

Use Of DDT Almost Completely Banned

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmental Protection Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus ordered today an almost complete ban on use of the pesticide DDT in the United States.

Ruckelshaus made the ban effective Dec. 31, 1972, to allow a transition to substitute pesticides.

Under his order, the use of DDT will be permitted in this country only for public health purposes and in three minor uses to protect crops where no effective alternatives are available—that is, on green peppers, onions and sweet potatoes in storage.

All remaining crop uses of DDT—mainly on cotton, peanuts, and soybeans—will be banned.

Ruckelshaus' decision was based on a 17-month study by EPA on the effects of the widely used chemical.

The long-awaited decision gave environmental groups a victory in one of their earliest and toughest battles that began with the publication of the late Rachel Carson's now-famous book, "Silent Spring."

Although DDT became a worldwide weapon against insects in the years following World War II, Miss Carson warned that it was spreading and persisting in the environment. Other environmentalists soon began campaigning against the pesticide.

In a 40-page decision Ruckelshaus said: "I am convinced by a preponderance of the evidence that, once used, DDT is an uncontrollable, durable chemical that persists in the aquatic and terrestrial environments."

"The evidence of record, showing storage in man and magnification in the food chain, is a warning to the prudent that man may be exposing himself to a substance that may ultimately have a serious effect on his health."

DDT still is widely used abroad for malaria control and crop protection and the order does not prohibit DDT export from the United States.

Ruckelshaus said its likely substitute in this country for most crop uses is methylparathion, a chemical which is highly toxic but which breaks up rapidly and therefore does not build up in the environment as DDT does. He said its safe use will require special training of workers for its application.

The order was released while Ruckelshaus was in Stockholm, Sweden, attending the United Nations Conference on the Human Environment.

EPA said he signed the order June 3, banning general use of DDT effective at the end of this year.

The heated debate over its safety has raged for years, spreading from the laboratory to the courtroom and pitting environment groups against farmers and public health groups.

Environment groups have condemned DDT as damaging to wildlife and a potential cancer threat to man. They assert safer methods are available to control pests. Agriculture interests have insisted the chemical is safe and essential for bountiful crops.

The Agriculture Department first began canceling some uses of DDT in November 1969.

Record Number Of Air Strikes Flown Tuesday Against North Vietnam

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers flew a record 340 strikes against North Vietnam on Tuesday and blasted at least nine more railroad bridges, including four on the northwest line to China and three between Hanoi and Haiphong, the U.S. Command said today.

It was the largest number of strikes in one day since the resumption two months ago of daily intensified bombing to paralyze North Vietnam's supply and communications lines.

The closest of the bridges to China was 45 miles from the border. Peking charged that raids earlier this week within 25 miles of the border threatened China's security and were "grave provocations against the Chinese people."

Only one B52 mission over North Vietnam was reported today, a three-plane raid on supply dumps 20 miles northwest of Dong Hoi. But the big bombers pounded North Vietnamese troop concentrations and staging areas along South Vietnam's western border with Laos and Cambodia.

About 20 of the giant bombers dropped 500 tons of explosives in the A Shau Valley hard by the Laotian border. The target was North Vietnamese troops 25 to 30 miles southwest of Hue, who reportedly are targeted against the former imperial capital.

Along the Cambodian border half a dozen of the Stratofortresses attacked troops of two North Vietnamese regiments that have been assaulting the district town of Tuyen Binh and the provincial capital of Moc Hoa, about 60 miles west of Saigon.

The South Vietnamese command reported that a three-day operation near Moc Hoa, five miles south of Tuyen Binh, netted 164 enemy killed and 56 weapons captured. Twenty South Vietnamese were killed and 42 were wounded, the command said.

Fighting also continued north of Saigon between the big South Vietnamese base at Lai Khe and the besieged provincial capital of An Loc.

Helicopters landed hundreds of South Vietnamese replacements at a landing zone just south of An Loc, and they moved into the city by foot.

Reports reaching Saigon said virtually all North Vietnamese forces had been rooted out of An Loc itself, but fighting continued on the perimeter.

Hanoi Radio claimed two Air Force F4 jets were shot down over North Vietnam Tuesday. The U.S. Command said it had no aircraft losses to report over the North.

Utility Bills Via Computer

Greenville Utilities data processing system is now compiling customer's bills, Curtis Howell, business manager, reported to the commission last night.

The commission installed a terminal system which operates through a computer in Charlotte.

Howell said all the billing was done through the computer in May with "not too many repercussions."

He noted there were some mistakes but he felt they were minimal when it was considered that a massive amount of information had to be transferred to the computer before billing could begin.

The local commission uses electric typewriter-like terminals to send information to the computer center.

Commissioners transferred certain water, sewer and electric improvements projects from bond funds to the general capital improvement account. Involved was, water $4,479, sewer, $37,338, electric, $9,352.

A budget session was set for Thursday, June 22.

Bancroft Moseley explained an insurance plan to protect officers and commissioners against suit and the commission approved applying for the policy for further consideration.

Mine Explosion Injures 27 Men

By BILL HENDRICK
Associated Press Writer
CONCORD, Ala. (AP) — Two tanks of welding gas accidentally entered a coal crusher in U.S. Steel's Concord mine late Tuesday, causing an explosion that injured 27 men, a preliminary investigation by government officials showed today.

There were no fatalities. Seven miners were hospitalized, one in critical condition and three seriously hurt, hospital spokesmen said.

A U.S. Steel spokesman said company mining officials, along with authorities from the U.S. Bureau of Mines and a state agency made the report, saying:

"A preliminary investigation of a minor explosion in the No. 1 crusher reveals two tanks of welding gas used in the normal course of mining activities inadvertently entered the crusher, along with a quantity of coal."

"The tanks ruptured, releasing the gas, which was ignited by sparks. A small fire resulted. It was immediately contained and extinguished."

A witness said the blast occurred in the bottom area of the 600-foot level of the 2,300-foot-deep mine, where some 30 to 35 miners were working. The Concord mine, which furnishes coal for U.S. Steel's massive Fairfield Works near Birmingham, employs 700 miners. About 200 of them were on duty at the time.

The mine is 20 miles west of Birmingham near the town of Hueytown.

Going Again To China

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's top national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, will go to the People's Republic of China for a four-day visit June 19-23 for "concrete consultations" with Chinese leaders as a followup of Nixon's summit talks, the White House announced today.

The aim of the meeting will be "to further the normalization of relations" between the two countries and to continue "to exchange views on issues of common interest," the announcement made jointly here and in Peking said.

After Nixon's summit meeting with the Chinese leaders in February, it was announced that both countries would make an effort to continue contacts and that senior U.S. representatives would be sent to Peking from time to time.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Kissinger, who will be making his third trip to Communist China, is expected to meet with Premier Chou En-lai and top officials of the Foreign Ministry in Peking.

"I would expect all international questions will be discussed," Ziegler said.

Convention Protest Groups Face Crisis Of Too Few Privies

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Privies, not police, may prove to be the biggest problem for the 100,000 protesters expected at this summer's national political conventions, says the man responsible for public sanitation facilities.

"We project that we'll need about 500 portable toilets—minimum—to provide facilities for a crowd of 100,000 campers," said John Eckoff of the Dade County Public Health Department.

"Even with 500 portable johns, that would allow each person only six minutes a day on a 24-hour-a-day basis," Eckoff said. "They'll have to line up for blocks during the daytime when everybody's up and about. I can guarantee you that nobody's going to get a chance to do much reading."

Eckoff said Tuesday that it would cost about $115,000 to provide and service 500 portable toilets from the July 10 opening of the Democratic National Convention to the end of the Republican National Convention Aug. 23.

A coalition of protest groups including the Yippies, Gay Liberation Front, Vietnam Veterans Against the War and Southern Christian Leadership Conference has asked the city to provide camping space for 100,000 nondelegates for the six-week period.

"It wouldn't be so bad if these protesters were only going to be here for a few days," Eckoff said, "but we'll have them around for a month or six weeks. An awful lot of health problems can develop in that time."

"Some of them are going to be doing their own cooking, and we know that could mean outbreaks of intestinal diseases," he said. "Now suppose 15,000—that's only 15 per cent—come down with the GIs (diarrhea). What are we going to do?"

Eckoff said the city also could face a major problem with water and food supplies for the protesters.

"Another thing we're worrying about is garbage," Eckoff said. "It's going to take more trash cans and more manpower to haul away garbage from the campsites, otherwise we're faced with another disease-threatening situation."

Deputies Seek 24 Million Bees

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — Yakima County sheriff's deputies have hit the trail in search of 24 million bees and 800 hives which disappeared over the weekend from the bee ranch run by Jim and Jess Bunch.

The hives are worth about $24,000. Each of the 800 hives contained about 30,000 bees and their value is one to be calculated only after the honey market is tasted.

Job Registration Unlikely To Affect Welfare Ranks

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new federal law requiring 1.5 million men and women on welfare to register for work or job training is expected to have minimal impact on the nation's swollen welfare rolls.

High unemployment and a tight federal budget are expected to limit the impact of Workfare, the only portion of President Nixon's welfare reform bill to become law to date.

About 140,000 able-bodied welfare fathers will find themselves automatically signed up by local welfare agencies before the law takes effect July 1. Hundreds of thousands of welfare mothers will be added to the list as their recertification date comes up in the next six months.

But fewer than half are likely to be called in for appraisal interviews afterward. Those most likely to be placed in jobs without further training will be called whenever an opening occurs.

Exempt from work registration are mothers of preschoolers, adults caring for someone else at home, youngsters over 16 attending school fulltime, wives of registered men and anyone living more than one hour away from an approved project.

The $250 million requested by the White House, plus another $205 million budgeted earlier for the Work Incentives (WIN) Program, more than doubles spending the last four years. The program would create 8,000 public service jobs and 24,500 new job training post positions.

"It will be a rather limited program," said an official of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which originally asked for $565 million, later scaled to $450 million.

HEW undersecretary John G. Veneman said, however, "for the number of people we'll reach, I think $250 million is enough."

The WIN program has had a disappointing record, plagued from the start by "buckpassing" between HEW and the Labor Department with state administration compounding the problem, Veneman said.

Of the 385,000 persons enrolled in WIN the last four years at a cost of $444 million, half dropped out for a variety of reasons, 127,800 are still in training and 61,500 have been placed in subsidized jobs for one to six months.

The WIN program is aimed at cutting welfare's Aid to Families With Dependent Children case load, which jumped 28 per cent last year and totaled 2.9 million adults and 7.7 million children receiving more than $555 million in January.

Two Arrested In Heroin Raid

HEROIN bags, confiscated yesterday by Greenville police, can be compared in size to a quarter at left. Other empty bags of a type often used, are at top.

Greenville police officers yesterday arrested two blacks on charges of possession of heroin following a raid on a 1200A Glen Arthur Ave. residence.

According to Police Chief Glenn Cannon, Melvin Earl Brown, 20 and Evone Vines (alias Delores Vines), were charged when 12 small envelopes containing heroin were found after officers entered the dwelling about 4 p.m.

Brown was also charged with resisting, hindering and delaying officers and with possessing a pistol without a permit.

Bond for Brown was set at $5,600 while bond for Miss Vines was placed at $4,000.

A District Court hearing in the cases was set for July 12.

Chief Cannon set the value of the heroin at $8 per bag, or $96 for the dozen bags confiscated yesterday.

Peace Mission?

CALCUTTA (AP) — Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny arrived in Calcutta today en route to Hanoi, touching off speculation he was on a peace mission.

Podgorny told reporters: "The Vietnam problem should be solved fast and the Americans should cease their bombing there."

Experienced diplomats in Moscow saw Podgorny's visit to Hanoi as an effort to bring peace to Vietnam, although they conceded they had no solid information to support their conclusion.

Man Shipped In Box As Part Of Big Theft Plot

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Three men were arrested at Hartsfield International Airport here Tuesday night, after one man was shipped by air freight and tried to steal $3 million in securities from the cargo hold of an Eastern Airlines B727 between Greensboro, N.C., and Atlanta, the FBI reported.

Grant Clyde Cradley, 39, of High Point, N.C., one of the three arrested, had been shipped in a cardboard and wood box which was three feet square, the FBI said.

He got out of the box, but was unsuccessful in an effort to break into the box in which the securities had been shipped, an FBI agent said.

Other arrests are anticipated in the Greensboro area, the agent said.

Others arrested here were identified as Benjamin Ray Anthony, 33, of Perkinsville, N.C., and Jerry Lee Baker, in his early 30s, of Greensboro, N.C.

All were charged with conspiracy to steal the securities, the FBI reported.

The three were taken into custody at the airline's air freight terminal adjacent to the main terminal shortly after Flight 393 landed.

Agents, acting on a tip from Greensboro, arrested all three when Anthony and Baker went to claim the box containing Cradley, the FBI said.

The box in which he was shipped contained a supply of oxygen, but the flight time to Atlanta is less than an hour. The FBI said the aircraft did not go above 26,000 feet, and then for only a short time.

None of the passengers aboard the plane was aware of what was taking place, the FBI said. The baggage and freight are in a compartment separate from the passenger cabin.

The three arrested here were to be arraigned today before U.S. Magistrate J. Robert Thompson.

There was no word on whether the shipment contained any cash. The FBI said the shipment was made by "a security company—one of the armored services," but declined to identify it.

Look Out When Hubby Learns His 'ABCs'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband came home a little early and I didn't hear him. I was on the telephone talking to "B" at the time. ["B" is a guy I've had something going with for about a year. He's a friend of my husband's.]

My husband could tell I was talking to some guy because I hung up real fast when I saw him, so he asked me who my "boy friend" was. I lied and told him it was "J" [another friend of his], but I told him that nothing ever happened between us. [It's true, nothing did.]

Since this incident, my husband has been very cool to "J." I feel just awful and want to clear "J's" name, but I'm afraid if I do my husband might suspect the right one. What should I do?

IN MESS IN K. C.

DEAR IN: Tell your husband that the guy on the phone wasn't "J," and if he guesses it was "B," you'd better run like "H."

DEAR ABBY: I have just had my 62d birthday, which makes me eligible for Social Security. My problem: For the last 32 years I have been living as a common law wife, but as far as I know, none of my friends are aware of it. Common law marriages are legal in this state, but I have heard that in order to prove my marriage when I apply for Social Security, I must have affidavits stating that my husband and I have been living together as man and wife. I couldn't possibly ask any of my friends to sign for me, Abby. I couldn't bear the gossip.

My husband is 74, and we could use the extra money. Is there any other way to solve my problem?

NAMELESS IN IDAHO

DEAR NAMELESS: Either inquire at your local Social Security office, or ask a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: Our oldest daughter, age 23, is still living at home. She has graduated from college and already has a job in her chosen profession.

She doesn't drink or smoke, and in all her years of schooling, we have never had any kind of discipline problem with her.

Now the problem: When her boy friend comes over, she entertains him in her bedroom. They are usually watching TV, which is hers, purchased with her own money. But she always closes the door, and sometimes he stays as late as 2 or 3 a.m.

My husband feels that this doesn't look nice, so he mentioned it to her and she said she wasn't doing anything she was ashamed of.

I told my husband that in view of her perfect record, at age 23, if this is all we could find to complain about we were lucky. I would like your honest opinion on this, Abby.

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: I'm with you, Mother.

DEAR ABBY: About that woman married 28 years who felt insecure because she was still wearing the tiny diamond her husband gave her when they were engaged, even tho he could afford a much larger one now.

Shame on her. I'm still wearing my original diamond from 33 years ago, and I wouldn't trade it for the one Richard Burton gave Elizabeth Taylor! Many of my friends have replaced their rings—some, by replacing their husbands. Sign me. . . .

Long Distance Romance Has A Happy Ending—Marriage

ALLEGAN, Mich. (AP) — Through the medium of a film canister, a long-range romance has culminated in marriage for a Wyoming girl and a Michigan man.

The romance spanned half the country, nearly five years and lots of letter writing. But it ended recently with the wedding of Dennis Misner, 21, of Allegan in southwestern Michigan, and Barbara Merchant, 20, Cody, Wyo.

On a June day in 1966, the Raymond Misner family of Allegan was vacationing in Wyoming, headed for Yellowstone National Park.

The family arrived at the park's East Gate before it opened, so they had a picnic breakfast at a roadside park on the banks of the Shoshone River.

The Misner sons, Dennis and David, looked around for something to do. No one recalls whose idea it was, but the boys decided to write notes, put them inside 35mm film canisters and drop them in the river.

The family returned home and the film canisters were forgotten. But in February of 1971, a letter arrived from Barbara, saying she found one of the canisters while fishing on the Buffalo Bill Dam Reservoir, some 50 miles downstream from where it had been placed in the river.

That letter marked the beginning of a friendship between the two families. After several letters were exchanged, the Misners spent a vacation in Wyoming, then Barbara came to Allegan for a visit last November.

Dennis and Barbara were married in Cody this spring.

Sweaters In Status Slot For The Fall

By ANN HENCKEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — That modest sweater has moved into a top status slot for fall.

Jay Kobrin for Maisonette calls his fall collection "the little sweater that grew." It starts with a narrow waist-length pull-over and ends with a gold metallic dolman sleeve dress.

"We're living a real life in a real world, and we want to be that comfortable," Kobrin says.

His line is one of the best for the money on the market this fall, priced around $70 to $140. Some of the dresses look as if they belong in a more expensive, understated chic price range. The clothes are a well-disciplined selection of slim sweater dresses, with a layered sweater look. They are belted and matched with cardigans.

The best of the day colors are Kobrin's soft beiges and greys.

He shows the jumper look in beige with white turtle neck. Or grey and white argyle patterns, at $85. The slacks outfits include sweater sets and have a distinctive casual simplicity.

For evening, Kobrin likes sophisticated black metallic lounging pajamas or black sweater dress with shimmering cardigan. He does a simple gold dolman dress in the new short cocktail length, at $105.

At David Crystal, that comfortable knit look is used for pants suits with new wrap jackets. Pants also come with the blazer. The slim knit dress is patterned in pale, exaggerated herringbone, at $50. Brighter colors are cut with stripes at the bodice and sleeve.

There are plenty of the easy day dresses, as well as a choice of slim coats. A pale coat matches a white dress with large beige stitching.

None of these looks is extreme. They are mostly classic and familiar, the kind that thousands of women feel most comfortable in, after all.

Russel Taylor dazzles fake fur lovers with a wealth of novelty print furs—from tartan plaids to a "basket of feathers" print.

COOKING IS FUN!

One dish that is both a hearty meal and gourmet treat is the French country-style pork chop.

FRENCH COUNTRY-STYLE PORK CHOPS

4 medium carrots
2 celery stalks
tips of eight scallions
4 white onions chopped
16 ounces stewed tomatoes
¼ teaspoon ground majoram
1 bay leaf
dash thyme
¼ cup chopped parsley
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
½ cup beef consommé
½ cup dry white wine
2 pounds center cut pork chops with fat trimmed down

Dice carrots, celery and scallions. Combine with onions, tomatoes, marjoram, bay leaf, thyme, parsley, salt, pepper and paprika. Add consommé and wine and bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, for 5 minutes.

Put pork chops on top of vegetables. Cover and simmer for about one hour or until thoroughly done. Place vegetables in center of serving dish and surround with pork chops. Serve with a cold rose wine. Serves four.

Scrub the screens before putting them up for warm weather use.

Better Services At Less Cost?

If public health services in North Carolina might be improved by combining smaller single-county units into multi-county units, it could well be that a number of other county services might be improved in the same manner.

Appearing recently before the legislative commission on public health services, Dr. Ronald Levine asserted that better service could be rendered if a number of the smaller single-county health clinics were combined into multi-county units. At present, he pointed out, there are 70 single-county health departments in the state and there are 10 district departments made up of 30 different counties.

As local governments, both county and municipal, look for additional ways to provide better services and at the same time conserve limited revenues, greater attention should be given to the possibility of combining services. If the system works in providing health services—which it obviously does in almost one-third of North Carolina's counties—there is no reason to believe that other services might not be combined into multi-county or into city-county units.

As Dr. Levine pointed out, on the basis of the experience with the 30 counties now combined into the 10 district health departments, there is good reason to believe that services could be improved, and probably economies realized in some of the 70 single-county departments would merge into multi-county units.

In most instances, the major problem in creating multi-county or county-city units to provide any type service, is the fear of the local governments that it may somehow lose its identity. Elected officials are reluctant to give over their jurisdiction to officials of another local government, or in some cases even to share that jurisdiction.

As the cost of local government services continues to increase, local officials are increasingly hard pressed to find sufficient funds to provide adequate services on the level expected by their citizens. One possible partial solution to the problem is the combining of more services into multi-county units or into city-county units.

Not only would citizens benefit from better quality of service in most instances, they would also benefit by providing themselves with those services at a more economical cost in tax dollars than is now the case with each local government trying to provide so many of the essential services.

Role Of Church Said Declining

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — "What we believe as Christians should determine how we behave as citizens."

That is the credo of Dr. W. Perry Crouch, general secretary-treasurer of the Baptist State Convention, on the role of the church in society. Racial tensions, youth unrest, drug abuse and permissive sex may reflect a society in which the influence and Public Affairs, Baptists moved to a deeper involvement with problems within their communities.

Historically, Dr. Crouch pointed out, Baptists have given more attention to individual salvation than social action. He serves as acting director of the council, formed three years ago in recognition of the need for the church to address itself to social concerns. Pastors and laymen sit on the council, which discusses contemporary issues and encourages congregations to get involved. Local Baptist autonomy prevents it from dictating action to any church.

"Baptists in North Carolina make up more than one-fifth of the state's population," said Dr. Crouch. "We have a special responsibility concerning the moral direction of our state." The key lies, in his opinion, in the day-to-day work of the local church as it reaches people where they live.

Slow But Sure

Perhaps the church has not moved as far and as fast as it should in shaping the society, he agreed. That does not mean it has not moved at all, he added.

Since he assumed his post in 1964, he said, "I have seen many of our churches break with the patterns of the past."

Racial integration in churches once was unknown. Now, a growing number of churches include blacks in their membership. Three black churches have been accepted into the convention.

Dr. Crouch does not foresee merger of the predominantly white Baptist State Convention and the 300,000-member black General Baptist Convention. Bonds of cooperation will continue to be strengthened, he added.

Easy times are hard on churches. "Everything got too easy in the '50s. All you had to do was open the doors and the church filled up," Dr. Crouch recalled.

As pastor of First Baptist Church in Asheville, he sensed the gathering complacency. He tried to express it to the board of deacons.

"Preacher, what are you concerned about?" asked a deacon. "We've got the largest budget we ever had. The church is full every Sunday."

"My concern," replied Dr. Crouch, "is you lack of concern."

Out of trial comes strength. He is confident and optimistic for the future.

A Meeting Of Oil And Water

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The word spreading through Capitol Hill and Washington lobbyist circles that Sen. George McGovern plans to broaden his base in the Democratic party by selecting Rep. Wilbur D. Mills for Vice President is pure pie-in-the-sky judging from what really happened during their rendezvous in San Francisco June 2.

McGovern and Mills were oil and water, scarcely able to communicate, and far from even mentioning the Vice Presidency, the 20-minute conversation left Mills with a low opinion of McGovern's ability and credibility. As of now, he will find it hard to support McGovern as Presidential nominee, much less be his running mate.

That means McGovern's first foray to reconcile conservative Democrats to his nomination was a fiasco. It also suggests that the McGovern organization's talents in canvassing primary voters and flooding precinct conventions are a different world from the skills of the old politics that he now needs.

The McGovern-Mills confrontation grew out of the California Democratic primary. Mills in California June 1 as part of his low-key, long-shot campaign for President, was attacking McGovern's $1,000-a-head welfare scheme as adding $69 billion in Federal spending. Gordon Weil, an economist who is McGovern's traveling adviser and godfather of the welfare scheme, proposed an immediate McGovern-Mills meeting.

Weil had short-term and long-term goals. Short-term: to neutralize Mills on welfare so he would not attack McGovern on CBS's Face the Nation June 4, two days before the primary. Long-term: to identify McGovern with the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, a respected figure in business, Congressional and Southern circles.

Contacted at 3:46 p.m. June 2, Mills said the only time open was that evening when the president of the University of the Pacific was hosting a dinner for him at the Villa Taverna, a private club in San Francisco. McGovern's aides agreed to meet in a private room at the club. Unaware of Weil's arrangements until it was too late, some McGovern political lieutenants were flabbergasted at the front-runner begging for a meeting with a minor adversary.

After a bottle of champagne was opened, a smiling McGovern commended Mills's new tax reform program — better than his own, he confided to Mills. After a pause, McGovern then asked what Mills thought of his welfare scheme.

Mills was uncharacteristically blunt. It would cost the Treasury $69 billion unless Social Security payments were reduced as McGovern has suggested; even then, it would cost $27 billion (a figure McGovern used three days later in estimating its cost to horrified Democratic governors). To Mills's surprise, McGovern neither asked him to quit criticizing the plan nor defended it. "I'm not really married to it," McGovern said.

"Well," replied Mills, "that's good because you ought to throw it out as just an idea." McGovern responded that might be just the thing to do. The Senator next told Mills he planned to visit the South. "I think you ought to," Mills replied, adding tartly: "Of course, they think a little different than you do." Nothing was said about Mills going along. But Pat McGahn, a veteran political operative from Atlantic City, N.J., managing Mills's campaign, suggested that McGovern accompany Mills on a scheduled June 19 visit to

of the church is waning, he granted.

The problems of our unsettled times also show the test for those committed to the mission of the church, he added.

"The time is coming, and is now here, when the church does not have people coming to it simply as the respectable thing to do. Either they come out of conviction they stay away. I welcome the day," said Dr. Crouch.

The '50s was an era of fat churches and complacent attitudes; the '60s, a decade of unrest and falling away of the uncommitted. Now, in the '70s, said Dr. Crouch, "a more serious tone is evident and definite steps to face issues ignored too long."

Declining Church Influence

A national public opinion poll this spring said church attendance by adults is at a 15-year low. Two-thirds of those interviewed felt the church has a declining influence on American life.

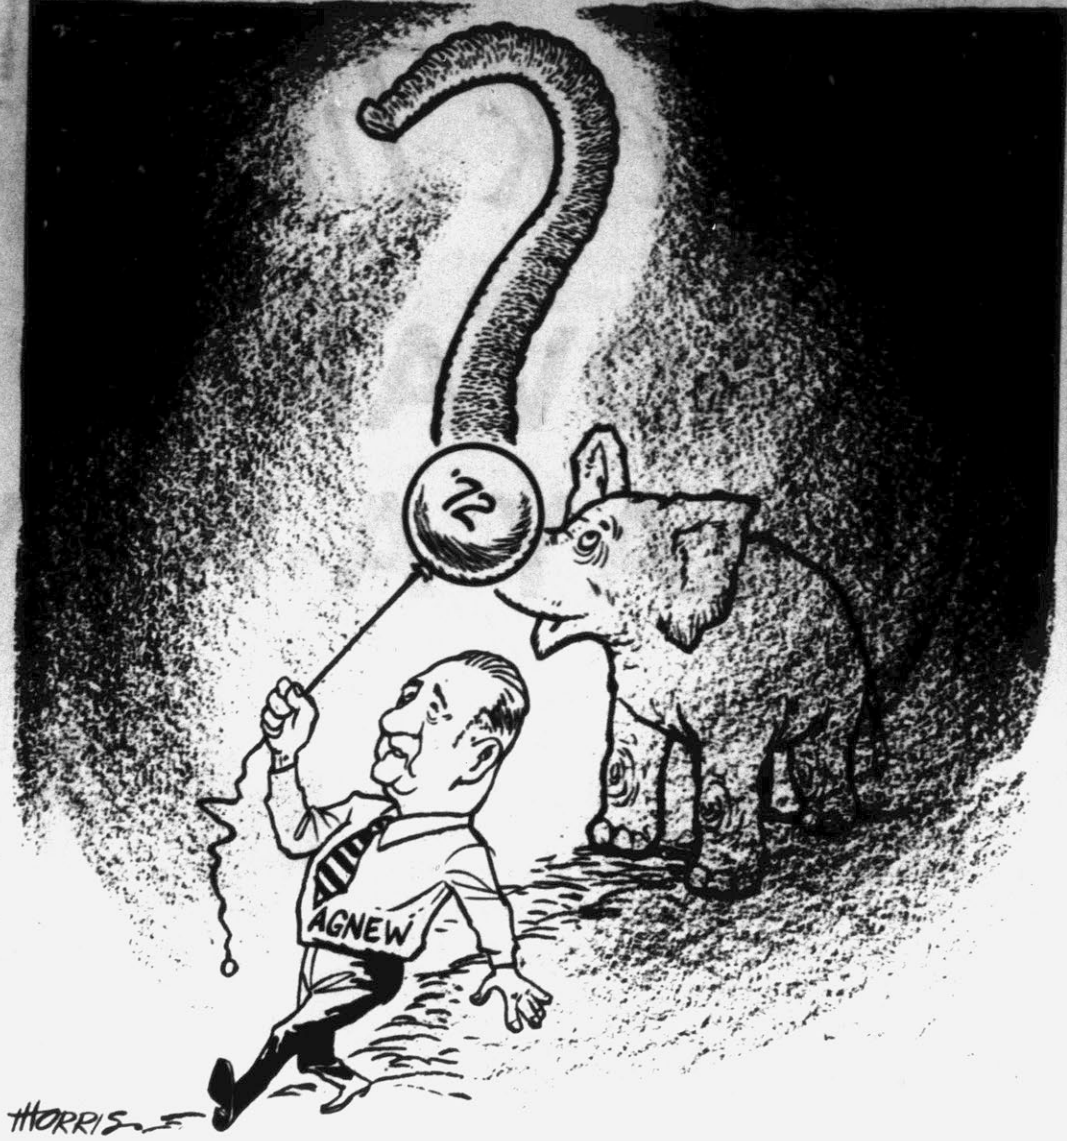

That may be true for the total picture but for Tar Heel Baptists, said Dr. Crouch, "we deny the charge."

Membership and giving gained for Baptist churches of the state last year, he noted. At the end of 1971, the 3,438 churches affiliated with the state convention had a total membership of 1,037,557. The number of new members received by baptism, 29,713, was the highest since 1964. The net membership increase was 13,993.

Total receipts for all the churches amounted to nearly $91 million, up 10 percent over the previous year.

Russians Can't Catch Up

WASHINGTON — There has been so much publicity about the U.S.-U.S.S.R. arms accord treaty that the other accords President Nixon signed with the Soviets have been ignored.

One of the most important was an environmental protection agreement calling for research, mutual cooperation and exchange of information on air and water pollution as well as ecological protection.

The United States maintains that it got the best of the deal on this treaty because America is so far ahead on pollution that the Soviets will never be able to catch up.

In a background briefing a government spokesman said, "Despite criticism of the treaty, I can assure the American people that the United States is so advanced in pollution that there is no danger that the Soviet Union will ever reach parity, much less superiority, in this field.

"The United States has enough stockpiled pollutants to kill every man, woman, animal and fish in the world four times over. The Soviets have enough pollutants to kill them only once. They cannot hope to achieve our pollution rate in the next 10 years." A reporter said, "There is a rumor that in the past 12 months the Soviets have had a crash program in pollution and have developed new land-based weapons that could raise their pollution rate to equal that of the United States."

The spokesman shook his head. "We have studied this very closely, and I can assure you that despite the Soviet efforts to increase their pollution, they are still a second-rate power compared to the United States."

"The key to a strong pollution program is automobiles. The United States is producing 10 times as many automobiles as the Soviets.

"Also, U.S. energy requirements guarantee we will have a superiority in air pollution for the next decade. While the Soviets have made some progress in water pollution, it's still a drop in the bucket compared to our own waste disposal programs."

"But what guarantee do we have that the Soviets will not secretly increase their pollution production while the treaty is in force?"

In order to have a true pollution deterrent," the spokesman said, "you must have a consumer-oriented society. You must have phosphates, disposable beer cans, styrofoam, plastics and used cars. The Soviet economy cannot possibly produce the consumer products needed to give them parity with the United States."

"Is it true," another reporter asked, "that the Soviets have been working on multiple pollutants that can pollute the air and the water at the same time?"

"We're aware of it," the spokesman said, "but we have multiple-pollution weapons as well, and ours are much more sophisticated. Without violating security I can tell you that we now have smokestacks that can pollute three states at one time."

"The Soviets know what we can do with pollution, and

Years Change Heaven

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — What is heaven?

It isn't always a simple thing and it isn't always in the same place. Heaven changes, too. It changes just as people, trees, moods and clouds do.

Sometimes heaven stays the same thing and in the same place for years. Then there are other times when it changes almost daily—like the pages of a calendar.

Here are some of the things that heaven can be to almost any man at different stages of his life:

At one year old it is beating on a big tin pan with a big wooden spoon.

At 5 it is drawing and coloring the prettiest white lamp in kindergarten.

At 8 heaven is winning a game of mumble-peg without sticking the knife in your arm.

At 10 it is being able to hang by your heels from the school-yard iron play bars.

At 13 or 14 it is standing in the front row of your grammar school graduating class and singing "Oh, Genevieve, Sweet Genevieve," in a falsetto voice wandering uncontrollably from alto to soprano.

At 16 a boy is in paradise shaving for the first time with his father's razor.

At 17 he's there when he drives a pretty red-haired girl to the Senior Prom in the family car.

At 18 it's being a summer waiter at a mountain resort where well-to-do parents bring their lonely but lovely and responsive daughters.

At 19, fighting in a war in a foreign land, a man finds his Valhalla alive squirming behind the provident shelter of a big

A movement for the reopening of the Westbrook swimming pool for the benefit of the children of the city was launched this morning by a group of interested citizens, and if plans are carried to completion the pool will be in readiness and open to the public within ten days or two weeks. The Water and Light Commission is again being asked to furnish free water for the pool and the city government and general public will be asked to donate necessary funds to take care of fixed overhead in the way of liability insurance and necessary repairs prior to the opening of the pool.

In the quietest of opening sessions, the Republican convention at Chicago Stadium submerged its troubles for the moment today, but it did not forget them. As its keynote speaker, Senator Dickinson of Iowa, talked to restless delegates urging them to boost Hoover's renomination as President of the United States.

Strength For Today

NOT OUR OWN

Nobody ever looked more deeply into the human soul than did St. Paul. One of his grand statements to his fellow Christians was this: "Ye are not your own; for ye were bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body" (1 Corinthians 6:20).

We are bought with a price. We came into the world at the cost of a woman's pain. We were fed and clothed because a father sacrificed to give us these things. The liberties we enjoy in a free country were purchased by the blood of martyrs. And central in our religious doctrine is the teaching that God Himself made the infinite sacrifice in our behalf when in and through Jesus Christ He suffered for our sins on the cross.

Our benefits have all been purchased at a great cost. Nothing comes cheap in God's universe. The fact that everything we hold precious has been bought with a price confronts us wherever we turn.

Therefore, we are to glorify God in our bodies. We do not do this if we dedicate our lives to unworthy objectives. Many men and women take God's gift of opportunity and throw it away recklessly in lives of indulgence and pleasure. To them, and to those of us who are even to the smallest degree failing to live up to our best, come these solemn words from the lips of the Apostle Paul: "Ye are not your own; ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your bodies."

Business Community Distrusts

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In much of the business community today there is a defensive feeling, a fear of the future, a distrust of the political climate, a suspicion that events might conspire against it.

It is difficult to say how pervasive this attitude is but it appears and reappears in the speeches and testimony and other public statements of many chief executives of the largest and most powerful corporations.

Whether the attitude is justified by the facts can, perhaps, be answered only through a thorough study.

To illustrate from a little noted but very revealing speech this week:

Stewart S. Cort, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corp., second largest in an industry where profits have lagged, is taking "an awful beating" somewhat bitter also, it would seem by his remarks—about political attacks on business.

Truthfulness, he told the Jacksonville, Fla., Rotary, is taking "an awful beating" from some political candidates. They are, he said, throwing around careless rhetoric intended to discredit the business community.

Cort was especially incensed about accusations that business fails to pay its fair share of taxes, claiming that in the 10 years through 1971 Bethlehem paid more than $1.7 billion, or more than its total net income.

"So please think twice before swallowing all this baloney about large corporations not carrying their fair share of the tax burdens," he said. The explanation, he said, is that "the temptation is irresistible" to attack business.

Cort expanded his remarks to talk about a general climate of "cynicism and mistrust" fostered by "an army of malcontents" who, he implied, were largely responsible for—as revealed in an unnamed survey—46 per cent of Americans thinking that big business is dangerous to our way of life.

The effect if not the purpose of antibusiness propaganda and calls for extreme tax reform, he suggested, is to destroy individual incentive.

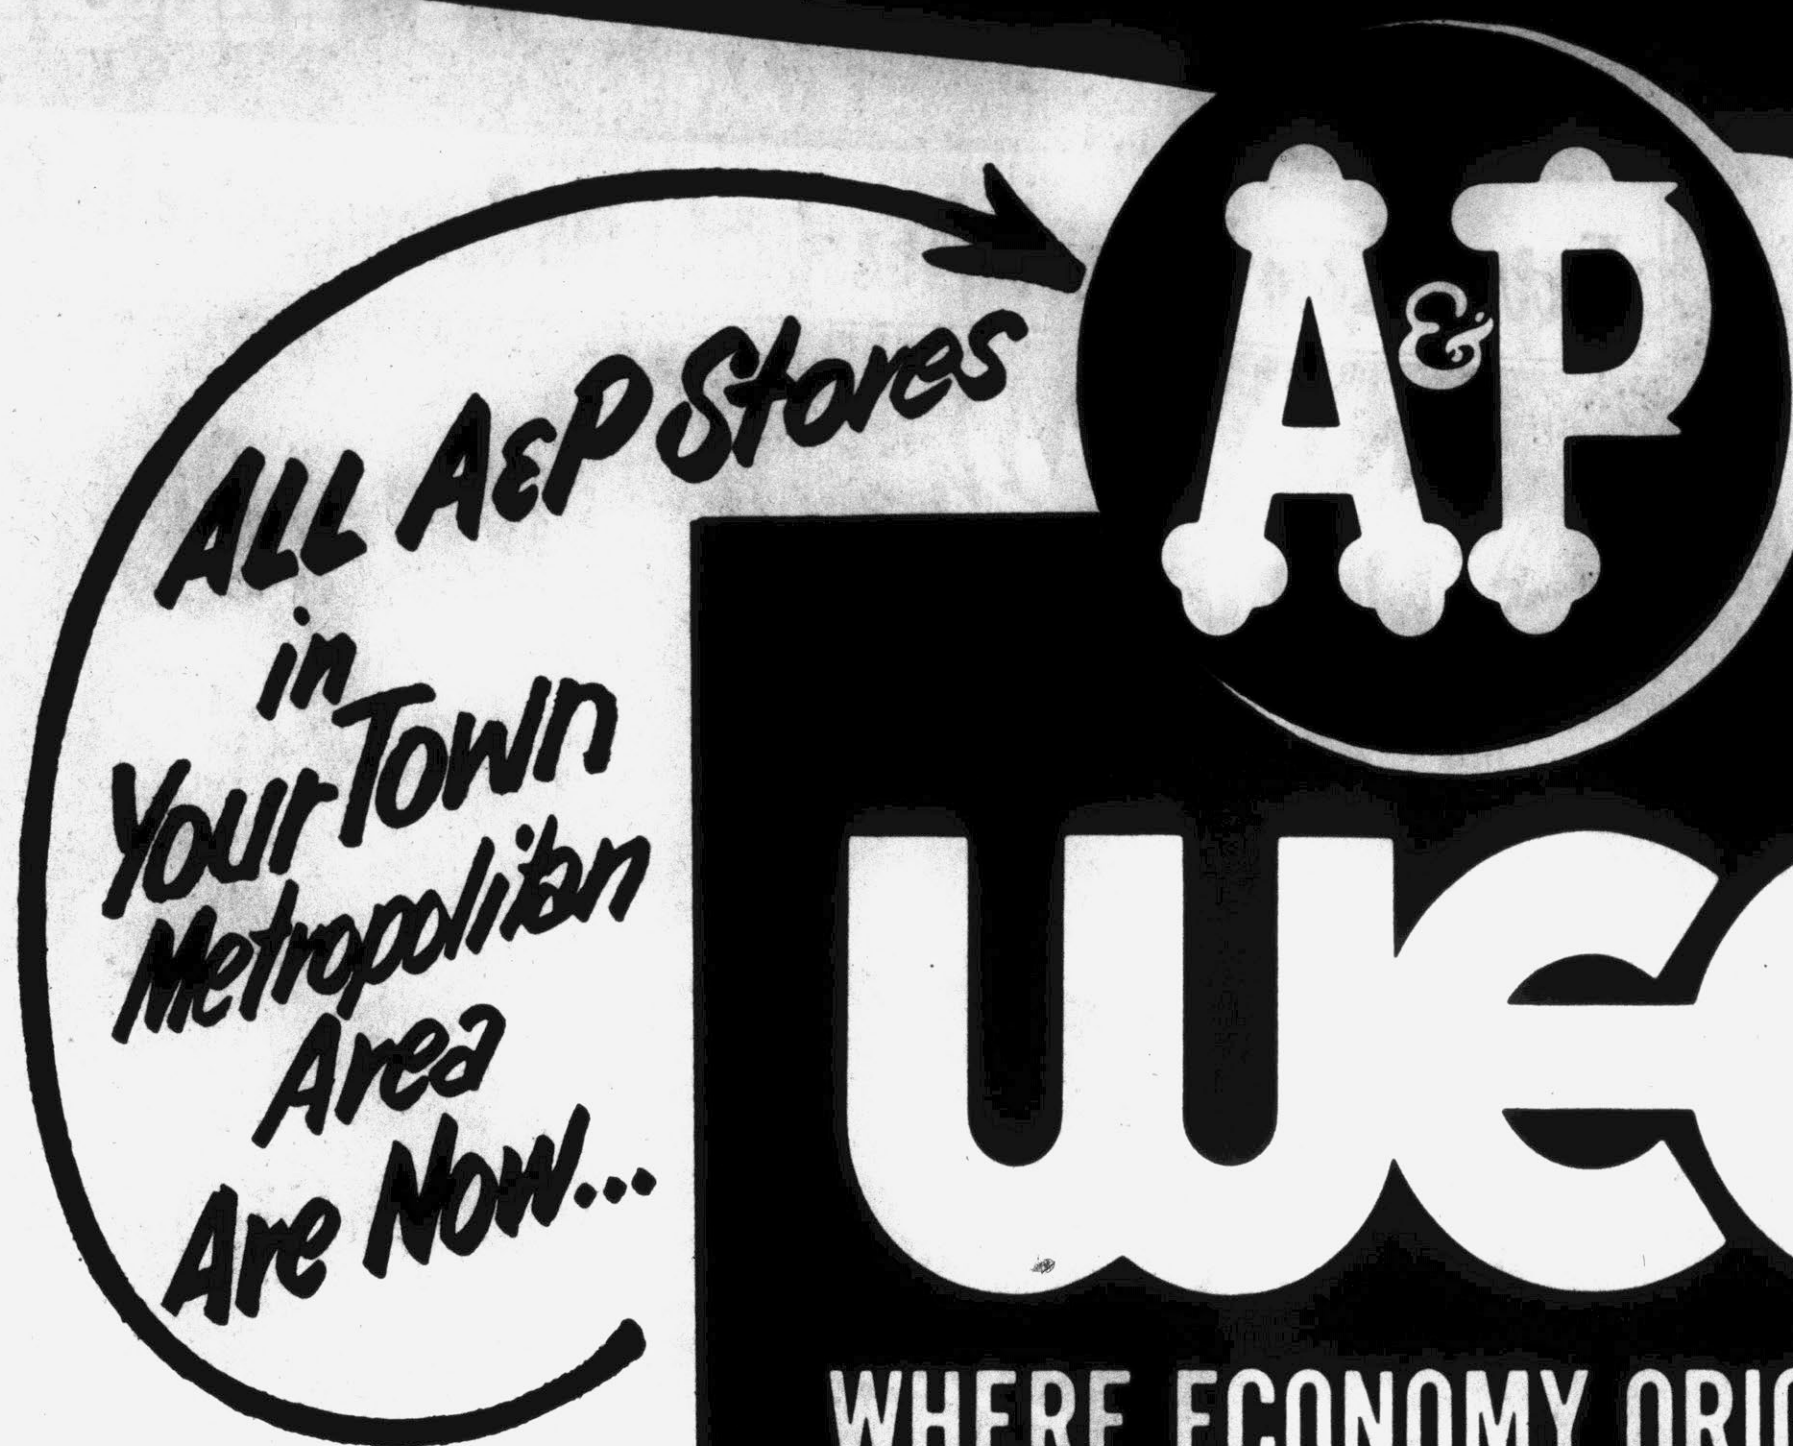

confiscate savings and endanger individual freedom.

Cort insisted he wasn't against change. Continual and gradual changes in society are needed, he said, "and needed badly." There is, he said, "a lot of inequity in our land: there's a lot of poverty; there's a lot of suffering that must be remedied."

But, he added, "we must find a way to do it that doesn't stop our economy in its tracks—a way that doesn't wipe out the individual liberties that have made us a proud country, with every right to be proud."

He called for groups such as the Rotary to organize programs "to encourage responsible, honest, and truthful campaigning. Mobilize 'truth squads' perhaps."

Employers' Role In 'Drinking Problem' Underlined

Fishing Rodeo Slated June 24

Saturday, June 24, is to be a big fish day on the calendar for the 1972 summer for boys in Greenville and Pitt County.

On that date, the first annual Greenville and Pitt County Boys' Club Fishing Rodeo will be held at White's Concrete Company's fishing pond north of Greenville.

The fishing rodeo activities begin at mid morning and will continue on through mid-afternoon. Adult supervision will be given at all times.

All boys ages six through 16 are eligible and are encouraged to enter the rodeo, eight on their own or through a sponsor.

Since the project is a major fund raising one for necessary funds to carry on the club's normal operations, entry fee for the rodeo and the chance to win a prize will be $5.00 for each boy.

"We're pinning our hopes on the people of Pitt County and Greenville," David Wilcox, director of the club said. "We feel certain there are many generous people who will be willing to sponsor some boy who wants to fish for prizes to make the project a real success, both for a boy and for the club."

Wilcox said people who don't have a boy of their own to sponsor, or anyone who may wish to sponsor a boy in addition to his own, is urged to get in contact with the Boys' Club (telephone 758-4029).

Hugh Bazemore, chairman of the fishing rodeo, said "an array of valuable prizes have been arranged by the Luncheon Optimist Club with numerous prizes to be offered for each age group of participating youngsters.

"Prizes include items highly prized by boys of any age—such as rods and reels, radios, sleeping bags and numerous other items. These will be awarded to the fortunate lad in each group who catches the largest, longest, the smallest and the ugliest fish.

Bazemore, like Wilcox, is urging full support from Greenville and Pitt County adults. "There are many young boys in Greenville and Pitt County that are dependent on men in this area to sponsor their application," he said. "Please open up your heart, along with your pocketbook and sponsor one youngster in this rodeo. He will never let you forget it."

Entry forms for the rodeo are available at any bank in Greenville and also at the A.G. Cox School in Winterville.

Transportation will be provided for boys who need it. Wilcox has given the following bus schedule—pick up at 9:30 a.m. at Elm Street Gym, Aycock Junior High School, and at Boys' Club on Skinner Street in Greenville; and at the A.G. Cox School in Winterville.

Return time to these points for boys utilizing the buses will be at 4:30 p.m.

Reward Offered In Dog's Death

FALMOUTH, Maine (AP) — Offers of rewards have poured in following the drowning of a young Great Dane dog, which was shackled to 125 pounds of auto parts and thrown into a river.

William R. McDonald, state humane agent, said Tuesday night that there were no leads into the drowning. Any prosecution in the case would come under the animal cruelty statute, which carries a maximum penalty of 11 months in jail or a $100 fine, he said.

Police Chief Clyde P. LeClair said the dog managed to drag itself for about 200 feet toward the beach before it drowned in the oncoming tide Saturday.

The dog's hind legs and neck were bound by rope, which were tied to automobile parts, including a heavy transmission housing.

rock during an artillery bombardment.

At 21 he finds it in the sight of a flapping banner across the street where he lives, welcoming him home with his souvenirs—a Good Conduct Ribbon, an honorable discharge, a Purple Heart Medal, a piece of shrapnel somewhere in his knee.

At 22 heaven is two lumps of gladness in his throat—the day he gets the first paycheck on his lifetime job, the day the right girl proves at the altar she really meant yes.

At 25 heaven is the fearful day he goes to work with a smaller firm that pays less at the start but offers bigger opportunities sooner—and discovers he likes the new place.

After that heaven begins to come more slowly.

At 40 it is being told by an orthodontist that the last of his three children won't have to have his teeth straightened.

At 47 it is kissing his first grandchild.

At 65 it is a gold watch, a farewell letter from his boss, and time to watch more sunsets.

At 72 it is celebrating his golden wedding anniversary, still with the same old girl.

An at 80, heaven is—well, heaven is where he has been for three years now and finally decided is a better place to live in rather than just visit.

Coming soon: What hell is at different ages.

PINEHURST — "Employers have a need and a responsibility to help their employees with drinking problems avoid becoming alcoholics incapable of meaningful living and work."

This is the theme of the first session of the National Occupational Alcoholism Training Institute sponsored by East Carolina University now underway, according to William Byrd, program director.

One hundred participants, two from each state, came together here Monday and will meet through June 30 to train themselves to work with employers in setting up effective programs to help their employees who are becoming alcoholics.

"This is a remarkable group of people," said Brayhom Anderson, who is in charge of the day to day function of the Institute. In addition to hearing the best speakers money can buy, including members of the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, heads of industries that already have effective programs to deal with troubled employees (The Wall Street Journal reported a few weeks ago that there are 12 such companies in the United States.) and other experts in the alcoholic rehabilitation field, these men are contributing much themselves that will be used with the actual work begins.

"This is an open-ended situation," said Jerry Lotterhos, a consultant with the Alcohol Training Program of North Carolina. "By this I mean that no patterns have as yet been set as to how the two from each state can best work with the employers back home. Approaches will be developed during this three-week session."

"One point being stressed is that in today's society, the employer probably has the strongest leverage to persuade a person to try to conquer his drinking problem. Spouses can cajole and relatives and friends and ministers can talk, but the employer can say, "We know you have a problem. We're going to get help for you. If you make it work, we need you on your job. If you do not, you know we cannot continue to use you," Byrd said.

"A second is that early detection is the key to helping the alcoholic. This can best be done if the employee and his peers realize that he will not be fired if the company finds out, but instead will receive assistance to do something about his problem."

Of the two trainees from each state, one will go home to work with private industry, the other to work with governmental units that have many employees. Consultants will not work directly with alcoholic employees, but will assist in individual industries in setting up programs.

It was announced May 2 that East Carolina University had been granted $295,000 through the NIAAA to develop an occupational alcoholic consultants' training program. After this session, the consultants will work six months in their home states and then will meet for another institute, sharing experiences and new knowledge in the field. This meeting will be held in San Francisco.

Six Men Charged With Enslavement Violation

RUSKIN, Fla. (AP) — Six men have been accused of violating the Constitution's anti-slavery provision by beating migrant tomato pickers and keeping them against their will in an abandoned, tumbledown schoolhouse, authorities said.

The men, all from Forest City, Ark., were indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury in Tampa on charges of conspiracy and involuntary servitude.

"Overt acts in the conspiracy included forcibly returning migrant workers to the camp, preventing and also beating several workers who attempted to leave the camp," said the FBI special agent in charge at Tampa, J. F. Santoiana Jr.

Santoiana identified the men as Walter Taylor Jr., 31; his brother, A. J. Taylor, 26; Edward Earle Hinton, 26; David Rucker, 25; Frank James, whose age was unavailable, and Ernest Morgan, 23.

All but Morgan were taken from the old Sun City schoolhouse near here to the Hillsborough County jail in Tampa about 20 miles north of this small agricultural town. Morgan, a patient in a Bradenton hospital, is to be turned over to U. S. marshals upon his release, the FBI said.

Hours after the arrests about 25 migrants sat around picnic tables in a large hall in the school building drinking beer while music blared from a juke box. The floor was littered with cigarette butts and discarded foodstuffs.

"Nobody is going out of the gate here," said Francis Ford, a black migrant worker. "The gates are open but nobody is going out. We are all staying here. We want to."

Luberta Taylor, 18, wife of the younger Taylor, said "all the workers seem to be happy" and there was "absolutely no truth" in the allegations.

She said about 40 persons were living in the old school, including five women, seven children and several white workers.

Santoiana identified Walter Taylor as the labor camp's operator.

In 1970, the Hillsborough County Health Department sought to close the camp, stating that human waste was on the ground and ventilation in the living quarters was inadequate. But a Circuit Court judge in Tampa refused the order, directed Taylor to make repairs and found Taylor was attempting to make improvements to comply with the law.

15-Hour Sewing Seminar Set At Pitt Tech

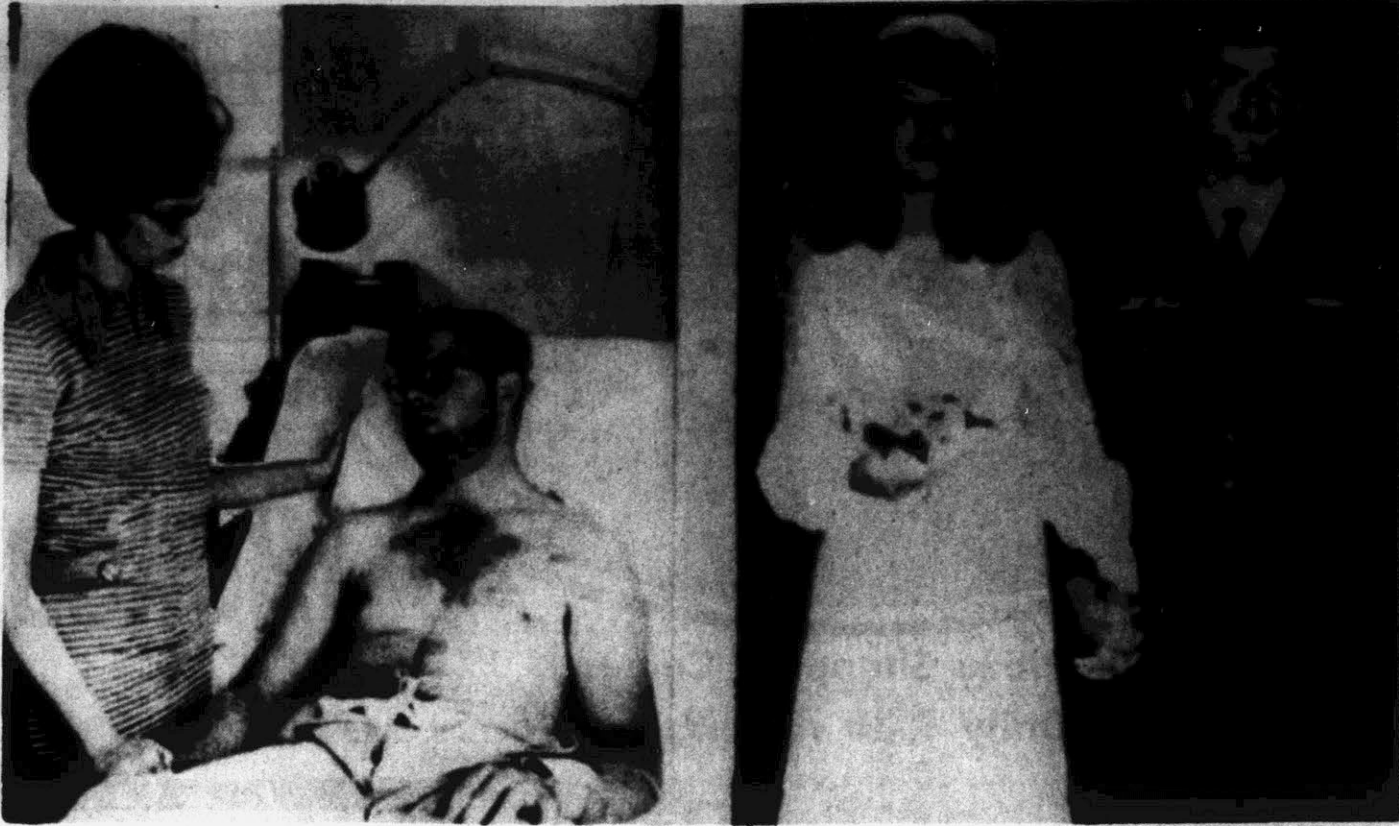

Pitt Technical Institute will conduct a 15-hour Sewing Seminar in room 4 meeting at 2 p.m. Thursday. The class will meet each Thursday from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Adults will need no equipment, materials or supplies. Each person should already know basic sewing skills and sewing terminology.

Instruction will consist of lecture, demonstration, and discussion. Areas that will be discussed and presented are basic sewing fundamentals, materials, patterns, tailoring, pressing techniques, use of trims, etc.

Cost for the seminar is $1.50. All interested persons should attend the Thursday afternoon meeting.

For further information, visit Pitt Technical Institute, or telephone 756-3130.

Decompression Training Is Bypassed By Airlines

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Last year the U.S. Air Force spent more than $1 million sending 15,000 pilots and flight crew members through pressure chambers to simulate rapid decompression, the emergency that struck an American Airlines DC10 on Monday.

But America's major airlines, which carried 152 million passengers in the United States last year, don't require this emergency training for their pilots and stewardesses, a poll indicated Tuesday. Federal Aviation Administration regulations don't require it.

So only pilots with military experience and a handful of stewardesses know what it feels like when the unexpected bang comes, followed by a whoosh of air, a cold mist fogging the cabin, and objects whistling about.

The incident Monday night raises anew old questions about whether such training should be mandatory for airline crews.

The American Airlines spokesman said Tuesday the DC10 experienced sudden decompression when a hatch came open over Ontario. The crew made an emergency landing at Detroit minutes later without a rudder or left braking system, with the rear engine of the three-engine plane disabled and elevation controls partially lost. Of the 67 persons aboard, nine were injured slightly while sliding down emergency escape chutes after landing and two stewardesses were hurt slightly when a floor collapsed.

Airline crew training officials questioned Tuesday included representatives for Pan American, United, Trans World, Continental and American. All said pressure chamber training isn't deemed necessary because rapid decompression occurs so infrequently. Training now in use is sufficient, they said.

TENTATIVE DATE
RALEIGH (AP) — Sen. Herman A. Moore, D-Mecklenburg, said today a study of North Carolina's bank taxation system will begin about August 1.

However the Air Force requires every pilot and crew member and even touring congressmen and other civilians to take its physiological training course and renew it every three years before they can fly in most high altitude airliners.
The course consists of one day of classroom work followed by half a day in the pressure chamber. Students learn to use oxygen masks, are taken up to a simulated altitude of 43,000 feet achieved by pumping air from the chamber. They take their masks off briefly, experiencing oxygen deficiency, which can lead to unconsciousness.

Then with the chamber at 22,000 feet, a valve is opened and the altitude suddenly drops to 8,000 feet. It's a startling experience, even though the student knows it's coming.

Altitude chamber training is available to airline pilots and stewardesses for $5 through a cooperative program between the FAA and the armed forces. But FAA officials who head the program in Oklahoma City said very few stewardesses have participated. No figure on the number of pilots was available.

Pressurized aircraft cabins became necessary with the advent of jet airplanes which operate at extremely high altitudes.

Pumps force air into the cabin constantly, simulating a much lower altitude, usually 8,000 feet, at which oxygen masks aren't needed.

But if a hatch blows open or the pressure hull otherwise is opened, rapid decompression can result.

American's passengers were apparently in little danger Monday night because the airplane had just left Detroit and was at 12,000 feet where adequate oxygen is available.

However the craft's normal operating altitude is 35,000 to 38,000 feet and if a plane suddenly was depressurized at that altitude, anyone who didn't immediately begin breathing oxygen from the mask that would drop in front of him would pass out in less than a minute.

In Detroit, the National Transportation Safety Board,

FAA and FBI launched what officials said could be a lengthy investigation of the cause of the mishap. Officials said the latch on the aft storage bin opened to trigger depressurization.

Insecticide Said Fatal To Geese

PENTICTON, B.C. (AP) — About 30 adult Canada geese have been found dead in the same area where 110 goslings died last week.

David Hurn, British Columbia fish and wildlife branch regional supervisor, said Tuesday the adult birds died after apparently ingesting the pesticide from grass in an orchard.

The insecticide was sprayed to kill aphids on the east side of the Vaseux Lake federal bird sanctuary.

Program Is Given Grant

The School of Allied Health and Social Professions of the Health Affairs Division of East Carolina University has received notification of the approval of a Special Improvement Grant for the Medical Record Science program.

The award was made by the Bureau of Health Manpower Education, a part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

The Medical Record Science program headed by Mrs. Peggy Wood was awarded the grant for a five-year project period funded at $12,000 each year. The project will assist in the further development and expansion of the community teaching sites used by the students in this program.

Earlier this year the Medical Record Science program received full accreditation from the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association and the American Medical Record Association. The first graduate of this program received her diploma at commencement exercises held recently at East Carolina University, and is now employed at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. In September there will be 8 seniors and 16 juniors enrolled in Medical Record Science.

Combo Provided Pageant Music

RALEIGH — The combo "Nice and Easy" provided special entertainment Thursday night during the "Miss North Carolina Sweetheart" pageant.

The pageant was held in Reynolds Coliseum on the N.C. State University campus during the Future Farmers of America 44th state convention.

Combo members, Cleve Haddock and Kenny Williams, are students at Chocowinity High School. Haddock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Haddock of Grimesland. Williams is the son of Mrs. Jessie Lee Williams of Vanceboro and the late Mr. Williams.

Enrollment Is Slated To Rise

East Carolina University's expectation of an enrollment of more than 9,000 for the two six-week sessions of summer school should reflect an increase over last year's total enrollment of 8,704.

More than 4,100 students are now enrolled in regular classes, according to Worth Baker, registrar. Workshops and special studies offered by different schools and departments will boost this figure to at least 4,500, he said. The second term enrollment is expected to be about the same.

Total enrollment last year was 4,402 first session and 4,302 second session, Baker indicated.

Program Is Rejects Terrorists' Ultimatum

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—William Whitelaw, Britain's top man in Northern Ireland, Tuesday night rejected as an "ultimatum from terrorists" an Irish Republican Army offer for a week's cease-fire in return for peace negotiations. Whitelaw's sharp rejection of the proposal from the IRA's Provisional wing pleased leaders of the province's Protestant majority who have been accusing him of being soft in his dealings with the Roman Catholic guerrillas.

The Protestants' Ulster Defense Association—UDA—immediately postponed for two weeks its plans to seal off Belfast as a protest against the failure of the British Army to invade barricaded IRA enclaves in Londonderry.

The British minister's decision drew an angry retort from Bernadette Devlin, the militant young Catholic member of the British Parliament from Londonderry.

"Mr. Whitelaw doesn't want peace, he wants surrender—and he hasn't a hope in hell of getting it," she said.

Sean MacStiofain, the Provisionals' chief of staff, unveiled the IRA cease-fire offer to newsmen at a secret meeting place inside "Free Derry," the barricaded area of Northern Ireland's second largest city.

IRA spokesmen said they were inviting Whitelaw to meet them inside Free Derry or they would meet him at a place of his choosing if guaranteed safe conduct.

They said the purpose of the talks would be to discuss their peace demands: an end to interment of guerrilla suspects, amnesty for all jailed or in hiding and the withdrawal of all British troops.

A government statement said Whitelaw "cannot respond to ultimatums from terrorists who are causing suffering to innocent citizens in Northern Ireland and shooting British troops. They should listen to the people and cease the violence at once."

The IRA's Official wing declared an indefinite cease-fire two weeks ago in answer to a growing peace movement among the Catholics. But the Provisionals vowed to fight on.

British troops battled more than 100 rock-throwing youths in Strabane, County Tyrone during the night. A shot was fired at the soldiers who replied with volleys of rubber bullets.

Two explosions shook the country town of Kilrea, in County Londonderry. They damaged buildings in the pig and cattle market but caused no casualties.

Says Knowledge Is Growing In Import

Dr. William E. Fulford, Jr. told Farmville Rotarians last night that the relative advantage of experience over knowledge seems to be decreasing. Since technology today is changing at such a tremendous pace, the Pitt Tech President said, "Knowledge of a discipline is becoming more important than one's experience in today's 'world of work.'"

"The curriculum at our technical schools is more relevant and more pertinent than in any of the other educational systems," said Fulford. He cited the establishment of goals in terms of the institution and the curriculum programs, lack of rigidity in curriculum, and evaluation as evidence of what he meant by relevance and pertinence in curriculums.

According to Fulford, "The lack of concern over performance of an institute and its graduates in terms of efficiency and effectiveness is a tragedy in North Carolina."

To accomplish significant tasks in an institution, Fulford emphasized with the Rotarians the need for a plan or purpose, a map for accomplishing the purpose, and skilled and competent teachers to implement the programs.

"Pitt Tech does not exist for dropouts, nor non-college bound students, but for those who desire vocational or technical training, regardless of their status," he said.

In summarizing the importance of an individual's knowledge today, Fulford stated that "its what our students don't know that will hurt them or limit them in reaching their potential in life."

Two Injured In Traffic Mishap

Two persons were reported injured in a 1:47 p.m. collision here yesterday at the intersection of Chestnut Street and Memorial Drive.

Police identified the drivers of the two vehicles involved as Margaret Cole Murphy of Route 1, Farmville and Barbara Jean Dail, 17, of 300 Crown Point Rd.

Both Mrs. Murphy and Miss Dail were reported injured by investigators who placed damage to the Murphy auto at $1,000 and estimated damage to the Dail auto at $900.

Mrs. Murphy was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Chips and putts from area golf courses:

Brook Valley

Si Moye carded a 35 on the front side at Brook Valley Country Club, hitting all nine greens in regulation. He was playing with Tim Kermon, Harold Thomas and Paul McMahon.

McMahon picked up an eagle on the par-five sixth hole during the round.

Harold Wilson had his best 18-hole score, carding an 81. Art Dickerman also had his best, a 1-2. Fred Webb had his best nine hole score, a 41.

Julius Budaz had his best score, a 35-39-74, and suffered through for three-putt greens. Ernest Holt had a 39 on the back side, paring the last six holes while playing with Waverly Phelps, Darrell Philps and Bob Melnick.

Rev. Al Davis had a 77 for his best score while playing with John Woodley.

Farmville

Richard Hunsucker, who was the runner-up last year, captured this year's Pitt County Golf Tournament held Saturday and Sunday at Farmville Golf and Country Club. The Ayden golfer had a 147 for the two rounds.

Second place went to Tom Riley of Grifton, who had a 152, while Jim Lancaster of Farmville was third with 153.

Sparkie McCaskill of Ayden took the first flight with a 158, while Jim Ward of Greenville won the second with 160. Bob Fiser of Farmville won the third flight with 168, while Reed Kennedy of Farmville took the fourth with 176. The fifth flight winner was Gene Gray of Farmville, who had a 192.

Farmville's next tournament will be the Kiwanis Tournament, July 8-9.

Grifton

Billy Langston won the Grifton Golf and Country Club's Junior Tournament last week, shooting an 81. Second place went to Ricky Thorne, while Vernon Davenport took third.

Ernie Allbritton won the first flight, trailed by Jeff Gaddy and Raymond Allen. Ryan Jackson was the second flight leader, followed Scott Rivenbark.

The President's Cup Tournament is to be completed by June 25. The tournament involved four rounds of play with the players subtracting their handicap at the end.

Ayden

The Ayden Golf and Country Club's championship tournament is drawing to a close with a unique finish. Father Boyce Barwick will meet son Brooks Barwick in the championship flight finals.

Brooks downed Walter Claybrook, and Boyce beat Glenn Gullede to gain the final 36-hole match, set for Saturday and Sunday.

Sidney Roberson eached the second hole at Ayden. He reached the 525-yard par-five hole in two and sank a six-foot putt. Another eagle was scored on the par four first hole as Joe Brown holed out a nine-iron.

A Scotch Foursome Tournament was held this past Sunday at the club. Joyce Stroud and John Chapman won low gross, while Goldie Chapman and Lindsay Hardee took low net. Low putts went to Dean Manning and Marvin Baldree.

Nicklaus Likes Pebble Beach

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus carries a torrid love affair with a golf course into the 72nd U.S. Open championship Thursday as the solid 6-1 favorite to add the second leg to an unprecedented professional Grand Slam.

"This is the finest strategy golf course in the world," the Masters titleholder said as he prepared for his final tuneup today on the wind-whipped Pebble Beach links that has most of the other 149 competitors chewing on their fingernails.

"You have to use your head to win here," Nicklaus added. "Like Augusta, it is a position course. You must place your tee shots in the right position."

Nicklaus, who needs to add the U.S. and the British Opens and the U.S. PGA to his list of 12 major championships to complete a sweep that has escaped all golfing giants of the past, was asked by one interviewer what is his favorite course.

He needed only a moment to reply.

"I like Pebble Beach better than any of them," he said. "It was here that he won one of his two U.S. Amateur titles, in 1961, and the Crosby in 1967 and 1972."

Nicklaus' ardor for the 6,815-yard course that winds along the crashing waves of Carmel Bay is not shared by many of his adversaries in the star-studded field teeing off Thursday at 10:30 a.m. EDT.

"If it's such a great golf course," groused Frank Beard, "why do they have to add 100 traps and add acres of knee-high rough?" Both Arnold Palmer and South Africa's Gary Player chimed in with criticism of the fresh sand in the bunkers.

"I think there is too much sand—you can lose a ball in the bunkers," said Player.

"At all Open courses, you can expect new rough, tighter fairways and new sand," added Palmer. "I think the new sand could have been added a year ago to allow time to settle."

Former Masters champion George Archer, a native of the area, had the most graphic reply when asked what he thought about the course.

"What course?" Archer answered. "I can't find it. After practicing here, I've got to go home and let my mind recuperate."

Defending champion Lee Trevino, recovering from a case of viral pneumonia, was due to make a dramatic appearance on the scene today and perhaps go into the tournament without a practice round.

Fire Fighters Claim First; Taff Gets Win

Taff Office and the Greenville Fire Fighters picked up victories in the Senior Babe Ruth League last night. The Fire Fighters, winning their first game of the season, downed Big Value Discount, 3-1, while Taff nipped Kinston, 11-10.

Taff, still in second, is 6-2, while the Fire Fighters are 1-4. Big Value is 2-2 and Kinston is 1-4.

In the first game, Kinston pushed over four runs in the top of the first. Frank Blackwell walked and moved up on a passed ball. He scored when Jeff Head doubled. Sheldon Fisher reached on a two-base error, scoring Head. Ed Dupree singled him to third, and the two worked a double steal with Fisher scoring. Gary Baker reached on a single and an error on the play let Dupree score for a 4-0 lead.

Taff came back with one in the bottom of the first. David Clifton singled and stole second. He took third on an out and scored and J.C. Daniels' double.

In the second, they scored three more to tie it up. Gary Hall was hit by a pitch and moved to second on an error. Clifton doubled him in, and Don Cannon cracked a two-run homer to tie it up.

Kinston came right back with four in the top of the third. Colin McDuffy walked and Gary Gaker did too. Willie Gardiner also walked, loading the bases. James Gardner singled in McDuffy and Baker and moved up on an error. Phil McLeaon got a hit, scoring both Gardiner and Gardner. That made it 8-4.

Taff came up with two in the bottom of the inning. Gene Vincent reached on an error and Jack Jones brought him home with a homer.

In the fourth, Taff scored again. Daniels singled and scored on Vincent's hit, cutting the lead to 9-7.

Taff pushed ahead in the fifth with two runs. Dean Phillips reached on an error and Hall's grounder was also errored. Hall stole second, and Howard Leggett grounded out, scoring Phillips. A balk brought in Hall with the go-ahead run, 9-8.

Taff got another in the sixth. Cannon doubled and Daniels got a hit. An error let Cannon score. Kinston came up with two runs to tie it in the top of the seventh. McDuffy singled and Dupree walked. Baker singled in McDuffy and McLeod reached on an error, scoring Dupree for a 10-10 deadlock.

But Taff came right back with a run to win it. Leggett reached on an error. He moved to third on a wild pitch and a passed ball, then stole home to end the game.

Head, McDuffy and Baker each had two hits for Kinston, while Daniels had three, and Clifton, Cannon and Vincent each had two for Taff.

Head, McDuffy and Baker each had two hits for Kinston, while Daniels had three, and Clifton, Cannon and Vincent each had two for Taff.

The Fire Fighters got all they needed in the first inning, scoring three runs. Paul Carr reached on an error and Bob Boles doubled. Bryan Hines followed with another double, scoring both runners. Hines then stole third and scored when the ball was thrown away in the attempt to get him.

The lone Big Value run came in the fifth inning. Tommy Tripp came up with a homer to get it.

Chuck Finklea led the Big Value hitting with three, while Ed wells had two. For the Fire Fighters, Hines had three hits.

Jim Gets Win; Gaylord Falls To Angels, 3-2

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
The pitching Perrys did their thing Tuesday night and, for what may have been the first time ever in their careers, Jim wound up wetter than Gaylord.

Batters have always accused Gaylord of loading up the baseball with something moist but they couldn't blame Jim if he was serving wet ones against Detroit. That's what happens when you're working in the rain.

Tornado warnings kept Minnesota fans on their toes Tuesday night and the Twins managed to get six innings of their game in against Detroit with Jim Perry winning, 3-1.

It was drier in California, where brother Gaylord Perry tried for his 11th victory of the season for Cleveland but lost to the Angels 3-2 in 11 innings.

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago blanked New York 2-0, Texas shut out Milwaukee 4-0, Kansas City topped Boston 4-2 and Baltimore defeated Oakland 5-1.

In the National League, Hank Aaron's 650th career homer gave Atlanta a 6-5 victory over New York in 10 innings, San Diego edged Chicago 4-3, Montreal downed Houston 5-1, Los Angeles edged St. Louis 2-1 and Cincinnati swept a doubleheader from Philadelphia, 8-4 and 4-2. San Francisco at Pittsburgh was rained out.

The Twins and Tigers spent 3 hours, 26 minutes on the field in Minnesota and only 1:48 of that time was taken up with playing baseball. There was a 40 minute rain delay in the fourth inning and then, when the game resumed, the teams made it into the seventh before the skies opened again.

By that time, Perry and the Twins were leading 3-1 and rooting for the moisture to keep coming. Rod Carew drove in two of Minnesota's runs with a pair of singles and Tony Oliva picked up his first RBI with another hit.

Gaylord mowed down the first 12 California batters and took a lead into the seventh inning. But Mickey Rivers doubled and Vada Pinson singled before Bob Oliver chased both runners home with a double.

That sent the game into overtime and the Angels won it in the 11th when Perry hit Rivers with a pitch to open the inning. An infield out and then Oliver was walked intentionally. Ken McMullen bounced to short and the Indians went for the inning-ending double play. But Jack Brohamer's relay to first was wild and Rivers scored.

Pete Broberg, who spent the weekend picking up his bachelor's degree in economics from Dartmouth University went against Milwaukee and pitched Texas past the Brewers.

Broberg, 5-4, struck out six and drove in two runs with a fourth inning double. Dalton Jones' two-run single in the first had given the Rangers the quick lead.

Russians Reduce Naval Force In S. China Sea

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians have reduced their naval concentration in the South China Sea to its lowest level since the United States mined the entrances to North Vietnamese ports in early May.

This development, reported by Pentagon sources, is taken as a possibly conclusive indication that the Russians will not attempt any naval demonstration or other military action to pressure the United States into removing the mine barriers that have cut off seaborne supplies for North Vietnam.

About 13 Soviet surface warships, submarines and supporting oilers had been concentrated loosely in two groups at sea anchorages some 600 to 700 miles east of the Vietnamese coast.

U.S. reconnaissance planes have kept them under observation and Pentagon sources report a partial breakup of the concentration.

They said a Soviet guided missile destroyer and a guided missile frigate recently sailed northeastward toward the Sea of Japan. That course suggests the two warships are bound for Vladivostok, Russia's main Far Eastern fleet base.

Another Soviet destroyer and an oiler were said to have sailed on a southwesterly course, apparently headed for the Indian Ocean by the way of the Straits of Malacca. In addition, two missile-firing submarines have moved to positions east of Taiwan and a third sub north-east of the Philippines. These submarines, too, may be headed for Vladivostok.

That leaves a Russian cruiser, guided-missile frigate and destroyer, plus an oiler and a merchant-type tanker at the South China Sea anchorage. One missile submarine also remains in that area.

In addition, the sources said a Russian tank-landing ship returning from the Indian Ocean bypassed the anchorage and sailed straight for home waters.

Some senior Nixon administration officials anticipated Soviet counteraction shortly after the U.S. Navy closed North Vietnamese ports with minifields.

Humphrey Woos Support In S.C.

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Democratic Presidential Contender Hubert H. Humphrey, continuing to win Southern support while leaving New York to rival George McGovern, says he believes he's won over a good many of South Carolina's 32 convention delegates.

Humphrey flew here Tuesday from delegate-hunting in Texas, addressed the State Legislature, drew warm support from his old ally, Gov. John C. West, and talked at length to all but a few of the delegates at a pool-side luncheon at West's mansion.

Humphrey said he neither sought nor received any promises from the delegates, who officially are uncommitted.

But West said, "If we'd taken a vote after the senator's presentation, I think it would have been nearly unanimous" for Humphrey. The Minnesota senator himself said, "If I had to rest my case on the reception here today, I would say that Miami looks good."

Neither predicted how many South Carolina delegates would vote for Humphrey at next month's Democratic National Convention in Miami. Earlier in the day, West said he saw "substantial support" among the delegates for both Humphrey and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, along with some support for South Dakota Sen. McGovern.

Humphrey said he won't campaign actively in New York State's June 20 primary, in which McGovern-pledged delegates are expected to win the lion's share of 278 convention seats at stake.

Although Humphrey plans a trip to New York to try to raise money and to talk to party leaders, he said Tuesday he won't buy any advertising because it costs too much. "New York media campaign? One day and I'd be out of business."

West greeted Humphrey at Columbia Metropolitan Airport then introduced him to a joint session of the State Legislature. West, noting that he was among the few Southern Democrats who actively campaigned for Humphrey in 1968, said, "In the intervening year, I have been increasingly proud of that stand."

Although he didn't openly endorse Humphrey over McGovern, West said he would "enthusiastically support"

Humphrey should he become the nominee.

"Such an expression of support means a great deal to a man in my position," said Humphrey, who trails far behind McGovern in delegate strength.

Humphrey spoke to the legislature for more than half an hour, drawing polite applause both at the end and at one point during the speech, when he said he favored a strong national defense.

He avoided any mention of racial school busing, but stressed he favors both equal opportunity and quality education.

The luncheon at West's Mansion was closed to newsmen, but guests were heard to applaud Humphrey several times. Afterward, Humphrey said he told them the economy would be this year's big election issue, and that the party must choose a candidate who can run effectively against Richard Nixon's record on unemployment and inflation.

Conceding that his own fight for the Democratic nomination is still going uphill, Humphrey said he senses a popular feeling that McGovern won't win on the first ballot and that after that the convention will be wide open.

Humphrey said he believes this feeling has developed since Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine announced last week that he'd stay in the race himself rather than throw his support to McGovern.

Omitted From Yellow Pages

DENVER (AP) — A dentist whose name was omitted from the Yellow Pages in 1968 should be paid for lost income by the telephone company, the Colorado Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday.

The court reversed a lower court decision in the case of Robert L. Irish, a specialist in gum diseases and root canals from Lakewood, a Denver suburb.

Irish said he lost nearly $18,000 in business while he was left out of the phone book.

Birthplace Will Be Small Park

KEYSER, W. Va. (AP) — The birthplace of Nancy Hanks, mother of President Abraham Lincoln, is to be dedicated as a small park here Saturday by the Mineral County Historical Society.

The park is part of a 348-acre farm purchased by William Lawrence, a pilot from Manassas, Va.

While looking over the land, Lawrence found a marker erected in 1933 by the Nancy Hanks Association stating that Lincoln's mother had been born there.

Crowd Overtums Police Vehicle

GREENSBORO (AP) — A police car unoccupied while two policemen answered a complaint at the Cosmos Club during a dance for teen-agers was overturned early this morning in the parking lot.

An unruly group, originally numbering about 20 young persons, gathered in the lot and there were reports of rock and brick throwing. The crowd later increased.

There were no reports of injury.

Additional policemen were called. The crowd slowly dispersed, only to form again at a nearby service station, where they threw tires and others objects.

After warnings to the youths, police issued instructions to round up the leaders.

Agnew Speech At Fund-Raising Event Delayed

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tentative plans for Vice President Spiro Agnew to address a Republican fund-raising dinner in Greensboro Saturday night have been postponed for "about five or six weeks."

This was announced Tuesday by Charles R. Jonas Jr., chairman of the North Carolina Committee to Re-Elect the President. He said there was general agreement both in Washington and North Carolina that Agnew's visit "should be postponed until a little later on."

The fund-raising dinner was planned in connection with the Republican State Convention.

Jonas said, "Because of the unexpected second primary and all of the energies devoted toward that end, proper emphasis could not be given to making the dinner the success it could and will be."

Fire Claims Farm House

Three recent fires in Pitt County, including one in which a farm house was a total loss, have been reported by Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner.

The first of the three occurred on June 7 at 3:23 p.m. The Black Jack Fire Department responded to the scene, a burning caterpillar. The machine, owned by the Roy Mills Logging Company, was located on the Chicod School Road at the time of the fire. Joyner said damage to the big piece of equipment was approximately $4,000 to $5,000. The Caterpillar is valued at $31,000.

On June 8, at 1:15 a.m. Eastern Pines Fire Department reported to a burning tree in Brook Valley behind the country club. The tree an old one partly rotted, was cut down by firemen.

Stokes and Robersonville Fire Departments joined in efforts on June 9 to fight a house fire on the James gray on Rural Road 1547 between Stokes and Robersonville. Joyner said efforts to save the house were not successful, and that the house, valued at approximately $8,000 was a total loss. Three tobacco barns in the vicinity of the house which caught fire from the house, however, were saved with only minor damage. The fire was called in at 4:07 p.m. on June 9.

Two Safety Rules Cited

NEW YORK (UPI)—With the summer season comes increased travel, a good deal of it done in the family car. Holiday weekends, vacations, trips to the beach mean the families are on the road more than during any other season or the year.

The National Safety Council says two major rules can help reduce the summertime traffic toll on the roads: use seat belts; don't mix drinking and driving.

If all drivers and passengers in motor vehicles had used their safety belts, at least 8,000 to 10,000 lives lost in traffic crashes last year might have been spared.

Howard Pyle, president of the Council, says everyone, including lifetime accident-free drivers—should buckle up. Four out of five drivers involved in traffic crashes previously had accident-free records.

On alcohol, he reminds that alcohol was a factor in more than half of last year's 55,000 traffic deaths. The summer season—with all its outdoor eating and drinking—sees the heaviest toll.

Pyle said traffic death rates rise with the coming of warm weather and too many of these accidents involve drinking.

"The best way to reduce accidents involving alcohol is for each individual to not drink at all or to limit himself to one drink per hour if he must drive."

Blind, But Will Be Sharpshooter

MILWAUKIE, Ore. (AP) — An accidental gunshot blinded Genny Turman at the age of 5. Now she's practicing to be a sharpshooter.

The Milwaukie mother of two says she plans to enter the Oregon State Fastdraw Championship this weekend in Portland. She competed recently in a fast-draw competition at Vancouver, B.C.

Her husband, Greg, who enjoys hunting, brought up the subject of guns.

She overcame her fear and the next step was to improvise on a signal for the draw, ordinarily a blinking light.

Her husband and a friend rigged up a bell which rang when the light came on, but the bell never stopped ringing while Mrs. Turman was shooting. Now she uses a clicking device.

On Dean's List For Semester

Kenneth Michael Shires has been named to the Dean's List, College of Arts and Sciences, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill for academic excellence during the Spring, 1972, semester.

Shires is the son of William A. Shires of Greenville.

Dr. Raymond H. Dawson, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said that to qualify for the Dean's List a student must earn an average of B or higher on all work.

Fewer than 22 per cent of the students achieved this record. Shires, a junior at Chapel Hill, has attained Dean's List ranking every semester since enrolling.

Doctors Named To Committee

Dr. Elta Mae Mast and Joseph James have been chosen to serve on the Occupational Advisory Committee of the Health Occupational Program.

The Health Occupational Program was formed in order to stimulate the growth of Health Occupations in the curricula of many North Carolina high schools. The purpose of the Committee is to coordinate the development of educational programs in high schools with the demands of the job market in the health occupations.

Health Occupations courses are designed to prepare students to enter the health field, either in a career or by way of college preparation.

Dr. Mast is director of Mental Health of the Allied Health Sciences at East Carolina University, while James is president of the N.C. Hospital Administrators Association, Wayne Memorial Hospital, Goldsboro.

SETBACK
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has detected more hog cholera in the Southeast, thus setting back again the nationwide campaign to eradicate the disease from all swine herds.

Women Publish Directory Of Service Organizations

The League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County has published a directory of community service organizations in Pitt County.

According to Miss Margaret Blanchard, chairman of the League's Human Resources committee, which undertook the project, the directory was published "to make it easier for persons in need to find the specialized help required to have a better life."

The booklet is divided into numbered sections according to particular needs. These are abortion counseling, adoption services, adult education, aged, alcoholism, blind, child care and counseling, clothing, community improvement and development, day care, disability benefits, draft counseling, drugs emergency relief, employment and job training, family planning, family problems, food assistance, health and health education services, housing, mental health services, physically and mentally handicapped, recreation, unwed mothers, veterans' service, and youth-oriented programs.

Under each section is listed every organization that may be of help, its address; phone number; office hours, if any; eligibility requirements, how to apply, fee, if any; and the area served. The service provided is explained sufficiently for the client to determine whether it's the agency that may help him.

Agencies listed are those whose primary goals are to offer service to the public on a non-profit basis and those which have a relatively permanent place where contact may be made, Miss Blanchard said.

The booklet is planned to be an ongoing source of information, she said. New organizations and services undoubtedly will be added. Therefore, the book is put together loose leaf, so pages can easily be added. There are no page numbers, for the same reason.

Copies of the directory have been given to heads of various agencies, ministers social workers, newspapers, and others in the county who may receive requests for information on how assistance may be obtained.

Fire Safety Tips On Eve Of Harvest

Pitt County Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner has offered some fire prevention tips to farmers in Pitt County as the tobacco harvest gets underway.

"One of the most important points for any farmer is to know the numbers they can call to get help right away if needed,"

Joyner remarked. "Our number is 752-5136. Anyone having to call long distance should dial the operator and ask for ZENITH 151." Joyner added "there's no charge for long distance calls using this number."

Checking burners to insure they are not rusted out at the bottom, cleaning flues and checking joints are other points the fire marshal said were important.

"One new approach to prevention of tobacco barn fires," Joyner said, "has been tried out with good results in the Pictolus area." This consists of placing chicken or screen wire beneath the tobacco to catch any falling leaves or sticks that otherwise could fall on hot flues and possibly start a fire.

Joyner also pointed out the necessity of maintaining a cleared access path to barns in the event a fire truck needed to get in. "And making certain that weeds and debris around barns are cleaned out is another factor that should not be overlooked," Joyner stated.

On the best method to relocate nests with young birds that may be discovered in flues, Joyner said he could only suggest "trying to move them gently to some nearby tree or other safe spot and hope for the best."

Real shortage

SINGAPORE (UPI)—Do you usually face a big delay when making a dental appointment? Consider the plight of the residents of Singapore, where there are only 211 registered dentists—a ratio of one dentist for every 10,000 persons. The figures are from Health Minister Dr. Chua Sia Chin.

The Worry Clinic Read Exactly To Get Facts

Eileen shows one of the great advantages of a newspaper over telecasts. For readers can go back and reread passages until they get the exact meaning! TV and radio addicts are "ear-minded" and thus are more easily fooled by fallacious logic and political film-flam!

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-509: Eileen M., aged 24, is a young mother. "Dr. Crane," she began, "I relished your recent column in which you said too many physicians make a fetish of breast feeding."

"I had become a neurotic because I couldn't produce adequate milk for my baby. 'So it cried almost constantly and didn't gain properly. 'But after reading your column, I supplemented my 2 or 3 ounces of breast milk with an additional couple of ounces of evaporated milk via the bottle. 'That solved my problem entirely for my baby quit crying. 'Yet I recently saw several violent letters of criticism in our newspaper by both doctors and mothers. 'They said you opposed breast feeding! 'If they had read exactly what you actually stated, they would have agreed with you. 'For you didn't oppose breast feeding at all! You merely said to supplement it via bottle when a new mother doesn't produce enough of her own milk!'"

The bidding:

Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠
Pass 2 ♥ Pass 2 ♣
Pass 3 ♣ Pass 4 ♣
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Deuce of ♠
When North opened the bidding with one diamond and South responded with one spade, the two heart rebids in known in the trade as a "reverse" which shows about 19 points inasmuch as it forces partner to the three level to show a preference for the first suit.

South actually had a choice of calls since he could have bid either three diamonds or two no trump to show the club stopper. We approve of the spade rebid inasmuch as it designates a six card suit and allows partner to raise with a doubleton. North had almost enough to proceed directly to game, but he chose to give a single raise and leave the last word to South. The latter held enough in reserve to bid four spades.

West opened the deuce of hearts, dummy played the six and East put up the ace on which South dropped the eight. The three of hearts was returned and West ruffed. Interpreting East's lowest heart as a suit preference signal requesting a shift to the lowest ranking side suit, West cashed the ace of clubs. South won the continuation with the king, crossed over to the queen of spades and when both opponents followed, the king was overtaken with the ace to pull West's last trump with the jack. The ace and king of diamonds were cashed and when the queen dropped, declarer did not need to stuff his jack on a high heart.

In order to defeat the contract, East must shift to a club at trick two. We are not inclined to be overly critical of his performance inasmuch as West might have held the ace of spades and the king of clubs in which case an immediate heart ruff will allow West to exit effectively with a club—since he retains the ace of spades as an entry to cash a club trick after East's queen dislodges the ace.

Be that as it may—we are inclined to favor the club shift by East since the odds favor South's having the ace of spades when he rebids the suit—in which case the contract cannot be defeated unless the defense can take two clubs as well as the ace of hearts and the heart ruff.

The proper card to return is the ten of clubs. If South ducks, East can switch back to a heart. If declarer covers with the king of clubs, West plays the ace and then puts East in with the queen to get the heart ruff.

He fabricated his own imaginary monsters which he projected upon the windmills that he met.

Then he would boldly ride to the fray, smashing his lance against those windmills, which his distorted mind had painted as villains!

Well, that's what thousands of newspaper readers often do regarding the editorials and print features.

They jump into a verbal attack on the editor or columnist without having carefully read EXACTLY what was written! So they might properly be called modern newspaper Don Quixotes.

Many apparently educated people are thus opposed to fluoridation of drinking water, saying fluoridation fluorine is a deadly poison.

But so is chlorine, enough it has been used for generations to purify city drinking water. (Most drugs are poisonous in big doses!)

But that's if you consume too much, which our very low "one part per million" in city water, prevents.

Besides, it's far healthier to have your own teeth in old age, even if they are flecked with gray spots, than to try to chew steak with false teeth!

"Pollution" of the atmosphere is another modern sphere is another modern bugaboo used by politicians to corral votes.

But I was born directly across the street from the Steel Mills of South Chicago.

And its smoke stacks have belched sulphur, plus other polluting gases for 100 years, yet our death rate in South Chicago (as well as Gary, Pittsburgh, etc.) is not significantly different from that anywhere else in the U.S.A.

Moreover, the general public went into a national frenzy about 18 years ago, arguing that nuclear bombs were producing an abnormally heavy rainfall.

But the Weather Bureau deftly reported several heavier rainfall years, long before the nuclear bombs were even dreamed of!

So teach children to read exactly before they jump to emotional conclusions, especially regarding current political oratory.

Send for my booklet "Common Fallacies in Logic and Political Tricks" enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Use it to vaccinate new voters against the film-flam of selfish politicians!

Gambling Sets Humans Apart

CHICAGO (UPI) — Scholars have determined one more factor that unites all human societies and separates man from all other forms of life—gambling.

Gambling, according to Encyclopedia Britannica, has existed in every known society from the most primitive to the most complex.

In no society, Britannica says, has the rise of rationalism brought about a decrease in the incidence or volume in gambling. Some observers have considered gambling instinctive to man. No scientific investigation has produced evidence of gambling in any other species.

Early Rising Is Not A Monopoly

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite a popular impression to the contrary the modern farmer and the big city commuter get out of bed at about the same time, according to a survey by a farm equipment manufacturer.

Farmers contacted by Massey-Ferguson in several midwestern states said they get up between six and seven o'clock most of the year. Older farmers generally arise earlier and all farmers tend to get up earlier during harvest time.

Wouldn't Be First Comeback

NEW YORK (UPI)—If President Nixon were defeated for re-election this year, he might still try again and win, and not be the first President to do so.

Grover Cleveland won the nation's highest office in 1884, but lost four years later. He made a comeback in 1892 and spent four more years in the White House.

Mount Hermon Ski Resort Is Guarded By Soldiers

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
TEL AVIV (AP) — When you ski in Israel you do a sort of submachine gun slalom through the Old Testament.

Israel has built the first ski resort in the Holy Land on the Biblical slopes of Mount Hermon—a 9,232-foot heap of historic rock surrounded by ceasefire lines and Arab guerrillas.

Armed soldiers stand constant guard at the top of the chairlift and the Israeli Army occasionally rumbles past the parking lot on a raid. But the guerrillas stay far away and give or take a broken leg or two, nobody has gotten hurt on the snow-grounds.

Ten thousand or more Israelis pack the slopes on a Saturday Sabbath and most of them have never seen snow before. The skiers are outnumbered by children and old ladies tobogganing down the mountain on plastic bags.

"Hardly anybody knows how to ski and nobody owns a sled, so plastic bags are the snow-mobiles of Israel," says American ski teacher Jay McCrensky of Belmont, Mass.

"When they finish sliding, they fill the bags with snow to show to the folks back home in Tel Aviv or Beersheba. It melts before they get there, of course."

With a lift of 170 chairs, half a mile long, Israel this year joined the Middle East ski boom, which stretches exotically from Iran through neighboring Lebanon.

In Iran, the well-equipped skier takes along a Persian carpet and a samovar. While the wife or a servant spreads the carpet and brews tea in the samovar, the skier skis.

In affluent Lebanon, where gold-plated ski poles are not out of place, the main action takes place near the famed Cedars of Lebanon.

"In Israel it's a kind of Rip Van Winkle land," says McCrensky. "Most of the people who know how to ski immigrated from Europe 20 or 30 years ago and they haven't been on skis since."

"They come up here and use techniques we've never seen before," says McCrensky, 23. "It's like a museum. We learn more from them than they do from us."

The lift goes up to 6,603 feet and the snow in some places lasts well into spring. The skiing is open slope—there isn't a tree for miles. The runs are steep, varied and fairly long, and the conditions in one descent can range from ice to powder to wet spring snow, or rocks and mud.

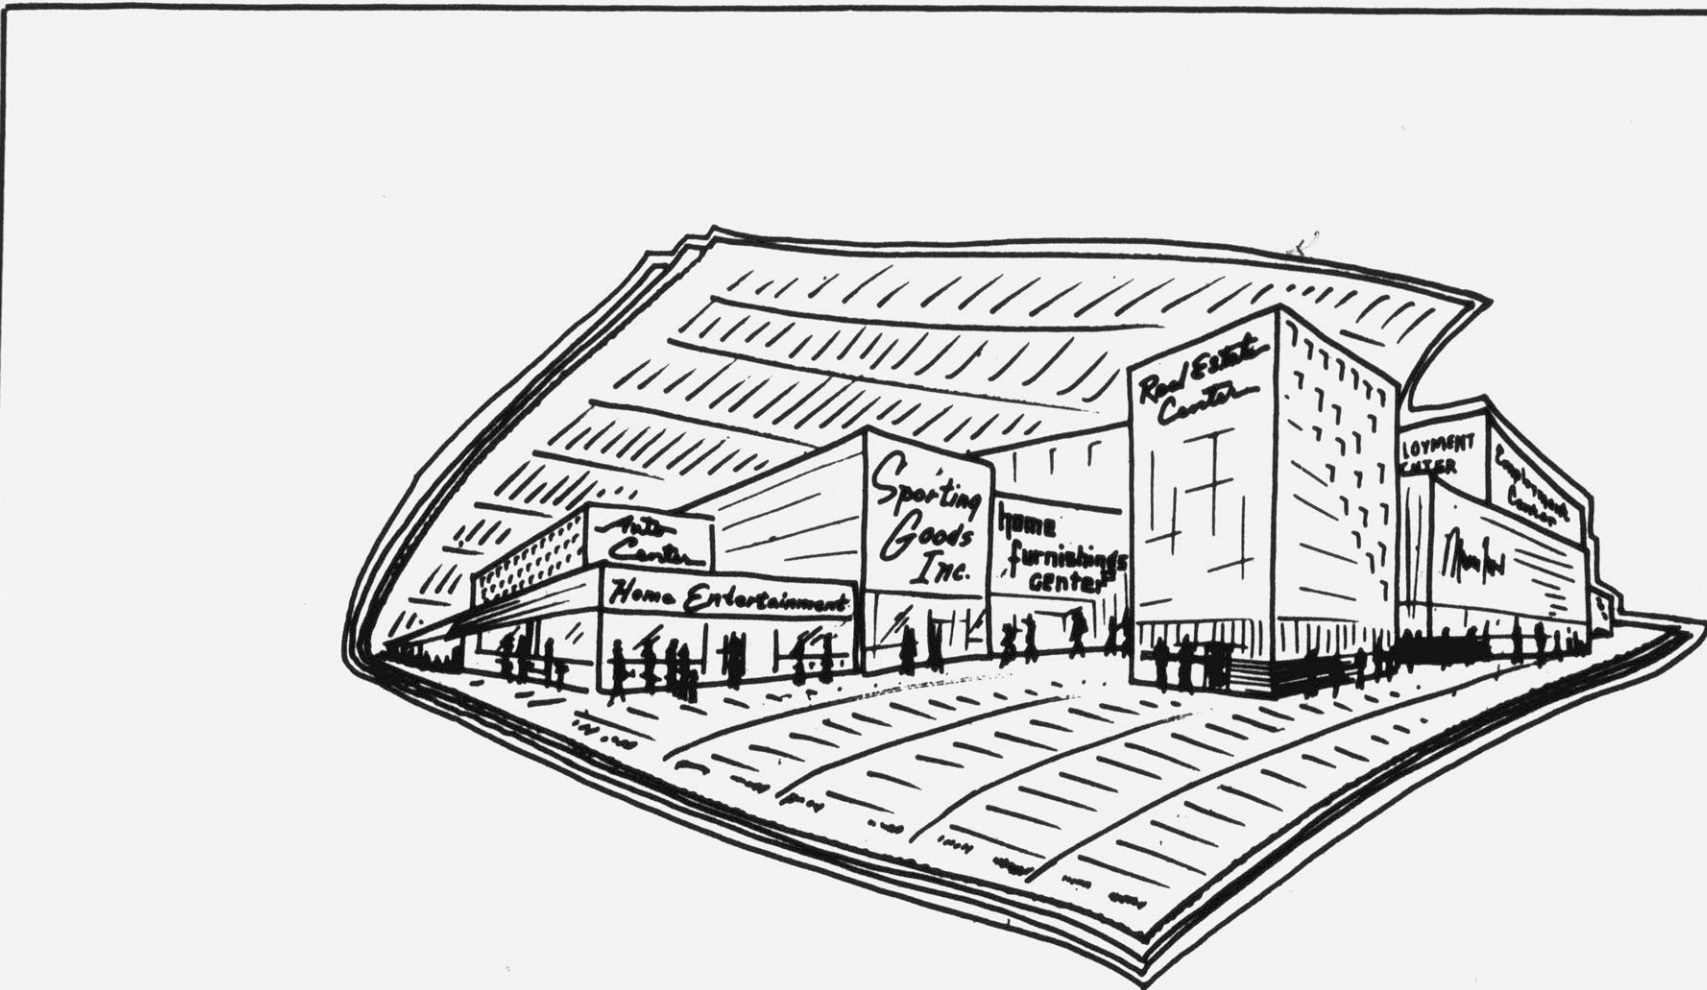

Until the 1967 Middle East war, Israel didn't have any skiing at all. Then it captured Hermon on the Syrian Golan Heights—two wrecked Syrian

Visitors
NEW YORK (UPI) —American visitors to Czechoslovakia in 1971 totaled 46,112, a 5.5 per cent increase over 1970, says the Czechoslovak Travel Bureau in New York. Vaclav Dubsky, North American director of the bureau, said it is hoped the 50,000 mark will be reached in 1972.

Bible School To Be Held

Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church will hold Bible School starting Monday June 19 and lasting through June 23. The church, located at the intersection of Church and Allen Streets, will conduct classes from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

The theme of the Bible School is "We Worship God."

Commencement has been scheduled for Friday, June 23 at 7 p.m., to be followed by a wiener roast on the church grounds.

Committees and teachers include:

Refreshments: Mrs. J. C. Pollard, Mrs. Robert Barnhill, Mrs. W. V. Heath, Mrs. W. G. Sullivan, and Mrs. Molly Shackelford.

Wiener roast: Charles Dudley.

Nursery: Mrs. Don Mills and Mrs. Gordon Bunting.

Kindergarten: Mrs. Lynwood Owens.

Primary: Mrs. George Creech and Mrs. Carson Heath.

Youth (fourth through seventh grades): Mrs. Oscar Roebuck and Mrs. Bobby Harris.

Music: Miss Paula Stillwell.

Director Mrs. Charles R. Ross invites all interested boys and girls to attend.

African Educators Featured Speakers

Two noted African educators, now guest professors at Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, are to be featured speakers in the African Institute for Public School Teachers being held on campus at East Carolina University.

Dr. Robert L. Bunker, director of the institute, says the program is part of the overall African Studies seminar program at ECU this summer. Dr. Blanche Watrous heads the overall program.

"The participation of the two is part of the entire program of African studies which will be conducted beginning Monday, June 19 and is scheduled to continued through Friday, July 7," Dr. Bunker said.

"The lectures to be given by the two visiting professors at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in Room 130 of Rawl Building should be of especial interest," the ECU coordinator observed. "Mr. Rubadiri's subject will be 'Education and New Thinking in East Africa Today.' That of Mr. Turkson will be 'Traditional Music and Ritual in Ghana.'"

Dr. Bunker revealed that 30 public school teachers from all across North Carolina, the majority of them junior high and high school teachers, would be taking part in the four week-long summer African.

"This will provide the teachers with information on Africa to introduce into their classroom studies on African topics," Dr. Bunker remarked.

Interested persons can attend the two lectures at Rawl Hall scheduled for Wednesday evening.

Jaywalker Also In Bank Holdup

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officer B. R. Wallace was cruising on his police motorcycle when he saw a man jaywalking across the street to a car.

When Wallace wheeled over and prepared to give him a ticket, the man quickly raised his hands in surrender. The surprised officer soon learned that the Bank of America branch across the street had just been robbed of $700.

The man, who refused to give his name, had the $700 and was booked for investigation of robbery, authorities said Tuesday.

Prince Charles Is Reportedly Careful With Money

By MARGARET SAVILLE
LONDON (UPI)—The boy was so absorbed in his reading he didn't hear his mother calling him.

The book was not a schoolboy thriller. Its title was: "How to Make Money."

"That," said the young man, "is a jolly useful thing to know about."

Queen Elizabeth scanned a few pages of the paperback handed her by Prince Charles—then a teen-ager—and sadly agreed. She was trying at the time to keep up regal appearances on a government allowance set in 1952 and only recently increased after considerable parliamentary debate.

The queen was not surprised at her young son's choice of reading material. When he was only six she discovered he had drawn up a budget for spending his one shilling (14 cents) weekly allowance at the candy store across the street from Windsor Castle.

Interested in Finance

As the years went by it became ever more evident that the heir to the throne was naturally thrifty—a throwback perhaps to his great-great grandmother Queen Victoria. His respect for the coins and notes bearing his mother's portrait had nothing to do with personal circumstances—he is heir to the immense income of the Duchy of Cornwall.

Now that he is 23 Charles is thinking of taking his interest in finance a step farther. He is due soon for a break from his duties as a sub-lieutenant in the British Navy in which he is serving a three-year hitch. He wants to spend it studying the money market.

His great-uncle, Earl Mountbatten of Burma, recommended an intensive course at the Harvard School of Business Administration. But this would pose security problems for American authorities and he might be needed here for state duties from time to time. So friends think a spell in a big London financial district office, such as the Rothschilds, might be more practical—though they feel he will still try to study in the United States some day.

When Charles came into his estates at the age of 18 he spent several days examining the accounts and made clear he wanted to be informed of everything. He now attends meetings of the administrators, listens intently and makes many suggestions. Even at sea he gets regular reports and balance sheets sent to him. He is said to have a working knowledge of investments, bookkeeping, computers and allied subjects.

Keeps Private Account

In his mahogany desk at Buckingham Palace the Prince keeps a private account book setting out details of his personal shopping with a file for the bills. He knows exactly what he spends, does most of his own shopping and always asks the price before he buys even in exclusive London shops where nothing so crass as money is mentioned between salesman and customer.

His personal tastes are modest but he gives generous birthday and Christmas gifts. He wears his clothes for years, hates to part with old favorites. At Cambridge he used to cycle around with fellow students in shabby flannel trousers and an old tweed jacket with leather patches at the elbows.

The income of the Duchy of Cornwall is around 300,000 pounds sterling ($780,000) a year but Charles turns most of that back to the Treasury to be set against the Civil List which Parliament provides for the upkeep of the Crown. He keeps only $30,000 a year for himself.

Someday when Charles achieves his destiny in old nursery rhyme may come true. It goes:

"The King was in his counting house...."

Nudity Held Not Obscene

NUDITY IS PROTECTED
EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — A legal battle over tavern toplessness put tavern operator Edward Becker out of business, but he took the matter to court where he got a favorable ruling.

Circuit Judge Francis Maxwell ruled that the ban by the St. Clair County Excise Commission was unconstitutional, declaring that the county ordinance as written prohibits the presence of any topless female employee or employee, but said that nudity itself does not constitute obscenity.

"Nudity involved in entertainment has been held to be protected under the provisions of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and the 14th Amendment prohibits the states from interfering with the constitutional rights of individuals," Maxwell said.

Becker resumed operations with three topless waitresses, as Francis Foley, commissioner, announced that the ordinance would be rewritten "to prohibit this kind of thing."

Zoo Rules Made For Protection

NEW YORK (UPI)—When visiting zoos do not feed the animals if it is prohibited. Do not reach into a cage or allow a child to reach into a cage or other space confining an animal, if it is prohibited. When feeding of animals is permissible, dole out only victuals approved for feeding to that animal. Following the rules is one way of protecting yourself, your children and doing the correct thing by the animals.

MORE SOFT DRINKING
WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP) — New Zealanders are expected to drink 6.5 gallons of soft drinks a head this year—two gallons more than five years ago.

Cordial manufacturers, who supplied this figure, compare it with an average of 12.8 gallons in Australia and 18.1 gallons in the United States.

Showing Off Dangerous In Backyard Family Pool

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Family News Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Showing off for the benefit of his girlfriend, Joe the teen-ager executes a tricky dive into the backyard swimming pool. He doesn't adjust for the fact that the pool is less than Olympic size. The dive carries him into the shallow part and when he hits he breaks his neck. He goes down in the records as another of the 300 fatalities that occurred in backyard pools within the last 12 months. The probable cause: showing off. Not looking where she's going, Jane, a toddler, saunters near the deep end of the backyard pool. She's chasing a butterfly and there's no one around. She reaches for the butterfly and falls into the deep end. She can't swim so she drowns. Another pool death statistic. The probable cause: an unguarded, improperly fenced swimming pool. Other Drownings At a swimming party for grown-ups the merriment grows after dark as the drinks flow around the backyard pool. The life of the party becomes the death of the party when he jumps or falls (or is jostled or pushed) into the water. He drowns. The probable cause: mixing too much booze and deep water. Then there's this one: At a swimming party for the home-from-college crowd a girl with her feet dangling in the pool reaches for a radio plugged into an electrical circuit, to change stations. She dies on the spot.

The probable cause: electrocution. Showing off, carelessness about fencing around a pool, mixing drinking and swimming, mixing electrical circuits with all that water are on the list of probable causes of fatalities that happened last swimming season in backyard pools. To avoid such tragic consequences, the National Safety Council reminds owners of pools to consider accident prevention at all times. Safety Guidelines For a safe swimming party, here are some guidelines: —Alcohol and water don't mix. A good rule of thumb is no more than one drink per hour during any activity requiring judgment and skill. —Keep rotisseries, portable record players, radios and other electric devices away from the pool, even a wet patio surface. Water and electricity are a dangerous combination. —Check the pool area periodically to be sure that glasses, bottles, and other potential accident hazards have not been left near the pool or where children or adults at play may get hurt.

—The host has the responsibility to check first to see that everyone can swim, and plan other activities for non-swimmers. If non-swimmers are allowed in the pool make sure they are protected and supervised. Make certain that rescue devices are handy. Designate a responsible person—a good swimmer, well-trained in rescue techniques and first aid—as a lifeguard.

Right now, at the beginning of the season, is the time to make sure your pool is prepared for safety as well as fun. If you're just beginning construction on a pool, make sure it is designed for safety. The most important extrinsic safety device is a fence. Hans Grigo, technical consultant in the Council's Home Safety Department, cautions that "children frequently drown in excavations that have filled with rain water. So if you're beginning construction of a pool, erect a temporary fence before the first spade of dirt is turned."

Proper Fencing Tips Grigo's tips on fencing: —Build the fence into the ground as well as above it, so that children cannot squeeze through gaps made by water erosion or small animals. —Don't construct the fence of materials that provide convenient external hand and footholds or that can be broken through easily.

—A minimum of four feet high is recommended so that a young child cannot grasp the top by reaching or jumping.

—Any gate leading to the pool should be equipped with a self-engaging latch out of reach of children. In addition, the gate should have a permanent lock that only a person in authority can open. Don't make the combination or locations of keys common neighborhood knowledge.

—Chain-link fences can be climbed by even small children. Therefore use such fencing only if built with an outward-curving or angular barrier at the top. —Trees or shrubbery provide a means of entry into a pool area and should be trimmed back to eliminate the temptation and the hazard.

Alarm systems and most types of pool covers are two secondary devices that can be used to further protect against accidental drowning. "Although these are of value," said Grigo, "they are only supplemental devices and should never be regarded as substitutes for the primary safety precautions—adequate fencing, and responsible adult supervision."

Secondary Shortcomings One problem with a properly installed and maintained pool alarm is that people often forget to reactivate them after each pool use. There also is the chance that by the time someone responds to the alarm and reaches the pool, whoever or whatever activated it may have drowned.

Grigo said the pool covers, increasingly sold as safety devices, are touted as capable of preventing drownings. Not really so.

If someone walks out on the cover they can slide to the center as it gives under their weight. The cover itself may have served as a collector of rainwater. In the center the water may be of sufficient depth to cause a drowning. If a cover of a non-porous nature causes this condition there are small pumps a person can install to keep cover free of water accumulation.

Some interwoven mesh covers are said to eliminate the problem of water accumulation. But such covers may have enough give in the center to lower someone down into the pool water, creating a safety hazard.

It's trouble but it's well worth the trouble to differentiate yourself from a "pool owner"—and put yourself in the class of "owner of a safe pool."

"The latter has peace of mind as well as fun," the Council reminds.

Old Caravans Really Colossal

CHICAGO (UPI)—Each election year brings out the campaign caravan but no candidate will top the spectacular productions of the original caravan people.

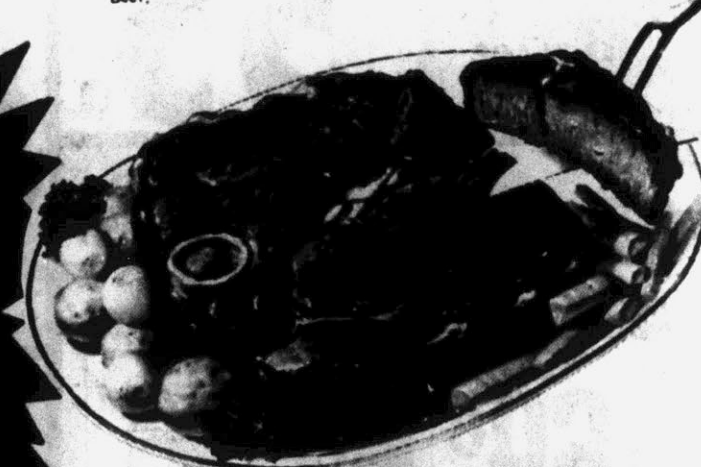

Some of the caravans that carried freight and passengers through Asian and African deserts included more than 10,000 camels, says Encyclopedia Britannica. One caravan, in 1908, moved out with 20,000 camels.

CO's Don't Object To Their Work

Editor's Note — One alternative is five years in the clink and a $10,000 fine. Another is helping keep America the beautiful. Here's one project that conscientious objectors don't seem to object to.

By DAVID AMMONS

POINT PARTRIDGE, Wash. (AP) — Quieting his screaming chainsaw, Steve Pettit tugged at his beard and reflected "this job is a gold mine for me—I don't feel trapped."

For Pettit and nine other youths who carve camp sites and trails out of heavily wooded state land on Whidbey Island, the conservation and recreation corps is an experiment that offers them an alternative to military service.

All 10 are conscientious objectors.

The experimental group, commonly known as the Ecology Corps, is being cosponsored by the Washington Department of Natural Resources and the Selective Service System. Only California has a similar "alternative service."

Since the program began several months ago, the men have spent all of their working hours on the scenic island site, clearing heavy underbrush, carving out nine campsites and an observation area with an expansive view of Admiralty Inlet and building a carefully graded trail down the cliffside to the beach.

The trail opens six miles of deserted state beachland to the public. The recreation area is located about four miles west of the picturesque village of Coupeville.

"This is quite a pleasant alternative to five years in jail or a $10,000 fine," said Pettit, 23, of Bellevue, Wash., referring to the penalties for refusing service to the country. "I've always enjoyed working in the woods, and this is a worthwhile experience for me. But a guy would have to want to do what we are doing, or he'd be miserable."

Pettit is foreman of the crew. He assigns specific tasks at the beginning of a day and oversees progress, along with a field representative of the DNR.

Not all reaction is positive. One CO, Steve Leonard of Seattle, said he got into the experimental program "because it is so structured, so easy, it's all set up for you." He said the ideal would be for a conscientious objector to develop his own program "so the work could go with your principles."

"This is just two years," the 20-year-old said, fingering his round-framed glasses. "It doesn't mean anything. It's a half cop out. Everything's set up for me."

Does a conscientious objector have a service obligation to his country?

"If I could create a good family, if I could be true to myself, then I think I would be doing the country the greatest of services," Leonard said.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 15, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S
HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a good chance now to persuade an official of high standing to go along with a project that requires the assistance of bigwigs. Also a fine time for meeting with those persons who bring you relief from life's tiresome routines.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can contact a bigwig now who has the right answers concerning your interests, especially if it's in the field of entertainment. Have a good time tonight and avoid unnecessary worry.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You now can put your ideas across to your loved one and gain the right results. Start an uptrend in all of your affairs via a new plan. Being active is the best way.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend the social and make it work for you where your career plans are concerned. Entertaining a good pal who has shown generosity to you in the past is wise. Pay all of your bills.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Think along lines of greater abundance and you find you can achieve that now. You must use your intuitive hunches more. They are working particularly well today.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact a bigwig and get the support you need for personal aims that are good. Others appreciate you more now and will give the needed backing you want. Show you have a good mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to be better prepared if you are to gain a personal aim that is so important to you. A business expert can be a big help to you. Know your own mind. Be happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Engage in a group meeting and let others know what your aims and ideas are and get their support. You can now enjoy the pleasures you like and can be most helpful to others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Showing more interest in civic matters makes this a most productive and important day in your life. Showing others that you are an expert in your own field of endeavor is true and wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal day to engage in new activities. Visit interesting persons who can help to widen your horizons now. An open mind is necessary for best results. Avoid arguments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact those persons who can give you right ideas how to handle obligations to which you have been committed. Show appreciation to backers. Evening can be most happy with mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day to spend time with associates and work out new arrangements that make your operations more successful. Engage in recreational activities. Show more thoughtfulness to mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Perfect day for adding touches of color and charm to your surroundings. Concentrate your thoughts on the important things in your life. Buy the clothing apparel you have always wanted.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who is both sensitive and ambitious. The latter may not appear on the surface, so make plans to direct the education along lines of public work. Try to be encouraging to your youngster, then this life should be a happy one. Give religious training early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
