Seven Are Shot At Jordan Raleigh Rally

THE LINE GOES ON AND ON as approximately 2,000 students wind their way to Minges Coliseum for Sunday's graduation exercises.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—At least seven persons were shot at the North Hills Shopping Center today just after they had shaken hands with Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., who is campaigning for reelection in Saturday's runoff primary.

Warren King, a reporter for the Charlotte Observer, said Jordan "had just shaken their hands. We heard these pops. We looked out there and saw them on the ground. We got him (the Senator) out of the way."

King said the gunman then turned his 22-caliber rifle on himself. "It looks like he killed himself," said King. Police said the gunman was dead.

One of those wounded was identified as Wes Hayden, Jordan's press secretary who was hit in the back while walking along behind the Senator. Another was identified as Mrs. Ralph Moody, wife of a deputy North Carolina attorney general. Two of the shooting victims were six-year-old Tarry Sue Henry and her father. The youth was shot in the right arm. Witnesses said Henry was shot while driving his car and that his automobile wrecked.

The shooting took place at an entrance to the elaborate, enclosed shopping center five miles from downtown Raleigh.

The Senator himself was 100 to 150 feet away from the shooting, King said.

The gunman "was standing there shooting anything that moved," said Bruce Bland of Raleigh, a witness to the shooting. Asked if the man were aiming, Bland replied, "Yeah, he was aiming at anything that moved."

King, asked if anyone was killed, replied, "Two or three of them looked dead. But I can't say for sure."

"I was standing by the bookshop and they (people) started falling," another witness, Roy Smith, of Richmond, Va., said.

SEN. JORDAN
...unhurt

"I could hear bullets snap up against the glass-tap, tap, tap," Smith said.

The shootings occurred about 12:05 p.m. Another of the victims was identified as Mrs. Jackie Wharton.

He (the gunman) stayed between two cars the whole time," said C.B. Barrett of Wilson. "He was shooting at anything that came by. I was trying to keep my eye on him. I didn't want him to run up on me and get me."

Barrett said he was within 20 feet of the gunman.

The man who was shot while driving his car was wounded in the temple. His car almost hit another man. It then jammed into another car.

The gunman, a young black man, was driving a blue Ford. Inside were three .22 caliber cartridge boxes. One of the boxes appeared empty.

Sign Agreement To Avoid Confrontation

MOSCOW AP — President Nixon and Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev signed a joint statement of long-range principles today agreeing to avoid military confrontations and envisioning eventual total world disarmament.

For the nearer future, Nixon and the Soviet leader agreed in a companion communique to hold a European security conference—long a goal of the Soviet regime—quite soon.

The conference will aim first at providing for an East-West cutback in military forces in Central Europe, notably those in East and West Germany.

Nixon concluded his seven days of summit talks at the Kremlin by inviting the three top Soviet leaders—Brezhnev, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin—to visit the United States "at a mutually convenient time."

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's assistant for national security affairs, said the return summit would not take place until after the U.S. elections in November.

The communique recited the opposing views of American and Soviet negotiators on Vietnam.

However, Kissinger said the war was the subject of "long, sometimes difficult and detailed discussions" which left in doubt the vital question of whether the two governments understand each other on the issue and will cooperate to seek peace.

As for the prospects, "only the future can say, and I wouldn't want to speculate," Kissinger said.

The communique also dealt with Middle East tensions and said the United States and the Soviet Union "declare their readiness to play their part in bringing about a peaceful settlement."

Of the two summit documents, the statement of principles signed by Nixon and Brezhnev at a televised Kremlin ceremony was the more sweeping.

Kissinger cautioned, however, that it represented "an aspiration and attitude" and that either side can ignore it at will.

It presumably was significant that the Soviets, in reciting their attitude toward the war, made no mention of Nixon's May 8 act of mining North Vietnamese ports.

Neither was there mention of Soviet arms shipments to North Vietnam, which prompted the mining, and Soviet spokesman Leonid Zamyatin declared "our assistance will continue to be given" to the North Vietnamese.

Both Zamyatin and Ziegler said no secret agreements or arrangements concerning Vietnam were reached at the summit.

The presidential adviser added that Nixon assumes the Soviet leaders take the document seriously or they wouldn't have signed it.

In noting that each government has an out, Kissinger volunteered for the benefit of those back home who may take a dim view of the accord that Nixon has "not suddenly gone soft-minded."

Tot Set Afire By A Playmate

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte youngster was set afire by a playmate Sunday afternoon, according to Charlotte police.

Willie Franklin Mooren, 6, was treated at a Charlotte hospital for burns on his right leg and right foot.

The tot told police he was playing with a friend when the other youngster poured gasoline on him and struck a match.

Rep. Edith Green Cites Three Fields Of Need In Education

Representative Edith Green, a veteran of nearly 20 years in Congress, gave the commencement speech to approximately 2,000 students graduating at East Carolina University Sunday afternoon.

The Oregon Democrat, noted as an instrumental spokesman and author of important legislation in the field of education, centered on three main points in her speech to the 1972 graduates.

Rep. Green first voiced concern about a proposed bill regarding higher education. The bill would provide funds for lower income families to send their children to college, with many of the students requiring special attention.

She stated her opposition to such a bill, saying it left out middle income families, the most neglected segment in American society. Saying the middle class had no special program, no voice, she asked "what about paying special attention to the student working his way through school, or the family who puts their child through college with money they have save through the years?"

The second thrust of Rep. Green's remarks concerned elementary schools. Citing the elementary school system of Washington, D. C. as an example, the Congresswoman said it was a system where no learning takes place, but one in which the main concern was how to physically survive.

Rep. Green sounded a plea for federal assistance to improve and adapt elementary schools to a level that will permit learning rather than survival.

The speaker's third main issue touched on support for private colleges and universities. She observed that if federal aid is not forthcoming, about 300 private higher education institutions may go under in the next 10 to 15 years. Rep. Green voiced a strong plea for federal support in this field.

For the 63rd annual East Carolina University commencement exercises, president Dr. Leo W. Jenkins made a few remarks prior to introducing Rep. Green.

Reminiscing about the past 25 years at ECU, Jenkins related a series of comparative statistics showing ECU's tangible growth since he joined the official staff as Dean of the Greenville campus in 1947.

"As startling as these comparisons are," Jenkins observed, "bare statistics do not tell the whole story. These statistics reveal the great progress that can be made when faculty, students, administrators and people in our community elect to work hard to build a great institution."

A Night Of Quiet In Tense Concord

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer
CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's National Guard commander ordered a temporary withdrawal today of a cordon around a barricaded section of the city after a night of quiet in the racially tense area.

Adj. Gen. Ferd Davis made a morning helicopter inspection of the black neighborhood, scene of violence Saturday and Sunday nights. He said he would decide later whether authorities would enter the area where blacks erected barricades Sunday night, effectively closing the area to the 38-man Concord police force and the city Fire Department.

Mayor Alfred Brown ordered a dusk-to-dawn curfew after violence broke out Saturday in the neighborhood, which he estimated was 6 blocks long and 12 blocks wide. The violence was touched off by the shooting of a 23-year-old black, Paul D. Johnson, in a white-owned grocery store.

The 235 Guard troops and police established roadblocks at key intersections, enabling them to control traffic to and from the city all night. The roadblocks were removed at dawn.

The grocery store owner, Jimmy Miles, 35, was arrested on a charge of assault with a firearm with intent to kill.

He was released Sunday on $2,500 bond.

Bloodmobile Here 2 Days

The final two American Red Cross Pitt County Bloodmobile drives for the current fiscal year (ending June 30) will take place in Pitt County Tuesday and Wednesday.

Douglas Morgan, Chairman of the American Red Cross Bloodmobile, has announced details of two collection efforts.

On Tuesday, the drive will be conducted at the First Christian Church in Farmville. Sponsored by the Farmville Jaycees, the drive will begin at 11:30 a.m. and continue until 5:30 p.m.

The Wednesday drive will be in Greenville at the Moose Lodge with hours from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Morgan said that "there is a particular need for a good contribution this time of year, with the long Memorial Day weekend and the coming of summer vacation resulting in an increased need for blood."

After the two final public collections for the fiscal year, the Pitt County Bloodmobile will make one plant visit. That will be to Burroughs-Wellcome in June.

Two Men Killed, Girl Injured As Car Hits Mule, Overturns

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Two men were killed and a third person injured when a car struck a mule and overturned six miles East of Greenville on N.C. 30 about 2:45 a.m. today.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey identified the two dead men as Leonard H. Price, 20 of Washington and Paul Freeman, 25 of Route 2, Washington.

Harvey said Freeman was thrown from the car as it overturned and apparently drowned in a roadside ditch. Price, the coroner explained, remained in the car and died of severe head injuries.

The driver of the vehicle was identified by Highway Patrolman D.R. Taylor as Mary Susan Orr, 18 or Route 2, Belhaven. Miss Orr, who also remained in the car as it overturned, was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad where she was admitted for treatment of serious injuries.

Trooper Taylor said the Orr car was traveling West on the Pactolus Highway and apparently collided with the mule in the West-bound lane. The car then went out of control and traveled 277 feet before coming to rest up-side down off the roadway. Freeman was found face-down in a roadside ditch 15 feet from the car. The mule was found on the highway about 187 feet from the point of impact.

Damage to the car was estimated at $3,500.

Trooper Taylor identified the owner of the mule as Carl Pierce of Greenville.

Coroner Harvey ruled the deaths accidental.

go about thawing out a Swede?" If you ever receive a practical answer, I beg you to publish it at once.

You see, my wife, altho American born, is of Swedish extraction. Moreover she has an intensely religious background—the kind which stressed "no-no's" concerning anything to do with sex. Because of this she is so inhibited that she is totally unresponsive to my lovemaking. [Unresponsive? Worse yet. She finds it disgusting.]

I've tried everything: tenderness, ingenuity, sex manuals, marriage counselors, but to no avail.

Now, after 10 years of trying to thaw out my little iceberg, this "flame" is pretty well burned out.

Your question, "How does one thaw out a Swede?" has somehow sparked a narrow beam of hope again. If you ever get an answer, do publish it.

Jones-Elks Vows Solemnized Sunday

The wedding of Miss Lois Marietta Elks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Elwood Elks of Greenville, to Harry Allen Jones Jr. son of the Rev. and Mrs. Jones of Greenville, was solemnized Sunday at 4:00 p.m. in the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

The bridegroom's father, who is pastor of the church, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by the bride's cousin, Mrs. Ray Hardee, organist, and Sammy Pittman, soloist, who sang "Because," "More" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with the traditional green and white. In the background was a fifteen semi-circle candelabra with a white satin bow flanked with tall standards of greenery. Preceding to the altar were two tree candelabra, with bouquets of mums and pom poms. At the altar was a profile prie-dieu where the vows were spoken, rings exchanged, and the couple knelt facing each other for the closing prayer and benediction. Pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white silk organza designed with a high neckline and empire waist. Rows of Venise lace threaded with white velvet ribbon trimmed the cuffs of the full length sleeves, the neck, bodice, hemline, and panels of the skirt. Tiny covered buttons enhanced the front of the bodice and trios of Venise daisy appliques scattered over the gown which extended into a built-in chapel train. Her bouffant elbow length veil of tiered silk illusion was attached to a frame of petals made of organza accented with pearl trim. The bride carried a semi-cascade bouquet of orchids, green and white daisies, sprays of greenery and cluster of baby's breath tied with green and white ribbon.

Miss Lora Faye Buck was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sammy Pittman, Miss Wandra Kay Elks, Miss Sherry Lynn Padgett, cousins of the bride, and Mrs. Gerald Wayne Baker, sister of the bridegroom.

The attendants wore formal length shocking pink dotted swiss gowns fashioned after the bride's gown. Emerald green satin bows and streamers adorned the back of the gowns. They wore matching headpieces of shocking pink satin ribbon double bows and illusion, and carried nosegays of mixed daisies, baby's breath and clusters of shocking pink tulie tied with light pink satin.

Howard Cannon of Grifton served as best man. Ushers were Jimmy Wooten of Farmville, Linwood Jones, brother of the bridegroom, Jesse Lee Mills, cousin of the bride, and Charles M. Elks, uncle of the bride, all of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Elks selected a pale blue polyester and lace with matching accessories and a green orchid corsage.

Mrs. Jones, mother of the bridegroom, selected a champagne dress of polyester and lace with matching accessories and a green orchid corsage.

Mrs. H. V. Elks Sr. of Greenville, paternal grandmother of the bride, wore a deep pink dress with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Allen Jones of Dover, paternal grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a turquoise dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Lester Dixon, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding. Mrs. Johnnie Ree Elks attended the register and Miss Patricia Kelly distributed programs of the wedding.

A senior at East Carolina University, the bridegroom has a double major in history and geography and plans to enter graduate school in the fall. He is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Sigma Pi, and Phi Alpha Theta honor fraternities.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a blue polyester knit dress with white accessories. She wore a white orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

After the wedding trip, the couple will reside at Rt. 3, Greenville.

Following the rehearsal on Saturday night, the bride's parents entertained the wedding party and immediate families at a cake cutting at the Cherry Education Building.

The table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with a candelabra arrangement of white daisies and greenery. After the bridal couple cut the first slice, the three tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Morris Elks, mother of the bride-elect, and punch was poured by Mrs. Harry Jones Sr., mother of the bridegroom-elect.

Reader Agrees With Woman's Decision

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-M. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations to your reader, Leonard M. Lake, in regard to that young woman's decision to marry a conscientious objector. It does not follow that a person with pacifist convictions could not act to protect his family. Take it from no less a spokesman than Mahatma Gandhi:

"He who cannot protect himself or his nearest and dearest of their honor by nonviolently facing death, may and ought to do so by violently dealing with the oppressor. He who can do neither of the two is a burden. He has no business to be the head of a family. He must either hide himself, or must rest content to live forever in helplessness and be prepared to crawl like a worm at the bidding of a bully." Submitted by: SPENCER H. MACCALLUM SAN PEDRO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you printed a letter from someone who claimed to be a "well-adjusted homosexual."

There is no such thing as a well-adjusted homosexual; the two terms are antonymous. Homosexuality, male, or female, is a form of sexual deviation which is symptomatic of personality disorder. By any reasonable standard of human development, homosexuality is an abnormal human condition which needs competent professional treatment. It is, in effect a form of emotional illness.

I think that you would be as interested as I in what your readers think about the subject.

HAPPY HETEROSEXUAL

DEAR HAPPY: By whose definition is homosexuality an illness? There are homosexuals who live socially well-adjusted, discreet, personally happy lives, whose homosexuality would come as a surprise to many of their close heterosexual friends.

The fact that homosexuality is morally condemned by most people in our culture makes it seem abnormal. In other times and in other cultures it has not always been so judged.

Much of the maladjustment seen in homosexuals is due to the rejection, persecution and guilt imposed upon them by intolerant and ignorant contemporaries.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in reference to a question you asked in your column recently, "Exactly how does one

Historians Anxious To Open Royal Tombs

THIS MURAL was found recently in an ancient tomb in Nara, Japanese historians, eager to know more about their country's origin, want to open tombs of the Emperor's ancestors. (UPI Telephoto)

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese historians, eager to know more about their country's origin, are pushing Emperor Hirohito into an embarrassing controversy.

They want to open the tombs of his royal ancestors. Many ancient emperors are believed to have been laid to rest with rich ornaments and art objects that nowadays could be museum treasures. The tombs may also hold clues to the still mysterious origin of the Japanese nation.

"Unthinkable!" snaps Shio Miki, keeper of tomb documents for the Imperial Household Agency, which conducts Hirohito's affairs. "It is an intrusion on the dignity of the royal household."

"The emperor is a scholar himself," retorts Masateru Nakayama, a member of Parliament from Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic party (LDP). "Perhaps he would not refuse the wishes of the people."

Parliament has decided not to press the matter, and the emperor himself has offered no opinion.

Protect 136 Tombs

The Imperial Household Agency today guards 136 tombs believed to contain the bodies of Japanese emperors or their consorts. Most are located around the former capital cities of Nara and Kyoto, about 300 miles west of Tokyo.

In addition, 548 graves of other members of the royal family have been identified, along with 128 housing the bones of favored retainers.

In other Asian countries like

China and Korea, such royal graves have been opened, and other contents turned over to scholars. But this happened after the Chinese and Korean dynasties lost their thrones. Japan's is still in business.

According to the sacred writings of Japan's Shinto religion—the official cult until 1945—Hirohito is the 124th in an unbroken line of monarchs who have reigned over Japan since 660 B.C.

Historians dismiss most of the early emperors as myths, since the Japanese didn't keep written records until the 7th century or later. Emperors from about 300 A.D. and after are, however, regarded as real historical personages.

Many were entombed in stone chambers with plastered walls. After entombment, the burial rooms were covered with high mounds of earth. Noble families buried their dead in a similar way, and "kofun," or old graves, are a common site in the Kyoto-Nara area.

Once a Sacrilege

Although Japan had a well-trained corps of modern historians and archaeologists before World War II, the question of opening the tombs did not arise. Even to ask was to risk prosecution on charges of disrespect for the throne.

The controversy was kindled this spring when scholars opened a non-royal tomb near Nara, and made one of Japan's great art discoveries of the century.

Painted on the plaster walls of the tombs were 16 brilliantly colored figures of men and women in ancient Chinese or Korean dress. The ceiling was dominated by a huge painting of a bear.

The crumbling plaster backing the paintings probably cannot be removed from the tomb, but they are being photographed to ensure their permanent survival.

Historians trace the works to the so-called Asuka period of Japanese art (552-646 A.D.). Only a few Asuka paintings exist.

Encouraged To Leave NASA

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—A reduced budget and an astronaut corps overflowing with men who will never make the few remaining flights means those considering outside jobs or early retirement are "encouraged" to leave, a Space Agency official said Saturday.

"We are getting through the program and have three times as many people as we need to fly the missions," Donald K. "Deke" Slayton said.

Moon explorers James B. Irwin and Edgar D. Mitchell announced Tuesday plans to retire Aug. 1. Irwin said Slayton, the chief of flight crew operations, asked him to retire early because of manpower costs and he was happy to agree.

Investigators Of Angela Davis Law Team Are All Communists

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The five defense investigators at the Angela Davis trial all are members of the Communist party and function as a collective.

Unlike investigators at most criminal trials, they are responsible for organizing and running a worldwide campaign to "Free Angela."

Among them, they have traveled tens of thousands of miles speaking and raising money for Miss Davis' defense.

They have organized rallies, written statements and helped prepare a weekly account of Miss Davis' murder-kidnap-conspiracy trial proceedings. And they have decided what Miss Davis should do—and whom she should meet in her limited free time.

Like other investigators, they have also questioned prospective witnesses and discussed defense strategy with Miss Davis' attorneys.

They are all close to Miss Davis—and were friends long before the 28-year-old former UCLA philosophy instructor was accused of furnishing four guns and helping plot an abortive courthouse escape at the Marin County Civic Center on Aug. 7, 1970, which ended in four deaths.

Two of the five—Miss Davis' sister, Fania Davis Jordan, 24, and Franklin Alexander, 31—are cochairman of the National United Committee to Free Angela Davis and All Political Prisoners and act as chief spokesman for her defense, doing the bulk of the traveling and public speaking.

Franklin's wife, Kendra Alexander, 25, is the National United Committee's permanent representative at the trial, acting as liaison between the defense committee and the legal staff. She usually sits with Miss Davis and is often mistaken for her.

The Alexanders are perhaps Miss Davis' closest friends. Charlene Mitchell, 41, the Communist party's presidential candidate in 1968, is executive secretary of the National United Committee and runs its San Francisco office, which oversees activities of 200 "Free Angela" committees around the world.

The fifth investigator, Bettina Aptheker Kurzweil, 27, daughter of chief Marxist theoretician Herbert Aptheker, said she writes "almost all" of Miss Davis' statements. She is also responsible for contacts with congressmen, labor unions and the national peace movement and organized the May 20 anti-war and "Free Angela" rally here.

"We function as a collective," said Mrs. Kurzweil. "We try never to make individual decisions. We try to work together—and it's a very effective method of work."

"As you know, the composition of our staff is interracial, predominantly black which it should be—and the leadership is black, which it should be, too," said Mrs. Kurzweil, who is the only white investigator.

Will Resume Prison Study

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — A committee which recommended sweeping changes recently in North Carolina's juvenile training schools plans to resume its study of the state prison system immediately.

Isaac T. Avery of Statesville, chairman of the committee of the North Carolina Bar Association, said the group will pick up where it left off when it began a special study of the juvenile corrections system.

The committee will make its prison report to Gov. Bob Scott next December. A first step in the prison study, Avery said, will be a review of progress in implementing recommendations made in an interim report.

"In addition," he added, "the committee plans to visit the new corrections facility at Morganton."

Avery noted that high rise prison represent a new concept. Maximum security inmates are housed on the top floor. As they make progress in rehabilitation, the inmates work downward until they achieve complete release.

Accord Can Change The World

The agreements between the United States and the Soviet Union on the limiting of strategic nuclear weapons may well change the course of the world. The agreement culminated two and a half years of complicated negotiations. It includes a treaty provision limiting defensive antiballistic missile sites in each nation and this must be ratified by the U. S. Senate.

There is also agreement to freeze the deployment of offensive nuclear missiles at the present level for the United States. The agreement allows the Soviets to catch up with the U. S. lead in launching platforms.

Both countries would be allowed to replace existing offensive missiles with more advanced ones as technology permitted.

This milestone agreement is hardly in the nature of a disarmament treaty; however it may at long last bring an end to an arms race which has drained far too much of both nation's resources.

It is well known that both the United States and Russia have more than enough nuclear capacity to destroy each other and most of the remainder of the world. Thus it is so logical that this agreement has come to end the squandering of money on the development of more super weapons.

Of course, it also a first step in a complicated are of international relations. Perhaps this agreement may lead to others which would actually reduce the numbers of weapons and military forces in the future. If we can reduce world tensions and fears it is possible that something of this nature may come.

Perhaps the world has come to understand that war is now futile and suicidal for the human race. Our differences must now be resolved by some other means. Hopefully this arms limitation agreement will move us in that direction.

Expect Fewer Votes June 3

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N.C. — Unfinished business takes North Carolina voters back to the polls on Saturday (June 3).

BRYAN HAISLIP

What they began on May 6 will be concluded with the selection of party nominees for top state offices.

Ironically, the prospect is that fewer citizens will participate in the final decision than took part in the winnowing out of the first primary.

The outlook for the runoff is a vote in the neighborhood of 600,000, said Alex K. Brock, executive secretary of the state board of elections. That would be about one-fourth less than the 800,000 who voted in the first round.

"There's no realistic expectation that more will vote. Traditionally, fewer have turned out for a second primary," he explained.

Some county election officials report they look for no more than 50 to 55 per cent of the first primary vote in the runoffs, Brock noted.

Those who do come out will have the say-so on Democratic and Republican candidates for governor, and Democratic nominations for U.S. Senator, state insurance commissioner and labor commissioner.

Forecast Is Cloudy

All who voted in the first primary won't be back, but some who stayed home will show up this time. That muddles any attempt to predict outcome.

Bandwagon psychology may favor first round leaders. Their challenge is to hold ranks while mustering new recruits and getting out supporters who missed voting before.

A tougher assignment faces candidates who called the runoffs. To come from behind they have to convert those who voted initially for someone else or entice droves of undecided off the fence.

Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor has tried to do it with a new campaign strategy to erase his establishment identity and with endorsement of two eliminated contenders.

Taylor, labeled the favorite for months before the first primary, finished 62,500 votes back of hargrove (Skipper) Bowles and now looks like the underdog.

Bowles has maintained his pace and posture, keeping to a "no new taxes" pledge as his principal theme.

Sen. B. Everett Jordan is another favored candidate now fighting for a comeback. The 75-year-old incumbent trailed Congressman Nick Galifianakis, 44, in the first primary.

Apathy A Factor

Apathy among his followers cost him, acknowledged Jordan. Now he's working hard to stir up his forces to reverse the verdict in the runoff.

Party politics are involved in the Republican race for governor. Jim Gardner of Rocky Mount, regarded as the heavy favorite, managed a margin of only 1,269 over Jim Holshouser of Boone. The runoff looks like a tight race, with Holshouser given an even chance to overtake Gardner.

The unprecedented second primary ballot also includes a decision between Russell Secrest of Cary and John Ingram of Asheboro for the Democratic nomination for insurance commissioner, and W. C. Creel and John Brooks for labor commissioner.

Two Congressional Races

Democratic nominees for Congress will be chosen in two districts. State Sen. Jyles Coggins of Raleigh and Rep. Ike Andrews of Siler City are the contenders in the Fourth District. The match is between Charles Rose and Sen. Hector McGeachy, both of Fayetteville, in the Seventh District.

There also are a scattering of state legislative races and some local offices involved in the June 3 balloting.

Voter participation is the dilemma of politics. As campaigns become more expensive and the electoral base more extensive, the public response seems to wane.

North Carolina has a total registration of 2,199,936. That includes 1,642,603 Democrats and 481,877 Republicans.

The first primary turnout fell below Brock's expectations. He forecast one million Democratic votes; the total in the governor's race was around 800,000. He looked for 300,000 Republicans at the polls; only 170,500 came out.

An indecisive voter mood was Brock's explanation. "The undecided decided not to decide," he said.

Whether they change their minds will have bearing on the June 3 results.

Better Look Again At Postal Service Costs

The Postal Service should take another look at the trend toward ever higher rates in view of a state decision to operate its own courier service.

The courier system will operate between Raleigh and state offices in 64 cities including Greenville.

State agencies now spend $195,000 sending mail back and forth to the 64 cities and obviously it is believed the courier system can be operated cheaper.

The Postal Service must compete with this and postal rate increases should be reviewed with their competitiveness in mind.

Normal Trade Outlook Thin

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MOSCOW — Behind the bloated rhetoric of underlings, promising vast new trade between their two countries, President Nixon and Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev are finding that the realistic potential for new commercial arrangements is disappointingly thin.

The most that can be hoped for from the hard bargaining during the past week here is very little indeed: the projected sale of perhaps $250 million worth of American feed grain to help the Russians fulfill their ambitious livestock goal in the new five-year plan, and agreement to set up a "negotiating mechanism" for the future.

Thus, instead of rushing into non-existent commercial fields that former Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans euphorically estimated could quickly reach several billions of dollars a year, American-Soviet trade potential is now at a negotiation point roughly equal to that of nuclear arms limitation in 1969, when the SALT talks got going in earnest.

It took the SALT negotiators almost three years to reach the limited agreement soon to be signed by Mr. Nixon. It may take Mr. Nixon's new trade negotiating team, to be headed by Secretary of Commerce Peter Peterson, at least that long before two-way trade even begins to approach several billion dollars a year.

Consider, for example, the tortuous course of the bargaining only Soviet lend-lease debts which is now caught in an "after you, Alphonse; after you, Gaston" trap.

The Kremlin is demanding "normalization" of trade relations before it will pay the lend-lease debt incurred a quarter of a century ago. Moscow wants most-favored-nation (MFN) treatment, access to Export-Import banks, credits and other concessions routinely granted by the U. S. to friendly nations.

But as President Nixon sees it, liquidating the lend-lease debt must come first. There is total agreement among the U.S. summit delegation that Congress would never grant MFN treatment to the Russians before the debt is paid. Accordingly, MFN is out, at least until 1973.

Moreover, a cool half-billion dollars separate the rock-bottom Soviet version of the lend-lease debt (about $350 million) and the far higher American version. Although non-stop talks here between Presidential trade aide Peter Flanigan and the Soviet foreign trade minister have made some progress, at this writing they were still far from a common position on the size of the debt.

But assume that a figure is finally agreed on and the Alphonse-Gaston deadlock breaks in the U.S. favor. With the underbrush cleared away, Soviet officials talk grandly of a huge commercial deal trading a liquefied gas for the sophisticated American technology Moscow must have — machinery and computers.

For drilling and extraction, building the pipeline and moving liquefied gas onto ships, the cost will be several billion dollars, which the Russians want to finance by U.S. credits—or by some multi-national development corporation still no more than a gleam in the eye of the Soviet foreign trade ministry. President Nixon is being very hard-nosed about this, for an obvious reason. Although the energy-shy U.S. wants to buy the gas, the huge development cost for delivery

Grounding Our Leaders

WASHINGTON — A recent story in the newspaper has upset my friend Flaxmeyer no end. He read that according to Sen. William Proxmire, the Defense Department has asked for almost a half-billion dollars to buy three 747 Boeing jets that would be used as an Advance Airborne National Command Post for the President of the United States and his top advisers in case of a nuclear attack.

According to the story, the planes will give the President and top officials an opportunity to take off before the enemy missiles strike and fly around in safety, pushing whatever buttons have to be pushed. The argument for these flying command posts is that our communications would be protected, no matter what the enemy hit on the ground.

When Flaxmeyer read the story he called up immediately. "Don't get me wrong. I'm not against the Defense Department asking for a half-billion dollars for 747 jets. God knows it's a drop in the bucket compared to what we're spending now. But I do object to giving the President of the United States and his advisers as chance to take off into the sky at the first sign of a nuclear attack."

"But," I protested, "it seems reasonable to me that the President should be able to conduct World War III from the air."

"Listen, one of the most important safeguards we have now is that the leaders of the nuclear powers know if we go, they go too. If they have any chance of thinking they could be spared, they might make some very stupid decisions."

"Flaxmeyer," I said, "do you think the President of the United States would be influenced in his decisions by whether he survives a nuclear holocaust or not?"

"Maybe not consciously," he said, "but subconsciously he may figure he has nothing to lose. Look, I'm not talking just about the President of the United States. If we build three 747s as command posts, the Russians will equip three command Illyushins for their leaders. I say it's absolutely essential that the men who make the decisions to destroy the world know they have no chance of surviving the mischief they have cooked up."

"What do you suggest?" I asked.

Other Editors Say Medical Wonders

(Burlington Daily Times-News)

Medical science has been a source of wonder in recent years with heart and kidney transplants, the return of severed limbs to at least partial use, and other advances.

Another achievement in the medical field has been the development of the pacemaker, a unit which is inserted in an individual's chest to electrically regulate the heart at a proper beat.

Many people today are living normal lives with this marvelous little unit. The only difference from normal living in these people is that periodically they must return to the hospital for minor surgery to replace batteries which power the pacemaker. Now comes a report that a doctor in California has implanted a pacemaker in the chest of a two-month-old girl. She was born with a heart blockage and was near death as the result of a very weak heartbeat.

She is believed to be the youngest recipient of a pacemaker, and chances are that she will be able to develop and grow as she should, the small unit providing the spark she needs to live normally.

Because of medical technology, many people are alive today who a few years ago would have been given no chance whatsoever to live.

Not too long ago this little girl would not have survived. Yet, now she has the chance for a productive life.

Other individuals like her who once would have been doomed now can return to their normal activities and be useful individuals in our society as a result of medical science.

Many diseases have been conquered, and research continues in areas which will lead to breakthroughs in those which remain to snuff out life.

Researchers have developed mechanisms such as the pacemaker and perfected them to the point that they are now taken for granted when but a short while ago they were not even imagined.

Astronauts At End Of The Line

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The chill wind of dying hopes and vanished dreams whistles through the ranks of the astronaut corps. One by one, America's spacemen are seeking other jobs.

Of the 73 pilots and scientists selected as astronauts, 43 are left ready to fly. Twelve of this number are assigned to fly in either Apollo 17, the last moon mission, or Skylab, the series of three, long-duration missions scheduled for next year.

Twenty astronauts have never flown and are not now selected for a planned mission. Their chances of flying after spending years in training, says one astronaut, are between "poor and nonexistent."

Eleven others have flown at least once, but are not now assigned to a mission.

Donald K. Slayton, chief of flight crew operations and one of the active astronauts who has never flown, knows his office is overstaffed and he is encouraging astronauts to seek other work.

Last week, two moon walkers, Edgar D. Mitchell of Apollo 14 and James B. Irwin of Apollo 15, announced their retirements effective later this summer.

Mitchell said in an interview that both he and Irwin were leaving earlier than planned to help Slayton with the overstrength problem.

Many of the spacemen, particularly those who never flew, are quietly making plans to leave.

The announcement last week of a joint rendezvous and docking mission with the Soviets pumped a particle of hope into the minds of some of the grounded spacemen. The mission, tentatively scheduled for 1975, will need two or three—it's undecided as yet—American astronauts.

Slayton said the crew for that mission probably will be selected early in 1974 and likely will come from the veterans of the Apollo and Skylab programs.

Eleven astronauts, hoping to get an important edge in the tough competition for the crew positions on the Soviet flight, are studying Russian or have firm plans to do so. The crewmen for the Russian flight, however, says one spaceman, "are not going to be the more junior people in the office. The selection will be pretty much political."

Mexico Changes Course

By PIETIK VAN BENNEKOM
MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The Mexican government, faced with a 3.5 per cent annual population growth, is preparing a nationwide campaign urging "responsible fatherhood" in an attempt to curb the country's birthrate.

The program—described as "family planning" rather than "birth control"—begins officially in January, 1973, under the direction of Dr. David Fragoso Lizardo, director of mother and child care in the Federal Health Department.

Some critics feel the program, as announced, doesn't go far enough. It does, nevertheless, represent an about-face in the policies of the administration of President Luis Echeverria.

Economic Pressure

During his 1970 campaign for the presidency, Echeverria said that "to govern is to populate," and he rejected at that time any state-led birth control programs. But the World Bank, whose credits Mexico sorely needs for development programs, has insisted that the country do something to cut down its population growth.

Lizardo in outlining the program said it provides for the application of birth control devices "only at the request and with the consent of those involved." He said it will remain the responsibility of every couple to determine how many children they want to have. The government, he said, will "never permit that human dignity be injured" in application of birth control methods.

The emphasis of the campaign, Lizardo explained, will be in promoting the importance of "responsible fatherhood." Press, radio and television, he said, will be utilized to remind people "of the grave responsibility they take upon themselves when they bring a child into the world, that they have to provide that child with physical, material, mental and psychological care and give it the opportunity to get an education and live in a family ambience."

High Birth Rate

Lizardo said Mexico's population growth problem is a very real one. He noted that there were 6,123 births every day in Mexico in 1971, a rate of population growth equalled only by some countries in Asia. "This is a very serious preoccupation for the government," he said.

In the 1970 census Mexico's population was counted at nearly 48,400,000, making it second in Latin America only to Brazil.

The government opted for its "family planning" approach, Lizardo explained, because Mexico, as a Roman Catholic country, is not yet ready to accept an all-out government birth control program. Instead, he said, Mexicans will be reminded that "perfectly tested" systems and treatments for birth control "will be at the disposal of all couples which want to adopt them."

BEAUTY SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

The Sistine Madonna, the most precious picture in the world, is kept in an art gallery in Dresden. Then, in traveling days, tourists crowded into the room to see it, the guard simply drew the curtain and stood reverently by without saying a word. The picture spoke for itself.

The same is true of the picture of Christ in the New Testament. It speaks for itself. Many people think it their duty to defend Christ. He needs no defense. Others think they must commend Him to an indifferent world, but that too is a futile effort. All Christ needs is to be presented to the hearts of men and He will take care of

His own defense and His own commendation. When people see Him as He is He makes their hearts captive as he has made captive the hearts of generations that have gone before. All we need is to have the curtain drawn back. The fully revealed Christ speaks for Himself.

Our creeds have sometimes spoiled Him. They have been as much out of place as a tourist lecture would be before the Sistine Madonna. There have been attempts to explain something that needs no explanation — to defend one well able to defend Himself.

When one stands before beauty he wants to look, not listen.

Sharp Exchanges In McGovern-Humphrey Meeting

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —
Sharp exchanges between Sens.

George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey marked their first joint television appearance of the presidential campaign.

Both said they are eager for the two more meetings before the June 6 California primary. Three issues—Vietnam, defense spending and welfare reform—dominated the hour-long program Sunday night as the two leading Democratic presidential contenders answered questions from three newsmen. On the attack almost immediately, Humphrey assailed

McGovern's claim that he was "right from the start" in opposing the Vietnam war, a criticism McGovern said he found "almost impossible to believe." When the program, an expanded version of the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Face the Nation," was over, both Humphrey and McGovern appeared pleased with the result.

The two senators will appear Tuesday night on a special "Meet the Press" program over the National Broadcasting Co. network and next Sunday on the American Broadcasting Co. program "Issues and Answers."

The most heated exchanges occurred on Vietnam and on the McGovern welfare program. The South Dakota senator rejected Humphrey's charge his plan would cost $72 billion but refused to put a price tag on his own proposal.

McGovern's plan involves giving every American a $1,000 "income supplement" and abolishing the present welfare program.

At one point, while the two senators sparred over the welfare issue, Humphrey charged that a single person in San Francisco earning $8,000 a year would have to pay $567 more in taxes under the McGovern proposal.

"That simply is not true," McGovern interrupted. "Well, it is true," Humphrey replied, adding that a family of four making $12,000 would have to pay an extra $409 in taxes. "And that is not true," McGovern declared. "Now for the senator to say it's not true—he doesn't even know what the price tag of his bill is," Humphrey said. The Minnesota senator said his alternative to McGovern's proposal is to give a family of four a $3,000 annual income, raise Social Security benefits 25 per cent, transfer programs aiding the aged, blind and handicapped to federal financing and, over four years, transfer the whole family assistance program to federal financing.

That would cost $11.5 billion "as compared with whatever figure Sen. McGovern wants to put on his elusive program," Humphrey said.

Early in the program, attacking McGovern's "right from the start" theme, Humphrey said, "There are many times where you will find it not right from the start but wrong from the start." He insisted their records were parallel and that both were wrong at the start.

On defense spending, Humphrey charged that McGovern's plan for a $32 billion reduction to $54.8 billion would be "cutting into the very security of this country."

McGovern contended his proposal "will give this country all the military power we need" and would leave the United States with enough power to destroy every Soviet city 20 times. "I think that's just about enough," he said.

There were these other issues: Israel — Humphrey charged McGovern had been wrong on Israel and that his defense cuts would leave that country unprotected. McGovern denied it and said their positions were about the same.

Busing — Humphrey said he opposed it for the sole purpose of achieving an arbitrary racial balance but favored it to help provide better education. McGovern charged that Humphrey praised President Nixon's call for a moratorium on busing orders and said he has been "consistent in my support of the Supreme Court" on busing.

Taxation — McGovern said he wants to wants a shift more of the burden from the average man to the rich and powerful, while Humphrey declared, "I was in the tax-loophole closing business before Gov. (George) Wallace and George McGovern

Gardner left Charlotte after the TV show Sunday night and was to fly to Asheville. Bad weather forced the plane to land in Greenville, S.C., where he spent the night. He canceled a breakfast meeting in Murphy this morning, and was to resume his schedule at 10 a.m. in Franklin.

Former Gardner Aide Cites Link To Wallace

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Jim Gardner's 1968 flirtation with then-presidential candidate George Wallace was attested to by a former Gardner campaign worker Sunday night.

Melvin L. Hamby of Charlotte, who worked in Gardner's Raleigh headquarters in 1968, said in a sworn affidavit that Gardner's paid workers had ordered "Gardner-Wallace" bumper stickers and distributed them.

Hamby also said Gardner had authorized distribution of numerous pictures showing Democrats Edmund Muskie and Hubert Humphrey in pictures with blacks. One of them, he said, showed Muskie and his wife with three white children and one black. It was captioned, "Meet the Muskies."

Gardner, who was questioned about the affidavit on a Charlotte television station, termed the statements in it "absurd."

Hamby said the 1968 bumper stickers were obtained at the orders of Yates Nagle of the Gardner staff. He said some were distributed from Gardner's car.

Hamby's statement came several days after a charge by Gardner that his GOP rival, Jim Holshouser, was responsible for distributing Gardner-Wallace bumper stickers in Hendersonville before the first pri-

"The SALT agreement must have a clause written into it that neither side may build any airplanes that can be used as command posts for its leaders and top officials, also, if the balloon goes up, the men who advised the leaders must be forbidden to leave Washington and Moscow. In fact the language in the treaty must say that if war is declared, all U.S. advisers to the President must line up on Pennsylvania Avenue at attention, and all advisers to the Soviet leaders must line up in front of the Kremlin.

"The treaty should further state that the President and the Soviet leaders must remain in their respective offices until the last missile is fired."

"That's strong language," I told Flaxmeyer. "Wouldn't you rather have the President of the United States flying around making sure the Soviets are paid back for their infamy?"

"No, sir! The only hope the little people have is that there will be no 747s and Illyushins to save the people who push the buttons."

sometime far in the future poses both economic and political risks. The U.S. Congress would never approve of extending billions in credit to moscow with no pay-off in sight.

And yet, gas is the only commodity available here that is capable of earning enough hard currency to put trade with the U.S., now running at a pitiful $200 million a year both ways, on a solid foundation.

To cover up the failure of a spectacular trade breakthrough at the summit, the President and Brezhnev now plan to include hopeful future prospects for trade in the "declaration" they are drafting. As now planned this "declaration" will have more important long-range significance than the routine communique. It will set forth the broad political, military and economic principles of the new cooperation between these two super powers.

But no matter how soaring the "declaration's" rhetoric on future trade, American businessmen expecting miracles at the summit will be gravely disappointed.

Nominated For UMW President

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — Black lung sufferer Arnold Miller of West Virginia's southern coalfields has been nominated by the Miners for Democracy as candidate for presidency of the United Mine Workers union.

The weekend convention by the dissident inter-union group followed a federal court order May 1 overturning the union's 1969 election and ordering a new one.

UMW President W. A. "Tony" Boyle won the 1969 election over reformer Joseph "Jock" Yablonski; Yablonski and his wife and daughter were murdered three weeks later. The MFD is composed of miners who supported Yablonski's candidacy.

LONDON (UPI) — Britons drink 178 pints of beer per year per head.

Potential For Trouble Prevails In British Prisons

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Martin Wright leaned back in his chair, took a sip of tea and mused: "The potential is there, but so far, there haven't been the provocations."

Wright is the director of the Howard League for Penal Reform and he referred to the potential for trouble in British prisons.

A recent report on the work of the prison department showed there were 39,389 inmates in the 111 jails and juvenile detention centers or borstals in England and Wales—a drop from the 1970 figure, but still large enough to cause massive overcrowding.

A spokesman for the Home Office, which supervises the prisons, estimated that 25,000 inmates are housed in 19th century buildings and 14,000 inmates share cells originally designed for single occupancy.

William Cahn, president of the U.S. National District Attorneys Association, recently described the overcrowding as "a short fuse on a long stick of dynamite."

Cahn was one of 50 district attorneys who spent a week studying law enforcement in Britain.

To an American, the British prison system seems at once more stringent and more lenient than that of the United States.

The age of the prisons, the amount of time men spend locked in tiny cells, the old-fashioned industry in some prisons and the often-gloomy physical appearance of the buildings combine to make one think of a description from a Victorian novel.

In contrast, however, there are a few ultramodern prisons which resemble an industrial complex more than a jail; about 10 per cent of the inmates are housed in "open prisons" with virtually no barrier to escape; guards—like British police—carry no weapons.

One of the showpieces of the British prison system is Coldingley.

Opened in 1969, the prison is designed to test the hypothesis "that for a certain type of prisoner, the most important part of his training is to learn to work in an efficient well-managed industrial organization, to have to work under supervision and against the clock in achieving economic levels of output and quality, to earn more or less money according to how hard he works and his own abilities will allow. ..."

The prison does not coddle its inmates. "Outside the fence it's a hard, wicked world," said the official, and the prison tries to imitate that world as much as possible.

The men are allowed a certain say in their lives—but they also must accept responsibility for their decisions.

At present, Coldingley has 222 inmates. The final capacity is 296. Men from the region are sent to the prison when there are job vacancies providing they meet certain criteria.

They must be over 21, they must have between nine months and three years left of their sentence to serve, they must be physically and mentally able to work a 40-hour week and they must have the potential to develop work habits.

From a distance, the low, modern buildings of Coldingley resemble a college campus more than a prison. It is only when a visitor approaches the institution that the fences topped with barbed wire become visible.

With the industrial buildings, the atmosphere is that of a factory. There are no uniformed officers, only civilian foremen. Step outside the buildings, however, and there are uniformed officers patrolling with guard dogs.

Coldingley is a training prison—one to which sentenced prisoners are transferred after initial assessment in a local prison.

Training prisons usually provide more in the way of industry, education and rehabilitation for inmates, but only about half the prisoners ever get to these facilities.

For the other inmates, the time in prison means at least 11 and probably 16 hours spent in cells some 12 feet long, 9 feet wide and 18 feet high.

There are no toilets in the cells, only chamber pots.

When he does work—usually at unskilled tasks like sewing mailbags—the prisoner earns an average of $1.30 per week. The maximum wage at Coldingley, in contrast, is about $4.70.

Both reformers like the Howard League's Wright and the government agree conditions must be improved. They disagree about what should be done and how serious the threat of riot or rebellion really is.

"We have the odd fracas, but nothing really serious," said a Home Office spokesman. He said there was little racial antagonism and "not even many accusations of brutality by prison officials."

Why hasn't there been the same kind of trouble there has been in the United States?

"You can't answer that just in terms of prisons," said the Home Office spokesman. "You must do it in terms of the whole society. Perhaps a better question would be: 'Why have you got the trouble and we haven't?'"

Some people feel the answer lies in the differing traditions of the two countries—the frontier attitude of the United States versus the more settled British heritage. They point to the general level of violence in America, particularly in the big cities and note proudly that you can walk around almost any area of London at any time of the day or night without fear of attack.

Discussing the question of why there have been no riots in British prisons, Wright said, "There's already been a certain kind of rumbling from a certain element, but the inmates aren't a united force yet."

City Retains Its Old Laws

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — It's against the law here for cows to wear bells.

That is one of the antiquated laws still on the books which the business law class at Cleveland State Community College uncovered in a recent study of the city code.

Bill Roberts, class instructor, said the study also revealed that:

—It is illegal for persons over 16 to skate on sidewalks or streets.

—It is unlawful to operate an automobile near a cemetery between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m.

—It is unlawful to operate a "flying jenny" or "merry-go-round" after 6 p.m.

—No person shall board or leave a vehicle while it is in motion.

—No more than two hogs per person may be kept in the city.

—No person may keep, stable or maintain a jackass within the city limits between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. or any hour on Sunday.

—It is unlawful to hitch animals to shade trees or feed them on streets.

Diver Survives Shark Attack

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 30-year-old abalone diver emerged from three hours of surgery in satisfactory condition after an attack by a 12-foot shark while diving in Tomales Bay.

The victim, Helmuth Himmrich, of Lodi, Calif., was reported Sunday by Letterman Hospital officials to be resting comfortably after his ordeal.

Himmrich was grabbed by the shark Sunday while diving just south of Tomales Point, about 40 miles north of San Francisco.

Himmrich surfaced beside a small boat anchored offshore. Horrified occupants noticed the shark ripping at Himmrich's right thigh. They pulled him into the boat.

An unidentified Coast Guard paramedic who happened to be at the scene gave first aid until a Coast Guard helicopter arrived and evacuated the victim.

Survivor Of Lafayette Escadrille Tells Memories

By WILLIAM HELTON
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — It's Sept. 24, 1917, and Douglas MacMonagle and Carl Dolan are winding up a 48-hour leave in Paris. Mac is drunk.

"I couldn't get him back to camp," Carl, or retired Col. Charles H. Dolan II, recalled nearly 55 years later. "I'd get him into a cab and he'd get out and run away. He kept disappearing. I had to look in every bar in Paris for him."

Dolan finally got MacMonagle back to the camp—only two hours before the morning patrol was due to take off. Mac was on it, but he couldn't find his helmet. He asked if he could borrow Dolan's.

"I offered to go in his place, but Mac said, 'No.'"

Dolan went to sleep again only to be awakened shortly afterward. "It was the captain. He said, 'Dolan, go get Mac's body.' Raoul Lufbery later told me that Mac broke away from the group and went straight into the sun after a German. The German happened to be Von Richthofen.

"He was killed by the Red Baron and he was wearing my helmet," Dolan said. "He was shot in the head."

Dolan and MacMonagle were members of the Lafayette Escadrille, the first significant organized group of American combat pilots to go to war. They flew for France in World War I, as a squadron of the France Service Aeronautique and later, though still under French command, as the 103rd Aero Pursuit Group of the American Army. The Escadrille still survives in the French air force today.

Over the years, thousands have claimed membership in the Escadrille, (French for squadron), but there were only 38 Americans and four French officers who whirled into aerial combat in French Nieuports and Spad biplanes with the Escadrille.

Today, only Dolan survives.

He lives in Oahu's northeast shore, spending much of his time seated in a white, wicker chair looking out through a large picture window on to the Pacific Ocean. His home is full of mementoes spanning half a century. Among the most prized is his French aviation "brevet," or license.

He also shows a visitor a picture of himself when he was in his early 20s and with the Escadrille. It is a picture of a handsome, mustached man in a French uniform. The hair and mustache long since have turned silver.

When Dolan talks about the events of the Great War, he drops such names as Billy Mitchell, Gen. Pershing and Eddie Rickenbacker as if they were next-door neighbors.

He'll tell you about an age when chivalry was alive; when enemy pilots smiled and waved farewell to each other when one could find an honorable excuse to break off an engagement; when a pilot would drop a note to the enemy identifying a pilot he had shot down; when a captured pilot would have a drink with men who only minutes before had been trying to kill him.

When war broke out in Europe, Dolan went to London in a cattle boat. His objective was to join the Royal Flying Corps but instead he took a job as an aero inspector and later with Sperry Gyroscope installing auto pilots on aircraft.

While working with Sperry,

Dolan met Escadrille pilots William Thaw, Lufbery, the double ace, and others in the bars of Paris. They invited him to join the unit, and faced with a transfer to Russia, he accepted.

The group that Dolan joined had been welded out of American volunteers, many of whom served as common soldiers in the French Foreign Legion, or in the American Ambulance Corps.

They were idealistic men like Norman Prince, a young lawyer and Harvard graduate whose family spent summers on an estate near Pau in the Basques-Pyrenees; or Victor Chapman, son of John Jay Chapman, the lawyer and poet; or Thaw, the son of a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad. MacMonagle was the son of a San Francisco physician.

There also were the drifters and adventurers—"The soldiers of fortune who wanted to know who in the hell Lafayette was," Dolan says.

Idealists or adventurers, they shared one thing in common: They preferred the individualism of flying to the trenches of Verdun. And they began trickling into the French air squadrons.

Finally, the French agreed to establish a single squadron out of the American fliers. Officially informed April 16, 1917, it was called the Escadrille Americaine, and it became a symbol of American sympathy for France in the war. Later, because of American neutrality and German objections, its name was changed to the Escadrille Lafayette.

It is credited with shooting down 40 German planes, but Dolan says the actual count probably is about 100.

But Dolan doesn't boast about the Escadrille. He says that much written about the squadron has been exaggerated and that the press has glorified the pilots.

"It's so much trash," he says. "People ask me about the Red Baron. Hell, we never thought much about him. He was a good pilot and he killed a lot of French and British, but he was shot down by a greenhorn."

Eight members of the Escadrille were killed in combat. Dolan narrowly missed becoming one of them when, hit by artillery fire, he crash landed his Spad in no-man's land near Verdun.

PHT Degree To Gretchen

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Because she knows her way around, Gretchen was awarded a special degree by the University of San Diego Law School.

Her diploma was smaller than the other 173 conferred at the weekend ceremonies, but that doesn't mean she didn't work as hard as anyone else.

It's just that Gretchen is a doberman pinscher guide dog who did such a good job for her master, Robert D. Deens, 40, that it was decided she deserved a PHT degree.

The letters stand for "putting him through" a variation of the "putting hubby through" mock degree sometimes given to wives of graduates.

"She certainly deserves it," Deens said. "She has seen me through four years at San Diego State and three years at USD."

Deens, blinded by glaucoma, is a widower who said he plans to be a general practice lawyer.

Helms Claims Support From Many Democrats

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — Republican U.S. Senate nominee Jesse Helms says he has received pledges of support from thousands of Democrats in North Carolina "who are fed up with their party."

"These Democrats want a change and we are going to give them a chance to get," Helms said in a prepared talk to the 3rd District Republican Convention Saturday night.

"They are already working to help us win in November, because they, too, want an effective, meaningful two-party system," he said.

Helms added that Democrats "are sick and tired of the machinations of the Kennedys, Humphreys, McGovern and Muskies."

He told the convention he was gratified by the large number of young people who had joined his campaign.

SUCCOR FOR WOMEN
FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Female trade unionists are demanding equal wages and better promotions for West Germany's 9.6 million women workers.

Pointing to wage differentials, the campaign leaders note that female industrial employees are averaging only $1.51 an hour compared to $2.17 for their male counterparts.

Chinese Mayors Are Rare, But U.S. Has Them

By MERV BLOCK
SLEDGE, Miss. (AP) — "I'm a Rebel and proud of it," proclaims a sign in the rear of the drugstore. The druggist is not a small "r" rebel who defies authority, but a big "R" rebel who personifies authority: the mayor.

There's no need for him, though, to proclaim a distinction far more unusual than his being a Rebel from the University of Mississippi: he's Chinese, and Chinese are as scarce in Mississippi as plantation owners in China.

Mayor Luck Wing, 42, and most of the other 1,440 Chinese in the state live in the north-west corner of the Mississippi river Delta region.

Wing's position as mayor is unusual indeed, for there are only three Chinese families among the 518 people in Sledge. Unusual but not unique: Wing's brother John, 53, is mayor of nearby Jonestown—in a state where Chinese compose only 1-15 of 1 per cent of the population.

Just northwest of them, in Arkansas, the city of Turrell has a Chinese mayor, Charlie Wah. He and the Wings are believed to be the only Chinese mayors in the United States. It might be misleading to describe them as Chinese, though, inasmuch as their orientation is American.

"This is my country," says Wah earnestly, "and I'm going to do as much as I can for it." Wah, 48, who was born in China, runs a grocery. He donates his monthly municipal salary, $50, to the high school's scholarship fund.

Luck Wing also makes civic contributions; not his salary, but some of his profits.

As mayor, Wing has to cope with problems plaguing places with populations far greater than Sledge's: pollution (air and water); sewage (with construction of a new disposal system and creation of a lagoon for Sledge's sludge, outflows have been outlawed); cost overruns; noise (from freight trains); crime (many people leave their homes unlocked but shoplifting is getting worse); not to mention the demand for improved and expanded municipal services for less taxes (the library, whose magazine rack features "The New 1960 Fishing Annual," has recently been enlarged).

For dealing with these problems and sitting as judge, Wing is paid "$600 a month—once a year." Quick with a quip, Wing presides with good humor over the monthly sessions of the town board, whose five white aldermen meet in the room behind the firehouse.

Wing did not seek the office. When the previous mayor decided three years ago not to run again, the manager of one of the town's two banks drew up a petition asking Wing to put his name on the ballot for the post. The position was signed by the mayor, and 78 other residents.

His reluctance overcome by the appeal, Wing did run (as a Democrat), and won, defeating a white man who is a grandson of Sledge's founder.

Although most of Sledge's 350 or so whites live on the east side of the Illinois Central railroad tracks and the 150 blacks live on the west side, they appear to be undivided in their praise of Wing. "He's the best mayor we ever had, us colored people," marvels Tom Hill, 67, a gas station attendant. "He can't be beat. We go to him and tell him what we need and he gets it done. I don't care if he is Chinese; he's a good man."

A white citizen, Russell Samuels, 64, the night marshal, says of Wing: "He's been a mighty nice fellow. He totes hisself good." A white grocer, Fred Wren, 43, commends Wing as "fair, open-minded and very intelligent," adding, "He's a high type person regardless of his color."

"I'm not really conscious of being Chinese," comments Wing, "even when I shave in the morning. Only when I go somewhere else and they start asking me questions. Like, 'Were you born here?' 'No,' I say, 'I was born in Jones-town.'"

The Wings and their four children eat about 1½ pounds of rice a day, usually with a Chinese dinner, but they don't use chopsticks because the sticks are so slender they slip through the wire basket in the dishwasher. To obtain Chinese foodstuffs, they order by mail from San Francisco. Mrs. Wing, a native of Greenville, Miss., also savors Southern specialties; she makes grits, hushpuppies, catfish and chitlins—often Chinese style.

Despite discriminatory treatment in the past, the Chinese now are getting along fairly well. Luck Wing's brother Lee, 46, who also lives in Sledge, is a general agent for an insurance company and employs nine whites.

Mrs. Lee Wing has two brothers and a sister who are married to whites, whom the Wings delicately call Occidentals. And John Wing, Jonestown's mayor, has a daughter who is married to a white. (John, elected in 1965, thinks he is the first Chinese mayor in the country.)

Alumni Gift For Jenkins

An engraved silver wine cooler was presented to Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, Saturday by the ECU Alumni Association on the occasion of Dr. Jenkins' 25th anniversary of service to the school.

Jenkins was the principal speaker at the annual ECU Alumni Day dinner at South Cafeteria.

The presentation, a surprise gift, was presented by Alumni Association officials following recognition of special guests and class members of 1917, 1927, 1932, 1937, 1942, 1957, 1962 and 1967. Other alumnae were also honored.

The ornate silver wine cooler was especially engraved honoring Dr. Jenkins for his quarter century of service to the institution. In his address, Jenkins outlined the growth of the institution and its continuing development over the years.

Can't Start Turbine Car

NEW YORK (AP) — Does anybody know how to start a $240,000 gas turbine car?

The vehicle, said to be the only one of its kind, has broken down eight times since it arrived here in February on loan from the federal government for testing as a low-pollution alternative to the internal combustion engine. Right now it is out of commission.

"We can't get it started, and we don't know why," Air Resources Commissioner Fred Hart acknowledged Sunday.

Hart said the car, manufactured by the Williams Research Corp. of Walled Lake, Mich., would be shipped back to a federal testing facility in Ann Arbor, Mich., if additional funds are not provided for further adjustments and testing.

"We are not going to do anything on that car with city funds," Hart said. The federal Environmental Protection Agency leased the vehicle to the city's Bureau of Motor Vehicle Pollution Control for testing under a federal grant that expires July 1.

In one second the sun radiates more energy than man has used since the beginning of civilization, says National Geographic.

Reds Ambushed An Loc Relief Column

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces lying in ambush south of An Loc today dealt a South Vietnamese relief column its second major setback in four days, killing or wounding 100 or more government soldiers with a heavy barrage.

Field reports said North Vietnamese gunners poured more than 1,000 rounds of rockets and artillery and mortar shells at South Vietnamese forces trying to move up Highway 13 north of Saigon.

The column was hit about 3½ miles south of An Loc.

Preliminary reports from the field said about 15 South Vietnamese were killed today and 80 or 90 wounded.

An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, has been under siege since April 7, a week after the North Vietnamese launched their offensive across South Vietnam. The relief column has been stalled for the past 10 days by North Vietnamese troops who are reported heavily entrenched on the western side of Highway 13.

In the central highlands, 50 U.S. B52 bombers dropped 1,250 tons of bombs around Kontum in an attempt to keep the North Vietnamese from reinforcing their troops holding sections of the provincial capital for the fifth day.

Some of the strikes were within two miles of the city.

North Vietnamese gunners slammed 100 artillery shells into Kontum during the night after fighting all day Sunday in which the South Vietnamese command claimed 168 enemy troops were killed and seven wounded.

Field reports said 25 government troops were killed and 114 wounded in the fighting.

North Vietnamese troops were reported still entrenched in both the northern and southern sections of the city.

On the southern front, the South Vietnamese command rushed several battalions of rangers to reinforce the district town of Dat Do, 45 miles southeast of Saigon, where Viet Cong forces have gained a foothold and control some of the district.

The Saigon command claimed 75 of the enemy were killed, most of them by air and artillery strikes, in a battle a mile west of the district town. Two South Vietnamese were reported killed and seven wounded.

Field reports said much of Dat Do has been destroyed by air and artillery bombardment and several thousand refugees have fled to Baria, the provincial capital of Phuoc Tuy 10 miles to the west.

Sharp fighting raged in the Ca Mau peninsula at the southern tip of the Mekong delta. South Vietnamese forces suffered 18 men killed and 27 wounded in three clashes near the provincial capital of Vinh Thanh. Thirty-two enemy soldiers were reported killed.

On the northern front, enemy forces attacked government positions near the district town of Que Son, 25 miles southwest of Da Nang. The Saigon command said the attack was driven back and 45 enemy were killed. South Vietnamese casualties were one killed and 12 wounded, the command said.

Three clashes were reported north and west of Hue and 71 North Vietnamese were killed, headquarters said. Government losses were only three men wounded, the Saigon command said.

Two Men Face Assault Charge

Two Negro men have been charged with rape in connection with an alleged assault on a Negro woman at 403 West Roundtree Dr. here Saturday.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said Bobby Gene Carr, 22 of 108 Howard Cir., and Dallas Ray Staton, 21 of 403 Roundtree Dr. were arrested following an investigation of an incident reported to police at 10:20 a.m. Saturday.

The two men, the police chief said, were charged with assaulting Margaret Arrington of 1802 West Third St.

Chief Cannon said juvenile petitions would probably be secured against two 10-year-old Negro boys also allegedly involved in the incident.

Wallace Encouraged By Visiting Sen. Kennedy

By JANET M. STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the brother of two assassinated politicians, visited Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace this Memorial Day and assured him that he had a chance to walk again.

The Massachusetts Democrat recalled that he himself was injured seriously in an airplane crash during his 1964 campaign for the Senate. Kennedy said he was told that he could never walk again. He was hospitalized seven months.

"I was tremendously impressed by the governor's spirit and determination to overcome his physical hardships he endured and I'm sure he will," Kennedy told reporters outside Holy Cross Hospital. Kennedy was accompanied by his wife, Joan.

He was in the hospital for 48 minutes.

"As someone who was told that I may never walk again, I hope I reassured him he would be able to, and I'm sure he can," said Kennedy. Kennedy said he hoped that he had cheered up the governor. "He seemed in good spirits," Kennedy related.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, who earlier this year called Wallace a demagogue, visited him Sunday and said he was "a man of courage who speaks for millions of Americans."

Recital Given By Piano Pupils

Piano pupils of Mrs. Robert Kittrell were presented in recital Thursday evening at Hooker Memorial Christian Church in the fellowship building.

Soloists were: Lisa James; Grey Mobley; Connie Hardee; Gina Williams; Erwin Hines; Jamie Dunn; Ann Clark; Julia Nelms; Beth Powers; Susan Smith; Sandra Savage; Alice Stancil; Kathryn Kittrell; Sandra Worthington; and Susan McKnight.

Duets were performed by: Julia Nelms and Beth Powers; Sandra Worthington and Mrs. Kittrell. Refreshments were served to the students and their guests after the recital.

Wallace, felled by an attempted assassin's bullet May 15, sat in a wheelchair for the first time since the shooting. He later paid a surprise visit to his wife's room, some 75 feet from the intensive-care unit which he had not left since being placed there following emergency surgery the day of the shooting.

Muskie spent about 15 minutes with Wallace at Holy Cross Hospital, and told reporters waiting outside the hospital the two talked mostly about politics.

"He seemed in good spirits," Muskie said. "He was glad to see us and we were glad to see him ..."

"He is a man of courage; he speaks for millions of Americans. He and I disagree on obvious issues but this is not the time to go into them."

Says Bowles A Supporter

Sen. Thomas Strickland of Goldsboro, a state campaign manager for Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, has issued a statement qualifying the position of the gubernatorial candidate on East Carolina University.

Strickland stated that Bowles supported the creation of university status for East Carolina College and also supported the appropriation for the ECU Medical School.

The senator said that the candidate also supported a bill to study the "enrichment of curriculum for the ECU Medical School." His endorsements are documented in the Senate Journal, Strickland reported. "Skipper Bowles has supported East Carolina University and the ECU Medical School with his vote in the legislature," Strickland contended. "He has supported every measure before the General Assembly concerning ECU."

Bad Luck For Allison, Baker Sweeps To Win

MCDUFFIE IN SPINOUT — When J.D. McDuffie of Sanford, N.C., went into a broadside spin in the World 600, Ben Arnold of Fairfield, Ala., took his

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Buddy Baker was thundering along in the World 600 stock car race, thinking to himself, "It would be a lot easier if Bobby Allison wasn't on the track." Suddenly, Allison wasn't. "Yep, I feel sorry for Bobby," said Elzie Wylie Baker, Jr. "He just experienced some of that old Baker luck."

Allison's pole-sitting Chevrolet had a 100-yard lead with 50 miles to go Sunday in the world's longest stock car race and Baker wasn't making up an inch.

Then Allison's machine struck a piece of debris, flattening the right rear tire and sending Bobby to the pits for 20 seconds that cost him the race.

Baker went from 100 yards behind to almost two miles ahead and rolled to victory by more than a mile in the $153,530 World 600 before a record crowd of 81,500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway. Baker averaged 142.255 miles per hour to break the record of 140.442 m.p.h. set by Allison when he won the 400 lapper a year ago.

"I know how Allison feels," Baker said. "I was leading the 600 two years ago with just two laps to go when I ran out of gas and lost the race." The winner that year was Donnie Allison, Bobby's brother.

Baker's fuel supply was dangerously low this time, too, as he took the checkered flag with hardly more than fumes in the tank. A pitstop would have given the race to Allison. "I was afraid to look at the gas gauge the last five laps," said the 31-year-old Baker. "I slowed down a little and ran lower on the track to conserve fuel."

Baker earned $21,975 to Allison's $16,950.

Buddy, a Charlotte boy, is a 6-5 giant who comes from tough stock. His father, Buck Baker has been driving race cars for 30 years and is currently under suspension by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing. He was charged with blackjacking another driver after a Grand American race at Ona, W. Va.

Baker's victory was his first in 13 months and lifted his year's earnings to $48,000. Allison's runner-up payoff was enough to make him the No. 1 winner on the 1972 circuit with $85,510. Richard Petty, Baker's teammate, who lost his chances in a wreck at the 500-mile mark, fell to second with $84,195.

Vida Blue Fires 5 Scoreless Innings To Start '72 Season

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Vida Blue had a pretty good start Sunday, but George Hendrick provided an even better finish.

Blue, Oakland's celebrated holdout, made his first 1972 start and fired five scoreless innings against the Chicago White Sox, allowing only one hit and fanning five before he left for a pinch hitter.

"I think five innings was just about right," said the 22-year-old southpaw who had an 80-pitch limit and used 77 of them. The game was scoreless when Blue departed. The A's took a 3-0 lead in the sixth inning but the White Sox scored once in the eighth, twice in the ninth and once in the 10th for a 4-3 lead.

But with two out in the last of the 10th, Mike Hegan singled off Steve Kealey and Hendrick blasted his first major league home run for a 5-4 Oakland triumph.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota whipped Texas 7-2, Detroit edged the New York Yankees 5-4, Baltimore trimmed Cleveland 5-1, Boston downed Milwaukee 4-1 after the Brewers fired manager Dave Bristol and California defeated Kansas City 4-2.

Blue, the AL's most valuable player and Cy Young Award winner last season, tuned up for his first 1972 start by hurling one inning in relief last week and losing to California, allowing two runs.

It appeared as though he might be in for more of the same Sunday, walking three batters and throwing 43 pitches in the first two innings.

"I was nervous because there were about 45,000 people here to see me pitch," he said. "Dick Williams (the Oakland manager) came out to talk to me in the second inning just to give me a breather."

Blue settled down after that, yielding only a third-inning single to Richie Allen.

"I was as good as I had to be," he said. "I need at least four starts to get back where I was last year."

Last year produced a 24-8 record, 1.82 earned run average and 301 strikeouts. Then came the salary battle with owner Charles O. Finley, with Blue asking first for $115,000 and finally accepting $63,000.

Oakland's triumph kept the A's one game ahead of Minnesota in the AL West and dropped Chicago to third, 1½ games back.

Harmon Killebrew drove in five runs with his 11th career grand slam and a double and Rick Renick belted a 442-foot home run as the Twins drubbed the Rangers behind Jim Kaat's four-hitter. It was Killebrew's 520th career homer, one behind Ted Williams for sixth place on the all-time list.

Rookie Paul Jata, replacing the injured Al Kaline, singled and scored in the fifth inning and doubled and scored again in the seventh as the Tigers beat the Yankees behind Chuck Seelbach's strong relief pitching.

Seelbach allowed only four hits over the final 6 2-3 innings and left the potential tying run at second base in the ninth.

Jim Palmer stopped slumping Cleveland on four hits and drilled a two-run double as the Orioles handed the Indians their fifth consecutive setback.

Palmer doubled in the second inning to put Baltimore in front 2-1 and singled in the third as the Orioles scored three unearned runs and again in the eighth. The Indians slipped to third place in the AL East, a half-game behind Baltimore and 1½ in back of front-running Detroit.

The Brewers, whose 10-21 record is the poorest in the majors, canned Bristol in the early morning hours Sunday and replaced him with Del Crandall, who had been managing their Evansville farm club in the American Association.

Crandall won't take over until the team returns home Tuesday night, so he wasn't around Sunday to see the Brewers, handled by coach Roy McMillan, suffer their third straight defeat when Boston's Carlton Fisk slugged a tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning and added a two-run double in the eighth.

That nudged the Red Sox into fourth place in the East Division, a half-game in front of New York and five behind Detroit.

Sore-armed Clyde Wright made his first appearance since May 18 and allowed only four hits in seven innings and walked a home run as the Angels turned back the Royals.

Optimists Defeat R.C. Cola By 5-2

The Optimists edged R. C. Cola, 5-2, Sunday. It was the third straight North State Little League loss in as many days.

Report Foyt In Good Condition

DUQUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Race driver A. J. Foyt was listed in good condition at Marshall Browning Hospital, where he remained overnight Sunday with burns suffered ruing a pit stop in a 100-mile United States Auto Club event earlier in the day.

Officials at the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds said Foyt, a three-time winner of the Indianapolis 500, was leading the event by 35 seconds when he pulled into the pit to refuel on the 86th lap.

Foyt apparently left the pit area too soon, authorities said, jerking the fuel hose from his Ford-powered racing car and spilling the fuel on his back and into the car's cockpit.

The fuel ignited, causing Foyt to leap from the car, his clothes ablaze.

The Optimists pushed over their first run in the top of the second. Jeff Aldridge slapped a homer, giving the Optimists a 1-0 lead.

In the third, they came up with four more, raising their lead to 5-0. Mac Stokes singled and took second on a wild pitch. Eric McCormick doubled him in, and Greg Lee singled. Aldridge walked, loading the bases, and Gary Allen cracked out a single, scoring both McCormick and Lee. An error allowed Aldridge to score the fifth Optimist run.

R. C. came up with its first run in the bottom of the third. Jay Wood singled and Reggie Selby reached on an error. Both advanced on a passed ball and R. C. tied the game, 5-5.

Wood came in with the first R. C. run.

The other one came in the fifth. Wood got another hit and Leon Hardee singled. Tugwell doubled, driving in Wood to close out the scoring.

McCormick and Allen each had two hits to lead the Optimists. Wood's two led R. C. Optimists 014 000-5 7 3 R. C. Cola 001 010-2 5 2

Almost-Dazed Bob Lunn Can't Remember Putt That Won In Atlanta

BOB LUNN of Sacramento, Calif., holds up the winners cup after he won the Atlanta Golf Classic Sunday with a four-round score of 275. (AP-Wirephoto)

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — "I can't remember hitting the putt on 18," said an almost-dazed Bob Lunn Sunday after he ended a year-long victory drought on the pro golf tour with a two-shot victory in the $130,000 Atlanta golf Classic.

"I think everyone goes through these things," Lunn said of the lengthy slump that had seen him win only $7,307 on this year's tour before grabbing the $26,000 first prize here.

"I don't know what happened," he said. "My putting slacked off and I was not hitting the ball as well."

Lunn's downfall coincided with a weight loss that saw him plunge from a hefty 240 to only 168 pounds before he started eating again, learning it's a comfortable weight.

Lunn started the final round at the hilly, 6,883-yard, par 72 Atlanta Country Club course in a deadlock for first with South African Gary Palyer. The big Californian took a two shot lead on the 563-yard second hole when he knocked in a 20-foot eagle putt that curled around and in the back door.

Lunn salvaged pars with putts of 20 and seven feet at Nos. four and seven before tapping in a five-foot birdie putt at the seventh and turned at three under 33.

Meanwhile, Palyer parred the first 10 holes, but drew even when he made short birdie putts on 11 and 12 while Lunn was taking a bogey 5 on No. 15.

Lunn went to the finishing hole with a two-shot edge and watched from the fairway as Player knocked in a 12-foot birdie putt. Lunn then placed his third shot only six feet from the pin and made it for a birdie and a final round 69, leaving him at 275, 13-under, for the tournament which he also won in 1968.

Player closed with a 72—277 while Lou Graham was in third place alone at 278 after a closing 79.

Homero Blancas and Dave Hill deadlocked at 279 and Gay Brewer was alone at 280.

Jack Nicklaus, who matched the course record with a 64 Friday, skied to a 75-76 in the final two rounds and finished well back in the pack at 285.

Former Pitcher For A's Is Dead

DALLAS, Ga. (AP) — Robert Keller "Bob" Hasty, who pitched for the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League from 1919-1924, died at the age of 76 of an apparent heart attack Sunday morning.

Hasty posted an over-all 29-53 won-lost record during his six years with the A's.

Greenville's American Legion baseball team opened its season with a split of a doubleheader with Wilmington's Winter Park club.

The Greenville team won the opener, 8-4, but were set down, 1-0, on a one-hitter in the second contest. David Clemmons won the hurling duel against Stanley Cobb in that one.

The lone hit came in the fifth inning when Randy McKinney beat out an infield grounder.

Greenville didn't lack the hitting in the first game, however, cracking out nine hits.

Greenville got a threat going in the first, when Cobb singled and stole second. But it was the second before they finally cracked the ice.

Bill Lee led off the second with a walk and stole second. Johnny Barwick also walked. Robbie Cox followed with a single and when the ball got away from the fielder, Lee came home for the 1-0 lead.

In the third, Greenville added three more to take a 4-0 lead. Phil Blount singled and moved to second on the relay. Lee walked and Barwick reached on a fielder's choice. A wild pitch scored Blount, and Robbie Cox doubled to drive in both Lee and Barwick.

Winter Park put together a rally in the top of the fourth, scoring three to cut the lead to 4-3. Mike Pierick singled and moved up on an error. Bob Schupp walked and Church Bordeaux also walked, loading the bases. Kerry Hicks singled, driving in both Pierick and Schupp. Bordeaux scored when Clemmons got a hit.

Greenville came right back in the bottom of the inning to add two more, moving out to a 6-3 lead. Dale Manning singled and Cob got a hit. Blount got a single to right, driving in both runners. Wilmington added its final run in the fifth. Gene Bassard reached on an error and stole second. Schupp then singled to drive him across.

The two final Greenville runs came in the sixth. Manning walked and Cobb reached on a bunt single. Lee walked and Barwick reached on an error, scoring Manning. Cox then hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Cobb from third with the final run.

If there were plenty of hits in the first game, there was an absence of them in the second, at least as far as Greenville was concerned.

Clemmons, besides limited Greenville to just one hit, allowed only two other base runners, both on third inning walks.

Meanwhile, Winter Park kept the pressure on Cobb. They threatened in the first with a walk and a sacrifice. Then, they scored the game's only run in the second.

Dave Watkins reached on a fielder's choice and Gene Bussard walked. Clemmons then helped his own cause with a single to right, scoring Watkins.

Wilmington offered threats in the third, on two singles, in the fourth on a hit and an error; in the sixth on a hit and a walk.

Pepsi Tops Integon With Score Of 8-3

Pepsi-Cola gained an 8-3 victory over Integon Sunday in the Tar Heel Little League.

The loss was the third in as many days for Integon, which has yet to win a game this year.

Pepsi started the action in the first inning scoring a pair of runs. Mark Shank walked, as did MacDonald Avery. Steve McClanahan walked, loading the bases. Danny Carmen then reached on an error, allowing Shank and Avery to score giving Pepsi a 2-0 lead.

They pushed over three more runs in the top of the third. McClanahan walked, and moved to second on a passed ball. He stole third and John Coffman walked. Carmen hit into a fielder's choice, scoring McClanahan but getting Coffman at second. Carmen stole second and scored on Perry Worthington's single. Three passed balls allowed Worthington to come around with the third run of the frame. That gave Pepsi a 5-8 lead.

Integon scored its first run in the bottom of the third. Bruce Redgate walked and moved to third on a pair of passed balls. A walked brought him in.

It stayed 5-1 until the sixth, when Pepsi scored three more runs. Worthington doubled and stole third. A passed ball scored him. David McClanahan walked as did Avery. Michael Shank reached on an error, scoring both runners.

Integon came up with two more in the bottom of the sixth. Lindy Pollard walked and so did Bobby Wiggins. Jeff Miles singled to score both of them.

Pepsi did all the damage on just two hits off Redgate. Integon got only one off Worthington.

Would it surprise you to know how many ways you may be buying soybean products. Everyone likes fresh bread and bakery products. We expect the baker to provide us with freshness. Researchers look for better ways to retain freshness. One way they have found is with the use of soy proteins. Soy proteins can absorb two or three times their own weight of water. Their ability to retain moisture is especially helpful to bakers to retain freshness. Shoppers like freshness but not sogginess nor fat in doughnuts. The use of soy protein has found to help keep the doughnut batter from absorbing too much fat. What is more frustrating than pancakes sticking to the griddle? If you use pancake mix, you may find "soy protein" in the list of ingredients. It is there for the purpose of keeping the batter from sticking to the griddle. No one is against nutrition. Soybean flour in bread and cake flours raises the protein level. Of course, in your ready-prepared cereals, it can increase the nutritional level particularly of protein. If you buy refrigerated doughs, you probably buy soy flour. This flour helps assure their fresh flavor and texture during storage.

Soy flour is used in some pie crust mixes to give you a light, crisp crust with a nicely browned color and tender texture.

Of course most shoppers know that the imitation bacon bit are made of soybeans but they may not be aware that when they buy seasoning combinations, such as meat loaf seasonings, they may buy soybean protein as a carrier of the seasoning. Soybean oil is the popular one for making shortening, cooking and salad oil, and margarine. Soybean proteins can act as a binder and retainer of meat juices in sausages, hot dogs, luncheon meats. Soy protein products added to ground meat products reduce cooking losses because the soy product absorbs the water and fat that cook out of the meat. The cooked product retains more of the natural juices with soy extenders.

Plans for a coordinated 100-county effort to bring environmental quality problems and solutions into sharper focus are included in the long-range development program announced recently by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

The Extension Service will work through its staffs and advisory boards in each county in mounting the major educational effort in environmental quality.

Extension Director George Hyatt, Jr. outlined six areas in which priorities have been established: air pollution, water pollution, soil pollution, pesticides, solid waste and natural resources.

The main thrust of the effort will be directed at helping to better inform the people of North Carolina on the broad subject of environmental quality.

During the next five years, Tarheel citizens and their leaders will have to make a number of decisions that will influence the environmental quality of our state.

"We believe that all of us should be better informed before we are called upon to make these decisions," Dr. Hyatt said. "So we are committing the Extension Service to this challenge, to first, become better informed ourselves and then to help inform the people of North Carolina."

The Extension Service, with support from the Environmental Education Program for North Carolina, has already begun to work on environmental quality goals encompassed in its five-year program. Training sessions for county agents have been held and more are planned.

Major emphasis will be placed on helping the public gain a better understanding of the following:

- the problems of air pollution and abatement
- the sources and causes of water pollution
- the causes of soil pollution, including the dangers to the environment of unplanned development and soil misuse
- the importance of a positive attitude toward solid waste disposal on an individual, community and county basis
- the proper use, storage and disposal of pesticides and pesticide wastes, with particular emphasis on the importance of pesticides to farmers and non-farmers alike and the necessity to limit pesticide use to safe and practical levels, and
- the value of natural resources and how they may be used, maintained and renewed.

'Carolina Country' Tells Medical Need

RALEIGH — A magazine which tells the story of rural North Carolinians and their needs calls the East Carolina University School of Medicine "a modest answer to a great need."

Carolina Country, published in Raleigh and read monthly in more than 210,000 homes throughout the state, features an article with that title in its forthcoming June issue.

"In the face of a critical doctor shortage, particularly in North Carolina's small towns and rural communities," Carolina Country observes in an editor's note preceding the article, "the state's existing four-year medical schools are turning away hundreds of qualified applicants for lack of room."

"The tragic paradox points up the rationale for a medical school at East Carolina University in Greenville — not only to avoid the waste of talent but to assure North Carolinians of adequate health care."

The article was written at the request of Carolina Country's editor by Dr. Wallace R. Wooles, dean of the present one-year School of Medicine at East Carolina University.

Tobacco TIPS

By SAM J. WEEKS

Each year tobacco farmers face serious damage from hail, especially during the summer months. Quite often tobacco plants damaged by hail may look beyond recovery, but it is surprising what a sensible salvage program can do. There have been cases where tobacco that was waist high when damaged by hail yielded 60 to 70 percent of a normal crop, even when all of the stalks in the field were down, and after being declared a total loss.

The extent of recovery will depend upon the date of damage, size of plant when injured, severity of damage, the weather and growing conditions following the damage, and last but by no means least, the growers willingness and desire to grow a crop. Sufficient rainfall is highly important.

In a recovery program, there are four main steps: (1) clear out ruined leaves and broken-off parts of the plants, (2) cut stalks off at 6-8 inches from the ground,

(3) allow only one sucker to develop on each plant, and (4) control weeds and grass with two light cultivations. If these steps are followed, sucker growth tobacco of good cigarette quality can be produced. Go through the fields about seven to ten days after the stalk cutting and remove all but the strongest and best looking suckers on each plant.

The percentage of the crop that can be saved from a cut-off crop varies with the length of time the tobacco has been planted. The recovery program is most effective if hail damage comes with in six weeks on the time plants are set in the fields. If hail comes after six weeks, the plants have less time to recover and ripen, but the grower may

Gamblers Know House Will Win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Every gambler knows in his heart he can't beat the house, but what are the odds that any of the world's major casinos will finish a year with a profit?

Each game offered the patrons, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, gives the casino a mathematical expectancy of winning and there is small likelihood the house would lose money even for one day.

But over the course of a year the odds of ending up without a profit have been calculated at about 1 chance in 50 billion.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Monday, May 29, 1972—11 be able to pay for production costs by salvaging as late as six to eight weeks after planting.

If hail damage is only 40 to 50 percent, it is probably best not to cut the stalks at all. Broken leaves should be picked off and debris cleared away. Let the tobacco come into full flower and top very high.

These steps of a recovery program are fairly simple, and may enable the grower to realize substantial profits which would otherwise be lost. With the heaviest hail months just ahead, the grower could well benefit by keeping these recommendations in reserve against total loss.

MINT EDITION

Pocketfuls of pennies for foreign countries. And sculpted sterling medals that become collectors' items reposing on velvet mounts. All these, and more, jingle and tumble and roll in gleaming lines from the Franklin Mint—the world's largest private mint, which can process up to 50 million ounces of silver a year at its plant in Franklin Center, Pa. It's best known for its series of commemorative medals, usually struck in sterling silver, in limited editions. But it's also the only nongovernment mint in the U.S. to produce coin of the realm for other countries: its customers include Tunisia, the Bahamas and Panama. The size of the Mint's product varies from the tiniest coins to fine art medals and large plaques. While metals used generally range from bronze to silver to platinum, the official United Nations Peace Medal was struck by the Mint in gold for special awards by the UN Secretary-General, and in sterling silver for collectors. Shown here are some scenes of the Mint in operation.

The Worry Clinic Flight Marks Mental Illness

Ada is a coed with "Horse sense." For she wants to know how people can solve their own psychiatric problems without loading the taxpayers with more taxes for a zooming army of welfare and school psychiatrists.

By GEORGE W. Crane,
By GEORGE W. CRANE,
P.H.D., M.D.
Case T-589: Ada, aged 20, is a college senior.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "if you were to try to state the most common problem of psychiatric patients, what would it be?"
"Could you compress it in a single word?"
Psychiatry
Yes, and that word would be "Flight."
Even insanity is usually a form of flight from an apparently cruel, forbidding or apparently cruel, forbidding or fearsome environment.

Alcoholism is another classical evidence of flight.

So is suicide.
And the "rolling stone" personality.
Even Biblical Jonah illustrates it too, when he decided to flee from his duty of warning Nineveh.
In those ancient days, most people believed in the existence of many gods, such as the god of the sea (Neptune) and of war (Wars), etc.

And these gods were viewed, much like modern governors of our states, as wielding power only within their precise geographical boundaries.
So Noah decided to get out of Jehovah's territory by means of that fateful ride on a ship.

Naaman, the generalissimo of the Syrian emperor, also shows this same belief in the limited area of deities.
For, after Elisha had told him to dip himself in the Jordan River 7 times to rid himself of leprosy, Naaman made a unique request.
He asked permission to take back home to Syria two mules' burden of the soil of Palestine!
For he said that he realized Jehovah was the most powerful deity so he wanted to make a little mound in his garden of the soil from Jehovah's territory.
Then, when he wished to pray to Jehovah, he'd stand on Jehovah's imported soil and Jehovah would hear him!
This same notion even yet underlies the custom of bringing back souvenirs to America from Jerusalem and the Holy Land.

In freeing yourselves from abnormal forms of behavior, here are the rules that you can employ:
(1) Analyze your bugaboo till you pinpoint what it is, as well as when and how it started.
(2) Then verbalize your diagnosis, which means, put it into words, either spoken or written.
(3) Finally, resolve to fight the bugaboo more intelligently till you have freed yourselves from slavery thereto.
By this simple psychiatric formula, you can avoid lengthy sessions on an expensive psychiatric couch.
For the sooner you become your own psychiatrist and take over role of being Captain of your own fate, the sooner you will be free!
Alcoholics flee via liquor because of failure in business or in live, and especially threatened impotence.
Inability to win friends and be popular, also makes many others withdraw and develop delusions of persecution, which may drive them into mental sanitariums.
Sudden social demotions, as by defeat at the polls or being wiped out in a stock market crash, may cause the extreme flight via suicide.
To cure your complex, substitute "fight" for "flight."
But fight intelligently and constructively!

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(c 1972: By The Chicago Tribune)
BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A ♠K ♠542 ♠973 ♠10654
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ Pass
4 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Five diamonds. Partner obviously has a fine diamond suit for which our three small will be adequate support. On the other hand, his clubs are only four in number and a bad break there might make five clubs an unplayable contract. An alternative call is four spades, but that might be a little drastic with such a weak holding in the minors.

Q. 2—Neither vulnerable, you hold:
♠10643 ♠K10 ♠AKQ 63475
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Five spades. Partner has shown a big hand with a solid spade suit. There should be slam if the opponents are unable to grab a couple of quick tricks. Your leap over game will indicate to partner that he needs controls in the unbid suits.

Q. 3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q10963 ♠QJ63 ♠J953
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid?
A—Four spades. This bid serves a twofold purpose. The partner could muster a mere overall, your hands could fit well enough to make the contract. Furthermore, should the hand belong to the opposition, your bid makes it extremely difficult for them to get together.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKJ ♠AJ1083 ♠2 ♠K984
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Two clubs. The temptation is to raise spades immediately. However, a single raise would be inadequate, and a double raise should be avoided when holding only three trumps, even such good ones as these. The compromise choice is a temporizing bid of two clubs intending to raise spades subsequently.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ107654 ♠J82 ♠Q63
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

What do you bid?
A—Four hearts. Your hand has great playing strength but virtually no defense, so every effort should be exerted to prevent the opponents from getting together. This is the same response you would have made if East had not entered the auction.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ10753 ♠A862 ♠7 ♠45
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass Pass
2 ♠ 3 ♠ 3 ♠ 4 ♠
4 ♠ 5 ♠ Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Five hearts. This hand will be a disappointment defensively, but, if your partner has merely five hearts to the king-queen, you will be an outstanding favorite to make five hearts.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ863 ♠4 ♠J3 ♠109865
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♠ Pass
3 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Pass. You have told your story. If partner had a fit with either of your suits or if he did not have hearts adequately controlled, he would not have persisted with no trump.

Q. 8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J6 ♠93 ♠AQ108642 ♠85
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass 1 NT Dble. ?

What do you bid?
A—Three no trump. This may seem a bit unusual, but your hand is a reasonable prospect to produce seven tricks which your partner will certainly be able to fill out to nine. Furthermore, it is possible the opponents will have a good save in one of the major suits against which this bid may serve as an effective barricade.

End Of A Love Story For Edward, Duke Of Windsor

ON THE PROWL — A column of South Vietnamese tanks patrols a road on the outskirts of the central highlands city of Kontum to guard against a North Vietnamese attack. Troops wait on roadside to fan out on patrol. (AP Wirephoto)

LONDON (AP) — The long exile of the Duke of Windsor ends Wednesday when his body is flown home for burial on the grounds of Windsor Castle.

The former King Edward VIII, who gave up the British throne on Dec. 11, 1936, to marry an American divorcee, died an hour before dawn Sunday at his home in Paris. He was 77, and his wife was at his side, holding his hand, after an all-night vigil.

The Windsors had no children. The duke had been in failing health for months, and there were reports he had cancer of the throat. When his niece, Queen Elizabeth II visited him at his home 10 days before he died, he was unable to rise from his chair.

The duke long ago arranged with his brother and successor, the late King George VI, that he would be buried at Frogmore, the effigy-encrusted mausoleum half a mile from Windsor Castle. Queen Victoria and her consort, Prince Albert, are buried there, and so is one of the duke's brothers, the Duke of Kent, who was killed in World War II.

Queen Elizabeth ordered a week of national mourning until June 5, the day of the funeral. She arranged for the body to be flown back to Britain in a Royal Air Force transport.

The duke will lie in state in St. George's Chapel, at Windsor Castle, on Friday and Saturday. Thousands are expected to file past to pay their last respects.

The duke, sensitive to royal protocol and the scandal his marriage caused in his homeland, asked for a private funeral.

The duchess, now 75, will accompany the duke's body on its hold on the American public, and to the end they remained the most sought after guests by American hostesses.

As Edward VIII, he succeeded his father on Jan. 21, 1936, reigned for 327 days and was never crowned. His abdication was unprecedented in the 1,000-year-old history of the British monarchy.

The king's choice was Mrs. Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson, wife of a London shipbroker. She was considered unsuitable to share the throne because she was a commoner and a divorcee.

The king abdicated on Dec. 11, 1936, after a farewell broadcast in which he said he could not go on without "the woman I love." Romantics around the world were in tears. Others thought he had failed to live up to his royal obligations.

He became the Duke of Windsor, while his brother the Duke of York became King George VI. Five months later, on June 3, 1937, Windsor and Mrs. Simpson were married in France. From that day, they were rarely separated.

Week Of No Cuts

SAIGON (AP) — For the first time in 16 months, there was no reduction in U.S. troop strength in Vietnam last week.

The U.S. Command said today that U.S. forces in the country last Thursday totaled 64,800 men the same as the Thursday before.

While Army strength dropped 500 men and Air Force personnel by 100, an influx of U.S. Marine fighter-bombers to counter the North Vietnamese offensive increased Marine strength 600, balancing the cuts in the Army and Air Force.

The weekly strength summary gave this breakdown: Army 43,000; Air Force 16,500; Navy 2,800; Marines 2,400; Coast Guard 100.

U.S. military sources said there was no freeze on reductions because of the offensive. They said the U.S. Command would meet or beat President Nixon's target of a 49,000-man force by July 1.

In addition to 64,800 U.S. troops in the country, 41,000 Navy men are aboard ships operating off the coast an estimated 35,000 U.S. Air Force personnel are at bases in Thailand supporting the war effort.

last journey home. The Queen, in a final gesture of reconciliation, invited the duchess to stay at Buckingham Palace for the first time.

These arrangements were not enough for some Britons who felt the former king should be honored by lying in state in Westminster Hall, where England's monarchs are traditionally laid out for public mourning.

Windsor had become a favorite of the American public as the affable, hard-hitting, pleasure-loving Prince of Wales and globe-trotting salesman of the British Empire. His abdication for the love of a divorced American woman enhanced his Family Gets Volunteers

CHICAGO (AP) — Rudolph Jordan and his family began having second thoughts about moving into their newly purchased home in an all-white neighborhood after vandals smashed 32 windows in the house last week, splashed paint on draperies and rugs and attempted to burn down the garage.

But when moving day came this weekend, the Jordans found they had more offers of help than they could use.

Many of the South Side neighborhood's white residents still weren't speaking to the Jordans, but their children came over to play with the two Jordan youngsters.

And a few adults along with members of an interracial group called Zealous Efforts for Better Racial Attitudes (ZEBRA), offered to help clean up the broken glass and repaint the house.

The volunteers rolled up the dining and living room rugs and painted the living room a bright gold.

A teen-age group from a Chicago suburb arrived with gardening tools and cut and manicured the front and back lawns.

And when the furniture arrived, everyone dropped what he was doing to help carry it into the house past the Chicago policeman keeping a 24-hour-a-day watch in a squad car parked across the street.

Mrs. Jordan, who said she was brought up not to worry about the color of her skin, said the neighborhood hostility appears to have waned.

"I was beginning to wonder after what happened here last Tuesday night," she said, "but now it's nice to know there are still people who care."

Correta Scolds Women's Lib

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — The women's liberation movement is spending too much time talking sex and marital contracts, the widow of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. says.

Coretta King told graduates of Goucher College Sunday that the movement has become "marred by elitism" and lacks appeal for black working class women.

"They spend too much time talking about sex and marital contracts and not enough about tokenism of both black and white women and equal pay for equal work," she declared at commencement ceremonies for the women's liberal arts school.

THE THINKING REPUBLICAN'S MAN ...

You can't smile and handshake your way out of the kind of problems we've got in North Carolina today. You've got to think them through—and that takes a lifetime of getting ready.

Think about your children. About their schools. Their college. Their job future. Will there be a place for them? Jim Holshouser has been endorsed for the Republican nomination by the Political Action Committee for Education (PACE), the political arm of the North Carolina Association of Educators. He helped fashion the restructuring of Higher Education in the 1971 General Assembly and has the respect of the leaders of higher education in our state. He is pledged to strengthen career education in the public schools for the 80 per cent who don't go on to college.

Think about the drug crisis. The once distant problem of narcotics in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles is now a menace to our children in Fayetteville, Chapel Hill and Charlotte. Jim Holshouser introduced one of the most comprehensive drug bills in the nation during the 1971 General Assembly. He is pledged to a total war against the poison peddlers.

Think about state reorganization. The next governor of North Carolina will have to carry out the bulk of the state governments reorganization program—a consolidation of over 300 departments and agencies into fewer than 25. ~~Mr. Holshouser has been in on reorganization from the beginning . . . and he can make it work.~~

Think about taxes. Jim Holshouser led the fight against the soft drink tax and the tobacco tax in the 1969 General Assembly. He fought against the gas tax increase in 1969. Think about the man who says he can accomplish his programs without a tax increase. It's Jim Holshouser.

Think about the Governorship. Its powers and its responsibilities. The range of things a Governor has to think about, know about. Who can best deal with the details of state government and administer the laws of North Carolina fairly and equally for all? A man who has worked in the General Assembly for eight years to pass constructive laws . . . Jim Holshouser.

Think about the one man who is best qualified for that office. With the sure hand, the balanced judgement, the combination of seasoned experience and youthful vigor. The one Republican who gained his perspective on the Governorship from eight years of leadership in the North Carolina House of Representatives. Jim Holshouser is better prepared for the Governorship than any other Republican challenger in our lifetime. Let's make sure our first Republican governor in this century is not our last.

Holshouser ...

Hunt Raleigh Man For Shooting State Trooper

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — State, local and county police are searching for a 22-year-old Raleigh Negro accused of shooting and wounding a state trooper Sunday during a scuffle after being arrested.

Patrol Capt. John Jenkins said trooper Donnie E. Harrison, 26, was taken to Wake Memorial Hospital where he was reported in satisfactory condition. He was shot in the right hand and suffered abrasions on his head and face.

Jenkins said Charles A. Chavis was being sought on charges of assault with a deadly weapon and driving drunk. The officer said a Negro man riding with Chavis, John McIntosh, 46, of Raleigh, was apprehended Sunday night after fleeing the scene. He had been arrested by Harrison on a charge of being drunk.

Jenkins said Harrison stopped the car in a black residential area southeast of Raleigh. After arresting Chavis and putting him in the patrol car, Jenkins said, the trooper went to get McIntosh.

The patrol captain said Chavis promptly got out of the patrol car and was headed back to his car when the trooper got him by the arm. Jenkins said Chavis struck Harrison with his fist and McIntosh grabbed the officer.

The trooper broke loose and got hold of Chavis, Jenkins said. They fell to the pavement and in the scuffle the man got the officer's revolver, a .357 magnum, Jenkins said. Harrison had his hand on the barrel of the revolver when he was shot.

Jenkins said McIntosh ran while the struggle was in progress. The wounded officer got up and ran to his car where he radioed for help. Jenkins said Chavis fled with the officer's pistol.

No Charges In Sunday Accident

No charges were reported by police who investigated a two-vehicle collision at the intersection of N.C. 11-U.S. 13 and the Airport Road about 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

Officers identified drivers of the vehicles involved in the mishap as Hilda Moses Thompson, 25, of Kinston and Clinton Earl Elbert, 23, of Winterville.

Damage to the Thompson car was placed at $200 while damage to the Elbert auto was estimated at $450.

No injuries were reported.
