

The senator knows full well that we who have pushed for East Carolina University have had little or no support for our endeavors from Guilford County, the home of Sen. Rare For Greenville: Hindu Wedding Ceremony Performed Here

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor
The love story of Harshad Padia and Mitsu Shah had a slight delay because he was late in arriving for their Tuesday wedding ceremony. Traveling by airplane from Bombay, India, Padia was scheduled to arrive at the Raleigh-Durham Airport Monday night and travel on to Greenville for the wedding.

However, due to the plane's delay, he didn't arrive in North Carolina until Tuesday morning. This is Padia's first trip to the United States which he said "was combining his marriage to Mitsu with a business trip." Mitsu, also of Bombay, is a graduate student at East Carolina University and is studying elementary education. She has been in Greenville for six months and plans to remain here for another six months, with her new husband, while she completes her education. Their Hindu marriage ceremony was conducted by Pandit Ram Patwardhan of New York City, who traveled here for the wedding. Arriving at the Methodist Student Center here, Padia was greeted by Mrs. Praful Shah of Portsmouth, Va., and the traditions of the ceremony were begun. Symbolizing something good, she placed a red substance and rice on his forehead. The first meeting of Harshad and Mitsu was signified by their exchange of white, yellow and pink daisy garlands. For the meeting, the bride was wearing a traditional wedding sari of white delicately embossed with red and gold designs, which was a gift of her family. The exchange of garlands was witnessed by the guests in attendance at the wedding. For her marriage ceremony, Mitsu covered her white sari with a red sari, patterned with gold designs, a gift of the bridegroom's family.

Pandit Ram Patwardhan conducted the very ancient ceremony, which was compiled from the Vedas—the Hindu sacred books—about 5,000 years ago, in the Sanskrit language, giving explanations in English at various stages.

The ceremony began with the bride couple again exchanging garlands. Pandit Patwardhan gave the invocation hymns, offering prayers to the Supreme Power, to other Divine and semi-Divine powers and to the sacred waters of various rivers and oceans. The couple were blessed by the wedding guests, who threw rice at them.

This was followed by invocations and offerings to the forces of wisdom and auspiciousness, then prayers to various planets. The wedding guests gave verbal blessings to the bride and bridegroom, led by Pandit Patwardhan.

The Kanya-dana, bride giving ceremony, is when the father of the bride receives the promise of the bridegroom that he (bridegroom) would allow the freedoms of his wife in spiritual and religious pursuits.

The Akshataropanam, which is the exchange of broad objectives of marriage between the couple followed—re: spiritual pursuits, progeny, ideals, success in life, etc.

Pandit Patwardhan lit the fire for the VIVAHA-HOMA, ceremony before the sacred Fire as witness. Pandit explained, "Before the Lord of Fire as witness, the ceremony is conducted since the couple have to accept not only the responsibility to each other but wider responsibilities to life—towards the human community in general and towards the universe at large. Hence the wedding has to be solemnized before the Lord of Fire—the symbol of Light and Power—as witness to the ceremony. This was followed by invocations and offerings to the Lord of Fire." He continued, "The couple then takes several rounds around the Fire expressing the ruling thought of their married life—love and happy life."

The ceremony of the seven steps, or SAPTA-PADI, was carried out by the bride and bridegroom as they took seven steps near the Fire representing seven principles—ideals, strength, wealth, happiness, children, long life and spiritually well-integrated life.

The bridegroom then introduced the bride to all people assembled as his wife and they seek their blessings. Blessings were then offered by the priest and the invited guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Shah of Portsmouth, the Rev. and John Miller and son, Benjamin, of Greenville represented the families of the bride couple.

The Rev. Miller, Presbyterian campus minister for East Carolina University, who has been a friend of Mitsu since her arrival here, assisted her with the wedding arrangements. Featuring Indian cuisine, an informal reception followed the ceremony.

In telling of their romance, Mitsu said, "Harshad and I knew each other, but the wedding was arranged by our families."

IN A HINDU WEDDING CEREMONY... performed here yesterday, Harshad Padia and Mitsu Shah of Bombay, India, exchanged vows.

Lobbyist Tells What Blind Accomplish

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Lynda Bardis is a totally blind professional lobbyist who likes to go to movies and cook elaborate gourmet dinners for friends.

She says her biggest problem in work is not getting around to visit all of the lawmakers she must contact, or even keeping up with the large volume of written material that goes with her job.

Instead, it is getting people to think of the blind as normal people who do many things sighted people do, and not as people to be "protected."

She said she doesn't mind people laughing when she talks enthusiastically about the latest motion picture or television show, but she can't stand it when they try to avoid using words such as "see," "watch" and "look" around her.

"Those are natural words. Did you see 'The French Connection'?" I did. What other way is there to put it?" Miss Bardis asked.

"It bothers me when people avoid those words. It's part of that whole feeling, 'You must be unhappy. It must be tough. You must have a hard time.' 'That's not true. I like my job very much. I'm very pleased with it. There are a lot of other things I do, too, that are just as enjoyable for me as for a sighted person.'"

She was raised in Berkeley and earned a master's degree in French at the University of California. She lost her sight gradually during her childhood due to glaucoma. She said she became totally blind, losing her last sight perception, at age 14.

Miss Bardis, 29, started her lobbying career nearly four years ago representing the California Council of the Blind. Four months ago she became principal California lobbyist for the National Association of Social Workers.

"I'm still very interested in legislation concerning the blind, of course. But I have been wanting to get out of work for the blind—partially because you get stereotyped and partially because it's limited."

"Now I can work in the whole field of social work—health care, mental health, welfare, social services, drug addiction, housing, corrections, a whole range of human problems," she said.

Her two principal jobs are to keep the 5,000 California members of her association informed on state legislation affecting them and to work for passage or amendments to about 30 specific bills in the current legislative session.

Doing that requires having a lot of material read to her and a great deal of time going from office to office and hearing room to hearing room in the Capitol and other state office buildings, Miss Bardis said. But neither is a great problem, she added.

Many special problems of the blind are caused by people who underestimate what the blind can do, Miss Bardis said. She said braille cookbooks contain few complex recipes and she has to have most recipes she uses copied into braille herself.

Friends are sometimes hesitant to invite her to things she specially likes, such as visits to old mining towns or movies and plays.

"I'm very handy to take to a movie. I can sit in the front or back, or behind a post. People are surprised how much a blind person can get out of a movie. You can tell when the scene changes by the background music and other sounds," she said.

"When I got a new television set, I gave my old one to a blind girlfriend. When we were bringing it in, her landlady asked me, didn't I know my friend was blind. I told her I was too."

All-Male School To Accept Girls

PARIS (WNS) — Women's Lib in French education: The Ecole Polytechnique, the Napoleonic all-male school for the nation's most elite families, has agreed to accept girl students. One catch: they must pass the physical test that includes shot put, high jump, broad jump, 150-meter dash and 60-meter sprint. Swimming and retrieving objects from water six feet deep are also required, but fencing and judo are optional. As special concession, girls will be permitted to wear skirts instead of trousers. Boys must stick with trousers. Most male students approve the change but doubt that it will take place in the desired manner. As a young spokesman put it, "How feminine will a girl be who can be superior in all those tests? And if she passes them, she'll be the dominating type, an uninteresting breed in either sex."

An Insane Act; A Very Sad Day

The killing of three people and injury to others in a baffling shooting at Raleigh's North Hills Shopping Center Monday is another tragedy of our times.

A berserk rifleman sprayed the parking area with bullets just as Sen. Everett Jordan was campaigning at the shopping center. It appeared, at first to be another assassination attempt on a major political candidate; however authorities feel that the mass shooting and the senator's appearance were coincidental.

Nevertheless, if the gunman just happened to show up at the shopping center as Sen. Jordan began his campaigning, it is likely that the crowd attracted to the candidate drew the gunman's attention. It may be for this reason that so many persons were killed and injured.

It was most fortunate that Sen. Jordan was not among the victims of the bullets, but it is obvious his life was in great danger for the moment. He had apparently just moved into an entrance to the big shopping center. His press secretary, Wes Hayden was struck down with a bullet in the back.

The North Hills shooting which left three dead and seven injured was an insane act. How such acts can be prevented is a puzzle which no one has solved. When a man is crazed enough to open fire on innocent people there appears no way to anticipate his act and take steps to prevent it.

The Monday shooting was a tragedy for the people involved and their families and friends. It was a sad day for our state. We can only express thanks that even more people were not killed and hope for the full recovery of those who were injured.

Old Doctrine Badly Shaken

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Reverberations from an armory explosion 32 months ago are shaking the doctrine of governmental immunity for North Carolina municipalities.

The State Supreme Court ruled last month that claims exceeding $7 million against the city of Winston-Salem as

Landfill Gas Blamed

The Winston-Salem armory explosion, in which three died and several were permanently injured, was linked to methane gas escaping from a city garbage landfill.

In Forsyth Superior Court, Judge Harvey A. Lupton accepted the city's argument that the landfill was a governmental function and entered a summary judgment dismissing the actions.

The State Supreme Court reversed that decision. It said the fact that Winston-Salem contracted with Forsyth County to dispose of county garbage at the landfill for a fee gave the city advantages inuring to its "corporate benefit or pecuniary profit."

Therefore, it ruled, a proprietary function was involved.

In a New Bern case last fall, the high court affirmed the doctrine of governmental immunity and said any repeal or modification would have to come from the General Assembly.

That case involved the death of a 16-year-old boy who accidentally touched the guy wire to a street light pole. The court said street lighting was a necessary governmental function and thus covered with immunity.

Finer Line Drawn

Some legal minds saw the new ruling as an indication that the court will draw a finer line in the definition of those functions in the performance of which a municipality may claim immunity.

Associate Justice Joseph Branch, author of the opinion, said the courts are at a crossroads in the application of the various rules of governmental immunity.

"We again decline to abrogate the firmly embedded rule of governmental immunity," Justice Branch wrote.

"However, we recognize merit in the modern tendency to restrict rather than to extend the application of governmental immunity. This trend is based, inter alia, on the large expansion of municipal activities, the availability of liability insurance, and the plain injustice of denying relief to an individual injured by the wrongdoing of a municipality."

"A corollary to the tendency of modern authorities to restrict rather than to extend the application of governmental immunity is the rule that in cases of doubtful liability application of the rule should be resolved against the municipality."

a result of the blast must to trial.

The suits brought on behalf of nine National Guardsmen killed or injured in the September, 1969, disaster had been dismissed in Forsyth Superior Court on the city's plea of immunity. Now they must be tried before a jury on the issue of negligence.

Aside from the staggering amount of claims involved, the case is a pivotal one because it raises again the question of the 20th century validity of the feudal doctrine of sovereign immunity as a bar to relief for a citizen injured by a municipality's wrongful acts.

Tar Heel municipal officials are aware of the implications of the case. They are studying the impact it may have on their operations, and preparing recommendations for the 1973 legislature.

Positive Reaction Promised

An affirmative approach will be taken, said Larry Ford, legal counsel for the N.C. Association of Municipalities. "We hope to take the initiative in proposing a modification of the doctrine which will protect both citizens and their city governments," he explained.

The 1971 General Assembly defeated legislation to void the immunity concept altogether, as some 15 states have done since 1957. Then it rejected a move, supported by the League, to put cities and towns under the State Tort Claims Act with a $50,000 limit on liability. In the final days of the session, the lawmakers also refused to set up a study commission on the subject.

A city's liability hinges on whether the injury resulted from a municipal activity defined as a governmental function to serve the public, or a proprietary function for its corporate benefit.

Helpful Change Made For Peanut Growers

It is good news that the deadline for planting peanuts to qualify for Federal Crop Insurance coverage has been extended.

Rep. Walter Jones announced that the deadline has been moved from May 25 to June 10. It applied to Pitt, Martin, Washington, Edgecombe, Bertie, Gates, Chow, Halifax, Northampton, Bladen and Hertford Counties.

The reason was because of heavy rains in this area which has delayed planting of the 1972 crop.

The change should be helpful to peanut growers who have had their troubles with the weather recently.

No Choice But Hard Attacks

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

ANAHEIM, Cal. — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, kicking and screaming in backstage protest against political tactics foreign to him, has been pulled into a great debate inside the Democratic party with implications well beyond this year's Presidential nomination.

Until last Thursday noon, there were residual signs of reluctance by Humphrey to actually deliver the hard attack against Sen. George McGovern that Humphrey's lieutenants see as his only chance in the climactic June 6 California primary. But addressing the non-partisan Orange County Forum here, Humphrey issued his most unequivocal broadside yet against McGovern as a unilateral disarmer whose radical positions would endanger the nation.

Whether these attacks can be magnified sufficiently by the televised Humphrey-McGovern "debates" to overhaul McGovern is doubtful. What cannot be doubted is that Humphrey's last-ditch attack has stripped bare the deep schism within the Democratic party over the basic world role of the United States.

Humphrey and McGovern reflect that schism. Humphrey from the start recognized the gap on military and diplomatic questions between him and his former next-door neighbor. To Humphrey, McGovern's immense defense cutback would cripple this country in world affairs.

But Humphrey said nothing about McGovern's largely unpublicized views, believing McGovern had no chance to be nominated anyway. Even after McGovern emerged as a viable candidate, Humphrey held back rather than offend the party's left wing. Humphrey, sadly mistaken, felt McGovern's extreme views would be probed by the national media.

Beyond those practical considerations, Humphrey simply lacks the stomach for intraparty hatchet work. Even after agreeing to anti-McGovern campaign tactics in California, Humphrey bracketed his criticism with references to "my dear friend, George McGovern" — generating anguished protests from Humphrey's advisers. The impact of one 30-second television commercial attack on McGovern was dulled by such a reference; the commercial is being pulled off the air.

After a week in California, Humphrey was still balking. On a radio call-in program last Wednesday night, Humphrey stressed how much he like George McGovern. On Thursday morning, Humphrey devoted barely two sentences criticizing McGovern's positions during a 45-minute television interview. When Humphrey told the interviewer he opposes treating marijuana the same as alcohol, his aides winced because he did not mention McGovern had stated the opposite view.

Humphrey obviously prefers campaigning as an old-fashioned programmatic liberal, plugging his new national development bank scheme which his advisers privately view as a political null. But Humphrey understands such a campaign would be a non-issue beauty contest tailored for McGovern.

So, on Thursday noon in Anaheim, Humphrey (Continued on page 8)

WASHINGTON—It's time for those enlightening, inspiring commencement speeches again. Most students are willing to sit through them just so they can get their diplomas. What isn't known is that what commencement speakers are saying and what they're thinking are quite different: "My fellow graduates. 'It is indeed a great pleasure for me to be here on what is probably the most important day of your lives.' (If it weren't for this damn honorary degree, I could have been playing golf this afternoon.)

"I know these are troubled times for all of us. I am troubled, you are troubled, we are troubled, they are troubled. Everyone is troubled." (I wish they wouldn't sit the coeds in the first row with their legs sticking out of their gowns. It's hard to concentrate.)

"The problem is not that we are troubled, but what we can do about it. Certainly you can throw your hands in the air and say, 'It's hopeless.' Or you can say, 'Give us your troubles and let us solve them for you.'"

(I wonder if any of the wire services will ask for copies of my speech.)

"I would be the first one to admit that our generation has not succeeded in conquering the great issues of the day—pollution, poverty, racism, war and hunger."

(At least they know I've got humility.) "But we have started the fight. You must pick up the weapons that we have left on the battlefield and continue the struggle. The journey of a thousand miles begins with one step."

Strength For Today

A HUMBLE MAN MADE GREAT

What would Simon Peter have thought as he sat in his fishing boat on the Sea of Galilee casting a net into the water if someone had come to him and said, "Peter, in future generations you will be one of the two or three most famous characters of history. The greatest church in the world will be built over your grave. Men will have a regard for you that they have for almost no one else who has ever lived." If anyone had said this to Peter can we suppose that the humble fisherman would have regarded him with anything but disdain and incredulity?

Yet all these things have happened. One day Jesus, standing on the shore, had called to Peter as he sat in his fishing boat and had said,

"Come ye after me and I will make you a fisher of men." Peter left his nets to follow the unknown teacher. Things went pretty hard for the fisherman the rest of his life. He had great honor among the little group of Christians who regarded him as their leader, but he had no honor at all among the influential and learned people of his day. Finally, he suffered martyrdom.

Two thousand years have passed, and Peter is enshrined today in the hearts of millions. The point of the story is that Christ made a world figure out of a very humble man. He stepped up his personality, influence and talents to inconceivable heights. And what He did for Peter He does in a measure for all of us if we but trust Him and follow Him.

Will Bolster Charter Flights

By MILES A. SMITH

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two giants of the airlines industry, Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines, plan to beef up their charter flight services this fall and move in against competing supplemental lines that specialize in the charter business.

The larger scheduled airlines, particularly Pan American, have complained frequently about the inroads made on their traffic by the supplemental carriers offering low-cost trips.

In charter flights the aircraft has to empty seats. Assured of a full payload, the carrier can afford to reduce fares for a group of passengers.

Under the group principle, the passengers must be people with an "affinity," as the government rules express it. Their affinity may be stamp collecting, gardening, the fact that they work for the same company, or that they belong to the same fraternal order, church group or civic body.

They, their spouses and children sign up as a group, filling up the airplane. (A Boeing 707 has 179 seats.)

Scheduled U.S. airlines are upset not only about their domestic competitors in the charter field, but also the foreign flag charter lines. American executives, speaking off the cuff, complain some of the foreign operators are not too careful about the rules for the eligibility of passengers.

Although not all travelers are aware of it, TWA and Pan Am already get a small percentage of their revenues from charter service.

TWA, whose total annual revenues are about $1.3 billion to $1.4 billion, has been keeping six or seven aircraft in charter-only operation. Last year its charter revenues were $20 million, it is aiming for more than $30 million this year, and more than $40 million in 1973.

Pan Am, whose total annual revenues are more than $1 billion, has been using seven aircraft in charter service, and has goals similar to TWA's for its charter revenues.

Pan Am plans to raise its charter fleet to 10 planes in November; then expand further to meet what it expects to be a rising demand. It says it will be able to tap its Boeing 747 jumbo jets for duty.

TWA will get its fleet up to 11 by October—including one 747—and to 13 by next spring.

All this will mean more competition for the supplemental lines specializing in charter flights. The National Air Carriers Association reports eight such American carriers in active service at present. The largest, World Airways, operates 17 aircraft.

The scheduled airlines claim their charter flights have advantages over those of the nonscheduled carriers—the same flight crews, maintenance crews and terminal facilities that are used by regular flights; the use of a multiplicity of airline officers here and abroad; and group rate arrangements for sightseeing, car rentals and hotels.

Pan Am's rates for charter groups next fall will be "as little as $135 round trip" for London, $142 for Paris, $167 for Rome and "as little as $122 round trip" for Lisbon. Dan A. Colussy, vice president for marketing development at Pan Am, said these rates are slightly above the rates offered by the supplemental carriers, but he declared they were justified because of Pan Am's better service.

Belfast Police Station, Army Post Damaged By Terror Bomb

BELFAST (AP) — A bomb blast damaged the heavily sandbagged Springfield Road police station and army command post in Belfast Tuesday night, killing one British soldier and wounding four other soldiers and two civilians. A sniper killed another British soldier on patrol during the night. The bombing capped a day of violent reaction by the Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army to the cease-fire ordered by the rival Official faction. About 40 young gunmen were reported to have switched from the Officials to the Provisional so they could keep fighting.

Chief of Staff Sean MacStiofain of the Provisionals ordered his rebel guerrillas to continue their bomb and bullet campaign despite the truce the Officials announced Monday night.

In addition to the two soldiers, a 12-year-old girl shot on Sunday died during the night, raising the toll in three years of communal warfare in Northern Ireland to at least 352 dead.

The Louisiana Purchase from France was conducted April 30, 1803.

The child had been buying candy and was hit by a guerrilla who apparently was aiming at a policeman.

Guerrillas also bombed a beer bottling plant in Belfast, causing $520,000 damage; a police station at Dungiven, County Tyrone, and a garage at Claudy, County Londonderry.

Protestant militants planning an anti-IRA march in Londonderry Saturday announced they would defy the British government order that they keep away from the center of the city and adjoining Roman Catholic sections.

Last weekend thousands of masked, uniformed Protestants paraded through Belfast in military formation and British officials fear such a demonstration in Londonderry—where the

Post-Summit Worries Possible For Both Sides

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The superpower summitry has demonstrated how much the national interests of the two giants can mesh despite all the hostility. Now it's time for the allies of both to assess what happened and even worry about it.

Moscow may have some new difficulty with its Asian friends, and the Americans may run into some misgivings in Western Europe.

North Vietnam has made its anger plain, having noted the lack of Soviet enthusiasm for breaking through the U.S. mining of North Vietnamese ports. The Communist rulers of North Korea seem annoyed and fidgety, as if U.S.-Soviet detente might damage their chances for unification with South Korea on their own terms.

President Nixon and Leonid Brezhnev were meeting in Moscow, the official North Korean press was ostentatiously extolling the thoughts of "the great leader of the Chinese people Mao Tse-tung," whose thoughts at present are anathema to the Kremlin. Are the North Koreans getting some sort of message across?

If the Soviet Union's allies feel a bit uneasy about the summit, despite assurances that no third nation's interests would be sacrificed, how about the European allies of the United States?

Nixon now agrees with Brezhnev that there should be such a conference.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, leader of the drive for normal relations with the Soviet bloc, has expressed fervent hope that any Soviet-American agreement on reduction of troops in Europe will not bring "any military disadvantage to either side."

Does this hint a worry that the Americans might reduce their forces too much and make the influence of the neighboring Soviet colossus overwhelming?

of the European security conference, so they might deal more effectively with the two giants.

The summit has shown both camps that the political temperature of the world can be changed radically when, and probably only if, the two superpowers want it to change and expect to profit thereby.

When the Americans and Russians worried about unrestricted nuclear testing, they could agree to limit it. When they worried about proliferation of nuclear weapons, they could forge an accord. They now have been able to move forward on the question of limiting strategic weapons. They can plan collaboration in space, in the fields of health and rescue of the environment. They can agree to take special pains to avoid dangerous confrontations. These agreements came because both eagerly wanted them.

No informed persons in East or West will now run out and strike up the band in celebration of the cold war's end. It takes only casual reading of the Soviet press to dispel the notion that peace has broken out suddenly. The word still is that there can be "no ideological conciliation," and there remains a large measure of mutual suspicion between the two

That will not necessarily ease the worries of the junior partners. The cold war rhetoric in all probability will be muted, with salubrious results for the world's nerves, but there is likely to be some restiveness among the allies on both sides as they fret about what superpower collaboration can mean to them individually and collectively.

An Overhaul For Old Ironsides

BOSTON (AP) — When the summer of heavy sightseeing is over, Old Ironsides will get more than her usual rest. She's scheduled for an overhaul in drydock this fall.

The veteran of the War of 1812, officially known as the USS Constitution, will go only to next pier at the Charlestown Naval Yard for the work which is expected to take 1½ to two years, according to her skipper, Capt. Jack McKinnon. The public will not be able to go on board during the work but will be able to view the ship from a special platform, and a museum in the yard will display artifacts from it.

Price Going Up On Butterfly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of butterfly is going up.

The Price Commission granted Stacy Fabrics Corp. permission Tuesday to raise prices on the product by an average of 13.3 per cent.

Butterfly, the commission explained, is polyester lining for women's garments.

The North Vietnamese seem to suspect the Soviet leaders of pursuing purely national interests at the expense of Hanoi's long and costly war effort and even of threatening to force them to review their options.

As for North Korea, while

The Russians campaigned long and ardently for U.S. acceptance of the idea of a European security conference that would lead to renunciation of force and recognition of all existing frontiers. President

What sort of impact might the summit agreements have on the expanded European Economic Community? Possibly the 10 nations may feel an urge for more political collaboration, at least to the extent of coordinating their views in advance

Report One Raleigh Shooting Victim Deteriorating

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — One of the victims of Monday's shooting incident at a Raleigh shopping center was listed in delivered a hard-line speech prepared by two notably non-radical Democratic lawyers: Dr. Max Kampelman of Washington, Humphrey's long-time confidant, and Lloyd Hand of Los Angeles, the ex-LBJ aide.

Characteristically, Humphrey interspersed prepared anti-McGovern lines with ad-libbed pro-Humphrey lines. But McGovern's massive defense cutbacks, reductions... dangerous to our national self-interest." In an impromptu peroration, Humphrey declared: "I have no intention of seeking the Presidency at the expense of national security or at the expense of preposterous budget proposals."

Answering a question, Humphrey revealed even more sharply the gap between his and McGovern's world view. To him, the Soviet arms buildup shows the Kremlin is "building a massive sphere of influence around the world." As for Soviet aggressive intentions, Humphrey added: "Maybe I'm old hat, but the best way to prevent that is to be strong enough to earn their respect."

That view is anathema to the McGovern wing of the party. But McGovern still would rather not join the debate. He prefers to chide Humphrey for past support of the Vietnam war, contend there is nothing radical in his defense policy and quietly chip away at Humphrey's black and Chicano constituencies.

The great Democratic debate may penetrate few of California's 5.5 million registered Democrats, who could well base their vote June 6 on images rather than issues. Still Humphrey's eleventh-hour tactics dropped the veils from a deep schism within the party that assuredly will survive the California primary, the Democratic national convention and perhaps much beyond that.

critical and deteriorating condition Tuesday night while the condition of one other victim was reported improved.

Wake Memorial Hospital reported the condition of Mrs. Jessie B. West, 77, who received a bullet wound in the head remained critical and was continuing to decline.

But Mrs. Ralph Moody, wife of a state deputy attorney general was reported to have improved from serious to fair. Two other victims remained in serious condition and three in good condition.

Eleven persons were shot, three of them fatally, when Harvey Glenn McLeod, 22, of Raleigh opened fire with his newly purchased .22-rifle from the parking lot of Raleigh's North Hills Mall Monday. McLeod then shot and killed himself.

The State and Federal Bureaus of Investigation and the Raleigh police continued Tuesday to look for a motive in the shooting spree.

Maj. C. E. Duke of the Raleigh police said his men were interviewing everyone they could find who knew McLeod and searching out any detail in his background that might establish a motive.

But Duke said the why of McLeod's actions may never be known.

McLeod started firing at people near a mall entrance within seconds after U.S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., greeted three women and passed through the entrance to do some campaigning inside the mall.

Duke said "we have not been able to establish that the motive was in any way political." Police said earlier they believed the gunman was not trying to attack Jordan since the senator's visit to the shopping center was unannounced.

Jordan's press secretary, Wes Hayden, who lingered at the mall entrance, was wounded in the chest and was one of two victims reported still in serious condition Tuesday.

The other victim listed in serious condition was David E. Waby, 30, of Raleigh. Reported in good condition were Carol Lynn Sutton, 3, of Cary; Terri Sue Henry, 6, of Cary; and Carol Ann Homovec, 20, of Raleigh.

Miss Homovac, interviewed at the hospital Tuesday, said she saw the body wheeled past her as she waited for surgery for the wound in her left shoulder Monday. She said she felt no anger.

"I just felt sorry it had to be me," she said. "I happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time."

She was walking home to lunch from her secretarial job at a nearby office center when she was caught in the blaze of gunfire. She ran into a pharmacy after she was hit and the pharmacist tended her wound until an ambulance arrived.

The luckiest victim of the incident, Leroy Honeycutt, 29, returned to his work in his real estate firm in Apex Tuesday. He was grazed in the arm and saw two women shot just 10 feet in front of him.

"He shot at me next," Honeycutt said. "I turned sideways a split second before he hit me. That probably saved me from getting a lot more seriously wounded."

Honeycutt crawled inside a book store after he was hit.

The three persons killed were Mrs. Jackie Wharton, 47, of Raleigh; James G. Henry, 31, of Woodstock, Va., and Melvin D. Harrison, 23, of New Bern.

Jordan issued a statement Tuesday saying that the shooting had left "me, my family and my staff profoundly shocked and saddened."

Although there is no reason to believe that the shooting had any connection with my presence at the shopping center, I feel a deep sense of compassion for every victim of this terrible tragedy and for their loved ones," he said.

Jordan said members of his family and staff planned to attend the funerals of those killed.

Services for Henry will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Stover's Funeral Home in Strasburg, Va., with burial at Sunset View Memorial Park in Woodstock, Va.

Services for Harrison are set for 2 p.m. Thursday at Pollock Funeral Chapel in New Bern with burial at Greenleaf Memorial Park.

Mrs. Wharton's funeral is scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday at Mitchell Funeral Home in Raleigh with burial at Montlawn Memorial Park.

By JAY HENSLEY

For The Associated Press
RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor hammered away Tuesday at the top priority campaign proposal of front runner Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles in the Democratic gubernatorial contest, hoping to draw his opponent into public debate before the runoff primary Saturday.

Taylor says there are important differences in what he proposes for North Carolina over the next four years and the program Bowles has set forth in his campaign for governor.

He says he believes he will get the nomination if those differences are placed clearly in the public spotlight.

One difference, he says, is that he has worked for vocational education himself in state government for the past 17 years, while Bowles has been talking about it since last December.

Taylor says he does not claim all the credit for establishment of the technical institutes and community colleges. But as a member of the General Assembly that initiated the program 10 years ago, he says he feels that he had some part in what has been accomplished.

He contends the program Bowles is pushing under the label of career education would go too far in sorting out school children who will go on to college and those who would learn a trade.

At news conferences in Raleigh and Winston-Salem Tuesday, Taylor charged that Bowles is proposing that 80 out of every 100 children he placed in trade schools instead of being given an opportunity to develop their full potential, go on to college and perhaps become doctors or lawyers or go into other top-level businesses and professional fields.

"And all he has to do, if I have misinterpreted what he is talking about, is appear on a program with me and let me ask him some questions," Taylor said.

Taylor said Bowles could also ask him questions, which he declared he would be glad to try to answer. And from their responses, he said, the voters could determine the differences in the two candidates.

Taylor has offered to pay all costs for television and radio time if Bowles will meet him in public debate.

A trip to Wilmington for a television appearance, which does not include his opponent, was on Taylor's campaign schedule today.

The biggest mistake most men make in this world is that they wear dreams two sizes too large for them and shoes one size too small.

The only nice thing you can say about going to hell is that by the time a man gets there he is too tired to complain about the accommodations.

One of the biggest economic puzzles of my lifetime to me is how come this generation manages to spend most of its time sitting in cars and swivel chairs but still buys fewer two-pants suits than the previous generation did, which was supposed to have been on its toes all the time.

"But man also has the capacity to wreak havoc on the earth. And I might add, with a bow toward Women's Lib, that woman has this capacity as well."

(I thought that would get a laugh. These kids don't have any sense of humor at all.)

"Each man must decide for himself or herself what path he or she will take. Will he or she pay homage to the sun or will he or she crawl into a cave and curse the darkness?"

"We can't all get to the Super Bowl, but we can all play the game. We can't all win the World Series, but we can still swing at the ball. The important thing is not to be a spectator in the stands, but to go out on the field and fight for what you believe in."

(I wonder if Time magazine will pick that up?)

"So, in conclusion, I wish to say that if I had the choice of any time in history to live, I would choose now. And if I had any choice of graduating, I would prefer to graduate in the class of 1972. To quote a old song, 'Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile smile.' Thank you."

(That's not much of an ovation. Maybe I didn't read it well?)

Corona In 'Good Spirits' As Case Inches To Trial

By JAMES BAPIS
YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—In a distant corner of a neatly trimmed cemetery, against the backdrop of the picturesque Sutter Buttes, rest the mortal remains of "14 men of the sod, four of them known only to God."

A year has passed since their bodies and those of 11 other itinerant farm workers were unearthed from makeshift graves along the banks of the meandering Feather River—the victims of mass murder. All had been hacked to death by machete-type instruments.

Two to a grave, the 14 victims in the cemetery have been placed end-to-end along a chain link fence—as far removed in death from others buried there as they were from the mainstream while alive. Nothing has yet been done to disturb their image as "nameless, faceless" men.

Four Still Unknown
Four of them remain unidentified and a four-by-three-foot marker being prepared for them will so note. Its inscription will read: "Here lie 14 men of the sod, four of them known only to God."

Caretakers, openly resentful of newsmen, keep busy cutting and watering the cemetery lawn but refuse to answer any questions about these pauper interments except to point toward that less cared for section of the cemetery and say: "They're over there by the fence."

Not far away, in a two-room cell in the outmoded Sutter County jail, Juan V. Corona, the man accused of the murders, spends his time reading, eating heartily, watching television, exercising and trying his hand at painting. From painting by-the-numbers he has progressed to "decoupage," or applying varnish to prints placed on a wooden surface.

The latter two activities are part of a physical therapy program encouraged by his doctor following two apparent heart attacks Corona suffered last summer after his arrest for the 25 murders. He pleaded innocent.

Corona Healthy
The black-haired, taciturn farm labor contractor now appears much healthier than a year ago and has regained nearly all of the 25 pounds he lost during his long illness. In fact, he has been placed on a diet. His spirits are described as good while the legal maneuvering continues and his case moves slowly but inexorably toward trial.

"His spirits are good, better than I expected after he was denied bail," Richard Hawk, Corona's attorney said. "Now that we've got one leg on them with the change of venue, he figures his chances of getting a fair trial are better."

Hawk was referring to a recent order by a state appellate court to move the 38-year-old Mexican-born Corona's trial to an urban community because of fears he could not receive a fair trial in rural Sutter County.

"A reasonable likelihood of unfairness may exist even though the news coverage was neither inflammatory nor productive of overt hostility," the three-member court agreed in a unanimous opinion last month.

The order to shift the trial is being appealed by the state attorney general's office.

After months of passiveness in which they groped with their shock over the enormity of the charges against him, Corona's family—his aging mother, Candida; his wife, Gloria; his brother, Pedro; and his four children—are now actively engaged in his defense.

At each of his court appearances now they can be seen holding placards demanding "Justice for Juan V. Corona" and singing in Spanish in a plea for his release on bail. Last month they held a rally on the Capitol steps in Sacramento, denouncing his incarceration.

Raise Defense Fund
In addition, they are traveling around the state, addressing Mexican-American audiences in an effort to raise funds for his defense in what promises to be a long trial.

"There is a smile on his face now when he goes to court," Hawk said, describing Corona's reaction to the demonstrations.

But there is little discussion any more among the residents of Yuba City and adjoining Marysville of the crime that rocked their quiet communities a year ago.

"It's a closed issue, it's not talked about any more," said the Rev. Edgar Nelson, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Yuba City.

"I guess the only thing I hear any more is some resentment that the trial is going to be moved somewhere else and thus cost a lot more money," he added. "The people want justice for Corona but they wonder why it's taking so long to bring it to trial."

G. Dave Teja, the district attorney who is Corona's prosecutor, agrees there is little public talk now about the case.

"Once in a while it's brought up but only in a general way the pipe-smoking district attorney said, glancing up at a newspaper headline tacked on his bulletin board which boldly reads: "Corona Denied Bail."

DA Key in Bail Case
It was Teja who played a key role in the state Supreme Court's modification of its decision abolishing capital punishment in California. The high court changed its ruling to allow judges to deny bail to defendants whose crimes would previously have been considered "capital cases" under state statutes.

Although most Sutter County residents seem to have forgotten about the case, it's still clearly on the mind of the Rev. C.W. Renwick, superintendent of the Twin Cities Rescue Mission on Marysville's skid row, which many of the victims frequented.

"I often wonder what happened to Billy Vaughn and Herbert Kent who used to visit here quite a bit," the soft-spoken minister said. "They disappeared about the time all these killings happened."

According to an announcement by the Holshouser Pitt County steering committee, the Boone attorney will be available for questions at the airport from 4:30 until 5:30 p.m.

The committee reported that "Holshouser will be prepared to reply to the accusations of his opponent," Jim Gardner, in the Republican primary.

New Project Here Set By Phone Co.

Improvement and expansion of Greenville's telephone system is about to begin. Don A. Collier, local manager of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, said today a $135,907 program has been engineered and scheduled.

The project will consist of constructing a conduit system along West Fifth Street and N. C. Highway 43 West in the Fifth Street Office area.

Collier said that the west section of the exchange has been experiencing a steady growth in recent years and this trend is expected to continue. Construction of the new Pitt County Hospital and the Vocational Rehabilitation Center of Eastern North Carolina will begin this year. Also, preliminary planning and grading for a 500 unit mobile home park on the Stantonsburg Road has begun.

All of this new construction will require added telephone facilities which the new project will help to supply.

Construction of the new conduit system is to be completed by December, 1972, with new cables to be placed in the first quarter of 1973.

Lift Curfew At Concord

CONCORD, N. C. (AP) — Quiet has returned to this textile mill town after three nights of racial violence. The curfew has been lifted and almost all the 300 National Guardsmen have departed.

Police said there were no arrests Tuesday night connected with the racial disturbances. There had been 51 arrests Sunday night and 12 Monday night.

The disturbances started after a white grocer shot and wounded a black man Saturday after quarreling with him. The store and three other white-owned groceries in the Negro community were subsequently burned.

The grocer, Jimmy Miles, 35, has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. He is to be given a preliminary hearing Monday in state District Court. The black, Paul Daniel Johnson, 23, is reported in satisfactory condition in a hospital.

As part of the peacemaking effort, the city has established a rumor control center in the black area. Persons hearing rumors or seeking information were urged to telephone the center.

Concord is 25 miles north of Charlotte.

Reflector Staff Writer

U.S. Senator B. Everett Jordan, campaigning in Greenville yesterday for nomination in Saturday's second primary said he has been accused of "seat-warming" for other politicians emphasized, "I wouldn't be running for office to resign and let someone else take over."

"I'm running for the office and plan to serve out the entire six years."

Jordan said that ever since he became a senator 14 years ago, opponents have accused him of seat-warming for others... including such men as former governors Luther Hodges, Terry Sanford and Dan Moore. He said latest rumors have said he would be seat-warming for Gov. Bob Scott if elected to the post this year.

At yesterday's press conference, the senator said his voting record over the 14-years he has been in Washington is "85 per cent...65 per cent this year." He added that his opponent in Saturday's second primary, Congressman Nick Galifianakis, has only voted 37 per cent of the time this year. "That's not representing the people," he noted.

"I have introduced 60 public bills in the Senate since 1967, and co-sponsored even more," Jordan said.

Probably the most notable of the Jordan-introduced bills, the senator said, was the acreage-purchase bill affecting the production of tobacco. "I introduced it and will continue to support it," Jordan emphasized.

Galifianakis, Jordan said, "has not sponsored a single piece of legislation since coming to Congress relating to tobacco production, manufacturing or marketing. His record is just as blank on legislation affecting peanuts, cotton, potatoes, soy beans and poultry and livestock production."

According to Jordan, "I have introduced or co-sponsored 44 separate pieces of legislation on these and related agricultural issues during my years in the Senate and most of them are now law."

The senator noted a half-dozen of those bills were concerned with provisions for stabilization of price supports, establishment of the acreage-purchase system and authority for lease of acreage allotments and marketing quotas for flue-cured tobacco.

"Last week," according to Jordan, "at my request, the Agriculture Department postponed the deadline for peanut planting under the federal crop insurance program because adverse weather had interfered with normal planting. I have asked for an investigation to determine if similar action is needed for tobacco."

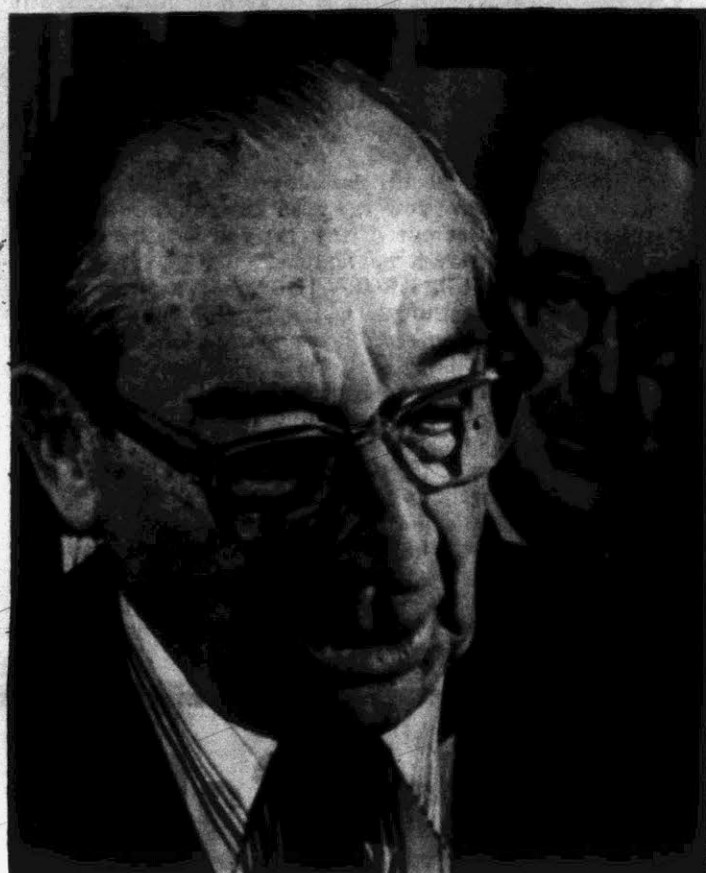

"These are things that no freshman senator can do for you — particularly one with no agricultural background knowledge or even demonstrated interest in farm problems except as a campaign issue."

Paul VI Would Like To Resign

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI would like to resign but apparently feels he cannot, according to remarks taped by the Vatican.

"It would be beautiful to be able to shake off the burden of the Church and say I do not want it," Pope Paul said in a private speech to a group of nuns April 24, a time when the Italian press was debating whether the pontiff would abdicate when he turns 75 on Sept. 26.

In releasing the remarks Tuesday, the Vatican said it acted to correct misleading quotes from the same speech in Italian newspapers. Pope Paul was quoted as saying, "I do not want to give up the papacy."

LOOKING OVER SHOULDER...Sen. B. Everett Jordan seemed to be looking over his own shoulder at a news conference here yesterday. Campaign posters bearing a life-size photograph of the Senator hung on a wall behind him as he spoke to a group of news media representatives and supporters. (Reflector Staff Photo)

The Precision Team that just won the Vanderbilt National Team Title in Cincinnati competed as a team for the first time in the Spingold Championships held at the Summer Nationals in 1970. Virtually unknown outside of the New York area, the original members—Steve Altman, Tom Smith, Joel Stuart, and Peter Weichsel scored one of the major upsets in bridge history when they won the event, defeating the World Champion Dallas Aces in the final round.

Eugene Neiger was added to the team the following summer when they successfully defended their Spingold triumph—a rare occurrence in bridge. Alan Sontag became the sixth member of the team for this year's Vanderbilt event where they met the Aces for the second time—in the semi-final round, repeating their previous triumph.

By winning the Vanderbilt, Altman's team qualified for a berth in the 1972 playoff against the winner of this year's Spingold Championship to decide which team represents North America in the 1973 World Championship. The 1972 World Team Olympiad to be held in June in Miami Beach will see the Dallas Aces, reigning champions for the last two years, as the representative for North America.

Today's hand was dealt in the final quarter of the semi-final round match between the Precision Team and the Aces and helped the former to pull away to victory. The bidding depicted in the diagram occurred at the table where the Dallas Aces were seated North and South. North opened the bidding with one diamond and over the one spade response, he jumped to three diamonds. South chose to disregard his heart suit and simply rebid three no trump, which closed the auction.

The four of clubs was opened and the ten was played from dummy, which held the trick. The three top diamonds were cashed on which declarer discarded two spades and one heart. West showed out on the third round, shedding a spade. South wisely abandoned the diamond suit, for if he plays a fourth round, East goes in and a club return enables West to clear that suit while he still retains the ace of hearts. Declarer's only entry to dummy is in hearts which gives West an opportunity to play the ace and then cash two clubs to defeat the contract.

At trick five, South led a spade from dummy and successfully finessed the jack in his hand after East followed with the deuce. A heart was led next and when West played the five, North's king was put up to hold the trick. A heart was returned and declarer covered East's nine with the queen to dislodge West's side entry, the ace. The latter now cleared the clubs by playing the ace and another and Alan Sontag—in the East seat now made the key play of the deal by discarding his jack of hearts. There was no way to prevent West from getting in with the ten of hearts to cash out his clubs.

If East does not dispose of the jack of hearts, discarding a spade instead, he can be thrown in with the third heart and after he cashes the jack of diamonds, he must lead away from the king-nine of spades, enabling declarer to score the last two tricks with the ace-queen of that suit. In all, South can take three spades, one heart, three diamonds, and two clubs for nine tricks.

Had declarer discarded the king and queen of clubs on North's diamonds, he could have led a fourth round of diamonds profitably, for after East's jack is dislodge, North is assured of reentry to run the suit since he retains the king-three of hearts and the jack-three of clubs. West cannot run the clubs without putting the dummy in first and South has time to run off with nine tricks.

When the deal was replayed at the other table, South bid three hearts over three diamonds, and Joel Stuart, seated North, rebid three no trump. East led the jack of hearts and declarer succeeded in taking nine tricks on the deal. The profit to Precision was 600 points at one table and 100 at the other which represented roughly one-third of their final margin of victory.

'Unicorn Of The Desert' Has Become Near Extinct

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

AL ZUBARAH, Qatar (AP) — On a hunting expedition in the sandy nothingness of Rub Al Kahl—Saudi Arabia's "Empty Quarter"—Sheik Qasim Bin Hamad wept when a rare white Arabian oryx in a dying charge deftly skewered the right front tire of his jeep with its long, corkscrew horns.

There and then, the remorseless hunter turned dedicated conservationist and set about preserving one of nature's largest and loveliest animals. That was seven years ago. It already may have been too late.

The sheik, who is Qatar's minister of education has had occasion to weep again for the elegant, long-pronged member of the antelope family that romantics claim is a direct descendant of the mythological unicorn. An epidemic of pleural pneumonia wiped out eight of the 35 white Arabian oryxes in the herd the sheik had built up as the largest and one of the last in captivity. Two more males died the same week in a butting contest over the affections of a female, a common end for the love-crazed critters whose horns have long been in demand in the Arab world as an aphrodisiac.

It's been at least four years now since any Bedouin camel caravans or hunting parties came across any of the huge milk white hoofed animals in the vast desert just behind the borders of Qatar, a new nation jutting into the Persian Gulf.

The species is virtually extinct in the wild. Along with the 29 white Arabian oryxes at the Phoenix, Ariz., Zoo, the surviving herd at the sheik's ranch, 90 miles from the capital at Doha, may be the sole survivors anywhere in the world.

When we visited the ranch, his private secretary, Ghazi Az-zeh, showed us around.

"Please, scrub your boots," he requested as we approached the oryx corral, indicating a long brush and a trough of strong disinfectant solution. "In captivity, they are gentle and shy. In the desert, they are brave and extremely difficult to capture. They are most sensitive animals. Sometimes at the mere smell of man, they begin to vomit and die."

Large as cows, with the same slow, sad eyes, the pale white animals with the dark blaze down their snouts and the fine, erect, rapier-like horns herded together in the middle of the open, sandy pen. Some of the calves, pinkish-buff and without horns, shied a bit and galloped nervously toward the shed against the far wall when a photographer moved amongst them. The adults impassively stood their ground. Two females, still recovering from the bout with pneumonia, slumped in the shade of the wall; a male with a broken leg limped about nearby.

The education minister, a brother of Qatar's prime minister, now devotes much of his personal fortune to preserving desert wild life.

"Sheik Hamad," his secretary said, "receives many requests for the white Arabian oryx from zoos and preservation societies all over the world, but he turns them all down. He feels the species would have little chance of surviving outside a desert environment."

After his conversion by a punctured jeep tire in 1964, Sheik Hamid captured a number of live oryxes but only three lived long enough to reach his ranch in Qatar. The next year he added two more, and the tiny herd began breeding. Until the outbreak of pneumonia, he was averaging eight to 10 calves a year, losing several males from the inevitable love quarrels but still retaining two of the original oryxes.

The sheik belongs to and keeps in contact with most wild life and fauna preservation societies around the world, and often leaves his ornate palace in Doha for trips into Rub Al Kahl, hoping to find new ways of keeping alive his rare, long horned herd. Proud as he is of showing them off, he may soon close the ranch to all outside visitors.

"A survival expert in England," the secretary said, "suggested in a recent letter that perhaps it is its old foe, man, who is bringing the germs that threatened the herd this time. It is sad, because now after years, centuries no doubt, of being hunted, they seem to genuinely like being tourist attractions."

GAS OUTPUT

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Worldwide output of natural gas rose 8.9 per cent last year, according to reports of U.S. oil men. Production in 1971 was 44.6 trillion cubic feet, compared with 40.9 per cent in 1970.

Polluters See More Pressure

DETROIT (UPI)—The county of Wayne, which includes Detroit, filed 248 court cases against alleged violators of the county's air pollution control regulation in 1971—the highest number in any one year.

This year, says the director of the Air Pollution Control Division, inspectors will be "far less tolerant" of so-called accidental emissions.

Mr. Tobacco Grower THE TRUTH ABOUT GALIFIANAKIS VS. JORDAN AND NORTH CAROLINA AGRICULTURE

QUESTION: Between Feb. 1965 and 1970, when the Common Market threat to North Carolina tobacco exports developed, how many pieces of legislation affecting tobacco did B. Everett Jordan introduce in the U.S. Senate?
ANSWER: None

QUESTION: During those same years, when tobacco was threatened by anti-smoking forces, what legislation involving tobacco did B. Everett Jordan introduce in the U.S. Senate?
ANSWER: None.

QUESTION: Between 1963, when Mr. Jordan says he first became aware of the potential threat to American tobacco by the Common Market, and the end of 1971, when that threat had blossomed into a full-scale crisis, did Mr. Jordan call Senate hearings to investigate the situation and seek solutions?
ANSWER: No

QUESTION: When did Mr. Jordan finally call hearings?
ANSWER: In February of this year—during the middle of his campaign for re-election.

QUESTION: Mr. Jordan says he has a lot of seniority. Did the fact that he ranks 32 out of 100 senators help him when he finally decided to hold tobacco export hearings?

ANSWER: No. Mr. Jordan had to get permission from a freshman senator, Lawton Chiles of Florida, chairman of the agricultural export subcommittee, to convene the hearings. QUESTION: What has CONGRESSMAN NICK GALIFIANAKIS done for North Carolina tobacco?

ANSWER: During his freshman year in 1967 CONGRESSMAN GALIFIANAKIS joined SENATOR SAM ERVIN in a national press conference in which they called for less speculation and more scientific research on the subject of tobacco and health. Galifianakis followed this up by introducing a resolution calling for creation of a Scientific Commission on Smoking and Health. And throughout the '60s GALIFIANAKIS consistently voted for legislation favorable to North Carolina tobacco. And in 1971 GALIFIANAKIS introduced a resolution urging the President to protect American tobacco exports

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the 28-year-old mother of four who tacked a poster on her door with "rules" to keep visitors away.

Well, I'm a 38-year-old mother of six, and I'm amazed that anyone would want that much privacy. We're newcomers who live in the country, and I'm stuck out here with six kids, two dogs and three cats. I'm so hungry for company, I'm ready to go out on the road and flag down some strangers.

Please print my "poster" in the paper for all to read:

● You may smoke inside, outside, on the roof, or anywhere you wish, just don't burn the house down.

● If you're hungry, help yourself to anything you can find. And if you can't find anything, ask one of the kids. They'll fix you a peanut butter and brown sugar sandwich.

● If you're here around mealtime, grab a chair and join us.

● If you want to stay overnight, bring a sleeping bag and we'll move some clutter from the corner to make room for you.

● Bring your kids. We have so many, a few more won't make any difference.

● We can't lend you any money, but go ahead and ask anyway. It will make us feel good to know we appear that prosperous.

● Tell us your troubles and we'll tell you ours. One of our kids can play the violin for background music, and we can all cry together.

● If you can stand us, we can stand you, so drop in anytime and stay as long as you like. We're people who like people.

MIDGE IN WATSONVILLE, CAL.

DEAR MIDGE: You sound like the kind of person I'd like to know. I'll bet you won't be hungry for company long.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for printing a letter which let me know that I am not alone in this world. (A woman placed a poster on her front door to discourage unwanted company.)

Some time ago I placed a sign on MY door which read, "DO NOT DISTURB. NIGHT WORKER!"

It didn't help. People still rang my bell, twisted the doorknob, beat on the door and yelled, "ANYBODY HOME?" Some even went around to look in the windows!

When I realized that I needed something stronger, I put up another sign.

"ADMISSION $1.00—NO ONE ADMITTED FREE!"

That sign did the job. Nobody bothered me after that. Now I notice two other signs just like mine in the neighborhood.

LONE WOLF IN JASPER, ALA.

DEAR WOLF: So far you've been lucky that some curious stranger hasn't demanded to know what you are offering for a dollar.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter signed "ALL TORN UP" describing a husband who was Johnny-on-the-spot to do chores for the neighbors, while his own remained undone, I was reminded of how my mother solved the same problem.

My father was a wonderful mechanic who worked daily at his job from 8 till 5. We lived on a small ranch, and during his "free" hours he was supposed to do all the things one must do on a ranch, such as milking, irrigation, fence-mending, barn repairs, etc.

Friends and neighbors would meet Dad at the gate as he came home, with, "if you have a minute will you please check my brakes, the timing, or the radiator?" Dad, being the big-hearted man he was, never said no. His hot dinner was often eaten cold. Weekends he spent repairing a friend's car, truck or tractor while his own ranch work was left undone. Mother often made minor repairs or irrigated with the aid of a flashlight. (This after she had done her own work during the day.)

Finally Mother had "notices" printed and passed them out to these unsolicited "customers." They read:

"MECHANIC ON DUTY MON. - FRI. 8 P. M. TO 8 P. M. Charge $8 per hour.

SAT. AND SUN. 9 A. M. TO 4 P. M.

Charge $10. per hour.

These charges are to cover cost of the handyman I have had to hire to do Mr. _____'s ranch chores."

You have no idea how fast these freeloaders learned to do their own repairing or found another patsy.

Gardner . . .

the United States is "distorting and twisting any and every single news story that they want to and not only through their editorial policies."

"Today we have, as we have in North Carolina, a very handful of powerful big boys in the press, owned in many cases by out of state corporations who own both the morning and evening newspapers and control and distort every word of print that goes into our communities," he added.

The gubernatorial hopeful, who topped Jim Holshouser by slightly over 1,000 votes in the May 6 primary but failed to gain a majority, said that the GOP party in the state needs to be divided, in response to a question concerning in-party conflict among candidates.

"The Republican party never has won in this state and what we are talking about now is what kind of party we are going to have in the future. What kind of party does Jim Gardner and Frank Rouse want? I want to see a party that can compete at any level."

Gardner contended that his opponent would like to see a closed party where a "handful of people could sit down and make the decision that, you will run for governor of North Carolina."

He said that the eastern part of the state and the "eastern wing of the party is going to be vitally important" in Saturday's primary runoff. Gardner said that he feels he is going to run very strong in the east and be very competitive in the west, Holshouser's home territory.

"My strength in the Republican party is statewide," Gardner noted, "and this is the reason we carried 71 of 100 counties in the first primary campaign. This is the reason that I'm very confident that, although we have a hard fight, we are going to win the second primary."

Helping Out At Hospital

RALEIGH (AP) — Throughout the summer, North Carolina Mental Health Commissioner Dr. Eugene Hargrove and his staff will visit Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro once a week to help the overworked doctors treat patients.

Hargrove and six of his deputies worked with patients at the state hospital Tuesday, and Superintendent Dr. Ladislav Peter said the visits would continue through the summer.

The hospital has only 15 doctors for its 1,300 patients, despite an authorized strength of 26 doctors.

The staff shortage and problems in recruiting doctors became more acute earlier this spring when a state Bureau of Investigation probe of alleged misconduct led to several resignations and firings at the hospital. Several non-medical personnel from the Raleigh office have been working at the hospital full time since then.

See Arson In 3 Fires

TRYON, N. C. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Willis E. Kuhn say they believe arsonists are responsible for the third fire in two weeks at their Cotton Patch Farms in the hunt country near here.

They have offered a reward for information leading to arrest and conviction.

Polk County Sheriff Heyward M. Shelton said more than one person is being sought.

The third fire occurred early Monday when a shed containing agricultural and horse equipment was destroyed before firemen arrived.

State Bureau of Investigation agents searched for clues.

Lightning was believed to have caused the first fire, which destroyed a stable and 20 horses. The loss was estimated at between $200,000 and $300,000.

A fire last week destroyed a farm office and horse records. Estimates of this damage have not yet been released.

All roads, trails, and footpaths have been blocked, according to the owners, who asked that sightseers stay away from the farm.

Bowles Pauses For TV Appeal

By RAY ROLLINS
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Har-grove "Skipper" Bowles interrupted his quick-stop plane hopping across the state to put together a new half-hour television appeal in Charlotte this morning.

The Democratic candidate for governor in Saturday's runoff primary taped the program for paid presentation in a format similar to one produced before the first primary. The format was unrehearsed with questions and answers before a live audience.

Bowles then did some hand-shaking at the Kemper Open Golf Tournament in Charlotte before flying to Asheville to meet supporters and hold a news conference.

The day's schedule called for a pace less hectic than usual.

During the forenoon he made telephone calls to check on a poll made for him this week by an outside polling organization. Bowles visited Tuesday in Elizabeth City and New Bern. He told coastal residents that if he is elected he would bring governmental services to the people by sending state officials in periodically to listen to them and help them.

Bowles cited as an example the issuance of dredge and fill permits. He said he would send in knowledgeable representatives of the state to help prepare applications for permits. He said this would get rid of the lost motion and frustration of long-distance procedures.

Dr. Aldridge At Workshop

DOBSON — Dr. M. W. Aldridge will participate in a Preventive Dentistry Workshop Friday for 36 home economics extension agents and extension homemakers' club leaders from 18 Piedmont counties.

The meeting at Dobson near Winston Salem is being held to teach these women how to floss and crevice brush teeth correctly so they may teach members of their clubs and others how to prevent tooth decay and gum disease.

"Each one teach one" is our new concept that hopefully will change the dental health picture in North Carolina," said Miss E. C. Bivens, coordinator of the Preventive Dentistry division of the State Board of Health. "By this I mean that we are teaching the preventive flossing and crevice brushing technique hoping that each person who learns it will share his knowledge with someone else, and so on."

Brewer Hurler Tosses 1-Hitter

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
 Associated Press Sports Writer
 Del Crandall will remember his major league managerial debut for a long time and Skip Lockwood will never forget Dave Bristol.

"I certainly should be able to remember a one-hitter for a long time," Crandall said Tuesday night after taking over as skipper of the Milwaukee Brewers and watching Lockwood tame New York 3-1 with Rusty Torres' sixth-inning single the Yankees' only hit.

Lockwood, who hurled a six-hit shutout against Detroit last Thursday, said he felt badly when Bristol was fired as manager three days later.

"You can't ever say a manager is your friend," Lockwood said, "but when you lose someone who's taught you a lot you feel the loss. Dave and I had no love lost when I first came up. I was a cocky kid. But in three years I learned from him and got to understand him. He helped me on the baseball field and off and I'll be a better person and a better ballplayer for having played for him."

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston trounced Baltimore 6-0, Texas nipped Oakland 3-2, Minnesota edged Kansas City 3-2 and California whipped the Chicago White Sox 6-0. Detroit and Cleveland were rained out.

Only 4,175 fans saw Crandall's managerial debut in 44-degree weather with gusts up to 26 miles an hour. It was warm inside the Brewers' clubhouse, though.

"I'm very, very pleased and happy about it," Crandall said. "It's just a beginning, but it's a win and that's what's important."

The Brewers tallied in the second, third and eighth innings on run-scoring singles by Ellie Rodriguez, George Scott and Mike Ferraro. That was more than enough for Lockwood, even though the 25-year-old right-hander struggled with his control, losing his shutout in the sixth when Torres singled following two walks.

Boston's Ray Culp throttled Baltimore on three hits and Carlton Fisk and Tommy Harper homered off Mike Cuellar as the Red Sox ended the Orioles' four-game winning streak and dropped them into a first-place tie with Detroit in the AL East.

The Sox took advantage of an error by Brooks Robinson, of all people, on a potential double play ball in the second inning to score their first three runs. Culp squeezed home the first one and Luis Aparicio singled for two more.

Texas' Rich Hand allowed Oakland only three hits in 8 1-3 innings but needed a strong relief job by Horacio Pina to preserve his first victory of the season. Dave Duncan homered for the A's—his 10th—and Ted Ford for the Rangers, who got the winning run off Ken Holtzman in the seventh on a single by Ken Suarez, a sacrifice, pinch runner Dave Nelson's steal of third and Toby Harrah's sacrifice fly.

Phil Roof, hitting .180 at game time, powered Minnesota over Kansas City with his first two home runs of the season, solo shots in the second and fourth innings. It was the first time in the catcher's 14-year pro career that he hit two homers in one game. Roof may have been embarrassed by the fact that Jim Perry, the Twins' starting pitcher, had a .313 batting average.

Robinson Sparks LA Past San Francisco

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers against the San Francisco Giants? To Frank Robinson, it's just another ball game. But he's got other incentives.

"I haven't been around here long enough to get any specific feeling over the Dodgers-Giants rivalry," the Los Angeles right fielder said Tuesday night.

"These games haven't got the adrenalin flowing."

"But this was a very important game," Robinson added. "It got us into first."

More properly, Robinson got the Dodgers into first with his bat and glove. In the top of the eighth inning he followed Willie Davis' leadoff single with a tie-breaking home run.

Then, in the bottom of the inning, with the Giants threatening to score—and stumbling all over themselves in the futile attempt—he gunned down a San Francisco runner at the plate to preserve the Dodgers' 5-3 victory.

In the rest of the National League's weather-wrecked schedule, the New York Mets beat Philadelphia 7-0 and Cincinnati defeated Houston 9-5. Rain postponed the San Diego-at-Atlanta and Pittsburgh-at-Montreal games and cold weather knocked out St. Louis' contest against the Cubs in Chicago.

Robinson also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly as the Dodgers built a 3-0 lead, only to see it evaporate by the seventh inning as Dave Kingman belted his 12th home run and Bobby Bonds knocked in two runs with a single and a fly ball.

Then came the bizarre bottom of the eighth.

The Giants managed to get through it without a run despite three singles and a hit batsman.

Tito Fuentes and Ed Goodson singled and Damasco Blanco, just up from the minors, went in to run for Goodson.

Kingman, the next batter, then missed a bunt attempt and Fuentes, who'd taken off on the pitch, was trapped between second and third.

He finally managed, with some urging by the Dodgers, to make it back to second, only to find Blanco already there. Blanco was called out on the play.

The Mets' Jon Matlack, who has yet to lose this year, chalked up victory No. 6 by limiting the Phillies to just three harmless singles.

Rusty Staub got more than that all by himself for New York, driving in four runs with two doubles and two singles as the Mets, taking advantage of Pittsburgh's enforced idleness, widened their National League East lead to four games over the Bucs.

Johnny Bench was Cincinnati's big gun against the Astros, driving in four runs with a tie-breaking single and two home runs, the first one an inside-the-park job. It was Houston's fourth straight defeat.

Only Jack Is Missing Kemper

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tony Jacklin of England and globetrotting Billy Casper make their return to the American tour this week as two of the favorites in the very strong field arrayed for the $175,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Arnold Palmer, South African Gary Player, Lee Trevino, George Archer, Jerry Heard, Bob Lunn and Tom Weiskopf also are in the 144 man field that begin a 72-hole test Thursday on the Quail Hollow Country Club course, a vast track that stretches 7,278 yards over rolling hills and plays to a par 72.

Of the game's great names only Jack Nicklaus is among the missing. The Masters champion and leading money winner took the week off to consider his shabby showing in the last two rounds at Atlanta last week and try to find a putting stroke.

Nicklaus, who won't play again until the U.S. Open in Pebble Beach, Calif., two weeks from now, had scores of 75-76 his last two rounds at Atlanta.

"He didn't play all that bad," said Lou Graham, who was with him during that 76. "But he just couldn't get the ball in the hole. He was three-putting something awful. He missed once from 15 inches."

Casper pulled a sagging game together in his last American appearance a month ago when he tied Chi Chi Rodriguez for first place at Dallas only to lose in a playoff. He's been on a tour of Europe and North Africa since then.

Jacklin, who won at Jacksonville early this year, hasn't played in this country since the Tournament of Champions, almost two months ago.

The 42-year-old Palmer, still one of the most popular players the game has ever seen, hasn't won this season but has challenged strongly four times and always ranks as a strong challenger.

The gangling Archer and easy-going Heard, each winner of two titles and more than $100,000 this season, rank just behind Nicklaus as the game's most successful practitioners this year.

Busy Trevino slipped badly in last week's Atlanta Classic and competed in National Golf Day activities in Cleveland just Monday before coming here but still has gathered some $98,000 in winnings and is a strong threat.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by Hughes Sports Network.

Veterans Meet In British Golf

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
SANDWICH, England (AP) — Veteran Walker Cup golfers, Joe Carr of Ireland and Ed Tutwiler of the United States, meet today in a battle of wits on one of the most demanding courses in the world.

The wily old campaigners—Carr is 50 and Tutwiler 52—were paired in the third round of the British Amateur Championship on the Royal St. George's link.

The exposed 6,633-yard, par 34-36—70 course always is difficult because of its deep and cunningly placed sand traps, but this week a high wind, sometimes approaching gale force, has turned it into a nightmare.

"My friends at home never believed me when I told them how hard it can blow here," said Tutwiler, a car salesman from Indianapolis.

Both men played in the 1967 Walker Cup match, but they did not face each other.

On Tuesday, both won second round matches in convincing style against young opponents.

Carr handed Mickey Van Gerbig of Palm Beach, Fla., a lesson in driving and hitting and won, 6 and 5.

Tutwiler, without making a single birdie, moved steadily to a 5 and 4 victory over Peter Holt of Britain.

Dick Siderowf of Westport, Conn., who played on the 1969 U.S. Walker cup team, faced Gordon Hyde of Britain today. Siderowf won his first two matches without having to play past the 14th hole.

Two other Americans, Marty West of Chevy Chase, Md., and Kemp Richardson of Laguna Niguel, Calif., reached the third round.

Six Americans had to play second round matches today.

Taff Office Takes Pair From Firemen

Taff Office gained a 4-2 victory over the Fire Fighters last night in the Senior Babe Ruth League. It was the second straight win for Taff over the Firemen, whom they downed 10-2 on Saturday night.

Taff did its damage on only three hits off Mike Reilly, taking advantage of every mistake the Fire Fighters made. Winning pitcher David Clifton, allowed five hits, and needed relief in the final frame.

The Fire Fighters took the initial lead in the game. Reilly singled and scored when Greg Chapman singled.

In the bottom of the fourth, Taff came up with two runs to take the lead. Jack Jones walked and Gary Hall reached on a fielder's choice. Both Jones and Hall stole up a base and a passed ball scored Jones. Dean Phillips walked and Howard Leggett sacrificed in Hall for a 2-1 lead.

In the top of the sixth, the Firemen scored once to tie it up.

Chapman walked and stole second. William Carraway singled to drive him in.

But Taff came right back with a pair in the bottom of the sixth to take the win. J.C. Daniels led off with a home run to put them back ahead. Jones then reached on an error and advanced on an out. He was balked to third and scored on an out for the final 4-2 score.

Daniels led the Taff hitting, getting two. No other man on either team had more than one.

In Saturday's game, Taff moved ahead in the second inning. Daniels singled and stole second. He scored when Jones doubled.

Another run came in the third. David Clifton walked and stole second. Don Cannon singled to drive him in for a 2-0 lead.

They put it out of reach with four in the fourth. Willie Streeter singled and Cleve Averette walked. Clifton singled to load the bases and Cannon walked to bring in Streeter. Daniels reached on a fielder's choice that got Averette at the plate. Jones walked to bring in Clifton, and Gene Vincent walked, bringing in Cannon. Daniels scored on a wild pitch, making it 6-0.

Taff added one in the fifth, and three more in the seventh. Both of the Fire Fighter runs came in the fifth.

Jones, who hurled that win, allowed only one hit by the Firemen, a double that drove in both of the runs.

Jones led the hitting with three, while Daniels, Clifton and Streeter each had two.

S. Pitt Opening

The Southern Pitt Little League opened its 1972 season Monday night with a game between Chicod and Charlie Soberman.

Chicod won the game 3-0, on a no-hitter by Louie Dixon. Mumford was the losing pitcher.

The league consists of seven teams, Soberman, First Citizens and Piggly-Wiggly, all based in Grifton; Chicod and the Hornets, based in Chicod, and the Giants and the Indians, playing out of Winterville.

Little Mint Rolls Along

The Little Mint continued to roll along in the Ladies Softball League last night, ripping Azalea Mobile Homes, 18-3. In the other games, Belton rolled to a 12-4 win over Three Steers, while Coca-Cola nipped Piggly-Wiggly, 3-2.

In the opener, The Little Mint pushed over all it needed in the first inning, scoring six runs. Briley led off with a single and Carter singled. Tripp reached on an error and Kilpatrick and Kelly both walked. Oakley reached and Moore was safe on an error. Manuel reached on an error and Carter singled to account for the six runs.

The Little Mint added two in the third, two more in the fourth, three in the sixth, and five in the seventh. Azalea got two in the third and one in the seventh.

In the second game, Belton got a run in the first, but Three Steers tied it with one in the top of the second. Belton came up with three more in the second. Three Steers again scored one in the top of the fourth to make it 4-2.

In the fourth, however,

Belton scored three more to put it on ice. Morris reached on an error and Sawyer walked. Averette doubled and Barnhill doubled, driving in the final runs of the inning. That made it 7-2. Belton then added two in the fifth and three in the sixth. Three Steers picked up one each in the fifth and sixth.

In the final game, Piggly-Wiggly took the lead with one in the fourth, but lost it when Coke scored twice in the fifth. Piggly-Wiggly scored again in the seventh to tie it, 2-2.

In the bottom of the seventh, Coke got the winning run. Connie Sumner reached on a fielder's choice and Carol Johnson walked. Mary Warren then singled to score Sumner with the game-ending run.

Hurricane Disaster Risk Said Increasing Along Coastal U.S.

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane watchers are eyeballing the skies for Agnes, a nickname bestowed on the yet - to - be spawned first tropical storm of the 1972 Atlantic season, which begins Thursday.

If this is an average season, says Dr. Robert Simpson, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, nine more big blows will spring up from the warm water breeding grounds off the coast of Africa.

The other tropical storms will be named Betty, Carrie, Dawn, Edna, Felice, Gerda, Harriet, Irene and Jane.

Six of them, if averages follow, will become full - blown hurricanes. They'll kill 60 persons between Texas and Maine and cause hundreds of millions of dollars in property damage, forecasters say.

They'll also be tracked by three electronic detection systems which aid forecasters in alerting those in the storms' paths.

The first line of detection and warning is the ATS-3 satellite, which hovers 22,300 miles above the equator. While matching its orbiting velocity to earth's rotation, the satellite clicks its cameras every 20 minutes at tropic zones where hurricanes are born.

Other satellites orbiting the earth measure heat, which plays a big part in storm development.

The second defense is the fleet of military "hurricane hunter" pilots who probe the guts of the storms for the only true measurements of their size and fury. The hunters are dispatched on order of the Hurricane Center after the National Weather Service has digested and analyzed early data from hundreds of commercial and military aircraft and ship reports on winds, seas and barometric pressures.

The third phase of the detection process is the radar fence which extends from Miami Westward to Brownsville, Tex., and north to Boston. That is activated when the hurricane moves to within 150 miles of the U.S. mainland or Puerto Rico, and provides minute-by-minute analysis of the storm's progress toward land.

Coastal targets can be predicted 24 hours in advance, but with an average error of 106 miles, Simpson said, while 12 hours notice shrinks the error margin to 50 miles.

The system has greatly reduced death tolls resulting from the howling tropical storms, and is operable from June 1 to Dec. 1.

But the odds on disaster are getting shorter than ever before because more and more people are moving to warm weather coasts, Simpson said.

"The risk of a major disaster from a hurricane on the coastal United States is greater and continues to increase at a remarkable rate," he said.

Navy Chaplain Is Reassigned

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Cmdr. Andrew F. Jensen, the first Navy chaplain ever to face a court-martial, has been reassigned to Princeton University.

Jensen, who was acquitted at Cecil Field Naval Air Station in March on a charge of misconduct by adultery, will study toward a master of pastoral theology degree at Princeton.

"It is a fine assignment,"

An Interruption 'Work Or Else' Rule Reducing Welfare Rolls

A one-hour interruption of the Pitt & Greene EMC electric supply has been requested by Carolina Power and Light Company, so that changes may be made in their supply facilities.

Power will be interrupted at 6:00 a.m. Sunday, June 4th, and should be retored by 7:00 a.m.

While the supply is off, Pitt & Greene crews plan to do some deferred work within their system.

Should weather conditions prevent this work being done next Sunday, it will probably be re-scheduled for the following Sunday.

By ROBERT M. SHAW
Associated Press Writer
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Due to a fledgling "work or else" program, the state's Department of Social Services reports that thousands of welfare recipients are disappearing into the job market.

"It has been successful within the framework in which it was set up," Social Services Commissioner Abe Lavine says of the program.

Lavine's chief deputy, Barry Van Lare, added that it is helping some persons on welfare "meet their responsibility to actively seek employment."

In the first nine months of the program, 22,748 welfare recipients were placed in jobs. An additional 39,124 were removed from welfare for failing to report for job interviews or for other reasons.

Under the program, enacted by the 1971 Legislature and put into effect last July 1, welfare recipients are sorted into two basic groups—those who can hold jobs and those who can not.

"If the recipient were classified as employable, his check would be sent to the local state employment service office where he must pick it up in person.

When he shows up, he is referred to a training program or to a job if one is available. If he does not pick up his check, his welfare eligibility is withdrawn. If he gets his check but does not take the job, he also is dropped from welfare.

The department sampled 455 job placements for last September as the basis for the study of the program's results and followed up by determining how many of those placed in jobs were still working in December.

Figures showed that 32 percent of the jobs lasted one week or less; only about one-third still had jobs at the end of November.

But Van Lare said the bare figures do not reveal a third category—those who left the initial job but found work elsewhere and stayed off welfare.

Lavine and Van Lare said the study did not attempt to put a dollar figure on the success of the program. Lavine said its biggest benefit was "the creation of an atmosphere which encourages people to look for employment."

Rose breeders have grown a thornless rose, but the goal of a true blue rose still eludes them, says National Geographic.

Redwood National Park Not Much Of Park Yet

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A majestic sweep of giant redwoods — some taller than a 30-story building — stands today in the serene sanctuary of Redwood National Park, no longer threatened by the saws, axes and bulldozers of timbermen.

But a few of the conservationists who fought so hard for creation of the park a little over three years ago are pleased with what they see there.

Timbermen and local residents also call the park a failure, or—at the very least—a disappointment.

Some even dispute the notion that the redwoods in the park are being saved.

cause the elaborate measures to protect the redwoods will destroy their natural cycle of regeneration.

That theory—advanced by some timbermen—is sharply disputed by conservationists. But that is only one of many controversies still raging over the 58,000-acre park stretched along California's rugged coast 300 miles north of San Francisco.

Conservationists want the park expanded to protect another 47,000 acres of redwoods from cutting by the lumber companies who own virtually all the land surrounding the park.

The conservationists also dispute some of the logging practices in the commercial forests around the park, and they have a separate, continuing, complex battle with timbermen on those issues—particularly so-called "clear-cut" logging.

The timbermen and many local officials say neither the lumber companies nor the local tax rolls can afford to have any more land taken out of their timber harvest reserves and put in parks.

Uses of the park—whether for campers, day visitors by auto or hikers—are also still topics of intense debate. Even who will run the park is not yet settled.

One thing seems agreed upon by all sides—Redwood National Park is not much of a park yet.

The park today is a hodgepodge of parcels of state and federally owned tracts mixed in with private timber land. It extends nearly 60 miles along the coast, including 30 miles of rugged, fog-shrouded coastal beaches and bluffs. About half is virgin timber and the other half is once-logged land, some as recently as 1966.

A twisting 10-mile-long, one-half-mile wide "tail" of the park extends south through privately-owned timberland up Redwood Creek to Tall Trees Area, site of the tallest living tree.

North of that is Lady Bird Johnson grove, site of presidential dedication ceremonies two years ago.

The main coastal highway extends the length of the park, but only one of three information centers is on that highway, and that center is not in the park.

The park's most notable attraction is a 500-year-old redwood tree which stands 367.8 feet high and is believed to be the tallest living thing on earth.

But the tallest tree is 8.5 miles from the nearest visitor parking, outside of the park, and Park Supt. John H. Davis estimates only 800 to 1,000 persons made the long hike last year to visit the tree. Altogether, only 685 signed the visitor's register at the tree.

That is not a sign of failure to Davis, who feels he is still just getting started on the complex task of making a national park. But it is a point of deep disappointment to many area residents, who were counting on tourism trade from the park to boost their sagging, timber-based economy.

The tourists haven't flocked to the park, and many local businessmen say they never will. But others are anxious to solve the knotty administrative and ownership problems between the state and federal governments and get a master plan adopted so the park can be developed.

Most of the issues revolve around one central, yet-unresolved question: What should a redwood park be?

Although most of the $92 million appropriated for the park by Congress in 1968 has been spent on land acquisition, the issues of the purpose and philosophy of the park are still not settled.

Brochures for visitors say the park was created "primarily to protect a representative segment of old growth redwoods and outstanding coastal scenery."

Specific plans are contained in a master plan which has been printed in a working draft but has not yet been presented to Congress for adoption. Davis says until it is adopted—possibly by this summer—little can be done to develop the park.

The plan has upset conservationists, because it concedes the present 50,000-acre boundaries to be final. It also says the park shall be managed as "a natural area" of the National Park System, which would preclude some of the intensive park development some persons hoped would be the base of a large tourist industry.

Davis says he envisions some sort of tram train system that would give visitors access to important parts of the park without the disruption of highways. But he says large tracts of the park probably will be accessible only to backpackers.

But the primary objective stated in the proposed master plan to "insure that there will always be superlative groves of redwood that possess the esthetic quality for which the park was established."

Even that is disputed by some timbermen, who say the redwoods will die if simply kept in the sort of preserve conservationists want the national park to be.

"They'll be calling it 'Hemlock National Forest' in 100 years," said Kramer Adams, conservation director of the California Redwood Association, the spokesman for the area's lumber companies.

Adams said redwoods in their natural state were periodically thinned by fire, to which the redwoods are more resistant than other vegetation.

The fires cleared the way for new redwood growth and kept the redwood forest constantly regenerating itself, he said.

"But now we've protected them from fire, and they'll protect them from cutting (in the national forest). Someday the only redwoods left will be those planted by the industry," Adams said.

The national park is made up of three state parks totaling nearly 28,000 acres and another 30,000 acres bought from local timber companies. Both portions of the park have created controversy.

The three state parks, developed over 45 years, are still operated by the state.

Clergy Respond To Data Bank

NEW YORK (AP) — More than half the clergy of the Episcopal Church—4,500 of them—have joined in a new data bank method, the Church
Manpower System, for filling career openings.
In a first-year progress report on the new system, the Rev. Roddey Reid, executive director of the Clergy Deployment office, called the 50 per cent response so far by the church's 8,700 clergy a "most encouraging start toward meeting that age-old problem of the church: matching the right person with the right job."

In 1852 more than 1,200
steamboats plied the Mississippi River.

Comet Will Be Less Of A Spectacle

By MICHAEL A. CHIHAK
Associated Press Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) —
Grandma and grandpa: if you're telling your grandchildren of the spectacle of Halley's Comet when you saw it as children in 1910, you're building them up for a disappointment when it returns in 1985.

Halley won't be as bright and won't have the gigantic, phenomenal tail it displayed on its 1910 trip, says University of Arizona astronomer Elizabeth Roemer. Dr. Roemer, a comet specialist, said Halley came within 16 million miles of the earth in 1910.

The famous comet takes a little more than 75 years to make its elongated orbit. However, when it comes back on its next trip around the sun, it won't come nearly as close to earth as in 1910.

Dr. Roemer explained the earth will be in a different position in its annual orbit when Halley reaches its perihelion or near point, to the sun. Halley is expected to be closest to the sun in February of 1986, and will only pass within 60 million miles of the earth at its closest, she said.

Because of that distance, and because of its distance from the sun and angle in relation to the earth, the comet's tail won't appear as long or as bright, she said.

In fact, Dr. Roemer predicted Halley won't be any more spectacular than Comet Bennett was when it passed close to the earth last year. Halley's best visibility to the unaided eye will come in November or December of 1985, she said.

Astronomers will have almost three years to observe and photograph Halley as it swings toward, passes by and then leaves the earth's proximity in the 1980s, Dr. Roemer said. It first will become visible in telescopes in the fall of 1984, and will disappear from telescopic sight in 1987.

She said there is even some discussion among scientists now about the possibility of a manned space trip to "meet" the comet, with the space ship "escorting" Halley as it approaches the earth. Much data about the composition of Halley and of comets in general could be picked up through such a venture, she said.

English astronomer Edmund Halley is credited with first sighting the comet in 1682, although he himself traced its sightings back before Christ.

Halley, using Isaac Newton's law of motion, was able to correctly predict the comet would return in 1758, 16 years after his death.

Synthetics Mean New Techniques

NEW YORK (UPI)—All the new synthetics in the piece goods departments mean a new look at sewing techniques. One-hundred per cent polyester thread or cotton-covered polyester, good for all fabrics, are especially helpful in sewing materials containing synthetics. The cotton-covered polyester is available in a wide range of colors and has the strength, stretch recovery and low shrinkage needed for sewing permanent press, knits and textured wovens. In addition, the all-polyester is highly durable through repeated washings.

Read The Label On Pesticides

NEW YORK (UPI)—Read labels carefully before using any pesticide.

Even if it's a brand you've used for years, check the label because products formulas change and improve. If any is spilled accidentally on skin or clothing, wash skin thoroughly with warm water and soap and remove clothing. The Soap and Detergent Association says if the clothing is washable, it's a good idea to launder it immediately and apart from other clothing.

OVERTIME PICKERS

TOKYO (UPI)—Women tea pickers work overtime on the day the Japanese call Hachi Juhachiya, the 88th night after the first day of spring in the lunar calendar. Japanese tradition says that tea leaves picked on Hachi Juachiya make a person immune to disease.

The Worry Clinic

Male Reasons For 'Straying'

Ada doubts Dr. Joyce Brothers' diagnosis of erring husbands! No woman can fully comprehend the erotic viewpoint of mature men. Women advisers can understand boys and girls, plus wives and mothers. But not grown men!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case T-591: Ada J., aged 27, has a sex problem.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "we have been happily married for 5 years.
"But now I have just learned that my husband spent a night with a former coed classmate while I was visiting my parents... "What would make a man do such a thing?"

"What would make a man do such a thing?"
"Recently I read a remark by Dr. Joyce Brothers to the effect that a 'promiscuous man is usually looking for an unattainable goal, the perfect woman.'
"But my husband claims Dr. Brothers is entirely wrong, for he says he loves me more than anybody else.

"He insists he realized in advance that this former coed classmate didn't appeal to him half as much as I do, yet he says he got intoxicated by the romantic situation."
"For when she phoned him, he took her to a movie and then she invited him up to her hotel room for a drink."
"So who is correct-my husband or Dr. Joyce Brothers?"
Minunderstood Men
Women never fully understand the sex psychology of grown men!

That's why Joyce Brothers says the Don Juan or promiscuous male seduces girls in a scientific quest for the perfect woman.
You mature wives should be partially able to detect that error even though you can't fully understand the male sexual viewpoint.
For after 10 to 20 years of happy marriage, you have certainly realized there must be some vital difference in the erotic outlook of husband versus wife.
And any intelligent male can tell you that it certainly is NOT his quest for a perfect woman which makes him enter into a clandestine affair.
In fact, we psychiatrists often hear husbands admit they'd much prefer to have an affair with their wives instead of their paramours.
"But," they protest, "our wives are too preoccupied with the children or church and PTA duties so they are rather indifferent to boudoir romancing."
These same straying husbands will also confess that they aren't interested in marrying their paramours!

So here are the real reasons why a married man may kick over the traces and have a sexual tryst with an outside siren:
(1) Unsatisfied sexual hunger! For men are endowed with about 4 times the erotic desire of their wives.
They also have almost double the gastric appetite of women.
Wives, if your husband happens to patronize a restaurant operated by a female chef, that doesn't mean he wants to marry the cook!
Same is also true of erotic menus served up by lush sirens!
(2) Conquest! Men are basically competitive creatures so they relish changing a protesting female's "No" into a "Yes."
(3) Sex tonic! After 20 years of marriage, they may find their erotic fervor waning as regards their wife.
In their resulting panic, they try to get her to perk up in her seductive allure so she will serve more enticing cheesecake in their boudoir.
If she ignores these danger signs of a potentially straying male, they may then resort to an outside paramour to restore their sex ego to par.
(4) Sometimes men are motivated chiefly by a desire for a pay-off for dinner and the theater, or even revenge!
So send for my medical booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, ad-

Clergy Join A Data Bank

NEW YORK (UPI)—Half the clergy of the Episcopal Church, more than 4,500 diocesan bishops, deans, rectors, vicars and others, have joined in the new data bank method—the Church Manpower System—for filling career openings.
Start-up costs for this national personnel inventory method of assembling and regularly updating personnel files of the ministry for the use of parishes, dioceses and the national church, were underwritten by the Episcopal Church Foundation, an independent organization of laymen who support the work of the Church.
The Rev. Roddey Reid Jr., executive director of the Clergy Deployment Office, in his first-year progress report said the 50 per cent response by the Church's 8,700 active clergy met initial objectives, and that an additional 20 to 25 per cent will be sought during the next 12 months. The Rev. Reid said more than 100 requests for detailed profiles — embodying 259 pieces of personal information on each questionnaire — have been or are being processed since the people-search part of the operation was inaugurated. An average of five profiles per search, more than 500 candidates all told, have been sent out in response to requests so far received, he reported.
