Can't Decide On How To Pay Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has drawn up the biggest expansion ever of the Social Security and welfare programs, but it hasn't figured out how to pay for it.

Committee members try again today to solve the last obstacle remaining before final committee approval which would clear the bill for floor debate.

The panel announced Monday that the annual cost of the measure would be $17.6 billion when it became fully effective in 1974. Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said this would be by far the greatest single increase since the two programs first were enacted as part of the same law in 1935.

Nixon administration specialists disagreed with the committee estimates and insisted that the true cost would be $24.1 billion, or $6.5 billion more than the committee's total.

Panel members have been wrestling for three days with how to finance the higher Social Security benefits. They are trying to come up with some combination of higher tax rates and changes in the wage base—the amount of annual earnings on which the tax is paid.

Conservatives in control of the committee, seeking to trim the costs of benefits already voted, put through a revision Monday which would deny to persons at the bottom of the scale the general 10 per cent Social Security increase voted last Friday.

Under this decision, individuals getting the present minimum of $70.40 a month would be limited to a 5 per cent increase. This decision also limited to 5 per cent persons aged 72 and over not qualified for full Social Security but allowed special benefits under a 1967 law.

First District GOP On Record Endorsing Agnew

NEW BERN — The First District Republicans were on record here Saturday as supporting Vice-President Agnew for renomination in Miami.

This was done when a resolution was made from the floor at the First District Republican Convention here and unanimously carried. The resolution urged the First District delegates to do all in their power to see that the Vice President was renominated. Bill Dansey, the First District Chairman, noted after the resolution was passed that this in no way bound the delegation. There had been some rumors that the vice-president might be dropped from the ticket at the National Convention.

Dansey said that the main order of business was to elect two delegates, two alternates and one elector. There was competition for all positions except the elector, John P. East of Greenville was elected by acclamation. Mrs. Eloise Howard of Greenville and R. Frank Everette of Hamilton were elected delegates and Mrs. Alm Tilgman of Beaufort and Kenneth Robinson of Robinsonville were elected as the two alternates.

Dansey said he was pleased at the turn out of over 200 persons in attendance at the Craven County Courthouse in New Bern with representatives from 19 of the 21 counties in the First Congressional District.

Resignation Of Rouse Is Formally Submitted

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — GOP Chairman Frank Rouse, who set off a party feud by campaigning for gubernatorial hopeful Jim Gardner, submitted his resignation today to the state Republican Executive Committee.

Rouse, a Kinston contractor, wrote members of the committee that his resignation was effective immediately.

Although pledging to support all Republican candidates in the general election this fall, Rouse said in an interview that he would not be at the state GOP convention in Greensboro Saturday.

"I'm tired of fighting Republicans," he said.

Gardner, who lost the Republican runoff primary to Jim Holshouser by 1,564 votes, called a news conference in Raleigh Monday to urge retention of Rouse as party chairman. He depicted Rouse as the only man capable of uniting the party and attracting enough Democratic voters for a GOP victory this fall.

Holshouser last week issued a statement through an aide accepting Rouse's resignation. At that time Rouse maintained he had not resigned.

Rouse and Holshouser have conferred at least twice by telephone since the runoff on June 3. They also have met face-to-face for a discussion of Rouse's support for Gardner.

The unprecedented leave of absence by Rouse to work for Gardner broke a political tradition of neutrality by top party officials in primaries.

Rouse campaigned actively for the state chairmanship last fall, winning it when Holshouser resigned to devote full time to being a candidate.

Rouse made the party post, which is not salaried, a fulltime job.

Begin Burying Rapid City Victims; Search Goes On

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer
RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Burial of Rapid City's flood victims begins today in three cemeteries while survivors continue the search for the dead.

Individual graveside services will be conducted for the identified victims who died late Friday and early Saturday when rain-swollen Rapid Creek erupted through this city of 43,000 persons in the shadow of the Black Hills.

"The services will probably go for at least a week," said a funeral director. A mass memorial service is scheduled Sunday at a local high school.

Civil Defense reported Sunday that the death toll stood at more than 200, but on Monday it said the toll was 175. However, newsmen counted 161 identified bodies and 31 unidentified, a total of 192. The toll was expected to climb.

A spokesman said duplication of reports and confusion caused erroneous reports. Officials said some bodies were moved to nearby communities Sunday when three Rapid City mortuaries used as temporary morgues became overcrowded.

The Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald reported in today's editions that two cloud-seeding experiments were conducted Friday in the Rapid City area, one of them about 5 p.m., an hour before the devastating rains began.

The experiments were conducted by the Institute of Atmospheric Sciences, South Dakota School of Mines & Technology "for increasing water supply and studying the dynamics of hail production," the copyright article quotes an unnamed federal official as saying.

The newspaper quoted Prof. Arnett Dennis, chief of the institute's meteorological analysis group, as saying the experiments "had totally and absolutely nothing to do with the storm that hit Rapid City. I would stake my life on that."

As the cleanup and search continued at Rapid City, Maj.

Gen. Duane L. Corning, commander of the South Dakota National Guard, said, "Guardsmen have been finding bodies all day. It will continue for days and days."

Mayor Donald Barnett said he believes many bodies were washed downstream and never will be recovered. Farmers in outlying areas were asked to search their properties for bodies.

Barnett imposed a 9 p.m. to daylight curfew for the third day.

Officials said at least 400 persons were on the missing list, but Barnett added the list was shrinking "as the living find the missing and both of them report to us."

The number of injured was impossible to estimate, officials said.

The Army Corps of Engineers was keeping close watch on a dam near Sturgis, 25 miles north of Rapid City. Engineers said the dam, which holds 22 million gallons of water, was weakened by the torrential rains and that pumps were being used to relieve the pressure.

Should Renegotiate Land Price, Rules Arbitrator

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the Greenville City Board of Education should renegotiate the purchase price with the seller of a 30-acre tract of land wanted by the school board as a site for a new junior high school. Superior Court Clerk H. L. Lewis said yesterday.

property at $4,500 per acre, say the price is fair.

At a meeting last week, each board voted on whether to approve of the price and the vote resulted in a tie.

The matter was then referred to Lewis who, according to state law, was to rule on the disagreement.

Lewis' answer came yesterday.

According to the Superior Court Clerk's reply, "the arbitrator finds ...

chase price of $135,000 is a proper and reasonable amount at which to commence said renegotiation."

Commenting on Lewis' finding, Charles Gaskins, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, said this morning "We are not sure just what it meant ... of where we stand legally on the thing now ..."

He said County Attorney W. W. Speight is expected to advise the board later today on what their legal position is.

Gaskins, outlining his board's stand on disapproving the $150,000 expenditure said "the commissioners just had the professionals place a value on the land and they came up with a price cheaper than the $150,000. We have had nothing presented to change that ... to make it appear that they (the appraisers) were wrong."

Board of Education chairman Dr. E. B. Aycock said he had no statement to make on Lewis' findings, but explained the school board "gave it (the proposed location for the new school) a lot of serious thought ... investigated about ten properties" and considered the Evans tract "the best."

He said the site is located in an area where there is a concentration of kids who can walk to school and cut down a lot on busing. "It seems to me it's an ideal situation."

During earlier discussions between the two boards, school officials indicated the reduced cost in busing students and the nearness of the city's new 25-acre recreation facility (across a proposed street from the school site) would off-set the higher price being asked for the land. The indicated the school would be able to use facilities at the park for physical education programs thus eliminating the need to build similar facilities at the school.

Bag MIGs

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli air force fighters shot down two Soviet-built Egyptian MIG21 jets today in a dogfight over the Mediterranean, the military command reported.

The Egyptian pilots were seen parachuting into the sea about 25 miles off the Sinai Desert, a spokesman said.

The Israeli planes returned safely, he added. He did not disclose how many planes were flying in the patrol which spotted the Egyptians or the type of Israeli fighters involved.

Use $35,000 Cars For Studying Drivers

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Have you ever driven a $35,000 car—complete with gold steering wheel?

Well, you may not have, but about 85 Greenville area residents will by early this afternoon.

The drivers—the majority of them employees of Union Carbide Corporation's Consumer Products Division here—were participants in a research project sponsored by the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles' Drivers License Division.

The two high-priced vehicles—unlike the average car with a one-color paint job, power steering and brakes, automatic transmission and air conditioning from outward appearances—were equipped with special and high-priced electronic sensors to measure the drivers' reactions over the mile-long course the volunteers drove.

Dan McIntyre, drivers license examiner who has been engaged in research projects with the cars for the past two years explained.

The current test, he said, is part of a study designed to set norms or standards for driver reactions.

Already about 2,000 North Carolina drivers have driven the cars along a one-mile course.

"We try to find the straightest road possible and measure the drivers' reactions."

Recorders in the car—a counter in the front seat visible to the examiners and a tape recorder in the car's trunk suitable for use with data processing equipment, register a variety of operator control movements such as steering, braking, and acceleration.

The gold steering wheel (actually gold plated, not solid gold) senses the drivers' "heart rate and galvanic skin responses," McIntyre explained.

Other sensors make it possible to record the running time (when the test car is moving two miles per hour or more), mileage, speed changes (each time speed increases or decreases as much as two miles per hour or more), fine steering (each time driver moves the

Plans Office Building On Newtown Site

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
David A. Evans, president and treasurer of Garriss-Evans Lumber Co., qualified as a bidder Monday night for a parcel in the Newtown Project area and revealed plans for an office building on the site.

Appearing before the Redevelopment Commission, Evans presented floor plans calling for an office building and warehouse structure that he proposes for construction on Disposal Parcel D-5, a block located west of Boyd Avenue and between Short, Factory and Wade Streets.

Evans, who noted that he was also qualifying on behalf of Plato Evans, secretary of Garriss-Evans Lumber, said that the new structure would have a showroom facing Boyd Avenue and warehouse or storage space in the rear.

Commissioners approved Evans as a bidder subject to staff analysis.

He also indicated an interest in Disposal Parcel E-1, a triangular parcel fronting on Short Street and bounded by the Blount Fertilizer Co. property, Norfolk-Southern Railroad, and Ridgeway Street. Commissioners took no action on the matter since development plans were not presented.

Commissioners authorized the use of the Town Common area in Shore Drive by the Greenville Jaycees during a planned July 4th celebration.

Jerry Cox and Floyd Little, representing the local chapter, pointed out that the Jaycees have secured liability insurance as a precaution against damage to the radio tower facility in the area and also arranged for police and fire department coordination.

Commission chairman Billy Laughinghouse noted that the major concern involving the use of the Town Common is one of vehicular traffic on the grounds, especially in the area of the underground wires leading to the tower.

The spokesmen assured the commission that adequate supervision and patrolling will be taken care of and the area will be cleaned up following the celebration activities.

Plans, they reported, call for a variety of volunteer participation events as well as an antique car show and concessions. Fireworks are planned for the night of the fourth, it was added, and the project has been approved by the proper local agencies.

Approval of the use of the area was given by the commissioners, subject to review by the attorney.

Real Estate Officer Kirby Boyd reported that bids were opened on June 6 for two houses in the R-61, Newtown area. One bid was received for a removal of the old Pollard house and six were received for the removal of a structure on Ridgeway Street. Commissioners approved the single bid on the Pollard house and also the highest bid on the second structure.

Organizer Saul Alinsky Is Dead

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — "Life is too short not to be full of passion and conviction."

The words are those of Saul David Alinsky of Chicago who spent more than a quarter of a century practicing what he preached as one of the nation's leading organizers of community-action groups.

Alinsky, 63, died Monday after collapsing on a sidewalk in this coastal community. The cause of death was not immediately learned.

A professional organizer with a strong aversion to welfare programs, Alinsky organized the poor and minority groups around one basic concept—the power of numbers.

"People don't get opportunity or freedom or equality or dignity as a gift or as an act of charity," he said. "They only get these things in the act of taking them through their own efforts."

And the way to change things, he stressed, is to organize.

From Southern California, where he organized Mexican-Americans as well as teaching Cesar Chavez how to organize a grape boycott, to New York where he helped poor whites and blacks get jobs, Alinsky taught people to do their own fighting.

His first venture, begun in the late 1930s, was to help the poor in the slums surrounding the Chicago Stock Yards by organizing them into blocs powerful enough to win concessions from city officials and business leaders.

Don't Rely On Floating Aids

CHICAGO (UPI)—When non-swimmers among the toddlers or grown-up set use water wings or other inflatables to help keep them afloat in a pool, lake, or sea, remember this:

The inflated floating aid may suddenly lose air. If the user supported by the device cannot swim, there is a good chance he will sink—and maybe drown. The rule to follow here, for safety's sake: don't let anyone using these devices depend on them in water that will be over their heads. Make sure such users stay in the shallow water.

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's drive to put a conservative face on the Supreme Court is meeting with success. But the rightward drift in criminal law is not interrupted. Sometimes the Court seems to be going in two directions at once as it did Monday.

With resistance from only two of the Nixon nominees, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist, the Court in one ruling actually expanded one of the landmark decisions of the liberal '60s: the right of all defendants, rich or poor, to have a lawyer defend them at trial.

The opinion came from the pen of William O. Douglas, an activist in applying the Bill of Rights long before Earl Warren even became chief justice.

Douglas said the Sixth Amendment guarantees a defendant a lawyer whenever he faces a possible jail sentence. Warren's conservative successor, Warren E. Burger, went along. So did Harry A. Blackmun, another Nixon nominee.

It wasn't until 1963 and the Gideon decision that defendants who were charged with "serious crimes" and could not afford a lawyer were guaranteed that one would be provided by the state.

In the nine years since, the Court and most of the states have confined this right to trials that could lead to jail terms of at least six months.

But Douglas said the Sixth Amendment calls for a lawyer whenever a trial could result in "deprivation of a person's liberty."

Unwaved by the change this will require, he pointed out some 18,000 new lawyers are admitted to practice yearly—more than eight times the estimated number needed to represent all poor people charged with misdemeanors other than traffic offenses.

And most misdemeanors, he said, will not call for a lawyer since most do not lead to a jail sentence.

Within minutes of announcing this decision, however, the Court in another ruling carried forward the "law and order" theme of Nixon's 1968 presidential campaign. This was a 6-3 decision that gives police broader powers to conduct street searches without warrants.

Four years ago, the Court gingerly granted exceptions to the general Fourth Amendment rule that police cannot stop a citizen and search him unless the officer has "probable cause" to make an arrest.

The principal exception allowed a "stop and frisk" when the officer feared his life might be endangered.

Now the Court has gone on to approve the search of a man sitting in a parked car on the basis of a tipster's word that he is carrying a loaded handgun in his waistband.

The search, in Bridgeport, Conn., in 1966, turned up some heroin and the suspect was tried and convicted on narcotics and gun charges.

Said Justice Rehnquist, the newest and probably most conservative Nixon appointee: "The Fourth Amendment does not require a policeman who lacks the precise level of information necessary for probable cause to arrest to simply shrug his shoulders and allow a crime to occur or a criminal to escape."

Justice Thurgood Marshall, in dissent, noted that simply carrying a gun was not illegal in Connecticut. Therefore, he said, the officer had no more reason to suspect a crime than he would have if the frisked man, Robert Williams, were wearing a blue shirt.

Marshall said the decision "expands the concept of warrantless searches far beyond anything heretofore recognized as legitimate."

Douglas and Justice William

J. Brennan Jr. also dissented. But the four Nixon appointees plus Potter Stewart and Byron R. White won out.

Last week, it was the four Nixon appointees plus Stewart combining to give police authority to place arrested suspects in lineups without a lawyer on hand.

The week before, it was the four Nixon appointees plus White holding the Constitution does not require unanimity of jurors for conviction in most criminal cases in state court.

On the same day, three Nixon appointees lined up with White and Stewart to limit the immunity from prosecution that is to be guaranteed witnesses who are forced to testify before grand juries.

The fourth appointee, Rehnquist, disqualified himself from voting.

Park Bears Are Very Uncertain

NEW YORK (UPI)—In the dense woods, including those set aside for national parks, figure you're not apt to meet any terribly friendly bears. Safety authorities recommend that for self-interest, visitors to bear turf refrain from feeding or irritating the animals.

When camping in bear country, don't toss garbage into a heap. Follow rules set up for disposal of same so the hungry bears don't make their way into your campground during the day or night, drawn to the scene by the scent of edibles. Some bears kill humans in their way—provoked by the humans or tempted by carelessly-strewn garbage. To scare bears, bang pots and pans together.

Cancel Wolf Fur Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has cancelled an order for more than a quarter-million parka hoods lined with wolf fur in an effort to save North America's vanishing timber wolves.

The timber wolf is on the government's list of endangered species.

The National Wildlife Federation had estimated that 25,000 wolves would have to be slaughtered to fill the order for 277,502 parka hoods. This was nearly one-half of the estimated wolf population in North America, the federation said, and there was fear the loss would doom the species.

Rep. William Whitehurst, R-Va., who had protested the initial order, announced it had been cancelled Monday. He said the U.S. Army Materiel Command planned to develop and test a synthetic substitute for the fur that would have similar frost-resistant properties.

Whitehurst said use of synthetic fur is expected to reduce the cost of each hood by nearly $4, resulting in a net savings of $1.1 million.

Miami Beach Police Chief Hopes Avoid Chaos During Conventions

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The man charged with keeping order during the 1972 presidential conventions is a beefy, one-time amateur boxer who reads books by Clarence Darrow and Truman Capote and who can quote Thomas Wolfe and Cicero.

Miami Beach Police Chief

Rocky Pomerance recalls a boyhood in the East Bronx "where you didn't grow up, you survived," but he remembers more vividly the street violence that erupted in Chicago at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

He wants to avoid such disorders when both Democrats and Republicans conduct their nominating conventions in his city this summer.

For Pomerance, chief of police since July 4, 1963, conventions are nothing new. Miami Beach is a mecca for such activity—"we've had dozens of bigger conventions that have brought in more people."

But political conventions attract more than the delegates, and Pomerance has been planning for months to prevent chaos in the streets. By convention time, his 250 men will have received about 100 hours training on mob psychology and the importance of dissent.

Some of the seminars have involved talks with spokesmen for groups that plan to demonstrate, including Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin of the Yippies.

At 6-feet, 260 pounds with broad shoulders, Pomerance looks like the stereotype of a cop's cop.

His woodpaneled office is windowless. Book shelves take up wall space. There are police administration texts, Miami Beach ordinances, novels—"The Godfather" by Mario Puzo, "In Cold Blood" by Capote. There is "Crime in America" by Estes Kefauver, the late Democratic senator from Tennessee, and "Attorney for the Damned" by Darrow.

Pomerance's formal education stopped after high school. He had been valedictorian at Public School 6 in the Bronx and received straight A's at Evander Childs High School.

Pomerance moved to Miami Beach with his mother after high school. His father had died when he was 5.

Pomerance was refused by the Naval Air Corps in World War II because of poor color perception, but was accepted by the Merchant Marine. After the war, he spent a year in the Army.

He had fought on the streets of the Bronx, and he became a service boxer, "fighting for three-day passes and a steak."

Returning to Miami Beach, Pomerance became a mailman, then joined the police department because "they paid more than what I was doing. Only later did I begin to realize the significance of police work. Now I say that we're the only social welfare agency that's open after 5 p.m. and on week-ends."

Church Accepts 'Restructuring'

MONTREAT, N. C. (AP) — The Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (Southern) has accepted a proposal for the first major restructuring of its organization in 23 years.

The 450 commissioners or delegates at the denomination's General Assembly in the mountain conference area of Montreat voted Monday to consolidate the church's 14 boards, commissions, and agencies under a single general executive board.

The board, with five divisions, would be responsible for all churchwide programs. Delegates accepted the proposal after four hours of debate.

The consolidation also would reduce the number of synods within the Southern branch of American Presbyterianism from 15 to 7.

At a news conference Monday, the newly elected moderator of the church, Dr. L. Nelson Bell, said he is still opposed to the major issue facing the church—merger with the Northern branch, the United Presbyterian Church.

The two churches separated during the Civil War and several efforts at reunification have failed.

Bell, of Montreat, is the father-in-law of evangelist Billy Graham.

Bell was at one time a member of one of four groups which threatened to form a new Presbyterian denomination if the merger forced the Southern church to liberalize its confession of faith.

He has since split from that group and called for Southern unity.

He said he felt one reason for the "sickness of many churches," is their failure to impose discipline on the members.

He suggested that churches might deny communion to members whose lives obviously are at variance with professed belief.

Bell also endorsed President Nixon's conduct of the war.

The 112th annual meeting of the General Assembly will continue through Friday.

$33,491 Grant And Aid Funds Are Announced

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced that East Carolina University has been awarded $33,491 in grant and aid funds for closed circuit television equipment, a laboratory and other instructional equipment and materials by the U.S. Office of Education.

The First District congressman reported also that Pitt Technical Institute received $4,098 in funds for a laboratory and other instructional equipment and materials.

Congress authorizes grant and aid funds of this type under the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Bowen-Alcock Vows Solemnized

ORMONDSVILLE—The Ormondsville Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Connie Haddock Alcock and Danny Patrick Bowen on Friday at 8:00 p.m.

The Rev. Clifton Rice, pastor of the bridegroom, performed the double ring ceremony. A program of organ music was presented by Ralph A. Bowen. Miss Ellen Heidenreich and Miss Susie Hill sang a duet "Love," accompanied by guitars.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Cullen Haddock of Rt. 2, Greenville, and Mrs. Estelle Rose Bowen of Rt. 1, Ayden, and the late Mr. David A. Bowen.

The couple entered the church together. The bride was attired in a street length dress of beige lace and bridal satin designed with a V-neckline and empire waistline. The long lace sleeves were finished with a ruffle.

Her shoulder length veil of illusion was attached to a matching lace headpiece. The bride carried a lace covered Bible centered with yellow roses tied with long white streamers with love knots.

Ushers were Cullen Glenn Haddock of Rt. 2, Greenville, brother of the bride, and Kenneth R. Bowen of Rt. 1, Ayden, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother was dressed in a mint green crepe dress with three-quarter length sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom selected a crepe ensemble of pastel pink with three-quarter length sleeves. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

Mrs. L. O. Hemby, grandmother of the bride, chose an azure blue dress and wore a white carnation corsage.

After a wedding trip to western North Carolina, the couple will reside at Rt. 2, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is employed as a cosmetologist at the Beauty Nook, Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School, Snow Hill, and is presently employed as a salesman for Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception given by the bride's parents was held in the fellowship building of the church.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Ray Worthington and Mrs. Kenneth Ray Bowen of Kinston, Mrs. Fred Meadows and Mrs. Edward Moorin of Rt. 1, Ayden. Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Bowen Jr. presided at the guest book and said good-byes.

Order Of Eastern Star Queen Named

COLERAIN — A Greenville retired teacher, Mrs. Flora P. Joyner, was crowned queen of the Sixth District Order of Eastern Star Friday.

She won honors in competition with 22 Order of Eastern Star Chapters. Mrs. Joyner represented Pride of the East No. 524 of Greenville.

A Pitt County native, she received her academic training from Joseph K. Brick School, her A.B. degree from Howard University and M.A. degree from Columbia University. She has done further study at East Carolina, N. C. Central and Elizabeth City State Universities.

Mrs. Joyner will represent District No. 6 at the State Grand Chapter meeting. Each bride in the contest was given a certificate of meritorious service. Approximately 250 officers and members were in attendance at the meeting which was held at the Ashland Baptist Church.

Grand officers present included: Maggie Strong, Grand Worthy Matron; Katie Hart, Grand Educational Director; Josephine Reaves, Grand District Deputy of District Six; and Willa G. Williams, Grand youth Supervisor of the East.

Other officers included: Mary D. Fields, District Matron; Gertrude McKoy, Associate Matron; and Monty Frizzell, Associate Patron.

Among the activities of the day were a group workshop, a memorial service and the bride's contest.

A Plan To Take The 'X' Out Of Movies

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Everybody keeps talking about how dirty the movies are nowadays, but nobody does anything about it.

I think that every time we see an "X" or "R" rated movie advertised, we should write to the president of the studio that made that movie and tell him that this is one movie our family will not be seeing. And when they start making clean movies, we will be glad to see them.

If you printed this letter, Abby, and people all across the country started writing letters, do you think it might help to get all this raw sex out of the movies? DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: It might. But how do we get the "raw sex" out of the balconies and drive-ins?

DEAR ABBY: We are grandparents in our sixties. We have two married children who live in a city not too far from us. We never go there uninvited, so it cannot be said that we make pests of ourselves.

We have heard that they have come to our city to shop, or visit, but they haven't even bothered to call us. We have the usual family get-togethers at our home for Christmas and Easter, but they never stay very long, and we are made to feel that they regard it more a duty than a pleasure to be with us.

We send them and our grandchildren gifts, which are seldom acknowledged.

What has happened to the manners and Christian love we taught them? We denied ourselves many things so they could both have good educations to prepare them for the fine professions they now practice so successfully.

On those few occasions when we go to their homes they do not even have the courtesy to see us to the door when we leave.

Please, Abby, tell us where we have failed?

UNAPPRECIATED AND NEGLECTED

DEAR U AND N: Don't assume that YOU have failed. THEY have failed. Occupy yourself with other things and don't dwell on their lack of appreciation and neglect. If the calamity doesn't overcome you, feeling sorry for yourselves will.

DEAR ABBY: While at the grocery store this morning, a woman struck up a conversation with me about my baby girl, who was in the infant seat of my shopping cart.

The lady asked me how old she was and when I said, "Two and a half months," she acted horrified and then she went into this long-winded speech about how fat she was, and asked if my doctor had put her on a diet yet because her grandson had the same "problem!"

Abby, my baby got a very healthy start in life [11 pounds, three ounces at birth], and she weighs 14 pounds now and doesn't look like a slob. On the contrary, my doctor is very pleased with her progress.

I admit that my baby does look older than she is, because she's larger than most babies her age; but I don't appreciate hearing that I should "do something" about her "infant obesity." This isn't the first time this has happened. If it happens again, what should I say to shut them up?

PROUD MOMMY

DEAR PROUD: Say, "Thank you, but my doctor tells me my child is just fine." Then head for the frozen food section.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: The person who says he isn't "interested" in politics is like the drowning man who says he isn't interested in water. NOW is the time to make sure you are registered so you can vote. And if you aren't happy with the way things are going in this country, and you haven't voted, don't complain.

MUSHROOMS WITH CASHEW NUTS

Prepared quickly in a large skillet.

1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (each 6 to 8 ounces) sliced mushrooms
6 tablespoons butter
½ cup minced onion
½ cup coarsely chopped cashew nuts

2 tablespoons minced parsley
Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms. In a large skillet over low heat melt butter; add onion and cook, stirring often, until softened. Stir in mushrooms and cook rapidly, stirring constantly, until wilted. Stir in nuts and parsley; heat only until hot. Makes 6 servings.

Significant Parts Overlooked

While the anti-busing provisions of the new federal education bill attracted most attention, other parts of the measure passed recently by Congress represent the most far-reaching higher education legislation since the establishment of land-grant colleges.

The measure provides for direct discretionary funding for individual institutions, direct financial contributions to colleges and universities for each Vietnam war veteran enrolled, and among other things a national institute to foster research into all aspects of learning.

It also entitles every college student to a federal grant of up to $1,400 a year for his college education, minus what his parents can afford to contribute toward his education.

At least in its outline form, the new legislation opens the door for literally additional billions of dollars a year to flow from the federal government into higher education. It gives the institutions greater latitude than ever before in determining how much of these funds may be spent.

With such far-reaching legislation, there is always the question of how effective the funds will be once they reach the level for which they are intended. There is the question of how much additional federal bureaucracy will be necessary to administer such a program, and how much red tape there will be to tie up and absorb the funds before they reach the educational level.

It is regrettable that the anti-busing rider which was attached to the principal bill gained such public attention that the other sweeping provisions of the measure were almost lost from view.

Even without the anti-busing provision, the measure will become a new milestone with respect to federal aid to education. In the long haul it could have a greater impact upon education than the combined effect of all the legislation passed in this field in the past decade.

Split Tickets More Common

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Voters are outsmarting the politicians and looking away from political parties as a guide to their choice between candidates.

It adds up to a brand of "no party" politics in which ticket-splitting is the accepted mode of ballot behavior.

Dr. Walter DeVries, author of a book on the subject, said more and more citizens look at the other polls. When Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor was told early in the year that polls gave him an "insurmountable lead" over Bowles, DeVries said, it probably was true. The trouble was, he added, that public opinion changed and Taylor didn't get the drift until too late.

"A poll is a picture in time," DeVries said. The comparison is to a snapshot, not a movie.

DeVries, who got $30,000 for his work, was making polls at weekly intervals in the final stage of the campaign.

Scott's Rating Dropped

To illustrate how public opinion changes, DeVries pointed out that Bowles as the choice of those polled went from 8 per cent in September to 55 per cent in June. The "good job" rating given Gov. Bob Scott by those interviewed dropped from 60 to 40 per cent during the polling months as his administration became an issue, DeVries said.

An abnormal undecided factor is a phenomenon of the current political environment across the country.

In the Tar Heel primary, for example, as many as 25 to 30 per cent of the voters were saying they hadn't made up their minds in any of the major races right up to the day of the voting.

The light turnout indicated many of the undecided never decided.

What that means puzzles analysts. DeVries said he doesn't have the answer. "It may be a kind of alienation," he speculated.

The message, he said, could be that large numbers of citizens see politicians as all alike and feel helpless in bringing about any changes.

"We used to believe if you gave the people a lot of information it would create interest and lead to participation. It's not working. We need to re-think the whole process to get greater involvement."

DeVries gained a healthy respect for Tar Heel voters. "They are like voters everywhere. Our studies showed that the voters are not stupid. They exercised discretion, they watch what the candidates do and say, and are interested."

A sophisticated electorate means a higher level of ticket-splitting, and elections more and more difficult to predict, said DeVries. "The idea that you can run a campaign by computer is garbage," he said. The people are just too smart for that."

Exultation In Polish Ranks

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WARSAW — Sweeping economic changes being made here by party leader Edward Gierek, a pragmatic Communist who used to toil in the coal mines of France, provide an essential backdrop for understanding the irresistible move toward detente with the West.

Relentless pressure from Poland and the Soviet Union's entire Eastern European empire is now focused on Moscow, reinforcing the Kremlin's own decision to move toward a new form of "partnership" with the U.S. That pressure is rooted in one hard fact: political stability in Central Europe and between Moscow and Washington must be established before serious economic improvements can be made.

Gierek came to power as the result of a threatened civil war in December of 1970 over price hikes on meat and other consumer goods in drastic short supply. He is now convinced that higher standards of living are the critical margin of safety for avoiding a new round of economic civil war with ominous political overtones.

That's why the Moscow summit between President Nixon and Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev was greeted here with an uncommunist-like exultation. That's why Richard Nixon is being enshrined by Polish apparatchiki as America's greatest President, fully deserving a second term. Mr. Nixon is seen here not only as the chief Western architect of detente but the only American capable of building on the Moscow summit during the next four years.

For Gierek, those next four years are crucial. He is now decentralizing major parts of the country's wage structure, giving local plant managers near autonomy. To go along with the promise of higher income—estimated at 18 per cent in real wages the next four years—Gierek is committed to a vast but slow build-up of consumer goods, starting with the big three: meat, housing and automobiles.

A somewhat similar decentralization (but not of the scale of Yugoslavia) has been blueprinted for production chiefs in such critical areas as cement. As one top party official told us: "Gierek is out to break the hold of the regional lobbies." That is, he is fighting production quotas and raw material allocations decreed from the top by Warsaw's planners who have vested interests in promoting their own regions.

One claimed result: a cement production increase of 1.5 million tons the next four years simply by better utilization of plant capacity. Likewise, in a frantic effort to break the politically-dangerous bottlenecks in new housing, the Politburo has embarked on a system of incentives intended to give both builders and workers more take-home pay.

But the promised increase in wages will be a new source of political danger unless there are consumer goods to buy. State banks now hold about $4 billion in savings—Polish money looking for cars, refrigerators, apartment, tape recorders and other items taken for granted in the West.

Stealing a leaf from the Kremlin, Gierek is promoting joint-venture deals with Western industrial giants such as Fiat, whose new Polish plant will produce 500,000 cars a year. Poland supplies labor, some materials and a guaranteed Polish market; Fiat supplies management, licenses and production technology.

Gierek's long-range plan: to wed Western technology and production to Eastern labor and consumption. To work with the U.S., he needs long-range credit from the Export-Import bank, a matter discussed but not resolved during Mr. Nixon's visit here last week.

The political dangers of this unprecedented opening to the West are obvious. More than 1 million Poles have crossed into comparatively prosperous East Germany since the border was opened in January, but that's only a starter. With a slight easing of Polish tourism to the capitalist West, the Poles are clamoring to go. What they see will act as an electrifying catalyst for more consumer demands in their own country.

Accordingly, even if Gierek's soaring economic blueprint can be made to work by the cumbersome middle-level party bureaucracy, expectations will probably far outrun performance. That could well mean political and ideological unrest, fed by the Washington-Moscow detente.

That's why Western experts here predict an immediate ideological tightening to stamp out political ferment and warn

Strength For Today

DREAMING VERSUS VISION

It is amazing to realize the extent to which people like to live in a dream world. The appeal of alcohol and morphine is their capacity to lift one temporarily out of frustration, sorrow, fear and a sense of inferiority and envelop one in a dream in which he is gay, brilliant, strong and happy and dominating.

But after the dream comes the headache, the hangover, and worst of all, the return to the situations of life less able to deal with them than before. Every time we allow ourselves to steal through the door which separates the real world from the dream world, we came back again with our capacities a little more dulled and our strength permanently sapped. Excursions into a dream world don't pay. There is a type of dreaming which might be called vision. We think of what our children may become if we can just give them the best advantages and support them in every noble endeavor. We think of the coming of the day when justice will supplant injustice, when war will pass and peace will reign. This could hardly be called dreaming. This is the exercise of vision. But the daydreaming, the drug-induced dream, the dream that comes out of a bottle—they may appear pleasant but they are really nightmares, conditioning one for future weakness and unhappiness.

No Longer George Who?

Back in January, some 500 years ago, an aging correspondent happened to be having dinner at the Sheraton Wayfarer Motel in New Hampshire. At a large table across the room, a jovial fellow with a large cigar was assisting the strolling accordion player, who perhaps needed no assistance, in rendering "California, Here I Come."

The aging correspondent undertook to educate a mystified couple at the next table. "That's Sam Yorth," he said.

"Sam Who?" asked the girl.

At the other end of the room, in quiet conversation with a number of his aides, was a tall and handsome guy, aloof from it all, who looked at the steak put before him with the uncertain glance of a man who is sure he has seen that face before. "And that's George McGovern," said the aging correspondent.

"George Who?" asked the girl.

We have come a long way down the campaign trail since that cold night in New Hampshire. It is still "Sam Who" for the Mayor of Los Angeles, but the Senator from South Dakota now has a lock on the Democratic nomination. When he wraps up the New York delegation next week, McGovern may have passed the top point. Only a prodigious blunder on his part could thereafter deny him the prize.

Three reasons may explain the Senator's astonishing success: (1) organization; (2) organization; (3) organization. McGovern got into this race a whole year before anyone else made a formal announcement. He had the good sense to put Frank Mankiewicz and Gary Hart, two old Robert Kennedy hands, in charge of his campaign effort. He began raising money. He compiled mailing lists as methodically as any Sears, Roebuck; and he fed names and addresses like sorghum molasses into the cud of a purebred computer. It took fourteen months, but on March 7, in New Hampshire, the milk began to flow.

The organization effort was plainly visible at the time. Every correspondent remarked it. There were occasional flubs, to be sure, but it took no great perception to see the mark of professionalism in the advance work, the scheduling, the smooth arrangements, the paid advertising, the handling of the press. By the time he needed them, legions of young volunteers were ready for action. No other candidate — not Humphrey, not Muskie, not Wallace, not Jackson — ever has approached McGovern in these indispensable aspects of a national campaign.

If superlative organization

Other Editors Say Life's Real Values

(The Raleigh Times)

"I don't see life in terms of money. I'm really very happy. I feel I can bring more love into the world in what I'm doing."

That was the simple explanation given by James Michalski of Milwaukee, Wis., as to why he gave up a chance for half a million dollars to become a Jesuit priest.

When he took his vows as a priest, he gave up a family estate totalling almost half a million dollars. His father, who died in 1968, offered him the money in his will if he would leave the religious life.

What Father Michalski did doesn't mean that money in itself is an evil thing, to be avoided. His action does mean that money must take its proper place in the life of a man, and that love of money shouldn't become the ruling passion of any life.

Christ spoke often of money during His short ministry on earth. He warned about the love of money. He told the rich young ruler, who had obeyed all the commandments since his youth, that his love of his money would keep him from inheriting the kingdom. In this case, Christ told the young man to sell what he had, give it to the poor and follow Him. The young man's money got in the way of his chance for eternal life.

It is so easy today to put so many material things ahead of the real values of life. It is a natural thing, for example, to join a certain church for business or social reasons. It is natural to permit questionable business practices to take over our lives so that we can make more money.

It is easy to push our children into paths we would want them to follow for our own glory, instead of helping them follow the paths that would permit them to develop their own lives to the fullest.

It always seems hardest to pick the real values over the cheaper ones. But, once the choice is made for the best values, the decision seems to have been an easy one after all.

Ten Busy People Are Nominated

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Two factors stand out in an analysis of the list of 10 nominees proposed to represent the public interest on the new board of the New York Stock Exchange —The list is made up of extraordinarily busy people. —Most of the nominees are associated with big business. The two who have little or no business connections, Jerome H. Holland and Juanita M. Kreps, are involved in jobs that seemingly would occupy them fulltime.

Holland is ambassador to Sweden. Kreps is professor of economics, dean of the women's college and assistant provost at Duke University. In the past it was often assumed that there was no limit to the number of responsibilities that could be handled by a businessman. "Give a busy man the job and he'll get it done," it was said. Since the Penn Central debacle, however, when some directors apparently were unaware that the multimillion dollar transportation company was on a one-way track to financial disaster, there has been considerable rethinking. Now, it is generally agreed, a director must be involved and knowledgeable about the organization on whose board he serves because it is his responsibility, to stockholders or public, to check on management.

The question arises, therefore, of whether the exchange's public nominees will be able to devote enough time to the public interest. In the past, the board met every week, although only one meeting per month involved policy.

There is little evidence, either, that some nominees have established reputations for participating or being sensitive to consumer and small investor interests. Some represent companies that have been targets of consumer groups and ecologists.

There is no representative of any small investor group, such as the National Association of Investment Clubs, even though it is known that the NAIC sought a role.

What all have in common, besides being busy, is considerable ability, which has been shared broadly and often selflessly, frequently without remuneration.

These are some of the outside activities of the nominees as published in the 1972 Standard & Poor's Register:

William M. Batten not only is chairman of J.C. Penney Co., one of the nation's largest merchandisers, but is listed as a director of four other corporations, including American Telephone, First National City Bank and Boeing.

Karl R. Bendetsen, chairman of Champion International, is listed on the board of Westinghouse Electric, the Conference Board, and three industry institutes.

Donald C. Cook, heads American Electric Power Co., which also puts him on the board of 24 electric utility operating companies. He is a director also of four outside corporations.

William C. Greenough, chairman of Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association and College Retirement Equities Fund, is

Suitors Deserve Pity

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Many fathers of young daughters complain about either the quality or quantity of suitors who come knocking at their doors.

I have no problems on either score.

The suitors—if that's the right word—of my daughter Tracy Ann, who is nearly 19, are far better than this proud father feels she deserves. And as to quantity, they have been stumbling into our apartment like confused moths in limitless numbers since Tracy had her fifth birthday.

They have my sympathy. She treats them as a medieval Russian empress might treat a clumsy serf. I have always told Tracy that if her husband later wanted to run away from home because of this kind of treatment, I would lend him the money. She doesn't like much to hear me say that.

I called seldom at the homes of young ladies when I was a teen-ager, and the visits were always as brief as possible. I was shy and tongue-tied in the presence of parents, and felt their unspoken questioning of my evil intentions.

But the young men today who ring my front bell and try to make it sound like a circus callopie are no such social cripples. I envy them their breezy assurance. They have more self-confidence at 18 to 20 than I have at three score and one.

By and large, I like them very much. They dress like the inhabitants of a hobo jungle.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL

June 13, 1932

Second primaries will be held in three townships of Pitt County to settle races for constable, it was revealed in latest reports from F. C. Harding, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections. Two of the candidates filed the first of last week while the third candidate, Gus Stokes of Greenville township and runner up to Richard King, filed Saturday afternoon.

It has been revealed that nearly one hundred small schools will be cut out in North Carolina next session. The students attending these schools will be transferred to the large consolidated institutions. Pitt County, not so many years ago, had tiny one and two room schoolhouses about every few miles. They are now giving away before the advance of education in all parts of the state.

James M. Mulford, chairman of Owens-Illinois, Inc., is listed as being involved with a variety of organizations as trustee or director, including the Toledo Museum of Art and Marathon Oil Co.

Cornelius W. Owens, executive vice president of American Telephone, is a trustee of Boston College, vice president of the N.Y. Chamber of Commerce and a director of several other corporations.

James M. Roche, retired General Motors chairman, is associated with 13 organizations. He is a trustee of Holy Cross College and Tuskegee Institute, a director of Pepsico, a member of the National Business Council.

Robert Sarnoff, RCA Corp. chairman, is director of four subsidiaries, including Random House. He is a director also of Manufacturers Hanover Bank and a member of the visiting committee of the Harvard College Board of Overseers, among others.

the intellectual dissidents. The paradox is obvious? genuinely dedicated to improved standards of living and interlocking relationships with the capitalist West, Gierke and his fellow East Europeans may start a backfire they cannot contain.

Kilpatrick . . .

is at the bottom of the McGovern story, other factors of course have contributed to it. Time and circumstance have combined to put McGovern on a cresting wave. He comes along in an election year that will see, for the first time, 11 million young persons eligible to vote; and at 49, he is the youngest prospect on the scene. He catches a peak of disenchantment with the war in Vietnam; and more than any other Democratic candidate, he is a symbol of opposition to that war.
With the sole exception of John Kennedy, our Presidents for the past generation have projected an image of old politics and old men: Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Johnson, Nixon. But in this time, seldom fully perceived, all kinds of new politics have developed: The black vote, the youth vote, women's liberation, the dramatic changes in the nature of our cities.
All these forces have played a part. Paradoxically, it is among McGovern's greatest assets that he was for so long, "George Who?" Almost everyone else, in one way or another, can be named a co-conspirator in the grand indictment — an indictment that sweeps up the war, the Chicago convention, inflation, unemployment, poverty, crime, pollution, the failure to solve problems of race. To all of this, the inconspicuous junior Senator from South Dakota enters a plea of not guilty.
He is not yet home free. The more he is visible, the more he is vulnerable. He must yet survive the ritual bleeding of the hounds, in a "Stop McGovern!" movement. He is visible, the more he is vulnerable. He must yet survive the ritual bleeding of the hounds in a "Stop McGovern!" movement. He is in serious trouble in the South. But as we look to Miami, what seemed impossible in January seems highly likely now: Mr. Nice Guy will finish first.

French Hopeful
Gromyko To Talk

PARIS (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko is in Paris for consultations, and French officials hope he will tell them something about the U.S.-Soviet summit.

French officials complain they have been told little about the substance of the summit. Gromyko arrived Monday for one of the regular series of consultations between Soviet and French officials provided in a treaty.

Wickes' Opening On Wednesday

Grand opening activities at the Wickes Corporation's new Greenville plant will begin Wednesday morning and continue through Saturday.
Jesse Childers, plant manager, said that the grand opening will get underway with a "board cutting" in lieu of the traditional ribbon snipping.
Wickes officials, including Joseph L. Raphael, general manager for region two, and Dave Wallace, east area operations vice president, will join city and county officials for the 10 a.m. ceremonies and plant tour that follows.
Childers said that the plant will remain open to the public for shopping and viewing until 9 p.m. The facility will operate on a 9 a.m. until 9 p.m., six days a week schedule following Wednesday's activities, the manager noted.
The Wickes plant, located at 125 Greenville Blvd., currently employs a staff of 16 including Childers and Bob Bailey, who serves as consumer sales manager. The facility, which is a part of the lumber division of Wickes, was opened for business on May 15.
Childers pointed out that the building offers some 28,000 square feet of space, with 17,000 of that accessible to the customer. "We have building materials for every need," the manager noted, including lumber, roofing, plywood, insallation, doors, windows, paints, and carpets. All products are sold to customers on a retail basis, it was pointed out.

The manager, a native of Shelby, came to the Greenville operation from Farmville where he was manager of Wickes there. He joined the company as an assistant manager at the Shelby store.
Educated in Shelby public schools, Childers attended Gardner-Webb College at Bolling Springs. He graduated from Burton's Business College in Charlotte. Married to the former Genevieve Horne of Shelby, they have one son.

Wickes Corp. was founded in 1852 and entered the lumber business late in 1940. Since then the company has grown to be the largest lumber and building retail supplier in the world with over 240 plants in the United States and the Netherlands.
The company operates plants in Farmville, Goldsboro, Clinton and Raleigh in the eastern part of the state and has begun construction on facilities in Roanoke Rapids and Winston-Salem.

Lumber division headquarters for Wickes are located in Saginaw, Mich. and corporated offices are San Diego, Calif.

Migrants Program
In Second Summer

The North Carolina Department of Public Instruction has approved the use of funds for a summer occupational program.
The Department approved the use of $30,000 to be administered indirectly through the Pitt County Schools. The title of this project is "Occupational Interest Area for Summer Migrants". The project is in its second summer.
Project objectives include the understanding of many occupations, progress in group interaction skills and cultural achievement, improvement in physical health, and a positive self-concept and individual social adjustment. The instructional areas of the project include Cultural Enrichment and Occupational Education.

Frederick Parks has been named director and Ronald E. Bratton as coordinator of the project. The Planning Staff involved in developing the program includes: Arthur S. Alford, Arch E. Manning, Carl B. Toot, Kathryn Lewis, Frederick Parks, Howard James, Willie Morris, Seward Selby, Shelly Marah, Kent Worthington, and Paul Bradley. These persons will teach the migrants in certain aspects of the program.
The program began yesterday and will last through August 31.

but they are all clean. They are noisy, but there isn't a hoph-head, weirdo or premature drunk in the lot. And not one of them has ever been lippy with me. This may be because my daughter has warned them all, "I am the daughter of an ogre—please don't give him any excuse to start shedding your blood."
Not one of these young commandos has showed up with a box of candy or bouquet of flowers. Now and then, however, one will arrive with a bouquet of pizza pie.
About half of the boys wear beards, and I call them all "Fuzzy." I asked one of the new bearded ones the other day, "Why did you grow a beard? Are you about to undertake the principal role in the Second Coming?" "No," he answered, "I'm simply traveling incognito this year."
All the clean-shaven ones over six feet tall I call "Jack," because the one I like best falls in that category.
"Why do you call the others by Jack's name—that's not fair," said Tracy.
"Because he returns my neckties he borrows, is too big to wear my shirts, and gives me cigars for Christmas," I told her.
I secretly would vike to have Jack for a son-in-law, but feel guilty about it. What responsible grown man would wish on a fine, upstanding, good-hearted boy like Jack a fate like that? After all, what kind of daughters do ogres have?

If you're sitting there with a problem a loan would solve, there's somebody at our office you ought to talk to.

Come on in any time during office hours and ask for the loan manager. You'll find yourself talking to someone who thinks a loan manager's main job is to make loans. Without asking a bunch of pointless questions. Or giving you the runaround while he runs things through committees. He can give you fast service because he's the man who makes the decisions. So if a loan will help, stop by any of the Wachovia Bank offices listed below and ask for the man who makes the loans. You could make a friend and lose a problem.

For Morris Boutin of Bayside, Wis., hauling in the nets is backbreaking work—but worth it when the catch is good.

Fishermen wait out a summer squall on Lake Superior.

There are more fish than ever these days in Lake Superior. But there are only a few commercial fishermen left—those working out of Bayside, Wis., for example. Some of the fishermen are getting old now, and have no one to carry on the business when they retire. It's not an easy way of life. Rising costs make it more difficult to earn a living. Increasing numbers of sport fishermen are out on the lakes. And for a fisherman, conservation means you have to throw back the fancy lake trout. That's why the younger men say they want no part of fishing. But there are still the older men who don't think of changing and won't give up until they retire. "It's all I know. I was born into it. I like it. I have it in my blood," says one who won't quit.

Explosive Issue In McGovern's Economic Planning

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern's plan to take from the rich and give to the poor may be the most explosive issue of the presidential campaign—and by far the foggiest in terms of how it would work and what it would cost.

The Democrat from South

Dakota speaks less often now of "redistributing income." He has diluted his program, but it remains drastic. He used a full-page advertisement in the Wall Street Journal last month to clarify his views and reassure business that he is devoted to private enterprise.

The basic aspects of the plan are:

—A $1,000 base payment to every individual from the federal Treasury, replacing the present welfare system.

—Elimination of the $750 personal exemption on federal income taxes.

—An estate tax on inheritances graduated up to a maximum of 77 per cent.

—Federal payments of one-third of the cost of education to the states, reducing property taxes correspondingly.

—A $32.4-billion cut in defense spending with the savings to pay for the other programs including a full employment program.

The McGovern proposals proved to have vast voter appeal in California's important primary despite charges of his foremost rival, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, that they would wreck national security and cripple the economy.

His staff contends he is frequently misrepresented. There is evidence this is true, but frequently the "misquotations" are correct quotations of what McGovern said six months or a year ago. They are just outdated, and fiscal analysts, though they give him high grades for initiative and effort, sometimes flunk him in arithmetic.

For instance, a McGovern statement of Jan. 13, reprinted in the Congressional Record on April 7, says that one of his proposed tax reforms—elimination of the $750 personal exemption—would raise an additional $63.6 billion in federal revenues. The Treasury's estimate is less than half that much.

The McGovern camp revealed last week that the program is being sent back for another run through the computers and possible modification to meet some of the objections.

Doubts have been raised as to how vigorously McGovern would press for some of his objectives. The Wall Street Journal ad on May 22 sought to reassure the business community:

"... I am well aware that under our system, only the Congress initiates tax measures. The suggestions which I have developed in this field should, therefore, be regarded always as suggestions for consideration by the Congress."

The cornerstone of McGovern's economic plan, described in his Jan. 13 statement under the heading "Redistribution of Income," is a government payment of $1,000 a year to every American adult and child regardless of income.

Thus, a family of four would get $4,000. The payment would be taxable, like any other income, but those below the poverty line would keep the whole grant because they would owe no income tax. The wealthy would pay it all back in taxes.

The $1,000 payment would substitute for the present $750 personal exemption, which McGovern would repeal on the ground the exemption benefits the well-to-do far more than it helps the poor.

For incomes above the poverty level, taxes would diminish the value of the $1,000 "minimum income grant." At about $12,000 income, under the McGovern plan, it would be canceled out.

Thus, taxpayers of $12,000-and-up income would support the payments to those with incomes of $12,000 down. The tax cost would rise steeply in upper income brackets. McGovern's advisers told reporters in Los Angeles that the families in the $25,000 to $50,000 income range would pay an average of 80 per cent more federal taxes than at present.

The $1,000 income grant would eliminate most of the present welfare system and its costs, McGovern argues. It is in many respects similar to the family assistance program that President Nixon proposed four years ago for working mothers and the working poor.

McGovern insisted, at the outset, that "as redistribution of income, the Minimum Income Grant would represent no additional cost to the treasury." It would merely shift money from the better-off taxpayers to poorer people, he said.

When his arithmetic came under heavy fire in the California campaign, McGovern acknowledged there might be a gap of $20 billion to $27 billion. "This might come," said a fact sheet issued just before the California primary, "from a combination of two sources—specific loophole closing ... and a modest increase in overall tax rates."

McGovern's many-tiered fiscal edifice has an ominous look to industry because it calls for an additional $17 billion in tax collection in fiscal 1973 from corporations. The additional revenue would come, he says, from the repeal of "covert rate reductions" which have been granted to corporations since 1960.

The $17 billion would represent roughly a 50 per cent increase over the $35.7 billion in corporate income tax collections projected in President Nixon's fiscal 1973 budget.

Giant Airliner Ripped By Tail-Section Blast

By STEPHEN H. WILDSTROM
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Federal agents probed a badly damaged DC10 airliner today to seek the cause of a blast which ripped the tail section of the American Airlines jumbo jet shortly after takeoff from Detroit.

The 57 passengers and 11 crew members escaped serious injury as the jet ran off a Detroit Metropolitan Airport runway during an emergency landing.

The blast Monday night knocked out power in one of the plane's three engines, and damaged hydraulic control and wheel brake systems.

Eleven persons aboard the 220-passenger-capacity aircraft suffered minor injuries—most while sliding down emergency exit chutes after the landing. Several passengers hit by debris during the blast were treated at local hospitals and released.

Teams from the FBI, the National Transportation Safety Board, American Airlines and a special Federal Aviation Administration bomb squad worked into the morning searching for clues.

Officials declined to say the explosion, which airline spokesmen said originated in a cargo hold, was caused by a bomb. But passengers quoted senior pilot Bryce E. McCormick of Los Angeles as telling them he felt a bomb had gone off.

"There was a puff of smoke, an explosion and then the plane started losing altitude, said passenger Allen Kaminsky of Buffalo, N.Y. His wife said she thought at that moment "I was going to die."

The blast occurred 12,000 feet over southern Ontario about 15 minutes after American Flight 96 had taken off for Buffalo. Officials said the fact that the explosion came early in the flight, while the seatbelt light was on and passengers were in their seats, prevented deaths or serious injuries.

Wayne County Undersheriff Loren Pittman said the blast tore a 15-foot-long hole in floor of the unoccupied coach lounge in the rear of the passenger compartment.

Pittman said the airline had received no threats against the plane.

Quail Limit Is Increased

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission decided Monday that North Carolina hunters may kill as many as 10 quail next season — if they can hit that many.

The commission increased the daily quail limit from 8 to 10 and boosted the possession limit from 16 to 20.

At its session, the commission also established a voluntary big game tagging program under which hunters will be asked to make reports on the big game they kill.

Robert Hazel, assistant director of the commission, said the main purpose of the tagging program is to obtain accurate data on season kills.

Bow hunters lost out in a bid to obtain permission to kill antlerless deer during the bow season which opens about three weeks prior to the gun season. The commission heeded arguments this would be discrimination.

In the same spirit, the commission ruled against muzzle loading gun buffs who had asked a special deer season for their weapons. The commission decided that "a gun is a gun" as far as hunting is concerned.

Sees Trend Toward Pre-Vocational Training Project Higher Phone Rates May Shape Careers Of Students

Speaking before the Greenville Rotary Club here last night, T.P. Williamson, assistant vice president for Carolina Telephone, said that current nationwide regulatory trends may lead to higher telephone rates for the average person.

Williamson said that most phone rates are based to a degree on average costs, operating under regulation in place of competition. Recent regulatory decisions have opened the communication field to competition, he reported, but said that the new competitors may be permitted to "skim off only the cream." "If that happens," he said, "we're quite prepared to meet the competition but our small customers may face higher costs."

"Our regulated pricing system has helped make us the best telephoned people in the world, with some 55 phones per 100 people contrasted to about seven to 100 throughout the rest of the world. We have attained that in part by pricing fairly and by ever-increasing efficiency. "The fact that Carolina Telephone has not had to ask for general rate hikes since 1967 shows that this plan works. Drastic changes in such a successful arrangement should be carefully considered and the public should be involved," he concluded.

Plans . . .

(Continued from page 1) told the commission that acquisition has been completed in Newtown and the deed for the area to be devoted to public housing will be ready for transferring from the Redevelopment Commission to the Housing Authority sometime this week.

Central Business District project manager Lawrence D. Molt reported that six pieces of property have been acquired in CBD since last month's meeting. He added that four structures were demolished during the month. They were the Real House on Cotanche Street, the Keeler and White houses on Evans Street, and the Gulf Station on the corner of Greene and Dickinson Avenue.

Holt said that the North Carolina National Bank building was purchased and an option negotiated for a severance of the Georgetown Shoppes on the Loop Road construction path.

A letter to the commission from Melvin Stanforth, chairman of the Interior Design Department of the School of Art at East Carolina University expressing appreciation for the use of a house on Greene Street for a department project was read.

Holt, noting the success of the interior rehabilitation and design project, said that he would like to see the commission make a facility available to the students again. The value of the house, utilized by the students on a rent-free basis, was increased by the improvements, he said.

Building surveys in the Southside Project have been completed, Wagner told commissioners. He said that approximately 70 per cent of the family surveys in the area are being completed and the rest should be finished within ten days.

Commissioners approved a motion designating Memorial Day as a holiday for staff members. It was noted that the day has not been observed as a holiday until this year but the city has added it to the holiday schedule.

Laughinghouse said that he, Housing Authority chairman Woody Crumpler, executive director Joe Laney, and Mayor Eugene West visited the Greensboro area office of Housing and Urban Development on June 6 and discussed with officials there the status of local funding and projects.

NCTE Awards Judge Named

The National Council of Teachers of English announced the appointment of Thomas Arthur Clere, East Carolina University, as a regional judge in the NCTE Achievement Awards Program for 1972. This nationally recognized competition, now in its 15th year, cites high school seniors for excellence in English and recommends them to colleges and universities for admission and financial aid.

Approximately 7200 students are candidates for Achievement Awards in 1972. The NCTE also honors teachers and schools that have participated in the training of these young men and women.

Students are nominated for Achievement Awards by their high school English departments and are selected for Awards by state judging committees on the basis of an autobiography, an impromptu theme, and a sample of best writing. The regional judging committees are composed of both high school and college teachers of English who work under the direction of state coordinators.

In expressing his views on the importance of technical and vocational education, Bob Martin emphasized that "Vocational training is as important as academic training." "The need for vocational training and skilled workers is constantly increasing."

According to Martin, the industrial employment opportunities in Pitt County has increased tremendously in the past ten years.

Deepening Of Inlets Endorsed

SHALLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Deepening of Lockwoods Folly and Shallotte inlets on the southeastern North Carolina Coast drew the support of the Office of Water and Air Resources of the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources Monday night.

Director R. J. B. Page of the Division of Waterways told a public hearing that "we would like to see both inlets stabilized."

The inlets, used by commercial and sports fishermen for access to the ocean, have been slowly filling with sand for several years.

heads of the various Pitt Tech departments are also addressing the students to acquaint them with their curriculums. On Wednesday afternoon, students will select two curriculum areas for additional in-depth study.

Ed Warren, project coordinator, says that the students will, beginning Thursday audit regular Pitt Tech classes in the morning and audit their selected curriculum courses each afternoon for the next eighteen days.

The findings of this research project will be made available to the public schools, technical instituted, and community colleges.

Commission To Meet At Gym

The June meeting of the Greenville Recreation Commission is being held Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. in the television room at Elm Street Gym.

Greenville Slips Past Oxford, 8-6

Greenville's American Legion baseball team gained an 8-6 victory over Oxford last night in a non-conference contest.

Oxford outlived the Greenville nine, 13-9 but they couldn't come up with quite as many runs.

Lee Cherry picked up the victory, coming on in relief in the sixth inning to get the side out after Oxford had come up with four runs in the frame to take a 6-5 lead.

Greenville then came up with three in the bottom of the sixth to regain the lead.

Oxford threatened in the first inning, but Greenville was able to get out of the jam. With one down, Steve Shotwell singled and Carl Webb got a hit. Butch Shotwell reached on a fielder's choice when the ball was errored, loading the bases. An outfield fly failed to produce a run however, and the next batter struck out.

Greenville then came up with three runs in the bottom of the inning to push into the lead. With one down, Duncan Charlton singled into left center. Stanley cobb followed with a walk and Phil Blount also drew a free pass, loading the bases. Dale Manning singled into left, scoring Charlton. Robbie Cox then singled to right, scoring both Cobb and Blount.

Oxford got off another threat in the second. Danny Twisdale walked and David Morton singled him to third and moved up on the relay, but a pickoff of Morton ended that threat.

Oxford finally broke the ice in the top of the fourth, pushing over two runs. Mickey Hicks walked and with two down, Dwight Taylor singled to center, scoring Hicks. Taylor moved to second on the relay, and scored when Morton singled off the pitcher's glove. That cut the lead to 3-2.

Greenville came back with a pair of runs of their own in the bottom of the fourth, however, boosting their margin back to three, 5-2.

Mike Bundy walked and Bill Lee did too. Then, with two outs, Cobb cracked a double to right, driving in both Lee and Bundy.

Oxford and Greenville both had fifth inning threats. Oxford got Butch Shotwell on with a single and Eddie Ferguson with a hit. Mike Crute also singled to the infield to load the bases with two outs, but the next man went down without harm.

Greenville's fifth saw Dale Manning get hit by a pitch and move to second on an infield out, but no damage was done.

Then, in the sixth, Oxford erupted for four runs to push into a 6-5 lead. Taylor led off with a walk and he was safe at second on Morton's fielder's choice. Steve Shotwell got an infield single, loading the bases. Webb then tripled, driving in all three runners to tie it at 5-5. Butch Shotwell followed with a sacrifice fly scoring Webb with the go-ahead run.

That was the last run for Oxford, however. They did manage threats in the seventh, eighth and ninth, but they couldn't score again.

Greenville came right back in the bottom of the sixth to score three runs to wrap it up. Charlton walked and Cobb singled. Blount drove both in with a triple to center. Manning followed with a ground-ruled

The Greenville team will play host to Smithfield Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field in their next outing.

Bucs Host Appalachian

East Carolina University Pirates resume action in the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League tonight at 7:30 p.m.

The Bucs will be playing host to Appalachian State University at Harrington Field. It will be the first meeting of the two this season.

East Carolina goes into the game with a 2-2 record, but has yet to win on its own field.

Burger King Hands First Loss To Four Seasons; Huey's Wins

Four Seasons suffered its first loss of the season last night in the City Softball League. They were knocked off, 7-6, by Burger King.

In other action, Greenville Utilities downed Shirley's, 8-4; Hardee's beat Fieldcrest, 12-2, eliminating Fieldcrest from the title picture; Parker's also downed Fieldcrest, 22-0; while Huey's beat the Jaycees, 16-5; and Harbin's downed Shirley's, 9-3.

The loss left Four Seasons still in the lead with an 11-1 mark. Huey's is second at 8-1.

In the first game at Guy Smith, Huey's pushed over a run in the third, but the Jaycees came up with five in their half of the inning to take the lead. Huey's cut it to 5-2 with one in the fourth, then pushed ahead with five in the fifth.

Lit Woodward led off the fifth with a single and Charles Graffin doubled. Jim Grimsley grounded out but Woodard scored. Mike Saylor's reached on a fielder's choice and Greg Holmes doubled. James Hicks followed with a hit, scoring Holmes with the final run.

Huey's then added one in the sixth and eight in the seventh, including a homer by Draffin.

In the second game, Harbin's pushed into the lead in the first with a run, then clinched it with four in the third. Bud Phillips doubled and Billy Byrd got another double. A passed ball scored Phillips and Ben Tripp hit a sacrifice fly to score Byrd. Mitchell Jones walked and Dave Holton doubled him across. Cecil Heath singled in Holton with the fifth Harbin's run.

They added three in the fourth and one in the sixth. Shirley's got all three of its runs in the fourth.

In the opener at Evans Park, Shirley's took the lead with two in the first inning, but GUCo came up with one in the second. Each team scored one run in the fourth to make it 3-2.

Then, in the fifth, GUCo came up with five to push ahead to win it. R. Bullock singled and A. Hathaway got a hit. R. Eakes doubled and Outland singled. L. Cherry doubled, scoring on a double by J. Ward.

GUCo added one in the sixth, while Shirley's pushed over one in the seventh.

In the second game, Hardee's scored a run in the first, then picked up two in the third to clinch it. S. Mann led off the third with a double and J. Sugg tripled him in. A single by J. McKeel brought in Sugg for a 3-0 lead.

Hardee's added nine more in the fifth, while Fieldcrest picked up one each in the fifth and seventh innings.

In the third and most important game, Four Seasons came up with four runs in the first to take the lead. Burger King came right back with four to tie it up, then took the lead with one in the second. Four Seasons tied it up with one in the fifth, but Burger King came back to score one and stay ahead. Four Seasons again tied it with one in the sixth.

In the bottom of the seventh, however, Burger King pushed in the winning run. Eyes reached on a fielder's choice and T.

Stevenson doubled. L. Teel followed with a single, scoring Eyes with the game-ending run.

In the final contest, Parker's got all it needed in the first, scoring three. Jimmy Evans singled and W. Nichols got a hit.

R. Nichols doubled and all three scored on K. Beaman's triple.

Parkers added three in the second, four in the third, three in the fourth, three in the fifth and six in the sixth. W. Avery cracked a homer in the fifth.

Pepsi Edges Past Moose

Pepsi-Cola gained a 6-5 victory over the Moose yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League to take over sole possession of first place.

The win left Pepsi with a 7-2 record, while the Moose fell off to 3-6. A protest of the game was made by the Moose however, on a ruling in the fifth inning.

Pepsi pushed into the lead in the first inning of play with a run. Michael Shank reached on a two-out error and scored when Steve McClanahan doubled.

The Moose came right back with three runs of their own, however, to take the lead, 3-1. David Carroll walked and Mickey Finn reached on a fielder's choice. Both runners advanced on an error. William Brewington walked and a passed ball scored Carroll. A wild pitch let Finn come in, and Tony Farmer drew a walk. Ashley Taylor singled, driving in Brewington with the third run.

In the top of the fourth, Pepsi came back with three runs to move into a 4-3 lead. John Coffman singled and Tim Eubanks reached on a fielder's choice. Danny Carmen also was safe on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. Mark Shank walked to bring in Coffman, and passed balls allowed Eubanks and Carmen to come across.

The Moose pushed back ahead in the fourth with two runs, 5-4. Finn reached on an error and Brewington singled. Danny Wood got a hit, scoring both runners.

Pepsi came back to pick up the tying run in the fifth. McClanahan reached on a fielder's choice and took second on a passed ball. He was sacrificed to third, and scored when Tim Eubanks reached on an error. A protest was lodged on the play however.

Pepsi pushed over the winning run in the sixth inning. Mark Shank doubled and took third on a passed ball. He scored when McDonald Avery singled, giving Pepsi the 6-5 lead.

Taylor led the Moose hitting with three, while Steve Lawler had two. No one on Pepsi had more than one hit.

Collie Sets New Records

DURHAM — Greenville's Sheila Collie broke two pool records during the Annual Durham Invitational Swimming Meet held Friday and Saturday in Durham.

A member of the Greenville Swimming Team, Sheila swims in the eight and under age group.

During the meet she competed with approximately 35 other girls from across the state in her age group.

Both of her records came during the qualifying rounds. She broke the first in the 100-yard freestyle, and the other in the 50-yard freestyle. The old marks were held by Penny English of Raleigh, set last year. Sheila's time in the 100 was 1:24.5, while she turned in a time of :36.7 in the 50.

During the finals, Sheila finished second in the 100 in 1:25.1; second in the 50 in :37.0; second in the 50-yard backstroke in :45.2, and fourth in the 50-yard butterfly in :50.1.

Two other Greenville swimmers also placed in the meet. Lance Timmons finished sixth in the 100-yard backstroke in 1:18.4, while Cathy Collie was sixth in the 100-yard freestyle in 1:06.2.

Blue's Pitches Hum; But Oakland Bats Numb

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Vida Blue's fastball is alive and humming in Oakland. Too bad the same can't be said of the A's bats whenever he pitches.

"I hope one of these games I pitch, the A's get some hits and runs," said Blue after losing a heart-breaking 1-0 game to Pat Dobson and the Baltimore Orioles Monday night.

Considering recent developments, Blue has every right to feel that way.

Winner of the Cy Young Award and Most Valuable Player in the American League last year, Blue came back late this year after contract difficulties and hasn't had much support since.

In 25 innings, the left-hander has been backed by a grand total of one run and hasn't won a game in three decisions because of it.

Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday, the Detroit Tigers defeated the Minnesota Twins 2-1 and the Texas Rangers swamped the Milwaukee Brewers 7-1.

An abbreviated schedule also was played in the National League, where the Atlanta Braves topped the New York Mets 8-7; the Houston Astros trimmed the Montreal Expos 3-1 and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2.

Blue's best performance of the year was witnessed by the largest crowd to watch the A's since they moved west from Kansas City—50,182. The enormous crowd also saw Dobson pitch one of the best games of his career, a powerhouse three-hitter.

Don Buford collected one of only five hits off Blue in his eight innings of work, but it was a big one—a single in the eighth that knocked in the game's only run.

Norm Cash and Mickey Stanley cracked home runs while Joe Niekro and Fred Scherman pitched out of constant trouble in Detroit's victory.

Cash connected off Bert Blyleven with one out in the second inning to give Detroit a 1-0 lead while Stanley unloaded off the Minnesota righthander to break a 1-1 tie in the fourth.

Mike Paul and Casey Cox teamed for a three-hitter and Don Mincher hit a home run and double, driving in four runs, as Texas defeated Milwaukee.

Paul, making only his second start of the season, allowed but two hits in seven innings. After the starter tired, Cox came on to pitch the final two innings and gave up only George Scott's ninth inning single.

Optimists Nip Kiwanis, 10-9

The Optimists held onto first place in the North State Little League yesterday with a 10-9 victory over the Kiwanis.

The victory left the Optimists with a 7-2 record, while the Kiwanis fell off to 2-7.

The Optimists pushed over six runs in the top of the first inning to take the lead. Mac Stokes led off with a double and took third on a passed ball. Eric McCormick walked and Greg Lee reached on an error, scoring Lee for an 8-5 lead.

The Kiwanis came up with another in the third: Ben Miller cracked a homer to account for it.

They got another in the fifth, and after the Optimists scored one in the sixth, the Kiwanis tied it up with two in the bottom of the sixth. Dickson walked and Brown got a homer, making it 9-9.

The Optimists pushed over the winning run in the seventh, however. Stokes walked and McCormick did too. Two wild pitches brought Stokes around with the winning run.

Stokes led the Optimists hitting with three, while McCormick and James Shoe each had two. For the Kiwanis, Brown had three hits.

Optimists 620 001 1-10 10 2
Kiwanis 501 102 0-9 7 4

The Optimists came up with two more in the second. McCormick walked and Lee reached on an error. Both moved up on a passed ball, and Allan was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Rowlette walked to bring in McCormick, and Hodges reached on an infield hit, scoring Lee for an 8-5 lead.

The Kiwanis came up with another in the third: Ben Miller cracked a homer to account for it.

They got another in the fifth, and after the Optimists scored one in the sixth, the Kiwanis tied it up with two in the bottom of the sixth. Dickson walked and Brown got a homer, making it 9-9.

Carolina Dairy Takes Sole Possession Of 1st

Carolina Dairy took over sole possession of first place in the Babe Ruth League with a 7-0 victory over North Carolina National Bank last night. They were aided in their effort by a 6-3 victory by Planters Bank over Pepsi-Cola.

The results left Carolina Dairy with a 7-3 record, while Pepsi is 6-4, and NCNB and Planters are both 6-5.

Wesley Deal tossed the Dairy victory, limiting NCNB to only three hits.

The Dairy men moved ahead with one run in the second inning. Jimmy Peszko led off with a double and moved up on an out. He scored on Leonard Williams' sacrifice fly.

In the fifth, three more Carolina Dairy runs came across. Dickie Johnson walked and stole second. He gained third on a passed ball and Wayne Miller walked. Kevin Walker singled in Johnson and Peszko got a hit to score Miller. Deal reached on a fielder's choice, bringing in Walker with the fourth run.

The final two scored in the sixth. Johnson reached on an error and stole second. Miller also reached on an error and Walker doubled to drive in both runners.

Walker and Peszko led the hitting for Carolina Dairy, each getting two. Kelly Heath had two of the three NCNB hits.

In the second game, Planters took the lead in the top of the first with a run. Bobby Sasser walked and stole second. He took third on an out and scored on a passed ball.

Pepsi came back with one in the bottom of the first to tie it. David Dixon walked and moved around to third on walks to T. J. Payne and Curtis Lee. A passed ball then scored Dixon.

In the third, Planters got another run. Wayne Elks singled and moved up on a walk to Greg Jester. Jim Wilson then singled him in for a 2-1 lead.

Pepsi came right back with two runs to tie the lead, 3-2 in the bottom of the third. Payne singled and Lee walked. Macon Moye reached on an error and Bill Ellington doubled in both Payne and Lee.

But Planters came back with two in the fourth to regain the lead and hold it. Greg Coward walked and Sasser was hit by a pitch. Wild pitches brought both runners around to put Planters into a 4-3 lead.

They added two insurance runs in the seventh. Mel Boyd singled and Coward reached on an error. Elks reached on an error, scoring Boyd and Ed Connolly walked to load the bases. Jester singled to score Coward with the final run.

Wilson led the Planters hitting with two, while no one had more than one for Pepsi, which got only three off Jester.

Grace In Another Win

Grace Free Will Baptist rolled to a 22-2 victory over St. Gabriel's last night in the Church Softball League.

Grace continues to lead the National Division of the league with a 9-2 mark. St. Gabriel holds a 2-7 mark in the American Division.

Grace picked up all it needed in the first inning of play, scoring six runs. Robin Coggins singled and Donald Hudson made it 2-0 with a homer. Then, with two away, Sammy Pugh reached on an error. Lewis Hardee followed with the inning's second homer, and Billy Peede singled Kenneth Smith finished it off with the third homer of the frame, making it 6-0.

Grace added five more in the second, then got five in the third. Push got a homer to help that inning. In the fourth, they added four more, then got two in the fifth.

Slapsie Maxie Fought Too Much

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
SOUTH PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom ranks as one of boxing's beloved. He was a master boxer without the kayo punch. He was an actor who could deliver punch lines. As a restaurant host, he made all guests feel like winners.

Today, Maxie can't remember how great he was. He can't remember his friends. The toll of 289 professional fights, including the time he was light-heavyweight champion of the world, has stopped him.

He's confined in a sanatorium under care of the Motion Picture and Television Fund. Physically he's fine for a man of 63.

Back in 1925, he fought to no decision against middleweight champ Harry Greb, and he beat Jim Braddock and Mickey Walker along the line plus Ace Hudkins, Lou Nova and Lee Ramage.

Braddock was to become heavyweight champion and Walker was the best of the middleweights in his prime.

In 1932, Rosenbloom had 30 main events. The following year he was a headliner 25 times. He fought often and he boxed well, holding the 175-pound title 1930-34, but he was hit.

Dr. Russell Jones, Director of Medicine for the Motion Picture and Television Fund, says, "He has a good deal of damage to his brain, the intellectual portion. There is a loss of memory and he is confused. He lacks judgment and mental responsibility."

Jones says examinations by neurologists and psychologists indicate the condition stems from the aggregate blows Rosenbloom took in the ring.

Asked how this should occur in the past year or two after Rosenbloom had been long retired from the ring, had appeared in more than 100 films and operated his own restaurant, the physician said, "I have seen it in other instances."

Five years ago Maxie began having trouble with his hearing. Then his friends noticed he was having other troubles. He wasn't boisterous or pugnacious. Mostly forgetful.

Friends asked that he be helped and the aid was forthcoming. But even with the help, doctors fear that former boxing champion Maxie Rosenbloom never will remember he once was the champ.

Death Takes Ex-Manager

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Harold "Lefty" Phillips, whose 2½ seasons as manager of the California Angels ended last fall in the wake of internal strife, died Monday night of an apparent asthma attack. He was 53.

A veteran scout and coach for the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers, he was hired by the Angels in May of 1969 after California had won only 11 of its first 39 games that year. Even though the team achieved a 71-91 record that year, things looked bright for the Angels after the 1970 campaign when they won 86 games.

Off-season trades made the Angels pre-season picks prior to the 1971 season but discipline problems revolving around outfielder Alex Johnson, who was eventually suspended, made the team more of a curiosity for its locker room noises.

By season's end, even though California managed to climb to fourth in the American League West, a grand overhaul was made with Phillips stepping down to scout.

His recurring asthma was a constant problem and that was believed the cause of death. A county coroner's autopsy was pending.

With the Dodgers, Phillips signed pitcher Don Drysdale before he was elevated to pitching coach in 1964.

Mets Remember Their Old Ways

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Once upon a time, there was a baseball team—a very bad baseball team—called the New York Mets. This particular baseball team had a very difficult time with the national pastime.

After many years of very bad baseball, this team started to change. Soon, it became respectable and even won a world championship. But no matter how successful it became, this team always remembered its humble beginnings.

The Mets got nostalgic in the eighth inning of Monday night's game at Atlanta and in a spectacular recreation of their early, zany years, they delivered an 8-7 victory to the Braves.

Elsewhere on Monday's abbreviated schedule in the National League, Houston downed Montreal 3-1 and St. Louis edged Los Angeles 3-2.

In the American League, Detroit nipped Minnesota 2-1, Texas whacked Milwaukee 7-1 and Baltimore blanked Oakland 1-0.

New York used home runs by John Milner, Wayne Garrett, Rusty Staub and Ken Boswell to build a 7-4 lead as the Braves came to bat in the eighth. With Tug McGraw working in relief of Gary Gentry, Atlanta bunched three singles by Ralph Garr, Rico Carty and Hank Aaron for one run.

Then the nostalgia hit.

Darrell Evans attempted to sacrifice Aaron and pinch runner Sonny Jackson along. He bunted towards first base and Cleon Jones threw to Garrett at third, trying for the force. The play looked good except for one thing. Garrett forgot to catch the ball.

Aaron and Jackson both scored, tying the game and Evans wound up on third base. Next, rookie Dusty Baker lofted a fly ball to center and Tommie Agee angled over for it as Evans tagged up, getting ready to try and score. It looked like it would be a close play at the plate except for one thing. Agee forgot to catch the ball.

The loss tumbled New York out of first place in the National League East.

Greenville In Pair Of Wins

OAK CITY — Greenville's Semi-Pro baseball team gained a sweep of a doubleheader Sunday against Hamilton. They downed Hamilton, 6-3, in the opener, the took the second game, 9-1.

In the opening game, Byron Dickens tossed a one-hitter for the victory.

Greenville got all it needed in the second, scoring five runs. Grant Jarman singled and Charles Meeks got a hit. Tommy Jordan followed with another, scoring Jarman. Harry Wilson singled in Meeks and Ronald Vincent reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Jordan. Wilson stole home, as Vincent stole second and Dickens walked. Ken Beaman reached on a fielder's choice that got Vincent, but Dickens later scored with the fifth run.

The other run came in the fifth. Jarman tripled and scored on an error.

All three of the Hamilton runs came in the fifth. T. Crisp reached on an error and took second on a passed ball. S. Coffield also reached on an error. H. Coffield walked, loading the bases. W. Carlisle reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Crisp, and W. Carlisle reached on an error, scoring both Coffields.

In the second game, Greenville took the lead in the first inning with a run. Wilson doubled and scored when Jarman reached on an error.

In the fifth, they pushed over six more runs. Jeff Jenkins reached on an error and Al Gurganus did too. Jarman doubled in Jenkins and Meeks singled to score Gurganus. Jordan got a hit, scoring Jarman, and Vincent singled to score Meeks. Wilson then tripled to drive in both base runners.

Two more crossed in the sixth. Jarman reached on a fielder's choice and Meeks singled. Beaman singled to drive both in.

The lone Hamilton run came in the sixth.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♣.
A diabolical ruse devised by West led to the upset of South's four spade contract which appeared to be a cinch for 10 tricks.

West opened the three of clubs, which became marked as a singleton when East covered North's queen with the ace and South followed suit with the four. The deuce of clubs was returned and declarer's ten was ruffed by West. In trumping he selected the jack of spades as his play.

West shifted to the six of diamonds which gave South much to ponder on. If he took the finesse and it lost, whatever East returns—declarer must eventually resort to the heart finesse to make his contract. There was the further consideration that East's return of the deuce of clubs was a clear-cut suit preference signal requesting West to return a diamond. If East could have returned some spot higher than his sixth best club, the lowest card in the suit.

Inasmuch as West had ruffed the second club with the jack of spades, which was the highest outstanding card in trumps, South chose to believe his eyes and put up the ace of diamonds from dummy. The king of clubs was played to discard the seven of diamonds. It was declarer's intention to draw trump next and eventually concede one heart trick.

To South's utter consternation, West trumped the king of clubs with the deuce of spades and exited with the king of diamonds. Declarer was still obliged to give his opponents the king of hearts, but in doing so—he surrendered the setting trick.

Some may contend that declarer should have been skeptical of the prospect of West's holding two black singletons and 11 cards in the red suits, but be that as it may, we can express only the highest admiration for the defender's clever false card. Had he ruffed the second club with the deuce of spades and then shifted to a diamond—there seems little doubt that South would have fished the queen.

The Worry Clinic

Extra Mile By Some Teachers

Sister Maureen has hundreds of colleagues who are using the educational booklets and Rating Scales made available to you via this newspaper. These aids are like the "work books" now employed to practice school textbook theories.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-508: Sister Maureen is the Principal of "Saint Mary of Carmel School" in Dallas, Texas.

"Dr. Crane," one of her friends informed me, "Sister Maureen goes that 'second mile' that the Bible urges and even a 'third mile.'"

"For she not only offers her pupils sound basic training in reading, history and mathematics.

"But she also adds vital moral precepts so they can surmount the temptations they will face in later life.

"And that isn't all, for she likewise tries to help them select wholesome careers and thus go on for valuable college or trade school technical instruction.

"Recently, for example, she ordered 60 copies of your newspaper booklet entitled 'Vocational Guidance Kit' and has been using that to motivate her students properly.

"Dr. Crane, wouldn't you rate her superb as a good teacher?"

Bravo, Sister Maureen.

Yes, and on the "Rating Scale for Good Teachers" (mentioned below), she merits a "Very Superior" score.

So does Sister M. Benita, of St. Mary's Catholic School at St. Mary's, Pennsylvania.

Since 1950, Sister Benita has been using the "Compliment Club" project!

Thus, I have signed several hundred diplomas for her pupils who finished that 30-day adventure into extroversion, wherein they pay a sincere compliment to each of 3 different people every day for 30 days! Hundreds of teachers in both our public and parochial schools keep sending for the various newspaper booklets offered via this educational column.

During World War II, the U.S. Navy also asked to use 500 of the practical "horse sense" test items in that "Vocational Guidance Kit."

Do you know why?

To weed out the theorists or "brainstrusters" candidates for Navy Air Corps Officers Training in contrast to the men with wider practical knowledge.

Divorce court judges and attorneys order quantities of the "Marriage Tests," too.

A host of teachers also employ the booklet "How to Raise a Child's School Marks."

For their PTA and PTO groups use it since it contains the commonest errors in grammar, plus a list of the irregular verbs in English, such as "Swim, swam, swum."

Some snobbish readers still feel that newspapers are low-brow!

So maybe it will wake them up

More North Viet Rail Bridges Are Brought Down

A WALK THROUGH WAR'S RUBBLE—South Vietnamese ranger walks down the rubble-strewn streets of the district town of Dat Do, 45 miles southeast of Saigon, where fighting has destroyed most of the town. Battle for the town has been obscured by larger ones recently in South Vietnam. (AP Wirephoto)

Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. pilots reported they knocked out two more railroad bridges in North Vietnam within 25 miles of the Chinese border Monday, a few hours before Peking broadcast a strong protest against American air attacks along China's southern frontier.

Military spokesmen said 2,000-pound laser bombs brought down the two bridges on the northeast rail line to China and that they had not been hit before. They were 55 and 60 miles northeast of Hanoi.

U.S. planes have bombed North Vietnam's two railroads to China repeatedly in the past week at points 20 to 30 miles from the border. The Chinese Foreign Ministry in a statement broadcast Monday night said the air raids threatened the security of China and were "grave provocations against the Chinese people."

The U.S. Command said American pilots flew more than 290 strikes against targets in North Vietnam on Monday. B52 bombers battered North Vietnamese supply dumps north of the demilitarized zone today for the sixth successive day.

North Vietnam claimed its gunners shot down a U.S. Phantom jet fighter-bomber northeast of Hanoi on Monday.

The U.S. Command said it had no plane losses to report, but it disclosed the loss of the third OH6 observation helicopter in two days 13 miles southwest of Hue. One crewman was reported missing and one wounded in the crash Monday.

The South Vietnamese command said 51 North Vietnamese were killed and 105 weapons and 15 field radios were captured in a series of clashes Monday at An Loc and south of the city along Highway 13. Nine South Vietnamese were reported killed and 24 wounded.

Field reports indicate the South Vietnamese are beginning to break through the 68-day-old siege at An Loc, a provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon. But U.S. advisers say the siege cannot be considered lifted until Highway 13 is open. It is the only overland route to the city.

about 1,000 refugees were women and children, and that about half the casualties were children.

About 10,000 South Vietnamese had set out at dawn Monday from An Loc, Blystone said. As they continued their journey southward, part of them came under a barrage of either grenade or mortar fire near the village of Tau O, nine miles south of An Loc.

A relief column of South Vietnamese troops on its way to relieve An Loc continued to inch northward along Highway 13 toward Tau O from a point a mile to the south where they have been stalled for three weeks.

Informants told Blystone perhaps only a handful of North Vietnamese troops are cutting the highway south of Tan Kahi, tying up about 1,500 South Vietnamese troops.

"If the South Vietnamese would accept taking as many casualties in an attack as they do sitting here, they'd have been through here long ago," said one American adviser. "They'd probably take fewer losses."

Sanford In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and now a presidential candidate, says government must be given back to the people "by involving them in the process of making decisions that affect their lives."

Sanford, president of Duke University at Durham, N. C., Monday addressed the annual meeting of the Southeastern Regional Council of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment.

Meanwhile, North Vietnamese fire ripped into a column of weeping, weary refugees fleeing from An Loc today, killing 5 to 10 of them and wounding at least 30 to 40.

Associated Press correspondent Richard Blystone reported from the scene on Highway 13 that most of the column of

Order Mistrial Of Chavis And Ten Others

BURGAU, N.C. (AP) — A mistrial was ordered Monday in the trial of black activist Ben Chavis and 10 other persons charged in racial disorders at Wilmington last year.

Judge Joshua James ordered the mistrial on being told that assistant solicitor Jay Stroud had been hospitalized with a stomach ailment.

Chavis and the others were charged with crimes ranging from assaulting emergency personnel to firebombing a grocery store during the Wilmington disturbances.

Three defense lawyers argued against the mistrial while expressing regret at Stroud's illness.

Solicitor Allen Cobb said Stroud had processed the case since its inception and that the "other members of my staff just know the bare details."

Brown Pelicans Seen Nesting

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Between 150 and 300 California brown pelicans—feared threatened with extinction by DDT—have been sighted nesting off the Ventura Coast.

Dr. J. Gordon Edwards, a San Jose State University professor, said Saturday he made the observations by sea and by air on Santa Cruz Island. He also claimed seeing an "abundance" of the big sea birds on South Coronado Island south of San Diego.

Edwards said he does not believe charges that the pesticide DDT was responsible for softening the pelican shells and rendering them unhatchable like those found after the Santa Barbara oil spill in 1968.

He said the thinness of the shells mainly was caused by high concentrations of mercury and lead in the spill area and the effects of people walking through the pelican nesting areas during the spill cleanup.

Ousted Air Force General Says He Would Probably Do It Again

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The former U.S. air commander in Vietnam, fired for ordering unauthorized air strikes against North Vietnamese preparing for attack, says he would order the strikes again if he had the opportunity.

"If I had it to do over, I would do the same thing," Gen. John D. Lavelle told a House armed services subcommittee. However, he said, he would "check into reporting procedures better" before issuing the order.

Lavelle was recalled from Vietnam after reports prepared by officers under his command were forwarded to Washington indicating falsely that the North Vietnamese had undertaken some kind of attack to justify the retaliatory strikes.

Lavelle said he believed his superiors, including Gen. Creighton Abrams, knew of the air strikes he ordered without specific permission between last January and March 10.

Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force chief of staff, said he recalled Lavelle as commander of the U.S. 7th Air Force in Indochina last March 23 after learning of 28 strikes involving 147 planes that he said violated terms of the 1968 bombing halt which permitted only retaliatory "protective reaction" strikes.

Lavelle said he relayed pilots' reports of Hanoi's buildup of MIGs at three airfields near the demilitarized zone plus 133 millimeter heavy artillery, anti-aircraft guns, missiles, tanks and supplies and finally asked Abrams in January for permission to attack them.

He said Abrams relayed the request to Washington and when the only reply was to "prepare a plan" he ordered the strikes on his own.

Lavelle said he could understand Ryan's viewpoint that "I had exceeded my authority" but said he judged that the U.S. "Rules of Engagement" formulated after the 1968 bombing halt gave him authority as commander at the scene to determine what a protective reaction strike was.

Lavelle said he ordered the raids halted March 10 when an investigating officer showed him three false reports that were forwarded to higher headquarters and his staff determined he could not "continue what we were doing and report it accurately."

He and Ryan indicated the three reports falsely said North Vietnamese units had taken some kind of action against U.S. planes or other forces that would justify the "protective reaction" retaliatory U.S. strikes.

"I believe someone got over-eager," said Lavelle. He added that the false reports were made out by low-level, "wonderful hardworking Air Force people who were trying to report what the hell we thought we were doing."

When Alton Lennon, D-N.C., asked if "forcing these men to file false statements" was a factor in Lavelle's dismissal, Ryan replied: "Yes, sir. Very definitely."

He said the charm of New Orleans has been scarred by federally financed housing and transportation projects that failed to include local people in the decision making process.

Sanford said at least seven million persons "live in inadequate housing" in the country and government urban renewal programs have destroyed more houses than they have replaced.

He said the "unintended consequences" of federally financed housing programs include intensive concentrations of blacks in low income projects, project dwellers forced to move because of increased income, and destruction of communities that had been the center of poor peoples' lives.

Sanford urged that federal housing programs become "people sensitive" and involve local and state people in the planning process.

New Yacht For Sen. Kennedy

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has bought a 50-foot sloop-rigged auxiliary sailboat from William Bolling, father of actress Tiffany Bolling.

Kennedy wants the yacht for his family's use in Cape Cod this summer, Bob Fisher, president of Northrop & Johnson Inc., yacht brokers, said Monday.

The three-year-old sailboat costs about $160,000, new but Fisher refused to tell how much Kennedy agreed to pay for it.

War Minister Leaves Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Mohammed Ahmed Sadek, the Egyptian war minister, has left Moscow after a five-day visit. Most of his talks were with the Soviet defense minister, Marshal Andrei A. Grechko, who saw Sadek off at the airport Monday.

No details of the talks were announced. They were believed to be part of regular military consultations.

Romania Hosts Deposed Chief

TOKYO (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the deposed Cambodian chief of state, and his wife will make an official visit to Romania next week, the New China News Agency says.

The news agency said in a broadcast that the June 19-22 visit will be made at the invitation of Nicolae Ceausescu, Romanian president and Communist party chief, and his wife.

Diplomat Pays Farewell Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bui Diem, South Vietnam's ambassador, has paid a farewell visit to President Nixon in his Oval office.

Diem, who is returning to his country this week after more than five years in Washington, told the President on Monday: "I hope for the time being to go back into private life ... but I don't think it will be possible."
