Crepe Myrtles Given To City For Landscaping Of Park Area

By JERRY RAYNOR
Staff Reflector Writer

Flowering crepe myrtles, 35 of them, Monday were given by the Pitt County-City of Greenville Board of Realtors as a contribution to the planned landscape of Town Commons, often referred to as the Shore Drive Park, or the Waterfront Park. "I'm really very happy we can help the City of Greenville by donating these trees," J. L. Harris, Jr., chairman of the Board of Realtors remarked. "I believe in the very near future this is going to be a fine city park, a very beautiful place for everyone to enjoy."

Harris was joined in the initial planting Monday morning by City Manager Harry Hagerty, Public Works Director Mayo Allen, and Public Works Consultant C. K. Beatty, formerly the Public Works Director, as workmen began setting out the crepe myrtles in spaced groups.

In outlining plans for the development of the downtown park area, City Manager Harry Hagerty pointed out that the landscape and development project is in several phases.

The first of these, now underway, is planting of trees and shrubs on the hill area that was formerly the site of the old Sycamore Hill Baptist Church, and along First Street for nearly the entire length of the Town Commons area.

Hagerty said "It's good to have an interested group come across with this kind of assistance."

The second phase will include landscaping of the remainder of the area with shrubs, flowers, trees and the installation of walking paths and park benches included on the master-landscape plan.

The master plan calls for eventual landscaping and plantings, improvements that will call for an outlay of approximately $129,000. Hagerty noted that volunteer contributions such as that of the realtors will help to cut the overall cost of landscaping.

Phase I planting includes trees such as willow oaks, redbud, sycamores, long-leaf and loblolly pines, saucer magnolias and cypress trees.

Some of the shrubs indicated for the plan are laurel chery, crepe myrtle, holly, bayberry, juniper, forsythia and other popular shrubs.

Other facilities the city manager said he would like to see developed in later phases include "a gazebo that would be designed in such a way that a pump house and public toilets could be placed underneath the platform."

Possible future developments further include, if East Carolina University makes a decision in that direction, the construction of a ramp and boat house adjacent to the river on the northeast corner of the commons. "There is also a need for a small paved road providing access to the crew facility," Hagerty observed.

Eventual plans for the call for the removal of overhead lines and placement of these underground as well as a series of soft lights along the waterfront to provide light for strollers.

Law Will Test Population, Car Control Powers

HONOLULU (AP) — A new law in Hawaii is designed to test whether a state can limit the number of autos on its highways, and perhaps eventually limit its population.

The office of Gov. John A. Burns said Monday that the governor has signed a measure that would set up a state transportation control commission empowered to recommend limits on the number of cars permitted in the islands and on the number of airplanes and ships which could bring passengers here. The final decision on putting the limits into effect would rest with the legislature.

The legislation was inspired by massive traffic snarls which occur daily at rush hours on the major arteries into Honolulu, and the rusting, abandoned vehicles which mar the shoreline. The state has some 420,000 motorists.

State Sen. Nadoo Yoshinaga, who authored the bill, said he expects this first-step effort to be challenged in the courts by Detroit auto manufacturers and other business interests.

Hawaii has a population of about 770,000, and state statistician Robert Schmitt says the population density in the high-rise area of Oahu's Makiki is 34,833 per square mile, compared to 25,966 for New York City.

Gardner Pleased Over Endorsement By Rouse

Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Gardner, in a brief airport stop in Greenville Monday afternoon, expressed his appreciation for the personal endorsement given him by N.C. Republican Party Chairman Frank Rouse and reiterated his stand on an East Carolina University Medical School.

"To me it is significant," Gardner told members of the press, "that Tom Evans, co-chairman of the national Republican Committee, has asked Rouse not to resign."

"Rouse is the most productive person I know in the North Carolina Republican Party," Gardner stated. "All Republicans owe him a debt of gratitude for his unselfish action and service."

Saying the Republicans are tired of losing, Gardner observed, "The Democratic machine needs to be defeated. It's time for a housecleaning after 72 years."

Calling on Republicans in eastern North Carolina to join in efforts to "see that the Republican Party is worth the efforts of voters to support it and to win," Gardner blamed the protest against Rouse announcing his support himself on "a small group in the Holsouser camp."

The candidate, who will face Jim Holsouser in a June 3 primary run-off, said "Holsouser's interests are in a closed party of a few selected individuals. This is negative thinking." On the matter of a medical school, Gardner said "I am a strong advocate of a medical school at East Carolina."

I commend Dr. Jenkins on his stand. I feel a medical school here is part of the overall medical picture in this part of the state. A medical school will bring in talent that we now do not have."

Three City Bodies Meet This Week; Agendas Set

A total of 14 items are slated for consideration in the regular May meetings of three city bodies on Wednesday and Thursday — the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission; the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission; and the Greenville Board of Adjustments.

The joint Planning and Zoning Commission will consider a committee's report on the naming of East 14th Street extended; a committee report on rezoning U.S. 17, from Crestline and West, and a request for rezoning certain areas north of Greenville along North Greene Street extended. The joint commission meets at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday.

Immediately following the joint meeting, members of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission will convene to consider six agenda items. Two of these — the State Highway Commission's response to Greenville's comments on the Thoroughfare Plan and proposed amendments to Zoning Ordinance No. 322, are committee report items.

Also on the agenda are three rezoning request. The first is that of Wheelless and Moore Inc. for zoning downtown commercial fringe property in the southwest quadrant of Ninth and Cotanche Streets. The property is now zoned office and institutional. The second request, by Philip E. Carroll, is for property adjacent to Arlington

First Agreement At Moscow Summit

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet leaders reached their first agreement of the Moscow summit meetings today—measures for joint action against disease and pollution. A Soviet spokesman said they then continued talks "in an unusual international atmosphere," apparently meaning Vietnam.

The first two accords to emerge from the week-long sessions call for American-Soviet collaboration in combating dread diseases and other health menaces and in fighting all types of environmental pollution.

Announcing this, Soviet spokesman Leonid M. Zamyatin said Nixon, Brezhnev and their associates held their first formal conference in a "frank and businesslike atmosphere."

However, Zamyatin added, without elaborating, that the conferees found it "impossible to ignore the general international atmosphere."

Zamyatin did state anew that the Soviets, like the Americans, approach the summit talks with the aim of finding ways to cooperate in promoting world peace.

The initial agreements of the summit were drawn up for signature today—the one on pollution by President Nixon and President Nikolai V. Podgorny and the other by Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Health Minister Boris V. Petrovsky.

The two delegations met for nearly two hours this morning in the first formal session of the Soviet-American summit.

One of the initial agreements, it was learned, would aim at joint American-Soviet health research, with emphasis on combating such major killers as cancer and heart trouble.

The second would provide for collaboration in helping to clean up the global environment.

Moments after a faraway chime sounded the hour of 11 a.m. Nixon and Brezhnev led their delegations into the ornate Catherine Hall in the Grand Kremlin Palace from opposite sides of the big room. After exchanging hand clasps, small talk and smiles, they sat down facing each other across the conference table.

Nixon was flanked by Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, the President's assistant for national security affairs. Sitting on either side of Brezhnev were President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Before serious business began, Podgorny offered Nixon a package of Ukrainian cigarettes, commenting, "They are not bad."

Nixon, who smokes an occasional cigar, fingered the pack politely, then placed it back on the table.

Nixon and Brezhnev held an unscheduled exploratory conference Monday shortly after the President's arrival in Moscow. They met for nearly two hours in Brezhnev's Kremlin office for a "businesslike and frank" preliminary discussion of international problems and U.S.-Soviet relations. White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler reported.

N. Viet Rail Link With China Is Cut

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers destroyed six bridges on North Vietnam's northwest railway line to China and set off five large secondary explosions in an attack on the transformer station that supplies power to military installations in the Hanoi area, the U.S. Command announced today.

In the ground war, South Vietnamese forces reportedly repulsed new attacks on the northern defense line at the My Chanh river and on An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon. But much guerrilla fighting was reported in the Mekong delta 45 miles southeast of Saigon, and Viet Cong forces there were reported to have seized about 30 per cent of Dat Do, a district capital.

The U.S. Command said American bombers flew more than 1,000 strikes against targets in North Vietnam during the past three days.

The northwest rail line, one of two over which China sends supplies to Hanoi, was reported hit Monday in an area about 110 miles northwest of Hanoi and about 50 miles south of the Chinese border. The Air Force F4 Phantoms used laser devices to direct their bombs within five feet of the bridges, military sources said. The Hanoi transformer station, which is eight miles northwest of the city, was hit by Air Force Phantoms last Saturday. The pilots said they left the site in flames and their bombs set off five large secondary explosions.

Other targets in North Vietnam were heavily shelled by U.S. cruisers and destroyers in the Tonkin Gulf, the command said, but one of them, the guided missile cruiser Providence, was hit by shrapnel from shore fire Monday night.

The command said damage to the ship was light and an officer in an observation post was slightly hurt.

The Mekong Delta fighting was reported in the southern part of Phuoc Tuy province, north of the Vung Tau resort area. The Viet Cong blew up a bridge on Highway 23 west of Dat Do, but field reports said bypasses were available.

A total of 107 North Vietnamese troops were reported killed and 14 enemy tanks destroyed in the fighting today on the My Chanh river line and at An Loc. Field reports said six South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 35 wounded.

North Vietnamese tanks and troops smashed into two sections of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon but field reports said government forces enveloped the enemy.

Taylor Sees Help From Hawkins, Wilbur Hobby

By ROGER MIKEAL
For the Associated Press

RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor welcomed today the endorsement from state AFL-CIO president Wilbur Hobby in Taylor's campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"I was pleased to receive the endorsement of Dr. Reginald Hawkins and Mr. Wilbur Hobby," Taylor said in a prepared statement. "I welcome their support as I do that of all other North Carolinians who are interested in good government for our state."

"While I made no commitments to either of these gentlemen, I have said throughout my campaign that I would involve the young people, women and minority groups in decision making roles of state government."

"I believe this was the key factor in their decision to support my candidacy," said Taylor.

Hobby ran fourth in the Democratic race for the gubernatorial nomination in the May 6 primary. Hawkins, a Charlotte dentist, ran third in that primary.

Taylor finished 62,323 votes behind the top vote getter, Hargrove Bowles of Greensboro.

Taylor plans to spend a lot of time on television before the second primary.

His campaign manager, Lindsay Warren Jr., said that in the last two weeks of the first primary "Bowles blitzed on TV and got the undecided vote."

Bowles received 45 per cent of the vote and Taylor 37 per cent. Taylor, who was in Winston-Salem Monday night to tape a television speech, again criticized Bowles for not appearing "face to face in a debate that would be helpful to the people of North Carolina."

Taylor, in an interview, said for the first time in the campaign that if he is elected he might look to the state's credit balance to make up the $20 million state income tax cut he has proposed. He said the balance is expected to be about $150 million at the end of the two-year fiscal period ending July 1.

He said last week he favors abolishing the state income tax for those who make less than $5,000 a year and increasing taxes for people who make more to offset part of the loss in revenue.

He said Monday night, however, that if there are any new taxes imposed during his administration, "they won't be paid by people making less than $20,000 a year."

Taylor added he would be willing to "take a look at" the total tax structure, including the intangibles tax, corporate profit tax and taxes on manufactured goods.

Boulevard and west of Evans Street.

The final rezoning request is a city request on property north of Mumford Road, with a recommendation for the area to be rezoned to the proposed new R6-MH zoning.

Other Planning and Zoning issues include a final plat for Section III of Tuckahoe Subdivision, a preliminary plat for River Bluff Apartments; and consideration of a new zoning district, redesignated "R6-MH" (Residential-Mobile Home).

The May meeting of members of the Greenville Board on Adjustments at 7:30 p.m. Thursday will deal with three items on the agenda.

Two of these are public hearings — the first on a request for special use permit by the University Church of Christ to construct a church at the southwest corner of Crestline Boulevard and Greenville Boulevard. The second public hearing is a special use permit request for the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, involving the construction of a church at the northwest corner of Plaza Drive and Brinkley Road.

The Board of Adjustments' final item is a request for special use permit by the Crusader Boxing Club, a non-profit organization, to utilize a building at 627 Albemarle Avenue as a boxing club.

Pilot Club Officers Installed In Ceremonies Monday Night

Author Discusses Buying At Auction

By JOY STILEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It takes more effort than going into a store with an open checkbook, but buying at auction can be exciting, profitable, fun and rarely disappointing if you know what you're doing, says Michael De Forrest, for whom auctions have become a way of life.

that will help you determine your bid. It is also handy to carry a measuring tape, to make sure furniture will fit the place you have in mind for it; a magnet, to test whether an object is bronze or iron; and a magnifying glass, to help see such details as signatures and hallmarks.

"It's the kind of shopping that makes certain demands on the buyer," he explains. "You have to investigate, be responsible for looking at the lots ahead of time, know what you're getting. You can't depend on the auctioneer's spiel or on your friends—you've got to trust your own observation."

"Then you decide on the basis of your inspection and on the basis of your own needs what price you are willing to pay," De Forrest continues. "If you have 11 of something and see No. 12 coming up at an auction it would be worth more to you than to me."

"Preparation is the difference between success and failure for auction-goers," says De Forrest, who has written a book, "How to Buy at Auction," that details the why, where and how of buying at such sales.

"We all exceed our predetermined limits at times," the author concedes. "If you go one bid or so over the maximum you've set it's not too bad. The dangerous situation is where you get locked in on the price and say 'I must have it'; then you really get hurt."

"Bidding is simple—you just hold your hand up. What you do before you bid is what matters," insists the author. "You must go and examine the lots before you go to the auction. Once something's knocked down to you it's yours."

"You learn to avoid this after awhile," he goes on. "If you find you've overpaid for something you may become suspicious of the whole auction scene and quit, or you begin to bid with caution and responsibility."

"The auctioneer is going to want to see your money up close, so you have every right to see his things up close," he adds. "Most auctions have a preview, but if you don't have ample inspection privileges I think you should have full return privileges."

De Forrest, a freelance writer, got into the auction scene entirely by chance in 1965 when he learned that furniture from the New York World's Fair was being sold.

He suggests taking a pen and steno pad to pre-auction exhibits, in order to list lot numbers with comments, observations and descriptions of anything

"We had a big empty house and were tired of the orange crate bit," he recalls. "We wanted to get real furniture but we didn't have any real money. My wife, Betty, and I went to the auction and bought a sofa and two great pairs of drapes that we paid five bucks for and that are still hanging in our living room. Then we went to a car auction and then got involved with antiques and that really did it."

Now he attends as many as three auctions a week and the couple have furnished their entire house that way. But De Forrest says the chances of making a "killing" are slim. He also warns there are unscrupulous auctioneers who will squeeze an extra bid out of a buyer and "enough dishonesty to make everyone be on their guard but not enough to hurt too terribly if you keep your wits about you."

Parents Don't Regret Their Decision

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago we adopted a beautiful baby boy. When he came into our home and hearts he was only nine days old.

The only difference between this child and our first was we waited only nine months for the first, and 18 months for this one. (After giving birth to the first baby I had a hysterectomy, so we put in for adoption immediately.)

When our adopted baby was four months old, our suspicions were confirmed. He was brain damaged and destined to be retarded. We were heartbroken, but we accepted the news just as parents would have accepted the news that their natural born child was imperfect. He was our baby and it was our fate. God chose us to be his parents, and we would see it thru.

We have never regretted our decision. I am writing this not to invite praise, Abby, but to ask you to please tell people that when they learn of adoptive parents who have kept an imperfect child (and many have) not to go into raptures about what "saints" the parents are, and how magnificent and noble they must be.

I don't feel that I am entitled to any special glory for having made that decision. I did what any other mother would have done. Sign me. . .

NO ORCHIDS FOR ME IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR NO ORCHIDS: God Love you!

DEAR ABBY: Our son, 23, is in college. He is living with a 28-year-old divorcee who has a five-year-old child. They have been serious for over a year and plan to marry when he graduates and can support her. In the meantime, she is holding a very good job.

Altho we do not approve of this arrangement, there is nothing we can do about it at his age. We are still paying for his college education, which we could cut off if we wanted to.

We are aware that there is a lot of living together going on now, but we still do not condone it and we refuse to accept his girl friend under these conditions.

Our son and she are terribly upset over this. He says we should accept his lifestyle and not sit in judgment. He is torn between his love for his family and his love for this girl, but he refuses to give her up.

We are in a stalemate, but are willing to listen to a third party. What say you? M. L.

DEAR M. L.: Your son is a man now, and is entitled to choose his own lifestyle. If you cut off your financial aid, I doubt that it would change anything. If you don't want to lose your son you had better accept her. [P. S. this advice would not apply to all unwed couples living together. Only to adult, mature, responsible parties who care about each other.]

DEAR ABBY: I frequently receive bridge prizes, door prizes and gifts for my birthday and Christmas which I cannot use or don't especially care for. I put all these items in a large box marked "White Elephants."

Then when I have to give someone a gift, I go thru the box and select something I think will be appropriate, re-wrap it and send it! Clever? NOT-SO-DUMB

DEAR NOT: Just be sure you keep a record of who gave you what. It would be rather embarrassing to give something back to the person who gave it to you.

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet you hear from umpteen people telling you what you should have told "Such Good Friends" who wanted to know what to do about that woman who cheats when she keeps the bridge score.

I belong to two weekly bridge foursomes, all good friends; and I have never played bridge where two players did not keep score. We do this not to keep the score keeper "honest," but to assure accuracy in scoring. We can all make mistakes and we know it. And we keep the score sheets intact until we disband so anyone who wants to can examine them. NO ERRORS OR ANYTHING

Church Awards For Pitt March Of Dimes Boy Scout And Cubs Chairman Is Announced

BOUDREAUX receives the Ad Altare Dei from his pastor, Father Maurice Spillane.

Leland (Lee) Moore, on the staff of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, has been named chairman of the Pitt County March of Dimes.

Moore, who has been an active worker in the fund raising effort to assist victims of crippling diseases and birth defects among children, was recently named as successor to the late Junius H. Rose, who was chairman from 1941 until his death earlier this year.

Other officers named to the Executive Committee at the re-organizational meeting are Dr. Ernest Schwarz, vice-chairman; Mrs. W. A. Allen III, secretary; Johnnie E. May, treasurer; and Dr. John D. Fletcher, Medical Advisory Committee chairman.

In addition four other members were named to the Executive Committee — Mrs. Earline Coghill, D. H. Conley, William H. Moore, and Mrs. Jo Ann Smith, all of Greenville; and Dr. C. G. Garrenton of Bethel.

"We hope in re-organizing," Lee Moore said, "to be able to make the operation into a truly Pitt County wide one. We intend, as one of our first actions, to have a committee to look into getting representatives from all parts of the county."

Moore noted that at the present time "we need to add representatives from Ayden, Winterville and Grifton, and we are in the process now of obtaining someone to represent these places.

"Our major responsibility is to continue the fine work that has been done in the past to promote

Unrest Idles Hyde Schools

SWAN QUARTERS, N.C. (AP) — Continued unrest and tension originating at Lake Mattamuskeet High School has resulted in closing of Hyde County's three mainland schools for the remainder of this school year.

David Coble, county school superintendent, called the action a precaution and said it came during a special meeting of the county board of education during the weekend.

He said it was decided to permit the school on Ocracoke Island to finish the school year.

Coble said conferences had not been able to resolve the problem at Mattamuskeet High School which has an enrollment of about 600. About 700 pupils attend the other two mainland schools.

About half of the high school's 101 seniors walked out May 12 in a dispute over selection of honor senior students. The closing of the school followed that.

The Ad Altare Dei Medal, awarded only five times in the Pitt Scouting District, was received Sunday by Life Scout Mark Boudreaux of Troop 362.

On the same occasion, the Parvuli Dei Award, earned previously by but one Cub Scout in Pitt County, was received by eight Cubs of Pack 200. Both Troop 362 and Pack 200 are sponsored by the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Scoutmaster James Hernan described the awards as originating with the American Council of Bishops and are awarded by the Diocesan Scouting office through local pastors to boys who have completed a prescribed course of study and activities. It is the Catholic counterpart to the highly regarded God and Country Award.

Everett Attends Raleigh Session

Clifton W. Everett Jr. of Greenville, Pitt County campaign manager for Sen. B. Everett Jordan, attended a campaign manager's meeting last week in Raleigh.

The meeting, attended by state campaign officials, was called to discuss strategy for the vote drive leading to the runoff primary on June 3.

The session drew county leaders from every part of the state, it was pointed out, and was hailed by Jordan as "solid evidence of the groundswell of support that prompted my decision to call for the runoff. With that kind of support I am more confident than ever of victory on June 3 and in November."

Mrs. Walker At Art Conference

Mrs. Edith Walker, Director of the Greenville Art Center, will be attending the North Carolina Conference on Art in Charlotte on Tuesday and Wednesday. The conference, sponsored by the N.C. Arts Council, has as its major theme this year the topic of "Organizing Arts In Your Community."

Coordinators for the conference are Ned B. Broyles of the Continuing Education Division of North Carolina State University and Miss Anne K. Underwood of the Community Association of the North Carolina Council of Arts.

We Can Look For The Unusual

The main show in this year's presidential campaign comes after the conventions, but the outlook for the Democratic nominee still appears murky. Sen. Muskie by his own acts, appears almost eliminated from contention for the nomination. Gov. Wallace almost certainly would not have been allowed to claim the nomination by the powers that be. With his strong showing in the primaries, however, it is possible that he might have had some influence at the convention. Even this is uncertain now, with the dark outlook for his physical condition following the tragic assassination attempt in Maryland.

So at this point; that still leaves Sen. Humphrey, the 1968 candidate, and Sen. McGovern the prime two contenders in the state primaries.

Sen. Humphrey is an old pro in politics. He knows how to be effective in campaigning and, as a former vice president, he can lay claim to fully knowing the ropes of government. He has been a powerful man in government and he knows his way around.

Sen. McGovern has made a surprising showing in the primaries. Following a populist theme he has certainly struck some nerves among the Democratic voters, who want to see some sort of change even if they do not know what. Just as Gov. Wallace, he appeals to a certain restlessness among the voters, even though Sen. McGovern and Wallace are poles apart in ideology.

For the Democratic party the choosing of a presidential nominee is now far more confused and complicated than it was only a few months ago. At that time it appeared that Sen. Muskie was far ahead and it would take a super human effort to head him off. Muskie faded miserably and, with Wallace badly injured Sen. McGovern and Sen. Humphrey now are in the forefront.

Anything could happen at the Democratic convention. Either McGovern or Humphrey could quickly gain the necessary votes for the nomination; or there could be a deadlock and some new and surprising candidate could emerge. Gov. Wallace may still exert influence on the proceedings.

We expect to see the unusual at this year's Democratic convention. The scene is set for it.

All The Blame Not In School

By BRYAN HAILSIP

RALEIGH — Every two seniors graduating from North Carolina public high schools this spring will be accompanied by a shadowy classmate who isn't there.

He is the dropout, class of '72.

Young people, who fail to finish high school constitute an educational and economic problem of sizeable dimensions. They represent failure, on their own part and for the education system. Their limited skills make them drag on the job market and a social liability.

"I have serious doubts how many of them have dropped out," said Dr. Jerome complete story, he explained. First, they do not reflect student transfers; migration takes many families from rural counties to cities, out-of-state or within the state.

Dropout Pressures Higher
Second, the five-year period was a time of trauma brought on by racial integration, consolidation and massive reassignment of students. Pressures for dropping out increased sharply, and the private school movement took many students out of public schools.

"The 4 per cent does not look very impressive," Dr. Melton acknowledged, "but it tells a tremendous success story. Without hesitation, I would predict that but for the upsetting times we have gone through the change in the dropout picture would have been dramatic, perhaps as high as 20 per cent."

It may seem paradoxical, but kindergarten and first grade can be critical in determining whether the student finishes high school. By the second grade, the teacher can pretty well identify those pupils most likely to become dropouts, explained Dr. Melton.

Early Action Essential
That indicates clearly, he added, how essential an early start is in building the motivation and self-confidence that will make a child want to stay in school. "If there are deficiencies which keep a student from responding to school work, they should be identified and corrected as soon as possible," he said.

At the high school level, the key is relevance. What happens in the classroom must have meaning where the student lives and expects to make his future, Dr. Melton said. For the majority, that is the world of work.

"We have expanded our offerings in occupational education 30 per cent in the past five years, and we will do more as we have the money to do it," he said. Re-entry opportunity is needed for those who already have dropped out.

An exciting example is a night high school offered in the Wilmington school system. Three hours of classes are taught each night, so that students can hold a day-time job and earn a diploma.

Now in its second year, the program has an enrollment of 130 and a waiting list of 250 — all dropouts on their way back in.

Mills Dropped His Bombshell

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The walls of the Treasury are still trembling from the surprise bombshell laid down by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills at his 90-minute closed-door meeting with President Nixon at the White House May 11.

Well publicized is the fact that Mills told the President there was no possibility of passing comprehensive tax reform before Congress adjourns this year. What has not been publicized, however, is the far more important fact that Mills confided to Mr. Nixon that he is toying with the idea of a bill terminating all provisions of the Internal Revenue Code in 1974, thereby forcing a stem-to-stern tax reform.

Mr. Nixon very nearly jumped out of his chair. The prospect of a forced rewriting of tax provisions that determine the fate of American business, the President told Mills, would undermine his plans for economic stability. Mills said he would keep that in mind.

But the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee — Mr. Taxation on Capitol Hill — has by no means discarded the idea. Long experience has convinced Mills that deeply entrenched privileges are impossible to extract from the Internal Revenue Code in the normal legislative process. Thus, he now believes the only road to total reform is to let the entire code lapse. Mills's staff had been working on this scheme long before his meeting with Mr. Nixon.

HHH and Muskie
Sen. Hubert Humphrey paid a secret visit to the home of his 1968 running-mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, in suburban Bethesda, Md., the morning of May 12 with a plea for indirect help in his fight for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

His success: just about zero.

Humphrey did not seek Muskie's endorsement. But he did ask Muskie to release some of his political supporters and financial contributors so they would be free to back Humphrey, particularly in the June 6 California primary showdown against Sen. George McGovern. The answer was no.

Humphrey found Muskie unrealistically optimistic about being the compromise nominee of a deadlocked Miami Beach convention — and not particularly well informed about what was happening. Muskie was unaware that the winner in California would automatically get all the state's 271 delegates. Nor did he realize McGovern's strength was such that he probably will go over the top on the first ballot at Miami Beach if he wins in California.

Nor did these hard facts penetrate a surrealistically cheery closed-door meeting between Muskie and his senior campaign staff in Washington five days later, May 17. Although Muskie's dim chances depend on McGovern's being stopped his managers were most interested in avoiding any stop-McGovern tactic. In fact, most of them far prefer McGovern to Humphrey if that is the choice.

McGee's Warning
The political folly of Democratic Presidential candidates attacking President Nixon's get-tough policy in Vietnam before it had a chance to prove itself was pointed out in a brief, emotional speech by Sen. Gale McGee of Wyoming at the close-door caucus of Democratic Senators May 9.

McGee, one of the few Democratic supporters of the U.S. Vietnamese commitment left in the Senate, issued this warning to his colleagues: If the President's mining of North Vietnam's harbors works, they will look foolish at best. At worst, they could be accused by Republican campaign propagandists as having deserted the flag at a moment of extreme international tension when Moscow presumably was watching closely to exploit deep political divisions here over Vietnam.

Any Democratic Presidential candidate who tries to pull the rug from under the President before his policy has had a chance to work, McGee continued, risks

New Gun-Control Round

Four years ago, the assassination of Martin Luther King and Robert Kennedy led directly to congressional approval of sweeping gun controls. History repeats. This summer, in the wake of the attempted assassination of Governor George C. Wallace, Congress will try once more to draft an effective law.

It won't be easy. In this highly-charged field, where emotions have a way of out-running reason, it is far easier to define the problem than to find a workable solution. The problem itself is universally recognized. In 1970, the FBI reported an estimated 15,800 murders in the United States; more than half of them were committed with handguns. That same year saw an estimated 350,000 robberies. Nearly two-thirds of them were armed robberies. Between 1961 and 1970, more than 600 law enforcement officers were slain; 466 of them died of handgun wounds.

The figures give no account of the hundreds of tragic accidents that occur when children discover loaded weapons around the home. No accurate tabulation is kept of persons wounded by firearms in cases of aggravated assault, but at least 80,000 such assaults occurred in 1970. The gun problem in our country is grave; and it is getting worse.

That is one point to keep in mind in contemplating new laws. There is little to indicate that the two acts approved in 1968 have done much to curb criminal violence.

The first of them, embodied in Title IV of the Omnibus Crime Control Act, prohibited the interstate shipment of pistols and revolvers to individuals, prohibited the sale of such weapons to convicted felons and fugitives, and banned over-the-counter sales of handguns to non-residents of a dealer's State. The law also required that detailed records be kept on shipments and purchases; it was this provision that enabled the FBI instantly to track down the weapon used against Governor Wallace.

In October of 1968, Congress extended generally the same provisions to commerce in rifles and shotguns. Together, the two Federal Laws provide a tight system of dealer licensing and record-keeping; and they flatly prohibit the sale of handguns to persons under 21. Yet thousands of young hoodlums manage to acquire concealable weapons anyhow, and the ugly wave of crime rools on. What to do about it? It is easier to suggest what ought not to be done. We are hearing once again the fatuous demand for outright confiscation; the idea is that a 30-day period would be provided in which every person would have to surrender his firearms to his local police. There he would receive a receipt for them; subsequently he would receive compensation. The idea is absurd. It would leave criminals armed, and their victims defenseless.

Neither is there merit in the idea of licensing and registration. Here the argument goes that men do not object to licensing of their automobiles. If a car can be effectively registered, why not a gun? One answer is that automobiles, by their very nature, can be publicly observed; an automobile licensing law presents no problems of effective enforcement. But this is not true of firearms. For every law-abiding citizen who registered his weapons, and paid the heavy license fees proposed, a hundred criminals would simply ignore the law.

One measure does make sense. On Wednesday, less than 48 hours after the Wallace shooting, a Senate sub-committee approved Senator Birch Bayh's bill to ban the so-called Saturday night specials. These are small, snub-nosed handguns, useless to the sportsman. If a law could be drafted that defined such weapons precisely, the law should be passed. Over a period of years, it might help.

But my own thought is that Congress can do less than judges can. If our courts would crack down hard on gun-toting criminals, hitting them with tough additional sentences for the use of a firearm, the word would get around.

Dropout Now Is Back In

By GALE TOLLIN

Associated Press Writer
BROOKLYN CENTER, Minn. (AP)—Carl Aldridge doesn't really know why he dropped out of high school in his sophomore year, but he figures it was a sense of responsibility which caused him to "drop back in" at the age of 30. The slender, dark-haired Aldridge, married and the father of two sons, was running a printing press in a box factory when he decided last fall to go back to school.

"The job was all right, I guess, but I got to thinking one day that it wasn't where I wanted to work the rest of my life," he says. "I decided if I was going to do better, maybe I should go back to school."

He still works in the box plant, from 3:30 p.m. until midnight five nights a week. He's up at 7 a.m. daily, does his homework while drinking a couple of cups of coffee and is in school from 8 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

Born and reared at Carthage Mo., Carl went to school there until he dropped out near the end of his sophomore year. He says it's pretty hard now, 13 years later, to think of why he quit school.

"I just didn't like it," he says. "I think you really have to want to go to school, and I didn't. There were a lot of other things I wanted to do."

Carl moved around. He lived in Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas and Colorado. He worked in a candy factory, in a gas station, as a cabinet maker, as a hospital janitor. He was in the Army for two years, and he didn't utilize an opportunity there to work toward a high school diploma.

Eventually Aldridge wound up in Minnesota where he met and married Cheryl Syke.

Carl had worked at the box factory for two years before he decided to try school again. The idea was his own.

"I probably wouldn't have done it if someone tried to push me into it," he says.

Carl gets along with the other pupils and says, "I guess they accepted me okay." His wife says one thing in Carl's favor is that he doesn't really look much older than the others.

He says his teachers, many of them about his own age, have treated him "just like the other students."

Aldridge has had thoughts from time to time about quit-

Strength For Today

WHERE?

The true history of our country has always been based on clear moral issues. When Thomas Jefferson wrote the unique historical document which bears the title "Declaration of Independence" it was not to provoke war but to prevent it, if possible. The only good life is the free life. Those who believe otherwise are probably having a bill of goods sold to them.

Where is the best place to find happiness in life? The home, if we make it so. If a home is only a boarding place where everybody is provoked at everybody else, then we had better begin asking ourselves some very penetrating questions.

Such as—who pounds the table and lays down the law in our home? Who can yell about injustices until the neighbors near him a block away (or hear the lady member of the family?)

"Give me liberty or give me death!" cried Patrick Henry. But what is liberty? Is it the right to do whatever we want to do at any time we want to do it? No. Tyrants have always been sure that they were right and everybody else was wrong. Watch out for the buy that's always right. And watch out also for those who are in a perpetual state of melancholy. Some people believe that the way to get the most out of life is through self-pity. "Everybody's against me." "Every time I try to do anything I make a mistake." "If I had more money everything would be okay." "Why do they always pick on me?"

Wipe your glasses, fellow. And turn up your hearing aid. By Earl Douglas

Commanders Have Freer Hand

By Fred S. Hoffman
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. commanders are much freer to make military decisions in this round of the air war against North Vietnam than were their predecessors during the 1965-68 bombing campaign.

President Nixon and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird have approved certain types of targets such as petroleum depots, railroads, bridges and MIG jet fields, and have okayed striking military targets anywhere they may be found in North Vietnam.

Acting within this relatively broad authority, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams and other top U.S. commanders may decide which specific sites to hit, how many planes to send, what types of bombs to use, and when to launch the raids.

Thus, as Pentagon sources explain it, Abrams acted within his discretionary power in ordering a big raid last week on a fuel-tank farm on the outskirts of Hanoi.

But Washington still retains the veto.

As a practical matter, Abrams and Adm. John S. McCain, the U.S. Pacific commander, keep the Pentagon informed on bombing plans. But the situation is a far cry from the days when President Lyndon B. Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara called the air-war shots.

The Pentagon papers, a once secret study of decision-making in the Indochina war, gave this account of the way rigid control was exercised from Washington during the 1965-1968 air-war phase:

"Final target determinations were made in Washington, with due attention to the nature of the target, its geographical location, the weight of the attack, the risk of collateral damage, and the like....

"National authorities... accepted bombing proposals only in weekly target packages. Each target package, moreover, had to pass through a chain of approvals which included senior levels of the office of the secretary of Defense, the Department of State, and the White House, up to and including the principals (Johnson and McNamara) themselves." The Johnson-McNamara policy of very gradual bombing escalation and tight control was dictated in large part by a fear that all-out bombing of North Vietnam carried a grave danger of bringing a major confrontation with Russia and Chinese entry into the war. But Nixon administration officials seem to believe that danger is not great now, if it ever was.

So there is no 10-mile "prohibited" area around Hanoi and Haiphong, as was the case during much of the earlier war phase. And there is no 20-mile-wide bomb-exempt zone along the Chinese border, as there was in the 1965-1968 period.

Dale
RALEIGH—Hubert P. "Brother" Dale, 50, of 1924 St. Mary's Street here died Sunday in Morehead city.
Dale was sales manager for Chappell Ford Company in Wake Forest. He was a member of Ayden Masonic Lodge No. 498. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 4 p.m. at Brown-Wynne Funeral Home in Raleigh by Dr. T. L. Cashwell. Burial will be in Raleigh Memorial Park.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Margaret Broughton Dale of the home; a daughter, Mrs. Inez Dunn of Norfolk, Va.

Profs Entering The Tape Field

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—They probably won't make the Top Forty, but a group of Valdosta State College professors are entering the 8-track stereo tape field. Not as rock singers, but as business lecturers.

The idea of having students learn while they drive was Dr. A.L. Addington's. "The time the average student spends riding to and from classes (or especially driving to his home town on weekends) can build up a considerable total of lost study hours," says Addington, who is in VSC's Division of Business Administration. He says cassette tapes of lectures and reading assignments will be used for some graduate business courses to that students can listen to them on auto tape players.

Build A Fence To Show Concern

FAIRFIELD, Iowa (AP)—About 100 Parsons College students have raised $350 to finance a unique antiwar protest. A group called the Concerned Students of Parsons College solicited the money from other students and townspeople to build a fence around an elementary school playground. Spokesmen said the students wanted to show their concern about the war in a constructive manner and hit upon the fence plan. The playground is near a highway.

Senior Citizens Held Luncheon

The Elm Street Senior Citizens Club held a covered dish luncheon Thursday. Mrs. Harriet Roseveare, president, presided at the meeting. New officers were installed for the 1972-73 club year. They are: Mrs. Harriet Roseveare, president; Rev. Henry Lofquist, vice president; Mrs. Neta Barker, secretary; Sam Whitehead, treasurer; Rev. Adrian Brown, chaplain; and Mrs. Eleanor Scheipers, advisor. The devotional was given by the Rev. Adrian Brown and the invocation by the Rev. Henry Lofquist. Special guests were Mayor Eugene West and Mrs. West, City Manager Harry Hagerty and Mrs. Hagerty, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Beatty, and Mrs. Blanche Hardee.

Cleetwood Break-Ins Charged At Seminar 3 Teen-Age Youths

Greenville City School Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood was one of the nationwide educators who attended a recently conducted seminar in St. Louis, Missouri on the theme of "Evaluating the Instructional Staff."

Cleetwood's participation was made possible in part by an in-service training grant from the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction. This workshop and similar ones throughout the nation are being sponsored by the American Association of School Administrators, through the National Academy for School Executives.

Dr. Cleetwood said this seminar was "a most valuable experience and most timely in that we are implementing throughout the state on July 1 the Fair Employment and Dismissal Act." This act is G.S. 112-142, enacted by the N.C. Legislature.

Dr. Erling Clausen, Superintendent of Schools in Berkeley Heights, N. J. was the seminar director. Among educators making presentations on various topics were Dr. George B. Brain, Dean of the College of Education, Washington State University; Dr. George B. Redern, Associate Secretary, American Association of School Administrators, Washington, D. C., and Dr. Stephen J. Knezevich, professor of Education, University of Wisconsin.

Four Arrested Here For Drug Law Violations

Pitt County Sheriff's Deputies and members of the Greenville Police Department arrested four men on drug law violation charges Saturday night following a raid on an East Ninth Street home.

Law enforcement officers reported that Michael C. Lynch, 22 and Dennis Lynch, 21, both of Bay Shore, N.Y., Robert Dewey Williams Jr., 25 of Annapolis, Md., and Michael Taylor Stephens, 22 of Chincoteague, Va., were charged with possessing marijuana and growing marijuana after about five pounds of the illegal weed were allegedly found in their 604B East Ninth St. home. In addition to the five pounds of "grass" officers found 15 marijuana plants and a pint of marijuana seed on the premises during the search. The Lynch brothers and Stephens were identified as East Carolina University students. The drug raid took place about 8:25 p.m.

NEW HAVEN, CONN. — Mr. Jasper Connor, formerly of Wilson County, died Sunday in a New Haven hospital.

He was the husband of Mrs. Queen Parker Connor, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Parker of near Farmville. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at the Hemby Funeral Home in Fountain.

Three teenaged boys — one 15 and the others 16 — have been charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with two incidents in the county over the past several weeks. Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said the juvenile and Johnnie Stallings of Route 6, Greenville, were arrested yesterday on larceny charges stemming from the April 17 break-in at the home of Mrs. Margaret Speight, Route 5.

Mayor Resigns To Run For House Seat

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — B. D. Schwartz, who served as mayor during one of the most explosive years in the city's history, resigned Monday to run for the North Carolina House from the New Hanover-Pender County district.

John C. Symmes, mayor pro tem, succeeded Schwartz, a Democrat who was named to the post by the City Council last year. Sources at City Hall said Schwartz had agreed to resign to run for the House when he was elected.

Racial unrest in Wilmington-New Hanover schools during the past year resulted in several violent incidents in the area.

Political observers said, however, Schwartz's resignation had nothing to do with the racial situation.

Carlos May Make Up For Error That Nearly Cost Sox Their Win

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
"I had to do something after I dropped that simple fly ball to put us behind," Carlos May said. He did plenty.

In the first inning against Texas, Chicago's powerful left fielder clubbed a double to put the White Sox ahead 1-0. But the Rangers tied it in the bottom of the inning, then May misplayed Elliott Maddox' routine fly in the fifth, setting up Dave Nelson's double that gave Texas the lead.

To atone for this sin, May capped a four-run seventh with a bases-clearing double that hauled the Sox to a 5-2 lead. The Rangers weren't through, though, scoring once in the bottom of the seventh, then going ahead 6-5 in the eighth.

So it was May to the rescue again, this time singling for his fifth run-batted-in of the game to tie it in the ninth.

That more than made up for his one misplay. Then it was atonement time for Tom Egan. The White Sox catcher had given the Rangers a pair of eighth-inning runs when he threw away a potential double play ball.

So he rid himself of his goat's horns with a tie-breaking double that gave the White Sox their 10-inning 7-6 victory.

In the only other American League game on Monday night, Oakland defeated California 6-3. In the National League, Montreal beat Philadelphia 6-3 in the only afternoon game, San Francisco outslugged Los Angeles 9-8 and Houston silenced San Diego 7-0.

Ted Williams, manager of the Rangers, did a bit of giving himself. He all but gave the White Sox the victory that kept them half a game ahead of the A's in the race for supremacy in the American League West.

It happened in the bottom of the 10th as Toby Harrah and Don Mincher singled. Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner summoned plate umpire Larry Barnett and said: "I've got Mincher batting out of order." Barnett looked at his lineup card, nodded in agreement, signaled Mincher out and waved Harrah back from third to first. That killed the Rangers' rally and saved the victory, Chicago's fourth straight and 10th in 11 games.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter went all the way for the first time this season, scattering seven California hits, and Reggie Jackson gave him the runs he needed with a three-run, tie-breaking homer that highlighted the A's five-run eighth. Hunter struck out eight and walked one. He yielded Leroy Stanton's two-run homer for the Angels in the ninth inning.

Ron Fairly's three-run homer enabled the Expos to break out of an eight-game losing slump and extend the Phillies' winless string to seven.

"The only thing that bothered me during that sick week," Montreal Manager Gene Mauch said of the tailspin, "was that our pitching wasn't as consistent as it should be. I understand our hitting problems, but with the warm weather the hitting will right itself."

Mike Torrez, who had picked up Montreal's last victory before the slide began, was pretty consistent in getting his fourth triumph of the season, spacing eight hits.

Dave Kingman took over the National League's home run lead with his ninth and 10th of the season.

Optimists Nip Pepsi By 8-5

The Optimists knocked Coca-Cola off the unbeaten list in the North State Little League yesterday, 8-3.

The loss left R. C. Cola, 1-0 in first place in the league with Coke in second place, 2-1. They are followed by the Jaycees, Optimists, and Lions, all 1-1, and the Kiwanis, 0-2.

The Optimists pushed into the lead in the first inning of play, scoring a run. Mac Stokes doubled and took third on a passed ball. Cris Lee then sacrificed him across for a 1-0 lead.

Coke came up with three runs in the third to push ahead, 3-1.

Marshall Crumpler reached on a fielder's choice and Jerome Ross singled. Joe Downing reached on an error and Rusty Lilly tripled, driving in all three runners.

The lead didn't last long, however, as the Optimists came back to score five in their half of the inning and regain the lead, this time for good. Eric McCormick reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on a passed ball. Lee doubled him across and Jeff Aldridge slammed a two-run homer. Gary Allen singled and Randy Hodges followed with another two-run blast, closing out the inning's talley.

The Optimists did add two more in the fourth. Stokes reached on an error and moved to third on others as McCormick reached. Lee hit a sacrifice fly to score Stokes, and a single by Aldridge scored McCormick to close out the hitting.

Games Delayed

Rain forced the postponement of several Church and City Softball League games last night.

Rained out were the City League games between Parker's and The Jaycees, Harbin's and Burger King, Fieldcrest and Huey's, Shirley's and Hardee's, and Greenville Utilities and Four Seasons. Also postponed was a Church League game between Oakmont and St. James.

The Hamilton-Greenville semi-pro game, scheduled for Sunday, was also washed out by rain.

All will be rescheduled at a later date.

Kemp Calls For End To Gripping

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Kemp, the first National Football League player ever elected to Congress, has issued a call for pro football's bickering owners and players to solve their own problems without the help of the nation's lawmakers.

Warning that the "time is absolutely at a crisis," the Republican congressman from Erie County, N.Y., cautioned the owners and players assembled at the Pro Football Writers dinner here Monday night about congressional intervention.

The former quarterback for the Buffalo Bills noted that there were 20 to 25 bills pending in congress dealing with various aspects of professional sports and emphasized that if pro football's problems "are not solved from within they are going to be attempted to be solved by congress."

"The answers have to come from within the sport. The people on the outside do not have the same understanding or perspective about the business. The answer is not more laws. The answer is to have the problems handled within the business itself."

In calling for the owners and players to reconcile their problems—some of which deal with the option clause, artificial turf and the fining of players—Kemp noted that there are "more things that unite the players with the owners than not."

Stander Feels He Has Mission

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Unranked challenger Ron Stander feels he has a special mission in Thursday night's 15-round heavyweight title fight against Joe Frazier.

"I am going to have to beat him, if I don't nobody will," the 212-pounder from nearby Council Bluffs, Iowa, said Monday after a 55-minute workout.

Frazier, however, is considered a 10-1 favorite to retain his title in the bout scheduled for 10 p.m. EDT at Omaha's Civic Auditorium. It also will be carried live by TVS on about 150 stations.

"I think he is one of the greatest fighters the sport has ever had," Stander continued. "I rank him right behind Marciano (Rocky)."

Stander again said his chances are excellent in the bout because the styles of the two are similar.

"I'll be in there all the way," predicted Stander. "It won't be like fighting Terry Daniels."

Stander was referring to Frazier's last foe. The champion knocked out Daniels in the fourth round to push his record to 28-0. Stander is 23-1-1.

Frazier, training across town in the Creighton University gym, completed his workouts for his seventh title defense.

The champion boxed one round with Jimmy "Moleman" Williams and two with Mike Boswell, then signed autographs. The session attended by about 150 lasted only 35 minutes.

"I am going to try to keep him resting for the next two days," said Frazier's manager, Yancey Durham.

Graniteers In Win Over Pepsi

The Graniteers edged past Pepsi-Cola in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday, 8-5. It was the first loss of the young season for Pepsi-Cola.

The Elks are now the one unbeaten in the league with a 2-0 record. They are followed by the Graniteers, 2-1; the Exchange and Pepsi, both 1-1; Integon, 0-1, and the Moose, 0-2.

The Graniteers came up with three runs in the first inning to take the lead. Tim Allen reached on an error and was second at second on another when Kevin Haut hit an infield grounder. Chris Moye then unloaded a homer, scoring all three runs.

Pepsi came up with one in its half of the second. Steve McClanahan walked and stole second. He scored when Terry Worthington tripled, making it 3-1.

Two more Pepsi runs in the third tied it at 3-3. MacDonald Avery doubled with two away and Michael Shank walked. John Coffman singled, scoring Avery. An error allowed Shank to score with the tying run.

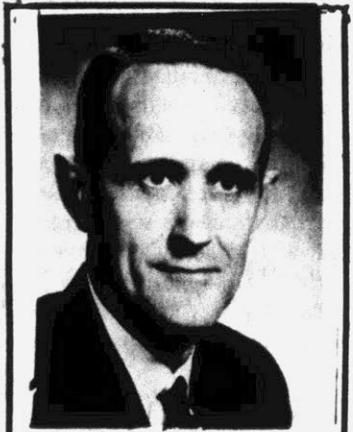

The Graniteers pushed back ahead in the top of the fourth, scoring twice. Michah Dixon singled and Allen walked. Haut doubled, scoring both runs.

In the fifth, the Graniteers added another, making it 6-3. Mike Moye singled and moved up on Sam Hardy's fielder's choice. Wayne Stokes also reached on a fielder's choice and Dixon singled in Moye. Pepsi tried to close the gap, getting two in the bottom of the fifth, but they fell short of catching up. The Graniteers added their final two runs in the top of the sixth to wrap it up.

Dixon led the Graniteer hitting with three, while Haut and Moye each had two. Coffman and Worthington each had two for Pepsi.

Indiana's Lewis Surprised When Named Playoff's Most Valuable

By STEVE HERMAN
 Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Freddie Lewis, a man whose confidence and abilities led the Indiana Pacers to their second American Basketball Association championship in three years, is a bit numb today. The Pacer team captain was named most valuable player of the 1972 ABA playoffs Monday, an honor that "caught me by surprise." The six-foot guard, who carried a 15.4 season average into the playoffs, was the shining light as the Pacers edged by Denver and Utah for the Western Division playoff title and then beat the New York Nets 4-2 in the championship best-of-seven series.

"I didn't think I would be chosen (MVP)," Lewis said slowly. "I thought maybe it would be (Pacer teammate) Roger (Brown) or Rick Barry" of the Nets.

The affable backcourt ace of the Pacers, called by Indiana Coach Bob Leonard "our steadiest performer," said he was speechless when first given the news.

"I didn't know what to think. Why me? What is this? I think it is the greatest honor I've ever had."

He had to qualify that remark though, ranking it along with winning the championship itself: "I had about the same feeling because I wanted to win the championship so badly."

Lewis, a native of McKeesport, Pa., and a graduate of Arizona State, came to the Pacers in the 1967-68 season after his rookie year with the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association.

Lewis saw limited action with the Royals but blossomed in the new league where he has been a fixture in the Pacers' backcourt, carrying an 18-point average over the past five years.

In the ABA championship series against the Nets this year, he was the leading scorer with 137 points. In the crucial fifth game, Lewis rallied Indiana from 20 points down and sank two free throws with nine seconds left to give the Pacers a 100-99 victory.

For the entire playoffs this year, Lewis averaged 19.2 points and 4.2 assists for Indiana's 20 games. He scored at a 47 per cent clip from the floor.

Sanders Leads Memphis Players

By ALEX SACHARE

Too bad the Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic ended Sunday ... Doug Sanders was just beginning to get the hang of the new Colonial Country Club course.

Sanders, the flamboyant golfer whose trademarks are colorful outfits and a compact swing, fired a course-record 66 Monday morning, then came back with a steady 71 in the afternoon for a 137 total to pace local qualifiers at Memphis for the U.S. Open.

Memphis was one of 58 sites where local qualifying is being held Monday and today. Survivors will advance to sectional qualifying rounds at 13 locations June 5-6. In all, 4,252 golfers submitted entries for the U.S. Open, to be played June 15-18 at Pebble Beach, Calif. All but 36 will have to go through some sort of qualifying round to earn a spot in the field of 150 starters.

Sanders, who called his course record "kind of a stroll in the park," finished fifth in the Memphis tourney. That event was won by Lee Trevino, who set the previous course record with a final-round 67 Sunday.

Three other tour regulars tied for second in the qualifying at Memphis. John Mahaffey, runner-up in the Memphis tourney last weekend, shot a 141, as did Bob Stanton and Johnny Pott. Elsewhere, quarterback John Brodie of the San Francisco 49ers shot an even par 72 to share the lead in the first round of local qualifying at San Francisco. The second round will be played today.

Tied with Brodie are three pros, Dale Coodell, Mike DeLozier and tour regular Jim Wiechers.

In highlights of other local qualifying rounds, amateur Rick Ehrmantraut shot a hole-in-one en route to a 71-68-139 to pace qualifiers at St. Paul, Minn. Ehrmantraut aced the 185-yard fourth hole on his morning round at the 6,578-yard Somerset Country Club.

Jimmy Wright, Long Island Open champion, shot a course record 66 at the Wheatley Country Club, then followed with a 68 at the Nassau Country Club to top qualifiers at Glen Cove, N.Y. at 134.

ACC Studying Early Signings

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP)—The question of what can be done about the signing of undergraduate basketball players by professional teams has occupied most of the attention so far at a meeting here of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Faculty chairmen agreed Monday to direct Commissioner Robert C. James to seek agreement with all league players they would not negotiate with agents for pro teams until they have used up their college eligibility.

James was directed to visit all conference schools and discuss the situation with the players and was given authority to counsel players on offers made by professional teams.

A separate session of the basketball coaches was unable to come up with a solution.

Most of the coaches opposed a suggestion by one that each school employ special counselors who would be knowledgeable in athletic contracts and the problems of players and would be able to advise them on the pitfalls of financial contracts.

N. C. State coach Norman Sloan said he didn't have a solution and didn't think the coaches could take any real action.

He couldn't see college coaches "putting any pressure on the pros. I think the people concerned with the over-all health of basketball, both the colleges and professionals, are going to have to become involved in the problem."

There was agreement among athletic directors that the recent signing of junior star Robert McAdoo of North Carolina by Buffalo of the National Basketball Association, did not violate a league rule dealing with the signing of undergraduates.

McAdoo applied for hardship status after the end of the basketball season, said Dr. Gene Hooks of Wake Forest, chairman of the athletic directors committee. James said he agreed with North Carolina findings that McAdoo did not sign a pro contract before the season ended.

It was recommended that football players be limited to 11 games, either varsity or junior varsity, and that basketball players be limited to 25 games on the same basis.

The athletic directors agreed there should be a limit of 18 jayvee basketball games and six jayvee football games for each school.

Faculty chairmen recommended that games with foreign teams should count toward a team's season limit in basketball, something which hasn't been the case in the past.

Sports Briefs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Joe DeNucci of Newton, Mass., posted his sixth consecutive victory on the comeback trail by scoring a unanimous eight-round decision over Joe Jones of Philadelphia Monday night at IBEW Hall. DeNucci weighed 169, Jones 171.

Mel Monheimer, Sonic attorney, said Monday the panel would coordinate and consolidate the cases and decide upon a trial date.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mac Arthur set a national season record for 2-year-old trotters Monday night with a 2:08 mile at Scioto Downs.

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP) — American Kathy Kusner rode Triple Crown to victory Monday in the grand prix of the Wiesbaden international equestrian tournament.

Miss Kusner rode the final eliminating course of 350 meters with seven jumps in 36.0 seconds, without a fault.

Her victory, combined with Sunday's triumph in the amazon jumping, assured her of the $4,800 Wiesbaden Trophy.

SEATTLE (AP) — The seven court suits arising from Jim McDaniels' jump from the American Basketball Association to the Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association will be aired before a multidistrict federal panel in Denver next month.

Player Returns To U.S. Tour

By BOB GREEN
 Associated Press Golf Writer
 ATLANTA (AP) — Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Gary Player, the globe-trotting little South African who recently won in Japan, returns to the American tour this week in the $130,000 Atlanta Classic.

This, of course, qualifies as nothing but bad news for the American tourists. The sturdy little rancher from Johannesburg is one of the world's foremost players and annually takes more than his share of prize money in brief raids on the American circuit.

In his first American swing this year Player picked up $42,739 in seven starts. He won at New Orleans, finished in the top 10 three other times and disqualified himself from a chance at the title in Greensboro.

Player's plans aren't definite, but he will stay over at least through the U.S. Open in Pebble Beach, Calif., next month and probably will compete through the Canadian Open in July.

championship in Ligonier, Pa., scheduled on the same dates. The TPD also is contributing half the purse to a $10,000 satellite to the IVB-Philadelphia Classic. The event originally was scheduled for 36 holes June 5-6 with a $5,000 purse. It has been changed to a one-day affair June 7—to avoid conflict with the U.S. Open qualifying—at Northfield, N.J., with a $10,000 purse.

Bob Barbarossa was competing in that weekly agony known as the Monday morning qualifying where non-exempt players attempt to win their way into the next tour event. "Would you believe," Barbarossa asked, pointing to a 'near-by green, "that I made an 8 on that hole—and I'm not the last man off the tee on this one?"

His playing partners said nothing at all. Australian Bruce Crampton was talking about a tour oddity—the players' relationship with the officials of the Tournament Players Division of the PGA.

"Usually, the employer tells the employee what to do," Crampton observed. "In this case, the employee tells the employer what to do."

The tour officials are the men who run the day to day operations of the tour. They set up the courses, make rulings, handle questions on the rules, set starting times and make the apirings, etc.

And they're employed by the players.

Dave McNally of the Baltimore Orioles has won 20 or more games in each of the last four seasons.

Lee Trevino's half-joking comment when Jack Nicklaus, bedded with the flu, had to pull out of last week's Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic:

"I hope he gets a hitch in his swing and is out a month. When he plays he makes all the money. When he doesn't, somebody else has a chance."

Homero Blancas, on a recent trip to a doctor, discovered he has a torn cartilage in his knee. Blancas says it appears he has had it since about 1963.

A $20,000 satellite event has been added to the tour schedule. It's the Vern Parsell Buick Open, a 72-hole affair set for Grand Blanc, Mich., July 27-30. The Tournament Players Division of the PGA is putting up half the prize money.

The Worry Clinic Rusk Dissects 'News Makers'

Dean Rusk shows why Washington officials must be skilful verbal "fencers" with reporters! Note his 4-fold diagnosis of their psychological methods. Because of his many years as Secretary of State, plus his superb oratory, he'd make the ideal presidential nominee of the Democratic Party!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case T-585: Warren K. Agee is the talented Dean of the School of Journalism at the University of Georgia.

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "could you give us an hour's lecture on the 'Psychology of Communications'?"

"We are having a convention of the Southern Association of Business Communicators."

"Dean Rusk and a few others have been picked as our speakers, for the SABC is inviting the top orators who have previously spoken at their conventions during the past 25 years."

"Because they enjoyed your former address so much, they have asked me to see if you could come back again."

Compliment Club
Dean Agee obviously is a charter member of my "Compliment Club," as his deft invitation indicates.

The SABC is composed of versatile editors and other journalistic experts who produce magazines or trade journals in the field of business.

Besides, I wanted to hear Dean Rusk again, for his many years as Secretary of State under two presidents give him unique authority.

My address came in the morning, followed by Dean Rusk who entertained the luncheon crowd.

"The press should bore in to get secrets," he admitted, "but not by bribery or the breaking of laws."

Then he delivered an incisive diagnosis of the methods used by the various columnists, reporters and news analysts who constantly confront our leading government officials in Washington.

Apropos of the "slanting" of news, he mentioned a pathetic picture of a refugee woman in the war zone, with uplifted hands, as she pleaded to be evacuated via helicopter.

"The obvious implication was that we callously ignored civilians," he added.

"But if the photographer had merely turned his camera a few degrees, he would have included the view of a second huge helicopter, crammed to the brim with similar women refugees."

"And this woman who was left behind, would also have been on that loaded helicopter except for the fact the news photographer had 'bumped' her off in order to take her seat thereon!"

Then Dean Rusk mixed humor with his shrewd dissection of methods employed by Washington news correspondents to extract secret data.

"First," he began, "There is the 'Big Shot Compulsion,' which reporters realize will work on many members of Congress and the Cabinet.

"Since those legislators want to appear important and also be quoted nationwide, they may let slip vital bits of information."

Another neat device he termed the "Bedside Manner," wherein the reporter is sympathetic and expresses incredulity at the heavy obligations devolving upon the distinguished official from whom he wants to extract newsworthy facts.

"Senator," the reporter will exclaim incredulously, "I don't see how you ever stand up under the oppressive duties that devolve upon you."

This makes the Senator expand until soon he lets slip some "inside" data.

Then there is what Dean Rusk calls the "Hand Grenade" technique, involving the reporter's release of some explosive fact, true or false.

Finally, said Dean Rusk, the reporters may make a violent "Personal Attack," angering the official to the point he loses discretion and thus "spills the beans."

An unorthodox play at the opening gun provided the key to South's successful performance in today's six heart contract.

West opened the five of spades and the lone ace appeared in dummy. South pondered at length what to discard from his hand and having no real preference between clubs and diamonds, he finally chose to ruff his good trick in order to retain his minor suit holdings.

The ace of hearts was cashed on which West played the jack and East discarded a spade. West was given his trump trick and now the latter was end played. After some thought, West exited with a diamond. South won the trick with the jack, crossed over to the ace and then back to the king. When the suit divided evenly, declarer's five was established for the discard of a club from dummy and now he had the rest of the tricks.

Had West shifted to a club, the outcome would have been the same—since that suit also divides favorably and declarer's long club becomes established for a diamond discard.

Giving South a ruff and discard leads to the same result, for either a club or a diamond may be discarded from dummy, while declarer ruffs in his hand. If the stuff is a diamond, for example, South goes over to the ace, back to the king and then ruffs away West's queen on the third round. The queen of hearts puts declarer in to cash the jack of diamonds to discard North's losing club.

The procedure can be duplicated in clubs if that suit is discarded on West's spade return.

League Sets Giving Program On Holy Land 2 Meetings

The Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters will hold its final set of unit meetings before fall Wednesday.

The morning meeting will be held at 10 o'clock at the home of Mrs. William Waugh, 119 Oxford Road. The evening meeting will be at 8 o'clock with Mrs. Harry Hastings, 1101 Oakview Drive. Members should note that there is no Tuesday unit meeting this month.

The subject for discussion is court reform. In 1960, the N.C. League of Women Voters took a position on courts and the League is informed there will be constitutional amendments on the November ballot. This position was reviewed and updated at the 1971 State LWV Convention with respect to selection of judges, their retirement and removal.

Bar Dee Bond will head the discussions on four consensus questions regarding these reforms.

All interested persons are invited to attend either of these meetings.

County GOP Session Set

Dixie E. "Dick" Greene, chairman of the Pitt County Republican executive committee, reported that the county Biennial Republican Convention will get underway here Thursday night, 8 p.m. at the courthouse.

Greene said that the main item of business will be election of delegates and alternates to attend the First District Republican Convention June 10 at the Craven County Courthouse in New Bern. He noted that the convention will start at 2 p.m.

On the business agenda in New Bern will be the election of two delegates and two alternates to attend the Republican National Convention in Miami, Fla. The chairman noted that the date for the district convention was moved from June 3 to June 10 because of the runoff primary scheduled for the original date.

Housewives' Revolt Is Threatening IRA Role

BELFAST (AP) — The threat of a revolt by Roman Catholic housewives enraged by the vigilante justice of the Irish Republican Army has sharpened the rivalry between the two factions of the IRA and endangered the guerrillas' hold on Catholic districts of Londonderry.

Two hundred angry women marched on an IRA headquarters in the Bogside district of Londonderry Monday, protesting the underground army's execution of a young Irish soldier in the British Army. The women threatened to open the barricaded areas of Northern Ireland's second largest city to British troops.

"This is murder and we are sick of it," a leader of the demonstration shouted. She was referring to the death last week-end of 19-year-old William Best. The young Catholic soldier, home on leave from his unit in Germany, was tried by the Official wing of the IRA as a traitor, hooded and shot. The woman said he had been tortured.

Scuffling broke out between the IRA men and the women, some of whom were pushing baby carriages and others carrying their children.

The Provisional wing of the IRA, known as the Provos, seized on the women's anger and demanded that the leftist Officials get out of Free Derry, as the IRA-controlled Bogside and Creggan districts of Londonderry are called.

"We don't want any gunmen in here," said one militant woman, "not the Officials, not the Provos, and not the British Army. We want peace."

The women threatened to tear down the barricades the IRA has thrown up around Free Derry and call in the British Army to clean out the guerrillas.

The traditionalist Provisionals and the Marxist Officials have long been divided over the tactics to use against the British in Northern Ireland and over ideology. The Provos took the lead in the campaign of violence, and the Officials now are trying to catch up. The Provos favor a country run by businessmen and priests.

McGee's warning fell on deaf ears. But the caucus did dump a resolution by Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a leading anti-war Democrat, expressing "no confidence" in the President's Vietnam policy.

If, as now seems possible, Mr. Nixon's immutable decision to close off North Vietnam from Soviet and Chinese war material works, McGee's warning may prove prophetic in the Presidential campaign.

ting school. It's been quite a grind, he admits, and now and then he feels "kinda dragged out."

"Sometimes I ask is it really worth it, but I've stuck with it," he says. "This year actually has gone pretty fast. I've gone this far, and there's no sense to quitting now."

His wife says she's "really proud" of Carl for going back to school.

"I figure now, while I have the time and am able to, is the time to go to school," says Carl, "even if it crimps family life."

Maybe a high school diploma won't lead him to a better job, Carl says, "but I'll still have the self-satisfaction in knowing that I completed something I wanted to do."

Big Delegation Sanctuary Dedicated To J.A. Speight For Convention

Don Brady, newly elected president of the Greenville Jaycees, announced that 38 local Jaycees and their wives will attend the 1972 State Jaycee Convention May 25-28 in Raleigh.

Brady reported that activities will include election of a state president and other officers for the North Carolina organization. Awards to outstanding individuals and clubs will also be presented during the weekend.

Tom Reese and Joe DeLoach, Greenville Jaycees who won their respective contests in the Jaycee Speak-Up competition in April during the Spring Northeast Regional Meeting, will represent the region in state competition during the convention.

Brady pointed out that this is the second year in a row that two young men from the Greenville chapter have represented the region in state competition.

The new president noted that fun and enjoyment will also be on the convention agenda as young men and their wives gather to wrap up a year of service to their respective communities.

The newly completed sanctuary of the St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church in Greenville was dedicated Sunday as a memorial to J. A. Speight, a long-time lay official of the congregation.

Bishop J. Floyd Williams, chief administrative official of the denomination, came from Franklin Springs, Ga., headquarters of his church, to preach the dedicatory sermon Sunday afternoon. Bishop Williams was born in the community in which the St. Paul Church has built its sanctuary, an education building, a fellowship hall, and a modern parsonage.

The dedicatory service and the church annual Homecoming Day were combined to be observed on Pentecost Sunday.

The services were led by the Rev. R. H. Brafford, pastor, who led in the completion of the building program which was begun as a part of a long-range project involving an expenditure of near $300,000.

Conference Superintendent Speaks

Preaching Sunday morning, the Rev. J. Doner Lee, North Carolina Conference Superintendent, noted the Message of Pentecost and Its Meaning Today, emphasizing effects in unifying Christian believers, empowering Christians for witnessing, and demonstrating faith in action.

Special music for this occasion was provided by the adult choir.

Dedicatory Service

Beginning his sermon with a tribute to J. A. Speight, Bishop Williams described Mr. Speight as "a man eloquent with his actions, a citizen of sterling character, and an individual whose life is a sermon."

Theme of Bishop Williams' sermon, "Christ the Central Figure of History and Founder of the Church," was developed from scripture from Book of Revelation.

"Christ holds the answers to the problems of humanity. He is the Alpha and Omega of His Church, and the forces of evil can never stop the progress and growth of the church as it follows an invincible Christ," declared the distinguished clergyman.

Greetings and appreciation of the Church membership in the planning of the sanctuary were spoken by J. T. Williams, member of the official board.

The congregation was led in the dedicatory response by Superintendent Lee, Bishop Williams closed with the dedicatory prayer, and Mrs. Erlene Stocks sang a solo, "Bless This House."

Music for the double celebration was under the direction of Tyrone Williams, Mrs. R. H. Brafford, Mrs. Dorothy Dixon, organist, and Mrs. Ruby Whichard, pianist.

More than a score of clergymen were present to participate in the dedicatory services.

Luncheon was served to more than 400 guest in the Fellowship Hall. Threatening showers forced the large attendance indoors for the homecoming day meal.

The St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church was organized in 1907 by the late Rev. A. H. Butler, North Carolina Conference Superintendent at the time.

The late Rev. J. B. Williams, father of Bishop Williams, now General Superintendent of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, was founder and builder of the original church.

In 1942, the original frame structure, was replaced with a new frame structure, then in 1962 the present education building was constructed, serving as a place of worship until the completion of the new sanctuary which was occupied for the first time on April 23, 1972.

The present official board of the church is constituted of the Rev. R. H. Brafford, pastor and chairman; Henry W. Hoell, Clifton Stocks, J. T. Williams, Lloyd Richardson, Woodrow Heath, Henry McDaniel, Jr., Jackson Williams, and Mrs. Mary Whichard, secretary.

The official board was also assisted in building planning by Johnnie Lee Buck, J. P. Benton, W. F. (Bill) Harrington, and Carlton Williams.

Trustees of the church: Henry W. Hoell, J. A. Speight, J. T. Williams, and Walter Williams.

The J. A. Speight sanctuary seats 400 persons, with seating for 35 persons in the choir, and contains offices for the pastor and the church secretary.

The Rev. R. H. Brafford has served as pastor since August 1, 1970.

Other ministers serving as pastor in its 65-year history since the first pastorate of the Rev. J. B. Williams in 1907 include: G. Paul Wells, Aaron B. Howard, J.

Plan Feeder Pig Show And Sale

Plans for the upcoming Feeder Pig Show and Sale to be conducted by the Pitt County Livestock Development Association and the Pitt Agricultural Extension Service are underway with some 150 pigs consigned.

The show and sale is scheduled for Thursday at the Pitt County Fairgrounds here and is open to all Pitt County swine producers. According to Steve Riddick, assistant agricultural extension agent, any producer who has pigs of United States Department of Agriculture number one and two quality in the 40-70 pounds weight range is eligible to participate.

Riddick said that the show is being held both as a promotional and educational event in hopes of demonstrating the feasibility of feeder pig production in combination with an intensified row crop program.

The assistant agent noted that the event will also give the people of Pitt County who are not familiar with swine production a chance to become acquainted with the quality and type of hogs being produced within the county.

Deadline for entering pigs in the show is Monday. The hog cholera evadication program requires all pigs to be inspected before movement. It will be necessary for entries to be in by Monday so that the inspections can be arranged, it was emphasized.

For further information on the show and sale, persons should contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service.

Wealth Awaits In Junked Cars

NEW YORK (UPI)—There's copper, tin and chromium in them thar man-made mountains of junked cars!

Authorities estimate that development of an economical method for removing these metals would increase the scrap's value and facilitate recycling of the estimated 20 million derelict auto bodies in the nation's junk heaps.

FULL SLEEVES COMING
NEW YORK (AP) — Full sleeves in garments will be in evidence next fall and next spring, predicts the Traphagen School of Fashion.

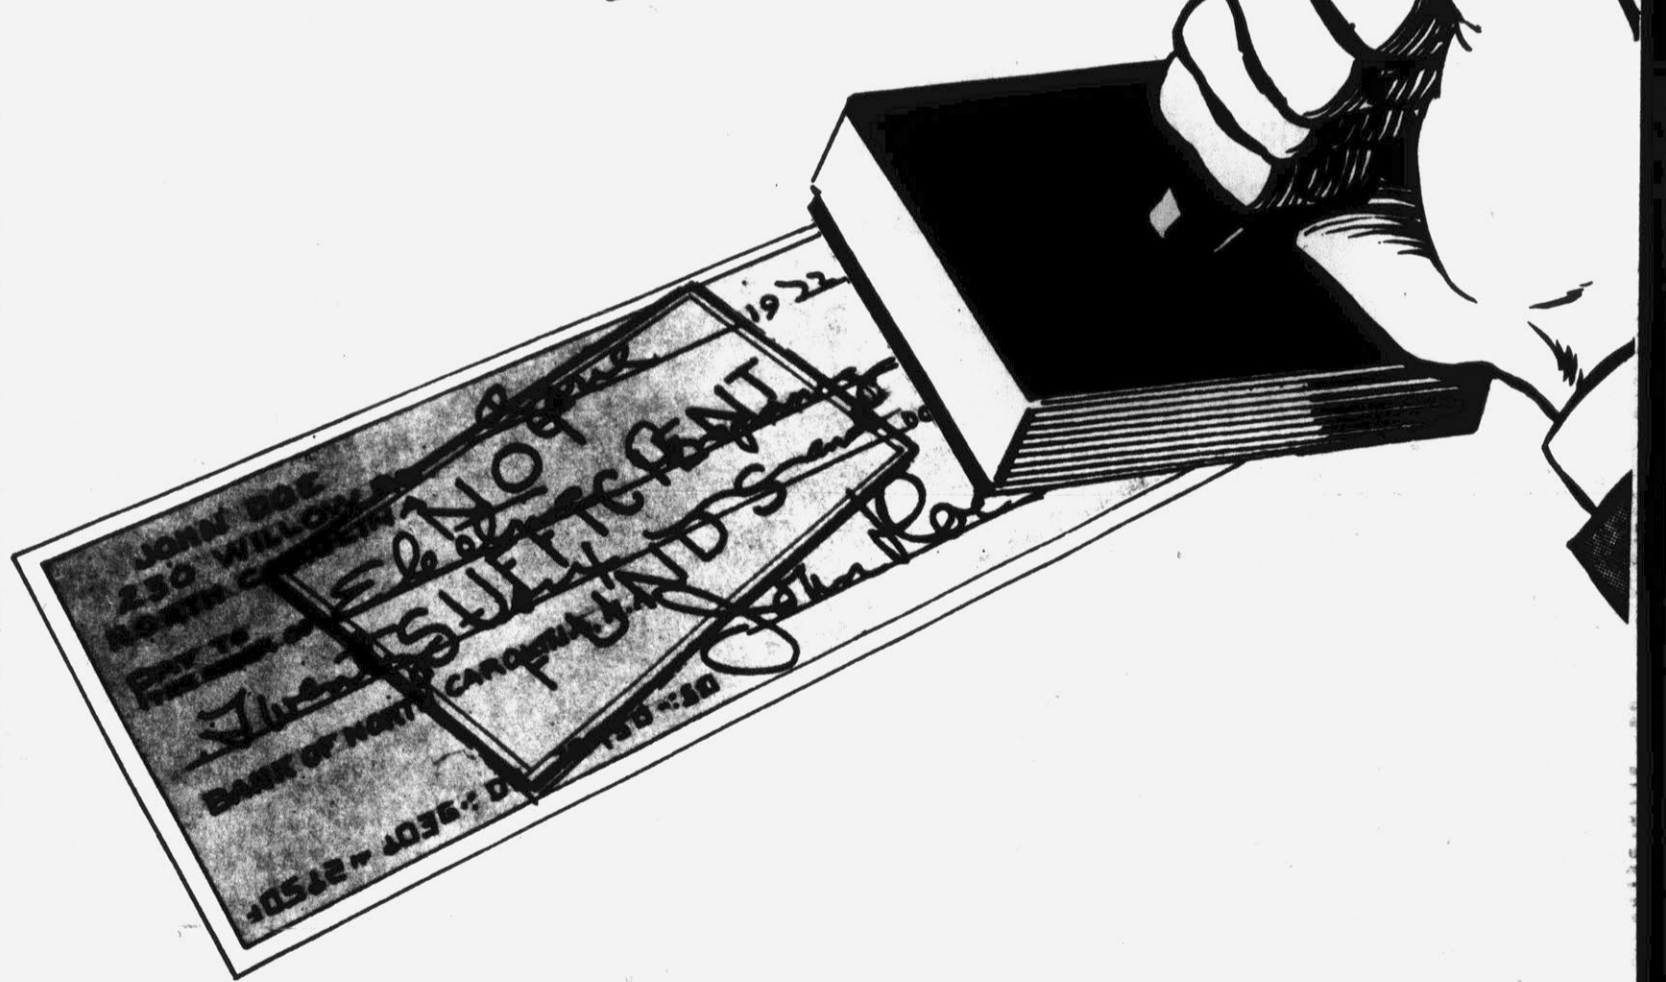

Very tailored clothes for day and dinner dresses with emphasis on the bosom also were forecast by students taking part in the school's 49th annufashion show.

If you can afford to buy a cup of coffee every morning, you can afford an extension telephone.

For less than 5¢ a day, you can get a handy extension. So give yourself a break. Costs as little as $1.25 per month, plus tax and installation.

These are just two of the automatic features when you have new "Master Checking" protection at BNC. The three simple steps: (1) Open a personal checking account; (2) Get a BNC Master Charge card; and (3) Sign an agreement permitting cash advances from you Master Charge account into your checking account whenever a need arises.

From that moment your Master Charge card serves as "a thin plastic layer of protection" for every check you write... with credit limits ranging from $300 to $3,000.

So drop by Bank of North Carolina and arrange for your "Master Checking" protection now. We'll both be glad you did!
