Some Details Of New Housing Subdivision Disclosed At Meet

The first public revelation of a planned 400 house subdivision on the western edge of Greenville took place at the June meeting of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Board Wednesday night. Developer (and City Councilman) William Dansey in presenting a preliminary plat,

Journey Begins With The First Step

STAKES MARK A BEGINNING ... City Engineer C.A. Holliday, right and Superintendent of Street Department Gentry Mills, standing, study the alignment of wooden stakes that marks the first tangible sign of the beginning of the construction phase of the long-planned Central Business Development. The location shown above is the open stretch at the east end of Georgetown Shopping Center. On Wednesday work began at this point for the location and establishment of the center line of what will be Reade Circle. The initial phase will cover an arc between Cotanche Street and East Fifth Street where Reade Street comes into Fifth. Holliday said that cutting of trees in this area will begin today. (Reflector Staff Photo).

told commission members the subdivision, to be located on about 209 acres of land known as the old W.Z. Morton farm, "will take five to eight years to develop."

Dansey said, "It will be totally developed without lot sales and will have a large recreation facility including a pool, tennis courts, kitchen and other facilities adjacent to the lake." The lake on the property is one of about 11 acres developed 15 years ago according to Corps of Engineer specifications.

The developer stated that "housing development has been focused to the east of Greenville. As a result, the price of land has become so high that it prohibits the building of homes in the $25-30,000 range. The only way to get around this is to build on the west side where prices are realistic. We hope too," he added, "it will spur growth on this side of town."

Initially, about 59 lots will be developed. All units planned are single family units.

The preliminary plat, which City Engineer C.A. Holliday said amply met all subdivision requirements, was approved by the commission. Mayor S. Eugene West, present at the meeting, commended Dansey on the excellent lay-out of the area.

In the Committee Report on proposed amendments to Zoning Ordinance No. 322, commissioners unanimously recommended for city council approval the entire slate of amendments. In the May meeting, all except one amendment was favorably considered.

Last night's action completed Planning and Zoning action on the matter. The one item that had been held in abeyance for committee study dealt with floor space allocations for a commercial outlet in multiple housing units of 72 or more units. Commissioners recommended approval of 20 square feet of space per individual unit as a guide for total floor space for a commercial outlet.

Greenville's very first residential-mobile home (R6-MH) zone was recommended for approval without a single note of opposition. The public hearing held by the Planning and Zoning Board dealt with establishing, in the words of Holliday, "practically all of Meadowbrook" as an area that permits as regular use the placement of mobile homes. The area concerned is north of Mumford Road, east of North Pitt Street, south of the canal and extends easterly to the city limits and back to Mumford Road.

A request for rezoning three lots along East Tenth Street belonging to Dan Morgan from Office and Institutional to Downtown Commercial Fringe, was referred to a committee for study. The committee will consider the entire area from Evans Street to the railroad and present their recommendations at the next Planning and Zoning Commission.

Commission members opted to stand on their previous recommendation relative to two zones, Office and Institutional and Downtown Fringe, for two lots bordered by Cotanche and Ninth Streets.

Commissioners were reconsidering their previous recommendation at the request of the City Council, which has expressed a preference for rezoning the entire block as one zone rather than two.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court held 5 to 4 today that the death penalty, as it is now used in the United States, violates the constitution and cannot be imposed.

While the decision leaves the door open for legislatures to reinstate capital punishment in some circumstances, one of the nine opinions issued by the court said the immediate result is to remove the death sentences from the 600 condemned inmates across the land.

All nine justices filed statements of their views. In the majority were Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall, and with some reservations, Potter Stewart and Byron R. White. Dissenting were the four Nixon administration appointees, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, and Justices Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr., and William H. Rehnquist.

Reversed immediately by the decision were two death sentences for non-fatal rapes in Georgia and Texas and a death sentence for murder in Georgia. Here is how the majority was formed: Douglas concluded capital punishment is incompatible with the concept of "equal protection" of the laws. That he found to be "implicit" in the Eighth Amendment. Brennan based his judgment primarily on the theory that the death penalty "does not comport with human dignity." He also cited the Eighth Amendment.

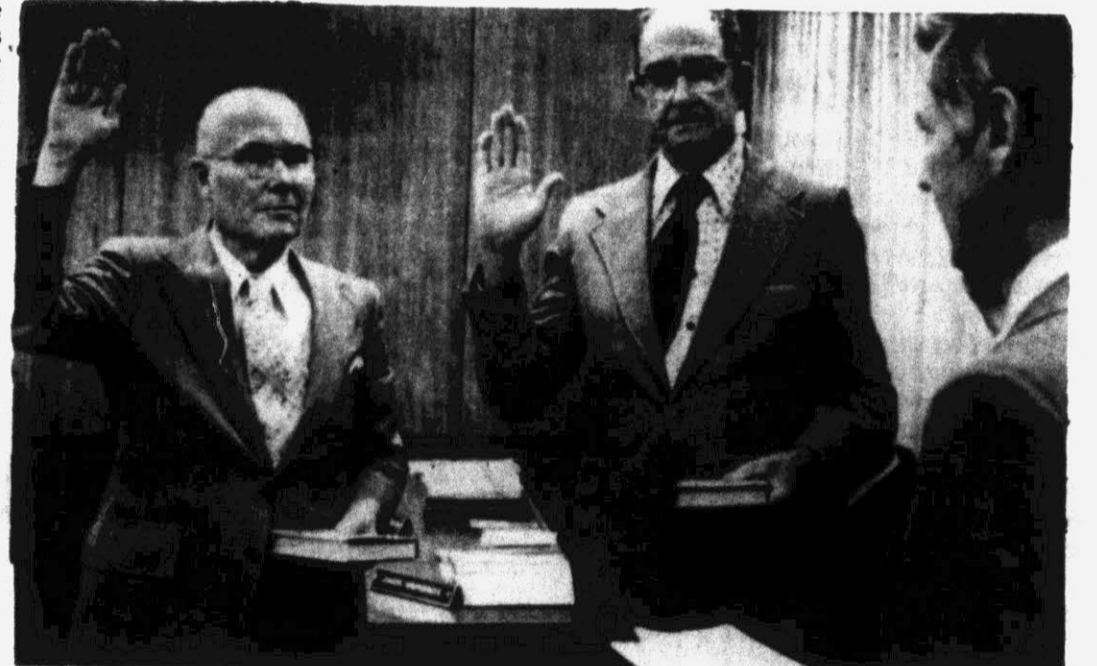

Stewart concluded that the death penalty is now applied in a "wanton" and "freakish" manner.

White said the death penalty is invalid mostly because it is used infrequently and did not meet "any existing general need for retribution."

Burger, in dissent, said the decision leaves legislatures free "to carve out limited exceptions to a general abolition of the penalty." He said the court had gone "beyond the limits of judicial power," but added "while fortunately leaving some room for legislative judgment."

Blackmun, saying he yields "to no one in the depth of my distaste, antipathy, and indeed, abhorrence for the death penalty," nevertheless dissented because, he wrote, "I fear the court has overstepped."

Powell said none of the five opinions by the justices in the (Continued on page 19)

TAKE OATH — Two new members of the North Carolina Highway Commission, Henry Clay Oglesby (left), of Grifton, and Clinton F. Dodson, (center), of Cullowhee, are sworn in by Court of Appeals Judge William E. Graham, Jr. (AP Wirephoto)

Highway Commissioner Oglesby Sworn In Today

RALIEGH — Henry Oglesby of Grifton and Clinton F. Dodson of Cullowhee were sworn in this morning as members of the North Carolina Highway Commission.

The two were appointed to their posts yesterday by Gov. Bob Scott. Oglesby replaces Arthur Tripp of Greenville, while Dodson succeeds E. J. Whitmire of Franklin.

Both Tripp and Whitmire were investigated by the state Attorney General's office for alleged conflict of interest. Tripp allegedly sold fill dirt to two firms for highway projects in the Greenville area while Whitmire allegedly sold crushed stone to the Highway Commission.

Oglesby said this morning that the governor called him yesterday to offer the $7 per day job.

"I wasn't expecting any call. It came as a complete surprise. I told him that I don't know anything about road building and will have to start from scratch. But I assured him I would do the best I can...make as few promises as I could...and keep the ones I make."

Oglesby emphasized "I will certainly need the help of everybody...I really mean it." For 20 years Oglesby was administrative assistant to the late First District Congressman Herbert C. Bonner and later served as assistant president of Cox Trailers, Inc. of Grifton for six years.

He is currently Democratic Party chairman in Pitt County and a member of the Governor's Advisory Council for Vocational Education.

Dodson, who is retired, is a former head of the science department at Western Carolina University and a former member of the Governor's Commission on Industrial Health.

Check Truman After His Fall

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman was taken to Research Hospital here for routine X rays after he slipped at his home, a spokesman at the hospital reported.

The spokesman, John Drees, said Wednesday that the X rays were negative and the 88-year-old former chief executive returned immediately to his home in nearby Independence, Mo.

FBI Announces Arrest Of Sky Piracy Suspect

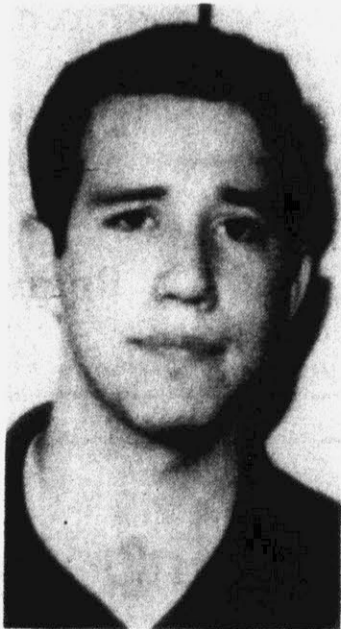

DETROIT (AP) — A 28-year-old unemployed man was arrested at his home and charged as the airliner hijacker who got $502,500 ransom and parachuted over Indiana last weekend, the FBI announced today.

Martin J. McNally, 28, of suburban Wyandotte, was charged with violation of the federal air piracy statute, said Neil J. Welsh, special agent in charge of the Michigan FBI. McNally was arrested shortly before midnight Wednesday and was held by the FBI in Detroit pending arraignment today.

A spokesman said an FBI complaint would be filed today at St. Louis.

A hijacker took over the American Airlines Boeing 727 shortly after it left St. Louis Friday night en route to Tulsa, Okla. with 94 persons on board.

He forced a landing at St. Louis where airline officials said the man armed with a submachine gun was given $502,500 and two parachutes. He released most of the plane's passengers and changed planes after a car raced onto the runway and smashed into the first airliner.

MARTIN McNALLY

The hijacker forced the plane with six hostages to fly toward Toronto and he bailed out over north central Indiana. An American Airlines bag containing $500,000 was found in a farmer's field Monday and a submachine gun was found about five miles away.

Law enforcement officers speculated the hijacker was injured in the jump since airline officials said he demanded and was given instruction on how to operate the parachutes.

The FBI said extensive investigation by agents in Missouri, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan developed information that led to McNally.

An FBI spokesman said McNally was divorced and unemployed. A neighbor in Wyandotte said McNally stuck pretty much to himself and had little to do with neighbors.

Mayor Cautions Against Uncertainty In Rezoning

The Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission, Wednesday night, referred the one request for rezoning on its agenda to the already established committee studying the entire U.S. 264 Bypass East-West rezoning pattern.

The request, made by J. T. Manning, Jr. to have property located about one mile from the intersection of U.S. 264 and N.C. 11 rezoned from RA-20 to Highway Commercial, was for a depth of 600 feet, later changed to 400 feet.

Members of the joint commissions heard Mayor S. Eugene West express his feelings on rezoning property within and outside the city limits. "I'm not saying that I'm for or against this request," the mayor commented, "but I strongly feel the basis for rezoning should be that it is compatible with the neighborhood."

"There are too many requests coming up for speculation purposes, without our knowing what's going to be put there. These requests ought to be carefully considered. Once rezoned, that's all she wrote, for there's nothing we can do then."

Mayor West added in his opinion commissioners should know specifically what type of business is planned for a particular property to be put in a neighborhood. "These things ought to be taken into consideration before we turn some area loose for spot zoning."

Interested persons present from the neighborhood stated they had no opposition per se to Manning's request, but that they wanted to know what his intended use was so they would be in a position to determine whether they were opposed or in favor of whatever was planned.

The committee set a date to meet to consider the Manning request in conjunction with other requests pending for property outside the city limits. The committee will make its report at the next joint meeting.

Air And Water Polluters Warned Tougher Stance To Be Taken

RALIEGH (AP) — The North Carolina Water and Air Quality Control Committee has served notice that it is going to take a tougher stance toward industrial and municipal polluters from now on.

The committee members, led by outspoken conservationist James Wallace, agreed Wednesday that they "will not pussyfoot around in the future just because we have in the past" with polluters.

Wallace said the group has been "derelict" in its duty in enforcing anti-pollution laws. "We are not winning the environmental war, we are losing," he told the other members. "Industries and municipalities are going to have to comply with the laws, and if they don't, we're going to have to go to court more often."

Committee members Owen Braughler of Greensboro and H. W. Whitley of Murfreesboro were almost as vocal as Wallace in their displeasure with industries either avoiding the laws or seeking delays in complying with them.

Wallace said he wanted polluters to be "on notice that deviation from compliance schedules will no longer be allowed except under circumstances approximating an act of God."

The committee backed its new stance with action by voting unanimously to recommend to its parent

Board of Water and Air Resources that The Lloyd A. Frye Roofing Co. of

Morehead City be ordered to cease discharging any sewage, industrial waste or other wastes into Bogue

Sound.

Board Attorney Tom Rosser said that if, as the state contends, the plant's waste system requires periodic flushing into the sound, the order would in effect shut down the plant. Frye employs 200 persons.

Soon after that case, Andrew Major, president of Mastercraft Corp. of Rutherfordton, came before the committee to ask for a 10-month extension on its timetable for installing waste treatment facilities.

Whitley told Major, "You don't know how close we are to closing you down."

Eventually the group agreed to the extension with the stipulation that if any of the interim deadlines are missed, the matter will go automatically to the attorney general for court action.

The committee also agreed to hold a public hearing on plans of the Mead Paper Corp. in Sylva for dealing with air and water pollution before the plant closes down in late 1974.

$89,000 For Children's Health Care

RALEIGH (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has awarded $89,000 for a pilot project in Sampson County designed to provide a blueprint for complete health care for the nation's children.

North Carolina Human Resources Secretary Lennox Baker announced Wednesday that the project, to be developed over the next six months, will call for $5 million in federal spending over the next five years to test and treat every child in the county for medical, nutritional and emotional problems.

The project will involve some 8,000 to 10,000 children.

The plan is largely the work of Dr. Amos Johnson, a 64-year-old family doctor in Garland. Johnson, past president of the American Academy of Family Physicians and the N.C. Medical Association, has been working for several years to sell federal and local officials on the study.

He said Wednesday that the program will aim at finding new methods of reaching children who need help and will show what can be done when a community concentrates on the entire realm of child development.

Johnson said that when families or local welfare groups can't pay the costs for treatment of problems turned up by the study, local doctors have agreed to "do it off the cuff."

Casualties Remain Low

SAIGON (AP) — Two Americans were killed in action in Vietnam last week, 10 died due to nonhostile causes and 21 were missing in action, the U.S. Command reported. Another 22 were wounded.

This represented a sharp drop in the number of dead and wounded by comparison with the previous week but almost a 100 per cent increase in the missing. The casualties the week before were 8 killed in action, 18 dead from nonhostile causes, 11 missing in action and 27 wounded.

Officials say that most of the missing and the "nonhostile" deaths are due to air crashes.

The South Vietnamese command reported an increase in its casualties: 836 killed, 3,003 wounded and 280 missing compared to 724 killed, 2,529 wounded and 156 missing the week before. It said 3,260 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed, a slight increase.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American—45,792 killed in action, 303,167 wounded, 10,222 dead from nonhostile causes, 1,630 missing or captured.

South Vietnamese—147,342 killed in action; 379,614 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—855,335 killed.

Low-Polluting Bus Displayed

NEW YORK (AP) — A comfortable, low-polluting bus designed for congested city streets has been put on display in Rockefeller Plaza.

The bright orange van, which seats 15 and has standing room for five, takes up about the same space as a long luxury limousine.

Called the Ginkelvan, for its designers, van Ginkel Associates of Montreal, it has padded seats with armrests, a wide sliding door, large tinted windows which can be opened in the roof, and carpeting.

The van was built at the request of the city Office of Midtown Planning to take shoppers and others short distances "in style and comfort." It has a diesel engine that reportedly meets U.S. federal pollution-prevention standards for 1975.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Double Ring Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Jackie Louise Warren and Jake Carl Adams Jr. was solemnized Sunday, June 18, at Memorial Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Denver C. Warren of Florida and Mrs. Bobbie Warren Cayton of Greenville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jake Adams of Greenville.

The Rev. C. Norman Bennett Jr. officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Joe Goodwin of Greenville, organist. Mrs. Alyce Carroll, soloist, sang "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her grandfather, W. Herman Smith, the bride wore a formal length crepe gown designed with a bodice of Venise lace. The long fitted sleeves were also of lace. Miniature buttons extended down the bodice front to the empire waistline which was banded in white satin ribbon.

She wore a formal length mantilla edged with lace and carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath centered with a white orchid.

Miss Terry Warren, sister of the bride was maid of honor. The matron of honor was Bonnie Rogerson of Winterville.

MRS. JAKE CARL ADAMS JR.

Bridesmaid was Miss Jeanette Postom of Benson, cousin of the bride. Junior bridesmaids were Gils Warren, sister of the bride, and Dorothy Osborne, cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom's brother-in-law, Bruce Newsome, was best man. Ushers were Donald Avery and Jack Cobb, both of Greenville.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Judy Osborne of Maryland and Mrs. Chellie Postom of Benson, aunts of the bride.

For traveling, the bride changed into a two-piece mauve ensemble.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and is employed by Reserve Life Insurance Co. The bridegroom is also a graduate of Rose High School and is employed by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Margery Osborne, Karen McGnirt and Rose Warren presided at the guest register.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Taxpayer Makes Home Delivery To Postmaster

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Charles Scribner's Sons, Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I wanted to call up my postmaster and tell him a thing or two because I knew he ate my pension check, but I couldn't find his telephone number in the book. I called information and that's when I found out he had an unlisted number! That really made me mad, so since I knew where he lived, I drove over to his house and told his wife off.

Abby, as a taxpayer, I would like to know why a public servant like a postmaster would have an unlisted telephone number?

DEAR TAXPAYER: Probably to protect him from people who "know" he ate their pension checks.

DEAR ABBY: For the mother whose 16-year-old son pretends to be retarded to draw attention, and the father's encouraging reaction:

Obviously the boy is a good actor, but he probably is repeating himself, so I suggest the father do the following to inject realism.

Begin by using elastic handgates to tie the boy's elbows just slightly behind his back, so the elbows will remain bent. Next, wrap heavy rubber bands around the boy's fingers so that they may be used only with effort. Next, the father could have the boy lie on the floor where he could then wrap elastic bandages around his crossed knees. Then wrap more elastic bandages around his feet so they will be pointed inward.

Next, place a handful of large marbles into the boy's mouth, so he can neither close it nor control his saliva. Finally put a strap around the boy's head, and attach a rubber strip to it so the head is held up only with effort.

By this time the father is probably about to explode in anticipation of the boy's next performance. Then the father should instruct the boy to do some simple task, like turn on the TV and adjust the color and then try to sit in his favorite chair.

My analogy to simulate what it's like to have cerebral palsy [which isn't necessarily retardation] breaks down here—for the father is able to undo the boy's temporary condition. I wish to God that I had such power for my young daughter.

THE FATHER OF A C. P. IN HOUSTON

DEAR ABBY: From the letters in your column, we "cold" wives should form a club. There are a lot of us around. We're easy to recognize. We're either sick a lot [headaches] or dead tired. We drink too much, smoke too much, and eat too much ["I'm going on a diet tomorrow"]. We lose ourselves in novels [dreaming] and watch a lot of late television.

We're sharp with our kids and we get foolish in the 40s [wearing too much make-up and not enough clothes.]

As for myself, I have most of the symptoms already and I'm not yet 40. I'd give 10 years of my life if my husband would grab me at the kitchen sink, pat me, pinch me or seduce me [before somebody else does]. I'm about ready to boil over!

Come on, Abby, print this. Maybe my husband will get the message. ANOTHER COLD FISH IN POMPANO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR FISH: If I read you right, it will take more than a message. It's time you straightened up and swam right. I hear there's awfully good fishing around Pompano Beach. Don't give your husband a good reason to junk his marriage license for a fishing license.

Herbal Tea Mixtures Used For Various Ailments

By DAVID A. KIRKBY Associated Press Writer LISBON (AP) — Abel Rodrigues never went to medical school. But every week hundreds of Portuguese visit his Lisbon shop seeking relief from various ailments.

Rodrigues' treatment is simple. He prescribes three cups a day of one of his herbal tea mixtures.

Rodrigues is the owner of one of more than 500 "ervanarias" or herb shops which exist in Portugal.

Herbal teas have been popular in Portugal for hundreds of years.

"As a matter of fact," says Rodrigues, "people were drinking these teas long before anyone had heard of penicillin, chloroform or other aspects of modern medicine."

There are no miracle ingredients in herbal teas. Just roots and plants such as rosemary and senna leaves which can be found growing wild in many parts of Portugal. Others, such as aniseed and eucalyptus, are imported.

"While many people may be skeptical about the curative powers of the teas, it is a fact that big international pharmaceutical companies use the same plants as we do in the preparation of their medicines," Rodrigues explained.

"The only difference is that they extract certain substances whereas we use the whole plant."

Rodrigues sells 35 kinds of herbal teas. Some are claimed to be suitable for several different illnesses.

The teas are made from secret formulas which have been handed down in the family for generation after generation.

A 10-day supply of one of the teas will cost between 80 cents to $1.60.

Rodrigues thinks herbal teas are popular because of the fear many people have of going to a doctor.

Rodrigues, who needs no license to run his business, does not pretend to set himself up as a doctor.

"Obviously there are many things I cannot cure."

"And so if a client comes into my shop and I can see he is seriously ill or if he has an ailment for which I have no remedy then I have no hesitation in advising him to go to a doctor."

Rodrigues says herbalists regard themselves as pharmacists.

"If you have a headache or pains in your stomach, then you usually go to a pharmacy to obtain a pain reliever which does not require a doctor's prescription."

"The same is true here except that we cure the natural way."

Rodrigues, a robust and active 64-year-old, drinks his own teas regularly.

TANGY LEMON CHIFFON PIE

Graham Cracker Crust, see below

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

1 1/4 cups sugar

1/4 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup water

1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon freshly squeezed lemon juice

4 eggs, separated

1 teaspoon freshly grated lemon rind

Prepare and bake Graham Cracker Crust; chill.

In a 1- or 1 1/2-quart saucepan thoroughly stir together the gelatin, 1 cup sugar and the salt; gradually stir in water and lemon juice.

In a small mixing bowl, with a fork, beat egg yolks well; blend into gelatin mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved and mixture is slightly thickened—8 to 10 minutes; do not boil. Stir in grated lemon rind and immediately transfer to a medium or large mixing bowl (preferably metal). Chill over ice cubes and water, stirring often, until mixture mounds just slightly when dropped from a spoon.

In small electric mixer bowl beat egg whites until they hold very soft peaks; gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar, beating at high speed until whites barely hold stiff peaks. Fold chilled mixture into whites; spoon into crust. Chill until set.

If desired, top pie with sweetened whipped cream—a great addition.

GRAHAM CRACKER CRUST

1 1/4 cups finely crushed graham crackers

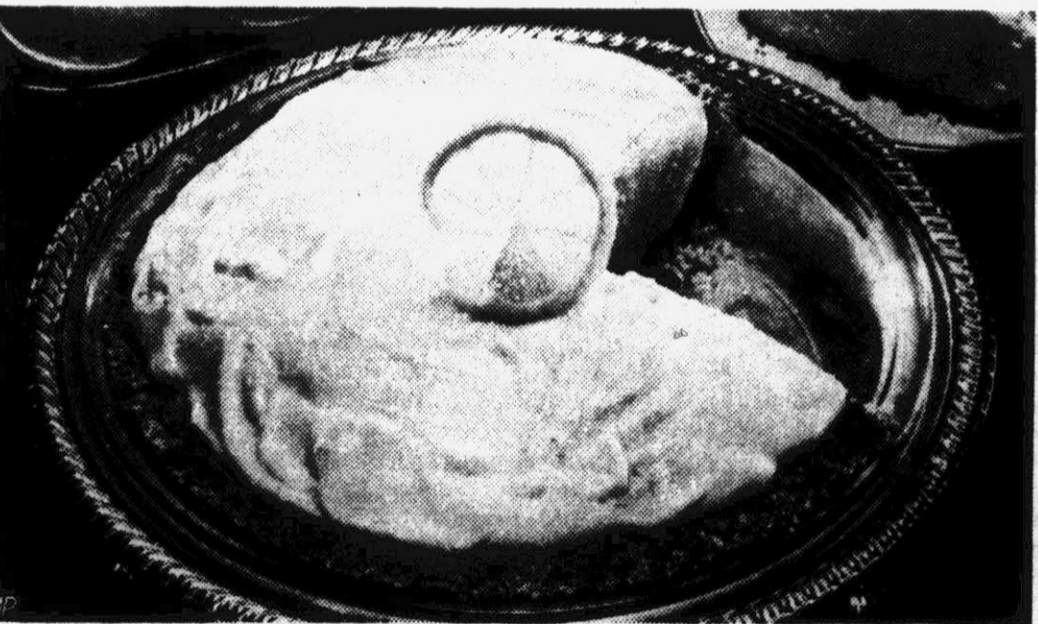

3 tablespoons sugar

1/4 cup butter, melted

Stir together crumbs and sugar; gradually stir in melted butter; blend well. Press onto bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until brown—about 8 minutes. Cool, then chill before filling.

A Step to Greater Efficiency

When Gov. Bob Scott met this week with his new cabinet, it marked the first time in modern history that a governor of this state could meet in one room with those directly responsible to him for operating North Carolina's government.

Had a similar meeting been attempted a year ago, it would have required a meeting hall that could accommodate more than 300 people, all state officials charged with the responsibility of reporting directly to the governor. Reorganization of the state's governmental structure, implemented by the General Assembly last year, has changed all that.

Instead of more than 300 heads of departments, agencies and boards of the state now reporting directly to the governor, the restructuring resulted in 19 individuals making up the new cabinet and reporting directly to the governor. Nine members of the new cabinet, including the lieutenant governor, are elected officials and 10 are departmental secretaries appointed to serve at the pleasure of the governor.

The new structure gives North Carolina a much more efficient structure for managing the affairs of the state. It provides a realistic approach to the major business of operating the hundreds of various facets of state government.

Instead of more than 300 state agencies operating on a more-or-less independent basis, there are now 17 major departments of state government into which these 300-plus agencies are grouped. Not only will the state in the long run have the benefits of more efficient operation from this reorganization, it will also reap the benefits of better planning and better coordination in carrying out the state's business.

We share Gov. Scott's view that through the governmental reorganizational program, his administration has accomplished "a major breakthrough in the goal we have set for ourselves—to improve government services to meet the needs of the future and to keep the costs commensurate with our people's ability to pay for those services."

They are three among nearly two dozen off-beat candidates for off-brand be successful in securing a sufficient number to give it legal status.

The American Party made it four years ago as the vehicle for the presidential candidacy of Gov. George Wallace of Alabama. It now must poll a minimum of 10 per cent of the votes for president or governor in November in order to remain a viable party.

Brock gives unfailing courtesy to all request. The customary response is a polite letter and a copy of the state's elections laws, with appropriate sections marked.

That was too much information for Lomoto, the Philadelphia pretzel dealer. He wrote a second time with a list of questions and the notation: "No need to send a book. Can you please answer the questions on one sheet of paper?"

Unbending The Issues Lomoto, who styled himself the founder of the Protector Party, said he wanted to straighten out crooked competition in the pretzel business.

"Stooges who hate Italians who outnumber me 15-to-one are screaming there (sic) lungs out and jumping on my ceiling," he complained. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., took Brock to federal court because he said North Carolina's requirements were "unconstitutional and ungodly."

Before the case was called and dismissed, King sent word he had taken off for Alaska as a missionary to the Eskimos.

If elected president, King said he would solve the race problem through an executive order declaring everybody white. "Being 'white' is not a 'color' it is a class, and what is so nice about it is that it is First Class," said the candidate of the God in Politics Party.

Most aspirants write by hand. Some appear in person. Gen. Cohen flew to Raleigh and spent an hour with Brock, dropping the names of Doris Duke, Nelson Rockefeller and Harry Truman in conversation.

Brock told a legislative committee last session about some of the kooky traffic through his office. "Maybe," said a legislator, "we should give you authority to decide on the sanity of persons trying to file as candidates."

"No, sir," said Brock. "What politician could pass such a test?"

Brock feels that the 18-21-year-olds will continue to vote with an independent mind

A Promising Choice To Fill Commission Post

Gov. Scott could have made no better choice for State Highway Commissioner than Henry Oglesby of Grifton.

Oglesby was named Wednesday to succeed Arthur Tripp, who resigned May 6.

Oglesby has spent much of his life in government service. He was administrative assistant to Congressman Herbert C. Bonner from 1945 to 1965.

We feel that Henry Oglesby will make an outstanding highway commissioner and he will represent our district well.

No Bloc Vote By The Young

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — All evidence seems to indicate that newly-enfranchised 18 to 21-year-old voters in North Carolina did not vote in greater numbers or any differently from other age groups.

That's the word from Alex Brock, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections, who has carefully studied the returns from the May 6 primary and the June 3 runoff.

"The general consensus is that the newly-enfranchised young voters did not vote together as a bloc," Brock told me in an interview.

"There is absolutely no indication that the young voters voted for one candidate. No candidate got the overwhelming majority of the young vote, as far as we have been able to determine."

Brock says the new young voters voted as their elders did. This doesn't mean they played follow the leader. It means they made up their mind independently, as older voters did, and that they weren't "in the bag" for any particular candidate.

"The young voters — many of whom were voting for the first time — probably did like other voters," Brock said, "and that is they made up their minds how they were going to vote on the way to the polls or after they got into the voting booth. I'm not saying the trivia handed to voters at the voting place makes a difference. I'm just saying most voters wait until the last minute to really decide which candidate they're going to vote for."

Brock feels that the 18-21-year-olds will continue to vote with an independent mind and will not be considered as a sure thing for any candidate.

On another matter, Brock says he remains terribly disappointed in the low turnout of voters in the May 6 primary.

The North Carolina Elections Board recorded the registration of 214,000 new voters between Jan. 1 and April 7. That's more than usually register over a two-year period.

"In addition to this high registration," Brock said, "our board had been sued 15 times for various reasons. All indications were that the primaries were attracting keen interest and the turnout at the polls was going to be high. But it was not."

Brock says the Democratic process is still suffering from two diseases. He says election officials must somehow get across the point to people that registration to vote is extremely easy, not difficult, and that voting is more than a right, it is a responsibility.

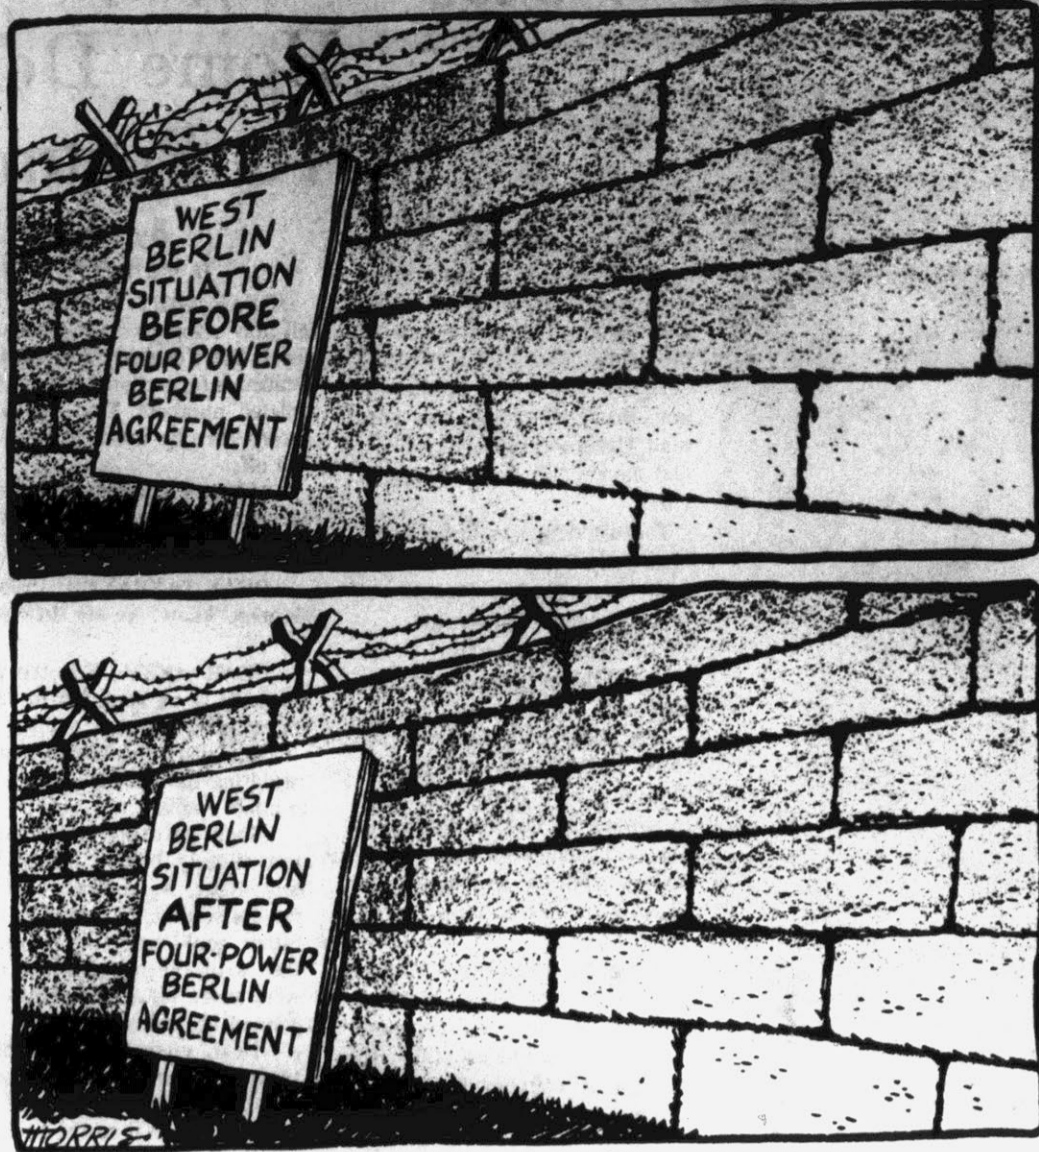

"When it comes to the registration and voting process," Brock said, "we are hurt by ignorance and apathy."

Brock feels that too much emotion, and too much time, energy and money is used to register voters. And not enough is used to get registered voters to the polls.

"People are computer and statistic crazy these days," Brock says. "They want to see more people on the rolls. But I would like to see an 80 or 85 per cent participation by the voters on the books and after we reach this, then go out and look for new voters. Some people call this a regressive attitude but I don't

PUZZLE PICTURE. FIND THE DIFFERENCE!

By J.J. KILPATRICK

Facing Hurricane Winds

It was Mr. Dooley, the famed Irish philosopher, who observed three-quarters of a century ago that "th' dimyocratic party ain't on speakin' terms with itself."

The more things change, as someone else has said, the more they stay the same. The party's coming convention promises to be a lulu.

No such prospect was in store four months ago, when almost everyone—notably the correspondents of Time magazine—assumed that Edmund Muskie would be the nominee. We were still taking comfort in those days in the old politics, and Muskie was the most comfortable old pol on the scene.

When Muskie first faltered and then collapsed, our speculation turned to Hubert Humphrey. To be sure, this kindest of all candidates was capable of provoking rage: In the national share-the-guilt campaign, brought on by Vietnam, Humphrey had received rather more than his share. His nomination, it was suggested, might alienate many of the young people, but he could unite other elements—labor, the blacks, the Jews, the old folks. On paper, we said, Humphrey looked like a unity man. It was the old politics talking.

Now it's George McGovern. His triumphal barge is floating toward Miami, straight into hurricane winds. A party that might have been fairly well united under Muskie, and not altogether fractured under Humphrey, threatens to dismember itself. The old politics, we are told, must now yield to the new. A day of participatory democracy has dawned. And the old pols can go fly their kites.

I will believe the triumph of George McGovern, and I will accept such an ascendancy of the new politics, on the morning of Wednesday, November 8. Not before. McGovern will inherit this nomination through one of those freaks of intestacy that delight the chancery lawyers. The party of 1968 died without leaving a will. McGovern is about to go home with the family silver, but he inherits some liabilities also: He cannot well abandon his quarreling relations.

Forgive me a certain stubbornness on this point. The old politics was the politics of compromise, of accommodation, of you scratch my back, I'll scratch yours. It was the politics of patience, the politics that could embrace the pretty image of reform without actually taking the girl to the altar.

It was pragmatic politics, the politics that worked. It is the fashion these days, especially among the more fervid evangelists of the McGovern revival, to denounce such old politics as the devil's work. Getting along with Mayor Daley, in the new morality, is like knowing sin.

I may be wrong—I often am—but I do not believe the old politics can be successfully disdained: Not if one expects to win an election. Under the new rules for Miami, the reformers have effectively expelled a host of old regulars. Under the proposed reorganization of the party structure, men and women who have devoted years to the Democratic party would be relegated to subordinate rank.

The platform drafted in Washington this week, in its most controversial planks, may have great appeal; but on these points it will have great appeal to small num-

Rusty Green Thumb

By C. G. McDANIEL

AP Science Writer CHICAGO (AP) — Using a typewriter isn't much preparation for using a shovel—at least the gardening kind of shovel.

This was made painfully—very painfully—clear when I was on vacation in Arkansas recently and dug and plowed and hoed and raked and crawled on hands and knees to plant a garden.

For most of the year, the green thumbs of this erstwhile farm youth are confined to stand-up cultivation of house plants in a city apartment.

After a day of digging and chopping away Nature's undisciplined growth in Arkansas, I was miserably aware that the sedentary life and, alas, the years had sent the muscles of this spare frame into hibernation—permanently, it seemed.

But with a moan, I again donned my overalls and straw hat and a bandana the color of my sunburned neck and set to work again with greater pain and less vigor.

About three days of labor were enough—more than enough, my protesting body told me. Nature had been subdued, and where once weeds flourished there were parallel rows of mounded black earth where grew, or at least I hope there grew:

String beans, lima beans, tomatoes, squash, okra, lettuce, egg plant, parsley, spinach and sweet peppers.

Here and there elsewhere I planted to nourish the soul: Aspers, periwinkles, chrysanthemums, pinks, dahlias and lilies.

Ere long, the bugs and worms willing, I'll be rewarded with a real, luscious vine-ripened tomato, not even kinsmen to those anemic berries bearing the same name sold in tubes in supermarkets.

And there will be all those other goodies which won't have time to wilt between the picking and the preparing, and sturdy blossoms on strong stems standing in haughty superiority over their hothouse cousins.

To deter the pests, I sowed smelly marigolds among the vegetables and strewed mothballs about as insect scarecrows. But I'm not optimistic.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL

June 29, 1932

Greenville Post No. 2615. Veterans of Foreign Wars, composed of men who have seen honorable service in the armed forces of the United States in foreign countries during time of war, will be mustered in at the Pitt County court house tomorrow night. The V.F.W. stated that the charter would be held open for the next sixty days and anyone will become a charter member during that time.

Its platform committee deadlocked over the prohibition plank, the Democratic National Convention killed time with odds and ends today listening to and hour and half of sturd speeches and wise-cracking, and then recessed until seven o'clock tonight.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words

To the editor: In your June 14, 1972 issue, you quoted an item from the Charlotte Observer in respect to self-serve service stations. We would like to offer some clarifying insight into certain points presented in the mentioned article.

Our oil industry (Oil Jobbers Association and Service Station Association) never once opposed self-serve gasoline per se. The proposed law in the 1971 General Assembly would have prohibited "unattended" money-operated self-serve outlets. In fact, we have consistently explained that we were not opposed to conventional self-serve.

While our Association is no longer taking a stand against unattended self-serves, your readers may be interested to know that unattended gasoline outlets are at present prohibited and illegal under the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act (although there's a chance the law will be amended.) Additionally, more than one hundred of the larger cities and towns in North Carolina (including Greenville, I believe) and several counties also prohibit such unattended self-serve outlets through local laws. Further, while it's true 40 of the states permit self-serve, the Charlotte item failed to mention that 33 of these states still prohibit unattended self-serve outlets.

As stated, we are not for or against any type of self-service, but we don't appreciate the Charlotte Observer's "innocuous" claims that we have been opposed to any and all self-service operations in the state. Nothing could further from the truth and if anyone would merely go back and study news items of a year ago, he will see that we tried to convey this thought on our position. Unfortunately, far too many people still fail to grasp the fact that there's a big difference between conventional self-serve and unattended self-serve.

Strength For Today

NATURE OF TEMPTATION

The story of the temptation of Adam and Eve found in the third chapter of Genesis is one of the most remarkable in the entire Bible. The serpent tempts Eve to eat of forbidden fruit, implying that the reason why God does not want the human pair to eat the fruit of the knowledge of good and evil is because, having eaten it, the eyes of the two creatures shall be opened and they shall be as God.

From that day to this the word of the tempter has been, "Ye shall be as God." Repeated over and over again through the ages this has produced in man such a sense of self-sufficiency that although he does not come out and say that he knows more than God, down in the bottom of his heart he feels that so far as his own affairs are concerned he knows more about them than God or anybody else.

In other words, unregenerate man becomes an idolater, and the idol he worships is himself. Temptation finds him an easy victim. It tells him that if he does not yield to temptation he will miss something so worth while that he will regret it all the rest of his life. God with His rules and regulations is just trying to keep man from having a good time — so the tempter tells him. Live the free, untrammelled life, he whispers. These are the continuing temptations of the one who in the beginning whispered to our first parents, "Yield — and ye shall be as God Himself." By Earl Douglass

Price Control Goal 'Feasible'

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight months after conducting his first meeting as Price Commission chairman, C. Jackson Grayson Jr. feels "we are at the point where we can't claim victory and can't be absolutely certain we will reach our goal."

Success in controlling price inflation is, however, a "reasonable, a feasible" prospect he said as he prepared for his first vacation break, a trip to Europe, following a string of double-length workdays and weekend sessions.

The real solution to inflation, he suggested, is not in artificial marketplace restraints but in making the economy more productive through management and worker innovation and creativity. "We can treat the symptom," he said in reference to price restraints, "but it's a temporary thing."

His remarks were made in a telephone interview. Increases in productivity have been disappointingly small in recent years. In the first quarter the rate dropped to 2.1 per cent. It was 4 per cent in the summer of 1971.

It is over a longer period, and in contrast to figures from other nations, that the problem stands out. In the years 1965-1970, the average annual increase in the United Kingdom was 3.6 per cent, Italy 5.1, Germany 5.3, France 6.6, Japan 14.2. In the United States it was only 2.1 per cent.

The importance of raising those figures should be obvious to all: Produce more goods for the same cost in time and money and you can profitably sell them at a constant or decreasing price.

But raising productivity isn't simply a matter of "turning out more widgets on the assembly line," Grayson points out. As has been shown in the past, attempts to speed up people as if they were machines is counterproductive.

Nor is the problem simply one of improving efficiency. It is far more complex. The solution involves not only more productive machines and workers, but creative, innovative approaches to the very concept of work.

"If work is exciting, workers will be more productive," Grayson believes.

But work isn't exciting for many workers. They complain it isn't meaningful, that they don't feel a part of the company, that they share no pride in the product.

This is one of the great challenges to anyone concerned with increasing productivity, Grayson feels, and he has a guideline for seeking the solution: "Spend more time with the individual and the individual will think of the innovation."

Other factors are also involved. Some economists insist, for example, that structural changes in American society contribute to the problem.

Different norms, laws, practices and attitudes tend to restrict output, these economists say. They claim that the adversarial relationship between labor and management has defeated attempts at raising productivity. And they remind us that the social advances and corrections demanded of business also push up prices.

bers. The McGovern reforms, and the McGovern victories, have come on like last week's floods. The phenomenon is awesome. The Senator himself, I suspect, may be both astounded and dismayed at the disappearance of old landmarks. All he had asked, in contemplating the drab gardens of the Democratic convention, was a nice invigorating shower. Instead it is raining blacks, Chicanos, bearded youths and women's libbers. It is pouring giddy resolutions. Eighty percent of the delegates at Miami will be attending their first convention. One recalls the story of the sorcerer's apprentice, who sent his broom for a bucket of water. Came the deluge.

McGovern is an experienced politician. He knows, far better than some of the young zealots who have attached themselves to rules, on credentials. But it will take consummate skill, at this point, to hold the new without losing the old. The Miami convention, to repeat, promises to be a lulu. Speaking as an old Goldwater whif, in a sene of partisan rapture, I wouldn't miss it for the world.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Beach City Council has shelved a request by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to build a "poor people's city" in time for the Democratic National Convention.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, head of the SCLC, appeared before the council Wednesday to ask for a campsite at Flamingo Park for about 500 poor people during the July 10-14 nominating convention.

believe it is."

Brock says there is also evidence that a lot of people 50 and over haven't bothered to become eligible to vote. Many of these, he says, are just ashamed that they've never registered and don't want to make the move for the first time this late in life. The Elections Board hopes to be able to reach these people with some kind of a positive message.

And with young people, the Elections Board will help with a course in 100 state high schools, trying to impress on young people the importance of voting in primaries and elections.

"Low voter turnouts such as we had this spring make a mockery of the Democratic process," Brock said. "A majority is supposed to rule in a Democracy. But with low turnouts such as we had in North Carolina this spring, a minority of our people is making the decision. That's not healthy."

"I come today with a mandate from the poor," Abernathy told the council. "We feel that we must make a witness at the Democratic Convention. We have chosen to build Resurrection City II and through a non-violent process to exercise our right to challenge the Democrats to be the party of the people."

Mayor Chuck Hall said the council was hamstrung by its vote last week to deny campsites to all protesters within the Miami Beach city limits.

City Manager Clifford O'Key was instructed to find out if there was some way the council could accommodate the civil rights group.

Abernathy said SCLC's mission was not to protest but "to lobby for the things black people need."

Abernathy received a standing ovation from many of the 250 people attending the meeting when he appeared.

After shelving the SCLC's request, city councilmen voted to give Police Chief Rocky Pomerance power to declare states of emergency and curfews during the political conventions. The council, however, retained the right to veto his actions.

The council adopted one other ordinance, permitting the formation of police lines during riots or unlawful assemblies, and rejected eight other proposed statutes.

During the often tempestuous meeting a number of citizens pleaded for more power and guns for police against an anticipated invasion by thousands of protesters.

The central question before the court was whether capital punishment violates the Eighth Amendment's prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishments."

Everybody knows about Bad Henry's relentless pursuit of the Babe's big record—but now, all of a sudden, it seems he's shooting for another target as well.

Bad Henry, of course, is Hank Aaron of Atlanta, who today is just 61 home runs short of Babe Ruth's all-time major league record of 714.
He got his 653rd career blast

Wednesday night against San Diego and, for two reasons, it couldn't have come at a more propitious time.
The more obvious one is that it won the game. It was a two-run, tie-breaking clout in the ninth inning that gave the Braves a 4-2 triumph in the opener of their two-night doubleheader. But he couldn't equal his heroics in the nightcap and the Padres won that one 4-2, ending their latest tailspin at five games.

In other National League games, the New York Mets edged Philadelphia 3-2, Montreal beat Pittsburgh 3-1, Los Angeles blanked Houston 5-0, St. Louis defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-4 and Cincinnati turned back San Francisco 4-2.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox clipped Oakland 6-4, Minnesota nipped California 7-6, Boston flipped Detroit 5-3, Baltimore zipped the New York Yankees 4-0 and Milwaukee swept Cleveland 4-2 and 5-2 in a twilight twinbill.

The fact that Ralph Garr was on base with an infield single was the second reason for the timeliness of Aaron's 14th homer of the season.

Instead of just one run-batted in, it gave him two—and that gave him 1,992 RBI for his career, catapulting him one ahead of Lou Gehrig and into second place behind the Babe's 2,209 on that all-time chart. So suddenly he's on the trail of two incredible records.

"There has been so much talk about trying to break Ruth's home run record," Aaron said between games, "that I hadn't thought much about the RBI thing."

"It's quite an honor, though, to drive in more runs than Gehrig because I've always considered him one of the greatest players in the history of the game."

It appeared Aaron would be able to sit out the second game after his first-game heroics.

Actually, he did—until the ninth inning. In the eighth, run-scoring singles by Larry Sahl and Fred Kendall had highlighted a three-run burst that gave the Padres a 4-2 lead.

And so, with one out and Garr again on base, exactly the same situation as in the first game, Bad Henry strode to the plate—and promptly slapped into a game-ending double play. Such is life.

The Mets moved into a virtual tie with first-place Pittsburgh in the East, climbing within four percentage points of the Bucs by beating the Phillies on pinch-hitter Jim Beau-champ's eighth-inning, tie-breaking sacrifice fly, which gave Tom Seaver his 10th victory.

But the umpire disagreed, calling it a hit. And, as Robinson hesitated, Marshall took the valuable extra base.

The Expos jumped on nine-game winner Steve Blass for two first-inning runs on a walk, Ron Fairly's triple and Boots Days' single, then rode Bill Stoneman's eight-hitter past the Pirates.

Don Sutton hurled a two-hitter for his fourth shutout of the year and the Dodgers, held hitless by Jerry Reuss through four innings, erupted for three runs in the fifth to down the Astros.

A three-run outburst in the first inning and Ted Simmons' two-run homer in the seventh highlighted the 15-hit assault that gave the Cardinals their eighth victory in nine games.

Jim Hickman hit a three-run homer for the Cubs.

The Reds moved 1½ games ahead of Houston in the West as Johnny Bench drove in a pair of runs and Tony Perez smacked two doubles and a homer in the triumph over the Giants.

Mrs. Connors Yells For Her Son To Win

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jim Connors, 19-year-old left-hander from Belleville, Ill., with all the makings of a future tennis superstar, plays Italy's Adriano Panatta today in the third round of the 86th All-England tournament.

And Mrs. Gloria Connors will be in the stands shouting "let's go."

Her enthusiastic support caused many admonitions from elderly English spectators when Jim smashed seventh-seeded Bob Hewitt of South Africa out of the championships in the first round.

"But what's wrong if I get excited for my boy?" asked his mother.

"I don't mean to annoy or of-ferend anyone. People roar encouragement at other ball games, so why not at tennis?" A tennis player herself, Mrs. Connors taught her son the rudiments of the game as soon as he could walk, then handed him over to the instruction of Pancho Gonzales at the age of 16.

Connors got into the third round by overwhelming Nicky Kalogeropoulos of Greece 6-3, 7-5, 8-6 Wednesday.

Nine other American men are in the last 32. They are: top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif.; Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash.; Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif.; Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif.; Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.; Dick Stickton of Port Washington, N.Y.; Mike Estep of Dallas; Alexander Mayer of Woodmere, N.Y.; and Dan Bleck-nger of Oshkosh, Wis.

Clark Graebner of New York City, one of the U.S. hopes for the title, was off form and bowed out in the second round to Ilie Nastase of Romania, the No. 2 seed, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Hewitt and Andres Gimeno of Spain were the only seeded players beaten thus far. Gimeno, seeded fourth, lost to Onny Parun of New Zealand.

In the women's division, 17-year-old Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and three-time Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif. were among the American winners Wednesday. Little Chris, winner of the women's title in the London Grass Court Championships, beat Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, while Mrs. King ousted Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, Calif., 6-2, 6-0.

Appeal By Golf Loop

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — The case of Jane Blalock vs. the LPGA is en route to a U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Houston.

Bud Erickson, executive director of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, said Wednesday night the wheels were in motion to appeal the ruling handed down earlier in the day by a U.S. district court in Atlanta. Judge Charles A. Moyer Jr. granted Miss Blalock the right to compete in tournaments pending trial of her $5-million antitrust suit against the LPGA.

The leading money winner on the women's pro tour this season, with more than $38,000, was suspended from pro golf on May 31 for one year for breaking the rules of the game. She took the case to court and was granted a restraining order, then, on Wednesday, Judge Moyer issued a temporary injunction.

"He was just trying to avoid a decision," Erickson said.

Moyer did, however, rule that any money Jane won on the tour would be put in a court trust until the case was resolved.

Ramos Captures Lightweight Title

MADRID (AP) — Armando "Mando" Ramos of Los Angeles beat Pedro Carrasco of Spain on points to become the new world lightweight boxing champion in their third controversial World Boxing Council title fight Wednesday night.

Ramos and Carrasco have twice met for the title which was vacant.

In the first, held in Spain, Ramos was disqualified and the bout awarded to Carrasco by the referee. Then the WBC refused to accept the verdict and ordered a rematch.

Ramos won a 15-round split decision in the second fight in Los Angeles but the WBC again refused to give title recognition because the referee and two judges were all from southern California.

In this third bout between Ramos and Carrasco the former was declared the winner on a 15-round decision by a narrow margin of three points.

The Mexican referee, Raimundo Solis gave it to Ramos 144-142. A Californian judge had it for Ramos 146-142 and a Spanish judge had Carrasco ahead 145-142.

Ramos was more aggressive than Carrasco and attacked with a good combination to the face from beginning to the end of the fight.

Carrasco went down twice, once in the first round and again in the second round when Ramos sent terrific lefts and rights to the face and body of the Spaniard.

Ramos tipped the scales at 134½ while Carrasco weighed 134½.

The Spaniard had a cut on the left eyebrow from the second round and bled steadily to the end of the bout which was one of the most exciting ever seen in Madrid.

The estimated 12,000 fans at the Sports Palace booed the decision in the belief Carrasco had been the winner, but Spanish boxing writers agreed in saying "the result was just and Ramos was a deserving winner."

World Hockey Association To Watch Black Hawks' Reaction

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — The World Hockey Association, especially its legal staff, was interested today in what the Chicago Black Hawks would say when they broke their silence on Bobby Hull jumping from the National Hockey League to become a Winnipeg Jet.

The Black Hawks, who had withheld comment since Hull signed a multiyear, multimillion-dollar contract Tuesday, to coach and play for the Jets, scheduled an 11:30 a.m. (CDT) news conference.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, threw the puck to the Black Hawks Wednesday when he said: "The league has no official status in this. When they (the Black Hawks) review the situation and consult their advisers, I'm sure they will take appropriate steps."

Gary L. Davidson, president of the WHA that already has taken 34 players from the other league for its first season this fall, said his legal staff was ready to meet any legal tests arising from the signing of Hull or other players.

"I'm confident we can prevail," said Davidson, who also was one of the founders of the American Basketball Association. "I'm sure the NHL, and I can speak for the WHA, would not want a long-drawn battle in court. I was told the ABA paid legal fees of more than $1 million last year."

Davidson noted that, while many professional basketball players have been signed by other teams while their old contracts are still in force, the WHA intends to sign only players whose obligations have been met.

NHL teams, however, feel that, even though players have completed a contract, they are bound, under the reserve clause, to serve the team for at least one more season.

Hull signed a $1.75 million contract—$250,000 a year for the first five years and $100,000 for each of the next five years—with the Jets to play for at least through the 1977-78 season and then continue as coach or executive if he wanted to retire as a player.

He also received a $1 million certified check from the WHA to sign with their league.

Eastern Race Given Latin Tempo By Crafty Old Cuban Pitchers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Luis Tiant and Mike Cuellar, two crafty old Cubans, gave the race in the American League East a Latin tempo Wednesday night ... with a big assist from rookie Juan Beniquez.

Tiant, a 32-year-old right-hander from Havana, pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 5-3 victory over Detroit with five innings of one-hit relief.

That sliced the Tigers' lead to one game over Baltimore when Cuellar, a 35-year-old southpaw from Santa Clara, Cuba, hurled the Orioles to a five-hit 5-0 triumph over the New York Yankees.

Elsewhere, the Chicago White Sox downed Oakland 6-4, Minnesota edged California 7-6 and Milwaukee took two from Cleveland 4-2 and 5-2. Texas and Kansas City were not scheduled.

In the National League, the New York Mets nipped Philadelphia 3-2, Montreal shaded Pittsburgh 3-1, Cincinnati defeated San Francisco 4-2, Los Angeles spanked Houston 5-0, St. Louis trimmed the Chicago Cubs 8-4 and Atlanta split a pair with San Diego, winning the opener 4-2, then losing the second game 4-2 to the Padres.

herky-jerky corkscrew delivery. "I give the batters my back and surprise them with my hesitation. I confused them tonight the way I used to before I was hurt."

After the Red Sox took a 4-3 lead against Joe Coleman with three runs in the fifth on Doug Griffin's double, Carl Yastrzemski's triple, Reggie Smith's single and stolen base and a single by Beniquez, Phil Gagliano drew a bases-loaded walk in the eighth and Beniquez, a 22-year-old rookie shortstop from San Sebastian, Puerto Rico, filling in for the injured Venezuelan, Luis Aparicio, chacha-ed across the plate with an insurance run.

Cuellar gave the yankees fits with his slow curve and screwball despite a case of the blahs. "I didn't feel too good," he reported. "Maybe it was the humidity, but I had no fast ball. But everything else I put exactly where I wanted."

The Orioles broke through Fritz Peterson with two runs in the fifth when left fielder Roy White lost Mark Belanger's two-out, bases-loaded fly ball in the twilight. In the sixth, Brooks Robinson doubled and Merv Rettenmund homered.

The White Sox hammered Oakland's Vida Blue for home runs by Dick Allen, Walt Williams and Tom Egan before downing the A's and Bob Locker on Carlos May's two-run single in the seventh inning.

Harmon Killebrew, Phil Roof and Danny Thompson all homered for Minnesota, but the Twins finally nipped California with a run in the eighth as pinch runner Dan Monzon scored from third when third baseman Ken McMullen fell down trying to field Cesar Tovar's infield hit. Ken Berry hit a two-run homer for the Angels.

Rick Auerbach tripled home the tie-breaking run in the fourth inning of the second game and scored on Ron Theobald's grounder as the Brewers swept the Indians and stretched their longest winning streak of the season to five games.

Left-hander Gary Ryerson, making his major league debut, won the opener by scattering eight hits as George Scott drove in three runs.

Ryerson wears a brace on his left leg as a result of an attack of polio at age 3 which wasn't diagnosed until he was 12 when it was noticed the leg was lacking muscular development.

"It's still only about half as developed as the right leg," he said, "and I wear a leather brace, which has the effect of taping. There's a slight bone deformity in the top of my left foot, which gives me limited flexibility, but a stiff ankle is almost an advantage to me in my pitching motion because I can push off a lot harder on it."

Mrs. Gera Says Called It Right

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "I called a good game," says Mrs. Bernice Gera of her one-game career as professional baseball's first woman umpire—an experience that has left her "frustrated and disappointed in baseball."

"If they don't want women in baseball, women should not go to the games," said Mrs. Gera, who vowed to work in the women's liberation movement.

However, the 40-year-old housewife from New York said Wednesday at a news conference that she was not calling for women to boycott baseball games. "Every woman should think for herself."

Mrs. Gera said that when she went on the field as base umpire for Saturday's New York Pennsylvania League contest between Geneva and Auburn at Geneva, N.Y., she knew it was going to be her first and last game.

"I decided that the umpires' meeting that I would resign after one game," said the woman, who had fought legal battles for six years for the right to become a pro baseball arbitrator.

Mrs. Gera said it was apparent at the umpires' meeting Friday that she would get no cooperation from her colleagues.

"Umpires must work as a team," she said. "But I went on to the field alone. I had no partner."

The umpire working behind the plate Saturday was Douglas Hartmayer, also a rookie, he had been critical on national television of Mrs. Gera, who reversed one of her decisions and then ejected Auburn Manager Nolan Campbell for arguing.

Mrs. Gera said that when she first tried to get into baseball she was thinking of being an umpire.

"I would have done anything," she said. "I would have shined the ballplayers' shoes. That's how much I love baseball."

Van Breda Kolff Missed Game

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Bill Van Breda Kolff, who was named coach of the National Basketball Association Phoenix Suns Wednesday, said there was nothing complicated about his return to professional basketball.

"I just missed everything about basketball," Van Breda Kolff commented at a news conference, "the game, the competition, the people."

Van Breda Kolff previously coached the Los Angeles Lakers and the Detroit Pistons. He quit the Pistons after 10 games of the 1971-72 season.

He vowed Wednesday to curb his temper but still let the players and fans "know I'm around."

Van Breda Kolff, who drew more than his share of technical fouls with his sideline outbursts in his previous coaching positions, defended his "excitement," saying, "I live to win, and you have to fight for your team."

He said the Suns were a "very good club ... a club with a lot of maneuverability and explosiveness."

Van Breda Kolff replaces Cotton Fitzsimmons, who resigned recently to take over the coaching duties for the Atlanta Hawks.

Frosh Crew Is Harvard Entry

By NOEL HUGHES
Associated Press Sports Writer
HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — A freshman crew from Harvard University was entered in the Henley Royal Regatta today and Coach Ted Washburn admitted, "I'm nervous."

The inexperienced American eight was defending the Thames Challenge Cup, won by Harvard's senior lightweights last year.

"We have never entered a freshman crew at Henley before," said Washburn.

"Naturally we hope to win, and this is certainly the best young crew I've coached at Harvard. You can't really expect these youngsters to beat older crews here who are trained up to the minute."

"If there are any weaknesses in the opposition, however, my crew is good enough to exploit them."

The Harvard eight had a bye in the first round, and today took on London's St. Thomas Hospital in a bid to move into the quarterfinals, over the one-mile, 550-yard River Thames course.

Co-favorite with Harvard for the Thames Cup was an eight from England's Kingston Rowing Club, winner of several recent regattas.

The Kingston crew, more experienced, trains all year on the River Thames, whereas four of the Harvard squad never had rowed before they entered Harvard last October.

America's three survivors in the Diamond Challenge Sculls for single rowers had easy victories Wednesday.

But they were to meet more formidable opponents in the quarter-finals today.

Jim Dietz, the current American champion, takes on England's Robin Parish, who upset Australia's Dick Garrard Wednesday.

Sean Drea, an Irishman rowing for the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia faced the Soviet Union's Vitautas Butkus.

Larry Klecatsky of the New York Athletic Club had probably the toughest task of all.

He met Alexander Timoschin of the Soviet Union, who became the youngest-ever Olympic rowing gold medalist when he won in Mexico in 1968 at the age of 19.

Wallace Post-Convention Course Undetermined

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Marverick Democrat George Wallace will stick with his party through the convention where he'll demand adoption of a platform echoing his views, says the Alabama governor's campaign manager.
But after the convention, said Charles Snider, it would not be out of the question for Wallace to run once again as a third-party presidential candidate, if the Democrats act as expected and reject him as their nominee.
Snider would not speculate on Wallace's strategy if the party platform adopted next month at the Miami Beach convention displeases the governor. Snider talked with newsmen after con-fering with Wallace at Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md.
The party's frontrunner, Sen.
George McGovern, waited to day for the convention's Credentials Committee to resolve a challenge that could cost him nearly 150 delegate votes.

The challenge involves California's winner-take-all primary which added 271 votes to the McGovern column after his June 6 victory there. Supporters of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who ran second, and seven other candidates on the California ballot claim the delegates should be apportioned according to the popular vote to conform with party rules.
The test comes at a time
McGovern claims he is just 20 votes short of the 1,509 needed for nomination. The Associated Press delegate poll gives him
1,367.9, or 141.1 short of a majority.
Humphrey, who trails a distant second, clung to the hope that delegates would turn to him as the candidate "best capable of beating Mr. Nixon."
He blamed his own mistakes and a flawed selection process for wiling his candidacy.

Nevertheless, Humphrey said in an Associated Press interview, "I believe that I am the candidate that can build the coalition that will defeat Mr. Nixon."
Wallace's campaign manager honed the outlines of the floor fight shaping up over the platform.
Denouncing the draft prepared by the Platform Committee, Snider said, "We're going to Miami to fight it with everything we've got available to fight with. We felt like the people sent them a message.
We felt like the Platform Committee didn't get the message."
A committee-adopted plank describing busing as acceptable in cases where it both improves the quality of education and de-segregates schools is the major irritant to Wallace forces.
McGovern, meanwhile,

wound up his five-state Southern swing with praise for several of the region's new, moderate governors as possible running mates and a vow to campaign against President Nixon in Dixie if he is the Democratic nominee.
He said he asked Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter "if he were available and he didn't give any conclusive answer." He said he also would consider Govs. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, Reubin Askew of Florida or John West of South Carolina "an asset on the ticket."
In another development, a disputed proposal to revamp
the Democratic National Committee to provide for more grass-roots participation was dealt a sharp rebuke by House Democrats.
Meeting in a special caucus
Wednesday, they voted 150 to 50
in favor of a move by Rep.
Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., that declared the plan is "not in the best interests of the Democratic party" and needs further study.

The nonbinding caucus vote was seen as further evidence of unhappiness among party regulars over the direction of the party.
There was a hint, however,
that organized labor might overcome its objections to McGovern and support the South Dakota senator if he wins the nomination.
Al Barkan, the AFL-CIO's
chief political strategist, showed up at a union convention with a big "Dump Nixon" button and said the main job of labor is to defeat the President in November.
In other developments:
—In Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs.
Ruthie May Deal, one of nine black Florida delegates backing Wallace, said she may resign because of "constant harassment" from crank callers, both whites and blacks.
—Democratic Party Treasurer Robert S. Strass said he will leave that post when his term

'expires after the convention to return to his Texas law practice and other interests.
—Sen. Robert Dole, the Republican national chairman, said in a Chicago speech that the Democratic platform "is designed simply to allow (McGovern) to pursue his radical proposals and at the same time to make them seem to fit within the officially stated policy of one of the two major parties in this country."

Massachusetts To Try Lenient Marijuana Law

By HARRY EISENBERG
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — A new drug law, more lenient on marijuana and more restrictive on other drugs, will go into effect in Massachusetts Saturday.
"In the past, our drug laws have been called irrational, illogical, irrelevant and inane, and with some justification," said Asst. Atty. Gen. David Vigoda, who was principally responsible for drafting the new law. "This will help bring us out of the back woods."
Under the recodification, there will be stricter control of so-called "hard" drugs and
"more realistic" restraint on marijuana.
Stricter rein is placed on doctors, pharmacists, salesmen and hospitals experimenting with various drugs.
"These control measures are the most important," Vigoda said. "They protect all the public, not just a segment."

Marijuana no longer will be considered a narcotic. "Now at least the words are going to mean the same legally as medically and pharmacologically," Vigoda added.
Marijuana penalties are reduced in the new law to the level of sentences being handed out by most state judges.
The penalty for possession of marijuana will be a maximum of six months and a $500 fine for a first offense, compared with the current maximum of 3½ years and a $1,000 fine. Under the new law, however, a judge must offer the first offender probation unless there are overriding reasons for not doing so.
If the probation period is served adequately, the defendant's record is expunged and he is "deemed to be not convicted," Vigoda said. After the first conviction, it is left to the judge's discretion whether to

The new law reduces the list of drugs it is a crime to be in the presence of to heroin. In the past, being in the presence of a person possessing marijuana could bring a five-year jail sentence, 18 months more than the maximum sentence for the person who possessed the drug.

The new law raises the maximum penalty for distribution of heroin from five years to 10.
"The addiction liability of heroin is greater than almost any other drug," Vigoda said.
"The feeling here was that the guy who profiteers from exploiting people ought to be clobered."
The maximum penalty for the private possession of heroin, however, is reduced from five years to two.
The sale of counterfeit drugs,

marijuana or milk sugar for heroin, which previously was not a crime, now will receive the same penalty as if it were actually the drug.

a new smoothness happened.
Barton's QT.

Several years ago, we at Barton began storing away a whiskey unlike any other ever produced in this country.
A new whiskey distilled at a higher proof than most traditional American whiskey, and then stored in seasoned oak casks.
The result is the new smoothness of Barton's QT.
The Quiet Taste. A whiskey made to give you all the mellow, full-bodied flavor you drink whiskey for. But with a noticeably smoother taste.
It's similar in character to the other popular American milder than any whiskey you've ever tasted.

$41 Million VEPCO Rate Increase

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. has been granted a $41 million rate increase, just slightly more than half the $79 million the utility sought, by a 2-1 decision of the new-look State Corporation Commission that contained a number of other provisions.

The Wednesday decision made permanent a temporary $22 million surcharge Veeco was granted in July 1971, which means the utility's Virginia customers will be saddled with only $19 more than they now are paying. Rates thus will increase about 9.4 per cent.

The new rates, which will take effect July 1, are subject to review by the Federal Price Commission.

The $41 million award was called "fair and reasonable" by the two new members of the SCC—Preston C. Shannon, who wrote the opinion, and Junie L. Bradshaw.

But the senior member of the commission, Chairman Ralph T. Catterall, said the award was "manifestly inadequate" and that Veeco needed a minimum increase of $64 million.

The decision was called "disappointing" by Veeco President T. Justin Moore, who said Veeco still believes "the evidence justified the full amount requested."

In a statement, Moore said the company will "make every effort to use the funds allowed by the ... commission to maintain the level of service our customers have come to expect."

"We will simply have to wait and see how this decision, coupled with the losses Veeco sustained in last week's flood and other economic pressures, affect our $2 billion construction program to meet the future needs of our customers."

The SCC also granted Veeco a fuel adjustment clause which allows the company to adjust its rates, up or down, in line with variations in the prices it must pay for coal, oil and gas necessary for the generation of power.

But the SCC said it would watch closely the practical application of this clause and would "order modifications, changes, or its outright cancellation if the public interest requires us to do so."

The increase permits Veeco

an 8.56 per cent rate of return on its rate base—the value of its property, investments, etc.—in Virginia.

Atty. Gen. Andrew P. Miller said he was pleased the SCC limited the amount of the increase but said he felt a somewhat lower rate of return "would have been fair and reasonable based on the testimony of the expert witness presented by this office."

Miller, attending the meeting of the National Association of Attorneys General in Lake Tahoe, Nev., said he had not had a chance to study the decision in depth and, "as a result, I cannot forecast what future action might be taken by my office."

In its decision, the commission also?

—Set a policy of annual review of the rates charged by all utility firms operating in Virginia.

—Warned Veeco that, in view of the "soaring increase" in demand for power and the difficulties encountered by utilities in meeting the demand, the company must be prepared to "justify fully" any money spent on advertising aimed at increasing power consumption.

—Suggested the company look to the other states it serves—North Carolina and West Virginia—for a better rate of return, a move the commission said would "benefit the Virginia-regulated taxpayer as well as the company."

Moore said Veeco "will be seeking prompt rate relief from other jurisdictions where we operate—North Carolina, West Virginia and our wholesale customers under the Federal Power Commission's jurisdiction."

He said the fuel adjustment clause approved "will be helpful in offsetting any future increases in fuel prices which have plagued us in the past."

Rate Boost Condemned

BREVARD, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Charles H. Taylor of Transylvania County, who has been seeking insurance reform in his five years in the legislature, says a proposed 7.4 per cent increase in automobile liability rates breaks faith with the people.

Taylor, the House minority leader in the last session, added in a statement Wednesday that North Carolinians had been promised extensive insurance reform.

The increase has been approved by Insurance Commissioner Edwin S. Lanier. But it has been appealed to the courts by the state attorney general's office, and won't go into effect pending outcome of the court action.

Taylor suggested that a law prohibiting a commissioner from approving rate increases during the final months of his term may be in order. Lanier did not seek renomination in the May 6 Democratic primary.

Taylor, who is now a republican nominee for the state Senate, said there have been study commissions on auto liability insurance since 1966, and that numerous rate increases have been granted during that time.

"We should have no rate increases until we get a meaningful study commission report. We owe it to the public, if we are seriously considering auto insurance reform, to stabilize prices as a symbol of good faith," Taylor said.

Commander In Vietnam 'Pegged' For The Top

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
SAIGON (AP) — The new commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, was pegged as a rising star in the Army long before he was first sent to Vietnam six years ago.

He proved his battle prowess as a battalion commander in the Korean war. And he demonstrated a talent for diplomacy from 1962 to 1964 in one of the most delicate Pentagon assignments—representing the Army on Capitol Hill as chief of legislative liaison.

Even then Weyand's colleagues were picking him as a future chief of staff, a fine performance for an ROTC graduate who never went to West Point. On Wednesday President Nixon gave him a big push toward the Army pinnacle when the White House announced that the 56-year-old native of Arbutle, Calif., would succeed Gen. Creighton D. Abrams in the top American military post in Saigon.

If he follows the trail blazed by Abrams and his predecessor, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the next step for Weyand will be Chief of Staff.

Weyand has fought the Vietnamese Communists on the battlefield and sparred with them across the Paris conference table. He recently told friends that the Viet Cong "are as tough in suits and ties as they are in black pajamas."

The Viet Cong might say the same thing about the 6-foot 5-inch blond officer who steered the 25th Infantry Division into South Vietnam in 1966 and three years later turned up in Paris as the cool, articulate military adviser to the American delegation at the peace talks.

Weyand admits that he learned about Vietnam the hard way.

VIETNAM POST — Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, named by President Nixon to the post of Commander of U.S. Forces in Vietnam. (AP Wirephoto)

"When I left the 25th in 1967, I was sure the war was won," he told a reporter a few months after his promotion to commander of Field Forces 2. "But then I realized there was a war we hadn't even begun to fight—the war with the Viet Cong amongst the people."

In his new post, Weyand can be expected to work much more closely with top Vietnamese officers than any of his predecessors. As Abrams' deputy since September, 1970, he has concentrated on Vietnamization at the highest level, cutting through red tape by establishing close personal ties with Vietnamese generals who for years were suspicious of the Americans.

Heavy Damage In Auto Collision

Investigators identified the drivers involved in the mishap as Leslie Thomas Jones, 71, of 400 Harding St. and Christine Bordeaux Farrow of Williamson.

Damage to the Jones car was set at $500 while damage to the Farrow vehicle was placed at $875.

Jones was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign by investigators.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
Leonid I. Brezhnev's speech of welcome to Cuba's Fidel Castro this week was an exercise in political acrobatics suggesting Kremlin concern about a slipping grip on the world revolutionary movement.

Evidently the May Soviet-American summit has contributed to serious new strains developing in the international Communist camp these days and is threatening to compound the confusion generated by long years of angry sniping between pro-Soviet and pro-Chinese parties around the world.

Welcoming his visitor from Havana, the Soviet Communist party chief resorted to verbal gymnastics intended to convey the message that while East-West war is unthinkable, East-West peace is impossible.

The speech had a singularly defensive ring as it dealt with the theme of Brezhnev's summit with President Nixon. These talks, said Brezhnev, reflected "the real state of affairs in the world" and a need to assure peace and international security. But, he added, "successes in this important matter in no way signify a possibility of weakening the ideological struggle."

"On the contrary," he went on, "we should be prepared for an intensification of this struggle and its becoming an increasing more acute form of struggle between the two social systems, and we have no doubts about the outcome."

Since it was the ideological struggle in the first place that triggered the cold war and all that went with it, intensification of the ideological war as envisioned by Brezhnev hardly sounds like a bright promise for peace.

Soviet national and security interests tend to clash with over-all world revolutionary

Sanctioned For World Event

NEOSHO, Mo. (AP) — Neosho has received official sanction for a world championship watermelon seed-spitting contest July 8.

Jim Morris, news director of KBTN radio, said Wednesday the event was sanctioned by Frank Spencer, editor of the Pawhuska Journal Capital, Pawhuska, Okla., and owner of International Seed-Spitting Institution, Ltd.

In a letter to the radio station, Spencer said the $10,000 sanctioning fee would be waived due to "the excellent relationship between Missouri and Oklahoma."

The world record in sanctioned competition is 44 feet, 1 3/4 inches, held by Dale Blaylock of Paul's Valley, Okla.

goals, and that seems to be where the trouble lies.

Although Castro's regime couldn't exist without massive Soviet help, the Cuban leader has been one of those who took a dim view of the Soviet-American summit and what it might portend. He lost no time in assuring revolutionaries everywhere that Castro would never make friends with the "imperialists" for any reason.

Another dependent any and client took an even dimmer view. A week or so ago, the newspaper of the North Vietnamese army had this to say:

"To oppose the Americans ... is the gauge to measure Communists' combat spirit and loyalty toward the revolutionary ideal in the present era ... Genuine Communists know how to closely combine their national interests with the interests of the world revolution and how to make sacrifices in combat for the victory of their people and the victory of the world revolution."

Did that mean there were some in the movement who were not "genuine Communists," who did not subordinate national interests to the interests of world revolution? Who could they be?

Defensively, Brezhnev said in his speech that his policy was fully in line with "tasks set forth by the international conference of Communist and Workers' parties held in Moscow in 1969." Perhaps, but the Russians wrote that script. The conference had itself spotlighted divisions generated by Soviet foreign policy.

Repeatedly enunciated Soviet doctrine says that foreign policy must be regarded as "one of the most important forms of class struggle." If it seems, instead, a means of pushing specific Soviet interests apart from those of the movement, elements in the party around the world get restless.

Soviet foreign and domestic policy and politics are inextricably intertwined and react one upon the other. Brezhnev must be wholly aware that strains developed by the international Communist rift contributed importantly to the fall of Nikita Khrushchev in 1964. Some opposition to Brezhnev's policy of detente now has been detectable in shifts of top-level personnel in Moscow.

The Kremlin in effect is telling Communists at home and abroad to be patient. Brezhnev and others stress that Soviet policy is based upon a tripod made up of Soviet armed might, support of the "national liberation movement" around the world and a close alliance of "socialism." But in a nuclear age, American and Soviet power produce a standoff. The alliance of "world socialism" proves less than leakproof. Soviet support of "national liberation" is brought into question by Moscow's low-key reaction to events in Indochina. That leaves Brezhnev with some explaining to do.

Raising A Stink Over Courthouse

ALEXANDRIA, Ky. (AP) — The Campbell County grand jury is raising a stink about the courthouse.

The jury, after sitting five days, concluded Wednesday that a strong skunk odor pervades the building. Their investigation revealed that county employees had attempted to rid the building of a family of skunks but the odor remains.

The jury, however, complimented the employees otherwise on the external appearance of the building.

The most common causes of hay fever and asthma are pollen, molds and insect particles.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES

In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home-treatment that rinses away blackheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three boys.

The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough complexions became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers are now saying "this is one product that really works"... and why mothers of teen-agers have endorsed its use.

The Masque-Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for clear healthy skins, but also for the self-confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!

Anyone Can Use It

If you suffer the agony of teen-age blackheads, acne-pimples and rough unsightly complexions, give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent, called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and foreign impurities.

As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores. ... In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean... really clean... refreshed, smooth like velvet!

The Worry Clinic

Basic Step In Saving A Life

Lionel's case will be duplicated many times this summer! So take time to have your child prepared for such an emergency. If you parents shun this vital chore, let a YMCA or Summer Camp Athletic Director take over the task. Insure your kiddies via "Horse Sense" measures!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case U-522: Lionel J. aged 8, is a tragic case.
"Dr. Crane," his grandfather began, "Lionel was a very bright child.

"But he never had learned how to swim, for his parents kept him tied to their apron strings. "And they were not athletically inclined, so he led a sheltered life.
"But recently he was in the park with members of his Sunday School class.
"It was warm so several of the boys suggested they go wading.
"Lionel was delighted and joined in the fun.
"But he stepped off into deeper water and drowned!

"If he could have swum, even 10 feet, he could easily have got back to shallower water.

"So please alert your readers to the vital importance of teaching youngsters a few basic safeguards for saving their lives!"

Water Psychology
Thousands of Americans die because they cannot swim 10 feet!
You don't need to be an expert in the water or a long distance swimmer.

For when a canoe upsets, you are generally with 5 to 10 feet of it, so even a poor swimmer can save his life by heading back to the boat.

Remember, what causes most people to drown is fear and panic!

For if you can't swim a stroke, you are scared abnormally when your head goes under water.

And that fear will zoom your pulse rate from maybe 72 clear up to 120 beats per minute.

But with that faster pulse, you run out of oxygen sooner, so you become even more terrified if your head is under water 10 seconds.

The major value of being able to swim, even 10 feet by the basic "dog paddle" method, is your improved confidence.

For then you don't zoom your pulse rate by sudden panic due to terror.

So PLEASE see that all kiddies learn to swim early in life! Gradually accustom them to the water and to holding their face underneath.

Make a game out of the latter!

Let them take a big breath; then hold their face submerged while you slowly count out loud.
Make a contest out of it, by seeing who can keep his face under water till you reach a count of 10 or even 20.

For the first terror of the novice is having his mouth and face submerged. You can play this game even at the bathroom wash basin!

Later, at the beach, let the child lie in shallow water, supported by his hands on the bottom, and urge him to dip his face under.

Next, let him take his hands off the bottom so he will float, largely submerged.

Finally, let him stand; take a few deep breaths, then as you go "Bang," (as if to shoot) have him fall face downward into the shallow water.

Finally, get him to dog paddle in shallow water while his face is submerged.

Follow this with having him keep his head out of the water while dog paddling and urge him to breathe as he swims.

Later fancy strokes, like the crawl, can be acquired after this primary dog paddling stage.

Never terrify a child by suddenly throwing him into deep water!

Earn While They Learn

According to J. T. Perry, vocational education teacher at J. H. Rose High School, the vocational education program has not only given students the opportunity to learn about the business world, but has also boosted the community economy.

"During the 1971-72 school year at J. H. Rose, students spent and earned a total of $168,581.29", Perry noted. "All this money was earned by students enrolled in Distributive Education, Office Occupation, Home Occupation, and Industrial Cooperative Training."

Perry also stated that once a student enrolls in a vocational program, he is placed in a job known as a training station. He is paid while doing this job, but must also attend regular classes at school. It is in this way, he said, that the school and the job work to complement each other.

Yugoslav Critic Of Communist System Was Changed By Prison

BELGRADE (UPI)—At Number 8 Palmoticeva Street, in the oldest and quietest quarter of Belgrade, a slight, softspoken man just turned 61 sits surrounded by books in a modest apartment two stories above the street, and remembers.

Milovan Djilas remembers the old tribal wars of Montenegro; he remembers the beginnings of the Yugoslav Communist Party with a locksmith named Josip Broz; he remembers Stalin.

And he remembers the nine years he spent in prison for his writings after the world had come to know Josip Broz simply as Tito.

"I'm not afraid of prison any more," Djilas said in an interview. "The second term"—and he smiled saying the words—"was a very peaceful four years."

A Monk In Prison
"Something changed inside me when I returned to prison. I was like a monk. I could have continued to the end of my life."

Dressed in a light knitted shirt and corduroy pants, Djilas frequently got up and padded about the room in his sandals as he spoke. He would pause for long moments, as if to meditate on his words and their effect on his listener.

It is more than four years now since Djilas—once Yugoslavia's vice president—was last released from prison after writing "The New Class," "Conversations with Stalin," and other works criticizing the Communist system. But he still retains some of the monklike habits he acquired in his cell at Sremska Mitrovica prison.

He rises at 5:00 a.m., and spends most of the day writing. He seldom goes out, and sees only a handful of friends either at home or in a small, out-of-the-way cafe in the quarter.

On his rare evenings at the theater, he sometimes runs into veteran party officials he knew "when I was in power."

Officials Still Afraid
"Until recently, the old party leaders boycotted me," he said.

"Now, if we meet by chance, they may say hello, or even venture a few polite words about the weather. They are still somewhat afraid."

Djilas' long years of imprisonment and his current forced seclusion from social life have left him plenty of time for reflection of Communism, youth, and the future of Yugoslavia.

He made a lecture tour of the United States in the midst of the racial and antiwar upheavals of 1968. But Djilas, who was imprisoned as a young revolutionary under Yugoslavia's prewar royal government, said he was not much impressed by the revolution-minded youths he met in America.

"They talked about organizing the working class. I told them to be careful with the working class, which is not ripe for revolution in America. I predicted the SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) and other organizations like it would split up. They did," he said.

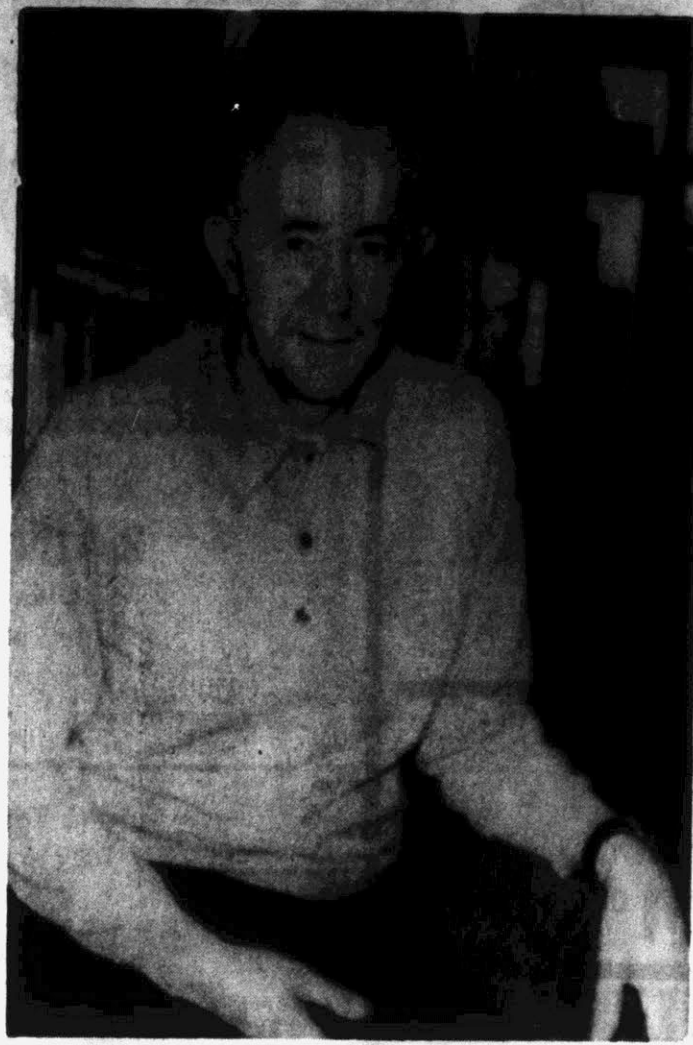

Partly because of his lecturing activities in the United States, Djilas is no longer allowed out of Yugoslavia. "Only last week, they refused to give me or my wife a passport—for the eighth time," he said.

On a recent vacation at the Adriatic coast, the maids and waiters at his hotel pointed out to Djilas the secret police assigned to keep an eye on him.

Is Djilas' apartment bugged? "Even now, they are listening to our conversation," he told his interviewer.

To Djilas, such repressive measures are a sign that the Communist system which he helped organize in Yugoslavia is decaying. Djilas said he believes the "New Class"—the Communist bureaucracy—is now undergoing a crisis in which the material values typical of capitalist societies are replacing Communist ideals in Yugoslavia.

Old Ideals Forgotten
"Nobody talks about the old ideals any more—just a few dogmatic professors," he said.

MILOVAN DJILAS remembers the old tribal wars and the beginnings of the Yugoslav Communist Party. (UPI Telephoto)

Along with rising regional nationalism and religious feeling among the country's six constituent republics, this lack of an ideology threatens the future unity of Communist Yugoslavia, Djilas said.

"Tito's influence is so great in this country that there is simply not any institution to replace him."

Djilas nevertheless believes Yugoslavia will somehow hold together in a post-Tito era, if only as a loose confederation. "Yugoslavia will survive," he said.

Djilas' literary life is not devoted entirely to politics. He recently finished the first Serbo-Croat translation of Milton's "Paradise Lost" (banned in Yugoslavia, as are all of Djilas' works), and is now working on a novel about his childhood in Montenegro. "One day in 1924 my father, a Montenegrin tribal chief, led some men in killing the chief of another tribe. I asked my father why they had done it. He answered, 'We were crazy,' and laughed.

"The novel concerns this type of attitude in people." Despite the restrictions on his life, Djilas said he is "practically content."

"I am not obsessed with this repression against me. I've lived this way for 15 years. Besides, I can still think freely."

Could he return to political life some day? "I have no ambition for power. Otherwise I wouldn't rebel as I do. Only some day, if needed by my country, I would answer the call."

FORD DEALER SERVICE FACILITIES

Over 5,600 dealers are conveniently located everywhere in the country. No matter where you go, or where you're at, you'll find a Ford Dealer ready to offer you fine, fast, friendly service. His up-to-date electronic diagnostic equipment, factory-trained mechanics, and well-stocked parts department all help serve you with better ideas in service, too.

SERVICE REQUIREMENTS

In maintenance matters, Pinto was designed to save you money and time. Many of Pinto's service requirements are engineered for easy do-it-yourself maintenance. Don't forget, when buying a small car, to be sure to take into consideration such things as normal oil changes, major chassis lube intervals and brake adjustments... all cost factors in the economy of operating a subcompact. For instance, Pinto requires normal oil changes only after 6,000 miles. And it normally goes an average of 3 years (36,000 miles) before a major chassis lube is needed. As for brake adjustments, Pinto's brakes are self-adjusting. When you get back to basics, you get back to Ford.

Funds Simply Ran Out For Race Relations Center

Editor's Note — It was called the SERS, a little-known tool in the Great American Struggle: race relations. Now it is out of business. "Changing priorities" was the stated reason, but the sad truth is that there is no more money.

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For 18 years the Race Relations Information Center and its predecessors chronicled the tortuous struggle of a nation at war with its conscience. That struggle, it seems, is over. On June 30, the flow of factual information from the front will cease—a victim of something called "changing priorities."

"We're all a little sick over it," said the center's executive director, Jim Leeson. "But we've done about all we could ... we're looking for jobs."
Tom Cooney, a Ford Foundation project officer who has been close to the center for almost three years, explained it wasn't that Leeson's staff wasn't doing a good job. "Changing priorities—that's really the key to it," Cooney said. The nation was still wondering over a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that the Kansas City school system had to admit a Negro child when a group of Southern newspaper editors and educators foresaw the need for a source of factual information about racial developments in the schools.

The Southern Education Reporting Service was born out of that need.
Financed by the Ford Foundation's Office of Education, the SERS used a network of correspondents—each a professional newsman—to compile reports about desegregation developments.

The reports were published in a monthly magazine, "Southern School News," for almost 11 years.

With the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, Leeson recalled, the board of directors felt the agency's job was about over.

The focus changed from race relations in the schools to educational developments—mainly among the culturally deprived. The name remained, as did most of the staff, but Southern Schools News became a bimonthly. "Southern Education Report."
"We really wanted to do the race relations thing in 1964,"

Leeson said. "But people—the board and the foundation—seemed to think the congressional act had fixed everything."
It wasn't until 1969 that the center got back to concentrating on race relations. The SERS became the Race Relations Information Center, although the staff, library and headquarters in Nashville remained virtually the same.
In a news release at the time, the center's new task was stated: to "gather and disseminate information about major aspects of race relations in the nation."
At the time, the Ford Foundation had provided more than

Crickets Have 'Cooling' Voice

TOKYO (UPI)—During summer months, live crickets housed in bamboo cages are sold by street peddlers throughout Japan because Japanese consider the voice of the cricket as a cooling sound.
Cricket peddlers are called mushi-uri. The custom is said to have been started in Tokyo about 250 years ago by a vegetable shop proprietor who collected crickets to entertain his children.

$2.6 million in grants to the center.
With the change, however, the foundation's funds came from Cooney's Office of Social Development rather than the Education Office.
As the change was made, C. A. McKnight, editor of the Charlotte (N.C.) Observer and one of the board members, assessed SERS' role in the changes that had been made since 1954:
"Future historians will have to evaluate the contribution of SERS to public education," he said. "But it would seem clear even now that without the factual information made available throughout the South, and without the central store of information that guided journalists, magazine writers, radio and television networks and public officials at all levels, the South would have had more difficulty picking its way along a dim and uncertain path. In thoroughness, accuracy, and objectivity, it is without parallel in the history of U.S. journalism."

The staff of six or seven journalists roamed the country, delving into the racial aspects of politics, employment, economics, public health and welfare, lawmaking and enforcement and the courts.
"We are the only ones doing this," said Leeson. "The emphasis, as far as we're concerned, is on objectivity. We don't take an activist role."

As a result, the center's publications, including the Race Relations Reporter, have been used extensively by both the "establishment" press and the black news media.
Lerone Bennett Jr., senior editor of Ebony magazine and a member of the center's board, said the center had a very high credibility rating with the black news media.
One reason, he said, has been that "the center has employed some very brilliant and creative black writers—people know their integrity. This has been a tremendous help in establishing the credibility of the center's work as far as the blacks are concerned."

The Ford Foundation agreed to finance the center for three years in 1969. Now the three years has run out and the foundation is unwilling to go any further.

Cooney explained that the Ford Foundation's Office of Social Development was created in 1967 to fund projects in problem fields.

The Race Relations Information Center was one of many projects funded.
"They (center officials) wanted to try to improve the performance and sensitivity of the news media, and that was squarely within what we were trying to do," Cooney said.

"That's what it turned out to be—they were successful ... but we don't consider ourselves a bank on which good projects can draw indefinitely," he went on.
At the same time Ford agreed to fund the project, foundation project officers were looking around in other fields. The idea, Cooney said, was to try out numerous projects and then concentrate the foundation's resources on a few good ones.
When the selection of the few was made, Cooney said, the Race Relations Information Center just didn't fit in with what the foundation had deecided to concentrate on.

"And you know, our funds are not unlimited either, despite what some people think ... We're not keeping up with inflation. We're spending more than we're taking in," he said.
Ford offered the center a conditional grant, he said, based on obtaining additional funds from other sources. But the additional money was not to be found.

The center has already closed its library as the staff prepares the final installment of the microfilm report. The final edition of Race Relations Reporter will appear soon and the staff will begin scattering to new jobs. The library probably will be moved to a university.
"We'll close for good June 30," Leeson said. "There's nothing else we can do."

'Ghosts Of Grant Park' Set Nixon As Big Target

EDITOR'S NOTE — Where are the people who were in the forefront of the demonstrations at the Chicago convention? How do they figure in the upcoming Democratic convention at Miami Beach? Many are already in Florida and here's their battleplan.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The eerie call has sounded to the ghosts of Grant Park. Come to Miami Beach.

The old slogans still stand. End the war. Free the women. Free the Gays. Help the old folks. But this time there is a difference.

This time the priorities are: Stay low for the Democrats. Clobber the Republicans. Haunt Mayor Daley. But get Richard Nixon.

Grant Park, Chicago, 1968. Bobby Kennedy was dead. Martin Luther King was dead. Eugene McCarthy, against the war, was dying politically. The Democrats were meeting. Some 10,000 antiwar protesters, mostly young, were gathered in Grant Park. Chicago authorities were adamant: Protesters could not march on the convention; they must leave. Protest leaders were adamant: They had no place to go. The result, tear gas, the National Guard, broken heads and broken limbs and broken windows and burning cars. Chants of Ho, Ho-Ho Chi Minh. The whole world was watching.

But this is 1972. In the offices they've rented in the Milton Medical Building, two blocks from Convention Hall where the Republican and Democratic parties will meet—closer by a few street numbers than the National Democratic Committee headquarters—Yippie leaders Jerry Rubin and Abbie Hoffman, convicted members of the Chicago Seven, graduates of Grant Park violence in 1968, muse over the differences.

"In Chicago we were totally against the electoral system, we saw it as corrupt. We were angry at the war in Vietnam," says Rubin. "Four years later it's just 'Get Richard Nixon out of the White House.'"

"With McGovern having the nomination sewn up, we don't

Chinese Chefs Are In Demand

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The biggest Chinese community outside the Orient is being tapped for chefs—to cook America-style chow. The California Department of Human Resources Development, one of the sponsors of the American Cook Training program, reports the Chinese have a real zest for U.S.-style cooking.

Students have proved, a spokesman says, they can make rice taste just as good as a la pilaf as fried. The 22-week course covers breakfast pastry, short order and advanced cooking.

want to have a confrontation," Rubin says. "We don't want to fall into the trap the Republicans have set for us."

So he says, he hopes no more than 5,000 protesters answer the call in time for the Democratic convention, July 10-14. But he hopes between 25,000 and 100,000 show up for the Republicans, Aug. 20-24.

The call has been out from various protest groups for six months or more. The question is: Have the ghosts of Grant Park been listening? Will they come?

"A lot of kids are kicking themselves for not going to Chicago," says Rubin. "They'll head for here."

But police and other authorities privately doubt the estimates of protest leaders. What impresses them more is that 1968 is not 1972, and Miami Beach is not Chicago.

In 1968, after weeks of antiwar publicity, the main forces in Chicago were liberal, dedicated to getting out of Vietnam, dedicated to Eugene McCarthy, against establishment Democrats. In 1972, George McGovern seems to be heading for Democratic nomination on a first ballot, and his delegates are anti-establishment Democrats. If they were not on the street in Chicago, they were certainly not in the convention hall. Today they are in the convention hall, and in a position of power.

In addition, those leaders in 1968 seem moderate in 1972. They are calling on any followers to demonstrate peacefully, avoid confrontation, behave themselves.

The very moderation of their stand creates problems. Take the Youth International Party, the Yippies, led partly by Rubin and Hoffman. They are confronted by a more radical splinter group which formed in January on the University of

An Open Season On Kangaroos

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — The West Australian government has declared a limited open season on shooting of a species of Australian kangaroo in some districts in the southwestern part of the state. A government spokesman said reports showed a buildup of gray kangaroos in the southwest is causing problems to farms and increasing road hazards.

Wisconsin campus and calls itself the Zippies. They take their nickname from the Zeitgeist (meaning "spirit of the times") International Party. They are loosely organized, but they are in Miami Beach.

One of their members, Patrick Small, who says he's with the Underground Press Syndicate in New York City, hurled a pumpkin pie at a Miami Beach city councilman after that councilman had joined the majority in voting down campsites for the protesters. The councilman retaliated with his fist.

It did not endear Small to either residents of Miami Beach or to other protest groups, which called the act the deed of "an agent provocateur or a madman" and threatened to oust the Zippies from future councils.

If the moderate stand faces trouble from its own left, it also faces trouble from the right. A spokesman for Young Americans for Freedom threatened to bring its 70,000 members to Miami Beach as a counter-culture force, and warned that it could also call on some 30,000 members of Cuban Youth Groups in the city.

Miami Beach Mayor Chuck Hall pledges that his city will not be a Chicago. First, he says, he is keeping in communication with the protest leaders. They've been working together for weeks, trying to formulate ground rules.

In the formal hearing on the campsite proposal, a number of prominent Miami Beach residents came forward to urge that camp grounds be set aside for the protesters. They included a rabbi, a minister, a labor leader, ordinary citizens. Even with some 80 per cent of the community opposed to a campsite, the temper was not that of Grant Park, 1968.

Miami Beach is a different thing geographically. Accessible only by causeways, each blocked by a drawbridge, the city's lush homes and resort hotels are a castle keep, protected by the moat of Biscayne Bay.

Its width is measured in blocks. It is only some 10 miles long. It is home to 87,000 permanent residents, and as many as one million visitors any time during a year. Yet it hasn't even room for all the delegates to the Democratic convention, many of whom are staying as far away as the airport on the mainland.

Thus the nondelegates to the convention, the protesters, pose a problem beyond their number. They come without transportation. They have little money. Many carry their world on their backs. They require sanitation facilities. Some will require food. Most have no place to stay.

If they don't stay in Miami Beach they will spend much of their day commuting on foot or by thumb to proposed campsites in Miami proper and Dade County. What worries authorities such as Mayor Hall and Police Chief Rocky Pomerance is what will happen when they are dispersed from their demonstration sites. Where will they disperse to?

Through the coming week

they are expected to begin drifting into the Miami area. There will be more rhetoric, more demonstrations.

For Mayor Hall, ("That's part of my job, cooling things."), for Police Chief Pomerance (whose 225-man force will be reinforced by 600 more troopers, police and sheriff's men), for Yippies Rubin and Hoffman (The drug scene is very bad, man. Downers, heroin, speed. It's almost replaced grass.), Miami Beach 1972 will not be Chicago 1968.

But if the ghosts of Grant Park show up as their leaders predict, free speech and public tolerance will get a workout they haven't had in four years.

Apple Wine Is The Drink

NELSON, New Zealand (AP) — Here in this northern province of the South Island apple wine is the drink, and it's a big industry too.

Every year apples from the district are crushed to yield a million liters of juice for wine. The drink comes sweet, medium, or dry, fortified or unfortified.

It's only 20 years since the apple wine-making industry really got under way, but today it's the popular drink in the district, and much is sent to other areas.

"It is a plain straight forward drink with none of the mumbo-jumbo often associated with wines," says Tom Robinson, one of Nelson's principal winemakers. "Most of our customers today are housewives who have on the grocery list a flagon or two of apple wine as a matter of course."

The juice is a mixture of whatever apples are available at the time of crushing: Gravenstein, Jonathan, Golden Delicious, Cox's Orange, Sturmer, and Granny Smith.

One company crushes apples on behalf of all commercial winemakers, but the art of the individual winemakers makes the wines different.

Vendors Defend Wild Pigeons

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UPI)—A drive by city hall officials to eradicate wild pigeons living in nearby houses and spires by poisoning them has brought sharp opposition by sidewalk vendors in the neighborhood. They make a profitable living by selling popcorn to local and foreign visitors to feed the birds.

CRIME ZOOMS
CINCINNATI (UPI) —Crimes committed in Cincinnati public parks increased 145 per cent from 1969 to 1971, the Board of Park Commissioners reports. A total of 1,220 persons were arrested in city parks in 1971, of whom 1,157 were convicted.

'Teaching By Objectives' Workshop Held At PTI

In a continuing effort to maintain an instructional climate that enables the students to learn or achieve skills that lead to vocational capabilities, 25 faculty members at Pitt Technical Institute are involved this week in a three day "Teaching by Objectives" workshop.

John Guy, director of the PTI faculty, says that the purpose of the workshop is to assist the faculty, through in-service training to improve the effectiveness of instruction by moving from the traditional concepts of presenting information and theory to a program of learning through student involvement.

"There is a widespread movement in education today to move from the lecture instruction system to one of involvement on the part of the student which relates to his interests and needs," Guy said.

Providing the emphasis on individualized instruction is workshop director, Dr. Barbara Washburn of Mitchell College, Statesville. Mitchell College is one of the institutions in North Carolina placing major emphasis on improving instruction by objectives and individualized instruction. In addition to being the dean of education development at Mitchell College, Dr. Washburn also teaches mathematics, using the individualized method which allows students to move through course materials at their own rate.

During Dr. Washburn's stay on the Pitt Tech campus, she is discussing with the PTI faculty, in group meetings and individually, the philosophy and problems in Individualized Instructional programs. Faculty members are receiving valuable experience by working on individual units for their particular curriculum courses under the guidance and supervision of Dr. Washburn and Mrs. Linda Wilms, a member of the PTI faculty.

In this systems approach, Dr. Washburn explained that the instructor develops units to be mastered within each course. Within each unit, six basic steps are outlined for the student: (1) A statement of the relevance of content to student needs and school objectives, (2) objectives or expectations in terms of student behavior, (3) individual student preassessment of capability which precedes instruction, (4) learning activities (a variety of activities which are designed to assist students in mastering objectives), (5) post-assessment of mastery of unit objectives, and (6) revision of course units by instructor based on feedback from the learners. "In individualized instruction you have students learning at their own rate and they progress as rapidly as possible," according to Dr. Washburn. "Such an instructional program is good for the slow, average, and fast learners."

Under this concept the slow learning student, given time to master the required materials and skills, develops a better self-concept of "I can learn and can succeed" and actually increases his rate of learning skills.

The fast learners are not held back; they can finish the course earlier than the prescribed time, and do independent study or tutor slower learners.

Benefiting also is the average student. He has available to him more different learning activities directed toward skills and more active involvement, which replaces most of the traditional lecture system.

After the student masters the skills within each unit of the course, he moves to the next unit. When he fails to master the skills, he goes back and reviews the parts missed on the skills test and then takes another test on that unit. "The teacher's role changes from lecturer and dispenser of knowledge to that of a manager of learning. He is still in the classroom, working as a tutor, catalyst, diagnostician, and motivator," Dr. Washburn told the PTI faculty.

"Such a program as the one we're discussing this week, does not come about overnight," said Dr. Washburn, "it takes time and effort." "It is not a teaching method but a rational framework that accommodates many different instructional modes."

Sean Connery Avers No Desire For $30 Million

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — "I have no desire to have $30 million, that's the honest truth. I've never seen many happy men in that position."

That's just one of the reasons Sean Connery swears he will play James Bond no more. Immense wealth doesn't invite him—"Lose two points on the Dow Jones and it's a disaster."

Another reason Connery has subtracted 007 from his career: aesthetics. He wants to play other, more challenging roles. As for Bond, "I've had my whack at it: let someone else try."

Connery has no $30 million, but he lives like a man of means. He occupies a magnificently furnished double apartment overlooking the Thames in mid-London.

The Scottish actor, 41, was about to leave on a Spanish vacation after finishing "Something Like the Truth" for United Artists. It is a crime story, but with a difference.

Unlike the sleek Bond, Connery plays a harassed London detective with a slatternly wife and a weariness for the routine of investigating tawdry crime. He wears tweeds, his own thinning hairline and a faintly Fu Manchu mustache.

Whereas he made "Diamonds Are Forever" in 18 weeks for $6.5 million, "Something Like the Truth" was filmed in 28 days at a cost of $1 million.

"That makes sense nowadays, when you can shoot a picture at a reasonable cost without sacrificing quality," Connery remarked.

"Something Like the Truth" is the first film for Connery's own company, Tantallon. While most other superstars owned their own firms, he had held back—"In the business area I'm not very bright: it didn't occur to me to utilize the muscle of power that one has in that position."
