader writes, you almost need to be an expert to choose among the many models on the market.

True. Because of the proliferation of manual zigzag, semi zigzag, more complete and very deluxe machines, a sewing machine has become the singlemost complicated item for a family to buy.

Our experience is that your first goal before you even shop is to know your own sewing needs. A $500 deluxe machine may attract you with all the decorative stitches and patterns it can make. It even can make little ducks if you have a passion for making little ducks. But you may find later that you really do not need all the built-in stitch patterns and discs that provide unlimited patterns. In that event you would now own a complicated, delicate model more suitable for a very experienced seamstress. And it would require a specialist to repair.

Which Level

Before you buy a sewing machine, you need to decide what general grade or level of machine you want — from straight stitch to very deluxe zigzag. Having made that decision, your next need is to compare features, guarantees and service facilities among different makes in that general group.

Your main choices are among (1) true zigzag machines; (2) semi-automatic zig-zags, and (3) straight-stitch machines.

As sewing experts define them, says Elaine Jessen, who helped research the sewing market, a true zigzag has a needle which can move from side to side as well as up and down. Semiautomatic zigzags can control the swing of the needle to permit both straight and zigzag stitching, but do not perform as many fancy stitches automatically as do the fully automatic machines. Some semiautomatic zigzag models move the needle only to the left or right.

The zigzag feature is useful to a woman who sews a lot and does fancy work. However, true zigzag machines usually cost $150 to as much as $500 for very-deluxe models. Experts advise that if you have a straight-stitch machine, but want to do fancy sewing, do not get a zigzag until you make sure you can't do the same tasks with your own machine's attachments, such as the buttonholder.

Portable

If you do not have a machine and your chief need is for straight sewing, you can buy an efficient straight-stitch portable for as little as $60. This may be all you need, although for $10 more it may be desirable to get a model that stitches in reverse too, with pushbutton control. For about $100 you can get a more versatile portable that will do some of the things a zigzag will, including buttonholes and blind-stitching for hemming.

Actually these less expensive machines will do most of the work many women require. Relatively few use their sewing machines to make dressy dresses. They more often use them to alter clothes or make aprons, blouses, skirts and casual dresses. Thus, make sure you actually want to do decorative stitching and embroidery before you invest several hundred dollars in a true zigzag. Too, the zigzag machines and special accessories like blind stitchers may be more difficult to use than the ads or salespeople indicate.

On the other hand, the zigzag stitch is useful to protect seam edges against unraveling. Some modern fabrics are hard to cut with pinking shears for that purpose. Some of the deluxe models also are useful for sewing on stretch fabrics.

Most Suitable

One long-time sewing machine expert, Murray Sherman, feels that a zigzag machine with a built-in buttonholder and built-in blind hem stitch is probably most suitable for the average sewer. Too, when you try out the machine, make sure it will work on heavy materials such as denim as well as nylon and knits, Sherman advises. He also points out that belt-driven motors cost less to repair, although gear-driven machines are faster.

If your chief sewing task is darning, try out the free-arm or open-arm models. They are useful. Some cost as much as $350 or $400 but some models are available for under $250. You also can get a folding table to use with a free-arm model that opens like an ironing board and converts the free-arm to a flat bed.

Because of the competition of the low-price Japanese machines, some of the older manufacturers of famous-make machines now offer cheaper zigzag models, or machines with some zigzag attachments. One of the largest makers has a competitive leader which it advertises from time to time for under $100.

A large retail chain has a manual zigzag which it often advertises for under $70. Although this chain was criticized by one state attorney general for, he asserted, using this machine as a leader to trade up consumers to costlier models, certainly the machine itself is versatile for the money. It can sew zigzag and straight stitches, forward and reverse, and has a selector adjustable by hand to vary the stitch.

Disproportionate

Many portables have the same head and sometimes even the same motor as many cabinet machines. Only in the larger consoles will you usually find a stronger motor. Some sellers charge disproportionately more for the same machine in a cabinet. In other instances the cabinet may cost only nominally more than the carrying case. A cabinet may be more desirable if you do a great deal of sewing and have the space. Be careful about light portables, which may sacrifice mechanical efficiency or tend to vibrate excessively or "creep", and be sure the portable has a full-size work surface.

Some users and servicemen say they actually prefer a cast iron machine to a featherweight as more stable and dependable even if less portable.

FALKIRK, Scotland (WNS) — When Mayor William Fenney, 68, visited a local pub and complained about the go-go girls he saw there, one of the young ladies grabbed his eyeglasses and slipped them down her panties. "Now you won't have to look," she said. After hearing the mayor's report, local magistrates banned entertainment in town pubs.

I'm only too aware that this brief report does not answer all your questions about sewing machines. Hopefully 'it' provides some guidelines, and we'll be back with more information on this widely-wanted item.

Weinberg's Collection Is Clear, Pale And Luxurious

By ANN HENCKEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The pale dress with the pale jacket—that's Chester Weinberg for fall.

"I just feel paleness, as opposed to murky, dark sadness or bright bugles," said Chester following the fall of Chester Weinberg Ltd., Chester Now, the less expensive line, and C.W. for Samuel Robert, a line of leathers.

He uses all one color for his ensembles.

"It's monochromatic, where one color changes only with the textures," said Chester.

Picture a pale peach suede jacket over a long pale peach dress. That's Chester. Peach on peach. White on white. Blue on blue.

"That's what I wanted to do and I did it. I'm never going to be halfway anything I believe in again—instead of trying to be all things to all people," said Chester.

His collection went heavy on the cardigan jacket—with no buttons, just a clean, straight shape.

"I have as few belts and buttons as possible. It's very uncomplicated. For me, it's the culmination of everything I started three years ago, the unconstructed look," said Chester.

When Chester doesn't use the cardigan jacket, he uses the deep v-necked jacket, with an elasticized waist.

These two jacket styles go over all manner of simple A-line skirts, or pants.

It's very simple. The trick is in the tone-on-tone look, and it's a very good collection. It's clear and pale and luxurious. It has a distinct style all its own.

Mollie Parnis stuck to her ladylike feeling with good colors.

Giorgio di Sant' Angelo brought out his knit line for Great Times with a great flourish of grape and grey patterned dresses and jackets. They are busy-looking and sort of fun, with layers and sweaters and so on.

Travel With Kids Doesn't Have To Be A Nightmare

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Ever think about taking the kids to Europe with you. Your heart probably strikes fear in it. But it shouldn't, says travel expert Leila Hadley, who insists that it's easier and can be less expensive to travel in Europe with children than to leave them behind. And she should know. She not only embarked on a two-year trip around the world alone with her oldest son when he was 4, but has traveled with her four children in 37 countries since then.

"Americans think it's such a strain to look after children on trips, and it is in this country," concedes Miss Hadley. "But abroad the child-care facilities are so extensive that you can have it both ways—share experiences with the kids or have the option of being on your own, knowing they are well cared for.

"By taking them along you save yourself a lot of worry and don't feel that you're being a neglectful parent. Also the child is more secure when there's not an ocean between you," she adds. "Besides, it's expensive putting them in summer camp or leaving them at home with a housekeeper."

This absolutely delicious cookie bar hails from Boston, a product of Mrs. Betty Banner's kitchen. Mrs. Banner's daughter, who lives in New York, sang the cookie's praises to us and so we asked for the recipe. When we made it, we found the cookies stored extremely well and that the praise had not been over-sung!

MRS. BANNER'S VANILLA CHOCOLATE SQUARES

1 1/4 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon plus 3/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup plus 6 tablespoons butter

1 egg yolk
5 teaspoons water
4 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
2 packages (each 6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped walnuts

Grease a 13 by 9 by 2 inch baking pan.

On wax paper sift together the flour, 1 teaspoon sugar and the baking powder; set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl cream 1/2 cup butter with egg yolk, water and 1 teaspoon of the vanilla. Add flour mixture; blend well. Press mixture with fingers into bottom of prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 10 minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle with chocolate. Return to oven until chocolate melts—about 10 minutes. Lightly spread chocolate with a small metal spatula; set aside.

Meanwhile in a small mixing bowl beat eggs and 3/4 cup sugar until combined. Melt remaining 6 tablespoons butter; stir into egg-sugar mixture along with remaining 3 teaspoons vanilla and the nuts. Pour over chocolate layer in baking pan. Return to 350-degree oven until browned—25 to 30 minutes.

Place pan on wire rack to cool completely. If chocolate does not set, refrigerate until it hardens—about 15 minutes. Cut into squares. Store in a tightly covered tin box.

Miss Hadley thinks Americans are not aware of the extensive services, entertainment and attractions available for youngsters in Europe. To meet this need she has written a book, "Fielding's Guide to Traveling with Children in Europe."

"The whole point is to have a positive attitude. Kids know when their parents are happy and relaxed and that makes them happy and relaxed," says Miss Hadley, who took her first trip at the age of six months to Scotland, and continued to visit her mother's family there every year.

It was after her divorce that she went with her son, now 27, around the world by freighter and three-masted schooner. "I wanted to be somewhere where everything was fresh and new," she recalls. After she remarried, her husband's job as a geologist took the family all over the world and she has lived in Africa, in the Caribbean, in Central America and the Far East, as well as Europe.

"Sharing with children brings a totally new dimension to the travel experience," she points out. "It's more fun, people are nicer when you have them along and you see things through different viewpoints—that of the parents, who know the historical background, and that of the kids, who see things with a fresh and curious eye."

There are many more choices about where to stay in Europe than in America, Miss Hadley notes, from a farmhouse at $3 a night, or a little country inn at $8, on up to the more luxurious hotels. She says reasonably-priced eating places are generally available also, and it is easy to picnic abroad.

Miss Hadley thinks preparation is an important part of the trip and that it is vital to everyone's enjoyment to "bone up" on the countries to be visited. "Have the kids send for information from tourist bureaus, collect pictures; then you know what to look for and when you finally see it say 'here it is at last.'"

"Each age has a different pleasure," she goes on. "You don't realize what the child gets out of it until years later. A lot is recorded in their minds that you don't hear about at the time but the feedback goes on for a lifetime. And children acquire an ear for the language."

Parents needn't worry about getting medical aid. Hotels can recommend English-speaking doctors and for real emergencies help can be obtained from the American embassy or consulate, she explains.

Next scheduled trip for Miss Hadley, divorced for the second time, is to Portugal, Italy, Spain and Greece this summer. She'll take her 12-year-old daughter along and meet her 16-year-old son and 18-year-old daughter in Europe. "I'd get lonely if I traveled alone," she says.

Coiffure Cut-Ups For Younger Set

PARIS (WNS) — Although French haute couture now plays second fiddle to French ready-to-wear, haute coiffure is stronger than ever. Paris hairdresser Maria Carita is introducing "baby cuts" for youngsters so that chic mothers and little daughters can look alike. Vanessa Vadim, daughter of Jane Fonda and film director Roger Vadim, now has the same Carita coiffure as mama. David Drach, young son of French stars Michel Drach and Marie Jose Nat, has his hair done in the women's salon of Jacques Dessange with his mother but refuses to wear his hair long to his neck. Christian, son of Catherine Deneuve, prefers to accompany Marcello Mastroianni, his mother's fiance, to the Messieurs hair salon "for men and boys only."

"There a boy can get his hair cut long and still look like a man, not a sissy," he explained.

Federal, State Grants Helpful

Not all of us are always aware of how much federal and state grants mean to Greenville for sewer and water construction. However, we would find the cost of these expensive projects were considerably more of a burden to local citizens if such grants were not available.

That is why it was so important to us that the Clean Water bonds were approved in the recent referendum.

Sewer and water projects are carried out by Greenville Utilities Commission and the commission has done a good job of planning ahead for various projects so that application could quickly be made when federal or state funds were available.

Last week the commissioners approved detailed planning for a number of new projects with an estimated value of $708,500. When the plans are complete and as outside funds are available, the Utilities can make application for assistance and in this way stretch local funds to the maximum.

This has been the pattern for a number of years now as plans were made for projects and federal funds obtained when such aid came in sight.

Water and sewer lines go underground and are covered up and paved over. However, there is an extensive network of pipes under the city's streets which must be maintained and expanded. In addition the sewage disposal plant near Greenwood Cemetery is being expanded as is the water treatment plant and local deep wells.

Much of this work is done with federal and state assistance and at times it was because the local commission had plans ready to quickly apply for funds.

With steadily rising utilities rates, any way that we can cut our local operating costs is welcomed. These federal and state grants are a great help.

Non-Voters Of May 6 Target

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N. C. — Voters who didn't go to the polls on May 6 hold the key to the outcome of the June 3 run-offs for nominations to major state offices.

For the next three weeks, they will be the prime target for the persuasions of candidates in Democratic and Republican races for governor, and Democratic contests in Democratic and Republican races for governor, and Democratic contests for U.S. Senate, state insurance com-

Carolinians who need help the most," he said.

Tax Issue Spotlight

The new tack emphasized the importance of taxes and charges of administration support in Bowles' first primary lead. Bowles has maintained a "no new taxes" posture, and pictured Taylor as the choice of Gov. Bob Scott for the nomination.

Rousing apathetic supporters is an assignment in the second primary campaign, said Sen. Jordan. "My folks told me they hadn't worked hard because they didn't think I had any problem," he explained.

Traditionally, a second primary brings a larger turnout. Whether that will be the case this time, in light of the presidential primary as an attraction for voters on May 6, remains to be seen.

Not since North Carolina initiated the primary system in 1912 have voters faced so long a run-off ballot. The GOP second primary for governor is a first for the party, although Democrats have gone the route six times to pick a nominee.

History No Guide

History isn't much help in figuring the odds. Three times the first primary leader has won in the run-off. In three other occasions, the candidate who trailed first carried off the prize on the second try.

The state's first run-off in 1920 gave victory to Cameron Morrison, who finished behind O. Max Gardner in the first primary. Ironically, the same thing happened to Morrison in a later Senate contest when he lost in a run-off to Robert Reynolds of Asheville.

J. C. B. Ehringhaus led the first primary in 1932, and defeated Richard T. Fountain in the run-off. Clyde R. Hoey repeated the feat in 1936, winning over Ralph McDonald.

W. Kerr Scott, father of the present governor reversed the first primary verdict in winning over Charles M. Johnson in 1948. Terry Sanford won both the first and second primaries in 1960. Dan K. Moore trailed in the 1964 primary, but defeated Richardson Preyer in the run-off.

Twice second finishers have declined to call a run-off. J. Melville Broughton got the nomination in 1940 when Lt. Gov. W. P. Horton passed up a second primary bid. His son, J. Melville Broughton, Jr., earned the right to a run-off in 1968 but bowed out in favor of Bob Scott, the first primary leader.

Taylor Adopts Fresh Tactics

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Pat Taylor has now divorced himself of Gov. Bob Scott and the Raleigh News and Observer and is ready to pounce on leader Skipper Bowles as the runoff is underway for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

No question about it. Taylor feels his association with Gov. Scott hurt him in the first primary, as the people of North Carolina want new faces. Taylor's own poll, for much of the campaign, at least, indicated that Gov. Scott was still well thought of by the voters. But Taylor apparently doesn't feel that today. He's gone out of his way since the primary to break away from the sitting Governor.

Taylor's runoff campaign will be considerably different from the one he's run heretofore.

He feels, right or wrong, that Bowles gained the momentum with his stand not to raise taxes. Taylor has a TV commercial already cut for the runoff which says Gov. Scott promised no new taxes in 1968 and then slapped the voters with a gasoline tax, a tobacco tax and a soft-drink tax.

"We need no more of that nonsense," the Taylor commercial says. Furthermore, Taylor will come out in favor of cutting some taxes which he will deem an unnecessary burden on the people of North Carolina.

Taylor had a meeting in Raleigh on Sunday. A large group of his supporters viewed the TV commercials for the runoff and had their say so about the way the runoff campaign should be run.

All agreed that Taylor had to get tough, which will be a new kind of campaign for the lieutenant governor. Taylor has made it a practice to avoid controversy when possible. No way he'll be able to avoid it now that he finds himself in the position of running behind Bowles with less than three weeks left before the runoff vote.

The campaign is going to get rough and some Democratic Party leaders are concerned about the consequences. It's hard to kiss and make up after a blood-letting.

As for Bowles, he has been planning since the night of May 6 to go into a runoff campaign. Many of Bowles' workers have tried to discourage that kind of talk when speaking to the press.

One told me last weekend: "I really believe Pat will get out."

But while that was the public word, Bowles kept right on working and planning for the inevitable.

He came out with his own TV spot, thanking the people of North Carolina for his fine vote. Bowles promised to represent all colors and parties. It was a way of keeping his name before the public and of also trying to create a bandwagon effect for his candidacy.

A spokesman in the Bowles camp told me that many Taylor defectors had come over since the primary. The Taylor camp rejects this and Allen Bailey, one of Taylor's chief campaign aides, says: "The money's there for us to run a good campaign."

Bowles already has his schedule made for the rest of the week. The closed door sessions are over and both Taylor and Bowles will go public again.

Democrats not wanting this kind of a fight take some heart in the fact that the Republicans, with Jim Gardner and Jim Holshouser flailing away at each other, will have their own fences to mend after the runoff.

Bowles came from out of sight to win the first leg of the race. Now he finds himself in the position of having to protect his position as frontrunner. Taylor didn't do it very well and whether Bowles can or not will be answered during the next two and a half weeks.

Strength For Today

A CONTINUOUS QUERY "Money is the root of all evil." The Bible says that is the love of money that is the root of all evil (I Timothy 6:10). There is a vast difference between having money and making a bad use of money.

Some of the finest people in the world have money and do everything good with their money and nothing evil. There are other people who have no money and yet they are happy, always willing to be helpful, making the people around them full of satisfaction and hope. Money usually makes people or breaks them. If they use their money to deepen some indulgence, then nothing is so valuable to such persons as getting money and lots of it. The "pusher" of dangerous drugs is said to receive startling recompense for his evil business.

Today we are hearing about billionaires. Nobody was a billionaire fifty years ago. Today there are said to be a number of people possessing these huge amounts of money. Some of these immensely rich persons are fine in every way. Some of them are not fine in any way. It is not money or the possession of money that is evil but the things people allow money to do to their characters.

Money makes lots of people better. There is no essential virtue in poverty. We live on a continent and in an era of time different from anything that has gone before. The expression is often heard that money makes the world go round. Certainly money is a valuable factor in modern life and has been so through the ages. Enough money appears always to be just a little bit more than we have. When a person puts his money or hers first in life and keeps it there, then that person is unfortunate. The truly happy person gets money honestly and spends it wisely.

Catching Up On Talking

SCRABBLE, Va.—It is not a novel reflection—it is more likely a conclusion of every man who spends half his life catching airplanes—that the only good thing about going away is coming back home. I am home now, home in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Rappahannock County, and I am reminded of Genesis: God sees that it is good.

Except for a few days here and a few days there, these past four months have been four months on the road. No complaint. Many men, notably those in service, lead tougher lives, see less of their loved ones. The roving correspondent, in point of fact, is unbelievably lucky: He looks upon his country in the best of all ways, from 30,000 feet in the sky, from endless sidewalks on the ground.

But, now, home. The portable typewriter is packed away, its armor as battered as Don Quixote's. The desk is a terminal moraine of the campaign trail — outcroppings of press badges on cold slopes of unopened mail. There is time now to rest one's eyes on the mountains, to catch up, to talk.

We talk in the evening of small things. One of our bluebird houses is rented for the season: A nice couple. A pair of phoebes are nesting in a transom. We have a problem of law and order: A red-tailed squirrel keeps plundering the feeders. Billy, the punch-drunk grosbeak, is getting punchier by the day; he spends hours fluttering from one window to another, assaulting his own dark image in the glass.

We inspect the garden. More problems of law and order: A rapacious rabbit has devoured a precious clump of coral bells. Drat the rabbit! But he has left the early lettuce intact, and around the vegetable plots a ruffle of radishes is untouched. There will be strawberries soon — the tiny wild ones. The warming earth gives forth.

Here in the mountains, our news comes mostly by TV. We talk of the war, of Nixon's gamble, of the divisive reaction to it. I have written little of the war, not for want of conviction — I am convinced the President is right — but largely because the war itself is off my beat. This is a rolling story. It will not stand still for a five-day deadline.

Nonetheless, neighbors drop by, and this distant and dreadful conflict dominates our conversation. We talk back to the TV screen. Hanoi is demanding of the U.S. that we stop our bombing. "Well," we say, breathing heavily, "why don't you stop your invasion?"

Hanoi is denouncing U. S. aggression. "What about your own aggression?" The enemy wants the mines out of Haiphong. Okay, we say, then get your divisions out of Quang Tri.

The screen fills with the drawn faces of refugees, fleeing south. Why south? If the Communists are liberators, nobly bent on freeing their brothers from the oppressions of President Thieu, why do the peasants not run to embrace the legions of Gen. Giap? The commentator has no line to Rappahannock County; he ventures no reply.

Damn the Communists! We are angry now. Ten thousand miles from the scene, in a country kitchen, we are filled with helpless rage. What more could Nixon do, in quest of a decent peace, than he has done already? Surrender? Abandon the South Vietnamese altogether? Is this what George McGovern would do? Is this what a Actual organization of the local post of Veterans of Foreign Wars will take place here about June 1st, it was stated today by William B. Dupree; local representative of the organization. The Veterans of Foreign Wars is the oldest organization of its kind in America. It was founded in 1899 and only veterans who have seen military duty in foreign lands during a period of hostilities are entitled membership.

Children of Indian tribes which roved through this section hundreds of years ago had baby dolls just like children of today. This was revealed in the finding of a doll carved from stone on the farm of A. J. Whichard on the Creek Road in the Pactolus community. Numbers of arrowheads and pieces of broken pottery were also discovered.

Explanation Of Selling Short

By CHARLES J. ELIA

Q. Would you please explain the transaction involved when one sells a stock short? It sounds like an intriguing way to trade.

A. It is intriguing and fairly tricky. It's not for everyone. It requires a degree of market sophistication, good nerves and not a little gambling spirit. Most investors do best to leave it to the traders.

When you buy a stock, you own it "long." To gain from it, you buy the stock and sell later at a higher price. Selling short is an attempt to gain from a decline in prices with a stock you don't own.

When you sell short, you borrow stock, usually from or through your broker, and sell it. To make money, you later buy the stock at a lower price and replace the borrowed shares.

Let's follow the short sale through an example:

The procedure starts with a margin account opened for you by the broker. You tell him to sell short 100 shares of XYZ Corp. at $100 a share. You deposit in your account the price of the stock, $10,000, or if you use margin (credit) you deposit at least $5,000 and he lends you the other $4,500. However you do it, you put up $10,000.

The broker, meanwhile, has borrowed 100 shares of XYZ out of another margin customer's account (or from an institution or other lender) and sells the shares for you. That brings in another $10,000, which is held to protect the account whose stock was borrowed.

As you can see, a short sale of $10,000 of XYZ actually involves $20,000 in cash or a combination of cash and margin credit.

If the stock goes down, to $75 a share let's say, you tell the broker to buy 100 shares of XYZ and cover your short by returning these shares in satisfaction — for — those borrowed. Your account is credited with the $25-per-share gain, minus commissions and interest on any margin money lent you by the broker.

If the stock goes up in price, of course, you have a problem. You'll be losing money if you have to pay more than $100 a share to cover your short and if the price really gets away on the up side before you cover, your broker will ask for more money in your account or he'll automatically buy in the stock and close you out.

A couple of things to remember: You have to pay any dividends declared on borrowed and shorted stock as long as you're short and you must also pay interest on any margin money borrowed from the broker, not to mention commissions.

Perhaps more important is this truism: When you buy long, the most you can lose is the money you paid for the stock — $100 per share for XYZ, for example. When you are short, your loss potential is virtually unlimited; no one knows how high a stock will go.

Doctoral Degree Is Received By Bright

Edward B. Bright of Grifton was awarded the doctoral degree - Ed. D. during Saturday's graduation exercises at N. C. State University.

He received his degree from the Department of Adult and Community Colleges Education with a split minor in Sociology and Guidance.

Dr. Bright is the dean of instruction at Pitt Technical Institute and has served in that capacity for the past three years.

A native of Chocowinity, Bright received his B. A. in Social Studies and Physical Education from East Carolina University in 1948 and was awarded his master's degree in education administration from ECU in 1951.

Prior to coming to Pitt Tech in 1964 as Director of General Adult Education, Dr. Bright had been a teacher, coach, and principal of Aurora High School, Aurora and principal of Grifton High School. He became the PTI Dean of Instruction in 1969.

A member of the First Baptist Church of Grifton, where he has majority of Senate Democrats truly want to see? An announcer reports, deadpan, in a 20-second item, that a nationwide poll finds 68 percent of the people supporting the President; but the announcer must be fair: His network devotes the next three minutes to demonstrations against the war.

We gaze at the screen in sullen silence, but the bitterness seeps away. This too will pass. Gibbon once remarked that history is little more than the register of the crimes, follies, and misfortunes of mankind. The human race will survive the history of our time, but new crimes, new follies, new misfortunes will occur. We never learn what history might teach us; we keep taking the courses anew.

Outside, in the murmuring darkness, one senses the eager movement of May—wings, leaves, night hunting hounds, the larcenous rabbit, the hungry squirrel. One never can escape the ugliness, the rage, the griefs of all mankind: One doesn't truly want to. But all the same, come spring in Virginia, it is good to be home.

Old Mine Now A Mushroom Farm

By GARY MIHOCES
Associated Press Writer
WORTHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — The vast dark corridors of the old worked-out Worthington limestone mine resemble an eerie scene from a science fiction thriller.

Save for the hollow, faraway plops of dripping water, the silence is broken only by oddly dressed workers shuffling about with lamps beaming from their helmets. And revealed everywhere by the dancing lights are thousands of pale mushrooms poking their plump heads from the damp limestone floor.

This is the Butler County Mushroom Farm, said to be the world's largest subterranean agricultural operation. Its sole aim is to assuage man's palate.

Ideal mushroom growth conditions prevail year-round here: Total darkness, high humidity and constant 56-degree temperature. And millions of the delicious off-white cookbook gems are harvested from the old mine annually.

The complex sprawls through 118 miles of corridors and 500 acres of rooms that slope 200 feet below the surrounding hills. It is twice the size of its sister farm at another limestone mine in nearby West Winfield. Both are owned by Butler County Mushroom Farm, Inc. Together they employ 800 people and produce 35 million tons of mushrooms yearly.

Along with separately owned underground farms near Kennett Square in eastern Pennsylvania, they produce the largest cash crop in the state and 60 per cent of the nation's mushrooms.

"We're growing as many as we can 365 days a year," said Elmer Bennett, president of Butler. "The introduction of mushroom soup did it."

The growing and harvesting continues year-round at the farm, which looks like any other industrial complex from above the ground.

But underground, workers wearing headlamps and hardhats enter the mine in rubber-tired personnel carriers that wind over smooth underground roadways to the work areas.

There are three underground lunch rooms, well-lit and complete with tile floors, cafeteria tables, vending machines, rest rooms and telephones.

"The air is very fresh and it's a pleasant atmosphere to work in," said Bennett.

Display Effect Of Redecorating On An Old House

A MOMENT OF REST . . . is taken by a faculty member and students of the school of art at a redecorated house located at 506 Greene Street. The project, a joint one of the Interior Design Department of the School of Art, East Carolina University and the Greenville Redevelopment Commission, opened to the public this morning. Taking a break are (left to right) Barbara Payne, faculty member Melvin Stanforth, Wayne Newman, Beverly Glace and Mary Cobb. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

As a joint project to highlight the possibilities of what can be done to bring new life to an old house and what young interior designers can accomplish, a redecorated house at 506 Greene Street was opened to the public this morning, and will remain open through Sunday for inspection by interested persons.

The house, provided through a rent free lease by the Greenville Redevelopment Commission, has been repainted and decorated, including the front entry porch.

The idea for this project originated in November 1971 in a "brain-storm" session with Interior Design students. Dr. Wellington Gray, Chairman of the School of Art, Warren Chamberlain, Chairman of the Interior Design Department, and Julian Vainwright, of the East Carolina University Business Office, approved the suggestion of students to take on a project of rehabilitating an unoccupied house.

The idea was subsequently approved by members of the Redevelopment Commission. The house on Greene Street was located by Billy Laughinghouse, chairman of the Greenville Redevelopment Commission.

After getting the go ahead, Larry Holt, Project Manager for the Central Business District project, worked with faculty and students from the university in coordinating the interior design project.

Planning and designing the four room interior was directed by Melvin Stanforth, faculty member of the Interior Design Department of the School of Art, East Carolina University.

Eight senior Interior Design students carried out work on the project, creating four distinctly different atmospheres.

Students doing the work are: Steve Wood, Mary Cobb, Barbara Payne, Wayne Newman, Janine Kirdendall, Anne Mauney, Lynn Barringer and Beverly Glace.

The entry room is a study in a conversational grouping for four people. The second room, bare of furniture, features all white walls, no furniture and a geometric design in white, yellow, black and gray painted on the floor. This room, student Wayne Newman explained, "is an experiment in space, making use of the relationship of height and size of the room, location of the doors and other physical factors of the room."

A third room is a study in deep rich browns with highlights of complimentary colors. This is a man's study, and features solid masculine furniture with a small Persian rug adding a lighter touch. The fourth room is a commercial bar.

Stanforth praised the diligence of the pupils engaged in the project, noting "they have transformed a simple wooden house into a fine example of what can be done with a very small budget." He said too "that some real muscle work was involved in the clean up needed in the early part of the work."

Furniture for the rooms has been furnished courtesy of Maxwell Brothers furniture, and carpeting has been provided by Larry's Carpetland.

"We hope there'll be lots of people stopping by to see what these young people have done," Stanforth commented. "I think they will be surprised at the results." An official opening ceremony took place this morning at 11:00 o'clock with representatives of the Redevelopment Commission, East Carolina University, and the City of Greenville on hand to inspect the rehabilitated house.

Astronaut Has Brand New Son

TEXAS CITY, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Thomas K. Mattingly, wife of the Apollo 16 astronaut, has given birth to a 4-pound, 2-ounce boy at Galveston County Memorial Hospital.

A hospital spokesman confirmed the Saturday event Wednesday night and said the Mattinglys had asked that no public announcement be made.

Mrs. Mattingly and the child, Thomas Kenneth Mattingly III, were doing well, the spokesman said. Mattingly was command module pilot on the Apollo 16 moon-landing mission that ended April 27.

It was a lawsuit brought by the council and other groups that led to the court in March issuing a temporary restraining order against the work at Chicod until the SCS made an environmental impact statement.

As explained by SCS officials, such statements are made as a matter of course for watershed projects since they were required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

But Chicod Creek, the SCS maintained, was approved for actual installation in Aug. 1966, long before the law required environmental impact reports.

The SCS is afraid a precedent may be set by the Chicod Creek ruling, that the agency may have to go back and assemble impact statements on hundreds of earlier watershed projects.

Environmentalists, on the other hand, welcome that possibility. They believe dredging and straightening waterways result in irreparable losses to fish and wildlife, more pollution from agricultural chemicals flowing from fields, heavier siltation from erosion and higher costs in the longrun to repair damage.

By itself, Chicod Creek Watershed is a small part of the national program administered by the Soil Conservation Service. Moreover, the agency says, stream channelization represents a much smaller activity than some of the protesters claim.

The Soil Conservation Service does not deny that damage occurs to wildlife because of watershed work, but it does say benefits to farmers and the public at large outweigh the disadvantages.

In the case of Chicod Creek, for example, the environmental report says the 66 miles of channel work will "temporarily increase" sedimentation during construction; convert some crop land and forest to other uses; reduce the sanctuary in wetlands for deer; destroy 360 acres of hardwood forest habitat for wildlife; reduce fish capacity in 14 miles of stream and mean other losses.

But, the report says, the benefits from the channel work will include: increased net income for small farmers by an average of $300 a year each; reduce soil erosion losses; increase per acre yield of crops; reduce flooding of roads and bridges; and improve water quality.

Over-all, the report says, the economic benefits average $16 for each $10 spent on the work. The entire watershed covers 35,100 acres and will benefit more than 250 farms.

Youth Bitten

By A Rabid Cat

BRIDGEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A 19-year-old youth from this community outside Pittsburgh has been bitten by a rabid cat, triggering a quarantine on all pets in the community.

The county health department said it was the first time a cat was found to have rabies in the county. Medical authorities said the disease affects dogs, foxes, bats and skunks but is extremely rare in cats.

All owners of pets were ordered Wednesday night to keep their animals indoors or face prosecution. Residents in surrounding communities were asked to confine their pets voluntarily.

There was no estimate of the number of pets kept in Bridgeville, which has a population of 7,000.

Brownies Advanced

The Brownies of Troop 246 became Junior Girl Scouts during a fly-up ceremony Wednesday.

After the Brownies received their second year stars and Brownie wings, they lit candles symbolizing the three part Girl Scout Promise and the ten Girl Scout laws.

Each girl was presented a trefoil pin by members of Troop 335. Assisting were Junior Girl Scouts Karen Jeffreys, Gwen Tyson, Dawn Price, Camille Smith, Pat Paschal, Laurie Lucas, all of Troop 335, and Laurie Smith of Troop 97. They were assisted by Mrs. J. B. Smith Jr.

The new Junior Scouts are: Beth Congleton, Robin Chandler, Marjorie Crane, Mary Louise Crisp, Paula Daughtry, Lori Jo Edwards, Kay and Kim Fisher, Teresa Little, Deborah Lowder, Debbie Narron, Stacy Stephenson, Becky Sullivan, Patricia Tugwell, and Julia Yongue.

The leaders are Mrs. Gerald Crane and Mrs. Hoyt Narron.

McGeachy Has

Lennon Backing

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Alton Lennon of Wilmington, who is retiring after 16 years in the House, has endorsed Hector McGeachy as his successor in the 7th District.

McGeachy ran second to Charlie Rose in a three-man race in the May 6 primary, and the two are opposed in the June 3 runoff. Both are Fayetteville lawyers.

Lennon, in endorsing McGeachy Wednesday night, pointed to his legislative experience as a veteran member of the state Senate.

Pat Taylor Makes Tax Policy A Major Issue

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor accused Democratic gubernatorial opponent Skipper Bowles Wednesday of "saying no new taxes as if he were trying to help the average North Carolinian."

"He is giving... a tax program for the wealthy and the big corporations while the average North Carolinian... will continue to pay and pay the same taxes and get no service for it," Taylor told a Charlotte news conference.

Bowles, frontrunner in the May 6 primary, is in a runoff with Taylor.

The lieutenant governor proposes eliminating state income tax levies against persons making under $5,000 a year and making up the loss with a boost in the tax on persons with higher incomes. Bowles has not suggested any changes in the tax structure, saying he opposes any increase.

"I'm going to put on the boxing gloves now, and I'm going to fight just as clean and as much as I can by the rules of fair play" against Bowles, Taylor said. The lieutenant governor categorized himself as the underdog and renewed his challenge to a debate with Bowles.

He said he had been outspent as well as outpromised in the first primary. Taylor added, "If I have to go and stand on a soapbox, I'm going to tell the people what's involved. I can't spend any more because I don't have it," he said.

The lieutenant governor accused Bowles of being a "marching politician, a member for 12 years 'of cliques, or groups of people' associated with former Gov. Terry Sanford. 'I don't fault him for it,' Taylor said, adding he does blame Bowles "for trying to put me a part of it when he knows I am not and have not been" allied with Gov. Bob Scott.

TB Detection Plan Expanded

The Pitt County Community Health Department x-ray machine, now in disrepair, will be put back in service as soon as possible and hopefully will become part of an expanded tuberculosis detection and treatment program, according to Dr. Robert W. May, medical director of the Health Department.

Inquiries about whether x-rays for tuberculosis will continue to be a service of the Community Health Department prompted the statement by Dr. May.

He explained that parts for the machine have been ordered, but because workers of the only company from which they may be obtained is on strike, they have not yet arrived. "We have every intention of continuing to use the machine," he said, "though we will be more strict about using it only for persons who have had a positive tuberculin skin test."

Though it's still in the planning stages and must be approved as part of the 1972-73 budget to be reviewed in June, he intimated that an expanded TB control program is contemplated for this county which reportedly has the highest TB rate in the state. The program hopefully would include a ski test for every Pitt Countian and a year's treatment at home for those who show latent signs of the disease to prevent them from developing full-blown cases that would require sanatorium stays.

GI Underground Planning March

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — The GI Union, an underground organization of Ft. Bragg soldiers, plans a rally and march Saturday to protest the Defense Department's suspension of early discharges. The march also will protest the war in Southeast Asia.

The early discharge program had allowed GIs to get out of the Army six months before their enlistment was up. But it has been suspended for a minimum of 90 days because the Army has reached the desired manpower level.

NEW TEACHING PLAN DENTON, Tex. (AP) — North Texas State University and the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine in Fort Worth have signed a contract to cooperatively teach the first year of basic science to some 48 freshmen osteopathic students on the Denton campus beginning in September.

No Signs Of Hanoi Goal-Change

By LEWIS GULICK Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. analysts are guessing that North Vietnam will try to maintain enough military punch after its current offensive to make new efforts against the Saigon regime in 1973 and thereafter. The U.S. intelligence estimates of Hanoi's future capabilities formed part of the backdrop for President Nixon's May 8 decision to choke off North Vietnam's supplies from Russia and China.

Included In '72 Banquet Awards

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Explorer Jacques Costeau, Boston Bruins hockey star Phil Esposito and the Rev. Mother Waddies, who has gained national recognition for her work with the poor in Detroit, will be included in The American Academy of Achievement's 1972 Salute to Excellence.

Academy founder Briane Blaine Reynolds announced Wednesday that the awards will be presented during a banquet at the Salt Palace July 8. The will be among 50 men and women cited for extraordinary accomplishment.

"The whole idea of the academy is to instill a greater awareness than ever before that America has unlimited opportunities for a person to do great things—and be respected for doing them," Reynolds said.

Given 4 Years In Bank Holdup

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Bobby Herald Culpepper, 36, has been sentenced to four years imprisonment after being convicted of conspiring to burglarize the North Carolina Bank at Wingate more than two years ago. He gave notice of appeal and was released on $7,500 bond.

U. S. District Judge Wilson Warlick passed sentence after hearing further testimony Wednesday. Culpepper had been convicted last week of conspiring with Walter Jack Harwell to burglarize the bank near Monroe and about 25 miles southeast of Charlotte. Harwell is a fugitive.

No money was taken from the bank in the alleged burglary attempt in November of 1969. But tools used to break into the vault were found inside the bank.

By U.S. estimates, however, such a go-for-broke strategy would be highly costly to the North Vietnamese. While Saigon forces are hard-pressed and have left wide areas of

Chicago Greeted Apollo 16 Crew

CHICAGO (AP) — Apollo 16 astronauts John W. Young, Thomas K. Mattingly and Charles M. Duke came to Chicago for what has become a traditional welcome for America's space travelers.

The three were greeted Wednesday at O'Hare International Airport by Mayor Richard J. Daley and his family. Then they traveled by motorcade to downtown Chicago where they were greeted by an estimated 50,000 persons.

The Apollo 16 crew was the ninth astronaut team to visit Chicago shortly after returning from a space trip.

countryside thinly defended, U.S. officials say Saigon's troops plus U.S. airpower already are mounting a heavy toll on the enemy.

Therefore analysts expect Hanoi more likely will decide to hold down costly frontal assaults except at some symbolically important points such as Hue, and to try to move into little-contested areas of the countryside.

Castro Begins Bulgaria Visit

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba has arrived in Bulgaria for an official visit.

The Bulgarian news agency BTA reported in a dispatch Wednesday that Castro was greeted in Sofia by President Todor Zhivkov.

They anticipate that Hanoi would accompany this military threat with a renewed offer at the Paris negotiating table of terms which, in the U.S. view, would amount to a communist takeover of the South.

If North Vietnam decides its spring offensive has gained little, it could pull its forces back into the bases outside South Vietnam to prepare for another drive later. Some units probably would remain dug in south of the demilitarized zone, especially if Hue is captured.

U.S. analysts say the North Vietnamese think time is on their side.

Nixon's strategy counts time as in Saigon's favor—for progress in Vietnamization while U.S. air-sea interdiction takes hold on Hanoi's supply lines from the outside.

focused basically on issues directly related to the Vietnam war in her afternoon talk and dealt with broad political issues in her evening talk.

Referring to the escalation of bombing and mining of Hanoi harbor, she remarked that, in relation to overall peace approaches that "there seems to be a poverty of imagination, a poverty of will to end the war or to offer alternative priorities to conditions that makes this wholesale slaughter possible."

Sister Elizabeth told approximately 200 listeners, many of them university students who made the march from the Mall to the courthouse, "what we're doing here today and the growing concern across the nation is important, but limited. 'I fear,' she continued, "that this is a rite of spring, an exercise of tribute to our own decency before the masters of deceit."

"No single action is going to alter the situation, its more difficult than that, its a matter of giving one's life if necessary, of coming together on our own hopes, fears, our visions.

"It's a question of how we will insure the next generation will live. These questions "are not being asked in the White House conferences, they are not being asked in Congress or in our courts. Until people like you start asking the questions, we are not really going to live."

Sister Elizabeth touched briefly on her personal experiences in the conspiracy charge trial. She termed the experience "both beautiful and terrible. It taught me to get rid of fear."

"Our responsibility is one of conspiracy to save lives. It is good to remember that our church was a conspiracy in the beginning, and for that crime many died." She later noted that "our country was founded by men labelled as conspirators."

"What we call a peace movement is no movement at all, it has yet to be created," Sister Elizabeth told her attentive listeners. "It is largely defensive, notoriously ad hoc. We have not served the millions of decent people in this county, people who are agonizing over a real, a serious inner crisis. "We must serve rather than mock or scoff."

An articulate spokesman, this woman who has been prominent in peace movements took the opportunity in several instances to warn her listeners of the danger of confusing attitudes of mocking or ridicule with serving.

At one point in her evening talk a young man, citing the attentive reception she was receiving from her audience in Wright, asked what she thought the reception would be before, for example, a group like the Rose High PTA?

"What do you really know about the Rose High PTA?" she asked.

"You're putting a label on them. Our task is not to label others, but to build bridges of communication. It's all too easy to hide in our own corners, to talk to only those who think as we think. We must recognize and deal with the violence that is within us, and labeling others is part of that violence."

After detailing a series of developments which Sister Elizabeth said she feels are examples of "eroding" of legislative and judicial powers by the executive branch of government, she declared that "we have allowed our president to become alienated, we have stood by while he has taken, without real consultation with other branches of government, activities which can only be called the acts of a dictator. "But," she remarked, "we are not going to change the country simply by electing a new president. We must be part of the change. Let me ask you about your problems in Greenville, your problems in education for example. What are you really doing about it?"

On means of effecting changes, Sister Elizabeth stood firm on changes within the present system. "Our constitution," she noted, "we've never really tried out. It is a fine document. The answer is not to throw it out, but to put it to work."

The encroachment of individual rights and privacy through growing measures of government surveillance was another topic Sister Elizabeth spoke on at length. "Your own Ervin's senate investigations disclosed that one of every eight American citizens is the subject of a dossier in the Army Intelligence files," she observed.

On the use of the term "criminal elements in society," she asked if the definition must include "all who are restless, those who are creative, people who ask questions about their government, and those who, when necessary, say no. The answer of course is no," she said, "but the application of such definitions is part of a policy of manipulation and control of individuals."

Sister Elizabeth's Greenville appearance was sponsored by the Student Government Association at East Carolina University and the East Carolina Student Peace Movement.

Her plans call for leaving Greenville Thursday morning to return to New York.

For her talks in Greenville, the nun wore a simple white dress instead of the traditional dress of a Catholic Sister.

Officers Are Elected By Pitt GOP Women

Mrs. Margaret Hudson was elected president of the Pitt County Republican Women's Club at the charter meeting of the group held in Greenville Wednesday night.

Federated with the State and National Federation of Republican Women, a decision was made at a recent organizational gathering to proceed with plans to charter the Republican club.

Party, and to promote its principles; and to support the objectives and policies of the Republican National Committee and to work for the election of Republican National Committee and to work for the election of Republican candidates.

The new organization plans in the near future to announce additional meetings and plans for enlarging the number of members belonging to the newest women's political group in Pitt County.

Hitching Posts Seen For Bikes

SATELLITE BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It may be back to the old hitching post in this ocean-side community if Police Chief Jack Henderson has his way.

The reason is bikes, not horses.

"I was looking at our larceny reports the other day," Henderson said, "and it suddenly dawned on me how to cut our bicycle theft rate by 85 per cent."

"It's like an old hitching post," he said. "You could lock the bike to it so the only way you could steal it would be to break the wheel off."

Other officers elected to serve on the first slate of officers were Mrs. Ria Grasman, first vice-president and chairman of the Program Committee; Mrs. Gigi Bumgarner, second vice-president and chairman, Membership and Publicity; Mrs. Jackie McAlpine, third vice-president and chairman, Ways and Means Committee; Mrs. Rose Griffin, secretary; and Mrs. Eloise K. Howard, treasurer.

Four major objectives for the organization approved by charter members are: To promote an informed public through political education and activity; to increase the effectiveness of women in the cause of good government; to foster loyalty to the Republican

Pacemaker For Infant's Heart

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A miniaturized heart pacemaker has been implanted in a 2-month-old baby here, believed to be the youngest recipient of the device.

The operation, doctors said Wednesday, has enabled the once-failing heart of Nicole Kruljac to beat strongly. Nicole, a twin, was born with a complete heart block, said Dr. Stanley Higashino, chief of cardiology at Children's Hospital Medical Center.

Nicole, of Sonoma, was near death April 30 due to an abnormally slow heartbeat. Doctors installed a temporary pacemaker in her heart and the permanent model was implanted in an operation May 4.

The pacemaker sends electric impulses to the heart muscle, causing it to beat at a proper rate.

While everyone was talking about smoother taste, a new smoothness happened. Barton's QT.

$4.80 Fifth.
$3.00 Pint.

Several years ago, we at Barton began storing away a whiskey unlike any other ever produced in this country.

A new whiskey distilled at a higher proof than most traditional American whiskey, and then stored in seasoned oak casks.

The result is the new smoothness of Barton's QT. The Quiet Taste. A whiskey made to give you all the mellow, full-bodied flavor you drink whiskey for. But with a noticeably smoother taste.

It's similar in character to the other popular American whiskeys, but lighter and milder than any whiskey you've ever tasted.

Because Barton's QT is the American whiskey that's literally made to taste smoother. Not just sound that way.

The Quiet Taste is as smooth as you can get.

Four-Day String Festival Beginning Here Tomorrow

A four day String Festival is in store for students and the public in Greenville beginning on Friday and continuing through Monday. Andor Toth, concertmaster of the Los Angeles Chamber orchestra, is to be here for the four day period as guest artist-teacher under the auspices of the Greenville City Schools in cooperation with the School of Music at East Carolina University.

Following graduation from the Juilliard School of Music, Toth was named by George Szell to the post of assistant concertmaster of the Cleveland Orchestra and conductor of its chamber orchestra, the Cleveland Little Symphony. He has also served as associate conductor of the Houston Symphony. In Houston he conducted some 150 concerts as well as opera, ballet and musical comedy.

During his career the violinist has also filled the post of professor of violin at Oberlin Conservatory and later headed the string department at the University of Colorado and at the University of Texas.

In addition to being concertmaster of the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra; Toth is currently violinist of the famed Alma Trio, director of the Chamber Music Center at San Francisco State College, and on the faculty of the University of the University of California at Santa Cruz.

For the four day festival, Toth is scheduled to appear in one concert, to hold three masterclasses in stringed instruments, and conduct two workshop sessions.

The schedule of appearances is:

—Friday — 7:30 p.m. String Festival Concert featuring the literature of Sinichi Suzuki, the noted Japanese composer and founder of the Suzuki method of teaching stringed instruments to children.

—Saturday — 10:00 a.m. Fletcher Music Center. Masterclass for String Project students from the Greenville City Schools. 2:00 p.m., masterclass for East Carolina University string students.

—Sunday — 2:00 p.m., Fletcher Music Center, a final masterclass for string project students from the Greenville City Schools.

—Monday — 9:00 a.m. Elmhurst Elementary School. Workshop session with String Project students. 10:15 a.m. Aycock Junior High School, workshop session with String Project students.

The four day appearance of Roth in the String Festival is part of the overall East Carolina University String Project, the joint ECU—Greenville City School program for teaching stringed instruments to children.

The project, with 120 students, is under the direction of Rodney Schmidt, faculty member of the School of Music at ECU. Other city and university personnel assisting in this program are

James E. Rodgers and Johnny Wooten of the city schools; Michael Kinzie,

Linda Fryman of ECU; Joanne Bath, Jan Kittrell, Nancy Kosteck and Theresa

Shank, affiliated teachers; and student teachers Deborah Burns, Nancy Chappell, Linda Gibson, Deborah Reed, Marilyn Secor, and Elizabeth Stoney.

Scott Looks To 'New Era'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott of North Carolina says that as a result of recent court decisions "there can be no doubt . . . we are beginning a new era in financing local public education."

In a brief talk prepared for the opening of a meeting of the Education Commission of the States, Scott said that education is clearly a state responsibility, and "this year the Education Commission of the States has brought its resources to bear on the problem of education's financial dilemma."

Scott was referring to recent court decision which have held illegal plans by which schools are financed through local property taxes. The court decisions said such plans are unfair because property taxes will raise more money per child in some school districts than in others because of greater wealth.

"Although equity in school financing will not come easily, the commission has shown through its action this year that it can provide some of the professional resources needed to deal effectively with this and other problems developing in education," Scott said.

Two Classes Are Set At Center

Two classes have been scheduled for the Moyewood Social Services Center. Driver Education Classes will be held on Tuesday and Thursday each week from 4:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. starting May 25. Black History, the second class, will begin May 29, meeting from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. In order to register interested individuals may call Moyewood Center or come to the center in person.

If you can't manage now, how are you going to manage later?

Money's tight. You feel pretty lucky if you can stretch your paycheck enough to meet all the everyday expenses. It's harder than ever to save a buck. And how are you going to take care of the future, when you've got enough trouble just taking care of the present?

But, you can manage to save—by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's a sure way to get started on a nest egg that you can depend on in the future.

The amount you designate will be automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds, before you get your check, and before you can spend it.

So, join the Payroll Savings Plan and start on your "secret stash" today. And then just relax and don't worry about tomorrow. You'll manage.

Now U.S. Bonds pay 8 1/2% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Home-Selling Costs Can Be High

NEW YORK (UPI) — The need for a cushion against the "extra" costs of home buying is pretty well known. Most families now figure it will cost more than they expect. The family selling a home, however, may not be as well prepared.

The expenses of selling a house may run anywhere from 9 to 21 per cent of appraised valuation; this on top of whatever cost may be involved for cleaning, painting or repairs that may be necessary to put a house into market condition.

"Awareness of how these costs accumulate can help prevent a rude shock when a sale is closed," advises Daniel C.

Hanrahan, of Elizabeth, N.J. "Expense fluctuations result from money market conditions, real estate commission rates, how long a property remains unsold and other variables," he said.

Hanrahan founded and heads POTERE, Inc. The firm—its name is an acronym for "purchase of transferred employee real estate"—purchases the owner's equity in his home, enabling him to buy a new one before selling the old. It then markets the property through local real estate brokers.

Enumerating possible selling costs, Hanrahan pointed out that commissions paid to real estate brokers (6 or 7 per cent depending on locality) represent only a portion of the costs of selling a home. Many mortgages call for an early pay-off penalty. This charge, a percentage of the unpaid balance, can be as high as 1 per cent of appraised valuation. Legal, survey, recording and similar fees total from 1 to 2 per cent of sale price, he said.

Discount Points
Depending on conditions in the money market, a seller can be charged a mortgage placement fee, to enable his buyer to arrange new financing. Usually referred to as "discount points"—assessed as a percentage of the loan being sought—this fee can equal as much as 5 per cent of the selling price, Hanrahan said.

"These expenses, which are included in the closing statement for transfer of a piece of real estate, total from 7 to 15 per cent of a home's selling price," Hanrahan said. "But what many sellers fail to take into account are the just-as-real selling expenses incurred prior to a closing."

He estimated these expenses on a typical transferee's home—a $30,000 house with a mortgage balance of $20,000. The same would hold true for a family buying a new home locally into which it moved before selling the old home.

"Assuming the residence is vacant, monthly expenses until a sale is closed will include: mortgage interest, $100; real estate tax, $60; utilities, $10, and maintenance, $10. These total $180, or 6-10ths of 1 per cent of the $30,000 valuation.

"In addition, the $10,000 equity tied up in the home while it is on the market must be taken into account. Whether an owner borrows a like amount to purchase a new home or simply is denied the use of his capital until a sale is concluded, he should consider interest on the $10,000 as a cost of sale. At 6 per cent, this amounts to $50 a month.

"Money spent traveling to the vacant residence for maintenance or to negotiate a sale, plus supervisory time, also should be charged against the sale. Arbitrarily, this can be set at $50 a month for the transferee.

Carrying Charges
"These two $50 items, added to other non-closing statement expenses," Hanrahan said, "increase what can be described as 'carrying charges' to 1 per cent of the selling price, for every month the property is held on the market." In attempting to predict actual costs, Hanrahan said a seller should assume that from two to six months will elapse between listing and title transfer to a buyer. "A prudent cost projection should anticipate six months," he said. "Any shorter period will be to the seller's benefit—at the rate of 1 per cent of the selling price per month."

Summarizing selling costs, Hanrahan said real estate sales commission will range from a low of 6 per cent to a high of 7 per cent; mortgage placement fee (points) from nothing to 5 per cent; mortgage pre-payment penalty from nothing to 1 per cent; legal, survey, record fees, etc., from 1 to 2 per cent; carrying charges from 2 to 6 per cent, for a total of 9 to 21 per cent.

Generally, he said, costs will fall somewhere in between, with any expenses for putting the house into condition to sell added to this.

"It costs money to cash in an investment in a residence," Hanrahan said. "Sellers who realistically estimate expected expenses will avoid the shock of smaller-than-expected proceeds from the sale of a house."

Taxpayers Can Amend Returns

GREENSBORO — The International Revenue Service has names and numbers on some 200,000 Southeastern taxpayers who were victims of bad advice, but most of those with erroneous tax returns are saving money by making corrections before being audited.

J. E. Wall, IRS District Director in North Carolina, said that millions of tax dollars are yet to be collected from taxpayers who were victims of unscrupulous commercial return preparers in the seven-state Southeastern region. The IRS is now compiling lists of taxpayers who will be audited.

Those taxpayers being audited were duped by unscrupulous return preparers who illegally increased deductions and dependents, usually telling their clients that "a little cheating is permissible—everyone else is doing it."

At least one return preparer in the Southeast had over 6000 clients, and several of the unscrupulous tax advisors are believed to have been responsible for individually defrauding the government of more than a million dollars in taxes.

Wall said that the IRS is concerned with the fraudulent returns prepared by a relatively few return preparers, and the vast majority of the 30,000 Southeastern tax practitioners are preparing honest and accurate returns.

The IRS official also said that a large number of other tax audits not related to the problem of unscrupulous return preparers are being routinely conducted in North Carolina.

19 additional pending cases. The IRS regional office had earlier predicted the audits of 50,000 taxpayers who had been victimized by unscrupulous preparers who are being prosecuted, but the number of anticipated audits has jumped to "in excess of 200,000" as a result of additional arrests.

Demand Return Of Assessments

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Clifford Irving, his wife Edith and his researcher, Richard Suskind—principals in the Howard Hughes autobiography hoax—have filed suit in U.S. District Court demanding more than $91,000 which they said was taken as "jeopardy assessments" by the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS applied tax liens against the Irvings and Suskind last February, more than a month before they pleaded guilty to constructing a hoax in which McGraw-Hill Inc. paid out $750,000 for a bogus autobiography of Hughes, the billionaire industrialist.

Each could receive 13 years in prison and $11,000 fines.

The three asked the court to dissolve the assessments on grounds that the government had failed to take "certain technical steps required by law" in collecting the money against 1971 income taxes.

Saigon Reports Casualties Up

SAIGON (AP) — Both South Vietnamese and enemy casualties increased last week, according to the weekly summaries issued today, while the number of Americans killed or wounded in combat was less than the week before. But there were increases in U.S. casualties from nonhostile causes, apparently due to an air crash.

The South Vietnamese command listed 3,613 enemy killed last week, a sharp increase from 2,349 the week before. It said 56 enemy were captured.

The U.S. Command said 13 Americans were killed in action last week, six less than the week before. Twenty-six Americans were wounded in combat, headquarters said, two less than a week earlier.

However, the casualty summary reported 18 American deaths last week from nonhostile causes, an increase of 12 over the previous week, and 18 missing from nonhostile causes.

Although the command would not say, 32 of them were believed lost in the crash May 10 of a big U.S. Army helicopter 20 miles north of Saigon. In such cases, men whose bodies are not recovered are usually listed as missing.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American—45,747 killed in action, 303,071 wounded, 10,170 dead from nonhostile causes, 1,583 missing or captured.

South Vietnamese—142,727 killed in action, 363,367 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—831,663 killed.

The total amount of gold that can still be recovered from the earth is estimated at 31,250 tons, says National Geographic.

Wall said, "It will be much easier for a taxpayer, who had filed a false return with the help of an unscrupulous return preparer in the last few years, to come to us instead of waiting for us to get around to him. It may take us some time to audit all of the extra returns we have, and the interest will be accumulating all the time until the proper taxes are paid."

Last year the IRS in the seven-state Southeastern region prosecuted six return preparers, but the record so far this year is up sharply: three guilty pleas; 13 arrests; 10 indictments; and

Profanity Is Said 'Legal'

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The state attorney general's office says a Charlotte ordinance prohibiting the use of profane, boisterous and indecent language to disturb the peace is unconstitutional.

Mecklenburg County Solicitor Thomas F. Moore, who requested the opinion, said Wednesday the ruling was the reason he had dropped charges last week against three men accused of disorderly conduct last Oct. 15 during the observance of Billy Graham Day. President Nixon was among those attending the tribute to the Charlotte-born evangelist in the Charlotte Coliseum.

Two other youths charged with trespassing at the coliseum were freed, Moore said, because the state's only witness refused to testify.

The five were among 14 persons who later sued Charlotte police and the U.S. Secret Service, contending they were excluded from the observance because of their long hair. That case is still undecided.

A Finalist In Swimsuit

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO—East Carolina coed Miss Debbe Falls, who is representing North Carolina in the Miss USA pageant in Puerto Rico this week, is one of 10 finalists in the swimsuit competition.

She was announced as a winner after the Tuesday evening evening dress and swimsuit competition.

The tanned Miss Falls, a resident of Vale and a senior physical education major at ECU, arrived in Puerto Rico Tuesday, May 9 and will return to Greenville Monday, May 22.

The pageant will be televised Saturday night from 10 p. m. to midnight on CBS. Twelve overall finalists will be chosen at this time and after interviews with each, the field will be narrowed to five in preparation for the crowning.

The girl picked as Miss USA in this pageant represents the United States in the Miss Universe pageant.

Medical Teams To Help Towns

RALEIGH (AP)—Teams from the National Health Service Corps will help provide medical services in the North Carolina towns of Dublin and Maxton this summer. Rep. Nick Galifianakis announced Wednesday.

The congressman said Dublin, in Bladen County, and Maxton, in Robeson County, are two of 122 towns in the nation which will receive NHS teams beginning in July. Galifianakis said the two towns made application for assistance under the Emergency Health Personnel Act of 1970.

Mental Checkup After Murder

RALEIGH (AP)—A 13-year old Garner youth has been sent to a state mental hospital for observation to determine if he is mentally capable of standing trial for the stabbing death of his mother.

Wake County District Judge George Bason Wednesday ordered Lloyd Wayne Brown committed to a mental hospital for not over 60 days.

The youth is charged with murder in the death of Mrs. Lillie Mae Brown. She was stabbed eight times in the chest and back with a hunting knife which officers said belonged to the boy.

Wake County deputy Victor Spence said he had learned that Mrs. Brown was in the boy's bedroom talking to him about a headache when the stabbing occurred.

Cambodia Losing More Ground

By ROBIN MANNOCK
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodia has lost more large chunks of its territory to the Communists in the last month but Marshal Lon Nol hangs on and demands that the enemy surrender.

The Communists have seized substantial portions of the southern provinces of Svay Rieng, Kampot and Takeo since mid-April and also have taken parts of neighboring Kandal and Prey Veng, all near the border with South Vietnam.

These gains combined with earlier seizures in the north give the Vietnamese Communists and their Cambodian allies control over perhaps a million Cambodians—one seventh of the population—in more than half the country.

"Why don't the Cambodians just surrender?" wondered an American colonel.

"The present situation is forcing you to bring the war to an end," Lon Nol told the Communists. He offered the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong prisoner of war status in camps supervised by the International Red Cross.

One Communist diplomat gripped his middle-aged paunch and rocked with laughter when told of the speech.

Some observers felt Lon Nol might have decided President Nixon's decision to mine North Vietnamese harbors and bomb the communication lines will bring the Communists to their knees.

There also was speculation that he might be trying to cover up new negotiations, backed sister, Mrs. Horace Ray Jackson of Grifton; an aunt who reared her, Mrs. Lydia Chapman of the home; and one grandchild.

By the Soviet Union, to end the main Communist fighting units fighting in Cambodia while leaving North Vietnam in control east of the Mekong River, where most Communist bases are.

Such talks were reported earlier this year in Phnom Penh between a representative of Hanoi and Col. Lon Nol, the marshal's younger brother. Lon Nol is due to return this week from Paris, where observers feel he might have taken negotiations another step.

By the Phnom Penh government's own admission, the Cambodian army—officially some 200,000 men—has been unable to halt enemy forces reduced to 30,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers—mostly rear area troops. The

Despite the gloomy picture, Lon Nol apparently has no intention of giving up. In a radio message Monday, he brushed aside the losses and called on the Communist forces to give up.

The latest enemy gains in Takeo suggest to some that Hanoi has decided on permanent conquest of southern Cambodia. They think this because the Communists are now attacking areas that are not essential supply routes to the Mekong Delta in South Vietnam. Protecting supply corridors previously was considered the main North Vietnamese objective in Cambodia.

NEW YORK (AP) — A North Vietnamese spokesman in Haiphong says that American mines are being removed from the harbor as they are dropped and that ship traffic is not blocked, the New York Times reported today.

Times reporter Anthony Lewis in Haiphong said independent sources say that at least one ship—the East German freighter Frieden—entered the harbor this week, lending support to the North Vietnamese claim.

In Washington, administration officials said categorically that no ship had entered or left the harbor since it was mined and said reconnaissance showed no minesweeping activity. They said the Frieden was in the harbor before the mining. Lewis wrote in the Times that he visited the port area briefly Wednesday and saw about a dozen ships in berths. He said it had been hard hit by bombs.

Lewis reported there is much evidence of extremely heavy bombing in Haiphong, with areas flattened like German cities that were subjected to strategic bombing in World War II. He said the North Vietnamese report that the worst attack came Sunday April 16 and left 244 persons dead, 513 injured and nearly 2,000 homes destroyed.

Six Teams Set For Summer Loop

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Early indications are that the North Carolina Tar Heels will be hard pressed to defend their championship in the N.C. Collegiate Summer Baseball League which begins play on June 6.

Coach Walter Rabb's Tar Heels swept the title last summer in the league's first year of operation, nosing out UNC at Wilmington in a hotly-contested race.

Now there are six teams in the league and the race shapes up as far better balanced than in 1971. Appalachian State, a member of the Southern Conference, is the newest league member, joining charter members East Carolina, Campbell College, Louisville, UNC at Wilmington and North Carolina.

Play gets started with three games on June 6. The opening night pairings send North Carolina to East Carolina, Louisville to Campbell and Appalachian State to UNC-Wilmington.

Each team will play a 35-game schedule. The regular season ends on Aug. 5 and the championship playoffs are scheduled to get under way on Aug. 7.

Two of the league members won championships in their respective conferences this spring. UNC-Wilmington advanced into NAAIA Tournament play, losing out in the District Playoffs. Louisville this week clinched the title in the Virginia-Cavalier Conference and will go into a regional playoff.

East Carolina finished second to Richmond in the Southern Conference and had another outstanding season under veteran coach Earl Smith. Appalachian also was impressive in the spring and is expected to field a strong team this summer.

The Appalachian team will be based in Red Springs, N.C., for the Summer League games. Red Springs officials are going all out to promote the 17 home games Appalachian State will play in that town.

Under league rules, a player is eligible if he was either enrolled in the school in the spring or will be enrolled for the semester beginning next fall. This means that incoming freshmen are eligible to play this summer.

Some of the top stars of 1971 returning for play this summer are pitcher Jim Chamberlain, shortstop Bobby Guthrie and second baseman Mickey Hickerson of North Carolina; pitchers Dave Sandlin and Eddie Booth and third baseman Greg Dalton of UNC-Wilmington; third baseman Phil Lamm and pitcher Phil Godwin of East Carolina; shortstop Ken Heintzelman and third baseman Bill Ellington of Campbell; and outfielder first baseman Wayne Ellington of Louisville.

Planters Nips NCNB By 5-4

Planters Bank edged past North Carolina National Bank, 5-4, last night, and pulled into a tie for second place in the Babe Ruth League.

Pepsi-Cola leads the league with a 4-0 record, while NCNB and Planters are now 3-2. They are followed by Carolina Dairy, 2-2; College View, 1-3 and Home Builders, 0-4.

NCNB took the lead in the first inning, scoring twice. Kelly Heath singled and took second on a wild pitch. Donnie Haddock singled him to third, and he scored on a passed ball. George Margin reached on an error, and Jack Jenkins was safe on a fielder's choice, scoring Haddock for a 2-0 lead.

Planters came right back with two of their own to tie it up. Greg Lassiter walked and took second on a passed ball. Josh Weeks singled and stole second. Ed Connolly brought both in with a double.

NCNB moved back ahead in the fourth with a run. Dave Middleton walked and Gil Whitford singled. An error on a pickoff attempt let Middleton score, making it 3-2.

They added another run in the fifth to move out 4-2. Jenkins reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. He scored when Joey Cherry reached on an error.

Planters came up with two in the bottom of the fifth to tie it again. Weeks reached on an error, as did Jim Wilson. Connolly was safe on a fielder's choice, scoring Weeks and a single by Dennis Cristiano scored Wilson for a 4-4 tie.

Then, in the seventh, Planters pushed over the winning run. Weeks reached on a single and an error. He took third on a passed ball and scored when Wayne Elks reached on an error.

Margin led the NCNB hitting with two, while Weeks and Bobby Sasser each had two for Planters.

Graniteers In 11-2 Victory

The Graniteers rolled to an 11-2 victory over the Moose yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League's second game of the season.

The win tied the Graniteers with the Elks for the league lead, both with 1-0 records. The Moose and Integon are both 0-1. Pepsi-Cola and the Exchange have yet to play.

The Moose started the action, scoring both of their runs in the first inning. Mickey Finn doubled and Mitch Meeks followed with a triple, scoring him. David Carroll singled, scoring Meeks for the 2-0 lead.

The Graniteers were held scoreless until the fourth when they rallied for four runs to take the lead. Mike Moyer reached on an error, as did Sam Hardy. They advanced on a wild pitch and Henry Wooten walked, loading the bases. With two outs, Wayne Stokes reached on an error, scoring Moyer. Mike Dixon then singled, scoring Hardy, Wooten and Stokes.

The Graniteers then added one in the fifth. Kevin Haut reached on an error and a passed ball moved him to second. He gained third on an out and scored when ~~Stokes~~ reached on a fielder's choice.

The final six came in the sixth. Tim Allen singled as did Haut. With two outs, Moyer was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Hardy walked to score Allen and Wooten also walked, scoring Haut. A wild pitch scored Moyer and a single by H. L. Austin brought in Hardy. Stokes then doubled, scoring Wooten and Austin with the final runs.

Finn led the Moose hitting with three, while David Carroll had two. Allen and Stokes each had two for the Graniteers.

Lolich Enjoying Top Spot; Wins Seventh Game As Tigers Roll, 6-1

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The coast is clear. All the roadblocks have been removed. Denny McLain is on his way to the minors. Vida Blue is still getting his arm out of hibernation. It's your turn to step front and center, Mickey Lolich.

Detroit's quality lefthander, who always seems to be overshadowed by somebody else, knows an opportunity when he sees one. And he isn't passing up his chance at the American League's pitching spotlight.

Lolich won his sixth straight game Wednesday night and became the first seven-game winner in the majors with a 6-1 decision over Baltimore. He fired a four-hitter and struck out six, increasing his American League lead in that department to 53.

Elsewhere Wednesday, Cleveland edged New York 2-1, Milwaukee trimmed Boston 4-1, Minnesota took Chicago 8-1, Oakland blanked California 4-0 and Texas outlasted Kansas City 4-3 in 18 innings.

Catcher Tom Haller drove in four runs for the Tigers, three of them on an eighth inning homer. That was plenty for Lolich, who now has seven complete games.

"No matter what I do," said Lolich, "people will remember what Vida Blue did last year. Can't you ever give me credit? What do I have to do?" Well, he could play the organ like McLain, or hold out all spring like Blue.

Lolich was always Detroit's No. 2 pitcher behind McLain when Denny was with the Tigers. McLain won 31 games in 1968 to 17 for Lolich but it was the chubby lefty who was the World Series hero with three victories including the seventh game against Bob Gibson.

Now McLain's gone and Blue still hasn't thrown a ball in anger. Lolich is 7-1 and wondering who'll come along to shove him into the shadows this time.

George Scott hammered a two-run homer and Jim Lonborg earned his first victory, helping Milwaukee beat the Boston Red Sox.

Scott and Lonborg both came to the Brewers from Boston in the giant 10-man trade engineered by the two clubs during the 1971 World Series.

Four Seasons Ups Its Lead

Four Seasons continued to roll along atop the City Softball League last night with a 13-5 win over Fieldcrest. In the other games, Harbin's beat Greenville Utilities, 10-8; Burger King downed the Jaycees, 13-3; and Parker's beat Shirley's, 5-2. Four Seasons heads the league with a 4-0 record, while Huey's is 2-0. They are followed by Parker's, 2-1; Harbin's, 1-1 and Hardee's and Shirley's both 2-2; Fieldcrest 1-2 and Burger King, 2-3; GUCo, 1-3, and the Jaycees, 0-3.

Four Seasons got all they needed in the first inning, scoring nine runs. Ronald Vincent doubled and Charles Vincent tripped. Dave Wilcox doubled and William Moyer singled. Jim Turcotte got a hit and Charles Allen walked. Donnie Brewer doubled and Walter Stasavich homered. Ronald Vincent followed with another homer for the 9-0 lead.

Four Seasons added two in the second, one in the fourth and one in the fifth. Fieldcrest got two in the first and three in the seventh.

In the second game, GUCo got a brief lead with a run in the first, but Harbin's came up with four including a homer by Jack Wall. Harbin's added another in the second, but a homer by Alton Hathaway countered that for GUCo in the fourth. GUCo added three in the fourth, but Harbin's came up with four in the fourth to move ahead, 9-5, and they never lost the lead after that. Jim Brewington singled and Dave Bumgarner doubled to open the Harbin frame. Bud Phillips reached on a fielder's choice and Billy Byrd singled. He scored on Kim Harbin's fielder's choice with what proved to be the winning run.

Burger King got all they needed in the second, scoring seven times. Toby Sklar led off with a double and Slack tripled. Mike Sautler and Leonard Teel both singled. Bill Williamson got a hit and Wilson McDowell got a double. Robert Perkins tripled and scored the final run on Ronald Barnes' hit for a 7-0 lead.

Burger King added one in the third as Slack homered, then picked up two in the fourth on a homer by Perkins. Three more scored in the fifth. The Jaycees got a run in the second on a homer by Bob Turner and then added two more in the third.

Parker's took the lead in the second with a run, but Shirley's tied it up with one in their half of the inning. Parker's got another in the fourth, but Shirley's again tied it up with one.

Then, in the sixth, two runs put Parker's ahead to stay. Johnny Caraway homered to lead off the inning. Wayne Avery doubled and moved up when Clay Sutton reached on an error. He scored when Robert Nicholes also was safe on an error.

Dog Trial Saturday

The East Carolina Retriever Club will hold a retriever trial on Saturday.

Puppy, debery and gun dog classes will be held. The events will get underway at 9 a.m.

The site of the trials will be the old san pits on the Mumford Road. Interested area residents should follow the signs which will be posted.

Non-club members are invited to visit and enter their dogs, especially in the gun dog class.

Coke Downs Kiwanis, 5-2

Coca-Cola downed the Kiwanis, 5-2 yesterday in the North State Little League.

Coke and R. C. Cola are tied for the league lead with 1-0 records. The Lions and Kiwanis are both 0-1. The Jaycees and Optimists have yet to play.

No details of the game were made available.

Things Looking Better For Bucs In Indianapolis Runs

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Things are starting to look better," Pittsburgh Manager Bill Virdon understated. They couldn't have looked much better for Steve Blass and the Pirates Wednesday night. They clubbed four St. Louis pitchers for 15 hits en route to a 12-0 rout that sent the reeling Cardinals down to their seventh straight defeat.

"If we hadn't been scoring so many runs, I'd have probably gone to the showers in the third inning," said Blass. The Pittsburgh right-hander went the distance for his fourth victory in five decisions despite allowing 11 hits.

In other National League action, the New York Mets bombed Montreal 12-2, the Chicago Cubs nipped Philadelphia 3-2, Cincinnati edged San Francisco 2-1, Houston routed Atlanta 9-0 and San Diego blanked Los Angeles 2-0.

"When you have the kind of hitters we do," Blass observed, "you just know they're going to score some runs for you."

The Pirates, who stumbled through an April slump, losing eight of 13 games, have now righted themselves to their world championship form, winning eight of the last 10.

Home runs by Vic Davalillo and Manny Sanguillen led Pittsburgh's highest scoring output of the season and Jackie Hernandez drove in three runs and Roberto Clemente two in the barrage.

Rookie John Milner, filling in for injured left fielder Cleon

Jones, bashed a two-run double and three-run homer to pace New York's 17-hit explosion that made matters easy for Gary Gentry, who allowed just four Montreal safeties.

It also gave the Mets their sixth straight victory and ninth in the last 10 games, enabling them to widen their East Division lead over Philadelphia to five games. The Mets scored three runs in the first inning, then erupted for six more in the third.

Jose Cardenal's tie-breaking single in the top of the ninth led the Cubs over Philadelphia. Billy Williams had doubled to start the rally off Steve Carlton but, after moving to third on Jim Hickman's single, he was thrown out at the plate on Carmen Fanzone's grounder before Cardenals came through.

The Giants lost their sixth in a row and Juan Marichal lost his seventh straight game thanks to Joe Morgan's two-run homer for the Reds.

"This is the best I've thrown since early last year," the Astros' Larry Dierker said after shutting out Atlanta on four hits.

Houston managed two runs in the first six innings, then piled on seven more in the final two, with three of them coming on Doug Rader's home run.

The Dodgers, slipping nine percentage points back of the first-place Astros in the West, finally lost a game at San Diego after winning 12 in a row there. Fred Norman's six-hitter also snapped the Dodgers' five-game winning skein.

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Steve Krisloff and John Mahler, two of last year's most notable rookies, appeared today to be in range of a second shot at the big money at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Krisloff, 25, of Parisippay, N.J., driving one of Grant King's new Kingfish-Offys, was clocked at 182.113 miles per hour in practice Wednesday.

If he can turn that kind of speed in final qualifying

Saturday and Sunday, he could be certain of a spot somewhere near the middle of the 33-car starting field for the May 27 500.

Mahler, 33, of Bettendorf, Iowa, became the speedway's fastest rookie qualifier ever when he posted 170.164 m.p.h. for the 1971 race. But he was bumped from the car by owner-driver Dick Simon and thus retains his rookie status this year.

The 6-foot-2 Mahler, a graduate of the road racing ranks, is driving a two-year-old Eagle owned by Vanguard racing. Mahler had the car up to 181.378 m.p.h. Wednesday and at that rate could be a solid bet for a start, though hardly strong enough to endanger the dozen drivers who made the lineup last weekend.

Krisloff, a slender 145-pounder, started 27th in the 1971 race but was eliminated in a crash that also took out driving mate Mario Andretti. The accident was triggered when Krisloff's engine blew.

Mahler already is assured of rookie company. Sam Posey, Swede Savage and John Martin got into the lineup Sunday.

Posey put his Norris Eagle in the middle of the second row with a speed of 184.379. Savage posted 181.726 for the third row and Martin's 179.614 gave him a fourth row spot.

All three could be shuffled around a bit when such hotshots as A.J. Foyt, Al Unser, Mark Donohue, Roger McCluskey, Peter Revson and Mike Mosley go to the line Saturday.

Mosley, driving the Leader Card Watson Offy, loomed as a solid candidate for one of the 21 remaining berths when he recorded a lap at 192.020 Wednesday.

Meantime, Merle Bettenhausen completed his rookie test with a lap at 173.947.

Junior Olympics Set For Saturday Running

The Eastern Sectional of the Junior Olympics will be held Saturday at East Carolina University's track. ECU Coach Bill Carson will be in charge of the meet.

The AAU sanctioned meet will be a preliminary to the state meet, to be held June 3 in Charlotte. The top three finishers in each event qualify for the state meet.

Competition is divided into three classes for both boys and girls. The Junior Division is for youths 12 and 13 years old, while the Intermediate is for 14-15 years olds. The senior division takes in 16 and 17-year olds.

In the junior division, competition will be held in the high jump, the long jump, the 100-yard dash, the 440-yard dash, the 880-yard run and the one-mile run.

In the intermediate division, boys and girls will compete in the high jump, the lone jump, the discus, the 100-yard dash, the 880-yard relay, the 220-yard dash, the 440-yard dash, the 880-yard run, the 440-yard relay and the mile run.

Intermediate girls will also compete in the eight-pound shot put and the 80-yard low hurdles. Boys will compete in the 12-pound shot, the 120-yard high hurdles, and the two-mile run.

Senior division completion includes the long jump, high jump, pole vault, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run, one-mile run, 880-yard relay, and discus.

Girls will additionally compete in the eight-pound shot, the two-mile run the mile-relay and the 120-yard high hurdles.

An entry fee of $1 per person is charged to offset expenses of the meet.

Illinois Seen In New Probe

CHICAGO (AP) — Big Ten and NCAA officials have revealed they are investigating the University of Illinois for alleged athletic practice violations.

"A preliminary inquiry has been filed with Illinois" regarding an alleged violation of NCAA regulations, the NCAA said Wednesday in Kansas City.

Wayne Duke, Big Ten commissioner, added in a statement.

"As a result of allegations filed with the NCAA, this office and the NCAA are conducting a joint inquiry and review of University of Illinois athletic practices."

The Chicago Daily News reported Wednesday the probe was touched off by Alvin O'Neal, who was declared academically ineligible last summer at Illinois. O'Neal has transferred to Murray State in Kentucky.

Investigators reportedly asked the 6-foot-4 guard if Illini officials helped him on his entrance examinations and whether he was given a car while on a basketball scholarship, the newspaper said.

Kris Berymon, a former high school basketball standout who flunked at Illinois last year in his final freshman semester, was also questioned, the paper

Sees Sweep Of The Race

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lucien Laurin, trainer of Kentucky Derby Winner Riva Ridge and a second Meadow Stable colt, Upper Case, says he thinks they'll come away from Saturday's Preakness with first and second money.

That could total a little more than $167,000. Although Laurin conceded Wednesday that he was worried about Paul Mellon's Key to Mint, which could prove the spoiler to hopes of capturing the top two spots in the $150,000 added stakes, his talk was filled with jovial confidence.

"Key to The Mint won't be second. We're going to be 1-2. What do you think of that?" he said Wednesday after putting the two Meadow Stable colts through gallops at Pimlico here.

The way Laurin sees it, Riva Ridge will be able to best Key to Mint as he did three times last year and move a step closer to capturing all three of the Triple Crown of Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Upper Case is good enough to capture the runnerup spot but not to beat stablemate Riva Ridge, Laurin contends.

The winner of Saturday's race collects $137,700, the runnerup, $30,000.

Definite entries of other 3-year-olds in the race were expected to be announced today.

Burleson Gives Apology To Club

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State University basketball center Tommy Burleson who was charged May 3 with breaking into coin-operated machines on the State campus has written a letter of apology.

The letter of the 7-foot-4 Burleson was sent to members of the Wolfpack Club which solicits funds for the State Athletic program.

The youth wrote: "It is with extreme sorrow that I write you this note and for the embarrassment I have caused you and the so many friends of North Carolina State University's athletics program.

"I want to apologize for my recent behavior, for which I really have no explanation. I'm sorry for the bad publicity that our athletics program, Coach (Norman) Sloan, the basketball staff, and my teammates have had to live with as a result of my actions. I hope I can make amends to you and the Wolfpack Club by working hard to have a good year for State and in my efforts to make the Olympic team.

"I hope these recent actions won't reflect upon me completely.

ELI AVIVI stands in entrance to Achzibland, 10 miles north of Acre, the state within a state, which he proclaimed. (UPI Telephoto)

ACRE, Israel (UPI)—Eli Avivi got fed up with what he considered the expansionist policy of the Israeli government against his beachfront acre, so he proclaimed it a state within a state.

"I didn't want to live in Israel any more," he told UPI. "I wanted my own country."

Now, the authorities having responded by fencing him in, the self-styled president of "Achzibland" has demanded secure, agreed and recognized borders, to be determined in negotiations without preconditions.

"What they (Israeli leaders) can ask from the Arabs, I can ask of them," Avivi said, ticking off the names of world figures, President Nixon included, whom he has cabled for help. "No one has answered," he added.

Rejection is nothing new for Eli Avivi, a 40-year-old hippie whose eccentric antics in the past 20 years have exasperated the government, a traditionally conservative regime with no time for funny business.

Youth Mecca
What the authorities find especially distasteful about Achzibland these days is that it has become a summertime refuge for hundreds of youthful travelers whose taste for marijuana and hashish has landed them in the Holy Land.

Avivi has a mustache curling down the sides of his mouth, gray sideburns lining his sun-tanned face, hair, or what's left of it, dangling curly to the shoulder, a middle age paunch obvious under his tight red T-shirt. He explained his bargaining position in an interview.

"I'm not really serious—I just do this to antagonize the government," he said.

His "war" with the government had its beginnings in 1952 when he made squatter's claim to a hilltop house and an acre of land abandoned by an Arab village chief who fled during the war that created the state of Israel in 1948. He eventually received a letter from then Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion giving him permission to settle on the land providing he paid rent to the government. He did, and went to work improving the property.

Avivi repaired the house and turned it into a museum filled with Phoenician, Roman and Egyptian artifacts dug from the surrounding sands. He converted two shacks into a crude hostel that can sleep 100.

Avivi began charging visitors 1.5 pounds (36 cents) for admission to the museum, and two pounds (48 cents) to spend a night in the hostel. The set-up has attracted many young people, one of the things the government is unhappy about.

Engulfing Progress
Even as Avivi was improving his place, so was the government busy in the area. A beachfront resort went up on one side of Avivi, a kibbutz (collective farm) was established on the other. "The bulldozers moved in closer and closer," is the way he puts it.

The encroachment got to be too much for Avivi and that's when he "seceded" from Israel and proclaimed his state of Achzibland. "Achzib" was the name of the region in pre-Biblical times, and it also was a Phoenician port.

In answer to Avivi's action the government erected barbed wiretopped fences around his property, including his access to the sea. Only a road to the buildings was left open.

"They don't like the people who come here," Avivi said.

Engraver Also Italian Baker

MATTOON, Ill. (AP) — Orville Richardson is an engraver by day and a baker on week-ends.

His baking began with his wife's appetite for Italian foods.

His first effort was Italian sausage. Next came Italian meat pie. Then he moved on to Italian bread and rolls.

"I made about 40 loaves of bread before I got the kind I wanted, but you have to have failures to learn," Richardson said.

Spring Concert Slated Tuesday

GRIFTON — A spring concert will be held at the Ayden-Grifton High School Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the school.

The concert was previously planned for Thursday night.

The program is being done under the direction of Mrs. Clarissa May. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Myriam Harris.

The show will include a variety of songs. Also on display will be a number of art projects done by students in the school art program.

"They want to kill my business in hopes I will leave." The government has begun court action to get him off the property but Avivi is resisting under an ancient law that holds a man cannot be removed from public land once he has been accepted as a tenant and pays his rent.

What Avivi really wants is just to be left alone to run his museum and hostel. He seems to think if he makes enough fuss he and the government can reach some compromise.

Retiree Asserts Respect Lacking

BENTON, Ill. (AP) — High school students today are less respectful, less interested in being attractive and less informed than students in past years.

That is the opinion of Ellen Burkhart, a Benton Consolidated High School English teacher who is retiring after 45 years.

"It seems to me there is a lack of respect—they're not as respectful as they used to be," she said. "Nobody opens doors for me anymore."

Award Program For Troop 191 On Sunday Night

Troop 191 of the Sunrise District Boy Scouts of America and winner of four blue ribbons at the recent East Carolina Council Camporee, will hold their annual awards program Sunday night at 7:30.

The program, utilizing the theme, "The Answer is Yes," will be held at the Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church on Hudson Street, according to George Joyner, assistant scoutmaster.

Joyner said that the top award to be given is the Deon Ike Correy Award. Correy, he noted, was a member of Troop 191's scout committee for 23 years.

The award is given to the scout who has displayed in everyday life the oath, ideals and laws of Boy Scouting throughout the past year, the scoutmaster reported.

Rustler Took His Own Horse

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Then there was the man who rustled his own horse.

A horse, roaming loose on a street, was taken to the City Pound.

When his master learned what had happened, he dashed to the pound. Finding no attendant there, he whipped out a hacksaw, cut the chain, and rode off into the sunset.

Laser Leads To Better Contact Lens Technique

By MARGUERITE DAVIS WASHINGTON (UPI)—Laser, one of the newest "miracle" devices of medical science, has been harnessed in an effort to make contact lenses more comfortable.

The technique was developed by two long-time friends, George K. Meszaros and Steve Marschalke, both 35, and both natives of Hungary who moved to the United States in the late 1940s.

Laser is an electronically generated light beam concentrated in a single wave length, unlike ordinary light which spreads into a jumble of wave lengths. Laser can generate pinpoint of incredible heat, as high as 9,600 degrees.

The problem facing Meszaros and Marschalke was that contact lenses must be perforated with minute holes so that fluids can circulate freely in the eye and the eye itself can "breathe" beneath the plastic lens. But even the tiniest conventional drill leaves holes with edges so rough the lens must be polished again, which requires 30 to 45 minutes and may break the lens.

Meszaros and Marschalke, who formerly used that method, first began discussing the possibility of using laser in 1970.

Protective screen
Necessity is the mother of invention," said Marschalke, who like Meszaros is a mechanical engineer.

He developed and built the complex machinery and it was installed in their small Northwest Washington quarters. In their process, the lens is placed directly in the laser path while a magnifying screen aids in selecting the sites for the holes. A large plastic screen protects workers from the laser beam.

As a result, the lensmaker can make as many as 220 holes in a single lens, compared with the normal 20 to 25. No repolishing is needed because the remnant material is vaporized.

Marschalke also built a "diameter cutdown," a lathe that cuts prescription lenses at the rate of seven per minute. He said the machine is so precise that it cuts to one-half hundredth of a millimeter.

Lenses widely worn
Then came the search for a laser manufacturer willing to make feasibility tests. They found one, and more than 1,500 patients now wear the lenses.

The inventors said they work with 250 optometrists throughout the country, including 180 in the Washington area.

Marschalke said the lenses also have proved highly successful in cases involving cataracts and kerataconus, a condition in which the cornea of the eye forms into a cone shape. The laser lens encourages it to return to a more normal shape, he said.

A patient willing to foot the bill and with a doctor amiable enough to write the prescription, could have the fun of apparently changing the color of his eyes, through using a tinted lens of green, dark blue, lavender, or even brown.

A bargain! Whether it's to be a pet—or soup—the newly-bought turtle is obviously just what owner was looking for.

Rare tropical fish in Saigon pet market may be expensive—but at least it doesn't cost anything to stand and stare.

Ocelots and peacocks, snakes and pigeons—as well as cats and dogs: some to be petted, some to be eaten, all for sale. That's the Saigon pet market. It's a collection of crude wooden stands and wheel-away carts on a downtown street called Ham Nghi. It comes to life daily, shortly after dawn, rain or shine, offering its live wares, domestic and exotic, to throngs of Saigonese shoppers and to an occasional U.S. serviceman or sightseer.

The market sellers certainly do a brisk business. But the market isn't far from the Vietnamese capital's financial district, and many strollers just walk through the cluster of makeshift stalls for a few moments' entertainment during their lunch hours or on their way home from work. There are always gleaming fish, chattering monkeys and crowing cocks to provide an animated sideshow—and the show is always free.

Photographed by Neal Ulevich.

Crowds mill through covered stalls of Ham Nghi street pet market in Saigon. It's there daily from dawn, rain or shine.

Young audience watches the snake seller show off six feet of edible serpent, tentatively priced at $73.

A young buyer makes a face as his purchase shows he's still not resigned to the stock pot!

The little monkey has just acquired a new owner, and he's perched on his master's motorcycle looking ready and willing to drive home.

Under the awning of a Saigon pet stall, a lively group of monkeys attracts the sympathetic attention of an admiring bunch of youngsters.

Jesus was also criticized by the meticulous advocates of the letter of the law, for his Apostles once plucked the heads of ripe wheat and devoured the grains on a certain Sabbath afternoon. "This is a violation of the sacred Sabbath," angrily protested the literal advocates of the ancient Hebrew code.

"The Sabbath was made for man; not man for the Sabbath," tartly replied Jesus.

Which meant that Christ didn't piddle around with insignificant details but focussed on major goals.

Our Journalism Departments thus have practicalized the use of the English language to a far better degree than the typical English Departments.

Old-time English teachers would have given this editorial only a "C" grade. Why? Because Mr. Gagie didn't employ complete sentences before he ended with a period.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening to do everything possible to improve your surroundings and your appearance. As a result others will see you best points better and give you more support when you need it. Also, show special affection for those loyal to you. In return, it renews their devotion to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on how to please those who are important in your life and you will be rewarded. Work more on special talents you possess and much gain is yours. Show that you are capable.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to make repairs on property that will increase its value. A silly hangup you have is keeping you from advancing. Get rid of it. Show you are a person with great wisdom.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Improve on your daily routines, and then catch up on your correspondence, both business and social. Put your talents to work where they will be most appreciated.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Become more involved in monetary matters and make them pay off. If you emulate one who has made a fortune it is possible for you to advance up the financial ladder.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use ingenuity in business activities and you can attain more success in the future. Also, look for new methods that are infinitely better than the old ones. A friend can be helpful to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have hidden talents you seldom rely upon, and this is a good time to make big headway with them. Evening can be happy with the one you love. Stop being so reticent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have good friends who can be helpful to you in making your projects more successful, so contact them early. Be sure to show your appreciation. Take time for social fun tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have many activities to engage in that will help you to improve your image where career is concerned. Be sure to pay an important bill. Show that you are a good citizen.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You now have time to engage in a new interest that fascinates you and with the prospect of financial success. Contacting an out-of-towner who is experienced in your field is wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go to business experts for the advice and data you need. Follow through with their suggestions. Find the right way to have more understanding and love where mate is concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you go along with associates more you are able to reap mutual benefits and do so with ease. A civic matter should be handled today without further procrastination. Be wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Today you have to handle your work at the highest rate of precision if you wish to gain the approval of bigwigs. Co-workers can be cooperative if you state your ideas to them. Show thanks.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who will do best work when complimented, but unfair criticism will cause your progeny to fly off the handle quickly. Any work connected with the public is fine here, where the acclaim of the masses will be very helpful. The married life is bound to be most successful because of the natural affection in this nature.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Since East was now known to hold a second stopper in diamonds and declarer was reluctant to let the latter in again for fear that a third round of spades would subvert the contract, South decided to fall back on the club finesse. He led the jack from dummy and let it ride when East followed suit with the six. West produced the king of clubs and then cashed four spades to set South down by two.

Declarer can assure himself of nine tricks on the deal, provided that the clubs divide no worse than four-one. After the opening spade lead, he has two winners in spades and three in hearts. If clubs are three-two, then four more tricks are assured in that suit. Suppose that he cashes the ace of clubs at trick two on which both opponents follow. Now a small club is led. If West shows out, the jack is played from dummy and East wins the king. When South regains the lead, he crosses over to the ace of hearts to lead a club. A finesse is taken successfully against East's ten and declarer cashes two more clubs and two hearts to bring his total to nine.

As the cards are distributed, West must follow with the eight on the second round of clubs (if he plays the king, he surrenders his second stopper in clubs) and the jack is put up from dummy on which East shows out. With two clubs in, declarer's trick total is up to seven and he can now abandon that suit. A diamond is led to the jack and when the ace is driven out on the next round -- South has two diamonds thereby establishing his ninth trick, while he still retains the second stopper in spades.

Police Building Friendly Image

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — There may be as many baseball bats as billyclubs in police departments in the United States because of the Nixon administration's all-out effort to dress up the image of policemen.

An example of the change in thinking at police departments can be seen at the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Law Enforcement Center. A "Disaster Control" sign on a door and racks of helmets inside make a room inside the center look like a storage place for riot equipment.

But the helmets are for youngsters' football teams sponsored by the Charlotte Police Department. The room also has basketballs, baseball gloves and bats and boxing gloves.

The athletic program, like hundreds of others in police departments throughout the nation, is an effort to get children, mostly those from the ghettos, to think of the policeman as a friend, rather than a pig.

In some cases, as in Charlotte and other North Carolina cities, teen-agers are recruited as police cadets to prepare them for full-time police work after they graduate from high school.

The athletic program is the heart of image-polishing effort, however.

In Charlotte along, 1,200 youngsters, most of them black, play on police department teams. Their uniforms carry the red-white-and-blue patch with its spread-wing eagle found on police cars and the words: "Boys Club—Charlotte Police Department."

In North Carolina, $750,000 has been spent the last two years to get youngsters to see the policeman as a regular guy. The money comes from the U.S. Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which also gives grants for improved police training and better equipment.

The federal money is used in many ways to try to change the attitude of young people toward policemen.

Chapel Hill policemen used a grant to buy neatly fitted civilian blazers. In Wilmington, police use LEAA funds to support a band. Many cities use the federal money for athletics and camping for boys and girls.

Charlotte's Police Department also has sponsored rock music contests and hotdog feedouts for underprivileged kids.

The effect of the program can't be measured in how many or how few tear gas canisters are used against young people. But the idea of making changes in society by going through the young people is proven by history.

A policeman on Winston-Salem's Community Services division, Sgt. C. W. Crater, and others have many examples of youngsters establishing a rapport with officers because of the special programs.

Crater said one youth who had been in the police department's athletic program called a policeman when he got kicked out of school. The policeman, who knew the boy through the sports program, drove to the school and took him home.

"It's that sort of thing that makes it all worthwhile," said

Crater.

At Charlotte, the head of the Community Relations division in the Police Department, Lt. Robert Tilley, said the breakthrough can be even more simple.

"You'd be surprised how many kids want to know if they can just go up and touch an officer in uniform," Tilley said. The youngsters soon learn there's nothing to be afraid of, he added.

The Charlotte program of working with youngsters is the largest in the state. In 1971 it had $46,547 for an athletic program, $87,907 for a program to set up precincts in Model Cities areas so policemen could get to know the people, and $20,160 for a Police Youth Corps.

The Police Youth Corps is made up of boys and girls who have shown an interest in police work. During six weeks of nightly training, they are taught police procedures and even ride with policemen on patrol.

In addition to Charlotte and Winston-Salem, federal programs to improve the policeman's image among youngsters are in Durham, Asheville, Greensboro, Tarboro, Elizabeth City, Waynesville, Washington, Williamston, Tabor City and High Point.

Counties using federal money for such programs are Madison, Pamlico, Robeson, Polk, Ruth, McDowell, Lincoln, Cleveland, Watauga and Avery.

PANORAMIC VIEW OF REGION ON MARS — This mosaic of pictures taken by Mariner 9 and released by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Cal., shows a panoramic view of the equatorial region of Mars. The photo map stretches more than one-third of the way around Mars and covers an area of about 11 million square miles, or about one-fifth of the planet's surface. Upper left corner is the Nix Olympia—a giant volcanic mountain, and center section contains an enormous canyon—2,500 miles long and 75 miles wide. (AP Wirephoto)

Best Way for a Boy to Learn the Rules of the Game — The Facts of Economic Life!

● YOUR newspaper carrier is one young man who is learning the all-important facts of modern economic life early in his career — something too few boys are doing today!

BY serving a newspaper route he's getting a good idea of what makes the free enterprise system work. He's running a small business of his own — and profiting by it! Learning the value of money by earning his own! How to deal with people and satisfy them with service! How to keep accurate records, collect accounts and pay bills promptly! How to accept responsibility and get things done on time! How to make his route profits and savings grow faster, by persistent sales effort!

ALL of which is excellent training for success in whatever line of work he may enter when he's ready! Does YOUR school-age son have a newspaper route? It's by far the best way for a boy to start stepping ahead—today more than ever!

See If There's a Route Open — where your son may enjoy the many major advantages of being a carrier-salesman. Ask our Circulation Department.

Thailand Troops Today Fighting An Unseen Enemy

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer
BAN KHEK NOI, Thailand (AP) — "Come out and live with us," blares a loudspeaker strapped to the skids of a Thai air force helicopter as it clatters over the silent jungle. "We have food, shelter and cloth for you. Your friends live with us happily. Come out before it is too late!"

If any answer comes, it is usually a burst of gunfire from the teak forests that cover the rugged mountains of Northern Thailand. When the helicopter leaves, artillery opens up again at the unseen enemy. Although the enemy is invisible to the Thai troops, the troops are quite visible to the enemy who inflicted some 300 casualties on the Thais in two months in this area with deadly land mines, expert ambushes, and accurate sniper fire. The Thais, on the other hand, despite a two-month military operation, were unable to exhibit a single body alive or dead after they recently captured a so-called major terrorist headquarters. And when the Thais got there, the command post was bare. Who are these tough, disciplined, guerrilla fighters who are causing the Thai administration severe security problems across a wide stretch of mountain territory extending from the Burmese border in the west to the Laotian border in the east? They call themselves

"The Mong," leading some anthropologists to believe they originally came from Mongolia. But to the Thais, the Lao and the Vietnamese, they are known simply as "the Meo." They are comparative newcomers to Southeast Asia, having migrated south from the mountains of southern China in the past century looking for virgin hilltops on which to cultivate their chief crop—opium. They are animists, nomadic, fiercely independent, excellent hunters with crossbow or rifle, and share a common distaste for authority. In Thailand, they number between 50,000 and 100,000, scattered in small wood and straw villages perched above the 5,000-foot mark in the hills where the water is clear, the air is fresh and mosquitos are unknown. Their numbers, and their addiction to opium cultivation which serves as their only cash crop, has always made them a potential problem for Thailand. It is difficult to say precisely what started the fighting between Thais and Meos. Some say it is an opium war that has lately become political. They blame the Thai government for mishandling efforts to stamp out opium growing among the Meo. When the Thais sent border patrol police into Nan province in the summer of 1968 to stop the Meo hacking away the forests to plant opium, the hill men started shooting. The Thais responded with napalm air strikes. Thai, and Sino-Thai Communist cadres, operating in the north, quickly took advantage of the Meo's hostility, convinced the hillmen that communism would soon take over the country and told them they could farm where ever they like under the new regime if they would support it. Within a year, they had armed and trained hundreds of Meo with AK47s, grenade launchers, and automatic weapons and trained them in ambush techniques. For men who can hunt a tiger on foot with only a crossbow or flintlock rifle, the task of ambushing Thai army and police units was almost too easy. As their losses mounted the Thais began to realize that a strict military solution was neither wise nor possible, given the Meos' knowledge of the terrain and natural ability as a guerrilla. Thus, appeals by airborne loudspeakers for them to join the government, go hand in hand with artillery fire and search and clear operations in what amounts to a Thai version of carrot and stick. The Thais have begun resettlement programs and offered security, housing and education to uncommitted Meos.

There is an element of tragedy in the Meo-Thai confrontation. In Laos, the Meo have been the spearhead of the Lao government's military campaigns against the North Vietnamese in northern Laos for more than 10 years. Now the Meo in Laos are almost exhausted as a fighting force. Regular units of the Lao army, with support from Thai volunteers, have been sent to the strategic base of Long Cheng because the Meos can no longer muster enough men for battle. It seems probable that the Communist leaders in Thailand may use Meos to the same end. The final result can only be disaster for the hill people.

Scholarships To Eight Students

Eight North Carolina high school students have been awarded Academic Scholarships by East Carolin University.

They are: Vicki Bass of Powellsville, Pamela Boswell of Durham, Robert Carraway of Greenville, Gale Chamblee and Marie Chamblee of Raleigh, JoAnna Dalton of Cary, Robert Van Gundy of Charlotte; and Mark Lyman Clark of Cherry Point.

Each student will be awarded $4,000, or $1,000 per year, renewable contingent upon maintenance of high citizenship and academic standards.

ROBT. L. CARRAWAY

Recipients of the ECU Academic Scholarships were selected from a group of applicants invited to the campus for personal interviews with officials of the ECU Scholarships, Fellowships and Financial Aid Committee.

Robert Levi Carraway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Raeford Carraway Sr., 1605 Beaumont Rd.

He is a senior at Rose High School, where he is president of the National Honor Society, a member of the band and the woodwind quintet, and a member of the Mathematics, French, and Monogram Clubs. He is also on the SGA Human

No Clue To Earliest Dog

CHICAGO (UPI) —After centuries of studying the world's most popular animal, science still has not discovered how and precisely when man went to the dogs.

The dog is the oldest domestic animal and probably joined man's world 12,000 to 14,000 years ago somewhere in Eurasia.

But the earliest known remains of a dog were found in the Beaverhead mountains of Idaho, and dated at approximately 9000 B.C. There were at least 20 different breeds in North and South America prior to the white man's arrival.

All dogs belong to a single genus, which also includes wolves, coyotes and jackals, but the most likely ancestor of the world's dogs is the gray wolf, which originally was found throughout Europe, Asia and North America.

Once domesticated, dogs spread relatively rapidly all over the world, through both hemispheres and from tropical to arctic climates.

Early in the domestication process man began selection of dogs for various traits and appearance. Then as now there apparently were two major features that distinguished dogs from their wilder ancestors — small teeth and an upturned tail capable of a friendly wag.
