

Convention Meets Today

Platform Proposals Offered N.C. Demos

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposed platform to be presented to the state Democratic convention today would put North Carolina Democrats on record as opposing a constitutional amendment to prohibit forced busing.

The platform, selection of 14 at-large delegates to the national Democratic convention, and talks by Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., Gov. Bob Scott, gubernatorial nominee Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles and Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor loomed as the highlights of the convention.

A slate of 14 at-large national convention delegates chosen last week by a statewide nominating committee faced at least one challenge before reaching the convention floor.

Joe Brown of High Point, who ran unsuccessfully for nomination to the U.S. Senate, proposed his own slate of delegates—all supporters of Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Wallace won 37 of North Carolina's 64 national convention votes—on the first ballot—by winning the state's presidential preference primary. Former Gov. Terry Sanford won the other 27 votes.

Brown contended that Wallace supporters have been ignored in the process of delegate selection. As a result, he said Wallace support could disappear if the national convention goes beyond the first ballot.

The proposed platform makes no mention on busing in the section dealing with education, but the section on constitutional amendments said Democrats feel the U.S. Constitution should be amended only in extreme circumstances so the Democratic party "does not support efforts to enact a constitutional amendment dealing with the issues of forced busing of school children."

Other platform planks would:

—Object to inequities in the state's tax structure and urge changes to equalize the tax burden.

—Advocate legislation to "provide medically safe abortions to all women seeking them regardless of economic status."

—Propose an equal rights amendment at the state level to end discrimination against women and "laws discriminating against women such as those relating to inheritance, and income tax, and social security should be changed."

—Endorse annual sessions of the General Assembly with the length of sessions limited, more pay for legislators, and creation of permanent standing legislative committees manned by professional staffs.

The platform would put the Democratic party on record as favoring collective bargaining for all workers, including employees of state, county and local government.

The platform also urged elimination of racial discrimination in housing and pledged "that steps will be taken all across the state to insure that the right to vote is made a reality for all persons regardless of race, creed or color."

On health, the platform said the party believes "the state government has responsibility to step in and assist in halting the spiraling inflation in hospital insurance costs."

"We advocate a commission made up of true public members, doctors and hospital administrators to undertake a study and make recommendations to the General Assembly, the hospital association and to the North Carolina Medical Society in regards to this very grave question."

Killed 18 Persons In Rampage

Hurricane Agnes Gasping Last Breath School Site

APALACHICOLA, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Agnes has gasped her last over backwoods Georgia after a collision with the Florida Panhandle that left homes uprooted, roads awash and millions of dollars in damage.

Agnes, the first of the season's hurricanes, killed 18 persons, injured more than 100 and forced thousands of families from their homes as she rampaged north from Cuba.

Although an 80-mile-per-hour parent of ravaging tornadoes early Monday, the storm was reduced to a disorganized mass by midnight and was sweeping across South Georgia with 45 m.p.h. winds.

Once the storm had passed, residents along Florida's northwestern coast began picking their way through the soggy debris they had called home.

One 15-mile stretch bordering the Gulf of Mexico from Carabelle to Eastpoint, Fla., was lined with demolished homes. Parts of U. S. 98—including much of the causeway between Eastpoint and Apalachicola—were eaten away.

"I gave up counting how many houses were destroyed and just put 'most of them' on my report," said Red Cross volunteer Beth Henson.

Many beachfront houses were reduced to little more than rubble.

Herbert Chipman whose house was ruined, said, "The waters just came up and came in. I don't know how much of my house is left."

While Agnes was churning across the Gulf toward the Panhandle, a backlash slammed into the Tampa Bay area, inflicting $12 million damage on St. Petersburg and neighboring towns.

Flood waters more than 3 feet deep were reported in several neighborhoods in Pinellas County.

Motions were made after an executive session of the Greenville City School Board last night to pursue their proposed purchase of a site on Hooker Road here for the erection of a new junior high school and to retain a new attorney to help in the execution of the pursuit.

The first motion read, "We reaffirm our intent to pursue the purchase of the site in question and exhaust every avenue for resolving the disagreement in order to move forward with the project."

The new attorney will be retained because W. W. Speight serves both as School Board attorney and as Pitt County attorney and the Board's conflict is with the County Commissioners as to how much should be paid for land for the school site.

The Board said they will appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court if necessary to settle the matter.

In less weighty discussion, the Board voted unanimously to accept a Greenville Chamber of Commerce proposal that a week be set aside next fall to allow Greenville residents to express appreciation to the schools "for the fine education our children are receiving." The proposal was made by Chamber President George Shoe and director Harold Creech.

Dr. Gene P. Piner reported on summer school at Wahl-Coates Elementary School. Enrollment is 140 and emphasis is on language arts and mathematics, with an open classroom concept being used, he said. ESEA is financing one kindergarten, one primary, and two intermediate classes, and ECU two primary and one intermediate class.

Approval was given to a project to provide a bus for substantially handicapped students. The project will be financed by the Developmental Disabilities Services and Facilities Construction Act of 1970. The bus with a hand-operated hydraulic lift could be used to avail the students of

Regional Institute's Building Project Is Awarded $392,400

THE NEW FACILITY . . . to house the East Carolina Regional Development Institute will contain 16,000 square feet including 16 office spaces, a library and an auditorium. Construction of the building is expected to begin within the next six months.

Congressman Walter B. Jones has announced that the East Carolina Regional Development Institute has been awarded grant funds totaling $392,400 by the Economic Development Administration and Coastal Plains Regional Commission. The funds will be used for construction of a new office building, to be located in the block bordered by First, Reade and Second Streets.

The building, containing 16,000 square feet, will include 16 office spaces, a library, an auditorium with a seating capacity of 300 people.

The auditorium will be used in connection with the Institute's leadership development and management seminars.

The new facility, modern in design will have a raised roof on the library and auditorium portion of the building in order to allow more light into the two areas.

Congressman Jones stated that the Institute is a result of an idea of Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, a few years ago.

The state of North Carolina will provide $98,200; the Coastal Plain Regional Commission, $98,200; and the EDA $294,000, bringing the total cost of the project to $490,400.

Tom Willis, director of the East Carolina Regional Institute, said he was delighted about getting the new building.

"I feel it will be an asset, not only to Greenville, but to the whole area, in that it will give us more adequate working facilities and make us more

WASHINGTON, N.C. — The body of Greenville Boys Club director David E. Wilcox, 29, was recovered early this morning after it washed ashore during the night at Whichard's Beach near here.

The Washington Rescue Squad

and state Wildlife Protectors had been hunting for Wilcox's body since Saturday afternoon when he fell from a speed boat into the waters of the Pamlico River near Whichard's Beach. A North Carolina Forest Service airplane and a U. S. Coast Guard boat joined the hunt yesterday.

"He didn't drown, in my opinion," Beaufort County Coroner Julius Woolard said this morning. "The propeller hit him . . . he had propeller wounds on his chest, head and neck."

According to Woolard, Wilcox's body was found about 6 a.m. The coroner said investigation of the accident is

Pitt Demos Elected New Slate Of Delegates And Alternates

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt Democrats, convening for the second time in less than a month, Monday selected a brand new slate of delegates and alternates to attend the state convention today in Raleigh.

Monday's convention was called by county chairman Henry Oglesby following a ruling Thursday by the Council of Review of the state Democratic Party that declared the lists of delegates and alternates to the state convention elected here May 27 null and void.

Action by the Council of Review was in response to a challenge by Henry C. Ferrell Jr. concerning the apportionment of precinct votes in the county and the subsequent election of representatives at the May county convention.

The slate of delegates and alternates chosen Monday was the third list to be submitted to the state Democratic Executive Committee for ratification and it came on the eve of the state convention which was scheduled to begin this morning at 11 a.m. A list of delegates and alternates elected at the first convention was also rejected by the committee because more names were submitted than were allowed the county delegation and a shortened version was sent several days later for ratification.

Ferrell contended in his presentation before the Council of Review that several precincts that cast far less than 200 votes for Governor Scott in 1968 were selecting delegates and alternates to the district . . . and state conventions." He questioned the basis of the apportionment of votes.

Monday's session, which began at 10 a.m. and continued until around 2 p.m., was moderated by convention chairman M.E. Cavendish. Oglesby explained the procedure to be followed by the delegation in electing the new delegates and alternates.

Delegates were elected according to a percentage breakdown of the county's population in relation to males, females, non-whites and persons under 30 years of age. Census figures placed the number of males in the county at 47.5 per cent, the number of females at 52.5 per cent, the percentage of non-whites at 35 per cent, and number of under-30 people in the county at 25 per cent of the total population.

On that basis, the convention was required to elect a minimum of 15 blacks as delegates, 11 persons under 30, 22 females, and 21 males to make up the 43 delegates allotted the county. The breakdown was handled category by category to insure the minimum requirements were met in each case. For instance, four blacks (two females and two males) under 30 were elected first, then seven whites (four females and three males) under 30 were elected to arrive at the required total of 11.

Here Comes Shrimp, Japanese Style

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

1 Fried shrimp, made as it is in Japanese restaurants, may be prepared successfully at home. And what an appetizer it is! We've yet to meet a person who's tried and didn't enjoy this delectable dish.

We fried the shrimp in peanut oil, as do many Japanese cooks. One hint about reusing the oil: after frying the battered shrimp, let the oil cool. Then drain it through a fine-mesh strainer into a wide-mouth jar. Cover, label and store in refrigerator. When ready to reuse, add a little fresh peanut oil to the reserved amount.

Readers Speak Out Couple Weds In Ceremony On Bill's Act

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: The mother who said her son put on an act in public, slurping, giggling, crossing his eyes and falling all over the place "like a retarded person" owes the retarded an apology.

My brother is a retarded mongoloid, and he never behaved any such way. In fact, his manners are far above most normal people.

I've also visited the State Hospital for Retarded in Fort Wayne, Ind., and I've never seen anything but politeness and good manners there.

YOUNG HOOSIER

DEAR ABBY: I am writing for the Comparative Religions class of Thomasville High School, Thomasville, Ga.

We held an interesting discussion on the letter from the mother whose 16-year-old son, Bill, mimicked a mentally retarded person "to make people laugh" and his father was his best audience.

Our class consists of students from the 9th thru 12th grades, and we'd like for "Bill" to know how his peers feel about his behavior:

Bill needs help. He is trying desperately to get the attention which he never received as a child. A suggested cure would be for him to work with retarded children.

And as far as Bill's father is concerned, I think we all left class with a greater appreciation of our own.

A LETTER FROM GA.

DEAR ABBY: I am really angry about that teen-aged Canadian boy who acted like a nut on the street. I can't understand why his mother didn't hit him with the first thing handy.

One way to cure him would be to take him [and his father, who thought the performance was sidesplitting] on a tour of the nearest state mental hospital, including the back wards where they keep the most severely afflicted.

If that boy and his father were still laughing by the time they finished the tour, she should have them both committed.

ESTHER IN IOWA

DEAR ABBY: Concerning that 16-year-old Canadian kid who put on a "retarded" act in public to get attention. My father said if that were his son he would give him a good boot in his Francis.

SECOND THE MOTION IN OHIO

DEAR ABBY: Who says Americans have lost their sense of humor? The letter from the mother whose son shakes, trembles, crosses his eyes, slurps and giggles and pretends to be "retarded," and whose father thinks it is hilarious, brightened the day for me.

The mother complains that Bill puts on this act while the family watches TV, and the father, convulsed with laughter, is holding his sides.

No generation gap here! Wouldn't many a parent of a surly, long-haired lout who spends his time goodness knows where, doing heaven knows what and getting home who knows when, be glad to trade sons with Bill's parents?

WALTER IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR WALTER: I'm not so sure.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to invite "Bill," that normal 16-year-old boy, to visit the school my son attends. It's a special school for mentally retarded children. I'm sure Bill could pick up a few pointers for his "act"—that is if he didn't crack up after watching these conscientious teachers work for hours, and weeks and sometimes months trying to teach a full-grown child how to button a button or tie a shoelace.

The parents of the bride entertained at a reception following the nuptials at the Second Christian Church.

Miss Hilda Faison of Farmville introduced guests to the receiving line composed of the parents of the bridal couple, the bride and bridegroom, and wedding party.

The bride's table was covered with a formal linen cut cloth with an arrangement of larkspur and pom poms in pastel shades of pink and lavender. Mrs. Donnie J. China's Southern Ports Closed To Soviet Ships

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — China has closed its southern ports to Soviet ships loaded with war supplies for North Vietnam but is still allowing ships from other Communist countries to land supplies for Hanoi, authorities in touch with both Peking and Moscow reported today.

Peking's reason, according to informants putting out the Chinese line, is that the Soviets are unwilling to risk their new relationship with the United States by challenging President Nixon's mining of North Vietnam's ports.

Moscow's version, as told by diplomats from Soviet bloc countries, is that the Chinese are easing up on their support for the North Vietnamese in favor of a more flexible international policy.

The U.S. mining of North Vietnam's ports has been condemned by both Peking and Moscow as illegal interference with navigation on the high seas. Informants in touch with the Chinese say Peking considers that Moscow has the obligation to challenge the mining, and that failure to do so implies tacit acceptance.

The Chinese reportedly argue that the Soviet Union has the means and the equipment with which to foil the American mining while China does not. In Peking's view, therefore, Moscow's failure to accept the challenge can only mean that its relationship with Washington is deemed to transcend its responsibility to Hanoi.

The informants say that as Peking sees it, the smaller East European countries lack the power to challenge the Americans, therefore their cargoes for Hanoi are being accepted in Chinese ports.

For their part, the Russians reportedly contend that Peking's attitude is consistent with other signs suggesting China is moving away from its obligation to help Hanoi. This is cited as one of the factors that has led Moscow to help in the search for a political settlement of the Vietnam War.

North Carolina's three homes for unwed mothers are losing money because of empty beds and increased health-care costs.

Spokesmen at the homes say liberalized abortion laws and readily available contraceptives have combined to keep down applications to the agencies. Nothing, however, is keeping down the rising costs of medical care.

A Salvation Army spokesman says the agency's Home for Unwed Mothers in Durham is "in constant danger" of closing because it is unable to balance its books. Only 14 of the agency's 30 spaces are currently filled. The situation is basically the same at the Florence Crittenton Home in Charlotte and the Maternity Home of the Baptist Children's Home of N.C. in Asheville.

Brigadier Beatrice Combs, women's and children's social service secretary at the Salvation Army's territorial headquarters in Atlanta, said Monday the Durham home absorbed a loss last year of "about $5,000." And, she added, the seven Salvation Army maternity homes in the southeast lost a total of $47,000 in 1971.

"The homes are definitely in trouble," Brig. Combs said, "but we hate to close as long as there are girls who need our services."

At one of the Army's homes—in San Antonio, Tex.—the unmarried mothers program had to be phased out because it was losing so much money, she said.

Brig. Combs said the Durham office took in $55,000 in fees towards its $100,000 budget. Another $40,000 came from the United Appeal charity fund and other donations.

But, she said, "the $5,000 loss in Durham doesn't tell the whole story. To hold the loss down, we have had to cut back on our staff and some maintenance work."

Brig. Combs emphasized that none of the cuts has "jeopardized safety" at the home.

Bookkeeper Ann Dickens of the Florence Crittenton Home in Charlotte said the number of patients at the facility is below the break-even point. Thirty-nine of the home's 68 spaces are now filled, well below the 61 needed to keep the agency operating in the black.

Roger White, a caseworker at the Crittenton home, said "the financial picture is tight." He said the home receives about 65 per cent of its support from fees paid by occupants. The remainder comes from United Appeal and other donations.

Eight of 11 spaces at the Maternity Home of the Baptist Children's Home of N.C. in Asheville are filled. Caseworker Mrs. Anita Burns said this is the most patients the 1½-year-old agency has ever had, but Children's Home spokesman Isaac Terrell said the home is still operating "in the red."

In an attempt to fill up the empty beds, the maternity homes are branching out into new services.

Brig. Combs said the Salvation Army home in Durham is experimenting in a new program with Duke Hospital involving outpatient care for pregnant women, both married and unmarried.

She said six beds at the home have been made available for women with complications in their pregnancies who have been receiving treatment at Duke, but who don't require an expensive hospital bed.

At the Salvation Army home in Richmond, one section of the building has been set aside for girls referred to the agency by the state of Virginia.

Brig. Combs said the girls, not necessarily pregnant, are juvenile delinquents and pre-delinquents who would otherwise be placed in a state institution.

And in Baltimore, the Florence Crittenton home is operating a "girl in crisis" program. Girls who require counseling for some problem may come and live at the home or visit on a daily basis.

Brig. Combs sounded one hopeful note for the maternity homes.

"We're hoping to see more of a different kind of girl," she said. "This girl may not need us for anonymity, and she could obtain our medical services elsewhere, but because of a problem in her home she needs to get out."

Weekend Accident Toll Draws Advice

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's soaring traffic deaths has prompted Motor Vehicles Commissioner Joe Garrett to urge motorists to exercise greater care "if they want to drive and stay alive."

According to the Highway Patrol, 25 persons were killed between 6 p.m. Friday through midnight Sunday, more than are killed on many long holiday weekends.

The new deaths brought the state's traffic toll for the year to 811. This compared with 768 in the same period of last year.

Garrett warned motorists that "there are more cars on our highways than ever before. There are far more drivers, and the percentage of those who are young and inexperienced is increasing every day. Add drinking and speed to these facts and we have a deadly combination."

Garrett pointed out that 15 of the victims were 25 years old or younger. There were 14 accidents, including two triple-fatality crashes, in which only one vehicle was involved.

Garrett noted that excessive speed was established as a factor in 18 deaths. "On a basis of experience," he added, "we know that over half the deaths involved drinking drivers."

The triple-fatality wrecks occurred in Moore County and the City of High Point.

The patrol said the High Point accident occurred when a car ran out of control and hit a building while the Moore County wreck occurred when a car went out of control and hit a tree.

Charge Woman In Knifing Case

Mable Ray, 46, of 1711 South Pitt St. was charged by Greenville Police with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill following a 10:30 cutting incident here last night.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, Miss Ray allegedly cut Jay Bullock of 1711 South Pitt St. on the right arm with a knife during an argument.

Bullock was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of the wound.

N.C. Does Have Drug Problem

If there are those who still are inclined to think hard drugs may not be a problem in North Carolina, they have only to consider that seven deaths occurred in a ten-day period from use of heroin in this state.

The alarm expressed over the situation by SBI Director Charles Dunn should be shared by every citizen of North Carolina. It should wake-up the state to the fact that North Carolina does have a serious drug problem. As Director Dunn asserted, "If we had seven cases of plague folks would get awfully excited about it and demand action."

Obviously the drug problem in North Carolina is a far more serious threat to the life, health and well being of the people of this state than most people are willing to acknowledge. It is the worst kind of

Rulings Affect State Budgets

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — State budgets soon may feel the impact of a new wave of court decisions which hold that equality of services is a Constitutional right for all citizens.

Cases in the field of care for mental patients and in public school financing already have laid out the principle. Although the U.S. Supreme Court has not yet spoken specifically on the issue, in legal circles it is regarded as certain that the high court will affirm the basic position taken in lower courts.

"There is no question that the courts are going to require services involving rather substantial expenditures," said Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan.

North Carolinians should be aware of the judicial trend, he added, and prepare to meet it by fully assuming those responsibilities which should have been met long ago.

"It is regrettable that we had to wait and let the courts force us to do these things," said Morgan.

A Nationwide Trend

An Alabama suit brought up the matter of adequate treatment for mental patients. The second financing issue originated in California. Similar actions followed in other states, and a Texas, case is now before the Supreme Court.

A suit has been filed in North Carolina concerning facilities for mentally retarded children. The possibility has been raised of an action on behalf of patients in the state's mental institutions.

Dr. Eugene Hargrove, state mental health commissioner, has estimated some $63 million additional per year would be required to bring staffs up to the standards required by the Alabama decision.

Local property taxes for school purposes, the target of the school financing cases, provide some $215 million per year for Tar Heel schools.

"Whatever the cost, I am convinced it is within the means of the people of North Carolina," Morgan asserted. He discussed the cases and their implications for North Carolina in the following interview.

Basis For Actions

Question: What is the fundamental basis for the suits?

Answer: The courts have acted under the "equal protection" clause of the Constitution. What they have said is that the state's failure to adequately provide services is a violation of the rights of the citizens involved.

In my personal opinion, the court is on sound ground.

There is no way we can justify the lack of attendants, nurses and doctors to care for mental patients. These people are locked up and can't do anything about it. Our neglect has been downright inhumane.

Q. What should we do as a result of the court decisions?

A: My advice to state officials and the legislature is to act now to meet the needs which have been pointed out. We ought to do it because we recognize the right of it, not because we're made to do it in a showdown in the courts.

School Impact Limited

The school financing decision, if upheld, will make a difference in this state although not as much as in others. We already carry a greater burden of the cost at the state level.

The primary thrust is that the quality of education a child receives must not depend upon the accident of birth in a richer or poorer area of the state. There's a lot of merit in that.

Q: Hasn't the legislature done as much as it could to meet needs within the means of the state?

A: We're talking about balancing priorities. We know pressure groups become involved in the process and there is more emphasis in some areas and less in others. For example, alumni are quick to respond if the budget is cut for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill or East Carolina University. Mental patients have no alumni to speak up for them.

Q: Since budget-making is a legislative function, aren't the courts moving out of the judicial sphere?

A: I don't say the courts haven't invaded the legislative field in the past. But, after all, the court is the only place citizens have to turn for the protection of their rights under the Constitution. The court does not infringe the authority of the legislative branch when it defines what the legislature must do to secure the rights of all citizens.

plague and one which has been in the midst of the people of this state for years and unfortunately one which is gaining ground, as well as victims, with each passing day.

The seven deaths in the 10-day period was the kind of tragedy which may attract public attention. The far greater tragedy, however, is the unknown number of people in this state, from teenagers to mature adults, for whom life now exists only from one needle to the next. And with each passing day there are new people who experiment with the deadly drugs, additional youngsters and adults who cross the threshold into the realm where drugs rule their lives.

The 15 heroin deaths so far in the state this year, the 18 similar deaths last year and the 24 in the previous year constitute only the tiny tip of the tragic drug iceberg floating through the culture of North Carolina. Instead of diminishing under the increasing pressure of law enforcement, the menace is growing ever larger.

If the state is to deal effectively with the threat, the drive against drugs must have more than increasing efforts by law enforcement agencies to stamp out the traffic. The effort to stamp out drugs must gain support throughout the entire population, with each conscientious citizens assuming a personal responsibility to join the fight against drugs.

Regrettable Loss To City's School Board

It is regrettable that Dr. E. B. Aycok has found it necessary because of his heavy medical duties to resign as chairman and member of the Greenville Board of Education.

He is the second member with experience and ability to leave the board recently, since Vice Chairman John Bizzell went off this month after serving two terms.

Both these men have served ably and well through years of great transition for the Greenville city schools and the community owes them a debt of gratitude.

Can McGovern Curb Backers?

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MINNEAPOLIS — The chaotic performance of the McGovern-led "Coalition" of liberals at the state convention of the Minnesota Democratic-Farmer-Labor party last weekend left party leaders shaken about what may happen at the national convention in Miami Beach next month.

The Coalition forced a plank into the party's platform that would "legalize" marriage between homosexuals. It also:

1. Elected Earl Graig, an instructor at the University of Minnesota, Democratic national committeeman over Democratic Gov. Wendell Anderson's personal choice. Craig immediately called for the ouster of Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien on grounds that O'Brien ran a "rubber stamp" national committee and was oblivious to "social issues."
2. Elected a delegate from the Fifth Congressional District here named Kenneth Enkel who was thrown out of the party in 1948 when the then mayor of Minneapolis, Hubert H. Humphrey, took over the party and purged it of extreme left-wing elements. Enkel's first published comment as the party's wild and wooly convention ended at Rochester Sunday was that he would "die happy" if he could make a speech at the Miami Beach convention attacking Humphrey.
3. Threw powerful labor leaders into something approaching panic. One top union official told us that the dominant mood of scores of young delegates was to "roll over the party."

"They preach non-violence," he told us, "but the first chance they get they poke you in the snout."

None of the anti-establishment actions taken at the Rochester convention by the pro-McGovern "Coalition" was cleared with McGovern himself or his political high command in Washington. To the contrary, the attacks on O'Brien and Humphrey and some of the far-out platform planks go directly against McGovern's policy of minimizing harsh contradictions between McGovernites and the party establishment.

Hence the real and looming danger that lies in wait for McGovern at Miami Beach: if his militant followers in such states as Minnesota are unable to restrain their anti-establishment spurge, can McGovern himself restrain them when they arrive at Miami Beach?

In terms of pragmatic politics here, some party leaders say the excesses of the Rochester convention will be forgotten by Nov. 7. Others, far more skeptical, believe the party's excellent chance to capture the state legislature has now been undermined.

Thus, many candidates for state and local offices are now preparing to disavow the platform adopted in the raucous Rochester rally and write their own.

Strength For Today

A SEED LONG PLANTED

Dr. Frederick G. Banting, who in 1922 discovered insulin as a specific for diabetes, is said to have come upon his world-shaking discovery as a result of reading an old, outmoded book on medicine. This book has been relegated to the stacks of practically dead books in a medical library. Perhaps the man who wrote it died feeling that his efforts had been in vain. Nobody much had read his book while he was living, and perhaps before he died he saw it go out of print and out of the memory of his colleagues. But years later as Dr. Banting read this old, outmoded medical book, a statement popped out and started a chain of thought in the mind of the Canadian physician which eventuated in a great discovery.

Poets have loved to dilate upon the significance of a seed carried by the wind. The words of the poet and the circumstances surrounding Banting's discovery mean to you and to me that perhaps some insignificant little circumstance in our lives, some words we have written, some friendly smile we have given, may some day change a whole section of the world's life. God is supremely indifferent to bigness. He appears to put no value on many things we consider very valuable.

Ponder these words: "Paul planteth, Appollos watereth, but God giveth the increase."

Still A Long Way To Go

After eight months of marking time, the Supreme Court last week came suddenly to attention, right-shouldered arms, picked up a lively cadence—and marched off in all directions. At the end of the day's exercises, it was apparent the Court had gone somewhere, but one is hard put to say exactly where.

In one case, Argersinger v. Hamlin, the Court reasoned its way into chaos. In two other cases, Adams v. Williams and Colten v. Kentucky, the Court got

Other Editors Say Proper Next Step

(Christian Science Monitor)

The latest Kissinger-to-Peking move is a well-timed and skillful play in the new diplomacy which Richard Nixon opened with the announcement that he himself would go to Peking.

From that movement diplomacy has again become a lively art. Americans never played it like this before. The rewards are already substantial. They may be spectacular before the present round is finished.

We say "may be" because the Russians have traditionally been masters in this game, and the Chinese understand it well themselves and are also making their own careful moves in what is now a three-cornered game. The immediate stake is the shape of the end of the Vietnam war.

We have felt for some time that the end may be coming up fairly quickly now. The Russian move, in sending their President, Nikolai Podgorny, to Hanoi is obviously related. We assume that his mission, as to help the people in Hanoi to a fuller appreciation of the facts of life in today's power world. One of them is that Moscow wants more things from Washington than have yet been granted or are likely to be granted until and unless the war is ended in a manner tolerable to Mr. Nixon.

The Washington announcement that Mr. Kissinger would be going to Peking this weekend just happened to emerge from the White House as Mr. Podgorny reached Calcutta on his way to Hanoi. Such timing is not by coincidence. Knowledge of the Kissinger trip is likely to stimulate Mr. Podgorny's efforts in Hanoi.

It is also a quiet but firm reminder to Moscow that Washington now enjoys channels of communication with Peking and that these channels can be used freely, easily, and frequently. Washington has plenty of room for maneuver — and is using it.

If this does lead to a reasonable and satisfactory end to the war we will be thankful. We think this is Mr. Nixon's purpose, and we think his tactical moves to that end are being well planned and well executed.

Economy Following The Script

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With a few notable exceptions, the economy seems to be following the script written by Republican planners. As the election approaches, that is, it is growing markedly more vigorous.

Whether this improvement can be translated into votes is another matter, because there is a world of difference between the nation's economy and an individual's view of his personal economy.

Statistically, the nation's economic indicators are high and pointing upward. Production, retail sales, the number of people with jobs, had established a right to counsel in all felony cases, and generally speaking, in all cases that might result in imprisonment for more than six months. Now the rule is extended. This is the new requirement:

"We hold, therefore, that absent a knowing and intelligent waiver, no person may be imprisoned for any offense, whether classified as petty, misdemeanor, or felony, unless he was represented by counsel at his trial."

As an abstract proposition, the rule makes sense. The Sixth Amendment says that "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right...to have the assistance of counsel for his defense." A charge of disorderly conduct involves a criminal prosecution. It should follow that a person, so accused, enjoys a right to have a lawyer at his side.

Constitutional explication to one side, the new rule accords with the great concept of equal justice under law. As the Court noted, one study has shown that misdemeanants represented by attorneys are five times as likely to emerge from police court with all charges dismissed as are defendants who face similar charges without counsel. Even a small offense can present large questions of law. The rule should be of great benefit to the little people of our society, the poor and the black, who hanceforth are guaranteed counsel before they can be sentenced to jail.

Yet as a practical matter, the rule invites chaos. Justice Lewis F. Powell, though he technically concurred in the result, filed a long and convincing dissent. In his view, the requirement places an almost impossible burden on police court judges. They must either abandon their

Reform Rules Eased

By MARGARET GENTRY

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has handed Democratic party reformers a setback in their effort to ensure selection of women, minorities and young people as national-convention delegates.

Coming just three weeks before the convention opens, the order left reformers and regulars alike confused about the legal status of more than one-third of the delegates.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. struck down rules requiring:

—That states apportion delegate slates to include blacks, women and young people "in reasonable relationship to the group's population presence in the state."

—That delegates must not be chosen by party officials elected prior to this year, a rule designed to chip away at the traditional control party bosses hold over delegate selection in some states.

The Democratic National Committee will appeal the order immediately, said committee attorney Joseph A. Califano Jr.

Hart delivered the opinion in a suit filed by Chicago Alderman Thomas E. Keane, an ally of Mayor Richard J. Daley, who sought to defeat a challenge to the 59 uncommitted delegates he controls. Daley said the order "speaks for itself" and "upholds everything that has been said in our petition."

But the decision left the challengers, led by black civil-rights activist Jesse L. Jackson, one leg to stand on. Another rule inspired by the four-year-long reform effort, a ban on choosing delegates in a slate-making process closed to the party grass roots, was left standing.

Attorneys for the Daley foes said they will pursue the challenge on that basis.

In striking down the reform provisions, Judge Hart said, "When you try to provide who you vote for, then you are getting into a communist or fascist form of government, not a republican form."

He said the national committee may require state parties to "take affirmative action" to increase minority participation in party affairs, but

John Guy, director of the faculty at Pitt Technical Institute, will retire June 30.

His career began in 1928 as an employee of the Virginia School System. He came to Pitt County in 1937 and served as principal of Fountain High School until 1940.

He returned to Greenville in 1968 to become director of the Pitt Tech faculty.

that state delegations may not be upset solely on the basis of numbers.

Hart's ruling was the first dealing with the legality of the new rules themselves, adopted by the committee only after reluctant party regulars were persuaded to go along. Previous rulings, including one in Philadelphia Monday, dealt only with specific delegation challenges.

Hart's order upset the process of resolving the 54 challenges currently pending against delegations in 25 states. The committee said those challenges involve 43 per cent of the 2,512 delegates already selected, or about one-third of the convention's total 3,016.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern hopes to win 200 more delegates over scattered opposition today in a New York primary that could give him nearly half the remaining votes he needs to capture the Democratic presidential nomination.

With 41 of his delegates unopposed and many others facing only token opposition, including some organization rivals that would back him also, McGovern appeared certain to win a substantial majority of the 248 delegates being elected in the last of 23 presidential primaries.

The South Dakota senator said it would be a setback if he won less than 200 of New York's total of 278 delegates. The last 30 will be allocated by the Democratic state committee in the same proportion as the elected delegates.

With only a handful of other delegates yet to be selected in other states, McGovern's first-ballot strength stands at 1,072.3 votes—436.7 short of the 1,509 needed to capture the nomination.

The names of presidential candidates don't appear on the ballot in New York, where voters in each of 39 congressional districts will pick delegates and alternates. They'll have to know before they go in the booth which delegates, favor which candidate.

Republicans are picking 78 of their 88 delegates, with supporters of President Nixon expected to win most of them.

Besides the presidential delegate races, a number of hot congressional races are being decided. In two New York City districts, liberal incumbents have been thrown together by reapportionment, Reps. William F. Ryan and Bella Abzug in a mainly Manhattan district and Reps. Jonathan Bingham and James Scheuer in the Bronx.

In Maine, on Monday, 74-year-old Sen. Margaret Chase Smith survived her first Republican primary challenge in 18 years by defeating millionaire businessman Robert A.G. Monks, 39. She faces a stiff battle in November against Rep. William Hathaway, who easily won the Democratic nomination.

McGovern has spent most of the past week in New York, campaigning hard to prevent any loss of momentum after his June 6 victory in California that gave him that state's 271 delegates.

His supporters are running for 237 of the 248 delegate spots

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, who has more than 80 delegates on the ballot in suburban and upstate districts, made a campaign appearance in Buffalo Sunday to remind potential supporters he is still in the presidential race.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, a distant second to McGovern in the delegate race, told a Washington news conference Monday he hopes New Yorkers will vote for anti-McGovern slates if they have doubts about his positions on major issues.

McGovern replied in a statement early today that Humphrey is "undermining his reputation and jeopardizing his party by the kind of misleading statements he has been making about my positions."

"I am afraid that my old friend has forgotten that there is such a thing as wanting too much to be elected," he added.

There are no Humphrey delegates on the New York ballot.

McGovern planned to campaign briefly on the subway today before flying to New Orleans to address the nation's mayors.

Muskie visited South Carolina and Louisiana, seeking uncommitted delegates, after Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky led 37 delegates into his camp, as had been expected.

In other political developments:

—Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, often mentioned by McGovern as a possible running mate, said at a news conference in Miami Beach "I'm not interested in being the vice presidential nominee in any way and I would not accept the nomination if it were offered to me."

—U.S. District Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. ruled in Washington the Democratic party could not compel states that elected their convention delegates to balance them on the basis of race, sex or age.

Equipment For School Assured

Thanks to the efforts of a few concerned parents, Eastern Elementary School will now have physical education and recreation equipment for the new school year.

Mrs. Sarah Jenkins, president of the Eastern Elementary School PTA appointed a committee to look into the prospect of gaining materials for the construction of a recreation field for the students of that school. Before long, local merchants had donated equipment, and even the Greenville Utilities Commission pitched in and helped. GUCo along with a few parents, and a local minister, dug 33 holes for poles for an obstacle course. The telephone company provided the poles for the course and for a softball backstop.

Mrs. Margaret White, principal of Eastern Elementary and a few interested persons helped draw up a master plan for activities within this system. The plan met with favorable reaction from Dr. C. C. Cleetwood.

Future plans for the recreation field include the clearing of land for a soccer field, two or three softball fields, and the conversion of the softball fields into one football field.

Those persons interested in helping in this project should contact Claude Moore at 752-6191 or 758-0435.

Kissinger, whose National Security Council staff controlled every aspect of Ambassador Gerard Smith's negotiations with the Russians, is immune from a Congressional summons under the separation-of-powers doctrine of "executive privilege."

But Kissinger has been so intimately involved in negotiating in Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT) on defensive weapons — and the companion executive agreement on offensive systems — that both critics and proponents of the two agreements insisted that Mr. Nixon waive the precedent and allow him to testify. Kissinger himself agreed.

The President ruled otherwise, under heavy pressure from White House legal aides and Clark MacGregor, the chief White House lobbyist in Capitol Hill. Instead, he followed the course set by Woodrow Wilson in 1919 under similar circumstances involving Senate demands that Col. Edward House testify on the Versailles treaty.

President Wilson invited the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to the White House, where he himself did all the talking.

Mr. Nixon went further, asking 122 members of Congress to the White House Thursday where Kissinger fielded questions for several hours.

Connally's Diplomacy State Department aides were amazed to read on the news ticker last week that President Nixon's roving ambassador, former Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, would arrive in Rome on July 8 for "high level" consultations.

Also surprised was the Italian government, which had already scheduled a possible visit by French President George Pompidou the same time.

But Connally's drop-in at Rome, the only European capital now on his world tour, is more directed at finding a house to buy in Tuscany than at conducting sensitive diplomacy. U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin has told the Italian government Connally does not mind how long he stays in Italy to see top officials. He'll be house-hunting.

Child Is Dead In Car, Train Collision

CHILD DIED . . . An 11-year-old Route 1 Washington girl was thrown from this car and killed when the vehicle collided with a train at a rural crossing four miles North of Grimesland yesterday afternoon (Reflector Photo by Stuart Savage)

GRIMESLAND — An 11-year-old Route 1, Washington, girl was killed when a train and car collided at a crossing four miles North of here on Rural Road 1565 about 4:55 p.m. yesterday.

Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey identified the victim as Vicki Janell Davenport, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Davenport of Route 1, Washington. The coroner said the child died of head injuries. Investigating Highway Patrolman D. R. Taylor identified the driver of the car involved in the mishap as Mrs. Carol Walker Haunt, 31, of 2701 Jefferson Dr., Greenville. He said Mrs. Haunt was driving South along the rural road — about a quarter-mile South of the intersection of N.C. 33 and did not see the Seaboard Coastline freight train until too late to stop.

Trooper Taylor said the car skidded about 81 feet before colliding with the east-bound engine. The car then spun around, and came to rest off the road about 32 feet from the point of impact.

Both Mrs. Haunt and the Davenport child were thrown from the vehicle, Ptl. Taylor said.

Mrs. Haunt was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries she received in the collision, while her 11-year-old daughter, Loria Ann Haunt — also a passenger in the car at the time of the collision — was treated for minor injuries, then released. Damage to the car, described by officers as a total loss, was set at $5,000 while damage to the train engine was placed at $75. Coroner Harvey said investigation of the death is continuing.

Mrs. Ann Harrison reported on the Learning Center at Aycock Junior High School, which is being used to help students who are handicapped mentally or emotionally, develop behavior patterns necessary for employment. Students are referred there for special help with special problems. Some probably reasons for referral include underachievement, poor motivation, negative attitude, negative self concept, lack of preparation, and excessive absences. The Center will get into full swing next year, with Mrs. Harrison's being able to devote half her time to the project, which has been funded by an ESEA Title III for the fiscal year, 1973.

Beginning fall quarter, any senior who has scored more than 1,000 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and who has earned grades to place him in the top fourth of his class may take one course per quarter at East Carolina University for credit. The particulars have been worked out with the ECU Admissions Office and participation is limited to the regular academic year, September through May.

Wilcox had been director of the Greenville Boys Club since August, 1971.

His step-father, Glenn A. Swisher of Virginia Beach, Va., said Wilcox "had found a home in Greenville."

Swisher said, "as a young man in high school, Wilcox would work with younger boys. 'Our yard would be full of little kids ... weight lifting ... building tree houses ... camping ... boating, swimming ... everything little kids do, you know.'"

A retired U.S. Navy chief warrant officer, Swisher said Wilcox's father was killed over Stuttgart, Germany during World War II. "He was a big boy and while I was gone to sea, he was the man of the house."

According to Swisher, Wilcox "really thought a lot of the boys. We've got to kinda make note of it, you know..."

"He told me not long ago, 'you know, if I can't have any kids, I've got 600 of them down here...'"

Greenville Rolls Past Ashoskie, 15-1

Greenville rolled to a 15-1 victory over Ashoskie in Area II American Legion Baseball play last night.

The locals could do no wrong in the game, taking a 4-0 lead in the first inning and slowly building from there.

Greenville got only nine hits, just one for extra bases, but were walked 12 times and hit by pitches twice. The combination was too much for Ashoskie.

Stanley Cobb tossed the victory, fanning 11 Ashoskie batters, while he walked five and allowed four hits. The lone run came off him in the seventh inning.

Greenville got the scoring started in the first inning when they scored four runs. Bill Lee led off with a walk and Duncan Charlton bunted for a base hit. The ball was over thrown on the relay to first, and both runners moved up an additional base. Stanley Cobb singled in Lee and Phil Bount walked. John Barwick then singled to drive in both Charlton and Cobb, while Blount moved to third. An error there allowed him to come the rest of the way with the fourth run.

crossed in the second inning. That came on the first pitch to Lee, who slapped the ball out of the park in left field. The homer umped the score to 5-0.

If there was any chance for Ashoskie, it disappeared in the third as Greenville pushed over five more runs to gain a 10-0 lead. Blount walked and Dale Manning followed with a single. Barwick also got a single, loading the bases. Mike Weaver reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Blount, and Robert Brinkley walked to force Manning across.

loading the bases and another free pass brought Lee in when Blount walked. Locke Conrad followed with a hit, scoring Charlton, and Sonny Smithwick was hit by a pitch, bringing Charlton across. Randy McKinney hit a sacrifice fly to score Blount, and Greenville held a 14-0 lead. The last run came over in the sixth. Lee walked and stole second. Ashoskie managed to avoid a shutout when it came up with a lone run in the seventh inning. Dwight Collier got a two-out double and scored when Tommy Fleetwood singled. Fleetwood was thrown out, however, trying to stretch it to a double.

Lee and Barwick led the Greenville hitting, each getting two.

The Legionaires return to action on Thursday, playing host to Tarboro in another Area II game. It will be played at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field.

The Optimists are now 9-2 in the league, while the Jaycees fell off to a 4-7 mark. The win eliminated the Jaycees and the Kiwanis from any chance of winning the title.

The Optimists did most of their damage in the third inning, taking a 6-0 lead. James Shoe was hit by a pitch and Mac Stokes walked. Eric McCormick singled and Gary Allen got a hit to score Shoe. Jeff Aldridge walked to bring in Stokes and Greg Lee singled in McCormick and Allen. Bubba Rowlette was hit by a pitch and Randy Hodges singled in Aldridge. Lee was cut down trying to score on a passed ball, but Shoe singled to score Rowlette with the sixth run. They added two more in the fifth. Hodges singled and Shoe walked. Jim Kernan singled and Stokes walked to force in Hodges. Shoe scored on a passed ball.

The Optimists finished off their scoring in the sixth, getting one. Lee reached on a fielder's choice and Rowlette singled. Hodges got a hit scoring Lee with the ninth Optimist run.

The lone Jaycee run came in the bottom of the sixth. Danny Boyd got it, slamming a home run to open the inning.

McCormick had two hits for the Optimists, while Lee also had two and Hodges had three. Charles McLawhorn had two as did Greg Guthrie, for the Jaycees.

Pittsburgh Blasts Dodgers By 13-3

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Pittsburgh Pirates

blasted their way out of a rut Monday night, but the Houston Astros have found a groove they'd like to stay in. The Pirates, shut out by San Diego 4-0 and 1-0 in their last two starts and scoreless for 23 innings, erupted for 16 hits—including home runs by Roberto Clemente, Gene Alley and Al Oliver—and punted the Los Angeles Dodgers 13-3.

The Astros, meanwhile, got their second consecutive one-hit pitching performance when Larry Dierker limited New York to a lone single as Houston defeated the Mets 3-0 for the Astros' fifth straight victory.

As a result, Pittsburgh moved back into first place in the National League East by one-half game over the Mets, while the Astros pulled within a half-game of first-place Cincinnati in the NL West. The Reds were blanked by Montreal 2-0.

In the only other National League baseball action, the Chicago Cubs nipped San Francisco 7-6 in 11 innings. Philadelphia's game at Atlanta and San Diego's contest at St. Louis were rained out.

In the American League, Boston bombed Texas 12-0, California edged Baltimore 4-3 and Oakland beat Detroit 7-3. Cleveland's game at Minnesota was rained out, while the New York Yankees, Milwaukee, Kansas City and Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

Oliver and Clemente drove in three runs apiece for the Pirates, whose .284 team batting average is tops in the majors. The three RBI moved Clemente into first place on the all-time Pirate list with 1,275, two more than Hall of Famer Pie Traynor.

Pittsburgh ended its scoreless streak with two runs in the first inning off Don Stutton, 8-2—with both losses coming at the hands of the Pirates. The Bucs added three more runs in the fifth, one in the sixth, three in the seventh and four in the eighth.

"It really didn't matter who was pitching out there tonight," declared Oliver. "This team is loaded with talent, confidence and pride, and it just wanted to show the people something."

Meanwhile, at the Astrodome, Dierker showed the Houston fans something, too, duplicating Jerry Reuss' one-hit effort against the Phillies Sunday. It was only the eighth time back-to-back one-hitters have been pitched.

The lone safety off Dierker, 6-4, was a third inning single by Duffy Dyer.

Houston scored twice in the seventh on run-scoring singles by Lee May and Tommy Helms, then added another run in the ninth on another RBI single by May.

Montreal's Bill Stoneman shut out the Cincinnati Reds on four singles, while Tim Lincecum and Ron Woods drove in the Expos' runs with sacrifice flies.

The Cubs posted their sixth straight victory and moved within 2½ games of the lead in the NL East when Glenn Beckert doubled home Don Kessinger in the 11th inning. Jim Hickman and Ron Santo had two-run homers for the Cubs while Garry Maddox hit a three-run blast for the Giants.

Reggie Smith clouted two home runs and drove in five runs and Sonny Siebert hurled a three-hitter as Boston whipped Texas. Siebert, 7-3, had a no-hitter until Ted Kubiak hit a pinch-double leading off the sixth inning. Rico Petrocelli and Danny Cater also homered for Boston.

The Angels overtook the Orioles with three runs in the sixth inning on a two-run triple by Lee Stanton and an RBI single by Leo Cardenas. Bobby Grich hit a two-run homer for Baltimore while Ken McMullen homered for California.

Mike Epstein hit a pair of home runs, then drew a walk with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to force across the tie-breaking run for Oakland. Norm Cash hit his 15th homer of the season for the Tigers.

Supreme Court Throws Baseball Issue Back Into Congress' Hands

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
For the third time in 50 years, the U.S. Supreme Court has refused to overturn baseball's unique status as the only sport exempt from antitrust laws.

The highest court in the land thus threw the matter back at a seemingly disinterested Congress, which has adopted none of the more than 50 bills introduced in the last two decades to change baseball's reserve system which binds a player to one team indefinitely.

In a 5-3 ruling Monday against a suit brought by former outfielder Curt Flood, the court's refusal to redefine the reserve clause raised the possibility of another and more massive general strike next spring than the one which delayed the start of the 1972 baseball season for more than a week.

"Technically, it is a subject for collective bargaining," said Richard Moss, counsel for the Major League Baseball Players Association. "But practically, it is the subject for a strike, a long strike. You either forget it or strike over it, and both are unfortunate courses."

The so-called basic agreement between players and owners expires Dec. 31, along with pension and health insurance agreements reached after the recent strike in April. The basic agreement covers minimum salary, expenses and many other rules.

One baseball executive, asking to remain unidentified, said, "I hope we're intelligent enough—players and management alike—to negotiate this before we're forced to do it." That power rests with Congress. But Justice Harry A. Blackmun, delivering the Supreme Court's majority opinion, noted that Congress has had a long time to do something about it and said the fact that it did nothing indicates more than "mere Congressional silence and passivity."

In fact, he said, the Supreme Court "has concluded that Congress has had no intention to subject baseball's reserve system to the reach of the antitrust statutes."

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the decision "opens the way for renewed collective bargaining in the reserve system following the 1972 season."

Exactly what the players want was explained by Milt Pappas, player representative of the Chicago Cubs:

"The ruling doesn't make a lot of difference and the players were not looking to make utter chaos, which complete elimination of the reserve clause would do. However, some owners now have an idea how the players feel."

"What we are going to seek at the meeting table is an agreement that will give veteran players some freedom in negotiating. After a certain time with a club, say five years or eight years, a player should be able to sit down and negotiate on whether he can get more money if he's worth it, or be free to bargain with another club."

In its decision, the court agreed that baseball is a business engaged in interstate commerce and Justice Blackmun called its antitrust exemption "an aberration" and "an exception and an anomaly." He continued:

"If there is any inconsistency or illogic in all of this, it is an inconsistency and illogic of long standing that is to be remedied by the Congress and not by this court."

Pudgy Ali Says He'll Be Ready

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali termed his foe of next week, Jerry Quarry, as "the last of the great white hopes" yet the former champion appeared a little fat when he worked out in Los Angeles.

"Like those men in the rocket ships, they count out 10, 9, 8 until they get to zero," Ali commented in explaining his condition. "They wouldn't really be ready at the count of four."

"I've got eight days left and I'll be ready." Ali meets Jerry in a 12-round fight at Las Vegas on June 27 on the same card when brother Mike Quarry challenges light heavyweight champion Bob Foster for his 175-pound crown.

Ex-heavyweight king Ali, looking forward to a return match against the only man to beat him, heavyweight king Joe Frazier, says, "Quarry is a counter puncher, can hit and is fast. I won our first fight when he suffered a cut, where he wasn't cut before, and that might not happen again."

"So I'm risking everything in fighting him." Yet Ali trained down to 217½ pounds for his winning 12-round effort last month against George Chuvalo of Canada at Vancouver and was about 224 for the Los Angeles workout. Trainer Angelo Dundee said, "I think he should come in between 217 and 220 and that should be good."

A throng of about 6,000 turned out at the Forum to watch Ali spar with heavyweight Charles James and light heavyweight Eddie Jones, both of Los Angeles. The ex-champ clowning intermittently during a serious workout. Both sparring partners hit him. "I was deliberately taking punches," he said. "I might have to take a couple."

When a fan hollered, "Do it like Joe Frazier," in a shout to a sparring mate, Ali climbed out of the ring to feign an angry attack. And he took the microphone to introduce "Joe Frazier" only to quickly add, "Lady, I'm sorry, you look just like Joe Frazier."

And in the post-workout interview session, he started, "The sermon today will be the destruction of Joe Frazier." A follower corrected him and he added, "I mean Jerry Quarry."

Ali said "my people and Frazier's people are negotiating" and then added, "While he's resting somewhere in North Carolina or South Carolina, I'm taking on all the contenders."

Cosell Hits At 'Curious Legend'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sports commentator Howard Cosell rained verbal blows on some of his favorite athletic villains Monday and urged Congress to create a commission to regulate what he said are the excesses of professional sports.

"There is a curious legend that every athlete is a shining manhood, that every contest is inherently pure and that every owner a dedicated and selfless man concerned only with the good of the sport," said Cosell, a reporter and commentator for the ABC network.

And he told a Senate subcommittee sports writers have added to the legend and have helped make professional sports "a privileged sanctuary from life—a looking glass world—a Camelot."

ball franchises motivated only by profit. He put much of the blame on the owners and declared, "I do not buy their plea that they should be allowed to clean their own houses."

"They've evidenced a massive lack of desire to do so in all the years I've been on the sports scene."

He generally supported creating a national sports commission and told Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., the subcommittee chairman, that it should have the power to suspend or cancel team franchises for serious violations of regulations.

Another witness, Jack Dolph, commissioner of the American Basketball Association, testified the current bidding war is destroying professional basketball and disrupting college basketball.

He said the bill creating the sports commission is a long-range proposition that will not lend itself to stemming the bidding game of easing the financial problems it has caused.

The Worry Clinic

Count Number Who'll Be Hurt

Mary's pregnancy problem should be debated by teenagers! For 6 people will be more unhappy, if Mary follows the sentimental advice of her inexperienced girl friends! But those 6 will be much happier by heeding the prescription given below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph.D., M.D.
Case U-513: Mary L., aged 17,

is pregnant.
"Dr. Crane," she asked, tearfully, "what shall I do about the baby?"
"I got pregnant during my junior year in high school and the baby is due next month."
"My parents want me to let it be adopted."
"But my best girl friends think it would be wonderful for me to keep it."
"I got pregnant at a school party where a lot of drinking went on."

"So I don't know for sure who the father is."
"But I must make up my mind soon, so what would you recommend?"
Adoption Dilemma
The proper rule to follow is this:
Whatever does the most good for the most people over the longest period of time, is right and just.
Now notice those who are closely involved in this situation:
(1) Mary, who needs to go back to high school for her senior year.
(2) Her parents, who would be forced to assume most of the care and financial support of the child.
(3) Its future adoptive parents, who would be a good family able to support and rear the baby in a loving home, where it would not be stigmatized by "illegitimacy."

(4) Finally, the baby itself, which would suffer many handicaps if Mary followed the sentimental advice of her girl friends.
Bluntly stated, the good of the baby warrants its adoption at the time of its birth!

And her parents, though they would love and care for this grandchild, would doubtless spoil it even worse than they did Mary.
For grandparents tend to be more "permissive" than parents!
And think of that fine family which is eager to adopt a baby. They'd furnish it the proper surroundings of love, care and a good education.
Mary will suffer a temporary heartache at releasing her baby for adoption.
But if it is done while she is still at the hospital, she will not have developed a strong attachment to it, so she will bounce back to normal emotional stability within a few weeks.
Besides, her future readjustment will be greatly enhanced by not having an illegitimate child to complicate a future marriage.
Her parents likewise will not be under the constant veiled censure of having an unwed daughter's child in their home.

The baby's best future thus demands that it be adopted!
For that will do the most good for the most people over the longest period of time!
So send for my booklet "Facts About Pregnancy and Foster Children," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opening lead: Jack of ♦
Altho South has only nine points in high cards and distribution, he is well within himself in bidding four spades over North's opening one no trump bid. The latter is known to hold either three trumps or a doubleton headed by at least the ace or queen. Assured of a reasonable fit, South may count extra points for his long trumps—assuring the partnership of at least 26.

West opened the jack of diamonds which was covered by North's queen and East's ace. The latter shifted to a trump, South played low, and West took the queen and ace of spades and led a third round to clear dummy's holding.

The king of diamonds was cashed, on which declarer discarded a heart. The ace and king of hearts came next and a third round was ruffed by South. When West showed out, revealing that North's long heart was not establishable, declarer was obliged to fall back on the club finesse. A small club was led, and after West played the seven South put in the jack from dummy. East's queen of clubs scored the setting trick.

While declarer was chalking up 50-point profit for his opponents on the score sheet, North asked simply, "I wonder—what would have happened if you hadn't covered the jack of diamonds at trick one?"

"What do you mean?" was the response.

"Well," North replied, "it was a cinch that West could not lead trumps profitably himself and if you keep East out at trick one, there will be time for you to trump a club in dummy and make one more trick on the deal."

"If West continues with a second diamond, you put up the queen and then ruff out East's ace. Now comes a club to the king, back to the ace and then trump the third round with the seven of spades. Lead trumps and give West his two tricks. Your losing heart is discarded later on the king of diamonds."

"Even if West shifts at trick two, you can take a ruffing finesse in diamonds yourself, later, to establish a discard in hearts. The important point was to keep East out of the lead early so that he cannot make the trump shift that prevents your club ruff."

"I guess I blew that one, partner," South said as he meekly handed the cards to East for the next deal.

Mobile Homes for Rent

Hardee's would like to thank Greenville for giving us our big start.

Greenville is where Hardee's first restaurant opened and since that time Hardee's has grown and prospered around the South and across the nation. Today there are 365 Hardee's in operation. But Hardee's hasn't forgotten where it all began. And now Hardee's has opened a brand new restaurant for its Greenville customers. It features a bright orange roof, tan brick walls and a landscaped lot on the outside. And inside you'll find a sparkling, shining new dining room with seating for 100 customers. And also on the inside, you'll find the best tasting charco-broiled burgers and other menu treats you'll ever eat. So hurry on down to either Hardee's newest or oldest restaurant. Hardee's is very proud they're both in Greenville.

Thanks Greenville
