

Responsive Govm't Said Basic Goal

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today "state government and the local governments it creates must become more responsive to the day-to-day concerns of our citizens."

"The basic theme of a new state government during the 1970's will be greater responsibility for the well-being of all its citizens," Scott said. "There is no doubt of this."

He made his comments in a prepared talk to the North Carolina Council on State Goals and Policy.

"Strong economic, political, judicial, environmental, and social forces, which are not likely to be reversed, soon will thrust the burden of responsibility for a better life-style directly upon state capitals," Scott said. "This is going to happen whether the states are prepared for it or not."

The governor said the nation "seems to be heading into a prolonged period of mediocre economic momentum. Because of this, progress in area development will depend much more heavily upon positive action taken by the state than upon growth of the national economy." Scott told the council, "The nation as a whole is just beginning to recognize that a person cannot be denied a basic public service, or minimum level of support, solely because of where he lives. Recent legislative proposals embody the belief that a minimum level of support should be available to each person in every state."

The governor said that for years "studies have pointed out enormous disparities in local public services, among counties and among communities, and also in access to these services."

He added, "As the equity issue in financing public services continues to be raised throughout the country, and extended into areas other than public education, state governments will be forced into a difficult period. They will have to reconsider not only the nature of their contribution to local public services, but also the character of the entire state-local relationship."

High Water For N.C.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The rains came to North Carolina and left a legacy of river flooding, rock and mud slides, inundated lowlands and other troubles.

The tropical disturbance which was once Hurricane Agnes swept across the eastern part of the state Wednesday.

There was nearly four inches of rain at Greensboro, over five and one-half inches at some mountain locations, three to five inches in the Piedmont, and only slightly less in the southern and southeastern part of the state.

The Dan River in southern Virginia, with a short incursion into North Carolina, has risen to record heights and is expected to remain above flood stage for at least two more days. The Yadkin, Broad, French Broad and Pee Dee Rivers also reached floodstage, with some major flooding reported on the Yadkin. All interests in these river basins should take necessary precautions until the flood waters recede.

As the storm passed across the extreme northeastern part of the state, strong westerly and northwesterly winds caused high tides in the sounds. Flooding of some areas of the Outer Banks resulted.

Revenue Sharing Plan Is Poised For House OK

By EDMOND Le BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $5.3-billion-a-year program of federal aid to states and cities appears poised for easy passage in the House.

The opposition broke Wednesday when it was unable to force the bill open for amendments. The vote was 223 to 185 and the margin for passage later today is expected to be greater.

One of the opposition leaders, Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., said the procedural vote "pretty well decided the question."

"I'm not going to kid myself that anything I say is going to change the situation," Byrnes told the House later.

Although it is uncertain when the Senate will take up the measure, Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Finance Committee said he will try to begin hearings before the July 10 Democratic convention.

Long predicted the bill will easily win Senate approval, though probably with some changes.

It would distribute initially $1.8 billion a year to the states, $3.5 billion to cities and other local governments. The state share would be increased over the five-year life of the program.

Tax effort, especially state income tax, would be the key element in dividing the states' share. The local governments would get their apportionments under a more complicated formula taking into account population, urban concentration and poverty.

The bill would provide also, on an optional basis, for joint collection of state and federal income taxes.

Will Appeal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Supporters of George Wallace say they will appeal to the Democratic National Convention their inability to place 14 at-large Wallace delegates in nomination at the North Carolina Democratic convention on Tuesday.

George Brown of Greensboro, leader of a group of Wallace supporters at Tuesday's convention in Raleigh, said Wednesday: "I have talked to Wallace headquarters in Montgomery and asked them to advise us on the legal grounds of a challenge."

Brown could not get the floor to nominate his 14 at-large delegates. Delegates recommended by a nominating committee headed by the state Democratic chairman were elected.

North Viets Try Blow At Hue's Defense Line

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese armor and infantrymen broke through South Vietnam's northernmost defense line above Hue at dawn Thursday, but field reports said the main thrust of the attack was stopped with help from U.S. jets.

Military sources said 16 North Vietnamese armored vehicles were knocked out, including at least nine tanks, on both sides of the My Chanh River which forms the northern defense line 20 to 25 miles north of Hue.

Initial reports from the Saigon command said one South Vietnamese soldier was killed and eight were wounded.

Military sources in the field said at least six tanks crossed the river, and fighting was reported northwest and southwest of a Roman Catholic church that is now a South Vietnamese command post at My Chanh. The area was heavily shelled during the night. U.S. jets knocked out three North Vietnamese 130mm guns, which have a range of 17 miles, west of My Chanh with laser-guided bombs, military sources said. But North Vietnamese shells hit an ammunition dump at Camp Evans, a big South Vietnamese base camp six miles southeast of My Chanh, and the ammunition was still exploding at midmorning.

Another 14 tanks were claimed Tuesday and Wednesday by South Vietnamese marines who are making a sweep to the east of the paratroopers in the coastal region of Quang Tri province known as the Street Without Joy.

Two U.S. planes were shot down on the western side of Quang Tri province, on the Laotian border, but both pilots were rescued.

Prepare A New Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new independent agency responsible for ensuring the safety and efficiency of food, drugs and other products has been approved by the Senate to replace the Food and Drug Administration.

The bill—for the first time in consumer legislation—provides criminal penalties for the manufacture and sale of unsafe products.

It would establish a new Food, Drug and Consumer Product Agency which would incorporate all existing consumer-safety programs. Among its powers would be authority to remove unsafe products from shelves and ban the manufacture of those found to pose unreasonable risk of injury or death.

The bill now goes to the House where its fate is uncertain. The Nixon administration opposes key provisions.

The legislation provides for citizen petition and class-action suits, and gives the agency power to act on its own against suspected violators, instead of going through the Justice Department.

The vote approving the legislation was 69 to 10. But the key vote was 51 to 32 on defeating an amendment by Sen. Morris cotton, R-N.H., to keep the agency in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which now embraces the FDA.

To rally support, the bill's managers agreed to maintain the inspection programs for the meat, egg and poultry industries in the Department of Agriculture rather than transfer them to the new agency.

The bill also exempts such areas as tobacco, autos, gas pipelines and aircraft.

Wide-Ranging Jet Diplomacy

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is putting on an unusual display of high-level personal diplomacy by jetting top aides to far-away places around the globe.

Friday is the next homecoming for security adviser Henry A. Kissinger, returning from his latest nonsecret Peking trip. Kissinger returned June 12 from Tokyo, after flying in June 1 from the Moscow summit.

Saturday is take-off day for Secretary of State William P. Rogers on a 16-day nine-nation swing around the world from Australia through East Europe. Rogers stopped in parts of West Europe on his way back from the Moscow parley.

At the airport the same day will be Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, heading south for a fortnight of talks with financial leaders in Argentina, Peru, Venezuela and Brazil.

These same Latin American lands have just been visited by former Secretary of Treasury John B. Connally, who is now in Asia on a globe-circling Nixon assignment. Connally, whose itinerary will include 18 countries by latest count, has been traveling since June 6.

On July 2, Nixon's science adviser, Dr. Edward E. David Jr., will lead a delegation to Moscow to work out scientific projects with the Russians.

Following David to the Soviet capital will be Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson. His mission: to lay groundwork for expanding U.S.-Soviet trade.

Nixon critics are portraying this prominent to-and-fro'ing, all announced by the White House, as unnecessary razzle-dazzle aimed at keeping Nixon's foreign-policy efforts in the limelight as the presidential campaign heats up.

With Peking and Moscow spectacles behind him, they suggest, the President wants to keep the public mindful of his dramatic foreign moves since he himself has no further overseas journey planned before November.

Administration supporters paint a different picture, lauding each of the V.I.P. missions as meritorious in its own right.

And they say that the direct, personal contact with foreign leaders adds a valuable dimension to what can be accomplished by more traditional lower-level diplomacy.

The facts of the current jet-tripping abroad by Washington notables do not appear to link into any single diplomatic master plan.

The initiative for Kissinger's visit to Peking, according to administration sources, came from the Chinese. Periodic visits by senior U.S. officials had been agreed on during Nixon's parley there last February.

Rogers' journey starts with the annual meeting of the South Asia Treaty Organization, one of the usual commitments for the secretary of state who already has logged 262,494 miles overseas since taking office 3½ years ago.

His East European stops at Belgrade, Bucharest and Budapest—the first ever by a secretary of state in Hungary—have been long proposed as part of the administration's undertaking to improve relations with the Communist East.

Burns, the White House says, was invited to visit Argentina by the head of the central bank there and felt it would be useful to go to some other Latin nations while on the trip.

Connally's month-long global tour was announced as devoted primarily to current economic issues. However, the former Treasury chief also will be in a position to discuss with foreign leaders international developments including Nixon's Peking and Moscow sessions, the announcement said.

The David and Peterson journeys to Moscow are follow-ups to Nixon's agreements with Soviet leaders on expanding a wide range of dealings between the two countries.

Never Catch Up

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says his successor will find out quickly there are headaches in dealing with highway needs. Scott said Wednesday it "still amazes me" that the largest percentage of his mail concerns road and highway matters.

He said he thought there would come a time when "we would get it all paved," but it hasn't happened.

Scott made his remarks during an awards ceremony at the State Highway Commission. He presented 40 and 45-year service certificates to 34 employees of the highway commission.

Scott praised the commission, saying: "I've fussed at your chairman and your administrator. They catch it from me on one end and from the public on the other. But on the whole, they are doing an excellent job."

In introducing Scott, Chairman Lauch Faircloth made some good-natured wisecracks at the governor.

Scott was also quick on the wit, saying: "If the Republicans win we'll need an eightlane highway leading out of Raleigh in all direction to give everybody enough room to get out of town."

Not only that, he added, "It's a good thing Lauch and I don't live in the same town—we'd run over each other on the way."

Car Hit Another, And Then Tree; Driver Dies

William Alexander Dunn, 68, of Route 4, Greenville was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital following a 6:50 collision at the intersection of Ninth and Evans Streets yesterday.

Dunn suffered multiple injuries when his car collided with a vehicle operated by Kathleen Smith Peaden of 2611 Calvin Way, then struck a tree head-on. Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey Jr. said this morning that Dunn died of head injuries and a crushed chest. In addition to the fatal injuries, Harvey said that the driver received multiple fractures of the ribs and both legs. The coroner reported that his investigation is continuing.

Police reported the Dunn car, traveling West on Ninth Street failed to stop for a stop sign, collided with the Peaden car which was headed South on Evans Street, then traveled 171 feet — most of the way along a sidewalk — and struck a large tree.

The Peaden auto, according to officers, struck a fire hydrant and a parked car after colliding with the Dunn auto.

Damage to the Peaden vehicle was estimated at $1,000 while damage to the Dunn vehicle, listed as a total loss, was placed at $200.

Mrs. Peaden was treated at the hospital for injuries she received in the accident, then released.

Yesterday's collision was the second mishap in Greenville so far this year involving a fatality, and the 14th in the county.

Board Appoints Interim Director For Boys' Club

Raymond Williams, native of Greenville and a Guidance Counselor at Aycock Junior High School, has been named Interim Director of the Pitt County-Greenville Boy's Club.

Members of the Board of Directors met Wednesday afternoon following funeral services for David E. Wilcox, the club's Executive Director, who died last Saturday as the result of injuries received in a boating accident.

Austin Britt, president of the Board of Directors, said that action is being undertaken in efforts to secure a new director for the club. Williams has agreed, if necessary, to serve through the summer until time for the new school year to begin, when he will be returning to his counseling position at Aycock. A graduate of Eppes High School, Williams received the B.A. degree at Elizabeth City State University and the M.A.

RAYMOND WILLIAMS

degree from A and T University in Greensboro.

He is married to the former Ruby Early of Greenville, and they are the parents of one daughter, Cynthia, age 9.

A member of Philippi Christian Church, Williams is Assistant Superintendent of Sunday School there and is on the Board of Trustees. He is also a member of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, a 32nd degree Mason and a Shriner.

Since the opening of the Boys' Club in Greenville, Williams has served as Physical Director for the club and he is currently a member of the Board of Directors.

After accepting the board's appointment to serve as Interim Director, Williams gave a report of activities planned for the remainder of the summer.

Yearbook Is Rated 'Excellent'

Visa 1972, this year's edition of the J.H. Rose High School yearbook, received a certificate of excellence from the North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute at a luncheon yesterday in Chapel Hill. The luncheon concluded a three-day seminar being sponsored by the institute and the University of North Carolina School of Journalism.

Mrs. Jane Schwarz, advisor to the annual staff, said the award was the result of hard work and devotion by the staff. "The staff is appreciative of the community's efforts and is grateful for their support."

Representing the annual staff in Chapel Hill were Miss Annis Paschal and Miss Pat Chenier. Miss Paschal accepted the award from Professor Walter Spearman, of the journalism department.

This year's editors were Laura Ebbs, copy editor, Micky Jones, co-ordinating editor, and Sally Boyette, layout editor.

The Visa was the only annual in Class A (high schools with 1000 or more enrollment) to receive an excellent rating.

For A Happy Vacation, Don't Broadcast Plans

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Family News Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—For a really happy vacation, don't broadcast your plans to a seat mate on the bus, to the clerk at the dry cleaners when the store is crowded, to anyone while standing in line at a checkout counter in those frenetic days before departure.

The reason: sneaky types intent on burglaries might overhear you. It helps them when you advertise your plans. An apartment or home sans people always is a safer bet to a robber than an occupied one.

There are other steps involved in a vacation secure with peace of mind about the home front you've left unattended.

—Cancel all deliveries of milk, laundry, newspapers. To make sure the cancellation order is heeded, set the cutoff date a couple of days before you leave. That way, if there is a mix-up, you'll catch it and correct it before you leave.

Have Mail Held

—If yours is an obvious mailbox that can be noticed when it is overstuffed or if you are going to be gone long enough for mail to pile up, go to the Post Office and fill out a "hold mail" form. Your postman may be able to help you with this.

—There's no stopping the hand delivery of advertising circulars tossed on your doorstep or porch. If there's a chance a collection of same will advertise that no one's home, ask a neighbor to keep your porch or doorstep clear of such tell-tale clutter.

—If you are going to be gone long enough for the grass to need cutting, arrange for the regular mowing. Grass that has grown too high advertises that no one is home.

—Leave a key with a neighbor in case emergency entry is needed in your absence. If this is not possible, leave the key with the police. It's standard good practice to notify the police that you will be away and how long and where. That way, they will take a special look at your home during regular tours, noticing if anything seems out of place for a "vacant" home.

Leave Lights On

—A few lights on in the house also is standard good practice. An electric timing clock will turn the lights on and off. A couple of lights upstairs and a couple downstairs, all timed to go on and off at different times, will help to make the house look occupied.

Other things to do before leaving: disconnect electric appliances and clocks except those timed to turn lights on and off. Make certain stove heating units are turned off. Discard perishable food such as cake and bread and things that won't keep, even in the refrigerator (which you will turn off, anyway, if you are going to be gone a long time).

Be sure to lock the doors and windows. But first take the houseplants to the kind neighbor who has promised to care for them in your absence.

P.S. If you have a cat and/or dog to place in a kennel for the duration of the vacation, check the animal in the day before departure. Many a vacation getaway has been delayed when the owners couldn't put their hands on roaming pets exactly when they wanted to in the hours before leaving.

White shoes are "in" with everything. Yves St. Laurent used white patent wing-toed pumps with three inch built-up leather heels. Ankle strapped sandals are all over the lot.

The War's Over! Parents Do Raise And Rear Kids

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I enjoy your stuff. When I attended Tulane University, I told my professor that I was raised in Shreveport, La.

He said, "You RAISE hogs and REAR children." You mentioned that you were raised in a small town. Tell me, Abby, were you RAISED or REARED?

Love mit kisses,
HENRY

DEAR HENRY: In "The Careful Writer," Theodore M. Bernstein [whom many consider the Supreme Court of American journalism] put it this way: "At one time, a war raged [and some skirmishes are still going on] against the use of 'RAISE' to describe what parents do to children. The battle cry was, 'You raise pigs, but you rear children.' However, in this country at least, the war is over; we RAISE both pigs and children, and some parents will testify that you can't always tell the difference." Right on, Mr. B.!

DEAR ABBY: We recently had a death in our family and a local politician who was running for office called up and asked if he could be a pallbearer. He took the members of the family by such surprise they said yes. We had already selected the pallbearers but we were so upset at the time we weren't thinking.

This politician was the first to sign the guest register, and he went around shaking hands and slapping everyone on the back like it was a campaign rally. He sure got in the public eye at that funeral which is the only reason he wanted to be a pallbearer. He hardly even knew the deceased or any of the family.

When it was all over we realized how we had been used. What should this politician have been told when he called up and offered to be a pallbearer?

USED

DEAR USED: "Thank you, but the pallbearers have already been selected." [P. S. I'm curious. How did he come out in the election?]

DEAR ABBY: My parents are planning to send my ten-year-old brother to Europe this summer to visit his grandfather, whom the boy has never seen. Mother says it will be a "good experience" for him. But I'm not so sure.

I think to send a rather immature ten-year-old boy thousands of miles from home, alone, to a strange country to be with a strange man who speaks another language [which my brother has never heard] will hurt him psychologically. I am 23 and I know it would bother me. My brother isn't too keen on it.

This really troubles me, Abby. After all, how can a 90-year-old man take proper care of a young boy thru sign language? [Grandfather speaks no English.]

Am I foolish to worry?

DESPERATE SISTER

DEAR DESPERATE: If your 90-year-old grandfather speaks no English, and lives alone, I can understand why the lad isn't "too keen" on it. If there are others in the family [or in the community] with whom he will be associating, it might be a good experience for him. Don't become "desperate" unless all the facts are in.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WONDERING": FBI my eye! It's unwise for a girl to keep company with a man who is so mysterious. Tell the fellow that even FBI agents have friends, families, neighbors, co-workers, and clergymen—someone who can vouch for their characters. [P. S. The FBI office in your city can tell you if he is employed by them. And if he's an "undercover man," he shouldn't have told you that he was.]

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Southern Food Is Rich, Varied

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer
Gen. Robert E. Lee is said to have had such a passion for towering layer cakes that they named one after him; a four-decker made of sponge cake with lemon filling and orange-lemon frosting.

The general's preoccupation with gustatory matters is not surprising, since he hailed from a region where the cuisine was rich. It was based on the abundance of fruits, vegetables, game and fish the first settlers found along the Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and Carolina coasts.

Southern rivers were alive with catfish, black bass and perch, and along the coastline, oysters, shrimp, crabs and crayfish abounded. Geese, partridge, doves and wild turkey could be flushed from every stand of trees and the fields yielded virtually any vegetable or fruit known in America.

Most southern cooking had a continental touch that persists to this day. It was natural in Louisiana with its Spanish and French heritage, but in other states below the border the wealthy would make trips abroad just to acquire foreign chefs. One son of Kentucky, Gen. William Preston, took his cook on a trip to Paris and had her study under a famed French chef.

The lavish touch still lingers in many southern kitchens, and a visitor is left bug-eyed by marathon breakfasts that start with grits downed in melted butter, then run the gamut from creamed chipped beef, spiced apples and tangy country sausage to fried eggs perched atop thick slices of country-style ham with "red-eye" gravy, corn bread, spoon bread and a platter of southern-fried chicken for anyone with the energy to eat another bite.

Coastal cities in the South are famed for their seafood dishes, such as the softshell crabs and terrapin of Chesapeake Bay and the shrimp specialties of Charleston, S.C.

New Orleans still features "The Peacemaker," a long loaf of crusty French bread, hollowed out and stuffed with oysters fried in deep fat; an offering which should keep the peace in any household.

Of all the dishes offered in the South, my favorite is Brunswick Stew, which was once made from squirrel but now features chicken and pork. Some recipes also include veal and beef, but I think two meats are enough for one dish.

BRUNSWICK STEW
2 pounds chicken quartered
2 pounds pork spareribs
1½ quarts cold water
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon black pepper-corns
1 pod red pepper 2 inches long ½ green pepper diced (medium sized)
1 cup diced onion
1 cup diced raw potatoes
½ cup green beans
1 cup Lima beans
1 cup corn cut off cob raw
1 quart diced fresh tomatoes
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 ounce butter
1 cup red wine

Wash chicken and place in six quart kettle with pork, water, salt, peppercorns and red pepper. Cover and simmer for 3 hours until meat falls off bones. Remove from heat and discard bones. Cut chicken and pork into cubes and return to stock. Add vegetables, pepper, butter and wine. Cover again and cook slowly for 1 hour stirring frequently to keep from sticking. Good with a robust red Burgundy. Serves about six.

The Spare-No-Expense Palace Nears Completion

By BILL ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer
SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — When the Shah of Iran decides to give his sister a present, he goes all the way.

Back in 1965, Shah Mohammed Reza decided his sister, Princess Shams Pahlavi, needed a new palace.

From half-way around the world, a Scottsdale architectural firm specializing in the way-out was brought in to design the lavish, spare-no-expense palace.

Today, the 80-room structure, nearing completion on a gentle slope near Teheran, Iran, looks like it came from a chapter of the Arabian Nights.

But the leaders of Taliesin Associated Architects here say that's not the case.

The princess, says Taliesin's chief architect William Wesley Peters, wanted "a modern building constructed according to new methods and with new materials, but one that would respect Persian tradition."

When it's completed this fall after two years of construction, Peters says that's what she'll have.

While Peters won't reveal how much the palace costs—"the princess may not like that"—he says it is one of "the largest projects we've undertaken."

The story of an American architectural firm designing the palace goes back to the early 1960s, when a former Taliesin follower was working in Iran.

"He recommended us to the Shah when he found out about the palace," Peters says, "and pretty soon we were designing it."

To learn more of Iran's architecture, Peters traveled extensively through the country and discovered "the close relationship of buildings with enclosed garden courts," he says.

That's the theme of the new palace, but Peters admits it's a little more elegant than most Iranian buildings.

Here is how Peters described the structure:

The palace is being constructed with a variety of central gardens covered with massive translucent domes "to transmit adequate light but also to protect against the extreme heat and glare of the sun."

The living areas are grouped along a curving, gradually ascending ramp which surrounds the main garden and ends at the doorstep to the princess' bedroom.

The palace is based on a geometry of circles and spirals, with the lower parts of the domes made of concrete with the plastic, bubble-like domes atop them.

Small, light concrete domes crown the rooms of the family wing, with each one perforated at the base to admit light. Below the domes are continuous rows of perforated walls forming a curving clerestory.

A second large dome, interlocking with the main translucent one, covers the swimming pool and garden while the main reception hall is beneath the dome, looking into the gardens below.

From the reception-hall level, gradual flights of stairs curve down to the state dining room and entrance and to a small theater on the garden level.

Doors and shutters are made primarily of glass or translucent material in gold-colored metal frames. Everywhere, inside and out, are fountains, circular pools and cascades, and later flower gardens and climbing roses.

"We designed not only the exterior," Peters says, "but all of the interior, and its furnishings right down to the silverware and table service."

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Suzie Taylor, bride-elect of Ormond Hardy, was honored Friday night at a miscellaneous shower at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist fellowship hall.

The honoree was remembered with a daisy corsage which complemented her blue polyester ensemble.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth with lace edging. An arrangement of summer mixed flowers flanked by lighted tapers on either side accented the table.

Mrs. Melvin Hardy, mother of the bride-elect, poured punch and Mrs. Rodney Bullock served party squares.

Hostesses were Mrs. Cole Vainright, Mrs. Van Cox, Mrs. Bullock, Mrs. Larry Peaden and Mrs. Herman Buck.

Foreign Restaurants Now Open In Athens: Variety Is Offered

ATHENS (UPI) —It is no longer moussaka, stuffed grape vine leaves and lamb on the spit in Greece these days. There are also escargot, spaghetti alla Milanese, sweet and sour pork and T-bone steaks.

In the past three years, foreign restaurants have opened in the capital city. Athenians and visitors alike have a choice of restaurants featuring Italian, French, Chinese, Japanese and Turkish cuisines as well as half a dozen American-style steak houses.

They are popular chiefly with Greeks and many of the 50,000 or so foreigners who live and work in Athens the year round, and with those tourists who do not like their food tepid and soaked in olive oil. The turning point may come for these diners when a waiter serves yet another village salad of goat's milk cheese, tomatoes and cucumber or stuffed pepper to be washed down with beer or resinated wine.

But most of the more than two million tourists who visit Greece annually find local dishes such as stuffed tomatoes, moussaka (layered chopped meat and vegetables in a creamy sauce) or the numerous lamb and beef stews a delicious change from the average European or American diet.

It's the Greeks, who are exposed through travel to more and more external influences, who welcome a change in menus.

Few foreign eateries Until 1970, non-Greek eateries in Athens could be counted on one finger. Fewer than a handful of others included one or two dishes of Continental origin on their bills of fare.

Foreign restaurateurs were quick to spot potential.

"I was thinking of opening a Japanese restaurant in Rome, but then I paid my first visit to Athens two years ago, and I realized there was a much greater need here," said Tony Salloum, the Lebanese part-owner of Beirut's Riviera Hotel.

"At that time, if you didn't like Greek food —well, you'd found the easiest way of dieting. You just didn't eat."

He opened his "Michiko's" restaurant last September in an old Athenian residence with large rooms and high ceilings. It's in the heart of Plaka, the old area of the city around the base of the Acropolis.

Menu no problem From spring to autumn, customers eat sukiyaki or tempura under orange canopies and trees in the courtyard, to the sound of running water in a small stream cut into the paving stones. Suki-yaki is a quickly-cooked main dish of finely cut vegetables and meat or poultry. Tempura is a method of batter frying that the Japanese use for meat, poultry, seafood and vegetables.

"The menu is no problem here. I import surprisingly few ingredients. Greek produce, especially the wide range of

Art Exhibit For Blind

By C. G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
URBANA, Ill. (AP) — The "Look but don't touch" warning issued in most museums doesn't hold at the University of Illinois, where a special art exhibit designed for touching has been set up for the blind.

The exhibition is the university's Krannert Museum is aimed at acquainting blind students and other visually handicapped persons with art forms and how they change.

It includes six sculptures of various materials from the 19th and 20th centuries, set up in a separate room of the museum. The visually handicapped as well as sighted persons may visit it and feel the sculptures. Labels on each piece describe the work in print and in Braille.

The exhibition is the work primarily of Mrs. Muriel Christison, acting director of the museum, and Ronald Texley, supervisor of services for the blind and deaf at the university.

There are 35 students at the university who are termed "severely visually impaired," and about 200 visually handicapped persons in the area.

Texley said those who have seen the show like it because it gives them an opportunity to become informed about art and art forms. They complain, he said, because it is not more extensive and he added that he hopes future exhibitions can include more pieces.

The most traditional piece in the show is a white marble bust of a young woman done by Launt Thompson in 1861. It reflects the taste of marble portraiture in the Victorian era.

A smooth wooden head carved from Brazilian wood by Margarita Worth in 1952 is a simplified construction emphasizing the geometry. A reclining mother and child, done in 1956 by Charles Umlauf, is made of terra cotta and is rough-textured.

Another piece is made of slate, and another is a non-representational piece cast in bronze and rough textured.

A brazed copper and steel piece done by Theodore J. Roszak in 1950 is an abstraction with a rough, irregular surface.

Spring and summer handbags stay soft and swing from the shoulders. For evening many of the bags are embellished with embroidery.

fresh vegetables, are superb for Japanese dishes," Salloum said. "It's been a success since it opened, not only with foreigners but with Greeks as well."

The story is the same for the pizzarias, a couple of Chinese restaurants and the French "L'Abreuvoir."

Last August, Nick Sokaris, a 36-year old Greek-American journalist from Albany, N.Y., opened Athens' most original steak house next door to the British Embassy.

Only horses missing Externally, it could be an English pub, but inside on the wood-paneled walls, Sokaris hung a couple of cow skulls, cart wheels and a slew of firearms. He finished it off with copies of original advertisements for tonics, women's make-up and figure-flattering garments, as well as a few "wanted" notices.

He called it "The Stagecoach." Only the horses are missing.

"Athens was ready for it," Sokaris said. "The level of sophistication is growing all the time. I've been packed since I opened, and I recovered my investment in six months."

He explained that there were a few problems at the start, primarily because Greek butchers had no idea how to hang and cut meat.

But now, in the galleried saloon as a honky-tonk piano tinkles out a few Wild West numbers, you can get steak a couple of inches thick, with baked potatoes and sour cream, or a crisp chicken-in-a-basket."

Impasse Calls For New Effort

If ever there was a situation where opposing parties need to get together for hard bargaining, it is in the present impasse between the Greenville School Board and the County Commissioners.

The school board picked out a site for a new junior high school after a long search. The site chosen is across from the new Evans Park now under construction near Hooker Road.

The 30-acre tract was to cost $150,000. Under the law, though, the county commissioners have the duty to pass on the land price, and the commissioners felt it was too high.

Their appraisals showed that the land should sell for $4,000 per acre, rather than $5,000.

There was no giving on either side so the next step was a finding by Clerk of Court H.L. Lewis. He found the $150,000 price too high and the $120,000 which the commissioner's wanted too low and suggested that a $135,000 price would be proper and reasonable.

Now the next step is to take the matter to court and the school board is already preparing to retain an attorney to handle its case.

Certainly we do not wish to see public officials pay too much for land. On the other hand the school board appears to have carefully studied the matter of locating the school and it does seem to be a good location. Adequate street access can be provided and the acreage and facilities at the Evans park across the street should be invaluable to the school's program.

We are not in a position to say what a fair price is for the land; but we do know that these two public agencies cannot go to court in the dispute without considerable expense.

If there is to be no giving by any of the parties involved, the courts may be the only way to settle the matter.

We think, however, that representatives of the county commissioners and the school board should make one last and determined effort to resolve the matter before the taxpayers are put to the expense of a court fight.

New Drive For Health Forces

By BRYAN HAILSIP
RALEIGH—North Carolina health forces are preparing a broad new attack on an old and persistent enemy.

The target is gonorrhea, a disease that's been around almost as long as the sexual impulse with which it is associated. Like that basic drive, it is much more in evidence these days.

Coincident with the rise of breakthrough is the Thayer-Martin culture medium. Field tests in some 36 cities indicated a 90 percent effective rate in detecting the gonococcus, Martin noted.

"Women usually do not develop symptoms, although they are passing the disease on to male sex contacts," said Martin. "That means there is a large reservoir of infection in the female population which has been difficult to identify."

The Thayer-Martin culture medium holds an answer. It can be used to screen women suspected of infection so they can be treated, he said.

Penicillin knocks out gonorrhea. The trouble, Martin cautioned, is that no natural immunity develops. A person can contact the disease again and again, in a sort of ping-pong chain of infection.

Health departments in 40 counties will be equipped with the capability to use the Thayer-Martin test. The goal is to administer some 240,000 tests in the coming year.

Staff Expanded

The battle will move along other fronts as well. Fifteen new venereal disease investigators will be added to the staff. They will work in the nine counties of over 100,000 population, interviewing male patients in an effort to trace out contacts and refer them for medical treatment.

Another angle of attack is educational. Myron Arnold, an assistant to Martin in the VD section, will work full-time on the development of an awareness program. Schoolroom exposure to the facts about gonorrhea, particularly at the junior high level, is an objective.

Like the common cold, gonorrhea is prevalent (second only to the cold as a communicable disease), recurring and little understood.

The comparison ends there, said Martin. "Gonorrhea is a very serious disease. In the late stages it can lead to sterility, crippling and other damage," he warned. Victims who take the disease lightly do so at their own risk, he added.

In the past, venereal disease control has focused on syphilis as the larger threat. Extensive testing and treatment, plus the fact that immunity does develop to syphilis, has scored large gains.

Now Congress and the medical profession has turned greater attention to gonorrhea. Martin, a fighter in the VD field for 20 years, is optimistic. "It's a challenge which I am sure we can meet," he said.

Ground Work Laid By Expiring State Board

It was only routine, but the final meeting of the State Board of Higher Education meeting was held last week.

Dr. Cameron West, its director, described the meeting as "like the funeral of an old friend."

The board will be superseded by a board of governors which will have control of all the state's universities.

The Board of Higher Education had its impact on higher education in North Carolina. Whatever evolves in the future, much of the ground work was laid by this expiring board.

GOP On Verge Of Rare Unity

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH — The North Carolina Republican Party, which on the surface looks hopelessly divided, is on the verge of becoming united like blood brothers and the Democrats are worried.

Jim Gardner supporters on the State GOP Executive Committee have flexed their muscle and reelected Frank Rouse party chairman, over Jim Holshouser's objection.

That looks like a serious situation but is it really?

Yes. For the Democrats.

Before the reelection of Rouse, North Carolina Attorney General Robert Morgan — a Democrat well-schooled in the art of Politics — told me: "The Republicans would be smart to put Rouse back in as chairman. As a Democrat, it suits me just fine for them not to do it."

Examine, for a minute, what the Republicans are up to. The chances seem great that President Nixon will be opposed in November by Sen. George McGovern. Political experts can analyze McGovern's surprising strength all they want to, but unless Nixon does something incredibly stupid between now and election day, the President will be the heavy favorite to sweep North Carolina.

Charles Jonas, Jr., who is heading the Nixon drive in North Carolina, feels that he will be able to get all Republicans actively behind the President. Jonas also feels privately that if the opposition is McGovern, he will be able to get some well-known Democrats to back Nixon in November.

Such an effort for Nixon will trickle down to the other Republican candidates on the November ticket.

The Republicans, for the first time in my memory, are excited about their chances of winning the available seat to the U. S. Senate. They're running Jesse Helms, a recent convert to the Republican Party, and Helms is busy these days announcing Democrats who are offering to support him against Nick Galifianakis.

This brings us back to Jim Holshouser, the gubernatorial nominee, who won a bitter battle over Jim Gardner.

When Rouse took a leave of absence as chairman to work for Gardner, some of Holshouser's supporters were understandably angered.

Rouse made remarks that Gardner would stand a much better chance of winning in November than Holshouser. Holshouser had people out working their heads off for him. They would not have taken it kindly if Holshouser had openly embraced Rouse after the voting was over.

You must remember that many Gardner supporters are not good losers. They felt locked out of the leadership role in the GOP.

Now that Rouse is again chairman of the Party, it will give those Gardner people a sense of belonging, and maybe a reason to bury the hatchet and work for Holshouser in November.

No matter what is said for public consumption, Holshouser had to be helped by this and he's politician enough to know it.

And what about Frank Rouse? He's an energetic man with good ideas. When he returns as chairman, he will realize that a

Remote From Realities

Let me come back, if I may, to the Supreme Court's opinion of June 12 in the case of 'Adams v. Williams'. It provides a timely and perfect illustration of what the fight is all about on this issue of criminal law as developed by the Warren court.

Ordinarily, in the bloodless wars of Washington, reasonably minded men can find some areas of agreement. At the very least, there is some understanding of how an opposing side could rationally hold its point of view. But in this conflict between the "rights of the accused" and the "rights of society," disagreement often is total. Here one encounters a complete missing of minds.

Some of the decisions have broadened a right to counsel. Others have dealt with self-incrimination. The most controversial cases, perhaps, have been those having to do with search and seizure under the Fourth Amendment. To liberals, the rulings are bulwarks of liberty, protecting an accused from the brutality of the state. To conservatives, as Sen. James L. Buckley expressed it last week, the decisions are "unprecedented roadblocks in the path of those charged with bringing criminals to justice."

The Williams case originated more than four years ago in Bridgeport, Conn. At 2:15 a.m. on the night in question, Police Sergeant John Connolly was alone on car patrol duty in a high crime area of the city. A person known to him approached his cruiser and whispered a tip: A man seated in a nearby automobile was carrying narcotics and had a gun at his waist.

The Court's majority opinion of June 12, written by Justice William H. Rehnquist, continues the narrative:

"After calling for assistance on his car radio, Sergeant Connolly approached the vehicle to investigate the informant's report. Connolly tapped on the car window and asked the occupant, Robert Williams, to open the door. When Williams rolled down the window instead, the sergeant reached into the car and removed a fully loaded revolver from Williams' waistband. The gun had not been visible to Connolly from outside the car, but it was in precisely the place indicated by the informant. Williams was then arrested by Connolly for unlawful possession of the pistol. A search incident to the arrest conducted after other officers arrived. They found substantial quantities of heroin on Williams' person and a second revolver hidden in the automobile."

Williams challenged his arrest and subsequent conviction as an unlawful search and seizure. The Second Circuit agreed; but the Rehnquist majority, 6-3, reversed the lower court and reinstated the conviction. In the majority view, Sergeant Connolly's actions

Other Editors Say Expensive Folly?

(Charlotte News)

In a much-heralded test recently, an experimental safety car was crashed into a concrete barrier at 50 miles an hour. The car, suffering only some minor bumper damage, did splendidly. But, because the air-bag system failed to function properly, the dummy passengers slammed into the windshield. Had the dummies been people, someone would have been seriously injured, if not killed.

The failure of the air-bag in this test is just one more bit of evidence that the government ought to slow its pell-mell drive to require air-bags in all 1976-model cars. If the system can't be made reliable in a special car on which $4 million was spent, is the device reliable enough to be placed in millions of passenger cars that get nowhere near the level of attention lavished on the test car?

We think not, and we're not alone. Last month, in a report prepared for the Office of Science and Technology, a government technical committee questioned the need for the airbags. Better than airbags, which are designed to inflate automatically in a crash and therefore save passengers who refuse to fasten seatbelts, would be harnesses, the committee said. These provide equal protection at less cost.

The problem with seatbelts of various sorts is that people refuse to use them. It is estimated that only 30 per cent of people use lap-belts, that only four per cent use shoulder harnesses. To force use of the belts the government is requiring buzzer and light warning systems on all cars manufactured after Jan. 1 of this year. After August, 1973, cars will have to have a highly sophisticated system that prevents starting the car unless front seat passengers have fastened their safety belts.

That, we're sure, will still leave loopholes for enterprising citizens. But just how far is government required to go to provide protection for those who adamantly refuse to lift a finger on their own behalf?

While the air-bag may eventually prove to be a splendid device, the evidence suggests that it has not been developed to the point that it can be a dependable mass production item. Yet the government is requiring it for the 1976 models, and the industry will have to begin tooling up for those cars in just a few months. Unless the government postpones the requirement, the nation will be committed to an expensive folly.

Body Ecology Flaws

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — On the face of it, this business about building good body ecology looks all right.

But I've found that as a practical matter, it is an entirely different thing. It is wearing me out.

I felt fine until a couple of months ago when my wife, Betty Ann, suddenly became a health food and vitamin pill freak. Now I'm tired all the time and feel lousy. Plus, I sometimes look funny.

Take last Saturday. I showered with this funny looking brown soap. It had little dark brown speckles in it and smelled familiar. There was something about the smell that reminded me of cold winter mornings.

I dried off and went outside. The neighbors looked at me strangely. Finally, one asked me what these flakes were all over my face. Did I have some disease? Flakes?

I rushed back inside and, sure enough, I had scales all over my face. I yelled for my wife. It was nothing fatal, as it turned out. What happened was that the soap was made from oatmeal and some of the oat flakes had stuck to my forehead.

I've gotten used to the way the flakes look and so have my neighbors.

But there are more serious problems that strike directly at a man's fatigue threshold.

Like, for example, we were out of salt the other day and I volunteered to go get some. Betty Ann yelled as I walked out the door to get only sea salt.

Sea salt. I canvassed 11 stores before finally finding some.

And shampoo. We now use only a concoction of concentrated protein, oil of papaya, avocado, coconut and balsam. Nothing else will do. Never mind that stores stock it on a sporadic basis, at best, and sometimes you spend half a day fuming in traffic looking for it.

And how about dolomite toothpaste. Or oat cereal with prune flakes, and deodorant containing natural vitamins A, D and E?

I tell you, I'm exhausted.

Great disappointment prevailed among the number of children who were on hand for the opening of the Westbrook swimming pool this morning when it was learned that the pool would not be opened today. Delay in the issuance and delivery of a liability policy from New York left those in charge of the pool without protection in case of any accident at the pool so the pool opening has been postponed until this policy is in hand.

Strength For Today

THIS WAY OUT

The fifteenth chapter of Luke contains three parables—the parable of the lost sheep, the parable of the lost coin, and the parable of the lost son. The sheep was lost because it wandered from the fold. The coin was lost because somebody was careless. The son was lost because he was headstrong and indulgent.

Someone talked with an old shepherd in one of our western states one time and asked him why sheep so often stray from the fold. "Why," he said, "they just nibble their way lost." They keep their heads down to the ground, they take their eyes off the shepherd, they go wherever there appears to be anything that will taste good, and at last they are far removed from shepherd and flock and lost in some defile or on some crag, bleating piteously.

There are plenty of lost sheep in modern society. There are the people who just gradually drink themselves into despair, cynicism, perhaps crime, or alcoholism. There are people who nibble at the carnal pleasures of life. One gay little flirtation which never goes as far as scandal is followed by another which leads to sin, to divorce, to disillusionment. Some people nibble their way out of the church. Everything else tastes so much better than the Sunday sermon and the fellowship of a group of fine but unsophisticated people.

"Why," said the old western shepherd, "lost sheep just nibble themselves lost."

Blue Cross vs. Auto Insurers

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While a major battle is loudly waged between advocates of the present "fault" system of vehicle insurance and proponents of "no-fault," another battle is being fought between Blue Cross and auto insurers.

To say that the second conflict is a smaller one might cause one to misjudge its size. It too involves hundreds of millions of dollars, even billions, and eventually might set off just as many fireworks.

But in the present legislative context, it is the battle within the battle, the broader one being whether states should remain with fault insurance, in which payments are made by the negligent driver's insurer, or no-fault, in which the driver's own insurer pays, regardless of fault.

Blue Cross, which provides health insurance coverage for 75 million subscribers, feels that it should continue to be the primary provider under any state or federal no-fault plans.

Some automobile insurers feel differently. With big premiums at stake, they seek a major role in selling health coverage as part of the overall auto insurance package.

So far, Blue Cross has been waging a less than successful battle, having won no clear-cut victory in any of the seven state plans that qualify, more or less, as no-fault. It is still fighting in other states and Washington, D.C.

The auto insurers, says a Blue Cross spokesman, are powerful lobbyists, but nonprofit Blue Cross still hopes to make a major impact on any federal legislation.

Although a federal no-fault law is unlikely in this session of Congress, there is a possibility that sometime in the next year or so Congress will at least set up guidelines within which the states must work.

Why does Blue Cross want the business? First of all, because it already has it.

In the view of Walter McNerney, Blue Cross president, auto insurers should supplement regular health care protection only if primary health coverage is inadequate to cover the cost of care.

If 75 million Americans are already covered by Blue Cross, he argues, why should they be forced to pay additional premiums for duplicate coverage by auto insurers?

And there is the matter of efficiency and cost. "Our overhead is only 7 cents on the dollar," says McNerney. "Theirs is 40 cents."

More than $1 billion in medical expenses will be paid because of automobile accidents this year. If these expenses were underwritten solely by auto insurers, McNerney claims, that bill would rise by $400 million.

By contrast, he adds, if Blue Cross and Blue Shield had sole responsibility for underwriting these expenses, administrative or operating costs would add only $70 million to the bill, or $330 million less.

Moreover, he adds, the nation's 74 Blue Cross plans are in a much stronger position to exert pressure on health care costs, which have been rising swiftly. He claims that Blue Cross is now geared to saving.

Time For Studying Campaign Costs: Godwin

By REESE HART

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — House Speaker Phil Godwin said today "the atmosphere is right" for the 1973 North Carolina General Assembly to seriously consider legislation to curb campaign spending.

"The cost of running for public office today has become ridiculous," said Godwin, who will be a member of the state Senate for the next two years. He won the Democratic nomination in the May 6 primary and is unopposed in the November election.

A six-term member of the House, Godwin said he favors legislation to deal with excessive campaign spending, "but just what type of bill we should have will have to be given a lot of thought."

"Capable candidates are discouraged from running for governor of North Carolina because of the price tag," the said in an interview.

Under state law, final expense reports of gubernatorial candidates are to be filed by Friday at 5 p.m. with Secretary of State Thad Eure. Ten days before the June 3 runoff primary Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles reported he had spent $830,000. His final total may exceed $1 million. Bowles won the Democratic nomination and will oppose Republican nominee Jim Holshouser in the November election.

Godwin emphasized he was not pointing at any candidate, "but when you talk about money that big there's got to be some strings attached. I'm not talking about bribery or influence peddling. I'm talking about partisanship. In North Carolina our governor doesn't have veto power, but he does have tremendous appointive power, much more than governors in many states."

Godwin said the high cost of running for public office has reached the legislative level. He noted that in 1960 when he ran the first time for a House seat his only expense was his filing fee. During the recent campaign his expenses totaled about $3,500.

Godwin said he feels the time has come for North Carolina's General Assembly to meet every year "and I think we're going to take a close look at annual sessions in 1973."

He noted that biennial sessions have become so long that many men—and women—cannot sacrifice their time to come to Raleigh to serve for six months.

"If we had annual sessions of 60 or 90 days," he said, "we could save money in the budget making. Under the biennial budget making the second year is a lot of guess work."

He added, "I look for the next session to be a long one keyed to the program of the new governor."

Godwin expressed hope that the higher education restructuring issue will not reappear in the next session, saying: "I don't think we should start meddling with it in 1973."

The 1971 General Assembly enacted legislation restructuring higher education and setting up a Board of Governors to supervise it. The board takes over July 1.

Offering Course In Media Field

Dr. Charles W. O'Rear, assistant professor of biology at East Carolina University, has received a grant of $1,975 from the Sport Fishing Institute to continue his research on the diet of hatchery-bred striped bass, or rockfish.

Dr. O'Rear, who is director of the ECU Marine Science Center at Manteo said his project will examine the efficiency of soybean meal as a source of protein in the mass feeding of striped-bass in hatchery-rearing programs.

He has done similar research studies in fish nutrition during the past two years.

Pilots Call Off Salary Strike

LONDON (AP) — A threatened strike over pay rates by pilots of the state-owned British European Airways was called off late Wednesday night, the British Airlines Pilots Association reported.

A new agreement between pilots and management was understood to provide top pilot pay of $24,700 a year by next April. The current rate is $20,880.

lot of people will be watching him.

It can be assumed that Rouse will work as hard for Holshouser as he possibly can. This in itself will help heal wounds and serve to unify the party.

Holshouser's people will quickly get over the disappointment of seeing Rouse returned to his position of power. The Nixon people have already moved in to say: "Look, we're fighting Democrats, not each other."

It wasn't very conventional but the Republicans — using these odd circumstances — have gotten themselves together. Maybe closer than they've ever been.

were lawful and appropriate.

Douglas, Brennan and Marshall exploded in bitter dissent. Douglas made much of the fact that Connecticut allows its citizens to carry weapons provided they have a permit. Granted, Sergeant Connolly had been told the suspect was carrying narcotics. Douglas was not impressed: "Can it be said that a man in possession of narcotics will not have a permit for his gun?" The majority decision, in his view, was "a serious intrusion on Fourth Amendment safeguards."

Marshall was distraught. He found Connolly's actions "totally unreasonable." It was an "invasion of liberty." A proper construction of the Fourth Amendment never would approve "the kind of kneejerk police reaction that we have before us in this case." There was no reason for Connolly to infer that the suspect was dangerous. The officer's conduct was "arbitrary and oppressive." The decision, said Marshall, "invokes the spectre of a society in which innocent citizens may be stopped, searched and arrested at the whim of police officers who have only the slightest suspicion of improper conduct."

In my own view, the dissenters' objections amount to bubbleheaded nonsense, utterly remote from the realities of law enforcement, the gauzy stuff of which Cloud Nine is made. But this much is clear: The positions are diametrically opposite. If Marshall is right, Rehnquist is wrong. My vote goes to Rehnquist.

Youngsters See Rock Opera At Ford Theater

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pandemonium in Ford's Theater was probably unmatched since the night in 1865 when Abraham Lincoln was shot—but this was the pandemonium of gaiety, not fright.

Secretary and Mrs. Rogers C.B. Morton had invited several hundred inner-city young people to see the hit show "Godspell" and then have hot dogs, cupcakes and soft drinks afterward.

Morton's Interior Department administers Ford's Theater, and he and his wife have taken an obvious liking to "Godspell," the rock opera with music and new lyrics by Stephen Schwartz.

They have seen several performances, and have entertained the cast at lunch in the secretary's office.

Torrential rains held down the attendance a bit at Wednesday night's performance—some of the buses assigned to bring pupils from predominantly black schools in the capital were bogged down—but there was no dampening of spirits in the theater.

"I thought it was cool," said

Yellow Roses For First Lady

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the 32nd anniversary of her wedding, Pat Nixon said, "It seems like only yesterday because Dick isn't boring. He's so much fun. He just seems as young as when I first met him."

Earlier Wednesday, the President sent her 32 yellow roses, her favorite flower, and White House chefs prepared a decorated Lady Baltimore cake, another of her favorites, for a family dinner with the Nixon's daughter and son-in-law, Tricia and Edward Cox.

The Nixon's were wed June 21, 1940 at the Mission Inn in Riverside, Calif.

Rufus Jones, 10, a black boy from Washington. "I loved it," said Lisa Hill, a 10-year-old white girl from the suburbs. What did you like best? "I liked it all."

The original plan was to have a block party outside the theater but the rain forced the after-show entertainment inside where more than 100 young people joined in frenetic rock dancing on stage.

Morton spoke briefly of his fondness for the production and its message of love and forgiveness. He noted that there will be five more performances, on alternate Wednesday running through Aug. 23, to which at least 4,000 inner-city young people will be given free tickets—many of them to see their first live production on any stage.

Brando Loses In Court Action

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Marlon Brando has lost a court action to end alimony payments to his second wife, Mexican actress Movita.

Brando, 48, has claimed his ex-wife was living with or had married musician James Henry Ford.

He was ordered in Superior Court on Wednesday to pay $1,400 monthly alimony, plus $600 a month child support for the couple's two children, Sergio, 11, and Rebecca, 6.

In a recent court action Brando won custody of his son, Christian, 14, from his first wife, Anna Kashfi.

Seek Motive For Rampage That Killed 6

By TOM CANNON
Associated Press Writer
CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Police say they are baffled as they search for a motive for the shooting rampage by a gunman who entered an office building armed with two sawed-off rifles and methodically pumped bullets into any man he encountered. Six men died, six were wounded.

Officials identified the gunman as Edwin C. Grace, 33, a uniformed off-duty guard for a security agency. He was hospitalized with what police said were self-inflicted gunshot wounds in the neck and head. Doctors said he had a good chance of pulling through.

A witness said the gunman kept reloading the .22-caliber rifles and that nearly 100 bullets were fired as he ordered women to get out of his way.

A worker in an employment office in the building, Heritage House, James Ashen, 24, of Blackwood, said:

"This guy walked in. He was a complete stranger. I never saw him before and he shot my boss in the head and he hit the floor. He shot the guy sitting in front of me a couple of times in the back.

"The other three of us grabbed chairs and crowded into the corner of a small room, begging him not to shoot us, but he kept firing and he kept saying, 'Don't move, don't move.' He was a maniac."

Three of the wounded men were in critical condition and a seventh man was injured seriously when he leaped through a window attempting to avoid the gunman. Victims interviewed by police said they did not know Grace and had not seen him previously.

The gunfire erupted about 3 p.m., and police said the gunman terrorized the building for several minutes. About 40 policemen surrounded it after being alerted by a wounded man who escaped.

Public Safety Director Wallace Lapeters said the officers fired tear gas canisters into the building and that several policemen entered, but that no shots were exchanged with the gunman.

After the shooting stopped the gunman was carried from the building along with other wounded persons, and it was not until hospital workers found bullets in his pocket that police realized who he was.

Several women who encountered the gunman told police he ordered them to get out of the way. Six women scrambled to safety from the GMA Co. office, and another seven who confronted the gunman as they covered in a basement also were unharmed.

Carried from the building on a stretcher was Grace, a Pinkerton guard from the Trenton, N.J., office of the detective agency.

Grace underwent surgery at Cherry Hill Hospital. Because of his condition, police were unable to interrogate him.

Favors Jury Trial For District Courts

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Chief Justice William H. Babbitt of the North Carolina Supreme Court is in favor of providing defendants jury trials in district courts with the right to appeal to an appellate court.

Babbitt said Wednesday this would eliminate the need for a superior court trial and would help unclog the crowded superior court dockets in urban counties.

He spoke at the opening session of the North Carolina Bar Association's annual meeting.

"I have suggested that the courts commission consider constitutional and statutory changes to provide for one trial in misdemeanor cases with the right to appeal to an appellate court," Babbitt told the association.

"In such cases," he added, "a defendant who pleads not guilty would be entitled to a jury trial in district court. One trial with the right of appellate review should be enough."

Babbitt noted that many of the criminal dockets of the superior courts in North Carolina are comprised of cases appealed from the district courts.

Robert W. Meserve of Boston, president-elect of the American Bar Association, said the nation should anticipate a federally funded program of legal services for the poor.

He told the group that lawyers and others "are coming to recognize that new forms of providing legal services must be experimented with and, if possible, perfected."

Meserve added, "One form, controversial but vital and here to stay, is some kind of federally funded program of legal services for the poor."

Sentencing Set For Tax Fraud

GREENSBORO (AP) — Willie Spann of Winston-Salem has been ordered to return to U. S. District Court July 3 for sentencing after being convicted on six of eight counts of helping to prepare and filing false federal income tax returns.

ECU Biologist Receives Grant

A course for audiovisual specialists who are interested in techniques of organizing all types of media will be offered by the East Carolina University Department of Library Science this fall.

Further information and application forms are available from Dr. Gene D. Lanier, department chairman, or Associate Professor Emily Boyce, at the ECU Department of Library Science, Greenville.

A jury that began deliberating Tuesday returned its verdict Wednesday. The jury was unable to reach a verdict on the other two counts and a mistrial was declared on them.

Spann, who operated a tax return service from his Winston-Salem home, testified that he used only information supplied by his clients in preparing returns. He said he did not knowingly or wilfully falsify any returns.

George Washington was inaugurated as President April 30, 1789.

Begin Considering Action To Halt Food Price Climb

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council today begins considering the Price Commission's call for "firm and immediate action" to halt rising food prices by broadening President Nixon's controls on agricultural products.

After a day-long meeting Wednesday, the commission decided to make its recommendation to the council, which oversees the controls Nixon imposed last November.

A commission spokesman stopped short of telling newsmen the exact recommendation, but said the commission members "feel the problem exists because of the lack of control of raw agricultural products."

Raw agricultural products, which by government definition includes both live animals and vegetables, have been exempt from controls since the start of the program last Aug. 15. The administration has been reluctant to try to control such a volatile market.

The spokesman listed removal of the exemption as one of the main options. He also said the commission "is not currently recommending a freeze" on food prices, another principal option.

While the Cost of Living Council, headed by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, is not bound by the commission's thinking, the price agency's recommendation will weigh heavily on any decision.

The spokesman said the commission definitely hopes for quick action by the council on its recommendation. "There was general agreement that firm and immediate action was necessary," he said of the lengthy commission session behind closed doors. The commission also discussed allowing only a limited pass-through of costs at the wholesale level, using government persuasion to try to talk down the rise in prices, and increasing meat exports, the spokesman said.

The council's staff and other government economists have been working separately on a program to try to stem the tide of rising food costs, particularly meat.

Although record meat prices have been recorded at the wholesale level, they have yet to be fully reflected at the retail level. But Nixon administration economists said the public should expect retail food prices to go up soon.

That the rise in food prices has not been fully reflected at the retail level was evident by the release Wednesday of the May Consumer Price Index.

The index went up 0.3 per cent over-all, but food prices actually declined 0.1 percent.
Nonfood commodities went up 0.5 per cent.

The Price Commission said its investigations show that high food prices are not the result of noncompliance with government regulations. And profit margins appear to be lower than normal, it said.

Mudslide Slithered In Home Early Wednesday

BLACK MOUNTAIN, N.C.
(AP) — "I heard the side of the house crack. The whole place shook. And I felt a splash of mud on my leg."

The Rev. Ernest W. Craig was describing the mudslide which slithered into his three-bedroom frame rented home early Wednesday while he and his wife, their four children and a visiting cousin slept. The slide was caused by rains of tropical depression Agnes, the remnants of a hurricane.

He said it had been raining hard when they had gone to bed, "but there's not even a creek on the place. There was no chance of flooding. We had every confidence."

In the middle of the night
Mrs. Craig was awakened by "a terrible rumble," her husband said.

"She screamed at the top of her voice. I woke up, jumped out of bed, and headed for the living room to see what had happened. I hit a light switch and nothing happened.

"Just then I heard the first thud against the side of the house. A few seconds later I heard a noise that sounded like an ocean wave."

That's when he heard the side of the house crack and first felt the mud.

"Until then, in the dark, I had no idea what had happened. I didn't know what we were fighting against.

"The kitchen door and wall caved in. I heard windows shattering and I kept hearing that awful mess gush in. Furniture was being crushed, appliances being shoved around. It was terrifying."

The mud came from a hill in back of the house. Craig said a hole 125 feet long, 15 feet deep and 25 feet wide was left in the hill.

All seven persons in the house stumbled down the road in the darkness to the home of a neighbor. All were barefoot.

"We roused the neighbor and he started telephoning, and within an hour we had every neighbor within two miles at the scene with flashlights and lanterns.

"When we came back we almost panicked. It was just unbearable. All our belongings ruined and mud and slime over everything."

He said that in one bedroom where two of his three sons had been sleeping, mud had come to the tops of the mattresses.

The preacher, said, the family's 1969 Plymouth was almost a total loss, smashed against the side of the house.

The Asheville Chapter of the Red Cross supplied clothing and some cash. Radio station WBMS, where Craig conducts a weekly program, began a fund drive.

Torrential rains which drowned when his canoe capsized on the Yadkin River in the Siloam community of Surry County, 20 miles northwest of Winston-Salem.

Officer; W. Connor Eagles,
Historian; Walter L. Tucker, Service Officer; Norman Ray
Sutton, David L. Gurganus,
Charles F. Oakley and Jesse R.
Oakley, Sergeants-at-Arms.

Past Commander Lester E.
Turnage, Jr. was in charge of the installation ceremony.

John Allen Tucker, Blanie
Allen Moye and Linwood Owen
Brown who attended American Legion Boys' State last week at Wake Forest University were special guests at the meeting.

Outgoing Commander Lloyd Nooe was given a rising vote of thanks for his two years in office and was presented with a Past

Dissatisfaction In Royal Guards

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The King of Sweden is having labor troubles.

The labor union of castle guards says noncommissioned officers do not want to guard the king any more and that the job should be done by private companies.

"Many of our members feel silly and ridiculous when parading in the Royal Guard only to satisfy the tourists," a spokesman for the union said.

The commander of the Royal Guard, Col. Nils Carlberg, said the guard should be kept because it has "an important task."

Mussel Market In Hard Times

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)— Mussel fishermen have fallen on hard times in the Tennessee Valley area. During the 1960s, the industry dwindled from a $1.2 million enterprise to about $200,000.

The TVA says that in 1971, mussel shells, sold mainly to the Japanese for use in the cultured pearl industry, totaled only 150 tons harvested at Kentucky Lake and valued at about $25,000. Round chips from the shells are placed in living oysters and the oysters coat the chips with a layer of pearl.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)-(NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets stronger. Supplies fully adequate. Demand fair to good. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets:

Grade A large whites: 40.14
Medium whites: 34.63
Small whites: 29.94

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets mostly steady today. Tops of 27.00-27.50 at Rocky Mount, 25.75-26.75 Wilson, 25.50-26.50 Siler City, Denton and Tarboro, 25.75-26.25 Bethel, 27.25 Mount Olive.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina live hen markets steady. Supplies of heavy types remain plentiful. Demand is slow. Offerings of heavies few, and too few sources reported to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP)—A series of negative news developments pushed stock market prices lower today, ending a feeble two-day rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was off 6.48 at 945.21. In the past two days it had gained some 9 points.

Declines led advances on the New York Stock Exchange by over 2 to 1.

Big Board prices included Heublein, off 1 1/4 to 57 3/4; Sperry Rand, down 1 to 43 3/4; Fannie Mae, down 1/4 to 19 1/4; RCA, up 1/4 to 35 1/4; and Tectron, off 1/2 to 33 1/4.

Obituaries

Mr. Boyd Wesley Huff, 56, died suddenly at his home on Country Club Drive, early Thursday morning.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel.

Mr. Huff, a native of Dallas, Texas, had been the golf professional at the Greenville Golf and Country Club since coming to Greenville in March, 1968. He had served the Midland Country Club in Midland, Texas, the Northwood Country Club in Dallas, Texas, the Colonial Country Club in Ft. Worth, Texas, and Forest Oaks Country Club in Greensboro. He was a member of the professional Golf Association and the Greenville Elks Lodge. A Veteran of World War II, he served with United States Navy and was in the Pacific Theatre.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Ellen Huff; two daughters: Mrs. Steve Rhoades of Dallas, Texas, and Mrs. Joseph Hawkins of Roanoke Rapids; five sisters: Mrs. Thelma McCullen, Mrs. Myrtle Compton, Mrs. Frances Johnson, Mrs. Ruby Estess, and Mrs. Emma Jean Walker, all of Dallas, Texas; a brother, Joe Boyd of Dallas, Texas; and one grandchild.

Scarbrough
FARMVILLE—Funeral services for Mrs. Hattie Sanders Scarbrough, mother of the late Aubert May, will be conducted Friday at 2 p.m. from Joyner's Mortuary Chapel here by Elder Rufus Parker. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park.

Mrs. Scarbrough was a resident of Farmville for 90 or more years. She was a faithful member of Seven Holly Primitive Baptist Church. The body will be on view after 6 p.m. this evening. Visitation hour will be this evening from 8 to 9 p.m.

Williams
Mrs. Rosa Williams, 68, died Tuesday morning in Nash General Hospital, Rocky Mount, after a brief illness. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. at Flanagan & Parker Funeral Chapel with the Rev. R.T. McCarter officiating. Burial will be in the Brown Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Williams, daughter of the late Sam and Lennie Chapman, was born in Pitt County and spent most of her life here. She was a member of Morning Star Disciple Church.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Mamie Cogdell of Rocky Mount, and Mrs. Mae Bell Morris of Baltimore, Md., two brothers, Ed and Arthur Chapman of Greenville.

The family will be at the funeral home from 8 to 9 p.m. Friday.

Dunn
Mr. William Alexander Dunn, 68, was instantly killed Wednesday night at 7:15 when his car was involved in an accident in Greenville.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3:30 Friday afternoon at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Jack Mayo, pastor of the Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church, and the Rev. Adrian Brown, associate pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. Burial will be in Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church.

Mr. Dunn spent his life in Pitt County and was a member of the Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. He was a former Justice to the Peace.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. J. Edgar Warren of Belvoir, Mrs. Donald Hayes of Greenville and Mrs. Robert Boot of China Lake, Calif.; 12 grandchildren; and 7 great grandchildren.

Nominated For Award

Mrs. Walter P. Esch, the former Gwyn Clark of Greenville, has been nominated by the principal of Myrtle Grove Elementary School in Dade County, Florida to appear in the 1972 awards volume of Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America. She will receive a certificate.

Only a select number of men and women are included in the awards volume each.

Mrs. Esch has received her B.S. and M.A. degrees from East Carolina University, and is nearing completion for her PhD from the University of Miami. She has supervised numerous student teachers from colleges and universities, and was chairman of second grade classes in her school for the past five years. Last year Mrs. Esch received a 10-year award pin from the Junior Red Cross of America for her time, services, and dedication. She also has been a five-year member of her school Curriculum Council.

Mrs. Esch has taught for the past 13 years in Dade County, Fla., and resides with her husband, Walter P. Esch, who for the past 20 years has taught physical education. She is the daughter of Mrs. Aileen H. Dilda of Greenville and Curtis B. Clark of Wilmington.

NAGS HEAD—Dr. Ira M. Hardy II spoke to the Seaboard Medical Association which met last weekend about the budding East Carolina University Medical School.

Dr. Hardy, a neurosurgeon who is a faculty member of the ECU school, explained that the 20 accepted students for the September class would be assured slots at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine once they have completed their first year's training.

Speaking of the one-year school, he said, "This is an initial effort, however. A one-year medical school is highly impractical and very costly." He projected continuing efforts to be made through the 1973 N. C. General Assembly to obtain funds for a two-year school as soon as possible — as a means of cutting costs and assuring success of the new medical school.

The Seaboard Medical Association is composed of physicians in Tidewater Virginia and along the eastern coast of North Carolina. Discussed along with the ECU School was the new Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk.

Wilcox Family Expresses Its Appreciation

The family of Greenville Boys' Club director David Wilcox expressed appreciation to the people of Greenville and Pitt County before returning to Virginia Beach, Va. today.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn A. Swisher, his parents; his three sisters, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Durkee of Pacific Junction, Iowa have been here since Sunday, soon after they learned that Wilcox, 29, was missing since in a Pamlico River boating accident Saturday. "We know now why David loved Greenville so much," Swisher said. "We can never express enough gratitude to all those who participated in the search and those who did neighborly deeds to make our tragedy more bearable."

RATE INCREASE

LONDON (AP)—The Bank of England increased its prime lending rate from 5 to 6 per cent today in an effort to ease pressures against the pound sterling.

Home Ec Teachers At ECU Institute

Twenty-five teachers of high school home economics are participating in a summer institute at East Carolina University this month.

The program, "Methodology in Clothing Services, Home Furnishings, Health and Management Services, and Cooperative Home Economics," concerns the various vocational possibilities for boys and girls available from studies in home economics fields.

Dr. Vila Rosenfield, institute coordinator, said the participating teachers will practice actual vocational skills in nursing homes, hospitals, and upholstery and drapery shops.

Other topics relating to the instruction of students in vocational skills will be covered during the institute, which continues through June 30.

Institute consultants and speakers include: Stella R. Cusick, Raleigh interior decorator; Bill Bat-chelor, Counselor with the Greenville Employment Security Commission; Jeanne Brinkley, author and teacher-educator at the University of Florida;

James L. Rees, assistant professor of speech at ECU; J. R. Akin of Carolina Sales; Dr. Steve Lucas, UNC-G School of Business; and Marjorie Cooper, Katherine Lyons, and Alice Solomon of the State Dept. of Public Instruction.

Names of institute participants include:

MARTIN COUNTY — Frances R. Sessoms.

PITT COUNTY — Eunice W. Casey, Doris G. Dixon and Reather L. Hemby.

Giant Paint Job

NEW YORK (UPI)—Paint makers must love merger makers.

The nation's longest railroad, the 28,000-mile Burlington Northern, says it's spending more than $20 million to repaint its 1,200 locomotives and 113,000 freight cars cascade green. That was the new corporate color selected when the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, Great Northern and Northern Pacific merged two years ago.

According to their new car manuals, every model listed above was designed to operate on a 91 octane gasoline.

Furthermore, most of the manuals recommend a low lead or no lead gasoline.

Today, several companies sell a gasoline that meets those requirements.

But of all the major companies, only Gulf has one that costs less than their regular. It's called Gulfane low lead.

At 91 octane, it's just right for most 1972 models as well as many 1971 and older models that we didn't have space enough to list.* And it's got the kind of additive package you'd expect from a major brand such as Gulf.

So check your manual. And try a tankful of Gulfane.

The money you save can go towards next month's car payment.

GULFANE LOW LEAD.
IT COSTS LESS THAN OUR REGULAR.

Legion Hosting Tarboro Nine

Greenville's American Legion baseball team returns to action tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field, hosting Tarboro.

Greenville, now 10-5 overall, will be seeking its fifth Area II victory against one loss. They have six conference games left, including tonight's. The regular season will come to an end on June 30.

Going into tonight's game, Dale Manning leads the team in batting, hitting a solid .375 average. He's picked up 15 hits in 40 trips.

Five others are batting over .300, but haven't had enough at-bats to qualify as regulars. They include Sonny Smithwick, .571; Vic Corey, .500; Mike Bundy, .357; Lee Cheery, .333; and Mike Weaver, .300.

Duncan Charlton leads the team in at-bats with 50, while Phil Blount leads in runs with 18. He's followed by Charlton with 15 and Cobb with 14.

Cobb leads in runs batted in with 13, while Manning and Blount each had 12.

The overall team batting average is .282.

Leaping Home

Texas Rangers' Dave Nelson leaps past Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk, knocking the ball from his hand in the eighth inning of their game Wednesday afternoon at Fenway Park. It all started when Rangers' Dick

Billings hit a double off the left field wall. Fisk dropped the relay throw and was charged with an error. Boston won, 10-9 in eleven innings. (AP Wirephoto)

Pirate Bats Banging Bucs To Top Of Loop

East Carolina University Pirates, after losing their first two outings in the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League, put together six straight victories before dropping two more, but those two don't show up on the record.

The two are the latest on the schedule, and both were washed off the Pirate record by rains—a Tuesday night meeting with Louisburg, and a Wednesday game with Appalachian. Both are to be played later in the season, with the Louisburg game set Monday at Harrington Field.

One of the big reasons for the Pirates' 6-2 league leading record has been their bats. In the first two games, the Bucs barely got hits at all. Then, in the next three they unloaded before suffering through another weak-hitting, but winning effort against the Tar Heels of the University of

North Carolina

Since then, they have returned to their heavy hitting.

Overall, as a team, the Pirates are clubbing the ball at an amazing .300 batting average. Of the eight regulars, four are hitting over the three-hundred mark, with Jimmy Paige leading the way with a strong .382 mark. He's picked up a team-leading 13 hits in 34 trips to the plate, including four doubles, also a team high.

Right behind him in average is Mike Bradshaw, hitting .343. He had 12 hits in 35 attempts at the plate. Ron Leggett is next at .310, followed by Ralph Lamm at .306.

The other four regulars include Larry Walters, .281; Ron Staggs, .219; Troy Eason, .200; and Rick McMahon, .083.

Lamm leads the team in at-bats with 36, while Walters had scored the most runs, 11. Lamm also leads in runs batted in with 10. Aside from doubles, Walters leads in extra-base hits, with two triples and two homers. His 20 total bases leads the team.

McMahon leads with walks—eight, while Eason has been hit by three pitches to lead the category. McMahon also paced the team in sacrifices with three. Paige and Walters have batted the most, five times each, while Bradshaw leads in stolen bases with three.

The Pirate pitchers have also held up well. Tommy Toms has the most starts so far, three, while Russ Smith has been the top man in the bullpen, coming in for three relief jobs. He's earned one victory in the role and one save.

Toms leads in innings pitched with 29 2-3, and batters faced, 130. Smith has allowed the fewest runs, four, and the fewest earned runs, none. Steve Herring leads in strikeouts with 16. Herring also enjoys the best record, 2-0, while Smith leads the team in earned run average with a dazzling 0.00. He's followed by Herring at 1.13, Toms at 1.82, Glenn Forbes, 3.60; and Bill Godwin, 4.15.

The team ERA is a fine 2.04, while their opponents have a 4.93 ERA.

The Bucs are slated to come to bat again on Friday night, playing host to the Tar Heels at Harrington Field. Game time is 7:30 p.m. It will be Parker's Bar-B-Que night, with tickets to the game available from Parker's.

Rain Again Gets Games

Rain again washed out all baseball activity in the area yesterday.

Those games postponed included the East Carolina at Appalachian game in the Collegiate Summer League, two Babe Ruth League games, the Greenville-Robersonville game in the Pitt-Martin Semi-pro League, the Fire Fighters-Kinston game in the Senior Babe Ruth League, three Church Softball and five City Softball league games. Also postponed were the Kiwanis-Coca-Cola and Moose-Granite Little League games.

The two Little League games were rescheduled for this afternoon at 4 p.m. at their respective fields.

Buchanon Rates Best Defensive

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — If you like your football defensive, keep an eye on No. 28 of the West Saturday night as he lines up at his cornerback spot in the 12th annual Coaches All-America game.

Willie Buchanon, who made a name for himself at San Diego State, has been the talk of the West camp as coach Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma makes plans to battle the East coached by Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama.

"I've worked the whole week against him and Willie is the best I've ever seen," said Southern Methodist flanker Gary Hammond. "He's not only quick, but he's smart. He can diagnose a play in a flash."

The 6-foot, 200-pound Buchanon, a first-round pick of the Green Bay Packers, was the seventh player taken in the National Football League draft.

He was the most valuable defensive player in the East-West Shrine game in which he intercepted a record three passes.

During his senior year, 46 passes were thrown his way. Only 12 were complete and he intercepted five.

Buchanon's philosophy is much like that of Herb Adderley of the NFL Champion Dallas Cowboys, who likes to gamble for the interception.

"I like to play it tough and take the gamble," Buchanon said. "I found out that if you are tough enough, quarterbacks will shy away from your side of the field. I had a real good junior year and I noted I didn't get tested too often last season."

Buchanon is one reason why the West rates an early touchdown over the East in the nationally televised 7:30 p.m. CDT game which is expected to attract some 40,000 fans to Jones Stadium on the Texas Tech campus.

However, linebacker Mike Tyler of Michigan knows why the West is favored and it doesn't bother him a bit.

"I'll tell you why we are the underdogs—Basically because we are playing in the West," he said. "It's really a very evenly matched game, even if our quarterbacks don't have the press clippings the West quarterbacks do."

Texan Pushes Into Lead In NCAA Golf

By HUBERT MIZZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CAPE CORAL, Fla. (AP) — Tom Kite, a rare short Texan, strutted to the head of the class as the NCAA Golf Championships began, and Howard Twitty, a most unconventional fellow from Arizona State, was closest in pursuit.

Kite, freshly graduated from the University of Texas, shot a dazzling seven-under-par 65 Wednesday at Cape Coral Country Club. The 5-foot-9 putting whiz is dying to be another Jack Nicklaus.

"I'll turn pro later this summer," said Kite. "Sure, I'd love to make a lot of money."

Twitty is different. He's 6-foot-5 and 225 pounds. And the recent graduate from Arizona State couldn't care less about being another Jack Nicklaus.

He'd rather sell insurance.

"People talk about all the money golfers make," said the 23-year-old Twitty. "As for me, I like my chances better in insurance. I'd like to make a bet that the top 15 moneymakers on the golf tour don't come close to earning as much as the top 15 men in insurance."

The Phoenix resident still manages to play Nicklaus-like golf once in a while. Like on the 508-yard first hole in Wednesday's opening round of the major college championships.

Twitty smashed a drive, cutting the dogleg hole short, and found himself a scant 160 yards from the green. He whacked a nine-iron onto the putting surface and then made a birdie four.

Twitty shot a 68 to tie with Max Castro of the University of Miami, Fla., for runnerup position behind Kite in the individual division on the windswept 6,865-yard layout.

Kite's dandy round got defending champion Texas out of the gate with a five stroke lead over Houston in team competition.

The four best Cougar scores added up to a two-under-par 286 total.

Oklahoma State made it a three-way domination for the Southwest with a 290 total, and Twitty's Arizona State team was knotted with outsider Georgia Southern for fourth at 292.

Reds To Have Tryout

The Cincinnati Reds will conduct a special one day tryout camp in Snow Hill on Saturday for all area baseball players interested in a professional baseball career.

Reds scouting supervisor Bill Jamieson will oversee the tryout which is scheduled from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. at the Greene Central High School field. Jamieson will be assisted by scout Ray Goodman and Greene Central Coach Jim Fulghum.

All eligible players are requested to bring their own personal gear such as gloves and shoes; uniforms are optional. The Reds will supply bats and balls.

High school sophomores and juniors are urged to attend as well as any player interested in a professional career. Players must be 15 years of age to participate and all American Legion players must have written permission from their legion coach or post commander.

Perry Rubs It In Again, Wins Eleventh

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Gaylord Perry didn't have much Wednesday night ... probably because he gave it to Bill Rigney the night before.

When the Cleveland Indians arrived in Minnesota on Tuesday, Twins' Manager Rigney found a tube of sticky ointment on his desk, courtesy of Perry. Rigney had accused the veteran right-hander of doctoring the baseball when Perry beat the Twins and Bert Blyleven 7-1 two weeks ago.

So Perry rubbed it in again by beating the Twins—and Blyleven—4-2 Wednesday night.

Elsewhere, in the American League, Detroit took over undisputed possession of first place in the East Division by downing Oakland while California toppled Baltimore 6-3. The Chicago White Sox trounced Milwaukee 9-3 and Boston out-slugged Texas 10-9 in 11 innings. Kansas City and New York were rained out.

National League scores: New York Mets 5, Houston 4; Cincinnati 6, Montreal 4; Los Angeles 5, Pittsburgh 3 in 10 innings; San Francisco 4, Chicago Cubs

0; Philadelphia 9, Atlanta 7 and St. Louis 14, San Diego 3.

Perry, who has been accused of putting everything from saliva to greasy kid stuff on the baseball, didn't have his best stuff but still joined Chicago's Wilbur Wood and Detroit's Mickey Lolich as the major leagues' only 11-game winners.

"It was a tough nine innings," he said. "I struggled all the way. I don't know what the trouble was, but I do know I have to have a good defense or I have trouble winning."

Shortstop Frank Duffy made two fine catches of line drives and third baseman Graig Nettles bailed Perry out of a sticky situation in the ninth. With one run already in, two on and two out, Nettles knocked down a smash by Harmon Killebrew and turned it into a game-ending forceout.

Ray Fosse homered for the Indians in the second inning and Duffy followed with a triple and scored on Del Unser's sacrifice fly. The Indians got the decisive runs in the eighth against reliever Dave LaRoche when Chris Chambliss walked and Nettles homered.

Tom Timmerman pitched Detroit into sole possession of first place by checking Oakland on five hits, including Mike Epstein's eighth-inning homer.

The Tigers wrapped it up in the top of the eighth against Ken Holtzman when Timmerman got an infield hit. Tony Taylor lashed his second double of the game and Al Kaline was purposely passed. Bill Freehan then doubled to right-center and all three runners scored for a 5-1 lead when center fielder Reggie Jackson bobbled the ball.

Bob Oliver's two-run single highlighted a four-run rally in the seventh that lifted the Angels over Baltimore and dropped the Orioles into second place.

Baltimore had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the seventh on run-scoring singles by Don Buford and Paul Blair—Merv Rettenmund homered for the Orioles' first run—when California teed off on relievers Doyle Alexander and Eddie Watt.

The White Sox exploded for eight runs in the eighth inning to erase a 3-1 deficit and bury the Brewers. Dick Allen drew a leadoff walk from Bill Parsons and Bill Melton singled. With a 2-1 count on Rick Reichardt, Ken Sanders replaced Parsons and completed the walk. Reichardt eventually scored the go-ahead run, making Parsons the loser.

Ed Herrmann tied the game with a two-run single and a single by Luis Alvarado put Chicago in front. Frank Linzy replaced Sanders and yielded run-scoring singles to pinch hitter Jim Lytle and Pat Kelly. After an intentional walk loaded the bases again, Allen ripped a two-run single and May scored when Allen was caught in a rundown between first and second.

The Red Sox trailed Texas 7-1 after 4½ innings but began their comeback when Rico Petrocelli, who drove in six runs, unloaded a grand slam homer. They tied it 9-all in the ninth when Carl Yastrzemski, who had two doubles and three singles, doubled and scored on a double error. Doug Griffin drove in the winning run with a bases-loaded, none-out single.

Danny Cater and Ben Ogilvie also homered for Boston.

Fox Bows Low As Bryant Twirls Shutout Victory Over Cubs For San Francisco

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The way the San Francisco Giants are going this season, it was bound to happen. They've finally brought Manager Charlie Fox to his knees.

Defending National League West champions, the Giants have spent most of the 1972 baseball season buried at the bottom of their division. Temper grow short in the kind of campaign the Giants are living through and last weekend Manager Fox and pitcher Ron Bryant exchanged angry words over what the left-hander thought was a quick hook.

"If Bryant brings in a shut-out," said Fox before sending the lefty out to face the Chicago Cubs Wednesday, "I'll go out on my hands and knees to him."

With the manager's foot positioned neatly in front of his mouth, Bryant naturally blanked the Cubs 2-0 on a two-hitter. Fox came out to congratulate him and did a neat salaam, just as he had promised.

In other National League games Wednesday night, Cincinnati regained first place in the West, knocking off Montreal while the New York Mets were topping Houston 5-4. The Mets crept within five percentage points of first place Pittsburgh in the East race as the Pirates bowed to Los Angeles 5-3 in 10 innings. Philadelphia outslugged Atlanta 9-7 and St. Louis routed San Diego 14-3.

In the American League, Boston edged Texas 10-9 in 11 innings, Chicago ripped Milwaukee 9-3, Cleveland topped Minnesota 4-2, Detroit trimmed Oakland 5-2 and took over first place in the East when California knocked off Baltimore 6-3.

"The added pressure in this game probably made it the most important I ever pitched," said Bryant, who seemed embarrassed by Fox' performance. The Cubs were embarrassed by Bryant, managing only a leadoff single by Don Kessinger and an eighth-inning single by Billy Williams.

The Giants used consecutive singles by Dave Rader, Alan Gallagher and Tito Fuentes for a run in the second and added two more in the fifth on RBI hits by Ken Henderson and Dave Kingman.

The loss snapped a seven-game Cub winning streak.

Cincinnati spotted Montreal an early three-run lead and then bounced from behind to overtake the Expos and re-aim first place in the West.

Pete Rose tripled home two runs in the second inning and then triggered a three-run fifth with a leadoff single to spark the Reds' rally. It was his triple that got the Reds back in business.

"Scoring with two out picks you up and takes the steam out of the other club," the peppery outfielder said.

Los Angeles got a pinch single from Jim Lefebvre with two out in the 10th inning to drive in a pair of runs and beat Pittsburgh. Frank Robinson and Wes Parker had both singled with one out and after reliever Dave Giusti got Duke Sims on a bouncer, Lefebvre came off the bench to knock in the two runs.

Bob Robertson had a two-run homer for the Pirates.

The Mets pushed across two runs in the eighth inning to break a tie and relief ace Tug McGraw nailed down the victory for Jerry Koosman against the Astros.

Kossman and Tom Griffin had matched four-hitters over the first seven innings and the score was tied 3-3 when Tommie Agee snapped an 0-for-20 slump with a leadoff double in the eighth. Ken Boswell singled him to third and then he scored when Tommy Helms booted Dave Marshall's bouncer. John Milner singled home another run before the inning ended.

Marshall homered for the Mets and Doug Rader had a ninth inning homer for Houston.

Bob Gibson and Joe Torre both had three-run homers as the Cardinals bombed San Diego. Gibson allowed just three hits in the seven innings he pitched before retiring with a sore leg.

The victory was the 211th of his career for the hard-throwing right-hander, making him the winningest pitcher in St. Louis club history.

Murphy Looks For Hot Weather

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — He hasn't won this season, finished tied for 63rd last week but, paradoxically, may be one of the top contenders in the $150,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

That's Bob Murphy, who beat only six players—one of them an amateur—in last week's United States Open Championship in the wind and cold at Pebble Beach, Calif.

"I just can't fight that cold," Murphy said. "I never have been able to play in the cold. Last week my back tightened up on me and that was it."

He opened with a 79, improved to make the cut, then fell back with closing rounds of 83 and 75.

"But, really, I'm playing real good night now," Murphy said before teeing off today, in the first round of the 72-hole chase on the 6,716-yard, par 71 Sunset Ridge Country Club Course.

"Last week it was just my back. With some hot weather here—and I hope it changes and gets hot—I should be okay."

The 29-year old Murphy, who went to the University of Florida on a baseball scholarship before shifting to golf at a relatively late age, hasn't won since 1970, but has played some of the best golf of his career this season.

He lost in a playoff and has been ninth or better 10 times this season—including three in a row before the National Open. He's won $78,157.

"I was in a little slump there for awhile," Murphy said, chewing on his inevitable cigar. "Then I got it sorted out again."

Murphy, whose three career victories all have come on courses much like this one, was one of the favorites for the $30,000 first prize along with Australian Bruce Crampton, the defending title holder.

Some other top candidates included $100,000 winners Tom Weiskopf and George Archer, and veterans Billy Casper, Doug Sanders and Chi-Chi Rodriguez.

Jack Nicklaus, who won the U.S. Open last weekend, Arnold Palmer and South African Gary Player, are not competing. Lee Trevino withdrew because of exhaustion and the lingering effects of a recent illness.

NFL Owners To Present Case

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A National Labor Relations Board hearing into charges that the National Football League refuses to bargain with players on fines and artificial turf safety entered its third day today with owners presenting their arguments.

Theodore Kheel, NFL attorney, testified for 90 minutes Wednesday explaining certain areas of the league's contract with the National Football League Players Association.

Kheel was to continue his testimony today and be cross-examined by NFLPA attorneys.

The NLRB issued a complaint against NFL owners for refusing to bargain on the questions, and ordered them to return $20,000 in fines levied against players who left the bench to join on-field fights during the 1971 season. The owners asked for a hearing on the matter.

Mevlin Welles, trial examiner, is not expected to make a decision in the case for at least a month after testimony is completed today or Friday.

The NFLPA completed its testimony late Wednesday with Alan Page, the Minnesota Vikings defensive tackle who was the NFL's most valuable player in 1971, testifying that the players were unaware of the rule that prohibits them from leaving the bench.

Edward R. Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, earlier testified that NFL owners have told him repeatedly that the players have no rights to negotiate under their current contract.

He said that several owners claim the existence of a so-called "zipper" clause stating the contract represents the complete and final agreement on all bargainable subjects for duration of the contract.

But Garvey said this clause was modified to say that "any change in current practices affecting employment conditions of the players shall be negotiated in good faith."

Will Carry On Boys' Club Plans

"I want to make it clear we're not about to fold," R. W. Howard, the first man to serve as president of the Pitt County-Greenville Boys' Club, stated at a meeting of the Board of Directors on Wednesday. Howard mentioned that following the accidental death of the 29-year-old Executive Director, David E. Wilcox, he has heard fears expressed that the club will have to fold. "That is not the case," he commented, "we're going to keep it going. We have problems, we've always had problems, but we haven't stopped growing."

Currently the Boys' Club, with its headquarters on Skinner Street in the western section of Greenville, has a membership of well over 500 young boys between the ages of six and 16.

At the meeting, it was announced that plans were still firm and would be carried out for the first annual Boys' Club Fishing Rodeo, to be held from mid-morning until mid-afternoon Saturday.

Board members are this week selling sponsorship tickets for a boy to fish at $5.00 per ticket. This project is to raise urgently needed operating funds for the club, which since its founding has depended on pledges from Greenville and Pitt County firms and businesses and from profits realized on various projects which have been held from time to time.

One of the principal sources of support to keep the club's doors open has been monthly wrestling matches sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees. It was announced at the meeting that again, beginning in August, the wrestling matches would be resumed under the Jaycee patronage.

For the Fishing Rodeo on Saturday, various committee members told the board that safety measures, transportation and other arrangements have all been completed.

All boys entering the competition will be supervised and will be transported from the Boys' Club at 9:30 a.m. and taken back at 4:30 p.m. Food will be furnished at the site, a pond belonging to White Concrete Company, located on the east side of Highway 13 just north of the Tar River bridge.

The Luncheon Optimist Club has arranged for a number of prizes to be given boys winning in certain categories of fishing, and members of the Greenville Jaycees will be on hand to help in arrangements and in insuring observance of safety measures. Persons who have not been contacted and who would like to assist in this fund raising project are asked to go by or call any of the banks in Greenville in order to become a sponsor for a boy. Previously formulated plans for activities at the Boys' Club during the summer, including the program at Aycock Junior High School, are remaining unchanged with the possible exception of a series of out of town trips that the late director had scheduled. There is a possibility, however, that at least some of the planned trips will be made in the event interested, qualified persons volunteer to give the time and services required for such excursions.

Archie Has His Book Of Sayings

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What do Chairman Mao and Archie Bunker have in common? Each has his own little book of sayings.

Mao's book is Red red. Archie's is a patriotic red, white and blue.

Mao's thoughts are revolutionary. Archie's are no less inflammatory but much funnier.

"The Wit and Wisdom of Archie Bunker," newly published in a paperback by Popular Library, is a compilation of Archie's outrageous remarks from CBS' "All in the Family."

The man who gave currency to "stiffle," "dingbat" and "meathead" speaks out on sex, race, politics, Women's Lib and many other subjects.

Much of the book records exchanges between Archie and other members of the cast, but here are a few short examples: —"Wages and prices. It's what you call your spiral staircase."

"If you're gonna have your change of life, have it right now! You got exactly 30 seconds ... change!"

"Well, I'll tell you one thing about Richard Nixon. He keeps Pat home. Which was where Roosevelt should have kept Eleanor. Instead he let her run around loose till one day she discovered the colored. We never knew they was there. She told them they was getting' the short end of the stick and we been havin' trouble ever since."

"When I wanna learn about pollution, it won't be from no millionaire actor who's got nothin' to do but sit on his duff and dream up causes. If he wants to unpollute something, let him unpollute the movies. All them nudies."

"It's moments like this where the only thing that holds a marriage together is the husband bein' big enough to step back and see where his wife is wrong."

In some cases Archie's humor comes through more clearly than on the show because you can see in print his misuse of words. For instance: "You're taking it out of context." "It's just a pigment of your imagination." "This political percussion is over as of here and now." "Smells like a house of ill repute, if you ask me."

Rainfall Finally Hit 100 Inches

DEATH VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — This hot desert monument has finally recorded 100 inches of rain, the National Weather Service reports.

A recent .18 inch rainfall boosted the total to 100.02 inches. That's since records first began 60 years ago.

Hog Cholera Outbreaks Not Yet All Pinpointed

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Federal agriculture officials say they have not yet pinpointed all the hog cholera in the Southeast.

Infection of one hog in a 194-head shipment slaughtered at an Alachua, Fla., packing plant indicates the cholera is present elsewhere in the region, U.S. Department of Agriculture veterinarians say.

The recent shipment was from buying stations serving the Carolinas and Georgia, they said. Along with Texas, North and South Carolina still are fighting pinpointed areas of infection from previous outbreaks.

Tissues of the other swine in the shipment are being tested for possible infection.

Dr. Francis Mulhern, administrator of the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection

Service (APHIS) in Washington, said the finding "supports our suspicion that cholera-infected meat has moved from recent outbreak areas into other states, where it could start a new round of infection if meat scraps or raw garbage are fed to the hogs."

"This also proves that we haven't found all the hog cholera in the Southeast," he added. "We are checking every herd from which these 194 hogs came, and we intend to find the source of infection."

Two recent outbreaks in New Jersey are responsible for the movement of cholera-infected hogs to slaughter, APHIS veterinarians said.

Hog cholera, which does not affect humans, is deadly and highly contagious among swine. Outbreaks are eradicated by destroying all infected or ex-

Owners are compensated for their losses through federal and state indemnities.

Quarantines are currently in effect in parts of six counties in Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and New Jersey, and in one county in Texas.

Nationwide, however, the level of infection is extremely low. The service said the disease once cost hog producers $50 million yearly, but is nearly eradicated in the United States. Forty-four states have been officially declared free of cholera.

There have been 49 cases of hog cholera reported thus far in 1972, compared to 98 for the same period a year ago.

Girls State Questions Answered By Holshouser

GREENSBORO (AP) — Jim Holshouser, Republican candidate for governor, told high school seniors at Girls State Wednesday night that forced busing is "the wrong tool to solve a very serious problems."

Other topics put to him by the participants in the week-long citizenship-training project and his reactions included:

Equal rights for women: "We (the state haven't toed up to the mark and we can do better. But I'll confess I haven't read the constitutional amendment. But I promise you'll see women high up in my administration."

No-fault insurance: "It's too early to say you're for or against it. It hasn't been tried in enough states and we ought to watch these until the next General Assembly. But this state ranks first in number of drivers in the assigned risk category, and I'll offer a new insurance program."

TwoWoundedBy Accidental Shot

KERNERSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two Forsyth County deputies were hanging up their raincoats in a corridor outside the state District Court chambers Wednesday when the pistol of one of them discharged accidentally and wounded the other seriously.

Deputy Charles Calvin McGee, 25, was hit in the left chest by a 9 mm. automatic bullet which went through his body and struck a courtroom spectator, James A. Worley, 63, of Kernersville, in the foot.

McGee and the other deputy, C. R. Reavis, had come to testify in some cases.

Achieving integration without busing: "In the inner city you'll have neighborhood schools, some all white and some all black. Children will attend the school closest to their homes."

An integrated society: "I'm not sure its the responsibility of the governor or the government to integrate society. Much of this nation was founded on freedom, and freedom to live where you choose. Founded on not pushing people around."

Abortions: "This state already has the second most liberal abortion law in the country. I don't believe the people or the legislature will completely legalize it. And I also don't believe anyone who wants an abortion can't get it."

Derogatory campaign ads: "Ours were not all that bad. They didn't stray from the truth at all."

Teacher salaries: "The North Carolina Association of Educators (which has asked for increases) has a realistic program and most if not all of it can be met. Too often I've seen out-of-state recruiters come out out campuses and take off the cream of the crop. More can be done."

In his opening statement, Holshouser pledged himself to an open administration geared to freedom of information and concern for the average citizen.

"Too much is being done behind closed doors," he said. "It's not just the letter but the spirit of the open meetings law that the General Assembly passed. We need to get away from government by machines, smoke filled rooms, and secrecy, and bring in the sunshine and fresh air. People are ready and really hungry for these things."

Can Restore Tired Blood

COPENHAGEN (AP) — An American researcher says he has discovered a method of rejuvenating blood that has been stored so long it is considered useless.

One scientist said this would make it possible for most of the blood that is collected in hospitals and blood banks to be put to good use. Scientists believe a substantial amount is now lost because it is not used within a certain time.

Under the new method discovered by Dr. C. Robert Valeri of the U.S. Naval Hospital in Chelsea, Mass., the blood is rejuvenated with a "cocktail" of compounds, frozen, and then is available for transfusion for as long as a year.

Dr. Valeri told the 8th International Congress on Clinical Chemistry on Wednesday that old and untreated blood does not contain enough of the compounds which help transport and release a required amount of oxygen.

This was discovered, he explained, during treatment of severely wounded Vietnam veterans who failed to respond satisfactorily to blood transfusions.

Dr. Valeri said use of the rejuvenated blood quickly produced a satisfactory reaction and the soldiers felt better.

The "cocktail" used by the Chelsea researcher to revive the blood was a combination of inosine, pyruvate, phosphate and glucose, he reported.

Concern For Yacht Rises

LONDON (AP) — Anxiety over the safety of Jean Yves Terlain, crewman of the biggest yacht in the singlehanded Transatlantic race, deepened today.

For the third straight day Wednesday the Frenchman failed to make scheduled radio contact with his base. And none of the boats which did report had any news of the race favorite.

The Observer newspaper of London, which is sponsoring the contest, thought Terlain's radio transmitter was probably out of action, but admitted "there is some concern."

Gale force winds and pounding seas have buffeted many of the nearly 50 yachts heading for Newport, R.I., since Saturday.

Bourbon Country Bourbon

The limestone waters of bourbon country produce the finest whiskeys in the world. And if you've ever visited Kentucky, you know that everyone is a bourbon expert. Which puts Very Old Barton in a very special class, because it's the bourbon country bourbon. The people there can choose the same fine whiskeys you find on your liquor store shelves. More and more choose Very Old Barton. Maybe they know something.

The Worry Clinic Zest Added To Dull Writing

Lorna is a superb teacher. For she wants to enthuse her students about the courses she offers them. Since most students grumble about writing English themes, notice how you can add zest to this type of course!

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-516: Lorna B. aged 26, is a new English teacher. "Dr. Crane," she began, "I teach composition to Senior High Schoolers.

"And I want to encourage them to write more effective letters, as well as stories.

"But I have read your 'Worry Clinic' ever since I was in the 8th grade, so I know your stress on motivating people by use of psychology.

"Since many of my pupils come from homes where they lacked an encyclopedia, a dictionary and any stress on correct grammar, I find that they shun English composition.

"How can I add more zest and enthusiasm to my courses?"

Contests Motivate

Competition adds zest, so urge your students to write letters to the editor of their newspaper.

Pick out various vital topics and then let the pupils compose short, snappy letters, preferably not over 200 words in length.

This will also help direct their attention to reading the daily newspaper.

For they will be eager to see whose letters might be deemed worthy of being printed.

Use the psychological rules in the booklet mentioned below, for they will improve your writing within 30 minutes!

Also, employ current commercial contests as subjects for class themes.

While teaching my "Psychology of Advertising" courses at Northwestern University, I often assigned current commercial contests.

They usually required a 25-word or 50-word letter in which you were to tell why you liked a certain soap or toothpaste, cereal, shampoo, etc.

After my students submitted their letters as class assignments, we'd discuss them in class and offer various criticisms.

Then some of the students would type them afresh and send them to the firm that sponsored the contest.

A number of my students thus won small cash prizes, ranging from $1 up to $50.

Others were awarded merchandise, such as a case of oranges or tuna fish, an electric iron, toasters, etc.

Some enterprising English teachers have linked up with local dental societies, American Legion, or men's service clubs, such as Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary, etc.

For such clubs will often donate prizes of $25, $15 and maybe 5 prizes of $5 each, for the best essays on why this is a Republic vs. a Democracy.

Or why Capitalism far surpasses Communism.

Or a 300-word essay explaining

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Thursday, June 22, 1972—17

any one of the "10 Common Fallacies in Logic," as outlined in that booklet offered earlier this week.

Indeed, a few teachers have even offered a small prize out of their own pocket for the prize winning "Letter to a Sweetheart" or to "Grieving Parents who have lost a Child," etc.

That "League of the Golden Pen" also makes an ideal weekly project, for it requires only that you write a few paragraphs (one page at most) to anybody not on your regular mailing list but who merits a note of sympathy, praise or condolence.

Let the students report later on the results, for sometimes very surprising stories develop that even pluck your heart strings!

So send for my booklet "How to Write Salable Copy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Lorna used it and changed the outlook of her entire class!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.) Copyright 1972.

Farmers Found Health Group

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Farmers are the healthiest people in America, according to a survey by the California Farm Bureau.

The nationwide study reported people on farms and in other rural areas are generally healthier, and that residents of the North Central and Midwestern parts of the country had less sick days than those in the South, West or Northeast.

The average worker, the survey said, misses two weeks of work each year because of illness. Men are healthier than women and the upper income classes are healthier than lower income groups, it said.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Jack of ♠
When South took advantage of favorable vulnerability conditions to open the bidding with three clubs, it appears that North might have considered his queen of clubs to be the solidifying card in that suit—and therefore have ventured a bid of three no trump. Had he done so, however, the partnership would have recorded a deficit on the deal because of the horrendous division in clubs.

That very same adversity should, apparently, have defeated the five club contract. How South was able to overcome nature's stymie provides the basis for our story.

West opened the jack of hearts and the king was played from dummy. An examination of the combined holdings apparently added up to 11 tricks—seven clubs, one diamond, two hearts, and one spade. What distribution could possibly upset this inventory? The obvious answer was—only if one of the opponents had all four missing trumps. The next question was whether South could do anything to cope with so adverse a division.

After some study, declarer concluded that he could stand a 4-0 club break, provided that East had all the clubs. To test the situation he led a small club to the king at trick two and, sure enough, West showed out, discarding a diamond.

The ace of diamonds was cashed and a diamond ruff with the deuce of clubs. Declarer led a spade from his hand and ducked it around to East's eight. The latter returned the queen of hearts to dislodge North's ace. Another diamond was trumped with the three of clubs, followed by a spade to the ace and a spade ruff with the four of clubs.

A small trump put dummy in once more with the queen at trick 11 and this was the position:

♦ 10

Void ♠
WEST EAST
♥ Q 10 ♥ 4
♦ Q 10 ♦ Void
♣ Void ♠ J 10

SOUTH
♥ Void
♦ 8
♣ Void
♠ A 7

A diamond was led and East was unable to prevent South from taking two tricks. If the former discarded the four of hearts, declarer would ruff with the seven of clubs and cash the ace.

East ruffed in with the ten of clubs, but South countered by discarding his last heart, trumping the heart return with the seven of clubs and then playing the ace. His losers consisted of one spade and one trump.

School Revenue Below Average

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Kentuckians put an estimated 4.2 per cent of their personal income into local and state funds for school last year, says a report prepared by the Kentucky Education Association.

The report said the state could raise an additional $79 million if Kentucky would match the national average of 5 per cent of personal income going to schools.

Retired Merchant Turned To Writing

WILLIAMSPORT, Md. (AP) — Trading news, stories and merchandise has always come easy to George "Hooper" Wolfe in more than 45 years at his general store.

But now that he has retired from active shopkeeping, he hasn't slowed down a bit. He recently turned his talent for story telling to another field—writing about the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, one of his favorite subjects.

"Never knew I'd write a book. I just woke up one night and started to write about an incident I suddenly remembered from a long time ago," the 79-year-old shopkeeper said. "The book just grew from there," he said of his effort three years ago under the title, "I Drove Mules on the C&O Canal."

The book has been so popular among canal lovers and history buffs that Wolfe keeps busy writing supplements.

The book now is ready for its fourth printing and Wolfe, a fourth grade dropout, proudly noted he has more than 4,500 copies in circulation in 42 states.

He keeps a record of every book sold, corresponds with the readers and other canal enthusiasts and sells most of the books himself.

Wolfe said he likes to know who buys them.

"All you have to do to write a book is keep your eyes open and observe," he wrote in recounting how he hits his book.

Study Why No Cavities

ANGORAM, New Guinea (AP) — Constant flooding of tribal land by the Sepik River probably is responsible for the extraordinary lack of dental decay among tribespeople here, says a World Health Organization expert.

Dr. David E. Barnes was chief of Australian New Guinea's Government Division of Dental Services until 1967 when he joined WHO.

While working in New Guinea, he took special interest in the lack of dental decay among 20,000 tribespeople living between Angoram and Ambon in the swampy banks of the Sepik River.

Now, he's in the area with a research team to try to find out why the villagers never have to worry about dentists.

Barnes said that although all village people in the 19-village survey area had the same diet, there was a heavy contrast in the rate of dental decay depending where people lived.

People in villages on low river banks where flooding was regular had no dental decay he said. Other people in higher areas free of flooding had all the normal dental problems.

Soil analyses showed the best teeth were found in areas of flooding where silt-soil contained large traces of strontium, barium, calcium and phosphate. On the other hand, the higher the concentration of lead in the soil the higher the rate of dental decay.

"Now, we have to find out exactly what's causing all this—and then find a way of using it to reduce dental decay right round the world, if we can," says Barnes.

Inventor Of The Wiper

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Before the windshield wiper here were disgruntled motorists and obstructed views. A society belle from Birmingham envisioned a brighter day.

It was in the winter of 1902 that Mary Anderson went to New York and was distressed at the plight of the street car driver. Back in those days a motorist went out on a rainy day with an onion, a plug of tobacco or a piece of carrot.

Theoretically, the things were rubbed briskly over the windshield, leaving an oily film which prevented water from collecting.

But the theory left a bit to be desired.

When she returned to Birmingham she made a drawing of a gadget she thought would do the job. A local company made a working model—a simple, manually-operated arm to remove snow, rain and sleet from the glass of the modern electric motor car.

It was patented under her name in 1903, but did not catch on until years later.

Miss Anderson forgot about the invention.

in pencil on yellow note paper. "I spent more than 70 years observing and only three years writing. I still got a lot of stories to write yet."

Wolfe, born not more than 200 feet from the canal, began driving mules as a boy of 10 and became a regular canal worker a few years later.

He worked the canal until he met a canal boat captain's daughter, married her and purchased his store in 1920.

"I go down to the canal every chance I get," Wolfe said. "I can tell you all about the canal and the Potomac River because I've seen both of them all my life."

FBI Chief's Girl Friday Avers Women 'Can Cope'

By ISABELLE HALL
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Barbara Lynn Herwig, the first woman special assistant to the new chief of the traditionally all-male FBI, is afraid to walk the streets of the nation's capital alone at night but the thought of working with an army of men doesn't bother her at all.

She has no ambition, however, to become the FBI's first female agent.

Shortly after L. Patrick Gray III took over as acting FBI director following the death of J. Edgar Hoover, he ordered that women and more members of minority groups be hired as agents.

Some friends immediately urged Miss Herwig, an attractive 27-year-old blonde, to apply for an appointment as a historical first, if nothing else.

"I've thought a little about it," she told UPI in an interview. "But I like being a lawyer."

Miss Herwig has never fired a gun or practiced karate—"more through laziness than anything else." But she thinks "It's a good idea for women to be able to defend themselves."

As for her job as Gray's assistant, she said, "My law school class was mostly men, the Justice Department is mostly men. I really don't anticipate any problem."

First A Professional
"I try to act first like a professional and then like a woman. I think they respect you after you work with people a while and show them that women aren't powder puffs."

Gray thought so highly of Miss Herwig's ability as an appellate attorney that he named her a special assistant when he was in charge of the Justice Department's Civil Division. She was one of three personal aides he took with him to the FBI.

Gray, who is given a good chance of becoming permanent director if President Nixon is re-elected, was asked why he chose a young woman who entered government fresh from law school for such a high post.

"When I was assistant attorney general, I told Gray Lewis (his deputy) that I wanted the brightest young woman lawyer he could find in the civil division," he replied. "That was Miss Herwig."

Close To Power
Her appointment in March, 1971, came at the time Nixon was calling for the promotion of more women to middle and high-level government jobs.

Miss Herwig actually is outranked by seven women in the FBI but her close proximity to the boss makes her probably the most influential.

Hoover had promoted two of his secretaries to be administrative assistants so their salaries could be raised. His personal secretary, Miss Helen Gandy, 74, was named executive assistant and promoted to the second highest grade in government—a GS17 with a $36,000-year salary.

Miss Herwig continues as a GS12 with a salary of $15,800 in her new job and she also is topped in classification by four female administrative assistants and two female "classification specialists," who devise job descriptions.

Gray said he wants all three assistants who went with him to the FBI to form "sort of a 'murder board' to get the answers to all the real, hard questions that will be asked of me and that should be asked of me."

Miss Herwig and Gray's two male aides—David D. Kinley, his executive assistant, and Daniel M. Armstrong III, a special assistant, both 30—are the first FBI officials in the agency's 64-year history who were not trained as special agents.

Applicants accepted as special agents must qualify at a 14-week training course at nearby Quantico, Va., which includes rigorous physical training coupled with firearms instruction, police sciences and legal study.

Before they even get that far, however, they must be able to do 15 pushups, 25 situps, 4 pullups, and be able to run two miles in 17 minutes. They must be at least five-feet, seven inches tall and trimly built.

The FBI uses the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., "desirable weight ranges" which call for a five-foot-seven male medium frame to weigh from 134 to 148 pounds and a six-footer of large frame to weigh no more than 185 pounds.

Fort Not Athletics
Miss Herwig—at five feet, eight and a half inches—more than meets the height requirements but admits she is no athlete. Her favorite relaxation is sewing and reading, particularly science fiction and political novels.

"I make some of my own clothes," she said. "It's a lot of work but somehow more relaxing than working with papers."

Although she wears her long hair tightly back from her oval face, Miss Herwig seems completely feminine. She is quiet, reserved and shy.

She lives alone in Harbour Square, a medium expensive apartment building in the southwest area of Washington, D.C., where the slums of the 1950's have been redeveloped into highrise apartments and townhouses. Her boss and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., are among her better-known neighbors.

"When I have to walk a block or two after dark I'm uneasy," she said. "But I wanted to live in the city because of the long commute from the suburbs."

She took exception, however, to a suggestion that the first women to be named FBI agents might not be able to handle themselves alone at night. One male agent, who doesn't think much of the idea of women colleagues, commented: "I'd be interested to see what happens when the first woman agent gets herself raped in an alley."

"If their training is as good as it's supposed to be, the women agents could take care of themselves," snapped Miss Herwig, who was among those urging Gray to accept women agents.

ly aloof: "There was a campus demonstration every spring. It was a perfect waste of time."

But she was active in student affairs and a member of the Young Republicans. She also took a firm stand against a law firm which was barred from recruiting on campus by the law students because it refused to hire women.

with the new smoothness of Barton's QT.

$4.80 Fifth,
$3.00 Pint.

If you happen to think all American whiskeys are pretty much the same, you're in for a pleasant surprise.

Because new Barton's QT is unlike any whiskey ever produced in this country.

It's similar in character to the other popular American whiskeys, but lighter and milder than any whiskey you've ever tasted.

Barton's QT is the American whiskey that's literally made to taste smoother. Its secret is being distilled at a higher proof, and then stored in seasoned oak casks.

What you get is the mellow, full-bodied flavor of American whiskey, with the new smoothness of the Quiet Taste.

80 Proof, Premium American Whiskey, Bottled by Barton Distilling Co., Bardonia, N.Y.

- Power front disc brakes, variable-ratio power steering and Turbo Hydra-matic automatic transmission are now standard equipment. Just three more examples of how we're building a better way to see the U.S.A.
 - Long 121.5" wheelbase. Long on smoothness. Long on comfort.
 - A full-molded foam front seat. Not only is it full foam, it's contoured to hold you comfortably. You find it in expensive cars. And now in Chevrolets.
 - Power ventilation system. Keeps outside air coming inside—even when the car is stopped—without opening any windows.
 - All Chevrolet engines run on low-lead, no-lead or regular gasoline.
 - A double-panel roof that's strong on the outside, quiet on the inside.
 - Sealed side-terminal battery. Terminals are sealed to prevent corrosion buildup.
 - An advanced emission control system so we can all breathe a little easier.
 - A front seat and shoulder belt system with reminder light and warning buzzer so you won't forget to buckle up.
 - A hidden antenna in the windshield when you order a factory-installed radio. It won't get bent, folded or mutilated by vandals and garage doors.
- You also can take comfort in Impala's traditionally high resale value. Which is another reason why Americans have bought more Impalas than any other car on the road—over 10 million so far.

What a '72 Chevelle has that your old one doesn't.

- A larger standard 6-cyl. engine (250 cu. in.). And all Chevelle engines now run on no-lead, low-lead or regular gasoline.
 - Side-guard door beams—like those guard rails you see along the highway—are in the doors of every new Chevelle.
 - An advanced emission control system that's helping in the fight against pollution.
 - Corrosion-resistant, fully aluminized tailpipe for long life.
 - Front seat and shoulder belt system with reminder light and warning buzzer. Just a gentle reminder that you should buckle up.
 - A sealed side-terminal battery. With the terminals sealed, corrosion is less apt to build up and rob you of starting power.
 - Long-lasting bias belted ply tires. Tire performance is improved because the twin belts keep it from squiggling away.
 - A refined Delcotron generator gives you improved reliability and greater durability.
 - When you order a new Chevelle with a factory-installed radio, you get the antenna in the windshield. Safe from vandals and garage doors.
- The '72 Chevelle has some other things going for it, too. Like its traditionally high resale value. Like being named the "Best Intermediate Sedan" in the annual Car and Driver Readers' Choice Poll. And being the most popular car in its field year after year after year.

Chevrolet. Building a better way to see the U.S.A. Chevrolet
Remember, buckling your seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with. Buckle up.

Bloodied Newport Jazz Festival Tries New Setting

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
NEW YORK (UPI)—The Newport Jazz Festival, bloodied by last summer's violence but still unbowed, moves to New York in a big way this summer with some 30 events scattered from Philharmonic Hall to Yankee Stadium.

Puppets On The Way To ECU's Summer Theatre

A new kind of entertainment especially for children is coming to Greenville this summer. Sponsored by the East Carolina Summer Theatre, Atlanta's famous Piccadilly Puppets will perform in McGinnis Auditorium for one week of matinees.

The two talented performers, Julie Thomas and Kenneth Daniels, who handle all the puppet characters will present two plays: Miss Lilly and The Frogfoot Phantom and Frappplestick? featuring such characters as Horatio the Hyena, Miss Lilly the Frogess, and Lyle the Crocodile.

The Piccadilly Puppets entertain thousands of children each year during their public performances at the Atlanta Memorial Arts Center, on the Georgia Educational Television Station, and at independent theatres, schools, churches, and camps throughout the South.

Coming to Greenville in conjunction with the ninth season of the East Carolina Summer Theatre, the puppets will add a new dimension of children's entertainment in this area. The Summer Theatre has stressed the family appeal of its coming season (Fiddler On The Roof; Once Upon A Mattress; 1776; I Do, I Do; and The Fantasticks), and the Piccadilly Puppets offer still another chance for families to escape the x-rated movie scene for their summer's fun.

CAN I LEND A HELPING PAW?—The way the grass grows these days is enough to make one's tongue hang out. But then again if you're working like a dog, it's just one of those things. Fritz, a huge German shepherd owned by Earl Miller, near Pottstown, Pa., tries out the driver's seat on his master's mower. Normally Fritz rides in the tag-along trailer while Miller cuts his lawn. (AP Wirephoto) bulldog tenacity for 19 summers, regrets his retreat from Rhode Island but anticipates a big city success for the July 1-9 "Newport Jazz Festival-New York". He has promised to donate 50 per cent of the profits to the National Urban League.

"I've never before encountered such cooperation," the 46-year-old producer said. "Everybody—the mayor, the unions, the foundations—have been helpful. Maybe I'll do a jazz clambake in Newport sometime, a token thing just to keep our roots there, but I'll never take a major music festival back there."

Not that Wein wasn't invited back this summer by the Newport City Council. He was, but he considered the council's restrictions too severe. The council, understandably, did not want a repeat of the 1971 festival.

That clambake was closed by the city after hundreds of youths broke through the festival field fence and had to be brought under control with tear gas. Some 300 were treated for injuries. Property damage was estimated at $30,000.

Expect No Bacchanal
The Newport Festival scene always was fraught with beer, marijuana, sleeping bags, and let's make whoopee attitude. Wein doesn't expect any carry-over of this to New York and neither do New York police, who are planning normal handling of the festival. Wein's announcements warn would-be subscribers that they should be sure of their New York accommodations.

"We're selling music here, not a way of life," he said. "But attending the festival

Warn Drinkers
Are Drowning
MOSCOW (AP) — The newspaper Trud, alarmed by 50 drownings in the Moscow area so far this summer, warned Russians today that those who drink like fish often can't swim like them.

More than half of the 500 persons drowned in the Moscow area last year had been drinking before they went into the water, the trade union paper said.

The warning was part of the government's current campaign to cut down on heavy drinking.

More Spent On Burglar Alarms
NEW YORK (UPI) —U.S. business and homeowners are spending about $200 million annually for burglary alarm and protection systems, Arthur D. Little, Inc. reports.

The stress on home protection had been primarily on fire alarms, but in the past several years, the research firm says, protection against intruders has become even more important. Daytime burglaries alone have tripled in 10 years.

THE MORNING AFTER—Broken chairs and scattered debris lie about in picture taken at Newport Jazz Festival

Field following night of disturbance last year. (UPI Telephoto)

Altogether over 600 musicians will participate. Rock, which whipped up a hippie riot at the 1969 Newport Jazz Festival, will be absent except for the music of two rock-oriented jazz groups, Chase and Mahavishnu.

Tobacco King's Idea
Wein was recruited to create a jazz festival in a Newport city park in 1954 by Louis Lorillard, tobacco fortune heir and a member of the Newport summer colony. Lorillard's neighbors in the palatial "cottages" of the resort were not amused, and their opposition to the intrusion of jazz fans was buttressed in 1960 by a riot of hundreds of youths which broke up the festival and brought out national guardsmen and marines. The festival was forced to move to a less central 104-acre property.

Wein also developed an annual Newport Folk Festival in 1963, but it was cancelled last summer after the jazz disturbances. Now Newport has only its classic music festival which features daily concerts, operas and ballets July 27-Aug. 12 in some of the famed cottages. Wein plans to revive the folk festival in New York in 1973.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The a.m. finds you able to plan what you want to do and how you can do it with the best methods available. However, make a point to use the afternoon and evening to make changes that are necessary if such a plan of action is to become a working reality. You see the future pretty clearly.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are well able to handle obligations during a.m. and make better plans for the future. Tonight you can do whatever is necessary to reach some important personal aim. Use a different system. Become more successful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Reach a better understanding with partners in a.m., then in p.m. you can carry through with plans made. Use more modern methods and get far better results. Think along more constructive lines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get those duties behind you early and gain the respect of others who are important in your life. Work harmoniously with others and get right results. Evening brings more advantages into your life.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) During spare time in a.m. do those things that please you the most. Evening is best to keep the promises you have made to others. Improving your appearance is vital in a.m., too.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show ingenuity in the handling of your affairs during the morning, but later get out to whatever is of a social nature. Make good plans in a.m., also. Doing whatever pleases your mate is wise tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Getting your work done in a most clever way in the morning brings the goodwill of others. Evening is best devoted to home affairs. Make your appointments early so that all goes smoothly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Carry through with financial affairs in a positive and clever way in a.m. and keep other appointments in the afternoon that help you get ahead, also. Get advice from an expert in business. Relax at home tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Morning is best for planning the future better, and then you can handle those money matters wisely and well. Improve appearance before going out socially in p.m. Forget shop then, concentrate on fun.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Confidentially plan some new course of action in a.m., and put it in motion. Then the social events become a delightful experience for you. Bigwigs will give you backing you desire. Contact them early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning is the best time to go after the advice you want from a good pal. Then make outstanding plans for the future. You are capable of accomplishing far more in the days ahead. Forget fears.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact that influential person who will know how you can solve some problem you have and give you the support you need. First take care of that credit matter, and then realize your finest personal aims. Take it easy tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You first have to study those new ideas well before you take them to bigwigs for the backing you want for them. Iron out kinks in them. Get all the facts and figures that are most necessary. Grow.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who will have a great curiosity about the facts of life very early in life, so be sure as parents to teach about them yourself for best results, or your child could get into real trouble otherwise. The nature then changes to a healthy extrovert one and energies will be turned to studies, particularly of a philosophical nature, to travel, and practical matters. Much success possible here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Ship Serves As Island Lifeline

By PAT SHERLOCK

Associated Press Writer

MATINICUS ISLAND, Maine

(AP) — There was a storm lying over Matinicus that gray dawn as Capt. Norris Young swung the Mary A toward the island, 26 miles to sea.

"It was like a mill pond out there yesterday," said an elderly mate lifting his nose to the wind.

"Today, I don't know."

The water inside Rockland Harbor was calm. But once the 65-foot supply boat cleared the headland it began pitching and rolling in deep swells.

Young pointed the bow of his Mary A at the darkness that had spread across the horizon, and turned the wheel over to his mate.

"Be a while yet before we'll see the island," Young said.

For the past 12 years, Young has been making the mail and supply run out to Matinicus, his Mary A a lifeline to the farthest offshore inhabited island off the Northern New England coast.

The run is made twice a week in winter, and three times weekly in summer months.

Built at nearby Friendship in 1938, the Mary A has been making the Matinicus supply run the past 33 years. She's already burned out three diesel engines and is working on her fourth.

Her years show through the fresh paint that covers her the way makeup tries to hide an aging woman, but her seaworthiness has never been questioned.

"We missed only two trips during the last 12 years, and that was during the same week when I had her in drydock," Young said. "Back in 1968, that was."

Young, 58, like his father, was born on the island whose 60 families his boat serves. When he finished school, Young followed his father to sea to become a lobster fisherman, which is what just about every man and boy on Matinicus does.

Young used to carry a lot of passengers on the two hour run out to the island but now "almost everybody flies out in private and chartered planes."

He used to carry a hold full of supplies. In 1962 when Matinicus had dial telephones installed, the Mary A carried out 65 telephone poles and microwave relay towers.

Now only partly full, the hold contained foodstuffs for Matinicus' only store and about a half dozen mail sacks. On deck a tarpaulin sheet covered eight crates of milk.

Young recently indicated he might give up the supply run and return to lobster fishing because he was barely making ends meet. Since then, the state approved a $2,400 subsidy to keep the Matinicus lifeline open.

Sewing Machine Tops Bathtub

NEW YORK (UPI)—There are more sewing machines than bathtubs in the United States, according to an industry survey.

American home sewers are almost 50 million strong and many are in multiple-machine families because teen-agers have taken on sewing as a hobby, says a survey by Swiss Bernina Sewing Center. The survey reported that, because of home economics classes, 90 per cent of the youngsters can sew and more than 25 per cent of them have their own sewing machines.

Silver Output Is Below Need

NEW YORK (UPI) —Each year 150 million more ounces of silver is used than is mined.

The balance comes from privately held bullion, coins, jewelry, artifacts —and recovery from secondary sources, says a report from Asarco, world's leading silver refiner.

If you're like most parents, you want your children to get all those sports you never had a chance to learn.
