A Pre-Convention Briefing

CHAIRMAN MANS THE CHAIR — Lawrence F. O'Brien, who'll call the Democratic National Convention to order tonight as its temporary chairman, briefs delegation chairmen and newsmen at the convention site on the rules he plans to follow. His first big task will be to preside over a session that could last 20 hours to settle a score of delegate-seating disputes. (AP Wirephoto)

Close Security For Launching Of Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Battling Democrats are preparing to launch their 1972 nominating convention under strict security tonight with Sen. George McGovern's hopes for a first-ballot presidential nomination riding on the bitter California credentials showdown.

Bolstered by two favorable parliamentary rulings and indications of support from delegates uncommitted in the presidential race itself, McGovern said he expects to win his fight for reinstatement of 151 California votes that were stripped by his political rivals on the Credentials Committee.

That could lift him to within 50 votes of a first-ballot triumph Wednesday night, according to The Associated Press tally of delegate strength. And such a decision might set off a rush by uncommitted delegates to get on what then would look like a winning bandwagon.

Backers of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, leading the fight to maintain the Credentials Committee decision that divided the 151 California votes among McGovern's rivals in the state's June 6 primary, were a bit more cautious in discussing the floor fight that will highlight tonight's possibly marathon session.

"I think the chances are fair to good we will be seated," said state Sen. Mervyn Dymally of Los Angeles, a Humphrey leader.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, meanwhile, pondered his potentially decisive course on the California credentials case.

Some aides saw the division of the delegation as the only possible way to revive his faded nomination hopes, while a number of his backers were reported leaning to support of the McGovern position.

Supporters of George C. Wallace generally backed Humphrey's side. The crippled Alabama governor told Tennessee backers he expects to "play a large part" in the convention.

An array of 23 credentials challenges from 15 states is expected to keep tonight's kickoff convention session, scheduled to open at 7:30 p.m. EDT, going through much of the night.

Besides the California dispute, the most important is the appeal by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley from the Credentials Committee decision to replace him and 58 allies with a competing group dominated by McGovern backers.

Other important credentials cases come from Alabama and Georgia.

The bitterness surrounding the California dispute erupted Sunday in a meeting of the convention's Rules Committee. McGovern supporters accused Humphrey backers of a power play to rewrite rules on the number of votes needed to sustain credentials challenges.

Meanwhile, compromise efforts were being sought on some of the lesser credentials disputes.

Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland said after a series of meetings Sunday said he thought perhaps 10 or 11 credentials cases could be resolved without floor fights.

Daley's forces, however, were adamant on the Illinois case, and both sides said compromise was impossible on California.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. of New Jersey, another original Muskie backer, said McGovern offers the best hope for party unity and added "it would be very damaging for the party" if he lost the nomination because of the California credentials case.

But as the opening day of the convention dawned, the main subject was George Stanley McGovern, and whether he could be stopped from the presidential nomination that seemed so remote just a few months ago.

The numbers showed him far ahead. With the California votes divided as directed by the Credentials Committee, the AP count showed:

McGovern 1,322.65; Humphrey 512.05; Wallace 388; Muskie 235.55; uncommitted 385.15.

That left McGovern 186.35 short of the 1,509 majority and meant that victory for the disputed 151 California votes could draw him within 35.35 of victory.

On the California credentials vote, reports from a dozen delegations showed McGovern's position picking up support from uncommitted delegates.

McGovern repeated again Sunday that he favors an Illinois compromise that would seat both the Daley group and the competing faction.

Yet To Decide Who Votes For Whom

No Disputes In N.C. Delegation

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — While several other Southern delegations worked today to counter seating challenges posed by blacks and women, the North Carolina delegation was prepared to take its 54 seats without dispute on the opening day of the Democratic National Convention.

The delegation will be in position to vote on crucial challenges facing California and Illinis along with challenges against the sister Southern states of South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. The Credentials Committee dismissed the only challenge raised against the Tar Heel delegation, and no minority, or dissenting, report was filed with the convention. The challenge charged that the delegation has too few young persons.

Five delegates are under 30.

The committee found that "young people in North Carolina were given maximum opportunity to participate" in party affairs and urged the state party to encourage an even greater participation. The lack of a minority report cleared the way for the seating of the delegation.

The full delegation was not in Miami Beach until late Sunday. A major item on the delegation's agenda will be deciding which delegates must vote for which presidential candidate. Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford lost the state's presidential primary to Alabama Gov. George Wallace, binding 37 delegates to Wallace and the remainder to Sanford.

"It makes me pretty unhappy to think that I may wind up casting my vote for Wallace on the first ballot," said delegate Becky Hannah, 20, of Concord, who is a Sanford coordinator.

Gov. Bob Scott heads the delegation. He has not said which of the presidential candidates he would vote for after fulfilling his first ballot obligation.

Delegate Howard Lee, the black mayor of Chapel Hill, launched a drive Sunday to organize a Southern coalition that would press for a voice in the selection of a vice presidential nominee and influence on the final adoption of the platform.

He is being aided by Mississippi newspaperman Hodding Carter III, himself mentioned as a possible vice presidential nominee. Carter plans to vote for Sanford on the first ballot.

Sanford, meanwhile, was introduced by Lee at a meeting of the Black Caucus. The Duke University president stressed the need for a healing force within the party.

"I'm in this because I believe we need new ways to solve our problems and none of the other candidates are talking about the issues in a way that will produce answers and solutions," he said. Sanford told the group that during his term as governor he appointed more blacks to state jobs and boards than all of the governors during the preceding 60 years.

Sanford also pointed out that during the 1963 march of Washington, civil rights leader Roy Wilkins said of the Tar Heel: "If every leader in this country would do what the governor of North Carolina is doing to open up opportunity for black people, we wouldn't have to march on Washington."

Six Slain As Cease-Fire In Ulster Ended

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST (AP) — The Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing broke off its cease-fire Sunday night after 13 days and renewed its guerrilla campaign. At least six persons were killed, and Northern Ireland teetered on the brink of civil war.

The Provisionals charge that British troops junked the cease-fire by attacking Roman Catholics in Belfast's Lenadoon district. William Whitelaw, the British administrator for Northern Ireland, charged that the IRA "set up" the incident "to provide justification for resumption of terrorist activity." He said the troops were fired on first. Witnesses backed the claim.

Sean MacStiofian, chief of staff of the Provisionals, ordered his gunmen back to their bullet-and-bomb campaign with "utmost ferocity" to oust the British army.

Within 15 minutes, firing broke out all over Belfast. Gun battles raged in the Catholic Ballymurphy, Ardoyne and Andersonstown sectors and the Protestant Springmartin area.

A 100-pound bomb planted in a car damaged offices downtown. Another bomb wrecked an all-night garage. Five bombs exploded within three minutes of each other near the Protestant warehouse section of Londonderry, the province's second largest city. Shooting erupted around the Bogside, part of the IRA-ruled "Free Derry" enclave in Londonderry.

Carloads of gunmen made hit-and-run attacks on army posts and ambushed patrols, wounding at least four soldiers.

Six civilians, including a Catholic priest giving the last rites to another victim, were killed around the Ballymurphy zone of Belfast. The dead also included a 13-year-old girl.

The British army claimed one gunman was killed and seven others wounded. But the IRA as usual spirited all their casualties away.

The truce was shattered when a column of 2,000 Catholics marched on the Lenandoon housing project in Belfast to force resettlement there of 16 Catholic families bombed out of their homes in a Protestant area.

Congressman Called In Hearing On 'Kickback'

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defense charged today that it was Texas Rep. Jim Collins—not his former chief aide—who ordered kickbacks from employes and then told them to lie to investigators.

That charge was made by Leslie Scherr, lawyer for the former top Collins aide, George A. Haag, 33, on trial for taking the kickbacks from fellow employes' federal paychecks.

Haag contends that Collins, millionaire Dallas Republican, now is trying to make him take the rap alone.

Scherr told the jury in his opening argument that Collins ordered the kickbacks as "an unusual method" for paying bonuses to Haag and three other employes he had promised for helping him win election to Congress in 1968.

Collins previously has been before a federal grand jury in connection with the kickbacks. Haag is on trial in U.S. District Court on charges of falsifying House of Representatives payroll forms, mail fraud and obstruction of justice. Four former Collins employes have testified they kicked back part of their federal paychecks to Haag on his instructions—and one of them, Michael D. Henning, said Haag had told him he holds proof that Collins was involved.

"George said he told (Collins') lawyers that if he went to jail Jim Collins was going to be in a cell right next to him," Henning told the court.

The former manager of Collins' Dallas office, Mrs. Carolyn Connor Boydston, testified Friday that Haag once told her Collins knew nothing of a monthly kickback of about $576 she took from a Dallas employe and held for Haag to pick up.

"And he said if we weren't careful we would all wind up behind bars," she testified.

Dallas FBI Agent Alfred C. Ellington said Haag told him during an investigation the kickbacks were used for parties for children of Vietnam GIs and for extra Dallas office expenses.

But Ellington said there were no records to verify such expenditures and that he could not find anyone to acknowledge receiving money from Haag for such purposes.

Guilty Plea In Massacre Trial

LOD, Israel (AP) — The Japanese terrorist who survived the Tel Aviv airport massacre pleaded guilty at the opening of his trial today, but his lawyer asked for a psychiatric examination, and the three-man military court recessed to consider the request and the plea.

"I don't want an examination ... I don't want an examination," shouted 24-year-old Kozo Okamoto before the court recessed.

His chief lawyer, Max Kirtzman, said he did not contend Okaomoto was now insane, "but he should have an examination to determine if he was sane at the time of the commission of the offense ..."

Kritzman said he had no material yet "to convince you of the defendant's mental state," but added "in the circumstances and in the defendant's behavior since leaving his homeland for a faraway country, with which he had no connection, we see that the facts speak for themselves."

Under Israeli law a defendant in a capital case has to plead innocent. Okaomoto is expected to get life imprisonment.

The opening of the trial was delayed 55 minutes by strict security checks. Many of those at the trial stood in line for more than two hours before they could enter the courtroom about four miles southwest of Lod Airport, where the massacre took place.

Wearing a red shirt and dark slacks, the small solemn defendant stood in a waist-high wooden enclosure manacled to two husky policemen as the chief prosecutor, Lt. Col. David Israeli, read the four charges against him.

Asked if he understood, Okaomoto replied quietly, "Yes."

Pick Chisholm For VP Slot

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The National Women's Political Caucus today selected Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., as its choice for the Democratic vice-presidential nomination.

"A woman should be nominated for vice president and has a good chance of winning," caucus leader Betty Friedan told a cheering throng of about 1,000 female delegates.

Tar Heel Pilot Now One Short Of Being An Ace

REIDSVILLE, N. C. (AP) — With one more "kill" Air Force Capt. Steve Richie, 30, of Reidsville, will be the first American air ace of the Vietnam war.

Richie shot down two North Vietnamese MIG 21 interceptors Saturday to give him four combat kills. Five is the mark of an ace.

The graduate of Reidsville High School and the Air Force Academy was escorting bombers in the Hanoi area when he and his copilot, Capt. Charles D. DeBelleue, saw the MIGs.

"We passed them head on and were close enough to see the red stars over them," Richie said. "I waited for his wingman to pass and turned hard left as they went into a right turn. Out of the turn I locked only the second MIG and fired one missile.

"I fired a second before the first one hit. I saw a large yellow fireball. The airplane disintegrated and fell out of the sky," he said.

Richie, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Richie of Reidsville, said he expected the companion MIG to flee from his F4 Phanton jet as he made a sweeping turn. But, "there he was. We were closer this time. I locked on and fired one missile, and was getting ready to unleash another when the first one hit.

"Again there was a big explosion. The whole thing was in flames and falling apart."

Richie was on his 125th mission over North Vietnam when the twin kills were recorded. He has made two tours of duty and 308 combat flights in the war zone, including missions May 10 and May 31 when he shot down his other MIGs.

Mrs. Richie said her son telephoned from Thailand Sunday afternoon to tell her of the feat.

"He was excited," she said.

"He's deeply committed to what he's doing over there," his mother said, adding, "but we still worry about him. At first, when he went to Indochina I didn't think I could stand it.

"But now we're used to it, and we know all we can do is pray. We do a lot of that, believe me."

Seven Charged For Recovering 3 Cannons In River

HAMILTON— Three Civil War cannon were hauled from the bottom of the Roanoke River Saturday and resubmerged in water again the same day to prevent their deterioration.

The cannons, resting in the waters of the Roanoke at a point near Fort Branch, a Confederate stronghold during the Civil War, were recovered by a team of salvagers.

The team had recovered the guns before Martin County Sheriff Raymond Rawls halted the recovery operations, seizing the trophies and charging seven of the men with failure to obtain a salvage permit. He took charge of the cannon under a state statue which controls action in removing from waterway items that have been submerged more than 10 years.

The seven men will have a hearing on August 7. Four were released on $250 bond, and three were released on their own recognizance.

A value of about $30,000 has been placed on the three cannons, one of which is virtually intact. A manufacture date has been established for two of the cannons, one in 1828 and the other in 1849.

It is believed that four or five other cannons still lie on the bottom of the Roanoke in the area of Ft. Branch— locally known also as Rainbow Banks.

Ft. Branch is said to be one of the best preserved earthern forts of the Civil War remaining on the East Coast. It was built to protect Confederate forces and workers on the ironclad ram Albemarle from invading Union forces.

Sherrif Rawls, acting on the advice of members of the State Department of Archives and History, had the three cannons lowered into a fresh water pond in Williamston to preserve them from deterioration.

Tar Heel Nursemaid To Sixteen Orphan Deer

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

HOFFMAN, N.C. (AP) — Twice a day Sam Wiseman plays nursemaid to 16 orphan "babies" that are simply deer.

Feeding time at the Wiseman home is like watching a magician make milk disappear. Each of the frisky tots can empty a 10-ounce bottle in 30 seconds.

These babies are tiny fawns. Many were confiscated from North Carolina families which found them and planned to keep them as pets. State law prohibits persons from taking deer illegally and keeping them in their home or captivity.

"They can be kept only with a special permit from the State Wildlife Commission, and the deer must have been gotten during the legal hunting season," sayd Clyde Patton, executive director of the commission.

The 16 fawns, ranging from two to five weeks old, are at the commission's plant nursery near Hoffman in the Sandhills area.

Hand feeding them is quite a chore, so Wiseman rigged up a home-made feeder. He got two boards, cut holes large enough for the mouth of a baby bottle to fit in, then put two boards on hinges that would fit snugly on top of the bottles to hold them in place.

At 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. each day Wiseman brings out the bottles of milk and puts them in the feeder. The fawns, whining like babies, go for them like bees to honey. The milk goes down rapidly.

One of the 16 fawns is an albino. All are tame and have white spots which will disappear when they become about six months old.

Some of the deer were found by farmers while cutting wheat. Wiseman explained that wheatfields are a favorite place for doe deer to give birth to their offspring. Does produce once a year, usually in May or June.

"The people who find the fawns think they are do-gooders by taking them and feeding them," Wiseman said. "But they are not doing them any favor. On the contrary, it causes problems. We wind up having to take the pet away from them."

Wiseman, plant nursery manager, formerly was refuge manager of state game lands. He said the fawns will be kept at the nursery until after the hunting season which begins in October in most counties and runs until Jan. 1. Then they will be released on game refuge lands, free to roam until the 1973 hunting season.

Patton said North Carolina has an estimated 380,000 deer. Hunters kill 30,000-40,000 annually.

Even tame buck deer "get mean and are dangerous" during the mating season in the fall of the year, Patton said.

"Lots of people have been killed by pet bucks," he explained. "In the second fall of a buck's life his antlers are large and he's ready to breed. That's the danger period. They're ready to do battle for a doe."

Fawns used to be kept at the Holly Shelter deer refuge in southeastern North Carolina. The operation was transferred to the plant nursery near Hoffman this year.

Wiseman's two teen-age daughters, Ruthie, 15, and Tammy, 12, like to hand feed the fawns.

"They were real crazy about them when they were first brought to the nursery, but the novelty is beginning to wear off," said Wiseman, who also has three sons. His wife is a nurse.

The plant nursery produces lespedeza shrub seedlings and certain seed mixtures for distribution to North Carolina farmers who plant them to feed small game.

Arrest Four In Bootleg Alert

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Treasury agents and police who had been alerted to watch for loads of bootleg cigarettes coming from North Carolina arrested four men and confiscated $40,000 worth of cigarettes Friday and Saturday.

Each of the four was in a different vehicle.

The untaxed cigarettes, amounting to about 10,000 cartons, were bound for New Jersey, according to authorities. Agents said the state would have lost $16,925 in taxes had they been sold on the black market.

All of the four arrested were from New Jersey.

Hold Suspect In Knifing Death

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A Lexington man is in jail without bond, charged with murder in the stabbing death of a 14-year-old niece of a neighbor.

Miles Junior Hall, 24, was arrested Sunday afternoon. The body of the girl, Robin Ann Watford, of High Point, was found Sunday morning in the backyard next to the house where she had been staying with her aunt.

She had been stabbed through the heart. An autopsy is being performed.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I have several very wealthy ladies for whom I work regularly. I go to their homes to perform a personal service.

One of my ladies is not only rich, she is also quite famous. When it comes time for her to pay me, she will bring out a used evening bag, or a pair of shoes, or a hat, or some piece of wearing apparel, and try to make some kind of deal with me in exchange for my services.

Abby, I know that all of her things were very expensive when they were new, but I have no use for such elegant articles, and besides, I work because I need the money.

How can I let her know that I wish she would simply pay me and not subject me to the embarrassment of having to say I cannot use her second-hand things?

TIMID IN L. A.

DEAR TIMID: Tell her that you can't afford to work for "things" because you must have CASH to pay your bills.

DEAR ABBY: Sorry, but I disagree with you as to the impropriety of a student selling his class notes. I'd consider these notes as similar to a reference book.

When I attended medical school, each fraternity had an extensive file of old exam questions and class notes which went back years and were used extensively by the students. I am sure these contributed greatly to the learning process.

Since I have three college degrees with 11 years of college, and later taught for seven years in medical schools, I believe I am well qualified to express an opinion on this subject.

EDWARD S. CARDWELL JR., M. D.
COLUMBIA, S. C.

DEAR DR. CARDWELL: Ten whacks for me with any one of your old rolled up diplomas. I rarely argue with authority.

DEAR ABBY: My husband passed away some time ago. We had a wonderful life together and I never expect to replace him, but I must consider making a new life for myself as I am not yet 50.

My question: When may a widow remove her wedding ring? I have children, and when I wear my rings the men I meet think I'm married, and no respectable man would look twice at a married woman.

On the other hand, if I remove my rings I might be mistaken for a divorcee. What should I do?

YOUNG WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: Since you are obviously in the market for another husband, remove your rings. You can quickly let it be known that you are a widow, not a divorcee, if you think men prefer widows which, by the way, ain't necessarily so.

DEAR ABBY: I shall be 77 years of age when I graduate from college at the end of this semester.

Frankly, I am not a gift-giver, neither do I appreciate gifts, which presents a problem. How do I invite people to my graduation without being "bothered" by a gift, and the annoyance of acknowledging receipt?

I am just happy to have my friends attend such a occasion, and that is all. NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: On each invitation you could add, "Positively no gifts, please." But be prepared to have your request ignored by some.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

$4.5 Million Is Pledged Demos

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Democratic party says nearly $4.5 million was pledged during its 19-hour money-raising telethon.

But despite the financial success of the program, the party is still more than $6 million in debt from the 1968 campaign.

The party conducted the television extravaganza in an effort to wipe out a $9.3-million 1968 debt. Performers appearing on the show which ended Sunday night donated their services, but the Democrats reportedly had to pay the ABC television network $1.6 million for the airtime.

Officials were hopeful that late mail-in contributions would push the show's gross over $5 million.

Viewers pledged the contributions via telephone calls to 32 regional centers manned by 12,000 volunteers or charged it to credit cards.

At one point in the show early Sunday morning, one telethon host placed a call to the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., to ask President Nixon for a contribution. The call, however, never got past what apparently was a guard who thought the idea was a bad joke.

McGovern Promise Or Threat?

One must wonder whether Senator George McGovern's assertion that he may become a third party candidate if he is denied the Democratic party nomination is to be viewed as a promise or a threat.

Whichever, such an assertion is most unbecoming any politician who asks members of a political party to support his candidacy for the party's nomination without being willing himself to pledge to support the nominee of the party.

The Democratic party in many states requires that candidates seeking the party's nomination for office pledge to support the party's nominees in the general election. There have been many occasions in which the Democratic National Convention has required delegates to the convention to make a similar pledge to support the party's nominees before they were allowed to exercise their rights as delegates to the convention.

Now Sen. McGovern, fearful that he may not be able to steamroll his way to the Democratic presidential nomination, has said he may become a third party candidate if the Democrats do not award him the nomination. An individual so little interested in the well-being of the party, placing his own ambition above all else, does not deserve the party's nomination.

There is no reason for Sen. McGovern to be allowed to make his own rules of party loyalty any more so than any other major candidate for the nomination. There is certainly no consistency in requiring delegates and lesser candidates to support the party's nominees and not expect the same pledge from candidates for the highest honor the party can give anyone.

All Stand To Gain By Change

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — North Carolina industry and workers alike stand to gain from effective administration of the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Effective administration means state standards, inspection, and enforcement procedures, said W.C. (Billy) Creel, safety coordinator for the state labor department.

It's wrong, Creel insisted, to subscribe to the widespread view that OSHA is a nefarious federal scheme to burden management with impractical requirements of little benefit to the labor force.

"If properly administered, it could be one of the finest things that ever happened for industrial safety," said the veteran labor department official and Democratic candidate for labor commissioner.

It could improve further the state's already high standing in industrial safety, he said, adding protection for workers and giving industry the benefit of rate reductions for workmen's compensation insurance.

Creel agreed that published federal standards for the act, passed by Congress late in 1970, embrace a hodge-podge of detailed requirements, some with questionable relationship to either safety or health.

Beware Bad Ice

For example, one item in the 252 pages of fine print prohibits putting ice in drinking water — based on a regulation dating back to the Gay Nineties when winter-frozen rivers was the source for ice.

"What happened was that the U.S. labor department officials didn't think the act would be passed. When it did, they threw together a conglomeration of standards including a lot of nit-picking things," Creel explained.

The word from the top is that implementation will be on a reasonable basis, Creel added.

He said George Guenther, associate labor secretary in charge of OSHA, promised to fire the first inspector issuing a citation based on an obviously impractical provision of the standards.

Misapprehension persists, although Creel and his staff have been active in assuring Tar Heel industrial leaders that compliance will not mean strict adherence to every detail of the published standards.

Toilet Seat Dilemma

At a recent Burlington meeting, Creel illustrated the point by citing a section that henceforth toilet seats must be cut out in front. He said the round seat, customary in most homes, will be acceptable.

"My gosh," groaned a member of the audience. "I just changed 114 in my plant last week.,,

As Exhibit A that North Carolina can handle OSHA administration, Creel referred to an interim agreement under which state inspectors have been checking target industries. Only eight states were selected for such an agreement, he noted.

A 10-man team went to Washington for training in federal procedures. "Since Oct. 1, over 500 inspections have been made. In only two instances has management contested citations or penalties," he reported.

"That says a lot for the attitude of North Carolina Business and industry, and the good industrial safety climate developed in this state over the past 25 years."

State Approach Best

Creel is convinced that state administration rather than leaving it to the feds is the route for North Carolina to take in implementing OSHA. To qualify for the role, he said, a plan must be worked out for state standards, procedures and enforcement which will be equal to those at the federal level.

That plan now is being drafted. It will be submitted next month to federal officials. Their approval will be contingent upon the adoption of a package of enabling legislation by the 1973 General Assembly.

"I an confident we will qualify," said Creel.

Meanwhile, special OSHA training is offered through the state's community college system. So far, 12,106 Tar Heel management and supervisory personnel have completed the eight-hour course. An equal number is expected to be enrolled in the next 12 months.

"North Carolina has led in industrial safety," said Creel. "Our frequency rate for disabling accidents is 8.2 per million manhours, compared to the national rate of 15.4"

Telling The Reason Is A Reasonable Policy

It makes sense for the N. C. Board of Paroles to tell immates why their bids for paroles have been rejected.

The board changed its policies to allow this last week. Previously if parole was rejected no reason was given.

Now if an inmate has a specific behavioral problem he will know what it is and he can work toward correcting his deficiency.

It is only fair that an inmate know what he must do to qualify for parole.

Desertions In Hanoi's Army

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The melting away of a North Vietnamese regular army unit in combat near the demilitarized zone (DMZ) separating North and South Vietnam has been scrutinized in high government circles here as an event of potentially major significance both militarily and politically.

The unit, an antiaircraft artillery battalion, has been reduced in strength more than 40 per cent by casualties and desertion in recent weeks. The desertion has raised official eyebrows in Washington. Hard intelligence information shows that nearly one-fourth of the battalion, more than 50 men, have deserted since June 1.

Until now, mass desertion has been a stranger to the ideologically committed legions of Hanoi, whereas the South Vietnamese army (ARVN) has been plagued for years by scandalously high desertion rates. But in the recent weeks of Hanoi's failing offensive, there are repeated instances of North Vietnemese troops on the northern front throwing down their arms and returning over the DMZ to go home—a trend shown in exaggerated form by the vanishing antiaircraft artillery battalion.

The rising desertion rate sets a pattern indicating the North Vietnamess army is not what it used to be. Apart from recent headlines telling of Communist troops turning and running under bombing attack, the last few weeks have seen something new and startling: North Vietnamese regulars running away from ARVN infantry attacks.

Add this decline to monumental supply problems now encountered by Hanoi and the possibility of an major Communist offensive this autumn becomes remote indeed. Moreover, the realization that the Communist regulars run from trouble and even desert (just as ARVN troops do) is a tonic for ARVN morale. Reliable U.S. advisers report crack ARVN units in the present Quang Tri counteroffensive acutally show a zest for engaging the enemy.

The impact in Washington could be even more significant. War critics here have long pointed to the ferocity of the Communist soldier and the docility of the ARVN trooper as proof that Hanoi's troops represent a real nation and Saigon's only a corrupt regime. But that dubious logic is demolished by the 1972 military campaign, where both sides have had their share of ignominious retreat and courageous advance.

The diminishing North Vietnamese reputation as the Prussians of Indochina is attested not only by confirmed intelligence but also by Hanoi's own words. Even before recent setbacks, the May edition of the North Vietnamese army magazine published some remarkably candid admissions of inadequacy by non-commissioned and junior commissioned officers, most of them lacking combat experience.

These officers ("cadres"), the magazine admits, "often revealed shortcomings in...ability, knowledge and experience concerning leading, organizing and commanding the fight. Even cadres with combat experiences who were recently sent to the battlefield as reinforcements have not easily adjusted to battlefield combat demands."

The article frankly relates the tendency of North Vietnamese units to retreat and exhorts leaders to "prevent the desire to stop and relax."

Furthermore, the

The Convention Scenario

WASHINGTON — Everyone has his own scenario for this week's Democratic National Convention. The way things have been going with the party, one scenario has as much validity as the next. This is the one that I have written and if it comes true, remember, you read it here.

It is the fourth day of the convention and the Democrats have been unable to decide on a presidential candidate. The fight to seat delegations has taken up three days and those people who were ruled ineligible have refused to give up their seats to those who were officially designated as delegates to the convention.

Almost every state delegation has two people sitting in every chair. No one dares leave the floor for fear that someone will grab his seat.

When someone tries to speak he is hooted down by the opposition faction. Larry O'Brien, the chairman of the party, has the podium ringed with the National Guard so no one can grab the microphone.

The nomination speeches have not been heard, but the candidates have been nominated—McGovern, Humphrey, Wallace, Chisholm, Jackson and Muskie.

ART BUCHWALD

There have been no denomstrations for the candidates in the hall because everyone is afraid if he gets up and marches they won't let him back in his section again.

On the first ballot McGovern picked up 1,234 votes, well shy of the 1,509 he needed. The rest were split between the other candidates with the uncommitted refusing to vote for anyone.

The second and third ballot found no one budging. By the tenth ballot of Wednesday's all-night session, the convention was hopelessly deadlocked.

The state delegations caucused right on the floor, trying to get people to change their minds. But it was impossible.

On NBC John Chancellor and David Brinkley became short-tempered and refused to talk to each other. Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner on ABC were also not speaking to each other, and on CBS, Walter Cronkite wasn't talking to himself.

It was obvious to everyone in and out of the convention hall that a compromise candidate had to be found—one who had not already been nominated.

But who? The Democratic Party leaders call a recess behind the podium. They argue and thrash it out for several hours. The only man whose name is proposed as

Other Editors Say Wore Seat Belts?

(Wilson Times)

Accidents on North Carolina highways during the 102-hour July 4 weekend claimed 27 lives, which was not a record, but holiday fatalities pushed the 1972 death toll to 896, an increase of 58 over the 838 who perished in traffic mishaps during the same period last year.

Speed, reckless driving and the other usual causes are to blame. How many of those killed or injured were wearing seat belts? We fear you will find the majority were not wearing seat belts in either the fatal accidents and the property damage accidents.

There isn't any real excuse for this. Seat belts have proven their worth. It isn't a hardship to wear seat belts, but from the statistics the wearing of seat belts is decreasing rather than increasing while the number of cars on the roads and also the number of accidents are increasing.

It should not be necessary to have to pass a law to help auto drivers save their lives and property. In the no-fault insurance policy — if it passes — there should be a place requiring the wearing of seat belts and connecting the accident claims to the driver's precautions, among these the wearing of seat belts.

We recognize that many do not like to wear the seat belts, and for many reasons, but they are a proven safety measure. Many wear them on long trips which should be the case on all occasions, but there are more who do not than who do.

Such a low percentage of the drivers use seat belts that some other method must be found to encourage their use other than what is being done now. If a record could be kept showing whether those killed in accidents or hurt were or were not wearing seat belts possibly this would prove that the value of seat belts. With the automobile fatalities rising steadily already more than 58 ahead of the same date last year, there isn't the need of proof to find some way to stop the highway loss of life and property.

Does imprisonment in jail or prison have any real deterrent effect whatever on criminals? Some sociologists doubt it, but the statistics say otherwise. Confinement may not affect the hardened professional criminal, but the facts are that from a half to two-thirds of all persons who serve a first prison term never have to serve another.

The three most expensive cities to drive a car in America are now Boston, New York and San Francisco, according to An Ala Auto and Travel Club study. The two where driving is cheapest are Portland, Ore., and Richmond, Va., where costs are nearly three cents per mile cheaper than the top cost of 14.93 cents a mile chalked up in Boston. Which city he lived in could make a difference of some $475 to a businessman driving 15,009 miles a year.

Our rising cost of government: The payrolls of U.S. state and local governments went up 400 per cent between 1953 and 1971.

The fawns of whitetail deer are such homebodies that they rarely stray more than ten yards from their birth spot for the first month of their lives. Strength For Today

SPELLED OUT IN THE BIBLE

What so you worship? Most people worship a vague idea.

What is the meaning of the word God? For most people God is a high power. Little children regard Him as a Great Man up in the skies causing the rain and snow to fall and punishing people when they are bad. This is naive and highly anthropomorphic, but it is nearer the truth than God, the Vague Idea.

"No man has seen God at any time." But the Bible has made the nature of God and his purpose so plain that we can clearly understand all that the human mind is able the grasp about such a great reality as an unseen, all-powerful, personal God. Every branch of the Christain Church teaches the same about the nature and sovereignty of God. The teachings of Jewish Scriptures and the teachings of the New Testament fit perfectly together in giving us a picture of a personal God who is all-wise, loving, all-powerful and whose purpose is to turn the hearts of his children toward Himself in love and fellowship.

Our Lord declared that it was not the will of the Heavenly Father that a single person should be lost (Matthew 18:14). Men are lost because of their own willfulness and sin. God would have all men come to a saving knowledge of the truth.

Stop worshipping a vague idea. Saving truth is spelled out in the Word of God and interpreted in the creeds of the Church.

War Doesn't Help Capitalism

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's the fond belief of the Communists that capitalism needs war to operate. Marx said it and Lenin confirmed it.

But a little incident in the stock market Thursday should prove that it just isn't so.

What happened was an early report that Russia and China had put pressure on North Vietnam to make peace. There wasn't much foundation for the report, but the stock market moves fast even on rumors.

The market went up a whopping 13 points in the first half-hour. In the second half-hour it rose nearly 5 points more. That was the biggest gain in months.

But, you may say, perhaps the rise was due to something besides the possibility of peace. The proof that it was purely a peace reaction came in the next hour.

There was no confirmation of the report. The State Department said it doubted the Russians and Chinese had put pressure on the North Vietnamese. Diplomats in London, where the story started, said they had no information to back it up. The stock market operators took this in and began to back off.

The industrial average slid in the second hour by 6 points and continued to fall most of the rest of the day. Obviously the peace report was the only thing which had made the market rise because, when the prop was eliminated, the averages fell.

This has been repeated time after time in the past few years. The last previous time was in May, when rumors of an armistice spread through Wall Street. That time the rumors drove the market up 8 points and, when they were denied, the market lost the 8 points and 10 more in addition.

Industry itself knows very well that war doesn't help it or its profits. Most senior executives have been through three wars: a big one in 1941-45, a smaller one in Korea and a nonwar in Vietnam. Their experience has proven and reproven their belief that war is bad for business.

Wars bring controls, and controls hamper management. Prices can't be raised, and if profits are too high under wartime conditions there is the threat of an excess profits tax. Even ordinary taxes may be increased to pay for the war.

War also brings shortages, of both materials and manpower. Materials are rationed and many a company has to find substitutes or do without. Manpower is in short supply and industry has to reach into the ranks of the unskilled, male and female, for workers. This means training problems and low productivity of the new workers.

Above all, war means uncertainty: in sales, taxes, supplies. Business men hate uncertainty. They would much rather plan for an aggressive sales campaign in predictable peace.

Eleven Deaths In N.C. Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight wrecks involving only one car killed nine persons in North Carolina during the weekend. In addition, one other person died in a hit-and-run accident and a collision killed one person.

The 11 dead brought the state's toll for the year to 924, 53 more than had died at this time a year ago.

The state Highway Patrol said these persons were killed in single-vehicle wrecks:

—William C. Gramby, 26, of Rt. 3, Hertford, near Elizabeth City.

—Shelly Walker, 14 months, of Landrum, S.C., on I-26 near Columbus.

—Raymond Douglas Crisp, 22, whose identification had both Rt. 1, Bryson City and Lexington addresses, near Lexington.

—Nancy M. Campbell, 37, and Grady Roscoe Campbell, 2, both of Pleasant Garden, near Greensboro.

—Helen Radford, 49, of Robbinsville, near Bryson City.

—Robert Benajmin Rice, 33, of Rt. 4, Hendersonville, near Hendersonville.

—Trilby Jackson, 40, of New Rochelle, N.Y., near Burlington.

—Sherrell Marvin Melton, 26, of Edneyville, near Fletcher.

Mathew Jones, 57, of Greenville, was the hit-and-run victim. The patrol said he was struck on a rural road four miles west of Greenville.

The fatal collision occurred 12 miles northeast of Sparta on N.C. 18. The patrol said Ervin Lynn Sawyer, 20, of Galax, Va., was killed when his car was hit head-on by another which swerved into the left lane.

magazine admits "there have been cases in which cadres did not closely adhere to combat guidance ideologies and inflexibly applied unchanged combat methods"—a reference to the suicidal frontal assaults against heavily fortified ARVN positions throughout the offensive.

Besides second-rate leadership, the invading Communist troops have been hampered by deepening supply problems—with Hanoi's own words again confirming intelligence data. A June 10 broadcast by Hanoi-based Liberation Radio conceded that some artillery units encountered "an acute shortage of food and water." The army's daily newspaper of June 15 revealed the difficulty in "shortcomings in transportation of supplies from distant places" and added that procurement of food in front-line sectors is "still far below requirements."

Were it not for President Nixon's blockade of the North and the massive U.S. air support in the South, the North Vietnamese invaders— for all their new shortcomings—might well have swept through South Vietnam.

Nevertheless, the fact remains that Hanoi's well-armed regulars are now afflicted by the woes so long associated with the ARVN: desertion, breaking under fire, poor leadership. It is, of course, much too early to say, but that vanishing battalion may have been a signpost of real deterioration in the army of North Vietnam. And that would be of profound importance in this endless war.

the compromise candidate is a very famous, but controversial, figure on the American scene. He has announced many times that he is not a candidate for the Presidency or the Vice Presidency, and has said under no conditions would he accept a draft.

Yet, the leaders argue he is the one person who can save the party.

This young man, whose name had been associated with a very embarrassing incident, is a household word now. Because of the deadlock at the convention, he is the only one who can possibly beat Nixon in November.

The compromise candidate is not at the convention. He has purposely stayed away so people would believe he was not interested in the nomination.

O'Brien puts in a call to him. Everyone, in turn, gets on the phone and tells him he has to be the candidate. The compromise candidate speaks to George McGovern, Humphrey, Muskie and Wallace. They urge him to run. The candidate finally agrees to a draft and says he will take the next plane to Miami.

And that's how Bobby Fischer, the U.S. chess champion, became the Democratic presidential nominee for 1972.

BUT YOU CAN STILL BABY HIS HEALTH.

Of course, he's big enough to take care of himself, but at his age, it isn't likely that he'll give too much thought to health protection. That's where we come in, Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

If you have a son or daughter between the ages of 19-26 who is going to college or technical school full time, Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage can give them special protection.

There are three student plans available: Individual student, student with one dependent child, or student family. All three of these low-cost plans will provide coverage for hospital, medical, surgical, and out-patient care for the entire year. On or off campus.

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices were mixed in the stock market today in slow trading.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off .90 to 937.16. Gaining and losing issues on the New York Stock Exchange were almost in balance.

Restaurant stocks were lower, following publication of a report a major brokerage house had cancelled its buy recommendation for the group. Gino's was off 1½ to 28⅞, and McDonald's Corp. was down 2½ to 58.

Fansteel, whose directors cancelled plans to merge into Gould, Inc., was off ½ to 11¼. Gould rose 1½ to 37½.

After a delayed opening, Curtiss-Wright was down 5⅛ to 46. A flood of orders caused trading to be suspended a few minutes later. A magazine article cast doubt on the outlook for the Wankel engine, for which Curtiss-Wright has North American rights.

The Big Board index of more than 1,400 common stocks was off .02 to 60.13 at 11 a.m. The price-change index at the American Stock Exchange was unchanged at 27.38.

On a percentage basis, the best gains were made by Benguet, up ¾ to 6¾ for a boost of 12.5 per cent. Curtiss-Wright was at the top of the losing list, down 10.4 per cent.

Wallace Is Heading His Own Appeals

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — George C. Wallace, directing his convention forces from a wheelchair, is making person-to-person appeals to uncommitted and even unfriendly delegates while joining other candidates in a stop-McGovern coalition.

The Alabama governor has sent out invitations to all state delegations, offering chartered-bus transportation if they need it to reach the hotel where he has a plush, 20th-floor suite.

Wallace aides kept their silence on the identity of one of two candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination who have visited the governor. The name, they say, will surface today.

Charles Snider, Wallace's campaign manager, told newsmen that another candidate in addition to Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington has paid a visit.

Wallace's invitation to delegates opened his tightly guarded headquarters to newsmen for the first time when the Tennessee delegation responded.

"We're going to have a good number of delegates," Wallace told visitors in his richly appointed, gold-carpeted reception room.

"We're going to play a large part in the outcome of the convention as far as the nominee is concerned."

Wallace said the campaign he is waging already has "picked up some additional delegates in the uncommitted ranks."

Jackson, talking with newsmen after his meeting with the governor, said he and Wallace discussed only one campaign issue—national defense.

Louisburg Defeats Pirates, 4-1, In Sunday Game

LOUISBURG — Louisburg College knocked the Pirates of East Carolina Univeristy out of sole possession of first place in the N.C. Summer Collegiate League yesterday with a 4-1 victory.

The loss dropped the Pirate record in the league to 13-6. North Carolina has lost at least six games going into Sunday's action, and could tie the Bucs for the lead.

Louisburg pitcher Bobby Combs got the victory, scattering eight hits against the Pirates who just couldn't put together enough to get a rally going.

Glenn Forbes was charged with the loss as Louisburg got 10 hits off him. The telling blow, however, was a two-run homer by Wayne Pyrtle in the seventh that put the game on ice.

East Carolina didn't get a baserunner until the third when Forbes walked. Mike Bradshaw followed him with the first Pirate hit, but the first rally ended there.

East Carolina got men on first in the fourth and fifth, but it wasn't until the eighth that the Bucs finally got a run, the only one they were to get, across the plate.

Ronnie Legett led off the eighth with a double and advanced on an out. Bradshaw then came up with his second hit of the day, scoring Leggett.

The Bucs got one more chance, in the ninth. Larry Walters singled and moved up on a passed ball, but a line drove by Ron Staggs caught Walters in a double play.

Troy Eason followed that up with a double and John Narron got a single after that, but the Bucs were chocked off right there, ending the game.

Louisburg had scored early, getting one each in the first two innings to put the game away.

Don Hatcher led off the first with a single. Wayne Ellington came up with a hit and Pyrtle got another, loading the bases. Lynn Etheridge singled, driving in Hatcher with the first run. Townie Townsend followed with a grounder back to third and Ellington was cut down at the plate to halt the rally there.

In the second, John Summorour opened, reaching on an error. Combs sacrificed him up and Hatcher got a hit, moving him to third. Mike Wilkerson doubled, scoring Summorour, and the Bucs stopped them after that.

Louisburg didn't got another baserunner until the fifth, and he was promptly set down in a double play. They threatened again in the sixth however. Sherwood Driver singled and stole second. He took third on a wild pitch with only one down, but Forbes fanned the next batter and a fly out ended the threat.

But in the seventh, Louisburg came up with two more to seal it. With two away, Ellington singled. Pyrtle stepped up and sent the ball out of the park, running the lead to 4-0.

The games marked the start of a busy week for the Pirates. They return home tonight to host Louisburg in a make-up game at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field.

They then travel to Chapel Hill on Tuesday to meet North Carolina, then return home Thursday against Wilmington. They host Campbell on Friday, and travel to Roanoke Rapids on Saturday for a third meeting with Louisburg winding up the week.

Earl Weaver Can Only Look To Future

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Earl Weaver was looking ahead today because if he looked back all he could see were four straight losses by his Baltimore Orioles to the lowly Texas Rangers.

"The next game is the big game and the real big game might be in October," the Oriole manager said after Texas beat the Orioles 3-2 in 10 innings Sunday night to complete their four-game sweep in Baltimore.

The Boston Red Sox, meanwhile, probably will be happy to see anything that looks like a good pitch to hit after California's Nolan Ryan struck out 16 and retired the last 26 batters in beating them 3-0 in a twilight game on the West Coast.

Baltimore went into the Texas series with a two-game lead over the Detroit Tigers in the American League East.

Tonight the Orioles open a series with Kansas City in a tie with Detroit, which lost to Chicago 5-4 and then came back to beat the White Sox 4-2.

In other AL action, the New York Yankees moved to within 3½ games of the East lead by beating Minnesota 9-5; West leader Oakland topped Milwaukee 3-2 and Kansas City swept Cleveland 6-4 and 8-5.

In the National League, the Chicago Cubs downed Cincinnati 5-0 and 10-5, San Diego nipped Philadelphia 5-4, San Francisco took Montreal 5-1, Los Angeles shaded the New York Mets 2-0, Pittsburgh slugged Atlanta 7-4 and Houston blasted St. Louis 12-6.

Texas tied the Orioles Sunday when Joe Lovitto tripled home a run with two out in the eighth inning and then won it when Lovitto doubled home Toby Harrah who had opened the 10th with his third hit of the game. Brooks Robinson's sacrifice fly and Boog Powell's pinch single produced Baltimore's runs.

Ryan, a hard-throwing righthander with an 11-5 record, gave up a game-opening walk to Tommy Harper, struck out the next man and then yielded a single to Carl Yastrzemski.

Yastrzemski was the last Boston baserunner as Ryan struck out nine men in the first three innings and set an American League record by fanning eight straight. The old mark was seven and the major league mark is 10 by Tom Seaver of the Mets.

Run-scoring singles by Ken McMullen and Leo Cardenas off Sonny Siebert and a throwing error by catcher Carlton Fisk produced three California runs in the fourth.

Tom Haller, who tripled and doubled, hit a two-run homer in the ninth after failing on two bunt attempts to make Detroit's Mickey Lolich, 14-6, the majors' winningest pitcher.

The White Sox won the opener on Rick Reichardt's bases-loaded single that broke a 4-4 tie in the ninth.

Ron Blomberg hit a pair of two-run doubles and Horace Clarke one; Steve Kline boosted his record to 8-3 and Sparky Lyle picked up a major-league-leading 19th save in the Yankees' victory. Rich Reese hit the third pinch-hit grand slam of his career tying the major league record set by Ron Northey in the National League.

Joe Rudi hit a two-run double and Dave Duncan a homer in Oakland's victory. Blue Moon Odom pitched two-hit ball and retired 22 straight Milwaukee batters before he needed help from Rollie Fingers after two singles and Dave May's RBI double with two out in the ninth.

Amos Otis collected four hits, including a two-run homer in the first game and homered and scored three runs in the nightcap as Kansas City swept Cleveland. Otis' homer in the first game came in a three-run eighth when the Royals broke a 3-3 tie.

Bass Coach At Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Chicago sports baron Charles O. Finley during the weekend named Bob Bass as coach of the Memphis American Basketball Association franchise, officially acquired Thursday by Finley.

Bass, 43, is the former coach of the ABA Floridians of Miami, now disbanded by the league, and is the man who convinced Finley to purchase the financially-troubled Memphis team.

Finley's naming Saturday of Bass to the coaching slot was not unexpected. Bass has been mentioned again and again in past weeks as the probable coach or general manager for Memphis.

The two men met earlier this year when Bass was attempting to save the Floridians from doom. Finley would not go along with that idea, but he and Bass hit it off quickly and Bass later talked millionaire Finley into acquiring the Memphis Pros.

Bass has been in coaching for over two decades on the high school, collegiate and professional level. The past season with the Floridians was his only losing one—a 36-52 record.

Over all, Bass has a 545-340 record in his 22-year stint as a coach.

ZOOMED

YORK, Pa. (AP) — Don Carlton of Burlington, N.C. supassed the national speed record over the weekend by pushing his 1972 Dodge Demon to 146.10 miles per hour in winning challenger eliminations at the drag raceway here.

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A North Carolina driver, Harry Ingle of Charlotte, took first place Sunday in the $10,000 race for Formula Vee machines at Road Atlanta.

Ingle posted an average speed of 98.67 miles per hour for 25 laps around the 2.52 mile circuit in his Zink Special. His margin over second-place Fred Phillips of New Orleans, driving a Tuitui Special, was 11.2 seconds.

Gregor Kronegard of Stockholm, Sweden, was third in a Lola and Bill Scott of McLean, Va., was fourth in a Royale. John Finger of Greenville, S.C., was fifth in a Zink

Pittsburgh Power Overwhelms Slugger Hank Aaron

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

A professional hitter understandably appreciates professional hitting and so Hank Aaron stands in awe of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Aaron ripped the 657th home run of his career—57 short of Babe Ruth's record—Sunday, but it wasn't nearly enough to overcome homers by Willie Stargell, Bob Robertson, Manny Sanguillen and Al Oliver that carried the Pirates to a 7-4 romp over the Atlanta Braves.

The victory, combined with Los Angeles' 2-0 triumph over the New York Mets, left the Pirates with a four-game bulge over the Mets in the National League's East Division.

Elsewhere in the NL Sunday, Chicago swept a doubleheader from Cincinnati 5-0 and 10-5, Houston ripped St. Louis 12-6, San Francisco downed Montreal 5-4 and San Diego edged Philadelphia 5-4.

In the American League, Kansas City gained a twinbill sweep over Cleveland 6-4 and 8-5, New York outslugged Minnesota 9-6, Oakland topped Milwaukee 3-1, Texas topped Baltimore 3-2 in 10 innings, Chicago split a doubleheader with Detroit, winning 5-4 before losing 4-2, and California stopped Boston 3-0 on Nolan Ryan's one-hitter.

Pittsburgh's victory over Atlanta left the Pirates with a .280 team batting average—the best in baseball. It also left Aaron impressed.

"Pittsburgh's the best team I've seen since I've been in this game," said the Atlanta slugger, who reached the major leagues 18 years ago. "They've got two teams and no matter which one they put out, they run you to death."

On the bench are hitters like Vic Davalillo (.358), Gene Clines (.333), and Rennie Stennett (.289). The problem is finding room in the line-up for all the bats.

Stargell, Robertson and Oliver all jolted Denny McLain for their homers as the former American Leaguer was knocked out early. Sanguillen connected against reliever Cecil Upshaw.

Aaron and Oscar Brown homered for the Braves, who dropped three of four to the Pirates. Pittsburgh has won eight of its last 10 games.

The Mets managed just six hits against Claude Osteen as the Dodgers beat New York ace Tom Seaver.

Seaver allowed nine hits, three of them to rookie Lee Lacy, who scored the first Dodger run and drove in the second.

Three straight hits by Lacy, Bill Buckner and Willie Davis gave the Dodgers a run before a batter was retired in the first inning and Osteen made it stand up until Lacy's two-out ninth inning single gave LA its wrapup run.

Chicago ripped Cincinnati twice, riding Ferguson Jenkins' shutout pitching to the first game victory and then outslugging the Reds in the nightcap.

Jenkins hurled a seven-hitter for his 15th complete game and first shutout of the season. Five straight singles with two out in the fifth inning of the opener produced three Cub runs to give the fire-balling right-hander a comfortable edge against the Reds.

In the nightcap, Carmen Fanzone drove in five runs and Tommy Davis added three RBI, completing the sweep. Two of Fanzone's RBI came on his fifth home run of the year.

The double loss, combined with Houston's victory, shaved the Reds' West Division lead to one game over the Astros.

Lee May, Doug Rader and Johnny Edwards tagged homers, leading Houston past St. Louis. The Astros collected 16 hits.

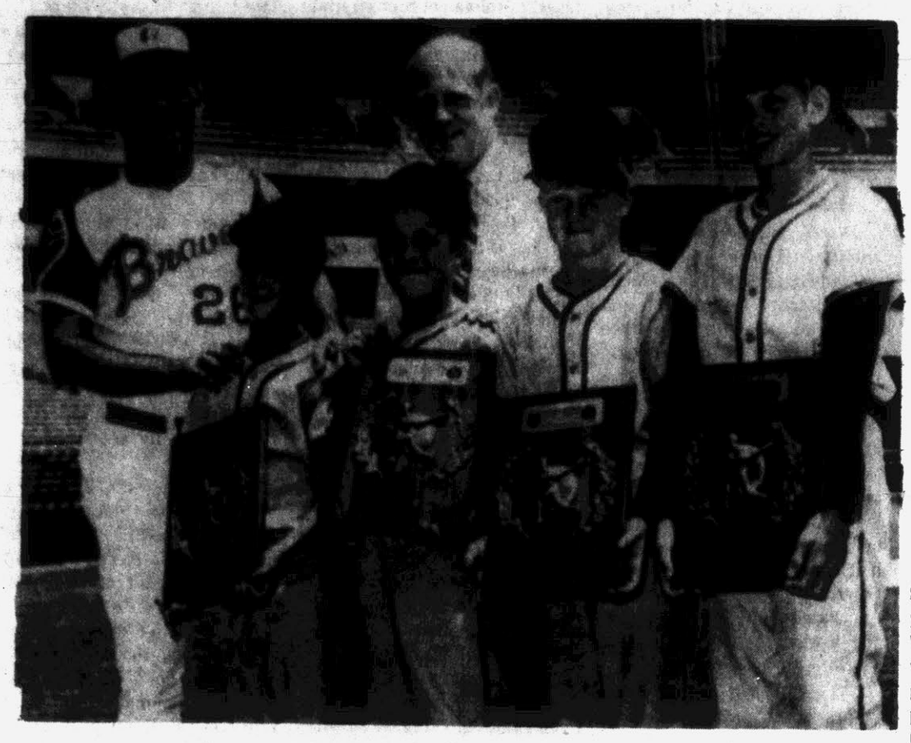

Homers by Bobby Bonds and Dave Kingman helped the Giants get past Montreal.

Kingman's three-run shot was his 21st of the year, tying the San Francisco slugger for the major league lead. Bonds opened the game with his No. 12.

San Diego rode a 14-hit attack to its victory over Philadelphia.

Clarence Gaston drove in two runs for the Padres who overcame Phillie homers by Joe Lis, Oscar Gamble and Deron Johnson for their fifth victory in the last six games.

Grand Jury To Hear Playbook Testimony

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — U.S. Atty. Gerald Gallinghouse said a federal grand jury here is to receive testimony today concerning an alleged attempt to sell pro football secrets to the New Orleans Saints.

Karl Sweetan, 29, former quarterback for the Saints and the Los Angeles Rams, and his cousin, Wayne Boswell, 31, both of Dallas, Tex., were released on $5,000 bonds Saturday on charges involving an allegedly stolen Rams' playbook.

Both were charged with interstate transportation of stolen property and fraud by wire.

They were arrested Friday after Saints coach J. D. Roberts notified federal authorities that he had been contacted about a proposed playbook sale offer.

Sweetan's attorney said: "There has been a very large misunderstanding and it will be resolved to everyone's satisfaction. I do not believe it is wise to discuss any playbook."

Sweetan, who also played in the National Football League as a quarterback for the Detroit Lions before joining the Saints and then the Rams, more recently played with Edmonton of the Canadian League and was released recently.

Tourney Ended Jaycee Junior Tennis Program

Saturday's tournament at Elm Street Park completed this year's local Jaycee Junior Tennis Program. Competition was held in each different age group with those winners playing each other to determine the overall "16 and under" age group winner.

Girls' individual age group winners were: Marty East, Janet Hackett, Karen Jeffreys and Becky Piner, with Becky Piner winning the overall "16 and under" age group. Marty East was runner up.

Boys' individual age group winners were: Tracy Finch, Michael Jeffreys, Tommy Stoughton and David Walton, with David Walton winning the overall "16 and under" age group. Michael Jeffreys was runner up.

Local overall age group winners and runners up will be eligible to participate in the State Jaycee Junior Tennis Program, which will be held in Wilson, North Carolina, July 18, 19 and 20.

Brewer 'Determined To Win', And Triumphed

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

FORT ERIE, Ont. (AP) — "When you're destined to win, well, you are just going to win," Gay Brewer said after ending a five-year victory famine with a nerve-tingling triumph in the Canadian Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

The greying, 40-year-old veteran who last won in the 1967 Masters, blew a three-stroke lead and twice flirted with disaster before carding a final round 70 and a one-stroke victory at 273.

That was nine under par on the 6,751-yard Cherry Hill Golf Club course and just one in front of onrushing Dave Hill and rookie Sam Adams. The veteran Hill closed birdie-birdie for a 67 and Adams, a curly haired left hander from Boone, N.C., blazed home with the day's best round, a stunning 66.

Veteran Phil Rodgers had a two-under-par 69 and was alone in fourth at 277. Lou Graham followed with a 70—278. Chi Chi Rodriguez and Canadian George Knudson had 67s and were tied at 279.

Lee Trevino, the 1971 champion, wasn't a factor after the first round. He had a final 70 and was tied at 282 with South African Gary Player. Arnold Palmer closed with a 72—285 before he, Player and Trevino set out for Scotland and next week's British Open.

Jack Nicklaus, already holder of the Masters and U.S. Open titles didn't compete in this national championship in order to get an early start on his preparations for the tournament in Muirfield, Scotland. He's gunning for an unprecedented one-year sweep of all the world's major titles.

Brewer, whose life was in danger at one time when he was hospitalized with bleeding ulcers earlier this season, said a book by Canadian amateur Nick Weslock helped him with his putting and was the key to his 10th tour triumph.

"I'd been putting bad for 2½ years," said Brewer, who once lost his exempt players status and only this year escaped the ranks of Monday qualifiers.

"His book quoted Nicklaus and Trevino and Bob Charles and Player and a bunch of players after they had won tournaments.

"I used to be a good putter and it helped me get back to what I was doing before, standing up straighter, holding my hands differently and so on."

The victory was worth $30,000 to the pug-nosed player from Dallas and more than doubled his yearly earnings. He'd won but $26,000 earlier in the season. The triumph also put him in the four-man field for the rich and prestigious World Series of Golf.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN

(c 1972: By The Chicago Tribune)

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠63 ♡J1072 ◇Q103 ♣KJ74

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. This is not much of a hand and partner's bid is not forcing. Nevertheless, you should decline to give up the ghost at this point. Whereas your one no trump bid promised six points in high cards, you have seven plus two rather impressive tens.

Q. 2 — Your partner has opened with one spade and you hold:

♠43 ♡A3 ◇AK4 ♣AQ1074

What is your response?

A.—A jump shift to three clubs is our choice, despite the fact that we have no special support for spades. This hand is worth 19 points and, unless the jump shift is made, it will be almost impossible to show the full strength of the hand on subsequent rounds.

Q. 3 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ86 ♡KQJ7 ◇A4 ♣J63

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand contains considerably more than you might have had for a minimum opening, and you should do something other than make the mere routine bid of four spades, which would be a forced bid. The suggested call is a bid of four diamonds. This will not indicate a desire to play in the minor suit, since your major suit has been vigorously supported. It will merely serve as a mild suggestion for a slam, without incurring any additional expense. If partner is not interested, he will return to four spades.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ865 ♡J8 ◇KJ754 ♣7

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	2 ♣	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. A bid of two spades is not recommended. The likelihood of going places in spades is not great, and if partner finds it expedient to rebid three clubs you may be in difficulties.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q6 ♡Q5 ◇KQJ9843 ♣74

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Two diamonds. The length of your diamond suit is not sufficient justification for a jump rebid, which in our method is forcing. While two diamonds is admittedly an underbid, a jump to three would be a distinct overbid.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q10964 ◇QJ103 ♣KQ64

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner has obviously passed values which amount to a fair-sized trap but, in view of your unbalanced distribution, a no trump contract should be viewed with suspicion and an effort should be made to elicit a spade preference from partner. The suggested call is three clubs or three diamonds if you prefer.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KQ10962 ♡AQ75 ♣973

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—With a void in diamonds we would not relish a no trump contract and would recommend a bid of four spades. This holding in the circumstances is more or less self-sustaining, an alternate bid is four clubs, which we might be inclined to try if we had an honor in the suit.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q1062 ♡73 ◇A8642 ♣AK

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♡	2 ◇	Pass
2 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. While your values are ample for a game effort at no trump, a further exploratory bid may be made at no cost. Partner might have a four card spade holding which he temporarily suppressed in favor of showing the heart stopper.

The Worry Clinic

Darwin Didn't Prove Claims

Terry is jumping to illogical conclusions. For he suffers from the fallacy in logic called "Kowtowing to Sacred Cows." Far too many Americans are being unduly impressed by supposed authorities with a Ph.D., instead of using their own "horse sense."

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-530: Terry B. aged 19, is a college freshman.

"Dr. Crane," he challenged, "don't you think the Garden of Eden story is all the bunk?

"For Darwin proved that we evolved from the sea.

"And through millions of years, mankind progressed from small sea creatures into his present erect form."

Fools vs. Angels

Remember the old adage that says:

"Fools walk in where angels fear to tread!"

Darwin theorized that evolution would be a simple way to tie together the development of all the thousands of living creatures here on Earth.

But he didn't prove it at all!

And some of his major assumptions are illogical.

For example, he contended that since our human blood contains all those water-soluble trace chemicals that are in the oceans, then we must have evolved from the sea.

Any college debater could puncture that fallacy!

For our blood is essentially water.

And all the food we eat contains at least traces of all those water-soluble chemicals on this planet.

So our blood would naturally contain the sea chemicals, whether we evolved from minute ocean creatures or were brought to a Garden of Eden, (via a space ship) as fully grown human beings.

Adam and Eve would thus have all the ocean's 44 trace chemicals in their blood after their first meal in the Garden of Eden!

Furthermore, similarity of structure doesn't prove that one thing evolved from another.

Mrs. Crane and I have a white house "evolved" from the dog kennel?

Mrs. Crane and I have a white house on our Indiana farm, plus a white dog kennel beside it.

Does that mean that our big white house "evolved" from the dog kennel?

Not at all!

It simply indicates that certain principles of construction proved basic to both.

Likewise, the similarity in vertebrates is based on the leverage value of having muscles fastened to bones, to promote locomotion, etc.

Furthermore, it is just as logical to assume that "devolution" occurred as to become addicts of evolution.

For we find that even inanimate things, such as mountains, tend to be pulled downward (devolve) in the process of erosion till they will ultimately reach the sea.

The forces of nature (wind, freezing, snow and rain) thus tear down instead of building up!

Even primitive vegetation was thus buried through the eons of time till it formed coal and oil, deep down inside the earth.

Alas, our current American population is even now experiencing devolution, for the percentage of morons, imbeciles and idiots is rising and eroding the national I.Q. of Americans.

Despite the few brilliant inventions and flights to the moon, mankind is actually degenerating as a whole to a lower I.Q. level!

That's devolution; not evolution!

So send for my booklet "Common Fallacies in Logic," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send of one of his booklets.)

Water Risks From Agnes

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Record high waters from tropical storm Agnes and more recent rains have created hazards for boaters and skiers on Kerr and Philpott lakes and other lakes in the Roanoke River Basin, the Army Engineers warned Sunday.

The engineers said the high waters have caused debris such as logs and oil drums to wash into the lakes and in addition many stumps, bushes, fences and other objects normally on dry land are now submerged "creating a danger area."

The federal agency warned that semi-submerged logs, oil drums, as well as stumps and other objects can cause "severe damage to boats, boaters, and to unwary water skiers."

It added that water at both lakes is "being released as rapidly as possible and still being contained within banks below the dam."

It also said that maintenance crews are at work removing debris in the water but "it will be several weeks before normal conditions will be restored for boating and water skiing."

A kilometer is 3,280.8 feet, or about 62 per cent of the distance of the mile, which is 5,280 feet.

Antarctic Trash Does Not Rot

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP) — Environment-conscious New Zealanders are fighting pollution in Antarctica.

A high-temperature incinerator is to be installed in the year-end Antarctic summer at New Zealand's Scott Base to burn human waste and all trash.

Says the head of New Zealand's Antarctic program, Robert B. Thomson: "The disposal of trash in the Antarctic is an increasing problem. The cold, dry climate prevents any micro-biological or chemical action taking place; so no rotting of waste materials can occur."

Cercospora leafspot is probably the biggest factor causing loss of peanuts here in the couty. Even with the lateness of planting, leafspot has shown up in many fields. At present, there are many good chemicals which will effectively control his disease. Don't put off your leafspot control program—putit on!

There have also been reports Southern Stem Rot is already severe in some peanut fields in North Carolina. It was predicted by pathologists that stem rot would be severe because of the unusual weather conditions this spring. Growers should pay close attention to their fields for symptions of this disease. If this disease is found, early application of PCNB should be made.

Symptoms of this disease are root decay, a light brown rot at the base of the stem frequently killing the stem and foliage, and the decay of pods.During wet periods a cottony fungus growth forms on the dead areas around the base of the plant. Later, small, hard yellow or light brown colored bodies resembling mustard seed form on the infected stems and on the soil surrounding them. Affected plants are usually scattered but occasionally large areas of diseased plants are found in a field.

Not only diseases, but insects are also a threat to peanuts. Peanuts may be attacked by a number of different insects from the time they are planted until they are harvested. Some of these insects feed on the buds, leaves and stems, while others attack below the ground, feeding on pegs, pods and kernels.

Diseases and insects are always a problem in all field crops, but they can be controlled effectively with the right chemical. However, growers should read carefully the instructions for using all chemicals and follow the labelled instructions of the manufacturer.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

The introduction of an "exotic" breed from the West Indies holds some promise of reviving North Carolina's almost defunct sheep industry.

North Carolina State University animal scientists see some ray of hope that the Barbados Blackbelly, recently introduced into the North Carolina State University Experiment Station flock, can provide the breakthrough needed to resolve some of the problems that have practically removed sheep from the Tarheel farm scene in the last 20 years.

The Blackbelly, which evolved over generations of natural selection in the warm, humid Caribbean climate, has performed well in heat tolerance tests in North Carolina. Crossbred ewes (half Blackbelly) conceived and lambed out of the normal season "much better than any of the other breeds," according to Dr. Lemuel Goode.

Dr. Goode says preliminary research indicates that the Blackbelly might be used to breed heat tolerance into a crossbred commercial ewe, making possible year-around lambing.

"We believe we must have a sheep that can breed and lamb anytime of the year," Dr. Goode commented. "This is essential in providing a year-around supply of lamb, which would be required by the market."

Another contribution the Blackbelly apparently can make is resistance to internal parasites. Internal parasites are a serious problem in Tarheel sheep but they haven't seriously affected the hearty Dorset-Blackbelly crossbred sheep used in recent parasite studies.

Another "plus" for the Blackbelly is that it grows hair instead of wool. The world is burdened by an over-abundance of wool at the present time and markets are depressed. Under these conditions, farmers probably would rather have a sheep that didn't have to be sheared.

"The lack of heat tolerance in our sheep probably has caused us more trouble than all the other factors combined," Dr. Goode explained. "We have serious problems with the Dorset breed, for example, in heat affecting fetal development."

If further research substantiates that the Blackbelly, or crossbreds carrying that breed's traits, can be used in a multiple lambing program, the way could be opened for year-around production. Efficiency would increase significantly.

Instead of one ewe producing one lamb crop a year, she could produce three crops every two years on an eight-month lambing schedule.

"We believe something like this is essential if we are to make sheep farming attractive enough to get young farmers into the business," Dr. Goode commented.

The economics of sheep farming are good, but there is a stigma attached to this animal that has contributed to its decline. It is generally regarded as a 'depression type' farming enterprise.

Sheep farming needs to be made so attractive that young farmers can not afford to ignore it. It has a lot to offer in certain situations.

Sheep numbers, which were up to around 60,000 following World War II, have dwindled in North Carolina to around 15,000. The few remaining markets will probably be lost unless numbers are increased soon.

Tobacco TIPS

By EDWIN L. YANCEY.

R.O.W. is the trademark of the highly successful Research On Wheels tobacco disease research and testing program. Furney Todd, Extension professor of Plant Pathology, recently announced plans for the annual tour of these tests. He stated that "the 1972 tour will be a real 'tobacco extravaganza' designed to develop our theme "Let's Back Tobacco" (LBT)."

The R.O.W. tour will begin on Monday, July 17 in Pitt County with a "tobacco talk" fellowhip and seafood buffet at the Pitt County Wildlife Club. Tuesday, July 18, the tour will visit the Area Variety test at the Floyd Mills farm on Memorial Drive in Greenville, at 8 a.m. Then, it will move to the Stokes Farms in Eastern Pines at 10:30 a.m. for a demonstration of mechanical harvesting, curing, and handling of tobacco. A luncheon will be held at the Greenville Country Club at Noon.

The afternoon tour will take growers and agribusiness representatives to Greene County and Halifax County for other R.O.W. tests. A twilight meeting and an eastern Carolina "pig picking" will end the day.

Wednesday's tour will move into the Middle Belt for more R.O.W. tests. Thursday will be spent in the Old Belt with a visit to the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company manufacturing plant being featured.

Todd emphasized that fewer stops are planned for the '72 tour so that more time can be allowed for old fashioned tobacco talk at each one. He also announced that buses will be used for the tour. Persons who plan to participate in only one day of the tour will ride shuttle buses which will depart and return to the same point. Their schedule is: Tuesday, July 18, depart Holiday Inn in Greenville at 7:50 a.m. and return after the twilight meeting and "pig picking." Wednesday, July 19, depart Holiday Inn, Battleboro, N.C. at 8 a.m. and return about 5 p.m. Thursday, July 20, depart Holiday Inn Four Seasons, Greensboro, N.C. at 8 a.m. and return about mid-afternoon. Persons "taking in" the entire tour will board buses at the Hilton Inn in Raleigh at 3:30 p.m. Monday, July 17, and return at 5 p.m. Thursday, July 20.

The tobacco talk fellowship, the seafood buffet kick-off dinner and the pig picking are being sponsored and are free to all participants who have tickets. The bus transportation and all other meals will be on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Pitt County growers and agribusinessmen should contact the Agricultural Extension Office in Greenville for tickets.

Any Pitt County growers who plan only to visit the Mills farm, or the Stokes Farms should go directly to those stops at the announced time.

About one-quarter ounce of salt a day is required by the human body.
