Nixon And Russians Find Agreement On Nuclear Arms Curb

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon and Soviet leaders reached agreement today on the critical summit issue of limiting strategic nuclear arms. A two-part settlement of the thorny arms curb question, the subject of 2½ years of negotiation, is to be signed tonight.

Resolution of last-minute differences on highly technical aspects of the accord prompted Nixon to postpone for an hour an evening dinner at the U.S. ambassador's residence where the visiting American will entertain the Soviet hierarchy.

Word of a SALT agreement came after a day of on-again, off-again reports of the prospects for a Friday settlement. One part of the agreement, limiting defensive antiballistic missile sites in each country, takes the form of a treaty subject to ratification by the U.S. Senate and was agreed upon first.

Under the terms of a companion executive agreement, which will take effect without legislative action, deployment of offensive nuclear missiles will be frozen at the present level so far as the United States is concerned. The Russians will be allowed to catch up with the U.S. lead in launching platforms.

The accord permits both countries to replace existing offensive missiles, whether on land or aboard ships at sea, with more sophisticated weapons as technological advances permit.

However, a Soviet television commentator, Valentin Zorin, said in a broadcast Thursday night that "there are problems which still require much effort and much work."

Some American observers suspected that the Nixon entourage would prefer to unveil the arms agreement in time for publication in the widely read Sunday morning newspapers back home and were attempting to create an element of suspense after four days of signing ceremonies for agreements concluded 10 days to three months ago.

The Nixons went to the Bolshoi Ballet Thursday night to see "Swan Lake" and encouraged their first public expression of opposition to the President's Vietnam policy. During a hush just before the last act, a woman in the top balcony shouted either "via dal Vietnam"—get out of Vietnam—in Italian or "Freedom for Vietnam" in English.

The house lights went up for the audience to applaud the conductor, but many in the audience turned toward the presidential box as they clapped.

Trade Deficit Soaring

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade deficit soared past $2 billion in April, giving the country its worst start ever in trading with other nations.

The Commerce Department said the value of imports exceeded exports by $699.4 million in April, second worst monthly deficit in history. It put the total deficit for the year at just over $2.2 billion.

Last year, the United States recorded its first annual trade deficit in history when the value of imports exceeded exports by $2 billion.

Unless there is a turnaround in the trade figures in the latter part of the year, it appears that this year will be the worst on record.

A spokesman for the Commerce Department blamed the continued deficit on the fact that the U.S. economy is expanding fast, making it a good market for foreign imports, while other economies of the world are sluggish, making them bad markets for U.S. exports.

Figures showed that seasonally adjusted imports in April totaled $4.459 billion compared with $3.780 billion in exports.

The situation got worse in April because the nation shipped out fewer big jumbo jets than it did in March.

While exports declined, imports stayed at almost the same level, showing a small drop of 0.3 per cent.

Spanks, Slaps Held Reasonable

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — An elementary school principal who spanked and slapped several students for beating up another youngster used "reasonable force" and thus was not guilty of assault, a judge has ruled.

Municipal Judge C. William Sykora found principal George E. Lillquist innocent Thursday. Lillquist admitted in court that he spanked three boys and slapped two of them for allegedly beating up another boy on the playground of Waite Park school last month.

Break-Through On Trade Commission

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today President Nixon and Kremlin leaders have agreed to set up a joint commission to "promote the development of mutually advantageous relations in trade."

The communique was distributed by the official news agency Tass as Nixon met with the top three Soviet leaders. It signaled the first break-through on difficult trade issues which have seen intense negotiations since the American president arrived here Monday.

There was no immediate confirmation from the American delegation. The Tass dispatch said the leaders "have agreed to institute a Soviet-American commission on questions of trade."

The Russians also are seeking multimillion-dollar grain purchases from the United States, as well as U.S. credits to expand industrial production to meet rising consumer demands.

But U.S. negotiators have insisted on some settlement of the Soviet World War II lend-lease debt prior to any favorable economic deals.

U.S. trade officials had said before coming to Moscow that creation of a joint commission to press forward with trade talks was likely.

Agreement on creation of the joint commission could indicate that Nixon and Soviet leaders feel it is impossible to resolve during the summit talks the complex trade questions facing the two countries, and that such a structure is needed to continue the negotiations.

The Tass announcement said the joint commission will hold talks on the following questions:

—"A general trade agreement, including mutual granting of most-favored-nation treatment.

—"Agreement on mutual granting of state credits.

—"Mutual granting of possibilities for commercial activities to promote development of trade."

—"Agreement on the mechanism of resolving trade disputes in arbitration."

Tass added that "the commission will have its meetings in Moscow and Washington, alternately. The commission will have its first meeting in Moscow next July."

Peace Campaign Sees Opposition

BELFAST (AP) — More violence exploded in Northern Ireland Thursday night, and the budding Roman Catholic peace movement ran into opposition from grass-roots supporters of the Irish Republican Army.

A powerful bomb heavily damaged the center of a small country town, British troops exchanged fire with gunmen at several locations and a Catholic was tarred, feathered and shot in Belfast.

In Londonderry, where a campaign for peace led by battle-weary Catholic women had appeared to be gaining ground, 400 persons turned out in the rain to shout their support for the IRA.

The ralliers, assembled on an hour's notice, vigorously applauded speakers who denounced the burgeoning peace movement and passed a vote of confidence vote in both wings of the IRA guerrilla organization, the Officials and the Provisionals, or Provos.

Five women who had talked about peace with Britain's northern Ireland minister, William Whitelaw, met Thursday with five members of the IRA's Official command staff and said afterward their talks were frank and friendly. But they had no words of real hope the violence would stop.

A senior IRA commander,

Seamus O'Kane, declared: "The campaign of defense and retaliation is still operative. There has been absolutely no change."

A bomb went off early today at Moneymore in County Londonderry, after an anonymous telephone caller warned it was ticking away in a parked car outside a police headquarters and residence. Constable Maurice Kelly, his wife and two young children fled from the residence along with an old woman across the street. The bomb exploded within minutes.

Courier System

RALEIGH (AP) — The state plans to operate a mail courier system to and from its major branch offices in 64 North Carolina cities.

Dr. William Turner, secretary of the Department of Administration, said Thursday the pilot program will be in operation by September and the full program within 12 months.

He said the pilot program will have two routes service 11 cities. The eastern route will include Wilson, Greenville, New Bern, Kinston, Goldsboro, Winston-Salem, Lexington and Asheboro.

Turner said a survey indicated that state agencies were spending $195,000 annually in postage for mail originating in Raleigh to the 64 cities.

The mail courier system, he added, will be on a cost sharing basis with the participating agencies paying for the service from their postage account since no funds are allocated for the program.

Tank Attack On Kontum Broken Up; Warplanes Again Strike Haiphong

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces firing electronically guided missiles newly introduced in Vietnam broke up a tank assault on Kontum City in the central highlands today. A dozen tanks were reported destroyed.

On the northern front, South Vietnamese marines beat back the fourth assault this week on the northernmost defense line at My Chanh, north of Hue. The Saigon command claimed 192 North Vietnamese troops were killed and said South Vietnamese losses were seven killed and 34 wounded.

In the air war against North Vietnam, American planes pounded the Haiphong area Thursday for the third day in a campaign to isolate the major port from the rest of the country. Pilots reported destroying one span each in two bridges and attacked a power plant near Vinh, 145 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

A Navy A4 jet was lost near Vinh, and the pilot was missing.

Heavy fighting continued in Kontum for the second day, and field reports said the North Vietnamese were trying to capture their second provincial capital. The country's northernmost provincial capital, Quang Tri, fell to the enemy May 1.

A number of North Vietnamese troops were reported still in the northeastern and southeastern sections of the city, but South Vietnamese forces were reported to have them contained and under attack.

The U.S. Command said American helicopters firing TOW missiles destroyed 10 of the 12 enemy tanks that were knocked out.

U.S. sources in Pleiku said three of the tanks were American M41s captured from the South Vietnamese army a month ago.

TOW is an acronym for tube-launched, optically traced, wire-guided. The missiles are guided by American operators who keep the target centered in a telescopic sight.

Overcast skies and poor weather kept U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers away from the area until noon, and U.S. officers said the TOW helicopters were the primary weapon in turning back the tanks. Meanwhile, more than a score of U.S. B52s dropped 600 tons of bombs on all four sides of the city, hitting at enemy troop concentrations.

The South Vietnamese command claimed that 244 North Vietnamese were killed in the Kontum area Thursday. Field reports said 20 South Vietnamese were killed and 80 wounded.

No U.S. helicopter losses were reported in the tank engagements, but two were shot down on Thursday in the Kontum area, the U.S. Command said. One crewman was killed and two are missing, the command said.

Pitt Republicans Select Delegates To 1st District Convention

By STUART SAVAGE

Pitt County Republicans held their county convention in Greenville Thursday night and selected delegates to attend the First Congressional District and state conventions in June.

Pitt Republicans are allowed 47 delegates and 47 alternates to the district and state conventions.

Dick Greene, Pitt Republican chairman who presided at the convention, said the First Congressional District meeting will be held June 10 at the Craven County Court House in New Bern while the state convention will be June 17 in Greensboro.

Main items of business scheduled for the state convention, Greene pointed out, are the selection of delegates to the Republican National Convention in Miami, August 23 through August 25; and choosing representatives to the Republican National Committee.

The country chairman also explained that Vice-president

Spiro T. Agnew will be the featured speaker at a fundraising dinner in Greensboro following the State Convention.

After delegates to the district and state meetings were named, Republican Dr. John East said all registered Republicans in the county should be encouraged to attend the District Convention in New Bern.

Acting on a motion by Dr. East, the convention voted to consider any registered Republican attending a delegate to the First District Convention with the county's 47 votes divided among those present.

Greene said anyone who can attend the district or state conventions should contact him within the next few days.

Republicans last night also voiced their support for Mrs. Malcolm Howard in her bid as one of the state's delegates to the national convention.

Delegates selected last night included: Dick Greene, John Dail, Don C. Johnson, W.W. Allen, Barry M. Shank, Robbie E. Roberson, Frank Steinbeck, Mr. and Mrs. James Hudson, Rosie Griffin, Marcia Pendergraph, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Howard, Ria Grasman, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hooper, Russell Hageman, Mrs. and Mrs. Kenneth McAlpine, Dr. and Mrs. John East, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dansey, Dorothy Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Browning.

Other delegates named were: Dr. and Mrs. Sellers Crisp, Bart Reilly, Henry Smith, Mary Anne Manning, Sam Sewall, Robert Abbott, Ann Edwards, James C. Lanier, Herb Lee, Tom Herndon, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wallace, Steve Novles, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Lister, James Florence, Mr. and Mrs. James McRoy, Mrs. John Weeden, Ira Baker and Mrs. and Mrs. James Keel.

'Wrong Procedure' Starting A Revival In Tax Opposition Series On Monday

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Court of Appeals says a topless dancer failed to use proper procedure for challenging the validity of a Charlotte city tax of $500 on her profession.

The court did not rule on the constitutionality of the tax as it overturned a lower court decision striking down the levy.

Sherry Lewis, a topless dancer who refused to pay the $500 tax, brought suit asking for an injunction against collection of the tax.

The defendants were Charlotte Police Chief J. C. Goodman, Mecklenburg County Police Chief B. L. Porter, Sheriff Donald W. Stahl and Joseph A. Stone, city and county tax collector.

Space Workers Are 'Thanked' By Apollo Crew

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Thanking space workers for making possible an "out of this world" ride, Apollo 16 astronauts donated three moon-landing souvenirs to the Kennedy Space Center.

The presents were an American flag, a Florida flag and a mission emblem. They were mounted with an inscription that reads:

"To the men and women of the Kennedy Space Center in appreciation for a ride that is literally and figuratively out of this world."

Astronauts John W. Young, Charles M. Duke Jr. and Thomas K. Mattingly II made the presentation Thursday in a thank you ceremony before 8,000 applauding government and industry space workers.

It was the first time the spacemen had been back to Cape Kennedy since they were launched on their mission April 16.

lector. The tax was ruled unconstitutional last September by Mecklenburg Superior Court Judge W. K. McLean. He issued an injunction against its collection, and the defendants appealed.

In reversing McLean's ruling, Appeals Court Judge Hugh B. Campbell said "an injunction is not the proper procedure for testing the validity of the tax in question."

Campbell said the proper procedure is to pay the tax, demand a refund, and then bring suit to recover the amount if it is not refunded.

He noted that Miss Lewis had testified her income had dropped from $1,000 a week when she danced topless to $300 a week after the tax was levied refused to pay it.

"Plaintiff could easily have paid the $500 tax and sued for a refund," Campbell said. "She had an adequate remedy at law and is required to pursue that remedy."

Convention Center Space Rent For News Media Is 'Rebuffed'

By DONALD SANDERS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A requirement that the news media pay an estimated $1.5 million to rent space in the Miami Beach Convention Center between the national political conventions apparently will be rebuffed by all the media with the exception of the broadcast networks.

The alternative is to pay 35 cents a square foot daily rent. In the case of the smallest assigned space—a cubicle 5 by 6 feet—that amounts to $378 for the 36 days between the end of the Democratic convention and the beginning of the Republican one.

For the big U.S. news services, the rent would cost around $35,000 to $40,000. Both The Associated Press and United Press International have chosen to move their equipment out of convention hall and store it. They estimate tentatively that this will cost from $5,000 to $10,000—a saving in the range of $30,000.

For organizations not requiring as much space for photographic and darkroom equipment, the saving may be proportionally smaller. But such newspapers as the New York Times, the Los Angeles Times, the Washington Post and the Wall Street Journal have also decided to dismantle.

For the three major networks, with sophisticated electronic and camera equipment and anchor-man booths constructed above the convention hall floor, the problem is more complex.

All three said their major problem is not money but time. They maintain it would take them more than 30 days to dismantle and reinstall their equipment, so they could not possibly be out of the hall for more than a few days.

City Manager Clifford O'Key says the network booths will stay in the hall, but that he does not yet know what the rental will be. The city owns the convention center.

Network sources say they have been told they will be charged $180,000 each to remain. But they estimate it would cost perhaps $100,000 more each to dismantle, crate and label each item of their equipment and install it again.

The media are not charged rent during the conventions themselves, although they do pay for work space in headquarters hotels.

Youth Disagrees With Abby On Drug Usage

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have to take issue with your advice to parents who wanted to know if they had the right to snoop into their children's belongings to discover if they were using drugs. You said this was a case in which invasion of privacy was justified, and parents had the right to use "whatever means possible" to find out what their children were doing. Abby, now I'm convinced that you are not qualified to give advice on drugs; in fact, your column is beginning to show the characteristics of Gestapo police.

I am a college student who uses drugs, and as a citizen of this country, I have as much right to privacy as the next person. It is my life and my body, and I will do what I like with them.

Wise up, Abby. Talk to some users. Find out where it's really at, and stop encouraging kids to flunk on each other. Someday the soft drugs will be legal and then a lot of us will breathe easier, just as people did after prohibition.

SICK OF HASSLES

DEAR SICK: So it's "soft drugs" you want to legalize? Who's to decide which drugs are "soft" and which are "hard"? You? If you then disagree on which drugs should be legal, will you still assert your "right of privacy" to use illegal drugs?

The legalization of some drugs as "controlled substances" may be on the way, and should be. But until it arrives, I'll continue to counsel obedience of the law as it stands, along with reasonable surveillance of the young in their use.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I [married for 12 years] have two children, and we finally managed to take a vacation alone (no kids) for the first time since our marriage.

We arranged to have a nice young married couple move into our home in our absence to look after our children.

When my parents saw us off at the airport, my mother asked, "Did you make a will in case something happens to you?" I really was shook up, Abby. Of course we didn't make a will.

I realize it is a possibility, but the point I am trying to get across is that nothing happened to us, but that remark of my mother's was on my mind the whole time, and it spoiled my vacation.

I ask you, wasn't that a lousy thing for her to have done?

STILL BURNING

DEAR STILL: Her timing was "lousy." But her suggestion was a good one.

DEAR ABBY: My son works long hours daily and when gift-giving time comes along, he asks me if I will please shop for a gift to give his wife.

I do not mind shopping, altho it is not easy for me, but no matter what I select, my son's wife always takes it back and exchanges it for something else. [I know her size, but it seems I can never choose a color or style she likes well enough to keep.]

Since I have yet to select a gift that she has kept, I feel I am wasting my time to buy gifts for her.

I once told my son that perhaps he ought to just give her the money and let her buy what she wants, but he said she did not like to receive money as a gift because it was so crass, and lacking in warmth and sentiment.

Have you any suggestions? TIED OF SHOPPING

DEAR SHOPPING: If it's "warmth" and sentiment the lady likes, tell your son to send her a warm, sentimental card. And if money is too crass, how about a gift certificate?

DEAR ABBY: For pity's sake, please tell "Hard of Hearing" to stop cupping her ear with her hand and asking people to please speak up. Tell her to study lipreading instead!

I learned lipreading out of a book recommended by the Volta Bureau of Washington, D. C., after suffering a complete loss of hearing. I haven't heard a thing for 13 years, yet people who have known me a long time find it difficult to believe.

Last year I flew to Alaska and back unaccompanied. Of course, I always inform the airlines personnel of my handicap and they graciously look after me. OHIOAN

When Both Sides Want An End

Once again the North Vietnamese have launched a massive offensive which, just when it seemed it might break South Vietnam, has now lapsed into a lull.

At this point no one knows whether the North Vietnamese are preparing their forces for another all-out onslaught or whether their losses of men and equipment have made continuation of the offensive impossible.

It is known that South Vietnam is taking offensive actions of its own. Slow progress is being made in the An Loc area and the South Vietnamese marines have landed a force north of Hue for a sweep into enemy held territory.

The object of the sweep is to seek out enemy concentrations and inflict casualties. This is designed to keep the North Vietnamese off balance and forestall a drive on Hue.

We are seeing once again a confusing, baffling situation which has for so long characterized this bloody, endless war. The Tet offensive was a massive one which failed. No one can say whether this year's Red offensive has failed, but there is a good chance that it will and North and South Vietnam will be right back in a stalemated situation.

The way to settle this tragic war is through a negotiated peace, and this will come when the United States and the Soviet Union feel that it should be so.

All parties to this agonizing war which has caused so much suffering in Southeast Asia must come to realize that it may be a stalemate for many years in the future. Yet, the death and destruction can be ended now if all concerned will assume the proper attitudes in negotiating a settlement.

Senseless Outbreak Of Outrages Is Possible

We hope the senseless disfiguring of a priceless Michelangelo work in the Vatican will not set off a round of other such outrages. But the keepers of the world's great works of art should prepare for such a possibility.

The experience with other such insane events has been that it set off unbalanced minds to attempt similar acts.

The art museums which house the art treasures should tighten security and guard against other destruction of the works they hold. Such vandalism could happen again.

Soviet Stakes In Mr. Nixon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MOSCOW — A vision of world stability safeguarded by the two super powers permeates the top level of the Communist party hierarchy here to a surprising extent, with Moscow portraying itself as the stable balance wheel.

Thus, behind the rather stark ceremony given to President Nixon on his arrival Monday, leading party theoreticians were going out of their way to praise the President, but adding this caveat: the summit was saved by Moscow's refusal to panic in the face of Mr. Nixon's blockade of North Vietnam.

In the background of this self-serving portrayal of a patient, stable and powerful giant, however, the facts suggest that a struggle of some vehemence was fought out in the Politburo, the high command of the Communist party.

Experts here believe that party hard-liners, probably headed by the Ukrainian party chief and Politburo member, Peter Shelest (who played the leading role in the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968), struggled at least for a summit postponement during the two-day secret meeting of the Politburo following Mr. Nixon's decision to close North Vietnam's ports to Soviet military supplies. Failing to carry the day on cancellation or postponement, they then suggested that the conversation between Mr. Nixon and party chief Leonid Brezhnev be moved out of the Soviet Union, possibly to Vienna.

But Brezhnev swept aside all arguments that the Soviet Union would be humiliated by receiving Mr. Nixon when American military power was barring Soviet ships from Haiphong.

To Brezhnev, the President's visit here was the essential symbolic act of the super powers breaking ground for a new structure of American-Soviet partnership.

And to Brezhnev, the building blocks of that new partnership are going to demand ever-expanding contact and negotiation, not between such groups of nations as the North Atlantic Treaty alliance and the Warsaw (Soviet bloc) pact but directly between Moscow and Washington.

As one example of this developing Soviet campaign, consider Moscow's refusal even to meet with Manlio Brosio, NATO's choice to start discussions for a mutual reduction of NATO and Warsaw Pact military forces in central Europe. When asked to explain this refusal, in the face of Moscow's public support for a thin-out in Europe, one top party theoretician told us: "We don't want meetings of blocs. We want bilateral negotiations."

Likewise, a high diplomatic official here told us it would have been "tragic" if a small Soviet client like North Vietnam—or an American client like Israel—had the power to destroy the first serious "bilateral" negotiations since World War II between Washington and Moscow.

In retrospect, then the fears in the White House two weeks ago that Moscow would break off the summit were out of phase with fact. To the contrary, Brezhnev's super-power diplomacy had advanced to the stage that Mr. Nixon might have been kidnapped and brought here forcibly to make the summit a reality.

Just how large a role President Nixon's trip to China has played in Brezhnev's strategy is, of course, problematical. The consensus here is that the

The 2nd Kitchen Debate

WASHINGTON — It is highly unlikely that President Nixon will have a repeat of his famous kitchen debate in Moscow, but, if he does, I can't help thinking how different it might be from the last one.

I can just see the President and Brezhnev facing each other across a hot electric stove in the Kremlin.

"Mr. President," Brezhnev says, "you have many newspapermen with you on your trip."

"Yes," President Nixon replies. "The thing that makes the United States a great country is that we have freedom of the press."

"The thing that makes the Soviet Union a great country," Brezhnev says, "is we don't."

"Our system is better than yours because our newspapermen can write anything they want about their government," President Nixon says.

"Our system is better than yours," Brezhnev retorts, "because they can't."

"Off the record," Nixon says, "how do you do it?"

"We used to shoot them. But now is different. We feel someone criticizing the Kremlin has to be crazy. So we put him in insane asylum until he gets well."

"Do you mean to say that your administration has the authority to put anyone who criticizes you in an asylum?"

"Is correct. Communist system is perfect, so obviously anyone who says it isn't needs medical treatment."

"I wouldn't want it to get out of this kitchen," Nixon tells Brezhnev, "but I fell the same way when one of our press people criticizes our system."

"I know how you feel, Mr. President. It is important for strong government not to have opposition press."

"Tell me, Comrade Brezhnev. If one of your newspapers got hold of some top secret Kremlin papers and printed them on the front page, what would you do?"

"Is impossible any newspaper in Soviet Union would print secret Kremlin papers. If they did, paper would be closed, editors would be sent to labor camps in Siberia, reporters would be put in salt mines and man who gave such secrets would be shot at dawn."

"Let me ask you this. If one of your columnists revealed in his column how you made your decision to support India in the Pakistan war, what would you do?"

"Is stupid question. We would take columnist to Lubyanka Prison and attach electrical circuits to his body."

"Are you taking notes on this, Henry?" the President asks. "Comrade Brezhnev, what do you do about television commentators who give instant and critical analyses of your speeches?"

"Is no such thing in Soviet Union. Everything said on television is first cleared with us. Only loyal party members may work on TV. Is not same in your country?"

"Unfortunately not," the President says sadly. "Our television people can say anything they want to, and I can't do one thing about it."

"Why that's terrible!" Brezhnev says.

"You're telling me," Nixon says. "What about congress? Do you have any trouble with your congress when you want to do something for the good of the country?"

"Anyone in party who questions our policies is given job shoveling coal on Caucasian Electric Power Project. When our Communist Party Congress meets, I always get standing ovation."

"Comrade Brezhnev, the last time I was here I (Continued on page 5)

Speak With Sparkle

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — So you want to be a good conversationalist?

But you don't have time to memorize a thousand sparkling quotations or read a lot of heavy books so you'll be really well informed?

So what? What does being

witty or knowledgeable have to do with being a good conversationalist?

The man who impresses you most with his speaking ability isn't the one who tells you something new. No, it's the one who tells you what you want to hear who sticks in your memory.

The backbone of any real conversational skill lies in probably a dozen or so key remarks you can make which give reassurance to people in most situations and which bolster their own secret high opinion of themselves. Just memorize the following statements, and use them as often as you can to as many people as possible:

"You've been a kind of hero to me in a way for a long time, but I never thought you were so young."

"From the way you're built, I'd judge you must have played a little football in your time—and not so many years ago at that."

"When you know you've got the right on your side, like you do, the battle is half won."

"Well, some people are just born photogenic, and some aren't. You're one of the lucky ones."

"You look like you've been taking off weight lately. What's your secret?"

"The trouble with you is that you're too generous for your own good. Here, let me get this round."

"I can't think of anyone else who could hold up under the strain like you do. You must be made of iron."

"Of course, they're all pretty, but I'd say this one is the best looking of the lot—the one that has your eyes and that same delightful little crinkle around the mouth."

"Well, I'll say one thing about you—you never go off half-cocked. When you open your mouth, you make real sense."

"I should think that a wife lucky enough to have you for a husband really couldn't find much in her life to complain about."

"Why should they expect you to do the thinking for everybody?"

Yes, it is only by telling people what they want to hear that you can gain a name as a good conversationalist, one people are always glad to talk to. If you try to tell them anything else, they not only won't listen—they'll spread the word that you're one of the biggest-mouthed bores of all time.

Lost Glow Of 'Golden Years'

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Economic need and loneliness take the glow off the golden years.

To be old in North Carolina is to struggle on limited means with a frustrating loss of independence and the nagging feeling that you are no longer useful.

May is designated by Gov. Bob Scott as Senior Citizens Month in North Carolina, a time for particular attention to the more than 414,000 Tar Heels who are 65 and older.

A recent survey indicates report will be printed within the next few weeks.

Guide For Priorities

"We expect it will be very useful to use as a guide in setting priorities for services to the aging," explained J. Eddie Brown, executive director of the council.

What the aged think about their problems is important because they constitute a large and growing segment of the state's population, said Jon E. Jones, council statistician. Persons over 65 make up 8.2 per cent of the Tar Heel population.

From 1960 to 1970 their number increased from 312,000 to 414,000. That gain of 32.7 per cent compared with the 11.5 per cent rise for all ages, he pointed out.

Diversity is a salient characteristic. "We tend to lump them all together as 'senior citizens,'" Jones observed. "That can be misleading for us and a sore spot for them."

What Makes You Old?

One expert on aging has listed five factors which determine how old a person is: physiology, chronology, psychology, sociability and individuality. Of the five, only chronology (number of years) is common to the total group and it can be the least important.

While the survey revealed the problems of growing old, it also showed a strain of resilience and optimism.

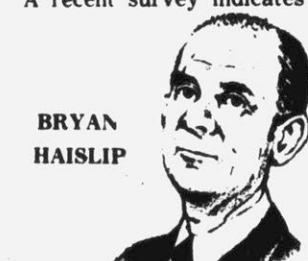

To the question: "Do you usually expect that things will turn out well for you?" an answer of Yes" was returned by more than 88 per cent of the sampling.

On the subjective measure of happiness, nearly 95 per cent said they are fairly happy or very happy. Only 5 per cent described their general state as one of unhappiness.

In general, housing and health as problems appeared to concern the older citizens less than economics and the intangibles of independence and useful activity.

One-third of those interviewed lived as couples, about one-third lived alone, and another third lived with relatives. Only a scattering made their home with non-relatives.

Nearly two-thirds of the interview sample and annual income of less than $3,000. Yet 85 per cent were of the opinion they are getting along financially as well or better than others in their age group.

many of them find life like this month's weather has been — more clouds than sunshine.

Nearly one out of four among the 961 interviewed for the study said they fare poorly on their income and assets: 46 per cent said they make out fairly well. Only 29 per cent said they do very well. Almost one-third of the group said they cannot see sufficient resources to meet their needs in the future. Thirty-nine per cent said they pass up the little extras and small luxuries in order to get by.

A Time To Worry

One-half of the over-65 citizens said they worry about things fairly often or very often. Thirty-two per cent said they are sometimes unhappy because they feel they are not useful.

"Social Indicators for the Aged" is the title for the survey, conducted for the Governor's Council on Aging. It was carried out over a three-month period by the Research Triangle Institute, financed by some $30,000 in federal and state funds.

The survey represents a first-time effort to assess the needs of the aged by going to the aged themselves. In-depth interviews included older persons of both sexes and all races in 69 counties across the state.

Six specific areas covered by the interviews were: housing, health, economic well-being, social relations and activities, life satisfactions, and independence.

Data from the survey now is being analyzed and evaluated by the council. A

Strength For Today Kremlin Dogma Takes Beating

YES—OURSELVES

"No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." (Luke 16:13).

Many people have thought that "mammon" means "money." It is, however, a personification of wealth in general. It has to do not only with money but with affluence of all kinds—sumptuous homes, expensive attire, social standing. It is another word for worldliness.

There goes on within all of us a tug-of-war between good and evil. People sometimes say that money is the root of all evil and claim the Bible as their authority. The Bible says no such thing. It says that "the love of money is the root of all evil" (1 Timothy 6:10). Some of the finest people in the world are wealthy—and some of the worst. It all depends on what we put first in life. If we attempt to put anything before God, that thing is evil.

The world asks "What do you have?" The Christian gospel asks, "How did you get what you have? How are you using it? What kind of a person is it making out of you?" There is hope, achievement aspiration in every life. We are spiritual beings, learning in our pilgrimage here on earth to form a life that will please God.

Money and money-making have their place in life, but that place is not first place. Money is the tool for situations where money is involved. They need not be dishonest. If they are mean as regards money matters, stingy or wasteful, they are to be watched—which is only saying that we need to watch ourselves.

By Earl Douglass

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
The dogma of Marx, Lenin and Stalin is taking something of a beating in the summit of Soviet leaders with President Nixon.

The leaders of the Politburo are beginning, it would appear, to appreciate the ways of capitalism. They are eager to expand trade with the United States within a capitalist credit framework. They want collaboration in science and technology. They want cooperation in the field of environmental protection. All this is quite anti-Marxist.

Take the agreement to collaborate on environmental protection. According to Marxist Leninist dogma, natural resources are the property of everybody to be used at will by the state in the name of the people. Pollution should be impossible in a Marxist-Socialist state. It should be regarded as a product of an exploitative capitalist system.

But in the last decade or so the facts of life caught up with the Soviet Union as with all industrialized countries. The leaders are now about to set out to do what a prominent dissident urged four years ago—in an underground pamphlet.

The 1968 pamphlet of A.D. Sakharov, a physicist, said the two superpowers, rather than spend their wealth on weapons of mass destruction, might better seek ways to cooperate in saving the world from pollution and avoiding such situations as "the sadly celebrated problem" of Lake Baikal, which was being poisoned by industrial waste.

"Otherwise," Sakharov wrote, "the U.S.S.R. poisons the United States with its wastes while the United States poisons the U.S.S.R.

with its."

If ideology might interfere with a program clearly in the Soviet interest, the Politburo seems perfectly capable of ignoring ideology. There is much to be done on an international scale in research and development of programs that can attack poisoned air and water, eroded lands and all the other plagues of a modern world's industrial society. Russia's problems in this department are less than America's, but they are increasing swiftly.

In the case of cybernetics, or computer science, the Communists applied it to military and space technology but until late in the Khrushchev era its use in the consumer economy would have been equated with some sort of capitalist quackery.

Now the Politburo reaches eagerly for a scientific-technological accord with the chief capitalist nation. There is little doubt that it would like access to U.S. computer technology in the consumer field, where the Russians have made a slow start and lag behind the West.

The Soviet leaders would not allow any East European nation to go as far as Moscow is going with the United States. When Czechoslovakia attempted an opening to the West in similar style, Czechoslovakia was clobbered by Soviet might.

It is a question of might making right. The behavior of the Politburo at this summit demonstrates once again how the men who run the Communist superpower can bend and even ignore ideology to suit the needs of Soviet national interests. The interests of world revolution still occupy a place in Kremlin thinking, but the interests of world revolution can wait.

Pupil Honor Lists At Ayden-Grifton

The honor roll and principal's list for the fifth marking period of Ayden-Grifton High School have been released by Principal William Wiggins.

In order to be placed on the honor roll, a student has to make all A's on the subjects that he is taking and all H's on conduct. To be eligible for the principal's list, a student must make all A's and B's on his subjects and nothing less than an S on conduct.

Students qualifying for the honor roll include:

Ninth grade — Maritha Kilpatrick;

Tenth grade — Jeannie Morris and Douglas Stokes;

Eleventh grade — Maude Babington, Mary Lewis, Rebecca Stocks, Ginger Pruitt and Anne Troutman;

Twelfth grade — Debbie

Evans-Novak

(Continued from page 4) haunting fear of a U.S.-Peking alliance, no matter how bizarre it may seem in Washington and Peking, has at least equal weight in Brezhnev's strategy as his other main goal: stabilizing Europe, gaining status as a world power fully equal to the U.S., and making trade deals with the U.S. to help the backward Soviet economy.

President Nixon's hopeful prospects here can thus be glimpsed rather clearly, because Brezhnev's eagerness to go ahead with the summit despite Vietnam—and in the face of some party opposition—makes success even more important to him than it would have been.

Success is no less important to the President, who is hoping to translate the summit into votes next November. Accordingly, even though Mr. Nixon confronts danger in the form of the toughest bargaining agent in modern history, the grandiloquent words of his foreign policy adviser, Henry Kissinger, that "we are in a position totally unprecedented in history," may not be all that far off the mark.

Buchwald

(Continued from page 4) questioned your system as opposed to ours. But since I've been President, I see there is a lot to be said for how you do things here. I only regret Comrade Khrushchev is not still alive, so I can tell him I'm sorry."

C-of-C Sets Dinner Plans

GRIFTON — Final plans for a fried chicken dinner were made during the meeting of the Grifton Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday.

The dinner will be held Friday, June 2, from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the water tower lot.

Tickets are $1.25 each.

In other business, Roger Davenport reported that Jack Hodge, coach of the Senior League, had requested aid in financing the electric bill for games to be played in Grifton.

The Chamber agreed to pay for the electricity up to $50 with the understanding that this is a special case and would not set a precedent.

Gene Haywood volunteered to acquire playing schedules for the various baseball leagues. Janet Hasely will obtain copies of the schedules to be distributed among the local stores.

Jack Hankins agreed to have a public bulletin board constructed so that town news could be posted for the public to see.

The board will be placed in a well-traveled spot downtown.

Don Sauls was appointed to work with Hankins on obtaining the bulletin board.

Apparent Low Project Bidder

RALEIGH — Barrus Construction Company of Kinston is the apparent low bidder for a construction project for 21.55 miles of road work in Pitt and Beaufort Counties.

The bid, which totaled $221,948, includes sand asphalt base and surfac for four sections of secondary roads and resurfacing four sections of primary roads and three sections of secondary roads on U.S. 17-264 and N.C. 33.

Final completion date for the project is Nov. 1, 1972.

Tom Ellis said that the natural area site will remain basically undisturbed except for nature trails and minimal nature study facilities.

The site was given the state last year by the Roosevelts.

SALTER PATH, N.C. (AP) — Theodore Roosevelt III, grandson of the late president, will dedicate a 265-acre site near Atlantic Beach Sunday as the first natural area in the North Carolina state park system.

Court Affirms Death Of Brain Is Final Test

By GEORGE W. WILBUR
Associated Press Writer
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A medical opinion that death occurs when the brain dies even if the heart and other organs continue to function has been reinforced by a jury here in a landmark heart transplant suit.

"This simply brings the law in line with medical opinion," Dr. David M. Hume said Thursday after he and three other defendants were found innocent by a Law and Equity Court jury of causing the death of a heart donor.

"I think this is an issue that had to be decided," said Hume, chief of surgery at the Medical College of Virginia Hospital, "and I think it will have an influence on the medical community for a long time to come."

The seven-day, $100,000 damage suit focused on the issue of when death occurs.

William E. Tucker of Richmond, the plaintiff, contended that his brother, Bruce O. Tucker, a 54-year-old Negro laborer, was alive when his heart was removed on May 25, 1968, and placed in the chest of Joseph G. Klett of Orange, Va. Klett died about a week later.

Medical witnesses for the defense maintained that Tucker was "neurologically dead" several hours before the transplant operation because his brain showed no activity.

His heart and respiratory system were kept functioning by artificial means, they said, merely to keep his heart and kidneys viable for transplant purposes.

Tucker had suffered massive brain injury in a fall the day before the transplant, and doctors testified that this, not any act by the transplant team, caused his death.

In his instructions to the jurors, Judge A. Christian Compton gave them the option of considering all possible causes of death and whether any one, including brain damage was dominant. Earlier in the trial, the judge had noted that Virginia law defines death as a total cessation of all body functions.

Court Orders Murderer Attend Church 10 Years

Agnew Raps New Morals

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew marked his selection as "National Father of the Year" with a speech criticizing proponents of "the new morality."

"I suggest that much of what is in the new morality is not morality at all but just a cheap, easy rationale for doing whatever you damn well please, wherever and however you want to do it," Agnew said in an address Thursday.

Fathers of the year were also named in these specialized fields:

—Sports: Quarterback Roger Staubach of the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys.

—Music: Doc Severinsen, musical director of the "Tonight" television show.

—Radio: Ted Brown, a host of the NBC radio "Monitor" program.

—Television: Mike Douglas, host of his own syndicated talk show.

—Humanitarian: Vernon E. Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League.

—Labor: I.W. Abel, president of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A young woman who pleaded guilty to murder has been sentenced to go to church each Sunday for the next 10 years by a judge who admits he skips religious services now and again himself.

Eartha Lee Griffith, 28, appeared before Circuit Court Judge Claude R. Edwards on Thursday and was told she could decide how to spend the next 10 years of her life.

"I told her she could go to jail for the next 10 years or spend every Sunday through 1982 in a pew," said Edwards. "For the first time since I have known her, she smiled. She chose church."

Miss Griffith had pleaded guilty March 27 to the second-degree murder of her boyfriend, Eddie Lee Lampkin. She admitted shooting him to death in the Orlando home they had shared.

"There were tremendous extenuating circumstances in her case," Edwards said after the sentencing. "Her boyfriend had

Set Crackdown On Use Of DDT

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Federal and state agencies are planning a crackdown in an effort to eliminate the use of pesticides DDT and TDE on the 1972 flue-cured tobacco crops.

John H. Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, revealed details of the planned crackdown Thursday at a meeting of the Eastern Carolina Warehouse Association.

The two chemicals were taken off the approved list for tobacco late in 1969.

Effective with the new crop, random samples of tobacco will be obtained at the marketplace, prior to sale, so that they can be identified on a producer basis. The samples will be analyzed for DDT and TDE residues to determine compliance with certification.

Under federal law, the making of a false certification—such as one concerning the use of these chemicals—is punishable by imprisonment up to five years or fines up to $10,000, or both.

Cyrus told the group that state inspectors will travel throughout tobacco growing counties taking samples of spray materials being used by farmers. He said that where a restricted use pesticide is found being used improperly, the farmer will be subject to a misdemeanor charge and a fine of $100 to $1,000, two months in jail, or both.

Probing Threats Against Mayor

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP) — Police are investigating mailed and telephoned threats to kill Mayor Fortunato Licandro unless he keeps the city cleaner and greener.

Letters blaming the mayor for not preventing pollution were signed by anonymous "citizens interested in the beauty of Reggio."

The phone calls, police said, accused the mayor of not keeping up the public gardens or protecting the city's greenery.

'Yes, Beautiful'

LONDON (AP) — Suddenly, at 60, Pat Nixon is beautiful, a British correspondent said today.

"Yes, beautiful," wrote Stanley Burch, U.S. correspondent for the Daily Mail. "It is the best boost for womanhood since they invented the lipstick."

Burch said Mrs. Nixon for years was the "epitome of the neurotic wife—the mirthless smile set like concrete on a hard face, the eyes watchful and frightened, woman sans charm, grace or poise."

He figured the explanation for "the emergence of this utterly natural yet stylish butterfly from the mothlike woman" is simple: she revels in being America's First Lady.

Burch said an old friend of Mrs. Nixon told him: "She's grown up. It took her a long time to get the hang of things. She has surprised us all."

"So confident and interesting is the new First Lady that her part in the election campaign will for the first time be a fascinating thing to behold," Burch wrote. "Who knows? She may win it for her husband."

Dipel kills tobacco worms

Nothing else

When worms start eating into your tobacco crop, you need the best worm-killer on the market.

There's not a better worm-killer on your dealer's shelf than Dipel. Dipel is murder on tobacco worms — hornworms, budworms, loopers. No matter how big they've grown — from first spray to last.

That's why tobacco growers just like you used Dipel on thousands of acres last year. Their experience proved that there's no better worm-killer than Dipel.

What's more, Dipel won't harm dogs, quail, deer, rabbits—any of the wildlife around your farm. Even if Dipel should accidentally wash off into your pond, the fish are safe.

Naturally, you always spray carefully and according to label instructions. But if some accidental drift should occur, it's good to know that Dipel won't harm anything—even workers in the same field.

If you're serious about getting worms — and nothing else — get Dipel. Dipel, for worm-free tobacco... the worry-free way.

Jazz Clinic To Begin July 30

The 1972 Summer Jazz Clinics in Stage Band will be held in North Carolina for the first time when the National Stage Band Camps bring their members to ECU for a one week clinic.

Opening on campus on July 30, the clinic will continue to August 5, and will be available to all interested musicians wishing to take part.

The Greenville camp is one of several being held across the nation — others will be held at West Chester State College, Illinois State University, Portland State University, and the University of Nevada.

Among well-known personalities from the music world to be taking part in the instructional courses are Marian McPartland of New York City, a noted jazz pianist; three teachers from Berklee College of Music in Boston — John LaPorta, former saxophonist with the Woody Herman Orchestra; trombonist Phil Wilson, formerly with the Dorsey Brothers and the Woody Herman Orchestra; and Gary Burton, vibraphonist.

Others include Rich Matteson, specialist on valve trombone; and saxophonist Jamey Aebersold is teacher of combo classes at Indiana University Southeast and the University of Louisville.

The fee for the week of instruction at ECU is $85.00, which includes cost of tuition and health and accident insurance. Rooms and meals are not included in the fee.

Music students interested in enrolling or seeking further information should write to National Stage Bands Camps, P. O. Box 221, South Bend, Indiana, 46624.

Flying Cow Not Unusual

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Ever see a flying cow?

The sight's not so rare at busy airports these days.

Masami Nakamura, a young Tokyo executive with the Nosawa Company's livestock division, was here to supervise a $100,000 shipment of dairy cattle to Japan by a Japan Air Lines chartered jet freighter.

"From the United States to Japan we always shipped livestock by sea," Nakamura said. "However, a few years ago a maritime strike forced us to use air freight and we've been happy ever since."

It used to take the Japanese firm 13 days to transport livestock by ships. It takes only 13 hours to move them by air.

"In terms of cost, if we charter a cargo jet the price is about the same as surface travel," Nakamura said.

"With air cargo we don't have the expense of feeding and caring for the livestock during the long journey."

Nakamura works with JAL in developing special containers to air ship livestock. One is a crate especially for cattle and another is an igloo usable for cattle or convertible to two levels for small animals.

His firm's plans call for about 10 air charters this year.

Florida's population increased 2,419.3 per cent during the past 100 years, compared with a nationwide increase of 304.8 per cent.

Kremlin Office 'Americanized'

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon's Kremlin office has been Americanized with such touches as two cans of his favorite pipe tobacco.

The tobacco, from Garfinkel's in Washington, is alongside his pipe and reading glasses on a small square table in front of the walnut desk.

A small group of newsmen who got a peek at the office and several other rooms in the President's seven-room suite found them functional but not especially cozy.

Along with the desk and table, the office has a sofa and modernistic chairs with nubby green upholstery, paneled walls and one glass-front bookcase.

There is a dictating machine which Nixon uses, a television set and a console radio.

A plain black telephone links the President to the impressive array of communications gear brought from Washington. By picking up the telephone he can be in instant contact with the White House via satellite.

The office is to the right of a sitting room with a three-seat sofa, four upholstered chairs and a fireplace.

To the left of the sitting room is a dining room in which the Nixons dined together Tuesday night on food prepared by White House cooks in the kitchen of the Grand Kremlin Palace.

The table seats 12 on straight-back chairs upholstered in green. As elsewhere in the suite, the rugs look Oriental but have square patterns in green and brown. On the white walls are pastoral scenes.

Just outside the presidential suite is a reception room used for meetings of presidential aides. Up a short flight of stairs are rooms where such White House staff members as Henry Kissinger and H. R. Haldeman are staying.

The newsmen were not allowed in those rooms, nor were they shown the bedrooms of the President and Mrs. Nixon.

Aides said Nixon has been averaging about seven hours sleep a night in Moscow and has been having the same breakfast he has in the White House—fruit juice, dry cereal and coffee.

Completed Two Weeks Of Duty

Men of the 514th Military Police Company of the Greenville Army National Guard recently completed a two weeks' annual field training encampment at Fort Bragg.

A five-man advance detachment including Operations Sergeant PSG George L. Pleasant; Mess Steward SFC Julian F. Pierce; First Cook Sp5 Gerald S. Pierce; Supply Sergeant SSF James B. Higdon; and Motor Sergeant John W. Best went first to Fort Bragg to make necessary arrangements for housing, feeding, and supplying the 36 enlisted men and three officers who arrived three days later.

Under the command of Capt. Bobby G. Webb, the unit, in keeping with the National Guard's new role as backup forces for the regular Army, was assigned duties to man the new Post Stockade and Military Police duties at the Fort.

In order to keep the unit operating 24 hours a day, the headquarters personnel began duties to man the new Post Stockade and Military Police duties at the Fort.

In order to keep the unit operating 24 hours a day, the headquarters personnel began duties immediately as cooks, bakers, supply personnel, armored personnel, mechanics, linemen, and company clerks. The three MP platoons of the 514th MP Company were assigned Military Police duties on a round-the-clock basis. Each platoon worked shifts in the stockade and were oriented in detail on operation of the new facility.

In addition, the MPs worked side-by-side with the regular Army members of the 503rd MP Battalion on road patrols, accident investigation, criminal investigations, traffic patrols, and Provost Marshal Station duties.

Gun 'Game' Was Fatal

FARMVILLE — A former Farmville policeman — James Luther Reason, 33, of 211 North Main St. — lost his life early last night while playing "Russian Roulette," according to Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey.

The coroner reported Reason shot himself in the mouth with a .38 caliber pistol about 7 p.m. The bullet exited through the "top back of his head" Harvey explained, saying Reason was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital from brain lacerations and contusions caused by the bullet.

Harvey said Reason and three other men — including two off-duty Pinetops police officers — were in a Farmville motel room at the time of the fatal accident. "One or two others had been pranking with the gun," Harvey said, apparently engaging in the Russian Roulette game also.

Reason, a former policeman in Farmville, was currently employed with a garment firm in Farmville.

Harvey, who ruled the death accidental, said the shooting was investigated by members of the Farmville Police Department and Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Worthington Farms, Inc., took top honors at the first Pitt County Feeder Show and Sale held Thursday.

The heavyweight (61-70 lbs.) pens of crossbreed pigs (six in each pen) took both Grand Champion and Reserve Champion honors. The top selling pig from their championship pens from these pens were purchased by Murphrey and Cox Swine Farm of Snow Hill, Funks Seed Corn Co., and FCX Feeds. The champion pigs sold for an average price of $37 per head.

Eleven Pitt County producers exhibited 132 pigs in this event which was sponsored by the Pitt County Livestock Development Association and the Agricultural Extension Service. Other than the champion pens, honors went to Joe Moye, Jr. of Farmville, and first place middleweight (51-60 lbs.) pens; Bruce Buck, Rt. 3, Greenville second place lightweight, and R.D. Sumrell, Ayden, second place middleweight; Ray Brooks Sumrell, Ayden, third place lightweight, Fenner Allen & Sons, Winterville third place middleweight, and third place heavyweight pens.

A team of members of the Greenville Luncheon Optimist Club learned more about feeder pigs and the pork industry as they participated in judging contest at the show. They received a trophy after trying the effort of a VFW team from Farmville. The Farmville team had several experienced judges on it.

Chuck Miller, swine marketing specialist with the N.C. Department of Agriculture, graded and judged the pigs. He and Dr. David Spruill, extension swine specialist, explained the system used for grading pigs. They pointed out that grading is a part of more effective merchandising feeder pigs. They also showed how the pork industry has responded to the consumer demand for less fat and more red meat by producing higher quality animals.

Organizing Meetings

A parent-teacher discussion group is being organized at the Ayden-Grifton High School.

Although primarily a parent-teacher group, students will be included, according to Janet Haseley of Grifton. The purpose, she said, is to help dispell any rumors or problems that might arise at the school.

The first of the meetings will be held before the opening of school in the Fall.

The school does not have a Parent-Teacher Association and persons supporting the parent-teacher discussion group have felt a need for some vehicle in which parents and teachers could meet to discuss school problems. Mrs. Haseley noted.

"A large majority of parents feel they just don't know what is going on...with no regular or adequate means of communication between the school and parents," Mrs. Haseley explained. "We feel the monthly meeting will help."

The meetings of the discussion session have been tentatively scheduled for the first Thursdays of each month at the school.

John Geil, is going after her master's degree in social work. The girls toured all 100 counties in North Carolina before the first primary, and are again en route to as many as time will permit before June 3rd.

When asked to make any further comment before leaving Greenville, Holly said, "What dad says he will do as Governor is only that which he sincerely believes he can do. He's an honest man."

The two daughters of gubernatorial candidate, "Skipper" Bowles, Martha and Holly, returned to Pitt county Thursday, arriving at Bowles headquarters in Greenville in the late afternoon. Despite bad weather, a goodly number of Bowles supporters were on hand to greet them.

Dickerman, Danny Durham, Owen Burney, Charles Taft, John Corey, Dallas Mayo and Dwayne Little.

In addition to the scholarship, awards, and honors, a number of students were recognized for achievements in various programs. These were: Boys' State, John Allen Tucker; Girls' State, Dorice Pollard; Governor's School, Lyle Barlow, Rebecca Jones, Betty Moseley, Sharon Hodge; Community Ambassadors, Darrell Davis and Jennifer Schaaf; and National Merit Scholarship Finalists: Roger Billica, Sally Boyette, Robert Carraway, John Daugman, David Howell, Chris O'Connell, Anne Petrie and Joe Swain, Jr.

Frazier Chops Up Stander To Get TKO After The Fourth Round

By DAN EVEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier proved Thursday night he also deserved the nickname "Butcher" just as much as battered and vanquished challenger Ron Stander.

Unbeaten Frazier retained his world title by stopping a game, but bloodied Stander in a bout that will go into the record books as a fifth-round knockout.

After an even first round, Frazier battered the 27-year-old unranked Stander, who was dubbed the "Bluffs Butcher," with a savage body attack and turned his face into a bloody mask.

"He was surely a game puncher," offered the unscarred Frazier after his fourth successful title defense. The victory boosted his pro record to 29-0 including 25 knockout victories.

Stander, a local favorite from nearby Council Bluffs, Iowa, came out aggressively and slugged with the champion on even terms in the opening round.

Referee Zach Clayton of Philadelphia, who summoned the doctor that stopped the fight, and the two judges called the first round even, but thereafter Frazier's speed told.

The champion began to score heavily to the body in the second round, bloodied Stander in the third and then reeled him a couple of times in a slugfest fourth round.

"Those cuts were getting deeper and deeper, there was no doubt about stopping it," said ring doctor Jack Lewis of Omaha. "There was no objection from the Stander corner."

Afterwards Lewis used 17 stitches to close four wounds on Stander's face and the challenger also suffered a broken nose.

"I am sorry I let a lot of people down," said the weeping Stander afterwards. His right eye was puffed shut.

"I did my best, but Frazier is the greatest," said Stander, who now is 23-2-1 in his pro career. It was the first time he was stopped by a knockout.

Frazier, 28, paid high praise to his beaten foe, who had been a 10-1 underdog.

"His strength surprised me," said Frazier, who seemed to work up only a slight sweat. "He was a very tough opponent. I thought he was stronger than George (Chuvale) or Oscar (Bonavena)."

A crowd of 9,863 turned out for the first title fight in Nebraska's 105-year history and often urged Stander on with chants of "Go Big Ron."

The gross gate was $242,978.

Frazier was to receive 40 per cent of the live gate after taxes and Stander 20 per cent. The champion received a $150,000 guarantee from TVS which telecast the bout on a 150-station network.

Richie Karl Leads Atlanta

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Richie Karl, an unknown touring pro with less than $10,000 in career earnings, avoided his major hangup Thursday and stormed to the first round lead in the $130,000 Atlanta Golf Classic with a sizzling six-under-par 66.

Karl, a 27-year-old who has never finished higher than 14th in a major PGA event, held a one-shot lead over an elite field in which a trio of favorites fell four or more strokes off the pace—Jack Nicklaus at 70, South African Gary Player 71 and Lee Trevino 74.

Karl said he had been playing well in the past few weeks "but every time one or two holes jumps up and grabs me." He took a 10 and eight at the Danny Thomas-Memphis Open last week and earlier had an eight at Houston.

He flirted with disaster Thursday at the par five 18th when his three wood bounced off a pond "just like a rock" and stopped 60 feet from the pin. He two-putted for a birdie to go four under at that point. Playing the back nine first, Karl had tapped in birdie putts of six, eight and 12 feet at Nos. 11, 12 and 13.

Karl then sank three birdie putts of 10 feet or less and took his only bogey on No. 3 when he bunkered his tee shot.

Former Atlanta champions Bob Lunn and Bert Yancey were deadlocked at 67 with Ken Still and Dave Hill, who described his day as "sort of a humpty dumpty round that could have been an 87."

Kermit Zarley, Lou Graham and 1970 champion Tommy Aaron were grouped at 68 while Doug Sanders and Homero

Blancas had 69s going into today's second round over the hilly, 6,833-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

Yancey, who sank a pair of 20-foot birdie putts and an 18-footer for an eagle three on the 549-yard 11th, and still each used new putters.

Still said he bought a $6.99 putter in a shopping center here Wednesday night, using it for five birdie putts ranging from four to 18 feet. Yancey's new putter was "one I found in my attic that I hadn't used in two years. I had a new head put on it and used it today. This is the best I've putted in a long, long time."

Meanwhile, Nicklaus, the game's all-time leading money winner, said he was "sloppy with my short game. I missed a couple of short putts that I never should miss."

He withdrew from last week's tournament in Memphis because of a virus, but said he felt fine after Thursday's round.

For June 10

Bell-Roberson Oil Corporation and the Greenville Jaycees will conduct the Phillips 66 "Pitch, Hit and Throw" competition on Saturday, June 10, at 10 a. m. at the Elm Street Baseball Park.

Boys, between the ages of 9 and 12, can register to participate in the Pitch, Hit and Throw contest at any Phillips 66 dealer. June 4th is the last sign-up day.

Trophies will be awarded top winners in each bracket. Jacket patches will be presented to each boy who enters the contest. Greenville Jaycees will conduct the competition.

NBA Stars Nip White Takes New ECU Post

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — "The National Basketball Association Players' Association has decided that if anyone is suspended or fined, all the players will quit," said burly Bob Lanier of the Detroit Pistons.

"That's probably true," said Dave DeBusschere of the New York Knicks, "but I don't know that for a complete fact. But that would be the logical thing to say. If they suspend one of us, they might as well suspend all of us."

They made their comments Thursday night, after the NBA All-Stars, playing under the threat of fines or suspensions from Commissioner Walter J. Kennedy, had overcome a 19-point deficit and edged the American Basketball Association's best players 106-104 at the Nassau Coliseum.

Kennedy had strongly warned the NBA players that they would be subject to fines, the minimum of which would be the amount they received for playing in the game. For beating the ABA for the second year in a row, the NBA players earned a total of $33,000, or $3,000 per player.

The ABA All-Stars, whose owners and Commissioner Jack Dolph had endorsed the game, split a total of $17,000.

"I wasn't really bothered by the threat, but apparently some players were," said Lanier, voted the game's Most Valuable Player after sparking the NBA's comeback with 15 points and seven rebounds.

Of the original group picked to represent the NBA, there were three defections—Milwaukee center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the league's Most Valuable Player and leading scorer each of the past two seasons; and All-Star guards Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers and Walt Frazier of the Knicks.

Frazier was a surprise absentee. He did not even inform game officials that he would not play.

"The fans got their money's worth," said former Lakers' star Elgin Baylor, who made his coaching debut as head of the NBA club. "It was a good show."

The young ABA, seeking to avenge last year's 125-120 loss in the first meeting between the leagues, burst to a 49-30 lead midway through the second quarter. But the NBA All-Stars reeled off 15 consecutive points, six by Baltimore's Archie Clark.

The game remained close until halfway through the third period, when the NBA went ahead to stay 75-74 on a jump shot by Boston's John Havlicek. With Lanier and Havlicek leading the offense, the NBA increased its lead to 95-87 in the fourth quarter.

The ABA then surged back, closing to 105-104 on a three-point field goal by Rick Barry of the New York Nets in the closing seconds. But Clark closed out the scoring with a free throw with four seconds left.

Havlicek wound up as the game's high scorer with 17 points. Donnie Freeman of Dallas paced the ABA with 16.

White, a native of Sylacauga, Alabama, is a graduate of Birmingham Southern College. From 1944 until 1946, he served with the U.S. Army, spending 21 months in Italy. He worked first as a radio operator and later as an Army correspondent.

Following his release from the service, he returned to Alabama when he worked 4½ years with the Birmingham News. He left there to become a reporter for WSOC-TV in Charlotte, where he was employed for 11 years.

During the last four years of his stay in Charlotte, he served as color man for the Tar Heel Sports Network, working with Bill Currie, and also had two outdoor shows a week on WSOC.

He came to Greenville with the News Bureau in September of 1970.

"I'm glad to be getting back into sports," White said. "I'm looking forward to working with the media in this position."

Slow Going For Donnie Allison

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Donnie Allison was getting acquainted with a new race car. The man-and-machine friendship came slow, like breaking in a pair of shoes.

"You've got to become a part of the car," says Donnie, "it must be a second home. Show me a man who doesn't love his race car and I'll show you a loser."

Allison will wheel a yellow Ford prepared in the Spartanburg, S. C., workshop of Bud Moore in Sunday's $153,530 World 600 stock car race at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

"We ran so bad at first that they timed us with a calendar instead of a stopwatch," joked the 33-year-old Alabamian. "But, it's beginning to come along slowly. It takes patience."

Allison's older brother, Bobby, swished around the 1½-mile speedway at 158.162 miles per hour as the leading qualifier in a red and gold Chevrolet.

Donnie settled for a Thursday clocking of 153,200, which earned the 17th starting position in Sunday's 40-car field. He came here expecting to wheel a Chevy, but switched to the Ford which may be his "ride" for the remainder of the season.

"My personal luck has been great at Charlotte," he said, "and I hope it holds out for another 600 miles."

Allison won the World 600 here in 1970, the National 500 on the same trioval in 1969 and finished second to brother Bobby in last year's World 600.

Donnie pulled an ironman stunt last May, wheeling to a sixth place finish in the Indianapolis 500 before coming to Charlotte the next day to take second in the 600-miler. He was fourth at Indy the previous year.

"Sure, I'd like to go back to Indianapolis with a competitive car," he said. "But, I've got to admit, the prospects of Saturday's Indy 500 scares me...even though I'm not even there."

Trio Pick Up First Wins Of Season

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Bob Gibson won 207 major league games, Marty Pattin 40 and Skip Lockwood 16, but they all have one thing in common—each picked up his first 1972 victory Thursday.

"I didn't figure I was going to go all season without winning," said Gibson, 1-5, after scattering seven hits as the St. Louis Cardinals stopped Pittsburgh's nine-game winning streak 4-2. "That takes the pressure off," said Pattin, 1-5, who allowed only four hits, struck out nine and was aided by a triple play in pitching the Boston Red Sox over Baltimore 2-1. "They popped up on good pitches and bad," said Lockwood, 1-4, who hurled a six-hitter and outdueled Detroit's Mickey Lolich as the Milwaukee Brewers blanked the Tigers 2-0.

In Thursday's only other games, the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 3-2 on Willie Mays' 14th-inning single, the New York Yankees shaded Cleveland 2-0, Minnesota nipped Texas 6-5 and Kansas City beat California 5-2. Gibson's fast ball was in good form and he struck out 10 Pirates, getting Richie Hebner three times although the Pittsburgh third baseman homered in the sixth. By then, Gibson had a 3-1 lead with Ted Siz-emore belting his first home run of the season and Lou Brock scoring twice—in the first on Matty Alou's single and in the third on a double play grounder. "I feel the same as I always do," said the 36-year-old right-hander. "When I win, I love it; when I lose, I'm mad. My control was a little better, but I've been throwing the same way the last four or five games." Pattin fell behind the Orioles 1-0 in the second inning when Don Baylor cracked his fifth home run. But the Red Sox tied it quickly in the third on Tommy Harper's double and Luis Aparicio's single off Pat Dobson. Aparicio then came around with the winning run on a stolen base, flying ball and Ellie Hendricks' passed ball. "It's tough every time you go out there," sighed Pattin. "You just have to cope with it, concentrate, relax and throw the way you know how ... I've been down before and it's no fun, I'll tell you that." What was fun was the triple play, which took Pattin out of trouble in the fourth inning. With runners at first and second, Hendricks lined to first baseman Duane Josephson, who stepped on the bag for the second out and threw to shortstop Aparicio to nail Terry Crowley trying to get back to second.

The Brewers struck suddenly in the fourth inning against Lolich, one of two eight-game winners in the majors. Mike Ferraro opened with a double, one of his three hits, and Ellie Rodriguez slammed his first home run of the season into the upper left field stands at Tiger Stadium.

Lockwood didn't walk anyone in his shutout and manager Dave Bristol called it "definitely the best game he's pitched since he's been here."

The contest was enlivened by a brief scrap in the ninth inning after Milwaukee's Billy Conigliaro bunted and Detroit reliever Phil Meeler ran into him while making the tag on a close play at first base. Conigliaro was ejected.

Mays' game-winning two-out single broke the Mets' two-game losing streak and was the 41-year-old super star's third decisive hit since returning to New York two weeks ago.

Chicago's Bill Hands was staked to a two-run lead in the sixth on Carmen Fanzone's double. But he developed a blister on his pitching hand and the Mets tied it against Tom Phoebus on Duffy Dyer's homer in the eighth and rusty Staub's double and Cleon Jones' single in the ninth.

Fritz Peterson, who lost his first six starts made it two triumphs in a row by blanking Cleveland on seven hits as the Yankees won for the eighth time in their last 11 games. They scored off Dick Tidrow in the sixth inning when Bobby Murcer singled and Roy White homered.

Rod Carew squeezed home Cesar Tovar, who had doubled and moved to third on Danny Thompson's sacrifice, with the winning run in the seventh inning as the Twins edged the Rangers, who had beaten them four straight in Texas over the weekend.

Lenny Randle's homer helped the Rangers to a 3-0 lead against Jim Perry but the Twins chased Pete Broberg and took a 5-3 lead in the sixth, with Bobby Darwin, Eric Soderholm and Steve Braun delivering run-scoring hits.

Richie Scheinblum doubled home a first-inning run and scored on Cookie Rojas' single and Paul Schaal homered in the third as the Royals downed the Angels behind the six-hit pitching of Paul Splittorff and Roger Nelson.

Games Are Postponed

Rain again washed out all baseball and softball activity in the area last night.

Postponed were two Little League games, Moose vs. Pepsi-Cola and Optimists vs. Kiwanis. Also postponed were the night's slates in the Church and Ladies Softball Leagues. Three games had been scheduled in each league.

Jo Quinn Has Job Of Making Indy 500 Go

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — If anything—anything at all—goes wrong at the 500 mile race, Jo Quinn has to try to make it come out right.

But Jo combines a bawdy sense of humor—quips jump like popcorn from his pink-cheeked face—with an innate ability to handle crowds and crises.

As safety director of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, he is lord of the 555½-acre manor which once a year turns madhouse when an estimated 300,000 auto racing buffs swarm in for the 500. The 68-year-old, balding, brawny official is in charge of rescuing drivers from wrecked machines, drying out drunks, running out girls peddling sex, corralling 4,537 high school bandmen and creating order out of chaos as enough people to populate Tucson, Ariz., converge for the U.S. Auto Club classic and the pre-race festivities.

Quinn has been at the job for 27 years. He works from a cluttered office in a little white clapboard building just inside the main gate, issuing parking stickers, signing letters, talking on the telephone to people like the lieutenant governor, a country school teacher and the accompanist for Jim Nabors, who will sing "Back Home Again in Indiana" before the race.

Two days before the race, Jo was at work in his sweltering office—no air conditioning, windows closed—without sweating while wearing a pocketed, red quilted, down-filled vest he affectionately calls his traveling secretary.

"I had four coronaries so I take blood thinners and my blood was already thin," he explained.

Quinn is assisted by a group of top aides he calls "the dirty dozen," 2,600 yellow-shirted officers known as the safety patrol, and a fire emergency unit.

That's inside the track. Surrounding it tonight and Saturday will be 250 city policemen, 300 state troopers, 75 speedway policemen and 100 deputy sheriffs.

"I have a peculiar philosophy," he said, sitting back in his chair, crossing his legs to reveal black and white checkered socks to match his bowtie. "I always say, 'It sure is nice to be wonderful, but it's a helluva lot more wonderful to be nice.'"

Yet his chief concern when the race starts at 11 a.m. EST Saturday will be the drivers' safety.

On hand will be 18 wreckers, 16 ambulances, a fire rescue squad, a hospital 2½ times bigger than last year, a special hydraulic lift to remove wrecked cars quickly from the 2½-mile oval and two helicopters to transport any badly injured driver to a nearby hospital in a hurry.

Crump Is Leaving

Tom Crump, assistant basketball coach at East Carolina University for the past year, has resigned to return to high school coaching.

Crump turned in his resignation this week to East Carolina. He will be going to Pelion, S.C., to become head basketball coach and athletic director.

During the past season, Crump served as varsity assistant to Tom Quinn in the Pirates' successful championship year. He also coached the freshman team.

A native of Rock Hill, S.C., Crump served as the captain of his high school basketball team, and was named to play in the North-South All-Star game in South Carolina.

Crump chose to play his college basketball under Quinn at Newberry, where he was a four-year letterman. Following his graduation, he served as head basketball coach for five years at Cayce High School in Columbia, S.C. His 1970 team was the regional titlist.

He is married to the former Caroline Kohn and they have one daughter, Laura Anne. No successor has been named for Crump at this time.

Titleholders Golf Beginning

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C. (AP) — Warren Bell looked with pride at his Pine Needles Golf Club course, where today a field of 66 women began play in the revived Titleholders Golf Tournament.

The 6,500-yard, par 71 layout in the pine and sandhill country of North Carolina was resplendent after a week of almost daily rain.

"It's beautiful," Bell observed fondly, "but the girls will find it tough. I don't think anybody will break 290 for the 72 holes.

"For one thing, they'll have to use all the clubs in the bag here. It's not a drive and 9 iron course. And our rough will present problems—it's not the wire grass they have been seeing most of the tour. And our greens are not huge, either. I'm convinced it will take a class player to win here."

And class players is what the field of invited touring pros and top drawer amateurs had in abundance as the four-day test began.

Jane Blalock, winner of more than $31,000 and two tournaments this year, brought the biggest 1972 bankroll to town.

What ham did for Virginia, Old Crow did for Bourbon.

Even before Virginia's George Washington became President, Virginia was famous for the good taste of her country hams. Not long after, the good taste of Old Crow made Bourbon famous.

Before 1835, Bourbon was made every which way. That year, Dr. James Crow took it out of the hit-or-miss league and created the process that gave Bourbon its mellow taste and good name—Old Crow.

Pressure On N.C. Demos To Heed Primary Results

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — State Democratic Chairman John Church is urging any party member who does not believe he could honor the results of the North Carolina presidential primary to "abandon his campaign to be a delegate to the national convention."

Alabama Gov. George Wallace won 37 first-ballot votes and Terry Sanford won 27 in the state's May 6 primary. "I feel very strongly about this, and am compelled to make some response to rumors which have been cropping up here and there that the members of the North Carolina delegation might choose to ignore state law," Church told a news conference Thursday. "I intend to do everything I can to persuade the delegates, whoever they may turn out to be, to honor the wishes of the people of North Carolina as expressed May 6," he said. In answer to questions, Church said he did not know of any serious attempts in this state to thwart the law. He said there were "just rumors" and news stories detailing plans by delegates in other states.

Democratic National Convention rules allow any delegate to call for a poll of the delegation, which would allow each individual delegate to vote as he chooses. "This means that North Carolina and all other states with binding presidential primaries may find their delegations not adhering to state law, but voting their own personal preferences," Church said. "I earnestly hope that such a tragedy does not befall our delegation," he added. "To cast a first ballot vote otherwise than according to the mandate of the people of North Carolina would do irreparable harm to our party."

He released a copy of a resolution to be presented at the state party convention June 20 which calls on any person who feels he cannot comply with state law to resign his delegate post or abandon his campaign for a delegate post. It admonishes delegates "in the strictest possible terms to preserve party unity and harmony, and to do what state law and good faith require" at the national convention.

He also released copies of letters sent to National Democratic Chairman Lawrence O'Brien and presidential contenders Hubert Humphrey, George McGovern, Shirley Chisholm and Edmund Muskie calling on them to urge Democrats to abide by primary laws in each state. During the news conference Church also outlined what the state party is doing to comply with new national party rules requiring that the state's delegation reflect the age, sex and racial makeup of the population. He said the party is having a "few minor difficulties" with the transition to the new rules, but most Democrats are accepting them "with enthusiasm" and are making a good faith effort to fulfill the spirit of the new plan.

Church released copies of memos sent to all county and congressional district chairmen to be read at all official meetings. The memo outlines the obligations of the new rules and states that emphasis on these rules "may seem a little overdone at times, but our purpose is to build a record which indicates that North Carolina is doing everything possible to insure that there is no discrimination whatsoever in the selection of delegates to the national convention. But even if someone does bring such a challenge, we want to have the evidence unmistakably on our side."

He also released a county-by-county breakdown of the population of the state by race, age and sex which was mailed to all county and district chairmen. Church noted that 75 per cent of the delegates will be chosen at district conventions June 10 and the other 25 per cent at the state convention June 20. He said the delegate nominating committee at the state convention can act as an "escape valve" and "will attempt to correct any racial, sexist or age imbalance in the delegation" chosen at the district level. Church said he has hired a full-time assistant party chairman, Mike Almond, of Pilot Mountain, to keep tabs on delegate selection. "I will emphasize in the strongest possible terms that every effort must be made to elect a slate of delegates which will survive any challenge in Miami," he said.

Doesn't Like Pistol Sale

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Shelby County Sheriff Roy Nixon is preparing to hold his first mandatory auction of low-priced pistols he calls "Saturday Night Specials." He says he doesn't like the idea one bit. A law enacted by the state legislature in April orders sheriffs to hold public auctions to sell all confiscated guns and specifies that the money from the sale be added to the county's general funds. Previously, confiscated pistols were thrown into the river, Nixon said.

"It will put these guns back on the street," he said. The auction will be held in mid-July.

Nixon said the majority of the guns seized in Shelby County were pistols, a large number of them "Saturday Night Specials," so called because they can be purchased over the counter cheaply.

Police officers said they could not estimate the number of firearms confiscated yearly, but the sheriff's department alone reported more than 200 in its vault. Criminal court officials said the court has about 1,000 guns being held as evidence.

Moths Face Tiny Wasps

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Department of Agriculture is using tiny wasps in its battle against destructive gypsy moths.

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham announced Thursday that 25,000 tiny wasps will be released in the state this summer in an effort to slow the invasion of the gypsy moths.

The leaf-eating, tree-killing moths can quickly strip large trees of their foliage.

Graham said 500 wasps were released this week near Henderson and St. Pauls. The wasps insert their eggs in gypsy moth cocoons. When the larvae hatch, they devour the moths.

Graham said the wasps—not much bigger than gnats—will not sting or harm humans, livestock, wildlife or other beneficial insects.

The wasps are being brought in from New Jersey where they are produced at a nursery by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture.

Beauty Entries To Ride Bikes

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Contestants at the Miss Minnesota pageant in Austin next month will use bicycles instead of convertibles in the parade.

The parade committee said no companies were willing to lease automobiles for the parade this year, so it found a bicycle dealer willing to contribute two-wheelers for the occasion.

Sheila Bernhage, the reigning Miss Minnesota, and Austin Mayor Leo Reding will lead the parade.

Physically Fit, Emotionally Fit

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—Keeping fit aids emotional stability, according to research at Purdue University. A four-month regimen of physical conditioning virtually eliminated the most pronounced personality differences between one group of physically fit middle-aged men and another of their out-of-shape contemporaries. Before the non-fit were reshaped, personality testing showed they were not as emotionally fit as were the physically fit men.

Giant Transport Show In Washington Opened

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Transpo 72, a massive display of transport vehicles and systems, opens its gates to invited government, diplomatic and business leaders today and prepares for an official inauguration of the nine-day exhibition Saturday.

The big event on today's agenda was the expected arrival of the first jetliner to carry passengers across the United States—the old Boeing "Dash Eighty," prototype for the 707 airliners that sped the nation into the commercial jet age.

The plane, headlined around the world when it flew nonstop from Renton, Wash., to Baltimore with a party of newsmen 15 years ago, is to be turned over to the Smithsonian Institution.

The air show to follow is a typical feature planned for each afternoon of Transpo—a massed parachute drop, an aircraft flyover, and aerobatic demonstrations by British, Venezuelan and U.S. precision-flying teams.

Stirring as the air events might be, the greatest excitement for early visitors to the Transpo site near Dulles International Airport appears to be the fantastic array of novel ground transportation systems, including:

—Two electrically driven six-passenger monocab vehicles, whizzing along a 1,950-foot monorail track.

—Two types of "people movers" that operate along guideways.

—Six-passenger and 10-passenger vehicles riding a self-generated air cushion and propelled by linear induction.

—Twelve models of experimental safety vehicles of U.S., German, Italian, French, Japanese and Swedish manufacture, some never before shown publicly.

No Shortage InLanguage Supply

CHICAGO (UPI) —Whatever else may be in short supply, the world has an adequate supply of language.

There are about 3,000 known languages in use throughout the world, not counting dialects, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The multiplicity of languages may be reduced through the years because a few standard and official languages are being learned by more and more people.

However, all the languages in use today are adequate to express a speaker's culture and all can be expanded and modified to meet changing circumstances. There are no languages which could be justifiably called primitive and there is no record of any normal human beings anywhere without language.

Bowles, who led the six-man Democratic race in the first primary, filed an expense report Thursday with Secretary of State Thad Eure.

Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, who is opposing Bowles in a runoff race June 3, reported his campaign has cost $541,437.36 so far while he has received contributions totaling $546,404.

Bowles had reported in a preliminary account filed April 26 that he had spent $573,552.35 up to that time and received $560,977.66 in contributions.

He reported Thursday he had spent an additional $110,477.42 in the second primary and received $87,686.45 in contributions.

Taylor said his second primary has cost $90,871.76 while he has received contributions of $140,338. Of this amount, $20,000 was put up by Taylor himself.

Jim Holshouser, who is opposing Jim Gardner for the Republican nomination for governor, reported campaign expenditures totaling $96,712.06 and contributions amounting to $40,476.52, including $2,400 from himself.

Gardner has not yet filed a second primary preliminary report which was due Wednesday.

A report filed by the committee handling Rep. Nick Galifianakis' campaign for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate listed expenditures of $121,353.16 and contributions totaling $109,716.36. This included expenses of $81,380.48 and $71,640.22 in contributions listed in the preliminary report.

Meanwhile, Sen. B. Everett Jordan, who is opposing Galifianakis, has spent $125,435.85, according to a report by his campaign committee. This includes $88,435.85 listed in the preliminary report. The contributions totaled $80,630.50, including a $15,000 loan from Jordan.

Bowles said in the report 10 men had loaned $80,000 toward his campaign and that they will be repaid from contributions.

They were listed as Gwyn Nowell of Raleigh, C. C. Cameron and John Belk of Charlotte, Jack Brown of Greensboro, John L. Fraley of Cherryville, James Poyner of Raleigh, William Wrenn of Siler City, Hob Anderson of Wilson, Patrick Spangler of Shelby and W. H. White of Pinehurst.

Taylor reported his second primary spending included $50,000 to David Garth and Associates in New York and $10,000 to Matt Reese and Associates in Washington for a survey. He also paid $26,390 to Ed Kemp and Associates at High Point.

Among the Taylor contributions were $3,500 from Voit Gilmore of Southern Pines, $4,000 from Harriet Kaplan of Charlotte, $1,000 from Stanly Kaplan of Charlotte and $2,500 from Catherine G. Clark of Lincoln.

The second primary spending of Bowles included $48,650 for printing and mailing and $34,650 for cost of television and radio production.

The Worry Clinic

Direct Action Can Succeed

Here's another expose' by Dean Rusk of the clever methods used by newspaper to get facts. Sometimes, however, a direct approach beats the roundabout or surreptitious strategy, as shown by the Hearst cub reporter in Chicago!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case T-588: Dean Rusk,

Secretary of State under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, is a superb Applied Psychologist.

In his luncheon address at the University of Georgia's School of Journalism, he explained many devices used by Washington reporters to wangle stories.

For example, he mentioned that one such clever writer was just ready to drive his automobile from the State Department Building when he saw a Russian diplomat hasten to his car and speed away.

The reporter decided to wait for an hour till the wheels began to roll.

Then he casually called the French diplomat, saying:

"I see the Russian diplomat has been over to see you this afternoon about an urgent matter."

"Does it deal with the Berlin Wall?"

The Frenchman then disclaims any knowledge of the matter and says the Russian never called on him.

So this lets the American reporter cross off that French lead.

Then he phones the British diplomat and makes a similar statement. The Britisher may be somewhat agitated at the news, for when he also says the Russian never called there, he begins to wonder.

Now the reporter has narrowed it down to the German diplomat, whom he calls and in a very positive voice, demands: "What did the Russian want from you that caused him to rush over to your office this afternoon in such haste?"

"Was it something about the Berlin Wall or what?"

Since the German diplomat may thus figure the newspaper reporter already has found out about the supposed secret conference, he may let slip a fragment of information.

The reporter then pounces upon it and out comes a bit of headline stuff for the wire services.

Reporters often can rival the FBI agents in their clever discovery of data.

In fact, they often expose secret criminal behavior on the part of politicians, racketeers and prominent individuals.

Despite the fact that many readers deplore some of the revelations that hit Page One, this Republic would probably have become a dictatorship long ago, if it had not been for newspapers!

Thomas Jefferson, appreciating the vital service of journalism, thus said that if it were necessary to eliminate either our public schools or the newspapers, he'd give up the schools and retain newspapers!

Sometimes, however, a cub reporter may gain information that far more experienced journalists can't obtain.

In Chicago, the Hearst publisher wanted a picture of a prominent young woman, to be used in a front page sensational expose.

A couple of experienced older reporters went out to her residence and by such ruses as checking on the plumbing or the telephone, tried to barge into her house.

They failed. The cub reporter was sent forth, chiefly to get rid of him for a couple of hours so the editor could attend to business.

But to the surprise of the editor, back he came with the woman's picture.

When asked how he ever was able to procure it, he naively said:

"I rang the bell and told her you wanted a picture, so she gave it to me!"

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opening lead: King of South was an eight to one favorite in today's four spade contract. Failure to fully capitalize on those odds proved costly to the declarer when he ran into a highly unfavorable division in trumps.

West's takeout double of South's opening one spade bid elicited a somewhat reluctant two diamond response by East. South required very little from partner to produce a play for 10 tricks and since he did not have outstanding defensive potential, South decided to capitalize on the favorable vulnerability conditions and put it right up to the opposition by leaping directly to four spades.

West opened the king of hearts on which dummy played the three, East the deuce and South the four. In order to prevent the establishment of the queen and jack of hearts for potential sluffs, West shifted to a diamond at trick two and North played the ace.

South was not particularly concerned regarding the premature dislodging of North's entry card, for it appeared that he would have no trouble in winning seven spade tricks, one diamond, and two clubs. A small spade was led at trick two and the king was played from the closed hand.

When West showed out, discarding a diamond, it came as a distinct blow to South. He led a heart, but West played the ace and exited with the king of diamonds forcing declarer to ruff. He attempted to sneak into dummy by leading the ten of clubs, but West played the king and returned another diamond. East covered the ten with the queen and South ruffed. There was no way for the latter to avoid the loss of two hearts, one club, and one spade.

Altho a three-nothing trump break is admittedly a long shot, South was in position to clinch his contract against any holding except three spades in the West hand. At trick two when the spade is led from dummy, it is suggested that he play the jack from his hand. Even if this trick loses to the queen, West has no way of attacking the club suit and dummy's third spade becomes an assured entry card.

South can ruff a diamond return, draw the remaining trump and then lead a heart. If West plays the ace, it establishes the queen and jack in dummy for club discards and the six of spades puts North in to accomplish that purpose. If West ducks the ace, dummy's jack wins the trick and one heart loser is eliminated, thereby limiting the defense to one spade, one heart, and one club.

The reason for taking the first round trump finesse is to protect against East's holding all three missing spades. When this proves to be the case, South is still assured of winning seven spades, one diamond, and two clubs.

Cairo Univ. Marks 1,000th Anniversary In June

By GERARD LOUGHRAN
CAIRO (UPI)—First there was Al Azhar, then came Cairo. Next month, June 22, Al Azhar, the oldest university in the world, celebrates 1,000 years of history that began three years after the conquest of Egypt by the Fatimid general, Jawhar, in 969.

Jawhar's soldiers and slaves built Al Azhar—today a unique, sprawling amalgam of religious and secular learning—on the side of a hill overlooking the River Nile. Al Kahira (Cairo) grew up around the mosque walls, and in the year Al Azhar was opened to scholars—972—became the Fatimid capital.

Arab kings and presidents, Islamic leaders from the Far East, chancellors and professors from universities in Europe and the United States are being invited to mark the 1,000th birthday of the Al Azhar Mosque and University, now a study center for 35,000 Moslem undergraduates from 40 nations around the world.

Ancient Origins
The Fatimids, who started it, claimed descent from Fatima, daughter of the Prophet Mohammed, and her husband, Ali. The Fatimid dynasty lasted only about 200 years which—in a country where history is measured in millennia—might seem a mere footnote to the pharaohs. But Al Azhar's claims to precedents are impressive.

It was there that the term "professorial chair" originated. The very first classes were held at the foot of the pillars in the brownstone mosque where students sat on mats and listened to teachers expounding from a low chair. Each teacher specialized in his own branch of religious learning and his chair became the "chair" of that subject.

Higher education started in 972 A.D. when Ibn Killis, the Grand Vizier and a scholar in jurisprudence, delivered lectures on the law each Tuesday and Friday. Thirty-five legal aspirants attended those first lectures. The mosque authorities granted them stipends—equivalent to the modern student grants—and built living quarters for them nearby.

Two years later the classes were thrown open to all who wished to attend and a wide ranging program of studies was adopted. The tradition of free education persisted through the centuries and today many students get free board and lodgings as well as grants up to $30 a month.

Innovative Studies
The syllabus encompassed an adventurous range of subjects. Though the emphasis remained on religious learning such as study of the Moslem holy book —The Koran—and the traditions of the Prophet, the latest modes of thought were explored in Arabic language and literature, philosophy, logic, law, mathematics, astronomy, geometry, commercial and political economy, transcendent mathematics, the medical texts of Avicenna. The languages of the Pentateuch, the Psalms and Christian Gospels also were studied. Practical medicine was demonstrated at the bedside in a nearby hospital.

No conditions of admission were imposed on would-be students who were free to choose their own courses. Since there were no examinations, a student remained at the feet of his teacher until he was considered fit to explain abstract points at his mentor's request. If he did well, he might try to form a circle of his own and become a teacher in his own right.

Many mosques followed the example of Al Azhar through the ages and by the 15th century the famed Cairo complex was only one of 87 mosques and 75 colleges throughout the Arab world offering free education to student groups ranging from a couple of neophytes to vast classes endowed by the sultans. A change came to Al Azhar's educational system at the time of the French occupation of Egypt between 1798 and 1801. The sheikhs and students at the mosque led a revolution against the infidel foreigners and the mosque was bombarded by cannon. Much of it and many of its satellite buildings were destroyed.

An Assassination
When an Al Azhar student, a Syrian called Halaby, assassinated the French commander, Kleber, the rector closed the mosque gates and they remained firmly shut until June 2, 1801, when the French agreed to leave.

Afterwards, Al Azhar, in a move to protect itself from possibilities of closure on grounds of political activities, withdrew from the political arena and restricted its courses to Islamic studies.

It was not until the 1920s that change came again to the mosque and classes moved out of the mosque and into buildings which form the nucleus of today's campus. A reform program instituted in 1961 at the prompting of the late President Gamal Abdel

Nasser broadened the teaching base and established Al Azhar and a series of satellite primary schools as the most
