Another Big July 4 Party Slated For '73

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Thumbs are up for next year's second annual Fourth of July celebration following Tuesday's successful inaugural event on the Town Common in the Shore Drive area.

Sponsored by the City of Greenville and the Jaycees, the Independence Day activities and events drew a crowd estimated at "in the thousands" and even bucked traditional holiday formats by having sunny weather. "The day went great and we couldn't be more pleased," commented Jaycee co-chairman Floyd Little this morning. "We had a real big turnout, as big as everyone had hoped for, and there is no doubt in my mind that everyone really enjoyed the events."

Little said that crowd response was good throughout the day and reached a peak during the 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. period that included a fireworks display arranged by Ed Rawl.

"We couldn't have had a more behaved crowd yesterday," the co-chairman noted, adding that all aspects of the celebration were carried out in orderly (Continued On Page 12)

Credentials Ruling Reversed By Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here today handed a victory to the forces of Sen. George McGovern in their battle with the Democratic Credentials Committee for California delegates.

At the same time, forces of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley were given a setback by the court in the second half of the dual attack on the committee's hotly disputed decisions.

The appeals court reversed a District Court decision which had upheld the committee's action of stripping 151 delegates from California. The Circuit Court ordered the district bench to rewrite its decision in the California case in accordance with an opinion not yet filed.

The Circuit Court rejected the appeal of Daley's forces in one case and in two others directed that state court action be prohibited insofar as the delegates from Illinois which were rejected by the committee are concerned.

The brief order of the appeals court carried no reasons for the action. The judges were expected to file opinions later in the day. The District Court ruled Monday that the federal judiciary had no place in the debate over delegates from the two states.

The Credentials Committee had issued decisions that stripped Sen. George S. McGovern of 151 California delegates and told Mayor Richard J. Daley and 58 other uncommitted Chicago delegates to stay home.

The committee decisions were likened to a "self-destruct button" by the party's lawyer Tuesday even as he fought to uphold them before the appeals court.

Party counsel Joseph A. Califano told the three judges that federal courts have no business in the party's business.

Grants Announced To ECU Health School

Three grants to the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions totalling more than $136,000 were announced today.

These are $78,120 for mental health training, $46,490 for environmental health, and about $12,000 for medical records.

The National Institute of Mental Health has granted the $78,120 for developing a program of training mental health personnel and for continuing education for professionals and sub-professionals in the field, according to Harry Campbell, who is director of the Mental Health Training Institute here.

In addition to Campbell, Richard Schmidt and Miss Pat Garton are staff members of the Institute, Schmidt as associate director, and Miss Garton as a training specialist. Another training specialist is needed, Campbell said.

According to Dr. Trent G. Davis, director of the Environmental Health Program, the $46,490 grant approved and funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will provide a major portion of the funds for faculty, equipment and other approved expenses of the new program.

He said ECU will be one of fewer than 20 universities in the U.S. offering a B.S. degree in Environmental Health and that it will be the only one in North Carolina. Graduates can work to control and alleviate environmental problems, both as employees of government agencies and in educational, medical care, and industrial institutions.

The Medical Records grant from HEW will be used to expand community clinical affiliations. This Medical Records Librarians Program is the only accredited one in the state and one of 24 in the nation.

Area Mail Processing Plan Designed To Speed Up The Delivery

Mail handling at the local post office should be cut about 35 percent when a new innovation — Area Mail Processing — becomes completely operational, according to Greenville Postmaster Lloyd Mills.

Mills explained that the area mail processing system began operations July 1. Under the new system, all mail deposited in single street letter boxes or out-of-town letter drops where dual drops for local and out-of-town mail are provided, will be transferred to the sectional center facility for processing and will bear the postmark designated for the SCF area.

"The Rocky Mount Post Office," Mills pointed out, "is the Sectional Center Facility for this area and the new system will revolve entirely around that center's capacity and function."

The Rocky Mount SCF postmark will read, "U.S. Postal Service, N.C. 278," along with the date and A.M. or P.M. designation, Mills said. The Greenville city postmark and local postmarks for each individual office will not be changed, Mills said, but will be used only on mail for local delivery.

Mills explained, however, that mail deposited in a designated drop unit at the post office labeled "For Local Cancellation Only" will be postmarked at the local office with the Greenville postmark, and all metered mail, he explained, will bear the postmark of the office of origin.

Mills emphasized that in view of the changes in mail handling, customers should no longer use the word "city" as an address in place of the name of the city of destination.

"Obviously," he said, "in this new system, a letter with just 'city' could lose its identity in the Rocky Mount center."

Mills explained that the local office handles an estimated 35,000 to 40,000 pieces of outgoing mail each day. With the local office sending all out-of-town mail and all mail from street drop boxes to Rocky Mount, there would be only about 5,000 pieces of mail for local delivery received and processed locally each day.

Mills noted too, that times for collection from street collection boxes has been changed, and he urged persons that use street drops check the new schedules posted on them.

He said that under the new system, the final dispatch of mail from Greenville is made at 6:30 p.m. as compared with a final dispatch at 7:10 p.m. prior to July 1. The collection schedule had to be changed on street boxes, he said, in order to meet the earlier dispatch.

The new program, "Mills said, "is intended to speed the ultimate delivery of the mail and to gain maximum efficiency and economy through full utilization of Rocky Mount's modern post office."

Two electronic cancelling machines and two automatic facing-cancelling units are available in Rocky Mount to move the increased volume. Mills noted.

Post offices in addition to the Greenville post office affected by the new program in Rocky Mount include Aulander, Aurora, Bailey, Battleboro, Belhaven, Bethel, Chocowinity, Conway, Elm City, Enfield, Englehard, Farmville, Fremont, Gaston, Halifax, Jackson, Lewiston, Littleton, Murfreesboro, Nashville, Pantego, Pikeville and Pinetops.

Other offices also affected and sending outgoing mail to Rocky Mount for processing include: Rich Square, Roanoke Rapids, Robersonville, Scotland Neck, Sharpsburg, Spring Hope, Stantonsburg, Tarboro, Washington, Weldon, Whitakers, Williamson, Wilson and Woodland.

Trio Said Looking For Someone To Kill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mother of a 4-year-old girl slain by a shotgun blast from a passing car said sheriff's deputies told her husband the three men arrested in the case "were just out looking for someone to kill."

Sheriff's deputies said the case "is pretty well wrapped up." They planned to seek a formal complaint from the district attorney against three men arrested Tuesday and booked for investigation of murder.

Joyce Ann Huff was fatally injured by the shotgun blast while playing in a neighbor's yard Sunday in suburban Hawaiian Gardens.

"Sheriff's deputies have told my husband that the three men were just out looking for someone to kill,"

Bernice Huff said Tuesday "It takes awfully brutish men to do that kind of thing to, have fun."

Sheriff's Deputy David Watner said today that as far as a motive for the crime, "There simply is none."

Deputy Robert Wood said earlier that investigation indicated "it must be a blatant case of murder ... a joy killing."

The three men in custody were identified as Donald Paul Antel, 21; Michael Ramirez, 18; and Oscar Hernandez, 22, all from suburban Norwalk. Police said all were unemployed.

Mrs. Huff said she did not know any of the men.

It was not immediately revealed what evidence led to the arrests. Sources said officers showed neighbors a composite drawing of a man resembling Antel.

"You can't stop cars from driving down the street," Mrs. Huff said. "The child was right in front by the kitchen. We never let her run around unsupervised. There was nothing we could have done."

"Everyone asks what they can do to help. There's nothing. No one can bring our girl back to us."

N.C. Holidays Count At Least Five Drownings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The drowning deaths of a young man and a 9-year-old boy he was trying to rescue in a pond near Burgaw Tuesday sent North Carolina's July 4th drowning death toll to at least five persons.

Michael Gregory Lennon, 19, of Wilmington and Craig Sidbury of Hempstead in Pender County, died in the accident.

A 19-year-old Newton youth, Wayne Leatherman, drowned in a cove near the Long Island section of Lake Norman Monday.

Another teen-ager, Jame Edward Marsh, 18, of High Point, drowned Monday while swimming alone in High Rock Lake south of Lexington.

Randy Parker, 18, of Rt. 1, Casar, drowned

Sunday while swimming in Lake James.

The body of a missing swimmer, 28-year-old David Eugene Beamon of Advance, was recovered from the Yadkin River near Winston-Salem Monday.

Forsyth County Sheriff Manly Lancaster escaped injury when a helicopter he was flying plummeted into the Yadkin during the Monday search for Beamon. Lancaster's two-seat helicopter dropped into the river from a height of about 10 feet.

Several rescue boat operators taking part in the search pulled Lancaster from the plexiglass cockpit, which was rapidly filling with water.

Couple Weds Sunday Afternoon

The wedding of Miss Emma Frances Joyner and Dalton Rufus Beamon was solemnized Sunday at 3:00 p.m. in the Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Roland Murphy officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Barbara Hinson, organist, and Miss Susan Smith, both of Greenville, soloist, who sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Please Love Me Forever" and the "Wedding Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Irene Joyner of Greenville, and the late Mr. Melton Earl Joyner. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Rufus Beamon of Farmville.

Mrs. Dalton Rufus Beamon

The ceremony was performed amid a setting of emerald ferns with standing baskets of white gladioli, mums, baby's breath and pom poms. Two pyramidal candelabra each holding seven lighted cathedral candles were used with a profile prie-dieu where the bride and bridegroom knelt facing each other for the closing prayer and benediction. The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Melton Earl Joyner Jr., wore a formal length gown of peau de soie and embroidered alencon lace. The gown was designed with a scooped neckline and fitted sleeves, ending in calla points over the hand. The A-line skirt was appliqued with lace and the back was accented with a full cathedral length train appliqued with alencon lace.

Her cathedral length veil of illusion was attached to a seeded pearl crown. The bride carried a traditional bouquet of red roses and baby's breath with fed satin streamers. Mrs. Sheila V. Mills of Farmville was matron of honor. She was dressed in a blue floral chiffon gown designed with an empire waist and an A-line skirt. Bridesmaids were Miss Beverly Kay Gaskins and Miss Phyllis Marie Dunn of Ayden. They wore gowns identical to that of the honor attendant. They wore blue sun hats and each carried a single mum with white satin streamers. The bride's mother was dressed in a pink embossed dress with princess lines. She wore white accessories and white cymbidium orchid. The mother of the bridegroom wore a deep lavender polyester A-line dress with an empire waist, white accessories and a white cymbidium orchid. Ryche Mills of Farmville was

COOKING IS FUN!

Flank steak may be stuffed and rolled up for cooking on the outdoor grill. Or, if you prefer, you can bake the roll in the kitchen oven.

This cut of beef is the true "London Broil." Although other cuts may be called by this name on the meat counters of supermarkets, they are not the real thing.

HEARTHIDE FLANK STEAK

- 1 flank steak, about 1 1/2 pounds
  - 1 tablespoon butter
  - 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
  - 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
  - 1 can (4 1/2 ounces) deviled ham
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - Barbecue Sauce
- Cut off excess fat from flank steak and score on one side. In an 8-inch skillet heat the butter; add the onion and cook gently until softened; mix in crumbs, deviled ham and salt. Spread deviled ham mixture over scored side of steak; roll up, beginning at short end. Fasten roll with short skewers.

best man and ushers were Sam Ray Summerlin and Jimmy Lee Cox, both of Farmville. Following a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will reside in Farmville. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Elvy K. Forrest, Mrs. Iris J. Taylor, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

Life Has Become Impossible, Wife Granted Divorce

POINTOISE, France (WNS)—The blood sausage called "boudin" is such a traditional part of French life that Mrs. Eugene Varenne, 41, sued for divorce when her husband ordered that it must no longer be served in their house. "He claimed that it was a sin to eat dried blood," she testified. The judge granted the divorce and gave Mme. Varenne custody of the three children. "Life had become impossible and intolerable for the family," explained the judge.

Homemaker's Haven By Sue May Pitt Home Agent

Summer time is activity time! Here's news about three very interesting events scheduled for the near future.

Crafts Workshop

Quality crafts are commanding a prominent place with all age groups in eastern North Carolina. Exhibits, fairs, and workshops have become popular throughout the area. Because of the interest in crafts, the Agriculture Extension Service is sponsoring a three-day training session for leaders July 11-13. The workshop will be held on ECU campus and a designated number of leaders from each of 48 counties have been selected to attend. Emphasis during the training school will be placed on new techniques and improving quality of workmanship. Each leader attending will then be expected to teach others upon returning to her home county. Miss Marjorie Shearin, Specialist in Creative Crafts, has developed plans for the training school, which will offer 18 different classes. Mrs. Joseph Downing and Mrs. Albert Bell from Pitt County will teach Creative Needlepoint. Mrs. Lyles Russell and Mrs. Nathan Smith will each teach a quickie craft during the evening session. Others from Pitt participating will be Mrs. L.A. Butler, Mrs. E.C. Davenport, and Mrs. Richard Worsley.

Crafts Fair

A crafts fair will be held in Morehead City July 15 and 16. This event is being sponsored by the Neuse Area Development Association and the Agriculture Extension Service. There will be exhibits, demonstrations, and food as well as many items for sale. Weaving, pottery, broom making, net knotting and fringe will be among the items displayed. This affair should be included in your schedule if you have a "liking" for crafts and are going down Morehead way on either July 15 or 16.

Senior Citizens Conference

August 6-9 will be Senior Citizens week at Lake Junaluska Assembly located 26 miles west of Asheville. The Lake Junaluska Assembly is the conference center for the United Methodist Church for the Southeastern Jurisdiction and hosts many inter-denominational retreats and conferences. Its beauty is unsurpassed and the scheduled program is well planned. Outstanding speakers will participate in all sessions. Complete schedules of the weeks activities can be secured by calling our office.

Former Actress Turns Talents To Designing, Selling Jewelry

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With her neatly coiffed reddish-brown hair, long manicured fingernails, finely-chiselled features and fashionable black pants suit, Maggie Hayes looks more like a lady of leisure than a hard-working saleswoman behind the counter of a Fifth Avenue department store.

But that's just where this former actress, model, designer and store executive is selling the jewelry she designs and makes herself and her "Maggie Hayes Jewelry Book," which she wrote to pass on her skills to others.

JEWELRY DESIGNER Maggie Hayes, at left, says making jewelry isn't as difficult as one might think. At right she demonstrates some of the steps involved in making a pin. First, at top left, the materials to be used are gathered, placed on a piece of paper along with the clay on which the design is to be made. At top right, a Japanese miniature figure is placed on the clay, and at bottom, stones have been put into position alongside the figure, and Miss Hayes is using a fingernail to clean away some excess clay. The finished design is then taken to a professional jeweler who will execute it in metal.

Wearing lots of her own jewelry, including a necklace of African beads and five rings on one finger, Miss Hayes said her professional jewelry-making days began after a trip to the Orient. "I had bought some miniature figures and thought it would be dull just to have them sitting around. So I decided if they were turned into jewelry they could be both wearable and saleable."

"The first piece was a funny face pin—an ivory head with one eye wide open and the other squeezed shut. As a pin, he's set in sapphires and pearls," she says.

Even before she began designing jewelry professionally, however, Miss Hayes said she had played at it. She recalls that as a young woman she had a tie-pin that belonged to her father made into a pinkie ring, and a group of opals set into a pin for her mother.

"I had always liked to do things with my hands," she says. "But at school, the academic was stressed so much that to work with your hands was practically wrong."

Working with her hands did take second place for a while to an acting career that included the Broadway role of Jo in "Little Women," and leading parts in the film, "The Blackboard Jungle," and many TV programs. Miss Hayes also found time to work as assistant fashion editor for "Life" magazine, design clothes, including a jump suit for David Crystal, become an executive of Bergdorf Goodman and to marry Herbert Bayard Swope Jr., a producer and director. She is the mother of a daughter, Tracy, and a son, Rusty.

all night if I want, just as long as there is nothing that says I have to work at such and such a time."

Now, with her jewelry making, Miss Hayes says she is more able "to do my own thing. It's that marvelous thing of being able to go out and create something—even a simple thing like stringing beads," she says. And then—"I can work at stores when I want and create when I feel like it—

Miss Hayes notes that many women might consider jewelry designing an expensive hobby. According to this expert it's not. "It's just a marvelous pastime," she says. "And it actually can be done very simply. I would suggest starting with brass wire and a pair of pliers. But you could also play with old jewelry and you can even carve on a bar of soap."

This Mother-In Law Is Batting .500

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter in law who is lazy, fat and selfish. She takes but never gives. The house is usually a mess and so is she.

Our son has a position which requires him to look nice at all times so he sends his clothes out. He helps her with the meals and with the housework, too. Our little grandson is a handsome child but he looks like a ragamuffin most of the time even though he has plenty of nice clothes.

This daughter in law has a violent temper so we stay out of her way as much as possible. She comes over here for free meals, a free baby sitter, or to get some sewing done.

Don't tell me she's sick and should see a doctor, psychiatrist or a marriage counselor. She's seen them all.

Every day I say, "Thank you, Lord, for my wonderful son in law, but what did I ever do to deserve a daughter in law like this?" LONG-SUFFERING MOTHER IN LAW

DEAR SUFFERING: You're batting .500, and that's a lot better than other parents who have written to me.

DEAR ABBY: There is a busybody in the office who I call "The Town Crier." She makes it her business to tip everybody off when a coworker has a gift-giving occasion coming up. [She'll say, "Oh, Patti is having a 30th birthday Saturday." Or, "Margaret is celebrating her fifth wedding anniversary next Sunday. I thought maybe you'd like to send her a card or something."]

Abby, to tell you the truth, I would be just as happy not knowing, but after she tells me I'm put on the spot. So what do I do?

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Say, "thank you," and then do as you please. There is always a chance that some coworkers appreciate knowing, so don't label "The Town Crier" a "busybody."

DEAR ABBY: My husband of many years is to me the most handsome man in the world. He is also the most generous, erudite, the most loving and most lovable.

But he has one habit which is absolutely infuriating. He is a saver. He saves empty bottles and bits of string, but the most annoying of all is his collection of newspapers!

I do not have an empty closet or cupboard. They are crammed with old newspapers. He has them stacked to the ceiling in the basement and in the garage. The walls of our guest room are lined with newspapers, and now I can hardly turn around in our bedroom for all those newspaper stacks. We will have to move out of this house if he doesn't stop.

We take two daily newspapers, plus the Sunday paper, and the New York Times. He reads them carefully, but refuses to throw them away. He says he may want to look at them again. [Abby, from ten years ago?]

If I tell him it's time to clean house of those newspapers he won't hear of it. Can you help me? HADIT

DEAR HADIT: I can understand a person's wanting to keep a few newspapers for future reference, but your husband's habit is more than a habit. It's an obsession. It's also a fire hazard. If he's mentally sound (and it wouldn't hurt to check it out) YOU clean house one day.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BEWILDERED": There is no way for you to call and subtly ask if perhaps your invitation was lost in the mails. But a mutual friend could find out if you were invited.

Thermal blankets are made from acrylic, polyester, cotton or wool. Wool is the most expensive and requires more care than the other types in laundering, but it is soft and lovely.

A Long Wait Is Bearing Fruit

It has been a long wait for tangible construction work to begin in the Central Business District redevelopment of Greenville, but at last the time has arrived when construction of the first phase is beginning.

The project has been in the planning stages for several years and until recent months when a few structures began to come down, the redevelopment project was only on paper. Within recent days construction work has begun on the first link on the loop street which will be a key in the CBD development plan. The first link will be the arc which will extend Reid Street from its present terminus at East Fifth Street across to Evans Street.

It will take time, of course, even for this first phase of the project to be completed. The very fact that the Central Business District project is now moving from the planning and pre-construction stages to the actual redevelopment stage is significant for Greenville.

Redevelopment of the Central Business District will take considerable time. There are problems yet to be resolved, there are cooperative steps between the Redevelopment Commission and private property owners yet to be taken. In the planning stages, time has been measured in years rather than in months, and as the actual redevelopment begins a similar time pattern may be expected.

Major changes in the Central Business District will not take place overnight or within a few months. In time, however, the transformation of Greenville's Central Business District, which has been so carefully planned over a period of years, will gradually take shape.

Beginning of construction in this program is a milestone which will lead to another important improvement that will benefit the entire city just as redevelopment programs in other areas of the city have done.

White House Is Dubious Prize

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Despite the testimony of the exquisite drawbacks of the job, men still passionately seek to be president.

"The four most miserable years of my life were my four years in the presidency," said John Quincy Adams.

"A man who seeks the presidency for anything that it will bring to him is an audacious fool," said Woodrow Wilson.

Abraham Lincoln's friend, Ward Lamon, said Lincoln once cried out "...from my boyhood my ambition was to be president. I am president of one part of this divided country, at least, but look at me! I wish I had never been born."

Chief executives have described the office as "prison," "jail," "drudgery," "slavery," "a splendid misery." Theodore Roosevelt, who probably enjoyed the office more than any other president, said "a president has a great chance; his position is almost that of a king and prime minister rolled into one."

William Howard Taft thought of posterity. "When taken into consideration that I go into history as a president," he said, "and my children and children's children are the better placed on account of that fact, I am inclined to think that to be president well compensates for all the trials and criticism he has to bear."

The same threads of thought about the "trials and criticisms" run through the observations of many presidents. The most common are:

1.—The perennial struggle with Congress.

"It better be known at the outset," said James A. Garfield. "Whether the president is the head of government or the registered clerk of the Senate."

"Presidents cannot always kick evil-minded persons out of the front door," said Herbert Hoover. "Such persons are often selected by the electors to represent them."

2. Friends, office-seekers and talking.

"One of the difficulties of the office ... is that it is very difficult to think while so many people are talking," said Wilson.

Warren G. Harding said: "In this job, I'm not worried about my enemies. I can take care of them. It's my friends who are giving me trouble."

The presidency, said John F. Kennedy, "is not a very good place to make new friends."

Said Grover Cleveland: "Gentlemen, I will not go into the White House pledged to you or anyone else. I will make no secret promises. I'll be damned if I will."

3. Presidential loneliness. "This is the loneliest place in the world," said Taft.

"The battlefield, when the soldier is all alone in the smoke and clamor and terror of war, is comparable to the loneliness at times of the president," said Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Kennedy called the presidency "a high and lonely office."

4. The weight of decision making

"No one can make the decisions for him," said Harry S. Truman. "No one can know all the processes and stages of his thinking in making important decisions. Even those closest to him, even members of his immediate family, never know all the reasons why he comes to certain conclusions."

Calvin Coolidge said, "The president gets the best advice he can, uses the best judgment at his command, and leaves the event in the hands of providence."

Kennedy was deeply interested in the decision-making process. One of his many observations was, "It is much easier to make the speeches than it is finally to make the judgments, because, unfortunately, your advisers are frequently divided. If you take the wrong course—and on occasion, I have—the president bears the responsibility, quite rightly. The advisers may move on to new advice."

5. Feeling of inadequacy. "Five more weeks will relieve me of a drudgery to which I am no longer equal," said Thomas Jefferson. Also, "I'm tired of an office where I can do no more good than many others who would be glad to be employed in it."

And yet, for all the disadvantages of the presidency, the office had its compensations for some of its occupants.

Lyndon B. Johnson had sometimes referred to the White House as "lonely acres," and complained about being "locked up behind that big black iron fence."

But he also said the presidency offers the best working conditions in the world—good pay, expert help and fringe benefits that would be the envy of a maharajah.

"Don't feel sorry for me," he once remarked to a group of newsmen who were trailing him around the White House yard. "You should feel sorry for yourselves."

We Have Four Years To Plan A Birthday Party

We have read rumblings of concern over national planning to celebrate the United States' 200th Birthday, but columnist James J. Kilpatrick put it all into focus last weekend.

He suspects (from the results, or lack of them) that the bicentennial committee's project threatens to become an inglorious fizzle.

Congress created the commission eight years ago; it has four more years to come up with something it has been unable to do to date.

There is reason to think the commission was given an impossible task. How does one plan a national birthday party in which more than 204 million people can participate?

To permit such an historic anniversary to go unobserved is unthinkable. So what to do?

Perhaps it's time for individual communities and counties to take up the bicentennial problem. Each area should know best its own capabilities and potentials for making 1976 a year for generations to come to remember.

We have four years to prepare.

Leaving the party to a congressional committee might prove have been the worst conceivable mistake.

Chain Reaction For Democrats

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The inability of Sen. George McGovern to control his own delegates on the eve of his probable nomination for President led inexorably to the stunning and quite possibly suicidal decision to deny Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago a seat at the convention.

Thus, a week before the Miami Beach convention, McGovern's efforts to prevent full polarization of the Democratic party between Daley's old politics and McGovern's new politics have failed. As one Illinois member of the Credentials Committee shouted Friday afternoon: "You will destroy yourselves in November if you accept this challenge"—the challenge by Chicago reformers against Daley and 58 other uncommitted Chicago delegates.

At heart, McGovern himself would not disagree. He had desperately wanted to avoid a showdown with Daley without making himself seem anti-reform and pro-Daley. But he moved too cautiously and too late.

Worse, McGovern and his high command had inadvertently helped set up the humiliation of Daley by failing to recognize the California challenge threat in time.

Consequently, after the Credentials Committee denied McGovern 151 California delegates on Thursday, outraged McGovernites on the committee refused even to look at possible compromises to prevent the Daley challenge from coming to its suicidal climax.

At a close-door caucus of McGovern delegates Thursday night, the Senator's key staffers—Frank Mankiewicz, Rich Stearns and Gary Hart—appealed in vain for compromise. When dashik-clad Cecil Brown of Wisconsin rose to protest that he did not want to hear the word "compromise," he got ringing applause.

The intransigence following McGovern's bitter California defeat conflicted directly with McGovern's own flexibility. He told us last April his relations with Daley were quite good and that he had little sympathy for the anti-Daley challenge.

For instance, when reform Alderman William Singer, principal author of the anti-Daley challenge, visited McGovern's Los Angeles headquarters during the

DISTINCTIONS THAT COUNT

Can you define the term "a bad man?"

Different people would give different answers to a question of this sort. One would say that a bad man is one who lies and steals. Another would always associate evil conduct with immorality and loose living. Some would peer deeper into the problem and declare that pride and avarice are the source of all wickedness in men's hearts.

How about this for a definition: A bad man is a man who doesn't want to be better. Two men may do the same evil thing and one may be a bad man and the other not a bad man. One would hesitate to call anyone who does any evil thing a good man. Yet there is a difference between a bad man and the man who, although he does exactly the same thing as his evil companion, is at heart not really bad.

The source of all evil is the unwillingness to do better. No matter how bad a man may be, if he has left within him the vestige of a desire to be better there is one dim light shining on the dark wind-swept road along which he travels. But if he has no desire to be better, then indeed he is hopeless.

Burger Court Emerging

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon is realizing his goal of converting the Supreme Court into a law-and-order bench.

The term that ended Thursday did not show a perfect score for the President, but he was smiling at his news conference that night when asked if he considered the court "in balance."

His four appointees—Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell and William H. Rehnquist—voted together most of the time in close cases. Their views have sparked bitter dissent among their colleagues.

But Powell in a speech Friday, insisted that the court is not "seething with discord," as a recent newspaper story suggested.

"Its work and traditional spirit of cooperation are not impaired by the strongly held, divergent views reflected in some of our opinions," Powell told a group of judges.

Obvious Discord Visualize the nine justices as anything but dissent-torn when holdovers from Chief Justice Earl Warren's court were accusing the Burger group of watering down earlier decisions while pretending not to do so.

"I am aware that the composition of this court has radically changed in four years," said Justice Thurgood Marshall in dissenting from a ruling that privately owned shopping centers can stop pamphleteering on their property. He said there was no difference between that case and an earlier one upholding free speech rights on private property "and the results in both cases should be the same."

But Powell, who is emerging as a key spokesman for the Nixon appointees, said "the rights of private property owners as well as First Amendment rights of all citizens must be respected and protected."

Marshall's views in that case were shared by Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., and Potter Stewart.

Stewart is likely to swing either way these days.

But Justice Byron R. White, 55, most often provided the fifth vote needed to make a majority. He was named to the court by President John F. Kennedy in 1962.

Conservative vs. Liberal Since Rehnquist and Powell did not take their seats until Jan. 7, they did not participate in about half of the 160 or so cases decided during the term. Of the more than 80 cases in which they did participate, 20 were decided 5 to 4 and there were no dissents at all in 24.

Douglas, the leading activist who always wants to accept more cases than anyone else, scored the most dissent with 63. Burger on the other hand dissented only 25 times.

Douglas, Brennan and Marshall—the Warren "liberals"—dissented as a trio or with Stewart and White 23 times.

But the justices spoke with one voice on some important issues.

There still were more outdoor than indoor toilets in the nation, and only the very rich had homes with two or more bathrooms. A man felt completely acceptable socially if he remembered simply to take the regular Saturday night bath that custom dictated.

Practically everyone thought that the nickel glass of beer and the two-bit haircut were U.S. institutions that would last as long as the flag flew.

A man was in the height of fashion if his wardrobe contained at least one pair of spats with pearl gray buttons. Spats became quite controversial. Realists said they were even more useless than cravats. Defenders replied that spats helped keep a man's feet warm, but eventually they went the way of the bustle.

Americans celebrated the 156th anniversary of the birth of the nation yesterday at a cost of more than 245 lives. But the toll was only about half of that of 1931 when nearly 500 persons paid with their lives for the celebration of the Fourth of July.

Pulling up a vote even greater than in the first primary in June, Pitt County people went to the polls in a run-off primary Saturday and registered overwhelming majorities for Robert R. Reynolds for the Senate and R.T. Fountain for governor.

Citizens tomorrow will start the new three-cent stamp and help the government out of the red. The three-cent stamp is printed in purple and bears the familiar Stuart portrait of Washington. Four billion new stamps are being manufactured.

Expense Accounts Feeling Pinch

By DAVID BURKE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It used to be that many industrial salesmen could put it all on the company expense account, including bills from fine restaurants and luxury hotels in some cases.

But salesman and their companies, like almost everyone else, have been hit by the inflation of recent years. And the salesman may now find himself paying for his own dry cleaning bills and paying a monthly rental charge for personal use of the company car that used to be free.

These are some of the measures companies have inaugurated to trim the soaring cost of industrial sales calls, according to a survey by McGraw-Hill and Sales Management magazine.

The survey of 499 companies indicates that the average cost of an industrial salesman's call in 1971 hit a new high of $57.71, 90 per cent higher than 10 years ago.

However, many firms have launched a major effort to trim costs, as reflected in the fact that costs rose only 2.7 per cent in 1971, compared with 14 per cent in 1970.

"One of the reason costs are up is that it is just more expensive to run a car and stay at a hotel than in the past," says Jim Morris, sales director for the chemicals and plastics division of Union Carbide.

The most common method of putting the brake on sales costs, according to the McGraw-Hill-Sales Management survey, is to cut entertainment expenses.

"Salesmen are flying coach rather than first class, and dinner and night club expenses have been cut anywhere from 10 to 50 per cent," says Allen Cobb Jr., McGraw-Hill's director of research.

"Some firms have cut back on the number of employees in their sales force, and are pushing their salesmen to make more calls than before," he adds. In some cases, firms have restructured salesmen's salaries, reducing the base guarantee and relying more heavily on commissions. Others have done just the reverse, ending commission and bonus money and going to straight salary.

But at least one firm, a leading producer of women's wear, is bucking the cost cutting trend, reducing the number of products its salesmen handle and expanding its sales force to make up for it, the survey said.

The sales manager was quoted as saying, "The expenses will go up, but so will the orders."

ferred total defeat in its bid for court approval of wiretapping of alleged domestic subversives without a court order.

Powell held for a unanimous court that the added burden of getting a search warrant "is justified in a free society to protect constitutional values."

The court also unanimously extended an indigent's right to a lawyer to include misdemeanors where the Warren court had stopped at felonies.

White's vote was the key to the blockbuster of the term—the abolition for now of capital punishment.

He sided with the rest of the Warren court members to make a five-man majority for wiping out the death penalty.

By the same lineup, the court ruled that grand jury witnesses can contest their subpoenas by a claim of illegal wire tapping and that school districts in the process of desegregation cannot be cut in two to retain a dual system.

On other big issues involving individual freedoms under the Constitution, White provided the vote necessary for the Burger group to prevail.

The case involving distributing pamphlets on private property was a prime example. Another was the approval of non-unanimous jury verdicts in criminal cases.

"Under today's judgment, nine jurors can simply ignore the views of their fellow panel members of a different race or class," said Stewart dissenting.

White wrote opinions, joined by the Burger group, which made it easier to call both newsmen and congressmen before grand juries investigating crime.

With White's help, the court also refused to find Army spying on civilians unconstitutional on the ground that the persons who challenged the practice were not injured.

Douglas Dissents
Douglas called the case "a cancer in our body politic" and complained in general about the court's "law and order judicial move."

On some big issues, Stewart also voted with the Burger majority.

For instance, he went along in allowing a private club to exclude Negroes even though it was subject to rigid state regulations and in extending the right of a policeman to "stop and frisk" a suspect on the street for dangerous weapons.

Stewart also voted with the majority in a 5-2 decision turning back 80 years of law to narrow the self-incrimination privilege.

The opinion held that reluctant witnesses can be prosecuted for matters about which they are compelled to testify if evidence independent of their statements can be uncovered.

Rehnquist, the 47-year-old former assistant U.S. attorney general, appears to be the toughest justice on individuals asserting rights against government.

Speaking of a Texas prisoner who claimed religious privileges, he said many of the framers of the 14th Amendment "would doubtlessly be surprised to know that convicts came within its ambit."

Burger's Extra Work
Burger has devoted much energy to extra-judicial work to improve administrative techniques throughout the U.S. judicial system. And he has continued to criticize the court for assuming burdens he feels should be borne by state legislators, or Congress, and for "confusing what it does not approve with the demands of the Constitution."

The states, he said in one opinion, should be free to "experiment and innovate" in criminal procedure and "retreat if they find they have taken the wrong path."

Continuing philosophical conflict among the justices is a safe prediction.
Just for starters, the court carried over until next term two of its most burning issues—new standards for obscenity and attacks on state antiabortion laws.

demolish chances against President Nixon. McGovern has always regarded Illinois, and therefore Daley's good will, as essential to beat Mr. Nixon.

But even if Mankiewicz had found a compromise made in heaven, it was always highly doubtful that Singer & Co. would buy it. Private meetings Mankiewicz had with Daley and Singer were fruitless, with Singer flatly rejecting a 50-50 split of the challenged delegates.

A proposal by Rep. Roman Pucinski, running uphill as Democratic Senate nominee from Illinois, was also flatly rejected by Singer. Pucinski's proposal: the Credentials Committee strongly censure the Daley delegates for breaking the new reform rules, make them promise never to repeat, then seat them as winners of the primary election.

But Daley's own willingness to compromise was always in question. Some McGovernites put out word that if the required handful of the Senator's men on the Credentials Committee had made a commitment to sell out Singer and uphold Daley, Daley's own five Illinois delegates on the committee would have supported McGovern on the California challenge. The truth is otherwise.

When McGovern agents tried the trade out on Alderman Claude Holman, he rejected it.

Throughout unfulfilled efforts at compromise, McGovern opposed the challenge but kept himself aloof. The obvious reason:

McGovern's shrewd old-politics compromises on the platform had already raised eyebrows among his more militant backers who now were questioning his purity.

If McGovern had perceived the danger of the California challenge in time and packed the Credentials Committee with pro-McGovern delegates, the melancholy drama of the past week might never have been.

As one pro-McGovern politician sadly put it: "They were so preoccupied with winning delegates that they did not do their pre-convention homework."

Having neglected that homework, McGovern was scarcely prepared for the last spasm of Sen. Hubert Humphrey and the dispossessed leaders of the Democratic party who saw the California challenge as their last hope. The chain reaction of destruction now set off is what sober Democrats have dreaded ever since 1968: a suicidal struggle between the party's opposite poles with Richard M. Nixon the real winner.

New Process For Blood Test

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—A new test for detection of lead poisoning in children has been developed by New York State Health Department researchers.

The new process, which requires only a few drops of blood from a finger, employs a computer to analyze blood lead levels with greater speed and reliability than any previous testing method, according to Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham, state health commissioner. The method now in general use requires a large blood sample, which must be drawn by a syringe, and nearly twice as much laboratory preparation and analysis time.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A survey of housing experts and economists in 100 key metropolitan areas indicates the Eastern states should expect a 5 per cent increase in new housing starts in 1972 over 1971, says Allan W. Cox, marketing research manager of Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp.

Some pace-setting areas, according to Cox, are Somerset County, N.J., up 107 per cent, Syracuse, N.Y. C. at 52 per cent and Philadelphia and Atlantic City, N.J., both rising to 14 per cent over last year.

Schools See Future Engineer Shortage

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
AP Education Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Mass layoffs in the aerospace and electronics industries in 1969-70 had a severe impact on enrollment in engineering schools this past year, and it could add up to a shortage of engineers in 1975.

There are signs that freshmen enrollments will bounce back somewhat this fall, but educators are not looking for complete recovery from the 18-to-25-per-cent decline registered in the fall of 1971.

Paradoxically, at a time many advance-degree graduates are finding job-hunting tough, engineer graduates are faring much better, according to Dr. N.J. Palladino, dean of the College of Engineering at Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Chauncey Starr, dean of the UCLA school of engineering and applied science, had this prediction for aspiring engineers: by the mid-70s, engineers will be as scarce and as courted by employers as they were in the heydays of the 60s.

He said best estimates show that engineering employment by 1975 will be 20 per cent higher than in the banner year of 1969. That means between now and 1975 the country will need 60,000 to 70,000 new engineers each year, he said. Only about half that number is expected to graduate.

unemployment, according to L.B. Williams, executive director of the American Society for Engineering Education, has been in highly specialized and narrow fields.

He insists that a four-year baccalaureate degree in engineering is a "good, solid preparation for any young person to be able to go ... to many possible careers—law, medicine, agriculture or business."

After last year's big slump in enrollment, there were encouraging signs. Dean Robert Jahn of Princeton's school of engineering is quoted as saying that he expects enrollments to increase this fall for the first time in the past few years.

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute reported a sudden 25-per-cent increase in engineering enrollment for 1972-73, up to 1,020 from last year's disappointing 820 and a normal enrollment of 950-1,000 new students.

Private Railway Plan Considered

SYDNEY (AP) — The state government has before it a plan to build an 11-mile private railway through a string of northern seaside suburbs between Pittwater and Manly.

The scheme estimated to cost $96 million provides for a major transport terminal at Manly.

Manly which extends from the ocean to Sydney Harbor, already has a steamer harbor ferry service to the city.

The railway, mainly underground, would take commuters to and from the Manly ferry. The area at present is served by bus.

Grant Awarded To Green Lamp

WASHINGTON, D.C. — ACTION, the citizens service corps, has awarded $182,067 to Greene Lamp, Inc. in Snow Hill, N.C. to operate a Foster Grandparent Program.

The grant to the anti-poverty agency at 224 N. Greene St. was announced in Washington today by ACTION Director Joe Blatchford.

The Foster Grandparent Program offers low-income men and women over age 60 the opportunity to provide individual companionship and guidance to physically, mentally and emotionally handicapped children in institutions.

The one-year renewable grant will enable the agency to recruit and place 75 senior citizens as foster grandparents for 150 mentally retarded children at Caswell Center in Kinston.

Established in 1965, Greene Lamp, Inc. provides anti-poverty services to Lenoir and Greene counties. Josephine S. Taylor is executive director.

This grant is a result of President Nixon's request to Congress last fall, following the White House Conference on the Aging, to greatly expand opportunities for meaningful volunteer service for older Americans.

The Foster Grandparent Program began in 1965 under the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and became part of ACTION on July 1, 1971. Some 5,500 foster grandparents across the country spend four hours a day, five days a week talking to, playing with, or taking "their children" on outings.

The "grandparents" devote two hours of love, personal attention and care to each of two children. The volunteers usually work in institutions for retarded, disturbed and handicapped children and in hospitals, correctional institutions and homes for neglected, dependent children.

To qualify for the program, volunteers must be at least 60 years old and in good health. Annual income may not exceed $2,000 for single persons and $2,600 for couples.

Volunteers receive needed financial assistance, transportation allowance, hot meals while in service, accident insurance and annual physical examinations.

'Agnes' Averted Tobacco Losses

RALEIGH (AP) — Tobacco specialist John Cyrus says North Carolina could have suffered a tobacco crop loss of several million dollars this year had it not been for "beneficial rains which accompanied tropical storm Agnes."

Cyrus, coordinator of crop services of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, predicted Tuesday that the average price for flue-cured leaf in the state this year will reach a record high of $80 or more per hundred pounds.

"Despite some problems that the start of the growing season, the crop looks good, and the market demand will be good," he said.

Cyrus said, "This year's crop will not quite measure up to the exceptional 1971 crop, but the outlook is good."

North Carolina growers produced 711 million pounds in 1971. The crop brought in $552 million for a record average of $77.64.

He said, "This has been an unusual crop year. To begin with, the mild winter weather caused tobacco plants to mature too fast in the beds."

"The plants were ready before the farmers and the condition of the fields. Many growers planted too early in the fields and the plants were killed by the late frost and freeze," he said.

"On top of that, we had a siege of cool, damp weather which lasted for several days. This was followed by about 10 days of rain during which temperatures ranged between 40 and 65 degrees. This ideal combination caused an epidemic of blue mold," Cyrus said.

The weather, however, turned warmer and the sun helped halt the blue mold fungus. Then a drought set in for nearly three weeks.

"The rains that came with the tropical storm really brought the crop around, despite some flooding in the fields of the northern Piedmont, especially in Stokes and Rockingham counties," he said.

"If the weather holds good," he said, "North Carolina will produce a good smoking crop of medium to thin bodies tobacco."

He said harvesting has been in progress for about two weeks in the Border Belt area and is "pretty general now" in the Eastern Belt.

North Carolina's effective quota this year is 693 million pounds and the support price will be 72.7 cents per pound, compared to 69.4 cents last year.

Little pointed out that favorites among the events were the greased pole contest where "people were still trying up to the last minute to climb the pole" and the pie eating contest that had its own rewards.

"So many people told us during the day that they were really glad that we decided to have a celebration," he continued, "and everyone was really enthusiastic about the whole idea."

Little said that the Jaycees "appreciate the cooperation of the public in observing the roped-off areas and other regulations." He also thanked the Greenville merchants and the media for assistance in preparing for the celebration.

The co-chairman said that "we are definitely planning to have the second annual event next year."

Harold Creech, manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, commented, "On behalf of the Chamber, I would like to express our appreciation for the efforts of the Jaycees in staging Greenville's first annual Fourth of July celebration."

He noted that "all comments overheard indicated that the event was highly successful and well received. We hope that the Jaycees will make this an annual event," Creech added, "and we urge all businesses and civic organizations to cooperate enthusiastically to insure the success of future events."

Creech said that the Chamber is planning to endorse the annual event and offer any help that will complement the efforts of the Jaycees.

He added that it would be difficult to estimate the size of the crowds that attended throughout the day since people were coming and going much of the time. "I'd say that the crowd numbered in the thousands," he said.

Order Ban On Farm Animals

WILLIAMSTON — Cows, mules, horses, pigs and other farm animals will no longer be allowed to live within Williamston's town limits with the exception of a few special cases.

The action is the result of an ordinance passed at the Monday night meeting of the Williamston Board of Commissioners, who unanimously approved the measure. Exceptions will be those cases, where for instance, someone in a certain part of town owns a mule which he uses regularly as his source of livelihood; or the use of farm animals in approved town parades.

In the short meeting, John Rogers, commander of Battery C., 150 AAA Battalion, N.C. National Guard, presented a request for financial assistance from the town. Rogers told commissioners that currently the state provides $1,500 annually to help operate and maintain the town's armory, but that this sum is insufficient.

When asked what the total budget for operation and maintenance of the building amounted to, Rogers had no figures to offer. As a result, the commissioners told Rogers the board would consider the request at a later meeting and asked him to have figures available.

Rogers also was spokesman for the Williamston Rescue Squad, asking that commissioners consider the possibility of taking charge of the squad, which he said now has problems in covering all requests made for rescue assistance. This matter, too, the commissioners will take up at the next regular monthly meeting.

Fire Killed 30 Patients

SHERBORNE, England (AP) — Fire swept through a wing of the Cold Harbor Mental Hospital early today, killing 30 of the 36 male patients sleeping in a ward.

The nursing staff rescued seven of the men, but one died later. The other six suffered minor injuries.

One of the dead patients was 16 years old and the rest were described as middle-aged. Most died in their beds, but the main doors were said to have been unlocked at the time of the blaze.

About 325 patients were in other buildings of the hospital. The fire occurred in the Winfrith Villa, a wing which opened nine months ago. Dr. Peter Johnson, chairman of the hospital management committee, said the most severely handicapped of the male patients were kept there.

Johnson said investigators had no idea yet what caused the fire. He said the firefighting equipment in the wing was "perfectly adequate."

Seahawks Outslug East Carolina, 10-8

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 A three-run homer by Bruce Cavanaugh told the tale last night for the Wilmington Seahawks, as they slipped past East Carolina University, 10-8, in a N.C. Summer Collegiate League slugfest.

Cavanaugh's blow, in the top of the eighth inning proved to be the difference in the game, upping the margin at the time to 9-1. East Carolina put on a comeback in the bottom of the frame, scoring seven times before the Seahawks could snuff it out and preserve their lead. Wilmington, which didn't get a hit during the first three innings, and had only two going into the sixth, put together rallies in the sixth, seventh and eighth to provide their 10 runs and a 10-1 lead before the Pirates were able to get something going.

They had several other opportunities, leaving the bases loaded one inning without scoring a single run.

The loss knocked the Pirates off the top of the league, as their record fell to 11-5. The University of North Carolina remained alone at the top. They beat Louisville last night, 4-0, to keep their position with only four losses.

Wilmington, by winning, pulled closer to the Pirates, and now posts a 10-7 record.

Dave LaRussa absorbed his first loss of the season, but had a fine game going until the seventh, when he was tagged for three runs before being relieved. And those who followed him also had trouble putting out the fire as 10 Seahawks came to the plate in that inning and eight followed in the next.

Pitchers Hold Down American Fireworks

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
 Three comeback pitchers, two rookies and one 20-game winner kept the July 4 fireworks to a minimum in the American league Tuesday.

Pat Dobson, one of Baltimore's four 2-game winners last season, hurled the Orioles into sole possession of first place in the American League East with a three-hit, 11-strikeout 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Detroit skidded into second place when Kansas City's Roger Nelson, fighting back from two years of arm miseries, blanked the Tigers 1-0 on four hits for his first complete game and first triumph as a starter since 1969.

Rookie Lynn McGlothen notched his first major league triumph with a three-hitter that propelled Boston past Minnesota 2-0.

Oakland's Blue Moon Odom, recuperating from a 1971 elbow operation, posted his sixth victory with eight-inning help from Darold as the A's downed the New York Yankees 4-2.

Jim Lonborg, the AL's Cy Young Award winner with Boston in 1967 but a much-injured hurler since, won his fourth straight baseball game for Milwaukee, blanking California until the ninth when Frank Linzy came on to preserve a 4-2 triumph.

Cleveland rookie Dick Tidrow took over for the injured Mike Kilkenny in the third inning and completed a 2-0 shut-out over Texas.

In the National League, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 6-1, Houston blanked Pittsburgh 6-0, the New York Mets shaded San Diego 2-0 but dropped the nightcap 4-2, Montreal trimmed Los Angeles 7-3, San Francisco edged Philadelphia 2-1 and Atlanta turned back the Chicago Cubs 5-1 before the second game was halted by rain in the eighth inning tied at 3-3.

Baltimore's Dobson surrendered a first-inning home run to Dick Allen and second-innings singles to Rick Reichard and Mike Andrews but kept the White Sox hitless thereafter.

The Orioles tied the game against Stan Bahnsen in the fifth on Bobby Grich's single and Dave Johnson's triple and scored the winning run in the sixth on consecutive singles by Paul Blair, Boog Powell and Merv Rettenmund.

Kansas City got Nelson the only run he needed against Detroit in the first inning as Amos Otis' bunt single, a stolen base and John Mayberry's infield hit, which loser Bill Slayback threw wild to first base.

Boston's McGlothen, a 22-year-old right-hander, held the Twins to Eric Soderholm's double in the second inning and singles by Danny Thompson in the third.

Then, in the eighth, the Seahawks got four more. Bill Warmack led off with a double and Lail walked. Cavanaugh then smashed his home run to left, driving in both runners and upping the lead to 9-1.

But they weren't through yet, picking up another run before the inning was over. Edgerton singled and moved up on an out. Sandlin followed with another hit, scoring Edgerton with the 10th Seahawk run.

The Pirates put together their rally in the bottom of the eighth, but it fell just short. Jimmy Paige led off with a walk and moved up on a passed ball. Lamm singled and Walters walked to load the bases. Tommy Toms, pinchhitting, singled to right, driving in both Paige and Lamm. Eason came back with a double to right-center, scoring Walters. Leggett walked and Vernon Summerell was hit by a pitch, forcing in Toms. A wild pitch then brought in Eason. Mike Bradshaw followed with a single to right.

David Pearson Wins Firecracker Race Duel With Petty And Allison

By BLAYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "I'm getting a little too old for these things," Glen Wood sighed happily after driver David Pearson had posted a split-second victory in the Firecracker 400 stock car race.

Wood, an angular, slightly greying car building genius from Stuart, Va., had watched Tuesday as his candy-apple-and-red Mercury crossed the finish line at Daytona International Raceway half a car length ahead of $7 million winner Richard Petty and another length in front of Bobby Allison.

It was a thriller and Wood, watching from his vantage point on pit row, was as limp as most of the record 67,200 who sweated on their feet in the grandstands.

They will probably class this one as the best stock car race ever run," Wood said. "I wouldn't go along with that. I have been in some donnybrooks in my time as a driver, and my cars have won other times in a blanket finish. But what you saw out there today is what makes auto racing so great."

McLain's Debut Spoiled By Rain; And Leo Didn't Like It One Bit

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
It rained all over Denny McLain's parade but the moisture left Leo Durocher a lot more upset than it did Atlanta's newest resident.

McLain, making his National League debut, was tied 3-3 in the eighth inning Tuesday night as the Braves tried to sweep a baseball doubleheader from the Durocher's Cubs. Atlanta had taken the opener 5-1.

Elsewhere in the NL Tuesday, New York split a doubleheader with San Diego, winning the opener 2-0 on Tom Seaver's one-hitter, but dropping the nightcap 4-2. Cincinnati dropped St. Louis 6-1, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 2-1, Montreal slugged Los Angeles 7-3 and Houston shut out Pittsburgh 6-0.

last two to Cardenal and Kessinger. The Braves won the first game of the doubleheader, scoring four runs in the seventh inning on homers by Paul Casanova and Mike Lum to crack a 1-1 tie.

Joe Cardenal, who had homered off McLain earlier, and Don Kessinger opened the Chicago eighth with singles and suddenly, Denny had runners on first and third with none out.

In the American League, Boston shut out Minnesota 2-0, Cleveland blanked Texas 2-0, Kansas City shut out Detroit 1-0, Baltimore nipped Chicago 2-1, Milwaukee dropped California 4-2 and Oakland took New York 4-2.

Casanova opened the inning with his first NL homer and Lum added a three-run shot as Ron Reed picked up the victory, scattering seven hits.

Pete Rose doubled home three runs in a five-run second inning for the Reds as Ross Grimsley, 6-3, earned the victory.

Just as suddenly, the Atlanta skies opened up with an enormous downpour. The rain hit so swiftly that the ground crew was unable to get the tarps down over the infield. Soon, it was a swamp and the game had to be called, rescuing McLain from a precarious situation and leaving Durocher rather agitated.

A crowd of 50,597 showed at Atlanta Stadium for a gigantic July 4 fireworks display and McLain's debut. They gave Denny an ear-shattering standing ovation as he walked out to the mound to start the second game.

Seaver took a no-hitter into the ninth inning and retired the first San Diego batter before Leron Lee cracked a broken bat single for the Padres' only hit.

The struggling Dodgers were beaten by Montreal with Ron Woods and Ron Fairly homering for the Expos.

Leo decided that the Braves' ground crew didn't move quite as fast as it might have if the two runners on base were wearing Atlanta uniforms and formally protested the rainout.

"I've never experienced anything like that," said McLain, "not even in Detroit. This tonight was unbelievable. I could have got the saints in heaven in that first inning after that."

"It was a good pitch," said Seaver, "down and in, but it came back over the plate a little bit. I was certainly disappointed. No doubt about that. But my immediate thoughts were that Nate Colbert was coming up."

LA starter Tommy John surrendered three runs in the second inning, two of them on Bob Bailey's single and the third on a triple by winning pitcher Carl Morton.

National League President Chub Feeney said he would give careful consideration to the protest and ruled that the game could not be rescheduled

All he had to do was get the Cubs of Chicago and for three innings, he did that easily. The Cubs started nibbling away at McLain in the middle three innings and by the eighth, he had given up nine hits, the Willie Davis and Duke Sims homered for the Dodgers. Jim Barr allowed just three hits, pitching San Francisco past Philadelphia.

The Giants scored both their runs in the seventh inning when Dave Kingman opened with a double. Dave Rader's single scored Kingman and then long flies by Alan Gallagher and Tito Fuentes got Rader home with the deciding run.

Six-College Cluster Has Its Own Unique Problems

EDITOR'S NOTE—Claremont isn't just a college—it's six colleges. The cluster concept seems to be working quite well for the California schools, academically and financially. But, socially...

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
AP Education Writer
CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP)—Although shrouded in smog much of the year, the unique Claremont College cluster hasn't lost its ability to attract big money and academically brilliant young men and women.

This mini educational conglomerate, situated at the base of the towering San Gabriel Mountains, about 35 miles east of Los Angeles, is actively considering expansion at a time most private schools are cutting back.

Expensive and highly selective academically, the five undergraduate colleges recruit only from the upper echelon of high school graduates. A high percentage of their graduates continue on to graduate or professional schools.

In explaining its financial success, Kenneth Beyer, vice chancellor of the University Center, said: "The Claremont colleges represent high quality education. There is no question about it, people respond to quality and not needs."

To which Barnaby C. Keeney, president of Claremont Graduate School, added: "You can't raise money on sentiment." Their appraisal is borne out by a seven-year fund drive that was intended to raise $86 million but at the end of the drive this April had nearly $105 million in the pot.

Like many American campuses, Claremont had its student uprisings in 1969 and 1970. Two bombs were exploded on the campus and one seriously injured a secretary during a rash of demonstrations over ethnic studies. Anti-ROTC demonstrations triggered some window smashing and once the protesters bricked up the entrance to the ROTC building.

Today, however, the 264 acres of contiguous campuses is quiet and almost seems empty of students. Because dorms and classrooms are close together, few students are seen wandering around the beautiful campus with its wide variety of trees from all parts of the world and immaculately groomed gardens. Although there are 5,000 students and 500 faculty, there is no parking problem on any of the campuses ranging in size from 19 acres for Harvey Mudd to 120 for Pomona.

As far as radical demonstrators go, said David Feinberg, editor of the student Claremont Collegian, "they're all gone. Many have gone to Berkeley, some to Israel. There is now great interest to work within to bring about change."

Although each of the colleges traces its origin back to Pomona College, grandmother of the group, each school is legally independent, has its own president, faculty, board of trustees, distinctive campus and educational emphasis. Any one of the schools can withdraw from the group with a year's notice.

Besides Pomona, a broad liberal arts college founded in 1887 and largest of the group with 1,300 students, there are Claremont graduate school (1925), Scripps College for women (1926), Claremont Men's College (1947), Harvey Mudd College (1955) and Pitzer College (1963).

As a group, the six colleges operate at a cost of $3.5 million a central library system with nearly 800,000 volumes, health and counseling services, a bookstore, 2,600-seat auditorium, computer center, two ethnic centers and many other common facilities and programs.

Except for the graduate school, which draws on all the undergraduate schools for part of its faculty, individual schools do not share instructors. Instead, they share students. Cross registration permits a student to take courses in any of the colleges without extra charge and represents about 20 per cent of undergraduate instruction.

The cluster concept was the idea of James A. Blaisdell, president of Pomona after World War I when pressure mounted to expand Pomona's planned limited enrollment. He proposed that "instead of one great, undifferentiated university, we might have a group of institutions divided into small colleges around a library and other utilities which they would use in common. In this way I should hope to preserve the inestimable personal values of the small college while securing the facilities of a great university."

"It's fine academically," said Tom Hesketh, a junior political science major at Claremont Men's College, "but socially, Pitzer and Scripps (both adjoining his home campus) might as well be 10 miles away. It's a dehumanizing experience. I'd go coed if I had it to do over again."

The original Blaisdell concept was to create a new college every 10 years but the Depression of the '30s and World War II intervened and it wasn't until 1947 that Claremont got around to starting a new school. Currently under way are proposals for law, medical and architecture schools.

"The creation of new colleges at Claremont is relatively easy," said chancellor Howard R. Bowen, whose main function is to plan ahead for the cluster. "Vacant land is available and central facilities...are in place and ready to serve a new institution."

Bowen is no crepe hanger about the future of private schools but concedes that competition from tax-supported state schools has its impact. He said on an average the cost of attending Claremont runs in excess of $4,200 a year as compared with $2,200 for resident students at a state school.

"We do have comfortable reserves, surpluses and endowments," he said. Collectively, the group has assets of $185 million.

Stating that the "real bite comes for schools with no reserves," Bowen added: "if you are rich you can economize and if poor, you can't afford."

For Claremont, Bowen said, the future thrust is to "develop it as a center of scholarship and learning, developing in strength not size and attracting scholars of national reputation."

Although innovative in their approach toward education, the Claremont colleges have a highly complex administrative structure. It is a standing gag among administrators that if you understand the table of organization you're qualified for a baccalaureate degree.

Each of the undergraduate institutions have a president and board of trustees. Representatives from each of these boards, including the president, from the Board of Fellows, which functions as the board for the Claremont University Center, headed by the chancellor, the Council (of presidents) headed by the provost, who directs all central programs and facilities, and the Claremont Graduate School, headed by a president.

Alyn, who played Superman in movie serials from 1948 to 1951, went to New York and searched unsuccessfully for stage roles.

"I went to a nostalgia convention not long ago and all these prominent men came up to me and told me what an inspiration Superman had been to them when they were growing up."

He says he first tried to joke about Superman, but found his audiences didn't like anyone making fun of their hero.

"Wait a minute," Alyn said. "I never intended to make more than one Superman series," he says. "But it was such a success that I kept on making them."

"Playing Superman ruined my acting career and I've been bitter for many years about the whole thing," Alyn says. "But now it's finally starting to pay off."

Opryland's History Of Music Lives

By NANCY SHIPLEY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —
The 1,100 people packed in the auditorium don't even notice the broken heel on Anita's shoe, or that Mike's "toes" are held together by duct tape and black paint.

No wonder the six-week-old shoes are falling apart—they go from the bathtub gin days of the Charleston through the rocking Age of Aquarius in 55-minutes and 174 pieces of music.

"I Hear America Singing" is one of five live musical shows at Opryland USA, the $28 million entertainment-recreation complex which opened the latter part of May.

Four decades of music and highlights of history are recalled by the troupe of nine girls and nine boys in the two casts that perform "I Hear America Singing" several times daily.

Jazz, folk music, western music, contemporary music and country music pour through the complex, which bills itself as "The Home of American Music." Nearly 150 young singers, dancers and musicians are involved.

But the 55 minutes spent watching the all-inclusive history of American music should not be missed by Opryland patrons.

The vibrant young 36 performers, most of them from Tennessee, were selected from over 2,000 who auditioned. And the 36 range in age from 13 to 25.

Music mastermind Paul Crabtree, a veteran actor, producer and director on Broadway and in films before moving south in 1963, put that and the other four live musicals showed together. He wrote the music, lyrics and scripts.

"Our music reflects what's happened to us socially and culturally—the impact of war, the miseries of the Depression, the jubilation of happier times, the feelings and reactions of people to events across the years," Crabtree said.

He said every visitor to the five musical theme areas of the park will go away with an education in popular music and an appreciation of the Nashville influence on music.

Other than "I Hear America Singing," there is a folk music show called "Just Plain Folk;" a jazz show entitled "Eva Bodie's Music;" a western comedy called "They Went That-A-Way;" and contemporary music in the Mod Show.

And with Nashville being Nashville and famous for its sound, there is, of course, country music featuring Grand Ole Opry stars in concert.

Groups of strolling musicians, a 20-piece marching band and recorded music in each different area of the park are also among the sounds of Opryland.

Musical confusion? Not a chance, say Opryland officials. Scheduling of the different musical shows and effective use of the topography of the park prevent it.

Holding Six In Slayings

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Two more members of the Storm Troopers motorcycle club of Durham are in custody on murder charges—making six in all—in the slaying of two members of a Florida motorcycle club, the Pagans.

The Durham County sheriff's department said that the latest two, Ted Cash, 28, identified as a stock clerk at Duke University, turned himself in Tuesday forenoon, and Ronald Rex Herndon, 35, a service station operator, was arrested that afternoon.

A panel truck in which several members of the Pagans were riding to a rally in a Northern State was hit about 30 times by gunfire Friday evening on Interstate 85 near Durham. Police described it as an ambush.

Lance A. Burger, 32, and Donald T. Scroggs, both of Miami, were killed. Six persons were wounded, including three men and a woman described as members of the Pagans, and two passerby.

Miss Rush Paula Roebuck, of the Pagans, was quoted by police as saying the gunfire came from two pickup trucks which blocked the panel truck from fleeing to an exit ramp.

Nearly 77 per cent of the farmers in Tennessee own all the land they work on.

Rex Hospital Related To Old Estate

By H. G. JONES
 N.C. Dept. of Archives and History
 RALEIGH (AP) — The death of John Rex in Raleigh in 1839 set in motion a chain of events leading to the establishment of the institution known today as Rex Hospital.

The story is told in a two-part article entitled "The Philanthropic Bequests of John Rex of Raleigh" in the summer and fall issues of the "North Carolina Historical Review." The authors are Memory F. and Thornton W. Mitchell. She is historical publications editor for the Department of Archives and History, and he is records management consultant with the Department of Administration.

Mrs. Mitchell discovered some original State Supreme Court documents relating to the settlement of the Rex estate several years ago. The search for additional information took her and her husband on two trips to Rex's native Pennsylvania and to the Library of Congress in Washington. Many hours were spent at home in North Carolina researching the case.

Rex moved from Pennsylvania to North Carolina sometime prior to 1793 and spent the remaining years of his life (almost 50) as a prominent businessman. He operated a tannery for the processing of leather and also maintained a large plantation.

The provisions of his will are thought to constitute one of the first instances in North Carolina whereby an individual took steps to provide for the less fortunate after his death. Noting that all his close relatives were advanced in age and financially secure, Rex decided to dispose of his estate "in the way which accords with my own judgment, and will most extensively promote the welfare of others."

The will had two major provisions. One was that his 18 slaves were to be freed if they chose and sent to Africa under the auspices of the American Colonization Society. The remaining funds from the settlement of his estate were to be used "to provide a comfortable retreat for the sick and afflicted poor belonging to the City of Raleigh."

Most of the slaves eventually did sail for Africa at John Rex's expense. Today a large medical facility known as Rex Hospital is located in Raleigh, though after Rex's death almost 20 years passed and many complications had to be overcome before either of his wishes could be realized.

Other articles in the summer edition of the "North Carolina Historical Review" deal with the story of Cornelius Harnett, a Revolutionary leader and delegate to the Continental Congress; the 1806 survey of the North Carolina coast; the career of John Hill Wheeler, known as the "filibuster minister"; and the Knights of Columbus in North Carolina politics. Further information about the "Review" is available from the Department of Archives and History in Raleigh.

SavingsBond Sales Grow

Sales of U.S. Series E and Series H Savings Bonds in Pitt County for May were $61,475, according to R.W. Howard, Pitt volunteer chairman.

Howard said that January through May sales totaled $259,599, which represents some 89.8 per cent of the county's goal of $288,951.

May sales of bonds in North Carolina, the chairman reported, were over $7 million for the fifth consecutive month, setting a record for any May since 1945. May E Bond sales were up 9.4 per cent over May of 1971 figures.

He said that cumulative sales for E and H certificates for the January-May period amounted to $36,424,120, an increase of 14.9 per cent over sales for the same period last year. The total also set a 27-year record, Howard noted.

The total figures represent 50.8 per cent of the state's 1972 dollar goal of $71,700,000.

Skylab
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—Skylab, a series of Earth-orbiting missions using the first U.S. vehicle developed for men to work and live in space for prolonged periods, is scheduled to be launched from Cape Kennedy in early 1973. The mission is expected to last for about a month.

Howard Lee Organizing The Southern Delegates

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Mayor Howard Lee of Chapel Hill is spearheading a drive to organize Southern delegates to the Democratic National Convention to make sure the party "doesn't write off the South."

Lee said a caucus is tentatively planned for Sunday evening in Miami, after a caucus of black delegates. He hopes to bring together 300 to 500 of the 770 delegates and alternates from the 10-state Southern region.

The mayor admitted Tuesday the caucus is a "late effort" and that trying to influence the selection of the presidential nominee is a "lost cause."

The three main concerns of the caucus would be that the South not be "written off" by the presidential nominee or the party; that the platform be expanded to include some "Southern concerns"; and that the Southerners have "some input" in selecting the vice presidential nominee.

This could include drawing up a list of possible Southern candidates that the caucus can and cannot accept, he said.

"We feel that the domestic platform doesn't give attention to Southern needs," Lee added. "It talks a lot about urban problems of the rest of the nation, and sees rural problems solely in terms of agriculture," he said.

Lee, who is black, said he began arranging the caucus late last week by calling the estimated 100 to 150 black Southern delegates. He said he is still in the process of telephoning key Southern delegates.

The mayor said he was approached to organize the caucus drive by several leading Southern Democrats and that other "key people" in the effort include Hodding Carter III and Aaron Henry, both of Mississippi.

Lee, a strong supporter of former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, denied that the caucus is designed to promote Sanford's presidential hopes.

"The caucus is not planned as a Sanford thing, and I don't think it would get very far if it were billed that way," he said. "We are interested in seeing that the Democratic party responds to the needs of Southerners."

Lee added, "Our plans really won't be complete until we get to Miami. We won't know before then if we'll be able to pull it off. If we're not in a strong position to have some real input into the convention, I don't think we'll push it now."

Fiddlers Climax Nostalgic Event

By MARGARET SCHERF Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Walt Koken — somber-faced and gap-toothed with the wide-open look of a country boy — adjusted a sweat-rimmed black felt hat, tucked a fiddle under his chin and cut loose.

Hundreds of bare feet beat the mud, calloused hands pounded one another and shrill yelps of approval rent the air as he sawed out a raucous, rambunctious "Turkey in the Straw."

It was enough to win him first prize as the best old-time fiddler in the First Annual Fiddlers' Convention Tuesday at the Smithsonian Institution's Festival of American Folklife.

For five hours fiddlers from across the country spelled one another on a wooden platform in the middle of a muddy Mall jammed with fiddling enthusiasts.

The program noted that "fiddlers' conventions and contests have been an American folk institution since the early part of the 18th century and probably even earlier."

But they obviously have caught on with the young. Koken and most of the other contestants looked to be in their 20s and 30s and so was most of the audience.

The tunes they played have been around a lot longer. Besides "Turkey in the Straw," special favorites were "Arkansas Traveler" and the old church tune, "Are You Washed in the Blood of the Lamb?"

Walt also won first prize for the most unusual tune—a Scotch-sounding "Sail Away, Lady" which, he told the crowd, "you can't hear on a record; you have to hear a fiddler play it."

In the old days, said the Smithsonian's program, "hats, handkerchiefs, socks, shoestrings, hams, flour, sugar, pocket knives, razor blades and even false teeth sometimes showed up as awards."

Walt got $100 for his fiddling and $50 for his tune. The toe-tapping sound of the fiddle wasn't the only nostalgic note on the Mall as the folk festival finished its five-day stand.

Under another clump of trees, the International Ladies Garment Workers Union commemorated one of the first labor strikes in America with a spirited rendition of its anthem: "Hail the Waist-Makers of 1909."

That song, too, seemed anything but outdated. Its refrain: "We showed the world that women could fight, And won our battle with women's might."

Suspicious Unconfirmed

GREENSBORO (AP) — A man carrying a large sum of cash was questioned for nearly an hour Tuesday after getting off an airlines at the Regional Airport near Greensboro. When released, he stuffed the money into his shirt and left.

District of Columbia authorities had alerted Guilford County sheriff's deputies that the man could be a suspect in an Alexandria, Va., bank robbery. No such connection was established, however.

Reporters observed that the money was in several bundles in an attache case carried by the man. When stacked, the money made an eight to 10 inch pile. The amount was not revealed, but officers said most of the bills were of large denomination.

The man explained to officers he liked to carry his money. When he left the terminal building he dumped the money in a plastic bag and shoved it under his shirt.

The man, whom police did not identify, was accompanied by one woman when he got off the plane and was met at the terminal by a second woman.

Mowing Machine Is Bird Menace

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Probably the biggest hazard that pheasants in New York face is the mowing machine.

During the peak of the state's pheasant populations in the late 1930s, mowing was not started until about the Fourth of July. By this time about 80 per cent of the pheasant nests had hatched.

It has since been found that June hay is better for cattle. Mowing now usually starts during the first week in June, when fewer than 20 per cent of the nests have hatched.

About the only solution is to leave unmowed land along fences, farm lanes and in odd corners around the farm, to decoy the pheasant hens away from hayfields.

Nothing To Say For 90 Years

LONDON (AP) — Even after 90 years, villagers of Norton Bavant, Wiltshire, have nothing to talk about.

Sidney Davis, clerk of Warminster Rural Council, called a meeting in Norton Bavant Village Hall.

"By law villages this size have to hold a meeting twice a year to discuss local matters," he said. "I was amazed when I looked for the minutes of these meetings. There just weren't any."

Only a dozen of the 100 villagers turned up and "after at least 90 years they still haven't anything to talk about," Davis said.

The Worry Clinic Rely On Head, Not The Heart

Jerry was a male sex slave! For he had gone through a subconscious form of love hypnosis which rendered him vulnerable to each of the 4 wives he divorced. Shatter such slavery and pick your mate by your head: not your heart!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.
Case U-527: Jerry B., aged 38, is having his 4th divorce. "Dr. Crane," he moaned, "Every time I get married, I feel sure the girl is ideal."

"An I just a born loser?" Emotional Brainwash
Jerry was the only child of wealthy parents. His mother was a typical socialite, so she left Jerry at home with the maid on many occasions.

And once a week in those days a jolly Irish laundress would visit his home to wash their clothes and do the ironing. She was fond of children, so she would bring cookies to Jerry. And she would occasionally hug him or give him a goodbye kiss.

Unwittingly, she brainwashed the little boy!
For she had red hair and freckles!

Jerry subconsciously began to link love and affection from the opposite sex with red hair and freckles.

He wasn't conscious of this early brainwashing process (we psychologists call it "conditioning") but it made an indelible imprint on Jerry.

When he was in college, he met a waitress with red hair and freckles.

"It was love at first sight," Jerry confessed to me.

But they had very little in common, so after their marriage, they soon broke up. Wife No. 2 also had red hair and freckles.
So did No. 3 and No. 4, whom he is now divorcing.
"I just seem to fall for red haired gals," he mournfully admitted.

But he didn't realize why. For he had never analyzed his past background till his visit at my office.
During my interview, I found the early cause of Jerry's infatuation for red heads with freckles.

When we have been emotionally brainwashed in childhood, those early attitudes may influence us all our lives.
Our fondness for our mother, usually extends to her cooking, which is why men often "fall for" the menu items their mother prepared.
Even perfume will do the trick, too, for I have had many patients whose hearts would do a flipflop at first meeting a strange girl.
In some of these cases, it was her perfume that hypnotized them!
Unwittingly, they had been brainwashed in early life by that same scent, maybe because their mother had used it.
Even babies can subconsciously become "conditioned" to the perfume of their mothers, as they are nursing at the breast.

And this subconscious brainwash may later make them apparently fall in love at first sight.
But the new girl merely has some attribute to which they had long ago linked their affection.
So learn to use your head more than your heart when you pick a mate.
Test your prospective husband or wife by the scientific Rating Scales for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
Unless he (or she) rates "Superior" or "Very Superior" thereon, it would be smart to look elsewhere for your mate.
Don't expect to change your mate much after the wedding! (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when

Widow Loyal To Her Gardners

LONDON (AP) — A 70-year-old widow sold her home for $208,000—and bought it back a couple of weeks later for $223,600 because "I heard the six gardeners might have to go."
Mrs. Dorothy Pierson's mock-Tudor mansion stands on 25 acres near Ipswich. There are landscaped gardens, a tree-lined drive and a swimming pool.
Mrs. Pierson said, "My gardeners worked tremendously hard to make the grounds beautiful."

I wouldn't like them to lose their jobs through any action of mine."

The house, with 4 bedrooms and six bathrooms, is too big to live in alone, so Mrs. Pierson plans to build a bungalow for herself in those lovely gardens. She still hopes to sell the house.

ELECTRIC HEAT
NEW YORK (UPI) — By the end of 1972, 10 per cent of all homes in the United States will be heated electrically. Frank H. Roby, president of Sola Basic Industries, told electric heating representatives at the National Electric Heating and Comfort Systems Exposition.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠ Impatience in the face of adversity frequently induces a defeatist attitude in the less seasoned campaigner. Instead of merely throwing up his hands in despair, declarer should attempt to determine if something can be done to retrieve a seemingly hopeless situation. Had South taken the time to reflect in today's four heart contract when he ran into an unfavorable trump division, he might have worked out a successful solution to his problem.

West opened the queen of diamonds. East played the ace and shifted to a club. South put up the ace and without even a moment's consideration, he led a small heart from his hand and when West followed with the three, he played the king from dummy. When East showed out, it came as a distinct shock to South and with a gesture of disgust and an impatience to get on to the next deal, he led a heart back to the ace, cashed the king of diamonds and ruffed a third round in dummy. He then conceded the opponents two heart tricks and one club which, along with the ace of diamonds already in, added up to a one trick set-back.

South had available a simple safety play that would have cinched his contract. When he leads a small heart at trick three and West follows suit, declarer has merely to cover with North's seven to protect himself against his left hand opponent holding all four trumps. If East tops dummy's seven with an honor, then the remaining two hearts must fall under the king and ace.

Even after he went up with North's king and East showed out, declarer was still in position to make his contract as the cards were distributed, had he bothered to work the situation out. Suppose that he leads a small club at trick four. East will presumably play the king and then continue the suit: which South ruffs with the five of trumps.

The three high spades are cashed and then a diamond is led to the king and a third round is ruffed with the seven of hearts. West has been stripped of every side suit and this is the position at trick 11 with the lead in the North hand:

♠ 10 9
♦ Void
♥ 10
♣ Void

EAST
♠ J ♦ Void
♥ 9
♣ J

The ten of hearts is now led and passed into West's jack. The latter is left with the queen-four of trumps and cannot prevent declarer from taking the last two tricks. In all, South loses one heart, one diamond, and one club.

"But in a year or so we become incompatible, often violently so, and my wife sues for divorce."
"What is wrong with me, anyhow?"

'King Of Swing' Said Improving

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer.

Lots of people are saying that on Benny Goodman's latest record, the double LP, "Benny Goodman Today," on Decca, Goodman is playing clarinet better than he ever played it. Jazz expert George Simon has singled out "Sweet Georgia Brown" on the album as the best of the best.

What does Goodman think about it? "Sometimes I think I'm playing better. I think it depends a great deal upon the circumstances and the people you're with and the environment of what is going on in your particular group. Sometimes you can establish it yourself. Sometimes you fall into it."

This is a good record, though. Goodman practices his clarinet every day.

The recording, made in Stockholm, is with the 17-piece English band with whom Goodman made a month-long tour of Western Europe plus two concerts in Bucharest in early 1970. They played the Fletcher Henderson arrangements from the mid-1930s.

Goodman now is just back from Paris and playing with another group of European musicians. He played a concert to benefit the American Hospital in Paris, where American tourists in Paris go when they have an illness or a drug problem. Frenchmen can't deduct contributions to this hospital from their taxes, so Americans are the major supporters.

Goodman had heard the quintet he played with, who are Swedish, on records only, before he chose them to be his group. When he arrived in Paris, he found out the record was 10 years old and two of the musicians had changed, which scared him. But by the second rehearsal, everything was going fine.

The piano player was a devotee of Teddy Wilson and the man who played vibes—Lionel Hampton was his hero. Goodman says a lot of people think a jazz instrumentalist is a jazz instrumentalist, but not so. One who would fit in with the style of one band leader could never play to suit another. "It's like they say in racing, there are horses for courses."

Since he has been back in the U.S., Goodman has been to Chicago, where he was born in 1909, to do some talking. He studied music, as a boy, in a synagogue, at Hull House, in school and with private teachers. Now that Chicago has decided to curtail funds for music instruction in public schools, some people opposed to that move asked Goodman to come to Chicago and say what he thought.

He says, "You find out they waste more money than the whole music program costs. I had a lot of interviews out there. I started my music career in the public schools. All I said is that something you could get 40 years ago is not being able to be gotten right now, with all our added affluence."

When he was still very young, Goodman used to sit in with black bands performing in Chicago and when he was 16 he was hired by Ben Pollock. He formed a band in 1934, which was first called a swing band in 1935.

Goodman has been known as the King of Swing ever since. His famous trio was himself, Teddy Wilson and Gene Krupa. Goodman was the best-known band leader of the big band era. His arrangers were famous, Fletcher Henderson, Horace Henderson, May Lou Williams, Jimmy Mundy, Spud Murphy, Eddie Sauter, and so were his players—Harry James left the Goodman band to form his own band—and so were his singers.

Talking about one of the singers, Goodman says, "Peggy Lee sang with more voice in those early days. I suppose singers were harder to find than instrumentalists. Any singer you like as a rule has a complete personality, has an individual style and taste and what not."

"A lot of singers don't know what is good for them or don't have any special songs. They say they'll sing anything, I'd ask them, 'Isn't there something you'd feel more comfortable with?' The good singers know. Peggy always had a good idea of what she wanted to sing, a good sense of what was fitting for her."

He enjoyed leading a band, Goodman says. "It takes time for a big band to get into a groove. It's awful hard to put one together in half an hour. The best results are gotten when you put a band together, play for a few weeks, on tour or at a steady job and then record. By that time, everybody knows what they're doing."

"We've traveled by private railroad car, which is pretty fancy. And we had sleeper buses on the West Coast sometimes." Does he miss touring? "No, not now. I don't mind it for a certain length of time but after that, it's pretty harrowing. I guess Duke's band tours 365 days a year. Well, to each his own."

This year, in the 67th consecutive season of Naumburg Orchestral Concerts on the Mall in New York's Central Park, Goodman will play at the second concert, July 4. He'll play Weber's "Clarinet Concerto No. 1" and a medley of popular songs including "Poor Butterfly" and "My Funny Valentine."

"After that, I'm going fishing for a week. Then I have something in Tennessee, a private party I think. Then I'm playing with the New York Philharmonic, in Ames, Iowa, both jazz and classical. It'll probably be Weber's concerto; which I've made a record of with the Chicago Symphony. I'll also play in a jazz festival in Stockton, Calif."

Goodman answers an inevitable question, is swing getting more popular again? "It could be possible. The other day I saw a TV ad with Gene Krupa advertising RCA Victor reissuing records by Tommy Dorsey and myself."
